MISD scores above average in reform efforts

By DAVID PLESA
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

The district received Bs, or grades exceeding state standards, in the categories of tutorial programs, teacher salaries, 30-minute, duty-free lunch breaks for teachers and in maintaining strong efforts to levy local taxes in support of education.

AUSTIN — The Midland school district received several above-average grades but two failing grades in its efforts to implement 1984 school reforms, says a study by a statewide teachers group.

The Midland district received four Bs, two Cs and two Fs in eight areas of education reforms rated by the Texas Federation of Teachers' "Report Card on Reform" released Friday.

The district received Bs, or grades exceeding state standards, in the categories of tutorial programs, teacher salaries, 30-minute, duty-free lunch breaks for teachers and in maintaining strong efforts to levy local taxes in support of education.

But it failed to meet state standards in the areas of class size and paperwork reduction. The district received Cs, or "passing" grades that meet state standards, in its implementation of student discipline and career ladder reforms.

The 16,000-member federation based its findings on 26,626 responses to surveys mailed to teachers around the state. The federation asked teachers to use an A, B, C, F scale to rate their own districts in each of the eight reform categories.

The federation coupled those ratings with data from the Texas Education Agency, the Texas Research League, the State Property Tax Board, the Texas Association of School Boards and the 1,072 districts in the state for its conclusions.

The Ector County school district received five Bs, two Cs and one F on its report card from the federation.

The district got the failing grade in its efforts to implement class size reforms.

Statewide, the implementation of duty-free lunches, tutorial programs, the career ladder and local tax efforts faired the best with B averages. Reforms in class size, student discipline and teacher salaries received high Cs, with paperwork reduction receiving a C-minus.

"The career ladder program is more popular among teachers than some people have believed," said John Cole, president of the Texas Federation of Teachers. "There are some districts where tremendous problems have occurred, mostly in smaller districts, but the teachers in most of the urban districts gave that program good grades.

"It is clear that many of the problems arising from implementation of the recent reforms in education are due to specific problems in specific school districts," he said.

Cole said the study shows teachers are fairly satisfied with the way the reforms are working.

"In general, the state averages indicate that teachers feel the districts are doing a pretty good job of implementing reforms," he said. "However, there are districts where F grades were given because of inefficient or ineffective implementation of reforms."

Fair offers foods to please every palate

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — The 1986 Permian Basin Fair and Exposition that began Wednesday and ends Sunday offers a great opportunity for gourmets and gluttons alike.

Almost from the moment you enter the gate you can begin walking the midway and eat your way along as the kids stop at the Petting Zoo to pet a variety of animals or stop to recoil from the slithering inhabitants of the Snake House. There's food to tempt every nose and please every palate.

The gates open at 10 a.m. today and will remain open until midnight with a variety of activities highlighting the day.

Prior to the gates opening today, Sand Drags were scheduled to be held beginning at 8 a.m.

The annual fair parade is scheduled to get under way from Odessa College at 10 a.m. with a line of march that was to end at 42nd Street near the Ector County Coliseum.

Afternoon activities include a Wild West Show, the Fireman's Olympics, and music of the 50s provided at various times through the day by Vince Vance and the Valiants.

The Gene Ledel Carnival, open all hours throughout the Fair, offers some 40 to 50 rides and games.

A barbecue cookoff is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. today and the Permian Basin Talent Show will be held from 3 to 6 p.m.

Sunday's activities include a bean cookoff beginning 10 a.m. when the gates open.

From 2 to 6 p.m. there will be the Rock Battle of the Bands on the main stage.

The fair is scheduled to end 6 p.m. Sunday.

Hearings scheduled to 'discuss concepts' of higher taxes

White 'bites the bullet'

AUSTIN (AP) — After weeks of urging legislators to "bite the bullet" and pass a tax increase, Gov. Mark White had a taste himself Friday.

He chomped on a revolver slug.

As White walked into his weekly news conference, a reporter handed him a bullet.

Laughing, White quickly bit into the slug, then repeated the move for the cameras that were recording the session.

"It's low-cal," the governor joked. "It's .38-cal, really, is what it is."

AUSTIN — Despite an incomplete poll showing the House "just real close" Friday over passage of a tax bill, the House tax-writing committee will hold hearings next week "to discuss concepts" of higher taxes.

Ways and Means Committee Chairman Stan Schlueter, D-Salado, said at least 10 of the 13 members of his committee still oppose taxes, but for the first time in the summer's special sessions he will take testimony on the issue. Schlueter said Speaker Gib Lewis, who has predicted lawmakers will boost taxes before they leave town, asked him to begin holding hearings.

"I still don't like taxes, nothing's changed there," Schlueter said. "We're going to have some hearings next week on Wednesday and Thursday, probably both days, to discuss concepts, to talk about the various taxes and sources that are available to the state."

The Senate Finance Committee has scheduled a hearing Tuesday on a resolution, supported by 21 senators, which would impose temporary increases in the sales and gasoline taxes. The Constitution requires all tax bills to originate in the House. Schlueter said his committee will discuss all of those options plus the possibility of broadening the sales tax base.

Although about 35 House members have signed on as co-sponsors of two temporary sales tax bills, Schlueter said the committee will take no action on specific proposals.

"The vote in my committee is still 10 no's and three ayes," he said. "We still have to allow them the opportunity to listen to the testimony, but right now I don't see any change in their attitude."

The House Conservative Coalition polled House members Friday asking them if they would "stick with us" and oppose any tax increases until the regular legislative session begins in January. Rep. Jerry Clark, D-Buna, a member of the coalition's steering committee, said the large number of representatives absent Friday left the pollsters 43 shy of talking to the full 150-member House.

"You can't really tell," Clark said of the preliminary numbers. "It's just real close. The swing on it could be just a handful of votes."

Schlueter, who says he will sponsor a tax increase if he feels it is necessary, said his count shows about "71 hard votes" against new taxes. "There's still not enough votes to pass a tax bill," he said, adding that continuous polling is necessary because "members' attitudes change as their constituents learn about the problems."

Gov. Mark White, who has called for a temporary 1.125-percent sales tax increase, said Friday he would also accept a temporary boost in the 10-cent gasoline tax if that proves necessary.

"Nobody wants taxes," White told reporters at his weekly news conference. "I don't like 'em, you don't like 'em. But what we have to do though is maintain the educational programs we have and to pay our bills."

Speaker Lewis said "there's a strong possibility" of a tax increase before the special session ends Oct. 7, but he wants the Legislature to concentrate on budget cuts. A 10-man House-Senate conference committee will continue negotiations over the $320 million difference between the two chambers' versions of budget cutting bills Sunday afternoon.

"I'm a little depressed, I guess I would say, that there has been very little effort on some of the conferees to move on," he said. "It seems like they (senators) want to slow play this thing."

Upton County deputy suspended until he apologizes to Hispanics

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

MCCAMEY — An Upton County deputy was suspended Friday without pay for three days and ordered to write an apology to a group of Hispanics who said he intimidated them during a softball game.

But the deputy in question — Monte Coffee — said he will not apologize.

"I will not apologize because I was not in the wrong and I was only doing my job," said Coffee, the 37-year-old son of the Upton County District Clerk Buena Coffee.

McCamey is about 50 miles south of Midland.

Coffee was suspended by Upton County Sheriff Glenn Willeford after a Thursday night public hearing.

He suspended Coffee after a complaint was made about his conduct during a call at an Aug. 24 softball game.

A dispatcher received an anonymous call that there were a "lot of Mexicans" drinking beer at the ball park and Coffee was sent out to investigate, Willeford said.

The two-day softball tournament was sponsored by the Catholic Men's Society and was attended by a majority of Hispanics.

"We have more than ample evidence to show he failed to know and understand the law applicable upon arrival," Willeford said.

"His conduct reflected discredit on the criminal justice system of this county and is in no way to be construed a policy of this department," he said.

Willeford said Coffee, who has been a deputy for about six months, will not be put back on the payroll until he apologizes.

"These weren't toughs — there were good people out there," Willeford said.

Father Vince Wiggins, who helped organize the tournament, said:

"He (Coffee) just came on like gangbusters. I thought it was a little stronger than necessary."

Yolanda Gomez, who made a complaint to the sheriff after the game, said, "He just trotted in there with his whole weight, throwing it around."

Coffee said he was called to the county ballpark after a report about people being drunk at the game.

He said he found one drunk man and made the rest of the group stop drinking.

Reagan: Daniloff 'our hostage in Moscow'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Friday described Nicholas Daniloff as "our hostage in Moscow" despite his conditional release from prison, and Secretary of State George Shultz warned that until the American journalist is allowed to come home, U.S.-Soviet relations will be damaged.

Daniloff

Shultz, who took charge of the negotiations that led to Daniloff's release to the custody of the American Embassy in Moscow, did say he still plans to meet here next week with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze. But the secretary said the Daniloff case "will be prominently in the picture."

Asked whether the arrest of Daniloff had harmed prospects for a U.S.-Soviet summit late this year, Shultz said, "Of course it damages the relationship, and of course it damages the ability to move forward on other things. Things like this shift the tone, shift the ability to work problems out without a doubt."

Administration officials, speaking on grounds of anonymity, said a summit has been proposed between the Nov. 4 elections and the Christmas holidays, but that the Soviets had not yet agreed to a date.

Relenting somewhat on Reagan's declaration of Monday that "there will be no trade" to liberate Daniloff, the administration announced that in exchange for Daniloff's release from a Moscow prison, a Soviet physicist charged with spying in the United States was permitted to go to the Soviet Embassy.

But both Daniloff and Gennadiy Zakharov, the Soviet scientist, must remain in the Soviet Union and the United States, respectively, to face trial.

Reagan, at the outset of a talk to elementary school principals, at which reporters were present, "We are so relieved and happy that Mr. Daniloff is out of that 8-by-10-foot cell, which he was sharing with someone we think was an informant, and that he won't be subjected to four hours of interrogation every day."

The exchange was described by Shultz as "an interim step" toward gaining Daniloff's return to the United States as a free man and pledged the administration would "continue to make every effort to secure his prompt departure from the Soviet Union and safe return home."

"What has changed is his physical location," Shultz said. "That's all."

The 51-year-old Moscow correspondent for U.S. News & World Report left Moscow's Lefortovo Prison accompanied by his wife, Ruth, and U.S. charge d'affaires Richard Combs, after 13 days in captivity.

"Of course it (Daniloff's arrest) damages the relationship (between U.S. and U.S.S.R.), and of course it damages the ability to move forward on other things. Things like this shift the tone, shift the ability to work problems out without a doubt."

— Secretary of State George Shultz

Zakharov, a Soviet employee of the United Nations who was arrested by the FBI Aug 23 in a New York subway station and accused of buying U.S. defense secrets for his government, was released by order of a federal judge in New York on condition that Daniloff also be released and on condition that Zakharov return for trial.

Daniloff himself, enroute to the U.S. Embassy, told reporters, "I'm not a free man, but I'm changing one hotel for a better hotel."

The arrangement for Daniloff's release did clear the way for a conference of prominent Soviets and Americans, set for next week in Riga, the capital of Latvia.

A spokeswoman for former United Nations Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick, who is a member of the U.S. delegation to the conference sponsored by the Chautauqua Institution, said the group was to leave for the Soviet Union early Saturday. A number of U.S. government and private Americans had been invited to attend, but it wasn't clear how many would go.

During his White House appearance, Shultz said that in making the deal to let both Daniloff and Zakharov out of prison, "the United States government had prominently in mind the well-being of Mr. Daniloff. We feel for Mr. Daniloff."

White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan, asked whether the arrangement wasn't in fact a swap the United States had said it would not undertake, told reporters the administration still contends, "One's a spy, and the other's a hostage."

In announcing the agreement, Shultz said, "These two people — Zakharov and Daniloff — are no way comparable. There is no way we are going to trade them off for one another."

"Zakharov was caught spying," the secretary said. "He is a spy, and he's been charged, and we have the evidence."

Daniloff, he said, "was set up."

"Mr. Daniloff is not a spy," Shultz said. "He has never had any connection or employment with the United States government, nor has he undertaken tasks on instructions of any U.S. government agency."

U.S. News & World Report editor David Gergen, formally a White House communications director in the Reagan administration, told reporters he was glad to have Daniloff out of jail, but added, "Nick Daniloff is still a hostage."

Shultz told reporters Daniloff had given his assent to the deal before it was announced.

Although he said "we're not doing business as usual" with the Soviets while Daniloff remains subject to trial in the Soviet Union, Shultz indicated the United States plans to go forward with a variety of meetings, including his Sept. 19-20 meetings with Shevardnadze, in preparation for a summit meeting, perhaps later this year, between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

But he said, "You can be sure in every meeting we have, the Daniloff case — and for that matter, other concerns of ours about human rights problems — will be prominently in the picture."

"We feel that it's important to keep registering our point of view, not to walk away and stop talking about it," Shultz said.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said Daniloff "must not leave the territory of the Soviet Union" and that an investigation of the espionage charges against him continues.

Shultz acknowledged that the United States — and Daniloff himself— agreed that, "if called upon to appear in court, he will do so."

The release of the two men from prison came after nearly two weeks of intensive diplomatic efforts by the United States.

Media blamed for business downturn

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The owner of an Odessa Mexican restaurant Friday blamed the drive of news media members seeking exclusive stories for the downturn in business resulting from publicity about an outbreak of shigellosis.

Sam Gonzalez, owner of Manuel's Restaurant, said, "In the news media, everybody's trying to outscoop everybody else and that is the problem we feel has promulgated this problem. We want to be as forthright with everybody as we can and we know it's the public's right to know," he said in response to a question from a reporter about whether all members of the media would be treated equally, with no preferential treatment.

Gonzalez' statement came during a news conference called Friday morning by members of the Permian Basin Restaurant Association.

Bobby Cox, owner of Texas Burger restaurants, saying he's been in the restaurant business nearly 20 years, said his "business is down about 40 percent because I buy products from Cox Marketing. I think that a little unfair publicity to get," he said, "when there's no proof involved that anyone ever got sick at our restaurants."

Cox said he wished the media would give the health department a chance to find where the problem originated. "If it comes from one of our restaurants," he said, "we'll handle it."

Association President Sid Clark estimated that since publicity about the outbreak of shigellosis began business of area restaurants has dropped off 40 to 50 percent, with the decrease going "up to 99.9 percent" for some of the restaurants whose names were mentioned as places where people had eaten who had contracted the disease.

Clark said there has been no proof whatsoever that any area restaurant has been the source of the shigella bacteria.

Regarding the efforts of local and state health departments, Clark said, "The health department is not the type of organization, or state-run facility, that plays games with restaurants. If there is a problem they are going to shut us down," he said. "That's what we want to say, all of these are allegations, so what we are saying is we're doing everything we can and tests so far are negative," stated Clark. "There are no problems, to our knowledge in the restaurant and we want to get back to normal."

Local and state health department officials continue trying to pinpoint the source of the shigellosis outbreak, which apparently began about Aug. 29. Since that time close to 100 cases have been reported in the Odessa-Midland area, with nearly double the number occurring in Odessa.

Shigellosis symptoms include diarrhea, high fever, nausea and somtimes stomach cramps and vomiting.

Health department officials advise that if anyone has any of the symptoms they should consult a physician and be treated if it is determined they have the bacterial infection. The disease is passed by personal contact, hand-to-hand as it were. It can be spread by someone who has the disease handling food.

At Friday morning's news conference, the general manager of Comark Distributing, Larry Pierson, said that when health department officials notified the company that a survey showed a majority of people with shigellosis had eaten at Taco Villa restaurants the company ordered about a ton of lettuce destroyed even though samples taken only a day before tested negative.

Pierson said Comark's quality control standards are very strict, that about 90 hours a week are spent by staff biologists checking food products distributed by the company.

Regarding some restaurants identified as receiving shredded lettuce from Comark, Pierson said Texas Burger and Sonic Drive-ins do not buy Comark lettuce.

Restaurant officials have stressed that all tests conducted on various food products in an effort to poinpoint the source of the shigellosis outbreak have shown negative results.

Local Health Department officials have expressed that the primary phase of the disease, whatever its source, has run its course and that new cases being reported are the result of the secondary phase, that it is now probably being passed on by people unaware that they are infected.

DEPUTY

Ms. Gomez said Coffee made three men who were drinking beer sit in his car.

She said he then asked the concession stand workers if they were selling beer and they said no.

"He came back into the stands in a very rude and obnoxious and very overbearing manner with his hand on his gun and hitting his flashlight," Ms. Gomez said.

Then he kicked an ice chest open and Ms. Gomez said her brother, Ector Martinez told Coffee, " 'We're not doing anything wrong.' "

"He told my brother that he didn't like his attitude and he had five minutes to leave or he would be arrested," Ms. Gomez said.

Coffee said he did act in an intimidating manner because he believed the law was being broken.

"I did because they were breaking the law. They were drinking and some were intoxicated. I did find some subjects that were belligerent," Coffee said.

"If the situation arose again, I would handle it in the same manner," he said.

Drinking is not illegal at the park, which is located outside of city limits, Willeford said.

Jose Barriga, who was at the softball game, said Coffee was tense and intimidating because he was expecting a problem situation.

"He went over there thinking there were really problems. Nobody was having any problems. There wasn't any reason for the deputy to be sent over there. Somebody just did it out of malice. Somebody just set him up," Barriga said.

Before he left, Coffee told the group to clean up the park and then let the three men out of his car, Ms. Gomez said.

