Commissioners table jail kitchen bids

Canvass finds slight changes in vote count

At the regular meeting of the County Commissioners Court Monday afternoon, the Commissioners authorized a refund of a tax penalty, agreed to participate in the Tax Abatement Program, canvassed the general election returns, and authorized advertisement for bids for three pickup trucks.

After canvassing the general election returns, the Court found several changes in the final tallies from the unofficial returns posted election night. These included 1247 for Chief Justice Tom Phillips, rather than 1252; 951 for Place 5 Justice Eugene Cook rather than 943; 2257 for Criminal Appeal Judge Charles Campbell rather than 2217; 2238 for State Rep. Rob Junell rather than 2218; and 1001 write-in for Sheriff candidate Vince Araiz rather than 993. None of the differences in the final count affected the outcome of any of the races.

In a request for refund of penalty and interest charges, Mrs. Clifford Hale of Big Spring appeared before the court to explain that the Hales had bought some Jon Farris, assistant district commissioner, who coordinates the local scouting programs, will be in charge of the program. The purpose of the Round-Up is to recruit young boys and interested parents and adults into the Cub Scouting program.

Boys in the grades 1 through 5 are eligible and more adult leaders are needed.

Kelley Fun House is rescheduled for Friday night

Because of Saturday's playoff football game, the Kelley Elementary School Fun House will be held Friday, Nov. 19, from 5:30-8 p.m. in the school cafeteria instead of Saturday as originally planned.

A turkey and dressing dinner will be served. Price is $3 for adults, $2 for children and $2 for senior citizens. Serving time is 5:30-8 p.m.

A variety of game booths will be open at 6 p.m. including obstacle course, football toss, clown toss, bingo, golf ramp game as well as others. Lock up your friends in the Kelley Jail House and visit the country store to satisfy your sweet tooth.

Proceeds from the event will be used to benefit Kelley Elementary.

WELCOME HOME—Colorado High School students and local townspeople gathered to welcome Dale Mathis and wife, Linda, a local teacher, back home Tuesday afternoon. Mathis has been successfully recovering from a heart transplant performed in Baylor Medical Center, Dallas, on August 4. He will have to return to Dallas for further treatment, but he was looking forward to the first few days home.

Middle school walls said in danger of tumbling down

Crumbling outside walls of the Colorado Middle School will require extensive work, CISD board members were told Monday night.

The three-story brick structure, originally built as a high school in the 1920s, currently houses sixth, seventh and eighth grades.

School officials noticed last week that some of the ornamental concrete had fallen from near the top of the original structure and roped off the danger areas around the building.

On Monday, Dr. Jim Ramsey, superintendent, along with an engineer and architect inspected the building more closely and discovered that the outer shell of the building is in danger of collapsing.

"The internal shell is OK," said Ramsey. "The problem is outside."

"We have locked the south and west doors to traffic, roped off the danger areas around the building and announced to the students and teachers that they must stay away from the outside walls until further notice," said Ramsey.

"We must stress that there is no danger to the structure or interior of the building," he said. "We are just being cautious in case some more loose brick or concrete may fall to the ground. As long as

Baseball reinstatement asked

About 25 people crowded in the board room of the Colorado Independent School District Monday night to show support for reinstatement of a baseball program in the school system.

No action was taken on the matter, but board members said they would consider the matter and possibly have an answer by the December meeting.

Possum Mann, spokesman for the group, a 1965 Colorado High School graduate, told board members his class was the last to play to baseball in high school.

"I believe my education would have ended with a high school diploma had it not been for baseball," said Mann, who went on to play baseball in college at Cameron State in Lawton, Okla.

Mann served on a committee along with Jim Baum, Tom Carlock, Randy Erwin, Tim Olden, Charles Ray Watlington, Tony Turner and Tony Franco to conduct research into a baseball program. They contacted several

FROM THE SCRIPTURES—But let those rejoice who put their trust in You; Let them ever shout for joy because You protect them." Psalm 5:11

Local insurance man Tom Lovell and a friend drove to San Angelo recently in separate cars. Upon arrival in San Angelo the friend, who was driving a good ways ahead of Lovell, was involved in a collision with another car at an intersection. While the two wreck victims were discussing their dilemma, the other party asked Lovell's friend, "Who is your insurance company?"

"Lovell-Carr Insurance Agency of Colorado City," was the reply, "matter of fact, here is Mr. Lovell pulling up now!"

"Boy, now that's what I call a good insurance man!" the other party exclaimed.

In observance of the "Great American Smokeout" today, here are a few jingles written by school students that you non-smokers will appreciate:

Now here's a little rap for you and me.
Now I'm going to be a celebrity.
This is going to be hard to say.
But try to stop smoking for a day.

Twice the night before smokeout,
and all through the town,
Not a person had a frown.
The Air was all clean and there is no doubt,
This was the year of the Great American Smokeout.

