The streamlined 1941 edition of the Owlet, Silverton High School yearbook, was finished Monday of this week by the Briscoe County News, and delivered to the school for sale by Paul S. Rogers.

The yearbook, while small, is an attractive 24-page book with group pictures of classes and sports. The books are printed on heavy book paper, with maroon cover, and tied with white ribbon.

This week's Briscoe County News has many of the pictures that are in the yearbook. Silverton advertisers helped in the publication of the book by using it as a means of expressing their good will to the graduating class.

Committees Named For Sale Of Defense Bonds In County

Acting under the direction of State Administrator Frank Scofield, a meeting of the County Committee for the sale of Defense Savings Stamps and Bonds was called for Tuesday night May 20th at Silverton, by County Chairman, H. S. Sanders.

The general program as outlined by the Treasury Department for bringing before the people the purpose of the Savings Bonds program and ways in which everyone can have a part in helping the Government in its defense program was carefully studied and discussed.

It is the purpose of this committee to acquaint the people of each local community with the program and to encourage a systematic plan of savings. It is the hope of the government that a two-fold purpose can be accomplished by means of the Savings Bonds program, one to meet the immediate needs of the government for funds to carry out the immense defense program which has been undertaken, and the other to establish among the people a plan of systematic saving.

The program was set in action beginning May first and will continue indefinitely. Throughout the state various organizations have adopted plans for the promotion of sales of these Bonds and Stamps and increasing interest is being manifested. The Government is desirous of every person having some part in this program. The local committee is asking the full co-operation of everyone in our country and community and is well pleased with the progress thus far and with the response which has been given to the program by our people.

Members of the committee are: H. S. Sanders, Chairman; W. Coffey, Jr., T. R. Whiteside, and Clay Fowler of Silverton; L. J. Bedwell, Gasoline, and Orin Stark, S. T. Bogan, E. G. Rice, E. W. Scheid and H. G. Gardiner, of Quitaque.

At the meeting Tuesday night T. R. Whiteside was named Chairman of the Silverton group and H. G. Gardiner for Quitaque.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Crass spent Monday in Tulia.

The Junior Class, as host, provided the program, which consisted mainly of a short play, "Annie Doesn't Live Here Any More."

OVER FOUR INCHES OF RAIN IN MONTH OF MAY

As we go to press, Raymond Bomar, weather observer, sends word that the .37 inch dashing rain Thursday morning had brought the weeks total to 1.56 inches. Gauge readings taken each morning showed, Tuesday, .70; Wednesday, .49; and Thursday, .37. This morning's shower lifted the total for May to 4.18 inches of rainfall. Nearly ten inches have been recorded for the current year of 1941, 9.31 inches, to be exact, and by nightfall the total may be more, for skies are heavy with murky clouds that need only a hint this spring, to drop a painful of water.

Farmers are already having visions of cutting wheat with binders, scythes and sleds. Should the heavy rains continue on till wheat cutting time, those conditions will most certainly exist, for the earth is soaked to greater depth than in a decade.

The optimists are vying with the pessimists for the floor in giving opinions on the effect of the unusual rains on the standing wheat. The pessimists say that already rust has hit the stem of the wheat and that a few more days will see it falling. The optimists, which outnumber the pessimists three to one, say that the rust is disappearing and that a couple of weeks of dry weather before harvest will produce the most bountiful harvest in history.

Wheat over the plains section of the country is uniform. There just aren't any "sorry" fields. Heads are long and in the early wheat grain is practically made.

There may be a problem of how to harvest . . . but the general opinion is that Briscoe County is in for the greatest wheat crop in history. Implement dealers are warning that combines, even used ones, are hard to get, and for farmers to get their orders placed at the earliest moment.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Roberson visited Mr. and Mrs. O. B. La France in Olton Monday.

AUXILIARY MEETS WITH MRS. GORDON ALEXANDER

On Monday afternoon the women of the Presbyterian Auxiliary met at the inviting country home of Mrs. Gordon Alexander, where Mrs. Sid Richards was a delightful hostess for the social afternoon.

Thimbles, needles and happy conversation flashed back and forth as the members made tea towels for the Amarillo Childrens Home. In a short business session Mrs. Richards, Chairman, presided. Roll call was answered as usual with Bible verses. Mrs. D. T. Narthcutt gave the Secretary-Treasurer's report; and plans for helping provide new Sunday school room were discussed.

Mrs. Richards served a picnic-repast of "weiners", buns, pickles, coffee and also cake.

Several kinds of greeting cards have been left with Mrs. Bundy to sell. Fifteen tea-towels were hemmed or embroidered for the Childrens Home. This was the last meeting of this season, and will take up again in the fall.

Mrs. Frank Haveran and Mrs. Joe Mercer were Amarillo visitors Monday.

Mrs. Molly Bomar is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Bill Shives of Tulia this week.

Mrs. Healy's mother passed away Tuesday, at her home near McKinney, Texas.

GARDEN CLUB TO SERVE DINNER MAY 30th

Everyone come out and eat with the Garden club and help them with their wonderful work.

