Co-op granted option on lease

By PAT BLAIR
Managing editor

A request by the Rockport Shrimp Co-op for an option to lease additional land in Rockport Harbor was approved by Aransas County's Navigation District commissioners Tuesday night, with the lease contingent on settlement of a dispute regarding title to the land in question.

Commissioners voted 3-0 with two abstaining on a motion by Dave Maguglin to grant the Co-op's request for an option to lease the land. Hal McKnight seconded the motion and ACND Chairman Hillis Dominguez joined in voting for the measure. Commissioners Roy Hicks and Charlie Augustine abstained from the vote.

The vote came during a session of the ACND that also saw approval of two requests for changes in lease assignments and a tabled discussion of the parking situation at the Fulton Harbor public boat ramp area pending results of recent designation of a towaway zone in that area.

Allan Lawrence, attorney for the Rockport Shrimp Co-op, was at Tuesday's meeting to present the Co-op's request for an option to lease the property, presently the site of (Woody) Jackson Marine Service.

Maguglin moved to grant the request, subject to later negotiation of the lease terms and price and subject to resolution of the title question, now in dispute between the ACND — which claims the land under Texas patent rights — and the N. F. Jackson Trust which recently bought the land from Gordon Stanley after Stanley bought the land last year from Southern Pacific Railroad.

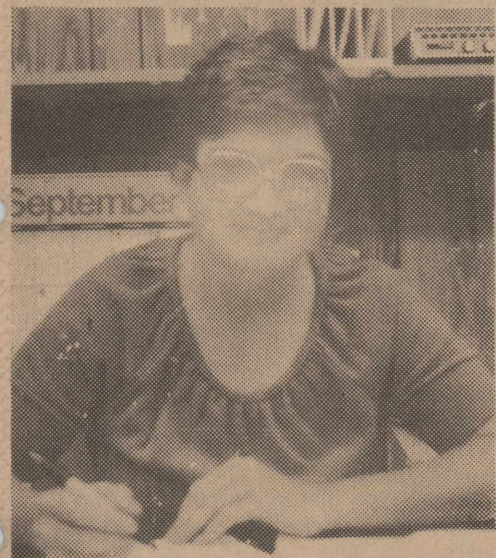

N. F. Jackson Jr., representing the trust, attended Tuesday's meeting and suggested the navigation commissioners decline the Co-op's request. "At least one boundary of the proposed lease area is not fixed yet," Jackson said. At last Thursday's special meeting on the matter, Jackson told the commissioners the Trust felt it had a superior title to the land.

In response to Jackson's request that the

Pat Blair is named managing editor

Rockport Pilot Publisher Bob Scott announced Tuesday, Sept. 6, the promotion of staff writer Pat Blair to the position of managing editor. Blair has been a member of the Pilot editorial staff since June 1976.

A native of Tyler, Blair, 36, is a 1966 graduate of John Tyler High School. She graduated from Tyler Junior College in 1968 with an associate of arts degree in journalism. She earned a bachelor of arts degree in 1970 from Texas Woman's University where she majored in journalism with a minor in government. While attending TWU, she worked as assistant editor of the university newspaper.

Just out of college, Blair went to work for the Tyler Morning Telegraph in June 1970 and later for the Tyler Courier Times, where her duties included general news, city hall and police reporting. While there, she was awarded third place in the Texas Press Association's community service competition for a series on the Tyler multimillion-dollar bond issue.

By July 1975, "I was getting restless," so she quit the Tyler paper and spent some time rethinking her priorities. "I had lived in Tyler for 28 years of my life and the farthest I had been away from home was Denton, when I attended Texas Women's University," she said during an interview Wednesday, Sept. 7. "I got the feeling that there's got to be more to life than this."

She discovered the Rockport area during a visit with a friend in Portland that fall and in March 1976, "I threw all my worldly possessions in my car," and moved to the Coastal Bend. Since there were no newspaper jobs available at the time, Blair accepted a position in advertising for an insurance agency for three years.

"In late May or early June of 1976, The Pilot was looking for reporters and I applied and was hired," she has been with The Pilot since. Her editorial duties have included coverage of Rockport city hall, Fulton, the Aransas County Navigation District, the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District, the Aransas County Municipal Utilities District and the Aransas County Water Control and Improvement District. Blair also is the editor of religious community news and she is known for her feature stories on various county residents.

"I like The Pilot and I love Rockport," she said. "Except for my brief period of uncertainty when I was looking around, I don't think I've ever really been uncertain that newspaper work was what I wanted to do. The Pilot has been very good for me and I hope I

Revised '83-84 ACND budget adopted

A revised budget adopted this past Tuesday night should allow the Aransas County Navigation District (ACND) to end its 1983-84 fiscal year with a total budget surplus of $20,940.22, according to figures available from the ACND office.

The budget adopted during the ACND's meeting Tuesday anticipates a total income for the 1983-84 fiscal year of $356,696.22, with total expenses of $335,756.

Total anticipated funds in the district's tax account amount to $142,858.69 for the coming year, with expenses in that fund anticipated to amount to $151,065.50 for normal operations plus another $18,750 in planned recreational projects.

The district's revenue fund, however, is expected to generate $213,837.53 for the district in the coming fiscal year. Operating expenses coming out of this fund are expected to total $147,565.50 and planned projects funded by this account are expected to total $18,375.

Projects planned during the coming year, for which tax revenues will be used, include $500 for office building repairs, $2,500 for cleaning of the entrance to Blevins Harbor, $4,875 for lifeguard "and miscellaneous," $500 for additional lights, $2,875 to Texas A&M University and $7,500 as the district's share of funds under the matching funds grant from the Texas Parks & Wildlife Department.

Planned projects under the revenue budget include $12,000 for draglining Cove Harbor, $2,875 to Texas A&M University, $2,500 for cleaning the entrance to Blevins Harbor and $500 each for building repairs and additional lights at the harbor.

The district anticipates receiving $126,000 from ad valorem taxes in 1983-84, $12,000 in federal and state funds and $4,858.69 in interest and miscellaneous in its general (tax account) fund. Anticipated revenue fund monies include $190,000 from leases and rentals, $11,000 in maintenance fees, $6,479.53 in bond debt security and interest and $6,358 in internal revenue securities.

Operating expenses of the district are divided 50-50 between the two accounts with half the money being taken from the tax account and half from revenue.

Total planned operating expenses for the year include $128,000 for salaries; $8,800 in payroll taxes; $9,000 to the commissioner's per diem; $2,500 in worker's compensation; $500 to the Texas Employment Commission; $17,500 for group insurance.

An expense budgeted under the general fund (tax account) only is $13,500 for

No bids received on Fulton bait stand

Search for concessionaire continues

FULTON — The town council continued its search for a concessionaire for the bait-concession stand at L.E. Casterline Fishing Pier after no bids were received by the deadline Tuesday evening, Sept. 6. The stand has been unbids since March.

Discussion of the bait-concession stand by council members during the workshop meeting which followed the special meeting to open bids concluded when council members instructed Secretary Lucille Hinson to obtain "for lease" signs and place them in the windows of the building with the appropriate telephone numbers listed.

On the agenda for next Tuesday's regular council meeting Sept. 13 will be a representative of the Fulton Volunteer Fire Department, who will explain the department's plans to remodel the existing fire station and answer any questions. The VFD tentatively plans to add a second story to the station, which would include a meeting room, bathrooms, a fully-equipped kitchen, and convert the first floor into six garages, four for firefighting equipment and trucks, one to store the new town float and one to store the old float.

Construction will proceed with the aid of Reuel Yarbrough, who will act as consultant on the project, while fire department volunteers do the building. The department will most likely ask the town council for some financial aid on the project.

Also on the agenda for next week's regular meeting are discussion of a subdivision ordinance, further discussion of the 1983-84 budget and plans for facilitating drainage on San Antonio Street. In addition, two representatives from Triad Engineering will be on hand to discuss a master plan for the town's water and sewage.

A public hearing on the budget has been scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 20. At the same meeting, council members will discuss plans for revenue sharing funds.

Notable notes

Soccer sign-up

Youngsters may sign up for the fall soccer session on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 10 and 11, at the Allied Live Oak Center. Registration hours on Saturday are 9 a.m.-6 p.m. and 1-4 p.m. on Sunday. Registration fee is $8 per child and all registrants must have proof of age when signing up.

Miss SeaFair entries

Young women age 16 to 20 years are invited to enter the first annual Miss SeaFair Pageant set for Oct. 8 this year. Deadline for entering the pageant is Sept. 23 and entry forms are available at the Chamber of Commerce office, Galatea, Elegance, Roatan's Pharmacy, Johnson's Drug Store, Island Surf & Sun, the Moonshell and Sand & Sea.

Weather

Forecasts call for partly cloudy skies with chance of more afternoon and evening thundershowers Saturday through Monday. High temperatures should be mostly in the 90s, lows in the 70s through the weekend.

As of Thursday morning, there were no significant areas of disturbed weather in the Caribbean or Gulf.

Proposed new zoning ordinance due public hearing

A joint public hearing of Rockport's city council and the planning and zoning commission on the proposed new zoning ordinance will begin a busy evening for the council Tuesday night, Sept. 13.

The zoning ordinance hearing, set to begin at 6:45 p.m. at City Hall, will be the first of two scheduled prior to the regular session. The second hearing, to begin at 7:15 p.m., is on proposed annexation of Allied Live Oak Bank.

Tuesday night's hearing will be the second for the zoning ordinance which was submitted for hearing before the planning and zoning board Aug. 10 before it was presented to the city council.

At that meeting, Harold Picton appeared to suggest that downtown Rockport be considered for "some type of high-rise construction," and another resident requested information on provisions applying to mobile home parks and mobile home subdivisions.

P&Z board members did not feel Picton's suggestions should be considered in the zoning ordinance but should be taken up — along with other possibilities for development of downtown Rockport — in the board's work on a master plan for Rockport.

As recommended by the P&Z board following the Aug. 10 hearing, the new zoning ordinance and amended zoning map have few major changes.

The new ordinance, if adopted, will allow annexation of properties under existing conditions with proper zoning designations rather than as an automatic R-1 (single-family residential), which is expected to decrease the number of non-conforming uses.

One of the situations this provision is expected to prevent is that of a developer who has secured approval for multi-family dwellings, for example, on certain property but who must then go through the rezoning process because the property has been automatically annexed as R-1.

Also required under the new zoning ordinance will be tie downs on all units left in travel trailer parks during the hurricane season. Mobile home/manufactured housing subdivision requirements were removed from the zoning ordinance and will be added to the subdivision ordinance.

Mobile homes located on private lots must meet the floor square footage requirements of the zone in which they are located and the 1976 federal standards of construction.

The public hearing at 7:15 p.m. will be the second on Allied Live Oak's request for annexation of the bank properties on Hwy. 35 North. No opposition to the annexation was voiced at the first public hearing last month. Following the hearing Tuesday, the council is expected in a later meeting to authorize preparation of an ordinance which must then be read in two separate council meetings before adoption.

During the regular council meeting Tuesday, a request by Linard F. Day Jr. for a special use permit for construction of a pier, tabled from the Aug. 24 session, will be brought before the council for consideration.

Day's request is to allow a private fishing pier to be built adjacent to 1401 S. Water in Rockport. Brought before a joint hearing of the city council and P&Z board last month, the request met protest from two nearby property owners who told city officials there is already a parking problem as a result of Day's converting a residence into a motel and construction of a pier would only aggravate that problem.

The zoning board, in its separate meeting following the hearing, tied 3-3 on a motion and had no recommendation for or against the request. On a motion by Alderman Richard Beck, the request was tabled.

The council this coming Tuesday will consider giving approval following second reading of an ordinance closing Live Oak Street between 2nd and 3rd streets.

This land is your land

Mauro reports on his first 180 days

By GARRY MAURO
Texas Land Commissioner

During my campaign for land commissioner, I promised the people of Texas that the General Land Office would be run like a successful business. In order to make the most money from our public lands so we can keep taxes low and protect our environmentally sensitive areas, we must have competent management and long range planning.

To let the people know I have kept my campaign promises, I have paid for a report on the first 180 days of my administration. In the first six months of 1983, we have made great strides in improving the managements of our public lands and the Veterans' Land Program. We want to ensure the state will be a full working partner in business dealings involving our natural resources derived from our public lands.

To illustrate how important our public lands are to the people of Texas, one only has to look at the Permanent

School Fund. More than $3.8 billion has been deposited to this fund for public education from revenues off our public lands. This currently provides more than $600 for every public school student in Texas. That $600 is money which you and I do not have to make up in the form of higher ad valorem school taxes.

We are reviewing all 11,500 active leases and 2,900 producing leases on our public lands. When I took office in January, 1983, not one of these leases had ever been audited in the field by a member of the General Land Office. Not only is this a poor business practice, there is the real possibility that we are losing millions of dollars that should go to the Permanent School Fund. By conducting a field audit program, we could increase revenues by as much as $28 million during the next biennium.

We have changed the cash management system at the General Land Office bringing more money to the Permanent School Fund. By depositing our oil and gas royalty payments three times a day instead of twice a week, we will earn the state an additional $2 million annually in interest payments. We have created an effective management staff to carry out programs designed to increase the efficiency of the agency and save taxpayer dollars. We also have an affirmative action program to ensure that the General Land Office staff reflects the percentages of minorities and women in this state.

Another measure passed by the Legislature this year allows us to provide state-owned natural gas to state institutions, agencies and municipalities. Last year, these institutions paid an average of $4.09 per mcf for natural gas. At the same time, the average market price for gas produced on state-owned land was $3.05. This new in-kind gas program will save the state and public institutions as much as $50 million on their utility bills. We will also have new markets for our natural gas which will increase revenue for the Permanent School Fund.

As the chairman of the Veterans' Land Board, I oversee a program which has provided low-interest, long-term loans to over 80,000 Texas veterans to purchase land at no cost to the taxpayer. Yet when I took office, we had over 14,000 veterans on the waiting list for loan applications. Loans took as long as a year and a half to close in some cases. We cleared the backlog of veterans waiting for their packets by March. Not only do we no longer have a waiting list, but veterans with completed application packets can also expect to have their loans closed within 90 days.

In addition to continuing the Veterans' Land Program, the Texas Legislature agreed this year to allow veterans to borrow up to $20,000 to go towards the purchase of a home. The Veterans' Housing Assistance Program will be placed before the voters of Texas in a constitutional amendment election on Nov. 8.

Eligible Texas veterans will be able to borrow up to $20,000 to be used in conjunction with a loan from a private lending institution. The program will not need an additional government bureaucracy for its administration. Since the program will be supported through general revenue bonds, no cost will be absorbed by the taxpayers. The veterans repaying their notes will pay for the bonds.

I believe I have the best job in state government. As your Texas Land Commissioner, I do not tax anyone or regulate anyone. All we do is raise money for the school children of Texas and provide low-interest loans for our veterans. I am looking forward to making further improvements in the General Land Office in the next 180 days and the remaining three years in office, and I will provide regular reports of our progress to the people of Texas.

Rockport master plan will affect your future

Recently, Rockport's planning and zoning commission started work on a master plan for the city. Provisions for the master plan are part of the city charter that Rockport voters approved in election a year ago.

Under those provisions, the master plan on which work has now started will guide the future development of Rockport. This, we feel, is of vital importance to the residents not only of Rockport but of the city's extrajurisdictional jurisdiction, those areas that, with the natural growth of the city, will eventually be part of Rockport.

In recent years, the people of Aransas County have witnessed a tremendous boom in residential and commercial development. The sale of land for high-rises and shopping centers, welcomed by many as progress, is viewed by others as a threat.

One feature of Rockport's master plan that we view as a definite plus is the short span of time it covers — two years. In the past cities — including Rockport — have adopted plans covering 10, 15, 20 years . . . and have found themselves virtually without a plan as the city's growth patterns have taken a direction unforeseen by the original planners. This was Rockport's case with the plan it adopted in 1969: based on conditions as they existed then, the planners anticipated, and wrote a plan for, an expansion of the city to the south.

Events tend to move swiftly. A 10- to 20-year plan cannot provide for, because the planners cannot foresee, sudden changes. With a two-year plan that is updated each year, the city's planners are looking at a manageable period of time, one long enough to provide for structured growth but short enough to allow for change.

Work is just beginning on Rockport's new plan. The planning and zoning commission has a long task ahead, and a difficult one.

