Also Raise Oil Prices...

Saudis Announce Reduction In Oil Production

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani said today that his country's oil production will be reduced to a maximum of 8.5 million barrels a day.

The production cut, announced at a press conference, followed an OPEC agreement Thursday raising Saudi Arabia's base price for crude oil $2 a barrel while cutting other OPEC members' prices. Americans will pay about 2½ cents more per gallon for gasoline and fuel oil because of the agreement, analysts say.

In September, Saudi output was about 9.2 million barrels per day. October's output, figures for which have not been announced, is estimated to have been slightly more than in September.

Saudi Arabia, accused by OPEC members of driving down prices by flooding the market, cut back production from an estimated 10 million barrels a day after the last meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries as a good faith gesture toward the bickering cartel members.

The agreement announced Thursday after a one-day meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries set a new base price of $34 for a 42-gallon barrel of crude oil and a ceiling of $38, cutting other nations' prices $1-$3 a barrel.

Base prices have been $32 for Saudi Arabia and $36 for the rest.

The reduction is the first in official base prices in the oil cartel's 21-year history. Some of the oil ministers said there might be minor changes in the price premiums allowed for higher-quality oil at the group's next meeting in Abu Dhabi in December.

Despite the cuts, the price of petroleum products will rise in the United States because Saudi Arabia supplies about 5 percent of the 16 million barrels of oil America uses daily, and prices of oil produced in the United States tend to move in tandem with the Saudi price.

The agreement also froze the price schedule until the end of 1982. One Wall Street oil expert, Eugene Nowak of the investment firm of Dean Witter Reynolds, said that "doesn't mean much" because supply disruptions or other forces could end the freeze.

Individual OPEC members have broken price freezes in the past, but Secretary-General Marc S. Nan Nguema predicted this one would hold.

"The ministers gave their words, and we are sometimes gentlemen," he told reporters.

The accord followed weeks of intensive negotiations by telephone and telex. With the demand for OPEC oil reduced by the international oil glut and members cutting prices individually to retain customers, the 13 oil ministers were determined to avoid a third failure after divisive meetings in May and August.

"Rumors about OPEC's death are exaggerated," said Kuwait's oil minister, Sheik Ali Khalifa Al-Sabah. He was reported to be the principal mediator of the agreement.

To save time, the ministers met without aides Thursday in the 15th-floor hotel suite of OPEC's current president, Oil Minister Subroto of Indonesia. The main wrangle was over the price ceiling.

It was the first one-day OPEC meeting in several years.

The agreement represented a personal victory for Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, who in effect forced it on the others by flooding the market with Saudi oil and driving their prices down.

Yamani has been pushing for a unified base price since February 1979, when such price militants as Libya and Algeria fractured the cartel's unity with unilateral raises.

READY FOR HALLOWEEN--Halloween is that special time of year in which children love to dress up as ghosts and goblins and trick-or-treat their neighbors and friends. Jack-o-lanterns are also a Halloween tradition. Pictured with this grinning pumpkin are Brooke Gladson, 3, and her brother, Reis, who is five years old. Keeping tab on our neighbors:

Speedy Nieman of the Hereford Brand tells about the college student home on vacation who was talking with his grandfather and told him math was his major.

"I'm going to be a mathematician. It's an exact science," the student said with more enthusiasm than wisdom. "Obeying fixed, immutable laws, figures never lie."

"That's fine," said the grandfather. "But I wouldn't be too sure about that business of figures never lying."

"Give me one example where figures lie," said the student.

"I wouldn't know if it is a lie exactly," said the old man. "But if one man can build a garage in 12 days, would you tell me that 12 men could build a garage in one day?"

"Correct," answered the youth.

"Then I suppose 288 men could build a garage in one hour, 17,280 could do it in one minute, and 1,036,800 could do it in one second?"

Things are not always what they seem.

Stephen Henry of the Levelland News-Press says a fellows was plowing in one of those rocky fields on a Hill Country farm when a New Yorker drove up in a shiny, big car.

"I don't see how you make a living on land like this," said the New Yorker.

"Well, mister," replied the farmer, "I'm ain't as poor as you think. I don't own this land."

We like the list of TV commercials that Lewis Grizzard of the Des Moines Register and Tribune Syndicate would like to eliminate:

—Dog food commercials. They're all alike. The owner pours out a bowl of dog food, the dog is unleashed and rushes to the bowl of food, which he engulfs in one bite. We all know the poor animal hasn't been fed for a week. He's so hungry that he would eat a bowl of mud at this point.

—Mouthwash commercials. You'd think anybody with bad breath had leprosy.

—Laxative commercials. Enough said, already.

—Hemorrhoid commercials. Ditto.

—Michelob Beer commercials. Those one-on-one basketball games are too far-fetched, especially the last scene showing the winner dunking the ball. You know how many Michelobs a 5-11 guy would have to drink to dunk a basketball?

—Muhammad Ali roach commercials.

—Female needs commercials.

Exceptions, which he likes: George Burns battery commercials, James Garner camera commercials and Walt Garrison snuff commercials.

B-52 Bomber Crashes

LA JUNTA, Colo. (AP) — A B-52 bomber on a training mission from California crashed on remote rangeland eight miles east of this southeastern Colorado town early today, killing all eight crew members, sheriff's deputies said.

Air Force officials did not immediately confirm the deaths or release the identities of the crew.

Staff Sgt. Ada A. Martin of Peterson Air Force Base in Colorado Springs said the plane was a B-52 on a low-altitude training mission from March Air Force Base near San Bernardino, Calif.

No weapons were aboard the intercontinental jet bomber, she said.

The Otero County Sheriff's dispatcher said a caller reported hearing an explosion at about 4:45 a.m. MST and authorities who went to the scene said wreckage was scattered over a three-quarter mile area.

Ms. Martin said crews from Peterson and the Fort Carson army installation at Colorado Springs were dispatched by helicopter to the crash site.

Air Force officials said the plane was a B-52D, the oldest version of the plane in use. The B-52D is more than 20 years old and has been scheduled for retirement by the Reagan administration.

La Junta is in extreme southeastern Colorado, about 50 miles east of Pueblo.

Hometowns were not immediately available.

Grubbs Moving To Challenge Heatly

A contested race already is shaping up in Scurry County's new legislative district.

Rep. Walter Grubbs of Abilene, who was thrown into the same district with Rep. Gary Thompson, announced Thursday that he was moving his legal residence to Merkel. This puts him in a portion of Taylor County that is included in the new 78th Legislative District, as drawn by the Legislative Redistricting Committee on Wednesday night.

The 78th District was set up to prevent veteran Rep. Bill Heatly of Paducah from having to run against Rep. Foster Whaley of Pampa.

If the new district boundaries stand, Grubbs now will be paired with Heatly in the 78th District, and Grubbs said Thursday that he intends to run in the 78th District.

Scurry County is being taken from the former 63rd District, represented now by Rep. Larry Don Shaw of Big Spring, and added to the new 78th District.

Earlier, it had been reported that Scurry County would go into Grubbs' district, but late maneuvering in Austin paired Grubbs with Rep. Thompson.

Grubbs, who served for 14 years as Congressman Omar Burleson's district manager, had to move his residence quickly to meet requirements for running in District 78. The general election next year will be held on Nov. 2, and he must be in the district a year prior to the election date to qualify.

Grubbs was scheduled to be in Snyder today to visit with local voters.

Ask Us

Q.—Is it legal to have chickens in the city limits?

A.—Chickens fall under the animal control ordinance, says Doc Griffin, the city's environmental control officer. They may be kept inside the city limits, provided certain requirements are met. No animals or fowls are allowed to run at large in the city, and anyone planning to keep them in the city should check on the requirements at city hall.

Santa Fe To Phase Out Local Freight Agencies

Plans for establishing a regional freight office in Lubbock, announced here Thursday by Santa Fe Railway, would phase out the Snyder agency, along with those in some 15 other towns on the line.

B. K. Perry, Santa Fe's assistant general manager at Amarillo, outlined the plan at a luncheon meeting at the Smorgasbord. It is a plan that is being established system-wide and one that has been adopted by other major railroads, Perry said.

"We've had it in California for five years and in Kansas for a year-and-a-half, and it works well," he continued.

He said business in the towns involved will be handled in the same way as before, except that customers will deal directly with the regionl office in Lubbock instead of their local office. They will have toll-free numbers to call for service.

Perry said the operation of the railroad is computerized now and that the task of spotting cars and handling requests is already actually handled by the regional control centers.

Local agencies that would be absorbed by the Lubbock regional office would be Snyder, Slaton, Tahoka, Lamesa, Abernathy, Crosbyton, Ralls, Lorenzo, Brownfield, Levelland, Seagraves, Shallowater, Anton, Littlefield, Sudan and Muleshoe.

"These small agencies have a limited staff and are open but eight hours a day," said Perry. "They often are unable to provide quick response to requests about rates, car supply and car location. By having direct access to our computer, the new regional freight office will be able to respond to such questions much more quickly. The Lubbock freight office will be open an expanded number of hours each day, giving our customers easier access by dialing a toll-free number."

Meetings similar to the one held here Thursday have been held at other points.

At the outset of the session, a film was shown, pointing up the use of modern technology in various industries, including railroads.

Perry said the change likely would become effective sometime between six months and a year from now. The first step will be an application to the Texas Railroad Commission for authority to close the local agencies.

"It is understandable there may be initial concern in a community when it first learns the local agent will no longer be physically located there," Perry said. "However, we believe we are going to serve them better and more efficiently under the new system. Technology available to us today makes this a logical, inevitable improvement."

Local agents will not lose their jobs, Perry said. They will have opportunity to use their seniority to bid for other positions in the company.

Judge Lifts Deadline

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — An appeals judge has lifted the Nov. 1 deadline for the Texas Department of Corrections to comply with a sweeping federal order to ease overcrowding in state prisons.

Judge Robert A. Ainsworth Jr. of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans issued a temporary stay Thursday on sections of an order by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler, pending a full appeal.

TDC officials argued it would be impossible to comply with many of Justice's reforms.

Justice had imposed the Nov. 1 deadline for the TDC to provide at least 40 square feet of space for each inmate house in a dormitory, to hire one guard for every 10 inmates and to house only one inmate in each segregated cell.

Total War A Possibility

LONDON (AP) — A report published by London's International Institute for Strategic Studies casts doubt on whether a strategic nuclear conflict between the United States and the Soviet Union could be halted short of total war.

The study, "Can Nuclear War Be Controlled?" by Dr. Desmond Ball of the Strategic and Defense Studies Center of the Australian National University in Canberra, concedes that "the use of a few nuclear weapons for some clear demonstrative purposes...could well not lead to further escalation."

But it says, "It is most unrealistic to expect that there would be a relatively smooth and controlled progression from limited and selective strikes, through major counterforce exchanges, to termination of the conflict at some level short of urban-industrial attacks."

3 Percent Tax Discount Is Extended

The three percent discount period for tax-payments here will be extended until next Friday, Clarence Minton, county tax collector, announced this morning.

The discount is allowed for county, junior college district and school districts of Hermleigh and Ira.

