Factories may be closed for months, officials say

By THOMAS O'TOOLE
and
JAMES L. ROWE JR.
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Factories closed in the 11 states most afflicted by the natural gas shortage will find it hard if not impossible to get the gas they need to reopen before April.

Those were the assessments of Federal Power Commission Chairman Richard L. Dunham and FPC Commissioner John H. Holloman III, who said in separate interviews that depleted storage fields must be refilled before gas can be delivered to the factories that were forced to close and lay off an estimated 500,000 workers.

"This emergency will not be over when the cherry blossoms start to bloom," Holloman said. "I don't think you'll see any improvement in the industrial usage of gas the rest of the heating season."

Dunham said that while the nation was preoccupied by the natural gas shortage the nation's capacity to make electricity was strained to the limit by the severe cold weather of the last month.

Demand for electricity was so great last week, Dunham said, that the nation had to buy electricity from Canada. The northwest sent power to the southwest through the complex grid that joins almost all of the lower 48 states. Buffalo, N.Y., borrowed power from Michigan because the coal used to fire generators in Buffalo froze and could not be burned.

Even the West Coast, where the weather has been mild but where drought prevails, has not escaped the energy crunch. The Bonneville Power Administration Tuesday warned its largest customers that unless a new source of power is found, they can expect a 25 per cent cut in electricity by late February because its hydorelectric supply is way down.

The Pacific Gas & Electric Co., which generates power for the San Francisco Bay area and most of northern California, predicted that "rolling blackouts" would begin by summer if the drought continues. PG & E depends on 55 hydroelectric stations in northern California for up to half its electricity.

Blackouts were averted last week, Dunham said, because regions of the country that were short of electricity were able to buy power from regions that had a surplus. The nation's natural gas pipelines do not interlock the way electrical tranmission lines do, Dunham went on, making it hard to move gas from regions of surplus to those of shortage.

The government will be able to force unregulated intrastate gas into interstate pipelines under President Carter's Natural Gas Emergency Act, which was passed Tuesday by the House. The Senate took up action on the bill but did not complete action on it Tuesday night.

Dunham and Holloman said natural gas pipelines have dipped so deeply into the gas they have in storage that even improved weather and continued conservation by homeowners and small businesses are not likely to help the big industrial gas users.

The nation's pipelines began last November's heating season with 1.73 trillion cubic feet of natural gas in

Fabled Phil gives prediction: winter

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) — Punxsutawney Phil, the weather-forecasting groundhog, was lifted from his burrow at sunrise today and his interpreters said he forecast six more weeks of winter.

Phil was taken from his comfortable museum cage to windswept Gobbler's Knob an hour before the annual ceremony and tucked into his lighted and heated burrow.

Charles M. Erhard, president of the Groundhog Club, had a prepared forecast after talking to Phil in "groundhogese." Other members of the club had prepared signs ready for television and newspaper cameras, which said "Blizzard," and "Six More Weeks of Winter."

According to legend, if Phil had not seen his shadow, spring would have been just around the corner.

It was seven degrees with a wind chill factor of 25 degrees below zero on the knob when Phil made his prediction.

Another well-known prognosticator had predicted that Phil would forecast more winter weather.

"I'm going to lay 2-1 odds that he'll see his shadow," said odds-maker Jimmy the Greek in a telephone interview Tuesday from Las Vegas, where the temperature was 55 degrees.

Carter given emergency powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today approved President Carter's emergency natural gas bill and sent it to the House, where leaders hoped to gain final action before the President delivers his first "fireside chat" to the nation tonight.

Senate passage came on a voice vote.

The bill gives Carter the new powers he requested to deal with acute natural gas shortages precipitated by severe cold weather east of the Rocky Mountains.

House approval of the compromise bill also appeared certain.

Carter was expected to talk about the nation's energy crisis in his nationally televised address tonight, and congressional leaders were determined to get the bill to him before air time. The President submitted the emergency legislation to Congress last Wednesday.

The bill gives Carter the authority to order gas moved from state to state, across the interstate gas pipeline system, to ease shortages in the hardest-hit areas. Congressional sponsors of the legislation claimed the emergency gas can begin to flow within several days after enactment of the bill.

The measure is a compromise produced Tuesday night by a House-Senate conference committee which ironed out differences between earlier versions passed in each chamber.

The House passed its version of the bill 367 to 52 on Tuesday, a day after the Senate overwhelmingly approved its own measure.

Under the compromise, the House will abandon its effort to put a price ceiling into the bill during the emergency period, when some gas would be freed from federal price regulation.

In its place, an amendment was included to guarantee against skyrocketing gas prices.

The bill is a stopgap measure that is not expected to generate new supplies of natural gas. It would give Carter authority to allocate gas among interstate pipelines through April 30 to get gas to areas where homes, hospitals and small businesses are threatened by cutoffs because of the severe winter.

It also would allow pipelines to make up shortages by buying the more expensive gas found in intrastate markets — gas produced and sold in the same state — through July 31. Intrastate gas is not subject to the federal price controls that apply to interstate gas.

The Senate passed the bill 91 to 2 on Monday in substantially the same form that Carter requested last Wednesday.

The House version included an amendment by Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, to limit the price that interstate pipelines could pay for this unregulated intrastate gas.

Gas won't be coming too soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials already are working on the mechanisms for President Carter to allocate natural gas on an emergency basis, but the gas probably won't be available overnight.

With Congress trying to complete action today on Carter's natural gas bill, a Federal Energy Administration official said Tuesday that emergency allocations probably will involve shifting gas from states west of the Mississippi River to those in the frigid East.

Even if Carter immediately ordered pipeline companies to begin sending fuel East, gas moves only about 15 miles per hour and could take several days to pass through the interstate pipeline network.

The FEA official said no interstate pipeline has an abundance of gas.

"We would look for the areas where you would have the least adverse impact," he said. "Nobody has surplus gas. You would be cutting into somebody's gas supply."

The aim would be to take gas from pipelines where customers could switch to other fuels without shutting down operations, he said.

Another government expert on natural gas estimated that the emergency allocations would tap "much less than 5 per cent" of the supply from donor pipelines.

The emergency bill is not designed to increase natural gas supplies, but to give the President the power to shift some gas from low-priority users to high-priority users through April 30. High-priority users include homes, hospitals, schools and small businesses. Low-priority users include industries.

The procedures for allocating the gas are not yet complete and the administration has not yet said whether the FEA or the Federal Power Commission will manage the program. But both agencies began drawing up contingency plans this week and have been cooperating, the FEA official said, "so there need not be a substantial time between passage of the bill and the start of allocation orders."

The emergency bill would not authorize mandatory gas transfers to reopen shut down industries and put people back to work, since that might come at the expense of industries served by donor pipelines.

The emergency bill would allow interstate pipelines to buy gas from the more expensive intrastate markets — if they can spare any — through July 31. Intrastate gas normally is produced and sold within one state and is not subject to federal price control or regulation.

American countryside cries for warm relief

By The Associated Press

Conservation measures appear to be easing the drain on natural gas supplies, but the long-run costs will be high. A federal energy official said today that factory closings and layoffs that are saving gas this frigid winter could last until April.

Over thousands of miles of American countryside today, the misery of the harsh winter was evident.

In paralyzed Buffalo, N.Y., which has had 160 inches of snow since the beginning of the year, 200 Army engineers were being flown from North Carolina to help 500 National Guardsmen clear the latest, and worst, storm's snow from the streets. Otherwise the streets were deserted. An occasional rescue vehicle passed, or a military helicopter droned overhead. Great chunks of ice choked Niagara Falls.

On the Chesapeake Bay and the Ohio River, fuel barges which were idled for up to two weeks were moving again. But their progress was tedious through floes of ice.

In West Virginia and Kentucky, more than 30,000 coal miners were off the job, their mines shut down because of the cold.

Thousands of schools and factories also were shut and about a dozen states had declared energy emergencies.

On Tuesday, North Carolina joined the ranks of states declaring such emergencies, and the auto industry alone announced that 80,000 workers in the United States and Canada would join some 1.5 million persons estimated to be laid off around the nation. In the auto industry, parts shortages were a factor as well as gas shortages.

The harsh weather has centered in the East, Midwest and South, but the problem was national in effect and both the federal government and some distant areas were acting to help.

Warm California, meanwhile, imposed emergency restrictions on the use of natural gas so state utilities could ship some of the fuel east. And a

As in many other parts of the nation, vehicles clutter one of Buffalo, N.Y.'s streets. Traffic on this and many more streets was at a standstill as crew tried to dig out the buried cars and trucks.

Care-less attitudes approach absurdity

Within everyday existence, there's a plane of indifference that runs smack-dab into the absurd.

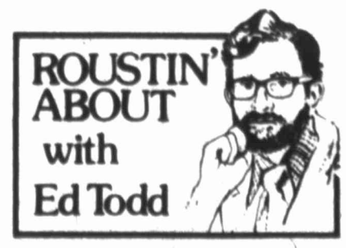

The following dialogue is a half-serious attempt to project that unfortunate care-less attitude. Anyway, here goes (and bear on):

"Do you think I oughta quit? Honestly."

"Well, it's up to you. You and . . . . 'Long as you're not hurting anyone else."

"Anyone else? You mean I'm hurting myself? Come on."

"You asked me. If you're thinking about quitting, must be something's bothering you. Personally, I don't really care one way or the other."

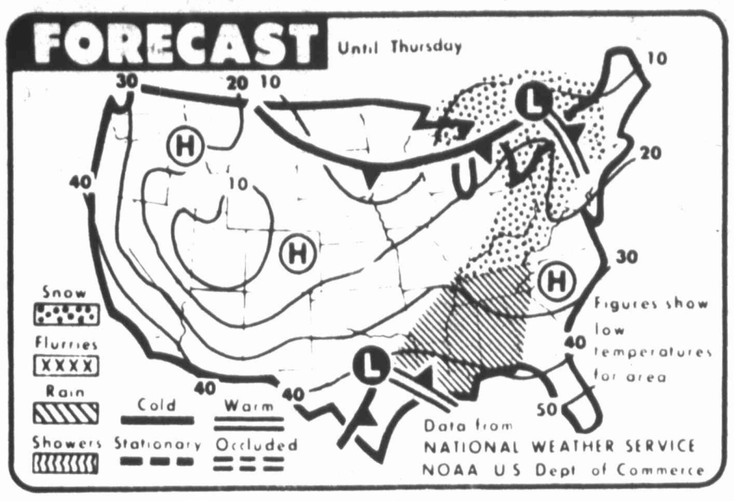

"Don't care? Some friend you are!"

"Listen, I didn't mean it thataway, dearie. Besides, I'm not just your friend."

"Don't 'dearie' me, dearie. If I want a friend's advice, I'll ask a friend — not somebody, someBODY, I've JUST their storage fields. That is almost 10 per cent of annual demand for natural gas all over the country and was felt at the start of the winter to be enough to get through the heating season, which ends March 31.

Shutdowns likely to continue

By Jan. 15, pipelines were down to less than 1 trillion cubic feet of gas. Just how much gas is now in storage fields is unknown, but some FPC estimates are that it is less than 800 billion cubic feet. The country has used as much as 100 billion cubic feet of gas a day this winter.

One big gas field outside Chicago owned by Peoples Gas Light & Coke Co. lost pressure so fast last week that emergency gas had to be pumped into the field to keep the gas flowing. Southern Natural Gas Co. lost so much storage pressure in South Carolina two weekends ago that it had to buy natural gas from Florida and propane from Mississippi to keep pilot lights from going out.

"Southern almost lost its delivery pressures," Holloman said. "Its system came as close as any this winter to caving in."

Holloman said the reason closed factories may not be able to reopen before April is that pipelines must, under FPC policy guidelines, refill their depleted storage fields before they can begin serving gas to industrial customers.

The FPC commissioner estimated that the pipelines in the eastern two thirds of the nation will have to pump an extra 200 billion cubic feet of gas into their storage fields this summer to get them back into working condition.

"The factories just can't come back on until we get gas into those fields," Holloman said. "If February's weather stays as cold as January's it could mean these factory slowdowns will continue right through summer."

There are almost 400 natural gas storage fields serving the nation's 29 pipelines, which augment the gas they buy from producing fields in the heating season with gas they stored last summer.

Almost half the storage fields are in the East, where most of the natural gas is consumed. Another 60 are in the Midwest. Only nine are in the south, which is one reason why the southern states have been so hard hit this winter. They have had so few storage fields from which to draw gas.

Estimates vary from state to state on how many factories may stay closed and how many workers stay away from their jobs because of the gas shortage, but FPC statistics indicate that as many as 500,000 workers in 11 states may be out of work another two months.

These workers are in the 11 states served by the five pipelines with the most critical storage shortage.

These pipelines are Southern Natural Gas Co., Columbia Gas Supply Corp.; Consolidated Gas Supply Corp.; Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. and Transcontinental Pipeline Corp. The states hardest hit are Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina Alabama and Mississippi.

The Commerce Department has estimated that as many as 1 million workers in 17 states have been laid off, but it figures that about half of them will go back to their jobs as soon as the weather warms up.

The Labor Department took special action to elimate "red tape" and speed payment of unemployment insurance benefits to thousands of workers laid off because of the cold and gas shortage.

At the same time, the Health, Education and Welfare Department rejected a plan to divert Federal day care funds to emergency electric and heating bill payments for the poor. HEW said it has begun a study to see what kinds of fuel subsidies it might make available later.

Conditions were at their worst in Buffalo and the rest of western New York, where winds gusted to 35 miles an hour and more snow feel Monday night on top of the 13 feet of snow that have fallen so far this winter.

WEST TEXAS' VERSION of the weather-predicting groundhog poked his head out this morning to check out the sunshine scene. The prairie dog and his pal found no shadow in Midland — an indication that winter's on its way out. But forecasters (two-legged variety) are promising still more harsh weather, at least for this sector of the nation.

Don't toss the long johns

Winter's over, but don't sell your long underwear — that's the West Texas weatherman's analysis of the meaning of the groundhog's (or his prairie dog cousin's) failure to see his shadow this Groundhog Day.

The solidly overcast skies blocked the shadows this morning although the sun peeked out behind the clouds in the early afternoon. Only time will tell whether the groundhog came out of his hole again to see his shadow and doom the area to six more weeks of winter.

The long underwear may be needed tonight and tomorrow because considerable cloudiness and cooler weather is expected tonight and Thursday.

There is a 30 per cent chance of light rain or snow mixed with rain tonight and a 50 per cent chance Thursday.

Midland won't be alone however. Drizzle or fog already covered much of Central and South Texas this morning with overcast skies nearly everywhere else in the state.

In Midland, tonight's low should be near freezing with a high Thursday in the mid-40s. Winds are due to be from the northeast at 15 to 25 mph late tonight.

Tuesday's high was 65 and this morning's low 43. Big Lake reported a fine mist and fog this morning, the only rain in the area. But it was cloudy and overcast in Andrews, Big Spring, Lamesa, Stanton, Rankin and Odessa. Significant wind levels were reported in Andrews, Lamesa and Rankin. It was in the low 30s in Stanton but elsewhere in the area temperatures were well above freezing.

Board delays action on code violations

The Midland Board of Appeals Tuesday tabled until its next meeting a decision on how it will allow Ronny Smith go about rectifying some building code violations.

Smith is in violation of requirements to have a building permit, use proper wiring, and allow 30 feet of right-of-way on one side of his building for city maintenance of a street adjacent to his property.

Smith has occupied the building for use as a workshop and storeroom and he wanted the board to grant him a variance to continue using it.

He told the board his original plan was to build a smaller structure, which would not violate the right-of-way requirement, but later expanded his size. He also incorrectly assumed that his building was outside the city limit, and therefore not subject to the city's building code.

Smith's building is located in West Industrial Loop section of the city that is very near the city limits.

Board chairman Ernest Neill, speaking only for himself, said the building will definitely have to be rewired for conduit instead of romex cable, which it now has.

Less certain is what will have to be done about the right-of-way question.

Smith needs to provide 30 feet in order to allow for a 51-foot wide street and for proper access to utilities along the street.

Possible options may be to simply move the building, which Smith said would be difficult to move, or Smith may be able to acquire additional land to allow the street to be slightly curved to allow the 30-foot right-of-way.

Smith will return for the March 1 board meeting to discuss options available. One option would allow a temporary six month variance on the building code to allow Smith to plat the land and resolve the right-of way problem with the Midland Public Works Department.

The other option also would require public works' action too, but instead of a temporary variance, the board simply would table any final action for six months without penalty.

Should the board finally rule against Smith and find him in violation of the city code then he could be fined as much as $200 a day.

In another board decision, Shackelford Reeder was granted a variance to decrease from 3 feet to 8 inches the height requirement for a parapet wall on property he owns at Plaza Shopping Center.

The parapet is designed to give fire protection to adjoining buildings and will not be needed 3 feet above the roof line unless a Safeway store in the shopping center is expanded and built next to the wall. If a building is placed next to the parapet wall, then the variance will be void.

spokesman for the Southwest Gas Corp. said two utilities in Nevada had agreed to convert from natural gas to oil in a shared power plant, allowing their natural gas to be diverted also.

Today's forecast promised little relief for the hardest-hit areas: Continued cold in the East, with snow flurries near the Great Lakes.

These were some of the severe weather's effects around the country:

—In Michigan, after a weekend blizzard, winds dropped and snowfall slowed Tuesday. But National Guardsmen stayed on weather duty in three counties and on standby in a fourth. Lake Michigan showed open water for only about 15 miles near Chicago.

—In Maryland, the Federal Energy Administration is allowing Baltimore Gas & Electric to use liquid naphtha to produce synthetic gas to meet about 8 per cent of its needs. Two fuel barges made it up the ice-clogged Nanticoke and Wicomico rivers Tuesday but one official said only eight had reached Salisbury in the last 16 days and under normal conditions 45 would have made the trip.

—In Pennsylvania, natural gas shortages were keeping about 20 per cent of the state's 5,200 schools closed for the rest of the week. Paul Smith, state secretary of labor and industry, estimated about 135,000 people would be laid off by the end of the week.

—The Labor Department ordered payment of unemployment insurance benefits in 18 eastern states speeded up through emergency procedures that cut red tape. It also is making available an additional $10 million under a federal job training program to hire snow removal, fuel transport and other crews in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland and Virginia.

—Massachusetts uses relatively little natural gas, relying instead on home heating oil. Now inventories are low and Gov. Michael S. Dukakis ordered temperatures kept at 65 degrees in all state buildings. Meanwhile, in Buzzards Bay, the Coast Guard tried to keep 100,000 gallons of the oil, which spilled from a barge, away from beaches. Much of the oil is trapped below ice, and an attempt to set it afire Monday ignited only a fraction.

Explosion rocks home in Midland

A Midland man woke up early today to find "things falling all around me" after what firemen believe was an explosion caused by a natural gas leak in his west side duplex.

John A. Sudderth, 705 A W. Kansas Ave., told firemen he was awakened shortly before 3:30 a.m. by falling objects. Fire marshal James Roberts said an explosion occurred at the home and a fire followed which destroyed what was left of the structure.

A preliminary investigation early Wednesday morning indicated the initial explosion was caused by a gas leak, Roberts said.

The roof was torn from the rest of the building and bricks were scattered in the street, firemen said.

The only section of the roof left intact following the explosion was that portion above where Sudderth was sleeping, firemen said.

Sudderth received only minor burns and cuts from the explosion and fire, firemen said.

Law enforcement agencies on alert for lethal gas

Law enforcement agencies throughout Texas have been put on the alert for a lethal form of tear gas in powdered form called LANCE.

The whitish powder could resemble heroin or cocaine and if tasted causes instant death or if smelled causes irreparable brain damage.

A special bulletin originating with the U.S. Marshal Service said the substance was believed to be involved in the case of a Temple woman who recently purchased what she thought was cocaine and was later admitted to a hospital with severe brain damage.

The substances currently is being analyzed by Texas Department of Public Safety chemists, the bulletin said.

Police intelligence reports indicate that LANCE has been found in Colorado, Washington and Oregon.

It is sold to kill two kinds of people, drug users and those involved in narcotics law enforcement, the report said.

Ullman, others advocating changes in rebate plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid calls for major changes in President Carter's $31.2 billion economic package, congressional tax writers are going to work on the administration's plan for $50 individual rebates and other tax changes to spur the economy.

Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal and Charles Schultze, chairman of Carter's Council of Economic Advisers, planned to defend the package as leadoff witnesses today before the House Ways and Means Committee.

Ways and Means Committee Chairman Al Ullman added his voice Tuesday to those calling for changes in the Carter program. He proposed a major change in Carter's proposal for $2.5 billion in business tax breaks.

Ullman said businesses, instead of getting a higher investment tax credit or a reduction in social security taxes, should get an "employment tax credit" for hiring new workers.

Other members have made similar proposals and Ullman said he thinks the idea would have wide support in Congress.

Ullman, however, said he is ready to push for enactment of the $11.4 billion worth of payments to individuals through tax rebates and Social Security bonuses. He said he originally favored a more modest rebate program, but the unemployment and other economic woes caused by the fierce winter weather over much of the nation changed his mind.

The rebates are intended to spur consumer demand for new goods. But if citizens are forced to use the rebates to pay higher fuel or other bills, they would not spark the economy.

Republicans have argued for more permanent tax changes than the one-time rebates and for more attention to stimulating business.

While Democrats generally rallied to the rebate proposal, some have joined organized labor in criticizing the administration for concentrating on tax rebates instead of programs to create jobs.

Schultze told the House Appropriations Committee on Tuesday the administration might have to consider enlarging its economic stimulus package "if there is a significant dip in the economic outlook, taking into account the weather or anything else."

"If the cold weather turns off tomorrow, within the week, it wouldn't be necessary to revise the package," Schultze said. Forecasters, however, are talking of another month of abnormal cold, straining depleted fuel supplies.

Ullman outlined a timetable for handling the legislation that could meet the administration's goal of mailing out rebate checks by late March or April.

Medders in hospital after arraignment

DALLAS (AP) — Margaret Medders, who once parlayed rumors she was a Spindletop oil heiress into a lavish social life, was in the Dallas County jail's hospital ward today after being arraigned on theft charges.

The charges stemmed from an unpaid $14,485 bill at a Dallas hotel last May and June.

Mrs. Medders was arrested in Los Angeles six days ago and she waived extradition from California Monday. Three Dallas County sheriff's deputies brought her back here Tuesday although it was initially reported that it would be a week before she returned to Texas.

Justice of the Peace Tom Naylor arraigned Mrs. Medders, 58, on charges of theft of services over $200 and theft over $10,000 and set bond of $20,000.

She was taken Tuesday night to the hospital ward of the county Jail and she was to be examined to determine whether she should remain there or be transferred to a regular section of the jail.

She was believed to be taking medication for a heart ailment.

Mrs. Medders and her late husband, Ernest Medders, bought their way into Texas society in the 1960s on a fortune in credit not backed by cash.

The couple had convinced their Muenster, Tex., neighbors, friends and bankers that they were heirs to the Spindletop oil fortune and were loaned millions of dollars on that assumption.

The paper empire collapsed under millions of dollars in debts in 1967 when a relative filed suit demanding to know their source of income.

Raises called 'ripoff'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is getting a chance to approve or turn down hefty pay raises for members of Congress and other government executives. One lawmaker says the raises would be "a terrific ripoff of the American taxpayers."

It was Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., who used the term "ripoff" for the congressional raises of close to 30 per cent. Allen paved the way for a possible vote on the raises at today's session by tacking an amendment to a measure restructuring the Senate's committee system.