We urge the people of Rockport to take an active interest in this work. The planning and zoning board will hold workshops on the plan — these will be open to the public. At a later date, before the plan can be adopted, at least one public hearing must be held.

If you have thoughts on how Rockport should prepare for its future growth, now is the time to share them. Rockport is your city, you have a right to participate in the decisions affecting its — and your — future.

IT IS NOT my wont to kick a man when he is down (notice I didn't say "good man"). Recent pictures of Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin are of an almost pathetically feeble old man. I don't know who will succeed him when he resigns from office, but gone will be a madman, dangerous to the world as ever Adolph Hitler, and equally a fanatic.

BEWARE THE SUCCESS of the political candidate that this column might support. Consider this. In recent weeks I have watched Robert MacNeil and Jim Lehrer in their evening "report" interview all the potential Demo candidates (thus far) for President.

Last in line and best in my book by far is Ernest (Fritz) Hollings of South Carolina. Without agreeing with him entirely, I am more at home with his ideas than with those of his opponents. On the counts that attract voters, I find him personally the most attractive, most articulate and most believable.

But forget him. In a preference poll amongst party leaders he gained 6 percent, one point better than Hart and two points better than Agnew. By contrast, Mondale, least attractive of the lot, garnered 44 percent and Glenn, most appealing after Hollings, 26 percent.

For all of this I hope to see Mondale as the candidate. Then there will be a clearcut choice for voters, between an ultra-liberal and a conservative. Note that I didn't write ultra-conservative.

WHY HAS SEN. John Tower decided not to seek reelection? I have listened to all the speculation and don't think anyone has come up with the right answer. Only two things are certain. Members of his party are unhappy, even angry over his sudden decision. And, Tower has a most distinguished record in Washington and has served Texas well. No matter who succeeds him, he will be missed.

Just now I'd give a great deal to have a session with my longtime acquaintance Ken Towery (Pulitzer Prize winner, Texas Veteran Land Scandals, circa 1950's). Ken served on Tower's staff when he first went to Washington and has since held various government posts. A few days ago he expressed surprise, annoyance, even anger at the senator's decision.

Demo hopeful Bob Krueger of New Braunfels who gave Tower a run for the money last time around announced he would run again, even before Tower said he plans not to run. Krueger has opposition within his party, but forget it. Republicans are looking at a man who will be hard to beat.

Even so they have an impressive list of men who might run — good, able men: John Connally, Bill Clements, Phil Gramm, to only begin the list. But forget the men. In my book, Ann Armstrong, female, is the only GOP who might beat Krueger. So, John, Bill, and whoever else, now is a time to put your party before your personal aspirations. But hold fast. Even as I write this, Ann Armstrong has announced that she won't be a candidate. Sorry, she's a lady who means what she says, not the coy type that sits around waiting to be begged. Reluctantly or otherwise, I herewith concede the election to Krueger.

DISCUSSING BILINGUAL language last week we quoted Mario Obledo from an interview with U.S. News & World Report (USN&WR). Also in the interview Obledo, president of LULAC, said that should there ever be armed conflict between the United States and Mexico he would find it difficult to decide which country he would support.

His statement stirred Miss Lydia Rodriguez de Mardo of Dearborn Heights, Mich., who fired a letter to the editor which is worth repeating.

"I was surprised and saddened to read Obledo's question regarding which side he would support in a conflict between the U.S. and Mexico. My grandfather made that decision when he left Mexico and became an American citizen. He had no illusions regarding which country presented the most opportunity. He realized it was imperative to learn the English language, since educational and business transactions were conducted in that language. Since I feel he made the right decision, I have no questions about my loyalty. I am proud of my Mexican heritage, but I am an American."

Cheers for Lydia who echoes the concepts of millions of Americans whose forebears have come from every nation in the world. At the same time her sadness and embarrassment must be shared. Clearly Obledo and the organization which he heads does not represent the thinking of Miss de Marko and thousands of others, many of whom have given their lives in combat for this nation, after departing Mexico for a better way of life. LULAC does these people a disservice as it blatantly seeks to keep them separate and apart from the mainstream of life in the United States.

IN THE COASTAL Bend we have been fortunate, unaffected by storms that have struck north and south of us. The hurricane season is not over and there is reason to suspect complacency. A handful of hotel-motel owners on Mustang Island are indicating resentment that officials asked tourists to get off the island when Barry threatened.

Some have suggested that oldtimers rather than weather observers be consulted before evacuation is ordered. Well, I reckon I classify as being a bit of an oldtimer and I have seen my share of hurricanes and typhoons on land and sea, but I won't place my oldtimer instincts over warnings from experts equipped with the best scientific equipment available.

Truth is I'd hate being without the services of those boys, who in my book get better and better as time moves along. When they tell people in low-lying areas that roads are likely to be flooded, it's time to move. Just be glad when the potential doesn't happen.

Economic recovery is proving stronger than anticipated

By JOHN TOWER
U.S. Senator
for Texas

Recently, many economists have greeted news about the state of our economy with surprise. I believe they may be surprised because the economic recovery is much stronger than expected.

Some economists had claimed that the economic recovery we are experiencing was below average, but the facts show this to be a normal, healthy recovery from a recession. Six months into the recovery, the rate of real Gross National Product (GNP) growth is 5.6 percent — very close to the 6.3 percent average for all recoveries since 1960. Additionally, the most recent Department of Commerce figures show real GNP grew at an 8.7 percent annual pace in the second quarter of this year.

Statistics indicate a decline in the unemployment rate. The civilian unemployment rate in June stood at 10.8 percent, after peaking at 10.8 percent in December. At the same time, civilian employment increased 1.2 million in June, to 100.8 million Americans with jobs. This is more than the level of employment in November 1980. In June, employment increased in 67 percent of all U.S. companies — last fall this was true of only 29 percent.

In housing, the numbers continue to bear out the view that this is a normal recovery. Compared to the recession's lows, June's housing starts and building permits have more than doubled. Existing home sales for June were up 58 percent to the highest level of sales in 2½ years. In May, new home sales were up 94 percent.

Equally encouraging are the figures for the automobile industry. For mid-July, car sales ran almost 40 percent over last year's levels. Auto industry unemployment has fallen 11.6 percent since last November. General Motors alone has recalled 53,000 workers since January. In July, auto layoffs were at a 1½ year low.

There are other encouraging factors. In addition to the fact that our nation's factories are operating at their highest capacity in 16 months, perhaps the most encouraging indicator is the fact that consumers have joined the recovery.

Personal income was up in June. Real personal income has risen $31 billion since the depth of the recession in October last year, and is today $13 billion higher than the level of August 1981, when the recession began.

The large increases in income have occurred because more Americans are working. In the past six months, wages have increased $69 billion in annual terms. This compares to the last six months of 1982 when wages only increased $12 billion in annual terms.

With more income, consumer spending is up. Retail sales have increased four months in a row.

Net worth is also up. The real net worth of households has grown over 10 percent in the past year. This is the best one year gain in the postwar period.

The rate of inflation also indicates that this recovery is a normal, healthy one. Inflation was 13.1 and 12.4 percent during the last two years of the Carter Administration, but for all of 1982, the inflation rate was only 3.9 percent. This is particularly encouraging because inflation usually rises during a recovery. The fact that inflation has not increased indicates that this is a lasting recovery.

As for the future, confidence is increasing that the economy will continue to recover. Over the past three months, the conference board's index of consumer expectations has been at the highest levels ever recorded. This index is a very good forecaster of future GNP growth. A recent poll by one of the most respected consumer polling organizations at the University of Michigan shows that favorable buy attitudes toward autos and houses are at all-time highs. And, a recent National Federation of Independent Business survey found that 68 percent of the companies polled expected business to improve this year.

I believe, if Congress can continue to hold the line on federal spending and continue to chip away at the federal deficit, then we will see our nation's economy become even more solid.

Thanks from ACS

Dear Editor:
On behalf of the American Cancer Society volunteers who took part in the recent educational and fund-raising drive in Aransas County, I wish to thank the Rockport Pilot for allocating valuable space to news of our activities.

Information is one of the key ways in which we can conquer cancer because it is through information people learn to safeguard themselves and their families against cancer. The Pilot has played a major part in bringing this information to the people of Aransas County.

I would also like to thank the residents of our community for opening their doors — and their pocket-books — to contribute to our drive. Because of the dedication of our volunteers and generosity of our citizens our unit has won the Golden Achievement Award. We were successful in exceeding our unit's best year and the 66 cents per capita goal of the Texas Division.

Thanks very much,

Proposition Zero

Dear Editor:
Many of us in the legislature are aware of the excessive burden caused by ever increasing local property taxes and are attempting to provide relief to residential homeowners through reform legislation. We have proposed a significant relief measure called Proposition Zero.

Unlike other proposals to enhance education funding, Proposition Zero seeks to greatly reduce the school tax burden on homeowners and generate millions of additional dollars for Texas school children.

Specifically, our proposal will exempt personal automobiles and the first $100,000 of value of residences from school operation and maintenance taxes and replace the revenue with a 1 cent state sales tax.

Recognizing the local tax base funding problem, other states, such as Missouri, Vermont and Nevada, have provided significant relief to their homeowners through the sales tax.

Proposition Zero will be introduced in the next Texas legislative session. We are currently refining the proposal and quantifying the effects that Proposition Zero will have on specific school districts to ensure equity to every district and its taxpayers.

We invite all citizens to write or call our legislative offices with their comments and inquires on Proposition Zero.

South Texas Project site employees are honored

More than 5,700 site employees who have brought a brisk new pace of construction progress to the mammoth 12,200-acre South Texas Project were honored Wednesday.

The salute to the workforce was the theme of brief noontime ceremonies marking the topping out of the dome of Unit 1 of the twin unit 2,500 megawatt project. Joining the thousands of workers were local citizens, public officials and dignitaries representing the project's four owners, engineers, constructors, top project management and a host of media representatives from across the state.

Special guests for the occasion were members of the Matagorda County Nuclear Advocates, a local support committee of boosters who have staunchly backed the project since its inception.

Don Jordan, chairman and chief executive officer of Houston Lighting and Power, managing partner of the project, headed a list of officials who took part in ceremonies marking the milestone. He was joined by the top officials of project co-owners: Central Power and Light, City Public Service Board of San Antonio and the City of Austin, as well as the presidents of Bechtel Power Corp. and Ebasco Services Inc., the project's engineering/constructing team.

The topping out exercise, a time honored symbol in construction circles, was culminated by the hoisting of the traditional tree high above the crowd of onlookers to the top of the 210-foot tall structure. Special hard-hat stickers depicting the dome topping were distributed to all workers.

Jordan said the topping out of the dome of Unit 1 "represents dramatic evidence that the South Texas Project has been turned around and will ultimately prove to be a valuable investment providing long-term benefits to energy consumers in South Texas."

The current pace of activity is the result of a steady buildup of Bechtel and Ebasco personnel. Since work resumed over a year ago, workers have spent more than 28 million manhours to reach the present stage of almost 47 percent completion on Unit 1, over 23 percent on Unit 2 and a combined project completion of almost 42 percent. The new project team last year projected a commercial operation date of mid-1987 for Unit 1 and a total cost of $5.495 billion for the complete 2,500 megawatt power plant. After the new facility goes into service, it is expected to provide well over 10 percent of the electrical energy needs of the central and South Texas area.

Jordan stated that the containment building is more than just a building. It is a concrete and steel pressure vessel over 270 feet tall and 150 feet wide. It is designed to hold at least four times the atmospheric pressure in the event of an accident. To do this, it has four-foot thick walls with the dome tapering to three feet thick. In addition, the high density steel reinforced concrete walls are further sealed with a 3/4-inch carbon steel liner and 229 steel tendons about 3 3/4 inches in diameter which are post-tensioned to add even greater strength.

The containment building is designed to withstand floods, hurricanes, tornadoes with over 360 mile an hour winds, earthquakes and airplane crashes. The South Texas Project containment building is one of the strongest structures ever made, fully capable of withstanding any load which can conceivably occur, Jordan said.

Fiberglass jon boats are now available in South Texas

The first fiberglass jon boats manufactured in Texas are available now at Ronnie's Marine in Aransas Pass.

Chris Allan, factory representative for General Fiberglass Co. of Giddings, the manufacturer of the new boats for Lone Star Boats, said he has recently delivered three of the all-fiberglass craft to Ronnie Hubbell, Aransas County distributor for Lone Star.

Until now, Allan said, jon boats have been made of aluminum "and they're always popping rivets and cracking ribs. So we came up with a fiberglass body."

"They are," he added, "price right, weight right and safety right."

Ronnie's Marine is located on Moore Avenue just off Hwy. 35.

Space Services joins in satellite service venture

Space Services Inc. of America in Houston, the company that launched a rocket from Matagorda Island last year, has joined with two other corporations to form Space America, a private-sector program to provide a worldwide, land-remote sensing satellite service.

The other companies involved in the merge are American Science and Technology Corporation and AEROS Data Corporation, both of Bethesda, Md.

The joint venturers plan to develop and launch three remote sensing satellites. The first launch is planned for 1986 with the others to follow at two-year intervals with replacement satellites available if necessary.

The satellites will be sent into low-earth orbits, about 500 nautical miles, aboard SSI's Conestoga II launch vehicles. SSI successfully launched Conestoga I from Matagorda Island in September 1982. An attempt with a Percheron rocket in 1981 failed when the rocket blew up on the launch pad.

Space America officials have said Cat Island, Miss., is being considered for the 1986 launch site but SSI is looking at other sites in the Pacific, Hawaii and other offshore locations volunteered to the company.

According to Space America officials, the system is being developed to meet the need for low-cost, state-of-the-art technologies to allow data users worldwide to realize the full potential of earth resources observations from space. Such information can be applied to natural resources management, food production, geological exploration and development, land use planning, pollution detection, weather monitoring and water systems management.

The Space America venture hopes also to manage and commercialize NOAA's Landsat program and has announced plans to submit a formal proposal to the Department of Commerce for this.

Space Vector Corp. of Northridge, Calif., the company that built Conestoga I and served, along with Eagle Engineering of Houston, as the launch team for that SSI venture, will perform the same functions for Space America.

Other companies joining the Space America industrial team include Morton Thiokol of Chicago, Ill., whose Huntsville, Ala., and Elkton, Md., plants will make the solid propellant motors for all stages of Conestoga II; Ball Aerospace of Boulder, Colo., builder of the spacecraft "bus" and instrument module for the satellites. No work will be initiated under this contract until appropriate FCC permits are obtained.

Also joining the venture is Honeywell of Minneapolis and Wilmington, Mass., designer and fabricator of the sensor package and related instrumentation.

Permit request

The following applications for permits have been filed with the Army Corps of Engineers. Any comments must be submitted to the District Engineer, P.O. Box 1229, Galveston, Texas 77553, on or before the date shown.

CORPUS CHRISTI SHIP CHANNEL
Brown & Root Inc. of Houston has filed for permission to revise the dredge limits and to construct mooring dolphins in Corpus Christi Ship Channel, Corps of Engineers Station 70+00, Harbor Island, near Port Aransas.

The authorized dredge limits of 700 feet by 1,700 feet will be changed to 700 feet by 700 feet with a 150-foot by 1,000-foot channel dredged to a depth of 20 feet below mean low tide. Mooring dolphins will also be constructed adjacent to the dredged area. All dredged material will be placed in an upland disposal area adjacent the project site.

Deadline for comments is Sept. 23.

Days Inn breaks ground

CORPUS CHRISTI — Groundbreaking ceremonies for Days Inns of America Inc., the nation's largest privately-owned lodging chain, are set for Sept. 20 for the chain's new hotel in Corpus Christi.

The new facility will bring the Days Inn network in Texas to a total of 18 locations.

BEWARE OF A HOUSE THAT'LL HAUNT YOU.

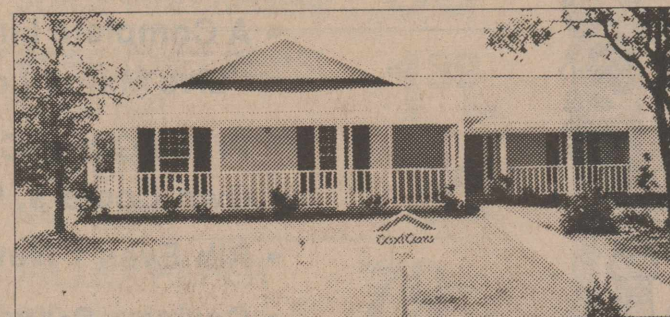

The haunting starts just after you settle into a home that doesn't have built-in energy savers. Like insulated walls, windows, doors, ducts, water heater and attic—and an efficient heating and air conditioning system. Without them, ghastly heating and cooling bills appear. Every month. Invisible energy leaks begin to lurk. Eerie drafts wander here and there. A terrifying tale—one that goes on and on. Unless, of course, you build or buy a Good Cents Home. The home that's designed with energy-conserving features that cut your heating, cooling and water heating energy usage up to 50%.

