Airport may gain third new airline

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Trans World Airlines could be the third new addition to Midland Regional Airport this year with the announcement Thursday that it had been approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board to provide service here.

Approval by the CAB was revealed during a luncheon session with the City Council, city staff officials and the Airport Planning Board in the Racquet Club. The group had gathered to write out guidelines for the Airport Board. But they strayed from that onto the problems the city faces with additional air carriers and rapid growth of the area.

At this point, City Attorney Joe Nuessle piped up that he had received notice that Trans World Airlines had been approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board to provide service at Midland. The order becomes effective May 5, he added.

Later, he explained that TWA's applications for service to about 50 cities across the U.S. included Midland, Lubbock, Austin and Corpus Christi. Nuessle said TWA officials had mentioned plans for Midland to be a stop on the flights into Albuquerque and St. Louis.

IF AND WHEN TWA will fly into Midland is unclear as representatives of that airline haven't contacted the city concerning definite plans. In fact, the announcement that service had been approved was a surprise to the council and staff at the meeting.

Col. Wilson Banks, director of aviation for the city, said this morning "We don't know if TWA is serious. It wouldn't surprise me if they did come in with our growth here. There's a lot of people (airlines) looking at us...they want to get in on the action."

The city attorney pointed out that American Airlines is starting service at Midland Regional Airport on June 11 and Sun-Air, a Texas-wide carrier, plans to begin flying out of Midland in August.

Where ticket counters and maintenance space will be located at the Regional Airport to accommodate all these carriers is still a question. Banks said American Airlines has arranged with an existing carrier to share counter space. To his knowledge, Sun-Air hasn't made arrangements yet.

Service currently comes from Continental, Braniff, Texas International and Southwest. These airlines utilize all the counter space and the four Japan agrees to reduce its auto exports to U.S.

TOKYO (AP) — Japan agreed today to cut its auto exports to the United States by at least 140,000 cars in the first year of a two year voluntary cutback. The ceiling in the second year would depend on the recovery of the U.S. automakers.

International trade minister Rokusuke Tanaka said the cutback would represent a reduction of 7.7 percent from the 1.82 million cars sent to the United States last year. Exports in the second year would increase in proportion to any rise in U.S. car sales.

U.S. Special Trade Representative William Brock, completing two days of talks in Tokyo, said the Japanese plan is satisfactory and eliminates the chance that Congress will pass a protectionist bill putting stricter limits on shipments of Japanese cars.

He said the Japanese plan "would be far, far less than that proposed by legislation in Congress but would be adequate to the need for time for the domestic industry to retool and become competitive."

Brock refused to comment on the details of the agreement but said the major U.S. concern was not the figure itself but the continuity it provided.

The final agreement provides for a first-year ceiling that is slightly lower than one reportedly proposed by Tanaka in a meeting with Brock Thursday, but it extends the export curbs for an additional year.

"The question was not numbers — 100,000 units would not make any difference," Brock told a news conference today.

The cutback, however, is less than the amount U.S. trade sources close to the talks had said would be necessary to placate Congress.

The cutback plan disclosed by Ministry for International Trade and Industry officials would reduce Japan's auto shipments by 7.7 percent from the 1.82 million cars shipped last year to 1.68 million in the new fiscal year that started in April.

The voluntary Japanese limit on exports is expected to allow hard-pressed U.S. automakers to expand their sales and permit the ceiling to be raised in the second-year of the plan, possibly above the number of cars shipped in 1980.

The agreement would be reviewed after two years for possible extension for a third year, making it a shorter-term package than sources said the United States wanted. Those sources said U.S. negotiators had pressed for a firm, three-year package.

Japan's Kyodo News Service reported that Japanese automakers, who have resisted any reduction in car exports to the United States below last year's level, were angry about the government's plan.

Formation of 'alternative' high school announced

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

Officials of Permian Basin High School, Midland's first "alternative" school, hosted a news conference this morning to publicly announce the new private school slated to open Sept. 1.

Representing PBHS were Glen Walton, director, and Carol Ward, director of education. David Bowlin, director of the Alexander School in Dallas, also attended the session.

Permian Basin High School, located on the top floor of Building E at 3100 N. A St., is the third major alternative school in Texas and will offer grades 10-12. Other schools are located in Dallas and Houston.

Explaining the new school, Walton said, "By alternative, we mean exactly that. We offer our students an alternative to public schools and to other traditional types of private schools. But we do not stop there," he said. "We go a step further by offering the unique learning concept known as 'one to one' — one teacher to one student," he said.

"Additionally, we go a step beyond one-to-one learning," Walton continued. "We recognize that the brightest, most intellectual students can fail to meet their learning potential without sufficient motivation and stimulation.

"To accomplish this for each student enrolled in PBHS, we are providing a faculty whose individual members are competency tested," he explained. "In other words, our teachers, themselves well-educated, know how to teach. They embrace the theory and the practice of teacher accountability."

Walton, a certified reality therapist, is currently teaching a psychology course at Odessa College and has a background in public schools and college education. Prior to accepting his current position, Walton was in private practice in Midland for more than two years. He had been with the Texas Department of Human Resources for eight years as a case worker, child welfare supervisor and a staff development specialist.

Dedicated to a college preparatory curricula, PBHS is designed to stem the tide of functional illiteracy through a full academic program presented by qualified teachers to students wanting to learn, school officials said.

Displaying the 5,000-square-foot area of classrooms and offices yet to be completed in the new building, Walton explained the one-to-one concept more fully. PBHS students will attend a 45-minute class followed by a 45-minute study period. They will have another 45-minute class then another study period and so on throughout the day.

Similar to college class schedules, a student may have English and science on Mondays and Wednesdays with history, math and foreign language on Tuesdays and Thursdays. In this way, a student will have each scheduled class alone with the teacher, then will go to the study area under the supervision of one teacher with about 15 other students.

Although students will basically be going to school only four days a week with Fridays open for lab time and make-ups, Walton and Bowlin said this scheduling is actually more beneficial.

"We want every student and his or her parents to realize from the very beginning that Permian Basin High

IRA guerrilla feels his death near

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Jailed IRA guerrilla Bobby Sands believes he will be dead within 24 hours, a close aide said today after visiting Sands on the 62nd day of his hunger strike.

"He is in tremendous pain and has very little strength," said Owen Carron, who was Sands' manager in the April 9 voting which elected the guerrilla to the British Parliament.

"One eye is completely shut and he has very little vision in the other," said Carron. "He only recognized me by my voice."

Sands rejected another appeal earlier today to call off his hunger strike, and his supporters briefly occupied an office at the headquarters of the opposition Labor Party in London.

The appeal was made by the Labor Party's spokesman on Northern Ireland, Don Concannon, who visited Sands and three other guerrillas who are demanding reforms amounting to granting political prisoner status to Irish Republican Army inmates. The four rejected papal appeals earlier this week.

"I should think there is nothing anybody else can do, and no one can accede to their demands. He had quite a political argument with me for about a minute this morning," Concannon said after visiting Sands and the others at the Maze prison. He said Sands was mentally alert.

On Thursday, Britain accused the IRA of stirring a "calculated, cold-blooded" campaign of terror in the name of Sands, and today, Britain's foreign secretary, said the IRA was made up of "pure terrorists."

Frank Hughes, jailed with Sands, received the last rwtes of the Roman Catholic Church Thursday, and relatives said he was approaching death in the 46th day of his hunger strike. They said Hughes, 25, imprisoned for life for shooting a soldier, has difficulty speaking.

Two other guerrillas, Raymond McCreesh and Pat O'Hara, joined the hunger strike 40 days ago but visitors said their condition was not critical.

Last rites have already been administered twice to Sands, who was elected to the British Parliament last month while serving a 14-year sentence on gun charges.

Visitors to the Maze said the skeletal Sands, 27, jailed for possessing arms, has now lost all feeling in his gums and mouth while his body is racked by constant pain.

Sands' mother, Rosaleen, said after visiting the prison Thursday that her son was prepared to die and doctors must not interfere. Mrs. Sands said she promised her son she would not let doctors try to save him if he slips into a coma, unless the British government concedes to his demands.

In London, 10 Sands' supporters left peacefully after a 90-minute occupation of an office at Labor's headquarters today. No arrests were reported.

Police were summoned after the demonstrators barricaded themselves in and draped a red flag from the building to protest Labor's support for the Conservative government's refusal to yield to the hunger-strikers' demands.

Leaders of both the Labor and Liberal parties backed the Conservative government's refusal to make concessions that would allow jailed guerrillas to wear their own clothes, associate freely and do no prison work.

But 28 dissenting legislators signed a bill presented by Laborite Ernie Roberts urging negotiations on clothing and work.

Striking inmates threatened with disciplinary action

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — About 1,500 disgruntled inmates at the Ellis Unit of the Texas Department of Corrections must end their three-day-old strike today or face disciplinary action, prison officials say.

The striking inmates, who have demanded TDC Director W.J. Estelle resign, refused to work for a second day Thursday to protest the state's appeal of a federal prison reform order.

TDC spokesman Rick Hartley said about 600 inmates returned to work Thursday and the rest of the prisoners would be asked to return to their prison jobs today. No incidents have been reported during the work stoppage at the unit, which houses about 3,000 prisoners, Hartley said.

"They will be invited to go back to their jobs and if they continue to refuse there will be disciplinary action," Hartley said.

Hartley said striking inmates told TDC officials they want the state to drop its appeal of a federal court order to upgrade the Texas prison system. The order came as a result of a suit filed in 1972 by prison inmates.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice has ordered the state to reduce the prison population, to provide better medical care for inmates and to refrain from violating inmates' constitutional rights.

In addition, the inmates demanded Estelle and his entire staff be replaced and inmates involved in agricultural work be paid better wages.

Striking inmates work at the Ellis Unit farm, a bus repair shop, a wood working shop and a boot manufacturing shop, in addition to other areas. Hartley said work continued Thursday at all areas of the unit, including the prison farm.

Clements declares war against work furlough bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements has declared war against a Senate-passed prison work furlough bill that would allow inmates to live in private homes.

"I have said on many occasions that I am not going to agree to a work furlough program that enables our inmates to go home without proper security," Clements said shortly after the measure by Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, passed the Senate on voice vote Thursday.

Clements, who has endorsed another bill, told reporters he had talked with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton about Caperton's bill.

"We are together that we are not going to have a work furlough program without adequate security. We are not going to do that. You can forget it," Clements told reporters.

Attache says militants sheltered in Mexico

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Guatemalan guerrillas are using the dense forest in the mountains of southern Mexico as a staging area for raids into their native country, a Texas newspaper reported today.

The Corpus Christi Caller reported in a copyright story in its Friday editions that the anti-government guerrillas may have been operating out of southern Mexico for the last year.

Col. Mario Paiz, a Guatemalan military attache in Washington, told the newspaper that the guerrillas are armed with American weapons supplied by Vietnam and North Korea and shipped through Cuba, Nicaragua and Honduras.

He said "quite a few" Cuban advisers are in Guatemala working with about 1,000 guerrillas.

An official of the Mexican embassy in Washington, who asked not to be identified, told the newspaper that the anti-government Guatemalan guerrillas have crossed the border separating the two nations.

"We know that there have been cases of infiltration — people going in and out that appear to be guerrillas," said the Mexican embassy official.

But spokesmen for the Mexican government in Mexico City denied that guerrillas were operating from southern Mexico.

Paiz said the guerrillas find safety in Chiapas and receive strong support from the Mexicans in the border region.

"It is difficult to fight the guerrillas when they cross the border and we can't," Paiz said. "We have a lot of problem with that."

Guatemalan guerrilla activity is directed against the military government of Maj. General Romeo Lucas Garcia, who came to power in 1978. Guatemalans have lived under military governments since 1970.

Don Lyman, an official of the Mexican desk of the U.S. State Department, would not comment when asked whether Guatemalan guerrilla activity along the Mexican border included Cuban advisers.

"It's a particularly sensitive area," he said.

In the past month, the Mexican government moved troops into the border area for maneuvers, "instead of having them in the center of the republic," said the Mexican embassy official. He said the maneuvers "were conducted there to have a presence of troops and better guard the borders."

Paiz said the maneuvers began following a promise from the Mexican government to cooperate with Guatemala in suppressing guerrilla activity along the boarder.

The Mexican government billed the maneuvers as an effort to aid poor residents of Chiapas, an area of extensive oil reserves, Paiz said. But he scoffed at that explanation.

"Really, I believe they are trying to get control of the area," Paiz said. "They are afraid they will have some troubles on the Mexican side."

Paiz said he did not know whether the maneuvers were successful in routing the Guatemalan guerrillas from their Mexican sanctuaries.

INS head says Cuban status delayed

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The acting commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service says the Reagan administration is working rapidly to develop a policy on immigration status for Cuban refugees.

David Crosland said Thursday the INS has refused to grant permanent resident alien status to the 125,000 Cubans who arrived in the United States aboard the "Freedom Flotilla" last year until the policy review is completed.

The review is being performed by Reagan's inter-agency Task Force on Immigration, which is scheduled to deliver its report to the president on Monday, Crosland said.

Senate committee approves youth home legislation

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Despite concerns from church home officials and a senator who grew up in a private child-care facility, a Senate committee has approved a bill that would exempt some youth homes from Department of Human Resources rules.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, says facilities that handle only court-referred youth should be under Texas Youth Council rules. The Senate Human Services Committee on Thursday voted 6-0 to send the bill to the full Senate.

Brooks said TYC would enact "some minimum standards, but not as complicated as DHR's. ... The youth council is the appropriate agency to deal with troubled youth."

The TYC rules would deal with health and safety at the homes, but would not offer detailed rules such as set by DHR, Brooks said.

Methodist and Baptist home officials said Brooks' bill could erode state control over child-care facilities.

Tom Strother, an official with the Methodist Home for Children in Waco, called the measure "a step backwards. ... Lester Roloff and others would like to do away with the minimum standards of the state."

A state district judge recently ruled that Roloff, a Corpus Christi evangelist, does not need state licenses for his youth homes. The state is appealing the judge's decision.

House votes to raise parent's liability for kids' vandalism

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Parents whose youngsters are caught destroying property would be financially liable for up to $15,000 per act of vandalism under a bill advanced by the Texas House.

Representatives tentatively approved the bill on voice vote Thursday and could take final action today.

Existing law says parents' liability for an act of vandalism committed by a child between 12 and 18 is limited to $5,000. A recent Texas Supreme Court decision said there could be more than one "act" in a spree of vandalism, and the $5,000 limit applies to each act.

The House-approved bill raises the limit from $5,000 to $15,000 per act.

Representatives rejected amendments that would have raised the limit, to $20,000 and $25,000.

Sponsors of the amendments said a family's liability insurance contained in its homeowner's policy would cover up to $25,000 in damage.

"The only people who are going to squirm are the insurance companies, and won't that be sad," said Rep. Smith Gilley, D-Greenville, who offered the $20,000 amendment.

Rep. Frank Eikenburg, R-Plano, sponsor of the $25,000 amendment, said he wanted to "get the attention" of parents and did not think $100,000 worth of parental liability would be excessive.

He said too many parents don't keep track of their children's whereabouts.

Judge claims he's 'easiest in state'

CHICAGO (AP) — Judge Billy Jones says people call him "the easiest judge in the whole state."

Few would argue with that claim, coming from a judge who dismisses traffic cases at the rate of 300 an hour without a single conviction or fine. But the motorists who pack his courtroom don't get off scot-free.

"Now I want all of you to promise to do better," Jones told a courtroom throng. "Raise your right hands and repeat after me: 'I do hereby absolutely promise, now and in the future, not to park where I'm not supposed to park.'"

Jones, an associate judge from East St. Louis, Ill., on temporary assignment in Chicago, has been dispensing his down-home brand of justice this week in Cook County Circuit Court. Along with the folksy admonition to stay on the good side of the law, Jones includes a folksy warning.

"Well, I'm Judge Jones, easy judge," he said. "But I'm a visiting judge. May not be here next time. Next time you may come down here and get a hangin' judge. Or they'll swear out a warning and bring you in. Or they'll tow your car away. One of these days, the hammer's going to fall."

Jones has been a judge for 16 years, and says in that time he has learned that in a big city, being forced to take a day off work and come to court is usually punishment enough. He says his emphasis is on obeying "rules and regulations."

"Now listen, everbody," he thunders from the bench. "The sun rises in the east and sets in the west. Everything runs by rules and regulations. If it didn't, we'd have calamity.

"If I go up on the roof of this building and jump off, I'll break my neck.

"Ladies, if you eat too much candy and ice cream, you'll get fat. You can't violate the rule of calories."

Witness says money was to repay loan

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Liquor dealer Jack Ham says he gave former Gov. Ray Blanton $23,000 to help repay a bank loan Blanton had taken to purchase stock in an ill-fated oil venture — an amount that represented 20 percent of Ham's annual profits.

Ham, the government's chief witness in the federal kickback trial of Blanton and two aides, didn't appear in court Thursday because he is ill with skin and lung diseases. But videotaped recordings of his testimony were played to the U.S. District Court Jury.

Blanton, 1974 campaign manager Jim Allen and former special assistant Clyde Edd Hood Jr. are accused of splitting up Nashville liquor licenses among political supporters in exchange for 20 percent of package stores' profits. The three have pleaded innocent to extortion, mail fraud and conspiracy.

Ham testified that he gave Blanton the money while he was governor to pay part of a $38,000 loan Blanton owed. He said he refused to loan the former governor money after he was ousted from office three days early on Jan. 17, 1979.

Blanton was ushered from office by fellow Democrats after he pardoned three prisoners and granted executive clemencies to 49 inmates.

Ham, who said he contributed $1,000 to Blanton's gubernatorial campaign, said he never talked with Blanton about a liquor license during the race. But he said the $23,000 he gave to Blanton for the loan repayment represented 20 percent of his 1978 earnings.

Texas area forecast

West Texas: A chance of showers or thunderstorms in most sections through Saturday, with a cooling trend tonight. Highs in the upper 70s across the Panhandle to the low 90s in the Big Bend area. Lows in the mid 50s and mid 60s. Highs Saturday in the low 80s.

Strong chance for rain tonight

Evidently there weren't quite enough April showers for the May flowers last month as this month kicks off with a strong chance of rain and thunderstorms tonight and Saturday, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

A 60 percent chance of rain tonight will accompany a low in the upper 50s, with heavy rain predicted for tonight. Winds will be from the east at 10-15 mph this afternoon and tonight.

Saturday begins with a 40 percent chance of precipitation and southeasterly winds at 15-20 mph. High on Saturday will be near 80 degrees.

Thursday's high was 84 degrees — one degree warmer than the average high for the day of 83, but still below the record high set for the date in 1948 at 96 degrees.

This morning's low was 54 degrees — just about normal but warmer than the chilliest May Day in Midland, when the temperature dipped to 34 degrees in 1970.

Williams' Abscam jury tries again

NEW YORK (AP) — The federal jury considering bribery-conspiracy charges against U.S. Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. apparently is taking a long, second look at Williams' four days of testimony and his claim of entrapment by Abscam prosecutors.

The panel recessed late Thursday after 13 hours of discussing the nine-count indictment against the New Jersey Democrat and his co-defendant, Alexander Feinberg. The U.S. District Court panel deliberated four hours Wednesday.

The jury late Thursday requested a transcript of the senator's testimony. Before that, the eight-man, four-woman panel asked U.S. District Judge George C. Pratt for an extensive explanation of the law governing entrapment.

Williams, 61, and Feinberg, a 72-year-old lawyer from Cherry Hill, N.J., are accused in connection with the senator's alleged acceptance of a free, hidden 18 percent share in a Virginia titanium mine in return for Williams' help in getting military contracts for the mine. A ficticious "Arab sheik" was supposed to bankroll the venture with a $100 million loan.

The government contended that Williams and Feinberg each expected to make $12.6 million by reselling the mine.

Specifically, the defendants were charged with one count of conspiracy and two counts each of bribery, conflict of interest, receiving an unlawful gratuity and interstate travel in aid of a racketeering enterprise.

Bribery, the most serious of the charges, carries a maximum prison sentence of 15 years.

Six other members of Congress, only one of whom won re-election in November, were convicted of Abscam charges. They were former Reps. Michael Meyers, D-Pa.; John Jenrette, D-S.C.; John Murphy, D-N.Y.; Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J.; Raymond Lederer, D-Pa., and Richard Kelly, R-Fla.

Lederer was re-elected but resigned his seat effective next Tuesday.

In the entrapment note to the judge, jury foreman Ralph Monaco, a self-employed burglar alarm installer, asked:

"Would you kindly explain the legal guidelines of a scam operation? At what point do the practices and methods used in a scam operation become entrapment? Does entrapment have to be established from day one or can it be established further along in the operation?"

Pratt told the panel the question of whether techniques used in the government's Abscam probe were legal should not be conspdered.

TWA reveals CAB approval for flights from Midland area jetways.

Passenger boardings at the Regional Airport have exceeded the 1985 expectations listed in a 20-year master plan, the group was informed. Airport board chairman Ed Vogler expects the boardings to accelerate at a faster pace as more new high-rise offices sprout in Midland.

Combine those fast-rising boarding figures with additional air carriers and this brings up the problem, said Nuessle, of "do you build a new terminal area."

Expansions at the Terminal building probably are in the not-to-distant future, the group agreed. Nuessle said the Airport Board could be used to support the City Council in such efforts.

THE RAPID GROWTH of Midland and the surrounding area also has elicited an unusual request from the city — approval to build heliports on top of certain high-rise office buildings, according to the group.

After doing hours of research on heliports in other cities, Airport Board member Bobby Holt said he supports the request. "They're good for evacuation procedures. Fort Worth is trying to encourage heliports. Helicopters could be very important to this community."

He recommended the city establish guidelines first and limit the number of heliports, or rather helistops.

Neither Lubbock nor El Paso — both of which are much larger than Midland — has been asked to approve heliports, he noted.

The request under study by Midland officials would be to locate the helistop on top of the BTA building. A similar request for the Paragon building was rejected by the Federal Aviation Administration, said one city official.

HOLT SAID THESE heliports could enable geologists to fly out and check on sites, such as 100 miles away, and be back at work in the office that afternoon. "This would eliminate driving all day."

The problem facing the city on the issue of heliports is that no one knows who should have the deciding hand in the matter — City Council, FAA, Airport Board or no one.

"The FAA doesn't have much to regulate heliports right now," said Banks. He has looked at ordinances in other cities governing heliports and has drawn up two for consideration. These are being studied by the city planning department, he said.

In opening the meeting, Mayor G. Thane Akins explained that the primary intent of the Airport Board when it was established was to deal with the planning and development of industrial land around the airport. The ability to make recommendations to the City Council was added almost as an afterthought, he said.

"That doesn't regard the problem we face today of helicopters," Vogler said.

"Until we get some guidelines from the FAA, I don't know if heliports are any of our business," added Rusty Buckingham, another member of the Airport Board.

Banks agreed that specific duties of the Airport Board "has been a gray area." In recent years, Banks said he has brought more items to the board than in past years. And there have been times he has bypassed that panel and gone straight to the City Council when he needed a decision quickly.

Recently, the airport board has been included on decisions involving fixed base operators, said Banks. But he was doubtful about bringing other interests, such as rental cars and airlines, before the board.

AFTER SEVERAL ROUNDS of discussion, Airport Board members concluded they didn't want to become involved in the day-to-day operations of the airports — that was Banks's job.

At one point, the mayor interjected that the original duties for the board were intended to apply only to the land around the Regional Airport, not Air Park.

Holt said the "Air Park and airport growth have been phenomenal recently. We (Airport Board) would like to be involved in all airport problems. If you draw up some guidelines, we'll have some continuity."

The group selected a committee comprised of representatives of the council, Airport Board and city staff to delineate duties of the board.

Cinco de Mayo celebration set

The public has been invited to participate in Midland's Cinco de Mayo celebrations to be held Saturday.

Cinco de Mayo (the fifth of May) is a Mexican national holiday celebrating the Battle of Puebla on May 5, 1862, when Mexican troops defeated the invading French forces of Napoleon III.

Midland's celebration, sponsored by the Eastside Lions Club, will begin with a fiesta at 3 p.m. Saturday at Rancho Grande Club, Scharbauer Drive and Lamesa Road. Ramon Ayala, a movie star and television personality from Mexico, will appear, as will the musical group Los Rebeles.

The festivities will conclude with a party from 6:30 p.m. Saturday to 2 a.m. Sunday at Las Palmas, 1140 S. County Road.

Reagan turns up lobbying heat

WASHINGTON (AP) — With party invitations, phone calls and cufflinks, President Reagan is turning up the lobbying heat on wavering Democrats and Republicans as the House debates his economic program amid a GOP claim that he already has the votes to win.

In return, the chief House budget writer is telling defecting Democrats they won't be able to come back for more money for their own districts later if they help pass Reagan's proposed budget cuts now.

"The lobbying is unbelievable," said Rep. Carroll Hubbard Jr., D-Ky., one of 47 conservative Democrats being wooed by Reagan and Republican leaders.

"I realized how big the lobbying was when I got a telephone call from the president (in early March) and he talked for so long that I had to say, 'I know how busy you are and must get off the phone.' Even my brother in Louisville doesn't talk that long," Hubbard said.

As the House kicked off budget debate Thursday, the president also launched a series of meetings that one White House aide said would bring as many as two dozen Republicans and Democrats into the Oval Office to meet with Reagan before a showdown vote expected next week.

House debate was continuing today, as were Reagan's meetings with House members.

House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois said Thursday, meanwhile, that he's convinced Reagan already has the battle won.

But to make sure outnumbered Republicans vote as a block, Reagan is holding a series of one-on-one chats with GOP members described by Michel as being of a "little bit more liberal persuasion" and possibly wavering.

Rep. Bill Green of New York, one of the Republicans who met with Reagan on Thursday, said "we from the Northeastern states were being locked out of the process" while GOP leaders were wooing conservative Democrats.

Another White House guest Thursday, Republican Rep. Harold C. Hollenbeck of New Jersey, said he pointed out to Reagan that if the group's concerns are not heard, it would have no choice but "to begin to deal with the Democrats."

Green said Reagan was "a good listener," and the congressman displayed a set of presidential cufflinks given to him to commemorate the visit.

"The cufflinks don't buy my decision," Green added.

Michel said about 35 conservative Democrats have indicated support for the administration budget and estimated only three GOP defections "at the most."

If correct, that would wipe out the Democrats' 52-vote majority.

Asked if he were absolutely certain Reagan would have the votes to win, Michel said, "That's the way I've got it figured."

Faced with growing Republican confidence, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said Thursday that a Democratic alternative budget may be rallying and Rep. James Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, added: "Neither side has the votes yet."

O'Neill said many Democrats are beginning to have second thoughts about backing the president's plan because of the impact it would have on their constituencies. "It's suddenly hitting home out there," the Massachusetts Democrat said.

Jones indicated he would hold members' feet to the fire by enforcing spending-cut decisions in the final budget resolution, which sets guidelines for individual committees which will write tax and appropriations bills later in the year.

Demos counter Reagan, appealing to middle class

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats, trying to counter President Reagan's speech to Congress this week, are asking the nation's middle class to believe his budget and tax cuts will help the rich but not the average American.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright told the nation Thursday night that a vote for Reagan's budget plan was — in effect — a vote for a tax cut that would give a $4,000 tax break to a family of four making $100,000 a year.

At the same time, the Texas Democrat said, the Reagan approach for three years of a 10 percent across-the-board tax cut each year would reduce by only $40 the amount of taxes paid by a family of four making $10,000 annually.

"If we adopt the president's (budget) plan...we are adopting the basic Kemp-Roth tax approach," Wright said in a televised response on ABC to Reagan's Tuesday night speech to Congress.

"We think the average American, the American of middle income, is entitled to have some recompense for the increases that have occurred, for example, in his Social Security taxes," he said.

Wright, chosen by Democratic leaders to make the response, acknowledged there is no direct link between the budget vote and the votes that will follow on the tax bill and on various social programs.

But he said adoption of the Reagan budget would "set the ceilings" on spending for specific programs to be worked out later in the session and, therefore, would embrace the president's philosophy.

In contrast, Wright said, the Democratic budget and tax plan is aimed at helping, not the rich, but those who most need help.

He said House Democrats wanted to work with Reagan where possible to fulfill the mandate given by the people in the November elections.

"We think people want us to reduce by a dramatic amount the drag of unnecessary regulations," Wright said.

Councilmen sworn in amid jokes, tears

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

It was a time for joking and a time for shedding a few tears as the first woman on the Midland City Council gave up her seat today during the swearing in ceremony in City Hall Council Chambers.

Taking the oath of office after coming up victorious in the April city elections were Gordon Marcum II, Carroll Thomas and Jesse Hatfield. The first two are starting their third and fourth terms, respectively, on the council. Hatfield is replacing Mrs. Howbert, who decided not to run for re-election.

Mayor G. Thane Akins, in presenting two gifts of appreciation to Mrs. Howbert from the council, joked, "You certainly cleaned up the language here and we'll miss that."

Continuing in a serious vein, he remarked, "You made an outstanding council person."

"Councilman," Mrs. Howbert said lightly in correcting the mayor.

"You did your homework and you made a tremendous contribution to the city," Akins added.

The gift was a large silver platter with an inscription on the back citing her years on the council, 1977-81.

Turning to the rest of the council and the city staff, Mrs. Howbert said, with a break in her voice, "I've gone four years without crying, but I'll break that record now. It's really been good and I'll miss all of you."

In gathering up her gifts and nameplate, Councilman Tom Sloan quipped, "Just think of how much money you can make as a lobbyist now."

Then City Secretary James McCullough gave the oath of office to Marcum, Thomas and Hatfield, and a new phase of the council had begun.

Jury indicts six

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A federal grand jury investigating a road materials procurement scheme has handed down extortion and mail fraud indictments against six Northeast Texas county commissioners.

Four Titus County commissioners and others from Red River and Cass counties were indicted, U.S. Attorney John Hannah Jr. announced at a news conference Thursday.

The indictments follow formal charges entered Wednesday in Tyler against three salesmen, a county commissioner and a former county official. The five waived grand jury indictments and pleaded guilty to fraud and receiving illegal kickbacks.