PEELER AND REDIN TO REPRESENT SILVERTON AT LIONS INTERNATIONAL

For several months the Silverton Lions have conducted an attendance contest and the winners Wednesday were found to be Alvin Redin and Jeff Peeler. Both these Lions had a perfect attendance record.

A large part of their expenses will be paid to the New Orleans convention in July. Money for the trip has been raised through fines of a dime assessed by the tail-twister.

Mrs. J. E. Wheelock had as her guest last week her sister Mrs. Albert E. Rhode of Tucumcari, New Mexico, and Mrs. Henry Williamson of Hereford and Mr. Howard Williams of El Paso.

Clyde Hutsell is getting a new Farmall-H and 15-foot McCormick Deering combine to take care of his wheat harvest this year. He made the deal with Tull Implement Co.

Farm Meeting

There will be held on Monday, May 27, 1941 at 8:30 P.M. in the Room at Silverton, Texas, a meeting of farmers to discuss Marketing Quota Referendum 1941, Wheat Loans, and future of wheat farmers. The farmer is urged to attend. Bring your neighbors. See your questions ready.

Wheat Quotas

The wheat marketing quota referendum May 31, wheat farmers will decide how they want to handle a supply of wheat big to last nearly two years. In the past, oversupply meant low prices for the farmer. In the early 30's wheat supply in this country exceeded a billion bushels, and the price went to the world level, which then approximately 35 cents per bushel. In 1940, supplies once more exceeded a billion bushels, as a result of war blockades and economic barriers which decreased our markets. Despite the fact the world market was depressed by an access of wheat in the exporting countries, the return to AAA program controls was double the world price.

The reason for this price support was the national farm program of the Department of Agriculture, including the wheat loan, acted as a prop to hold up wheat price in spite of large surpluses.

The prospective wheat supply for 1941 is nearly 1-1/4 billion bushels. The ever-normal granary is an export outlet for wheat and they were last year or in early 30's.

In such times, the Farm Program provides for an additional support, the marketing quota which is designed to bolster the wheat and the allotment, by limiting equitably the available wheat among wheat producers. These loans on an uncontrolled wheat surplus are an unwarranted risk of public money. Federal legislation prohibits loans when quotas are not approved in referendum.

The ballot which Americans are used to determine national policies will be used by farmers May 31 to decide important economic policy. On May 31, wheat farmers of Briscoe County will join with wheat farmers throughout the Nation in deciding whether or not to have marketing quotas.

Each wheat community in the county will have its polling place and three local wheat farmers will be in charge of the referendum. They are responsible for posting the notices of the referendum for seeing that each eligible voter has the opportunity to vote in secret.

When the voting is concluded, the counting of the ballots will be public, when the Briscoe County results have been compiled they will be sent to the State Office. National results will be compiled by the Department of Agriculture in Washington, D. C.

All farmers affected by the quota may cast a vote. Each farmer should find out from his community or county committee whether he is eligible. I two-thirds of the farmers voting approve, the quota will become effective.

The defense emergency makes the referendum question all the more important. While the present program calls for a 100-million bushel reserve, it also needs the provision for handling the wheat supply so that wheat prices will not be depressed. This is done by storing the surplus and dividing the available wheat equitably. Whether this is done will be decided by the farmers voting in the referendum May 31.

Aulton Durham entertained the L.T.D. Club Tuesday afternoon. Only six members were present because of bad weather. Mrs. Duward Brown received the chess box. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Ware Fogerson.

ADVISING CHRISTIAN

PETER'S VISION

TEXT—Acts 11:5-18.
Peter opened his mouth and said, "A truth I perceive: God is no respecter of persons."

The argument for Christian baptism (Henry Drummond) presented just such a case when, early in the history of Christianity, there arose a question regarding his baptism. Peter, instead of applying the apostolic authority or his position, simply related to the man's situation.

"BREAD 'N' BUTTER"

Those new loaves of white bread featured on grocery store counters and in bakeries everywhere these days look just like the loaves of white bread you have been buying for years. But they're different—they've been "vitalized."

"How?" you ask. Through the use of enriched flour—a wheat flour which contains added vitamins and minerals.

It was the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States department of agriculture which suggested, when flour standards here were under discussion, that fortified flour should contain a specified amount of vitamin B1 and of iron, and that nicotinic acid, riboflavin and calcium should be added.

Because American diets lack chiefly B-vitamins and iron, the accent was placed here. The law is that each pound of Enriched Flour must contain at least 1.66 milligrams of thiamin (B1); 6.15 milligrams of nicotinic acid (pellagra-preventing vitamin); and 6.15 milligrams of iron.

So, now in addition to being the most versatile and economical energy-yielding food, bread also provides, in economical form, additional nutrients essential to health.

And, since bread is the one food that probably appears more often than any other on the family menu, I'm going to give you a variety of new and interesting uses for this "health food."

A good sharp knife, a loaf of good baker's bread and your imagination will do wonders in developing, in your own kitchen, delicious creations that make your menus full of new life and interest.

Bread Butters.

Remove the crusts from a loaf of uncut bread. Cut lengthwise slices from the loaf. Trim the slices so that they are about 1 1/2 inches wide and the ends pointed. Brush with an egg and milk mixture and arrange in baking pans. It is best to brush the tips with a little melted butter so that they will brown more readily. Bake the bread butters in a moderate oven until they are delicately browned.

