ROTARY NAMES MYLES AS NEW HEAD FOR '26

Local Accountant Goes In Office at Annual Spring Festival

SUCCEEDS KEIM

Club Presents Retiring Leader With Silver Flower Basket

Albert Myles, public accountant, was elected president of the Wichita Falls Rotary club Thursday night at the annual spring banquet given in honor of Rotary Anns at the Country club. Mr. Myles succeeds Frank Keim, retiring president, who has served the past year. Other officers elected by the board of directors and installed in the Thursday night meeting are: Luther Hoffman, first vice president; C. A. Beavers, second vice president; John Gould, secretary and Tom Smock, sergeant-at-arms.

Preceding the installation of officers a ladies' grab bag was held, each Rotary Ann drawing some clever gift representative of the Rotarians line of business. Sacks of flour, corsages, and a baby doll were included in this motley collection.

Tribute to Keim

Frank Keim was presented with a handsome silver basket for flowers with an inscription engraved from the Rotary club in tribute of his faithful cooperation during the year of office. Mr. Keim expressed his appreciation of the gift with a brief talk on what Rotary had meant to him. "I see many things that I would like to have done and many things that I did not do but I feel this is my failing rather than my fault," Mr. Keim said. "I have never known Rotary or what it meant nor have I appreciated it until I served in the capacity of president. I have received the heartiest and most loyal cooperation from each and every member. Not once have I asked something of some Rotarian but what he complied in the best of spirits and good will. The spirit of strict cooperation for which the club stands has been for the betterment of the club and I know that the Rotary presidency is equaled by no other office in the city."

Six Directors

Directors of the club consist of six held-over directors and six new directors. They are, J. W. Cantwell, Tom B. Smock, A. E. Myles, W. L. Robertson, Milt H. Glover, C. A. Rogers, L. L. Albritton, Milo Connelly, C. A. Beavers, Fred J. Elbert, Luther Hoffman and Joe R. Farabee.

Mr. Myles responded to his election with a word on the responsibility of being president of Rotary. "No one is big enough to seek or decline the presidency of the United States and I believe that I am honored more than any man in Wichita Falls by holding such an office in the Wichita Falls Rotary club. I hope that every man will give to the spirit of Rotary in constructive criticism and serve the president with the cooperation that he deserves.

The evening's program included music by the high school orchestra and the Lion's club famous Cow Pasture Jazz Band of Electra. Joel McGregor, accompanied by Mrs. McGregor, sang "Roamin' in the Gloamin'" and two encores. A Charleston contest was staged among youngsters of Wichita Falls, Henry Clay Cook and Archie McGoy, winning honors.

Archer County, Seat of Road Bond Controversy, Affected Less Than Any Other By Momentous Decision

Refunds Made of all Taxes Collected and County Now Waits for Clearing up of Bond Muddle; Hooper Confident Roads Will be Built

(Staff Special to The Record News.)

ARCHER CITY, May 13.—Archer county, within whose confines was hatched and brewed the suit and circumstances which have since thrown the Texas bond market into a state of turmoil and clouded the legality of a hundred million dollars of its securities, is perhaps less affected by the adversity of recent decisions of the United States supreme court invalidating its road bonds than any other territory in which the decision may have force.

This for the simple reason that with the litigation contesting the bonds instituted almost as soon as they were voted, the attorney general's approval for the two Archer issues aggregating $500,000 was never secured. The bonds were never issued and the money on them never realized. More than 70,000 taxes in support of the two issues was collected from Archer county taxpayers, but immediately after the supreme court's decision, further collections were stopped by order of the county commissioner's court and an order entered authorizing a refund of all money been paid in, with accrued interest at a rate of about 6 per cent. Of an original principal and interest at the time of this order of $72,811.82, the county's books April 30 show all but about $20,000 refunded to the taxpayers.

Has Two Road Districts.

This money is being refunded to the original taxpayer upon presentation of his tax receipt and a properly filled out application for its return.

Archer county contains two road districts known as No. 2 and No. 4, the former including the north half of the county and precincts 1 and 4; the latter includes a large portion of the south half of the county to take in parts of precincts 2 and 3. Both bond issues were voted early in 1923, the former for $200,000 on February 23 of that year and the latter for $300,000 on April 12 of that year. The litigation contesting them, styled Perry Browning et al, (Coleman,

Former N. Y. Police Commissioner Gets Two Years in Jail

MIAMI, Fla., May 13.—(AP)—John F. Dwyer, police commissioner of New York City during the Gaynor-Kline administration, today was sentenced to serve two years in prison here for obtaining money under false pretenses. Dwyer was convicted last week in criminal court of record. He was arrested two months ago in Fort Worth, Texas.

Dwyer was charged with having defrauded John A. Driscoll of Miami Beach, a former police lieutenant of New York City, serving under Dwyer, out of $12,293.75 in a real estate transaction. Evidence at Dwyer's trial tended to show that the defendant left Miami immediately after obtaining Driscoll's money.

Motion for a new trial has been filed by Dwyer's attorneys.

Divorce in Paris Not Recognized in California Court

LOS ANGELES, May 13.—(AP)—Divorce degrees from the tribunal of the Seine mean nothing to Superior Judge Hollzer. When Joseph Godissart yesterday exhibited a Paris document which he believed dissolved his marriage with Alice D. Godissart the court said:

"This defendant just thinks he was divorced. As a matter of fact he was not divorced at all, for I now declare the decree to have been invalid. Defendant was not in good faith a resident of Paris at the time. It is apparent he simply went there to obtain this divorce."

Judge Hollser then granted a decree to Mrs. Godissart in answer to whose suit her husband had come to court with his Seine papers.

Baptist Meet Ousts Frank Norris

STORMY PETREL NOT ACCEPTED AS MESSENGER

Fiery Fort Worth Pastor Dares Convention to Unseat Him

HITS EVOLUTION STAND

Change In Rules Bars Noted Preacher From Participation

HOUSTON, May 13.—(AP)—Dr. J. Frank Norris, Fort Worth Baptist pastor, and the Southern Baptist convention made their first joint public appearances at the convention today here. After they had finished what they had to say, it appeared that Dr. Norris was reluctant to consider himself a messenger to the convention under the changed rules of representation. Among other things the new rules demand that messengers be "members of a church in cooperation with its local association state convention."

He left for his headquarters in a tent some distance away, "daring" the convention "to oust him" and branding the convention's stand, especially on evolution, as an abstract condemnation of that theory.

A lesser evolution ripple came in the afternoon when Dr. Gordon Hurlbutt, pastor of the First Baptist church of Hot Springs, Ark., rose to a question of personal privilege. He asserted that while he was not an evolutionist he could not support the convention's action yesterday because he did not believe the convention should hold a club over the head of any man who is disposed to accept any theory as a scientific hypothesis. Conscience alone, he said, impelled him to make the statement. It occasioned no comment. The convention is on record that man is the creation of God alone.

After these ripples, the convention started its machinery again. Three reports were put in the hopper.

The convention records show action of three committee reports. The report on business efficiency, embracing budget control for convention finances, was recommitted to the committee with instructions to publish it for two months preceding the next convention and again report.

The cooperative program report, recommending $9,000,000 as the objective of southern Baptists for all purposes next year, was adopted and action on the report of the committee on representation was deferred for a year.

The wounded man today is in the hospital ward of the Dallas county jail. He was either unable or unwilling to tell the man's name and is held for investigation.

"The tin you love to touch."

ENGLISH HOPE OF PEACE NOW BEING BLASTED

Although Called off, Strike Seems In Bad Way. To Continue

MAY REDUCE WAGES

Railroads Fail to Re-employ Trainmen After Conference

LONDON, May 13.—(AP)—Great Britain woke up today to find the rosy hopes of last night completely dashed — partly, it would seem, through discontent of the strikers at the way the strike had been called off, but more through the disposition of many of the big employers to insist on making new agreements with the workers before permitting resumption of work.

It is even asserted that some of the big railways and other concerns contemplated enforcing a reduction in wages, though, according to the statement of Premier Baldwin in the house of commons who warned the nation to be suspicious of propaganda and misleading rumors, some of these reports, especially regarding railways, were unfounded.

One big railway group tonight officially denied the rumors that they intend to reduce wages or otherwise penalize the men.

Notwithstanding the fact that the general strike has been called off, it in reality still persists in as great force as before. The miners never have consented to resume, and because of the attitude of the employers and by reason of other circumstances, the two big industries—the railway men and transportation workers—are ordered to remain out until further instructions. The situation in the newspaper field is without change, most of the papers still issuing in skeleton form.

No agreement has yet been reached by the railway managers and executives of the railway unions on the question of the re-employment of strikers. A conference on this subject adjourned at a late hour, without a decision, and will be resumed tomorrow.

NOME WAITING MESSAGE FROM BIG DIRIGIBLE

Amundsen Airship Silent For 15 Hours, Can't Be Found

BAROMETER FALLING

Radio Stations Call Explorer Incessantly But Without Avail

NOME, Alaska, May 13.—(AP) All indications here today pointed to a storm in this territory where polar dirigible Norge was proceeding from Spitzergen, via Point Barrow, Alaska. The barometer dropped .52 of an inch in the last 24 hours and continued to fall today. No communcaton had been made between Nome and the Norge up to 10 o'clock this morning.

SEATTLE, May 13.—(AP)—The American northwest continued to wait and hope tonight for some word out of the polar silence of the dirigible Norge.

Advices today from Nome, goal of the great adventure of Roald Amundsen and his party, indicated that some apprehension was being felt as considerably more than sufficient time had elapsed for the Norge to reach Nome from Point Barrow, where it had previously been heard from.

The last authentic word received here from the craft was from St. Paul Island in the Bering sea, where the United States navy has a powerful wireless station. This station reported hearing from the Norge five times last night and early today, the last time being at 2:29 a. m., eastern standard time. (All references to time in reports on the ship in this story are eastern standard time).

At 2:29 a. m., St. Paul heard the Norge call an unidentified station and say: "Go ahead."

Other reports from Alaska said the Norge passed over Point Barrow at 1:30 a. a., and had been expected to arrive at Nome by 8 a. m., Point Barrow is about 550 miles north of Nome on the Arctic coast.