Officers check burglary complaints

Two burglary complaints and one theft report topped the list of criminal activity under investigation by city police today.

An employee of Air Line Mobile Home Park said a $500 saw and a drill, no value listed, were taken from a construction site, while David Perkins of 1305½ W. Illinois Ave. told officers his home was broken into and a $300 stereo set was missing. Entry was gained by cutting a padlock off the front door.

And Donna Soloman, 4209 Anetta Drive, reported the theft of two boxes of Tupperware from her front porch. Value was placed at $260.

Sheriff's deputies were investigating a burglary complaint by Rivera Mario of Rt. 3, Midland, and a theft report by the Xmas Tree Supply Co., 1007 N. Fairgrounds Road. No details were available by press time, however.

House OKs DMSO use

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Dimethyl sulfoxide (DMSO) — regarded by some as a miracle drug and by others as little more than a good carburetor cleaner — has won a round in the Texas House.

Representatives tentatively approved a bill Thursday allowing doctors to prescribe and administer DMSO. Final passage to the Senate could come today.

Although DMSO is highly controversial, the bill shot through the House on Thursday without debate.

"The intent is to bring DMSO into the medical field so people could use it for their arthritis and other ailments," said Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, the sponsor.

A physician who prescribes DMSO would have to inform the patient in writing that the drug has not been approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for human use. The physician also would have to tell the patient of alternative methods of treatment and their potential for cure.

Hospitals could not prohibit the use of DMSO by physicians on their staffs unless the hospitals made a formal finding it would be harmful for patients.

The bill would make it a crime, punishable by up to 180 days in jail and a $1,000 fine, to advertise or promote DMSO as a cure for any disease.

DMSO is an industrial solvent that also has certain veterinary uses. Its only FDA-approved human use is as a treatment of interstitial cystitis, a bladder disease.

Advocates of greater medical use of DMSO say it has value in the treatment of arthritis. Witnesses at a House committee hearing also said it had value in treating cancer.

Opponents say DMSO has not been proven experimentally to have medical value. The outcome of several research projects is awaited. They also suggest DMSO could damage the eyes and liver.

Doctors make new bone from powdered bones

BOSTON (AP) — Researchers have developed a gooey paste of ground-up human bones that can spark the body to grow new bones, providing relief for victims of deforming accidents or children born with misshapen faces.

The paste has been used so far to treat about 60 patients with results that were sometimes "spectacular," according to doctors who have used it.

One of those treated was a boy born with fused bone where the soft spot in his skull should have been. In a series of operations, doctors removed the top of his skull and replaced it with the paste.

"By a year, he had a brand-new skull," said Dr. Judah Folkman, chief of surgery at Children's Hospital Medical Center here. "From a surgeon's point of view, that's pretty spectacular."

"From a clinical standpoint, I'm very excited about this material," said Dr. John B. Mulliken, who conducted the first operation using the paste, which is made from bones taken from cadavers. The bones are ground into powder, which is mixed with water to make paste.

"I'm especially excited about the concept of being able to transform the body's cells to make something that's needed," Mullien said.

But doctors don't know why it works.

The crushed material does not actually become new bone by itself. But when it is implanted, each speck of bone dust is surrounded by cells that ordinarily form connective tissue cells.

Those cells, called fibroblasts, somehow change to their function to produce cartilage. Eventually, the cartilage becomes bone.

"The powder becomes amalgamated in the new bony material, like nuts in a chocolate bar," said Dr. Julie Glowacki, who conducted animal experiments with the material.

The doctors say the powdered material is easier to use than transplanted bone, because it can be crammed into hard-to-reach cavities. And since the powder can be stored, the researchers say surgeons can have it on hand to treat accident victims.

The new material also may last longer than transplanted natural bone, which in as many as half the cases is reabsorbed by the body. So far, that has happened in only 9 percent of the cases treated with powdered bone.

A team of Harvard doctors developed the treatment at Children's Hospital. A report on their work is being published Saturday's issue of the British journal Lancet.

The first recipients of the concoction have been children with birth defects.

Most of the 44 patients treated so far at Children's Hospital were youngsters with cleft palates. One was a child born without a nose.

Appaloosa Show Saturday

SWEETWATER — The West Texas Appaloosa Horse Club's annual Spring Show (for registered appaloosas only) will be held here Saturday at the Nolan County Coliseum.

The show will begin at 8 a.m.

On Sunday, also beginning at 8 a.m., the Big Country Show sponsored by the Abilene Appaloosa Horse Club will be held in the same location.

High-point awards will be combined for the two shows.

Herschede
THE ONLY AMERICAN MADE TUBULAR BELL MOVEMENT
Specially priced now thru Mother's Day
Although most clock movements look alike, there's a vast difference in how they transfer accuracy to the hands and music from the chimes.
Herschede (pronounces "Her'-shed-dee") cable-wound tubular bell movements have been the finest clock movements available since the turn of the century. And they're made right here in America. Less Expensive grandfather clock have used a variety of foreign-made chain wound movements.
Herschede tubular bell movement superiority begins with thicker plates and gears. Result? Clock movements that outlive generations of owners. Then to Herschede uses more parts for smoother, more accurate movements that further increase the life of the clock.
All Herschede cable-wound clocks are equiped with full-size nickel-plated tubular bells. These produce a resonance of tone that cannot be duplicated with rod chimes.
At Herschede, We're clockmakers, not just cabinetmakers. That's why with Herschede you get extra value-heirloom value.

Reagan's serious error

President Ronald Reagan's decision to lift the grain embargo imposed against the Soviet Union more than a year ago by former President Jimmy Carter constituted, in our opinion, a serious error of judgement uncharacteristic of the new chief executive.

The decision, in fact, has placed the United States in the treacherous position of responding unwaveringly to the next incident of Soviet aggression or watching the "new toughness" of the Reagan administration evaporate.

Embargoes historically have proven only minimally effective as tools to discourage aggression. Perhaps another course would have been more suitable — and fruitful — for the Carter administration in early 1980.

But that's all past history. President Reagan inherited the embargo dilemma, imposed by Carter as punishment for the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in late 1979.

During the presidential campaign, Reagan had promised American farmers he would withdraw the embargo. He was fulfilling a campaign promise by so doing.

And he was helping the farmers who were being injured by the embargo and the resulting loss of grain sales. We can sympathize with the farmers. It's unfortunate that one segment of American industry gets hurt more than others because of the nation's foreign policy demands.

Looking at the situation realistically, though, President Reagan was in a no-win situation. He could not break his campaign promise to the farmers without losing credibility at home. And yet he apparently felt the grain embargo was ineffective and hurting U.S. farmers.

The saddest aspect of the grain embargo dilemma is that the Soviets undoubtedly will view Reagan's decision as weakness in the United States' foreign policy field despite the president's sharp warning that such is not the case. Interpreting the move in that way, the Soviets may come to feel that President Reagan's bark is worse than his bite.

All would have been a lot better had Ronald Reagan never made his promise to the farmers — a promise he felt he had to keep and a promise that, when fulfulled, seemed to revive the old Jimmy Carter penchant for tough talk followed by half-hearted action.

Funding our libraries

Back in 1978 the Texas Conference of Libraries and Information convened in Austin to study library problems.

Coming out of that conference was a recommendation for state support in the amount of $1 per capita. That proposal has been supported by the Texas Library and Archives Commission, Texas Library Association and various other library organizations throughout the state.

Texas now ranks 39th in the nation in state library support at 16 cents per captia. Even with an increase to $1 per capita, the state would lag far behind others in library funding. West Virginians pay the most state aid to their libraries per capita — $3.61. That figure is followed closely by Georgia at $2.47 per capita.

In a joint statement, Wendell Mayes Jr. of Austin and Wayne C. Sellers of Palestine, chairman and secretary, respectively, of the Books of Texans organization, noted that a $1 per capita appropriation for libraries is minuscule when compared to the total state budget.

"We can think of no appropriation which can do so much for so little," they said in noting that Texas public libraries in 1979 circulated 43 million items to the public, answered 7½ million reference questions, hosted 3 million persons at library programs and showed films to 5 million people.

A $1 per capita appropriation appears in line with library needs in Texas. The expense is justifiable when weighed against the return all Texans will receive.

Space shuttle's success revived hope for nation

Charley Reese

Sen. William Proxmire tried to be a spoil sport about the space shuttle. All we've done, he said, is put a truck into orbit and people are making too much over it.

That's ture, but it's obvious that Senator Proxmire does not understand the true cause of the euphoria which the successful space shuttle launch and landing caused.

People are euphoric because it represents one lone instance of government competence. At least, the U.S. government has done this one thing right.

The pervading sense of anxiety which plagues the American people is a result of their well-founded belief that their government, including Proxmire, is hopelessly incompetent and is leading them toward economic ruin, war, and the loss of freedom. There is ample evidence to support a good case of anxiety.

Despite the fact that the Soviet Union's economy is immeasurably weaker than that of the U.S., the United States government has shown itself incompetent to provide a decent defense force, so that today we are the military inferiors of a backward, hostile nation.

The U.S. Congress has proven itself incompetent to devise a fair, simple tax system; incompetent to provide a stable currency; incompetent to manage the fiscal affairs of the nation by simply not spending more than it has; incompetent to control a runaway bureaucracy; incompetent to set its own agenda based on any kind of rational set of priorities.

Here we are on the edge of financial ruin, perhaps on the eve of World War III, and what is the Congress of the United States doing? Before its two-week Easter recess, I mean. It is conducting hearings on how much salt we should inlude in our diet. I tell you we do not need $60,000-a-year politicians and the National Institutes of Health to worry about the (expletive deleted) salt content in our (expletive deleted) diet, especially when the Congress has not even gotten around to more important matters like confirming some of the president's key appointments.

The U.S. government, especially since 1960, has exhibited monumental imcompetence in a number of areas. For example, it spent 53,000 lives, ten years, and over $80 billion, losing the Vietnam War to a third-rate country.

It has shown itself incompetent in dealing with the oil cartel. Basically, the response to the oil cartel's decision to rape the Western Democracies and to pillage the Third World has been to kiss the Arab anatomy and kick our Israeli allies in the rear.

You would think something simple, like developing a major battle tank, would be possible, but the U.S. government has spent years and millions only to finally arrive at a Chrysler product which it cannot produce in sufficient numbers and which many critics believe will spend most of its time in repair shops.

Sure, senator, we are euphoric about the space shuttle even though it was behind schedule and over-budget. God knows we would like to think the government can do something right.

Who knows, perhaps if we can orbit a truck, we can also provide a decent public education, control the less than ten percent of the population which commits most of the crime, and devise a tax form that at least a public accountant can figure out.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

ABSCAM's star witness conned them all

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Mel Weinberg, the flimflam man who was the FBI's undercover operative and star witness in the ABSCAM cases, has made out like a bandit.

Not only did Weinberg collect more than $133,000 in pay and bonuses from the government, but there are serious allegations in official files that he wangled expensive gifts from some of the individuals who were targets of the FBI's "sting" operation. The gifts reportedly included gold watches, color television sets, stereo and recording equipment and a microwave oven.

What is even more shocking is evidence that when two ABSCAM prosecutors reported Weinberg's predatory shenanigans to the Justice Department, top officials discussed the possibility of getting rid of the evidence and coaching Weinberg on how to answer questions about the gifts.

Obviously, if Weinberg's scam-within-a-scam had been made public, it would have been devastating to the FBI's operation. The government has insisted that Weinberg was under tight control by the FBI at all times, and was strictly following orders when he lured members of Congress and other political figures into the ABSCAM net.

But it is clear, from files reviewed by my associate Indy Badhwar, that Weinberg was out of control, using the ABSCAM caper to feather his own nest. And it appears that Justice Department officials covered up for him rather than risk destroying his believability as a government witness.

The two assistant prosecutors, Edward J. Plaza and Robert A. Weir, complained about Weinberg in a memorandum last December to then-Assistant Attorney General Philip Heymann. They charged that Weinberg had extracted gifts from ABSCAM targets by implying that they were for the fictitious Arab sheik he claimed to represent. He worked his con game, among others, on Camden Mayor Angelo Erichetti and on George Katz, a co-defendant of Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., according to the records.

Last June, a worried Weir met with Deputy Assistant Attorney General Irv Nathan and chief ABSCAM prosecutor Thomas Puccio, and brought up the subject of Weinberg's gifts. Weir later acknowledged under oath that Puccio said he was aware Weinberg had received a microwave oven. Puccio said he would have it removed from Weinberg's house and would coach him on what to say about it, as Weir recalled.

He also quoted Nathan as saying Weinberg had produced a receipt showing that he had bought the oven himself. But when Weir suggested an independent FBI investigation of the matter, Nathan assigned the inquiry to Puccio instead.

Last January, in a memo to Heymann, Nathan wrote that Puccio had denied saying he was aware of the microwave oven gift and that he himself did not recall any mention of a receipt. In a subsequent court proceeding, Weir testified under oath that Nathan's memo was false, "and Mr. Nathan knows it's false."

Just 10 days after the meeting at which Weir expressed his concern about Weinberg's behavior, he and Plaza were taken off the ABSCAM case by Nathan.

The loot that Weinberg allegedly extorted from ABSCAM targets is listed in the Weir-Plaza memo of last December as three gold watches, a $900 video cassette recorder, a $1,200 stereo set, three color TVs and the microwave oven.

Weinberg intially was paid $1,000 a month for his middleman services, but in February 1979 this was increased to $3,000 a month, and in November of that year to $5,000 a month. He also received a lump sum of $15,000 in June 1979, and a $5,000 "bonus" in November 1979.

INSIDE THE KREMLIN: In private conversations with satellite leaders, Russia's Leonid Brezhnev has accused Ronald Reagan of adopting a right-wing philosophy that could end detente and jeopardize the peace.

— Under Brezhnev, the Old Guard has become entrenched. "Vacancies have usually been filled by promotion within the appropriate party organization," reports the CIA. This has produced "a malaise among younger party officials, bored with the 'old ways' and restless at the lack of headroom."

— A top-secret CIA analysis contends: "Young people will have to be brought into the party in substantially greater numbers in the 1980s just to maintain the low rate of youth recruitment. That would reopen the possibility of (a) generational conflict ..."

— The Soviet leadership is dominated by the Russians, Ukrainians and Byelorussians. Most "under-represented," says an intelligence report, are "the Turkic nationalities with Muslim backgrounds."

— Brezhnev has stifled initiative. "Dangerous new ideas — for example, that a party official should be chosen for some expertise other than Marxism-Leninism — have been quashed," states a top-secret analysis. "Brezhnev has opted for stability ... The next long-term party chief may well be confronted with rising pressures for change in the party, as well as other Soviet institutions."

FISH STORY: Not long before he left office, President Nixon was given eight rare carp by the Japanese government. He turned the fish over to the National Aquarium and a plaque was put up acknowledging the gift. What the public doesn't know is that only two of the fish now swimming about in the tank were part of the original gift. Six died, and were quietly replaced by look-alikes. The plaque is unchanged because, as an official explained, no one would know the difference "unless you worked here."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, May 1, the 121st day of 1981. There are 244 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On May 1, 1945, German radio announced the death of Adolf Hitler in Berlin.

On this date:

In 1707, a union between England and Scotland was formed under the name of Great Britain.

In 1873, the U.S. Post Office put penny postal cards for sale for the first time.

In 1961, the first political hijacking of an American airliner to Cuba took place.

Ten years ago: An AWOL American Marine was released from a prison in Rome after hijacking an airplane from California.

Five years ago: Ronald Reagan defeated President Ford in a Republican presidential primary in Texas.

One year ago: The United States prepared to airlift thousands of Cuban refugees from Key West, Fla., to Eglin Air Force Base in that state.

INSIDE REPORT:

Rep. Williams' dilemma mirrors that of Youngstown workers

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Evans

Novak

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio — "Back Reagan!" Diane Rossi whispered to fence-sitting Rep. Lyle Williams as he entered the Holiday Inn-North here last Friday to face social workers lobbying against President Reagan's budget cuts.

Mrs. Rossi is a social worker herself, a supervisor in the Mahoning County (Youngstown) welfare department. But she told Williams that many welfare recipients "are loafers who can work if they want to" and the program "is full of waste." A lifelong Democrat, she voted the straight Republican ticket last year.

Once inside the meeting, Mrs. Rossi was lost among 300 social workers frowning and shaking their heads over Reagan's budget outrages. The contrast symbolized her mood in this economically-ravaged former steel city after Reagan's first hundred days. While the city fathers are horrified, there is substantial support for the Republican president from the overwhelmingly Democratic electorate.

Whether or not Reagan is the cause, there is hope for economic revival in the Mahoning Valley not visible to us on a reporting trip here almost a year ago. Industrialists who had given up hope for Youngstown have changed their minds because of the new spirit. The United Steelworkers Union has agreed on a plan to increase productivity at Commercial Shearing, Inc., plants here that will close unless they show a profit. General Motors management and the United Auto Workers at the notorious Lordstown plant nearby, after years of shouting at each other, sat down Friday to discuss productivity and quality.

This is the backdrop for the difficult decision facing Rep. Williams, who in 1978 moved from his barbershop to Washington as this district's first Republican congressman in 42 years. No conservative (42 percent by American Conservative Union ratings), he is disliked by businessmen. No liberal (33 percent by Americans for Democratic Action ratings), he is despised by the social welfare establishment. He won an unexpected re-election landslide in 1980 by coming home from Washington every weekend and by cutting a fine line down the middle.

But there is no middle on the budget. Williams soon must choose on the House floor between the Reagan budget and the Democratic alternative of Rep. James Jones. Williams discloses, "I'm interested in the Jones budget," making him one of a handful of Republican House members who might defect on Reagan's first decisive vote.

Williams, who carried this district by 30,000 votes while Reagan was losing it by 7,000, does not want to appear as a regular Republican knuckling under to the president. City leaders try to exploit Williams' independence by making ferocious warnings. Pete Stark, senior member of the city council, says angered welfare recipients may kill for food. Mayor George Vukovich fears the city will be burned.

Such talk is fanned by the social welfare bureaucracy. The Holiday Inn emergency meeting was attended by paid professionals, men in three-piece suits and women in expensive dresses, with much at stake. Veteran County Commissioner Tom Barrett commented wryly as he entered the jammed meeting room, "It looks like a save-our-jobs rally by the social workers."

Williams has no intent of saving their jobs. "There is no question that you are going to be cut," he told them Friday. What bothers the congressman is Reagan's plan to eliminate the Economic Development Administration (EDA), credited with the forthcoming construction of a 1,700-job aircraft factory here. Unless Reagan offers a viable economic development alternative, Williams says he "absolutely" will vote with the Democrats for the Jones budget.

Yet, Williams has no illusions about EDA, which he says created 13 new jobs at the cost of $6 million in trying to develop an industrial park here. A major change in Youngstown is that hardly anyone believes any longer that either the rusting steel mills will reopen or that the federal government will provide money for new industries. "This town is going to have to do it itself," contends Democratic City Councilman Roland Fabrizio.

There is help from Reagan's Washington, but not in money, as shown when bureaucrats at the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) started tangling up a modest Republic Steel Co. construction plan in Youngstown. Williams placed a call to the White House, the White House called EPA and the tangling ceased.

That incident helped build pro-Reagan sentiment after a hundred days, including praise from the heart of the Democratic leadership. "The people like Reagan," says highly respected Democratic State Rep. Tom Carney. "I admit I like him. There's a lot in his program that makes sense." Mahoning County's outspoken Democratic Chairman Don Hanni says, "I think people 'like' the idea of cutting taxes." GM assembly line workers also like welfare cutbacks, according to UAW leaders.

The mood of the 85 percent or more of workers here who are employed was expressed by Rep. Williams when he called the social workers "the work force out there" can no longer support their activities. "We cannot let it get to the point," he added, "that they (the workers) do not have any incentive to keep going." One person in the rear (was it Diane Rossi?) applauded. But the views of workers will be weighed more heavily than those of social workers as Lyle Williams ponders his budget decision.

Carol Ward, director of education, and Glen Walton, director, held a press conference this morning to announce the establishment of a new "alternative education" private high school in Midland. Permian Basin High School will be located in the top floor of Building E at 3001 N. A St., across from City of Midland Pool.

School officials announce plans for first 'alternative' facility

School is serious about education — not just any type education, but quality education," Walton said.

By not offering such things as physical education, driver's education, home economics or industrial arts, the school's curriculum will actually spend more times on the basics than public schools, Bowlin said.

Most students in the Alexander School which has been operating since 1975, Bowlin said, "Usually progress about two grade levels" under the alternative method. "Students log in about 66 hours of course time," Bowlin said. Adding study lab time to that figure, he said, students actually spend more time concentrating efforts in academics.

In addition, Bowlin said teachers at the school do not just teach students "how to do it" and to memorize long lists of information, "but rather how to find information themselves and use it."

"We will not be happy just to produce high school graduates," Walton said. "Our graduates will be qualified to apply to and be accepted by all accredited colleges and universities in Texas and throughout the United States," he added.

Permian Basin High School has applied for full accreditation from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and is currently in "candidate status," meaning that Southern Association is working with the school toward a goal of full accreditation by December 1982.

"While we are opening with 10th, 11th and 12th grades, we are looking at the possibility of adding 8th and 9th grades in the future," Walton said.

"We're not in competition with anybody — public or private," Walton stressed. "Midland needs as many quality schools as it can get. Our purpose is to provide quality education. It doesn't matter who gets the credit for it."

With enrollment limited to 80 students, Walton said he expected the first-year census figures to be lower — around 20-25 students, with four to five teachers.

Only a small number of teachers is necessary because alternative scheduling allows teachers to instruct several students separately during the day, and because special classes like study hall and science lab will have higher student-teacher ratios.

Walton said he wanted to take advantage of that situation, hiring only teachers with competency ratings and for the most part, have their master's degrees.

"With 80 application for faculty positions already," he said, "and only four to five positions open, I have a 15-1 ratio to choose from. I've been pleased with he quality of all the applicants."

Owning the entire building, PBHS will lease the bottom floor of the facility to other businesses; however, the building will allow room for expansion in the future, Walton said.

Owned by a group of private individuals in Midland, the school will have rates "comparable to other one-to-one schools around the state. The tuition will be dependent on how many courses a student selects," Walton said. "The rates will be discussed with parents when asking about enrollment to the school. But, they're right in the neighborhood with other private schools."

Although the school will accept students of "all levels and all abilities," Walton said potential students will undergo a "screening battery" of tests for consideration at the school.

Some social activities will be offered at the school, Ms. Ward explained. "We will have yearbook and some other social activities, but we will not have a football team."

An arrangement has also been made with Midland College for students' use of its Learning Resource Center. Although the high school will have its own library, more complete materials will be available for their use at the college.

"We have the desire to serve all the people in this area," Walton said, adding the name Permian Basin High was selected for that reason.

Former Ector DA files libel suit

ODESSA — Former Ector County District Attorney John Green has filed a $1 million libel suit against The Dallas Morning News in connection with a story the paper did on the DA's race last spring between Green and Mike Holmes, a political unknown who beat Green handily in the first contested election Green faced during his 12-year tenure in office.

Filed in state district court here Tuesday, the suit asks more than $1 million in damages, alleging the story cost Green the election. Also named are Dallas reporter Bill Deener, who wrote the story, and former Odessa American Editor Olin Ashley, who was quoted in the story.

It marks the third time Green has filed suits against newspapers. In 1977, he filed two suits seeking more than $2 million from the Odessa American over stories it had run on him. One of the stories, reprinted from a Dallas paper, questioned a Las Vegas trip Green made with an ex-convict.

"To the best of my knowledge, the suits are still pending," Odessa American Publisher Dave Lyons said this morning. Lyons was not with the paper when the suits were filed. "The local judges pulled out, and I believe the suits are now on a San Angelo judge's docket."

Green, Ashley, Deener and the Dallas Morning News were not available for comment by press time. Since losing the May Democratic primary to Holmes, and also losing as a write-in candidate during the general election in November, Green has gone into private law practice in Odessa.

Ashley is now employed by the The Dallas Times-Herald.

Cocktails begin at 6:30 p.m. in the ballroom, followed by dinner and awards at 7:30 p.m.

Teens must have abortion consent

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas House voted Friday to require unmarried girls under 18 to obtain their parents' consent before getting abortions.

Representatives sent the bill to the Senate, 114-28, after debate in which Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, emotionally predicted it would lead to coathanger abortions in cheap motel rooms.

Under the bill, a doctor could be sent to jail for a year, slapped with a $2,000 fine and lose his license to practice medicine for a year if he failed to obtain the required consent forms before performing an abortion.

The only way a girl could avoid telling her parents she needed an abortion would be to obtain an order from a probate judge authorizing a doctor to perform the abortion.

Bell opening new payment agency

Southwestern Bell has announced the opening of a new payment agency location for Midland telephone customers effective today.

In addition to the company Phone Center Store at 410 W. Missouri Ave. in downtown Midland, customer can now pay their bills at the Western Auto store, 301 E. Illinois Ave.

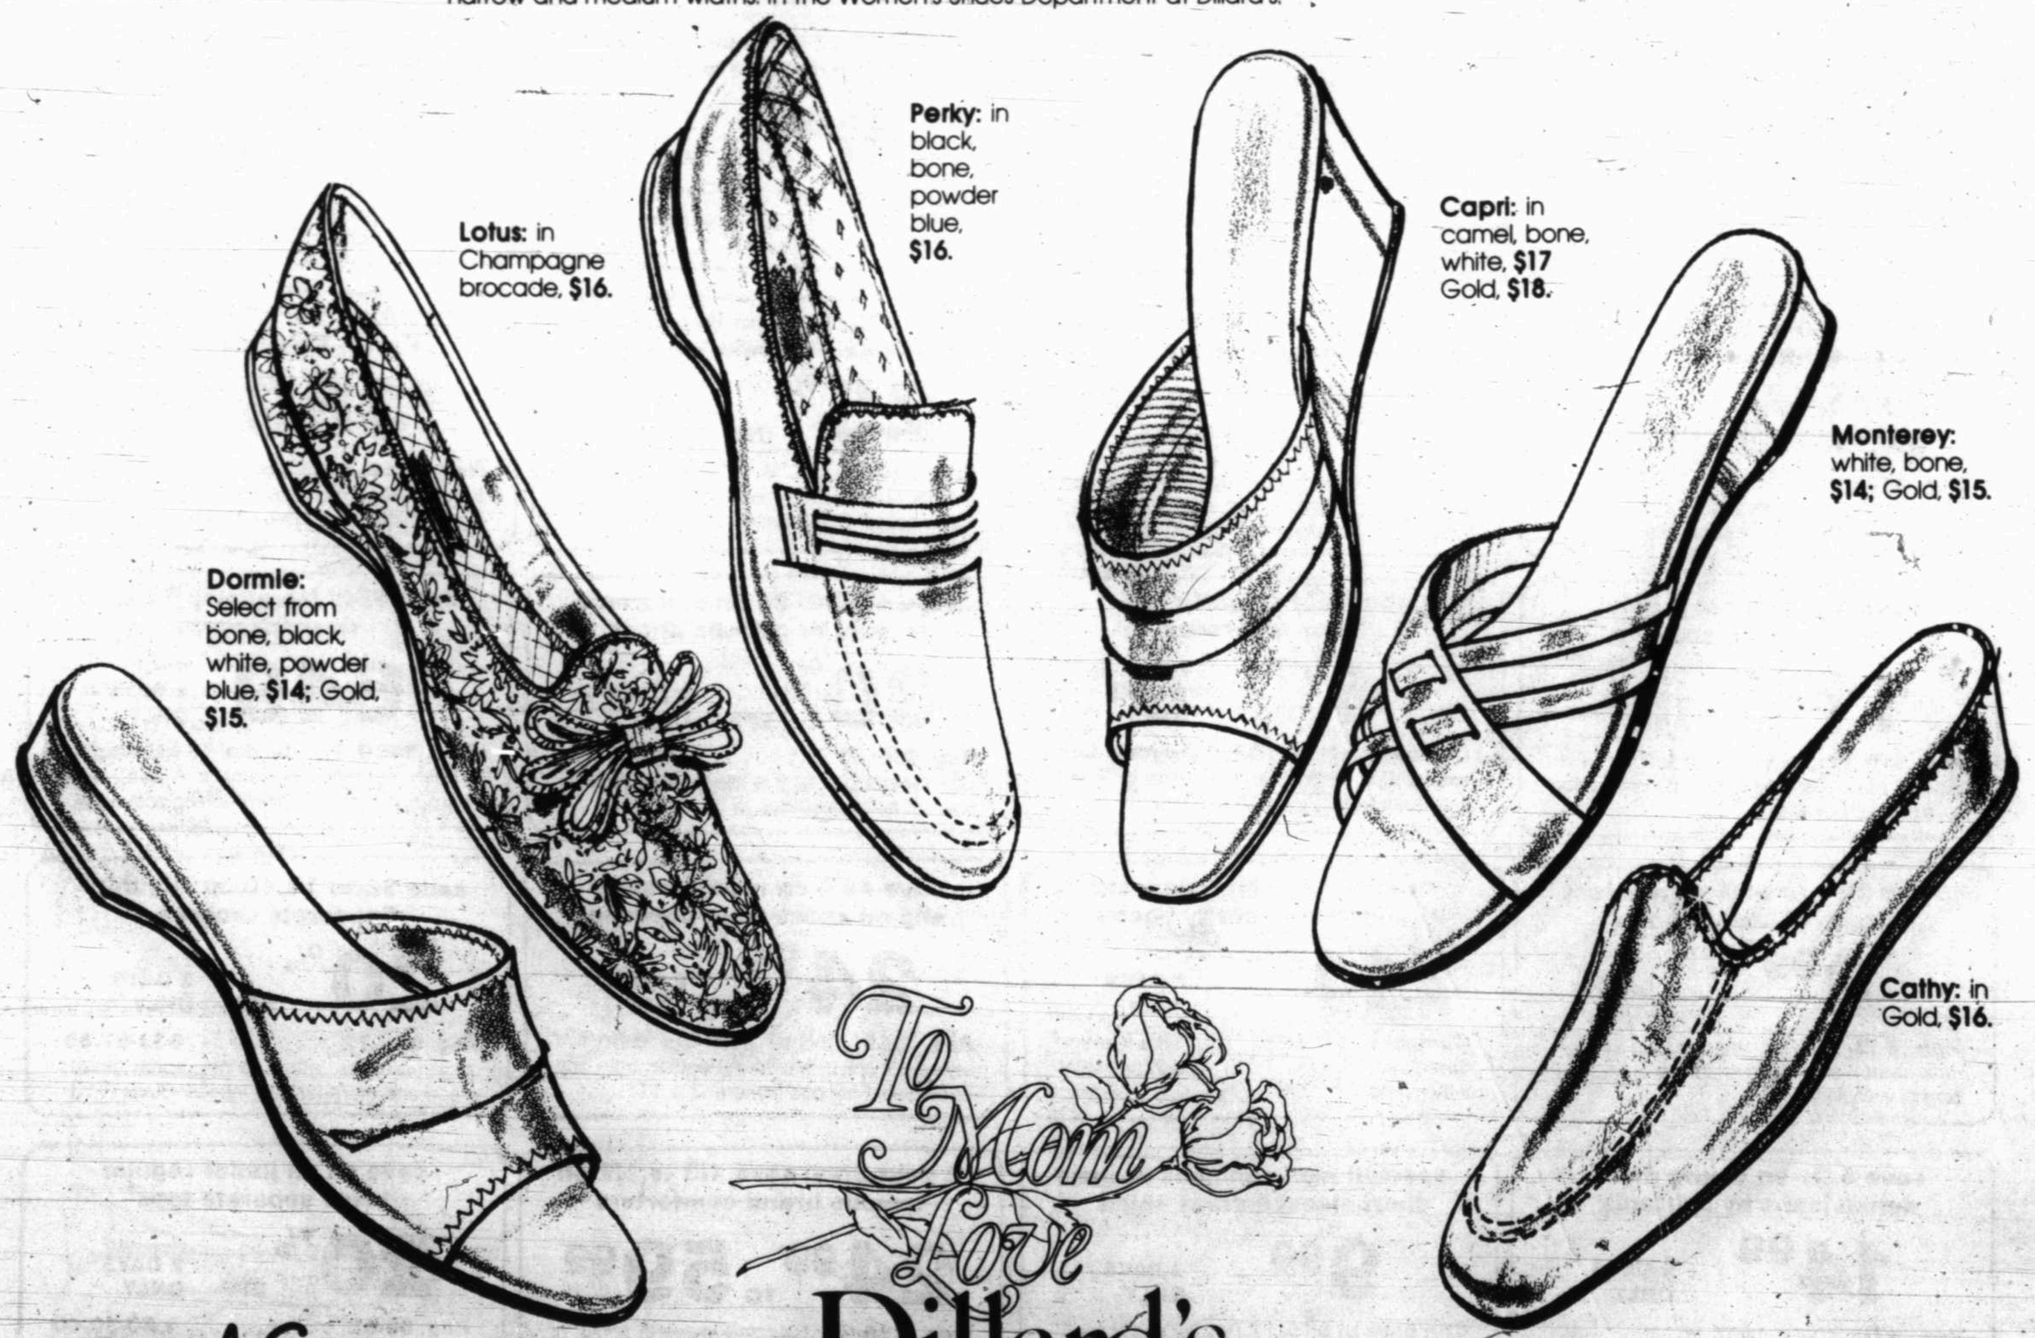

The payment desk is located inside the store near the front door and is open for business from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"The addition of the payment location will give customers the convenience of a wider, and perhaps more convenient choice of locations to pay their bills," explained Bob Hurt, PhoneCenter manager for the company in Midland. "We anticipate that many of our customers will make use of the convenience of the new payment location.