Now. Isn't that reason enough to ask your builder or Central Power and Light Company about a Good Cents Home?

Bow hunts slated

AUSTWELL — U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service officials have announced free public archery hunts for white-tailed deer and feral hogs at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge during September and October.

Bowhunters will be allowed to hunt on 34,000 acres of the 54,829-acre refuge located in Aransas County. Open hunting dates will be Sept. 29-Oct. 3; Oct. 7-9; and Oct. 14-15.

Officials said hunters will be admitted to the refuge at noon on opening day and at 5:30 a.m. each day thereafter. Legal shooting hours will be 30 minutes before sunrise to 30 minutes after sunset.

No overnight camping will be allowed, and all hunters must vacate the refuge by 9 a.m. The bag limit will be three deer, either sex, no more than two bucks. There will be no limit on feral hogs, but hunters will not be allowed to take javelinas.

Hunters are required to check in at the refuge headquarters before hunting.

Further information may be obtained by calling the refuge at 286-3559.

Walter Camp--a rugby legend

By ARCHIE PARIS

A commemorative tablet at Rugby, the famous public school in England, reads, "This stone commemorates the exploit of William Webb Ellis who with fine disregard for the rules of football as played in his time first took the ball in his arms and ran with it, thus originating the distinctive feature of the Rugby game."

The game of football referred to in the tablet is the highly popular international game that Americans call soccer. Ellis' run to everlasting fame gave birth to the less popular English game of rugby.

One half-century later, the universities of Princeton and Rutgers met in history's first recorded game of American football on Nov. 6, 1869 at New Brunswick, N.J. Today's fan who would picture that first historical meeting in a semblance of the modern game would be shockingly disillusioned.

Sports echos

The two captains met at morning tea to formulate the rules of play for the inaugural clash that afternoon. They took from the old game of soccer, the new game of rugby and Americanized the resulting hash.

Each team would field 25 men with two players assigned goal-tending duties. The remaining players would divide fielding and bulldog chores. A fielder had the responsibility of defending a designated area. A bulldog would give chase to the ball wherever it went. The first team to score six goals would be declared the winner.

Rutgers, wearing red turbans for identification, won the match 6-4. In a return meeting the following week, Princeton avenged the loss. Yale's entry into gridiron play brought Walter Camp on the scene. A multi-talented athlete, Camp was the rumored model for the epic and popular Frank Merriwell series of novels.

It was off the field, however, that Camp made enormous and lasting contributions to the struggling and undisciplined game. Camp was the Yale representative for a number of years at a succession of rules-making conventions where his innovative ideas gave the game its first solid footing.

Dedicated to a never-ending crusade to eliminate unnecessary violence from the game, Camp championed the 1880 rules change that eliminated the rugby scrum. It was a haphazard maneuver that had players on both sides locking arms and footing the ball backwards to gain possession. In its stead, he introduced the "scrimmage" with one player called the center, handing or heeling the ball backwards.

At the 1882 rules convention, Camp introduced the novel idea of awarding a team coming into possession of the ball, three downs or fair tries to gain five if it failed, it yielded possession. The rule would remain in effect until 1912 when it was modified to the present day four downs and 10 yards.

Camp was also instrumental in standardizing the game's scoring system and limiting teams to 11 players on the field. He also helped legalize tackling from the beltline to the top of the knees, previously permitted above waist level only.

Shortly before his 65th birthday in 1925, Camp passed away after dedicating a lifetime to refining the rules of the game he helped bring into being and one he so dearly loved.

A&I gears up for classic

KINGSVILLE — The Texas A&I football team opens its fall campaign against Texas Southern Saturday night in Houston's Robertson Stadium.

Game time will be 7 p.m. The stadium is located on the University of Houston campus, across from Hofheinz Stadium.

For the Javelinas, the season will see more new faces in the starting lineup than returns. There are only five returning starters on offense and three on defense.

These figures are somewhat deceiving. There are a number of other players who were sometime starters in 1982.

The starters back on offense are running back

James Jefferson, 6-foot-1-inch, 185-pound sophomore from Kingsville; running back Steven Mayberry, 6-foot-1-inch, 190-pound junior from Kenney; guard Charles Smith, 6-foot-1-inch, 230-pound junior from San Antonio Clark; tackle Mark Smith, 6-foot-4-inch, 260-pound junior from Austin Crockett; and split end Darren James, 6-foot-4-inch, 195-pound junior from Gregory-Portland.

Neal LaHue, who will get the call at quarterback, started some games last season as a running back. The 5-foot-10-inch, 181-pound junior from Austin Lanier, has logged action as a quarterback his freshman year.

Greg Hicks, 5-foot-11-inch, 175-pound senior from Bander who is expected to start at flanker, has been switched back and forth between the offensive and defensive secondary, and he has started in both areas during his career.

Arnold Kent, 6-foot-11-inch, 245-pound senior tackle from McAllen, also has started on the offensive line on occasion.

Ron Harms, starting his fifth season at the helm of the Javelina program, has said he has the basis of a good team this season. "But we need time to develop. If we can get through the first few games without many mistakes and can be allowed time to mature, I feel we'll be in good shape."

Harms says he is concerned about the caliber of competition the Javelinas will be facing in the early games. "I'm not sure it will allow us a lot of time to mature."

Texas Southern has an experienced squad this season. Joe Redmond, starting his third year as head coach of the Tigers, has the same offensive line starting he's had since arriving at TSU in 1981. The Tigers have three quarterbacks with experience, and Redmond has said any one of the three could draw a starting assignment.

Area fishing report

Sandollar — 729-8562 — Wednesday afternoon before the wind picked up, marina regulars caught quite a few flounder and reds right off the back porch, using live mullet. Depending on weather, may have live bait for the weekend. Few sandtrout and specks caught off pier.

Sandbar Cafe — 729-4046 — "Horrible out here all week." Few trout and reds brought in off the flats. Hopefully will have live bait for the weekend. Plenty of frozen available.

Copano Causeway — 729-8633 — Due to weather, last couple of days have been poor, but some trout are being caught around 10 to midnight each night. No live bait but do have frozen.

Sea Gun — 729-2341 — Early in week, some reds and trout brought in off charter. Charters will run this weekend and live bait is available.

Palm Harbor — 729-8540 — Slow late in the week but Tuesday was a good day for guide Wayne Lindsey who got some nice reds on gold spoons. Also some trout. Alex Mannering and C.B. Russell caught a 28-inch, 10-pound trout Tuesday, also. Fish are biting on gold spoons and purple worms. Live bait for the weekend isn't likely. Plenty of dead and artificial.

Fred Wright believes in the active life

By PAT BLAIR
Managing Editor

"You can't design by committee," says Fred Wright.

He speaks from experience — more than 30 years of it — as the man who designed the first regional shopping center in the United States, the man involved in the redevelopment of downtown New Haven, Conn., the man responsible for the design and construction of a $30 million urban office, garage and hotel program.

Now a resident, with his wife Betty, of Key Allegro, Fred was born in Spokane, Wash., and attended school there until he went away to Washington State University to get his degree in architectural engineering.

He graduated in 1940 and immediately became involved in the expansion of the Bremerton Navy Yards on the West Coast. His next project was with the Army Engineers expansion of the Ft. Lewis division, then he went to the Austin Co. where he became involved with the design and construction of the Boeing-Renton Plant in Washington — "the plant that built the B-295," Fred adds.

Through the war years, he was involved in construction of Naval air bases and before war's end, he was the chief architect for the 13 Naval District.

"After the war, I started with a design firm," Fred said during an interview at his home this week. He was involved there in the design and construction of the first "contemporary" houses and clinics, featuring a flat roof. Fred recalls, "The banks wouldn't loan us money because those were not conventional houses."

By 1947, he was with John Graham and Company in Seattle, Wash. It was while he was in Seattle with this firm that he designed the first regional shopping center in the nation. Merchants came to Seattle from all over the country to evaluate the new center, Fred remembers.

"The project was open about a year then others began seeing the advantage of this. They drew our company all over the U. S. (building shopping centers)," he said.

With the regional shopping centers came the decline of downtown areas, and Fred's next major project with John Graham was the redevelopment of downtown Seattle. Then, he said, the company transferred him in 1956 to its New York offices where, because of his familiarity with heavy construction, he was involved with both design and construction of department stores.

His big project following the New York move was the design of the downtown Toronto, Canada, Eaton Department Store. Eaton was the biggest chain at that time, Fred said, and the store he was asked to work on was "the biggest design problem then or now," involving a department store that carried everything from clothing and accessories to "boats on the seventh floor and the supermarket on the first" plus an underground tunnel arrangement that covered nine square blocks.

To top it all off, because a U. S. architect could not, under Canadian laws, design a Canadian building, the designs for this project had to be "snuck" over the border into Canada.

Fred was with John Graham until 1961 when he joined the Gilbane Building Co. of Providence, R.I. Representing the company from a New York City-based sales engineering office, he managed the planning and economics and the urban redevelopment program of New Haven, Conn., during this period.

In 1965, he moved on to Perkins and Will Architects of White Plains, N. Y., managing cost control of college design programs and in '67, he went to the Kleist Development Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, where he served as vice president — and where he was responsible for the design and construction of the $30 million urban office-garage-hotel program.

In 1970, he served as general service manager for the George S. Rider Co. for a year then in 1971 he became vice president for the Real Estate Development Co. in Cleveland, Ohio. Along the way, he designed a 500-room hotel that was subsequently built in Cleveland.

Around 1974, Fred said, he decided to "retire and buy a resort with a 50/50 partner. I wound up in Rockport with the Key Allegro Inn.

"I also ended up not being retired." He found himself putting in 18-hour days trying to manage the Inn, which included two restaurants. After not too many years, he sold it.

He still enjoys building. For the past four years, he said, he has kept himself busy buying houses "to fix up and live in."

Two or three years ago, he started "playing" with watercolors. "I always wanted to paint, but before I was too busy," he said. He has taken — and still takes — lessons from a number of professional artists including Steve Russell and Al Barnes, and he and Betty are planning a watercolor trip to Mexico later this month.

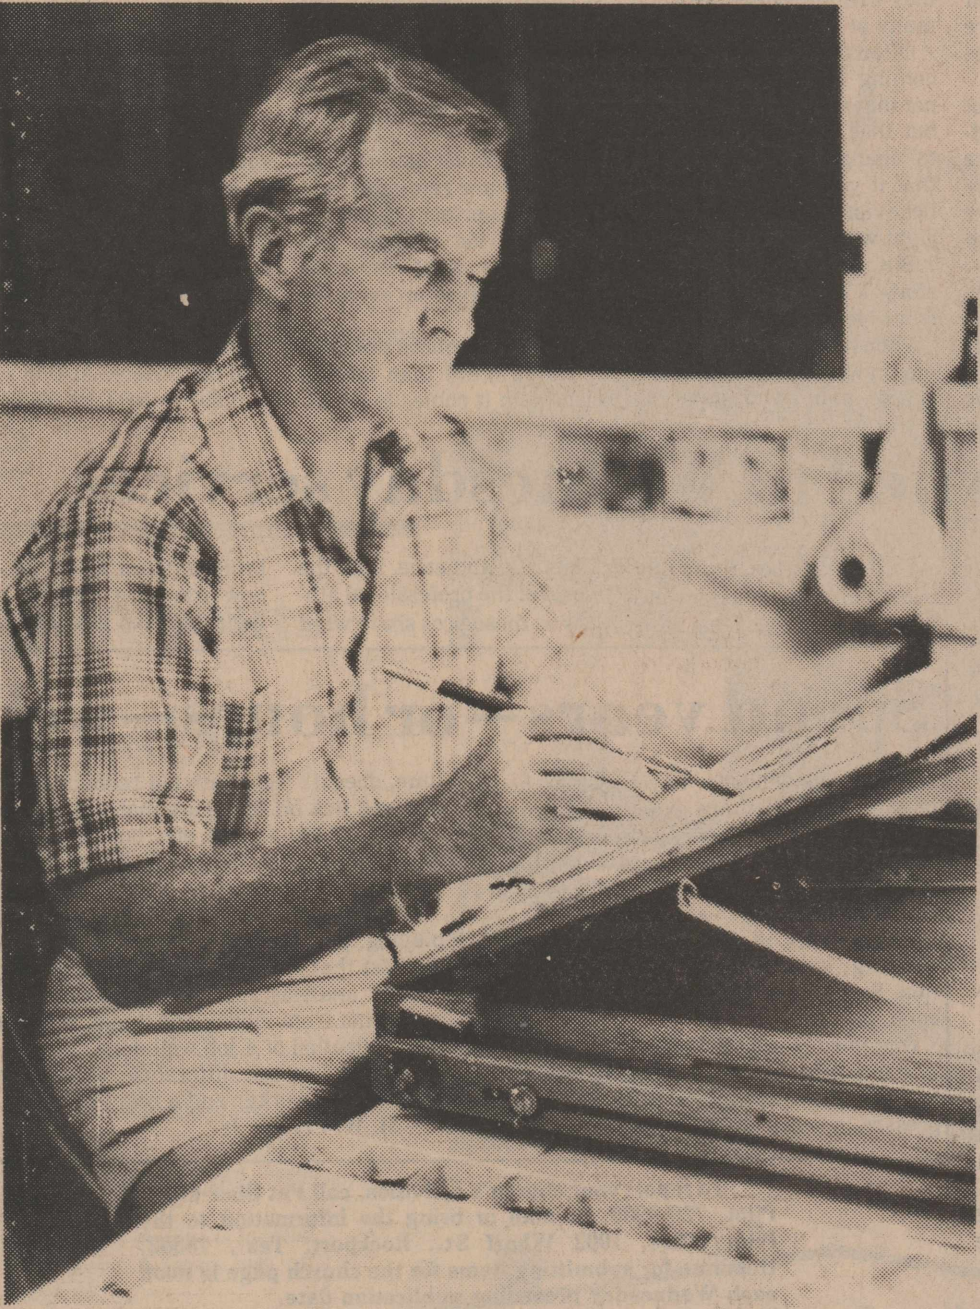

He has painted in other media, but he prefers watercolor because "it's more of a challenge. It's the most difficult medium — you only have one shot to get it right."

Fred has "just really started to paint" within the past year and a half and he is currently the featured Artist of the Month for September at First National Bank.

Married 41 years, he and Betty are the parents of three children — two sons and a daughter — and are grandparents. Betty is a native of Seattle and all three of their children were born there, Fred adds.

They enjoy living in the Rockport area: "People dream of retiring and moving to Rockport — we're here," Fred says.

As to his philosophy, he says, "Keep yourself active and busy physically and mentally, and you'll be in good shape."

USDA to pay for corn transport

Responding to a complaint by Congressman Bill Patman, D-TX, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced it has modified its previous policy and will pay for transportation of PIK corn from a Lubbock warehouse to a farmer in El Campo.

Previously, USDA had said it would pay for shipment of the corn only if the farmer agreed to use it for his own use — for example, to feed his cattle.

The corn from Lubbock is the reward to the farmer for participating in USDA's payment-in-kind (PIK) program. The program gives farmers corn from surplus government storage as a bonus for taking some or all of his acreage out of production this year. The same applies for producers of other grains and cotton.

The El Campo farmer, who wanted to sell the corn, would have had to pay to have it delivered — at a cost of 50 cents a bushel — to his farm, or he could have sold it in Lubbock, where the market has offered him 50 cents a bushel less than he could get in El Campo.

After Patman pointed out to the USDA the inequity involved, the department agreed to change its policy. It said it will pay for delivery to the PIK participant, and he can use the corn on his farm or sell it as he sees fit.

When the farmer signed on for the PIK program, the government had agreed if the corn were located farther away than the producer's warehouse, the government would pay the shipment cost. This decision affirmed that original agreement.

Alcoholic beverages and food taken by thieves

Alcoholic beverages and a case of tater tots were reported taken by thieves in two separate incidents last week, Rockport police reported.

