Defense of Price Daniel Jr.

Attorney General Mark White testifies in child custody trial

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — Texas Attorney General Mark White, a surprise witness in a child custody suit, testified today that the late Price Daniel Jr., once his political opponent, was a sober person and "not a big drinker."

White, who defeated Daniel in the 1978 race for attorney general, said he had known the former Texas House speaker since 1959 and that "to my recollection, Price was not that much of a big drinker."

White was called as a witness by attorneys for Daniel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph, who is seeking custody of the two small sons born to her brother and Vickie Daniel during their unsettled four-year marriage.

Mrs. Daniel, charged with murder in the Jan. 19 shooting death of Daniel, has testified her husband beat and threatened her and drank excessively.

White said he knew nothing of such incidents, only what he had read in the newspapers. "I'd find that very difficult to believe about him," White said under questioning by Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, attorney for Mrs. Daniel. "Certainly if that were true, that would have an affect (on his opinion of Daniel.)"

Mrs. Murph's husband, the Rev. David Murph of Richardson, underwent stiff cross-examination by Haynes Monday.

"If you succeed in taking Vickie Daniel's children away from her, are you prepared to answer them when they ask, 'Where's my mommy?'" Haynes asked him.

"Yes, sir," answered Murph.

Murph, pastor of the Community Christian Church of Richardson, said he thought Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, and Marion Price Daniel IV, 1, would be hurt at first if separated from their natural mother.

"But it would be worth it in the long run, if it benefited them for the rest of their lives," Murph said.

Mrs. Daniel is charged with murder in the Jan. 19 shooting of the former Texas House Speaker, who died of a gunshot wound in the stomach. She has admitted firing the shot but pleaded innocent, claiming Daniel beat and threatened her prior to his death.

Murph testified he had never observed any actions by Mrs. Daniel before Jan. 19 that were detrimental to her children.

When asked by Haynes if he had evidence Mrs. Daniel had done anything since then that was not in the best interests of her children, Murph replied, "Killing their father."

Murph said he became concerned about Mrs. Daniel after hearing his wife and Charlotte Daniel, his sister-in-law, complain about Mrs. Daniel emotional instability and accusations that she did not tell the truth.

Haynes pointed out that Murph never went to Mrs. Daniel to find out if the accusations were true. Murph said his wife's beliefs probably had influenced his opinion of Mrs. Daniel.

Mrs. Murph followed her husband to the witness stand and gave a different version of an abortion Mrs. Daniel said she had in 1978. Mrs. Daniel testified her husband did not want any more children and forced her to have an abortion.

Mrs. Murph also said she visited Mrs. Daniel in the hospital following Daniel's death.

Counting on 'loyalty'

Brezhnev allowing Poland 'more time'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev is giving Poland "more time," a top U.S. diplomat said today.

Brezhnev said in Prague earlier in the day the Polish communist party, "with the support of all true Polish patriots," would be able to handle its own problems.

Walter Stoessel, undersecretary of state for political affairs, said Brezhnev's remarks meant, "They (the Poles) have some more time to put their house in order, according to Soviet lights."

Stoessel, who has served as ambassador to both Poland and the Soviet Union, was interviewed on NBC-TV's "Today" show.

Considerations that would lead the Russians to intervene, he said, would include loss of control by the communist party, the loyalty of the armed forces and the "loyalty of the country as a whole to the Warsaw Pact and to the Soviet Union. These things were in doubt in Hungary and Czechoslovakia."

Soviet troops threw out communist governments in Hungary in 1956 and Czechoslovakia in 1968 and installed new ones.

A U.S. response to military intervention, with allies, would encompass "political, diplomatic and economic" moves that Stoessel declined to spell out but that he said would have "long-lasting" impact.

Asked whether fluctuating U.S. assessments of the likelihood of intervention were helping the Soviet propaganda campaign, as some in Poland have charged, Stoessel said, "We think we have to call the situation as we see it."

At the White House, deputy presidential press secretary Larry Speakes said "we're studying the speech" but had no further comment. In their latest assessment, U.S. officials are saying Soviet military activities in and around Poland may not be a prelude to full-scale intervention after all, but rather an "invasion by osmosis" to coerce the Polish government and people into continued loyalty to Moscow.

This new assessment of the Kremlin's intentions reflects a diminishing sense of alarm within the Reagan administration, which suggested publicly just four days ago that the use of Soviet military force was imminent. President Reagan pointedly communicated his concerns about the matter last Friday in a personal message to Brezhnev.

One State Department analyst, requesting anonymity, said Monday that he believes the administration probably has exaggerated the prospects for a Soviet military intervention.

"My problem is that I don't see the troops," he said, suggesting that the Soviets would not risk a military incursion with fewer than 600,000 men.

He said the manpower available to the Soviets for immediate deployment in Poland probably does not exceed 200,000.

The official added that Moscow's short-term objective in engaging in extended military maneuvers around Poland appears to be intimidation of the Polish government and people.

This analysis, disputed by other officials, was supported Monday by Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, who said at Cottesmore Air Base in England that the Soviet activities are "intended to have some of the coercive effect ... that an invasion would have."

"The problem all along has been that it is very hard to tell whether there is going to be a standard conventional-type invasion or an invasion by osmosis, in which there is gradual infiltration of additions to the divisions that have been in Poland for a long time," Weinberger said.

Aged man dies in house fire; fire marshal rules out arson

Charlie Beard, 80, 404 N. Bell, died Monday night when flames engulfed his home.

Police arrived first at the scene, around 10 p.m. Monday, but were unable to approach the blazing home. Firefighters arrived almost immediately but were equally unsuccessful in fighting a path through the fire.

When the flames were doused to an extent that firefighters could enter, the victim was found in a south bedroom of the home. Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin ruled him dead at the scene.

In an unrelated incident, Beard had reported to police earlier in the day that someone he knew had stolen a .38 caliber Colt revolver from his home, Sunday morning. The pistol was valued at $150.

"We definitely ruled out arson," said Fire Marshal Carl Dorton, this morning. "We believe the fire started in the living room, but we haven't figured exactly how it started. At this point we think it was either a cigar in a box or a magazine near a heater."

"This is about the fourth time in the last few months that we've been called to that address," said Fire Chief Jim Ryals. "They were mostly minor fires. As a matter of fact, we put one out just three or four days ago," he added.

Services for Mr. Beard are pending at Sheppard Funeral Home.

APPLAUD SPEECH — Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev and Czechoslovak Communist Party General Secretary Gustav Husak applaud one another at the 16th Congress of the Communist Party of Czechoslovakia. In his speech Tuesday, Brezhnev said that he would allow Poland to solve its own inner conflicts.

Annual Youth Achievement banquet nominations open

The annual Zale's-Herald Youth Achievement banquet will be held at the Big Spring Country Club starting at 6:30 p.m., Thursday, May 14.

School officials, families and friends of students can nominate candidates for the honors by filling out the form appearing on Page 3-A of today's Herald and returning it to The Herald, Box 1431, Big Spring 79720 as soon as practicable. Photos of the nominee should accompany each nomination.

Deadline for nominations is Monday, April 20.

Chief speaker for this year's banquet will be Richard T.

Schlossberg, president of Newspaper Operations, Harte-Hanks Communication Inc., San Antonio.

Senior students attending high schools in Big Spring, Coahoma, Forsan and Sands are eligible for nomination. Four students will be chosen from each school to attend the banquet, along with school administrators, civic leaders and parents of the students who become eligible to attend the banquet.

The top winners from each school will be identified during the banquet and suitably rewarded.

Respecting the deadline is important for those who would enter nominations, however.

Colorado City employees gain pay hikes, mayor re-elected

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Colorado City Mayor Elmer Martin has been re-elected mayor by the city council, which came during action at Monday night's meeting.

Nina Kraut offered an amendment to the proposed 1981-82 budget which read: "All employees who have worked a year without a raise get an eight percent increase as of May 1. New employees who have not worked for the city a year, or other employees who have received raises in the past year, will wait until their year is up."

The motion failed, 4-2. A motion by Macca Findley offered a similar amendment to the budget which called for an eight percent increase for city employees with less than six months on the job. Those persons would get a four percent increase initially, with another four percent raise at the end of six months. The amendment was okayed and the budget was approved unanimously.