"If this proves to be of substantial benefit to our customers and the company, we'll certainly look into the possibility of opening more payment agencies in the future."

Reagan's VA choice under fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert P. Nimmo, a Republican activist from California, is President Reagan's choice to head the Veterans Administration — the fourth man to be mentioned for the job but the first to be nominated.

And he's already coming under fire from a veterans' leader who says Nimmo was a "last-resort" choice.

Nimmo's nomination Thursday came four days after James H. Webb Jr., a decorated Vietnam veteran and counsel to the Democratic minority on the House Veterans Affairs committee, withdrew himself from consideration for the top job at the $24 billion agency.

Webb, author of a book about the Vietnam war, sharply criticized budget director David A. Stockman for running the agency in the absence of the director and said he feared he would be no more than a figurehead if he got the job.

In Los Angeles, Ron Kovic, spokesman for the Center for Veterans Rights, called for a thorough congressional investigation of the VA. He said he objected to anyone taking a "token appointment."

"Anyone who gets the job is not going to be able to fill it effectively because of the Reagan cutbacks," said Kovic, himself the author of a much-praised memoir about veterans' problems, "Born on the Fourth of July."

"Nimmo is the Reagan administration's last resort after they were unable to get James Webb," Kovic said.

Nimmo, 59, a rancher and businessman of Atascadero, Calif., was honorary chairman of the Reagan campaign committee last year in San Luis Obisbo County, Calif. He was a fiscal officer in the state's military department, which deals with National Guard affairs, from 1955 to 1970, a period which overlapped Reagan's 1966-74 tenure as governor.

He later served in the state assembly and the state senate.

A graduate of the Army Command and General Staff College, Nimmo was a pilot in the Army Air Corps from 1943-46 and served as commander of an ordnance company from 1950-52.

John Behan, a Vietnam veteran and amputee who is a New York state assemblyman, was a contender for the job a couple of months ago, as was former Ohio Rep. William Ayres, who headed Veterans for Reagan and the Reagan transition team at the VA.

Veterans groups have criticized the administration for waiting so long to fill the job and for planning to eliminate 91 storefront counseling centers, where Vietnam veterans help their emotionally troubled colleagues.

The agency's director in the Carter administration, Max Cleland, urged Congress on Thursday to reject the administration's plan to close the centers.

"I look at the emotional fallout of the war as one that probably can only properly be dealt with by veterans working with other veterans," Cleland said.

Dr. Turner Camp, associate deputy chief medical director of the VA, told the committee that "the position of the administration is unchanged," but he did say the administration would allocate money to continue the program if Congress decides to do so.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said there was "no doubt that the program is alive and well and will be continued for at least another year."

Retired general chosen to direct arms talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired Lt. Gen. Edward L. Rowny, who resigned from the U.S. SALT negotiating team to protest Carter administration concessions to the Soviet Union, is President Reagan's choice to head new arms control talks.

Reagan announced Thursday he will nominate Rowny, a principal opponent of the strategic arms limitation treaty negotiated by the Carter administration, to be the nation's new chief arms control negotiator.

Rowny, 64, will be head of the U.S. delegation and will have the rank of ambassador and an official title of special representative for arms control and disarmament negotiations.

He will report to Eugene V. Rostow, who has been nominated director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., had wanted Rowney to get that post.

Rowny was the Joint Chiefs of Staff's representative during the Carter administration's strategic arms limitation talks with the Russians.

He resigned in June 1979 to speak out against the negotitated SALT II treaty, telling congressinal committees it would leave the United States in an inferior military position to the Russians.

Rostow testified on Capitol Hill that the the treaty failed "to put a brake on the momentum of the massive Soviet buildup" while forcing too many U.S. concessions.

The treaty has been withdrawn from Senate consideration and Reagan has said he will not accept it as it is. There is no schedule for any future talks.

EPA nominee faces criticism, but no threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Anne McGill Gorsuch, the little-known Colorado lawyer nominated to head the Environmental Protection Agency, faces a barrage of criticism at a Senate committee hearing but no real threat to her confirmation.

Mrs. Gorsuch's nomination raised strong objections from environmental groups when it was announced Feb. 21, and in the lengthy period since nothing has changed that opposition.

Criticism of the 39-year-old former state legislator has been aimed not only at her environmental record but at her lack of experience in environmental matters and in running a huge Cabinet-level agency like the EPA.

Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., chairman of the Environment and Public Works Committee, also questioned Mrs. Gorsuch's experience but neither he nor other members of the committee have raised strenuous objections to her nomination.

Organizations whose representatives were testifying at today's confirmation hearing before Stafford's committee include the Sierra Club, the Environmental Policy Center and Friends of the Earth. Rafe Pomerance of the latter group said he had questions, too, about Mrs. Gorsuch's ability to maintain the EPA as an independent agency.

"We're concerned about who's really running the show," Pomerance said Thursday. "It appears the EPA will be entering into private negotiations with OMB."

He said he feared the influence of the Office of Management and Budget and that of Interior Secretary James Watt, a friend of Mrs. Gorsuch, would outweigh her legal mandate to protect the air and water.

Mrs. Gorsuch served in the Colorado Legislature at a time when Watt headed an organization in Denver that put forth legal challenges to government land and environmental decisions.

In the Legislature, Mrs. Gorsuch was not regarded as having great interest in environmental matters. She did fight for transferring state responsiblities for hazardous wastes to counties, and she helped draft an auto emissions law that saved the state from sanctions by the EPA.

Four-year-old boy victim of 'torture'

HOUSTON (AP) -- A doctor who examined the bloody, naked body of four-year-old Tommy simply labeled the cause of death as "child abuse."

A paramedic who found the little boy lying on the floor of a squalid low-rent Houston apartment called it "torture."

But juvenile officers and the staff at Twelve Oaks Hospital agreed — never had they encountered such a pitiful case.

The boy's mother and her live-in boyfriend, both 26, were arrested and questioned at the police station where "they were acting as if their neighbor's dog got run over," one officer said.

Authorities refused to identify the suspects or the victim's last name and said charges have not been filed.

Paramedics found Tommy's lifeless body Thursday, lying on his back, just inside the front door of the second-story apartment.

"He wasn't breathing," said paramedic M.J. Augun.

"There were penetration wounds of the rectum and scrotum and mouth. There were cigarette burns on the upper portion of the body and the buttocks. There was a small stab wound and some hair loss. There were burns on the scalp, too. There were contusions and lacerations," he said. "Some of the wounds were new, some old."

Doctors at Twelve Oaks added malnutrition and a broken rib to the list.

Some neighbors living in the complex that rests in an otherwise upper middle-class neighborhood on the fringe of the affluent River Oaks section later recalled hearing screams coming from the apartment perched at the top of the stairs.

But not until the Fire Department's emergency ambulance switchboard received the call Thursday afternoon did authorities learn the gruesome details surrounding the little blond-haired boy's life

The man who telephoned said the boy's heart "had stopped beating."

The child was rushed to the hospital where doctors and nurses began unsuccessful "normal routine" life-saving efforts.

Paramedics returned to the fire station about two blocks from the apartment. Although police had been notified, Augun said, other firemen feared the man at the apartment would leave before officers arrived.

Station Capt. Lennie Higgins told a pumper crew to go back and keep an eye on things until police arrived.

"When they (the ambulance crew) told us about the kind of thing — a lot of us have kids — it just hurts," Higgins said.

Crew member Harvey Visnaw saw the man leave the apartment and shouted he needed some more information.

"I just asked him all kinds of questions till the police came two or three minutes later," Visnaw said. "He said he didn't work and that the mother lived on Social Security and didn't work. He asked how the kid was, but I didn't tell him he was dead until I saw the police car coming.

"Then he saw the police car and I told him, "By the way, the kid died.' He said, 'Hey, man, you tricked me, you tricked me, here come the cops," Visnaw said.

Officers arrested the man, who pointed out the boy's mother walking along the street. She also was arrested and later gave a statement to police denying she abused the child.

"She was not hysterical," said Juvenile Sgt. C.R. Rees. "She said she had been trying to get a job because Tommy needs a lot of care."

Both were held in City Jail awaiting autopsy results.

McDonald gets 15-year sentence

After being found guilty of attempted murder

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A 25-year-old Midland man who was found guilty by a jury of attempted murder of Midland police officer Walter Knight opted to take his chances on punishment with the judge rather than the jury and was meted out a 15-year penalty for the deed.

Judge Pat Baskin, who presided over the capital murder case against Mitchell Lee McDonald, was limited by law to a 20-year maximum punishment for the attempted-murder offense.

McDonald was indicted for firing three rounds at police officers Knight, 27, and Ricky Benton, about 25, after the defendant allegedly threatened to shoot Rudy Rodriquez in a street quarrel on the night of Sept. 28 just outside of Red's Drive-in cafe at 1807 E. Front Ave.

The policemen, draped in yellow raincoats on the misty night, witnessed the threat, yelled "Police!" in identifying themselves, and ordered McDonald to "Freeze!"

Instead, the defendant swung around, fired his .38-caliber pistol toward the officers, wounded a bystander, missed the officers but was hit twice — in the leg and foot — by the officers, who fired 10 rounds.

McDonald was being tried for shooting at Knight.

The prosecution had asked the jury to return a verdict of attempted capital murder, which would carry a punishment range from five years to 99 years or life in prison.

In rendering his verdict in the trial's punishment phase on Thursday, Baskin said that "the jury did not know or at least had reasonable doubts about" whether or not McDonald was aware the two men in plain yellow raincoats were peace officers.

In assessing punishment, Baskin said his intent was "to mete out justice" and not to "send out messages" to the community. Prosecutor David Joers had recommended that the maximum 20-year penalty would be a message to the community's criminal element that Midland County will not let crime go unpunished.

The prosecutor also said "but for the grace of God, we don't have two dead police officers and a capital murder case."

Baskin said that a person who tries to kill another but who "fails by reason of poor marksmanship...should expect to be dealt with harshly."

Furthermore, Baskin reasoned McDonald's alleged comment in a hospital room that "the next time I just won't miss" precluded "the concept of remorse" and smelt of defiance.

A policeman who was standing guard at McDonald's hospital room had testified that he had overheard the defendant threaten to get an even larger (.44-caliber) pistol once he got "out of here" and would not miss his targets.

In his arguments before the judge, Joers said McDonald should be "put away for a long time."

Defense attorney Tom Hirsch suggested that the judge consider a probated sentence or even shock probation for his client.

"It all happened so fast," Hirsch said of the incident. He said that seconds before McDonald turned and started firing, "he did not know who was behind him..." He thought it was Rudy Rodriquez's friends."

In the proceeding, the defense had asked a minister, the Rev. Rase Gowans of Greater Ideal Baptist Church, and bailbondsman-night club operator Odell Walker to testify on McDonald's character.

Gowans said the defendant's character was "very good" despite his being found guilty of burglary in 1975 and guilty of aggravated assault on a peace officer in 1973.

Walker agreed.

More than a dozen peace officers were in open court when Baskin, judge of the 142nd State Judicial District, assessed punishment.

Black youth found safe, returned to his parents

ATLANTA (AP) — A 14-year-old black youth who had been reported missing has been found safe and returned to his parents, a police spokeswoman said today.

Police found William Harris Thursday evening, according to spokeswoman Parthenia Jefferson, and he was reported to be back in school today.

The teen-ager had been reported missing by his father on Thursday.

His case was handled by the police department's missing persons unit, but notice also was given to the special police task force investigating the murders of 26 blacks and the disappearance last September of 10-year-old Darron Glass.

In other developments Thursday:

—The mothers of three victims held a news conference in Washington, D.C., to invite citizens to a "rendezvous for life's sake" in the nation's capital on May 25.

"Our schools don't teach any more, our children are dying on the streets, they are used as sex objects, kiddie porn flourishes, and drugs are being pumped into their little systems," said Camille Bell, mother of slain 9-year-old Yusef Bell. "When these things occur to anyone we consider it a war."

—Atlanta Police Chief George Napper said he had decided to seek the position of police chief in Berkeley, Calif., but said it had nothing to do with the string of slayings.

Napper is one of 10 people being considered for the job, which has been vacant since last fall, said Berkeley Personnel Director Lenore Griffin. Napper is a native of the east San Francisco Bay area and has been head of the Atlanta Police Department for three years.

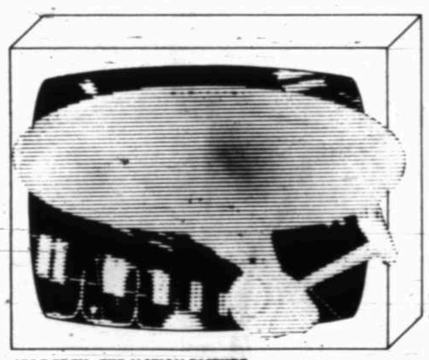

—Alabama mental health officials said the names of 14 former Bryce Hospital mental patients released into Georgia during an 18-month period prior to July 1979 when the killings began have been turned over to FBI agents investigating the Atlanta cases.

An FBI agent in Florida, Roy Klanger, said earlier this week that agents requested similar information from Florida mental hospitals and hospitals in other states. Klanger said the effort was a "long shot."

Prince Charles becomes Washington tourist

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, is a Washington tourist for a day, complete with a pilot's dream visit to the National Air and Space Museum and an informal meeting with President Reagan.

The museum was Charles' first public stop today on a four-day visit to the United States that winds up his four-week global tour that brought him to New Zealand, Australia and Venezuela.

The prince's meeting with Reagan in the Oval Office was characterized as an informal chat. Charles is scheduled to return to the White House for a more formal dinner Saturday night.

Charles arrived at Andrews Air Force Base on Thursday aboard a Royal Air Force plane, dapper in a gray suit despite the long flight from South America. He made no public remarks upon his arrival, although he did bypass his waiting motorcade to greet admirers who lined the fence at the air base ramp.

Several in the crowd of about 200 identified themselves as British subjects living in this country and waved Union Jacks and applauded politely as their prince approached. Charles smiled and chatted amiably in private tones to individuals in the crowd.

He was then whisked away with police escort to the British ambassador's residence, where he is staying while in Washington.

The Air and Space Museum is a highlight of the city's famed Smithsonian Institution and its displays record the history of flight from the first airplane flown by the Wright brothers to momentos of man's landing on the moon.

Charles is a pilot and talked briefly at Andrews with Brig. Gen. Archer Durham, ranking officer on the base and commander of the 76th Airlift Division.

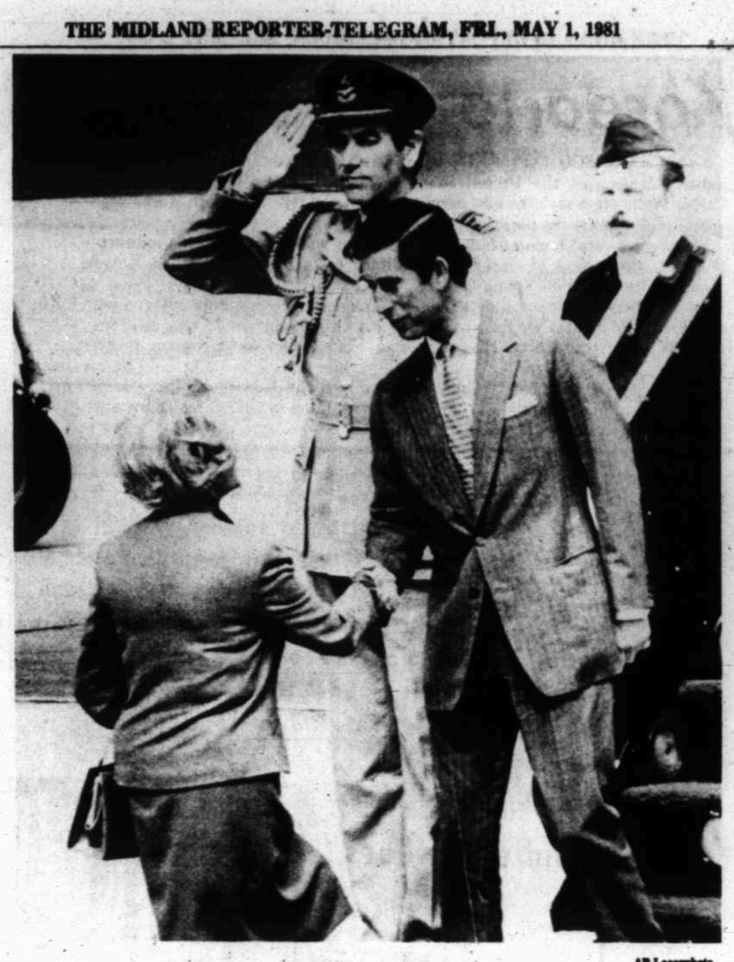

The Prince of Wales was scheduled to attend Evensong services at the Washington Cathedral this afternoon and was to be guest of honor at a dinner for graduates of Oxford and Cambridge universities now living in the United States. The prince is a Cambridge graduate.

There also was a private meeting of supporters of the United World Colleges program, which Charles heads as international president. He held a similar meeting in Venezuela during his stopover on the flight from Australia.

On Saturday, Charles goes to the U.S. naval base at Norfolk, Va., for a review of NATO forces. Then he goes to historic Williamsburg, which was the capital of Virginia when it was a British colony.

The College of William and Mary, second oldest in the Unites States, will make Charles an honorary fellow on Saturday, the principal public appearance of his stay here. Later he will visit the restored colonial city of Williamsburg.

The White House dinner Saturday night will feature several of Reagan's California friends, including movie stars Audrey Hepburn and Cary Grant. Other guests include songwriter Sammy Kahn, designer Galanos, and Ted Graber, who is redecorating the family quarters at the White House.

Israel's air attack may have violated agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is investigating whether Israel's use of American-made warplanes to attack Syrian and Palestinian forces in Lebanon violates an agreement that the aircraft are for self-defense only.

"We are aware that U.S.-supplied aircraft have been used in the fighting in Lebanon," the State Department said Thursday in a written reply to reporters' questions. "We are looking into the question of applicable agreements."

Sources said both U.S.-built F-4 and F-15 aircraft have been used in air attacks that included the downing of two Syrian helicopter gunships Tuesday and assaults on Palestinian positions.

"It presents a serious additional wrinkle" in the Lebanon conflict, said one official source, who asked not to be identified. "It hasn't escaped anyone's eyes."

Nevertheless, he said the United States doesn't plan to publicly criticize the Israelis or to lodge a protest with the Israeli government.

The official U.S. position was studied neutrality.

There were intense U.S. diplomatic efforts to kept the fighting from escalating further, with restraint urged on all sides.

The Washington Post today quoted unidentified administration officials as saying they particularly feared that the Israelis would try to destroy Soviet-built surface-to-air missile batteries the Syrians moved into eastern Lebanon on Wednesday after Israel shot down the two Syrian helicopters.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said, "We have taken some diplomatic steps about which we will not comment at this time." He described the situation in Lebanon as one "of grave concern for the United States."

State Department spokesman Dean Fischer declined to publicly criticize Sryia's deployment of the SAM-6 anti-aircraft missiles, but he said, "Any time developments such as this take place, they are a cause for concern."

Fischer said there was no evidence that Soviet advisers and technicians had accompanied the SAM missiles into Lebanon. Another official said privately he doubted very much that the Soviets would do this.

The Reagan administration has appealed to the Soviets to use their influence with Syria to try to defuse the conflict, which has resulted in heavy fighting beween a Syrian peace-keeping force and Christian militiamen in central Lebanon.

U.S. officials have expressed concern that the Syrians have moved to occupy mountain positions between Zahle and Beirut, which would give them a clear line of fire at the Christians, who are supported by Israel.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim discussed the fighting in Lebanon during a long meeting Thursday.

Alcohol, drug abuse discussed at Odessa College conference

ODESSA — "The Family, Alcohol and Drugs" was the focus of the 8th Regional Institute on Alcohol and Drug Abuse today at the Odessa College Student Union Building.

Family Communication, domestic violence, pharmacology, nutrition as a way to total wellness, family intervention, stress management of problem drinking and the psycho-social differences between men and women were topics featured at the Institute.

The workshop was being sponsored by the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, Odessa College, Texas Commission on Alcoholism, Texas Department of Community Affairs and the Permian Basin Task Force on Women, Alchol and Drugs.

The luncheon keynote speaker for the Institue will be Richard Finley, executive director of the Texas Association for the Prevention of Alcohol and Drug Abuse (TAPADA). The keynote speech, "Something Good is Happening," focused on the future of alcohol and drug abuse prevention, including a look at proposed legislation.

A special day-long workshop on dealing with a family member who is addicted to a chemical substance was held by John and Pat O'Neill of the La Hacienda Treatment Center of Hunt, Texas. The O'Neills are family intervention and training consultants and have extensive experience in the field. Part of their training process involves audience participation.

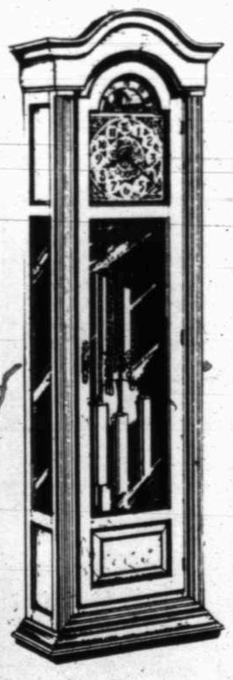

Several women's issues were addressed at the Institute. Marcia Friedman, director of the Women's and Prescription Drug Abuse Project of Dallas, spoke on the psycho-social differences between men and women, including how society "programs" women to act in certain ways. Eve McArthur of the Austin Center for Battered Women discussed the role of alcohol abuse in family violence. She was one of those recently featured on the "60 Minutes" segment on the Austin Center.

The role of nutrition as a way to total health and wellness was the subject of a presentation by Shirley Lewis. Lewis is the director of New Age Nutritional Consultants of Wichita Falls.

Family communication, how it breaks down and how it can be improved was discussed by Wayne Kritsberg of the Texas Commission on Alcoholism in Austin. Dr. James Olson, psychology professor at UTPB spoke on pharmacology-how drugs and alcohol affect the body and mind and Dr. Stephen Southern, director of the Counseling Center at Odessa College discussed stress management for problem drinking.

For more information regarding the Institute contact Cathy Clayton at 563-1061.

DEATHS

Clarence E. Parks

LAMESA — Clarence E. Parks, 76, of Lamesa died Wednesday night in a Lamesa hospital after a brief illness.

A memorial service will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at Branon Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Dick Schmidt officiating.

He was born Sept. 19, 1904, in Caruth, Mo., and had been a resident of Dawson County since 1927. He was a retired pharmacist. He was married to Bernice Reagan July 23, 1935, in Big Spring. She preceded him in death May 26, 1980.

He was a member of Rotary Club, American Legion and Retired Officers Association. He served in the U.S. Army during World War II, attaining the rank of lieutenant colonel. He was a former Lamesa city councilman.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Glenn Rogers of Midland; a son, Robert Parks of Poughkeepsie, N.Y.; five sisters, two brothers and two grandchildren.

The family requests memorials be made to a favorite charity.

Dr. Clarence Lokey

Dr. Clarence Lokey, 85, of Trinity Towers died Thursday evening at his residence.

Services will be at 3 p.m. Sunday in the First Methodist Church of Nacogdoches, directed by Cason, Monk & Co. Funeral Home of Nacogdoches. Local arrangements were handled by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Lokey was born Aug. 21, 1895, in Farmersville. He received a bachelor of arts degree in 1917 from Rice University, a masters of science degree in 1930 from Texas A&M University and a doctorate degree in psychology in 1947 from Texas A&M. Lokey earned his doctorate in divinity from Southwestern University in 1947. He was ordained to the ministry of the Methodist Church in 1920.

Lokey pastored churches in Beaumont in 1920-21, Douchette in 1922-24, Edgewood in 1930-32, and Nacogdoches in 1932-38.

He was executive secretary of the board of missions from 1948 to 1973 and also held other important positions in the Methodist Church during his lifetime. Lokey was listed in the South and Southwest Who's Who in 1967-68. He was a Rotarian and a Mason. He served in France during World War I.

Survivors include a son, Clarence W. Lokey Jr. of Houston; two daughters, Mrs. Warren (Mary) Barton of Midland and Mrs. Arthur (Anne) Kelley of Dallas; and three grandchildren.

Charlie Landreth

ODESSA — Services for Charlie F. Landreth, 90, of Odessa, stepfather of Modelle Baker of Midland, were Thursday at the Easterling Wilson Funeral chapel with burial at Sunset Memorial Gardens.

Landreth died Monday in an Odessa hospital after a lengthy illness.

Born March 21, 1891, in Indian Territory, Okla., he retired from farming in 1956 and moved to Odessa in January 1960 from Sulphur, Okla.

He was a member of the American Legion Post 430, the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4372, was a Veteran of World War I in the U.S. Army and a Baptist.

Other survivors include his wife, two daughters, a son, two stepdaughters, a stepson, two brothers, two grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

'Jack' Perry

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. — Services for W.B. "Jack" Perry, 69, of Oklahoma City, father of W. B. "Wes" Perry Jr. of Midland, will be at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Bill Merritt Funeral Home in Bethany, Okla. Burial arrangements are pending.

He died Thursday in an Oklahoma City hospital.

Perry was born July 25, 1911, in Dearborne, Mo. He was retired after 32 years as an employee of the foundary at Tinker Air Force Base.

Other survivors include his wife, and two granddaughters.

Korea to get $327 million in arms package

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Declaring the Carter administration's human-rights policies cost the United States valuable friends, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger says the new administration will provide South Korea with a $327 million weapons package.

Weinberger said Thursday human rights issues were discussed only indirectly during three days of closed-door military talks here with South Korean Defense Minister Choo Young Bock.

As Weinberger announced details of U.S. plans to provide South Korea with advanced F-16 fighter aircraft, he said the military aid would not escalate tensions with North Korea. He said it would offset the North Korean military buildup.

To pay for the weapons, Weinberger promised the Koreans military arms "sales credits" of $160 million in 1981 and $167 million in 1982. The Koreans will have 12 years to repay the loans.

Along with early-warning radar equipment, defense officials who briefed reporters said Weinberger promised the Koreans the "Stinger" air defense system, a 34-pound anti-aircraft missile carried by individual soldiers, 1,000 M-55-1 light tanks at a bargain price of $1,000 each and other light weapons.

"What we are concerned with is the mutual strengthening of the very necessary security arrangements between the Republic of Korea and the United States," Weinberger said at a news conference.

He said that for the past several years the United States has attempted to "tell other governments around the world that their human rights weren't as good as our human rights. And I think that we have done nothing but lose a number of valuable friends with very little advantage."

"We do not believe we are the moral guardians or keepers of the world, or that we are able to lecture or preach to the world," he said.