Pinwheel Sandwiches.

Trim the crusts from a whole loaf of uncut bread; cut in lengthwise slices. Spread the slices with any desired spread of a creamy consistency. Roll the bread firmly the narrow way. Small stuffed olives, nut meats or hard cooked eggs make an attractive center for the roll. The rolls should be tightly wrapped in waxed paper and chilled in the refrigerator before slicing.

Croustades.

Trim crusts from two or three slices of bread, making even-size squares. Remove the centers from

LYNN SAYS:

Do your menus meet nutritive requirements, and appetite appeal, too? Careful, now. Here are 10 points on which to check your meals for appetite appeal:

1. Avoid repeating the same food in one meal.
2. Avoid serving more than one strongly flavored or highly seasoned food in a meal.
3. Avoid using too much of one type of food in a meal—such as spaghetti as a main dish and rice pudding for dessert.
4. Use as much texture contrast as possible—have some soft, some solid, and some crisp food in each meal.
5. Get flavor balance in your menu by serving some sweet, some bland, and some acid foods each meal.
6. Serve some hot and some cold foods each meal.
7. Serve foods whose colors look well together and avoid serving colorless foods in one meal.
8. Try to get contrast in size and shape in the foods served.
9. Serve leftovers in a new form.
10. Avoid serving the same food combinations too often. Serve some other tart fruit with your pork, instead of the stand-by applesauce.

It's Picnic Time

Has winter made you forget the wonderful, carefree afternoons spent along sparkling streams or in sunny meadows, munching hot dogs, dipping into baked beans and ice cream? It's time to plan Sunday excursions and be lazy by eating off paper plates, with paper forks. And next week Lynn Chambers will delve into picnic atmosphere. Watch for her recipes of good things to eat out-of-doors!

all but one slice. Dip in melted butter, and put together to form square cases for creamed food.

Bread Patty Cases.

Cut three rounds of sliced bread. Cut holes in two of them and place on the first slice. Brush with a mixture of egg and milk (1 egg slightly beaten plus 1/4 cup of milk) and bake in a moderate oven until brown.

Checkerboard Sandwiches.

Remove the crusts and spread the slices with soft butter, and any sandwich spread of paste consistency. Then, alternating the slices, make two stacks of three slices each—one with a whole wheat slice between two white slices and the other with a white slice between two whole wheat slices. Next, cut the two stacks into half-inch slices. Spread with soft butter and another spread, and alternate them again, making stacks of three-layer slices each. Press the stacks together, wrap each in wax paper and place in icebox to harden the butter. When ready to serve, cut crosswise into thin slices to give the checkerboard effect.

Ribbon Sandwiches.

Remove the crusts from four slices of bread, two white and two whole wheat. Put them together with different fillings, wrap in waxed paper and chill. Cut down through the four layers in thin slices to form a ribbon sandwich.

Try these tricks very soon, won't you? You'll receive no end of compliments on your ability to prepare these tasty and attractive "bread delights." They are pictured at the top of the column.

If you're weary of serving the usual type of sandwiches when you entertain, here are "fillers" that will bring such phrases as "May I have your recipe?" from fascinated guests.

Egg Filling.

4 hard cooked eggs
1/4 cup chopped cooked bacon or 1/4 cup stuffed olives
Few drops Worcestershire sauce
Cream or salad dressing
Chop eggs, add bacon and Worcestershire sauce. Add enough cream or dressing to give a spreading consistency.

Ripe Olive Filling.

Use one cup ripe olives, minced; one cup finely diced celery; 1/4 cup minced nut meats, and salad dressing to taste. Combine olives, celery and nutmeats and moisten with dressing, then spread on bread.

Sandwich Loaf.

Trim crusts from a sandwich loaf of bread and cut in four lengthwise slices. Spread each slice with softened butter. For the three different fillings necessary, use any good combinations of flavor and color, such as minced ham and pickle, a yellow cheese mixed with finely-chopped green pepper, chives, parsley or watercress, and chopped tomatoes and cucumbers, or a tuna or salmon mixture. Each of these fillings should be mixed with mayonnaise or softened butter so that it spreads easily. The loaf may be made several hours ahead of time if wrapped in waxed paper and kept in a cool place. Prior to serving, it is iced on top, sides and ends with cream cheese softened to spreading with water, milk or mayonnaise. Garnish with slices of stuffed olive, sprigs of parsley or endive. For serving, cut in thick slices. This loaf will serve 10 to 12 persons.

MARCH OF TIME camera-men went on a long and perilous voyage to film some of the material used in "Crisis in the Atlantic"—they went from Canada to England aboard a tanker in convoy. The film also includes the first pictures to arrive here from Greenland since that strategic island has become so important.

"Crisis in the Atlantic" vividly portrays the many aspects of the struggle to keep the sea lanes open so that war materials and food can be sent to Britain, and depicts as well the joint U. S.-Canadian defense efforts involving bases from the Arctic to the South Atlantic. It's a film scoop; don't miss it!

Brian Donlevy has been spending a lot of time learning to do something that will be quite useless in private life. In "The Great Man's Lady," a Paramount production, he plays the part of a professional gambler, a master hand at cheating. And what makes it all the more painful is the fact that Donlevy has an abhorrence of all card games, even the game of Authors.

