Reagan won't take action stemming from bombing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan is waiting for the Democrats to "make political hay" out of the Beirut bombing that killed 241 U.S. servicemen, but he does not plan to discipline anyone or withdraw the Marines from Lebanon because of the blast, a White House official says.

Anticipating the public release today of a special commission's report on the Oct. 23 attack, the president accepted "full responsibility for the incident," White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Tuesday as Reagan flew here for a vacation.

The report places the responsibility for security flaws at the Marine headquarters in Beirut before the bombing on the entire military chain of command, including the commander in chief.

A White House official accompanying Reagan said that the president would review "alternate ways of deploying the Marines" over the next several weeks and will confer with Donald Rumsfeld, his special Middle East envoy, after returning to Washington next week.

This source said there was "only a remote possibility we would pull the Marines off and put them on the ships. The president is not inclined to do that."

And, in reviewing the report, the president decided once again "that the United States' forces would remain there, in Beirut...until our goals are accomplished."

Reagan told reporters before leaving the White House that "while there's hope for peace, we have to remain."

The official, speaking on the condition that he not be identified by name, said Reagan believes that certain aspects of a House subcommittee report on the bombing "and other activities that may take place in the House" when Congress begins its next session in January "do have political overtones."

Democrats have balked at the deployment of the 1,800 U.S. Marines in the United States' contingent of the multinational peacekeeping force in Lebanon. Republicans, including Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, also have expressed opposition and the Republican leadership in Congress has been reluctant to support this aspect of the president's Middle East policy.

The official said he thought the Democrats would use the House study and the report prepared by a special commission under retired Adm. Robert L.J. Long for political purposes.

"There's no doubt the Democrats in the House will use whatever kind of legislative tactics they can as a political element in an election year," he said.

Nixon proposes joint U.S., U.S.S.R. defense systems

By KINGSBURY SMITH
National Editor, the Hearst Newspapers

Richard Nixon

WASHINGTON — Former President Richard Nixon Tuesday urged that the United States formally propose to the Soviet Union joint Soviet-American development of non-nuclear defense systems in space.

In an exclusive statement to the Hearst Newspapers, Nixon, who as president concluded in 1972 the first strategic arms limitation (SALT I) and anti-ballistic missile agreements with the Soviet Union, said:

"I believe a formal proposal that the Soviet Union join us in sharing research on such systems could well be the centerpiece of any arms control agreements that might be reached at a summit meeting.

"If we could proceed along these lines, the argument that developing a nuclear defense system is an escalation of the arms race is completely demolished."

With the U.S. and the Soviet Union now widely viewed as being on the threshold of a new arms race in space, the former president, who pursued both a firm and conciliatory policy in his relations with the Soviet Union, added:

"If both countries go forward together, the goal would be to develop a common shield. If either acts singly, the obvious purpose would be to develop a shield so that they could safely use the sword, which of course would be dangerously destabilizing."

Nixon's statement was in response to questions I submitted which were prompted by the suggestion in Mr. Nixon's latest book, "Real Peace" (Little, Brown & Co.), that the U.S. should offer to share "any technology we develop for a space-based missile system with the Soviet Union or any other nation that joins us in seeking meaningful arms control."

"If all nations could deploy the system at once none would suspect another of wanting to use it as a shield for an attack," he wrote.

Following President Reagan's decision early this year to intensify research on development of an anti-missile system in space, Moscow accused him of wanting to develop a first strike capability. Soviet leader Yuri Andropov said it was "a bid to disarm the Soviet Union" and would create "a runaway race in space."

However, the president's decision was prompted by concern that the Soviets have already developed and tested anti-satellite weapons and are believed to be 3 to 5 years ahead of the U.S. on laser space weapons.

Accident haunts woman for 45 years

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — The memory of a speeding car striking a man on a dark country road haunted a woman for 45 years, and she finally confessed that her long-dead stepfather was the driver, police said.

Authorities would not identify the stepfather — dead for 20 years — or the woman. But officers believe the fatal hit-and-run is solved, even though the evidence is circumstantial and there is no one to prosecute.

On Feb. 27, 1938, Peter Pico, a 44-year-old ranch worker, was found dead on a rural road about 35 miles north of Santa Barbara.

He had been walking home about 3 a.m. when the hit-and-run driver struck. There were no skid marks, indicating the driver never slowed.

No evidence was found, and police eventually forgot the case.

But a girl who was riding in the car remembered.

Last week, Santa Barbara police officer Skip Bond answered a phone call from a Los Angeles woman in her 50s. Her voice was sincere, and the story, though strange, was convincing.

"It sounded like it could have happened," Bond said.

The woman told him she'd spent two months of sleepless nights, tormented by the recurring vision of her stepfather's car striking an object in the road 45 years earlier. She also remembered the distress of being told to keep quiet.

Since the death occurred in an unincorporated area of Santa Barbara County, Bond referred the woman to Lorin McRae of the California Highway Patrol.

Sheriff's department to lose 10 employees

By LAWRENCE BUDD

ODESSA — Cutbacks ordered by Ector County to the sheriff's department will leave the workforce 10 positions shy beginning the new year.

A part of county-wide cuts approved by Ector County Commissioners, the sheriff's department budget has been reduced by about $290,000 in personnel, equipment, machinery and other expenses.

The county proposed cutting seven investigators, three jailers and one jail nurse. Sheriff Bob Brookshire said only 10 positions will be cut.

World Bank estimates 800 million people hungry

Part Eight

EDITOR'S NOTE: The subject of hunger in America made recent headlines when Edwin Meese III, presidential counselor, gave his views on how little hunger the Task Force on Food Assistance has documented. This is the eighth in a series of articles on hunger with contributions from Hearst newspapers across the country.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — Half a billion people, more than 12 percent of the 4 billion humans on earth, can't get enough to eat. The consequences are misery, chronic illness and death.

No one knows how many die from starvation every year, but countless millions are known to die from illnesses they are too weak to resist because of malnutrition. Stark examples are the more than 250,000 children who go blind each year because of vitamin A deficiencies.

Most of the countries where malnutrition is widespread are in Africa, but the majority of malnourished people are in the more populous areas of Asia, according to estimates by the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), an autonomous United Nations agency.

Hunger, an international problem, is a natural field of activity for the United Nations.

The FAO, the largest of the four primary hunger-oriented U.N. organizations, provides technical agricultural assistance. The World Food Program (WFP) sends food to developing countries, and, according to Tekle Tomlinson, senior UN/WFP liason officer, is much like a bank that uses food instead of cash.

THE INTERNATIONAL Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD) funds agricultural projects. The World Food Council (WFC) is the U.N. policy body on hunger and, like IFAD, was established in 1974 by the U.N. General Assembly to combat the critical food situation in developing countries.

"The idea of food being used for the purpose of development fundamentally is to relieve human suffering," said Tomlinson. He said that the WFP is the one instrument in the U.N. system that is both short- and long-term: "Short-term in the sense that in feeding those people, you in effect save them from certain famine and, sometimes, death. But at the same time by feeding them you increase the potential of their utility to the country to which they belong."

The WFP works in areas where there is a food shortage and supports labor-intensive activities such as land reclamation and erosion control. It pays workers with food.

There are currently 149 WFP emergency relief operations in 53 countries at a total cost of approximately $415.4 million.

Different organizations have different estimates on the dimensions of the hunger problem. Only estimates are possible, according to Mahaman Balla, a spokesman for the WFP, because of the poor administrative facilities in the developing countries, many of which do not know the size of their own populations.

For example, the World Bank puts the number of hungry people in the world at 800 million, much higher than the FAO estimate of 500 million.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Temperatures to be in mid-teens

Today's threat of snow, freezing rain and sleet was to give way by tonight to clear skies and colder — in the mid-teens — temperatures.

Along with the cold front is to be northerly winds of 5 to 15 mph, said the weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Tuesday's peak temperature of 68 degrees approached the record high of 75 degrees for Dec. 27 in 1970. The overnight low of 25 degrees was far from the record low of 13 degrees for Dec. 28 in 1950.

For Thursday, the weatherman has forecast a sunny but cold day with a high in the low 30s. Winds are to be easterly at 5 to 10 mph.

Propane gas explosion levels block

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Firefighters combed the smoldering ruins of a residential neighborhood today for more victims of a propane gas explosion and fire that killed at least six people, injured 43 and leveled a city block, officials said.

Five firemen and a resident were known dead in the blast at a warehouse Tuesday, and another fireman was missing, officials said.

Of 43 people taken to three hospitals with injuries ranging from severe burns to broken bones and cuts, five were listed in critical condition.

The blast hit around 8:30 p.m., just minutes after three fire trucks arrived in the neighborhood east of downtown to check a report of a propane leak around a bakery supply building and an adjacent four-story brick warehouse, Batalion Fire Chief Michael Angrisano said.

ABOUT 15 firefighters were searching for the leak in and around the warehouse when the building exploded with two jarring blasts felt up to 15 miles away. The warehouse, bakery and several houses in the same block were demolished, and windows were broken half a mile away.

"I thought that a nuclear war had hit. I thought the Russians pulled one of them buttons," said Clinton Holloman, 56, a resident who heard the first fire trucks arriving and was leaving his house to see what was happening when the explosion knocked him down.

"If I had gotten there, I probably would have been one of those killed," he said, adding that only his hair was singed.

The debris crushed one fire truck and heavily damaged two others. Thirty-eight homes were damaged, according to James F. Casey of the American Red Cross. A knee-high layer of rubble covered the street in front of the warehouse.

It was not immediately known what ignited the blast. It was also not known what the warehouse contained.

AP Laserphoto

SARAH HSMPTON was in the kitchen of her home across the street from the warehouse and had "just finished washing dishes when the lights went off and there was a big noise."

"I looked over and the house across the street was in flames," she said. Her own dining room "was full of wood and stuff and I had to walk through it."

Lizzie Preston, who lives with Ms. Hampton, was buried by the rubble. "I tried to pull the stuff off of her, but I just couldn't pull it off," Ms. Hampton said. "Then I went out and screamed, 'Get her out! Get her out!' "

The fire following the explosion spread quickly to the adjacent bakery and wood-frame houses, and more than 150 firefighters battled in 20-degree temperatures to control the flames.

The blaze, so hot it melted parts of fire trucks and covered a square mile with thick black smoke, raged out of control for more than three hours. Fireman Robert Hartman said that when he arrived on the fourth alarm, the block was still "a sea of fire."

RESCUE WORKERS and ambulances were hampered by ankle-deep snow that fell Monday, and residents and members of the Guardian Angels crime watch group struggled to push vehicles stuck in the snow.

Forty of the injured were taken to Sheehan Memorial Emergency Hospital, just five blocks from the explosion. Two were in critical condition in intensive care, three were in critical condition in the hospital's burn treatment center, six were in serious condition and 29 were treated and released, public relations director Richard Hummert said.

One person was in good condition at Erie County Medical Center and two were taken to Buffalo General Hospital, which could not be reached for information on their conditions because all its lines were busy.

The Red Cross set up a shelter at a local school for those left homeless by the disaster. About six families had shown up by early morning, officials said.

"We're trying to gather the people together," Casey said, "but that's always a problem. Some of them go to relatives and friends, and it's hard to get a handle on how many people are involved."

Jackson may cancel trip to Syria

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with administration resistance, Jesse Jackson says he may cancel the trip he planned to Syria to seek release of an American flier whose captivity suddenly took on electoral, racial and diplomatic overtones when Jackson embraced it.

The black activist who is seeking the Democratic presidential nomination said Tuesday he is still tentatively scheduled to fly to Syria tonight to discuss the fate of Navy Lt. Robert O. Goodman Jr. but added he would be inclined to cancel the mission if asked to do so by President Reagan.

Hours before Jackson conferred with two senior State Department officials on his proposed trip, Reagan said such private efforts could be "counter-productive" and impair the administration's own efforts to win Goodman's freedom.

Reagan stopped short, however, of issuing a direct appeal to Jackson to forego his mission. He said he wanted a "better understanding" of Jackson's efforts and would be willing to discuss the issue with him.

WHAT HAD BEEN a quiet U.S. diplomatic effort to secure Goodman's freedom has now taken on added dimensions with Jackson using the issue to question the administration's overall Middle East policy and suggesting it has not done enough for Goodman because he is black.

Before flying to California for a vacation, Reagan insisted the administration is doing "everything we can" for Goodman, who was captured after his A-6 jet was shot down Dec. 4 during a raid staged in retaliation for Syrian anti-aircraft fire on U.S. reconnaissance planes.

Later, however, Jackson told reporters after being briefed at the State Department that Goodman's fate became a priority issue for the administration only after he raised it last week.

He said the "race issue was created" after he learned that U.S. special envoy Donald Rumsfeld did not ask Syrian authorities about Goodman during a visit to Damascus last week.

The revelations about Rumsfeld "shocked all of us," said Jackson, sporting a blue lapel ribbon that he claimed was a symbol of "national solidarity" in support of Goodman's release.

HE SAID similar ribbons were worn by Undersecretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger and Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy during his meetings with them. Jackson recalled that many Americans wore yellow ribbons during the Iran hostage crisis in a show of sympathy for the Americans being detained there.

Jackson's suggestion that the administration has been inattentive to Goodman's fate drew a rebuttal from State Department spokesman John Hughes, who said "extensive and vigorous" U.S. efforts have been made on Goodman's behalf.

Hughes said the administration never discusses publicly Rumsfeld's activities in the Middle East. He said, however, that the U.S. ambassador to Syria, Robert Paganelli, has been primarily responsible for discussing Goodman's status with Syrian authorities.

Jackson's travel plans were further clouded by his suggestion that Syria would have to meet three conditions before he would agree to undertake the mission. Before departing, he said he would have to be assured of meetings with both President Hafez Assad and Goodman and of Syrian willingness to free Goodman.

At another point, however, Jackson suggested those conditions were not firm, saying Syrian refusal to meet them would only affect the timing of his trip. Late Tuesday, Jackson met with Syrian Embassy officials but gave no details of the encounter.

JACKSON ALSO used the occasion Tuesday to denounce the administration's overall policies in the Middle East, asserting that it is more interested in a military than a diplomatic solution to the problems of the area.

"In mounting this mission, we do not wish to defy our government but to seek to change its priorities from those of war to those of peace," he said.

In addition to Reagan, Jackson's proposed mission also encountered resistance from Goodman's father, Robert O. Goodman Sr., of Virginia Beach, Va.

Democratic Presidential Candidate Jesse Jackson, left, waves to reporters as Washington D.C. Delegate Walter Fauntroy holds the door as the two men enter the State Department in Washington Tuesday. President Reagan said on Tuesday that he would like a "better understanding " of Jesse Jackson's planned trip to Syria to seek the release of a captured Navy flier because "sometimes efforts of this kind can be counterproductive."

Reached by CBS News, the elder Goodman was quoted as saying, "I do not support ad hoc efforts to conduct foreign policy. The Constitution gives the president sole responsibility for conducting foreign policy — and I believe the president is doing all he can to secure Robert's release."

Car accident haunts woman for 45 years

She was 8 or 9 years old when it happened, the woman told McRae. She was riding in the car with her stepfather, her mother, brother and sister late one night. Her stepfather was driving without a license, and had the headlights off to evade police.

Suddenly, there was the sound of something being struck.

Her mother told the stepfather to stop because he'd hit a man. He refused, saying he'd get in trouble and go to jail. He insisted he struck a deer.

At home, her parents continued to argue. The stepfather said he could go to jail for driving without a license. Then he went outside and washed the car.

The next day, the girl heard that a man named Peter Pico had been killed the night before in a hit-and-run accident. Her stepfather told the family to forget what happened.

The next year her mother died, and the girl was sent to Los Angeles to live with her grandmother. The stepfather went his own way and died in 1963.

But the woman's flashbacks to the February night continued through the years. And last summer, after her grandmother died, they became much stronger and clearer, she told McRae.

McRae found Pico's death certificate, which said he'd been killed in a hit-and-run accident. He also found the man who investigated the case, Orville H. Ellis, a retired CHP officer, commander and inspector.

Ellis remembered walking back and forth along the highway, searching for evidence, McRae said.

"As far as he can tell, the stuff I've got substantiates her story," McRae said.

In announcing his decision to intensify research, Reagan said that if this country developed an effective space defense system, he could foresee a future American president offering to share it with the Soviet Union to encourage elimination of all offensive nuclear missiles. He did not, however, propose joint Soviet-American development of such a system. Nevertheless, his decision to move ahead with possible development of a space defense system was hailed as an historic proposal to save the world from nuclear destruction.

In his book, which will be on sale in January, Nixon said American willingness to share space defense technology with Russia must be based on Soviet acceptance of on-site inspection.

Because of the nuclear arms limitation agreements he reached with the Soviet Union, his normalization of relations with China and withdrawal of the U.S. from the Vietnam war, the former president was credited, especially in Europe, with brilliant diplomatic skill.

In the little book, described by one reviewer as "a brief masterpiece on foreign policy," Nixon outlined what he considers the "keys to real peace." While he warned the Soviet Union is "an avowedly and manifestly aggressive power" bent on world domination, he expressed confidence that if America remains militarily strong and strives for maximum communication with the Soviet leadership through annual summit meetings, there will be no world war.

Sheriff's department cut back

While these positions were all budgeted, Brookshire said four vacancies that had not been filled will be left open on the force, lessening the impact. Six officers have left or will be leaving by Jan. 1.

While the county-approved cuts included jailers, Brookshire said there would be no reduction at these positions. County jails are required to maintain a set ratio of jailers to inmates to maintain state standards.

The jail will have one nurse to treat inmates, with the cut coming to a position that had also not been filled.

Rather than cut patrols from 36, Brookshire said cuts will be made to "non-essential things" and officers will double up to fill posts. Reserve deputies will be utilized more in 1984, he said.

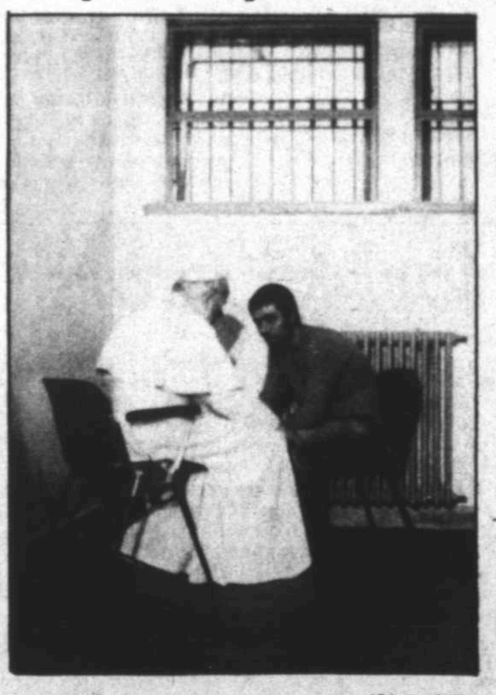

Uniform allowances were cut in half for jailers and sheriff's deputies, from $60 to $30 per month. This cut about $24,500 from the budget.

Other cuts will be one automobile, radios, typewriters and an x-ray machine.

"We'll be all right," said Brookshire, "We'll make the calls, give the service to the people."

Looking ahead to further cuts that might be needed should the rollback be approved by voters in January, Brookshire said "We'll just wait and see. We'll do whatever is necessary."

Mystery behind shooting may be cleared

Pope John Paul II talks with his would-be assassin Mehmet Al Agca during a private meeting in Agca's prison cell in Rome Tuesday.

ROME (AP) — Prison officials suggest that Mehmet Ali Agca, in his private meeting with Pope John Paul II, may have clarified some of the mysteries behind his attempted assassination of the pope.

The 25-year-old Turkish terrorist and the pontiff met for 21 minutes Tuesday at Agca's cell in Rome's Rebibbia Prison.

A Rome radio quoted unidentified prison officials as saying Agca had wanted to "tell the whole story" to the pope personally and seek his intervention to get his sentence commuted.

The state-run RAI television reported that prison chaplains ccnsidered the meeting "a virtual confession."

"Of course, Agca is a Moslem and it couldn't have been a confession in the sacramental sense, but it was closest thing he (Agca) could have gotten," the radio report said.

Asked what they discussed, John Paul told reporters: "That is a secret that must remain between him and me. I spoke to a brother whom I have pardoned and who has my complete trust."

"They spoke to each other in whispers, almost as if they were in a confessional," Vatican spokesman the Rev. Pierfranco Pastore said.

The meeting came 2½ years after Agca shot the Polish-born pontiff in St Peter's Square, inflicting severe injuries in the abdomen. The shooting — for which Agca is serving a life sentence — is still being investigated, prompted by allegations that Bulgarian agents might have helped or paid Agca.

A key Bulgarian suspect, Sergei Ivanov Antonov, left Rebibbia last week after 13 months in custody, amid reports suggesting Italian authorities may no longer be convinced by the "Bulgarian connection" to the assassination attempt.

Antonov, charged with complicity in the shooting, was placed under house arrest in a Rome apartment where he reportedly will receive medical attention for a variety of ailments his lawyers cited to obtain his provisional liberty.

During his three-hour visit to Rebibbia — the first by a pope to a prison in nearly 20 years — John Paul led a prayer meeting for the inmates and gave them rosaries as Christmas presents.

Agca, unshaven and wearing blue jeans and a blue sweater, and the white-robed pontiff huddled in a corner of Agca's cell on plastic chairs, face-to-face and almost touching knees.

At least twice, the pope grabbed Agca's right hand and before leaving gave the Turk a small flat box wrapped in white paper. Pastore said he did not know what the box contained, "maybe a medal or a rosary."

The pope, who has said several times that he pardoned Agca for the May 1981 shooting, added that the Turk had repented his deed.

Judge Ilario Martella, who has led the investigation into the papal shooting, recently completed a report on the case and handed it to judicial authorities. They are expected to decide whether the evidence is sufficient to bring charges against Antonov.

Martella granted the Bulgarian's release from Rebibbia for health reasons, but there are indications Martella is no longer convinced by Agca's accusations against Antonov. The magistrate recently concluded that allegations by Agca of a Bulgarian-inspired plot to shoot Polish labor leader Lech Walesa in 1981 were groundless.

This in turn touched off news reports that Italian authorities were increasingly skeptical of Agca's testimony implicating three Bulgarians and four Turks in the papal assassination attempt.

Reagan won't take action stemming from bombing

"No doubt some are quite sincere in their beliefs," he said. "On the other hand, there's no doubt that they will try to make political hay out of it."

Asked whether the political element of the tragedy played into the president's decision to forego disciplinary action, the official said that Reagan "felt a local commander in Beirut could not have anticipated this kind of thing."

"A court martial would have unfairly treated these guys," he said.

The source said that the report recommended that Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger take whatever disciplinary or administrative action he deems appropriate.

The administration official acknowledged that by already deciding against punishment, Reagan was "in reality...overriding any recommendation of disciplinary action."

Despite the continued fighting in Beirut over the past month, the administration continues to claim that progress is being made in the war-torn nation.

Officials say the Marines' presence has facilitated establishment of a central Lebanese government under President Amin Gemayel, steps toward Israeli withdrawal, the ceasefire in late September and national reconciliation talks between the warring factions.

However, Gemayel has yet to extend his authority, the ceasefire has been repeatedly broken, Israel has not removed its troops and the reconciliation talks have broken off with no date set for renewing them.

Before leaving Washington for the mild, but cloudy weather of Southern California, Reagan said he "soberly considered the commission's word about accountability and responsibility of authorities up and down the chain of command."

Reagan, who was said to have studied the report over the holiday weekend, said that rather than blaming the Marine commanders in Beirut, the blame "properly rests here in this office and with this president."

"And I accept responsibility for the bad as well as the good," said the president, who is commander in chief and who decided to send the Marines to Beirut.

The president and his wife, Nancy, are spending the last week of the year here and in Palm Springs, where they will be guests of millionaire publisher Walter Annenberg, former U.S. ambassador to Great Britain.

They arrived bearing boxes wrapped in gold foil paper, and headed for their quarters at a hotel near Beverly Hills. They have no public events on their schedule.

Upon Reagan's arrival, the White House press office issued a presidential statement marking the fourth anniversary of the Soviet military move into Afghanistan saying the "occupation...has created serious international tensions."

Decision on dump site delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year-old program hailed by President Reagan last January as a "long overdue solution" for nuclear wastes is already almost four years behind schedule on reaching its key decision — where to put them.

The Energy Department said Tuesday that the president will not be able to pick a site for the first permanent dump for thousands of tons of highly radioactive nuclear power plant wastes until December 1990.

The Nuclear Waste Policy Act, passed by Congress a year ago and signed by Reagan last January, called for the president to recommend a site for the deep underground repository to Congress by March 31, 1987.

In a draft "mission plan," the department on Tuesday attributed the 45-month delay to a "consensus within the technical community that detailed at-depth testing will be necessary to properly qualify a site ... before a selection is made."

The government has estimated that those tests will take from eight months to 27 months, depending on the geologic formations. But it noted that outside experts have said that four years or more of testing might be needed.

The mission plan said the January 1998 deadline for completing a permanent underground dump is still within reach, but it called that "the earliest possible date."

"The schedule is based on all activities being accomplished in the allotted time frame," the plan said. "There is little leeway to accommodate delays."

The government is now looking at nine sites in six states — Washington, Utah, Nevada, Texas, Oklahoma, and Louisiana — for the first repository.

Officials had said earlier they expect to narrow that list to five sites by January, if the Nuclear Regulatory Commission by then has approved the guidelines for selecting a site.

However, the draft guidelines are still being reviewed by the commission, and the Energy Department's mission plan now indicates that the list will not be narrowed to five sites until April.

The department said in its plan Tuesday that it still plans to meet the January 1985 deadline for further narrowing the list of possible sites to three.

Group survives fall in avalanche

DEL NORTE, Colo. (AP) — A couple and their 11-year-old granddaughter suffered only "a few little cuts" when their car tumbled 1,000 feet from a mountain pass after being slammed by an avalanche.

"I just closed my eyes and thought it was the end," said 54-year-old Charlotte Julian, who crawled through deep snow after the fall to summon help.

Mrs. Julian, of Mancos, Colo., was riding in a station wagon driven by her husband, Jack, 52, along with their granddaughter, 11-year-old Megan Ryall of Lincoln, Neb., when the avalanche struck Tuesday.

They were to spend the night at St. Joseph Hospital in Del Norte, about 30 miles east of the 10,850-foot Wolf Creek Pass in southwestern Colorado where the avalanche occurred.

"We saw a sign saying slide area and then it (the avalanche) hit. There is fog in front of you, it hits you and you're gone," said Mrs. Julian.

The station wagon rolled several times — she wasn't sure how many — but landed right-side-up, she said, leaving the three to scrape snow from their faces and heads.

"We had to get my seat belt loose so I could crawl out the window," she said.

"Fortunately, we had enough air space and room to dig out," she said. "It took 20 to 30 minutes."

She said she started crawling up to the road in soft, deep snow to look for help because her husband was hyperventilating and her granddaughter had lost her shoes.

As she neared the highway, she spotted a Colorado Department of Highways truck which had been plowing the roadway. The highway crew helped rescue the three.

"They were right on the spot," she said. "They were wonderful."

Senator suffering from pneumonia

John Stennis

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — U.S. Sen. John Stennis, his pneumonia "clearing up," soon may be moved out of an intensive care unit, a hospital spokeswoman said today..

The Mississippi Democrat, the Senate's oldest member at 82, remained in stable condition, said a nursing supervisor at Greenville Memorial Hospital who declined to give her name.

She said this morning that doctors were considering transferring Stennis later in the day to a private room "if he's still doing fine."

Stennis, admitted Monday, has spoken with relatives, but has received no other visitors, she said.

His daughter, Margaret Womble of Greenville, said the senator was "in good spirits."

"He's responding well to antibiotics and the pneumonia is clearing up very well," she said.

Only three days before entering the Greenville hospital, Stennis had been released from a Houston hospital where he underwent cardiovascular surgery.