Haig departs for Rome

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. leaves for Rome today for a NATO foreign ministers meeting intended to lay the groundwork for talks with the Soviet Union on arms control in Europe.

The Reagan administration has been under heavy pressure from the allied countries to begin discussions with the Soviets on limiting so-called theater nuclear forces in Europe.

The Soviets have an estimated 220 SS-20 missiles with a total of 660 warheads targeted at Western Europe. To counter that buildup, the NATO countries agreed in 1979 to deploy 572 U.S.-provided cruise and Pershing II missiles in Western Europe beginning in 1983.

The NATO countries agreed to the missile deployment on the condition that the United States seek talks to limit the buildup.

Haig, a former commander of NATO military forces, has said repeatedly that the United States is committed to compliance with both parts of the NATO decision — the deployment and the negotiations.

Until now, the main unresolved issue has been when discussions would begin. The administration said it would not take the initiative as long as Poland seemed threatened by the now-concluded spring Warsaw Pact military exercises.

A Cabinet meeting in Washington on Thursday was supposed to nail down U.S. positions on the arms negotiations, but U.S. officials had no comment on the outcome.

Powerful left-wing movements throughout Western Europe are opposed to the missile deployment. Among the countries of the 15-nation alliance most affected, Britain, West Germany and Italy have agreed to accept a share of the missiles; Belgium and the Netherlands still have not decided.

Safety pamphlet confusion cleared up

Some confusion on the part of people receiving phone solicitations to buy ads in a driver's safety pamphlet has been cleared up, according to a spokesman for the Midland County Sheriff's Department.

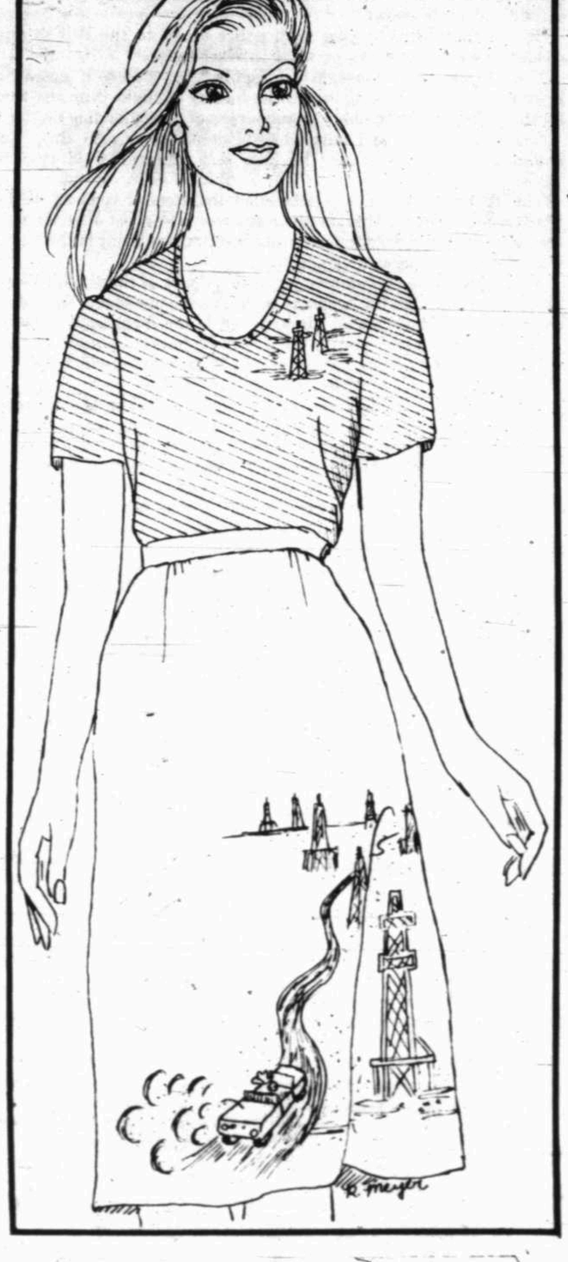

In a story in the Reporter-Telegram Thursday, it was asked that anyone being contacted to buy ads in the pamphlet, which was purportedly being sponsored by the Dawson County (Lamesa) Sheriff's Department, contact local authorities because the Dawson County Sheriff's Office had no knowledge of the promotion and had not authorized their name being used in connection with it.

"It apparently was a misunderstanding on the part of people who thought the sheriff's office in Dawson County was sponsoring the pamphlet," said a Midland County Sheriff's Department spokesman today. "They'd call up there and be told Dawson County knew nothing about it.

"It's being sponsored by the Dawson County Sheriff's Posse (an independent group that does volunteer work for that law enforcement agency). We told them to be sure people understand it's the Posse, and not the Sheriff's Department, that's sponsoring the pamphlet.

"The Posse is legitimate and the situation is straightened out now. There's nothing wrong with buying ads in the pamphlet."

Weldon Bason, programming analyst at Ortloff Corp., is also a volunteer with United Way.

Local business offers computers, time

From stamp licking to data processing is a long way, but volunteer activities in Midland have made the jump.

In fact, some volunteer organizations depend heavily upon computers to keep their records up to date. And considering the cost of computer time and expertise, few volunteer organizations would be able to afford the access to that technology they need. In Midland, however, the Ortloff Corporation has volunteered not only the computer time, but programming personnel to help three volunteer organizations keep their activities streamlined.

Junior Achievement, the Junior League and the United Way of Midland are plugged into Ortloff's Sperry Rand system with a computer expert assigned to work with each account.

Weldon Bason, a programmer analyst who has been with Ortloff for almost two years, found a real challenge facing him when he undertook the United Way work in September, 1979.

At that time, W.F. Ortloff was campaign chairman for the United Way and asked his computer staff if a data processing program for the organization would be feasible. Bason said yes and took on the project.

In one month, he converted a United Way program designed for another computer system and then fed in data which had been stored on a third kind of system.

Since then, he has helpd update programs and provide data to the United Way both during its fall campaigns and throughout the year as information was needed. Those tasks involved part of one day per week during the campaign, Bason explained, plus after-hours time of his own when special projects called for the extra effort.

One one occasion, says United Way Executive Director Sarah Smith, Bason worked around the clock when a computer malfunction threatened to delay information needed by other volunteers.

Bason hasn't seen any overtime pay for United Way work he has performed, nor did he expect to. But, he explains, it's a good feeling to know he's helped out and to better understand how the United Way is helping out.

DEAR ABBY

Ex-husband now near, but not dear

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Harold and I were divorced a year ago. As part of the property settlement, I got the house, and Harold got the vacant lot next to it that we also owned. My home and the vacant lot share a common, private driveway.

Harold is now building a house on that lot. (He's a building contractor.) I just learned that when the house is finished, he and his girlfriend and her children will move into it! I think this is going a bit too far. I am living here with my children, who are also Harold's, and under the circumstances I think living next door to my "ex," his girlfriend and her children would be very awkward for all concerned.

Harold insists that he needs this house he's building to live in. He says he is presently renting and can't afford to do anything else.

My house is in need of numerous repairs and could not be sold until such repairs are made, which I can't afford right now. So I am stuck.

Have you a solution? — STUCK IN A SMALL TOWN

DEAR STUCK: Obviously you can't prevent Harold from moving into the house he's building, so awkward or not, prepare to have him as your neighbor. Since you can't afford to change your address at this time, I suggest you change your attitude. Harold IS the father of your children, and it might be nice to have a man around the house — even if he's not yours.

DEAR ABBY: After 10 years of marriage, my husband decided he wanted out. No reason. He just wanted out. We are both 32. I still love him very much and didn't want him to leave, but I had no choice, so I accepted his decision with a heavy heart.

We have been apart for nearly a year, and now that I am beginning to adjust to the separation, he decides that he "misses being married." He says he wants to come back for six weeks, then he will decide whether he wants to stay with me forever or stay away forever.

What do you think? — WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Why should he dictate the terms of a possible reconciliation? Don't take him back unless you find out what went wrong with your marriage in the first place. Before allowing him to come back, see a family counselor, and insist that he get counseling, too. It's available through your Family Service Association. (It's in the phone book.) The organization offers excellent, confidential help, and fees are based on ability to pay.

DEAR ABBY: While agreeing with your comment, "A good way to handle a compliment is to smile and say, 'Thank you,'" I am reminded of the following: "The difference between Northern girls and Southern girls is, when a Northern girl is complimented on her appearance, she is likely to say, 'Gee, thanks.' A Southern girl will say, 'How kind of you to notice.'" This was pointed out to me by a Southern gentleman who is also a writer of distinction. — D. CORUM

DEAR D.: He may be a writer of distinction, but he's no gentleman.

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply, write to Abby, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Untold tales of Texas women

By MACK SISK
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Texas women saved the Alamo, rode and roped, flew flimsy early aircraft, robbed banks, drilled oil wells and set records in sports events.

They ran the Texas Supreme Court, made boots, invented liquid paper, wrote plays, sewed and designed clothing, cooked, changed diapers, worked in sweat shops, lobbbied for the vote and inspired their men and children to great achievements.

Texas women, like the men, worked and played hard and helped tame a tough frontier state.

The roles women played in developing Texas have been largely untold, says the Texas Foundation for Women's Resources, a condition the foundation plans to remedy beginning next week.

On May 10 an exhibit called "Texas Women — A Celebration of History," premiers at the Institute of Texas Cultures to tell a story its planners say has been neglected in most history texts until now.

"I don't think the people who write textbooks can plead ignorance of Texas women again," said Mary Beth Rogers, an Austin publicist who is directing the exhibit, the first of its kind in the nation.

Ms. Rogers and her helpers spent two years gathering the more than 200 rare photographs, costumes, paintings, documents and relics of the past from 2,000 sources including attics, diaries, museums and libraries.

The survey uncovered some 500 women who made significant contributions to their communities of the state, many achieving firsts in the nation. "We could fill a whole museum, but because of space limitations we can tell the stories of only a few," Ms. Rogers said.

"Texas Women" will be on exhibit at the Institute of Texan Cultures throughout the summer, then will make a two-year tour of the state. It is accompanied by a soon-to-be-published book detailing the exploits of traditionalist, as well as non-traditionalist women of Texas.

The display was conceived four years ago when Ann Richards, a Travis County Commissioner, toured the Institute of Texan Cultures, a permanent exhibit telling the stories of the various ethnic groups that settled in the state.

Mrs. Richards was accompanied by her two sons and two daughters, and after the tour one of the girls asked their mother, "where were all the women?"

Mrs. Richards' attempt to answer that question eventually led to development of the exhibit.

The ensuing two-year survey discovered that women created most of the cultural life in Texas — the museums, symphonies, parks, monuments and libraries — 85 percent of which were organized by Texas club women.

Women were also effective politicans and reformists, responsible for enancting legislation on child labor, infant health care, women's suffrage, prohibition, education and prison reform.

The exhibits range from the .38-caliber revolver that outlaw Bonnie Parker carried while she and Clyde Barrow rampaged across the state to a replica of the pink drilling rigs used by modern-day San Antonio oilwoman Irene Wischer.

Using photographs, artifacts, diary excerpts and words of the women themselves, the exhibit attempts to depict not only the state's most accomplished heroines, but also reveals the struggles, sorrows and joys of the more typical women, Ms. Rogers said.

"We've tried to include stories of interest to men and children, as well as women," she said. "It has a broad appeal to traditionalist women, club women, working women, career women... It's free. We wanted it to be free. We want people to come and see it."

The Texas Commission For Humanitiies provided the initial seed money for research and development, but the women supporters of the project raised another $300,000 from private sources to complete the exhibit.

"I don't think that much money has ever been raised by women for a project about women before," Ms. Rogers said.

A sampling of women depicted in the exhibit includes:

—Heffie O.A. Conner, Texas's first black county home demonstration agent who helped eliminate the public school common drinking cup — a source of continuous illness among school children.

—Clara Driscoll, the Corpus Christi heiress who wrote a $25,000 check in 1903 to save the Alamo froom commercial exploitation and who later was a successful Broadway playwrite.

—Bette Graham, a Dallas secretary whose kitchen experiments produced liquid paper and a multimillion-dollar corporation. The mixer she used to create the product is on display.

—Jovita Idar, who organized La Liga Feminil Mexicanista in San Antonio in 1911 to promote the rights of women.

Designer reviews Fiandaca fashion show

NEW YORK (AP) — What do you do when hemlines become ho-hum, tweeds become trying and brocades just plain boring?

Do what designer Clovis Ruffin did. Tuck away drawing board and take out pen and pad. He didn't do a fall line. Instead, he's covering fashion for a New York weekly.

"I was working 10 years and I just really wanted to see the world," he said in a front row seat before Fiandaca showed his couture collection for fall.

"I want to rethink it all," the moustached Ruffin said. "I spent a year pinning hems and doing samples."

Ruffin poised his camera, as the Fiandaca show began on a makeshift runway in the Grand Ballroom of the Plaza Hotel.

"What a fabulous lapel," he said, as a model swept by in a black double faced crepe two-button suit.

Fiandaca's suits and coats are carefully tailored with bias cuts and double facing. The lines are classically straight and conventional.

A straight black cashmere coat was trimmed down the front with silver fox fur. Cuffs also were trimmed in fox. It was worn over a simple black woolen dress with high neck and ties in the back.

Silver fox trim also adorned a black double-faced gabardine suit.

Kidnapping concern among businessmen

NEW YORK (AP) — More than half the executives from the 43 percent of Fortune 1000 companies with overseas ties to countries where terrorist attacks occur express strong kidnapping concerns, according to a recent national survey which explored the responses of senior executives from these companies to fear of crime.

About two-thirds of the executives have installed intensive security programs, and an even higher 73 percent maintain a staff security specialist in place.

The study "The Figgie Report, Part II, The Corporate Response to Fear of Crime," found that as representatives of multinational corporations which play an influential, highly visible role in their host countries, these senior executives are seen as personifications of their company and its policies. This position leaves them with a strong sense of vulnerability because a kidnapping can occur almost anytime or anywhere.

In companies that do not have strong overseas bonds, only about a quarter of their executives voice similar kidnapping concerns. Nearly four out of 10 Fortune 1000 executives are disturbed about the possibility of an arson attack against corporate property.

Unlike the general public, in an earlier study, who evidenced a sense of powerlessness in coping with the effects of crime on their lives, the corporate community has taken an aggressive stand on implementing security measures both on their own behalf and on that of their companies.

Fifty-three percent of Fortune 1000 executives secure their homes with burglar alarms and similar safety measures. More than one in four have unlisted numbers and keep the location of their houses confidential. More than one in three vary daily routes to work and, when traveling, one in four check their hotel rooms for possible intruders.

To protect their corporations, these executives also take extensive precautions. More than three of every five companies have burglar alarms and electric floodlighting. Half have automatic light timers and closed-circuit television.

Power-stirring paint without splatter

By AL CARRELL

The attachment for a power drill that does paint stirring is a boon, but it can also be a curse. If you use it on a full or near full bucket of paint, or if you start the drill before the mixer is in place, or if you don't stop it before you extract the mixer, you splatter paint all over. A brown paper grocery bag will let you make any of these errors and still not splatter. Just put the bucket down into a large paper bag, and you can stir away. Of course, you still do better to mix by pouring part of the paint into another container before employing the power mixer, and then to pour it back and forth for even better blending. Remember that proper mixing is important during the paint job as well as at the very start.

Dear Al: Did you ever have a tool go sliding away when you laid it down on a sloping roof while working up there? I salvaged a big piece of styrofoam packing from a ceiling fan I bought. You find this stuff in the box with lots of appliances and electronics. It has a good grip even on a slope and can hold all the tools and materials for most roof repair jobs. Mine didn't even have to be hollowed out because it already had indentations that would hold the tools. — A.A.

+ + +

Dear Al: You once told how to pack a reamed-out screw hole with toothpicks so the screw would again fit to hold. I have another, easier way. I merely insert a plastic wall anchor. Then when the screw is installed into the anchor, the anchor expands and holds tight. I even used this trick for a loose hinge screw for a heavy door, and it's holding. — L.L.V.

+ + +

A SUPER HINT — The nozzles on aerosol cans have a way of getting clogged before all the contents are gone. Many folks slip the plastic nozzles off and keep them soaking in a small jar of solvent. An easier way is to slip the nozzle off immediately after use. Then put it onto a can of spray lube, the type that also acts as a penetrating oil.

Top designer fashions featured at show

Almost 300 members of the Midland Country Club Ladies Association attended the style show Wednesday featuring spring and summer fashions from Sakowitz.

Fashions modeled were exclusive designer clothes. Commentator was Geri Halpin, director of Halco modeling agency, who spoke in place of Robert Sakowitz. Sakowitz was unable to attend due to a death in his family.

Fashions were by top international designers, among those Victor Costa, Bill Blass, Kenzo, Montana, Geoffrey Beene, Carol Rhodes, Yves St. Laurent, Christian Dior, Albert Nipon, Oscar de la Renta, Valentino, and Pierre Cardin.

Ms. Halpin said that the Midland Sakowitz store is to open in the spring of 1982.

"Many of these designers will no doubt be visiting the Midland store to introduce their line of fashion," she said.

The show began with a showing of avant-garde outfits modeled by professional models from Houston.

"Mr. Robert (Sakowitz) feels that these innovational fashions are for a small minority, though these are more often publicized bacause they are so innovational," said Ms. Halpin. "Perhaps only a small five percent of American women would wear these fashions."

This line featured bright colors, unusual silhouettes and different hem lengths. For example, Claude Montana of Italy had designed a two piece pantsuit, with hem in the walking shorts or culotte length. This outfit was in coral red linen with bright accessories. Shoes were flat sandals.

"One's shoes depend on hem length," explained Ms. Halpin. "As skirts or pant hem goes up, shoe heels go down."

Many of the fashions in the innovational line featured loose tunic or blouson tops, wide shoulder silhouettes tapering to a small waistline, ankle-length pants and flat ballet shoes. Colors were a melange of bright oranges, reds, purples, etc.

One of the more outstanding designs of this group was by Kenzo, who had designed a white silk embroiered cocoon jacket over a baggy straight-legged pantsuit. Color was a marbelized white.

The slightly innovational grouping of designs was just slightly less "bizzare" than the former group, still unusual, but more wearable, said Ms. Halpin.

Many of the fashions in this group featured a double "skirt over skirt" look.

Sakowitz divides fashions still further into the directional grouping for clients who are experimental, with just a touch of the avant garde, but who lean to the more classic designs.

In this group was the popular three-piece look. Outfits often featured a droppd shouler, straight cut skirts, and spaghetti straps.

The classic look received the most favorable reaction from those attending, with the most popular being the classic three-piece outfit. Jackets were often in linen cloth and in spring colors of yellow, apricot, blue, etc.

Albert Nipon introduced a design featuring a cotton tunic and skirt, with tucking and pleating over a dropped torso skirt. Color was navy and plum.

Halston introduced an Aztec design in plum on white. It featured a silk halter-cut top with jacket and cigarette slim pants with ended just above the ankles. This was worn with a gently shaped tall heel.

Oscar de la Renta's familiar "femininity personified" look remained in all of his designs, some featuring puffed jackets, ruffles, embroidered Russian suede fabric, silk and chiffon.

Bill Blass, who often designs for First Lady Nancy Reagan, marks a return to elegance. and formality for American women, said Ms. Halpin.

"You can be several of these styles," she told the audience, "depending on your lifestyle, tastes, desires and age.

Music Week marked by several events here

A muscial to be held Sunday at the First Baptist Church, 2104 W. Louisiana, and a choir concert to be held Thursday at Midland College are upcoming events that will mark the recognition of National Music Week, May 3 - May 10.

The purpose of this annual observance is to focus the attention of the public on music as a dynamic means of communication. National Music Week was first honored in 1924 and began to gain recognition when Charles M. Termaine, director of the Natonal Bureau for the Advancement of Music, promoted the week on an international scale.

In honor of the week, Bertha Johnson, a local piano teacher has been named Music Teacher of the Year by the Midland Music Teachers Association.

Broward County's aged may indicate trend

By SAM KAPLAN
The Los Angeles Times

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — He is usually in Bermuda shorts, a bright sport shirt and a smart golf cap and she in a neat, polyester print dress. They are the elderly and can be seen everywhere here in Broward County: at the beach and pool ides, sunning; at shopping malls, browsing; race tracks, making $2 bets; medical clinics, waiting; condominium offices, complaining; public hearings, testifying; recreation halls, playing cards; senior centers, dabbling in crafts; schools, auditing courses; on lounge chairs, gossiping, and in restaurants, taking advantage of the popular "early bird" reduced-price daily specials.

The elderly dominate the Broward landscape, shaping its economy, mastering its politics and molding its life style. No other age or special-interest group approaches them in numbers and influence. "We're very much alive and alert pursuing our theme of advocacy," says Edith Lederberg, of the county's Area Agency on Aging.

The present Broward experience offers hints of what the scenario might be for other counties and communities across America as they in time also age. According to the report of the President's Commission for a National Agenda for the Eighties, Broward County was cited as having a distribution of age groups that "today mirrors the 1995 demographic projections for the entire nation."

The age groups in Broward break down at present to about 19 percent for those up to 14 years old, 19 percent for 15-to-29-year-olds, 15 percent for 30-to-44-year-olds, 17 percent for 45-to-59-year-olds and 30 percent for the 60-year-olds and over, the latter being classified as the elderly. About 17 percent of the current U.S. population is estimated to be 60 years and older.

Demographers do not believe the percentage of national elderly will match the 1995 prediction of the President's Commission. The date they ay more likely will be 2010 or 2020, when the babies born in the population boom after World War II reach 60 years of age. Whenever, it is just a question of time. As every report of the Bureau of the Census indicates, America is aging.

Broward can be considered a privileged preview in that most of its elderly population had the means to move there in search of a comfortable place in the sun to live out their remaining years. About 36 percent came from the New York metropolitan area and 31 percent from other parts of the Northeast and from the Midwest. They have spurred the growth of the county from a population of 333,946 in 1960 to a present estimated 1,007,500.

Not as crowded as Dade County to the south or as expensive as Palm Beach to the north, Broward offers for those who can pay a wide range of housing, from $30,000 mobile homes to $250,000 high-rise condominiums, and recreation from bocci to golf.

The elderly are attracted by friends and relatives who already have moved to Broward and by aggressive sales campaigns in the Northeast for retirement communities in the county. The advertising presents a busy daily schedule in the developments of, among other things, bridge tournaments, canasta, slimnastic classes, lectures, social events, entertainment and sports. It is an appeal to the so-called senior-summer-camp syndrome.

"I paid for my son's summer camp," explains a man basking in the sun beside a condominium pool. "I also paid for summer camp for my grandsons; may they remember and once in a while send me a postcard. And now, finally, I'm getting to go to my own summer camp. It's great."

"We've earned it," adds Molly Kaufman, a resident of Hawaiian Gardens, an 1,800-unit condominium. She and her neighbors, Sylvia Feinberg, Betty Bromberg and Henrietta Wallach, stoutly defended their way of life, with Feinberg using the oft-quoted phrase of the elderly here, "We've paid our dues."

As in most retirement communities, there are substantially more women than men, with ratios averaging three and four to one. The imbalance causes serious problems, according to Rose Swedlow, a Florida generontologist. "There is more infidelity and divorce among the elderly here than you would expect," she says.

The elderly are not shy in exercising their political power, whether it be getting a traffic light installed or supporting a complicated tax bill that favors seniors. They are constantly demanding the attention of legislators, packing public meetings, testifying at hearings and lobbying in the local and state chambers.

"And they are listened to for the simple reason that they vote, and usually in blocs," says Earl Chessler, a county resident of 35 years. "They've changed the nature of politics down here. It is really something to watch."

Politics, it appears, is a popular hobby of the elderly. "We read the newspapers, the magazines and watch television to keep up with the issues," says Kaufman. "We're informed, concerned and we have the time to make an effort."

The elderly have other powers in Broward beyond politics. The county and its 29 municipalities are quite sensitive to the fact that their economies are primarily based on the elderly, whose Social Security payments, investments and pensions pump nearly $2 billion a year into the area.

"The seniors have what is called a high-consumption mode. They spend," says Neil Sterling, a Fort Lauderdale businessman and civic leader. "Their steady incomes, in good times and bad, lend stability to our local economy," adds Willard Wilson, administrator of the County Planning Council.

Inflation, however, is taking its toll. Living on fixed incomes, more and more elderly are having a difficult time keeping up with the increasing cost of living. About 15 percent of Broward's elederly live below the federal poverty level, compared to 13 percent nationally.

This has led to demands by the elderly for more free or subsidized services such as day care for the fragile, hot meals, legal counseling and medical care.

"This pressure on existing relationships adds to the problems many have adjusting to their retirement, especially men whose self-esteem is tied to their being a provider," adds Swedlow,

White seeks dam project assistance

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Attorney General Mark White has asked the federal government to take a closer look at a proposed dam and reservoir project in the Pecos River in New Mexico which could affect water supplies in West Texas.

White has requested that the Governor's Budget and Planning Office enlarge its report to the U.S. Water and Power Resources Service on the possible impact the project may have on the Pecos River in Texas.

For eight years, Texas and New Mexico have been involved in litigation over claims by this state that New Mexico has failed to deliver the proper portion of water on the Pecos under the guidelines of the Pecos River Compact.

The Brantly Dam and Reservoir Project is planned for abut 15 miles north of the Texas-New Mexico border.

Firms get OK to sell securities

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Two Midland-based oil drilling partnerships have received approval from Securities Commissioner Richard Latham to offer for sale over $10 million in securities.

EPC 1981-Ltd. received authorization to sell $5.11 million and MGF 81 Ltd. gained approval for $6.25 million.

The two applications were among 38 applications, totaling $138.61 million, granted over the past two weeks.

MGF 81 Ltd. also has applied for authorization to sell another $3.75 million in securities. Two other Midland oil drilling partnerships have filed applications for authorization to sell: CPI Ltd., 1981/A, for $8.44 million; CPI Ltd., 1981/B, for $8.44 million.

The above applications were among 55 worth $91.31 million filed during the past two weeks.

Central Y offers risk mini-course

Central YMCA will conduct a mini-course dealing with the factors which increase the risk of heart disease. The course, entitled "Risk Factors," will be offered May 5 at the IBM offices at 900 W. Wall St.

The mini-course is a 1½ hour introduction to help individuals define the risk factors and discuss potential solutions to reduce the risk of heart disease through personal action.

The course will be led by Dr. Brian Mohr, Midland cardiologist, and will begin at 5:15 p.m.

Fee for the session is $5 and may be paid at the Central YMCA. For further information, please contact Brenda Ginnings at the Central YMCA, 682-2551.

Y offering health course

Weight Management, Health and Nutrition will be the topic May 7 for the fourth mini-course offered by the Central YMCA.

The course is one of a series of nine introductory courses geared at providing education and increasing awareness of the benefits of overall physical fitness.

Mike Sparts, LVN, from Medical Weight Loss Clinic, will discuss the importance of proper nutrition in controlling weight problems and in maintaining overall physical fitness.

The course will begin at 5:15 p.m. at the IBM office at 900 W. Wall St. Fee is $5 and may be paid at the Central YMCA. The class will be limited to 30 participants.

Singer George Jones, winner of three Country Music Awards, hugs singer Barbara Mandrell, voted entertainer of the year, during the 16th Annual Country Music Awards ceremony in Los Angeles Thursday. Jones won in the best single, song of the year and male vocalist categories.

Jones, Mandrell take country music honors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Jones, one of country music's top male singers, and Barbara Mandrell, who has parlayed her country career into a weekly television series, came out on top in this year's Academy of Country Music Awards.

Jones recently overcame a near-fatal bout with alcoholism and made a dramatic comeback with the hit, "He Stopped Loving Her Today." That song won him single-record-of-the-year and song-of-the-year honors Thursday night, and the 49-year-old singer was chosen top male vocalist.

Miss Mandrell, whose Saturday night series on NBC, "Barbara Mandrell and the Mandrell Sisters," has just been renewed for the fall season, was named entertainer of the year.

"I was country when country wasn't cool," Miss Mandrell said, borrowing the lyrics from a song she has just released. "My success is a combination of my wanting it with all my heart and the inevitable popular acceptance of country music."

"I'm so happy. This is the greatest thing that has happened to me in 49 years. I guess you gotta hang in there," said Jones, who received little industry recognition until this year and hasn't enjoyed the pop sales of some other country stars.

THE AWARD was presented to him by his ex-wife, Tammy Wynette. Jones sang his "He Stopped Loving Her Today" at the ceremony and, changing the lyrics, sang: "If drinkin' don't kill me, Tammy's memory will."

Dolly Parton, nominated for five awards, was named top female vocalist. But she did not attend the ceremony.

Johnny Lee, who burst on the country scene last year with "Lookin' for Love," from the movie "Urban Cowboy," picked up top new male vocalist honors.

"Urban Cowboy" was a huge box office success and is credited by many with greatly increasing popular acceptance of country music. The academy chose the movie's soundtrack, which contains songs from a number of artists, as album of the year.

THE MOVIE of the year award went to "Coal Miner's Daughter," the story of country music queen Loretta Lynn, which stars Sissy Spacek. Miss Lynn was to have been at the ceremony but recently was hospitalized in Nashville, Tenn.

Blind singer Terri Gibbs, picked top new female vocalist of the year, won a standing ovation from the audience. Her "Somebody's Knockin'" has been a huge success on country charts.

Alabama, a group composed of four musicians from that state who have suddenly emerged as important figures in country music, was named top vocal group of the year.

Kenny Rogers, who has turned his country music career into something of a pop music career, came up the loser at the 16th annual ceremony.

He had been nominated in six categories, including entertainer of the year and top male vocalist. But he has failed to win any awards from the academy in the past two years.

COMEDIAN George Burns won the academy's first special achievement award.

Junior should sample some 'clean living'

ATLANTA (AP) — "Medicine, weight loss and clean living" is the prescription for "Hee Haw" star Junior Samples, who has been hospitalized in serious condition with hardening of the arteries, doctors say.

Samples, 54, a regular on the country music television show since 1969, has been in the intermediate intensive care unit at Atlanta's Northside Hospital since he suffered chest pains Monday, said his physician, Dr. Fred Bennett.

