Habib's reception somewhat 'cool'

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — U.S. envoy Philip C. Habib got a cool reception today in Syria, where he met with President Hafez Assad in hopes of calming the tense Syrian-Israeli standoff over Syria's missiles in Lebanon.

The government newspaper Al-Baath declared, "Habib is preparing the grounds for a large-scale Israeli aggression on Lebanon to partition that country, liquidate the Palestinian cause and eventually invade Syria."

Assad kept the veteran American diplomat waiting for 20 hours after his arrival in Damascus Monday. After their 2½-hour meeting today at the presidential palace, the third with the Syrian in Habib's 12-day mission, he U.S. envoy would say only that "diplomatic efforts continue. I am not going to say anything about substance...because this is a serious effort."

Habib then flew to Israel and went immediately to see Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

A Lebanese newspaper reported he was carrying a four-point plan for defusing the crisis over Syria's deployment of Soviet-made anti-aircraft missiles in eastern Lebanon. The plan also reportedly would attack the root cause — fighting between Syrian soldiers and Lebanese Christians.

But Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir said today his nation would not wait indefinitely for diplomatic efforts to succeed.

"It is not a question of days or hours," he said, "but we cannot wait months." Israel has threatened to remove the missiles militarily if they are not withdrawn.

For the first time, Presidnt Reagan took a personal role in the negotiations.

A White House spokesman said today that Reagan had met secretly with Saudi Prince Turki el Faisal, an adviser to the royal family, in the Oval Office Saturday.

U.S. officials have said they are seeking Saudi aid in defusing the missile crisis. Habib was in Saudi Arabia over the weekend.

No details of the Riyadh meetings were made public, but Saudi officials said King Khaled exchanged private messages with Assad. Saudi Arabia also publicly pledged full support for Syria if war breaks out with Israel.

Saudi Arabia and Kuwait earlier discontinued their subsidy that had helped pay Syria's bills for keeping troops in Lebanon to police that nation's fragile armistice from its 1975-76 civil war between Christians and Moslems.

Meanwhile Syrian troops and rightist Christian ilitias in Beirut traded sporadic artillery and rocket fire overnight across the "green line" frontier that divides the city into Moslem and Christian sections, and police said 29 civilians were killed and 142 wounded.

The Lebanese newspaper An-Nahar, which has close ties to Lebanon's Christian-Moslem government, reported Habib had obtained Saudi support for a four-point plan.

The proposal was said to have called for a stand-down of Syrian and Christian forces in eastern Lebanon's strategic hilltops, a gradual withdrawal of the SAM-6 missiles in exchange for a moratorium on Israeli overflights, talks among the parties under U.S. auspices and a resumption of the Saudi an Kuwait aid.

Battling the blaze

An unidentified city fireman soaks a smoldering mattress Monday afternoon after a fire destroyed a storage shed and its contents on Midkiff Road, a half-mile south of Interstate 20. The blaze, which broke out about 1:30 p.m., is under investigation. Owner of the shed is Mary J. Parker.

Nation's GNP climbs higher than expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's gross national product climbed 8.4 percent in the first three months of this year, the biggest gain in nearly three years and almost two percentage points more than was first reported, the Commerce Department reported today.

The report came one day after other government statistics on personal spending and income indicated that the nation's economic growth has slowed considerably since the robust first quarter activity.

The department originally reported the first quarter gain in "real" GNP — the value of the total output of the nation's goods and services after adjustment for inflation — at 6.5 percen. The new figure, based on more complete information, showed increases in a number of categories, including the valueof inventories and net exports, a department analyst said.

The first quarter GNP now is estimated at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $2.854 trillion. That translates into $1.516 trillion in 1972 dollars, the department's benchmark for discounting inflationary changes.

The first quarter gain is the biggest since the 9 percent recorded in the second quarter of 1978.

The new report also pegged inflation at 10 percent in the first quarter as computed by the GNP implicit price deflator. That rate had earlier been reported at 7.8 percent. Analysts had quetioned tat figure as being too low.

Today's report also showed corporate profits up in the first quarter, with before-tax profits rising 3.7 percent to $258.7 billion and after-tax profits climbing 2.4 percent to $168.3 billion.

Corporate profits from current production — adjusting for depreciation and inventory replacement costs — rose 10.5 percent, the biggest gain since the 13.2 percent for the second quarter of 1978, the report said.

Analysts inside and outside the government agree that second quarter GNP figures will be far below those for the first three months of the year, and some are predicting an actual decline in inflation-adjusted output.

Personal consumption spending rose 0.2 percent in April, the Commerce Department reported Monday. But that increase undoubtedly would have been a decrease had not inflation driven up the prices of goods.

Such spending, which makes up more than 60 percent of the gross national product, had risen 1.4 percent as recently as January. But then it leveled off at about the rate of inflation before dropping in April.

Redistricting changes could tie Midland County to San Antonio

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The House-approved congressional redictricting plan, adopted tentatively Monday, places Midland County into the 21st Congressional District represented by Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, and tied to San Antonio.

Currently, Midland County is part of the 19th Congressional District represented by Kent Hance, D-Lubbock.

The remainder of the 21st District would be composed of Upton, Reagan, Irion, Tom Green, Brewster, Terrell, Crockett, Val Verde, Schlaicher, Sutton, Menard, Kimble, Bandera, Gillespie, Kendall, Kerr, Edwards, Real, Kinney, Uvalde and Medina counties, and portions of Bexar, Llano and Pecos counties.

The plan is the same as that proposed by the House Committee on Regions, Compacts and Districts.

The new 19th District is composed of Deaf Smith, Parmer, Castro, Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Cochran, Hockley, Lubbock, Yoakum, Terruy, Gaines, Andrews, Winkler, Crane and Ector counties.

District 16, represented by Richard White, D-El Paso, consists of El Paso, Hudspeth, Culberson, Jeff Davis, Presidio, Loving and Ward counties, and a portion of Pecos County.

District 17, represented by Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, takes in Floyd, Crosby, Lyn, Garza, Dawson, Borden, Martin, Howard, Glasscock, Kent, Scurry, Mitchell, Sterling, Coke, Nolan, Fisher, Stonewall, Knox, Haskell, Jones, Taylor, Runnels, Concho, McCullock, Coleman, Callahan, Shackelford, Throckmorton, Young, Stephens, Eastland, Comanche, Erath, Palo Pinto, Jack, Parker and Wise counties.

GOP may reap representatives

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas House, where Democrats outnumber Republicans three-to-one, has voted for a congressional redistricting bill that one Democrat called a coup for the GOP.

House members tentatively approved the bill Monday, 103-41, with a final vote set for today.

The bill assigns the three new congressmen Texas receives by virtue of the 1980 census to Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth areas where the GOP has made sizeable gains in recent years.

Reps. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, and Gene Green, D-Houston, said the House redistricting committee bill — despite Democrat control of the House — would give all three new seats to Republicans.

The leader of the Mexican-American caucus asserted that blacks and Hispanics had been "pitted against each other" in the jockeying for votes.

The bill allocates one of Texas' three new congressional seats to a Dallas-Fort Worth mid-cities area, another to Houston and the third to an area dominated by Houston but including suburban and rural counties to the north and west.

Corpus Christi is split, with most Anglos going into a coastal district that runs north into Brazoria County while Mexican-Americans join the district of U.S. Rep. Abraham Kazen, D-Laredo.

Mexican-American legislators protested the division to no avail.

Green, majority whip, failed in an 86-58 vote to put across an alternate redistricting plan approved by most members of the House Democratic Caucus.

The caucus plan would have preserved the re-election chances of Congressmen Bill Patman, D-Ganado, and Jim Mattox, D-Dallas, whom the House redistricting committee plan shoved into politically unfavorable new territory.

It also would have placed the three new districts in a Mexican-American area of South Texas, a solidly Democratic section of Houston and an area taking in parts of Tarrant, Collin and Denton counties. Nueces County (Corpus Christi) would have gone entirely into the South Texas district.

"In our plan, there are three new districts that could be filled by Demoerats. Under the committee plan, there are three new congressional districts that probably will be filled by Republicans," Green said.

Green urged Democrats to reject bipartisanship, saying states with Republican-controlled legislatures were doing no favors for Democrats in their redistricting plans.

He also appealed to the state representatives to consider the impact of redistricting on the chances of House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, to become speaker when Tip O'Neill steps down. Wright's chances depend on continued Democratic control of the U.S. House.

"I don't think we should get into Republican versus Democrat...that is really not our purpose.....We need to look at the plan in terms of basic fairness and compliance with the law," said Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, redistricting chairman.

Blacks voted against the Democratic Caucus plan because it did not carve out a district in Dallas County that a black congressional candidate could win.

Mexican-Americans supported the caucus plan because it included a new South Texas district where a Hispanic could be elected to Congress.

"I'm embarrassed to be here when we and the blacks are pitted against each other," said Rep. Paul Moreno, D-El Paso.

It was discovered over the weekend that the committee map put U.S. Reps. Jack Brooks, D-Beaumont, and Ron Paul, R-Lake Jackson, in the same district.

Attorneys find it doesn't pay...

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The mercy of justice may not be strained, but the quality and budget are, or so suggested the Midland County Bar president, who said that neither court-appointed attorneys nor their defendant-clients are getting due justice in Midland County.

The injustice, Bar President Bill Smith told the Midland County commissioners on Monday, is in the relatively meager fees paid attorneys who are appointed to represent indigent defendants in criminal cases.

And he said that Judge Perry D. Pickett had expressed concern over that before he retired last year after presiding over the 142nd Judicial District Court here for 26 years.

"He (Judge Pickett) thought that there was not enough quality representation as a whole — not isolated — as a whole," Smith said.

Smith approached the commissioners while they were taking respite from their 1982 budget studies.

"Well, here it is spring time," Smith said as if to humor the commissioners and County Judge Bill Ahders. "Here I am to talk about money."

Smith said that only 10 — more or less — of Midland's 285 or 300 licensed lawyers are on the district courts' rolls and thereby are subject to court appointments. About four attorneys are on comparable rolls for county court.

"Any lawyer in town who chose not to represent indigent defendants could pay $300 in the Central Fund" and thereby get out of court appointments, Smith said. The Central Fund is administered by the Midland bar; funds from that are added to Midland County funds to pay for court appointments.

Court appointments as a rule do not "pay" as well as hired-out lawyers, whose fee may be $60 to $100 per hour in and outside of court. Smith said that $80 per hour was a most reasonable fee for an able member of a reputable law firm.

IN CITING his own case, which he seemed to know best, Smith said that he must take in $40 an hour (based on a 20- to 30-hour productive workweek) just to cover his overhead of a full-time secretary, office space and law books.

"I'm not trying to tell you guys what a proper figure is," said Smith, who seemed to suggest the $60-$80 per hour range for court appointments.

Minimum fees for court appointments are governed by state law, which says a $75-a-day fee is to be paid to a court-appointed lawyer in most criminal cases and $250 a day in capital-murder cases, of which Midland has few.

Some court-appointed lawyers may get $40 a hour in contested cases tried before the court or by a jury.

But the judges set the fees, which seem to be limited by the funds allowed for court appointments by the commissioners. This year, the commissioners have budgeted $60,000 for that.

In addition, the bar's own "slush" fund, fed by about 100 lawyers each paying $300 a year, goes toward paying court-appointed lawyers. Smith could not explain why or how the some 200 other lawyers in Midland do not contribute to the Midland County Bar's Central Fund.

Regardless, the fees paid to court-appointed attorneys are causing

Cool nights, warm, windy days forecast

If the weatherman's forecast is correct, Midlanders can expect it to be cool tonight and warm as well as windy Wednesday.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, the forecast calls for the fair skies today to give way to partly cloudy Wednesday, with warmer temperatures and southeasterly 20-30 mph winds Wednesday.

The low tonight is expected to be in the upper 50s with the high Wednesday in the mid 80s. Winds tonight will be easterly at 5-10 mph.

The record high for Monday was 98 degrees set in 1946. At 7 a.m. today, Midland was only two degrees warmer than the record low of 46 degrees set here in 1971.

DEATHS

Allen J. Watts

Services for Allen J. Watts, 86, of Midland will be at 11 a.m. Wednesday in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with burial in Resthaven Cemetery.

Watts died Monday morning in a Midland nursing home.

Born Jan. 31, 1895, in Lone Star, Kan., he was the son of Robert and Ida Watts. One of 10 children in the family, he was reared and attended school in Lone Star and Lawrence, Kan. In February 1917, he was employed in the Tulsa general offices of Cosden Oil & Gas Company as a file clerk. In the early part of 1918, he enlisted in the military and served in World War I.

Watts advanced through the assignments of rental clerk and assistant to the manager of the list rentals department in the Tulsa office, and in October 1921 was transferred to Ponca City to a scouting job with Cosden. He had his introduction to scouting and other field work in the petroleum industry during the Tonkaw, Okla., boom.

In August 1923, Cosden became Mid-Continent Petroleum Corp. The new concern took over all assets of its predecessor, including its employees. Watts was promoted to the position of lease rentals agent in Mid-Continent's Tulsa headquarters on Dec. 15, 1925.

In July 1926, the company sent him to Cisco to open a district exploration office for the West Central Texas area which included Cisco, Eastland, Ranger, Breckenridge, Brownwood, Coleman and other towns in the area. In 1926, the Noodle Dome oilfield was discovered in Southwest Jones County, and several major companies, a number of large independent units of the industry, and many oil men moved to Abilene.

In September 1926, the Mid-Continent office at Cisco was moved to Abilene. Watts was in charge of that office in the capacity of district landman until he moved to Midland in 1928 as district landman for West Texas and Southeast New Mexico, retaining that position with Sunray-Mid-Continent when they merged and he went independent. He remained an independent oil man until February 1977 when he retired due to ill health.

He married Artamyse McMullan, a member of a prominent ranch family in Reagan and Crockett counties, in 1949.

He was a 50-year member of the Masonic Lodge, holding life memberships in several Masonic bodies. He was a member of both the Scottish and York Rites and was a life member of the Order of the Eastern Star, where he served as Worthy Patron of Midland Chapter 253 in 1953-54 and Grand Appointments before being installed as Grand Sentinel in 1965. He also was a member of the International Supreme Council of Order of Demolay, having been conferred the Demolay Cross of Honor for outstanding and dedicated service. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, a charter member of the Petroleum Club of Midland and a member of the Permian Basin Petroleum Pioneers.

Survivors include his wife; a sister, Laura Katherman of Kansas City, Mo.; a brother, Cal J. Watts of Yucaipa, Calif., and several nieces and nephews.

The family has requested that memorials be sent to the Shriner Burns Institute or the West Texas Boys Ranch in San Angelo.

Midland, Odessa councils planning joint session

Midland City Council and Odessa City Council will hold a joint session at 10:15 a.m. Thursday in the EOC Room at Odessa City Hall.

The two panels will look at rates and legislation regarding taxis at Midland Regional Airport.

Midland will present a report on Midland Regional Airport construction program and airline services.

In addition, the two councils will consider a report on the Permian Basin Police Academy and a report on the status of the North Route which will connect the two cities.

This will mark the third joint meeting of the two councils.

Southwest loves to have birthdays

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

LUV is 10 years old.

But in Midland, it will be four on Wednesday.

Southwest Airlines will celebrate its fourth birthday at Midland Regional Airport Wednesday, according to Howard Putnam, president of Southwest Airlines.

Sunday, the airlines celebrated a little early by having its "best day since a holiday" with some 85 percent of "the entire airline" in operation, Putnam said Monday in a telephone interview from Dallas. May is Southwest's 10-year anniversary month.

Initially, he said, Southwest had some problems getting into Midland — mostly because of competitors.

AS AN INTRASTATE airlines in 1977, Southwest was regulated only by the Texas Aeronautics Commission, while other airlines were governed by the Civil Aeronautics Commission. Coupled with low fares, loose restrictions on Southwest hampered other airlines, Putnam said.

"When they saw maybe Southwest was going to succeed," Putnam said, other airlines visited chambers telling "cities we were going to be bad for this community."

Despite the warnings, Putnam said, "the worst thing we do is cause you to increase the size of your parking lot" as business persons take day-long commuter trips to Dallas and back.

"The original problem was here in Dallas: nobody wanted us to become an airline," said Putnam, who has been president of Southwest for three years. It took four years from 1967 to get the necessary approvals to start the commuter airlines operating out of Love Field.

Since then, Putnam said, "we've had 30 lawsuits and two times have gone to the U.S. Supreme Court" over the legality of an airlines with such low fares. But each court sided with Southwest.

"In some of those very early battles, it was bitter to persuade people," Putnam said. "But Southwest has done a heck of a lot to bring low fares to the people of West Texas."

WITH 25 Boeing 737s now in operation, Southwest flies to 14 cities — 11 in Texas and Albuquerque, Oklahoma City and New Orleans. "We now have the eighth largest passenger boarding system," Putnam said. The main reason for its fast growth, he said, was "our fares are 45 to 55 percent less than on other carriers."

In addition, he said, "we try to focus our scheduling on the needs of the people." With Midland as an oil center, Putnam said, Southwest began offering flights to cities "interested in energy: Houston, Dallas, Tulsa."

Already from January through April, Putnam said, some 92,425 passengers have traveled from Midland Regional Airport. The majority, about 42,000, have been travelers to Dallas. Houston had some 17,000 passengers; Austin, 10,500; El Paso, 6,000; and San Antonio, 3,000.

Unlike other airlines, Putnam said, Southwest actually has benefited from the gas shortages. "Every time gas went up at the pumps, more people chose flying over driving. That's why we've been able to do it (keep fares constant). You have to be smarter and figure out how to do it," he said.

SOUTHWEST'S MOST recent fare increase was in January, Putnam said. "We hope to make it through the summer without a price increase," he said. "We'll try to make it through the year."

Putnam said he expected some additional competition with American and Sun-Air Airlines coming to Midland, however, he said it was good.

"It depends on where the folks want to go," Putnam said. "We assume that they (American) will have a few flights we won't."

In addition, he said, proximity would be a major factor. For instance, people who wanted to go to downtown Dallas would probably take Southwest and fly into Love Field, while people traveling to Fort Worth or Arlington would probably take American, Braniff or Texas International and fly into D-FW Regional Airport.

