Britain Renews Gas Warfare Warning

Tax Agreement Fails, Fight On Floor Planned

Party Lines Again Invoked As Early Finish Fight Seen

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 21— The friendly Democratic-Republican efforts to devise a compromise pay-as-you-go tax system collapsed completely tonight, with the two parties agreeing to take the issue on income tax abatement, including the Ruml skip-a-year plan, to the House floor for another finish fight.

Their truce broken, the two parties again aligned themselves at opposite poles on the amount of taxes that should be abated to achieve a current tax basis for the 44,000,000 income taxpoyers.

Immediately after the breakdown on the bipartisan conference, Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex), Democratic leader McCormack, and the majority party members of the tax-framing ways and means committee conferred and announced the Democratic members would support a bill to tax 1942 income at 1941 rates and exemptions and including a withholding levy against the taxable portions of wages and salaries, to be effective July 1.

Modified Ruml Plan

The Republican ways and means members also conferred and issued a statement announcing that a bill will be brought forward encompassing the modified Ruml plan, with certain wartime safeguards against tax windfalls, and another proposing the abatement of 75 per cent of the 1942 liability for most taxpayers.

The Republican bills, it was expected, also will include a 20 per cent withholding levy.

Speaker Rayburn told newspapermen:

"I am very deeply disappointed there was no agreement reached in the compromise conferences, but since there wasn't we will have to go along and try to get a bill."

This was taken as an indication that the Democrats generally might throw their weight behind the proposition to tax 1942 income at 1941 rates and exemptions.

Plans Bill Today

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the ways and means committee said he probably will introduce in the House tomorrow a measure embracing the Democratic views on pay-as-you-go legislation, and that he expects the committee to act quickly in bringing a measure to the House floor.

The Democrats have sufficient

U. S. Swears Vengeance For Execution Of Tokyo Raiders

Gen. Arnold Urges Utter Destruction Of 'Inhuman' Japs

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, April 21—General Henry H. Arnold pledged the Army Air forces tonight to the utter destruction of Japan's "inhuman war lords" in vengeance for the execution of American fliers captured after last year's raid on Tokyo.

"We must not rest—we must redouble our efforts," the air forces command said in a message to all his personnel a few hours after President Roosevelt disclosed the Japanese had acknowledged putting to death some of the eight Americans—they did not say how many—and were treating other captured fliers as criminals, denying them all rights as prisoners of war.

Arnold made clear that the Japanese inhumanity will not deter this country from further raids on Tokyo, underlining in his message the word "first" in referring to last year's bombing.

Saying the victims of the Japanese died as heroes, Arnold told the American airmen:

"Let your answer to their treatment of your comrades be the destruction of the Japanese airforce, their lines of communication, and the production centers which offer them opportunity to continue such atrocities."

President Roosevelt announced the American government has solemnly warned Tokyo that for this and any future "acts of criminal barbarity" just punishment will be administered to the responsible Japanese officials.

"This recourse by our enemies to frightfulness is barbarous," Mr. Roosevelt said in a statement to the American people. "The effort of the Japanese war lords to intimidate us will utterly fail. It will make the American people more determined than ever to blot out the shameless militarism of Japan."

State Department Statement

The President's statement, issued at the White House, was supplemented by the State department. Together, the statements disclosed that:

The American government initiated inquiries through the Swiss government immediately after Tokyo's radio broadcast, last Oct. 19, that military trials were planned for the eight Americans.

It was not until Feb. 17, however, that the Japanese government replied, acknowledging that the Americans had been tried, sentenced to death, and that, as the State department phrased it,

Comacho Visits Corpus Christi With Roosevelt

Chief Executives Inspect Part Of U.S. War Machine

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

CORPUS CHRISTI, April 21.—The presidents of the United States and Mexico said farewells today to their precedent-breaking conferences after President Avila Camacho had beenu welcomed at the vast naval training center here and President Roosevelt had called the occasion "one of the great American historical meetings".

The President of Mexico and Mr. Roosevelt inspected the multitudinous activities at the busy training station, and saw a brilliant aerial display by a formation of Catalina patrol boats and a squadron of dive bombers. Finally they rode back to the railroad siding and said their farewells in Mr. Roosevelt's private car.

Repays Visit Promptly

President Avila Camacho was repaying promptly a visit to Monterrey Mexico yesterday by the American chief executive, which Mr. Roosevelt described as "one of the highlights in my life."

The aerial display was witnessed on tour of the center after luncheon in a mess hall with cadet officers.

In contrast with an elaborate banquet served the two chief executives in Monterrey last night, their luncheon here was the regular ration of flying cadets at the world's largest aviation training establishment. The main course was frankfurters, mashed potatoes and string beans.

No Pomp And Pageantry

Lacking, too, was the pomp and pageantry which Monterrey splurged on the chiefs of state of the neighboring nations. But, then they did not enter Corpus Christi itself and the only people they saw were the cadets, officers and civilian employes of the training center.

They ate in a mess hall with 250 cadet officers, and Mr. Roosevelt spoke briefly and informally after the meal, through a public address system that carried to all parts of the station.

"I am glad that the cadets are hearing what I have to say," he asserted, "because I want to tell you I regard this as one of the greatest American historical meetings.

"I think you will remember it just as long as you live, for we are receiving on American soil the president of one of our sister republics."

Mexican Cadets Present

He said he was happy to greet Avila Camacho here because a large number of Mexican cadets are receiving flying instruction at the training center, along with other American nations.

"From the point of view of continental defense and unity of purpose," the President asserted, "this kind of military training means a wide and long step forward in the relations of this hemisphere. Let the good work continue."

Avila Camacho did not speak. As he left the mess hall he shook hands with the Mexican cadets stationed here.

Touring the training center in an open car, the two presidents saw dozens of patrol bombers and other planes, some in the air, some on the ground, cheering lines of civilian workers, cadets drilling and running around a comando toughening course.

Nazis' Reported Plan In Russia Brings Threats

Retaliation Sure, Churchill Says In Significant Appeal

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Thursday, April 22.—The British government in an extraordinary announcement said today that it had received reports that "Hitler is making preparations for using poison gas against the Russian front," and warned that such a development would find the British retaliating with the same weapon "upon German munitions centers, seaports and other military objectives throughout the whole expanse of Germanw."

There was a sharp note of urgency both in the timing and method of the warning to Germany. Newspapermen were summoned to the ministry of information after midnight where a statement issued from Prime Minister Churchill's residence at 10 Downing Street was read to them.

Previous Warning

The statement recalled Prime Minister Churchill's previous warning to Germany against any use of poison gas against Britain's ally, Russia, and pointed out that "British resource and scale of delivery have greatly increased since last year" in case the Germans decide to employ gas.

The text of the statement:

"Reports have been received from several sources that Hitler is making preparations for using poison gas against the Russian front.

"Accordingly, His Majesty's government takes an early occasion to renew the warning which the Prime Minister gave last year, namely that any use of poison gas against our Russian allies by the Nazis or their satellites will immediately be followed by the fullest possible use of this process of war upon German munitions centers, seaports, and other military objectives throughout the whole expanse of Germany.

Resources Increased

"British resource and scale of delivery have greatly increased since last year. Necessary precautionary measures against German reprisals have already been enjoined by competent authorities throughout the United Kingdom."

In war report May 11, 1942, Churchill declared:

"I wish to make it plain that we shall treat the unprovoked use of poison gas against our Russian ally exactly as if it were used

Truman Committee Reveals Loss Of 12 Million Tons Of Allied Shipping In 1942

By FRANCIS J. KELLY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, April 21—The Truman committee disclosed today that approximately 12,000,000 tons of Allied shipping were sunk last year—more than the total tonnage built in 1942 by the United States and Great Britain combined.

Calling the losses "heavy but not disastrous," the special Senate unit investigating war production problems reported losses were reduced in the latter months of the year, and declared confidently:

"The submarine menace can and will be effectively met."

The answer to the threat of the undersea raiders, the committee declared in a report on shipbuilding and shipping, is the stepped-up production of new merchant and escort vessels, and the combined use of destroyers and destroyer escorts, escort airplane carriers, land-based airplanes equipped for anti-submarine work, and subchasers.

Only Question Of Time

"All of these are being provided," the committee declared. "The only question is that of time."

In other sections of document the committee, headed by Senator Truman (D-Mo), reported:

1. The quantity-production Liberty ship is being redesigned into the "Victory ship," with more powerful engines, 50 per cent higher speed and greater cargo carrying capacity, although the change, sponsored by the Maritime commission, is opposed by the Navy and the War Production board on the grounds it would be wiser to stick to the present simplicity and standardization of design.

2. The Navy has done "a magnificent job" in building a first-class fighting fleet "that can stand up and slug it out with any other Navy."

3. Nevertheless the committee believes that "the Navy should be less conventional and conservative in its thinking," spend less time propounding explanations of unfortunate situations, and encourage new ideas.

4. Our merchant shipbuilding

Hitler Puts On Heavy Pressure

Army Of 5,000,000 Is Reported Asked

BERN, Switzerland, Apr. 21 (AP) Hitler has summoned two more Balkan leaders before him, and well-informed foreign diplomats said one purpose of his series of discussions with his satellites might be to raise an Army of possibly 5,000,000 men for another spring offensive against Russia.

Hitler wants an Army to fling against Russia, and at the same time have enough troops at home to guard against an invasion, said these sources, who cannot be identified but who have close Axis connections. Furthermore, an official spokesman in Berlin said today that the battle would be continued in Tunisia, and that there was no question of evacuation.

Latest To Get Calls

The latest Axis satellite leaders to be called before Hitler are Dr. Joseph Tiso, president of Slovakia, and Dr. Ante Pavelic, Croatian federalist leader, said reports reaching Bern today.

The fuehrer already has conferred with King Boris of Bulgaria, Premier Mussolini of Italy, Premier Ion Antonescu of Rumania, Admiral Nicholas Horthy, Hungarian regent, and Vidkun Quisling of Norway.

Foreign sources summarized the results of the parleys thus:

Boris has agreed that Bulgaria will assume the defense of Thrace, to free German troops there.

Plans For Others

Antonescu, with sentiment growing in his country against risking further losses, was said to have agreed to send to the Russian front only troops who have been there previously, who have been brought home for rest and re-equipping.

Horthy was said to be agreeable to the use of Hungarian divisions against Yugoslavian partisans, but apparently was trying to avoid a new contingent for the Russian front.

Tiso and Pavelic were probably urged, these reports said, to raise new "volunteer" divisions.

British Take Enfidaville, Smashing On Northward As Other Columns Push East

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, April 21.—The British Eighth Army has captured the Axis coastal pivot of Enfidaville, has swung five miles northwest to Takhouna, and also has gained two miles in the Djebel Garci area farther inland amid "very severe fighting," it was reported tonight.

Eighth Army infantrymen armed with knives for close-quarter fighting, scaled the enemy's mountain positions at some points only 45 miles south of Tunis, while the British First Army gained slightly in the Medjez-El-Bab sector 35 miles west of the Tunisian capital.

(The Morocco radio—sometimes premature in its announcements—said tonight, in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that the Djebel Garci, 10 miles inland from the coast, had been captured after a final 90-minute assault.)

Allied headquarters announced the capture of Enfidaville, 50 miles below Tunis, and said "all initial objectives" were captured yesterday.

"Four enemy counterattacks have been repulsed," said the communique. "Fighting continues."

Field dispatches said Enfidaville fell without opposition after a British column raced around the city on its coastal side.

(Official Axis communiques had not conceded the loss of Enfidaville, but Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Berlin radio commentator, appeared to be preparing the public for such announcement.

Called Unequal Struggle

(Sertorius said that Allied air superiority also made it "a rather unequal struggle.")

Sleet and snow storms closed over a large part of the Axis mountain strongholds in northeastern Tunisia to restrict the great Allied aerial offensive which yesterday was directed at smashing the last enemy.

The communique said 27 Axis planes were destroyed yesterday at a cost of eight Allied aircraft. This boosted to 151 the total of enemy planes destroyed in the last three days.

There was every reason to believe that the fighting was costly to the British Eighth Army which now has left its desert theater and tackled the heavy task of shattering the enemy's intricate positions in the long series of green mountains between Enfidaville and Tunis.

The capture of Enfidaville opened up the coastal road leading to Bou Ficha, 12 miles farther north, but before it can be used General Montgomery's men must clean out Axis troops in mountains flanking the road on the west.

Field dispatches said the slight

10 Jap Bases Lightly Hit

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, in Australia, Thursday, April 22. (AP)—Ten Japanese bases were attacked in light raids by Allied bombers and fighters yesterday, the high command announced today.

For the second straight day, a single Japanese raider attacked Morobe to the southeast of Salamaua but damage was negligible, the noon communique said.

In the sector northwest of Australia, two-engined Allied bombers attacked the Dutch New Guinea airdromes of Timika and Kaimana.

At Dobo, on the Aroe islands, fuel dumps, the float plane anchorage and buildings were raided by bombers and long range fighters.

In the sector northeast of Australia, on New Britain island, a four-engined Allied bomber on reconnaissance shot down one of four enemy fighters which attempted interception over Rabaul.

Reds Turn Back Mass Assaults

LONDON, Thursday, April 22. (AP)—Soviet troops aided by airmen who "inflicted devastating losses", beat off another series of mass German counterattacks yesterday in the northwestern Caucasus near the enemy's bridgehead of Novorossisk, Moscow announced early today.

The midnight communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor, said the Germans were "striving to achieve success at any cost" in the Kuban river valley, and also indicated the Nazis were trying to ferry reinforcements across the Black Sea to besieged Novorossisk.

Patrol Ship Sunk

Soviet airmen were credited with sinking an enemy patrol ship, a transport, and two boats loaded with landing forces, presumably trying to cross from the Crimea to the Caucasus.

Only sporadic fighting was reported along the Sea of Azov Soviet artillerymen were said to have smashed an enemy artillery battery and six blockhouses; three German mortars and two artillery batteries were destroyed r silenced on the Smolensk front; and Russian shells set fire to several enemy ammunition dumps in the Chuguev sector on the Donets river below Kharkov.

Berlin, Rostock Blasted By RAF

LONDON, April 21. (AP)—Sweeping out in force in perfect flying weather, British bombers last night blasted manufacturing and other war installations in the Baltic ports of Stettin and Rostock, left Berlin alight with fires, and ranged widely over other sections of occupied Europe today in one of the war's biggest air assaults on German communications.

The air ministry announced tonight that railway yards at Abbeville were bombed in one of the day sweeps that also hit objectives in other sections of France, Holland, Belgium and northwestern Germany.

Fierce Air Battles

During the Abbeville raid, escorting Spitfires fought off Focke Wulf 190's and Messerschmitt 109's in the air battles which continued several miles out to sea. Two Spitfires and three Venturas were reported missing, but one Messerschmitt was definitely downed and others were damaged and possibly downed.

The air ministry called today's offensive sweeps against widely separated key points of the German war communications system one of the heaviest of the war.

The raiders last night concentrated on the Wilmersdorf district of Berlin, but the attack there was plainly not on the great scale of those thrown against Rostock and Stettin, where great columns

HENDERSON, April 21. (AP) —Two white men were held today in connection with the unexplained death of a woman.

Police were not certain of the woman's identity. A ration book bearing the name of Mrs. Walter A. Love, of route 1, Gladewater, was found in a handbag.

The woman's body, partially clad in a dress, was discovered this morning in a tourist cabin on the edge of Rusk county.

Doctors were conducting an investigation in an attempt to learn the cause of the woman's death.

Sheriff Stone said one of the men had served time in Texas on a robbery charge.

One Dies, Dozen Injured In Fire

ENNIS, Tex., April 21. (AP)—A youth was killed and a dozen persons were injured in a fire here today which destroyed eleven houses and damaged a score of others.

Roland Rider, 17, son of W. B. Rider, president of the Ennis State bank, was electrocuted when his wet clothing contacted a high-voltage wire as he aided firemen and volunteers in fighting the blaze.