The three percent discount period was scheduled to end Nov. 2, but Minton said the deadline was being extended to Friday, Nov. 6, because tax statements were not ready on time and taxpayers have been crowding the county tax office to get their taxes paid this week.

Minton said he was surprised at the heavy traffic in the office since the tax statements were delivered early this week. He said lines formed every day and they continued this morning. The county tax office now collects taxes for all taxing entities in the county.

Judge Denies Motions By Defense Attorneys

DALLAS (AP) — Attorneys for Jo Ann Starr Harrelson have failed in their attempt to suppress the government's case against their client, who is charged with using a fictitious name to purchase a hunting rifle.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders Thursday dismissed a motion filed by attorneys for Mrs. Harrelson, wife of convicted hit man Charles V. Harrelson, identified by investigators as a prime target in the slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

Federal investigators say the rifle allegedly purchased by Mrs. Harrelson 12 days before the judge's slaying is capable of firing the same type of bullet used to kill Wood.

Her attorneys claimed the evidence against Mrs. Harrelson was gleaned from testimony she gave under immunity to a San Antonio federal grand jury investigating Wood's May 1979 establishment.

Sanders ruled Thursday that the government gathered its information independently from Mrs. Harrelson's testimony.

Fred Time, Mrs. Harrelson' Dallas attorney, filed another motion in a federal court here Oct. 23. Sanders sealed it immediately, prohibiting any comment.

That motion alleged that a search of attorney Joe Chagra's El Paso home was illegal because the search warrant was based on information from several taped conversations protected by attorney-client privilege, The El Paso Times has reported.

Time told the newspaper that conversations between Chagra and Harrelson, Chagra and Mrs. Harrelson, and Chagra and his brother — convicted drug trafficker Jimmy Chagra — all were wiretapped by government agents.

Jimmy Chagra was scheduled to appear before Wood on drug charges.

Americans Are Pessimistic About Economy

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans are more pessimistic about the economy than at any time since Ronald Reagan became president, according to the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll.

But while Reagan got his lowest marks for handling the economy and there was less optimism about the economy in general than in any previous poll in 1981, the poll reported no change in how respondents foresee their family finances over the next year.

The poll, of 1,598 adults telephoned Sunday and Monday in a scientific random sampling, said 23 percent think the economy will get better during the next year, while 41 percent said it will get worse. The rest said it will either stay the same or were not sure.

The five previous times this year when the AP-NBC News poll asked about the future of the economy, the average response was 38 percent better and 22 percent worse.

But while respondents in the latest poll were more pessimistic about the overall economy, they remained consistent with polls earlier this year in regard to the future of their family finances during the next year: 20 percent said their families will be better off, 26 percent said worse off, 52 percent said about the same and 2 percent were not sure.

The most recent poll said more people may be thinking 1981 has been a better financial year for their families than 1980 was: 25 percent said their families are better off financially now than a year ago, while only 19 percent said they were better off last January than they were in January, 1979.

And while respondents in the August and September polls singled out inflation as a more important economic problem for the government to help control than inflation or interest rates, the latest poll showed the gap narrowing so that respondents thought high unemployment, high inflation and high interest rates are about equally important.

People who said either inflation or interest rates were the most important economic problems were more likely to give Reagan favorable economic ratings than those who said unemployment was the most important problem for the government to help control.

In addition, people who were more optimistic about the future of the economy and their personal family finances were more likely than other respondents to give the president good or excellent ratings for his handling of the economy.

Customer Likes Fast Food Home

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The first two fingers of his wrinkled left hand curl around a half-smoked cigar which he uses to point to a newspaper clipping. It's an article all about him.

"This is wrong," the old man says, peering at a visitor through his smoky, gray-framed glasses. "I smoke R.G. Dunns — there's 50 in a box, see. I've smoked them ever since 1947."

"Here, you want one?" he asks with a chuckle, parting the left side of his checked sportcoat to reveal a shirt pocket crowded with seven cigars and two ballpoint pens.

Herman P. Hoffner is sitting at a small table in Rax Roast Beef Restaurant on Columbus' far west side, one of hundreds of fast food franchise outlets that line the freeways of this big Midwestern city.

But this isn't just any restaurant to Herman Hoffner. It is a sort of home. Hoffner is as much a fixture as the plastic container of barbeque salt.

He's not an employee. He's a customer — but one whose social life revolves around the people who work at or patronize the restaurant. He's been coming here since 1968.

"I sit here and watch the people come in and I talk to them, visit with people," Hoffner says. "A lot of them come in here that I've known for a long time and we just make conversations of different kinds. I love it. I like to be around people."

Seven days a week, Hoffner boards a bus and arrives at the employees' entrance about 9 a.m. He gets a cup of coffee and waits while the chocolate chip cookies bake. He heads for his usual table, and there he stays until early evening when either his daughter, one of the workers or a transit service for the elderly drives him back to his small apartment a few miles [illegible]

[illegible]estaurant threw a pa[illegible]r him on his 87th bi[illegible] August 17, complete [illegible]th friends, relatives, cake[illegible]nd gifts.

Politics and the economy are among the topics he discusses during the day.

"This is almost unbelievable," he says, pulling from his wallet two heavily-creased copies of typed menus from the Old Mill Restaurant he once owned in Chillicothe.

The menus, dated 1940, feature Swiss steak at 34 cents; meatloaf for 29 cents; roast pork and dressing, 30 cents; orange juice, 10 cents; and something called the Swan Special of the Week for 15 cents — a three-decker sandwich of cream cheese and jelly.

"That's what I call the good old days," he says with a laugh.

A former central committeeman back in Pomeroy, where he once owned a dairy — "I can't remember what year it's too long ago" — Hoffner always urges his friends to vote: "I still vote. I wouldn't miss it. Express your opinion — that's your privilege."

He is wearing a wide, blue tie, embroidered with elephants and the letters "YCGVSOYA."

He watches the customer sitting across from him trying to decipher the letters. He doesn't ask for the question.

"You Can't Get Votes Sitting On Your 'A,'" he translates. "You got to get out and shake the bushes. And that's what I did and that's why I beat the man I was running against."

Until recently, the most harsh penalty I'd heard recommended for criminal misbehavior was the castration of rapists.

While the pros and cons of that suggestion are getting threadbare, along comes a proposal by an angry citizen in Seattle. Paul Hicks says, "disarm rapists."

He means that second offender rapists should suffer amputation of the offending organ.

And he got a meeting of local citizens there to second his notion.

I don't think most Americans are ready to accept such a drastic remedy, but the proposal is indicative of a new public revulsion—an increasing crescendo of resentment against legal leniency.

In Laramie, Wyoming, a man was charged with first-degree sexual assault at knifepoint, three counts.

The police did their job entirely correctly; good research, good evidence willing wittnesses.

But the county attorney dropped the rape charges, allowed him instead to plead guilty to one count of burglary.

The county attorney said he allowed such plea-bargaining to cut down the number of expensive trials.

But a hundred Laramie citizens convened the Laramie Sexual Assault and Family Violence Educational Project to challenge the county official.

While sociologists argue that punishment does not deter crime, victims and their families are insisting it beats nothing, and we've tried nothing.

In an East Harlem convent a nun was assaulted—27 crosses were scratched on her naked body after she was raped.

Local citizens initiated their own search. One says, "If we catch 'em, we'll kill 'em."

Even members of organized crime have offered a $25,000 contract on this rapist.

Gun laws are not enough.

In Nashville the intruder used a baseball bat on an elderly mother, breaking both her arms when she tried to prevent rape.

And time and again it is a "known sex offender" or it is "a paroled rapist" or it is somebody who has escaped punishment despite a long history of such crime.

That's why the public ire is boiling over. Anyone knows that vigilante justice frequently results in injustice—but Americans, frightened and desperate, have exhausted their options.

And this may be significant. As of the first of this year police in Terre Haute, Indiana, were authorized to "shoot to kill." Chief Loudermilk instructed his policemen, whenever threatened by a gunman, don't shoot him in the leg—"shoot to kill!"

So far none has had to.

Yet in Terre Haute, most all categories of crime this year are way down from last year.

Opening lead: ♥K

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Good defense is frequently a matter of genius. On other occasions it is nothing more than having the right conventions at your fingertips so you can tell your partner what to do.

North and South arrive at four spades after an opening heart bid by West. You may not approve of the way they got there, but it is the sort of hand where all roads lead to Rome. In other words, four spades is a fine contract.

West opens the king of hearts and it is now up to East to use a defensive convention that is rather well known.

He follows with the queen to show that he also holds the jack. This tells West how to get him on lead assuming that the second heart won't be ruffed.

There is no reason for West to put him on lead right away. There is nothing East can lead back.

However, West can and does lead a diamond at trick two. South wins in dummy and can either take a trump finesse or play ace and another trump in the hope that West will have been dealt just king-small of spades.

Either way West gets in with the king, leads a heart to East's jack and gets a diamond ruff to sink South's ship.

At Moderate Prices...

Shortage Of Well Designed Products

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

There are well-designed home furnishings at the upper end of the price scale and there also are plenty of inexpensive, mediocre products.

There is, however, a shortage of well-designed products at moderate prices, according to one designer.

Edward Secon, who enjoys creating functional furnishings that sell for modest prices, thinks he sees where the problem is. He says the home furnishings industry is so competitive that many of the niceties — the details that separate a mediocre product from a well-designed one — must be eliminated in the manufacturing process to pare costs.

The company making volume products is inhibited by the ability of competitors to copy a design very quickly and for less money by eliminating some of the steps that made the item worth copying in the first place. In this way, some manufacturers find, integrity is a luxury rather than an advantage, as it is with more costly products where there is less competition based solely on price.

An example of his point may be seen in inexpensive all-foam seating, said Secon. A manufacturer taking pains to properly produce a chair with several densities of foam and the best sewing techniques might price it at $159. Another maker might offer a product that looked the same, but with only one density of foam and poor manufacturing techniques, for $99.

The chair for $159 would be the better value, although uninformed consumers would be likely to choose the $99 chair. Many consumers would think the $159 model was a rip-off when actually it is the other way around, said Secon. He added that better products will continue to suffer until consumers become more aware shoppers, and manufacturers become more adept at telling their product story.

Secon's studio, which specializes in home furnishings products and space planning for furniture stores, employs from 6 to 10 designers whose skills range from architecture and drafting to graphics and industrial design. The enterprise, which occupies part of an old basketball court in the former Bridgeport (Conn.) Boys Club, is a typical example of the sort of environment from which many of the new ideas for home furnishings products emerge.

The barn-like workshop is divided into a variety of areas with sections set apart for metalworking, woodworking and sewing operations. On a recent visit, one could observe models of completed jobs hanging from the walls and prototypes of new products in several stages of development.

"We like to work in three dimensions and construct a model as soon as possible," explained Secon. One such model was a chair in several stages of development. It will be introduced at the North Carolina Furniture Market by its manufacturer next April.

Like many of Secon's designs, the idea for the chair came to him from observing nature.

