In Brief

Cocaine mom

HOUSTON (AP) — A mother sentenced to life imprisonment after her 3-year-old daughter sold cocaine to undercover officers was mentally competent to stand trial last fall, a jury has ruled.

Yvonne Jackson, 23, was found guilty and sentenced in November of possessing crack cocaine. Police searched her home Sept. 10 after undercover officers had bought crack rocks from the 3-year-old.

During a competency hearing Monday, a jury upheld the conviction despite defense attorneys' contentions that Ms. Jackson has a low IQ and did not understand the trial proceedings.

Defense attorneys Tom Hamblin and Charles Portz said 1984 Social Security records showed Ms. Jackson had an IQ in the 35-49 range. They also had three experts say Ms. Jackson's IQ is about 64.

Giant tunnel

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A giant tunnel-digging machine has chewed through its last bit of rock and dirt and created an underground passageway for flood waters of the San Antonio River.

The three-mile tunnel is 150 feet under downtown. The project had been delayed at times because of a cave-in 18 months ago and a $10 million cost overrun.

But Monday, a 24-foot wide, swirling drill bit broke through the ground and finished the shaft.

Now an inlet must be built at the edge of the San Antonio River to carry floodwaters to the tunnel. That could take another two years.

Whites vote today in referendum on ending apartheid

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Whites voted today in a referendum on ending three centuries of white domination and sharing power with blacks, a vote on which President F.W. de Klerk has staked his political future.

Most political analysts predicted a government victory in the whites-only poll, with some saying support has been swinging to de Klerk in the final days of the three-week campaign.

"I voted 'yes'. It's the only thing to do for the future of this country ... my (black) workmates don't have the vote and I must vote for them," construction worker Chris Bakker said after voting in Johannesburg.

Yet predictions were uncertain, as there was a ban on publishing opinion polls during the campaign. Party workers taking private polls said many whites were refusing to say how they would vote, adding to the doubt.

Analysts said that the up to 25 percent of white voters who were undecided were likely to decide the outcome.

Long lines formed at many urban polling stations as voting began shortly after dawn on a warm summer day. A heavy voter turnout of the nation's 3.3 million white voters was expected to favor de Klerk.

Results were not to be announced until Wednesday.

Any attempt to reimpose apartheid would be resisted by the nation's 30 million blacks, plunging the country into political chaos.

Chevron USA to mail out bid packages

Packages to some 23 prospective bidders were to be mailed this week by Chevron USA which is seeking to sell its working interest in Scurry County's SACROC unit.

H.J. Payne, SACROC superintendent, said bid packages which outline the company's 20.84 percent interest in the unit would be mailed to parties expressing an interest in the buyout.

Bids will be opened on May 8.

Last September, Chevron announced its intention to sell its interest in SACROC. If sold, Chevron would resign as unit operator.

In 1991, the unit's average daily production was 19,978 barrels of oil.

Payne said a data room will be established whereby interested parties can come to Snyder and review the information as well as tour the SACROC unit, which comprises 99 percent of the Snyder-Kelley field.

Candidates target Rust Belt

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan and Illinois voters rolled out to settle presidential primary contests today that seemed destined to move Bill Clinton and President Bush closer toward a November head-to-head confrontation.

Brown declared just as the balloting was getting under way that he would have "a real hard time" supporting Clinton for president even if he wins the Democratic nomination "unless he can own up to his own failures and stop trying to point his finger at everybody."

Refusing to back away from his assertions of the past two days that Hillary Clinton's partnership in an old-line Arkansas law firm that raises questions of conflict of interest, Brown insisted on CBS' "This Morning" that the Michigan primary was "about workers ... losing their jobs completely abandoned by a governing elite like they have down in Arkansas where their private business, where the people's business gets all tangled up."

While polls suggested Brown's insurgency could land him a second-place finish in Michigan, Buchanan's Republican revolt appeared in danger of losing strength.

Jobs and trade were the dominant issues in the weeklong campaign to win the struggling Rust Belt, although the Democratic race was spiced at the end by the political arm wrestling going on between Clinton and Brown.

Clinton hoped for a Midwestern sweep to add to last week's Super Tuesday blowout. Well ahead in late polls in both states, the Arkansas governor was poised to be-

Bush plans to reject request for housing loan guarantees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel's year-long bid for help in securing $10 billion in housing loans appeared near collapse today. Sources said President Bush would tell congressional backers that only a halt to Jewish settlements could persuade him to approve the guarantees.

Israel's defense minister, Moshe Arens, made it clear in a speech Monday that Israel would not pay that price. "We will not beg, we will not crawl for help," he said.

Arens said the settlements keep Arab enemies at a distance from Israeli population centers and are in keeping with a centuries-old Jewish presence in Judea and Samaria. "We are a small people but a proud people," he said.

Israel sought the guarantees so it could borrow the $10 billion from commercial banks at favorable rates. The money would be used to help absorb 400,000 refugees from the former Soviet Union and Ethiopia and tens of thousands more expected to flee from the former Soviet nations.

Bush and Secretary of State James A. Baker III have denounced the settlements as an obstacle to peace between Israel and the Arabs. Some 110,000 Jews live among 1.7 million Arabs on land the Bush administration wants Israel to relinquish.

Baker initially offered Israel a compromise: No new housing starts but completion of those already under way — enough to settle some 30,000 Jews.

Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of the Senate foreign appropriations subcommittee, promoted another approach: Any money Israel spent on settlements would be subtracted from the loan.

Amid apparently growing sentiment that Israel should have to pay some price for U.S. help, Sen. Robert W. Kasten Jr., R-Wis., one of Israel's most ardent supporters in Congress, went along with the Leahy plan.

SHS senior files for school board

With the filing deadline just a day away, Snyder public schools board of trustees has its seventh candidate.

Snyder High School senior Benjamin Felan filed Monday for one of two at-large seats on the board.

"I've decided to run for a position on the school board because I feel I can relate to the concerns of students and be a responsible representative for the citizens of Snyder," said Felan, 18. "I feel that by establishing a sense of unity with students, parents and community, we can all work together to establish a system for higher education.

BENJAMIN FELAN

"Finally, I would like to say that the citizens of Snyder should feel proud of our school district. I understand that there were some rough decisions that had to be made and I think that they were made in the best interest of the students. After all, when I say that all I want is what's best for the students of this school district, I feel that I speak for a lot of people."

Felan joins Rudy Gutierrez, Charles Anderson, Mike Levens, Richard Chambers, Travis Bunch and incumbent Luann Burleson as candidates for the SISD board.

Sam Robertson, the other incumbent trustee whose term is coming to an end, has not filed for re-election.

Felan plans to attend Western Texas College and major in criminal justice after graduating from Snyder High School in May. He has been class president and class favorite for three years and was an Mr. SHS nominee.

He participated in the state marching competition last November and has been a manager for the SHS basketball team

You just thought it was hard times. An ad in the Wall Street Journal proclaims, "Da 'Boys Are Back." The small advertisement referred to America's Team, the Dallas Cowboys.

Offered for sale were "rare seat option" opportunities. The opportunity is described as a buyer's market. Included was one blue lot parking with each four seats purchased.