"We felt we were done wrong since we were Mexicans. We had a right to complain," she said.

Willeford suspended Coffee Sept. 1 after meeting with a group of Hispanics that had attended the game, he said.

Coffee then requested a public hearing on the suspension.

"I asked for a hearing because I thought it was unfair," Coffee said.

However, after Thursday's public hearing attended by about 80 people, Willeford stood by his original decision to suspend Coffee.

"No law required me to have a public hearing on this. I did this to be fair to both sides. I think I've gone out of my way to be fair," he said.

Ms. Gomez said she was pleased with the sheriff's decision.

"I feel that was the right thing to do, because we had a legitimate complaint and we never wanted anything else to go beyond somebody telling him he needed to change his attitude."

MC expecting record enrollment

From Staff Reports

A record enrollment seems assured for Midland College with three days remaining for students to sign up for fall semester courses, officials said.

By Friday morning, the headcount had jumped to 3,608 compared to 3,437 at the same time last year. The all-time enrollment record was 3,502, set during the fall of 1984.

"Today's count won't change a great deal during the last three days," said Dee Windsor, associate dean of students and registrar.

"We'll have some students registering, but some also are withdrawing and it almost balances out."

With the influx of students, Windsor said some classes have been closed to to classroom space or lab limitations.

"With the aid of our computer, we are able to inform students immidiately as to whether classes are closed or what the student limits might be," he said.

Windsor said "There are some classes where we have openings and the late-registering students are advised of these when they come in."

Students planning to take three classes or less may register through Wednesday. Late registration is handled in the Student Services Office, located in the MC Administration Building. Hours are 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Wednesday.

For information, call 685-4501.

MCT slates Horrors' auditions

Midland Community Theater will hold auditions Sunday and Monday for "Little Shop of Horrors" at 7:30 p.m. in Theatre II.

The play is a musical comedy in two acts. It requires a cast of four men and four women.

Seymour, the male principal, should be a baritone, preferably of medium build and of about 25-35 years of age.

Audrey, the female principal, should have a strong singing voice, also of about age 25-35.

Orin is a "sadistic dentist" and the actor who plays him should be in his 30s, tall, and be versatile enough to double in several male/female roles.

Mr. Mushnik, is a lower eastside Skid Row florist shop owner. The actor should be a baritone in his 50s.

Three females will be cast in the Greek chorus line.

Audrey II is a flesh-eating plant. The actor should have a strong expressive bass speaking and singing voice, and should be comfortable with rock and roll.

The show will run Oct. 31-Nov. 23 at the Yucca Theatre. It is directed by Don Bachman, executive director; Darryl Knapp, musical director; and Sharyllyn Shaw, choreographer. For further information, call Midland Community Theater at 682-2544.

Parade to mark Mexican freedom

From Staff Reports

Mexico Independence Day celebrations will be held this weekend.

The celebration in Midland officially begins with a 10 a.m. parade today and will continue on the grounds of the Midland County Exhibit Building.

The parade will begin at Lamesa Road and Scharbauer Drive, will proceed southward on Lamesa Road to Wall Avenue (U.S. Highway 80) and then will go eastward to the Exhibit Building.

The celebration is sponsored by the Eastside Lions Club, according to Edia Hernandez, president of the Midland Council of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

Mexico won independence from Spain in 1821.

Wrongly accused man cleared in videotaped slaying

LONGVIEW (AP) — A man who was wrongly accused and about to go on trial for killing a teen-ager in a Dallas area robbery that was videotaped was cleared Friday and given his freedom.

State District Judge John Ovard released the accused man, Marvin Maurice Wells, 22, and declared a mistrial.

"I feel terrific. Words can't describe it," Wells said after his release.

"Mr. Wells, I think it is an unfortunate situation involving you and I regret it happened," Ovard said. But he said the outcome proves the system of justice works.

Wells, a resident of Flint, Mich., returned to Dallas on his own recognizance, pending dismissal of the charges, officials said.

The trial was moved to this East Texas city because of heavy publicity in Dallas. The videotape of the crime was broadcast numerous times locally and later nationwide, prompting hundreds of citizen tips to police.

Wells said some of the police were "incompetent in their investigation. But I can't degrade all of the law officials in Dallas, because some did put the effort to find out I was innocent."

STATE

He was accused in the slaying of Matt McKay, 17, of Oklahoma City, a customer in a convenience store in the Dallas suburb of Carrollton when the store was robbed. McKay was shot during the Nov. 21 holdup and died 18 days later.

Dallas County Assistant District Attorney Norman Kinne, lead prosecutor, said three other men, two in prison and one who was arrested Friday, have been implicated in the case.

He said there had been several developments on the case during the past month, including a voice print test which showed conclusively that Wells was not guilty.

Kinne said a man held in the Van Zandt County Jail in Canton on charges of aggravated robbery told investigators he knew something about the robbery, and later made a confession, naming another man who was in prison on another case.

The statement led to the recovery of a coat taken in the robbery, Kinne said.

The prosecutor said the second man was questioned and also confessed. He was later identified by a robbery witness, he said.

The two men named a third man as the person who actually pulled the trigger, Kinne said. That man was on parole and was arrested Friday, he added.

Defense attorney Edwin King said Wells' arrest was due to wrong identification by witnesses.

"From day one, Marvin said he was not the man who committed the murder," King said. He said his client cooperated with law officers, agreeing to waive extradition from Michigan, where he was arrested.

King said Wells passed two polygraph tests.

Wells passed lie-detector tests administered during the Labor Day weekend. The district attorney's office asked Houston police for help in comparing his voice with that of the robber on the videotape.

Wells, who could have been sentenced to death if he had been convicted, said he was not bitter about the experience. He said the mistake occurred because officials were following misleading evidence, but he said officers never talked to him about the matter. "I think that is unjust," he said.

He said he will visit a cousin in Dallas and later return to Michigan to visit his mother.

He said he was always confident that he would be acquitted. "I am a great believer in God, and he told me it would work out," he said.

Head of MAD urges probe of San Antonio police department

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A special federal grand jury should investigate possible violations of civil rights, obstruction of justice and conspiracy in the San Antonio Police Department, the chairman of the Mexican American Democrats said Friday.

Inquiries into six murders in the past four years had allegedy focused at times on slain patrolman Stephen Smith and Ferrell Tucker, the fellow officer who police said killed Smith, the San Antonio Express-News reported on Thursday.

Ruben Bonilla Jr., chairman of Mexican American Democrats, said he sent the request for a federal probe to U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese and U.S. Attorney Helen Eversberg in San Antonio.

Bonilla said Smith may have told some of his fellow officers about illegal actions and that other officers did not tell their supervisors.

"It is speculation and conjecture at this point and that's why we need a federal grand jury to clear the air," Bonilla said Friday.

"But anytime you have a police officer acting under the color of law in a manner that abridges the rights of others you have a potential for massive federal violations," he said. "At one point or another if he reveals it to his colleagues and they don't say anything, that's a problem and therein lies the danger."

Bonilla asked in the letters, sent on Thursday, that Ms. Eversberg convene a special grand jury panel and that Meese approve the jury's charge.

"I have not exactly had my phones ringing off the walls by the attorney general," Bonilla said.

Slugs found in the bodies of two of the murder victims have been matched with an AR-15 semi-automatic rifle recovered by police from Smith's apartment after Smith was killed on Aug. 18, the newspaper reported.

"Perhaps the forensic evidence will be enough to make (Meese and Ms. Eversberg) recognize the necessity for what we ask," Bonilla said on Thursday.

Tucker told police he shot Smith five times with a .357-magnum revolver because he feared for his life.

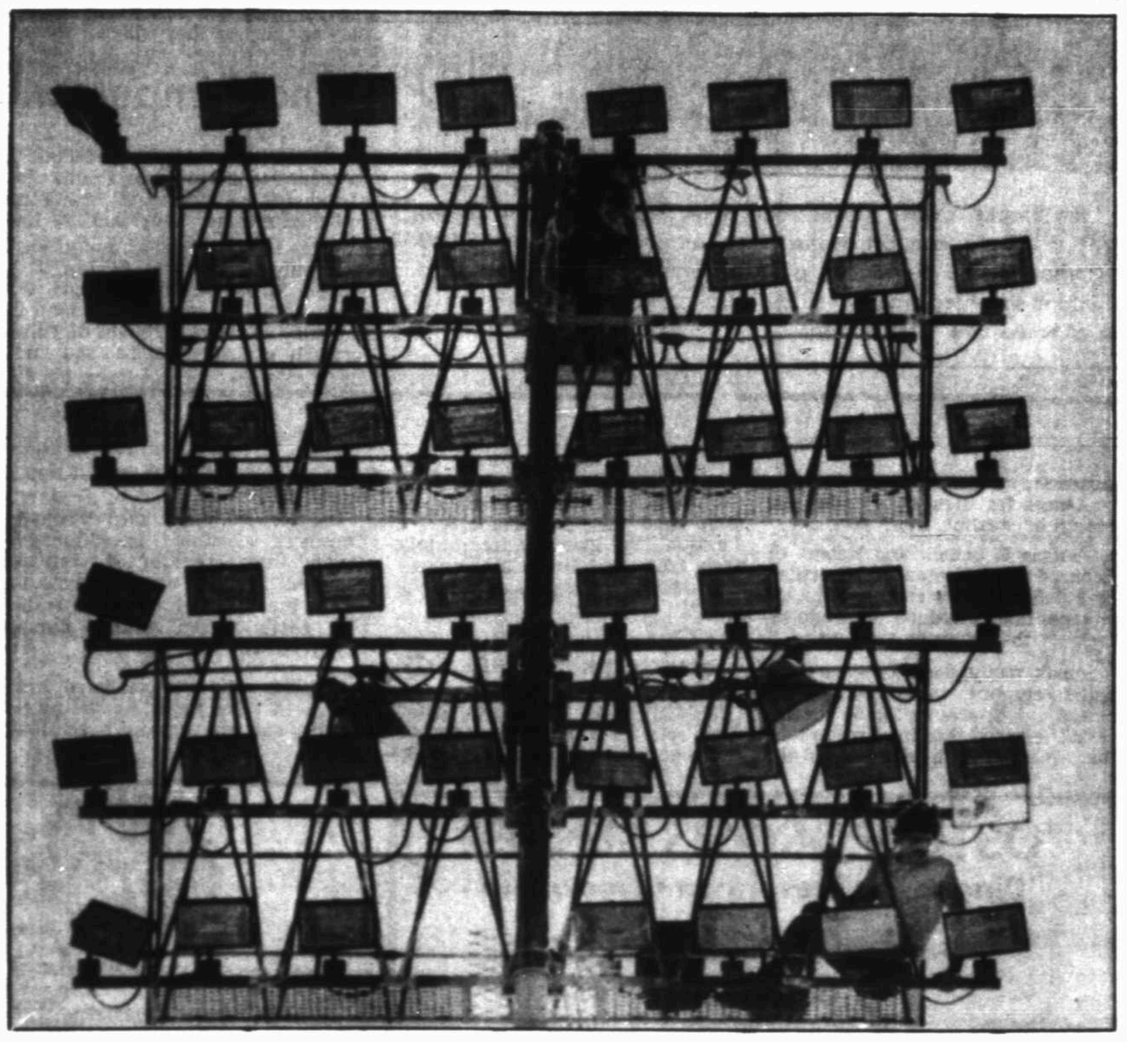

The shooting occurred while Smith was driving his father's car in which Tucker was riding. Tucker reportedly was with Smith to gather more information on purported death plots by Smith.

Smith allegedly planned to kill District Attorney Sam Millsap, interim Police Chief Frank Hoyack and Deputy Chief Robert Heuck, local newspapers have reported.

FBI agents already are conducting a civil rights investigation into Smith's death to determine if his civil rights were violated in the way in which he died.

"The focus of the FBI should be expanded so that all facets of the problems so evident...are examined," Bonilla said.

A state grand jury this week began hearing testimony into the slaying of Smith, who was on suspension at the time of his death, pending a state civil rights violation trial. That charge involved injury to a suspected shoplifter.

High-class kennel providing for canine recipient of $50,000

SOUTHLAKE (AP) — Bingo the dog lives in air-conditioned comfort and is treated to breakfasts of scrambled eggs. But then, with a $50,000 inheritance he can afford it.

The 5-year-old part German shepherd and part Doberman pinscher is the only survivor of a fire that gutted a North Dallas house in January, killing an elderly woman and five other dogs.

Soon after the fire, Jim Brooks, the owner of the Bark n'Purr kennel, was told that the woman had left Bingo to the kennel, along with a $50,000 trust to provide for his care.

The terms of the woman's will provide lifetime care for Bingo, and then the trust will be shared between three charity organizations, said Jim Dulworth, a vice president and trust officer at RepublicBank Dallas.

The Bark n'Purr kennel has been termed a luxury hotel for dogs, offering rooms decorated in different themes that come with a telephone and piped-in music.

Young boys join war against crime

HUMBLE (AP) — A dozen boys, the youngest age 4, have joined the adult war against crime by becoming honorary deputies who will patrol their own apartment complex.

The idea for the junior patrol was concocted by a security guard after an 8-year-old and a 10-year-old provided information on a car burglary at their apartment complex in this town north of Houston.

On Thursday, Harris County Sheriff's Capt. Ken Berry swore in 12 boys, ages 4 though 12, as the department's newest and youngest honorary deputies.

"The sheriff's department endorses the program as long as it doesn't entail the kids getting involved in any incident," Berry said. "But if they see something while they are playing they will call apartment security."

He described the junior patrol as a children's version of the crime watch program.

"We're trying to get total participation from the kids. I think it's good that children can get involved in their community at an early age," he said.

About two weeks ago, apartment residents Jason Eldridge, 10, and Jerry Zapata, 8, heard an alarm sound while they played a late-night game of Monopoly.

"We heard a car alarm go off and we looked outside and saw three strange guys trying to get into this car," the 8-year-old said. "When they ran off we called (the security guard) and ran outside."

The two boys gave the security guard and authorities descriptions of the suspects.

From there, security guard Jesse Fannin thought about establishing a youth patrol.

"Incidents like the attempted car break-in were rare, but I thought this would be a good way to nip it in the bud," Fannin said. "By involving the children and increasing the number of eyes around here and through them involving the parents, this way if I don't see something, someone else probably will."

Patrol members must first have their parents' permission, and they are instructed not to get involved physically, he said.

"I just want them to participate during their normal routine of playing and coming home from school and the like. We've emphasized they aren't supposed to stay up late," Fannin said.

Female impersonator sentenced in roommate's death

COLDSPRING (AP) — A female impersonator was sentenced to life in prison Friday after being convicted of stabbing his 20-year-old female roommate to death and dumping her body in Lake Livingston.

Jurors in State District Judge Joe Ned Dean's court took only 20 minutes Friday to sentence Clifford Youens, 32, of Houston, said Marilyn Neddles, a district court clerk. The same jury took a little over an hour Thursday to convict Youens of killing Patric LeBlanc, formerly of Lafayette, La., she said.

Youens could have received 99 years in prison and up to $10,000 in fines.

"This is a man of costume," Assistant San Jacinto County District Attorney Don Keith told jurors. "This is a man of pretend. This is a man who makes his living a lie."

Authorities said Ms. LeBlanc had been missing since early March. Her body was found March 23 floating and bound in a comforter and chained to a pair of concrete blocks. She had been stabbed 39 times.

STATE IN BRIEF

Ex-teacher charged with allegedly plotting arson

CONROE (AP) — A former Houston chemistry teacher, already serving a 60-year conspiracy sentence, was indicted for allegedly arranging to have his motor home torched, officials said.

The motor home was found burning just inside the Montgomery County line on Feb. 23, 1985, investigators said.

Assistant Montgomery County District Attorney David Bluestein said Jerry Easley, 45, was indicted Thursday.

Authorities said Easley's second wife, Sharon, reportedly was last seen in the motor home driving away from a Houston residence 13 days before the home was found ablaze. She is still missing.

Easley, a former superintendent of a Polk County school district, is serving a 60-year sentence for conspiracy to commit capital murder in Cherokee County. Authorities said he plotted to have his son's roommate killed because the roommate had refused an offer by Easley to kill three Polk County residents.

Easley was charged with murder in the 1969 stabbing death of his first wife, but the charge was dropped for lack of evidence.

Former TI engineers fined

DALLAS (AP) — Two former engineers with Texas Instruments were fined $5,000 each and given probated sentences for their convictions last month of stealing trade secrets.

Thomas B. Schalk and Robert G. Leonard were sentenced Thursday by a Dallas jury for copying computer tapes that contained the trade secrets of their former employer.

Schalk was given a two-year probated sentence, while Leonard received a four-year probated term.

"We assessed the fine for the fact that we believed (the defendants) did this to better their financial position," said jury foreman Mark H. Johnson. "We gave the fine to take away from that financial position."

Schalk and Leonard said they will appeal.

Convicted killer wins stay

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A convicted killer scheduled to die by injection next week was granted a stay Friday by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals.

The New Orleans court blocked Tuesday's scheduled execution of Donald Gene Franklin, 34, without comment. Franklin was to be executed for the 1975 abduction and stabbing death of San Antonio nurse Peggy Moran.

Franklin, who was convicted and sentenced three times for the murder, has had two previous execution dates.

Ms. Moran, a 27-year-old nurse at Audie Murphy Veteran's Hospital, was abducted from the hospital parking lot July 26, 1975. She was found alive four days later, but died a short time afterward.