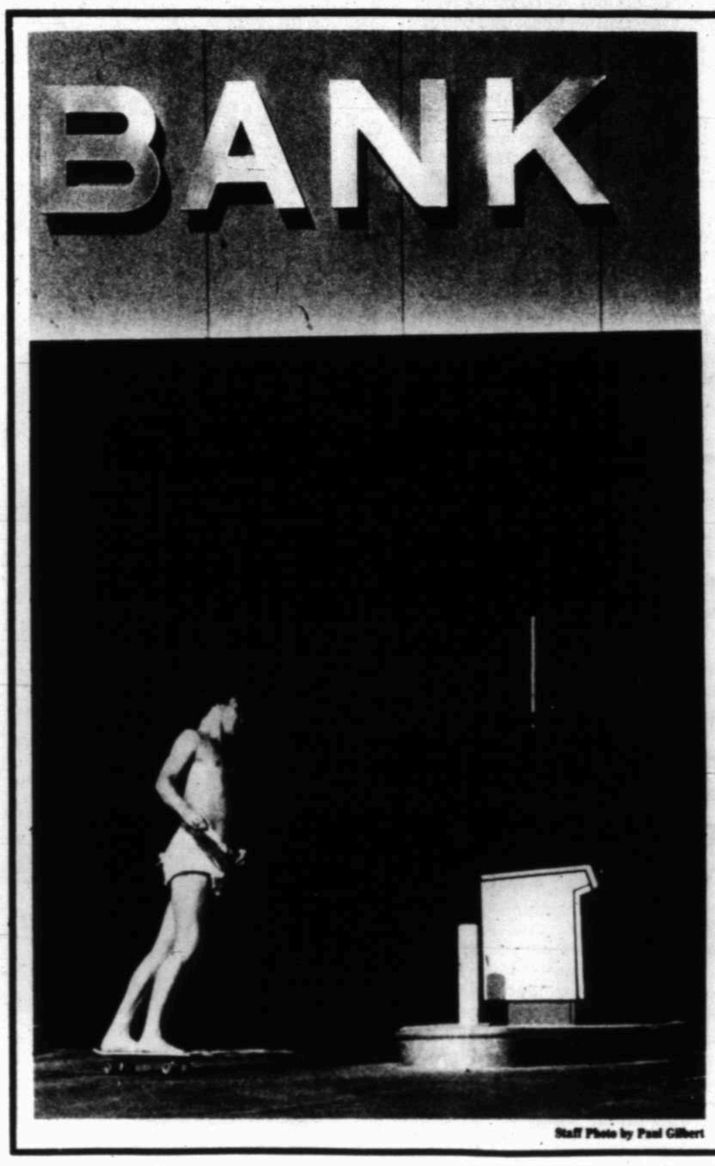

"BUT WHAT WE have found," Putnam added, "is with fares as low as we have, other airlines' fares drop. So, it will help all of us.

"Wherever we are, we double the size of the market in 18 months," Putnam said. "With low fares and frequent service, more people fly."

Since May 20, 1977, Putnam said 1,292,987 people have arrived at or departed from Midland Regional Airport on Southwest. "Compared to how much money they would have paid for fares on other airlines," he said, "the people who took Southwest have saved a total of $39,650,000 — some 49 percent over other air fares."

If those passengers had flown other airlines, Putnam said they would have paid an estimated $80 million.

"As for the rest of this year, we don't have any more planned expansions," Putnam said. However, "the future of Midland is very strong. The folks here have the money to spend."

Testimony begins in shootout trial

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A shootout that left three people dead and one wounded may have resulted from a case of mistaken identity, a Pecos police sergeant testified.

Sgt. Roy Hicks took the stand Monday in the attempted murder trial of Richard Chavez, 24, which was moved to El Paso from Pecos on a change of venue.

Chavez has pleaded innocent to the charge stemming from the wounding of Steve Prewit during an Aug. 13, 1980 shootout. Chavez was tried for murder late last year in the death of Clifton Glenn, but the case ended in a mistrial when jurors failed to reach a verdict.

Hicks said his investigation indicated the gun battle may have occurred because Glenn — who had been made to "beg for his life" at a Pecos bar earlier that day — thought that the Mexican-Americans were the same ones who threatened him earlier.

There was evidence that Glenn may have mistaken Jaime Villareal, 24, for one of his tormentors, Hicks said.

Police have said Glenn shot Villareal and Chavez's brother, David, 20, to death and then was shot to death himself. Prewit was wounded in both arms.

Hicks also testified that when he found Prewit at the shooting scene, the wounded man told him to arrest someone besides Chavez — a man Hicks said later was charged for a time in connection with the shooting.

But before the officer could continue the statement, District Judge Woodrow W. Bean II halted the proceedings and ordered the jury out of the courtroom.

Bean then warned the attorneys to take care in addressing other charges stemming from shootout.

"I don't want to have a mistrial or something like that here," the judge said. "At the appropriate time, if it comes up, it comes up."

Rings, clothes among items reported stolen

In light criminal activity reported to police during the past 24 hours, Joe Garcia of 4400 Parkdale St. said two wedding rings worth a total of $1,700 were taken from his residence, and Robert Gray of Bedford told officers men's clothing valued at $600 was stolen from his room at the Holiday Inn, 3904 W. Wall St., sometime Friday.

Fire destroyed a fence at 3206 Roosevelt Ave. about 2:45 p.m. Monday. The owner of the fence was not listed in the report.

And a fire at the McClatchy Bros. Trucking Co., 4400 W. Industrial Ave., shortly after midnight destroyed some rig timbers on the property.

Separate traffic accidents sent two men to the hospital, with one of them admitted for treatment of multiple lacerations.

James Peck, 30, of Gardendale, was listed in satisfactory condition at Midland Memorial Hospital this morning. According to police, Peck was westbound on FM 868 about 4:15 p.m. Monday when his 1972 Triumph and an eastbound 1977 pickup truck collided almost head-on at the intersection of North Midkiff Road.

Police said the pickup was driven by 15-year-old Brady Richardson of Route 3, Midland, who was attempting a left turn onto Midkiff Road when the accident occurred.

The second mishap took place shortly after 4 a.m. today when a westbound 1968 Pontiac driven by 49-year-old Woodie Warren, 1116 N. Big Spring St., veered off the road in the 1400 block of East Front Street and struck a utility pole. Warren was treated for minor injuries and released from the hospital.

Fees have influence on justice

fewer and fewer lawyers to get on the rotating rolls.

"Little by little," said Smith, "the 10 lawyers who were willing to accept this type of cases were dwindling down."

And the bar president intimated that both lawyer and client were suffering from fee arrangement.

"THERE'S NOT ENOUGH money," he said. "The system is not functioning very well at all. The basic problem is money."

And Smith, who said he wouldn't presume to tell any judge what fee to set, said that the judges "are concerned about those who come before them and the tax dollar."

But he did emphasize that $40 an hour, based on a lawyer's estimated 1,000 to 1,500 productive work hours each year, would just pay expenses and leave no profit or pay for the attorney.

In his own case, Smith that he must gross between $40,000 and $50,000 a year just to pay overhead or "so my CPA tells me." Income beyond that goes toward his own salary and profit, which last year was his best ever.

Smith implied that his practice is both rewarding and profitable, but said that a lawyer who depends on fees from court-appointments would not fare well.

"You ain't doing too well if you're representing those cats," he said of indigent defendants.

He said the commissioners should allow more money in the judiciary for court appointments to attract more lawyers who would view it profitable to get their names on the judges' rolls.

"It's a matter of economics and overhead," Smith said. "I enjoy trial work. A lot of lawyers don't."

Smith said that sufficient funds for court appointments would make it easier for the judges to award enticing fees to attorneys.

THE BAR president referred to the U.S. Constitution and noted a defendant's right to a fair and impartial trial and his right to proper counsel.

Moreover, Smith said that because criminal defendants may be indigent and request the aid of attorneys "doesn't mean they are scoundrels" or that they "don't deserve proper representation."

"He may end up in the electric chair or out on the street," Smith said.

Smith, who said he was "shooting from the hip," estimated that $150,000 to $200,000 a year in court-appointment funds might be just and reasonable.

The judges, including District Judges Pat Baskin, Vann Culp and Barbara Culp, and County-Court-at-Law Judge Willie DuBose are to appear before County Judge Bill Ahders, who presides over the Commissioners' Court, and the commissioners to recommend the budget for the judiciary.

"I'm not here to quarrel, men," Smith said. "I'm here to help."

Tarrant jury decides 'performance art' not really art

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — When local artist Bill McLean burst into a museum symposium last year, carrying what looked to be a pistol and two Molotov cocktails, it was merely a work of "performance art," he said.

Monday a six-member jury disagreed. They found McLean guilty of making a terroristic threat, a Class A misdemeanor, and recommended he be fined $500 and put on probation for a year.

"Six people of a Tarrant County jury decided it wasn't art," McLean said after the verdict. "I think they should accept responsibility. It has been defined as non-art. So I have nothing more to say. It's not the role of the artist to talk."

He told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, "I did my work as an artist. I didn't want to talk about it. Other people have testified that it was not art. It's not my decision."

McLean's attorney, Tom Hill, said he was pleased with the decision but if McLean could afford to appeal, he probably would.

"We had a quarrel with the jury but the war ain't over yet," Hill said.

Witnesses said McLean burst in on a crowded, Dec. 2, 1980, symposium at the Fort Worth Art Museum, a discussion on how artists can survive financially outside New York City. Police were told McLean brandished two wick-topped bottles filled with a clear liquid and a plastic jug filled with gasoline.

Witnesses testified McLean loudly lectured the audience on the meaninglessness of the panel discussion when a front-row spectator tried to grab the bottles and McLean pulled out a gun and threatened the spectator.

As the crowd rushed toward the exits, the witnesses testified, McLean said, "If you don't want to play my game, I'm leaving."

The gun later was shown to be a toy and the clear liquid in the bottles was water. McLean surrendered voluntarily that same night and has contended his act was an artistic statement intended to make the audience think about its own survival and expand the panel discussion.

"I didn't intend to sustain the uneasiness very long," he said, adding that the trial has not dampened his artistic spirit.

"I will go on creating art in any media I think is suitable — painting, sculpture, print-making, maybe performance art."

Hill said in final arguments that while his client may have been guilty of poor judgment or even disturbing the peace, "his intent was not to go in there and terrorize those people."

However, prosecutor Larry Moore countered that McLean did intend to "alarm" the audience.

Panel OKs campaign reforms

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Senate committee has approved a campaign finance reform bill that would tighten campaign finance regulation and make political action committees disclose more about their membership.

The bill by Speaker Bill Clayton, D-Springlake, was approved by the State Affairs Committee on Monday, despite voluble opposition by Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston.

Ogg said he opposed the measure because it won't do any good.

"You can't legislate morality," he said after the 7-1 vote.

Money market move rejected

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Senate committee has rejected a proposal investment officers claim would threaten the only chance middle-class America has to "offset the pain of inflation."

Sen. Bill Meier's proposal would only have required money market funds to report their finances every six months to the State Banking Department.

Several witnesses, however, told the Senate Economic Development Committee the measure was part of a scheme by banks and savings and loan institutions to force the funds out of Texas.

The committee voted 6-3 Monday to table the measure.

Arnold Scott, senior vice president of Massachusetts Financial Services, said if the House-approved bill got to the Senate floor it would become a "Christmas tree for the proponents who came before this committee this morning."

"What they really want is to force money market funds out of Texas," said Scott.

A banker and representatives of savings and loan associations, builders, realtors and apartment owners supported Meier's proposal.

It was stated that money market funds have total assets of $117 billion, and DeWitt Hale of the Texas Association of Builders said $100 billion of that amount had been withdrawn from savings accounts.

Six million Americans, including 217,000 Texans, own shares of money market funds, which pay higher yields than savings accounts, the committee was told.

"Texans are now $160 million wealthier over the first four months of 1981 alone by virtue of their placement of funds in MMF's versus passbook savings accounts," testified George Morgan, finance professor at the University of Texas at Austin.

Austin lawyer C.C. Small Jr., general counsel for the Texas Savings and Loan League, said Texas savings institutions "are being crippled every day" by withdrawals that go into money market funds.

"Those being hurt are people who need capital to run businesses and to live on," said Small. "It's high time something is done in this state to help borrowers of money."

Witnesses for the funds said they already report four times a year more information than Meier's bill would require to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Texas Securities Board and six million shareholders.

Paul Jacobs of the American Association of Retired Persons said the funds "are the first and only opportunity for small investors" to fight double-digit inflation.

ANNOUNCING THE GRAND FINALE OF THE CHERBOURG CRYSTAL OFFER.

THE LAST WORD IN ELEGANCE FROM MIDLAND NATIONAL BANK.

HERE IS YOUR LAST OPPORTUNITY TO ACQUIRE THIS FINE CRYSTAL AT A VERY LOW PRICE.

Sooner or later, all good things must come to an end. So it should come as no surprise that after May 29, the Cherbourg crystal collection will no longer be available at Midland National.

And that is truly a pity. For the crystal of Cherbourg is most remarkable. Crafted in France from 24% lead crystal, the Cherbourg collection is, both in form and in function, a superb example of especially fine crystal.

Remember. The day is soon coming when you will not be able to profit from this incredible offer.

So take the time now to acquire or complete your collection of Cherbourg leaded crystal. Because after May 29, your time will be up. And our crystal will be gone.

A FITTING END TO A REMARKABLE OFFER FROM MIDLAND NATIONAL BANK.

From now through May 29, each $50 deposit in your Midland National savings account will enable you to buy a matched pair of Cherbourg French leaded crystal for only $6.95 (plus sales tax).

So do come soon to Midland National Bank. See the lovely Cherbourg collection. And take advantage of a wonderful offer that, unfortunately, won't last forever.

Eminent female geologist discusses her work

Dr. Tanya Atwater

By NANCY LORD
Lifestyle Writer

Geology may be the best profession to be in, according to Dr. Tanya Atwater, a geologist who was in Midland last week to teach a class at the Permian Basin Graduate Center.

She said the field of geology offers very good pay, interesting work and the opportunity to travel, plus a great deal of self-respect.

Dr. Atwater is a professor of geology at The University of California at Santa Barbara. She received her doctorate from Script's Institute of Oceanography. She also taught at Massachusetts Institute of Technology for six years.

Originally an engineering major, she said she got into geology by accident about halfway through undergraduate school. She took a geology class and liked it so much, she decided to change majors.

"You see a lot more after taking a geology class and have a broader perspective of the world," she explained.

She said geology is a study of why the world looks the way it does. There are many branches of geology, according to Dr. Atwater, including petroleum geology. Geologists may also be involved in all types of mining, environmental studies and city planning, she noted.

Dr. Atwater says that she had some difficulty being accepted in a profession that is predominately male, especially when she wanted to go on oceanography expeditions.

"The ships were built with the idea that only men would be on them," she remembered. At first, the women had to sleep on the floor of the laboratory rather than in the bunk room with the men. After a while, they were allowed to sleep in the bunk room with curtains around their beds.

She goes on these expeditions about twice a year and says that there are more and more women accompanying them each time.

Dr. Atwater has a six-year-old son named Alyosha. She said he more or less accepts the long hours she works and has become accustomed to having his mother go out to sea twice a year.

"Until recently, he just assumed that everyone's mother was a geologist," she noted.

She is careful to spend enough time with her son, however, and often takes him along when she goes on field trips. "Children should be mixed into work places more than they are," she stated. She feels that by doing this, children will be better equipped to handle working situations when they are older.

"There's a lot of guilt put on women who work today," she said. But she said it is important for women to prepare themselves in a career that they will enjoy and can make a living at.

"It's a sadistical fact that most women end up supporting themselves," she said.

She feels that many women do themselves in by quitting math early in their schooling, thereby wiping out all of the science fields.

"If you work hard and pay attention, you can do anything you want," she said. "It's nice to be smart, but that's not the main ingredient."

AT WIT'S END

Keep it clean

By ERMA BOMBECK

When the kids were growing up, no one was more of an anti-mess militant than I. Call me a fanatic. Call me strict. Call me picky. But I insisted all food stored under the beds had to be covered. Windows had to be kept closed at all times to keep the pollution localized. And dead pets had to be buried underground.

That's when I was the nagger and they were the naggees.

The other day my son walked into my office and observed, "This place is a dump!"

"If you don't like it," I said, "you don't have to look at it. Just close the door."

"If I close the door, it's still a part of the house. What are you doing with dead flowers on your desk?"

"DON'T TOUCH MY DESK!" I said. "I know where everything is."

"And these old coffee cups. I cannot believe you are too lazy to carry them out to the kitchen."

"Look, do I come in your apartment and tell you how to live? This office is warm and lived-in and efficient. Everything I need is in the wastebasket and everything that should be thrown out is on my desk."

"My friends will never believe me when I tell them about this room," he said. "When was the last time this ironing board was down?"

"In 1971. The year we moved."

"And I suppose you are going to tell me you are going to return that soft drink cooler from wherever you got it?"

"I told you I'd return it to the garage and I will . . . when I get time."

"I certainly hope you're cleaner when you visit people. I'd be embarrassed to death to have people think you were my mother."

"You are confusing neat with clean. I wash my hair every day."

"I know. I just checked your bathroom and there are 36 pounds of hair in the drain. Is this sweater dirty?"

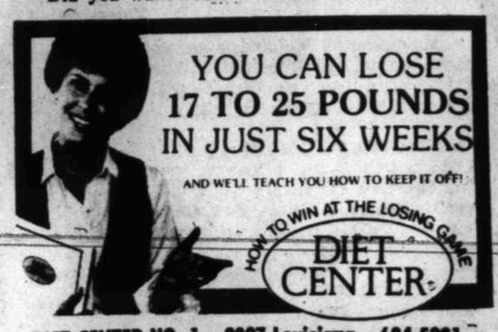

"No."

"Then what is it doing on the floor?" he asked.

"Did you want something?"

"I wanted to tell you to pick up this place. I have friends coming over."

Kids! I'll be glad when I can get my own apartment.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Placing blankets on clothes hangers saves space

Dear Heloise: To save space when storing blankets, I put them on coat hangers and hang them in various closets.

Easier than having to reach on a high shelf, and it's a very convenient way of getting them when you need extra bedding for guests, or whomever.

I got so efficient (ha) that I covered them with plastic garment bags so they were protected, using clear ones so they could be seen through. — Mrs. V.H.

SANDED SOLES

Dear Heloise: I take my slippery soled shoes to my shoe repair man and he sands them down slightly on his sanding machine.

This really works much better than trying to do it at home with a piece of sandpaper. — Marguerite Mahek

PACKING POINTERS

Dear Heloise: You asked for tips on packing. My husband always does his own, and very neatly I might add. Two of the things he does may be of interest to other men.

He rolls one pair of shorts, an undershirt and a pair of socks together, leaving the tip of the sock hanging out so he can easily choose the color socks he needs for the day.

He also clips his tie pin to his tie so he won't forget it or have to hunt for it.

A little thought beforehand saves him precious minutes on the road. — Ann McChesney

HANDY FOR SPILLS

Dear Heloise: If you have kids who drink soda pop, etc., in the car, keep a couple of disposable diapers folded under the front seat.

The day that inevitable spill occurs, you'll be amazed at how the diaper soaks up the mess in one big gulp. — Lynn C.

MAKE A DRAIN BASKET

Dear Heloise: If the holes in your kitchen sink drain are too large, remove the top of a scouring powder can. Twist a small loop of wire through two of the holes for easy handling.

The top fits right in most drains and keeps small objects from going down the large holes.

This is a good stop-gap measure to use when you don't have a drain basket. — Mary De Rose

Emerson sets kindergarten roundup

Emerson Parent Teacher's Association will host a kindergarten roundup at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in the school cafeteria.