Tests indicated that the Cumming, Ga., man had not suffered a heart attack but did have coronary atherosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries, the physician said.

"It is not severe enough to warrant coronary bypass surgery," Bennett said. However, it will be "at least a month" before the comedian can return to work on "Hee Haw."

Meanwhile, Samples is "very chipper" and "in fine spirits," Bennett said. "He's joking with the nurses and with me."

●

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Scots traveling between Glasgow and Edinburgh now can take their seats on the "Lady Diana."

British Railways on Thursday marked the engagement of Britain's Prince Charles by naming a train after his fiancee, Lady Diana Spencer.

Sir Peter Parker, chairman of the state-owned rail system, said the name was the "natural winner" of a local radio station competition.

The 19-year-old honoree sent a telegram saying she could not attend the naming ceremony, but was "most grateful and touched."

●

FALMOUTH, England (AP) — The two oils are "nothing exceptional," but the paintings owned by Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip are likely to be star attactions at an exhibition here.

The landscapes were painted by their second son, 21-year-old Prince Andrew, while he was in high school in Canada. The display that opens here Monday is to be a tribute to crews at the nearby navy helicopter base where Andrew, now a midshipman, won his pilot's wings.

"They are good amateur pictures," said town clerk and exhibition organizer Eric Dawkins. "Nothing exceptional, but well worth showing no matter who painted them."

Andre gave the paintings to his parents, who have given permission for them to be shown.

Gibson bill is passed in House

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Rep. Jay Gibson, D-Odessa, obtained final House Passage Wednesday of his legislation to expand the jurisdiction of the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Gibson's House Bill 1801 would expand the district's territory to include all of the land within the city limits of Big Spring, Odessa and Snyder. Currently, the district extends only to the city limits as they were in 1949.

The legislation, approved 131-5, also allows the district to issue tax-exempt bonds to finance pollution control facilities under construction by local industries.

Opponents of the bill contend that the bill is needed to help build Stacy Dam, a project which some contend will decrease the water supply on the lower Colorado River.

The three Austin representatives present voted against the measure, as well as Robert Saunders of La Grange and Leroy Wieting of Portland. All three cities are on the Colorado River.

PUC OKs installation of lines

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Public Utility Commission has approved applications from two Midland-area electric utilities to install transmission lines.

The commission approved the plans for West Texas Utilities Co. to install lines in Pecos and Coke counties. The Pecos County line will cost $320,000 and will serve a proposed oil field pumping project. The Coke County line, and an associated substation, will provide additional service to the Silver and Spade Ranch area. Estimated cost is $1.84 million.

Texas Electric Service Co. received authorization to install transmission lines in Midland, Upton and Martin counties. The Midland and Upton line, estimated to cost $2.87 million, will help provide for an increasing load in the Midkiff Service Center. The Martin County line, estimated to cost $27,800, will provide support to Cap Rock Electric Cooperative.

Two area persons paroled

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements, acting upon the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Paroles, has approved the release from prison of two persons convicted of crimes in the Midland area.

Gerald Chase was paroled to Ector County officials after serving and earning one year and six months of a two-year sentence. Chase was convicted in October 1980 in Ector County of burglary with intent to commit theft.

Jose Quesada was released on mandatory supervision to El Paso County officials after serving and earning all of a five-year sentence. Quesada was convicted in March 1978 in Brewster County of burglary of a motor vehicle and in May 1978 in Presidio County of possession of marijuana.

Researchers say pleasant thoughts can relieve pain

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Mention pain killers and many people think of drugs. But two university researchers say pleasant thoughts also can reduce discomfort.

John Horan of Penn State and Gail Hackett of Ohio State taught 81 volunteers how to endure the discomfort of holding their hands in ice water by imagining themselves, for example, lying in a beautiful meadow where birds sing under a warm and cloudless sky.

In applying the technique, called "stress inoculation," the volunteers also were taught to relax their muscles and lessen their expectations of pain.

"If we think we're going to have a lot of pain, we will," Horan said.

By combining all three — muscle relaxation, pleasant thoughts and lowered expectations of pain — some of the volunteers were able to significantly increase their tolerance to pain, Horan said.

The experiment was described in an article published in the Journal of Counseling Psychology. The work was part of the search for alternatives to drugs and surgery for relieving pain.

Horan said he's not certain what types of pain can be controlled through stress inoculation.

"It might be appropriate for certain kinds of pain and not for others. It might help people prepare for child birth. It might be appropriate for minor surgery and certain kinds of dental work," he said.

But "I wouldn't want to have anyone's appendix taken out at this stage of development."

The Newspaper BIBLE

THE WORLD'S MOST TALKED ABOUT EVENT

The same day, Sunday, two of Jesus' followers were walking to the village of Emmaus, seven miles out of Jerusalem. As they walked along they were talking of Jesus' death, when suddenly Jesus Himself came along and joined them and began walking beside them! But they didn't recognize Him, for God kept them from it.

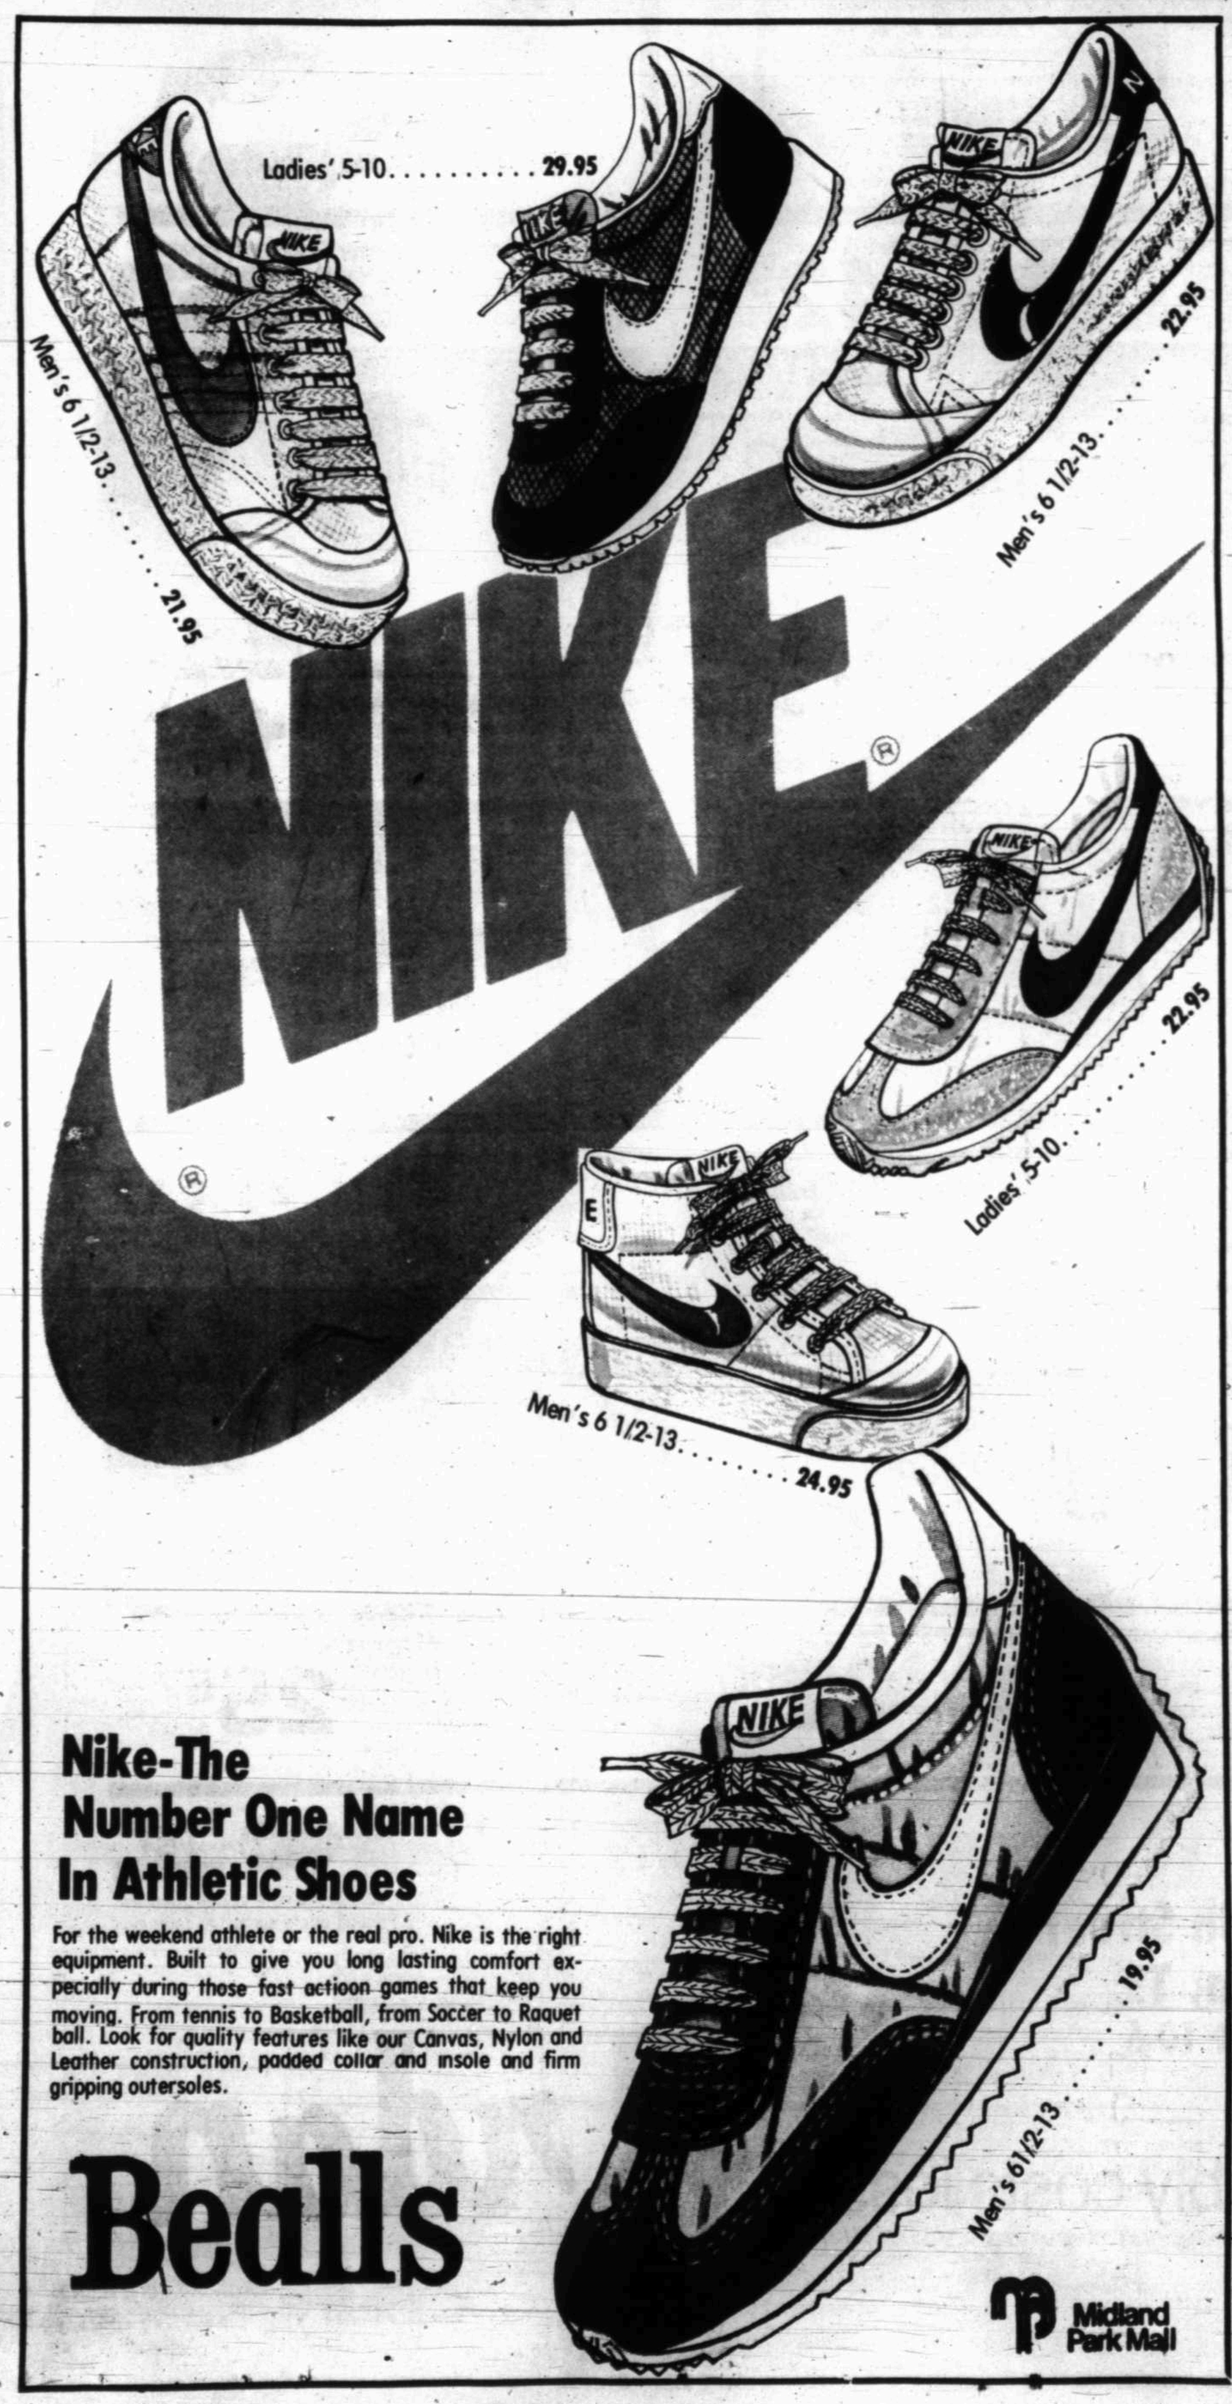

"You seem to be in a deep discussion about something," He said. "What are you so concerned about?" They stopped short, sadness written across their faces.

And one of them, Cleopas, replied, "You must be the only person in Jerusalem who hasn't heard about the terrible things that happened there last week."

"What things?" Jesus asked. "The things that happened to Jesus, the man from Nazareth," they said. "He was a Prophet who did incredible miracles and was a mighty Teacher, highly regarded by both God and man. But the chief priests and our religious leaders arrested Him and handed Him over to the Roman government to be condemned to death, and they crucified Him.

"We had thought He was the glorious Messiah and that He had come to rescue Israel. And now, besides all this--which happened three days ago--some women from our group of His followers were at His tomb early this morning and came back with an amazing report that His body was missing, and that they had seen some angels there who told them Jesus is alive! Some of our men ran out to see, and sure enough, Jesus' body was gone, just as the women had said."

Block looking forward to 'spring planting'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block is going home to Illinois next week to help plant corn, tend the hogs and "get out of the loony bin for a little bit."

"It's simply a way of keeping his sanity," said Block aide John Ochs, discounting any possibility that going back to the farm would be a conflict of interest for the agriculture secretary.

Block, whose family's holdings involve a multimillion-dollar operation on 3,000 acres that turns out 6,000 hogs a year, has been telling audiences recently that he is looking forward to the visit so he can help with the spring planting.

But Block says he has to play the role of a hired man and not engage in running the show as he did until a few months ago. He plans to be on the farm May 7-10.

Under terms of his appointment to the Cabinet, Block agreed to specific financial arrangements involving his share of the family enterprise and signed a promise not to be involved in running the business.

Describing his plan to plant corn, Block told a meeting of the Newspaper Farm Editors of America earlier this week that he tries "to stay in very close contact" with his family's farming operation and plans to visit it often.

"In this position, I'm not allowed to get involved in management of the farm," Block said. "I must take a set return each year so that I cannot personally profit from decisions that I might make," he said.

Last Jan. 15, in his financial disclosure statement filed with the Office of Government Ethics, Block said his assets were at least $3.3 million and was responsible with business associates for liabilities of at least $5.1 million.

The report also showed he had an annual income of between $172,709 and $291,396, which included his salary of $40,800 as Illinois state agriculture director. Block's salary now is $69,630.

Block said that during his tenure as secretary he would collect an income from his farming partnership at a fixed rate of return of 8 percent on "the value of my existing financial investment in the partnership, but in no event shall my return exceed amounts distributed to me in prior years."

No dollar amount was reported.

Block said he believed the financial arrangement and the promise not to be involved in running his family's business "will avoid not only the occurrence of any actual conflict of interest, but even the possible appearance of any conflict" while in government.

Farm bill will go to full Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, losing the battle to cut farm supports in the Republican-controlled Senate Agriculture Committee, will have to carry the fight to the full Senate, his top supporter on the panel says.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., says it is unlikely that the 18-member committee will reverse itself on programs that cost some $7.5 billion more than the administration wants to spend in the new four-year farm bill, says Sen. Richard G. Lugar, R-Ind.

"That is not in the cards in this committee," Lugar said after Thursday's session. "It's not in the cards for wheat. It's not in the cards for feed grains. It's not in the cards for rice or cotton."

"I offered the administration's program for wheat. I got five votes," he said. "I offered the administration's program for corn. I got five votes. I proposed to do away with the peanut program. I got four votes.

"I'm willing to accept the lay of the land in this committee...and later take another look, perhaps on the floor," Lugar said.

At Thursday's session, the committee discarded Reagan's price support programs for corn and feed grains, rice, cotton and peanuts and approved alternatives costing as much as $2.6 billion more.

"Clearly we're talking severe cost overruns," said

AGRICULTURE

William Lesher, the Agriculture Department's chief economist. "The committee may have to take another look at this, given the budget."

Chairman Jesse Helms, R-N.C., has warned his colleagues of a possible veto because of the bill's burgeoning cost. He said "adjustments" will have to be made before the bill can be sent to the full Senate.

"As far as spending in this committee goes, I'm wondering if the horse hasn't jumped over the cart," Helms said. "The question is are we going to catch the horse."

In addition to the support programs approved Thursday, the committee also has approved, over the administration's objections, $1.1 billion more for dairy supports, $1.8 billion more in wheat supports and as much $2 billion extra for export credit.

While much of the cost of the price support loan programs is eventually recovered as loans are repaid with interest, the administration is concerned about high support levels because of the initial federal spending they will require. The support programs are intended to stabilize supply and price of commodities and provide farmers with short-term financing.

The support levels approved by the committee Thursday for 1982 crops are $2.65 a bushel for corn, $8 a hundred pounds for rice, $650 a ton for peanuts and 55 cents a pound for upland cotton.

Except for peanuts, the support plans also call for farmers to get direct government payments if, under certain circumstances, the average price of their commodities falls below set target prices. That support method is unacceptable to the administration.

Commodity prices dip again, but index still up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm commodity prices dipped again in April, averaging 0.4 percent less than they did the month before, the Agriculture Department says.

Even so, the department's Crop Reporting Board said Thursday, the price index was up 16 percent from a year earlier.

Officials said lower prices for tomatoes, broilers, soybeans, wheat, peppers, corn, lettuce and oranges contributed most to the decline.

However, higher prices were reported for cattle, eggs and cotton, which helped offset the decline for the other commodities, the department's Crop Reporting Board said.

The report also said that revised figures for March showed the price index declining 0.4 percent, instead of the 1.9 percent drop indicated by the preliminary report a month ago.

The April report showed that prices farmers pay to meet expenses rose 1 percent from March and averaged 11 percent above a year ago.

According to the preliminary April figures — which are based mostly on midmonth averages — prices of meat animals as a group rose 3.3 percent from March. The index also was up 5.4 percent from a year earlier.

Downs swept by argument

By MELVIN DURSLAG
Hearst Special News Service

LOUISVILLE, Ky. – Understandably, a large argument is taking place at Churchill Downs today over the involuntary departure from the Kentucky Derby of the California runner, Flying Nashua.

Shipped to Louisville at a time of year beauty is exploding in countless places on this earth, and enlisting as his rider Mr. Angel Cordero, who talks to horses in two languages, Flying Nashua and two others were bumped from the race when, for the first time, the limit rule of 20 was invoked.

This piece of legislation was born shortly after the 100th running of the Derby in 1974 when 23 entrants created a stampede not entirely appreciated by those astride the animals.

Not anxious to split the Derby into two divisions, and less anxious to eliminate it entirely, the folks at Churchill Downs decided to trim all future fields to 20, basing entrance requirements on a primitive consideration called money.

IN OTHER words, the 20 with the highest bankrolls would be admitted to the race.

Well, it developed this year that Flying Nashua, 21st in earnings, turned up $20,000 short of the filly, Wayward Miss, meaning bon voyage for Flying Nashua, even though Wayward Miss, who drew the No. 20 post position in the Derby, was a more serious candidate for the Kentucky Oaks on Friday.

If she scratched from the Derby, no provision in the rules allowed for Flying Nashua to move in as a replacement.

So a lot of debating was under way on this hallowed ground, where Derbys began 107 years ago. Should earnings alone decide the field? Should other considerations be introduced? Or should all contenders be admitted, as they were for the first 100 years?

GROVER DELP, the trainer of Spectacular Bid, doesn't approve of the current system.

"The only sensible way," says Delp, "is for an independent panel of racing secretaries to start grading the 3-year-old contenders for several weeks before the Derby. They should bring their figures up to date and submit them before the race. The consensus based on their figures should decide the Derby field."

Eddie Arcaro, who now offers his erudition to viewers of ABC, admits readily that money is a frivolous criterion for deciding a Derby field, considering the swiftness with which tracks about the hemisphere will part with six-figure purses.

Some cow poney from Montana, for instance, could win $150,000 at Porcupine Downs and slip into the Derby ahead of starters more qualified.

"No one has a lock on purses today," says Eddie. "But the money system just happens to be easiest."

"Is 20 a manageable field?" Arcaro was asked.

"Anything more than 12 is a rodeo," he responded."the cheap speed starts backing up on the backstretch, causing a traffic jam, and a jock coming through either has to be lucky or crazy."

ASSIGNED his 21st Derby ride astride Cure the Blues, Willie Shoemaker, the world's most formidable horseback artist, has yet to find himself the beneficiary of a break once the race begins, which is Ranger second baseman Bump Wills gets off a double play relay despite rolling slide by Kansas City's George Brett during American League game at Arlington Thursday night.

Rangers blank Royals

Honeycutt makes 4 whitewashes in a row

By The Associated Press

Home plate umpire Vic Voltaggio took a look at the baseballs Rick Honeycutt was throwing and didn't do a thing with them.

Neither did the Kansas City Royals.

Honeycutt, whose claim to fame is his getting thrown out of a game last year and getting a 10-game suspension as well for illegally doctoring baseballs with a thumbtack, found out Thursday night that clean living has its own rewards.

He pitched a five-hitter for Texas' fourth consecutive shutout as the Rangers beat the Kansas City Royals 7-0. Pat Putnam's two-run double highlighted a four-run fifth inning against Rich Gale that broke open the close encounter.

Orioles 4, Blue Jays 0

Ken Singleton can be a pitcher's best friend, when the pitcher is Mike Flanagan.

Singleton has hit 124 homers for Baltimore since Flanagan joined the Orioles' staff late in the 1975 season, and 43 of them have come with Mike on the mound.

No.43 came in the Orioles' 28th victory over Toronto in the teams' last 32 games. It was Singleton's seventh of the year and sixth in the past eight games.

Flanagan, who stifled the Blue Jays on three hits, was, as Singleton put it, "awesome. He made some pitches on left-handed batters that made me thankful I wasn't batting against him."

The first-inning homer off Jackson Todd was the only run the Orioles needed but they added three in the second, aided by two Toronto errors.

Indians 3, White Sox 2

Toby Harrah's two-run homer — only the fourth homer by a Cleveland batter this year — was also only the third hit off Ross Baumgarten, but the shot tied the score and triggered the three-run seventh inning that boosted Indians to their victory over Chicago.

"As far as I'm concerned, the team scored more than enough runs for me," the dejected Baumgarten said. "I made a bad pitch and I blew the game." Rick Waits was the winner, scattering nine hits.

After Harrah's homer, Bo Diaz walked and raced around the bases when catcher Jim Essian threw Rick Manning's bunt away. Right fielder Harold Baines fired the ball home, beating Diaz, but the Cleveland runner eluded Essian's lunging tag.

Tigers 2, Mariners 0

Dave Rozema stifled Seattle on two hits — singles by Richie Zisk in the second inning and Rick Auerbach in the third — and allowed only one other runner when he hit Jerry Narron with a fifth-inning pitch as the Tigers snapped their 10-game tailspin.

Rozema got all the support in the first inning when Alan Trammell singled, Steve Kemp walked, Lance Parrish doubled for one run and another scored on a grounder by John Wockenfuss.

Twins 8, Red Sox 4

Roy Smalley's two-run homer and two RBIs piece by ary Ward and Glenn Adams enabled Minnesota to saddle the Red Sox with their fourth consecutive defeat.

Smalley's sixth homer came off winless Frank Tanana in the first inning. He later singled and walked twice, scoring after each of the walks. Ward's two-run single capped a three-run second and Adams hit bases-loaded singled off Bob Stanley in the fifth.

Boston finally snapped its scoreless string at 28 innings on Dave Stapleton's first-inning single. Consecutive solo homers by Jim Rice and Tony Perez chased Minnesota starter Roger Erickson in the ninth.

Brewers 12, Angels 1

It's been a long time between starts for Milwaukee reliever Jerry Augustine.

The last time he won as a starter was Aug. 28, 1978, when he two-hit Detroit 10-1. This time, as a late replacement when Pete Vuckovich said his shoulder bothered him, Augustine two-hit California for seven innings before retiring.

Roy Howell drove in four runs and Larry Hisle homered to lead the Brewers' 16-hit assault.

Celts seek to square it

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Boston Celtics are hoping they won't need a halftime pep talk to shake them out of the doldrums tonight when they try to break their Spectrum jinx in Game 6 of their National Basketball Association playoff series against the Philadelphia 76ers.

"We've proved that we're a good second-half club," said Celtics star Larry Bird. "Now we have to stay with them in the first half. We can't keep digging holes for ourselves."

Reserve center Rick Robey put it more graphically.

"Lately we seem to be putting ourselves into graves and then clawing our way out," he said, noting that the Celtics have trailed by 15, 17 and 10 points at halftime of the last three games.

Boston managed to stay alive in the Eastern Conference finals by erasing a 59-49 halftime deficit and beating the 76ers 111-109 in Boston Garden Wednesday night, scoring the last eight points of the game and holding Philadelphia scoreless for the final 1:51.

"We didn't even talk basketball at halftime," said Celtics guard Chris Ford. "All we talked about was pride and guts. Coach (Bill Fitch) said, 'Do you want to win this or do you want to go fishing?'"

Cubs leave 'em groggy

It should have been Beer Night

By TED BATTLES

They probably should have saved it for tonight. It was the kind of game a 25 cent Beer Night crowd would savor to its fullest. Besides it would be easier to believe Midland's bizarre 12-11 win over El Paso at Cubs Stadium Thursday, if you were a little tipsy.

The Cubs were on their way to a patented 4-3 win, just like Tuesday and Wednesday against Amarillo, going into the eighth inning when El Paso's Diablos ruined a perfectly good pitchers' battle with a six-run eruption against four Midland pitchers to take a 9-4 lead.

The hour was late and all sensible, or at least those who had to go to work Friday morning, fans were headed for the exits. A team in a batting slump certainly isn't going to overcome a five-run lead....but then no one reckoned Tom Grant would get to the plate again.

WHEN HE did, one run was in and the bases were loaded, so the 23-year-old from Mendon, Mass., powered a grand slam over the right field fence, his second home run of the night, and it was all tied at 9. Before Jim Koontz, the third Diablo pitcher of the inning, got the side out, Randy LaVigne singled home a go-ahead run and Mike Shepston's sacrifice fly added an insurance run. But, as it turned out, it wasn't enough insurance.

El Paso tied it in the ninth when Bill Schroder homered and Eddie Irvine singled home Bob Skobe, who had doubled, to make it 11-11.

SO THE Cubs had to pull it out once again. This time, Dave Owen tripled to open the ninth and Hall and Carmello Martinez were walked purposely to get at Grant, who struck out. However, Koontz walked Jack Upton to force in the winning run to give the Cubs their third straight one run win.

Lefthander Phil Nastu, although tagged for those two ninth inning runs, got the win while Koontz, 0-2, was the loser.

The win was payment in kind for four straight Cub losses to El Paso, all come-from-behind, when the teams met recently in the Border City. However, Midland still owes the Diablos and will seek another payment in the resumption of the Texas League series at 7 p.m. tonight. Lefthander Norm Churchill, 2-1, will pitch for Midland against Mike Madden, also 2-1.

CHANCES are Thursday's game might have come to a rational conclusion if Tom Spino, the southpaw who started for the Cubs, hadn't been hit by Stan Davis' wicked liner back to the box on the final out of the sixth. Spino, in the process of pitching his best as a Midland Cub, was forced to retire and after that it was a hitters' party.

Spino, working on a four-hitter, led 4-3 after six and one of those runs was unearned.

Before it was over, the game became the Tom Grant Show. Grant, for the second time this season, hit two home runs in a game, tossed in a double for good measure and wound up with six runs batted in.

IT WAS a game replete with extra curricular vocal high jinx complete with foot stomping and thumb-waving. Midland Manager Roy Hartsfield had words with plate umpire Randy Knuths in the fourth when Dave Owen was ruled out for stepping out of the batter's box to bunt. El Paso manager Tony Muser got the thumb during the Cubs seven-run eighth when Knuths took exception to barbs from the dugout. The bases were loaded at the time and Grant was approaching the plate.

"I wasn't thinking home run. I don't consider myself a home run hitter. I just wanted to make contact," Grant said. What's more the lefthanded batting Grant was facing left-handed relief pitcher Chick Valley. "He turned over a fastball low and inside on the first pitch. Then threw a slider before coming back with a fastball. He got it a little higher than the first one..."

Dave Owen
...triple sets up winner

THE HOMERS were the fifth of the homestand for Grant and raised his season's total to six. In one month, he is within reach of his season's total of last year.