The people were happy without any cares,
As they could say they were breathing clean air.
Join the Smokeout, with your town,
And put those cigarettes down.

Don't pickup that smoke, don't take another drag.
You'll smell just awful, you'll stink real bad.
When you smoke it makes you talk like a frog.
I'm through with this jingle—that is all.

Bids come in $18,000 over estimates

Mitchell County Commissioners Court tabled action on the County Jail Kitchen project after opening bids Tuesday afternoon.

The project was bid under several different categories of construction and equipment needs.

Most of the 17 bids received were within or near the budget estimates of the architects, except in three main categories. But the single bids received in these categories, pushed the total cost to approximately $18,000 more than the estimated $73,000 for the project.

The Court has 30 days in which to accept or reject the bids. The architects, Gary and Company, were to renegotiate with the bidders on possible alternatives to cut the costs and report back to the Court on Friday.

At a special meeting called for 9 a.m. Friday, the Court will have the opportunity to consider renegotiated terms or to reject the higher-than-acceptable bids and to re-advertise.

All members of the court were present for the meeting.

TEAMS results revealed

The board of trustees of the Colorado Independent School District were told Monday night that results of the Texas Education Assessment of Minimum Skills (TEAMS) tests point to "a lot of work ahead of us."

Dr. Jim Ramsey, superintendent, said that CISD is on level three of the state-wide results which includes the bottom 25 percent of the state.

However, Ramsey said that teachers can't be expected to raise the level of performance on the TEAMS tests by themselves.

"Teachers can't do it all by themselves," he said. "Parents and students will have to be involved."

CISD sets new goals

The Colorado Independent School District board of trustees Monday night adopted goals for learners and the district.

Dr. Jim Ramsey, superintendent, said the district has already "made significant progress in many of these areas."

The district-wide goals for 1988-89 include:

For Learners

• raise TEAMS standard scores by an average of 25 points per child

• raise CTBS national percentiles by an average of 3 points per child

• improve individual abilities and achievement in writing processes, reading for meaning.

The south, east and west sides of the building will have to be rebricked, he said, noting that preparing work will begin soon.

other school districts as to the cost of their programs.

In addition to the information, the group presented the board with petitions bearing over 900 names of CISD taxpayers wanting to see baseball reinstated.

Cost estimates of a baseball program range from $5,000-$10,000, Mann said. No extra coaches would have to be hired and the cost of adding baseball would not affect the cost of insurance for athletes.

He said that with proper scheduling, baseball should not interfere with the track program.

Mann said that baseball was dropped after the 1965 season because there were no other schools in the district playing baseball at that time. However, he said that many 3-A schools now have baseball programs including Abilene Wylie, Ballinger, Clyde, Merkel, Brownfield, Denver City, Lamesa, Seminole and Lubbock Dunbar.

"In order to play baseball in the spring of 1990, notification must be sent to the state by February," said Mann. "As members of the school board, I believe your main concern is for the students of the Colorado Independent School District and for providing the best education possible. We feel baseball would help teach valuable lessons that would be useful to our students throughout their lives."

Board president Dwayne Harris explained to the group that the baseball program was not an action item on Monday night's agenda but thanked the group for its time and its dedication in researching the material presented to the board.

"This is something we've got to look at from different angles," said Harris. "We don't plan sitting on it, we'll take action."

Harris instructed the administrative staff to have a report on the baseball proposal hopefully by the December meeting and no later than the January board meeting.

In an information item, Dr. Jim Ramsey, superintendent, told the board that the school district will lost about $140,000 in state funds this year because of lower attendance.

He said that during the October attendance reporting period, the school system had 96 percent attendance, but that the total was still some 70 students less than the 1,341 anticipated.

For the four weeks in October, the average daily attendance ranged from 1,266 to 1,275, said Ramsey.

Ramsey said that a number of applications have been received for assistant band director and that more applications are expected. The board hopes to hire a replacement for Bob Newman who had to retire Oct. 1 because of medical reasons.

The board took no action on a proposed tax abatement program as presented by Mike Burt and Lee Woods. The item will be on December's agenda, said Harris.

Burt said the tax abatement plan is a "good selling tool in trying to attract new industry" and is also beneficial "for existing industry and businesses in the county."

Burt said that the Mitchell County and the City of Colorado City have already approved the job and property improvement incentive plan.

In other business, the board:

- approved a board policy change concerning insurance coverage on policy holders who have terminated their employment with the school;
- approved goals for learners and the district as presented;
- approved Mark Merrell as ninth grade boys basketball coach;
- approved paying music teacher June Kimmel an extra $760 because of the added paper work and planning she does as music teacher for both Kelley and Hutchinson elementary schools this year, and;
- approved the high bid of $1,651 submitted by Country Day Care School of Aledo for a 1973 International bus.