No Word In 14 1-2 Hours.

Although all arrangements were completed to receive the Norge at Nome, efforts were made today to reach Amundsen by wireless to get him to fly on south to Camp Lewis near Tacoma where there is a moor-

"HER MAN"

--By Beatrice Burton--

READ THIS FIRST:

SYLVIA STARR has been engaged to RANDALL PHELPS for a year, when he asks her to free him, because he's fallen in love with her chum, FAY SHIRLEY.

Heartbroken, Sylvia gives in up, to the great satisfaction of her AUNT AGONY, the old maid who reared her. Aunt Agony urges Sylvia to marry PETER WILK, the sober-minded bachelor brother of her friend, MISS SARAH WILK. She says that Ranny will never be faithful to any woman, anyway, and considers Sylvia well rid of him!

Her poor opinion of him seems to be correct, too, for suddenly he tires of Fay and marries Sylvia after all. But their married life is unhappy from the very star, for Ranny hates to be tied down and he has several love affairs in rapid succession, usually with Sylvia's girl friends. And he gambles away his salary, so that Sylvia has to give music lessons to keep the home together.

But her love for Ranny never falters until the death of their first baby, RANNY, JR. After that she has a nervous breakdown and refuses to live with Ranny, thinking that he no longer loves her or he couldn't have treated her as he has. But he persuades her that he honestly cares for her, and promises never to look at another woman. So Sylvia comes back to him and they buy the Little White House where Sylvia the Second is born. When she is two months old Ranny falls in love with an old school friend of Sylvia's, BABS DELAND. Sylvia finds the two of them in each other's arms and leaves Ranny to decide what he wants to do about it, while she takes the baby and goes to Aunt Agony's house. Ranny tells her he wants a divorce, and when she refuses to give it to him, leaves the house, too, and tells her he'll never live in it again with her. So Sylvia makes up her mind that she'll give him his freedom, although Aunt Agony advises her not to. Then one night Peter Wilk tells her he'd like to talk to her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER LX.

Sylvia was never to forget the scene in Aunt Agony's shabby little sitting room that night.

It stamped itself forever and ever on her memory. The lamp light mellowing the worn red velvet chairs and the faded, thread bare rug. The ruddy glow from the grate fire struck upward at Peter Wilk's homely face as he turned slowly toward her.

She was never to forget how he looked just then, as his brown eyes met hers with the kind of look that a faithful dog has for its master.

She looked back at him, thinking how faithful and good and decent he was—the kind of man who would never carry on smacking little love affairs behind his wife's back. He was the best man she ever would know, so long as she lived.

"Why didn't I fall in love with him instead of with Ranny?" she asked herself. "Then life would have been so simple, so peaceful, so comfortable."

She was startled when his deep voice echoed her own thought.

"You should have married me, Sylvia," he said quietly, "in the beginning." So that was what he had been trying to say!

She dropped her eyes, so that the thick lashes made soft shadows on her cheeks. "How do you mean—in the beginning?" she asked him.

"I mean that all this would never have had to happen to you if you'd married me when I asked you to, four years ago," he told her bluntly. "I knew then that you'd never be able to live with Phelps. I knew it the night you told me that you were going to run away with him. I shouldn't have let you do it."

She raised her eyes to him and the pathetic little smile she gave him went straight to his heart.

"You couldn't have stopped me," she said. "All the king's horses and all the king's men couldn't have stopped me from marrying him when he wanted me to marry him. They couldn't keep me away from him now, if he wanted me."

She saw that she was hurting him. He was looking down at her with such a queer expression. And he made a queer sound in his throat, as if he wanted to answer her and couldn't.

But she knew that she had to tell him the truth, no matter how much it hurt. She had to make him understand that she still loved Randall Phelps, and that he mustn't talk to her like this while she was still Ranny's wife.

"I know that you think I don't want to live with Ranny any more, Peter," she said to him. "But you're all wrong. He doesn't want to live with me any more. He's asked me to divorce him or I wouldn't think of doing such a thing. I still care for him and—and you mustn't talk to me this way."

Her low voice seemed to throb in the air of the little room for a full minute after she had stopped speaking.

Peter turned his back to her again, and stared down into the glowing coals.

"I never would have said a word if I hadn't thought you were through with Phelps," he said, gruffly. "I've shut up for four years, haven't I? And you must have known all along how I feel about you. You know I'd marry you tomorrow if you were free."

She couldn't see his face as he spoke, but at his sides his hands were clenching themselves until the knuckles whitened. She saw that he was carried away by the flood of emotion that he had kept damned up for so many years.

Five minutes ago she wouldn't have believed that Peter, the staid and solid Peter, could be so shaken by the fact that she was going to divorce Ranny—or by any other fact, for that matter.

She got up and walked over to him. "Peter," she told him, very quietly. "Peter, I don't know what to do. I'm sorry you feel like this. Because there isn't any use of your caring for me, ever. No matter what Ranny does, I've given him all the love there is in me. I'm—bankrupt, Peter, as far as caring for a man goes."

He seemed to think this over for a minute or two. Then he shook his head.

"No," he said. "That's not true. A woman isn't done with love when she's twenty-five. You'll come to me then. You'll see."

He was perfectly cool now. He seemed to be so sure that she would come to him sometime in the near future that he could afford to be cool and deliberate. His was the waiting game.

Sylvia gave a long quivering sigh. "You think I'll change?" she asked him. "But you haven't changed toward me. Not in four years."

She shouldn't have said it, as she realized a second later. For Peter took a half step toward her and put his hands on her shoulders. His eyes were close to hers, and she could see the hunger in them.

"You bet I haven't. You bet I haven't changed!" he said.

Sylvia shook her head and took a step away from him.

"Let me kiss you—once," he pleaded in a voice unlike his own.

Sylvia shook her head again. "No, Peter," she said. "No, Peter. Don't—" She pushed him away from her.

"If you really like me—you won't do things like that," she told him breathlessly, when the length of the mantel piece was between them once more. "I've always banked on you, Peter, to behave yourself."

"I know," he said. "I'm sorry. I forgot myself." He filled his pipe again and struck a match to it.

"Well, so that's that!" he remarked, presently, and smiled at her almost cheerfully. He was the Peter she knew and liked again. The Faithful Old Dog that he always had been.

"If there's anything Sarah and I can do for you—" he said to her. And she turned wide, puzzled eyes on him.

"Do?" she echoed.

"Yes," he answered. "If you need any help in this thing, let me know, won't you?"

It flashed upon her that he was offering to lend her money, and a slow, painful flush crept under her white skin. Her chin, with its deep dimple, lifted itself proudly. She and Aunt Agony might be poor, but they would never advertise the fact by borrowing money from anybody, even from old friends like Peter and Sarah.

"Yes, there is something you can do for me, Peter," she said, quietly. "You can tell me the name of a good divorce lawyer when I'm ready for one. I'm going to see Ranny tomorrow and then I'll know exactly what I want to do."

Peter nodded silently and pulled out his watch.

"It's about time your aunt and Sarah were coming back, isn't it?" he asked, looking down at it. Just then there came the sound of Aunt Agony's key in the front door.

An hour later, when the two Wilks had gone, Aunt Agony came into Sylvia's bedroom with her parrot-gray eyes alight as they always were when she had a bit of gossip to "spring."

"What do you think Mrs. Shirley told me tonight?" she asked, in an excited whisper, with a glance toward the sleeping baby. "Fay's going to be a mother in June. Doesn't that take the cake?"

It certainly did "take the cake," Sylvia had never been more surprised over anything in her life. She was glad, too. Glad that Fay had settled down at last with Eddie Carter and was going to make him a good wife.

"Everybody's marriage turns out well but mine," she thought, bitterly, as she lay in bed, staring wide eyed into the darkness of her room.

Fay had married Eddie Carter, hating him, and still she was happy now. The extravagant Lolly had married a chauffeur who didn't have a red cent, and was making an ideal wife for him.

Sally and Woody King got along beautifully, despite the fact that both of them had minor flirtations by the dozen.

"Everybody but Ranny and me," Sylvia said to herself.

Her sleep was fitful and restless. When the baby's "hunger cry" woke her at daybreak her face was haggard and there were violet shadows under her eyes.

At 9 o'clock when she walked into the big offices of the Jamison Phelps company, Thomas Boyle came up to her and asked her what in the world ailed her.

"You look like the wreck of the Hesperus," he told her, with his usual unflattering frankness. You were always sure of getting the plain, unvarnished truth from Thomas.

"I am the wreck of the Hesperus," she answered him, trying to smile and failing. "Where's Ranny?"

Thomas held out his empty hands and looked blank.

"Ask me something easy," he suggested. "He hasn't been here since yesterday noon. Mr. Phelps just asked me about him."

Thomas always called Lolly's father "Mr. Phelps," just as he had in the days when he drove the family car to earn his living.

Through an opened door Sylvia caught a glimpse of her father-in-law limping across his private office, leaning heavily on his cane.

"I wonder if Father Phelps is too busy to see me," she said to Thomas.

CHIROS LOSE COURT BATTLE

Injunction Restraining Prosecution by State Is Dissolved

DALLAS, May 13.—(AP)—Texas chiropracters, barred from practice by provisions of the state medical practice act, lost another legal fight to defeat the measure when Federal Judge E. R. Meek late today dismissed the tmporary injunction he granted recently suspending prosecution of that profession in Dallas and Tarrant counties.

Temporary relief from prosecution was granted two weeks ago on application of S. T. McMurrain, Dallas chiropractor, in behalf of himself and colleagues who sought to invalidate the medical practice act for all time on a plea of unconstitutionality.

Hearing on the plea for permanent immunity was set yesterday by Judge Meek for today, immediately after state's attorneys, representing Attorney Dan Moody, filed an answer seeking to quash the action.

The attorney general was represented on the hearing by his first assistant, George E. Christian of Austin and W. M. Pierson of Dallas. The plaintiffs counsel was Eugene Bolte of Fort Worth.

It was not divulged here tonight whether the chiropractors contemplate further action.

Secret Sessions of Congress Hit

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(AP) "In a quiet, peaceful way," as he describes it, Representative Howard, democrat, of Nebraska, is conducting a one-man campaign in the house against the practice of congressional committees meeting in secret session.