In other council action, a gift deed was accepted from Del Barber, representing a downtown lot on which the gazebo, a current city project, will be located.

Rounding out Monday's meeting, Jesse Munoz was elected mayor pro-tem, an appraisal was ordered for property offered for sale to the city for sewer plant expansion, and Ralph West presented a proposal for using the airport to operate a spraying and mechanic service, with no action being taken at this time.

50 percent increase looms TESCO urging customers to reduce cooling bills

The cost of electricity per kilowatt-hour this summer will be at least 50 percent higher than last year. For that reason, Texas Electric is urging its customers to take early steps to help hold down hot weather bills.

Bills could be substantially higher than they were last summer even if the coming summer months are cooler than last year, said TESCO President Bill Marquardt.

The cost of electricity will be higher primarily because of higher prices the company is having to pay for fuel to produce electricity, but also because of a rate increase approved and put into effect last fall, he said.

"Our biggest long-term contract for low-cost natural gas expired Jan. 1, and we are having to buy progressively more expensive gas to replace the amount supplied by that contract," Marquardt said.

"This summer, because we no longer have the lowest Old Ocean gas available and because the prices we're having to pay for all our fuels are continuing to increase, we expect our overall fuel cost to be more than double what it was last summer," said Marquardt.

Marquardt said the company is encouraging customers to leave their air conditioners off until they're really needed.

Ceiling fans and ordinary floor and table fans can be very effective in reducing the need to run air conditioners. "We believe people who use fans will find they can run their air conditioners at higher thermostat settings — and in fact can leave them off entirely some of the time," he said.

Also, he said, customers may want to consider going on TESCO's Average Billing Plan.

Customers on the Average Billing Plan still pay for all the electricity they use, but their payments are averaged out over a 12-month period. In the high-use summer months, customers pay for less electricity than they use, and make up the difference in the low-use months by paying for more than they use.

"A number of conservation steps, if taken before hot weather arrives, also can help bring about savings on bills," Marquardt said.

"We would urge people to have their air conditioners checked out in order to make sure they are operating with maximum efficiency. And we're encouraging customers to attend one of our free neighborhood Operation Tighten-Up workshops for demonstrations on how to make conservation improvements around the house."

Information on effective and low-cost ways to insulate, weatherstrip and caulk homes and on other conservation measures can be obtained at Operation Tighten-Up meetings or by calling TESCO.

As one part of its effort to hold down the price of electricity, TESCO last week announced it will begin a Residential Load Management Program April 15 to encourage customers to install highly efficient air conditioning and water heating equipment.

Equipment with higher Energy Efficiency Ratio (EER) ratings uses less electricity, thereby helping customers who install it save money on their bills.

The program will help hold down the number of new power plants the company will have to build, and therefore will benefit all customers by holding down electricity price increases.

The company will be providing financial assistance to customers who buy energy-saving higher-EER equipment. Details on the program will be available by April 15.

OIL EQUIPMENT DISPLAY — Oilfield Industrial Lines, Inc., was one of many businesses at the Big Spring Industrial Park which had displays at the community luncheon Monday at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Church histories information lags Organizations and churches in Howard County received mail in March, asking that they supply basic information about their groups for inclusion in the centennial history and program. As of this date, only half of the churches and a fourth of the organizations have responded to the questionnaire.

Joe Pickle, who is editing the materials for the centennial commemorative book, said "in some cases, questionnaires did not reach officers of the churches or clubs, for which we apologize," he said. "In many more cases, however, the appeal simply has been laid aside for a later reply. Whatever the case," Pickle continued, "we must have this information this week if it is to be included in the commemorative book."

Discussing the centennial commemorative book, Pickle said there was no charge involved in being included in the book and that the centennial committee was anxious to have all of the churches and organizations in Howard County included in the book. He said this would not only provide a history reference on the founding of the county, but would also be a tribute to the centennial observance.

Pickle said that churches and organizations who had not received the questionnaires or mailings should supply the following information: churches need to supply: name of church congregation; address and previous addresses if moved; regional, state, or national affiliations, date of organization or founding; founding minister or charter-members if prior to 1900; present membership—resident and nonresident; Sunday Bible school enrollment; and how often services are held.

They should also include present minister, associate ministers; superintendent or director of Sunday Bible school, chairman of official board, elders, deacons, stewards, etc.; corporate officers if incorporated; auxiliary enterprises such as day nursery, kindergarten, school, number of buses and vans and their capacity; and special ministries or direct ministries.

Church and organizations need to submit the following information: name of organization; any state or national affiliation and what they are; date of founding or local chartering. They should also be sure to include the main purpose or purposes of the organization; how often the meetings are held and where; major or traditional projects; approximate membership; names of any members who served as district, state, or international officers; and their present officers.

Churches and organizations completing this information should mail their materials to: Big Spring Centennial, Inc., P.O. Box 2069, Big Spring, TX 79720, or Joe Pickle, P.O. Box 869, Big Spring, TX 79720. Persons may also call Pickle at 267-6341.

Industry, business share spotlight at luncheon

Industry and business were the principal honorees at the community luncheon held at the Dorothy Garrett coliseum Monday.

Travis Floyd and David Wrinkle served as emcees during the luncheon, which featured displays from several businesses located at the Big Spring Industrial Park.

Following a meal of barbecue, the capacity crowd, seated in the East room of the coliseum, took part in a couple of games, such as a radio contest which saw Dene Sheppard, Jim Gregg, Nadine Pittman and John Borick take the roles of radio announcers in a test of beat-the-clock. Each person read a radio announcement in a given period of time. Borick was declared the winner.

The event was sponsored by KBST radio, and coordinated by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

The group assembled at the luncheon heard about new industries in the Big Spring area, and also discussed a clean-up campaign being conducted now in the city.

John Weeks discussed two upcoming softball tournaments set for Big Spring.

Industry, business share spotlight at luncheon

Francis Wheat advised those present at the luncheon that the Heritage Museum Chuck Wagon banquet is set for May 7 at the coliseum.

Candidates for the city council, Jack Y. Smith and Mike Randie, and Donna Fish and Russ McEwen, were recognized at the luncheon, as were newly elected school board trustees, Dwayne Fraser and Charles Beil.

Lynn Hise, superintendent of Big Spring schools, discussed the centennial parade at the luncheon, and told those present that "it's going to be the biggest parade we've ever had."

Those planning entries should submit them by April 14, he advised.

John Taylor of the centennial committee at the Chamber reported on Centennial activities, and told the group "if you're not involved, get involved. This whole community is having fun."

Drawings for money went to Yvonne Ivey, $25, Mrs. Carroll Kohl, $25, and the Malone-Hogan Clinic, $50.

COAHOMA — The Coahoma school board has acceded to a request made by Ken Cobb for a recount of votes in Saturday's school board election and will meet this evening to name a committee which will undertake the chore.

Supt. of Schools Richard Souter said that, as far as he knows, no election statute was violated. A second vote was undertaken before the results were released to the news media with the results the same.

The recount, by state law, must take place in "from two to four days" from the time the committee is appointed.

residents later contacted the Herald, suggesting an impropriety might have occurred in the election because the contents of the ballot boxes had been seen by someone other than the judges.

Conferees OK compromise drinking age limit measure

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A compromise bill that would raise Texas' legal drinking age from 18 to 19 was approved today by House-Senate negotiators.

The measure next returns to the floor of the House and Senate, where retail grocers and other alcoholic beverage sellers are expected to lobby heavily to have it rejected.

"We are going to try to run with it in the House and Senate," said Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Herford, sponsor of the bill.

Asked if he thought the measure could get through the two houses, he replied, "We'll have to wait and see. ... I don't know how much pressure the lobby is going to put on."

The sticking point has been a House provision that makes conviction for selling alcohol to a minor — in this case, someone under 19 — a virtual certainty if the seller failed to request a valid driver's license or other proof of age bearing a photograph.

When an earlier conference committee gave sellers an out if a buyer looked 19 or older, the House rejected the bill and called for renewed negotiations with the Senate.

This time, it appeared the House prevailed, because the defense of the buyer's appearance was taken out.

The negotiated bill says a person "knowingly sells alcohol to a minor if he fails to ask for proof of age, including a photograph. A driver's license or military identification card would do.