The Allen amendment would block pay raises scheduled not only for members of the House and Senate, but for high-level executive branch officials and federal judges. The raises were recommended by President Carter and supported by former President Gerald R. Ford.

Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., indicated he probably would move to table Allen's amendment, offered shortly before the Senate recessed Tuesday night.

Disapproval by either the Senate or the House would kill the raises, which are automatic unless action to stop them is taken by Feb. 20.

Unless lawmakers block their own raises, their pay will increase to $57,500 a year, from the current $44,600. The speaker of the House, the vice president and the chief justice of the Supreme Court would have their salaries increased to $75,000 from $65,500.

Cabinet members would get a $3,000 raise to $66,000. Associate Supreme Court justices would get raises from $63,000 to $72,000.

Most lower federal court judges would have their pay raised from $42,500 to $54,500 and some 20,000 top-level civil servants whose salaries have been frozen at $39,600 for several years would receive automatic hikes of up to $7,900.

Allen said his amendment would save $124 million initially. But he called it "a drop in the bucket" to eventual sevings because higher top-level pay scales would lead to raises throughout the bureaucracy. He said the cost probably would amount to $1.2 billion a year.

Official released

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (AP) — A San Marcos municipal court clerk is free on $10,000 bond today after being accused of stealing traffic fine money.

Ray Baldridge was charged here Tuesday with theft of municipal funds in the court of Justice of the Peace John Williamson.

City Manager Jim Baugh said an audit last November showed the court's account was missing $22,810 in traffic fines allegedly collected between November 1974 and the time of the audit.

Mondale reports foreigners want reassurances

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale, home from his round-the-world trip, is telling President Carter how foreign leaders are likely to react when they meet the peanut farmer who is "an entirely new international leader for them."

Carter summoned Mondale to the White House today to get a personal report on his visit to Brussels, Bonn, Rome, Paris, London, Tokyo and Iceland. The vice president called a news conference after the Oval Office session to report to the American people.

In addition to his oral report, Mondale told Carter he will write a detailed assessment of the personalities heading the governments he visited — how he thinks they will react to Carter when they meet him, and how he thinks Carter will react to them.

Mondale promised the report after Carter greeted him on his return Tuesday. As they rode in Carter's helicopter after a brief arrival ceremony at nearby Andrews Air Force Base, Mondale told the President the foreign leaders "are all anxious to see him."

"Reassurance is so important," Mondale declared, repeating to the President what he had said in an interview aboard Air Force Two before it touched down. "They (the foreign leaders) were asking questions to reassure themselves that ...traditional understandings would be continued."

In the interview, Mondale said he was "able to bring reassurances" to the foreign leaders about Carter, who is "an entirely new international leader for them." Mondale said he was received warmly in every nation he visited.

"There is a spirit of optimism among our friends, inspired by your leadership," he told Carter. "All of our relationships with our friends are on the firmest, most optimistic basis."

Mondale said the heads of state he visited "like (former Secretary of State Henry A.) Kissinger, but increasingly they saw he couldn't deliver on his commitments."

Bell to create new division in Justice

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell, in a move aimed at making the Justice Department more of a policy initiator and less a reactive agency, will create a new division for the administration of justice.

The new unit, an upgrading of the department's Office of Policy and Planning, will be headed by a University of Virginia law professor, Daniel J. Meador.

Meador, 50, devised a plan for merit selection of federal judges which the Carter Administration is putting into effect for federal courts of appeals. He served as a law clerk for the late Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black and was dean of the University of Alabama Law School before moving to the University of Virginia.

It was also learned Tuesday that Bell has recommended appointment of Benjamin R. Civiletti, a Baltimore lawyer and former assistant U.S. attorney, to head the department's criminal division.

After working as a prosecutor on Maryland savings and loan scandals, Civiletti, 41, joined a Baltimore law firm where he now heads the litigation department.

The nominations of Meador and Civiletti, along with those of three other previously reported selections, are expected this week as soon as Internal Revenue Service clearances are processed.

The other three are Judge Wade H. McCree Jr. of the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals to be solicitor general; Drew Days, an NAACP Legal Defense Fund lawyer, to be assistant attorney general for civil rights and Barbara Babcock, a Stanford University law professor and sex discrimination expert, to be assistant attorney general in charge of the civil division.

Buffalo fueled chaos?

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Mother Nature must bear the brunt of the blame for encasing Buffalo in a new Ice Age, but human frailties haven't helped much, either, in easing the passage of the worst storm to hit western New York state in recorded history.

As the sun peaked through on a scene of snowy chaos late Tuesday, officials and others were wondering aloud if Buffalo could have been spared some of its acute misery had there been more foresight and common sense.

"I suppose we could do it differently if we had to do it again," said Edward Regan, Erie County executive, reflecting on the panic that enveloped the city and surrounding county when the blizzard crashed in last Friday.

There are many tales of human kindness during the five days of sometimes zero-visibility weather that followed, but there are also matching ones of irresponsible behavior among the more than one million population.

The rash of looting in the East Side that spread downtown stirred up the already short-tempered, house-confined Buffalo citizenry.

Arthur's Arsenal, a gun shop on Main street, capitalized on the anger by handing out house signs reading "Trespassers will be shot, survivors will be prosecuted."

Looking back on the agonizing experience, observers noted obvious indications of serious danger ahead. "Before this one hit we already knew the previous accumulation of snow was pretty much beyond our control, that our equipment was down and workers exhausted," said Regan.

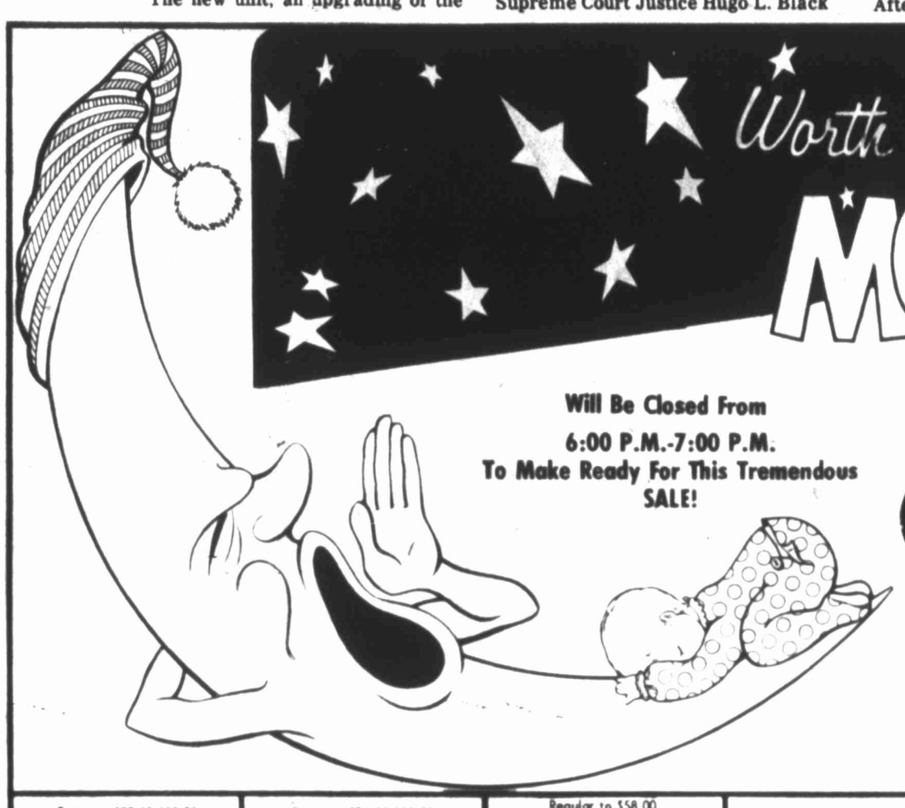

Even before the latest storm hit, well over 100 inches of snow had fallen, reducing many streets to one-laners, with homes blocked off and sidewalks covered.

Then Friday morning the National Weather Service predicted a blizzard in mid-afternoon. "That's when the mayor should have called an emergency, that's when schools and shops and government offices should have closed," commented a newspaper editor.

Instead, the population was busily going about its business when the blizzard struck, a few hours early. "We were in a white-out. People were terrified. It was the second coming of the Ice Age," remembered Regan.

Cars rushing to reach the suburbs were enveloped. Motorists panicked and ran from their vehicles, choking up the highways. By Saturday morning the stunned city was isolated from the rest of the state, shops were closed, and the bodies of several motorists were dragged from their vehicles. Mayor Stanley M. Makowski still delayed declaring a state of emergency, hoping the storm would lift.

A local newspaper editor commented, "He was probably nervous because we had criticized a previous — and what we thought premature — declaration of emergency. That's a pity because we needed it this time."

Committee approves assassinations inquiry

By GEORGE LARDNER JR.
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Overriding Republican opposition, the House Rules Committee Tuesday approved a temporary, two-month revival of the House inquiry into the assassinations of President Kennedy and Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

Under the proposal, the Select House Committee on Assassinations would be re-established and given until March 31 to work out a satisfactory budget and justify a full-fledged investigation.

The compromise measure is scheduled to go before the House for consideration Wednesday afternoon.

Rep. Richard Bolling (D. Mo.), who formally sponsored the bill at Tuesday's hearing, said it has the support of the Democratic leadership, but it still faces "a very flammable situation" on the House floor.

Openly critical of the committee's chief counsel, Richard A. Sprague, House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill (D-Mass.) made plain at his noon-hour press conference that his backing of the bill was not entirely enthusiastic.

"It is obvious that Sprague has been running the committee and making policy," O'Neill told reporters. but with a new chairman, Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez (D-Tex), coming in, O'Neill said he hoped the committee would be able to get "untangled" by March 31 from the criticisms of civil liberatarians and of those who think the inquiry will be too costly.

Approved by the Rules committee on a voice vote, with GOP members voting nay, the two-month extension of the investigation included several changes drafted to satisfy congressional critics such as Rep. Don Edwads (D-Calif.), chairman of the House Subcommittee on Constitutional and Civil Rights.

Unlike the broadly worded resolution that has been stalled since its introduction in January, the new bill would limit the Assassinations Committee to investigating the deaths of Kennedy, King and of any other persons the Select Committee shall determine "might be related" to either assassinations.

the old resolution gave the committee blanket authority to investigate anyone's death, even, some congressmen complained, that of Abraham Lincoln.

Other changes would rule out the issuance of subpoenas by sole authority of the committee chairman; require the committee to follow the rules of the House and to adopt additional procedural safeguards.

Committee members also have indicated they intend to abandon Sprague's controversial proposals for the use of hidden transmitters, polygraphs and psychological stress evaluators.

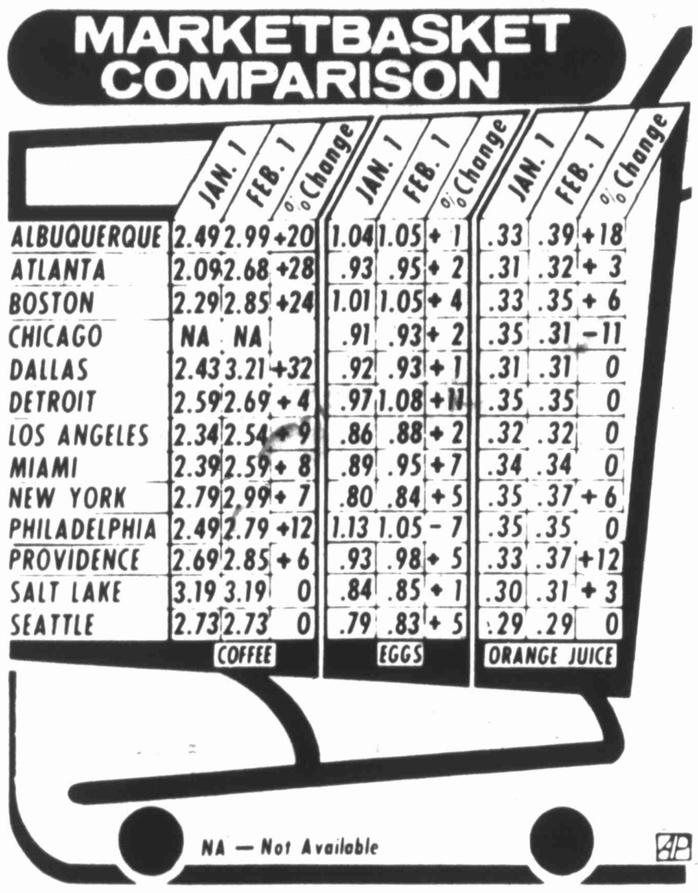

Grocery prices up last month

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The first month of the new year brought higher grocery prices and consumers were warned to expect more of the same in the future due to the cold wave.

An Associated Press marketbasket survey showed prices increased during January for a wide variety of items, including pork chops, orange juice, coffee and eggs.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and has rechecked them on or about the start of each succeeding month.

This is the way the price of coffee, eggs and orange juice compared in 13 United States cities on January and February first.

The latest survey came in the face of several discouraging reports. The U.S. Department of Agriculture said Monday that prices paid to farmers for their products went up 1.5 per cent between Dec. 15 and Jan. 15. It was the second monthly increase in a row.

The USDA report did not reflect recent damage to crops, particularly in Florida, because of the below-freezing temperatures east of the Great Plains. The government said generally abundant livestock supplies should hold down meat prices and help offset higher fruit and vegetable costs. But a private economist warned that if the cold continues through March, the nation's food bill could be boosted by $7 billion.

(The Conference Board, a business research organization, says that Commerce Department statistics showed Americans spent $166.4 billion on food in 1974.)

Consumers shopping at the start of February found orange juice prices already were up in some cities, according to the AP survey, although it could not be determined whether the increases were directly linked to the cold.

The price of a six-ounce can of frozen orange juice concentrate increased at the checklist store in six of the cities surveyed, although most of the increases were only a penny or two.

The AP survey showed that the marketbasket bill increased at the checklist store in 10 cities during January, up an average of 4 per cent. The bill decreased at the checklist store in two cities, down an average of seven-tenths of a per cent, and was unchanged in the 13th city. On an overall basis, the marketbasket bill at the checklist stores was up an average of 3 per cent last month.

The situation represented a slight improvement over December when the marketbasket bill was up at the checklist store in 12 cities, rising an average 5.1 per cent.

The items on The AP checklist were: Chopped chuck, center cut port chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, chocolate chip cookies, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M.; Atlanta, Ga.; Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Salt Lake City and Seattle.

One dies in crash

IOWA PARK, Tex. (AP) — One motorist was killed and another was injured shortly before midnight Tuesday when a train hit their pickup truck just south of this Wichita Falls.

Officers said Harvey Pope, 31, of Wichita Falls died in the crash. Injuries were suffered by his companion, Dorothy Roberts, 34, also of Wichita Falls.

Arab Americans receive apology from Dixon

By RUDY MAXA
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Federal Trade Commissioner Paul Rand Dixon Tuesday apologized to Arab Americans for his ethnic slur against Ralph Nader in a general statement that was not accepted by Nader and prompted calls for Dixon's removal from members of the House.

"I deeply regret a remark I made ... which could be interpreted as a derogatory reference to Mr. Nader's ethnic background or to others of Arab descent," Dixon wrote in a letter to the National Association of Arab Americans. "I did not intend to convey any such meaning and I apologize to all who are concerned for having made the remark in question."

During a Jan. 17 speech before the Grocery Manufacturers of America, Dixon referred to Nader as "a dirty Arab." Nader and his organizations have in the past criticized Dixon's actions during his 16-year tenure at the Federal Trade Commission.

"His bigotry was directed specifically and it should be withdrawn specifically and I have not received a letter from him," Nader said Tuesday. "The bigger issue is whether a high government official should reflect such bigotry and not be reprimanded for it by his superiors."

The White House refused comment in response to questions from reporters regarding the President's feeling about Dixon statements. But Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal (D-N.Y.), chairman of a House subcommittee with oversight jurisdiction of the FTC, wrote a letter to Dixon and President Carter demanding Dixon's removal because "even his apology cannot dispell the cloud which has been cast over his independence and discretion in the many proceedings before his agency in which Mr. Nader participates."

Sixteen other congressmen signed the Rosenthal letter, including Rep. John Moss (D-Calif.), chairman of the oversight committee of the House Commerce Committee. Rep. Edward Koch (D-N.Y.) termed Dixon's apology unacceptable and called for his impeachment by Congress.

In a House speech Koch asked if Dixon had used the terms "dirty Jew" or "dirty Christian," would "there (be) any question but that there would be an uproar?"

The director of the National Association of Arab Americans, Michael Saba, to whom Dixon addressed his letter, said calls and telegrams to his organization indicated a desire that Dixon resign.

"We feel his response is incomplete," Saba said.

"THINKING"
with ODOM
PHILIPPIANS 4:8

In all fairness to those who are absolutely sincere in their religious beliefs, we certainly must pay special tribute, because there is no place in God's fellowship for the insincere. There is evidenced that we have entirely too many people in our society who have demonstrated that they are not to be counted among the sincere. And who can appreciate the hypocrite?

Yet while we acknowledge this great attribute in one's personal character, is that noble trait enough to meet the demands of the gospel upon we poor mortals? I think not. Not when we consider what the Holy Bible reveals to us about what we must "do" to be saved.

To Hear some folks tell it, God has not required of man that he "do" anything. To them, religion is something that the sincere arbitrarily "gets". Sort of like some "experience" which is better felt than told. Now while their sincerity has nothing to do with the matter, I hasten to say that that sort of concept of the religion of Christ is just not in harmony with the testimony of the scriptures.

The Bible plainly teaches that the sinner must act on his part to do the will of God. "...taking vengence upon those who know not God and who obey not the gospel..." (2 Th. 2:7-9) The man who is willing to submit to the demands of the gospel is the only man who shall be eternally saved. (Mt. 7:21) Think not for a moment that the grace of God is so broad in its nature that such grace incorporates indifference toward His Divine mandates. Such a concept of grace is nowhere taught in the Bible.

Since the very first man on earth God has required reverance toward His Word. If man shows indifference toward the teachings of the Bible he must suffer the consequence of such. There is no doubt about the end of him who refuses to render obedience to the gospel: "And these will pay the penalty of eternal destruction, away from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of his power."

Reader friend, it is good if you are sincere, but I urge you to be sincerely right rather than be sincerely wrong.

Eagle Scout group

It is interesting to note that a chapter of The National Eagle Scout Association is functioning within the Midland-based Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America.

It is even more noteworthy that approximately 70 known Eagle Scouts reside within the council area, and that more than half of that number are Midland residents. An effort is being made to contact all Eagle Scouts who are not registered with the Buffalo Trail Council.

The national association was organized about four years ago for Eagle Scouts of all ages. A charter was delivered to the local group last year. Persons who have attained Scouting's highest distinction are reminded that "Once an Eagle Scout, always an Eagle Scout."

The overall purpose of the national and local associations is to harness the experience, talents and energies of Eagle Scouts to further develop the Scouting program on local, regional and national levels.

"Service thru Leadership" is the motto.

It is said that since 1912 more than half a million young men have joined the Eagle ranks.

This association, composed as it is of top flight persons, has tremendous potential in multiple areas of service, and Midland and the Buffalo Trail Council are most fortunate in having an active chapter of the national organization.

An Eagle Scout banquet is planned for Feb. 25 at the Midland Country Club, according to President D.D. Dorris, who recently succeeded Howard McCarroll, charter president, in the office.

A manpower and property use survey for Scouting also will be conducted by the association in the coming weeks.

The local chapter is divided into two groups — — Eagle Scouts up to 21 years of age and those 21 years and above.

Midland and area residents undoubtedly will be hearing more from and about this association in the future.

India turns — slowly

The decision of India's Prime Minister Indira Gandhi to hold elections in March, expedite the release of political prisoners and end censorship of the press is a most welcome one.

Unfortunately, Mrs. Gandhi's government has not reached the level of confidence which would permit it to remove the threat of suppression which still exists in the troubled country.

Officials have warned dissenters that the Security Act yet is in force and will be used under "exceptional conditions." Journalists have been reminded that even in the absence of censorship they are under the shadow of a press law which bars publication of articles that the government considers objectionable.

And the constitutional provisions that give Mrs. Gandhi almost absolute power over the legislature and judiciary still are in force.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Gandhi's decision to permit a de facto relaxation of suppression is a sign of new found national strength and confidence.

One would imagine that when citizens of a nation are forced to live under such provisions as ordered by Mrs. Gandhi in her position of almost absolute power, that they would consider any relaxation whatsoever as a vast improvement. And certainly this would be the case right now in India. Free nations everywhere also must view the recent decision of the prime minister as a step in the right direction.

Western nations as well as India's own people should exert themselves to convince Mrs. Gandhi that the country is really strong enough to return to full democracy.

PEKING POWER PLAY:

China's Chairman Hua walks a chalk-line

By V.H. KRULAK
Copley News Service

The current effort to rehabilitate ousted Chinese premier Teng Hsiao-ping is one visible evidence of the iceberg of unhappy problems that confront Chinese party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng.

Teng Hsiao-ping, fired from the premiership last April, is both bright and politically astute. He was the choice of popular Chou En-lai to be his successor, before Chou's death. He has a substantial following among the politically powerful who admired Chou, as well as within the military. One of his most prestigious supporters is Yeh Chien-ying, the minister of defense.

Teng has a good military record and a good record as an administrator. In short, he is a formidable opponent and Hua Kuo-feng knows it.

Chiang Ching, the widow of Mao Tse-tung and her "gang of four" are credited by Hua with the ouster of Teng Hsiao-ping. Much nearer the truth is that Mao himself was uncomfortable with the moderate views held by Teng in the areas of foreign affairs, economics and industrial development, not to speak of his massive ego and his individualism. Mao, in sending Teng on his way, put it simply. He said, "Teng is absolutely unfit to be the premier."

Now, Hua is condemning Teng, not on ideological or professional grounds but simply because he cannot afford to see him grow in stature.

Like Mao before him Hua realizes that continuity of power is assured only by purges of your enemies. If Teng were to become premier — one of the positions that Hua now holds simply by eminent domain — it would only be a matter of time before Teng insinuated himself into the office of chairman of the party.

Hua knows that his power base is narrow. His appointment as acting premier was an expedient matter only, consistent with Mao's desire to remove Teng Hsiao-ping, and he has never been confirmed as chairman of the party by the Party Central Committee nor has his position as premier ever been ratified by the National People's Congress.

The wall posters urging the appointment of Teng Hsiao-ping as premier show the intensity of the political struggle where they urge concurrently that two of Hua Kuo-feng's strongest supporters be removed from their positions. One is the prestigious mayor of Peking and the other is the commander of Hua Kuo-feng's military bodyguard force. The implication is clear — Teng Hsiao-ping's supporters are zeroed in on Hua himself.

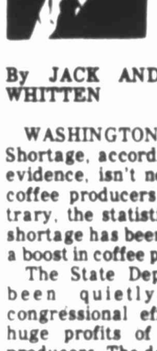

Thus the lines of political conflict are being drawn more sharply every day.

If these circumstances were not enough to underscore Hua's shaky position there is the knowledge, widespread throughout China, that Chiang Ching and her supporters were ideologically very close to Mao Tse-tung and, while she is overbearing and impatient, she did very little that did not have either Mao's approval or his direction. Sooner or later, then, unbridled criticism of the widow will have to be viewed as criticism of Mao himself and, ultimately, of the principles of Marxism that Mao espoused. This is a position that nobody who aspires to power in China dare adopt.

So it is plain that Hua is walking a chalk-line, and such elbow room and such political strength as he possessed at the beginning have largely been dissipated.