Fire Chief Ross Crumley said a conservative estimate of the damage was $50,000.

Ennis, Corsicana and Waxahachie fire departments, along with hundreds of volunteers, brought the fire under control four hours after the blaze originated, Crumley said, in the garage apartment of Mrs. Lucy Rushing.

Fanned by a strong wind, the fire hopped, skipped and jumped over a nine-block radius.

Sick Man Saved

T. L. Cunningham, retired railroad man, whose home was among those destroyed, was ill in bed. Firemen removed him on an improvised stretcher. He suffered a heart attack after he was brought to safety and his condition tonight was regarded as serious.

Charles Wilson, soldier home on furlough, suffered an ankle fracture when he toppled from a one-story house while fighting the blaze. J. E. Frels suffered painful burns on one hand.

Young Rider's father, a former state bank inspector, is well known in Texas financial circles. The youth's mother and a brother, William Rider, naval aviation cadet at the Grand Prairie, Tex., base, also survive.

Congratulations To:

Texans Commemorate 107th Independence Anniversary

HOUSTON, April 21. (AP)—Fighting men and civilians today commemorated the 107th anniversary of Texas independence by gathering around the base of the towering shaft that dominates the flatlands at San Jacinto battleground near here.

It was at San Jacinto in 1836, that General Sam Houston took Santa Ana prisoner after destroying his army in what has been termed one of the decisive battles of the world in that it determined that Anglo-Saxon culture, rather than Latin, should dominate the continent.

Mexican-born Dr. Carlos E. Castaneda, historian and librarian of the Latin-American library at the University of Texas, reminded the spectators that "we have met here today to do honor to the men that made Texas free."

The San Jacinto commemoration, sponsored annually by the Sons and Daughters of the Republic of Texas, was witnessed by several thousand persons.

Preceding the ceremonies the Sons of the Republic of Texas elected Harry Pennington of San Antonio as president. Other officers elected included James Shaw of Austin, second vice president.

Col. Arthur Evans, M.P., in this country on a mission to Washington, accompanied British Consul H.F.C. Walsh to a luncheon given by the patriotic organization.

The speaker of the day was presented by L. W. Kemp, president of the Texas Historical association, who introduced Dr. Castaneda as one who has "done much toward cementing the bond of friendship between the land of his birth and the land of his adoption, two of the great Allied nations in the present world conflict."

RFC Purchasing Of New Cars Delayed

WASHINGTON, April 21. (AP)—New automobiles are selling faster under recently relaxed rationing rules, and the government and automobile dealers agreed today to postpone at least until the end of the year plans for government purchase of the unsold stock of new cars.

Under the Murray-Patman act of a year ago, the Reconstruction Finance corporation was directed on July 1 of this year to buy unsold new cars because of the expense to dealers of holding and maintaining new cars that could be sold only under tight rationing rules.

Clyde L. Herring, senior administrative assistant in OPA, disclosed the postponement.

Differential Rate Abolition Is Asked

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—Rep. Wright Patman (D-Tex) today introduced a bill (HR 2547) to eliminate differentials in rates between various sections of the country and described the measure as one which "constitutes a direct order from Congress that discriminatory freight rates be eliminated.

"It does not leave the matter of correcting the rate structure, now discriminatory against the south and southwest, to the Interstate Commerce commission," Patman said.

He said an identical measure was to be introduced by Senator Stewart (D-Tenn) and that he and Stewart had drafted the legislation together after months of study and conferences with ICC officials and others considered authorities on freight rate matters.

THOUGHT FOR WARTIME

"Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment."—By the Apostle Paul, in First Corinthians, Chapter 1, Verse 10.

Students To Get Tuberculin Tests

A tuberculosis testing campaign that has gone to the rural schools and the city schools at Slaton will be taken to students of the first, sixth and twelfth grades of Lubbock schools at 9 o'clock Monday morning.

Groups of doctors, nurses, Red Cross workers and individuals associated with Lubbock County Tuberculosis association will appear simultaneously at Lubbock's 11 schools, it was announced. They will give the "patch test" to students who have written permission of their parents. Faculty members and other school employes also may take the tests if they wish.

Simple Patch Test

The patch test is simple. A slight piece of adhesive is applied to the arm and left there two days. Treated, the patch causes a "positive" red spot to show under it if the student has indications of tuberculosis. Otherwise there will be no sign to indicate the patch was there. The patch test is the accredited method of the physician to learn whether symptoms of tuberculosis exist within a body. No needle is used, parents are informed.

Students this week are taking blanks to their parents, seeking permission to take the test "in their own interest and that of those with whom they associate." "Spot" announcements will be read over radio, and there will be visual education conducted in the schools —motion picture programs designed to teach the desirability of taking all possible steps to guard against allowing incipient tuberculosis to gain greater hold.

Some schools have enlisted parental cooperation as much as 95 per cent, association officials said. Such cooperation without doubt will do more to halt the spread of the dreaded white plague than almost anything else, it is claimed.

Expect 10 To 12 Per Cent Positive

Four hundred tests have been given in rural schools and Slaton. Positive reactions ran approximately 4 per cent. For Lubbock they will approximate from 10 to 12 per cent, it is expected because of the greater number of negroes and Mexicans included in the scholastic population.

The association also operates a tuberculosis clinic in 800-block Avenue C. It is open each Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock, and from 30 to 40 tests a week usually are given there. Its operation is financed by annual Christmas seal sales. No other public contributions have been asked. Members of the general public are welcomed there.

X-rays recently taken there of nine persons who had presented themselves showed eight persons had tuberculosis. Six of them children, and five of them have been sent to sanitoriums.

Physicians Giving Time

The clinic is operated under a customary system of physicians taking time about supervising work, but so many of them have been called into the Army that Dr. M. M. Ewing has being offering his services regularly of late. Dr. Arthur Jenkins is president of the association and there is a nurse who constitutes the only paid employe. She directs work of the clinic and makes home visits. Visiting homes to determine whether ravages have set in among persons who have associated with tuberculosis victims is one of the most important functions of the association. Recently, for instance, it was found that after an adult had been sent to a sanitorium for treatment several others of four families of 22 persons who lived in a single house were infected. Another was sent away for treatment, then two more showed positive tests.

Cooperation of Lubbock parents in allowing tests to be given to their children is the most immediate problem, Dr. Ewing said. If it is given untold misery may be avoided.

Desperation Blow At Reds Indicated

By GLENN BABB
Associated Press War Analyst

Hitler obviously is using the weeks that Rommel and von Arnim are buying for him in Tunisia to muster another tremendous Army and the belief is growing that he will use the best part of it for a third desperate attempt to crush Russian resistance before the western Allies land in Europe. Diplomats in Switzerland with Balkan connections say he is seeking a striking force of 5,000,000 men with an offensive against the Red Army the first item on the agenda.

GLENN BABB

If this is his plan, it means that the fuehrer is taking the gamble that there will be no major invasion of the continent until late summer. He can hardly hope that a few weeks will suffice to dispose of the Soviet armies which defeated him so thoroughly last winter, wiping out all his 1942 gains and some of those of 1941. But he is confronted by desperate choices. Only by bringing off some longchance adventure, like knocking out the Red Army, bottling up the western end of the Mediterranean by a thrust through Spain or a successful invasion of Britain—can he hope to alter the trend of the war which is turning so inexorably against him.

Preparation for the summer's battles explains the procession of the satellites through the fuehrer's headquarters which apparently is near an end. Boris of Bulgaria, Mussolini of Italy, Antonescu of Rumania, Horthy of Hungary and Quisling, the Norwegian who has given the world a synonym for shame, have received their orders. The Slovak president and Croatian puppet are under summons, perhaps already in Germany. Collaborators from conquered Greece, the low countries and France may bring up the rear.

What tasks have been assigned this sorry company will be disclosed only as the battle unfolds, but experience and the logic of his situation must suggest strongly to Hitler that for another offensive in Russia he will have to rely on the flower of his own German Army. His allies, especially the Italians, Rumanians and Hungarians, terribly mauled in the winter campaign, obviously have little stomach for going through the meat grinder again. Therefore they may provide most of the armies for defense of Europe's southern coasts and suppressing revolt in the rear, at least until such time as the Americans and British leap the Mediterranean and challenge Hitler to produce the best he has to oppose them.

The Russians have no illusions about the coming summer; they are preparing for another terrible ordeal. The western Allies are anticipating it also; aid to Russia will form a major part of their war effort.

Negro Gets 45 Years In Retrial Of Case

Oscar Beachem, negro, 40, was found guilty of robbery by assault by a jury in the 99th district court yesterday afternoon on a retrial of his case before Judge C. D. Russell of Plainview. The jury recommended a sentence of 45 years, as contrasted with the sentence of 99 years imposed following his prior conviction.

The prior conviction was reversed by the court of criminal appeals on the ground of improper identification by one of the witnesses. The jury's deliberation occupied one and a half hours. Raymond Allen was the jury foreman.

Beachem's alleged victim was Oran Wilson, jr., now in the U. S. naval air force, stationed at Pensacola, Fla. Wilson was on the witness stand yesterday. Also on the witness stand yesterday was Miss Yvonne Westmoreland, who was with Wilson at the time of the robbery, in Sept., 1941. Wilson and Miss Westmoreland were students in Texas Technological college at the time.

Crude Supplies Reach New Low

NEW YORK, April 21. (AP)—The index of civilian supplies of gasoline, light and heavy fuel oils on the eastern seaboard reached a new 1943 low of 28.1 per cent of normal on April 17, compared with 28.8 on April 10 and 60.1 on Sept. 12, 1942, the American Petroleum institute reported today.

Nationwide light fuel oil supplies increased 20,000 barrels, however, to 30,926,000, but heavy fuel oils declined 178,000 barrels to 67,007,000.

Total gasoline stocks decreased 1,091,000 barrels to 92,121,000, compared with 93,212,000 at the end of the previous week and 104,226,000 a year ago.

Refinery Operations

Refineries operated at 76.3 per cent of capacity during the week and ran a daily average of 3,672,000 barrels of crude to stills, a decrease of 5,000, compared with a percentage of 76.4 last week and capacity of 3,677,000. A year ago the total was 3,537,000.

Total domestic heavy fuel oil production for the week was estimated at 7,937,000 barrels, against 7,681,000 in the previous week and 6,869,000 a year ago. Light fuel oil output was calculated at 3,911,000, 3,823,000 and 3,267,000, respectively.

Daily average domestic crude oil production decreased 41,850 barrels and totaled 3,907,100, compared with 3,545,000 a year ago.

Estimated gasoline output in the United States was 10,370,000 barrels, against 10,182,000 last week.

Members Of FDR Party Kept In Dark; Secrets Well Kept

LAREDO, April 21. (AP) — The secrets attending the President's journey into Mexico were kept so well that even Undersecretary of State Welles didn't know all the answers.

Neither did Mexican ambassador to the U. S. Castillo Najera. And both were on the President's special train.

When the special pulled in yesterday morning, bringing the first U. S. President ever to visit this border city, Welles and Ambassador Najera stepped off to stretch their legs. The former inquired of those standing about the train about arrangement in Mexico for the visit.

Ambassador Najera likewise asked who was waiting in Nuevo Laredo, just across the international bridge, to join the presidential group. Reports had it that President Manuel Avila Camacho himself was waiting across the Rio Grande to board the train.

It developed that the ranking Mexican dignitary there was Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla and not the Mexican President.

An hour before the presidential special arrived the depot was swarming with Army, Navy, FBI, customs and immigration men. The whole area was under the watchful eyes of heavily-armed soldiers.

Getting off for a stretch was Fala, the White House Scotty. He yelped with joy as he tugged at a leash held by an attendant. At the end of the train stepped off Mrs. Roosevelt, dressed in her favorite blue. Ambassador Najera, smoking a cigarette held in a long ivory holder, followed. Then Welles, the dignified, high-domed assistant to Secretary Hull, stepped down.

The President remained in his car, on which the shades remained drawn.

The train was here 12 minutes. It took on a load of ice and was checked all around. Then in from the south, and across the border for the first time in 25 years, came a locomotive of the National Railway Lines of Mexico fully manned by Mexicans.

The locomotive hooked on to the presidential special. "All aboard" sounded and the big engine smoothly started the run to Monterrey and the epochal meeting of the two presidents.

ACID-not speed-
may "burn up" your engine now!
You don't go "tearing off" the miles, and you hate tearing off ration coupons, too. You'd think your slow speed and low mileage would almost do away with engine wear. But first figure your risk of engine acids and inner corrosion!—made possible by products of combustion always hanging back in the cylinders after stopping. These "remains" can't all get out. They contain acids—acids that nibble at metals!
Acids in your engine are nothing new, but they couldn't do their worst when their nibbling was interrupted by frequent use of your car and fast driving. But now acids often stay in your inactive engine for days. And the short slow runs you generally make now, don't help much to clean acids out. So now when you're not even sure that you could get any needed replacement parts, make sure you muzzle acids as well as you can, by keeping your engine's insides OIL-PLATED.
You know why almost any plating is used...to resist such corrosion as rust, for instance. And to resist acid corrosion, have your engine OIL-PLATED—quickly—simply—economically—by changing this Spring to Conoco Nth motor oil...oil that OIL-PLATES.
Conoco Nth oil—patented—includes a great advancement in synthetics. This makes it possible to maintain OIL-PLATING up and down your engine's insides, during many hours or days when such resistance against acid can help. Your Spring oil change is a "must," but the worst acid effects are not...not when you get Conoco Nth. Continental Oil Company

TAKE CARE

AN "eat more weeds" campaign is a-brewing to get people to use young dandelions, red sorrel, wild radish, cress, chickweed and mustard. We're sorry about this, in a way, because there always will be those who cook a nice botch of poisonous leaves because they are unable to identify the true plants.

BE SUBTLE

THE way you apply your perfume is every bit as important as knowing the right scent for every occasion. A careless dab on either lapel of your suit is never as effective as a subtle spray of the hem or your skirt, according to designer Lilly Dache, who certainly should be in the know.

"Perfume," the French milliner points out, "should be applied where the air can waft it around. Then ,and then alone, does it do its lovely work to the full." Spray the perfume on your veil or into your hair ,she suggests. This will allow a maximum circulation of scent for a minimum amount of perfume used.

There is nothing more annoying than to be compelled to be in the presence of a woman, or man for that matter, who is reeking with sweet smelling scent too lavishly applied. Take care and make a little go a long way, advises La Dache.

RECRUITING WOMEN

OVER three million women must be recruited for work this year, and if they do not come forth voluntarily, they may have to be drafted — right in this year of 1443.

Faced with the necessity of choosing a job, it is of great importance that each woman choose the one most suited to her. The job is the hub in the wheel of life, around which centers every other activity, and to which most of these activities should make a contribution. Around that work and the contacts it provides will revolve one's standard of living, one's associates, one's leisure activities, one's entire mode of life.

Nothing can be a greater disillusionment to a person than to spend the greater part of his career assimilating the demands of an occupation and probably making a so-called success of it, only to discover that the job has become a source of irritation and an unbearable load. "My heart is not in my work," "I discovered late in life that I was a born teacher," "I should have been a doctor instead of a research man," are typical of the self-discoveries that lifetime of experiences help some people to make.

THE boundaries of your world are determined by the capacities of the individual as well as the possibilities of his environment. Gainnig an estimate of oneself is a difficult task.

Before a woman undertakes to enter a field of jobs she should ask herself "What is my physical equipment?" "mental or general ability level?" special interests and activities? "personality?"

Recently we read that most employment managers assert that at least 60 per cent of one's lifely contributions depend upon personality qualifications.

SPAFS Schedules Gas War Training

"Gas!"

A group of men scurry to the ends of the side of the road, hastily putting on gas masks, scattering to escape "enemy attack."

The scene—some battlefront in North Africa or the Solomons? No, right here at home. It is now a regular occurrence at South Plains Army Flying school. Planning for anything the enemy may use as an act of desperation or deliberate strategy, soldiers at the big glider school as well as men in service everywhere receive thorough training for anything the enemy may offer.

