BORGER DANCE HALL MAN SLAIN

HIGH FLOODS IN ARKANSAS PUT 1500 PERSONS TO ROUT; RIVERS CONTINUE TO BREAK OVER DAMS

One Body Recovered While Army Tents Are Used To Shelter Victims

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 1. (AP)—A vast area in Woodruff county, northeast of here, was submerged tonight while relief organizations provided food and shelter for 1500 persons who fled their homes before the waters poured through breaks in the White river.

While more than 100,000 acres have been swept by the muddy tide and livestock and remnants of ungathered crops have suffered damage, reports of losses of lives in the White river lowlands have been unconfirmed or denied.

One Body Recovered

The body of Harold Summers, 22, who was drowned near Blytheville, Sunday night, when a row boat capsized, was recovered last night. Blytheville is experiencing high water from local streams and lakes.

A refugee and relief headquarters has been established at Cotton Plant in Woodruff county. Shacks and Arkansas national guard tents tonight were sheltering hundreds who could not be housed in already crowded homes and business structures. Women of Cotton Plant, joining their efforts to those of the guardsmen and Red Cross representatives, were making clothing for the homeless persons. Many left in such haste that all personal property was abandoned.

Highways Submerged

Highways in the flooded area were under two to four feet of water and homes along the principal routes as well as in the interior were flooded.

The White river torrent continued to sweep through wide gaps in the levees between Cotton Plant and Dixie. The Cache river overflow was adding to the volume of the flood.

Additional tents were sent today to Des Arc by the national guard headquarters.

Congestion of refugees there is described as acute. The town is without adequate housing facilities. Food and clothing were in demand by homeless families there.

Rescue parties in boats have brought to the various concentration relief camps scores of men, women and children who were taken from house tops, trees and other high retreats, where the waters had marooned them.

FARMERS LEAD

More Ruralists Visit Yellowstone Than Any Other

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. (AP)—Of all who sought the "wide open" spaces of Yellowstone National park last year in automobiles the farmer gets the prize.

Automobile tourists were asked to state their vocations upon entering the park and figures made public by the interior department show that of 44,472 cars carrying 141,643 passengers, 6560 drivers were engaged in agricultural pursuits. Salesmen with 2468 representatives ranked second and the various professions with 2062, third.

PEONAGE CASE UP IN COURT

Officers On Trial For Holding Youths

CORPUS CHRISTI, Feb. 1. (AP)

The government fired one of its big guns here this afternoon in the case against 11 Willacy county officers, former officers and farmers accused of practicing peonage, when J. P. Cogdell, Raymondville attorney, was placed on the stand.

Cogdell testified that he had made an effort to see five boys, and especially Allen Nichols, the nephew of a Houston attorney, who had been arrested and placed in the Willacy county jail at Raymondville on charges of vagrancy. He said he appealed to Raymond Teller, sheriff, one of the defendants in the peonage case.

"No, you can't see them," he quoted Teller as saying.

"Are the boys in jail?" he testified he asked.

"You'll have to find out," Teller, he said, replied.

The witness said that later he went to the home of Justice of the Peace Floyd Dobb, another defendant, and asked to see the docket. After some argument two dockets were produced. One of these, according to the witness, had 329 cases listed, most of them with vagrancy charges.

Final passage will be voted on in a few days.

Four More Hassell Victims Found

Bones Are Dug Up In California

Mother and 3 Babes Lates Victims In Growing List of Slayer

WHITTIER, Cal., Feb. 1. (AP) The confession of George J. Hassell, convicted Texas slayer, in which he admitted the murder 10 years ago of a family of four was confirmed today by the finding of human bones buried in the cellar of a house which he formerly occupied.

Hassell is now awaiting execution in Texas as the result of the slaying of his wife and eight stepchildren.

Lost in 1917

The Whittier victims are believed by police to be Mrs. Marie Vogel, formerly of Pittsburgh, Pa., and her three adopted children, who disappeared from here under mysterious circumstances in 1917.

The bones of four persons were unearthed late today while police were digging beneath the house in which Hassell at one time lived, under the name of "G. Baker."

Choked Woman

In his confession, Hassell declared he had choked and clubbed to death a woman with whom he was living here and then killed the sleeping children following an argument over whether he should go into the army. This happened shortly after the United States entered the war. After committing the murders, Hassell buried his victims beneath the house.

Matrimonial Garbage Can Is Covered Up After More Fumes Arise

BROWNING ON STAND

Denies With Vehemence All Charges Made By His Buxom Wife

By DAMON RUNYON
Universal Service Staff

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 1. Well, folks, it was pretty sticky up here in White Plains today in the way of testimony as old Daddy Browning sat on the witness stand and prattled his tale of woe against the weighty young Peaches. They finally put the cover back on their matrimonial garbage can for a couple of weeks. Both sides rested after Daddy had denied all, and after Peaches had also denied all once more and Supreme Court Justice Seegor gave the attorneys two weeks in which to submit briefs in place of oral arguments.

Poor Mr. Henry Epstein, the bashful barrister who is representing Peaches, was quite overcome during his cross-examination of Daddy, probably by the fumes of Daddy's testimony. Mr. Epstein sat down very suddenly during the afternoon session while Daddy was fumbling with answers to questions. Mr. Epstein's face was quite white and his hands shook.

Wanted Some Air

"Can't we have a little air, your honor?" he asked, plaintively and everybody brightened up. All felt the need of a little air after listening to Daddy.

At the conclusion of the hearing Judge Seegar remarked that if he ever had another case like this he would hear it in private.

But it was a big day for old Daddy Browning as he sat up there on the witness stand with the wife

HERRING CASE DUE FOR DELAY

State's Main Witness Still In Parts Unknown

A continuance will be asked by the state this morning when the case of John L. Herring, charged with a statutory offense, is called for trial in the 89th district court, it was announced last night by Assistant District Attorney E. P. Pruechte after Sheriff W. G. Bradley said no further clues had been found to the whereabouts of the 16-year-old prosecutrix in the case. The girl disappeared from her school room last Thursday.

It was thought Monday that she had been located at LaFayette, La., but telegraphic inquiries sent there have brought no response. There is a bare possibility, of course, that she will be in court this morning, but that is extremely unlikely.

A special venire of 100 men, summoned for the case, will be dismissed if a continuance is granted. The state will contend that the presence of the girl is material to its case.

Meanwhile, W. W. Rayburn, father-in-law of Herring, is being held on a charge of kidnaping.

Murder and Robbery Charges Filed On Two for Ft. Worth Death Case

By Universal Service.

FORT WORTH, Feb. 1.—Charges of murder and robbery with firearms were filed tonight against Roy Wilson and Cecil Chambers, said to be from Kansas City, for the slaying of Roscoe Wilson, 23-year-old treasurer of the Majestic theater, in a spectacular daylight holdup here Monday.

The two youths, neither of whom are more than 24, were arrested late Monday night in Sulphur, Okla., by Sheriff Bird Williams who had received a description of the bandits over a radio in his office. Eye witnesses of the holdup accompanied Sheriff Carl Smith and District Attorney Jesse Martin to Sulphur today and identified the youths as the bandits who opened fire on Wilson as he left the theater with the weekend receipts of about $5000 in a small bag.

Although Sheriff Bird discovered a suitcase in Chambers' car containing approximately $2000 in small bills and change, the youths deny they shot and killed the theater treasurer. They did admit, however, that they were in Fort Worth Monday.

In a telephone conversation tonight Sheriff Smith said he would not return Wilson and Chambers to Fort Worth until enraged citizens had forgotten their plans for a "necktie party."

The grand jury will be convened tomorrow and should indictments be returned, a speedy trial will follow, the district attorney's office said.

CAL IS CAUTIOUS

President Wants Improvements, But Wants 'Em Slowly.
By JOHN T. LAMBERT.
Universal Service Staff

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—President Coolidge intends to build up the navy, to establish a vast air force for defense and to develop the natural resources on a scale never before undertaken in this country.

But he wants to do it in a patient, orderly way. He wants it to be done by progressive annual steps, taking up a single great improvement or two at a time.

He is determined to prevent Congress from running him off his feet with a rush of expensive undertakings which would test the capacity of the treasury and prevent further relief from high taxes.

President Coolidge's attitude was made known at the White House today in response to anxious questioners who feared that his budget speech Saturday night raised an absolute ban against immediate upbuilding of the navy.

He wants the navy to be rounded out to an adequate fighting force by the addition of fifteen modern, fast cruisers, it was said. As five of them are being built now, it would be unwise from a financial viewpoint to undertake additional construction until the airplane carriers Saratoga and Lexington are completed, is his view.

SENATE VOTES SALARY RAISE

Higher Judiciary Workers In State To Profit

AUSTIN, Feb. 1. (AP)—Salary raises for members of the higher judiciary system of the state Tuesday afternoon were voted by the senate in an acrimonious session.

The bill by Bledsoe of Lubbock provides supreme court justices shall receive $10,000 per year; judges on the court of criminal appeals, $10,000; civil appeals judges, $7500, and district judges $5500.

Supporting the measure, Wirtz of Seguin declared he is "tired of the senators passing the buck on everything to get their ears to the ground to find out what the people want. They send us here to represent them and it is passing the buck to refuse to pass on these questions of salary raises.

THE MAN NOBODY KNOWS

Rev. Matthew P. Smith, First Presbyterian church, Indianapolis, Indiana:

"In his book, 'The Man Nobody Knows,' Mr. Barton has boldly brushed aside many of the conventional views we have held of the man, Jesus. He presents us a picture of the humanity of the master that challenges interest and stimulates the imagination. The book ought to make a strong appeal to modern readers because of the freshness and vigor of its treatment of an old but ever new subject."

SHOT DOWN BY CAFE COOK IN CROWDED ROOM

16-Year-Old Girl Wife, Wounded, Blames It On Estrangement

SPURNED HUSBAND

Says She Refused To Go Back To Mate; He Then Uses Gun

BORGER, Texas, Feb. 1. (AP)—S. E. Stevens, floor manager of a dance hall here, was shot to death and Elma Davis, 16-year-old dance hall employee, was seriously wounded when Fred Davis, cook in a local cafe, walked into the crowded dance hall early tonight, fired four shots into the body of Stevens and then turned the gun on his estranged wife.

Stevens fell fatally wounded without uttering a word. Mrs. Davis was rushed to a hospital where her injuries are reported not to be serious.

Davis immediately surrendered to the police.

Mrs. Davis blamed the shooting as a result of the estrangement between her husband and herself.

Special to The Record News.

BORGER, Feb. 1.—"I was dancing with Mr. Stevens tonight when my husband came in and began abusing me. He asked if I meant what I said about not coming back to him. I told him I was busy and would see him later and went on with the dance. The next thing I heard was the shots and something hit me and I fell."

Such was the version tonight of Elma Davis, estranged wife of Fred Davis who is being held without bond on a murder charge following the death of S. E. Stevens, floor manager of a local dance hall. Stevens was shot and the Davis girl, who is aged 16, wounded.

On a hospital cot where she is recovering, Mrs. Davis said that last Saturday she and her husband, a cook in a local cafe, separated. She said Stevens came to see her about working at the dance hall and that Monday her husband called on her and asked her if she was coming back to him.

"I told him I was through and that was all there was to it," she declared. "I didn't hear anything more from him until tonight."

Physicians said the woman's injuries would not prove serious. She was shot through the shoulder.

WOMAN HURT NEAR ELECTRA

Mrs. J. A. James Injured As 3 Autos Collide

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Feb. 1.—Mrs. J. A. James, 20, received painful and possibly serious injuries this afternoon about 3:30 o'clock in an accident on the pavement, three miles west of here, which involved three automobiles.

Mrs. James had stopped to repair a punctured tire and a Mr. Moore parked his car immediately behind hers to assist in repairing the tire. While they were working with the front wheel a third car struck Moore's car, knocking it into the James machine which ran over Mrs. James.

The car which caused the wreck backed up and drove ahead, according to Moore, who brought Mrs. James to town.

An X-ray examination is to be made to determine the extent of Mrs. James injuries.

Man Facing Life Term Marries His Girl.

DALLAS, Feb. 1(AP)—With the shadow of a life in prison creeping toward him, Hugh Griffin, 25, was married in jail here Tuesday to Miss Jacquelin Gleson, 23, of Big Sandy, Texas.

He was convicted a few days ago of robbing a drug store and sentenced to 99 years imprisonment. A penitentiary agent is on the way to Dallas to take him to Huntsville.

In the little chapel of the jail they were united by a justice of peace, promising "love, honor, keep and comfort in sickness and in health, forsaking all others, as long as each shall live."

Hugh slipped an orangeblossom ring on Jacquelyn's finger, and then she cried, and Hugh's mother, who was present, also cried.

Both the prisoner and the bride expressed a hope for a pardon.

Aged War Veteran Regains Memory After Wandering Years In Darkness

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 1. (AP) A story of how a civil war veteran lost his memory in battle and suddenly regained it more than sixty years later, was told here today to the government pension claims department of the state adjutant general's office.

As a result Leopold Newsalts, 84, formerly of Dayton, Ohio, but now living in Owatonna, Minn., is placing a claim for pension dating back to his discharge from the union army for disability.

The story goes back to the early days of the Civil War when Newsalts served in E company of the 14th United States Infantry.

Memory Broken.

As near as has been established it was during the battle of the Palms that a shell exploded near him and a piece was imbedded in the left side of his head.

With the sight of one eye destroyed, his memory gone and his identity forgotten, Newsalts was discharged from the army and became a builder, living unaware that he had served in the war and even forgetting the existence of Dayton, his boyhood home.

Eleven months ago, shortly after he had a piece of shell removed from his head, he heard a man on a train mention "Dayton, Ohio." Almost in a flash he says he recalled the days preceding his disability.

Writes to Dayton.

He wrote Dayton and learned that a brother, Jacob, had moved to Owatonna many years before. He wrote to Owatonna and learned from his sister-in-law, whom he had never met, that Jacob had died about 13 years ago.

He proved his identity to her satisfaction by the family record contained in an old Bible.

Now Newsalts is living with his niece, Mrs. A. S. Bassart, at Owatonna. Mrs. Bassart, a daughter of Jacob Newsalts, has obtained her uncle's war service record from old army files. His claim for back pensions, amounting to thousands of dollars, will be entered as soon as the proper records are assembled.

CAL SUPPORTED

Demo Members Protest Action Backing Coolidge

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. (AP)—Over the protest of its Democratic members, the house foreign affairs committee today reported the Fairchild resolution proposing that the house endorse President Coolidge's Nicaraguan-Mexican policy. The vote was 10 to 5.

Representative Connally, Democrat, Texas, voted with the Republicans for the announced purpose of moving to reconsider the action. This he did after nearly an hour's heated debate, only to lose, eight to six, on a strictly party vote.

ONE WAY TO SAVE

LONDON, Feb. 1. (AP)—How a state can meet the cost of entertaining a royal guest is shown by the South African government. Statistics quoted by the Daily Mail's Capetown correspondent show that South Africa spent 25,000 pounds sterling (about $125,000) in connection with the visit of the Prince of Wales in 1925, but saved 41,000 pounds by releasing 15,000 prisoners in honor of the occasion.

FIRE LOSS SMALL

Only $26,400 Damage to Property Worth $561,000.

With 37 runs made by the fire department, and a total valuation of the property endangered of approximately $561,000, actual loss by fire in Wichita Falls during January amounted to $26,400, according to the monthly report of Fire Chief McClure. Last month the loss by fire amounted to $16,000.

He is charged with theft and perjury. Sheriff Vaughn of Sherman arrested the negro Monday.

10 MILLION CARATS

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. — This country leads the world in possession of diamonds. A survey by jewelers indicates there are 10,000,000 carats valued at $4,000,000,000 here. And a Wall street compilation is that a total of $20,000,000,000 in securities is held by American banks and insurance companies.

SUIT THREATENED

City May Face Action From Denton Officials.

DENTON, Feb. 1.(AP)—The city of Dallas may face suit to compel contractors at the Lake Dallas dam in this county to keep roads north of the dam passable. The lake is being built to supply water for Dallas.

The commissioners court Tuesday instructed County Attorney Elbert Hooper to take any action necessary. Impounded water in the lake is said to be overflowing the roads. For several days the Denton-McKinney highway has been impassible, despite promises of Dallas officials that the road would be cleared, according to the commissioners.

PEACHES AND DADDY END IT

Taking of Testimony Closes In Separation Suit

of his bosom eying him now disdainfully, and now rather wistfully, but always eying him. Daddy's maw-in-law, also eyed him, using two eyes for the purpose.

Daddy had a reddish-purplish complexion peculiar to golfers, or Scotch inhalers, though he took occasion to deny vehemently that he ever drank to any extent in the 52 years of his life. He said 52.

He kept his hands folded in his lap, twiddling the fingers from time to time as he pondered some question. When he talked he talked so rapidly that the words fairly tumbled over each other. Once or twice under cross-examination he got quite excited and yelled his answers.

