POUGHKEEPSIE POLICE SAY THEY HAVE MAN WHO SHOT AND KILLED MOVIE DIRECTOR

Writing Found in Clothing Is Their Clew

By Associated Press.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 27.—Writings found in the clothing of Frank "Mac" Doran, held by police here on second degree assault and other charges for holding up a taxicab driver, connect the man with the murder in Los Angeles of William Desmond Taylor, motion picture director, county authorities said tonight.

They refused, however, to make public the nature of the newly discovered "writings."

Doran is not the man wanted in Chicago for the murder of two policemen, it was definitely learned today, the man held here differing radically from the alleged murderer.

County authorities said developments in the case of Frank Doran, led them to believe that Doran was either a party to the murder of William D. Taylor, the Los Angeles motion picture director, or has important information concerning it.

Doran maintained silence in his cell in the county jail, refusing to make any statement.

Mainly About People

Environment Helps—
Take Our Rail Problem—
That's One Instance—

By H. N. F.

SAM LAZARUS OF TEXAS AND Missouri is the president and owner of the Q. A. & P. railway. He votes in Missouri but he has large interests in west Texas. In his youth Lazarus and William Thomas Waggoner were cowboys and rode the range. There was a time when the united fortunes of the two cowboys would not have been sufficient to have purchased a red handkerchief to flag a freight train.

Now William Thomas Waggoner is a man of many millions and Samuel Lazarus who was born under Russian skies and is one of the most thorough going democrats under American skies today is said to have a few million of his own put away. Millionaire Lazarus when he is in Missouri is a personal friend and political promoter of Senator James A. Reed.

MILLIONAIRE LAZARUS IS A man of vision, a chap who is ever looking ahead. He backed Woodrow Wilson to a finish and now he is hoping that James A. Reed may land in the White House.

During his recent trip to Texas the millionaire railroader and ranchman who in the long ago was a rollicking cowboy was interviewed by Harry Koch of the Quanah Tribune-Chief. They talked about railroad building in the west and Millionaire Lazarus smiled at the idea of a few busy people wanting to build a 200 mile railroad from Fort Worth to the plains.

"WHERE IS THE MONEY TO come from to build such a road?" he asked. "You know very well that no American financiers will advance money for such undertaking.

"Railroads are not paying enough dividends to satisfy our investors and Europe where we used to go get our money to build railroads is too much in need of cash itself to have money left for speculation in foreign countries. Holland has been the last resort where money could be secured on American securities, but since the Dutch investors lost heavily on their Katy holdings and had to sell their Frisco stocks for 10 cents on the dollar you may figure for yourself about the demand there is for stock in American railroads. If those plains people are so anxious for direct connection with Fort Worth why don't they try to build the twenty miles of track dividing Floydada from Roaring Springs. That would give them the most direct connection they could wish for."

MILLIONAIRE LAZARUS HAS a short line running from Quanah to Roaring Springs. If the plains people want connection all they have to do is to construct 20 miles of railway. This would make it fine for all concerned, including Millionaire Lazarus who calls himself a progressive democrat and who is ready to fight whenever he is told that Wall street loves the federal reserve act and directs the policies of the federal reserve banks. Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma and Senator James A. Reed of Missouri had a vast deal to do with whipping the federal reserve act into its present shape when it was "pending legislation." Now Senator Owen says the deflation program of the federal reserve board was contrary to the spirit and the letter of the law, entailed financial disaster upon millions of wealthy producers, struck a blow at the livestock industry that was almost fatal, caused millions of wage earners to lose their jobs and crippled a vast army of American business men.

BUT BACK TO RAILWAYS AND the building of railways. Frank Keil of Wichita Falls stands alone in the southwest as a railroad builder. Months and months ago when told that the people of Fort Worth were going to build 200 miles of railway to link together the Panther City and the plains he smiled when he asked: "Where will they get the money?"

It is a pertinent question. Millionaire Lazarus answered it. In the good old days whenever an American railroad builder needed large sums of money he armed himself with the proper credentials and swooped down upon Holland or Belgium or France or England.

When the world war came Americans owed Europeans 5 to 6 billion dollars and they held ship loads of American securities over there. America was a borrowing nation. Dur-

MUSCLE SHOAL BIDS REJECTED BY COMMITTEE

Fords Proposal Is Closest One to Demands

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Bidders competing for development by private enterprise of the government's $106,000,000 war initiated projects at Muscle Shoals were given their answers today by the house military committee in the form of a counter-proposal framed by the committeemen.

None of the offers submitted by the bidders and forwarded to congress by Secretary Weeks for final decision was found acceptable.

That made by Henry Ford came closest to winning the award in that it was made the basis on which the committee built its reply.

The committee acted in a way, it was explained, which will leave its decision subject to acceptance by any person or interest willing to meet its terms and which will permit it, at the same time to support its counter proposal before the house when the subject of Muscle Shoals is acted on in that body.

Such committee members were represented as being confident that the plan worked out by the committee would be accepted by Mr. Ford despite the elimination of the Gorgas, Ala., steam plant from the properties to be disposed of within Muscle Shoals.

Care was exercised by the committeemen to keep the details of their plan secret until the bidders had received it, including Mr. Ford in Detroit. It was understood, however, that the plan was in effect the Ford modified offer and differed only in the language added by the committee, replacing in many paragraphs that which was struck out in order to insert committee amendments.

SENATE TAKES BONUS MONDAY

Demos Favor Paid Up Insurance

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Soldiers' bonus legislation is to be considered Monday by the senate finance committee. Chairman McCumber hopes that the amended house measure can be agreed on and reported to the senate, but this appeared tonight to be problematical.

Democratic members of the committee expect to confer informally before going into the committee session. Some of them said they had not yet had opportunity to study the two plans now proposed and were doubtful that any final decision could be reached at ont sitting.

Without having examined closely the provisions of the so-called McCumber plan, the amended house bill—and the Smoot bill for paid up life insurance in lieu of all other options, several of the democrats said they were inclined to look more favorably on the former.

While republican members of the committee have taken no formal vote as between the two plans a "counting of noses" has disclosed that they are divided five to five, leaving the decision with the minority members.

"The plains country from Amarillo to Lubbock is in fine shape and the people are optimistic.

PETTICOATS WIN AND CUT OUT BLUE LAWS

COKEVILLE, Wyo., May 27.—The petticoat triumvirate. That's the name of the government of this town since the last election.

And the voters are pretty well satisfied with the job they did when they sent Mrs. Goldie Noblitt, Mrs. Ethel Stoner and Mrs. Retta Roberts into city hall here to scour out the place a bit.

Mrs. Noblitt is mayor and the other two are councilwomen.

They ran on the "petticoat" ticket, also dry, against two male tickets reputed to be wet.

Their platform, however, pledged them not to enact any "stringent measures" or "blue laws."

They are running the town on the "housewife's budget" system and every one seems satisfied.

SENATE KAYOES NEW ROAD BILL

House Plan Fails to Carry

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The deadlock between the senate and house on good roads legislation was continued today by the senate in voting to reject good road legislation attached by the house to the postoffice bill.

In lieu of a senate provision appropriating $50,000,000, this year, $65,000,000 next year and $75,000,000 the following year for federal and state cooperation on road building the house submitted the bill by Representative Dunn, republican, New York, making no continuing appropriations and limiting expenditure to $12,500 per mile this year, and $10,000 thereafter.

The senate voted unanimously today against accepting the Dunn bill. Senator Pittman, democrat, Nevada, said that it would "mean the death of the federal roads law" and cause "absolute cessation of road development competition between the states and the government."

Line Will West On Sixth Street and Then Cross River

Application for franchise for street car line west on Sixth street from the downtown loop, through the section lying north and west of the court house and across the river to Scotland addition will be filed with the city council Monday night, according to a statement by Frank Kell Saturday.

If the franchise is granted by the council, the line will be built at once, Mr. Kell said.

Where the line will cross the river has not been decided—probably in the neighborhood of Burnett street. The traction company will construct its own steel bridge across the river, however, and will not ask to lay its tracks across the Burnett street bridge.

The building of this line, long agitated, will give a thickly populated section of the city, and one of the oldest residence sections, street car service for the first time, as well as extending the street car service to a new and rapidly developing section beyond the river.

Both sections have been anxious for the service for many years, and residents are co-operating with the traction company in meeting the expense of the construction.

The new line will be the third new recent line by this company, the Ninth street line and the extension of the Thirteenth street line being the other two.

The other two recent lines have resulted in a noticeable increase in the amount of business for the traction company, and with the business which is expected from the new line, it is believed that the traction company, always in the red from its inception, may be brought toward a self-supporting position.

Dear Sir: I feel that the service rendered by your carrier in our end of town is so unusually prompt and accurate that he should have special notice given to his employers of such fact. You can set your watch by the time the paper hits the front door, and furthermore on rainy mornings, the paper is always thrown to a point where same does not get wet, therefore I think your carrier uses such unusual judgment that he is entitled to very good credit.

Yours very truly,

Cloture Rule on Tariff to Lose

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Although the question still is open it became increasingly probable after a conference today of republican senators that the move to invoke the cloture during consideration of the tariff bill would be unsuccessful. With the democrats regarded as solidly against the proposal, an informal canvass on the republican side, leaders said, showed that a sufficient number of republicans were in opposition to defeat a cloture rule in connection with the tariff.

Wouldn't It Be A Grand'n Glorious Feelin' To Know You'd Picked Name Of Wichita's Big Irrigation Lake?

Don't you want to have a hand in the naming of the big lake to be created by the irrigation project storage dam, the largest body of water in Texas?

The directors of the irrigation project have decided that you may have—in fact they want the advice of the owners of the project, the people of Wichita Falls, in the naming of the largest lake in Texas.

They have tried to find a name for it, but have given it up as a job which should be left to the choice of the people of the city. At least one director asked 50 people for suggestions in this connection Saturday, but he wants to hear more on the subject.

Finally members of the board asked that the Record News readers be asked to register their choice in this connection.

Several names have already been suggested. The name of only one individual has been put forward—Lake Kemp being suggested."

"The rest of us would have been lying around 70 years more without this project if he had not kept it continually before us," one man suggesting this name said.

Lake Wichita is suggested also, as well as Lake Wichita Falls.

"When the people of Wichita Falls build a lake 33 times as big as the one they have had before, it is all right to transfer the name, regardless of how long it has been associated with the other," was one comment in this connection. "Call it Lake Holliday, or something else."

Lake Seymour, Lake Big Wichita, and a number of others have been suggested. What do you prefer? You can use a post card to send your answer to the Record News.

Wichita County Ranks First In State In Wealth Per Child Of School Age, Educator Declares

The poorest district, or the least wealthy district in the county has above the smallest in the state, the [illegible] to having a ratio [illegible] per child.

These were some of the statistics which S. H. Davis brought before the meeting of school trustees held at the court house Saturday afternoon.

[illegible] not the case in south and east Texas, he said, pointing to [illegible] county in particular, where there are 11000 Mexicans, and only about 420 of them in school.

"There are a lot of districts in [illegible] which are not properly equipped with school material and [illegible]" Mr. Davis averred, "and [illegible] are some shacks in the county [illegible] are being used for school buildings."

The speaker ascribed the reason for the last statement to the oil booms in this vicinity, especially near Burkburnett, where it was necessary to teach in any kind of quarters during the rush for houses. [illegible] schools have never been changed, he intimated.

Mr. Davis placed himself on record as favoring 20th century schools, [illegible] modern blackboards, desks, libraries, charts, laboratories, globes and all the equipment essential in [illegible] the child.

Closer Relations In School Affairs Is Meeting Purpose

Closer relations in school matters between school districts, and a broader vision into the affairs that concern the county as a whole were the reasons for calling a mass meeting of Wichita county trustees, as described by Burl Bryant when he addressed the gathering at the county court house Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Bryant introduced S. H. Davis, who made a recent survey of Wichita county relative to the number of scholastics and the amount of money per capita spent on their education.

In his introduction, Mr. Bryan stated that the speaker was the author of several text books now in use in the public schools, that he was a "naturalized" Texan, having been born in the east, but having been reared in Desdamona, Texas.

Davis brought valuable statistics before the trustees in his short talk. He was followed by S. M. N. Harrs, first assistant state superintendent of public instruction, and a candidate for state superintendent.

PARIS ASKED TO COME HERE

Title at Stake When Teams Meet

According to Captain Kissiar, of the high school baseball nine, the Paris high school team has been asked to sign the dotted line to the effect that they will come to this city for a series of games Thursday and Friday. This will be the deciding factor for the state scholastic baseball honors.

No word has been received from Coach Henderson in regard to a match with Temple. Reports has been heard that Temple is not the contender that should be played for the finals, as they have been defeated at times this season.

The Spudder management has given its permission to the youths to use the Spudder park for these important games. The whole city will then have the opportunity to witness the games that will decide the state championship for this season. If the town would turn out in proper numbers to witness these games, the local lads should be able to wallop the Parisians and let this city hold the honor for the first time.

Torrens Land Title Advocates to Meet

THIS LAD GIVES REFORMS OKEH

Wichita Youth Says They're Different

Reform schools in Texas are not what most people think they are.

At least that's the emphatic statement of Frank Eaton, 14-year-old lad who returned to Wichita Falls, March 3, and entered the public schools in the high fourth grade, after he had spent a year and seven months in the state reform school at Gatesville.

Frank declares that the reformatory is a place of training for boys; a place where they are taught to mind, and taught to lead regular lives. In fact, he points out in a communication to the editor of the Record News, "there are no reformatories in Texas."

His letter follows:

"What do you think when you hear the word reformatory? You think of a bad place to reform boys and girls.

"Texas has no reformatories. It has a school for training of boys. They are not beaten like dogs. They are treated like somebody. They have a laundry, ice plant, mattress factory, butcher shop, barber shop, and many other things

"Boys sent to the state juvenile training school are just as good boys as anybody's boys. They are taught a trade. They have many enjoyments.

"I will try to explain to you the way they are taught to do. They are taught to mind; to hold their heads up and look people in the face.

"They have nice clean beds; they go to bed at a certain time and get up at a certain time; they have a good drill master, and they know how to drill and take exercises. They are strong and healthy.

"They eat three times a day, and they go to school half a day and play and drill the other half. They have everything they want to enjoy themselves with."

Frank said he was at Gatesville when Dell Tames, 14, was hanged and beaten to death by H. G. Tyman, guard, who was later tried and convicted of a charge of murder. Frank was a witness against Tyman, and expresses himself as believing Tyman murdered the youth. He states he saw Tyman drag the boy across the campus of the school, beating and abusing him.

KANSAS CITY TO HAVE AUTO SPEEDWAY

(By International News Service.)

KANSAS CITY, May 27.—A $500,000 automobile speedway, the finest racing track between Indianapolis and the Pacific coast, will attract the world's greatest auto drivers to this city before this summer has passed.

A mile-and-a-quarter board track which, it is predicted, will be the speediest in the country, will be the course around which the roaring motors will split the air at a clip of from 116 to 120 miles an hour.

Ground for the new speedway already has been broken. Contractors have been ordered to finish the track in sixty days. Opening races will be run in August.

The speedway will require 4,000,000 feet of lumber. The wide saucer turns, in order to accommodate the great speed of the cars, will be banked at an agle reaching forty-five degrees.

PRO CHIEF TALKS LONG AND LOUD

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, May 27.—They how have added the name of Roy A. Haynes, prohibition commissioner, to the world's list of long-distance talkers.

Haynes has interspersed a whirlwind program for drying up the country with about 20,000 miles of travel and more than 100 speeches since he took office less than a year ago.

The "Ohio oracle' 'as his middle western neighbors call him, speaks usually without manuscript, and whimes along, after a swift start, at the rate of 150 words a minute. He is noted for jamming big ideas into long sentences. A two-hour speech is just one of the passing incidents of the day for the prohibition chief. He boasts it matters not whether the audience is with him or against him in his views once he gets a full head of steam and rips loose for a torrent of words.

VETERAN GETS SPEECH WITH RUBBER TONGUE

(By International News Service)

PARIS, May 27.— Medical science has found something new under the sun. Sergeant Vialla, whose lower jaw, blown away by explosives during the world war, was reconstructed with a complete set of false teeth, now is able to talk and sing.

Surgeons at the Vel de Grace hospital experimented for many months in an effort to build back Vialla's tongue, the base of which remained after the reconstruction of his jaw.

The efforts of Dr. Eugene Quenolle were crowned with success and now Sergeant Vialla has a rubber tongue, which enables him to sing and lead conversation.

AMERICAN BEAUTY OF FUTURE VISUALIZED

(By International News Service)

LONDON, May 27.—"She will have brown hair, warm brown with glints of bronze and copper in it—chestnut brown. Her eyes will be hazel, merry eyes with tints of the same warm brown. Her complexion will be neither fair nor olive, yet a little of both and it will carry its own crimson or scarlet high lights of health. Her figure will be almost boyish, lithe, willowy, athletic by reason of exercise in the great out-doors she so loves."

"That is how I visualize the American beauty of the future," says E. O. Hoppe, the artist-photographer.

MARY'S PLACE

(Copyright, 1922, by W. Werner).

Delia Otis heard about it from Julia Brennan. She and Julia were eating their lunch together at one of the little round tables at Tony's cafe. At Tony's one could get a heaping plateful of nourishing spaghetti and cheese for a trifling sum. Tony's wife prepared the spaghetti and Lony served it with his flashing, good natured smile as an accompaniment.

"You go out Vestal avenue till you reach Pyrne street and there it is," explained Julia. "It's the only white house on that street. You squeeze along beside it till you come to the back yard, and there's your surprise. I shan't tell you any more, but if you like birds and trees you ought to go there some time. I used to go there a lot last summer, hot afternoons when I didn't have to work. But now that I've got Horace and Horace's got a car—" She laughed with the pride of the newly engaged girl. "I will it to you, Delia—that is, my share of it."

"But what about Mary Burson, the girl that owns it?" persisted Delia.

"Oh, Mary is drawing oig money now that she is with the E. G. people and she can afford to keep the place as it is out of sentiment. You see, it was her grandmother's, and her grandmother brought her up. She always has said that she was going to live there some time, but I suppose she never will now. And I doubt if she goes there very often. That's really the way I started to go there. She told me to go out there once when she was busy and help myself to flowers—"

"Flowers!" exclaimed Delia.

"There's oodles of flowers, dearie. But just wait till you see Mary's place for yourself."

All that afternoon Delia thought about Marys place. Her hunger for it grew. That night when she sat eating her dinner—Mrs. Cady furnished a room, breakfast and dinner very reasonably—and afterward when she was alone in the room, listening to the clang and clatter in the next street and the quarreling of the couple in the next room, she thought still more about Mary's place where it was green and cool and quiet. It was very hot in her room that night and she got no relief from the open window through which came noise rather than sweet air. Delia wrote a letter home to her sister. They were great friends although Kate's husband did not approve of indigent young sisters-in-law. That was why Delia had to retire to the city to find work. Delia ended her letter with this: "You ask me about Cal Scudder, who was so nice to me when I first came here. I haven't seen him since he left Mrs. Cady's till yesterday then we just nodded. He's got a big job now and so I suppose he's thinking o' that instead of the dark haired girl whom he used to sit beside at breakfast and tell his plans to."

It was a dreary little letter, but Delia could not make it anything else. She would post it tomorrow on her way to work and with that intent she struck it in the mirror. Then she went to bed and cried before she slept.

The next afternoon was Saturday half-holiday. Delia and Julia ate their spaghetti together, as usual. Julia was going with Horace Purdy, her fiance, into the country. She talked about it over the spaghetti. "It's fifty miles to Wolf mountain. Horace says we'll dine at the inn early, that'll give us plenty of time to get back. It will be moonlight part of the way and the road's a dream, Delia I wish you had a nice friend like Horace," remarked Julia.

Delia flushed. "Oh!—I'm all right," she said hastily.

"There's Mr. Warren. He's always looking at you. He's nice. I bet if you gave him the least encouragement——"

"Oh, don't!" Delia's voice had a pained note that struck the other girl.

Delia had Tony cut her a sandwich then she took the Vestal avenue car and rode as far as Pryne street. She walked down Pryne street till she came to a quiet white house with a big square of green grass before it. There was a fence on either side guarding it from the pretentious bungalows. Delia followed the fence till she came to the back yard, and there she paused in wonderment.

The back yard of Mary's place was a real old-fashioned country back yard. It was very deep, full of grass and shrubs and flowers. At the back limit were apple trees in full bloom. Dandelions lay like bright gold pieces on the grass. A wren trilled on a hihg bough. It was unbelievably like home, and Delia, sitting down upon the back steps, gave herself up to the enjoyment of the quiet and untrained beauty.

When she had rested she started to explore. It was while she was wedged in between two great lilac bushes and reaching for a flower she heard voices. She peeped out from her hiding place and saw a man and woman standing quite near her. The man was Cal Scudder and the woman ——How she knew that the woman was Mary Burson she did not know. They were talking in low tones. Then she heard Cal say:

"Of course, there is a lot to be done here before we can make a home of the place."

"That's true," Mary Burson replied. She was full figured and handsome and her hat was exquisite. "But still nothing ever pays like the making of a home, do you think?"

"Nothing," agreed Cal, "unless it is the winning of the right girl."

They moved away, leaving Delia shaken and wretched. It was all right, of course. Mary was the very girl for a big, fine fellow like Cal. And yet—— Suddenly she felt so faint that she had to sit down somewhere. She moved away from the lilac and sat down in the thick grass and covered her face with her hands. A step rustled the grass and she looked up.

Cal Scudder had come back alone. "Why, Delia!" he exclaimed. "It's you. Why, Delia" He stood looking down at her strangely. Delia tried to get up. "Here, let me help you," he said, and he fairly picked her up and carried her to the steps. There he sat down beside her. "Why, Delia! If I'd wished for you you couldn't have happened quicker." He laughed softly.

"Was that Miss Burson?" Delia asked.

"Yes. You don't know her?"

"I've never even seen her, but I've heard about her. She is beautiful, isn't she? And this is her place. She seems to have everything."

"But she isn't going to have the place long. I'm going to have it. What do you think of that?"

"Then you, too, will have everything."

"Not everything unless—not anything that counts—unless——" He paused. "Delia, do you know what I thought when I saw you yesterday?"

She shook her head and rose. She was going now. She felt better. But Cal arose, to, and caught her by the shoulders.

"Listen, Delia! When I saw you yesterday it confirmed everything. I can't live without you. I went to Mrs. Cady's to see you, but you were not there. Then I decided that I'd see you later and buy our house first. I felt that you wouldn't be able to resist this place when I brought you here—just as if fate had planned it all! Delia, will you have this—and me?"

There was no doubting his voice and eyes. Out of a spinning world of rosiness and music and joy Delia smiled a white, tremulous smile. It was the best she could do, but Cal took the smile for his answer.

BLOW TORCH CAUSES EXPLOSION

All that is left of gasoline truck and station after explosion.

In Good Old Days They Served Real Red Liquor at Political Parties But Wichita Woman Makes It Tea'n Cakes

Before the coming of the woman in politics the men used to get together and organize clubs for their favorite candidates. If they served refreshments either the juice of the corn, the juice of the grape or the juice of the barley enlivened the proceedings. Now it appears to be the fashion in political campaigning to serve tea.

Mrs. Reese S. Allen started the innovation in Wichita county at the Kemp the other day. She invited a number of her women friends, served daily refreshments including the tea brew, told them that she was for Earle B. Mayfield for senator and wished to make an appeal to the women voters of Texas to support him.

She did not take advantage of her women friends. She said, that a Mayfield club had been formed in the city and that she hoped all who were not committed to the other candidates would join the Mayfield club. Refering to the candidate of her choice she declared him to be a fine Christian gentleman, who had lost his mother when a small lad, had been reared by a Christian grand-mother, had a record of 12 years of service in state affairs as state senator and railroad commissioner and is well equipped for the place he seeks.

"He has only two real opponents," said Mrs. Allen, "Thomas and Culberson. Mr. Thomas has nothing to his credit save a political aspiration and being a brother-in-law of a senator. Mr. Culberson, after these many years should be honorably retired, since his physical body will not permit his making an active campaign, but must depend on hired talent.

"Mr. Ousley is not a native Texan and although experienced in farming (my husband is a farmer), the industries of our state are far too numerous to confine ourselves to one channel. Hence native sons are better prepared to fill the place.

"Mr. Henry has openly declared for the ku klux klan, thus destroying all chances of winning in this cosmopolitan state. I beg of you ladies to not throw away your vote but consider a man who has a chance to win."