Available were lower deck, mid-field seating behind the Cowboys' bench. Prices were either $10,000 or $7,000. The same area behind the visitors' bench was listed at $9,000.

An option entitles the owner of record to the sole and exclusive right to purchase Cowboy season tickets and parking at list price through at least the year 2008.

If you're interested in such a red-hot deal, financing is available.

Check-kiting scandal will be campaign issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional check-bouncing scandal spells trouble for any member of Congress who had more than an occasional bad check, the chairman of the Texas Republican Party says.

"The people that have got 20 and 100 and multiple hundreds (of overdrafts) obviously have been abusing the system," Chairman Fred Meyer said Monday.

Meyer said he thinks some Texas Democrats could be thrown out of office. "And they should be."

Meyer singled out Reps. Ron Coleman and Charlie Wilson, who appear on a list of the 24 worst "abusers" of the now-closed House bank.

Eleven other Texas congressmen — seven Democrats and four Republicans — have admitted to overdrafts. And, congressional sources said former Speaker Jim Wright of Fort Worth wrote 139 bad checks, a figure he questioned.

The latest confession came from Sugar Land Republican Tom DeLay, who revealed Monday an internal review showed he had nine overdrafts in the 39-month period investigated by the House ethics committee.

DeLay, who was "surprised and embarrassed" to discover he was among the 355 current and former House members with overdrafts, accepted responsibility for five of the nine. The other four he blamed on bank mismanagement.

He would not reveal the face value of the nine checks, but said they accounted for $5,300 in overdrafts.

Unlike his Republican counterpart, Texas Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle said it's too soon to predict whether the check flap will lead to any electoral defeats or early retirements. All 13 congressmen who've admitted writing bad checks face challengers in November.

"There may or may not be. It's really too early to tell. I suspect that the public is really going to want to get down to the serious issues of jobs and the economy pretty quickly," Slagle said.

Two Republicans challenging Coleman, D-El Paso, said they will feature the check scandal prominently in their campaigns.

"I think it will play big in the fall. In fact, I think it will play big in our runoff, quite frankly," said Republican Pat O'Rourke.

Both O'Rourke, a former El Paso county judge, and former TV sportscaster Chip Taberski said their April 14 runoff will touch on the check flap.

Congressional sources said Coleman wrote 673 bad checks with a face value of $275,848 over 39 months. In 23 of the 39 months, he had overdrafts exceeding his next paycheck.

"It points up the fact that our congressman has either an inability to grasp finance or is dangerously reckless with money: If you look back at the performance of Congress, I think you can conclude that they have been dangerously reckless with money — our money," O'Rourke said.

"Whomever comes out of our primary has got a person to run against who is wounded. How wounded, I don't know."

Coleman, who did not dispute the committee findings, said the issue is a legitimate one.

"I was obviously negligent with my personal finance record-keeping," he said Sunday.

Taberski said Coleman was more than negligent.

"At first he said there were only three or four checks for a couple hundred dollars, then we find out he's the seventh worst check writer on the Hill," Taberski said. "It appears that he just lied to the people."

"That's almost a bad check every day for two years. There's no way the average American worker could get away with that."

Donna Peterson, the Republican challenging Wilson, D-Lufkin, also is expected to focus on the check flap, having brought it up in her announcement speech.

Wilson wrote 81 bad checks with a face value of $143,857 and overdrafted his account in eight of the 39 months surveyed.

Voters want revenge on election day

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Residents angry that their hometown Congressman was one of the worst abusers of the House bank are vowing to get revenge on election day.

The news that Rep. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, had written 673 rubber checks for $275,849 dollars left many residents feeling betrayed Monday and wanting to know whether he'll face the same punishment they would.

"When you're in a leadership position, I think you should set an example because I pay too much taxes for him to do that and get away with it," said Ceola Randle, a case worker with the Department of Human Services.

Ms. Randle said she believes Coleman should go to jail and that she planned to vote against Coleman in November.

A couple of El Paso disc jockeys helped listeners vent their anger. They poked fun at Coleman "a la David Letterman" by reading "The Top 673 Reasons Democrat Ron Coleman Might Have Had for Writing Bad Checks on the air.

Some of the reasons they come up with:

"I thought it was a contest to see how many I could write."

"That's the last time I give my checkbook to my wife."

"I still had checks, so I thought I had money."

But some residents weren't amused by Coleman's bookkeeping.

One CPA said Congress was just providing itself interest-free loans, something it told the public it couldn't do when it rewrote the tax law in 1986.

Marcie Mershier, a teller at El Paso-owned State National Bank, said balancing a checkbook is so simple that she believes Coleman's bounced checks were mere stupidity.

"They'd be paying a lot of money in service fees if they had bounced that many checks here," Ms. Mershier said. "We have a balance inquiry system here that allows you to check your balance so you can always know if your check bounces. There's no excuse."

Texas congressmen admit writing overdrafts at bank

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a list of the Texans who have admitted writing overdrafts on their House bank accounts, or those who have been cited by the House ethics committee following its investigation of a 39-month period:

—Mike Andrews, D-Houston, has declined to say how many checks he bounced or for what amount.

—Dick Armey, R-Lewisville, has acknowledged seven overdrafts totaling $1,748.

—John Bryant, D-Dallas, says he wrote overdrafts but doesn't know how many.

—Albert Bustamante, D-San Antonio, acknowledges overdrafts, but doesn't know how many.

—Ronald D. Coleman, D-El Paso, 673 checks with a face value of $275,848. The overdrafts exceeded his next paycheck 23 of the 39 months.

—Kika de la Garza, D-Mission, acknowledges overdrafts but does not know how many.

—Tom DeLay, R-Sugar Land, says he had nine overdrafts, five of which he claims responsibility for. He declined to reveal the face value of the checks, but said they accounted for $5,300 in overdrafts.

—Jack Fields, R-Houston, says has written "some" bad checks. Declined to reveal how many or their amounts.

—Greg Laughlin, D-West Columbia, says had six to eight overdrafts totaling less than $2,000.

—Bill Sarpalius, D-Amarillo, says he had three overdrafts for less than $1,000 overall.

—Lamar Smith, R-San Antonio, acknowledges one overdraft for $60.

—Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, says he had at least 50 overdrafts but less than 100.

—Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, 81 checks with a face value of $143,857. The overdrafts exceeded his next paycheck eight of the 39 months.

—Former House Speaker Jim Wright, 139 checks with a face value of $37,000. He disputes the findings.

DEAR DR. GOTT: During the past year I've noticed little red spots the size of pin heads appearing on my body. Could this be a symptom of AIDS? I'm a 52-year-old and suspect that my boyfriend is bisexual. Is my imagination working overtime, or do I have a real problem?

DEAR READER: Pin-head red spots in the skin may be tiny areas of hemorrhage. Called petechiae, these lesions can represent a deficiency in blood coagulation. The causes of petechiae are legion and include AIDS, leukemia and other blood diseases. In addition, some medicines, such as aspirin and similar drugs that can retard blood clotting, lead to skin hemorrhages. So can vitamin C deficiency (scurvy), which causes a breakdown of blood vessel walls and subsequent leakage of blood into skin and other tissues.