Looked At Photo

One occasion was when Mr. Epstein, in a most abashed manner, handed him a photograph and asked him if it was one that he had taken home to Peaches, and said to be a photograph of Marion Dockerill. Daddy recoiled as the bailiff poked the picture at him, and bawled:

"No, that's a filthy picture. I'd be ashamed to show it if I were you."

"But you weren't ashamed to show it to your wife?" queried Mr. Epstein.

"Yes, I was—maybe you showed it to her," roared Daddy, his head jumping forward from his collar like a man "shooting" his cuffs. "That's a filthy picture. I understand you stole it out of some place to frame me with."

This statement was ordered stricken out by the court. Daddy fingered the picture very gingerly, but he refused to identify it as it is a likeness of Marion Dockerill.

As I gathered, Miss Dockerill is an exponent of some mysterious art of science known as numerology. Daddy said she gave both him and Peaches "readings," but Peaches didn't care for her's. Then Mr. Epstein handed him what purported to be a picture of Miss Dockerill taken from a newspaper and asked Daddy to compare this with the one he shrank from any say if they were of the same person.

Daddy handled the pictures as if he feared they might bite him, and finally remarked, somewhat cryptically: "Well, in one she seems to have a hat on."

Daddy hemmed and hawed no little with Peaches' attorney. On direct examination at the hands of his own attorney, John E. Mack, Daddy answered with surprising swiftness.

Another Yell.

It was when Mr. Epstein asked Daddy about Peaches' charges concerning his relations with Dorothy "Sunshine" Browning, his 10-year-old adopted daughter, that Daddy let out another yell. "I think more of that child than I do my life," he shouted.

They called him to the stand at 11:25 this morning, and Daddy for some reason did not move with alacrity. He got up from his chair very slowly, whispered a moment to Attorney Mack, then ambled to the witness chair. Peaches and Mrs. Heenan watched him very closely and Peaches' face broke into a wide smile when Daddy testified that she had walked up to him when he was talking with some other girls at a dance at the McAlpin, was introduced to him, and asked him to dance with her.

That mysterious burning of Peaches by acid came into Daddy's discourse, but he could throw no light on it. He said the Heenans had little to eat and their rent and radio installments were unpaid and that he took care of all those little matters, besides giving Peaches $300 for clothes to enter the Spence, Central, or Scutter schools, all quite fashionable institutions.

Instead, he said, she had gone to Earl Carroll's theater and got a job, not as a bath-tub exhibit, but as an extra girl. This disappointed him no end, Daddy said.

"Did you call at the Heenan's home until the Pizzaro incident?" asked Mr. Mack.

Then They Were Married.

Mr. Epstein objected to that question forthwith. There has been nothing said about Mr. Pizzaro. Who was Mr. Pizarro? Who was Mr. Pizarro, anyway? Well, it came out that Mr. Pizarro has been hanging around the Heenan's muttering about getting evidence to put Peaches in an institution.

So Daddy figured there was only one way out. Peaches would make him a good wife. So they were married.

Then Daddy proceeded to a categorical denial of each and every incident of the nuptial night, and thereafter, alleged by Peaches as reflecting upon his character as a gentleman and scholar and causing her mental pain and anguish.

He took her everywhere, he spent his dough on her, he called her up two or three times a day, he never hurled 'phone books at her, never slugged her, never set off an alarm clock in her ear, never said "woof, woof," as Peaches alleges.

"I may have crawled around on my hands and knees when I was a baby, but never since," he said.

Oh, yes, about the gander—the African honking gander that has been going kah-donking through the hearing. It seems that they were at a lawn party one day at the home of some folks named Reeves and they had the gander. Peaches thought it would be just dandy to own the gander.

So, eager to grant her slightest wish, Daddy borrowed the gander and Peaches tied a ribbon around its neck, and down to Long Beach they went to parade the honker along the board walk and have it photographed. He never threatened to kill Peaches and her mother, and never got drunk.

"Did you have any idea that your wife or mother-in-law was going to leave you?" asked Mr. Mack.

"Not my wife," replied Daddy.

"And your mother-in-law?"

"I er-ah-er—I was hoping so," replied Daddy, and Mrs. Heenan laughed loudly.

A lot of those mysterious letters that Daddy has been trying to get into the record were finally produced by Mr. Mack.

Idle of My Dreams

She wrote one poem to him in which she sang:

"I love you,
I love you—
You are the idle of my dreams."

That is the way she spelled it. We can give Peaches only about $9 in spelling.

Mr. Epstein questioned him at great length as to his expenditures for living expenses.

He said he had spent between $10,000 and $12,000 on clothes and one thing and another for Peaches but didn't expect her to go through life as Mrs. Browning at that clip.

"When was the first time you kissed your wifey?" demanded Mr. Epstein.

Daddy puffed both cheeks full of wind, stared at the ceiling and the crowd roared. "Wife, or before she was my wife," he countered, then he admitted that the first time he had committed osculatiop with Peaches was on a trip to Yonkers.

And then the cross-examination went past the precincts of pur literature. In reply to a question if he had ever requested his wife to sit at the dinner table at Cold Springs in his presence quite nude, as Peaches asserted, Daddy said:

"Absolutely not. It was very cold. It would have been foolish to ask her."

As a final witness, Mr. Epstein recalled Dr. George A. Blakeslee, a neurological expert, and asked him a hypothetical question several thousand words long. The purport of the question was, would all the things set forth by Peaches against Daddy including the goose, rubber eggs, sandpapering, and all the rest, cause the nervous disorder of which Peaches is said to be prone. The doctor said he thought it would.

Miss Emma R. Steiner, a picturesque woman with a rakish black hat over her white hair, testified to knowing Daddy for 78 years.

She had a kind word for all.

Miss Margaret MacDonald, who said she is a journalist and publicist, and Mrs. Norma Drupyke, president of the Victory club, New York, where Daddy gave his famous birthday party for Peaches, testified that Daddy always seemed a kind and loving hubby to Peaches. Then came Daddy.

As both sides rested, Epstein moved the dismissal of the first cause of action by Daddy, which is cruelty, but Judge Seeger said while he thought the motion should be granted, would reserve decision until he heard the arguments which the attorneys agreed should be in written form.

ELECTRA GINS 6480 BALES

Experts Believe Another 100 Will Be Handled

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Feb. 1. — The ginning season being near completion, reports state that a total of 6480 bales of cotton have been ginned by the four Electra gins up to January 31, but ginning experts expect about 100 more bales to be brought in before the shutting down for the season.

This is exceptionally good, and compares with the figures of last year which ranged in the six thousand bales.

The cotton ginned by the rural gins, the Mount Carmel and Red river, north of the city, exceeded the number bales ginned by the town ginning companies, the Farmers and Merchants and the Electra Ginning company, this being because of the convenience to them, and good roads leading to both.

Farmers near the Red river and in the North Electra community have already begun sowing oats, and others will sow as soon as the ground is dried sufficiently to hold up teams and drills. Wheat and oats are looking fine and the ground is in fine condition for spring crops.

WORK STARTS ON HI-LINE

Electrical Service For West Texas Is Promised

Special to The Record News.

MUNDAY, Feb. 1.—Representatives of the L. E. Myers company, contractors for the high line to be built for the West Texas Utilities company from Throckmorton to Quanah, arrived in the city last week and have opened offices here. Work was started on Friday of last week from Throckmorton with a crew of 25 men.

The line under construction will be of the H frame type and will carry a voltage of 66,000. The big sub-station that will be constructed here will be exceeded in size only by the sub-station of the company at Putnam and will provide current for this city from four sources.

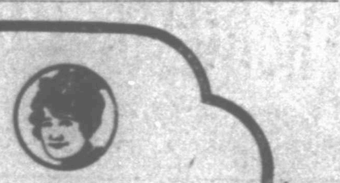

The local offices of the corporation company are in charge of K. Brammer, cashier.

Already 33 cars of materials have been received and unloaded here and Mr. Branner states that the materials that have been received are only sufficient to begin the big contract, which will likely require several months to complete.

Ladies in attendance at this week's cooking school no doubt are marveling at the many ways Mrs. Chitwood is employing Eagle Chile Powder, the beautiful finishing touch she gives to salads with it and the delightful flavor it gives everything on which it is used.

Of course all have used Eagle Chili Powder for making home made Chili con Carne and other Mexican flavored dishes. But to many it is a revelation to find Mrs. Chitwood using this unique condiment in place of paprika, giving not only a more beautiful color and decoration to salads and other dishes, but adding a distinctive and pleasing flavor.

Be sure and get a copy of "Mexican Cookery for American Homes" and make careful notes of what Mrs. Chitwood has to say about Eagle Chili Powder. The combination of this unique cookbook and the splendid recipes of Mrs. Chitwood will enable you to secure unusually pleasing results in cookery.

Eagle Chili Powder is absolutely pure and wholesome. It is made from only selected genuine Ancho peppers that are grown especially for and under the direction of Gebhardt.

Countless shades of natural flavor . . . .

yet every one lacking in something

FOR years they could not agree on any single coffee—those women in all the cities of this country who best understood good living.

From plantations in over twenty tropical lands, countless kinds and grades of coffees were offered them—countless shades of natural flavor. Yet every one lacking in some one thing.

It is no single coffee grown—but a rich mingling of flavors from the South that is the first ever to please the most critical women of the entire United States.

A southerner with an inborn genius for flavor, Joel Cheek, down in old Tennessee, years ago created a blend which is today changing the habits of a nation. Step by step he built it up—that special shade of richness which no one had ever tasted.

Long ago that extra touch of mellow goodness in Maxwell House Coffee made it the first choice of the great families of Dixie.

Today throughout the entire country, it is pleasing more people than any other coffee ever offered for sale. From New York to Los Angeles it has swiftly become by far the most popular of all coffees.

When you pour your first cup of this blend, when you first taste its smooth, full-bodied liquor you will realize why it has become so famous. A new experience awaits you in Maxwell House Coffee.

RECORD CROWD ATTENDS MRS. CHITWOOD'S SECOND LECTURE

New President of Woman's Forum

Mrs. Ben G. Oneal, one of Wichita Falls' most popular matrons and prominent in club work, was elected president of the Woman's Forum at the business meeting held Tuesday afternoon at the Country club. Mrs. Oneal has been active in the forum since it's organization more than a year ago, and was first vice-president of the organization.

ART OF CAKE MAKING TOLD

How To Bake and Decorate Explained By Expert

Artistry that appeals to the eye as well as the taste was applied in Mrs. Ida Chitwood's lecture which included a demonstration on decoration of cakes and the principles in baking and mixing.

To the true culinary expert and cookery love, she explained many useful facts and told several secrets dear to the heart of every genuine cook. Raisin fudge cake, angel food cake and decorations of roses and vines were created in her entertaining study.

Two Kinds

"There are only two kinds of cake—the shortening cake and the sponge cake," Mrs. Chitwood stated.

"Fundamental principles in mixing these varieties do not change though the recipes may vary a great deal. Always use a cutting and folding method of mixing. This incorporates the air into the batter and is responsible for the lightness and fine texture of the finished product."

In her demonstration of raisin fudge cake, this principle was carefully illustrated using Mrs. Tucker's shortening and creaming it thoroughly with the sugar. To this Belle of Wichita flour was added, Calumet Baking powder and spicy ingredients. The result some 40 minutes later was a perfectly baked cake with all the spices and nuts that one could desire in the most appetizing of fruit cakes.

An economical use of egg yolks left over from angel food cake was given with the mixing and making of a filling for the cake with nuts and cocoanut. From a perfectly plain cake Mrs. Chitwood showed that it might be created into one worthy of any exclusive caterer.

How to Decorate

"It is so economical to decorate your cakes yourself and anyone would think they were of an expensive make. I use an icing bag which holds the icing and allows it to ooze into any shape desired—roses, leaves, vines or letterings. I find this inexpensive instrument indispensable in my work and you will agree with me that it is a sure success for your luncheons or dinners that require a delicious and decorative desert."

J. F. Rayzor of the People's Ice company told of the advantages of the refrigerator to the housewife.

"It is merely a cold-storage plant on a small scale. The average refrigerator is built wholly for the purpose of keeping all parts of the box at the lowest possible temperature. Of course, chemical principles make the warm air go to the top and it is not advisable to place vegetables on top of the cake of ice as so many do. The impurities from these are carried off by the drip tap and naturally cause the drippings to be impure. There is a special chamber built directly under the ice compartment that provides for your milk, vegetables and perishable food that at all times should be used.

Music With Work

"There is a common opinion that 50 degrees is the lowest temperature maintained by most refrigerators. Ice cools the air to 40 to 46 degrees. There is absolutely no dampness; salt will not cake in this refrigerator and even matches may be kept there."

Mr. Rayzor indicated the air wheel that revolves continuously showing the constant circulation of pure air.

Mrs. Chitwood opened her lecture with the presentation of an idea that was welcomed by lovers of music.

"Something that is necessary to making one feel the best while working is music," she said. "The Brunswick Panatrope furnished by the Wichita Music company, greatly helps me in my work as I prepare various things in the mornings for use in the afternoon classes. It not only contributes to my spirits but keeps me alert and thinking quickly."

The spacious Palace theater was crowded with Wichita Falls women Tuesday afternoon for the second of the school lessons. It is estimated that more than 500 women, the largest crowd ever to attend a cooking school here, were present for the lectures on cake-making.

Likes New Hotel

Mrs. Chitwood Tuesday selected rooms at the new $400,000 Marchman hotel and will make her home there during the remainder of her stay in Wichita Falls. The noted cooking expert expressed herself as delighted with the Marchman, and complimented Wichita Falls on the completion of this new building. She was especially well pleased with the beautiful interior decorating work, and the air of refinement and charm in all the rooms. The Marchman has been opened since Mrs. Chitwood's last visit here.

300 Members of Forum and Guests Attend Program At Country Club

Members of the Woman's Forum and their guests enjoyed one of the most delightful and entertaining occasions of the entire season when they presented Miss Irene Bewley, dramatic reader in "Sun Up," by Lula Vollmer, at the Country club Tuesday afternoon.

The charming story is one of mountaineer life in Carolina among the illiterate moonshiners, and having been reared in the mountains of Tennessee, the quaint dialect of the people came very natural to this talented reader whose interpretation of the play held her audience spell-bound from the beginning to the last act of the play.

The striking character in the drama is the Widow Cagle, a real backwoods mountain mother, who believes that the world war (in progress at the time of the play) is only a government feud — and she hates the government because "the revenuers killed pap." And then the son of the widow, the next character of importance, enlists in the war.

Miss Bewley's impersonations of the interesting family of moonshiners, were realistic throughout and her second appearance here proved equally as delightful as her visit last year when she gave "Applesauce." She was introduced by Mrs. D. J. Carithers.

During the business session officers for the coming year were announced as follows: Mrs. Ben G. Oneal, president; Mrs. Ola G. Hamlin, first vice-president; Mrs. A. R. Bleakley, second vice-president; Mrs. W. P. Bolding, third vice-president; Mrs. T. M. Conrey, secretary; Mrs. Hubert Harrison, corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. P. Burton, treasurer; Mrs. G. L. Shapard, auditor; Mrs. Claude Woods, parliamentarian; Mrs. P. P. Langford, re-elected club house chairman; Mrs. G. D. Anderson, officiated club chairman; Mrs. Fred Barron, extension chairman.

There were about 300 women present.

Mrs. Claypool Talks To Missionary Society

"Society has much to do in the forming of character, while the foundation of religious training of the child is unquestionably in the home," Mrs. R. J. Claypool, Bible study superintendent, told members of the Floral Heights Missionary society in a talk given Monday afternoon.

Following her talk, topics from the text book, "The Life of Jesus," were given, when Mrs. H. W. Barton talked on "A Prophet Is Not Without Honor;" Mrs. M. Roper talked on "Putting God First;" Mrs. A. F. Leach discussed "Christ the Conqueror;" Mrs. W. B. Chauncey told the story of the death of John the Baptist; Mrs. G. M. Goodwin talked on "Making the Most of Home Environment," and Mesdames O. F. Coleman and Fred Schmann discussed the best forms of recreation for children and adolescents. Mrs. C. B. Montgomery talked on "Spiritual Repentance," and Mrs. A. L. Mrs. Huff Entertains With Surprise Party

Celebrating the birthday of her father-in-law, Judge R. E. Huff, Mrs. William Huff entertained a few intimate friends of the honoree at her home Monday evening. A Valentine color scheme was carried out in all the appointments and the evening was pleasantly spent in playing "42."

A huge birthday cake stood on a pedestal with white and red ribbon streamers, the ribbons being drawn for low prize while the players cut for high, Mrs. C. W. Snider was fortunate among the women guests in winning both high and low while Wiley Robertson won the high score favor among the men, and Dr. J. C. A. Guest received the men's low score favor.

The dining table was prettily decorated for the occasion with centerpiece, a large basket of red carnations surrounded with red lighted tapers on tall candelabra. A salad plate was served, and favors were miniature pictures of Mr. and Mrs. Huff in silver frames.