Program provides the prospective kindergarten student and his parents an opportunity to visit the school, meet the faculty members and pre-enroll for the upcoming school year.

Parents should bring the child's birth certificate and current immunization record to the porgram to aid in proper registration.

Present kindergarten classes, led by Donna Rice and Carol Whitfield, will entertain parents and children with a program that shows some of the skills that are learned during the first year of school.

Parents will also be given information concerning teacher conferences, supervised non-class times and traffic safety information, as well as information about the services provided by the school and PTA projects.

This program was awarded state-wide recognition by the Texas PTA and Grolier Educational Services in November 1980.

Submitted as an entry in the state's project participation program, Emerson's roundup was selected as one of two school PTA programs in the state to win awards in November.

School received a Grolier Study Skills Kit for use by students. Kit provides tools to improve reading, listening, testing, library, research and planning skills.

Since this is an archaeological dig, a professional consultant was asked to be the on-site coordinator. Mrs. Eunice Barkes of Midland, who has been an archaeologist in this area for many years, says that she is excited about the prospect of excavating unexplored ground.

The event will take place on Hat-A Ranch, a Girl Scout camp that was given to the Permian Basin Council by the Arthur Gloster Harral family of Fort Stockton. This location is rich in Indian artifacts and history. The ranch itself has many historical points of interest. Near the house are flint hills, Indian grinding stones, rock mounds, mescal pits and fossil beds.

Hat-A is a working sheep ranch, and has been so since the end of the Civil War

The 55 girls that will be attending this event will also discover just how hot West Texas can be. They will all be presented with Cowboy hats for use on the digging site...

DEAR ABBY

Off-the-street credit valid?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: In reference to the woman who brought her son to a doctor's office in an emergency without her checkbook: I assure you this happens all too often.

My husband is a veterinarian and I help in his office. "I forgot my checkbook" is a common excuse. It is often months and many reminders later before we're paid.

There are few products and services we can get without cash, check or charge (established credit, that is). And I'd like to see you get your car out of a garage after it's been repaired by saying, "I forgot my checkbook."

It's time for the consumer to realize that nothing is free, and there is no reason why a doctor or any other professional should extend credit to anyone who comes in off the street. — TIRED OF THOSE "CHECKS-IN-THE-MAIL"

DEAR TIRED: I agree. But in this case, the patient wasn't "off the street"; he was referred by his regular physician who was unavailable at the time of this emergency. Also, you can't compare a human with a broken arm to a Honda with a broken axle.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 years old and have a problem. Softball starts soon, and it falls on the same day as my clarinet lesson. My parents want me to continue my clarinet lessons, but my softball coach can't change the practice time.

My clarinet instructor can't change my lesson time either. I want to play softball. Your reply will help us decide. — L. WAGNER, ELKHORN, NEB.

DEAR L.: Appeal to your clarinet teacher again. Surely there is one pupil who will change the time of his (or her) lesson to accommodate you. While sports is as important as music, a town the size of Elkhorn can't afford to lose a clarinetist to the softball team.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to a letter written to you from HAD IT WITH SITTERS.

I am a 13-year-old who does a lot of baby-sitting. And like all my friends, I get paid $1 an hour. That includes feeding, bathing and, if necessary, changing diapers. After putting the kids to bed, I am expected to empty the dishwasher and wash and load the dishes used at dinner. After that, I clean up all the messes made by the kids. All of the work is done for that same $1 an hour. It's not easy because some kids like to test a new baby sitter by being little monsters.

Most adults don't understand that the main reason that kids my age baby-sit is because they aren't old enough to get a job that pays minimum wage. So if you think all baby sitters are the same, I got news for you, HAD IT WITH SITTERS! Signed ... HAD IT WITH BIGMOUTHS

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, May 20, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Film great Jimmy Stewart and singer/entertainer Cher celebrate this birthday with you. Today was also the birthday of such famous people as writer Honore de Balzac, painter Henri Rousseau and First Lady Dolly Madison. The coming year holds the promise of great progress on many different fronts, but work involving old-fashioned service to others will pay the best dividends. Imaginative and generous, you are highly sensitive to need and injustice. Employment disputes require very careful handling. Be sure you have all the facts before making a major business decision. Friends mean well but could cause you financial difficulties. Romance is happiest in September, November.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Set your sights higher! Others will respond favorably to positive leadership. Keep spending to a minimum. Share inexpensive pastimes, hobbies with mate or close friend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Authority figure will applaud the extra effort you make today. A raise or promotion is in the works. Seize a unique opportunity to improve communication with overseas contacts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Devote more attention to planning for future financial security. Someone behind the scenes will do you a big favor. Check travel arrangements. Protect important documents.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The atmosphere is harmonious at both work and home. Business, financial discussions with partner are more productive than in the recent past. Balance duty with pleasure this evening.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You can make sizable financial gains now. Unexpected rewards come from unusual sources. Learn to delegate more responsibility. Get out and about more. New friends bring fresh insights.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Money matters may cause arguments today. Base any objections you may have on facts. A compromise could help you save face. Postpone signing agreements. Sweet reason will win out!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You receive excellent tips from abroad. Business travel may be necessary. Have your passport in readiness. Check with mate before accepting or regretting an unusual invitation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Those who are self-employed should fare especially well today. Do not cut corners. Make allowances for someone else's stubbornness and you will emerge a winner.

SAGITARRIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Obstacles that arise in early morning will soon disappear. Direct your energies toward constructive goals. A new idea helps increase profits. Loved one has valuable advice to offer.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.19): Do not let a tendency to be stubborn alienate others. Follow up on projects that were begun yesterday. Family life is harmonious. New friends add excitement to the social scene.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You can make beneficial agreements with people from your past. Push harder to attain goals. Pay your own way if going out tonight. It will keep you from being indebted.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be extra tactful around family members this morning. Use logic when reasoning with mate or partner. It is not a good idea to isolate yourself right now. Share workload.

"Gentlemen:

"I know that, in the past, you have written that players who complain about chronic bad luck usually need to brush up on their play. But look at this misfortune I encountered on a recent deal, which is typical of the way things have been running for me lately at the table.

"We reached an excellent four spade contract in quick time. A heart was led and I finessed the jack, which lost to the king. Back came a diamond, and the finesse of the nine lost to the queen. I won the heart return in dummy and tried the king of spades, only to learn that I had a trump loser as well. So I took a second finesse in diamonds and, naturally, that lost.

"I went down one, but look at what had to go wrong: Trumps had to break 3-0; the heart finesse had to lose; and both diamond honors had to be wrong. I am not enough of a mathematician to work out the probabilities, but to me it seems devilishly unlucky.

"A Faithful Reader"

Yours is indeed a harrowing tale, and must be close to the unluckiest we have come across in some time. We say close, because despite the unfortunate distribution, you should still have made your contract.

If you can hold your diamond losers to one, you can afford to lose a trick in each major. Therefore, you should win the ace of hearts at trick one. Now a trump to the ace reveals the sad news in trumps, but you can prepare for an end play.

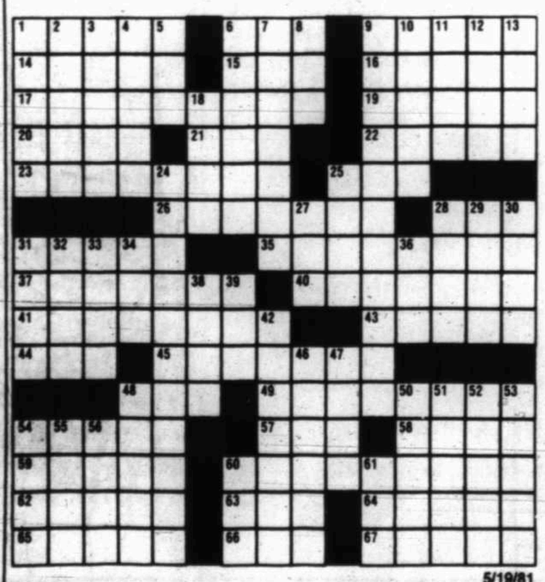

Cash the ace-king of clubs and ruff a club, then cash the king of spades. Now simply exit with a heart. If the finesse would have succeeded, West must win this trick and must then either lead a heart or a club, giving you a ruff-and-sluff, or a diamond. In all cases, you lose only one diamond.

As the cards lie, East wins the king of hearts. He can cash a spade winner if he chooses, and then shift to a diamond. You insert the nine. West wins the queen, but again he is end played. He must yield a ruff-and-sluff or lead a diamond into the ace-jack. Again, your contract is secure.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. For a copy and a scorepad, send $1.75 to "Goren-Four Deal," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to Newspaperbooks.

DEATHS

Betty Ringhoffer

STANTON — Betty Jo Ringhoffer, 54, of Stanton, died Monday at a Stanton nursing home after a lengthy illness.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the First United Methodist Church in Stanton with the Rev. Ricky Jones, pastor of the Church of God in Stanton, officiating. Graveside services will be at 4 p.m. Wednesday at Cedar Hill Cemetery in Abilene under the direction of Gilbreath Funeral Home.

She was born March 12, 1927, in Abilene. She moved to Stanton 30 years ago from Abilene. She was employed as a nurse at Stanton View Manor. She was married to Henry Ringhoffer in June 1967 at Stanton.

Survivors include her husband of Stanton; her mother, Destie Philley of Abilene; two aunts and two uncles.

Mittie Norman

Graveside services for Mittie G. Norman, 93, of 2011 W. Ohio Ave. were to be at 4 p.m. today at the Fairview Cemetery, directed by Newnie Ellis Funeral Home.

She died Monday morning in a Midland nursing home.

She was born March 2, 1888, in Marietta, Miss. She was reared in Booneville, Miss. She taught school in Mississippi and Oklahoma. She married Joe Norman in 1918 in Stickler, Okla. He died in 1940. She lived in McPherson, Kan., before moving to Midland in 1935. She was a member of the First Christian Church. She also belonged to the P.E.O.

Survivors include a son, Joe Norman Jr. of San Antonio; a brother, Paul George of Memphis, Miss.; a sister, Marie Mixon of Clemson, S.C.; and a granddaughter.

Albert Sipe

Services for Albert W. Sipe, 85, of 4738 Wilshire Drive, were to be at 10 a.m. today at the Memorial Park Cemetery in Amarillo.

He died Monday in a Big Spring nursing home following an illness.

Sipe was born May 30, 1895, in McKeesport, Pa., but grew up in Indiana. He was a veteran of World War I and II. During the 1930s he was a probation officer under then County Judge Harry S. Truman in Jefferson County, Mo. When he retired from government work, Sipe entered the restaurant business in Amarillo, but moved to Midland one year ago.

Sipe was a member of First Christian Church and the Hanson Post No. 54 of the American Legion Post in Amarillo. He was also a Mason.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Edna Sipe, of Midland; a daughter, Mrs. Jack Hightower, of Midland; a half-brother, J. Marvin Sipe, of Houston; and a grandson.

Pallbearers were to be members of the American Legion Post No. 54 in Amarillo.

Honorary pallbearers were Joe Cummins, Clinton Adams, Bill Sherman, Barney Hightower and Blake Hightower.

The family requests memorials be sent to the First Christian Church of Midland.

Floyd Sharp

MARIETTA, Okla. — Services for Floyd A. Sharp, 47, a Midland drilling superintendent who died Thursday while on an out-of-town oilfield assignment, were held Monday in the First Baptist Church of Marietta. Burial was in Lakeview Cemetery, directed by Goodrich Funeral Home.

Sharp, a drilling superintendent for Gulf Oil Corp., died of an apparent heart attack Thursday in Seymour.

He was born June 12, 1933, in Greenville, Okla., was a graduate of Meadowbrook High School in Love County, Okla., and was a member of Moose Lodge 2084 in Hobbs, N.M., and the Ranchland Baptist Church.

Sharp had lived in Midland since 1959 and had worked for Marcum Drilling Co. in Midland for 24 years before he joined Gulf. He lived off Tower Road southwest of Midland.

Survivors include his wife, Joyce; a son, Allen Sharp of Midland, three daughters, Velma Joyce Hill, Sue Lewis and Betty May, all of Midland; his mother, Willie Sharp of Lone Grove, Okla.; a brother; Deward Sharp of Plano; three sisters, Velma Hunter of Lone Grove, Doris Fomby of Gainesville, Texas, and Marie Kays of Hobbs, N.M.; and five grandchildren.

Katie Lloyd Dyer

Services for Katie Lloyd Dyer, 92, a Midland pioneer, were to be at 3 p.m. today in the Presbyterian Church in Barstow with burial in Barstow Cemetery directed by Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Dyer died Sunday at her home.

Pallbearers were to be W.L. Fuller and Wendell Nichols, both of Barstow; Jim Ed Miller of Pecos; and James T. Smith, Richard Saxe and Bobby Sanders, all of Midland.

William Sanders

Services for William M. Sanders, 88, of 1408 S. Fort Worth St., will be at 3 p.m. Thursday in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Ray White of North Main Church of Christ will be officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Sanders was born Feb. 12, 1893, in Upshur County and reared in East Texas. He was a resident of Midland for 66 years after living in Sweetwater.

He was associated with Merchants Fast Motor Lines from its inception and was an agent for 27 years. He retired in 1960. Sanders was a member of North Main Church of Christ.

Survivors include a son, Foy Sanders of Garland; two brothers, Veste Sanders of Dallas and Harley Sanders of Dallas; eight grandchildren and 21 great grandchildren.

George McCraw

Services for George H. McCraw, 86, of 2800 W. Illinois Ave., were to be at 11 a.m. today in the Newnie W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. John Danhof of Trinity Presbyterian Church officiating. Burial will be in Rosehill Cemetery in Fort Worth.

McCraw died Sunday morning.

Born Dec. 30, 1894, in Krum, McCraw was reared in Krum and Denton. He entered the service during World War I. After his discharge, he lived in Denton, Sanger and Ardmore, Okla. He went to work for the U.S. Postal Service in Ardmore, Okla. He moved to Fort Worth in 1927. He married Ollie Mae Norman in 1918. She died in 1970. He then moved to Midland in 1975. He was a member of the Methodist Church.

Survivors include a son, Delmon R. McCraw of Midland; a daughter, Georgia Mae George of Ruidoso, N.M.; a brother, Rosco McCraw of San Antonio; a sister, Viola Chalfant of Denver, Colo.; six grandchildren, seven great-grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Memorials are to be directed to Trinity Towers in Midland.

Butz agrees to plead guilty

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Former Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz has agreed to plead guilty to a complaint in relation to a federal tax violation charge, a newspaper reported Monday.

The Indianapolis Star quoted David T. Ready, U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Indiana, as saying he had concluded negotiating both the plea and the process that will be used to charge Butz. Ready declined to say what charge Butz will plead guilty to, the newspaper said.

Ready said the tax violations did not relate to the time that Butz served as agriculture secretary, according to the Star.

Butz, reached by The Associated Press in Fargo, N.D., where he was to speak at a meeting of the North Dakota Banker's Association, said "I'm not making any comment" when asked about the report.

The newspaper reported Butz earlier had said he cooperated with the Internal Revenue Service in an audit of his tax returns.

Ready said Butz is scheduled to appear Friday before U.S. District Judge Jesse E. Eshbach, waive his right to be indicted by a federal grand jury, be charged by an information complaint and plead guilty, the newspaper reported.

The U.S. attorney declined to discuss the amount of money the government will charge Butz with failing to report, saying the exact figure would be entered into the public record on Friday.

Arrested man 'forgotten'

WASHINGTON (AP) — District of Columbia police left a Virginia man locked in a paddy wagon for 14 hours, officials confirmed Monday.

Felden Louis Callahan Jr., 43, of The Pains, Va. was arrested Friday night and charged with carrying a dangerous weapon — a shotgun, according to police.

What police cannot explain is how Callahan was left to spend all that time locked in a paddy wagon parked in front of a precinct station, where he was supposed to have been released on bond after the trip back from being photographed and fingerprinted at headquarters.

Fourteen hours after Callahan was arrested, a passing officer heard him screaming "Let me out," and kicking the door of the paddy wagon.

Deputy Chief Rodwell M. Catoe said Monday an investigation had been ordered. Catoe refused to identify any of the officers involved.

Leave us in 19th

One doesn't have to be politically astute to recognize the wisdom behind the decision of the executive committee of the Midland Chamber of Commerce reiterating the importance of leaving Midland County in the 19th Congressional District.

It's easy to understand because the Legislature's proposals to remove Midland County from the 19th District make no sense whatsoever. Midland County's best interests will be served by allowing it to remain in the 19th District, represented by Congressman Kent Hance of Lubbock.

Yet both redistricting plans for the House and Senate in Austin call for removing Midland from the 19th and lumping it with the sprawling 21st district which includes San Antonio and San Angelo as well as much of the Hill Country.

What is created in both plans is a "hanger-on" sort of situation, with Midland County kind of stuck off on the uppermost edge of the proposed 21st Congressional District. On the map, the impression is that this vital area would be little more than an afterthought — in either plan.

Despite the abilities of the various legislators involved, Midland could wind up in such an unfavorable situation.

The interests and problems facing most of the communities in the 21st District, San Antonio for example, hardly can be compared to those facing the Petroplex cities of Midland and Odessa.

Common sense alone should dictate that Ector and Midland counties be together in any congressional redistricting plan. Yet the cities would be separated in either the House or Senate version.

At least one West Texas newspaper has even inferred that Rep. Hance favors the loss of Midland County from his district for "political reasons," an assertion the congressman, understandably, has denied. He is a capable representative who has served Midland County and all of the 19th District well since his election, showing an interest in and an awareness of the problems unique to Midland, this area and the petroleum industry.

Texas is a large state with long distances between many of the major and medium-sized cities, and we realize that redistricting is no simple chore here. But we can only hope that a new more sensible and workable plan can be designed. Midland County should be left in the 19th Congressional District.

Spending falls short

Defense ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations, meeting in Belgium, renewed their pledge to increase defense spending 3 percent a year, after allowing for inflation.

That's good, even though the same pledge was made in 1977 and has been renewed every year thereafter without producing the desired results in most of the nations.

Performance often falls short of promise. Domestic politics in every country means that defense ministers do not always have their way.