He is a member of three house committees and has attended only one closed session in the present congress. In that instance, he attended with the understanding that he had permission to discuss publicly anything that took place.

Mr. Howard concedes that at times it may be advisable to discuss matters behind closed doors, but he holds that afterwards the public should be allowed to know of what took place. He feels that a member of congress as a public official should always be ready to make public his actions and utterances at any official meeting.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY

May 14, 1925

Schools of Wichita Falls prepare for commencement.

ALTON B. PARKER

ALTON B. PARKER is dead. He was a distinguished son of New York. He was born on a little farm in the vale of obscurity. He fought his way through the public schools and won a college education by his own effort. He became a lawyer and a leader of the democratic party. He became a distinguished lawyer and this led to his election to the high office of chief justice of the court of appeals of New York, the court of last resort in the empire state of the east.

He was a Cleveland democrat. He believed in the democracy of Jefferson and the policies of Grover Cleveland. He did not believe in the policies or the economic vagaries of William Jennings Bryan. He was opposed at all times to the Bryan gospel of free silver at a ratio of 16 to one.

After Bryan had dragged the democratic party through the slaughter house, Alton B. Parker was nominated as a candidate for the presidency by the democrats of the United States. Then he became one of the many victims of the Bryan condition of mind and the Bryan vagaries of economic unthinking.

He was denounced as a creature of Wall street a creature of the interests, a candidate or representative of unholy wealth and yet, Alton B. Parker was loyal to the ancient faith of democracy, as clean as a hound's tooth, a man of the highest ideals, whose personal integrity had never been sullied and whose public and private records were as stainless as that of the illustrious Bayard of France.

He went down in defeat. Bryan, free silver follower in the Rocky Mountain states, the upper Mississippi river states, the states of the middle west, knifed the national standard bearers of democracy and thus Alton B. Parker was sent to the grave yard because he would not advocate the free coinage of silver or accept the financial nostrums so dear to the heart of the prince of peace.

Time vindicates men and their actions. Free silver as an issue perished. It hasn't a defender now. Groyer Cleveland, mighty man of affairs with the courage of a warrior of old, never bowed to the romances of the mob. Alton B. Parker walked in his footsteps. He lived and died loyal to the fundamentals of democracy, the institutions of a democratic government and the principles which rang down the ages since the first great patriot was born.

No lesser personage than James Stephen Hogg in a moment of wrath when his temper got the best of him, branded Alton B. Parker as a jawlocked judge, but Hogg gave loyal support to the standard bearer of his party and regretted many times the words of censure which in an unguarded moment had fallen from his lips.

Two of Bryan's paramount issues wrecked the democratic party in two campaigns. First free silver which set the people crazy for the republicans. Second, imperialism or colonial expansion on the part of the United States with Bryan as the apostle of anti-expansion first and last and all the time. Again the slaughter house for the donkey and the clover patch for the republican.

All this is forgotten history perhaps, but from 1896, the year of the silver craze, until 1924, the year of the klan craze where the flag went down in the Madison Square Garden convention, the Bryanic paramount issues and the leadership of Bryan always made it possible for the republicans to win. He did not make the issues in 1912. They were made by Woodrow Wilson. He did not make the issues in 1916. They were made by Woodrow Wilson and the World war. Now what will the democrats do in the year of 1926? Cleveland is dead. Bryan is dead. Parker is dead and the republicans is in power. Will they continue in power?

HISTORY BROUGHT DOWN TO NOW

DR. FREDERICK E. COOK, who said he discovered the North and lied about it, is wearing a convict garb in the federal penitentiary. He was convicted for using the United States mails for fraudulent purposes.

Peary, the first man to discover the North Pole is in his grave. He died covered with honors. Byrd flew over the pole, almost in the twinkling of an eye, is a page one man wherever daily newspapers are printed.

Poor old Cook. He is broken in purse, broken in pride, behind prison bars, without a friend. He faked and he lost.

LIFE'S HAZARDS

ONE of the most discouraging moments in a young person's life comes when he realizes that nature punishes him just as severely for his mistakes as she does for his deliberate wrongdoing. She seems to make no distinction.

A man may be sweet tempered, well meaning, honest, but if he be stupid, unable to adjust himself to the complex of life of modern society, unable to see others' points of view he may lose his friends and be an utter failure in the business world.

We read the life of a great man and all seems clear sailing. He seems to have a definite plan of action which he followed from the first and which led him straight to success. But isn't this largely a delusion? Isn't it true, as Randolph S. Bourne points out, that "we all, rich and poor, successful and unsuccessful, live from hand to mouth. We all alike find life at the beginning a crude mass of puzzling possibilities?"

"On the homilies on success," Bourne says, "it has always been implied that strength of will was the only requisite. Success became merely a matter of the ratio between the quantity of effort and will power applied, and the number of obstacles to be met. If one failed, it was because the proper amount of effort had been applied or because the plans had not been properly constructed. The remedy was automatically to increase the effort or rationalize the plans.

"But one does not have to live very long to see that this belief in the power and the desirability of controlling things is an allusion. Life works in a series of surprises. One's powers are given in order that one may be alert and ready, resourceful and keen. The interest of life lies largely in its adventurousness, and not in its susceptibility to orderly mapping."

"We are creatures of impulses and instincts," he avers, "at the mercy of great social laws that regulate our fortune for us, construct our philosophy of life and dictate to us our ways of making a living." There seems little room for our boasted freedom of will, but what little there is "serves for our human purposes. It must be our care simply that we direct it wisely.

"None can live my life but myself. And the life that I live depends upon my courage, skill, wisdom in experimentation," Bourne concludes.

BYRD OF VIRGINIA

LIEUT. COMMANDER RICHARD E. Byrd made a successful flight over the North Pole. He was planning a second polar flight on which he will make a landing at the North Pole. Byrd is a Virginian. His brother, Henry Byrd is governor of the old commonwealth.

Harry wanted to be governor of Virginia. Leaders of the anti-saloon league warned him that he was impossible. They had other plans. He waded in, he licked the leaguers, including many political parsons, as well as many machine democrats. He won the governorship and he is making a fearless and honest chief executive of his state.

Byrd of Virginia, the naval Byrd, has made history for his countrymen and placed his name in the hall of fame. He made the trip in a few hours. Gone is the tallow-dipped civilization. Gone is the ox-cart period of civilization. Gone is the stage coach and the buckboard. Gone is the old cattle trail and mud road of the fathers. Gone the slow thinking and the slow gaited thinkers of the past. Gone, forever, are the good old days.

Gone are the barbarians of the dead ages. Gone are many of the crudities and cruelties of the dead ages. There is more of the milk of human kindness in the world today than ever before. There is more tolerance than ever before. There are more sane and safe thinkers than ever before.

There are more men who stand for popular education of the masses than ever before. There is more independent thought in the land and more independent thinkers than ever before. And for all those, may the good Lord be praised.

Peary and Byrd played the game like sportsmen and they won.

It never pays to be a faker, not in the long run. It never pays to be a crook. It never pays to be a hypocrit. It never pays to be a demagogue. Abraham Lincoln was right. It is impossible to fool all the people all the time. This goes in business. It goes in politics. It goes in church life of all men in all fields of endeavor.

Questions From the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

"Why is the average domestic woman so discontented with her job?" a man asked me the other day.

"Listen in on the conversation of any group of married women," he continued, "and you will find that the burden of their song is a lament over their lot in life. They are complaining about how hard they have to work and the monotony of housework, and about how much trouble children are, and how much extra labor husbands make cluttering up a house.

"Apparently not one of them is happy, or interested, or contented with her occupation, or sees in it anything but drudgery. Apparently none of them gets any kick out of what she is doing, or has any feeling that homemaking it the greatest and most glorious career that any woman can follow.

"Now, I am not contending that doing the cooking and cleaning and sewing and mending and baby tending for a family is a light and pleasant pastime. It isnt. It is hard and grueling labor, but so is every other occupation by which we earn an honest living. I am not denying that housework is monotonous. So is any other labor that you do day after day, week after week, year year. Doing stunts in an airplane, or being a vamp in the movies gets to be just as much a matter of routine as peeling potatoes and washing dishes, if you earn your bread and butter by doing them.

"The life of the ordinary man is just as laborious and monotonous as his wife's. He works just as hard at his occupation as she does at hers. There are no more thrills in keeping books, or selling goods, than there is in sweeping floors and cooking dinners, but he doesn't go about beating on his breast and asking people to pity him because of his job. He is darn glad he has a job, and generally he manages to interest himself in it, and think it the most important job in the world.

"Now the wife's job, making a home, really is the most important job in the world, and on its being well done depends the health, the strength, the moral well being of humanity. She is the bulwark of the nation and the hope of civilization, and what I can never understand is why she so seldom sees her work in this light, or gets any joy out of doing it."

"If women have small pride and pleasure in their work," I replied, "you men are to blame for it. It is because of the attitude that you take toward domestic labor. You have taught women to despise home making because you have made it the only work that has no reward in either appreciation or money.

"Put yourself in the woman's place."

YAP-A-NEE

—By—

BEATRICE GRIMSHAW

"Yesterday your message came in the canoe, and Saonek went as you ordered her."

"I sent no message. Who brought the canoe?"

"A man called Fakfak, Lord. He said you had met him on the coast, and told him to go quickly and fetch Saonek, for the shooting was very good, and you had a mind to stay some days more, and wanted her to be with you. So as she was better, she ran very quickly into the house, and took her best bark cloth skirt, and all her beads and shells, and the little mirror was in her hand as she went to the canoe, and her red paint from the bush. So they got into the canoe together, and the man Fakfak paddled very fast, and it was near sunset, and after a very little while we could see them no more."

Howe had turned yellow beneath his tan; his eyes burned till the woman who told the tale to others, later on, could not endure to look at them.

"Do you know anything about Fakfak?" he asked Atu, mouthing his words as if his tongue was dry.

"I do know of him," answered Atu. "He is the brother of Kwattu, and Kwattu does not love you or Saonek. Lord, if harm has come to her you shall give us both Fakfak and Kwattu to play with after our old fashion, and we will raise merrier sport than you have ever seen."

