Analysts skeptical of OPEC pact

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Crude oil prices soared Friday after OPEC ministers announced a tentative accord on curbing production, but analysts expressed skepticism the cartel would be able to restrain output for long.

Analysts said they doubted the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would succeed in driving prices back up to their target of $18 a barrel, even in the short run.

The analysts also said consumers should see little effect from the agreement.

"We don't know if OPEC nations are going to adhere to an agreement," said William Byers, an analyst at Bear, Stearns & Co. in New York. "If so, prices could go higher, but that's an assumption that's premature to make."

Steve Hanke, an economics professor at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, said: "Cheating could occur right from day one. And in fact, there's every reason to believe it will."

OPEC members have been producing far above the cartel's overall ceiling set in a 1986 agreement.

Final approval for the latest accord was still up in the air, hinging on Iran accepting production parity with Iraq. Iranian Oil Minister Gholamreza Aghazadeh, who previously had said Iran would never agree to an equal quota with Iraq, flew to Iran Friday morning to seek agreement from his government to do just that.

To win agreement, the ministers apparently agreed to allow Iran to pump more oil, while most of the remaining countries would cut output to meet the new overall ceiling.

The ministers scheduled a meeting for this evening for a formal vote on the pact.

Asked if he thought the proposed agreement would be ratified, Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Hisham Nazer sounded cautious. "I hope so, yes," he replied.

The oil minister for the United Arab Emirates, Mana Saeed Otaiba, also left to consult with his president, Sheikh Zayed bin Sultan al Nahyan, who was in Rabat, Morocco. The UAE is one of several OPEC members that have been openly violating their quotas.

The proposed agreement calls for OPEC to sharply cut its production from an estimated 22.5 million barrels a day to 18.5 million barrels a day in the first six months of the year. The aim is to reduce the glut of crude oil on the world market and bolster prices.,

Iraq's oil minister, Issam Abdul Raheem al-Chalabi, said the cartel "will try to achieve that (the benchmark price) as quickly as possible."

OPEC pact could raise gas prices, inspire Legislature

HOUSTON (AP) — An OPEC agreement predicted to send oil prices soaring to $18 a barrel would have little immediate impact on Texas oil producers, but could help bolster natural gas prices and brighten the budget outlook for the 1989 Legislature, experts said Friday.

"Obviously, from the standpoint of Texas, the higher the price of oil, the better our economy can perform," said Ray Perryman, director of the Baylor University Forecasting Service.

"Over the short term, our economy has been driven by other things, such as manufacturing, but over the long term it would have a much more substantial effect," Perryman said.

Iraq's oil minister predicted Friday that a tentative OPEC deal to end a bitter dispute over production between Iran and Iraq would send crude oil prices soaring to $18 a barrel within a few months.

The tentative deal worked out by the ministers of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to limit their production next year was announced late Thursday.

Such a steep climb would not prompt drastic changes among Texas oil producers, but could stimulate exploration and production among natural gas companies next spring when gas prices would otherwise fall after a peak season, experts said.

"The impact would obviously be positive, but I don't think the impact would be as much as some people might think" said Charles M. Strain, director of energy research for Houston-based Lovett Mitchell Webb & Garrison.

"Based on our conversations with major oil companies, and even smaller producers, they are not reacting to short-term swings in price anymore," Strain said. "They are not going to change their expenditure plans dramatically when prices go down to $13 for a month or two, or go up to $20 for a month or two."

Perryman, of Waco, also expects some hesitation among producers who have watched OPEC ignore past production quotas; however, he predicted an agreement could draw immediate reaction in the halls of the Texas Capitol.

"Probably the most interesting short-term effect is the impact on state revenues. It could literally change the entire character of the next Legislative session if they go in with oil at $18 a barrel instead of $13," Perryman said.

"If they go in with oil at $18 the way things are structured right now on the revenue base, the legislators would probably be looking at a small surplus, and that would enable them to focus on other issues," he added.

Iran's oil minister, Gholamreza Aghazadeh, flew to Tehran Friday to get his government's approval for the pact, which sets a ceiling on OPEC's production at 18.5 million barrels a day in the first half of 1989.

Friday was the unofficial opening of the Christmas shopping season. Here shoppers stream past Christmas decorations at Midland Park Mall.

Shoppers ready to gobble up bargains

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Thanksgiving's full feasts seemed to have primed many Midlanders for looking and shopping for Christmas gifts to be unwrapped on Dec. 25 or the day before on Christmas Eve.

The day after Thanksgiving Day's reportedly is one of the season's busiest retail sales day.

"We're just looking around," said 22-year-old Jonita Jones, who had tethered her 3-year-old daughter, Kesha, while she shopped around Dellwood Mall, one of Midland's older established shopping centers. "We were at The 50-Off Store, looking around mostly at winter coats and other clothes," she said late Friday afternoon.

Ms. Jones, her sister and aunt had retreated to Dellwood Mall, where shopping traffic was casual and unhurried, from the bustling Midland Park Mall in northwest Midland.

"It's so crowded out there," said Kim Jones, Jonita Jones' 18-year-old sister. "They have lots of sales."

Shoppers had converged on the sprawling Midland Park Mall like the Grand Central Station of old or like today's Midland International Airport at peak business and holiday flight hours.

"You can't see what you are looking at. There are so many people," said Tammy Jones, the sisters' 22-year-old aunt who was carrying Kim Jones' 1½-year-old son, P'Erre.

Kim Jones said that they had gone shopping to get out of the house.

"I'll tell you what," she said. "We didn't want to see the Thanksgiving leftovers."

Pauline Coleman, who was resting on a Dellwood Mall bench, already had decided how to attack Christmas shopping for her two daughters, Brett Bravo of California and Marsha Mast of New Mexico.

"I'm going to send every one of them gift certificates through the mail," Mrs. Coleman said. "The stamps will cost 25 cents. Of course, the Christmas gift certificates will cost a little more money. I don't know what they need, how big or how skinny they are. They'd probably send it (gift) back and say, 'Mother, it doesn't fit.'"

At the densely trafficked Midland Park Mall, the Michael and Donna Holten family had taken respite from looking at the stores' Christmas-oriented merchandise by eating pizza and egg rolls.

"We're just out here looking at the Christmas gifts — looking and getting ideas," said Mrs. Holten, "and letting Michael wish — wish 'I had that, wish I that this.'"

Mrs. Holten said that she hasn't yet purchased Christmas gifts and probably will wait until merchants "really put things on sale. That's usually on Christmas Eve or after Christmas. That's when you get the good buys."

Holten, a 37-year-old Midland down-hole oil-field tools and equipment salesman, said that pinning down the discounted buys was a matter of waiting.

But, he confessed, "I wouldn't be out here if there was a football game on TV."

Ted Ward, 29, was in the mall for an occasion more imminent than Christmas.

"I'm birthday shopping" for his son Neil, who will be 3 years old next week, Ward said.

Ed Vogler and his wife, Anna Marie, were trying to round out their Christmas shopping on Friday, said Vogler, a Midland consulting geologist.

Person who buried baby still unidentified

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

Investigators have run out of leads in their search for the person who buried a stillborn baby boy in a shallow grave that was unearthed Nov. 15 by a pair of playing dogs.

The boy, who at about 37 weeks old was near full-term, was — according to an autopsy — dead at the time of birth, so no felony charges can be filed in the case. But officers would like to find and question the boy's mother to find out who buried the body, Detective Sgt. B.G. Johnson said Friday.

"It is still an open case, and we are still trying to find the mother," Johnson said. "Any charges now would be misdemeanor charges, including failure to report a death and failure to have it buried in an approved cemetery."

The body was found in a foot-deep hole in the side yard of a residence at 2610 W. Storey Ave. by the two cocker spaniels, according to police. The dogs then began playing with the infant until they were spotted by 35-year-old Linda McCord, who was watching the fenced back yard from her kitchen window.

Severe quake jolts eastern Canada

■ Related story, Page 8A

MONTREAL (AP) — A severe earthquake hit eastern Canada Friday, shaking buildings, knocking out power and frightening thousands of people. A major rail line was shut down after a section of track reportedly collapsed near Montreal.

There were no immediate reports of serious injuries.

The earthquake measured 6.0 on the Richter scale with an epicenter at Chicoutimi, Quebec, said Janet Drysdale, seismologist with the Geological Survey of Canada. Chicoutimi is about 200 miles northeast of Montreal.

"This is the largest earthquake in eastern Canada since 1935," said John Adams of the Geological Survey of Canada in Ottawa.

The quake was felt throughout eastern Canada, including in Montreal, Toronto, Quebec City, Ottawa and along the shores of the St. Lawrence River. It also was felt in the northeastern United States.

Tremors began at 6:46 p.m. EST and lasted from 15 seconds to two minutes, Canadian Press reported.

The news agency said traffic lights were out in Quebec City, and there was no electricity in Montreal's central train station and major hotels. Telephone lines also were down around the island.

Canadian Press said the tremors caused the ground to cave in beneath a railway track just west of Montreal at the approach to a railway bridge. It said the damage forced Canadian National railroad officials to shut down the major east-west rail line from Montreal to Senneterre, 220 miles to the west.

Another tremor was felt Wednesday and was centered in the same southeastern section of Quebec, the Charlevoix region, said Adams. That quake measured 4.5 to 4.9 on the Richter scale. No serious damage was reported during that tremor.

Radio stations and newspapers were flooded with telephone calls from panicked residents.

"We're on the seventh floor and I thought we were going to be on the first," said Charlie Popejoy, 80, of the central Ontario city of Orillia.

The quake shook the southern part of New Brunswick and was felt as far east as the Annapolis Valley on Nova Scotia's western shore.

Korean leader says political prisoners will get amnesty

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Roh Tae-woo appealed for mercy for his disgraced predecessor, Chun Doo-hwan, and said today that he would launch a broad series of reforms to end government abuses and ensure democracy.

Roh, going on national television to try to quiet controversy over Chun, said he would grant amnesty and compensation to political prisoners jailed under the last government.

He said he would shake up the government and revise laws to wipe out wrongs committed by the Chun administration.

"I will liquidate past wrongdoings and carry out bold reforms in the government and governing party in the quest of a new era," he said.

He stopped short of granting Chun a presidential pardon, but said the former ruler had suffered enough and appealed for forgiveness. Roh said the nation had to put its bitter past behind it if it was to build an enduring democratic society.

"When he himself apologized deeply, how can we stone the former president alone on the grounds that there were many mistakes in the past?" Roh said.

Chun, a former general who took power with military backing in 1980, went into internal exile Wednesday after apologizing to the nation for corruption and other abuses under his government. He stepped down in February at the end of a seven-year term.

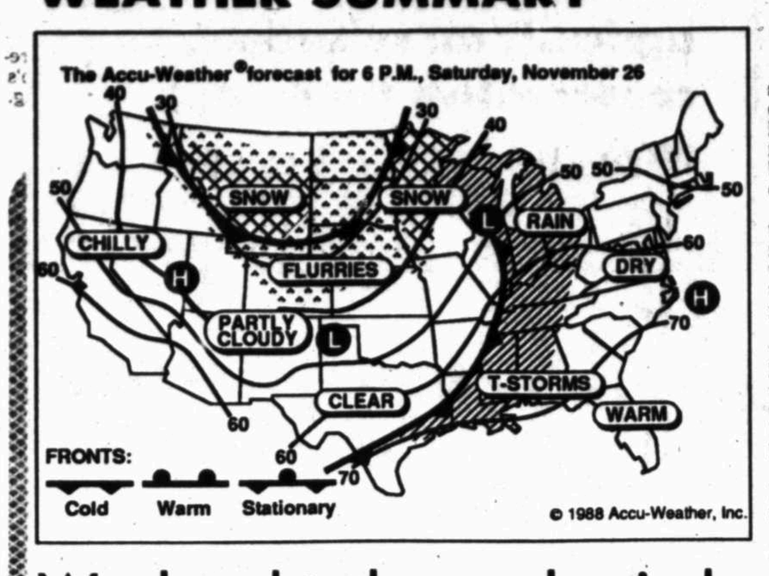
WEATHER SUMMARY



Weekend to be cool, windy

From Staff and Wire Reports

The Thanksgiving weekend in Midland promises cool and windy weather but, despite the chilling effect, no hard freeze.

The weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport is calling for partly cloudy skies, brisk winds, cool days and cooler nights.

The peak temperature today is to be near 60 degrees. And early-morning westerly winds of 10 to 20 mph are to increase to 20 to 30 mph and gusty by mid-morning.

For tonight and Sunday, the weatherman is forecasting more cloudy skies. The low tonight is to be in the mid-30s. And the high temperature Sunday is to be in the upper 40s.

Saturday's peak temperature was 70 degrees, which wasn't in the running with the record high of 85 degrees for Nov. 25 in 1965. The overnight low was 45 degrees, which didn't threaten Nov. 26's record low of 18 degrees in 1938.

STATE

A change was in the offing for Texas weather, as a cold front and thunderstorms pushed through the state on Friday.

The front had made its way past the Panhandle and was situated from near Wichita Falls to north of Midland.

Meanwhile, moisture-laden air from the Gulf of Mexico streamed into the state. The eastern two-thirds of Texas were covered by low and middle clouds, while high clouds were common in West Texas.

SHOPPING

"I want to finish up today," he said, "because there's nothing going on downtown with the price of oil like it is. The phone doesn't ring, and no one is looking for drilling deals, because we are looking for the price of oil to stabilize."

But, Vogler said, "Everybody is sitting back and waiting for signals from two sources — OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) and Washington. You can read my lips."

The nation's energy policy surely was no concern of 5-year-old Cynthia Hennis and her 5-month-old baby sister, who posed for a $5 photograph with Santa Claus, who was flanked by oversized props — nutcracker, horse, and candy cane.

"I want a make-up kit, Pee-Wee Herman doll, and a robot," Cynthia said.

The sisters' parents, Bernie and Karen Hennis, were joined by their uncle and aunt, Bobby and Debbie Hennis, in "just" looking for Christmas gifts, Karen Hennis said.

The adults ventured to the mall with the children to "let the kids see Santa Claus, especially the little ones," said Bernie Hennis, 27. "Just messing around and seeing what we could afford to buy later this week."

Clinton Jones, who has some sheepskin products to sell for Christmas gifts, said that Midland Park Mall's traffic has been "pretty good — not a whole lot of buyers, but a lot of lookers."

Jewelry sales clerk Jane Finch said that many people were "comparative shopping. We've had a lot of buyers, too," she said. "It was packed at mid-afternoon."

Across the expressway from the mall at Wal-Mart Discount City, Bertha Valdez and her 10-year-old daughter, Roni, were shopping for household items — not yet for Christmas gifts.

"Beats staying home watching television," the mother said. "I'll do most of my Christmas shopping a couple of weeks before Christmas."

Rex Reid, 28, his wife Tammy, and their children Ryan, 4, and Darbie, 7, were "looking" for Christmas gifts, but "We're not buying right now," Reid said. Reid said his son was wishing for a Big Thunder Racing Team" miniature dragster.

"We promised him (Ryan), if he was good," Reid said, "he could have have one" for Christmas.

KOREA

Chun said he took full responsibility for misdeeds committed under his government. He said he was surrendering all his personal property, worth $24 million, in efforts to atone.

Roh said he opposed punishing Chun because many had made mistakes in the past and it would not be fair to single out one person for what he said would be political retribution.

"Political retaliation would not help the country's future and its democratic development," Roh said.

The president, a former ally of Chun, indicated he accepted some responsibility for what happened in the past. "I myself feel heavier responsibility than others," he said.

Roh, like Chun a former general, took office in February after winning presidential elections in December.

He appealed to the entire nation, opposition parties and others to work with him to end the pain and resentment left by the Chun era and put it behind the nation. "To bring a new democratic era to full bloom, we need a generous democratic mind," he said.

Roh has been trying to defuse the public controversy surrounding Chun. He must satisfy public anger without allowing it to damage his government, which is identified closely with the former ruler.

Among various measures, Roh said he would grant amnesty to political prisoners jailed under Chun and restore the civil rights of those already freed. He said "generosity" would be shown to opponents arrested under his government.

He also promised compensation for victims of the 1980 uprising in the southern city of Kwangju, which was suppressed by the army with the deaths of some 200 people.

Political party funds would be put under open supervision to prevent abuses; officials and politicians would not be allowed to force businesses to make political contributions; remaining undemocratic laws would be removed, Roh said.

Roh also promised to "settle law and order to guard our liberal democracy" and warned that the violent activities of radical students and labor activists would not be tolerated.

"This is not the democracy we want to develop," he said.

DEATHS

Pearl Bailey

BROWNWOOD — Services for Mrs. Marion L. (Pearl) Bailey are scheduled for 2 p.m. today at the Davis-Morris Funeral Home Chapel with Dr. Don Williford of the First Baptist Church and the Rev. Kenneth Vaughn officiating. Interment will follow at Cedar Point Cemetery.

She died Wednesday morning at a Midland hospital.

She was born in Brown County May 26, 1907. She married Marion Bailey Jan. 29, 1927, in Brown County. She taught elementary school for 28 years in Doole, Brooksmith and Melvin. She taught at Long Elementary School in Midland from 1956 to 1972, when she retired.

She was a pioneer teacher at the learning centers in the Midland public schools and co-authored a teaching manual, "How to Teach Elementary Education." She was a graduate of Daniel Baker College in Brownwood and received her masters degree from the Howard Paine University in Brownwood. She was preceded in death by her husband in 1984. She was a member of the First Baptist Church of Brownwood.