Two employees of a city grocery store observed a man walk out the front entrance to the store without paying for two 12-packs of beer and a bottle of wine on Wednesday, Sept. 7. The subject then left the parking lot on foot pursued by the two employees, who lost sight of him after he ran behind a convenience market. A subsequent search met with negative results.

Loss to the store was estimated at $13.48.

The manager of a fast-food drive-in contacted police after he saw a man inside the store at approximately 12:20 a.m. Thursday morning, Sept. 8. The suspect apparently saw the manager and his companions run to the rear of the store, which was found jammed closed after the suspect had fled.

One case of tater tots, valued at $12.95, was reported missing.

County savings bond sales exceed annual goal

Sales of Series EE U. S. Savings Bonds in Aransas County for the first six months of 1983 have exceeded the goal for the entire year, with sales of $87,113 from Jan. 1 through June 30.

The figures were released recently by John W. Dixon, chairman of the board and CEO of E-Systems Inc. in Dallas and volunteer state chairman for Texas. Dixon said total Series EE bond sales throughout the state through June 30 amounted to $137,573,100, 61.2 percent of the state's 1983 assigned dollar goal.

Aransas County's bond sales through the period totaled 145 percent of the county's assigned 1983 goal of $60,000. By comparison, Nueces County through June had obtained 59 percent of its 1983 quota and San Patricio County's sales amounted to 45 percent of goal.

Nationally, Series EE bond sales amounted to a total $2.11 billion for the first six months, an increase of 37 percent over sales for the same period in 1982.

The new competitive interest rate now paid by EE bonds was cited as a factor in the increased sales.

Poison center relocates

CORPUS CHRISTI — The Poison Control Center (PCC) at Memorial Medical Center has been relocated from the emergency room to the hospital's clinical pharmacy located on the lower level of the hospital.

The emergency poison identification/management system, known as Poisindex, saves precious minutes when timely identification or treatment can mean life over death to a poison victim.

The PCC relocation was facilitated by the recent pharmacy modernization and expansion which provided the additional space required to house the PCC telephone hotline and equipment.

In its role as the Regional Trauma Center, Memorial Medical Center and the Poison Control Center plays a vital role in the health care of the community.

Registered pharmacists on duty around the clock, man the Poison Control Center and use the Delphi Technique to provide effective responses to PCC hotline callers. If emergency treatment is needed the pharmacist notifies AID Ambulance and Memorial's emergency room staff to expedite the poison victims hospital treatment.

The PCC at Memorial was established in 1974 and responds to an average of 2,500 calls per year. According to the National Clearinghouse of Poison Control centers, in 1980 an estimated 500,000 children nationwide (90 percent under 5 years of age) accidentally swallowed or came in contact with poisons.

Two rings taken in burglary

Two rings with a combined value of $725 and an electric bug killer worth $100 were reported stolen when the home of Paula Forest was burglarized sometime between Monday, Aug. 29, and Friday, Sept. 2.

A vehicle reported stolen from Conroe was recovered in Fulton on Sept. 7 by Aransas County sheriff's deputies. No charges have been filed in the case.

The theft of a vehicle belonging to Wayne E. Collins was reported on Sept. 5. Also reported taken were an AM/FM radio in the vehicle and several blank cassette tapes.

Criminal mischief was reported to the sheriff's department after a house under construction in Rockport was found to be spray painted. Damage was estimated at $582.

A Rockport-Fulton High School student reported that her wallet containing $14 was stolen from her purse in the high school band hall between 12 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. on Sept. 2.

The church is not for perfect people

By the Rev. Wayne J. Pafk
Peace Lutheran Church

The other day I heard a comment that has quite frequently been said to me. The comment is: "that many people don't go to church, because they expect people to be perfect."

That comment reminds me that many people have higher expectations of others than they do of themselves. Being a pastor of a church I realize that I too find myself looking for people to be more than what they sometimes are.

It is not that one should not expect Christians to act differently than others — one should expect a difference — it is the fact that too often we look past the reasons why the church exists at all.

The reason why the church exists is not because people are perfect, but because it is filled with sinners. Jesus said once: "It is not the healthy that need a doctor, but the sick." (Matthew 9:12). The reason why my job even exists as a pastor is because we are caught in sin. Sin is really a subject we know a lot about, but have a hard time admitting it. Who really likes to be told they are imperfect? Not too many of us I am afraid.

Often though what we hear coming from the church is not that we are caught in sin, but that our behavior needs to change. The formula is that if you just change your behavior that will make you right with God.

But it reminds me of a story I heard this morning from a man who said: "When he went to church his moma would always praise a young man who gave so much in the plate offering. But he said to her: he is not that good, moma. The money he is giving is what I lost in the crap game with him last night."

What looks like right behavior often has surprising stories behind it. The scripture reminds us: "There is no one on earth who does what is right all the time and never makes a mistake." (Ecclesiastes 7:20).

Over and over again in daily life we are reminded that life is not perfect nor are we and behavior changes will not change what we know about ourselves or even see in others.

Church members are really no different than anyone else when it comes to sin affecting their lives. What makes a person different as a Christian is that they know their need for a Savior. St. Paul said it this way: "But God has shown us how much he loves us — it was while we were sinners that Christ died for us." (Romans 5:8).

What it means to live the Christian life is to come to God who has put our lives in a right relationship with Him. He knows us as we are and reminds us of His love. It is His love not our behavior that makes the difference.

If you are looking for perfect people in the church you will never find them. But if you are a person who sees the reality of sin in your life and seeking assurance that you are loved and need the power of God for your life, then the community called the church is the place that God has created just for you. LOVED — NOT PERFECT!

Rev. Wright leads local stress seminar

The Rev. Joseph C. Wright, Christian pastoral psychotherapist and author, will be leader of a series of informal stress seminars at Rockport's First Presbyterian Church beginning Sept. 18.

The six-session course, designed to help adults understand and cope with the cause of stress, will be conducted from 6-9 p.m. every Sunday through Oct. 23. A fee of $7.50 per person will be charged for the entire course.

Topics to be covered during the six sessions include "Living With Change", "the Search for Identity", "Intimacy", "Meaning", "Resolution" and "Wholeness."

Those wishing to attend the workshop sessions may register early by calling 729-6251 between 8 a.m. and noon Monday through Friday.

Rev. Wright has been actively involved in the field of pastoral care and psychotherapy since 1975 and participated in the first pastoral training class offered at Memorial Hospital in Corpus Christi in 1973.

He was in the first group of pastoral counselors when the Corpus Christi Pastoral Counseling Center was formed under direction of Dr. James E. Doty in 1974. He is presently in private practice in Corpus Christi.

Church happenings

The following activities are scheduled at local churches during the coming week:

First Baptist

The church has resumed its fellowship suppers at 5:15 p.m. on Wednesdays. The church provides the food and cost is $1.75 for adults and $1.25 for children with maximum cost to a family of $6.

Also on Wednesday evenings, rehearsals for the Cherubs Choir (ages 3-5) begin at 6 p.m., for the Harmony Choir (grades 1-3) and the orchestra at 6:30 p.m. and for the adult choir at 7:30 p.m.

Youth share time and Bible study begins at 7:30 p.m.

The church library is open on Wednesday evenings at 6:30 p.m. and Sunday mornings and evenings.

First United Methodist

The Council on Ministries will meet at 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 12.

The executive board of the Methodist Women will meet at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday and a meeting of the Corpus Christi District of United Methodist Women will meet at 9 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 17, at the First United Methodist Church in Port Lavaca.

Rehearsal for the church choir is at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 14.

We all live under the same sky, but we don't all have the same horizon.

Youth invited to Wednesday services

FULTON — Youth in the seventh through twelfth grade are invited to attend the Wednesday night services for them at Fulton Community Church, 3rd and Chaparral in Fulton.

A film, "Super Stars on Location," is planned for the Sept. 14 meeting. This film takes its audience into the world of the professional athlete as these pros share what brought them to Christ and how they are dealing with their spiritual growth.

Spend years—or hours—well

Which sounds longer to you, 569,400 hours or 65 years? They are exactly the same in length of time. The average man spends his first 18 years — 157,000 hours — getting an education. That leaves him 412,000 hours from age 18 to 65.

Eight hours of every day are spent in sleeping; eight hours in eating and recreation. So there is left eight hours to work in each day.

One-third of 412,000 hours is 134,000 hours — the number of hours a man has in which to work between the age of 18 and 65. Expressed in hours it doesn't seem a very long time, does it? Now I am not recommending that you tick off the hours that you worked, 134,000, 133,999, 133,998, etc., but I do suggest that whatever you do, you do it with all that you have in you.

If you are sleeping, sleep well. If you are playing, play well. If you are working, give the best that is in you, remembering that in the last analysis the real satisfaction in life comes not from money and things, but from the realization of a job well done.

Therein lies the difference between the journeyman worker and a real craftsman.

— H. W. Prentiss Jr.

To report your church's activities, call Pat Blair at the Pilot, 729-9900, or mail or bring the information to the Pilot office, 1002 Wharf St., Rockport, Tex., 78382. Deadline for submitting items for the church page is noon each Wednesday preceding publication date.

Beach party planned by church

The youth of Rockport's First Assembly of God Church are sponsoring a beach party at the Salt Water Pool in Rockport Saturday, Sept. 10.

The party will begin at 2 p.m. and all area youth are invited.

Bethlehem Centers are asking for proof of purchase seals

The Bethlehem Centers in Nashville, Tenn., are asking for donations of the "proof-of-purchase" seals from Post cereal boxes.

The seals will be used to help acquire new gym equipment to replace equipment that was lost in a fire in 1979. The old gym was destroyed but the new one will be opening soon and the Bethlehem Centers have no play equipment for the children who use the facility.

Anyone who wants to donate one or more "proof-of-purchase" seals is asked to mail them before Dec. 15 to Bethlehem Centers, c/o Melvin Perry, 1417 Charlotte Ave., Nashville, Tenn. 37203.

Deborah Fake, Rick Hamm are wed

Deborah Lynn Fake and Rick Hamm exchanged vows in a double-ring ceremony at 7 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 13, at the First Baptist Church in Rockport. The Rev. Charles Fake officiated the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Charles Fake of Rockport.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Hamm of Rockport.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown designed and sewn by her mother. The gown was fashioned with a fitted bodice of alencon lace over satin and fastened down the back with tiny satin-covered buttons. It featured a Queen Anne's collar and sweetheart neckline with puffed, pleated organza sleeves. The entire bodice was covered with delicate hand-sewn pearls and the floor-length satin gown had a cathedral train with an overskirt of sheer organza trimmed with rows of galloon and pleated lace.

Her net veil was fastened to a wreath of white silk flowers. She carried a cascade bouquet featuring two white orchids surrounded by white roses and baby's breath.

The maid of honor was Dianna Fake, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were

AnnMarie Cominsky of Houston, Sherri Longino of Austin, Katherine Theodore of Rockport and Patti Dingrando of Waco. All wore matching floor-length gowns of shimmering, blue organza with taffeta underlinings, short, puffed sleeves and high necklines. The fitted bodices and full skirts were set off at the waist by double-faced satin sashes. Each carried a cascade bouquet of miniature white and blue carnations, surrounded by baby's breath and greenery.

Best man was Dale Hamm, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Samuel Robertson of Rockport, David Fake of Old Ocean, Dan Fake of Houston and Dwight Fake of Rockport. Ushers were Harold Mundine, Steve Theodore Jr. and Rocky Adams, all of Rockport.

The church was decorated with candelabrum entwined with greenery, baskets of gladiolus and palm trees. A unity candle graced the Lord's supper table, which was topped with an arch covered with greenery.

Wedding music was provided by Jane Adams, organist, and Larry Stewart, pianist. Linda Bradley sang "All in His Own Sweet Time" and "The Father's Call" and Rev. Fake sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The room was decorated with baskets of fern and a ligustrum tree. Small tables covered with blue and white cloths graced the room.

The bride's table held a three-tiered cake decorated with pale pastel flowers. Four smaller cakes staircased from the middle tier and porcelain bride and groom figurines accented the top. A silver candelabra held an arrangement of blue carnations.

The groom's table held a two-tiered chocolate cake decorated with clusters of pale blue flowers.

Members of the house party were Barbara Hamm, sister of the groom, Janet Fake, sister-in-law of the bride, Jovita Rodriguez of Corpus Christi, Tamara Wright of Plevna, Mont., and Angela Meadows of Dallas.

The bride is a graduate of Rockport-Fulton High School and Baylor University. She is currently student teaching at Gregory-Portland High School.

The groom is a graduate of Princeton High School in Cincinnati, Ohio. He currently attends Del Mar College and is employed as a computer technician supervisor at Brown & Root Inc., Harbor Island.

After a wedding trip to Ixtapa, Mexico, the couple will make their home in Rockport.

Entrants sought for November wool contest

The "Make It Yourself With Wool" contest district competitions have been scheduled for mid-November in Houston, Seguin, Fredericksburg, San Angelo, Plano and Lubbock.

The contest is designed to focus attention on the beauty and versatility of wool and mohair, to encourage the use of these fabrics and yarns in sewing, knitting or crocheting fashionable garments, and to recognize needlecraft and sewing skills by awarding valuable prizes.

Contestants may enter any one of the seven district contests within Texas. All those entering will be grouped by age: preteen, junior, senior and adult. Preteens will compete at the district level only and adults only will advance to state competition. State competition will be held Dec. 3 in Denton. The national finals will be Jan. 17-24 in Phoenix, Ariz.

All entries must be made from no less than 60 percent wool fabric or yarn, exclusive of linings and interfacings, and will be judged both on and off the contestants.

State prizes include sewing machines, scholarships, television sets, mohair and wool fabrics and stoles, hand woven rugs and sewing accessories, as well as expense-paid trips.

The contest is sponsored by the American Sheep Producers Council, Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association and Auxiliary and donations from associated firms.

All American citizens, regardless of race, creed or sex, age 10 and over may enter.

For complete entry information and forms, send a stamped, self-addressed, large envelope to one of the following directors:

- District 1 — Lillian Kountz, 6905 Fremont, Lubbock, Texas 79412;
- District 2 — Mrs. Jim Hickey, 1808 Avenue N., Plano, Texas 75074;
- District 3 — Mrs. Dawson Coleman, 3212 Oak Forest Court, San Angelo, 76901;
- District 4 — Mrs. Claude Kelly, Route 3, Box 300, Fredericksburg, Texas 78624;
- District 5 — Mrs. Steve Freeman, Box 13014, SFA Station, Nacogdoches, Texas 75962;
- District 6 — Mrs. S.B. Hixon, 504 Misty Lane, Friendswood, Texas 77546;
- State — Mrs. Joe Jackson, Route 3, Box 145, Ranger, Texas 76470.

Bon appetit!

How many of you out there are "pie freaks?" This week we have some recipes aimed just for you!

ENGLISH TOFFEE PIE
3/4 cup brown sugar
1 egg white, unbeaten
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
1/4 cup water
2 teaspoons instant coffee powder
1 cup whipping cream
4 Heath bars (1/4-ounce size)
1 baked pie shell
Mix sugar, water, egg white and flavoring in electric mixer and beat at highest speed until soft peaks form when beaters are raised.
Beat cream until thick and then fold into egg white mixture. Crunch the Heath bars and add to mixture.

Spoon into a baked pie shell and freeze until firm, but not frozen.

PINEAPPLE PIE
1/2 cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1 stick oleo
1 small can crushed pineapple
4 eggs
1 baked pie shell
Separate 2 eggs and save whites for meringue. Melt butter in pan, add sugar that has been mixed with flour, egg yolks and pineapple. Cook until thick.
Pour into pie crust and cover with the meringue which you have made by adding 4 tablespoons of sugar to the egg whites and beating well. Brown pie in a 325° F. oven.

SWEET POTATO PIE
1 cup milk
1 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup cooked sweet potato pulp
1 unbaked pie shell
Beat the eggs and add sugar, salt, spices and milk. Add butter to the pulp; add liquid mixture and mix well.

Pour into pie shell and bake in 450° F. oven for 10 minutes. Reduce heat and bake 30-40 minutes in 300° oven or until filling is firm.

SOUR CREAM LEMON PIE
1 cup sugar
Dash of salt
3 tablespoons corn starch
1 cup milk
3 eggs
4 tablespoons oleo
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 cup sour cream

1 baked 9-inch pie shell

Mix sugar, salt, corn starch and milk and cook until thick. Separate eggs and blend a little of the thickened mixture into the slightly beaten yolks. Return to hot mixture and cook for 2 minutes.