The hostess was assisted by Mrs. John Gould in serving a salad course to Judge and Mrs. Huff, and Messrs. and Mesdames H. A. Allen, Frank Kell, J. T. Montgomery, M. J. Bashara, W. A. Freear, C. W. AND DAMON BLUSHED

DAMON RUNYAN is one of the star reporters of America. He has reported many famous cases in the courts of the country. He has travelled far. He has had close-ups of the underworld, the middleworld and the top crust world. His news association sent him to a courthouse just outside of New York to hear the story of Peaches Browning and of Mr. Peaches Browning.

Damon sent out his first story by wire. He admitted that he blushed. He admitted that his time-hardened face crimsoned. He admitted that a hard man of the world, the lawyer for the plaintiff, blushed. But the courthouse which was packed with women and girls did not exhibit one solitary blush. They were not staggered.

They did not leave the court room at recess. They were fearful that they would lose their seats. It should go down in the history of the Fourth Estate that Damon Runyan blushed. He had viewed all phases of life from Barnegat to Bombay; from Whitechapel to the Barbary Coast of San Francisco in its hectic days before earthquake and fire destroyed its wickedness

He never blushed before. That is, he never publicly admitted that he blushed. Now when he is middle aged, time worn, hardened by the experiences of years in sordid trials and in sordid walks of life in quest of the material for stories, he admits his guilt after having heard the narrative of Peaches and Mr. Peaches.

Man was made to mourn. He was not made to blush, but Damon blushed and won for himself a place near the center of the stage all the while holding his nose as if he had been buried to the neck in a vat of limburger cheese of ancient vintage. Next.

GOLDEN RULE FOR THE ALAMO

"UNDER the auspices of the San Antonio Express and Evening News an effort will be made this week to demonstrate to San Antonio and Bexar county motorists that the Golden Rule is the certain solution of the problem of lessening the toll of deaths and injuries in automobile accidents," gravely editorializes one of the papers named.

Great. An appeal has been made for the observance of the Golden Rule for two thousand years. Prisons are full to the overflowing. Jails are full to the overflowing. Wild men and women on the outside are reckless in their driving. They never stop at grade crossings. They are hogs on the long road. They are maniacs on the short roads or city streets.

They should be taught the beauties of the Golden Rule behind jail bars. More power to the authors or inventors of the Golden Rule driving contest. Here is hoping that they will win. Here is hoping that they will convert the indifferent, the thoughtless, the imbecilic, the swashbuckler type to the Golden Rule gospel of perfection and sanctification.

WITTY MR. MACK

JOHN E. MACK is one of the noted lawyers of New York. He piloted Mrs. Stillman through all her troubles. He won her triumphs in the courtroom over her banker husband. Mr. Mack is the attorney who represents Mr. Peaches Browning. Mrs. Heenan, Carolyn is the first handle to her name, was reading love letters by order of the court. Mother Heenan resented the sharp questions propounded by Lawyer Mack. This is an excerpt from the testimony:

"Look here," she said, while the court tittered at a comment by Mack, "I'm not going to play with you, Mr. Mack."

"You can't, Mrs. Heenan," he countered; "I'm a married man."

This was a knockout for Carolyn, the young mother of Mrs. Peaches. Mr. Mack's retort floored her. She became tongue tied for a brief period. Then she resumed the reading of the letters a wiser and more cautious woman. Banker Stillman indulged in a passage at arms once on a time in the court room with the witty Mr. Mack. After it was all over Banker Stillman did not know his own name. It never pays to tantalize a tartar. Mr. Mack is not only witty, but he is a very virtuous married man.

TWO SHOWS BY TWO WOMEN

AMIEE SEMPLE McPHERSON is planning a country-wide tour of the leading cities. She is to appear at Dallas. There is another woman on the coast, the woman who says that she was hired to substitute for the famous Miss X, the playmate of Ralph Armiston in the cottage at Carmel-by-the-Sea. Now this mystery woman has announced that she will make a country-wide speaking tour, following in the wake of Amiee, and speaking wherever Amiee speaks.

She has prepared her lecture or sermon. It has a title. She invented the title herself. It is catchy, "Forty Days With Amiee." This should catch the mob of curosity seekers and mortid hunters for choice tid-bits of salacious scandal.

Aimee will do her harvesting first. Then the mystery woman will come and gather in the shekels that Amiee missed. "What fools these mortals be."

CHAPLIN AND HIS COIN

MRS. CHARLES CHAPLIN and her lawyers grabbed all the property and attached all the coin of Mr. Charles Chaplin. They did it by court injunctions and receivership. Now a higher court has demolished their little house of cards and the serious comedian is to be given a run for his money, his studios and all the machinery of his industry or business. Here and there in the smaller towns of the United States and Canada, the saints have decided that the Chaplin picture shall not be shown. Why? There is nothing smooty about them; there is nothing indecent.

OIL PRODUCTION BREAKS RECORD

A TRADE JOURNAL says all previous records for production of crude oil in the United States were broken in the last week of December, when, for the first time in history output exceeded 2,400,000 barrels a day. This record breaking yield of petroleum was due to large increases in output of Oklahoma, California and Wyoming fields. Unless the signs are misleading, the output record of 1927 will smash the record established in the year 1926. There is money in oil.

Personals And News Notes From Towns In Wichita Falls Territory

ELECTRA SOCIETY

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Feb. 1.—The Altar society of the Catholic church met Monday afternoon in the post office hall with the president, Mrs. C. C. Dorsey, in charge. Plans were discussed for a social to be held at the hall, celebrating George Washington's birthday. The committee on the social was appointed with Mrs. Will Chaffie, chairman, assisted by Mesdames Sam Cummings and George McGann.

An active campaign on the new Catholic church was started, with the Altar society to aid in raising funds for it.

CLUB OF WAGGONER SCHOOL

The 5-W club of the Waggoner Ward school met Friday afternoon with Robert Mitchell, the president, in charge. Old and new business of the club was taken up. A short program was given with Eddie Carter reporting on the "Manufactures of France;" Hallie Green made a talk on Joan of Arc, John Gibson delighted the group with an interesting story, which concluded the meeting.

CENTRAL CIRCLE

Mrs. W. R. Skinner of North Wichita street was hostess to the Central circle Monday afternoon with Mrs. J. T. Wofford reading the scripture from Luke 4th, followed by a prayer by Mrs. E. B. Holcomb. The lesson from the book on "Soul Winning" was discussed by Mrs. Wofford. Mrs. John Brownlee, the circle leader, brought out several questions of business and the circle is to be divided into groups to raise money on the church. Plans are being made to give a play by the group. Delicious refreshments were served to Mesdames Dan Moore, Bill Coffey, Dick Taylor, T. E. Shaw, J. W. Shaddix, W. C. Davis, R. S. Eudaly, E. D. Allen, Ted South, E. B. Holcomb, John Brownlee and J. T. Wofford.

PRESBYTERIAN AUXILIARY

The Presbyterian Auxiliary met Monday afternoon at the church with Mrs. E. E. Merkt in charge. The 146th Psalm was the devotional lesson, with Mrs. E. E. Merkt also having the devotional. Arrangements were made for "church night," which is observed the first Wednesday night in new month. There was a fine attendance.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH LADIES

The usual meeting of the Ladies society of the First Christian church was dispensed with Monday afternoon with nine of the ladies attending the Missionary meeting of county, held at the Highland Heights Christian church of Wichita Falls, with the subject of "Evangelism" being discussed, and Rev. C. C. Klingman of this city being one of the principal speakers, also Dr. Cobb, the state mission minister, making a talk. Those attending were Mesdames Grace Jennings, J. M. Knight, J. A. O'Pry, Gorden Allen, Sid Gamblin, Newton Byrd, George LeBus and Rev. and Mrs. Klingman.

GLOBE TROTTERS

The Globe Trotters club of the Waggoner Ward school held a recent meeting at the school with a splendid program being given. The following program was given: Reading, Georgia Clark; "Something About Spain," by Pete Grosland; "Something About Geography," by Denenalt Ball; two jokes, by Fred Parson; a duet by Christine Andrews and Lorena Chesher, and the sargent-at-arms report.

Y. W. CIRCLE.

The Young Women's Circle of the First Baptist church met Monday afternoon with Mrs. Buck Stalcup of West Roosevelt Avenue. Mrs. J. L. Graham led the devotional and Mrs. M. C. Stowe had the lesson from the W. M. U. manuel. Plans were made for the ladies of the Young Women's Circle to have the program at the all day meeting, next Monday. Mrs. M. J. Holcomb led in prayer. Plans were made for the examination to be given on the W. M. U. manuel within the next four weeks. Sandwiches, hot chocolate and cookies were served to twenty-one ladies.

EAST CIRCLE

The meeting of the members of the east circle of the First Baptist church of this city was observed Monday afternoon when Mrs. W. F. Amonett was hostess. Those present were Mesdames N. S. Dunn, W. R. Brown, L. H. Owens, L. Gatewood, W. F. Amonett, A. F. McCormick, Wood Overall, Bushe. The devotional lesson was conducted by Mrs. J. E. Ratcliff. Plans were made for a pie supper next Tuesday evening in the basement of the church with the proceeds from the supper going towards the building fund.

SOUTH CIRCLE.

Mrs. Joe James entertained the South Circle of the First Baptist church Monday afternoon. The meeting opened with a song, "What a Friend" followed by prayer by Mrs. Love. Bible study was taken from the tenth chapter of Matthew, with Mrs. T. W. Chenault in charge. Mrs. C. O. Roberts made a splendid four-minute talk on the "Baptist Fund Campaign," and the next meeting will be in all day session.

Those present were: Mesdames C. O. Roberts, Byron T. Johnson, W. L. Cason, Love, Lee Scoggins, Joe James T. W. Chenault.

VOGUE BRIDGE CLUB.

Miss Ruth Prince was hostess to a very pretty bridge party Monday evening when the members of the Vogue Bridge club were her guests. In the games, Miss Katherine Barr received a volume of Shakespeare as the high score, and Miss Bonnie Jennings was given a box of handkerchiefs as low, while the second prize went to Miss Minnie Nell Yelldell which was a piece of lingerie. Cut flowers were used throughout the rooms and refreshments of waffles and honey were served. Guests of the club were Mrs. Sam McPeak of New Orleans, Louisiana and Miss Mary McGann. Club members were Misses Ann Skinner, Earline McDannald, Minnie Nell Yelldell, Dixie Tuttle, Katherine Barr, Louise Gasten and Louise Gossett of Harrold, Lucille Wheeler, Bonnie Jennings, Carrie Cross.

PICNIC IS HELD.

Clean Jones entertained with a party and picnic Monday evening, the group gathering at his home early in the evening and enjoying an hour of dancing and games, then motoring to the Lions club park where more games were played and wennies and marshmallows roasted. A most delightful time was had. Those making up the party were Misses Bessie Mae Bearden, Gladys and Hazel Byrd, Irene Ballard and Lois Brown; Messrs. Lavlit Proctor, Merrill Sweetland, Arthur Shoestall of Burkburnett, Herman Adams, Charlie Green and Cleon Jones and Mrs. C. A. Jones.

LAMPAS SOCIETY.

Mrs. Earl Hemby was hostess to the Lampas Society of the First Christian church recently with Mrs. J. M. Knight presiding. Mrs. Jack Dale opened the meeting with a prayer. There was a short business session and plans were made for a George Washington tea, to be given February 18. Mrs. T. C. Stockton led the devotional, and Mrs. J. M. Knight closed the meeting with a prayer and then the social hour was enjoyed. Two clever contests were enjoyed and Miss Preston Ashley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Ashley gave a reading. Mrs. C. W. Scheurer gave a delightful vocal selection and little Misses Margaret Ann and Gloria Grizzle gave readings. Refreshments were served to Mesdames J. M. Ashley, W. T. Benbow, Claude Conyers, Fred Cummings, Dannie Dale, Sid Gamblin, Homer Grizzle, J. M. Knight, Frank LeBus, Bennett Nance, R. M. Riggs, C. E. Pye, C. W. Scheurer, Claude Suggs, L. D. Smith Jr., T. C. HIGH SCHOOL CHORAL CLUB.

The High School Choral club has recently reorganized and officially naming the club, which is composed of forty enthusiastic members, under the direction of Miss Sallie Huffaker. Plans are being made for the club to present "Bits o' Blarney," a delightful Irish operetta by Otis M. Carrington, early in the Spring. The following officers were elected: Roy Mankins, president; Ralph Delashaw, treasurer; Mary Jo Alderson, reporter.

READ THIS FIRST:

BOBBIE RANSON, a demure little school teacher, is anything but the flip sort of girl whom you would expect to be "movie struck." She is, however. She tries to borrow money from her father and her AUNT GERTRUDE, to take her to Hollywood where she hopes to get into pictures. They both refuse to lend her a cent for such a purpose. So does ANDY JERROLD, who's in love with her and wants her to marry him.

Finally she borrows $500 form the WIDOW PARKINS, who is to marry her father, and goes to Hollywood. There she finds a room at MRS. MANGAN'S, and meets an extra girl named STELLA DELROY. Through Stella she lands a few days' work at the Magnifica Studios where a famous director ROY SCHULTZ, and his wife, LOTTIE, takes some interest in her. GUS MacCLOUD, the assistant director, falls in love with her and she with him.

Gus is a man of many loves. Stella hints that he was once in love with her in the days before he became successful. MONICA MONT, another movie actress who comes to live at Mrs. Mangan's runs around with him too. But he seems to prefer Bobbie to anyone else, and promises to help her make good in pictures. However, time goes on and she gets few parts, and her money runs low. Finally Aunt Gertrude dies and leaves her a brooch of old diamonds, and she sells one. She heard that Gus has been married and that his wife is getting a divorce, and when he admits that this is true she tells him she'll see no more of him until he's free.

But life seems empty without him, especially as Monica moves away to a flat of her own when she gets a good part in a Roy Schultz picture. So when Gus asks Bobbie to a New Year's eve party at his home, she goes gladly. That night Stella, alone at the boarding house, commits suicide and leaves behind her a note for Gus. Bobbie destroys it, rather than make him unhappy by showing it to him.

Lottie Schultz offers her a chance to make some extra money by teaching her small spoiled daughter, JOLLY, and Bobbie accepts.

She spends a terrible morning with the wicked little Jolly, and starts out for a drive with Gus, whom she meets as she leaves the Schultz home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVIII

"Where are we going?" Bobbie asked as they swept along in the hot yellow sunlight.

She knew very well where they were going. She knew perfectly that Gus was taking her to a lonely hill-top that looked down upon the ocean just beyond Santa Monica, and she didn't want to go there.

It was too lonely, for one thing. It was the sort of place where a man and girl could make love for hours without being seen by anyone or anything except the wheeling sea-gulls.

For another thing—it was fairly alive with memories, that hill-top. It was there that Gus had told her first that he was in love with her. It was there that he had kissed her many, many times, but hadn't asked her to marry him when he should be free. No! The hill-top was no place for the two of them, any more. Not now, since they had sworn off all love-making!

"Gus!" she said, "I haven't had anything to eat. I couldn't touch a bite of my lunch, up there with that bad kid. Take me down to Chinatown, to that place you've been telling me about for so long."

Instantly, as if he knew why she had said that, Gus began to sulk. And when he sulked he showed it. Showed it by his sudden and heavy frown, and his injured air.

But he turned the big car at the next cross-street and started back toward the heart of the town. "All right!" he said peevishly.

But he reached for her hand, after a quarter mile or so of dead silence, and crushed it under his on the seat between them.

"I wanted to be alone, where I could talk to you today," he said sullenly.

Bobbie laughed. "Well, aren't we alone?"

"You know we aren't. All the people and the cars going by!" He waved his arm toward them, then brought his hand quickly back to the wheel.

Bobbie drew her hand from under his. But the touch of him, light and brief as it was, made her glow as if the warmth and the sunshine of the day had penetrated to her very heart. She sighed.

"Don't touch me, Gus," she said. "Remember that we promised ourselves that we wouldn't do that sort of thing, Old Married Man." But while she said it, she was longing to put her arms around him and her head on his shoulder. She knew that if they had been alone at that moment, she would have done it, too. She wouldn't have been able to help herself. For, after all, women are not the marble statues that people of another generation believed them to be, but warm, throbbing flesh and blood, longing for the comfort of love and understanding from one another.

They had lunch in a Chinese restaurant on the second floor of an old red brick building in Chinatown. There was no one in it but themselves and the slant-eyed waiter who knew Gus and called him "Long Time."

"Oh, No, I Wouldn't Gamble for Anything!"

Gus ordered bird's nest soup and egg foo yung and candied fruits for Bobbie, who ate them all.

He touched nothing, but drank hot tea and whisky from a silver flask that he took from his pocket.

"Food," he said, looking solemnly at Bobbie's plate, "is the curse of the drinking race."

"Ever bring any other girls here? Ever bring Monica?" Bobbie asked him.

He scowled and didn't answer.

"Now, about the business in hand," he began when they had eaten and were sipping hot tea from tiny enameled cups. "Roy's taking his company down to Laguna beach on vacation tomorrow. We're to be gone for two weeks, maybe longer—and there's a nice little part for you if you want it. Long-distance swim of a mile. Could you do it?"

Bobbie shook her head, and a troubled look shadowed her face. "Never, Gus," she answered. "I couldn't do a half mile. I'd sink, sure as anything, and have to be rescued—"

"Could you do a quarter of a mile?"