When these facts are coupled with the economic problems that China is enduring and its continuing weakness in agricultural production, it is easy to rationalize the reasons for growing political conflict in an unstable and troubled land where naked power has ruled for a generation.

Against this backdrop of massive turmoil in a country that is disorganized at best, Americans should hope that President Carter will address his efforts to other higher priority matters, while allowing the red pot in Peking to simmer on its own.

'State' wants coffee price hike

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The Great Coffee Shortage, according to the statistical evidence, isn't nearly as dire as the coffee producers claim. On the contrary, the statistics indicate that the shortage has been contrived to justify a boost in coffee prices.

The State Dept., meanwhile, has been quietly circumventing congressional efforts to reduce the huge profits of the foreign coffee producers. The department looks upon the extra profits as a form of foreign aid, insiders explain.

Brazil is the biggest recipient of the coffee windfall but draws no foreign aid from the United States. The State Dept., therefore, would like Brazilians to collect more for their coffee in order to keep the country stable.

For the record, a spokesman denied that the State Dept. favors higher coffee prices. "The coffee producers will suffer later," he predicted, "for the high prices."

A pound of coffee, which cost about $1.30 at the store 18 months ago, now sells for around $3. Enraged consumers are howling. Coffee boycotts are being organized. But the coffee magnates claim, with a shrugging of shoulders, that a 1975 Brazilian frost caused the prices to skyrocket.

Yet Brazil has made a remarkable recovery. Despite the frost damage, the Brazilians managed to export a million more bags of coffee in 1976 than in 1975. World coffee exports reached 58 million bags in 1976, the second highest figure of all time.

Congressional investigators suspect, therefore, that the coffee cartel is merely imitating the oil cartel and is putting the squeeze on the coffee consumers. Rep. Fred Richmond, D.-N.Y., told us that coffee-drinking Americans will pay the coffee cartel almost $6 billion a year if prices remain at the present level. That's more than double the national coffee bill for 1975.

Tight market monopolies by a few large coffee retailers, according to congressional studies, are contributing to higher coffee prices. The Big Two — General Foods and Proctor and Gamble — control about half of the U.S. coffee market.

The Federal Trade Commission has charged a General Food subsidiary, Maxwell House, with illegal coffee pricing practices. According to the allegations, General Food's cut prices below cost to eliminate competition.

GOVERNMENT BURGLARIES — Startling new evidence has come to light that the government hasn't limited its burglaries to socialists and radicals. No less than the former Navy chief, Adm. Arleigh Burke, is convinced that government gumshoes, probably CIA burglars, broke into his private office and stole some important personal documents in 1963.

There is evidence to support his suspicion that even the nation's most prominent citizens may have been the victims of government tactics which were believed aimed at only left-wing extremists. For Burke recently discovered that the missing documents had turned up in a secret file of the Naval Investigations Service.

These documents included a raw transcript of a long interview that the admiral had granted in August 1963 to a Greek newsman, Elias Demetracopoulos. In the interview, Burke bluntly declared that the armed forces had nothing to do with the Bay of Pigs disaster. He implied that the CIA was solely to blame for the fiasco.

Only Burke, his secretary and Demetracopoulos knew of the interview before it was published in October 1963. And none of them released the raw transcript, which was edited in Burke's own handwriting.

It was a copy of this raw transcript, complete with Burke's handwritten remarks, that mysteriously turned up in the Navy file. Notations on the file indicate that the Navy was so worried about someone getting wind of the heist that all but six copies of the Burke papers were destroyed.

Burke, who received the prestigious Medal of Freedom from President Ford last month, is upset about the apparent burglary. It occurred after he had left the Navy but was emerging as the most articulate conservative critic of the Kennedy administration's military policies.

After conferring with his lawyers, he said: "Regretfully, the only conclusion we reached is that ... an unauthorized and illegal entry took place in my private office" in Washington.

Our sources have told us that the Navy originally got the sensitive Burke papers "from another agency." The former admiral told us that while it is "only a guess," he believes the "other agency" is the CIA.

There is no doubt in Burke's mind that the documents were stolen. "I can't think of any other way," he said, that they could have wound up in the government's possession. Neither he nor his secretary gave the papers to anyone, he said.

The suspicious Demetracopoulos, meanwhile, thinks that Burke's telephone was tapped, leading to the discovery of the transcript and the theft.

INSIDE REPORT:

The trials, tribulations of 'cabinet government'

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

WASHINGTON — Privately expressing doubts about how long President Carter's notion of "cabinet government" can last, White House insiders are citing as the most horrible examples two of the toughest, shrewdest Washington hands in the cabinet: Joseph Califano and James Schlesinger.

Califano, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), is faulted not only for moving on his own in picking personnel and making policy but because of what Carterites consider his imperious style. Dr. Schlesinger, who as cabinet-level adviser on energy is the only Republican in a high administration post, is berated for moving too quickly without consulting either Congress or the White House staff.

The intensity of this criticism inside the White House raises doubts about the survivability of Mr. Carter's edict barring his senior staffers from ordering cabinet members around, as in the Nixon era. In fact, there was frank talk over the telephone between Califano and Hamilton Jordan, Mr. Carter's top assistant, about HEW appointments.

Jordan complained that Califano had publicly announced two assistant secretaries of HEW without White House clearance. Califano replied he thought he had mentioned them during a previous telephone conversation with Jordan and apparently had omitted them in an oversight.

But other presidential aides feel the HEW appointments should have had closer attention at the White House than just a Jordan-Califano chat — particularly Under Secretary Hale Champion, who as a Harvard University vice president bitterly opposed Mr. Carter in the Massachusetts presidential primary. Califano did mention Champion to Jordan, who did not recognize the name. Other Carterites who knew Champion all too well were mortified. "It's outrageous to name somebody who vilified Jimmy in the campaign," one insider told us.

The complaint against Schlesinger is that he is "a very fast mover" (in the words of a senior Carter aide) who does not thoroughly clear his ideas with the White House staff. One Carter insider feels Schlesinger hurried the President too quickly into his 65-degree fuel-saving scheme.

Moreover, Carter aides were not pleased that Schlesinger, working with the Carter transition team on energy, cleared the emergency natural gas bill with only two members of Congress (Sen. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois and Rep. John Dingell of Michigan) — and not many presidential aides either.

When the President told his Jan. 25 meeting with the congressional leadership that Democratic leaders (meaning Stevenson and Dingell) had been consulted, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd replied to Mr. Carter: Mr. President we are the leaders, and we know nothing about any gas bill.

GOLDWATER'S SUBPOENA

Hunting evidence of anti-military attitudes by Secretary of the Army-designate Clifford Alexander, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona is seeking a subpoena to get Alexander's old television programs — much to the consternation of some Republican politicians.

Those Republicans who are serious about making a new try for black votes are not enraptured by Goldwater harassing Alexander, a Washington lawyer nominated to the highest Pentagon post ever offered a black. Moreover, the Senate Armed Services Committee's senior Republican — Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina — is inclined to go along with the President's nominations, including Alexander.

Nevertheless, Goldwater has requested a subpoena to get tapes of "Black on White," an interview show over Washington's WMAL-TV hosted by Alexander for nearly three years ending in May 1974, to check alleged anti-military statements. Even with a subpoena, however, the pickings would be slim. WMAL-TV has on file no transcripts at all and tapes from only five programs.

BYRD'S AMNESTY STRETCH

After the 16 somnolent years of the beloved but prosaic Mike Mansfield, Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia's two-way stretch on the amnesty issue provided the first genuine wheeling and dealing by a Senate majority leader since the fabled days of Lyndon B. Johnson.

While declaring himself "100 per cent in disagreement" with the President's pardoning of Vietnam draft evaders, Byrd voted on most procedural questions against the anti-amnesty resolution sponsored by Sen. James Allen of Alabama. Indeed, he was backstage lining up votes against Allen.

Moreover, Byrd cooperated with Senate Majority Whip Alan Cranston of California in slowing down action on the Allen resolution until after Mr. Carter's inauguration. Simultaneously, Byrd quietly urged the new President not to waste any time after he was sworn in but immediately issue his pardon, thereby making the Allen resolution moot.

Byrd, therefore, ended up with a public position that pleased his West Virginia constituents and private activity helpful to his President. That performance belied the widespread impression of Bob Byrd as strictly a legislative mechanic with no flair for political manipulation.

Expected arms control nominee drawing fire

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Carter's expected nomination of Paul C. Warnke as chief arms control executive is already drawing fire from the Senate even though he has not yet been formally nominated.

Sen. Sam Nunn (D-Ga.), a member of the Senate Armed Servces Committee, critically questioned Warnke's past remarks about the limited influence of nuclear weapons, while unidentified opponents began circulating a memo in the Senate accusing Warnke of "unilateral" disarmament.

The campaign against Warnke appears similar to the one waged against Theodore C. Sorensen before he withdrew as Carter's nominee for director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Nunn requested during a hearing of the Senate Armed Services Committee Tuesday that Warnke be called before that committee to explain the following statement Warnke made in 1972:

"Even substantial nuclear superiority, short of nuclear monoply, could not be a decisive factor in any political confrontation between the United States and Soviet Union."

Nunn read that statement to Gen. David C. Jones, chief of staff of the Air Force who was testifying on nuclear issues at the committee hearing Tuesday and asked him if he agreed with it.

Jones replied that the strategic nuclear superiority the United States had over the Soviet Union in 1962 helped bring a favorable outcome to the Cuban missile crisis, adding he would not want "the shoe to be on the other foot."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) is expected to join Nunn in requesting that Warnke appear before the Senate Armed Services Committee if Carter nominates him to head the arms control agency. Normally, only the Senate Foreign Relations Committee would conduct a hearing on a nomination to that State Department job.

In the House, Warnke's opponents include Rep. Sam Stratton (D-N.Y.), a member of the House Armed Services Committee, who said Warnke "might give away the store" in SALT negotiations.

The unsigned memo against Warnke includes the charge that the former assistant secretary of defense "supports unilateral arms reductions to levels far below anything being proposed in current arms limitation talks."

A White House aide said Tuesday that Warnke's nomination has been held up pending security checks being conducted by the FBI but would go forward as planned. However, this time Carter may be holding off until after he takes a more careful measure of the Congressional opposition than he did in the Sorensen nomination.

Warnke, when queried by The Washington Post Tuesday night, said he had not heard from the White House nor did he make any inquiries on his own.

Asked about the quote Nunn had read at the hearing, Warnke said the thrust of his statement was not whether the United States needs its nuclear deterrent but whether "we would use our strategic forces as a political instrument to enable us to come out on top in a political situation.

"No sane President would go to war to gain political objectives," Warnke said, but he added that this does not mean the United States could do without "an assured nuclear deterrent." The umbrella strategic nuclear forces, he continued, enables the United States to use its conventional forces effectively.

In the Cuban missile crisis, Warnke said, the United States had "the tremendous advantage of naval superiority." The U.S. conventional forces, working under the nuclear umbrella, were "the decisive factor" in that confrontation, he said.

Chairman John Stennis (D-Miss.) had left the hearing before Nunn started quizzing military witnesses about Warnke's statement on the political limits of nuclear weapons. Stennis focused on the B-1 bomber, asserting that the Air Force should consider buying fewer than the 244 planned.

"We ought to take a mighty hard look at the number that are needed," Stennis said. Many Pentagon officials are predicting that Carter will not scrap the B-1 program altogether but settle for producing a limited number of planes.

"We are not wedded" to building 210 operational models of the bomber, Jones told Stennis.

Stennis also chided the Joint Chiefs of Staff, through Jones, for waiting so long to rebut statements by Maj. Gen. George J. Keegan Jr.

Solon wants fees charged for driver's ed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — If Rep. Tom Massey, D-San Angelo, has his way, it'll soon cost each driver education student in Texas schools an average of $45 for the course.

Massey's bill, which would allow local school districts to collect fees for certain elective programs such as the rental of band uniforms and driver education, was referred to subcommitte Tuesday after hearings before the House Public Education Committee.

The proposal was prompted by a 1975 attorney general's ruling that barred schools from charging fees for such programs.

"I think it's reasonable to allow schools to collect fees for the educational costs they have to bear," said Massey, who offered the driver education clause as an amendment to his measure. "I don't think driver education is basic to a child's education."

Massey said if the bill, with the accompanying amendment, is passed, each Texas driver education student would have to pay an average of $45 to take the course.

The figure, he said, is the difference between the $25 per student state funding and the statewide $70 per student average cost of the program.

The State Board of Education estimated last summer that Texas' school districts lost about $22 million income from non-collection of the fees after Atty. Gen. John Hill's ruling.

Robert Wood, director of secondary education for San Antonio's Northeast Independent School District, said his district lost $197,489 last year because of Hill's decision.

Stating that the district will have to drop driver education if the bill isn't passed, Wood told the committee, "We had a first class program. We're not now giving them a first class program."

Texas Education Agency Deputy Commissioner Alton Bowen, who said the proposal has the unanimous support of the State Board of Education, testified, "I do not think a free education means totally free.

"If everything is totally free the shoes the child wears to school, because they are necessary, might have to furnished," he added "school districts need to know what fees may legally be charged and what fees are prohibited."

No witnesses testified against the measure.

Lombardino goes for big bingo pot

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Frank Lombardino, D-San Antonio, goes for the big pot today in the Texas Senate bingo game.

Tuesday, Lombardino won tentative approval of his proposed state constitutional amendment to legalize bingo games and raffles by non-profit charitable organizations by a 22-9 vote.

He must have a two-thirds final Senate vote today to send the measure to the House.

If approved by two-thirds of the legislature the proposition will be on the general election ballot in November, 1978—along with the governor's race and other voter-attractive hot contests.

"This is just a bill to let the people of Texas decide whether they want bingo games," Lombardino argued. "It will let them decide whether these games can be used to raise money for religious organizations, for the VFW and the American Legion, for the Little League, and for cerebral palsy."

"This measure would let the Mafia come down here from Chicago or New York and organize a non-profit organization to gather in millions of dollars and only pay out a few dollars to charities," said Sen. Don Adams, D-Jasper, who let the protesters.

"In South Texas we have had bingo for generations and generations," said Sen. Raul Longoria, D-Edinburg. "All churches have schools and bingo helps support these schools."

Sen. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, successfully added amendments that would require bingo games to be conducted only by persons in the organization to benefit from the proceeds and to be held only in buildings owned or leased by the organizations. Lombardina agreed to the changes.

Muniz may stand trial

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Former Texas gubernatorial candidate Ramsey Muniz and four other men were expected to stand trial in U.S. district court here today on marijuana smuggling charges.

However, courthouse officials indicated testimony may be delayed a day by virtue of its place on the docket. Another unrelated case must be finished first.

Jury selection was completed Monday night. Eight women and four men were seated, including three Mexican Americans.

The trial is the result of indictments returned by a grand jury last november against seven men.

Abuses charged

DALLAS (AP) — Charges for directory assistance keep the average telephone customer from paying for abuses of a small percentage who make as many as 10,000 calls per month, a Southwestern Bell executive says.

Doyle Rogers, Bell vice president in Texas, said Tuesday that passage of a state Senate bill to outlaw directory assistance charges could force Bell to increase rates paid by all customers to offset what he called abuse of service by a few.

He said going back to the nocharge plan for directory assistance would "allow hundreds of customers to make as many as 500 calls a month

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Carpal tunnel syndrome facts

Dear Dr. Solomon: Last summer, I visited my married daughter for a month, and noticed right away that something was wrong with her. She had become clumsy, dropped things, and didn't seem to have any strength in her hand. When I asked her about it she got angry and said I was imagining things. Now I've gotten a letter from her, telling me she'd been to see the doctor, and was told she'll need surgery for "carpal tunnel dyndrome." What is that? — Mrs. Beatrice Dolder

Dear Mrs. Dolder: "Carpal tunnel syndrome" is a whole bagful of symptoms, all caused by compression of a nerve going through the wrist. The chief complaints by which it's identified are a tingling sensation together with diminished feeling and increasing weakness in the affected hand, sonetines accompanied by shooting pains. Surgery is usually necessary to alleviate the condition.

However, some years ago, Dr. John M. Ellis found pyridoxine (Vitamin B6) deficiencies in many carpal tunnel syndrome cases, and reported treating them successfully mainly by adding the deficient vitamin to their diet.

You might want to read his book: "Vitamin B6: The Doctor's Report." It was published by Harper and Row, New York, in 1973.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My aunt is facing a laryngectony and she says that she would rather die than not be able to talk. We are afraid that she will die of cancer if she does not consent to the operation. Can you help to convince her?—Arnette

Dear Arnette: A new surgical technique that allows a patient to speak in his natural voice 5 to 6 days after removal of his voice box because of laryngeal cancer has been performed successfully by Northwestern University Medical School Surgeons. The technique is still experimental. It involves the pulling up of the trachea, or windpipe, and connecting it to the thick muscles at the base of the tongue, so it can vibrate and produce sounds. Dr. George Sisson of Northwestern emphasizes that not all potential laryngectomy patients can benefit from the operation, and that success depends on how much of the surrounding tissue has to be removed because of cancer. Perhaps your aunt's doctor could investigate the possibility of this type of technique for her.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — At 63, John Gersh is the oldest freshman ever to attend Harvard University.

Gersh, class of 80, had been a journalist and internal house organ editor for a New York actuary firm before he retired early in 1976. He said he began thinking of entering Harvard about three years ago, shortly after his son graduated from the university, and at the time his daughter was graduating from the University of Pennsylvania. "I thought, now that I've finished paying their tuitions, why don't I go to college myself? My son's experience at Harvard prompted me to apply there," said Gersh, who graduated from high school in 1930.

He was not obliged to take the college admissions examinations. He was also exempted from obligatory Harvard freshman expository visiting course, largely on the strength of having written 10 books.

Midland girl wins at Denver

A steer entered by a Midland girl has won the lightweight class of the National Western Stock Show in Denver, Colo.

Kathy Knox of Midland, a member of the Junior Shorthorn Association, entered the show Jan. 14-22.

Other Junior Shorthorn members participated in the steer, breeding heifers and showmanship divisions. The association has more than 3,000 members throughout the nation.

Mrs. John J. Redfern Jr.

Library broadens visually handicapped world

By PATSY GORDON

Mrs. John J. Redfern Jr. of 1214 Country Club Drive has begun her second term as president of the Midland Tape Lending Library, 202 N. C. St., a United Way agency.

The library, which serves the visually, physically and perceptually handicapped, has a two-fold purpose. It maintains a circulating collection of cassette books, and trained volunteers record requested books for Midlanders who must "Read By Listening," the motto of the library.

Mrs. Redfern began her second term after having served on the board of directors since 1973.

The library recently was selected by the Texas State Library, Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, to become a recording unit. The taping of "Texas Monthly" will be the first endeavor.

"To develop this exciting program, we need additional equipment and sound-proofing for our recording studio. Volunteers also are needed," said Mrs. Redfern. She explained that the "time consuming process of recording a book demands the talents of many individuals."

Betty Flora, executive director of the library, pointed out that "three hours of listening time on cassette requires 20 hours of preparation by three volunteers, including the reader, the machine operator and a reviewer or proof reader."

The training of these volunteers has been assumed by the state, according to Ann Considine, executive director of the library.

Mrs. Redfern is "interested in library development anywhere" and she has helped with library programs in Midland schools, which officials at the Tape Lending Library work closely with, such as special education classes.

"We are giving a service to people on a local level with specific books. We are widening their choice of books available. We are also helping out with school programs if students are homebound. The key word is availability" said Mrs. Redfern.

The library, said Mrs. Redfern, also helps to broaden education of the handicapped as well as in developing a chosen field of work.

Mrs. Redfern also is serving as secretary of the West Texas Library Systems Advisory Council and is a member of the State Committee.

MEET THE PRESIDENT

She has served as a Midland school trustee and was secretary of the board for two years. The official has been a past president of the American Association of University Women, League of Women Voters of Midland, Friends of the Midland County Public Library and the Midland Genealogical Society, and is a past member of the board of directors of both Family Counseling and Planned Parenthood, Inc., and a past member of the national board of directors of Planned Parenthood.

The Tape Lending Library was organized in the spring of 1963 by Mrs. Mayme K. Martin, who, with the First Presbyterian Church, contributed matching funds to begin this unique service to the visually and physically handicapped of the Midland community. For seven years, the library functioned from Mrs. Martin's home, but the demand for its service was so great the need for a permanent organization and building became apparent.

In January 1970 a certificate of incorporation was filed and in that same month a lease agreement for the present location was signed with the Presbyterian church and contruction began in April 1970.

The United Way of Midland has become the primary source of funding for the library.

For people who need to read by listening, volunteers read books on request and deliver material and eq.uipment. Other services available to the users include reader advisory, referral, technical assistance, reassurance calls, listening facilities and inter-library loans. Visitation and community service by the staff and volunteers expand the library's outreach to nursing homes, retirement homes, hospitals, churches and public and private groups.

The first presentation of the Texas Monthly to the state library will be made the second week of February at a formal ceremony in Austin.

The library also is purchasing a new sound-proof booth and recording equipment. The need for Spanish readers was expressed by the staff of the library.

Other members of the board of directors include Mrs. Roy Williamson, vice president; Richard L. Hughston, secretary; Darryl Pounds, treasurer, and Walter Ashby, Mrs. Peter Crain, Mrs. Murray Fasken, Mrs. George H. Glass, Mrs. V. C. Maley, Mrs. Wayne Moore, Hugh Schmidt and Mrs. Harold Schneider.

First Lady prefers not to talk about fashions

By NINA S. HYDE

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Most women feel that what they wear is their own business, but what if the woman is also the First Lady?

Rosalynn Carter has made it clear that she can find more important things to talk about, and many would agree with her. But a lot more people are acting like fashion groupies, eager to savor every detail of the First Lady's wardrobe.

"I've waited for six months to get a glimpse of her clothes," said one of many women who called The Post last week, wanting to know more about Mrs. Carter's fashion preferences. "I want to see them all."

The fashion industry wants to know, too. It is already pecking away at Mrs. Carter because she is bringing a sewing machine to the White House, because she wore a vintage dress to the inaugural parties and because her clothes are not up to the minute, fashionwise.

True, none of the styles in her closets are the ones making headlines in the trade press or on the covers of the fashion slicks. Mrs. Carter's style is conservative: She likes covered up designs with raised necklines and long sleeves. Her clothes aren't particularly youthful but they don't age her either. They reveal her as she is. They are pretty and neat, comfortable and appropriate and always American made.

What she wears is likely to have little effect on the fashion industry, but that has been true of most First Ladies, with Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis the obvious exception. Betty Ford was a big booster of Seventh Avenue — she visited wholesale showrooms and participated in industry events — but her style was not influential. Indeed, it was criticized by some of the so-called fashion avant-garde.

Mrs. Carter's nonflamboyant sytle will, of course, determine what others wear to the White House. Extravagant dresses and showy jewels are not in keeping with her ways. Low-key dressing will be more appropriate. And while many of her husband's colleagues respond quickly to style changes, unadventurous fashion will be the rule for White House functions.

Despite the Carters' reluctance to hold white-tie gatherings, there will certainly be some, perhaps for leaders like King Hussein, perhaps not for others. White-tie protocol makes life easier because it eliminates the problem of choosing (i.e. secondguessing) what to wear when dining with the President. But it is clearly at odds with the Carter political image, and probably with the Carters' tastes as well.

Less formal dress has created minicrises in the past. When French President Valerie Giscard d'Estaing and President Ford met in Martinique in December 1974, Ford invited Giscard to a barbecue. It caught the elegant French leader and his wife off guard and unprepared for such casualness.

There is little doubt, though, that President and Mrs. Carter will save their jeans-wearing for Camp David and Plains, just as Kennedy had his Hyannisport attire and the Johnsons had their for the Pedernales.