Lauding Mr. Mayfield as a faithful public servant, able lawyer and big hearted Texan, Mrs. Allen appealed to the women to enlist their husbands and sons and relatives and friends "in this most important and worthy cause to let it be shown that we are worthy of our trust as the women of California, Pennsylvania and elsewhere have done as July is not very far distant."

In the good old days it was red liquor for the men. Now it is cakes and tea for men and women.

SEES BIG JUMP FOR BUSINESS

Kell Makes Statement For New Yorkers

Improvement in business conditions in this section has been such that business men in this section are shaping their plans for a considerably greater activity, according to a statement issued by Frank Kell Saturday on request of a New York news service which is asking business statements from business leaders throughout the country.

The activity in the oil business and the better conditions prevailing and in prospect for agricultural and live stock products are features in the business improvement, the statement brings out. The statement follows:

Business and general conditions have much improved in our section, so much so that our most aggressive business men are now laying their plans for their future business operations feeling that it is necessary that every active business man do his part to restore business to normal. With the advances which we have had in the price of farm products to where the farmers commodities have a liquidating value, and our section being largely dependent on agricultural products, our business men have gained greater confidence in the future and a general spirit of optimism is now prevailing.

A large area of the Southwest has a very splendid income from petroleum and its products. The prospect is now quite healthy and the field of development is in quite active. It adds greatly to the business activity in our section.

It appears to us that the harvesting of a good crop is assured and well assured in almost all lines of farm products that the farmers of our section raises. The United States as a whole, now has a prospect of raising more than ever before and in particular of what every business which will be benefited by such an increase will be needed to take care of our home needs and take care of our share of the demand that will be made upon other parts of the world for a substantial surplus.

Cotton, corn, wheat, oats, hay, cattle, hogs, sheep, poultry, dairy products, fruits and vegetables will be the main items of farm products that the farmers of our section will have to sell. The prospect for a good price for all of these products is very encouraging. Figure it as you will, the farmers of our section are going to have more money to spend than ever before. This means a substantial increase in the business of every line of business in our section.

Army Of Workers On Irrigation Project Grows In Strength To More Than 1,000; Half As Many Teams

Workers on the big Wichita river irrigation project, already a small army, have now increased in number to a thousand or more, according to S. H. Heyser, vice president of the W. E. Callahan Construction company, general contractors, while the teams employed in all departments number probably half as many hundreds.

At the storage dam, near Mabelle, work is getting well started. Pouring of the sixth concrete conduits is well along, the big power drag line is excavating the muck ditch for the driving of the sheet steel piling and the driving of the piling for the big core wall will be under way by Tuesday. The launching pit and the power line from Wichita Falls were completed several days ago.

At the diversion dam the driving of the piling has been finished, and a drag line with a swarm of tractors, elevating graders and dump wagons are erecting the huge earthen embankment.

The entire length of the south side canal is covered with the teaming contractors outfits and several miles of the artificial river are about down to grade. Building of the concrete structures for the canal is also reported getting well ahead.

TWO COUNTIES TO CELEBRATE

Join in Ceremony At Launching

Wichita and Baylor counties will join in the ceremonies marking the launching of the giant dredger, the T. B. Noble, at the site of the larger irrigation dam Tuesday afternoon at 1:30, according to the program for the event announced Saturday.

A. H. Beltain of Wichita Falls, former mayor of the city and also a former resident of Seymour, will be the master of ceremonies. Music for the occasion will be rendered by a band from Seymour.

Following the invocation will come words of brief talks.

An Ambition Realized" will be the subject of J. A. Kemp, originator of the enterprise who will be the first speaker.

Seymour's Playground" will be the subject of Judge Isaac G. Newton of Seymour, the next speaker.

The District" will be the subject of the talk by Frank Kell.

Puget Sound to the Big Waters" will be the topic of J. B. Lockwood, representative of the Puget Sound Dredging Co. interests here and the owners of the dredge now on Puget Sound and being dismantled and recrected half way across the continent.

Closing Remarks" will be an address by Rev. Nat L. Crafton, speaking in appreciation of the work of T. B. Noble, vice president of the district for whom the big boat was named.

A brief response by Mr. Noble will include the program, following which will come the launching and the christening of the boat. Miss Eleanor Thompson, daughter of R. A. Thompson, the chief engineer of the project, has been chosen as the sponsor. Mr. Lockwood and wife christen the boat.

We demonstrate at any time the Marmon models. Fritz Motor Co., Eighth and Austin.—Adv.

FITTS WILL WAR ON DANCE HALLS

To Ask Restriction By Council

War has been declared on the public dance hall.

The declaration was issued Saturday morning by Commissioner J. B. Fitts.

In his warning to the dance hall habitue, Commissioner Fitts declared that he has ordered his officers to see that all public dance halls are closed every night by 12 o'clock.

It was also announced that the commissioner is preparing an ordinance which he will submit at an early time to the city council, the proposed law calling for the public dance hall to be closed by 11 o'clock, and requiring the keepers of the place to maintain an officer in the hall while the dances are in session.

This is a result of recent reports made to the department to the effect that public dance halls have been the cause of peace disturbances and unnecessary noises.

31 Million Acres Of Wheat in Europe

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The area of winter wheat for 1921-22 in European countries for which figures are now available, is 31,397,000 acres, according to advices received by the department of agriculture. This is 1,590,000 acres less than last year. The countries covered are Belgium, Bulgaria, Spain, Finland, France, Poland, Rumania and Czecho-Slovakia.

The total area sown to rye for the season 1921-2 in the same countries is 18,808,000 acres as compared with 15,067,000 last year.

Planting of corn is progressing rapidly in central Europe, the report said, although there is excessive rain in some sections.

STEEL DEMAND IS STILL ACTIVE

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 27.—The demand for steel continues active and sales for the week include 10,500 tons of rails to Japan. Mills have a good supply of orders on hand and are increasing production. Although prices are firm, advances are being checked by reduced freight rates and a more favorable fuel situation, which offset the possibility of a wage increase. Pig iron is active and firm with little reserve stock. English iron is selling in a small way.

Copper has been firm and active with buying so far this month on a more active scale than any preceding month this year. Some authorities estimate that the May sales will aggregate 200,000,000 tons, which would be the largest months business in years. It is believed that producers are well satisfied with the volume of business, although demand slackened somewhat towards the close of the week. France and Germany have been the most active buyers for export while there has been a moderate demand from Belgium, Scandinavia and the Orient.

Tin was easied on reports of large shipments from the straits, but later steadied on improvement in the London market. Lead was quiet. Prompt shipments was freely offered at the west and the local situation was affected by the settlement of labor troubles. Offerings for forward shipments were light.

Zinc continued firm with a fair inquiry from consumers and dealers. The output is rather small so that no accumulation has occurred in the hands of smelters and consumption exceeds present production.

Antimony was quiet and unchanged.

ONLY FOUR PERMITS FOR BUILDING GIVEN

Building on Wichita Falls took a decided slump during the past week. That fact is evidenced in the number of building permits issued during the seven day period. Only four, one less than the previous week, were issued to Wichitans, the largest consideration being to John Greaver for the erection of a five room frame house, at a cost of $2,000. The place is to be erected at the corner of Seventh and Polk.

Other permits were issued to:

Lee Banks, to repair a three-room frame house at 1013 Collins street; consideration $150.

Miss Anna Frendesen to repair a five-room frame house at 1908 Buchanan for $1,000.

G. C. McIntyre to erect a three-room frame house on Giddings street at a cost of $540.

NOW THIS'LL MAKE YU' THINK

Read These Letters Then Write Mother

Of course every boy thought of his mother on Mother's day, whether he was far away from her, or with her.

And there were many who donned red roses, and many who wore white roses, all symbolic of a deep and inexplicable love for that greatest of all beings—mother.

But there were two lonely boys out in California—Berkeley to be exact—who longed for their mother here in Wichita Falls. And they both sent words of cheer to her on her own great day which we have all come to revere.

The mother—and she is justly proud of her two sons, both of whom have reached the age of accountability, and who seem to indicate that the highest mark in the world for them will be too low—is Mrs. M. A. Yarborough, who manages the Bachelor apartments. The sons are Arthur Leon and William Barton Yarborough, who are attending school at Berkeley, one studying architecture, while the other trains to be a producer.

On Mother's day, Mrs. Yarborough received two poems from her two sons, both of which are clever.

William Barton, the youngest, wrote:

"Beauty is God's gift to nature,
It is like an angel's smile;
It helps us to be better—
Helps make our lives worth while.
Kindness is a beautiful thing,
And virtue beautiful to behold,
Bravery is beautiful in its way,
And friendship has beauty untold.
There is beauty in blue skies,
And beauty in white stars above,
But there is nothing in God's great earth
So beautiful as mother's love."

Arthur, not to be outdone by his brother, composed the following:

'Since Bart has been so cute
And written rhymes to you,
I'll try and do my durndest
To write a little, too.
We've had an awful hill to pull—
You've stuck through thick and thin.
And some day we hope to pay you back
By making useful men.
I've met a lot of wonderful girls,
I've had friends that were true—
But wonderful girls and wonderful friends,
Are nothing compared to you.
And so, like my kid brother,
I put my love in verse,
And send you love on Mother's day
That my thoughts you may rehearse."

Why wear these chains?

FOR thousands of years the human race has been chained to disease by ignorance and fear.

That is why today the Texas Chiropractors Association (an association of professional men pronouncing a new science) comes before the people of its State with the statement that the shackles can be removed.

An intelligent, yet simple, study of the cause of disease, and the study of proper steps to remove that cause, is due the people of the State of Texas, this Association believes.

A few brief sentences in plain, not technical language, begins today this study.

FIRST, the chiropractor states, and vouches the word of all the sciences (his own and others), that a human body with a perfectly normal and healthy set of nerves, all functioning properly, cannot be ill.

SECOND: That illness, if it does occur in the human body, is the result of nerve force failing to function.

THIRD: That the relief from this illness comes when that nerve force is restored, and Nature has had the chance to restore the damage done to blood and tissue.

FOURTH: that the nervous center of the human body is the brain and it functions through the spinal cord and its branching nerves, protected by the spinal column made of bones called vertebrae.

FIFTH: that an overwhelming number of failures of nerves and nerve force to function comes from the fact that this spinal column is not a perfect mechanical system, due to the fact that sections or vertebrae of the spine can be moved, or rotated, bringing pressure to bear on the major nerves branching out from the spinal cord, and causing that nerve to either cease functioning, or be greatly impaired.

SIXTH: that a correspondingly overwhelming number of diseases can be relieved by spinal adjustments given by an intelligent and well-trained chiropractor, to bring the spinal column back to normal, to relieve pressure on a nerve and restore its full force, and permit Nature to throw off illness, an unnatural state.

Accept this simple formula on human organism—upheld by countless demonstrations of chiropractic skill.— and the bonds of ignorance and fear will cease to hold you fast to disease.

(First of an important series of messages to the people of Texas from the Texas Chiropractors Association to bring a clear conception of a new and pressing science related to the service of suffering humanity. Watch for others.)

Watch for This Emblem—
It Denotes the Association Chiropractor

The Texas Chiropractic Association urges the public to seek out the chiropractor displaying this emblem, as it denotes those who are actively supporting the Association effort to inform the public of the uses and benefits of Chiropractic—who desire the public to be fully informed as to their science. Only members in good standing can display this emblem.

Exporters Buried Under Spudder Avalanche, 18 to 4

FOUR HURLERS GET MAULING BY SPUDDERS

Summa Smashes Out First Homer of Season

Special to the Record News

BEAUMONT, Texas, May 27.—Walter Salm's Spudders ran wild in Magnolia Park this afternoon after lambasting the offerings of four Exporter pitchers. A total of 25 hits netted 18 runs for the visitors, while three markers collected by the home team in the ninth brought their total for the day up to four. The final count was 18-4.

The Spudders began their batting in the first and sent four runs across on five hits and one error. Caldera, the Cuban left hander went the way of all south-paws who have faced the Spudders during the past two weeks, and gave way to Morgan in the first after one run had been retired.

Morgan fared little better and gave way to Hill, a recruit, in the second who lasted until the middle of the sixth. Torkelson took up the [illegible] and [illegible] was bombarded for [illegible] in the seventh as well.

The Spudders sailed along behind [illegible] who had an easy time [illegible]. Only seven [illegible] off of his de[illegible] were all singles [illegible] Edington and a [illegible] Brooks.

WHITEMAN IS NOW LEADING TEXAS LEAGUE

Adams Drops to Third During Past Week

By WILLIAM B. RUGGLES, Statistician Texas League

George Whiteman, the hectic hitting boss of the Buffs, who through Thursday had hit safe in 25 consecutive games, regained the leadership of the loop, setting the terrific pace of .395 this far into May. Trailing the Buff skipper is Earl Adams, the runt Spudder shortstop with the big bat at .373, two points to the rear of Frank Wetzel of Beaumont. Adams heads the race for the first century, having batted out 57 hits to the 56 of his teammate Summa, and Gene Bailey of Houston. Thirty-nine Texas leaguers are batting .300 or better.

Pitching Averages

Roy Mitchell of Dallas and Young Babe Ruth of Wichita Falls have begun to pile up formidable undefeated records. Joe Pate of the Panthers is still the real leading winning pitcher, with his teammate, Wilcey Moore, and Glaiser of Houston running him a close race. Thirty pitchers had won half or better of their games through Thursday.

DODGERS HAVE NEW SCORING TRAIT

In several of their games this season the Brooklyn Dodgers, with two out and the bases empty, have staged batting rallies which resulted in many runs. In the fifth inning of a recent game in Boston Olson and Hungling, the first two Robins to appear at the plate, were disposed of handily. Before the third out was made, however, the Flatbush team had pushed over four runs. In the seventh session they scored one run after the first two batters were retired. In a recent game against the Giants the Brooklyns pushed over five runs after two were out.

FRENCH GOLF CHAMP COMING

Still another foreign professional is planning to come to this country for a tour, according to word received recently. Arnaud Massey, former French and British open champion, wrote to a friend the other day stating that he and another French "pro" were contemplating visiting the States this season. He is a wonderful golfer and one of the few "outsiders" who have ever won the British open crown. His entry in the national open at Skokie in July would add considerable international color to the event.

HEAVIES ARE COMING AND GOING

These new heavyweights are blowing into the limelight in such rapid succession that we're dizzy. And their departure is about as rapid, too.

The latest "hope" to demand consideration is one Soldier Ray Thompson of Alaska, who has gone to New York to grow up with the other heavy hopefuls. He wants to eliminate Louis Firpo, Jim Tracey and the others who got there ahead of him.

He stands 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 205 pounds. Says he has fought thirty-seven fights in the northwest and hasn't bitten the rosin once.

Trap Shooters Meet Tomorrow in Big Event Over Wichita Traps

TWO DAY MEET WILL INCLUDE MANY CHAMPS

Big Gallery to Be Present for Both Days

By "Spike" Cooper

Wichita sport lovers, particularly those who follow the field, will have opportunity to witness one of the greatest trap events in the history of Texas when the first event is called tomorrow over the traps of the Wichita Falls Gun club.

The entry sheet already bears names of some of the most prominent shooters in the United States. Champions in several events, both state and national title holders are going to compete for the valuable prizes offered in the big two day meet.

Professionals and amateurs will match their aim and skill in one of the largest entry lists ever scheduled in the southwest.

Champions Coming.

Prominent in the trap world, both as an amateur and as a professional, Frank Troeh, Vancouver, Wash., will demonstrate the aim which won him the title of American Grand Champion.

R. A .King, holder of the world's record in both the 50 and 100 pairs of doubles events, will also enter. King's record in the 50 pair's event is 99, and in the 100 pairs event he smashed 197.

Phil Miller, Dallas, Texas, high man in the recent Oklahoma State meet, will also be here.

Three professionals, Grover Spencer, Denison, Texas; Hank Donnely, Guthrie, Okla., W. E. Fairless, formerly of Cisco, are entered. Fairless is field representative for the Peters ammunition company, while Donnely is employed in the same capacity by the DuPont powder works.

Many Texas Entries.

Out of town entries include John Gallaher, Graham, E. M. Congdon, Higgins, W. E. Connally, Sweetwater; W. D. Cullum, Amarillo; L. E. Day, Fort Worth; C. L. Dupuy, Manning; Chas. Gay, Graham; L. O. Grissom, Waxahachie; G. F. Howard, Fort Worth; W. R. Miller, Austin; C. W. Shafer, Fort Worth; Geo. Tucker, Gilmer; T. A Wottley, Slaton; C. H. Worthington Jacksboro; W. O. Huey, Mineral Wells; Guy Morris, Childress; T. W. Farrell, Vernon; J. D. Carroll, Quanah; Chas. Adams, Amarillo; A. J Bell, Hereford; Joe Franz, Pitsham; J. D. Clay, Houston; J. F. Deak, Fort Worth, and W. H. Terry, Fort Worth.

Oklahomans Coming.

Oklahoma will also be well represented. Shooters from the neighboring state include O. B. Garrison, Ryan; J. P. Morrison, Else Morrison, Hastings; Don Cachran, Ardmore; J. H. Francis, Tulsa; Little Bear, Pawhuska; E. C. Wheeler, Pawhuska.

Monday morning at 9 o'clock, the first event will be called. The program for the first day includes six events of 25 target singles and one event of 25 pairs of doubles.

All entries are permitted to participate in each event, which will fill a full day's program. Added money in addition to the regular purse will afford keen competition and the gallery will see many events where not a target is dropped. Many strings of 25 will divide first money.

The second day's program is practically that of the first except one additional event of 25 single targets is carded.

Many Prizes Offered.

Merchandise prizes are also offered by the club. First and second high gun of singles each day will be rewarded as will first and second high gun on the 350 single targets. Low gun on the 350 singles will also receive a merchandise prize.

Regular American Trapshooter's association rules will govern the meet.

One of the added features provides that amateurs who are shooting for targets only will be eligible for the prizes offered for the 350 targets.

Officials have been appointed and all things are in readiness for the opening shot tomorrow.

Concessions are provided which will assure comfort for the large gallery which is expected in attendance.

A cluster of snakes recently found in Dorsetshire, England, contained 534 of these reptiles.

GREENBURG

Star member of Wichita Gun club who will be missed in the big two day meet Monday and Tuesday. Greenburg is one of the best shooters of the club and his illness handicaps the local entry considerably.

GUNNERS PUT IN FULL TIME FOR BIG MEET

Nabb and Pate in Tie for Weekly Honors

Local shooters took advantage of the regular meet Friday afternoon and put in as much practice as possible for the big two day meet which will open tomorrow morning.

Nabb and Pate tied for the weekly trophy with 48 out of 50 targets.

Due to the fact that the traps had recently been reset on concrete bases only one trap was used and the doubles event was not shot off.

After the regular program was finished, many practice events were pulled off. King, Adams and Pate ran the string in the practice goes, and Rhodes and Donelly each dropped one in the event.

Scores for the 50 target singles were:

SISLER TAKING BIG LEAD IN ALL BRANCHES

Danny Clark Now In Seventh Position

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 27.—George Sisler continues to prove himself a one-man ball team, for the St. Louis Brown's first sacker again occupies a leading position in almost every column of the American league statistics released today, which include games of Wednesday.

Sisler heads the batters with a mark of .489, despite the fact that this is three points lower than last week's average. He has scored the most runs, 30, made the most hits, 65, leads in total bases with 96, heads the base stealers with 18, has banged out ten two baggers against eleven for the leaders and his circuit drives total five, enough to place him near the top.

Ed Miller of Philadelphia has been climbing steadily and is second to Sisler in batting with an average of .402. Miller now has ten home runs against twelve for Ken Williams of the Browns, who has taken Babe Ruth's position as the chief slugger of the circuit. Ty Cobb is third with .398, other leading batters in twenty or more games are: Speaker, Cleveland, .397; O'Neill, Cleveland, .395; Witt, New York, .377; Clark, Detroit, .358; Schang, New York, .352; Jamieson, Cleveland, .341; Blue, Detroit, .338.

Ken Williams, besides leading in home runs, ranks second to Sisler in stolen bases with 14.

George Toporcer, the slugging infielder with St. Louis, by pounding out thirteen hits, boosted himself to the top of the National league batters with an average of .404.

Tommy Griffith, who has been hitting consistently for Brooklyn, is the runner up with a mark of .385, while Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis and Bigbee, the fleet-footed Pittsburgh outfielder, are tied for third place with a mark of .372.

Hornsby leads the run getters with 33 tallies, is out in front in total bases with a mark of 86, and leads home run drives with nine. Max Carey of Pittsburgh, continues to set the pace among the base stealers with nine thefts.

Other leading batters for twenty or more games: Maranville, Pittsburgh, .370; Hargrave, Cincinnati, .370; Kelly, New York, .368; J. Johnston, Brooklyn, 353; Southworth, Boston, .351; Grimes, Chicago, .348; Hollocher, Chicago, 347.

BECKETT PUT OUT IN SIXTH

Frank Goodard Lays Him Away

By Associated Press.

LONDON, May 27.—Frank Goddard, heavyweight boxer, knocked out Bombardier Wells, in the sixth round of their bout at the Crystal palace tonight. Wells was down six seconds in the third round and nine seconds in the fifth.

FIGHTERS HELD FIVE TITLES

When Ted Lewis and Georges Carpentier entered the ring for their recent fight they carried five titles with them. Carpentier was recognized heavyweight champ of Europe and light heavyweight king of the world. Lewis carried the welter, middle and light heavyweight championships of Great Britain on his shoulders.

The New Jersey boxing commission has barred the rabbit as well as the kidney punch, since Louis Firpo, Argentina wonder used the rabbit punch on Joe McCann and Sailor Maxted and laid them up temporarily.

It is estimated that every week in London articles to the value of $1,000,000 are pawned.

TRACKERS AT ILLINOIS MAY GRAB HONORS

Team Picked to Win Title at Chicago Meet

URBANA, Ill., May 26.—The 84-42 victory of the University of Illinois track team over Notre Dame last week marked the close of the second successive 1000 percent season in dual meets for the Illini.

This season Coach Gill's circler artists triumphed over Iowa and Notre Dame indoors, and Rice Institute (Texas), University of Texas, Wisconsin, Michigan and Notre Dame outdoors. Records show that none of these opponents collected a score within 40 points of the winning Illinois squad.

In addition to the clean sweep of her dual meets, the orange and blue outscored all teams in the Fifth Illinois Relay carnival and ranked high in the Drake Relays. In the last named classic, the Illinois four mile team made up of Captain Yates, Wharton, McGinnis and Patterson, clipped six seconds from the world's record in that event. Individual stars at Drake were Angier, who hurled the javelin 202 feet, and Osborne, who cleared the high jump bar at 6 feet 6 inches.

Coach Gill is now engaged in priming his men for the annual outdoor conference meet to be held at Iowa City, June 2nd and 3rd. Illinois has won the big ten outdoor title for the past two years and it is generally conceded that the Illini chances are exceptionally good for carrying off the championship again this season.

Illinois will end her track season when ten men selected by Coach Gill will represent the orange and blue in the secon dannual national collegiate athletic association meet to be held at Chicago June 17. The Illini won the first N. C. A. A., meet and should meet some strong competition when they compete against such teams as California and Georgetown this year.

TEXAN TIES UP PACIFIC LAD

Georgetown Youth Gets Poor Start

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 27.—Two world's interscholastic records fell in the track and field meet for high schools and academies at the Chicago University today in which Cedar Rapids, Iowa, carried off high honors with 23 points in the high school section and Shattuck school of Faribult, Minn., ran away with 58 points for first place in the academy division. The meeting attracted more than 1,000 youthful athletes from 144 schools in 29 states.

Austin, Texas, tied Oxnard, California, with 14 points for second place among the high schools.

Keeble came all the way from Austin, Texas, to tie with Houser, the California boy, for second place equaling Houser's individual record [illegible]. Keeble captured 120 high hurdles, second in the low hurdles and fourth in Broad jump and fourth in the javelin.

Jimmy Draper, the Georgetown, Texas, youth who bummed his way 1,000 miles to compete in the meet, was set back for a false start and failed to place in the century.

WEAK EYES NO HANDICAP TO GEO. TOPOCER

Double Lenses Are Necessary to Shortstop

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 26.—Despite the fact that his sight is so weak he is compelled to wear double lens spectacles while playing, the heaving batting and brilliant fielding of George Toporcer, recruit shortstop, has been a feature of the playing of the St. Louis Nationals so far this season.

"Specs" Toporcer has jumped into the lead in batting in the National league, and from present indications intends to hold it, as he is continuing on his hitting rampage. Several home runs are included in his list of extra base hits.