Survivors include two sons, Darrell Bailey of Midland and Garland Bailey of Brownwood; a daughter, Linda Creech of Midland; 10 grandchildren, 11 great-grandchildren and a great-great-grandchild.

Interment will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park with Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers will be Don Fulton, A.J. Goins, Charlie Daniels, Jim Beckham, Kenneth Swinney and Lee Chambels.

Azerbaijanis face Red Army tanks

MOSCOW (AP) — Tens of thousands of people packed Baku's central square Friday, facing Red Army tanks sent by the Kremlin to quell ethnic rioting and panic in the southern republics of Azerbaijan and Armenia.

A spokesman for the Azerbaijan government said by telephone from Baku that soldiers had cordoned off Armenian districts in the city of 1.7 million people.

Mikhail S. Gorbachev, president and Communist Party chief, said Soviet leaders would meet soon with delegations of Armenians and Azerbaijanis seeking a "solution that would conform to the best interests of these two peoples and our country."

Gorbachev made the comment in a joint interview with visiting President Francois Mitterrand of France broadcast Friday night on the French television network Antenne-2.

Scenes of milling masses and military armor in both Baku, a city in Azerbaijan, and Yerevan, capital of neighboring Armenia, were shown on the Soviet evening television news.

An announcer said, "The passions and emotions accumulated in the hearts of Baku residents spill out in the square," and another in Yerevan added: "Contradictory rumors are being floated which aggravate the atmosphere."

More than 2,000 ethnic Armenians have fled Azerbaijan to Armenia, panicked by violence that killed three people and injured at least 126. Reports of far higher tolls are rife in the Armenian community but cannot be confirmed.

Ethnic conflict in the two Caucasus republics began last February because of a dispute over Nagorno-Karabakh, a territory with a predominantly Armenian population that has been part of Azerbaijan since 1923.

Armenians held general strikes and mass demonstrations demanding that the territory be annexed to Armenia, although they do not have a common border, but Moscow did not approve it.

A riot Feb. 28 in the Azerbaijani city of Sumgait killed 32 people, 26 of them Armenians.

Policewoman shot in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas police officer was shot in the shoulder Friday night and she was listed in fair condition at a local hospital, officials said.

"We know nothing," of the details, said a clerk in the Crimes Against Persons office who declined to give her name.

The clerk said police were still at the scene late Friday night trying to determine what happened.

According to several radio and television reports, police said the shooting occurred during a burglary in progress.

KRLD-AM Radio reported that one suspect had been shot and that possibly another could be at large.

The condition of the wounded suspect was not immediately available.

Officials at Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas said the officer was listed in fair condition Friday night with a wound to her shoulder.

"She was shot in the left shoulder," said emergency room charge nurse Jody Luke, who added that she did not know how many times the officer had been shot.

Ms. Luke said the name of the officer would not be released until relatives were notified, but said the 26-year-old woman was in no "serious danger at the time.

"She is being evaluated right now," said Ms. Luke.

OPEC

"I think we can reach that within a few months," he said.

But Fergus MacLeod, an oil analyst with Barclays de Zoete Wedd in London, said he doubted the price of West Texas Intermediate, the major U.S. crude grade, would climb beyond $17 a barrel.

In London, the price for January delivery of Brent, the benchmark North Sea crude, shot up $1.67 a barrel to $14.42. It had been trading below $12 a barrel before the OPEC meeting.

The New York Mercantile Exchange was closed Thursday and Friday for the Thanksgiving holiday so there was no trading in West Texas Intermediate. The January contract for that grade rose 11 cents a barrel to $13.97 on Wednesday.

Analysts predicted the OPEC accord would have only a minimal impact on consumers.

Ian Graham, an analyst at the London investment firm County NatWest, noted that oil companies had not lowered gasoline prices during the recent slump in crude oil prices.

"There seems little justification for increasing them on the way back up," he said.

MacLeod also said he doubted oil companies would try to pass an increase through to the retail level.

The tentative accord was announced late Thursday after a week of informal, private negotiating sessions at OPEC's annual winter meeting. Much of the talking was aimed at resolving the bitter dispute between Iran and Iraq, which ended an 8-year war in August.

QUAKE

"The whole apartment building started to shake, wobble back and forth," one caller told a Toronto radio station who said he was on the top floor. "Knives lined up on the wall and the coffee mugs hanging on hooks on the wall started to clatter and shake back and forth."

"We've had about 100 calls here in the last five minutes," a reporter at the Toronto Sun said.

A police spokesman from Laurentian Park, just north of Quebec City, said: "In a restaurant next to our office a dishwasher broke and a cigarette display came crashing to the ground."

Power was out in Quebec City and a high-voltage power line between Toronto and Ottawa was momentarily interupted, Canadian Press reported.

There were no immediate reports of damage, however.

In Moncton, New Brunswick, people watching an American Hockey League game at the 7,000-seat Moncton Coliseum got up from their seats when the quake shook the building, CP said.

Jackie Finnemore, a clerk at a Fredericton gas bar and convenience store, said the store's telephone went dead for a few minutes.

"I hung on to the counter, I didn't know what was happening."

Drysdale said tremors measuring above a magnitude of 5.0 on the Richter scale happen about once every 10 year.

"There is a possibility there may be slight damage with a quake this size...but not devastating damage by any means," she said.

The tremor reportedly lasted 20 seconds in Ottawa.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude.

An earthquake measuring 5 on the Richter scale can cause considerable damage; a 6 severe damage, and a 7 is a "major" earthquake.

FUMC Christmas service scheduled

From Staff Reports

The annual "Christmas at First Methodist" program will be held at 5 p.m. this Sunday and the public is invited.

On this first Sunday in the Advent Season the "Hanging of the Greens" will be the emphasis as each Sunday School class meets at 5 p.m. to decorate their room and the hallways for Christmas.

The Singles group will also decorate the Chrismon Tree in the sanctuary. At 6 p.m. everyone will gather in the sanctuary for a brief program especially for the children led by Dr. Russell Parchman, Senior Pastor. The children will bring gifts of warm clothing to place under the Chrismon Tree for the Navajo Children in the Four Corners area.

Following that brief program everyone will gather in the fellowship hall for refreshments and fellowship. A living manger scene will be set up for the children to enjoy.

First United Methodist Church is located at Main Street and Ohio, and everyone is invited to this special service. Morning worship at 10:35 a.m. will feature the lighting of the first Advent Candle, and Sunday School begins at 9:15 a.m.

According to investigators, one of the residents of the house was in the backyard last with the dogs two hours before Ms. McCord called police.

The body was so badly mauled that Midland pathologist Dr. David Shneidman was unable to determine the race or sex of the body at the scene.

According to Johnson, the baby may have been born up to two weeks before it was found.

Since the discovery, officers have been busy with interviews.

"We have been talking to people, trying to get some leads on it," Johnson said. "If any leads come in we will check them out, but right now we don't have anything."

Further lab results are expected that could pinpoint the time of the baby's birth, according to the detective.

At least 2 hurt in train derailment

FRUITVALE, Texas (AP) — About 35 cars from a Union Pacific freight train derailed in a heavy thunderstorm Friday night, spilling anhydrous ammonia and injuring at least two people.

Officials ordered an area within two miles of the derailment evacuated. Hazardous materials units were dispatched to the scene from the Tyler Fire Department and the railroad.

"They had some leaking out there because there was a cloud coming out," said Roy Kidd, a fire and police dispatcher in nearby Edgewood.

Alex Tice, the railroad's regional director for public relations in Omaha, Neb., said the 89-car train included two cars containing anhydrous ammonia and one containing chlorine. Three empty cars of the train, which was bound for Fort Worth from New Orleans, last carried sulphuric acid, he said.

"Our reports are that one of the anhydrous ammonia cars is leaking," Tice said. "This is a hazardous material in a concentrated form. It's pretty unhealthy."

Anhydrous ammonia is dangerous to inhale or come in contact with.

The train's four-member crew was not injured, Tice said.

The train derailed about a half-mile west of this northeast Texas community of 400, near U.S. Highway 80 and Texas 19. Authorities closed the two roads in the vicinity of the wreck and evacuated nearby residents, but did not clear the town.

"We have about 45 or 50 over here," said Rev. Tom Pesnell, pastor of the Main Street Baptist Church in Grand Saline, where many of the evacuees were sent. "There are some that have gone to stay with their various families. There are some staying in motels."

Pesnell said most people left their homes without bringing anything with them.

"We're having to get some things together for them," Pesnell said just before midnight. "Most don't anticipate having to sleep here. They're hoping to go back home tonight."

Yugoslavian demonstrations vary according to location

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Unrest sparked by ethnic tensions and a political drive to jolt Yugoslavia out of economic torpor has produced very different demonstrations in the developing south and more affluent north.

In the south, protests continued for a fifth straight day Monday over the forced resignations of two leaders from the ethnic Albanian majority in the troubled province of Kosovo.

At least 7,000 people defied threats of a crackdown on the biggest wave of demonstrations since World War II in the province that borders Albania. They trudged 40 miles from two towns to the provincial capital of Pristina, and dispersed only after repeated appeals.

In the liberal northern republic of Slovenia, about 13,000 people gathered in driving snow to demand the acquittal of four men sentenced to jail last summer for making public a classified military document.

The rallies, in the capital Ljubljana and in nearby Celje, also demanded an unprecedented republic-wide referendum on changes to the Yugoslav constitution due to be passed next week by the Communist leaderships of the country's six republics.

Many Slovenians fear the changes will curb the slow process of democratization in their prosperous, westward-looking republic by giving more power to federal authorities.

Communist authorities say the amendments to Yugoslavia's clumsy 1974 constitution are needed so market-oriented economic reforms can be implemented. Yugoslavia is beset by 236 percent annual inflation and 15 percent unemployment.

Slobodan Milosevic, Communist party leader in the largest republic of Serbia, is trying to use the constitutional changes to get more control over Serbia's semi-autonomous provinces of Kosovo and Vojvodina.

His drive over Kosovo, fanned by allegations of ethnic Albanian harassment of the province's Serb minority, has rallied hundreds of thousands of Serbs behind his cause.

But Kosovo's ethnic Albanians have resisted the drive to curb the autonomy they won under the 1974 constitution.

Last week's resignations of Azem Vlasi and Kacusa Jasari, both members of Kosov's 13-member ruling Politburo, appear to have been the spark that drove ethnic Albanians into the streets for the first time since 1981, when at least nine people died in clashes.

The two stepped down under pressure from Milosevic, who wants greater control over Kosovo for Serbia, and as many as 100,000 ethnic Albanians took to the streets of Pristina over the weekend, demanding they be reinstated.

After warnings emergency measures would be imposed if unrest did not cease, the demonstrations became much smaller. But another 4,000 people rallied Sunday, and at least 7,000 demonstrated on Monday.

Under the proposed constitutional amendments, Milosevic wants to restore Serbian control over Kosovo's judiciary, education and policing.

Nicaraguan refugees flooding into Miami

by JEFFREY SCHMALZ
New York Times News Service

MIAMI — From the street, the storefront here looks festive, its window covered by a giant blue and white flag of Nicaragua, photographs of a smiling Pope John Paul and a poster announcing "Gran Fiesta Danzante" ("A Big Dance Party").

But inside, its three rooms are home to 103 people. In one of them, 12 men sleep on soiled mattresses covering the entire floor.

The two other rooms are a blur of confusion: stacks of Pampers and canned goods, toddlers crying, rice and beans cooking on hot plates, television sets blaring.

In a narrow back alley of this privately operated shelter, women draw water from a communal spigot.

"It's tougher than I thought it would be," Alfredo Diaz said in Spanish.

Along with his wife and two small children, Diaz arrived here six weeks ago from Nicaragua, by way of Mexico and Texas. "It's not good," he said.

Miami, which for three decades has absorbed wave after wave of Latin American immigrants, is being hit with a new wave — this time Nicaraguans — that many officials here believe presents this area's worst immigration problem since more than 100,000 Cubans arrived by boat in 1980.

According to federal figures, the number of Nicaraguans arriving in the Miami area began to more than double two months ago, rising from 400 a week to 800, a level many immigration officials believe will remain steady.

That would mean 40,000 new Nicaraguan immigrants in one year, joining the 100,000 who over the last decade have come to Miami and surrounding Dade County, where Hispanic people now make up more than 35 percent of the population.

Unlike the previous Nicaraguan immigrants, many of whom were middle-class, most of the new ones are poor, unskilled and often illiterate — campesinos from the countryside.

MIAMI, WHICH considers itself as much the northernmost city of Latin America as the southernmost city of the United States, has a tradition of welcoming Spanish-speaking immigrants, but this time it is caught up in a debate over what to do.

Some Nicaraguan support groups are clamoring for aid, and the city has agreed to open a 200-bed shelter. But municipal officials are reluctant to do much more, partly for fear of encouraging a greater flood of immigration, partly because many would rather concentrate aid and attention on support for the opposition movement within Nicaragua.

Further, city and county officials here, many of whom are Hispanic immigrants themselves, oppose broad social service efforts generally.

They object to the cost and they fear the programs may lead immigrants to a life of dependence rather than one of relying on their own pluck.

"These new immigrants are scared," said Carmen Lacayo, one of 11 women who make up Hermandad Nicaraguense (Nicaraguan Brotherhood), a group that supplies the Nicaraguans with donated food and clothing.

"Maybe they've sold a pig to pay for the trip. By the time they get here, they don't have one cent. Sometimes even their birth certificates have been stolen. We ask them to sign for their food packets, and they can't write."

Immigration officials and Nicaraguans themselves attribute the increase in immigration to two main factors: worsening economic hardship in Nicaragua and a realization that the rebel effort there will not topple the Sandinista government any time soon.

Many city officials believe the economic motive for immigrating is now the bigger one, a change from the early 1980s, when, shortly after the Sandinistas assumed power, thousands fled for mainly political reasons.

SOME OF THOSE arriving here left Nicaragua only recently, coming by way of Mexico. Others lived for months in refugee camps in Honduras and other Central American countries, which have been pressing the United States to take the Nicaraguans.

Federal officials say 80 percent of Nicaraguans who make their way through Mexico and cross the Texas border, virtually all of them illegally, wind up here, drawn by the city's Latin flavor and its already established Nicaraguan community.

Once here they apply for asylum, a category covering immigrants fleeing a government regarded by the United States as oppressive.

But the Immigration and Naturalization Service says it has a backlog of 27,000 applications in Miami. By law, if the agency cannot process an application within 60 days, which it says it cannot because of the volume here, it must issue a renewable one-year authorization allowing the applicant to work. And that is what it automatically does with the Nicaraguans.

Nonetheless, the entire procedure can be one of frustrating, even painful delay for such immigrants. A formal granting of asylum takes years, and only once it is granted can an immigrant begin the process of seeking citizenship.

Further, immigrants say that in practice the time between their applying for asylum and receiving work authorization can last four months.

That means four months without being able to earn money to eat or rent a home. Those lucky enough to have friends or relatives already here may be able to move in with them. The choices otherwise are to find scant space at a private shelter, or to give up.

"No papers, no papers," said Jose Abram Vasquez, 52, explaining why he could not get a job. He said he was returning to Honduras, where he had left his wife and four children, to figure out what to do.

IN THE DADE County school system, Nicaraguans have become the fastest-growing ethnic group: 13,560 Nicaraguan students are enrolled this academic year, more than three times the 3,664 of last year.

"This is very different from what we've seen with Nicaraguans in the past," said William Renuart, the principal of South Miami Junior High School. "These kids 13, 14, 15 years old can't read. They have no educational experience."

Last week South Miami Junior High began placing the Nicaraguans in daylong classes, each headed by one teacher who, speaking Spanish, drills them in the basics of reading and arithmetic.

Renuart said he began the program after teachers found that "the Nicaraguans behave so well, are so quiet, that it was easy" to ignore them.

In general, the Nicaraguans seem to get along well with the other Hispanic groups here.

Can bright lights help turn on sexual desire?

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — People looking for wintertime romance might want to turn on a love light. Literally.

University of Texas Health Science Center professor Russel J. Reiter said a hormonal link between light and wintertime blues includes a seasonal loss of sexual desire.

Seasonal affective disorder "is not uncommon in San Antonio," Reiter told the San Antonio Light. "Mid-November is the time most people will experience it."

As the daylight hours grow shorter, so, too, does sexual desire in nearly 5 million Americans affected by the hormonal changes. But cravings for starchy foods, frequent mood swings, depression and lethargy increase.

Reiter said lower light levels force a tiny pine cone-shaped pineal gland, located under the brain and linked directly to the eyes, to work harder.

The less light it senses, the more it works to produce a hormone called melatonin, which can plunge a particularly sensitive person into depression and shut down his sexual responses.

Similarly, the lengthening daylight of springtime has the opposite effect on the melatonin cycle, shutting down the pineal gland sooner and turning on sexual desire.

Other factors may be involved in seasonal affective disorder, but the pineal gland and melatonin appear to be key triggers of the problem, Reiter said.

The pineal gland is what tells bears to hibernate and snowshoe hares to exchange their summer brown coats to winter white ones, said Reiter, who has written six books on the gland.

Reiter said seasonal affective disorder is more common in Northern states where winter days are much shorter than the normal 10-hour Texas days. He said women are four times more likely to be affected than men.

Phototherapy — exposure to lots of bright light — rapidly is gaining acceptance as treatment for the disorder. Reiter said for some, a visit to a tanning salon might do the trick.

But the common treatment is sitting in a brightly lit room in the morning for a half-hour to two hours.