Mrs. Carter's reluctance to spend a lot of money on clothes does not mean that she doesn't like to look right. In fact, she often comments on the attractive appearance of those around her, according to one of her aides. But Mrs. Carter comes from a poor family, has worked most of her life.

Pins carry out doll's curse, cure

By ERMA BOMBECK

Cindi Jensen suggested in a recent column in the Whethersfield (Conn.) Post that the world was ready for an Erma Bombeck doll. This would be a believable replica of a housewife with "lumps in all the wrong places, an oversized sweatshirt covered with paint, and gray roots in her hair."

Naturally, I'm flattered, but face it, Cindi — I can't compete with Barbie's 2 ½-inch bust, Cher's concave stomach and the Bionic Woman's fingernails which open a can of tuna in two seconds flat.

Besides, I just received a doll that could not only replace my encounter group, it should be in every kitchen in America. It's a Voodoo doll. It stands about nine inches high, has a nondescript face and a few strings of black yarn for hair. Printed over its entire body are cures and curses (depending on your assets) which can be enhanced by white pins (for the cures) and black pins (for the spells).

Listed on the female doll are areas such as migraine, tennis elbow, droopy panty hose, split ends, double chin, hairy legs, yellow teeth and flat chest.

The male counterpart has bullseyes clearly marked for athlete's foot, trick knees, varicose veins, pot belly, gas, loose dentures, broken zippers and ring-around-the-collar.

The doll was sitting on my countertop when Mayva came in for coffee the other morning. "Who does this belong to?" she asked.

"Me."

"Oh for crying out loud. Didn't anyone ever tell you you're big for twelve? What's it do?"

"A lot. Whenever I see a size 10 that gets on my nerves, I just grab a black pin and give it a thrust and immediately every size 10 in the country feels rotten."

"Are you saying to me that you really believe in this nonsense?"

"One store in Philadelphia alone sold 1,500 of them," I said defensively.

"If you ask me, I think someone put a pin in your brain.."

This morning, Mayva called and said, "I'd have popped in sooner, but I've been feeling lousy, like someone sewed my mouth shut."

Mayva exaggerates. I only took a tuck in it with two small black pins.

More women work

Between 1920 and 1975 the proportion of married women who worked rose from 9 per cent to 44 per cent.

One reason, says the American Council of Life Insurance, is that there is a far wider variety of jobs today for women compared to 55 years ago.

Alumnae meet for luncheon

The Midland alumnae of Kappa Alpha Theta met in the Garden Room of Midland Country Club for their annual Founders' Day luncheon and election of officers.

Guests and new members were introduced by the outgoing president, Mrs. Robert Gaston. They were Mrs. John E. Meyer and Mrs. Mike Starcevich, both of Midland, and Theora Calverty of Garden City, all new members, and Mrs. Jerry Graves, Mrs. Bryan Henderson, Mrs. Robert B. Cox, Mrs. John C. Becka Jr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Minton, all guests from Odessa.

Mrs. Alan Spinks was elected president for the 1977 club year. Other new officers are Mrs. George Farrell, vice president; Mrs. Clarence Scharbauer III, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. James Isbell, Panhellenic representative, and Mrs. William S. Gesell, fraternity trends.

Mrs. Gaston was presented a gold charm on behalf of the club.

Bride-elect honored

A lingerie shower was held in the Flame Room at Pioneer Natural Gas Co. for Glenda Harmon, bride-elect of Charles Newsom, both of Midland.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. George D. Harmon of 1700 N. Dallas St., and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Newsom, 1004 W. Kansas St.

Mrs. Lillie Heitman was hostess and Mrs. Jim Rogers assisted.

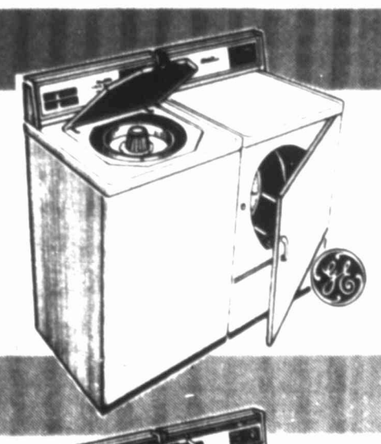

A pink satin tablecloth overlayed with white flowered lace covered the table. Decorations included a candelabra with pink carnations, baby's breath and burgundy satin hearts.

The cake was trimmed with bells joined at the top with a cluster of pink rose buds and a burgundy rose. The couple's names were on each bell. Pink sherbet punch also was served.

Explaining why he would welcome the informal and casual relationships that would be possible with a host family is Samir Aboulola of Saudi Arabia, representative to Inter-Club Council from International Club. He is conversing with Darlene Sage, left, and Betty Cure, right.

AAUW, MC group seek host families

The Midland branch of the American Association of University Women, in coordination with the International Club at Midland College, is seeking Midland families willing to share their homes and hospitality with foreign students at the college.

Midland College presently has approximately 25 foreign students enrolled from such countries as Saudi Arabia, Brazil, New Zealand, Australia, Iran and Vietnam.

"We want to emphasize there is no large obligation incurred in being a host family," points out Darlene Sage, president of the International Club. "All that is necessary is to share your friendship with some of these students and be willing to exchange cultural ideas with them."

According to Betty Cure, AAUW coordinator for the host family program, "The host family is encouraged to invite and include the college student in family activities such meals, special observances or holidays, museum visits, theater going and etc. The program is not a financial room-and-board endeavor, but rather a program for building good relationships and understandings among international students and the Midland community."

The program is not restricted to just AAUW members, but any family in the Tall City may participate.

Mrs. Cure explained that international relations is one of AAUW's continuing interests, and the program will provide the opportunity for furthering the university women's involvement in this area.

Formed in 1975 by interested students and faculty members, the International Club meets regularly for informal discussions of various countries, their backgrounds, customs and cultures. Faculty sponsor for the group is Anita Harwell, government instructor.

Persons wishing to become host families or wanting additional information are asked to contact Mrs. Cure at 683-7965 or Mrs. Harwell at Midland College, 684-7851.

Altrusa resets Woman of Year date

Altrusa Club of Midland, Inc., met in Rodeway Inn to hear a report on its crime prevention program, presented by Mrs. J. R. H. McMullan, Jr., chairman of the community services committee.

Mrs. McMullan also announced that letters had been mailed to various clubs and organizations in the city urging their participation in the upcoming Lucy Mashburn Woman of the Year award. The date for this has been reset for March 31.

The program was presented by the membership committee, chaired by Mrs. Roy F. Gardner. She was assisted by Mrs. L. G. Simmons. "Panning For Gold" was the theme used in the program, and acquiring new members was likened to a prospector's finding golden nuggets that fit all the requirements of the assay (classification) office. She explained the tools necessary — the club's classification guide and handbook, furnished by Altrusa International — and the rules to observe in securing new members.

In keeping with the new program instigated by Altrusa International this year, Mrs. Simmons presented "Set the Pace" awards to vice president, Mary Alice Tidwell, and Mrs. Loydd Wornell, one new member each, and the "Golden A" award to Mrs. Guy Saunders for two new members brought into the club this year.

An initiation service was conducted by Mrs. W. N. Keisling, member of Altrusa information committee, for two new members, Mrs. Katy Heck and Mrs. Ellen White. They were presented their Altrusa pins by their sponsors, Mrs. Gardner and Mrs. John J. Carter, respectively. Mrs. Jody Green, also a new member, was presented her Altrusa pin by Mrs. Jean Reid.

Mrs. W. E. Stirman, president, welcomed Mary Silkwood, Ezra Isbell, Pam Johnson and Ann Hicks as guests.

At the recent block party held in the home of Mrs. Porter Wallis, Sgt. Fred Johnson of the Midland Police Department's Crime Prevention Unit outlined some procedures to deter potential burglars who might be watching a particular home and decide to "hit" it.

Sgt. Johnson said "if a house stays dark one hour after dark a burglar will probably 'hit' it." But should this happen the officer provided an answer to how to keep the culprit from accomplishing his goal of burglarizing the residence. Double cylinder deadbolt locks on all exit doors are recommended so that if the burglar does make a forced entry into the home through a window, "they will leave without taking anything if they find they can't get out through a door."

Sgt. Johnson has talked with some of these burglars and they say "it will take 90 seconds for me to go into a house, get what I want and leave."

These criminals aim for television sets and guns, something they can sell quickly to get a fix for that day, if they are drug addicts. And, said Sgt. Johnson, most burglaries are related to drugs.

The vocational services committee, chaired by Mrs. Wornell, will present the program at the Feb. 10 meeting in Rodeway Inn.

Chapter told music uses in churches

Stephen Spain presented a program on the uses of music in churches at a meeting of the Alpha Iota Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi in the home of Pauline Gwyn.

It was announced a cocktail party will be held in the home of Judy Brazil prior to the Feb. 12 Sweetheart Ball in the Midland Hilton.

Volunteers needed by VIM agencies

The Volunteers in Midland office, 2000 W. Wall St., announces the need for the following volunteers.

EASTER SEALS SOCIETY: Needs a volunteer campaign chairman to co-ordinate the local spring drive from March 1-April 10. This year a telethon will be held March 26-27. A volunteer publicity chairman is needed to write publicity and news releases and to assist in organizing activities for the telethon. Telephone volunteers also are needed.

MUSEUM OF THE SOUTHWEST: Volunteer hostess to greet visitors and provide information and directions. Volunteer clerk to work in the Shop of the Southwest three hours weekly. Training provided. Both of these are non-paying positions.

Auxiliary has annual coffee

The Permian Basin Landmen's Auxiliary had its annual membership coffee in the home of Mrs. Robert D. Janssen, 2 Auburn Court.

The hostesses, members of the executive committee, were Mrs. Ted Collins Jr., Mrs. Hyl Doss, Mrs. R. D. Jones, Mrs. Ed Taylor, Mrs. Robert J. Castor, Mrs. Lloyd Johns, Mrs. Janssen, Mrs. Bill Coleman, Mrs. Harold Hart, Mrs. E. M. Gorence, Mrs. Don Dow, Mrs. Jacque Manaugh and Mrs. John W. Young.

Wives of members of the Permian Basin Landmen's Association are invited to join the auxiliary. Dues may be sent to Mrs. Johns, 2213 Boyd St., by Tuesday.

Palette Club showing works in Oak Ridge

Members of the Midland Palette Club are exhibiting their works at the Paint Palette in Oak Ridge Square.

About 25 to 30 works in oil, watercolor and acrylic can be viewed from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. through the month of February.

The Palette Club was started in the 1950s and is Midland's oldest art association. One of its projects has been to provide scholarship money to the art department at Midland College.

Catherine Ford, a former resident, marries at Bronte

BRONTE — The First Baptist Church here was the setting for the marriage of Catherine Lanell Ford of San Angelo, formerly of Midland, and Gerry Wayne Cannon, also of San Angelo. The Rev. Cecil Harper officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. L. G. Campbell of Bronte and Jeff Ford. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Waldon of Carlsbad, N.M.

Julie Ford of Midland attended her sister as maid of honor, and Clifford Long of San Angelo was best man. Other attendants were Cindy Edwards and Nancy Lange, both of Midland. The bride was presented in marriage by her father.

A reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church immediately following the ceremony.

The couple will reside in San Angelo, where the bride is employed by Preston Stores and the bridegroom by the San Angelo Police Department. She attended Midland schools and Angelo State University and her husband is a graduate of New Mexico Junior College. He also attended ASU and Howard County Junior College.

Sprinkle cologne on cover

To make your ironing more enjoyable and fragrant, sprinkle a few drops of your favorite cologne on the ironing board cover. This gives your clothes a delicate fragrance.

ST. ANN'S PRE-SCHOOL Mothers Club installed new officers at a salad luncheon. Sue Baker, right, is the new president, and Dodie Graham is first vice president. Other officers are Jan Price, second vice president; Joan Hawkins, third vice president; Judy Duke, secretary; Peg Claxton, treasurer; Vickie Bauer, historian; Margaret Hartman, parliamentarian; Rosemary McGuire and Kathy Green, yearbook; Olivia Farias, hospitality; Jan Perkins and Elaine Kurc, courtesy; Marge Daniels, baby sitting; Barb Potter and Kathy Tano, membership, and Mary Banda, telephone.

Economy still possible despite frigid weather

COLLEGE STATION—Frigid weather conditions have upset the entire fresh tender-vegetable line and curtailed egg production—with resulting higher prices on some items for grocery consumers.

In spite of that, economy is still possible in serveral instances, Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt, a consumer marketing information specialist, says.

Items that grocery stores previously planned to "special" will now be particularly good values, and items harvested before the weather hit their supplies may still be good values.

Fresh citrus fruit from favorable—weather areas is in good supply and includes oranges, grapefruit, tangerines and tangelos—but their prices may fluctuate due to diminishing supplies from Florida, the specialist reported.

Mrs. Clyatt is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A & M University System.

For vegetable economy, choices of fresh items generally are limited to dry onions, white and sweet potatoes, hard-shell squash and rutabagas. But consumers can look for frozen-vegetable features.

At meat counters, pork supplies continue to increase—lowering the price to consumers. Good values appear on Boston butt roasts and quarter-loin sliced chops—along with hams, bacon, roll sausage and frankfurters.

At beef counters, supplies are adequate and prices are the same as last week or slightly higher. However, greater economy is available on the less-demanded cuts, so consumers might consider rib and shoulder steaks—as well as the popular sirloin and T-bone steaks, ground beef and liver, Mrs. Clyatt advised.

Officers installed

New officers were installed by Mrs. Hazel Somerville at a meeting of the board of directors of Lancaster Garden Center-Museum of the Southwest.

Those installed were Mrs. Barbara Drake, co-ordinator; Mrs. Betty Shirey, assistant co-ordinator; Mrs. Dorris Peck, recording secretary. Mrs. Nelda Coleman is treasurer and Mrs. Lorene Barnett is corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Opal Diemer, outgoing co-ordinator, presented an annual report, and Mrs. Betty Shirey, chairman of the center's greenhouse project, gave a progress report and asked for volunteers and plants.

The next meeting of the directors will be at 9 a.m. Feb. 21 in the center, with Midland Rose Society as hostess group.

DEAR ABBY

Clergyman won't perform ceremony

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 29 and was looking forward so happily to her fourth marriage. But she's terribly upset because our rabbi has suggested that she go to another rabbi for this ceremony.

Actually, this rabbi (who confirmed her) performed only two of her marriages. She married a Catholic last time for whom she turned Catholic, but in less than a year their marriage was annulled, and she returned to the Jewish faith. So now she is as Jewish as she was before she became a Catholic.

Now, our rabbi doesn't want to marry her. Does he have the right to turn her away?

What would you do in our place? There are other rabbis handy, but our daughter felt so close to this one. (He is not an orthodox rabbi, he's reformed.)—ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: A clergyman has the right to refuse to perform a marriage ceremony for reasons of his own. Inasmuch as there ae other rabbis handy, ask one.

DEAR ABBY: Joel and I had gone steady for two years and things were going great until six months ago. Then he suggested that we both start dating others.

I really didn't want to date anyone else, so I asked Joel what went wrong in our relationship, and he told me:

I had cut my hair above my ears without asking him first, and it seems that short hair on girls turns him off.

Then because Joel complained about my cigarette breath, I quit smoking and gained 20 pounds in five months. Well, it seems fat girls turn him off.

He told me that after I had my hair grown out and lost the weight I gained, I should give him a call.

My question: Do you think I should let my hair grow and try to lose weight just to please Joel? Or should I tell him that I am not going to make myself over for him?——I WANT TO BE ME

DEAR WANT: Only you can make that decision. Now that you know what it will take to get Joel back, it's up to you to decide whether he's worth the effort. Is he?

Mammoth Juanita returns to feeding humans, beasts

PORT COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Mammoth Juanita Musson, with her muu-muu, her menagerie and a chest big enough, she says, to snuff out a forest fire, is back in the restaurant business.

Twice burned out of previous locations in the past quarter-century, the coarse-tongued "galley" operator is at work again with as few changes as possible from her other restaurants.

"I wear a size 48 double-D bra with enough held over to smother a forest fire," she says loudly. "I'm 53 and I tip the scales at 250 pounds — and you can ask me anything you want, honey, 'cause I believe in telling it like it is.

"A lot of people love me and a lot of people hate me," she adds. "A lot of people think I'm loud and vulgar and obscene. Well I'll tell you, honey, maybe I am. Just maybe I am."

Juanita is quick to add, though, "I ain't never turned away an animal that didn't have a home and I ain't never turned away a man who was hungry."

It's been 23 years since she opened her first galley on the Sausalito waterfront. Since then she has moved seven times and won increasing fame as a good cook with a blistering temper and tongue.

When Juanita's Galley in Fetter's Hot Springs burned down in March 1975, one observer said it was "comparable to what might have occurred had there been an explosion aboard Noah's Ark."

Firemen arrived to find chickens, pigs, goats, cats and peacocks amid a clamor of squeaks, grunts, quacks and screeches. And Juanita in a red muu-muu trapped on the second floor.

"I didn't think I'd make it down that ladder," says Juanita. "When two firemen told me to watch my step, I told them, 'You better watch out for yourselves if I fall.'"

Juanita attributes her fondness for animals to the fact she was never allowed to have any pets when she was a child. She treats her broad range of roosters, pigeons, dogs and monkeys as children.

"Most of my animals are gone now — I just don't have room for them here," she says. "But I've still got my jackass and my mule and my birds — not to mention all the human animals I have to take care of."

Any day of the year visitors are likely to find Juanita in her galley, in the kitchen, behind the cash register, feeding stray animals or mingling with the customers.

She defends her reputation as a fiery-tongued overseer of her empire, but says she can't help what she is.

"I can only be me," she says with a smile. "And believe me, honey, that's a hell of a lot."

Charlie Willard, air pioneer, dies at 93

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — Charles F. "Charlie" Willard, the nation's first barnstorming pilot and the fourth American to pilot an airplane, is dead at the age of 93.

A memorial service will be held Thursday in Compton for Willard, who died Monday in Glendale Community Hospital.

Willard was the first pilot to fly an airplane over downtown Los Angeles and the first to be shot down — by a squirrel gun.

Only the Wright brothers and aircraft builder Glenn Curtiss preceded him as pilots.

Curtiss taught him to fly on Long Island, New York, in 1909, where the young pilot's previous instruction was a year at Harvard and a correspondence course on gasoline engines.

"Curtiss didn't say much," Willard said in a 1970 interview, referring to his preflight instruction. "He just pointed to some people downfield, told me not to run into them, then shouted over the barking engine.

"'Get her up, straighten her out, then come down ... and for God's sake don't break her up. She's not paid for yet,'" Willard quoted Curtiss as saying.

Willard got the plane 40 feet into the air, flew several hundred yards, and made it back to the ground in one piece.

Later he was sent on a barnstorming tour by the Aeronautic Society of New York to inform the public of his new method of transportation.

He appeared at Dominguez Field near Compton in 1910, for the nation's first air show, and later that year made the pioneer flight over downtown Los Angeles.

Earlier, while barnstorming over the Midwest, he became the first man to be shot down when an annoyed farmer fired a squirrel gun at him, breaking his propeller.

Experts say industry slowing exodus from cities

By DAVID TREADWELL

CHICAGO (AP) — For more than half a century, Fantus Co. has been moving industry across the face of the nation like pins on a map.

The firm has shifted industries worth billions of dollars from urban areas to suburbs, the Sunbelt states and smalltown America.

Sometimes the moves are made to avoid labor problems. Other changes in site location bring an industry closer to energy sources. The climate might be a reason. Occasionally, it's merely fashionable to follow a competitor.

Fantus, which has engineered moves for more than 4,000 companies ranging in size from 200 to 35,000 employes, says it is asked to study new locations because it can steer a business around the pitfalls of settling into a new community.

The movement and expansion of businesses into new areas has brought growth to much of the South and Southwest, but has been at the heart of the financial problems of such traditional manufacturing areas as Detroit.

In the 55 years since its founding, Fantus has stressed moves away from the Northeast and Great Lakes regions. Now, says Maurice Fulton, Fantus chairman, that trend may be slowing.

"The big cities are beginning to fight back," Fulton says, noting that Detroit and New York have asked Fantus to prepare industrial marketing strategies to try to recover some of the factory jobs they have lost in recent years.

"We're familiar with the needs of industry," Fulton says. "We have a wealth of information on what particular industries want. We know the real reasons they move, not the phony baloney reasons they sometimes give out."

Fantus began by selling its services to industry. But more recently states and localities are contracting Fantus to find out what types of industries are best suited to their areas.

Objectivity, as a chamber of commerce official in Ohio put it, is Fantus' strong card. Plant site studies are designed to assure that the community and the business are right for each other.

Back in the 1950s, for example, Hartmann Luggage Co. of Racine, Wis., sought Fantus' help.

"Labor had gotten so terrible there," Hartmann vice president Dorothy Tenix says. "The union had gotten so strong and wages had gotten so high, we decided to move out."

Fantus found them a spot in Lebanon, Tenn. Ten years later the company blocked a Teamsters Union organization drive "despite a very sticky time that lasted 27 months," Miss Tenix says.

Relocating a plant site is one of the most complex, costly and traumatic experiences an industry can go through, Fulton says, noting that 60 per cent of all industrial growth takes place at existing sites despite the allures of leaving.

Originally involved in peddling industrial real estate, the firm devoted itself exclusively to selling its site-finding talents in 1935 after Leonard Yaseen, now head of the Fantus office in New York City, joined the firm and urged the change.

In the 1930s, Felix Fantus also helped the state of Mississippi fashion the nation's first industrial bond, which permits an industry to rent a site built by a state or city using his tax exempt borrowing power.

Worth staying up for...

For that floating feeling, try Israel's Dead Sea

EIN GEDI, Israel (AP) — Swimming in the Dead Sea produces the other-worldly sensation of floating in an astronaut's zero-gravity chamber. Due to high concentrations of minerals, the human body floats in the Dead Sea.

When walking into it, you reach a point — usually when you are between waist and chest deep — when buoyancy sweeps your feet to the surface. Sun worshippers simply prop their hands behind their heads and soak up the rays with almost no distractions, except a hardy breed of flies.

For tourists in Israel, a visit to the 500-square-mile Dead Sea is as essential as going to the top of the Empire State Building is in New York. Apart from its quirky swimming qualities, the Dead Sea is the lowest point on earth, lying 1,292 feet below sea level. It is part of the great Jordan rift that cleaves the earth from Syria to southeast Africa.

A head-first plunge is definitely not the best way to experience this natural phenomenon since the salt level is 10 times greater than the open seas. Most bathers enter cautiously, trying not to splash water above the neck.

Dead Sea water is painful if a swimmer has cuts or sores. It's a literal case of pouring salt into wounds.

Surrounded by the sparsely populated, lunar-like Judean hills, the Dead Sea is nearly dead quiet. Floating is a smooth sport because of minimal wave action and because floaters don't have to keep a watchful eye out for sharks, crabs, jellyfish or other ordinary nuisances to swimmers.

Unlike at other rocky-bottomed beaches, swimmers don't have to worry about slipping on algae-covered stones because no plants or animals survive in this land-locked sea. The Jordan River empties its waters and some fish into the salty basin, but the fish don't last long.

The Dead Sea's name accurately describes this body of water, but some Israelis feel it is a misnomer because the ancient sea is a great source of raw chemicals for industry and agriculture.

Of course, there is a catch to the relaxing sensation of weightlessness. The body's balancing mechanism becomes accustomed to the buoyancy of the water and therefore when swimmers walk out of the sea they experience the clumsiness of a newborn animal.