"The manufacturer asked for a less expensive outdoor chair and the idea of a leaf came to me because of the veining or skeleton of the leaf which supports a lot of weight for its size," he said.

Working from the leaf concept, he made a drawing and then a small doll-sized model, bending metal rods into the superstructure and cutting out a leaf-like piece of fabric for the seat.

The stages of development represented by several versions of the chair show a progression from a stiff, rather unbending shape to the final version — an undulating graceful form that looks nothing like a leaf, yet has some of the characteristics of the leaf form.

Secon, who taught at Parsons School of Design in New York for 15 years, says the main products a designer has to offer are creativity and the ability to solve a problem.

As a teacher who helped many young people acquire the skills needed to become designers, he is convinced that the harnessing of creativity into problem-solving can be taught in school, even though that is not the way he did it.

Secon describes himself as an undisciplined individual who started attending college classes at night while still in high school. He dropped out of high school, finishing later while in the army. He studied display and commercial art, eventually going to work for an uncle in home furnishings retailing and later opened a cabinetry shop where he built the custom pieces he designed.

Secon opened his design studio about 20 years ago and since then has been steadily more fascinated by the process of translating ideas into usable products.

"The thought is not original with me, but it's easier to harness a wild idea than to take a mediocre idea and make it good," he concluded.

Top Energy Producers Named

WASHINGTON (AP) — The top three producers of energy during 1980 were the United States, the Soviet Union and Saudi Arabia, according to an Energy Department report.

The report, issued Wednesday by the department's Energy Information Administration, said U.S. energy production totaled 64.8 quadrillion British thermal units, compared to 54.5 quadrillion Btu for the Soviet Union.

Saudi Arabia, whose production included only crude oil and other natural products, produced 22.1 quadrillion Btu. China was fourth in production, with 20.6 quadrillion Btu.

The report also said North America led the world in consumption of crude oil, using 33 percent of the world total, and natural gas, using 44 percent, in 1979, the latest year for which figures were available. Eastern Europe led in coal consumption with 31 percent of the total, the report said.

Rookie Astronauts 'Can Hardly Wait' For Wednesday Launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Two eager rookie astronauts scheduled landing practice in a jet as workers readied the launch pad to begin the five-day countdown for the second flight of the space shuttle Columbia.

The countdown is to begin at 1 a.m. EST Saturday, with liftoff at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday. Columbia is the first spaceship ever designed for a return trip to orbit. Its first mission was in April.

Astronauts Joe Engle and Richard Truly were to rehearse landing approaches today at Rogers Dry Lake at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., where they are to touch down at the end of their planned five-day mission.

Their aircraft is a Gulfstream II, modified to have the shuttle's handling characteristics.

The space flight will be the first for both pilots, and after they finished their final simulator runs Thursday in Houston, space agency spokesman John Lawrence reported, "They're really high, animated, excited and enthusiastic. They can hardly wait."

They've waited a long time. Engle, the commander, has been an astronaut for 15 years, and Truly has been one for 16 years.

Launch teams finished preparing Columbia for flight Thursday and crews began to close out the pad, removing access platforms, making final inspections, installing flight doors on Columbia's access hatches and stowing some of the crew's flight equipment.

Meanwhile, launch director George Page assessed the readiness of the spaceship, the flight control teams, the worldwide tracking network and other aspects prior to issuing the call to stations that will summon countdown specialists to their posts in the control center three miles from the launch pad.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration plans to land Columbia at Edwards after this flight and at least one more to gain confidence that the winged spacecraft can make a controlled, pinpoint landing. Once that confidence is gained, the ship will return to a 15,000-foot runway at Cape Canaveral.

The major goal of the second flight is to prove the shuttle can indeed be flown again. The Columbia and other space shuttles are designed to make at least 100 trips into space.

Engle and Truly also will devote several hours during the mission to testing a 50-foot mechanical arm that will be used on later flights to deploy and retrieve satellites. Also aboard is the first shuttle payload, a package of instruments to look at Earth's resources.

Professor Likes Orchid Project

By JOHN LAIRD
Associated Press Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thailand's Professor Rapee Sagarik has led a quiet, different kind of revolution. You can see its flower children in backyards, at street corners and in marketplaces all around Thailand.

Rapee has brought that most temperamental, varied and perhaps most beautiful of flowers — the orchid — to the people of Thailand. And he is largely responsible for Thailand's position as the world's leading exporter of cut orchids.

Rapee, a botanist and the rector of Bangkok's Kasetsart University, took orchids from the gardens of the privileged, developed ways to speed up their growth and spread the orchid gospel to all who were interested.

But this was not his only devotion. He has applied his science to uplifting Thailand's poor farmers, through improved growing practices and promotion of rural development. He served as deputy agriculture minister in the government of Kriangsak Chomanan.

Rapee says orchid-growing became popular in Thailand after 1954. "Before then, only the aged and wealthy grew orchids — a small group. The attitude was that orchids were only for the rich. That was an attitude of people, not the orchids. I wanted to give them to people from all walks of life."

Orchids have become a $75-million business. Thousands of Thais have improved their lot by growing them, even though the street price of orchids has steadily declined.

Exports of cut orchids to Europe began 12 years ago and Japan recently became a big buyer. This year, Thailand began shipping flowers to the U.S. West Coast.

Special low air freight rates to Europe and Japan aid export to there. They don't apply to the fledgling trade with the United States, but Rapee notes that growers' wages have been rising in Hawaii — the chief competitor in the American market — while Thailand's family-based economic system continues to supply cheap labor.

Rapee is no longer active in cross-breeding orchids. His many successes were capped in 1979 with his final creation, the cattleya sagarik wax, now listed with the International Orchid Registration Society in London.

The orchid is a striking reddish-plum color, in a classic symmetrical configuration with a bright red, extended lip.

There was a time when such rare orchid plants would sell for $1,000. Rapee just smiles at the memory. His work has been instrumental in bringing prices down and making the flowers more accessible.

Jervia Farr Earns Texas Tech Award

Texas Tech University's College of Education has notified Jervia Farr, a former Western Texas College student, that she has been nominated for the 1981 Outstanding Undergraduate Student Award.

The award is based on scholastic achievement, university and community service, and personal honors and awards. Both faculty and students are involved in selecting the award recipient.

Ms. Farr, an English and political science major, is a graduate of Hermleigh High School. She has published an article based on her experiences in the 1978 consolidation election for Hermleigh Schools. Titled "Anatomy of a Small School Rescue," the article appeared in "The Small School Forum," a journal published at the University of Colorado.

A candidate for December graduation, Ms. Farr has been on the dean's honor list every semester she has been enrolled at Texas Tech.

Dear Abby

Marijuana Flap Puts Readers Out of Joint

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: My mailman isn't speaking to me (again). "Concerned Mom" wrote to say that her 12-year-old son was grounded by his father for having taken it upon himself to call the police and report the next-door neighbors for growing marijuana in their garden. The neighbors, according to "Concerned Mom," were good friends who neither sold nor used marijuana — they were just growing it for "the fun and novelty" of it.

The boy had been lectured at school about the evil of drugs and had been instructed to report users and growers to the police.

The mother said she thought her son's actions were commendable and he should not have been grounded. I said I didn't think his actions were all that commendable, and I wondered why he blew the whistle on friendly neighbors without discussing it with his parents first.

(As it turned out, the police didn't press charges because all they found were two dying marijuana plants, which would indicate the neighbors were not trafficking in marijuana.)

Some typical responses from my mailbag:

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I, who work with juvenile delinquents in the Baltimore City Juvenile Court, were infuriated with your response to "Concerned Mom."

Abby, there is nothing cute or novel about growing marijuana. A little marijuana is like being a little pregnant — it has a way of blossoming into a big responsibility for someone.

I wish you could see the thousands of children we see who were a little high when they punched out that little lady for her little Social Security check, or stole a little car and went on a little chase when they were a little high on a little marijuana.

There is no such thing as a little illegal. This country is overburdened with people who cheat a little on their taxes, steal a little from welfare or shoplift a few little things — often for the fun and novelty of it.

You may use our names if you wish.

HELEN AND RICHARD BARTHOLOMEE

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to "Concerned Mom" really stunk! I'm 13 and they are always telling us in school that marijuana is bad and we should report anything we find out about it. I don't think that kid deserved to be grounded, even if the neighbors were good friends. Breaking the law is breaking the law, no matter who does it.

ON HIS SIDE IN CHARLES CITY, IOWA

DEAR ABBY: I just can't believe your answer. The boy probably didn't discuss it with his parents first because he knew they would tell him to mind his own business. What makes you think "good people" with "harmless" intentions are above the law? Who is to say what might have happened if the good neighbors had been successful in growing these plants? They might have been tempted to grow more for a little extra income. (We all have our weaknesses.)

I think that boy made the right and mature decision. His only mistake was revealing the fact that he was the informer.

DENISE K. BIRKEL, BANGOR, MAINE

DEAR ABBY: For a father to punish his 12-year-old son for reporting a crime to the police is beyond belief. The boy deserved a medal! Dad's judgment must have been warped by his embarrassment at having his progeny pull the plug on his friends.

You blew it, kid. Tell Dad to get off Junior's back. Too many people feel they have no responsibility to assist in the enforcement of the law for fear of being called a "fink."

FRED R. STAPLES, JUDGE, SUPERIOR COURT, PASCO, WASH.

So far, the score is Readers, 406; Abby, 1.
And here is the lone letter in support of my side:

DEAR ABBY: I commend you for your very perceptive answer to "Concerned Mom." I'm sure you'll catch a lot of flak from your readers, but 12-year-olds are not too young to realize that their actions in "following instructions" literally without using some judgment and consulting their parents can result in serious consequences.

Some children enjoy causing trouble and being "right" at the same time. I do not condone either growing or using marijuana, but somehow I also had the feeling that the boy's motives were not all that "commendable." I wonder if the boy wasn't trying to get even with the neighbors for something.

ANOTHER CONCERNED MOM

Senate Okays Special Powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite President Reagan's opposition, the Senate has voted overwhelmingly to give the president powers to allocate oil supplies and impose price controls in the event of another embargo.

The Senate voted 85-7 Thursday to approve the legislation, which would replace emergency powers that expired Sept. 30. The bill now goes to the House.

The measure pre-empts state allocation formulas, but does allow the states limited authority to impose conservation programs, such as odd-even gasoline sale schemes or car pooling requirements.

At the same time, the legislation specifically forbids rationing of gasoline and diesel fuel supplies for consumers. Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., attempted to insert gas rationing authority, but his amendment was defeated 73-22.

President Reagan has consistently opposed the legislation, arguing that the free market — including higher prices — can best allocate scarce supplies in times of emergencies.

However, senators led by Chairman James A. McClure, R-Idaho, of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee contended that standby emergency powers should at least be available to the president in case the free market fails.

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., attempted to offer a substitute bill, arguing that allocation and price controls failed miserably in the 1973 Arab oil embargo and the 1979 shortage after the Iranian revolution. He said the market would do a better job than bureaucrats in allocating supplies. Bradley's bill was defeated 88-8.

Inspector Says...