Johnnie B. Rogers, lobbyist for retail grocers, said the negotiated bill puts an unfair burden on grocers and their clerks. He said he believed a grocer would not even be entitled to subpoena a youthful buyer to show the jury the person looked older than his or her age.

Rep. Ronald Coleman, D-El Paso, said the law against selling to minors was "unenforceable" in the first conference report but the newly negotiated agreement makes it "enforceable."

The bill was requested by school administrators and PTAs, who contended 18-year-old seniors were drinking on their lunch hours, returning to school drunk and buying beer for younger students.

Blocking royalties raid

State claims mineral rights on highway right-of-way

Suppose back in the 1930's, the State of Texas, in response to local demand, decided to build a new state highway in this area. Your grandfather was all for it and, once it was determined the new road would ideally run right through his land, he decided the right-of-way to the State for a token fee of, say, a dollar per acre.

Three years later, everybody for miles around turned out for the opening of a fine new 55 mph state highway, stretching from one horizon to the other across what used to be nothing but farm land and dusty farm roads. Everyone, especially your grandfather, was happy and proud.

Now, jump to the 1940's. Your grandfather leased the mineral rights on his land to a Dallas-based oil company. Ever since, he's been receiving royalty checks in the mail like clockwork — not big ones, mind you, but as oil prices have spiraled upward over the last few years, the checks have made your grandfather's retirement a comfortable one.

Now, however, along with this month's royalty check comes a notice that the State is claiming mineral rights on the highway right-of-way, auctioning those rights off to the highest bidder, and reducing your grandfather's royalties proportionately.

In effect, the State is getting into the oil business. At least, they are claiming the mineral rights on highway right-of-way purchased prior to 1943 when the State adopted a policy of leaving the mineral rights with the landowner who sells the right-of-way to the State. The State is not necessarily encouraging it, but if anyone wishes to check out the deeds and determines that the State does indeed have a claim to the mineral rights, those rights can be put up for auction and the adjoining royalty owners may be in for an unpleasant surprise.

The right-of-way, I'm convinced, was purchased solely for the purpose of building a highway and not to get the State into the oil business. The post-1943 policy is a strong indication of this. Unfortunately, the policy (and the law) on pre-1943 right-of-way purchases is not sufficiently clear to prevent this injustice, and many landowners in our area are justifiably very upset to find the State now moving to cut itself a slice of the pie.

I have introduced a bill (House Bill 1835) which should eliminate this problem once and for all. H.B. 1835 would simply include Highway Department land in the lands already exempted from lease under the Natural Resources Code in the state law. There is no evidence that the State will lose any significant revenue if this bill passes. In fact, the administrative costs of handling the proofs of title and the auctions would largely offset any revenues. Essentially, this bill would mainly just prevent a few big-city speculators from raiding the royalties that adjacent landowners have rightfully been collecting for years.

Tax rebels: patriots or outlaws?

EDITOR'S NOTE: Hundreds of auto workers in Flint, Mich., recently filed false income tax exemption claims with the Internal Revenue Service in a flirtation with America's tax rebels. In the first of a three-part series, AP Urban Affairs Writer Lee Mitgang examines the rebellion as the April 15 tax deadline nears.

By LEE MITGANG
AP Urban Affairs Writer

His gray hair was neat, his smile warm, his three-piece suit authoritative. When he delivered his homily with sincerity and flashes of humor, his angry gospel rang clear to the small group of disciples gathered in a Times Square church for a Sunday meeting.

"You don't owe income tax!" said the guest speaker, Ed Ellison, who represents a Maryland-based tax protest group called the Free State Constitutionalists.

"Right on!" shouted back a man in the audience, wearing a Revolutionary War style tri-corner hat.

It's a scene being repeated across the country as the April 15 tax deadline nears — at a Holiday Inn in Baltimore on Monday nights, a temple in Queens, N.Y., a smorgasbord restaurant in Garden Grove, Calif., before crowds of 150 or more five nights a week.

These are America's tax rebels — most of them white, politically conservative, middle-class — who are so enraged by inflation and a poor economy, so convinced that the federal government is stripping away precious freedoms, that they risk fines and even prison by refusing to pay part or all of their federal income tax.

In the last four years, 2,781 Americans have gone to jail for tax fraud — and the IRS describes 539 of them as tax protesters. The IRS says it has no idea how much tax the government loses because of protesters.

And the problem is growing, says the IRS. Spokesman Tony Bombardiere says in 1980 the government received 13,390 protest returns, up from 8,784 the year before and 5,694 in 1978.

Second prolonged heat wave would hurt

Would it surprise you to learn that as long ago as August 1934, an oracle was predicting parts of the United States would have a crippling heat wave in the summer of 1980?

A headline in the Kansas City Times that year carried this warning: "Summer of 1980 Foreseen to Have Temperature in the 100s, Day after Day."

THE PAPER WAS quoting Dr. Charles G. Abbott of the Smithsonian Institution. Dr. Abbott, commented at the height of the 1934 drought. He was relating the theory that temperature and precipitation variations at any particular place have a tendency to repeat themselves every 23 years, with the most extreme variation at 46 years. The 46-year cycle of greater variation is related to cyclical variations of radiation output of the sun.

The hypothesis was borne out in increasing amounts of dryness since 1929, which was said to be the starting point of a 23-year complete cycle. Dr. Abbott said the pattern would not be repeated until 1980.

David A. Horner, meteorologist of the United States Department of Commerce National Weather Service, says the record-breaking 1980 drought in the state of Missouri actually began in 1979, when the precipitation was 5.33 inches below normal, causing subsoil moisture to be deficient for complete germination of spring planted crops. Thus, the 1980 year started with a precipitation shortage to 19.77 inches through Oct. 9 last year.

SUSTAINED HEAT, when the temperatures soared above 100 for weeks on end, tipped the scales toward an agriculture disaster all over the southwest.

Many Texans, especially the farmers and ranchers, are looking ahead to the months of June, July, August and September this year, apprehensive about what could happen if another crippling heat wave craps the area.

Two prolonged heat waves in a row would, no doubt, do in a lot of the people who look to the soil for their way of life.

Texas bounced back reasonably well from last year's heat wave but the scars still show. The state's cotton crop was far below normal. Livestock took a terrific beating, with losses extremely heavy in some areas.

Some of the lakes missed by what rain there was have never recovered. If the water supplies aren't replenished, there is going to have to be strict rationing in many areas.

If Dr. Abbott is on target with his predictions, the country can best be looking forward with some trepidation to the cyclical drought of 2026, or develop the know-how to alter the weather pattern.

Breed apart

Around the rim

Richard Horn

If President Reagan were to call tomorrow and ask if I had any ideas on how to straighten up the economic mess we're in, I would tell him: "Well Ron, the first thing you should do is insist that all economists go out and get real jobs."

I suspect Mr. Reagan would agree with that, although he'd probably think it was meant as a joke. It would not be. At the present time, America is drunk on lawyers, journalists, and economists. There are so many of them rushing through the nation's bloodstream that if we kicked the habit tomorrow, it would take close to a decade for the blood effects to wear off. Lawyers and journalists at least perform some function, however perverted. Economists, do little except confuse people.

IN COLLEGE, I knew three economics teachers fairly well. All of them sent their income tax information to accountants, had their wives pay the bills, always complained of being in debt, and couldn't add up test scores to save their souls. I wouldn't let them touch my checkbook with a ten-foot anything.

They tried to teach the complicated truths of economics, the first truth being, they said, that there are no truths. When a professor tells you that in the first five minutes of the course, you know you are in for a long haul.

You've probably heard certain economists referred to as geniuses. Don't believe it for a second. The only real genius involved in studying the economy is getting people to believe that your ideas are better than anybody else's. The reigning "genius" these days is a man named Milton Friedman. You can always tell Milton Friedman in a photograph, because he holds a pencil. Other than that, his main claim to fame is a 1963 book entitled "A Monetary History of the United States, 1867-1960". Everybody else calls it "A Monotonous History of the United States, 1867-1960", but what it says is that the economy functions best when it is left alone.

That disputes the claims of another economic "genius", John Maynard Keynes, who after the Depression wrote "The General Theory of Employment, Interest, and Money". He wrote that free competition among business is not enough to create jobs and maintain economic stability, so the government must intervene. In other words, Friedman represents the conservative view, and Keynes represents the liberal view.