"Do not talk to me of sport," answered Howe, his breath failing so that he spoke on the indraw of the words. "Bring the young men and the canoes, and we will go out at once, and we will not leave a stone on the coast unturned."

"Lord, it is not on the coast you should look," said Atu.

"What do you mean?"

"They who have her do not live there. It may be they have been traveling in canoes, but now they will have returned to the forests."

"The cannibals? God—"

"Lord, this man Fakfak took a wife from them; there is nothing about them that he does not know."

"Go to the house of Kwattu," roared Howe, in a voice like the bellow of some tormented beast. "Go and drag him forth—No—I will—" He ran, followed by the crowd of young men, and afterwards by Atu, making the best time that middle-aged legs, unspurred by terror, could compass.

There was no one in the house of Kwattu. Kwattu was not anywhere on the island. Quartering it as for a hunt, the young men searched, with shouts of excitement. No trace of the soercerer could be found. Someone had seen his canoe come to the island in the night; but it was gone now, and so was he.

They were pausing to take breath on the edge of the beach, when a terrible cry from the white chief's house started them all running back again. They found Howe standing in the midst of the bedroom that had been his and Saonek's. Something was in his fingers, clutched tight—something that he had found laid out in the middle of Saonek's sleeping mat. It was a little pretty hand, with a ring on it.

No one on the island or Soroekwari, or near it, ever saw the man Fakfak again. Kwattu, the sorecerer, was not seen for many moons after the steamer had come to Humboldt's Bay and taken the white chief away. He boasted a good deal of his exploits—not excluding the last—and succeeded in getting the island, now masterless, to take him at his own valuation. When a squad of Amboynese police sent down at fearful expense from the Moluccas, landed on Soroekwari and arrested him for murder of a British subject, namely Saonek, Baroness Burntisland, not all the young men were as pleased as they ought to have been and very few were glad when they heard he had been taken to Amboyna and there hanged. You see, he was such an excellent sorecerer.

Conway Baron Burntisland, died this year. He married before he died it is possible that the Barony may not become extinct. Lady Burntisland (a service) found him a faithful but not an affectionate husband. When he was dying (of the obscure trouble, lately returned, that had sent him traveling in nineteen twenty) he was little delirious; it was noticed that he did not mention Lady Burntisland's name. He talked a good deal in foreign tongues and repeated certain words over and over. Quite secretely Lady Burntisland was, and is still jealous of a girl whom she takes to have been called "Yap-a-nee." She is sure Yap-a-nee was a minx.

Seminary Report Read To Baptists By School Prexy

HOUSTON, May 13.—(AP)—A resident body of 668 and an enrollment of 911 in its correspondence department of the Southwestern Baptist Theological seminary, Fort Worth was reported to the Southern Baptist convention here today by President L. The George E. Cowden Music building, for which Mrs. George E. Cowden, of Fort Worth, made a contribution of $150,000, is nearing completion. During the year a bequest of the choir of Evangelism became available from the estate of the late Judge C. C. Ferrell, of Anson, Texas.

A deficit of $42,000 in the operating expense of the seminary for the year was reported.

Florida Guardsmen Patrol Streets as Probe is Commenced

LA BELLE, Fla., May 13.—(AP) Troops of the Florida national guard patroled the streets of this little town of 500 population today while behind closed doors the coroner continued his investigation of the death of Henry Patterson, negro, at the hands of a mob here Monday.

The negro was taken by the mob after having escaped officers who had arrested him for an alleged attack upon a white woman. The woman testifying before the coroner yesterday said that she became frightened when the negro entered her kitchen and fled the house, screaming.

Troops were ordered here late yesterday when Sheriff D. L. McLaughlin notified Governor John W. Martin that the situation was beyond his control and another outbreak threatened.

The town was outwardly quiet yesterday and last night and many negroes who fled Monday were returning, having been assured protection.

Lyrics of Life

YOU'RE GOING TO MOVE

When someone moves away, then things
Don't seem just right for quite awhile.
New folks move in, the morning brings
Another face, another smile,
A face we'll likely learn to love,
A smile we'll all be glad to see,
And yet we'll miss the presence of
Old neighbors, like they used to be.

We hear you're going to move away;
We wish you luck, the very best,
A home that's happier each day,
And health, and wealth, and all the rest.
Yet don't forget the folks you knew,
The good old friends you leave behind,
For they will think a lot of you,
And ev'ry memory will be kind.

It looks like we would stay right here,
The same old place, the same old street;
So drop around, if somewhere near,
Old times to talk, old friends to meet.
Life brings its changes; people come
And people go, with tear and smile,
And yet among them there are some—
Things won't seem right for quite awhile!

What Do You Know About It?

Daily Science Six

1. What are the chief peninsulas of Europe?
2. What are the chief island possessions of Denmark?
3. What is the largest country in the world?
4. Where is Baluchistan?
5. Through what countries does the Rhine flow?
6. What countries have possessions in Florida?

Answers to these questions in tomorrow's Record News.

What Shape Is The Earth?

Ancients naturally believed that the earth was flat, though some of the enlightened Greeks thought it to be round. Columbus, we know, believed it round, though he cannot be said to have proved it, as he never circled the globe. A sect in Florida believes we are on the inside of a hollow sphere, with the sun in the middle, while the old fashioned school mistress taught that the earth was round. But it is not round, and not only is it flattened at the poles, but it is actually bigger in the northern hemisphere than in the southern.

Stranger still is the fact that all continents are roughly triangular in shape except the small island continent of Australia, with the broad part of the triangle at the top. Also they all have archipelagoes of islands off their southeastern corner, and in the western hemisphere the highest mountains are on the western edge, in the eastern hemisphere on the eastern edge. The plan looks too symmetrical to be due to chance, but nobody knows to what it is due.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to Yesterday's Questions:

1. The sun is the nearest star to the earth.
2. Our sun is moving in the direction of the constellation of Lyra which contains the brilliant blue star, Vaga.
3. The pole star can be located in this way: Follow the line connecting the two end stars in the handle of the big dipper and continue the line into space; the next star you strike is the pole star.
4. The pole star would appear to be on or near the horizon when seen from the equator.
5. The southern cross is visible in southern Florida in summer.
6. More stars are visible in the northern hemisphere than in the southern.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

Today's planetary aspects augur well for all new enterprises, or betterment changes, as they are distinctly favorable. The prospects are that all work in connection with machinery or along inventive lines will benefit most, but all tasks that call for initiative and patience will prove profitable and successful. In the evening, the signs are not so encouraging and the aspects are uncertain and overcast. These conditions always have a marked effect on the temperament, and, when such influences prevail it is necessary, in order to avoid "countretemps" of a disagreeable variety, to seek some mild form of recreation, so as to divert the mind from excessive introspection.

Children born today will enjoy normal health during infancy, and the few and infrequent ailments from which they will suffer, will yield very readily to ordinary treatment. These children at a very early age will attain physical normalcy. They will have cheerful dispositions and possess strong personalities. They will be assiduous in their studies, but, while other children may learn easily, it will require on their part much concentration and labor to master the intricacies of a school curriculum. What they learn, however, they will never forget. They will prove to be loyal friends, have affectionate natures and be unselfish both in thought and deed.

If today is your birthday, you are self centered and have little regard for the convenience of others. No one can gainsay your ability your keen perception and, at times, your brilliancy. All, however, decry the fact that these gifts are utilized by you never to help others, but only to gain your own ends. You are, probably, successful in your own individual walk of life. Your success has not been attained without leading sores and hard feelings. A vicory, when it is bought at the price of selfishness, is always dearly bought, and does not, as a rule conduce to that degree of happiness commensurate with contentment.

Your home life, and you exact much from those that should be near and dear to you, is not a bed of roses, and never can be until you learn the lesson that unselfish service brings in its train affection and love, whereas lack of consideration for others breeds in them lack of consideration for you.

Musical Expert Tells Mothers How Children Learn

"Out of every 100 pupils taking music lessons there are three who will not learn to play the piano, and three who will learn no matter who they study under. Ninety-four out of the 100 who start to take music stop in the third grade. It is about this 94 that I am going to talk about today. How to make them want to learn music. The child must be made to want to learn to play the piano just like he wants to play marbles or any game, and then you have the practice problem solved," John M. Williams, well known music educator and lecturer of New York City, told mothers at the Kemp hotel Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Williams in an open public lecture entitled "Your Child and His Music Lesson," discussed the parent-teacher problem in regard to the music lesson especially for beginners, and explained how to arouse the child's interest in his music and how to get cheerful practice without being driven to the piano, to an interested group of women.

The speaker appeared here under the auspices of the music department of the Forum and was introduced by Mrs. Alva Willgus, chairman of the department. He will speak this morning to the music teachers of the city at 10 o'clock on the sixth floor of the Kemp.

MISS CAMPBELL REAL ACTRESS

"What Price Glory" Brings Charming Leading Lady Here

MIAMI CAMPBELL.

Miss Miami Campbell, leading lady of the Edgar Mason Players who open at the Majestic theatre Sunday in "What Price Glory?" takes the part of Charmaine, "sweetheart of the American Army," in the great drama.

Miss Campbell, although born in Miami, Fla., is of French extraction and plays the part of the little French lassie as no other woman has ever played it, according Arthur W. Hopkins who brought the play out on Broadway when it was first brought out by Laurence Stallings, captain of the marines who wrote the piece while convalescing from wounds received in France.

Miss Campbell was "born in a trunk" as the theatrical term goes, being born while her parents were touring the country with a dramatic offering. Her father was a Shakespearian player and her mother played in her father's company.

and a minute later she was sitting in her father-in-law's office.

"Has Mother Phelps told you about me and Ranny?" she asked him. She didn't want to shock him with the news, and she knew that Mother Phelps tried to keep all worries from him these days, so far as she could.

He nodded. "The wild young whelp wants a divorce, so his mother tells me," he said.

Sylvia nodded. "Yes," she said, and handed Ranny's cruel little note across the desk to him.

"Don't divorce him," Phelps, Sr., said, when he gave it back to her. "He doesn't really want one. He doesn't know what he wants—"

He stared out of the window for a minute. Then his eyes came back to the girl's anxious, unhappy face.