Grain Employees Took Precautions

DALLAS (AP) — An explosion that tore through a Corpus Christi grain elevator, killing a federal inspector and eight other persons, started when a cigarette or heat from six other possible sources ignited volatile dust, a federal safety report said this week.

Occupational Safety and Health Administration officials listed a worn conveyor bearing, smoking in dusty areas and electrical sparks among possible ignition sources for the blast that injured 29 persons and caused an estimated $30 million in damage. The report also suggested ways to improve worker safety in grain elevators.

But a federal grain supervisor said Thursday his inspectors already were following the recommended safety precautions when the blast occured in April.

"Most of what they suggested we were already doing or were scheduled to do," said Larry Nafzinger, field office supervisor for the Federal Grain Inspection Service in Portland.

Many of the six inspectors injured in the blast had been working in two grain laboratories that were scheduled to be moved further from the Corpus Christi Public Grain Elevator, he said. Four of the men have not returned to work since the blast and one inspector is paralyzed from the waist down.

A spokesman for the Port of Corpus Christi, which owns the elevator, disputed portions of the report, saying it contained "significant generalizations" and unsupported findings.

"It is important to note that there is no evidence that many of the locations they cite played any role in the explosion," said Don Rodman, port director of public affairs. "Many of the points were extraneous."

OSHA officials said three possible ignition sources were at a rail dumping pit between the elevator headhouse and "A" House. Rodman said no evidence at the site suggested that it or a second dumping site were at the explosion's origin.

"Even though we realize that the grain elevator ... was a public elevator, and not under the control of FGIS, we have listed a number of hazardous conditions that were determined to exist at or prior to the time of the explosion and fire," Thorne G. Auchter, OSHA assistant secretary of labor for occupational safety and health, wrote in the report.

The American Federation of Government Employees requested the OSHA investigation after the grain inspectors' injuries. D.R. Galliart, FGIS deputy administrator, said the report is still being reviewed.

Rodman said the findings will be studied by two Toledo, Ohio consultants who are developing their own independent reports.

OSHA recommended that airborne and accumulated grain dust should have been minimized by "frequent and effective housekeeping." Ironically, dust collection and emission control devices costing almost $4 million had been operating in the elevator for the past three years, port officials said.

A member of a NAS panel studying grain elevator explosions said dust collection hoods installed over a basement conveyor belt as part of the system actually trapped dust inside that carried an explosion throughout the elevator.

"When they were installed, they modified an existing system but did not go all the way in the modifications," said Dr. C.W. Kauffman, a University of Michigan research scientist. "This allowed some ledges in the conveyors to be collectors. We could clearly say the explosion propogated through the conveyors."

He said the evidence forced NAS scientists to modify their findings in a report on grain elevator explosions due at the end of this year.

Although port commissioners have not made a point-by-point response to OSHA, Rodman said elevator officials have eliminated three possible ignition sources from consideration.

He said Robert Anderson, an elevator design expert, ordered a massive pulley shaft removed from the base of a "bucket elevator" for examination. Metallurgical tests by a Houston laboratory showed that the shaft and bearings had not heated enough to ignite grain dust, Rodman said.

Kauffman disagreed, saying the pulley assembly had been "destroyed" by friction.

"The bearing had seized up," he said, "and the shaft had worn down to half its original size."

Kauffman said the pulley has not been ruled out as a possible ignition source by members of the Panel for the Causes and Prevention of Grain Elevator Explosions.

A locomotive which OSHA investigators said was traveling over a dump pit and might have sparked the blast with its drive wheels was actually two railroad cars away from the dusty grain pit when the blast occurred, Rodman said.

He also said smoking had been prohibited in dusty areas around a rail dump pit, which OSHA identified as another possible ignition source.

Davis Layne, OSHA deputy regional administrator in Dallas, said witnesses recalled seeing workmen smoking within 60 feet of the rail dump pit and 30 feet of the truck pit — both high-dust areas.

Layne said the science academy, under contract to OSHA, supplied information on the worn bearing.

"We have identified these as areas of concern, which we feel could very easily have been sources of ignition," he said. "We're just saying that our interviews, on-site analyses and investigation came down to these seven as the possible causes of ignition."

He said OSHA investigators eliminated other possible sources, such as slipping conveyor belts and welding and cutting apparatus.

"We were there more at the invitation of others and to provide technical expertise ...," Layne said. "We did not have jurisdiction, and we have not made an attempt to issue citations."

Rodman said port commissioners this month approved a $23 million reconstruction design program for the elevator that is targeted for completion in July 1983.

Nine lawsuits are pending against designers of the elevator's dust control system and contractors.

"We have from the beginning been seeking answers in this thing so that we could do a better job" of design and rebuilding, Rodman said. "So far, we have not seen some good solid conclusions. No one has yet told us how what happened, how the thing started."

No Agreement On Arms Sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua talked about Taiwan Thursday, but there was no indication they reached agreement on continued U.S. arms sales to the island.

Those arms sales have threatened to hamper evolving relations with the mainland and Reagan's chief spokesman, David R. Gergen, said he didn't mean to give the impression the two leaders agreed on everything when he described their meeting as a "warm, friendly and sincere exchange."

B-12 shots are vital

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor says I am sufficiently anemic to require B-12 shots monthly. This I am doing. I am 82 years old. My question is, is there any treatment that will restore my blood cell level to an acceptable degree? B-12 shots are expensive and do not build back any permanent blood, according to my doctor. He says I am stuck for a lifetime of B-12 injections.

DEAR READER — You will need to be very good about doing as your doctor asks. The anemia is caused from the lack of B-12. We require B-12 to form new cells. That includes not only new blood cells but new cells of the digestive tract and elsewhere in the body. The B-12 is part of the system in forming new nucleic acids for the new cell nucleus.

We must constantly regenerate new blood cells as the red ones only live about 120 days. When you have enough B-12 and everything is working right your bone marrow will produce enough new ones at a constant rate to replace these. But since we need so many if you are low on B-12 it often shows up as an anemia and that is how the B-12 deficiency may be found.

Keep in mind that the lack of red blood cells is only one aspect of the medical problem. Lack of B-12 can also affect the nervous system including the spinal cord. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 4-5, Vitamin B-12, Folic Acid, Pernicious Anemia, which you need to read to understand your problem.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

You must have the injections to be sure the B-12 gets into your bloodstream. Eating a normal diet is not going to solve your problem. Most people with a B-12 deficiency lack a substance normally produced by the stomach that enables your digestive system to process B-12 and cause it to be absorbed into your bloodstream.

If the B-12 can't be absorbed it doesn't help to swallow it. So the alternative is to circumvent the barrier of the intestinal wall and inject the B-12 so it can be picked up directly by your circulation.

DEAR DR. LAMB — How does one know if the body contains excessive water? I am 56 years old, weigh 175 and have no appetite. My stomach feels hard and enlarged when I drink water or liquids.

I have been informed by some that a person can only be tapped three times for this condition. What is the truth?

DEAR READER — Your question suggests that you have fluid in your abdomen. We usually see this condition in people who have liver disease or heart failure. The only sign a person may notice is the enlargement of the abdomen.

I hasten to add there are a lot of other reasons for an enlarged abdomen, including fat. And you can be tapped with a needle to withdraw excessive fluid from the abdomen as often as it is necessary to do so to relieve pressure inside the abdomen.

Otherwise an excess of fluid in the body is indicated by swelling, more commonly of the feet. And if the left heart is not beating strongly a person may develop shortness of breath from fluid in the lungs. Again you can have shortness of breath from other causes as well.

Murder Trial Stops Same Day It Began

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Christopher Legear's trial on charges of tossing a woman off a bridge to her death had just gotten under way when officials discovered he had been charged in the wrong state.

A survey of the border between Nebraska and Iowa, conducted at the request of the Douglas County deputy attorney, showed the killing occurred in Iowa — not Nebraska, authorities learned Monday. The murder trial was halted the day after it began.

On Democrats In General

Jim Wright Stunned By Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Majority Leader Jim Wright says he's stunned at the attack Thursday on him, House Speaker Tip O'Neill and Democrats in general by Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, of Houston.

Archer said O'Neill and Wright, a Democrat from Fort Worth, rejected a request by Rep. Jake Pickle, D-Texas, of Austin for a hearing on new information concerning the financial dilemma facing the Social Security system.

O'Neill and Wright are insisting that only interfund borrowing, to meet short-term needs, be considered by the House. By so doing, he said, "they are in fact condemning to bankruptcy a system that provides benefits to 36 million Americans through taxes paid by 117 million Americans."

Archer said he would support short-term borrowing or inter-fund transfers only if used at the same time that long-range solutions are being worked out.

"The system is in dire and serious trouble," said Archer, ranking Republican on the Social Security subcommittee.

"There is no reason to doubt the inescapable truth that both the cash benefit side of Social Security and the health side face real financial crises in the very near future," Archer added.

After seeing a copy of a statement released to the news media by Archer's office, Wright said:

"I'm amazed that Bill could be so partisan about this thing. I find numberous inaccuracies in his statement."

"The Social Security trust fund is not going to be allowed to go broke, I assure you," Wright said. "But we are committed to preserve the integrity of the Social Security trust fund in perpetuity without reducing benefits."

He said Archer apparently agrees with the approach taken by President Reagan earlier this year, in which cuts of some $70 billion over the next five years were proposed.

Archer accused the Democrats of not wanting to tackle a sensitive issue such as Social Security in 1982, an election year.

"The Democrats would rather push right to the edge of the cliff on this rather than face it in an election year. Well, I think it is time to earn our pay. It's time to face up to the tough political decisions that have to be made," Archer said.

"For what appear to be purely political reasons, they have closed their eyes to reality by continuing to foster totally false hope that the system can survive for more than two or three more years without major restructuring," Archer said.

New figures just released by Social Security actuaries indicate that all three of the Social Security trust funds could run short of money to pay benefits as early as 1983, Archer said.

The hearing would publicize those findings, Archer said.

But Wright said he's not ready to resort to the word "crisis" in discussing the financial problems facing Social Security.

"I'm convinced there are dozens — nay hundreds — of things we can do to protect the Social Security system, without reducing benefits our elderly citizens are entitled to and have every right to expect," Wright said.

Interfund transfers can solve the current immediate problem, he suggested.

The United States has always provided the funds for Social Security through payroll taxes on employees and employers, Wright said, but added there is nothing wrong with also dipping into general revenue funds, like several European countries do.

"Or we could dedicate revenue from the sale of offshore leases to the Social Security trust fund. Or put another nickel on a pack of cigarettes. Or another 50 cents on a gallon of hard liquor, and dedicate that to Social Security," Wright added.

And rather than force people to retire later, by moving the retirement age from 65 to 68, the elderly could be allowed to make the decision themselves, Wright added.

"A lot of people still want to work after they reach 65. If a man chooses to continue working, after his 65th year, give him a $1,000 income tax credit for that year. He'd make the choice. The governmewnt would save, on each such person, probably $3,500 to $4,000, somewhere in that range," Wright said.

"At age 66, if he still wanted to keep working, give him a $1,500 tax credit. And at age 67, a $2,000 credit. In any event, the government would save money, and you would have allowed that person to make his own choice."