Coming to the locals from the Syracuse International league club last year, he did not have much of an opportunity to show what he could do, as he played in only a few games. He fielded well, but seemed weak with the willow.

The illness of the regular shortstop, John Lavan, this spring gave Toporcer his chance, and, according to the playing statistics, he has made the most of it. Doubt is expressed in sporting circles that Lavan will be able to win his old job back when he recovers, as Toporcer has made a hit with the local fans.

Branch Rickey, manager of the Cardinals, said he believed that Toporcer, who has shown a great improvement over his ability of last year, would continue his present gait and become a star in company with his teammate, Rogers Hornsby, second baseman, and "$25,000 beauty of the National league." The Cardinal manager belittled assertions that Toporcer's present showing was only a flash.

Toporcer and Lee Meadows, pitcher for the Philadelphia Nationals and a former Cardinal, are the only two players in the major leagues or probably in professional baseball that wear glasses while playing.

RUTGERS STARS GET TOO MANY HONORS

Undergraduate greatness is limited at Rutgers. Under a new point system there no man can acquire honors, offices or enter into campus activities that will take him beyond a maximum of fifteen tallies. The plan was suggested to prevent a repetition of a situation that arose this year when Paul Duffy, football and all-around star, was so over-burdened with responsibilities that he was hard pressed to find any time for scholastic work or rest.

GOLDING LOSES TO TITLE MAN

Dexter Wins In Finals

By Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, May 27.—Charles Dexter of Dallas, state golf champion of 1921, defeated Dudley Golding of Wichita Falls in the finals of the sixteenth annual tournament of the Texas Golf association at Rivercrest Country club Saturday, 1 up in a 36-hole match that ended only after Dexter sunk a birdie three on the eighteenth hole in the afternoon round, while Golding missed an easy putt for a four.

Dexter was one down when the morning eighteen ended, Golding's long game and greens work being brilliant throughout the forenoon, while his opponent was off on his approach shots and his putts.

Dexter started driving accurately in the afternoon, and although beaten on his tee shots, his putting was deadly, the two-time champion missing but one stroke on the greens during the last 18.

Golding made a great try after being four down when they drove for the twelfth hole. The Wichita Falls player won three holes and Dexter was only one up when they reached 16.

Cochran Wins Consolation

Dudley halved this hole with a long putt for a four, but Charlie lucked out when he managed to get an even break after a bad drive on 17 and then won on the home hole.

Tom Cochran of Wichita Falls defeated Sam Hogsett of Fort Worth in the first flight consolation.

WICHITA HEADS SCHOOL STRING

Farmers Purchase Commercial College

Purchase of the National School of Business in this city by Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Farmer, head of a string of business colleges in Texas for the past 16 years, was announced Saturday. Wichita Falls will become headquarters for the string. Several additions to the faculty of the local school and an enlargement of its facilities are planned by the new owners.

Lease on one of the largest available buildings here will be closed during the next week, according to the announcement, and the school soon moved to a new home.

Mrs. Farmer, who has long been a co-worker with her husband, is an enthusiast for business education for women and girls. The self-supporting girls' need for a business education is self apparent, she says, and declares that it is no less a necessity for the property holding girl, or the girl who is to be prepared for any eventuality which life may bring.

Hotpoint

The most celebrated Iron in the world ~

MANY a woman can still remember the thrill that came over her when she first handled a Hotpoint Electric Iron.

Not that she had never seen or heard of electric irons before. There were already several irons on the market.

But here was an electric iron made for ironing.

Not a device or novelty to be bought and laid aside—but a housekeeping tool to use.

The first electric iron with a point even hotter than the rest of the iron.

Three More Notable Features of the Hotpoint Iron

The Hinged Plug Cord Protector
Does away with most of the jerk, bending and breaking of the cord.

The strength-saving Cantilever Handle
Lessens the strain, and makes ironing easier than you ever thought it could be.

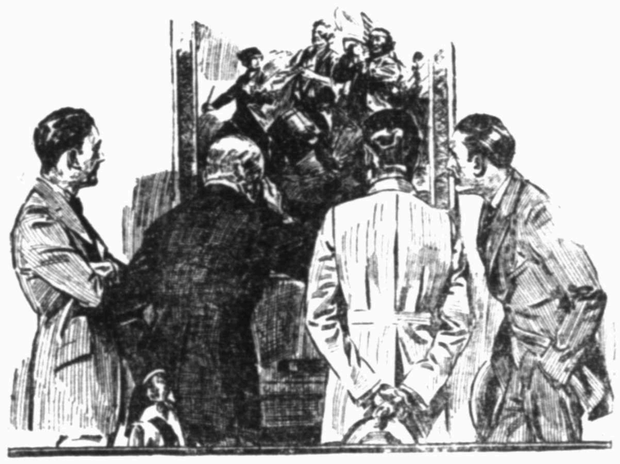

The Attached Stand
One simply tilts the iron back on its heel, instead of lifting it to and from the old-fashioned iron stand—a saving of many hundreds of pounds of lifting in a day's ironing.

MARRS TALKS TO TRUSTEES HERE

Candidate Attends at School Meeting

"The child is not a good reader unless he reads a great deal.

"You trustees are not familiar with many men unless you are acquainted with a number of them. And thus it is with the children in our country school house."

Those were the opening remarks of S. M. N. Marrs, candidate for the office of state superintendent, who addressed 35 Wichita county school trustees, at the court house Saturday afternoon, in a get-together arranged by County Superintendent Bryant.

The basis of any school system is its financial support, the speaker asserted, but the essential part of the school, and especially the country institution is the teacher.

"The teacher should be the community leader," he said. "We should look after his or her interests more; find better places for them to board and live, and they should be brought into the lives of the communities in which they live as the leaders, for they mould the lives of the children they teach."

Mr. Marrs deplored the condition of tutelage in Texas, and stated that approximately 32 per cent of the teachers in the state are second grade certificate holders rather than first grade holders.

"The standard ought to be raised," he said. "There is only one county in the state of Texas that has no second-grade certificate holders as teachers, so far as I know, and that is Taylor county. Abilene is the big city in that county, and throughout all the districts they have an excellent system of schools."

One of the greatest mistakes in the country school, Mr. Marrs averred, is the negligence of drill on the elementary subjects. Superfluous studies hold sway as a rule, he pointed out.

"The schools are organized for the child, and they should work to help him; every school district is a corporation, and the citizens within that district should pull for their corporation. If any trustee had an interest in a bank as a stockholder or director, he wouldn't go about the streets knocking that corporation; and it should be the same with our country schools."

The speaker asserted that there is too much power from Austin exerted over the district, and that this power should be transformed and invested in the county.

That the day of the 16-year-old teacher is passed was the opinion of Mr. Marrs. Henceforward, teacher must be over the age of 18, or will not be acceptable on the staff.

The visitor explained the reason for the lowering of the per capita state apportionment, ascribing them to reductions in the state legislature's bills. The $13 per child that will be received this year, however, he said, should be applied to the debts and needs of 1922. Next year, he predicted, the state apportionment resulting from legislative appropriations will be around $10 per capita.

Mr. Marrs explained the illegality of making contracts on future apportionments, and stated that such practice was folly, in view of the fact that the appropriations are liable to be lowered at any time.

"Texas has more students attending college than any other state in the union," he said in conclusion. "And this is partially due to the system of examinations instituted by the state department of education which has so arranged that the country student who does not attend the city school can take an examination the second week of May and get his credits that will be accepted at college.

"There were less than 240 students the first year to take advantage of the ruling, but this year there were more than 2,000 who applied."

Mr. Marrs departed for Iowa Park soon after his address here.

Kiwanians Threaten Laurels of Poets

Poet laureates of all the lands stand a good chance to lose their jobs this week.

Officials of the Kiwanis club have declared Monday official rhyme day of the Wichita Falls organization, and poets who hide behind merchants' clothing, but who are in reality famous composers will vie with one another in rendering compositions.

One Kiwanian is so enthused over his ability to compose poems that he has submitted the following verse, suggesting that former bootleggers, thieves, etc., follow his example:

"There once lived a corn-mash mixer
Who distilled a delightful elixir;
"His wife threw a fit
"Because he got lit,
So he walked up behind'er and kicked'er."

Every Kiwanian is supposed to bring something better than this one has already written, it is announced.

The meeting this week will be held at the Community house on the north side of the Wichita river. Miss Vivian Bailey, violinist, Glen J. Duffy, pianist, and M. E. Ellis, cellist—known as the Spring Trio—will furnish entertainment.

Bob-Haired, Gum Chewing, Painted Teacher Is Thing Of Past, School Man Tells Cheering County Trustees

That the day of the bob-haired, gum-chewing, painted girl below the age of 18 as a school teacher is a thing of the past was the statement of S. H. Davis, speaking before a gathering of Wichita county trustees Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Mr. Davis stated that in his surveys over the state of Texas, he has found occasionally a person on the staff of some school that should not be there.

"I refuse to call them school teachers," he said. "They're just on the teaching staff—that's all."

Trustees, county trustees especially, he said, are likely to be fooled once in a while in getting an instructor, but as a rule, they are never fooled the second time.

He said that the county trustee should be especially careful in buying school supplies, and warned them against shrewd salesmen who would dispose of anything that the trustees might buy. The speaker suggested that the best method to pursue in purchasing books, globes, charts, and other essential supplies is to query the county superintendent, who, as a rule, is in close touch with the best things to buy for the school house.

Thirty-five interested trustees cheered the speaker when he had concluded. Mr. Davis made a hurried departure to catch a train out of the city.

Hill Crest country club members Friday night participated in an old fashioned barn dance in their club house west of town, and Si, Hiram and Mollie were there in force to add a real rural touch to the event. Clever invitations, issued on brown paper and curiously misspelled, were sent to members, and quaint programs were provided. In the center of the ball room was placed a hay stack from which several pitch-forks protruded. Bales of hay were placed entirely around the walls of the rooms for guests to sit upon. Shocks of wheat decorated each mantle piece.

On the broad veranda were ceiling swings, and in one corner a well with its bucket from which pink lemonade was served. Lights in the house were artistically draped with colored paper or hung with Japanese lanterns. An out-of-town orchestra furnished music and guests attended in costume.

Mrs. Walter L. Ferguson entertained her Sunday school class of the Methodist church Wednesday afternoon with a picnic in Allingham park. The class, which christened itself "The Willing Workers" at that meeting, spent a delightful afternoon playing games among the green trees and shrubbery. A delicious picnic luncheon was spread late in the afternoon to the following little folk: Rebecca Gallaway, Eva Mae Burns, Frances Brown, Verneith Brown, Louise Brown, Loraine Farley and Mrs. Walter L. Ferguson, teacher of the class.

Miss Loraine Brunson was hostess Saturday afternoon to the T. G. Bridge club at her home on West Paradise street. After cards those present were served delicious refreshments in two courses. Guests other than members were Misses Hazel McElroy and Mary Hope Westbrook. High score was won by Miss Ruth Walker.

Mrs. H. D. Hockersmith entertained Monday afternoon with a matinee party for her niece, Miss Evelyn Kizzair of Floydada. The guests were served punch at the home of the hostess before attending a local picture show. After the performance the party was served an ice course at a local confectionery store. Mrs. J. V. Townsend was hostess to the Thursday Bridge club Thursday afternoon at her home on West Wilbarger street. The afternoon was spent playing bridge. Guests other than club members were Mrs. S. W. Bailey, Mrs. E. L. Dohoney, Mrs. Clara Stephens White, Mrs. Joe Napier, and Miss Lillian Murchison. A salad course was served.

Carl Pitts of Wichita Falls is here visiting relatives.

Lee Moreland of Electra was in Vernon Wednesday.

Miss Helen Vaughn of Dallas is visiting her sister, Mrs. E. C. Christian.

Miss Ruth Carney, who has been teaching in Wichita county, returned home Sunday to spend her vacation.

Car Pushes Man Through Window

While attempting to crank his car in front of the Dodge motor sales room early Saturday night, a young man named Garrett suffered painful injuries. The car had been left in gear, and as Garrett started the motor the car jumped forward, forcing him through the heavy plate glass front. The car did not go through the window, but as the glass fell, the young man suffered severe cuts around the legs.

Garrett was rushed to a hospital for treatment. He gave an address on Bluff street as his home address.

Gulf Officials Make Survey Here

Headed by Underwood Nazro, second vice-president, and head of the Gulf organization in Texas, a party of Gulf officials arrived Saturday morning in their special Pullman, to make a seasonal survey of the Wichita county properties of the company. The party included a number of Oklahoma and Louisiana officials, the Oklahoma company being the Gypsy.

The train, which arrived over the Katy, departed yesterday afternoon for Fort Worth, Ranger and other points, where the officials will inspect oil fields. From the Texas points, the officials will journey on into Louisiana, continuing their tour of inspection in the Homer fields.

The M., K. & T. railway got the special Pullman at Frederick, Okla., the party having started out from Tulsa.

Divorce Cases to Front Saturday

Divorce suits occupied the attention of Judge P. A. Martin in the 30th district court Saturday, one being granted during the day.

Bennie Ellis was granted a divorce from D. I. Ellis, on the grounds of cruel treatment and infidelity, alleged by the plaintiff.

Minnie Lucas was granted an injunction against her husband, Webb Lucas, against whom she has entered suit for a divorce. The injunction granted the plaintiff custody of a son, gave her $30 a month alimony and ordered her husband not to approach her under the influence of intoxicating liquors.

In granting the injunction and giving the woman custody of the son, one of five children, Judge Martin averred that there should be institutions to take care of the children of divorced persons, in order that they might all be kept together. The judge declared that "it appears neither the plaintiff nor the defendant are able to care for the children in this case."

LOCAL POLICE GET CHICKEN THIEVES HERE

Maintaining the good record made under the direction of Police Chief J. W. McCormick, two men giving the names of Helms and Davis were captured here by local police and carried back to Archer City Friday afternoon, where they must answer charges of chicken thefts.

Reports reached here early Friday morning, according to the officers, stating that chicken thieves were headed this way. Two officers were dispatched to the lake to watch for them.

Late Friday afternoon at 6 o'clock, a Ford truck appeared coming down the road, the officers relate, and when the two men who rode in it were accosted and asked what they had in the truck, one of them is said to have replied "chickens."

The officers placed them under arrest, brought them to the city hall, and they were later identified by Sheriff Joe McDonald of Archer City, who also identified 31 chickens the men had in their truck.

30-30 rifle and a .38 Saturday Night Special was in the car.

Millionaire Freed Again in Murder

By Associated Press.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 27.—Walter S. Ward, wealthy baker, who has confessed to killing Clarence Peters, former navy man, regained his freedom this afternoon.

After two nights in jail he was released under $50,000 bail. Two more anonymous letters came into District Attorney Weeks's office today. The one he considered most important, however, was from the same man who wrote earlier in the week, saying he could give information about Ward. The district attorney would not say what the second letter contained.

Mr. Weeks said experts were examining bits of glass found at the Ward home. There was a hole through one piece, and the experts, Mr. Weeks said, were seeking to determine whether it was made with a revolver bullet.

By Associated Press.

TUCSON, Ariz., May 27.—After deliberating 15 minutes the jury in the case of Paul V. Hadley, alias William S. Estaver, returned a verdict late today of first degree murder and recommended that the death penalty be imposed. Judge Samuel Pattee will sentence the prisoner Saturday, June 3.

Hadley has been identified as an escaped life termer from the Oklahoma state penitentiary.

Hadley was charged with the murder of Mrs. Anna C. Johnson of Denver, who was slain in an automobile on a lonely road near here Nov. 15, 1921.

CONTINENTAL SUPPLY OVERHAULING STORE

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, May 27.—The Continental Supply company, who purchased the interests of the Federal Supply company the last week, is now rapidly completing the overhauling of their new store on Main street. The building which was once occupied by the Famous Grocery company has been thoroughly remodeled from front to back and new shelving and fixtures built into the walls.

D. H. Schaffer, who was appointed local agent of the company, has been transferred to the Mexia district and E. H. Hooker, formerly of Burkburnett is taking his place in this district.

Dallas Investigating Burning of Church

By Associated Press.

DALLAS, May 27.—Police are investigating the destruction by fire last night of a negro church, completed yesterday at Thomas and Bell streets. White residents in that vicinity recently protested against the erection of a negro church there. Firemen found an empty five-gallon oil can in the ruins. The building cost about $3,000.

ELECTRA VETERANS TO DECORATE GRAVES

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, May 27.—Local service men are planning to decorate the graves of their comrades at the cemetery next Tuesday. Post Commander Barr has issued a call for all the service men to appear at the Grand theater in uniform Tuesday at 1:30 to start the march to the cemetery.

The local legion post has also started a movement to provide the cemetery with a new fence. The boys have already selected an ornamental iron fence with high arch gateway and propose to raise the $1,000 necessary for the purpose with a tag day and general solicitation of funds.

Gulf to Drill On Dale Ranch

The Gulf Production company is preparing to drill a deep test on the E. A. Dale ranch, nine miles north of Electra. The derrick was erected this past week, and cable tools are being rigged. The test will be made to 3,000 feet, or deeper, if necessary, it is understood.

The territory north of the Electra pool, and west of the northwest Burkburnett extensions along Red river, has been the scene of several scattered tests within the past two years, with sufficient showings to make a new test well worth watching.

Uses of Ice

REFRIGERATION OF FOOD

In a well filled ice box food is not only kept cold, but is protected from insects, germs, dust, etc.

TABLE USE

During the hot weather, use a little cracked ice on the table to keep the butter hard, the salad or fresh vegetables crisp. Many frozen dainties are possible for dessert if you take ice.

SUMMER DRINKS

A meal on a warm day is more appetizing when the drinking water is cool, or when ice tea is served. Ice cold lemonade or limeade is very refreshing on a warm afternoon.

WHEAT BREAKS DURING CLOSE

Corn and Oats Are Firm

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 27.—Liquidation in May wheat toward the close of the short session today when selling by commission houses that took wheat in on deliveries caused a break to the lowest price of the month. Buying of May and selling of July by a big elevator concern was a supporting factor in the May, the difference between these two months showing slight. May finished 3-4 to 1 1-2 lower, May $1.2 41-2 to 1.24 3-4 while the deferred deliveries show a net gain of 1 3-8c to 3-4c with July $1.22 1-2 to $1.22 5-8; corn was 1-4 lower to 1 4c higher, oats unchanged to 1-4c off, while provisions ranged from 5c decline to $2.50 advance the latter gain being in pork.

Corn and oats showed a rather firm undertone and averaged slightly higher with the forecast for wet and cooler weather a factor in influencing the buying of corn.

Provisions were firmer in sympathy with hogs.

QUOTED VALUES LOSE GROUND

Quotations on Rails Change Little

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 27.—Quoted values of stocks and bonds lost ground in the first half of the week but later more than made up their losses on increased operations and extensive short covering. The recovery proved astonishing in the face of stiffer money conditions, due largely to the heavy expansion of credits at local banks.

Call loans rose to 5 per cent and time funds were less freely supplied for all but prime commercial paper. Most other economic and technical factors favored the rebound of prices. The horizontal freight rate reduction ordered by the interstate commerce commission was without seeming adverse effect.

Quotations on investment rails changed little and the strength of low priced or secondary issues, as exemplified by New Haven, Erie and almost a score of the western and southwestern groups, hit new high records for the year or even further back.

Resumption of dividends on "Big Four" common and increased dividends disbursements by several utility and special industrial companies, including North American and computing tabulating recording, testified to the further revival of trade and transportation.

In the commodity markets, prices of some finished steel and iron products were advanced, coppers showed greater firmness, crude oil quotations were again elevated and the American Woolen company announced higher prices for its products. The steady rise of raw and refined sugars accompanied the extraordinary "comeback" in that industry.

Rumors of mergers of various commercial, industrial and railway interests again flew. It was assumed, however, that such projects would remain in abeyance pending the government's pronouncement regarding the proposed steel mergers.

Pessimistic views expressed in foreign banking circles after adjournment of the Genoa conference were not reflected in the movements of international currencies. Leading American financial interests believed Germany would accept the terms laid down by the reparations commission, thereby paving the way to a large international loan.

COTTON GAINS 5 TO 19 POINTS

Prices React After Advance

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 27.—Further advances were checked by releasing for over the week-end in the cotton market today and after selling at $20.73, or 2 9points net higher, October closed at $20.63 with the general market closing barely steady at a net advance of 5 to 19 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 12 to 23 points on a continuation of yesterday's buying movement, which was encouraged by bullish spot advices and apprehensions of unsettled weather in the south over the week-end. After showing net advances of some 15 to 29 points, prices reacted several points under realizing but firmed up again following the publication of the weather map which seemed to strengthen the private predictions of unsettled weather. July contracts sold up to $21.09 and December to $20.33, making net gains of some 20 to 29 points on the active positions.

Replies to a questionnaire sent out by a prominent association of southern cotton men are said to indicate an acreage of 33,000,000, a crop condition as of May 22, of 68 and point to an indicated crop of only 8,500,000 bales. A local authority says the condition of the crop in Tennessee is well above last year's; that the season in Arkansas is from 15 to 20 days late and that conditions in Florida and Missouri are favorable.

OILS AND STEEL GUIDE STOCKS

Mex Petroleum in Spotlight

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 27.—Oils, steels, motors, tobaccos and chemicals propelled today's brief but active and strong stock market session.

Those groups were mainly represented by Mexican petroleum and several domestic oils, as well as republic iron, Studebaker, Kelly-Springfield tire, Mack trucks, American Sumatra tobacco, Tobacco products common and preferred Industrial alcohol, Davison Chemical, Famous Players and Coca-Cola.

The recent demand for rails fell off markedly, dealings centering in Lake Erie and Western comon and preferred, Reading second preferred and several less prominent grangers and coalers.

Extreme gains of 1 to almost 5 points were subjected to the usual profittaking movement, but the list closed with a strong tone, short covering continuing to the end. Total sales amounted to 70,00 shares.

Loans of local banks again expanded during the week by a little more than $9,000,000, but reserves of members at the federal reserve bank increased almost $15,000,000, effacing a large part of the preceding week's decrease. The actual cash gain of about $13,000,000 increased excess reserves to slightly more than $18,600,000.

The attitude of the reparations commission toward Germany failed to unsettle the foreign exchange list. In fact, bills on Berlin strengthened. The British rate held firm and allied bills showed moderate gains. Central European quotations continued to ease, however, and far eastern remittances were featured by the weakness of China exchange.

Weekly reviews of general business conditions emphasized improvement in crop prospects and wider distribution of merchandise. Announcement of further advances in wool fabrics by the American woolen company denoted the stronger tone of the textile market.

POLICE PLACE MANY ON JOBS

City Employment is Permanent Feature

Employment agency service by the city police department has come to stay in Wichita Falls, city officials declared Saturday morning.

The bureau has proven a success, it was stated emphatically. The efforts it has had in determining the ultimate punishment to be meted out to criminals have been excellent, officers pointed out.

Less than two weeks old, the bureau has been directly responsible for over 200 men going to work—men who were formerly idle, and a large number of which were considered vagrants, as well as many who had been unable to locate work.

Another noticeable result of the bureau's work is shown in the number and kinds of cases which now appear in the police court. For the past several days the court, headed by Judge Townsend, has held in session less than a half hour each day, while the larger percentage of cases now arraigned before the judge are traffic violations. Fewer vag, disturbance of the peace, affray and drunk cases have been on the docket during the last week than ever in the history of the court.

It has all been ascribed to the fact that the bureau, backed up by a coterie of law-enforcing officers, have taken upon their shoulders the responsibility of ridding Wichita Falls of vagrants. They have worked on the theory, according to city officials, that the vagrant is largely responsible for all kinds of other law violations, even leading to thievery and burglary.

Officers in charge of the bureau announced Saturday that calls are coming into the department constantly for more help. Yesterday calls for a woman housekeeper, a man and woman to run a farm, four men to work at the general hospital and a number of Mexicans to dig at the dam were received.

Officer Louis Hargrove stated that since the bureau has been working 15 M[illegible] have been given employment, 92 negroes and over 100 white men. [illegible]

DE MOLAY TEAM MAKES BIG HIT

Officers Named For Third Quarter

The De Molay degree team of Hope chapter, Order of De Molay for Boys, made a great hit with the Shriners at the recent ceremonial when they conferred the De Molay degree as an entertainment feature on the regular Shrine program.

At a regular session of Hope chapter, held last week, the following officers were elected to serve during the third quarter of this year:

Preceptors, Clyde Wofford, Charles Cook, Christopher Kitt, Wayne Gillespie, Polly Clark, Ridley Maples, John Akin.

The new officers will be installed at the next regular meeting of the order on Thursday, June 8.