"Where do you suppose he is today?" he asked. "Was he at his own house last night?"

Sylvia shook her head. She had stopped at the Little White House on her way down town and had found it empty. Empty and silent and deserted.

Sylvia seeks Ranny. She does not find him, but she finds in his stead fresh trouble.

'Where Was I?' Is Film Full of Fun

There is a world of real humor in "Where Was I?" the Universal-Jewel starring Reginald Denny, which opens at the Strand theatre today.

There is also an unusual story with wonderful opportunities for the manufacturing of laughs. William Seiter, director, has turned out a finished product, according to those who have seen this riotous Denny-drama.

Chester Conklin, Lee Moran, Otis Harlan, Pauline Garon, Marian Nixon, William Turner, Tom Lingham, Arthur Lake and James Corrigan all contribute to the general comedy of the piece.

No expense in elaborate sets was spared in the filming of this picture. An entire interior of a mansion was built, a subway was constructed and a whole wing of an office building was put up. Six automobiles were completely wrecked and a taxicab was incapacitated for all future use.

ing mast. There is no mast at Nome. Amundsen had arranged with Ralph Lowman there, Norwegian consul, to have 100 men ready to haul the dirigible to earth. These men have been in readiness since yesterday afternoon.

What puzzled watchers here was that so far as known the navy raido station at Cordova, Alaska, reported that the St. Paul radio had at five p. m., received no word from the Norge for 14 1-2 hours and that the army radio station at Nome, 500 miles farther north, also had heard nothing.

The only definite word direct from Nome was that at 5:30 a. m., the Norge had not arrived. It is believed in view of the normal promptness of communication between that city and this, word would have been received had the ship arrived.

Nome is making gala preparations to receive the explorers, at this time of the year the population is about 600, mostly Eskimos. But all were on the watch. An arch of triumph has been erected as part of the city's greeting.

STATION REPORTS RADIO HEARD AT NOON

JUNEAU, Alaska, May 13.—(AP) Radio operators of the steamer Northwestern of the Alaska steamship company, in port here reported at noon today that they heard a radio station at Iditarod tell a station at Fairbanks that it had heard the dirigible Norge, on trans-polar flight from Spitzbergen to Nome, Alaska, call Nome every five minutes for some time.

A land radio station here, however, which listened all day, reported they had heard no messages from the big airship.

Iditarod is approximately 275 miles southeast of Nome and 600 miles south, and slightly west of Point Barrow. It is 240 miles inland from Bering sea. The norge taveling in a direct line from Point Barrow to Nome would pass about 800 miles north of Iditarod.

NAVY RADIO CALLS NORGE CONTINUOUSLY

CARDOVA, Ala., May 13.—(AP) At five o'clock this afternoon, American eastern standard time the navy radio station on St. Paul island in the Bering sea, and the army radio station at Nome had been continuously calling the dirigible Norge for 15 hours. No word had been received from her for eleven and a half hours.

SAN ANTONIO RALLY IN NINTH SPILLS SPUDDERS IN SECOND GAME OF SERIES BY 5 TO 4

Golvin Produces Victory Punch With Double In Final Frame to Score Two Bear Runners

Trailing the Spudders 4-3 in the ninth round, San Antonio batters pulled a surprise flank attack on Fred Fussell and Jim Roberts, slugging over two runs to stow the second game of the series, 5 to 4, Thursday afternoon at the Gardner plant. Wichita Falls won the first contest Wednesday, 12 to 3.

Segrist opened the ninth inning with a double to left off Fussell's delivery. The Spudder southpaw was promptly retired to the club house by Boss Brainard and Roberts ascended the hurling knob. Wirts bounded to Long Jim who tossed to Distel. Kal was trapped between second and third and was tagged out by Brainard. Wirts advanced to second on the play. Henzes dropped a Texas leaguer back of second, sending Wirts to third. Golvin, former Spud first sacker, cracked the left field fence with a two-bagger, scoring Wirts and sending Henzes to third. Gonzales was purposely walked. Mitze, batting for Lindsey, hoisted sacrifice aviation to left, scoring Henzes. Rabbit bounded out to the pitcher.

Luck Against 'Em.

Watts pitched the ninth inning for the Bears. Brainard was robbed of a base hit to center by Najo. Washburn flied out to right. Fitzgerald beat out a chop infield hit. Turgeon lined out to left. The Spudders were hitting the ball hard, but fate ordained that the wallops should be within catching distance.

San Antonio squeezed over a run in the first frame on three consecutive singles hit by Rabbitt, Flashkamper and Najo. Segrist, attempting to lay down a bunt, popped out to Brainard. Fussell fanned Wirts and Klein.

The Spudders edged over for a run in the second with two out when Turgeon, Lapan and Fussell singled in succession. They scored another in the third. Lamb and Bodie opened with singles. Brainard grounded to Segrist and was given a life at first on fielder's choice when Lamb was hemmed up in a hot box between third and home. Lucy made it back to third safely, filling the sacks. Washburn hit to the box, forcing Lamb at the plate. Fitzgerald grounded out, second to first, scoring Bodie. Turgeon drew a base on balls, but Lapan flied out to Najo in center.

Lamb Ties It Up.

The Bears scored two in the fourth on singles by Gonzales, Rabbitt and Najo coupled with a base on balls and an infield out.

Wichita Falls scored one in the seventh and one in the eighth, tying and then taking the lead. A double by Lamb down the third base line followed with singles by Bodie and Brainard knotted the count. Wash popped to third. Fitz flied to right. Turgeon hoisted out to left. A walk to Lapan and singles by Fussell and Distel scored the other run.

Both teams played errorless ball.

Lapan threw out three would-be base robbers in one stanza.

METZLER JOINS DALLAS OUTFIT

Axle Peeved at Fate That Sends Him to Enemy A's Loan

Alex Metzler is an irritated youth today, was yesterday, too. For the scrappy young Spudder outer gardner by this time is in Dallas preparatory to doning a Steer monkey suit.

Metzler has been sent as a loan to Sniper Conley whose outfield is shattered at present because of ankle injury to Perry O'Brien and hand hurt to Rhino Williams.

Alex checked out last night irked at leaving his old buddies to join the enemy.

However, Metzler is subject to recall by Spudder Boss Brainard on 24 hours notice.

Galloway Chops Four From List

BEAUMONT, May 13.—(AP)—The Beaumont Exporters have severed relations with four of its team members, according to word reaching here from Dallas.

Don Brown, obtained in a trade with Shreveport, probably will be traded or sold and Sam Ross, Ed Handley and Gene Caldwell, probably will be temporarily suspended pending adjustment to the 16-player rule.

Andy Woehr, third baseman and former manager of the Exporters, may be released or traded, it was said. Woehr, however, is to be carried until Ed Handley is taken off the sick list.

Manager Galloway announced his list of eligibles today to include Pitchers Hal Diviney, Dana Fillingim, Ed Hovlik, Dan Eberhard, Bert Lewis and Elmer Hansen. The infield, according to reports will include Galloway, Tom Connally, Bernie Deiveros, Paddy Reagan, Claude Robertson and Boelsle will serve as catchers, while "Owl" Dunning, Tom Oliver and Yank Davis will constitute the Exporter outfield.

Bears Cut Down To Player Limit

SAN ANTONIO, May 13.—(AP)—Julius (Dutch) Kaiser, husky right-hand pitcher, has been sent to the Bears' "farm," the Terrell club of the Texas association for further seasoning under the supervision of Jimmy Maloney.

With the unconditional release given Pitcher Hal McCall and Outfielder Pete Rose and with utility man, Henzes, on the sick list and Pitcher Buck Winters not yet on the eligible list, because his arm has been sore ever since he reported, the club is inside the player limit of 16 men.

McCall has caught on with the Quincy team of the Three-Eye league. Rose has no plans as yet.

STECHER - SANTEL MATCH MUST DRAW HEAVILY IF PROGRAM IS TO PROVE FINANCIAL SUCCESS

That Wichita Falls' largest sporting event is going to cost heavily is assured. The world's championship wrestling match carded Friday, May 21, with Joe Stetcher, heavyweight king, defending his belt in a finish affair with Ad Santel, the famous light heavyweight, will tax the drawing powers of the sport in this section to the limit.

Stetcher comes to Wichita Falls under a $2,500 guarantee. Santel has demanded 25 percent of the gross gate receipts and won his point with the promoter.

To insure successful staging of the title match with no loss to the Wichita Falls Wrestling association it is estimated the receipts must be high, at least, $5,000. That's a larger gate than has ever been registered at a Wichita Falls athletic event.

The advance seat sale, however, to date has been exceptionally strong and Matchmaker Alec Ross feels that the promotion is going over the top.

Santel is expected to arrive in Wichita Falls this morning with intention of repairing to Point Breeze, Lake Kemp where he will taper off his training preparations. The world's heavyweight king will be on hand next Wednesday, said Ross.

Panthers Begin To Show Old Time Form on Diamond

Paulio Wachtellio, Once Mighty Monarch of Hillock, Struts Stuff

FORT WORTH, May 13.—(AP)—Showing more real stuff than at any time since the opening day game, the Fort Worth Panthers came from behind today to defeat for the second time the Houston Buffaloes, 4 to 3. It was Wachtel's victory, the spitball mongrch allowing but five hits and brandishing a brave battle club on his own account.

Windle and Palmer surprised the fans by neatly nailing threatening drives, while Ezzell took honors in flailing with a triple and four singles. Wachtel's triple, however, was admitted to be the cleaner of the two. The best the Buffs could do in the Waco heavy hitting was a double by Gainer, who accounted for three of the Buff bingles.

Littlejohn gave way to Mahady in the seventh, after Fort Worth had put over the winning run. He had allowed 10 of the hits of the Cats made. The score:

Bam Keeps Apace Of His 1921 Mark

NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP)—By driving out two homers today and bringing his season's total up to 10, Babe Ruth reached an even footing with his pace in 1921 when he garnered his record crop of 59 circuit blows. The Yankee slugger must collect his 11th tomorrow, however, if he is to keep up with his record gait.