Brian Donlevy

Bette Davis is at it again, playing one of the most unpleasant women ever seen on the screen. It's for "The Little Foxes," RKO's screen version of the tremendously successful play. It was RKO, you may recall, that set Miss Davis squarely on her feet, dramatically, by casting her as the heroine of "Of Human Bondage"—a role few actresses would have had the courage to take. She took it, and made movie history.

Anna Neagle does an entire dance number while submerged in a glass tank filled with water in her new picture, "Sunny." Back in England she won medals for swimming and diving, so she got into a scanty sequin costume and combined her talents as a swimmer and a dancer. The story's laid in New Orleans during the Mardi Gras, and Ray Bolger and John Carroll head the supporting cast. The under-water dance is a stunt new to pictures—new, as well, to Miss Neagle, we might add.

At the age of 97 Bob Hope's grandfather is helping to extinguish incendiary fires in the English village where he lives. "My health at present is much better than my disposition," he wrote his grandson. "I don't mind staying up at night to see your pictures, but I hate to have to miss my sleep just to put out some fires."

Meanwhile Bob is slated to do another of those hilarious comedies with Paulette Goddard; it's called "The Murder Farm," and sounds as if it might even top "The Cat and the Canary" and "The Ghost Breakers," their previous collaborations.

Agnes Moorehead, who plays the mother in Orson Welles' remarkable "Citizen Kane," first encountered Welles when he was five and she was not much older. He strolled into a hotel lobby with his father, describing a concert which he had just heard, and doing it so dramatically that she never forgot him. She makes her film debut in "Citizen Kane," and gives a beautiful, sincere performance. In fact, the whole cast does that—you forget that the people on the screen are acting, because they seem so real.

Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor didn't tell even their best friends that they were going off on that West Indies cruise; waited until just before the boat sailed to send telegrams announcing their plans. It's their first vacation together in 18 months, and their second trip together since they were married three years ago. They sailed as Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Brugh, hoping to avoid advance plans for ovations at their various ports of call.

ODDS AND ENDS—Warner Brothers drafted college students to man the guns in "Dive Bomber" and "The Flight Patrol"—the army draft left a shortage in the ranks of extras. "Robin Hood" is going to be a Republic serial, with Roy Rogers in the title role. Robert Cummings will be Deanna Durbin's leading man in "Almost an Angel." Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy are beginning their fifth year with that coffee program—and when they started Bergen wasn't at all sure that he could turn out a script a week. "The Pause That Refreshes on the Air" has been renewed for another 36 weeks.

Even Court Ruling Couldn't Make Absent Plaintiff Talk

"I understand that you called on the complainant. Is that so?" demanded a browbeating barrister of a man he was cross-examining. "Yes," replied the witness. "What did he say?" "Counsel for the other side objected that evidence as to a conversation was not admissible, and half an hour's argument ensued. Then the court retired to consider the point, announcing some time later that they deemed the question a proper one. "Well, what did the plaintiff say?" repeated the cross-examining attorney. "He wasn't at home, sir!" was the answer.

Two Escapes

At each minute we are obliterated by the idea and the sensation of time. And there are only two ways of escape from this nightmare, of forgetting it: pleasure and work. Pleasure amuses us. Work fortifies us. Let us choose.—Baudelaire.

WANTED: a bank in Silverton by harvest time. (signed) tf
—SILVERTON COMMUNITY

WEATHER — silly looking stuff, isn't it?

I ASKED BILL Hardin whether he had raised or lowered his conservative estimate of 70 bushels.
He didn't know which to say.
Rusty (Criminality) Arnold was standing there and said he could go to the edge of the field now and tell within two bushels of what the wheat would make. He went on to say, "why I guess that among estimators, I am the best.
Why back there in the Hoover depression when grub was so hard to get, I got so I could look at a jackrabbit track and tell how many bowls of chili I could get out of him."

THERE ARE plenty of notions being explained on just what the rain this week is doing to the wheat. Some say it is being rusted out but most of the boys think that if the last of the week turns off dry, that the wheat will have a little of the leaf rust washed off and will do all the better. Really and truly, the only thing that can knock out this wheat now is hail.
The rust talk, and the bugs are just a couple of those deaths that a good crop must die before it makes good.

MISTER DEEN and the bootleggers have the prescription liquor law fixed up now to suit them. Deen has satisfied himself that he has played the part of a good man. The bootleggers are already laying in their stocks, and M. K. and Jake are getting their legs limbered up to do a lot of chasing. The thing was wrong the way it was . . . everything connected with whiskey is wrong . . .
but as long as there are people there will be liquor, and a good way and a bad way to handle it.
The bootleg way is the wrong way and I venture to say that within a year court records will verify that statement.

AS LONG AS the U. S. and Texas are wet, there is only one way that liquor should be handled --- through government package stores. That store's only stock of goods will be liquor. When a man went in and came out with a package, he would admittedly be buying liquor, and liquor sales would drop. They would drop because some folks don't want other folks to know they are buying it.

They would drop too, because there would be no risk or thrill to buying it that way --- and because human nature is just human nature.