Today, both sides of the fence hold to their respective economist with zealous faith. Unfortunately there is not enough consensus on either side to follow one theory or the other completely, so we get a strange mixture of the two — otherwise known as a big mess.

THERE ARE THREE or four hundred other economists who have written their own undisputable truths about America's economy. They appear on afternoon talk shows between diet specialists and animal trainers.

The most interesting of this breed are the ones who have all the outlandish ideas. One economist wants to get rid of all money and trade in stones. The bigger the stones, the more they are worth. Another one says that no one should make more than $15,000 a year.

There are still a few Marxist economists running around without a leash but they are hopelessly out of fashion. By now everyone knows that Marx and Engels wrote the "Communist Manifesto" in the midst of an all-night cocaine frenzy. I hear Karl was embarrassed that it was even published. If only all economists were that humble and unassuming.

If Moscow marches

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Soviet invasion of Poland would instantly enshrine President Reagan's toughened stance toward Moscow as foreign policy gospel for the Western world, a political change that has led the new president's advisers to see benefits resulting from the dangers confronting Poland.

Reagan's own skepticism over the effectiveness of nuclear arms control would become a conviction shared by leaders and major political parties among U.S. allies. Reagan could give up the present pretense of being for arms control talks with the Soviets once U.S. rearmament has started to advance.

SOVIET INTERVENTION, as measured by these presidential advisers, would accomplish in one swift transition what has been beyond U.S. reach since the late 1960s and Vietnam: true Western unity under U.S. leadership. "No one wants Poland to bear the cost or pay that price," one administration official told us, "but it is a fact that the redemption of American leadership is what the Russians buy if they intervene."

On March 29, when the central committee of Poland's ruling Communist Party met in Warsaw, the Kremlin seemed to be moving toward imposing hard-line leadership on Poland's Politburo and Central Committee. Western officials privately predicted hard-lining Stefan Olszowski would be elevated as party chief in the prelude to a major internal crack down on Solidarity, the free workers' union.

Instead, moderate party leader Stanislaus Kania surprisingly strengthened his control. That casts doubt on whether an internal crack-down by Polish police and militia, privately predicted by Secretary of State Alexander Haig as far more probable than outright Soviet intervention, will now take place. If it does not and Solidarity continues to undermine central communist authority, Soviet invasion becomes more probable.

Once invading troops cross the Polish border, the Soviets would elevate the U.S. as the acknowledged leader of the West. That is partly because of the impact in Europe of the AFL-CIO and its liberal political friends becoming Reagan's steadfast allies. AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland is in close touch with Western European labor unions, including leftist unions in Britain, Western Germany, Scandinavia and the low countries. All have a deep stake in the fate of Solidarity.

This new U.S. stature would dry up increasingly appealing calls by the European left for the U.S. to return to the pre-Afghan invasion detente. Even the left wing of Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's West German Social Democratic Party would not risk turning its back on Solidarity.

"The Germans would buy nuclear modernization overnight if Poland gets invaded," one West European diplomat predicted. "Reagan wouldn't have to say another word about it."

IN FRANCE, confidential polls taken by political allies of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing show that the Communist Party vote in this fall's presidential election would drop from its normal 20 percent to about 15 percent — a 40-year low — if Moscow marches.

Nobody can predict the effect on the Soviet Union of the sudden coming together of the Western alliance, which reached its lowest state during the Carter presidency. Officials both here and in Europe have not been subtle in spelling out their sentiments to Soviet leaders.

Why some diet without losing

Dr. Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I get frustrated when you say that weight is just a matter of calories taken in and calories burned. I am sick and tired of being accused of cheating on my diet. I don't. But I don't lose weight the way others do on the same amounts of food. My theory is that I am a "gainer" and the others are "losers" although I realize I am the real loser.

What have you got to say? If you tell me I have to burn more calories than I eat I am going to scream. If you tell me my theory is wrong I am going to send you C.O.D. a bouquet of ragweed. If you tell me I am right, I will send you roses — Gainer-loser.

Send a half dozen roses and a half dozen ragweed sprigs. I'll pay the freight.

For fat to accumulate more calories have to be taken in than the amount we NEED. That's a fact. Think about that for a second.

Now, it is also true that people have different ways of handling the calories they eat. If we do not burn the calories we eat (thermogenesis), we store them as fat.

You are right. Some obesity probably does result from disturbed thermogenesis. I tried to make some people happy recently by mentioning the theory of brown fat. People with this kind of fat, the theory goes, are able to get rid of extra calories more easily than the rest of us. They stay thin on high-calorie intake. No one sent me roses, though.

There is another group of obese people who are that way because they have a reduced metabolic rate when their bodies are at rest. They store calories while the rest of us are sleeping them off. Thus they may gain on a caloric intake that would permit weight loss in others. They have some kind of defect in the way they convert calories into energy.

Even if all this is true, it still remains an unarguable fact that fat is made only when the calories taken in exceed the amount needed (burned). Until the mystery is solved, the only solution is to make certain you take in fewer calories. It is the only way to lose weight.

Please remember the role of exercise in burning calories. A regular exercise program will help you lose weight on your present caloric intake. The booklet "Lost Secrets of Reducing" might have some useful tips for your weight loss program. If you want a copy, write me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Do the body's veins follow the same routes through the body as do the arteries? Please send me your material on varicose veins. I am just curious about my

Big Spring Herald

Dear Editor,

It seems the Liberals in Washington just can't get the message from the people! Poor Carter and Rosalyn still haven't got the message. It would seem our judges and liberal courts could get the message when Paul Harvey on national radio said, "if you want to kill anyone and get away with it or get off scott free, go to Big Spring, Texas."

We are now using our courts for "speeding tickets" and other trivial matters. What good does it do for our policeman to put a criminal in jail, when our courts let him go in one to three hours anyway. The criminal then goes back to the street to rob, rape, or kill again.

If the courts would give out a mandatory 20-year sentence for anyone robbing with a gun, then the criminals would think twice before robbing someone (especially with a gun). If someone takes a gun and kills another and the act was premeditated, when found guilty this person should be put to death and the sentence should be carried out promptly. This will stop murder.

The people are sick and tired of these "bleeding heart liberals" who turn the murders and robbers back out on the streets. If the criminals would be sent to do hard labor instead question. — Mrs. R.R.

The deep veins (saphenous) generally do follow the routes of the larger arteries and, in fact, have the same names. It is not the deep veins that are seen as varicosities, but the superficial ones, the ones closer to the surface, near the skin. Those are the ones seen when they expand and become inefficient — varicose veins.

of these "country clubs" that they now go to, we wouldn't have all the crime we have today. Why should a criminal mind the penitentiary when the prisons have color TV, rec-rooms and workout gyms that all go with the "country club set." The criminals just go back to the pen and save up their unemployment money, social security and all the other funds they can claim under the state and federal government and make plans for the crimes they plan to commit when they get out.

When anyone is convicted of a crime and sent to the pen, then he or she should have no rights at all until they are out of the pen. Long ago when the penitentiary was for punishment instead of rehabilitation (which doesn't work) we had very few criminals who wanted to go back or commit a crime again.

It looks like we should send a message to the "crowd in Austin" next time we have an election. We should also send a message to our local liberals, as well as Austin. As long as we have liberals in office like Mark White and Bill Clayton, we will have "liberal laws." Next election, we can stop the "liberals" by sending a shock to Austin like we sent to Washington this last election.

C.G. Gilstrap

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I know that God is supposed to love me, but how can I know that is really true? Frankly, I don't feel that anyone loves me. — M.S.L.

DEAR M.S.L.: Have you ever thought very much about how you would know that someone really loved you? One way, of course, would be for them to tell you that they love you, although you might not accept their word completely. But you would begin to believe that they loved you if somehow they began to demonstrate that love by doing things for you which showed they really cared. And imagine that one day you faced a very real danger of some type, such as an automobile which was about to hit you. If, however, someone else pushed you out of the way and risked their life for you, then you would know they honestly cared for you.