Methods of combatting this most vicious and inhumane type of warfare are studied and practiced in classes attended by all personnel of the field. If and when gas is used, the American troops will be ready, both on the defensive and on the offensive if it becomes necessary to fight fire with fire.

Gas "Alerts" Scheduled

Climaxing a recent series of gas classes, a series of gas "alerts" have been scheduled for the next several months. All officers and enlisted men are required to wear their gas masks for a certain period on "gas alert" days, going about their routine duties using the masks. Penalties are imposed on those who do not observe the rules or who fail to wear their masks properly or will fail to test for gas properly.

It is only a penalty now. Later it might be fatal, chemical warfare officers point out. There seldom is "another chance" in a battle zone, when gas is used. The "alerts" will continue on into the summer, gradually being increased from minutes to hours.

Also emphasized by use of "the real thing" is decontamination of gas covered areas, first aid for gas victims and methods of fighting incendiaries.

Supervising the classes and demonstrations is Lieut. Benjamin Lowengrad of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, chemical warfare officer at SPAFS.

Restrictions Lifted On Some Deliveries

An order of the ODT, dated April 15, which restricted rental car use for commercial deliveries, has been temporarily set aside for florists who will want to deliver flowers for Easter, and for Mother's day, May 9.

Richard E. Wood, Lubbock district manager of ODT, said a special permit has been issued for the purpose, April 23-25, inclusive, and May 7-9. Many florists, it was explained, are unable to arrange for other means of delivery.

Rats consume food valued at $260,000,000 annually in the United States.

Mail To Handle Ration Book 3

Forms to be used in applying for war ration book No. 3 will be placed in every mail box by postmen between May 20 and June 5, according to information received by the district OPA office.

One form may be used by an individual or an entire family. The forms are to be pre-addressed to OPA mailing centers, which are to be set up in 35 strategic locations in the country.

Forms are to be mailed to the centers between June 1 and 10 and books are to be distributed beginning in late June and ending July 21.

School house registrations were conducted for ration book No. 1, used for sugar, coffee and shoes, and book 2, used for processed foods and meats and fats.

Replacement Book

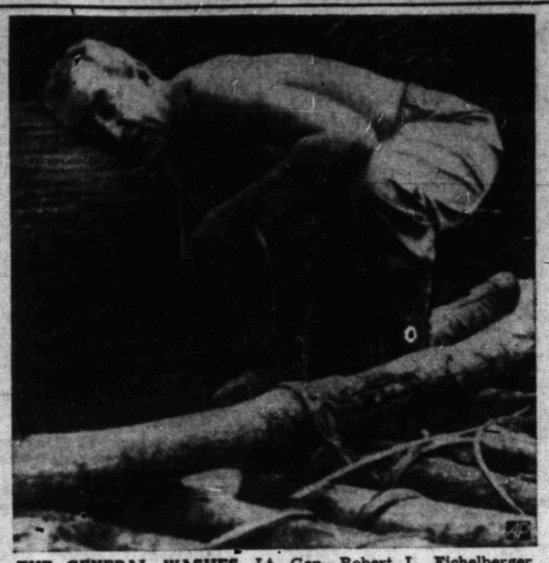

The OPA said the new book would be a replacement book containing stamps to take the place of those now being used. The book will contain both "unit" stamps of the type in book No. 1 and point stamps like those in book No. 2. The "unit" stamps will be used for coffee, sugar and shoes when stamps in book No. 1 have been used in the fall.

Although book No. 4, now being drafted, will contain red and blue point stamps for use in processed foods and meats and fats rationing, the point stamps in book No. 3 will "tide consumers over" in event of delay in distribution of Book 4, the announcement said.

At the present rate of "spending," the red stamps in book No. 2 will be exhausted about Oct. 1 and the blue stamps by the end of that month. Present plans call for distribution of book No. 4 in August or September.

SULPHUR EARNINGS

NEW YORK, April 21 (AP) — Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. Inc., for the quarter ended March 31 reported today net earnings of $1,760,450, or about 45 cents a share, compared with $1,829,485, or 47 cents a share, in the like 1942 period.

Former Duck Hunter Downs Jap Plane With Rifle Shot

SANTA ANA, Calif., Apr. 21 (AP) With the best of luck downing a Japanese warplane normally runs into plenty of money, but it remained for a former duck hunter, the Army revealed today, to bring a nip bomber to earth with a single well placed shot from a Springfield rifle.

The marksman was Lt. S. G. Saltzman, of Wilmington, Del., and he accomplished his feat in a Pacific engagement. At the time he was a communications officer in charge of a detail stringing telephone wire.

A Jap bomber came over, flying low and fast and machine-gunning Saltsman's crew. Saltsman grabbed the only weapon handy, a Springfield rifle, and with a prayer, as he expressed it, squeezed the trigger. The plane dived straight into the ground and subsequent examination showed the pilot drilled straight through the temple.

He received the Silver Star for his feat.

U. S. Plane Output Now Nearing 7,000

NEW YORK, April 21 (AP) — Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production board, voiced official government praise today of newspapers' aid in the scrap drive last fall and asserted that the nation probably will produce 7,000 planes this month.

Addressing the general convention session of the American Newspaper Publishers association, he said:

"Certainly a year ago if anybody could have told that we could build 7,000 planes in one month we could have told them they did not know what they were talking about. . . .

"We will come close to it this month. Next month we will build even more, in the next month even more; until we get up to just as large a production as we feel we need—no matter how many we need."

Warning Issued On Vacation Traveling

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman today called for the elimination of all "strictly nonessential travel," and announced he will deny all requests of railroads for authority to operate additional summer services involving the use of sleeping-car equipment.

While not classifying annual vacations as "strictly non-essential," Eastman said they should begin and end on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, in order to avoid week-end traffic peaks, and that vacationists should stay at home, or make their trips as short as possible.

Amazing results in building STURDY BODIES!

1—Promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach
2—Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!

YOUNG people, especially those of grammar and high school age, are prone to be deficient in stomach digestive juices and red-blood.

A growing-person who is operating on a 65 to 70% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 50 to 60% normal is severely handicapped.

In such cases Nature needs extra help. Organic troubles or focal infection, if they exist, must be corrected. Tissue foods must be digested and rich, red-blood must be present to build sturdy bodies.

SSS Tonic is especially designed to build-up blood strength when deficient . . . and to promote those stomach juices which digest the food so the body can make proper use of it in tissue building and repair.

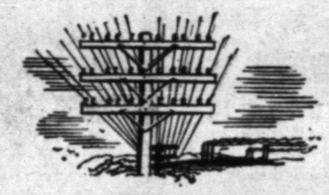

These two important results enable the body to make use of the food as Nature intended. Thus you may gain a keen appetite . . . firm flesh . . . body energy . . . mental alertness!

ANNUAL REPORT TO TELEPHONE USERS

A Summary of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's 1942 Annual Report, Recently Issued

"PEARL HARBOR" was only three weeks old as 1942 started, but already the telephone system had felt the first of war's pressing demands.

Most metals vital to war are also vital to telephone service. During the year we were able to get, for example, only a tenth of the copper normally needed.

Telephone people somehow had to make this bare trickle of materials meet demands for entire telephone systems at Army camps and Navy bases, for service to new war industries, for new telephones in thousands upon thousands of homes.

Service held up rather well

The skill and "know how" of these people were in most cases equal to the job. During the year the company gained 123,689 telephones. It ended the year with 1,867,751 telephones in service. But in many cities, lines and equipment simply could not serve all who wanted telephones.

The quality and speed of telephone service held up rather well during the year. There were exceptions, of course. On many crowded long distance lines delays were unavoidable.

It was inevitable, in such a year, that some new high marks as well as some low marks should be set.

For example, the money taken in by the company for its services was 120 million dollars—11 per cent above 1941. That seems a lot of money.

Expenses mount faster than revenue

But expenses climbed even faster. They jumped from a little over 88 million dollars in 1941 to more than 101 million dollars—an increase of 15 per cent. Most of this increase was a result of sharply higher payrolls and taxes. Taxes grew from slightly less than 20 million dollars in 1941 to more than 24 million dollars.

The result was that the company matched its high record with a low.

Earning rate lower than in depression

The company's earnings for the year were at the rate of 4.4 per cent on the money it has put into the buildings, wires, and equipment needed to furnish telephone service—a lower rate of return than was earned at the lowest point of the depression.

On the whole, telephone service was better in 1942 than telephone people had dared hope it would be. This was due in large part to the competence and fine spirit of service of the telephone men and women in the Southwest. It was due also to the understanding and sympathetic co-operation of the people who use the service.

Satellites Seeking Escape From War

By HARRISON SALISBURY
United Press Staff Writer

LONDON, April 21.—Evidence has been uncovered that a least some of Adolf Hitler's Balkan satellites are trying to get out of the war before an Allied Blitz hits southern Europe.

It may be a bit early to compare this world war with the last one but every one knows that the strength of the central powers in 1918 crumbled first in the Mediterranean sphere rather than on the main front.

History Repeats Itself

The crumbling came after the Allies had suffered reverse after reverse in Mesapotamia, Turkey, Salonika. Eventually the first signs of the dying of German war power appeared at the fartherest points instead of in the heart of the Kaiser's empire.

The cliche that history repeats itself has seldom failed.

The Nazis are on the verge of a defeat in Tunisia. Sooner or later the Allies will reopen the Mediterranean to Allied shipping. The next move is fairly obvious—an attack on south Europe limited only by geography. The Balkans unquestionably expect one arm of that attack to hit them.

Turkey Is Barometer

One barometer is Turkey. When the Nazi fortune ran at floodtide, Turkey was filled with Axis missions and projects, but no more. A parade of Allied missions moves across to Turkey now.

Another reliable indicator has appeared. Reports from Istanbul sources said he attended a conference of Balkan statesmen who took up a single question—how to get out of the war and back on the sidelines.

Must Exert Pressure

Bulgarians are said to expect an Allied victory within 12 months. On this basis, it appears that Germany will keep such countries as Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary in the war only by direct armed pressure.

Nazi diplomatic activity, especially by Hitler himself, lends itself to this idea. Hitler has been forced to hold individual talks with the head of each satellite state. German troops are said to be moving into Hungary.

Rotarians who met for their Wednesday luncheon at Hilton hotel heard a program of music and speech, all in Spanish. A dozen youngsters from Dupre school, directed by their teacher, Miss Lois Hale, was presented by Don L. Jones, program chairman. Jimmy Quicksall, president of the club, said Rotarians who have turned in cards so far have bought $124,000 worth of war bonds, but the list is not complete.

Phil Kennamer Given Parole From Prison By Sooner Governor

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 21. (U.P.)—Grim-faced and solemn, Phil Kennamer received today from Gov. Robert S. Kerr the parole that officially freed him from the McAlester state prison.

In a statement, Kennamer said: "There are no words which can convey the deep sense of gratitude I feel toward the gentlemen of the parole board, the governor and the hundreds of splendid citizens of this state who endorsed by release.

"It is my earnest hope that I may be able, by my conduct, to give expression to the feeling I hold for them.

"I have no malice toward any person. All I want to do now is serve my country in whatever way I can."

Kennamer, the son of a federal judge, was convicted of manslaughter at the age of 19, in connection with the slaying of John Gorree, sentenced to 25 years imprisonment and dubbed the "society gang slayer."

WALKOUT NOT SANCTIONED

EDGEWATER, N. J., April 21. (AP)—Several thousand war workers at the Aluminum Company of America's Edgewater plant, under local union orders to strike Thursday, were notified today by their international president, Nicholas A. Zonarich, that he would not sanction any walkout.

Fort Pulaski National Monument, Ga., had 36,020 visitors during 1940.

Post-War Rationing Seen By Organizer

DALLAS, April 21 (U.P.) Forced military service and rationing will be continued after the war is over, in the opinion of L. M. Walker, of Washington, national organizer for the national federation of federal employes.

Here in an attempt to organize the approximately 15,000 federal agency workers in the Dallas area, Walker said that "after the war there will be a need for rationing agencies."

He said that "all paid clerks of the selective service local boards are sought for membership in the federation. After the war, the United States without a doubt will continue forced military service under the present system."

Woman Charged With Receiving Dependency Checks From 2 Men

HOUSTON, April 21. (U.P.)—An attractive 21-year-old shipyard clerk was charged today by the federal government with defrauding the government by receiving dependency allotment checks from two men in the armed forces by claiming to be the wife of both of them.

The young woman, Lucille Dumont Ross, of Houston, pleaded not guilty on arraignment before U. S. Commissioner W. F. Carothers and was released under a $300 bond.

She is a material expediter at Brown shipyards, working on the night shift.

The complaint, filed by a special agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, charged that Mrs. Ross received $50 dependency checks from her husband Joseph Burrell Ross, 28, who is in the Marine corps stationed in Hawaii, and from Coy A. Cordum, 28, who is in the Army somewhere in the southwest Pacific.

AP Man Tells Of Raid Preparations

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Jack Rice, Associated Press staff photographer, has been in the thick of much of the naval action in the Pacific, recording the events of the war first hand with both camera and typewriter. Before joining the Associated Press, he was with the Dallas Morning News. He left San Francisco for the war zone shortly after the start of hostilities and was the only civilian photographer with the aircraft carrier Hornet when that ship carried Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle's fliers into Japanese waters for their historic raid on Tokyo more than a year ago. His eyewitness account of that mission, written on the day of the attack, is now released with publication of the war department's official account of the Doolittle adventure.)

WITH THE U. S. FLEET SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC, April 18, 1942 (Delayed)—High explosives and incendiary bombs from U. S. Army B-25 (Mitchell) bombers dropped on a surprised Japan shortly after noon today.

These heavily-laden, twin-engined bombers were launched on their mission of terror and destruction from the aircraft carrier Hornet 800 miles east of Tokyo. The operation proved to everyone who saw it that the Army and Navy now had got together and were combining talents to carry on the war to the enemy in his homeland.

There was a heavy sea running and salt spray from the huge waves of the cold North Pacific was slopping with frenzy over the ships of our task force.

Small Jap Ship Sighted

About 7:45 a. m. one of our cruisers sighted a small Japanese patrol boat some 25,000 yards to port a light cruiser immediately went to intercept the enemy ship. The operation took but a few minutes. The cruiser fired with such rapidity she seemed to be a mass of flames.

The "spitkit," as Navy men call Japanese patrol boats, sank before any of the men aboard could be saved. She probably was able to report our position with fair accuracy, however, so Vice-Admiral William F. Halsey, commanding our group, decided that inasmuch as we were within Japan's patrol lanes it would be a good idea to launch our deadly cargo.

The launching of the unwieldly, big birds from the restricted flight deck of the carrier went off with clock-like regularity, the entire operation taking less than an hour. It required superb seamanship by the officers and crew of the Hornet to get those planes off, with a violent sea and high wind combining to conspire against us.

Much Credit To Doolittle

A great deal of the credit must go to Col. James H. Doolittle, who planned this most audacious raid of the war so far, but he, too, depended heavily on the practiced and sure crews of the planes and ships which took part in the attack.

We left port without knowing our destination or mission, as usual. But we knew we were out for something big.

Curiousity reached a new high when the senior aviator aboard our ship ran in with the information the deck of the Hornet was loaded with twin-engined bombers. That set up an entirely new train of thought: Maybe we were going to deliver planes somewhere. Well, we did, but where we delivered them was a big surprise to the Japanese, as well as to our people at home.

We found out where we were going that same day, when the commanding officer messaged all units to proceed to a certain point off Japan and launch the B-25s for the purpose of bombing Tokyo.

Hears Long Jap Spiel

A couple of nights before we arrived at our destination, I was back in the chiefs' quarters listening to the Tokyo propaganda broadcast. The announcer was holding forth with a long spiel about how the Japanese could feel perfectly safe from the bombings which were ravaging most of Asia because their main enemies, the Americans, had no bases from which to carry out a raid.