PEELER, IN A short talk at Lions Club Wednesday noon, gave this definition of a confirmed bachelor: "A man who thinks that, the only justifiable marriage is the one that produced him."

UNCLE SAM IS going at this defense bond business in a little different way than he did in the first World War. Then they concentrated drives, and by one means or another, THEY SOLD bonds. They sold them whether you wanted them or not. If a man didn't buy, he was a pro-German and a slacker until he did. Many folks were bull dozed into buying far more than they could afford.

THIS TIME THE thing is being left up to us individually to buy.
The government is trying to impress upon its people a system of savings---regular amounts. The drive for bonds thus far, is being carried out with that idea. Save systematically for yourself, and by helping yourself you will be doing your country a great service.

IF IT CAN be avoided, there is to be no high power salesmanship, no "gangster" methods employed in selling these stamps. If we each do a little now, the idea will work.

If we don't, then sooner or later we are going to almost be forced to buy bonds, whether we like it or not. Surely, we as Americans, should do this for our country or rather, do it for ourselves. That all amounts to the same thing the in this land. That is why this is America, and why the country is worth fighting for, and worth buying bonds for.

IT ISN'T LONG until the Dollar Bargain rate on the Briscoe County News -- only this year it is going to be a Dollar and a quarter bargain rate. That extra 25c will mean a nice little wad for me, and from the way paper bills have been running I sure need it.
After the Bargain Days are over,
the price of this paper will be $2.00 per year, instead of $1.50.
Watch for the dates of the special offer.

WHEAT LOAN IS ISSUE IN REFERENDUM

The big issue in the wheat marketing quota referendum, aside from the new question whether wheat growers will use quotas, is that no government loan will be offered unless quotas are approved.

That's what Jess H. Watson, himself a wheat grower, is telling AA county committeemen and workers in a series of meetings over the state. Watson, formerly a member of the state AAA committee, now is connected with the Southern Division of the AAA in Washington. He still operates his wheat farm in Young County.

"I don't hesitate to predict that without quotas and without a loan, we may sell our wheat for the lowest price in history," Watson said. "In some sections of the country farmers would, no doubt, experience difficulty of selling their wheat at any price."

The speaker pointed out that good business on the part of the government prevented the offer of a loan with uncontrolled surpluses, such as would be the case with wheat if quotas are rejected. The loan will be made available of quotas are approved, he said.

This is the first time growers have been given portunity to vote upon selves further protection of incomes through marketing as, Watson pointed out.

THE RECORD... Facts That Concern You

No. 29 of a Series

It's always the SORE thumb that sticks out...

Odd, isn't it---the way everybody notices
the sore thumb?

It's the same way with the retailing of beer. Everybody knows about the one undesirable place...everybody seems to forget about the thousands of worthwhile retailers who operate clean, decent, law-abiding establishments.

To protect the good name of beer, we of the beer industry want the few... but noticeable... "black sheep" retailers eliminated.

That's not all. Such retailers endanger an industry that brings important economic benefits to the community. Right here in Texas beer provides employment for 31,165 persons, supports an annual payroll of $22,076,182 and contributed $2,273,968.64 last year in state taxes.

This state, too, has an important stake in the beer industry's purchases---for materials, equipment, and services--- from more than 100 other industries.

You can help us protect these benefits in two ways---by (1) patronizing only the law-abiding places where beer is sold and (2) by reporting any irregularities you may observe to the duly constituted authorities.

PROPER NUTRITION BASIS
OF HEALTH

"The importance of 'feeding for fitness' as a part of the national defense program cannot be over-emphasized because proper nutrition is the basis of health and physical fitness," states Dr. George W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"America is beginning to realize that intelligent selection of the proper foods necessary to maintain optimum health is more important than merely eating food without regard to its nutritive qualities.

"In a comparative study made on the health of school children in two widely separated districts -- one in an agricultural community and the other in an industrial area, a large percentage of the children from the farming sections were found to be malnourished, while those from the industrial area were in better shape physically.

"Although milk and other dairy products, fruits, and fresh vegetables -- all of which are essential to a well-balanced dietary, were readily available in the farming sections, the children had been allowed to indulge their preferences for less familiar and less nourishing foods, with the results already mentioned above.

"Certain factors that affect nutrition -- and not all of them apply to food -- must be given consideration in 'feeding for fitness.' The State Health Department would stress the importance of the following:

"First, the diet must be adequate; it should include on a day-

BOYS' BASKETBALL

After easily winning the Matador Tournament the Owls were defeated in the District Meet by Quail after Rex Douglas and Jack Burleson were laid out because of illness. Grady Martin was high-point of the season with 560 points; Douglas was second with 185; Burleson, 172; Guinn Williamson, 98; and Bonds, 94; making a total of 1109 points to 590 for the opposition, the Owls winning 22 games played. Silverton, outscored such teams as Carey, Plainview, Floydada, Lockney, Hollis and Altus, Oklahoma. Bonds a forward, is the only one of the first five returning next year.