Navy whistleblower still jailed despite evidence

HOUSTON (AP) — The family of Navy "whistleblower" Bryan Sims has been unable to free him after a court-martial despite evidence indicating that a government investigation has verified some of his claims of potentially dangerous helicopter maintenance procedures, the Houston Chronicle reported.

Sims, who was confined to quarters for 30 days in his court-martial trial last month at Corpus Christi Naval Air Station, claims he was faced with trumped-up charges after exposing the alleged safety violations.

Sims was charged with lying to supervisors and losing gear after he alleged that fellow petty officers carried out orders to graft untested, crucial parts from a crashed helicopter onto two others in operation.

Navy regulations call for stringent testing of parts before they are recycled.

After the court-martial, but before his sentence began Nov. 10, Sims secretly tape-recorded a meeting with Lt. Kent Armstrong, who prosecuted the charges.

"We do have enough on some of them to prove them, and we do know who the underlings were who did the work, went out and got the parts," Armstrong told Sims on the tape, a copy of which was provided to the Houston Chronicle.

Armstrong told Sims the problem with the investigation was "taking it home, proving that so-and-so gave the order."

Armstrong has joined an investigation by the Naval Intelligence Service, a civilian government agency, into Sims' allegations. The NIS probe is one of three being conducted into how search-and-rescue helicopters at the base are repaired.

"I want to get the people who are ultimately responsible for supervising and giving the orders, and I want to hang it around their necks," the prosecutor said, according to the Chronicle.

But Sims' family has so far been unsuccessful in arguing that the tape recording means Sims should be released from confinement or that it verifies Sims' claims that charges were filed against him because he exposed alleged safety violations.

The prosecutor's taped statements are the first known indication that Sims' reports have been corroborated. An NIS spokesman in Washington said the agency will not discuss ongoing investigations.

Armstrong said this week he suspected Sims was taping the conversations. He said the investigation was continuing and that he could not comment further.

Two men, a former helicopter mechanic and a current one, have backed up Sims' claims in interviews with the Chronicle. But they said they have no evidence that the untested parts have caused significant problems in rescues carried out by the helicopter crews.

Officials have confirmed that the NIS investigation also is focusing on Sims allegations that he received death threats from Navy supervisors.

In addition, Sims and some of his relatives have contacted Texas Congressmen Solomon Ortiz, D-Corpus Christi, and Jack Fields, R-Humble, and they have agreed to monitor the case.

An advertisement scheduled by Sims' family for publication in Sunday's Corpus Christi Caller Times also asks concerned military personnel and civilians to help "our whistleblower" by writing to Sims at his barracks and exposing any other cases of harassment against Navy critics.

British Airways flies off course with Atlanta article

HOUSTON (AP) — British Airways' in-flight magazine encourages Brits to beat a path to Atlanta, but it's Houston's skyline that beckons in a photograph.

"Oh, that's beautiful," British Airway's New York spokesman John Lampl chuckled when he learned of the error. "I certainly don't want to confuse Houston and Atlanta. They are completely different animals."

An article in Highlife magazine's November edition extols Atlanta's virtues: "It's climate is kindly, it's temperate and attractive." But the Houston photo has publishers stumped.

"We wouldn't have asked for a picture of Houston," said Rebecca Francis, an assistant at Headway Publications Ltd. of London, which publishes about 100,000 copies of the magazine a month for distribution on the planes.

She told the Houston Chronicle the mix-up could be a printing error, but officials would not know for sure until the photos are returned in "another four weeks."

"That's the first I've heard of it," said Robert Harding, library director of the Robert Harding Picture Library of London, which is credited with the photo.

"We wouldn't do it intentionally, that's for sure," Harding said. "The pictures are very accurately labeled by our photographers."

Ms. Francis said an American reader reported the error several days ago, but so far, only two complaints had come in. The magazine is available on non-stop flights between Houston and London.

In Atlanta, the photo mix-up was a source of amusement for a Chamber of Commerce spokeswoman who did not want to be quoted by name.

"You're kidding," she said when learning of the two-paragraph article. She recalled that Atlanta and Houston have had somewhat strained relations ever since the Georgia city beat out Texans for this year's Democratic National Convention.

"The Houston press was out to get us," she said. "We still compete for some of the same business."

Bush dismisses questions regarding reports he would trim Medicare

NATION

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — President-elect George Bush said Friday he would turn his attention quickly to the problem of cutting the U.S. deficit, but he brushed aside questions on reports he may attempt to trim $3.5 billion to $5 billion from Medicare.

"I keep reading in the papers a lot of things I'm supposed to be doing that I don't know anything about," Bush told reporters during a shopping trip while on a four-day Thanksgiving vacation at his family's oceanside retreat.

Bush indicated he has made no decisions yet on budget cuts. "Don't make judgments based on stories that don't really have any authority behind them," Bush said.

A spokesman, Stephen Hart, said suggestions on Medicare cuts were "completely speculative."

"It's premature for anyone to speculate about the budget," Hart said.

Bush worked for several hours in a small cabin which serves as his office in the family compound, but told reporters he had "no appointments" during the holiday.

Bush spoke with reporters briefly as he and wife Barbara made their morning shopping round, including a stop at a wine and cheese shop named the "Tipsy Mouse," where he picked up goodies to serve reporters at a reception later in the day at their house.

The vice president also visited a video store, where he rented the movie "Broadcast News," and dropped by a hardware store and a golf equipment shop at a local country club.

Meanwhile, sources close to the vice president, who spoke only on the condition of anonymity, said the selection of a new defense secretary remained up in the air. Key advisers remained deeply divided on the prospect of filling the post with former Senate Armed Services Chairman John Tower of Texas, the sources said.

Bush himself has given few clues, but in recent days has appeared to discourage suggestions that it would be Tower. In any event, Bush said he has not yet made up his mind.

Bush declined to comment further on recent news reports, including one in Friday's editions in Washington Post, that his administration would go along with billions of dollars' worth of Medicare cuts expected to be proposed in President Reagan's final budget submission to Congress in January.

Asked whether he advocated any cuts in Medicare funding, Bush said only that "My view is I'll address the whole budget problem very soon."

Bush vowed earlier this week to appoint negotiators on the first day of his presidency to meet with members of Congress on budget cuts. Richard Darman, his choice as budget director, suggested the strategy, whereby Bush would refrain from submitting his own rewrite of the Reagan budget, but instead would work behind the scenes with Congress to forge a compromise.

But Darman also has said that Medicare is an area where Bush will look for savings. Without changes, the giant health insurance program for the elderly is projected to cost the government $97.7 billion in fiscal 1990, which starts next October, an increase of 14.5 percent over the current year. That rate of growth is four times the expected rate of overall inflation.

Bush has insisted he will not support any form of tax increase and would seek to reduce the nation's $150 billion budget deficit with a "flexible freeze" on spending. Such as freeze would hold overall spending at the level of inflation, with expenditures in new areas offset by cutbacks in others.

The Bushes were to have dinner Friday night at their home with Cardinal Bernard Law, the archbishop of Boston.

Toward evening Bush jogged on a dirt road near his home, wearing an "Oak Ridge Boys" sweatshirt.

"'Hanna' has been replaced by the Oak Ridge Boys," Bush playfully shouted at reporters. The day before, Bush had worn a sweatshirt bearing only the word "Hanna," and aides said they had no idea what it meant. Later, the mystery was partially resolved with their explanation that it had come from a high school somewhere in Pennsylvania.

Activists protest killing animals for their fur

Associated Press

Television game show host Bob Barker led 2,000 chanting animal rights activists down Fifth Avenue Friday in the largest of nationwide protests against the killing of animals for their fur.

"Fur is murder! Don't buy fur!" they shouted, waving signs depicting cute creatures in various stages of annihilation.

"Where's mom?" said the caption on a picture of a baby racoon.

The protest, by Trans-Species Unlimited, was one of more than 60 the group said it held around the country as part of its third annual "Fur-Free Friday."

About 40 pickets protested outside Saks Fifth Avenue and Neiman-Marcus department stores in Beverly Hills, Calif., police said.

In Boston, more than 25 people clutching signs reading "Fur — The Ultimate Sadist Symbol" protested in front of a fur store.

Roxci Moser, 33, who was heckled when she walked by the protesters in a raccoon coat, said: "I noticed they were wearing leather shoes and I assume they ate turkey yesterday for Thanksgiving. If they want to act like that, they should be strict vegetarians and wear only cloth clothes."

In San Francisco, where "Gunsmoke" actress Amanda Blake led about 50 demonstrators in a rally, organizers said some dropped off furs as tax-deductible donations.

Canadian quake felt in northeastern U.S.

Associated Press

An earthquake rattled eastern Canada and the northeast quadrant of the United States Friday, but there were no immediate reports of major damage or injuries.

The epicenter of the 6:46 p.m. EST quake was 90 miles north of Quebec City, Canada, with a preliminary magnitude of 6.0 on the Richter scale of ground motion, said U.S. Geological Survey spokesman Don Finley in Washington, D.C.

The quake knocked out power in Montreal and elsewhere in the province of Quebec. Canadian Press reported the quake lasted about 15 to 20 seconds, and also was felt in Ottawa, Toronto and Quebec City.

A foreshock recorded Wednesday had a Richter magnitude of 4.5, Finley said.

In the United States, the quake was felt from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic Coast, with tremors reported in Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Vermont, Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

There were no reports of damage to U.S. power plants, transmission lines, dams, and telephone lines.

"It was widely felt and the north-central and northeastern regions" of the United States, said Arch Johnston, director of the Center for Earthquake Research at Memphis State University in Tennessee. "Some reported feeling it as far south as Washington, D.C."

Police, firefighters, radio and television stations were deluged with calls, officials said. Houses shook, ceilings cracked, dishes fell from shelves and windows rattled in the Northeast.

In New York City, firefighters went to 40 locations where there were reports of tremors but no damage could be found, said fire Lt. Kenneth Murphy.

In the central Vermont community of Berlin, a chimney collapsed but there were no injuries reported.

In Maine, the quake broke windows and knocked pictures off walls. However, the Secret Service in Kennebunkport, said the quake was not felt at the weekend home of President-elect George Bush and his wife, Barbara.

The quake rattled Boston's Top of the Hub restaurant on the 52nd floor of the Prudential Center while about 120 people were dining, said maitre d' Stephen Brown. "It was enough to make you feel queasy," he said.

"The entire dining room felt it. Everyone felt they were becoming dizzy or faint. They all sort of smiled and looked at each other. No one felt panicked or anything," he said.

There were scattered reports of temporarily dead telephones in New Hampshire and Vermont.

Booth Confederate agent, book claims

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — John Wilkes Booth wasn't a shiftless actor who killed Abraham Lincoln out of despondency over the South's loss in the Civil War, but a Confederate intelligence agent, a new book contends.

Confederate leaders sanctioned the assassination as a last-ditch effort to force the North into peace negotiations, three former U.S. intelligence officers wrote in "Come Retribution," recently published by the University Press of Mississippi.

Booth also used an underground intelligence network for his escape after shooting Lincoln during a performance at Ford's Theatre in Washington, D.C., on April 14, 1865, five days after Gen. Robert E. Lee's surrender at Appomattox, the authors contend.

"The book challenges the long-held belief that, in the closing months of the Civil War, the Confederacy stubbornly held out against surrender even though it had no hope of winning its independence," William Tidwell, one of the authors, wrote in a recent article.

"It shows instead that the Confederates had a well-developed plan for the campaign of 1865 which they believed would result in a Southern victory or at least a stalemate."

The Confederacy had wanted to kidnap Lincoln, but when that plan failed, it plotted to blow up the White House, Tidwell said. The bombing plan was aborted when a Confederate demolition expert was arrested, Tidwell said.

Southern leaders finally decided to kill Lincoln, demoralize the North and begin a last ditch offensive, Tidwell said. Lee's surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia had virtually ended the war by that time, but Booth thought he could save the South by killing Lincoln, said Tidwell, a retired CIA officer.

Tidwell's co-authors are James Hall, a retired Labor Department official who served in Army intelligence during World War II, and David Winfred Gaddy, a former National Security Agency official.

Tidwell said the three used their intelligence experience to re-examine the assassination and uncover what they alleged was a well-established Conferederate intelligence network. They examined thousand of documents in the National Archives over a 10-year period.

"Our evidence is largely circumstantial," Tidwell said. "Basically, we are trying to tell our story by putting together many small pieces of information, each well documented."

The authors contend Booth was not helped during his escape by strangers or a rag-tag band of sympathizers hastily assembled before the assassination. Instead, Booth appears to have followed the main Confederate underground network leading from Washington to the Confederate capital in Richmond, Va., the book contends.

Of the 17 who helped Booth's escape, the authors were able to link 12 with the Confederacy, eight of whom had participated in Confederate intelligence activities.

The authors also elaborate on the activities of a Southern intelligence operation that spied in Washington, New York and Chicago.

The book's title comes from a code system the Confederate intelligence used in which a certain word or phrase was used to decipher messages.

Timber companies at odds with bears that nibble away on trees

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — The rust-red trail left by a black bear last year stands out in the green of the Coast Range, even from a ridge a mile away.

Sometime in the spring or early summer before the berries ripened, the animal followed a game trail down a hillside draw. Under a canopy of 20-year-old Douglas fir, the bear nibbled and tasted its way from tree to tree until it found one it liked.

Then it stood up, grabbed the trunk with both paws, opened its mouth wide and used its front teeth to rake off bark to get to the soft white cambium layer.

Doing what hungry bears have done for thousands of years, the bear ate the cambium off 2 or 3 feet of trunk, gouging a band of vertical tooth marks all the way around. Then it headed down the trail to find another tree.

The wounded fir stayed green for months in this place where it rains 80 inches a year. Then it ran out of nutrients, died and changed color.

Seen from a distance on a hot summer day, the jagged line of 40 or 50 red trees on the hillside makes perfect sense once you know it was made by a bear.

But the hillside is owned by a timber company, and a visit to the damaged timber reveals that more trees have been stripped this year. Tree-eating bears are about as welcome in this forest as rats in a cheese factory, and standard procedure calls for them to be snared and "removed." One of the steps of the removal process is a bullet in the head.

Timber companies, environmentalists and wildlife researchers want to know if there's a better way to deal with the inherent conflict between the state's largest industry and the estimated 25,000 black bears that range Oregon forests. Bill Noble is supposed to find out.

Noble, a 30-year-old graduate student at Oregon State University, is the main researcher in a project in which bears are snared and collared with radio transmitters. Working in the forests near Alsea, he's supposed to learn as much as he can about bears in the areas where trees are being killed and in nearby "control" areas where little or no bear damage is seen.

Noble's faculty adviser on the project, Charles Meslow, is a veteran researcher with Oregon State and the federal Fish and Wildlife Service. A lot of people have done a lot of research on black bears, he says, but no one seems to have many hard answers about tree damage and how to control it.

A major goal of Noble's $130,000 project is to get some clues as to whether all bears or only certain bears eat trees. Forest and wildlife managers also want to know if there's anything short of death that will discourage bears from eating trees. One theory is that maybe some bears have a nutritional deficiency that the cambium satisfies.

And even if there's not much short of killing bears that will protect the trees, the timber owners want to know if there's at least a way to be more sure that the bears they kill are the ones that have been eating their trees.

When Noble finds a bear in a snare, he tranquilizes it and radios for someone to help him gather the basic physical information on the animal. Then he places a radio collar on the bear and watches until he's sure the animal is recovering from the tranquilizer. Over the year Noble and others will monitor the bear.

Notre Dame, Southern Cal squabble over No. 1

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

Notre Dame vs. Southern California.

Notre Dame, 10-0 and ranked No. 1, vs. Southern California, 10-0 and ranked No. 2.

Notre Dame, whose 669 victories are second only to Michigan's 692, vs. Southern Cal, which ranks ninth with 596.

Notre Dame, whose .756 winning percentage is the best in college football history, vs. Southern Cal, which stands fifth at .711.

"This game is what college football is all about," Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz says. "It could very well determine the national championship."

"This promises to be one of the great games of all time. It's a classic national championship game," Southern Cal coach Larry Smith says.

"It isn't strictly for the national championship from the standpoint that no matter which team wins, it will still have to win its bowl game (Notre Dame against West Virginia in the Fiesta Bowl, Southern Cal against Michigan in the Rose Bowl). It's the next biggest step to the national championship."

Notre Dame and Southern Cal aren't the only contenders for the national title. Third-ranked Miami, which still nurtures hopes of repeating its 1987 championship, meets No. 8 Arkansas on Saturday; fourth-ranked West Virginia wound up an 11-0 regular season last week; No. 5 Florida State entertains Florida in a Saturday night game; and No. 6 Nebraska has finished an 11-1 regular season.

The 9-through-13 teams — UCLA, Oklahoma, Michigan, Oklahoma State, Clemson — are idle. Houston, No. 14, entertains winless Rice, No. 16 LSU plays host to Tulane in a night game and Georgia Tech visits No. 20 Georgia while No. 15 Wyoming, No. 18 Washington State and No. 19 Syracuse are off.

Notre Dame will be trying to snap a budding jinx that has seen the No. 1 team lose the last four 1-2 showdowns. The Irish also are trying for their first 11-0 regular season.

"USC may be the best football team in the country," Holtz said. "They don't appear to have a weakness, no matter how hard you try to find one. (Quarterback) Rodney Peete is as talented as any player in the country. He throws with tremendous accuracy, and he can get away from the rush.

"Beating the Southern Cal blockers is one thing, trying to tackle Rodney Peete after you get there is another thing.