He flew from Houston to Greenville on Friday to visit his daughter and son-in-law for Christmas, said Dave Partridge of the Greenville hospital system.

Stennis, who lives in DeKalb, Miss., was wounded in the stomach in January 1973 when shot by a robber in his Washington home. Doctors said that wound had no effect on the operation in Houston.

Stennis will probably be in the hospital for the next few days, Partridge said.

"He's resting comfortably," Partridge said. "He had a good night and his nurses say he's responding well to treatment. I do not believe it's life-threatening at this time."

Robber in hot seat

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A robber who used a plastic gun to fool bank tellers into handing over their money found the joke was on him when packets of red dye slipped in with the loot exploded and burned, police say.

The robber was forced to throw away his ill-gotten gains, and all he had to show for the caper was a hot seat and a bright red spot on his pants, said police spokesman Bill Robinson.

Robinson said each of three tellers slipped a red dye pack with a timed explosive device into the money they handed over.

At least one of the packets blew up as the thief was making his getaway Tuesday from the Hillcrest branch of the Great American Federal Savings Bank. He began pulling the money out of his pocket trying to stop the burning as he ran, Robinson said.

After the robber had thrown away the money, he went to a nearby parking lot, got into a car and drove away.

"He got inside and waited a minute, probably because he was in extreme pain," Robinson said. "Probably all he got for his efforts was a severe burn in his stomach or groin area."

Six bombs explode in port of Sidon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Six bombs exploded in rapid succession in the Israeli-occupied port of Sidon overnight, and radio stations said today that six Lebanese civilians were wounded.

The state radio said the bombs went off in various neighborhoods of the south Lebanon city within a 10-minute period around midnight. It said Israeli troops sealed off the areas where the explosions occurred and made several arrests.

The radio said six residents were hospitalized with shrapnel injuries.

On Tuesday, an Israeli patrol clashed with guerrillas laying an explosive charge in Sidon. The Israeli military command said one soldier and three guerrillas died in the shootout.

The command said it had no information on the blasts reported in Sidon. But it said an overnight roadside explosion slightly injured two Israeli soldiers in Lebanon's western Bekaa Valley.

Israeli officials have blamed a recent surge of anti-Israeli violence in southern Lebanon on guerrillas, although they haven't specified the nationality of the attackers. Political and religious leaders of Lebanon's Shiite Moslems, who make up the majority of the population in the south, have been advocating revolt against the Israeli occupation.

In Beirut, the government today ordered the leftist newspaper As-Safir to suspend publication for one day because an editorial Tuesday accused President Amin Gemayel's administration of favoring Christian militias over Lebanon's Moslem factions.

The front-page editorial in As-Safir, one of the country's leading papers, depicted the Lebanese army's offensive against Shiite militias in mostly Moslem west Beirut last weekend as "the suicide of the (Lebanese) state."

"Why is it that the state unleashes its guns only against this area (west Beirut) .. while Phalangist militiamen prevent the state from acquiring even a token presence in areas under their control...?" asked the editorial.

Shells crashed into Beirut airport near the U.S. Marine base Tuesday, panicking passengers and violating Lebanon's latest civil war cease-fire.

At Beirut's port, two British soldiers were injured by shrapnel when a bomb exploded at a cafe as a British convoy drove past.

The airport was shelled as anti-government Druse gunners in the hills above the Marine compound traded sporadic artillery and rocket fire with Christian militia positions on Beirut's outskirts.

Warnings, jail terms sober up British drivers

LONDON (AP) — Fewer drunks are being found on Britain's highways this holiday season, according to police who credit a $1.2 million "don't drink and drive" campaign and a rash of pre-Christmas jail terms for offenders.

"Usually at this time of the year you can tell when it's pub closing time because the 999 (emergency) phone never stops ringing," said Inspector Christopher Snow, a senior traffic officer in Essex county northeast of London.

"But this year it's been quite different. And a lot of people are now at home enjoying their Christmas who would otherwise have been in hospital."

Returns from a sample of 20 county police forces across Britain show — with the exception of Glasgow — a sharp drop in the number of "breathalyzed" drivers who were found to be intoxicated.

It's a tough law: three whiskeys or two pints of beer for an average drinker can send the breathalyzer over the legal limit.

This is also the first Christmas and New Year holidays that British police have been armed with new "lion toximeters," a faster, more modern version of the old breathalyzer bag.

Normally, about one-third of motorists stopped over the holiday period are over the limit and face fines of up to 1,000 pounds — $1,420 — and six months in jail for a first offense.

In Nottinghamshire, police reported 40 drivers out of 2,337 — or just 1.7 percent — were found to be over the limit. The county has been cracking down on drunk drivers for years, and last year the figure was 8 percent.

In Sussex, the figure was down a third from last year's 25 percent, and other English counties which have so far compiled figures reported similar findings.

Disneyland owners to sell nearby land

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese owners of Tokyo Disneyland today received authorization to sell 50 acres of unused land near the park that, according to one government official, will yield at least $213.7 million to help pay debts.

Kazunari Yokota, head of land management in the Chiba prefectural government, said the sale was approved after considering "the severe financial situation" the Oriental Land Co. faces due to debts incurred during the construction of Tokyo Disneyland, which opened near Tokyo last April.

The approval breaks a 1962 agreement between Oriental Land and Chiba that the 525 acres of reclaimed land purchased from the prefecture for the construction of Tokyo Disneyland would not be sold to a third party.

Tokyo Disneyland, completed at a cost of $600 million, occupies 201 acres of the purchased land.

The Disneyland owners must pay back at least $598.3 million in bank loans according to Toshio Kagami, managing director of Oriental Land.

Premier sets dates for visits

PEKING (AP) — Chinese Prime Minister Zhao Ziyang will visit the United States Jan. 10-16 and Canada Jan. 17-23, the Foreign Ministry announced today.

The visit by Zhao, and President Reagan's planned trip to China in April, were announced on Sept. 28 by U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger when he was in Peking, but the exact dates had not been disclosed previously.

Zhao's party is expected to make a refuelling stop in Honolulu, and he will visit San Francisco, Washington and New York, Chinese officials have said.

The Zhao-Reagan exchange will be the first reciprocal visits by leaders of the two governments since the United States established diplomatic relations with the People's Republic of China in January 1979.

The last U.S. president to come to China while in office was Gerald Ford in April 1976, also an election year, although Ford later lost the White House to Jimmy Carter.

Zhao, 64, is one of two key allies to China's top leader, 79-year-old Deng Xiaoping. The other is Communist Party General Secretary Hu Yaobang.

Zhao will be accompanied by Foreign Minister Wu Xueqian and Chen Chu, deputy secretary-general of China's State Council, the central government. Chen is former Chinese representative to the United Nations.

At one point last month it looked as if the Zhao-Reagan visits might be canceled. China made two formal protests over congressional votes on Taiwan, ruled independently by Chinese Nationalists defeated by the communists in 1949.

The votes were a Nov. 15 Senate Foreign Relations Committee resolution on "Taiwan's future" and an appropriations bill passed three days later urging the president to support "the Republic of China's" membership in the Asian Development Bank. The Taiwan government still claims to represent the whole of China.

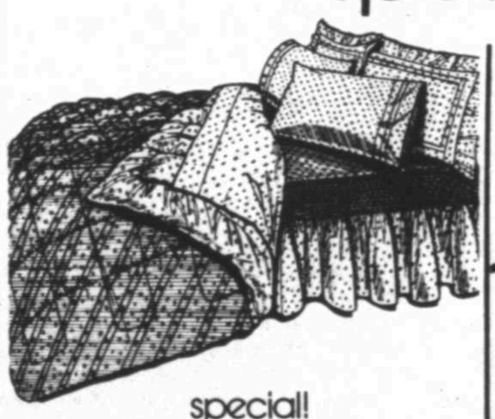

Despite Chinese accusations that Washington, which broke relations with Taiwan in 1979 to recognize Peking, was lapsing back into a "two Chinas" policy, the Foreign Ministry said Dec. 6 that Zhao's visit would proceed.

U.S. and Chinese officials say there are no major agreements due to be signed or unveiled during Zhao's stay.

Child locked out in weather

BOSTON (AP) — State officials say there is "no excuse" for the lockout of a teen-ager in zero-degree weather when he arrived back at his foster home after his curfew.

Timothy Lennox, 16, was picked up by police Christmas night crying that "his feet were numb," according to Edward Kennedy, a spokesman for the Department of Youth Services. Lennox was unharmed.

The state has told DARE, Inc., a private agency, to stop placements in the home "until further notice" and has removed another youth from the home, Kennedy said.

Robert M. Hall, DARE executive director, said one agency employee has been suspended pending state and internal investigations.

The foster parent, Ann Crumbly, declined to comment.

Immunity assured conviction

NEW YORK (AP) — Granting immunity to a man charged in a $700,000 fraud scheme was "a price the government had to pay" to assure conviction of two other defendants, prosecutors said.

The cooperation of James N. Cooney, a former Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis Inc. account executive, was key in obtaining guilty pleas from William C. Hogan and Robert Blakeney Stevenson, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Andrew J. Levander.

Hogan, 36, the former head of government securities trading at Paine Webber, was sentenced Tuesday to two years in prison for conspiracy and securities fraud.

Stevenson, 36, a bond trader and former Spaulding Securities Corp. vice president, was sentenced to 18 months in prison for conspiracy.

Authorities said Hogan rigged securities trades so that Spaulding profited in 90 percent of its deals with Paine Webber.

'God' jailed without bail

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — A man who allegedly said he was God and his son was "Jesus reborn" has been ordered held without bail pending a hearing on charges that he decapitated the 14-month-old child on Christmas Day, police said.

Stephen Johnson, 28, said Tuesday at a bail review hearing that he is addicted to the hallucinogenic drug PCP.

Johnson's wife, Carla, said that before the killing Johnson proclaimed that he and his son, Steven, "both had to die for everybody's sins," according to E. Jay Miller, a Baltimore County police spokesman.

Helicopter accident investigated

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Federal officials are probing an accident in which a hovering helicopter flopped over on its side and dropped about 3 feet to the ground, officials said.

The pilot and the seven passengers aboard the Aerospatiale helicopter owned by New York Helicopter Corp., were uninjured Tuesday, said Joe Lanciotti, a spokesman for the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, which operates Newark International Airport.

Anthony Amanzio, an executive for the parent Island Helicopter, said the craft "was ready to take off and it went over on its side" while in a hover, a distance "normally 3 feet."

Accident victim recovering

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — A 16-year-old is recovering slowly after being hurt in a snowmobile accident and then having to crawl on his stomach for a quarter-mile in subzero weather to reach help, his father says.

Marcel Patient said Tuesday night that his son, Steven, is not doing very well, but the family is "just glad he's alive."

"He's going to make it," the father said.

Steven Patient of Manchester was in Elliot Hospital recovering from multiple injuries, including a broken back. He was hurt just after midnight Christmas when he lost control of his snowmobile and flipped into a fence.

Police estimated the teen-ager was exposed to 10-below zero temperatures and a wind chill factor of minus 30 for about four hours.

Hospital officials have refused to discuss his condition at the request of the family.

Carlson named chief Navy liaison with Congress

Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — Commodore Dudley L. Carlson, director of politico-military policy for the chief of naval operrations, has been picked to be the Navy's new chief of liaison with Congress, it was learned Tuesday.

The former commander of submarine development group I in San Diego, he has been one of the principal witnesses on U.S. maritime policy before congressional committees for the past two years.

Carlson will succeed Rear Adm. Bruce Newell, a former chief of Navy information, who plans to enter divinity school in preparation for a career as a minister in the Episcopal church.

The commodore, who is expected to be promotoed to rear admiral in his new post, is a native of Gainesville, Wis. He spent most of his childhood in the Los Angeles area, however, and is a graduate of the University of California at Santa Barbara.

After joining the Navy in 1955, he was assigned to the attack cargo ship Whiteside and then to the Naval Training Center, San Diego. While at the latter post he was a member of the all-Navy track and field team.

Carlson, who is a graduate of the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va., commanded the submarine Grayback and, later, submarine division 31.

Carlson has frequently been designated to testify before Congress on national strategy requirements. In a recent session with a House subcommittee, he summed up the subject this way.

"Our national military strategy is a forward strategy. Defense treaty commitments link the United States to 41 countrries, almost all of them overseas. Over a half-million U.S. forces are therefore deployed overseas in Europe, the Pacific, and Southwest Asia.

Prisoners start riot

LORTON, Va. (AP) — About 200 inmates, some armed with baseball bats, broke windows, set several small fires and scuffled with guards at the Lorton Reformatory to protest stricter searches of visitors, authorities said today.

Helmeted prison guards carrying billy clubs and Washington, D.C., riot police armed with shotguns conducted a cell-by-cell search of the young adult prison complex in a "show of force," said Leroy Anderson, a spokesman for the prison, which is operated by the District of Columbia.

A crowd of 200 inmates who had gathered on an athletic field outside the Youth Center I was herded into a prison gym and searched about 4:30 a.m. — more than five hours after the disturbance began late Tuesday night, Anderson said.

The search of five medium-security dormitories that house inmates between the ages of 17 and 22 was conducted as "a show of force to make it clear to these guys that we're not fooling around," Anderson said. Inmates who had remained in the dormitories during the disturbance were also taken to the gym and searched for weapons, he said.

The disturbance began about 11 p.m. EST on Tuesday when inmates broke into a trailer used to store athletic equipment and armed themselves with baseball bats.

Inmates apparently became angry when a women who visited an inmate Tuesday evening complained that she had been stripped searched by guards, Anderson said. The spokesman denied that any visitors are stripped during routine searches. But he said guards have been conducting more careful searches since a visitor attacked a guard two weeks ago at another part of the prison compound.

Two guards suffered minor injuries during a scuffle with inmates, Anderson said. Inmates broke windows and set several small fires, which did not cause any damage, officials said.

A group of about 20 inmates went to the control center of the prison's administration building to complain about the tightened search procedures, said Doug Stempson, executive assistant for D.C. Correctional Services at Lorton.

The Youth Center I houses 400 young men who are convicted felons. The 3,800-acre compound also contains maximum-security prison buildings.

Get another log

When the weather is the topic of conversation in Texas, one can rest assured that the tales will bear repeating. Midlanders now have one more tale to tell.

The frigid period that ended Monday was a cold one. Don't let it grow out of proportion as tales are told, though. It was a cold front that will be remembered for some years to come, no doubt, but just a decade ago there was one here that lasted even longer, according to national weather service officials at Midland Regional Airport.

That "cold spell" began about 3 a.m. on Dec. 21st and the mercury at the NWS office didn't climb above 32 degrees until between 11 a.m. and noon Monday. But that stretch fell 30-35 hours short of the longest below freezing period at the airport, weathermen say.

Back in January of 1973 the temperature remained below freezing for a period of 150 hours.

There is one consolation for all those Midlanders who thought this just had to be the coldest cold spell ever. On Christmas Eve when the temperature dropped to 6 degrees — the coldest level recorded at the airport — it broke all the records for the coldest day ever recorded in December here.

But just because this cold spell may not have been as much of a record-setter as Midlanders thought is no reason to put away your coat or to quit worrying about the pipes freezing again. At press time another cold front was on the way and NWS forecasters were saying that if conditions build as they did for the last one, the new front might bring just as much cold and misery to Midland.

Put another log on the fire!

How big? BIG!

How big is the federal government? Here are some mind-boggling answers, courtesy of the president's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control, a group established in 1982 to find ways to increase efficiency and cut government costs.

The federal government spends more than $91 million an hour, employs 2.8 million people, and owns one-third of the U.S. land mass, about 744 million acres, which is an amount equal to all the states east of the Mississippi River, plus Texas.

Also, the federal government occupies 2.6 billion square feet of office space, an amount equal to all the office space in the nation's 10 largest cities, times four. And, it owns and operates 437,000 vehicles, not counting military vehicles.

So anyone who wants to cut the size of government has a big target — as big a target as you are likely to find. In fact, you could aim in almost any direction.

Walking on coals

President Reagan's more thoughtful advisers are urging him to come to grips with runaway federal deficits, not just because the deficits pose a threat to the long-term health of the economy but also because they may pose a threat to his re-election hopes.

If he follows past practice, he will do one of the following:

— Largely ignore the advice, insisting that the deficits will take care of themselves once the economy feels the full impact of the fiscal policies that he pressed on Congress in 1981.

— Acknowledge the deficit problem but insist that it can be corrected by further cuts in discretionary domestic spending.

— Propose standby tax increases, to take effect in 1986 if Congress reduces spending by a specified amount and if fiscal and economic conditions indicate that the increases are still necessary to hold deficits to a tolerable level.

Either option No.1 or No. 2 would be a serious mistake. The first one, according to Mr. Reagan's own economists, is mathematic nonsense. Even in a robust economy, the present tax structure would provide inadequate revenue to cover projected spending. The shortfall is on the order of 25 percent!

The second option is almost as deficient. Discretionary (non-entitlement) domestic spending, which has borne the brunt of budget cuts so far, is much too small a category to provide the necessary budget savings — even if further cuts were justifiable.

The third approach has promise, but only if Mr. Reagan is willing to take the lead. The standby tax is unlikely to get anywhere, especially in an election year, if he just half-heartedly floats it out as he did in this year's budget proposal. Mr. Reagan will need to push the tax plan himself, in a form that is substantial enough to have a real impact on future deficits. True, there is a political risk in switching from the role of tax-cutter to tax-raiser, but there's also a risk in being the champion "deficiteer."

Mr. Reagan's call for spending restraint is likely to misfire unless he makes realistic and specific proposals. The only parts of the budget that can yield substantial savings are military spending and entitlements such as Social Security, Medicare, military pensions and farm price supports.

Having heard from the folks back home, Congress seems inclined to retard the rate of increase in military spending. We worry that the lawmakers will squeeze the wrong parts of the military budget if the Pentagon doesn't quit asking for the moon and start setting realistic priorities. But there seems to be no likelihood that the lawmakers will give Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger everything he is asking.

Entitlements are the hottest bed of coals. No politician likes the thought of restraining Social Security increases or controlling the cost of the health-care program for the aged. If Mr. Reagan deals with those programs at all, he will be tempted to do so in a vague way.

That won't work. Lawmakers won't take the heat for such changes unless he is willing to walk on some embers himself.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

War souvenirs can carry death

WASHINGTON — This season is an appropriate time to give yourself and your loved ones the greatest gift of all — life itself — by asking your police department or nearest military base to check out any war souvenirs you may have in your home.

Jack Anderson

An astonishing number of supposed "duds" or practice rounds are actually explosive enough to kill you, your children and your neighbors.

This warning comes from the heart. My associate Dale Van Atta, his wife and two children lived in mortal danger for several months without knowing it. A cluster bomblet he brought back from Lebanon last year and stashed on a shelf in his garage turned out not to have been defused as he had thought.

If a fire or careless handling had detonated the live shell, it would have demolished his house and anyone in it. The 13-inch-long, bell-shaped Rockeye bomblet was armed with a "shape charge" designed to penetrate a foot of tank armor, allowing the main charge to explode inside the tank.

The little bomb was given to my associate by Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasir Arafat as evidence that the Israelis were using American-made cluster bombs. Arafat obviously thought the bomb had been defused, and Israeli military officers later gave it a cursory check and let it pass.

Months later, at the urging of a thoughtful Pentagon officer, Lt. Col. Mark Foutch, my associate belatedly called the 57th Ordnance Detachment at Fort Belvoir, Va., to have the device checked out. The two Army experts who took the bomb away to detonate on a firing range said: "You're lucky to be alive."

Others have not been so lucky. Unexploded ordnance from World War II, Korea and Vietnam — even from World War I and the Civil War — is still capable of detonating with tragic results. Consider these examples from Army files:

— Earlier this month, two 8-year-old boys in San Diego were killed by the explosion of a World War II mortar round they had found on an old Marine firing range.

— Four boys in Pittsburgh were killed when a missile they were playing with exploded. The parents had thought it was a practice round (which is no guarantee that something is harmless).

— In Beach Grove, Ind., two 10-year-old boys were killed and five playmates wounded when one of them dropped a rifle grenade.

— In Colorado Springs an 11-year-old boy staggered into his home, his hands blown off and his body torn apart by grenade fragments. He cried, "Mommy, I'm dead!" — and died minutes later. He had pulled the pin on a grenade he thought was a toy.

— In Manitou Springs, Colo., an 8-year-old boy, his sister and two playmates were using a 37mm tank shell to punch a hole in a cardboard box. The shell exploded and killed the boy.

— In Great Falls, Mont., a 4-year-old girl was rummaging through a box in her home and dropped a supposedly empty mortar round on the floor. She was killed in the explosion.

An Army poster headline says it all: "Wanted for Murder — Explosive War Trophies that Kill and Injure our Children."

There are more than 800 Army explosive experts who will check out potentially deadly explosive devices in your home. Safe items will be returned to you.

All you have to do to make sure that the sourvenir is safe is to call your local police department. They'll call in the Army experts. The service is free — but it could be the most precious gift you could ever receive.

DIPLOMATIC DIGEST: A tragic irony may be developing in Honduras: The continued presence of U.S. military forces there may undermine the democratic government it was intended to protect. Reason: The 6,000 American troops on "extended maneuvers" bolster the power of Gen. Gustavo Alvarez Martinez, the armed forces chief. This weakens the authority of the civilian president, Roberto Suazo Cordova, whose Liberal party is deeply split over the question of U.S.-Honduran military cooperation.

— It's "plot time" again in Surinam. The South American country's Marxist dictator, Desi Bouterse, has announced the arrests of 10 individuals accused of arson and plotting to overthrow him. Exile sources say the number arrested is at least 65 — and five of them are relatives of Bouterse's enemies who were arrested and murdered a year ago.

There's a strong suspicion that the recent wave of arson in the capital city, Paramaribo, was the work of radical leftists angered because Bouterse kicked out the Cuban ambassador in fear of a Grenada-style Cuban-backed coup.

— A few weeks ago, it was reported that the Reagan administration had decided to lift one economic sanction against Poland: allowing Polish fishing boats to operate in American coastal waters. Actually, the White House only agreed to discuss lifting the sanction — and even that hasn't worked out. The Poles want to fish, not discuss, so the administration is now debating whether the fishing sanction should be lifted without further palaver.

CHARLEY REESE

Welfare blame isn't Reagan's

At the risk of sounding like a Scrooge at Christmas time, I must point out a dirty trick being played upon President Ronald Reagan and the American people by the welfare lobby.

Charley Reese

The propaganda line is this: poor people in America are going hungry and it's Ronald Reagan's fault because he only cares about the rich.

Now this line is presented in many different ways, complete with pictures of people in urban soup kitchens, "studies" which show people are poorer, news conferences by welfare lobbyists, and, of course, the partisan speeches of Democratic opponents.

First, just take a careful look at the people interviewed by TV newsmen at the soup kitchens. I haven't seen a thin one yet. They look pretty well fleshed out to me. A lot of them are just plain welfare bums — people who live in tax-subsidized housing, receive free medical care from the taxpayers, free or subsidized childcare from taxpayers, cash payments, and food stamps. Why then are they at the soup kitchens? Because they mis-manage their welfare resources.

You have to remember that food stamps are like a second currency. You can't buy beer with a $10 food stamp coupon but you can buy a loaf of bread for $1 and buy the beer with the $9 in change which is given in regular currency. And if you think this is not a common occurrence, then have a few conversations with clerks and checkout people at supermarkets.

There is always, in these sob stories about poor people, an assumption that the poor person has no responsibliity whatsoever for his own plight and secondly that it is the responsibility of the government.

Now, if you want the government to guarantee you some kind of income, some kind of housing, some level of medical care, then I suggest you emigrate to the Soviet Union or to Poland. Communist governments undertake to do just that and do it. Of course, they exact a price — namely your freedom.

It is not and it never has been the American way for the government to guarantee every individual material security. The original American way was to provide people simply with opportunity. We have since modified that to provide people with an opportunity and basic safety net.

Think for a moment how absurd it is to accuse an administration that is spending billions of dollars on food stamps, Medicare, Medicaid, subsidized housing, subsidized child care, special education, and aid for families with dependent children of being uncaring for the poor. Our government is so caring it is going bankrupt.

Remember for a moment that defense takes at most only 30 cents out of each federal dollar and then try to figure out where the 70 cents time 800 billion is going if Ronald Reagan doesn't care about people.

I'm not carrying water for Reagan. He's done several things I don't like, one of which is to fail to cut welfare spending. I just get angry when I see the welfare lobby deceiving the American people. It's a lousy thing to do.

Of course there are good people having a hard time, but it's not Ronald Reagan's fault and no Democrat can fix it. Reagan didn't mis-manage the steel and auto industries nor did he invent the computer and the robot. He didn't cause the worldwide recession (you can thank the Arab oil sheiks for that).

An American president has very little control over the economy which is a world economy these days whether we like it or not. Reagan didn't cause high interest rates but he also didn't reduce the rate of inflation. Both of those phenomena are the result of Federal Reserve policies and the Federal Reserve acts independently of both the Congress and the President.

There are sound reasons to criticize the President. There are areas where honest people can honestly disagree with him. But this bit about him not caring about people is a bum rap and if the Democratic candidates can't come up with a better reason than that for ousting the Republicans, then the party is in worse shape intellectualy than I thought.

American politics has come a long way since the Lincoln-Douglas debates and it's all been downhill.

Better than 'fair'

To the Editor:

In response to some recent heavy criticism of the U.S. Weather Service predictions for West Texas, over 25 years of personal observations have convinced me that local weather forecasting at the Midland Regional Airport facility must be one of the most difficult in the continental United States. Fronts may come and go, sometimes sliding by to the north, leaving us untouched.

Sometimes these fronts stall out and cease moving, upsetting the estimated times of arrival. One case in point: some 15 or 18 years ago, a front with a 30- to 40-degree temperature drop had passed Hobbs, arrival in Midland expected within four hours. It passed through Andrews, arrival at Midland estimated within the hour. Then the god of unpredictability started playing games. For four days that front wavered at Andrews, moving back and forward across the West Texas town about twice a day, driving local mothers nuts and wreaking havoc with the local weather service predictions. No way such vagaries can be foreseen.

Today when one sees the weather as reported on CNN or other national TV networks, one cannot but be amazed at how accurate their predictions are. Even with the legendary unpredictability of West Texas weather, the local weather service does better than a "fair" job; let's not rain on their parade.

Facts same

To the Editor:

This letter is to answer Barbara J. O'Brien's letter, sent to you criticizing the articles you printed a few months ago on GYN Laser Surgery. The facts remain as follows:

(1) As the Midland Reporter-Telegram accurately stated in the article, the Laser surgery performed in July was the first one done in the Permian Basin.

(2) The only Laser instrument in town as of today is at Park View Hospital.

(3) The only two doctors with the privilege and training to handle the instrument as of today, is my associate Dr. Luis Montaldo and myself.

(4) We feel well qualified to use the instrument and we invite you to check our credentials.

As you can see Ms. O'Brien, you are the one that is misinformed and you should be the one doing some investigation before you send to the paper such an inflammatory and derogatory letter.

We feel that the purpose of the article was to inform the people of the Permian Basin, that this "brand new" modality of treatment is available in town, and that there is no need to travel to distant medical centers to obtain it.

Good work

To the Editor:

I want to commend the Midland County tax department of motor vehicles.

Being a disabled person with difficulty walking or standing, I appreciate the help and professional manner with which the ladies in Frances Shuffield's department conducted their affairs.

The receptionist at the front desk is a very pleasant asset. I only met two others, Ella who did paperwork on transferring two vehicles very quickly and properly, and Joyce who was concerned enough to save me a very difficult walk of 50 or 100 yards by bringing paperwork to my car.

I did not see a frown from anyone at all and think everyone in the department deserves a big thank you from all Midlanders. I'm glad I live in Midand. Thank you all.

