promote the best interest of the County and its residents" and that "the delay and change in nature of the project makes it no longer in the best interest of the County and its residents."

James T. Cronin with National Waste Industries, Inc., of Pittsburgh, who has been working with the county, could not be reached on Friday for comment.

County Attorney Mark Piland told the court during the session that the brief which had been submitted to the court by the TAP organization, from the law firm Henry, Kelly and Loweree "is generally correct."

"Mitchell County potentially could be held liable under 'Superfund,' also known as the Comprehensive Environmental Response Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA), if it were found to be a 'responsible party' under CERCLA," said Piland.

"Whether or not the 'host agreement' would make Mitchell County a 'responsible party' under CERCLA is a fact question that is complicated by ever-changing regulations and new case law," he said.

"Since the 'host agreement' was signed, in March 1990, there have been numerous federal regulations written, policies changed and cases decided," said Piland.

"The direction of CERCLA is unclear," he said. "Corporations lobby to put burdens on local governments while local governments try to relieve themselves from liability, and there seems to be no end in sight to the developing changes."

"In the last two years there have been increasing attempts to make everybody liable, including local governments," said Piland. "Local governments are currently liable if they fit into the categories of past or present 'owner,' 'operator,' 'generator' or 'transporter' at the Superfund site."

"Due to the changing regulations, new developments in the law and complexities of CERCLA," said Piland, "successfully defending a Superfund lawsuit can become a massive burden in attorney's fees and expenses alone, not to mention the exorbitant costs of Superfund cleanup which currently averages $30 million per site."

Following Piland's presentation to the court, Commissioner Buddy Hertenberger noted that:

"The County has previously entered into a 'host agreement' with National Waste and Energy Development, Inc., in an attempt to assist in the economic development activities in Mitchell County."

"This 'host agreement' was entered approximately two years ago," said Hertenberger. "At that time, it was thought that the agreement would be in the best interest of the County."

"Since that time there has been diminished citizens support," he said. "National Waste and Energy Development, Inc. has not proceeded with the project in a timely manner and it has not obtained the permits necessary for the project to go forward."

"In light of these circumstances, the project is no longer in the best interest to the citizens of the County or to the County itself," said Hertenberger who made the motion to terminate the 'host agreement.'

The motion was seconded by Ed Roach and approved by all four Commissioners.

County Judge Ray Mayo and Commissioners Carl Guelker, Ed Roach, Buddy Hertenberger and Bill Preston were all in attendance.

Texas to receive $800M in Medicaid funds

Austin -- Lieutenant Governor Bob Bullock today applauded a decision by the Federal Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) which will allow Texas to receive $800 million a year in federal Medicaid funds as part of the federal Disproportionate Share Program.

Last summer, state lawmakers approved new legislation to expand the federal Disproportionate Share program. Afterward, the Bush Administration threatened to change the program's rules to make it harder for states to qualify.

Though Congress passed legislation in November preventing the Administration from changing the rules for two years, HCFA had yet to approve Texas' specific application for the federal funds. That approval came last week.

The Disproportionate Share Program provides additional federal funding to qualifying hospitals who carry more than their share of Medicaid and other uninsured patients.

Twenty-four large urban hospitals and 90 rural hospitals in Texas will benefit from the program.

S. Senate and U. S. House of Representatives.

March 31st is deadline to file property rendition forms

Austin -- State Comptroller John Sharp has reminded Texas businesses that they must file property rendition forms with county appraisal districts by March 31, listing the taxable property which they owned or managed as of January 1, 1992.

State law requires that anyone who owns or manages income-producing personal property on January 1 must file a rendition statement with the local appraisal district.

"For example, businesses must report their inventories, furniture and fixtures, machinery and equipment and other tangible business property on a rendition. Filing this annual report is actually to their benefit because chief appraisers use the renditions to establish a property's value," Sharp said. "When a business' personal property is not rendered, the chief appraiser can only estimate the value."

Sharp also announced that businesses whose property was damaged by a storm, flood or fire last year may file a special decreased value report which could lower their final tax bills.

"Businesses which suffered damage during Christmas-New Year flooding across Texas may be able to receive a tax break to help them through the tough times ahead, but they must still file the paperwork by the March 31, deadline," Sharp said.

While business owners and operators are required by law to file renditions, any property owner--including homeowners, farmers and rancher--may voluntarily file one, or the report of decreased value.

All property owners may also receive a 30-day extension for either form, but must still file a written request with the appraisal district by the March 31 deadline.

Sharp noted that homeowners who voluntarily file a rendition are in a better position to exercise their rights as taxpayers. First, they are ensuring that the appraisal district has their correct address so that they are notified of any scheduled hearings or actions that may affect their property or tax bills.

"If the tax collector cannot deliver a tax bill because of an incorrect address, a property owner is still responsible for paying the taxes plus the penalties that may result from late payment," Sharp said.

Also, a rendition offers an opportunity for property owners to record their opinions of their property's value.

Finally, by recording an opinion, property owners have made sure that the chief appraiser must send them a notice before placing a higher value on their property. This notice allows property owners the time to gather information to protest the appraisal if they believe the proposed value is too high.

If a property is appraised by more than one appraisal district, the property owner should file a rendition in each appraisal district office.

Rendition forms are available at local appraisal district office. For more information, contact local appraisal district offices or the Comptroller's Property Tax Division at 1-800-252-9121.

connected to the bottom of the container.

Due to recent rains, Toombs noted that from looking at the device officers were unable to determine how long it may have been at the location before being discovered.

The crew found the device which was lying in the bar-ditch near the 205 mile marker of Interstate 20, which is located between Westbrook and a roadside park. The device was found in an area approximately one-half mile from the nearest structure of any type.

Officers Jimmy Defoor and Jay Pace with the Abilene Police Department arrived at the scene at approximately 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday evening and took the device back to Abilene where they were going to attempt to dismantle it on Wednesday.

They reported to Toombs that the plastic cylinder was filled with gunpowder after dismantling the device.