Do you want to know if God loves you? Then look at what God has done to demonstrate his love for you. Yes, he has told you in his Word, the Bible, that he loves you. But he also has acted to show you that he cares for you. He has done this in many ways — such as protecting you and giving you many blessings during your life. But, supremely, he has shown his love for you by sending his Son into the world to die for you on the cross and make your salvation possible. "This is love: not that we loved God, but that he loved us and sent his Son as an atoning sacrifice for our sins" (1 John 4:10). God loves you. You are very special in his eyes, and the proof of this is Christ's death on the cross for you.

Let me add one other thing. Perhaps you have grown up with the sense that other people did not really love you, and that may make you wonder if anyone — even God — really cares for you. But accept by faith what he has said. He has told you he loves you, and has demonstrated that love in the fullest possible way. Thank God for his love, and then step out in faith and learn to love God and others more each day.

WASHINGTON — Nearly $54 billion will be lopped from the federal budget over the next two years if the White House has its way. Some worthwhile projects have been assigned to the chopping block. But the budget cutters haven't begun to eliminate all the government waste.

At the Education Department, for example, academicians cook up pretentious programs and get government grants that are often squandered on their pet boondoggles.

To start with, the president's waste watchers might take a closer look at the quasi-public educational "laboratories" which get continuous, noncompetitive, sole-source contracts from the National Institute of Education. Their ostensible purpose is to improve the quality of classroom teaching and to promote educational research.

MY ASSOCIATE INDI Badhwar investigated one of the largest of these labs — a Missouri-based non-profit corporation called CEMREL Inc., which serves 10 Midwestern states. The results were shocking.

Whatever else CEMREL may have accomplished over the years, government audits and the laboratory's own records show that it certainly improved the quality of life for the corporation's executives and promoted their taste for travel and expensive meals, which were charged off to the taxpayers.

In the past decade, federal grants to CEMREL have totaled about $26 million — more than 96 percent of the laboratory's entire income. Here are some examples of the way the taxpayers' money was spent, taken from CEMREL's own internal documents and audit reports:

— CEMREL President Wade Robinson was also president of the Dance Concert Society, a dance booking agency in dire financial straits. He let the society move into CEMREL's St. Louis headquarters. CEMREL employees, being paid by federal funds, were required to do work for the booking agency as well. The laboratory also bought memberships in the dance society for all its employees — with federal funds.

— To accommodate a husband-wife team who wanted to work in Chicago, CEMREL set up a 10-member research office there. Office space was rented in the plush John Hancock Center because the couple lived there, although space was available a few blocks away for far lower rent. For three years, the rent was $12,000 a year; then it doubled. The husband-wife team's salaries did almost as well: In three years, from $24,000 a year for the husband and $17,000 for the wife, the salaries went up to $39,000 apiece. Auditors were told the reason for paying so much to the co-directors of such a small research group: CEMREL needed them both, and the wife insisted on equal rank and salary.

— CEMREL President Robinson's $50,000-plus salary "may not be reasonable in comparison with salaries paid to other educational administrators," government auditors reported. Robinson was being paid more than the presidents of seven state-supported four-year colleges in Missouri, and was also given an automobile for his personal use, the auditors found.

CEMREL OFFICIALS WINED and dined business associates and key officials of the federal education bureaucracy, using corporate-owned credit cards. The dinners were often lavish affairs at such fancy Washington restaurants as the Lion D'Or and Rive Gauche. Nearly half of 125 restaurant tabs studied by auditors contained little information about the purpose of the meals.

CEMREL made substantial payments to members of its board for inadequately documented services — and failed to disclose the payments on federal tax returns. When George Parry, a financial consultant and board member, demanded an explanation at a board meeting, he said he was told by treasurer Charles Duffy, "George, just shut up." Parry is now cooperating with government investigators.

— CEMREL's top officials routinely received large travel advances which, federal investigators said, amounted to interest-free loans.

— CEMREL executives used corporate funds for foreign travel, including trips to Egypt on "official" business.

Footnote: CEMREL's basic response to many of the auditors' findings is that the government has no business snooping into the laboratory's corporate finances. Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, doesn't agree. I turned the documents over to Hatch, who has begun an investigation. The Education Department's inspector general's office is also reopening its investigation of CEMREL.

UNDER THE DOME — March 19 was Warren Magnuson Day in Seattle, and many of the former senator's colleagues on Capitol Hill planned to attend. But when the press learned that Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., had arranged for an Air Force jet to take the senators out, the plane was abruptly canceled. A dozen senators then changed their minds about going. But the taxpayers may lose anyway.

Sens. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., and Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, are planning to bill the trip as a stopover en route to their home states, and Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., has his staff studying the possibilities of writing it off somehow.

— After much soul-searching, Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., inserted Rev. Jerry Falwell's Penthouse magazine interview in the Congressional Record, with a prefatory remark that Penthouse is a "pornographic, vulgar and salacious magazine." The bill for printing the interview: $1,920.

— Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., a former astronaut and the Senate's only geologist, recently asked a first-grade class if anyone knew what gravity was. "Sure," piped up one kid, "pebbles and rocks." As in gravel.

EVERYTHING IN ONE BASKET — Is the best way to find it when you need it. Hallmark suggests assembling assorted wrapping paper, tissue paper, tape, ribbon and gift cards to create a handy, portable gift wrap center.

Portable gift wrapping center can be helpful

A well-run household never runs out of bread, orange juice or paper napkins. But when it comes to gift wrap, the cupboard is often woefully bare.

"Gift wrap is something that's supposed to be there when you need it," says Judy Prada, a gift-wrapping expert at Hallmark Cards, "but rarely is." You find

Alternatives can lower phone bills

"If you make more than $20-$25 worth of long-distance phone calls each month, maybe it's time to untie the apron strings connecting you to Ma Bell," according to "Woman's World" magazine. In an article, entitled, "Cutting Telephone Costs: Alternatives to Ma Bell" in a recent issue, the magazine reports that competing telephone services can save you on the average 25 to 50 percent on many interstate calls. In the last few years, other firms have been allowed to compete for a portion of Ma Bell's business.

The biggest advantage of using these alternative phone systems is the savings. "I can talk much longer than I did before and not worry about the heavy bills," reported one subscriber to MCI Telecommunications Corp.'s residential service. Other advantages of using ATT's competitors are, "you keep your present telephone and continue to rely on your area phone company for all local calls within the area code. There is nothing to install, no minimum number of calls, and your phone number remains unchanged."

Some of these alternative phone systems offer monthly service charge which varies depending on the amount of use. According to "Woman's World," it is cheaper to get the service for just weekday evenings, weekends and holidays rather than 24 hours everyday.

There are certainly two sides to this coin, the magazine reports. "Ma Bell agrees you don't stand to gain anything unless you make at least $25 worth of long-distance calls each month and urges you to check to see if you'll be billed for getting no answer or a busy signal with its competitors." Another concern is the clarity of the phone connection. The article points out however that "most calls, users say, are equal or close to Bell quality."

And there is the additional hassle of pressing 23 digits to complete a call with a new phone system as opposed to the standard 11 digit call (1 + area code + number) Bell. "Despite the shortcomings, the cost savings are attracting hundreds of new customers each week," the article notes.

Dear Abby House Privileges Don't Include Sex

DEAR ABBY: Our son Bob, who is 18, has been having sexual relations with his girlfriend, Terri, who is also 18. She's on the pill. I spoke with Bob and Terri openly about this and told them I was opposed to premarital sex on religious and moral grounds. I also knew that they would continue, but I told them that they were not to bring their sex into our home!

Last weekend my husband and I went out of town and asked our married daughter to stay at our house to look after our dogs. When we returned home, we were told that Bob had sneaked Terri into his bedroom and she spent the night with him!

We told Bob we knew that Terri had slept at our home, and he said, "I am 18 and can do as I please." Bob is basically a good boy. He doesn't do drugs and has an average record in school. He is graduating in May and we had promised him a new car. After last weekend, we reversed our decision and told him if he can't respect our wishes and our home, he doesn't deserve a new car. My question: Do you think we were justified to reverse our decision for that reason?

DISAPPOINTED PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: No. You promised Bob the car unconditionally. The punishment you imposed was inappropriate for the crime.

However, an 18-year-old who lives with his parents and is supported by them is not entitled to do as he pleases. If he's under their roof, he lives under their rules.