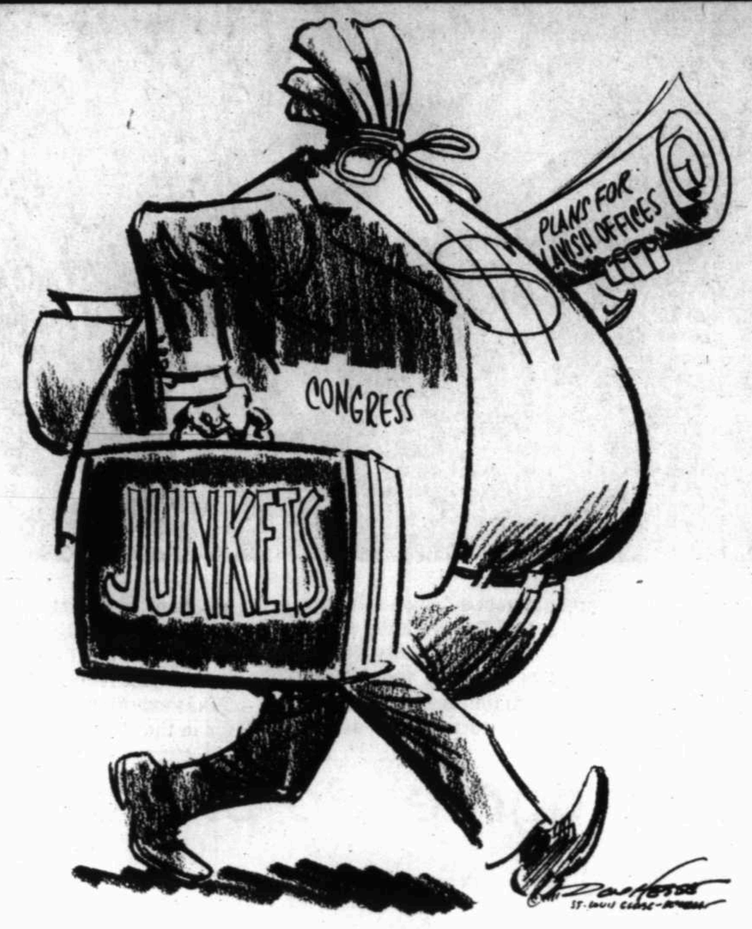

According to Fortune magazine, four nations met or exceeded the goal, taking an average for the last two years. They were the United States, 3.6 percent annually, France, 3 percent, Portugal, 3.2 percent, and Luxembourg, 9.9 percent.

The lower figures were for Britain, 2.8 percent, Germany, the Netherlands, Norway and Turkey, all 2.3 percent, Belgium, 2 percent, Italy, 1.6 percent, and Greece and Denmark, far behind.

Year-to-year comparisons are not really so important. What counts is the long run.

Over the last 10 years, Fortune says the real growth in defense outlays was negative for the United States (a minus-0.7 percent average per year for the period, 1971-1980). Meanwhile, all the other NATO partners except Portugal showed increases for the same period.

We must not be peremptory with our allies. We will achieve more if we are clear and consistent in our own defense policy and foreign policy, if we recognize the political and economic problems of others, and if we keep the pressure gentle.

CHARLEY REESE

Real 'crisis' in education spiraling unnecessary costs

Charley Reese

It should tell us something when the taxpayers have to provide loans to the taxpayers so they can attend the university system the taxpayers have provided.

Every year now, so long as I have been around government, there has been an annual "crisis" in education which occurs as regularly as the earth's revolutions. The cry is always that education costs are going up and that, to be sure, is true.

The trouble is our legislators have failed to ask the right question. Instead of asking every year, how can we fund the increased cost of education, they should be asking, how can we reduce the cost of education?

Just to stimulate your thinking, let me suggest a few things.

One way to reduce education costs is to eliminate campuses. Classrooms, students and teachers are necessary for an education, but broad expanses of landscaped terrain are not. One reason community colleges are able to provide, as a rule, two years of academic education cheaper than a four-year school is that they have generally not been as land-hungry.

Conceivably, college classrooms could be built in high-rise type buildings or even set up in existing office buildings. Students could sleep and eat at home.

Physical education, with its gymnasiums, playing fields and swimming pools, could be eliminated. It would be cheaper for parents to buy their students a membership in a private health club than to fund all this stuff.

Specialization could be made a reality. There is no reason for a student seeking a degree in accounting or business administration to pay for multi-million dollar facilities for physics or fine arts. One can certainly teach the business administration major humanities and basic science without expensive theatres and laboratories.

Standardized text books could be adopted — and kept for a period of years. One of the greatest con jobs going is the notion that textbooks have to be changed almost semester by semester because of the "knowledge explosion."

When you consider that the job of a university is to teach the basic facts, principles and methodologies, then you can see what nonsense this is. No, it's not nonsense. It's a publishing racket. Most of the "new" information is of interest only to specialists, not to undergraduates. Continuing "revisions" mean that students cannot buy used books.

Curricula could be streamlined. A casual glance at any university catalogue will reveal to anyone a number of marginal courses without which no student would suffer. The State of Florida, for example, offers over 1,000 hours of instruction in education.

What we the taxpayers must realize is that we can no longer afford to let architects whose primary source of income is tax-paid buildings to tell us how to design our schools nor can we determine the structure of education.

Educators always say they need smaller student-teacher ratios to produce quality education. A recent Harvard study found this not to be true. Since 1971-72, public school enrollment has dropped from 46 million to 43 million while revenue has increased from $50 billion to $80 billion. During the same period, Scholastic Aptitude Test score averages have dropped from 453 to 429 (verbal) and from 484 to 468 (quantitative).

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

AID abuse making rich Egyptians richer

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Salah Taroty is a prominent member of the Egyptian parliament, a wealthy lawyer and the owner of much valuable real estate. He is also the recipient of a low-interest $30,000 loan from the U.S. Agency for International Development to buy equipment for a Wimpy fast-food restaurant he is building.

Katthouh Hassan made a fortune as an Egyptian government contractor, and is now getting into the hotel business by building the luxury-class Uncle Sam Hotel. The name is appropriate: Hassan got a $1 million AID loan to buy elevators, furniture and other supplies for his hotel.

Kamal Hanna, a millionaire who owns 10 companies and part of two Egyptian banks, hit up AID for a $1 million loan to buy construction equipment — most of which he resold to the Egyptian government at an undisclosed profit.

Why is a U.S. agency, whose purpose is to help the world's needy, laying out the American taxpayers' money for the benefit of Faroukian fatcats along the Nile? The answer seems to be that this is the price successive administrations have felt they had to pay to "buy" peace between Israel and Egypt.

When Henry Kissinger sweetened the peace pot for Anwar Sadat in 1975 with a promise of U.S. aid, Kissinger pledged $750 million a year to Egypt. How he came up with that amount is anyone's guess. A Senate source told my reporter John Dillon that the then-secretary of state pulled the $750 million figure "out of a hat."

The result was that AID had to scramble to find ways to spend the money Egypt had been promised. "It was more money than they had projects down the line for," said the Senate insider.

In fact, the amount of economic assistance going to Egypt is now running over $1 billion a year. If the agency had used its usual criteria for granting loans, Egypt would be getting only about $200 million a year. But because of the link between U.S. assistance and the peace accords with Israel, Egypt's AID program is not typical at all.

The commitment to peace is a worthy undertaking, and certainly less costly than a resumption of hostilities between Israel and Egypt would be. But if the American taxpayers are bearing the cost of the peacekeeping effort, they are at least entitled to feel that their money is being properly spent.

Unfortunately, as my roving correspondent Peter Grant found during a month's investigation in Egypt, the AID program is floundering in a morass of waste, corruption and bureaucratic incompetence.

With American blessings, President Sadat has been trying to encourage a rebirth of private business, which all but died out during the socialist fervor of Gamal Abdel Nasser's regime. AID has been pumping hundreds of millions of dollars into this private sector renaissance.

"Only private businessmen can provide the investment and jobs Egypt so desperately needs," explained one U.S. embassy official, adding: "It also makes it harder to turn the clock back to socialism."

But Grant found that in practice, AID programs seem to be doing little more than making rich Egyptians richer. Many of the low-interest loans produced no new jobs, and most have gone to millionaires already well established in the Egyptian ruling elite.

For example, AID officials estimate that about 70 percent of the $100 million a year available for low-interest loans has gone to Egyptian importers. The agency explains that this helps the economy by making hard-to-get items available for Egyptian businessmen. But, in fact, Grant found, the goods were usually resold, not to other businessmen, but to the government, which already had access to the same goods. The importers, of course, made a fat profit on the resale.

While the corporate fatcats are getting fatter on AID's loan diet, the lean and hungry bureaucrats are also stealing a few scraps. Because the civil service is used as an unemployment cure, each government ministry has about five times as many employees as it really needs. Salaries are ridiculously low, and many officials make up for this with the time-honored extraction of "baksheesh" from those doing business with the government.

AID projects can be stalled for months while the contractors try to get needed equipment and material through the Byzantine maze of the Egyptian customs service. The easiest way to expedite delivery is to bribe civil servants to cut the red tape.

As Egypt's hungry masses wait for the AID money to trickle down to their level, they have one consolation: If American aid helps keep the peace, at least they won't be cannon fodder in another Israeli-Egyptian war.

●

WHO'S GOT A SECRET? — The government has a truly awesome number of documents stamped "confidential," "secret" and "top secret." But General Accounting Office auditors found that contractors for the Defense Department don't have the foggiest notion of what should be classified.

Of 496 documents the GAO examined, an incredible 90 percent were found to be improperly stamped. The errors ran both ways: (1) stamping something with a classified designation when in fact there were no secrets in it, and (2) failing to protect sensitive national security information with a classified stamp. The GAO concluded the Pentagon doesn't give its contractors adequate training.

●

WATCH ON WASTE — Dismayed by reports that some Customs Service officers were making $30,000 and $40,000 a year in overtime alone, Congress told the agency to clamp down. So now, while the service's overtime is still running high — about $26 million a year in public funds — the taxpayers are also getting stuck with a $541,000 bill to hire people to run the special program to cut down on overtime.

INSIDE REPORT:

AFL-CIO pushing for Poland's Walesa as ILO representative

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Evans

Novak

WASHINGTON — The AFL-CIO will cause trouble at the International Labor Organization (ILO) in Geneva next month if the communist government of Poland fails to send Solidarity leader Lech Walesa or one of his aides as Poland's "worker delegate."

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland is quitely passing word to free-world labor movements that he will stage a credentials fight to block the sitting of a bogus communist worker delegate. Kirkland also will demonstrate AFL-CIO anger by the ceremonial award of the George Meany Human Rights Memorial to Solidarity. Walesa is certain to attend the ILO session even if he is not named the Polish worker delegate, and would be asked to receive the award personally.

But if the Polish government plays straight and sends Walesa to Geneva as the official worker delegate, Kirkland will postpone the Meany award until the AFL-CIO's annual convention in mid-November. Walesa soon will be invited to attend the convention.

SOCIAL SECURITY BLUES

President Reagan's political operatives in the White House were unpleasantly surprised by his Social Security belt-tightening, which they fear endangers new Republican gains in the Deep South.

"I can't fathom it," one such aide confided to us. "The great minds must have a deeper purpose that I can't comprehend." That deeper purpose, in fact, was to reassure financial markets to show the president means business on the budget.

The Social Security cut also came as a shock to the Republican National Committee, whose April-May newsletter for senior citizens bragged about no change in Social Security. "President Reagan keeps promise, retirement benefits go untouched," said the newsletter's headline.

HAIG-BAKER 'LOVE' SET

Secretary of State Alexander Haig and White House chief of staff James Baker, who have been fighting the Reagan administration's worst personal feud, are now a doubles team in tennis.

Haig and Baker purposely teamed up and the word was purposely spread around Washington that their power struggle had been sublimated to cooperation on the tennis court. That symbol reflected the realization that the White House staff onslaught on Haig was damaging not only Haig but the president and U.S. foreign policy.

Haig and Baker played Michael Deaver, deputy White House chief of staff, and Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada on the White House court. Haig and Baker won.

SNOOPERS' TEAM B

President Reagan's plans to revive the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board (PFIAB) include transforming it into something of a permanent "Team B," making its own estimates of Soviet strength to compete with the Central Intelligence Agency's (CIA).

Team B was the name given the group of outside experts appointed by President Ford in 1976 to give a Soviet intelligence estimate, independent of the CIA's. Team B produced a much higher estimate of the Kremlin's prowess, an evaluation pooh-poohed by the Carter administration. President Carter's attitude toward such outside intelligence estimates was reflected when he quickly abolished PFIAB.

A footnote: Texas Republican leader Anne Armstrong, a member of the Ford Cabinet and later ambassador to Britain, is the leading candidate to become PFIAB chairman. But San Francisco banker Laurence Silberman, who held subcabinet posts and later was ambassador to Yugoslavia during the Nixon-Ford administration, has strong conservative backing for the post.

REAGAN DEMOCRATS

Contrary to expectations, the conservative Democratic senators who visited President Reagan May 13 did not discuss the vital tax bill until the last moment of their meeting, but instead concentrated on law enforcement issues.

Their meeting shared a common hard line against crime. As they left, the president commented that he assumed they were all in just as much agreement on taxes. That brought laughter, considering the variety of views on the tax question. But on the previous day, 11 of the 14 non-Republican senators present at the White House had voted against an effort to knock the Reagan tax program out of the budget resolution.

The enlistment of the veteran Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi brings the number of Democrats in the loosely-organized Conservative Caucus to 13. A 14th senator attended the White House meeting: Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia, the Senate's only independent, who sits on the Democratic side of the aisle.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, May 19, the 139th day of 1981. There are 226 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On May 19, the 130 ships of the Spanish Armada sailed from Lisbon, Portugal to attack England.

On this date:

In 1536, Anne Boleyn, the second queen of England's Henry VIH was beheaded.

In 1649, England was declared a Commonwealth.

In 1792, Russia invaded Poland.

In 1943, Britain's Prime Minister Winston Churchill addressed the U.S. Congress and pledged full British support in the war against Japan.

In 1945, more than 400 U.S. Superfortress bombers attacked Tokyo during World War II.

Ten years ago: Canada's Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin signed an agreement in Moscow to establish regular high-level contacts between their countries.

Five years ago: The Senate voted to establish a permanent committee on intelligence to oversee activities of the CIA.

One year ago: Florida's Gov. Bob Graham ordered 2,500 more National Guard troops to Miami as the death toll rose to 15 in the violence stemming from a jury's acquittal of four white ex-policemen in the death of a black businessman.

Today's birthday: Labor arbitrator Theodore Kheel is 67 years old.

Thought for today: We first make our habits, and then our habits make us. — English poet John Dryden.

Clayton hosts speakers' reunion

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The current members honored the current speaker, and the current speaker honored the former members. It was Speaker's Day in the House on Monday and Speaker Bill Clayton celebrated by hosting the first reunion of all former members.

Nine former speakers were introduced, and about 275 former members lined up to introduce themselves.

"This is the first time in my 20 years here that we've allowed lobbyists on the floor of the House," Clayton said as he gazed out on the former lawmakers, many of whom have become law-pushers.

The older former members returned to a changed chamber. There's electronic voting now, and each representatives is backed by a staff of aides and secretaries.

It was not the way Harry McKee, 88, recalled the Depression-era House he served in from Port Arthur.

"We served for $10-a-day and we didn't have administrative assistants," he told the House, recalling the bank of stenographers who waited at the back of the House.

McKee lost by a year to Charlie Pigg of Waxahachie in the oldest former member contest. Pigg, who served from 1943 to 1950, drew no opposition from the current lawmakers when he said, "I do believe all members of the Texas Legislature are just a little bit above the average fellow in morality and intelligence."

Pigg said he once drew support for a bill by saying he was a distant relative of former Texas Gov. Jim Hogg.

Jess Osborne, who once represented the West Texas district Clayton now serves, was the third oldest alumnus at 86.

House Dean Bill Heatly, D-Paducah, looked at former members and warned his colleagues, "All these old men ... they're the ones who saved Texas. Let's not give it away." Heatly, a 14-term member, introduced former Speakers Robert Calvert, Claude Gilmer, Durwood Manford, Ruben Senterfitt, Waggoner Carr, Byron Tunnell, Ben Barnes, Jim Turman and Rayford Price.

Most of the former members announced only their name and years served. Others could not resist the lure of the front microphone in the House.

"In four years in the House and 18 years as a lobbyist I never lost a vote in the House," boasted D.W. Buchanan of New Braunfels, who later became a Texas Brewers Institute lobbyist.

Texas legislators take action as end of session approaches

By KEN ORTOLON
Austin Bureau Writer

AUSTIN — As legislators moved into the last two full weeks of their session, the Senate finally gave approval to the controversial "redfish" bill and voted out a $26.6 billion spending bill for the 1982-83 biennium, while the House rejected a bill that would have repealed substantial portions of the 1979 property tax reform legislation.

The Senate voted 27-3 to approve its $26.6 billion Appropriations Bill, with only Sens. Lloyd Doggett of Austin, Bill Meier of Euless and Walter Mengden of Houston voting against the measure.

The Senate measure is $191 million over the current estimate of revenues that will be available for the biennium, and is slightly higher than the $26.55 million budget passed by the House.

Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, succeeded in gaining approval for the bill after defeating an amendment by Meier that would have called for a 5 percent, across-the-board cut in the bill. The amendment was tabled by a 25-5 vote, with only Meier, Mengden and Sens. James E. "Buster" Brown of Lake Jackson, Dee Travis of Garland and Lindon Williams of Houston voting for the amendment.

The "redfish" bill, which outlaws the commercial catching of redfish and speckled sea trout for a two-year period, finally passed on nonrecord, voice vote after being stalled in Senate committees for some two months.

On the House said, Orange Rep. Wayne Peveto succeeded in tabling House Bill 602, sponsored by Brownwood Rep. Lynn Nabers, which would have repealed substantial portions of Peveto's 1979 property tax reform bill. Nabers' bill was tabled 89-56, with five members not voting.

Reps. Tom Craddick of Midland, Foster Whaley of Pampa, Jay Gibson of Odessa and Jim Rudd of Brownfield voted against tabling the Nabers bill, while Reps. Larry Don Shaw of Big Spring, Jerry Cockerham of Monahans and Mary Polk of El Paso voted in favor of that action.

After tabling Nabers' bill, Peveto succeeded in passing his HB 1465, which he described as "cleaning up" provisions of the 1979 act. That bill passed 111-36, with three representatives absent.

Craddick, Rudd and Rep. Susan McBee of Del Rio voted against HB 1465, while Shaw, Whaley, Cockerham and Polk voted for it. Gibson was absent for the vote.

Bets are still out on Texas legislators' horse racing bill

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House members thought they were free of the fear of having to cast a politically dangerous vote on legalization of horse race gambling this session.

But the fear revived Monday night when Rep. Tom Uher, D-Bay City, told them he was releasing the grip that had kept the horse racing bill from reaching the floor after the House State Affairs Committee had approved it.

Uher, the committee chairman, had blocked the bill by the simple method of failing to sign the committee report. Last Thursday, the House refused to force him to sign.

The committee approved the bill May 11 by an 8-7 vote that set horse racing lobbyists to cheering.

Uher announced Monday night he had signed the report.

"You can anticipate voting on pari-mutuel wagering some time in the near future," he told the House.

Rep. Susan McBee, D-Del Rio, chairwoman of the House Calendars Committee, indicated the measure probably would come up next Wednesday — five days before the legislative session adjourns.

That means House members would be making a record on a bill that has virtually no chance of passing both the House and the Senate before adjournment day.

"It's going to be treated like any other bill — no better and no worse," Mrs. McBee said.