Remove from heat and add oleo, grated lemon rind and lemon juice. Cover and cool.

When cooled, fold in sour cream. Pour into baked pie shell and cover with meringue and brown as directed.

That's it for this week. Go forth and spread calories ... your friends will love it (unless they're on a diet!). Bon appetit!

Rockport Home and Garden Club meets

The Rockport Home and Garden Club met Thursday, Sept. 8, at the home of Mrs. W.D. Alley. Co-hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Lewis Caton Jr. and Mrs. James Johnson.

Guest speaker was Mrs. J.H. Martin of the National Council of State Garden Clubs. The horticulture instructor and flower show judge spoke on glorius hemerocallis (day lilies). She is also a member of the Corpus Christi Hemerocallis Society.

Mrs. W.K. Thomas of the Rockport Home and Garden Club also gave a short horticulture program at the meeting.

Insect pests came over on Mayflower . . . and stayed

by Ted Brice,
"The Garden Editor"

Insects — since the time of the earliest settlers—have influenced the types of homes we build, the furnishings we choose and our housecleaning habits. When the Pilgrims first set up housekeeping in Plymouth Colony, it is almost certain that the knitted shawls and blankets they unpacked were infested with moths.

Early American methods for controlling moths were extremely primitive. Tobacco and cedar twigs were the "moth balls" of the 1700s. It was also thought that tar paper, used to line closets and trunks, would keep moths away. And it was not unusual for the early American housewife to make frequent inspections of clothing and furnishings followed by beating, brushing and sunning those items most susceptible to moths.

Carpet beetles—more abundant and far more voracious than moths—were a bigger problem to colonists. In addition to eating clothing and furnishings, they enjoyed feeding on feathers, fur, tortoise shell, ivory, hair and bristles.

Recommended remedies for carpet beetles included two thorough housecleanings a year in spring and fall and frequent rug beatings. Housewives were also counseled to place tar paper under their carpets. When beetles were found in the carpet, a damp cloth was placed over them and ironed with a hot iron. This generated steam which killed the insects.

The bed may not have been invented if it were not for crawling insects and rodents, and the use of canopies and draperies around beds was not at first a decoration but a practical addition to keep out insects.

In the 1800s, when it was discovered that mosquitoes carried deadly typhus and other diseases, netting became a standard summer-time accessory for beds, cribs and baby carriages.

Bedbugs were another insect problem faced by the colonists. They often placed the legs of their wooden beds in cups of kerosene to keep bedbugs away. The iron bed became an overnight sensation in the mid-1800s, when early American advertising proclaimed the new bed "entirely free from insects."

Early methods of fly control may seem old-fashioned now, but they were important functions in the homes of the colonists. Cooks often used a "shoo-fly chair" to protect themselves and the food they prepared from flies. The chair had a foot treadle which operated a fringed rod, swinging it back and forth over the cook's head. It wasn't until the early 1900s that window screens, which first appeared in America in 1881, became a must for every home.

Today, many of the insect problems the colonists faced are under control. Through use of pesticides, many insect-borne diseases, such as malaria and typhus, can be controlled.

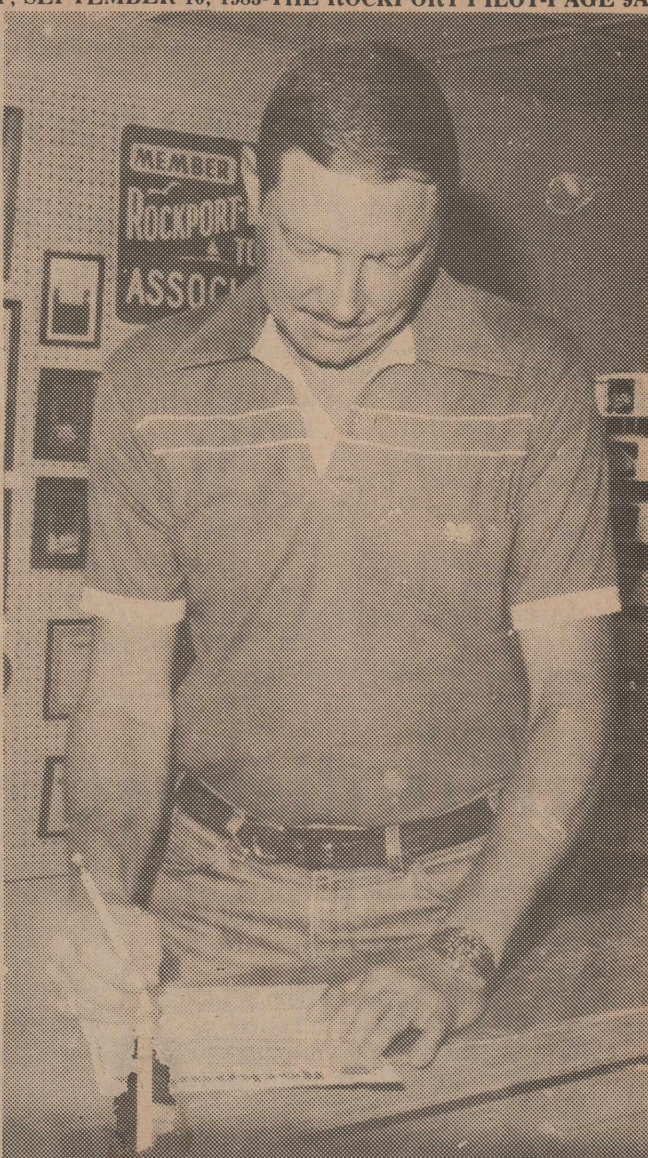

However, heavy concentration of population and industry breed conditions that continue to cause insect problems in our everyday lives. Modern remedies have been carefully developed and researched. Pesticides, such as Diazinon, when properly applied will help keep your home bug free.

To properly spray your home's foundation pay particular attention to corners, door and basement window moldings, and visible cracks and mortar-chinks. Walk around the house spraying the foundation three to four inches above the ground. Also, be sure to set the soil border along the foundation wall. The average foundation spraying requires about six gallons of mixture to produce an effective barrier.

Methods of insect control have come a long way since early American times. And it's certain that new and better methods will evolve as insects continue to be a part of our lives at home.

Good gardening until next week from your garden editor, Ted Brice!

With JOEY SASSO Confidential Report . . . "Dallas" producers are in a tizzy over the possibility that a collection of naughty videotapes filmed on the set and never meant to be screened publicly may be broadcast in England.

"They're really bent out of shape over this," said an insider close to Lorimar Productions, the company that produces the hit show. The videotapes were filmed when the cast was kidding around and Lorimar officials have been told that some of the scenes show at least one cast member nude and that there's a lot of obscenity.

"They don't really know what's on those tapes — that's what really worries them," the insider confided. "What they do know is that somebody has put a whole bunch of videotape clips together that were filmed on-ly for the amusement of the cast and crew, and were never intended for public viewing. Those tapes are now making the rounds in England."

According to one story, the tapes show Patrick Duffy, who plays Bobby Ewing, standing in a wardrobe stark naked. "They've also been told that there are scenes of Larry Hagman (J.R.), Linda Gray (Sue Ellen) and Barbara-Bel Geddes (Miss Ellie) singing an off color song.

"This cast works very hard on the set, for long hours. Kidding around like that helps relieve the pressure — the actors and actresses in most TV series do it all the time," the insider said. "Lots of times the cameras are rolling when the cast does goofy things and the videotapes are played later for everybody and they all get a big kick out of it. These tapes are supposed to be erased but every once in a while some guy in the crew will smuggle them out, either for showing to his friends, or, as in this case, to make a fast buck.

Oscar-Winning actor Cliff Robertson will star as a jet setting neurosurgeon on "Falcon Crest" next fall — and sources say he'll be the focus of some of the most shocking scenes ever aired on the show. "Cliff's role is a real eye-opener," a highly-placed insider told me.

"He'll play Michael Ranson, an ivy-league type of guy who's handsome and clean-cut, evil and good at the same time. He'll be solving, and causing, a lot of problems. And before it's over, he'll be entangled with everyone from Lorenzo Lamas to Jane Wyman to Lana Turner.

"The scripts are still being written, but I can assure you he'll be involved in some very shocking scenes. He'll add a lot of spice to the show."

Robertson, winner of a 1968 Academy Award for best actor in Charly, couldn't be happier about landing the job. "It's already a certified success and I'm thrilled to become a part of it," he declares. "I feel like I'm welcome back in Hollywood again."

Sportscast . . . Despite their off-field problems, the Dallas Cowboys and Cincinnati Bengals will win their respective conferences and meet in Tampa on January 24 in Super Bowl XVIII, with the Cowboys emerging as league champions.

So says OUI in its Pigskin Prophets: NFL '83 preview in the September issue. Other predictions: both the New York Jets and Giants will make the playoffs; eight head coaches will be fired by the end of the season; and Baltimore Colt coach Frank Kush will punch-out Denver Bronco quarterback John Elway and be suspended for the season by Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Also in the September OUI, former Cornell Stand-out and NFL running back Ed Marinaro, now receiving rave reviews for his role as Joe Coffey on TV's award-winning Hill Street Blues, talks about drugs, life after football and the threat of forced retirement that NFL management holds over every player.

Football fans won't want to miss the latest editions of Gameplan's College Football 1983 Annual Preview and Gameplan's Pro Football 1983 Annual Preview, now on sale at newsstands throughout the nation. Each issue contains the award-winning team analysis, game score predictions and forecasted finishes by Editor and Publisher Joe Del Popolo, winner of the 1982 Wyatt Award as the nation's most accurate pre-season football forecaster.

Joe's record, in simple terms, is phenomenal. He's won the Wyatt Award three times in the last dozen years, a performance that's unmatched in the world of football magazine publishing.

Joe's college book features a national preview, Top 20 selections, All-American choices and the exclusive Stat-Key Power Rating System. Joe sees Oklahoma, Notre Dame, Texas, Nebraska and Penn State battling it out for No. 1 . . . to be continued . . .

Inside Story . . . You'll be seeing some new but familiar faces on TV this fall. Hollywood legend Bette Davis, 75, will headline the star-studded cast of "Hotel," a new hour-long weekly ABC series based on Arthur Haley's smash hit movie.

Bette will play the aristocratic, but understated, owner of the hotel in what some predict will be a landlocked version of the TV hit "Love Boat."

Striking Ann Jillian, who was nominated for an EM-MY for her excellent TV portrayal of Mae West, joins the ranks of weekly series stars as the lovely ghost of a movie star in "Jennifer Slept Here." Ann haunts her only Hollywood house and helps guide one of the new owner's children — who's the only family member lucky enough to see her.

Insiders say the series is a take-off on the oldtime hit movie, "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir." Lucious Morgan Fairchild, whose "Flamingo Road" series ended last year, will be back to delight viewers in the "Hotel" series, joining superstar Davis to add a bit of spice to the show.

She's not new on her series, "The Fall Guy," but viewers should be happy to learn that stunning Heather Thomas will be back this fall in the hit program. She'll continue to co-star with Lee Majors.

Eye on TV . . . Jamie Farr is thrilled about reviving his role of Corporal Max Klinger on TV this fall in "After M*A*S*H" — and it's all because he hasn't forgotten how hungry he was before "M*A*S*H" debuted 11 years ago. "M*A*S*H" was the greatest thing that ever happened to me," he says. "I'll always be grateful to the show because it took me out of poverty and obscurity, and made me wealthy and famous.

"For 16 years, I struggled to make a name for myself in show business. I constantly worried about how I was going to support my wife and family, how I would pay the rent and put food on the table."

Joanna Carson's desperate bid to win back estranged hubby Johnny may be paying off, friends say. "Reconciliation is in the air," says one insider. "While even the thought of getting back together is a shock to Johnny and Joanna's friends, there's been talk of it around Beverly Hills and Bel Air. Of course, no one knows for sure, but word has it that Johnny and Joanna could be an item again. Maybe they've already worked out their differences."

Although Johnny has been seen with a number of Hollywood beauties since the separation, friends claim this is a cover-up for his lonely single life and a way to attract Joanna, who says she wants to forget the past few months.

"It surprised me, but it's true — she wants him back," says the insider.

Filming has been completed for "Two by Forsyth," adaptations of two short stories with surprising twist endings by Frederick ("Day of the Jackal," "Odessa File") Forsyth.

The two half-hour programs, "Privilege" and "A Careful Man" from Forsyth's "No Comebacks," will air as a double bill next spring on Mobil Showcase Network. Forsyth will introduce the stories.

Inside Cable TV . . . Arts will air an exclusive and extremely candid interview with author Seymour Hersh Sept. 16 in which Hersh accuses Henry Kissinger of trading human lives for political gain during the Nixon White House years.

"I really do think Henry Kissinger has to spend his evenings counting maimed and burned Vietnamese, Laotian, Thai, Bengalese, Chilean babies," Hersh says during the controversial interview on ARTS' "First Edition."

The half-hour show airs at 10:05 p.m. Friday, Sept. 16. "Nixon and Kissinger . . . conducted adventure after adventure for political gain basically and without ever once thinking of the human costs of their actions," says the author of "The Price of Power: Kissinger in the Nixon White House," the most talked-about and meticulously-documented book concerning Kissinger's political influence on Nixon.

"They never said if we invade Laos how many lives American, Vietnamese and other refugees, how much disruption will there be," says Hersh, a former investigative reporter with The New York Times. "They never asked themselves that question."

TV Ticker . . . "The biggest insult to a comedian is canned laughter and I have never used it and I never will. I don't want to get laughs that Fred Alled got 25 years ago." The speaker was The Great One — also known as Jackie Gleason — who was making his views known while at the Union Plaza Hotel in Las Vegas.

The famed comedian also had cue cards on his drop dead list. "I don't think anyone can act and read at the same time," he growled.

Gleason, whose childhood sounds like something out of Charles Dickens, lives the good life with his wife, Marilyn, in Fort Lauderdale today in a 14-room townhouse above a lake. But he figures he has earned all the good things he has.

"The day my mother was buried, my last relative, I walked out of the house with 30 cents in my pocket," he recalls. "I was on my own. I shared a dump room with two other guys and it had only one bed. We all shared 50-cent blue plate specials."

Gleason, who rose to fame and fortune on "The Honey-mooners" TV series, said one job he had as a kid called for him to dive 60 feet into a water tank. He did it just once and quit.

"I eventually got to Hollywood where I played in a lot of unforgettable gangster films," he chuckled. "I got $250-a-week, but had to buy my own ammunition."

Daytime-TV-Scene . . . If you're a regular viewer of CBS' "Guiding Light," then you are aware of the many changes the show is undergoing on all levels. Sadly, The Powers-That-Be recently decided to write off the pivotal, long-running character of Amanda Spaulding, brilliantly played by our own Kathleen Cullen.

Never one to let grass grow under her feet, the actress has already begun exploring other avenues for her considerable talents, and it's our bet that she won't be unemployed for long.

Back from his very successful run as El Gallo in the summer-stock production of "The Fantasticks" in Sullivan, Ill., a now-bearded (and even sexier!) Robert Newman has returned to his role as Josh Lewis on "Guiding Light." Asked if anything unusual happened while he was performing in the Midwest, Robert says everyone wondered if Middle America was ready for a show like "The Fantasticks" because it uses words like rape.

Every day, reveals the actor, the audience had a different reaction to it. "One of the weirdest moments I've ever had onstage was when we started a number that revolves around rape. A big fat man in a yellow shirt stood up in the second row and during the entire number argued with his wife about not wanting his 16-year-old daughter to see this. It was all very bizarre, because the play is so innocent. The word rape in context with the play means abduction. That man kind of destroyed the entire first act."

"On a more positive note, Robert reports that the other members of the audience were very receptive to him. "On opening night, I had that weird feeling in my stomach that I hadn't felt in the two years since I was last onstage. I walked out and smiled and everybody smiled right back at me. We just had a good time for two hours. Doing this play rejuvenated all of those things inside me that make me an actor in the first place."

The many fans who turned out to see Robert, he says, were extremely polite and he spent hours signing autographs.

Now that he's happily ensconced in New York again, Robert's looking forward to working with the new love interest "Guiding Light" will be bringing in for him. That should steam up the already red-hot soap!