School to fight flag ban

GRAND PRAIRIE (AP) — School officials here plan to fight the state education agency that ordered the South Grand Prairie High School to stop using the Confederate flag as a spirit symbol.

Members of the school board voted unanimously Thursday to appeal the order from the Texas Education Agency at the recommendation of Superintendent Marvin Crawford Jr.

Last month the Texas Education Agency ordered the school to stop sanctioning use of the flag after investigating a complaint from Lee Alcorn, president of the Grand Prairie chapter of the NAACP.

Market experts don't try to explain drop

NATION

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices gyrated wildly in record trading Friday, and even the old salts of Wall Street confessed to feeling a little seasick.

In the aftermath of an unprecedented 86.61-point drop in the Dow Jones industrial average on Thursday, the market suffered another steep setback in the early going Friday.

As the session passed, prices struggled to recover, but then dropped again. Amid the rush of activity, many analysts said they simply couldn't draw any conclusions yet about whether the market was going through just a passing storm, or something worse.

"We've never had numbers like this before," said William LeFevre at the firm of Purcell Graham & Co.

In the first hour of trading Friday, the Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip stocks was down about 46 points. It then began edging up, actually getting ahead by 0.71 point at noon EDT, but another slide set in. By the end of the day, the average stood at 1,758.72, down 34.17 points from Thursday's close.

The ticker tape reporting trades in New York Stock Exchange-listed issues ran more than 30 minutes late during the morning, and trading volume on the exchange exceeded Thursday's record pace.

The late tape was evidence of a lot of public selling, said Newton Zinder, who has been a technical analyst at E.F. Hutton & Co. since the early 1960s.

By all accounts, Thursday's selloff was due in large measure to computer program selling by professional investors playing individual stocks against futures contracts on market indexes.

On Friday, by contrast, the primary sellers at the opening appeared to be individual investors who had been frightened by news accounts about the market's plunge. "This is the people, as opposed to the programs yesterday," LeFevre said.

While some market forecasters were proclaiming the end of Wall Street's four-year bull market, and others were insisting that the drop was only a short-term setback, the Reagan administration professed to be unconcerned.

Larry Speakes, the White House spokesman, said the economy remains healthy. "I don't think we have ever tried to explain the stock market," he added.

For those who do try to explain it, the fluctuations of the past couple of days demonstrated a new problem they have to contend with: A degree of volatility, or at least of perceived volatility, that has seemed to make the market even more emotional than before.

With point changes in the Dow Jones industrial average as a gauge, the five biggest declines ever in the market have occurred in the first nine months of 1986.

In the same period, the market has also witnessed five of the 10 biggest gains on record.

To a significant extent, this phenomenon can be explained by the fact that the market is simply at a much higher level than ever before. No percentage change for the Dow in any single session this year has come close to the 12.9 percent loss recorded on Oct. 28, 1929, in the Great Crash of that year.

In addition, computers allow professional traders and managers at large investing institutions to move huge sums of money in and out of stocks almost instantaneously.

The advent and growth of markets for stock-index futures have brought to stock-market investing an element of the commodity markets, which are notoriously wild and wooly.

Furthermore, many analysts say, it is important to remember that the market has had an extraordinary rise since August 1982, when the Dow Jones industrials stood at 776.92.

"When the market has been as strong as this one, there's a lot of nervousness," John S.R. Shad, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, told the Dow Jones News Service on Friday.

"Any softness in the economy or shock-type information will trigger decisions that have been waiting to be made," Shad said.

But however it can be explained, a good many Wall Streeters say the stock market's frenetic behavior lately is troublesome at least.

GM announces 2.6 percent price increase of '87 models

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. will raise prices of its 1987 passenger cars by an average of 2.6 percent over the previous year's models, the automaker said Friday.

"This price increase reflects the partial recovery of higher material, labor and other manufacturing costs," GM said.

The 1987 models go on sale Oct. 9.

The announcement came as GM was offering bargain-basement financing of 2.9 percent on its 1986 models in an effort to clear out a nearly 80-day supply of unsold cars. Competing Ford Motor Co. had about a 50-day supply at the end of July, and Chrysler Corp. had about a 65-day supply.

"The range in base prices would go from a reduction of $828 on the (Chevrolet) Chevette coupe to an increase of $778 on the Cadillac Brougham," said Cliff Merriott, GM spokesman.

The price of the low-end Chevrolet Cavalier four-door sedan will increase by $250 to $7449; the Olds Cutlass Supreme, by $450 to $11,539; and the Buick Electra Park Avenue, by $686 to $18,769, Merriott said.

GM's 1986 models on average were priced at 3 percent above the previous year's, Merriott said.

Ford was "several weeks away from making an announcement" of 1987 car prices, said John Sieg, a company spokesman.

Chrysler last month said it tentatively had decided to raise 1987 car prices by less than 2 percent on average over 1986 prices.

The price changes were to the manufacturer's suggested retail prices.

Winning trust of horses enables underprivileged to say 'I can'

By LINDA FIBICH

DALLAS (AP) — He's a skinny kid, at an age when he could sprout to a man's height should you happen to look away.

The horse is a hand or two taller. It drops its head to meet the brush between the youth's fingers, pushing back at each stroke. "Tobask," says the youth, softly.

Douglas Johnson — called Duckee — says everything softly to Tobask. The 3-year-old registered Arabian is unbroken, and when the gelding is ready for riding, Duckee will be the first. On this Friday afternoon, the two have known one another only three days.

"I just mainly talk to him, and rub him," Duckee says, continuing to brush. "When you work, you rub him."

Dust rises from the horse's bay coat and sticks to the youth's skin. The dust is thick behind Edgar Ward Place, the sprawling public housing complex south of the Trinity River Bottoms in West Dallas. Both live there — the youth in the projects, the horse in the lot kept by the Lake West Police Athletic League.

There are 35 youngsters in the Lake West Saddle Club, ages 6 through 18. All but one come from this neighborhood. The program has been run for two years on donated horses and the marine-sergeant bark of officer Debbie Johnson. No relation to Duckee, she might say. But it wouldn't be entirely true.

Participation is open to anyone who can keep Ms. Johnson's rules. "You have to be willing to work," she says. "You have to conduct yourself like a little gentleman. And grades are important. ...One of my rules is, you will get off the school bus with at least one book. No book, you stay off the horse lot."

The inspiration for the club was Sgt. Herb Steele's. Steele, one of those who mans the Lake West substation, explains the origin of the idea by saying he was "kind of a cowboy growing up."

He recalls when he determined to do more than nurse the idea. He'd been called to a shooting in the projects, and was confronted by the young son of a suspect. "I was trying to console the 13-year-old boy," he remembers, "telling him the judge'd get mad at me if I didn't take his daddy down to answer some questions."

Steele asked the boy if he'd ride a horse if given the chance. The answer was yes. "After I told that kid, I was committed," says Steele.

According to Johnson, taking responsibility for a horse and winning its trust gives underprivileged children "the opportunity to get out into the community, to school and say , 'I can.'"

The corral was a housing authority nursery, unused for 20 years. The first of the horses took care of the overgrown Johnson grass, and the kids, Ms. Johnson and Steele say, did the rest.

At the outset, Duckee Johnson couldn't have cared less. "We just came and shot birds over here," he says of the old nursery, "with slingshots and BB guns."

In the fall, Duckee will be a sophomore at W.T. White High School. He can't wait to finish there. "I'm looking for a job now. But I need my birth certificate, and I can't find it. So mostly, I'm over here. I didn't used to like horses very well. Now, when I see a horse, that oughta be my horse."

For now, there is Tobask. "I didn't think I'd really get him first," Duckee says.

According to Ms. Johnson, the youth will have to teach the bay gelding "everything. Some manners. To respect physical restraints." The horse is halter broken, but must learn to respond to voice commands, she says.

Fossils of more than 30 species of animals found

PEKING (AP) — Archeologists have found the fossilized remains of more than 30 species of animals in a cave in southern China, the official Xinhua News Agency said today.

The fossils include remains of the stegodon, an ancient elephant-like mammal that lived more than 10,000 years ago, and remains of pandas, deer, monkeys, cows and dogs, Xinhua said.

The find was unusual because of the variety of fossils found, Xinhua quoted local archeologists as saying.

The cave, which is 2,000 yards long, is in Wuxuan County in Guangxi Zhuang Autonomous Region.

Researchers have not yet determined how old the remains are or why they all are in the same cave.

Archeologists also have found broken pottery and stone axes in the cave, the report said.

Death chamber gets custom-made gurney

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The Texas death chamber, scene of 361 electrocutions and 18 lethal injections since 1924, has a new look.

Prison officials, concerned with security, now have a custom-made steel pedestal bolted to the floor to hold the stainless steel gurney on which 18 condemned men have received a lethal combination of drugs.

The new permanent gurney — which resembles a surgical operating room table — replaces the four-wheeled gurney has been used since lethal injections began in Texas in 1982.

For 40 years until 1964, the same room at the Texas Department of Corrections' Walls Unit housed "Old Sparky," the electric chair which is now stored a few feet away in two wooden crates.

"This is more solid and secure," assistant warden Robert Ott said of the new gurney. "It's designed for both a submissive and a combative inmate. With the wheels, it could move around quite a bit."

Ott said officials have been fortunate that none of the 18 inmates put to death by injection has fought the process.

"If the need arises, we are trained. We practice all the time," he said.

White leather belts which hold the inmate to the gurney also are being replaced. The belts secure the inmate at the ankles, knees, thighs, waist and chest. Another set is placed around his wrists.

"I changed them out because they were getting kind of worn," Ott said.

The death chamber was used three times in late August as convicted killers Randy Woolls, Larry Smith and Chester Wicker received lethal injection. The 18 executions in Texas are the most in any state since the Supreme Court allowed the death penalty to resume in the United States in 1976.

At least six inmates among the more than 230 on death row currently have execution dates. Attorney General Jim Mattox has said two of them — Donald Gene Franklin on Sept. 15 and Raymond Riles on Sept. 16 — are likely to die.

Ott said because of the recent frequency of executions, prison officials practice the death chamber routine often and go through the procedures at least twice when an execution is likely to occur.

"We're satisfied, but never completely satisfied," Ott said. "If something comes up, we want to know we can deal with it. We're very fortunate we have an excellent staff."

While the execution duty is not voluntary, a corrections officer who indicates a personal distaste for it will be reassigned, Ott said.

Daniloff's daughter relieved yet fearful about his welfare

BOSTON (AP) — The daughter of American reporter Nicholas Daniloff said she was relieved by news of his release Friday by Soviet authorities but still fearful.

"No, he is not free," said Miranda Daniloff, 23-year-old daughter of the Moscow-based correspondent for U.S. News & World Report. "He is still being held in the Soviet Union and the Soviets still want to continue with a trial, which is ridiculous, absurd."

Daniloff was arrested by Soviet authorities Aug. 30, just 15 hours after driving his daughter to the airport for her flight back to the West. His release to the U.S. Embassy was part of a deal in which a Soviet spy suspect in custody in New York was turned over to his embassy.

His daughter held a news conference in her attorney's office after learning of his release from officials at U.S. News, who reacted, she said, with "tears and lot of pacing and hugs."

Miss Daniloff, an actress from Chicago, came to her aunt's house in Cambridge this week to see her brother, Caleb, 16, a student at Northfield Mount Hermon School in western Massachusetts.

Her brother did not attend the news conference. "He didn't want to go through this," said a school spokesman, Kim Nilsen. "It's kind of overwhelming."

But Caleb released a statement through Ms. Nilsen. "I know his conditions will be better, that he will be among friends and people who support him," the young Daniloff said. "But I still feel that he's being held hostage."

Miss Daniloff said she and her brother had worried about Daniloff's high blood pressure as well as his psychological well-being.

"The pressure, when you know that the penalty could possibly be the death penalty, is extraordinary and that, at least, is somewhat relieved," she said.

She said she was prepared to fly to the Soviet Union for a reunion with her father. Still, she said, "right now I don't have any desire to go back."

Miss Daniloff angrily defended her father against the Soviets' charges and against a Harris poll that found some Americans believe he was a spy.

"I would just like to point out ...that the president of the United States has sent a statement to (Soviet leader Mikhail) Gorbachev putting his relationship on the line (and) saying that my father was not a spy, and I don't know what more they want," she said.

She praised the State Department for its efforts, but declined to reveal what officials told her about negotiations to release her father.

Archdiocese rejects priest's $1 million gift

CHICAGO (AP) — The Rev. Andrew M. Greeley, an outspoken priest and author, said Friday he was appalled that the nation's largest Roman Catholic school system had refused his $1 million gift to help poor, inner-city students.

"The Catholic Church has taken money from corrupt politicians, stock market manipulators and mafia dons," said Greeley, who has written 11 novels of love, sex, power and priestly life in the church.

"I think this may be the first time in history they've turned down any money, let alone a million dollars," he said. "I was astonished and dismayed."

Greeley, 58, announced the start of his own $1 million foundation to provide grants to about 100 Catholic schools serving Chicago's poor Hispanic and black neighborhoods. He said he would donate royalties from his new book, "Confessions of a Parish Priest," an autobiography scheduled for release Monday.

The Chicago Archdiocese rejected his $1 million gift offer in late August without explanation, he said.

Greeley, a sociologist who worked as a newspaper columnist and was a critic of the late Cardinal John Cody, said he believes his gift may have been refused because of controversy created by his novels.

Sister Joy Clough, spokeswoman for the archdiocese, said Cardinal Joseph Bernardin made the decision to reject Greeley's offer.

"As far as reasons for not accepting the gift, those are a private matter between the cardinal and one of his priests," Sister Clough said. "And we don't comment on such matters."

Greeley said he talked about his books with Bernardin last summer. "He said I was a priest in good standing," Greeley recalled. "But he said I would never really be normalized in the archdiocese if I continued to write fiction.

"I gather his main problem is the scandal my books have created among people who haven't read them but think they know what's in them. That doesn't seem to be a good reason to turn down money to help poor kids and hard-working priests," Greeley said.

The Chicago Archdiocese has the nation's largest parochial school system with 416 schools, 174,099 students and parish expenditures of more than $140 million for grammar schools alone.

"I've come to believe the schools are the most impressive thing American Catholicism has ever done," Greeley said. "They are remarkably effective in helping disadvantaged kids, abused kids and neglected kids."

Greeley said other Chicago priests had told him they were angered by the archdiocese's refusal of his gift. But only one of a half-dozen priests and principals contacted Friday would comment.

"I don't know why they rejected it," said retired Monsignor Daniel Cunningham, who became pastor of St. Angela's parish while Greeley attended grammar school there.

"We could use the money, I suppose. But if the archdiocese rejected it, who am I to say?"

Religious sect leader, subordinates convicted

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — The leader of the House of Judah religious sect and six subordinates were convicted Friday of enslaving children and causing a boy's death.

"The intent of the defendants was that the children had no choice but to do their work or be subject to brutal beatings," said U.S. District Judge Douglas Hillman, who decided the case after the defendants requested a non-jury trial.

William A. Lewis, his mistress, his son and four members of the cult council could be sentenced to up to life in prison.

Lewis and five of the defendants also were convicted of a lesser charge of holding 12-year-old John Yarbough in involuntary servitude from late 1981 until his July 4, 1983, beating death. That charge carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Lewis and the others, who have moved their sect from rural southwest Michigan to Alabama, were allowed to remain free on bond pending sentencing. No date was set.

"I have no comment," Lewis said after the verdict.

Later, in an elevator, the leader of 100 self-described Black Hebrew Israelite Jews told a sect member: "I feel better now, I feel better now."

Federal lawyers hailed the verdict.

"All we can say is thank God there has been justice in this case," said U.S. Attorney Daniel Bell.

Convicted on both counts were Lewis, 66; his son, William L. Lewis, 41; sect "Prophetess" Muriel S. King, 40; and sect council members Robert T. McGee, 31; Theodore R. Jones, 41; Larry E. Branson, 32; and Eddie L. Green, 34.

All but King were convicted of involuntary servitude.

"I can guarantee an appeal," said Larry Willey, one of seven defense lawyers.

Hillman, in his hourlong verbal opinion, recited a litany of testimony about life on the commune, where he said ritualized beatings on the buttocks with large sticks were ordered by Lewis as a means of controlling children.

The beatings, the strict enforcement of rules and the forced labor of children resulted in slavery as prohibited by the 13th Amendment, Hillman ruled.

He indicated that the most compelling testimony came from 14-year-old Daniel Yarbough, a brother of the dead boy.

Daniel testified that the elder Lewis had ordered some of the defendants to press a hot iron against his face because he was in charge of supervising a younger sister who accidentally suffered a similar burn.

Daniel also testified that his brother was beaten several times in the days before his death. Five days before John's death, he was held aloft by sect leaders and beaten on the buttocks repeatedly, Daniel testified.

Defense lawyers, claiming the slavery allegations were unfounded, based their case on sect members' right to practice their religious beliefs and set rules that their children must follow.

Lewis founded the ect in the slums of Chicago and moved to a rural tract of land in Allegan County in the mid-1970s.

Ethel Yarbough was convicted in Allegan County Circuit Court of involuntary manslaughter for inflicting the final beating to her son, and is serving a 4- to 15-year prison sentence.

Weather to be pleasant, cool

From Staff and Wire Reports

This weekend promises to be pleasant from the weather's standpoint — cool with a touch of autumn in pre-fall days.