Hope chapter was instituted on March 1, and at the present time has a membership of 125.

The next ceremonial will be held on or about June 11, at which time it is hoped to have a large class of candidates. The work will be conferred at the Shrine auditorium at Call Field. Following the regular initiatory work of the Order of De Molay, a special third degree has been prepared and will be conferred on the new class.

Master Masons', sons and their chums between the ages of 16 and 20 are eligible for membership in this order.

GET TEN BIG ACTS FOR SHRINE CIRCUS

The Shrine circus to be held at Athletic park from July 1 to 8 will be the big event of the season for Wichita Falls. Ten big circus acts have been booked by Robert E. Morton of the American Expositions association, all of which are high class attractions. Mr. Morton will come to Wichita Falls on June 1 to start an extensive advertising campaign in Wichita county and northwest Texas.

A circus recently held by Hella temple of Dallas drew larger crowds than any attraction that has ever been held in Dallas for a number of years. Several people from Wichita Falls attended the Dallas circus and were very highly pleased.

The first Shrine circus advertising will be distributed to the nobility of Maskat temple sometime during the present week.

All of the attractions and concessions will be handled by Shriners wearing the red fez. There will be no outside people with the circus, except the actual performers.

START TO BUILD NEW LINE JULY 1

Kell Makes Contract With Waurikans

Construction on the Byers-Waurika rail extension will begin about July 1, and will be completed in approximately five months from that time, or around November 1. This developed Saturday at a conference of Waurika business men with Frank Kell here, at which time the right of way contract on the Oklahoma end of the project was entered into.

The contract calls for delivery of the right of way title to Mr. Kell and associates within 30 days of June 1, and the beginning of construction on the line at approximately the same time.

The bridging of Red river—the obstacle which has held off the building of the line by other railroads or railroad men for many years, and until Mr. Kell decided that he and associates would build the line themselves—will take the greater part of the five months time. The laying of the additional track is a comparatively small item in the project. The building of the project, with the expensive bridge, was made possible by permission from the interstate commerce commission for the new line to retain its excess earnings.

The Waurika party here Saturday included P. F. Dawson, R. R. Pruitt, D. M. Bridges, C. G. Stewart and J. L. Morgan. The right of way is in good shape, the party reported, and condemnation proceedings, if necessary at all, will be required only on one small strip.

Your health depends upon the food you eat

MOST food is in good condition when delivered to the housewife. The meat, milk, eggs and butter have come directly from cold storage. How cold she keeps it in the house is the big question. An ice box is indispensable; you cannot keep food safely in the cellar or outdoors. The air is too impure and even in early Spring it is too changeable; mild days follow cold ones and start decay in perishable food. A steady, dry cold is necessary.

When food gets stale

it not only loses its appetizing flavor; it loses in nourishment, long before it tastes badly enough to throw away.

Guard the health of your family—especially of your young children—by taking ice regularly the year 'round.

WICHITANS TO HONOR WAR HEROES

They Don't Fall For Bathing Suits Here

IT'S WHAT'S IN 'EM THESE DAYS

Reporter Finds Out Latest Styles

By The Girl Reporter.

"Mother, may I go out to swim?
Yes my darling daughter.
Don your embroidered bathing suit,
And don't go near the water."

So the gorgeousness of the 1922 model, high powered bathing suits, would inspire a careful thoughtful mother to chant. Honest they are most peachy, enticing enough when displayed in shop windows, but filled with some 120, 130, or perhaps more pounds of femininity, uh-huh, I don't mean mebbe.

The bathing suits nearly overshadow the bathing girls this year, a visit to Wichita Falls pools and natatoriums shows.

Time was when all a bathing suit had to be was nothing much, to attract attention. Then along came the flapper movement, making knees and anatomy in general no treat to the public, and nearly bankrupting Flo Zeigfeld and his brethren.

Now a bathing suit must offer something else besides a display of plump calves and dimpled knees. Art enters.

Butterflies, birds, fruits, flowers, in color and shape such as never before were seen on land or sea, blossom forth to beautify the abbreviated garments of silk or jersey.

And with the additional adornments, there has come something of a return to the old fashioned bathing suit, which existed in the days when ears were uncovered and knees vice versa. There's more to the bathing suits this year.

Shoes and stockings are coming back in style, particularly for the dress parade, and there's a certain amount of this at every pool. Those who go in however, for swimming, diving et cetera, still have their little pink toes unhampered. Nor do they appear to be caring a great deal about having corsage bouquets, embroidered or appliqued on their jersey suits, these serious swimmers, who have started this early to acquire a beautiful coat of tan (that is after it blisters and peels several weeks).

But those other girls, who have to learn to swim every season, and some times several times a season, for them was devised the water proof rouge that Wichita Falls beauty parors are now making a leader, the water proof marcel, the lip stick that won't run, and the rubber vanities.

It's going to be a gay season, mates at the country club, the various parks and natatoriums—and it's already a great season at the ol' swimming hole. Ask the next freckled faced, barefoot youngster with a stone bruise on his heel you see, if it isn't.

KROWELDEEN CLUB MEETS TO SEW

Special to the Record News.

BURKBURNETT, May 27.—The Krowelden club met in regular session Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Floyd McCutcheon, where the hours passed in pleasant informal contests of a social nature and sewing. A dainty refreshment course was served to the following in attendance: Mesdames J. M. Pogue, Jon E. Haynes, W. R. Hill, Rex Smith, W. T. Algood, Nate Ensor, W. T. Snicer, JoeDavis, O. C. Fisher, R. Strand Books Big Picture Next Week

If advance press notices are to be relied upon, local theater goers have a rare treat in store for them next week, when they will be afforded of seeing D. W. Griffith's latest masterpiece, "Ohphans of the Storm."

"Orphans of the Storm" has just finished a most successful engagement at the Majestic theater in Dallas. According to Manager Day of the Strand, the Dallas theater took in $35,000.00 gross receipts and has engaged the attraction for a return indefinite engagement as soon as it's local schedule has been concluded.

COMMUNITY TO APPEAR IN CAST

"Midsummer Dream" Produced June 1

Wichita Falls' Community theater, only a few months old in it's enlarged form, and less than a year old as the Studio Players, which formed the nucleus of the community organization, will come to full flower on June 1 and 2, when "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be presented, at the Wichita theater, to close the year's work.

The cast of characters ranges from mature business men to newsboys and includes society folks and high school and college students, and is said by the directors to be the most thoroughly representative of any production ever staged of Wichita Falls talent. The community idea is splendidly carried out in this wide assortment of characters. "A Midsummer Night's Dream" being particularly adapted to a large and varied cast, with an opportunity for all sorts of tastes and talents to be displayed.

Many Features.

As staged by the Wichita Falls Community theater, this forerunner of the musical comedy of modern days, will have many attractive features. There will be several dance numbers, of particular beauty, a part of the fairy court, which is interwoven with the plot of the play. There will be special music also, under the direction of Mrs. Louella B. Thompson, a special male chorus, and sextette of women singers, being announced. Miss Annette Walsh will supply the incidental musical accompaniment.

C. J. Templeton will be in charge of the orchestra for this presentation.

Costumes Ordered.

Mrs. F. L. Fulton, director of the Community theater, has directed the dances and the straight dramatic portions. Miss Bruce Dickson has had the direction of the comedians, in addition to the business management.

Harry Baum is chairman of the ticket sale, and is assisting Miss Dickson in other business details.

Costumes of particular elaborateness have been ordered from a Chicago theaterical supply house, insuring correct costuming in every item. Some of the costumes are being created locally, after copies of old engravings from scenes of presentations of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" during Shakespeare's day. These prints were the "find" of Joe Marlow, one of the comedians, who has been also giving other assistance in the staging of the production. Burlap, as a modern substitute for the old rough homespun, is being utilized for the garments of the workmen, to offer contrast to the dainty robes of the patrician women of the cast, the gossamer attire of the fairy court, and the elegance of the noblemen's executive board. Mrs. L. H. Hoffman is chairman of costumes.

Real Trees.

Forest trees, real ones, brought in from the woods on the afternoon of the presentation, will provide a natural and artistic background for the woodland scenes. Other settings will be thoroughly in keeping with the time

GIRL WANTS TO KNOW IF MEN FALL FOR FLAPS

"Haven't Other Girls Got a Chance?" She Asks

The phone in the editorial department of the Record News gave vent to an impatient ring.

A busy reporter who was pounding out his daily "copy" ceased his work and rushed over to the phone desk.

"Buzz-z-z-ip!" the ring continued in his ear as he placed the receiver to his head.

"All right, all right—what is it? Yes, yes, this is the Record News office, editorial department.

"What is it?"

"Yes, yes—this is a reporter speaking.

"Sunday? Yes, I wrotte some of the stories Sunday. Which one do you refer to?

"Flappers? Huh—I guess you've got the wrong man, Miss.

"Don't make any difference, you say?

"All right—shoot?

"Information? Yes, I might be able to give you information."

There came a pause on the line—seemingly central had changed the connection.

"Hello, hello—hello—oh, there you are—I thought I had lost you."

From the other end of the line where a sweet feminine voice had been chattering an endless chain of questions came the frustrated inquiry:

"Mr. Reporter, can you answer me a question?"

"I'll try," was what she heard.

"Then—I want to know whether a girl has to be a flapper in Wichita Falls to get married?"

A long pause followed. The reporter seemed to be scratching his head in great amazement. Truly, he was dumbfounded. Surely he had misunderstood the sweet young thing.

"Please Ma'm—did you-er, er, a—I beg pardon, but I think I misunderstood what you asked."

Impatiently came the statement buzzing over the phone wires a second time:

"I want to know whether a girl has to be a flapper in Wichita Falls to get a husband?"

The reporter chuckled to himself; no, he hadn't been mistaken—he was just "knocked for a goul—that's all."

"Well, Miss," he drawled after several minutes of silence had trotted on down in history, "I—I, er, I'm sure that one does not. If I could see you in person—possibly, or—er, probably if you'll call a little later—"

"But, Mr. Reporter—I'd like to know now; I've been reading all those stories about the flappers. I think they're keen—but, they ought to give both sides—there's another side to that question.

"The girls are not all flappers. If the boys are crazy about flappers only, I wanted to know, for any other kind of a girl wouldn't seemingly have a chance in that case.

"I think it's only fair that us girls have a chance to express our sentiments. Now, take the working girls—if they don't doll up and look attractive, they can't sell much goods—"

"Yes, yes—go on," interrupted the reporter who had completely forgotten that important notes lay on his desk, and that less than 12 hours away he must turn in his daily "run." How sweet that voice over the wires sounded anyway. What the devil did HE care for work just now. Gee! that was a marvelous voice as it sang out "them sweet scented words" over the phone. "That must be an angel on the other end of the line," he muttered to himself.

"I want to say that the girls don't do the way they do just for the fun of it; they don't paint, and powder and wear short dresses and grab after the snappiest, most chic styles, and roll their eyes, and——"

"Yes?" the reporter nervously interrupted again. The young thing at the other end of the line was doing what the reporter had often heard the audience shout when a candidate for office was making his whirlwind tour of the state—she was literally "pouring it on 'em."

"Yes," she snapped back over the wire. "I say they don't; what did you say?"

"I—I beg pardon, Miss—I was just gettin' interested."

"And they wouldn't wear HALF the garb they do wear sometimes if

PLAYGROUND OF SOUTHWEST TO SPRING UP HERE

Irrigation Lake to Offer Water Sports

Put Lake George, that wonder summer playfround of the New Yorkers, down in this rather lakeless southwest.

Wouldn't the swimming, boating, sailing and fishing afforded by this great summer playground draw a riot of visitors through all this southwest? Wichitans think it will.

And that is exactly what the big lake impounded by the irrigation storage dam will provide—a lake, not quite as big in area as the noted Lake George, but with a volume of water in it which would make Lake George look just like a pond—and right at the door of the residents of Wichita, Wilbarger, Archer and Baylor and surrounding counties. Covering an area of approximately 30 square miles, and containing eight times the volume of water that the famous New York resort holds—the water covering the approximately 30 square miles to an average depth of 25 feet.

This, then, is the lake which is expected to be the great inland summer playground of the southwest, pulling visitors from the mountains and the seashore for their summer sport from all sections of Texas and surrounding states.

The largest lake in Texas—more than ten times the size of its nearest rival, Lake Worth, which in comparison rather assumes the proportions of a railroad water tank, any kind of water sport will be available to visitors. Boating—smaller boating will have motor and sail boating to compete with them for favor, while the deep fresh water fishing and duck hunting will no doubt attract a horde of visitors from all sections of the country—the south during the summer months and from the north during the winter.

Wichitans have realized in a vague way that the pleasure resort which would be created on the big lake would be a feature second only to the value of the increased water supply and the irrigation for the farm lands.

But they have far from appreciated the importance of the shores of the big lake as a playground.

The people of Seymour—one of the most progressive of the northwest Texas communities—have not been so backward about recognizing the value of this feature. They have from the first appreciated the importance to Seymour and made plans to benefit from this feature.

Waggoner Opposes Fishing

It is true that W. T. Waggoner in selling the land on which the lake will be located, declared that there would be no boating or fishing if he had to hire rangers to accomplish it—but this fact has not been taken seriously into consideration in the discussion of the plans. First, the lake lying entirely in Baylor county, Baylor countians could condemn a public road all around it, of sufficient dimensions to permit the development of a summer resort on its shores. Or the next legislature could so change existing laws as to permit the condemnation for public park purposes. Mr. Waggoner, realising on the value of the land, might sell off sites adjacent to the shore. Or Baylor countians, who assess taxes on a vast amount of Waggoner lands, might take cognizance of the increased valuation of the abutting lands as to make it worth Mr. Waggoner's while to sell. There are a

STORAGE VAULT FOR FURS HERE

Other Units Added To Local Plant

Wichita Falls' women who have been forced to send their fur coats, scarfs and fur trimmed garments out of the city for storage during the summer have been pleased to learn that this week the first fur storage in West Texas has been opened for business.

This fur storage vault is a part of the new storage unit which the People's Ice company has just added to their east side plant. There is ample capacity in the fur storage vault, where the temperature is kept always below 30, for several hundred thousand dollars worth of furs, sufficient to accommodate Wichita Falls and neighboring cities and towns.

In addition to the fur storage, storage vaults to accommodate produce houses, packing house representatives and hotels have been completed and are already in operation.

The egg storage vault will hold 4,000 cases of eggs, or 120,000 dozen of eggs.

Methodist Bishops Have Relatives Here

Election of two of the five bishops recently elected by the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, was of particular interest in at least one Wichita Falls home, for two of the five were relatives of the members of that home. That home is the home of R. D. Kennedy, a first cousin of the recently ordained Bishop Sam R. Hay, former Houston pastor, while Mrs. Kennedy is a second cousin of Bishop Dobbs.

The news was particularly interesting to Mrs. D. C. Kennedy, mother of R. D. Kennedy, who was on a visit to her son at the time the news was received. Mrs. Kennedy, who is now 82 years of age, is very active and took a close interest in the proceedings of the conference.

Following her visit here she returned with Mrs. Hub Adams, daughter of Mr. Kennedy, for a visit to Mrs. Adams' Ardmore home, returning from there to her own home at Celeste, in Hunt county.

Wichita May Get Economics Agent

Wichita county will probably have a home demonstration agent again in the near future, according to Hubert Harrison, secretary of the local chamber of commerce. The statement was made Friday mogning in connection with the visit of Miss Bess Edwards of Denton, district demonstration agent.

The county commissioners have been in favor of this work all along, Mr. Harrison said, as well as the county chamber of agriculture, and the chambers of commerce of Wichita Falls, Electra, Burkburnett and Iowa Park.

ROAD WORK IS GOING FORWARD

Sunshine Big Help To Workers

With sunshine and clear weather prevailing in Wichita Falls and vicinity for the past several days, highway work is progressing rapidly.

Potts & Prentice, construction workers, and their sub-contractors have taken advantage of the weather and are pushing with all speed the portions of the highways—Burkburnett, Electra north and Henrietta—that remain to be completed.

People Using Road.

It was announced yesterday by officials in charge of the construction that the Burkburnett road is open as far north as Cashion school house. The people of Burkburnett are using the highway already, some of them. It is said, riding seven miles just to try out the new concrete road.

A mile of concrete work has been accomplished since the heavy rains of past weeks, officials stated. The highway will be completed to a point near the Daniels estate by Monday night.

Moving of the plant which is at work on the Burkburnett road has already begun, having started Thursday. The equipment, it is stated, is being transferred to a place near Thomas Lumber company, south of Burkburnett.

Workmen have already started dismantling the rock and sand loading tunnels.

DAVID GOLDBERG TO LEAVE SOON

He'll Take Vacation In University

By H. N. F.

Rabbi David Goldberg is planning for his summer vacation—three months study at Columbia university. For a number of years he has spent his summer vacations att the Chicago university. This time he plans a change of program and early in June he will leave for New York City, returning to Wichita Falls late in August or early in September.

Rabbi Goldberg was born in Russia. He was educated in the Universities of Russia. He came to this country after he had graduated with high honors. He was a master linguist among other accomplishments. Hebrew and Greek and Latin and Slav were not the only languages at his tongue's end. He was familiar with German and French and could get by if thrown with those who made known their thoughts or their ideas in the ancient language of the sons of Italy.

But he had never mastered in his college days the English language. He could neither speak it nor write it when he came to America. There was a reason for it. In the days of the Romanoffs French was the court language and the ruling classes in old Russia were hostile to the teaching of English. He came to America and his companions on the voyage over were his college chums who had been boyhood playmates.

They were artists among them, singers and musicians, painters and sculptors. They landed in New York. They read the foreign language papers. They clubbed together. They lived together. They spent their leisure hours together; but all this did not appeal to young David Goldberg. He was in America and he wished to become an American. He wished to master the English tongue in torder to be able to read and write the spoken tongue of the Republic and to absorb and then digest the columns of the American newspapers and not the newspapers printed in foreign tongues.

So he bade goodbye to his college friends who were his boyhood playmates and he deserted New York. He found a place to locate where he was compelled to master the English tongue and he mastered it. He called English, "as she is spoken," to his

GRAVES OF 25 TO BE STREWN WITH FLOWERS

Memorial Day Will Be Observed by Service Men

By R. Wm. Archer

Night, in all its dismal shadows, had fallen over Chateau-Thierry.

Only the hideous grumble of distant cannon and an occasional lighting of the skies told half-waking soldiers that an almost uncivilized enemy—an enemy trained in all the horrible tactics of an ignominious warfare—was near.

Through the slow, drizzling July rain, and in the darkness far from where numbers of khaki and blue-clad youths reposed in restless slumber, stalked a figure. In the occasional lightning of the heavens that added to the rumblings from the far-off battle field and made the night more distorted, his body resembled only a moving mass of blackness.

A cap half-cocked his eyes, two sturdy arms that protruded forward, and his untiring march as he plugged his way through the slop and mire of the ground where hell in all its meaning had come to earth, was indicative of the fact that he was a soldier.

The Weary Watch.

He walked on in his tireless journey—he was a sentry; the man who stood guard while those who on the morrow must face the shot and shell of the hated foe, rested. They needed sleep; his was the job of the weary night, broken only at intervals when his comrades beckoned him to a half-grabbed rest, from which he was always called to guard again.

And as he walked and thought of the loved ones who would welcome him back home, their hero—he stopped here and there, stood intent for just an instant and peered into the darkness of the night toward where the enemy was fighting.

The Tell-Tale Challenge.

A twig snapped. The soldier gripped his rifle; his nerves grew tense; the muscles in his neck and face seemed to stand forward; he turned, half crouched in the direction of the noise.

He stood there—hours it seemed to him—but all was silent again.

"Who goes there?" he challenged finally, but only the mockery of the night was his reply.

Then turning as if to wend his way again, he lurched forward at the crack of a gun; his own rifle ploughed into the mud and mire and he fell, dead.

The grim messenger of a leaden death had claimed him—a figure slipped stealthily away and was soon covered up in the darkness.

"All is quiet along the front," the message back home read. "Only a sentry or two killed."

A year rolled by, and then another, and then the bodies from the "Division of the Dead" began to slowly wend their way home—not to the arms of the loved ones who had waited behind to greet them in their heroic hour, but to the arms of a grave, where they would always be known as "one of those who fell on Flanders field."

The Unknown Soldier, too, found his way back to America, with the lone sentry who had fallen.

It was in such a day and such an hour as the night on the front at Chateau Thierry that thousands of American manhood and youth gave their lives in the greatest cause. And all over the United States—on May 30—their memory, and the battles they fought will be commemorated over again in Memorial Day.

Similar to the tributes paid the American war dead—from the Civil, Spanish-American to the World War—will be the ceremonial conducted in Wichita Falls, on next Tuesday.

Arrangements for a ceremonial that would far surpass all others which have been held here were begun the first of the past week, and took definite form at the American Legion meeting Wednesday night when Dr. O. W. Wilson, commandant of Pat Carrigan post, announced that:

"It is the desire of the commanding officer of this post that all former service men join us in this exercise, which is conducted in the memory of all who died—including those former service men who died in all wars.

"This is a duty we owe not only to the men of the recent world war, but to those who gave or offered their lives for the cause they thought was right, and we should respect them in these few minutes that we shall stand at their graves to commemorate their lives."

Years ago—in 1868—Memorial Day had its inception. Following closely on the heels of the Civil war, to its day the worst in history, those of the Southland who had lost fathers, brothers and sons in the battle of the Blue and Gray journied to the graves where they were buried and decorated them with beautiful flowers.

In that day, there was no concerted movement, history tells us, to commemorate the memory of the dead. But on May 5, 1868, General John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic veterans, issued General order No. 11, stating that "The 30th day of May 1868, is designated for the purpose of strewing with flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades—"

Decorate 25 Graves Here.

Thus Memorial Day took on the attitude of a national occasion. Back in Florence, Ala., it had first been begun by the Southerners, and hence

Four Ceremonies of Unusual Interest Are Recorded for Month

WEDDINGS with rumors of more to come, have interested society this week, contradicting the well known superstition that has heretofore put a ban on May as a nuptial time. The little love God seems to have chosen the month of flowers this spring for His own.

Common Sense About Eczema and Eruptions!

Here's Something About S. S. S. That You'll Be Glad to Hear.

You might just as well know it right now,—the cause of skin eruptions pimples, blackheads, boils and so on, is right in the blood. There is no getting away from it. Science has proved it. We prove it. You can prove it.

When the cause of skin troubles and eruptions is in the blood, it isn't common sense to simply treat the skin. A bottle of S. S. S. will prove to you what is happening in your blood. S.S.S. is a scientific blood cleanser,—it drives out the impurities which cause eczema, tetter, rash, pimples, boils, blackheads, blotches and other skin eruptions. When these impurities are driven out, you can't stop several very nice things from happening. Your lips turn naturally rosy. Your eyes sparkle, your complexion clears. It becomes beautiful. Your face looks like that of a prosperous, ruddy, well-fed, refined gentleman, or if you are a woman, your complexion becomes the real kind that the whole world so admires. S.S.S. is also a powerful body-builder, because it builds new and more blood-cells. That's why it fills out sunken cheeks, bony necks, thin limbs, helps regain lost flesh. It costs little to have this happen to you. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes. The larger size is the more economical

Complimenting Mrs. Mary Hargrave who will leave soon with her son, Robert, for New Orleans to make her home, the Catholic Daughters of America turned their regular meeting Tuesday afternoon at the church hall into a delightful surprise "500" party for the honoree. A short program was a feature of the afternoon opened with a vocal duett, "The Last Rose of Summer" by Mrs. Powers and Miss Katheryn Sullivan, accompanied at the piano by Miss Gertrude Gallagher. Mrs. Pertle gave vocal numbers, "A Perfect Day" and "Dreams," accompanied by Mrs. Ida Harrison. After the program, Mrs. W. E. SEASIDE FOLLIES OF 1922 ARE HERE

The Seaside Follies of nineteen twenty-two are here. The show last year was indeed a show of follies in which the leading roles were played by the duvetyn bathing suit and the fur-trimmed suit. But this year the follies are more sensible, if one may say so, but just as diverting, for we have the little gingham bathing suit as the ingenue and star of the season. Fresh from the country, it is making a big hit at the seashore. It is made as simply as a suit of rompers. A sunbonnet comes with it, and very often a large beach parasol to match.

Next in lead is the knitted suit with striped borders and short cape to match. In this season when every little outfit has a cape that's all its own, the bathing suit is not to be left out. And it is a very sensible costume, and preferable and better looking than a towel or a sweater thrown over the shoulders when sitting on the beach.