Unless you can identify a likely cause of your petechiae (such as aspirin), I urge you to check with your family doctor for an examination and blood tests that should include an AIDS test and analysis of your blood coagulation.

Since you suspect your boyfriend is bisexual, this might be a good time to deal with this issue, if it concerns you. Should infidelity and homosexuality not be pressing issues in your life, at the very least you should insist on safe sex. The use of a condom during intercourse will help protect you against the possibility of sexually transmitted diseases that usually go hand-in-hand with a bisexual lifestyle.

Your imagination is not working overtime. Arrange for a frank and honest discussion with your boyfriend.

To provide further information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Blood-AIDS." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with progressive supranuclear palsy. Do you have any information on my condition, and can you explain why it is different from Parkinson's disease?

DEAR READER: Progressive supranuclear palsy is a rare neurological disease of unknown cause, marked by loss of voluntary eye movements. In addition to the eye problems, patients with PSP suffer from a variety of muscular abnormalities, including rigidity and difficulty walking.

In some ways, PSP resembles Parkinson's disease; however, the eye symptoms are more prominent in the former. Treatment is unsatisfactory, but amantadine (an anti-Parkinson's drug) occasionally helps patients retain independence.

Professor believes tape of Whitman's voice real

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — What is believed to be a rare recording of poet Walt Whitman has surfaced in time for the observance of the centennial observance of his death.

The tape of Whitman reading a portion of one of his poems purportedly was recorded in 1890. Those who doubt its authenticity can come to the University of Iowa next week and listen for themselves, the editor of the Walt Whitman Quarterly Review says.

Ed Folsom, chairman of the University of Iowa English department and editor of the Review, said Monday the tape apparently was taken from an NBC radio broadcast some 40 years ago before becoming part of a private collection that was eventually auctioned.

The recording was discovered by Professor Larry Don Griffin of Midland College in Texas, who found it in the college library while doing research.

On the tape, broadcaster Leon Pearson identifies himself and introduces what he says is a wax cylinder recording of Whitman. The technique of wax cylinder recording was well established by 1890, but Whitman never mentioned making such a cylinder, and the cylinder used in the broadcast has been lost, according to Folsom.

Folsom, who also teaches English and American studies at Iowa, has a copy of the tape, which contains a recitation of a few lines from Whitman's poem, "America."

He said sound technicians have managed to remove much of the background noise and several versions of the 32-second recording will be played the evening of March 26 at the university, which is hosting a five-day conference on Whitman. The poet died 100 years ago at age 73 on March 26.

"I'm quite sure it's authentic," Folsom said. "We have evidence from the Edison Society that Edison and Jesse Lippincott, his assistant, were both very interested in making the recording."

"I'm convinced simply on the basis of the work I've done with Whitman and the descriptions of Whitman's voice. People who knew Whitman at that time — 1889-1890 — the way they described his voice is exactly the way it appears on the recording," Folsom said.

He also said he's convinced it's Whitman's voice because of the choice of poem.

"It's a very late, little known Whitman poem and just a fragment at that. If somebody were going to go to the trouble of having some sort of forgery here, one, we would imagine they would've gotten more mileage out of it than they did since nobody's known about it until now.

"And two, that they would have chosen a more recognizable Whitman poem ... something that people would recognize as Whitman. Unless you're a Whitman scholar, you probably wouldn't recognize this poem as one of his."

On the cylinder attributed to Whitman, the voice recites these lines from the poem "America":

Centre of equal daughters, equal sons.

All, all alike endear'd, grown, ungrown, young or old.

Strong, ample, fair, enduring, capable, rich.

Perennial with the Earth, with Freedom, Law and Love.

Archivists at NBC were unable to locate any information about the program.

The tape that Griffin discovered in the college library, which also contained other poets' readings, was produced by a now defunct California educational company, Folsom said.

"They got a hold of that and put it out as sort of an educational audio cassette and obviously had no idea what they had," he said. "They apparently didn't know how to market it."

Removing implants appeared to ease symptoms

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Removing silicone implants appeared to help women who began suffering from symptoms like those of rheumatic disease after having breast augmentation surgery, a physician said Saturday.

The symptoms disappeared in four women and were eased in 22 others who had implants removed, Dr. Frank B. Vasey told a seminar sponsored by the American College of Rheumatology.

There was little or no change in six women who had implants removed or in 18 who kept the implants, he said.

Long-term studies are needed to see whether there is a clear correlation between silicone-leaking breast implants and such symptoms as chronic fatigue, joint pain and swollen lymph nodes, said Vasey and some of his colleagues.

Henry VII of England had the ideal Chancellor of the Exchequer: John Morton. He operated under the principle that if a noble had a high standard of living, obviously he could afford to pay taxes to the king. Whereas if a noble lived frugally, clearly he was hoarding his money and so had cash to spare for the king. It was the perfect Catch-22, and, in memory of the Chancellor, there is a bridge play known as Morton's Fork.

Cover the East-West cards in the diagram and plan the play in six spades. West leads a trump from jack-third.

The hand was played during the 1991 Gold Flake Asia and Middle East Bridge Championships in New Delhi. Tahir Masood, who was helping Pakistan win the Open event, was the only player to make six spades on this deal.

North used the Jacoby forcing raise. South's rebid showed a balanced hand with extra values. Two cue-bids were followed by Roman Key Card Blackwood, South showing the trump queen and two key cards (two aces, or one ace and the trump king).

If the diamond finesse was working, the contract would be easy. So Masood assumed it was wrong. He drew trumps ending in the dummy and then led the club three, impaling East on Morton's Fork. If East went in with the ace, declarer could discard his two diamond losers on the fourth heart and the club king. But when East played low, Masood won with the club queen, discarded his second club on the long heart and took the diamond finesse in an unsuccessful quest for an overtrick.

NEW YORK (AP) — Money. We all need it, want it and enjoy it when we have it. Trouble is, if you're a kid, it's not easy to get your own money.

Allowances and gifts are the ways most kids begin to get money. But the size of allowances is limited, and you never know when gifts will come. You may be too young to get a job, or it might be difficult for teens to get a job in the town or city where you live.

"Fast Cash for Kids" by Bonnie and Noel Drew (The Career Press, Hawthorne, N.J.; $9.95) is a 181-page paperback filled with projects for kids who are too young to have a job or who want to start their own business.

The book begins on a cautionary note: The authors do not make any guarantees that "all ideas contained herein" will be workable. "The degree of success on any money-making venture depends solely on each individual."

They explain how to invent a business, how to get customers and how to handle money. These chapters are followed by a list of 101 projects, starting with Call-a-Kid! (kids who want to do odd jobs like mowing lawns or washing cars) to Maid-for-a-Day.

Written in short, easily understood chapters, with simple, can-do projects, the book includes lists, worksheets, business plans — and lots of helpful advice.

"You may be too young to get a job, but you're never too young to start your own business," say the Drews, who dedicate the book to their sons, Jon and Robby.

For information on how to order "Fast Cash for Kids" by mail, write to: The Career Press, 180 Fifth Ave., Box 34, Hawthorne, N.J. 07507.

Rat or sheep?

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The capybra, the world's largest rodent, can be the size of a small sheep, weighing 130 pounds or more.