Since getting started, however, the bambino has been hitting for the circuit at an even faster clip this year than he did five seasons ago. In 1921 he got his first homer on April 16 but it was April 20 before he blasted out the first one this spring. He has collected his last six in nine days.

POMPEY AND BUBBLING OVER STAND OUT TODAY AS STRONG FAVORITES IN DERBY RUNNING

164 Nominees Survive Training Grind, To Draw Entries at 10:30 This Morning

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 13.—(AP)—Derby devotees throughout the country tonight turned toward the racing secretary's office at Churchill Downs for at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning entries for the fifty-second Kentuck derby will go through the box. An hour or so later they will be made public and for the first time it will be known officially how many of the 164 original nominees have survived the training grind and will run for the $50,000 added purse and the glory that goes to a derby winner.

Pompey and Bubbling Over, representatives of the east and of the west, now appear to be the outstanding favorites. Both have shown that they are superior runners and turfmen, after watching Pompey show a sensational burst of speed in his workout this morning, called it a two-horse race. But derby history shows that it is not always the favorite that wins, or even shows, as was the case last year when Quatrain was badly beaten.

That the derby will be one of the fastest in several years seems probable because of the known speed of the two favorites. They are expected to begin running at the rise of the barrier and try to keep ahead of the pack for the whole mile and a quarter. With few exceptions, the horse that got the lead in the first quarter has won previous derbys.

The greatest throng of all time is going to the derby this year. Seventy-four special trains, the first few of which arrived today, have been arranged to bring a large quota of visitors to Louisville, passenger departments of eight railroads reported today.

ST. LOUIS, May 13.—(AP)—The New York Giants landed on four St. Louis Cardinal pitchers for 18 hits, including eight for extra bases, and took the final game of the series today, 12 to 1. Southworth his his thir homer of the series in the ninth inning. Travis Jackson, Giant shortstop, suffered a recurrence of a knee injury when his spike caught in the plate as he slid home in the fifth and physicians said he probably would not be able to play from two to four weeks. Stribling Fights J. Risko Tonight

NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP)—Two of the most rugged young battlers now in the limelight, young Stribling Georgia and Johnny Risko of Cleveland, swap punches tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden in a ten-round bout that has the fistic rail birds guessing.

Stribling, just turned voting age gained a newspaper verdict over Risko in their only previous encounter a ten-round no-decision go last July. Since then the 22-year-old Clevelander has nearly knocked out Berlenbach and given Jack Delaney a rattling fight although losing the decision.

Risko, weighing about 190 pounds, will have an advantage of probably 15 pounds over Stribling. He also packs a deadlier wallop in either hand, but the Georgia youth is expected to offset this with his superior speed, experience and boxing ability.

IT'S DECIDING CONTEST, SERIES FINAL, LAST OF HOME STAND, GAME FOR FEMININITY TODAY

Spudders Play Bears, Morgan to Face Couchman, Club Starts Road Trip Saturday

The Spudders are within the player limit today.

With the departure of Metzler for Dallas and temporary suspension of Rip Wheeler, veteran right-hander who has a sore arm, the roster was brought down to the required 16 athletes last night. Freddy Dorman, infielder, has been on the hospital list since early in the spring training season with a broken ankle.

Wichita Falls winds up the San Antonio series here this afternoon, the deciding contest, probably batting against the spirals of the Veteran Robert Couchman. Spudder Manager Brainard withheld announcement of his probable pitching selection last night.

"Ladies Day."

Not only is this afternoon's tilt the series final; it is the last of the present home stand and a game for the feminine fans. Today is "Ladies' Day."

Although Brainard did not name his mound choice it is a fair guess that Dick Morgan, the Wellington wonder, will inherit the chunking chores.

The Spudders embark Saturday morning for a two-day stand in Cowtown, jumping to Dallas for a game Monday and then swinging off on a 17-day jaunt south and around the circuit, visiting every part in the league. They return June 1 with Dallas.

The Roster.

Brainard will carry five infielders, three outfielders, two catchers and six regular pitchers along with Lester White, the youthful Los Angeles semi-pro right-hander who joined the club Tuesday. Under league ruling the Spudders may carry White for five days before figuring him in on the player limit question.

The roster as she stands: infielders, Washmurn, Turgeon, Brainard, Distel, DeFate; outfielders, Lamb, Fitzgerald, Bodie; catchers, Query, Lapan; pitchers, Morgan, Roberts, Sutherland, Williams, Fussell, Martin and White.

ARCHER COUNTY

Dale, Gent) vs Archer county, was instituted immediately with the result that the Archer county judge could never show a non-litigation certificate to the state attorney general and thus secure approval necessary for sale and realization of funds in the bonds.

Other counties, both in Texas and in other states, found an entirely different status awaiting them as a result of the supreme court's decision.

Bonds that had been long since approved, the funds realized and the money spent were automatically, as a result of the decision, invalidating the law, rendered valueless. In some cases, as instance that of Wichita county, companies and individuals refused to pay taxes in support of the invalidated bonds. The attorney general ruled that in no county except that in which the litigation had originated had the collector a right to accept a partial payment or payment minus the amount due for the road district bonds. This resulted in the turning down of $60,000 taxes due in Wichita county, and of varying amounts in other counties. The attorney general's ruling permitted Archer county to stop its collections but other counties could not do this.

Still Has Bonds.

But if Archer's financial worries are few it still has the questionable asset of some 400 miles of rural, unimproved roads to maintain on county road income approximating $15,000 to $18,000. And 75 miles of state highway connecting its important points on an income by state aid grant of about $15,000 a year. In rainy weather even the state highways are oftentimes almost impassable. The two road bond issues provided for hardsurfacing of the highway from Dundee to the county line north of Holliday, from the Wichita county line to Archer City, for another six miles in the northeastern part of the county; a hard surfaced road to the Jack county line from Archer City, and one from Archer City to the county line north of Olney.

The bonds were popular in the districts in which they were voted, the votes polled show. In district two there were 303 for and 102 against, while in district four there were 294 for and 53 against.

Be that as it may, E. M. Hooper, county judge of Archer county asserts that the levy of an advalorem tax on land is not the proper method for maintenance and construction of highways. A gasoline tax puts the burden on the automobile user who is exofficio the highway user, Judge Hooper believes.

Bond issues with the susequent levies to pay principal and interest that they involve could be entirely obviated by the practice of levying a gasoline tax, roads to be built only as the tax is collected and put into the road building fund—that is Judge Hooper's opinion and he points to the success with which Archer county raised $80,000 for the remodeling of its court house last year. A levy of five cents was made the first year and 25 cents the remaining two years necessary to acquire the needed funds.

Valuations Increased.

Archer county valuations are increasing by leaps and bounds with oil development and improvement of agricultural facilities. Four years ago, Judge Hooper relates in illustrating this, the county valuation on the tax rolls amounted to $7,750,000; three years ago $9,750,0000; two years ago, $14,500,000; last year, $20,000,000.

Judge Hooper states he is confident, however, that once the validation of the bonds is procured either by legislation or constitutional amendment, the county will be ready to go ahead with its road building. In the meantime, however, the county is in a very unusual position in being the seat of what has evolved into a real dilema for other counties. The bonds voted were never sold, and most of the money collected for their support has been returned to the original tax payers, plus the interest accrued while it reposed in the county depository.

SAN ANTONIO, May 13.—Onions continue to move in considerable volume from Texas, yesterday's shipments amounting to 131 cars, which marked as incomplete. There was no competition from other states reported although a pick up of 31 cars from Southern California was noted for the 11th. Other Texas shipments were nine (incomplete) cars cabbage, one mixed vegetables, 20 cucumbers, 19 of which were express rollings and two cars white potatoes. There was a slight improvement in the demand for onions yesterday at Crystal City, at the recent drop in prices. The wire order market was unsettled around $1.25 to $1.35 for No. 1 yellows with stock grading commercial bringing mostly $1.25. Whites of No. 1 quality was listed this basis for $1.50 while yellows, cash track brought from $1.10 to $1.15. Crystal City reports most stock moving on consignments. Tomatoes at Brownsville and lower valley points were in good demand on a usual terms basis of $2.00@2.25 for four basket flats of wrapped greens and the sale of one car of similar quality in six basket crates was noted at $5.00 and another at $5.50 f. o. b. loading station. Potatoes were steady at $5.00 usual terms and $5 cwt cash track.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, May 13.—(AP)—The cotton market was moderately active today and the trend of prices was downward, mainly on favorable weather in the belt. British strike news and disturbed political conditions on the continent of Europe were contributing influences on the easier tone. Selling pressure was not great, however, and after the market declined 14 to 19 points during the morning there was a mild rally on trade buying and more active covering of shorts. In the late trading, however, prices eased off again on realizing almost to the low figures. The close was steady at net losses for the day of 10 to 18 points.

At the start Liverpool was rather better than due but the market here opened irregular, one point to 11 points down. First trades at 17.85 for July, 17.11 for October and 17.17 for December proved to be the highs of the day. The market continued to ease off all morning owing to absence of any rain in the belt and an official forecast for fair weather. Before the downward tendency was checked, a little before mid-session, July had traded down to 17.70, October to 17.01 and December to 17.04, or 14 to 19 points below yesterday's close.

Prices rallied six to eight points after mid-session on moderate trade buying and covering but lost most of this recovery in the final trading, the market closing near the lows.

The government will issue the final figures for acreage and crop of 1925, tomorrow morning.

Exports for the day totaled 18,273 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP)—More favorable weather reports from the south seemed responsible for declines in the cotton market today. October contracts sold off from 17.55 to 17.40, and closed at 17.41, the general market closing steady at net losses of 14 to 20 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of three to seven points in response to the easier ruling of late Liverpool cables, rather disappointing British labor news and favorable overnight weather reports.

Despite a little trade buying and covering at the lower prices, the market gradually worked off to 18.32 for July and 17.44 for December, net declines of about 17 to 21 points on the general list. Demand seemed sufficient to absorb the comparatively small offerings at these figures and there were rallies of six to seven points in the early afternoon on apprehensions that the low barometer reported on the Pacific coast would work eastward, bringing a threat of possible showers or rains to the southwest over Sunday. Except for covering, there appeared to be very little support, however, and prices eased off again in late trading although trading continued very quiet.