"It could have been very dangerous if it had been lit," said Toombs.

The information and copies of reports from the Mitchell County Sheriff's Office and the Abilene Police Department have been forwarded to the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

March 8 - 14 is proclaimed to be "Older Worker Week"

The Texas Farmers Union Green Thumb program of Mitchell County was honored with a proclamation recognizing the week of March 8-14 as Older Worker Week in Mitchell County.

Texas Farmers Union president Joe Rankin recently noted that, "To meet the economic and social challenges of the future, Texas must conserve and nurture one of our most important resources -- the older worker."

Operating primarily in the rural areas of 119 Texas counties, Green Thumb has given older jobseekers the opportunity of sharing their years of experience, hard work and dedication in local community projects.

Green Thumb's emphasis upon training has allowed program participants to transition back into private sector employment.

The Mitchell County Green Thumb program enrollees includes Pearl Lindsey, Mitchell County Library; Lula Leach, Kelley Elementary; Pablo Matos, Colorado ISD Administration Building; Rapheal Rios, Colorado ISD Bus Barn; Canuto Arellano and Tomas Aguilar, Wallace Center; Valentina

Martinez, Loraine Senior Citizen Center; Abram Aguilar, Loraine ISD; and Lester Starling, City of Loraine.

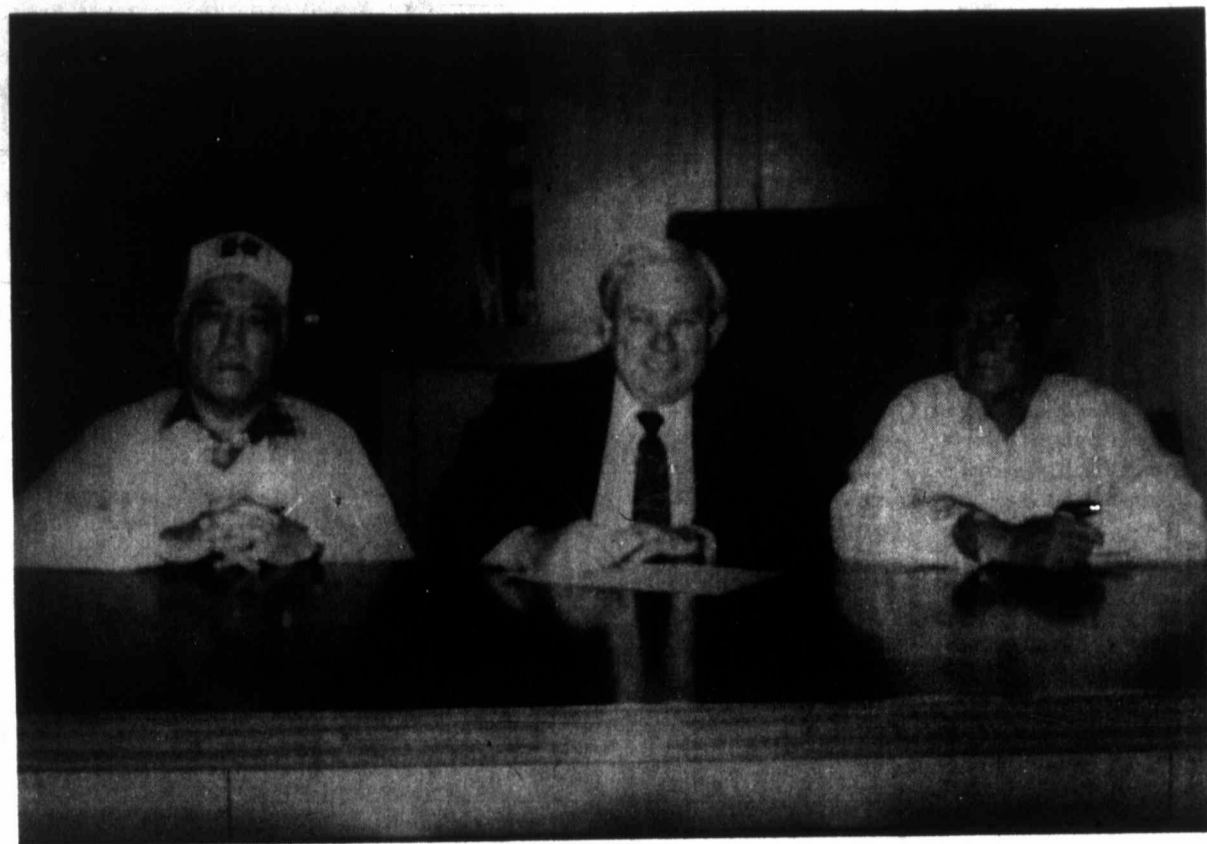

The proclamation which was signed by Mitchell County Judge Ray Mayo noted that:

"Thousands of older Texans offer employers the experience and wisdom of a lifetime of hard work and dedication. Our mature population is both willing and able to put that knowledge and expertise to work for the benefit of our great state."

"Texas is proud of the contributions made by our mature workers in today's society and we must maintain and strengthen this valuable resource in our labor force of the future."

"For over twenty-five years, the Senior Community Service Employment Programs, through organizations such as Texas Farmers Union Green Thumb, have provided older workers the opportunity to apply their lifelong skills and abilities in local community projects while receiving marketable training for employment transition into the private sector."

GREEN THUMB PROCLAMATION: County Judge Ray Mayo, center, signed a proclamation marking March 8-14 as 'Older Worker Week' in Mitchell County and recognizing the efforts that the organization provides to the community. Shown attending the signing are, Canuto Arellano, left, and Tomas Aguilar, right.

Farmers are eligible for FmHA loans

United States Senator Phil Gramm has announced that Mitchell County farmers are eligible for U. S. Farmers Home Administration loans at below-market interest rates.

The low-interest emergency loans are designed to help farmers recover from damages and losses to crops due to the freeze, high winds, hail and excessive rainfall which plagued much of Texas during 1991.