World Bank estimates 800 million people hungry

ANOTHER DIFFICULTY stems from the different definitions of undernourishment and malnutrition. Malnutrition, according to the FAO, refers to an inadequate intake of both quality and quantity of food. Undernourishment results from an inadequate intake of food.

The FAO does not know how many people starve to death, according to FAO Spokesman Jay Levy, because there are too many related illnesses to accurately make such a determination.

The FAO's latest figures cite 12 countries which it says are "suffering from undernourishment on a vast scale." They are: India, with 201 million undernourished; Indonesia, with 33 million; Bangladesh, with 27 million; Nigeria, with 14 million; Brazil, Ethiopia and Pakistan, each 12 million; The Philippines, with 10 million; Afghanistan, 6 million; and Burma, Columbia and Thailand, 5 million each. More than 40 percent of the populations of Chad, Ethiopia, and Haiti are undernourished.

The problem in Africa, according to Gabriel Saab, FAO representative at the U.N., is worst in Ethiopia, Mauritania, and Chad, because of fighting in those nations. "The people there are so poor," he said, "that they consume the seeds."

A FAO and WFP Special Task Force, in a report on the critical situation in Africa, increased the number of countries in need of emergency aid from 18 to 22. The report says that the food supply situation in the affected West African countries is worse than previously indicated.

The report says that another poor crop at the end of this year threatens the Sahel region for the second successive year. Poor harvests have occurred in a number of countries in the region.

THE REPORT noted that in all 22 countries, the stocks held by the government, private traders and farmers have all been exhausted. The total food requirements for those countries in 1983/1984 is estimated by the FAO at 3.2 million tons of which 600,000 pounds have already been pledged by donors.

A minimum of 1 million additional tons which the report said was required to maintain supplies in the immediate months has already been donated, according to Saab, along with the necessary transport to move the food from the donor countries to the affected region.

However, Saab said that $76 million in cash for seed, chemicals, fertilizers, vaccine and small tools needed to "contribute significantly to the recovery" has not yet been donated. The report also suggested that a number of countries would require assistance with the internal distribution of the food aid provided.

A study prepared by the FAO and The International Institute for Applied Systems Analysis for the FAO conference last month noted that developing countries had the potential to feed more than 1.5 times their population projected to the year 2000 if all suitable agricultural land was used for crops and if other requirements, including massive movements of surplus food, were met. But if not, the numbers of people afflicted by malnutrition, disease, starvation and death would continue to rise.

"A country will say you can bring in strawberries free, but not strawberry jam. This stops that country from having a canning factory and a label factory and a screwtop factory. It reduces the ability of that country to develop. They don't want to keep shoving out perishables, they want a chance to put it in the can."

— Nick Raymond, FAO spokesman

FAO Director-General Edouard Saouma noted at the conference that, despite the good harvests of 1981 and 1982 and plentiful stocks, the prospects for 1983 were not encouraging.

"Our latest information indicates that world cereal production will be ...six percent less than 1982," he said, attributing the drop primarily to a 13 percent drop in coarse grain production.

"AT THE SAME TIME," Saouma continued, "the situation of low income, food-deficit countries continues to worsen. Even in 1982, when world harvests were good, per capita supplies fell by 0.9 percent in developing countries with a market economy. For the second year running," he added, "per capita production slumped in less developed countries, and emergency situations abound. In more than 30 low-income countries, food production rose at a slower rate than population; in some instances it even fell in volume terms.

"A depressing fact," Saouma pointed out, "especially at a time when so many people are threatened by famine, is that food aid is decreasing despite plentiful stocks. Estimates for 1983-4 put it at 8.7 million metric tons of grain, compared to 12.5 million in 1972. In the intervening period, the world's population has risen by 900 million people, three quarters of them in the developing countries."

Saouma emphasized that "it is the poor countries who have suffered most. The majority of them have seen their real per capita income fall in 1981 and in 1982, the first time this has happened for decades."

According to world bank forecasts, a marked fall is likely in real prices for coffee, cocoa, tea, and, to a lesser extent, palm and groundnut oil, compared with the average over the last 20 years. This means that the poorer lands, dependent on one or two cash crops, will suffer still even worse deprivations.

Nick Raymond, FAO spokesman in Washington, D.C., said that the world economy, in the FAO's view, is so organized that the poorest countries do get the worst of it.

The U.N. argues, according to Raymond, that the best way to reduce the gap between rich and poor countries is through trade. "It's not aid; you cannot give the amount of money needed; the countries have to earn the money on their own.

"But if the people in Florida say: 'we're being hurt by the imports of Mexican tomatos or Brazilian oranges, please slap a tariff on them,' that's great, but you're just ruining the hopes for development of large areas of Mexico and Brazil."

RAYMOND EXPLAINED that often there will be no tariff on an agricultural product but there will be one on the same product once it's processed.

"A country will say you can bring in strawberries free, but not strawberry jam. This stops that country from having a canning factory and a label factory and a screwtop factory. It reduces the ability of that country to develop. They don't want to keep shoving out perishables, they want a chance to put it in the can."

Priorities at the local level are land reform, rural development, cooperatives, Raymond said, to give as many villagers as possible 'a piece of the pie.'

"All over the world," he continued, "you have countries where 70-80 percent of the population is in rural areas and 70-80 percent of the budget is spent in cities. And, because those city people are poltically volatile, the governments do everything they can to keep the price of food down so there are no riots to overthrow the government."

But, by keeping the price of food down, he pointed out, you don't give the farmer an incentive to grow more. The priority for agriculture would have to be a priority for rural development, rural investment and incentives to farmers to increase production.

"Governments are very worried about the migration to cities, overwhelming the cities. And they are very worried about the food supply because, especially in Africa, the per capita production of food is going down, and of course that means imports, which they don't have the money to pay for.

"SO," HE SAID, "the consciousness of agriculture's importance is increasing, for social reasons and for economic reasons. The most important thing we can do, anywhere, is to show that development is based on successful agriculture. Because these countries thought that wasn't so.

"When they got their independence they thought: what we need are steel mills. And they raped the agricultural sector, which was the basis of their economies, to build factories. And now they are just awakening, most of them, to the fact that without healthy agriculture, and without food, you can't develop. This is what we teach."

Depriving pregnant woman of nutrients harms fetus

Baby may have low birth weight

Hearst Feature Service

It may be too late to begin supplementing the diets of undernourished women once they are pregnant or trying to become that way.

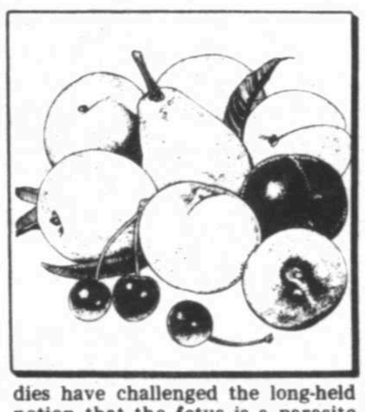

A fertilized egg may not implant in the womb of a poorly nourished woman and studies show the healthiest babies of all are born to women who are well nourished long before conception.

A poorly nourished woman who becomes pregnant is at risk of bearing having low birth weight infants, says Dr. Lillian Blackmon, associate professor of pediatrics at University of Maryland medical school.

A low birth weight infant, unlike a premature baby, is not born too early. It is full term but under normal weight.

Follow-up studies on such children show they often fail to achieve their future growth potential physically and almost certainly neurologically.

AS A GROUP they suffer a higher incidence of long-term handicaps than do moderately premature infants, says Ms. Blackmon, and while most preemies have caught up in their growth by the time they reach school age, these children remain below standard. Animal studies have challenged the long-held notion that the fetus is a parasite that will take whatever nutrients it needs from the mother even if she is undernourished. At the Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis, for example, research shows that low-birth-weight infants have a high incidence of limited attention span, behavioral disturbance and learning disability directly related to the mother's malnutrition and low weight gain during pregnancy.

Much of the serious mental retardation seen in the U.S. and other developed countries may be due to protein deficiency during pregnancy, according to Eva Hamilton and Eleanor Whitney, authors of a leading textbook on nutrition. Moreover, losing body fat during pregnancy may produce substances called ketone bodies that are passed to the fetus, where, studies show, they may cause permanent damage to the brain.

Despite the belief still held by many laymen and some physicians that pregnant women should not gain more than 10 to 15 pounds, research shows that larger weight gains produce the healthiest babies.

Dr. Nicholson J. Eastman, a Johns Hopkins obstetrician, studied 12,000 pregnancies and found that babies had the best chance of survival if their mothers gained 20 or more pounds. Eastman said that women who gain less than 15 pounds will weigh less than she started after the baby is born and cheat themselves and their infants of backup nutritional support if any problems develop.

AND IN THE largest scale long-term study of pregnancies and newborns ever done — 53,518 of them — Dr. Richard L. Naeye of Hershey Medical Center in Pennsylvania discovered that underweight women are more likely to have dangerously small babies even if they carry them the whole nine months and even if they gain normally during pregnancy.

It requires a great deal of extra energy to produce a baby. Some estimates range as high as 80,000 calories, more if you exercise. Protein requirements increase by two thirds, calcium, iron, zinc and vitamins B, C, A and D by 50 percent. Diets that deliberately or inadvertently deprive pregnant women of calories and essential nutrients are a poor investment in the future health of the nation.

Zinc deficiency may permanently damage the baby's developing brain. Losing body fat during pregnancy may produce excess ketone bodies that are passed to the fetus and may also cause brain damage.

STUDIES AT THE University of California, Davis show that vitamin deficiencies, particularly vitamin A, may have a marked effect on behavior and learning in this age group. Vitamin A is found principally in fruits, vegetables and whole grains.

Teen-agers, especially athletic boys, need as many as 4,000 calories a day just to keep their weight and more if they're in training for track, football or basketball. One reason they need so many calories is that they must pack in a lot of extra nutrients, including vitamins A, C and B, iron, calcium and other minerals.

Without these extras, studies suggest, teen-agers are at risk of stunted growth, learning problems and lack of vitality.

Inadequate iron, for boys as well as menstruating girls, can interfere with growth and trigger increased susceptibility to infections. A 10-state survey in the 1970s documented iron lack in boys for the first time, placing the incidence at 10 percent.

For the pregnant teen-ager, protein and other calorie restriction works a danger not only to the infant, but also — because she is still growing — to her own future health.

"WE BELIEVE that there is a long-term residual effect on the teen-ager herself under such circumstances", says Dr. Mark Jacobson, a specialist in adolescent medicine at the University of Maryland. According to Ms. Blackmon, several pregnancies in a row in an undernourished young woman may lead to progressive and irreversible deterioration of her health.

Young adulthood is generally the time of greatest health and vigor. But poor diets and poor eating habits during these years can have serious cumulative effects.

Recent nutritional surveys have found substantial portions of the adult community deficient in minerals and vitamins essential to the health of the body's immune system.

The lack of chromium, found in fresh fruits, vegetables and whole grains has been linked to adult diabetes.

Flouride, long proven a safeguard against cavities, is also needed by adults to protect bones. And women taking oral contraceptives are often deficient in vitamin C and some minerals.

Killer bees attack elderly patients

PALMITAL, Brazil (AP) — Thousands of killer bees attacked patients in a nursing home, killing a 76-year-old woman and injuring 22 other elderly people, according to a Roman Catholic nun at the home.

Sister Fatima Celia said the sudden attack occurred Monday and firemen using flamethrowers and chemical poisons killed the bees Tuesday.

According to Sister Celia, the attack at Palmital, 248 miles northwest of Sao Paulo, resulted from "a clash between the aggressive African killer bee and milder European bees which are bred near our home."

Killer bees are descendants of swarms led by fierce queens from Africa that escaped from scientists studying them in Brazil in 1957. Since then, the bees have been edging north at a rate of up to 300 miles a year.

A report by the U.S. Agriculture Department said some scientists believe the killer bees could reach the southern border of the United States by 1990.

Restaurant explosion kills two

TOKYO (AP) — An explosion at a barbeque restaurant in central Japan killed two people and injured 16 others, police said.

The restaurant in Gifu, 170 miles west of Tokyo, occupied part of a two-story building and was closed at the time of the blast Tuesday. However, the explosion demolished a nearby snack bar where the deaths and injuries occured, officials said.

The Kyodo News Service quoted police as saying the explosion could have been caused by leaking propane gas at the restaruant.

Last month, 14 people were killed and 27 injured when successive explosions of 80 propane gas cylinders ripped apart a barbeque grill packed with about 130 customers in Kekegawa, also in central Japan.

Albanian group members sentenced

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Thirteen members of an ethnic Albanian group have been sentenced to prison terms ranging from one year to 14 years, the state-run Tanjug news agency reports.

It said they were sentenced Tuesday for planning assassinations of government officials, distributing anti-Yugoslav pamphlets, painting hostile slogans and illegally acquiring fire arms.

Tanjug said the court in Gnjilane found that the defendants had links with militant Albanian groups based in West Germany that seek to make Kosovo province an independent republic.

The case was the latest in a series of trials that followed riots in 1981 by ethnic Albanians seeking more autonomy for Kosovo, where they form a 77 percent majority.

Mine shaft collapses in Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A mine shaft collapsed at West Driefontein Gold Mine, killing four miners and injuring 57 other workers, the company said.

The parent firm, Gold Fields of South Africa, said one other miner was missing after the collapse, which occurred at a depth of 6,500 feet. No reason was given for the accident.

El Salvador extends land reform program

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The rightist-dominated Constituent Assembly has extended for six months the "land to the tiller" phase of El Salvador's controversial land reform program.

The assembly acted Tuesday night at its last session of 1983 but said there would be no further extensions when the six months expire.

The land distribution program, strongly supported by the U.S. government, is intended to reduce the appeal of leftist rebels who have been fighting for four years to overthrow the conservative government.

The "land to the tiller" phase of the program permits peasants to claim title to tracts of up to 17 acres that they have farmed as sharecroppers or renters. It applies to farms of 75 to 245 acres.

Agrarian experts estimate as many as 100,000 peasants are eligible to claim a total 500,000 acres under the reform program, but so far only 48,000 have placed claims to about 192,000 acres.

A civilian-military junta decreed the land reform program in March 1980.

Guillermo Guevara Lacayo, a leader of the moderate Christian Democrat Party, said the assembly extended the "land to the tiller" program because many peasants in combat areas had been unable to participate.

Samuel Maldonado, leader of the Democratic Popular Union, which claims some 200,000 peasants and laborers as members, said many peasants who tried to take advantage of the law have been forced off their property by the former landowners.

The first phase of the land reform program expropriated plantations larger than 1,200 acres and divided them among peasant cooperatives.

The second phase, affecting many prosperous coffee farms, sparked the greatest opposition. After months of bitter debate, the Constituent Assembly incorporated that program into the new constitution on Dec. 13, but sharply limited the amount of land that would be affected.

It provides for the redistribution of farms between 600 and 1,200 acres. The original plan, supported by the Christian Democrats, would have applied to farms of between 245 and 1,200 acres.

In another development, a spokesman for the state railway company said leftist rebels destroyed five freight cars in a dynamite attack Monday night on a train in Usulutan province. No casualties were reported.

Rail traffic to the eastern part of the country would be interrupted for at least a week until the damaged track is repaired, the spokesman said.

Other guerrillas clashed with army troops engaged in a drive to clear them from an area of northeastern El Salvador.

Col. Domingo Monterrosa said in a telephone interview that 3,000 troops began a campaign four days ago to dislodge rebels from San Miguel province.

Elsewhere in Central America, Nicaraguan Defense Minister Humberto Ortega said the leftist Sandinista government will continue to strengthen its army in case of war with U.S.-backed Honduras. He accused the Reagan administration of trying to provoke such a conflict.

Ortega predicted the United States will continue arming and training anti-Sandinista insurgents.

The defense minister spoke at a ceremony honoring the 300 Sandinista soldiers he said were killed battling the rebels this year.

Ex-Cabinet minister sentenced to prison

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A Seoul court acted in a major scandal case today, sentencing a former Cabinet minister to seven years in prison for taking bribes and fining an executive $11.3 million, the largest fine in South Korean history.

Former Transportation Minister Yoon Ja-joong, 54, a retired air force chief of staff who was one of 22 defendants in the case, received the seven-year term. He also was fined the equivalent of $102,000, the amount he allegedly received in bribes from a key defendant in return for favors.

That defendant, Kim Chul-ho, a 44-year-old leisure industry tycoon, was sentenced by Seoul District Criminal Court to 15 years' imprisonment and fined the equivalent of $11.3 million on charges of bribery, embezzlement, tax evasion and raising funds through falsified bank deposit certificates.

Kim is chairman of the Myungsung Group, which owns two country clubs, several condominium complexes and other leisure facilities across the country.

Another defendant, Kim Dong-kyum, 39, a former employee of the Commercial Bank of Korea, drew a 12-year jail term on charges of collaborating with Kim Chul-ho in illegally raising close to $200 million.

The other defendants — 10 former government officials, four former bank employees and five others — received jail terms ranging from eight months to three years. The court suspended sentences for 14 of them, citing various extenuating circumstances.

The former government officials were charged with taking bribes in return for favors granted to the Myungsung Group.

An investigation by the National Tax Administration was started in June after persistent rumors that Lee Kyu-dong, the father-in-law of President Chun Doo-hwan, was behind Kim's fast-growing business.

Tax authorities subsequently determined Lee had nothing to do with the business and instead uncovered the alleged large-scale misappropriation involving Kim and bank employees.

Anti-American rally staged

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — The Soviet-installed government of Afghanistan marked its fourth anniversary two days early by staging an anti-American rally in Kabul, Western diplomats said here today.

The demonstration in Afghanistan's capital was arranged by the Babrak Karmel government on Dec. 25, said the diplomats, who insisted on anonymity.

Soviet troops entered Afghanistan to back up its faltering communist regime on Dec. 27, 1979. There are now an estimated 105,000 Soviet troops fighting a stalemated war with anti-government Moslem insurgents.

The diplomatic sources said an estimated 20,000 people marched past the U.S. Embassy on Christmas day. The government media claimed there were 100,000 demonstrators. They chanted slogans against the American involvement in Grenada and Central America.

The Afghan Foreign Ministry also held a news conference the same afternoon to "protest against the United States aggression in Afghanistan," the sources said.

They said security was tight in Kabul with major intersections guarded by Soviet soldiers, and a resistance "spectacle" did not take place as insurgents had promised for December 27.

The sources said there have been several recent incidents of fighting between the Soviets and the insurgents, including a rebel attack that left five Soviet soldiers dead Dec. 23 in the Khairkhana section of Kabul, and a raid on a military convoy the next night that killed three Soviet troops at Salang Tunnel, the main overland route from Afghanistan to the Soviet Union.

Human error gets blame for collision

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The commission investigating the Dec. 7 collision of two Spanish airliners that killed 93 people at Madrid's Barajas airport has cited human error as the cause, the Diario 16 newspaper reported today.

The newspaper said that conclusion appeared in a report of the investigating commission which has not yet been made public.

Diario 16 said the collision in heavy fog occurred when the pilot of the Aviaco DC-9, Augusto Almoguera, was trying to leave the takeoff strip he had entered by mistake and return to the taxiway without notifying the airport control tower.

According to the newspaper, the investigating commission's report said half of the DC-9 was still in the takeoff strip when it was hit by an Iberia Boeing 727 that was starting to lift off.

Carlos Lopez Barranco, the Iberia pilot, escaped unhurt along with seven other crewmembers. He has not explained publicly how the collision happened and his testimony to the investigating team has remained secret.

SWC basketball suffers rough day

Bears, Aggies, Frogs, Raiders suffer losses

By The Associated Press

Baylor Coach Jim Haller had never been through anything like it in his life.

Illinois State held Baylor to seven first-half points and routed the Bears 65-36 Tuesday night to advance to the championship round of Pittsburgh's inagural Golden Triangle against the University of Pittsburgh.

Haller said he has coached in "high school and junior college and I've been the coach here for seven years, but I've never experienced anything like that. I don't have an answer for it."

The night wasn't any better for the three other Southwest Conference schools in action: Colorado beat Texas Christian 70-65, Texas Tech lost to Arizona 51 to 49 in overtime in the Sun Bowl tournament at El Paso, and South Florida beat Texas A&M 73-47 in the Music City Invitational tournament at Nashville, Tenn.

BAYLOR MADE just three of 30 shots from the floor — 10 percent — and one for seven from the foul line in trailing 29-7 at halftime after Illinois State opened up a 20-0 lead at the start of the game.

The Bears, coming off a 102-52 loss to Clemson, didn't score until nearly 10 minutes into the game and suffered through scoreless periods of nine and eight minutes in the first half. The Bears, 3-7, ended by making just 15 of 65 shots from the floor.

"I'd just like to apologize to the tournament sponsors for the way we played," said Baylor Coach Jim Haller. "We had every intention of coming up here and representing our university well. We got pretty good shots, but we just couldn't make them."

Baylor plays Duquesne in the consolation game tonight.

IN EL Paso, Arizona's Eddie Smith scored five of his 19 points in overtime to lead the Wildcats over Tech into tonight's championship game against 16th-ranked Texas-El Paso. Tech will meet No. 15 Michigan in the consolation match.

Arizona guard Steve Kerr sent the game into overtime with a 20-foot jumper with six seconds left in regulation.

Pete Williams contributed 11 points and 13 rebounds for Arizona, 2-7.

Jennings paced the Red Raiders, 5-5, with 15 points. Vince Taylor pulled down a team-high 12 rebounds.

Two Houston players quit in Hawaii

HOUSTON (AP) — Two University of Houston basketball players, Benny Anders and Braxton Clark, quit the team and returned to Houston shortly before the team played in the finals of the Chaminade Classic in Honolulu.

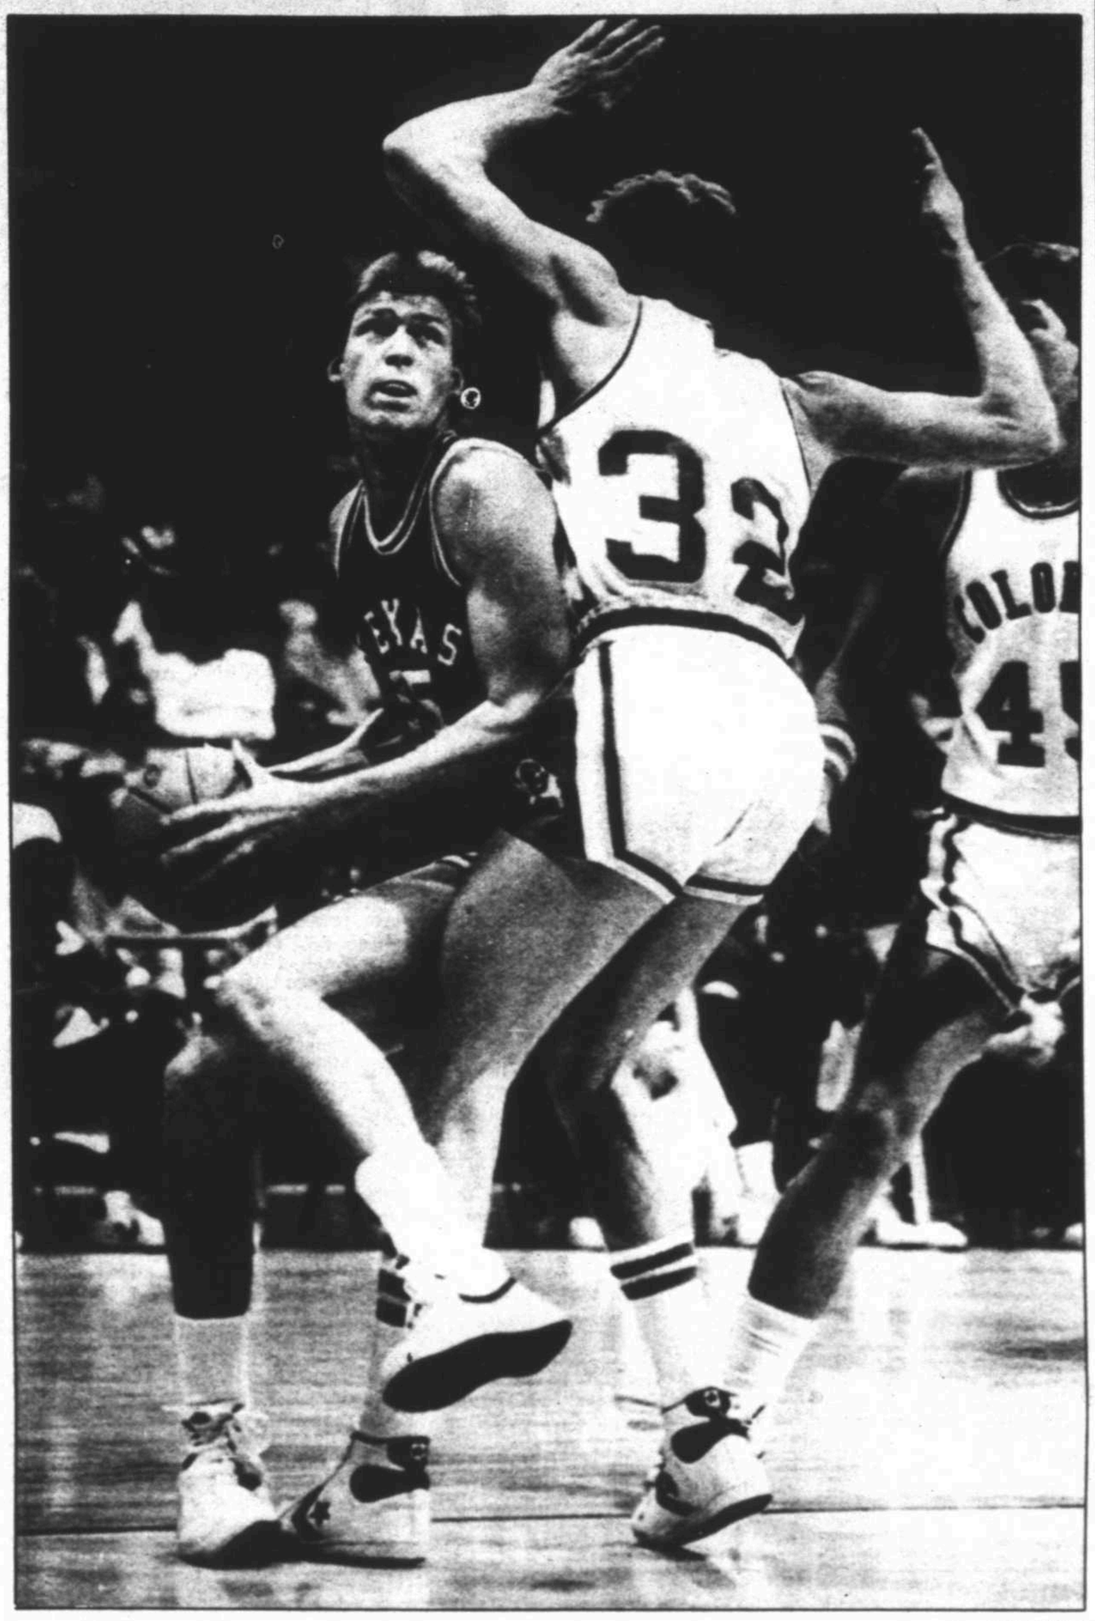

The Houston Chronicle reported that Anders and Clark were on an airplane en route to Houston as the Cougars tipped off against Fresno State in the final, a game which Houston lost.

Houston Coach Guy Lewis made no comment, but the Chronicle said Anders and Clark were upset over a lack of playing time. Both had been starters earlier in the season, but have been on the bench during recent games.

Anders averaged 7.3 points per game and Clark was averaging 2.6 points.

Anders told radio station KIKK that he quit because he didn't think he was playing enough. "I feel that I'm playing well enough to be a starter for this university," he said.

Anders said there was little chance that he would return to the team.