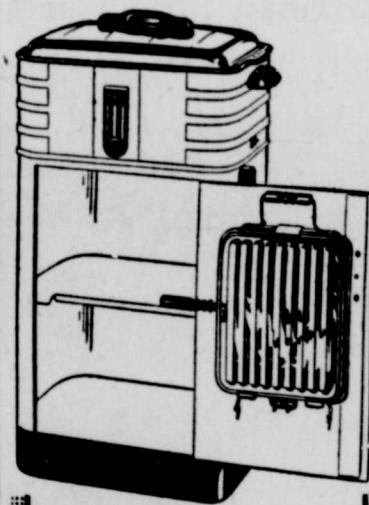

A word about our basketball Coach, which the boys think is the best basketball coach that has ever been in Silverton. He lead the boys to many a victory by good psychology by telling the boys how to play a team and get the results we wanted—which was victory. Coach King is new here and has made many friends in the short time he has been with us. The basketball boys are wishing him much success in the future and are sure he will lead other Silverton tams to many victories.

THE SMOKY YEARS

By ALAN LE MAY

W.N.U. Release

INSTALLMENT 6 THE STORY SO FAR:

King and Lew Gordon had built a string of ranches which stretched from Texas to Montana. King was a powerful and unscrupulous man, and his competitor, Ben Thorpe, Bill King's adopted son, undertook to break Thorpe's power. His first step was to start a cattle war in Texas. He made this decision against the opposition of Lew Gordon and the fearful pleading of his sweetheart, Jody Gordon. With the aid of Dry Camp Pierce and other outlaw gunmen, Roper conducted raid after raid upon Thorpe's herds. Cleve Tanner, manager of Thorpe's Texas holdings, seemed helpless to stop him. Gunmen drove off cattle by the thousands.

CHAPTER IX

With the fall, Lew Gordon, now in sole charge of the far-scattered cattle holdings he had shared with Dusty King, came to Texas to inspect the southern holdings of King-Gordon—the breeding ranges from which all the King-Gordon holdings drew their essential sustenance.

Reports kept coming to Bill Roper at his constantly shifting bases by way of the many riders who kept him in touch with his far-spread wild bunch. Inevitably he knew that Jody was at the headquarters of the old Two-Circle, not far from Uvalde. The Two-Circle had been the original Gordon stand; from this camp had been driven the first trail herd that Dusty King had pushed north.

Roper knew that she was there. Yet the fall dragged on, and November passed into December before he went to see her.

He had told himself that there was no use in his going to see Jody Gordon; but in the end, of course, he went.

He rode up to the Two-Circle ranch house in late afternoon of a cold

He pulled up his horse a few yards from the kitchen gallery.

December day. The sky was low and heavy, and the bitter north had brought a scud of hard snow a long way to throw it sharply in his face.

He pulled up his horse a few yards from the kitchen gallery, then sat there looking at the house, his sheepskin hunched about his throat. Even now, having come this far, he almost made up his mind to go away.

Then Jody Gordon stepped out on the gallery in a whipple woolen dress and stood estimating the uninvited horseman through the dusk. Something like the strike of a buffalo lance went through Bill Roper; it was so long since he had seen that one slim little figure that could so change everything under the sky, for him.

A split pole fence separated them; and after a moment she came across the few yards of space, leaning sideways against the bitter wind, and stood gripping a bar of the fence as she peered up into his face.

"I knew it was you," she said. "Child," said Bill Roper, "you get back in that house. You'll freeze!"

"Then you put up your horse and come in."

"Is your father here?"

"He's in San Antonio."

"I don't think he'd want me here, Jody."

"Lew Gordon has never turned away any rider without a cup of coffee; not yet."

He gave in then, and stepped down. He tied his horse to the fence, and followed her into the house.

The fire in the big wood range made the room a dazing contrast to the cold sweep of the prairie; he threw his coat open, but did not take it off.

"Of course," Jody said, "we keep hearing about you."

"That's too bad. I expect you wouldn't be hearing anything good."

"No."

Silence again. He didn't know why he had come; there wasn't anything he could say. He stood by the stove, his eyes brooding on the iron. Deep in the pockets of his coat there was a trembling in his slack fingers, not caused by cold. It was a strange and uncomfortable thing to be so near this girl again, and yet to be so far away.

"Still," Jody said, "you seem to be getting done what you set out to do."

"Sometimes it looks like I'm not even doing that."

"If you haven't accomplished anything else, you've astonished my father. He's said himself, over and over, he wouldn't have supposed it could be done. No question but what Cleve Tanner is shaken; he's shaken clear down to his roots. Nobody knows what's what any more, or what will happen. People who thought a year ago that Cleve Tanner was invincible—they're saying now that he's coming to the end of his string; that if this thing goes on, Tanner will be through."

"What else do they say?"

"They're saying that the worst renegades of the trail are working together, for the first time—the killers, the men who don't care if they live or die. They say they have money back of them now, and that even Cleve Tanner, with all his string of outfits, can't stand up against the everlasting raiding, and stampeding, and mysterious loss of cattle. They say he's lost twenty outfits, just because he couldn't spare the gunmen to hold the range."

"Eleven outfits," Roper said. "Then it was really you?"

"Those eleven outfits they speak of—those were outfits roughed away from little lonely men, on pretenses that hadn't any justice or any true law. Those outfits are back with their owners now."