Exports for the day were 18,273 bales, making 7,302,602 so far this season. Port receipts today 11,466. U. S. port stocks 954,264 bales.

NUE WYORK, May 13.—(AP)—Speculative interest in today's stock market centered largely on the sensational, but unsuccessful attempt to bear traders to crack Nash Motors common stock below $52 a share. Transactions in that issue totaled 191,600 shares, or approximately one-fifth of the day's total business, with over 50,000 shares offered and promptly taken at 52. The stock later rallied to 55½, closing at 54 for a net gain of 1½ points on the day.

Other motors yielded more readily to selling pressure, General Motors common sagging 2⅝ to 125½, despite widespread predictions of a substantial cash extra which were fulfilled after the market closed, when the directors declared an extra cash dividend of $4 a share and offered to purchase the assets of Fisher Body by offering two-thirds of one share of General Motors for each share of Fisher Body stock. New low records for the year were again established by Jordan at 27½, Chandler-Cleveland at 13½.

The general stock list drifted lower with public interest at low ebb. Some encouragement was derived by constructive forces, however, from the prompt oversubscription of $50,000,000 in new public utility offerings which was accepted by them as indicative of a strong underlying investment demand. About the only business news of importance were reports of a better demand for structural steel and non-ferrous metals and the announcement of Carl Gray, president of the Union Pacific, that freight traffic on his road was running 10 to 12 per cent above that of a year ago.

Oils were in better demand, presumably on reports of large current earnings and report breaking gasoline production. There seems to be a disposition in some quarters, however, to restrict commitments in those issues, pending further developments in the Panhandle and other oil fields where extensive drilling operations are in progress. Union Oil of California was the leader in that group, closing 1⅝ higher at 44⅝ after having crossed 45. Lago Oil, admitted to trading for the first time, was active around 19⅛.

Some confusion resulted from the fact that Pacific Oil, formerly quoted around 54⅛, appeared on the tape between 1 and 1⅝, a share, but this was explained by the fact that the stock was quoted minus one share of Standard Oil company of California, which recently absorbed the Pacific company through an exchange of stock and whose stock sells around 53⅛ a share.

Call money renewed at 3⅝ per cent and held steady at that figure all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were irregularly lower. Demand sterling held firm around $4.85⅝, but French and Belgian francs were slightly lower around 3.13⅛ cents each. Italian lire broke nearly 30 points to a new low record at 3.70 cents. Polish zloty also dropped a full cent to a new low at 9.00 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, May 13.—(AP)—Notwithstanding a spirited late rally wheat prices displayed a downward trend at the finish today, and throughout most of the board of trade session. Moisture relief for the spring wheat crop over large areas both north and south of the Canadian line had a noticeable bearish effect. Wheat closed unsettled, ⅛ to ⅝c net lower, corn at ⅛ to ⅝c advance, oats varying from ⅛c decline to ⅝c; gain, and provisions a shade to 27c off.

Scantiness of offerings gave firmness to corn and oats.

Selling which came largely from houses with foreign connections weakened the provision market despite an upturn in hog values.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, May 13.—Lowness again characterized the cattle trade at Fort Worth.

Beef cattle and she stock failed to get to the scales as readily as common, but calves and young slaughter stock had a fair movement. Bulls were inclined to slowness in view of a decline of a quarter.

Bulk of the 25 cars coming early and the 40 cars left over from Wednesday, however, had to await a more favorable moment to move. Butcher cows again slow, but about noon car loads at $4.80 and $5.00 offered a slant on the market—considered about steady.

"Passing the Buck" To Father—

Willie's dog was lost yesterday—Lost, Strayed, or Stolen—no one seemed to know just how or when it happened.

But it is father's suggestion that the Classified Ads of this newspaper be given a trial at finding the pet and returning it—

So the job of calling 4121 and having an Ad-Taker assist in preparing a Lost-ad naturally falls on father's shoulders.

P. S. Tomorrow Willie will tell his friends that his dog is back—and a Classified Ad did it.

TO MANY, A HOME IN THE HEART OF A CITY MEANS CONTENT!

With the turmoil and dust of the city where children must be kept indoors to avoid being hurt by the rushing traffic, where few restrictions are made in the building of homes, where the beauty of the sunset is obstructed by a nearby hill or the dusty roof of a nearby house.

Yes, such a home where in order to enjoy a breath of cooling air one must drive each evening for a few hours in the open spaces.

But to others—a demand is made that their homesites be on HIGHER GROUND—out where the air is fresh ALL THE TIME—away from the dust and turmoil of streets crowded with traffic, and—more important still WHERE CHILDREN MAY ROMP AND PLAY WITH ABANDON—free from the dangers that lurk in heavy traffic! In a word—where Real homes may be built and time-ties drawn closer—among the best of environments.

HIGHLY RESTRICTED AND PROTECTED. BEAUTIFUL RIVERCREST PARK OFFERS ALL THIS—AND MORE

Why enjoy the beauty of a golden sunset for only one day—then cherish it in fond memory?

Build in Rivercrest Park on higher ground and have this beauty to view each day. Choosing your homesite merits your most careful consideration.

Ambassador Sees Peace in Germany

NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP)—Dr. H. G. Marchwald, newly appointed German minister to Bolivia, arriving today on the Columbus, said Germany was more quiet politically than at any time during the past three years.

"The German republic," he said, "is firmly entrenched and very popular with the people. Of course, there are still many Germans who have a warm spot in their heart for the former kaiser, but nothing will ever come of this, as the enthusiasts for the former kaiser are in a small minority."

Another German passenger aboard the liner was Felix Von Bethmann-Hollweg, 28-year-old son of the late imperial German chancellor. He will study agricultural and new styles of farm machinery while here.

Many Entries in for Cotton Contest

Entries in the "More Cotton on Fewer Acres" conducted in Texas by The Dallas Morning News and The Semi-Weekly Farm News have already passed last year's mark of 4,400 and there are still almost two months before the contest entries close on July 1.

The greatest interest so far this season has been aroused in Denton, McLennan, Milam, Freestone, Limestone, Henderson, Hunt, Kaufman, Smith and Ellis counties. East Texas has scarcely started, probably on account of a late spring and too much wet weather, but indications are that with warm, growing weather, there will be a larger total in that part of the state than last year. The progress of the black land counties of north Texas is remarkable, showing that farmers are beginning to realise that they must raise their cotton crop at a profit by increasing the per acre yield.

About 12,000 copies of the new 1926 Cotton Contest Bulletin of 32 pages, illustrated with pictures of the winners in last year's cotton contest and tables of production costs and methods how to raise large yields of cotton on five acres, have been sent to Texas farmers, business men, banks and chambers of commerce and county agents. Each farmer who enters the 1926 cotton contest receives one of these bulletins with his crop record.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Mexican Laborers Are Plunged Into River When Cables Break.

AUSTIN, May 13.—(AP)—Miraculously escaping with their lives, two Mexicans, Rosalie Elegio, 34, and Jose Rejino, 45, received severe injuries early today when swept off a 32-foot platform at a gravel rig on the Colorado river.

Four steel cables gave way as the gravel bucket was being lifted from the water, and the sixty-foot gin rig crashed to the ground, knocking with terrific force onto the pile of planks and rigging below. Two others who were under the falling platform jumped and escaped injury.

'Bacon Rind' Weds Lizzie Me Ho-Jah

PAWHUSKA, Okla., May 13.—(AP)—Bacon Rind, 72, former chief of the Osages and the orator for the tribe of Indians, was married today to Lizzie Me-Ho-Jah, 40, a Kaw Indian woman.

Both of the contracting parties were in Indian regalia. Bacon Rind wore all of his Indian finery with a gaudy blanket, deer skin trousers and beaded moccassins. The bride was wrapped in a blanket.

Bacon Rind is considered one of the most picturesque figures in the Indian tribes of this country. Nationally known artists have painted him repeatedly.

The couple will make their home in Bacon Rind's residence at Indian Camp, east of this city.

Justice to Mexico Asked by Minister

MADISON, Wis., May 13.—(AP) Forbearance "as well as justice" toward Mexico with great appreciation by the United States of the southern neighbor's problems are recommended in the findings of a conference on friendly relations between the two countries. The findings of the good will commission were made public here today.

"An intense national spirit is developing and all social and religious institutions which have stood or are standing in way of this reconstruction program are being draetically regulated by the government," the conference found. "These are the findings of the group of business and professional men representing all parts of the United States which spent a fortnight in Mexico last month, interviewing leaders of the various phases of Mexican life," said the Rev. R. W. Barstow, a Congregationalist minister of Madison.

'MA' WILL GET MONEY REPORTS

Hatcher Agrees to Comply With Law When Reminded by Governor

AUSTIN, May 13.—(AP)—Hereafter he will make reports to the chief executive of the condition of the finances of the state whenever required, as the law provides, W. Gregory Hatcher, state treasurer, wrote to Governor Miriam A. Ferguson today. His letter was in answer to one from the governor occasioned by a controversy in which the governor demanded a statement of the finances, which was at first refused.

Hatcher said that he would require the governor to make her request in writing, and admitted that he thought the annual report had been submitted to her excellency, but investigation showed that it had not.

His letter quotes the law the governor pointed out which compels him to submit an exact statement of the condition of the treasury whenever the governor requests, the receipts and payments and any other report demanded.

"In compliance with this, the first request, written or verbal, made of me by you pertaining to this matter, I take pleasure in herewith enclosing statement of the condition and situation of the treasury for the period beginning Sept 1, 1924, and ending Aug 31, 1925, the time specified by statute to be covered in the annual report," his letter reads. "This report was made, and I thought, delivered to you during the month of November 1925, but upon receiving your letter I made investigation and found that it had not been delivered to you. In as much as the matter contained therein should be of importance to you, I am surprised that you did not sooner request this report, though of course, I know this does not excuse me for failing to deliver it to you without being requested.

Pleased to Comply.