Found in open grasslands near water or in tropical rain forests, the rodents are excellent swimmers and spend much time bathing, resting and grazing.

If the thought of a rodent the size of a sheep is intimidating, consider that the capybara's ancestors were bigger than grizzly bears.

Sweetwater entertains Tigers in diamond tilt

The Snyder Tigers will put their eight-game winning streak on the line today when they travel to Sweetwater for a 5:30 p.m. non-district baseball contest with the Mustangs.

Expected to draw the start for the Tigers is senior hurler Daniel Espinosa (2-0).

Snyder is fresh from Saturday's championship of the Big Spring tournament in which the Tigers posted a 7-2 victory over the host Steers.

Included in the list of SHS victims at the tourney were Merkel, a 13-4 loser in the opener, and Ft. Stockton, which lost 7-4 to the Tigers after holding a 4-1 lead in the last of the sixth inning.

Sweetwater is currently 3-1 on the campaign.

Other starters for Snyder include Bryan Crawford at first, second baseman Jason Rios, Mark King at short and Raymond House at third.

Either Bobby Clinkinbeard or Brad Hart will catch with the other playing left field. Wacey Parks and Chad Martin should also see some outfield duty against the Ponies.

The annual Snyder Baseball Tournament will begin Thursday and last through Saturday with the Tigers heading a 16-team field.

NCAA first round...

Meek Campbell faces Duke

By The Associated Press

Campbell, Robert Morris, Mississippi Valley State and Howard are this year's NCAA meek 16s.

The four 16th-seeded teams in the NCAA tournament's four regionals take their place alongside the other teams that have gone 0-28 against the top seeds since the 64-team format was started in 1985.

Campbell (19-11) probably has the toughest assignment, playing defending national champion Duke, which has been to the Final Four four straight seasons and five of the past six, on Thursday night. The Blue Devils have an opportunity to become the first team to repeat as NCAA champions since UCLA in 1972-73.

The Camels, who went from last to first in the Big South Conference after finishing 9-19 in 1990-91, don't have a player taller than 6-foot-6 and lost to East Carolina by 38 points — a team Duke beat by 28.

"I don't see repeating as being that tough," said Duke's All-America center, Christian Laettner. "... We are a very good team right now and we are confident, but we have to beat Campbell first."

No. 16 in the West and this year's Northeast Conference champ, Robert Morris (also 19-11) faces top-seeded UCLA on Friday. Robert Morris played top-seeded Arizona in 1989 and No. 2 seed Kansas in 1990.

Robert Morris lost to West Virginia, Southern Cal, Long Beach State and Florida State this season.

"I think we've worked hard and we've gone to the tournament three out of the past four years, yet they still kind of downplayed us," guard Wade Timmerson said.

UCLA (25-4) probably won't overlook the Colonials. UCLA was upset in the first round last year by Penn State.

"We haven't forgotten that," UCLA coach Jim Harrick said.

The Mississippi Valley Delta Devils (16-13), seeded 16th in the Southeast Regional, play top-seeded Ohio State (23-5) at Cincinnati on Thursday. The Buckeyes were the only team to repeat as a top seed.

Mississippi Valley's Al Ford, the No. 2 scorer in the nation and the leading scorer in the tournament, is casual about the matchup.

"I'm excited as I'm going to get," said Ford, a junior who averages 27.9 points per game. "It's time now to just get ready and go out and play as hard as we can."

Pacers sweep LA Lakers

The Indiana Pacers used to be just another notch in the Los Angeles Lakers' schedule, which usually ended with a 60-victory season or appearance in the NBA Finals.

Today, the Lakers are struggling to make the playoffs and the Pacers are using them as a springboard to stay close in a similar scramble in the Eastern Conference.

Indiana completed the first 2-0 sweep over the Lakers in its 16-year NBA history Monday night, following up a 114-87 victory at the Forum on Jan. 3 with a 98-85 win at Market Square Arena.

Reggie Miller scored 24 points and Detlef Schrempf had 21 points and 12 rebounds for Indiana, which has won just seven of 38 games against the Lakers.

In other NBA games, it was Cleveland 111, Washington 102; Chicago 116, Miami 100; Atlanta 89, Detroit 77; and Charlotte 117, San Antonio 112.

The Lakers have struggled without Magic Johnson, who retired after testing positive for the AIDS virus. Veteran forward James Worthy is on the injured list with a strained left knee.

Despite the loss, the Lakers finished 3-2 on their eastern road trip. Reserve Vlade Divac led Los Angeles with a season-high 23 points and a career-high six steals.

Indiana led 56-43 at halftime before the Lakers opened the third quarter with a 15-8 burst to pull to 64-58 with 5:51 left.

The Pacers then regained control by scoring 14 straight points, including six by Miller, for a 20-point lead, their largest of the game.

Divac carried the Lakers in the fourth period with 12 points, but they never got closer than 12. Hornets 117, Spurs 112

Charlotte, trying to scramble into the tight Eastern Conference playoff race, won for the eighth time in 10 games and snapped San Antonio's 10-game home winning streak.

Larry Johnson scored 27 points, Tyrone Bogues 22 and Kendall Gill 20 for the Hornets, who led 80-56 in the third quarter, but had to fend off a fourth-quarter rally by the Spurs.

San Antonio closed to 106-103 with 2:20 left before Charlotte held on for its eighth victory in 32 road games.

Bulls 116, Heat 100

Michael Jordan had 37 points and 13 assists as Chicago won at Miami for its sixth straight victory.

The Bulls led 96-81 before two baskets by Willie Burton, a 3-pointer by Steve Smith and a three-point play by Rony Seikaly closed the Heat within five with 6:17 left in the game.

Then Jordan hit a 17-footer, passed to B.J. Armstrong for a 3-point basket and scored on a dunk to rebuild the margin to 103-91 at the 3:53 mark.

After three Miami baskets, Jordan sandwiched a dunk and two free throws around a jumper by John Paxson, giving Chicago a 109-97 advantage with 1:31 remaining.

South Plains makes first appearance in national tourney

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Six former champions, including No. 1 Vincennes, Ind., are among 16 teams in the chase for the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament championship.

Six opening-round games are scheduled today, and two are set for Wednesday in the 26-game, double-elimination event.

The only team back from last year's field is Champlain, Vt., (27-3). Four schools are in the tourney for the first time: South Plains, Texas, (24-10); Sullivan, Ky., (30-4); Daytona Beach, Fla., (30-6); and Central Arizona (27-3).

"I don't think I'd go by what the juco poll said at the end of the season," Vincennes' coach Dan Sparks said. "We're here, but winning it is what we'll be all about now."

Ron Lucas, 6-foot-7, anchors Vincennes' hopes. Lucas averages 15 points in a high-powered offense that has scored at least 100 points in 19 of 32 games.

Vincennes (30-2) opens tonight against Northeastern Oklahoma A&M (21-13).

Butler County, Kan., coach Randy Smithson contends the tournament is like a new season and that any team is capable of winning the championship.

Aquinas, Tenn., last year's winner, isn't not back to defend the title.

"We're in our own home," Smithson said. "And I want a national championship. I like our chances as well as any team's."