"They just seem to have tremendous chemistry with this group. They just have a team that is fundamentally sound in every area.

"It's the best in the East against the best in the West,"

Southern Cal, off to its best start since the 1972 team went 12-0 and won the national championship, owns college football's longest regular-season winning streak at 14 games.

"The Rose Bowl is one of our goals, and getting there was done with a great team victory over UCLA," Smith said. "All three phases of our team — offense, defense and special teams — contributed to the win. And we had some outstanding individual performances. Now we have to kick it up several notches against Notre Dame."

Smith called Peete's 16-of-28, 189-yard passing performance against UCLA several days after he was hospitalized with the measles "one of the greatest I've ever seen. It was a superhuman effort — gutty, classy, full of big plays. If that wasn't a Heisman performance, I don't know what is."

Notre Dame, Southern Cal, West Virginia and Arkansas are the four remaining unbeaten-untied teams and the Razorbacks are seeking their first perfect season since the NCAA went to an 11-game schedule in 1970.

Rankin advances with 28-7 victory

By JOHN FREY
MRT Correspondent

HALE CENTER — The Rankin Red Devils continued their Class 1A playoff march Friday with a solid 28-7 regional win over the Follett Panthers.

Rankin's offense rolled up 396 yards, total, including 305 yards on the ground. Quarterback Doug Braden led the ground attack with 135 yards on 17 carries.

Defensively, the Red Devils were just as solid. Despite giving up 257 yards total offense, Rankin made the big play when it had to.

"Our defense has played well all year," Coach Troy Kennedy said. "They haven't gotten up much recognition, but they've only given up 54 points this season."

FOLLETT had the first threat, driving to the Rankin 13, but with 1:02 left in the first period, Darren Todd's 30-yard field goal attempt was short.

With the Red Devils taking over on their own 20, it took just 1:38 to go 80 yards for their first score. On a first down play from the Follett 46, sophomore James Watson got behind the Panther defense, Braden put the pass on his finger tips for the score and Joe Abalos' kick made it 7-0.

Following the kickoff, the Panthers drove to the Rankin 10. On fourth and three, on a guard around play, Robby Smith tripped in an open field at the 10 for no gain.

With 2:25 left in the half and Rankin facing fourth and seven at the Follett 44, the Devils eschewed the punt, but Braden was short of the first down.

FOLLETT seized the opportunity to drive to the Rankin 29. With 41 seconds left in the half, on a fourth down play, Shawn Jurgensen threw a TD pass to Matt Freeman in the end zone. Darrin Todd's kick tied the score at 7.

But the fireworks were just starting. Rankin tried a flea-flicker play with 38 seconds left, but an errant pitch was recovered by Follett at the Rankin 43. On second down, Braden intercepted a Shad Jurgensen halfback-option pass and returned to the Follett 31 with two seconds left in the half.

With time for one play, Braden went to Watson in the end zone for the TD as time expired to leave it 13-7 at half.

THE RANKIN offense used big plays in the third quarter and time consuming drives to control the game.

After forcing a Panther punt, the Devils took over on their own 22. On third down, Braden worked the option around right end and raced 75 yards for the TD and Abalos ran over the two-pointer for a 21-7 lead.

With 1:39 left in the period, Rankin took over at their own 11 and held the ball for 8:12 with Kirk Kennedy capping the drive from three yards out and then Kennedy added the extra point with 5:27 left.

The defense did the rest, preserving the victory.

Rebels win, Bulldogs lose

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Tall City

Only the first round of the 23rd annual Tall City Invitational basketball tournament was concluded at Chaparral Center Friday night, but El Paso Hanks emerged as the top turkey bet to make today's 9 p.m. finals.

Hanks beat Midland High by an 89-65 margin, but it was 51-19 at the half in what had to be the worst half of basketball in recent MHS memory.

Midland Lee also moved into the championship bracket with a win over Big Spring while Andrews staged a victory over Amarillo High and El Paso Eastwood did away with Odessa High in other first round games.

But it was the Hanks' first half barrage that had Chap Center buzzing as the Bulldogs lost undefeated status. Hanks slipped throught the MHS press like melted butter, scoring at will while the Bulldogs could hit nothing, rebound nothing and catch nothing but cold air.

"I can't explain what happened," said MHS coach Jack Stephenson. "We knew they were a good basketball team and maybe I scared my kids too much going in, but I know we are a better basketball team than that."

THE BULLDOGS won the second half by a 46-38 margin when they could have rolled over and died.

"We didn't change anything," said Stephenson. "We just did the things we didn't do in the first half."

Hanks has the reputation of being the best team in El Paso this year, despited a Wednesday loss to El Paso Andress, but coach Bob Haack had them ready Friday.

"We've been a fast starting team this year," said Haack. "I thought our defense was real good and we broke Midland's press and that was something we talked about before the game. Midland played with much more intensity in the second half."

Keith Zazenski led Hanks with 20 points while Cary Coman had 19, but Hanks also had Mark Grudziebnek with 14, Greg Stewart with 11 and Dan Remo with 11. MHS was paced by Bart Saddler's 21 points, 15 coming in the second half. Greg Lewis had 11 points.

Lee's 66-61 victory over Class 4A Big Spring was a little more lopsided than the final score indicated as the Rebels coasted in the final period while the Steers poured in 26 fourth quarter points. Lee led by as many as 15 points in the game.

Torval Crisp led the Rebs with 18 points while Terry Riley added 16, Ed Brown 13 and David Meade 10.

LEE BLASTED to a quick 18-3 lead to start the game and the Steers were left in the catch-up mode the rest of the night.

"This is the best we've played this year," said Lee coach Paul Stueckler, who has his Rebs off to a 4-0 start. "This is a nice start for us. We'll sure take it."

Big Spring was led by a game high 19 points from Abner Shellman while Chris Cole had 12. But the Steers were really hurt when post Thane Russey was tagged with three fouls in the first quarter, forcing him to the pines early.

"That did hurt us losing Russey," said Big Spring coach Boyce Paxton. "He got his third foul when I was trying to get him out of the game. Still, Lee played very well. They were tough."

Bearkats bow to White Deer

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

LUBBOCK — Despite a valiant effort by underdog Garden City, White Deer's massive offensive line enabled the Bucks to run out the clock and preserve a 21-20 win in Class A Region I football game.

The Bucks, 12-0, tentatively are set to play Rankin in the state quarterfinals next Saturday in Levelland.

Garden City quarterback Codie Scott completed 11 of 15 passes for 129 yards and one touchdown, but White Deer picked up 27 first downs on 356 total yards to control the ball for much of the game.

"They just overpowered us," Scott, who also played safety, said. "They drove us off the ball and kicked our butts."

Whatever their problems on defense, the Bearkats kept themselves in the game with a quick striking offense, featuring a variety of weapons.

After White Deer controlled the ball for most of the first half en route to a 13-7 lead, Garden City got a break when freshman defensive end Tony Aragon recovered a fumble on the 'Kats 39-yard line. A 17-yard run by tailback Tony Ramierz and a couple of completions from Scott to Juan Morales got the 'Kats within striking distance.

Ramierz fumbled within inches of the end zone, but Morales was "Juanny" on the spot, recovering in the end zone with 3:10 left in the third period. Scott's PAT kick gave the 'Kats a 14-13 lead.

Tim Davis, who led White Deer rushers with 99 yards, capped a 71-yard drive on the Bucks' next possession with a five-yard scoring run. Jason Marier then threw to T.W. Lowe for a two-point conversion that more than made up for a missed extra point kick in the first quarter.

Scott again drove the 'Kats downfield, mixing runs and passes until Weldon Hilger capped a 12-yard run by leaping over a fallen Buck into the end zone to put the 'Kats within one point. But White Deer defensive back Bart Thomas thwarted Garden City's own try for two points with a leaping interception of a pass intended for Leo Garcia.

"I basically told the kids they needed to play good defense," White Deer coach Windy Williams said. "It was a matter of being in position and everyone doing their job."

Garden City was forced to go for two despite a tie in penetrations because White Deer had a commanding lead in first downs.

With 6:16 left in the game, there normally would have been plenty of time for the Bearkats to get another shot at the goal. But White Deer is not a normal team.

The Bucks ran out the clock by getting four first downs on a 60-yard drive, but ended only when time expired.

"This is really a scripted game," Williams said. "We executed so well."

Scott said Garden City's game plan was also fulfilled.

"We drove the ball just like we thought we could do," the Bearkat quarterback said.

Tamburo denies meeting with Stull

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — University of Missouri athletic director Dick Tamburo on Friday denied media reports that Texas-El Paso football coach Bob Stull would visit the Missouri campus over the weekend.

Stull is considered the leading candidate to replace Woody Widenhofer as Missouri coach. Widenhofer resigned under pressure Monday after the Tigers finished a 3-7-1 season.

"There's nothing set for this weekend," Tamburo said. "I have a few other people I want to visit with and I told him (Stull) that."

Sanders could hurt grid image

Battles

A month ago, he was a long shot Heisman Trophy possible, or more accurately, impossible, candidate.

Now Oklahoma State's Barry Sanders is the favorite.

The problem with Barry is that if he wins, he could injure the popular conception of the college football player.

Sanders moved into the forefront in the Heisman sweeps partly through the collapse of the frontrunners and mostly through the awesome rushing, total offense figures he has compiled.

UCLA'S Troy Aikman, everybody's favorite at one time, has slipped over the last month. First, there was the loss to Washington State and then, last week, in what could have been the national championship game against arch-rival USC, the University of Oklahoma transfer failed to pull it off.

Miami's Steve Walsh hasn't been all that bad, but since the Hurricane's loss to Notre Dame, his star has dimmed. Apparently, it takes a national title for a Heisman winner at Miami.

SANDERS' main competition right now would appear to be USC quarterback Rodney Peete, who gets the job done, but without, perhaps, the flare that catches the fancy of the voters.

But don't sell, Peete short. His performance against Notre Dame today could decide the Heisman winner, as well as the national champion.

Apparently, it wouldn't bother Sanders. He's not at all sure he wants the trophy.

The way he's got it figured, it could become a hassle. "I think my schoolwork would suffer." You know what it would be like, flying coast-to-coast and fulfilling all those public appearance demands.

What's this....a college football player worried about missing classes? Where's the NCAA investigating team?

That's as bad as the former Midland Cub Joe Carter. Oklahoma wanted him to return punts, but wouldn't let him play baseball, so he went to Wichita State where he did both.

"But I gave up football after my freshman year so I could concentrate on baseball and my studies," Carter, now playing for some team in the midwest, once explained.

Of course, in retrospect, we all know what kind of a mistake that was. His baseball reputation is such that he may wind up being traded to Boston for Wade Boggs.

SANDERS had to become suspect when with a chance to set an NCAA single game rushing record— all he needed was 57 yards and had 12 minutes to do it in— insisted that his backup play instead. After all, the kid had worked hard and Kansas was a blow out....

It was for that kind of attitude that they began awarding the Heisman in the first place.

Jay Berwanger, the first winner, didn't get for his inspirational play on a championship national contender. He played at the University of Chicago, which at the time was the Columbia of the Big 10.

As long as Jay was in the game as a runner, blocker, linebacker, punter, passer, conversion kicker, the Maroon gave the toughies of the day fits, but along about the fourth quarter when fatigue became a factor ...

SOUTHWEST CONFERENCE football has suffered through an abysmal football season in which the league's reputation has been left in tatters and Texas' top young high school football players have opted to go out of state.

Pitt's ace running back is a freshman from South Texas who looked at the SWC carnage of guilt, saw axes hanging over almost every head and decided, "I didn't want to chance playing some place where I'd never get to go to a bowl game."

Houston, under second year miracle-worker Jack Pardee, struck a blow for the SWC by beating previously unbeaten Wyoming.

Now, the conference looks to Arkansas as its hope for restoring some national prestige. The Razorbacks play Miami today, opportunity, of course, but opportunity tempered by the memory of the dreadful drubbing administered by Miami to the Hogs a year ago.

If Arkansas can just play the Hurricane a respectable game, it will do wonders in restoring color to the cheeks of the league.

Should Arkansas do the impossible and win, the Razorbacks would propel themselves into the national championship picture, a scene from which they have been excluded, despite an unblemished record, and because of the company they keep.

Class 4A Andrews pulled off its 69-58 coup over Class 5A Amarillo High by putting the second half clamp on 6-8 senior Brad Dale, the Amarillo athlete who is headed for Texas Tech next fall.

Dale scored a game high 22 points, but had only one field goal in the second half as a swarming Andrews defense made its presence known.

On the offensive front, Andrews got 21 points from Gym Bice and 19 more from Damon Clay, who played at Midland Lee last year. Ara Baten added 10 points while Amarillo didn't land anyone besides Dale in double figures.

"I was really pleased with the job our kids did in the second half," said Andrews coach Frank Bice. "You have to stop Dale if you want to beat them. He's capable of lighting you up for about 40 points. We did a pretty good job of keeping the ball away from him in the second half."

Eastwood got a game high 17 points from junior Richard Castro and 13 more from Darrell Davis as the Troopers used a big second period to take the lead from Odessa High and eventually a 63-48 win in a battle between two young teams.

In consolation action today, MHS will test Amarillo High at 8:30 a.m. while OHS and Big Spring meet at 10 a.m. Hanks and Andrews will play at 11:30 a.m. to start the championship run while Lee meets Eastwood at 1 p.m. Seventh place is at 3 p.m., consolation championship at 5 p.m., third place at 7 p.m. and the championship at 9 p.m.

LAHAINA, Hawaii (AP) — Stacey King scored 34 points and No. 4 Oklahoma rallied from a seven-point deficit in the second half on Friday and beat 16th-ranked Ohio State 97-93 in the opening round of the Maui Classic.

The Sooners' victory offset the 38-point performance of Jay Burson, Ohio State's 6-foot, 156-pound senior guard.

Oklahoma will meet the winner of Friday's final first-round game between No. 8 Nevada-Las Vegas and DePaul.

Ohio State led 62-55 with 15:36 to play but the Sooners went on a 13-0 run with junior college transfer William Davis scoring six of the points, four on rebounds.

Former Midland College cager Mookie Blaylock, along with King the only starters back for Oklahoma, which lost in the NCAA championship game last year, finished with 14. Jones, Davis and Skeeter Henry, another ex Chaparral, had 12 each.

LAHAINA, Hawaii — Glen Rice scored 15 of his 18 points in the first half and Sean Higgins scored all 17 of his after intermission as No. 3 Michigan beat Vanderbilt in the Maui Classic.

The Wolverines will meet Memphis State, an 88-44 winner over host Chaminade, in one of Saturday's semifinals.

Terry Mills and Loy Vaught each had 12 for Michigan, while Robinson and Mark Hughes added 10 each.

Frank Kornet led Vanderbilt with 15 points, while Barry Goheen added 12 and Eric Reid had 10.

Syracuse 86, Missouri 84

NEW YORK — Steve Thompson scored seven of 4-0 Syracuse's 10 points in overtime and finished with 23 as the sixth-ranked Orangemen beat No. 13 Missouri in the championship game of the Big Apple National Invitation Tournament Friday night.

The Tigers led 80-79 after a layup by Greg Church with 2:29 left in the extra period, but Thompson rebounded an airball by Matt Roe and laid it in, giving Syracuse the lead for good.

After two free throws by Roe and a basket by Missouri's Lee Coward made it 83-82, Thompson caught a long pass and was fouled as he scored with 14 seconds left. He converted the free throw, making the score 86-82.

Sherman Douglas scored 21 points for Syracuse and was named the Most Valuable Player of the tournament. Derrick Coleman added 18 for the Orangemen.

Coward had 21 points and Church added 14 for Missouri, 3-1.

UNC 105, Indiana 92

NEW YORK — Jeff Lebo scored a career-high 29 points and made six of his first seven 3-point attempts as fifth-ranked North Carolina beat No. 20 Indiana for third place in the Big Apple National Invitation Tournament.

It was only the third time Indiana has given up more than 100 points in a game in Bob Knight's coaching career, but the second in two games. Syracuse beat the Hoosiers 102-78 in the semifinals and Iowa scored 101 points in 1987.

Lebo, a senior guard whose previous career-high was 28 last season, made only five of his 21 3-point shots in North Carolina's first three games.

In the second half, Lebo made his first four 3-pointers, including a four-point play after he was fouled on the fourth attempt. The free throw gave the Tar Heels, 3-1, a 67-57 lead with 13:47 left.

WTS 84, A&I 78

AMARILLO — West Texas State, powered by forward Robert Allen's 27 points, came from behind to into the semifinals of the Lone Star Conference men's basketball pre-season tournament.

Texas A&I led by many as eight points in the second half, but Allen hit two free throws with 2:42 to play to send West Texas ahead 78-76. Forward Dolly Cummings had 20 points to lead Texas A&I, 1-1, in scoring.

West Texas State, 3-1, will meet Central State of Oklahoma at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Davidson 57, SW Texas St. 55

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Bruce Elder scored 20 points Friday as Davidson overcame its own mistakes (19 of 40 from the line) in the opening round of the San Juan Shootout.

Davidson took a 31-23 halftime lead and opened up a 49-35 edge with the help of an 11-4 run. Dick Seidel capped the burst with a pair of free throws with 8:10 remaining.

From there, the Bobcats' press helped contribute to Davidson's 25 turnovers, and Davidson added to its own troubles by missing six of 12 free throws down the stretch.

Alan Hunter scored 12 points and Maurice Gray had 10 points for Davidson. Bryan Barrier's 11 points led Southwest Texas State.