Mitchell County is one of 20 counties which have been named as 'contiguous counties' and therefore eligible for assistance through the program due to effects on crops which were caused by an early freeze, high winds, very cool weather and excessive rainfall.

Due to an early freeze, high winds, very cool weather and excessive rainfall between June 1 and November 6 of last year, farmers in Cottle, Foard and Wilbarger Counties are eligible for the loan assistance.

Due to hail, high winds and an early freeze between October 25 and 31, 1991, farmers in Howard and Scurry Counties are eligible for the loan assistance.

For those who cannot obtain credit through normal channels, the U. S. Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) will make loans available at below-market interest rates to family farmers.

The FmHA, which will supervise the loan program, is charged with providing aid to the farmers and ranchers in order to assist their economic recovery from natural disasters.

RIBBON CUTTING: State Representative Rob Junell, center, cut the ribbon at Wednesday's grand opening of the Texas Department of Human (TDH) Services center which is located in the newly renovated Berman Building. District 17 art contest participants are sought Congressman Charles Stenholm announced plans today for the eleventh annual art contest for high school students in the 17th District of Texas. Since it was first launched in 1982, the nationwide competition has generated more than 2500 District art competitions involving nearly 375,000 high school students. One winning entry from each congressional district will be displayed in the U.S. Capitol in Washington, D.C. beginning this June.

Students in grades 9 through 12 from Fisher, Mitchell, Nolan, and Scurry counties should enter a preliminary contest to be held in Colorado City on Wednesday, April 1, 1992. Entries must be brought to the lobby of the First National Bank in Colorado City by noon that day. The artwork will remain on display in the bank.

Other regional shows will be held in Abilene, Big Spring, Gainesville, Graham, Post, Stephenville and Weatherford. Winners from the entire 35 counties of the 17th District will be announced at an awards brunch in Abilene on April 25. Charlie and Cindy Stenholm will host this honors brunch.

Artwork must be no longer than 32" by 32" framed (framing not required) and two-dimensional. Eligible categories are paintings, prints, drawings, or collages. If a student chooses to do a landscape, it shall portray a Texas scene.

For more information and entry forms, contact Stenholm's Stamford office at 915/773-3623 or Leola Anderson in Colorado City at 915/728-2557.

Is Experience Important To You?

Tim Atkins has more years of law enforcement experience than all the years of experience of Patrick Toombs and all of his deputies combined. He has more experience than any of his opponents.

Experience IS important when you select a doctor, lawyer, CPA and Sheriff.

What Does Experience Mean to You?

Experience is working knowledge that is essential to catching criminals and maintaining law and order. Tim Atkins will require deputies to live in Loraine, Westbrook and Colorado City. All deputies will know Mitchell Co. and its residents well, including the location of all residences, businesses and property. This is essential to your safety.

Why Do You Need An Experienced Sheriff?

An Experienced Sheriff can eliminate crime. Tim Atkins knows the criminals. He is not intimidated by defense attorneys. He is not afraid to enforce the law.

An Experienced Sheriff and his department is important to economic development. This is one of the first inquiries that developers make when first considering your county for new business.

What is An Experienced Sheriff?

Tim Atkins is the only candidate who has 10 consecutive years of law enforcement experience including city, county and jail operations. His experience has proven that he has done and will continue to do the job. This is the image of an experienced law enforcement officer. He has made numerous arrests for burglaries in progress, thefts, drugs, murder, forgeries, DWI's, livestock related thefts and numerous others. My experience includes working with Highway Patrol, Border Patrol, Drug Enforcement Agencies, Texas Rangers, Federal Bureau of Investigations, Department of Justice, Alcohol Beverage Commission and others.

Statement from EXPERIENCED TIM ATKINS

Law enforcement is essential for the protection of your properties and lives. I stand faithfully on my record and my word. What I have pledged to you is exactly what I will do as Sheriff of Mitchell County. I have tried in all points to show you my image of being fair and honest and that I will serve with integrity, representing you as I would want to be served. I need your vote and support for better law enforcement for Mitchell County.

JUST THE FACTS, PLEASE!

1. Insurance

Temple Dickson claims Bill Sims voted to let insurance fix prices.

FACT: The State Board of Insurance sets the rates, not companies.

Temple Dickson claims Bill Sims voted against freezing insurance rates.

FACT: The omnibus insurance reform act passed last summer lets insurance companies compete against each other for the first time since the 1920's, encouraging competition for lower rates.

Temple Dickson claims he fought to get us lower insurance rates and better insurance coverage.

FACT: Temple Dickson killed no fault auto insurance and group health insurance for small business in his committee.

2. Jobs

Temple Dickson claims he supported legislation to create more jobs.

FACT: Temple Dickson voted against workers' comp reform and products liability reform, bills designated to stimulate our economy and bring new jobs to Texas.

Temple Dickson claims that the products liability bill (HB 5) Bill Sims supported was unfair to small businesses.

FACT: HB 5 was overwhelmingly approved by the House of Representatives and would have protected innocent small businesses from unscrupulous personal injury lawyers.

3. Support

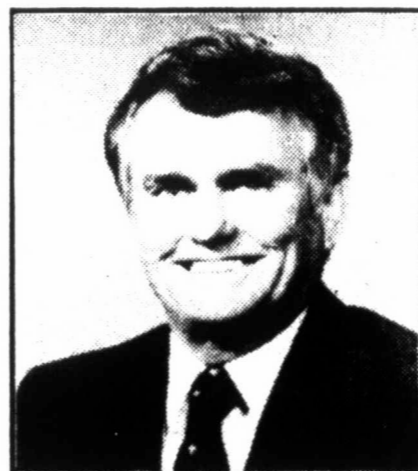

Temple Dickson claims Bill Sims' campaign is funded by big business.

FACT: Bill Sims has received contributions from countless individuals across the district and is supported by a wide variety of organizations, ranging from the Texas Farm Bureau to the Texas Chamber of Commerce.

4. Redistricting

Temple Dickson claims the current redistricting plan that pairs him with Bill Sims is the worst thing to happen to Texas since Reconstruction.