For today, the weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is calling for a "fair" morning, partly-cloudy skies this afternoon, and a high today in the upper 80s. For tonight, he is forecasting a low in the mid-60s. Winds are to southerly at 10 to 15 mph today. The high Sunday is to be near 90 degrees.

The high temperature Friday was 83 degrees, which fell short of the Sept. 12 record high of 101 degrees in 1930. The overnight low of 57 degrees was nowhere near the record low 49 degrees in 1959.

STATE

Showers and thunderstorms developed over parts of South Texas and the Hill Country Friday afternoon in the vicinity of a nearly stationary cold front stretching from southeastern Texas across the south central part of the state.

Other showers and thunderstorms occurred along the coastal plains and into the Gulf of Mexico. A flash flood watch was posted for parts of the Hill Country because of the chance of more rain over saturated ground, the National Weather Service said.

Otherwise, skies were fair to partly cloudy across most of the state, the weather service said.

South to southeast winds breezed across the western half of the state, while east and northeast winds prevailed elsewhere. Speeds were generally 5 to 15 mph except for gusts near 30 mph in the Panhandle.

The forecast called for fair to partly cloudy skies today with a possibility of rain in the Hill Country. Highs will be mostly in the 80s and 90s, the weather service said.

NATION

Cool air poured into the north-central states Friday as a storm system that brought snow to the Rockies, thunderstorms to the Plains and flooding rains to the Great Lakes this week moved off the eastern seaboard.

Locally heavy thunderstorms developed across southern Texas, where several inches fell early in the day, prompting a flash-flood watch.

A cold front moved over much of the central and southern Plains, the western Great Lakes and much of the Mississippi Valley. Temperatures fell into the 40s in parts of northern Montana.

Rivers were receding Friday in Michigan's Lower Peninsula, where 13 inches of rain over three days caused flooding that killed five people. More than 1,000 people remained out of their homes Friday.

Pepped up Rebels rally to nip Plainview

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

With Midland Lee trailing a surprising Plainview team by a 15-7 margin at the Memorial Stadium halftime, it looked like the best ticket in town would be the one to the Lee dressing room. Surely, that had to be a better show than what was going on out on the field.

Lee's new head coach Earl Miller is known for his halftime "pep" talks. You may not be able to understand what he is saying, but then again, he gets his point across — loudly.

At any rate, when Lee came back before a crowd and out from under Miller's halftime show, the Rebels roared as was expected to pull out a 21-15 victory.

"Well, you might say I was a little outspoken at the half," said Miller. "I don't mind if you get beat by earning it, but I sure don't like to give the game away. And that's what I felt we were doing."

THE SITUATION that angered Miller was the way Plainview broke a 7-7 tie to take the lead at the half. Despite being assessed 40 yards in penalties in one drive, Plainview managed to cover 35 yards in 14 plays. It took them 75 yards to do it, but the slumping Lee defense still couldn't hold the Bulldogs.

The drive ended when quarterback Blaze Mayberry hit Rod Williams with a 26-yard TD pass and Willie Ansley ran for a two-point conversion and a 15-7 lead.

"We couldn't even stop them with all the penalties we got. They were destroying our secondary with big plays and that didn't look too good to me," said Miller.

But Miller got things straightened out in his own way at the half, and his Rebels took the second half kickoff and marched 66 yards in 11 plays to cut the margin to 15-13.

It was trickery again that helped the Rebs on that one as wide receiver Jimmy Fennell scored from 26 yards out on an end around play, but Joe Woodard was stopped short on the conversion run attempt.

"There was really nothing to the play. It's just an end around off the option, but we got some good blocking," said Miller.

Billy Wagner later returned a punt to the Plainview 22, but Lee failed to score, pushing its comeback heroics to the fourth quarter.

THAT'S WHEN Kevin Jackson intercepted a Mayberry pass to set up a 61-yard, 10-play drive that ended when Woodard leaped over center Chris Jones for a two-yard score with 8:36 left in the game. Quarterback Rodney Johnson then hit Fennell for a two-point conversion and the final margin.

"I wasn't happy with the first half, but I'm really proud of this team. They came back and took control and those backs — I'm so proud of those backs — they ran hard," said Miller.

"Plainview is a good football team and well coached. We knew Coach (Greg) Sherwood would have his team ready to play us and he had some things that hurt us in the first half. That Ansley kid is a great back and they threw the ball well. But this win is going to help our team.

"I've been saying all along that we aren't very good yet. We're young and inexperienced and you can't expect them this early to go out and be perfect. Well, we weren't perfect, but I think we learned a few things and won in the process."

Plainview opened the scoring in the first period when Mayberry hit Ansley for a 43-yard scoring strike, but Lee tied the game at 7-7 when Johnson took a keeper and outran the Bulldog defense for a 51-yard score to which Jeff Connally added the PAT.

JOHNSON had 57 yards rushing on the night, but was sacked three times. It was fullback Waymond Goodley that impressed Miller on this night. Goodley rand for 73 bullish yards. "Not bad for a kid who is only a sophomore in experience," said Miller. "He had a 15-yard TD called back. I thought he carried us."

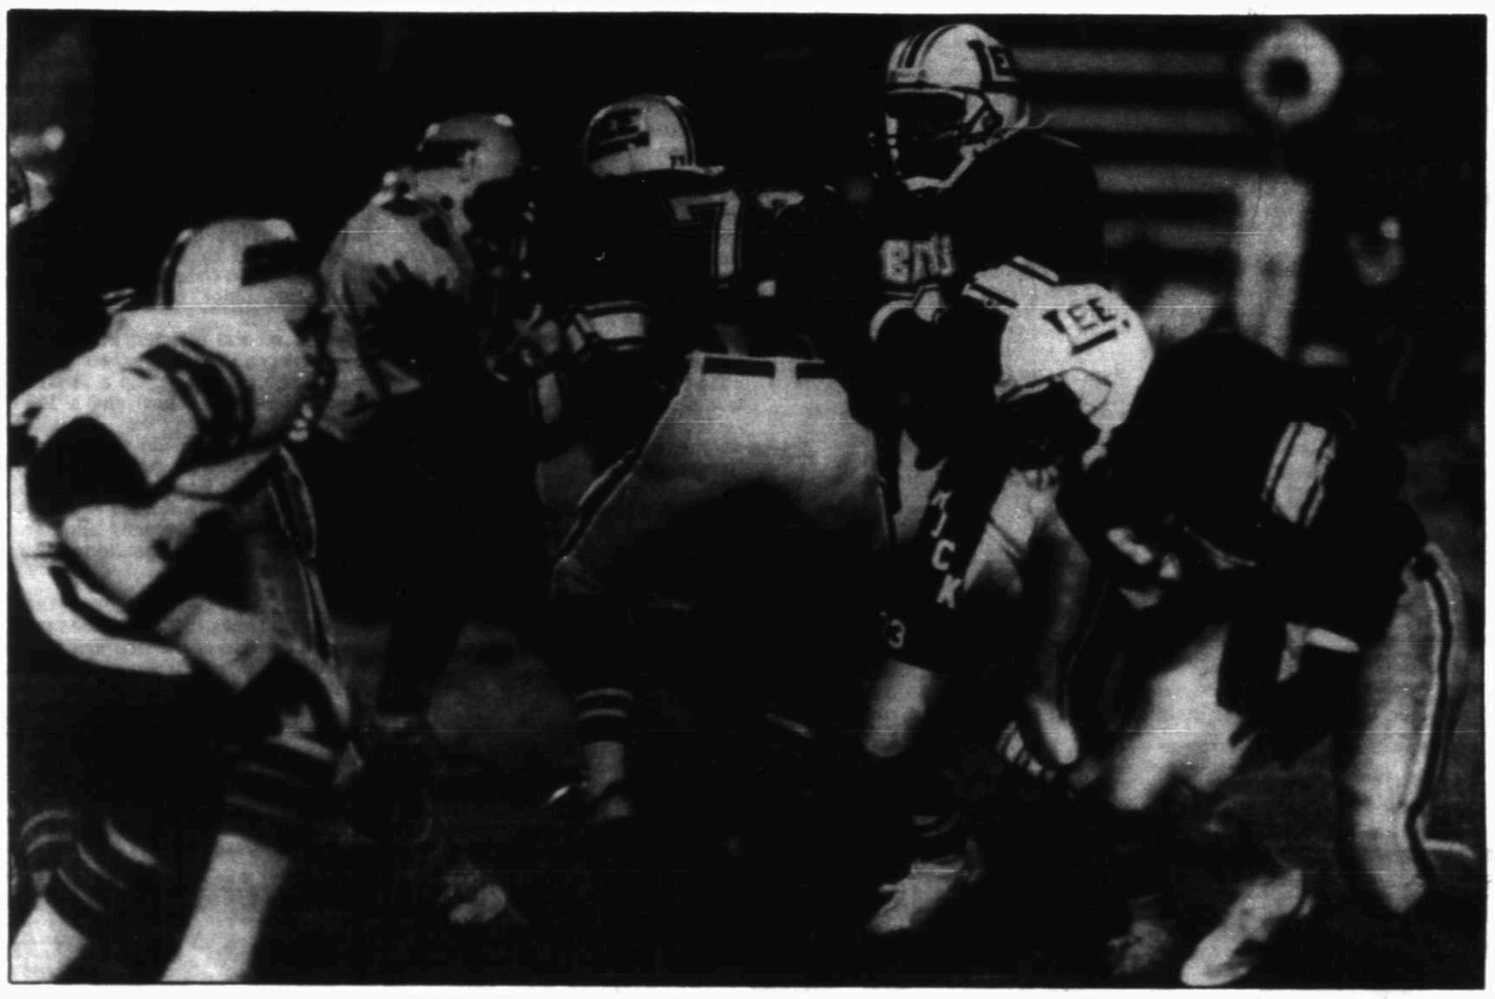

Plainview's Ansley is a great athlete. He ended up with only 38 yards rushing, but was a thorn in the side of Lee in the first half.

"His legs just gave out on him before the second half. He's a great back, but he's playing both ways and we expect a lot of him," said Plainview coach Greg Sherwood. "I'm proud of the way our kids played against Lee. It was just one of those tough battles. We got a great effort, but we were inconsistent. And Lee is a very good team. I don't think anyone can say they aren't a good football team."

Lee had three interceptions in the second half by Fennell, John Kendrick and Kevin Jackson to halt the Plainview passing game. Plainview completed only one pass for 20 yards in the second half.

Both teams had 14 first downs, but Plainview actually won the statistics battle by a 260-234 yard margin over Lee.

Owls' late TD nips Rangers

By ERIC SCHURER

GREENWOOD — Ronnie Reeger didn't have the busted game clock to tell him that time was running out on his Reagan County Owls in their season-opener with the Greenwood Rangers — he didn't need it.

So trailing 21-20 with about eight minutes to go, the Owls marched on a 54-yard, time-consuming drive to spoil the Rangers' home opener, 28-21, on a fourth down touchdown by Scott Lipsey Friday night.

Talented tailback James West set up the Owls frantic finish by rushing for 143 yards, including a 66-yard touchdown in the first half and a four-yard. fourth down plunge to keep the winning drive alive.

Reagan County's winning drive eclipsed a go-ahead Ranger touchdown by Garry Popham that pulled Greenwood to within one, 20-19, midway through the final quarter. Coach Maurice Hodges decided to go for it all and quarterback Glen Teal put Greenwood ahead with the two-point conversion. It put the Rangers in front for the first time since the second quarter.

But instead of the Rangers evening their mark at 1-1, they fall to 0-2, as the Owls jump to a 1-0 pre-district start.

Oliver's two TDs pace 'Dogs over Andrews

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

ANDREWS — Midland High halfback Tyrone Oliver broke his longest varsity run from scrimmage Friday night and scored two touchdowns as the Bulldogs notched their second straight victory, 21-6, to remain among the District 4-5A unbeaten.

While the Mustangs suffered their second defeat in as many outings, they were the beneficiaries of some good post-game news from Andrews County Hospital, where 258-pound defensive tackle David Jacobson was taken after suffering a neck injury in the third quarter.

Jacobson, who went down and stayed down midway through the third quarter on a play that saw MHS quarterback Jaime Madrid pick up three yards, was fitted with a neck brace, placed on a board, lifted onto a stretcher and placed in an ambulance. Doctors and team officials opted to leave his helmet on during the move.

After the game, it was reported from the hospital that Jacobson was in traction but the negatives looked good.

THE BULLDOGS struck long and fast in the first quarter, as Oliver took the second MHS play from scrimmage and turned it into a "surprising" 57-yard scoring run.

What made the run a surprise to the 150-pound senior scatback was all the Andrews defenders he had to weave his way through.

"It came as a surprise because I had to run around a lot of people, there was a lot of traffic in the middle," said Oliver. "I picked up a couple of blocks down field from Bob White and Steve Newman and took it on in after that."

Backfield mate Anthony Adkison, who barely jiggles the scales at 138 pounds, was also given a bit of credit on the play.

"Anthony's block is what sprung me," said Oliver. "He cut the corner and I ran past him."

Richard Triplett's extra point made it 7-0 with 9:46 left to play in the quarter.

Seven minutes later, following Andrews' second punt of the quarter, Adkison scored his lone TD of the night, a one-yard plunge into the line of scrimmage pile. Triplett made it 14-0 which stood up until halftime, the only other threat being an 89-yard drive that stalled on the Andrews' 10 and ended on Triplett's missed 27-yard field goal attempt.

The Bulldog offense mounted a third scoring drive late in the third quarter, driving 65-yards in 13 plays (including the play when Jacobson was injured) with Oliver posting the six with his second TD of the game. Triplett made it 21-0.

AT THE end of the third quarter the Bulldogs had a seven-quarter shutout string still intact. It was to end late in the fourth when Andrews capped a 12-play, 65-yard drive with a 10-yard pass from Mike Visentine to Lut Anderson.

Subtract 15 yards from the drive because of a pass interference penalty and the scoring drive consisted of 50 actual yards, all but 34 of the total Andrews picked up the entire game.

It didn't sit well with Oliver, who is also a starter in the Bulldog defensive backfield.

"That's the most disappointing part about tonight," said Oliver. "Coach has talked about shutouts all year long. We came out thinking shutout and played three good quarters. The last few minutes we had a

College recruiters never rest

The University of Texas hasn't even opened the season yet and the Longhorns are already preparing for next season. At least, Bill Hicks, Longhorn assistant, was in Midland Friday, studying films of both Midland High and Midland Lee.

Of course labeling talent for winter recruiting forays is a never ending job, but for some reason it came as a surprise that the task was in progress this early. Fact is, they never stop. Before Hicks returned to Austin for tonight's opener against Stanford, he probably stopped somewhere in Texas to lamp some prospect under actual game conditions.

Hicks' territory extends from Wichita Falls to the borders of West Texas, a huge hunk of territory compared to the assistants who draw Dallas, San Antonio or Houston.

"Hey, I'd rather have West Texas and the 60 miles between towns than have to buck the traffic on those freeways and interstates in the big cities," he discounts the scope of his territory.

Last year Texas had trouble with Stanford in Palo Alto as quarterback John Paye drove the Horns' secondary to distraction with his aerial antics before losing 38-34.

"This year Stanford not only has Paye, a legitimate All-America candidate back, but they complicated matters with a running attack and has a back, who like Paye, is good enough to warrant All-America consideration."

Listening to Hicks is almost enough to make the Stanford plus 8 look good against the Longhorns, even though it will be in Austin.

Elsewhere in the SWC....

Arkansas minus 10 over Ole Miss— A grudge battle that caused so many bruises that Frank Broyles once ended the series during his Razorback regime, but the Hogs are an SWC title threat and should beat the spread.

LSU plus 4 over Texas A&M— Aggies should win, but things are never easy on a Saturday night in the holler pit at Baton Rouge, especially with Mike. the-not-so-friendly bengal, roaming the sidelines and waiting outside dressing quarters to greet the visitors.

SMU minus 13½ over Rice— Owls struggled last week against lesser opposition.

Miami minus 21 over Texas Tech— If the Raiders can just keep it within reason, it will do wonders for their confidence. And their strongest ally is Miami's game against Florida last week. Surely, the Hurricane won't be that high....

TCU plus 4 over Tulane— I have faith in Jim Wacker.

The other Big Ones....

Notre Dame plus 6 over Michigan— Wolverines should win, after all, some pick 'em as the nation's best, but Lou Holtz, Irish tradition and South Bend make the points look inviting.

Michigan State plus 4 over Arizona State— This is at Tempe, but the Spartans have the Heisman candidate.

The Pros....

Dallas minus 2 over Detroit— Herschel Walker wrecks Silverdome jinx, no matter what the officials do this time.

Cleveland plus 2 over Houston— Oilers due to stub toe and Browns possess a lot of offense.

Bears minus 16½ over Eagles— This is a grudge match and until Buddy Ryan proves he's not all mouth.....

Chargers plus 3½ over Giants— I like the points and San Diego's after-Dallas location on the Giants' schedule.

Raiders plus 2 over Redskins— With the addition of Kelvin Bryant, Redskins are my choice to win the NFC East, but when teams like these lineup, the points are irresistable.

Buffalo plus 6½ over Cincinnati— Assuming Jim Kelly is everything they say he is.

St. Louis plus 2½ over Atlanta— The coin came up heads.

Seattle minus 4½ over Kansas City— Seahawks have home field edge.