She shook her head once more. "I'd be afraid to try it."

Gus flicked off the gray end of his cigar.

"Well, come along, anyway, and we'll see what you can do," he said, not looking at her. "We're going to drive down, and we leave about noon tomorrow. I'll take you in my car, if you aren't afraid of being talked about." His tone was sarcastic.

He called the waiter, tipped him, and got up to go.

"Well, now that that's settled, we may as well go and gamble a little. Ever play the Chinese gambling game?"

They were at the head of the long dark stairway that led to the street, and as Bobbie turned to answer him, he caught her in his arms and kissed her. She could feel him trembling as a steel blade will tremble all along its length. His mouth was hard and firm on her soft lips.

"Oh, you—I love you," she whispered, hardly knowing what she said in the warm dreaminess of the moment. "I love you, Gus." And then, as his arms tightened around her yielding body, she pulled herself away from him.

"See? This is what we do when we're alone!" she said with a little sobbing gasp. "See? We can't trust ourselves!"

She started down the stairs blindly, her hand sliding along the rough painted wall as she went. "No, and I'm not going to Laguna Beach!" She threw the words over her shoulder, and her voice was sharp and filled with the anger she felt. Anger toward herself and him, too.

She started across the littered sidewalk to his car.

Gus caught her by her arm. "We aren't going home. We're going to do some gambling first, Baby!" he reminded her, and Bobbie went with him willingly enough until they came to the door of the house where the Chinese lottery was played.

Then she hung back. "Oh, no, I'm not going in!" she said. "I wouldn't gamble for anything! Maybe you thing I'm oldfashioned, but I don't believe in it. I think it's a wicked thing to do."

Gus made a move to pull her in with him. Then something in her eyes, so dark and deep, stopped him.

"All right, saint! We won't go in," he said with a short laugh. "I forgot that I was out with Purity, herself. Won't drink any more, won't pet any more! I might have known she wouldn't gamble."

"I'm not going to Laguna Beach, either."

"So you said five minutes ago," Gus answered. "But why not? I thought you were crazy to break into the movies—and I offer you one slick chance to do it, and you throw me down."

Bobbie had nothing to say to that. She knew that Gus understood perfectly why she didn't want to go. He knew, just as she did, that there was danger for them in the days and days of lonliness on the beach at Laguna. In the moon-silvered nights.

She put her head down against his shoulder suddenly, and held his arm tight with both of her hands.

"Gus! You know I don't want to be down there, practically alone with you!" she half-whispered, her lips against his sleeve. "You know I don't want to—"

She didn't know how to say it, but finally got it out: "Gus, I want to be just a good friend of yours until your wife gets her divorce. I don't want you to kiss me until then. It's not right."

She felt him move away from her ever so little. But she felt as if he'd slapped her across the face.

"All right," he said, "have it your own way."

His voice was cold, sulky brute that he was. And as she looked at him, the thought struck her that he wasn't the kind of man who'd live like a monk. He liked women more than most men cared for them. He couldn't do without them and their companionship.

"I'll go to Laguna," she said.

* * *

That night she washed out her silk stockings, and her silk underthings. She ironed them, and sprayed perfume all over them—a seductive scent made from white gardenas.

It was midnight when she stood in Mrs. Mangan's bathroom washing her hair, rubbing it to dryness, brushing it until it was like little gold-tipped feathers all over her shapely head.

It was one o'clock when she got into bed and pulled the covers up around a face that was shiny with cold cream and greeted with a special astringent that was supose to give beauty its last touch.

As a matter of fact, she needed neither the cream nor the astringent. But she felt that she did—and she went to bed, sure that they would make her pretty as she never had been pretty before!

All women always feel that way about all beauty treaments. Their faith in them is a pathetic thing.

* * *

The next morning, Bobbie woke up feeling vaguely that something wonderful was going to happen that day. Then, as she roused herself, she remembered. She was going to Laguna Beach that day with Gus.

Across the room, her handbag stood already packed, on the dresser. Pale pink, sky blue and delicate mauve underthings gleamed back from the backs of chairs where they had been hung the night before. Stockings were rolled neatly on the writing desk.

And Bobbie's face, under its astringent and cold cream, looked just as it had looked the night before. No better and no worse.

"Well, I suppose I've got to call up Lottie Schultz," Bobbie thought. She hated to do it. "She'll have to find somebody else to teach her wild child her ABC's. Thank frotune, I'm through with her!"

Lottie herself answered the telephone.

"Laguna Beach," she repeated when Bobbie told her where she was going. "Well, that's funny. Roy isn't going up until Thursday."

And this was Tuesday.

"You'd better come up here and let me talk to you, Bob," Lottie's gentle voice came over the wire not so gently as usual, "before you make up your mind to go down there with Gus. Hop into a cab and come along."

She hung up.

BO BROADWAY ..... By Joseph Van Raalte

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. (EFS—Midtown, New York, where the hotel and theaters are clustered, is peopled daily by an army of men and women who aren't "goin' anywhere." They walk the streets leisurely with no apparent reason for being there. So far as may be judged by their attitude their gait, they have no objective, no business on which they're bent. They're drifters, pausing at the least provocation to bestow attention on any trivial sight or scene that promises interest for a minute or more.

* * *

The majority of these drifters are young men, well fed and to all outward appearance, comfortably set beyond the line of want. You'll find them smoking all afternoon in Broadway coffee houses, looking dreamily out at the rain, window shopping on the sunny side of the avenue on cool mornings or seated comfortably in the movie or vaudeville theaters with not a thing on their minds worth mentioning. How they subsist is a puzzle. What endeavor, mental or physical, they translate into coin, is a mystery.

* * *

A group of workmen place their equipment on the curb and proceed to remove the complexion of the asphalt pavement, preparatory to digging a hole.

They aren't at work five minutes before a drifter pauses to inspect the job and ruminate on the motive that prompts the excavation. He is joined by a second, then a third and fourth, and pretty soon a respectable congeries of well appointed overseers are on hand to note that all goes well. When flagging interest deprives the little group of one member, another saunters along to take his place.

If the day happens to be particularly cold and the workmen start a fire beside the excavation, the drifters regard that as a sort of gala event, and swarm in from all quarters.

I've seen a newsdealer on a windy corner start a blaze in an empty trash can and five well-dressed men standing around staring idly at the flames and blinking in the smoke.

* * *

A mob of 500 men and women were milling on the sidewalk in front of a vacant Eighth avenue shop the other day. Two policemen with drawn clubs hurried from opposite corners and charged the crowd, expecting to encounter murder, at least.

What they did find was this: A wee bit of a mouse had cornered a crust of bread and was wrestling with in the shop window and the drifters, hurrying in from all points of the compass, not only blocked traffic but nearly precipitated a riot.

* * *

Follow-master is the most popular game in the Town of Queer Percentages. If the Man in Front does it, the Man Behind just naturally follows suit.

One morning coming across City Hall park I observed thousands of persons on their way to work, with slackened pace, staring up at the Woolworth building where high along the cloud-kissed reaches, "like a diamond in the sky," a Wop window cleaner, perched on a sill, was fulfilling his destiny with chamois and wool.

Eight hours later as dusk was settling over the city, blurring the angular edges of the skyscrapers, I retraced my steps across City Hall park. The army of workers homeward bound, headed toward the subways, still with slackened pace were staring up toward the top of the giant structure.

Hours before, the window cleaner, completing his task or devoting his attention to panes on another face of the building, had disappeared from the view of those in the park below. But still the crowd stared. They had found others staring when they arrived on the scene, so they stared too. They didn't know what they were staring at but they stared because if there really were anything to see, they didn't want to miss it.

"What's the matter?" one starer would ask another.

"Search me, Brother," the other would retort, and then both would again point their tonsils to the open sky.

Night put a merciful end to the scene.

RE HAS IDEAS

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. — Frank Gropper, who is serving on juries in civil cases, has decided views as to women's clothes. Called to sit on a case i..volving a woman tripping and being hurt, he addressed his honor: "No wonder women have accidents. Look how they dress! How do they expect to walk with those high heels?" The court readily granted his request to be excused.

THEY OUGHT TO KICK

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 1.—One woman objects to men in high hats, striped trousers and spats, under some circumstances at least. A man's resolution for such dress formale legislators caused so much objections by Representative Helen Grimes that nothing was done about it.

HE'S TOO HIGH

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Representative Hull of Illinois, former distiller, has a bill pending under which he thinks legal medicinal whiskey would retail at 80 cents a pint.

Right To Love Must Be Preceded By Ability To Love, Dot Dix Says

The Check-Book Husband, the Unloved Wife, the Lonely Old People Who Lament Because They Have Missed Love Don't Realize That They Must First Earn the Affection of Others and Be Lovable Before They Can Be Loved.

Perhaps human vanity finds its ultimate expression in the fact that we all expect to be loved whether we are lovable or not. We may not do one single solitary thing to earn the affections of those about us or even to justify their liking, yet, nevertheless, we feel ill-used if they do not bestow upon us a tenderness that we do not deserve and have not earned.

It is a common thing to hear an embittered man say sneeringly that he is only a check book to his wife and children; that they care nothing for him personally, only for what he can give them. Or a wife wails out that she has lost her husband's love and that her sons and daughters are ungrateful and undutiful to her. Or lonely old people lament that they have no friends and that nobody wants to have them around.

And these people who bemoan themselves because they have missed love never blame themselves. Apparently it never occurs to them that the reason why they are not loved is because they are not lovable. For, after all, there must be something to inspire affection. The heart must have something to hang itself upon.

Why, for instance, should a husband who is grouchy and surly and ill-tempered; who never shows his wife any tenderness or affection or appreciation; who never speaks to her except to find fault with her, expect her to continue to love him?

What is there about him to rouse any enthusiasm in her breast? Why should she palpitate with gratitude when she thinks of him and the way he treats her? Is there anything about such a man's conduct that would make her listen eagerly for his footsteps returning home at night and set the joybells ringing when he opened the door?

Could any woman be actress enough to conjure up a glad, sweet smile of welcome for such a husband? Not a bit of it. Such a man may have all the domestic virtues. He may be sober and moral and industrious and a good provider. But if he is personally disagreeable and cantankerous he will kill every particle of his wife's love for him, and she will make a mighty reconciled widow, as we have all had frequent occasions to observe when some of our model citizens who were also grumpy husbands passed away.

And why should a father expect his children to love him unless he has been a lovable father? Parents put a lot of misplaced faith in what they call "natural affection," and expect their children to be devoted to them because they stand in the relationship of parents and children.

In reality there is no such thing as natural affection, so far as the child is concerned. Take a baby away from its mother and it will love any other woman who is good and kind to it as well as it would its own mother. Every particle of love we get from a child we must earn.

So why should the father who never tries to get acquainted with his children, who never plays with them, who never talks to them except to correct them, who never tries to enter into their little hopes and joys and sorrows, who never makes them feel that he is their best friend and is doing everything in his power to make them happy, expect them to love him and confide in him and be guided by him?

He has never been anything but a kill-joy to them. They haven't a thought or an idea in common with him. They are embarrassed to death if they are left alone with him and they couldn't carry on a five minutes' conversation with him to save their lives. It would be absurd to expect them to feel any tenderness for this man who is the greatest stranger in all the world to them.

And why should a wife expect her husband to keep on loving her unless she keeps herself lovable? Sometimes the reason why a husband no longer kisses his wife is because, in the privacy of domesticity, she eats onions or keeps her face all smeared up with cold cream.

Sometimes it is because a man has small inclination to kiss the lips that have just been telling him what a poor, miserable, make-shift creature he is and whining because she can't have all of the luxuries rich women have. Men don't marry to get some one to tell them of their faults and mighty few of them love the hand that smites them on their vanity.

And why should a woman's children love her when she frets at them and nags them continually and makes their lives a burden to them? Very likely she does this through her own love and over-anxiety for them.

But it makes home a place of torment from which the children flee as soon as they possibly can and causes them to dread mother's presence in their own homes more than any other calamity that could befall them.

And why should old people who have lived selfish, self-centered lives, who have never held out a helping hand to any one in need, who have never sat beside a sick-bed or wept with a neighbor over a grave or rejoiced with a friend over a triumph, expect to be loved and cherished in their declining days?

They have done nothing to win love. They have laid no ties of gratitude on another. They have never bound another human heart to their own and they have no right to expect to reap where they have not sown.

So if we want love, we must be lovable.

"The Tired Business Woman."

Much has been said, both of and to, the tired business man.

Sometimes it looks as though the tired business woman had done him out of everything but the first two rows in the orchestra! And for the simple reason that men would rather fall into "traps" than women. No drumming on the ear drums for them!

Now that so many women are self-supporting, an increasing number of men are trying to convince them that two can live as cheaply as one without the man being the one. The person who is not making the money wants another inch on his steak.

Of course an extra hot dog each day for dinner eats up the surplus. And two under the table will make the gate legs knock kneed!

Men are not used to holding anything out of their salary but their losings.

Women are not naturally good providers or dividers. They want the Lyin' share every time. They are subtractors—are great at taking nothing from one—and everything from another! They buy ermine wraps and the only chance a man has to get a coat is to stick around in shedding season.

There are two types of women, those who love their work and those who work their loves!

The tired business woman often has a husband waiting for her key in the lock and his hand in her pocket.

Woman has always considered that the money she earns belongs to her, which is where she is much smarter than man. A man's income is always backing out before it gets all the way in. Women are tight with everyone but themselves; if a man doesn't believe it, let him try to borrow back five dollars out of the thousand he gave his wife!

Business men have their moments and business women have their hours. Often they make just enough money to overlook their husbands. So if a man is depending upon a woman for cigarettes, he'll have to smoke her brand—after they're stubs!

The business woman who is single is neither tired nor tiring. It's only when she's supporting a family that she wishes she had a "pop" instead of a prop.

When you marry, your work is cut out for you; you have to cut out the bad habits yourself. And it's no mean jigsaw puzzle at that!

If the business woman is tired—it's not from minding her own business.

MODISH MITZI — Spring Suits Have Come — By JAY V. JAY

Mitzi is whirling around in a new spring suit. She's got her calendar mixed thinks Dad. "It's one of the new three piece spring suits," she exclaims. "Aren't you glad that winter is over?" Which is news to Dad. "One spring suit doesn't make it spring," he remarks sarcastically.

But Mitzi doesn't agree with him. Besides she has more than one spring suit. Here is another: The blouse is of a light crepe and the skirt and coat of a heavy silk. No spring flower ever bloomed more beautifully than the one on her shoulder.

Another three piece spring suit is benefitted with a cardigan jacket effect. A pull over sweater goes under it of a checked design. The skirt and jacket are of the same color. "In the new spring shades," remarks Mitzi just by way of convincing Dad that spring is really here.

"But, Mitzi," points out Dad, "it isn't spring and you can't wear those things." "Oh," says Mitzi, "oh! You mean outdoors. But technically spring comes when you can buy spring clothes." Which settles the question so far as Mitzi is concerned. Notice her hat with the back that follows the V hairline of her bob.

GIRLIGAGS

"Indolence won't make the pot boil," says philosophizing Felice, "and yet it has cooked many a man's goose."—By Gettler.

SOPHIE IRENE LOEB Says—

FABLES OF EVERYDAY FOLKS

The Girl Who Could Not See Herself.

Once upon a time there was a girl who had a small pocketbook and large ideas. She went on the theory that looks count for everything, and that all that a woman had to do was to adorn herself and that fame and fortune and a fine husband would come to her accordingly.

First of all, then, this girl, Stella, set out to study the styles. To make the big hit was the thing uppermost in he rmind. By various machinations she got acquainted with some "smart" people whose lives were spent in following the fashions and fooling the hours away.

Now, as most of these people have the wherewithal to continue their non-working policy, this girl had to "step lively" to keep pace. Thus when a lady of her set at a tea wore a lovely velvet gown trimmed with ermine, Stella, not to be outshone, purchased a velveteen.

She trimmed it with white cat fur, putting in a few black tails to make it look "just like" the ermine.

When another wore a tiara of diamonds Stella felt herself resplendent in a "tarara" of paste brilliants. When she saw a beautiful evening gown of real lace she hunted the stores to match it in imitation.

Her petticoats were "near silk," and, in fact, everything in which she tried to make herself attractive was always "just like," but not really "it." She grew that way herself. But she saw herself through wondrous glasses.

Having entered into this sphere, she seemed to forget her old friends, who had no such ambitions and who were satisfied to be only what they were—modest, unassuming.

Stella was invited to spend a week-end that promised to prove a jolly party.

In the evening there was bridge for all the guests who wanted to play; and as she had learned this game of high-grade gambling quite as a matter, of course, she took a hand.

Now, as this girl had gotten into the habit of imitating she seemed to be unaware of the fact that there was one thing she could not imitate—real coin.

While these people might accept her they would not accept "near money," and there was no mercy. For mercy is unknown at the card table. To make a long fable short she not only lost all she had, but telegraphed to father and brother for more. They did what they could, but there was not enough to pay, and the thing inexcusable is the non-payment of "honor" money.