Other things that play important parts in this summer show are the sets of gayly colored rubberized material consisting of scarf, bag, garters and hat and all trimmed in appliqued designs of the same material in contrasting colors.

Betty Compson, pretty star in Paramount pictures, in the photo above wears a rubberized cape that is trimmed in appliqued circles. It is a very effective thing, and she wears it in her forthcoming picture, "The Bonded Woman." The suit is a simple black satin blouse and bloomers without any superfluous fullness. A shirred apron fore and aft gives the effect of a short skirt slit at each side. This little device allows freedom for swimming and fools the censors at the same time, for the suit is practically a one-piece suit, camouflaged to look skirted. There are still many beaches where they demand that women try to swim with as many clothes on as possible.

CRETONNE

BY ELOISE

Flowered cretonne is making a bid for the feminine favor this summer. It is being made up into all manner of morning and porch frocks to make the wearer look like one of her trellises. These dainty little frocks will be delightfully new and different for the woman who spends her summer in the country or in a seaside cottage. They are a much more attractive costume than the usual housedress or bungalow apron.

This simple style is a slip-over model which ties at the neck. It is a straight line style with a narrow belt and short sleeves.

After paying expenses the Day Nursery will receive the neat sum of $442 and an additional amount added from the sale of a beautiful oil painting, the work and donation of Emil Hermann, the artist.

Those in charge for the day included: Mrs. R. T. Crawford, managress; Mrs. R. J. Goodale, assistant manageress; Mrs. J. M. Sammons, matron of floors; Mesdames Nat L. Inge, Fred Datson and White, maitre de hotel; Mesdames Carl Echman, F. E. DIRECTOR HAS VARIED LIFE

Rex Ingram Worked At Many Jobs

Life as a sailor, freight yard worker, sculptor, actor on both stage and screen, scenario writer and director, with service, too, in the Royal Canadian flying corps during the great war—these are some of the high lights in the career of Rex Ingram, who directed Metro's big picturization of Blasco Ibanez's famous novel, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," and "The Conquering Power," from Balzac's "Eugenie Grandet," which will be shown at the Gem theater, Friday. The latter is Mr. Ingram's first picture to follow the sensationally successful "Four Horsemen."

Ingram is an Irishman, is only 29, has been in Dublin and graduated from Trinity College, where his father, a professor. Having studied life in the classroom, he started out to see it for himself. In 1911 he came to America and his career since then, embraced experiences calculated to give him the wide and vivid knowledge of life and scene for a director of pictures.

For a while he worked in a New York freight yard on the night shift; was a truck and tally man. Then he entered Yale and there met Lee O. Lawrie, the noted sculptor, who was professor of sculpture at the art school there. Ingram not only studied sculpture under Lawrie but later gave his assistance to this executive in placing of the sculptures. His success as a motion picture director

Moreover, Mr. Ingram has a definite and interesting conception that in application to motion pictures of principles the speech sculpture and painting, the former is the strongest force for the advancement of the art. In both "The Four Horsemen" and "The Conquering Power," these ideas have been followed with notable success.

For his picture enchantment in depicting "The Four Horsemen" motion picture Yale University conferred upon Ingram the degree of Master of Fine Arts. This is the first time the degree has been granted.

GRIFFITH FILM HERE FOR WEEK

Strand Puts 'Orphans Of Storm' on

Most persons who sit comfortably in a theater and see scene after scene of D. W. Griffith's latest photo-dramatic spectacle "Orphans of the Storm" a great epic founded on "The Two Orphans" and which, released by United Artists' corporation, is coming to the Strand theater next Monday, pass by terrifically big things with little thought of the vast detail and work which attended the filming of those events. One of Mr. Griffith's assistants thus tells of a day when the master motion picture director worked with a force of more than ten thousand people:

"Early in the morning trains specially arranged for began rolling into Mamaroneck from the Grand Central station, New York City. A force of fifty engaging experts had been a week assembling this army of men and women to act in the scenes. The Griffith studio is some twenty miles northeast of New York near the Long Island Sound shore line, and the problem of getting this army of actors to the studio district was no simple task. The most a train can carry is less than four hundred. This meant many trains. Fortunately there were three lines to resort to—the railroad, a traction line and the trolleys that reach Mamaroneck through various directions.

"Mr. Griffith was doing the great scenes at the guillotine and the thrilling rescue wherein Monte Blue as Danton dashes up with six hundred horsemen. It took two trains of horse cars to bring these animals from New York. They were tried veterans and not easily frightened by gunfire and other exciting noises.

"A tedious and nerve trying day it was; Mr. Griffith stands on a high erected platform. On either side are camera men. Sartov, the chief is here, there, everywhere, for he must make quick shifts for 'close-ups.' Allen is in charge of the 'long shots.' With Mr. Griffith is Prof. Allard, of Harvard, intent that all must be historically exact; the Marquis de Polignac, from Paris, is gesticulating wildly in explaining the authority for action of the period. Decker is among the masses to see that all costumes are properly adjusted and action is in complement to the scene. Wortman is on another ensemble and Satch is in among the ten thousand as stage manager direct. Strong, Mack, Campbell, King, Cots and many other chiefs are at their stations. These are names never heard outside the Griffith 'lot' save in official circles. An army of carpenters watch their sets that there be no mishap; property masters are here, there and everywhere in order that all that mass may be properly equipped."

OLYMPIC BOOKS HANDSOME LAD

Barthelmess Here in "Tol'able David"

How love and adoration on the part of a carefree mountain youth for his big brother lifts him from boyhood to manhood in a single day and causes him to scale insurmountable heights in behalf of his brother is the story which Richard Barthelmess portrays to the public in "Tol'able David," the star's first picture for Associated First National Pictures, Inc., which is to be shown at the Olympic theater Monday.

The play, replete with thrilling adventures staged in the mountains of Virginia, is full also of heart thrills wound around simple family life. Mr. Barthelmess, as David reaches the hearts of his audience through his appeal for sympathy for the ideals of the romantic country boy, and he thrills them with his revelation of indomitable courage and tenacity of purpose at the risk of his own life in defending these ideals.

Olympic Signs Local Baritone

Charles H. Angle, a local baritone has been engaged to sing at every night performance at the Olympic. His numbers will always be in keeping with the feature picture presented and will serve as both and added attraction and a musical prologue.

Mr. Angle has appeared in numerous musical recitals and home talent productions presented here and has gained a large following.

He was presented at the Olympic last Wednesday night, practically unannounced and was accorded such a reception that the management decided to make his solos a regular feature of the night shows.

In all the novels written by Jane Austen, there is not a single lover's kiss mentioned.

First woman candidate for nomination to the North Carolina senate is Miss Bessie Thompson of Yanceyville.

JACKIE COOGAN'S COMING

Here's the best known kiddie in the movies. He's Jackie Coogan, who'll star in "My Boy" at the Olympic Thursday.

Son of Guinn Williams Enters Movies After Taking Fling at Major League Baseball and Helping to Win War

DALLAS, Texas, May 27.—Guinn Williams Jr., who grew up in west Texas and knows all about horses, lariats, wild steers and such things, arrived in Dallas yesterday afternoon. He came here from California to take part in the Southwest Durbar world's championship rodeo contest and made his first appearance at the evening performance in front of the grandstand at fair park.

Williams, who is six feet, two inches tall, and wears the sunniest sort of a smile—when he smiles—is the son of Congressman and Mrs. Guinn Williams of Decatur. Congressman Williams was recently elected to fill the vacancy created by the death of Lucian Parrish.

Guinn Jr., better known to his friends as "Big Boy" because of the generous way in which he was built to withstand life's storms, is only 23 years old, but his calendar reveals a store of interesting events. The most recent red-letter day in his career was last Wednesday, May 17, when he was married to Miss Kathleen Collins, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Collins of San Antonio.

The first news of this wedding reached Texas on his arrival here. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's mother in Los Angeles.

Tried Most Everything.

Williams has had a go at all sorts of things—the free life of the open range, big league baseball, the army, and motion pictures. The latter occupation is claiming his attention at present. He already has appeared in nine pictures for a company with studios at Hollywood, and is under contract for more. He managed to get away for a brief period, however, to come to the Southwest Durbar rodeo and he is entered in all events of that contest, from calf roping to wild steer riding. While in Dallas he is a guest in the home of C. W. Martin, 5836 Richmond, accepting the invitation of Miss Elna Martin, daughter of C. W. Martin to visit there while here for the rodeo. Miss Martin has just returned from a trip to the Orient.

The Texas cowboy who is now appearing in screen productions of western life and his newly-made bride knew each other when they were in school in San Antonio years ago.

Mrs. Williams also is enrolled in the motion picture fraternity, being better known in screen circles, perhaps than her husband. In 1921 she won the national beauty contest conducted by Thomas H. Ince and as a consequence is under contract to appear in Ince pictures. But for the fact that Mr. Ince found it necessary for her to remain in California, she would probably have accompanied her husband to Dallas for the rodeo.

"Will Mrs. Williams remain in the pictures, now that she is Mrs. Williams?" he was asked.

"Well, she has her present contract to fill and then she has a life contract with me," was the reply.

Played With White Sox.

"Big Boy" Williams went to California three years ago after training a while with the Chicago White Sox at Mineral Wells. Prior to that he played with the White Sox in Chicago for a brief period in 1918. However, although he was only 19 years old, he gave up baseball on account of the war and went to the Fort Sheridan, Ill., school for officers, receiving a commission there Sept. 16, 1918. He received an appointment to West Point but did not take it, going instead to Fort Sill. He went to California after he received his discharge and has been in pictures since.

Was a private in Company 2 of the 111th ammunition train of the U. S. army. Write his mother if you can help to locate this young man—Mrs. Huldah H. forward it was to become an important role in history.

Pat Carrigan legionnaires, as legionnaires all over the United States will do, will lead the delegation of those who are left to the graves in Wichita cemeteries, where flowers, wreaths and flags will be placed over 25 men who have gone to join the "Division of the Dead."

Those who will participate in the parade prior to the ceremonial will gather at Pat Carrigan headquarters, American Legion hall, on Ohio street at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday. The parade will march down Ohio to Ninth, west on Ninth to Indiana, north on Indiana to Seventh and thence west to the Wichita county court house.

At the courthouse, Judge Nelson Phillips of Dallas, honored guest of the American Legion for the occasion, will address the assemblage of marchers and citizens in a Memorial Day speech. He will speak from the east wing of the court house.

Several well known Wichitans, including Luther Hoffman and Captain R. E. Healey of the Australian air service, will deliver addresses at the cemetery.

In the parade will be automobiles and numbers of floats decorated with flowers and flags, a lone float, bearing a baby child who will strew flowers on the graves at Riverside cemetery, and carrying four soldiers representing the North, South, Spanish-American and World war veterans, will carry flowers to the cemetery for the ceremonial.

"Ma" Burdick, national chaplain of the Ladies Auxiliary, will receive flowers all day Monday, and will prepare them for distribution among the graves. She will probably deliver some address during the ceremonial, in view of her services overseas.

Battery From Vernon.

Tentative plans for the celebration include a firing battery from Vernon, which, if it participates, will be headed by Dr. John H. Fletcher, and which will fire a final tribute to the dead as the citizens depart from the cemetery.

Each grave will have been marked prior to the ceremonial with minute American flags, to indicate the 25 who helped to fight some war.

The members of the American Legion will appear in uniform, while other former service men are invited also to don their former war clothes and march in the parade. All ex-service men are requested to take part in the line of march.

Headed by the officers of Pat Carrigan post—Dr. O. W. Wilson, commander; Dr. L. I. Lucy, post adjutant; C. R. Fundeberg, vice commander; A. L. Taylor, finance officer; Dr. T. J. Strong and Dr. J. H. Fletcher as members of the executive board—the parade and ceremonial will probably be the largest such undertaking that has been held in Wichita Falls by former service men.

Less than 150 men took part last year, while this year, the legion and auxiliary is putting forth every effort to make Memorial Day an issue of greater moment here.

Mayor Frank Collier has declared a half holiday in view of the afternoon's ceremonies, and it is understood that the merchants of the city will close their stores, paying an annual honor to those who have crossed the Great Divide to join comrades on the other side, where the heroes of many a battlefield are gathered to greet others of the "Division of the Dead" when that time shall come.

Comparison of the size of many of the larger and better known lakes of the country has been made by John A. Donald, assistant city engineer. This shows that the lake created by the diversion dam, dwarfed in comparison to the larger lake, is practically the size of Lake Worth, the second largest lake in Texas. Lake Wichita, which was once considered some lake around these parts, is exceeded approximately 38 times in size by the larger lake. The figures prepared by Donald follow:

Large Reservoirs

Name of reservoirs and state:

Elephant Butte, N. M., 40,680 area in acres, 863 billion gallons capacity.

Roosevelt, Ariz., 423 billion gallons capacity.

The bridge gang which has been occupied erecting bridges and spans has been moved to the Electra north road, where six culverts are to be constructed, it was reported. The culverts vary in size, some of them being quite long and spanning deep ravines.

Two thousand feet of work has been done on the Henrietta road, where the Tibbetts Construction company of Fort Worth is in charge.

AMERICAN GIRLIES PUZZLING TO FRENCH

(By International News Service)

PARIS, May 27.—Stories of American girls checking their corsets in the wardrobes of dance halls are the subject of much conjecture on the part of French women. They ask why the girls bother to wear the corsets to the dance. But the latest adaptation of the dance hall check-room in Paris is to use it for checking babies. Recently an inspection of the wardrobe of an Etoile dancehall revealed a half dozen babies slumbering peacefully in the pigeonholes usually reserved for hats.

The maternal neglect aroused the ire of the editorial writer of the Paris Journal. "This is something I had read about before," he declares "Only such things ordinarily occure in Chicago or Milwaukee. This time it is Parisienne. We have a check-room for infants. Decidedly we are becoming very American."

it wasn't forced upon them." the sweetest voice in the world (just then) concluded emphatically.

"Whose to blame?" the reporter demanded in a voice loud enough to say, "I'll whip the world, if you say so."

"The men are to blame, of course," came the abrupt reply.

And rather meekly, the fellow in the Record News office who had just felt so bold, and brave, and powerful, and strong—n' everything—sighed out an audible:

"Oh—I see."

"But, you don't, I insist. You don't understand anything about it. If you and thousands of others just like you didn't exact such things of us girls, we wouldn't dress HALF the way we do now!"

"That would be QUITE interesting," the reporter thought, picturing himself in a certain other fellow's shoes, standing on the corner of Tenth and Indiana, gulping in everything with his eyes as he stood there—but to the girl, he replied:

"Yes—yes—you're right."

"Yes, I know I am—and now will you please tell me whether a girl has to be a flagger to get a husband in Wichita Falls?" she asked.

"Er—Miss, suppose you call later; I'll be glad to look up some information on the subject, and it will be a decided pleasure to tell you all I find out. You can either call, or just tell me where I can meet you, and——"

"Very well, then; I'll call later," the sweet young one replied decisively, as she hung up.

And the reporter still lounges about the office more than he used to, oiling his typewriter, cleaning it, and appearing to busy himself, but the sweet young one hasn't called yet.

And that's why that same reporter mumbles to himself every now and then:

"Why the heck didn't I get her name and address?"

EDUCATION MADE A CRIME

The kingdom of Sardinia, in 1825, comprised 28,000 square miles, and had a population of more than four million. A royal edict dated 1825, prohibited any person learning to read or write unless said person owned property amounting to 1,500 lire, equal to $400. No person could attend a university without having double that amount. As few persons aside from the clergy and nobility ever saw that much money, there were few books read in Sardinia.

"GOD HELP POOR GIRLS"

—says Billy Sunday

"And God help a people when it tramples on law," said Billy Sunday after seeing D. W. Griffith's big picture, "Orphans of the Storm," which is being shown at the Strand Theater all this week.

"I say," comments Billy Sunday, "God help our girls in this age of danger. War leaves its trace on hearts, minds and morality. Some fathers and mothers have forgotten that theirs is the responsibility.

"Two generations have swept over the beautiful, pathetic, powerful story of "The Two Orphans," separated, cast adrift at the world's mercy.

"But what about girls, not orphans, in fact, but orphans in spiritual neglect because fathers and mothers do not understand this world's hideous dangers?

"In the story of "The Two Orphans" which Mr. Griffith called "The Orphans of the Storm," parents may read the dangers to which their daughters are exposed, even today, in the world's great and cruel cities.

"And in the story of the French revolution told in this picture simultaneously, people may see what happens when they desert law and order, despise and trample on established authorities, allowing their unbridled passions to be their guide.

"Knowing the importance and the power for good or ill of the moving picture that appeals so strongly to all ages I endeavor to keep track of important developments in that industry and to know what is being done.

"Such a picture as Mr. Griffith has made ing powerfully, with lightning illumination, the dangers of unprot girlhood and the hideous excesses of a mob run wild, is a national lesson and sermon of highest value. Would that every story on the screen or printed page might have a lesson as powerful and as useful, a motive as praiseworthy.

"The power of the moving picture should be used to inculcate warnings and lessons that the world needs, and intertwined with the horrors, mad and fearful lessons of the French Revolution, the sad story of the two orphans presents a warning not only to individuals, but to nations.

"Mr. Griffith calls his picture "Orphans of the Storm" and most appropriately. Never was there a more horrible storm than that which the rage, fury and animal hate of an oppressed people burst forth in the French revolution. Never was anything more dreadful conceived than the guillotine, working all day long with its dropping, dripping blade.

"I and all that take seriously the world's problems are interested in the idea of presenting together the adventures and sorrows of two unprotected, girlhood, the story of the "Two Orphans," and the dreadful power of a people broken free from all restraint.

"Mr. Griffith has planned and produced in addition to a beautiful story, a double lesson, such a lesson as you see in the great Victor Hugo's 'Les Miserables' or in Bunyan's 'Pilgrim Progress.'

"Millions Undoubtedly Will See It and Be Better for Seeing It."

The Old and Beautiful Story

It Had Touched 50,000,000 Hearts

Two beautiful girls leave their home, hoping that in great Paris the blind sister may be healed. It is the story of "The Two Orphans" saddest, most touching and fortunately happily ending story of all time.

In cruel Paris, torn by revolution, the sisters are separated. One becomes the begging slave of a hideous monster and lives a beggar's life in a rat-infested cellar.

The other, at the hands of degenerate "nobility" barely escapes a fate more hideous.

Through the horrors of the French Revolution, under the very shadow of the guillotine posts, where hangs the dreaded knife, the wonderful picture of David Wark Griffith takes the two sisters.

You see, and believe you actually hear, the hideous rabble, the brutality debauched nobility, the violent jealousies and hatreds of the revolutionary leaders.

Danton, who ruled the mob and was sent by Robespiere to lose his head under the blade, and that same Robespiere are living figures in this drama.

No story has ever so strongly affected those that see it as this story, told in a picture of absolute truth and terrific power.

As the flowers at last cover every battlefield, so the sun comes out after the bloodshed and the horror of the revolution. The sisters are happily re-united.

It is the story of devotion, pathos, romance, adventure, and David Wark Griffith tells it in the most powerfully beautiful picture ever shown.

Fifty millions of people all over the world have seen "The Two Orphans." Hundreds of millions will see that story living and moving in Griffith's "Orphans of the Storm" playing at the Strand Theater, all over the world so long as human joy and sorrow and terrific national power shall interest earth's inhabitants.

CLEVELAND SIX BUSINESS CAR

Salesmen Using It With Success

"Although the new Cleveland six roadster is preeminently the young people's car it is a fast building up a large following among salesmen and managers of public service corporations," says J. D. Moulder of the Wilhelm Moulder Auto company, local distributor for the light six. "The duties of these men are such that it is necessary for them to travel long distances by motor car often carrying cumbersome baggage, consequently the unusually large storage capacity of this model appeals to them."

"To appreciate the space that is available in the storage compartment of the Cleveland roadster one only has to note the accompanying photograph of a local leather goods salesman who was able to conceal in the storage section of this roadster, all the different samples of luggage in sight. Unlike other cars in its class, the Cleveland six roadster's luggage compartment is accessible not only from the rear deck but also through an opening guarded by a lock directly back of the driver's seat."

If anyone doubts that the Cleveland six is a mighty convenient business car, they might look over this hefty load that it has been carrying for this traveler. They say this car is coming right to the front among salesmen.

WHERE RADIO NOISES START

How to Avoid the Other Kind

Anyone who has listened in on a radio set during the approach of a [illegible] storm has little new to discover in the way of frying, hissing, bubbling and spluttering noises. It is only natural for the listener to wonder where they all come from.

In general there are just two kinds of radio noises—the ones that can't be avoided and ones that can. In the first class are all of the natural ones that result from electrical disturbances in the ether through which all radio waves travel. It must be remembered that these waves follow the same laws and behave in exactly the same manner as the waves created "to order" by man-made machinery.

The second class of noises is the result of faulty wiring, or in many cases imperfect or improperly constructed batteries. Wires must be tight. It is for this reason that so many who build radio sets take special care to solder all joints even though binding posts provide a seemingly tight grip on the wires.

To a great many people a battery is just a battery and need only be considered from a standpoint of voltage and ampere-hour capacity. It is true that these things are of prime importance but there are other features of construction deserving of far more attention than is commonly given them.

An important feature of the "B" or 24-volt battery, for example, is that it must be able to hold its charge for long periods not only because of economy but because electrical leakage from cell to cell or from positive to negative posts of any particular cell is distinctly a noise producer. It is to prevent this disturbing effect that the Willard Storage Battery company has developed a form of "B" battery in which each cell is a glass jar capped with a special [illegible] and separated from its neighbors by compartment [illegible]. It is said that the leakage [illegible] practically [illegible].

Nolen-Stringer to Discontinue Agency

Nolen-Stringer company have announced that they will discontinue the automobile business June 1st. The company was formerly distributor for the Haynes and Lincoln cars, handling the Lincoln until the recent disposal of the Leland properties to Ford and his associates.

Neither C. W. Nolen nor Leslie Stringer, owners of the firm, have announced definitely what lines of business they will follow. Both men are well known in automobile circles and have been highly successful as dealers in these two well known cars.

The lease on their present location expires on June 1st, but Mr. Stringer states they will continue the business for a few days until they have disposed of several used cars now in stock.

Jarratt and Putty Buy Out Hale

Pat Jarratt and P. G. Putty of the Dixie Tire Service company, 811 Tenth street, announce that they have bought the interests of Jack Hale, a former partner in the business.

Mr. Hale was formerly located in Wichita Falls, moving from here to Dallas, where he has purchased an interest in the Standard Automotive corporation.

Pat Jarratt says their business has been advancing steadily since the Dixie Tire service has taken the distribution of General tires and that both he and P. G. Putty are optimistic as to the future here.

During the past week the company has had exceptional sales on truck tires. Many going to several of the large wholesale firms of the city.

"The General is proving its worth under every test," says Pat, "and many of the sales we are now making can be traced directly to recommendations given by other satisfied General tire users."

BURK COUPLE WEDS EARLY IN APRIL

The announcement was made Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carrington, 120 Avenue E., and the young couple, both of whom are well known in this city, are receiving the congratulations and good wishes of their friends. Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin expect to establish a home in Burkburnett at an early date.

G. M. C. TRUCK DISPLAYED HERE

Gaines Tells Why They Picked It

"It's here," reads the announcement of the Gaines Motor Sales company, regarding the new G. M. C. truck, which they are now distributors for in this section.

It has been current rumor in automobile circles for several weeks past that Gaines brothers were contemplating the distribution of the G. M. C. line here.

"Two things were responsible for us selecting the G. M. C. The fact that the G. M. C. is one of the best trucks being made and the fact that the company are establishing a factory branch in Dallas, which enables us to give G. M. C. users in this section, service second to none in any territory anywhere.

"The new G. M. G. is absolutely the very latest sensation in the truck industry. Having many exclusive features that are conceded to be a decided improvement over the old trucks. Worthy of note are the new high-pressure lubricating system. The fact that all parts are removable, a new two range transmission for high speed and for heavy hauling, such as required for oil field work, and a magneto and battery and generator ignition system.

"We expect to keep on the floor trucks in the one, two and three and one-half ton models. These we believe are the types best suited for oil field work."

CHANDLER TAKES CAMELS PLACE

It Goes Right on Through Sand

How many motorists, as they tour comfortably across the continent, are aware of the fact that not so many years ago it was believed that camels afforded the only solution of the transportation problem in the great southwest?

Camels actually were imported by the government, shortly before the Civil war, and sent into the then largely unexplored and arid regions of the southwest, says a statement issued by the Chandler Motor Car company.