Supercollider gives state boost

AUSTIN—Good news not only travels fast, it has an immediate healing effect.

Texans everywhere got a real psychological boost when the Department of Energy announced the lucrative supercollider project would be built near Waxahachie in Ellis County.

The $4.4 billion physics lab, the largest scientific project ever undertaken, promises to bring thousands of jobs and billions of dollars to the Texas' hard-pressed economy.

The announcement, which came on the heels of a Texan's election to the White House, also served as a reminder that bipartisan political clout is invaluable.

On Nov. 8, voters showed much independence and divided the offices among both parties. Texas Republicans won the White House and a few high court seats, but Democrats gained in congressional and statehouse seats.

Moment of Unity

The Supercollider announcement was balm to sore political wounds because Texas Republicans and Democrats could claim a share of the credit.

In this instance, both parties worked for the good of all Texans, a shining moment in a political season otherwise noted for harsh attacks, mud-slinging, charges of voting fraud and racism.

It was a moment of unity which cannot last in the contact sport that is Texas politics, but can always return again.

Rains, Hispanics

Hopes for heavy Republican gains among South Texas Hispanic voters were dashed by a heavy turnout for Democrats which some say was a backlash to tactics by Secretary of State Jack Rains.

Rains' office implied voting fraud and prepared to police balloting there, but was turned back by a lawsuit and a counter-charge of racism and tyranny by Democrats.

If Rains runs for governor in 1990, as many predict, he will no doubt face an uphill battle for votes along the Rio Grande.

State Drug Testing

Gov. Bill Clements said the state should emulate many private employers and start drug testing new employees in state agencies.

"If you're going to have testing in the private sector, why shouldn't you have something like it in state government, particularly for people in sensitive jobs?" he asked.

Clements is expected to submit proposals for drug testing state employees to the new Legislature.

A spokesman for the Texas Public Employees Association said the group will fight any attempt to test new or current state workers for drug or alcohol abuse.

The governor also ripped state agencies for "turf fighting" which creates costly duplication of services.

Battleship Texas

The Battleship Texas is scheduled to "sail" next month from its San Jacinto Battleground berth to a Galveston drydock for repairs to keep her afloat.

The repairs will be largely funded by private dollars raised in several grassroots efforts.

Textbooks Approved

Following the state's approval of textbooks last week, conservatives criticized some of the selections as "trash, filled with errors," and "providing no hope."

One critic submitted a 50-ft. long list of potential errors which the State Board of Education said it will analyze.

The board ignored all requests to delete classic literature from books.

"That's a big victory," said Mike Hudson, Texas director of LINDA MATHIS waves at the big crowd that gathered at the High School Tuesday afternoon to welcome Dale Mathis home for the first time since he suffered a heart attack in late July and underwent a heart transplant in Dallas.

People for the American Way, a national organization that urged the board to retain the stories.

Early Retirement

Hundreds of Texas public employees will be able to retire early if the Legislature adopts a plan proposed by the State Board of Education.

The board recommended that lawmakers change the retirement eligibility requirements of the 500,000-member Teacher Retirement System.

Presently, a school employee can retire with full benefits if his or her age and years of service totals 95. The board proposal would lower that total to 85.

Other Highlights

A governor's taskforce told Clements the law automatically suspending driver's licenses for teens who abuse drugs and alcohol is not being enforced but could be an effective deterrent.

The panel also recommended that medical schools be required to teach a course on substance addiction.

The closest statehouse race involved 15-year incumbent state Rep. Ed Watson, D-Deer Park, who lost by 12 votes to Republican Mike Jackson. A recount could change the results.

property near Hyman in May 1976, paid all taxes known to be due at the time, and all taxes since. However, the Tax Assessor-Collector's computer had recently turned up a small amount of unpaid taxes due from one of the previous owners and had assessed the Hales with $34.39 in penalty and interest which they had paid under protest. Since the problem occurred years ago and the Hales had been diligent in paying taxes due, the Court agreed to refund the amount.

Mike Burt and Lee Woods appeared before the Court to present the Tax Abatement Plan that had already been explained and is being presented to each of the local taxing entities. The Court approved resolutions agreeing to be become eligible for the job and property improvement incentive plan and another establishing the minimum criteria at 5 for more employees and $25,000 or more in improvements.

Commissioner Precinct #2 Johnny Shackelford requested permission to seek and advertise for bids for two new pickup trucks and Commissioner Ed Roach requested one for Precinct #1. Bids are to be received at the regular meeting December 12 at 2 p.m. Specifications will be available at the Auditor's office.