DEAR ABBY: I have been engaged to Jess for four years. He says he loves me, but I am beginning to wonder. I am 37 and Jess is 55. His wife died six years ago, and he says he can't marry me until his wife's will is settled and all business is taken care of. (She had a lot of holdings and real estate.)

After we became engaged, Jess asked me to give up my little house and move into his mother's big home and look after her. His mother is 91, and at times she is totally confused. I have to watch her carefully or she will walk outside with nothing on.

Every time I mention getting married, Jess accuses me of rushing him. I feel as though I am being used.

A priest advised me to forget Jess, but whenever I tell him I'm moving out, he assures me he loves me and we will be married "soon."

How much more time should I give him?

HAD IT IN NORTH DAKOTA

DEAR HAD IT: If you don't have that ring on your finger by the Fourth of July, kiss Jess goodbye and declare your independence.

DEAR ABBY: I could not believe the letter from WAITING IN WASHINGTON who asked you how much to charge her elderly mother-in-law for room and board. She says she is providing Mother with many "extras" that she couldn't get in a nursing home.

I submit that over the years, Mother provided her son with countless "extras" that he couldn't get in an orphanage. Here in Korea where people have far less than in America, it is the eldest son's "privilege" (not duty) to take care of his parents when they are no longer able to take care of themselves. Old age and its accompanying wisdom are deeply respected. We Americans would do well to emulate this approach.

PHILIP E. BROU JR., CAPTAIN, U.S. ARMY, CAMP CASEY, KOREA

Be wary of deceptive sale price advertising

COLLEGE STATION — Some advertised "sale prices" are actually the regular prices, says Linda McCormack, a family resource management specialist. Items marked on sale for more than 30 days probably aren't sale items at all, she cautions.

Mrs. McCormack is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Beware of phrases such as "manufacturer's list price" and "suggested retail." These words may be deceptive since manufacturers cannot legally force retailers to sell products at set prices even though they often suggest a price, the specialist says. On the other hand, use the "suggested" price as a comparison, since some retailers may sell below that price. Beware of retailers who consistently advertise "specials" or "featured items" then the next day print disclaimer ads on a back page in the newspaper. This is legal, but it is a strategy often used to get you into the store, Mrs. McCormack explains. What can consumers do about sales that aren't really sales? Your best defense is awareness — of price ranges in your area and of retailers who are reputable, the specialist advises.

Women investing in cancer research

An investment in cancer research is an investment in life. The Texas Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club, through its individual clubs and individual members, has designated M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute as one of its priority civic participation projects.

Beginning in 1941, B&PW was among those who worked to encourage the Texas Legislature to establish a much needed state cancer center.

In 1949-50, B&PW efforts helped influence legislation which appropriated funds to include atomic energy-radiological facilities at M.D. Anderson.

This was only the beginning of a long list of efforts fostered by B&PW which has helped Anderson grow.

The hospital was designated as a State Civic Participation project in 1974-75 when Chloe Monroe was Texas Federation President. Since that time, individual clubs and members have contributed more than $130,000 to the fund, now known as the Chloe Monroe MDA Fund.

Each year the funds are distributed to various programs at Anderson. The past year the funds were designated to B&PW Award program, College student program, Gastrointestinal Cancer Research programs, and the Nurse Career Ladder Program. In the past three years B&PW has contributed $30,000 to the Nurse Career Development program, which consists of assistance to registered nurses for continuing educational programs, formal education and publication awards. It was

Don't be so 'available'
By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I am 16 and my ex-boyfriend is 18. The reason we broke up was that he wanted sex and I said no. We still keep in touch and I love him very much and would like to get back together again but his friends are in the way. When we are alone together, he acts like he really cares about me, but as soon as his friends come around, he acts as if I didn't exist. What should I do? — Michele, York, Pa. Michele: Your "ex" knows that you are still hooked on him so he feels that he can pretty much do as he pleases, and that you will be waiting for him whenever the urge comes over him to see you. You wouldn't be so "available" if you were dating another boy.

Dr. Wallace: I am a 13-year-old boy who would like to know a certain girl at school. She is very nice and very pretty. My friend told me that I shouldn't talk to her because I would make a big fool out of myself. I am a new student at school this year and was popular at my old school last year. What should I do? — David, Torrance, Calif. David: It appears that those people who are blessed with success and happiness have the ability to set obtainable goals and the determination to reach them. Getting to know this "certain" girl is an obtainable goal. The next step is up to you.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 12-year-old girl and I don't think that I am attractive. My mother and father think that I am and they also wonder why boys are not calling me on the telephone. There are a lot of boys that I like but I don't know what to do to attract them. — Bonnie, Burlington, N.C. Bonnie: Have a good sense of humor, be a good listener, be neat in appearance, smile a lot and know who won the Super Bowl. Most 12-year-old boys are much too shy and much too immature to be "getting serious" with young ladies. But remember, I said "most," not "all."

Dr. Wallace: I really need your advice. I'm 14 and madly in love with one of my teachers. Some of my friends are telling me to let him know how I feel while others are telling me to keep it to myself. I realize that he is married but I can't help myself. Please help me. — N.N., Roseburg, Ore. N.N.: Keep your feelings to yourself. Many girls think they are in love with their teacher (it happens to girls much more than boys) but with time realize that it is admiration rather than love.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

Inmate is charged with murder

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — An inmate accused of killing two prison supervisors has been charged with capital murder in the case, and the director of the state penitentiary bitterly suggested in the wake of the violence that it is high time Texas resume executions.

Meanwhile, funeral services were held Monday for the two victims — Wallace M. Pack, 54, warden of the Ellis Unit north of here, and Billy Max Moore, 49, manager of the prison farm at Ellis.

"We've had five employees killed in the last nine years and we haven't had an execution since 1964," said W.J. Estelle Jr., who runs the Texas Department of Corrections.

"If there was ever any reservation in my mind (about the death penalty) the closer it gets to home the less I have," said Estelle, who had said previously that he looked forward to a time when capital punishment would not be necessary. "I wouldn't want to be the next person who tried to assault the next warden."

Eroy Edward Brown, 30, the inmate accused of snatching Pack's gun, shooting to death Moore and then shooting, beating and finally drowning Pack in Saturday afternoon's outburst, was charged with two counts of capital murder.

A hearing before Justice of the Peace Lloyd Roark was held Monday inside the prison hospital at the Huntsville Unit. Brown, a twice-convicted burglar who was serving 12 years for aggravated robbery, is still recovering from a gunshot wound to his foot he suffered during the struggle near the Ellis Unit.

Walker County investigator Walter Pinegar, quoting other inmates who saw part of the incident from a distance, said Pack was apparently trying to put handcuffs on Brown when the inmate resisted and somehow grabbed Pack's .38-caliber revolver. Moore was shot in the head and killed and Pack was shot in the arm, beaten and wrestled into a muddy ditch where he was drowned. Brown was captured a few minutes later.

Several hundred relatives, friends and prison employees filed into the Huntsville Funeral Home for services for Pack, who had been promoted to warden only last month. Some had to stand outside because there was no room left in the chapel.

Services for Moore were held at the First Baptist Church of Whitehouse, Texas.

Estelle said he expected no public outcry over the deaths of the two men like he said there might be if two inmates had been the victims instead.

"I guarantee you there aren't going to be any marches on the courthouse, any wailing or gnashing of teeth, any sackcloth and ashes over this," he said.

Clements wants murder facts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he is convinced the weekend slaying of two prison officials was an "isolated, unique experience" that somehow developed and not part of a wider disturbance in the prison.

Clements scheduled a meeting today with state prison director W.J. Estelle to get more information on the Huntsville slayings.

The governor also told an informal news conference Monday if Estelle did not give him some "satisfactory answers," he might call for an outside investigation of the incident.

Huntsville prison warden Wallace M. Pack and Maj. Billy Max Moore, supervisor of the Ellis Unit farm, were found dead Saturday afternoon. Eroy Brown, a convicted armed robber, was arrested in connection with the deaths.

Big Spring Employment puts right person in job

Success in finding a job or in finding the right person to fill a position is better assured by calling a professional employment service such as Big Spring Employment Agency, located in the Coronado Plaza.

Finding the right person for the right job is the duty of Mrs. Sue Brown and Mrs. Rubi Taroni, the experienced personnel counselors at Big Spring Employment.