Texas Christian's Tom Mortimer finds a human barrier under the basket as his path is blocked by Colorado University's Alex Stivrins during first half action in Boulder Tuesday night. Mortimer managed to retain his balance and go up for two points.

COLORADO GUARD Jay Humphries pumped in 30 points, including 21 in the opening half, to lead the Buffaloes, 6-3, over TCU.

The Buffs jumped off to a quick start, leading by as many as 14 points with 15 seconds left in the first half. The Horned Frogs, 7-4, couldn't stem the 6-foot-3 Humphries, who went 8-for-12 and hit 21 first-half points to put CU up 41-29 at the half.

In Nashville, Charlie Bradley pumped in a game-high 21 points and teammate Jim Grandholm added 20 in South Florida's easy victory over A&M.

The win raised South Florida's record to 5-3 and put them in Wednesday night's final against the winner of Tuesday night's second game between Air Force and host Vanderbilt.

Kenny Brown led A&M, 4-4, with 14 points.

The Brahmans outscored the Aggies 10-0 over a three-minute stretch in the first half en route to halftime lead of 32-21.

Wills being investigated for car theft

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Maury Wills, former base-stealing king and Most Valuable Player of the National League in 1962, is free on $1,500 bail after police arrested him for investigation of car theft, officers said.

A white substance found in a glass vial beside Wills field-tested positive as cocaine, but further tests were needed to be sure, police Capt. John Sparkenbach said Tuesday. Wills was booked only in the car-theft case.

The former Los Angeles Dodger was arrested at about 5 a.m. Tuesday after two police officers pulled him over on Harbor Freeway when they spotted a broken window on the passenger side, said Sparkenbach.

Wills, 51, who briefly managed the Seattle Mariners, was freed after posting bail.

A DODGER executive confirmed that Wills was admitted to an Orange County rehabiliation unit for an unspecified problem last August. Fred Claire, executive vice president of the Dodgers, said the club had urged that Wills go and Wills agreed. Claire said he took Wills to the center.

"A broken window in a newer-model car might indicate it was stolen," Sparkenbach said in explaining why Wills was stopped. "So the officers ran the license plate and our computer system said it was stolen from (nearby) Lakewood."

It was listed stolen in April, Sparkenbach said.

"After the stop, the officers observed in plain view a six-inch glass vial with a white substance. It was field-tested positive for cocaine. We'll have to have a lab test on it, also," he said. "Additionally, they observed a clear-glass water-type pipe. That's commonly used in using cocaine."

SPARKENBACH SAID the test-tube vial which had the white substance weighed 20 grams gross (the test tube and the substance). The water pipe weighed 42 grams gross, he said.

Sparkenbach said Wills, who told officers he lives in nearby Playa del Rey and is self-employed, was free on $1,500 bail and is scheduled to appear for arraignment in the Compton court on Jan. 6.

The switch-hitting Wills played for the Dodgers from 1959-66. He was traded to the Pittsburgh Pirates, where he played for two years. He then went to the Montreal Expos in the expansion draft after the 1968 season.

Early in the 1969 campaign, he was traded to the Dodgers, where he played through the 1972 season.

After that, Wills worked as a baseball commentator for NBC on Game of the Week telecasts. He was named as manager of the Mariners before the 1980 season. He was fired May 6, 1981, after allegedly ordering groundskeepers at the Seattle Kingdome to enlarge the batter's box for a game against Oakland. He was replaced by Rene Lachemann.

Wills had a lifetime batting average of .281 with 2,134 hits, 20 home runs, 458 runs-batted-in and 586 stolen bases.

Wills broke the longtime single-season stolen base record of 96 set by Ty Cobb when he stole 104 bases in 1962.

"I think you need to look at the schedule factor. I wouldn't blame it on the refs as much as I'd like to spend about five minutes alone in the room with that computer (that makes up the schedule)." — Houston Coach Bill Fitch who attributed the poor road records in the National Basketball Association to scheduling instead of the substitute referees.

Did You Know?...

Frank Chance of the Chicago Cubs had the dubious distinction of being the first man thrown out of a World Series game by an umpire. It happened in 1910 in the series between the Cubs and Philadelphia Athletics.

Four players — Elgin Baylor, Bob Cousy, Bob Pettit and Jerry West — were chosen for the NBA All-Star First Team 10 times.

Clippers snap 29-game string of road losses

By The Associated Press

Although he was around for only 16 of the San Diego Clippers' near-record 29 road losses in a row, Coach Jim Lynam admitted the streak was bothering him.

"It starts preying on your mind after a while," said Lynam after the Clippers ended a 10½-month string of losses away from home with a 110-95 victory over the Houston Rockets Tuesday night.

"We were very, very aware of it," said Lynam, who is in his first year as a National Basketball Association coach. "It's something you read about all the time. It hinders your ability to play with confidence. It's like you're waiting for something bad to happen."

Forward Terry Cummings and guard Norm Nixon made something good happen against the Rockets by scoring 28 points apiece.

The Clippers, whose last previous road victory was a 112-102 triumph at Golden State on Feb. 17, were three short of the record of 32 consecutive road losses over two seasons by the 1953-54 Washington Bullets.

In other NBA games, it was Indiana 115, Milwaukee 104; Washington 116, New Jersey 106; Detroit 140, Portland 100; Atlanta 112, Dallas 109; Boston 115, San Antonio 100; Chicago 102, New York 96; Philadelphia 112, Kansas City 109; Utah 111, Golden State 102 and Los Angeles 118, Denver 116.

Houston jumped to an 11-1 lead, but the Clippers fought back for a 27-24 edge at the end of the first quarter as Nixon scored 10 points.

In the second period, Cummings responded with 15 points and grabbing 10 rebounds as the Clippers built a 58-42 advantage.

Cummings, who finished with 19 rebounds, called the streak "just one of those things. I think what bothered me was that we had such a good record at home (9-4) and then we go out on the road and have such a bad record. The streak didn't matter that much to me."

San Diego carried a 90-66 bulge into the last period. The Rockets, who got 14 points apiece from Wally Walker and Lewis Lloyd, made up nine points in the fourth quarter, but couldn't get close enough to threaten the Clippers.

Like Cummings, Nixon said the team's 10-20 overall record was more troubling to him than the losing streak on the road.

"Getting the win was the big thing to me," said Nixon, who played on two championship teams with the Los Angeles Lakers. "Losing is the thing that kills me. It works on my mind. It's not that we're losing on the road, it's that we're losing. We've got to stop losing."

NBA

Jazz 111, Warriors 102

Utah won at Golden State for its seventh straight victory as Darrell Griffith scored 27 points, including the Jazz' first 11 of the fourth period.

The Warriors, who got 25 points from Joe Barry Carroll, led by seven early in the final period before the Jazz rallied.

Adrian Dantley scored 22 points and Mark Eaton added eight blocked shots for Utah.

Bulls 102, Knicks 96

Chicago beat New York at home for its sixth straight victory after a 5-14 start as rookie guard Ennis Whatley scored a season-high 21 points.

Whatley's layup with 8:42 left in the third quarter gave the Bulls their first lead of the game at 58-57, but they never relinquished the lead after they got it. New York, which got 24 points from Ray Williams, was outscored 34-17 in the third period.

Celtics 115, Spurs 100

Boston won at San Antonio as Larry Bird scored 38 points to hand the Spurs their fifth straight defeat.

The Celtics, who have won four in a row, held the Spurs to just 40 percent shooting from the field, including 3-of-18 by George Gervin.

76ers 112, Kings 109

Philadelphia won in front of a record crowd of 17,009 at Kansas City on Bobby Jones' three-point play with two seconds left.

Julius Erving scored 29 points and Moses Malone 25 to lead the 76ers, who have won six straight games. Eddie Johnson had 34 points for the Kings.

Pacers 115, Bucks 104

At Indianapolis, Indiana beat Milwaukee for its second straight victory, the first time in more than a year the Pacers won two in a row.

Rookie Steve Stipanovich scored 20 of his team-high 24 points in the first half. Sidney Moncrief led the Bucks with 26 points.

Lakers 118, Nuggets 116

Jamaal Wilkes scored 24 points, including a six-foot jumper with five seconds left that lifted Los Angeles over Denver after the Lakers had blown a big lead at home.

Denver trailed by 17 points late in the third quarter before tying the score at 116-116 on Kiki Vandeweghe's three-point play with 1:11 remaining.

Pistons 140, Blazers 100

At Pontiac, Detroit manhandled Portland as John Long scored 27 points and Kelly Tripucka 25.

The Pistons led 70-52 at halftime and then turned the game into a rout by outscoring the Trail Blazers 22-10 in the first 5:58 of the third quarter. It was the worst defeat for Portland since a 40-point loss to Washington in 1978.

Hawks 112, Mavericks 109

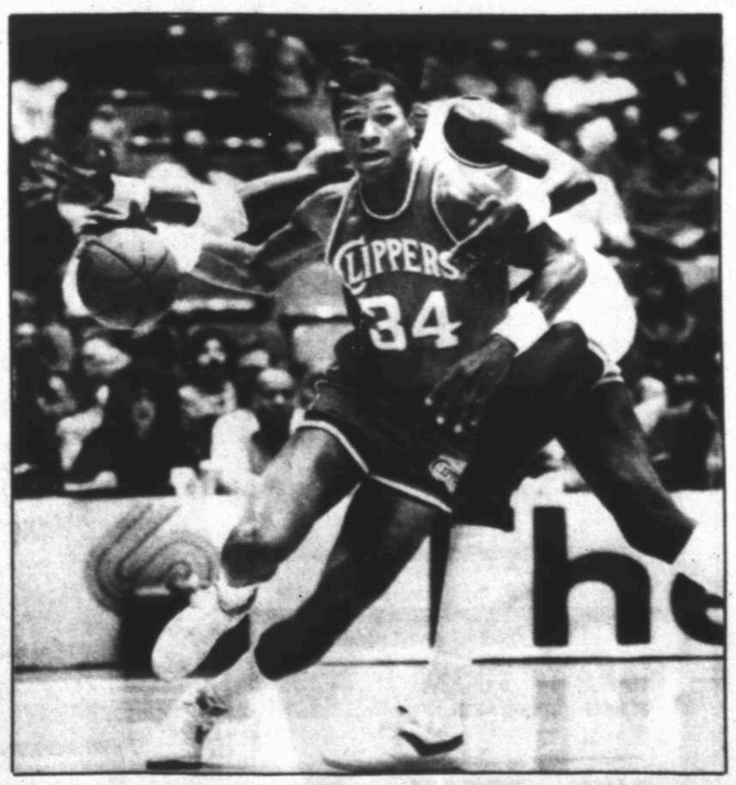

Dan Roundfield and Dominique Wilkins led an Atlanta rally in the final minutes as Dallas lost its fifth straight, all on the road.

The Mavericks, who got 32 points from Mark Aguirre, led 92-83 with 8:18 remaining. Wilkins finished with 23 points while Roundfield scored 10 of his 22 in the fourth period.

Bullets 116, Nets 106

At Landover, Greg Ballard, who scored all of his 16 points in the second half, put Washington ahead to stay with 3:23 left.

Ballard's basket put the Bullets in front 105-104 and they outscored New Jersey 13-2 the rest of the way.

Barrasso guards net as Sabres down Canadiens

By The Associated Press

Whether it's pucks or players, 18-year-old rookie goaltender Tom Barrasso wants to stop them all.

Barrasso stopped 35 of 39 shots and started a third-period brawl when he tackled Claude Lemieux as the Buffalo Sabres dumped the Montreal Canadiens 7-4 in National Hockey League action Tuesday night.

"They're challenging Barrasso and he's answering the challenge," said Buffalo Coach Scotty Bowman.

After Barrasso's flying tackle of Lemieux, the goalie wrestled the Montreal rookie to the ice, sparking a 12-player brawl.

"When I jumped on Lemieux, I didn't think it would lead to a brawl," said the 6-foot-4 Barrasso, who's less than a year out of Acton-Boxboro High School in Massachusetts. "We had been bumping each other all night. "It's not part of my style but if he messes with me then I have to defend myself."

In other NHL games, Quebec defeated Hartford 7-3 and St. Louis tripped New Jersey 5-4 in overtime.

NHL

Brent Peterson, with two goals, and Dave Andreychuk, with a goal and an assist, paced the Buffalo scoring attack.

Larry Playfair, Gilbert Perreault, Mike Ramsey and Craig Ramsay also scored for the Sabres, who improved their record to 21-12-4, two points behind first-place Boston in the Adams Division.

Down 6-1 after two periods, the Canadiens got third-period goals from Ryan Walter, Mats Naslund and Guy Lafleur to make the score respectable. Pierre Mondou scored a first-period goal for Montreal.

Barrasso's performance earned a grudging respect from the Canadiens.

"We tried to scare him," said Ric Nattress. "Lafleur hit him and (Steve) Shutt hit him and he just didn't get rattled.

Nordiques 7, Whalers 3

Michel Goulet scored twice to take over the team lead in goals as Quebec continued its home-ice mastery by defeating Hartford.

The Nordiques extended their unbeaten string at home to eight — seven victories and a tie. Randy Moller, Tony McKegney, Peter Stastny, Marian Stastny and Alain Cote also scored for the Nordiques.

The Nordiques' victory was somewhat dampened by an injury to goaltender Dan Bouchard, who started his 18th straight game. He was forced to leave late in the first period after taking a shot in the throat, but the injury was believed to be only a bruise.

Blues 5, Devils 4

At East Rutherford, Brian Sutter scored at 1:25 of overtime on a 45-foot slapshot to lead St. Louis to its victory over New Jersey.

The victory broke a six-game winless streak for the Blues, while extending the Devils' losing string to four games.

Jack Carlson, Greg Paslawski, Joe Mullen and Doug Gilmour rounded out the Blues' scoring while Bobby MacMillan scored three times and Jan Ludvig once for the Devils.

Marino ready for Seattle game

MIAMI (AP) — Coach Don Shula has decided to throw record-setting rookie quarterback Dan Marino at the Seattle Seahawks Saturday.

Marino, who missed the last two games of the National Football League season with a sprained left knee, said Tuesday he was ready to play after a three-week break.

"It feels real good," Marino said. "I don't know what the percentage would be, but it doesn't feel bad at all. The brace restricts me just a little bit, but it's no problem.

"I should be playing Saturday."

Shula made it official after practice, saying he was pleased with Marino's progress since the rookie's knee was hurt in Houston Dec. 4.

"Everything is going well, and I think it will continue to go well," Marino said. "I had a pretty good week of practice last week. Maybe if we had to play last week, there might have been some doubt, but the extra time off has been good for me."

The Dolphins, 12-4, had the Christmas weekend off as champions of the American Conference East. The Seahawks earned a trip to Miami by downing the Denver Broncos in the AFC wild-card playoff Saturday.

Shula has been confident all along that Marino could return to the lineup in the playoffs. Last week, the coach said he might have used Marino in the season-ending victory over the Jets if he'd needed his offensive leader. But Don Strock performed adequately in relief, and Marino got some more rest.

Shula said Marino looked mobile and sharp in workouts last week.

Since taking over from David Woodley six games into the season, Marino passed for 2,210 yards and 20 touchdowns, compiling a 7-2 record as a starter.

He is the first rookie quarterback ever voted to start the Pro Bowl.

Shula revealed another decision Tuesday — the hiring of former Houston Oilers Coach Chuck Studley to replace Bill Arnsparger as the Dolphins' defensive coordinator.

Arnsparger, who will become head coach at Louisiana State, will stay with the Dolphins until they are out of the playoffs.

Studley, 54, started the NFL season as defensive coordinator for the Oilers. When Ed Biles quit in October, Studley was named interim head coach of the Oilers.

Shula said he was impressed with the way the Oilers jumped ahead 14-0 in their Dec. 4 meeting with the Dolphins and that he also liked the San Francisco 49ers defenses Studley masterminded. Studley was defensive coordinator with the 49ers two seasons ago when they won the Super Bowl.

Prior to four seasons in San Francisco, Studley had been an assistant at Cincinnati for 10 years.

Safety Lyle Blackwood, who strained a tendon in his ankle against the Jets Dec. 17, worked out Tuesday.

And wide receiver Jimmy Cefalo, knocked out of the season in September by a knee injury, ran plays for the scout team in his first practice since surgery.

Aussies win Davis Cup

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Australia's upset victory over Sweden in the Davis Cup finals was especially sweet to team captain Neale Fraser because no Aussie player was ranked among the top 30 in the world.

"That is a tremendous achievement, one I doubt has ever been achieved before," Fraser said today after his team's 3-2 victory gave the Aussies the prestigious international prize for the 25th time.

Australian singles players Pat Cash and John Fitzgerald are ranked 34th and 43rd in the world respectively, and Cash had not previously appeared in Cup play. And doubles partners Paul McNamee and Mark Edmondson also had never played together in the Davis Cup.

IT WAS 18-year-old Cash, controlling his explosive temperament, who led Australia to victory.

He defeated Joakim Nystrom 6-4, 6-1, 6-1 in the decisive singles, giving the Aussies an insurmountable 3-1 lead.

Mats Wilander subsequently defeated Fitzgerald 6-8, 6-0, 6-1 in a meaningless match.

Australia moved to within three of the United States' record of 28 Davis Cup victories, but faces a tough draw next year.

The Aussies open at home against Yugoslavia in the first round in Perth, then face Italy or Britain before a possible semifinal meeting against the U.S.

But Fraser refused to look ahead.

"I'd rather savor this moment for a while," he said.

And it was a moment to savor for the Australians, particularly Cash — at 18 the youngest player ever to play singles in a Davis Cup final.

"There was a lot of pressure on us and we came through," Cash said. "That is what is most satisfying."

Playing in front of his hometown crowd, he outplayed Nystrom, a forelorn figure whose selection will doubtless be the cause of endless debate in Sweden.

NYSTROM SERVED poorly and allowed himself to be bustled by the powerful Cash.

Cash took just 1 hour, 38 minutes to storm to his his victory — delighting a sellout crowd baking under the hot sun.

Cash obeyed Fraser's prematch plan to the letter and the contest could have marked the end of his petulant period.

"I hope Pat has learned that you play to win points, not go for winners all the time."

Cash played with a maturity that belied his years and took his victory with a graciousness that bodes well for the future.

"I was thrilled I did it, but it was more for the team than myself," he said. "I don't think I've ever felt under more pressure."

"I spent the whole night before tossing and turning in my bed," Cash explained. "It was a horrible night.

"It was the biggest match I've ever played in and I was playing for my country."

Cash had lost to Nystrom in the semifinals of the New South Wales Open in Sydney earlier in the month, but completely overwhelmed the 20-year-old Swede on this occasion.

"I had played him a couple of times before and I knew what I had to do," Cash said.

"He played much better today than last time we met, and I didn't play as well," said Nystrom. "Of course we are disappointed, but Australia played better than us and deserved to win.

"I think my failure with my first service was the key to the match."

On Monday, Wilander beat Cash 6-3, 4-6, 9-7, 6-3, and on Tuesday, Fitzgerald beat Nystrom 6-4, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

McNamee and Edmondson, beat Anders Jarryd and Hans Simonsson on Monday 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

Injury sidelines UT's Haines for Cotton Bowl

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas tackle John Haines, a key performer in the Longhorns' No. 1-ranked defense, tore ligaments in his right knee at practice Monday and will miss the Cotton Bowl game with Georgia.

Texas also may have lost center David Jones, who started seven games this season and was the team's deep snapper. He suffered a sprained ankle.

Cowboys' Bethea heading for USFL

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys defensive end Larry Bethea is signing with the Michigan Panthers of the United States Football League, a Panthers spokesman said early today.

The USFL team announced a 12:30 p.m. news conference at the Silverdome today to announce the six-year National Football League veteran's signing. Terms of the agreement were not disclosed, Panthers spokesman Ken Hoffman said.

Bethea, a 27-year-old graduate of Michigan State, was the Big Ten Conference's most valuable player in 1977. He was the Cowboys' first-round choice in the 1978 college player draft, but was used primarily as a backup in his six seasons at Dallas.

The 6-foot-5, 244-pounder has appeared in 80 games for Dallas, but failed to play in the Cowboys' last three games.

Choke jokes sweeping Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys will have to live with choke jokes for another long offseason.

Some examples floating around icy Dallas Tuesday in the wake of a humiliating 24-17 loss to the Los Angeles Rams in a National Conference wild card game:

— "Did you hear the Cowboys have been sold to the Philippines? They are going to rename them the Manila Folders."

— "Do you know why the Cowboys win a dozen games then lay eggs? They're really the Dallas Chickens."

— "Do you really think Dallas will have another (Danny) White Christmas next year?"

Those are the ones you can print.

THE WORST fears of Club President Tex Schramm were realized Monday when the 10-point favorite Cowboys stumbled and bumbled their way to a third consecutive loss.

"It will be just like the late 1960s all over again," Schramm said. "Everyone will write we can't win the big one."

The media called the Cowboys "Next Year's Champions" until they won the Super Bowl in 1971.

Quarterback Vince Ferragamo riddled the Cowboy secondary with three touchdown passes and rookie Eric Dickerson gained 99 yards rushing for the Rams.

Los Angeles' tough defense held Tony Dorsett to just 57 yards rushing.

Dallas quarterback Danny White, booed off the field following each of his three fourth period interceptions, had big statistics but failed for the fourth consecutive season to get the Cowboys to the Super Bowl.

Although Dallas reached the playoffs for a record ninth consecutive season with a 12-4 record there will be a top-to-bottom reevaluation of the team.

"It's a challenge to see if we can put this team back together," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "The last time it took me three years. I don't know if I have that much time or not."

Landry has a year left on his contract and he is expected to be back.

"I don't ever make decisions at this time," Landry said. "No matter whether I had just won the Super Bowl, or this game.

"I enjoy coaching and I enjoy a challenge."

GARY HOGEBOOM'S challenge at quarterback could become a real threat to White's job next summer in training camp.

"I don't see a general housekcleaning," Landry said. "I hope to see improvement. The quarterback can be a reflection of what is taking place. Danny White is a good quarterback."

Landry continued "Danny can win a lot of games for you...but this team needs a 'shot' to get going again ... like Dickerson came in and gave the Rams a big shot in the arm."

Hogeboom isn't certain whether another White failure opens the door for him.

Sipe signs with Generals

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Brian Sipe says his decision to move from the National Football League to the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League is a "big step."

"This marks a big step in my life, a big step in my career," said Sipe, who left the Cleveland Browns after 12 years, including the first two on their taxi squad, to become the Generals quarterback.

"I hope to bring (New Jersey) a championship. It's something that in this stage of my career is primary. I'm not interested in setting records or goals. All I want to do is win football games and win the championship," Sipe added Tuesday at a news conference where he and Cincinnati Bengals offensive guard Dave Lapham were introduced as the newest Generals players.

GENERALS COACH Walt Michaels, the former coach of the New York Jets, said: "I don't see why he can't take us to a championship. But no one man can do it. If one could, we'd be playing one-man football."

Sipe said the Browns "gambled and lost" by not offering him a contract before the 1983 season began.

"In my mind they gambled. Perhaps they gambled I wouldn't play well in the summer (training camp). Perhaps they thought Paul McDonald would perform better," Sipe said. "They gambled and lost as far as I'm concerned."

Sipe, who just completed the final year of a three-year pact in Cleveland that paid him $315,000 in the final season, signed with the Generals for a reported $1.9 million over two years with an option year.

The 34-year-old quarterback said he reached an agreement with the Generals Nov. 22 and hammered out the final details last week, but he added the Browns were "given ample opportunity to respond" with a better deal. The Browns reportedly offered Sipe $2 million over four years.

CLEVELAND OWNER Arthur Modell said Monday, after the Generals announced they had signed Sipe, that the Browns planned to start the four-year veteran McDonald next season.

McDonald, who has started at quarterback several times over the past two years, signed a new contract with the Browns on Dec. 18 that goes through the 1986 season.

"To put Paul McDonald and Brian in the same category is a joke," New Jersey owner Donald J. Trump said at Tuesday's news conference.

"Paul McDonald really had very little to do with my decision. My mind was made up more than a month prior to McDonald signing," said Sipe. "My decision was based on the eagerness on the part of the Generals and Donald Trump, in particular, to have me be at or near the center of some good things to come.

"Frankly, that's what turns me on — championships or at least the pursuit of it," he added.

Earlier, in a farewell news conference in Cleveland, Sipe said: "I think it is time for a new experience, new horizons. Twelve years is a long time to be in any one city playing for any one franchise."

"I've been in a competitive rut here," Sipe said. "I feel I can go over to a new league that I feel is gaining credibility by leaps and bounds and in the very near future will be comparable to the NFL."

SIPE GUIDED the Browns to a 9-7 record this past season, capping it with four touchdown passes in a 30-17 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers in the final regular season game. He passed for 3,566 yards this season, with 26 touchdowns.

Sipe's best year was 1980, when he was named the NFL's Most Valuable Player for hitting 337 of 554 passes for 4,132 yards and 30 touchdowns. In his NFL career, Sipe passed for 23,713 yards, with 154 touchdowns.

Sipe will be united in the Generals backfield with 1982 Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker, the USFL's rushing leader when New Jersey finished 6-12 last season.

Lapham said he was looking forward to playing for the Generals so "impact guys like Brian Sipe and Herschel Walker can perform."

"I'll do my best to keep Brian clean and keep Herschel untouched. That's what it's all about,' said Lapham, a 10-year veteran with Cincinnati.

The Generals traded fullback Dwight Sullivan and linebacker Steve Hammond to the Los Angeles Express for the right to sign Sipe, who played at San Diego State. The Express hold the rights to all players who attended San Diego State.

Sipe and Lapham bring to four the number of NFL starters the Generals have signed since Trump purchased the club in September. Gary Barbaro, an All-Pro safety with the Kansas City Chiefs, and Seattle Seahawks defensive back Kerry Justin will be with the Generals when training camp begins next month in Orlando, Fla.

Trump also said the Generals had signed several other NFL players, but was not ready to make an announcement because they were involved in playoff games.

Holtz recommends Arkansas aides

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The new look in the University of Minnesota football coaching staff will include at least three aides of Lou Holtz when he was at the Arkansas helm.

Head Coach Holtz recommended four assistant coaches on Tuesday to Athletic Director Paul Giel, and three of them were with Holtz when he coached the Razorbacks. Holtz said he expects to nominate three or four more coaches within a few days.

Holtz was hired by University of Minnesota officials last week to succeed Joe Salem, whose luckless Gophers struggled through a 1-11 record in 1983, finishing last in the Big Ten.

The four men must be approved by the school's Board of Regents, but they are expected to join Holtz in his recruiting efforts immediately, a spokesman said.

The four new assistants are Pete Cordelli, 30, of Langhorne, Pa.; Phil Elmassian, 32, of Cambridge, Mass. George Stewart, 25, of Little Rock, Ark. and Jim Strong, 29, of Abbeyville, Kan.

All but Elmassian were coaches under Holtz at the University of Arkansas during the 1983 season. Elmassian coached defensive backs at East Carolina University in Greenville, N.C.

All but Strong played under Holtz during their college days. Stewart was a captain of the 1980 Arkansas team who suffered a knee injury during his senior year and joined coaching ranks after the injury kept him from a professional career. He spent the 1981 season on the Kansas City Chiefs injured reserve list.

Holtz said Cordelli will coach wide receivers; Elmassian, defensive backs; Stewart, offensive linemen, and Strong, running backs.

"You don't have a chance in this business without the proper staff," Holtz said. "We hope the right chemistry develops among a fine group of individuals, the kind that will set the example needed for a winning combination.

"Each has enjoyed success in his chosen field. Hopefully that will continue here at Minnesota. Would you believe that one of our new men asked on the telephone if there were any palm trees on campus? Now, that's dedication."

Holtz plans to visit the home of every top Minnesota high school athlete in the next few weeks. Football players may sign letters of intent with colleges beginning Feb. 8.