FACT: The redistricting plan that Temple Dickson supported would have split both Abilene and San Angelo.

SENATOR SIMS
★ VS ★
SENATOR DICKSON

Some Fundamental Questions

1. Can We Afford To Be Represented By One Of The Ten Worst?

Five months ago, Texas Monthly magazine named Senator Temple Dickson one of the "Ten Worst" Legislators in the State. Senator Dickson seems like a nice fellow, but can we afford to put West Texas' future in the hands of someone who, out of 181 state legislators, is considered one of the "Ten Worst"?

Texas Monthly described Senator Dickson: "The most disappointing member of the Legislature." "[I]f there was a wrong way to do something ... you could count on Temple Dickson to find it."

It's hard enough for West Texas to hold its own in the Legislature. West Texas needs a top-drawer Senator like Bill Sims, not one from the bottom of the barrel.

2. Should Money Buy This Election?

Have you memorized those Temple Dickson commercials that run over and over on the TV and radio? I suppose we should thank the special interest groups pushing Senator Dickson for pouring their advertising money into the West Texas economy.

But let's not let special interest money buy a West Texas Senate seat for Temple Dickson. Let's vote for the candidate who stands up for West Texas. That's Bill Sims.

3. When The Going Gets Tough, Who Stands Up For West Texas?

Last October 4, Temple Dickson joined 18 other state senators in trying to ignore the Texas Constitution and illegally impose a redistricting plan that took the 25th Senate District away from West Texans.

Bill Sims stood up and said that was illegal. On December 17, 1991, the Texas Supreme Court agreed.

To Temple Dickson and those other politicians who tried to carve up West Texas and got caught with their hands in the cookie jar, let's send a message. Let's vote overwhelmingly for Bill Sims on March 10.

*Bill Sims stands up for West Texas.
It's time for us to stand up with Bill Sims.*

YOU KNOW WHAT TO DO! VOTE FOR BILL SIMS ON MARCH 10th.

FRIENDS TO FRIENDS

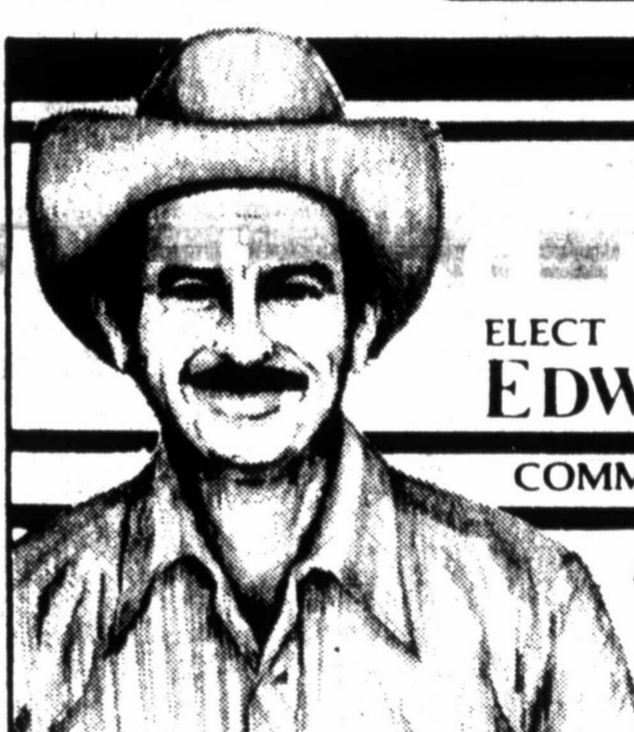

Our grandparents established their homes in Mitchell County more than 100 years ago. Our families grew up there. We have ourselves spent our early years in the Landers and Bauman communities and in Colorado City. We feel we know you, and know what you want and expect in your legislative representatives, that being people of great integrity, strong character and good, common sense and judgment, people who are like the persons we all want to be.

For the past 30 years we have come to know Bill Sims, to know him very personally, to see the kind of man he is, to appreciate his truthfulness, his dedication to his constituents, his understanding of the needs and desires of our West Texas area and of Texas in general. Just as you are our friends where we now live. He is a man of unquestionable honesty.

To the people we so highly regard in Mitchell County, we urge strongly your voting for, your supporting of Bill Sims as your State Senator. Knowing the people of Mitchell County, and knowing Bill Sims, you and he are the same kind of good people. Please give him your vote.

Thank You,

Extension Service begins program focused on helping rangelands

Uvalde -- The Texas Agricultural Extension Service in March is launching Project Range Care, a five-year statewide 882X educational effort aimed at helping ranchers improve their rangelands.

The program seeks ways to improve the management of livestock stocking rates to ensure ranch success and range sustainability.

"Ranchers do not intentionally overgraze their ranges and decrease their productivity," said Dr. Larry White, range specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Rangelands in Texas were severely overgrazed near the turn of the century. Range conditions continue to improve but many areas still need careful management, White said.

Finances, extended drought, arid environments, over-optimism, or year-long grazing programs that do not allow pastures to "rest" may contribute to the problem, he said.

For example, in the more humid areas of the state that average 30 to 40 inches of rain annually, ranges may improve from fair to good condition in two to three years with proper grazing management. In arid West Texas, with an average rainfall of 10 inches, that same increase may take 5 to 10 years, he said. With drought, recovery is often slower, he said.

Two-thirds of the state -- or nearly 170 million acres -- are rangeland, or non-cultivated land that produces native vegetation for grazing. Much of the agricultural income and food for Texans is produced by more than 20 million grazing animals. Additionally, wildlife supported by rangeland provides income and pleasure.

However, less than 20 percent of Texas ranchers closely monitor the impact of stocking rates on their range resources, according to a statewide survey conducted by the Extension Service.

"The animal stocking rate is the most important ranch decision," White said. "Ranchers are not in the business of growing livestock -- they are in the business of growing grass, or forage, to support that livestock, while conserving the other resources of the ranch. Forage serves as the foundation."