She could not explain to her debtors that she had been so long trying to make a show that she could not be real enough to stop when she should. Also, she had the pathetic shock of overhearing a couple of women whom she thought were friends, sum her up something like this:

"She should have known better. I never did like her. She is so tawdry and puts on so many airs with nothign to back it up. Her clothes are a fright, and her poor mother and father just work their fingers off to give her the junk she wears.

"Everybody can see through her mask of assumption, and I don't know why anybody ever took her up. No woman should play that can't pay."

Moral: "Some people see themselves as nobody sees them."

SUNSET AND FRIENDS

Dear Mrs. Rawlings: I do not entirely agree with Mary C. B. on the subject of growing old. When I am old I do not want to live alone. I love the friends about me. What is your way of expressing this?—LILLIAN E. E.

Surely, I shall be wise when sunset comes
When the year's glamorous tale is nearly told,
I shall be skilled in solving life's strange sums,
And I shall have the wisdom of the old.

I shall take time for all the lovely things
My busy life has had to turn away.
I'll just stop working when a red-bird sings,
Listen, if needs be, all the live-long day.

I shall have learned life's smallest joys are best—
A bush in bloom, a robin in the rain,
By my own hearth, content a daily guest.
Forget the castles that I built in Spain.

And friendship shall come first, and duties last.
I would not be alone when sunset ends,
For love alone can quench the spirit's thirst.
The years bring wisdom—and that wisdom, friends.

Realtors Ask $100,000 Appropriation For State Fight On Cotton Root Rot

A resolution asking the Texas legislature for an appropriation of $100,000 for the purpose of carrying on an investigation of root rot at the county experiment station at Iowa Park, was passed by the Wichita Falls real estate board at its luncheon Tuesday noon.

In introducing the resolution, A. M. McPherson, consulting irrigation engineer, defined the station as a "great big out of doors laboratory," and that, "if it looks pretty it is a failure. It has got to be a mess."

Mr. McPherson declared that it would be impossible to attract farmers to this district unless a remedy for root rot was found. The resolution follows:

"Whereas, the citizens of this city have, without aid from the state of Texas or any outside help, built a large irrigation project and created the largest artificial body of water in the state, and, whereas, the citizens of this city and the Wichita valley have purchased a tract of land at a cost of $12,000 cash and donated the same free of charge to the state of Texas as an experiment farm, and, whereas, practically the entire state including our own irrigation district is infested with a soil disease called the Texas root rot of cotton which greatly reduces the yield of cotton and prohibits the successful growing of such plants as alfalfa, sweet clover, sugar beet, sweet potatoes, and apples as well as many other similar valuable crops, and, whereas, no adequate remedy has yet been discovered for combatting the disease.

"Therefore, be it resolved by the real estate board of Wichita Falls, that the president be instructed to communicate with the chamber of commerce, our representatives in the legislature, asking that at least $100,000 be granted the local experiment farm for the next two years and that a considerable portion of this money be used for the investigation of Texas root rot with a view of finding an adequate remedy for it which will save the state millions of dollars annually."

Housing Problem

The board will also investigate the problem of housing the population of Wichita Falls in the near future, it was decided at the luncheon. A committee composed of J. M. Bland, chairman, A. W. King and John Monroe, was appointed to compile a report on houses, the fluctuation of rents, and the future building of residences in the city.

Members of the organization again conducted advertisement writing tests, discussing the problem of advertising a home in an exclusive district, valued at about $50,000.

A discussion of the future and growth of Wichita Falls will feature the luncheon program next Tuesday.

TYSON'S CREW RUNS OFF AND LEAVES FIELD

Panhandle Turns Back Last Title Contender By 40-30 Score

Panhandle refiners, lashing out with a swift passing attack and rifle-like shots at the basket, romped off and left the Commercial league pack far behind, defeating the sturdy Landon-Hill quint, Panhandle's most ardent pursuer, 40 to 30, Tuesday night on the Junior college basketball court.

The Oiler victory gave John Tyson's crew a clear claim to top honors and shoved the hitherto seriously threatening Sporting Gooders down into a three-way tie for the second rung with the Guardsmen and Draughon business college five, two full games out of first place.

Now the boys will have to begin talking this split season stuff. The schedule was drawn up this year with no division in it, but, of course, with realization that if one club runs off and leaves the others, they'll choose up and start over again.

Chub Neal's battalion waged a stubborn fight but there were leaks in the defense and the passing at stages was ragged. The Landon crew also muffed a bevy of crip shots.

Panhandle, however, outplayed the 1926 champions in every department of the game other than that of free-throw chunking. Neals' gang sank ten of their points from the foul line.

Mac and Jack

McCausland, lanky Panhandle center, and Jack Thurman, midget guard, were exceptionally hot. Thurman sank five lurid field baskets during a stay in the game that was brief due to his taking to the court late and then catching air via the four personal fouls route. McCausland looped seven from the floor, Haney and Welford roamed the court well and figured heftily in the victory plum. Tyson waged an almost concrete defensive game. Rawls wasn't on deck long enough to show much, also succumbing to the personal foul edicts.

Preston Beck led the Landon-Hill advance with a trio of field loops and the same number of foul goals. Gantner figured neatly in the passing—while he was in the game. He caught atmosphere, too, on personal fouls. Clary was by far Landon-Hill's outstander at guard.

Draughon Cuts Up

Metzger's collegians trounced the Headquarters quintet by a score of 52-19 in the second game. The Draughon outfit got a 13-5 lead in machine completely smothering the Guardsmen. Huffman, floor forward on the collegiate squad acquired a knack at slapping the ball into the basket cutting down ten points to his credit. The third period marked down 22 points for Capt. Metzger's boys who held the Guards for no goals during the period.

Stinekoenig's troops stared a rally in the last stretch after taking on fresh recruits and Hill, Headquarter's forward, found the basket and started sinking long shots. The Guardsmen's defense got organized and put up a tight fight but the Draughon's onslaught in the last few minutes of play stacked up the final score of 52-19.

Mike Goldstucker's clothiers and the Conocos came out in the last game to play a cellar championship affair. The Hub won 30-21. The first half of the game was airtight, both teams carrying the ball back and forth with a defense ably breaking up the other's rush at the goal. The boys got down and tied the score with the Conocos breaking it up only to be tied up again until the end of the first half which chalked up an unlucky 13-13 deadlock.

Hub Gets Loose

The Haberdashers went into the second half of the tilt and got a 21-17 point lead over the Conocos. Goldstucker's boys discovered a neat working machine by feeding the ball to Bill Andree, forward, who stayed clear of the Continental defense and sank six crip baskets. Bradshear, Hub center, also came up in good form, looping five baskets giving the clothiers sufficient lead over the Continental basketeers to end the cellar tilt for the 30-21 victory.

LET 'EM BATTLE

This modern day game of basketball is quite effeminate, at least, in the Commercial league, compared to the game as it used to be. I don't know whether that would be called evolution or degeneration. The present mode of playing tends to speed things up, or does it?

Anyway, the boys aren't given much chance to tear in there and battle for the ball. Take for instance, the Panhandle-Landon-Hill tilt Tuesday night. Seemed like about every 30 seconds a foul was called on somebody for charging. If a fellow can't charge in there after the ball how is he going to get it?

* * *

SO THAT'S BASKETBALL

At one stage of the game, Gantner and Rawls, opposing players, both went into the air after the tap-off from center. Naturally a collision was the result, but what of it? Personal fouls were tagged on them. One of the fouls happened to be Rawls' fourth, so automatically out of the game he went, giving way to a substitute. It was just a few minutes later that Gantner got the gate on four personals, also. Several players were given the air in such manner.

* * *

In the old days about the only reason a fellow got run off the court by the referee was because he slugged somebody in the mush or put a flying mare or something similar on an opposition player. If the athletes like this present style of game where almost every time one of them displays an extra spurt of steam and starts hustling harder than usual he is penalized for it, then they should make a good job of it and incorporate the gentle rules under which our ladies of the court pastime.

* * *

Sure, hacking, holding, biting, kicking, slugging and tackling are legitimate basketball fouls, but why hook a fellow just because he plays the game ambitiously and doesn't mind going up into the air after the ball or breaking down court in a hurry? No criticism of the referee, just a rumination on the game as it is played today. Let 'em pile in there and battle; the best and fastest team will win anyhow.

PRIZES FOR GELS

Speaking of basketball, the girly-girl cagers, or rather some of them have stumbled into a bit of luck. The Goodrich Tire company, with E. B. Bynum and B. G. Sharpe, both ardent sportsmen on the donation end, have upped with a proposition to give three prizes to the women's league. The championship team will be awarded a little trophy by The Record News, so Sharpe and Bynum wish to put up individual prizes. The girls are going to be conferred with first for the purpose of finding just what they want and then announcement will be made. Goodrich gang would put a fancy wrist watch into competition for the individual high scorer of the season, figuring on a percentage of games played by each individual. Then a prize is to be put up for the best all-around player and one to the fem who displays the best sportsmanship. The latter two prizes will be selected after the four teams have been queried on what they would have offered.

* * *

CLEAN BODY, CLEAN MIND

Dutch Mantell, the wrassler, is connected with the Goodrich wholesale department, and stands prepared to give a lift wherever he can. Dutch, more or less naturally, is quite an advocate of athletics of nearly all kinds. Says he, "The basketball league stuff, both leagues here, is a great thing for the youngsters. It develops clean, healthful bodies and in doing that you develop clean minds."

Another Break For the Girls

In keeping with activities of the women's basket league sponsored by this newspaper, The Record News will open Friday with a series of short instructive lessons in women's sports, mostly basketball, how to play the game, how to get in trim and how to keep in trim. The articles, written by Mary Isabel Caldwell of Northwestern university, a playground director and noted woman athlete, will be illustrated with one-column art.

TEDDY WATERS WEDS MISS VIRGIE THAMES

Teddy Waters, formerly of Childress and well known in athletic circles of Wichita Falls, and Miss Virgie Thames of this city were married Tuesday afternoon in Henrietta, friends here learned last night.

The young couple will make their home at 2306 Buchanan street, Wichita Falls.

WACO VS. AGGIE FROSH.

COLLEGE STATION, Feb. 1. (AP)—Waco high school will play the A. and M. freshman basketball team here Friday and Saturday, Coach Johnny Bender announced Tuesday.

Indians Knock Off Practice Tilt In Nightcap

THE CARD

Whippets versus Conocos.
P. B. M. versus Electrics.
Time: 7:30 tonight.
Place: Junior college.

The second weekly double-header bill of the women's basketball league will be dished up for the edification of the city's cage fandom Wednesday night on the Junior college court with the added attraction of a game between Herb Ludgate's Junior College Indians and some strong Commercial league opponent, either Landon-Hill or the Panhandle Refiners.

Whippets Improve

Chubby Neal's little Whippet squad probably will take the floor in the first game against the fast-stepping Conocos with an almost entirely new line-up. At any rate, the past several days Neal has been working away with a number of new additions to the squad. And he feels certain the Whippets will give a much better account of themselves tonight than they did in the league opener last week against the speedy P. B. M. girls.

The Whippets put in a final lick at game preparation Tuesday night on the Call field court and were then declared in readiness. Neal has been bringing his squad along slowly and sooner or later hopes to throw several heavy surprises into the ranks of the rest of the league.

Electrics-P. B. M. Draw Spot

The spot centers on the second tilt of the night. P. B. M. put in a hefty bid for honors by trimming the Whippets handily last week while the Electrics were fighting the Conocos to a draw verdict. The Conoco-Electric game incidentally was protested by Coach Frank Ramsey of the Conocos at the risk of losing his life when he returned home to Mrs. Frank, one of the Electric's defense bulwarks. The arbitration board, comprised of Al Parker and L. O. (Doc) Landon, evidently has become bogged up in the court procedures, for no answer to the protest has been given yet.

STUFFY SEEKS THIRD SACKER

Gimme Hot Corner Guardian And We're Ready

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1. (AP) John (Stuffy) McInnis, newly appointed manager of the Philadelphia nationals, says he needs only a smart and active third baseman to lift the chronic second division Phillies out of the National league mire in 1927. "Give me a good man and watch our smoke," is his prediction.

Returning to the scene of his former triumphs as a member of the championship Philadelphia Athletics of more than a decade ago, McInnis already has bartered and bought new strength for almost every department.

New Keystoner

The most notable acquisition is George Thompson, leading second baseman of the International league last season, who came to the Phils from Buffalo by way of the Giants in the trade that sent Catcher Butch Henline and Outfielder George Harper to New York. Thompson, a .360 hitter and 28 home runs to his credit last season, is down for regular guard duty at the middle station.

McInnis will play first base when portside flingers are in the box for the opposition, he says. At other times Attreau, from Norfolk in the Virginia league, will get the call. General utility wor kwill fall to Russ Wrightstone, a holdover, and possibly Joe Buskey, a recruit from Cumberland, Md.

Rubber Gets Chance

The Phils have three backstops. The veteran Jimmy Wilson will bear the brunt of the catching burden with the aid of Clarence Jonnard, a holdover, and Harry O'Donnell, up from the International league.

The pitching staff has been strengthened by the addition of Alex Ferguson, one time hurler for the Boston Red Sox and Washington Senators in the American league, and Jack Scott, secured from the Giants. Hal Carlson, right hand ace, again leads the staff, which includes Ulrich, Willoughby, Decatur, Dean and Baecht all righthanders. Two southpaws, Mitchell, a veteran, and Herb Pruett, brought back to the majors from the Pacific coast league, will be among the pitchers who leave February 27 for the spring training camp at Bradenton, Fla.

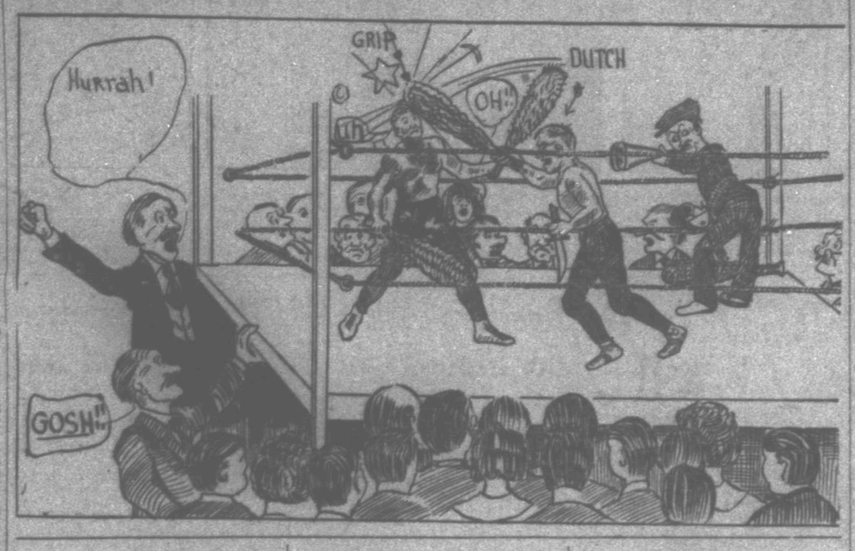

AGGIES HAPPY

A. and M. Preparing for Scrap With Frogs.

COLLEGE STATION, Feb. 1. (AP)—Encouraged by their victory over the Longhorns the Texas Aggies are preparing this week to invade the desert of the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs in Fort Worth Monday night. The Aggies displayed their best basketball form of the year against the Longhorns and indicated that the games against Arkansas and Southern Methodist University had made them a much more formidable outfit.

Coach D. X. Bible believes that the Aggies have a good chance of winning the remaining four games on their schedule. The playing of Johnny Konecny and N. A. Webster, heretofore rated as substitutes, against the Longhorns here assures them regular berths, it was stated. Konecny will start at guard and Webster at center against T. C. U. Captain Punk Baker, S. A. Clark, Red Petty and these two will comprise the team going to Fort Worth.

Won't Be Quite So Rough Tonight But Some Wish They Would

Now if you ask Police Commissioner Frank Queisser, nothing would suit him better than being able to sit at ringside and be within the law witnessing a melee between Dutch Mantell and Charley Grip as they are cartooned above. The cop commish, ever an exponent of clean athletics, has been plagued off and on for many months by fans who don't relish the rough stuff. And the roughneck pair, Grip and Mantell although they never have met in a Wichita Falls ring, have been the source of all the trouble. Boisterous by-play by Mantell and biting, slugging and butting by Grip in matches with ordinarily clean opponents have caused Queisser to turn thumbs down on them.

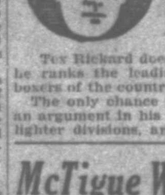

"There is no law in Texas against wrestling, but there is against assault and battery," said Queisser a couple of weeks ago, "but if you ever put this Grip and Mantell in the ring together, as far as I am concerned they can try to half-murder each other. I hope each can muss up the other enough to make him think twice before starting any more of this flagrant violation of the rules of clean sports."

Whereupon, Charley and Dutch were billed for tonight at the Palace and they would be given clubs and knives to scrap it out with Queisser's approval were it back in the old Roman arena days instead of this gentle twentieth century era.