Holtz also said he will open his roster to any other student at the school who has played organized football and wants to try out. He said he hopes to offer a couple of scholarships each year to walk-ons.

Ruidoso Downs faces lawsuit

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — An Artesia horse breeder and a Colorado man have filed a lawsuit against Ruidoso-Sunland Inc., saying the Ruidoso Downs race track kept a filly from running in the 1982 All-American Futurity.

David E. Barrett of Artesia and Eldon D. Boughan of Durango, Colo., seek $500,000 each in damages from the race track company.

Barrett says he named Ruidoso-Sunland Inc. his agent in the sale of "Boston Jane" in the August 1981 All-American Select Quarter Horse Yearling Sale.

The lawsuit says Barrett delivered papers nominating the filly to the All-American Futurity. The horse was sold to Boughan for $6,500, which Boughan turned over to Ruidoso-Sunland officials.

Barrett says the money as well as the nomination and registration papers still are being held by corporation when they should have been forwarded.

Because the papers weren't kept in condition required for the horse to race in the Futurity, the value of the horse and her line was damaged, the men allege.

North Carolina, UTEP gain tournament finals

By The Associated Press

College Basketball

It was an easy night for North Carolina and a tough one for Texas-El Paso although the results were exactly the same: a berth in the finals of a holiday basketball tournament.

North Carolina, a perennial power and the nation's top-ranked team, breezed by Iona 74-61 Tuesday night in the opening of the Holiday Festival Tournament at Madison Square Garden in New York. The high-flying Tar Heels gunned into Thursday night's finals against eighth-ranked St. John's, a 56-52 winner over Fordham in the other half of the opening doubleheader.

Meanwhile, up-and-coming Texas-El Paso, ranked No. 16, squeezed by No. 15 Michigan 72-71 in the Sun Bowl tourney in El Paso and headed into tonight's final against Arizona, a 51-49 winner in overtime over Texas Tech.

In other action involving the nation's ranked college basketball teams, No. 10 Wake Forest walloped Auburn 76-69 in the Gator Bowl tourney in Jacksonville, Fla., and 19th-ranked Oregon State rolled past Boise State 61-42 in the opening of the Far West Classic in Portland.

Top Twenty

With All-Americans Michael Jordan and Sam Perkins, North Carolina's top two scorers, having off-days, sophomore Brad Daugherty scored 22 points to lead the Tar Heels over the outmanned Gaels.

Daugherty, a 6-foot-11 center, scored 13 of his points in the first half as the Tar Heels raced to a 38-20 advantage at intermission. The halftime lead was the Tar Heels' largest of the game and was equaled several times, including 70-52 with less than two minutes to play on two foul shots by forward Matt Doherty, who scored 15 points.

Jordan hit only two of 12 shots and scored eight points while Perkins was one of 11 for six.

"They collapsed on me well," said Perkins, "but that opened things for Daugherty and (Matt) Doherty. We're not a one-man team, even though me and Jordan get the attention."

"Jordan pressed a lot," said Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith. "He's human and has a right to fail. But he didn't quit defensively."

Despite playing with a bad cold, Steve Burtt led the Gaels with 16 points.

"Brad Daugherty got them going after a 5-5 tie and we got out of our game plan and panicked — and it was over," said Iona coach Pat Kennedy. "In the second half, we went at them and did a good job."

Chris Mullin and Jeff Allen combined for 15 of St. John's last 20 points to give the Redmen a hard-fought victory over Fordham.

"This was New York basketball the way it was always played," said St. John's coach Lou Carnesecca. "Every shot was magic. We were most fortunate tonight."

Said Carnesecca of Fordham, "We had to chase them up and down Eighth Avenue all night. They played tenacious defense and made big, big buckets. Our foul shooting won the game."

The Redmen made 24 of 28 free throws.

Fred Reynolds converted a pair of free throws with six seconds remaining as Texas-El Paso defeated Michigan. Reynolds, a junior forward, was fouled intentionally as UTEP held a 70-69 lead. His free throws gave the Miners a three-point lead and their eventual winning margin.

"I knew free throws were going to mean the difference," said UTEP Coach Don Haskins, "and we were fortunate that Fred made his. They have a good inside game with (Tim) McCormick and great outside shooters with (Leslie) Rockymore and (Antoine) Joubert."

Eddie Smith scored five of his 19 points in overtime to lift Arizona over Texas Tech. Arizona guard Steve Kerr sent the game into overtime with a 20-foot jumper with six seconds left in regulation.

Anthony Teachey scored 14 points and Kenney Green and Delaney Rudd had 13 each as Wake Forest used a balanced offense to blast Auburn in the Gator Bowl Classic. Ronnie Murphy sank a pair of free throws with 16 seconds remaining and added a slam-dunk just before the buzzer as host Jacksonville upset Villanova 67-63 in the night's other game.

Charlie Sitton scored 16 of his game-high 22 points in the second half to power Oregon State over Boise State in the Far West Classic. Sitton, a 6-8 senior forward, hit 10 of 14 field goal attempts in leading the Beavers to their fifth victory in seven games.

"We had a little better defense with our guards because we were able to keep them rested," said Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller. "With Tyrone (Miller) back, it gives us another strong inside and outside person."

Miller and two other Oregon State players missed the first six contests of the year for selling complimentary game tickets in violation of NCAA rules.

In the second game, Washington State nipped Portland 55-53 as Bryan Pollard and Otis Jennings sank two free throws apiece in the final 2:10 of overtime.

Others

In other tournament action, Chuck Stahl scored 17 points and Eric Newsome added 13, leading Miami of Ohio to a 70-52 victory over Davidson in the Milwaukee Classic. In the second game, Kerry Trotter pumped in 17 points and Dwayne Johnson added 16 to lead Marquette to a 69-55 victory over McNeese State.

Steel chief calls cuts 'unavoidable'

Angry union leaders say concessions futile

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp.'s plan to do away with 15,400 jobs at 73 plants proves "the futility" of union concessions to save jobs, an angry labor leader said, but the company called its action "unavoidable."

David Roderick, chairman of the nation's biggest steelmaker, announced Tuesday that six plants in the Northeast will be closed, probably by April 1984, and others, including the big South Works near Chicago, will be mostly shut down.

The reductions will save U.S. Steel about $650 million in after-tax write-offs and will likely boost earnings next year by $180 million to $200 million, Roderick said after the company's annual meeting.

"Everybody must be competitive. And if any of us fail to do that, any facility is in jeopardy," Roderick said.

But some union members accused the company of betraying workers, especially after the United Steelworkers Union agreed to a package of givebacks in their latest contract in March.

"It just seemed to whet their appetite. It wasn't enough," said Jerry Guido, president of Local 2670 in Trenton, N.J.

Roderick said the cuts were prompted by high labor costs and by competition from Third World steelmakers, such as Brazil and South Korea. He called the reductions "unavoidable in light of global economic and market conditions." U.S. Steel lost $487 million in the first three quarters of this year.

The plants to be closed are Cuyahoga near Cleveland; Ambridge, Pa.; Johnstown, Pa.; Shiffler in Lawrenceville, Pa.; Elmira, N.Y.; and Trenton, N.J.

After the announcement, U.S. Steel stock rose five-eighths of a point to 29⅞ in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The company had warned of the closings Dec. 7 and said then some jobs could be saved through cost-saving measures at individual plants.

But the union, having negotiated an estimated $3 billion worth of concessions over 3½ years, accused steel companies of provoking "job wars" between individual locals and adopted a policy against any additional givebacks.

"No further proof of the futility and foolishness of a policy of concession bargaining need be offered than today's announcement," said union treasurer Frank McKee, who is running against acting President Lynn Williams for the presidency left vacant by the death of longtime USW leader Lloyd McBride.

Williams, at a news conference, called on the federal government to protect steel companies against foreign imports.

"Today's decision by U.S. Steel only adds to the urgency of what our union has been fighting for, and that is to take such decisions away from corporate boards and put them into the realm of national industrial policies," he said.

Roderick said about 2,400 of the projected lost jobs could still be saved through limited concessions by individual locals, as allowed in the agreement the USW negotiated last March with seven steelmakers.

"People that don't really understand the economic pressures that are out there in the marketplace are the people that, long-term, are not going to be working in the steel industry," Roderick said.

The company said the closings would eliminate the jobs of 4,590 active and 10,896 already laid-off employees in steel, mining and chemicals businesses in 13 states. In steel, 3,607 active and 7,477 inactive workers will be affected.

The job losses will total about 90 at Johnstown, Pa.; nearly 770 at a fabrication plant in Ambridge, Pa.; about 500 at the Cuyahoga Works near Cleveland; 250 at the fabrication plant in Elmira, N.Y.; 190 in fabrication at the Shiffler plant in Pennsylvania; and 50 in wire rope production at Trenton, N.J.

In cutbacks, the largest job losses include about 2,500 at the Gary Works in Gary, Ind.; 3,100 at the South Works in South Chicago, Ill.; and 3,800 in seven plants near Pittsburgh, Roderick said.

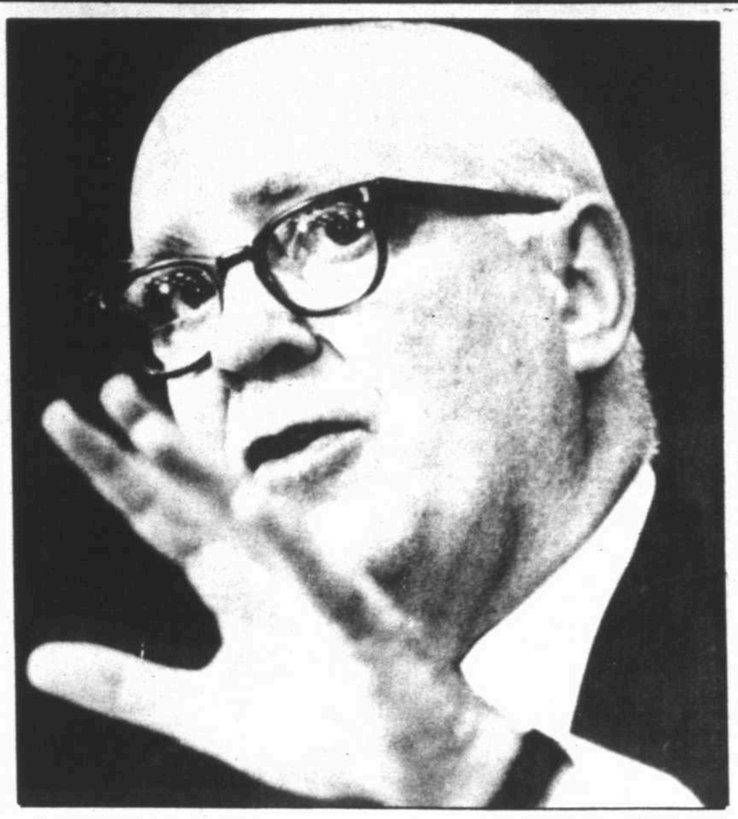

"This town's had it without the mill," said contractor Tom Kaynor in McKeesport, Pa., where U.S. Steel will close a blast furnace, two blooming mills and various shops at its National Works.

The company said the closings will reduce its steel-making capacity to 26 million tons a year from 31 million tons. It also said it would not import semi-finished steel from Britain under a proposal which would have upgraded the Fairless Works outside Philadelphia.

Roderick said 1,600 employees will be called back to work with the reactivation of steelmaking and flat rolling operations at the Fairfield Works near Birmingham, Ala.

U.S. Steel employs 81,800 people in steel, chemicals, coal and other businesses. The cutbacks affect about 22 percent of its 71,000 steel employees, about 32,000 of whom are currently on layoffs.

The current issue of Fortune magazine ranks U.S. Steel as one the nation's ten least admired large corporations; in that survey of corporate executives, directors and financial analysts it is classified as a petroleum refining company because of its acquisition of Marathon Oil.

Chairman of United States Steel David Roderick announces at a Tuesday press conference in Pittsburgh that about 15,400 jobs will be eliminated permanently at 10 steelmaking operations nationwide.

Report says U.S. steel output up

Despite increase U.S. Steel cutting back

By The Associated Press

As a report showed American steel production is up by 17.2 percent this year, U.S. Steel Corp. announced it is cutting back operations and dismissing 15,400 employees due to "global economic and market conditions."

U.S. Steel said Tuesday it will close six steel plants and reduce operations at 24 others by June. More than 4,500 active employees and nearly 10,900 already laidoff workers will be affected.

The company said the plants to be closed are Lorain-Cuyahoga, near Cleveland; Ambridge, Pa.; Johnstown, Pa.; Shiffler, in Lawrenceville, Pa.; Elmira, N.Y.; and Trenton, N.J. The closings are to be completed by next June.

Other plants, including the South Works near Chicago, will be mostly shut down.

U.S. Steel also said it had dropped discussions on importing steel from Britain.

In New York, the American Iron and Steel Institute said domestic steel production last week — shortened by the Christmas holiday — was 6.8 percent lower than the week before. Production for the year to date is 17.2 percent ahead of 1982, it said.

Although domestic steel production has been rising as the U.S. economy has revived, American steel executives complain they are hurt by high levels of imports and burdensome labor contracts.

David M. Roderick, chairman of U.S. Steel, said that "while the decision to suspend operations at the affected units are difficult for the employees and communities involved, they were unavoidable in light of global economic and market conditions in steel."

He said non-competitive labor cost was "an important factor" in the company's decisions.

U.S. Steel, which lost $497 million the first three quarters of this year, said the closings would result in a fourth-quarter after-tax charge of $650 million. Roderick said the moves would generate an additional $180 million to $200 million in revenues next year.

In other economic developments Tuesday:

—A forecast by Standard & Poor's Corp. predicted that the economic recovery will broaden its base next year to encompass "most major industry groups." In its annual survey of eight key industries, S&P said the economic recovery will grow in 1984, with "surging profit growth" in the airline, auto, chemical and steel industries, and "substantial though less dramatic gains" in other industries such as coal, industrial electronics and oil.

—The National Association of Realtors said resales of single-family homes rose 0.8 percent last month, due partly to a decline in mortgage rates. Home sales were at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2.63 million units in November, compared with 2.61 million the previous month, when sales had fallen slightly, the group said. The latest rate was 22.3 percent above November last year.

—Citrus processors in Florida and Texas began working around the clock to squeeze juice from icy fruit after two days of freezing weather. Despite losses, growers said prices for orange juice probably would not go up.Florida vegetable growers, however, were predicting losses of 75 percent, expected to reach at least $30 million. In Texas, citrus growers said they feared losses of $30 million or more.

—Citgo Petroleum Corp., which had cut the price it offers for domestic crude oil by $1.50, to $28.50 a barrel, on Dec. 16, restored prices back to $30, after most refiners held at $30.

Occidental Petroleum closes Permian Corp. sale

LOS ANGELES, (SWN)—Dr. Armand Hammer, chairman and chief executive officer of Occidental Petroleum Corp., Tuesday announced that Occidental has completed the sale of the Permian Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary, to a subsidiary of Wesray Operations Inc.

Wesray is an affiliate of Wesray Corp., a private investment firm of which William E. Simon, formerly secretary of the treasury, is the chairman. The acquiring company will assume the Permian name.

At the closing, Occidental received an aggregate of $270 million in cash, including a $45 million payment on account of crude oil inventories, which is being applied by Occidental to further reduce its outstanding debt.

Occidental also received two subordinated interest-bearing promissory notes of the acquiring company and a warrant exercisable to purchase 7.5 percent of the stock of Wesray Operations Inc. or the acquiring company.

One note is for $75 million payable over 10 years, and the other is for $25 million, which can be discharged and reinstated in accordance with the terms of the agreement. Occidental retained certain of Permian's liabilities and the use of certain cash funds.

Houston-based Permian is one of the nation's leading independent marketers and transporters of crude oil. Permian, acquired by Occidental in 1966, purchases, transports and markets crude oil, principally in the southern, southwestern and northwestern areas of the United States.

Permian operates approximately 5,200 miles of crude oil pipelines and a fleet of 600 tanker trucks and maintains sales station facilities.

Pennzoil's tender offer surprises Getty officials

By The Los Angeles Times—
Washington Post News Service

LOS ANGELES — The bitter struggle for control of Getty Oil Co. took a new turn Tuesday as Pennzoil Co. said that it would begin a cash tender offer Thursday for up to 16 million shares — or about 20 percent of Getty's stock — at $100 per share.

The $1.6 billion offer would represent nearly a $20-per-share premium for holders of Getty common stock, which closed Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange at $80.375, down 50 cents from Friday.

A Getty spokesman said that the Los Angeles-based company had no warning of the impending tender offer aside from the two-sentence press release Houston-based Pennzoil distributed in New York. "The company was totally surprised by this action," the spokesman said. "We haven't seen the offer by Pennzoil, and we will have no comment until after we have seen it."

In its brief announcement, Pennzoil said that the offer would be made through a wholly owned subsidiary, which it refused to name.

The Sarah C. Getty Trust and the J. Paul Getty Museum in Malibu, Calif., together hold 52 percent of the stock of Getty Oil. A behind-the-scenes dispute involving those holders and top Getty management surfaced in October with signing of a "standstill" agreement.

Under the agreement, the trust and museum agreed not to sell off their holdings, quelling speculation about a breakup or unfriendly takeover of the company. In turn, management under Chairman Sidney R. Petersen, promised to make no "fundamental corporate changes" without prior approval by the trust and the museum, and allowed the two to name five new directors to Getty's 12-member board.

But the feud has continued despite the agreement.

Gordon Getty, at 49 the youngest son of J. Paul Getty, who headed the company until his death in 1976, has indicated his belief that the company has not been sufficiently profitable under Petersen's leadership. Petersen, for his part, accused Gordon Getty of trying to oust the company's board — a plot Petersen contended was foiled after the museum refused to add its 11.8 percent stake to the trust's 40.2 percent holding. The standstill agreement emerged from that standoff.

With the company's support, lawyers for another Getty son, J. Paul Getty Jr., 50, have sought to wrest control of the trust from Gordon Getty by arguing in Los Angeles County Superior Court that a disinterested co-trustee be appointed to protect the interests of the six Getty heirs who enjoy $82.7 million in annual dividend income from the trust.

How Pennzoil will fit into that bitter and increasingly complex battle is the key question. Although Pennzoil was not considered a likely bidder for the much larger Getty Oil, Getty has been perceived as vulnerable to a takeover. Its profits fell 19 percent in 1982, to $692 million, and revenues for the first nine months of this year eased 3.7 percent over the same period a year earlier.

Based on 1982 figures, Getty ranks as the nation's 14th largest oil producer with annual sales of $12 billion and assets of $9.9 billion. Pennzoil, with annual sales of $2.3 billion and assets of $3.2 billion, has interests in oil and natural-gas exploration and production, oil refining and marketing, and metals production.

Silicon Valley booming again

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After a year on the skids, the computer industry is booming, pumping up California's softened economy with back orders so voluminous that workers on overtime can't meet the demand, industry analysts and business officials say.

The surge was not anticipated six months ago in the Silicon Valley south of San Francisco, the heart the nation's high-technology industry, where until recently layoffs and wage cuts were common.

"If you want to work 9 to 5, you don't belong here," said John Trifari, communications director for Seagate Technology, a manufacturer of computer components in Santa Cruz. Twelve-hour shifts are routine at Seagate's plants.

By the end of 1983, Seagate expects to double last year's $110 million business, Trifari said. The company's employment jumped this year from 600 to 2,300.

The boom took many experts by surprise. E.E. Ferrey, president of the American Electronics Association in Palo Alto, said the upturn "happened all at once. Six months ago it wasn't being looked for. And it has been stronger than most people expected."

Computer sales volume will jump next year to $16 billion from $13.5 billion in 1983, said Michael Salkin, vice president and senior economist for the Bank of America.

Salkin said electronic component sales will grow to $10 billion from $8.3 billion and that communications equipment sales will increase to $15 billion from $12.3 billion.

"The increase in this business could be responsible for 20 percent of all the growth in California in 1984," Salkin said. Electronics is the state's biggest industry in terms of dollar value of production, he said.

Unemployment fell to 5.8 percent in October from about 9 percent in January in Santa Clara County, where much of the industry is centered, according to Rica Pirani, a state market analyst.

All this adds up to more revenue for California's tax coffers, according to state Controller Kenneth Cory, who predicted a whopping budget surplus.

"The best way for a self-employed person to save up to $15,000 in the next 2 days."

If you work for yourself, then you have until Friday, December 30 to open a KEOGH account at RepublicBank First National Midland.

That's only 2 banking days away.

If you act now, you can designate up to $15,000 (or 15% of this year's earned income, whichever is less) without paying taxes on it until you retire.

Best of all, your contribution doesn't have to be paid until you file your 1983 tax return. For most, that means April 15, 1984, and not a second sooner.

Maybe you planned to open a KEOGH account this year but just never got around to it.

Now is the time to do it. Remember, December 30 is the deadline.

T-bills drop slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Discount rates on short-term Treasury securities dropped slightly at the latest governent auction of about $12.8 billion worth of T-bills.

About $6.4 billion worth of three-month T-bills were sold Tuesday at an average discount rate of 8.94 percent, down from 9.04 percent of last week. Another $6.4 billion in six-month bills sold at an average rate of 9.14 percent, down from 9.24 percent.

Tuesday's yields were the lowest since the Dec. 12 levels of 8.93 percent for three-month bills and 9.12 percent for six-month bills.

The new discount rates understate the actual return to investors — 9.3 percent for three-month bills and 9.74 percent for six-month bills.

OIL FACT

1921

By executive order, President Harding turns over administration of Naval Petroleum Reserves to Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall. This was later considered one prelude to Teapot Dome oil scandal.

How to get telephones and how to get them repaired after the Bell System breaks up.

As the divestiture or breakup of the Bell System takes place, a lot of changes will also take place. Two major ones will affect telephones and repairs.

HOW TO GET TELEPHONES.

You can continue leasing your current phones and pay a monthly charge as you now do. Except your lease will be through AT&T Information Systems instead of Southwestern Bell Telephone. That means you'll see a separate leasing charge from AT&T Information Systems on your monthly bill from Southwestern Bell Telephone. We won't be leasing home telephones after divestiture. If you continue to lease, we'll handle the transfer, so you don't have to do anything.

Or you can purchase a new telephone from Southwestern Bell Telecom. Southwestern Bell Telecom is a separate company from Southwestern Bell Telephone and will begin selling home and business telephone equipment in 1984.

WHERE TO GET TELEPHONES REPAIRED.

Beginning at the first of the year, Southwestern Bell Telephone will no longer repair telephones leased from AT&T. We will continue to repair telephone lines at no charge, though. So when you have a problem it's important to determine if the problem is in your phone or on our line. And there's an easy way to do it. Just check a different phone at your home. If neither works, the trouble is probably in the line, and you should call us for the repair.

If one phone works and the other doesn't, the problem is probably in the phone. Then depending on the supplier of your phone you should either: 1) call AT&T Information Systems for repairs if you lease the phone or bought it from AT&T Information Systems or Southwestern Bell Telephone, 2) call Southwestern Bell Telecom if you bought it from them, or 3) call the original manufacturer or retailer if you purchased your phone from a source other than Bell.

MORE INFORMATION.

If you have any questions about the breakup of the Bell System and how it will affect your service, call us toll-free at 1 800 555-5000. We'll be glad to answer them and send you a special information booklet, too.

Or, if you have specific questions about your service, please call your Southwestern Bell Telephone Business Office.

Dollar retreats in light market

LONDON (AP) — The dollar retreated at the start of trade in Europe today but was reported drifting back up by mid-morning. Gold was little changed.

Dealers said that with volume extremely light between Christmas and New Year's, the fate of U.S. interest rates was the dominating market force.

Eurodollar deposit rates — interest paid on dollars held in Europe — opened about 1/16 of a point lower, dealers in Frankfurt reported.

Investors seemed to be speculating that the rates would go still lower, cutting the dollar's value as an investment, the dealers said.

They pointed to a sharper-than-expected drop in the U.S. money supply — reported by the Federal Reserve last Friday — and a surprisingly low fourth-quarter figure for growth in the gross national product. Both are signs that U.S. inflation will be kept under control, allowing the Fed to scale back interest rates.

Midland family responds to relative's plea

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

Jim Lloyd read a newspaper account of how a woman from Thailand was accused of ambushing her husband in bed, shooting him to death and discarding his body in another Oklahoma county.

"There's no way I would touch that case with a 10-foot pole," he told workers in his Tulsa, Okla., law office.

And there was little chance he would be approached. Jim was a civil lawyer, dealing primarily in workmen's compensation and child custody cases.

But it was a child custody case that brought Jim in contact with the alleged killer. He spent more than a year uncovering details and in getting an innocent verdict in the woman's third trial. In the process, Jim convinced his family in Midland of the need for justice. And they responded, helping a foreign woman they had never met.

Jim, his wife and children are in Midland this week visiting his family.

Rex Lloyd, Jim's brother, had spent his Air Force service in Thailand and could speak the native language, assisting his attorney brother in conversations with the client, Sawart "Nit" Hampton. Leon Lloyd, the father, agreed to run errands, babysit the woman's two children during trials and give moral support.

BEFORE THE CASE was over in October, Rex and Leon had spent a combination of several weeks in Tulsa on a case that drew international attention, the recall of a Thailand official and testimony from nationally-known experts in ballistics and medical examinations. Both Midlanders gained an inside look at how the justice system operates.

"After we got into the case, I felt she was innocent," said Leon. "Jim just kept digging into it. The police were unhappy. They thought they had an easy murder conviction."

The case took a year out of the lives of the Tulsa attorney, Mrs. Hampton and her two daughters. All of them are still recovering, even though it's been two months since the innocent verdict in late October.

Jim said first he had to work on getting the children placed back into Mrs. Hampton's custody, then on insurance companies which had refused to acknowledge the shooting was an accidental death and refused to pay. But one company paid last week, Mrs. Hampton will be starting a new job Jan. 3, she has an apartment and is making new friends among the Thai community in Tulsa.

"This is one of the most fascinating cases I've ever seen," said Jim. It has the makings of a great murder novel — sex, violence and mystery, he said.

"WHEN I FIRST read it in the newspaper, I thought there was no way I would represent that individual. By happenstance, I met her through a couple who wanted to get custody of her children."

Close friends of Mrs. Hampton, they were trying to gain custody of Ta, 7, and Brandy, now 2, rather than let the dead man's father have the children.

"I said, 'I'll represent you folks, but not her.'" He won custody in a case that on the surface appeared weighted in favor of the father-in-law.

In investigating the child custody case, Jim began asking details of what happened that fatal October night. Finally, in his mind, he became convinced Mrs. Hampton wasn't guilty of first degree murder.

When he finally decided to take the case, Jim realized he had one major problem: It wasn't the murder charge or that she may have had an accomplice, or that she dumped the body in another county. "I'd never tried a criminal case in my life. THAT was my problem. But I had to prove her innocence."

He sought help from experts and started digging. Jim talked to Jerry Spence, a well-known Jackson Hole, Wyo., criminal trial lawyer. He called on Los Angeles medical examiner Thomas Noguchi and brought in another expert who had worked on the John Belushi and Hillside Strangler cases. Adding to the evidence was Luke Haag, a nationally-recognized ballistics expert.

POLICE CONTENDED Mrs. Hampton shot her husband while he was in bed, pointing out there were blood stains on the mattress. But the blood tested out to be hers; meanwhile, police buried the mattress 40 feet down in a landfill, said Jim.

And, the attorney slowly pulled out the following details: Her husband, Tony, had come home after being gone two days. When Nit questioned where he had been, he refused to tell her he had been with a former girlfriend. "He slapped her. He had a habit of hitting her in the back of the head where it doesn't show. She's 5 feet 2 and 110 pounds, he was 6 foot 3."