In other business:

• Carl Shouse of the District Highway Department presented an agreement for the State, through federal funds, to furnish 118 "Load Posting" signs for some 24 bridges in Mitchell County, to be installed or erected by the County. The agreement was approved;

• Fire Marshall Billy Ray Williamson told the court of the fire department's plans to give two unused GI trucks to the Anson Fire Department for spare parts. The County, which had purchased the trucks originally through the Civil Defense had no objection to giving the trucks to Anson;

• Current bills in the amount of $83,051.02 were authorized for payment.

Judge Bill Carter reported receiving a request from a local woman for $702 for medicine and drugs in December. The judge explained that the lady had recently undergone heart surgery, but her health insurance coverage as a dependent of a city worker had been dropped by the insurance company. She hoped to be approved for Medicaid support by the first of the year. Due to possibility of setting a precedent, already $4,000 over budget in charity funds, and a continuing dispute with the Hospital District over such expenditures, the Court took no action.

Judge Carter also advised the Court, that after a recent visit with Justice of the Peace Ruby Claxton, it would be quite sometime before she will be able to return to her office.

The Court also indicated that it is ready to begin work on remodeling of the building recently purchased to serve as a DPS annex.

The Court was due to convene for another meeting Tuesday to approve the current payroll and to receive bids for the County Jail kitchen project.

All members of the Court were present for the meeting.

AT WORK

by BRENDA HAMMOND
City Manager

Literally tons of wastes are thrown away in Texas each year. These wastes range in nature from common household trash to complex materials in industrial wastes, sewage sludge, agricultural residues, and infectious wastes from places like hospitals and laboratories.

But not all these wastes are hazardous. Hazardous wastes have certain characteristics that can make them harmful. Hazardous wastes come in all shapes and forms and they may be solids, sludges, liquids or gases.

Federal and Texas laws define a waste as hazardous if it has one or more of the following characteristics:

*Ignitability - ignitable wastes can create fires or explode under certain conditions.

*Corrosivity - corrosive wastes include those that are acidic and those which can eat away (corrode) metal.

*Reactivity - reactive wastes react violently under normal conditions, such as coming into contact with water or air.

*Toxicity - toxic wastes are harmful or deadly when swallowed or absorbed through the skin.

Unfortunately probably the biggest problem with hazardous waste is that we cannot just snap our fingers and make it go away. During the manufacturing of many of the things we use or see everyday, hazardous wastes were produced. Examples: automobiles, plastic containers, steel girders in office buildings, weatherized wood posts, insecticides, medicines. When we work with metals, petroleum and chemicals to make steel, plastics and wood preservatives, hazardous wastes are going to be produced as well.

There exist a variety of techniques for safely managing these wastes once it is generated. Each technique is affective for either some or most of these wastes materials: Land treatment, underground injection, landfills, surface impoundments, incineration, waste fixation, chemical treatment.

The Texas Water Commission is designated as the agency responsible for the management of the hazardous waste treatment, storage and disposal program in Texas. Please note that the above mentioned hazardous materials are the common, everyday used materials in our area and not the high radiation level, etc.

Brief summaries of the monthly reports submitted to the Mitchell County Commissioners Court by the various county officers are as follows:

Letters to the editor

Moore backer

TO THE EDITOR:

Bhavesh Patel, in his letter in your paper, encouraged Carl Moore's students to write letters of their own expressing their opinions of Mr. Moore. Well, I am not his student, but I have a son who is a former student, another son who is currently a student, and a daughter who will eventually be a student of his. My home is also a frequent gathering place for some of those who have been in Mr. Moore's classes and/or plays, so I have had ample opportunity to observe the kind of example he has set for them and the legacy he has given to them. They know him to be a man of honesty and they trust him because of this. He doesn't feel compelled to control their thinking so he doesn't find it necessary to exaggerate, manufacture, alter, or omit facts when talking to them. He respects their intelligence and does not try to insult them by using scare tactics or misinformation, but instead deals with them truthfully and in an open, forthright manner.

I feel that the young people in Carl Moore's program are somewhat like an extended family—fussing, arguing and displaying sibling rivalry, while at the same time showing a closeness and a fierce loyalty to each other. I recently attended a seminar where Dr. David Lewis of Abilene, a therapist who works with adolescent and their families, gave us some guidelines for healthy families, those families which produce emotionally and socially healthy adolescents who, in turn, become healthy adults. As I listened to Dr. Lewis I was struck by how many of these guidelines

I feel Mr. Moore has put into practice in his program.

The overriding theme was individuality—acceptance of the individual, encouragement of uniqueness, and freedom of individual expression without ridicule or censure. In my opinion, few teachers do as much to encourage their students to think, to feel, to grow, to accept responsibility, to be their own individual person, and to be tolerant and accepting of others who are different in any way as does Carl Moore. No, he does not turn out students who would fit neatly into the mold of what some adults would have us believe is a model student—voicing opinions we adults have given them, wearing styles of clothes and hair we would choose from them, making decisions we have programmed into them. He turns out students who have learned to think for themselves, who are not afraid to look at all sides of an issue, who dare to be different and speak out for those things in which they believe, and who are tolerant of those who differ with them, students who will be assets to society as adults. He has done it by his example, by his encouragement, by his tolerance, and sometimes even against the students' wishes, forcing them to take part when they'd rather take the easy way out. But most of all he's done it with care and concern, with love and compassion, because bottom line, that is Carl Moore's best attribute—he loves young people and he loves to teach them and it shows.