Behind The Tube . . . Mad-cap Comedy star Lucille Ball would love to do another movie, but can't find a film script that isn't either crazy or dirty. The real problem is the writers, says the 71-year-old superstar best remembered for her TV series, "I Love Lucy."

"Sure I'd do a film," says Lucy, "but I don't want to make a 'Baby Jane' or a dirty one. I'd just like something good and decent," she says.

"Whatever Happened to Baby Jane" was a horror movie starring Bette Davis and Joan Crawford. Lucy sees lots of scripts that could become new vehicles for her many talents, but rejects them.

PUBLIC NOTICE

"On August 8, 1983, the Federal Communications Commission designated for hearing the applications of R-F Broadcasting Company and Laurie Ann Brotman for Channel 272A, 102.3 MHz for Rockport, Texas. Both applicants propose a power of 3 kw at 300 feet. The hearing is scheduled to take place Nov. 14, 1983 at 10:00 A.M. in the offices of the Federal Communications Commission, Washington, D.C. The issues in the hearing are as follows:

(1) To determine with respect to R-F Broadcasting Company: (a) the source and availability of necessary funds; and (b) Whether, in light of the evidence adduced pursuant to (a) above, the applicant is financially qualified.

(2) To determine whether there is a reasonable possibility that a tower height and location proposed by Brotman would constitute a hazard to air navigation.

(3) To determine which of the proposals would on a comparative basis, better serve the public interest.

(4) To determine in light of the evidence adduced pursuant to the foregoing issues, which of the applications should be granted, if either.

A copy of the application, amendments and related material are on file for public inspection at the offices of Rockport Realty, 1121 Broadway, Rockport, Texas, during normal operating hours between 9:00 A.M. and 5:00 P.M."

Nutritionist warns

Vitamin B-6 toxic in high doses

"Nutritionists have known for some time that vitamin B-6 is toxic at 200 milligrams per day," Haggard says, "and a study published this month in the New England Journal of Medicine shows that it can poison the nervous system, causing numbness and loss of coordination in arms and legs."
Other research has shown that when patients are withdrawn from very high doses of vitamin B-6, they require greater than average amounts of the vitamin just Taking large doses of vitamin B-6 can increase your body's need for the vitamin or even poison your nervous system, says nutritionist Marilyn Haggard.

The USDA's recommended daily intake for vitamin B-6 is 2-4 milligrams, but some people are taking 50-500 milligrams "mega-doses" of the vitamin, explains Haggard, a specialist with the Texas A&M University System's Agricultural Extension Service.

to maintain a normal level. In short, large doses of B-6 just increases the body's demand for it, says the specialist.
People often take large doses of vitamin B-6 as a cure for hormonal imbalances. But according to Haggard, there is no evidence showing the vitamin is effective in treating this type problem.
There's little danger that anyone eating a normal diet would become deficient in vitamin B-6, since it is found in liver, meat, whole grain cereals and many vegetables.

Some elderly people, pregnant women or women taking oral contraceptives occasionally experience a shortage of vitamin B-6. But a physician should diagnose and treat the problem with appropriate doses of the vitamin, says Haggard.
As with all other vitamins, people should not prescribe vitamin B-6 for themselves, cautions the specialist.

Utility district to consider tax rate

LAMAR — Consideration of the tax rate for the 1983-84 fiscal year is expected to be on the agenda when the Aransas County Municipal Utility District (ACMUD) board of directors meets this coming Tuesday, Sept. 13.
The meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. in the district's office on 8th Street in Lamar.
Also anticipated during the meeting will be a discussion of the audit for the fiscal year.

that ended this past July 31 and discussion of the contract with the district operator.
Steve Shenk, ACMUD director and secretary, said the tax rate the board will consider for the 1983-84 fiscal year "will probably be similar to last year's," which was $3.61 per $100 valuation.
Shenk is basing that on the fact that the valuation of property in the district shows "no great change from last year."

Figures released last month by Jack Groseclose, chief appraiser for the Aransas County Appraisal District, show a 1983 valuation of just over $3.7 million for property in the ACMUD compared to 1982 valuations of just under $3.46 million.

Lease

Co-op's request be declined, Maguglin said, "I feel the Navigation District has the same right and privilege as Mr. Jackson has. It seems to me if we don't act, the Jackson Trust will."

After Dominguez received an opinion from ACND attorney Reese Rozzell that the district could grant an option to lease to the Shrimp Co-op without having to immediately negotiate terms and price, Maguglin said, "Tonight I feel we need to go ahead with (granting) the option."

At that point his original motion was seconded by McKnight and the vote taken.

The Fulton Boat Ramp parking situation was placed on the agenda for discussion at the request of Commissioner Hal McKnight who said there have been "numerous complaints out there" about parked vehicles that block use of the boat ramp.

McKnight said signs have been posted at the ramp and a towaway zone created in an effort to solve the problem.

"The last time this (the boat ramp problems) came up, I made a motion that was defeated to fence this property in," McKnight said. "But a fence costs considerable money. Maybe this (the signs) will work."

"We have a good boat ramp if it can be utilized," he added later during the discussion. He subsequently suggested tabling any further action on the boat ramp for two weeks, until the navigation district's next meeting on Sept. 20.

In an item not on the agenda of Tuesday's meeting, Bob Biggs with the district Corps of Engineers announced that bids for dredging across Redfish Bay and shoaled up areas of Lydia Ann Channel had been opened on Aug. 10. The contract for the work was awarded to Loyd W. Richardson of Aransas Pass on Aug. 25. ACND commissioners added this is maintenance dredging, not the deepening of the channel which the district is presently seeking.

A request to re-assign the lease now held by Matagorda Drilling Co. in Cove Harbor to A&WI (Aransas Drilling & Workover Inc.) was approved following reading of a letter from an A&WI official stating the company has recently acquired the former Matagorda Drilling Co.

Also requested and approved was lease assignment of a tract in Fulton Harbor from Charlotte Plummer to Terry's Interstate Inc. Steve Cooper, representing Terry's Interstate, said the tract — used as a drain line for septic purposes — will be left in its existing state. "We have no intentions to put anything on it or do anything other than keep the green belt as it is," he said.

A request for lease assignment of Fulton submerged properties from Seachase Condominiums to Aransas View Ltd. was tabled for further study.

A request to transfer the lease of bait stand

34, R-35 in Rockport Harbor to Armando Cantillo was approved.

A request by Craig Hawkins for the ACND to designate an area off Fulton Beach Road for access into Little Bay was denied on a motion by Maguglin.

Hawkins told commissioners he wanted to use that area of Little Bay for sailboard lessons and rentals. Maguglin reminded Hawkins that area is a wildlife refuge and subsequently said, "I feel we should not grant this request. It is a wildlife refuge and I don't think that shoreline should be disturbed."

Maguglin's motion was seconded by McKnight and approved by unanimous vote of the commission.

Dominguez was approved as the ACND's representative to the Coastal Bend Council of Governments and the commissioners voted to begin scheduling regular meetings twice each month, on the first and third Tuesdays. The next session will be at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 20 and will be preceded by a workshop session at 6:30 p.m.

The commissioners asked Nelda Covarrubias, the district's secretary, to schedule a representative of Goldston Engineering on the Sept. 20 workshop agenda to report on costs of rewiring Rockport Harbor.

A request for a transfer of Donald Nicholas' lease on Water/Market Street property to Jim Kimbrow, originally scheduled for the Sept. 6 meeting, was cancelled prior to the meeting.

Budget

Rockport recreation-repair/maintenance (Fulton). Insurance and bonds are budgeted in both accounts and are expected to total $5,000 in costs to the district. The bond debt, also taken from both accounts, will total $6,330.

Other expenses budgeted under both accounts include legal fees, $20,000; fuel costs, $7,000; telephone, $2,200; utilities, $24,000; office expense, $2,800; travel and car allowance, $10,500; employee retirement plan, $9,587; miscellaneous supplies, $8,000; garbage disposals, $2,800; and payment to the Aransas County Appraisal Service and tax collection, $6,214.

An anticipated $2,200 is budgeted in the tax account fund for Fulton security and the Ski

Patman responds to Korean jetliner incident

Congressman Bill Patman issued the following statement following President Reagan's nationwide TV talk last Monday night, Sept. 5, concerning the shooting down of the Korean jetliner by Russia.
"I have wired President

Reagan that I will be happy to co-sponsor the joint resolution that he requested from Congress condemning the Soviet Union's barbaric crime.

"I am sure there will be overwhelming bipartisan support for the resolution, and I will work for that.

"The president has clearly decided that the most effective weapon for retaliation against the Soviet Union for this dastardly deed is world opinion. So he used his speech to sharpen and strengthen the negative reaction that most of the countries of the world have quickly and appropriately expressed.

"I also think the president showed wisdom, stature and, above all, a thoughtful prudence in warning that we must put our national commitment to justice and responsible and constructive action ahead of the more emotional impulse toward vengeance that tends to engulf us all in the face of an unforgivable outrage like this."

Tap water may be beneficial to infant teeth

Powdered infant formula mixed with flouridated tap water is preferable to ready-to-use formula because fluoride helps prevent cavities, according to an article in the journal Texas Medicine.

Dr. Basil K. Byrne, an El Paso pediatrician who wrote the editorial, notes that infant-formula producers removed fluoride from their products during the 1970s because of "a lessening of enthusiasm, perhaps even some backlash, for wholesale fluoridation."

He explains that an American Academy of Pediatrics committee recommended that all formulas be made with water low in fluoride so that pediatricians could decide whether a supplement was needed.

"This approach, however, offers no protection to the infant who does not visit a pediatrician (children's doctor) or a pedodontist (children's dentist) in the early months or whose doctor does not inquire into water intake or consider recommending a fluoride supplement," Byrne writes.

"To encourage the use of powdered formula and local water would be a start toward correcting the problem," he says, adding that powdered formula costs 50 cents per quart less than ready-to-use formulas.

The article appears in the July issue of Texas Medicine, the monthly journal of the Texas Medical Association. Byrne is an associate professor of pediatrics at the Regional Academic Health Center of the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

Whether the tap water added to the infant formula contains fluoride depends on the local water supply.

Government statistics from 1975 showed that nearly 60 percent of Texans drank water containing fluoride either occurring naturally or added to water systems. That figure rated high nationally but did not include Houston, which recently added fluoride to its water supply. Among major Texas cities, Dallas, Fort Worth, Corpus Christi, and Austin all add fluoride to their water.

Trombonist Andrew Russell to perform at CCSU Sept. 14

CORPUS CHRISTI — Trombonist Andrew M. Russell will perform in concert Sept. 14 at 8:15 p.m. in Corpus Christi State University's Center for the Arts Warren Theatre.

His program will consist of: "Concertino" (1957), "Preludium," "Aria" and "Finale" by Larsson; "Capriccio" (1946) by Bonneau; "Animus I" (1967) by Druckman, and "Fantasie Concertante" (1960) by Casterede.

Accompanying Russell, an assistant professor of music at the University of Texas-Arlington, will be Pierrette Mouldous of Eastfield College.

A native Texan, Russell was active in his hometown band program in the lower Rio Grande Valley and was chosen twice as the solo trombonist in the Texas All-

State Band. He continued his study with Albert Lube at the University of Houston and Thomas Beversdorf at Indiana University. At IU, he earned his master's degree and performer's certificate.

He performs with the Ft. Worth Symphony and Ft. Worth Opera and spends his summers teaching at the National Music Camp in Interlochen, Mich.

Texas crude production down in first half of 1983

AUSTIN — Texas crude oil production decreased by just over half of one percent during the first half of this year as compared to the same period last year, according to preliminary reports to the Railroad Commission.

The latest production totals available show that oil production totaled 432,987,257 barrels during the first six months of 1983.

Through June of 1982, Texas produced 435,533,131 barrels of oil.

In June 1983, Texas crude oil production totaled 70,214,469 barrels. The state produced 72,558,167 barrels in May 1983 and 71,358,946 barrels in June 1982.

Texas oil production averaged 2,340,484 barrels in June, up from 2,332,490 barrels daily in May but down from 2,378,632 barrels daily in June 1982.

The June 1983 production allowable totaled 91,384,829 barrels. The state's oil production was 23.17 percent under the allowable for the month.

The state's top producing counties in June were Pecos, 4,126,037 barrels; Ector, 3,661,983; Gaines, 3,647,884; Yoakum, 3,603,512; Andrews, 3,158,923; Gregg, 3,122,911; Hockley, 3,065,756; Scurry, 2,489,913; Crane, 2,102,655; and Refugio, 1,878,662.

PUBLIC NOTICE

PUBLIC NOTICE

A Public Hearing on Proposed City Budget for Fiscal Year 1983-1984 is hereby called for September 13th and September 20, 1983 at 7:00 P.M. in Fulton Town Hall. Said Budget will include Federal Entitlement Funds in Revenue Sharing Trust of approximately $4,500.00 and approximately $2,500.00 anticipated funds. Citizens attending shall have the right to provide written and/or oral comments and suggestions respecting possible use of entitlement funds.

s/L.E. Casterline, Mayor s/Lucille J. Hinson, City Secretary

PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice of Hearing

The mutually-exclusive applications of R-F Broadcasting Company and Lori Ann Brotman for construction permit for a new FM broadcast station to operate on channel 272A at Rockport, Texas, have been designated for hearing before the Federal Communications Commission in Washington, D.C. on November 14, 1983 at 10 a.m. upon the following issues:

- To determine with respect of R-F Broadcasting Company: (a) the source and availability of necessary funds; and (b) whether, in light of the evidence adduced pursuant to (a) above, the applicant is financially qualified.
- To determine whether there is a reasonable possibility that the tower height and location proposed by Brotman would constitute a hazard to air navigation.
- To determine which of the proposals would on a comparative basis, better serve the public interest.

A copy of the application, amendments, and related materials of R-F Broadcasting Company, is on file for public inspection at:

724 Rowan Street Rockport, Texas

PUBLIC NOTICE

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE is hereby given that the City Council, meeting in Regular Session on August 23, 1983, did set the date of September 20, 1983 for a Public Hearing on the Proposed Budget for the City of Rockport, Texas for the fiscal year of 1983-1984.

Also to be heard at this Public Hearing will be the relationship of the Revenue Sharing Funds for the 15th Entitlement Period and the Proposed Budget. Estimated Revenue Sharing Funds to be received from the Government for the 15th Entitlement Period is $2,736; same based on revenues received during the 14th Entitlement Period as the City has not been advised of amount as of this date, pending passage of bill by Congress. The proposed uses of said funds are as follows: $21,736 for purchase for two (2) new police vehicles and $27,000 as partial payment for purchase of new garbage truck.

Copies of the Proposed Budget for the 1983-1984 fiscal year and estimated allocation from the Government and appropriations for Revenue Sharing Funds for the 15th Entitlement Period can be viewed at the City Hall on weekdays from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. from September 13, 1983 to September 20, 1983.

The public has a right to provide written and oral comments on the entire budget and ask questions concerning the relationship of revenue sharing to the proposed budget for 1983-84.

The Public Hearing will be held in the Council Chambers, City Hall, Rockport, Texas, at 7:00 p.m. on September 20, 1983.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE

Lamar Water Supply Corporation has filed a Sewer Utility Application for a Certificate of Convenience and Necessity to furnish sewer service to the Sea Gun Complex, a 13.0 acre subdivision located at the southeast corner of Highway 35 and Park Road 13, Aransas County, Texas, effective September 30, 1983.

The proposed rate schedule is as follows: Residential: $15.00 monthly Commercial: $50.00 monthly

ANYONE OPPOSED TO THE APPLICATION:

a. May file a written complaint with the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 450N, Austin, Tx 78757, (512) 458-0100, stating the reasons for opposition.

b. May file with the Commission and with applicant Utility a notice of intent to participate in a Public Hearing, either filing should be made prior to the intended effective date of the proposed rate or tariff change.

Oscar Rohne, Authorized Representative 1510 W. North Loop #512 Austin, TX 78756

PUBLIC NOTICE

ADDENDUM TO PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE is hereby given that the following request will also be heard at the Joint Public Hearing to be held by the City Council and the City Planning and Zoning Commission on September 27, 1983 at 7:00 p.m. at the City Hall.

3. Request of Murray C. McMillan for the rezoning of 1.0399 acres (151' x 300') from R-1 Residential to R-7 Residential and Office District in order to utilize the land for construction of additional offices; this property located on the corner of Glass and Percival Avenues. Property is zoned R-1 as per annexation Ordinance No. 601 dated June 14, 1983; and the present offices were constructed prior to annexation and are non-conforming.