Butler County centers its hopes around 6-6 sophomore Cleveland Jackson, a native of Santa Monica, Calif., who averages a tournament-best 25 points. Butler County (25-9) opens against Chowan, N.C., 25-6, on Wednesday.

TCU in NIT tourney

Long Beach State is back in the NIT for the third time in five years with a first-round game at Texas Christian.

"I thought 18 wins would be enough to get us in," Long Beach State coach Seth Greenberg said Sunday, a day after the 49ers lost to New Mexico State 80-72 in the Big West conference tournament semifinals.

Long Beach State (18-11) will be playing at Texas Christian (22-10) on Thursday night.

"It's a step toward where we want to go," Greenberg said. "I'm really excited. We're going to Texas, baby. I think postseason is a good reward for the kind of season we've had. Going to the NIT will bring some stability to the program. You could see marked improvement this year."

Wednesday's schedule has Alabama-Birmingham (20-8) at Tennessee (18-14), Western Michigan (21-8) at Notre Dame (14-14), Virginia (15-13) at Villanova (14-14), Western Kentucky (21-10) at Kansas State, Pittsburgh (17-15) at Penn State (21-7), and Minnesota (16-15) at Washington State (21-10).

Rangers sign Balboni

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. (AP) — The Texas Rangers have agreed to a minor league contract with Steve Balboni and invited outfielder Glenn Wilson to their minor league camp.

Balboni, a first baseman, will start the season at the Rangers Class AAA team, in Oklahoma City. Balboni batted .269 and hit 20 home runs and 63 RBIs in 83 games with the 89ers last season after the New York Yankees released him during spring training.

Wilson, a career .265 hitter in nine years with the Detroit Tigers, Philadelphia Phillies, Seattle Mariners, Pittsburgh Pirates and Houston Astros, last played in the big leagues with Houston in 1990.

He also hit .270 in 29 games in Richmond last season.

Balboni and Wilson begin workouts Tuesday with the rest of the minor league infielders and outfielders.

Switzer trial

AUSTIN (AP) — A state judge has declined to act on allegations that a law firm representing Barry Switzer improperly contacted a witness in a reporter's $30 million lawsuit against the former Oklahoma coach.

Jack Ayres, a lawyer for reporter Jack Taylor Jr., said a woman working for defense lawyer David Donaldson last week telephoned witness Robert Blanchard, a journalism professor and textbook writer from Trinity University.

The woman, Jennifer Scott, asked Blanchard about procedures in writing non-fiction books and investigative reporting, Ayres said.

Blanchard testified Monday on behalf of Taylor, a Los Angeles Daily News reporter who has accused Switzer of libel, slander and invasion of privacy for linking him to an alleged conspiracy to plant drugs on Oklahoma football player Brad McBride around the time of the 1988 Orange Bowl in Miami.

Hermleigh exes game

The Hermleigh senior class will sponsor an Exes basketball game Friday in the Hermleigh High school gym, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for 5th grade and younger. There will be special half-time activities.

UT forms search panel

AUSTIN (AP) — The University of Texas has formed a search committee to find a successor to women's athletic director Donna Lopiano, who is leaving to direct the Women's Sports Foundation.

Attention already is focused on basketball coach Jody Conradt, who has been reluctant to talk about a possible career change.

"Jody could do for women's athletics what she already has done for the basketball program," said Susan Blackwood, the department's assistant director for marketing and development.

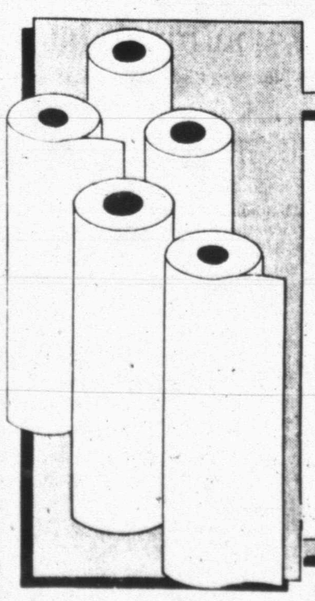

Conradt, the nation's winningest women's basketball coach with 598 career victories, also was endorsed by Lopiano.

Cholera cases found in Northern Mexico

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — Authorities on Monday reported cholera cases outside this industrial city near the U.S. border and were scrambling to contain the illness that has already killed thousands in Latin America.

The northern march of the epidemic is being closely watched by medical officials in the United States, which has so far been spared widespread cholera outbreaks. At least one person in Southern California has died of the disease.

Officials in Monterrey reported at least 12 cholera victims, including one woman who health authorities said died of pneumonia. They also closed down 17 sidewalk stands that sold fish, saying they did not meet sanitary regulations.

"It is the first time we have detected cholera in northern Mexico near the border," said Jesus Catano, a spokesman for the Health Department in Mexico City.

The disease, spread through food and water contaminated by fecal matter, causes severe diarrhea that can lead to dehydration and death. It is easily treated if caught early.

Officials reported the cases of cholera in suburbs of Monterrey, about 150 miles southwest of Laredo, Texas.

Jose Cavazos Lopez, undersecretary of health for Nuevo Leon, said the victims contracted cholera after eating food from southern Mexico, where most of the country's cases have been detected.

At least 35 people have died from cholera in Mexico since the disease was detected June 17 west of Mexico City. About 3,500 people have come down with the disease.

The cholera outbreak broke out in Peru in February 1991 and has spread through Latin America.

Rivals and Democratic Party begin stop Clinton movement

CHICAGO (AP) — Coming soon in the Democratic presidential campaign: the stop Bill Clinton movement.

That predictable effort will be both a concession and a plan of attack for Clinton's rivals and for the skeptical Democrats who aren't yet ready to settle on a White House challenger.

The Arkansas governor may not leave them many options.

Favored in the Illinois and Michigan presidential primaries today, Clinton is positioned to clinch command of the campaign. It's early; he won his first primary only two weeks ago, but the numbers so far have read his way.

In circumstances like those, rivals and critics have to stop or at least stall the front-runner just to keep the race open, an objective that concedes the lead and shapes opposition strategy.

It's bad political form to admit involvement in a concerted attempt to stop a leader like Clinton. So rivals and other politicians bent on preserving options or influence always deny they're trying to stop anybody.

Instead, they talk of keeping the process open, making certain the issues are thoroughly debated.

Candidates target Midwest

come the prohibitive favorite for the Democratic nomination.

Buchanan himself established Michigan as perfect proving ground for his "America First" message, but late polls showed he was more likely to have a tough time matching past showings.

Buchanan abandoned his talk of toppling Bush and returned to his battle cry that a vote for him would "send Washington a message to wake up."

Bush, in a stop in Milwaukee, hardly sounded worried on an election-eve trip to Wisconsin and Illinois that raised $1 million for his re-election effort at a time even conservative enthusiasm for Buchanan's rebellion appeared to be waning.

"I've been very pleased," Bush said of his unbroken string of 15 victories. But he refused to predict his margins: "Never try to say how high the high bar should be on these primaries."

Among the Democrats, Clinton held healthy leads heading into today's balloting and sought to end the day with a good chunk of the 295 Democratic delegates at stake. He had 766.25 delegates even before the polls opened — one third of what it takes to be nominated.