Students meet with leaders

Students in Hutchinson Elementary's P.A.C.K. classes met with some of Colorado City's leaders in two different instances last week.

On Tuesday, fourth graders heard Mrs. Dorothy Shurtleff, secretary for the chamber of commerce, define the chamber and describe its duties.

The students are studying where different nationalities have located in Texas under the unit theme, "How Different Nations Have Formed Texas Culture", and each student will be writing chambers of commerce in three different cities in selected areas to gain information.

Thursday, the fifth graders traveled to the administration building to meet a panel composed of Bobby Lemons, principal at Hutchinson Elementary; Dr. Jim Ramsey, superintendent; and Kathy Bassham, CISD board member.

The students are studying stages of law in the country under the unit title, "Rules: Why They Are Needed At All Levels". They drafted questions dealing with concerns and rules in Colorado ISD as a local, basic level of law.

The panel and students spent an hour in question-answer session, probing areas of concern.

Round number two of the Class AAA state football playoffs awaits Colorado City at Brownwood Saturday where the Decatur Eagles and the Wolves will battle in an Area contest.

Colorado City, 10-1 champions of district 7-AAA, and 7-2-2 Decatur, champions of 5-AAA, will kickoff at 2 p.m. in Gordon Wood Stadium. The Wolves will be the home team.

The Wolves' defense continued its 1988 dominance with last week's 12-0 Bi-District shutout of the Llano Yellowjackets and another challenge looms in the form of the high-scoring Eagles.

The challenge to the defense is heightened by injuries suffered at San Angelo last Friday.

"They're (Decatur) pretty big," said Wolves coach Tom Ramsey. "They'll match us in size. They probably have ten kids over 200 pounds. We have about five. Both their offense and defense are strong. They scored 24 points on Vernon and 38 on Aledo last week. Aledo hasn't been scored on that much."

"They have a good offense and defense," said Ramsey. "I don't know if they have a weak spot. Probably the only thing they don't do exceptionally well is throw the ball. They're not interested in it with the Wishbone."

"The quarterback will run it," said Ramsey. "They have pretty even distribution. They make you play every one. You definitely have to stop the fullback."

Quarterback Bobby Bishop runs the offense and fullbacks are 190 lb. Casey Cooper and 215 lb. Hoss Hudson. Halfbacks are Vondrick Jackson and Craig Penarps who have been starting since the fifth game.

Bishop averages 8-10 passes a game with a 50 percent completion rate. Jackson broke for two scores of about 35 yards in last week's 38-22 bi-district win over Aledo. Jackson started the season as a wide receiver and still catches passes along with Willie Klose and Tony Howerton.

All-District linebackers Carter and Hudson lead returning starters of defense. 210 lb. senior noseguard Joe Sipes anchors the defense. Other leaders on defense are Brad Butler and 215 lb. tackle David Minor who provides most of the pressure.

Strengths for the team are depth and the kicking game. Strong safety Roger Miller handles the punting and field goal duties for the Eagles and has hit for 50 yards in both categories.

Decatur has scored 256 points and allowed 119 while the Wolves have scored 229 and allowed 84. Only one team has scored more than two touchdowns on the Wolves.

The defensive unit made what probably was its biggest and most important showing last week after injuries threw the offensive burden on tailback Pat Tillis who responded with 114 yards. A hobbled fullback Beau Rees gained almost 79 yards and quarterback Chris Perkin was limited to screen passes to Tillis.

"Beau is off the crutches today," said Ramsey Tuesday. "He was on them the whole weekend through Monday. He has a ligament stretch on the top part of his foot. Chris threw pretty good yesterday. He's going to be alright. He had a big knot on the back of his hand. We x-rayed both of them and nothing was broken. That's pretty well it as far as injuries."

Loraine Bulldogs end with Bi-District loss

The Loraine Bulldogs ended the 1988 football season at Bronte Friday with a 60-12 bi-district loss to the Christoval Cougars.

The Bulldogs, who were in a Sixman district for the first time, ended the season at 8-3 with a runner-up finish in district 7.

Christoval, the state's top ranked team and champions of district 8, are 11-0 and advanced to the area round. The Cougars outgained Loraine 333 yards to 145 Friday.

Alvarez scored one touchdown for Loraine with a 23 yard run. J. Williams returned a kickoff 78 yards for the Bulldogs' other score and was the leading tackler with 7 stops.