There was an imediate chorus of razzberries from the chiefs. "That's what you think, Bud," one yelled with a wide grin.

Imediately after launching the bombers, we turned and headed back out of range of Japanese retaliation.

All the men on our ship expressed satisfaction with a job well done. They were glad they had been along on the first American bombing raid upon Tokyo. So was I.

Maundy Thursday To Be Celebrated Here

Maundy Thursday rites, one of two obligatory rituals conducted annually by Scottish Rite Masons, will be at 8 o'clock tonight in the ballroom of Hilton hotel.

Scottish Rite Masons of 14-degree status or higher may attend ritualistic work prior to a dinner program. Dr. J. M. Gordon will direct the ceremonial. DeWitt Langis is chairman for the dinner program, at which Dr. J. M. Lewis will be chief speaker and at which Rabbi Isadore Garsek will offer an invocation.

Scottish Rite Masons may bring their Master Mason friends to the dinner program.

An election of Scottish Rite Masons will follow the dinner program. Durwood H. Bradley is president, E. D. Parker secretary-treasurer and the following are vice-presidents. Parker F. Prouty, W. R. McDuffie of Brownfield and H. R. McKee of Slaton.

Bradley asked that all Scottish Rite Masons who can do so attend, "but be punctual, please, so we can get under way on time."

Man Pleads Guilty, Assessed 21 Years

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., April 21. (AP)—James Birmingham, middle-aged Hot Spring plumber who ran amuck January 18, killed his wife and mother-in-law and wounded three children, pleaded guilty yesterday on a second-degree murder charge and was sentenced to 21 years in the penitentiary.

Prosecutor Curtis Ridgway said today the two charges were reduced from first to second-degree murder "because Birmingham acted on a sudden impulse and had a lot of provocation and moreover I believe no jury would ever have convicted him of anything higher than second degree."

Officers gave this version of the incident:

Mrs. Jewell Birmiingham, the defendant's wife, and Mrs. Meley Williams, 55, of San Angelo, Tex., were killed when Birmingham fired at them with a single-barrel shotgun. Willie Williams, 17, Bessie Mae Williams, 5, and Evelyn Birmingham, 5, were wounded, the latter two by stray shots. Birmingham later slashed his own throat with a pocket knife.

ALCAN CHOO CHOO — Right down the main street of Skagway, Alaska, runs the Alcan express of the White Pass and Yukon line, only rail ling between the new Alaska highway and cities along the inland passage section of the Pacific. Economies Fade As Solons Hike School Apportionment.

AUSTIN, April 21 (AP)—A further reduction in economies sighted by the 48th legislature came today as a bill boosting the per capita scholastic apportionment ceiling from $22.50 to $25 was sent to the governor.

The House—which had voted for $27.50 — accepted Senate amendments which reduced the top to $25.

This means that in each of the next two years the available school fund, providing it has sufficient revenue, can pay to public schools $3,875,000 more than it will pay this year.

As a result it will be possible to pay out an additional $7,750,000 in the next biennium.

Rural School Aid

A $5,000,000 increase in the rural school aid, paid out of the general fund, voted by the House yesterday hikes the possible increase in state public school spending to $12,750,000 for the new biennium. The bill is now before the Senate.

This nearly offsets a prospective $15,000,000 reduction in appropriations for other branches of state government, eleemosynary institutions, colleges, the judiciary and departments.

Passed finally by the Senate was a House bill appropriating $286,500 annually for the next two years for aid to 22 junior colleges. Amendments requiring an audit of college books by the state auditor before allocation of funds and specifying that the entire grant must be used for instruction salaries were adopted.

The House quickly concurred in the Senate amendments, sending the bill to the governor.

Set for special order in the Senate tomorrow was House bill 9 removing the ceiling on old age assistance payments.

On motion of Sen. Kyle Vick of Waco, the Senate agreed to reconsider the vote adopting a conference committee report on a bill which will result in appointmen of a new board of public welfare and director of public welfare.

The House passed, with one amendment, a Senate bill continuing for two years from Sept. 1 the road bond assumption law.

House approval of Senate amendments to a joint resolution will submit to the electorate on Nov. 7, 1944, a proposed constitutional amendment permitting incorporated cities to set up retirement and disability pension systems for employes and officials disabled in line of duty, or who have reached 65, or who have worked for 25 years for the city.

Passed In House

Finally passed in the House were Senate bills repealing the tax of five cents per ton on iron ore; returning to the state general fund $404,000 in taxes remitted to Cake and Tom Green counties for the Upper Colorado River authority; and requiring vitamin enrichment of flour and baking mixes.

The Senate began work on the controversial House bill licensing and regulating chiropractors but a recess prior to a night session on local bills prevented full consideration of the measure.

The various odors are aggravating causes . . . There is something causing the inability of the membrane to protect the nerve endings . . . Truman Report record compares favorably with the British, but—

5. "It is no military secret that we do not now have enough shipping to supply our Allies with the weapons and food which they require and to transport and maintain overseas as many soldiers as we can train or as much material as we can produce."

6. The concrete barge program has been "most disappointing."

7. Ships must be utilized efficiently; provision must be made for sufficient docks, cranes, lighters and trained longshoremen.

8. Through the ingenious use of steel supports welded to the decks, tankers now are carrying large quantities of combat planes and torpedo boats which formerly took up space below decks on dry cargo ships.

9. There is wide disparity in the efficiency of private shipyards. The Oregon shipbuilding delivered 12 Liberty ships at an average of 398,858 man-hours each, while another west coast yard, Marinship Corp., at Sausalito, Calif., spent 1,620,679 man-hours on one vessel.

Subs Take Heavy Toll

"The German submarines have taken a heavy toll of our shipping," the report said. "Some sinkings were unavoidable, but a large part of the loss would have been prevented had we had an early and large production of subchasers and destroyer escorts. Such losses will be prevented when more of such ships have been delivered and commissioned.

"Ships losses by submarine action have been heavy, but they have not been disastrous. German propaganda announcements that these sinkings are winning the war for Germany are not true. However, our own 'hush, hush' policy has given credence to such propaganda. Frankness is the best answer to propaganda.

The submarine losses in 1942 have been widely circulated and must be known to the German government. They averaged approximately 1,000,000 tons of shipping per month. However, the losses were lower during the last months of the year. Also, most of the ships that were sunk carried one or more cargoes to the fighting fronts before being destroyed and the enemy is now feeling the effects of increased supply shipments to the African front."

The report said the helicopter might prove a valuable anti-submarine device for convoy service if it could be enlarged to carry heavy depth charges and improved to permit deck landings.

The Victory ship—the redesigned Liberty ship—will have a speed of 15 to 17 knots, depending upon the type of fuel used, compared with 11 knots for the present design. It is not expected to be in substantial production until next year.

The report said there was just cause to be proud of the Navy.

"Ship for ship in all classes it has been and is a fighting force superior to all others."

The report said the concrete barge program is far behind schedule.

It criticized the part played in the concrete barge program by the Macevoy Shipbuilding corporation at Houston, Tex., and said information concerning some phases had been referred to the department of justice.

The report praised the ingenuity which made possible the carrying of deck cargoes on tankers, whose center decks are so cluttered with pipes, catwalks and gear that deck stowage of cargo formerly was considered impractical.

Youths Found With Large Drug Cache

City police yesterday seized a quantity of drugs found in the possession of a 13-year-old boy, who said he had received them from a 9-year-old boy. The drugs were in what appeared to be sample cases, and reputedll were originally the property of a salesman representing certain manufacturing pharmaceutical chemists. He was expected to call for his property at the police station yesterday, but had not done so last night. How the drugs came into the hands of the boys had not been determined.

Raiders Executed

"following commutation of the sentence for the larger number of them, the sentence of death was applied to certain of the accused."

The Japanese accusation was that the fliers had bombed nonmilitary targets and shot civilians, and they told the Swiss minister in Tokyo that these acts were admitted.

Victims Not Identified

They declined, however, to say which men had been executed or what disposition had been made of their bodies. Thus, the American government was left with no details and not knowing which of the following eight men, missing after the Tokyo raid and presumed prisoners, were the victims of this Japanese terrorism:

First Lieutenants William Glover Farrow of Washington, Robert L. Hite of Earth, Tex., Robert J. Meder of Lakewood, O., Chase J. Nielson of Hyrum, Utah and Dean E. Hallmark of Dallas.

Second Lieutenant George Barr of Madison, Wis.

Sergeant Harold A. Spatz of Lebo, Kas.

Corporal Jacob D. Deshazer of Madras, Ore.

The State department's reply, given the Swiss to convey to Tokyo, recalled the obligations Japan has assumed regarding treatment of military prisoners; the promise that the protecting power (the Swiss) must be given three weeks notice before a prisoner is tried, that a representative of the protecting power must be allowed to be present—all the other provisions of conventions concerning treatment of prisoners.

"The Japanese government has not complied with any," it observed.

As for the accusation against the prisoners, the State department said the American forces had instructions to attack only military objectives and it is known they did not deviate from these orders.

After calling on Tokyo to abide by its agreements, the communication closed with its promise of punishment which left no doubt this country expects, soon or late, to be able to mete it out.

Director Elmer Davis of the OWI said the promise to punish those responsible for the executions covers civilians as well as military personnel but does not extend to the emperor of Japan.

MOTHER BELIEVES SON STILL ALIVE IN JAPAN

EAST, Lamb County, Tex., April 21. (AP)—The mother of First Lt. Robert L. Hite, one of the Texans on the Tokyo raid who is presumed to be a prisoner of the Japanese, said today she felt certain her son was still alive.

She said she pinned her hopes on an unconfirmed report that her son's voice had been picked up on a short-wave broadcast from Tokyo six months ago.

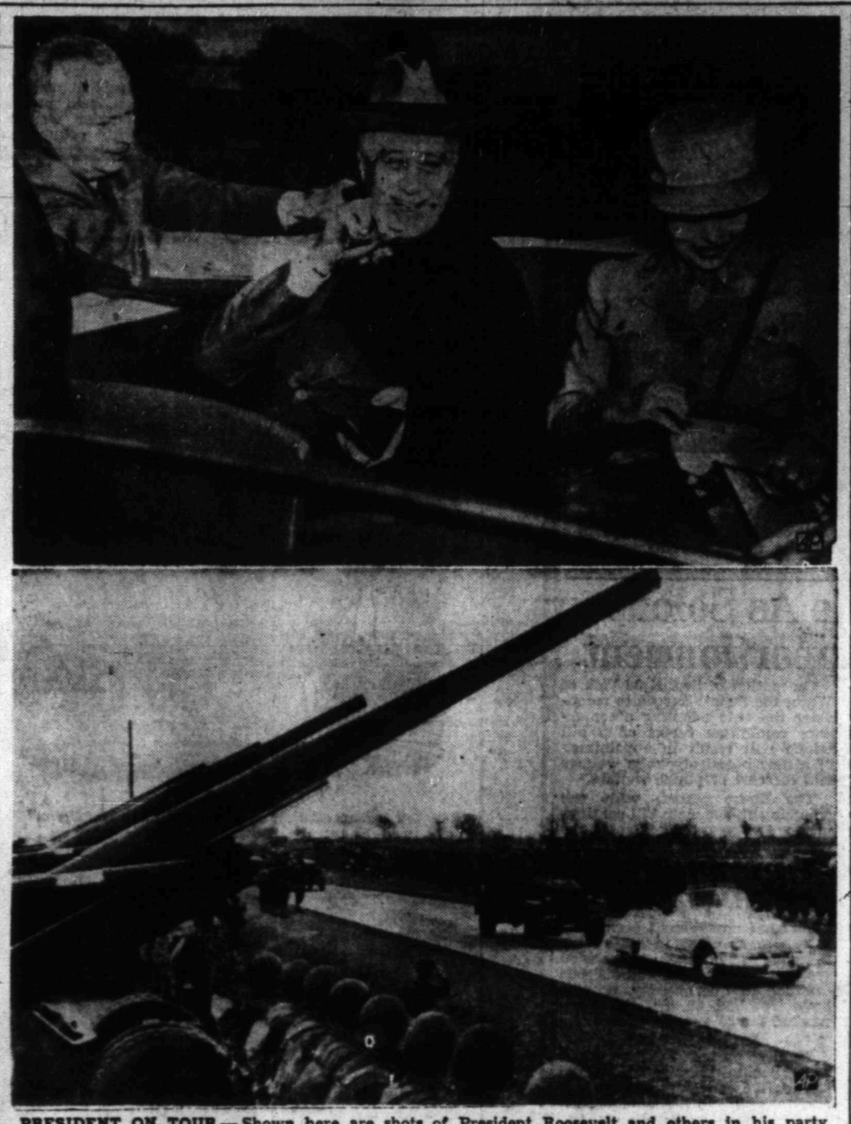

"I feel that we soon will hear about Robert's fate, and the word will be encouraging," the mother, Mrs. Lena Hite, said.

Hite enlisted in the Army Air forces in Oct. 1940 after being graduated from West Texas State Teachers college at Canyon.

His mother and 16-year-old brother, Kenneth, live on a farm a mile west of Earth.

A&M Exes Hold Muster In City

A muster of Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college alumni was held in the Hotel Hilton last night. Four hundred other such musters were being held in all parts of the world where possible. "It wouldn't surprise me," said Gordon W. Parkhill last night, "if such a muster were held tonight in Japan. Some of our men are prisoners there. I know that such a muster was held last year on Corregidor."

The object of the musters all over the world last night, as in Lubbock, was to honor the Texas A & M alumni who now are in the armed forces of their country.

Program Here Informal

The program in Lubbock was simple and informal. There was a buffet supper. C. E. Maedgen, the "oldest" alumnus (1904) present, acted as chairman and toastmaster. The speaking was informal.

About 60 people attended. There were men from Spur, Littlefield, Levelland, Guthrie, Abilene, and Shallowater, among other communities.

The feature of the meeting was the calling of the roll of Texas A & M men who were taken prisoner on Corregidor.

The class of 1913 had the largest delegation present. There were P. W. Walker of Littlefield, W. A. French of Abilene, A. F. Reese of Shallowater, C. A. Whitfield of Levelland, and H. W. Thomas of Lubbock.

Tax Proposals

strength in the committee to report the proposal for 1942 taxes at 1941 rates, if they vote as a unit.

Doughton handed newspapermen a statement outlining the Democratic pay-as-you-go proposal as follows:

"Adopt pay-as-you-go taxation in 1943 and subsequent years, including withholding at source on salaries and wages effective July 1.

"Forgive the approximate difference between the 1942 tax, and the tax computed at 1941 rates and exemptions. To avoid administrative difficulties a formula will be used for the computation of the amount forgiven.

Spread Liability

"Spread the unforgiven part of the 1942 liability over a period of three years, but give the commissioner (of internal revenue) authority to extend the payment over a longer period in the case of hardship, upon the payment of interest during the period of extension.

"Provide for some discount if payment of unforgiven 1942 liability is made within the two-year period. If payments are made on or before the following dates, the following discounts will be allowed: on or before March 15, 1944—10 per cent; on or before March 15, 1945 — six per cent."

This plan would involve an overall abatement of approximately 50 per cent of 1942 tax liabilities. It would erase last year's income tax obligations completely for approximately 7,000,000 persons and provide substantial reduction for others.

Sen. Hatch Here For Graduation

U. S. Senator and Mrs. Carl A. Hatch of Clovis, N. M., are in Lubbock to witness the graduation today of their son, Stewart, a cadet at Lubbock Army Flying school. They are guests at the Hilton.

Accompanying Sen. and Mrs. Hatch are their son-in-law and daughter of Providence, R. I., Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Leet. The latter is executive director of the state welfare commission for Rhode Island. The entire party will return to Clovis, following the exercises today.

On Truman Committee

Sen. Hatch is a member of the Truman committee, dealing with national defense, and has visited every section of the country in the last 12 months. He said amazing progress is being made in the war effort, and this includes every phase of that effort.