FOR FAIR FEMININITY

Feminine fans and sports women have tagged right along with The Record News sports pages season after season through football, basketball and baseball. But most of the athletic dope has been strictly of the masculine variety, about male athletes, what they are doing and how they do it.

Now comes an inning for femininity. Beginning with Friday morning The Record News will carry pictorial articles about women in sports, tips and aid about how to play the game, be it basketball, tennis, swimming or any other sport women are interested in. Short, snappy and instructive articles for the woman athlete and for the woman who is not an athlete, but who wishes to be in good physical trim and healthy condition all the time, will be written daily and carried on The Record News sports page by Mary Isabel Caldwell, Northwestern university director of women's athletics and a noted woman athlete.

SPORT a la CARTE

BY ROY GROVE

Ted Rickard doesn't miss it when he ranks the leading professional boxers of the country.

The only chance for any sort of an argument in his listing is in the lighter divisions, and even at that he has done well, owing to inactivity of the lads or the merits of their few fights.

One of his most startling decisions was the ranking of Tiger Flowers, in the middleweight class, over the champion Mickey Walker and in this same grouping he puts Pete Latzo in third place, likewise heading him off in the welterweight division.

In ranking Flowers ahead of Walker, he does the right thing. Their last meeting was rather shady, financially, and also through a rocky decision, but backed by the Chicago board.

Princeton is charged with playing dirty football with Harvard. There is nothing to keep Harvard from learning a few tricks themselves.

Of course football is one game that can be called dirty if you stand there and let the fellow flop you.

Making the wife get up, turn off the alarm clock and pull down the window is a dirty game, too.

Says Mr. Landis to Ban Johnson—Ah, now, just what did they say?

Walker would lose his title should he meet Flowers in a return battle.

This writer cannot agree with Tex in ranking Tommy Freeman to head the second group of welterweights. Rickard ranked them as Tete Latzo, Joe Dundee and Eddie Roberts in the first group.

Freeman, at least, could have been placed third in place of Roberts. Freeman has met all the boys except these three and is Rickard's reason for placing him as he did. Tommy's fight with Dundee was a case of his manager stopping the bout when Joe cut Tom's lip so badly that he couldn't go on with the battle, although in the best of condition.

Tom has never met Roberts, which is the logical bout if Rickard would rank him with the welterweights.

We understand his mother had a hard time washing his ears in his youth.

This man Mr. Navin
Is not such a dub.
He hires a poet for his boss.
That's rhythm for his club.

We hear Mr. Wrigley is going to hold another swim next year. If these contestants are really serious about the thing they will go out there and swim back and forth a couple of times in order to get used to it.

Mike McTigue is going to fight Paul Berlenbach—or words to that effect.

McTigue Wants To Biff Heavies

Veteran Says He Can Sock With Meanest

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. (AP)—At a time when most men of the ring are ready to hang up their gloves and retire, Mike McTigue, finding himself the sudden possessor of a knockout punch has sallied forth with the enthusiasm of youth and ambition to win the heavyweight championship of the world.

A fairy story? It sounds a bit so as you hear Mike, in his gentle brogue express the firm conviction that he will knock out rugged Jack Sharkey if they meet on February 25, then cut a path through the rest of the heavyweights with the same right hand punch that felled Paul Berlenbach the other night.

But if confidence and the wallop mean anything, Mike appears well equipped for this starting sortie, despite the fact he only tips about 170 in his best fighting trim and admits he is 33.

Not So Old

"They have said I'm everywhere from 35 to 40," Mike smiled, "but I hope I may never see the light of another day if I was more than 33 on my birthday last November."

And so far as the weight is concerned, McTigue points to the punching power housed in the comparatively slight frame of Bob Fitzsimmons; also to the manner in which he himself has been dropping big men, such as King Solomon and Berlenbach.

"If they want any more proof that my 170 pounds are enough to put behind my wallop I'm ready to show 'em," retorts Mike to the critics who count him out of the heavyweight picture.

"Where did I get my punch?" Mike repeats.

Always Had Punch

"Well, you know I've always had it but I haven't used it, first because of an old fracture in my right thumb which hadn't healed properly and also because I grew too cautious while holding the light heavyweight title.

"But my fighting ability now is due to two things—the teaching of my new manager, Jimmy Johnston, and an operation which removed a small piece of bone from my hand, making it as good as new."

Mike's stance, as exhibited in scoring five knockouts in the last six months is now an aggressive fighting pose with the full weight of his body behind his right hand punch instead of jabbing defensive style of boxing which took most of the power from his blows.

"The title? I'm not anxious to win back the light heavyweight crown," he declared. "It was more bother than it was worth. I can make more money now without it. I'd like to fight Jack Delaney again to settle accounts, but I'm willing to meet any of the heavyweights in Tex Rickard's elimination tournament starting with Sharkey. I'd like to fight Maloney later because I think he'll knock out Delaney."

HORNSBY STILL ON FENCE TOP

Cards Reelect Rogers As Director, But—

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. (AP) — Rogers Hornsby will find himself out of a job unless he disposes of his stock in the St. Louis club before the start of the season, Charles A. Stoneham, president of the Giants, declared Tuesday in a statement which was concurred in by President Heydler of the National league.

Stoneham added there is "no chance" that the Giants will call off their deal and return Hornsby to St. Louis as a result of the player's difficulties.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 1. (AP)—Despite his trade to the New York Giants Rogers Hornsby, former manager of the St. Louis Cardinals and still the second largest stockholder in the club, Tuesday was re-elected a director.

Two new directors were elected. They are William Walsingham, partner in the automobile business of Sam Breadon, Cardinal president and controlling stockholder, and Lon Hocker, an attorney.

President John Heydler of the National league in a telegram received here Tuesday "reiterated his previous statement that neither Hornsby nor any other player can play ball with one club while holding stock in another."

All officers of the club were re-elected.

Sullivan Defeats Catalina Channel

Massachussets Man Crosses In 22 Hours

By EDMOND BEHR.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 1.—For the second time within a month, the 22-mile expanse of the Catalina channel has been vanquished, and Henry F. Sullivan of Lowell, Mass., told today how he made the long swim.

Sullivan, middle aged, was the first American to swim the English channel. It took him 22 hours and 45 minutes to swim the Catalina stretch yesterday, a time that was seven hours and 46 minutes slower than that of George Young, Toronto youth, who won the $25,000 Wrigley sea marathon on Jan. 15.

Wrigley Entrant.

The Massachusetts swimmer was an entrant in the Wrigley contest last month but was forced to give up after being in the water ten hours. His only regard for accomplishing the difficult feat is the satisfaction he gets from it—and also the publicity. He took to the water at the Isthmus on Catalina Island yesterday at 1:08 a. m. and touched the mainland at Point Vicente at 11:53 p. m. last night.

Trouble In Middle.

"My greatest trouble came in mid-channel, where I encountered adverse currents and headwinds that lasted until sunset. From about 11 a. m. until dark I made little progress. But when night came and the wind dropped, I went right ahead and was seven miles off shore.

"I hit the kelp bed at 11 p. m. and it took me just 50 minutes to cover that mile of water. I'm feeling fine today. The Catalina channel is a much easier stretch than the English channel, where the tides and currents are much worse."

Cobb Gushes With Heavy Appreciation

By Universal Service.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Feb. 1.—The club that makes Ty Cobb the best offer is going to get him for the coming season. It makes no difference whether it is the American or National league, Ty said that much here while heading for a turkey hunt with a party of friends.

"Of course I won't play with Detroit," he stated, recounting that he had been with the Detroit club for more than a score of years, "I have at least six good offers," said Cobb. Five were from major league clubs, he said, but refused to mention any names.

"I won't make up my mind which offer to accept until a get to Augusta later in the week," Cobb added. "Right now I am in the hands of my friends and I am enjoying life. I have been through some dark hours, but I have come out on top. I thank the American fans for the loyal support they gave me and also the sporting editors, who have always been good to me. I appreciate it."

GIANTS COP SICKING

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 1. (AP)—In a deal closed today Eddie Sicking, second baseman of the Indianapolis American association club, was sent to the New York Giants in exchange for a shortstop and one other player, the names of whom were not made public.

DUTCH READY TO DO BATTLE

"Submarine Sock" In Action Again Tonight

THE CARD

Dutch Mantell, Amarillo, versus Charley Grip, Buffalo. Catch-weights, two falls to a finish.

John Ellis, New York, versus Theo (Swede) Swenson, Chicago. Middleweights, two falls to a finish.

Time: 8:15 tonight.
Place: Palace theater.

With fair weather and clear sailing written on the slate Matchmaker A. B. Ross declared Tuesday this evening's renewal of the Mantell-Grip argument is expected to prove the banner bout of the wrestling season. Both Grip and Dutch have been on hand several days. Each is in the best of physical condition with Mantell declaring he never felt better.

The Amarillo ape-man is confident of victory. He says, "You've gone and matched me with that big tramp (Grip is a middleweight, Dutch a welter) so you needn't blame me for what happens. Gimme a guy my size and I'll trim him gently, but I got to outguess that big bum and sock him down to my weight. But don't you worry; this old reliable Dutchman will be right there with the submarine sock."

Grip came near to murdering Mantell in an Amarillo match several weeks ago, but Dutch holds a decision, also, having outwitted the Lithuanian for a sharp victory.

John Ellis, the Greek, never has been beaten in this section but in Jensen, the exponent of the figure-four scissors, John is doped to find the sledding pretty rough. Swensen made his bow here last week by taking a one-fall match from Grip after Charley had finished off Johnny Carlin a few minutes before.

MACK WANTS COBB

Disappointed At Missing Out On Tris, Connie Goes After Ty

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1. (AP) Disappointed at not having obtained Tris Speaker for the Philadelphia Athletics, Manager Connie Mack said Tuesday that he would continue his efforts to get Ty Cobb, who, with Speaker, was recently exonerated of baseball scandal charges.

"I admire Speaker today more than I ever did," said Mack. "I have found him a square shooter. Some weeks ago he told me he would not sign any contract without first seeing me. He was true to his word. He gave me the impression that he would like to play here and I thought we had an even chance of obtaining him."

TO CHANGE RULES

Walter Hagen Predicts Alterations In Regulations.

DALLAS, Feb. 1. (AP)—Walter Hagen, national professional golf champion, today predicted a change in the rule of the United States golf association which penalizes an out-of-bounds shot two strokes, reducing the penalty to one stroke. Hagen is making headquarters here this week.

"What is the sense in charging two strokes for a well hit ball, for example, which falls within bounds but takes a bad hop and lands alongside the course?" Hagen said. "If the player had missed the ball altogether he would be penalized only one stroke."

O'REILLY PAID LEGION HONOR

Pat Carrigan Post Adopts Resolution of Tribute

Resolutions paying tribute to the late Myles O'Reilly, Wichita Falls pioneer builder, and expressing regret at his death have been adopted by Pat Carrigan Post No. 120, American legion. The resolutions have been ordered spread upon the records of the legion and copies sent to relatives.

The resolution follows:

"Whereas, God, in His Infinite Wisdom, has seen fit to call from this world our esteemed friend and ardent supporter, Myles O'Reilly.

"And, whereas, there are no words to describe the loyalty of his heart toward the American legion, and his untiring efforts in its behalf.

"And whereas, in his passing away the members of Pat Carriban Post American legion have sustained a great personal loss — yet, it is not an entire loss, for there will remain forever the fruits of a fragrant life and its influence upo nour own—for a great man and a good man has gone from us, but the influence of his life and work will shed its beams down through the years, for the Psalmist said, "The righteous shall be held in everlasting remembrance."

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, by the members of the Pat Carrigan Post American legion that in the departure of Myles O'Reilly this post has lost a faithful and everlasting friend; and the community a man of sterling character and unique ability; that this post mourns his departure; and our deepest sympathy be extended to his relatives and that a copy of this resolution be spread upon the minutes of Pat Carrigan Post American legion and a copy sent to the family."

QUEEN HIGH

Altus School Excited Over Fight For Honors

ALTUS, Feb. 1.—Interest is running high in the Altus senior high school this week with each of the three high school classes endeavoring to secure the most votes for their candidates in the race for Altus' high school queen.

The high school queen will be elected from the three candidates, Ruth Cowan, senior; Francelle Bellenger, junior, and Olga Mabry, sophomore.

Entertaining Visitors From Home

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

Elmer had never been in New York. When he wrote me he was coming, I arranged for a couple of days off to show him the town. I wanted to astonish him. It isn't often you have an opportunity to exhibit the wonders of the most marvellous metropolis in existence to a man who has never been farther away from his own Main Street than Marshaltown, Iowa. I determined to give Elmer something to talk about when he went back home.

He was so glad to see me that he didn't seem to pay much attention to the imposing magnitude of the Grand Central Station, when I met him at the train. I thought probably he was a little bewildered with it all, so I waved my arm around in various directions and inquired if it wasn't quite a sizeable place."

"Sall right," said Elmer, "You ought to see the new Central Depot. Brick built and with a tile roof, and reg'lar train sheds. Four trains a day there, every day in the year, not countin' excursions up to the Lake in the summer time. People come in from every hick burg for 15 miles around to look at it—just to look at it, mind you. They just drive up in their flivvers and gawk at it and then drive back home again satisfied that they've seen somethin'. And they have, at that. You ought to take a run out there and look it over. You'd be proud of the old place."

It struck me that the way to impress Elmer would be to spring something on him suddenly, so that he would get the full magnitude of it. So I steered him into the subway, and took an express down to City Hall Park. I wanted to lead him out into the daylight, where the Woolworth would hit him right in the eyes.

I asked him as we went down the stairs if he'd had heard much about the subway back home. "Oh yes," he said, "we heard of it of course. About them crowds and all. I suppose you have to run cars under ground here, and it's probably just as interestin' there being not so much to see in a big city like this. With us, we'd rather ride in the busses through the streets where we can look at the improvements goin' on from day to day.

"You may not believe me, but there's five stores goin' up on Main street right now, and one of them is this here steel fireproof construction, with office rooms in it up stairs, and a big hall for the Rotary club on the top story. They're goin' to have a kitchen connected with it so they can serve meals there. If you want to see a lively progressive little county seat you want to take a run back home some day."

At the City Hall Station, I piloted him up the stairs, and faced him toward the gothic tower just over the way.

"This will fetch him," I said to myself. "He'll catch his breath when he gets that bow on."

Elmer looked up and down Park Row.

"Where we goin' now? he asked.

"That's quite a building over there," I told him, pointing.

"Why yes, so it is. Something like the spire on the new Presbyterian church in a way, but higher of course. That Presbyterian church is admitted to be the prettiest in the northern section of the state. Cost thirty thousand to build, and there ain't but fifteen thousand mortgage on it. All the rest we raised ourselves with the sale of the old building, before we had a stone put in mortar. The Sunday school room will accommodate the biggest Christmas parties we'll ever want to give, and there's already been three swell weddings and a couple of big funerals of old timers in the church itself. That building kind of reminds me of it, now you speak of it. Something in that spidery way it's built I guess. What did you say the name of it was?"

I didn't tell him. Plucking at his arm I turned him away and led him out on the bridge. I asked him please to shut his eyes, because I wanted to surprise him. The Woolworth Building hadn't done the trick, but I couldn't see how anybody could suddenly find himself a hundred and fifty feet over the East River, with ranks of skyscrapers on both sides of him, and not be impressed.

He sputtered considerably at the blindfold business, but he was a well disposed chap, so he gave in. At the top of the footway's arch I told him to look around, and stood waiting.

"Hum," he said. "This reminds me we've built a new bridge over Lime Creek since you left. I was one of the Board of County Supervisors that voted the money, and we had a contracting firm come from Dubuque to do the work. It's got two spands and a road way wide enough for four cars to pass. Abutments out of our own native lime stone.

"There's some talk of having the creek deepened so canoes can get back and forth over the riffles, making a racing course of a mile and a quarter, but we ain't decided about that yet. A town can't have all the modern improvements at once and still keep one of the lowest tax rates in our part of the state.

"I s'pose there's quite a lot of people in them buildings. Well, they ain't got nothin' on our business blocks. Why sometimes at night there's so many people on the sidewalks goin' out to their cars to ride home that we have to have traffic cops to keep them straight.

"Where's this Coney Island I hear so much about?"

"It's about six miles from here," I said, "but I don't think you'd be interested in it, after the home town."

"No, to tell you the truth, I don't believe I would. I don't suppose they've got nothing down there that we ain't seen on a little bit smaller scale, and any way them news reels shows us almost everything. I'll tell you what it is, old scout, there ain't no difference much in towns much except size, and size don't count like local spirit, and we're sure got that.

"I wish you'd duck your business for a while and come back home with me. I judge I'll be goin' back about tomorrow. I'll show you some things that will astonish you, actually astonish you. Why we got seven thousand population now, and a cement works and a tile factory, and four movie houses—four of 'em. I often wonder why you ever was fool enough to leave a live growin' town like that."

"This Reminds Me We Built a New Bridge Over Lime Creek Since You Left."

POLICE DOCKET LIGHT

Only three cases were called in corporation court Tuesday morning. One man was fined for drunkenness, another for wrong driving, while a third drew a fine of $1 for parking in an alley.