Kids go nuts!

Field trip to pecan orchard proves exciting

Kids smiling and with pockets bulging with pecans climbed on board two school buses Tuesday morning after a field trip to Nutty Acres pecan orchard. Several of the second grade classes from Kelley Elementary visited the orchard where they saw first-hand how pecans are grown, harvested, cleaned and shelled.

Don't forget fruit trees

Fall is often the time when fruit tree care is forgotten or neglected, but it's a critical time for controlling many peach and plum tree diseases to insure a good crop next year.

With the arrival of fall, there's often a tendency to forget our peach and plum trees that served us so well last summer, said Mike Mauldin, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Mauldin said that applying a copper fungicide now can stop or reduce three of the diseases that attack peach and plum trees in Texas. These are peach leaf curl, bacterial leaf spot and bacterial canker.

Puckered and distorted peach tree leaves that were either bright red or light green in diseased areas last spring were due to peach leaf curl fungus. The only time to effectively control this disease is in the fall with a copper-containing fungicide.

Timing of the fall spray is critical for effective control and for avoiding tree damage, Mauldin said. Copper is a metal and may cause severe defoliation unless applied correctly.

He advises spraying when 70 percent of the leaves fall off the tree. Spraying too early will cause leaf shed or cause the spray to be ineffective later.

Fungicides containing chlorothalonil can also be used for the control of peach leaf curl.

Bacterial leaf spot and bacterial canker can be partially controlled by fall spraying with a copper fungicide, but not fungicides containing chlorothalonil, Mauldin said. But again, it's important to spray at the right time to prevent foliar burn with the copper fungicide.

Bacterial leaf spot affects both fruit and foliage. The infection causes fruit to crack and leaves develop angular spots which drop out. Bacterial canker will kill trees slowly. Infected trees will have gum or wax forming on the main trunk and main limbs.

Fall spray in northern Texas is most often applied from late October to November 15, in Central Texas from November 1 to December 1, and in south Texas from November 15 to December 15. Application time will vary with the season, so check your fruit trees closely, Mauldin said.

Fall spraying is important to the health and production of fruit trees, Mauldin said, because there's no other time when peach leaf curl of peach and plum trees can be controlled.

Loraine Personals

...by Lois Phillips

Mrs. Glen Camp from Dallas accompanied by a granddaughter visited in the home of her mother, Mrs. Eldie Bryant over the weekend. Mrs. Bryant accompanied her daughter home for a three week visit.

Congratulations Wolves!!! We hope you do well in the playoffs. Your injuries looked terrible in the Abilene Reporter News today but the guys that are healthy can take up the slack, Good luck.

Glenn and Shirlene Sanders were in Alpine last weekend to watch their son play in the Sul Ross-McMurry game.

Phillip is a Sul Ross student. Our neighbor to the east was also in the game, Mark Denman of Roscoe. He was the quarterback for McMurry.

Mrs. Bill Barron called me the other day to tell me all her children were home at the same time recently. They are: Lee and Billy Woods of Colorado City, Paul and Maxine Barron of Loraine, Walter and Marie Harlow of Colorado City, A. J. and June Barron of Loraine and James and Vernemba Barron of El Paso.

The James Barrons were in Clyde visiting her relatives and James called to tell his mother what time to expect them. Evidently this was a surprise for her. Anyway, she got busy and called her other children to come on to the house because company was coming, so that's how the Barron reunion came about. Rosie, you are quite a gal and I love you.

We have finished our Baptist revival and we enjoyed the music and the evangelist's message. We had a big surprise on Wednesday. We had just got seated after getting our nests all fixed and happened to look across the aisle and there was Ruth and T. L. Holman in their regular old seats. Of course we all were elated. They had been such staunch supporters for so many years that we thought we owned them. Anyway Ruthie and T. L., we were glad to see you.

Patsy Walker and her mother were in Abilene on Monday to see a doctor and of course a little shopping is a must with the ladies. They also visited my son-in-law at his office.

Patsy's allergies are about to get the best of her and she might have added some new one. I guess I ought to tell you that this son-in-law is Elba Mae, Evans sons and Patsy's brother. Of course I guess everyone knows that but that one person who did not know might accuse me of telling untruths. Now I wouldn't do that unless I thought I could get by with it.

During our revival a little girl sat a few rows ahead of me and when I could see her face I realized she is our Methodist pastor's child. She is a very beautiful little girl. She has an older brother, Mike. They are both in grade school. Mike played junior high football. The father is the Rev. David Stevens. We are happy to have you guys in town.

I read in the Abilene Reporter News that Mrs. Ruby Claxton of Westbrook was in an Abilene hospital. I sure hope she is better and will soon be home.