Denver minus 5½ over Steelers— How the mighty have fallen. Even 5½ doesn't look like enough for Pittsburgh, which couldn't even get within field goal range last week.

Odessa High 22, El Paso Austin 13

ODESSA — According to the stats, this game should've been a little closer than its 22-13 score indicates, as Odessa High came home with its first win of the season over El Paso Austin.

Numbers, as we all know, sometimes lie, as this game was all Broncho.

Tracy Blaylock started the ball rolling with a 79-yard touchdown run accompanied by a Toby Burkes kick.

Steve Sweeden was the second Broncho to strike blood with a 27-yard run making the score 14-0. This was followed by another Blaylock run whose sting was worsened by a 2-point conversion pass to Chris Henson from Lance Sloniger.

El Paso proved that they had their own sting, when they came through with two fourth quarter scores, but was not enough to win the game.

GRANDFALLS — The Grandfalls Cowboys got a three touchdown performance from quarterback Joe Rodriquez here Friday night to hand the Garden City Bear Kats a 20-7 loss.

Garden City is now 0-2 in the young season, but on this night it was the fleet-footed Rodriquez who did in the Bear Kats. Rodriquez scored on runs of 10, 33 and 35 yards to account for all of the touchdowns for the Cowboys.

Garden City tied the game at 7-7 in the second period when Doyle Schaefer caught a 15-yard pass from Kenny Bennett. That held up until the third period when Rodriquez broke 35 yards with what proved to be the winning touchdown.

The Bearkats pick up next Friday with a home game against Mertzon.

OWLS

"Our kids are hurting (because of the loss)," Hodges said. "But they know they're improving. We played a much better game — and against a better team (than McCamey, last week's opponent)."

It was Lipsey's burst up the middle that sealed it for the Owls on a fourth-and-two play from the four-yard line, but that was not the only heroic fourth-down play for Reagan County.

Just four downs earlier, West showed why he already has college scouts drooling with a gutsy four-yard, fourth down run to keep the winning drive alive.

ON FOURTH-and-four at the Rangers' 17-yard line, West took a pitch from Lipsey, who was in the clutches of Joey Sims behind the line of scrimmage, and headed to the left sideline. West bounced off a pair of tacklers and kept stumbling until he past the first down marker.

"We hit him, and we hit him hard. He just made a great run," Hodges said.

But West's run would've meant little if Lipsey and Joel Griner hadn't connected on a 14-yard pass play on third-and-long to set it up. It was the only completed pass of the ballgame for either side.

"We had three real crucial downs in there," Reeger said. "The first was Griner's catch. The second was the run by James, and the third was the Scott's touchdown run."

Lipsey put it in the end zone with what Reeger thought was about three minutes to play, disdaining a chip-shot field goal that also would've put the Owls on top.

"We were going for the first down or the touchdown all the way," Reeger explained. "We were going with what we felt was our best situation. We kind of like the option we took."

In short, Reeger's talented skill people came through at the end, just when the Owls needed them.

"We really hadn't had any major problems moving the ball in the second half," Reeger said, "but we were real unsure of ourselves in other areas, especially the kicking game. That was nearly our downfall."

THE OWLS' kicking game was responsible for two turnovers and helped set up three Greenwood scores.

The first was a fumbled punt that put the Rangers on the Owl 25-yard line in the first quarter. A 20-yard jaunt by Steve Popham set up a three-yard TD by younger brother Garry and a 7-0 Greenwood lead. Popham, the senior, carried 23 times for 132 yards.

In the second quarter, a botched snap between Lipsey, the Owls' punter, and the center, set up a 23-yard Chad Cottrell field goal and a 10-7 lead for Greenwood.

A 30-yard field goal by Cottrell off another Owl fumble, gave the Rangers a 13-7 lead. However, a 57-yard dash by sophomore Roland Saldibar set up a 24-yard score by another sophomore, Leonard Castillo to give the Owls the lead.

GREENWOOD also moved the ball well at times, including a 60-yard drive at the end of the first half that stalled at the goal line.

"We really moved it well in the two-minute offense at the end of the first half," Hodges said. "We should've scored there and we didn't, and we had to settle for field goals a couple of times.

"But the big thing is the kids are starting to feel the offense now. They're not having to step through it step-by-step.. That's the big thing about installing a new offense. We still feel like we can be championship caliber by the time district starts."

The Rangers try to pick up the pieces against Stanton next week. Reagan County entertains Junction next Friday.

Holtz era begins at Notre Dame against Michigan

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer

A new chapter in Notre Dame's storied football history begins Saturday when the Fighting Irish debut under Coach Lou Holtz.

And while the beginning of the Holtz era may not be anything to write home about — the Irish open against third-ranked Michigan — it is expected to have a happy ending before too much time goes by.

Perhaps sooner than anyone really expects.

Near the end of Thursday's practice it began to rain, but Holtz didn't seem to notice.

"We're not leaving this field until we're ready to beat Michigan," he snapped as he ordered his players behind an enclosed fence and away from prying eyes.

The Saturday schedule also features two games between members of the Associated Press Top Twenty — seventh-ranked Texas A&M at No. 14 LSU at night and 10th-rated Ohio State at No. 17 Washington.

Top-ranked Oklahoma is idle, along with No. 5 Penn State, No. 6 Nebraska, No. 9 Auburn, No. 13 Florida, No. 15 Florida State and No. 16 UCLA.

But second-ranked Miami entertains Texas Tech in a night game, No. 4 Alabama meets Southern Mississippi in Birmingham and No. 8 Tennessee plays host to Mississippi State. Elsewhere, New Mexico is at No. 11 Brigham Young, Louisiana Tech at No. 12 Baylor under the lights, No. 18 Arkansas faces Mississippi at night in Little Rock, Duke is at No. 19 Georgia and No. 20 Michigan State at Arizona State for a night game.

BUT MANY eyes, including those of ABC-TV (2 p.m.), will be watching South Bend to see if Holtz can turn around a program that never lived up to expectations in five years under Gerry Faust. For the first time since 1964, Notre Dame was not in the AP's preseason Top Twenty.

Holtz is realistic about his chances, but he isn't backing away from the challenge.

"When our athletes came to Notre Dame, they came expecting to compete against teams like Michigan," he says. "We don't go in there awed or intimidated or anything else.

"This game isn't going to be won with trickery. This game's going to be won with the team that's the most physical, blocks and tackles the best and makes the fewest mistakes

"Our football team's made an awful lot of progress and it'll be very, very interesting."

Michigan was 10-1-1 and finished second in the nation a year ago and has been picked in some quarters to win it all this fall. "Your basic national championship contender," says Holtz of Michigan, whose 665 victories are 19 more than even Notre Dame can boast.

MIAMI RETURNS home after defeating South Carolina and Florida on the road and Coach Jimmy Johnson's task will be to keep the Hurricanes from looking ahead to Sedpt. 27 when Oklahoma comes to town.

"It has been a long time since we have played a game with more of our fans in the stadium than what our opponent has," Johnson says. "Our approach is the same as usual — we will play one game at a time and concentrate on being 3-0 after the Texas Tech game.

"Texas Tech is a much-improved football team. Their coaching staff is well-respected and we know they will do some things on offense that are different than what Tech has done in the past."

Like throw the football. The Red Raiders unleashed a school record 55 passes — including 27 on first down — in last week's 41-7 rout of Kansas State. Last year, they didn't throw their 55th pass until the fifth game.

The pass-happy offense has been dubbed "Air McMail" for David McWilliams, Tech's new head coach, who played against Johnson in college and was the defensive coordinator at Texas the last four years when Johnson's oldest son, Brent, was a strong safety for the Longhorns. In addition, Carlos Mainord, Miami's secondary coach, held the same position at Tech the last two years.

"Everybody kept asking all week if we were really going to throw it," McWilliams says. "Maybe they will believe me now."

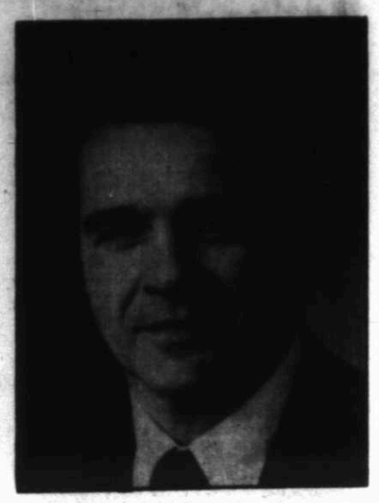

OHIO STATE has had 2½ weeks since its 16-10 loss to Alabama in the Kickoff Classic to prepare for Washington, which hasn't played a game yet.

"We were not a very good football team against Alabama," says Coach Earle Bruce. "But a team normally makes its greatest improvement between its first and second games.

"I can tell you this — it will be a game between two good football teams. Washington is big, good, talented and well-coached. And we will be better than we were against Alabama. We have the makings of a good team and I think you will see an improved football team in Seattle."

Washington's Don James sounds like Bruce's echo, describing the Buckeyes as "really a solid club. They've got a lot of ingredients and they're really an aggressive team."

James, who grew up in Massillon, Ohio, was one of the three finalists for the Ohio State job when Woody Hayes was let go following the 1978 campaign. Bruce beat him out.

RANKIN—George Abalos broke loose for 84 and 31 yard touchdown runs as Rankin's Red Devils bounced back from an opening game loss to defeat Sterling City, 31-0, Friday night.

Chris Beeman also gained the end zone twice on runs of seven and one yards.

For Abalos, it was a big night. He gained 207 yards in in 18 carries and Beeman contributed 95 in 20 rushes as Rankin rolled up 388 infatnry yards.

Bruce Hooker made it 13-0 at half with a 28-yard run around right end with 9:21 left in the second quarter. Beeman had scored with 11:32 left in the half after a scoreless first period.

Abalos got his 84-yarder less than two minutes into the second period and Beeman scored with 2:43 left in the third period.

For Sterling City, Abel Garcia gained 115 yards in 18 carries, which means the combined efforts of the other backs resutled in minus yards rushing.

The Red Devils return to action at Roscoe next Friday night.

Stanton beats Coahoma, 20-6

From Staff Reports

COAHOMA— There were many rumpled mums in Coahoma,as the Stanton Buffaloes came home with a 20-6 win to upset the Bulldogs' homecoming Friday night. The win gives Stanton a 2-0 record.

It was all Stanton from the beginning, when midway through the first quarter Greg Barnhill went in on a nine yard run after a long Buff drive. This made the score 6 -0 after a failed extra point attempt.

In the third quarter, Derek Sorley busted a 45 yard run to make the score 14 - 0.

Coahoma answered with a 27 yard pass from James White to Jimmy King. But it was too little too late. Stanton tacked on a 25 yard run by James Vidal to make a final of the Stanton Buffaloes 20, and the Coahoma Bulldogs 6.

Stanton amassed 281 yards rushing and 52 passing while holding Coahoma to 91 ground and 124 passing yards. Coahoma turned the ball over three times.

Class 2A Stanton team will try to upset another homecoming next week as they battle a Greenwood team's class 3A debut.

From Staff Reports

FORT STOCKTON — Fort Stockton's Panthers defeated Alpine, 28-0, in a non-district football game here Friday night as George Valeriano set the pace with two touchdowns.

Mike Nix scored on a three-yard run to open a decisive 21-point flurry in the second quarter and Valeriano followed with a five-yard run. The final TD came on Wayne Truesdell's six-yard run and then Gillie Trevino passed to Jimmy Martinez for the two-pointer.

Valeriano closed out the scoring with a two-yard run in the third period.

The Panthers take their (2-0) record into district play next week at Snyder while Alpine continues predistrict action on the road in McCamey.

From Staff Reports

CRANE— Roman Zarate scored on a five-yard run with 6:11 to play to give McCamey an exciting 20-14 win over Crane here Friday night in the renewal of their neighborhood rivalry. It was the second straight win for the Class AA Badgers, both victories coming over AAA rivals.

Crane, 0-2, took a 14-0 lead after a period of play when Mark Allen passed 20 yards to Carl Claunch for one TD and Gerald Mitchell ran five for another.

After that, however, the Golden Cranes were plagued by interceptions and fumbles, suffering eight turnovers in all, five on fumbles.

Roman Zarate's 25-yard pass to Kirk Eddleman put McCamey on the scoreboard 11 seconds before intermission and then Rodney Terry returned an interceptions 60 yards with 11:40 left in the game.

Puckett's homer beats Rangers for Twins, 4-2

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Kirby Puckett hit a three-run homer, making Tom Kelly's managerial debut a success and lifting the Minnesota Twins to a 4-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Texas also had a manager making his major-league debut. Art Howe was subbing for Bobby Valentine — who was suspended by the American League for four games starting Friday for "questioning the integrity" of umpire Larry Barnett Thursday.

The loss was the Rangers' sixth straight on the road. Overall, they are 11-15 in their last 26 games, a stretch that has seen them fall from 1½ games out in the AL West to 9½ games behind the division-leading California Angels.

Winner Neal Heaton, 7-13, walked four, struck out four and yielded five Texas hits in 6 1-3 innings. Reliever Roy Lee Jackson, the second of four Minnesota pitchers, gave up solo homers to Pete Incaviglia and Don Slaught in the ninth for the Texas runs.

The Twins took a 1-0 lead in the third against Texas starter Ed Correa, 9-13, when Puckett singled with two out, stole second and scored on Roy Smalley's single.

In the fifth, Correa — who yielded only three hits but walked four in 4 1-3 innings — walked Billy Beane and Steve Lombardozzi before Puckett launched his 28th homer of the year. The shot over the Metrodome's center-field fence was measured at 457 feet.

Mariners 4, Royals 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Bob Kearney hit a two-out, two-run single to highlight a three-run 10th inning Friday, leading as Seattle snapped the Royals four-game winning streak.

American

Red Sox 7, Yankees 2

NEW YORK — Bill Buckner hit two home runs for the second straight game and drove in four runs, rallying the Boston Red Sox.

The Red Sox, who have won 12 of their last 13 games, trailed 2-0 when Buckner hit a two-run homer in the fourth inning. Buckner hit the game-winner, a two-out solo homer in the sixth inning, giving him five home runs in the last three games and a career high 17 for the season. Buckner had 16 home runs last year and in 1983 with the Chicago Cubs.

Bruce Hurst, 11-7, won for the fourth time in his last five starts.

Tigers 5, Orioles 3

DETROIT — Kirk Gibson's two-out single in the seventh drove in Tom Brookens with the tie-breaking run.

With the score tied 3-3, Brookens singled off Scott McGregor, 10-12, stole second and scored on Gibson's hit. John Grubb knocked in an insurance run for the Tigers with a pinch single in the eighth.

Eric King, 10-4, who took over from Dan Petry at the start of the seventh, got the victory. Petry allowed three runs on six hits, walking four and striking out three in his six innings.

Indians 9, A's 3

CLEVELAND — Former Midland Cub Joe Carter doubled twice and singled, scoring four runs and driving in another.

Winner Greg Swindell, 2-1, gave up four hits in seven innings as the Indians beat the A's for the seventh time in seven meetings this season.

Carter went 3-for-4 with a walk, stole his 22nd and 23rd bases and threw out a runner at the plate from right field.

Brewers 4, Blue Jays 1

MILWAUKEE — Paul Molitor had two hits, scored twice and knocked in a run Friday night to lead the Milwaukee Brewers.

Dorsett's machoism bodes well for Dallas Cowboys

DALLAS (AP) — Tony Dorsett was making a trip to his neighborhood grocery store the other night and felt uncomfortable with the stares his crutches drew.

"So I just decided to do the macho thing," Dorsett said. "I decided I would show them a little masochism."

He put the crutches aside, blocked out the pain and found out he could walk on an ankle that was sprained Monday night against New York.

In fact, to his surprise, he felt OK. So he kept walking and he kept feeling better.

That was Wednesday night.

Now, the running back believes his chances are good he'll play Sunday against the Detroit Lions.

He said he was "scared to death" after spraining his ankle in the Cowboys' season opener.

"The way I was feeling, I thought I was going to have to go on the injured reserve or something. It really scared me."

Landry isn't ruling out Dorsett but says his ankle continues to be a question mark and will be until kickoff time.

If he starts, it will be Dorsett's 92nd straight appearance in the Cowboys lineup. He has missed only three games in 10 seasons.

Dorsett's quick recovery is typical of how he has rebounded from injuries through his career. He often has played when no one thought he could.

At 32, he is one of the NFL's most resilient players and in high school and college never missed a game because of injury.

Two years ago Dorsett was knocked out by Philadelphia safety Ray Ellis. Dorsett was unconscious for almost two minutes, but he returned in the second half to record his second 100-yard game of the season.

Three years ago he had a fairly serious knee injury and was considered doubtful for a game, but showed up anyway and announced he was ready for action.

"It says something about my body chemistry, I guess," he said. "I've seen guys hurt who can't come back. My track record speaks for itself."

'Moral' wins not enough for Kosar

Houston Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — Putting a late scare on the world champion Chicago Bears on Sunday was not Cleveland quarterback Bernie Kosar's idea of a good time.

To really enjoy himself, Kosar would like to lead the Browns to an NFL victory over the Houston Oilers Sunday when the two teams meet in the Astrodome.

Kickoff is at noon CDT.

Kosar and the Browns, defending AFC Central Division champions, battled the Bears to the final minutes before losing 41-31.

Fans and the media considered it a moral victory, Kosar said.