Extradition Papers Signed For Yarbrough

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements signed papers Thursday asking U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig to seek the extradition of former Texas Supreme Court Justice Don Yarbrough from Grenada.

Yarbrough, a medical student on the Carribbean island, was convicted of aggravated perjury in 1978 and sentenced to five years in prison but has not served any time behind bars.

The papers signed by the governor will be sent to the Office of International Affairs in the Justice Department for review. Then, the papers would go to Haig and eventually to the American Embassy in Barbados.

Attorney General Mark White sent the papers to Clements, telling a news conference his action should be viewed as a warning that any public official or other Texan who breaks the law will be pursued "wherever he may run in this world."

Yarbrough was released on a $5,000 personal recognizance bond after his conviction but left for Grenada in June 1980. A warrant for his arrest was issued after he failed to appear in court Aug. 11.

Texas newspapers have reported that Yarbrough's passport has been seized by the Grenada government. An official at St. George's University medical school said Yarbrough has been suspended from the institution where he studied for one semester and may be extradited to Texas.

Dr. Geoffrey Bourne said university officials are concerned about bad publicity stemming from the enrollment of the 40-year-old former Houston lawyer in 1980, when he still was free on appeal.

Texas authorities tried to have Yarbrough extradited through the State Department, but U.S. officials expressed concern that Grenada's Marxist government would provide asylum for the fugitive.

Asked what the chances were for bringing Yarbrough back to Texas, White said, "Improved from the reports I've seen."

"The Grenada government will only allow students to remain on the island if they are members of the school," Bourne added. "Mr. Yarbrough has been suspended for some weeks now. I believe the immigration people in Grenada are considering if it means he is not a member of the school."

Skipper Of Sub Will Not Talk

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The Swedish government says it won't refloat a grounded Soviet submarine until the captain submits to questioning, but a Stockholm newspaper reported today that Moscow relieved the skipper of his command and replaced him by the ship's political commissar.

Capt. Piotr Gushin, 35, refused Swedish demands that he leave his ship for questioning aboard a nearby Swedish minesweeper.

The Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter, quoting an unidentified naval spokesman, said Gushin had been relieved "on direct orders from Moscow and been replaced by a high political officer on board."

Gushin has been locked up in his quarters, the paper said.

Swedish Defense Staff spokesman Jan-Ake Berg said he could neither confirm nor deny the newspaper's report.

Gushin claimed "navigational error due to a faulty gyro compass and bad weather" caused his vessel to run aground Tuesday night off the southeast coast in restricted Swedish territorial waters 9½ miles from the Karlskrona naval base.

Sweden rejected his claim, saying the vessel's penetration of the restricted zone, which is peppered with islands, showed "very careful navigation."

The Swedish government refused to let a Soviet flotilla enter its waters to salvage the sub, and the Soviet government agreed to the Swedish navy doing the job. But after an emergency meeting with military leaders, the Swedish government said the sub would not be refloated until the Soviets cooperated fully.

UNICEF Campaign Kicks Off Tomorrow

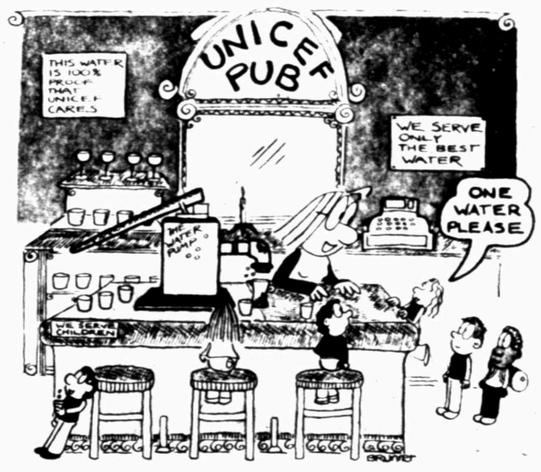
Kermit the Frog, star of Jim Henson's Muppet characters and chairman of the 1981 National UNICEF campaign, has issued a challenge to Snyder area residents and to all Americans to make this year's National UNICEF Day the "most successful ever" by contributing generously to the United Nation's Children's Fund.

The local response to this challenge will be led by the Youth Coop for Christ and the United Methodist Church. This activity will be held Saturday, Oct. 31, from 6 p.m. to midnight at the first United Methodist Church. Local youth will cover the town, trick-or-treating to raise funds for UNICEF from 6 to 7:30 p.m. The party at First United Methodist Church will begin at 7:30 p.m., with activities ranging from music, food, and fellowship, to the Spook House.

Mark Gaskill, spokesman for the group, has said that proceeds from the "trick-or-treat" and the party will be sent to the U. S. Committee for UNICEF and will benefit the neediest children of Africa, Asia and Latin America.

UNICEF, the United Nation's Children's Fund, provides equipment, training, and supplies for primary health care, improved nutrition, and safe, clean water for children and their families throughout the developing world.

For more information about UNICEF and the upcoming activity, call Mark Gaskill at 573-5416.



The developed world spends about 765 times as much a year on alcoholic beverages than UNICEF has funds to spend for all clean water projects in the entire world. Support National UNICEF Day, October 31, 1981.

What Is A Town?
A town is a group of people.
It is schools.
It is city government.
It is churches.
It is industry and jobs.
It is retail businesses.

They all have to work together. All must have the support of the people. Or there is no town.

Give your local merchant a chance for your business. You shouldn't spend your hard earned money with him unless his selection is adequate and his price competitive. But give him the first opportunity to make the sale.

For the local retailer pays the highest percentage of local taxes. He most often is the civic leader who dedicates his time and talents to his town. He is contacted first for contributions to charitable projects. He provides jobs. Without his store you have no town.

Give the local merchant a fair shake

Hogs-Owls To Tangle As SWC Wars Continue

There's just something about the two Southwest Conference teams in Houston that give the Arkansas Razorbacks trouble and they can look for some more of it this week at Rice Stadium.

The Razorbacks, stunned by the University of Houston 20-17 last Saturday, trail Rice 28-25-3 in their all-time series.

Last year, Arkansas carried a 16-0 lead into the last quarter and lost 17-16 on a field goal with 21 seconds left.

Arkansas is 9-17-3 against Rice in Houston although the Razorbacks have won on their last three trips.

Both teams are 2-2 and face elimination from the conference race.

"I don't think we're in the race," said Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz. "Heck, we're just fighting for survival now ... we're not thinking about the conference race.

He noted last year's comeback, saying "Last year we were in this same situation after Rice beat us. Rice is a lot better than it was a year ago. (Quarterback) Michael Calhoun has thrown 12 touchdown passes in three weeks. He's difficult to slow down."

Arkansas was a field goal favorite over the Owls.

In other SWC games, No. 6 ranked Texas was a 22-point favorite over Texas Tech in Austin; No. 13 ranked Southern Methodist was a four-point pick over Texas A&M in College Station; and Houston was a nine-point selection over Texas Christian in a 11:30 a.m. regionally televised game in Fort Worth.

Probation-blemished SMU and the Texas Aggies are tied for the SWC lead with 3-1 ledgers.

Texas is 2-1 while Baylor, idle this week, is 3-2.

Arkansas, Houston and Rice are all 2-2 while TCU is 1-3 and Texas Tech 0-4.

Penn St. Hoping To Remain No. 1

by The Associated Press

Penn State survived the No.1 jinx last week when it defeated West Virginia. This week may not be quite so easy.

The top-ranked Nittany Lions, 6-0, face perhaps their toughest test of the season Saturday against the 4-2 Miami Hurricanes in the Orange Bowl. Miami's losses have come on the road to No.6 Texas and No.7 Mississippi State. Penn State Coach Joe Paterno expects a very tough battle in the nationally televised contest.

So far this season, the No.1 jinx has struck Michigan, Notre Dame, Southern California and Texas. In this topsy-turvy season, the Lions are out to inject some stability into the top spot.

Paterno has basically relied on junior tailback Curt Warner for the bulk of the Penn State offense. But Warner - who has rushed for 838 yards this year - missed last week's 30-7 victory, convincing Paterno he can win through the air. The bad news for the Hurricanes is that Warner is fully recovered from his hamstring injury.

Lions quarterback Todd Blackledge has connected on 44 of 83 attempts for 725 yards and seven touchdowns. But Miami Coach Howard Schnellenberger is more concerned with the running game that has helped produce almost 37 points a game.

In other games involving Top 20 teams, Pittsburgh, 6-0 and just 24 points behind Penn State in the latest Associated Press poll, is at Boston College; No.3 Clemson, 7-0, hosts Wake Forest; No.14 Washington State is at No.4 Southern Cal; fifth-ranked Georgia is home to Temple; Texas Tech is at No.6 Texas; No.7 Mississippi State is at No.8 Alabama; ninth-rated North Carolina is at Maryland and No.10 Arizona State is idle.

In the second 10, No.11 Iowa State is at Kansas State; No.12 Nebraska hosts Kansas; No.13 Southern Methodist is at Texas A&M; No.15 Michigan is at Minnesota; Illinois hosts No.16 Iowa; No.17 Florida State is home to Western Carolina; Stanford is at No.18 Washington; Colorado plays at No.19 Oklahoma and No.20 Arkansas plays at Rice.

GRINDING IT OUT -- Snyder's Tigers will try to control the ball as much as possible tonight, keeping it away from the speedy Ector Eagle offense. Game time for the 2-AAAA clash is 8 o'clock. Teams Similar In Many Ways...

Snyder-Ector Battle At 8

BY BILL McCLELLAN

Unlike most of Snyder's opponents this year, the series with Odessa Ector does not dig deep into the history books. These two teams have played, in fact, only once before. That was last year, when Snyder edged the Eagles 14-7 in Odessa. Tonight, Ector will be trying to even the score.

This evening's contest, slated for 8 in Tiger Stadium, will be only the third home game for the local team. Tickets are $4 for adults and $2 for students at the gate.

It's a contest between two teams which haven't had much success this year. Snyder is 1-6 on the season; Ector 2-5. Both are 1-5 in District 2-AAAA play and obviously out of the running for loop honors.

"It's an old saying, but we're both basically playing for pride," agreed Snyder Coach George Byerly, in his first year as head football coach here. His counterpart, Van Grady, took over the Eagles nest this season after serving as an assistant for two years.

There are some striking similarities between the two teams:

-Both coaches are in their first year at the helm and trying to refashion struggling programs.

-Ector's offensive output, 205.4 yards a game, ranks seventh in the district. Snyder's, at 202.7 ranks eighth.

-The Eagles have allowed 260.4 yards per outing defensively; Snyder 295.6.

-Ector has given up 1,405 yards on the ground; Snyder 1,468.

-The Eagles have run for 809 yards and passed for 629. Snyder's figures in that regard are 898 and 521.

-Both teams are basically young, experience-wise, not large in number and have been inconsistant.

The major difference between the two clubs could well determine the outcome of the game, however, and that is team speed. Candidly, Ector has it. Snyder doesn't.