The Project Range Care logo symbolizes the relationship of plants, animals and man. A triangle illustrates the ecological balance of the system with all components dependent on each other, he said.

Man is at the apex of the triangle to show that managerial decisions are the key to successful stocking rates that achieve the desired human benefits, a balanced ecosystem, and improved production, White explained.

Stocking rates determine range productivity and forage regrowth, animal performance and health problems, competition with wildlife, soil erosion, and the cost of brush control.

Proper range management is not easy, White said. Ranchers must adjust their decision-making to environmental, economic, political and social constraints.

With Project Range Care, the Extension service will highlight new range management methods that can help ranchers match stocking rates with current forage production.

Workshops and training meetings conducted at the county level will focus on how to determine range condition and the amount of forage, how to assess livestock forage requirements, and how to grow more forage with the rainfall received. Other topics will include how to evaluate risk using photoguides, how to prepare a lease that promotes proper stocking rates and how to manage mixed animal stocking rates.

The first regional Project Range Care session will be an all-day workshop March 10 at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station near Sonora.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

As a citizen of Mitchell County, I am confused by conflicting statements made by F.L. (Steve) Stephens, member of the Texas Board of Criminal Justice, and Senator Bill Sims. According to Mr. Stephens' letter to the editor of February 20, 1992, in reference to Senator Temple Dickson, "As a member of the Texas Board of Criminal Justice it has come to my attention that one of the candidates in the 25th State Senatorial District race is making erroneous claims regarding his impact on the placement of a prison unit in your area." Mr. Stephens then goes on to say, "the fact is that the legislature has delegated total authority for prison site selection to the nine-member Texas Board of Criminal Justice, all of whom are gubernatorial appointees and approved by the Texas Senate."

I find that this conflicts with the statements made by Senator Bill Sims printed in the March 1st edition of the Record. In this article Senator Sims was quoted as saying, "If they want a prison", he said, "I certainly want to help them do it. I know my colleague, Rob Junell, our representative here, is working very hard on it," said Sims, "and he and I have been over their plan and Rob has been to see all the board members."

Mr. Stephens infers that the prison site selection is not a political process. However, Senator Sims' statements are contradictory to Mr. Stephens' letter. This is very interesting since Mr. Stephens has contributed thousands of dollars to Senator Sims' campaign.

Come on Senator Sims--you can't have it both ways. Temple Dickson said that he would work to insure that we had accessibility to state officials and a level-playing field. He didn't promise us a prison; he promised us that he would work hard to maximize our opportunity for success. He has done that.

Sincerely,
Chrystene Hall

Dear Editor:

I am writing about the Senate race between Bill Sims and Temple Dickson.

I don't think we can afford to be represented by one of the Ten Worst. Five months ago, Texas Monthly magazine named Senator Temple Dickson on of the "Ten Worst" Legislators in the State. Senator Dickson seems like a nice fellow, but can we afford to put West Texas' future in the hands of someone who, out of 181 state legislators, is considered one of the "Ten Worst"?

Texas Monthly described Senator Dickson: "The most disappointing member of the Legislature." "If there was a wrong way to do something ... you could count on Temple Dickson to find it."

It's hard enough for West Texas to hold its own in the Legislature. West Texas needs a top-drawer Senator like Bill Sims, not one from the bottom of the barrel.

We also deserve a Senator we can trust. We should not have to put up with a politician who says one thing, but does another. Temple Dickson SAYS Texans should be outraged when a district court imposes a redistricting plan on Texas. He SAYS only the Legislature should redistrict the State. Yet, last Oct. 4, Temple Dickson signed a letter with some other politicians asking that a court in South Texas impose a redistricting plan on Texas. Unfortunately, the South Texas court did exactly what Temple Dickson asked.

Bill Sims stood up and said that was illegal. Senator Sims said that the court in South Texas should not have tried to redistrict the State. On December 17, 1991, the Texas Supreme Court agreed with Bill Sims.

Only Bill Sims gives us straight talk. Only Bill Sims stands up for us. It's time for us to stand up with Bill Sims.

OBITUARIES

Austin B. Martin

Funeral services for Austin B. Martin, 76, of Devers, Texas, and formerly of Midland, are scheduled for 2 p.m., Sunday, March 8, at the Allison Memorial Chapel in Liberty, Texas. Burial will be conducted at the Stacey Memorial Cemetery in Devers, under the direction of Allison Funeral Service of Liberty.

Mr. Martin passed away Thursday, March 5, at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Beaumont, Texas.

He was a native of Wonderseal, Ohio. He lived in Midland and served as a drilling superintendent of NCRA for 41 years. He served in the United States Army during World War II.

Survivors include his wife, Paula Brown Martin of Devers; a son, John Seth Martin of Austin; a sister, Mary Lee McCain of Midland; three nephews; and a niece.

Dear Editor:

In response to Bob Davenport's letter concerning Senator Sims and Peggy Maddox's letter, we would like to offer the following comments.

We totally agree with Mrs. Maddox's statements. We have met both Senator Sims and Senator Dickson and have worked with both of them on environmental issues.

Senator Sims supports nuclear waste dumps, incinerators, and hazardous waste dumps being brought into West Texas. Ask Senator Sims why he supported a fast talking promoter of the Mitchell County Hazardous Waste Dump when it was not even in his district? Senator Sims does not measure up when it comes to environmental issues.

Bob Davenport also supported burning waste products, which we attended the town meeting when the company was fought and defeated by the voters of Stanton.

We believe that if you want a Senator that is for the people and believes in realistic environmental issues, vote for Senator Temple Dickson.

Respectfully,
Clyde & Darlene Hines

DEAN WILLIAMSON

It seems that there is a problem with our eating and exercising habits! Results of the federal Behavior Risk Factor Surveillance survey which was conducted by the Centers for Disease Control, have been released -- and the news isn't good!

The researchers who made the study attempts to survey determined that we as a country have a high rate of cardiovascular risk factors.

Good news in the report was that 23 percent of Americans smoke -- down from 27 percent five-years ago.