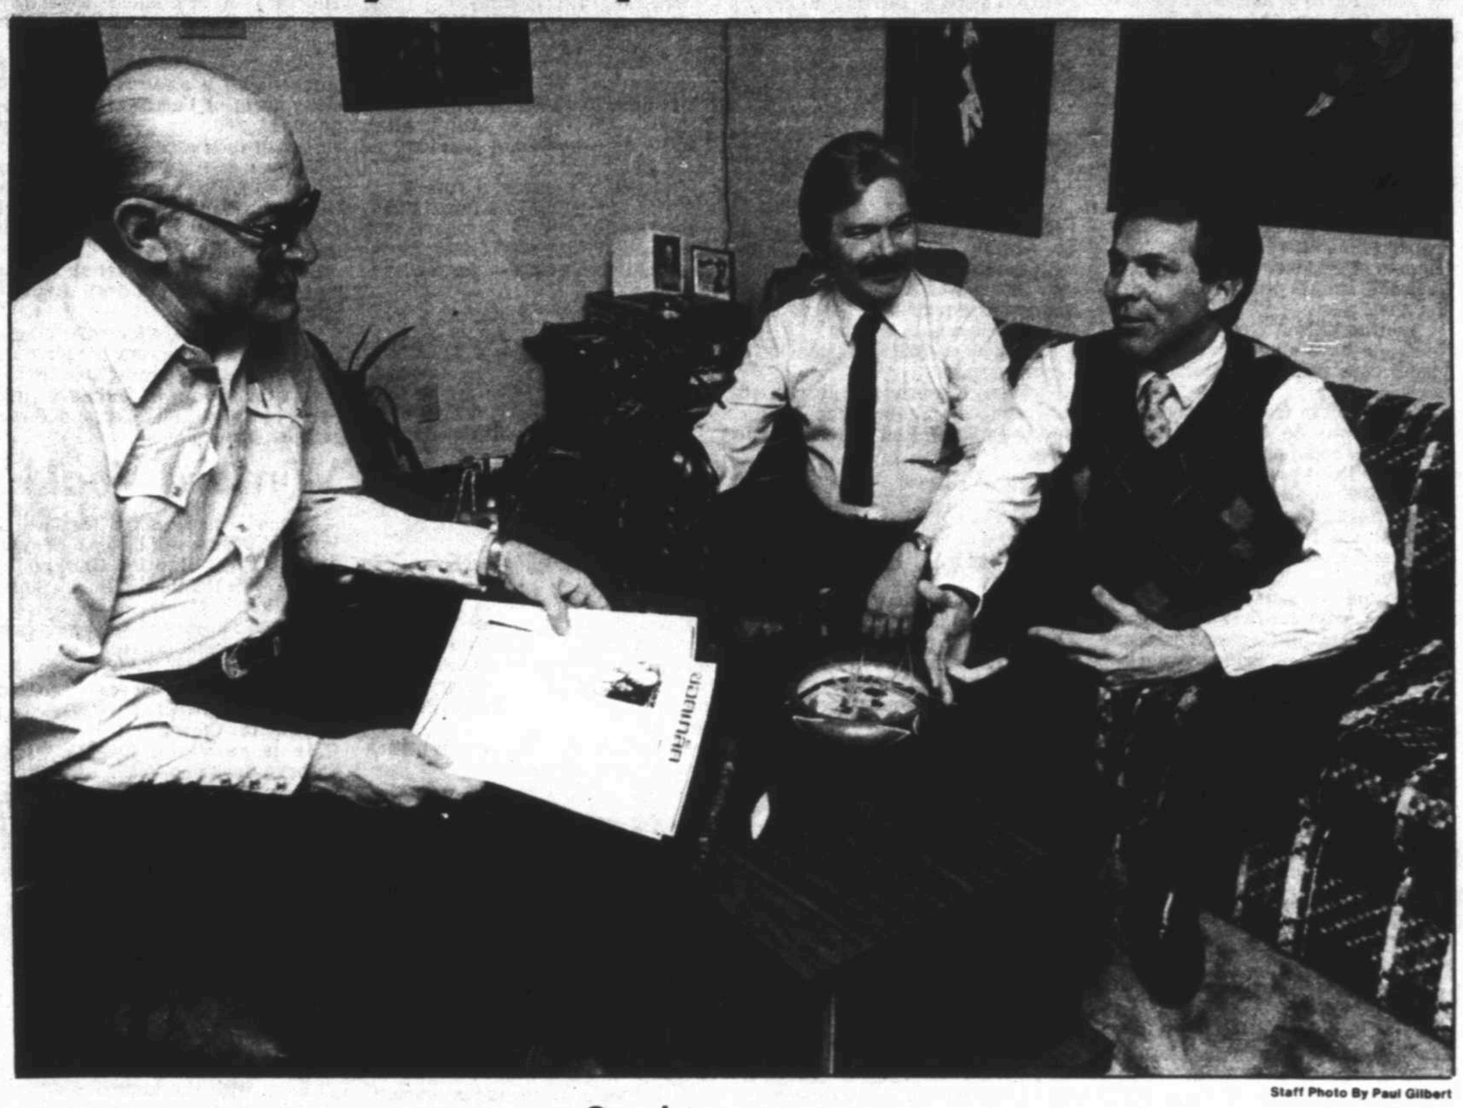

Tony went to the closet and Nit followed, thinking he was going to get a belt to whip her. Instead, he found the .38-caliber pistol and they began a struggle. The gun fired once, the bullet going into a dresser. The trigger was pulled again, this time the bullet piercing Tony's right lung. Nit hit Tony several times with a baseball bat, and then he followed her as she ran out of the house. She made her way back into the house and later found her husband had collapsed and died in the garage.

The next evening, she convinced a Puerto Rican friend to help her dispose of the body, and it was he who suggested the spot in the next county, the attorney said.

According to Rex, getting the body off her property was only a natural reaction in her native land. "In Southeast Asian countries, you're guilty until proven innocent. If you find a body on your property you toss it over the fence. She acted according to her customs," he said.

THE STRUGGLE, beating and shooting all occurred inside the house where the two daughters were sleeping, Jim said, and this helped pull the jury to Mrs. Hampton's side.

Seeking justice

Tulsa attorney Jim Lloyd, right, relied on the support of his father and brother, Midlanders Leon Lloyd and Rex Lloyd, in the trial of a Thai woman accused in the murder of her husband. Rex, who speaks Thai, helped his brother communicate with the woman, while Leon ran errands and babysat for the woman's two children.

Midland lawyer reprimanded by Bar grievance committee

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A 37-year-old Midland lawyer who is accused of violated a client's trust and who failed to "zealously represent" her in an Illinois divorce suit has been publicly reprimanded by a grievance committee of the State Bar of Texas.

The attorney, Benny J. Lowe, was warned that "he may expect no leniency" in discipline for any "future acts of professional misconduct," according to a formal reprimand signed by Scurry County attorney George Killam, chairman of the State Bar's District 16 Grievance Committee.

Lowe declined to comment on the reprimand.

He is the second Midland attorney to undergo the Bar's disciplinary action this year. Earlier this year, Harold B. Jones, 59, was disbarred and prohibited from practicing law in Texas due to "professional misconduct." He had been accused of misapplication of fiduciary funds by failing to return $1,500 to a Midland couple and for misusing more than $10,000 of another client's money.

Jones, who had practiced law since 1954, may petition the state district court for reinstatement to the Bar five years after disbarment but must make full amends and restitution.

Lowe is a Texas Tech University law school graduate who was admitted to the State Bar in 1972. His situation was heard by a 13-member grievance committee, which is made of lawyers and lay persons in a 16-county area which includes Midland, Lubbock, Big Spring and Lamesa.

In Lowe's case, his client, Jennifer Limer, 33, had filed a divorce petition in Midland against her husband, James Limer of Minier, Ill. Meanwhile, her husband had filed a similar suit in Illinois. The husband's petition for divorce was granted first and the court in Bloomington, Ill., awarded custody of the two Limer sons, ages 4 and 5, to the husband. "We're in an appeal," Ms. Limer said this morning, in hopes of her gaining custody of the children.

The grievance committee determined that Lowe had:

— Failed to file an answer, on behalf of his client, to the divorce suit filed against her in Illinois after "promising her he would file such an answer."

— Undertaken "to advise his client" on Illinois state law when "he was not competent to do so" — not licensed to practice law in that state.

— Failed to "zealously represent his client."

Notice of the reprimand is a public record and is to be published in the "Texas Bar Journal."

"It's an embarrassment," said Larry Fitzgerald, director of communications for the State Bar of Texas in Austin.

Killam, who presided over the grievance hearing Dec. 12 in Lubbock, likened the hearing to a grand-jury proceeding. Both Lowe and his former client testified before the group.

"We're an ethics committee," which Killam said functions similarly to self-disciplining committees set up by the American Medical Assocation and other professional bodies.

Area plumbers find profit from freeze not pipe dream

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

As residents struggle to survive without water or plumbing in their homes, there is one segment of the population benefiting from this misfortune.

Plumbers in Odessa and Midland have all the work and more than they can handle in the wake of a weekend of freezing temperatures which left many a home's pipes frozen or broken.

Though efforts continued throughout the Christmas weekend to restore plumbing in the Permian Basin, many people will be left without a water supply or toilet facilities until the the area's pipe-wrench-wielding workforce can catch up with the sudden demand for their services.

"We don't mind the work," said Curtis Schrock, owner of Odessa Plumbing Co.

Plumbers' phones have been ringing at record rates since the "big chill" settled on the Petroplex — freezing up lines, clogging drainage systems and cracking pipes that linked water supplies with home plumbing. Schrock counted 200 calls Monday and more than 100 by mid-day Tuesday.

C.A. Gray Plumbing, Heating and Air Conditioning Inc. set up 68 appointments from calls Monday, with Service Manager Bob Grant estimating that nearly 100 calls were received, including those that chose to seek assistance elsewhere.

"We had a lot that said they couldn't wait for us to get to them," Grant said.

"We haven't been able to take them all," said Schrock, "A lot of them are just calling everybody in town."

"I don't expect it to let up for at least three more days," said Dava Allen, radio dispatcher of Allen & Parson Plumbing and Repair in Midland. "Of course, being in business you don't want relief, but those poor people sure do."

"I've turned away I don't know how many," said Vivian Stamps, radio dispatcher for A-1 Plumbing, Heating and Air Conditioning in Odessa. "I don't have any call times open."

Those with frozen lines can wait for a rise in the temperature, but people with broken lines and flooded homes need professional assistance. Calls from a plumber cost from $35-$50 per hour, stretching family finances further at a time when many are already near their limits.

Because the freeze set in on a holiday weekend, these bills also reflect overtime pay.

"It's chaos. I have never seen anything like this," said Mrs. Allen. In the face of uncommon adversity, homeowners have apparently held up well.

"They've been real good," she said. "Of course, they're getting kind of desperate."

"They know other people out there are in the same situation," said Grant.

Judy Rhodes of Rankin, left, was one of about 300 people exchanging Christmas gifts at Anthony's Tuesday. By agreeing to exchange inappropriate gifts, even those not purchased at an Anthony's store, the chain has come up with a creative alternative to mothballs. Ms. Rhodes is being assisted by Gloria Rainer, manager of the children's department.

Store's gift exchange corrects those goofs which Santa made

By RHONDA RIGENHAGEN
Staff Writer

Nearly everyone receives at least one Christmas gift that isn't quite right:

— A relative who doesn't realize you've grown since the eighth grade.

— A grandmother who thinks you still wear saddle shoes and penny loafers.

— A husband you never told you're no longer a size 7.

— A former next-door neighbor who sent lavender towels for the bathroom you just redecorated in green.

It's not usually feasible to drive 850 miles to exchange a gift, and sometimes it seems inconsiderate to return it to the giver and ask them to do so.

So you've got a choice: You can store it, give it to the needy, give it to someone else as a gift or take it to Anthony's.

Anthony's, at 1020 Andrews Highway, has a gift exchange program which extends the Christmas season through New Year's Eve.

The local store and its approximately 300 sister shops will exchange gifts that are the wrong size, color, style, whatever — even if they weren't purchased at an Anthony's store.

The "Did Santa Goof?" program was begun in 1975, according to manager Joe Harper, and was the brainstorm of a son-in-law of C.R. Anthony.

"Response has always been real good," Harper said, "and people are very appreciative of it. It's designed for out-of-town gifts where it's very, very inconvenient for them to take it back." He said about 300 people came into the store Monday to exchange gifts, many of which had been purchased at other stores.

Customers with an inappropriate gift can bring it to the store, where a clerk determinca its retail value, and swaps it for a similar item of the same value.

"We just try to exchange a top for a top. It's primarily for people who have the wrong size or the wrong color. People who have a king-size sheet for a queen-size bed." Harper said he was unaware of other local stores with a similar program.

The offer only applies to merchandise the store handles — clothing, shoes, linens, etc.

"One guy called up wondering if he could exchange a horse," Harper laughed. "I don't know if he was serious, but we don't sell horses so we told him no."

The store then sells the exchanged item along with its own merchandise. "We've got some merchandise down there I have no idea where it came from," Harper said. "We have merchandise on our floor with just about every tag imaginable."

The program is a service to customers, not a money-making deal, the manager stated.

"We actually lose money on most of these items. Ninety-five percent of the time we sell it for less than what we bought it from the customer for."

Poor border residents shiver through cold snap

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Victor Jara is worried about heating fuel costs this unusually cold winter.

In his concerns, he is not unlike his American counterparts just across the Rio Grande.

But Jara's concerns run from day to day, not month to month, and there is nowhere for his parents and younger brothers to turn if he fails to find money for fuel.

Like most of his neighbors in the poor Colonia Buenavista, Jara doesn't know if he will have the 25 pesos, about 12 cents, needed to buy firewood to keep his family warm when the next arctic blast hits the border later this week.

The residents of Buenavista aren't alone. Conservative estimates place the number of Matamoros families without indoor heating at 100,000, roughly one-third of the city's population.

Throughout town, small fires burned in dirt yards beside one-room frame shacks to ward off the sub-freezing weather of the past week.

Jara said families keep fires burning outdoors and bring coals into the house in a bucket that radiates heat. Many of the city's poorest residents are recent immigrants from the country where they used the same method to keep warm, often burning cactus when wood was in short supply.

Jara said the coals are the only heating source many families have ever known and so people are familiar with the dangers inherent in the system.

Jara's neighbors know how to prevent fires from igniting their tinderbox colonia and ventilation is rarely a problem in their drafty, thin-walled homes. City police report only one death attributable to the cold so far this year and no homes destroyed by fire.

Unlike Brownsville and other Rio Grande Valley cities, Matamoros does not provide any public shelters or other forms of assistance to those suffering from the cold. Instead, there is a sense of community spirit, of neighbor helping neighbor, even though there is little to share.

"It is hard for all of us," Jara said. "But God will provide."

Monday night brought milder temperatures — the low 40s — and relief from the stinging, unrelenting cold of the weekend. Children, wrapped in blankets, joined their papas who gathered around outdoor fires to share jokes and gossip.

Inside, mamas prepared hot coffee for their men.

Around other fires, groups of teen-age boys sipped tequila from paper cups and traded stories about girls.

A few blocks from Buenavista, on the highway to Ciudad Victoria, those who could afford butane heaters were lined up to fill their tanks. About 200 people queued up to buy fuel. Those in line said they had not been able to buy fuel until over the weekend because fuel lines froze Saturday.

Few tourists saw the butane lines or the Buenavista fires or Jara and his brothers. But anyone crossing the International Bridge could see those who suffer most from poverty and the bone-chilling cold.

Wrapped in thin, cotton blankets and carrying babies with runny noses and teary eyes were three "India Marias," begging women dressed in indigenous clothes shuffling between cars.

She was born Dec. 29, 1903 in Kemp and was raised in Forney. She moved in 1936 to Dallas, where her late husband, Kipling E. Yates, was a building contractor. She was a member of Memorial Christian Church. While in Dallas she was a member of Dallas Women's Forum.

Survivors include a son, Fred K. Yates of Midland; and two granddaughters, Janice Yates of Midland and Julie Yates of Nashville.

The family asks that memorials be directed to the building fund of Memorial Christian Church.

Blown-out tire blamed for head-on collision

DEVERS, Texas (AP) — A blown-out tire on a church bus is believed to have caused a head-on collision Friday that killed nine people and injured 14 others east of Houston, authorities said.

A 191-foot scalloped tire mark indicates the left front tire on the bus went down slowly and then blew, causing the vehicle to veer to left into the path of a tractor-trailer rig, investigating Justice of the Peace Ronnie Davis said Tuesday.

The nine fatalities included eight people aboard the bus and the driver of the rig. The accident occurred on Texas Highway 61 about 40 miles east of Houston.

No other skid marks were found, Davis said. Neither the bus nor the truck is believed to have applied any brakes before the collision, investigators said.

Although it will be at least three months before National Transportation Safety Board investigators report their findings, Davis said it appears certain that weather was not a factor.

"The road was straight and narrow and as dry as it could be," he said. "It was cold, but there was no ice."

Autopsy results made available Tuesday indicated both drivers, Walder Edward Odom, 39, of Daisetta, and the Rev. Leo Walters, 56, of Nome, were free of drugs or alcohol.

The bus was carrying members of the Lilly of the Valley Church of Anahuac to another church in Beaumont, 50 miles away, for the last night of a week-long Christmas revival.

Midland lawyer reprimanded by State Bar grievance committee

"If we don't discipline our members, somebody else will," he said.

Killam noted that the committee does not act as an appellate body but deals solely with ethical matters.

"We're not in the business of retrying cases," Killam said. "We're not in the business of telling judges how to run their courts."

If the lawyer-client dispute arises from miscommunications, Killam noted that "Failure to communicate is not a violation."

He said that 40 percent of the grievances handled by the committee are "important cases like this one." The Lowe case was a "clear-cut violation," he said. Sixty percent of the cases are frivolous. "They don't have any basis to them." Some of the latter would include a lawyer not returning a client's telephone call or not asking certain questions which the client might have wished the lawyer to have asked in a court proceeding.

In the reprimand, Killam noted that the grievance committee "finds that no more severe professional discipline is warranted" in Lowe's case.

In the State Bar's 1982-83 year, 15 of Texas' approximately 35,500 lawyers were disbarred for misconduct, according to the State Bar's general counsel in Austin. Ten lawyers resigned, 31 were suspended, 35 received public reprimands and 34 were given private reprimands.

Plumbers profit from freeze

Permian Basin residents are not used to such severe temperatures.

"I never remember it being this bad," said Schrock, who has operated his Odessa company since 1957. "The people here, they're just not insulated well enough to take that kind of cold."

Grant pointed out that fixtures in exterior walls are more likely to freeze because of their proximity to the elements and that water-softening units are often set up in uninsulated garages where the cold can reach them.

"It's just something that people in this part of the country are not used to happening," he said. Better insulation in new homes can help, but pipes can freeze up no matter what precautions are taken, said Grant.

Even as plumbers work to catch up on the backlog of calls facing them, weathermen are predicting another freeze. Unlucky homeowners may be getting another visit from the repair man, even before they've paid their previous bill.

Local family helps relative with prolonged murder trial

With testimony from the expert witnesses, Jim showed the police were wrong in their assumptions. The Los Angeles expert found blood spatters on the carpet leading from the bedroom to the front door and outside.

Jim also attempted to show the woman's constitutional rights had been violated when she gave them a "confession" although no one had read her the Miranda Rights.

When the Thailand embassy was contacted for assistance, they refused, said Jim, and that set off a furor in Thailand. If the embassy officials would have guaranteed the woman wouldn't have left the U.S., she could have been released on bail. Instead, she spent more than a year in a jail with no windows — a facility criticized as a violation of her constitutional rights. During that time, she saw her children rarely, Jim said.

The first trial last July ended in a hung jury with a vote of 8-4, with only four believing she killed in self-defense. The second trial lasted one day in September when a judge declared a mistrial, charging the prosecutor with gross misconduct, according to Jim.

THE THIRD TRIAL lasted four weeks, and that's where Rex and Leon provided the biggest boosts. Both men transported witnesses to and from the courthouse, Leon played chess with the older girl and lost, and Rex kept track of the 200 exhibits.

"It helped a tremendous amount to have my family on my side," said Jim. "They felt very strongly for justice to prevail, that the police were trying to railroad her."

"It was a whole year out of Jim's life that he was involved," said Leon with Rex noting that $20,000 came out of his brother's pocket to pay the expenses involved in the case.

But he's been repaid in friendship from the Thai community around the country. In November, Jim and Mrs. Hampton were honored in Los Angeles.

Jim is still winding down and Mrs. Hampton is adjusting to a single life outside jail. "The first time she was out of jail, she went to a giant shopping center. She said she felt people were staring at her and she wanted to go home and hide. But now she's getting out more."

Jim became emotionally involved with the case. "There were several human lives involved and the future of Nit and her two daughters."

For now, Jim feels he's had his share of criminal work. But he admits it's gotten into his blood. He will take another case "only if I feel right about that client."

Convicted child-killer arrested

VAN HORN (AP) — A man convicted after he failed to appear for trial in the killing of a child earlier this month in Lubbock, was arrested with his common-law wife at a bus station in this Far West Texas town, authorities said.

Lee Roy Orana Licon, 29, of Pecos and Amelia Hernandez, 27, were arrested after a bus they had boarded was forced to return to the terminal after it was involved in an accident.

Licon jumped bail and failed to show for the murder and injury-to-a-child trial Dec. 13 in which his children testified against him.

Lenorah man dies in one-car mishap

From Staff Reports

LAMESA — An elderly Lenorah man died when his vehicle hit a patch of ice and overturned near here about 8:15 a.m. Tuesday.

Pronounced dead at the scene by Dawson County Justice of the Peace Fred Dera was 68-year-old Garth Steel Odom.

According to the Department of Public Safety, Odom was northbound on U.S. 87 about 10 miles north of Lamesa when his 1982 GMC Suburban hit an icy spot in the road and rolled over, throwing him from the vehicle.

Two unidentified passengers escaped injury. A light rain had fallen and a DPS spokeswoman said troopers worked several accidents in the area.

Odom's body was taken to the Brannon Funeral Home in Lamesa.

THFC OKs homes' applications

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Health Facilities Commission has approved three applications involving nursing homes in Midland and Odessa.

Terrace West Nursing Center, 2800 N. Midland Drive, was granted permission to reclassify 24 of 150 existing beds to skilled nursing care.

Four Seasons Nursing Center of Odessa was granted authority to reclassify 56 of 114 beds to skilled care, and Deerings West Nursing Center, also of Odessa, was given permission to reclassify 22 of 150 beds to skilled care.

Convicted murderer paroled

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A woman convicted of murder in West Texas has been released from prison on parole, according to the Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Helen Beck, convicted in Ector County on July 17, 1972, of murder with malice, was paroled to Ector County after serving and earning 31 years of a 75-year sentence.

Power supply situation stabilizes

From Staff Reports

Although operations are not entirely back in order, the electric power supply situation in the area has stabilized and voluntary curtailment of electricity by customers is no longer necessary, according to a spokesman for Texas Electric Service Co.

Even with the improved situation, customers are urged to continue good conservation practices in their use of power, said C.W. Barclay.

"We want to thank our customers and the media for their cooperation during the past few days," he said. "If additional severe weather conditions bring a change in the supply situation, we may again need to ask for your help."

Residence burglarized, flooded

From Staff Reports

In theft and burglary complaints to city police in the past 24 hours, Rivie Sullivan of 1602 English Drive said a TV set, stereo equipment, 15 pounds of assorted meats and an electric typewriter worth a total of $597 were taken from her residence sometime Monday.

Also, a faucet had been turned on and the kitchen was flooded when she returned home. Entry was gained through the bathroom window, according to police.

In a theft complaint, Catherine Osbourne of 5104 San Antonio told officers a $2,000 diamond ring was taken from her home sometime over the weekend.

In another theft complaint, Bill Joyce of 806 Boyd reported the disappearance of a $750 pearl necklace.

Workers at the Lee Gandy Farm near La Feria, west of Harlingen, load freshly picked oranges onto a truck for shipment to a processing plant where the oranges will be used for juice. The Valley's fresh orange crop was ruined by the record cold Christmas Eve.

Juice plants double crews to process frozen oranges

HARLINGEN (AP) — Rio Grande Valley juice processors will be accepting only oranges and have not yet decided whether any grapefruit should be salvaged for juice from the $30 million fresh fruit crop destroyed by the weekend freeze.

Juice plants have hired temporary workers to double their crews and allow "round-the-clock" processing of oranges for the next three to four weeks.

All three Texas plants — TexSun, Texas Citrus Exchange and Texas Citrus Growers — will be working at top speed to convert fresh oranges to concentrate, canned and packaged juice, according the John Stone, vice president of TexSun Corp., the largest of the processors.

Stone said his company will work "round-the-clock, 21 hours each day" with an extra 250 temporary workers assisting the full-time crew of 350.

Managers of the Texas Citrus Exchange plant met Tuesday morning to set priorities for accepting the hundreds of tons of fruit that will be harvested at a frantic pace as growers try to keep what is left of their crops from spoiling.

"Our immediate priority is to process early oranges that are already at the mature stage," said Joel Wilshire of the Exchange, a cooperative representing 2,800 citrus growers.

He said testing of "late orange," varieties was completed yesterday and showed the fruit is "good enough in quality to bring in for juice."

The immature fruit will be blended with the peak citrus for a marketable product.

TexSun and the Exchange plants will process about 90 percent of the Valley oranges at a rate of 7.6 million pounds per day. An estimated 14 million pounds of oranges will need to be processed as quickly as possible.

Stone said his company will be issuing daily quotas to harvesters in an attempt to avoid repeating a mistake make during the 1979 freeze. He said a great deal of fruit rotted in trucks that year while waiting to be processed.

"There is no sense in growers paying for picking, hauling and harvesting if they can't sell their fruit. We are going to try to schedule this properly," Stone said.

Texas processors sold about $70 million worth of citrus juice last year, 10 percent of the total domestic juice market. California holds another 10 percent, with Florida dominating 80 percent of the market and controlling consumer prices as a result.

Stone predicted that Florida, while suffering a minimal loss so far, will take advantage of the destruction in Texas to raise consumer prices for all juice.

Stone said no decision has yet been made on how much grapefruit to process for juice.

All three plants have an 18 month inventory of grapefruit juice on hand as a result of stockpiling during the last freeze. Excess supply means lower prices to growers and processors, "and grapefruit, fresh and juice, has been selling in stores at giveaway prices for the last year or so," Stone said.

He said growers in the next two weeks will be evaluating tree loss from the freeze and its impact on next year's crop. Processors will then decide how much of this year's grapefruit they can convert to juice without undermining prices to growers in 1984.

Chemical plant fire releases toxic gases

HOUSTON (AP) — Toxic gases produced by a four-alarm fire at a northwest Harris County chemical plant forced a shopping center to close early and prompted officials to evacuate residents living within three miles of the plant.

The blaze broke out at about 5:30 p.m. Tuesday after a series of explosions at the CSA Chemical Co. plant, which manufactures WD-40 lubricant, hairspray and insecticide.

"One building went up," said a witness, Pat Collins, who was working nearby. "Then about 5 minutes later another building went up. Then about 15 minutes later another building went completely up. It looked like an atom bomb going off."

Most residents were allowed to return to their homes by 8 p.m. The blaze was contained within two hours, but firefighters stayed at the scene through the night, officials said.

No serious injuries were reported, but a company official who would not identify himself told the Houston Chronicle, "The entire plant is gone."

Northwest Volunteer Fire Department spokesman H.E. Womack said the blaze was fed by gas escaping from butane and propane tanks. More than a dozen fire trucks from eight departments in the area sprayed water on nearby tanks in the plant to prevent explosions.

"There are some chemical tanks nearby that could explode if they became overheated," said Womack.

He said firefighters were permitting the butane and propane fires to burn themselves out and were concentrating on keeping other chemical facilities cool.