Returning from the dense water, bathers head for the nearest shower to rinse off the potent mineral solution. Without a shower, hair begins to feel gritty and a chalky white powder appears on the skin.

Only two inches of rain fall annually at the Dead Sea. The Jordan River pours 6.5 million tons of water daily into the lake, but all its living contents die soon after contact with the salt liquid.

The water evaporates so fast in the baking sun that a permanent vapor cloud hangs over the Dead Sea. Parts of the lake smell of sulphur. Greek author Nikos Kazantzakis wrote that the Dead Sea was his vision of hell.

But there are optimists. A Jewish settlement has existed, on and off, for decades on the shore of the lake. Its name, Kalia, is a Hebrew acronym for the words "the Dead Sea is alive again."

CAB now pondering tighter regulations on charter airlines

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The growth in airline charters has brought a corresponding increase in complaints about the low-cost flights, and the government is zeroing in on tour operators to try to give passengers more protection.

The Civil Aeronautics Board is considering changing charter regulations to make sure consumers get what they sign up for.

The most sweeping changes involve a petition by the agency's Office of Consumer Advocate which said gripes about charters represented 8 per cent of its total number of complaints in 1975 and 11 per cent in the first three months of 1976.

A key reason for the increase is the proliferation of charters available. Until recently, you had to belong to what was known as an affinity group — a hobby club or study group, for example — in order to take advantage of the charters. The membership requirement has been eased and anyone can buy charter-flight tickets for everything from simple air fare to complete tours.

The Office of Consumer Advocate said many existing charter contracts "contain insufficient protection for participants." Among its recommended regulations:

—The contract between the tour operator and the passenger should describe all major features of the charter such as ground arrangements and prices.

—If a tour operator changed any part of the package, the buyer would be entitled to a full refund unless he or she agreed — in writing — to the change.

—Full refunds would be given in case of documented serious illness, accident or death of a passenger or a member of his or her immediate family.

—Each participant must receive an official notice in case of cancellation.

—Consumers would be compensated for significant delays in departure or return of charter flights. No specifics have been worked out.

—Formal licensing would be required before charter flights could be organized.

When the charters first were introduced, many of the complaints concerned flights that were canceled at the last minute when tour operators could not get enough passengers to make up the package.

Now, however, there are complaints about the opposite problem — overbooking.

The CAB has specific rules on compensation for passengers who are bumped from regularly scheduled flights because the airline has sold too many seats. And the Office of Consumer Advocate has urged a similar plan for charter passengers.

Among the things the CAB is trying to figure out:

—What kind of compensating arrangement should be made?

—Should deliberate overbooking be put in the same category as delays or cancellations caused by the unavailability of crews or mechanical equipment?

—If satisfactory substitute transportation is required in the rules, what should be considered as "satisfactory?"

Vet-to-be starts right

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Gerard Lucas is a shoe salesman, but the clients he fits are horses.

The Purdue University veterinary student from Trumbull, Conn., is a farrier, or horseshoer. And even though he admits the work is sweaty, demanding and presents the risk of an occasional swift kick from a temperamental customer, he enjoys it.

"It's hard physical work but I enjoy it because it gives me a chance to be physically active and gives me some extra money. But the biggest drawback is lack of time," says Lucas, who carries a full load of college classes.

"A full-time farrier can make a good salary. But I'd rather limit myself to cases where I can look at the situation medically, instead of trying to do so many horses an hour."

He confines his work to weekends, when he usually shoes two or three horses. It takes him less than two hours to shoe all four hooves of an animal.

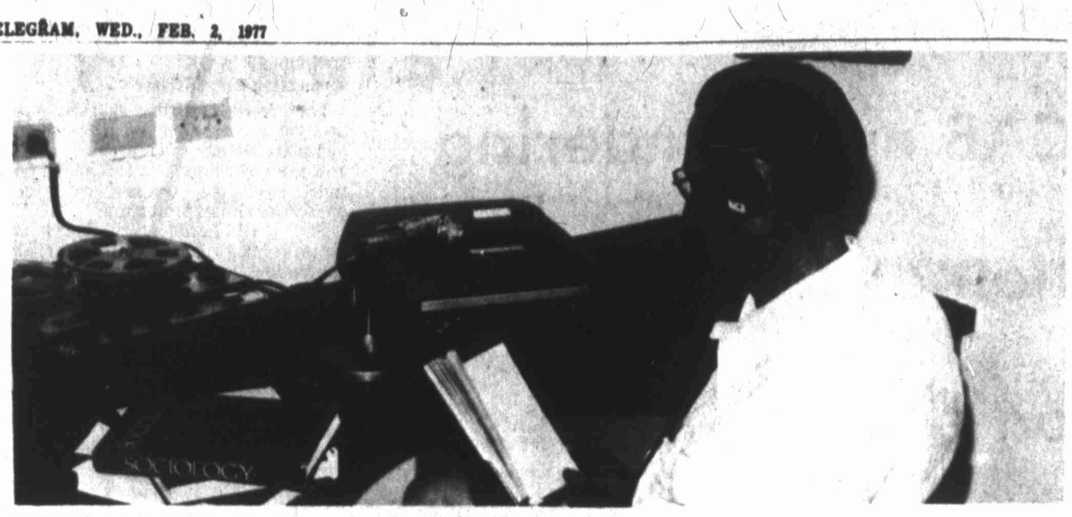

The bearded 24-year-old student admits to being generous with treats — sugar cubes, carrots and other tidbits — to ease the work along.

"The thing I like about horses is that they're really characters," he says. "A horse is a very intelligent animal and knows what is happening to him."

Lucas started his business after attending a farrier school in Oklahoma two years ago. Since then he has acquired a small forge, anvil and other equipment, all of which are carried in his aging black truck. His initial investment was about $1,500, in addition to the school tuition.

"One of the hardest things I've found so far is trying to find the right kind of coal for my forge," he says of his search for a special type of hard coal called Pocahontas.

Farriers are of two types, Lucas explains: cold shoers and hot shoers. The former uses preshaped horseshoes which need a minimal amount of reworking to fit the horse, while a hot shoer starts from scratch.

THANKS TO YOU, it's working. The world of Midland's blind can be expanded through the Tape Lending Library.

COMMUTER VANS ARE becoming popular transportation to and from work at two major oil companies, reports the American Petroleum Institute. Continental Oil Co. and the Atlantic Richfield Co. are among more than 40 U.S. firms offering employes commuter van pool programs, and they report growing success, regularly increasing the size of their van fleets. About 16 per cent of Conoco's Houston employes now use the vans, and the company thinks the program has increased ridesharing generally. Another 36 per cent participate in private car pools.

Krueger says energy bill no help to Texas

WASHINGTON, D. C. — U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger of New Braunfels, Tex., a strong advocate of gas deregulation, voted Tuesday for Presient Carter's emergency energy legislation.

At the same time, he said "in all honesty I must say that this bill does nothing specifically to help Texas, but it does try to address a small part of the national problem."

Krueger, who has introduced a bill he hopes will offer a long-term solution to the gas industry's problems, added that he did not "believe the bill will do very much for the distressed interstate system.

"There simply is not enough gas available in the short run to meet the needs of the gas-starved states. Only long-term legislation can really cure that problem."

The Senate voted 59-12 Monday in favor of its version of the emergency gas bill, and the House voted in favor Tuesday, 367-52.

The Texan said that in his judgment the bill does no great harm, although it poses problems that cause some concern for the future.

"I personally voted for the legislation because it may give some slight help to northern states, and because I believe that a vote against it might be understood as implying that we Texans had no interest in or compassion for the problems of people in states suffering severe shortages," he explained.

The House version gives the President authority to allocate gas for residential users from one interstate pipeline to another interstate pipeline.

"It gives no authority to the President to allocate intrastate gas," Krueger pointed out. "We were successful in keeping that provision from even being brought up in the Commerce Committee."

Krueger said another main section of the bill as passed by the House gives the President authority to require interconnections between interstate and intrastate pipelines.

"This authority allows the President to require intrastate pipelines to carry gas between two interstate pipelines if such interconnection is necessary to transfer gas from a rich interstate pipeline to a distressed interstate pipeline," Krueger said. "The intrastate line can be required to carry the gas only on a space-available basis. In other words, no intrastate gas can be bumped out of the line in order to carry interstate gas."

Another important section in the emergency bill allows distressed interstate pipelines to make emergency purchases from the intrastate market until Aug. 1, Krueger said.

"There were certain amendments to the bill which I believe are of large importance to Texas," Krueger said.

He explained that an amendment offered by Rep. Bob Eckhardt of Houston, which he supported, put temporary price ceilings on the emergency sales of natural gas from intrastate pipelines to distressed interstate pipelines.

The price ceiling in the House bill allows sales from intrastate pipelines until Aug. 1 to be made at 115 per cent of the average intrastate prices from the second quarter of 1976. In effect, Krueger said, this is likely to mean prices of about $2.03 for Texas gas.

"An amemdment that I offered prevents an intrastate pipeline under court supervision from making sales to interstate pipelines withoug court approval," Krueger said. "One result of this is that Lo-Vaca Pipeline cannot sell gas to interstate customers without specific court approval. That, in turn, should protect Lo-Vaca's customers in Texas."

Operators stake three wildcat drillsites in West Texas areas

Exploration has been scheduled for Ward, Winkler and Crane County sectors, and an outpost is slated for a Reeves field.

Gulf Oil Corp. intends to drill No. 2 T. B. Pruett, et al, Gas Unit, a 19,800-foot wildcat in Ward, 10 miles northwest of Barstow and ½ mile southwest of its No. 1 Pruett, also slated as a 19,800-foot wildcat.

Drillsite for No. 2 is 1,320 feet from northeast and 1,650 feet from southeast lines of section 24, block 1, W&NW survey.

No. 1 Pruett, 1,505 feet from southeast and 1,119 feet from southwest lines of section 23, was rerunning a drillstem test from 19,074-19,228 feet, after packers failed on the first attempt. It flowed while drilling at 6,510 and 8,370 feet.

Gulf also has made plans to reenter and plug back to wildcat depth of 4,800 feet at No. 1 Seth Campbell, Devonian oil producer in the Kermit, South field, one mile east of Kermit. The old total depth of the project is 8,650 feet.

It is 990 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 28, block B-3, PSL survey.

Shell Oil Co. will plug back and test at around 2,900 feet as a Yates gas wildcat at No. 5-B Barnsley, producer in the Sand Hills (McKnight) field of Crane County.

Operator plans downhole commingling of the pays upon successful completion and approval.

Location is 3,000 feet from north and 3,100 feet from east lines of J. F. Cross survey 1, or 467 feet from north and 658 feet from east lines of the survey in lot 5.

Adobe Oil Co. of Midland intends to drill No. 1 Graham-State, a ¾-mile west and northwest stepout to the five-well Atoka gas area of the Chapnan, Deep field of Reeves.

It is slated to 13,900 feet, and spots 660 feet from south and east lines of section 28, block 57, T-2, T&P survey, three miles west of Orla.

Explorers, field trys set in Basin regions

Three wildcats and four pool projects have been slated for Irion County.

Union Texas Petroleum Corp., operating from Midland, filed applications for the prospectors.

No. 1-1896 Sugg is slated as a 6,900-foot test, 1¾ mile north and slightly east of the Lucky Canyon (Ellenburger) pool discovery, which has been reentered for tests of the Strawn.

It is 660 feet from north and 760 feet from west lines of section 1896, A. Winnan (shows Wimann on some maps), 11 miles northwest of Mertzon. It also is 2¼ miles southeast of the Burnt Rock (Canyon) gas field.

Union Texas also will drill No. 1-11 Sugg, a scheduled 8,250-foot prospector, 14 miles northwest of Mertzon and 2¼ miles northwest of the Burnt Rock field.

Drillsite is 1,880 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 11, block 6, H&TC survey.

The same firm has scheduled No. 1-5-S Sugg, a 7,100-foot venture, 2⅝ miles east and slightly south of the Gullan (Wolfcamp) oil field.

Drillsite is 1,980 feet from north and 910 feet from east lines of section 5, block 1, H&TC survey, six miles northwest of Mertzon.

Union Texas also plans three stepouts to the Burnt Rock (Canyon) field, 12 miles northwest of Mertzon.

All are slated to 7,500 feet.

No. 1-3089 Sugg, one mile southeast of the discovery and lone well, spots 1,500 feet from north and 704 feet from east lines of section 3089, block 28, H&TC survey.

No. 1-3060 Sugg is 1,700 feet from south and 3,000 feet from east lines of section 3060, block 28, H&TC survey. It is one mile east and slightly south of the discovery.

And No. 1-5-N Sugg is 660 feet from south and 2,130 feet from west lines of section 5, block 6, H&TC survey, ½ mile northwest of the pool opener.

The pool opener, Union Texas Petroleum No. 1-3061 Sheen, finaled Aug. 5, 1976, for a calculated, absolute open flow of 3.512 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 6,559-6,600 feet.

John H. Hill of Austin plans to drill No. 1-C Wardlaw as a ¾-mile northeast outpost to the two-well Irion County part of the Wardlaw Three (5800 Wolfcamp) gas field, 22 miles north of Mertzon.

It has a projected depth of 6,000 feet, and spots 6,130 feet from south and 1,400 feet from east lines of R. Rodriguez survey 1803.

Extenders potential

Amoco Production Co. has finished two extenders in the Sutton County part of the Whitehead (Strawn) gas field.

No. 2-B W. H. Karnes, 2¼ miles south and slightly east extension on the southwest side of the field, 26 miles southwest of Sonora, finaled for a calculated, absolute open flow of 3.2 million cubic feet of dry gas per day.

Completion was effected through perforations at 9,365-9,674 feet, after a 4,000-gallons acid treatment and fracturing with 35,000 gallons and an unreported amount of sand.

It was scheduled to drill as as a wildcat.

Location is 1,296 feet from north and 1,097 feet from east lines of section 29, block G, GWT&P survey.

The firm's No. 1-C Jack W. Brown, a 1⅛-mile west extension, finaled for a calculated, absolute open flow of 185,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

It was completed through perforations at 8,839-8,990 feet, following a 3,500-gallon acid treatment on the pay zone.

It also was slated to drill as a wildcat, and spots 1,493 feet from north and 1,514 feet from east lines of Mrs. Catherine Anderson survey 11½, abstract 2, adjacent to the east side of sections 1 and 10, in block K, 18 miles west and slightly south of Sonora.

Three tapped for membership

AUSTIN — Two Midlanders and an Odessan were elected to The University of Texas at Austin chapter of Phi Beta Kappa at the end of the fall semseter.

Cynthia Sue Grosse of 3223 Apperson St. and John Peter Thurmond II of 2404 Seabord St. were elected, along with Roger Phillip Evans of Odessa.

Area students cited

LEVELLAND — The dean's honor list for the fall semester at South Plains College includes Lynn Kimbrow and Gretchen Wells, both of Midland, Robin Anderson of Odessa and Debra Kieschnick of O'Donnell.

Cleary has oil strike

Cleary Petroleum Corp., Midland, has completed its No. 1-74-A Cunningham-Davis as a San Andres oil strike in Gaines County, and has proposed field designation of Homann (San Andres).

The well had a 24-hour pumping potential of 101 barrels of oil, gravity not reported, plus 25 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio measuring 385-1.

Completion was through perforations at 5,314-5,406 feet, following a 100-gallon acid treatment.

Drilled to 5,500 feet, it has 512-inch casing set at 5,490 feet.

Wellsite is 853 feet from north and 990 feet from west lines of section 74, block G, WTRR survey, seven miles northeast of Seminole.

RRC funds to transfer

AUSTIN — The House Committee on Energy Resources Tuesday passed emergency legislation that would allow the Texas Railroad Commission to transfer $189,000 of its appropriated funds to its Gas Utilities Division.

Midland Rep. Tom Craddick joined the 10 other committee members in approving the measure and recommending it for passage by the entire House. The committee's action follows approval in the Senate, where it was introduced by Max Sherman of Amarillo.

Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace testified in favor of the proposal, saying the money is necessary for the commission's gas regulation functions until September, when the agency will know it it will retain its natural gas control duties. The Gas Utilities Division, he said, is staffed with "approximately five and one half human bodies," who are finding it hard to regulate gas utilities for the entire state.

"They're great people, but they're getting a little hollow-eyed," he said, adding that the money, if transferred, will be used to hire seven more staff members for rate control functions and five more for safety regulation.

Wallace also told the committee he will not lobby for or against recent proposals to transfer gas utility regulation to the Public Utility Commission. Rockdale Rep. Dan Kubiak, however, said mail from his district is "running 10 to one" in favor of that proposal.

Judge rules Florida pane can be kept

HALLANDALE, Fla. (AP) — A judge has decided a case he hopes will end a battle over a kitchen window.

Circuit Judge Jose Gonzalez Jr. refused to order Evelyn Mannes to remove a 26-inch window she had installed in her apartment at the Paradise Towers condominium.

Two other residents, Arthur Saypol and Edward Silver, filed a lawsuit, charging that Mrs. Mannes installed the window without approval of the apartment owners' association.

"Every time I walk down the street and see the window and a blank wall on the other side floors, it makes me sick," Saypol testified.

But Mrs. Mannes' husband, Murray, said the window was a necessity.

"The kichen there without a window is like a dark dungeon," he said. "I wanted some light. I wanted some air."

Saypol said Mrs. Mannes' window shook the development. "People weren't talking to one another. Some people made remarks about others," he said.

About 20 residents heard two days of arguments, before Gonzalez ruled Friday that Mrs. Mannes could keep her window.

Leadership course set

The Permian Basin Graduate Center will offer a course Saturday and Sunday on Leadership Skills for Administrators.

The course will be held at the West Texas Education Center, Pliska Drive, Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Classes will be from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. Saturday, and from 2 to 6 p. m. Sunday.

Dr. Jim Lewis, assistant director of planning and evaluation at the West Texas Education Center, will be the instructor.

The sourse uses a transactional analysis approach toward improving leadership proficiency. Techniques for improving self-perception and self-understanding will underscore the emphasized areas; interpersonal relationships, problem solving, decision making and methods for improving communications.

West Texas counties gain wildcat projects

Stonewall County drew two wildcat sites, and Fisher, one.

Patrick Petroleum Corp. of Michigan, operating from Midland, Tex., accounted for a 5,800-foot prospector in Stonewall, 2¼ miles northwest of Aspermont. It is No. 1 Holmes.

Drillsite is 1'650 feet from south and east lines of section 169, block D, H&TC survey, ¾ mile north of the Fuzz (Strawn) pool, but separated by a depleted producer.

I. W. Lovelady of Midland has scheduled No. 1 L. C. Young, scheduled 6,150-foot wildcat, and location north and slightly west offset to an undesignated Ellenburger oil discovery, eight miles southwest of Aspermont.

Location is 467 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 166, block 1, H&TC survey. Scheduled depth is 6,150 feet.

The discovery, Delray Oil, Inc. No. 1 L. C. Young, finaled Jan. 25 for 147 barrels of 41.3-gravity oil daily, through an 18-64-inch choke and from open hole at 6,082-6,124 feet.

Anadarko Production Co., Fort Worth, intends to drill No. 1 Bernard W. Neeper, a 5,400-foot venture in pisher, 12 miles south of Roby.

Location is 2,175 feet from south and 1,182 feet from west lines of section 6, block 21, T&P survey, two miles north of the Sweetwater (Canyon sand) field.

Howard pool oiler finals

WES-TEX Drilling Co., Abilene, completed No. 1 J. Hodnett as a location northwest extension to the Sara-Mag (Canyon reef) field of Northeast Howard County, two miles west of Vincent.

It had a 24-hour flowing potential of 50 barrels of 42-gravity oil, flowing through a 10-64-inch choke and open hole at 7,568-7,572 feet.

Location is 200 feet from south and 300 feet from east lines of section 13, block 25, H&TC survey.

Sun finals gas opener

Sun Oil Co. has completed its No. 1 C. D. Hopkins (formerly Sun No. 1 Jobe Investment Co.), as an Ellenburger gas strike in Edwards County, 13 miles northwest of Rocksprings and seven miles south of the Jack Mann (Pennsylvanian) gas field.

The calculated, absolute open flow was for 1.8 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, producing through perforations at 6,666-6,706 feet, following a 3,500-gallon acid treatment.

Top of the Ellenburger was picked at 6,666 feet, under ground elevation of 2,249 feet. Total depth of the well is 6,714 feet, with 4½-inch casing set on bottom.

Proposed field designation is Hopkins (Ellenburger).

Wellsite is 1,999 feet from north and 1,063 feet from east lines of section 31, block JRT, TCRR survey, abstract 1327.

Also, Mitchell Energy Corp. of Houston has staked site for a 1,200-foot wildcat, No. 2-5 Moody Ranch, eight miles northwest of Rocksprings in Edwards.

Drillsite is 1,150 feet from northeast and 1,000 feet from southeast lines of section 5, block A-10, TCRR survey, abstract 1288, a southwest offset to Sun No. 1 Ray A. Moody, a scheduled 6,300-foot venture.

DRY HOLES

HOCKLEY — Texland, Rector & Schumacher No. 1 J W Burger, wildcat, 660 feet from south and 1,320 feet from east lines of tract 9, league 26, McCulloch CSL survey, eight miles south of Levelland, td 6,729 feet.

MITCHELL — Dorchester Exploration, Inc. No. 1-A Spade, wildcat, 990 feet from south and east lines of section 33, block 18, SPRR survey, 25 miles southwest of Colorado City, td 7,575 feet.

REEVES — The Superior Oil Co. No. 1 El Paso-State, wildcat, 1,980 feet from north and 990 feet from east lines of section 40, block 58, T-7, T&P survey, 11 miles southwest of Toyah, td 11,737 feet.

SCHLEICHER — Tucker Drilling Co., Inc. No. 2-33 Page Brothers, in the Page, East field, 1,843 feet from south and 880 feet from east lines of section 33, block L, GH&SA survey, nine miles east of Eldorado, td 5,603 feet.

TERRY — Marshall R. Young No. 1 A. M. Brownfield, wildcat, 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 37, block O, H&OB survey, abstract 274, 10 miles southeast of Brownfield, td 5,175 feet.

Market mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, giving up on a weak early advance.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, ahead more than a point at the outset, was off 1.99 at 956.37 by noontime.

Gainers clung to a 5-4 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said Tuesday's technical rally, which pushed the Dow up 3.99 points, hadn't stirred up much enthusiasm.

They noted an inclination among traders to wait for weather developments to see how soon the cold-weather squeeze of the past several weeks might ease off.

Sony led the active list, up ¾ at 9⅛ on turnover of more than 400,000 shares. The company said it and two other major Japanese electronic firms developed a two-hour video cassette system to go on sale in Japan in April.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 commn stocks crept up .03 to 55.78. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .36 to 112.13.

Volume on the Big Board reached 11.08 million shares over the first two hours, against 9.63 million in the comparable period on Tuesday.

Milgo Electronic, subject of a continuing bidding war by two companies seeking to acquire it, rose 1 to 30¾ in

Cotton

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures were lower at midday

Continued speculative liquidation because of a lack of any price supporting news depressed futures prices, brokers sai.

The average price for strict low middling 1 1-16 inch spot cotton declined 101 points to 70.28 cents a pound Monday for the 10 leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

America turns to improving present homes

EDITOR'S NOTE: The American home is getting so expensive that the homeowner finds there is only one thing to do - put more money into the one you have. You can't afford anything else anyway. It's a boon to the home improvement trade and the local lumber yard.

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeature Writer

Few people, it seems, are satisfied with that "home, sweet home" they broke their backs to buy.