"A lot of people around here, not the players but the fans and media, were happy," Kosar said. "But we lost the game. Our goal is to win games so we're not that much pleased with the way it turned out."

Kosar completed 23 of 40 passes for 289 yards and one touchdown against the Bears as he started his first full season at the controls of the Browns retooled offense.

"I think I'm a lot better prepared to handle the personnel around here and the whole situation and what's expected of the quarterback," Kosar said.

LEE

Lee now has a 2-0 record to carry with it to the Border City next weekend when they travel to unbeaten El Paso Eastwood.

If the young Rebels are smart, they will get off to a fast start and avoid another Miller Time half.

Landry thinking Super

Herschel makes that much difference

Dallas Cowboys

By HARRY ATKINS

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Life in the NFL was getting pretty dull for Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry. And then Herschel Walker came along.

Faced with an aging team and the prospect of a long rebuilding program, Landry — the only coach the Cowboys have ever had — had been making noises about retiring.

But after watching Walker's dramatic debut Monday night, Landry was suddenly thinking Super Bowl as he prepared for Sunday's game against the Lions in the Silverdome.

"If we played every game like we played against the New York Giants, I'd be happy to stay on another 20 years," Landry said.

The Cowboys, who were a dismal 0-5 during the preseason, suddenly are a force to be reckoned with again.

"With Herschel's signing and all, it's been a hectic summer for us," Landry said. "We really didn't get into a groove until the Giants game (Monday night)."

Trailing the Giants 28-24 with 2:10 remaining, the Cowboys drove 72 yards in six plays to score the winning touchdown with 1:16 left on Walker's 10-yard run.

Landry, the dean of NFL coaches, is in his 27th season at the helm of the Cowboys. His 254 career victories place him behind only George Halas (325) and Don Shula (255) in National Football League history.

The Cowboys have enjoyed 20 consecutive winning seasons and been in the playoffs 18 of those 20 years.

Herschel Walker
...new life in old Cowboy

"You can't have anything but great respect for Tom Landry," said Detroit Coach Darryl Rogers. "I don't know if anyone has done a better job than Tom.

"We're looking forward to playing them. It's going to take a great effort on our part to stay in the football game."

The situation was exactly the same last season as it will be Sunday. The Lions opened with a victory on the road while the Cowboys were coming off a dramatic Monday night triumph.

But it was all Lions in Game 2 last year.

The Cowboys turned the ball over four times in their own territory to set up three Detroit touchdowns and a field goal as the Lions took a 26-0 lead in the third quarter, then hung on for dear life and a 26-21 victory.

"The Lions beat us soundly last year," Landry said. "You have to adjust to their three-man (defensive) front, but you still have to do the things you do well."

Landry hopes that will include more heroics by Walker.

"Obviously, Herschel has given our team some confidence," Ladry said. "That's how you gain confidence — having someone like that coming in and doing well.

"I'm sure there were doubts. You had to see if he could take the pounding."

Landry wasn't discounting the possibility of using both Walker and veteran tailback Tony Dorsett, either. But Dorsett's sore left ankle has been a question mark all week and will continue to be right up until the 1 p.m. kickoff.

"Tony Dorsett is a premier running back and with the addition of Herschel Walker, their offensive backfield is greatly enhanced. The Dallas Cowboys are an extremely formidable opponent," Rogers said.

Green to trade vets, go with kids

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs plan a major, off-season shakeup in their roster and will try to trade several veteran players, general manager Dallas Green said today.

"I'm going to try to send a lot of our guys to the American League if possible," Green said in a telephone interview this morning. "We're going to make the trades necessary to better the ballclub. But we're counting on a lot of our younger guys to come through for us."

Asked what players would be traded, Green said, "That's none of your business." He also declined to say how many Cubs players he wants to unload.

But Green said the team would make no decisions on renewing or renegotiating any player's contract until after the season.

Asked if he planned a major shake-up, Green said: "I think that's fairly safe to say for the simple reason that we're 35 games behind the leader. If you were the general manager would you want to stand pat?"

In an interview Thursday with WGN, Green was asked if he expected Ryne Sandberg's agent to try renegotiating the second-baseman's contract.

"I don't think any agent should have the guts the way we've played to pick up the phone and ask me anything. Period," Green said.

Also Thursday, Green revealed he wants to trade veteran Ron Cey to an American League club. But if they fail, the popular third baseman would be released to make his own deal.

Cey, 38, is hitting .277 this season with 13 home runs and 36 RBI in only 253 at-bats.

He has one year left on a contract that will guarantee $1 million, plus $400,000 in attendance bonuses.

SOUTHWEST AIRLINES' FUN FARES

Midland/Odessa to:

Dallas (Love Field) El Paso	Albuquerque Austin	Houston (Hobby & Intercont'l), Tulsa, Oklahoma City, Phoenix, San Antonio	Amarillo, Denver,* Corpus Christi, Kansas City, Little Rock, Rio Grande Valley, New Orleans	Las Vegas Los Angeles (LAX) Ontario (Calif.) San Diego	Chicago (Convenient Midway Airport) Nashville San Francisco St. Louis
$19	$39	$49	$59	$69	$79

*Denver Fun Fare expires Sept. 30, 1986.

If you're into some serious fun, call Southwest Airlines or your travel agent, ask for a "Fun Fare," and fly for the fun of it.

Fun Fares are available seven days a week, and there's no minimum stay requirement. Just reserve and purchase your ticket 14 days in advance. We've always been a fun kinda airline, But fun at these prices can't last forever. So call Southwest today, and just say when you're ready for some fun.

Can't wait for the fun? Try our everyday low fares any day, and save some serious cash. For a fun time call

(915) 563-0750.

FLY SOUTHWEST
JUST SAY WHEN®

1. Fun Fares are each way based on roundtrip travel.
2. All travel must be completed by midnight January 5, 1987.
3. Make roundtrip reservations and purchase tickets at least 14 days before departure. Tickets available only at Southwest Airlines ticket counter or your travel agent.
4. No other discounts or promotional fares apply.
5. Partially used tickets are nonrefundable.
6. Seats are limited and Fun Fares may not be available on some flights or some holiday periods.

Scriptures Selected by The American Bible Society

Really Winning . . .

A university head football coach gathered his team around him before the game. "It's going to be a tough one today," he said as the men looked intently, readying themselves for the gridiron.

Then he made a statement that widened eyes and opened minds. "The easiest thing today will be running into the end zone with the ball. But your hardest challenge will be getting up off the ground when they knock you down short of the goal line. Any boy can walk that ball into pay dirt; only THE MEN will get up, brush themselves off when they fail, and go at it again."

Five years of standing on the football sideline as team chaplain proved to me the wise coach's philosophy. The guys who made it on the gridiron were the ones who could get up time after time, play after play and do their job all over again.

The Apostle Paul never played football, but he was a great athlete in the service of his Lord. Said he: "We are afflicted in every way, but not crushed; perplexed, but not driven to despair; persecuted, but not forsaken; struck down, but not destroyed." (II Cor. 4:8,9)

Winning is not always possible, but winning the battle with yourself to keep on keeping on is victory in any stadium.

Delays in Christian convergence threaten life of global missions

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — An old-timer in the ecumenical vineyards says theological talks between Roman Catholics and Protestants have "wrought wonders" toward finding consensus, but official action about it seems dead in the water.

Even without "initiatives from 'on high'," people at the local level are discovering the freedoms and joy of Christian fellowship, says the Rev. Albert C. Outler.

But of the official reluctance to move toward organizational implementation of the newly found agreements, he laments, "How long, O Lord, how long?"

At stake, he says, is "the effective survival of the Christian mission in the world."

Specific steps for convergence "have never been clearly delineated and the process is slowing down," he says, citing signs of a stiffening of top-level Roman Catholic positions.

Outler, 78, a leading United Methodist theologian active for a quarter of a century in the ecumenical movement for Christian unity and with special experience in Roman Catholic deliberations, says:

"Echoes of the bad old days of Roman and Protestant polemics are heard in the land once more — harsh accents that once were commonplace, but that we thought had been left behind."

Outler, calling himself "one of the last surviving relics of a vanishing tribe" of Protestant observer-delegates at the reforming Second Vatican Council of 1962-65, says its outcome has yet to come into clear focus.

Every time it seems to have given a progressive "compass-heading for the Catholic future, the die-hards reappear in the pilot house, trying to head us back to the status quo," he told heads of U.S. Catholic men's orders.

The occasion was the annual assembly in St. Louis in August of the Conference of Major Superiors of Men, whose 227 members oversee 30,000 priests and brothers working in education, missions and other social services.

The rangy, white-haired Outler, recalling major changes made by the council, cited its conclusion that the true church "subsists" in Roman Catholicism, instead of its past exclusive claim that it "is" the true church.

"By a fairly plain inference, we took that to mean an allowance for its (the true church's) real presence in other churches, however reduced a degree," Outler said.

"This altered the whole ecumenical perspective," he added, from the old insistence on a return to Rome to the idea of unity through convergence of the various churches, "or so it seemed at the time."

However, nowadays, he said, "Romans in high places are re-exegeting subsistit (Latin for subsists) as if it always had meant est (is)."

Outler recounted how council reformists overwhelmingly had pushed through the concept of shared collegial governance of the church instead of the past monarchical rule "in the face of outraged immobilisti (immobilists).

"They would never give up — nor have they, even yet." he added.

Outler of Dallas taught for 18 years at Southern Methodist University after previous stints at Duke and Yale universities and has been an influential figure in doctrinal work of the World Council of Churches.

He said Rome's new code of canon law of 1983 lays down a "deeply ambiguous paradox" about intercommunion, barring non-Romans from Roman Catholic Holy Communion, implying that their own celebrations of Holy Communion are invalid.

If valid, "why not occasional intercommunion?" Outler asks. "If they are invalid, as such, how then are we members of one another in the Body of Christ?" Most Protestant churches welcome intercommunion, but not Rome.

"It is, of course, presumptuous for Protestants to press for occasional intercommunion," Outler said. "It is insensitive for Romans not to be more sensitive to the ecumenical pain involved in being on the wrong side of a 'fenced altar' ".

Woman's dream of China mission realized

AUSTIN (AP) — Lola Mae Daniel, whose life-long dream of going to China as a missionary several times has been frustrated, finally is going to make it as a teacher of English there — at the age of 84.

Recently notified that her application had been accepted, she says, "I've been on cloud nine ever since. You know in China, they reverence age."

The daughter of a Southern Baptist pastor, the long-time high school teacher several times had seen previous plans to get to China stymied by various reasons, most recently by age limits.

Voicing delight at being accepted to teach English for a year in Zheng Zhou, she said it's "what the Lord wanted me to do."

Cuthbert Avenue Baptist begins revival Sunday

Cuthbert Avenue Baptist Church will be holding revival services Sunday through Friday, 7 p.m. each day.

Services will be lead by Wayman Swopes from the First Baptist Church of Petersburg. Singing will be lead by Jim Fullingham.

The church is located at 3308 W. Cuthbert. The public is invited to attend all services.

Third in film series shown

"Preparing for Adolescence," the third in the film series "Focus on the Family," will be shown at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday at St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 N. Big Spring Street.

A meal will be served prior to the film at 5:30 p.m. There is a small charge for the supper.

A nursery will be provided, as well as films for older children.

Reservations are requested and can be made by calling the church office at 683-3339.

Kelview helps mothers out

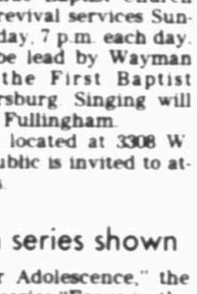

The Kelview Heights Baptist Church is offering a Mother's Day Out Program Thursdays, beginning this month.

The program will be for church families as well as non-church families and is for children up to 5 years old.

In addition, Kelview Heights started a Ladies Bible Study from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. Tuesdays. The study began Sept. 2.

For more information on these programs call 682-3842 or go by the church office at 402 W. Scharbauer Drive.

Reverend to head mission

Rev. Johansen

The Rev. Ray Johansen will be commissioned to begin a new Lutheran mission congregation in Midland during a 3 p.m. worship service Sunday at Grace Lutheran Church, 3000 W. Golf Course.

Johnasen graduated from Concordia Theological Seminary, Fort Wayne, Indiana, this past May and ordained into the pastoral ministry in June. He and his wife, Linda, are natives of Fresno, Calif.

The new Lutheran mission (Lutheran Mission — Midland) is gathering in individual home for Bible study and fellowship.

"We are particulary excited and blessed to have been called to this ministry in Midland at this time," said Johansen. "There are so many people hurting now who don't know the peace of God available to them through Christ Jesus."

Interested persons may call Johansen for more information about the mission and its schedule of study and fellowship. He can be reached at 683-9403, or at Grace Lutheran Church, 687-3221, where he is currently serving as vacancy pastor.

Tasting Extravaganza set

The Episcopal Church Women of Holy Trinity will host their second annual fundraiser, a "Tasting Extravaganza," on Oct. 14, 10 a.m.-2:30 p.m., in the parish hall at 1412 W. Illinois.

This year's theme, "Making Memories," will recreate a Victorian ladies' tea. Antique furnishings and Victorian memorabilia will carry the theme throughout the hall.

Events of the day will include a benefit luncheon, bake sale and door prize give-away. There will also be a "Table-Top Fashion Show," which will feature year-round table settings, and a silent auction. A "St. Francis" by Ben Ortega of Santa Fe, N.M., and a pedicure, facial, manicure and haircut donated by a local salon are among other items up for bids at the auction.

Tickets are $6 and will be available at the door.

Proceeds from the "Tasting Extravaganza" support the ECW and its outreach projects such at Meals on Wheels, Hospice, Hearthstone, and the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Their Children.

Music ministry gives concert

The Music Ministry of First United Methodist Church, Main Street at Illinois Avenue, will present its Chancel Choir in concert at 7:15 p.m. Sunday.

The program will include works by composer Jane M. Marshall, who will be present to conduct the concert.

Mrs. Marshall holds a bachelor and master of music degree from Southern Methodist University, Dallas, where she has also served on the English, music and seminary faculties. Her professional affiliates include membership in the Fellowship of United Methodists in Worship, Music and the Other Arts, Mu Phi Epsilon, Pi Kappa Lambda, the American Guild of Organists and the American Choral Directors Association. She has served as a member of the board of directors of the Choristers Guild.

Her published works include anthems for adult and children's choirs and is a frequent contributor to church music journals. She has served on the editorial committees of numerous hymnbooks and her own texts appear in many American hymn collections, both denominational and ecumenical.

The concert is free and open to the public. Child care will be provided. Mrs. Marshall will be around following the concert to meet audience members.

Bike-A-Thon to raise funds

St. Paul United Methodist Church, 4501 Thomason Drive, is hosting a Bike-A-Thon at 7 a.m. today to benefit the Golden Cross Fund.

Golden Cross is an interdenominational program that assists in funding medical assistance for the needy. All proceeds from this Bike-A-Thon will go to the Golden Cross Fund in Lubbock.

The Bike-A-Thon starting point is St. Paul UMC Fellowship Hall. Bikers can select varying milleage distances in which to participate. The longest distance is 100 miles for long distance enthusiasts.

Rest stops for weary riders, as well as transporation back to St. Paul's UMC will be provided. A $5 registration fee is requested.

Those wishing more information about the Bike-A-Thon may call the church, 694-2544.

Crestview singles gather

The Single Adult Ministry of Crestview Baptist Church is sponsoring a Singlelife Weekend Conference through Sunday at the Educational Activities Building of the church, located at 3300 Thomas.

"Developing Your Ministry and Vision," led by the Rev. James L. Gerlach, begins 9 a.m. today. The Rev. John Gerlach will conclude the morning's activities with session three on "Dealing with the Stresses of Life."

Sunday services will emphasize singles in music and testimony. Worship services will be held 8:30 a.m. and 10:50 a.m. Sunday school will be at 9:30 a.m. The conference will conclude with the 7 p.m. service led by the Rev. John Gerlach.

Friday's activities included an ice cream fellowship, musical concert, and the first conference "Picking Up the Pieces — Dealing With the Loss of a Love." The session was led by the Rev. Kenneth Hall.

The public is invited to attend the weekend of activities at no charge. Childcare will be provided.

Bristol as interim minister

The Rev. Ray Bristol is serving as interim minister during the month of September at First Christian Church.

Formerly senior minister there from 1968 to 1974, Bristol was for 10 years the executive director of the West Texas Pastoral Counseling Center.

Clergy recognized Sunday

Sunday has been designated Ministers Appreciation Day at First United Methodist Church, a time for the congregation and friends to express appreciation to the clergy staff for their service to the church.

The pastors will receive special recognition during the moring worship services, which will be followed by a covered dish luncheon and musical program at Midland Center.

Ministers on the staff are Dr. Charles E. Lutrick, senior minister; Dr. Bill H. Weir, minister of program and education; the Rev. James E. Bell, associate minister; and the Rev. J.B. Stewart, part time minister of visitation.

Members and friends of First United Methodist Church are invited to participate. The church will provide meat for the luncheon. Others are encouraged to bring a covered dish. A church nursery will be provided for children 3 years old and younger during the activities.

FBC to host revival for deaf

From Staff Reports

James Fair

First Baptist Church of Midland will host a fall revival for the deaf Sept. 20 and 21. Speaker for the weekend will be James Fair of Houston's First Baptist Church.