CHICAGO AND LONDON TALK

Newspaper Manages Short Ocean Conversation

CHICAGO, Feb. 1. (AP)—Chicago talked to London yesterday over the telephone; talked that is, until a telephone company supervisor found out what was being done and ended the conversation on the plea that such service was not contemplated at present.

The call was from the office of the Herald and Examiner to the newspaper's London correspondent and was completed through direct connection at the switchboard of the New York American. It was described as the longest telephone call on record, involving a 4,500-mileage. The previous record was from Havana, Cuba, to Catalina Island, off California, over an estimated distance of 4,000 miles.

Operator Butts In.

"Who is this speaking," came the voice from London when the call was put through. "Chicago? Congratulations, Chicago."

It was here that the operator in New York grasped the fact that Chicago was talking with London.

"This can not be done," a supervisor interrupted. "We are not ready for this service. We can not permit you to continue the conversation."

The cost of the call was $29.25—$4.75 for service to New York and $25 for one minute's conversation with London.

"Amazingly clear was the comment of listeners here.

JAKE IS LIBERAL

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—"Rinaldo and Armida," a Van Dyck masterpiece bought in London by Jacob Epstein, a former peddler, who now has a million dollars worth of works of art, is to hang in the Baltimore art museum as a loan from the new owner. The painting, 90 by 96 inches, had been the property of the Dukes of Newcastle since Charles I gave it to one of them. Painted in 1630 it depicts a knight lured by a sorceress from battling the Sarcens. It cost Epstein $250,000.

NEGRO IN JAIL

BIRMINGHAM, Feb. 1. (AP)—Horace D. Devaughn, negro, who has confessed to slaying Mrs. Ruby Thornton and A. B. Moore on a lonely road near here on the night of January 19, was in the Jefferson county jail today under double guard to insure his safety. Moore was supervisor of safety and sanitation for the Southern railway.

INFANT PRODGY

ATLANTIC CITY, Feb. 1—Mary Campbell is the first baby to talk over the trans-Atlantic telephone. Her uncle, Joseph, in London heard her voice very distinctly when she cooed and gurgled. Mary is 13 months old.

OLD BILL GOES OUT

FOND DU LAC, Wis, Feb. 1.—Old Bill Maxwell, presumably the oldest convict in the world, is dead at 88. A model prisoner, he had refused a parole for years. He was in the 55th year of a life sentence for murder.

MILLS CONFIRMED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. (AP)—The nomination of Representative Ogden L. Mills of New York, to be under secretary of the treasury was confirmed late today by the senate.

He's Not Skinny Bill Now!

Gained Pounds of Weight in Only 3 Weeks with New Yeast and Iron—or pay nothing

Thousands are amazed at IRONIZED YEAST. They can't understand the magic by which IRONIZED YEAST transforms thin, run down, pasty-faced men into well-filled-out, clear-skinned, vigorous people. Those who have been benefited could tell you (for their letters tell us) how a one course treatment of IRONIZED YEAST has given them 5 to 15 pounds of firm flesh, cleared the skin, improved digestion, assimilation and bowel action. It has put them on their feet again—given them a new interest and pleasure in life.

Vegetable iron and yeast have always been known as ideal blood and body builders. But it remained for us to combine these two vital elements in a highly concentrated form. By our new, special formula IRONIZED YEAST is 9 times more effective than ordinary baker's yeast and iron alone.

Sickening Oil Unnecessary.

A single tablet of IRONIZED YEAST gives you all the weight-building benefits contained in 19 tablespoonfuls of cod liver oil—without the sickening, fishy taste or "repeating" afterward.

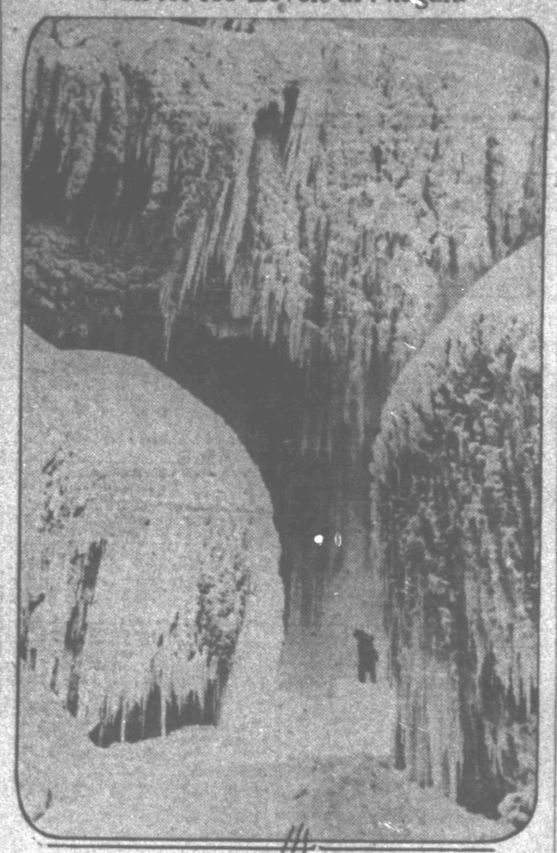

IRONIZED YEAST speeds up assimilation so that you get the full benefit of the food you eat. It clears the blood of impurities that ruin complexion, giving you a nice, clear, healthy skin. It will pick you right up and fill you with the pep and "life" you have always longed for.

If you are below normal weight—take warning! Underweight people have low resistance to disease. Do something now to put on good firm flesh. Take IRONIZED YEAST. See your body build up. Notice how your skin clears, your digestion improves and you feel new strength and pep. Absolutely safe, containing no harmful drugs.

Try It on "Money-Back" Offer

Go today to any drug store and get a full size treatment of IRONIZED YEAST. If after this generous trial you are not delighted with effects, ask for your money back. It will be refunded immediately. If inconvenient to buy from druggist, send $1.00 direct to THE IRONIZED YEAST CO., ATLANTA, GA., DESK 84C.

Fun for Ice-Lovers at Niagara

Venturesome ice-lovers are having fun exploring "Cave of the Winds" at Niagara Falls as it appears in winter dress.

SEVERE QUAKE

Georgetown Seismograph Records Long Tremors.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. (AP)—An earthquake, described by Director Tondorff as "very severe" was recorded today by the Georgetown university seismograph. The tremors began at 1:15 p. m., and continued until 3:30, reaching a maximum between 2:04 and 2:11. The distance was estimated at 7,200 miles from Washington.

EUGENE DEAD

OMAHA, Feb. 1.—R. B. Robinson, 49, engineer in charge of maintenance for the Union Pacific railroad, is dead.

He was one of the most widely known railroad engineers in the west.

REAL ESTATE NOTE

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., Feb. 1. Pounds: An eight-room house in fair condition, presumably swept 100 miles from Nashville by a Cumberland river flood. Owner may have same by calling at Tobacco Port.

FORGOT HER STOMACH!

How foolish to let your stomach dictate your diet. It is possible you could eat lots of things you now deny yourself—have you ever taken a Stuart tablet! Harmless, but the effect is there—distress from indigestion often ended in two minutes.

Do try Stuart's tablets! See how serene they make the stomach; how even one will sweeten the whole system and insure the breath. A sweet stomach for twenty-five cents.

Free BOX Now

Get a pocket metal box of Stuart's tablets for a quarter—keep it filled from the big 60c size. Sold in every drugstore, or full box free; write F. A. Stuart Co., Dep't N 61, Marshall, Mich.

Life Is Hard For a Nervous Woman

Mrs. L. C. Messer

Houston, Texas.—"I was badly run down in health—suffered with headache, backache and pains. My appetite was poor and I lost in weight. I was nervous and could not sleep. I never found anything to be of much benefit to me until I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gave me complete and permanent relief in a surprisingly short time."—Mrs. L. C. Messer, 119 Hogan St.

All druggists. Tablets or liquid. Your health is most important to you. Why not write Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for free medical advice or send 10c for trial pkg. of Favorite Prescription Tablets.—Adv.

Winnowing Basket Used To Clean Grain On Exhibit Here

A winnowing basket claimed to be 200 years old, which was used for cleaning grain is now on display in K. P. Belden Furniture company's window at 817 Eleventh street. This rare specimen was used by Mr. Belden's great grandfather before the blowing mill came into existence. The grain was first beaten with a rawhide twill then placed in a basket and tossed up in the air until the chaff had blown away.

RAILS HEAD STRONG TRADE

Stocks Continue Strong On Big Volumes

BY BROADAN WALL.
Universal Service Financial Expert.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Stocks continued strong today with the railroads at the head of the list of high grade stocks which are lodged in strong hands. This is indicated by the way prices snapped back the last few sessions. The continued strength of the market is converting some of the bears to the bull side and has resulted in greater participation on the part of the public. The fact that brokers loans show a decline is another indication that stocks have passed from weak to strong hands.

Short covering was again in evidence today. The market has been sold to a stand-still and bear buying is expected to continue. A more confident feeling over the outlook for security prices is spreading over Wall Street. There are still a number of pessimists but they are not as outspoken in their views as heretofore. The Mexican situation appears to be getting better and accounts for the buying of American Smelting securities. Money loaned at 4 per cent.

Wheeling in Demand.

Wheeling and Lake Erie and Western Maryland were in persistent demand throughout the day. The advance continued in the face of a report that Lorce, of the Delaware and Hudson, denied that he was after the Wheeling and Lake Erie. What stimulated buying was a report early in the day that Rockefeller would give out a statement regarding the W. and L. E. after the close of trading. Buying developed in Lake and Eastern and the stock rose approximately two points. Higher prices are spoken of for this issue. Other standard issues enjoyed a good inquiry which came principally from banking institutions.

Motors held ground with another demand prevailing for Mack Trucks. This company earned approximately $16 a share last year and is expected to earn double that amount this year. The company is turning out a new electric motor truck which is expected to prove a sensation. The outlook for this company favors an appreciation in the value of the stock. Hudson motors maintained a firm tone. A demand prevailed for the rubber and tire stocks. U. S. Rubber led the high priced shares; Ajax the cheaper grade issues. Recent strength of General Motors has brought out reports stockholders will get a large dividend in the next check sent out by the corporation.

Denial that consideration was being given to a reduction in Mid-Continent oil prices caused short covering in the oils. Houston oil continued its advance and sponsors for the issue predict better prices in the near future. Insiders are picking up independent oil and gas.

Buy Bigger Wells.

The company recently brought in some new wells which should make them better earners. Lion oil duplicated its high mark. This stock is regarded as a bargain, selling at the price it does when estimated earnings of $4 a share this year are taken into consideration. The stock carries a $5 dividend and there is the possibility of extras this year.

Marland and Continent showed little change. Mid-Continent Petroleum directors are likely to place the stock on a $3 annual dividend basis and Marland insiders, it is said, are planning to place the stock on a $5 annual basis. An increase in the Marland dividend, it is believed, will be the signal for a broad advance in the oils under sponsorship of banking interests.

Accumulation continues in the tobaccos and this group should drift into the limelight once this buying has been completed. United Cigar Stores and Tobacco Products may be the leaders, although the former was stronger than the latter today. Buying of Cigar Stores is based on the belief that the dividend will be increased. Tobacco Products owns 90 per cent of Cigar Stores stock it should benefit from any higher payment.

Benefits Accruing.

Buying has been taking place recently in Consolidated Cigar. This company last year bought the G. H. P. Cigar Co., for $10,000,000 and is understood to have obtained substantial benefits from the merger through manufacturing economies and combined sales organization.

The result of these economies is expected to be shown in the forthcoming annual report. Earnings for the common, it is forecast, will exceed an annual rate of $12 a share for the period during which the merger was in effect, July 1 to September 31.

The company now makes approximately 70 per cent of the cigars by machinery and in this way effects a large savings in labor cost. It has 42 plants in various cities, all of which are practically working at capacity.

Pullman sold off following the recapitalization plan, which is expected to result in a split-up 2½ for 1 on which would equal $10 on the present $5 shares. Amalgamated leather is being picked up. There is approximately 40 per cent in back of dividends on the preferred which may be funded. The common, it is rumored, is earning $7 a share. Buying of Sears Roebuck is for the account of Chicago interests and Wall Street believes that negotiations for a merger of that company with Montgomery Ward are on again.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.(AP)—Stock prices turned irregular late today after a early period of strength. Late selling represented profit taking by floor traders who had bought stocks "for a turn" and the inevitable bear selling which accompanies every rally of importance. Both the rail and industrial averages closed practically unchanged on the day, although rather wide movements took place in a number of issues in each group. Trading showed a moderate increase in volume, total sales running close to one and one half million shares.

Easy credit conditions, reflected in the shading of the 4 per cent call rate in the outside market, the decrease of over $25,000,000 in brokers' loans last week and the prompt over subscription of new bond offerings provided the back ground for the advance.

Industrials Lose.

Standard industrials, such as U. S. Steel common, General Motors, Baldwin, American Can, Allied Chemical, American Smelting and Woolworth all lost ground, bte net losses ranging from fractions to 1¼ points. However, such specialties as Freeport Texas, Texas Gulf Sulphur, National Supply, R. H. Macy, Warren Brothers and General Outdoor Advertising certificates sold at their highest price in a year, or longer.

American ship and commerce and the Southern Dariel issues touched new lows.

Further accumulation in the rubber shares probably was inspired by the further restriction of 10 per cent in output under the Stephenson plan. Ajax again changed hands in large volume today, the high being 12⅝, the highest price since last March. U. S. Rubber and B. F. Goodrich closed about a point higher. Buying of the oils was of a selective character, Houston and Producers and Refiners common and preferred, being pushed into new high ground while Maryland, Pan-American "B" and some of the other popular issues receded slightly.

Rail Issues Gain.

Speculative activity in the rails centered in a few of the so-called "merger issues." Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred was the star performer, soaring 19¾ points to another new high record of 74¾. The common crossed 65 to a new top. Western Maryland common and second preferred each soared over 5 points to new peak quotations, and sharp gains also were recorded by Peoria and Eastern, Pittsburgh and West Virginia and Nashville and Chattanooga.

Call money held steady at 4 per cent, all day, but loans as low as 3½ were reported in the "outside market." Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Another rapid advance in Spanish pesetaas, which carried them to a new peak at 16.45 cents, was the only change of importance in the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling ruled at $4.84⅝ and French francs around 3.93 cents.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 1.(AP)—The cotton market was decidedly quiet today with little trading. The price trend proved slowly upward due to favorable Liverpool cables, prospects for unsettled weather in the belt and large exports for the day. The market opened two to three points up, eased off a point or two in the early trading but soon started to improve on some covering and a little trade buying, showing around mid-day a gain over the previous close of seven to nine points. The market hardly moved during the first half of the afternoon prices fluctuating narrowly within a point or two of the top with long intervals between trades. In the late trading the market turned firmer on covering by shorts and made new highs, 12 to 14 points above the previous close. The close was steady and practically at the highs, showing net gains of 11 to 13 points.

In sympathy with better cables first trades showed gains of two to three points but soon eased off only to rally again on the unsettled weather. By mid-season March was trading to 13.30, May to 13.03 and July to 12.65.

During the first half of the afternoon prices fluctuated narrowly, at no time dropping more than two points below the highs of the morning, in the late trading the market firmed up, making new highs at 13.34 for March, 13.03 for May and 12.70 for July. The close was practically at the top. Exports for the day totalled 16,500 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.(AP)—The cotton market just about recovered yesterday's losses in today's trading. Offerings were light while sellers of yesterday disappeared to be covering or to report of continued steadiness in the southern spot situation. May contracts, which had sold off from 13.54 at the close Saturday to 13.44, the low point yesterday afternoon and 13.48 today. The general market closed steady within a point of the best, showing net advances of eight to ten points.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to an advance of two points in response to relatively steady cables. A little southern selling was readily absorbed, and the market was very quiet later in the day, prices ruling steady on trade buying and covering.

The failure of hedging to become more active toward the close stimulated the covering movement that paced the best prices of the day were touched in late trading, March selling at 13.54, and October at 12.97. Part of the buying here during the day was attributed to price fixing on cotton sold for export to Liverpool and there was also some buying supposed to be for European trade account. Aside from that, demand was attributed chiefly as covering by shorts who were influenced by the apparent absence of southern selling pressure.

According to some local brokers there has been considerable selling recently either in liquidation of long accounts, or for a reaction, on a theory that southern spot markets would weaken after the filling of January contracts. Part of today's buying was supposed to represent covering of such sales owing to private reports of an unchanged or steady spot basis in the interior and continued demand for low grades.

Private cables reported continental and Bombay buying in Liverpool with lasting fight.

Exports today 115,500, making 6,746,429 so far this season; port receipts 52,789; U. S. port stocks 2,364,939 bales.

STOCK-A-DAY

A consolidation completed in September 1926 involving four cement corporations which had been profitably operated for from 15 to 25 years, brought the Pennsylvania Dixie Cement corporation into existence. In addition to manufacturing cement, the corporation owns subsidiaries producing sand, gravel, lime, tile and other products.