Any interested party attending the Joint Public Hearing shall have the opportunity to be heard.

ATTEST: Herman C. Johnson, City Manager

YOU AND YOUR HEALTH

by Peter J. Esse, M.D. Dear Dr. Esse: My 15-year-old son thought he had a heart attack. He came home from school one day complaining of pain in his chest. He has a friend whose father just had a coronary attack. Perhaps that's where he got the idea. But my husband and I were surprised because he has been such a healthy boy, a star football player in high school who never complained of anything before. We've tried to figure out what brought it on. Our doctor says his heart is fine. Perhaps stress over his favorite grandfather's recent death was a factor. After a few weeks, the pain disappeared, but we still wonder if many youngsters with chest pain think they're having a heart attack. Mrs. R.

Dear Mrs. R.: Your son's case is not unusual. When children are very young, rarely do they see themselves as being vulnerable to adult disease. But the closer they get to being "grown up," the more likely will they consider that they also may have adult illness. Recent studies prove this. A news release from the American Academy of Pediatrics indicates that chest pain in adolescents is a common symptom that is usually benign. Yet, many youngsters fear the chest pain is a heart attack. In one hundred youngsters studied, it was found that "stressful events, such as a death in the family, major illness, an accident, family separations and school changes occurred in 31 percent of these patients." Examination indicated that the source of the chest pain was a "musculoskeletal syndrome" - referred pain from bone or muscle. An important part of the treatment is alleviating the youngster's fears.

FENCE LAWS

Good fences may make good neighbors, but a knowledge of fencing rights can keep good neighbors on good terms.

For instance, the use a landowner can make of an adjacent neighbor's fence depends upon whether it is an exterior fence or a partition fence. Exterior fences are erected completely on land owned by the constructor. Partition fences are located on the division line between two tracts of land.

A landowner may not use an adjacent neighbor's exterior fence as a partition fence unless and until consent is obtained by the fence's owner. However, the same landowner may use a neighbor's partition fence without consent and without incurring liability, provided no injury occurs.

If you are planning on putting up or taking down a boundary-line fence, you may want to consult an attorney, as well as your neighbor.

HOMEOWNER RECORDS

For a variety of financial and legal reasons, it is important that you keep good records on your house, especially records concerning its purchase and ownership.

These include receipts for money paid on or before the closing, a copy of the mortgage note or deed of trust, your copy of the deed, your warranties on the house and any FHA- or VA-related documents. Insurance records should include a copy of your hazard or homeowner's insurance policy, your mortgage, life or flood insurance policies, and a list of your personal property in the home and its value.

You should also keep records of the money you spend on maintenance, repairs and home improvements.

You would be wise to store many of these records in a safe-deposit box. That way, they will be available for your use, even if - for some catastrophic reason - your house is not.

CHECK SCHOOL SYSTEM BEFORE BUYING HOUSE

If you are in the market for a home and have school-age children, the quality of the schools they will attend is important. How do you size up a school system? Your real estate agent can give you some general impressions.

Here are some questions to ask. Does the district attract and retain good teachers? What percentage of local graduates go on to college? What is the rating of students in the local system on national achievement tests? What is the level of education of the local citizenry? What is the response of the local citizenry to school tax levies? How much is spent per child, compared to other systems? Is there a well-developed local vocational education system? Remember, an attractive school system can provide you and your family with a significant contribution toward a pleasant living environment.

STREAM OWNERSHIP

Landowners with streams along or across their property may have wondered about their right to restrict persons from using the stream. The answer depends on ownership of the stream bed. This ownership depends on when the state granted the land to private individuals, the size of the stream and its navigability.

If the land was granted prior to 1837, and the stream is constant, the stream bed belongs to the state. If the stream is not constant, the landowner owns the stream bed.

However, if the land was granted after 1837 and the stream has an average width of 30 feet, the state owns the stream bed. If the same stream is less than 30 feet wide but navigable, the state owns the stream bed. For property granted after 1837, the landowner owns only non-navigable streams. For further information, contact an attorney.

REAL ESTATE COURSES

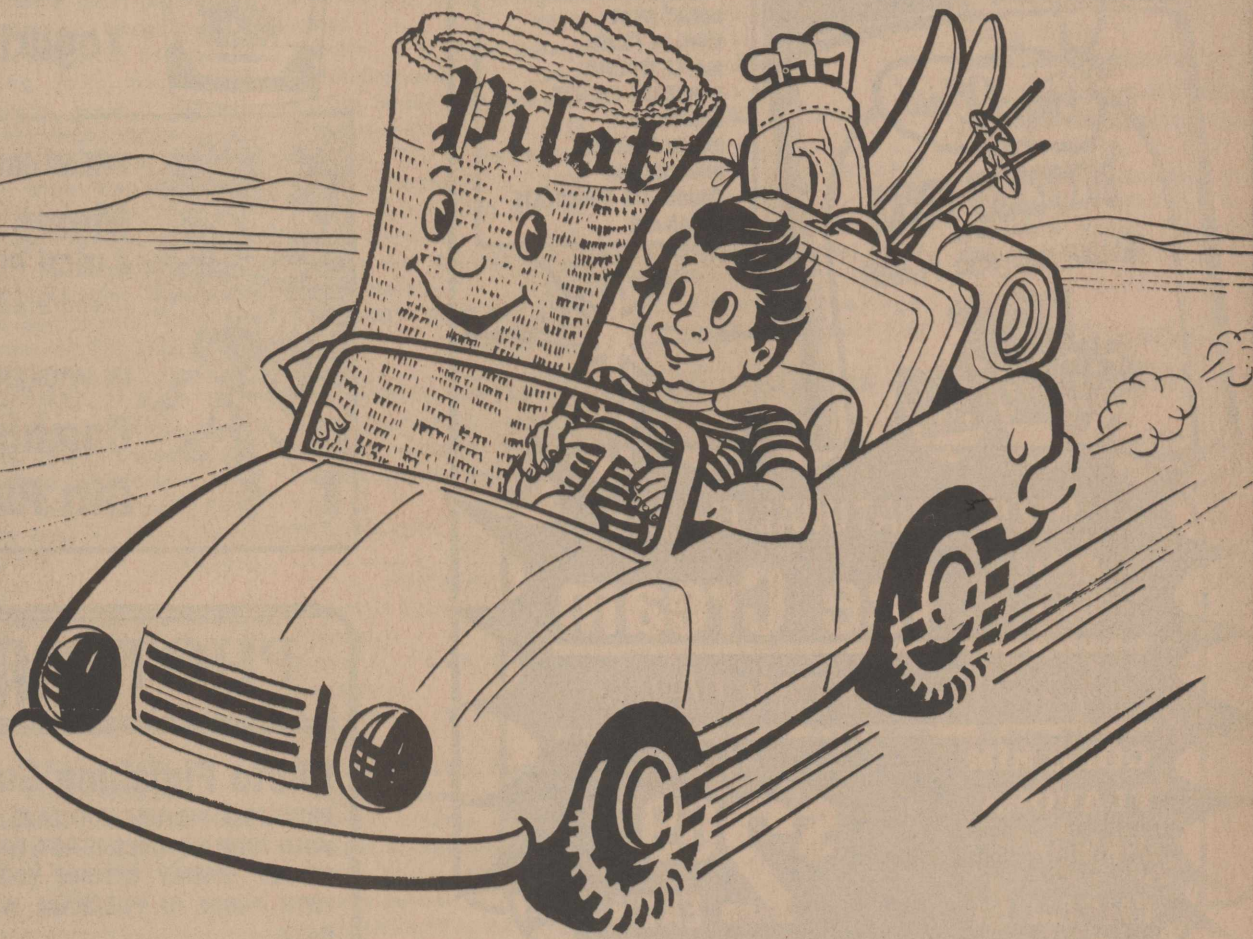

Interested in finding out more about the real estate profession? Last year, more than 25,000 Texans were enrolled in community college real estate courses. These courses ranged from real estate principles to property management and real estate investment analysis.

Fifty Texas community colleges now offer an associate degree in real estate. Each of these colleges offers six to 10 separate real estate courses which can be used to meet the educational requirements for a real estate license. Current requirements for a license include completion of six semester hours of core real estate courses and six semester hours of related courses.

After receiving a license, an individual must complete an additional six hours of real estate core courses. For more information about earning a license, contact the community college nearest you, or send $1 to the Texas Real Estate Research Center, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843-2115, and ask for publication #182.

The Real Estate Consumer is brought to you as a public service by this newspaper and the Texas Real Estate Research Center. Address inquiries to: The Real Estate Consumer, Texas Real Estate Research Center, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843-2115.

GBHS and Schulz had Edwards in mind when he first surveyed the 1982 Pirates' weak defense.

"I wanted someone who could come in and do a good job on defense. He was the best for the position and he's done a super job."

Also joining the Pirate coaching staff this year are JV and freshmen coaches Tom Carrerra and Mark Hiller. Schulz hopes this new blood will augment the already proven strengths of returning coaches Bill Daws, Bob Gore and Ronnie Ormand to give the community the winning team it deserves. "I've got the best staff in the district," states a confident Schulz.

Despite the presence of ultra-strong players like Dwayne Walls, Scott

Russ, Ramon Romero and others, Schulz emphasizes that the Pirates are not a one or two-man team. "Every time Dwayne makes a run, somebody's blocking for him. Everyone backs up each other. Everybody is the team."

While acknowledging the value of a strong junior varsity and freshman squad to the overall program, Schulz points out that the varsity "is the top."

"That's every player's dream — to make the varsity." Accordingly, the varsity has its own dressing room and other "rewards."

"That's not to say that every team isn't important. The whole program is what's important because it's what's important to the community. Athletics has an input to people."

The new head coach and former All-American makes his point: "Last Friday night at half time, I was talking to the team and I told them, 'Look around. You want to know who's going to be at your high school 10 or 20-year reunion? The guy sitting next to you, that's who. These are the friends you're going to remember. You'll remember these people."

"You'll remember this football program."

THE MAN WHO WASN'T THERE, from Paramount Pictures. Directed by Ruth Malmuth. Starring Steve Guttenberg, Bill Forsyth. Rated 'R'

By J.T. YURKO

Three-D movies seem to have nine lives. Even after the onslaught of such quickly forgettable epics as "Friday, the 13th" in 3-D and even "Jaws 3," movies that make you wear funny glasses keep rolling out.

The films use a variety of settings and locales, but it helps the 3-D effect if people on-screen keep throwing things at the camera. One wonders how many lenses have been destroyed in the quest for the ultimate 3-D effect. Thus movies that have a great deal of action are usually the first to be thought of when the producer has 3-D in mind.

Why, therefore, might you ask is a film like "The Man Who Wasn't There" filmed in 3-D? This is a good question, since few shots in the film use the 3-D effect. But a better question to ask is why was this movie made at all? "The Man Who Wasn't There" should have been the movie that wasn't there.

The story is a lame little tale that would have been turned down as an episode of "Get Smart." Take a few spies, a formula that makes people invisible, a few thugs, a hero, a heroine, and mix well. Stanford Sherman's script has few gags (if the film was meant as a comedy), few thrills (if the film was meant as a thriller), and not enough epidermis to make it soft porn.

Director Ruth Malmuth makes fine use of Washington, D.C. locations, but her idea of narrative form is to throw people into a scene and make them look busy until the next scene.

As for special effects, the original "Invisible Man" from 1933 was far more clever in the use of cigarettes floating in the air or footprints in the snow to show the invisible man. The whole idea, however, is self-defeating. If the character is invisible, 7-D wouldn't help the effect, and this film needs all the help it can get.

1983 Football Preview

Aubrey Schulz

"Athletics has an input to people."

R-F Pirates are an asset to their community

"A football player doesn't just go out there and knock heads — he's learning things in football that he can't learn anywhere else.

"We're developing a Class A citizen in this program."

Starting his first season at Rockport-Fulton, Head Coach Aubrey Schulz is building a football team that not only has sound athletic prowess but superior mental confidence and enthusiasm.

He believes his players bring an identity to the entire community and in return, he feels the community should turn out and support its youth.

"I always tell them everyone's watching them on Friday night," says Schulz of the team. "Tell them they're the main attraction."

"And they are. I think you can compare this to SeaFair or the Fourth of July. The community is getting together for one purpose. It just does something to people. They're going to say "This is my town. This is my team."

Schulz emphasizes, "The kids know that and it does a lot for them. They are the first to tell you if you don't have a big crowd. But when they look up in those stands and see them full like last Friday night, they feel good. That enthusiasm goes hand in hand with a good hitting ball team.

"Because they are going to find a way to win."

Even at the start of his tenure here, Schulz has reason to be enthusiastic. With two preseason scrimmages won and a first-game-of-the-season victory over Aransas Pass to the Pirates' credit, the coach admits to optimism. "I'm more optimistic than I've been at this point with other teams."

Named as head coach in February, Schulz moved with his wife Kimberlee from Galveston, where he was the offensive coordinator for Galveston Ball High School. During his five years at GBHS, the 1976 Baylor graduate also coached offensive and defensive lines.

Schulz's career at Baylor was highlighted by his being named Most Valuable Offensive Lineman, All-Conference Center and First Team All-American Center.

Included in adjustments to his beginning RFHS staff was Schulz's bringing aboard new defensive coordinator Blake Edwards. The two had worked together at

ARIES

(March 21-April 20) Watch an associate's reaction concerning your financial proposals. Social engagements might require you to shop for new clothes.

TAURUS

(April 21-May 21) Follow your intuition regardless of the facts presented to you in a situation where someone might not be on the up and up. People you haven't seen for quite a while could show up suddenly on your doorstep.

GEMINI

(May 22-June 21) Maintaining peaceful family relations with a temperamental relative might require more patience and self-control than you possess. Your feelings toward an older person could become more positive.

CANCER

(June 22-July 23) Legal affairs should be tended to with great attention being given to details. Disguise your true feelings to keep from hurting someone close.

LEO

(July 24-Aug. 23) A comical series of misunderstandings leave you chuckling with amusement. Getting away could give you some fresh get up and go in your way of thinking.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24-Sept. 23) Taking a political stand on a hot topical issue could annoy friends who are in opposition. Keep your viewpoints out of the relationships. Financial affairs should be watched closely.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24-Oct. 23) Your desire to spend money as fast as you make it should be suppressed as much as possible. Proceed with caution in a relationship with an older person.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Maintaining your credibility with a snobbish associate might not be easy. Be on your guard. Family gatherings offer you a source of relaxation and enjoyment.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Work commitments demand more of your time than usual. Rewards for your efforts are forthcoming.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22-Jan. 20) Seeking emotional support from loved ones could backfire. Depend upon no one except yourself for the time being. An ambitious colleague might jeopardize a business plan you are attempting to put into action. Move cautiously and deliberately.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21-Feb. 19) Beware of strangers bearing gifts. While they may glitter like gold there could be a high price tag attached to them.

PISCES

(Feb. 20-March 20) The answer to a puzzling situation will soon be unveiled although it may not turn out the way you think. Try not to be surprised.

 (7) (36) Hello, Jerusa-

Dear Debbie

DEAR DEBBIE

I have a problem that I am very concerned about. My husband and I are both retired senior citizens. The problem is that my husband has stated that he wants to be cremated at his death. I do not agree with this. I prefer a gravesite. I know that everyone has the right to do or have done as he or she wishes when death comes. However, the idea of cremation does not agree with my ideals and I have tried to talk him out of it, but his mind is made up. His sisters do not like the idea either and think I should be able to talk him out of it, although they do not get anywhere when they discuss it with him.

WORRIED WIFE

While I do indeed empathize with you, I'm afraid I have to take your husband's side on this. As you said, people have a right to choose how they want to be buried. This is a very sensitive subject and I believe everyone should have the respect shown them toward their wishes that is due. "Talking him out of it" is not the same as getting him to change his mind about what to have for supper. This is a serious, personal issue. Not even a wife has the right to change a husband's decision concerning this and vice versa.

DEAR DEBBIE:

I am 28-years-old and a mother of two. I was married to a great man for nine years. My husband wasn't perfect, but no one is.

One day he came home and told me he no longer loved me. He loved the kids, but just couldn't take care of them. He left a few days later.

He had a good job at the time, but he started drinking and using drugs. He also turned gay. When I first found out he was going to bed with other men, it upset me. When he found out I knew, he was even more upset.