The New Mexico Democrat said he is hopeful of some early adoption of a pay-as-you-go tax plan, but he does not think the Roml proposal will be adopted as it was presented to the State.

Further than the above, the Senator made no comment; "I am here for only one purpose, and that is to attend the graduation of my son," he said.

Tunisian Front

advance by the British First Army west of Tunis had resulted in the capture of Smadia village, about three miles north of Medjez-El-Bab.

The struggle over this entire area was similar to that encountered in Allied battles with the Japanese in New Guinea where every machinegun nest and artillery post had to be stormed separately and obliterated by creeping infantrymen armed with knives and grenades.

It is proving to be a slow and costly process. Even if the Eighth Army dislodges the enemy from the hills immediately west of the coastal road and reaches Bou Ficha, the Axis still has a natural defensive line running from that coastal point to Pont Du Fahs, nearly 40 miles inland.

Hundreds Of Planes Aloft

Lieut. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz sent hundreds of American and British planes aloft yesterday "in full weight" to pour a torrent of high explosives on Axis air fields and landings strips.

"It was the heaviest and most successful blow yet struck against enemy air power in Tunisia," an official statement said in describing the attack on Sidi Ahmed near Bizerte, La Marsa, northeast of Tunis, La Sebala, north of Tunis, Creteville and Soliman, southeast of Tunis.

The Germans already have been forced to withdraw most of their bombers from Tunisia.

It is difficult to see how the Axis can operate much longer from their Tunisian fields.

The enemy's rear bases in Sicily also were being pounded steadily with visible results.

Comacho Visits FDR In Texas

for the Mexican president stood out in stark contrast to the gala welcome Mr. Roosevelt had received below the border where tens of thousands of people rained confetti, serpentine and roses on him and a festive board was spread at a military post just outside Monterrey.

Whine Of Propellers

Here there was no 60-piece string Mariachi band and the only musical note was the whine of propellers knifing the air overhead.

Planes from the six different air stations which comprise the training center throbbed overhead as the special train which bore the two chief executives from the border edged into the naval reservation, and one nearly scraped the dust from the top of one car.

Neither in their speeches last night nor from their continued conference today had come disclosure of the real reason for their dramtic meeting.

The two chief executives took Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles with them as they set out on their tour of the main training station. Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Avila Camacho were in a second car in line

At one point on the trip Mr. Roosevelt and Avila Camacho reviewed a cadet battalion drawn up along a roadway.

Saw Sprawling Camp

They saw the officers quarters and club, the barracks for cadets, a chapel with a revolving altar for Catholic and Protestant services, a naval hospital, and scores of hangars and other buildings laid out on the sandy coast of the Gulf of Mexico.

They paused at a field where naval seamen were drawn up in companies. They are the men who take seaplanes out of the water, care for them, and do some of the mechanical work to keep them in top shape.

The WAVES drilled for them at this same field.

Driving through a huge building, the chief executives were able to see civilians making smashed planes whole again. They rode down to seaplane ramps where men in bathing trunks were helping ease twin-engined Catalina patrol planes into a green surf.

The car parked beside the water, and 108 of the flying boats droned by in tight formation of threes and 4's. A squadron of dive bombers continued a thrilling aerial display by dropping practice-bombs on a small yellow target anchored a few hundred yards off shore.

They plunged down at steep angles, drawing gasps and "oh's and ah's" from the spectators as they came close with their bombs—so close that there was no question they would have hit a ship— and pulled out of their dives. One pilot dived almost vertically and came out of it so late that crys of fear arose among members of the presidential party.

Formal Honors

At the administration building, where a stiff breeze off the Gulf of Mexico whipped the blue flag of the American chief executive and the red, wihte, and green banner of the Mexican president, Mr. Roosevelt and President Avila Camacho received formal honors.

The national anthems of the two countries were played, while sailors and WAVES stood at hand salute.

The long special train brought the two presidents here from the northern Mexican industrial city in time for lunch with flying cadets in the mess hall of the station.

They were welcomed by the commandant Rear Admiral A. E. Montgomery, who has Mexican student fliers included among those he commands.

Originally Mr. Roosevelt and General Avila Camacho had planned to travel across the border in separate trains, but they decided to cut two cars for the Mexican president and his party into Mr. Roosevelt's train.

As the train sped across southern Texas this morning they continued their conference of state.

Five years ago, when the Mexican general was a patient at a medical clinic in Rochester, Minn., he met the United States President, whose son also was a patient there, and the two became warm friends.

"I was thrilled to salute my friend Mr. Roosevelt on Mexican soil this time," said the suntanned General Ortiz as the train bearing the Mexican and United States presidents left for the north. American military men commented on the excellent training reflected by troops under General Ortiz' command at the picturesque ten-year-old military city.

RAF Hits Berlin

of smoke still rose today.

More than 150 two-ton bombs were thrown in 40 minutes on Stettin, and at Rostock direct hits were registered on the main plant where Heinkel bombers are assembled two and one-half miles outside town and on Heinkel manufacturing units in Rostock proper.

The Stettin raiders said that whole areas of the city, the port for Berlin, were set ablaze.

Rostock and Stettin, essential points along the German supply line to the Russian front as well as being important war factory centers, were hit in synchronization with attacks on the East Prussian railway center of Tilsit. The Germans said the Tilsit blows were delivered by Russian bombers.

A wing commander who helped raid Berlin said speedy Mosquitos streaked over the Nazi capital and loosed their explosives before defense fire had time to open up.

From all night operations, 31 British bombers were lost.

A Finnish special communique claimed destruction of 20 Russian bombers in air battles near Kotka and near Seiskari island.

SOVIET FLIERS POUND EAST PRUSSIAN CITY

LONDON, April 21. (AP) — Russian planes raided Tilsit in East Prussia last night and started fires which could be seen from almost 100 miles away, Moscow announced tonight in a broadcast recorded by the Soviet monitor.

The announcement said the raiders subjected military and industrial objectives to a heavy bombardment.

"Big explosions that were observed were particularly numerous at a munitions dump near the railway junction and around the river port and air field," the broadcast said.

"All our planes returned to bases."

Yanks Stepping Up Kiska Raid Tempo

WASHINGTON, April 21. (AP)—American airmen pounding Kiska on a now-or-never schedule have stepped up the fury of their attacks to 15 raids in a single day, the Navy announced today.

The urgent need for results in the aerial offensive in the Aleutians was believed by informed persons here to result from evidence that the Japanese are about ready to finish converting the rocky island into an airbase of their own.

Not since the Japanese first moved into the western Aleutians last June have they been able to put into the air anything other than clumsy float-type planes for combat purposes. Employment of Kiska as a base for efficient land types, both to attack American bases and to oppose American raids on Kiska, would greatly complicate the problems facing the American air command in the North Pacific.

Dispatches direct from the battlefront in recent days have told of mounting enemy anti-aircraft resistance over the island and of steady progress on airbase construction.

The 15-raid day, a record breaker in Aleutians operations, was Monday. The tonnage of bombs dropped was not reported in today's communique but must have been enormous since on the previous day in only nine raids fighter planes alone dropped 34,000 pounds of explosives.

The Monday raid scored numerous hits on the main enemy camp, on the runway and on defensive positions.

In the South Pacific, the communique said, Army, Navy and Marine corps planes blasted a variety of enemy bases Monday and Tuesday, including the big base at Kieta on Bougainville island.

Meanwhile, Avenger bombers raided the Japanese field at Kahili in the Shortland island area of the northwestern Solomns and also attacked Jap shipping at nearby Tonolei habor, scoring a direct hit on one freighter and several near hits on another.

Juke Boxes Surpass Ice Cream As Lure

JERSEY CITY, N. Previously, he sought to pass an ordinance which would have required the proprietors to disconnect power lines to the juke boxes when children entered their shops.

Nazis Still Holding Prisoners In Fetters

LONDON, April 21 (AP)—British and Canadian war prisoners who were shackled by the Germans last October still are in fetters, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today, but he said he had received information that the "method of application" is less rigorous than heretofore.

Eden said that Britain, which has unshackled the German prisoners she put in irons in retaliation, would continue to press the German government to abandon the practice.

Decision Asked On Negroes Voting In Texas Primaries

WASHINGTON, April 21. (AP)—The Supreme court was asked today to decided anew whether a negro may be barred, because of his race and color, from voting in a Texas Democratic primary to nominate candidates for Congress.

Attorney for Lonnie E. Smith, Houston negro, contended the tribunal should "examine" its 1935 opinion sustaining the exclusion of negroes from a Texas primary.

The 1935 decision, it was asserted, "was based on the theory that the right to participate in the Democratic primary is one of the privileges incidental to membership in the Democratic party of Texas and should not be confused with the right to vote."

The petition cited a 1941 Supreme court opinion which was said to hold that in a state where choice at the primary was equivalent to election the right to vote in the primary was derived not from the party but from the federal constitution.

Smith contended that the Supreme court, by its 1935 decision, had "sanctioned the practical disenfranchisement of 540,565 adult negro citizens, 11.86 of the total adult population of Texas."

Wahoo Is Back; Sinks 13 Ships

By CHARLES McMURTRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

PEARL HARBOR, April 21. — The submarine Wahoo has returned from its second adventure in enemy waters with another eight ships sunk for a total of 13 in two successive patrols.

Naval officials said the eight bagged in the second patrol was a record number for a single patrol, but Lieut. Commander Dudley W. (Mush) Morton, skipper of the Wahoo described the exploit as "just cut and dried sinking of ships."

"It was just sight, track, shoot and sink," said the 36-year-old Miami, Fla., officer.

Achieved In Week's Time

Besides the eight ships, totalling 37,000 tons, the Wahoo damaged a ninth and wrecked a trawler and two sampams. The sinkings all were achieved within one week's time. For the two patrols, the first in January, the total tonnage sunk was 69,000.

Morton admitted he got a thrill one night when a Japanese tanker's five-inch shell fell close to the Wahoo's bow, forcing the Wahoo to submarge. The submarine resurfaced later and sank the tanker within 45 minutes.

Heard Jap Propaganda

As soon as the Wahoo had neared combat area, the crew tuned in on the Tokyo radio.

"The Japs gave us a propaganda broadcast that the submarine menace had been erased," Morton said. "Then we got nine ships in seven days (eight sunk, one damaged)"

The ships sank so fast only four survivors were sighted. These refused to be taken prisoner.

"One Jap just opened his mouth as we approached, gulped seawater and drowned," Morton said.

Vander Meer Blanks Cards; Indians Whitewash Detroit

Slate Cut In Half By Bad Weather

Cincy Ace Turns In Two-Hit Mound Job

NEW YORK, April 21. (AP)—The major leagues' opening day program of eight scheduled games were sliced in half by the weather today, but 55,021 cash on the line customers in the Midwest were treated to four spectacular pitching shows in the games that were played.

The biggest crowd and the brightest fireworks were at Cincinnati where the Reds punctured the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals 1-0 in 11 innings before 27,709 fans.

Johnny Vander Meer and Mort Cooper tangled in a magnificent mound duel in which Vander Meer allowed only two hits and Cooper six.

The other contests also were shutouts—Cleveland over Detroit 1-0, the St. Louis Browns over the Chicago White Sox 3-0 and the Pittsburgh Pirates over the Chicago Cubs 6-0.

Derringer Beaten

At Cleveland 13,847 fans saw Jim Bagby and the veteran Tommy Bridges wage a scoreless battle till the last of the ninth when Roy Cullenbine walked, Buddy Rosar doubled, Ray Mack was purposely passed to load the bases and Bagby smashed a long fly to right to bring home the winning run.

Lefty Al Hollingsworth pitched four-hitt ball in smothering the White Sox before 4,421 fans at Sportsman's park.

Truett (Rip) Sewell held the Chicago Cubs to three safeties while the Pirates ruined the debut of big Paul Derringer in a Cub uniform before 9,044 fans.

Cincinnati Turns Back Cards In 11th By 1-0

CINCINNATI, April 21. (AP) — Johnny Vander Meer paid off on four years of trying today by pitching the Cincinnati Reds to a 1-0 opening day victory over the St. Louis Cardinals, who got only two singles in 11 innings off the tall southpaw.

Johnny, expected to join the armed forces soon, hadn't pitched an opener since his unhappy 1939 season, but he bested Morton Cooper, top man of the St. Louis pitching staff, in a game that had 27,709 people forgetting their chills and shakes.

From the fourth inning, when he struck out the last Cardinal batter, until the 11th, when he walked the third, Johnny allowed no one to get to first base.

Lonnie Frey opened the last inning with a short single back of first and Mike McCormick sacrificed him to second. Max Marshall whipped the ball to right and Lonnie scrambled in for the win.

Former All-American Tommy Harmon Tells Own Story Of South American Crackup

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here is Lt. Thomas Harmon's own story of escape by parachute from a crashing U. S. Army plane he was piloting over the Guiana jungles and of his subsequent wandrings until rescued. Two of his crew were killed and the other three are missing and sought by rescue parties.

The story as released by the Antilles Air Task force of the United States Army:

By L. T. THOMAS HARMON (All-American At Michigan U., 1939-40)

A. U. S. ARMY BASE IN DUTCH GUIANA, April 21 (AP)—I had been flying at 8,000 feet for nearly two hours through a heavy rain turbulence. I spotted an opening in the clouds and started to spiral down to fly contact beneath the overcast.

At the end of the second turn there was a sudden sharp crack from the right wing and right engine.

I yelled at the crew to bail out and away went Wolf (Second Lt. Edwin J. Wolf of Philadelphia), then Wieting (Second Lt. Frederick O. Wieting, Lansing, Mich.) and I think Coss (Staff Sgt. Bernard R. Coss, Mendota, Ill.) got out too.

Misses Rip Cord

I couldn't see the others, but just then the ship snapped into a left hand spin. All the instruments went crazy, the altimeter read 1,500 feet so I went out of there.

I grabbed for the ripcord, but missed, grabbed again and yanked. The next thing I knew I was hanging in a tree and 20 yards away my ship had crashed and was burning.

I salvaged a pair of pants, some shoes, a parachute, a jungle kit which was smashed but still good, and a few beat-up cans of water. I had a bolo knife from the kit and I found a pistol.

I started off due east towards the coast, using a compass from the jungle kit.

I had to cut my way through with the bolo knife and stop for breath at the top of each hill.

I didn't make over half a mile before dark, and I spent the night the best way I could on a high spot.

Eats Chocolate Bars

Next day I started out again after eating a couple of small chocolate bars from my jungle kit. All my drinking water had leaked out during the night and from then on I had to drink water from the swamps.

That night I heard an animal that sounded like a dog barking and I hoped he would lead me to some natives, but he disappeared.

This went on for four days until I came out of the jungle and found a large swamp ahead.

The next day I waded and swam several miles to another dry ridge.

Enroute my flying suit had shrunk to my knees and the trousers wore out but I kept wading and swimming along until finally I saw smoke and found two native huts down along the edge of the swamp.

The natives didn't speak English, but finally they understood that I was an aviator. They had a dugout canoe, and rowed me to a village where there was some sort of official who spoke a little English.

Directs Aerial Search

He gave me one of his uniforms and we finally got away in a little out-rigger canoe about two in the morning. Eventually we landed and went down a small path which wound up at the base of the Antilles Air Task force. (End Harmon story).

(As soon as Harmon arrived at the base he was taken aboard an Army plane to direct the aerial search which has located the wreckage of his plane. Harmon's 'chute was still hanging on a tree near the ship and the other parachutes were located on trees about a mile away.

(A searching party was organized as soon as the plane returned to the base, and started or the scene of the crash before dawn the next morning.

(After giving the order to bail out, Harmon said that in the excitement which followed he was unable to tell what had happened to Sergt. Leonard D. Gunnels of Deatsville, Ala., and Staff Sgt. J. F. Goodwin of Texarkana, Tex. In Washington today, the Army announced that Gunnells and Goodwin were killed in the crash, and that the other three crew members are missing.)