Uher had said he feared the racing lobby would spend large amounts of money in the next election to defeat representatives who voted against horse race gambling. Meanwhile, many House members have large constituencies of Southern Baptists who historically have opposed pari-mutuel wagering.

Texans vacationing more as gasoline prices improve

Gasoline prices have fallen during the past five weeks, availability has improved dramatically and Texans are taking advantage of these developments by taking vacation trips in much greater numbers than last year.

Furthermore, the price of gas in the Midland-Odessa area is less than the average price in the rest of the state.

These facts are indicated by surveys conducted by the American Automobile Association, which also showed that gasoline will be abundant in Texas during the Memorial Day Weekend. Nearly 90 percent of the stations surveyed plan to pump gas on the holiday.

The survey of 370 Texas service stations showed that the average price of regular gasoline has declined by about 1 cent per gallon since AAA's last survey early in April. The average price of unleaded fuel fell by about a half-cent, while the price of premium unleaded rose slightly.

A pattern of increasing vacation travel by Texans is shown by AAA's study of the requests of its members for maps and auto travel counseling. The number of these requests increased by about 20 percent in April compared to April of 1980, erasing a decline of 15 percent between April 1979 and April 1980.

"We interpret these figures to mean that Texans have become accustomed to high gasoline prices and are resuming the vacation travel patterns which were distorted by the gasoline shortage and huge price increases of 1979," a Triple-A spokesman said.

The Triple-A survey indicates that gasoline availability is better now than at any other time during the past two years. Sixty-eight percent of the stations are open on Sundays, 57 percent sell gas on weekday nights, 10 percent are open 24 hours a day and 89 percent will be open on Memorial Day, May 25.

Current average full-service gasoline prices (April's prices in parentheses) are: regular $1.359 ($1.369); unleaded $1.407 ($1.411); and premium unleaded $1.469 ($1.456). Average self-service prices are: regular $1.267 ($1.279); unleaded $1.335 ($1.339); and premium unleaded $1.401 ($1.394).

Average prices in Midland/Odessa for full service are $1.323 for regular and $1.356 for unleaded. Self-service prices are $1.25 for regular and $1.286 for unleaded.

The survey indicated that premium leaded gasoline has virtually disappeared in Texas, with fewer than 1 percent of the stations surveyed selling this grade of fuel.

Bill fails

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Midland Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson failed to get the necessary support Friday to bring up for consideration a bill that would increase retirement benefits for three retired state employees.

Snelson said the bill merely would allow three state retirees to change the optional program und hich they selected ceive retirement bet s.

However, Snelson fell two votes short of the two-thirds majority needed to bring up the bill.

UMW council discussing strike

AP Laserphoto

President Sam Church of the United Mine Workers leans around a corner at a Washington hotel Monday to talk to reporters prior to resuming talks between the union and coal industry officials in an attempt to end the coal strike.

WASHINGTON (AP) — With contract talks broken off and renewed violence and disruption along picket lines, the United Mine Workers bargaining council is assembling to discuss the 54-day-old soft-coal strike.

UMW President Sam Church called the 39-member council to Washington for meetings Wednesday or Thursday after he broke off negotiations Monday, unable to win further management concessions on the emotional issue of union security.

Church and his fellow negotiators went into Monday's negotiations hoping the Bituminous Coal Operators Association would expand and improve upon a proposal it made to meet UMW concerns about the hiring of outside, non-union subcontractors at union mines.

But the BCOA, chief bargaining agent for some 1,100 Appalachian and Eastern coal operators, refused to do so, and after an hour of talks at a downtown Washington hotel, Church signaled for a time out.

The bargaining council has been actively involved in the contract issue only once since January, when it approved by a 21-14 margin on March 24 the tentative three-year accord that miners rejected eight days later.

"We are going to update the bargaining council, explain to them what we have been offered and get some guidance," Church said. "We weren't sure what they (BOCA) would come back with today and their proposal was the same. We're going to explain to them what we've been offered and get some input and see what they think we should do at this time."

On the front lines of the strike, which has halted almost half the nation's coal production, three UMW pickets at the non-union Beener Coal Co. in Barton, Md., were wounded by shotgun pellets during a confrontation with employees Monday.

Maryland State Police refused to identify the victims, who were treated and released at Potomac Valley Hospital at Keyser, W.Va. They said they were among 200 West Virginia miners who traveled to Barton by caravan.

"No one seems to know who did the shooting," said police Lt. Bernie Chabot.

In a second incident Monday at the Beener mine, John McKenzie, an independent hauler, said he was dragged from his rig by knife-and club-carrying union pickets who then dumped a 20-ton load on the roadside and smashed the truck windows.

"It was an army," McKenzie said. "I was scared to death."

In Kentucky, Lonnie Klepper, 27, of Keoke, Va., was treated for head injuries at a Harlan hospital after being struck by a rock which police said was thrown from a group of 10 to 15 pickets at the Jericol mine.

About 150 UMW pickets linked arms Monday and kept hundreds of white-collar workers from their jobs at the Pittsburgh headquarters of Consolidation Coal Co., the home base of Bobby R. Brown, the chief BOCA negotiator.

Asked in Washington whether industry had any new offers to make, Brown replied, "No, I do not." He said he and the other two industry bargainers were leaving town but would remain on call.

Last Friday, the UMW rejected the industry's first proposal on subcontracting since negotiations resumed following the rejection by rank-and-file miners on March 31 of a tentative three-year accord.

The miners, who spurned the contract offer by better than a 2-1 margin, cited concerns about union security, and Church has taken that as his cue for establishing the top negotiating priorities this time around.

Asked whether the industry had in effect given the union a take-it-or-leave-it offer, Church replied: "We've discussed many of the issues. We haven't been able to agree yet so I have to, under our constitution, make periodic reports to update them (the bargaining council) and look for guidance."

The UMW negotiating team rejected an industry offer on the question of subcontracting last week, saying it was too weak to afford the 160,000 rank-and-file miners protection against loss of jobs.

The issue involves the extent to which coal companies covered by a national coal agreement with the UMW can hire non-union subcontractors for such jobs as mine construction and coal-hauling by truck.

It is one of two union security issues the UMW is demanding. The other is restoration of a requirement that union coal companies pay a royalty into union health and pension funds for each ton of non-union coal purchased for resale.

A federal appeals court ruled last year that UMW contract language permitting subcontracting only to unionized companies was in violation of antitrust laws.

Since then, union contract negotiators have been seeking to win language in the scope and coverage clause of the contract that would have much the same effect — severely limiting the circumstances under which non-union labor could be hired at UMW mines.

Citizen patrol to help in child slaying cases

ATLANTA (AP) — A citizen patrol at least 1,000 strong will take to the streets on foot and in makeshift patrol cars this summer to act as "the eyes and ears" of police in the wake of 27 slayings of young blacks, the officer coordinating their training said Monday.

"We only have so many officers on the streets, but the Atlanta public is out there, too," said O.W. Sheriff, an Atlanta patrolman who acts as liaison between police and the United Youth Adult Conference, the community group sponsoring the patrols.

"We're very concerned about the missing children, but we want to extend the patrols to all aspects of crime prevention — drugs, burglary, general crime prevention in the community," he said. "The only way to reduce crime is they've got to know people in the community. That's why we want their help."

The volunteers will not have police powers and will be told not to get involved in a crime in progress, Sheriff said. But they will be trained to remember what they see and how to report crimes — "the same course we teach police officers in training academy, modified to go faster and to make it more interesting.

"Without trained individuals on the street, we'll leave it open to vigilante groups and that's not what we want," he said.

The United Youth Adult Conference also has sponsored 30 weekend searches for clues in the 27 slayings and the disappearance of another black youth. The searches will end next weekend so the UYAC can devote more time to other programs such as the citizen patrols, a spokesman said.

About 250 people are already trained and are patrolling Atlanta's poor neighborhoods, said Michael Langford, a conference staffer and brother of Arthur Langford, the city councilman who heads the community group.

Sheriff said a recruiting effort is under way to bring the force up to at least 1,000 by the time school ends for the year.

They will patrol on foot, wearing green-and-white baseball caps and plastic ID cards, and in cars equipped with CB radios and marked with stickers identifying them as citizen patrollers, Sheriff said.

Sheriff said police also will publish a newsletter to let the searchers know what becomes of their information.

Meanwhile, Atlanta Chief Administrative Officer Richard Stogner said Monday that preliminary figures show the federal government will provide between $250,000 and $500,000 to help finance summer recreation programs for children in Atlanta and Fulton and DeKalb counties.

Officials from those three governments asked Vice President George Bush last week for $1.26 million in federal aid for the programs, which are being set up to keep children occupied and off the streets in the summer when school is out.

Stoger said the $250,000 to $500,000 estimate was made by representatives of a federal task force created to coordinate aid to the city in the wake of the slayings.

Charles Rinkevich, head of the federal task force, said an announcement of the level of federal participation in the summer program funding likely will be made Tuesday or Wednesday.

In another development, Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said the $500,000 reward fund for information in the slayings is not likely to be touched for years, even if someone provides the information that leads to a conviction in the cases.

Brown's office is drafting strict guidelines for claiming the money, including a clause that says the appeals process must be completed before the person who provided evidence or information can claim the money.

Money would be paid out on a case-by-case basis.

Home rebate idea making it big

CLEVELAND (AP) — With three weeks of the promotion behind them, bankers and local home builders say they are ecstatic over consumer response to their offers of $2,000 rebates and reduced mortgage interest rates to encourage new home sales.

"That demand is really there, and it's stronger than I hoped it would be," said Jim Chiswell, executive vice president of the Building Industry Association.

The citywide industry group says 60 new homes have been sold and financed so far with one week left in the four-week promotion — admittedly copied from rebate offers used by the ailing automobile industry to boost sales.

Home building in industrial northeast Ohio has been in a slump for two years. Nearly two-thirds fewer new houses were started in 1980 than 1979, industry officials have said.

"If we had just sold 50 (homes), I'd still have been pleased," Chiswell said. "Let's face it, we're talking about keeping some people (builders) alive."

Under the promotion, purchasers of certain new homes are eligible for interest rates between 11½ percent and 12½ percent at four lending institutions in addition to the $2,000 rebate.

Health Clinics' hypnotist wants to help all failures

Health Clinics International has recently opened an office in Midland at 2503 W. Ohio Ave.

Renown in Dallas as a foremost clinic to reduce weight and stop smoking, Health Clinics International offers a three-prong approach centered around hypnosis.

Shawn Mash, a clinical hypnotist for both the Dallas center and the Midland center, says Health Clinic's work is different from other "quit" groups. "We want all the failures," he said, "because we'll get them and help them."

Beginning with a free orientation session, the Clinic explains how participants will learn to help themselves in curbing appetites, cigarette addiction or anxiety attacks. The orientation helps the individual understand why he or she is addicted, why he or she started this habit and how he or she can control it.

Mash uses his "bull-rope of addiction" speech to show participants they must first break down the problem before they can begin to control it.

In the second session, participants are hypnotized as a group. Unlike theatrical hypnotism, Health Clinic's hypnotism processes do not force anyone to "act like a chicken." At Health Clinic, only certified professional hypnotists with at least 200 hours of instruction and practice will help you to get to your subconscious.

What's more, Health Clinics International offers a third step — behavior modification — for your continued progress. Providing a special diet, doing a personality study and teaching a mind-writing technique are but a few modifications done at Health Clinics.

"Mind-writing is used to ventilate the situation and it gives them the something to do," Mash explained. "Their thoughts tend to work themselves out of the body. It's the same system I developed for myself."

Himself a reformed smoker, Mash suffers from arterial phlebitis, which causes clotting in the circulatory system. He quit smoking through the techniques he teaches.

To learn more about Health Clinics International and what hypnosis and self-hypnosis can do for your or your company's personnel, give them a call at 686-0336, or come by 2503 W. Ohio Ave.

An elderly Miccosukee Indian woman dressed in traditional garb makes her way along U.S. 41 (Tamiami Trail) returning to her village after a trip to a nearby grocery store. The Miccosukee tribe resides solely in south Florida in small villages along the Tamiami Trail in the Florida Everglades, about 40 miles west of Miami.

New device gives voiceless speech

Snow is "absolutely delighted" with it. Doctors who treat such patients also are impressed with the device, now used by about 500 Americans.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tower Snow held his forefinger over a hole in his neck and wheezed a string of raspy words.

"Do you have any trouble understanding me?" the 72-year-old man asked a visitor at his Walnut Creek home east of here.

Snow's voice was a whisper. A few words were lost in a hiss of air. But most of his sentence came across.

A few months before, Snow "spoke" with an electronic gadget pressed to his throat. The retired insurance man is a laryngectomee, one of some 9,000 Americans each year whose larynx — or voice box — is surgically removed, usually because of cancer.

Snow now speaks ith a feather-light, silicon tube, just over an inch long and rounded at one end into a one-way duckbill valve. The Blom-Singer device, named for its developers, stays in place in a surgically-made opening in his neck.

Snow is "absolutely delighted" with it. Doctors who treat such patients also are impressed with the device, now used by about 500 Americans.

"At the moment it's the best thing we have if you can't master esophageal speech," said Dr. Herbert Dedo, professor of otolaryngology at the University of California, San Francisco.

Doctors estimate that at least 50 percent of laryngectomees can't learn esophageal speech. It involves gulping air, forcing it down the esophagus instead of the windpipe and burping it into the pharynx, a cavity where a sound resembling a voice is made.

Lack of motivation, a poorly-trained speech therapist and the amount of tissue that was surgically removed usually figure in the failure, doctors say.

Before development of the Blom-Singer device, unsuccessful students of esophageal speech carried an awkward instrument, as Snow did, to communicate. Forgetting the device left one literally speechless.

The outlook for laryngectomees began to brighten considerably about three years ago when Dr. Mark Singer of Indianapolis began inserting a tube into a small opening between the trachea (windpipe) and esophagus — a hole created in a simple surgical procedure.

The device extends from a hole in the neck to just inside the esophagus. The small "wings" of the device are usually taped to the skin on the neck to hold it in place.

When the speaker blocks the opening in the neck with a finger, air passes from the lungs up the trachea and into the device through an opening in the bottom of the tube near the hole. A slit-like, one-way valve in the inner end of the tube lets air into the esophagus for speech. When the person isn't speaking, the valve stays closed.

The valve has disadvantages. The patient must remove the tube once a day to clean it. If the tube isn't quickly reinserted, the hole begins to close and sometimes must be reopened surgically.

Singer says about 90 percent of the 150 procedures he has done were successful. Dedo and other doctors who have done fewer such surgeries report a slightly lower rate of success. Success means giving patients a voice that's as good or better than esophageal speech.

Oddly enough, Singer said in a telephone interview, his procedure doesn't differ much from a technique used in what may have been the first laryngectomy, in 1873.

That operation probably succeeded, Singer said. But when patients survived laryngectomies back then, they often succumbed to infection.

But doctors are concerned that patients will become overly optimistic when they hear of the Blom-Singer device.

"I don't think it's the final word," said Dr. George Sisson of Northwestern University. He recalls publicity surrounding a Midwestern doctor who fashioned tissue from tendons and other body parts to work as vocal cords.

But he never presented his case so others could confirm his work, Sisson said.

Doctors still advise laryngectomees to use esophageal speech if they can and avoid more surgery.

Bolstering their opinion are laryngectomees such as John Herald. In the 21 years since his larynx was removed, Herald has learned esophageal speech so well that someone listening to him forgets he has no voice box. He now teaches other patients to speak.

Herald and Snow also educate those who can't understand the frustration of literally being speechless.

"Children would stare at me, and their mothers would try not to have them look," Snow recalled. "I go up to them and say, 'Do you know why I have this? Because I smoked. Don't you ever smoke."

McAllen officer killed on the job

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — A McAllen police officer was shot and killed early this morning after radioing in to a dispatcher that he had apprehended a burglary suspect in this South Texas town, officials said.

Patrolman Rosalin Suarez Jr. answered a burglar alarm at a dress shop about 3 a.m. and reported that he caught the suspect after a foot chase, authorities said.

McAllen police officials who asked not to be identified refused to release more details of the shooting. However, they said both the suspect and the patrolman's revolver were missing.

Pope's prognosis may soon be upgraded, doctors say

By ROBERT McCARTNEY
Associated Press Writer

ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II sipped tea with milk for breakfast today, the first time he swallowed liquids since he was shot last week, and doctors said he had almost no fever when he woke after a tranquil night.

"If the Holy Father continues the present pace of recovery, we will soon be able to lift the 'guarded' prognosis, perhaps as early as tomorrow," a papal physician was quoted as saying by the Italian news agency AGI.

The doctors said previously it would be another week before they could modify the "guarded" prognosis, used when the patient"s survival is not guaranteed.

A medical bulletin issued at 10:30 a.m. (4:30 a.m. EDT) noted the pope's "vastly improved physical state" on the first full day in an 11th floor suite. John Paul was moved out of an intensive care unit on his 61st birthday Monday.

"I feel better than in the previous days," John Paul was quoted as saying by urologist Eugenio Alcini, one of the pontiff's doctors at Gemelli Policlinico Hospital.

Alcini told reporters the pope slept seven hours without using sedatives and his temperature at 8 a.m. (2 a.m. EDT) was 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit. The pope had been running a fever of around 100.4 for the past five days.

Later, the pope was examined by a team of five foreign doctors, including two Americans, invited as consultants by the Italian medical team treating the pope as consultants.

The U.S. doctors, who arrived in Rome earlier in the day, were identified as Dr. Claude E. Welch, a specialist in abdominal surgery from the Massachuetts General Hospital, and Dr. Kevin Cahill of New York City.

A well-placed police source, asking anonymity, told The Associated Press that the man accused of shooting the pope, 23-year-old Mehmet Ali Agca, said he made plans to kill other international leaders, including Britain's Queen Elizabeth II. But the source said authorities felt Agca was misleading them.

The Italian news agency ANSA reported that police were searching for an Austrian man who once owned the pistol allegedly used to shoot the pontiff.

Alcini said the pope "has resumed oral feeding" six days after a bullet ripped through his abdomen and another wounded his arm. "He had the breakfast of tea with milk," the doctor said.

The daily medical bulletin issued by the hospital also reported that the pope's temperature had largely disappeared and that he had taken his first liquids. He has been fed intravenously since the shooting.

Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau visited the hospital today, signed a guest book and got a briefing on the pope's condition.

The pope celebrated his 61st birthday Monday by moving out of the intensive care ward to a suite with a view of the dome of St. Peter's Basilica in Vatican City.

"From here I can see my beautiful Saint Peter's. It's certainly the nicest present that you could have given me," the Rome daily Il Tempo quoted the pontiff as saying when he arrived in his new room.

Dr. Emilio Tresalti, chief of medical staff at Gemelli Policlinico Hospital, said in a telephone interview that the pope's recovery was proceeding well.

"He is a strong man and his body is responding well to treatment. He is recovering very quickly," Tresalti said.