While predicting wins in both states, Clinton aides said the man to watch in Michigan was Brown, the former California governor and angry-man candidate who worked feverishly to tap into the state's economic anger — vividly illustrated by mounting auto layoffs and anger at perceived unfair Japanese trade practices.

Lawyer convicted on charge of 'buying' five children

HOUSTON (AP) — A 76-year-old lawyer who has handled more than 750 adoptions has been convicted for "buying" five children from a prison-bound Galveston prostitute.

Leslie Thacker faces up to 10 years in prison following his conviction Monday on the third-degree felony.

The punishment phase of Ms. Thacker's trial begins today in District Judge Charles Hearn's court.

Adamina DeJesus, Ms. Thacker's co-defendant, was also convicted on a charge of selling her babies.

The 27-year-old woman is already serving a 25-year prison term for burglary, manslaughter and a drug charge. She will be sentenced May 18.

The nine-week trial was the longest criminal trial in recent years in Harris County and featured hundreds of objections and numerous legal skirmishes between prosecutor Lorraine Parker and defense lawyer Dick DeGuerin.

DeGuerin said whatever Ms. DeJesus received from Ms. Thacker was in line with Texas Department of Human Services guidelines authorizing payment to "birth mothers" for food, housing and other necessities.

DeGuerin and colleague Don Ervin tried to show that if Ms. Thacker had not intervened, the children would have lived in squalor. They accused the mother's relatives of everything from sexual improprieties to drug abuse, from alcoholism to sloppy housekeeping.

Two treated and released

Cogdell emergency room personnel handled victims of a dog bite and an accident Monday.

Twelve-year-old Tiffany Salter of 2101 43rd St. was treated for a dog bite at 3:15 p.m. and released.

The dog was taken to West Texas Animal Clinic for 10-day observation.

Ricardo Oliva, 27, of 2208 Gilmore, was treated for an injury to his left elbow at 12:50 p.m. and released. He was brought to the emergency room by Snyder EMS personnel who responded to a 911 call that a man had been injured by falling pipe at Chevron Pipeline Station 19.

SCS Notes

By Michael Squires,
Range Conservationist

Although this is only March 17, I feel it is not too early to mention an important upcoming date in April. The week of April 26-May 3, 1992 is recognized as National Soil and Water Stewardship Week. The national theme this year is "Our Treasured Trees."

Featuring the vital role that trees and forest play in conserving soil and water resources, the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District is encouraging local schools, camps, churches, organizations and individuals to join in the nationwide observance of Soil and Water Stewardship Week.

It is a special week when all of us should take extra time to be thankful of all our resources and try to understand the vital role that they play in our everyday lives. Spring every year is the time when we take notice of trees, flowers, lakes, streams and other natural resources because winter has kept us indoors for several months. National Soil and Water Stewardship Week should remind us that we should be thankful all year long. The Upper Colorado SWCD, and SCS staff members work throughout the year on soil and water conservation measures. They are providing literature, educational materials and speakers to describe how people are dependent and interact with trees. The local district is one of nearly 3000 conservation districts nationwide that works with the National Association of Conservation Districts to encourage the wise use of natural resources through the annual week long observance.

I think that now is a good time to begin planning some special activities for that week. The staff at the Upper Colorado SWCD office and SCS personnel will be happy to assist in planning some activities for your groups. Along the line of the theme this year would be to plant maybe just one tree in a special area.

Charlie Henderson, chairman of the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservaton District, said he hopes Stewardship week will encourage individuals to think about their relationship with trees and establish and care for trees in urban and rural areas. "Every citizen has the opportunity to plant a tree, care for a newly planted seedling, look after mature trees or send financial support to someone who will do those tasks," said Henderson.

Materials designed with the 1992 theme, "Our Treasured Trees," are being distributed by the Upper Colorado SWCD and may be obtained by calling or visiting the district office during business hours at 3423 Ave. T, 573-6317.

All information given herein is for educational purposes only. Education programs conducted by the ASCS, SCS and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

A regular program of home maintenance inspections can help indentify and correct problems before they can become serious. Heading off major repairs or serious problems can prevent costly repair bills and protect the long-term value of a home. Preventive maintenance extends the life of building materials and equipment.

Now is a good time to schedule a maintenance inspection, particularly if the summer weather has been severe. Seasonal equipment requires inspection, lubrication and repair.

Special inspections should be made after severe wind, rain, ice or snow storms:

•Inspect the perimeter of the house for foundation damage and evidence of termites.

•Inspect all exterior doors, windows and trim for paint failure. Discoloration may indicate water damage. If you are considering a new paint job for the exterior of the house, the best time is in the fall. Don't plan to paint if the temperature is likely to be below 50 degrees or above 90 degrees. Inspect the seals around windows, doors and the junctures between the foundation and patio, and patios, porches and walks.

•Replace or repair any damage to screens or storm windows.

•Inspect the roof and gutters. The roof should form a water-tight shield over the house. If the roof is more than 15 years old, it is probably beginning to show signs of wear. Clogged gutters probably cause more damage than any other single gutter problem. Well-maintained gutters can prevent damage to the roof, siding and foundation.

Maintaining a home need not be difficult, but it requries a regular plan for maintenance to correct minor problems before they become major ones.

Diversified

Scurry County Producers Association board met last Thursday and voted to set the cotton Uniform Delayed Planting Date for May 15.

Over-wintered boll weevil emergence is expected to be heavier than last year due to the mild winter and large number of weevils going into over-wintering in the fall. The purpose of the Uniform Delayed Planting Date is to delay the appearance of squares necessary for boll weevil survival and development until most over-wintered weevils have emerged and died from starvation.

The peak period of boll weevil emergence from over-wintering sites is typically the last week of May and the first two weeks of June. However, significant emergence can continue into early July in some years. These weevils live for 10 to 22 days following emergence.

When cotton is planted after mid-May, the appearance of ⅓ -grown squares is delayed until the first week of July or later. Research has shown that very few emerging over-wintered weevils survive until ⅓ -grown squares are available for oviposition (egg-laying) in July. Squares smaller than ⅓ -grown do not provide sufficient food for boll weevil larvae to complete development.

Early planting may result in the production of a complete boll weevil generation before later planted cotton begins to square. over-wintered boll weevil insecticide applications at pinhead to matchhead size square can be effective if timed correctly.

The May 15 date recommended by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is approximately five days earlier than normally recommended. It is recognized that weather problems at planting time and early-freezes in the fall the past few years have made a decision to plant with the date difficult for producers. Also, data suggests that aphid problems may be worse in June planted cotton. Although most producers prefer to have cotton planted prior to the second week of June, time constraints and weather difficulties sometimes leave no other option.

Planting earlier than May 15 would defeat the purpose of the Uniform Delayed Planting Date and would result in higher weevil survival.

Sugar production outpacing use

WASHINGTON (AP) — World sugar production is outpacing use for the third consecutive season, replenishing stocks after several years of tight supplies, the Agriculture Department reports.

USDA said world production is forecast at 111.4 million metric tons for 1991-92, which would exceed consumption by about 1.2 million tons.