Central 89, Angelo 88

AMARILLO — Six-four Kevin McCain's tip-in with one second remaining gave Central State, 1-1, an upset over Angelo State, 3-1, in Friday's first round of the Lone Star Conference preseason basketball tournament. The junior scored 29 points as as Central State evened its record at 1-1 for the season. Eastern New Mexico defeated East Texas State 99-81 in the opening game.

Guard Jeff Fudge led Angelo State with 26 points for Angele State.

Kentucky 56, Iona 54

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Even without three starters, the Iona Gaels almost were good enough to beat Kentucky, 1-1, in the opening game of the Great Alaska Shootout. "We're due a break."

The Wildcats, after an 80-55 loss to No. 1 Duke last week, are playing under the cloud of an NCAA investigation that already has resulted in the resignation of Athletic Director Cliff Hagen. The NCAA accuses the Kentucky basketball program of 18 infractions.

The Gaels' Glenn Grant, Nestor Payne and Joe Johnson had to sit out the team's season opener for playing in a summer game that was not sanctioned by the NCAA.

Kentucky's 6-10 LeRon Ellis scored a career-high 22 points, including several stuff shots on lob passes from the coach's son, playmaker Sean Sutton.

Miami Hurricane wary of vengeful Razorbacks

By STEVEN WINE

MIAMI (AP) — Wide receiver Andre Brown of third-ranked Miami warned Arkansas to be ready for the best when the two teams play today.

"We're not going to come in flat," Brown said. "We're excited about Arkansas coming down here undefeated. They'll have revenge on their mind. We want to show 'em we're a good team.

"Arkansas better watch out."

Brown expects No. 8 Arkansas to be looking to get even for last year's 51-7 beating on their home turf.

Miami coach Jimmy Johnson had a warning for his own players. "Arkansas is a much better team than what we faced a year ago," he said.

"We took advantage of Arkansas last year with the style of pass defense they played. Also, we took advantage of their offense, in that they were one-dimensional. This year they've made drastic improvement in those two phases."

Johnson also warned that while Arkansas is 10-0, Miami is likely to be "somewhat complacent" after last Saturday's 44-3 victory at Louisiana State.

Orange Bowl-bound Miami, 8-1, will be the first Top Ten team Arkansas has faced. A victory by the Razorbacks would boost them into contention for No. 1, Coach Ken Hatfield said.

"I don't think there'd be any doubt. If you beat Miami in Miami ... realistically you'd put yourself in position."

The Hogs have won the Southwest Conference title and a berth in the Cotton Bowl, but they have been virtually ignored in speculation about who will win the national championship.

"Because of the Southwest Conference being somewhat down, they have not received the respect due to them," said Johnson, whose team also has hopes of a No. 1 finish.

Miami and Arkansas both need top-ranked Notre Dame to lose Saturday at Southern California. If the Fighting Irish win, their Fiesta Bowl game against No. 4 West Virginia likely will determine the national champion.

Some skepticism about the Razorbacks stems from the scores of their games. Six victories have been by a total of 32 points.

"We've been about one play better than everybody else we've played so far," Hatfield said.

The key play has often been provided by quarterbacks Quinn Grovey and John Bland, who have both averaged better than 9 yards per pass attempt out of Arkansas' flexbone offense. And Grovey has rushed for 492 yards.

But their statistics can't match Steve Walsh's.

SUPER BILL WANTS TO RETURN— Former Texas Longhorn football star Bill Bradley would like to return to Texas as an assistant coach to David McWilliams. Bradley, a quarterback-receiver-defensive back and punter for Texas, lettered in 1966-68 and later played for Philadelphia and St. Louis. He holds the Longhorn single game record for pass interceptions with four in 1968 against Texas A&M.

NBA DOLES OUT FINES— Portland's Steve Johnson and Seattle's Xavier McDaniel and Michael Cage were fined a total of $7,000 by the NBA for their actions during the Trail Blazers' 125-104 victory over the SuperSonics. The game, played Tuesday night at Seattle, was marred by eight technical fouls and two fights in the second quarter. The first fight occurred between Johnson and Cage with five minutes remaining in the half. The second occurred three minutes later, between Portland's Jerome Kersey and McDaniel.

The first fight broke out when Cage pushed Johnson. Then, Johnson threw a right cross to the head. Cage was unhurt and Johnson was ejected. In the second fight, Kersey pushed McDaniel and was called for a foul. McDaniel began to run around the court and swing his arms at players trying to restrain him. He then kicked a cooler at courtside and was given two technical fouls and ejected.

STREAK ENDS— Doylestown, Pa., Central Bucks East end arch-rival Central Bucks West's 53-game winning streak when Greg Glemser scored on a 3-yard run in the fourth quarter for a 14-14 tie. The end of the streak came on the fifth anniversary of the Bucks' last loss, to C.B. East. The winning streak was the current longest in prep football in the nation, although still shy of the 72 victories by Hudson High in Michigan set between 1968-75.

GRADY FIRES RECORD 65— Wayne Grady, Autralian PGA champion, fired a course record 65 Friday to grab a one-shot halfway lead in the $297,500 Australian Open championship. Grady shrugged off what he described as "knee knocking nerves" to finish with 133, 11-under-par for two rounds. His seven-under-par round left him a shot ahead of Mark Calcavecchia, 67—134.

WORLD CUP TRIES AGAIN— After a postponed start due to lack of snow in Argentina in August and France last week, the World Cup skiing season begins Saturday with a women's super-G opening the season after the Olympics in Schladming, Austria.....

Cowboys, Oilers can be thankful

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Houston Oilers and the Dallas Cowboys were in a Thanksgiving Day game in which both teams had something to be thankful about.

Houston won the game 25-17 and inched within a half-game of Cincinnati in the AFC Central with a 9-4 record.

The downtrodden Cowboys got a big moral lift and took a half game lead in the Troy Aikman sweepstakes with a 2-11 record. It clinched last place in the NFC East.

The Oilers play at home against Pittsburgh on Dec. 4 and Cincinnati on Dec. 11 then are at Cleveland in the season finale on Dec. 18.

The Cowboys have lost nine games in a row and their 11 losses ties a club record.

Their primary rivals for the right to win the NFL's top draft pick next spring are. Pittsburgh and Green Bay, both 2-10.

PITTSBURGH has games left at Houston, at San Diego and at home against Miami.

Dallas plays at Cleveland and Washington before closing out the season at home against Philadelphia.

Aikman is the senior quarterback from UCLA, who is rated the top offensive player in the draft.

The Cowboys must win the draft pick outright because if they end up tied with either Pittsburgh or Green Bay they lose out because of strength of schedule. Dallas has the toughest of the three.

"If we got the draft pick we would certainly have to take a player of Aikman's quality," said club president Tex Schramm. "You couldn't pass him up."

Houston will have 10 days to get ready for Pittsburgh which is one of the big advantages of playing on Thanksgiving Day. It gives the participants a big advantage of rest in their next game.

JIM MURRAY

Getting Notre Dame's Irish up for tough Trojans

Murray

"Hello, operator, get me the coach, Mr. Lou O'Holtz, himself. Phwat? Why 'tis the coach of the Fightin' Oirish, thimsilves! Nowter Deem! The finest football tame in all the land. Every man jack of them over 7 feet tall and the grace of God purrin' in their hearts and if ye don't think so they'll break your arms for ye. A grand sight! The battle o' the Boyne!

"Phwat? Oh, ye better look under the 'haitches.' We don't put the 'O' under his name till he beats the heathens.

"Hello, Coach?! Is that you, now? Ah, 'tis a darlin' man ye are!' Tis Oi. Shamus! Ye may remember we met at the home of the sainted Paddy O'Broyne of the fillums, may his soul rest in peace.

"NOW, SATURDAY will be a grand day for the wearin' of the green, will it now? We'll rock the heathens, them and their white harse and all. What is it they call themselves? The Greeks? Ah, yis, the Trojans. 'Tis no matter. By Saturday night, they'll be a chalk drawing on the floor.

"Now, Coach, there's wan thing Oi have to tell ye. They're big. Oi mean, some of thim should have elevators in thim, if ye know what Oi mane. They have these rings in their ears and for all Oi know keep shrunken heads in their rooms. God knows where they found these craythers but if ye see them coomin, don't get out of your Land Rover or throw away your gun. Some o'thim should have a horn growing out of their head.

"They have this wan player they wheel in in an ambulance just before the game. Ah, how Rockne himself would have loved this little game. Ye remember how the Rock would call on his blessed grandmother on her deathbed, when he needed a touchdown or two? T'would turn out all she had was corns but no matter. Well, these heathens go ye one better! They win wan for their poor, dear sick quarterback – and he's there to help! Ye have to admire the audacity of it. Also the mendacity. Not even Rockne himself ever thought of that!

"WOULD IT help ye, d'ye think, to have your first string line show up in wheelchairs? What these scoundrels do is, they bring in their quarterback with a sheet over his head. Thin, he gets up and throws two touchdown passes. Now, how're we goin' to get George Gipp to overcome that?! We're in no position to be disputin' miracles but this is a bit too much. Last week, 'tis said he had the measles. This week, it's laryngitis. Or, maybe it's meningitis. Either way, he'll play four quarters. And beat your brains out, if you're not careful.

"The rest of the team doesn't need any sad stories. Ruffians, the lot o'them. Your quarterback may be the one who really needs round-the-clock nurses by the final gun.

"Do we have any broths of lads a'tall any more? Is it all speed we're after? We used to put out on the field the cream of every coal mine and cornfield in the land. Ivery man jack o'thim with a name that began or ended in an 'O.'' Ah, the might o' thim. We had a line that could not only read an eye-chart but understand it. Ah, the marvel of those names! Carideo, Schwartz, Savoldi, Sitko, Angsman, Tripucka, Swistowicz. Syllables that once through Tara's halls. Ye have a youngster in the grand tradition this year. Raghib Ramadan Ismail. May his tribe increase. Sure, if he can run with the ball, we'll cheer for the man who calls himself King George.

"COACH, Oi know it's a delicate matter but have ye given any thought a'tall to changing' the way ye look? I mean, ye bein' the successor to the great Rock and Iron Frank Leahy, and all, d'ye think it would do ye some good to let your hair fall out or get your nose broken? I mean, why, only the ither night I was in this bare, havin' a drop o' the craythers when this great California lout with the smell of a dozen French fancy houses to him and enough gold chains about his neck to light a room cooms up an, sez he 'Well, I see you Micks have stepped on your necks for fair this time, how is it you don't get yourself a real coach?' 'Well, now,' sez Oi, 'what's a real coach? That farmer ye have coaching the Greeks or the Babylonians or whatever it is ye call that excuse for a tame we play this weekend?'

" 'Well,' sez he, 'how can ye win with Woody Allen coaching your elevens? You want first downs, you get one-liners. You need Woody Hayes, you get Woody Allen.' 'Well,' sez Oi, 'were ye aware a'tall the first tame has reservations back to South Bend at the end of the first quarter. Or maybe the beginning? An' why wouldn't ye button your shirt? If I want to look at hairy chests I'll go down to a zoo. You'll get your death o'cold.' 'Why,' he sez, 'ye snotty Mick I ought to bust yer head,' and, sez Oi, 'How in the world will ye be doing that, ye without your purse an' all?'

"'Well,' he sez, 'why wouldn't you get a coach named Pat or Mike who looked like a bricklayer, why d'you get one that looks as if he's about to say, 'Did you hear the one about the two nuns and the talking horse?' 'Well,' sez Oi, 'maybe it's our secret weapon. He looks that harmless and he's a killer. Did ye ever stop to think Jack the Ripper may have looked like Woody Allen?' 'Knute Rockne looked more like Jack the Ripper to me,' sez he. 'Lou Holtz looks like one of his victims.'

"We left it at that. Ye can't argue with people who don't believe in leprechauns. Tis well known Californy is a quare place peopled by all kinds of odd ducks, psychiatrists and the like. Do me a favor, would ye? Roon up the score if ye get the chance, They need teachin' a lesson.

Ruidoso shocks Roswell

RUIDOSO, N.M. (AP) — Freshman Micah Whitlock kicked a 34-yard field goal through a blizzard Friday night to give Ruidoso a 24-21 upset win over Roswell Goddard in the semifinals of the Class AAA high school playoffs.

Ruidoso, which lost to Goddard 38-0 in the third game of the regular season, advances to next week's championship game against the winner of Saturday's matchup between Portales and Raton.

Whitlock, 130-pounds of clutchness, booted the winning field goal with two seconds left in the game. The game-winning three-pointer silenced a torrid second half comeback by Goddard, which wiped out a 21-0 Ruidoso halftime lead.

Ruidoso, now 8-5 for the year and headed for the state title game for the third time in the last four years, got a pair of touchdown runs from junior halfback Kenny Trapp and a 70-yard kickoff return by Dusty Beavers on the opening play of the game to build its 21-0 cushion.

Ruidoso won the state championship in 1985 and finished second in 1986 behind Lovington.

Auburn's James Joseph attempts to spin out of the grasp of Alabama tacklers as Tigers defeated Crimson Tide, 15-10, in Birmingham Friday to earn a Sugar Bowl invitation.

Auburn stems Tide for Sugar Bowl

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Seventh-ranked Auburn gained a share of the Southeastern Conference championship and a berth in the Sugar Bowl Friday with its specialty: defense.

With tackle Ron Stallworth recording four quarterback sacks, one for a safety, the Tigers held No. 17 Alabama to 12 net yards rushing and trimmed the Crimson Tide 15-10.

The triumph lifted the Tigers into a tie with No. 16 Louisiana State for the SEC title, and the Sugar Bowl immediately extended and Auburn accepted an invitation to face No. 5 Florida State in the New Orleans event Jan. 2.

The Tigers had six sacks for the day and Lawyer Tillman turned in the gamne's biggest offensive play, a leaping catch of a 53-yard pass over a defender to set up Auburn's only touchdown.

LSU will now head for the Hall of Fame Bowl in Tampa to face Syracuse, a team that had dearly wanted Auburn as it foe after the two teams battled to a tie in last year's Sugar Bowl.

It was the sixth victory in a row for the Tigers, who closed the season at 10-1 overall and 6-1 in the SEC.

Alabama, headed for a Sun Bowl game with Army after closing the regular season at Texas A&M next Thursday night, fell to 7-3 for the year and 4-3 in the conference.

It was Auburn's third victory in a row over the Crimson Tide, its longest streak in the series since putting together five in a row in the 1950s — the last four years before and first year of the Bear Bryant era.

Stallworth's 6-yard sack of Smith in the end zone broke a 3-3 tie with 3:19 left in the opening quarter.

Tillman's catch set up a 1-yard scoring run by Vincent Harris with 2:55 left in the third, staking the Tigers to a 15-3 lead that virtually put the game out of reach.

Tillman leaped up with defender Lee Ozmint to spear the 53-yard bomb from Reggie Slack at the Alabama 33. On the next play, Stacy Danley raced 18 yards to the 15 and Harris scored one play after Slack fired a 12-yard pass to Freddy Wegand.

Auburn's other scoring came on field goals of 25 and 22 yards by Win Lyle.

Arkansas won 11 games only in 1964 (10-0, plus a Cotton Bowl victory over Nebraska) and 1977 (10-1, plus an Orange Bowl victory over Oklahoma). Ironically, Johnson was a captain of that 1964 club.

Florida State trails 22-7-1 in its series with Florida but the Seminoles are 2½-touchdown favorites over the All American Bowl-bound Gators this time. Florida State has won nine straight since dropping its opener to Miami 31-0.

"This is our second season," FSU coach Bobby Bowden said. "The first 10 games are always our first season. The Florida game is a season in itself. We can never underestimate Florida.

"Their defense is about as good as anybody in the country (No. 2 nationally). When you can play defense like they can, you're always going to be in the game."

Florida's Galen Hall said FSU "presents the biggest challenge we have had this season. I doubt if there is a better football team in the country right now. They have more talent down through the lineup than any team we've seen and there are people on their second and third teams who could start for most schools."

Ga. Tech 97, UNCA

ATLANTA — Tom Hammonds and Brian Oliver scored 23 points each as 14th-ranked Georgia Tech beat North Carolina-Asheville in the season opener for both teams.

Villanova 85, P.R. 60

BAYAMON, Puerto Rico — Doug West scored 20 points, including eight during a 20-6 run that began the second half, and 11th-ranked Villanova beat American University of Puerto Rico in the first round of the San Juan Shootout.

Rodney Taylor scored 18 points and grabbed eight rebounds for the Wildcats. Tom Greis scored 13 and Gary Massey 11.

Maryland 74, TCU 67

IRVINE, Calif. — Junior center Tony Massenburg scored a career-high 26 points and the Maryland Terrapins overcame a five-point halftime deficit to beat Texas Christian in the first round of the Freedom Bowl Classic.

Massenburg's previous career high was 25 points against South Carolina last December. He made 12 of 13 free throws and the Terrapins were 27 of 29 from the line.

Detroit 64, Rice 53

DETROIT — Paul Williams scored 15 of his 21 points in the second half as the Detroit beat Rice in the opener for both schools Friday.

It was the first collegiate victory for Detroit's coach Ricky Byrdsong, who served as an assistant at Arizona last year.

Detroit made just eight of 31 shots (26 percent) in the first half. Rice connected on nine of 21 attempts (43 percent) to take a 23-18 lead at intermission.

Cycling pro wins UCI drug support

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Canadian professional cyclist Steve Bauer won the support of the world governing body, the International Cyclist Union (UCI), in his battle to escape a criminal assault charge in a Belgian court.