In John Paul's native Poland, Warsaw Radio said Cardinal Franciszek Macharski flew to Rome today to meet with the pope, his predecessor as archbishop of Krakow. The were expected to discuss the state of the church in Poland, where Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski, the primate who has led the church for three decades, is seriously ill.

The pontiff recited his first rosary since the assassination attempt and listened by closed-circuit radio to a Mass in honor of his birthday in the clinic's chapel, hospital sources said.

"In a spirit of joy for the Holy Father's safe escape from this insane attack, we pray that he will soon be returned to the people of God," the Rev. Umberto Buttarelli said in a homily at the Mass, attended by more than 1,000 patients, doctors and nurses.

While police tried to trace the previous owner of the gun used in the attack on the pope, they also circulated photographs of two of Agca's hometown friends who are suspected of helping him hide from police before the shooting.

Odessa man sentenced

An Odessa man who pleaded guilty to two counts of possession of methamphetamines in 1980 and 1981 has been sentenced to two consecutive five-year prison terms by U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton.

The man, James Monroe Crosson Jr., had been charged by information for possession of the drug with intent to distribute it on June 19, 1980, and again on Jan. 7, 1981. His sentence incorporates a 10-year special parole following completion of his prison time.

Crosson was sentenced by Bunton in Pecos, which is seat of the 10-county Pecos Division of the federal court system's Western District of Texas.

Man indicted on tax charges

Amador R. Gutierrez of Midland has been indicted by a federal grand jury in Midland on two counts of failure to file income tax returns to the U.S. Internal Revenue Service for the tax years 1976 and 1977.

He was charged by sealed indictment, which recently was opened.

His address was carried as 2607 N. L St.

Penalty for failure to file income tax return is a one-year prison term and a $10,000 fine.

Beaumont residents honor astronaut

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Greeted by the friendly roar of waving crowds, pealing church bells, wailing sirens and jet fighters thundering overhead, space shuttle astronaut Bob Crippen enjoyed his very own day in the town where he was born.

Never mind the fact that Crippen spent only the first year of his life in this Gulf Coast industrial city — Monday was Bob Crippen Day.

One of the pilots of the nation's first space shuttle was born here Sept. 11, 1937, and city fathers — with some prompting by a high school student — wanted to show their pride in a native son.

Crippen, whose family moved from Beaumont a year after he was born, said he remembered very little about the town but added, "It's nice to have a chance to come home."

Bob Crippen Day was the result of research by 16-year-old high school student Mark Snaufer, who read in a NASA biography that Crippen was born in Beaumont.

Through Snaufer's urging, city officials designated May 18 as Bob Crippen Day and invited the Navy pilot for a celebration.

Schools were let out and students gathered with their parents along the sidewalks to cheer as the astronaut rode atop a car with the jets, church bells and sirens adding to the din.

Crippen told reporters the space shuttle Columbia did its job well.

"We had less than a dozen malfunctions," he said. "The only significant thing we had break down was the potty. But we were only up in space a couple of days. I guess they'd better fix that because I understand the next shuttle flight might last a week."

Yoko Ono recalls life with jealous Lennon

NEW YORK (AP) — Slain ex-Beatle John Lennon was an extremely jealous husband and didn't like it when his wife, Yoko Ono, read Japanese books or newspapers, Miss Ono says.

"Jealous! My God!" she said in an interview with New York magazine. "After we were together, he made me write a list of all the men I'd slept with before we met. I started to do it quite casually, then I realized how serious it was to John.

"He didn't even like me knowing the Japanese language because that was a part of me that didn't belong to him. After a while, I couldn't even read any papers or books in Japanese," she said.

Lennon was shot Dec. 8 as he and Miss Ono were entering their New York apartment building. Mark David Chapman, who is charged with second-degree murder in Lennon's shooting, is to stand trial June 1.

Miss Ono says that shortly before Lennon was shot to death, she thought to herself how happy their life together had been.

"He was so happy," Miss Ono said. "Both of us were. A few days before it happened, I remember thinking, 'This is so good. I wonder if things can go on being as good as this.' "

●

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another Reagan has had his debut in the nation's capital.

This time, however, it was Ron Reagan, the son of the president.

President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, slipped out of the White House amid tight security Monday night to see their 22-year-old son perform with the Joffrey II ballet troupe at George Washington University's Lisner Auditorium.

"You were great," the president told the dancers. "This is only my second trip to George Washington University. I enjoyed this one much more." Reagan was rushed to the university's hospital March 30 when he was wounded in an assassination attempt.

The only other time the president has seen his son dance was March 15 in New York City.

When the motorcade left for the auditorium — about a mile away from the White House — there were two identical black limousines. One was an apparent decoy; the other contained the first family.

●

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — National Urban League President Vernon E. Jordan Jr., who suffered a gunshot wound last year, warned more than 3,500 graduates of the University of Pennsylvania that they were entering a world polluted with "pockets of hate."

Jordan said in a commencement address Monday that the world has changed since he graduated nearly three decades ago from DePauw University, "but not nearly enough" — the wrongs that still remain face the new graduates.

"It is in many ways a mean, mean world," he said. "The superpowers rattle rockets at each other. Television brings us, between commercials for expensive cars and clothing, pictures of some of the earth's starving millions. People still judge other people by the color of their skin...."

●

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope has come out in favor of gun control, saying he sees it as a deterrent to violence in America. And he says he's going to give President Reagan his views on the subject.

Hope was interviewed Sunday by ABC News while taping a television special at West Point.

"I think the violence today is a concern of every citizen and I am now for gun control," he was quoted as saying. "And when I see President Reagan again I'm going to talk with him about that because I don't see any reason why we shouldn't have gun control.

MacArthur prizes surprise famous, obscure geniuses

BY SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — A secret search for genius by one of the nation's wealthiest foundations has brought windfalls of up to $300,000 to 21 people whose sole obligation now is to pursue their dreams.

"It makes a free man of you," winner Carl E. Schorske, 66, said Monday. The retired Princeton professor and specialist in modern European history is among four Pulitzer Prize winners honored.

Both the famous and the obscure were named prize fellows Monday by the MacArthur Foundation, which had tapped 100 educators, scientists and artists across the country to nominate "exceptionally talented individuals" for the five-year stipends, which winners can use as they please. The identities of the talent scouts were withheld to prevent lobbying, the foundation said.

The disciplines of the winners are as diverse as their backgrounds. They include three-time Pulitzer Prize-winning writer Robert Penn Warren; a 21-year-old California physicist; an exiled Soviet poet sent to an Arctic labor camp for "parasitism" and a colorful mosaic of scientists and historians, mathematicians and artists.

Henry Lewis Gates, Jr., 30, a literary critic interested in the portrayal of blacks in European literature, called his award "a bolt out of the blue. I asked if it was a joke.

"All of a sudden, I can dream again," he said in an interview Monday from his New Haven, Conn., home.

The MacArthur Foundation, the third-largest in the nation, is named after Catherine and John D. MacArthur, who made his fortune in insurance, real estate, banking and industry. MacArthur died in 1978 and the foundation was created two years ago. This is the first time the awards have been given.

The foundation intends to name 29 more winners this year and has committed $10 million to $12 million for the five-year undertaking.

"This program is probably the best reflection of the rugged individualism exemplified by my father — the risky betting on individual explorers while everybody else is playing it safe on another track," said Roderick MacArthur, MacArthur's son. "It's a high-risk venture."

The prize fellows, selected from more than 500 entries, will receive $24,000 to $60,000 annually for five years to "provide the economic freedom" so the recipients can devote themselves to their careers. The amounts vary according to age.

Warren, 76, of Fairfield, Conn., will receive the most money — $300,000, which he said will buy him time to write.

Alamo program planned

This summer the Alamo YMCA, in conjunction with the Midland Parks and Recreation Department, will have a program at Alamo Junior High School.

The recreation center will be open from 8 a.m. until noon for elementary age youth and from 1 to 5 p.m. for junior and senior high youth. The cost for these times which includes classes in tumbling, cheerleading, archery and tennis are free. A $3 charge will be made for arts and crafts.

In addition to this program, parents may leave elementary age children at the recreation center from noon until 5:30 p.m. for a cost of $25 a week (for monthly sign-ups) or $30 a week (by week rather than month for limited members).

Registration is May 26 through May 29 at the Alamo YMCA only. For more information, contact the Alamo YMCA at 694-2528 or come by 901 N. Midland Drive.

Senator Lloyd Bentsen introduces legislation to correct error in law

Senator Lloyd Bentsen recently introduced legislation "to correct an error in current law which is retarding production of natural gas from so-called 'tight formations.' It costs an enormous amount of moey to drill for natural gas in tight formations or to produce gas from geopressured brine, coal seams and Devonian shale," Bentsen said in remarks accompanying his legislation.

"Congress, recognizing the high costs, and wishing to encourage production from these potentiall valuable energy sources, enacted two separate incentives."

The Crude Oil Windfall Profit Tax of 1980 provides a tax credit for several types of high-cost gas production and the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978 deregulated the price of high-cost gas produced from Devonian shale, geopressured brine and coal seams, and authorized the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to set a special incentive price for gas from tight formations.

In order to prevent producers from "double dipping"--receiving both a tax credit and the deregulate price on gas from a single well--Congress built safeguards into the law.

The safeguards have proven unworkable and, as a result, many producers today are unable to receive either a tax credit or the deregulated price.

"Because of the rising price of oil the tax credit has already been phased out for all high-cost gas, except that produced from Devonian shale. In the meantime, producers who did not choose to accept deregulation instead of the tax credit prior to May 2, 1980, or who fal to make such a choice before they begin drilling a given well, are offered absolutely no incentive," Bentsen said.

"In many cases it is difficult, if not impossible, for a producer to know what type of formation will be encountered prior to drilling in a wildcat area. Therefore, the producer will no realize that he has missed the deadline for making a choice until he has completed the well."

"This lgislation corrects this error in the law by providing that a producer will automatically be eligible to reeive the deregulated price for production that qualifies as true high-cost production," Bentsen said.

"The bill maintains the efforts of Congress to prevent 'double dipping' by allowing producers to collect only the regulated price or the tax credit, not both," Senator Bentsen said.

Gearhart to address meeting

The Permian Basin Well Logging Society will meet Thrusday at the Midland Country Club at 11:30 am for their monthly meeting.

Guest speaker for the luncheon will be Marvin Gearhart, chairman of the board and president of Gearhart Industries, Inc. whoose subject will be MWD-Measure While Drilling System.

A graduate of Kansas State University with a B.S. in mechanical engineering with a petroleum option, Gearhart also serves on the board of trustees of Texas Christian Uniersity, board of directors of: Fort Worth National Bank, Fort Worth Wildcatters, National Ocean Industries Association, Texas Association of Business and the Texas Association of Taxpayers.

Gearhart is a member of the Fort Worth Club, Exchange Club, Society of Petroleum Engineers, American Petroleum Institute, Society of Professional Well Log Analysts and numberous charity organizations.

Italians rebuff church, vote for liberal abortion law

ROME (AP) — Italy is 97 percent Roman Catholic, but the Vatican's influence apparently doesn't reach inside the polling booth where Italians voted 2-1 to keep a liberal abortion law.

"Italians — non-believers and believers — have demonstrated their will to safeguard the lay character of the state against any kind of religiosity," Communist leader Enrico Berlinguer said Monday after voters rejected a church-backed referendum against abortion.

Berlinguer spoke to thousands of cheering abortion supporters waving red flags in front of party headquarters in downtown Rome. Many of the demonstrators sported large "No" buttons, showing they opposed the referendum brought the Movement for Life to outlaw abortion except when the pregnant woman's health is in "serious danger."

The current law, in effect the past three years, permits women over 18 free abortions in state hospitals during the first 90 days of pregnancy.

Berlinguer had accused Pope John Paul II of meddling in Italian politics because of the pontiff's repeated public condemnations of abortion in the weeks before the pope was wounded by gunfire six days ago in St. Peter's Square. It was not known whether the bedridden pontiff had been informed of the results of the ballot.

John Paul did not specifically mention the referendum in his blasts against abortion, which he called "the killing of an innocent creature." But the Italian Bishops Conference publicly urged Roman Catholics to vote for the anti-abortion measure, marking the second time since 1974 that it has asked the faithful to support repeal of a bill passed by Parliament.

Italians also rebuffed the church on that occasion, when 60 percent voted to keep divorce.

The vote against the measure was 21.5 million to 10.2 million, or 67.9 percent to 32.1 percent. More than 60 percent of the voters rejected the proposal in every region.

It was a big day for "no" votes. By even larger margins, the voters turned down four other proposals, including one to liberalize the abortion law further, all offered by the small left-wing Radical Party.

The other proposals would have eliminated life sentences in prison, making the maximum term 28 years; forbade Italians to carry firearms outside their homes, even with a license; and repealed an anti-terrorism law that allows police to hold suspects for two days without a hearing.

According to the Vatican's 1978 statistical yearbook, there were 55.3 million baptized Roman Catholics in Italy out of a total population of 56.7 million. The remaining Italians are mostly Protestants, many of whom live in northern Italy near the French border, and Jews.

Police doubt story told by suspect in shooting

ROME (AP) — The man accused of shooting Pope John Paul II told police he went to England to kill Queen Elizabeth II but police doubted the story and believe he went London for some other reason, a well-placed police source said today.

"I think he went to England, but I don't think he went there for that reason," the source said in an interview with The Associated Press. "He's trying to make things more difficult for us."

The suspect, Mehmet Ali Agca, also told police he considered killing U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim or Simone Veil, president of the European Parliament, the source said. Police did not take those threats seriously either, said the source, who asked not to be identified.

Agca told police during questioning Monday he finally chose the pope as his target because his personal ideology would not permit him to kill a woman and he could not fly to New York to kill Waldheim, the source said. He believed the statements were intended to mislead investigators.

He said Italian police have asked British police to help establish the accuracy of Agca's description of the places he stayedon his 10-day trip to England last fall.

"He told us he went to London to make plans," said the police source, who asked not to be identified. The source said Italian police have asked British police to confirm Agca's description of his trip to England is true.

The source said the suspect, who is held at police headquarters with five guards in his room, told police he wanted to draw attention to the problems of developing countries by killing someone he considered a symbol of imperialism.

"He's a very strict Moslem," the source said. "He doesn't drink alcohol, he doesn't smoke, he won't eat pork. He hardly sleeps at all. He sleeps in an arm chair with his elbows on a table. He won't sleep in bed."

Agca escaped from a Turkish jail in November 1979 where he was awaiting trial on charges of murdeing a journalist. He was convicted in absentia in April 1980 and sentenced to death.

Police believe extreme right-wing Moslem fundamentalist groups in Turkey helped him escape from jail and obtain a false passport that allowed him to travel in half a dozen European countries and six Italian cities.

Agca has insisted that he acted alone for "ideological" reasons, telling police he got money by extortion — not from a political group.

"He calls himself an idealist who acted completely alone," said another official who asked to remain anonymous in another interview. "He said he did it as a noble act to attract public attention to the problems of the Third World, to the imperialism of the United States and the Soviet Union."

Italian regulations prohibit members of the special anti-terrorist squad of the police from being quoted by name in the press without authorization from the Interior Ministry.

The police source told The Associated Press that investigators believe there is a "fifty-fifty" chance that Agca acted alone, both in the planning of the attack against the pope and in the execution, s he claims.

But there is also a strong possibility that he had financial help from rightwing Turkish nationals in West Germany and possibly other countries, the source said.

In Tunis, sources at the Tunisian Ministry of the Interior said Agca spent two weeks in Tunisia late last December, entering the country as a tourist carrying papers under an assumed name. The sources said he stayed at a tourist resort in northern Tunisia, but gave no other information about his activities.

Court puts off decisions on issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, heading into the last weeks of this term, is leaving open several key issues it had been expected to decide, including the validity of state sodomy laws and methods to resolve interstate child-custody disputes.

The high court on Monday also backed out of deciding whether Ohio is illegally prosecuting Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt.

hile simly rejecting some issues, like the sodomy question, the court also did not decide other disputes after hearing arguments on them.

This term, the justices have backed out of cases more often than they did during any recent term, according to a Supreme Court official who asked that his name not be used.

The count so far includes eight cases that were accepted and never argued and at least five cases that were accepted and argued.

The trend may reflect attempts by the court's conservative majority "to discourage appeals to the Supreme Court," according to Professor Sanford Levinson of the University of Texas Law School.

Levinson said some of the dismissals help to "tighten the jurisdictional rules to keep cases at the trial court level."

He noted that some of these "technicalities" used to dismiss cases may not be discovered until the justices have actually studied the facts of the disputes.

Among other issues the court accepted but backed out of this term was the question of the rights of allegedly unfit parents to keep their children.

Another case was expected to decide whether property owners are entitled to compensation when some government action makes their property useless or worthless.

Sometimes a new development in a case the court has accepted may cause the justices to think twice about deciding it.

For example, the justices ruled Monday that a new federal law makes it unnecessary for them to decide whether the elderly in California may give away their property shortly before applying for Medicaid.

The court, on a 9-0 vote, sent the case back to a lower federal court for further study of whether California's measure conforms with the new federal law restricting such transfers.

The court declined without comment Monday to review a decision by New York's highest court striking down as unconstitutional that state's consensual sodomy law. The law is similar to those in a majority of the states.

And in a tangled proceeding, the justices by an 8-1 vote dismissed a child-custody case on which it had already heard arguments.

The case was expected to give a definitive answer on which separated or divorced parent will get custody of a child when courts in two or more states issue conflicting decisions. At issue was a model law adopted by 44 states to guide judges in making their determinations, but the dispute was thrown out of the Supreme Court on a technicality.

Student charged with killing 12-year-old

CHICAGO (AP) — Friends and teachers see 18-year-old George Jones as a model student — a gifted actor, a track team hurdler, editor of the school newspaper and a popular "class clown" active in school affairs.

They were stunned by charges that this clean-cut, well-dressed son of a Chicago policeman is a killer.

Authorities and a 10-year-old boy in a hospital bed accuse Jones of being the intruder who viciously attacked the boy and brutally murdered his 12-year-old sister in their South Side home.

As editor of his high school newspaper, Jones wrote with contempt of the violent society that bred the assassination attempt on President Reagan and the gang-related slaying of a classmate earlier this year.

And now, just weeks before his graduation, Jones has been charged with murder and aggravated battery.

Jones is not permitted to talk with reporters, but his lawyer said the youth denies the charges.

Sheila Pointer, 12, was sexually assaulted and fatally beaten, and her brother, Purvy Pointer Jr., was attacked and nearly killed when someone entered their house while their parents were away May 4. Jones lives near the Pointers.

Police recovered a lead pipe, which they believe to be the murder weapon. No motive has been established for the attack, police say.

After the slaying, Jones discussed the incident with his friends. "How can somebody do such a thing to an innocent little girl?" one frind quoted youg Jones as saying. "She didn't even have a chance to grow up."

But young Purvy kept repeating the name "George" the first few days after the incident, his mother said.