Fair will deliver sermons in American Sign Language at 7 p.m. Saturday and 10:50 a.m. Sunday. A Sunday school class is scheduled at 9:45 a.m.

"The services will be reverse interpreted for the hearing," said Ada Mae Smith, coordinator of FBC's ministry to the deaf and hearing impaired.

Fair is one of six children born to deaf parents, Richard and Lee Ora Fair. Three of his siblings also are deaf.

He attended the Oklahoma School for the Deaf in Sulphur, Okla., and the Texas School for the Deaf in Austin, where he was graduated in 1948. After graduation, he moved to Houston to play basketball for the Houston Association of the Deaf.

In 1952, while attending First Baptist Church of Houston, Fair "was deeply convicted" by the preaching of Carter Bearden:

"Knowing that Carter Bearden was going to preach in Galveston that afternoon, I decided to go there and listen to him again," Fair said in a press release. "As I drove along the highway...I asked Jesus Christ to come into my heart and save me."

Upon his return to Houston, Fair began church training with an interpreter, Lillian Beard, and the pastor, the Rev. Boyd Hunt.

"I learned how to pray, sing, give devotionals, and many other things that have better prepared me to share Jesus with others."

In May 1953, Fair married Lavern Lorene Carlson of Brady. They have two hearing daughters and a deaf son.

Fair often leads music in revivals. "Two or three times a year, I have been asked to preach in revivals across the country. I've also lead workshops for deaf people."

He has served as Sunday school teacher, church training director and music director for First Baptist's deaf worship services, deacon, coach and player in league volleyball, softball, basketball and bowling. Fair was elected president of the Texas Baptist Conference of the Death in 1955, 1958 and 1980; was president of the Southern Baptist Conference of the Deaf in 1955 and 1971; founded the Texas Baptist Athletic Association of the Deaf in 1975 and served as president from 1976 to 1978 and from 1982 to 1985. He also has served as an interpreter at Beaumont's First Baptist Church.

Christian musician in concert for teens

From Staff Reports

Christian musician Steve Camp will be appearing in concert during the third annual West Texas Teen Convention. Concert time is 8:30 p.m. Friday at the Holiday Inn Country Villa.

A song writer and musician, Camp has toured the United States and overseas with such artists as B.J. Thomas, Andrae Crouch and the Sweet Comfort Band. In 1985, he toured with Rick Cua and Rob Frazier.

His latest album is "Shake Me To Wake Me" and his latest undertaking is a video of his hit "Lazy Jane."

"Steve feels a great burden for young people ages 12-18 and reaches out in his music specifically to deal with the worries, insecurities and tragedies so many in their age group face today," says a spokesman for the West Texas Teen Convention.

Theme of this year's convention is "Surrender Your Heart." Paul Schliecker will also be at the convention. Activities will include workshops, film and video presentations and the concert.

Cost is $27.50, which includes the motel rooms at the Holiday Inn Country Villa, the Steve Camp Concert, all workshops, sessions and a Saturday morning breakfast buffet.

To make reservations call Bobby Duncan, 684-7681.

Wife's vigil ends now that Daniloff freed

MOSCOW (AP) — After nearly two weeks with the world press camping at her doorstep and listening in on the few phone calls she had with her jailed husband, Ruth Daniloff quietly slipped out of the spotlight Friday night.

As unofficial spokeswoman for the campaign to free Nicholas Daniloff, she spent much of the past 13 days keeping his plight before U.S. officials, Western media and the world public.

But after Daniloff was released to U.S. Embassy custody Friday night, Mrs. Daniloff stayed in the background.

While Daniloff talked with reporters a block away from Lefortovo Prison, his wife snapped pictures of him from across the roof of the embassy limousine they were riding in.

She walked quietly into the embassy later while Daniloff fielded questions from another crowd of journalists.

Daniloff was arrested Aug. 30. A week later he was charged with spying.

Mrs. Daniloff has said her husband was framed in retaliation for the Aug. 23 arrest in New York of a Soviet man, Gennadiy Zahkharov, on charges of espionage.

Zakharov was released into the custody of the Soviet ambassador to the United States on Friday.

The Daniloffs were staying at the U.S. Embassy on Friday night, in the apartment of U.S. Charge d'Affaires Richard Combs.

Before then, the 51-year-old Mrs. Daniloff had been a guest in what was her apartment but now is occupied by Daniloff's replacement, Jeff Trimble.

When she was there, Mrs. Daniloff couldn't complete a sentence without the interruption of a telephone call, the doorbell or a question from journalists.

"I'm getting very little sleep at night, and around four or five 5 o'clock I start getting a little punchy," she said Friday, as rumors about Daniloff's pending release flared.

What little sleep Mrs. Daniloff got over the past two weeks was on a bare mattress that stood behind bags, boxes and suitcases — evidence of the move that was in progress when her husband was arrested.

The Daniloffs already had shipped off their household goods in preparation for his transfer to another post after 5½ years as Moscow bureau chief for U.S. News & World Report.

"I'm sort of camped out here," she said, motioning to the suitcases and boxes.

The magazine office is two floors up in the same building along Lenin Prospekt.

"We have a spare room in the office, but I don't want to sleep up there alone. I know, rationally, that the KGB won't do anything to me while they've got Nick. But psychologically I'm really spooked," she said before her husband's release.

Mrs. Daniloff said the three telephone lines to the apartment and the magazine office were constantly being cut off or interrupted by static, which she suspected was the work of security forces keeping tabs on her and the information she received and gave out.

An audible buzz with no obvious source sounds throughout the apartment.

"I'm sure all our calls are being listened to," Mrs. Daniloff said. "But I don't want to spend what emotional energy I have left worrying about the trucks with the antennas that are parked outside or the guys in leather jackets walking around here."

She said she was relieved their children, 23-year-old Miranda and 16-year-old Caleb are in the United States.

The Daniloffs had planned to cap their second tour in the Soviet Union with a trip to Siberia this month to retrace the path of Daniloff's great-great-grandfather who was exiled after the Decembrist uprising of 1825.

"We know now that we will not be able to come back here, and that's a big blow," Mrs. Daniloff said. "Nick's whole life has been tied up with this place."

Mrs. Daniloff, a British citizen and free-lance writer, had said she believed generating publicity about her husband's case would ensure he wouldn't be forgotten.

She had served as a media liaison, detailing her three visits to Lefortovo Prison outside Moscow and allowing reporters to listen in on phone calls Daniloff has made from jail.

U.S. diplomats had called the magazine office periodically to keep her abreast of developments in Moscow and Washington.

Zakharov must stay in U.S. for trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Gennadiy Zakharov, suspected of being a Soviet spy, was released without bail Friday as part of the deal that freed U.S. journalist Nicholas Daniloff. But he must check in daily with U.S. marshals, stay in the New York metropolitan area, turn in his passport and show up for his trial.

Zakharov was handed over to Soviet officials in federal court about the time Daniloff's release to U.S. officials in the Soviet Union was announced.

A smiling Zakharov, in a gray pinstriped suit, white shirt and gray striped tie, left the courtroom through the back door with Soviet officials and federal marshals.

U.S. Marshal Charles Healey said the Soviets were "all in a jovial mood" as they proceeded to the basement garage by elevator.

"They all shook our hands and thanked us," said Healey. He said Zakharov asked, "Marshal, are you the one I have to call?"

"I said 'You'd better,'" Healey reported.

Daniloff, Moscow correspondent for U.S. News & World Report, had been seized and accused of spying in Moscow after Zakharov was arrested in a New York subway station Aug. 23.

"The defendant's release is conditioned on the prior or simultaneous release of U.S. citizen Nicholas S. Daniloff," U.S. Attorney Andrew Maloney told U.S. District Judge Joseph M. McLaughlin during the brief courtroom proceeding.

Gennadiy Zakharov, a Soviet employee of the U.N., shown during his arrest on espionage charges, was turned over to the Soviet ambassador to the United States in connection with the release of jailed American journalist Nicholas Daniloff.

Zakharov, 39, who was indicted on espionage charges this week, entered a plea of innocent to the indictment. After the conditions of his release were enumerated by Maloney, he was handed over to three Soviet officials sitting near the defense table.

Zakharov's release came after McLaughlin was given written assurance from Soviet Ambassador Yuri V. Dubinin that the accused spy would show up for all court appearances.

Maloney told the judge, "Your honor, based on the assurances contained in that letter and after consultation with appropriate authorities in Washington and on consent with defense counsel, the government proposes that the defendant be released on his own recognizance."

In addition to Daniloff's release, conditions for Zakharov's release included that he travel no farther than 25 miles from the United Nations in Manhattan; that he notify U.S. authorities about where he was living; that he turn over his travel documents to U.S. authorities by 5 p.m. Monday; and that he check in with U.S. marshals by telephone daily.

Zakharov must still face trial on charges of trying to pay an FBI informant for classified military information.

In his letter to McLaughlin, the ambassador said: "I hearby give this court the assurance of my government, and my own, that if Mr. Gennadiy Zakharov is released to my personal custody, he will be present in the federal courts of the United States at any and all times required by the appropriate U.S. court, so long as the proceedings in which he is involved are pending."

Dubinin's letter spelled Zakharov's first name differently from the way it appeared in court papers.

Before releasing Zakharov, McLaughlin warned him that if he violated the terms of his release, "You would be committing a separate crime of bail jumping. You understand that?"

"Yes," said Zakharov. It was the only thing he said in court besides entering his innocent plea.

Zakharov was arrested in a Queens subway station after he allegedly tried to pay an employee of a defense subcontractor $1,000 for classified documents on military jet engines. The defense employee was actually an FBI informant.

Body of abducted accountant found

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The bullet-riddled body of accountant Abraham Mustkablie, who had been abducted by armed men, was found in a ditch near Santiago, Roman Catholic church officials said Friday.

It was the fourth such slaying reported during the state of siege imposed after an assassination attempt on President Augusto Pinochet last Sunday.

The military government confirmed the death, but denied that Mustkablie had been sought by police.

Mustkablie was taken half-dressed from his home in southeastern Santiago early Monday by seven gunmen, according to the Catholic human rights agency Solidarity.

His body, shot seven times, was found in an irrigation canal about 18 miles south of the capital Thursday and was identified by relatives Friday, the agency said.

Solidarity lawyers said they found no evidence of an arrest warrant for the accountant, who was in his 40s, or of an actual arrest. They said Mustkablie had no known political affiliation.

Three other men — a journalist, a teacher and a mechanic — with ties to the Marxist left were abducted during curfew hours and shot to death earlier in the week. Five of Pinochet's military and police bodyguards were killed in the grenade and submachine-gun ambush of the presidential motorcade in a canyon south of Santiago Sunday afternoon.

The government, ruling under a state of siege since then, has denied any role in the abductions and killings.

In another development, people in the La Victoria district said gunmen in a van killed Cecilia Pina Carvajal, 22, on a street near her home in that Santiago slum area Thursday night.

The government's ORBE news agency acknowledged there had been gunfire in the area Thursday night, but said the woman was killed by the explosion of a bomb in the street.

Three resident French Catholic priests were arrested in La Victoria on Monday.

A government statement Friday said the priests were accused of "grave actions against public order," which were not specified.

U.S.S.R. not obeying order to cut U.N. mission

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Soviet ambassador said Friday his country was not preparing to comply with a U.S. order to begin reducing the size of its U.N. mission by Oct. 1.

Alexander M. Belonogov said at a news conference that the order "is absolutely illegal and contrary to the agreement between the United Nations and the U.S. government."

"We still think there is time for the United States government to change it mind," he said.

Asked if he was preparing for the cut, Belonogov said, "We are not in any stage of preparation for that." Asked if this meant the Soviet Union will not comply with the U.S. order, he replied, "If you would like to interpret in that way, you may. But it's your conclusion."

But American officials said they believed the Soviets might reduce the size of the 275-employee mission without saying thay are complying.

Last March, the Reagan administration ordered the Soviet mission to cut the number of its employees to 218 by Oct. 1 and to 170 by April 1, 1988, saying the current number was "a threat to national security" and that many were engaged in espionage.

Richard Hottelet, spokesman for the U.S. mission, said, "There is nothing to indicate that the Soviets are not moving to meet the reduction schedule but we understand that they are not giving up their legal position."

He declined to give figures.

At the time of the U.S. order, several American international legal experts questioned its legality, saying the U.S. could order U.N.-accredited diplomats out only in specific cases where it was proven they had misused their position.

However, other experts said the U.S. did have the right to claim that a mission is too large for the job it must perform. The Soviet mission is larger than the total of the next two largest missions, those of France and Britain.

Government denies youths 'coerced'

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Opposition groups said Friday the government was coercing some detained youths into attending "reorientation camps," but authorities insisted attendance was voluntary and the instruction nonpolitical.

Monitoring groups have said that between 3,000 and 4,000 teen-agers have been detained since the government imposed a nationwide state of emergency June 12.

The government has confirmed that more than 9,600 people, including adults, have been detained for more than 30 days. Monitoring groups have placed the total closer to 14,000.

Two newspapers, the Johannesburg Star and Business Day, quoted teen-age detainees as saying they were given a choice of attending a youth camp or remaining in detention.

Sam de Beer, an official in the Department of Education and Training, said the department offered detainees training courses, but only after their release. He said the youths could withdraw from the courses at any time.

"These courses cover study technique, leadership training, community development, vocational guidance and sport. There is no political element," said de Beer, deputy minister of education and development aid.

He said the courses are taught at youth centers that have been in operation for years.

The Johannesburg Star said 75 youths were taken by bus from Pretoria Central Prison to a camp in Rustenburg, west of Pretoria, last month.

At the camp, they listened to lectures that mostly addressed the youngsters' feelings about detention, the paper said.

The camp was not locked and some youths left on the first night. Others, who asked to go home, were taken back to Pretoria, the newspaper said.

The Star did not say whether that meant the youngsters were returned to prison or taken to their homes in the Pretoria area.

"Our information is that there was a degree of coercion," said Neil Ross, a member of the opposition Progressive Federal Party.

"Obviously, we are concerned about the lack of information on the camps. We have no information on what kind of reorientation is taking place," he said.

South African Press Association quoted an unidentified official as saying Education Minister Gerrit Viljoen would invite representatives of political groups and reporters to visit one of the centers next week.

No further details were given.

Job Schoeman, spokesman for the Education Department, said there were five or six centers operating around the country, according to Business Day.

"There's nothing sinister about it. I know some people may think we may be involved in brainwashing and indoctrination, but that is far from the truth," the newspaper quoted Schoeman as saying.

In other developments, the Azanian Peoples Organization held a memorial service for founder, Steven Biko, who died nine years ago in police custody.

Saths Cooper, the president of the group, criticized violence by blacks against blacks.

"We believe that the leadership of the different groups must join together and draw up a code of behavior for the future of this country," Cooper said. "If there is no discipline, there is no freedom."

He denounced the practice of "necklacing" as a "crime against our people." In the practice, a gasoline-filled tire is placed around the neck of the victim and ignited.

More than 2,300 people, most of them blacks, have been killed since the struggle against apartheid intensified in South Africa's black townships two years ago. More than 290 people have been killed since the state of emergency was imposed.

Under state of emergency press restrictions, news organizations may not identify detainees unless the names are officially confirmed. The regulations also bar reporting on security force actions and the presence of reporters near any unrest.

Apartheid establishes a racially segregated society in which the 24-million black majority has no vote in national affairs.

Polish government frees underground leader

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The government freed Solidarity underground leader Zbigniew Bujak on Friday under an amnesty for hundreds of political prisoners, and Bujak declared the outlawed union would continue fighting for political freedoms.

Bujak, who had been a fugitive for 4½ years before his May 31 capture, told reporters that if Poland's communist authorities continue to bar legal opposition, the underground would continue its work.

He said there was no chance a legal opposition could be formed.

Bujak was among several political prisoners freed Friday. The government said Thursday it would extend a July 17 amnesty to all political prisoners except those charged with espionage, sabotage, terrorism or betraying state secrets. It said about 225 political inmates would be released before the amnesty expires Monday.

"I think the activities of the (underground) leadership should be maintained," Bujak said at his mother-in-law's house in suburban Milanowek.

"Although this step to release all the (political) prisoners is really significant...no other steps were made beside it and there is no chance for any kind of legal form of opposition," he said.

He appeared healthy and said he had been treated well. He said his release so soon after his capture was a "big shock."

Bujak, 31, said the investigation against him had been officially discontinued, and he would travel to Gdansk soon to meet with Solidarity founder Lech Walesa. They met clandestinely during the years Bujak was a fugitive and headed Solidarity's Temporary Coordinating Commission.

Reporters waiting earlier outside Rakowiecka Prison saw police drive inmates away in unmarked cars, including underground leader Tadeusz Jedynak and Czeslaw Bielecki, an architect and underground publisher.

Also released were Jacek Czaputowicz, founder of an unofficial peace organization, and the nation's oldest political prisoner, Jozef Teliga, 74, a leader of the outlawed farmers' union Rural Solidarity.

Czaputowicz said he was surprised. "None of the prisoners were told about the amnesty until this afternoon," he told reporters outside the prison.

A spokesman for the Roman Catholic Church, which had urged Communist authorities to free all political detainees, praised the extended amnesty.

"The problem is finally solved and that's very good," said the Rev. Henryk Brunka, a spokesman for the episcopate in Warsaw. "The episcopate's expectations and wishes are fulfilled."

Interior Minister Czeslaw Kiszczak said in an interview published Friday that the release of political prisoners was a conciliatory gesture toward the church and a test of Western policy toward Poland.