"It will also be my very great pleasure to comply with the other requests made in your letter, relative to bank balances, as soon as I shall have had time to check these records. It has been my policy since the day I assumed office as treasurer to at all time let the people of Texas know where every dollar of the state's monies were kept, and the banks in which they were kept, and pursuance of this policy, about the first of each month, and oftener if I thought the press would carry it. I have given out the figures showing the balances in the different funds, and the balances in the banks in Austin and other cities, in every instance naming the bank, and the balance in such bank, but I am sure you have been to busy to keep up with these press reports, and as previously stated, I shall be glad to furnish you with special copies of same at my earliest convenience. Also, be assured that it has been and will continue to by my policy to throw open the doors of the state treasury to any tax payer desiring information to the extent of furnishing this information, but I must insist that, since I am requested to assume responsibility for all statements given out pertaining to this department that you, and all others make you requests in writing."

Glass Top Casket Is Provided For By Wealthy Immigrant

SPOKANE, Wash., May 13.—(AP) Provision of $6,000 for a casket with a glass lid to let the sunshine on his face was made in the will of Anton Henry Albert admitted to probate here yesterday.

Albert died last Saturday at the age of 72. He was a pioneer of the Espanola disaster near here and left an estate of $15,000. About $6,000 was willed to relatives in Germany and the remainder left to aid at Christmas persons more than 70 years old.

The clause relative to the casket reads:

"I wish my body embalmed and enclosed in a metallic casket with a glass lid above my face and placed in a cemetery vault situated in some place accessible to sunshine, said vault to be of a marble and other first class material and costing $6,000."

Attorney F. A. Garrecht said the provision is being complied with.

Airplane Flight Made Over Pygmies

WELTEVREDEN, Java, May 13.—(AP)—The first flight of an airplane to the interior of Dutch New Guinea, where tribes of pygmies are known to live, has been made by the expedition headed by Professor Matthew Stirling of Berkeley, Cal.

A wireless from the expedition's pioneer camp at the foot of the Snow mountains reported that the flight had been completed successfully and had resulted in several important discoveries on geographical conditions in the interior. The plane flew from the mouth of the Memberamo river to the camp established where the steamer Albatross is anchored and then continued inland as far as the junction of the Rouffaer and Van Daalen rivers, later returning to the Albatross camp. The flight lasted almost an hour and a half.

EXPORTS FROM U. S.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(AP)—Exports of the United States came closer to equalling imports during April than in any other month this calendar year preliminary figures issued today by the commerce department showing outgoing shipments were $388,000,000 as against $398,000,000 for incoming.

MAID WHIPS WIFE.

NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Zelah Simmons, who recently obtained a divorce, has some ugly welts from a whipping with a dog leash by Irma Bohmert, Rumanian nurse maid and co-respondent. The maid said in court the scandal had estranged her from her fiance. She was fined $50 and told she ought to be deported.

AUSTIN, May 13.—(AP)—Appeal of George W. McNeal, sentenced to 25 years in Jefferson county for attempted criminal assault, was filed today in the court of criminal appeals.

Judge Sartin visited 20 towns in the last three days, making all communities in the district on the Denver, Santa Fe and Katy railroads. Friday he will go to Throckmorton, and Saturday will speak at the Kutch-Manning reunion at Newcastle.

Next Wednesday he will speak at Denton where some preliminary organization work has already been done and where, he reports, sentiment is remarkably strong in his favor. The following day he will deliver an address at Gainesville where he has also found considerable favor.

Victims Testify Of Roadside Courts Before Grand Gury

DALLAS, May 13.—(AP)—The story of the "roadside courts" which Judge Felix D. Robertson has termed highway blackmailing, was unfolded to the grand jury here today by a dozen victims of these nocturnal tribunals.

The jurors were told, it was said, of the methods of county constables in "arresting" men and women parked along the roadside and compelling them to pay fines on the spot, that the investigation after Pat Maloney, drug store employee, disclosed that he had been compelled to sign checks when arrested by a deputy.

As a result of his statements, Emmett R. Fry, former deputy constable, was charged with extortion. He is still at large. R. E. Couch, his alleged companion in the roadside business, was at liberty on $1,000 bail today.

The court has ordered a thorough investigation of these affairs and the district attorney has invited all who have been arrested in this manner to tell their story.

Modernity Scored By Dean of T. C. U. In Society Meeting

DALLAS, May 13.—(AP)—A rebuke to modernity was delivered by Dean Colby D. Hall of Texas Christian University, Fort Worth, at the meeting of the Texas Christian Missionary society here today.

Inventions and discoveries have served only the physical man and not the spiritual, he said.

"The so-called modern literature," he said, "is based on the assumption that love "is not a pure sentiment of the soul," but only a flaming passion of the brute instincts

"A race of prophets is needed to call mankind back afresh to its spiritual heritage.

"The church must remove economic fears of its ministers, take away the fear of pauperized old age. The church is falling down in its duty of appealing to youth."

Joseph D. Boyd of Fort Worth, regional superintendent of religious education, outlined a program for religious training in Texas.

Increasing Costs of Labor Curtails U. S. Construction

WASHINGTON, May 13.—(AP)—A warning that increasing labor costs will eventually bring about curtailment of building construction throughout the country is contained in a statement issued by the Associated General contractors' in convention here.

While the cost of living has remained comparatively stationary and the cost of building materials has declined materially since 1923, the statement said wages have increased sharply. This increase, it added, has prevented a decline in general construction costs.

The statement declared that the spread between average building wages and available building materials based on the 1913 average of 100 is about 50 points.

BRIDGE PLAN COURT-PROOF

New Agreement Immune To Injunction Suit, Lawyers Say

AUSTIN, May 13.—An injunction-proof plan for building the Burkburnett interstate highway bridge across Red river has been worked out whereby the construction can be started, despite the permanent injunction pending in Travis county district court, and without appeal of Wichita county from the order.

It has been found the injunction bars only the expenditure of state money on the portion of the bridge outside Texas. It does not touch the 50 per cent federal aid. It does not prohibit spending state money on the 300 feet of road in Texas. The Wichita and state authorities have found the bridge can be built by applying the federal aid outside Texas and the state aid inside Texas. No Texas taxpayer can enjoin the use of the federal money, it has been held.

The federal bureau of public roads has already approved spending federal aid on the bridge.

Erection of the bridge was twice tied up on injunction suits brought by persons interested in toll bridges. The first was dismissed by agreement, but the last injunction stands. In the opinion of lawyers here, the law under which Wichita county was authorized to negotiate the construction of the bridge was not rendered void by decision which held that Governor Ferguson has not conducted the Oklahoma negotiations by having subsequently ratified them.

Traveler And Lecturer Tell B'nai B'rith Of Principles Of Order

Arthur Adams, traveler and lecturer, graduate of the Sarbonne at Paris and of University College, London, gave an inspirational talk at Temple Israel Thursday evening when he addressed more than 75 members of the B'nai B'rith lodge at a banquet. Mr. Adams discussed the principles of B'nai B'rith and briefly outlined each one in his talk.

H. L. Goldstucker, president of the local B'nai B'rith lodge, presided at the banquet. Rabbi Samuel Phillips introduced the speaker of the evening.

"The principles of B'nai B'rith are brotherly love, philanthropy, and benevolence," Mrs. Adams said in beginning his address. "Brotherly love may seem a dream but if dreams are nothing but dreams of thoughts which are created within us, we necessarily assume that they are a part of our existence and our own reality.

Dreams the Greatest.

"There was never anything great in the world but dreams, and they seem greater than space and time. The dreamer and every one of his physical works have died. His dreams only remain.

"Every building man has built has fallen or will fall into decay. Every monument man has created has crumpled into oblivion. Every human being whoever lived has passed or will pass into dust. Even the tombs of Egyptian kings are yielding or will yield to obliteration.

"But the dreams of great and good men will live forever. The Bible lived—the sages, the poets, the benefactors will never die. The great visions men have conceived will never die. Let us pause as we are being whirled into the riches of eternity and seek something higher which we feel in every fiber of our being and is bound to put us on a loftier plane."

Vision of Helpfulness.

Mr. Adams described brotherly love which is a principle of the order B'nai B'rith. "In part, it is a vision of helpfulness," and he pointed out the hospitals and homes maintained for those who are ill, the Old Folks home of Memphis which is being kept by the order; the National Hospital for consumptives which is being erected at a cost of more than $420,000 raised by the order. There thousands of men from industrial centers, New York, Philadelphia, the congested areas of Chicago, smoky Pittsburgh, and other places will be brought for treatment, free of charge.

"Brotherly love is also in part a vision of justice. Of course justice may seem to be an unattainable ideal but is there any one of us so shallow as to think because we are healthy and have living parents, an inspiring home, and talents to achieve success that those unfortunate have been born with a disease or have acquired it?

It is imperative that we who have much look after those who have little; we can't turn back to them and say it's a matter of business. We can not silence our conscience by an empty argumentation.

"We who claim to have a thinking mind and sensitive souls know it is not a matter of philanthropy and justice but that it is of the highest inspiration to the human race. It is justice towards our followman, or that which we members of B'nai B'rith understand as one of our principles of brotherly love.

Mr. Adams will speak Friday evening at 8 o'clock at Temple Israel on the subject of "East European Relief." He has studied that country and it is said he is able to give constructive criticism on conditions in Europe. An invitation is extended to non-Jews of the city to hear him.

JACKSON TO BE TAKEN TO PEN

P.N. 9 to Appear in "The Non-Stop Flight" On Local Screen

ARCHER CITY, May 13.—The jury in the case of Carrol Mumford, former Wichita county deputy sheriff, who has been on trial here on indictment charging highway robbery, reported to Judge H. R. Wilson Thursday morning that it was hopelessly hung, and was discharged.

The case of Jack B. Jackson, charged under a similar indictment was called immediately by Judge Wilson but counsel for the defense asked a severance both for it and for E. E. Savage, also indicted for the offense. Following this order a continuance of the Mumford case until the August term of court was agreed upon by the district attorney and the defense counsel. With it automatically, of course, the trials of Jackson and Savage will be postponed.

District Attorney Ben F. Alford stated immediately after the discharge of the jury that the remaining of the cases that Jackson would probably be taken to the penitentiary at once and brought back for trial three months from now. Jackson, at the time of his arrest, was at liberty from a 25 year murder sentence on a sixty-day parole.

Mumford and Savage are both at liberty on $5,000 bonds.