While protesting he is not a home run slugger, Grant admits three months work on the Nautilus has made him stronger. "Last year I hit .308, but a lot of the linedrives I hit were being caught. This year they are dropping in."

The night's work raised Grant's average to .440 and his rbi total to 21 and stretched his hitting streak to nine games, during which he has hit .486.

After a first inning walk to J.W. Mitchell, Grant got all of a high fastball by Tony Torres and powered it down the line. It went 333 feet to reach the fence, but still would have been over if the wall had been 400 feet away.

Grant and Owen each had three hit nights for the Cubs while Irvine and Shroeder had four-hit nights for El Paso and Willie Lazado had three runs batted in for the Diablos.

Dern's Thunder strikes Bronchos

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

ODESSA — Perhaps it was an omen.

As Bill Dern stepped into the batters' box with one run home for Midland Lee and Ron Smedley and Alan Koonce aboard in the first inning, Mother Nature flung a lightning bolt through the air and as the thunder rumbled in its wake, Dern hammered a drive to deep left field. The ball, Odessa High's Jr Cobos and the fence all arrived at the same spot at the same time. Cobos slammed into the fence, the ball tipped his glove and bounced into homerun territory. The three-run homer helped propel the Rebels to a 12-3 District 5-5A win over the Bronchos Wednesday in a makeup game here. With the win, Lee, 3-0, 14-5, is now the only undefeated conference team in second half play. OHS's record slumps to 2-1 in district and 12-9 overall.

Lee can win the district crown outright by winning two of its last three games. Remaining on the Reb schedule are Odessa Permain, where they play Saturday, Abilene High, and Midland High.

DESPITE THE five runs in the first, it looked as if the Rebs might let this one slip away even with Koonce on the mound. Koonce, who had been unimpressive in his last couple of starts, was shakey through the first three innings.

Odessa loaded the bases in the bottom of the first on hits by Leroy Alvarado and Efrain Gallegos and an error by Randy Velarde at shortstop. With one down and the bases jammed, Koonce wriggled off the hook by getting Michael Benavidez to pop to Kevin Bradshaw at first and then struck out Ishmael Travarez.

Lee squandered a bases loaded opportunity in the second and watched as OHS scored twice in the bottom half of the frame. A single by Morris Morgan, RBI-triple by Johnny Subia and Kevin Decker's groundout produced the runs.

The situation got stickier in the bottom of the third. Gallegos singled, stole second, and when Smedley's throw sailed into center moved to third. With coach Ernie Johnson creeping closer and closer to the top of the dugout, Cobos singled to plate Gallegos. With Johnson standing at the top of the dugout steps, Benavidez rifled a shot on the ground that second baseman Barry Blackwell gloved, and turned into a 4-6-3 double play.

Blackwell's play lifted Koonce as he retired nine men in a row before Travarez beat out an infield hit in the sixth. Koonce rebounded from that hit by retiring the last four hitters. After giving up six hits and three runs in the first three innings, Koonce gave up just one hit and no runs over the final four frames in winning his fourth district outing against one loss.

WHILE Koonce was doing the job on the mound, Dern continued to produce thunder out of his aluminum stick. His double and Koonce's single in the fourth inning plated two more runs for the Rebels.

In the fifth, Lee added three more runs. Ricky Wright and Barry Corley

Pittsburgh lumber Company swings the big timbers

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Lumber Company is back in business.

"We came into New York batting .211. You can't help your pitchers with such a weak attack. But in our three games here we started to produce at the plate. Watch us from here on in," Manager Chuck Tanner said Thursday night after the Pirates' 7-4 victory gave them a sweep of a three-game series in which they outscored the Mets 25-4.

The Pirates battered Mets pitchers for 38 hits in the three games — New York has dropped six in a row — including four doubles, five triples and three home runs. Dave Parker slammed a two-run homer Thursday night while Tim Foli had three RBIs.

EVEN PITCHER John Candelaria drove in two runs, but the tall lefthander, who scattered 10 hits in 82-3 innings and won his first game since last Sept.21, preferred to talk about the Pirates' mound staff.

"I was a little tired," he said after allowing two runs in the ninth inning. "I was thinking of the team getting those three complete games in a row (Rick Rhoden and Jim Bibby hurled shutouts the previous two nights) because our pitching gets knocked a bit. I think this pitching staff on the whole is excellent."

Entering Thursday night's game, the Pirates had allowed only 16 earned runs in 74 innings over the last eight games, registering three shutouts and a 1.90 earned run average.

"We have so many hitters, people always think about our hitting and never the good pitching we have," Tanner said.

Astros 5, Braves 1

Craig Reynolds and Jose Cruz slammed two-run homers, powering Houston to a sweep of a three-game series with Atlanta. Joe Niekro scattered five hits in sending the Braves to their fifth consecutive defeat. It was the Astros' fourth triumph in a row.

"I don't have any new-found power," said Reynolds, who hit only three home runs in the previous two seasons but connected for the second game in a row. "I'm not a power hitter. I just happened to hit it in the right ballpark."

Reds 4, Padres 3

Dave Collins rapped three hits to support the five-hit pitching of Mike LaCoss, Joe Price and Tom Hume, enabling the Reds to beat San Diego despite two home runs by the Padres' Joe Lefebvre. LaCoss, who lasted only 22-3 innings in his previous two starts, scattered four hits in 71-3.

Collins, now batting .405, doubled in the first inning and scored on Dave Concepcion's single. Collins then drove in one of two runs in the second inning. The Reds made it 4-1 with what proved to be the winning run in the eighth on singles by Dan Driessen and Johnny Bench plus an error by San Diego right fielder Jerry Turner.

Tucker scores TKO in seventh

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Highly touted heavyweight Tony Tucker of Grand Rapids, Mich., remained undefeated by stopping Chip Tyler of Los Angeles by technical knockout at 2:37 of the seventh round in their scheduled eight-round bout Thursday night at the Hacienda.

Tucker, 208, now 8-0, stopped Tyler, 238, now 3-1, with two rights to the temple. Referee Joey Curtis halted the bout when the blows left Tyler defenseless. Tucker set up the TKO with two jarring combinations to the head.

Flames defeat North Stars, 3-2

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Calgary's offense wasn't much, but between the close forechecking of the Flames and the brilliant goaltending of Pat Riggin, Calgary didn't need much offense.

"We chased them and went after them," said Calgary Coach Al MacNeil after the Flames beat the Minnesota North Stars 3-2 Thursday night to even their best-of-seven National Hockey League semifinal playoff series at one victory apiece.

"The only thing we want to do is shoot more pucks," added MacNeil. "We missed a lot of scoring opportunities because we didn't shoot the puck. That's something we're going to work on."

The Flames were much more aggressive than in the series opener, which they lost 4-1 Tuesday night.

"We came off the Philadelphia (quarterfinal) series and only had 30 hours to prepare for Minnesota," said MacNeil. "We weren't concentrating as much as we can."

The Flames got off to a fast start, taking a 2-0 lead on first-period goals by Pekka Rautakallio and Guy Chouinard.

"We came out so hot in the first period," said Peplinski. "We were just all over them. But it's tough to keep up a pace that fast for the whole game."

After a scoreless second period, Minnesota unleashed a 19-shot barrage at Riggin in the third.

Illini ponders withdrawal from Big 10 Conference

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — The University of Illinois may as well drop out of the Big Ten rather than be barred from conference post-season play as a penalty for the eligibility controversy involving quarterback Dave Wilson, the UI Board of Trustees president says.

"It would be ... like admitting we had done something wrong and we haven't," Paul Stone said Thursday. "At this moment, I just don't see how the University of Illinois can stay in the Big Ten."

University Chancellor John Cribbet and President Stanley Ikenberry met Thursday to discuss whether the school should pull out of the conference.

"It is a very real option," a spokesman for Cribbet said.

The spokesman said Cribbet and Ikenberry would issue a statement after the Big Ten's formal announcement of the penalties, expected Saturday.

The penalties, which would be part of a three-year probation order, were revealed by Wilson's lawyer, Bob Auler, and UI sources. School officials said the sanctions would wreck the university's athletic program.

Auler said Thursday that if the university accepts the Big Ten's punishment, he would sue the school for $9 million in damages. A federal judge in Peoria set May 11 for hearings on a request by the Big Ten to settle Wilson's eligibility case, but Auler said the issue may not get to court.

"There's a very good chance" Illinois will decide before then to withdraw from the Big Ten, he said.

"The financial blow is of a magnitude that would bankrupt half the athletic programs in the conference," a UI official said, but he added that the revenue loss was just one factor.

Garvey for Senate or nothing

From R-T wire services

In an interview in the June issue of Playboy, Dodgers' first baseman Steve Garvey said he had been approached by "very high profile people" in both parties regarding a political career. "They feel that I would be a very big asset ... because of personality, accomplishments, ideals and so forth," said Garvey, who voted for Ronald Reagan in last year's presidential election. Either I start at the U.S. Senate or nothing."...

Seattle infielder Lenny Randle will appeal a $500 fine resulting from an April 19 fight with the Oakland A's, which started when he was brushed back by a Mike Norris pitch...

Georgia All-America Herschel Walker is on the wanted list in Montreal. But if the Alouettes can't land Herschel, they'll settle for Heisman Trophy winner George Rogers. Rogers, who led the nation in rushing with 1,781 yards at South Carolina and was the No. 1 pick (New Orleans) in the NFL draft... Walker, however, said he will remain at Georgia. "I was born in America and it does not seem right to leave the country to play professional football."...

Now that he has landed quarterback Vince Ferragamo and wide receiver James Scott for the Montreal Alouettes, owner Nelson Skalbania is zeroing in on Chicago Bears running back Walter Payton. "I need one good running back. I've offered Payton a contract. I shouldn't be saying this because when you print it the Chicago Bears are going to realize the situation and the price will go up."...

The Dallas Mavericks, who won the right to open the June 9 NBA draft in Thursday's coin flip against Detroit, haven't decided what they'll do with that prime pick. A's good enough to set April mark

OAKLAND (AP) — How good are Billy Martin's boys of April, the 18-3 Oakland A's? Well, they just set the record for the best April in major league baseball history, that's how good.

Pitching ace Mike Norris said one reason he signed a new, five-year contract early this week was that, "It's beneficial for me to stay here because we've got a dynasty going."

An April 1981 dynasty, for sure. It will take a lot more victories before the baseball world recognizes the A's as something more than an exciting young team reaching the age of maturity as a pennant contender.

THE TEAM has gotten off to the best start in baseball history. Their 18 victories and three losses set the American League record and tied the major league record for winning the most games in the month of April.

The San Francisco Giants' teams of 1971 and 1974 won 18 games in April. In 1971 they lost four games in April and lost six times in April 1974.

There are 141 games left this season, starting with Friday night's invasion of the New York Yankees, the team which has twice fired Martin as manager.

Casey Stengel's Yankees, winners of five straight World Series (1949-53) and nine American League pennants in a 10-year span, were definitely in the dynasty class. The best team showing since was by the A's, who won the first of five consecutive AL West titles in 1971 and claimed consecutive world championships in 1972, 1973, 1974 with such players as Catfish Hunter, Reggie Jackson, Rollie Fingers and Vida Blue.

"We're a younger team than the A's of 1971, and I think we've got more talent, too," said Norris, the 26-year-old hurler who was 22-9 last year and stands 5-0 this season after beating the California Angels 6-4 Wednesday — the first pitcher in the league with five victories this season.

BERT CAMPANERIS, the shortstop whom former A's owner Charlie Finley often described as the most important player on the championship Oakland teams, isn't sold yet on the new A's.

But, he admitted this week, "Yes, they remind me of our team about 10 years ago."

Campaneris, now with the Angels, said in comparing Martin's team with the old A's, "Their outfield is good, their infield not so good, and their pitching really good."

The earned run average of the A's staff was 1.90 after Norris, with a five-hitter, recorded his fourth complete game and the team's 17th of the young season Wednesday.

"As I've said before, our pitching is too good for us to lose three games in a row," he said after stopping a two-game losing streak.

The losses in the opening games of a three-game series with the Angels were by scores of 3-2 and 3-1. The A's opened the season with 11 straight victories, setting a modern big league record, before losing 3-2.

NO TEAM scored more than four runs against the A's in an April game.

When the A's record reached 17-1, Martin admitted, "I didn't think it would be possible. But I didn't think 11 straight wins was possible either. I guess nothing can surprise me now."

The new A's, playing what the team management describes in promotions as "Billy Ball," depend greatly on the superb outfield defense usually provided by Rickey Henderson, Dwayne Murphy and Tony Armas.

In right fielder Armas, they have a player who is establishing himself as a power hitter comparable to Jackson, the right fielder of the old A's. Armas, 27, slugged 35 homers last season and has seven already this year, along with a league-leading 23 runs batted in.

Henderson, 22, broke Ty Cobb's league record with 100 stolen bases last year and opened this season with 16 April thefts. Murphy, 26, is hampered somewhat in center field right now because of a sore ankle but has not slowed down at bat, owning 15 RBI.

Former A's star Campaneris noted that the current team has one big edge over Finley's players of the 1970s.

"They have all those people yelling for them," the shortstop said after last Monday night's game which drew a crowd of 41,000.

THE A'S, despite their winning ways in the 1970s, topped the 1 million mark in attendance only twice, with a high of 1,075,000 in 1975.

A new Oakland season attendance record is a cinch this year, two seasons after Finley's worst team drew only 306,000 fans.

Haynie leads with fine 66

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — A pair of LPGA Hall of Famers, Sandra Haynie and Kathy Whitworth, posted their names at or near the top of the leader board after Thursday's opening round in the $125,000 CPC International golf tournament at Moss Creek Plantation.

Haynie blistered the tough 6,290-yard Devil's Elbow course for a record-tying 66 under perfect playing conditions to claim the first-round lead. She later called it her best round in over six years.

"I am a little surprised, but mostly pleased," the 37-year-old Haynie said. "I have worked hard on my game for a while now, and it's nice when that pays off."

The CPC International helps mark a serious return to the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour for Haynie. She had taken several years off to manage women professional athletes most noably, tennis star Martina Navratilova — and to recover from injuries to her back and right wrist.

Haynie was hit by a car in 1972 while in South Africa, an accident that resulted in two fractured vertebrae in her lower back. Later, she underwent surgery on her hand.

"I just decided that I wanted to play professional golf," Haynie said about her comeback to the tour. "I love golf, and I wanted to get back to the game."

McCord leads Houston Open

HOUSTON (AP) — Gary McCord describes himself as "kind of bizarre."

And the explanation of his putting magic that produced a 7-under-par 64 and the first round lead Thursday in the $350,000 Michelob-Houston Open golf tournament also defied understanding.

Tied at 65, six shots under par on the 7,071-yard Woodlands Country Club course and a single shot back of McCord were Hale Irwin and a pair of former teammates at the University of Texas, Ben Crenshaw and Tom Kite.

The group at 66 was led by Bruce Lietzke, a two-time winner this season, and also included Tommy Valentine, Tom Purtzer, Dave Edwards and Mike Holland.

Hurdler Dillard gained fame in 100

Los Angeles Times

It was 33 years ago, a summer afternoon in Evanston, Ill., and, at the U.S. Olympic track and field trials, hardly anybody looked up as the qualifiers for the 110-meter high-hurdle final lined up. The outcome was as foregone as sunset. The skinny guy in Lane 3 would win it, probably set a new world record. The running was a formality. It was just going to be a recital, not a contest.

W. Harrison Dillard, a graduate of the same Cleveland high school that had produced Jesse Owens, had just won 82 consecutive high hurdle races in the previous 12 months, and had set a world record (13.6) in the event. Besides, he had already made the Olympic team, qualifying the night before in the 100 meters, and was therefore as relaxed and loose as ashes.

So, he went out and hit eight hurdles. He never finished the race at all. The world's greatest hurdler couldn't even clear a bar. Guys who couldn't break 14 seconds made the boat in his place in his event.

IF "BONES" Dillard (he got his nickname because, at 5'8, 10 pounds, he looked like a talking coat rack) had not made the squad in the 100, he might now be a track-and field figure known only to Track And Field News editors, and a retired AAU timer from Chillicothe.

As it was, he not only made the Olympic 100 sprint, he won it. He also won a medal in the sprint relay in 1948. In 1952, he made the Melbourne Olympics in his own specialty and, although 29 yeavs old, managed to hold off the fast-closing young record-holder, Jack Davis, and break the Olympic hurdle record.

But in neither of those Olympics would Harrison Dillard have made the American team even if he had won 182 previous races. "In those days," he recalled, as he sat over a steak breakfast the other day, "we figured we could leave world- class guys home and still run 1-2-3. We had guys who set the American or world record in their events who didn't qualify. We had Gil Dodds in the mile, Chuck Fonville in the shotput. They were the best we had, record-holders all, but they were injured in the tryouts and thus got left home."

THAT'S A luxury American track and field can no longer afford, Dillard feels. At Helsinki, in 1952, he got a preview of the wave of the future. "It was the first Olympics the Russians appeared in," he recalls. "And, while they didn't let their athletes mix, you always saw these guys in the long leather overcoats with stopwatches and cameras, studying every move we made. They caught up fast."

In those immediate post-war years, Dillard explains, Europe's finest young athletes were probably beneath rows of white crosses. If you were an athlete in the Europe of the '40s, you had to carry something heavier than a baton, and throw something deadlier than a discus or javelin.

America no longer has athletic talent to squander, which is one reason Harrison Dillard is serving as an adviser to Mobile Oil in its $2 million underwriting of American track competitions in the next three years leading up to the Olympics. The oil company will sponsor the 106-year-old national track and field championships (formerly the AAU) to be held at Sacramento this June, and it will offer prize money for a series of six "Grand Prix" events leading up to it, with cumulative finishes counting in the scoring.

The idea is to see to it that in the future high hurdlers don't have to get to the Olympics as sprinters, and to see to it also that Ammerican athletes get the wherewithal to make themselves competitive with the state-produced squads from the Soviet bloc.

"WE HOPE to upgrade our track-and-field level in this country and rekindle interest in those who may have become perhaps discouraged by the boycott," Dillard explains. He also hopes the funds will permit youngsters to learn the sport more scientifically than he did. "We used to take old car seats, burn the fabric off them, and then stack the springs in an alley 10 yards apart. Those were our hurdles." Bones was undefeated over the car seats. But when he had to transfer to the real thing, he had to learn to jump higher and move faster. But, at least, he didn't have to worry about getting hit by a car at the finish line. In 1948, you could get ready for an Olympics on a record of 100 straight car seats. In 1984, you probably have to learn to jump over cars, period.

COW/CALF FORUM

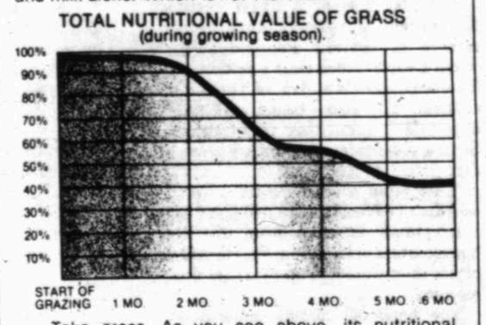

By
Dr. Danny Williams,
Cattle nutritionist

The Great Grass/Milk Myth. It could be robbing you of 50 lbs. per calf at weaning.

A myth, according to Webster, is "a notion based more on tradition or convenience than on fact." And based on a common practice in the cow/calf business, that definition fits. Because it seems to have become "traditional" and "convenient" to believe a calf can reach his full growth potential at weaning on grass and milk alone. Which is not the case.

TOTAL NUTRITIONAL VALUE OF GRASS
(during growing season).

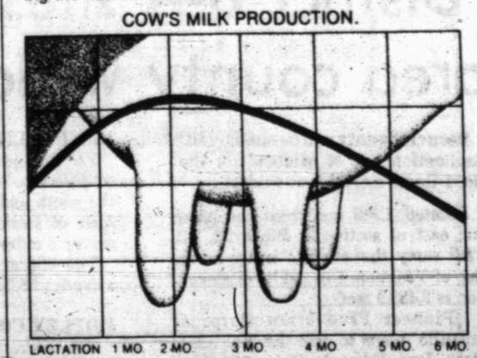

Take grass. As you see above, its nutritional value—which includes both nutrient content and digestibility—declines rapidly as it matures through the hot, dry months. And what you see here is under "ideal" conditions. (Remember last summer?)

Grass also has the limitation of calves just not having the rumen capacity to eat and digest enough of it each day to fulfill their nutritional requirements.

The situation is similar with milk. The graph below shows how a cow's daily production drops off drastically during late lactation, and is insufficient for satisfying the nutritional demands of a calf beyond 200 lbs.

COW'S MILK PRODUCTION.

So we have a situation where right at the time a calf's need for nutrition is rising, the nutrient value and availability of grass and milk is declining. Grass and milk together, in fact, can supply only about 75-85% of the nutrients a calf needs to grow to his full potential at weaning. (Thus, the "great grass/milk myth.")

What's the answer? How do you fill in the "missing" nutrition a calf needs for optimum growth? By creep feeding—balancing the nutrient deficiencies in grass and milk with the extra protein, energy, Vitamin A and minerals in Purina® Creep Chow® brand ration.

Purina research, backed by feed trials in cow/calf operations around the country, shows this can make a difference of at least 50 extra pounds in weanigg weight. Creep Chow also helps relieve stress on your cows, so they can get back in condition for re-breeding sooner. Why not discuss it with your Purina Dealer?

Lee defeats Odessa

opened with singles, Randy Pepper sacrificed and on a squeeze bunt attempt by Velarde, the Broncho mishandled the ball as two runs scored. Smedley plated the final tally with a bullet up the middle.

Lee wrapped up the scoring with two runs in the top of the seventh. Corley singled to open the frame and moved to second on an error. With one down, Velarde laced a triple to right-center to score Corley and Barry Blackwell's sacrifice fly chased home Velarde.

Johnson said, "We are in pretty good position now. We are hitting the ball now like we did before the rain. The rain just seemed to turn off our hitting. But since the rain has stopped we have improved our hit output in each game."

INDEED. Wednesday the Rebels crashed out 15 safties, lead by Koonce's four hits in five trips to the plate, Dern 2-of-5 with four RBIs, Corley 3-of-4 and Smedley 2-of-4 with a RBI, and Velarde 2-of-5 with two RBIs. The only regular to be collared was Pepper, but he responded with a sacrifice and twice gave himself up to advance a runner.

Tommy Stahl went the distance for the Bronchos and suffered the defeat. His second in six decisions.

Shoe in 21st Derby

to say, he isn't looking for accommodation in this event in which a claim of foul never has been sustained.

"In self-defense," Willie was asked, "what does a jock do in a field of 20?"

With Shoemaker understatement, he replied quietly, "He concentrates."

The largest field in which Shoe ever performed was the English Derby at Epsom. It featured 25 horses -- relatively small for that race -- but run on a course considerably wider than those in America and bearing easier turns.

Rounding Tattenham Corner at Epsom, a rider can take his tea, whereas turning into the stretch at Churchill Downs, he had better he prepared for the rough and tumble of his life.

SHOEMAKER'S luck isn't overpowering in Kentucky this year. Cure the Blues has drawn the No. 16 post, meaning he is obliged to do an uncommon amount of hustling the first quarter-mile to reach the first turn free of traffic.

Because he is a speed horse drawing in at the No. 5 post, and also because he has won eight of his nine starts, Proud Appeal is the favorite at 2-1, a surprisingly short price on any horse engaged in a stampede of this kind.

Purchased for only $37,000, Proud Appeal is a Florida-bred who has done most of his racing in New York. He is owned by an English gentleman of 73, Malcolm Winfield — no relation of Dave.

Islanders defeat Rangers

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Last spring, when the New York Islanders were making their relentless run to the National Hockey League championship, one of the team's key sparkplugs was Butch Goring.

Without Goring, whom they obtained in a trade with Los Angeles in the final month of the season, the Islanders might well have fallen short of the Stanley Cup.

"I'm awfully proud of being on this team," Goring said Thursday night after he turned around the second game of the Islanders semifinal playoff series with their archrivals, the New York Rangers, with a shorthanded goal at 8:11 of the second period. The Islanders rampaged from there to a 7-3 victory.

The Rangers, who trail the best-of-seven series 2-0 as the teams switch to Madison Square Garden for games 3 and 4 on Saturday and Tuesday nights, respectively, outworked and outclassed the Islanders in the first period to build a 3-1 lead.

District 8 sites tests, completion

District 8 wildcats in Loving and Reeves counties have been announced by the Texas Railroad Commission as well as an Ector County completion.

BTA Producers of Midland plans to re-enter the No. 15-1 7901 Humble-Scarborough, a Lovinng County wildcat orginally drilled to a total depth of 20,565 feet and plugged dry and abandoned.

Located 1,980 feet from the northwest and 1,980 feet from the southwest of section 15, block 75, PSL survey, the total depth of re-entry will be 16,000 feet.

The project is 19 miles northeast of Mentone.

REEVES COUNTY WILDCAT SITE

Orla Petco of Midland will drill the No. 1 Pioneer-State as a wildcat to test the Cherry Canyon.

The operation is 1 mile northeast of the No. 1-X-ST Loving-Fee a wildcat at a total depth of 5,150 dry and abandoned June 3, 1963 and 3 miles northeast of oil production in the Tunstill, East field.

Located 467 feet from the north line and 467 feet from the west line of section 2, block 55, T4, T&P survey, the site is 12 miles southeast of orla.

ECTOR DISCOVERY

Jack N. Blair of Midland has completed the No.1 Vest Ranch, a 10,500-foot wildcat in Ector County.

Plugged back depth was 9,000 feet with ground level elevation reported at 2,900 feet.

Casing of 4 1/2 inches was set at 9,000 fee with perforations from 8,237 feet to 8,259 feet acidized with 1,500 gallons.

The well flowed 420 barrels of 39 gravity oil through a 1/2 inch choke.

Gas to oil ratio was 728 to 1. The Mississippian was topped at 8,739 feet and the Woodford at 9,056 feet.

Located 660 feet from the south line and 660 feet from the west line of section 5, block B-14 PSL survey the operation is 11 miles northwest of Penwell.

Three wildcats, completion announced in District 8-A

Three wildcats and one completion have been reported in Dawson, Terry, Yoakum and Garza counties by the Texas Railroad Commission district 8-A.

DAWSON COUNTY

McCormick Operating Co. of Houston has finaled a 12,686-foot lower Clearfork oil discovery 14 miles northwest of Lamesa.

The No. 1 Lindsey, et al, is located in section 108, block M of EL&RR survey.

The well pumped 40 barrels of 19.6 gravity oil and 32 barrels of water through perforations made from 7,-334-7,403 feet.

Total depth is 12,686 feet, plugged back to 12,078 with a 5 1/2 inch casing set at 12,871 feet.

Location is one mile northwest of a Pennsylvanian production in Mungerville field.

TERRY COUNTY

Mesa Petroleum Co. of Midland has filed pplication to drill a 12,800-foot new wildcat in Terry County, four miles northeast of Tokio, 2 3/4 miles northeast of a 12,871-foot Devonian production and a 13,840-foot Montoya production in Tokio field.

The new project is the No. 1 Richardson "32" located 467 feet from the south and west lines of section 32, block D-14, C&M survey.

Elevation at the location is 3,498 feet at ground level.

YOAKUM COUNTY

Mobil Producing Texas & N.M. Inc. of Houston has announced plans to drill a 12,000-foot deeper pool wildcat in Yoakum County, seven miles southwest of Plains, surrounded by San Andres production in Brahaney field, and three miles northwest of an 11,058 foot Devonian oil production in West field.

The project is the No. 1 Keller "C", located 1830 feet from the south line and 660 feet from the east line of section 541, block D of the John H. Gibson survey.

GARZA COUNTY

Amax Petroleum Corp of Midland has staked a location for a 9,500-foot new field wildcat in Garza County, four miles southwest of Post, 4 1/2 miles southeast of an 8,492-foot Strawn production and an 8,796-foot Mississippian production in the Post, West field.

The venture is the no. 1 Winnie D. Rogers, located 1,600 feet from the northline and 2,640 feet from the east line of section 4, block 8 of the TTRR survey.

Hard-coal miners join soft-coal locals' strike

By The Associated Press

Hard-coal miners, who usually go their separate way in negotiating with the industry, today joined a 36-day strike by soft-coal locals of the United Mine Workers after overwhelmingly rejecting a contract offer.

The 2,000 miners in UMW District 25, which represents anthracite miners in eastern Pennsylvania, voted 1,400 to 540 against a settlement Thursday, the last day of their old contract. The strike began at 12:01. a.m. EDT, according to Michael Semko, a candidate for district president.

"I expected a much closer vote," said district President Angelo Matz in a telephone interview from district headquarters in Hazleton, Pa. He said picket lines would go up at mines this morning.

The hard-coal miners apparently were dissatisfied with benefits being offered, Matz said.

James Capparell, an official of Beltrami Enterprises, which has extensive strip-mine operations in northeastern Pennsylvania, said his company's workers had joined the strike.

In another development, UMW President Sam Church led a rally by 2,500 union members Thursday in Pittsburgh, calling the demonstration a "symbolic two-by-four" to get coal operators back to the bargaining table.

The crowd that gathered was much smaller than the 8,000 to 10,000 that union officials had predicted. But Church and officials of other unions were cheered as they called for unity.

"For whatever reason, I can't seem to get (chief industry negotiator B.R.) Brown back to the bargaining table," Church told the placard-waving miners, some of whom traveled from as far away as Illinois and Kentucky.

Soft-coal miners stopped work March 27 when their old contract expired. A few days later, they rejected a tentative three-year contract between the UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, the industry's bargaining arm. The pact would have increased wages and benefits 36 percent over three years.

District 8-A sites five area county wildcats

Borden County will be sited by HCW Exploration Inc. of Midland for the No. 1 Good, a 8,300-foot wildcat.

Located 1,980 feet from the north and east of section 3, Block 32, T3, T&P surey the site is 7 miles northeast of Vealmore.Ground level elevation is 2,489.9 feet.