USDA said Cuba's 1991-92 forecast has been cut sharply from December's estimate of 7.3 million tons to 6 million tons, due in part of a two-month delay in starting the harvest, reduced supplies of oil and a falloff in yields reflecting the lack of fertilizer and fuel.

Plan for water shortage makes the most sense

By The Associated Press

There's nothing plain about water when its scarcity demands you choose between garden favorites to sustain. When drought conditions threaten, you may be forbidden by law to water on certain days.

"In such times use the precious water you have to save the larger plants and let the smaller and younger plants go," writes Pat Welsh, a Southern California gardening expert and television personality, in her new book, "Southern California Gardening: A Month-by-Month Guide" (Chronicle Books).

"Lawns, flower borders, vegetables, ground covers and young shrubs can be quickly replaced. But the mature and graceful trees, shrubs and vines that add character to the landscape are irreplaceable."

She advises grouping plants in separate zones, according to their water needs, for efficient distribution of available water.

Welsh, who gardens in an area often under water restrictions, says the worst way to water is to stand around with a hose in your hand, spraying water on the ground.

Better ways of watering efficiently are drip, mist, or trickle systems, she says. These release measured amounts of water through a tubing network radiating from a "header" hose receiving water at controlled low pressure. Tubing leads to individual plants, where emitters release water to root zones or mist the foilage. Some of these systems are buried underground, others are created by adding attachments to existing sprinkler systems.

Any kind of sprinkler system should be checked regularly for leaks and malfunctioning parts. Overhead sprinklers often cause water to pour off slopes or dry ground and run off into the street, she notes. Installation of control clocks that pulse water at intervals, allowing time for each dose of water to penetrate into dry soil, can help prevent this.

Drought conditions also may force you to choose water sources you otherwise might not use, she points out. One of these is "gray water," or water that already has been used in household sinks, tubs and washers. In its direct form, gray water can burn plants and tie up nutrients in soil so plants can't use them.

Bill would make beginning farmers eligible for breaks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is taking another look at the graying of America's farmers and the obstacles to luring another generation to the land.

Rep. Kika de la Garza, the chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, is offering the latest proposal — tax breaks to help beginning farmers buy land or equipment.

"Today, the capital investment required to begin a viable farming operation is quite high," said de la Garza, a Texas Democrat. "Increasingly, these financial obstacles are putting farming out of the reach of many young people."

According to the Census Bureau, the number of farm operators under the age of 35 has declined by 77 percent since 1940.

In 1987, when the last census of agriculture was taken, young farmers represented just over 13 percent of all farm operators, while farmers over the age of 55 represented nearly half.

In 1987, the average age of a farmer was 52, compared with 48.7 a half-century ago. The next census of agriculture will be taken in December.

"As our nation's farming population ages, there's growing concern out in rural America over whether the next generation can afford to farm the land," de la Garza said.

Under his bill, a beginning farmer would be eligible for a tax credit of 10 percent of the cost of purchasing farmland and depreciable farming equipment. The farmland credit would be limited to $35,000, while the equipment credit would be capped at $15,000.

"Tax credits for farmland and farm equipment purchases by first-time farmers can provide economic stimulus for the agricultural sector and the industries that supply its needs," de la Garza said.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, promised to give de la Garza's plan serious attention. His panel has jurisdiction over tax legislation.

"Congressman de la Garza is addressing a serious problem when he proposes a tax credit for people who buy the land and equipment needed to begin careers in farming. We have an expanding population and a shrinking number of farmers to provide the food we eat," Bentsen said Monday.

"One of the big reasons fewer and fewer young Americans are going into farming is the enormous cost of starting up," Bentsen said.

He notes that the number of farms has fallen dramatically, from 5.9 million in 1945 to 2.1 million in 1990.

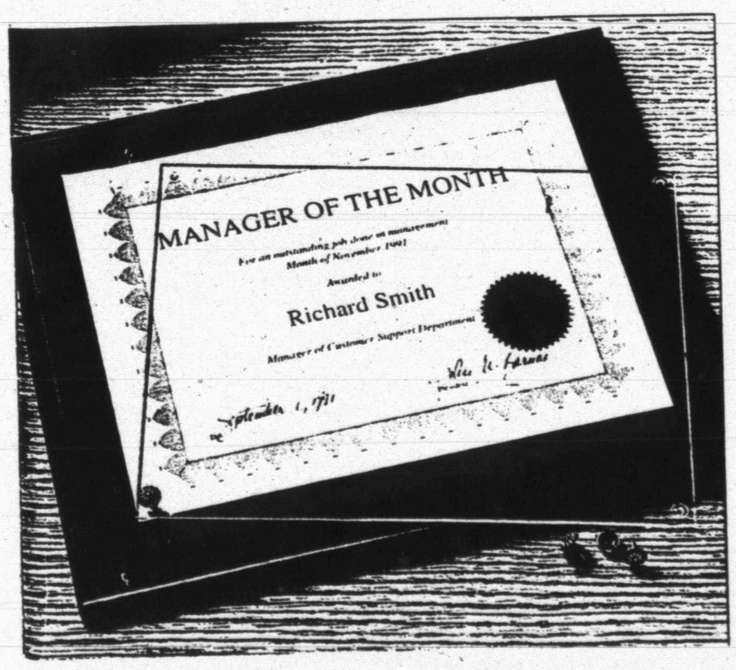

USDA's Farmers Home Administration has proposed spending its entire 1993 budget for direct farm ownership loans, $28 million, on beginning and socially disadvantaged farmers. The 1993 budget proposal also seeks to target both groups in credit sales of inventory property, with a value of $125 million.

Wife Hopes to End Husband's Tango With Dancing Teacher

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1992 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I need your help, and hopefully soon. My husband has been taking dancing lessons for two years. His teacher is two years older than our oldest grandson.

This teacher phones my husband day and night — at all hours. She always needs money. He has given her money for a car, a downpayment on a house, a TV for her kids, money for trips to visit her sick mother, and the list goes on. (He has plenty of money; all inherited.)

Yet he won't give a penny to help our children or grandchildren. It makes me so angry, I could pull his gray hairs out!

I want this business with that dancing teacher to stop, but I'm not sure how to do it. We're Catholic, so divorce is out.

MISERABLE IN MOLINE

DEAR MISERABLE: You need more help than I can give you in a letter. You don't say how you feel about your husband. Talk to your priest. Also to a family counselor. If your husband refuses to see a counselor, go without him.

Do you want to stay with him? Perhaps when he finds out how much it will cost if you decide to leave him (I didn't say "divorce" — I said "leave"), he may change his tune.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have been a widow for six years. My late husband and I were friendly with a couple who were our neighbors for many years. The wife died last year, and I gave "Harold" a lot of attention — as any longtime friend would do.

We have so much in common and would make a wonderful couple. I have been teasing Harold about getting married — but he refuses to take me seriously.

The other night when I mentioned marriage he said, "Oh, stop talking about marriage — I'm impotent!" Then I flat out told him it was fine with me because I never cared much for sex anyway. Even that didn't budge him.

Abby, I know there is no other woman in his life. How can I get Harold to realize I am serious? I am not interested in his money, because my husband left me as well off as he is. I am 68 and Harold says he is 70.