Detectives had to wait a week before they questioned the boy because he was so seriously injured. But detectives took a photograph of Jones to the hospital last week and Purvy "began to cry and stated that (Jones) was the man who had come in his house and hit him and his sister on the head," according to the police report.

Jones, who told police he had been home at the time of the beatings, also was identified by the boy when they took him to Purvy's hospital bed, police said.

A neighbor also had given the police a description of a teen-ager she saw standing behind the Pointer home the morning of the attacks. She picked Jones out of a police lineup. Jones was arrested May 13.

At Fenger High School, Jones' teachers are bewildered.

"This is so hard for us to believe," said journalism instructor Helen Burnett. "I just don't know. You just don't know what goes on in young people's minds, but it just doesn't fit him."

"We're just hoping against hope that it's a case of mistaken identity," said Principal Leo Dillon.

Classmates called him "Bookworm," but teachers said Jones could do better than the B's he earned. His acting talent, however, had won him a spot in a program for promising students at the Goodman Theater, a prominent local theater school.

Jones, who is being held in Cook County Jail, will plead innocent at his June 3 arraignment, his attorney, Peter Schmiedel, said Monday.

"I don't know what to do or what to think," Jones' mother, Betty, said in an interview. "We are completely devastated."

A neighbor and close friend, Leslie Haskins, said Jones "wanted to be accepted so much that when something went wrong he would ask, 'What's wrong with me, what have I done?' I don't know if that is insecurity or if he just wanted to be liked."

Changes considered in grain elevator operations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of a federal task force on grain elevator bankruptcies says the government is not considering any new bureacracy or costly program to deal with the problem.

"We believe most people agree there is no need to create a new federal agency to deal with the problem of elevator insolvency," says Raymond Lett, executive assistant to Agriculture Secretary John Block.

"Neither is there any significant support for some form of insurance or indemnity program," said Lett, who has headed Block's five-member Elevator Task Force Executive Committee.

And while he told the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on courts Monday that the government is considering some changes in regulations, Lett said increased state involvement in grain elevator operations "would be most beneficial and efficient."

There have been at least 177 elevator bankruptcies across the country since 1975, Lett said. Interest on the federal level was prompted by an elevator bankruptcy in the Missouri Bootheel that saw farmers defy a federal judge and break into an elevator to get their grain that had been impounded as part of the bankruptcy proceeding.

"We feel that two of the major causes of grain elevator bankruptcies are the recent state of the economy and the high interest rates being charged for business loans during the past several years," Lett told the panel.

He also said commercial and business failures of all kinds hit a 13-year high in 1980, showing that insolvency is not unique to the grain industry.

In the grain elevator industry, Lett said, the task force identified some underlying reasons for bankruptcies, including poor management, possible diversion of funds and speculation in commodity futures.

Lett outlined a series of "options" the panel can consider in trying to find ways of dealing with the problem of bankruptcies, ranging from changes in Agriculture Department regulations to uniform state licensing laws to an intensive informational campaign by the government.

All alternatives should be considered, he said, even though some may be found later to be too costly or not workable.

The federal government licenses only 2,110 of the estimated 10,000 elevators in the nation, Lett said, and those only at the voluntary request of the elevator's management.

Lett said the administration still has not completed its review of proposed changes in federal bankruptcy laws under consideration by the subcommittee.

"The bankruptcy laws are drawn," he commented, "to help solve a problem that has been created, rather than prevent it from happening in the first place,and revision in itself would not be an entire answer where elevator insolvencies are concerned."

Among the options to be outlined by the task force in its upcoming report, Lett said, is including some federal licensing requirements in the federal standards for elevators storing grain under government loan. Such elevators, numbering in the thousands, now are not required to be federally licensed.

He also said the government could regulate the kind of market transactions federally-licensed elevators could get involved in.

"Some of these proposed changes, we will find, may be done administratively; others, we will also find, would require new legislation," Lett said. "We stressed that answers would not come quickly nor easily."

An Equal Opportunity Employer

$2500 PER MONTH PLUS

Manager Trainees need to fill $95,000 per year position. It normally takes only 2 to 3 years to become a manager. $30,000 is your guaranteed annual salary while you learn, however for those who survive the first year average compensation is 45,000 due to additional sales commissions: 90 to 95 percent of your time will be in sales during the 2 to 3 year training period.

QUALIFICATIONS ARE TOUGH:

Please don't apply unless you meet each and every qualification:

1. Impeccable integrity and references.
2. 4 year degree from accredited college or high school diploma coupled with 2 years of heavy retail manager experience.
3. Willing to work over 60 hours per week (No Sunday or our of town work.)
4. Willing to take Polygraph test.
5. Willing and capable of taking instructions.
6. Not have any prior heavy sales experience such as real estate, automobile, mobile homes, vacuum cleaners, etc.

We have an extra ordinary benefit plan including a retirement profit sharing plan. We don't list with employment agencies and request they don't refer candidates to us.

EASTMAN WHIPSTOCK... LEADERS IN DIRECTIONAL DRILLING

We're the first, the largest, and the best!

When it comes to directional drilling, there isn't another company than can compete with Eastman Whipstock. Since 1934, we have been the leader in directional drilling, sub-surface surveying, and oil relief well projects.

JOIN THE LEADER

Eastman Whipstock will continue to be a leader in new technology and services. And to accomplish this we plan to add 400 additional employees to our competent and aggressive staff. The following are a few of the career opportunities currently available at Eastman Whipstock.

ENGINEERING

ELECTRONIC ENGINEER: There is a minimum of 5 years of experience in electrical design and development required for this position. Other requirements include a BSEE or MSEE degree with a solid background in using micro-processors. Preferred experience encompasses working with high temp analog circuits, the design of downhole oilwell electronic equipment, and magnetics. The designing and developing of advanced high temp analog/digital equipment for use in the downhole oilwell environment are this position's responsibility.

MECHANICAL ENGINEER

(Product Development): A BSME and 4 years experience are necessary in order to be responsible for mechanical design and development of downhole tools. The job responsibilities encompasses every facet of mechanical product development, from initial product conceptualization, prototype, testing to production. Fluid mechanics, elements of machine design, and material design are the specific technical areas involved.

R & D STAFF ENGINEER: A BS or MS in physics and experience in mathematical simulations and system error and analysis are needed for this position. Preferred requirements are as follows: Experience in geophysics, inertial guidance systems or other complex measuring systems and having a good working knowledge of computers and programming. Oilfield related experience desirable.

PERSONNEL

SR. COMPENSATION BENEFITS SPECIALIST: This position reports to the Personnel Manager and requires 3 or more years experience establishing a comprehensive wage and salary program, and administering a benefits program. Domestic experience is required, international experience is desirable. This is a Senior level position that offers a strong possibility of career advancement. It will require some domestic travel and future international travel, along with the ability to work with top level management.

MARKETING

DISTRICT MARKETING REPRESENTATIVES: Three plus years sales experience in the drilling industry and a degree in Marketing or related discipline are the requirements for these positions. Job responsibilities revolve around promotion and sales of Eastman Whipstock tools and service, evaluation of the market place, and the maintenance of customer accounts.

OPERATIONS

DIRECTIONAL DRILLERS: We are currently in need of additional Directional Drillers to work on our projects, domestic and international. Past experience should include: Mud Motors, Jetting and Single Shot Orientation.

To discuss a local interview, call our Personnel Department collect to discuss a personal interview, Stephen E. Pitt, Employment Manager or Jeffrey B. Lancaster, Technical Recruiter, P.O. Box 14609, Houston, Texas 77027, (713) 741-2200. An equal opportunity employer, m/f.

Old guard still alive and racing at Indianapolis

Los Angeles Times

We are living in an age when form, along with a decent respect for what used to be called "manners," is disappearing faster than the American grizzly. I mean, you used to be able to count-on-things. No more. A filly wins the Kentucky Derby. The sports department keeps a standing head "Unknown Wins Open." Fourth-place teams get in playoff finals in basketball and hockey. A team in the Super Bowl has lost seven games.

The World Series annually produces an MVP who is a utility infielder or worse, who bats .450 in the Series and .210 the rest of the year. Notre Dame loses to Clemson. Kansas City wins the pennant.

But there is one area in which the Old Guard is alive and well -- auto racing. The lead-foot set has a healthy respect for its icons. The peerage doesn't change.

SINCE 1966, the Indianapolis 500 has been won five times by guys named Unser, two times by a guy named Foyt, and three times by a guy named Rutherford. That's 10 times for the Old Guard, in 14 years. These guys won't let go. This is one area of the world where they, so to speak, still dress for dinner.

In those 14 years, the Indy 500 has been won by Mario Andretti, who is now a kind of sporty-car driver on the caviar circuits of Europe, not the beer-and-hot-dog tracks of Middle America, Mark Donohue, who was killed on a European track, Gordon Johncock, who won the second-shortest Indy "500" ever -- 334.5 miles, and Rick Mears.

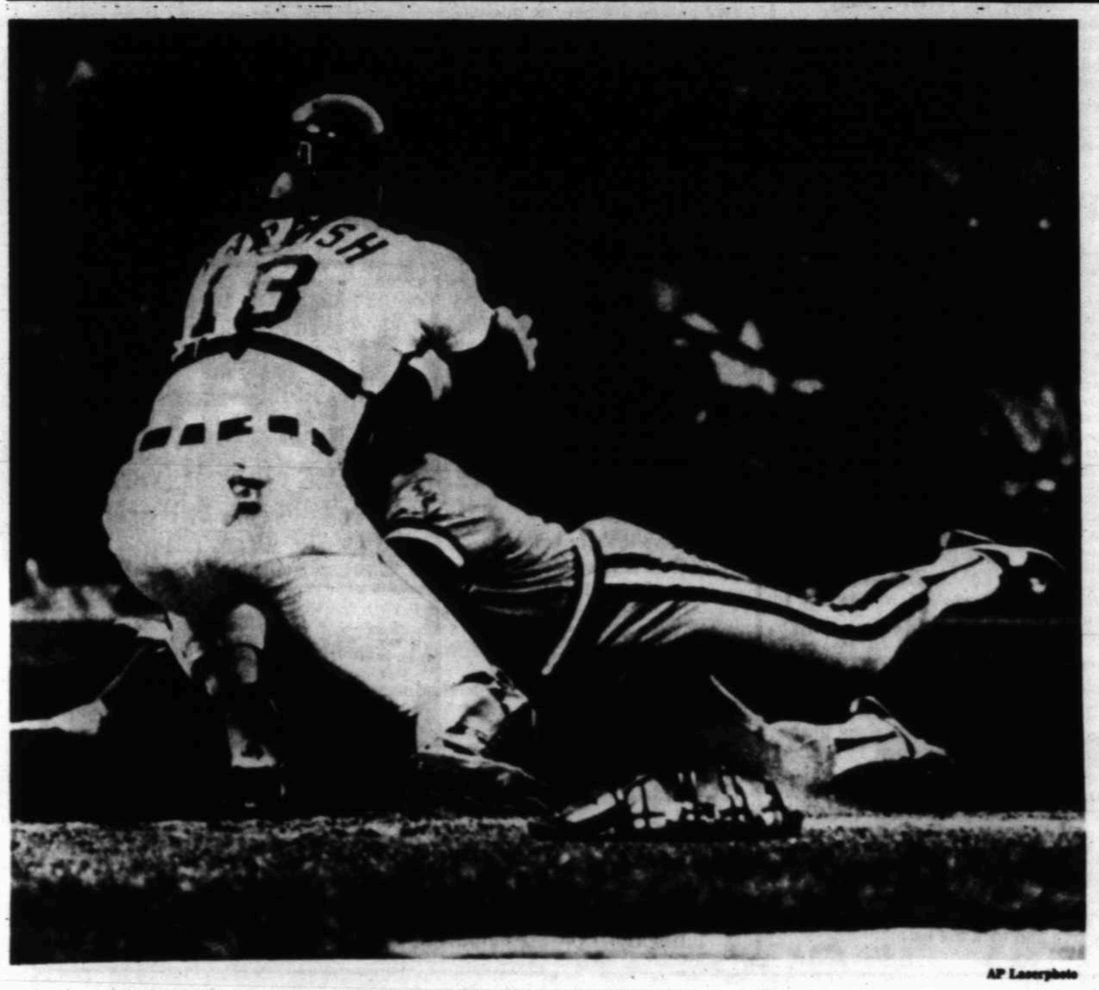

RICH MEARS shocked the Establishment in 1979. It was as if a guy showed up in a 1929 Essex with rags tied around the tires and steam coming out of the radiator and began blowing off the Offenhausers in the home stretch. I mean, the kid was right off a motorcycle. In the off-season he ran a clam shovel at building sites. On his days off, he'd qualify a dune buggy for a hill climb or indulge in "off-road racing," an illegitimate offshoot of the real thing where a car sets out in the wilderness and disappears for days at a time, performing before an audience of scorpions and prairie chickens.

Rick Mears tried Indy in the spring of 1977 in a wheezy old version of a McLaren which made one qualification lap and had to be towed in. But, that fall, in a cross-country motorcycle ride after the California 500, one of Rick's companions was Roger Penske. Now, Roger Penske is the Toscanini of the automotive concert, the impresario of the automobile opera. Having Roger Penake lean over his bike and say "How'd you like to drive for me, kid?" is like having someone ask you how you'd like to dance in the Bolshoi, or play Carnegie Hall. Penske's cars are the Stradivarii of Gasoline Alley. Penske is an automotive conglomerate whose activities range from selling Cadillacs to building ground-effects racing machines. Penske's cars have won two Indy 500s, and have supplied 25 cars for the field in others.

IN A PENSKE car in 1978, Rick Mears became the first rookie to qualify on the front row of the race over 200 miles-an-hour. The next year, Mears won the pole and the race. Pole-winners win about every seven-and-a-half races. So, for almost the first time since Ray Haroon won the original, the headline was dusted off "Unknown Wins Indy."

Rick Mears wins Indy because he knows something the Establishment knows -- and most rookies have to find out: you can't win unless you finish; and you can't finish unless your car does. Rick Mears, who drives a Penske Cosworth called a "Gould Charge," does not drive a car as if he were making a chase movie with Clint Eastwood. He does not bring the car back in a bag. He drives fast, but not foolish. He brings cars back Penske can put on the lot marked "Nr. Nu, used. Buy or lease. Guaranteed for 500 miles."

Nicklaus may not win the Open. Reggie Jackson may not star in the World Series. The AFL may not even win the Super Bowl. But if Rick Mears wins Indy again next week, they will have to bust type in the press rooms. It will have to be "Known Wins Indy -- Repeat Victor At Speedway." Only, then, the Unsers, Rutheford and A.J. will have to move over just a bit.

Rookie hurls shutout

Phillies pins first loss on Dodger sensation

Mike Schmidt sid it was a ltlle like playing in the World Series, but to Fernando Valenzuela, it was nothing special, just a loss.

For the first time thjs season — on a Monday night before a full house of 52,439 at Dodger Stadium — Valenzuela did not go nine innings. The 20-year-old Los Angeles pitcher left after seven innings with his team trailing 4-0 to the Philadelphia Phillies. He left without a chance to win, and he eventually absorbed his first loss as a major leaguer.

AFTER WINNING eight straight games as a rookie — a feat believed to have been accomplished only once before — Valenzuela became imperfect.

The defending World Series champion Phlies woundup winning 4-0 on a first-inning home run by Schmidt, his 12th this year, and three more runs in the fourth inning. Right-hander Marty Bystrom, also a rookie, scattered five hits over seven innings for the victory.

"I was as nervous as I was in several of the World Series games last year," Schmidt said. "He (Valenzuela) is not unhittable, but he was unbeatable — until tonight."

Valenzuela, a screwball specialist, left in the seventh for a pinch hitter, having given up as many runs as he had in his previous eight starts, five of which were shutouts. His earned run average jumped to 0.91.

"I knew sooner or later I would lose a game," Valenzuela said through an interpreter. "I'm not sad. I don't think it will affect my type of game. You win games, you lose games."

Later, after further questioning, he said, simply: "Tonight, I lost."

IN THE only two other National League games played Monday night, Montreal edged San Diego 3-2 in 10 innings and San Francisco defeated the New York Mets 3-1.

The loss ended Los Angeles' winning streak at seven games and left Valenzuela tied with Dave "Boo" Ferris for what is believed to be the most season-opening wins in a row ever for a rookie. Ferris won his first eight for the Boston Red Sox in 1945.

Valenzuela gave up just three hits before leaving, but two walks in the fourth inning hurt him. Schmidt's homer came with two out in the first, and Valenzuela retired the next seven batters before walking Pete Rose and Schmidt to start the fourth inning.

Keith Moreland bunted one pitch foul before he singled Rose home, and Valenzuela let the count go full on Gary Matthews before Matthews grounded a single through the left side for another run. Moreland, who wound up on third after Matthews' hit, scored on a sacrifice fly by Garry Maddox.

"They got three base hits," Dodgers catcher Mike Scioscia said. "Only one of them was hit hard."

Rookie Dave Stewart held the Phillies hitless over the final two innings, but the Dodgers were unable to come up with that rally that could have gotten Valenzuela off the hook. Ron Reed pitched the final two innings for Philadelphia, checking the Dodgers on one hit.

Expos 3, Padres 2

Jerry White, a late-inning defensive replacement, drove in the winning run in the 10th inning with a sacrifice fly as Montreal won only its third game in the past 11.

Rodney Scott led off the 10th with a single off Gary Lucas, and Andrew Dawson hit a ground-rule double to left, putting men on second and third for White.

The Padres erased a 2-0 Montreal lead with a run in the eighth on an RBI single by Juan Bonilla and another in the ninth on Luis Salazar's run-scoring hit.

Woody Fryman, 3-1, was the winner in relief of Scott Sanderson.

Giants 3, Mets 1

Jack Clark hit two home runs, and Allen Ripley pitched eight strong innings as San Francisco dealt New York its eighth straight loss.

Ripley yielded only a solo homer to Joel Youngblood in the eighth and left in favor of Greg Minton after walking Mike Jorgenson to lead off the ninth.

Darrell Evans also homered for the Giants.

Pressure is first baby; not being top NL hitter

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Finding himself atop the National League with a .400 batting average — 29 points ahead of Pete Rose — isn't real pressure, says Broderick Perkins.

"Pressure is waiting for your first baby to arrive. That makes me nervous — not baseball," said the 26-year-old first baseman for the San Diego Padres, whose wife, Olga, is 8½ months pregnant.

WHILE HE'S waiting, Perkins continues to deliver a bundle of base hits for the Padres.

Celebrating early, he rapped 17 hits in 40 at-bats during a 10-game hitting streak that gave him an even .400 average entering Tuesday night's game against the New York Mets.

"It's a marvelous feeling," said Perkins, who rode the bench his senior year in high school, "but I won't be satisfied until my name is among the Roses, Hernandez and Buckners at the end of the season."

For Perkins, it's a childhood dream come true.

"EVER SINCE I was a kid, hitting rocks with a stick, I dreamed of leading the league," said the 5-foot-10, 180-pounder. "I've always felt I was a good enough hitter to be at the top."