"We'll have to try to contain them until they make a mistake, if they do," said Byerly, who noted that the Eagles - like Snyder - have turned the ball over a number of times in crucial situations. "We'll have to hold the ball as long as we can offensively, and hopefully come up with the big play defensively. If we let them get past us, they're gone."

Both teams are expected to throw the football some; Snyder basically attacking with shorter tosses, Ector trying to get behind the Snyder secondary for longer strikes.

Ector is led on the ground by 187-pound senior Anthony Miller and 167-junior Johnny Johnson. Miller has run for 321 yards and four touchdowns; Johnson for 303 yards and two touchdowns.

Snyder is led in yardage by senior running back Raymond Jeffrey, who has 596 yards and three TDs.

Quarterback for the Eagles is is Eugene Morris, who is 36 of 99 in the passing department for 629 yards, five touchdowns and 10 interceptions.

The man down under for Snyder will be Brent Beck, who has completed 24 of 55 attempts for 310 yards, two touchdowns and six pickoffs.

Phillies Sold

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Bill Giles, who heads a group which purchased the Philadelphia Phillies, was in Arizona today for a special meeting at which he says owners will try to restore some sanity to the contracts of major league baseball players.

The sale of the Phillies, for a record price of $30.175 million, was announced at a news conference Thursday by former owner Ruly Carpenter, whose family purchased the National League team in 1943 for approximately $500,000.

Giles said his three main goals were to have the Phillies be declared "team of the decade" in 1991, to win the World Series every year and to draw three million fans every season.

Carpenter said he loved the game, but couldn't live with free agency, its escalating salaries and the continual scrapes with the Major League Players Association.

"I have not enjoyed what I've seen happening in this grand old game the past five or six years," said the 41-year-old Carpenter, who succeeded his father Bob as president of the team in 1972. "That's primarily the reason I'm selling."

Giles, who is the general partner of the group and in complete charge of team operations, spoke of the meeting in Phoenix, Ariz., in hopeful terms.

The purpose of the special meeting was to discuss mutual problems facing baseball and its future, he said.

"I agree with Ruly that some of the ownership has gone haywire in salaries," Giles said. "In fact the meeting...is going to address that subject primarily. I think enough clubs now have been burned with giving too many free agents too much money, and hopefully we have learned a lesson.

"I really feel deep in my heart that there is going to be some sanity put into the contracts of major league baseball players. I don't think I would have tried to convince these people (his group) to put in $30 million if I didn't believe that there was going to be sanity reigning in the future."

NBA Tips Off Season Tonight

by The Associated Press

Four years ago, Philadelphia lost in the National Basketball Association finals to the Portland Trail Blazers and Julius Erving appeared in commercials telling the 76ers' fans, "We owe you one."

The Sixers open the NBA season tonight owing five. Following last year's playoff disappointment, when they lost three straight to the Boston Celtics in the Eastern Conference finals after being ahead 3-1, Philadelphia faces the same obstacle in its quest for the elusive championship - the Boston Celtics.

Boston is trying to become the first NBA team to successfully defend its title since the Celtics of 1968-69 were winning their 11th championship in 13 years. The usual sellout crowd is expected at the Boston Garden to greet the Celtics for the first time since they defeated the Houston Rockets for the title in six games, while the Sixers are home against the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Philadelphia and Boston each won 62 regular-season games last year before waging their titanic struggle in the playoffs. With basically the same teams back on both sides, the Boston-Philadelphia division race and possible playoff encounter could again be the highlight of the NBA season.

The NBA pushed back the start of the season to avoid conflict with the World Series. The strategy didn't fulfill all its goal of drumming up preseason interest because baseball added another playoff due to the players' strike. The NBA's late start, however, means the playoffs won't end until the middle of June.

Twenty of the 23 teams are in action tonight, with only Seattle, San Diego and Atlanta idle. Besides the Washington-Boston and Cleveland-Philadelphia games, the rest of the schedule includes:

The New York Knicks helping inaugurate the new Meadowlands Arena when they meet the New Jersey Nets; the Milwaukee Bucks at the Detroit Pistons; the Chicago Bulls at the Indiana Pacers; the San Antonio Spurs at the Kansas City Kings; the Golden State Warriors at the Denver Nuggets; the Dallas Mavericks at the Utah Jazz; the Phoenix Suns at Portland and in a game that will be televised live by CBS at 11:30 p.m. EST, the Los Angeles Lakers will host the Rockets.

Frosh Top Steers

BIG SPRING -- Snyder freshman football teams knocked out Big Spring here yesterday, winning 32-0 and 44-6 respectively.

Snyder B squad, now 5-0, blanked Big Spring as Kyle Freeman and Bobby Velasquez both got first-quarter scores from a yard out.

Kenneth Gill added a second-period TD on a six-yard run, then crossed over with the conversion for a 20-0 advantage at the half.

Snyder added two more scores as Weldon McFatridge broke on a 12-yard run in the fourth quarter and Velasquez raced for a 20-yard TD in the fourth; 32-0.

Snyder A squad had a tough time in the first half last evening, before crushing the hosts in the third period. Paul Thompson got the Cat's lone first-half TD on a six-yard run, making the score 6-6 at intermission.

Snyder scored three times in the third quarter, however. Jimmy Cain broke things open with a 20-yard pass interception run, 12-6. Charles Bollinger ran over the PAT.

Later in the quarter Thompson scored on an 11-yard jaunt. Tommy Holladay ran the conversion. Snyder's other third-stanza TD came as Cain hit Abey Munoz on a 62-yard pass and run play. Thompson ran in the points-after.

Snyder closed the show in the fourth as Bollinger connected with Willie Greathouse on a 12-yard pass and James Cody recovered a Big Spring fumble in the end zone for another TD. Thompson ran over one of the two conversion attempts; 44-6.

BRONTE -- Snyder's Tigers, preparing for next Thursday's playoff with Monahans, defeated the No. 1 ranked class A volleyball school, Bronte, here 15-7 and 15-12 last evening.

The Tigers, defending state champions in Class 4A, are slated to meet Monahans at 7:30 Nov. 5 in Andrews to determine the District 2-AAAA title holder.

"Bronte started off slowly," said Snyder Coach Joyce Elrod. "We had them 14-3 in the first game before they came back to make it 14-7. But the second game was a lot closer. It was 12-12 up until the last few minutes."

Elrod praised the efforts of Sabrina Robinson and Kathy Northcott offensively, and of Shana Koonsman for her defense.

Sherri Rich served 7 points, Northcott 6, Robinson and Koonsman 5 each, Toni Elrod 4 and Becky Harrell 3.

Pee Wee Tilts Set

Mr. Hood is survived by his wife, Mrs. Dannie Hood of Tyler, two sons, Trov Hood of Mont Alba Tx. and Matthew Hood of Tyler. Also surviving are his father Thurman Hood of Athens, his grandmother Mrs Myrtle Hood of Athens, and one brother, Dr. Duane Hood of Snyder.

Dog Swallows Seven Padlocks

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — When the caretaker said a dog might be responsible for a series of disappearing padlocks, Charles Huthmacher couldn't swallow the idea.

But then one more lock disappeared and Huthmacher, who runs the kennel, hauled in his 1-year-old Labrador retriever, Rascal, for questioning and X-rays.

There in the dog's stomach were the padlocks, all seven of them.

A little surgery this week got them out, and veterinarian Dr. Leon Striegel says Rascal is resting comfortably and is on a "very bland diet" for a few days.

The brass locks will be cleaned and put back in use, Striegel said.

"Been no sign of anything wrong with him," Huthmacher said of his dog. Huthmacher said locks used on dog cages began disappearing and the kennel's caretaker simply replaced each one, although about two weeks ago, the caretaker suggested Rascal was the culprit.

Striegel said the locks, when not in use, were hung on the gates of the cages "and the dog got it off by jumping at it. He would play with it, hook it and lock it with his mouth and then swallow it."

Oral Roberts Faith City Hospital To Open Soon

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — When Oral Roberts' City of Faith hospital opens here Monday, it will have 294 beds, 33 doctors, more than 100 nurses — and 10 salaried "prayer partners" as part of what the hospital calls its "healing team."

"The Oral Roberts Ministries have always emphasized that medical science should work hand-in-hand with prayer. With the City of Faith we are offering medical science the best facilities to blossom and grow," said Roberts, a nationally known evangelist and the driving force behind the hospital.

The facility, which to date has cost $120 million, will open debt-free. It was built entirely through contributions of "partners" — those who follow Roberts' preaching.

At one point, when financing was a problem, Roberts wrote his partners that a 900-foot Jesus had appeared to him, lifted the City of Faith in his hand and told him the medical complex would be built.

When the hospital is completed — probably in 1984, at a total cost of $250 million — it will have 4,000 full-time employees, including 318 physicians and 800 nurses.

The prayer partners are meant to supply the spiritual side of healing, counseling and praying with patients up to the time they go into the pre-operating room. The medical side will be supplied through what is being billed as the most advanced clinic and research center in the United States.

Part of the admission form patients will receive is a section on church preference, activities and special interests. This information will be computerized and made available to the prayer partners, said William Luttrell, chief administrative officer of the hospital.

All prayer partners will be trained to pray with people in medical situations, Luttrell said. "They may receive counseling, but it will not be forced on the patients," he added.

Most of the prayer partners are in their 30s or 40s and come from a variety of denominations. Church affiliation was not a factor in selection, Lutrell said.

The ministers and volunteers will have offices in the hospital to be available to patients quickly. Luttrell said 10 salaried ministers are now on the staff and that volunteers would be trained to help the full-timers.

Roberts sees the City of Faith as a natural extension of his ministries and of the university, located adjacent to the medical center in Tulsa. The medical center will provide experience for students in the university's schools of medicine, nursing, dentistry and theology.

Roberts believes in divine healing, and his commitment grows out of his experience as a youth with tuberculosis and stuttering.

At 15 he had run away from home and was living with a former basketball coach at Atoka, Okla. During a basketball game he collapsed, hemorrhaging from the lungs, and was bedridden for five months.

"I needed to be healed," he said. "I believed I could be healed. I believed I could be cured."

Roberts said he was healed suddenly. He described it as an "explosion inside my lung." A short time later his stuttering ended and the bleeding stopped, he said.

According to Roberts, all God's instruments should be used to heal the sick, so he advocates combining medicine with prayer.

"These counselors or 'prayer partners' will complete the healing team of physicians and nurses, providing complete health care to both the patients and their families," the hospital said in a statement.

The ultra-modern complex consists of a 60-story clinic, a 30-story hospital and a 20-story research and continuing education center.

The research tower will concentrate on preventive and curative medicine, primarily in areas of cancer, heart disease, and problems of the aging.

The evangelist plans have 777 beds in use by 1988, although it is opening with only 294 — all that state agencies would approve.

From the start, Roberts' plan for the City of Faith drew opposition from some other Tulsa hospitals, which charged it would give the city too many hospital beds, that it would create a shortage of nurses and other hospital personnel and that it would eventually raise the cost of medical care here.

Roberts countered by predicting that most of the patients at the City of Faith would be "partners" of his ministry from around the world, rather than Tulsa-area residents. He also noted that new medical personnel would be graduated from the Roberts University.