(The rescue party heading for the plane is toiling through difficult jungle country. A physician is in the group.)

Drake Relays Records Are Expected To Fall

DES MOINES, Ia., April 21. (AP)—Despite a drop of 200 in the number of university and college performers, Drake Relays officials believe as many as five meet records may fall in the 34th annual relay carnival here Friday and Saturday.

Bill Easton, Relays director and Drake track coach, said today that 424 entries have been received.

Most ancient record on the books is the high jump mark of 6 feet 6 inches set by Harold Osborne of Illinois in 1922. Pete Watkins of Texas A. & M. and Jerry Donovan, Drake freshman, tied at 6 feet 7¼ inches at the Texas relays this year.

Freddie Wolcott of Rice established the Drake high hurdles record of 14.2 seconds in 1934. Ralph Tate of Oklahoma A. & M. has one victory at :14 flat to his credit this year. Several will be gunning for the 14 feet 1/16 inch pole vault record established by Beefus Bryan of Texas in 1940.

The Drake record in the 440 relay is :41, set by Texas in 1941.

"Wot Won't Dey Be Doin' Next?"

Two Brooklynites See 'Dem Bums' At Work In Movies

By CHIP ROYAL
Associated Press Sports Writer

BROOKLYN, April 21—Dodger baseball fans walking outside Ebbets field the other morning were amazed to hear loud boos coming from their favorite ball park.

It couldn't be a game—it was too early in the day for that—and besides, the boos didn't have that familiar Flatbush ring.

A couple of the more curious boys noted several sports writers making for the entrance to the field and promptly fell in line. Wending their way into the stands behind home plate, they ran right smack into about 300 strange looking persons all bundled up in heavy coats.

"Hey, Joe, wot's goin' on here? Would ya looket dem bums," asked one of the invading faithful.

"Hoimann Up To De Bat"

"Gee, looket de field, Moe," moaned Joe, almost at the same time as his pal spoke. "Dere takin' movies!"

"Well, wotta ya know, dere's Hoimann up to de bat," exclaimed Moe. "Whose de guy catchin' wit de whiskers?"

"Oh, dats dat guy wit de funny first name, Dee Moore," answered Joe. "And looket, some mug is sittin' on de ground in front of the moovie machine tossin' a ball. I wonder efits a real one."

"Naw, it's only rubber. Didya see dat? It hit Hoimann on de head and bounced out past toid base," replied Moe.

Lippy Leo Objects

"Okay, cut," said a voice over a loud speaker. "Now let's have Mr. Medwick." Whereupon a loud yell pierced the air from the direction of left field and tearing in came Manager Leo Durocher.

"Wotta ya mean calling him Mr. Medwick?" asked Lippy. "Call him Joe. Wotta ya want to do, make it tough for me all this summer? Mister Medwick!"

Moe and Joe at this point decided they should investigate a little further and moved around to a gate which would let them on the field.

"Look, dere's a whole bunch of dem guys wit beards in date dugout," pointed Moe.

"Cum out from dem bushes, Galan, we know ya," yelled Joe, as he recognized the popular Dodger outfielder, Augie Galan.

Red Skelton, Too

"Why dem bums, wot are dey doin' with dem beards and date 'Battling Beavers' uniform?" growled Moe. "Dere's French (Stan Bordagaray) and Max (Macon) too. Let's find out who de rest of dem are."

So the boys ambled over to Frenchy and asked him what it was all about. They found out that the other beaver-sporting players were rookies Lou Olmo, Hal Peck, Bob Chipman and Coach Ray Hayworth.

"Who's de guy wid de red beard up to bat now?" asked Moe, just as Buck Newsom let loose with one of his screwballs.

"That's Red Skelton, the star of the picture," answered Frenchy. "It's called 'Whistling in Brooklyn' and we're all going to be in it.

Red Has Comeback

Just then a loud laugh from the mound turned all eyes that way as Newsom yelled at Red Skelton: "Bo, you're the first one to miss that screwball all spring."

Without a flick of an eyelash, Skelton countered with "I'm probably the first screwball to swing at it."

Before anything else could happen, a couple of the Ebbets field riot squad spotted Moe and Joe and waved them out of the ball park with our heroes muttering:

"'Madgine dem bums in a moovie with Red Skel-e-ton! Wot won't dey be doin' next?"

Bob Hope Boosts War Bond Drive At Dallas

DALLAS, April 21 (AP)—A good time was had by all, including Bob Hope, and more than $300,000 in war bonds were subscribed today as the screen and radio comedian, working with golfers Ben Hogan, Ed Dudley and Jack Munger, put on a show at the Dallas Country club.

An estimated 5,000 persons turned out to boost the total amount in war bonds obtained by Dallas golfers to close to the $3,000,000 mark. Over $2,500,000 was reported from last week's Texas Victory Open.

So far as golf was concerned, there was some of it but more of horseplay as Hope teamed with Hogan to defeat Dudley and Munger two up.

Hope told the crowd at the start "You folks don't know the chance you're taking," then drove one about 225 yards and asked: "Who did that? Was it me?"

Jerry Colonna, Hope's radio stooge, started out as referee of the match but quit at the first hole, waiting at the club house for the gang to return.

Hope "sold" everything he could think of. He let his hat go for a $1,000 bond purchase, his tie for a like amount and his sweater for $2,000. "This better stop now," he warned, "or they'll be calling me "Gypsy Rose Hope."

The Ink Spots, negro musical entertainers, sang a song that brought a $30,000 bond purchase.

On No. 7 the comedian bet a man in the crowd a $500 bond he would sink a 10-foot putt and did it.

Hope goes to Fort Worth tomorrow to play with Dudley, national president of the PGA, against Col. O. E. Henderson of the Flying Training Command and Hogan.

WE'RE AHEAD

The United Nations produced one and a quarter million more tons of shipping than the enemy destroyed during the last half of 1942.

TOP HOLDOUT — Principal big-name major league player absent as the season opened yesterday was Lou Kovinoff. The hard-hitting Chicago Cub outfielder is still in California, holding out for a higher salary on the basis of his .301 batting mark last year.

Waco Flying School Downs Texas Aggies

COLLEGE STATION, April 21. (AP) — Bruce Campbell and Hoot Evers hit homers for the Waco Flying school today as the Army nine jumped on the offerings of J. B. Carden and Johnny Shuford to defeat the Texas Aggies 11-6.

Evers batted in four runs with his homer, and doubled with the bases jammed. Nick Popovich held the Aggies to four hits in the six innings he hurled, one of them a home run by Les Peden in the first with a mate on base.

FORT SMITH, Ark., April 21. (AP)—Eugene Lambert, University of Arkansas athletic director, said today that the Razorback-Oklahoma Aggie football game would be played in Fort Smith Friday night, Nov. 19.

Fort Smith was awarded the contest after Lambert conferred with representatives of the Chamber of Commerce which will sponsor the game.

Fort Jefferson National Monument, in Florida, was visited by 1141 persons during 1940.

Amarillo's Sandies Will Be Ready For Coming Season

By CHOC HUTCHESON
Avalanche Sports Writer

If you happen to be a staunch supporter of Lubbock's football Westerners, our advice is that you not read the rest of this item.

Just turn to the funny page; try the cross-word—do anything to keep your mind free of worry. But don't continue here.

Because this article concerns Amarillo's 1943 gridiron prospects, and, believe you us, brother, it's sad stuff so far as Lubbock rooters are concerned.

So now (realizing that you've paid about as much attention to our advice as to a shadow) we're going to dive right into the subject.

Good Set Of Backs

Just offhand, it looks as though Amarillo's 1943 Sandies are going to have just about everything they need, with the possible exception of a couple of 85-yard punters and a midfield field goal expert.

All joking aside, however, the Sandies really do expect to have one of their best teams next season.

Bull Lynch's boys have just begun their annual spring training program with a squad on hand that includes 11 lettermen, 13 squadmen and numerous outstanding first year prospects.

Especially imposing in Lynch's fine set of backs. Returning from last year's great team, which powerhoused its way to the state semi-finals before bowing to Sunset of Dallas in an upset, are Billy Keith Irwin, the fine plnuger, and Billy Lynch, the coach's son who is not only a brilliant field general but quite a leather-lugger himself.

Strong Line

Being groomed for the important tailback post is Richard Mixon, hard-driving 180-pound sophomore. Dale Collins will be at blocking back. For an all-round backfield replacement, the Sandies have Mark Taylor, a standout passer.

As for line prospects, well, it looks like Lynch will boast another one of those "Sandie lines." Some of the line stars, just to mention a few, are Hall, Reynolds, Owens, Timberlake, Robberson, Pevehouse and Watts.

In fact, things are looking so bright up in Sandietown that even Putt Powell, the usually pesimistic sports writer of the Amarillo News-Globe, has come right out with the statement "the Sandies are going to have another 'crackerjack' outfit and other teams had better be ready for them."

Ocean Wave Triumphs In Bluegrass Stakes

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 21. (AP) Plain Ben Jones rode back into the Kentucky Derby picture today on a wave—Ocean Wave, the colt a lot of folks had about decided to count out of the big May day scramble.

The Wave rolled up Churchill Downs stretch like the tide coming in and not only ran off with the Bluegrass Stakes, but also handed two of his more recent conquerors, Amber Light and Seven Hearts, a convincing beating.

His two and a half length victory over Charles Fisher's Amber Light gave the Wave and Plain Ben, his trainer, the Derby headlines of the day.

The rest-pause that refreshes

Welcome in peace... more welcome in war work

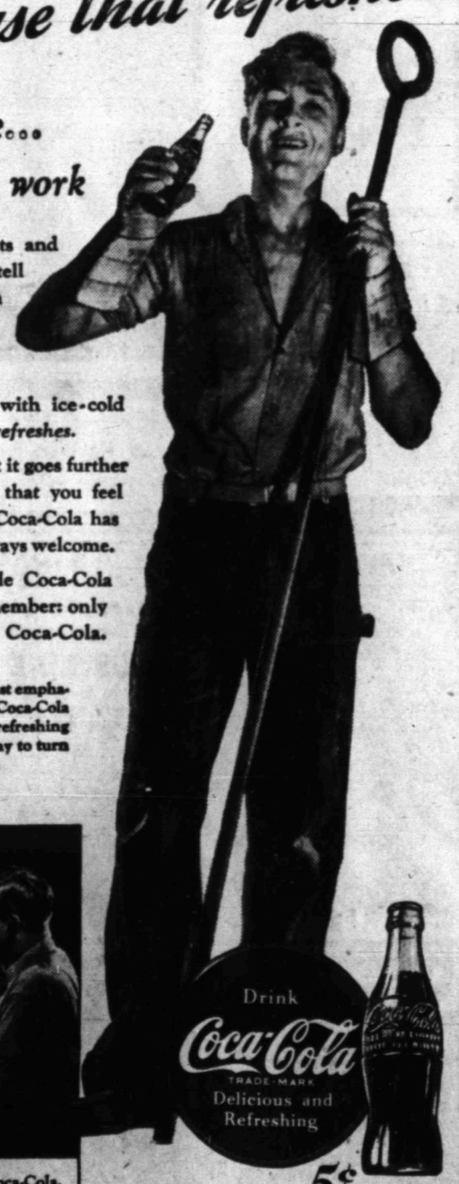

IN letter after letter from war plants and factories, managers write in to tell how important they consider Coca-Cola in providing energy-giving refreshment for workers... in helping output and morale. Of course, workers in war plants welcome a rest-pause . . . with ice-cold Coca-Cola to make it the pause that refreshes.

Ice-cold Coca-Cola quenches thirst. But it goes further to add pure, wholesome refreshment that you feel and enjoy. Made with a finished art, Coca-Cola has a taste all its own . . . a goodness you always welcome.

Popularity with war-workers has made Coca-Cola the symbol of the rest-pause. And remember: only The Coca-Cola Company produces Coca-Cola.

Letters from plant managers from coast to coast emphasize that the little moment for an ice-cold Coca-Cola means a lot to workers in war plants. It's a refreshing moment on the sunny side of things . . . a way to turn to refreshment without turning from work.

A breathing spell, a rest-pause and ice-cold Coca-Cola. Contentment comes when you connect with a Coke.

The best is always the better buy! 5¢

The CHIROPRACTOR-and You

No. 13 of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the practice of Chiropractic.

CASE HISTORY No. 827. A 13-year-old girl who had suffered with psoriasis for eight years. Face, ears, neck and almost every part of the body, was covered with scaly lesions. Hospitalization, serum injections external applications of many kinds had been tried, but the condition persisted. When she first visited a Chiropractor the child was a pitiable sight. The spine was X-rayed and a nerve blockage causing metabolic disfunction (chemical imbalance) was revealed. Adjustments were begun to release the nerves, and within a short time the lesions began to peel off and disappear. On her thirteenth birthday all trace of psoriasis had left the child's skin, with the exception of a few spots above the knees, and these last traces disappeared within a few days.

CASE HISTORY No. 542. A young man barely 18 years old who had been advised that his condition of epilepsy was incurable. Epileptic fits had grown in frequency since he was nine years old, and all efforts had failed to restore normal health. He visited a Chiropractor as "a last chance", and on April 7th the first spinal adjustments were begun. He has not had a single epileptic seizure since and has improved remarkably in health and outlook.

CASE HISTORY No. 38. A nine-year-old boy with a lengthy record of sickness. At age three his tonsils and adenoids had been removed. When three and a half he had kidney trouble. At the age of six he was suffering from rheumatismal edema and rheumatic fever. At seven he developed chorea, or St. Vitus Dance, which continued for a year and forced his removal from school. His mother was persuaded to take the boy to a Chiropractor. A spinal analysis revealed severe nerve pressure, apparently the result of an instrument birth, and adjustments were commenced. After several adjustments the boy was able to return to school with an appreciable gain in weight, and has been well ever since.

WHAT IS CHIROPRACTIC? Chiropractic is based on the fact that the brain is the human power house. It creates vital energy. Without brain energy no organ or part of the body can function. Brain energy is transmitted over the body's network of nerves. These nerves radiate from the spine, and it is in the spine that the nerves can be "pinched" by vertebrae, and the flow of energy over them impeded or cut off. When, in this way, the connection is broken between brain and one or more parts of the body, disease is the inevitable result. By skillful analysis and precise spinal adjustments, the Chiropractor is able to locate and release impinged nerves, and restore an uninterrupted flow of brain energy to the part affected. Health follows naturally.

OUR PLEDGE

WE pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands; One Nation, Indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all.

No Time For Squabbling

OPPOSITION expressed by one-third of the membership of the United States Senate to attempts to commit the nation at this time to participation in post-war policing of he world should cause those favoring such a plan from forcing the issue for awhile.

Even if all the remaining members of the Senate favored immediate pledges, and this is not the case, the opposition already is sufficient to insure a long and bitter fight if the issue should be forced now. Fewer than a dozen senators comprised the "little band of willful men" who were charged by President Woodrow Wilson with responsibility for blocking American participation in the League of Nations back in 1919. Thirty-two senators already have declared their opposition to immediate pledges. Only 24 have endorsed the idea. The others said they have not made up their minds, or gave no expression on the proposition.

The line-up on the question already is such as to indicate that attempts to bind the nation to such pledges would be futile. If an attempt should succeed, the debating would be long and vitriolic. Then, if approved, the legislation still would have to run the gamut of the House.

The least that consideration of anything so controversial might do would be to divert attention from the proposition of winning the war—which, after all, is the important thing now. Problems of the post-war era won't be aggravated too much by a little delay before attempt is made to solve them.

That Dallas Airport Fiasco

SPOKESMEN for the city of Dallas are making such vigorous attempts to justfy their withdrawal from participation in Midway airport, which was intended to serve both Fort Worth and Dallas, as to suggest that there may be somehing of a guilty conscience in the matter.