"But—you admit your wild bunch is behind all this?"

"Call it that if you want to. I guess there isn't anybody knows as well as you do what I'm trying to do."

She said in a dead voice, "I never believed it; I couldn't believe it until now."

"Didn't I tell you about it? I told you about it before I began. I set out to break Cleve Tanner; and by God, he'll be broken—if I live."

"You know Cleve Tanner has put up five thousand dollars for your arrest?"

Bill Roper chuckled crazily. "All right. I'll put up ten thousand for his arrest. There isn't going to be any arrest, and he knows that, too."

"I can't believe it," she kept saying over and over. "I can't believe it even yet."

"You can't believe what?"

"That you're an outlaw—a wild bunch boss—thrown in with the ugliest killers this range has ever seen, or any range—"

He said ironically, "Don't hardly see how I could use second rate men."

"Reports have come in," Jody said wonderingly, "from over eight hundred miles of country; they're beginning to call it a rustlers' war, a final showdown between the wild bunch and lawful men. And you—"

"What about me?"

"Oh, Billy, it's unbearable! That you—you've turned yourself into the festering point of all that struggle, and hate, and lawless gunning—"

He had to grin at that, unhappy as he was. "Didn't realize I was festering," he said.

"You had everything," she said, "and you threw it away . . ."

He had only heard her say that once before; but, in memory, he had heard it so often since that her words had the ring of a familiar song.

"I'm sorry that we can't ever see things the same," Bill said. "I started out to get Cleve Tanner, and I'll get him. After Tanner, Walk Lasham; and after Walk Lasham, Ben Thorpe. But when it comes to saying I had everything before I started in, I guess maybe that isn't so."

Jody said hotly, "There wasn't one thing in all the world you didn't have—or couldn't have had—before you chose this crazy way!"

"I didn't have you," he told her. "If I had had you, I guess I would have you yet. Things don't shift and change so easy as that—not in the part of the world I know."

He was pulling on his gloves now, buttoning his sheepskin coat. In what was left of the light, the shadows lay heavy upon his face. As he stood there, he could have been Ben Thorpe, the man who had broken a hundred long and weary trails; except that Dusty King had perhaps never looked so old.

Her voice came to him as if from a distance. "And when you're through," she said, "what are you going to have left?"

"Far as I know," Bill Roper said, "I'm not going to have anything left now. God knows I've got very little left now. He was glad she didn't know how his resources had dwindled, how close to the end he really stood.

Her voice rose sharply. "Can't you see there's no hope in this you're chasing? Thorpe's grip is unbreakable." She came close to him, and her words came through her teeth. "It's your very life you're throwing away!"

Perhaps he misunderstood her then; for he grinned. "Maybe," he said, "that would be the least I could lose; the very least of all . . ."

GIVE AMERICANS THE FACTS

WE TALK ABOUT BILLIONS as we formerly talked about millions or even thousands, and not one of us, including the most intelligent of our public men, has any idea of what a billion really is. We talk about a 65 billion dollar debt, and none of us can visualize such a sum, or apply it to ourselves.

In an interview a short time ago, Joseph W. Martin, publisher of a small daily newspaper in Massachusetts, leader of the Republican minority in the house of representatives and national Republican chairman, interpreted that debt for us as individuals. He said it meant the individual's share in that debt—men, women and children—amounted to $493. For each family of five, the amount is $2,465. The annual interest charge each individual pays is $12.75, and for each family of five it is $63.75.

It is certainly time that governmental operations be interpreted so we average individuals—and that is practically all of the American people—can understand just what is going on.

Give the American people the facts so they can understand them, and the American philosophy of government will be maintained.

HONOR ALSO DUE TO CREATORS OF WEALTH

WE ERECT MONUMENTS and establish shrines to the memory of our distinguished scientists, soldiers, statesmen, musicians, artists, inventors, preachers and educators, but we have only condemnation for those Americans who have aided in creating our national wealth.

Col. John Jacob Astor and Commodore Vanderbilt, as representative of past generations, amassed great fortunes represented by new fields of endeavor that meant more jobs, a higher standard of living. When they died they had created remained for us to use. It was a part of the national wealth.

In the nearer past were such men as Cyrus McCormick, John D. Rockefeller, James J. Hill, Marshall Field, P. D. Armour and many others. Regardless of our opinions of them as individuals, they created wealth and opportunity that is today being shared and enjoyed by thousands of Americans.

We erect no monuments to them, but they contributed much to America. Today men have jobs, and their families live in comfort on the basis of an ever-increasing standard, because those men lived. They took nothing away with them. What they created, they left for posterity. Such men were the builders of our American industry, our American prosperity.

ORGANIC CHEMISTRY

THE LABORATORIES of American universities have accomplished many wonderful results in the way of scientific research. Our state universities especially should give greater attention to the field of organic chemistry. It offers a solution for the American farm problem. Through organic chemistry we can probably find many industrial uses for farm crops we are now producing, or find new crops which will fit into industry and which can be grown, instead of the continuous production of a surplus of present crops.

An expressed demand on our universities and the legislatures providing funds for their operation would undoubtedly tend to greater efforts along these lines and prove beneficial to American farmers.