Along the Santa Fe trail and the Bankhead highway, where camels might today be one of the native curiosities if the government's experiments had not been interrupted by civil strife, the Chandler car, whose powerful motor makes it especially efficacious in sandy roads and on hills is a familiar sight.

In the years 1857 and 1858 two herds, each numbering about thirty camels, were imported by the war department, one from Algeria and the other from Arabia.

Several expeditions were made over the region now known as the states of Arizona and New Mexico, horses and mules as well as camels being used. Some of the horses and mules perished and the others were practically exhausted, but the camels showed no ill effects after traveling several hundred miles.

When the efforts to acclimatize the camels were interrupted by the Civil war, the war department turned the animals loose and either through natural death or at the hands of Indians they were eventually wiped out.

Much of what was then arid territory has been transformed into verdant soil by irrigation projects, and instead of the slow-moving camel which once seemed to offer the most expeditious means of travel, today there is a continuous stream of motor cars on the highways.

The southern routes are the most extensively used by transcontinental motoring tourists, it is pointed out by the Chandler company, because the roads are open throughout the entire year.

VERNON HOPES TO GET MEET

Special to the Record News.

VERNON, Texas, May 28.—Vernon boosters returned Thursday morning from Plainview with the firm conviction that the 1924 convention of the west Texas chamber of commerce will be brought to this city. Although outvoted on the final ballot the local delegation ran second throughout the election, but surrendered gracefully after the last count and made the selection of San Angelo unanimous.

Vernon received a wealth of recognition and good will as a result of its attempt to induce the 1923 convention of the chamber to meet in this city. Rivalry at Plainview, local delegates state, was entirely good natured, and although there were a few hot exchanges of words, the meeting ended with the best of spirits prevailing.

Vernon's representation made the trip to Plainview in a specially chartered car and with a band at its head and a fife and drum corps bringing up the rear, upon immediate attention when it paraded to the main square of the city. W. N. Stokes made the nominating speech for this city when the time came to choose the next meeting place of the convention, and was seconded by J. D. Parnell of Wichita Falls, former resident of this city.

Coney Island Bank Has Armored —REO to Carry Money—

FRITZ TELLS OF SPEED WAGON

Tests Made of This New Motor

The Bank of Coney Island does not fear the loss of money being transferred to any of its branches or New York City since securing their new armored speed wagon. A description of this car has just been received by Mr. Fritz of the Fritz Motor company.

The body is built of heavily gauged steel inside and out, with a sand filler between the plates. Extensive tests were made to determine what resistance this armor would offer and it was found that the exterior plates proved to be a perfect defense against bullets fired at short range from high powered rifles. The interior is fitted up for the accommodation of two employes of the bank who are fully armed with the latest type of magazine guns.

There are portholes in the doors and sides which can be quickly opened in case of attack to allow the guards to open fire. The prevalence of robberies where messengers were engaged in transferring funds was the cause of this bank securing an adequate means of protection. A number of officials of large New York banking concerns have inspected this speed wagon and have expressed themselves as being confident that the safety measures provided will withstand any attack which might be made upon the crew.

The car has attracted a great deal of attention while standing before the bank or one of its branches at Coney Island.

ELECTRA GETS CHEVROLET CAR

Von Allman Opens Up Branch

Paul Von Allman of the Von Allman Motor Sales company, local Chevrolet dealer, states he is establishing a branch agency for Chevrolet cars in Electra, to open some time about June 1st. The company has been fortunate in obtaining a main street location and Mr. Von Allman states he expects to get a nice business from that territory.

Since the Von Allman Motor Sales company took over the distribution for Chevrolet in this district, sales have been mounting steadily, Mr. Von Allman states.

"We have had difficulty in getting cars lately," Mr. Von Allman states, "but the factory promises that they can supply all needs from now on. Not only has the factory exceeded all previous production records, but the number of Chevrolets shipped from various factories in the United States during the months of March and April shows a substantial increase over the corresponding months of 1920.

"Every man on our sales force feels there are big times ahead for Chevrolet and enthusiastic as to the future," Mr. Von Allman states.

UNIQUE PARTY FOR STUDENTS OF BURK

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, May 27.—One of the most unique parties of the graduation season was the theater party given by the juniors for the seniors, Saturday evening, the young people met at the home of Miss Hallie Moody and formed a parade led by Superintendent J. E. Woodward and Prof. D. M. Brickley, principal of the high school. Crossing Main street the couples followed the leaders to the station where it was rumored that they were to be tendered a theater party in Devol. The long line boarded the train, but passed off at the end of the coaches to the wonder and amusement of the local and traveling onlookers. Returning to the heart of Burkburnett the juniors marched to the Lyric theater, where they found reservations and enjoyed the interesting picture, "Bob Hampton of Placer."

Later, a summer treat was served at the cream parlor of the Corner Drug store, and each honoree was presented with a small change purse, decorated with the colors of the entertaining juniors and bearing the inscription—"From the juniors of 1922, B. H. S." Thirty-nine young men and women enjoyed this unusual entertainment with their teachers mentioned, which was voted one of the most charming and merriest of the commencement season.

100 Rigs Are Running at Electra With New Drilling Starting

TEXAS ADDS NEW LOCATIONS

Tests in Prospects All Over Waggoner

New drilling that has been forecast for the past several weeks, since the opening up of the new 1900 foot sand of South Electra, is getting well under way, and there are now approximately one hundred rigs running in the Electra district, where a short time ago a survey would not have revealed many more than fifteen or twenty drilling wells.

The Texas Company added about a dozen new locations this past week, with drilling already started on all but two or three, and there are several other new locations, scattered through this section. All over the Waggoner pasture, extending far west into Wilbarger county, new tests are in prospect, some of them contracted for before the important new developments.

Six more wells are due for immediate completion in the 1900 foot sand, though there were no completions credited to this sand up to Friday.

Texas Well Shows Up.

The Texas Company's No. 216 Waggoner, offsetting the Harvey-Cullum deep well on the Rio Bravo, two miles west of the older pool, is perhaps the most important of these wells now completing. This well has made several flows from the top of the sand. Five feet from the top of the sand a break of shale was encountered. This has been drilled through, into the sand again, and the well is showing up for a splendid producer. The Harvey-Cullum well was a 750 barrel well, and is now producing at the rate of 400 barrels daily.

The Bridwell and Heydrick No. 12 Waggoner is completing in the 1900-foot sand. This well is an offset on the north to the Texas company's No. 215 Waggoner.

Two Others at 1900.

The two other 1900 foot wells now completing are the Griswold Oil company's No. 1 Waggoner B, and the Shamrock Oil company's No. 1 Waggoner. The latter well was prematurely reported as a completion earlier in the week, through a confusion in reports from the field.

The Griswold well is on the old Howell lease, and is north of the Griswold company's first Waggoner well, which is also in the deep sand.

The Shamrock well is in the first 1900 foot sand, the hole filling more than 1,000 feet with oil when this formation was drilled the middle of the week. It is to be drilled deeper in the sand.

The Griswold No. 1 Waggoner A lease had a saturated line just under 1900 feet, which showed up for 50 barrels, possibly more production. Drilling was continued and the 1950 foot sand opened up, and the well completed in this level.

The Griswold Oil company has two more wells, both on their original Burnett lease, in the heart of the pool, on the deep sand. These are No. 217 Waggoner and is rigging up.

Gulf Gets 1600 Sand.

The Gulf Production company's No. 8 Burnett Lease C, in the north end of the former shallow South Electra pool, is rigging up a star to drill in, on the sand at 1670 feet, according to latest field reports.

The Texas Company is completing a new well in the 1800 foot sand on their Waggoner, south of the Bridwell and Heydrick lease. This well, the No. 217 Wagoner, is rigging up a star, above the sand, at 1760 feet and preparing to drill in.

The Planet has had no new producer in this pool since it's No. 4 Waggoner, completed last week, and now producing around 200 barrels, in the 1900-foot sand.

Six rigs are running on the Burnett lease of the Planet, Nos. 36 to 42 inclusive, it is reported.

On the Gladiolus lease of the Hobbs Oil company the Nos. 48, 49 and 50 are drilling, at depths ranging from 1,000 to 1,400 feet.

The Texas Company's No. 219 Waggoner is drilling around 1740 feet, the No. 220 Waggoner is rigging up cable tools, the No. 221 Waggoner is a standard rig, the No. 222 Waggoner is drilling around 1550 feet; the No. 123 Wagoner is drilling around 1150 feet; the No. 224 Waggoner is drilling around 1470 feet; the No. 225 and 226 Waggoner are rigging up.

Going For 1600 Sand.

Offsetting the Harvey-Cullum No. 1 Rio Bravo, in the 1600 foot sand the Texas Company's No. 227 Waggoner is drilling around 450 feet, the No. 228 Waggoner is 50 feet south of the No. 216, and is rigging up a standard to test out the sands below 1,000 feet which have been encountered in this part of the field.

No. 229 is a location, No. 230 is a derrick, and Nos. 231, 232 and 233 are locations, all around the new producers in the main pool, south of the Bridwell and Heydrick lease.

The No. 226 is the far north test of the Texas Company at present, being located in the warehouse yard on the Electra townsite.

The No. 1 Waggoner of Troxel et al, in section 31, is reported testing out a sand drilled around 1040 feet

Testing Sand at 1400.

The Bankers Petroleum company north of the shallow producers of the Petroleum Producers company, is reported testing out a 1400 foot sand drilled in No. 4. The No. 3 drilling with a star, is reported down below 1500 feet.

The Texhoma's No. 1 Waggoner in section 13, half way between the wells of Harvey and Cullum, and the Texas Company, and the Gulf Production company's No. 1 Jennins, is reported drilling around 300 feet.

In section 32 Shappell et al are rigging up their No. 1 Allingham, just north of the well drilled by the Hereford Oil company several years ago. This well is in the 1730 foot sand, and is still producing between 20 and 30 barrels, according to reports.

The Hereford company is reported rigging up over it's No. 2, which was abandoned, with casing left in the hole, some time ago.

John O'Neil's No. 1 Rio Bravo, in section 31, has had some casing trouble this past week, according to reports, holding up progress for a short time. The No. 3 in this section, and the No. 4 in section 18 and No. 1 in section 19, are drilling though not yet down to depths where interesting developments are expected.

The No. 1 Waggoner of Grisham and McCallister is reported on a fishing job, around 1400 feet.

Two new derricks are up in section 14, the No. 2 Waggoner of the Humble Oil and Refinin company, and the No. 1 Waggoner of Charles Kolp.

D'Yarmett & Spencer Over Line.

D'Yarmett & Spencer are getting ready to drill their No. 1 Waggoner in Wilbarger county, located in section 6 of the Block 5. They are also reported completing their No. 1 Waggoner, in the 1500 foot sand which they opened up north of the Harvey-Cullum wells.

Another new location for the southwest extension of developments is that of Verschoyle et al, in section 29. This will be the No. 1 Waggoner of these operators.

The No. 11 of Bridwell and Heydrick, in the inside of the older pool, is reported drilling around 1200 feet and the No. 12 is drilling around 1,000 feet.

The No. 10 Burnett, Lease B of the Griswold Oil company is drilling around 1300 feet. The No. 15 on the Burnett, A lease, deepening to the 1900 foot sand, is held up temporarily with a fishing job, it is reported.

The Simms Oil company is reported preparing to drill it's No. 8 Burnett, in section 5, in the east side of the older pool.

The Gulf Production company's No. 18 Burnett, A lease, is reported a new rig.

This company's No. 9 on the Burnett C lease, in the north part of the older South Electra pool, is reported drilling around 1400 feet, the No. 10 same lease is drilling around 750 feet, the No. 11 is drilling around 250 feet.

NO. 1 DOUGLAS IN COMPLETION

Gulf May Go For Second Deep Test

The Gulf Production company is reported preparing to complete it's No. 1 L. P. Douglas, Lease B, just east of the town of Electra, in the 900 foot sand, which was drilled this week. This well is 2,000 feet north of the Gulf's discovery 1900 foot well on the Grace Jennings. If this shallow sand shows nice production as it is expected to do, from indications, the well will be completed here and a second deep test drilled.

The Gulf's No. 2 Jennings, lease A, is drilling around 600 feet and the No. 3, same lease, is reported rigging up.

The Griswold Oil company's No. 1 Jennings is reported drilling around 750 feet.

The National Oil Fields company's No. 1 Jennings, about midway between the Gulf Jennings well, and the deep producers on the south, is reported drilling around 1,000 feet.

The Texas Company's No. 85 Stringer is rigging up a rotary. The same company's No. 7 Pate Waggoner is drilling below 1500 feet. The same, No. 28 Skinner is drilling around 1135 feet.

In the old shallow pool, southeast Electra, the No. 2 Burnett et al of Davis and Wood is reported good for 10 barrels, sand at 81 feet.

The Sunshine State Oil & Refining company's test on the Holtzen, old Burkburnett, made a 20 barrel well in the 1800 foot sand, according to reports. Just south of this well the Magnolia Petroleum company is rigging up it's No. 11 Anderson.

The Texas Company's No. 1 Everett, also in the old Burkburnett field, is reported rigging up a standard rig.

ANOTHER GOOD YOUNG WELL

Roxana Drills in No. 4 Scott

Interest in South Young county this past week was centered around the Roxana Petroleum corporation's No. 4 Scott, which was drilled one foot into the 3,500 foot lime, with a flow of 100 barrels an hour resulting. This is the second 3,500 foot producer in the South Bend field, the new well being a short distance from the North America's No. 1 Scott, Smith survey, the discovery well of the 3,500-foot lime.

To the west of these wells, the Panhandle Refining company's No. 1 Martin is giving promise of a third producer in the 3,500 foot level. The hole is at present cleaning out after a heavy shot of nitro. The pipe collapsed when the shot caused a bridge, and there is rather a tedious job on hand, from present indications, but there are said to be good chances for a nice producer.

The Martin well is about four miles west of the Scott wells of the North American and Roxana companies.

The Panhandle's No. 7 McCluskey which was deepened from the shallow sand, has landed 5 3-16 on a lime at 3,200 feet, which is reported showing a good gas pressure and some oil. This well, in addition to the Martin, is making this oldest pool in the South Young county district look promising for deeper testing.

The Puritan Oil company's No. 1 Ford, 2,000 feet east of the North American's eastern wells on the Ford farm, has spudded in. The Puritan is a subsidiary of the Noco, which recently acquired a considerable interest in the North American holdings. This is the Puritan's first activity in this field.

The Texas Company is starting its first Archer county well since he opening of the Texhoma pool last year, making location for the No. 1 Chance last week. This offsets the Texhoma's No. 17 Goss, the far south well of the pool. The new test is now rigging up.

The Texhoma is rigging up it's No. 22 Goss, offsetting the No. 17 on the south.

The No. 4 Coffman-Yates of the Texhoma and J. J. Perkins is reported drilling around 500 feet.

J. I. Staley's No 3 Coffman is drilling around 400 feet.

These four wells comprise the drilling activity in the Texhoma pool at this time.

Four miles west of the proven pool the Texhoma is drilling it's No. 1 Ted Wilson, around 600 feet deep.

The Texhoma's South Archer test, the No. 1 W. C. Young is drilling around 800 feet.

Another new test is to be drilled in the south part of Archer location being made on the T. J. Langley, by Abercrombie and associates.

The F. & H. Syndicate are reported to have started a test in the Holliday field, the No. 1 W. P. Ferguson.

MAGNOLIA HAS SHALLOW POOL

Dodson No. 8 Good For 100 Barrels

The Magnolia Petroleum company has a nice producer in the South Burk shallow field, the No. 8 Dodson being reported good for 100 barrels, in the 1050 foot sand. This same company's No. 33 Reilly is reported a 10 barrel producer in the 600 foot sand.

The Judson Oil corporation has made a new location on the Dodson lease, the No. 11.

The Stanolind Oil & Gas company's No. 8 Crocker is a new location.

The Texhoma Oil & Refining company's No. 3 Fowler in the north pool, is drilling around 1,200 feet.

Other new wells reported under way in the old Burkburnett field include the No. 6 Mertens of the Clara Oil company, and the No. 3 Evans of Day and Taylor.

The Nos. 4 and 5 Murdock of Tom F. Hunter are drilling in the new north pool.

THE GENERAL CORD TIRE

The General Cord type of tire construction is a product of the last five years. The average mileage that The General Cord makes today couldn't have been bought at any price prior to the war. No such tire was made.

Read what two of our customers say. We know that "one swallow doesn't make a summer"—and that two testimonials don't make a tire—but they will give you some indication of what the folks right here in town are getting out of The General Cord—the finest tire we ever handled!

Here's What Two Local Users Say

Here is what Mr. F. W. Barker, Manager of Nafziger Baking Company, says:

I am more than pleased to endorse General Tires and cannot speak too highly of the service they have given us, both locally and at our headquarters in Kansas City.

We are getting upwards of 20,000 miles on General Tires in this territory and find the savings in gasoline and tire up-keep has more than paid us to buy Generals.

G. T. Drinkard, Manager of Blair-Hughes Company, said:

We operate several large trucks and have always regarded General Tires, as the best Tires for trucks equipment. We cannot endorse them too highly.

VERNON HOST TO SHRINERS

Caravan Members Like Texas

By Eric G. Schroeder

Special to the Record News.

VERNON, Texas, May 27.—Arabia modernized, or more appropriately, perhaps, Arabia motorized, came to Vernon over the Colorado to Gulf highway Monday night. Led by its indomitable shiek, Bernard S. McMahan, the transcontinental caravan of the Shrine entered the main streets of the town in triumphal procession, escorted by befezzed nobles of the local Shrine club.

Without so much as a pause at this oasis on the jaded travelers hast sped west of town to where the pleasant waters of Hill Crest Country club beckoned. There, as the shadows of the Texas pain deepened about them the caravaners knew how to show their thanks to the prophet Mohammed. Pitched their packed tents on the putting green, and surmounting notches of the Kotan, declared themselves ready for refreshment.

After removing their sandals in the entrance way, the guests were ushered to the spacious dining room of the club house where a banquet replete with delicacies such as Texas cooks only can sucessfully concoct, was set beside them. Minnesota resident smacked his lips over the luscious fried chicken and brown-ed potatoes a dweller in the nation's capital offered apologies for reaching for his fifth slice of fresh brown bread and a caravaner from Illinois squirted with real solicitation whether or not Texas strawberries were of such size every season.

Shiek Bernard S. McMahan waved hot buttered roll with emphasis at the world in general.

"This is the best ever," he remarked with feeling. "We haven't been given a reception anywhere on the road as here in Vernon. I want some to know how we appreciate it all, too."

Following the meal the visitors were shown over the club grounds, and at 10 o'clock were tendered a dance by the local Shrine club and Hill Crest members. Travel stained clothing was removed by the tourists and in its stead were substituted the correct modes of more conventional society.

The small hours were in close proximity when the final orchestra notes faded out, and there was a general round of handshaking and expressions of farewell. Caravaners, be it known, are traditionally early on their way, and the visiting delegation was up and about the next morning ere many Vernon residents had rubbed a full night's sleep from their eyes.

With their "Now I lav me's" scarcely more than said, the desert band members were again up and busily preparing for another day's journey. Unlike the Arab of story who quietly folded his tent and stole away, your modern dweller on the sand puts his foot on the starter, shifts gears and pops pops his way down the pike.

SPECIAL CLAY COURT CALLED

Judge Wilson Holds Record for Speed

Special to the Record News.

HENRIETTA, Texas, May 27.—Judge H. R. Wilson Friday entered an order on the minutes of the district court calling a special term of district court of Clay county to convene Monday, July 10 and continue one week. This was done to enable a number of important business matters which could not be closed at this term of court to be disposed of.

Judge Wilson holds the very enviable distinction of having tried more jury cases and disposed of more non-jury cases than any judge during the past ten years. Both the jurors and the attorneys have been strong in their praise of Judge Wilson for the expeditious manner with which he has handled this docket.

ELECTRA WILL LAY WATER LINE

Dam Needed For Increased Supply

Special to the Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, May 27.—The city of Electra has contracted for the laying of a 10-inch water line from the standpipe to the city reservoir closing the deal with the James Construction company of Dallas for laying the line complete and testing it out.

The pipe was purchased from the United States Iron and Foundry company, also of Dallas, and the company agreed to start immediate delivery of the pipe and follow with shipments of 900 feet per day until the contract is fulfilled.

According to a report made by the Elrod Engineering company, who has had charge of an exhaustive survey of the general water supply in this vicinity, the only manner in which Electra can increase the supply is to construct the dam at the present reservoir two feet higher and put in sufficient dikes. The possibility of securing water from Red river was set aside as impractical after it was found that some of the larger oil companies have been unsuccessful in developing a permanent supply of water from this source.

The Sensational Sequel to the Drugging of Dixie Dixon

She Was Only a Fluffy Little Chorus Girl, But the Probe Started by the Parents, Who Wouldn't Believe She'd Killed Herself, Has Revealed the Suspicious Death of One Other Girl, and Has Led to the Seizure of Vast Hoards of Dope.

"Dixie Dixon," Mabel Dixon Terrell, Virginia Belle, Whose Death from a Drug, the Police Say, Was Brought About by a Gang of International Dope Vendors Who Feared She Would Tell the Authorities What She Knew of Them.

A CHARMING, spirited southern girl rebelled against the restrictions of her home town, married almost immediately upon graduation from a finishing school and went to live in Chicago. "I just overflowed," she said, when explaining to a friend why she left the place of her birth. Within a short time she was again swept from her moorings by the high tide of her emotions. She moved on to New York—where life offered more of a challenge.

Not so long ago a chauffeur carried into the Harlem Hospital the inert body of this girl dying of drug poisoning.

Such was the beginning and the end of Dixie Dixon, a "Virginia thoroughbred, a creature gone crazy with the joy of living."

"Who drugged Dixie Dixon," and "why," are still unanswered questions. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Terrell of Danville, Va., say their daughter was drugged to death. They are supported in this belief by the opinions of both American and Canadian investigators who declared, almost immediately after her death, that Dixie Dixon was murdered by a clique of international drug smugglers, now being shadowed under the direction of Dr. Carleton Simon, chief of the narcotic squad, New York city.

Scarcely had they voiced these opinions when Dorothy Wardell, who, like Dixie Dixon, had gone on the stage, died from causes exactly similar. The body was discovered when the Montreal express steamed into the Grand Central that morning. Mrs. Winifred Bruce, Miss Wardell's companion, was apparently in a dying condition and was sent to Bellevue Hospital. An examination of their effects revealed that the two women had been engaged in smuggling drugs and liquor from Canada.

Dorothy Wardell and Dixie Dixon were friends. And while the police do not say that Miss Dixon was in league with the dope smugglers, they had what they considered indisputable evidence that Miss Dixon, like the Wardell girl, knew the smugglers' secrets.

And so the sensational sequel of Dixie Dixon's drugging has not been limited to her own tragic death nor even to the death of Miss Wardell. Hundreds of other persons, both men and women, are threatened with the same fate. The Canadian secret service has intercepted letters showing that the smugglers are using Dixie Dixon's death as a warning to whatever persons may have an incriminating knowledge of their operations. Not only that, but a threat heard in a railroad station north of the line was:

"Dixie Dixon is out of the way and never will talk again."

These words were whispered into the ears of a young and pretty girl by a man whom the police suspected of being implicated in drug running. The girl started, and drawing away from the man made a break for a train that was drawing out.

Vast Extent of Operations

These drug operations are represented as being of such a vast nature that even the police can only make rough estimates of the extent and personnel of the ring. Already drugs appraised at $3,000,000 have been confiscated by Dr. Simon. Outside of the agents themselves there are hundreds of young girls, who inadvertently or through design, have been mixed up with this traffic, it is known.

Occasionally one of these girls talks to the wrong person. Some idea of what happens to the girl then may be gained by referring to the case of Dixie Dixon.

The real story of her death may never be known. The police can only supply such information as was contained in the testimony of Martin J. Ryan, a chauffeur, who carried the dying girl to Harlem Hospital.

According to his story, he met Dixie Dixon the night of her death when she was searching vainly for something with a "kick in it." Ryan did not say that he was a close companion to the girl. He knew, of course, she had had her days of grandeur, but she didn't appear to be particularly depressed over her lost estate.

He made the rounds of the down-town cabarets with her, Ryan said. About 10 o'clock the girl exclaimed:

"I simply must get some dope; let's go to a place uptown where I can get it."

She jumped into his car and he drove her to Harlem. At her direction he stopped in front of a house the address of which he could not remember. After they were there a few minutes three men came out of the house and one of them handed Dixie a package.

She examined it, after they had driven off, and made an exclamation of annoyance.