LOVING MY NEIGHBOR

DEAR LOVING: Invite Harold over for a candlelight dinner and tell him that you are serious — that both your lives would be much richer if you had someone to share them with. Assure him that you are not after his money, and the matter of impotence doesn't bother you as long as he enjoys cuddling. Then stop talking and listen carefully to what he has to say, and you'll have your answer.

DEAR ABBY: Years ago, you printed a quote by Thomas Jefferson concerning religion.

I clipped it and misplaced it. I read through many Jefferson biographies and found several quotes on religion, but not the one you cited. Will you please run it again and cite the source?

MAURICE T.

DEAR MR. T.: According to my records, from a letter written by Thomas Jefferson to Mrs. H. Harrison Smith in 1816, came this gem.

"I never told my own religion nor scrutinized that of another. I never attempted to make a convert, nor wished to change another's creed. I am satisfied that yours must be an excellent religion to have produced a life of such exemplary virtue and correctness. For it is in our lives, and not from our words, that our religion must be judged."

Man sought for questioning

AUSTIN (AP) — Striking similarities in composite sketches of suspects in two cases have police looking to question a man in the slayings of four teen-age girls at a yogurt shop.

Authorities said Monday that the man, believed to be 20 to 21 years old, was seen sitting in an older model, four-door white automobile about the time the four girls were shot to death inside the yogurt shop.

The four girls — Jennifer Harbison, 17; her sister, Sarah Harbison, 15; Eliza Thomas, 17; and Amy Ayers, 13 — were found early the morning of Dec. 7 by fire fighters who had responded to a blaze at the I Can't Believe It's Yogurt shop in northwest Austin.

The girls were tied up and each shot in the back of the head. Police said the fire apparently was started to try to cover up the killings.

Police spokeswoman Gail Phillips said the man's appearance was very similar to one of three men wanted in the Nov. 17 abduction and rape of an Austin woman.

According to the victim, she was kidnapped in the Sixth Street nightclub area, driven to an apartment complex near the yogurt shop, then driven to San Antonio, Ms. Phillips said.

The victim was sexually assaulted at gunpoint and turned loose by her captors.

Police said the man they are looking for is possibly Hispanic, 20 to 21 years old, 5-foot-4 inches tall, medium build and weighing about 140 pounds. He has straight black hair that falls slightly below his shoulders.

Police also said they are looking for four people who were inside the yogurt shop the night of the killings.

Two customers were described as black women who sat together for 40 to 45 minutes; the others were a couple believed to be in their mid-20s who sat together and talked about having just seen a movie, police said.

Record smog causes classes to be suspended

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Trying to cope with record smog, authorities canceled classes for most Mexico City schoolchildren today, ordered dozens of factories to curtail production and banned hundreds of thousands of cars from the roads.

The second phase of a new smog alert plan was called into effect Monday for the first time after ozone reached record levels.

Along with cancelling classes for preschoolers and primary and secondary school students, the government doubled to 1 million the number of cars forbidden — according to license plate — to be on the road.

That meant 40 percent of cars in the city area were banned from its streets today.

In addition, nearly 200 of the cities most polluting industries were ordered to cut back production between 50 percent and 75 percent.

They include General Motors de Mexico S.A., Proctor and Gamble de Mexico S.A., Duracell and other manufacturers of textiles, rubber products, paper, chemicals, metals and other products.

The plan went into effect after ozone levels in the city's southeast reached a record 398 points on the Imeca scale.

Law students give up spring break to help boat people

MIAMI (AP) — More than three dozen law students gave up a traditional spring break of skiing or sunbathing to help Haitian refugees win political asylum.

Mike Ryan of Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland was among the 37 student volunteers who showed up Monday for a crash course in immigration law at Miami's Haitian Refugee Center.

"It's the most important thing I've ever done. I wish I didn't have to go back to law school," he said.

Some 16,000 Haitians have fled the Caribbean nation since President Jean-Bertrand Aristide was overthrown Sept. 30 in a military coup. They were picked up at sea by Coast Guard cutters and taken to the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

The U.S. government has sent back about two-thirds on the grounds they are fleeing poverty, not persecution. But about a third had stories immigration authorities deemed credible enough for further consideration for asylum.

Now they're arriving in Miami from Guantanamo Bay at the rate of 300 a week and have just 90 days to prepare for crucial immigration interviews.

Refugee advocates say they need lots of legal assistance in the weeks ahead to help the refugees prove they face political persecution.

"The numbers are overwhelming," said Cheryl Little, a lawyer for the refugee center. "There's just no way that without lots of volunteers to help we'll be able to reach the refugees we need to."

Immigration law places the burden on refugees to prove they have a well-founded fear of persecution.

The Bush administration maintains there's never been a documented case of a Haitian suffering persecution after being sent home.

"We've had cases where people say family members are dead and we go back and find them walking the streets," Duke Austin, a spokesman for the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said Monday. "Just to say it doesn't make it true."

News reports about the refugees' plight drew law students from such schools as Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Boston College, Boston University, Notre Dame and the University of Florida to the refugee center in Miami's Little Haiti. They rely on Creole-speaking interpreters to interview the refugees.

Tilt-rotor funding predicted

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The V-22 Osprey, a tilt-rotor aircraft threatened in the midst of military cutbacks, faces a "showdown" over funding, a lawmaker says.

But U.S. Rep. Les Aspin predicted Monday that the Pentagon would eventually be forced to spend the $790 million appropriated for the aircraft.

The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, Aspin made the comments as he and other lawmakers and officials visited Bell Helicopter Textron's test center.

Aspin said the dispute over spending money set aside for the aircraft and other military hardware has brought Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Congress to an impasse.

"It's going to have to be some kind of a showdown," said Aspin, D-Wis. "We have very good constitutional precedents on this one, and I have no doubt we can prevail on this."

Cheney since 1989 has opposed developing and purchasing the combination airplane-helicopter developed by Fort Worth-based Bell and Boeing Helicopter Co. of Philadelphia.

Aspin praised the V-22's abilities after watching a demonstration and attending a briefing by Bell officials.

"The Congress has always been a strong supporter of it, and the more the Congress sees it, they more they appreciate the capabilities of the aircraft," said Aspin.

"It's a new world. There's a lot of different requirements. I think the V-22 makes a very good case in the new world, the post-Soviet Union, post-Cold War world."

Aspin was flanked by Texas congressmen and fellow Democrats Martin Frost, Pete Geren and Chet Edwards.

In an earlier speech at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, Aspin compared the present global situation to that faced by the world and the United States immediately after World War II.

He said the threat of the Soviet Union and the Red Army has all but disappeared with the USSR's disintegration, and the United States no longer faces threats on its survival.

TV character will lose his virginity in show

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Paul Pfeiffer, the nerdy 16-year-old played by Josh Saviano on television's "The Wonder Years," is about to lose his virginity.

"I'm sure we're going to get a lot of letters from parents," Saviano said in the March 21 issue of TV Guide.

He said the episode doesn't focus on the sex, but on the reaction of Kevin Arnold — Paul's best friend and narrator of the ABC series. Arnold is played by Fred Savage.

"He's afraid he's going to lose Paul, but the story shows Paul reaching out to Kevin more than ever," Saviano said.

The episode airs March 25.