Now after a long year of great pain and a divorce, he came back. He lost his job, but he says he still loves me and never stopped. He was just very mixed up when he left. He claims he no longer uses drugs and is not gay anymore. I so much want to believe him. I still love him very much. I'm not sure what I should do. I feel it's wrong to love him the way I do after all he has said and done.

WRONG TO LOVE DEAR WRONG:

There's a lot between the lines in your letter. The first thing that hit me was what you said at the very end. You feel it's "wrong to love him...after all he has said and done." Whether you're aware of it or not, you are harboring a great deal of resentment toward him. If you are indeed to get back together again, you must face that.

While I will not tell you to leave him, I must point out a few things to you. I find it odd that he has suddenly come back after losing his job. It would probably be very convenient for him to have you to take care of him again. Also, he claims he is no longer using drugs or drinking. Do you know this to be a fact? Alcoholics and drug abusers are very clever liars. They can't help it. It's just part of the disease. He also states he's not gay "anymore." While I'm no expert, I have to say I feel a person is gay or they're not. They don't simply turn off being gay without some kind of rehabilitative therapy. If they do, they weren't gay in the first place. Hopefully, that's the case with your husband. However, if he is gay or bi-sexual, he will sleep with men again.

Consider all these things before taking him back. If you do, both of you must seek professional help. You won't be able to patch this up without it. Good luck.

Vintage Chart Available

* Most vintage charts are prepared by wine associations or importers, and while they almost always provide useful guidelines for the wine-buyer, they also tend to be uniformly positive about all wines listed. Independent wine critics, who are more critical and less biased about specific regions and years, are apt to produce a vintage chart that's somewhat tougher in tasting ratings. Such a chart has just come out. Called "The 1983 Drinkability Odds Chart," it lists 33 categories for the last 22 vintages, including California, Italy, the Pacific Northwest, New York, Spain, Portugal, Germany and France, in a handy pocket size. You can get one of your own by sending $1 to: 1983 Chart, P.O. Box 285, Ithaca, N.Y. 14851.

The chart rates current drinkability as well as indicating those vintages that are most likely to improve with age and how long to age them — indicating that the average American wine cellar or storing place is at a temperature of 65 degrees F, and that for every two degrees below that in your cellar, you should add a year of storing time.

Best all-time vintages are listed for each growing area, and for many wines, current drinkability is distinguished from potential drinkability with separate ratings worked into a system that suggests whether the wine is likely to reach its peak flavor within five years or from five to ten years.

Numerical ratings correspond to descriptions in gamblers' parlance which can give one the feeling that wine-buying is as risky as spinning a roulette wheel, and as unpredictable. It needn't be, especially with useful vintage charts like this one available.

SOAPS

All My Children: Bonnie tried to bake with Mark's mysterious powder. Jenny saw Tony as a real hero when he protected her during a robbery. Tad continued his relationship with Marian. Coming: Changes in Bonnie's behavior lead to investigation.

Another Life: Sebastian lashed out at Lee for endangering his public image. Lee and Andrea continued to see each other secretly. Dan Myers told Nancy he will investigate her story. Carla saw a stranger in a dark suit leaving the Carpenter home. Coming: Dave is tempted to start drinking again.

Another World: In Washington, D.C., Sandy, Jeremiah and Jack tried to second-guess each other. Larry planned to go under cover. The doctor told Sally that Donna wanted information on the baby she gave up for adoption. Coming: Felicia plans to use drugs as the subject of her next novel.

As The World Turns: Miranda continued to put up excuses to both Antoine and Bob. Franny continued to find ways to trip her up. Whit's plot got an unexpected show of support. Coming: Miranda decides to tell Antoine her secret. She also realizes she has to tell Bob a secret, too.

Capitol: Paula's condition took a strange turn, prompting Mark to make a statement that puzzled Clarissa. Matt insisted he knew what he was doing, much to the chagrin of his family. Myrna continued to play on Paula's fears for her future. Coming: Fran feels betrayed by the way Amy acts.

Days Of Our Lives: Fearing that David may be suspected for killing Renee in a fit of rage, Julie confessed to the murder to protect her son. Maggie made plans to remarry Mickey. Eugene and Trista also made wedding plans. Coming: Maggie gets good advice, but doesn't take it.

Edge Of Night: Showing all the symptoms of a nervous breakdown, Didi attacked Cliff with a letter opener. Miles and Chris were in separate rooms at an out-of-town motel. Nancy told Mike she finished her novel. Coming: Mike makes a decision about the election. Monticello begins to act strangely.

General Hospital: Monica freaked when Heather told her she was going to Nevada to see her sick son and would leave Jason with Allan. Jerrold made a will naming Grant as his sole heir. As Grant prepared to shoot him, a shot rang out anyway and Jerrold fell dead. Coming: Celia is placed in danger again.

Guiding Light: Alan was sure he knew what he had to do regarding the blackmail threat. The mystery of Bill's death continued to haunt Bert while Nola insisted that Quint follow her hunch about the situation. Kelly and Claire shared some more "meaningful" small talk. Coming: Vanessa starts making her own inquiries.

Loving: Lorna was sure she could make Roger change his mind if she reminded him about his earlier plans to take Merrill to his hunting lodge. Garth was surprised at Lilly's reaction to his demands. Rita Mae continued to make up alibis for her whereabouts. Coming: Vanessa starts making her own inquiries.

One Life To Live: Clint confronted Echo at a bridge. A devastating result followed. Becky's physical condition worsened. Coming: Asa blames Bo for causing new complications.

Ryan's Hope: Rae and Frank forgave each other for past problems. Bess got a call from Maggie. Bill dated Siobhan and introduced her to his mother. Coming: Delia makes plans to keep Frank and Jill away from her son, little John.

Search For Tomorrow: Joanne continued to struggle against her sadistic kidnapper. Wendy continued to try to win Warren's attention. Stephanie continued to find Lloyd's attention diverting. Coming: Travis and Liza take a step to insure their baby's future and find an unexpected complication.

Young & The Restless: Allison's plans for Victoria began to take shape much to Nikki's chagrin. She thought about asking Kevin to find out what was happening. Julia thought Victor expected too much at this time. Coming: Victor explains himself, but Julia gets another story from someone else.

"I've cut my hair!" says 23-year-old Willie Aames, as an example of the depth of his commitment to his new role as bad guy Robbie Hamlin on "Edge of Night."
As a curly-locked lad, Aames became both the quintessential all-American boy and a full-blown teen idol playing Tommy Bradford on the long-running series "Eight Is Enough."
"Robbie's a 'smiling killer,'" Aames says of his new role. "For me it's a total change — and a challenge. Recently I've been trying to cross the bridge from juvenile roles to adult ones. It's not hard to play a kid if you're really a kid. But playing an adult — and a bad one at that — that's the trick!"

Aames couldn't ask for a better opportunity than working on "Edge." His role was specifically created by the show's producers and writers for him, something that's not usually done on daytime TV, where auditioning for an already written role is the norm.

"Edge" producer Jacqueline Haber met Aames in California while she was attending the wrap party for a pilot for the "Tom Swift/Linda Craig Mystery Hour." That show

MEDICINE CHEST

Your Professional:
Troy True, Reg. Pharmacist

You stated in a previous column that medications other than aspirin are available to relieve arthritis pain. How can I get a list of them. — J.H.

The medicines you are referring to are: motrin, nalfon, naprosyn and tolectin. These medicines require a prescription. Your physician can tell you if you would benefit more from these medicines than from aspirin.

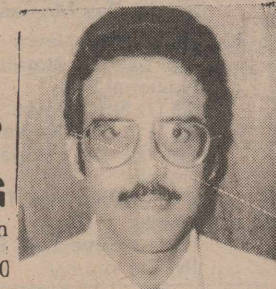

I am on several different prescription drugs. When I call the pharmacy for refills, they don't put on the label the original directions. They put "take as directed" instead. It is sometimes difficult to remember, especially for senior citizens, just what the original directions were. Don't you think they should put the original directions on the label. — A.G.

Yes, definitely. Ask them. If the pharmacist refuses, take your business elsewhere.

How does estrogen hormones cause cancer.

Latest thinking on how it occurs it that the hormones makes the body tissue more susceptible to develop a cancer. The longer the tissue is being stimulated by hormones the greater the chances for the development of cancer. Experimental evidence is very strong in supporting this method of cancer development.

Willie Aames spices up 'Edge of Night'

Willie Aames

co-starred Aames with Lori Loughlin, who for the last four years, has played Jody

Travis on "Edge."
"I loved working with Lori and when she introduced me to Jackie I said I would love to work on 'Edge of Night.'"

Now he is the foil in the Jody-Preacher Emerson love story.

"I'll be playing lots of dirty tricks on the people of Monticello," promises Aames, who is committed to the show for 13 weeks. After that he's committed to making a film with Linda Blair in Manila called "Pitz."

"But after that, I'd love to come back to 'Edge,'" he says.

HART TO HART

A beautiful Bahamian vacation becomes shrouded in mystery and murder when Jonathan and Jennifer Hart (Robert Wagner and Stefanie Powers) accept the invitation of a celebrated recluse, in the "Bahama Bound Harts" episode of "Hart to Hart," airing TUESDAY, SEPT. 13 on ABC.

'Three's Company's' origins

By Kate Woods

Can you tell me how long "Three's Company" has been on the air and if the new English series "Man About the House" is based on it? — S.S.

First, "Man About the House," which is now being shown on American TV, is not new. You're seeing episodes from the original series. "Three's Company" was derived from the British show, and started as a mid-season entry on ABC in March of '77.

HORRORS — What was the horror show that Boris Karloff produced in the '60s? I often think about it and remember it being scary. — B.L.

The anthology series was "Thriller," but Karloff did not actually produce it. He served as host and sometime star during its two-year run from 1960-'62. The NBC entry was pretty scary; a colleague of mine swears that the episode "Pigeons from Hell" was the best spook story ever told on TV.

FOR BLUE EYES — Where can I write to Frank Sinatra? We are from the same era and the same area — Hoboken, N.J. — A.V.

All correspondence for the Chairman of the Board should be sent in care of Lee Solters at Solters, Roskin and Friedman, 9255 Sunset Blvd., Suite 318, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

TRACY'S MOM — I know that Rick Nelson is Tracy Nelson's father, but who is her mother? — J.D.

The mother of "Square Pegs' " Valley Girl is Kris Harmon, the All-American girl who also played Ricky's wife on "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet" before the show got canceled and the marriage broke up. Kris' brother Mark, by the way, has been signed for a regular role on "St. Elsewhere" this season.

Julia Duffy

Julia Duffy adds life to 'Newhart'

With her combination of good looks and her wild comic sense, Julia Duffy is reminiscent of such actress-comedians as Carole Lombard and Kay Kendall.

Miss Duffy, you'll recall, played the petite, virginal princess with a headdress nearly as tall as she, in CBS' "Wizards and Warriors."

"We made eight of those," she says, "and after the fourth one had been on the air, I was called and offered a regular role on 'Newhart.' That's how I knew 'Wizards and Warriors' was going off."

On "Newhart," Miss Duffy plays Stephanie Vanderkellen, the cousin of Leslie Vanderkellen.

Says Miss Duffy: "I can't remember ever wanting to be anything else than a performer. I was about 10 and the family had no money but my mother said I could take dancing lessons, which was so exciting. But a little girlfriend of mine said her mother was going to let her take drama lessons because she was shy. When I heard that I thought I would die if I couldn't do it, too."

"So instead of dancing lessons I took acting lessons. I never had a second thought from the day I started. It never occurred to me to do anything else. And now I'm not qualified for anything else."

Miss Duffy basically was raised in a family without men. Her parents divorced when she was young, so her mother had to raise five daughters by herself.

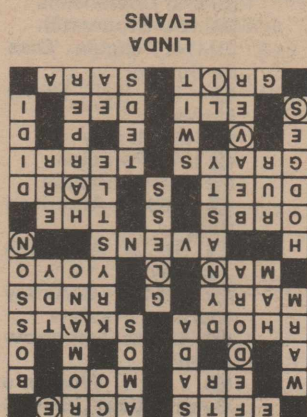

"My mother was not really liberated but being without a man, she was very helpful in teaching us to be self-reliant."

The Minneapolis native was a professional actress in the Midwest before she went to New York to study at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, from which she graduated in 1972.

She was on "Love of Life" for six months and "The Doctors" for four years. She also appeared on Broadway in "Once in a Lifetime." She moved West in 1978, and began her prime-time TV career.

Can Snoopy save Saturday?

By Andy Noble

That lovable "Peanuts" gang — whom you've seen in numerous TV specials — will be seen this fall in their first regular series when "The Charlie Brown and Snoopy Show" makes its debut Saturday, Sept. 17 on CBS.

The half-hour show consists of four-to-five new animated adventures starring Charlie Brown, Snoopy, Linus, Lucy, Peppermint Patty and the other members of Charles M. Schulz's cartoon set.

The episodes are based on the best panels in the strip's 33-year-history. It's the first time these strips will be animated.

Among the episodes viewers will see on Saturday are one in which Charlie Brown and Peppermint Patty have to share a desk and another in which Linus gives away his security blanket to Eudora. In between each episode, blackouts usually featuring Snoopy and Woodstock, will air.

"The networks and sponsors have been urging us to do a Saturday morning show for a long time. We feel the time is now ripe," says Lee Mendelson, the show's co-producer, who's been involved with all the "Peanuts" TV specials since they first aired in 1965.

"Saturday morning TV has been criticized for decades, but recently the networks and programmers have been attempting to clean up their acts," Mendelson said. "There is a trend now to improve Saturday morning programming and we hopefully will spearhead this evolution."

"The subjects of this show will most appeal to the little kids, in particular — the security blanket, kindergarten — it's going to have more action, be more kid-oriented than the prime-time specials," he added.

Meanwhile, upcoming "Peanuts" prime-time specials include "It's Computer Camp, Charlie Brown" and an animated version of the successful off-Broadway play "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown."

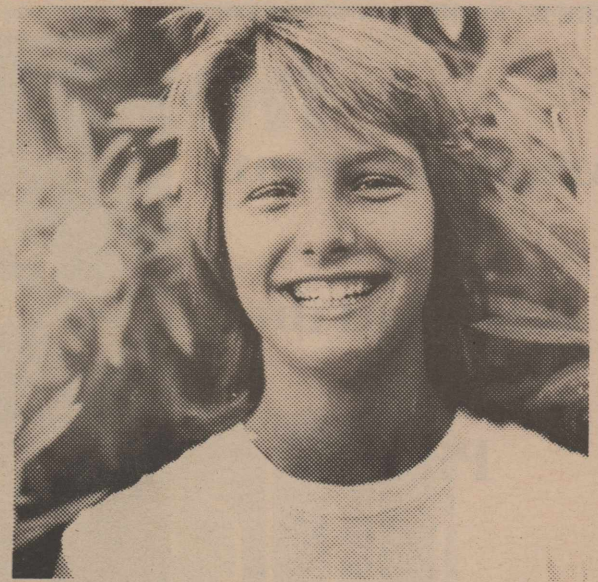

"The Charlie Brown and Snoopy Show" is a Mendelson-Melendez production, in association with Charles M. Schulz and UM Productions.

R-F Booster Club--the definition of involvement

Certainly the most concentrated support effort on behalf of young athletes in the community is the Rockport-Fulton Booster Club. 1983 looks like the best year yet for the club, which has a broader base and more members than ever.

The purpose of the club is to give total support for the school athletic program. Including financial donations, this support encompasses all the sports activities throughout the school.

Hand in hand with the philosophy of football coach (and Booster member) Aubrey Schulz, a major objective of the club is having an athletic program wherein young people believe in themselves and their ability and put forth the best effort possible. A combination of student enthusiasm and community support is the aim of the club.

This year's Booster Club officers are President Robert Dingenary, Vice-Presidents Paul Blair and Billy Trimyer, Secretary Anita Dingenary and Treasurer Bob Shellenbergar.

The club was begun in 1974, with Dwayne Heasley, Ray Longino, Jim Kautz and Jim Hutt initiating the group. At one time called the Quarterback Club, the group's first area of emphasis was football.

In the past, monies raised by the hard-working Boosters have purchased a projector for football game films, a wrestling mat, tackling dummies, weight equipment and other athletic accessories not funded by the school system.

The Boosters are selling caps, license plate holders and memberships to raise funds. The club is currently meeting every Tuesday evening in the Allied Live Oak Bank Center. Football game films are shown at the meetings.