Womack said officials ordered the evacuation of an apartment complex housing 300 to 400 residents, and closed Willowbrook Mall, a large shopping center. Residents of other nearby neighborhoods were told it would be a good idea to leave, but officials said they did not know how many evacuated the area.

FM Road 149, a major thoroughfare in the area, was blocked for about two hours and motorists were routed around the fire, he said.

The evacuations were ordered, said Womack, because of the fear of dangerous fumes escaping from the plant.

Water pressure had been a problem throughout the Houston area all day because of bursting water pipes frozen by a record cold wave.

Pastor angry over fire ruling

HOUSTON (AP) — The pastor of the First United Methodist Church reacted angrily to fire investigators ruling that the fire that heavily damaged the sanctuary was caused by three candles mistakenly left burning in the sanctuary.

"The arson squad is going to have to look more carefully, because I know it was not caused by a candle," the Rev. Dr. William H. Hinson said late Tuesday.

The pre-dawn fire at the 12,600-member church, the world's largest United Methodist church, did heavy damage to the 73-year-old structure.

Hinson said the candles could not have started the fire because he said they have never been lighted.

But Houston Fire Department senior arson investigator Bill Sammons said his ruling is final "unless somebody shows me something new."

He said he believes the candles touched off a slow-burning fire that caused a buildup of flammable carbon monoxide gas. The gas, he said, apparently caused the explosion that ripped through the building about 3 a.m. Tuesday, seriously damaging a "irreplaceable" stained glass window.

The explosion and fire also destroyed one of three balconies in the spacious sanctuary and demolished a small chapel adjoining the sanctuary.

Murder conviction overturned

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An appeals court has overturned the murder conviction of Harvey Wayne Turner, saying there was insufficient evidence for the verdict reached by a state court jury in Weatherford, Texas.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, in a 2-1 opinion Tuesday, also said Turner may not be tried again.

Turner was convicted of murder in 1976 after Parker County deputies discovered the decomposing body of Clifford Carr in an abandoned shack. He had been killed by a shotgun blast in the head.

Investigators said Carr was last seen alive in early November 1975 with Turner and Milton Crow. Turner was located in a Denver jail and returned to Texas.

Turner said in a statement that he waited in the car while Crow, who carred a .38 caliber pistol and a shotgun, and Carr, who had a .22 caliber rifle, poked around the cabin looking for junk to use as targets. He said Crow returned alone and said Carr was not going back with them.

The 5th circuit said that if the jury regarded Turner's statement about the shooting as true there was not enough evidence to convict, and if the jury did not believe the statement there was no evidence at all.

When arrested, Turner had some of Carr's personal belongings in his possession, plus Crow's car. He said he got into an argument with Crow in Denver one day, made him get out of the car and had not seen him since. Later, he said Crow was dead.

Texas is Conoco Country.
Part IV
It takes more than quality products to make Conoco the Hottest Brand Going in Texas. It also takes representatives like the 109 independent jobbers who distribute our products to motorists, farmers, ranchers, and businesses throughout the state. (Jobbers are local businessmen who own storage facilities and tank trucks. Many operate their own retail gasoline facilities as well as distribute to other retail dealers.) Last year our jobbers sold 230 million gallons of motor fuel, lubricants, greases, and other petroleum products in Texas.
What makes our jobbers special? For one thing, they handle virtually all of Conoco's retail business in Texas. For another, our ties with many of these good people go back not just decades, but generations. They are truly members of the Conoco family.
When they aren't busy selling Conoco products, you'll often find our jobbers busy in other ways in their communities—as members of local government, school boards, and charitable organizations. In other words, they are good citizens and neighbors as well as good businessmen.
We depend on jobbers for our success. In the Midland-Odessa area, our winning Conoco team consists of jobbers Doug Grimes, J.E. McLain, Preston Grissom, Albert Hester, Chester Kesey, and Troy Sampley.
That's why we say with pride: Texas is Conoco Country.

Another arctic front plunges into Texas

By The Associated Press

A record cold spell kept its grip on Texas as another arctic front plunged into the state this morning, spreading snow from the Panhandle as far south as the Permian Basin by dawn.

Temperatures had risen just high enough Tuesday to trigger a flood of calls to plumbers and utility companies as frozen water pipes warmed and then shattered across the state.

Readings this morning dipped into the teens in the Panhandle and into the 20s over the rest of the northern half of the state. Accumulations of snow were expected to reach 6 inches along the Red River and 4 inches in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

The snow was expected to reach into East Texas as far as Lufkin Tuesday evening.

Ahead of the front and along the coastal plains and in far South Texas dense fog lowered visibilities to near zero.

At 6 a.m., it was 13 degrees at Amarillo, 27 at Midland, 25 at Wichita Falls, 28 at Dallas, 47 at Houston, 36 at San Antonio and 55 at Brownsville.

On Tuesday, the problem was water rather than ice. Many Texans who still had water service were plagued by low pressure because of bursting mains elsewhere.

Hospitals in Houston turned away patients who did not have life-threatening conditions and limited surgery to emergency cases only.

Some health clinics in the bayou city closed because of lack of water and/or heat.

"We are basically without (city) water," a spokesman at Spring Branch Memorial Hospital told the Houston Chronicle. "We have brought in distilled water and have contacted the city and Civil Defense about our problems. It's a lot like the situation during the hurricane."

The backlog of broken water pipes continued to mount in Lubbock even though repair crews had never even taken off for Christmas.

"We've had 1,744 calls since Saturday," said Marjorie Lishman, water and sewer administrative assistant. "We're getting about four calls per minute."

About 600 families in Fort Worth were without running water for more than two days. City water lines broke faster than city crews and private contractors could repair them.

"We know how the pioneers must have felt," said Billy W. Poole, whose family has had no water since early Christmas morning. "I can't wait until I can take a hot shower again because I miss that most of all."

Dallas detective James Hobbs said the cold weather was a windfall for auto thieves because motorists were leaving their cars unattended and running.

A travelers' advisory was issued Tuesday for most of the Panhandle because of icy roads. The weather service said Interstate 40 east of Amarillo to the Oklahoma border was "ice-covered and very slick."

A travelers' advisory for North Texas remained in effect for today because of ice and patchy dense fog, and a Tuesday night advisory was posted for Galveston and Chambers County because of dense fog.

Rain moving into the north central area of the state, where temperatures were back below freezing, was already causing hazardous conditions on some roads as of 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Well-known musicians have roots in West Texas oil patch

RANKIN (AP) — A pinch of Tennesee music, sifted through the hands of retired Rankin oilfield worker E.W. "Waylon" Seals, got three of Seals' sons on the music business track.

Two internationally known musical groups, Seals and Crofts and England Dan and John Ford Coley, have their roots in the West Texas oil patch.

Waylon Seals came to Texas in 1919 with his parents, Fred and Eunice Seals, "because there was work in the oil fields." The family's musical talents were saved for evenings on the porch at Rankin. Playing music was a kind of relief from the back-breaking oil patch labor.

Like most country music success stories, the Seals' story revolves around music learned in the home.

"My dad was a banjo man when he lived back in Big Sandy — that's in Benton County, Tenn.," said the 71-year-old Waylon Seals. "He taught me what I know about music. My boys learned from us and taught themselves."

Danny Seals, at 35 the youngest of those three sons, was born at McCamey in 1948. He lives today in Hendersonville, Tenn.

Dubbed "England Dan" at the beginning of his musical career by his older brother Jim, Danny Seals teamed with Dallas musician Coley and the match lasted for 15 years. The duo's list of hits recorded during the 1970s is impressive.

Jim Seals, who now lives in Costa Rica, was born in Comanche County at Sidney on Oct. 17, 1942. He began playing music at the age of 4 and, by high school, played several instruments well.

JIM SEALS AND his musical partner Dash Crofts, of Cisco, met in junior high school. They released their first album in 1968. Since then, six of 12 albums went gold (sold 500,000 copies), and three went platinum (sold 1 million copies).

Eddie Ray Seals was born in 1934 at Gorman. Waylon Seals and his wife were living at Iraan, where Waylon Seals and his father had found work in the oilfield.

Eddie Ray Seals, the only one of Waylon Seals' three boys who doesn't count on music for his living, will be 50 next year. While his livelihood comes from his work as a real estate investor in his home town of Hendersonville, Tenn., he still plays music regularly.

Waylon Seals still loves to play music, but arthritis makes fretting his favorite old Gibson six-string flattop harder than before.

"I still play guitar, but just enough to get along," said Waylon Seals, his thinning hair still jet black and cropped in a burr.

"I'm not near as slick as I used to be. But it's like riding a bicycle. You always remember how to stay on the thing, once you learn, but as you get older, you just can't pedal as fast.

"That oldest boy of mine, Eddie Ray, he can flat play a guitar. He's always done his own show, up in Dallas, out in Las Vegas or now in Nashville," said his father.

"Jim won the state fiddle championship when he was 9 years old," Waylon Seals said during a recent chat at his kitchen table.

"THEY WOULDN'T LET Jim play saxophone in the Rankin High School Band because he couldn't read music," said Waylon Seals, but Jim Seals played his self-taught sax well enough in 1958 that country music legend Gene Autrey, who heard the boy at age 15 on an audition tape, sent his promoter to Big Lake to sign Jim Seals to a contract with "The Champs," Autrey's band.

"Then, the youngest, Danny, used to play a big ol' bull fiddle with the rest of us, (Waylon Seals, Jim Seals and Crofts).

"We all played on a television show one time in the '50s and people in the audience got the biggest kick out of watching Danny. He was so little that he'd have to jump clean off his feet to reach some of them low notes way up on that fiddle neck. He was only 4 or 5 years old then," Waylon Seals recalled with a chuckle.

Waylon Seals and his mother Eunice, 89 and a widow since 1964, live together in a modest frame house in the middle of Rankin. It's the house his three boys left and, said Mrs. Seals, it's the place they like to come home to. The pair has lived there for more than 25 years, said Waylon Seals.

Though the sons are spread all over the country, Seals counts himself lucky to have them. He keeps careful track of their successes and when visitors call at the Seals home, music and the boys are the topics of conversation.

"I had an old Gibson guitar with red rosewood sides and a yellow sunburst top. My daddy gave it to me in the '30s," Waylon Seals recalled. "I wore it out, had it fixed and wore it out again and had it fixed again. Then I gave it to Eddie Ray. He still has it, and he still plays it, too.

"WHEN JIM WAS in school here at Rankin, he came home one day and told me all of the new bands in Abilene were using saxophone players. He never had a music lesson in his life, but we went out and got him one of those horns. He sat right down and taught himself how to play it. I swear that boy could play anything he wanted to," said Waylon Seals.

"Now Danny's got two real nice Martin 12-string guitars over there in Hendersonville. That's the one with the real long neck — 'bout as long as a well rope. 'Course, it's been a while since them bull fiddle days and Danny's arm's 'bout as long as a well rope, too — now."

The three boys and their father still play a tune or two when they get together.

"Last Christmas, Waylon and Jim sat around here playing guitar," Mrs. Seals recalled. "Seems like they were pretty good, too."

One of Waylon Seals' biggest fears is that real country music won't be preserved forever.

"Oh, there's good musicians and good groups around these days, but they just don't play real country music on the radio like they used to," said Waylon Seals.

From across the kitchen table, his son Jim Seals piped up: "It's air play, Dad," he said, explaining certain types of music are given more broadcast time in some areas than in others. "They play it on the radio somewhere, just not here in Rankin," he said.

Mexican border bars fight new law

NUEVO LAREDO, Mexico (AP) — Bar owners are up in arms about a new state law that is part of a national campaign to discourage drinking and smoking.

The Nuevo Laredo Bar Owners Association is asking a court to extend a temporary injunction that expires Dec. 31 which has stopped the state from forcing them to close on weekends.

The new Tamaulipas Law of Alcoholic Beverages was passed in July 1982, but has not been enforced because of a series of legal challenges by border businessmen.

The injunction has been in effect since September. The new law calls for bars to operate from 10 a.m. to midnight Monday through Friday, but close all day Saturday and Sunday.

Red light district bars and tourist-oriented clubs and restaurants that bring in foreign currency are exempt.

Downtown bar owners maintain that their businesses are also sources of foreign revenue. But the state does not agree and forced the bars to close for two consecutive weekends before the injunction was obtained.

ENTERTAINING IN THE EIGHTIES-CASUAL, YET ELEGANT

Entertaining seems especially appropriate during the winter months when many occasions bring family and friends together. But with so much to do and so little time to do it, entertainers of the eighties need to find ways to plan, prepare and host a party using as little time as possible. The key is to choose foods that can be prepared in advance, will hold up without a lot of fuss and will satisfy the varied tastes of the guests. Buffets are the perfect answer — they're easy on hosts and give guests a nice choice — whether nibbling or enjoying a full meal.

Since time has a way of slipping by (especially during the busy holiday season), look for shortcuts when choosing a buffet menu. Have a local caterer, restaurant or supermarket deli prepare the buffet entree. It can be as simple and delicious as a honey-baked ham or roast, sliced thin and serve au natural. Then you'll have more time to plan and prepare side dishes that will turn your buffet into an extraordinary dining experience.

Party foods are only as good as their ingredients, so look for special items that will delight your guests' tastes...crunchy golden pecans and creamy smooth avocados, both readily available for fine winter dining.

Pecans have long been a welcome addition to traditional dishes. But today there's hardly a style of cooking or recipe (from pies to vegetable salads) where pecans aren't an asset. When stored properly, this nut will hold its freshness for up to two years. This means you can purchase pecans when the price is best and savor them in your favorite recipes all year long.

When planning a buffet menu, look to the refrigerator first. Turn leftover turkey into a delicious Turkey Treasure Salad by teaming it up with such colorful gems as pecans, avocado cubes, oranges and raisins, all spiced with a curried yogurt dressing.

During a party, a good host should tend to the guests, not the food. Festive Pecan Pinwheels can be prepared one or two days ahead and put out on the buffet table just before the guests arrive. A zippy cream cheese mixture with crunchy pecans, bacon bits and fresh parsley is spread onto pumpernickel bread slices, rolled and chilled, then sliced into pinwheels and served.

Brandied Pecan Spread, with its rich pungent flavor, will hold its molded shape beautifully for guests to enjoy.

For true aesthetics, emerald green Dilly Avocado Dip served in hollowed out cherry tomato shells and topped with pecan halves will add stunning color and a cool, fresh flavor, to any buffet table.

Spend this winter's festivities in the casual style of the eighties...with good friends and family, delicious food and plenty of time to enjoy it all.

TURKEY TREASURE SALAD

2 avocados, seeded peeled and cubed
2 cups diced cooked, turkey or chicken
2 oranges, peeled sectioned, cut into bite-sized pieces
1/2 cup chopped pecans
1/2 cup raisins
Curry dressing, recipe follows

Combine avocado, turkey, orange pieces, pecans and raisins in large bowl. Stir in curry dressing; toss until well coated. Serve in a salad bowl lined with leaf lettuce or line individual salad plates with leaf lettuce or fresh spinach and spoon salad over. Makes 16 appetizer servings.

Curry Dressing:
1/2 cup sour cream
1/4 cup plain low-fat yogurt
2 tablespoons orange juice concentrate
1 1/4 teaspoons curry powder

Thoroughly blend all ingredients together.

FESTIVE PECAN PINWHEELS

1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese
2 cups minced fresh parsley
1/2 cup ground pecans
5 strips bacon, fried crisp and crumbled
1 tablespoon mayonnaise
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/8 teaspoon garlic powder
3 dashes hot pepper sauce
1 loaf (1 lb.) pumpernickel or dark bread, sliced lengthwise

Mix together all ingredients except bread; set aside. Remove and discard crusts from long slices; flatten each by rolling it with a rolling pin. Spread flattened slices with cream cheese filling. Roll slices jelly roll fashion and wrap each in plastic wrap, twisting ends to secure. Refrigerate or freeze rolls for several hours or until firm enough to slice. Slice each into 8 rounds and serve. Makes 56 appetizers.

BRANDIED PECAN BREAD

1 cup chopped dried fruit
1/3 cup brandy
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
1 8-oz. pkg. and 1 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese, softened
8 tblsp. (1 stick) butter or margarine, softened
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup sour cream grated rind of 2 lemons
1 cup chopped pecans
Assorted small cookies

Pour brandy over dried fruit in small bowl; cover and refrigerate several hours or overnight. Dissolve gelatin in cold water set over a pan of hot water. Place dissolved gelatin, cream cheese, butter, sugar, sour cream and lemon rind in blender jar; whirl until smooth. Add marinated fruit to cheese mixture along with pecans. Mix well. Pour mixture onto an oiled 1-quart mold; chill several hours until firm. Unmold and serve with small cookies.

DILLY AVOCADO-STUFFED TOMATOES

40 cherry tomatoes
2 soft avocados, seeded and peeled
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1/3 cup plain low-fat yogurt
2 green onions and tops, minced
1 teaspoon dill weed
40 pecan halves

Cut tops off cherry tomatoes; remove pulp inside and discard. Slice small section off bottom to keep tomatoes from rolling. Chill shells. Meanwhile, mash avocado with lemon juice; add remaining ingredients except pecan halves. Gently spoon mixture into chilled cherry tomato shells. Top each with a pecan half. Makes 40 appetizers.

NOTE: Avocado mixture may be served as a dip with a wreath of fresh vegetables. To make wreath, place whole romaine or butter lettuce leaves on large round serving tray in a circular design. Create color splashes of red, white and green by arranging clusters of fresh vegetables such as cauliflowerets, broccoli flowers, cherry tomatoes, mushrooms, green pepper strips or rings, radishes, cucumber slices, julienned jicama and celery chunks over lettuce.

FROZEN AVOCADO PECAN MOLD

1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
1 cup sour cream
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 avocado, seeded, peeled and cubed
1 grapefruit, peeled, sectioned and cut into bite-size pieces
1 orange, peeled, sectioned and cut into bite-size pieces
1/2 cup chopped pecans

Blend together cream cheese, sour cream, sugar and salt in large bowl. Add avocado, grapefruit, orange and pecans; stir gently to mix. Pour cream cheese mixture into 9x5x3-inch loaf pan; freeze just until firm. Let stand at room temperature a few minutes to soften slightly, if necessary. Cut into slices just before serving. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

AVOCADO PECAN BREAD

2 cups all-purpose flour
3/4 cup sugar
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 lg. avocado (1 cup), seeded, peeled and mashed
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/2 cup buttermilk
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/2 cup coarsely chopped pecans

Mix together flour, sugar, orange rind, baking soda, baking powder, cinnamon and salt in a large mixing bowl. Add avocado, egg, buttermilk and lemon juice; stir until thoroughly mixed. Stir in pecans. Pour into well-greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Bake in 350-F. oven 50 to 60 minutes or until a wooden pick inserted near the center of the bread comes out clean. Allow bread to cool 10 minutes

MIDLAND PUBLIC WORKS and Parks and Recreation Departments will allow disposal of Christmas trees in special city park areas.

These parks are the Kiwanis, Grafa, Doug Russell, Ulmer, Halff, Washington, Sparks, Sidwell, Hill and Henderson.

Trees should be dropped off in those parks under the park sign.

Those who cannot deliver trees to those parks are asked to cut them into three pieces and dispose of them in their home dumpsters.

...PARENTS WITHOUT PARTNERS will have a progressive dinner Friday. Call 685-0804 for more information...

...CITY—WIDE CONTEST to redesign the city parks signs is in its final week. All entries must be submitted on 8½ inch by 11 inch regular bond paper to the Parks and Recreation Department by January 3.

The contest is divided into three categories: non-professionals up to 15 years old, non-professionals 15 years older and older and professional for draftsmen, designers, architects, etc.

Each of the three category winners will receive a $100 gift certificate and the final winner will receive a $300 gift certificate.

For more information call the Parks and Recreation Department at 683-4281...

...MIDLAND ARTS ASSEMBLY has published a new booklet of local artists.

The Artist Registry includes a listing of both performing and visual artists, their addresses and telephone numbers. A variety of artists are included.

The free publication is available at the Midland Chamber of Commerce Building.

Artists who want to be included in the next edition should contact the assembly at 687-1149.

Publication of the registry is funded through a portion of the local hotel-motel tax.

The organization's primary purpose is to foster the arts in Midland...

...MIDLAND PARKS AND RECREATION DEPARTMENT is sponsoring a ski trip to Red River, N. M. over the Washington's Birthday weekend, Feb. 17-20.

The group will stay at the Alpine Lodge. There are various skier and non-skier packages available.

To sign up for the trip stop by the Parks and Recreation office at 300 Baldwin or call 683-4281, extension -316. Deadline to sign up for the trip is Jan. 3.

...CAKE DECORATING CLASS will be taught by Brenda Doden for ten weeks beginning January 3.

The class will meet 7:30—9:30 p.m. every Tuesday and the fee will be $25, due at the second class meeting.

The first class meeting will be an organizational meeting to tell about the class.

For more information call the Parks and Recreation Department at 683-4281...

...WOMAN TIME MANAGEMENT will be offered Jan. 24 and 26 from 9:30 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. at First Christian Church.

The course covers daily planning, closet and kitchen organization, financial record keeping, teaching children to be time-savers rather than time-robbers etc.

The $35 cost includes a workbook. For further information call 697-2054 or 694-3366...

...IF YOUR CAR BREAKS DOWN what's the safest thing for you to do? Place a "Please Call Police" banner in the rear window of your car.

If someone stops to help, give them a phone number to call or ask them to call police, do not get out of your car.

The "Please Call Police" banners are self-adhesive with large bright pink lettering that is easily seen.

The banners are available through the Midland Rape Crisis Center for a small donation. Call 682-7273 for information...

...NO ONE SHOULD go hungry or be without clothing this winter in Midland.

Bring your spare food and clothing to 1507 West Kentucky, or call "Smokey Joe" at 694-6311. It's better to give than to receive...

...THERE WILL BE no Story Hour at the Midland County Public Library until Jan. 3, 1984.

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year from the Junior Woman's Club, sponsor of Story Hour...

...MIDLAND SENIOR CENTER, 2500 Delano Ave., will hold dancing at 7 p.m. Friday...

...THE INVESTMENT FORUM of the American Association of University Women will meet at 1 p.m. Jan. 5 at the Midland County Public Library, 301 West Missouri.

Tannie Pate, assistant director and business librarian, will speak on the investment services and resources available at the public library.

The meeting will be held in the library's business department located on the second floor. The public is invited to attend.

Encyclopedias gifts to families, girl's ranch

High Sky Girl's Ranch and 10 Midland and Odessa families received gifts of sets of encyclopedias valued at over $5,000 this Christmas.

World Book-Childcraft International Inc. delivered $2.5 million worth of encyclopedias to 6,000 families and groups around the country.

The holiday gift-giving program sponsored by the encyclopedia company works with local non-profit organizations and sales representatives as part of its on-going commitment to broaden educational horizons for children of all back grounds, according to Dorothy Mueller, district manager.

"We have worked through churches and non-profit organizations to select families who need home reference material but are unable to afford them," Mrs. Mueller said.

Local churches and organizations in Midland which assisted the company were St. Ann's Catholic Church, Emmanuel Baptist Church, Macedonia Baptist Church, High Sky Girl's Ranch, Alpha Kappa Alpha amd Delta Zeta sororities.

Mature wine tasty present

By The Los Angeles Times—Washington Post News Service

An expression of good taste can be nicely articulated by the gift of a fine bottle of wine. To find such a bottle is neither hard nor easy, but simply a matter of selecting a bottle that you have previously tasted. It is a personal gift perfect for any celebration.

While there are endless choices — pink, red, white, sparkling and dessert wines — the best choice always is a bottle that is mature and ready to drink.

True, the taste of maturity is likely to be more expensive than that of assertive youthful promise. That is why some selections can be less costly if they require a bit more aging. The best candidates are sparkling wines. Even expensive French Champagne is generally ready for drinking, although some tasters may prefer additional aging.

A new French Champagne from the vintage of '78 is especially interesting. Jacquart is making its American debut as a big-bodied Brut with fullness in the mouth, yet providing an excellent dry crisp finish. This is a bigger style than most well-known marques, yet can easily make it at the table.

Better yet is Jacquart's Brut, rose Champagne that is 100 percent Pinot Noir and is less ponderous, more complex and crisp than its sister white Champagne. Drinking a new, well-made French Champagne is always an exciting experience.

Also exciting are older California reds and whites. Cabernet Sauvignon is especially plentiful with good bottles from the '60s and '70s: Beaulieu Private Reserve 1965, 1966, 1967, 1968, 1969, 1970, 1971, 1973 and 1974. At $125, the 1968 is an excellent wine. The 1970 at $85 is equally good and is just beginning to come around.

Louis Martini Special Selection Cabernets are also good bets, such as 1964 at $65 and 1968 Special Selection, Lot 1, $35; Lot 2, $25; Lot 3, $35; Lot 4, $40; Lot 5, $35.

A number of California Cabernets of the 1974 vintage are beginning to show well, such as Caymus at $55, Mayacamas (magnum) at $95, Robert Mondavi Reserve, $60. Zinfandel is also a good choice from the vintage of 1974, especially Joseph Swan, $35, Ridge Fiddletown, $20, and Fetzer Ricetti, $18. Pinot Noir is also available such as Chalone '74, $45, and Joseph Swan, '74 at $45.

Do not be afraid to give older Chardonnay, as these wines can be even more mature and complex than reds of the same age. Try Mayacamas 1976, $25; Chalone, $30, and Grgich Hills 1977, $45.

Older red Bordeaux is a sound idea if pocketbook permits. Who could refuse such '61s as Chateaux Calon Segun, $65; Talbot, $70; Pape Clement, $80; Leoville Barton, $80; Margaux and Cheval Blanc at $200.

For the vintage Port collector, an older bottle is like manna from heaven. Try '63 Fonseca, Warre, or Dow at around $30 each or '63 Taylor at $40. The super '45s, Graham and Croft, are about $125 while Taylor '45 is about $200.

Non-vintage ports, of course, are less costly and generally ready to drink such as Dow (Ruby) at $5, a Dow (Tawny) at the same price, Warre's Nimrod at $9 and Fonseca (Tawny) at $4.99.

Fine vintage German Mosels are available. A half bottle (at a lower-than-fifth price, of course) is a most acceptable gift. Good examples are Kasseler, Nieschen Beerenaus lese, Reichsgraf, Von Kesselstatt 1976, all about $30; and Josefshofer, Trockenbeerenauslese, Reichsgraf von Kesselstatt 1976, all about $50.

If you are looking for the ultimate, try an aged Armagnac. Armagnac, from the land of D'Artagnan, is, indeed, rare if from an older vintage. Armagnac de Montal, a long-respected name, offers the 1939 at $135. In smaller quantity and much harder to find is 1904 at $900 and 1893 at $1,150. Be sure to add appropriate brandy snifters to your gift and a note explaining the difference between Cognac and Armagnac, which may be fuller bodied, stronger and less mellow.

Keep in mind that wine gifts do not have to be expensive, just simply well selected and at the point of nearly-ready-to-drink maturity. A personal note with your taste description as you experienced it should accompany the bottle.

DEAR ABBY

Host serves booze, responsible for guests

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR READERS: Are you entertaining for the holidays? Whether you are having just a few friends over, or a houseful, if you plan to serve alcoholic beverages, here are a few timely suggestions:

Many folks (more than you think) prefer something non-alcoholic, so let your guests know that soft drinks, iced tea, fruit and vegetable juices are available, and give them a choice. (It's cheaper, too.)

Always serve something to nibble on with cocktails. (Food retards the flow of alcohol into the bloodstream.)

Don't serve alcoholic drinks in king-sized glasses. They hold too much.

Never "load" drinks or force "just one more" on anyone. That kind of generosity does no one a favor.

White wine (a favorite these days) tends to go down more easily, so people are apt to consume more wine than liquor, but be aware that wine is no less intoxicating. And don't sell beer short as an intoxicant, either.

This is to allow the guests who have a buzz on time to sober up before they buzz off.