"It's the wrong stuff," she said, "but I'll try it."

Soon afterward she lost consciousness. Ryan was alarmed, but he thought he would wake her up by driving around a bit, which he did. When she didn't recover, he took her to the Harlem Hospital and carried her inside in his arms. She died without recovering consciousness. An autopsy was performed by Dr. Benjamin Schwartz, of the medical examiners' office of New York, and her death was attributed to heroin poisoning.

Opposed to the theory that Dixie Dixon was the victim of a drug smugglers' plot, is the belief held by Mrs. Kitty Jennings, of the Bronx, New York, that she committed suicide. Mrs. Jennings knew her well and was able to rescue her from many serious predicaments. She said:

"Dixie Dixon was the most irresponsible girl I ever knew. She was charming, fascinating and beautiful. She was the true Irish type, with dark blue eyes, long curling eyelashes and raven black hair. She always had a host of admirers.

"Her married life was an unhappy one, for her husband's family was conservative and Dixie was the most Bohemian person imaginable. About a couple of years ago, she told me she was going to get a divorce and marry a New York business man with loads of money of whom she was very fond. This dream was shattered when he married some one else. She became more reckless than ever. She had times of dreadful remorse and tried more than once to take her life. Still I did not then believe that she would really commit suicide. I think that when one intends to take one's own life one doesn't attempt it with others around. Once she tried to throw herself out of the window and I caught her just in time.

"She would disappear for months at a time. When she called us up after these intervals of silence it was, as a rule, for financial help.

Given Another Chance

"Of course, it was a dreadful thing to do, but last September when she had run up a big bill at one of the best hotels in New York and didn't have the money to pay for it, we thought it would be a lesson to her if we allowed the hotel people to have her arrested. She was in the Tombs for nearly nine days. Even that didn't feaze her. So we engaged Robert Connor to defend her. The judge let her off on a suspended sentence after sending for her husband—R. M. Bliss, who, though separated from her, was sending her a regular allowance—and advising him to take her home. The next thing we heard about Dixie, was her death.

"I don't believe Dixie had anything to do with smugglers. She was so irresponsible that her reputation as a chatterbox would have saved her from any such criminal alliance."

Other friends of Dixie Dixon say that no matter how she came to her end, her real tragedy was in her life. She had an insatiable lust for living. The ordinary habits that men and women fall into and which enable them to live comfortably and pleasantly, could get no grip on her fugitive nature.

She wanted the shock of new sensations; she was, according to all who knew her closely, like a fiercely burning flame. She could find no satisfaction in the pleasant respectability of a small town, so she married and went to Chicago. But the discipline of marriage was equally onerous. She rebelled again and again, but a separation was avoided by Bliss's having to go to France with the American forces.

Dixie Dixon as She Appeared on the Stage.

When he returned they had a second honeymoon and for a while she seemed happy. But the old urge was soon lashing her onward. She and her husband were finally separated. She came to New York, lived expensively on money that he sent her, went on the stage, passed with kaleidoscopic rapidity through a hundred hectic experiences and finally, when the rest of life had degenerated into hopeless dulness—she took to drugs and the unreal world that they led her to. With her it was not degeneracy. Her moral fibre was not any weaker. She plunged into this newest vice as one who is hot and perspiring and confined will plunge into cold water.

A naval officer who knew her well declared upon hearing of her death:

"Dixie Dixon was mad with the joy of living. In spite of her escapades she was a thoroughbred—a Virginia thoroughbred. It doesn't seem possible that she could have had anything to do with the people who are named in connection with her life in New York. But, if she really had taken one step downward, she is just the sort to have [illegible] clean through."

A similar story might be told of Dorothy Wardell. She came from Keene, a small town in New Hampshire. Her father, Edward Wardell, owns the Kearsarge Mountain House, well-known resort. Tales of big cities were poured into this little girl's ears. Her life had been one of repression. One day, she couldn't stand it any longer. She fled to the cities. Not only did she involve herself, but her wild tales brought her half-sister, Dolly Baker, to live with her.

The latter is now living in Montreal as Mrs. Cassie Burke. Dr. Simon is trying to make Mrs. Burke rejoin her parents.

The Man With 2 Brains

"When I wrote my name at the hospital I wrote it with my left hand and wrote it backwards. They had to hold it up to a mirror to tell what it was. Then I discovered that I could write with both hands at the same time, but what I write with my left hand is written backward."
— Hayward Thompson.

Physicians and Psychologists Puzzled Over This Shell-Shocked Veteran Who Can Now Write with Both Hands at the Same Time.

A Graphic Illustration Based on a Portrait of Hayward Thompson, Showing How a Man with Two Brains or with Certain Centres Bifurcated, Would See Double Images and Consequently Would Be Confused with Double Thoughts.

WHAT may develop into the strangest case in the history of biological science is now under the observation of Denver, Col., physicians. The case is that of Hayward Thompson of Kansas City, who, while having the appearance of a normal man, gives evidence of possessing two independently functioning brains.

Thompson is first of all a victim of amnesia. That is to say, he remembers only two months of his thirty-one years of life. But he is also able to write with both hands, though in opposite directions, and to draw cartoons with a considerable amount of technical skill. Investigation into his history has revealed that he had neither of these gifts prior to a motorcycle accident which he suffered in St. Louis back in 1909. A divorced wife, Mrs. May Thompson, now in Springfield, Mo., declares that Thompson's ability to write with both hands appeared shortly after this accident, though it is Thompson's belief that he has developed this ability only since Feb. 2, beyond which date his memory doesn't extend.

This newest phase of Thompson's life began Feb. 2. Looking back on the experience now, it seems to Thompson the first day of his life, though, of course, he has all the instinctive abilities of men and all the natural racial memories. He was registered at the Auditorium Hotel in Denver as Thomas A. Anderson and thought of himself as such.

A man he did not know came up to him in the hotel lobby and addressed him as Thompson. He insisted his name was Anderson, but the stranger was positive that he had met him the year before and that his name unquestionably was Thompson. Thompson then made an effort to think back over his life and found that it had become a blank. He talked for a long time with the "stranger."

"Then," said Thompson, "I moved over to the West Court Hotel and was there about a week when I became totally blind. Dr. Edward Delehanty sent me out to a hospital where I regained my sight four days later. When I wrote my name at the hospital I wrote it with my left hand and wrote it backward. They had to hold it up to a mirror to tell what it was.

"Then I discovered I could write with both hands at the same time, but what I write with my left hand is written backward.

"They tell me now I could do this before—I do not remember that.

"Talking things over with a fellow I met on the street—he was an ex-service man—I was advised to go to the United States Veterans' Bureau. There Morton David, the adjutant, established my identity as Hayward Thompson, of Kansas City. I am on the bureau's records as drawing compensation. The record shows I served in the marine corps.

"I telegraphed to Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., assistant secretary of the navy, and found that my enlistment papers gave as my next of kin, my wife, May Lucille Thompson, and three children, of Flemington, Mo., and my mother, Mrs. Louise Thompson of Chicago.

"I telegraphed to my wife at Flemington. She hadn't lived there since 1919 and I couldn't find out where she had gone. I telegraphed to my mother. The answer I got was that she had died last October and that nobody there knew of any relatives.

Didn't Know of His Divorce

"Until a Kansas City newspaper found my wife—they tell me I am divorced from her—I did not even know that I had ever been in Kansas City. I do not remember it now.

"I found among other things a receipt from the Antlers' Hotel at Colorado Springs which showed that I registered there as H. Thompson, Jan. 20, and stayed about a week. The laundry mark on all my clothes is H. T.

"I had about $400 on me Feb. 2 when I first learned my name is Thompson. In my room was a bank book, but it had been torn to tiny bits. Putting together what pieces could be put together showed frequent deposits of several hundred dollars at a time, but the name of the bank on the book was obliterated."

Thompson is under the care of the American Legion. Prior to the time he was sent to the hospital he was a salesman for a Kansas City firm. X-ray examinations revealed that Thompson's skull had been wired together—an aftermath, it is supposed, of his 1909 motorcycle accident. Investigations by the American Legion brought out that a second shock, that might have had an affect on his mind, occurred during the war. Thompson was classified as a shell-shock victim.

From these facts and from symptoms he now exhibits has come the theory advanced by several Denver physicians that Thompson may have two brains. Prior to his accident in 1909, it is assumed that the two functioned together and coordinately. But this shock started a severance of these two brains which, according to the theory, was completed by the shock he sustained during the war. The two brains, it is declared, may be twin brains, and an explanation for their existence may be found in these principles of biology which control the formation of twins.

Science knows two kinds of twins. The first are those that are born at the same time but come from cells that were separate and independent from the beginning of conception. The second are known as identical twins and spring from what was originally one cell, which split in two at some time during the period of gestation.

Normally this division occurs early in the life of the cell. In such cases the twins when born have complete and separate bodies, though they are markedly similar in nature and appearance.

But when, as is sometimes the case, this separation does not begin until the development of the cell is well along, the twins are joined at birth by a sheet of membrane which has to be cut. Often—when the division starts still later—they are joined so closely that it is not possible to cut them apart. The famous Siamese twins were such a case. And in still other cases Nature apparently does not make up its mind to set up a duality of identity until the formation of the embryo is almost complete. In cases like this the attempt at duality may be apparent in an extra finger or a head strangely large. That is to say, Nature creates two units where one would ordinarily go but doesn't have time to complete the work all along the line.

By such an explanation, according to the reasoning of Denver scientists, would it be possible to account for the growth of two brains inside the skull of Hayward Thompson.

H. E. Jones of New York City, a specialist in psychology and an instructor in that subject at Columbia University, after examining all the available data in the Thompson case, disagreed with the theory that Thompson possessed two brains in a biological sense.

Victim of Bifurcated Brain

His explanation of such phenomena as the new-found ability to draw and the ability to write with the left hand was that it lay in the realm of psychology, and while the case was an unusual one, it involved principles which were well understood by psychologists. Thompson, Mr. Jones believes, is the victim of a diassociation of brain centres.

According to Mr. Jones's belief, Thompson always had the ability to draw, but for some reason this impulse was inhibited. Some one had told him, perhaps, that it was foolish to try to draw and this injunction had the effect of setting up in his conscious mind a feeling that he really couldn't draw. This forced the impulse into his subconscious mind, where it was kept until this accident to his brain made his memory a blank and therefore obliterated the feeling that he didn't know how to draw. Under these circumstances he performed the act of drawing without restraint.

As for the left-handed writing—it was another case of a spontaneous action of the subconscious mind. If a normal person had been told to reproduce with his left hand, exactly the same sort of writing that he made automatically with his right, he would, with great mental effort, produce characters that read from left to right. He would do this because his conscious mind would take charge of the effort and direct it.

But if this effort of the conscious mind were removed he would perform, with his left hand, the mirror reverse of what his right hand had done—or in other words exactly what Thompson has done.

A simple experiment along this line might be conducted by strapping a child's left hand to his side and then telling him to move his right hand in a circular motion toward his chest. Having done this, if you released the child's left hand and told him, "Now do the same thing with your left hand," he would put his left hand through the exact reverse of what his right had done and draw it, also, toward his body. If he had followed instructions literally he would have moved it away from the body. Instead he performed a "mirror reverse."

Dr. Arthur W. Chamber of New York declared that it would be impossible to diagnose a case such as Thompson's without going exhaustively into its history. He was inclined to think, however, that there had been a splitting of the nerves proceeding from the hand, index finger and thumb centres—singly or in combination. He, too, scouted the idea that the explanation of the Thompson case was in the realm of biology.

Meanwhile, every effort is being made by Thompson's friends to bring about a restoration of memory. Both an operation and hypnotism will be resorted to. And further photographic studies of his head will be made to determine the possible truth of the theory that Thompson is the first man in the history of the race to possess two brains.

PRYOR AND PETROLEUM.

COLONEL ISAAC T. PRYOR of San Antonio is a member of the executive committees of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers association and a former president of both the National and Texas Cattle Raisers association. Colonel Pryor says conditions for cattle raisers never were better as far as range and cattle conditions there concerned. He fears, however, that 100,000 head of cattle will be on the market before the winter feeding months begin, that June will see them on their way to market by the car loads and that train loads will be moving in July. Colonel Pryor is a member of the southern tariff congress. This is his latest, "Our democratic friends perpetrate a rank injustice to democratic Texas when they attempt to prevent a tariff on raw materials.

Not many moons ago Colonel Pryor said that the big five fixed the prices of live stock in the American markets, that the packers controlled the South American supply, that they controlled the hide markets of North and South America and were all powerful. This is a republican administration. Both houses of congress are overwhelmingly republican. Democrats haven't a look in. Republicans are making a tariff bill. Colonel Pryor is reminded that petroleum is a raw material. Republicans were urged to place a tariff on oil importations. President Harding and congressional republican leaders said that as all the people ar econsumers of petroleum products that it wouldn't be wise to shut out importations from Mexico and other countries by placing a high tariff on the same. Mexican crude is on the free list.

The colonel is asked to answer this question, If foreign crudes are on the free list because all the people use petroleum products why shouldn't all meat stuff and hides be on the free list? All the people eat meat if they have the money to buy it. All the people wear shoes if they have the money to pay for them. This isn't an argument for free raw materials.

The writer is a seeker for information. And Colonel Pryor is reminded that Congressman Guinn Williams is a farmer and stockman and a Wilson democrat. He is further reminded that all of the stockmen engaged in the livestock industry in the thirteenth district are said to have cast their votes for Williams. How comes it that a farmer and a stockman is for free raw materials, if the doctrine is pernicious and its practice disastrous? More information, that's all.

GARRETT HAS GRIEVANCES

CONGRESSMAN DANIEL E. GARRETT of Texas is a bit sore. He backed the bill to appropriate $2,000 to furnish free seed to destitute farmers in the flooded districts of the Mississippi valley and of Texas.

Congressman Martin V. Madden and his fellow republican leaders killed it after the congress had donated $20,000,000 for relief in Russia, made a $5,000,000 loan to Liberia on the African coast and given millions to Northwestern wheat growers. Garrett of Texas had a kick coming. "Home first" is a sane slogan.

POLITICS AND GREATNESS

THOMAS A. Edison and Henry Ford are the most remarkable men of the age. Edison advises the administration to accept the Muscle Shoals offer made by Ford. Thomas A. Edison is not a politician. Henry Ford is not a politician. Neither of these distinguished gentlemen know the tricks of the trade. Gigantic interests are lined up against Ford.

Political interests are lined up against him. Many rail chieftains are lined up against him. Ford is one of the bewildering successes of the age. He handles more cash than any one man in the world—that is, cash all his own. He is positive that the water power going to waste east of the Mississippi river would furnish light and heat and power for all the people of America.

If he is correct and he could make it possible, then what would happen to many gigantic concerns and the hundreds of millions of investment which they represent? Henry Ford is responsible for the political issue known as "Newberryism." He is responsible for many other issues which are uppermost; but he is not going to get Muscle Shoals. His enemies have blocked him.

ILLUSTRATED BY HUBERT MATHIEU

WHEN the long, long day is over, and the Big Boss gives me my pay,
I hope that it won't be hell-fire, as some of the parsons say.
And I hope that it won't be heaven, with some of the parsons I've met—
All I want is just quiet, just to rest and forget.
Look at my face, toil-furrowed; look at my callous hands;
Master, I've done Thy bidding, wrought in Thy many lands—
Wrought for the little masters, big-bellied they be, and rich;
I've done their desire for a daily hire, and I die like a dog in a ditch.
I have used the strength Thou hast given, Thou knowest I did not shirk;
Threescore years of labor—Thine be the long day's work.
And now, Big Master, I'm broken and bent and twisted and scarred,
But I've held my job, and Thou knowest, and Thou will not judge me hard.
Thou knowest my sins are many, and often I've played the fool—
Whiskey and cards and women, they made me the devil's tool.
I was just like a child with money; I flung it away with a curse,
Feasting a fawning parasite, or glutting a woman's purse;
Then back to the woods repentant, back to the mill or the mine,

I, the worker of workers, everything in my line.
Everything hard but headwork (I'd no more brains than a kid),
A brute with brute strength to labor, doing as I was bid;
Living in camps with men-folk, a lonely and loveless life;
Never knew kiss of sweetheart, never caress of wife.
A brute with brute strength to labor, and they were so far above—
Yet I'd gladly have gone to the gallows for one little look of Love.
I, with the strength of two men, savage and shy and wild—
Yet how I'd ha' treasured a woman, and the sweet, warm kiss of a child!
Well, 'tis Thy world, and Thou knowest. I blaspheme and my ways be rude;
But I've lived my life as I found it, and I've done my best to be good;
I, the primitive toiler, half naked and grimed to the eyes,
Sweating it deep in their ditches, swining it stark in their styes;
Hurling down forests before me, spanning tumultuous streams;
Down in the ditch building o'er me palaces fairer than dreams;
Boring the rock to the ore-bed, driving the road through the fen,
Resolute, dumb, uncomplaining, a man in a world of men.
Master, I've filled my contract, wrought in Thy many lands;
Not by my sins wilt Thou judge me, but by the work of my hands.
Master, I've done Thy bidding, and the light is low in the west,
And the long, long shift is over . . . . Master, I've earned it—Rest.

WHERE THE REDS WON

FRANK A. VANDERLIP, for years recognized as one of the foremost American financiers, declares that the best brains of Europe were outwitted by the soviet-Russians in the disputes at Genoa and that the reds carried off the honors when it came to cold political logic.

These so-called reds of Russia formed an economic alliance with Germany, and now the news comes that Italy has formed an economic pact with soviet Russia and has broken away from the old entente. Italy is the first of the allies to unite with Russia for economic purposes, and Italy and Germany combined are certain to make powerful economic allies for the Slav. Germany needs raw materials. She knows where to go for them.

Some day there will be an alliance of the Teuton, the Slav, the Italian, the Turk and the Mongol, all for trading purposes. This reminds the writer that the trade dollar is without a conscience and that trade rivalries provoked many of the European wars of the past. Frank A. Vanderlip is a broad-gaged and far-seeing American. He would like to see his country first and he is doing his best to convince some of his countrymen that isolation of America is not the wise part to play to hold the friendship of the world or to capture the trade of the world.

A republican senate judiciary committee held the Dyer anti-lynching bill to be constitutional. Now the people of Texas and all other southern states should place men in office who will stand for the enforcement of the written law at any cost and do away with that mobocracy which delights in burning criminals for their crimes regardless of the civilization of the age and the boasted superiority of the white man.

A reaction is inevitable and in a few years the dear girls may become old-fashioned again and work samplers reading: "God bless our jitney."

THE 5:15 —By Segar

SPEAKING OF FIGURES

PRESIDENT W. B. BIZZELL of the Agricultural and Mechanical college is responsible for the following if the Fort Worth Record has given the correct figures.

"There are enough untaxed resources in the state to provide the necessary $60,000,000 a year to put our public schools on a firm foundation. The only thing needed is a revision of our tax system and the courage to tax the property that is not bearing its proportionate share of taxation."

President Bizzell must have said $6,000,000 instead of $60,000,000. If he said $60,000,000, Jones the freight payer is going to take down his trusty Winchester and go out on the war path in quest of candidates for the legislature and compel them to come across with ready answers to his burning question.

STEEL VS. GALL

SENATOR LEONARD PHIPPS of Colorado is a republican and of the House of Steel. Senator Thomas E. Watson of Georgia is a democrat, and of the House of Gall. President Harding named three Georgians for post offices in that state. Senator Watson said that the three had spoken disrespectfully of him and he demanded of the senate that it should reject the nominations. The senator of the House of Steel defended the nominations, and the senator of the House of Gall delivered himself of this polished reply, "If you say a word out of the way, I'll knock you down—I punch your face into pulp." The senator of the House of Steel became tongue-tied while the senator of the House of Gall was led away by a Quaker friend. If there is a vacancy somewhere to be filled, Jack Dempsey should be elected in order that the senator of the House of Gall may have a sparring partner ready for business whenever the pulp making fever flames in the breast of the senator of the House of Gall. Phipps ran away. Dempsey would hold his own. He has a vocabulary and two big fists and his vocabulary is as coarse and repellant as that of the senator of the House of Gall.

FROM SEAT IN GALLERY

BY HERBERT COREY

DIGNITY runs for the end book in this town. That may be an obsolete comparison, now that horse-racing, policy gigs and seven-year-old whiskey have been ruled out of order in our well-pured country. But, anyhow, dignity does run for the end book. Reporters, justices of the supreme court, senators and western congressmen all talk, laugh, joke and walk a good deal like ordinary human beings. Upon occasion they slap each other on the back. They may pull on false faces when they meet the public, but among themselves—in this neutral ground of Washington—they are just folks.

No one has slapped Brigadier General Sawyer on the back. No one has ever thrust an irreverent thumb in his narrow ribs. No one has ever entrapped him into a smile.

It is a good thing that there is at least one exponent of old-fashioned, high-collared, chin-whiskered dignity in town. There is nothing loose about Sawyer. His dignity is so external that it is ectoplasmic. You can, as Sir Arthur Sherlock Holmes so well said, take it in your hands. To see him walk down one of the local peacock alleys is to witness the progress of an irresistible force not getting anywhere. His air is one of majestic isolation. Some folks call him Doc, but that is mere bravado. His eyes grow even more sad when they fall upon such rufflers.

He didn't do so well with his dignity when he first came to Washington. The reporters here have seen so many eminent men come and go. They have observed important personages ride in on the whirlwind and dribble out through a crack. A high, stern, lofty face is regarded merely as a high, stern, lofty face until what is behind the facade has been isolated and determined. Anyhow, the practise is to laugh at the habit of giving a title to the president's private pulsemeter. Doc Grayson is still Doc Grayson in Washington. It is only on the naval rolls that he is an admiral.

But more lately Doc-Brigadier General Sawyer seems to have done pretty well with his private brand of dignity. The first idea that he is a pewee, merely because he can make weight for the derby without abating an ounce, has passed away. The bunch has comprehended that any one who has passed the better part of his life suspecting mental symptoms in each caller might not be able to cast off that air upon receiving the accolade. He may not weigh over one hundred and ten pounds in his whiskers, and the star on his shoulder may save him from insult by people who want messenger boys, but he is making his way.

Because his dignity is not dignity so much as it is earnestness. He always has something else on his mind. When he makes a military salute tears spring to his eyes of his fellow officers. He doesn't care about the salute. He isn't worrying about how his elbow is crooked. He is thinking of how to make the government do something it never has done, or make it do some other thing better. He will not talk about anything except these things. He will interrupt the most sacred conclave by clamoring about public welfare. He would sit on a hysterical patient in the same preoccupied way. His mind is not merely a single-track affair. It is upon occasion a monorail.

Anyhow, he doesn't wear a sword.

WHERE CASH ROLLED

SENATOR HARRY S. NEW was defeated for re-nomination by Albert J. Beveridge. His campaign cost him $24,080.68 in Indianapolis and Marion county or more than twice as much as Beveridge spent in the entire state of Indiana. Harry S. New is serving his first term which is to be his last. His salary is $7,500 per year.

If he relied on his salary alone he would be a financial bankrupt, but luckily for him, he doesn't. He has a large fortune and one of the best paying newspapers of the middlewest. He voted for Newberry and it cost him thousands of votes. Yet Newberry's campaign cost his friends $400,000. Politics is a fascinating sport for the chap who plays it on the outside and has fun with those who are on the inside.

According to the attorney general it is permissable for a senatorial candidate in Texas to spend $10,000 in his race for the office, and $10,000 is the maximum. Regardless of this is the friends of the senatorial candidate wish to advertise his cause in the newspapers of a commonwealth there is no law to prevent them from going the limit. Business is business, and publicity of the penetrating kind is the thing that appeals to the average voter.

PAY OR WALK

ACCORDING to the investigators on April 1, stock of gasoline held in storage totaled 854,231,655 gallons. Investigators say that stocks of gasoline on April 1 were 53 per cent larger than on April 1, 1919, and that the American people are using 93 per cent more gasoline than three years ago. There are 11 million motor cars in the United States. There are many trucks and tractors in the United States. Those who do not like to pay the price are privileged to walk. They can't help themselves.