Greek Community Being Threatened

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Back when the century was young, the Tarpon Springs Sponge Exchange was a thriving auction block for locally harvested sponges. It was also a bond for hundreds of immigrants from the Greek islands.

Today, it is a battleground, and the decision of what to do with the rotting old wharf is dividing descendants of the immigrants.

"You remember when your grandfather, father and uncle all worked there, bargaining, arguing, laughing, sorting, joking. And as kids, we'd be in there helping," said George Billiris, who has been in the sponge business 40 years.

"It was still Greece here. Your word was bond. A handful of men came here and developed a major industry. When they came, there was nothing. They left something. Let's preserve it, put it back to work and add to it."

But Billiris appears to be on the losing side of the battle.

The two-acre site, listed in the National Register of Historic Places, was sold in May to the Pappas family, who plan an Old World-style marketplace with shops, courtyard dining and an area for ethnic dancing.

Despite intervention from Gov. Bob Graham, a court injunction to stop the bulldozers and special funds approved by legislators to save the 75-year-old structure, most of the 130 wooden stalls have already been leveled in preparation for new construction.

"I was born here, too," Mike Pappas said in his defense. "I've seen the exchange from the time I was a baby. It's become dormant. The city has put up signs saying it's unsafe. It's only used once or twice a year for Greek festivities.

Thursday night, David Olsen told police that someone had taken a television set and a radio valued at $279 from his room at the Bunkhouse. An investigetion is in progress.

Police also investigated five accidents including one major one at 12:14 a.m., in the 2400 block of 25th St. Involved were a 1974 Pontiac driven by Richard Glenn Carlisle of Snyder and a 1979 Chevrolet and U-Haul trailer driven by LeRoy Clark of Langmont, Colorado. Carlisle was taken to Cogdell Hospital for treatment and moderate to extensive damage was reported to the vehicles.

In minor mishaps, a 1981 Ford truck driven by Jesse Albarrez was in collision with a 1981 Ford car driven by Linda Parker Little. This incident occured in the 2400 block of College Ave. and only minor damage was reported.

At 4:41 in the afternoon, a 1971 Ford driven by Linda H. White was in collision with a 1981 Ford operated by Salome Barrara. Only minor damage was reported in this accident in the 1700 block of 24th St.

Later, at 4:57 p.m., a 1979 Ford driven by Tim Wilson Mebane was involved in an accident with a 1976 Chevrolet operated by Helen Voesta Hood. This incident occured in the 2500 block of 25th St. No wrecker or ambulance were needed.

Finally, at 6:30 p.m., Shellie Dianne Ford reported that an unidentified vehicle had struck her parked 1978 Chevrolet and then left the scene. The car was parked in the S.W. parking lot at Cogdell Hospital.

In other action Thursday, officers arrested one suspect in an October 8th burglary and made two collars each for public intoxication and DWI.

Alexander Pest Control Offers Professional Pest Protection

Termites, roaches and rodents--they're all on a rampage at this time of the year. And Alexander's Pest Control can give you professional protection against all of these pests - and many more.

Termites may be small, but you can't afford to take chances with them. Your home represents your largest investment, and for a small investment, you can protect it against the ravages of costly termites. Left alone, termites can cause literally thousands of dollars of damage.

Just because your house is made of brick or concrete doesn't mean that it's safe from termites. These crafty insects are cunning in gaining entry and getting to the wooden interior construction.

Termites will eat anything containing wood or cellulose. They frequently damage valuable papers, books, expensive rugs and items in storage.

Professional treatment, such as Craig Alexander can give, is the only way to be sure you're safe from termite damage--and again this treatment is far more economical than repairs. Alexander creates a chemical barrier around and under your house that stops subterranean termites cold.

As we said earlier, Alexander can eliminate other insects and rodents from your house, too. Call Craig Alexander at 573-7133 and let him help you with all your insect, pest and weed control needs.

AAUW Promotes Advancement Of Women

The American Association of University Women held its monthly meeting at 7:30 in the evening on Monday, October 19 in the home of Ruth Fleer. The members discussed the membership drive planned for November. New officers were elected. They are Elizabeth Beavers, president, Laura Holladay, 1st vice president; Gussie Gray, 2nd vice president; Gayle Wittie, recording secretary; Ruth McBeth, corresponding secretary; and Sue Cates, treasurer. Alta Lynch and Brenda Otto will co-chair the public information committee. Four guests were present at the meeting. They were Evelyn Young, Brenda Otto, Peggy Hamm, and Alta Lynch.

The AAUW was formed in 1881 and currently has 190,000 members on the local, state, and national levels. The association is a woman's organization working to promote a general education for all people, to advance the status of women, to achieve high standards and continuing improvement of higher education of women, to promote the improvement of education at all levels, to enhance the value of the individual, to promote attitudes of cooperation by individuals, communities, and nations, and to cooperate with other national and international organizations having related interests.

Through these policies the association encourages its members to further the advancement of women, to discharge their responsibilities to society, and to continue their own intellectual growth. The association carries out this program in four areas: Community, Cultural Interests, Education, and International Relations. This is done through study and by taking action on legislation, governmental policies and regulations, and on other measures affecting the general welfare.

The general topic chosen for study in the next two years is "Taking Hold of Technonogy." The theme for the coming year is "The Age of Change." Program topics for future meetings include Fine Arts, Talk Fest (on new books), and Changes in Women's Opportunities.

Art Guild Membership Carries Responsibilities

The Art Guild Study Club was organized in Snyder in 1930 under the leadership of Nancy Caton. It was also federated in 1930. The following membership pledge was at that time, and still remains; "Believing that membership in the Art Guild carries with it a duty, I pledge myself to be faithful to its interest, share in its work, and guard its reputation."

Programs conform to those required by the Mesquite District and Federation. The Art Guild is affiliated with the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and is active in Mesquite District Club affairs and activities of the Martha Ann Woman's Club. Art Guild gives an annual scholarship to a student at Western Texas College, donates to the American Field Service, and contributes to local organizations with funds and service.

On February 1, 1955, the club held its Silver Anniversary tea. On October 11, 1980, the club celebrated its Golden Anniversary with a brunch at the Martha Ann Woman's Club with former members and members of other federated clubs in Snyder as guests.

Officers of the club are Mrs. Myron Roe, president; Mrs. Ben Thorpe, vice president; Mrs. Bill Teaff, recording secretary; Mrs. R. V. Williamson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Silas Devenport, treasurer; Mrs. Ivan Gatlin, reporter; Mrs. Bob Melton, parliamentarian; and Mrs. Ben Thorpe and Mrs. Silas Devenport, MAWC representatives.

Chapter committees include civic, finance, telephone, fine arts, friendship, membership, and program.

Meetings are held the third Tuesday of each month with a dinner meeting at 6:30 p.m. at the Martha Ann Woman's Club. A family picnic at the Union Community Center is usually held for the last meeting in May.

The current theme is "Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow" and includes travel, Americanism, Texas Day, federation, visit by the foreign exchange student, a time for thanksgiving, and the fellowship of the Christmas season.

civic betterment of the community and to seek to elevate the standards of the insurance profession.

The Insurance Women's Association of Snyder was organized in March, 1979, and has been active in civic work. The club presents an annual scholarship to a local student for use at Western Texas College. The association also provides a program on automobile insurance to all high school students taking driver's education. The purpose of the program is to familiarize the students with the terms and coverages under an automobile policy, how a person's driving record affects insurance, what information a person needs in order to secure insurance coverage and what surplus lines insurance is.

The association also has an education program for those in the insurance profession. Last year a Commercial Lines Seminar was sponsored by the association for the purpose of acquainting insurance personnel with the new revisions on boiler and machinery, crime, general liability, glass, and inland marine. Independent insurance agents and their employes from Snyder and around the area attended.

Local association members include Margie Glasscock, Deffebach Agency; Jan Buchanan and Amy Teaff, Hugh Boren and Son Agency; Kay Hickman, Sammie Scott, Andrea Savseverino and Judy Moss, Sullivan-Stanfield-Fowler Agency; Lisa Minyard and Betty Grisham, Johnson Insurance Agency; Virginia Williams and Marsha Levens, Snyder Insurance Agency; and Betty Sneed and Debbie Parrot, Boren and West Insurance Agency.

Officers of the association for the current year are Betty Sneed, president; Kay Hickman, vice president, Amy Teaff, treasurer; and Andrea Sanseverino, secretary.

Writer's Guild Was Formed By WTC Class

Elected officers were Mrs. Jess Everett, president; Mrs. W. C. Fargason, vice president; Mrs. G. A. Parks, secretary, and Mrs. Jodie Bynum, treasurer.

Charter members are Mrs. Jim Brown, Mrs. Roy Burk, Mrs. Glen Bynum, Mrs. Jodie Bynum, Mrs. Edward Cox, Mrs. Jess Everett, Mrs. Lynn Fenton, Mrs. Cliff Kellum, Mr. W. C. Fargason, Mrs. W. C. Fargason, Emma Huffman, Mrs. C. J. Killgo, and Mrs. Houston Quiett.

The newly organized Writer's Guild invited Juanita Zachery, president of the Abilene Writer's Guild and Elva Morrison, treasurer, to come to their next meeting. They told of the organization and detailed activities of the Abilene Writer's Guild.

The Snyder Writer's Guild has had several workshops. Those who have conducted workshops are Dorothy Prunty, Katherine Duff, Etta Lynch, Elmer Kelton, and Juanita Zachery.

The Guild has also had local and out-of-town speakers on their programs.

Members encourage one another to exercise their talents and to improve their writing ability, and demonstrate how to submit publishable manuscripts.

Newcomers Club Provides Fellowship For Members

The Snyder Newcomers Club was organized in February of 1970. The purpose of the club is to promote fellowship among newcomers and to acquaint them with the city and each other. When the club was organized, residents who had lived in Snyder for three years or less were invited to join. One of the organizers of the club was Mrs. Olin Bunch, who is now an honorary life member.

The first meeting was held at the Snyder Country Club, with sixty guests present. Officers elected were Helen Perryman, president; Wilma Dillard, 1st vice president; Pat Dicharry, 2nd vice president; Jan Spinks, secretary; and Sherry Lyon, treasurer.

The Newcomers Club meets the first Thursday of each month for a salad luncheon, meeting and program at the Texas Electric Reddy Room. Through the years the club has had such programs as tours of museums or of business places in town. It has held programs in making flowers and flower arranging, cake decorating, candle making, jewelry making, sketching, knitting, tips on planting, art exhibits, lectures on the Snyder school system, lessons in square dancing, bridge, and even belly dancing. Members have also learned about drug abuse, historical facts about Snyder, taxes, wills, alarm systems, seen slides of places around the world, plus many more.

Annual events each year include a style show held in the fall in which members of the club model clothes from a local store, and a Christmas party held each December.

The Pot Luck Supper, a favorite social, is held once a month for members and their husbands. A traditional event each year is a coffee honoring the Newcomers, which is given by the Martha Ann Woman's Club, to introduce new women in town to other women's organizations.