The result is a cacophony of hammers, saws, drills and delivery vans as Americans struggle to make the old homestead something it wasn't.

Americans spent more than $30 billion last year to improve their homes. It's clear contrast to the housing industry's depressed state, but the home improvement market has been going up for more than a decade.

After steady increases of $1 billion a year until 1974, it jumped from $18.5 billion to $21.1 billion - and last year leapt $5 billion.

How is this money being spent? Kitchens, bathrooms, basements and attics are being enclosed, walls paneled and floor tiled. Wall paper is being hung, paint spread and houses remodeled.

The transition from a reasonable annual increase, caused partly by inflation, to a marked surge occurred when many families began to be prived out of the housing market.

UU Randy Siefert, general counsel of the National Home Improvement Council, puts it this way: "If it didn't pay to sell the old house to buy a new one, partly because the profit on the former would be wiped out by the premium on the latter and partly because of the big difference in the mortgage interest rate, a family figured that it might as well make the old one a better place to live." A family that paid $25,000 for a house 10 or 15 years ago might find that its present market value is $50,000. If it purchases a new house for $50,000, thus avoiding a capital gains tax on the profit, it might have to settle for a smaller house without the improvements that had been made over the years. Even more important, its new mortgage interest rate would be in the neighborhood of 9 per cent, compared with a rate several points less on the old mortgage, thus increasing the size of the monthly payments. Also, those who choose to buy existing rather than new houses in most cases immediately begin to remold them to suit their own tastes. Siefert says the home improvement sales figures began to move sharply upward when the median price of a new house reached $42,000. The Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported on Oct. 19 last year that the average price of a new house had reached $50,500.

While you can get houses between $20,000 and $40,000 U of habitable area, not many people seem so inclined.

Nobody can be sure how many families are having home improvement work done by professionals and how many are doing it themselves. But one educated guess comes from NHIC executive vice president John Hammond:

"A few years ago, we figured that about 40 per cent of the improvement work was being done by do-it-yourselfers. From the rough figures we have at hand, that percentage now is at least 50 per cent, and the chances are that it will go even higher."

What's the most popular home improvement? Year after year, it's kitchen remodeling. Unless you are talking about adding a room or building a garage, that is about the most expensive type of remodeling there is. Assuming an average number of changes, including such things as new cabinets, counters, sinks, major appliances and the like, the cost can run over $5,000. You can save up to 40 per cent by doing the work yourself, depending on local labor costs.

Kitchen remodeling also tops the list of money projects, with $3.5 billion expected to be spent on it this year. Adding an extra room, next on the popularity list, will cost homen ishdlfowners $3.1 billion.

More than $1.5 billion will go for bathroom remodeling, $1.1 billion for finishing basements, $1.1 for enclosing porchs and breezeways and $1 billion for adding garages.

Films help spot animal diseases

HYATTSVILLE, Md. (AP) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is using photography to monitor more than 40 animal diseases foreign to the United States that could ravage our livestock and poultry if they were not discovered here and were allowed to spread unchecked.

The latest information on these diseases now is being actively maintained on (Kodak) microfilm, assisted by computerized index. The program is designed to get the facts out quickly so agriculture specialists can zero in on an animal disease outbreak as soon as it is reported.

Maintained here by the emergency programs unit of the Veterinary Services Division of the department's animal and plant health inspection service, the project's first task was to review all the known animal diseases existing in the world and devise a method of measuring their importance. Some 42 exotic animal diseases were selected and arranged in order of priority. All the articles available then had to be stored and catalogued.

Dr. John Atwell, acting director of the emergency program, says, "Few American farmers have had any direct contact with most of the diseases we track. Before we can control such a disease, we must know how it starts, spreads and at what rate. The more information we have swiftly available on microfilm, the better our chances of preventing disease entry, or containing and eradication it at reasonable cost."

Egypt's Communists far cry from Soviet variety

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The Egyptian Communist party is small and weak and operates underground, but observers here say it provided the government with a handy scapegoat for recent food riots.

Western sources say the party numbers fewer than 500 persons concentrated in intellectual, artistic and literary circles, with some influence among students but little or none with the huge working class.

By claiming the Communists were responsible for the rioting over price increases, later rescinded by President Sadat, the government may even have given the party more credibility than it had, some sources say.

"The people who call themselves Communists are playacting some fantasy of what they perceive abroad. There may be some guy named Ahmed out in the woods who is a real Communist organizing cells and all but the Cairo crowd is a joke."

A Soviet source agreed, describing the local Communits as people who profess Socialist principles but generally live a middle-class life style and have little contact with working people.

Thus a prominent Communist has a spacious apartment overlooking the Nile, wears tailored safari suits in summer, pours dry martinis for his guests and drives a Mercedes. He tells them he is using the tools of capitalism to accomplish his goals.

The party was reconstituted at a secret meeting in 1971 or 1972 after it became clear Egypt was looking to the West for political and economic help after more than a decade of reliance on the Soviet Union.

Initially, after the revolution in 1952 that overthrew King Farouk, Communist groups in Egypt, though banned, endorsed the new regime.

Khalid Mohieddin, one of the 11 original free officers of the Revolutionary Command Council, was known to be a Marxist or Marxist sympathizer. By late 1952, however, Communist support was withdrawn and many Communists were imprisoned as security risks.

One close friend and several acquaintances of Mohieddin's, among them journalists, were arrested in the wake of the rioting earlier this month.

In the view of many Egyptians and foreigners, the arrests of suspected Communists were "for the public to see." Few trials are expected. The government acted similarly after the 1975 riots and later freed so-called subversives.

When released, Egyptian Communists will continue their activities, observers believe.

Cougs get revenge over Tech in wild 94-87 win

By The Associated Press

Houston inflicted its revenge on Texas Tech Tuesday night in a Southwest Conference basketball game that resembled a cross between the Golden Gloves and a rugby scrum.

The victory kept Houston hot on the trail of league-leading Arkansas which must travel to The Summit Saturday night. Texas Tech will testify there are calmer places to spend an evening.

Arkansas hosts Southern Methodist tonight and a victory would make the 14th ranked Razorbacks 10-0 with a two game lead over the Cougars.

But back to the Bayou City where mysterious things were happening Tuesday night, including Rice's shocking 73-60 upset of the suddenly demoralized Baylor Bears.

Houston followed Otis Birdsong's 31 points to a 94-87 victory and sweet retribution for an overtime loss in Lubbock to Tech last week. However, the game was marred by a fist fight between Tech's Mike Edwards and Houston's Kenneth Williams that got ugly with both benches charging each other like the Light Brigade.

SPORTS

Edwards claimed Williams "came up behind me when I was about to shoot a free throw and flicked my ear with his finger...so I said something to him. And he said something to me.

"I hit him a couple of times and then he tackled me and that's when mike Schultz came in."

Houston's Schultz joined the punch out which emptied both benches into a giant pile at midcourt. Referees Paul Galvan and Dan Watson quickly went to work eventually evicting Edwards and Williams.

(See SWC boxes, page 7-C)

"Everbody is always yelling at the officials but give them credit for tonight...they did a good job of getting everybody under control," praised Tech Coach Gerald Myers.

Williams claimed the fight started because of a wild Edwards elbow.

Frank Thomas and Elbert Darden scored 22 and 20 points respectively as Rice won its second SWC game of the year.

In other action, the Texas Aggies extended their league record to 6-4 with a 76-69 victory over winless Texas Christian and Texas bounced Centenary 105-81 in a bizarre non-conference game.

Texas made a S-E-V-E-N point play in the second half as Centenary Coach Riley Wallace was ejected after receiving three technical fouls. Texas made seven of eight free throws resulting from the technicals and a personal foul for a 61-34 lead.

A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf said the SMU-Arkansas game tonight was critical because "If Arkansas beats SMU it gives us a chance to pass them." In fact, the Aggies jumped into a tie for third place when Tech lost.

And down in Austin, Texas Coach Abe Lemons was proud of Hank Bauerschlag's 15-point performance.

"He just kinda of rose up from the dead," said Lemons of the Texas reserve.

It was that kind of night.

Denny, Ennis spark Lee to easy 69-48 victory

By BOB DILLON
R-T Sports Writer

SAN ANGELO — Mike Denny and Billy Ray Ennis combined for 34 points Tuesday night to pace the Robert E. Lee Rebels to an easy 69-48 basketball victory over the San Angelo Central Bobcats.

Denny came down with 10 big rebounds and chipped in with 15 points, despite playing with the flu, while Ennis added 19 more to the Rebel attack.

While the Rebels were celebrating in their dressing room after the District 5-4A game, the tempo increased when they received the news that Abilene High had knocked off Odessa Permian, 76-74.

With the victory, Lee now shares first place in the second half of the race with Abilene Cooper and Abilene with all three owning 2-0 records.

Joining Denny and Ennis in the double figures for the Tall City outfit were Bobby Alexander and Mike Wallace with 10 each.

Top scorers for the Bobcats were Craig Brown and Brian Narvid with 12 and 10 points, respectively.

LEE TOOK an 18-11 first period lead and then increased it to 37-22 in at halftime. The score at the end of three periods of play was 55-34.

an 8-15 mark and is 0-2 in the second half of the 5-4A race.

The Rebels scored 19 points on the bright orange and blue Tartan floor in the second period with six players getting into the act and then outscored Central, 18-12 in the third period and that is when Coach Paul Stueckler started inserting substitutes.

It was a good win for the Rebs who had only won one time the the past four years in the Concho City and sets up a big showdown battle with Cooper's Cougars in the Lee Gymnasium Friday night.

Lee connected on 30 of 49 shots from the floor while Central hit 22 of 64 and that was the difference, that and a total of 14 turnovers that the Rebel full-court press led the Bobcats into numerous errors.

Neither team burned up the gym at the free throw lane with Lee hitting nine of 16 charity tosses and Central four of nine.

LEE DIDN'T have it quite that easy in the preliminary junior varsity battle, dropping a disappointing 65-62 decision to the junior Bobcats, a team

Warbirds in upset over Mojo

Abilene High's Eagles knocked off Odessa Permian, 76-74 and Abilene Cooper whipped Odessa, 68-37, Tuesday night in District 5-4A basketball action.

David Little gunned in 24 points to pace the Warbirds to their big upset victory and was backed up by Cisco Smith who also tallied 24. Byron Roberts tallied 16 more to give Abilene a 16-12 season record and a 2-0 reading in the second half of the loop race.

Permian was led by Stan Strifler's 30 points, but it wasn't enough. Tom McLemore added 14 more to in Mojo's attack while Don Gray gunned in 20. Huey Chancellor and Jeff Perry were also in the double figures for Permian with 11 and 10 points.

The Panthers are now 20-6 on the year and 1-1 in the second half of play.

Dennis Bradford and Tim Orr led the Cougars to their rout of hapless OHS. Bradford scored 19 and Orr 15 to give Cooper a 22-6 and 2-0 record while OHS is now 7-21 and 0-2.

Big gun for the Bronchos was Mike White with 10 points as he was the only Odessa player in the double figures.

Purple Pack nabs 62-54 triumph over Big Spring

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

Strategy is a very unstable product for the men of the coaching ranks. If it works they're heroes. But if it doesn't, they tend to rank just above yesterday's garbage in the minds of their "dedicated" critics.

Tuesday night, Midland High cage mentor Don Humphrey rated hero status as his little piece of strategem did pay off and the Bulldogs rode it to a 62-54 conquest of Big Spring at the MHS gymnasium.

The win evened the Pack's second half district record at 1-1, and vaulted them right back into the 5-4A title picture. The Steers dropped to 0-2.

Humphrey's golden touch of genius was keeping sophomore wingman Walter Bryson out of the starting lineup Tuesday, and utilizing him as Midland's sixth man — al la John Havlichek and the Boston Celtics of the 1960s. All the 5-foot-11 Bryson did was come off the bench in the second half, break open a close game and finish the evening with 16 points, only three under the team leading total of 19 by Craig Dunn. Not bad for half a night's work.

"Walter certainly has the ability to start for us," admitted a very elated Humphrey after the win. "But he plays much better coming off the bench like he did tonight. He was fresh when he went in there and gave us the lift we needed just at the right time."

THE RIGHT time turned out to be the waning minutes of the second period, after the Bulldogs had blown an advantage over the Steers that stood at nine points during the course of the first quarter.

Bryson entered stage right just after Big Spring's Kenneth Perry dribbled the length of the floor for a basket that put the Steers out in front 24-21 with 2:15 remaining until intermission.

Less than a minute later, he was off and running. The first thing he did was spot Dunn open underneath for an easy basket that cut the deficit to one.

A basket by Casey Wilder, who finished as the Steers' high point man with 14 put the visitors back up by three, but Midland postman James Hicks connected inside, and Bryson, with the smoothness of a high school Earl "the Pear" danced through the lane for a duece and was fouled with 16 seconds left. He made the bonus to put the Pack in front again, and only a basket by Wilder with four seconds showing knotted the game at 28.

Humphrey didn't wait for the "right time" in the second half. When the teams lined up for the tip off, Bryson was on the floor, and Big Spring's number was about to come up—compliments of Walter.

He canned a 15-footer at the seven minute mark to give the Bulldogs a 30-28 advantage, and Big Spring would never hold the upper hand again, although they did manage to tie the contest on three occasions in the third quarter.

Bryson's play seemed to inspire the rest of his teammates in the vesper half, and the mistakes and turnovers that caused their demise in the first two quarters were suddenly few and far between.

Bryson had four points and Dunn six in the third quarter as Midland turned a 38-38 deadlock into a 42-38 advantage with eight minutes to play. Two of Dunn's baskets were via Bryson assists, and Brentley Jackson's score at the 1:10 mark of the quarter that gave the Pack its four point bulge also came Bryson delivered.

The Pack ran into some early difficulties in the first minute and a half of the final quarter, as consecutive baskets by Big Spring's speedy little guard Steve Evans and Wilder tied the game at 44, with 6:40 left.

But Hicks fed off to Dunn seconds later for a quick score, and then Bryson went into his act.

He pulled up short on a drive with 5:40 left, flipped the ball off the back-

Stanton trips Plains, 74-62

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
R-T Sports Writer

STANTON—What started out to be a District 5-A hard court laugher for the Stanton Buffaloes here Tuesday night turned out to be a 74-62 smiler over the Plains Cowboys.

Stanton, who is now 23-4 on the year and 1-0 in the second half 5-A cage chase, rolled to an awesome 21-point lead with 6:11 still left in the third period. The near capacity crowd was laughing a bit by this time.

That was before Plains pulled off a full court press that had the Buffs making mistakes at both ends of the court. By the end of the frame, Plains had cut the margin to 51-43, a mere eight-point margin.

STANTON FOUGHT back to take a 65-53 lead in the final period, but Plains scored eight unanswered points to cut the margin to six at 65-59 with 2:21 left in the game.

It wasn't until Stanton's leading scorer, Tim Glynn, responded with a free throw and two quick layups to bring back the smiles—the laughter was gone. Glynn's 26 points kept the Buffs from dropping a key contest.

The first time the two teams met this year, Plains won a four overtime thriller and kept Stanton from winning the first half outright. In fact, the first half ended with a three-way tie with Seagraves earning the other third.

Most Stanton followers felt this contest was a must, and if it was, then the Buffs could come away with the championship since they host Seagraves Tuesday in another must outing.

THE BUFFS jumped to a big 17-6 lead in the first period, displaying a zone defense that had Plains wish shooting from the outside.

Doug McCalister and Glynn dominated the boards with rebounds and awesome blocked shots. They also combined for 12 of the 17 points in the first period and nine of the 20 in the second period.

The quick head knocking underneath, however, took its toll and McCalister played most of the game in foul trouble. He ended up with 11 points, sitting on the bench nearly all of the second half. Tommy Morrow took up some slack with 11 points and reserve Terry Smith scored eight of his nine in the third period when the Buffs were about to sink. Smith's play proved to be a big factor, and kept Plains from catching up.

PLAINS' DANNY Bell led all scorers with 28 points, and 21 of them came in the second half when the Cowboys made a move at the Buffs. Kenny Altman and Johnny Willis each had 12 points. Bell's 12 points in the third period accounted for most of Plains' 25 points, the biggest surge of the night for the Cowboys.

In the girl's contest, it was nothing but a laugher as Stanton rolled to a 96-21 win over Plains. Stanton, who won the first half and stands 2-0 in the second half and 22-4 on the year, is almost shoe-in for the district crown.

As they say in the trade, it could have been worse. Stanton went into a stall with 2:22 left in the game and kept the score below 100.

THREE STANTON lasses scored more than 20 points. Bonnie Bludworth led the way with 26 while Loretta Young pumped in 24. Vickie Christon had 20 and Raye Jones came off the bench with 13. Stanton scored only one point in the last 2:22 of the game.

Reagan County wins 9-A championship

The Reagan County Owls became the first area team to win a district championship when they won the District 9-A crown Tuesday night with a 51-39 win over Wall's Hawks.

The Owls own a 21-5 season mark and a perfect 10-0 district reading with only two games left to play. The Owls will meet the winner of District 10-A in the bi-district playoffs. That loop is still undecided, but DeLeon won the first half.

Reagan County had a balanced attack as guard Mitch Kiser led the charge with 12 points and Jennings Teel had 10. Jim Moore added eight and Don Thompson had seven. Reggie Whittley had 11 points for Wall.

The Reagan County girls dropped a 49-34 decision to Wall as Pat Neihues scored 31 points for the Hawks. Jill Schneemann had 19 points for Reagan County. The Reagan County girls are 21-7 on the year and 5-5 in loop action.

In other 9-A boys action, Robert Lee upset Eldorado, 75-73, and Junction slipped past Mason, 49-46.

The Greenwood Rangers are still alive and kicking in the District 10-B second half chase after a 56-48 win over first half champ Forsan Tuesday. Somebody will still have to beat Forsan in the second half to keep the Rangers in it, however. There is a four-way tie for the second half at this date with Water Valley and Garden City owning 2-1 marks along with Greenwood and Forsan.

Russell Brooks led all scorers with 22 points for the Rangers and Rayme Williams added 13. Randy Cregar scored 16 points for Forsan.

The Greenwood girls all but wrapped up the 10-B title with a 57-4 win over Forsan. Garden City, Forsan and Greenwood all tied for the first half, but Greenwood owns victories over both teams in the second half. Cindy Brewer had 41 points for Greenwood and Rusann Ratliff scored 12.

In District 6-A action, McCamey dropped a 59-55 decision to Van Horn and Rankin lost to Marfa, 76-50.

Van Horn's Gilbert Sanchez pumped in 15 points to lead the way while Raul Serraneo scored 12 points. McCamey was led by Cesar Garcia's 15 points while Bobby Acosta and Servando Carrasco each had 10 markers. McCamey now has a 2-6 overall district mark, and is 0-3 in the second half. Don Trowbridge had 12 points for McCamey.

The McCamey girls, however, maintained the lead in the loop chase with a 61-32 victory over Van Horn. McCamey is 6-1 in loop action. Lisa Steward led the way with 25 points and Emma Deanda managed 18.

Marfa's Manny Sanchez pumped in 24 points to lead the Shorthorns over Rankin. Gary Latham led the Red Devils with 12 points while Randy Golson and Michael Dupriest each had 11 points.

Marfa is 19-3 on the season and 3-1 in the second half action. Rankin fell to 7-15 and 0-4.

The Andrews Mustangs opened the second half District 2-AAA race with an 84-77 loss to Pecos despite three players scoring over 20 points. Jimmy Beck had 26 points while Weldon Jones added 21 and Lance McCain 20. The thorn, however, was Pecos' Linvell Mosby with 46 points.

In other 2-AAA action, Seminole upset Fort Stockton, 58-48 and first half champ Odessa Ector ran over Monahans, 107-61.

Borg wins

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Top-seeded Bjorn Borg needed three sets Tuesday night to edge past unseeded Henry Bunis 7-6, 5-7, 6-2 in the first round of a $50,000 tennis tournament at Burns Park.

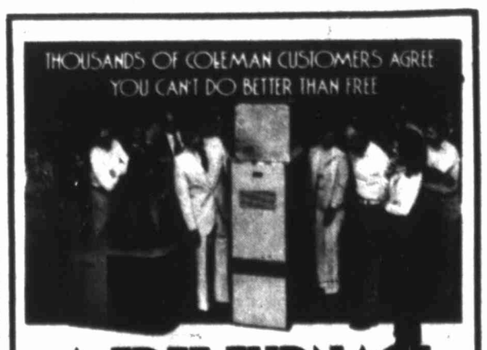

Bunis, a 21-year-old out of Columbia University, took a quick 3-love lead.

Upsets dot net play in Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — Half the seeded players were upset in first-round matches at a $100,000 women's tennis tournament.

Scrappy Rosie Casals of Sausalito, Calif., upset fourthrated Wendy Turnbull of Australia 6-4, 6-4, after Olga Morozova, ranked No. 1 in the Soviet Union, surprised seventh-seeded Francoise Durr of Phoenix 6-3, 6-2 Tuesday night.

Earlier, Marcie Louie of San Francisco beat the No. 5 seed, Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia, 1-6, 7-6, 6-3. Monday, eight-seeded Carrie Meyer of Indianapolis lost to Pam Teeguarden of Los Angeles.

Bowl drop off could spur interest in grid playoffs

BY TED BATTLES

Bad news for the college football bowl games New Year's Day may eventually be good news for college football fans, who have longed without any real hope for a post-season playoff similar to those conducted in basketball, baseball and just about any other intercollegiate sport you can think of.

For years there has been talk about the possibility of a playoff system, but one of the biggest stumbling blocks has been the bowl games, money-making traditionals with which colleges have been extremely reluctant to tinker. And they really can't be blamed, We suppose.

BUT WITH TV pulling the strings on the pairings, some of the attractions have been less than appealing. Match ups are in many cases dictated by TV interests catering to the large eastern block of viewers, i.e., Pittsburgh-Georgia, Houston-Maryland and even Texas A&M-Florida in the Sun Bowl. The Sun sponsors wanted Oklahoma, instead of Florida, and while the Aggie-Gator game was a sellout, it didn't hold the TV viewer's interest for very long.

Sometimes TV dictated matches work out. Sometimes they don't.

ACCORDING TO recently released Nielsen figures, the bowl games suffered a dramatic fall off in viewers both live and living room.

The Rose Bowl slumped from 30.6 to 25.9, the Cotton from 25.4 to 18.3, the Orange 27.8 to 21.3. At the same time, ratings for regular season college games were the highest they had been since 1968.

"These (regular season) TV ratings show the dramatic evidence of the attractiveness and appeal of college football," says Seaver Peters of the NCAA Television Committee chairman.

What the bowl games suggest is that fans won't blindly buy meaningless post-season extravaganzas any more. Pittsburgh walloped Georgia, which quickly erased the national championship.

WHILE MICHIGAN and USC were heralding the Rose Bowl game as a national championship match, Pittsburgh took the wind of their sails by destroying Georgia in the Sugar Bowl earlier in the day.

More trouble looms for the bowl games this season when the National Football League moves its playoffs to "big bowl" weekend, fighting the colleges for viewer interest.

As long as the bowls were profitable at the gate and lured big unseen audiences to their TV screens, the post-season playoffs were something people talked about, but no one really wanted to do anything about.

IF THIS year's drop off in bowl interest was not a result of dreary weather and poor matchups, a groundswell of support may develop for a playoff, using the bowls as sites of preliminary games and then perhaps rotating the championship game each year with one of the present four major bowls alternating as host.

Next year's conflict with the pros may just hasten that decision.