Each employer has the right to demand the person best qualified for the job, considering the requirements for the work, the salary to be offered and the availability of applicants. With this in mind, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Taroni carefully evaluate each applicant so employers do not waste time interviewing persons not qualified for the job opening. The agency refers only those who measure up to the job's requirements.

Thus, fewer rejections plague the employer or the applicant. The employer sees fewer applicants, and fewer rejections make for better public relations. There is also a smaller personnel turnover, and the efficiency of employees tends to rise.

Many highly qualified job applicants prefer to use the services of a private employment agency, thus protecting their own identity.

Big Spring Employment carries on an extensive testing program in the area of office skills, exposing applicants to personnel tests in business and industrial situations.

Both the employment counselors and the employers may refer to these tests as an indicator of future possibilities.

Aggies face NCAA investigation

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M officials say they do not know why the National Collegiate Athletic Association has initiated a "preliminary investigation" into the school's athletic program.

A&M athletic director Marvin Tate said Monday he received a "form letter" two weeks ago from the NCAA informing the school that the department was being reviewed. But Tate stressed the inquiry was only a "preliminary investigation."

"If they (NCAA) get an allegation, they look into it to see if there needs to be an investigation. It's no big deal," Tate said. "I don't know what sport it is or anything."

Tate says he has no idea whether the review involved one athlete or sport, or if actual charges had been leveled against the school.

Both Tate and head football coach Tom Wilson said A&M will cooperate fully with the NCAA, adding that they want the matter settled as soon as possible.

"Evidently someone has reported something to them (the NCAA) concerning Texas A&M, and if somebody reports something they have to look into it," Wilson said. "We feel like we haven't done anything wrong."

Wilson said he doesn't know when the investigation will take place, "sometimes it takes weeks, sometimes months, sometimes years."

Wilson also said he did not know what sport the investigation involves.

Shuler leaves Rice

HOUSTON (AP) — First he told his players, then he told his boss — Mike Schuler was through as Rice University's head basketball coach.

Schuler, whose Owls never posted a winning season in his four years there, said he was leaving the Southwest Conference school to be Larry Brown's assistant with the New Jersey Nets of the National Basketball Association.

He planned to hold the announcement until Wednesday but by Monday night "word had leaked out and he did finally confirm it," said Rice's sports information director, Bill Whitmore, after talking to athletic director Augie Erfurth.

Schuler's team was 12-14 last season, 7-9 in SWC play.

Red hot Rockets open Spurs series

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The Houston Rockets, who ousted the defending world champion Los Angeles Lakers from the National Basketball Association playoffs, hope to defy the odds-makers again in their best-of-seven series with cross-state rival San Antonio.

Led by super center Moses Malone, the Rockets disposed of the Lakers 89-86 Sunday in the deciding third game of a miniseries at Los Angeles to move into the Western Conference semifinal series against the Spurs.

Tip-off for the first game is set for 7:05 p.m. today at HemisFair Arena. The second game is scheduled here at 7:05 p.m. Wednesday.

"I called my stockbroker right after the game and he told me he was very bullish on 'crow' futures around the Houston area," Rockets coach Del Harris quipped about lack of faith in the team's hometown.

Less than 100 people were on hand to greet the Rockets at Houston Intercontinental Airport late Sunday night and only a couple of welcome banners were visible.

San Antonio, the Midwest Division Champion, finished 12 games ahead of the Rockets and enjoy

Big Spring McMahan tough bowler at 76

Ray McMahan, former pressman for the Big Spring Herald, raised a few eyebrows the past weekend in the State Men's Bowling Tournament being held at the VFW Lanes in Abilene when he bowled 205-200-212-617.

Better scores have been achieved in the state tournament but none by someone who is more than three-quarters of the way toward his first 100 years on this planet. Ray, you see, is 76 years of age. The doughty Big Spring man has a respectable 162 average and is rated a Class C bowler.

McMahan once registered a 667 in Traveling League competition but concedes he was nearer to his prime at that time. The 167 he achieved in Abilene brought the newspaper reporters and photographers running to ask him how he retained his competitive edge.

"Clean living," was McMahan's answer.

69 wins Selective Drive

The Chicano Golf Association's Selective Drive Tournament on Sunday was won by the trio of Joe Montes, Joe Dominguez and Gilbert Reyna, who fired a 69 to win by twostrokes.

In second place were a pair of teams. Both had rounds of 71. On one team was Eddie Aciri, Albert Gonzales and David Gomez, while the other trio was made up of Robert Rodriguez, Domingo Guerra and Manuel Rodriguez.

Stevens feels she has 'awesome' potential Hawk Queens ink 6'5" prospect

By NATHAN POSS Sports Editor

Howard College Hawk Queens Basketball Coach Don Stevens, described his first recruit of the 1981 campaign as a "sleeper" and potentially awesome, but the first word that comes to this writer's mind is tall. With a capital T. That's because Stevens' prize, Susan Cordell, stands at 6'5 1/2". She will no doubt be the tallest player in the successful history of Hawk Queen basketball.

Cordell, who played her high school basketball at Eules Trinity, will come to Howard College after a Southwest Conference coach notified Stevens of her.

"I went and saw her play, and in a way it was hard to evaluate her," Stevens explained. "She really didn't have much help from the rest of her team, and the other team just collapsed the rest of their team inside around Susan. From what I understand, she scored 33 points early in the year when a team tried to guard her with one player, and from then on the other teams surrounded her."

Despite that constant attention, Cordell averaged 12.5 points per game, but even more impressive were her rebounding and shot blocking. She grabbed an average of 20 cars per game, and also averaged nine blocked shots per game. That's a total of rejecting 18 possible points per game.

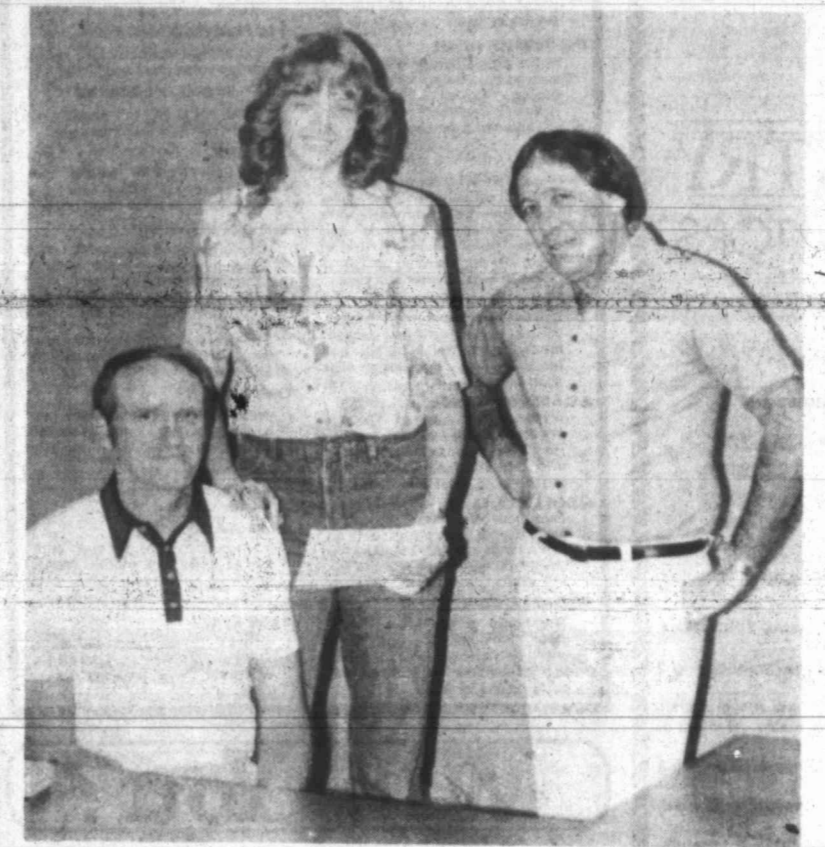

Despite that, Cordell only made second team All-District, even though she was her team's MVP.

Cordell, whose father Wayne is 6'8" and a former juco player in North Carolina, needs plenty of work on her game, but that's something that excites Stevens.