Perkins has another goal, one he doesn't mind making public.

"Everybody needs goals. Hitting .400 is one of mine. I've said that, and I've taken some ribbing for it. It stirred up my teammates, but why not say it? It gives me incentive, drives me."

"George Brett made it look attainable last year. He missed .400 by 10 hits."

Perkins, who has a .289 average in 464 big league appearances, has been playing possessed ever since he replaced starter Randy Bass at first base two week ago.

In his first start, he responded with three hits and drove in two runs. After going 0-for-3 the next day, he exploded with 17 hits in 40 at-bats to lead the team in runs batted in with 13 and claim the league batting lead. He's played in 22 of San Diego's 30 games.

LAST WEEK, after a torrid 10-for-25 stretch, he was named runnerup to Montreal's Charlie Lea, who pitched a no-hitter, as player of the week in the National League. Hitting safely in all six games, Perkins drilled three doubles, two triples and a homer to drive in seven runs while scoring eight times.

Despite hitting .370 in 43 games last year, the Pittsburg, Calif., native started the season in a familiar spot — the bench.

"They (the Padres front office) said they didn't have a big power hitter, so they went out and got Randy Bass and gave him the job. They expected him to carry the load. I was suppose sit back and mainly contribute as a spot player."

Lee, Lewisville clash today at 4 p.m. on Lee's diamond

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

It will be a rested Midland Lee team that goes against Lewisville today at 4 p.m. in the first game of the bi-district baseball best-of-three series with the first game on the Lee diamond. After the single game Tuesday in the Tall City the series moves to Lewisville for a 1 p.m. game. If necessary two games will be played Friday. The Rebels have been idle since May 9 when they beat Midland High 8-5 to claim the District 5-5A crown.

Lewisville, on the other hand, had to play a tough three-game series with Dennison to determine the District 6-5A representative. The Farmers won the first game Wednesday, rain washed out Friday's action, and after Dennison evened the series at one game apiece Lewisville took the decisive third game Saturday.

Tickets for today's game will be $3 for adults and $2 for students.

Farmer coach Mike Campbell, because of the playoff series, said he will start right hander Bryon Beal against the Rebs Tuesday. Beal has an 0-2 record on the season with an ERA of 3.18.

Righty Doug Smith and lefty Mike Crusoe, aces of the Farmers' staff, worked in the Dennison series and will be used only for relief work in the first game. Campbell is undecided who will go for the Farmers Friday.

Coach Ernie Johnson of Lee doesn't have any problems with his well rested pitching staff. Johnson said that he will send Alan Koonce to the mound Tuesday and is expected to come back with Randy Velarde Friday.

Koonce takes a 7-2 season record into Tuesday's fray. In district play, Koonce is 5-2 and worked 47.2 innings with an ERA of 2.08.

According to both coaches, their teams are injury free and ready to get the series started. As Campbell said, "It is just an honor to win the district and move into bi-district play. I don't know anything about Lee, but I expect the series to be a very exciting one."

Cubs' rally falls short, 6-5

Cubs leave fans limp with late charges

BY TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

The Midland Cubs' motto apparently is, if you can't win, leave 'em limp. Midland rallied for four ninth inning runs Sunday before losing to Shreveport 8-7 in the 11th and Monday's game looked like a slow motion replay. The Cubs trailed 6-3 going into the ninth, scored twice and had the tying run on third with one out, but couldn't get it home.

The Captains took a 2-1 edge in the Texas League series with the 6-5 victory at Cubs Stadium. The inter-divisional rivals resume hositilities at 7 p.m. tonight at Cubs Stadium as the Cubs head into the final two games of their homestand before playing 20 of its next 25 games on the road.

SHREVEPORT nickle and dimed Midland starter Joe McClain to distraction, scoring a run in each of the first four innings and two in the fifth to lead 6-3 heading into the game's late stages.

The Cubs had only seven hits off righthander Alan Fowlkes, 4-2, going into the ninth and seemed ready to submit meekly when Craig Kornfeld singled to center to open the home ninth and Mel Hall was safe on an error. Javier Fierro doubled down the left field corner to score Kornfeld and put runners at second and third with none out and suddenly a lost cause didn't look so lost anymore.

FOWLKES, who as having control problems throughout the night, admitted he "hung" a slider against Fierro. "It was a poor pitch."

"But then I got the routine grounder and the routine fly balls to end the game," explained Fowlkes, who last year at this time was pitching Cal Poly Pomona to the NCAA II College World Series championship.

The routine grounder was Tom Grant's bounder to second that scored one run and moved the tying run to third. Mike Diaz skied to short left and Fierro held third only to see Don Gladden's throw from left wander far off the mark. Then Jack Upton lifted a fly to center just as the wind started blowing toward the plate.

Although lefthander Mike Wright finished with four scoreless innings of two hit ball, the damage had been done against McClain, 3-4, who wasn't the same pitcher who beat Tulsa 8-3 on five hits in his last outing.

As for Fowlkes, who was raised in Imperial, Calif., it was his sixth complete game. "But it wasn't a typical game for him," said Caps' Manager Jack Mull. "He was behind in the count most of the night and it was a real struggle."

Fowlkes was 5-5 with a 2.40 ERA for Mull last year at Fresno in the California League.

John Rabb paced Shreveport's 12-hit attack with three hits while Gladden, who also had two stolen bases, and Bob Cummings, who just joined the club after suffering a spring training injury, had two hits.

Hall and Kornfeld had two hits for the Cubs. Hall opened the game with a triple and scored on a grounder and Grant doubled home Fierro who had walked in the third. The Cubs other run came when Mike Diaz singled and Gladden dropped a fly ball by Jack Upton as the run came all the way around from first.

There were reports Sunday that Johnson is ready to sign with the Alouettes after eight years with the Oilers.

Texas romps to tournament title

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — For three days the Texas Longhorns pounded out hits and scored runs in clusters and claimed the championship of the Southwest Conference baseball tournament by winning three straight games by scores of 7-6, 9-3 and 11-1.

BUT WHEN the title game — that 11-1 romp over Arkansas Monday afternoon — was over, the main topic of conversation on both sides was pitching. Or the lack thereof.

"I was surprised at the margin of victory," admitted Texas coach Clif Gustafson, who led the Longhorns to their third straight tournament championship. "I think it is due to our pitching."

Texas catcher Burk Goldthorn, the tournament's most valuable player, chimed in, "They (Arkansas) didn't act aggressive out there today. That's probably because of their pitching. It was very depleted."

THE RAZORBACKS used five pitchers in the title game and none of them could stem the tide.

"It was just one of those days," sighed Arkansas coach Norm DeBriyn, whose Razorbacks have now played Texas in the tournament final game and lost three years in a row. "We had no defense, no pitching and we really didn't hit that well. Give Texas credit ... they deserved to win."

Goldthorn fattened his individual statistics in the three games of the tournament, collecting seven hits in 15 times at bat, including two home runs and two doubles, and driving in six runs. He led a contingent of six Longhorns onto the all-tournament team.

"IT MIGHT have looked easy for the last three games, but it wasn't," the weary catcher said after scoring once and driving in two runs in the Monday title game.

Dave Seiler, 3-4, got credit for the win while Ed Vidmar, 0-3, took the loss for Arkansas.

The win means Texas will host the NCAA Central Regional baseball tournament this weekend. Opening-round matchups are Texas against Brigham Young and Lamar against Stanford.

Aggies have new cage assistant

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Texas A&M has hired the captain of the Aggie 1974-75 basketball team as its assistant basketball coach, university officials announced Monday.

John Thornton will serve on the staff of head coach Shelby Metcalf effective July 1.

Thornton comes to A&M after two years as athletic director and head basketball coach at Hill Junior College. He also worked at Athens High School, where he was named coach of the year in 1977.

North Stars relaxed; Islanders serious

New York after series clincher tonight

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — There were the Minnesota North Stars, possibly just one game away from a disappointing end to their season, clowning around and acting like a bunch of school kids at recess.

And there were the New York Islanders, on the verge of their second consecutive Stanley Cup championship, business-like and practicing seriously.

IT SEEMED a rather incongruous way for the two National Hockey League playoff finalists to be preparing for tonight's fourth game of the best-of-seven series.

With the Islanders ahead three games to none, one would have expected the North Stars to be working on every facet of their game Monday morning, trying to find that missing ingredient that has kept them from staying close to the defending champions.

And one also would have looked for the Islanders to be loose and relaxed, just going through the motions of an off-day practice.

"We are just within reach of it now," said the Islanders' Bryan Trottier, who has scored in all 16 of his team's playoff games this spring, an NHL record. "We don't want to let up at all. Getting lazy would be dangerous."

THE CHANCES of the Islanders ever getting lazy are remote. This is a team dedicated to the principle of diligence, on the ice, in practices, in strategy meetings — everywhere.

"Any player knows that the time to be ready, to be at his best, is in the playoffs," noted Isles captain Denis Potvin, whose 25 postseason points this year is a record for defensemen. "You try to play 60 or 65 really good games in a season. It would be silly and not professional to think you can play 80 games that way.

"But, in the playoffs, you go all out every minute. There's nothing beyond to hold it back for."

For the North Stars, there may be nothing beyond tonight's game. They must win or face a summer of satisfaction at having climbed from a ninth-place regular-season finish to the Cup finals, but dismay at having been so dominated in the championship series.

STILL, THE Stars' Monday practice session was filled with joking and 3-on-3 skating drills that no one seemed to take seriously.

"A tough practice is not what we need now," said Minnesota defenseman Gordie Roberts. "It's better that we have fun. There's enough pressure on during the games.

"We've made the finals and we wanted to take advantage of it. We didn't come in with the attitude that it will be a great learning experience for a young team like us. We've gone so far, we won't be satisfied losing, even to a team as good as the Islanders.

"The experience of these playoffs will be good for a lot of players. You watch what the Islanders do and you know what it takes to be a Stanley Cup winner."

The odds aren't very good that Minnesota will get to wear that title in 1981. Only two teams — the 1942 Maple Leafs and the 1975 Islanders — ever have rebounded from a 3-0 deficit to win a Stanley Cup series. And neither of those teams was up against as balanced a machine as these Islanders.

"WE'RE DOING everything well," said Mike Bossy, who has 17 goals and 16 assists for a one-season Cup-record 33 points. "I was a little concerned the way we went out there and fell behind 3-1 (in Game 3, which the Islanders won 7-5 after falling into a two-goal hole after one period.)

"We didn't seem to have the confidence we had in New York (a pair of 6-3 Islander wins). We talked about it and I think we put in some effort to come back from 3-1 in their building and win.

"We'll just go out in the next game and carry it over."

If they do that, the finals might well be over in four games, the first time that has happened since Montreal swept Boston in 1977.

Federal mediator hopeful

10 days remain before strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Only 10 days remain before the threatened baseball strike, but federal mediator Kenneth Moffett, for one, hasn't given up.

Moffett, acting head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, has called negotiators for both sides to a meeting today at the offices of Ray Grebey, executive director of the Player Relations Committee. The session was scheduled to begin at 2 p.m., EDT.

Grebey, chief negotiatior for the owners, and Marvin Miller, head of the Major League Baseball Players Association, met with Moffett for more than two hours May 11. Apparently, little progress was made at that session, and Grebey and Miller both declined to discuss the meeting.

The players have threatened to strike May 29 over the issue of free agent compensation, the sole issue left unresolved in last year's contract settlement. In February, the owners implemented a plan which entitles a club losing a "ranking" free agent to a veteran player as compensation, and 10 days later the players set their strike deadline.

Under last year's contract agreement, the players have until June 1 to exercise their option to strike.

Earlier this month, the players' union asked the National Labor Relations Board to cite the owners for failing to bargain. The MLBPA says that since the owners have contended that free agent signings have created a financial hardship for them, they want the NLRB to order the owners to open their books to examination by the players' union.

The complaint also asked for an extension of the June 1 strike deadline should the financial information be disclosed.

Moore's slam sinks SA

Don Moore's grand slam home run powered the Arkansas Travelers to a 5-4 Texas League baseball victory over the San Antonio Dodgers in the first game of a doubleheader Monday night. Arkansas won the nightcap, 2-0.

In other Texas League action, El Paso edged Jackson, 4-3, Amarillo beat Tulsa, 8-5, and Shreveport edged Midland, 6-5.

San Antonio jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning of the first game on singles by Tom Beyers and Dale Holman and doubles by Greg Brock and Dave Sax.

Arkansas took the lead, 4-3, in the second when Moore's homer followed two walks and a single.

Leo Hernandez gave San Antonio a 4-4 tie and sent the game into extra innings when he slammed a solo homer in the seventh.

The winning run came across the plate for Arkansas in the eighth inning when Denis Delany singled home pinch runner Steve Turco.

Ralph Citarella, 2-4, was the winning pitcher. The loser was Charlie Jones, 4-1.

Arkansas scored both runs in their 2-0 second game victory in the second inning. Fred Tisdale and Felipe Zayas both singled and both scored on wild pitches by Chris Malden.

The winning pitcher was Dave Johnson, 1-1. Malden, 3-1, was the loser.

The El Paso Diablos scored the winning run on a walk in their 5-4 victory over the Jackson Mets.

Boston's fans celebrate Celtics NBA title victory

BOSTON (AP) — Celtic green was the color of the day when thousands of whooping, raucous fans jammed into Boston's City Hall Plaza to celebrate the Boston Celtics championship victory in the National Basketball Association.

The happy fans, estimated by some as high as one million, cheered Monday when they were shown the NBA trophy. They yelled when team members like Cedric Maxwell and Kevin McHale threw their hats to the crowd. But the biggest ovation came when Larry Bird, the Celtics star forward, came to the podium.

"After all the hollering and screaming I look out on the crowd and I see one thing that typifies our season," said the 6-foot-9 hero of the Celtics' victory over the Houston Rockets in the championship series.

Then, inspired by a crudely drawn sign held in the chanting audience, Bird used a scatological vulgarity in reference to Houston center Moses Malone. Malone angered the Celtics during the playoffs by dismissing them as an inferior team that he could beat with a "pickup" squad.

Spokesmen for Mayor Kevin H. White, quoting Police Superintendent Robert Bradley, estimated the plaza crowd at 50,000 to 60,000 and the crowd along a parade route at more than one million. However, given the modest crowds along portions of the parade route, the one million figure appeared to be high.

The crowd's enthusiasm resulted in three injuries when a young man standing on the roof of a subway entrance crashed through a plexiglass bubble, landing on two women.

The three were treated for cuts and sprains at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Vendors did a brisk business in Celtics pennants, T-shirts and bumper stickers as the crowd celebrated Boston's first champion sports team since the 1976 Boston Celtics.

Gossage in tight spots

You really have to hand it to Goose Gossage.

That's what the New York Yankees usually do in tight situations — and he rarely fails to disappoint them.

FOR THE 11th time this season, the Yankees' great relief pitcher came out of the bullpen to preserve a victory, this time a 2-1 decision over the Kansas City Royals Monday night.

That kept Gossage's relief record spotless this season. He has made two other appearances in 1981, gaining a victory in one, while having no decision in the other.

Gossage has allowed just eight hits and one run in 192-3 innings of work and owns a glittering 0.46 earned run average. Of the 59 batters he has retired this season, 27 have been on strikeouts.

IN OTHER American League action, it was Baltimore 5, Oakland 1; Chicago 7, Toronto 2; California 7, Cleveland 1; Boston 8, Seattle 5 and Texas 13, Detroit 5.

Monday night's situation was mild compared to most for Gossage. Yankee starter Tommy John was taken out of the game with two out in the eighth after giving up his seventh hit. Gossage then cleaned up, getting the final four batters.

Graig Nettles drove in the deciding run for the Yankees with a sacrifice fly in the sixth inning, snapping a 1-1 tie, as New York won the first meeting this season between the 1980 AL Division champions.

DAVE WINFIELD and Reggie Jackson, who was celebrating his 35th birthday, opened the sixth against Paul Splittorff, 0-4, with singles. Lou Piniella advanced the runners with a sacrifice and Nettles followed with his fly ball.

New York's first run came in the third on Dennis Werth's RBI double. Kansas City nicked John, 5-3, for a run in the second on Frank White's RBI single.

Orioles 5, Orioles 1

Scott McGregor allowed just three hits — all by Rickey Henderson — as he pitched Baltimore over Oakland. Mark Belanger and Ken Singleton drove in two runs apiece for the Orioles.

It was the sixth consecutive triumph for the Orioles, who have won 15 of their last 18, and the fifth straight defeat for the A's.

White Sox 7, Blue Jays 2

Greg Luzinski enjoyed his finest day since donning a White Sox uniform, hitting two home runs and driving in five runs as Chicago downed Toronto. Luzinski, raising his season RBI total to 13, became the first White Sox player to drive in five runs in a game this season.

Steve Trout, 3-1, limited the Blue Jays to five hits over seven innings and struck out seven to tie a career high. Ed Farmer and Lamarr Hoyt finished up for Chicago.

Angels 7, Indians 2

Brian Downing's two-run single capped a three-run sixth inning and helped California beat Cleveland. The Angels started the sixth with bunt singles by Rod Carew and Rick Burleson. Dan Ford's bunt moved them to second and third, and, after a walk to Fred Lynn, Don Baylor's sacrifice fly put the Angeup Downing's clinching single. The Angels scored three insurance runs in the ninth on RBI doubles by Bobby Grich and Carew and a run-scoring single by Burleson.

Red Sox 8, Mariners 5

Dave Stapleton keyed a three-run eighth inning with a tie-breaking double, lifting Boston over Seattle. With the score tied 5-5, Carl Yastrzemski started the Boston eighth with a pinch walk off Dick Drago, 1-2, and gave way to pinch runner Rick Miller.

Rangers 13, Tigers 5

Pat Putnam batted in four runs with a homer, single and double, leading Texas over Detroit. After Putnam hit his fourth homer of the year in the second inning to tie the game at 1-1, he capped a three-run rally in the third with an RBI single.

If you have $1000 in your passbook account, or if you generally keep $1000 balance in your savings and checking accounts combined, First Savings of Midland has a N.O.W. Account free of service charge for you. It's called the PAYCHECK Account and it allows you to earn 5¼% interest on your checking account and 5½% interest on your savings.

Students and Senior Citizens may sign up for the PAYCHECK Account with no service fee and no minimum balance required. You will receive exactly the same interest and services as standard PAYCHECK users . . . but you never have to worry about maintaining a minimum balance.

At First Savings you need only $1000, combined any way you choose in regular savings and checking for a PAYCHECK Account that will earn 5¼% interest on checking funds and 5½% interest on savings — which is more than any bank can pay. If your minimum balance should fall below $1000 (except in the case of students and senior citizens), you will be charged a nominal maintenance fee of $5 per month.

Your PAYCHECK Account will begin earning the highest interest allowed by law on Dec. 31, 1980. The First Savings & Loan PAYCHECK Account . . . sign up at either of our locations, Downtown and in San Miguel Square.