Pioneer Production Corp. of Amarillo plans to drill the No. 1-361-Mary Jane Edwards Heirs 900 feet from the south and 1,310 feet from the east lines of section 36, block 697, H&TC survey 10 1/2 miles notheast of gail.

Total depth of the project will be 8,600 feet.

GAINES COUNTY WILDCAT SITE

The No. 1-A-2 ODC will be drilled by Forest Oil of Odessa as a Gaines County wildcat to be located 660 feet – from the north line and 660 feet from the east line of section 209, Block G, WTRR survey 7 miles southeast of Seagraves.

Total depth of the project is13,100 feet with ground level elevation reported at 3,405 feet.

KENT COUNTY WILDCAT

Par Production Co. of Snyder will drill the No. 1-A-Treat 1,980 feet from the south and 660 feet from the east lines of section 45, Block 5, H&GN survey 3 miles west of Tolar.

The wildcat test will be explored to a depth of 8,000 feet.

MOTLEY COUNTY SITES TWO

Two wildcats will be drilled by Koch Exploration Co. of Midland.

The No. 1-51 J.P. Taylor will be sited 2,100 feet from the south line and 600 feet from the west line of section 151, Block M, Matador Cattle Co. survey, Abstract No. 581 7 miles north of Teepee City.

Total depth of the No. 1-51 will be 8,100 feet. Ground level elevation is 1,955 feet.

The No. 1-49-HH Campbell et al, will be drilled 660 feet from the south and 660 feet from the west lines of section 49, BS&F Original Grantee Survey, Abstract 223 5 miles east of Dougherty.

Copley News Service

Want to save on housing expenses? Want to contribute a bit toward helping solve the nation's energy crisis? Not the least important, are you disturbed by rising utility company rates and want to put a brake on mounting, monthly power bills?

Obviously, the answer is yes, especially if you are among the large majority of home owners who now rate energy conservation as important or even more important than many other common amenities found in the modern new home.

Another survey by an independent research firm, commissioned by Dow Chemical Co., says virtually all builders have found that attic and wall insulation are more important to their buyers than traditional new home amenities such as central air conditioning and kitchen appliances. In fact, in this survey, 97 percent of builders said energy-saving features would be important to them personally if they were buying a new home.

Also, the latter survey concluded that "the soaring cost of energy is the catalyst for sweeping changes in the housing industry."

Since rising oil prices first sent shock waves through the economy in 1973, builders have increased energy efficiency in new homes by better than 30 percent. Each year the annual NAHB survey of home builders has shown further increases in efficiency.

Builders report that basic housing designs, the way buyers shop for a home, the way homes are sold, financing techniques and the affordability of new homes, all face significant modifications in the future. The Dow survey says most builders (84 percent) foresee basic changes in the housing product within the next five years, prompted by the need for more energy-efficient houses. The primary change, builders predict, is a trend toward smaller more compact housing.

In addition to including energy-saving features as standard items -- that is, at no price hike -- builders are now merchandising these built-in benefits more strongly with their customers. Eight of 10 builders now emphasize home energy efficiency as a sales point, as opposed to only 18 percent five years ago. And 88 percent of the builders are convinced that energy efficiency will be even more important as a selling tool five years from now.

NAHB's Research Foundation, with funding from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), has gone even further with the building of an experimental "energy-efficient" house constructed in Maryland three years ago.

It achieved a 50 percent reduction in energy use, apparently slashing utility bills for heating and cooling in half.

This savings in the experimental house amounted to $545 a year, sufficient to recoup the extra cost of energy-saving features in six years or less. Ralph Johnson, president of the Research Foundation, said the payback period could be reduced to five years if certain less-effective features, included only for study purposes, were eliminated.

Even more experimentation is under way. The NAHB Research Foundation, again with the assistance of HUD, is building a second energy-efficient dwelling, designed to test building techniques expected to cAtch on within the next five to 10 years.

A two-level solarium and a rock-storage bin will provide passive solar heat for the second house, which is also being erected on a Maryland site. This home will also feature passive solar water heating, summer ventilation through a roof shaft and an earth source heat pump.

These extra energy-conservation features are or will be available for new homes. But how about us blokes with existing, older homes which were built before such features were common or available? Can we reduce our utility bills?

Yes, there are ways. For instance, turning down the water heater thermostat to 120 from 160 degrees plays a dramatic role in home-energy savings. In the first energy-efficient,experimental house, the hot water adjustment accounted for 28 percent of the savings.

First steps taken to open Alaska for oil, gas taken

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department took the first step Thursday toward opening up millions of acres of land in Alaska for oil and gas drilling.

The department asked industry and the public to identify areas of interest for exploration, a move that would lead to the first onshore leasing program for public lands in Alaska in 15 years.

"The objective is to make these lands available for leasing as soon as possible," a department announcement said.

Land under consideration covers more than 100 million acres — an area larger than California — and its potential leasing brought renewed criticism of Interior Secretary James Watt by environmentalists.

Rebecca Wodder of the Wilderness Society questioned if adequate protection would be maintained for wildlife refuge areas created under the Alaska Lands Act last year and which can only be explored after study.

Interior Department spokesman Ed Essertier said initial studies are already underway, but Ms. Wodder said rushing into leasing would not allow time for thorough research.

"The problem is that they are not going to do first things first." she said, adding the law requires not only studies of oil and mineral potential but also studies of whether exploration would be compatible with the areas' primary purpose - protecting wildlife.

Cathy Smith of the Friends of the Earth also said, "The Fish and Wildlife Service has not had a chance to look into areas it wants to protect."

The leasing of some of the land also is authorized under the Mineral Leasing Act of 1920.

Lands excepted from the announced request for areas of exploration are the Artic National Wildlife Refuge, lands in the the National Parks andNational Wildlife Preservation systems, national monuments, and lands in the Alaska Federal Petroleum Reserve.

A separate leasing program in the petroleum reserve was authorized by Congress last year. The announcement said the department has receivedd nominations for tracts in the reserve and may hold leases sales as early as December 1981 and July 1982.

District 7-C announces eight wildcat projects

Eight wildcats have been filed in district 7-C of the Texas Railroad Commission for Crockett, Sutton, Tom Green, Runnels, and Schleicher counties.

CROCKETT COUNTY

J. Cleo Thompson of Dallas has announced a location for a 9,500-foot wildcat in Crockett County, 23 miles west of Ozona and 1 5/8 miles north of a Devonian and Strawn gas production in the Ingham field.

The No. 1 University "29-28" is located 873 feet from the north line and 1,487 feet from the west line of section 28, block 29 of the University Lands survey.

SUTTON COUNTY

Ike Lovelady Inc. of Midland has surveyed a location for a 4,500-foot wildcat in Sutton County, 20 miles southeast of Sonora and surrounded b a 3,201-foot Harkey and a 3,021-foot Canyon gas production in the Interstate field.

The wildcat is the No. 4 West, located 2,000 feet from the north line and 660 fet from the west line of section 5, block V-26, E.B. Titus survey.

It is also 3/8 mile southwest of the same operator's No. 1 West, recently completed in the Ellenburger gas discovery, producing 4,704 to 5,062 feet.

TOM GREEN COUNTY

J. A. March of Dallas will drill the No. 1 Havlak-Wright Unit as a 5,300-foot wildcat project in Tom Green County, four miles southeast of a 4,237-foot wildcat failure and 2 7/8 miles southeast of a 4,237-foot production in the Urban Miles field.

The location is 4,071 feet from the north line and 1,793 feet from the west line of the BC&SF survey No. 1.

RUNNELS COUNTY

Jerry E. Wylie Oil Drilling Co. of Abilene has announced a location for a 4,000-foot wildcat location in Runnels County, three miles west of Crews, 3/4-mile southeast of the Myra Lynn (Gardner) field, and 1 1/2 miels southwest of the Gerhart (Gardner) field.

The project is the No. 2 Grissom, lcoated 330 feet from the south line and 123 feet from he east line of th Willima P. Huff No. 1, A-1126 survey.

SCHLEICHER COUNTY

Transcontinental Oil Corp. of San Angelo plans to drill four 8,250-foot Ellenburger wildcats in Schleicher County, 20 miles northeast of Eldorado.

The No. 1 University "55-19" is 660 fet from the north and east lines of section 19, block 55 of the Universtiy Lands survey, 1 3/4 miles southwest of a Canyon gas production and 3 1/2 miles southwest miles of an Ellenburger oil production in the University 54 field.

The No. 1 University "55-21A" is 660 fet from the north line and 1,320 feet from the east line of section 21, block 55 of the University Lands survey, 1 1/2 miles southwest of a Canyon gas production and 3 miles southwest of an Ellenburger oil production in the University 54 field.

The No. 1 University "55-22A" is located 660 feet from the north line and 1,980 feet from the west line of section 22, block 55 of the University Lands survey, 2 1/4 miles southwest of an Ellenburger oil production in the University 54 field.

The No. 1University "55-12" is 660 feet from the south and east lines of section 22, block 55 of the University Lands survey, 1 1/4 miles west of a Canyon gas production and 2 5/8 miles southwest of an Ellenburger oil production in the Universtiy 54 field.

Company proposes toxic waste site

CLARKSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A South Carolina company wants to locate a chemical waste disposal site on a 350-acre tract of land in rural Red River County near Cunningham, an attorney for the company said Friday.

Louis T. Smoak, an attorney for Chem-Security Systems, Inc. of Jonesboro, S.C., said the site would be used as a dumping area for "byproducts and waste products from manufacturing operations" and would include items such as chemical solvents and waste oil.

Chem-Security holds an option on the Red River tract but hasn't completed geological testing of the site, he said.

The company has approached the county's legislative representatives with its proposal but hasn't scheduled a public hearing on it. Two permits — one each from the state and federal governments — would be required before the company could proceed with its plans, Smoak said. A public hearing also will be required.

The proposed waste site is about 15 miles from the area in Delta County where a nuclear waste disposal site was unsuccessfully proposed eight years ago. Intense public opposition to the nuclear project led to its abandonment.

Smoak said the chemical waste facility would serve as a repository for wastes generated in East Texas, including the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Most of the wastes would be shipped to the site in solid form, he said.

Rebirthing a new experience

By BETH ANN KRIER
The Los Angeles Times

LA JOLLA, Calif. — "I've been called the Fuller Breath man. I made my first million selling air," smiles Leonard Orr.

Orr is the creator of "rebirthing," a breathing process whose adherents claim results ranging from releasing birth traumas to "blissing out" to discovering psychological problems have suddenly cleared up — and frequently all of the above.

Despite the pun, despite the huckster joking, rebirthing is a serious if controversial business. Orr estimates that more than half-a-million once-shallow breathers have been rebirthed since he began teaching the process in the early '70s. Among those initiates are some 200 physicians Orr says he has personally instructed on what he considers to be the healing power of the breath.

At its simplest, rebirthing is a breathing lesson, a two-hour session in learning to connect inhales with exhales. According to Orr, rebirthing is a basic connected breathing rhythm that rapidly transports the breather into an altered state of consciousness. That state can be pleasurable or it can be scary, say rebirthees, and it also can change unexpectedly.

The state produced by altered breathing is similar to that of deep hypnosis, and it transports people back to memories of their births and other events in their lives, memories their conscious minds have repressed and can no longer recall, enthusiasts claim.

But unlike hypnotic states, in which the individual may be instructed to rationally remember, rather than re-experience the past, the altered state of consciousness rebirthees experience affects them on a physical as well as intellectual level. Rebirthers report that their clients typically cry, scream or gag as they are re-living and releasing old negative experiences.

Re-experiencing traumatic events in this way, Orr contends, transforms the subconscious memory of the experiences from painful to positive and in the process releases fear once locked in the memory and body.

Perhaps the most controversial element of the rebirthing process is the fact that the greatest results are achieved when the breather spontaneously goes into hyperventilation, a condition that conventional wisdom and curing consider dangerous.

As originally developed, rebirthing sessions were more likely to produce fear than they are today. The sessions initially were conducted under water exclusively, with clients breathing through snorkels. But Orr and his first rebirthers found the water and snorkels were so good at simulating wombs and umbilical cords that birth memories and other long-repressed subjects were triggered too fast, scaring some people away.

"To avoid overwhelming them, Orr devised the dry rebirth. He had noticed that it is the breathing and relaxing in the presence of a rebirther that is crucial to the success of the rebirth, and not the water as he'd thought originally," writes Sondra Ray in "Rebirthing in the New Age" (Celestial Arts), a book she coauthored with Orr.

Now, most rebirthers recommend that their clients have about 10 dry rebirths (in which a person lies on the floor or a cushion and breathes with the rebirther nearby), before trying a wet rebirth. As clients breathe through more and more of their fears and become more comfortable with the process, the process can be done in groups or alone without assistance.

With a rebirther, a breathing student learns to mimic the connected breathing rhythm. Rebirthers are also guides — reassuring the rebirthee that he or she is fine and not dying or going insane as a variety of sensations — initially tingling and vibrating — parades through the body.

If people fear the process, say rebirthers, they may experience unpleasant results (gagging, vomiting, temporary paralysis) until they relax, keep breathing and release the fear behind the symptoms. Some rebirthees, however, find a bit of connected breathing propels them right into such states of ecstasy and relaxation that they'd rather just enjoy the bliss or drift off to sleep rather than continue the process and see what next repressed trauma they can pump out with their breath, adherents claim.

Not all rebirthees and not even all rebirthers see images of their births, yet they, too, tell of profound experiences.

"Tremendous fear was released," says Linda Thistle, a Beverly Hills psychotherapist. "In fact, on my second session, I thought I was dying in the process, it was so dramatic. I was completely paralyzed, so paralyzed that the only thing that was moving was my respiratory system. I started thinking of some people who had been close to me and who had died of polio and I was sure that was coming up for me. I went into a complete confront with death, and, of course, nothing happened. Leonard (Orr) was rebirthing me and told me to keep breathing. There was nothing else I could do so I did. I consider that night a major turning point in my life. It was like tons were lifted from me. And with other rebirthings more things have been released."

Thistle found odd fears and tense situations suddenly absent from her life. "I'd always been frightened of a lot of things — going too fast on the freeway, skiing, being alone at night. Most of that fear has left my body. I can hardly work up a good fit of fear any more."

Thistle notes that in addition to being a practicing psychotherapist for the last 11 years, she also has participated in a wide variety of mind and body therapies as well as undergone formal analysis. "I've had four therapists in my life — a gestalt therapist, an existential therapist, a Jungian therapist and an eclectic," she says. "All the talking therapy in the world and all the emoting didn't do it for me. I suppose it was chipping away at it, but this happened very quickly. Rebirthing was like a radical turning of the corner for me."

There also can be less-than-desirable consequences. As Orr and Ray caution in "Rebirthing in the New Age," "The results of rebirthing are not always rosy. The moods swings of an individual's disposition are sometimes exaggerated.

Dr. Donald Portnoy

Portnoy guest clinician at student-teacher clinic

Students and teachers in the elementary strings program of the Midland Independent School District are participating in a Strings Clinic today and Saturday.

The guest clinician is Dr. Donald Portnoy, concert violinist and founder of the American Arts Trio and the Fine Arts Music Camp. The clinic is sponsored by May and Duncan Music Company.

Today's activities begin at 7 p.m. with a dinner clinic at the Holidome for the strings' teachers in MISD schools. This provides them with the opportunity to discuss latest trends in strings instruction and to hear ideas from Portnoy which he has used in his extensive teaching throughout the U.S.

Saturday, students in grades four, five and six will work with Portnoy at Lee High. The clinic begins at 9 a.m. and ends at 2:30 p.m.

Students will work in both large and small groups on some basic techniques of strings and on specific musical pieces. The afternoon will be spent in a period of practice and preparation for the annual Spring Strings Concert given at Lee High May 21.

Portnoy, a graduate of Julliard School of Music, is currently on the music faculty of West Virginia University as professor of violin and conductor of the University-Community Symphony Orchestra. In 1977, Portnoy was invited to participate in the Stratchclyde International Violin Festival in Scotland as master class professor. He has conducted all-state, regional and district orchestras throughout the U.S.

Folk musician not yet considering retirement

By RUDY MAXA
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — She may be 88, but one of America's most respected folk musicians, Libba Cotten, isn't considering retirement. The woman who wrote the song "Freight Train" (but didn't know anyone knew about it until she heard Peter, Paul and Mary sing it one night on television) still travels the concert circuit. Last year she played at a music festival in Switzerland with Taj Mahal, and her agent says Cotten is in demand at universities around the country.

"I'm kinda tired of airplanes," says Cotten, "so I go in cars if I can."

Today Cotten lives in Syracuse, but for most of the past 30 years she lived in the Washington area, where a chance meeeting with the musical Seegar family reawakened her childhood love of folk music.

Cotten taught her self to play the guitar and banjo as a child in Chapel Hill, N.C. She wrote songs for fun, including the now-classic "Freight Train." When she moved to Washington in the '50s, Cotten worked in a department store. There she met the Seegar family and went to work — by chance — as a domestic in one of the most important houses in the history of American folk music. Mike Seegar is today a respected player of traditional American music. His father, Charles, was a cholar of American folk music. His mother, Ruth Crawford Seegar, was a composer, and his half-brother, Pete Seegar, is a well-known balladeer as is Mike Seegar's sister, Peggy.

Cotten again began playing the guitar, and it was Peggy Seegar who heard her sing "Freight Train." During a European tour, Peggy sang the song. A British performer heard it, recorded it and made it a hit. Since than it's been performed by dozens of big-name artists, and Cotten first learned the song had become popular when she saw Peter, Paul and Mary sing it on "The Ed Sullivan Show."

With the help of the Seegars, Cotten went to court, and according to her agent, John Ullman, she secured the right to receive one-third of the royalties the song earns.

For Cotten, the thrill of a musical career as a senior citizen is unmatched. What does she think about when she hears her childhood song on the radio?

"I think about when I was a little girl and how I used to sing that and watch the train coming in," she says. "We'd always wave at that train, and sometimes now I lay awake at night and think about all those things. Because I was happy then, and it makes me feel so good."

Radio program to celebrate 10th anniversary

NEW YORK (AP) — Just after the first of the year, National Public Radio's "All Things Considered" invited listeners to write President-elect Reagan's inaugural address, with the best entries to be read on the air.

"Some were short — two words: 'I resign' — others a little longer — 'I am not a crook!'" recalls Susan Stamberg, co-host of the award-winning radio newsmagazine from its debut May 3, 1971. "And there were other longer, more thoughtful letters, some of which we read.

"We did another one like that when Deng Xiaoping, the Chinese leader, was in this country," Ms. Stamberg says. "We asked listeners where he should go to get a good idea of what America is like. The letters were sensational.

"They just love to be asked."

That desire to include the audience in the daily broadcast is an important element in the "All Things Considered" success story — seven million regular listeners, praise from the critics as — from Time magazine — "the most literate, trenchant and entertaining news program on radio."

"All Things Considered" celebrates its 10th anniversary with a half-hour retrospective during the regular broadcast next Monday afternoon. "ATC," 90 minutes every weekday, an hour each afternoon on weekends, is offered NPR stations beginning at 5 p.m. EST.

Each program includes 15-20 feature stories, normally from two to six minutes long, with newscasts on the hour, business and economic reports, interviews with newsmakers, features on the arts, information on science and health.

"Susan Stamberg once delivered a speech in which she referred to 'All Things Considered' as the hungry monster into which you throw tape and ideas and a lot of money and a lot of peoples' feelings, and at 6:30 in the East every evening, it belches and is never satisfied," one colleague says in the retrospective segment. "It's just a great maw waiting for more."

Ms. Stamberg credits Barbara Frum of the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. with creating the image of the "hungry monster," but the suggestion of a creature with a voracious appetite for information is remarkably appropriate.

"ATC" relies heavily on reporters like Linda Wertheimer, NPR's chief political correspondent, Nina Totenberg, who covers the law, and Robert Krulwich, whose specialty is business and the economy, as well as analysts like Daniel Schorr and Pauline Frederick.

In addition, there are "ATC" bureaus in New York and Chicago, and the program takes daily feeds from the British Broadcasting Corp., and from other free-lance correspondents overseas.

"This is a program that is devoted to exploring the possibilities of radio. How do you tell a story in sound?" says Ms. Stamberg, co-host of the weekday program with Sanford Ungar. Linne Hanson and Noah Adams co-host the weekend editions.

"The idea," Ms. Stamberg says, "is to speak simply, to tell the listener, 'Hey, we make certain assumptions about you, that you're intelligent, curious, you want to be extremely well-informed."

"All Things Considered," Ms. Stamberg says, was created to provide public radio stations with a daily news and information program that would satisfy listeners attracted for the most part by classical music and some discussion.

"We began by hiring print people, a desire to get outstanding journalists on the air," she says. "Today, people still come to 'All Things Considered' from print, with the journalistic skills and a desire to play with this toy."

"The most important thing," says Bill Siemering, NPR's first program manager and now general manager at WUHY-FM in Philadelphia, "was to produce a journalistically sound program that went beneath the surface, to put things in context and show relationships.

"We wanted to emphasize interpretive and investigative reporting — ideas rather than events — that would speak many voices," Siemering says. "In other words, a show that would let the country hear itself."

Audience research has shown most "ATC" listeners have at least a high school degree, and earn more than $15,000. But Ms. Stamberg says, "There is really no ideal listener. We're accused sometimes of elitism, and if that is true, we would be at terrible fault.

"But the longer we're on the air, the more listeners we seem to pick up at the lower end of the scale, as the research people say.

"What should be understood," Ms. Stamberg says, "is that we are exciting to anybody who wants to turn on the radio. That's what the 'public' in public radio is all about."

Jonathan Winters can turn interview into performance

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An interview with Jonathan Winters is an odyssey, a tour through a strange and childlike region peopled by the many facets of this pot-bellied original.

His Reds cap perched squarely on his head, his ample belly sparring with the edge of the formica table in the NBC publicity conference room, Winters does his stuff. He's supposed to be here to publicize his series pilot airing on NBC Friday, a half-hour of pure Winters improvisation called "Take One." But the characters living in his head interrupt incessantly, turning the interview into a performance.

You don't interview Winters, you audience. Willingly.

On the soul of an improv artist:

"You know, you get labels in the business, a wild person, 'Jonathon Winters is a wild person. How do you get a net over him? Was he really in a crazy house?'

"But I enjoy my insanity. And I say 'insanity' because when people say to me, 'There's nothing the matter with me,' that's the person who puts the telescopic sight here (he levels an imaginary rifle out the window, aiming into the NBC parking lot) and says, 'Let's see how many we can get before we lose light. There's one (he pulls the trigger).' That's the sort of person who says there's nothing wrong with him."

That kind of craziness, that senselessness, alienation and blind brutality of modern life, crashes the conversation relentessly. There's reason for this. Winters has said that it's the child in him that's funny, and it's the child in us that laughs. The times are tough for all his children.

"It's harder to reach that little boy now. When I was growing up, the little boy saw six cars in the high school lot. Now, in so:ses, there's no high school, just cars. We were confused, too, but we were confused in a wonderful way. Our imagination.. .'"

The characters take over. This time it's Captain Midnight (with sound affects).

"I'm Captain Midnight, off into space (whooosh)! What's the matter, Billy and Betty?"

Billy and Betty: "We're caught in the jungle and can't get out."

And on it goes, until Winters' adult returns to pick of the thread.

"That was the world of imagination. Now, times have changed. .. It was one thing to live when there was no atomic bomb, another thing to live with the atomic bomb. And a completely different thing to live in a time when you wonder whether there will be total holocaust by Friday at 12:30.

"We've gotten used to assassinations, we've gotten used to guys in the Dallas towers, we've gotten used to guys taking shots at our leaders. I think the hardest thing, for the little boy in me to break through to the little boy out there, is this terrible paranoia we're all in. My little boy has to work 200 percent harder."

Another character, 8-year-old Tommy Brichton, comes forth to demonstrate the point.

Man: "You're little Tommy Brichton."

"Yes I am."

"Tommy, how are you doing in school?"

"Well, it's difficult to know what's going on from one day to the next. I watched a man on television who said the school situtions is going to turn around by July. But we're going to be out of school by July, so what does he mean?"

"You're talking about busing...

"Yes. I'd like to ride a bus."

"Why not walk to school?"

"No waaaay. Eddie Terrell was stabbed to death by a 91-year-old man. He couldn't see. Thought it was a dog, that's what he said. C'mon, he killed him."

"That's terrible. How did you feel?'

"Eddie was bad. He would have died before he got to high school because he was bad news. He passed out gum balls with stuff in it..."

Point taken. It's kind of strange to find so much grim in a fellow so thoroughly comic.

De Havilland's script, letters sold during celebrity auction

NEW YORK (AP) — The original script used by actress Olivia de Havilland during the shooting of "Gone With The Wind" has been purchased for $13,250 — one of several celebrity items sold at auction here.

Also sold Thursday were letters by Ronald Reagan and Jesse James and erotic drawings by John Lennon.

Included with Miss de Havilland's red-leather bound copy of the script was a four-page memoir in which she tells of how she identified as a young actress of 22 with Melanie Hamilton Wilkes, the character she played in the 1939 film classic.

"For a little while, as I lived her life, I felt her love, felt her trust, felt her faith, felt her happiness. ... She was the woman I wanted to be, the woman I was not," Miss de Havilland wrote of the sweet Southern belle who contrasted sharply in the film with Scarlett O'Hara.

The script was purchased by Ken Kragen, a Hollywood agent.

Miss de Havilland has lived in Paris for many years but said she decided to sell the script because she was "changing my whole life style and moving back to the United States." She said she probably would settle in Connecticut in the late summer or fall.

In the Jesse James letter, the desperado informs a Mr. Flood that he should apologize immediately to James' mother about his charge that the James brothers were horse thieves. The letter concludes "...if you value your life you had better retract your slander."

The letter was purchased by a private collector, identified only as Mr. Romig, for $11,000, according to Susan Miller, a spokeswoman for auctioneer Charles Hamilton.

Six letters written by Ronald Reagan sold for a total of $7,475. One written in 1977 to a Jeffery Benziger advised that "an office holder should make every decision as if he were never going to run for office again. In other words make decisions without any thought as to how it might affect votes in the next election."

Five signed pencil drawings by Lennon, the slain rock musician, were sold for a total of $3,900. Several failed to bring minimum bids set by the buyer.

The fiber optic long distance cable, top photo, currently being installed by Southwestern Bell between Midland and Monahans may be smaller than the traditional copper cable, bottom photo but it is lighter, easier to install and can handle a heavier calling load, Bell officials say.

Long distance cable project under way here

Many Midland-Odessa area telephone customers dialing long distance will soon have access to the largest fiber optic lightwave communications system in Southwestern Bell history.

The company has begun construction of a 58-mile fiber optic long distance cable project between Midland and Monahans. Construction on the $4.5 million project began in March and is expected to be completed in late 1982.

Purpose of the project, explained Southwestern Bell engineer Jim Welch, is to provide long distance calling relief and additional capacity for future long distance growth in the area.

Welch said that fiber optic cable is lighter, easier to install, and can handle a heavier calling load than the traditional copper cable.

"Fiber optics is definitely something to watch in the future, and we want to take full advantage of it now," Welch said. "With the tremendous growth in this area and fiber optics' ability to expand its capacity, the new cable is the most efficient and cost-effective way to go."

Welch said the project will use 12 miles of existing conduit and requires installation of 13 miles of conduit. The remaining 33 miles will be buried.

With fiber optics transmission, different frequencies of light are transformed into digital signals which then move to a company central office for the completion of the call.

Welch said the half-inch cable has a capacity of 12 "ribbons," with each ribbon representing the equivalent of a 3½-inch copper cable. "As you can see with the comparison, it won't take long for the fiber optic cable to start paying dividends to us and our customers," Welch said.

Another money-saving advantage of fiber optics, according to Welch, is that a repeater station is required only every four to five miles. Traditional copper cable needs a repeater every eight to nine thousand feet.

Tennessee town observes anniversary of Casey's crash

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP) — In 1900, an 8-year-old girl awoke in the middle of the night to the sound of a train crashing. Today, she was a guest of honor as Casey Jones' hometown observed the 81st anniversary of the wreck of the "Cannonball Express."

Gov. Lamar Alexander proclaimed today "Casey Jones Day" and the Casey Jones Home & Railroad Museum, moved last fall from downtown Jackson to the Casey Jones Village tourist complex on U.S. 45, was to be rededicated.

The legendary engineer, who grew to a strapping 6-foot-4, was born John Luther Jones but was dubbed Casey when he moved to Jackson because part of his boyhood years had been spent in Cayce, Ky.

He was living in a white frame house near the railroad yards in downtown Jackson when he left Memphis the night of April 30, 1900, on the trip that would make him an American folk hero.

Jones was at the throttle of "Old 382," making the 188-mile freight run to Canton, Miss., aboard the "Cannonball Express" when he spotted a stalled freight train ahead.

As the legend goes, Jones could have jumped — as did his fireman — but rode the engine to the end to keep maximum control over the train and minimize the damage.

The city of Jackson bought Jones's home in 1956 and opened a museum to honor the engineer. In 1977, the city leased the home and museum to businessman T. Clark Shaw, who last year moved it to the new location as centerpiece in the tourist complex.

Shaw said Wednesday it cost $100,000 to move the house, a 135-ton steam locomotive engine and coal tender and two 1890s railroad coach cars and to restore the outside of the museum-home, which reopened in March.

The rededication was delayed until today to coincide with the anniversary of Jones' death.

Shaw said guests at the ceremony would include "Steam Train" Maury Graham, known as "King of the Hoboes."

Shaw said Mrs. T.H. Norman, 89, of Yazoo, Miss., also was to attend the ceremonies.

Mrs. Norman was an 8-year-old living on a farm near Vaughan, Miss., the night Jones was killed.

"As far as we know, she is the only person living today who has a direct connection with the Casey Jones accident in 1900," Shaw said. "She and her family were awakened in the night by the sound of the train crashing."

Teen faces life in editor's death

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — A 17-year-old boy faces a sentence of 25 years to life in prison after being convicted of robbing and killing retired Reader's Digest editor Eleanor Prouty and brutally beating her invalid husband.

It took Judge Angelo Ingrassi only 15 minutes Thursday to find Terrence Losicco, 17, of Stony Point, guilty on 14 counts of murder, robbery, assault and related charges. Losicco had waived his right to a jury.