In addition to this, the mayor of Snyder has proclaimed a week in April of each year as "Newcomers Week." The club hosts a recipe swap luncheon honoring all past members.

The present officers of the Newcomers Club are Mrs. Terry Gilbreth, president; Mrs. Mark Hales, 1st vice president; Mrs. Harold Wilbanks, 2nd vice president; Mrs. Kenneth Tilghman, secretary; Mrs. Dough Watkins, treasurer; Mrs. Michael Thornton, reporter; and Mrs. Bill Warner, city hostess.

Beta Sigma Phi Is World's Largest Sorority

Beta Sigma Phi, the largest women's sorority in the world, is an international organization for women offering opportunities for friendship, advancement of cultural knowledge, and community service.

Membership is non-sectarian, non-political, and nonsectarian. Founded early with seven members in Abilene, Kansas in 1931, the organization has grown to 250,000 members in 12,000 chapters in 31 countries around the world.

Locally, the Lambda Kappa chapter was chartered 28 years ago in May. The chapter presently has an active membership of 23 women. Lambda Kappa is a participating member of the Martha Ann Woman's Club and meets twice a month at the clubhouse in Cogdell Center.

Besides supporting the woman's club in its ways and means projects, Lambda Kappa involves itself each year in a number of service projects. In the past, donations to the West Texas Rehabilitation Center, scholarships to Western Texas College, helping with the Heart Fund and Cancer Drive, and donations to the Beta Sigma Phi endowment fund are some of the service projects undertaken by the local chapter.

The Beta Sigma Phi International Endowment Fund has donated over a million dollars to cancer research, cystic fibrosis, homes for underprivileged children, and many other causes. The local Beta Sigma Phi service chairman is Nancy Ballinger.

To promote cultural enrichment of its members, Beta Sigma Phi uses a program book of study each year. This year's book is "Lifestyle." Individual members or guest speakers who have a special interest or knowledge present the cultural program at each meeting. Cyndee Gayle is program chairman for the year.

A yearbook outlining the year's activities, programs, committees, by-laws, and directory of members is compiled during the summer months each year and distributed to members in August. Dena Ellis serves as yearbook chairman this year.

Membership in Beta Sigma Phi is by invitation. Donna Fowler is membership chairman. To keep active members aware of all sorority activities, Paula Middleton heads the telephone committee. Barbara Hamlett is properties chairman.

Laura Greene, publicity chairman, relates sorority activities to the community. In turn, the scrapbook chairman, Judy Smith assembles the publicity releases, pictures, and other memorabilia into a scrapbook to be enjoyed by its members for many years to come.

The scrapbook of the 1980-1981 sorority year recently won second place at the West Texas Area Beta Sigma Phi Convention in Midland. Sue Sewell assembled that scrapbook.

For all organizations to function, ways and means committees must be busy. Ways and means chairman for the year is Carolyn House. A fall western dance, Christmas wrapping paper sales, and the annual Valentine Dance are the primary

Republican Women Are Given Much Credit

The Canyon Reef Republican Women's Club was organized in 1981 with the goal of making Snyder residents more aware of the importance of the two party system and to aid and support local state and national Republican candidates as other Republican women have done.

The National Federation of Republican Women has been credited largely with helping in the election of President Ronald Reagan and the Texas Federation of Republican Women, with their aid to Governor Bill Clements, has also received much credit in that election. With the election of Bernhard Bartels, the first Republican to ever hold a Scurry County office, the two party system was opened up in the county. Not forgetting the election of the first Republican governor since after the Civil War and the election of Ronald Reagan as president, the Republican Party is obviously on the move.

Republicans on the local level are eager to keep this move alive. Keeping informed through many speakers is one way they feel this can be accomplished. In previous meetings, candidates for the local school board places have spoken to the club and Camille Mitchell, the district director of Texas Federation of Republican Women, stressed the importance of Republican Women's Club in Texas politics. Gerry Johnson, vice president of Texas Republican Women's Club, explained how to use volunteer workers to their fullest potential. The latest speaker, John Kirchoff, member of the Texas Republican executive committee, explained how contributions to the Republican Party are used, from the local to the national scene.

If you would like to become a member of the club, call Carolyn Harrington at 573-5916 or Mary Strelecki at 573-8183. The time is now and the club feels the Republican Party is the answer for all.

Beauty Digest

When the urge to nibble is overpowering, these snacking ideas won't ruin your diet, since they're only 100 calories each. So go ahead and indulge in any of the following: eight and one-third animal crackers, one large apple, 4 ounces of chocolate milk, one medium-size orange or even eight large cashews. Sometimes a little nibble can save a lot of calories!

Altrurian Goals Haven't Changed

The Altrurian Daughters Club was organized in 1930. The sponsor of the club was Mrs. Nancy Caton, who was a civic, educational, social, and religious leader. Charter members were Mary Lynn Scott, deceased, and Martha Gray Cloud, now living in Dallas.

Those with membership of longstanding and who have continued membership are Mrs. Lee. T. Stinson, Mrs. Melvin Blackard, Mrs. N. R. Clements, Mrs. R. E. Patterson, and Mrs. Borden Gray Sr.

The club was organized as a federated study club with educational, charitable and social goals. Federation has not been continued but the goals have. The programs are a continuing education for club women.

Officers for the current year are Mrs. Billy M. Null, president; Mrs. P. I. Youngkin, vice president; Mrs. Frank Beaver, recording secretary; Mrs. J. A. Thompson, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Lee Smyth, treasurer. The club projects are Goodfellows, assisting in community drives, Big Spring State Hospital, foreign exchange program, medical scholarship fund, and Martha Ann Woman's Club.

Dr. Don Newbury, WTC president, will speak at the November meeting and Christmas will be at the Harrell ranch. In January there will be a salad luncheon and business session at Mrs. Dave Harlin's. Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Kayser will be on the February program and Mrs. Gene Dulaney will speak on Oriental rugs in March. Mrs. Lucille Melcher, interior decorator from Lubbock, will be on the April program and there will be a goodbye luncheon at the home of Mrs. Jack Gorman in May.

Beauty Digest

Actress Loretta Swit passed along to Beauty Digest this bit of timeless advice she heard from her mother: "Mom always urged me never to rest on my elbows because they'd get rough and ugly. It was hard learning not to lean on tables, but I trained myself to drop my hands on my lap. Today my elbows are nice and smooth."

Plainview EH One Of County's Oldest

Plainview Extension Homemakers Club is one of the oldest extension clubs in the county. Its former name was Home Demonstration Club. The name was changed at state convention in 1979, the idea being to encourage younger homemakers to join.

Meetings are held on the third Tuesday of each month. This year programs have been on "Making Wills," "Quick Casseroles," "The Family Tree," "Dried Flowers (arranging, treatment for drying and gathering)," and "Communications."

Work is now being done in conjunction with other clubs, on a Christmas Bazaar to be held October 31 in the Scurry County Coliseum.

Club officers are Mrs. Roy Staton, president; Mrs. Blake Walker, vice president; Mrs. Clyde Brown, secretary; Mrs. Clovis Robinson, treasurer; and Mrs. Travis Rhoades, council delegate.

ABWA Objective Is To Advance Businesswomen

The American Business Women's Association is an educational association presently in its 32nd year. ABWA's first chapter, Pioneer Chapter, was installed in Kansas City, Missouri in 1949. There were fifty charter members. Since then, the association has grown steadily and now has more than 1600 chapters and 100,000 members in all 50 states and Puerto Rico.

ABWA is an educational association whose objective is to "promote the business women." The association believes that advancement and promotion must be earned, and it stresses this fact in urging its members to improve themselves through education, formal or informal, so that they will be qualified for future advancement.

Scurry Charter Chapter of the America Business Women's Association was organized September 6, 1960, with 100 members. Active charter members include Ileta Hall, Lois Leech, Maxie McNew, Mary Ellen Meador, Clara Mae Noah, Mary Starnes, Inez Teaff, and Ora Wells.

The local chapter meets monthly at Martha Ann Woman's Club for dinner and a program. Once a year, the chapter hosts a Boss Night Dinner where bosses and husbands are invited and one of the bosses is chosen "Boss of the Year." The chapter sponsors two students at WTC and also contributes to the national Stephen Bufton Memorial Educational Fund.

Membership in ABWA is by invitation only. All women who are gainfully employed and of good moral character are eligible to join the association.

Poetry Society Displays Work In Local Businesses

In observance of World Poetry Day, October 15, Scurry County Poetry Society posted samples of their work in several business firms and the Scurry County Library. One of its primary purposes is to share their interest in poetry and to bring it before the public.

As far back as 1925, Texas had a specified date on which both poets and poetry were honored, but it was not until May 5, 1953 that October 15 was officially designated as Texas Poetry Day by Senate Resolution No. 260. It was signed by Ben Ramsey and bears the Senate Seal.

One state after another followed the lead of Texas, and took up the idea of designating October 15 as Poetry Day in the State Calendar by proclamations of their respective governors.

The Scurry County Poetry Society was organized in December of 1976, and was so named in observance of the county's 100th birthday. It is the county's first poetry organization, and is also a chapter of the Poetry Society of Texas which was organized in Dallas in 1921. Its chapters have spread throughout the state with membership running into the hundreds.

The local chapter's first elective officers were Mrs. W. C. Fargason, president; Mrs. Jim Brown, vice president; Mrs. Edward Cox, secretary; and Mrs. Houston Quiett, treasurer. Other charter members included Mrs. Roy Burk, Mrs. Glen Bynum, Mrs. Jodie Bynum, Mrs. Adala Drennan, Mrs. Jess Everett, Mrs. Lynn Fenton, Mrs. Emma Huffman, Mrs. Cliff Kellum, Mrs. J. C. Killgo, Warren Fargason, and Bret Fuqua.

The current elective officers are Mrs. W. C. Fargason, president; Mrs. Houston Quiett, vice president; Mrs. J. C. Killgo, secretary; and Mrs. Roy Burk, treasurer. Other current members are Mrs. Edward Cox, Mrs. Jim Brown, Mrs. Lynn Fenton, Mrs. Jodie Bynum, Mrs. J. O. Brinkley, Mrs. W. A. Holt, and Warren Fargason.

Members work has been published in various publications. Among them are "Modern Poetry," Farmstead Magazine," "Modern Haiku," "World Poetry Day Magazine," "Mature Living," and "The Poetry Society of Texas Yearbooks." Other works are the inclusion of poems in anthologies and the compilation of collections of verse in book form.

The local poetry group meets the third Monday of each month except July and August. Its membership is open. Anyone with a genuine interest in poetry is cordially invited to join the organization. For more information call 573-5762 ways and means projects for the year.

The keynote to Beta Sigma Phi is friendship. Throughout the years, the fostering of new friendships and the enjoyment and fulfillment of those already formed have been the very basis of the sisterhood. A time to enjoy these friendships are the sorority socials, which normally include husbands of members. Mona Bryan is this year's social chairman. The highlight of the fall will be a formal dinner for members and husbands in the home of Barbara and Joel Hamlett on November 20.