Deadly Blackman wins it for Mavs

DALLAS (AP) — Rolando Blackman sank four free throws in the final 30 seconds Friday night to boost the Dallas Mavericks over the Atlanta Hawks 100-95.

With the score 96-95, a 3-point attempt by Atlanta's Dudley Bradley missed and Sam Perkins closed out the scoring with two more foul shots.

It was the Mavericks' sixth victory in their last seven games.

Atlanta, which lost its third straight, was led by Dominique Wilkins' 26 points.

Derek Harper led the Mavericks with 28 points and Blackman had 20.

Harper scored seven points, including a 3-pointer, during a Dallas streak of nine straight points in the third quarter, turning a 68-66 deficit into a 73-68 Dallas lead. Atlanta went on a 6-2 run at the end of the period and Dallas led 75-74 to start the fourth quarter.

Harper scored 20 or more points in his fourth straight game, a career best.

NBA

Celtics 115, Bucks 96

BOSTON — Kevin McHale scored 27 points and Danny Ainge scored 20 as the Boston Celtics won their ninth consecutive regular-season home victory over the Bucks.

Boston, which evened its record after 12 games, built a 59-48 halftime lead and increased it to 89-68 in the third quarter.

Milwaukee, which has lost four of five, pulled to 91-73 at the end of the third. The Bucks then scored eight straight points to start the fourth quarter before Boston put its starters back in.

Bullets 106, Pacers 101

INDIANAPOLIS — Jeff Malone scored 26 points and Bernard King added 25, with each scoring 11 in the final period, to lead the Washington Bullets.

76ers 123, Hornets 116

PHILADELPHIA — Charles Barkley scored 37 points and Cliff Robinson added 23 as the Philadelphia 76ers rallied in the final five minutes to defeat the Charlotte Hornets for their third straight victory.

BEARKATS—

Garden City coach Sam Scott had little to say after the game. The Bearkat mentor rushed to the hospital immediately after the game to check on his son Jodie, Codie's twin who was carted away in an ambulance after being injured on the first play in the last half. Jodie's condition was unknown late Friday night.

White Deer made its presence felt with a 13-play, 71-yard drive after the opening kickoff. Twelve first downs later, wingback Bryan Waitman crashed into the end zone from eight yards out. The extra point kick was blocked.

Garden City was not so fortunate on its first possession. The 'Kats drove well into Buck territory, but Codie Scott coughed up the ball and White Deer freshman Zach Thomas recovered at the Buck 20.

LIFESCOPE

Instructions To A Young Preacher! Your Lifescope Says, "Good Advice For All To Follow!"

Oh, Timothy, my son, be strong with the strength Christ Jesus gives you. I remember the sincere faith you have, the kind of faith that your grandmother Lois and your mother Eunice also had. For this reason I remind you to keep alive the gift that God gave to you when I laid my hands on you. For the Spirit that God has given us does not make us timid; instead, His Spirit fills us with power, love, and self-control.

Do not be ashamed, then, of witnessing for our Lord; neither be ashamed of me, His prisoner. Instead, take your part in suffering for the Good News, as God gives you the strength for it. For He has rescued us from all that is really evil and called us to a life of holiness - not because of any of our achievements but for His own purpose. And now He has made all of this plain to us by the coming of our Savior Jesus Christ, Who broke the power of death and showed us the way of everlasting life through trusting Him.

Don't let anyone think little of you because you are young. Be their ideal; let them follow the way you teach and live; be a pattern for them in your love, your faith, and your clean thoughts. Keep a close watch on all you do and think. Stay true to what is right and God will bless you and use you to help others.

Hold tightly to the pattern of truth I taught you, especially concerning the faith and love Christ Jesus offers you. Guard well the splendid, God-given ability you received as a gift from the Holy Spirit Who lives within you.

Run from anything that gives you the evil thoughts that young men often have, but stay close to anything that makes you want to do right. Have faith and love, and enjoy the companionship of those who love the Lord and have pure hearts. Run your best race of faith, and win eternal life for yourself; for it was to this life that God called you when you made your good profession of faith before many witnesses. Now, Timothy, my son, here is my command to you: Fight well in the Lord's battles . . . Cling tightly to your faith in Christ and always keep your conscience clear, doing what you know is right.

Book critical of some evangelists

Pastor says God doesn't need intermediary

WACO, Texas (AP) — "God did not tell me to write this book!" says the boldly printed first sentence of "God Told Me to Tell You," by the Rev. R.L. Whitworth of Robinson.

The book criticizes preachers who claim to speak for God.

Whitworth, senior pastor of Calvary Assembly of God Church for 30 years, said criticizing preachers such as Oral Roberts and Robert Tilton may upset some of their followers. Yet his message is directed to people who trust their health and money to such preachers, he said.

"The reason I wrote this book is that in 35 years of pastoring, I have observed firsthand the misuse of 1 Corinthians 12:8, the word of knowledge," he said.

The King James Version of I Corinthians 12:8 is: "For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom: to another the word of knowledge by the same Spirit."

Whitworth says the passage is misused by "superreligious" preachers, whom he describes as preachers who say, " 'God told me to tell you,' and then they'll use their own words."

Citing Roberts' claim last year that God would "call him home" if he didn't raise $8 million and Tilton's money-raising tactics, Whitworth said people who say "God told me to tell you" are not acting according to Scripture.

God speaks to people through the Bible, he said.

"What does God say? Well, he says what's written in the Bible, but it can't be real to you unless it's applied by the Holy Spirit," he said.

God does not need to speak through an intermediary, he said.

"The devil, nor God, has to have someone else to speak for them. They can speak to the people directly themselves," he said.

People claim God speaks through them for three basic reasons, Whitworth said. Those reasons are: because they want to be something they are not; because they want to get something they don't have; or because they cannot tell the difference between the truth and a lie, he said.

Calling it "charismatic fortune-telling," Whitworth said he is particularly concerned about "faith healers" who diagnose sicknesses in people and claim to heal them with God's power.

As a charismatic-Pentecostal, Whitworth said, "I'm a firm believer in divine healing." In his book, he writes about a woman with diagnosed cancer who attended a healing service at his church. Afterward doctors reportedly found the cancer had disappeared, the book says.

The Rev. R. L. Whitworth's book, "God Told Me To Tell You," criticizes some famous evangelists.

However, "We have no right to tell anybody they're healed. The Holy Spirit tells you you're healed," he said. "When the Holy Spirit speaks, it is right, and it never misses."

Whitworth says he has personal experiences to add weight to his criticisms.

When he was "a very young Christian," someone made a prophecy about him, he said.

"God told them to tell me that I was called to the mission field. I lived under that impression for years. Later, I found out that was wrong. God does his own talking," he said.

Whitworth said a current member of his church was the funeral director for a California boy whose parents withheld insulin from him in 1973 because they believed he was cured of diabetes by a visiting Assembly of God evangelist.

The boy died.

"Our job is to pray for the sick, lay hands on the sick. That's all."

People should not diagnose sicknesses or proclaim people cured, he said.

"People die of that foolishness," he said. "I do not believe in any person being a divine healer. Jesus is the only divine healer — not healer, but divine healer."

Whitworth has issued a challenge to the nationally known self-styled faith healers, inviting them to Calvary Assembly of God Church "for a special meeting to bless people who are in real desperate physical need."

Whitworth said he does not expect any of the "healers" to show up when challenged with known blind people, deaf people and people who cannot walk at all.

Whitworth said he believes faith healers and people who claim to speak for God damage the Christian cause.

He said he hopes his book challenges the "gullible" and super-religious people.

Church revival described as 'Holy Ghost hoedown'

DENTON, Texas (AP) — The sound system is being tested and all but drowns out the greetings of the faithful who trickle in to meet under the tent covering rows of pews.

As the members and guests of Life Tabernacle Church begin the songs that characterize their worship, chills run up the legs of those in attendance.

Some called it the presence of the Holy Spirit, but maybe it was just the cool wind that blew at dusk on the sixth night of the summer revival.

Janet Teague said the cool breeze was a gift from God, who wanted his worshippers to continue the revival beyond its scheduled five days. She was quick to talk about the healings she has seen: the restoration of a boy's hearing and the relief of an elderly man's arthritis.

Evangelist Bill Mills, who was a guest speaker at the services, called it a "Holy Ghost hoedown."

Harry Splechter said when the Rev. Paul Haygood prayed for him, "I felt just a warm feeling from the top of my head to the bottom of my feet. When Rev. Haygood prayed for me, the pain just left my knees."

Healing is not a new experience for Splechter, who said he was instantly healed of inflammation of the vertebrae in 1951 in a St. Louis hospital. Although the Army had discharged him as disabled, a faith healing erased all signs of his ailment.

"I feel that a little bit of doubt sometimes keeps us from being healed," he said. He said he believed in God before he was healed the first time, but "I just couldn't grasp the fact that it would actually come to me."

Haygood is pleased with the faith of his congregation. Their church on Wood Street burned down in December 1983, and the congregation now has a metal building on a 10-acre lot. But for five months the church met in a tent.

Eight people who attended the revival are members of the Donna and Robert McCauley family. They say their son, Shane, 3, was healed at the revival.

Mrs. McCauley said her son would listen to the stereo with it turned all the way up and his ear to the speaker. One night at the revival, he suddenly put his hands over his ears to block out a singer.

Haygood said the healing happened at the same time he told his assistant pastor the crowd needed a miracle and to go find someone who needed help. His assistant immediately suggested Shane.

When McCauley took his son to the front of the tent and Haygood prayed, he whispered to his son, "Can you hear me?" and Shane nodded.

"I don't even know what a healer is. To me, nobody heals. God heals. I just lay my hands on them and pray for them.

"Don't let anyone ever fool you and tell you that he's a healer, because he's not. God is the healer."

Teague said, "This is not TV."

Mission head says Brazil adding to rolls

At least one country in the world is adding to evangelical Christian church rolls faster than the population, according to Joanna Herr, who heads the mission emphasis at the Midland Seventh-day Adventist Church, 3114 Travis.

Evangelical Christians in Brazil have the third highest membership in the world, said Herr.

Many young people there are joining the church, but that's the way it probably should be in a country where 47 percent of the population is under 20.

Adventists have 1,266 churches in Brazil, a country larger than mainland United States and with half its population. More than half a million members are crowded in their houses or worship, but because the average per capita income is $135 and they don't have a lot of money for building churches.

Herr says that the Christmas offering this year will build a hospital in Manaus from where Adventists were the first to send medical boats up and down the Amazon, and in Porto Alegre, as well as schools in Anapolis and Curitiba.

The mission report will be given in the church sanctuary beginning at 9:30 a.m. Saturday. Congregational singing starts at 9:15 a.m., and the day's Bible study will center on "God Tell Us About Happy Homes." Pastor Eddie Card invites everyone to be a part of this program.

Evangelist to preach

ODESSA — Pastors Don and Paulette Caywood of Odessa Christian Faith Center, 8860 N. Andrews Highway, invite everyone to attend as Patrick Norris, evangelist, ministers at OCFC at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 30.

Norris' strong spiritual heritage exposed him to many miraculous experiences that captivated his attention as a growing child, and now desires to see all of God's children living in the manifold blessings of God.

As a graduate of Rhema Bible Training Center in Tulsa, Okla., Norrishas ministered in Europe, eastern block Poland, and across the United States. After two years in the pastorate, he is again traveling internationally as an evangelist. Norris' ministry has blessed the lives of hundred by his warm personality, inspirational preaching, and the signs that many times follow.

The public is invited to this event. A nursery will be provided.

Fellowship service set

The Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance will hold City-wide Fellowship Service beginning at 8 p.m. at St. Luke A.M.E. Church, 409 S. Lee Street.

Dr. John F. Champbell of The New Jerusalem Baptist Church will bring the message, and music and song service will be rendered by choir members from all churches of The Alliance.

The Alliance recently elected Dr. Hadley Edwards as president, succeeding Rev. Joseph Williams who enjoyed a very successful two-year tenure.

All other officers of The Alliance will be presented in Sunday night's service which is open to the public.

Presbyterians to convene

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) announced the top international speakers to be featured at a convocation preceding its 201st General Assembly next June in Philadelphia.

President Richard Von Weizsacker, of the Federal Republic of Germany is among those who will be featured.

The Bicentennial Committee of the church has announced plans for this extraordinary convocation based on the theme, "Continue The Journey," which will be held at the historic Arch Street Friends Meeting House in Philadelphia on June 2-4, 1989.

The event will bring together internationally known experts from a variety of disciplines who will share insights and ideas about important issues shaping the world as it looks to a new century.

Registration fee is $201; $251 after March 31. Allocation of places will be by region, so that all parts of the church can be represented.

Registration forms are presently available in presbytery and synod offices as well as at Presbyterian colleges and seminaries.

Book discusses burnout

NASHVILLE — Hard and productive work rarely is the cause of clergy burnout, according to a widely known clergy faculty member at Duke University Divinity School, Durham, N.C.

In a book on "Clergy and Laity Burnout," to be released in January by Abingdon Press, the Rev. William H. Willimon says burnout is the result of lack of meaning.

Willimon believes the "fuel" that supplies the energy to function as clergy or lay ministers is conviction that what they do has meaning.

Regarding what may be perceived as "burnout" among laypersons, Willimon says pastors recognizing what may be normal, predictable life crises or stages is important.

Some pastors find it beneficial to "give permission for parishioners to take a leave of absence and to let them know it is not a terrible sin to be less active in the church for a time," he adds.

In his book, Willimon explores in detail some of the factors that lead to burnout in the church. While the church shares many of the same human tensions and demands as other human institutions, he say the peculiar nature of the church and its work presents members with peculiar dilemmas.

Shroud conflicts still exist

DENVER (AP) — Physicist John Jackson says a final decision can't be made about the Shroud of Turin, despite recent carbon-dating tests showing it came from the Middle Ages and thus couldn't have wrapped Christ's body.

Jackson of Colorado Springs, Colo., who has spent 14 years investigating the shroud, said in a telephone interview with The Denver Catholic Register: "Considering all of the scientific data collected through the years, too many conflicts still exist to accept this latest test as the final word...The 14th-century date just doesn't square with some of the scientific data that has been gathered."

China store sells out Bibles

NANJING, China (AP) — A Chinese bookstore chain recently put 10,000 Bibles on sale in its stores, and sold out within a month.

Peter MacInnes, manager of Amity Press, set up with aid of the worldwide United Bible Societies and which now prints Bibles here, called the sales a "breakthrough," adding:

"In the long term, the most efficient avenue for distributing Bibles in China is not through church agencies, but through bookstore chains."

Two nuns establish AIDS resource center

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — For hours, they would hold the hands of AIDS patients whose parents were too afraid to be in the same hospital room.

They consoled grief-stricken gay lovers and watched heartbroken as mothers dying of AIDS packed their children off to relatives, never to see them again.

For eight months, Carol Baltosiewich and Mary Ellen Rombach left the comfort and security of St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Belleville to meet AIDS face-to-face in a tough New York City neighborhood.

It was an eye-opener the two, experienced nurses and Franciscan nuns, will never forget.

But it was exactly the experience they were seeking to set up Bethany Place, a new AIDS education and resource center in Belleville, just southeast of St. Louis.

Not only did it teach them about every aspect of acquired immune deficiency syndrome, it enabled them to conquer their own fears.

"I think the real epidemic of AIDS is fear," Baltosiewich says. "And until AIDS takes a face for you, there is that fear of transmission."

The two know that fear from when they first began researching and visiting the Good Samaritan Project in Kansas City. They stayed overnight in the same house as AIDS patients.

"I think we both said the next morning, 'Now, how many people died in the beds we slept in last night? Were the sheets washed?'" Rombach says." ... We couldn't wait to get home and take a shower."

All of that changed after they went to New York in August 1987.

Baltosiewich and Rombach worked at two hospitals — St. Clare's, a financially ailing institution serving street people and the indigent near Manhattan's theater district, and St. Vincent's, a thriving 800-bed facility in Greenwich Village where many of its AIDS patients are affluent.

Rich or poor, the hospitals painted the same bleak picture: rooms of young men dying from AIDS.

"That first month at St. Clare's, the numbers were so great and the age group was so different, that I came home at night and thought, 'What am I doing here? How can I minister to these people? I don't understand their lifestyle,'" Rombach says.

"And what I came to after a sense of helplessness and searching and prayer was: They're a human being and I'm a human being, and that's where I start to relate."

The two sisters also worked on the national AIDS hotline and learned to answer every conceivable question about the disease.

"I came home to Carol one day and said, 'I don't want to hear another word about sex,'" Rombach says. "Because you're just saturated with it."

As for spiritual counseling, she says, "We had to start from scratch and make new connections. But you have to do it, because as they get closer to death, the only one they could turn to was God."

Though AIDS cases are expected to increase fivefold over the next three years in the St. Louis area, the nuns were told the Midwest has a chance to stem the disease because it is eight years behind both coasts.

That's where Bethany Place comes in.

Missionaries may have to be curtailed

RICHMOND, VA. (AP) — Southern Baptists soon will have to reduce foreign missionary appointments unless a sharpening financial pinch is resolved, says the president of their Foreign Missions Board.

The Rev. R. Keith Parks says that the squeeze threatens to reach the point at which the board "cannot continue to appoint all the qualified missionary candidates that are ready to go."

'Last Temptation' banned

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel's film review board has banned showing of the controversial movie, "The Last Temptation of Christ," on grounds that it is offensive to Christianity. Israeli law forbids offending any religion.