LOOSE BALL seems to be giving Midland's Steve Brittain, 12, and Big Spring's Ken Perry a difficult time during District 5-4A basketball game in MHS Gym Tuesday night.

Sloan speaks at Lee fete

Steve Sloan, head football coach at Texas Tech will be the guest speaker at the annual Robert E. Lee Rebel football banquet Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Lee Cafeteria.

Sloan led the Red Raiders to a 10-2 record which included a co-championship with the University of Houston in the Southwest Conference.

Tech lost to Houston and to Nebraska in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl in Houston.

The banquet is to honor the 1976 Rebel football team which won the District 5-4A championship, defeated Euless Trinity in bi-district before bowing to Arlington Sam Houston in regional action.

RHCC scramble

The Ranchland Hills Country Club will stage a mixed foursome scramble on Feburary 26, at the RHCC course.

All players interested in signing up for the event should do so by Friday, Feb. 4 at the RHCC pro shop, or call E.O. Smith at 682-6012.

board for a pair, and turned it into a three-point play when he was fouled. That gave Midland a 49-44 advantage, but Bryson was far from finished.

Less than 30 seconds later, he drove the lane again to increase his team's lead to seven, their biggest bulge since midway through the first period.

Evans and Wilder teamed up for another pair of scores to cut into the Bulldog lead, but Dunn answered with a basket out of Humphrey's spread offense at the 4:03 mark, and Bryson followed up with a pair of free throws.

The Steers switched from their 2-3 zone to a man-forman defense at the three ninute mark as Midland played deliberately, holding onto their lead, and the result was another basket by Dunn with 1:50 left, to give the Pack an insurmountable 57-50 lead.

"It's seasoning is what it is," Humphrey said after the win. These kids are just starting to put it all together now. I really believe we can make a legitimate run at the second half title."

Chaps set swim meet

When the University of Texas unexpectedly cancelled its plans to compete in Midland against the Midland College swim teams, MC coach Steve Montgomery quickly found a more than adequate substitute meet.

This weekend, Montgomery will have his men's team at the University of Arizona Invitational in Tucson, competing against some of the finest individuals and teams in the nation.

A tightened budget forced the University of Texas to cancel its plans to compete in Midland on Feb. 12, but the Longhorns will swim against Texas Tech in Lubbock that weekend. Both the UT coach and Montgomery asked Texas Tech to include Midland in the event, but the Red Raiders declined to invite the Chaparrals.

"We were fortunate to find another meet and particularly one of this caliber on so short a notice," Montgomery said. "But this will allow our men to get some world-class competition before going to the junior college nationals Feb. 21-27 in Detroit."

Among the schools entered in the Arizona meet are Long Beach State, San Diego State, University of New Mexico, New Mexico State, Brigham Young and Arizona State in addition to Midland and host Arizona.

The Long Beach State team is led by Tim Shaw, an Olympic competitor who won five gold medals in the last Pan American games. The University of Arizona squad includes Rick Demont, who won a gold medal in the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich, only to be disqualified for taking improper asthma medicine.

that Lee had beaten handily in Midland earlier in the season.

The Rebs had a chance to tie it late in the game when Mike Richard hit the first of a one-and-one, but misfired on the second attempt, making it 61-60 in favor of Central.

Joe Garner's shot rimmed out right at the very end that would have given Lee a 62-61 lead and then Darrell Pearson, a transfer from San Antonio, hit three free throws to ice the game.

David Stueckler and Mike McGaha had 10 points each for Lee while Pearson poured in 27 points. Teammates Rene DeLeon and Oliver Bell added 14 and 11 each.

Montreal blasts Barons

By The Associated Press

The team's owners could not meet their payroll ...but the Cleveland Barons got paid in full by the Montreal Canadiens Tuesday night.

However, seven goals—which is what Montreal got in trouncing the Barons 7-3—will not put any groceries on the table. The Cleveland owners were to meet today with National Hockey League officials to try and keep the floundering Barons afloat for the rest of the season.

"You have to get up for the game," said left winger Al MacAdam, "but once you get out on the ice you put it—the financial problem—in the back of your mind. But ..."

In other NHL action, the Boston Bruins and St. Louis Blues skated to a 3-3 tie, the New York Islanders whipped the Buffalo Sabres 6-3 and the Colorado Rockies downed the New York Rangers 5-2.

Montreal's high-scoring line of Guy Lafleur, Steve Shutt and Jacques Lemaire accounted for four goals as the Canadiens extended their unbeaten string to seven games. Montreal took a 2-0 lead as Lafleur scored his 38th goal and Shutt got his 40th goal, but the Canadiens did not take command until the third period on goals by Yvan Cournoyer, Murray Wilson and Shutt.

"The timing seems to be always off around here," sighed Cleveland defenseman Mike Christie. "Everything that's happening ...and we play Montreal."

Bruins 3, Blues 3

Boston's Bobby Schmautz scored the tying goal from a pile-up in front of the net with 1:31 to go. The outcome gave the Bruins a four-point lead over Buffalo in the Adams Division while St. Louis stretched its lead to three points over runner-up Chicago in the Smythe Division.

Schmautz' goal came after the Blues rallied for a 3-2 lead on goals by Garry Unger and Bob MacMillan. The Bruins managed the tie despite the absence of forwards Johnny Bucyk, Terry O'Reilly and Wayne Cashman.

"Any time you're missing those three and can come up with a point, you're doing okay," said Coach Don Cherry.

Islanders 6, Sabres 3

Bryan Trottier and Lorne Henning scored two goals apiece as the Islanders ended a three-game losing streak. The teams were tied 2-2 when Pat Price's 30-foot power play slap shot deflected off Buffalo defenseman Jocelyn Guevremont past goalie Gerry Desjardins, putting the Islanders in front to stay. Trottier added two thirdperiod goals.

"You don't turn it around by saying, 'It's the law of averages that we're going to win some time.' You have to do more than just talk about it," said Islanders defenseman Gerry Hart. "We had to increase our pursuit, improve our forechecking."

Rockies 5, Rangers 2

Dave Hudson had two assists and scored what proved to be the winning goal in the first period, helping support a strong goaltending performance by Michel Plasse, who stopped 48 of the Rangers' 50 shots. Barry Dean, Nelson Pyatt and Hudson got first-period scores for Colorado.

"It was a one-man show out there," Coach Johnny Wilson said of Plasse's performance. "What a spectacular effort. We're going to have to find the biggest medal we can and pin it on him for the way he played tonight."

9th grade cage tournament has 16-field entry

Former NY player dies

WINSTED, Conn. (AP) — Robert A. Nash, 84, the first captain of the New York Giants professional football team, died Tuesday in a convalescent home.

Nash, a native of Westmeath, Ireland, moved to Bernardsville, N.J. in 1896. He lived in Plainfield, N.J., for more than 20 years before moving to Colebrook, Conn., in 1958. He moved to Winsted several years ago.

After graduating from Rutgers University in 1918 Nash played pro football in the Albany.

Shipp inks with Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — Ken Shipp has seen it happen before. A pro football team starts going bad offensively and the fans take out all their frustrations on the quarterback.

Shipp, a veteran pro assistant coach, has signed on as offensive coordinator of the Houston Oilers in hopes of rebuilding the Oilers' sagging offense, one of the worst in the National Football League last year in a disappointing 5-9 campaign.

Shipp, hopes he can soon start picking up the Oilers.

Fights to return to Friday night

NEW YORK (AP) — Hank Schwartz, who has had a taste of the fight game on the "big money" level of Muhammad Ali, and Don Elbaum, a promoter who on three occasions has fought on his own cards because boxers failed to show, are bringing back Friday night fights with a familiar sound and some twists.

The familiar sound when a series of 25 Friday night fights, to be called the World Television Championships, begin in Philadelphia March 11 will be Don Dunphy, who has broadcast thousands of fights.

The twists will be the disclosure of the scoring after each round to the television audience and to the live crowds where commissions allow, fights in a super heavyweight division and an extra round if a fight is a draw. The latter idea also could run into trouble in some areas.

"It's Don's idea," Schwartz said. "Don brought me a concept and I shaped it into what I feel is a good television concept. It's up to Don to make it a good boxing concept."

Elbaum will serve as matchmaker while Schwartz, a key man in the closed-circuit telecasts of several Ali fights, will promote as president of World Television Champions, Inc.

"The major hook we have with boxing is to develop new talent who can test their mettle against veterans," said Schwartz.

The 25-week series, which will be a tournament in five weight divisions, will originate from various cities and will be televised in at last 31 cities at the start, including New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and Boston. Schwartz said the shows will begin at 10:30 p.m. and will be showed live by some stations and on a delayed basis by others.

Watson is ready for play in Hawaii Open

HONOLULU (AP) — There are some brand-new additions to the swelling corps of Tom Watson well-wishers.

He's rapidly becoming one of the game's great drawing cards. His small-boy appearance—red hair and freckles— the sense of joy he communicates to the gallery, his snowballing success have made him perhaps the most popular of game's young stars.

They sell them.

They're the sponsors of next week's Bob Hope Desert Classic. No one is pulling harder for Watson to score a third consecutive triumph this week in the Hawaiian Open. Their rooting interest is very understandable.

If he wins again, he'll play in the Hope.

If he doesn't win the Hawaiian Open, he'll skip the Hope.

"Originally, I hadn't planned on playing the Hope," said Watson, who has finished fourth, first and first in his last three starts—Tucson, the Bing Crosby and San Diego.

"But as long as I'm winning, I'll keep on playing. I'll ride the wave as long as it lasts. And the wave is still rolling along, a big ol' 25-footer."

And while Watson hasn't won in Hawaii, he's played very, very well on the palm-studded, 7,217-yard, par-72 Waialae Country Club course, site of the $240,000 event that gets underway Thursday.

He first attracted national attention in the televised 1973 Hawaiian Open when he led through the first three days then blew to a 75 in the last round and finished third. The happy Hawaiians immediately made him their own and, ever since, have called him "The Kid."

He finished ninth the next year, 14th the next and had a spot among the leaders until shooting a third-round 77 last season.

"One bad round has kept me out a couple of times in Hawaii," he said. It was just such an occurance—one bad round, sometimes one bad hole—that kept him away from a number of earlier victories. That situation—his unfortunate habit of catching a double bogey at precisely the wrong time—has been corrected in his recent string.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by ABC-TV.

Nevada-Las Vegas pulls out victory

By The Associated Press

"Bradley played us off our feet," Nevada-Las Vegas Coach Jerry Tarkanian noted. But the Rebels managed to land right side up against the upset-minded Braves.

Fourth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas survived the scare by Bradley and recorded a 107-106 victory at Peoria, Ill. in the top college basketball game in the nation Tuesday night. The victory was the Rebels 17th against one loss.

"Bradley played a great game," Tarkanian added, after Robert Smith's two free throws with five seconds left offset a 46-point output by Bradley's Roger Phegley. "We got nine up and I thought we were going to blow them out, but they came back.

"We had nobody who could guard Phegley. I didn't believe he could do that to us."

The Rebels were led by Eddie Owens' 31 points, while the 7-12 Braves also got 26 points from Bobby Humbles.

In other games involving Top 20 teams, No. 11 Tennessee ripped Georgia 106-82 and remained undefeated in Southeastern Conference play, 15th-ranked Providence beat St. Bonaventure 82-75, and Clemson squeaked past North Carolina State 60-59 after losing star center Wayne "Tree" Rollins beecause of a leg injury.

Elsewhere, Notre Dame topped Dayton 97-64, West Virginia upset Virginia Tech 86-78, Houston defeated Texas Tech 94-87 in a fight-marred contest and bad weather in the Buffalo area forced cancellation of Buffalo State-Niagara and Canisius-Buffalo.

Tennessee appeared to have recovered from its rout by UCLA Sunday. Ernie Grunfeld scored 32 points and SEC scoring leader Bernard King added 26 for the Vols, who are 9-0 in the conference and 15-3 overall.

Bruce Campbell tallied 22 points and Joe Hassett 16 as Providence improved its record to 17-2 with its victory over St. Bonaventure.

Jim Wells replaced the injured Rollins early in the second half for Clemson, scored 18 points and grabbed 12 rebounds, leading a furious Tigers comeback. He scored 14 of the last 26 Clemson points, including a tip-in that put the Tigers head 58-57 with 58 seconds left. Colon Abraham hit two free throws with nine seconds remaining, for the decisive points.

After the Wolfpack's Clyde Austin scored an uncontested layup with three seconds to go, N.C. State stole Clemson's inbounds pass, but Kenny Carr's shot went through the basket after time had expired.

"I couldn't be more pleased," Clemson Coach Bill Foster said afterward. "I think we showed a lot of poise by not trying to go out there and make up a lot of points at once."

Notre Dame took charge against Dayton in the first half, hitting 25 of 38 field goals and building a 60-33 lead. Bruce Flowers paced the 11-5 Irish with 20 points.

West Virginia surprised Virginia Tech on the loser's court, shooting 59.2 per cent from the floor. The Mountaineers broke open the game at the start of the second half with a 10-2 burst.

Houston's Kenneth Williams and Tech's Mike Edwards exchanged blows as Williams readied to shoot a free throw.

"He came up behind me when I was about to shoot a free throw and flicked my ear with his finger," Edwards said. "So I said something to him and he said something to me.

"I hit him a couple of times and then he tackled me."

At that point, Houston's Mike Schultz joined the fray and both benches emptied. Edwards and Williams were ejected from the game.

OU is undecided on court ruling

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A spokesman for the University of Oklahoma said Tuesday no decision will be made on whether to appeal a court ruling to force the university to cut its football coaching staff until the regents meet Feb. 10.

J.R. Morris, an OU vice president, said an immediate decision is impossible because school officials and lawyers have not had a chance to review a 6-3 ruling by the Oklahoma Supreme Court that the National Collegiate Athletic Association acted within its authority in passing a rule to limit staff size.

The rule in question that limits the number of fulltime assistant football coaches to eight is not a restraint of trade, the court held.

The court's ruling overturned a lower court injunction that prevented the NCAA from enforcing the rule.

"We are naturally disappointed in the decision," Morris said, "but if it is determined that no further legal action should be pursued, then we will take immediate steps to be in compliance with the NCAA rule."

OU currently has 10 fulltime assistant coaches. Assistants Don Jimerson and Bill Shimek filed the suit, contending they would be forced out of their jobs unless the NCAA ruling was overturned.

Two former OU assistant coaches, Jim Helms and Steve Barrett, were parties to the original suit, but they accepted jobs with other schools before the high court made its ruling.

The majority opinion, written by Chief Justice Ralph Hodges, said the Supreme Court had concluded the NCAA has the power to enact reasonable rules and regulations to govern activities of its members.

Hodges said the court had found the rule "is not an unreasonable restraint on trade.

"Rather, the evidence reflects that the avowed purpose of the bylaw is to foster, promote and maintain competition between Division I schools rather than to impede, suppress or destroy competition."

Hodges concluded that it is "eminently reasonable for the NCAA to concern itself with the rising costs of amateur athletics, particularly in the field of football."

Justices Robert Lavender, Denver Davison, Ben Williams, Pat Irwin and John Doolin concurred in the majority opinion.

Justice Don Barnes, in a dissenting opinion, said the rule's "only purpose seems to be to discourage competition and excellence in Division I for economic reasons."

Justices William Berry and Robert Simms also dissented.

Astros sign four players

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros have reduced their unsigned list to 10 players but a couple of big names remain outside the fold-catcher Joe Ferguson and pitcher J.R. Richard.

Astros President and General Manager Tal Smith announced the signing tuesday of four more players, pitchers Gilbert Rondon and Mike Cosgrove, catcher Ed Herrmann and second baseman Larry Milbourne.

Smith also says there aren't any serious contract disputes with any of the unsigned Astros.

"We started sooner than many of the other clubs so we are farther ahead than they are," Smith said. "We're talked to Joe's agent and we're made progress. But when you're talking about a multi-year contract, it takes longer to work out the details."

Ferguson came to the Astros during an off-season trade that sent veteran Astro pitcher Larry Dierker to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Smith said Richard, who last year became the second pitcher in the team's history to win 20 games, has an agent who does not live in Houston. "We just haven't been able to talk with him enough yet," Smith explained.

Cosgrove and Rondon were among a group of young pitchers who showed promise for the Astros last season. Cosgrove finished with a 3-4 record and Rondon had a 2-2 record.

Herrmann came to the Astros in a trade from California and finished the season as Houston's regular catcher but Ferguson is scheduled to replace him this season.

Nets send Williamson to Pacers in trade

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — John Williamson has been granted his wish.

The New York Nets barely beat the National Basketball Association's midnight trading deadline when they shipped the unhappy Williamson to Indiana for the Pacers' No. 1 choice in the 1977 collegiate draft, plus future considerations.

Williamson, the Nets' leading scorer with an average of 20.8 points per game, chipped a bone in the little finger of his left hand Jan. 5 and has seen little action since then. He has not been happy on the bench, and has repeatedly asked to be traded.

"This was in the works for some time," said Nets Coach Kevin Loughery, after the deal was announced Tuesday night.

"It's a very good opportunity for John," said Loughery, who always has admired Williamson's competitiveness. "He's going to a team where he will be able to fit in well. He can play alongside Don Buse, who is a good passer and who on defense can pick up the tough guards.

"From our standpoint, it was a good opportunity to get back into the draft. We're going through a rebuilding program, and this will show the fans we're trying to build a winner."

The Nets did not have a firstround draft choice, having given it up to Kansas City in the deal which brought Tiny Archibald to New York.

The Pacers felt they could live without their No. 1 pick.

"It doesn't look like we're going to get a very high draft choice this year," explained Pacers Coach Bobby Leonard.

Stadium is hit by fire

DETROIT (AP) — The house that Ty Cobb built still is creaking, groaning—and standing.

But its charred third deck stands as an ugly reminder that ancient Tiger Stadium is on its last legs.

John Fetzer's renovation priorities will have to be changed now after a two-alarm fire Tuesday night virtually destroyed the stadium's press box. It also ruined some of the auxiliary press level, which occasionally is used for spectators.

Cause of the blaze has not been determined. There were no injuries, according to Philip Gorak, deputy commissioner of the Detroit Fire Department. Stadium manager Ralph Snyder said he could not give a financial estimate of the damage.

The stadium, parts of which have been standing since 1912, is thee home of baseball's Detroit Tigers. Both the team and stadium are owned by John Fetzer, a millionaire broadcast executive.

"A man driving down the street turned in the alarm," said teen-ager Derman Brown. "He drove right over the curb, jumped out of his car and pulled the alarm."

Within two hours, firefighters, working in bitter cold with a wind-chill factor of nine degrees, had doused the blaze. Police blocked streets in the area, which is about a mile from downtown Detroit.

Gorak said 12 companies were involved, with about 45 firefighters and a dozen pieces of equipment on the scene. He said there was no structural damage and no danger of the burned third deck collapsing into the second deck stands.

"I'm just worried about my lights," said Jim Campbell, Tigers general manager.

The first part of an extensive seven-to-10 year renovation project was the installation of mercury vapor lamps and supporting equipment. Work began in October and was completed recently.

It did not appear that any of the new lighting structures were seriously damaged.

Campbell, standing on the baseball infield in a foot of snow, tried to joke about the disaster he was witnessing. "The only thing is we might not have the press here," he said with a laugh. "Wouldn't that be great?"

He said the damage would not affect the season home opener, April 7, against Kansas City.

Plastic shields family from cold

WAHKON, Minn. (AP) — David and Lois Bassett and their three children are snug and warm, even though several layers of plastic sheeting are all that separate them from temperatures as cold as 48 below zero.

The Bassett family is spending one of the coldest Minnesota winters on record in a shelter made of tree branches covered with polyethylene sheets.

Bassett, 25, said the winter weather scared the family a little, but they wanted to get onto their own land so he built the shelter near Mille Lacs Lake in central Minnesota in November.

It took two days to build the shelter and install a metal heating stove so Mrs. Bassett, 23, and the children — April, 5; Nathan, 1½, and Benjamin, 3 months — could move in.

The house was built by bending over tree branches to form the outline and support for it. The house has a wood back and front and see-through plastic sides. No windows were needed, but there is a vent at the top for a stovepipe and a little air for ventilation does get in because the plastic is not sealed tightly.

The wood used to warm the shelter and for cooking is scrap left by a logging company which formerly owned the land. During the day, the sun helps warm the shelter, and Bassett said one log will keep the home warm. At night it takes a little more.

"I have seen frost on the door hinges," he said.

The Bassett's home is an extension of an idea that more and more owners of conventional homes have been using to seal drafty windows in the wintertime. The Federal Energy Administration, in fact, says covering windows with plastic creates cheap and effective storm windows. The plastic is usually installed inside the house, rather than on the outside.

Visitors who step through the wooden door of the Bassett's plastic shelter know they've stepped into a home, however unconventional. There are wood floors that are washed weekly, a cook stove, a table and chairs, a bed for Bassett and his wife, a pull-down bunk for the two older children and a basket for the baby. The house has two big rooms, but only one is being used right now.

The Bassetts also have an Aframe outhouse and a well.

A big metal washtub keeps clothing and the Bassetts clean.

"I can wash two loads of clothes and rinse them with 20 gallons of water," Lois Bassett said.

The kids take baths in the tub, but David and Lois hook up a coffeepot full of warm water and stand in the tub to take a shower.

"The kids have fun in the tub, but it's kind of squishy for us," Mrs. Bassett said.

The family uses three oil lamps for light during winter evenings.

The Bassetts get a newspaper on weekends and have a battery-powered radio to get news and music in the shelter, which they plan to replace with a hand-built cabin in the spring.

Response from neighbors also has contributed to the feeling of warmth in the Bassett home.

Britons fete queen's silver jubilee year

LONDON (AP) — Battered Britain has launched the Silver Jubilee year of Queen Elizabeth II with a sparkling schedule of pageantry and public works aimed at recapturing the optimism that lit up the start of her reign.

Elizabeth's 25th anniversary as queen could give the British a much-needed economic boost and a spiritual uplift after a long slide in business and selfconfidence.

The realm the queen will tour this year is two dozen colonies smaller since she inherited the throne Feb. 6, 1952 amid talk of a new Elizabethan Age of glory.

The Royal Navy flotilla she will review off the south coast in June no longer rules the waves. Pinched for hardware and scrimping on fuel, it will be smaller by almost half than the one that assembled for the last royal jubilee — that of the queen's grandfather, George V, in 1935.

But, as one Briton observed: "We may not lead the world in motorcycles any more, but there's still no one who can touch us for pomp and circumstance."

The year's celebrations began with a 7½-hour New Year's Day television replay of her coronation which was held June 2, 1953. The audience never fell below 1.25 million. The crescendo of celebrations is expected to grow.

From a dinghy show to a resplendent Royal Progress on the River Thames, from a matchbox label exhibit to an international homecoming for Scottish clans, there will be hundreds of events and observances — bike races, band concerts, ballets, embroidery shows, fireworks, parades, regattas and cricket matches.

The queen will visit Australia, New Zealand and her South Pacific territories in February and March, and Canada sometime in the autumn. She also is scheduled to visit Scotland, Wales and almost every county of England — and even Northern Ireland Aug. 10 and 11, security conditions permitting.

The peak comes in June, the month of the queen's official 51st birthday and the anniversary of her 1953 coronation, when London will be ablaze in scarlet and silver.

The queen will light a bonfire at Windsor Castle at dusk June 6 and 100 answering fires will spring up at 30-mile intervals, streaming outward from the home castle like the ribbons on the Union Jack until all Britain twinkles.

Next day comes a solemn service of thanksgiving at St. Paul's Cathedral, after that the Royal Progress and River Pageant June 9, and a gala birthday parade June 11.