"She needs some work on her shooting and her upper body strength," Stevens explained. "She's still very raw, but she is a very intelligent girl and has great desire. At this stage of her career, she looks like Kelly Lyons did when we signed her."

If that's the case, Western Conference foes of the Hawk Queens next year will be in trouble. Lyons came to Howard and improved to the point that she was honored last week on the NJCAA's First Team All-American list.

"Right now, I'd say her strong point is defense," Stevens continued. "She can be a dominating defensive player inside with her size and long arms right now. But potentially, I really think she will be a great player for us. At least I hope so."

MAPS-Wells Fargo rip-off artist faces many more charges

Harold J. Smith more than swindler

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The flamboyant career of boxing promoter Harold J. Smith, named in an embezzlement suit by Wells Fargo Bank, has ended with the revelation that Smith is someone else — a man described by federal officials as a fugitive "bad check and bunco artist."

Smith, who parlayed the name of former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali into a prominent position in boxing, burst into gulping sobas as he stood before a federal magistrate Monday and said, "My true name is

Ross Fields."

A prosecutor seeking to block Smith's release from jail said Fields had an arrest record dating to the 1960s, is wanted in three places and is now a figure in a grand jury investigation of an alleged $21.3 million embezzlement from Wells Fargo Bank.

Smith's wife, Barbara Newman Smith, actually is Alice Vicki Darrow, wanted in Alabama on federal charges of interstate transportation of fraudulent securities, according to Assistant U.S. Attorney Dean Amson. She has used 20 aliases over the years, Allison said.

Smith, who was arraigned on a passport falsification charge, was ordered held on $200,000 bail on that complaint and on a warrant from North Carolina, where he is wanted in a check forgery case.

His attorney said friends hoped to post bond sometime today.

The FBI, which swooped down with guns drawn and arrested Smith Saturday in a Los Angeles park, alleged he falsified a passport application on July 15, 1977, by using the name Smith.

The disclosure of Smith's double life was the latest bizarre twist in the Wells Fargo story, which broke last January.

Smith, head of Muhammad Ali Professional Sports Inc., dropped from sight amid accusations by Wells Fargo officials that he and L. Benjamin Lewis, a MAPS board member and operations officer of the bank's Beverly Hills branch, were involved in a fraud scheme involving MAPS funds. Lewis has not been seen publicly or heard from since Jan. 26.

The bank has filed suit against the two men seeking $43.3 million in actual and punitive damages.

Smith maintained his innocence in interviews while in hiding. He alleged the bank was using him in an effort to cover up what he said was a much wider fraud scheme involving 40 to 45 bank branches and up to $300 million.

Legalized gambling in Texas on horse racing studied more

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Legislators and voters have turned down legalized horse racing many times, but Rep. Craig Washington — calling it a "natural resource" — says it's time to allow Texans to go to the track.

The House and Senate Committees on State Affairs on Monday listened to the oft-heard pros and cons of horse racing. Both panels sent the bills to subcommittee.

Washington, D-Houston, said his bill is "an idea whose time has come."

"Fashion it if you will as a natural resource that is available to the state," he said.

Washington's bill allows local option elections to decide if pari-mutuel betting would be legal. Sen. Ike Harris, R-Dallas, is carrying a similar Senate bill.

Opponents testified legalized gambling preys on the poor, who go to the track in search of a quick payoff. Not so, said Washington.

"I have always been a champion of the poor, downtrodden and underprivileged," he said.

Washington predicted legalized pari-mutuel wagering would bring the state up to $40 million the first year. His bill calls for a 5 percent state tax on a track's gross receipts.

Pro-horse racing witnesses Monday included Brad Gates, sheriff of Orange County, Calif. He said the track in his county causes him no problems.

"We spend more time trying to keep illegal elements out of bingo," he said. Texans last year OK'd a constitutional amendment legalizing bingo for charity.

Houston lawyer and horse-breeder Tom Alexander said Texans are leaving the state to bet on horses. It's also unfair to Texas breeders, he said.

The Baptists, who have won every previous battle to keep pari-mutuel betting out of Texas, showed up for their biennial anti-horse racing pitch.

"The relation to organized crime is there, and has always been there," said Phil Strickland of the Christian Life Commission of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Strickland testified that the poor "will be down there time and time again trying to hit it" at the tracks.

He said pari-mutuel gambling puts the state in a bad position because it has a "vested interest... to create as many losers as possible."

homecourt advantage in a match of the league's best rebounding team against Malone, the NBA's No. 1 individual rebounder.

But the Lakers also enjoyed homecourt advantage and the Rockets beat them twice in Los Angeles.

"The Rockets seem to play their best in situations where our backs are to the wall," said Malone, who averaged 14.8 rebounds and was the NBA's second leading scorer with 27.8 a night. "We came right at them (Lakers) with our same old stuff. We don't care nothing about no fancy lineups or cute names. They

Daydreamers for defense

Navy uses Walter Mitty approach to recruit combat pilots

DALLAS (AP) — The young man in Tampa said he couldn't envision being a waiter for the rest of his life. The Florida bank clerk thought he might be more comfortable moving at 600 mph than anchored behind the adding machine that had been the tool of his trade for four years.

The Navy, short on combat pilots but long on the romance of flying, agreed with both of them.

After watching a dozen screaming jets cross paths above them, then talking to the men who fly the sleek machines, the waiter and the bank clerk couldn't resist. Within a few weeks, both were well on their way to being admitted to flight school.

Both are members of a new target group in Navy recruiting: college graduates who are less than happy with their lots in life. From bank clerks to accountants, from school teachers to moonlighting cab drivers, the Navy brass think there's a high-flying Walter Mitty in ...nearly everyone.

Earlier this year in Atlanta and Tampa, the Navy staged spectacular demonstrations of its air power for more than 600 prospective flight school candidates.

"Right now I'm a waiter," Chip Toland told recruiters in Tampa. "But that's not quite the job I'm looking for."

Robert Medsger, the bank clerk, attended the Florida demonstration to "look into another (job) opportunity."

Navy recruiters say the two will be in for a rugged ordeal if they're accepted into flight school. The Navy prides itself on the rigid structure and physical demands of its pilot training programs.

Friday it will be Dallas' turn. Navy officials say the southwestern aviation hub and financial center was chosen for the third and final "Naval Aviation Career Day" in part because of a large number of furloughed commercial airline pilots who live in the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex.

But organizers of the two-day event Friday and Saturday at the Naval Air Station in Grand Prairie also expect several hundred prospective pilots who are more accustomed to swivel office chairs than cockpits.

The Navy has few basic requirements for the program. Applicants must be under 29 and in good physical condition, hold a four-year degree from an accredited college or university, and have good vision.

Pilot candidates are required to have 20/20 or better vision without the use of corrective lenses. Candidates who need glasses or contact lenses to achieve 20/20 vision are still eligible for admission as prospective naval flight officers.

"It's not really open to the general public," said Navy recruiter Lt. George W. Farrar. "We're looking for people who want to fly as Navy aviators."

The Navy and Air Force traditionally have not been hardpressed for candidates for aviator programs. The promise of one day becoming a commercial airline pilot has lured recruits to the Navy's Pensacola, Fla. flight school for years, said Lt. Cmdr. Sam Vickers.

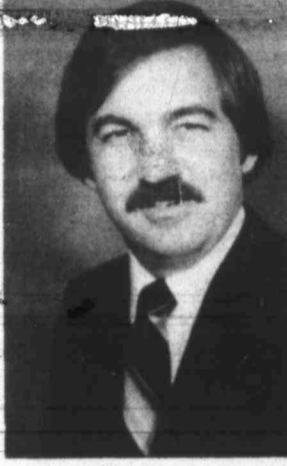

But with the commercial airline industry in a tailspin and the Navy 1,500 pilots short of its authorized strength, other incentives are beginning to work in the Navy's favor.

Although the starting pay for a Navy ensign is only about $15,000 a year, a Navy pilot with four years' experience can expect to make $36,000 or more, Vickers said.

"That's a lot better increase that you could expect if you entered a training program at a major corporation. And $15,000-a-year is about where you'd start."

I would like to thank all of my supporters in the April 4th Election. And I ask for your continued support in the runoff election.

I would sincerely like to serve you as your City Councilman, place 4.