We had a sad situation in our town the day E. B. Stewart died. Well, it's always sad when someone dies, you say yes, but not everyone manages to have a replacement so dear as a darling little great-grandson.

Mrs. Juanita Bryant, Elbert's oldest daughter had a call from her son Charles Darwin Kisinger to announce the birth of his son. They named their baby Tyler Charles. He weighed 7 pounds, 15 ounces and was 22 inches long. His mother's name is Paula.

This little family lives in Atsugi, Japan where Charles is stationed with the Navy I think. Charles told his mother he hadn't had time so far to grieve for his grandfather who he loved so much and had learned so much from. The reason for this was that his own little son was very ill after birth and it was kinda touch and go for a short time.

This is probably very silly reasoning on my part, but it seems to me that God was telling E. B. to come Home, that I am sending a new life on earth to grow and do things with your sick body could never do.

We ate lunch at the DQ and visited Dual and Opal Jo and we also saw Cub and Judy Narrell's daughter. It seems she came to Mitchell County to attend to some business for them. As you all probably know, Cub and Judy are not very healthy these days. She hopes they will soon be well again. At least to come home to live and be able to care for themselves, but for now, they need their family so Sue has them with her.

Dale Yarbrough of Nolan visited the Loraine Nursing Home this week.

The Nursing Home as had another visitor, at least Nannie Hallmark did. Nannie, I am sorry I forgot the ladies name, all I can remember is, she is from Silver. She also drives with her wheel chair and lifts to transfer her here. I really admire someone like her who still tries to go and do things for others.

Not much news this week as I have whatever is going around, sore throat, ear ache, chest, etc. hurt. As a friend of mine would say I took the while nine yards.

Texas vocational education undergoes several changes

Vocational education in Texas has undergone several changes since the passage of education reform legislation in 1984.

As a result of the reforms, the State Board of Education developed a master plan for vocational education which was approved in January of 1987 and updated in the spring of 1988.

The Master Plan for Vocational Education sets forth the state's philosophy that a strong academic foundation must be made available to all students and that a broad range of career choices for students must be offered.

The reforms also changed the way the courses are funded and required that all vocational education programs be reviewed every five years.

In addition, the reforms emphasized that vocational education be an integral part of the whole educational process rather than a separate entity, according to Pauli Mehner, assistant director of vocational education funding and compliance at the Texas Education Agency.

Fifty years ago, Mehner said, vocational classes were either in agriculture or home economics. Next came trade and industrial classes. Today, several hundred vocational education programs exist in Texas. The variety of classes ensures students a wide range of options designed to develop marketable job skills.

"The changes to vocational education reflect the shift in Texas away from a primarily rural state to an urban one," Mehner said.

More than 500,000 students in the state are enrolled in vocational education classes. Vocational education is comprised of the programs in the following areas:

Agricultural science and Technology

Vocational Home Economics
Health Occupations
Industrial Technology
Marketing Education
Office Education

Trade and Industrial Education

State law now requires that skill training be delayed until a student's junior year so that he or she can acquire necessary academic skills first. Before the junior year, a vocational education student may enroll in what are called "cluster courses," which provide instructional experiences relating to a group of occupations requiring similar skills, production techniques, etc., thus leaving open more career choices to the student.

At the eleventh and twelfth grade levels, students may enroll in vocational education courses which teach more specific job skills and techniques.

Vocational education, like the entire educational program, is keyed toward providing Texas students with personal skills and career opportunities that will enable them to be successful, productive and self-supporting adults.

AIDS education funded

The Texas Education Agency has been awarded a $390,000 federal grant to provide workshops about education to prevent the spread of AIDS.

The goal of the project during its first year is to prepare educators in Texas junior and senior high schools to join parents and community leaders in teaching students about prevention of Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome.

The grant from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control (CDC) will fund two-day workshops in five regional education service centers (ESCs). All school superintendents in ESC regions 4 (Houston), 10 (Richardson), 11 (Fort Worth), 13 (Austin) and 20 (San Antonio) will receive invitations for school district teams to attend workshops next spring.

The five-region area includes the five counties with the largest number of reported infections and serves half the students in the state.

Workshops for the remaining 15 regions will be proposed for CDC approval in future project years.

"Although not part of the CDC project for 1988-89, other schools are already offering AIDS prevention education," says Sunny Thomas, director of the Comprehensive School Health Programs Section at the Agency.

"Educators in Texas recognize their responsibility in teaching about AIDS prevention. The agency, the ESCs and schools throughout the state have responded to the Surgeon General's plea for community cooperation. The Texas Department of Health has provided assistance by serving as the state authority for medical and research information about the disease. Federal assistance will accelerate a process that began in 1985 and will help educators teach about AIDS prevention as part of a program of comprehensive health education."

AUSTIN—The choice of Texas for the $4.4 billion Superconducting Supercollider will have a significant impact on Texas jobs and economic diversifications into the high tech industries, research and education, State Comptroller Bob Bullock said.