Whatever Britain's troubles, nobody is blaming them on the queen, who The Times of London last year called "our best professional monarch for several, or perhaps many generations."

Britain was just recovering victorious from World War II as Elizabeth mounted the throne; on Coronation Day, the news arrived that Briton Sir Edmund Hillary and Norgay Tenzing became the first to climb Mt. Everest. The new queen's youth and beauty inspired some to look for a renaissance with new Sheakespeares and Raleighs such as graced the first Elizabethan Age. But it wasn't to be.

There were magnificent personal achievements — Roger Bannister broke the 4-minute mile and Francis Chichester sailed the globe single handed, but they couldn't stop the sun setting on the British Empire.

Britain shed dependencies in Asia, Africa and the Caribbean and instead joined the European Common Market — as sort of a poor relation at that. As jubilee year dawned a further weakening tooked likely; the government plans to give more autonomy to Scotland and Wales.

Labor unions became ultrapowerful while Labor party governments set out to demolish the class system that had supplied imperial Britain with both great men and great blunderers.

Immigrants from former colonies poured in, and suddenly Britain had a race problem. In Northern Ireland long-simmering hate burst into religious gang war in August 1969, and by 1977 had killed at least 1,686 people.

The mighty pound sterling declined in a quarter-century from $2.80 to about $1.70. The change from crowns, farthings, shillings and other mysterious coins to decimal currency in 1971 helped disguise racing inflation, but nothing could cover up the strikes, the stagnant production, the "I'm all right, Jack" air of national retirement.

Authorities estimate the festivities will stimulate billions of dollars in tourist and domestic spending. And while the queen has asked that undue expense be avoided in these times of austerity, jubilee building projects from halls to horsetroughs are a tradition in Britain.

The London Celebrations Committee has raised close to $1.7 million to spend on merrymaking and lasting projects.

Prince Charles, heir to the throne, newly out of the navy, is heading a Jubilee Appeal that expects to collect several million pounds for a trust to fund civic projects by young people.

Besides which the jubilee is a bonanza for producers and purveyors of historic tea towels and the like, still tooled up from big dealings in 1776-ware and employing people who might else be on the dole.

St. Ann's sets events

St. Ann's School will observe Catholic Schools Week next week, beginning with the Sunday masses at St. Ann's Catholic Church.

At the masses, the homily will be an explanation of the principles of Catholic education and the value of moral and religious training in children's education.

St. Ann's School will hold open house Feb. 10 for parents and other Midlanders. Regular classroom activities will be conducted while guests visit the school. Refreshments will be served in the school library.

Oilfield explosives keep airport on toes

By JIM STEINBERG

The moisture from a morning fog forms beads of water on the hangar windows at the Midland Regional Air Terminal. Headlights from a small twin engine plane are visible from the top of the runway. Landing wheels glide into the concrete landing stretch, bouncing once before the plane settles firmly with the earth.

Fifteen minutes before touchdown, the plane's pilot radioed the tower that its cargo contained a 20-pound payload of the most powerful conventional explosives, designated as Class A in the federal fire prevention code.

Immediately, the air controller called fire station number seven, in the northwest corner of the airport. After receiving the call, the shift fire captain in turn called the central fire station.

Both a pumper from the central fire station and the four fire fighting vehicles stationed at the airport moved out on the call.

Those vehicles from station number seven, dubbed the crash landing and rescue station, were positioned at the top of the runway to meet the incoming aircraft.

As the landing craft slowed its landing speed, it was escorted by fire vehicles to a position on the apron of the runway designated "Hot Spot A" located near the airport fire station.

There, it would be refueled.

"I won't tell you what it carries, but if my plane catches fire while I'm away, I'll tell you how to fight it. Just back off one-half mile and carry everyone with you,'" the pilot told fire captain George Anderson.

The airplane cited in Anderson's anecdote is not a rare bird on Midland's runways. Small planes are frequently routed into the Midland Terminal carrying payloads of explosives designated Class A, or extremely volatile. Planes carrying high explosives are a fact of life in a petroleum drilling area where there is demand for hard punching explosives.

The fire crews stationed at the airport receive approximately 123 calls per year, mostly as standby calls in case any of the Midland terminal's 100 daily departures and landings have trouble.

The main firefighting tool is a Walter truck made to the specifications of the Midland fire department. It carries an assortment of dry firefighting chemicals plus 2,000 gallons of water. The roof holds a water cannon on a turret that can pump out a stream of water almost 35 yards and the bottom of the four-wheel drive vehicle is lined with nozzles allowing it to drive into a wall of petroleum fed flames.

Another truck, called Fire Fire Boss, carries 360 gallons of water and 1,600 pounds of dry powder. A jeep modified to carry dry powder extinguishers and a standard 750-gallon pumper are also stationed at the department.

The firefighting crews at the airport are equipped with all-aluminum suits which are used to reflect the enormous heat encountered in the petroleum fires found around aircraft. Self-contained breathing packs are frequently worn underneath the aluminum coats.

Money back on ex-President?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon is long gone from the White House, but his 1972 campaign fund lingers on. All $1.2 million of it.

More than four years after Nixon's re-election and 2½ years after his resignation, the successor organization to the Committee to Re-Elect the President still is in business.

Reports required by the Federal Election Commission show the 1972 Campaign Liquidation Trust, the successor to the campaign committee, still is taking in money and paying debts — slowly.

Three Washington banks paid the fund $83,000 last year in interest. Other income of $77,310 also was listed in the report to the FEC.

Some persons who contributed to the 1972 Nixon campaign have tried to get their money back, but without success. "During this reporting period the trust has not honored any such request," the report said, "and it probably will not do so at anytime in the future."

Much of the money paid out by the fund went for legal fees.

For example, former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell were acquitted in April 1974 of charges that they intervened in a Securities and Exchange Commission probe of Robert Vesco in exchange for the promise of a campaign contribution.

After acquittal, they were entitled as former campaign officials to have the fund pay their legal expenses. The report said $220,000 of a legal debt of $471,390 has been paid.

But Watergate cover-up trial defendant Kenneth Parkinson is having trouble getting his legal debts paid. Parkinson also was acquitted, but the fund said it is not sure if Parkinson, a committee lawyer but not an employe, is entitled to have his $73,393 legal debt paid.

Stans also is seeking $18,600 for time spent while he was being interviewed by the special Watergate prosecutor and for testimony before Watergate grand juries. Stans is asking $30 an hour for 620 hours of preparation, the same pay rate he earned as the Nixon committee's finance chairman. He also wants $7,500 for "expenses in connection with investigative services of Intertel Inc., prior to March 11, 1975." There was no explanation of that entry.

The report also showed former Nixon counsel John Dean has repaid $15,200 he took from a White House safe to finance his honeymoon.

The money came from Nixon campaign funds, and Dean later called it a loan he meant to pay back. The Watergate scandal intervened, Dean quit his White House job and the money became a factor in Watergate trials in which lawyers questioned Dean's motivations.

Dean's lawyers had held the money in an escrow account, but on Oct. 14, 1976, repaid the trust fund.

None of the fund's three trustees, Paul E. Barrick, Guilford Dudley Jr. or Charles E. Potter, could be reached for comment on their administration of the trust, or why it remains so prosperous.

They reported starting last year with $1.6 million, and spending nearly $397,000. They ended the year with a balance of $1,239,760.

Potter, who heads a Washington public relations firm, is listed as the fund's treasurer. For September, October and November, the fund paid him $9,048. That works out to an annual rate of $36,000. The other two trustees were paid.

Three plead guilty in district court

Three men pleaded guilty to felonies and received probationary sentences from 142nd District Judge Perry Pickett this morning.

Elvin Stewart Jr. pleaded guilty to burglary of a building and received a four-year probationary sentence.

Robert Rich pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and received five years probation.

Kenneth N. Hughes pleaded guilty to burglary of an auto and was sentenced to five years probation, assistant district attorney Mark Withrow said.

'Godfathers' believed taking over legitimate Northern Ireland business

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Security chiefs in Northern Ireland believe terrorist organizations are taking over legitimate businesses in Belfast and now exert strong Mafia-like influence in housing, transportation and bars.

Merlyn Rees, Britain's Northern Ireland secretary until two months ago, called the terrorist leaders "the Godfathers."

"It can be argued that crime and terrorism are evils that nourish each other," he told the British Parliament. "Protection rackets and private armies interconnect. Mafias operate as cooperatives, to get rich quick, bloodily and for political ends."

BRITISH MILITARY intelligence and Northern Ireland's police chiefs have long linked the mainly Roman Catholic Irish Republican Army and its Protestant rivals with an unprecedented crime wave amid the province's seven-year-old sectarian conflict.

The outlawed IRA is fighting to wrest Ulster from British rule and Protestant domination and unite it with the Irish Republic, which is 96 per cent Catholic. The million-strong Protestants oppose them.

The paramilitary factions on both sides deny criminal involvement. But there is evidence nearly all of them are criminally active.

WELL-PLACED security informants claimed the objective of the terrorists' current moves into legitimate business is twofold: to bankroll their sectarian campaigns and to monopolize essential commercial enterprises and services to strengthen their influence.

"These people are building up a network of control that could in a few years' time change the structure of society in some areas of Belfast," a senior police officer commented.

One security official claimed the IRA's "Provisional" wing alone "could have a stranglehold over the entire Catholic community of west Belfast in 10 years' time."

Organized crime is already big business in Belfast, Europe's most trigger-happy city. Rival extremist movements have carved it into fiercely protected territories.

SOURCES CLAIMED the terrorists control scores of Belfast bars and "shebeens," the local speakies, shops and supermarkets and a taxi fleet, along with lucrative protection and welfare rackets.

Most holdups in the city are carried out by the terrorists. Last year there were more than 1,500 in Ulster. In 1968, the year before the bloodshed began, there were only 50.

The loot is used to buy guns and explosives. But some of it also is believed to go into the pockets of some extremist chieftains.

The Rev. McCarthy O'Quinas, 56, parish priest at Holy Cross Church in the Catholic Ardoyne quarter of Belfast for nine years, called the IRA unit there "murderers, gangsters, what the media call Mafia."

HIS CHURCH pulled O'Quinas out of the Ardoyne, an IRA stronghold and Belfast flashpoint, after the Provisionals gave him 48 hours to leave or die for denouncing them from the pulpit. He now works in Dublin.

Sources in the construction business claimed that some firms "make arrangements" with terrorist groups before they start work in many parts of Belfast.

That means hiring out-of-work members of paramilitary groups, doing work free for their organizations or employing "ghost workers" — listing non-existent men on the payroll and handing their money over to the terrorists.

One of the main thrusts of an anti-crime drive by Belfast police is into the construction business, which ironically is booming as the authorities try to keep pace with the bombing by repairing damaged houses.

GERRY FITT, leader of the Catholic-based Social Democratic and Labor party, charged that the Provisional IRA now controls the Carlisle Estate, a housing development in a badly-battered section of the city, and "dictates to housing authorities which tenants should be given homes there."

Security officials also believe the terrorists on both sides get money from taxis operating in the ghetto areas. So many city buses have been hijacked and burned there that few run anymore.

Security officials claim that every cabbie, willingly or unwillingly, pays the IRA about $8 a week.

In neighboring Shankill Road, heartland of Protestant militancy, security officials claim the Ulster Volunteer Force and the Ulster Defense Association control 200 taxis that earn them $1,600 a week.

A FOCAL POINT of the investigation into Mafia-style operations has been a legitimate organization in west Belfast, registered with Ulster authorities as a limited company. It's run by eight men once interned by the British as suspected IRA activists.

The company is known as the Andersontown Cooperative. It owns a supermarket, two butcher shops, a record store, a small engineering factory and the Suffolk Inn, a well-known tavern in the staunchly Catholic Andersonstown suburb.

The co-op's secretary is Seamus Loughran, who has been interned twice as a suspected IRA man. He denies the co-op is an IRA front.

The co-op is run from a converted house by Gerry Maguire, a thickset, ruddy-faced Catholic who was once camp commander of the Provisional IRA men in Long Kesh.

The co-op claims to provide the cheapest gasoline, liquor and meat in Catholic west Belfast. Some housewives say the co-op's thriving supermarket offers some of the best bargains in the area.

PROTESTANT HARDLINERS set up their own cooperative last year — Northern Ireland Cooperative Enterprise Ltd. Its constitution is word for word the same as the Catholic organization's.

Its director is Cyril Payne, a UDA member and also once detained as a suspected terrorist.

Some observers in Belfast see the cooperatives as the start of a social movement in the ghettoes, envisioning them bringing together the Catholic and Protestant working classes, the main victims of the conflict.

Security authorities take a different view. "The IRA is trying to build up a commercial empire through which they will control housing, jobs, transport, food distribution and entertainment in west Belfast," a police source said. "That way they can force Catholics to support them — or else."

Even good players can be careless

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A good player has no business being careless, but we all wander from the strait and narrow path. We think about something else and play a hand by instinct. Unfortunately, we are not born with an instinct for the proper play of slam contracts.

South carelessly led the ace of hearts after ruffing the opening spade lead. The 3-0 trump break should have sobered him, but he continued with a trump to dummy's eight.

When declarer tried the diamond finesse, West took the king of diamonds and returned his last trump. South eventually discovered that he could not ruff two clubs with only one trump. Down one.

After ruffing the opening lead, South should lead a trump to dummy. On discovering the bad trump break, declarer returns a diamond from dummy for the finesse.

RETURNS TRUMP

West wins and returns a trump, but two trumps are still in dummy. Declarer cashes the top diamonds to discard a club from dummy, takes the top clubs and then crossruffs the black suits.

South can recover from the careless play of the ace of hearts by leading a club to dummy's king instead of a second trump. Then he takes the diamond finesse. The important thing is to tackle the diamonds without giving West a chance to get three trumps out of the dummy.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold: S-AKQJ952, H-None, D10987, C-63. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade. Don't make a shutout bid in first or second position when you have a solid suit and a void. You may lose a slam that you can reach quite easily if you take it easy to start with.

Horse Marines still ride today

By DOUG STONE
Associated Press Writer

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — Marines and horses from California worked pretty well together in the Mexican War in 1846 so it's not surprising that California has the last traces of mounted Marines.

But it's unlikely these Marine horsemen will ever see battle.

Their appearances, instead, consist of leading parades on Washington's Pennsylvania Avenue at inaugurals and in New Year's Day pageants.

The unit consists of five men and six horses, but only four of either appear in public at any one time. And one of the mounts may never appear — he can't take parade discipline.

"He goes bananas every time he hears band music," explains S. Sgt. Philip F. Drown, the leader of the Marine Corps Mounted Color Guard.

While the "Horse Marines" consist of but a handful of men, it was not so long ago mounted Marines played an active military role at Camp Pendleton, biggest of the Marine bases.

That was in World War II, when Marines on horseback patrolled the 196-mile base perimeter, submachine guns at the ready.

It made sense in the predune-buggy era. There were fewer problems traversing 4 miles of sandy Pacific coastline, fewer problems negotiating mountain terrain rising to 3,000 feet.

"We have a whole lot of pride," said Drown, who took command of the unit in April 1976 after a tour of duty overseas. "It makes you feel good when people applaud you, when they show you they're proud of you and the nation."

Naturally, the horses are coddled champions. All are ebony, including El Noche, a former racehorse.

The color guard is a fine sight going through its paces at the base stables. The horses are decked with white headbands, red and gold saddle blankets with Marine insignia, scarlet and gold leg wrappings.

The riders wear specially tailored uniforms of contrasting blue, set off by white gloves, belts and hats. Two riders carry the American and Marine Corps flags, two ride with unsheathed ceremonial swords.

The men are volunteers. Each holds a regular Marine job, anything from demolition expert to infantry instructor.

Tax funds are not involved. Instead, Marines around the world finance the horsemen through profits from post exchanges and recreation fees.

Horse Marines date back nearly to the founding of the nation. In 1804, mounted Marines trekked across 60 miles of African desert to reach Tripoli — but they were on camels.

Ex-lawmen due guns?

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Retired peace officers should be allowed to carry guns in order to protect themselves from the criminals they sent to prison, Sen. Frank Lombardino, D-San Antonio, testified Tuesday night.

Lombardino, himself a retired cop, spoke in support of his bill before the Senate Jurisprudence Subcommittee on Criminal Matters.

One of Lombardino's witnesses, San Antonio policeman Al Peeler, said he will be eligible to retire this month after 20 years.

"I've incarcerated hundreds of people. Some of them are out. Senate bill 70 would allow me to carry a gun and provide me and my family some degree of protection," Peeler said.

Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, asked if Mauzy should be entitled to carry a gun, too, because an ex-convict might come looking for him for voting to allow Peeler to carry a gun.

Peeler said that was logical.

Mauzy asked about the 12 jurors who sent the man to prison. And then about the prosecutor, the judge, the bailiff and the court reporter. Each time, Peeler said he couldn't argue with Mauzy's logic.

"All I'm trying to say is, where do we stop? How many people are we going to allow walking the streets of Texas carrying guns?" Mauzy said.

"There are several people who have threatened my life, who I have sent to the penitentiary," Peeler said. "I don't know if you've been threatened."

Pair charged in alleged kidnapping being returned to Oklahoma

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A man and woman charged in connection with the alleged robbery and kidnapping of an Oklahoma state senator were expected to be returned here late today by Oklahoma officers.

The two were identified by Oklahoma authorites as John Gary III, 32, and Judith Marie Owen, 21. But authorities in Amarillo, Tex., where the two were being held, said the woman's real name is Judy Rogers. They said she uses Owen as an alias.

The Tulsa Tribune said Tuesday that the Owen-Rogers woman has told authorities that Sen. Bob Shatwell came to her apartment "seeking sex" and was not abducted, as he claims.

Shatwell denied the allegation, saying, "Of course, it's a lie."

Police in Tulsa, Amarillo and Osage County, Okla., told other news organizations they were not the source of the statements attributed to the accused woman in the Tribune story. The newspaper did not specifically identify the source of its information.

Shatwell claims he was kidnaped from his car in West Tulsa Friday and driven blindfolded and bound to an apartment complex in North Tulsa where he was attacked and robbed.

The woman accused in connection with the alleged incident "reportedly admitted that Shatwell was beaten by her boyfriend, robbed and slashed, but claimed it was only after Shatwell said 'obscene' things to her," the Tribune said.

Meanwhile, two residents of the apartment complex where Shatwell was found have told authorities that a man matching Shatwell's appearance made two visits on the afternoon of the alleged kidnaping to the apartment where he was found.

John Cooper and Debbie Butler, residents of the Osage Hill Apartments, said they saw a man whose physical appearance, dress and car matched that of the state senator visiting the apartment during the same time span he told authorities he was being abducted.

Shatwell has denied he was ever at the apartment, however, before being taken there at gunpoint and left bound and beaten inside a locked closet by his abductors.

Shatwell said he had made eight or 10 business calls that afternoon that he was prepared to document.

"No way that it would be possible that I could have been at the complex earlier in the day," Shatwell said.

In a police report discovered Tuesday, a Tulsa policeman said he saw Shatwell on two occasions in January enter the apartment building where he was found after the alleged abduction.

The Owen-Rogers woman and Gary were charged Tuesday by Osage County, Okla. authorities with robbery by force in connection with the alleged robbery and abduction of Shatwell.

The two were arrested Sunday in Amarillo.

They were arraigned in Amarillo Tuesday before Justice of the Peace Cliff Roberts on fugitive charges.

Judge Roberts fixed bond at $25,000 each and turned the pair back over to Potter County deputies.

The Owen-Rogers woman, who is 5 feet tall and weighs more than 200 pounds, claims Shatwell came to her apartment about 3 p.m. Friday and asked if she was available for sex, according to the Tribune. She claimed, the Tribune said, that she asked him to return later and that he appeared a second time about 5 p.m.

"Miss Owen told authorities Gary was hiding in a closet and jumped out after Shatwell said 'something obscene' to Miss Owen," the newspaper said.

The two men reportedly struggled and Shatwell was slashed on the legs with a knife, the Tribune said.

Meanwhile, the Oklahoma Highway Patrol removed its guard from Shatwell Tuesday night, saying there no longer appeared to be a threat to the senator.

Shatwell said, however, that he believes there may have been a third person who assisted his abductors, when he claims his car was forced off the road by another car. Police said they have never located the other car.

City doctor retires from welfare section

A Midland doctor has retired as medical director of the Texas Department of Public Welfare medical assistance unit.

Dr. David B. Connery retired Tuesday from the position he had held since March 23, 1973 , when the position was created.

Connery moved to Midland June 6, 1952, and practiced urology 22 years. During this time, he served as chief of surgery and as the staff member elected to the board of trustees at Midland Memorial Hospital.

He holds a B. S. degree from Westminister College in New Wilmington, Pa. and an M. D. degree from the University of Pennsylvania Medical School in Philadelphia, Pa.

His internship was in Presbyterian Hospital in Philadelphia. Later he did postgraduate work in Children's Hospital in Boston, Mass., before returning to his home town, Newcastle, Pa. to conduct a general practice 10 years.

Connery was commiseioned as a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy medical corps. He was a fellow and first assistant three and one-half years in the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., and completed his master of science degree in urology at the University of Minnesota.

Dr. David B. Connery

Before moving to Midland, Connery practiced urology in Tyler three and one-half years.

ATTENTION DEVIL POSSESSED TEXAS AUTO INSURANCE COMPANIES

There is no secret — You know I know that you have my past life history on your computer. Of the about 40 automobiles that I have totaled. I still walked out of them — only one 2 car accident was my fault and all got out unhurt. I can understand why you don't like me. I forgive, but your computer does not. I live comfortably and happy on less than money grabbers waste, and still have money left to pay these ads and the devils dues too.

Peaceful Palace # 1, Phil Minear, Manager

years I ahve probed the mystic pasts through oil paintings, sculptures, and other art crafts; searching and proving by applied energy and receiving the opposite reaction — receiving the real rock of live and happiness. Many of these art works are for sale. As always in the past, now, and in the future, I have 2 prices, 1 for the rich, 1 for the poor. Terms or Lease Purchase negotiable at no interest, with repurchase guarantee. None under $600 nor over $60,000 and none under $60 nor over $600. All cash sales and term or lease purchase payments will be deposited in interest bearing escrow to insure the repurchase guarantee.

Phil Minear, Artist

WHO IS IN CONTROL?

Of your vehicle when you drink and drive, you or the devil. Some drink one beer and the devil takes over, others can have as many as 15 and still be in control, but near 20, sleep takes over. WHO IS IN CONTROL when you are refused witnesses to the breathalizer test? God knows who and changes are in the making now. Peaceful Palace # 1, Phil Minear, Manager.

ANTIQUE SALE

ATTENTION POCKET PADDING POLITICIANS

Listen to the needs of all our people, not the money grabbers, if you want to avoid cruel weather and earthquakes. Peaceful Palace # 1, Phil Minear, Manager.

WANTED

An Artist with welding experience to make my over 100 year old 12 guage shot gun into a garden plow, it was my Papa's, one of Texas Pioneers. Peaceful Palace # 1, Phil Minear, Manager.

THE DEVIL'S TRAP

I got caught in one in the early 50's and I was too young and unexperienced in his ways. He tried to fry my brains in several mental hospitals. Up until then I had 139 IQ, it is probably none now. The devil failed, God was on my side. Phil Minear, Artist.

I AIN'T NO SAINT

Don't expect me to be one, but I try to make less mistakes each today's than yesterdays. But this I say, when civil laws are separated from moral laws, the seeds of corruption are planted instantly, then will flourish and die after greed has consumed it's own greed.
Peaceful Palace # 1