Four men fired for ignoring union ban at British intelligence agency

By MAGGIE JACKSON

LONDON (AP) — Four men have been fired for flouting a 1984 ban on unions at Britain's top secret intelligence-gathering headquarters, provoking new charges that Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government is undermining civil liberties.

The four are among a handful of holdouts at the Government Communications Headquarters, which eavesdrops on the Soviet Union and whose work Mrs. Thatcher maintains is too sensitive to risk disruption by strikes.

But critics see the firings as the latest occasion on which the Thatcher government has chosen to sacrifice an element of individual freedom for what it calls the national interest.

"The present dispute is one aspect of a much larger debate," says Donald Cameron Watt, a professor of international history at the London School of Economics.

"It's become a party policy issue over the issue of openness of information, the reform of secrecy (laws)."

The firings at the huge facility at Cheltenham, in southwest England, follow two highly controversial clampdowns. In October, the government banned broadcast interviews with members of the Irish Republican Army and 10 other militant Northern Ireland groups and announced plans to remove any suspects' right to remain silent under police questioning.

At Cheltenham, the unions have lost a string of legal battles and have no chance of overturning the ban, but refuse to back down.

"If (the right to belong to a trade union)...is denied anywhere it is threatened everywhere," wrote Bill McCall, general secretary of the Institution of Professional Civil Servants, in the union's Oct. 24 newsletter.

With the dismissals, only 13 rebels are left — all facing early retirement, compulsory transfer or dismissal — out of the one-third of the 7,000 employees at the facility who were union members in 1984.

At the time, most accepted 1,000 pounds (then $1,400) in compensation to quit their union.

None of the holdouts had been fired until this year, although union officials say the government tried to freeze them out with tactics such as refusing them pay raises.

"The present dispute is one aspect of a much larger debate.

"It's become a party policy issue over the issue of openness of information, the reform of secrecy (laws)."

— Donald Cameron Watt, professor at London School of economics

Mike Grindley, a Chinese-language expert, estimates he lost 5,000 to 6,000 pounds ($8,850 to $10,000) in raises before being fired in October. He now works full time on the campaign.

"We don't think about the money too much," Grindley, 51, said in a telephone interview. "It hasn't been easy, but there's been compensation...You can hold your head up high."

In imposing the ban, Mrs. Thatcher cited pay strikes in 1979-81 that disrupted the round-the-clock work at Cheltenham, the European center of Soviet eavesdropping for NATO.

The headquarters intercepts radio signals and other communications from the Soviet Union and its East bloc allies.

The facility attracted international attention in 1982 when Geoffrey Prime, a translator in Russian at the facility, was uncovered as a Soviet agent. Prime, described as one of the West's most damaging post-World War II traitors, was sentenced to 35 years in prison.

"You can make quite a strong case on the government point," said Professor Watt, who also is a member of the editorial board of the Journal of Intelligence and National Security.

"The government believed they had a case, it wasn't just union-bashing," he added in an interview. "They operate on a worst-case analysis, and (strikes) were something they had very good reason to think would happen."

The unions reply that strikes never affected security and that the government rejected a 1984 offer of a no-strike deal.

"They know...that traitors are not found among the ranks of trade unionists," the Trades Union Congress said in a campaign ad, referring to the upper-class background of Britain's most notorious modern spies, Kim Philby, Donald Maclean and Guy Burgess, all of whom fled to Moscow.

Some Thatcher supporters have expressed unease at the government's refusal to compromise in the Cheltenham dispute.

Commentator Nicholas Comfort, writing in the pro-Conservative Party Daily Telegraph newspaper on the growing power of the state over the individual, said the government "could have reached a no-strike agreement if it had tried."

"It is not just the threat of terrorism which has brought fresh intervention into our daily lives," Comfort added.

Without mentioning the no-strike deal, the United Nations-affilicated International Labor Organization criticized the government in June on grounds that it failed to uphold an international convention on the right to organize.

Think tank study advises Bush to 'get farmers off the dole'

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON — One of George Bush's first tasks as president should be to slash agricultural subsidies and "get farmers off the dole," according to a think tank with close ties to the administration.

A forthcoming policy guidebook from the Heritage Foundation argues that farm families generally are better off than their city counterparts, and that those who failed, with few exceptions, are victims of their own "get-rich-quick" fever.

Changes in farm law have moved agriculture closer to "a more market-based orientation and has allowed the prices of U.S. food commodities to become competitive in world markets," writes Charles Grizzle, a former senior official in the Agriculture Department.

Congress and the next administration will have no choice but to deal with the subsidy issue, since the 1985 farm law will expire in 1990. According to Agriculture Department finance officers, commodity price support operations rose to a record $25.8 billion in 1986, the first year of the new law, from $17.7 billion in 1985.

"Despite the media portrayal of the typical farmer as hard-pressed, farm families have had higher incomes than the median American family in every year since 1980," Grizzle said. "More important, the net worth of farm families far exceeds that of the American family."

With few exceptions, he said, the farmers and rural bankers who went broke during the hard times of the early 1980s, or who remain under financial stress today, are those who borrowed and invested heavily in "get-rich-quick speculative fever" of the 1970s.

"They bet on rapidly inflating land values — and bet wrong," Grizzle said. "It is unfair to force the taxpayers to pick up the tab."

Earlier this week, outgoing Budget Director Joseph R. Wright said in an interview that farm subsidies could be a principal place Bush will look for savings in his effort to avert tax and deficit increases.

Bush, vacationing in Kennebunkport, Maine, turned aside reporters' questions about areas where he will seek budget cuts.

Robert A. Denman, director of international and public affairs of the National Farmers Union, said he wasn't surprised by the Heritage Foundation's blueprint because "it's the same thing they're always talking about" when it comes to farm policy.

"If George Bush is really thinking about running a kinder, gentler administration, I have an idea he'll probably reject a lot that's in that report," Denman said in an interview. "Now, if he doesn't, I think it could be just exactly like what happened to the last report (by the foundation) — the Congress will probably reject most of it."

But if lawmakers accept the Heritage Foundation's view, there would be "a period of economic and social chaos for rural America," he said.

Grizzle's chapter on agriculture is just part of the 953-page volume, "Mandate for Leadership III," scheduled for publication on Jan. 2, the third in a series of policy guidebooks published by the foundation. Others were published after Reagan's election in 1980 and again in 1984.

What is needed, Grizzle said, are policies that will "help American farmers break out (of a) cycle of dependence" on federal subsidies. The key, he said, is to "decouple" subsidy programs from production requirements.

The idea of decoupling has been around for a while but has not taken hold on Capitol Hill. As Grizzle sees it, payments to farmers would be based on a flat rate and targeted to those most in need of help.

For more than half a century, the principle of farm subsidies has been pegged to production — the larger the farm, the larger the payments.

"Planting decisions would then be based on market signals — consumer demand for a product — rather than on what is required by Washington," said Grizzle, a former deputy assistant secretary for administration at the Agriculture Department.

Other recommendation include:

■ At least partial consolidation of some key USDA agencies, including the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Soil Conservation Service, Extension Service and the Farmers Home Administration, each of which now has offices "in virtually every U.S. county."

■ Getting the federal government out of the agricultural credit business, including the sale of FmHA loan assets, which would take congressional approval.

■ Privatization of the Rural Electrification Administration, and private management of public lands.

FmHA mails out final past-due loan notices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Farmers Home Administration Friday mailed out the last of 83,480 delinquency notices to farmers who owe more than $8 billion in past-due government loans.

Agency officials began sending out the notices by certified mail on Nov. 15 telling FmHA borrowers they have 45 days to complete and return the nine forms. Basically, the notices tell farmers about the options they have for settling their debt, including restructuring and write-offs.

Texas has a total of 14,372 farm loans, and of those 45.4 percent, or 6,521, are delinquent, according to the government.

Congress ordered FmHA in the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 to revise its lending practices, including ways to handle long-overdue debt owed by thousands of farmers. Parts of the law were put into effect earlier in the year but debt write-down, or forgiveness, kicked in this month.

The purpose of the notices is to give delinquent borrowers an opportunity to let FmHA know how they want to handle their debt under the new law's provisions.

Leland H. Swenson, president of the National Farmers Union, explained: "The new law basically says FmHA must give borrowers whose delinquency was caused by factors beyond their control 45 days to convince the agency that it could recover more by working with them than it could by forcing them out."

If a farmer's response, or application, to FmHA on how he plans to settle the debt is accepted by the agency, the chances of survival are brightened. But if a borrower's plan is rejected — or if a reply is not sent at all — then foreclosure or forced sale of property is likely.

Although agency spokesmen say no hard estimates are available as to how many of the 83,480 delinquents may be foreclosed or forced to sell out, estimates have ranged from around 10,000 to more than 40,000.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Private time becomes more and more important to you. Limit social engagements. A change of residence could have an invigorating effect on your work. Think about all the business and career alternatives available to you. Opportunities to branch out and make more money will arise. Stay alert! Your success will be aided by a streak of good luck in spring and summer.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Bruce Lee, author James Agee, Broadway producer David Merrick, guitarist Jimi Hendrix, TV star Buffalo Bob Smith, country singer Eddie Rabbitt.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your social contacts will open new doors for you now. Do not look for miracles, but do put your best foot forward. You meet someone who will help you later on.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your lifestyle and personal relationships get a new look; they may never be the same again. You love surprising people with gifts. Guests who came for Thanksgiving may be overstaying their welcome.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your social skills are getting a workout this weekend. Rest up for the busy week ahead. Romance deepens. You learn an important lesson about friendships. Forget old grievances. The future looks super!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your feelings will undergo profound deepening. A love relationship becomes more meaningful. Make an important money decision today so you can implement it first thing tomorrow.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accept the fact that a relationship may be over. You have too much going for you to despair. You are hungry for financial and emotional security and will eventually find it. Forge ahead.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Not a good day for making important decisions. Concentrate on family matters. An unexpected development helps you move forward confidently regarding a partner. Romance enjoys highly favorable influences.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New rapport with loved ones lets you accomplish a lot on the home front. Teamwork is favored. Romantic partner responds to your efforts in a positive way. Your love life improves.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may feel torn between two people. Remain neutral and offer to mediate. It is up to you to take the initiative in romance. Call a current love.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Work on your timetable, and your productivity could double. Maintaining a hobby is costly; find someone to share expenses. Learn from your mistakes. Romance is a source of pleasure. Be considerate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Increased physical activity makes you feel better about yourself. You learn some new skills very quickly. Your confidence grows. Others may not be punctual to a party; try to be understanding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Confidential information reaches you through a stranger or a telephone call. Use what you learn judiciously. Partners see you in a new light. Lower your expectations and you will enjoy a relationship more.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A message from a relative could set your mind at ease regarding a delicate family relationship. Be discreet about past mistakes. Keep an eye on spending while finalizing your Christmas plans.

Christina Onassis' funeral conducted in cathedral her father helped build

NEA SMYRNI, Greece (AP) — Friends and relatives sobbed uncontrollably Friday at the funeral of Christina Onassis in the cathedral her father, Aristotle, helped to build.

A cross of pink roses in the name of her 3-year-old daughter, Athena, adorned the casket. The young girl did not attend the 45-minute Greek Orthodox liturgy for the shipping heiress, who died Nov. 19 in Buenos Aires at age 37.

Fifteen priests and bishops officiated at St. Fotini cathedral, which was packed with about 500 friends and relatives.

Athena, the child of Ms. Onassis and former husband Thierry Roussel, was said to be staying with relatives somewhere in Switzerland, unaware of her mother's death. The body arrived on a chartered airliner Thursday via Switzerland.

An Argentine coroner said in a preliminary report that Ms. Onassis died of a pulmonary edema, or buildup of fluid in the lungs at the home of her friends Alberto and Marina de Doderos.

Argentine authorities have not dismissed the possibility of a drug overdose because pills, which have not been identified, were found in her bedroom.

Roussel, who was Ms. Onassis' fourth husband, stood alone behind the flower-covered casket flanked by her close friends and relatives. They were married in March 1984 but she began divorce proceedings eight months later.

Priests with gray beards and golden robes chanted "Eternal Be Your Memory" as they circled the closed mahogany casket trimmed with silver. An all-male choir accompanied the chanting priests from behind screens.

About 3,000 mourners stood outside in a light rain. Hundreds of people lined balconies of nearby apartment houses.

"Life to you!" the crowd shouted as white-gloved pallbearers carried the casket from the cathedral behind the cross of pink roses and a large wreath of chrysanthemums and roses from both Roussel and Athena.

All the pallbearers were recipients of scholarships for graduate study abroad from the Alexander Onassis Public Benefit Foundation, of which Ms. Onassis was president.

Her father established the foundation, based in Lichenstein, after her brother, Alexander, was killed in an air crash at the Athens airport in 1973. Half of the $1 billion legacy Aristotle Onassis left went to the foundation and Ms. Onassis inherited the rest.

LONDON (AP) — Former Beatle Ringo Starr vowed he would never drink again as he and his wife, actress Barbara Bach, returned Friday from five weeks in a U.S. alcoholism clinic.

Starr

"I feel a lot better than I have for ages," Starr said in an interview with Press Association, the domestic news agency. "I haven't had a drink for 45 days. That's amazing for me."

Starr, 48, said "we are not under doctors or anybody now. It's up to us. I am an alcoholic and my intention is never to drink again."

The former drummer for the Beatles said "the first thing we are planning is a really good Christmas. We want to live a normal life now."

The clinic was not identified.

STRATFORD, Conn. (AP) — Former South Dakota Sen. George McGovern is going into the hotel business.

McGovern

The 1972 Democratic presidential nominee has bought — for an undisclosed price — a 43-year lease for the 150-room Stratford Inn from the Irish Hotel Group.

"This is my first business venture," McGovern said. "So I hope it doesn't become known as McGovern's Folly."

The country-style inn is across the street from Sikorsky Airport in the southern Connecticut town off of Long Island Sound. The deal was closed Oct. 25, when McGovern's limited partnership, Stratford Inn Associates, acquired the lease.

McGovern said he has no plans to buy other hotels.

"I'm not rich enough to buy anything else," he said. "This is it for me. It's the only investment I have."

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Dustin Hoffman's new movie, "Rain Man," will have its first showing in the hometown of an autistic man upon whom the actor partly based his character.

Hoffman

Hoffman will be in Huntington on Dec. 11 for a pre-opening benefit and screening of the film, which will be released nationally Dec. 16.

To prepare for the film, Hoffman studied outtakes from "Portrait of an Autistic Young Man," a 1986 documentary about Joseph Sullivan.

Sullivan, a 28-year-old autistic library page, met with Hoffman and Tom Cruise, the film's other star, on the set in May.

Proceeds from the benefit will go to the Autistic Services Center in Huntington.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Archaeologists searching Fort McHenry for underground drainage conduits have stumbled upon a long trench presumably used by infantrymen the night the British attacked Baltimore in 1814.

The bombardment of Fort McHenry inspired Francis Scott Key to write the poem "The Star-Spangled Banner," later adopted as the national anthem.

The trench, originally about three feet deep, is about seven feet below today's surface level and is more than 100 feet long. It contained a pewter infantryman's button the size of a nickel and a 10-pound fragment of a British cannon ball.

"At first, the trench was very puzzling...But it was the (infantryman's) button and bomb fragment which linked it with the War of 1812. The button was of the type worn then, during the late 18th and early 19th centuries," said Charles D. Cheek, the archaeologist in charge of the dig.

The trench was dug around the fort's western flank, the side farthest from the harbor and the British fleet. Historians believe the 600 infantrymen stationed at Fort McHenry could have been ordered into the trench as a safety measure.

If the British had landed successfully in the attack on the night of Sept. 13, 1814, the infantrymen would have been called upon to defend the city.

However, the British bombardment of the fort killed only four and wounded about two dozen. The British were unable to get ashore and retreated.

The existence of some sort of old trench was known as early as 1984.

Nevada educator bets on bright students

LAS VEGAS (AP) — On a campus where basketball players are courted with a religious zeal, Nevada's brightest students are getting a second look, thanks to a university chief who resolved to reverse this state's "brain drain."

Shortly after his arrival four years ago, Robert Maxson initiated a program that makes the University of Nevada-Las Vegas the only university in the country offering a four-year scholarship to the valedictorian of every high school in the state.

"We've always offered full scholarships to athletically talented youngsters," he said in an interview this week. "I think that's OK. But it made sense to me that if we were going to offer full scholarships to athletically talented youngsters, we ought to be able to offer the same to academically talented youngsters."

A one-liner often heard in this basketball-crazy entertainment capital is that someday someone would build a great university befitting the stature of the Nevada-Las Vegas Runnin' Rebels, a perennial college basketball power.

Maxson, a gregarious, 50-year-old Texas transplant took the challenge seriously when he came to UNLV from the University of Houston in 1984.

He has guided the university through its greatest period of growth, increasing enrollment from 10,000 to 15,000.

He has coaxed millions out of the state's casino owners and corporate giants for scholarships and educational programs. He sold the Summa Corp. on helping to fund an engineering school named for the company's founder, Howard Hughes.

Maxson launched the scholarship program after arriving in this glitter city and learning that the gaming industry can be a major resource for educating Nevada's young people. At the time, 46 percent of Nevada's high school graduates were leaving the state to continue their education.

"We were ranked 49th in the country, second only to Alaska in the number of young people we were losing," Maxson recalled. "We knew if we were going to build a great university, we were going to have to keep the best and brightest in Nevada."

Maxson's answer: Offer the valedictorian of each of Nevada's 53 high schools a $10,000, four-year scholarship to UNLV, "no questions asked, major in anything you want." Recipients are still free to receive other scholarships.