THE AMERICAN workman should certainly have the opportunity of working without having to pay a gangster for the privilege.

CAUSE OF STRIKE

OUR STANDARD of living is determined by the national annual income. The income of the federal government from income and corporation taxes is from the same source. Whatever affects the national income directly or indirectly affects each of us.

Every strike in American plants reduces the annual national income. In his book, "The Dead Hand of Bureaucracy," Lawrence Sullivan, quoting from a congressional report, says the cost of each strike is $59.02 per man day. On that basis, the Ford strike, for example, involving 125,000 men for 10 days, took out of the national income $7,377,500 for each day, or a total of $73,775,000. That made a serious dent in our national income for 1941 and each one of us paid a part of it.

EFFICIENCY REQUIRED

THE MOST extravagantly operated business in this country is government. It is not to be expected that government can operate what is now privately operated business as efficiently as that business is being operated. Without that efficiency, we will destroy business, destroy our national wealth, reduce our individual incomes and our standard of living. To destroy business means putting all of us "on the rocks."

The Everglades—Once a Waste Now Center of Sugar Industry

This worker knows how to cut sugar cane.

A dozen years ago the Florida Everglades were barren and unproductive. Today they are the center of a sugar industry which provides more than 5,000 people with employment and which spent over a million and a half dollars in 1940 for materials purchased in 19 other states. The ten plantations of the United States Sugar corporation spread over thousands of acres of these glade lands. These photos show what goes on during the harvest season at Clewiston, Fla.

The girls at the left look very industrious, but they are only out for a frolic in the sugar cane.

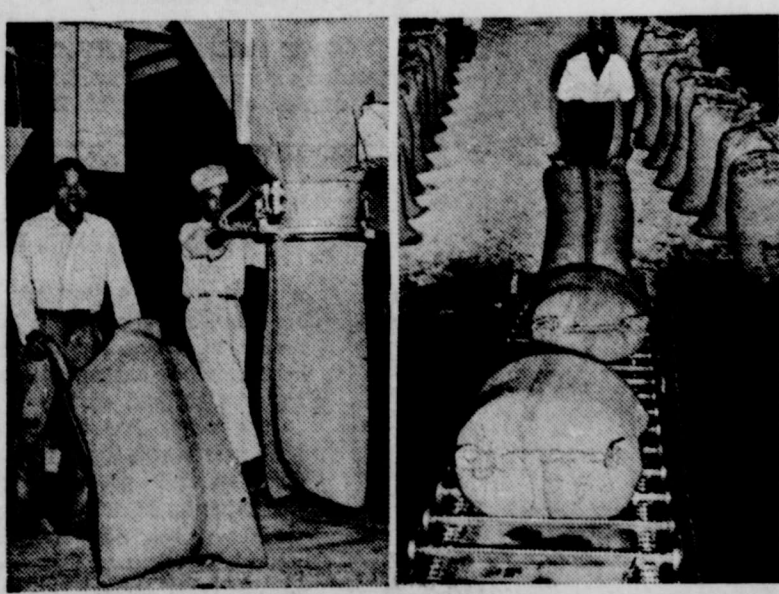

Picture Parade

As grown in the Everglades sugar cane is cut in the field, moved in tractor wagons to the railroad, and hauled by train to the raw sugar mill at Clewiston.

Right: The "Casey Jones of the Everglades" having a bit of fun sipping up the company locomotive.

The cars are locked to the rails and tilted. The cane is now on its way to become sugar. Planting is planned to provide cane which mature on a regular schedule during a six-month period.

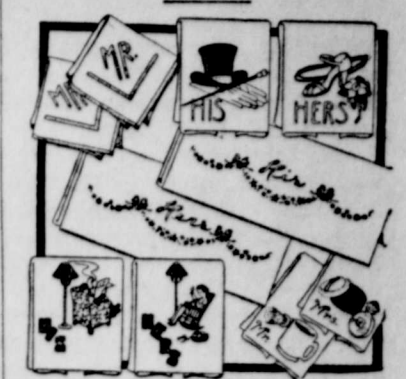

The raw sugar flows into sacks from automatic weighers, each sack getting the same amount of sugar when the boy releases a trigger.

The long journey starts. Up the escalator go the sacks to the freight cars, then to the refinery, where the raw sugar is refined into the white table product.

Harvest season in Florida's Everglades is a season of merry-making.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

HARMONY CLUB ENTERTAINS WITH MUSICAL

The Harmony Club entertained their friends with a Coffee and Musical Saturday morning May 17, at the home of Mrs. True Burson. Mrs. Gordon Alexander was co-hostess with Mrs. Burson.

Mrs. Roy Hahn gave a word of welcome and introduced Miss Wilson, who presented nine of her students in a short program. Lola Fern Foust gave several piano numbers. A violin duet and a choral number made up the program. The girls were presented gifts of note stationery from the Harmony Club.

The coffee table was lovely, being covered with a lace cloth and centered with a bowl of pink radianse rose. Mrs. Roy Hahn presided at the coffee service. The reception rooms were lovely with bouquets of iris and pink, red and yellow roses.

This is the last meeting of the club year. The new year will begin in September. The Club was very glad to welcome Mrs. Tony Burson as a new member.