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

Tiny "Ships" to Explore Interior of the Body

IN spite of all the progress that medical science has made within the past few years, it may seem strange that physicians still have to grope in the dark to some extent in certain cases, especially when it comes to ascertaining the effect of certain bacteria or medicines on a particular part of the gastro-intestinal tract. Such is the case, however, and in order accurately to determine just what effect the bacteria in buttermilk, for example, have on certain sections of the intestinal canal, Prof. von den Reis of the University of Greifswald, Germany, according to cable dispatches, has been using with considerable success tiny, electro-magnetically controlled metal "ships" fitted with iron doors. One of the accompanying illustrations shows the shape and size of one of these metal cylinders, and anyone who has swallowed quinine capsules or especially the larger gelatine capsules containing various oils, et cetera, will realize that quite a large cylinder can thus be easily swallowed. These cylinders, which are described in Science and Invention, are used to unload bacteria at any desired point in the intestinal tract, as well as to take on samples of the secretions at certain points in their travels. They are made of silver or some other metal plated with silver or platinum. A series of small iron doors or valves are fitted on the capsule and these can be opened and closed by means of a powerful electro-magnet placed against the back or abdomen of the subject, the position of the "ship" being accurately determined by means of the X-ray.

When the Capsule Has Reached the Right Point, the Physician Switches on the Electro-Magnet Which Opens the Capsule Doors to Take a Sample of Secretion or Else to Discharge Bacteria.

At the Left—The Platinum or Silver-Plated Capsule Fitted with Spring Doors or Valves, Being Swallowed by the Patient.

The Illustration Above Shows How the Physician Locates the Exact Position of the Collector Capsule Swallowed by the Patient.

When the metal capsule with its load of bacteria, or else traveling in ballast reaches the desired point, Prof. von den Reis excites the powerful electro-magnet, which causes the iron valves to open, these valves being closed by the pressure of a spring when the magnetic attraction is cut off.

The method of procedure in making a scientific test for the effect of certain bacteria on the digestive processes is as follows: The patient first swallows one or more of the capsules containing the bacteria and the travels of the capsules are traced with the X-ray, and their cargoes are discharged at the proper moment. Shortly afterward when sufficient time has elapsed for the bacteria or medicine to act upon the food in the intestinal tract, empty capsules are swallowed, and when these reach the scene of action, as determined by the use of the X-ray once more, the trap doors are opened and a sample of the food being acted upon by the bacteria and the bodily secretions is trapped, and later these samples of the contents of the intestines are studied minutely in the experimental laboratory.

Why WATER in the EARS MAY Be DANGEROUS to BATHERS

A WARNING to those who have any trouble with their ears to be careful about sea bathing is issued by Dr. Alexander Rovinsky of New York in the Medical Record. Dr. Rovinsky says that every ear specialist has noted a large increase in the number of patients during the months of July, August and September, which comprise the bathing season.

The troubles are caused by the water, though not, as might be imagined, by its entrance into the outer ear, except in cases where the drum is perforated. The water entering through the nose and mouth and finding its way into the eustachian canal, and so to the middle ear, is what causes it.

Dr. Rovinsky would not forbid bathing to those with slight ear troubles, but "those with acute middle ear disease or active chronic purulent affection should be prohibited from sea and river bathing altogether. This applies with even greater force to sufferers from any labyrinthine affection."

Those with chronic catarrhal disease of the ears may be permitted to bathe if they do not swim strenuously, and especially avoid diving. Instead of this, they may duck their heads if they first stop up their noses and ears with their fingers. Others who suffer occasionally may bathe if they plug their ears with cotton dipped in olive oil, wear close-fitting rubber caps, covering the ears, avoid diving and ducking, and always keep above water.

When trouble arises, a plug of sterile gauze saturated with alcohol is inserted. "The inflamed area is first painted with a solution of silver nitrate, and the plug should be inserted to fit in snugly, but not so tight as to feel uncomfortable. The first two or three minutes the patient may complain of increased pain, but this soon gives way to a sense of diffused warmth attended by considerable relief; the patient is instructed to keep the dressing moist by saturating it every hour or two."

Dr. Rovinsky says that he has found in a great many cases gratifying relief from this simple application within 24 or 36 hours. In more advanced cases when the infiltration of the tissues is considerable, or where pointing calls for incision and curettage, as in deeply situated furuncles, this dressing keeps the wound clean, and is continued for a time until the healing is started.

Dr. Rovinsky reminds his readers that the water along shore—at least in the neighborhood of cities and the estuaries of rivers—may be polluted by sewage and often laden with germs which may excite inflammation if inhaled or swallowed and so forced into the middle ear.

On the other hand, he extols residence at the seaside and carefully supervised bathing for the anaemic, the poorly developed, and especially for tuberculous children. The benefit is derived from "change of the environment, the psychic effect of carefree sporting life, an element of enjoyment of great importance, exposure to sunshine, running and romping on the beach—all of these result in a number of peripheral stimuli with a consequent series of reactions. The overstimulated and overwrought city dweller is beneficially affected by the very aspect of the sea view, which induces a restful mental state.

"The effects of immersion in the water," Dr. Rovinsky says, "are due to the variability in the temperature of the sea and the air; as the body is wholly or partly immersed in the water, this variability is increased by the motion of the air, the wind and the water. The humid, pure air of the seashore is under greatest atmospheric pressure, and consequently is rich in oxygen. Thus sea bathing exerts a very pronounced effect on the nervous system as well as on nutrition in general."

Why BABIES Have STRONG GRIPS

YOU may have noticed how tightly a baby can hold your hand, or with what force it can pull your hair. Surprising as it may appear, the child's fingers are relatively stronger than those of its father.

You can lift an infant quite safely if it grasps your thumbs—for it will hold on without apparent effort, and swing.

Physicians say that for the first four years of its life, a child is virtually a young animal, incapable of other than "cupboard love." But in spite of its weakness of body it has inherited great strength of fingers and agility of limbs.

According to anthropologists, primitive man made his home in trees like the birds. He had to hang on to branches, and so he developed powerful fingers and muscular arms.

There was no family life such as that of today, for though father, mother and children kept together if they could, they were always changing their homes to avoid their enemies.

When danger threatened father could clamber away at top speed. But mother was handicapped by her baby. When a leopard climbed her tree seeking his dinner, however, she simply had to use both arms to escape. So baby had to look after itself, or be eaten.

You can guess what happened—baby tightly grasped its mother's neck, or fastened its fingers in her hair, and hung on for dear life, as the mother swung from branch to branch to safety.

Babies who couldn't cling were killed and eaten. Only the strongest survived—to pass on the "knack" to babies of today. That is why a baby who cannot even stand can easily support itself by hanging on to an object by its fingers. Place your walking stick near any baby, and watch the instant, instinctive clutch.

Why WOOL Is Worn as CLOTHING

WHEN you order a suit of clothes, you usually make careful inquiries as to whether the material is all wool, and when the tailor assures you that this is the case you feel quite satisfied. But does it ever occur to you to ask where the wool comes from?

Wool is valuable as a material for cloth-making because it is so "crinkly." The finest, softest, silkiest wool—which is Saxony—has no fewer than 2700 crinkles to the inch. Australian wool has 2400 crinkles, but Leicestershire wool only 1800.

You can make blankets of English wool, but for weaving the closer-grained fabrics, such as serges and tweeds, English wool must be mixed with wools from abroad. For instance, to make the cloths known as "Cheviots," English wool is blended with the wool of half-bred New Zealand sheep.

Cape wool is fine, but short, and is good for making shawls, while South American wool is fine in the hair, but apt to be dirty and full of burrs. The burrs can be destroyed by a chemical process, but the wool is generally used for making worsted yarn.

You often see "lamb's wool" mentioned. This is from animals of under six months old. Yearling wool is from sheep aged up to eighteen months, while wool from older animals is known as "fleece."

Fleece is divided into a number of different qualities. Picklock is the choice; prime the next best. After that come "choice," "super," "head," "seconds," "abb," and "broach." The last is merely the startings and edgings of the fleece.

Many very useful fabrics are made of a mixture of cotton and wool. But there are others masquerading as wool which contain cotton. Cotton can be detected by putting a piece of the material in a bath of bleaching liquid, which whitens the cotton but turns the wool yellow.

How PINE TREES Make TURPENTINE

THE operation of turpentining pine trees does not lower the strength or resin content of the wood, according to information obtained by the Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, Wis. The crude turpentine, or oleoresin, is not drained from a store in the tree, but is manufactured under the stimulus of the wound by living cells in the sapwood immediately adjacent to the cut on the trunk. No turpentine is produced by the heartwood because all of its cells are dead. The heartwood may be saturated in places with pitch but this does not readily flow out as does the resin freshly formed in the sapwood.

The major part of the tree is not appreciably affected, and the loss due to death of trees or to a reduction or degrading of lumber is very small when the proper method of turpentining is followed; this loss is more than offset by the additional revenue obtained through turpentining. The greater part of the wood that is chipped away would not have become finished lumber, but would have gone into slabs and edgings at the sawmill. With proper treatment, the turpentined faces remain healthy, and the wood underneath does not become saturated with resin.

MAGIC of the MYSTIC NUMBER 7

THE number seven has always been considered specially sacred and it is found in the religions, traditions and folklore legends of many races. Twentieth century civilization is derived from the Orient, and the Orientals have always been "strong" for the number seven, as the following examples indicate: The seven sleepers, the seven churches of Asia, the seven cities, the seven sages, the seven virtues, the seven sins, the seven hills of Rome, the seven gifts of the Holy Ghost, the seven sorrows, the seven days of creation, the seven days of the week (a wholly arbitrary division of time having no connection with the month, year or any natural cycle), the seven graces, the seven stars (this means the Pleiades, but there are hundreds of stars in this group, and not merely seven), the seven divisions of the Lord's prayer, the seven ages in the life of man, etc.

Every seventh year was sacred to the Jews; there are the "sabbatical" or seventh years, while seven times seven years brings a jubilee year. The three great Jewish feasts lasted seven days, and between the first and second was an interval of seven weeks; Levitical purification lasted seven days.

A person is presumed to be dead if he remains away seven years and is not heard of. Shakespeare speaks of "a vile thief this seven year." There were seven sacred books; seven bodies in alchemy and seven champions of Christianity. St. Denis of France, according to legend, lived seven years in the form of a deer. St. Andrew of Scotland, tradition says, found some maidens who had lived seven years as white swans, and he rescued them from their enchantment. St. James of Spain was dumb seven years because of love for a fair Jewess. St. David of Wales slept seven years in an enchanted garden before he was delivered by St. George.

The ancient teaching was that man had seven senses; there were seven wonders of the ancient world, and another seven of the modern world; ancient leases were for seven years or multiples of seven. There were "seven years" wars and "seven weeks" wars.

"Occultism and magic," says a writer in the Pathfinder, "are also full of this same use of seven, and we all have to confess that this 'perfect' number exercises a certain special influence on us. We simply can't get away from these old traditions, which have been inbred into our very being.

"The Celts evidently migrated from the Orient, and they brought with them to the uttermost limits of their westward wanderings all the ancient legendary awe of the 'perfect' numbers, such as one, three, seven, 10, 40, etc. Where there is more than one thing, the number almost invariably jumps to three; where there are more than three it jumps to seven; then it jumps to 10 or to multiples of the other 'perfect' numbers. For instance, a young man is not considered of age till he is 21, or three times seven—though as a matter of fact when he is 17 he may know more than his father—or at least he thinks he does.

"The next jump is to 40, which is the old 'round number.' We find this number also occurring all through ancient lore. The rain of the flood fell 40 days; Moses was 40 days on the mount; Elijah was fed 40 days by the ravens; 40 days was the period for embalming; Nineveh had 40 days to repent, the Lord fasted 40 days. The alchemists thought that 40 days was the charmed period in which the elixir of life (which was probably alcohol) was brewed. If it rains on St. Swithin's day this portends 40 days of rain.

"The word 'quarantine' means 40 and it was formerly a period of 40 days; a knight could exact 40 days of service a year from his vassal; members of the English Parliament were protected from arrest for 40 days after adjournment; a newly elected burgess had to forfeit 40 pence unless he built a new house within 40 days. The Jews were forbidden by the Mosaic law to give more than 40 stripes to an offender, and in order to be safe in their count they made it only 39. There were 40 thieves in the Arabian Nights tale and you take '40 winks' of sleep."

Why GOLD Has MANY COLORS

AS seen by the eye in broad daylight, gold appears a brilliant yellow. But this is not quite the true color of the metal, as some of the white light that falls on it is just reflected back and in a sense dilutes it.

By eliminating this white light the real color of pure gold will be seen as a brilliant orange color, quite different from the familiar yellow.

But that is only the color of gold by reflected light. Take a piece of gold beaten to the thinness of fine paper, and then look through it and the gold is seen to be leek-green in color, though it still looks yellow by reflected light.

But gold can possess still other colors.

If it is in the finest powder possible, pure gold will be a bright ruby red, or, in a slightly different form, blue in color.

If gold is heated until it turns into a vapor it is still pure gold, but in the form of a gas. Its color then is purple.

Gold in a melted state glows with a deep phosphorescent yellowish-green, and is remarkable for its brilliant beauty.

It does not require much gold to give a metal object the appearance of gold, the gold layer being less than one three-millionth part of an inch thick.

Expensive china ware is tinted blue by means of gold, which is precipitated on the china in the form of a fine blue powder, and made fast by heating.

Ruby tints in glass ware are due to a minute trace of gold mixed with it in the making.

Thin gold wire is often worked into expensive brocades. Usually this wire is not solid gold, but just a layer of gold over silver wire. In this way one ounce of gold can be drawn out to a length of 1300 miles, and in no place can the silver be seen under it.

BEE POISON as a CURE

FATAL poisoning in man as a result of the sting of bees is by no means unknown, according to The Journal of the American Medical Association. The bee poison has awakened the interest of investigators, not merely because its effects need frequently to be counteracted in persons who have been stung, but also because it formerly acquired some reputation as a therapeutic product, with a history of many years' standing.

The sting of bees has been recommended in many parts of the world, usually as a suggestion of popular lay therapy, for palliating a great diversity of disease conditions, among which rheumatic disorders stand foremost.

Even physicians have not been averse to the trial of treatment with bee poison, and there are records of patients subjected to increasing numbers of "bites" up to a total of 50, or even a hundred, a day. In such cases the effects have been far more pronounced than mere local manifestations of bee sting.

How CURVES Are LAID OUT by FOLDING PAPER

HOW curves can be laid out by folding paper is described as follows in The Scientific American by Francis M. Weston, Jr.:

On a piece of thin paper or tracing cloth draw a circle (Fig. 1) and take any point P without the circle. Fold the paper so that the point P falls somewhere on the circumference of the circle, and crease it down hard. Open up the paper and in the same manner fold it again and again so that the point P falls successively on a number of points completely around the circumference. It will be found that the successive creases in the paper have traced out an ellipse, as shown by the dotted lines in Fig. 1. The transverse axis of this ellipse is equal to the radius of the given circle, and the foci are the point P and the centre C of the circle.

If we prepare several pieces of paper with the point P taken successively nearer the centre C of the circle, the resulting ellipses will be found to have successively less eccentricity and to approach a circle in shape, until finally when the point P coincides with the centre of the circle, as in Fig. 2, the curve traced by the creases is a circle.

If, now, we consider the point P as moving farther from the centre of the circle, the resulting ellipses—with transverse axes always equal to the radius of the given circle—become flatter, until, when the point P is actually on the circumference of the circle, the ellipse degenerates into a straight line.

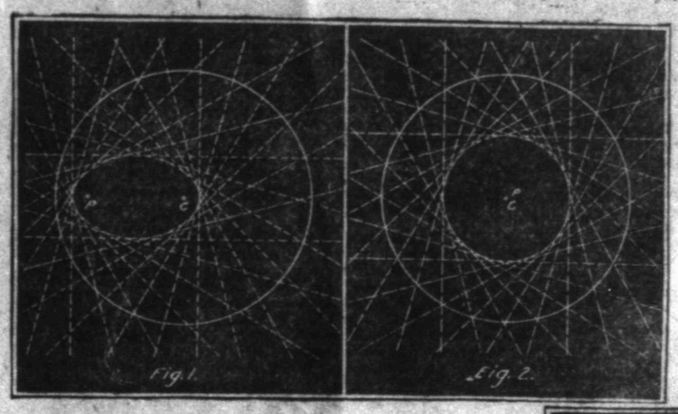

Fig. 1, Ellipse.

Fig. 2, Circle.

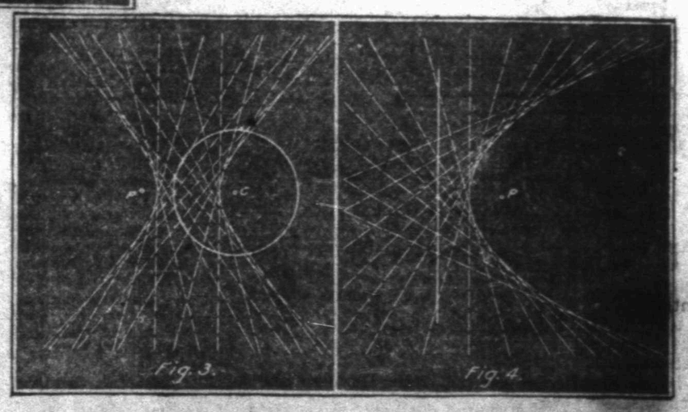

Fig. 3, Hyperbolas.

Fig. 4, Parabolas.

As soon as the point P crosses the circumference and is outside of the circle, the creases in the paper trace an hyperbola. As in the ellipse, the transverse axis of the hyperbola is equal to the radius of the circle and the foci are the point P and the centre C of the circle (Fig. 3).

When the given circle is considered to increase indefinitely in size until the comparatively small portion of its circumference that can be shown on a sheet of paper is practically a straight line, the curve traced by the creases resulting from folding the point P on successive points along this straight line is a parabola. The point P is the focus of the parabola, and the straight line its directrix (Fig. 4).

That these curves are true "conic sections" and not haphazard shapes may be proved by anyone familiar with the methods of analytical geometry—the equation of any one of the creases, referred to rectangular co-ordinates, may be thrown into a form recognizable as the equation to a tangent to the particular curve under investigation.

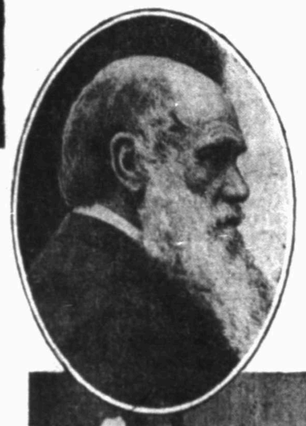

In This Method of Constructing Curves the Envelope Principle Is Applied.

GAZING out across the sea from his St. Helena exile Napoleon put a fretful curse upon the fate that brought him to this final humiliation. For the Napoleon of St. Helena was not the pinioned eagle, not the man of iron will and swift discernment—but a creature given frequently to self-pity and over-eating. Apathy and indolence and a disposition to sulk before his captors were what impressed those who saw him in his last days.

But Napoleon might have aimed his fretful curse at a more specific object. Instead of railing at that figurative entity known as Fate, he should have blamed a little lump of tissue about the size of a pea which was concealed in his brain. For, according to Dr. Louis Berman of New York, the rise and fall of Napoleon followed exactly the rise and fall of his pituitary gland.

New and strange powers are attributed to the pituitary and other glands of internal secretion in a book by Dr. Berman, called "The Glands Regulating Personality," which has just been published. He not only interprets the great figures of history in the light of their glandular actions and thereby explains many of their most important achievements, but makes understandable the temperamental differences in all human beings whether of yesterday or today.

If there is any such thing as the chemistry of the soul, it goes on in these ductless glands, in Dr. Berman's opinion. The magic fluids which they give off into the body not only influence directly such important functions as growth of bone and tissue, but in one way or another contribute to all those qualities that differentiate human beings from mere palpitant protoplasm. A balance between these glands insures a normal life. But let this balance be disturbed and its results are seen lives that burn with the hectic intensity of a fireworks pinwheel, then suddenly go out, lives that are listless, lives that are marked with magnificent special abilities, lives that are curiously shot through with moral delinquencies. Let a child appear whose mind seems clouded and stifled and the trained observer will immediately look for a stunted thyroid. Let some otherwise courageous person show up as a consistent failure in all the emergencies of his life and the observer will know, in the same way, that the adrenal glands are insufficient. Let a boy prodigy such as Samuel Rzeszewski, the chess marvel, startle the world and science looks for an inferior pineal or a superior frontal pituitary.

Roughly speaking, a gland is a collection of cells which takes in certain constituents from the blood, performs a chemical operation upon them, then discharges the resultant fluid either through some channel to the body's exterior or back into the blood. The glands of internal secretion, or the ductless glands, which for so long a time have been mysterious strangers to most scientists, are glands which have no definite outlet. They yield their manufactured juices but through the blood and, as some scientists contend, also through the lymphatic vessels. This fluid, thus given off, ministers with varying effect upon the tissues of different parts of the body. The pituitary discharge plays directly upon the brain cells, the adrenals work first upon the heart—and so on.

Thus it is that your gland chemistry controls your career, for their distillation, by every test is the very elixir of life.

The most important and the most recently-explored of these ductless glands are the pituitary and the pineal, in the brain, the thyroid, parathyroid and thymus in the region of the neck, the pancreas near the lower part of the stomach, the adrenals just above the liver and the interstitial or sex glands.

These glands have been likened by Dr. Berman to a board of directors with each member exercising an approximately equal power. Every now and then—in fact more often than not—one or two of them dominate the rest.

Napoleon's Genius Glandular

In the case of Napoleon Bonaparte it was the anterior or forward lobe of the pituitary which was superior. As the anterior pituitary, which is sometimes loosely described as the gland of intellect, lies very close to the forward part of the brain and pours its secretion into that part, its superiority results in a dominant type of intellect. This was true in Napoleon's case. But even with that his career might have been greatly different if the posterior lobe of this gland had been normal. This rear pituitary—by playing upon these important nerve centres at the base of the brain—has been found to exercise a marked control over the maternal instincts and the affections generally. A person with a superior growth in this lobe is excessively soft-hearted and emotional. Therefore, a normal growth of this gland in Napoleon, might have tempered his extreme intellectuality and restrained him from some of his characteristic acts of ruthlessness.

But his posterior pituitary was deficient, which meant that a dominant mentality was coupled with what is popularly called hardness of heart.

Napoleon, according to the best clinical evidence, also had remarkable thyroid and adrenal glands which gave him the strength and energy to reinforce his natural tendencies. As a result, the map of Europe was changed.

But as has been pointed out, the Napoleon of Austerlitz and Friedland was a different person from the Napoleon of St. Helena. It was his pituitary that finally failed him, according to Dr. Berman. This scientist declares in his book:

"Before he made himself Emperor it was noticed that he was becoming fat, a pituitary symptom. A comparison of portraits at different stages of his rise and fall shows an increasing abdominal paunch and a laying down of fat in the pituitary areas, around the hips, the legs and so on. The beginning of weakness in judgment that he was to exhibit soon in the invasion of Russia manifested itself at the same time. His keen calculating ability attained the peak of its curve at Austerlitz, Jena and Friedland. Thereafter the descent began. A rash, grandiose speculative quality enters his projects and divorces the elaborate co-ordination of means and end from his plans. That his thyroid energy capacity did not fail him is indicated by the fact that at St. Albans he would ride for three hours at the end of the day to tire himself sufficiently for sleep. That his adrenals were not affected is indicated by the brutality which remained characteristic to the end of life."

Farther along, in his chapter on "Historic Personages," Dr. Berman points out that Julius Caesar, Charles Darwin, Friedrich Nietzsche and Florence Nightingale all showed evidence of being pituitary types, though in different combinations from Napoleon, and from each other. In Darwin, Dr. Berman concludes, both lobes of the pituitary were above normal, with the anterior lobe dominating. In addition to that the evidence seemed to adduce that he had a thyroid excess, which meant an abnormally rapid manufacture of energy, and deficient adrenals, which meant poor endurance and the lack of a combative spirit. This combination settled "the fate of a grand intellect in an invalid."

"The Secrets of Life"

In Julius Caesar too much adrenal and post-pituitary seemed to be present, though he had a rare balance in all his glandular departments. This prominence of the post-pituitary had its effect in his sex life. He was given to affairs with women, of which the Cleopatra episode was a notable example. All of this, no doubt, contributed to his epilepsy. Oscar Wilde, he points out, must have been thymos centred, otherwise his life would not have presented such a strange contrast of beauty and grossness.

The determination of these glandular functions is not based on mere speculation. Scientists are constantly tracing their effects more exactly through the evidence gathered from laboratory experiments. The secretions made by these glands have been isolated and reinjected into human beings and other animals. The results are always similar.

An injection of thyroid extract into a Mexican tadpole, for instance, turns this animal into a frog in a very short time. From this the deduction that the thyroid directly bears upon metabolism—the tearing down and building up of tissues—is justifiable. In the glands dwell the secrets of life.