Maxson went searching for the dollars to make it work. He recalled touting the program at a luncheon meeting and being approached by Margaret Elardi, owner of the Frontier Hotel and Casino, who told Maxson she wanted to "give something back to the state" by investing in the young people of Nevada.

Maxson told her it would take $1 million. Four days later the Margaret Elardi Nevada Scholarship Program for Valedictorians at UNLV was launched.

In the four years since the program began, 101 Nevada high school valedictorians have received Elardi scholarships. Previously, UNLV never had more than a half-dozen valedictorians enrolled at one time, Maxson said.

He said the program has resulted in a "substantial turnaround" in the percentage of Nevada high school students who continue their education in state, but he had no figures Friday.

"Because of this program, not only are we getting the top graduates, but we've found that other good students follow these scholastic leaders to UNLV," Maxson said. "We think we've helped stop the brain drain."

"There are always going to be students who want to go away from home for various reasons; unique programs at other schools, maturing, a lot of reasons," he said.

NATION in brief

U.S. Orthodox Jews condemn interference

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The nation's largest organization of Orthodox Jews Friday condemned interference by "some North American Jewish circles" in an immigration law question it said Israelis alone should settle.

The resolution adopted at the 90th anniversary convention of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America didn't identify any particular group as interfering with Israeli sovereignty.

In New York, leaders of 21 organizations associated with Judaism's Reform and Conservative branches were announcing they will fly to Jerusalem Sunday to plead against a proposal by Orthodox leaders in Israel that would deny automatic citizenship to non-Orthodox converts.

"The question of who is a Jew should be decided by the Jewish people, and not by a political body," the delegation said in a statement.

The Orthodox convention, which claims more than a million members in some 1,200 U.S. synagogues, said in its resolution: "It has become increasingly fashionable in some North American Jewish circles to publicly interfere in the most delicate questions of Israeli foreign policy, domestic security and religious integrity."

Turkey dinner kills patient

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. (AP) — A 61-year-old psychiatric patient died Friday and a second person was in intensive care after a Thanksgiving-style turkey dinner that left nearly 100 people ill with food poisoning, officials said.

A total of 26 people were hospitalized after the meal Wednesday at four outpatient centers operated by the state-run Rockland Psychiatric Center, said Nancy McPartlin, Westchester County Health Department spokeswoman.

The food was prepared by Flik International, a catering service in Mamaroneck, at a cafeteria at Iona College, she said. Ms. McPartlin said more than two dozen Iona students ate the leftovers and went home for the holiday.

"We want students who may suffer any symptoms to go immediately to a doctor or an emergency room and to notify us," said Ms. McPartlin. Ms. McPartlin said those stricken included an unidentified 61-year-old woman who died at Mount Vernon Hospital after suffering a heart attack and symptoms of food poisoning, including vomiting and diarrhea.

Bozo awards announced

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Letter lady Vanna White, disgraced preacher Jimmy Swaggart, dethroned Olympian Ben Johnson, boxer Mike Tyson and talk show melee victim Geraldo Rivera were top recipients of the 6th annual Bozo Awards.

Larry Harmon, television's original Bozo the clown, released his list of the 1988's dubious achievers in 11 categories Friday. The honors are always announced the day after Thanksgiving.

Miss White, of "Wheel of Fortune" fame, took the showbiz award for "exposing herself to the letter" in a men's magazine layout, Harmon said.

Swaggart, the evangelist who acknowledged consorting with a prostitute, revealed that "old-time religion and another old-time profession just don't mix." Johnson took the sports division because his 100-meter gold medal at the Seoul Olympics was yanked because of a positive test for steroids.

Tyson's well publicized marriage problems won him the newsmaker Bozo, and Rivera, whose nose was broken by a thrown chair during a brawl on the set of "Geraldo," took the journalism honor "for showing us that he has a nose for news after all," Harmon said.

Reactor to float down river

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — The reactor from the nation's first commercial nuclear power plant will be barged down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers in the spring, but officials say there's no danger to residents along the route.

The reactor, from the Shippingport Atomic Power Station about 35 miles northwest of Pittsburgh, has been emptied of its uranium fuel and filled with concrete to prevent any radioactive particles from escaping into the environment, said Dan Butler, press officer for the U.S. Department of Energy.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Rival militias slug it out in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Battles between rival Shiite Moslem militias burst out of the southern slums Friday, filling neighborhoods that had been quiet for two years with the thunder of cannon and rocket fire.

In south Lebanon, Israeli warplanes blasted bases used by Palestinian guerrillas and allied Lebanese militiamen, killing five guerrillas and wounding 15 other people. It was the 23rd Israeli air raid in Lebanon this year.

Fighting in Beirut pitted the mainstream Shiite militia Amal (Hope) against the pro-Iranian Hezbollah, or Party of God. Police said at least 10 people were killed and 20 wounded, most of them civilians, since it began Thursday evening.

It was the first time the Amal-Hezbollah struggle for domination of Lebanon's 1 million Shiites reached the residential neighborhoods and once-glamorous hotel district of central Beirut. Previous battles in the area during Lebanon's 13 years of civil war have involved other rival militias.

Hezbollah is believed to be the umbrella group for factions holding most of the 14 foreigners missing in Lebanon, nine of whom are Americans. Police said it was not known whether the fighting with tanks, mortars and rockets had affected the hostages, who are thought to be in the southern slums.

"We have vague information that the majority of the foreign hostages are there but we don't know where exactly they are being held," said a police spokesman, whose name was withheld in keeping with regulations.

Commanders of Syrian army units in charge of security in Moslem west and south Beirut ordered a cease-fire Friday night.

Iran offers deal to U.S.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran Friday renewed an offer to work for the release of nine American hostages in Lebanon if the United States would make the same efforts on behalf of Iranian hostages there.

Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani made the offer in a Friday prayer sermon broadcast on official Tehran radio. Other Iranian officials have made the same suggestion in the past.

"If you are interested in having your people held hostage in Lebanon released, then tell the Phalangists to release our people who have been in their hands for years, and of whom we do not have any news," Rafsanjani was quoted as saying in the broadcast, which was monitored in Nicosia.

In Washington, the State Department Friday reaffirmed its policy against making any deals for release of American hostages in Lebanon. Spokesman Charles Redman said that all hostages, American and Iranian alike, should be released immediately.

Three Iranians — Ahmad Motevaselian, Hussein Musavi and Kazem Akhavan — were kidnapped by right-wing Christian Phalangist gunmen in northern Lebanon in 1982. Their Lebanese driver, who had an Iranian passport, also disappeared. The four are widely believed to be dead.

Rafsanjani alleged in his sermon that the United States backed the Christian Phalangists in Lebanon and thus could not claim it had no influence among them, the radio said.

Fourteen foreign hostages, including nine Americans, are being held in Lebanon by pro-Iranian Islamic fundamentalists.

Holocaust study released

JERUSALEM (AP) — Researchers say Holocaust survivors who suppressed their memories of Nazi death camps handled the trauma better than those who talked openly about the experience.

"Many survivors feel obligated to remember the Holocaust," said Peretz Lavie, a psychologist at the Haifa institution and supervisor of a new study. "We're saying it may be better to help them forget about it."

Lavie said the findings challenge current treatment practices for Holocaust survivors and other trauma victims.

The study conducted by the Israel Institute of Technology's sleep laboratory suggests that pressure on Holocaust survivors to recall their experiences frequently contributed to postwar emotional problems.

The 23 participants were divided into two groups, one including survivors who suffered emotional problems and the other of those who adjusted well.

Lavie said better-adjusted survivors did not talk about the Holocaust during waking hours and suffered fewer nightmares and sleep disturbances than the group with more severe problems.

He noted that in Israel there is constant pressure not to forget the 6 million Jews who died in Nazi death camps.

Stone Age 'factory' found

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Archaeologists Friday reported finding a huge Stone Age "factory" in the Outback where aborigines crafted stone blades and cutting tools for barter some 2,000 years ago.

Scattered among weathered stone outcrops were hundreds of thousands of remains of stone tools and implements that point to a sophisticated aboriginal enterprise long before Europeans set foot on the continent.

The site at Tiboobura, 530 miles northwest of Sydney, is so large that archaeologists believe its output may have formed the basis for a local export industry.

"Almost certainly, these people operated the workshop to exchange goods," said Dan Witter, archaeologist for the government's National Parks and Wildlife Service of New South Wales.

He said Tiboobura is an aboriginal word, meaning pile of rocks, a reference to granite hills in the area. The cutting tools were made from a silica-based rock.

Witter told The Associated Press the Stone Age toolmakers most likely traded for a mildly hallucinogenic drug, Pituri. The Australian newspaper, in a report on the quarry, said Pituri was used by nomadic aborigines to counteract hunger pains during the long treks between hunting grounds.

The find follows the recent discovery of a fragment of human bone in central Australia that has been dated at 60,000 years old, pushing back the date of human occupation of Australia by 20,000 years.

ANC clarifies policy

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — The guerrilla-backed African National Congress Friday told South African church leaders its policy is not to attack civilian targets in their homeland.

ANC President Oliver Tambo, exiled head of the main black nationalist movement fighting the white-led Pretoria government, acknowledged some guerrillas hit at civilians because they were "inspired by anger at the regime's campaign of terror."

But he told a news conference, "agents of the Pretoria regime have been known to carry out attacks to sow confusion."

President P.W. Botha's government blames the ANC for the more than 150 bombings since it declared a state of emergency June 12, 1986. Most casualties are black civilians.

Tambo spoke to reporters after a daylong meeting with South African church leaders headed by Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu, the Nobel Peace Prize laureate.

Midland, Texas

The Season of Advent is the beginning of the Christian calendar and is observed on the four Sundays before Christmas. The word Advent means "coming." The season is one of preparation and expectant waiting as we look forward to the celebration of the Lord's coming on Christmas Day. Advent is the season of extending our confidence in "the things that are unseen" and marveling at the mystery of God becoming one of us.

Program funded to preserve brittle books

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Endowment for the Humanities has received $12.3 million in fiscal 1989 for a nationwide program to preserve brittle library materials.

Most of the funds will be used to microfilm brittle books and other library materials printed on acid paper that has deteriorated to the point of crumbling.

The NEH's Office of Preservation had a budget of only $4.5 million in fiscal 1988.

Experts estimate that 77 million of the 300 million volumes in university and research libraries will turn to dust by the year 2000. The Commission on Preservation and Access estimates that 11 million are at immediate risk and of those, three million should be saved.

Acid paper, according to the commission, came into universal use in the mid-1800s because it was cheaper to produce. Wood was used for the cellulose fibers and alum was used as filler. The interaction between the alum, which is acidic, in the paper and water in the atmosphere results in the breakdown of the cellulose fibers.

The goal of the program, according to the commission, is to create a new, national resource of microfilmed materials that will be available at modest cost to libraries and scholars throughout the nation and the world. The documents as they now exist are too fragile to be used or to be sent through normal interlibrary loan channels.

In addition to preserving books, the NEH's Office of Preservation will continue to support its United States Newspaper Program, which saves on microfilm the contents of deteriorating newspapers.

Interest in the problem of brittle books was initiated in part by the work of the Commission on Preservation and Access, a nonprofit organization founded in 1986 by the Council on Library Resources in Washington.

Post retirement spending tips for making, saving money

Copley News Service

Let's talk about money — the money you earned over a lifetime of work. We've collected some tips on how you might save more of it or make more of it for your best retirement years.

As the nation's financial institutions are bringing more balance to their own operations, successfully lending out the money they have taken in deposits, they will again be marketing to gain more depositor funds. In most cases, this means mature adults in the United States generally have more money available to banks and savings and loans than any other age group.

The United States League of Savings Institutions has reported on a range of promotion and service concepts being introduced by savings institutions. One institution offers a Club Discovery for members over the age of 55.

Members receive a monthly club newsletter and a variety of services, including bargain price travel programs, screening for high blood pressure, glaucoma and diabetes and educational services such as "Ask A Lawyer" and "Rules Of The Road."

Another over-55 bank club offers its members movie's discounts, accidental death insurance, free checking, free money orders, free travelers checks, free credit card protection and nationwide discounts on hotel rooms, rental cars and restaurants.

Qualification for membership in these special clubs is a specified amount of funds on deposit. If the interest rates paid by the financial institution are competitive with other banks and savings and loans, mature adults can gain significantly by using the cost-free services provided. Money saved by not having to pay for a service is money that can continue to work to produce interest income.

Anticipate special services competition among financial institutions and then shop around for your best gain. If you can make your money do more, you'll have more of it longer for your use.

The financial charges on bank cards (such as Visa and Master Card) range from 12.5 percent to 21.6 percent.

Don't be fooled by the public misconception that all fees and interest rates are the same according to the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

But don't assume that the lowest interest rate if the best option for you.

"If you usually pay your bill in full, try to deal with financial institutions with an interest-free period," said a spokesman for the institute. "This is the time after a purchase is made and before a finance charge is imposed, typically 25 to 30 days." The experts report: "If you pay your bill in full each month you actually are getting a free loan."

If you are used to paying in monthly installments, look for a card with a low monthly finance charge. Be sure you know what the finance charge is.

With the ever-growing competition in the credit card business, banks issuing credit cards from states other than your own just might have very low interest rates.

Take a look at your bank credit cards in this new light. If you are paying interest, do some competitive shopping among several financial institutions.

If you are age 65-plus, you can earn only about $7,500 in work income before losing any of your Social Security payment benefits. Income from work above that figure will reduce benefits. If under age 65 and receiving Social Security benefits, the work earnings limit is about $5,500.

Your opportunity, therefore, is to consider working only up to the stated income limit by part-time work. If you do, keep track of your earnings so that you fall short of the limit, and won't lose any Social Security benefits.

Financial Focus BY VAN M. PEARCY

Discipline and a Few Principles Can Spell Success

The best teacher is experience – if not our experience, then someone else's.

The National Association of Investors Corporation (NAIC), an organization that fosters and promotes investment clubs, offers investors valuable information through its publication, Better Investing.

Recently this publication focused on one of NAIC's oldest members, the Mutual Investment Club of Detroit. The club was formed in February 1940 when Hitler's war in Europe was accelerating and the United States was poised for world conflict. Although this was hardly an ideal time to invest, this club is still going strong 48 years later. The success of the group was used as a Harvard Business School case study, and a wealth of investment experience resulted.

The club's objective, as recommended by the NAIC, is to double their investment every five years. They have accomplished this in as few as three years and in as many as 13.

Beginning with deposits of $800, they earned only $12 the first year. Five years later, though, they had doubled their original investment. It took six years for it to double again, but only three years, 1952-1955, to double the third time. By 1969, they were worth more than $500,000. It took the next 13 years to pass $1 million. In 1987, they doubled that.

Those are the results. How did they get there?

The club established three principles for safety and a method of analysis. After 10 years they found the best way for individual investors to judge investment performance was from high point to high point in the bull markets.

The declines between high points were unimportant other than the fact that bear markets offer a great opportunity to buy growth stocks. Prices are cheaper from panic selling by speculators and those not disciplined to carry out investment programs.

Buying growth stocks is one of the club's key principles. The other two are regular investments to avoid trying to outguess the market and reinvesting all dividends to benefit from compounding.

The club uses the volatility of growth stocks to its advantage. Although growth stocks fall faster, they recover further as bear markets turned bullish. During these bear markets, not only do they reinvest dividends to buy cheaper stocks, they also make additional deposits.

The Mutual Investment Club understands and loves bear markets. If a stock falls from 20 to 10, the loss is 50 percent; if it goes from 10 to 20, the gain is 100 percent.

You may not agree with the club's philosophy, but you can't deny its success. Its major strength is dedication to planning and the discipline to carry it out.

If you want to benefit from the experience of others, you can write the NAIC at 1515 E. Eleven Mile Road, Royal Oak, MI 48067.

MIDLAND COLLEGE

A very special event takes place Thursday evening at Midland College and you're invited. It's the second annual M.C. Merry Christmas celebration, which begins at 6:15 p.m. Included will be free hot wassail and gingerbread cookies, a live concert played on the Hodge Carillon Tower, special music presentations by the Midland College Jazz Singers, and group carol singing. But the extra special part will be the lighting of the Carillon Tower, several buildings, and some of the trees in Beal Plaza. Hundreds of students, townspeople, and college employees turned out for the first ceremony last year. More lights are being added this year to make the campus look even more festive...and the lights will be on each evening through Jan. 2, so you can bring your out-of-town visitors to see them during the holidays.

CONCERTS/SEMINARS:

There are several other events on campus during the week. At 8 p.m. Friday in the Allison Fine Arts Building auditorium, the college Chorale, Chamber Singers and Jazz Singers are presenting their fall concert. The event is free. Dr. Michael Jordan will be conducting the groups in a varied program, presenting selections from such composers as Brahms, Halsey Stevens, Palestrina, Copeland, and Haydn.

If you haven't seen it, the exhibit of prints by San Antonio artists Miquel Cortinas closes Friday evening at the McCormick Gallery, located in the Allison Fine Arts Building. You can view the show Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m.-10 p.m. or on Friday from 8 a.m.-9 p.m.

Also scheduled Friday is an International Trade Seminar, which will utilize a number of top-notch speakers to explain how Permian Basin businesses can get started with exporting products. The cost is just $15, and that includes lunch and refreshments. The seminar will be held in the Health Sciences Building lecture hall. To register, call 685-4657 or you may register at the door. The event runs from 9 a.m.-4 p.m.