Texas will reap the most immediate benefit from the construction phase of the Supercollider project which is being considered one of the largest in history. Approximately 4,500 people will be employed directly in the construction of the plant with a potential spin-off of as many as 12,000 jobs.

HELP THE BOY SCOUTS BAG IT.

More than 20 million Americans, including four million children go hungry at some time each month. There are more hungry people in America than at any time in the last 25 years.

On November 19, Saturday morning, place non-perishable canned food on your doorstep. The Boy Scouts will pick it up from 9 am to 3 pm from your door and turn it over to local agencies for distribution to help feed the hungry.

Obviously, the more support you give this program the more successful it will be. So when a representative of the Boy Scouts of America knocks on your door, do all you can to help the Boy Scouts bag it. Participate in Scouting for Food.

Venison can prove to be an 'exotic' holiday meal

(AUSTIN)—Families who want to break tradition during the most traditional time of year should consider serving venison over the holidays. A succulent venison roast can make as memorable a meal as the finest bird.

Wild venison is no stranger to the tables of Texas hunters who have been bagging deer since the first settlers arrived. Now, commercial harvests of exotic deer and antelope are making venison available to many people who may never have tasted game. The meat from these ranch-raised exotics is served in restaurants from Boston to Los Angeles, including such well-known Texas establishments as Cafe Annie in Houston and Routh Street Cafe in Dallas. And it is starting to appear in Texas supermarkets.

Ranchers introduced exotic game into Texas for hunting during the 1930s. The animals adapted so readily to their Hill Country environment that surplus eventually developed. Today, as demand for venison grows, exotics are creating a small but growing ranching industry.

In 1983, prompted by the development of a new American cuisine and a trend toward eating lean meat, Mike Hughes began harvesting exotic game. Nearly six years later the Texas Wild Game Cooperative, his Ingram-based company, hunts axis, sika and fallow deer and black buck antelope that roam freely on 150 Hill Country and South Texas ranches. About 120 miles away in Burnet, the 30-member Hill Country Wild Game Cooperative field harvests the same species on members' land. Both organizations dress the animals in state-approved mobile slaughterhouses equipped with walk-in coolers. Hughes designed the system with the help of state health officials. A government meat inspector oversees each hunt.

Commercial venison tastes milder and more tender than its wild relatives, which often have a gamey flavor. "The diet of these animals is entirely different from a wild white tail deer's," said Hughes. "The game we sell is almost exclusively grass-fed. The blade of grass is what gives beef its mild flavor. It's the same with venison.

"Flavor is also affected by how the meat is harvested," he continued. "Some of the worst meat comes from big bucks shot in the wild during hunting season. We harvest a lot of young males and a lot of females, and we do it in a way that ensures no stress on the animal."

Commercial game has another thing going for it—food safety. Texas exotics subsist on a natural diet free of pesticides and other chemicals. Neither are they injected or fed antibiotics, hormones or steroids.

Approaching a cut of venison with confidence is the first step in cooking it. As lean as a skinless chicken breast, venison contains less than two percent fat. This makes it ideal for anyone who wants to reduce fat consumption and continue to eat red meat. Its leanness, however, makes venison different than a pork roast or a leg of lamb. It can't be seasoned, put in the oven with a meat thermometer and left to cook on its own.

To compensate for its lack of fat, venison meat must be cooked with added fat, moist heat or a combination of both. Moist heat is suggested for most cuts, whether domesticated or wild, to ensure a tender, juicy dish. Marinating may enhance flavor and tenderness. Carol Guthrie, Texas Department of Agriculture home economist, suggests using a mild marinade with a light wine or fruit juice base. "Venison's mild flavor shouldn't be overwhelmed," she said.

Venison loin, the tenderest cut, can be roasted, but not without adding fat and basting continually with fat or marinade to keep it moist. Loin medallions and the best leg pieces are delicious sautéed. The rule to remember with dry-heat cooking is to do it quickly and serve the meat rare to medium-rare. Overcooking will toughen and dry the venison. A four-pound loin roasted in a 400-degree oven will be ready in 25 to 30 minutes. After removal, wrap the roast in foil and let it stand 10 to 15 minutes before carving. If you don't wrap it, it will dry out almost immediately.

Moist heat is always preferable for venison shot in the wild, which should never be served pink.

Exotic venison is being marketed in more than 20 retail stores in Austin, Houston and Dallas. It can also be ordered through the mail. For more information call Texas Wild Game Cooperative, (512) 367-5875 or the Hill Country Wild Game Cooperative, (512) 833-5828. Allow 10 to 12 days when ordering through the former, a week through the latter.

During the holidays serve venison cooked in apple cider and white wine. At any other time of year, venison pot roast is sure to please the family.