If a guest shows any signs of intoxication, DO NOT LET HIM DRIVE HOME! Call a taxi or drive him home yourself. Or insist that he stay all night. (Better your sofa, or even your floor, than a hospital bed – or heaven forbid, the morgue.)

I want to emphatically state that everyone does not have the same tolerance level for alcohol, so the best rule to follow is: If you drink, don't drive, and if you drive, don't drink. – ABBY

California man once killed snails, now cultivates them

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — To most Californians, snails are a darn nuisance. To Ralph W. Tucker, they are a meal ticket.

The 66-year-old retired insurance agent raises escargots for gourmet dining, but once considered the soft-shelled mollusks an aggravation, too.

That was until he paid $12.50 for a dozen escargots at a dinner with his wife, Christine, at a Hawaiian restaurant 2½ years ago.

" 'That does it,' I said to Christine." The Fresno resident vowed, "I'll never kill another snail. We'll eat them."

Tucker contacted a snail grower in Santa Rosa and set up a mini-ranch in his back yard using garden variety pests that had infiltrated his vegetable patch.

"There's not much information on raising snails but plenty on doing them in," he said. "I never have used pesticides, so we started the snail business with a clean bill of health."

His cultivation equipment consists of three growing chambers — halves of oaken barrels filled with rich organic soil and covered with window screening.

One is a snail nursery, the second is for growing adults and the third is a fasting room for snails about to become an edible delicacy.

"What with all the good cornmeal, wheat bran and broccoli and parsnips tops in the feeding barrel, those happy snails can't crawl out of the garden fast enough," Tucker said. "There's not a snail in my vegetable patch."

Snails lay 50 eggs that hatch in 10-20 days. They cleanse their flesh for two months in the feeding barrel and spend their final 24 hours without food and water.

"These snails are cleaner than beef or pork. I know everything they've eaten," he said. "Now look at these babies on the agapanthus leaf. They just love agapanthus in the nursery."

Tucker parboils adult escargots in a large pot of salted water for three minutes and removes them from their shells with an elongated seafood fork. They are then ready for freezing or more cooking.

Tucker simmers shelled snails for one-half hour in water with a touch of lemon juice, changing the liquid three times.

Seeking a suitable clientele for his snails, Tucker wrote some of the nation's most honored chefs to tell them about his enterprise and to ask for their favorite escargots recipes.

Red cabbage boiled

RED CABBAGE

3 tablespoons butter
1 head (1¾ pounds) red cabbage, shredded
1 medium onion, quartered and thinly sliced
2 large Granny Smith apples, pared and sliced
½ cup orange marmalade
⅓ cup cider vinegar
¼ cup water
¾ teaspoon salt

In a 5-quart saucepot melt butter; add cabbage, onion, apple, marmalade, vinegar, water and salt; stir well. Bring to a boil; cover tightly and simmer, stirring occasionally, until cabbage is tender-crisp — about 45 minutes. Makes 7 cups. —(AP)

Leftovers stretch food bill

By The Los AngelesTimes-Washington Post News Service

This is the day that always comes. The day you try to make order out of the leftovers from the holidays. A harrowing task indeed, but there are solutions.

If you have some odd bits and pieces of turkey that really are useful only for salad or for adding to a cream sauce, cover them with a small amount of the turkey broth before freezing and they will stay fresher and be less dry when you finally get around to using them.

Leftover turkey recipes abound. But good leftover turkey recipes are not necessarily prevalent. Here are some interesting and somewhat different ideas on returning the turkey to the table in an appetizing fashion.

TURKEY AND PASTA CASSEROLE

5 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ pound mushrooms, sliced
2 cups leftover turkey gravy
1 cup sour cream
1 tablespoon dill weed
3 cups diced cooked turkey
1 cup small shell macaroni, cooked and drained
Salt
White pepper
½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
Dash paprika

Melt 2 tablespoons butter in saucepan. Saute mushrooms until tender. Stir in gravy, sour cream and dill weed. Blend well. Add turkey and macaroni. Season to taste with salt and white pepper. Turn into 1½ quart casserole. Melt remaining 3 tablespoons butter and add bread crumbs and paprika. Brown lightly. Sprinkle over casserole. Bake at 375 degrees 30 minutes or until bubbly. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

TURKEY IN PITA POCKETS

2 cups chopped cooked turkey
⅓ cup chopped toasted almonds
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 teaspoons curry powder
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup chopped mint leaves
1 clove garlic, crushed
½ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Salt, pepper
2 pita breads, cut in half
Chopped tomato
Chopped lettuce

Combine turkey, almonds, onion, curry powder, cinnamon, mint, garlic, mayonnaise and lemon juice. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Fill pita breads with turkey filling. Brush pita with melted butter. Place on rack on baking sheet and bake at 350 degrees 15 to 20 minutes. Sprinkle with chopped tomato and lettuce and serve with yogurt, if desired.

TURKEY GARDEN

½ cup plus 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 pound sliced mushrooms
3 cups leftover cooked vegetables or 1 cup each cooked green peas, sliced carrots and zucchini
3 cups leftover turkey slices
½ cup flour
2 cups turkey stock
1 cup white wine
1 cup half and half
½ cup chopped parsley
Salt, pepper

Melt 2 tablespoons butter and saute mushrooms until tender. Add vegetables. In 3-quart casserole, alternate layers of vegetables with leftover turkey, ending with turkey. Melt remaining ½ cup butter in saucepan. Add flour and cook, stirring, 2 minutes. Gradually add turkey stock, white wine, half and half and parsley. Stir over low heat until mixture is thickened and begins to bubble. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Bake at 350 degrees 35 minutes or until bubbly. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

The First Beatrix Potter Bell "PETER RABBIT"

Created by Reed & Barton Silversmiths

What joy Beatrix Potter brought to the world of children! Her charming stories and delightful illustrations have never been equalled. Now for the first time the New England Collectors Society under an exclusive agreement, is proud to present one of the most memorable Potter characters... Peter Rabbit™ as the first bell in the Beatrix Potter Bell Collection. Each bell is delicately sculpted and lavishly silverplated to portray the world famous Beatrix Potter art.

Each bell will be produced exclusively for the New England Collectors Society by one of America's foremost silversmiths, Reed & Barton. The "Peter Rabbit" bell is hallmarked and registered. A Certificate of Registration will accompany each bell attesting to the exclusivity of this important first edition silverplated bell.

CONSUMING INTERESTS

Noses notice differences between tissue brands

By LINDA ANDERSON

Well, it had to happen sooner or later — the weather turned cold.

At our house that means the small children have their annual winter runny noses (known to last from November to April, depending on the severity of the winter, in spite of all efforts at finding a cure), and the teenagers and adults have their colds and/or sore throats and/or sinus infections and/or lost voices.

It seems a golden opportunity to answer the burning question: Are Puffs really as soft as the advertisements say?

I decided to test Puffs against Nice 'n Soft and Kleenex for price, practicality, advertising accuracy and (of course) softness.

All three brands of tissue are available in various quantities and colors. Kleenex probably has the most variety of colors and sizes, if only because Kleenex seems to have been around the longest. In fact, the word "Kleenex" means "tissue" to many of us. I was in college before I realized other brands even existed.

The three brands are priced competitively, although Nice 'n Soft, 81-cents for a box of 200, was the least expensive. The box of 200 Kleenex cost 95-cents and the box of 175 Puffs cost 93-cents. (All prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.)

A message is published on the back of the Puffs box, which claims less Puffs are packed in a box because they are thicker than other brands, but its manufacturers wanted to keep their familiar box size.

I decided a test of Puffs' thickness was ridiculous because of the thinness of all tissue.

The tissues were tested by adults, teenagers and children. The results were unanimous — Puffs are softest. Kleenex came in second (one of the teenage testers said it was a little less soft that the Puffs), but the Nice 'n Soft was a very distant third. All the testers, even the 3-year-old, said Nice 'n Soft was very rough and scratchy. Even the "bargain brand" I usually buy (which wasn't even in the test) was softer than Nice 'n Soft.

Puffs was also the only brand of the three tissues tested that was fragrant. Though smelling nice may not seem very important, to people with colds or flu who have to keep their noses in tissues, the scented tissue may be a comfort. Of course a person with a cold or flu may also have a congested nose and may be unable to smell anything at all.

Because Kleenex has been around for so long, its quality isn't advertised much anymore — everyone seems to know Kleenex's quality is high. What is advertised is the variety of sizes and shapes of Kleenex: over-sized tissues and tiny tissues; pure white tissues and every color of the rainbow tissues. And even patterned tissues.

Nice 'n Soft received such negative reviews from the testers that we would probably vote this brand of tissue be given a name change.

The only negative part of the Puffs review was that tissue for tissue, it was the most expensive of the three brands tested. But it was also the softest and most comfortable brand. And who wants to quibble about a few cents when a tender nose is at stake!

Most chicken sold in stores in the U.S.

Of the 12 billion pounds of ready-to-cook chicken sold annually in the United States, approximtely 63.6 percent is marketed through retail grocery stores, according to the National Broiler Council.

Some 29.3 percent is sold to public eating places, institutions, the government and the like.

A small percentage of the chicken is exported.

Whole wheat buns home baked

1 cup whole wheat flour
¼ cup nonfat dry milk
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 envelope dry yeast
2 tablespoons butter, soft
1 cup very warm tap water (120 to 130 degrees)
1 large egg
1 cup (about) unbleached all-purpose flour

In the large bowl of an electric mixer stir together whole wheat flour, dry milk, sugar, salt and yeast; add butter. At low speed gradually beat in water; continue beating at medium speed, scraping bowl a few times, for 2 minutes. Add egg and ½ cup of the white flour; beat at high speed, scraping bowl a few times, for 2 minutes. At low speed beat in the remaining white flour or enough to make a smooth thick batter.

Cover bowl; let rise in a warm, draft-free place until doubled — about 1 hour. Stir down batter. Fill buttered muffin pan cups (each 2½ inches across the top and 1 inch deep) ⅓ full. Cover; let rise as previously until doubled — about 45 minutes. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until browned and a cake tester inserted in the middle comes out clean — about 20 minutes. Makes 18.

Pubs popular in Great Britain

Hearst Feature Service

WASHINGTON — During the holidays, Americans gather in homes, shopping malls and restaurants. In Great Britain, holiday revelers are more apt to go to a public house, or pub, which is to the British what the Super Bowl is to Americans — a cultural institution.

The pub represents more than a dimly-lit barroom where rowdy quaffers meet to celebrate after a hard day's work. Its value as a social center extends to a wide variety of activities: a tournament spot for games leagues; a meeting place for social and political clubs; a relaxing atmosphere in which to enjoy live or jukebox music or informal theatre; and, as shown in the film, "Educating Rita," a cozy place for an impromptu song.

Part of the beauty of British pubs lies in their sense of security in changing times, according to the Pub Preservation Group, an adjunct of the Campaign for Real Ale (CAMRA). The organization, dedicated to the preservation of natural (without chemicals) brewing practices and to the survival of pubs vulnerable to the wrecking ball in the creation of new communities, points out that pubs today are among the few buildings being used for the purpose for which they were built. Many of the original Victorian and Georgian signs and windows still exist.

Saltless food can be tasty

Copley News Service

Where, oh where, would cuisine be without salt?

For centuries it has been considered precious — kings sat above it, the hoi polloi below. It once was so highly prized, and priced, that silversmiths designed enormous, ornate saltcellars to center the polished tables of European aristocrats.

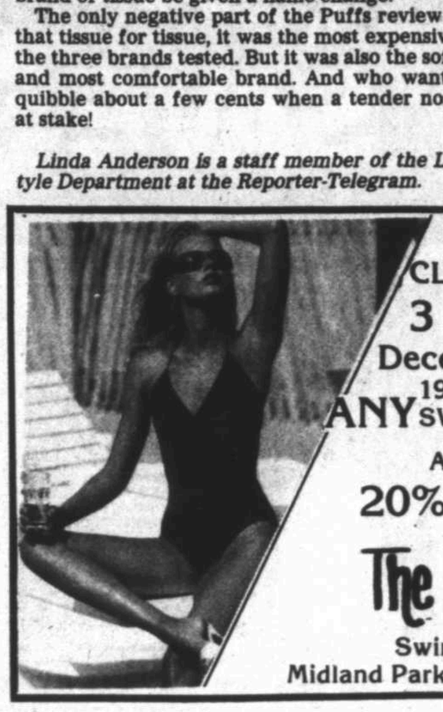

Excessive sodium intake has been linked with hypertension, or high blood pressure, which contributes to serious cardiovascular conditions, such as heart attacks and strokes. It's still controversial whether or not sodium plays a part in the cause of hypertension, but a reduced amount of it in the diet is certainly a favored treatment of the condition, and a recommended policy for prevention.

Now that everybody is interested in reducing his or her sodium intake, most of us realize we don't know the salt content of what we eat.

To suit the consumer's interest in the subject, food processors have brought out low-sodium soups, canned fish and certain canned vegetables with salt reduced by 50 percent.

And there are also items with reduced sugar and fats.

Unsalted butter, margarine and some salad dressings are now available.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Migraine treatment must be individualized

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been getting migraine headaches for a long time now and I have tried different kinds of drugs to treat them. Can you tell me which drug is recommended by most doctors for the treatment of migraine headaches? — Jennifer, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Dear Jennifer: There are several different medications, as well as a number of nonmedical techniques that have been found to be effective in the treatment of migraines. However, treatment must be individualized.

Dr. Seymour Diamond, director of the Diamond Headache Clinic in Chicago, says it is not possible to predict in advance what will work best for a particular patient.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I do not use drugs and I am not interested in starting now, but I'm curious when I read about how some people take drugs by sniffing them. Isn't it possible that this can cause damage aside from the damage caused by the drug itself? — Audrey, Montgomery, Ala.

Dear Audrey: The practice of taking drugs by snorting can cause irritation of the inner lining of the nasal passage. Nasal stuffiness or a postnasal drip are other possible results of snorting.

For Deborah, Portland, Ore.: Ultrasound is close to 100 percent accurate (actually about 96 percent) in diagnosing gallstones.

Dear Dr. Solomnon: I saw your one-day treatment for stop-smoking, on T.V., and wanted to know how I could contact you to get it. — Fred, Los Angeles

Dear Fred: If you desire, you could write to me at 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

THE BETTER HALF

"My wife threatened to declare martial law in our house. Can she DO that?"

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, December 29, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: U.S. President Andrew Johnson, British statesman-author William Gladstone and famed Spanish-born cellist-composer-conductor Pablo Casals were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: actor Jon Voight, Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, Mary Tyler Moore, "St. Elsewhere" star Ed Flanders and California Angels rookie Mike Brown. A change in plans early in 1984 will bring good financial luck. New business opportunities appear. A brilliant career shines even brighter. The best time for a wedding is April or June. Your enthusiasm improves romantic partner's fortunes along with your own.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Travelers could encounter difficulties today. Confirm your reservations. Family relationships improve. Make the best of a difficult situation. A close friend comes through for you once again. Be appreciative.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The fewer personal questions you answer today, the better. Mate helps you find a purpose in life. Children influence an important decision. Try a new tack if pursuing a job.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Pursue your goals even if most business people prove difficult to reach. Romantic partner could set off fireworks when you least expect them. Apologize for making a mistake.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Display your talent for diplomacy when thrown together with a former mate or partner. You are good at manipulating a loved one. Focus on what others have forgotten.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Join forces with those who share your interests. Family considerations lead you to alter your personal plans. Reunions bring deep pleasure. Although romance is elusive, your persistence will pay off.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You play a more important role at work than certain people realize. Turn down invitations that involve a lot of money. You will not enjoy something you cannot afford.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Business takes a back seat to romance now. Your whole world narrows down to just two people! Postpone appointments. Get away from your home base and do something really different.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Keep the momentum going at work even if there is a seasonal lull. Although store personnel see more returns than sales, the future looks bright. Take someone up on an offer.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You could be earning a promotion or raise without even realizing it. Travel brings good luck. Get an expert's advice on a romantic problem. You succeed where others have failed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You escape from a situation that has been making you uncomfortable and sapping your energy. Postpone finalizing a business deal until after January 1st. Travel is tiring but very worthwhile.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Beware of someone who makes promises in order to extract a favor. Mixing business with pleasure will bring more pain than pleasure. Turn down invitations that will cost you money.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Children watch your every move. It is natural to feel ambivalent about a relationship that has had its ups and downs. Do not become involved in a dispute between co-workers.

Baptists go after TV evangelists

By PHILIP BRASHER

FORT WORTH (AP) — Southern Baptists are taking on the nation's electronic evangelists with a new television network they plan to introduce this spring.

The non-commerical American Christian Television System will be the first of its kind attempted by a major denomination.

"We plan to cover the nation and provide a vehicle for mainstream Christians to get into all the homes in the country," said Jimmy Allen, president of the Southern Baptist Convention's Radio and Television Commission.

The network will use a combination of cable systems and full-and low-power educational stations to broadcast 16 hours of family-oriented programming each day that organizers said will include only a smattering of sermonizing.

Instead, there will be documentaries, advice shows, interviews and children's programs — 70 percent secular and 30 percent religious, in all.

"This is one option out of the many options on the TV set," Allen said. "We call it a channel that you can trust."

Allen, a former pastor in San Antonio, said that the majority of Christians have been under-represented on television, whose religious programming has been dominated by charismatics.

Much of that programming, Allen said, has turned off viewers because of appeals for funds.

ACTS won't have any of that, he said.

"We're not going to be asking for money on the air," he said. "That's something we're trying to disassociate ourselves from. We think that will relieve a lot of people."

The network hopes to attract Christians of all denominations and is encouraging other major denominations to produce programs for it to broadcast, officials said. In fact, the network won't survive if it doesn't attract a broad-based audience, said Ken Coffee, coordinator of area and associational missions for the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

"I think it will be an attractive alternative to the 'hypered' charismatic programmming that is now on the air," Coffee said.

"They (charismatic broadcaters) represent 5 percent of religious America," he said. "The other 95 percent are left out...It (ACTS) is really going to be the only game in town."

The Baptist network, which will cost about $12 million the first year, will be funded through a combination of corporate sponsorship, similar to that used by the Public Broadcasting Service, direct-mail solicited donations and support from the giant denomination.

On past form Brazil was expected to be a contender in the 1983 World Team Championship, played in Stockholm, Sweden. On the other hand, no one picked New Zealand to be in the running. But such are the vagaries of form that Brazil never challenged seriously while New Zealand lost a semifinal spot on the last board of the qualifying round.

This deal is from the 10th round match between these two countries. In one room the Brazilians bid unmolested to four spades. The bidding shown occurred in the room where Brazil's star, Gabriel Cnagas, , held the West cards. He and his partner pushed to five diamonds —a contract that could be made if declarer takes the diamond finesse. However, the New Zealanders bid on to five hearts, a contract that seemed safe enough.

It would have been safe had Chagas routinely led either his suit or his partner's. Unfortunately for New Zealand, he hit upon a spade lead, and declarer stood no chance.

East won the ace and shifted to a club. Chagas rose with the ace of clubs and returned another spade for his partner to ruff. The defenders had collected their three tricks before declarer could even get started.

New Zealand was doubly unlucky, because it could have made five spades unless East found an inspired heart lead, or a club lead followed by a heart shift from West. As it was, New Zealand lost 13 International Match Points.

In the match between Taiwan and Sweden, the former made five hearts with an overtrick in one room and five diamonds doubled in the other room for a huge gain.

China outlines plans for Hong Kong

HONG KONG (AP) — China has outlined its plans for Hong Kong once the British colony reverts to Chinese sovereignty, scheduled for 1997.

Britain and China are negotiating the turnover, but details largely have been kept secret.

But officials here say details of Peking's blueprint for the future have been given over a period of several months to Hong Kong officials by former Chinese Foreign Minister Ji Pengfei, who now heads the mainland's Hong Kong and Macao office.

The officials gave this rundown:

At a meeting in Peking with the Hong Kong urban councillor, Denny Huang, in September, Ji ruled out an independent Hong Kong but stressed that the territory will enjoy a high degree of autonomy.

Huang said Ji listed these main points on the colony's future:

—Hong Kong's legal system will remain unchanged.

—China will take full responsibility for the territory's defense but will not station troops here.

—China will handle Hong Kong's foreign affairs but the territory will have full power concerning immigration matters including issuing passports and the right of free travel for its citizens.

—The territory's free economy system will remain unchanged and the people will continue to enjoy the right to own property.

Egypt hampered by growth

ZAGAZIG, Egypt (AP) — Egypt has seen the first sustained drop in its population growth in a decade and officials are encouraged, but the population explosion remains what President Hosni Mubarak calls the country's "problem of problems."

There are now 46 million Egyptians and this number increases by a million every 10 months. The people are concentrated in overcrowded cities and in the fertile ribbon of land along the River Nile, an area that takes up less than 4 percent of the whole country.

Egypt presently imports half of its food and agricultural production is steadily falling behind population growth.

Population growth reached a high of 3 percent annually in 1979-1980, but preliminary estimates show a steady decline to 2.6 percent in 1983. Officials are cautiously optimistic.

"We hope the decrease in the annual growth percentage will continue, there are scientific indications that this trend will continue, but we cannot say 100 percent that this will happen," said Mohammed Abdel-Salam Salem, director general of one of Egypt's numerous family-planning projects.

Lenni Kangas, director of the population office at the U.S. Agency of International Development here, said the population will continue its rapid growth in the next 25 years.

Hope hopes 1984 tour in Lebanon won't be necessary

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fresh from a holiday tour for U.S. troops in Lebanon, Bob Hope says he's willing to do it again next Christmas — but hopes it won't be necessary.

The 80-year-old comedian was greeted Tuesday by cheering military personnel and friends as he stepped off an Air Force plane at a California Air National Guard base in Van Nuys.

"It seems like we just left here a few minutes ago," quipped Hope, who was accompanied by actresses Ann Jillian, Cathy Lee Crosby and Brooke Shields, Miss USA Julie Hayek, singer Vic Damone and comedian George Kirby.

Getting serious, Hope told the crowd, "Of all the tours I've taken over the years, this was the most exciting." The seven-day tour was his first visit to troops overseas in 11 years, and the 31st of his career.

Asked if he would take a show to Lebanon next year, he replied, "I hope we don't have to go again, but if they're there, we'll go."

Loretta Swit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hitched: a Houlihan and a Holahan.

Actress Loretta Swit, who played chief nurse Margaret "Hot Lips" Houlihan in the long-running television series "M*A*S*H," has been married to actor Dennis Holahan, and they are honeymooning in Egypt.

It was the first marriage for the 46-year-old Miss Swit, who met her husband-to-be while he was working on an episode of the program about a year ago, said Miss Swit's publicist, Dawn Davis, on Tuesday.

The wedding last Wednesday in suburban Studio City was the second for Holahan, who has a 15-year-old son and 14-year-old daughter from a previous marriage.

He is in the movie "Scarface" and has appeared in television's "Fall Guy" and "Blue Thunder."

VASHON, Wash. (AP) — Six years after the award-winning movie based on his book "Soldier of Orange" was released, author Erik Hazelhoff says he feels somewhat like a ghost.

Hazelhoff, 66, former aide de camp to the late Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, wrote his autobiographical opus in 1972 after working as an NBC network vice president, director of Radio Free Europe and president of a telecommunications network.

He says he wrote the book to get off his chest the experiences he had been through during the Nazi occupation of the Netherlands in World War II. It was "a stone in the pit of my stomach," that had to be removed, he said.

In the movie, which won the 1981 Los Angeles Film Critics Award, Hazelhoff was portrayed by Rutger Hauer.

"When people make a movie in your own surroundings, using your own language, and create a role in your own image, the actor becomes the real thing," Hazelhoff said in a recent interview. "You feel like an apparition who started it all."

A resident of Hawaii, he had come to this Puget Sound island near Seattle to visit a stepdaughter.

NEW YORK (AP) — After 10 years in city government, Deputy Mayor Robert F. Wagner Jr. will be leaving New York and going to college.

The 39-year-old Wagner, whose father was mayor of the city, has taken a teaching post at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government.

Earlier this year Wagner had been Mayor Edward Koch's choice to become city schools chancellor, but was turned down by the state education commissioner — who said he lacked professional education experience.

Koch said Wagner still will head a committee that will study what life in New York City should be like by the year 2000.

Wagner takes the Harvard position at the end of January.

Man books room in unbuilt Marriot hotel for Dec. 31, 1999

NEW YORK (AP) — The new millennium is 16 years away, but one man has already been assured himself a prime spot on the big day — a suite at a Times Square hotel that hasn't even been built yet.

It didn't matter to Ed Woodyard that the Marriot Marquis doesn't exist yet and that the New Year's Eve in question isn't until Dec. 31, 1999. He set out to get a reservation, and he did.

The advance booking, he said, was a sudden inspiration.

In 1958, said Woodyard, his father gathered the family together on New Year's Eve and took them to the Astor Hotel on Times Square. From their room, they looked down at the noisy mob and watched the lighted ball herald the new year.

Woodyard, now a 35-year-old communications executive from Greenwich, Conn., never forgot that evening, and when he pondered Dec. 31, 1999, he knew "exactly where I wanted to be."

The Astor Hotel no longer exists, and most of the other hostelries that overlook Times Square are not family-type establishments. His quest led him to the Marriott Marquis, a giant luxury hotel that is scheduled to open in 1985, but is now no more than a collection of girders and bricks.

He considered waiting a few years to make a reservation, but "I figured they'd probably get booked up pretty quickly," he said. So he called Marriott.

"You're going to think this is crazy," he told the reservations clerk. Then he requested a room for the last night of the 20th century.

"You're right, it does sound crazy," the clerk responded.

Marriott's computer accepts reservations no more than 53 weeks in advance; Woodyard's request was 834 weeks ahead of schedule.

The clerk called in a supervisor, who called in a higher-up, who called in an even bigger cheese. Before he knew it, Woodyard was talking to Marriott's executive vice president in Washington, D.C.

In the end, Woodyard got what he wanted — and a bonus. Because he is the first person to request a reservation at the new hotel, Marriott is rewarding him by picking up the tab for his suite — which company spokesman Charles Ecker estimated will cost $1,000 a night by 1999.

Woodyard has already invited friends to join him, his wife, Nancy, and son, Christopher, who was born Dec. 16 but will be 16 years old in 1999. And if, for some reason, he can't be there?

"If something comes up, something comes up," he said.

CBS News will ask judge to dismiss lawsuit brought by Westmoreland

Westmoreland

WASHINGTON (AP) — CBS News will try to get a federal judge to throw out a $120 million libel suit brought by retired Gen. William C. Westmoreland, a network attorney says.

David Boies told reporters that in March or April, the network will seek a summary judgment dismissing the suit on grounds the documentary entitled "The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception" was factual and there was "an absence of malice."

Boies outlined CBS' legal strategy Tuesday following a news conference here in which Westmoreland asserted that affidavits filed by former Johnson administration civilian and military figures buttress his argument that the January 1982 documentary libeled him.

Both sides released court papers they said supported their position in the libel suit.

"My lawyers now have gathered and reviewed much of the evidence," Westmoreland said. "It is shocking...If I were guilty as indicated by the broadcast, I could have been court-martialed on a number of counts."

Lawyers for CBS said the network stands by the accuracy of its report, which alleged that Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam in the 1960s, conspired with others to falsify intelligence estimates of enemy troop strength in a campaign to win American support for the U.S. combat role there and to provide rosy assessments of prospects for victory.

Among the affidavits cited by network lawyers was one submitted by Richard Kovar, a 30-year CIA veteran who now prepares daily intelligence reports for President Reagan.

Kovar said that "...In sum, I found those parts of 'The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception' of which I had knowledge or experience to be fair and accurate...Indeed, I believe that CBS should rebroadcast the documentary in prime time on each anniversary of the (1968 Vietnamese) Tet Offensive so that no intelligence analyst, soldier or citizen who watches it will ever let anything like this happen again."