Bad news included in the report was that though less people smoke, more people are overweight -- and that exercise remains as unpopular as ever.

According to the report, 2 percent more of the nation's population are overweight than were in 1987. 23 percent of the population was defined in the study by using a height-weight scale.

Other news on the bad side of the report indicated that 29 percent of American's get no leisure-time physical activity and 59 percent of the population get little or no exercise.

After looking at the report, I found out what one of the major problems is -- we eat food!

Most people learn in school that there are four food groups. I have found through my own research that there are only two groups which I have identified as:

- (1) foods that when you eat them increase your risk for having an immediate heart attack, stroke or cause cancer;
- and (2) the food that is natural and healthy for you -- and has no taste, so that eating food from this group increases your risk of gagging and becoming choked.

But in order to cut down on the risks that are described in the report, I realized that something must be done.

I decided that I must learn more about food to cut down on my risks.

Like everyone else, no one wants to increase their risks, which is evident in the number of people who have quit smoking.

I've identified the problem.

Refrigerators talk!

Once you put something in a refrigerator, there is evidently a subliminal message being sent out to divulge the contents that are stored inside -- which create hunger.

So I decided to try and find out what the buzz words of the 90's meant: words like fiber and lite and low fat.

I haven't exactly found out what they are all about yet, but I've been able to find out, that in the name of health -- you try to eat a diet that is similar to that of animals that are now extinct.

Through this I've determined that most health risks can be tied to refrigerators, since no known extinct animal has been determined to have used one.

The simplest way to know the basics for a healthy diet is to know that, "If it looks, smells and tastes good -- it's not good for you."

It seems that most of the food that isn't good for you is kept in the refrigerator, where the ice cream and red meat that have the ability of passing the categories of looks and taste always seem to hide.

I've tried, in the name of health risks to think of what to do.

It's obvious what has to be done.

The refrigerator has to be cleaned out of all the dairy and meat products, so that the subliminal messages will stop.

After the bad stuff is cleared out I won't need the refrigerator -- from what I can tell, it's never been a refuge for health food.

But I failed when I sat down and looked through the refrigerator to find out what would be left after I got rid of the bad stuff.

That's when I heard the voices -- compelling me to sit down and finish the carton of ice cream!

Texas A&M offers "taste-testing" for proof

College Station -- Anybody wanting proof of how Texas A&M University agricultural research provides healthier and better-tasting food can buy and eat it right on campus.

The Rosenthal Meat Science and Technology Center may have one of the best-kept retail secrets in Texas. Consumers can purchase tasty morsels ranging from homemade ice cream to exotic Wagyu beef, and they'll be helping the educational process at the same time.

They'll also find cutting-edge consumer products -- though it sometimes takes a little luck. For instance, highly marbled Wagyu beef was available for a short time in mid-1991 after completion of a Texas Agricultural Experiment study on the Japanese breed's potential in Texas.

The center, open in its present location since 1983, has served as a key meat science laboratory. Some of its work led to the landmark 1989 National Consumer Beef Study, which showed that Americans wanted leaner beef and let to U.S. retailers offering quarter-inch trimmed products.

It has been in the vanguard of such research as the use of electrical stimulation of carcasses to tenderize beef, a now-standard practice in the packing industry.

The 29,500-square foot building is where Aggies get hands-on experience in everything from judging animals to cutting meats and arranging them for retail sale. Their efforts are often sold out of the small retail center at the front of the building, where from 70 to 100 meat and dairy products might be on sale at any one time.

"We can make just about anything in the area of processed meats," said Ray Riley, the center's manager. "Of course, because our beef and pork franks are student-made, they're not always of a uniform length or thickness, but they're of high quality."

"I want to offer quality and service, but the main focus is on educating the students."

Boneless peppered ham, chili meat, smoked pork tenderloins, bratwurst, ham and cheese links, jalapeno sausage are just a few of the items offered for sale in the meat section. Whole milk in maroon-and-white A&M cartons, eggs produced by Aggie chickens, and campus favorites such as butter-pecan and chocolate-chip ice cream are among dairy products sold in the store. It even has beef jerky, honey produced by entomology department bees and frozen yogurt when it's available. Much of the store's stock depends on the work done by students.

Riley prices products based on the local market and how much inventory he has.

"Item like lamb are generally priced lower than local trade, but items like bacon are generally higher," he said. "Our students get a first-hand working knowledge of what it takes to move products and cover costs."

The center's research probably had led to its retail store having leaner products than most other retailers, Riley added. He also said its processed meats often have less water content, and meats are usually smoked longer than the industry norm.

"People tell us our hams are the way hams are supposed to taste, the way they used to taste," Riley added.

He stressed, however, that the store's purpose is to help defray costs of the center's educational efforts, which include hands-on training that many land-grant universities have forsaken.

A&M students still slaughter animals and cut carcasses, while other institutions use less expensive methods, such as one-time demonstrations or videotapes, he explained.

The center has an outdoor, covered holding pen that includes benches for students evaluating livestock. It has a 150-seat room that looks like most other college lecture halls -- except for the concrete floor with a drain in it and an overhead rail that brings beef or pork carcasses right into the classroom.

It has several processing and cutting rooms with classroom seating -- probably the coldest classrooms in Texas, regardless of the time of the year. Temperatures are usually kept at 45 degrees, and "the students know to wear their coats," Riley said.

In one of those rooms, students collected data used in a recently released computer program called Computer-Assisted Retail Decision Support, or CARDS. Beef retailers can use CARDS to save money by calculating time required to cut, trim and package beef, using such factors as store traffic, employee expenses and consumer purchases.

The center is now conducting a similar program for pork.

Students this year also will judge, slaughter, cut and package beef and pork as part of A&M studies of different feeding trials. Their work should add to the information that helps produce leaner and tastier meat products.

The center also prepares them for jobs in the food industry.

"We're not developing slaughterers and meat cutters. We're helping them learn the processes so they can be more complete leaders in the livestock and meat industry," Riley said.