"The decision to set free prisoners goes half-way to meeting the (church's) appeal and suggestions articulated by the church in public and in talks with the authorities," he said. "Their humanitarian intention was taken into account by us."

Kiszczak raised the possibility that the prisoner release might lead to the lifting of economic sanction imposed on Poland by the United States in 1981 when the government declared martial law and crushed Solidarity.

"Government officials of some Western countries, particularly the United States, have many a time spoken up on the issue of so-called political prisoners in Poland," Kiszczak said.

"The attitude of a number of Western partners toward the decision of ours will be a particular test of their political realism and good will, of actual readiness to develop equal-right political and economic relations with Poland," he said.

The American sanctions include denial of "most favored nation" trading status and new financial credits.

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the United States "will be monitoring the situation and assessing it as regards our own relationship with the Polish government. We just have to make judgments about how genuine and complete this amnesty is."

Deputy State Department spokesman Charles Redman said: "We hope this is a sign of the Polish government's decision to enter a genuine political dialogue in Poland. We sincerely hope the amnesty will be full and the beneficiaries and others will not be subject to re-arrest for so-called political crimes."

Redman said the Reagan administration will consider a more normal relationship with Poland once the amnesty is completed.

Iranian missile kills 21 Iraqi civilians, injures 81

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iran fired a long-range missile into central Baghdad on Friday, saying its target was the secret police headquarters in the capital. Instead, the rocket fell instead in a densely populated, low-income area.

Iraq's military command said 21 civilians were killed and 81 were wounded.

The missile landed about 1:25 a.m., just over a mile away from headquarters of the secret police and security forces. The Iraqi said 12 houses were destroyed and 17 damaged.

Reporters who visited the area Friday morning saw several two-story houses where facades, balconies and some walls had been ripped blown out. In the afternoon, Iraqi officials escorted foreign diplomats and reporters to the area, and the worst-hit buildings had been bulldozed flat.

Saad Naji, a man in his 30s, said he was about to go to sleep when the missile struck. "Thank God, none of my seven children was injured. Although I was still up, the horrific sound and subsequent echo shook me," he told reporters, outside his two-story house, which had lost its facade.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, said that after the attack on Baghdad, Iraqi planes bombed residential areas in Karande Gharb, Mian-Mill and Sare-Pol-Zahab in Iran's western Bakhtaran province. IRNA said 12 people were killed, 21 injured and dozens of houses were destroyed.

Later, IRNA quoted an Iranian war communique as saying Iranian jets bombed Iraqi oil installations in retaliation for the Bakhtaran raids. It said the installations, about 30 miles from Kirkuk, north of Baghdad, were set afire.

Iraq denied attacking Iranian residential areas. The Iraqi News Agency quoted a military spokesman as saying Iran was trying to justify the missile attack on Baghdad and an artillery attack Friday against Basra, Iraq.

"The Iraqi forces so far have refrained from hitting civilian areas," said one communique, read by an unnamed spokesman on state-run Baghdad radio.

Foreign observers rarely are allowed in the war zones, and independent confirmation of claims was not available.

The surface-to-surface missile that hit Baghdad Friday was the second to be lobbed into the Iraqi capital in a month.

A missile fired on Aug. 12 against Al-Dowra refinery on the outskirts of the capital missed and landed in a desolate location, the Iraqis said then.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Someone may annoy you by interfering with a long-range plan. Do not despair! Within 60 days the tables will turn, with you emerging wiser and wealthier for the experience. Time and luck are on your side. Family differences are resolved. You find the harmony you have sought for so long.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: Actress Zoe Caldwell, feminist-author Kate Millett, civil rights leader Charles Evers, Montreal Expo slugger Tim Wallach, film producer Hal Wallis, Joey Heatherton, "Lone Ranger" Clayton Moore, British actor Nicol Williamson, teachers' labor leader Albert Shanker, San Diego Padres announcer Jerry Coleman, Mary Crosby and newsman Hughes Rudd.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A good day to put small economies into practice. Be more imaginative when planning entertainment for small fry. Discuss family finances with mate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Watch what you say and do today. You could cause turmoil without even realizing it. Postpone conducting business until tomorrow. Spend more time with your loved ones.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A change of scenery will perk up your spirits. Visit the countryside. Family members will be helpful if you need a babysitter at the last minute. Return borrowed items.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Not a good day to get in touch with influential people. You may have to call off a social engagement to accommodate a loved one's wishes. Do so happily.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Seek knowledge that will be useful in the future. The Sunday papers hold new employment leads. Distant affairs require more attention. Try not to be so critical.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Friends are on hand to lend support and give good advice. Delegate more responsibilities to family members. Careful planning is the key to a fun-filled vacation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The domestic changes you have in mind should please loved ones. A friend will resent it if you meddle in his/her affairs. A phone call makes this a red-letter day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Avoid getting entangled in other people's problems. Parents ask direct questions. You may resent having to answer. Curb your temper. Romance looks especially rewarding for singles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Play it safe in a business deal. Restlessness does not mean a relationship is in trouble. Be patient. Your happy-go-lucky attitude should help you make new friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Life seems more rewarding. You begin to reap some long-overdue rewards. Show appreciation for any special favors. A child adds to your happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A secret benefactor's identity could become known to you. Travel holds some happy surprises. You have an idea that can be turned into big profits. A romantic adventure materializes.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Strive to get your point across, but do not insult a family member. Concentrate on attaining one personal goal at a time. Domestic harmony should be a top priority.

Domingo receives Mexican honor

Domingo

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Opera star Placido Domingo was awarded Mexico's highest honor, the Order of the Aztec Eagle, for his work in helping victims of last year's earthquake that shattered the capital.

Domingo was presented the award at a ceremony Thursday attended by President Miguel de la Madrid and Foreign Minister Bernardo Sepulveda.

"Placido Domingo has demonstrated to be an extraordinary friend of Mexico," Sepulveda said. "His actions has been an example of the highest solidarity and identification with the preoccupations and necessities of the Mexican people."

Domingo said he was surprised by the award.

The opera singer is a Spanish citizen but grew up in Mexico. Within hours of the quake, he was in Mexico City at the site of an apartment building collapse where four of his relatives died.

Domingo has been performing in benefits for earthquake victims and said he has raised $2 million. He said he plans a new tour of benefit concerts he hopes will raise another $5 million.

AUSTIN (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby will lead a delegation of Texans to Virginia Sunday for the dedication of a new marker at the site of Sam Houston's birthplace at Timber Ridge, Va.

Mrs. Charlotte Williams Darby of Houston, a great-granddaughter of the Texas revolution general, will unveil a bronze plaque set into a 38,000-pound slab of Texas pink granite.

A previous marker was stolen about three years ago.

State Treasurer Ann Richards and U.S. Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, of Lufkin, also are scheduled to attend.

Houston Daniel, son of former Gov. and Mrs. Price Daniel Sr. will represent Texas Gov. Mark White.

A color guard from the Ross Volunteeers of Texas A&M University, along with a color guard and band from the Virginia Military Institute will attend.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Sal Stracquadaini was the lucky entrant among 1,288 New Yorkers competing in a contest for a free weekend in Omaha.

Mayor Mike Boyle drew Stracquadaini's winning card.

Stracquadaini — who says he has never been west of Dayton, Ohio — said he is looking forward to the trip.

"From what I understand, we're in for a surprise," he said after learning he won the trip Thursday.

The contest was the idea of the Greater Omaha Convention and Visitors Bureau, which wanted New Yorkers to think about Omaha as a place to visit.

Omaha businesses donated meals, hotel rooms and other prizes for the contest. People Express said it would fly the winners from Newark, N.J., to Omaha and back.

Packing a power kick that looks like it could crack a kneecap, Tangra beat 22 boys her own age in a regional tournament this summer.

After just one year of lessons in Tae Kwan Do, the Korean version of karate, Tangra already has earned a senior green belt. Her booty from tournaments includes six trophies that stand almost as tall as she does.

As her martial arts instructor barks out he commands, Tangra stares steely-eyed in concentration. Occasionally, two dimples appear in her cheeks, the first traces of a smile that she lets slip before Lee catches her and grunts, "No smile."

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Trekkies shouldn't worry about the Starship Enterprise, burned up in the last "Star Trek" movie.

Anything can happen in space, says James Doohan, who plays Scotty in the popular television series and movies.

Doohan, who visited Lincoln Thursday to help Nebraska Bookstore celebrate its grand opening, discussed the death and subsequent resurrection of Mr. Spock in the Star Trek films.

"In space, you can do anything," he said.

"People talk about the Enterprise being burned up. Wait and see," he said, smiling like an engineer who'd just taken a starship from impulse power to Warp Factor Eight.

The upcoming "Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home" will be released in December.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) — James A. Lynn, the brother-in-law of country singer Loretta Lynn, jailed for 18 years in the death of his wife, has been recommended for clemency by the Indiana Parole Board.

The board voted Thursday and sent the recommendation to Gov. Robert D. Orr, who has the final decision.

Lynn told the board he would live with his famous family in Tennessee if freed.

"I have a nice home to go to and plenty of work there on the ranch," said Lynn, who was convicted in the 1968 death of his wife, Sandra, at Wabash.

NEW YORK (AP) — For the second time in 10 months, staffers at CBS News helped make big news: They contributed to the downfall of another president of their news division.

Perhaps because of the network's fabled news legacy, its celebrity correspondents and its traditional independence, CBS News always has come under a larger microscope and has engaged in more public self-criticism than ABC and NBC.

Observers inside and outside CBS believe that the latest guerrilla tactics at CBS News caused, or at least hastened, the forced resignation of news president Van Gordon Sauter Thursday, one day after his associate, Thomas H. Wyman, was ousted as chairman of CBS Inc.

In an interview in this week's Newsweek, "CBS Evening News" commentator Bill Moyers assailed the current management for allowing news to be tainted by entertainment values. Earlier this summer, "60 Minutes" commentator Andy Rooney publicly complained about recent news layoffs and the decision to replace "CBS Morning News" with an entertainment program in January.

Ironically, Sauter, who also has been a corporate vice president since 1983, was hailed by some at CBS News as a savior when he returned for a second stint as news president last December. He replaced his hand-picked successor, Edward Joyce, whose tenure was marked by dissension, including a personality clash with anchor Dan Rather and disagreements with "60 Minutes" executive producer Don Hewitt.

Hewitt, Rather and others even had inquired about possibly buying the embattled news division, an "offer" that was immediately rejected by CBS management.

Items aimed at comic readers

By KIRK LADENDORF

They're sitting in the office they share at Lin-Tex marketing wearing shorts, Reebok athletic shoes and T-shirts.

Each is sipping a beer and taking turns tracing the five-year rise of their company into one of the nation's front-runners in selling products with licensed designs from comic strips.

These guys are definitely not all-work-and-no-play types. There is a comfortable couch in the office, which is located in a business park near Oak Hill. There's also a good-sized television, a well-stocked bar and a golf trophy Shuster won at a tournament put on by a local topless nightclub.

Comic strips, particularly Berke Breathed's "Bloom County," have been good to Shuster and Teal, both 37, who trace their friendship back to elementary school in Columbus, Ohio.

But then, they've been good to the strips, carving out a new high-priced market for what had typically been lower-margin products.

"They are very energetic, very principled and high-class guys to work with," said Al Leeds, sales manager for the Washington Post Writer's Group, the syndicate handling Breathed's strip. "I'm getting royalty checks of $15,000 a month or so (from the Austin company)."

Four percent of all Lin-Tex sales involving "Bloom County's" licensed works go to the artist and 4 percent go to the syndicate, Shuster said.

What Lin-Tex sells most is high-quality T-shirts imprinted with designs from their company's licensed strips. The shirt with "Bloom County's" Opus character, entitled "Penguin Lust," has become a classic that still sells well after nearly four years.

But Lin-Tex doesn't sell its products like traditional T-shirts. It gets top dollar (as much as $6.25 wholesale) for its shirts while encouraging retailers to sell the shirts as Comic Collectibles — the company's brand name — aiming for the devoted readers of the strips they carry. The company also markets comic strip books and dolls made by other companies.

They've adroitly figured their market as affluent adult comic-strip aficionados who are willing to pay a premium price to proclaim their allegience to 'Bloom County," Jeff McNelly's "Shoe" or Mike Peter's "Mother Goose & Grimm."

"Instead of selling only apparel through the major chains for a three-month selling season," Shuster said, "we've aimed our programs at comic strip readers who will buy these products consistently as long as they're available. Anyone who follows the strip will want one of everything (T-shirts, books and dolls)."

Sales for the fiscal year ended June 30 were $1.55 million, Shuster said, a little more than double the previous year's level. Earnings for the year exceeded $200,000.

But sales are starting to take off so fast, that Shuster and Teal are forecasting $5 million in business this year with profits running 20 to 30 percent of sales.

That's a lot of T-shirts.

Lin-Tex was started in 1981 as a result of a chance meeting at a Lavaca Street singles bar. Shuster and Teal became acquainted with bartender-artist Joe Walden.

Shuster and Teal had just lost a small fortune ($150,000) on an ill-fated computerized-phone company investment and were looking for something else to get involved in.

Walden had created some wildly funny armadillo drawings that seemed to fit right in the the era's rampant Texas chic promotions.

The three formed Lin-Tex and sold armadillo shirts and books by mail-order, in retail stores and even flea markets.

The 'dillo shirts were popular in Texas, but Teal realized the number of potential customers was limited. "Armadillos would never make it in cities like New York, Pittsburgh or Seattle," Teal said. "If we were ever going to get big, we'd had to find something with national appeal."

About that time, Walden left the company to pursue a career as a comedian.

Teal, a voracious reader of newspaper funny pages, saw "Bloom County" as a potential winner. The strip was carried in only about 40 newspapers at the time (it's grown since then to more than 800 papers), but Teal saw a following and devoted audience of readers that would be willing to spend money for "Bloom County" gifts.

The two got in touch with Breathed, a former Austin cartoonist who had moved to Iowa, won him over to the idea of licensed T-shirts and then got a non-exclusive marketing agreement with the strip's syndicate.

They then arranged a co-op advertising program in the Chicago Sun-Times, featuring "Bloom County" T-shirt designs. The success of that ad led to similar agreements with other large newspapers carrying the strip.

The two also advertised regularly in Rolling Stone magazine to build up the mail order volume.

Meanwhile, they were cultivating a growing network of product representatives to push the products to retailers. Typically, they aimed for gift stores rather than big apparel chains. More recently, they've come up with Comic Collectibles kiosks that can be set up in shopping malls. The kiosks do dynamite sales during the holiday season, they say.

"We sell to adults," Teal said. "We don't sell a kid T-shirt. Kids don't read the comics." The company did not show a profit until a year ago, the two said, but it was building sales with the growing popularity of "Bloom County."

Breathed's reluctance to create a wider variety of new T-shirt designs eventually forced Lin-Tex to seek out other strips, and they took on "Shoe," and more recently, "Mother Goose & Grimm." Now they are close to adding other strips with large followings. They are also about to expand into more expensive apparel with stitched cartoon designs to sell in clothing stores. They say establishing a rapport with the comic-strip artist is an essential ingredient in their business. They must assure the artists that their work won't be marketed in a cheap fashion. Their reputation in the industry has grown to the point where they can afford to be more selective in just whose strip they will represent. "We have to enjoy the people we do business with," Shuster said.

Rapid growth means always working on financing to keep expanding inventory to keep responding to new sales demand.

Only a year ago, getting bank financing for the company was a major chore. When their bank ran into financing problems, the two shopped six of the larger banks in town in search of $60,000 in credit to build inventory. They already had documented orders exceeding that amount. But they couldn't find a bank to back the deal. The T-shirt business, bankers told them, was too unconventional to be a bankable deal.

"We lost $150,000 in Christmas sales last year" because of the financing snag, Teal said.

This year, with ample backing from a local savings association, Teal wants to build a $1 million inventory to handle the Christmas rush.

The only real limit to expanding their business, the two maintain, is their own imagination on how to build the market potential for Comic Collectibles.

"We've taken a cute idea," Shuster said, "and built it into a business."

Unearthing of figures to be completed

PEKING (AP) — Archeologists plan to complete excavation of 3,000 terracotta warriors and horses near the northern city of Xian in the next two or three years, the official English-language newspaper China Daily reported today.

The newspaper said 714 of the figures already have been excavated. Local archeologists plan to excavate half of the same pit, which is expected to contain more than 2,000 figures, by 1989.

Archeologists believe the entire pit contains about 7,000 of the detailed, life-size figures.

The statues are near the tomb of Emperor Qinshihuang (259-210 B.C.) They were discovered in 1974 and have become one of China's most famous tourist attractions.

Several bronze carriages buried west of the tomb also will be unearthed, Xinhua said.

LET'S TALK REAL ESTATE...

Remember the children's challenge "Put up or shut up"?

Well, that's just what we are doing! Since early spring we have been sharing with you our belief that while Midland may no longer be soaring, it is certainly not sinking. Rather we feel the recent period of adjustment, tough difficult for many, has probably put our city in a stronger position for renewal growth.

And because we do believe in that growth, we have "Put up!" Our recent commitments include:

A 30% increase in sales associates
an expanded Corporate/Relocation Service Department a new listing/sales processor
a new training director a new corporate caller an expanded market share

Joanne Langston

Midland, we have been growing with you for 20 years! Together let's work for 21!