As will be recalled, Midway airport is located almost exactly half-way between the two cities. Seemingly everything was lovly in connecion with the project when Dallas started objecting because plans called for the airport buildings to be faced toward Fort Worth. The upshot of a lot of squabbling was the Dallas decision to withdraw entirely from the project and to plan an expensive airport all its own.

At first thought, it may appear that the decision is entirely up to Dallas in a matter of this kind. And it unquestionably is a fact that Dallas is more concerned and has a bigger stake in the proposition than anyone else. But interest in the matter is not confined to that city alone. All taxpayers are interested to a certain extent, because the Dallas plans contemplate considerable assistance from the federal government. If Dallas has not already asked for federal money, then there is no secret of the fact that allocations will be asked. Therefore, the impression is created that Dallas, largely out of spite, proposes to saddle an expense which could be avoided upon the American taxpayer as a whole.

Apparently not even the advocates of this plan in Dallas are wholly convinced of the soundness of their position. Apparently the people of Dallas are not entirely sold on the necessity for the considerable portion of the great expense to which they would be put. Otherwise it hardly would be necessary for the advocates to go to the extremes they have been going recently to justify their course before the people of Dallas.

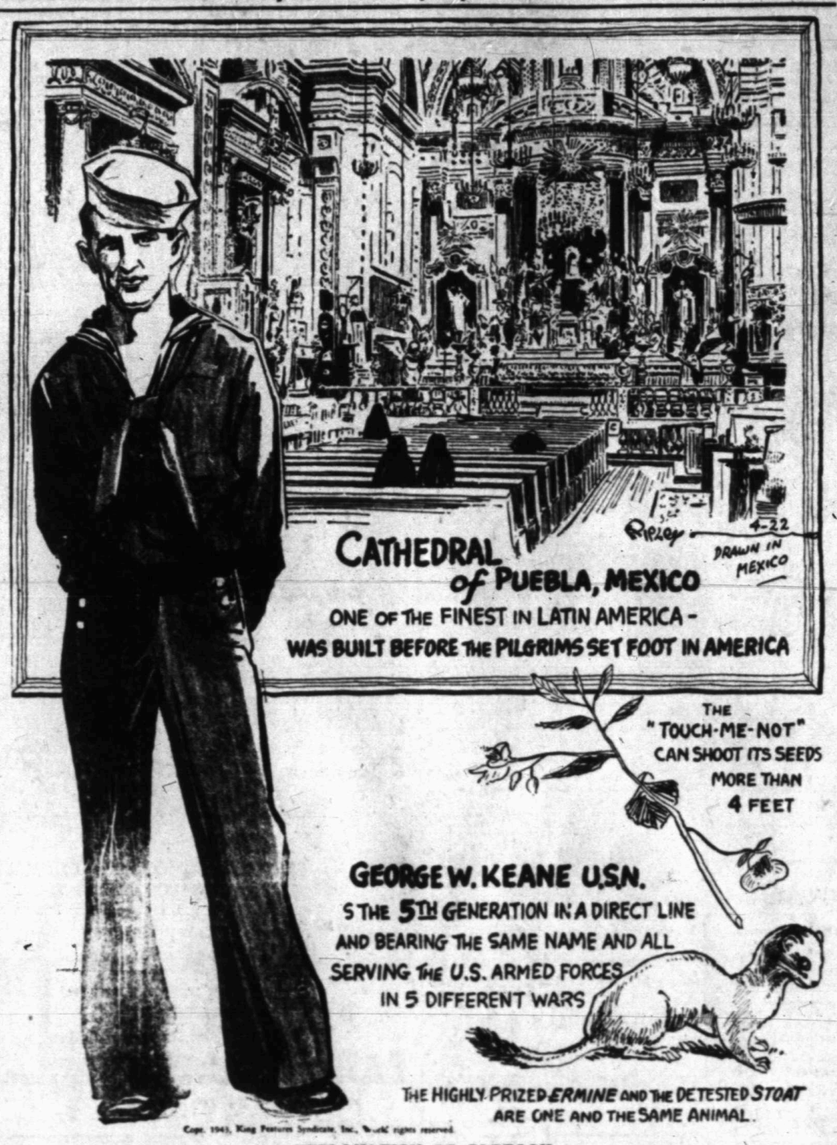

But, regardless what Dallas may think of the matter, the question still arises among all taxpayers as to whether they would be willing for one cent of federal money to be spent on a project which results almost solely from the petty rivalries and jealousies between two cities.

Chapter 5

Jones snorted and went into the store. Women were all alike. No matter how young or good-looking you found them, all they ever thought about was getting their hooks in you. All you had to do was smile and the bells for the wedding would shout the tidings.

It made Jones blush just to think of it. And her such a sweet seemingly filly, too. It just went to show a man wasn't safe till the grave-digger's dirt rattled down on his coffin.

Jones stepped up to the counter. A trio of hard-faced men were lounging against it when Tubac got out his wallet. Giving them barely a glance he said: "Got that stuff I ordered fixed up for me yet?"

"Ye got nothin' here."

"I'm aware of that," Jones said, giving McGillis a slantwise stare. "But I ordered a whole bunch of stuff. This mornin—yes! By grab, an' paid for it, too!"

"Ye may 'a' ordered them, mon—but not o' McGillis."

Tubac Jones hitched up his belt and laid his sixshooter down on the counter. 'I shoulda known better'n to trust a Scotchman with an Irishman's handle. Pony up them things an' be quick about it."

You could see by Jones' eye that he meant it. McGillis hesitated. "Ye didna come so I put them away," he said.

"You can go fetch 'em out again."

McGillis put the flats of his big-knuckled hands on the counter. "Goods put up and nae called for are confiscated—"

Tubac's stare flashed cold as a gun bore. "In about two seconds I'll confiscate you!"

Sue Lambert, somehow, discovered her mind wasn't entirely on her work back at the bank. In the first place, Tubac Jones' general opinion of matrimony wasn't to be very well regarded by any woman; in the second place, Tubac Jones, himself, was proving to be the kind of personality that leaves an impression on people. Good, bad, or a maxture — it was still an impression.

Sue Lambert hadn't been in Stockton too long, but she'd kept her eyes open. That' why she couldn't help admiring the way Tubac Jones put his rights — or even what he thought to be his rights — above everything else. Even above his personal safety.

And Sue had learned that personal safety could be a rather precarious privilege in that part of the country.

She thought of the Holeman Grant and the Stampede Stock and Cattle Company. Tubac Jones was fresh and a bit too impetuous, but he was clean and he had ambition. Suddenly she wished the cards weren't so stacked against him. She wished she could help him some way. A whimsical smile came to her face; well, maybe she could, some day. There were a few things Sue Lambert knew.

Dawn was not far off when Tubac Jones came in sight of the cabins Sam Holeman had erected on his Horse Prairie grant. Lamplow made pale cracks of light ronud the place, approached the house cautiously. A horse stood on dropped reins alongside the porch.

There was a menacing glint in Tubac's eyes as he jerked out his gun and kicked open the door But the fellow inside was a stranger to him; he was a tall, gaunt man with a sharply aquiline nose, and a lean face handsomely contoured with heavy blond eyebrows and military mustache.

Fifty, perhaps. He was dressed in the garb of a riverboat gambler, with a black frock coat and black string tie with its ends tucked in to a flowered silk vest.

"Well," Tubac said sarcastically. "Nothing like makin' yourself at home! I trust you find the place comfortable—"

"Quite," replied the stranger cooly. "Are you, by any chance, the owner of this ranch?"

"I'll pass for the owner till some tougher buck shows."

The man shrugged his shoulders. A kind of vague twinkle looked out of his stare. He got up with a bow that was graceful and smooth. "Blackwater Bill, at youff service, sir. A gambling man rather down on his luck—"

"Yeah," Jones said. "Never mind the spiel — I know the rest of that line by heart. You find yourself temporarily' strapped—"

"I'm afraid," said the stranger with quiet dignity, "you've rather jumped to conclusions, sir. I am not without funds. I can still pay my way. What I need is a rest—"

"Then you better keep right on ridin', mister, because you'll get no rest around here," Jones said.

"But this seems ideal."

"Loks is deceivin'. This place is known as the Holeman grant; it takes in the whole of Horse Prairie, an' there's a good many guys that would like to have it an' some of 'em." Jones said grimly, "ain't above cuttin' natches to git it! In other words, mister, there's a range feud brewin'—"

"Then perhaps I could be of some assistance to you. In my younger days I studied law.

"Nothin' doin'," Jones said with finality. "There ain't no use arguin'. I don't want to seem inhospitable, mister, but there's apt t' be a lot of lead flyin' raund—"

"I'd welcome the chance to risk that, sir." A faint, knowing smile curved Blackwater's lips, and Tubac stared at him sharply.

"Just what the hell are you up to?"

The gambler said, "I could be quite a help to you, Jones, if you'd let me—"

"So you know my name, do you?" Tubac growled. "What else do you know?"

The gambler sat back down in his chair and stared at his finger tips thoughtfully. "I know Haines' bank's got you in a cleft stick and is just about fixed to stamp your rattles off—"

"Oh! Is that so!"

"Well," Blackwater grinned, "isn't it? What about that lease of Lot Deckerman's that Hi Grab claims is six years old? How are you figuring to get around that?"

Jones eyed the man, startled. "How'd you know about that?"

"The fact at issue," the gambler said, "is that you just plain can't get around it—unless I help you.'

Tubac rested a hip on the table. "I guess you don't know so much at that. I've filed on this place—"

"And that page has been cut from the book,' smiled the gambler. "So your filing dont amount to a row of bent pins. You've got just one chance to beat that lease. If you want to play this smart I'll make a deal with you."

Two Members Of Tom Harmon's Plane Are Killed In Crash

WASHINGTON, April 21. (U.P.)—Two members of the crew were killed in the April 8 crash of a plane piloted by Lt. Thomas G. Harmon, former Michigan football star, the War department announced today.

Three others are missing from the accident in the South American jungle. Dispatches from Brazil had indicated these men parachuted, so there seemed to be some basis for hope that they might yet turn up.

Harmon is the only one so far known to be safe.

The dead: James F. Goodwin, staff sergeant, engineer; father, Cecil C. Goodwin, route 5, Texarkana, Tex., and Leonard D. Gunnells, sergeant, gunner; mother, Mrs. Jeroma K. Gunnels, route 1, Deatsville, Ala.

The missing: Edwin J. Wolf, 2nd Lt.; father, Joseph Wolf, Philadelphia; Fredrick O. Wieting, 2nd Lt.; sister, Mrs. Peggy V. Ramont, Lansing, Mich.; and Bernard R. Coss, staff sergeant; mother, Josephine E. Coss, Mendota, Ill.

It was announced April 17 that Lieut. Harmon was safe at a South American army air base. He parachuted into the jungle of Dutch Guiana without serious injury and was brought back to civilization by natives who found him after he had wandered through the jungles for four days.

Marine Corps Pilot Shoots Down 7 Jap Planes For Record

A SOUTH PACIFIC BASE, April 21. (AP)—First Lt. J. E. Swett, Marine corps pilot, shot down seven Japanese divebombers—a record for this war for one pilot in a single air action—during the heavy enemy attack April 7 on the Guadalcanal-Tulagi Savo island area.

The account of Swett's exploit was contained in official reports released today by the headquarters of Admiral William F. Halsey, jr., commander-in-chief of U. S. Naval forces in the south Pacific.

With his ammunition gone, his plane's windshield smashed and the oil cooling system riddled, Swett finally glided his Grumman Wildcat fighter through machine-gun fire from American shore batteries to make a landing on the water. The heroic flier was rescued from the sea and treated at a hospital for minor facial injuries.

Swett, a native of Seattle, Wash., won his wings at the naval air station at Corpus Christi, Tex.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S insistence on secrecy regarding the proceedings of the Bermuda refugee conference and the Hot Springs food parley is interpreted by Congress as an utter defiance of its prerogatives. That feeling lies behind Capitol Hill's demand that both the legislators and the press be represented at these extremely important assemblages.

It is generally forgotten but last fall FDR rushed a measure to the capitol that would permit him to revise tariff and immigration laws at his discretion. It never got out of committee owing to the resentment it aroused among Democrats and Republicans alike. The farm bloc opposed it for fear the administration, in accordance with its free trade philosophy, would flood the country with competing edibles from abroad. Urban members flared up because they were worried that factory workers from stricken nations might be brought here to swell the labor supply.

What the solons suspect now is that the chief executive will try to accomplish the same purpose by indirection at the scheduled discussions with representatives of foreign powers. They expect him to rely on various war authority grants as warrant for negotiating agreements which will not have to be submitted to the Senate for ratification.

The inside fact is that Mr. Roosevelt's own advisers are upset by his Congress-be-damned attitude. They think he is making the same mistake as Woodrow Wilson made when he refused to send topnotch Republicans like the late Henry Cabot Lodge and William Howard Taft to Versailles. The League of Nations might have been approved had the first World war President not antagonized and flaunted the men at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue.

SOLUTION: America's breath-taking speed in producing certain classes of weapons, as told exclusively in this column on March 25th, has precipitated backstage debate of postwar reconversion program. It has also raised the question of how the federal government can extricate itself from independent industries it has financed. The answer will decide whether competitive capitalism can survive.

Recent reports that Uncle Sam had invested about 10 billion dollars in factories necessary to the victory effort were quite erroneous. It is impossible to arrive at a precise estimate, but the sum is nearer 20 billion, and will eventually amount to 25. Quite obviously subsidized corporations cannot pay back that figure overnight and thus get out of hock to Washington. So each wishes to be free of the other.

Two schools of thought have developed here. The more radical New Dealers want the administration to step in and take over these plants. This would give Washington a challenging control of private enterprise. So far this group appears to be in the minority, although its cohorts are feverishly endeavoring to bring Mr. Roosevelt around to their point of view. He has given personal assurances that he favors the old-fashioned system.

If he carries out that pledge, he will probably adopt a kind of lend-lease arrangement in handling the problem. A great percentage of Uncle Sam's involvement will be written off with normal provisions for depreciation and use, and the balance liquidated over a long period of years. Even so, Mr. Whiskers will enjoy greater supervision of the national economic structure than ever before. The solution of this puzzle will undoubtedly be one of the major issues of the 1944 election, especially if FDR is nominated.

PROD: The stalemate regarding a sorely needed revenue bill has spotlighted the seniority schedule by which men unfit for key positions automatically become chairmen of the most influential committees in Congress. In this instance the central figure happens to be Representative Bob Doughton of the Tar Heel state, but his case is typical of many others.

"Muley" Doughton, as his friends call him, comes from a town of only a few hundred people, Laurel Springs, North Carolina. It is estimated that a tenth of the constituents in his entire district, or 30,000 at the most, worked in factories and depend on a payroll for their livelihood. Yet he heads the body which fixes—or tries to—the terms under which millions of people must part with their incomes.

He can afford to defy the White House, the Treasury and the majority of his colleagues because his folks are just not sufficiently interested to make him get a move on. Most of the other Democratic members of Ways and Means also hail from small communities which pay scant attention to the problems this group is supposed to solve.

The identity of the chairmen of both the House and Senate Labor committees explains why legislation designed to correct abuses in their field has been smothered. Representative Mary Norton of the lower chamber unit is the political creation of Jersey City's Mayor Frank Hague, who, although he has never shone as a liberal, needs the votes of workingmen. On the other side, ex-Professor Elbert D .Thomas of Salt Lake City sits on the lid because his agricultural constituents do not prod him into action.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Loman

DOCTORS say that it is high time the unvarnished truth was told about one of the most appalling aspects of the war—the influx of nervous cases taxing the capacities of our Army-Navy hospitals. The ratio of such disorders already is higher than in 1917-18. Conservative physicians foresee a final total surpassing every statistic of this sort in our military history. New York's greatest psychiatrists and neurologists are being withdrawn from normal practice to help cope with the matter.

Several new conditions, original with this struggle, aggravate the situation. The human system is spbjected to a shattering blow by the concussion of modern high explosives; its effects are much worse than the shell shock suffered in the first World war as a result of exposure to barrage.