Luchsingers to perform at rodeo

ODESSA--Paul and Susie Luchsinger are giving a repeat performance at the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association Southwest Regional Rodeo, March 12-14 at the Ector County Coliseum. The couple appeared at last year's rodeo and were such a success they were invited back this year.

Susie is the sister of country-western star Reba McEntire. Paul, a member of the Professional Rodeo cowboy Association since 1978, regularly has attended the Sandhills Hereford and Quarter Horse Show and Rodeo and is a friend of Odessa College rodeo coach Jim Watkins.

The Luchsingers are founders of Psalms Ministries of Atoka, Okla. When Paul and Susie married in 1981, Paul, a national finalist in steer wrestling, was on the rodeo circuit and Susie was touring with her sister. The couple grew tired of the separations their careers demanded and decided to fund the ministry which is their primary focus today. Susie sings and Paul shares his personal testimony during their program which Paul describes as "showing that being a Christian is fun and exciting. It's not something to be ashamed of and it's not just for church."

When asked about his famous sister-in law, Paul said, "Reba's just a regular person. That's the way we treat her. She's special because she's Susie's sister, but we don't see her as a star. We just try to be a friend to her."

The rodeo is hosted by the OC Rodeo Club.

Proceeds from the rodeo go to the OC Rodeo Club scholarship fund. In 1991 the rodeo raised about $9,500 for rodeo scholarships.

Admission is $5, with children 12 and under and adults over 55 admitted for $3. Admission is free with OC ID card.

Elect David "Gink" Ginkinger Sheriff of Mitchell County

Citizens of Mitchell County:

During my campaign, I have tried my best to visit as many citizens as I possibly can. I will continue to work hard until election day March 10, 1992.

I feel that living in Mitchell County and making it my home for the past 16 years and having over 5 years law enforcement experience, which all my experience has been here in Mitchell County, should qualify me as a candidate for Sheriff.

I have been asked many times what can I do to better the Sheriff's Department. I strongly feel that we need a Sheriff's Department that is committed to the people of Mitchell County. What I mean by this is that we need to have name recognition by the Sheriff's Department personnel throughout the county. We need to have people that are going to take active roles in our civic organizations, our churches, and most importantly, our schools. I also want people in the dept. that think of Mitchell County as being their home and that their future is here. And most important that we develop a strong and friendly relationship with the people.

The time has come to elect a Sheriff that knows Mitchell County and its people. I feel that it is very important to know the life style of the people. Since moving to Mitchell County in 1976, I have had the opportunity to work as a part time farm hand for over 11 years. I have also worked as a part time ranch hand, mending fences and working cattle and I am presently employed by an oil company. Mitchell County is made up of people in the farming, ranching, oil, educating and private businesses. I feel that I know the people of Mitchell County and their way of life, which will enable me to better serve them.

I would greatly appreciate your support and vote in the March 10, 1992, Democratic Primary.

Thank You,
David "Gink" Ginkinger

A positive vote and commitment for Law Enforcement in Mitchell County.

Dickson fights for fairness!

Temple Dickson has a record of fairness. He stands up for all of us. When big city senators tried to treat rural schools unfairly, Temple made sure our schools got their fair share of money. When attempts were made to cut back funding for TSTC at Sweetwater, Temple worked to keep the funding and keep TSTC here for our young people. Temple voted for high school dropout prevention programs.

But Bill Sims, Dickson's opponent, is another story. Bill Sims voted against:

- Stopping employment discrimination
- Requiring state agencies to buy from minority contractors
- Dropout prevention programs
- Pre-school programs for non-English speaking children.

Vote for Temple Dickson!

The Mexican-American Democrats in Taylor and Mitchell counties have endorsed Temple Dickson in the race for the State Senate. Why? When Dickson ran against Grant Jones in 1988, he promised to listen to us and work for us. He kept his promises. Temple Dickson has a sense of fairness and understands our needs. The same cannot be said for Bill Sims. Amazingly, Sims even declined an invitation to meet with the Taylor County Mexican-American Democrats. Maybe it's because he didn't want to explain his votes against minority dropout remedies, stopping discrimination, and child care and kindergarten for non-English speaking children. Vote for Temple Dickson. He works for all of us.

Temple Dickson or Bill Sims: Who's on our side?

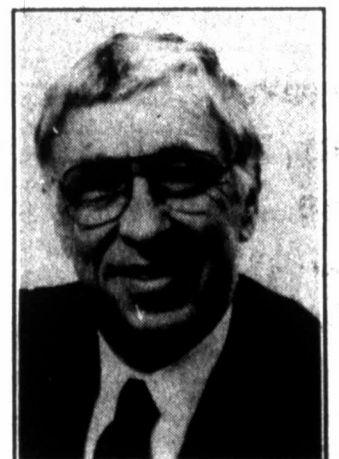

Now, the big out-of-state corporations are out for revenge. In a recent letter, 27 powerful lobbyists for big corporations said the race between Temple Dickson and Bill Sims would be "Armageddon." The corporations' lobbyists called on their allies to raise $750,000 for Sims, who supports the big corporations' bill. They want to defeat Temple Dickson because he's not on their side. They don't want him to stop them when they try to put the squeeze on small businesses and consumers again. Bill Sims says he's "on our side." But when you look at his friends, you've got to wonder. Are the big corporations and insurance companies on your side? Take a look at Bill Sims' record. He votes with the big corporations, big insurance companies, tobacco companies and big utilities. Temple Dickson? He's with the rest of us.

Bill Sims stands with the big corporations.
Temple Dickson stands with the rest of us.
Vote for Temple Dickson.

Texas watersheds damages by record-breaking rainfall

College Station -- Record-breaking rainfall that began in December has caused more than $20.5 million damage to the state's watersheds in 55 counties, according to the Soil Conservation Service.

"As we get additional rainfall, we get more damage," said SCS's Gary Westmoreland of Temple. "Because the land is saturated, each rain produces more runoff, and that is what is causing the damage."

About 5 percent is damaged to a degree that poses an immediate threat to life or property, Westmoreland said. But, more heavy rains on less damaged watersheds could erode them into the more serious category.