The teen-ager, currently an inmate at the Lincoln Hall reformatory, is to be sentenced June 19.

The prosecution alleged that Losicco and David Hollis, 16, of Lackawanna, also a resident of the reform school, broke into the Proutys' Somers, N.Y., home May 25 in the mistaken belief that the couple kept a large amount of cash in the house.

According to Losicco's confession, which was admitted as evidence at the trial, the two boys took $25 from a coffee table and crept up the stairs to where Mrs. Prouty, 67, and her husband Norman, 69, were sleeping.

Losicco said he beat Prouty, who suffers from multiple sclerosis, on the head with a piece of firewood. When Mrs. Prouty jumped up and started screaming, Losicco led her downstairs where they struggled, according to his statement.

He said he beat the woman over the head with the firewood, kicked her in the mouth when she fell to the floor and sodomized her as she lay dying.

The county medical examiner found that Mrs. Prouty was strangled to death and that a sneaker sole imprint had been left on her cheek.

Although the judge said he was "convinced beyond a reasonable doubt" that Losicco had sodomized Mrs. Prouty, he cleared the youth of that charge because there was no corroborating evidence as required by law.

But the judge found sufficent corroborating evidence that Losicco killed Mrs. Prouty and assaulted her husband, who has been confined to a nursing home since the incident.

He ordered Hollis' murder trial to begin Monday.

The Lincoln Hall reformatory school is near the Prouty home. Mrs. Prouty, who retired from Reader's Digest in 1977, had frequently given odd-jobs to Lincoln Hall students. Those students told police Losicco bragged about the killing and had planned to rob the home for several weeks.

Willie Pace, a former Lincoln Hall student, testified that Losicco tried to get him to help rob the home.

Pace said he backed out after Losicco said that if the Proutys discovered them during the crime, "We'll have to kill them."

The defense called no witnesses in the case.

Jury convicts couple for trying to sell baby

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — An Air Force sergeant and his wife face prison terms of up to seven years and fines up to $2,500 each after being convicted of trying to sell their 7-month-old daughter for $2,000.

A 12-member jury deliberated for more than six hours Thursday before finding Tech. Sgt. John Raaen III and his wife, Jantee, guilty of attempting to sell their child.

U.S. District Judge Fred M. Taylor set sentencing for May 29.

The couple was originally charged under state law with selling their daughter, Shannon, to another Air Force officer and his wife last November.

But after three days of testimony and just before giving the case to the jury, Taylor reduced the charge to attempted sale. Taylor said he was convinced that since no money changed hands, the legal requirement for proving a sale had not been met.

Witnesses testified the Raaens were paid with a $2,000 check. Air Force investigators testified Raaen still had the check on him when he was arrested the next day.

Raaen, a 16-year Air Force veteran, said he didn't intend to cash the check and thought he was putting his daughter up for adoption, not selling her.

When Air Force authorities learned that the Raaens were seeking to sell their child, officials contacted Carol Holloman, who had been active in programs to combat child abuse. She and her husband, Air Force Sgt. John Holloman, pretended to be interested in buying the baby and agreed to the purchase while aiding authorities in the investigation.

After the trial, Raaen continued to maintain he was innocent of the charge. His Thai-born wife, who had to use an interpretor to take part in trial proceedings, did not comment.

The infant girl was taken from the Raaens and adopted by another family as a result of the charges.

Cheerleader killer gets gas chamber sentence

HALIFAX, N.C. (AP) — A 23-year-old man who "accomplished his fantasy" has been sentenced to death in the gas chamber for the rape and murder of a college cheerleader.

Weeping jurors passed the sentence on Kermit Smith Jr., a self-described "all-American boy," on Thursday, one day after finding him guilty of first-degree murder in the December death of Whelette Collins, 20.

"I've been ready to die for some time," said the lean, 23-year-old Roanoke Rapids man. "I've made too many mistakes in my life."

The courthouse clock struck 5 as Superior Court Judge George M. Fountain set the execution for June 26 and said, "May God have mercy on your soul."

Appeals of death sentences are automatic in North Carolina, but Smith said he might not press for a review because death might be preferable to a life beind bars.

Fountain also sentenced Smith to consecutive sentences of 40 years on the rape charge and 10 years on a robbery charge.

Wood jury winds up three days of testimony

By MACK SISK
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Federal grand jurors investigating the slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. apparently are concentrating on any link between imprisoned narcotics trafficker Jimmy Chagra and convicted hired killer Charles V. Harrelson.

The panel, which plans to end its three-day session today, so far has called nine witnesses and nearly all of them have come in contact with Chagra or Harrelson.

The government has listed both Chagra and Harrelson as "targets" in the investigation into the May 29, 1979, assassination of Wood outside his San Antonio apartment.

Gambler Jack Strauss and El Paso residents William Cabrera Sr. and William Cabrera Sr. appeared before the grand jury Thursday.

Strauss said previously he knew Chagra and the Cabreras reportedly were instrumental in introducing Harrelson to El Paso businesswoman Virgnia Farah. Mrs. Farah hired Harrelson as a bodyguard last year while he was a fugitive from narcotics, firearms and gambling paraphernelia charges at Houston.

Neither Cabrera would discuss their appearance and were accompanied by an FBI agent when they left the federal courthouse at mid-afternoon.

"I answered the questions to the best of my ability," Strauss said as he left through a back entrance.

Strauss, who said he knew nothing about the killing of Wood, would not comment on what he was asked.

Strauss, who also testified last August, termed as "garbage" testimony given the grand jury last year by convicted San Antonio murderer Robert "Comache" Riojas. Riojas claimed that Strauss and two other men stalked Wood at Rockport, Texas, where the judge owned a weekend house, but Strauss said the group was simply on a fishing trip.

The persons named by Riojas have claimed he made up the story in an attempt to get a lighter sentence on a state murder conviction.

"It was a complete fabrication made up to sell newspapers, from start to finish," Strauss said.

Strauss' attorney, Jeff Morehouse, called the Riojas story "a wild goose chase" and said that Strauss "is not a target" of the investigation.

"Somebody should have checked the facts," the lawyer ssaid. "Strauss was hurt by the publicity" surrounding Riojas' testimony.

Morehouse also represented high-stakes gambler Bobby Hoff who testified Wednesday and returned to the courthouse Thursday to be photographed and fingerprinted.

Hoff won second place and $108,000 in the World Series of Poker at Binion's Horsehoe Casino in Las Vegas in May 1979. Chagra and Harrelson both gambled at the same casino during that time and her rifle.

Daniel family seeks child visitation rights

HOUSTON (AP) -- Former Texas Gov. and Mrs. Price Daniel Sr. have asked a family court judge to restore visitation rights stripped in a bitter child custody battle over two of their slain son's children.

The Daniels filed an intervention document with Family District Judge Sam S. Emison Jr., asking that Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, and Marion Price Daniel IV, 1, be allowed to visit them for one week during Easter, Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

The couple also requested the court to order three-day visits in February, May, June and October and the final two weeks in July and the first two weeks in August for the annual family reunion and round-up at the family ranch in Liberty.

Vickie Daniel, the children's mother, won a six-week courtroom fight with sister-in-law Jean Daniel Murph of Richardson to keep her two sons. Last week's decision by a state court jury did not specify visitation rights for Mrs. Murph or the paternal grandparents.

Mrs. Daniel is charged with murder in the Jan. 19 shooting death of her husband, former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. She claims her husband's death was accidental.

The 33-year-old mother of four has said the Daniels would be able to visit their grandchildren, but "they want it court ordered," said Walter Fontenot, an attorney for the Daniel family.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, May 2, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: The late Bing Crosby was born on this day, the day on which the famous Kentucky Derby takes place. A large share of good luck will help you get the things you want most in the year ahead. Fortune smiles on your creative endeavors, and a natural flair for business helps increase your income. Other people may influence your actions and decisions more than you like. Selecting a partner who understands your restless nature is the key to happy romance. You may be contemplating a change of employment or residence. Consult those who know you best before making your final choice.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Anticipation of a social success gets this weekend off to a flying start. Concentrate on meeting the needs of your loved ones. Do what you can to further mate's interests.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): If traveling, keep an eye on expenses so they do not get out of hand. Good fortune sends some additional money your way. Spend it wisely. Or better yet, save it!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Do not fly off the handle today or you could have a lonely weekend. Allow more "give and take" in a romantic relationship. An intelligent compromise makes both of you happier.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Make the most of the morning hours. A new acquaintance could give you fresh inspiration. You can exert a good influence over a worried youngster by taking an interest.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Spectator sports hold special appeal for you now. Do not expect too much from romantic partner. A friendship means a lot to you. Cultural events are favored this evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Work endeavors can be highly profitable today. You see a chance to boost your income and earning power this afternoon. Spend the evening with good friends. Candid conversation gives you a new perspective.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Romantic relationship becomes more rewarding. Your rapport with loved one is at an all-time high. Get out and socialize this evening. Be charming, poised and courteous, and you will get what you want.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A domestic clean-up could uncover lost treasures. Member of opposite sex makes a disclosure that can greatly affect your future. Ask questions. Large purchases are best postponed. Spend money on essentials only.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A good day for improving your personal relationships. Thanks to some recent good fortune you will have a fun evening. Invite close friend to join the family circle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Work on your own whenver possible today. This is not a good time to ask for a raise. The personal side of your life takes a turn for the better. Mate shows new appreciation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Discuss how things stand with loved one. Understanding, encouragement are what you need most right now. Mate helps restore your confidence. Social event proves to be a delightful diversion.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Do what you can to get your finances in better shape. Work with partner to set up regular savings program. Check investments to make sure you are getting the best return for your money.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	Dble	Pass	1 ♡
2 ◇	2 ♡	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: King of ◇

One of the secrets of good defense is trust in your partner. This example from our files took place 30 years ago and afforded one of the writers of this column the pleasure of watching Helen Sobel at her best.

The bidding was routine, and Sobel, who held the West cards, started off with king, ace and the jack of diamonds. Rather than ruff low in dummy and be overruffed, declarer sluffed a losing club from the table and East seized the opportunity to signal his strength in clubs by discarding the seven.

It would be easy for a careless defender to err and give declarer his contract. For instance, if West leads ace and another club, the defenders would get their two club tricks and no more. Or if West continues with a fourth diamond, declarer would sluff another club from dummy and again make his contract.

Helen was not regarded as one of the best players in the world for nothing. Placing absolute faith in her partner's club signal, she shifted to the nine of clubs! East won the king and returned a club to West's act to complete the defensive book. Now came the coup de grace: West led a fourth diamond. It made no difference what declarer elected to do. In practice, he sluffed a spade from dummy. East ruffed with the ten of trumps—a classic uppercut. Declarer overruffed, but West was now certain of a trump trick, and the contract had to go down one trick.

There was nothing earth-shattering about the defense. But simply believing partner was worth an absolute top score on the board.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. DR. NEIL SOLOMON

At least 50 percent of all ulcers heal without treatment

Dear Dr. Solomon: About a year ago, my husband was told he had an ulcer, but he stopped going to the doctor and did nothing about it. Yet he says he feels well and it doesn't bother him anymore. Is it possible that an ulcer can go away without any treatment? — Mrs. D.N.

Dear Mrs. N.: It certainly is possible. It is estimated that at least 50 percent of ulcers heal spontaneously.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband suffered a heart attack several months ago, but is making a good recovery. Since he is 62 years of age and would be eligible for Social Security benefits, plus the fact that we have some savings, I would like him to retire. While we are not wealthy, we would be able to live fairly comfortably. His doctor tells him that whether or not he retires is up to him, but that the fact that he suffered a heart attack should not be the deciding factor. However, I'm afraid he will have a recurrence if he goes back to work. Do you have any suggestions? Any advice you can give along)hese lines would be appreciated. — Mrs. L.S.

Dear Mrs. S.: Any recommendation concerning the advisability of retirement must take into account a host of factors. While the individual's medical condition is of paramount importance, other issues — social, etonomic, and psychological — also must be considered in arriving at a decision. For example, how physically demanding is the job? Does it subject the person to unusual stress? The answers to these questions would be important in arriving at a decision.

In general, however, I agree with your husband's physician that the fact that he has had a heart attack should not be the only factor taken into consideration. I have seen a number of patients in my private practice who have had heart attacks and who continued to work after a period of recovery. For many of these people, I am convinced, the fact that they continued to be employed actually helped them cope with their disease since it gave them the feeling that they were able to continue doing something useful.

This observation is supported by a study conducted by Dr. Redford Williams, professor of psychiatry and assistant professor of medicine at the Duke University Medical Center. Dr. Williams followed a number of coronary heart disease patients for a period of six months. At the end of that time, 70 percent of those who were working full time reported they had achieved releif from pain, while only 42 percent of those not working had experienced relief.

While your concern about your husband's continued employment certainly is understandable, you might be doing him a disservie if you insist that he retire.

Safety rules urged when riding bicycle

By SUE ALFORD
Traffic Safety Planning
Midland College

Bicycling has increased greatly in recent years; in fact, there are almost as many bikes as cars being used in the U.S. But, as bicycling has increased, so have bicycle accidents.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission reports approximately 1.4 million bike accidents per year occur causing over 80,000 serious injuries. And those accidents don't just involve youngsters; one fifth of all bike accident fatalities occur to persons over 35.

Statistics like that suggest adults need, just as do kids, a periodic review of bicycling safety rules. The best perspective I can offer is that bicycling is DRIVING, not riding. Then, the concept of driving a bicycle connotes responsibility...it emphasizes that the bicycle is a mode of transportation as is a car or motorcycle and is regulated by traffic laws.

The following points, whether law or common sense, will help accident proof bicyclists:

— Obey all signs, signals and pavement markings.

— Use hand signals for all stops and turns.

— Ride on the right-hand side of the street, flowing with traffic.

— Equip bikes wth headlights, reflectors and horns.

— Ride solo...only one to a bike unless a tandem.

— Ride in single file...this is especially critical in our area where there are no bike paths.

— Walk bikes across busy intersections...again, this is critical because often bike accidents occur at intersections where motorists just don't see bikes in the traffic.

Yes, these points are common sense, yes, they can make a difference; but, rarely are they followed. The bicycle is different from other traffic. It cannot go as fast, it cannot go in reverse; but, it is very negotiable...fits in small places, changes direction easily and stops fast. These differences make it necessary to go by the rules...for all our sakes.

JUST FOR FUN: The world's largest dump truck is the "Terex Titan," made in 1974 by General Motors. It stands 56 feet high and holds 700,000 pounds of dirt.

READ IT AND WEEP: A new study by the insurance industry shows it would cost $25,458 in parts and labor to repair a totally wrecked 1980 U.S. subcompact car which originally costs $6,018.

TRAFFIC TIPS: "A" Street, from Wadley to Airpark Road, closed for construction.

FM 868...from Big Spring to Lamesa Road is closed due to work on Loop 250.

Midkiff, under construction from Storey to Golf Course, is causing particular motorist problems at the south side of the Andrews Highway intersection. Motorists are urged to be extremely cautious when turning into this intersection...a lot of us are turning into the construction area.

BABES IN ARMS...is an act of love that can kill. One of every 60 babies born today will die in a traffic accident; six out of every 10 will be injured in an automobile accident during their life. Isn't that a good reason to use child safety seats (child restraints)?

New inexpensive pill eases stage fright, jitters

DENVER (AP) — Performers suffering the agonies of "stage fright" may get relief from an inexpensive pill that doctors say works without slowing or distorting the senses.

The medicine, propranolol, is a prescription drug used widely for certain heart ailments. It blocks the flow of adrenalin into the bloodstream, according to Dr. Charles O. Brantigan, director of the Noninvasive Vascular Diagnostic Lab at Presbyterian Hospital.

His findings were presented to the Eastman School of Music and the University of Rochester medical school in Rochester, N.Y., and released to The Denver Post on Wednesday.

Brantigan, his brother, Tom, who is a music instructor at the University of Nebraska, and Dr. Neal Joseph, a professor of ophthalmology, first tested the pill on musicians in Nebraska in 1979.

Their initial research was reported in the Rocky Mountain Medical Journal in 1979. Since then, the team has conducted more tests at the University of Nebraska and the Juilliard School of Music in New York City.

"A performer, beset by fear, finds his body reacting as it would when facing a hostile mob or a tiger," Brantigan said.

Witness can't identify man

NEW YORK (AP) — A key prosecution witness says she told police she couldn't identify the man she saw in an elevator with slain violinist Helen Hagnes Mintiks shortly before the woman disappeared at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Ballerina Laura Cutler testified Thursday she couldn't say whether accused murderer Craig Crimmins was the man she described under hypnosis last summer when she was questioned by police.

Senior citizens day set next week at MC

A fun-filled day of activities for senior citizens has been planned at Midland College Tuesday with area Senior Center participating in the entertainment.

Named "May Day-Play Day," the event is being sponsored by the Midland College Senior Services Department. Norma Webb is director of the department. The special events will be presented in the Midland College Student Center.

"This is being designed to provide a lot of fun and entertainment, both for senior citizens and Midland College students," Mrs. Webb said.

The May Day-Play Day is open to any senior citizen and to the general public, without charge. Lunch will be available at the Midland College Snack Bar at a nominal charge. The Midland College Student Senate is helping to serve free juice and ice cream sundaes at noon.

The entertainment schedule includes: 10 a.m., exercise demonstration by the Midland Senior Center; 10:30 a.m., Fun Bunch Rhythmaires, Andrews Senior Center; 11 a.m., Katy's Kitchen Band, Lovington, N.M., Senior Center; 11:30 a.m., Midland College Show Choir; noon, Midland College belly dancing class; 12:30 p.m., Swinging Senior Cs, Seminole Senior Center; 1 p.m., Swinging Rhythmettes, Odessa Senior Center; and 1:30 p.m., band or choir, Kermit Senior Center.

Some of the area senior centers also are expected to provide crafts exhibits and demonstrations for the "May Day-Play Day."

Soldier fighting scheduled extradition

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — A white Army private reportedly indicted in the killings of three blacks in Buffalo, N.Y., plans to fight extradition to New York, where a newspaper said tests on bullet casings yielded "good" evidence in the case.

Attorneys for Army Pvt. Joseph G. Christopher, 25, of Buffalo, told Superior Court Judge John Land in a closed hearing Thursday that their client did not want to return to New York, according to Muscogee County Chief Deputy Jim McLendon.

An extradition hearing was scheduled for May 8, even though New York Gov. Hugh Carey still had not signed formal extradition papers Thursday seeking Christopher's return.

Carey spokesman Steven Morello said Carey was reviewing the extradition papers today sent to him by Erie County District Attorney Edward C. Cosgrove. Morello said the "review process will be expedited," but he did not say when a decision was expected.

The papers, if signed by Carey, would be sent to Georgia Gov. George Busbee and then to the commanding general of Fort Benning, Ga.

Christopher was arrested Thursday at the Fort Benning stockade, where he had been held on a charge of attempted murder in the stabbing of a black soldier. He was transferred to the county jail on a fugitive-from-justice warrant, McLendon said.

Cosgrove had announced in Buffalo that a grand jury returned a sealed indictment naming a suspect in three of the seven slayings of blacks that terrorized the Buffalo area late last year.

The district attorney said he couldn't reveal the name of the suspect until he is arraigned, but Cosgrove said "conclusive" evidence was found at residences of Christopher's family in Buffalo and Chautauqua County. The Buffalo Evening News identified the man under indictment as Christopher.

Cosgrove said his office sought the indictment based on a ballistics report on .22-caliber slugs and casings found at the residences that were compared with ammunition found at the scene of the killings.

The Buffalo Courier-Express today quoted an unnamed task force source as saying the casings provided "good" evidence, explaining there was a close match in firing-pin marks.

Cosgrove said he had not yet received a report from the FBI Lab in Washington on the ammunition and several other items confiscated at the Christopher residences, including a blood-stained fatigue jacket, a knife and rifle components.

Meanwhile, Lt. Don McWeeney of the New York City homicide bureau said the indictment in Buffalo haslrekindled interest in the theory that the same man who committed the Buffalo murders may have committed four fatal stabbings in Manhattan.

Algeria supplying Soviet weapons to Iranians

WASHINGTON (AP) — Algeria, praised lavishly for its mediator role in freeing the American hostages from Iranian captivity, is quietly providing Iran with Soviet-made arms for its war with Iraq, informed sources told The Associated Press.

Delivery was begun in early April through Syria, which according to sources has joined with Libya in trying to bolster Iran in the face of near-unanimous Arab support for Iraq.

Administration officials said they were unable to corroborate the report, but it was confirmed by Iranian emigre sources here and in Europe.

The effect of the arms transfer on the low-key, seven-month-old conflict was not immediately apparent. Neither Iran nor Iraq seems able to gain a commanding edge.

The United States has tried to steer a neutral course between the warring sides. There was some brief criticism of Iraq shortly after the outbreak, but U.S. policy has been directed largely at supporting negotiations for a settlement.

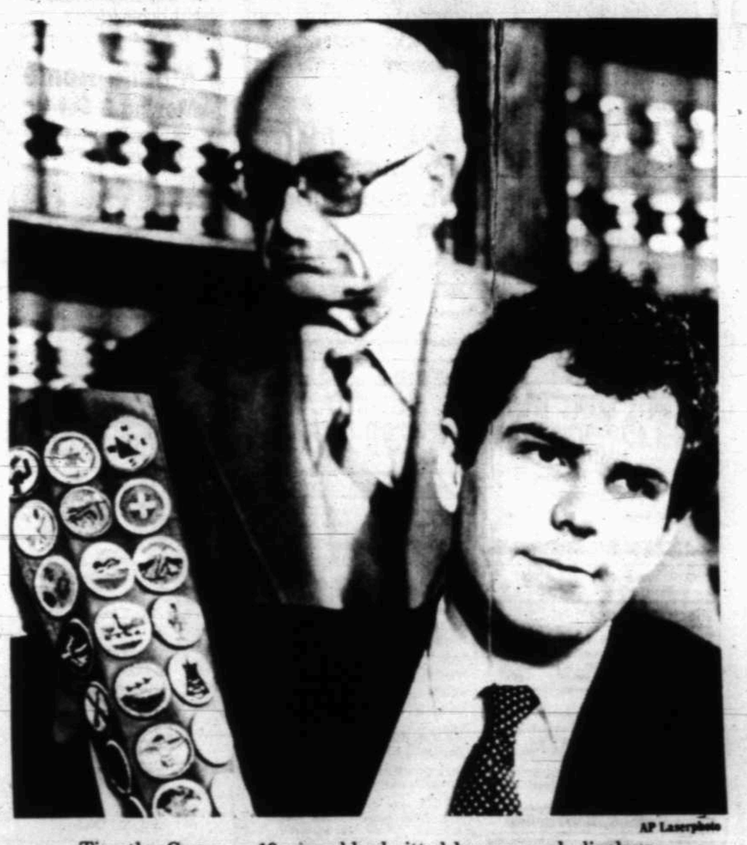

Describing its request as urgent, Iran asked Algeria for anti-aircraft missiles, artillery shells, launch pads for anti-tank missiles, bazookas and heavy mortars, among other battlefield weapons, the sources said.

The cargo was shipped to the Syrian ports of Taratus and Latakiya, unloaded and carried by truck to al-Maza, a military air base near Damascus, the Syrian capital. According to the sources, who insisted on not being named, American-built Iranian cargo planes then flew the equipment to Iran.

Libya, Syria and North Korea already were known by U.S. intelligence officials to be assisting Iran. It also has a potent arsenal of American weapons purchased during the late Shah Reza Mohammad Pahlavi's rule and aging Soviet, British and French arms.

Egypt, meanwhile, has been stepping up its shipment of spare parts to Iraq, which swaps crude oil for weapons on the open market. Other equipment has been sent to Iraq by South Korea, according to U.S. sources.

Iraq launched its attack last Sept. 22 and laid claim to disputed territory held by Iran. At this point, Iraq controls 6,000 to 8,000 square miles. It has destroyed the giant Iranian refinery at Abadan, but has not secured a strategic foothold.

Timothy Curran, a 19-year-old admitted homosexual, displays some of his Eagle Scout badges at a Thursday news conference in Los Angeles.

College student suing Boy Scouts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 19-year-old man who once took a male date to a high school prom has sued Boy Scouts of America for expelling him because he is a homosexual.

Timothy Curran said a Boy Scout executive told him homosexuals were immoral and, therefore, not permitted in scouting. Now a college student, Curran seeks to retain his rank as an Eagle Scout and work as a staff member at this summer's Boy Scout Jamboree in Virginia.

Curran's lawsuit, which was filed Thursday in Los Angeles Superior Court by the American Civil Liberties Union, also seeks $520,000 in damages from the Oakland area's Mt. Diablo Council of the Boy Scouts. Another plaintiff in the suit is the National Gay Task Force, a New York-based non-profit group.

Curran said Scout Executive Quentin Alexander met with him after reading a newspaper article about Curran's life as a homosexual teen-ager. He said Alexander told him he was being ousted on grounds of immorality and expressed concern that Curran might try to convert other scouts to homosexuality.

"The plaintiff was informed ... that as a homosexual, he was not a good moral example to be emulated by younger scouts," the suit said. "He was informed that it was the Mt. Diablo Boy Scouts Council's policy not to allow atheists or homosexuals in the organization."

The ACLU called the council's decision an infringement on freedom of religion as well as other civil rights.

U.S. threatens pullout in Namibia talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is telling black African nations it may drop out of efforts to settle the issue of independence for Namibia if they insist on supporting a United Nations inititive to impose sanctions against South Africa.

The black Africans were told the United States believes the sanctions are "dead in the water," a senior State Department official said Thursday. But he denied that U.S. opposition to the sanctions represents a tilt towards South Africa, the white-dominated nation which now controls Namibia.

With the United States, Britain and France casting a total of 12 vetoes, four sanctions calling for a variety of embargoes aimed at driving South Africa out of Namibia were defeated Thursday night in the U.N. Security Council.

"What we were saying is that we have come back to this problem at a time when a plan to deal with it is dead in the water," the U.S. official said. "We have no intention of choosing or being forced to choose between black Africa and South Africa."

The State Department official, who spoke with reporters on the condition he not be identified, said black African leaders were told the Reagan administration believes a new U.N. resolution can serve as the basis for an acceptable settlement but that the present plan is unacceptable.

He said they were told there must be a showing of "a realistic degree of progress" if the United States is to once again take the lead of the Western nations in resolving the Namibian stalemate.

And he said the United States is retaining the option of disengaging altogether if chances for progress do not improve.

The demand for sanctions grew out of Sout Africa'srefusal to agree, at a U.N. Geneva conference Jan. 7-14, on a date to begin carryin out a 2½year-old plan to bring Namibia to independence through U.N.-supervised election.

The three Western powers that vetoed the resolutions Thursday night had themselves, along with Canada and West Germany, devised the plan for bringing about the independence of Namibia, also known as South-West Africa.

The State Department official said South Africa has legitimate concerns which must be addressed if the issue is to be resolved and stability restored to the region.

The official, who is familiar with all details of the recent trip to Africa by Chester Crocker, the undersecretary of state designate for African affairs, said the mission "gave us the chance to set the record straight."

Despite speculation to the contrary, "there simply hasn't been a 180-degree turn in our African policy nor is there going to be," he said.

The official said policy-makers in Angola were told in unmistakeable language that withdrawal of some 20,000 Cuban troops there could get the Namibian settlement efforts "off dead center" and produce a climate of mutual trust South Africa wants as a price for cooperation.

Angolan officials have said Cuban troops no longer would be needed there if the Namibia question were settled.

The South African government needs to be persuaded to act and such persuasion will be difficult so long as Cuban forces remmain across the border of Namibia in Angola, the U.S. official said.

The official said the Reagan administration has offered no definitive plan of its own but has presented a series of suggestions it hopes might produce progress "once the dust settles."

The U.N. plan calls for South Africa and the South-West Africa People's Organization, the guerilla group fighting to free Namibia, to set a ceasefire date and accept a U.N. peacekeeping force to patrol the border with Angola and supervise elections.

South Africa has resisted, claiming the U.N. system as proposed and endorsed by the United States until Reagan assumed office, favors the guerilla organization.

Heathrow Airport closed by strike

LONDON (AP) — London's Heathrow Airport, the busiest in Europe, shut down completely today as air traffic controllers staged their second mass walkout in a week, delaying thousands of passengers.

Some 400 international and domestic flights were delayed or diverted because of the seven-hour strike, officials said.

Once the Heathrow controllers return to work later today, 25 controllers at Scotland's Prestwick control center are due to start their own half-day strike.

Airport authorities said this would mean at least 20 flights from North America would be delayed or diverted to avoid British airspace.

Only one of the 35 controllers and assistants due on the morning shift at Heathrow turned up — a non-union member who crossed picket lines to sit the control tower reading a book.

"He can do nothing by himself," said John MacReadie, spokesman for the Civil and Public Servants Association, the air traffic controllers' union. "There will be no flying here during the strike period."

The controllers' shutdown is part of a series of strikes, now in their eighth week, by Britain's 530,000 civil servants, demanding 15 percent pay hikes.

There is no sign of the Conservative government yielding to the civil servants' demands.

EASTMAN WHIPSTOCK...

LEADERS IN DIRECTIONAL DRILLING

We're the first, the largest, and the best!

The first deviated relief well was guided by John Eastman in 1934. In 1972, almost forty years later Eastman merged with Whipstock Incorporated, its major competitor. As a subsidiary of Petrolane Incorporated, Eastman Whipstock is still growing and pioneering new technology in directional drilling. The following is a career opportunity available at Eastman Whipstock.

DIRECTIONAL DRILLER TRAINEES: Our Midland district operation has an immediate need for directional driller trainees. Specific requirements for the positions include a minimum of 2 years drilling rig experience and deep hole drilling experience below 15,000 feet. On site training will encompass utilization of Eastman Whipstock's tools and specialized directional drilling concepts.

Interested and qualified applicants should contact: Dick Giffhorn or Ray Warner at P.O. Box 5577, Midland, Texas 79704, (915) 563-0511. If unable to contact the aforementioned, please call the Houston headquarters, Steve Pitt, at (713) 741-2200. An equal opportunity employer, m/f.