Tens of thousands of sailors and merchant seamen are frequently under fire. If they must swim from a sinking ship, often a depth bomb or torpedo will inflict "immersion blasts," in which they are unscratched but suffer from prolonged jitters. Hours in the water or days adrift in boats produce a "torpedo neurosis." Men who were cast away for months and others who were submarined two or three times are now in secluded rest homes in New Jersey and Maryland regaining their poise.

Living in constant dread of the power of mechanized land warfare also produces psychoses. Existence in the humid tropics—tough on white men even in peacetime—is a strain on all soldiers. Intensified training to fit green troops to master the intricacies of machinery in battle also bears down heavily on many. Youths from cities cannot stand up to it as well as those from rural districts. Farm folk are more used to complicated equipment, bad weather and grueling toil.

Army MD's forecast that the new selective service regulations, deferring young men from agricultural communities, will draw an unequal proportion of urban draftees, the class most susceptible to neurotic tendencies at the front.

HEROES: Secret nightmare of the U.S. Medical Corps is the spread of nervous ailments among Waacs and Waves. Initial enrollment was from picked volunteers of high physical standards, but as extra girls are added the degree of stamina lessens. One of America's most famous public health authorities, who has been studying the problem, warns that neuroses will strike many more victims as older women enlist and others are assigned to overseas duty.

Here And There In Texas

By GORDON SHEARER
United Press Correspondent

AUSTIN, April 21 (U.P.) — Texas legislators have been deservedly congratulated by Texas business organizations on a prospective reduction of between $14,000,000 and $15,000,000 in major appropriation bills of the 48th legislature. Accurate comparative figures will not be available until differences between house and senate appropriations are ironed out in conferences, and agreements reached.

The indication that the total of the four bills will be around $60,000,000 in comparison with $75,000,000 in corresponding appropriations of the previous session does not mean, at all, that the governmental expense will be limited to that amount for the two years for which the appropriations are made.

School Appropriations Heavy

These appropriations for courts, colleges, institutions and departments came to be known as the major appropriations in earlier days. The four are still the appropriations for which advisory budgets are submitted by the governor and the state board of control. Nowadays there is another major appropriation bill that in recent years has grown to more than at least two of the four. It is an appropriation to equalize school opportunities by aid to rural schools. This has recently grown to more than $8,000,000 a year, and a bill prepared for this session carries around $9,000,000. It includes more salary for teachers, who are said to be giving up the profession for better-paying industrial jobs.

ALL THESE appropriations are a small part of the total state government expenses. Total governmental (state) expenditures for the last firscal year which ended Aug. 31, 1942, were $205,741,882.

The four major appropriations for the same year totaled $39,993,879. Principal reason for this big difference is that the departmental appropriation, for instance, carries only the appropriation for administrative expenses. It gives the cost of direction of the public welfare program and not the amounts distributed. The same is true of other departments and agencies like the highway department, teachers retirement system and others.

South Texans Optimistic

The appropriated money also omits another big item of governmental expense. The state adds to what the local school districts provide for operation of public schools. With more than 1,500,000 on the scholastic rolls it is a sizable sum.

However, these same additional costs of government have been going on in the past as they will in the future, and the South Texas Chamber of Commerce said in a recent bulletin to members:

"We feel that we can predict a biennium reduction in the state's overall budget of approximately $15,000,000 and we think the legislature should be commended for its diligence in seeking to cut appropriations wherever possible. The appropriation bills, as they now stand, indicate sizable economies in state government for the next two years."

EFFORTS of Jesse A. Ziegler, Houston historian, to have a ship named in honor of an heroic Texas woman have brought success.

The maritime commission has just announced that a ship now under construction at Houston will be christened Jane Long.

Jane Long was the wife of Dr. James Long, who led two expeditions to Texas before Stephen F. Austin came. She was the first Anglo-American woman to set foot on Texas soil. Her daughter, born at Bolivar Point, was the first Anglo-American child born in Texas.

Mrs. Long held the fort at Bolivar Point for two years while her husband led his forces around Goliad and San Antonio. He met with success and then failure, was taken prisoner to Mexico, later shot.

Dr. Long was responsible for James Bowie coming to Texas. Ben Milam was Dr. Long's close friend, Mr. Ziegler related in a letter notifying his daughter, Mrs. L. H. Wand of the state department of agriculture, of the plans to honor Mrs. Long.

Back On Job

Sen. Pat Bullock of Snyder returned to session of the legislature this week after an absence of three weeks spent in an Austin hospital. Bullock came back on crutches and so weak that he had to vote by finger signals. The finger signals by long custom in the Texas legislature are one finger for aye and two for no.

Bullock's return proved a boon to Senate work for with five absentees in the armed services, difficulty has been experienced in keeping a qorum and getting enough votes to suspend rules to speed the session work.

If You Lose Your Rationing Coupons—
Board Outlines Procedure In Getting Duplicate Book

Persons who lose their ration books henceforth will be required to advertise their loss three times in the press, before they can obtain new books.

This requirement was announced Wednesday following a conference of Lubbock county rationing board officials, and applies to gasoline and sugar-coffee rationing books and to other rationing books which may be issued in the future.

They explained the procedure as follows: When a book is lost, the first thing the owner should do is to insert a newspaper advertisement. After the ad has run three times, the newspaper supplies the owner with an affidavit attesting to proof of publication. He should take this with a clipping of the ad to the rationing board office, 1215 Texas Avenue, where he must make application and a sworn statement that the book has been lost.

Officials emphasized that it will be needless to go first to the rationing board, that the initial act should be the insertion of the newspaper advertisement.

The plan is designed, they said, to aid the holder in locating his book and to protect him from use of the book by some unauthorized person.

INSERT A "3 DAY AD" IN THE LOST & FOUND COLUMN

A Small INEXPENSIVE "10 Word Ad" in the Lost and Found Column of the Avalanche-Journal, published for three days, will comply with the ruling now in force. Here is all it will cost to place such an ad in the Avalanche-Journal—

10 WORD AD PUBLISHED FOR— 3 Days WILL COST YOU ONLY— 80¢

IF Within THREE DAYS your RATION BOOK is not returned, the Avalanche-Journal will furnish you with an "Affidavit of Publication" This signed and notorized statement contains a copy of the ad, and certifies that you have complied with the Rationing Board's advertising regulation. U. S. To Rule Skies In Tunisian Finale

EDITOR'S NOTE: Three veteran United Press war correspondents, Edward W. Beattie, Ned Russell and C. R. Cunningham, met by chance last Sunday at a town close to the front line in Tunisia. While chatting on the balcony of a little French hotel, they exchanged ideas for the following dispatch explaining how and why the Allies are going to win the battle of the "coffin corner" in northeastern Tunisia.)

By EDWARD W. BEATTIE
United Press Staff Writer

SOMEWHERE ALONG THE TUNISIAN FRONT, April 18. (Delayed)—The last battle of Tunisia—the drive that will run the Axis from Tunis and Bizerte into the sea—will be predominantly a British show on land, with Americans ruling the skies and supporting the infantry with their deadly accurate artillery.

The British outnumber the Americans on the front line and have a decided edge in experience. But all the Allied units—the British First and Eighth armies, the American Second corps and the valiant French forces—will fight shoulder to shoulder, each doing its part in the big offensive. Most important of all, they are now in a position to win that offensive.

Massed Around Perimeter

The armies are massed in strength around a perimeter made up of a small semi-circle of mountains from which they are going to chase the Germans and Italians out of north Africa as the first step toward meeting the Axis on its own ground somewhere along the northern edge of the Mediterranean basin.

Three of us, United Press correspondents who have been with the Allied forces on the swiftly changing Tunisian fronts, got together today to compare notes on the action we have seen and to sum up our ideas about the hard battle that lies just ahead.

The other are Ned Russell, who covered much of the Battle of Britain, landed with the first American troops in north Africa, spent three months on the northern front and the last two with the victorious British Eighth army, and Chris Cunningham, who sailed to Britain with the first American troops, came to north Africa and joined American and British forces that ran Marshal Erwin Rommel out of southern Tunisia.

First Army "Into Own"

These are our honest opinions of the men and armies that have been through from five to 25 months of hard and often discouraging campaigning and now are ready for their last big test on this continent.

The British First army that has been trading punches with the enemy in northern Tunisia since the war opened in this theater is just coming into its own. It is the army that made a bold dash for Tunis at the start of the campaign with its "blade force" of just over half a division and an odd mixture of weapons.

The force failed to take Tunis by a margin of from 48 to 72 hours, then went into a purely defensive period while building strength. With capture of the Moslem holy city of Kairouan, the First army played its first major offensive role.

Must Learn Warfare

Men of the First army have sworn to be the first Allied troops to march into Tunis, which lies almost on the site of ancient Carthage.

The British Eighth army has been described as the world's greatest fighting force today. It is a proud collection of British, Australians, New Zealanders and Indians and has learned every trick of fighting along 2,000 miles of desert.

Now it will have to learn a few new tricks of warfare. It stands on Enfidaville plain facing mountains which cannot be outflanked—its favorite method of gaining an objective. With exception of El Alamein and the Gabes gap, the Eighth army never has faced an obstacle it could not sweep around and those positions were such that a reasonably small bridgehead could be driven into the line by hard-hitting frontal assaults to make way for armor.

Now Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's men must learn a new style of fighting—close quarter slugging for each strong point in a mountain defensive network where the loss of any single position does not call for a general retreat. It will be their toughest test.

American artillery undoubtedly will be one of the biggest factors in the final assault, just as American planes will continue to play an important part by softening up the Axis at its vitals—transport and supply.

There are two reasons for American artillery superiority. The first is the overwhelming number of big guns and the second is the unexcelled brand of gunnery which has amazed the Germans. Prisoners have testified to its deadly effect.

FDR Relinquished None Of Power In Trip, Lawyers Say

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—Constitutional lawyers of the department of justice are of the opinion President Roosevelt relinquished none of his power of office when he crossed into Mexico yesterday.

The question was asked whether, with Mr. Roosevelt and Vice President Wallace both out of the country, the United States had an acting president for the first time in history.

In replying in the negative, the constitutional lawyers cited article II, section 6 of the Constitution which provides for temporary succession only in the case of removal, death, resignation or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the office.

LENGTHY RETREAT—German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel has passed up practically every general in history with the speed and distance of his 1700-mile, 175-day retreat from El Alamein to Tunis. Napoleon's famous retreat from Moscow—which also began on Oct.24 (1812)—lasted 78 days, covered only 600 miles. Germans in World War I fell back only 100 miles in France, while the three-month Nazi retreat from Stalingrad was 300 miles. But back in 401 B. C. we have a band of 10,000 Greeks to top Rommel with their 215-day retreat of 3465 miles from Babylon to Greece.

Government-Financed Advertising 'Smacks Of Subsidy, ANPA President Declares

NEW YORK, April 21. (AP)—Walter M. Dear, president of the American Newspaper Publishers association and co-publisher of the JerseyCity (NJ) Jersey Journal, declared today the ANPA believes government-financed advertising "smacks of subsidy" and would be "disastrous" to newspapers.

In his annual address prepared for delivery before the convention, Dear said:

"Some newspaper groups have publicly acclaimed approval of the idea and through over-enthusiasm or because of economic pressure have expressed advocacy on the ground that such expenditure, particularly in the case of the small newspapers, would serve as a stop-gap for the economic depression which endangers the continuation of such publications.

"While we have the deepest sympathy for any of our fellow publishers who may find the going difficult, and realize the value and importance of the weekly press, we cannot subscribe to the wisdom of accepting a subsidy. Such a program would prove disastrous.

"Under such circumstances, no longer could the American newspaper maintain its claim of a free and independent press."

Referring to a bill to be introduced in Congress which would authorize the appropriation of $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 for advertising of Treasury bonds sales, the appropriation to be divided equally between daily and weekly newspapers, Dear said:

"This provision smacks of subsidy."

Must Be Safeguarded

The ANPA, he said, admits that the basic principle of advertising "is just as applicable and will be equally as effective" for the government as for private enterprise, but added:

"Government advestising must be safeguarded from political influence and directed by independent advertising experts."

Dear declared there may be a demand for a further cut in newsprint, adding, "I warn you that it will be followed shortly by a demand for a further increase in price. Neither will be quiescently accepted in the absence of impressive factual data."

Government Principal Offender

"With government on one hand imposing restrictive measures in the use of paper," he said, "because of scarcity and prior demands of war necessities, and with our acquiescence in increased price, it strains the limits of patience to note that the government itself is the principal offender in wasteful practices in the use of paper."

He referred to the department of justice suit against the Associated Press, saying," We wish to emphasize that your officers were duly appreciative of the implications involved in the suit and the danger to the principles for which this association has always stood.

"We tendered our services to the Associated Press in opposition to what we felt was a direct attack upon the integrity of a free press and an adroit attempt to regiment under government control all sources of news.'

April Rains Benefit State Vegetable Crops

AUSTIN, April 21 (AP)—North and East Texas onion and tomato plantings were benefitted during the first half of April by good rains, the USDA bureau of agricultural economics reported today.

Texas was not materially affected by an unseasonable cold spell that swept commercial truck-growing areas from Virginia westward to Arkansas, covering most of the southeastern states. Temperatures in Texas were subnormal, but not to a damaging extent.

Progress in Texas during the first half of the month was generally satisfactory in most commercial vegetable districts, the department indicated. Late season potato plantings were benefitted by the moisture, and good progress was made in planting all spring vegetable crops.

U.S. Principles Face Real Test

Texas Technological college students were told that, "We are now engaged in a conflict in which those principles for which we fought in the American and Texas revolutions are being put to a severe test," Wednesday at a first annual San Jacinto day convocation in the gymnasium.

H. C. Pender, acting head of the government department, was the speaker.

The convocation was held on the 107th anniversary of the Battle of San Jacinto, the final battle in the winning of Texas independence from Mexico.

The Battle of San Jacinto, Pender said, was important because of the fact that it was one of the world's most decisive battles, because it was important in the territorial expansion of the United States and ended Latin American dominance in the Western hemisphere.

Texas, U. S. Compared

In a comparison of the Texas declaration of independence with that of the United States, Pender pointed out that both were based on the rights of man. The Americans expressed these rights as being life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, while the Texans expressed them as life, liberty and property.

Both the United States constitution and the constitution of the Republic of Texas were based primarily on the doctrine of popular sovereignty and the principle of constitutional government, and the principle of self government as a fundamental political right.

Both Called For Freedom

Both constitutions called for freedom of religion and for a public system of education.

Rev. H. G. Gantz, pastor of the First Christian church, gave the invocation, which was followed by the singing of the national anthem. Loyd Jenkins, member of the Tech Matador band, played the bugle call, "Muerte Pequeno," which the Mexicans played on charging into battle.

President Clifford B. Jones introduced the speaker.

SOME BOOTS RELEASED

WASHINGTON, April 21. (AP)—Light colored hip boots, used mostly for hunting and fishing, will be released from rationing April 21. OPA said today these boots, no longer manufactured, are unsuitable for any essential purpose.

Army Training Plans Revised

WASHINGTON, April 21. (AP)—Slight revisions in the requirements for enlisted men selected for college training have been announced by the War department, along with the location of reception and preliminary training centers for the men at 18 colleges and universities.

Changes in the requirements were: a grade of 115 instead of 110 in the general classification tests; a new requirement of evidence that the best interests of the Army would be served by further training; acceptance of equivalent education instead of the former mandatory requirement of graduation from an accredited high school for men under 22; addition of one year of college work including mathematics to the previous high school education required of those over 22.

A. & M. Is Designated

The 18 reception units will be known as specialized training and reassignment or star units. They will receive, classify, and house selected men, and will give them military, physical and "refresher" academic training while they are awaiting assignment to the specialized training units which have now been set up at 12 schools.

Among locations of the star units established so far is Agricultural and Mechanical college of Texas, College Station.