A watershed is an area of land that drains to one central point.

"Watersheds are like bath tubs," Westmoreland said. "The watershed for Galveston Bay includes the entire Trinity and San Jacinto river basins and all the land between, because they drain to a common point."

Westmoreland said SCS personnel in each county have assessed damage as water recedes. Some areas still under water or too muddy to approach have not been examined.

"The damage starts at the Dallas-Fort Worth area and extends through the Blackland prairies, west to the Hill Country, east to the post oak region and south to the coast," he said.

The most threatening damage, he said, may be a bridge that is about to collapse, for example, or eroding river banks that could cause homes to be flooded.

Less menacing is damaged land that can wait two to four months for the repairs needed for long-term safety and stability.

Damages to natural resources are among the hardest to repair, said Dr. Bill Harris, soil specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"County or local governments are responsible for repair work on roads, bridges and other transportation conveyances," Harris said. "But much of this damage was on private land and is the responsibility of the landowners."

Harris said logs and other debris have been deposited and gullies have washed across land, for example.

"In some places, top soil has eroded away and will have to be replaced," Harris noted. "Or land may need to be revegetated in order for a farmer to irrigate a crop."

In many places, soil conservation techniques such as terracing were washed out by heavy and continuous rainfall, he added.

Westmoreland said $500,000 in designated federal emergency watershed funds were depleted by the end of December for the most critical repairs, such as the emergency evacuation of an elderly couple who were trapped in their home when the only road to the property flooded. Some eroding stream banks were stabilized, also, to prevent several homes from flooding, and the flood-damaged outflow pipe of a sewage treatment plant in Bosque County was repaired.

"The problem is we quickly ran out of money," Westmoreland said. "People have lost property and facilities because there was no money to prevent it."

He said counties and local governments now are faced with trying to find money to make the necessary repairs.

Chemical company donates recycled trash bags

Corpus Christi, Texas -- The production of more than 75,000 plastic bags made with recycled material and custom-designed for the Texas State Aquarium has been underwritten by Occidental Chemical Corporation.

The bags, to be made available with any purchase in the Aquarium gift shop, are made with Cyclathon high density polyethylene (HDPE), a post-consumer recycled material provided by OxyChem. They display a colorful rendering of an octopus on one side with a list of the different ways the bags can be used to help protect and preserve the environment on the reverse side.

"We are very pleased to assist the Texas State Aquarium in this effort to promote recycling awareness in the Corpus Christi community," J. Roger Hirl, president and chief executive officer of OxyChem, said. "As one of the nation's largest producers of plastic resins for consumer packaging, OxyChem is well aware of its responsibility to be part of the solid waste solution, and we believe that recycling is one of the most positive and practical answers. It is one that requires the active participation of industry, government and the public."

Last year, OxyChem announced plans to build a major plastics recycling center in the Dallas area. When completed in early 1993, the plant will have the capacity to process up to 40 million pounds of the most common household plastic containers.

"This donation from OxyChem symbolizes the company's commitment to the Aquarium, the Corpus Christi community and the preservation of the state of Texas," said John Hendricks, Texas State Aquarium executive director.

The Aquarium will celebrate "It's in the Bag" day on Saturday, March 7 beginning with a news conference at 10 a.m. KMXR radio will broadcast live from the gift shop from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Officials from OxyChem and the Aquarium will provide listeners

Landry will help FLBA celebrate 75th anniversary

Austin -- Retired Dallas Cowboys Head Coach Tom Landry will help Federal Land Bank Associations (FLBAs) celebrate their 75th anniversary March 20 during the Farm Credit Bank of Texas' annual meeting in Austin. Nearly 500 farmers and ranchers, directors of FLBAs in Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas, are expected at the meeting.

FLBAs were created by the government in 1916 to provide long-term loans to farmers at a time when other sources were unavailable or unwilling to do so. The first FLBA loan in the Tenth Farm Credit District was made in 1917 for $10,000 to a couple in Grayson County, Texas.

Today, Tenth District FLBAs provide more than $2.7 billion in financing to more than 42,000 farmers, ranchers and rural homeowners. Locally owned and operated under the direction of borrower-elected boards of directors, the 49 FLBAs in the district receive their loan funds through the Texas Farm Credit Bank, headquartered in Austin.

Landry, who led the Cowboys to five Super Bowl appearances during his 29 years with the team, will challenge the FLBA leaders to strive for a "Commitment to agricultural products, petrochemicals and plastics and resins. The company is the largest U.S. producer of polyvinyl chloride (PVC) and the number two producer of high density polyethylene (HDPE).

In Texas, OxyChem produces plastics at Pasadena, Matagorda, Orange and Victoria; electrochemicals at LaPorte, Deer Park and Ingleside; silicates in Dallas and petrochemicals at Chocolate Bayou, Corpus Christi, Bayport and Beaumont. It employs about 3,500 people in the state.

Excellence" during the meeting's closing banquet at the Austin Stouffer Hotel.

The March 20 annual meeting also will feature exhibits of original loan documents, photographs tracing the 75 years of operation and other memorabilia. Jerry Clower of the Grand Ole Opry and Yazoo City, Mississippi, is also scheduled to speak.

Stenholm to be in S'water March 9th

Washington, D.C. -- Congressman Charles Stenholm (D-TX) will be in Sweetwater to address the annual Rotary Rural/Urban dinner meeting on March 9, 1992.
 "Considerable uncertainty surrounds agriculture's prospects for both this year and long term," said Stenholm. "Down the road, the prosperity of U.S. agriculture will continue to depend significantly on the ability to turn challenges that originate elsewhere into opportunities."
 The Congressman is expected to address such issues as adverse weather and pest problems, the faltering economic recovery, GATT negotiations, efforts to bring Mexico into the North American Free Trade Agreement, domestic support programs and consumer trends.
 The gathering will begin at 7 p.m. on March 9, at the Nolan County Coliseum. About 200 area producers are expected to attend.