The company owns seven cement manufacturing plants with an aggregate capacity production of 10,000,000 barrels of cement annually. They are located in Pennsylvania, Tennessee, New York and Georgia. Each plant constitutes a complete unit with reserves of raw material and adequate equipment. As of June 30, 1926, the properties outside of working capital were appraised at $34,762,000.

Funded debt consists of $13,000,000 while capital stock outstanding consists of $13,000,000 7 per cent series A, cumulative, convertible, preferred shares of $100 par and 400,000 shares of no par common. Preferred is redeemable at 110 and accrued dividends and is convertible into common at the rate of 1-1-2 shares of common for each share of preferred. Voting power rests in the common.

Net sales of the constituent properties have increased from $11,812,000 in 1923 to $13,900,000 in 1925. For seven months ended July 31, 1926 sales amounted to $8,340,000 while net earnings amounted to $3,017,000. For the 12 months ended Sept. 30, 1926, operating profits applicable to interest were approximately $5,134,000. As of that date, current assets were $8,202,148 current liabilities $1,777,678 and net working capital $6,424,470. An initial dividend of 1 3-4 per cent was paid on the preferred Dec. 15, 1926 and a dividend of 80 cents on the common was paid Jan. 1, 1927.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.(AP)—Something of a flurry in wheat resulted today from an erroneous rumor that the Chinese minister to London had asked for his pass ports. Denials of the report were not received until after the market had closed. Final quotations on wheat were firm, ⅝ to ¾c net higher, corn ⅜c to ⅝ off, oats at ⅛@⅞c decline to ⅛c advance, and provisions unchanged to 10c up.

Indications of increasing arrivals of corn had a bearish effect both on corn values and on oats.

Likelihood that a moderate reduction in stocks on hand would be shown by the monthly warehouse report gave a lift to the provision market.

WOOL PURCHASED

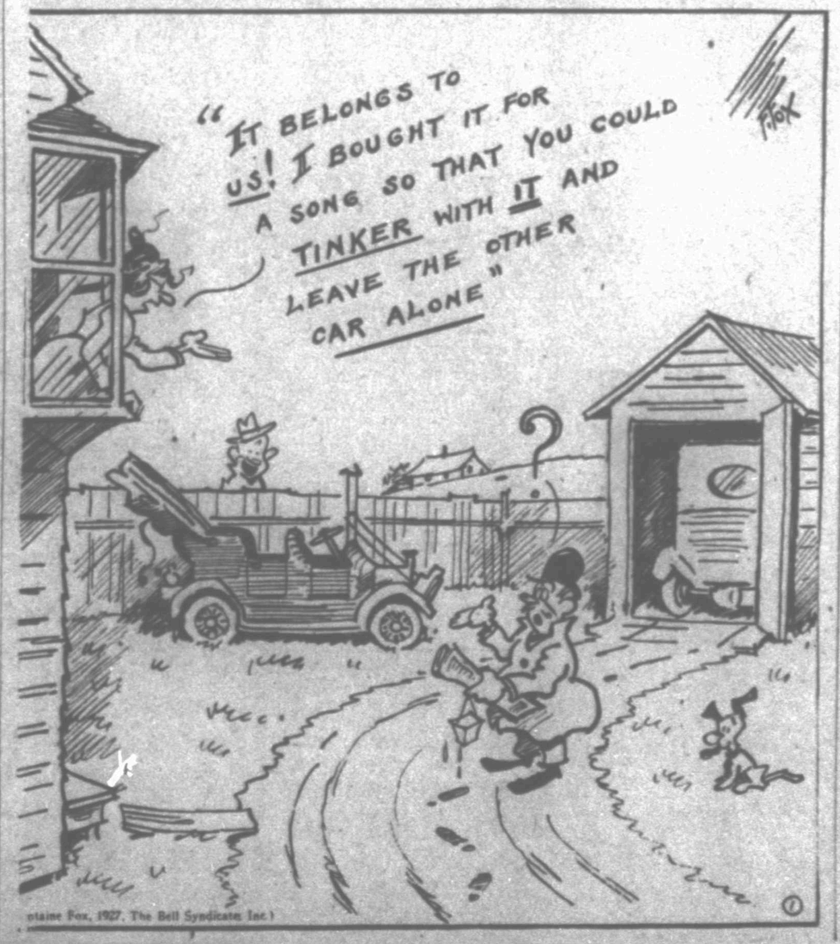

Estimated 4,000,000 Pounds Is Contracted For

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Feb. 1.—An estimated 4,000,000 pounds of long, spring wool has been contracted in Texas with buying steady last week at prices ranging from 35 cents to 37 1-2 cents per pound, Charles H. Evans of Sonora, representing S. Silberman & Sons, Chicago, set a new peak when he paid R. A. Halbert of Sonora 38 cents for 115,000 pounds. Many growers continue holding for 40 cents.

The largest clips were obtained by J. M. Lea and other San Angelo buyers for Draper & Co., Boston, who purchased Bob Cauthorn's 150,000 pounds and 100,000 pounds from Ed Mayfield. Joe B. Blackeney of San Angelo, for Hallowell, Jones & Donald, Boston, also contracted a total of about 250,000 pounds in Sutton county, his latest big purchase being that of 55,000 pounds from Johnson and Fields.

MOST EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE TWO CARS

SECOND LUKE FAILS TO HIT

But McElreath and Sugget Start One Anyway

BY TOM TRULY
Oil Editor, The Record News

Is the Muenster townsite pool a "one-well" affair?

That is a burning question among local operators who are following the development in Cooke county. The results of several exploitations in the vicinity of the Oil Operators Trust producer have cast a pall of gloom over that particular section of the Cooke county map although there are several wells drilling which have not yet reached the Muenster pay horizon.

No. 2 Luke Misses

Oil Operators Trust company No. 2 Ben Luke has missed the pay and is drilling at 1325 feet. This company's No. 1 Kleiss is making very little oil from the sand at 1285 to 1300 feet.

Northeast of Munster the Malone Oil company (Lynch, Stahl, et al) is drilling below 1600 feet without finding a pay in No. 1 John Bayer.

The Magnolia Petroleum company has reached a depth of 850 feet in No. 1 Johnson, located north of Muenster in the Jonathan Clark survey.

South of the Hooser pool and in the T. J. Hutchinson survey, Homer Chapman is drilling below 1300 feet in his No. 1 Montgomery.

The Sun Oil company in No. 1 Grotte, north of Saint Jo and in the E. T. R. R. survey, has reached a depth of 1260 feet where a thin sand was encountered.

More Optimistic

Despite all of the crepe which is being hung around wildcat rigs in Cooke county, McElreath and Sugget are a little more optimistic and have made location to drill their No. 1 Fisher, two miles southeast of Muenster and in section 18, of the Jno. Burnett survey.

Amerada Petroleum company is putting down a deep cable tool test which is being watched closely on the Ruby Walker land in the Adam Dozier survey. This test has reached a depth of 1150 feet.

An apparent duster is the Eggers, et al, No. 1

At The

Civic Clubs

Stacy's Stuff —
The Whole Show—
Various Athletics—
Measure It—

Ad scriveners as a luncheon club struck a heavy popular note Tuesday for guests if any, and there were, by upsetting the usual civic organization dope bucket with some of the consumers toppling off into dreamland.

Alva Wilgus for some reason or other, introduced Harwood Stacy, the barrister who intimated he had been billed for an oration on advertising but alibied that he had been "half sick the past two days," doesn't know very much about advertising, lawyers don't advertise to a very great extent, anyway, and then gabbed the boys and girls with a catch-as-catch-can message purported to have been thought up while standing in line the night before awaiting opportunity to cop an auto license.

Speech Makes Hit.

With such a preface, Stacy's speech loomed as a dud, but he finally unlimbered and wisecracked 'em a number of sharp-pointed quibs that put everybody in exceptionally high humor. With a set of razzes for "these biggest fool proverbs like 'All's well that ends well' and the rest," Stacy swung around to the business in hand, apparently that of convincing the club that "lawyers are ever so conservative." Nobody laughed. In fact, everybody present looked like they believed him.

Stacy gushed a few about how little lawyers advertise but didn't touch very heavily on the barristers who make large court room flares and boisterous circus and grandstand play thereby obtaining columns and columns of free newspaper advertising all because John Q. Public gets a great kick out of reading about the woof-woof 'em boys and their antics. And he gave the run-around to the mouth-to-mouth publicity these fellows derive from the same acrobatics.

Jury System Best.

Stacy championed the present jury system of deciding cases although admitting the system appears more or less the bunk. He delved into ancient history a bit in illustration that your jury is far more capable of reaching a just verdict than were the methods used in other days such as the fire test, physical combat may-the-best-man-win, and the argument of a case by the plaintiff and defendant with one man sitting as judge, jury and whatnot.

Ad clubbers seemingly are just as much interested in sports as the rest of the world. During the fodder session preliminary to the judicial declamation, half the talk was on athletics of some sort or other. Several gurgled grandstand manager gems about the Tris Speaker deal with Washington. Somebody else was worried about Ty Cobb. Al Ellis sat wondering out loud what the Tia Juana race schedule is. Charley Spragins had a few to say about a certain protested basketball game and Voyle Armstrong confided on another subject that "you cannot satisfy everybody but you can, MOST everybody."

This Is It.

In the interim or something, Josephine Fisk read minutes of last week's session and followed with a telegram from C. W. Alexander the big shoe man from somewhere, who has agreed to talk to the club February 16.

Preacher W. D. Cook climbed up and applesauced the organization eloquently for admitting him as a member of the club.

Contest was staged between Ellis, Armstrong and Paul Colvert to decide who is the most baldomed. Armstrong won in a canter.

That constituted the session. President W. S. Abbott afterward urged the press to write a long story about the meeting, which it has.

23 New Members Added to Club In Drive Here

A report by Miss Ruth Patton, president, on her trip to Fort Worth where she attended the convention of the Y. W. C. A. and Business and Professional Women's clubs, featured the meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club at the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday night. The membership drive of the club was closed with 23 new members. Mrs. Florence McNeil's team was declared winner for having secured 13 of the new initiates. New members were introduced, and plans discussed for an invitation dance, February 22.

OLD GAG FAILS

Youth Held By Police After "Victim" Tells Story

An attempt at playing the time-worn "knife game" brought two youths to the police station last night after their intended victim had pointed them out to officers. The young men had tried to bet with another youth on whether or not a knife could be opened after the usual preliminaries of provoking an argument.

Pawn tickets found on one of the pair may serve to connect him with a recent theft, officers stated.

LOSES $123

Earl Parmer Reports Loss of Purse

K.P. INVITES MOODY HERE

Governor and Other Notables Asked To Ceremony

The Wichita Falls lodge of the Knights of Pythias is expecting to entertain Gov. Dan Moody at a huge initiation and ceremonial to be staged here in March, it was learned from officials of the organization Tuesday.

Governor Moody is a member of the Knights of Pythias at Taylor, Texas. The work will be conferred upon approximately 75 candidates, according to an announcement.

Other prominent men associated with the order, who will attend the ceremony, are Harry Love of Indianapolis, Ind., supreme keeper of records and seals, who will confer the degrees, and T. A. Freeman of Fort Worth, grand chancellor of Texas.

Definite plans for the entertainment of the out-of-town guests, and the program for the meeting will be announced later.

CLASS PRESIDENTS

John Lyle and Dell Hatchett Head Juniors and Sophs

The announcement of the election of John Lyle as president of the junior class of the Wichita Falls high school, and of Dell Hatchett as president of the sophomore class, was made during the chapel program at the high school and Junior college Tuesday morning.

Other officers named are: For the junior class, Sarah Creath, vice-president; Jean Fisk, secretary, and Bernice Brown, treasurer. For the sophomore class, Joline Wood, vice-president; Paul Cain, secretary, and Elizabeth Langford, treasurer. The announcement was by Russell Cumley.

Talks were made by Dean S. H. Rider, John Kauffman, James Moore, Curtiss Watson, Miss Mary Tancred, Shirley Donnell and Miss Mary Louise Staley, welcoming the new students in the high school and college classes.

TRAINING SCHOOL.

McKinney Gives Principal Address; Johnson Speaks Today

Dr. S. S. McKinney was the principal speaker at yesterday's session of the Wichita Falls district standard training school at the Floral Heights Methodist church. Dr. McKinney's subject was "How To Evangelize." Various methods of evangelization were given in the talk.

Dr. W. J. Johnson, presiding elder of the Wichita Falls district, will speak during the intermission today on "The Sunday School, An Agency for Evangelism." Dr. George M. Gibson has returned from Dallas and met both sections of his class yesterday.

Thursday afternoon E. H. Bohmfalk, educational director of the First Methodist church will deliver the principal lecture. His subject will be "Our Sunday School Literature." No intermission period will be held Friday but instead a period devoted to closing the school will be held following the class meetings.

CHURCH DRAMA

Story By Channing Pollock Told At First Christian.

The drama "The Fool" by Channing Pollock, will be given at the First Christian church tonight at 7:30. The story will be presented by excellent stereopticon pictures and lecture by the pastor, Dr. Floyd Bash.

This play has been presented all over America. It had a continuous run of over a year in New York theaters. It is the story of a young pastor who attempted to actually do as Jesus would do if He were living under our modern conditions.

R. E. Shepherd will lead in an inspiring song service before the drama-sermon and pictures. The public is invited to attend.

TAX ASSESSMENTS

City Workers Start Annual Tour Today.

Assessors from the city tax office will start Wednesday morning on taking renditions for 1927 taxes. Lists and forms have been prepared and the annual task, which is one of the largest the city office forces, will get under way.

Assessors Roper, Holt, Crouch and Swinburn will attend to the work this year. Three will begin in the residential sections and one in the business section.

Tax Assessor and Collector W. R. Hyer asks that all property owners here have their inventories ready so that a minimum of delay will be encountered by the assessing crews.

DE MOLAY MEETING

The De Molay patrol of Hope chapter, Order of De Molay for boys, met at the Masonic Temple for the weekly session Tuesday evening at 7:30. A business meeting of 30 minutes was conducted after which the boys were entertained with dancing and games at the home of Mrs. W. H. Costley, 1101 Monroe.

SCOUTS VISIT COURT

A group of Wichita Falls Boy Scouts, accompanied by Frank Creighton, city scout executive, visited the 89th district court Tuesday afternoon. The boys later made a tour of the Wichita county jail.

Reed Committee Gets Down to Business

AIR POSTAGE RATES CHANGE

Uniform Charge On Mail Now In Effect

New rates on air mail postage went into effect at the local post office Tuesday simultaneously with other points in the United States.

The new rate is 10 cents for each half ounce of mail, addressed to any place in the country. This succeeds the old rate of 10 cents an ounce for varying zones in the country.

Because the old rates were confusing and conflicted when air mail transported under private contract was turned over to government planes, it was deemed advisable to change them.

DOYLE SERVICES

Sister of Three Wichita Falls Men Claimed By Death.

Mrs. Anna Doyle, 78, who died at her home in Thornberry early Monday evening, was buried in the Charlie cemetery Tuesday afternoon. Funeral services were conducted from the Thornberry Baptist church at 2:30 p. m. yesterday.

Mrs. Doyle was well known in Wichita Falls, and was the sister of Henry, W. P., and C. E. Sonnamaker, all of this city.

Besides these she is survived by her husband and four children; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Sonnamaker of Thornberry; a sister, Mrs. Frank Wofford of Ledley, Okla., and four other brothers, Thomas, John, Oda and Hector Sonnamaker of Thornberry.

Additional Rooms Urged At South Side Baptist Church.

A total of $1015 was raised last night for the purpose of erecting additional Sunday school rooms for the South Side Baptist church in a banquet for the men of the church. Ladies of the church were hostesses to the men.

Charles Smoot was the principal speaker and Silas Merritt served as toastmaster. A discussion of the needs of the church was the main subject of talks made by Rev. J. T. Furniss, J. W. Nicholson, W. R. Harper, W. C. Perkins, D. R. Parker, Archie Walker and Truett Cone.

FOREIGN STAR

marillo Girl Enters "Stars of Future" Pageant

A talented star from as far away as Amarillo is to take part Saturday in the "Stars of the Future" pageant and entertainment to be held at the Palace theater. Alec Ross, manager of the affair, announced last night.

Little Miss Faye Marjorie Hoenschiedt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoenschiedt of Amarillo, will come to Wichita Falls especially for the affair.

Private school teachers of the city are drilling their wards industriously these days for the big event which promises to be a unique novelty in this city. Preceding the presentation of the tiny stars will be a huge parade in the afternoon in which over 300 youngsters will take part.

Today { At the Theaters

By Ruth Morrison

Majestic: "Valencia," starring Mae Murray; comedy, Topics of the Day and Pathe News.

Olympic: "Ladies at Play," with Doris Kenyon; Twentieth Century Review, vaudeville attraction; comedy and Fox News.

Strand: "Her Big Night," with Laura La Plante; Kinograms.

Mission: Gene Stratton Porter's "Laddie" and serial.

Gem: George O'Brien in "The Silver Treasure" and comedy.

Garden: "Desert Greed" and comedy.

Here is a last-minute reminder that today is the last showing for "Valencia" at the Majestic theater. Tomorrow, of course, opens with the vaudeville and "Valencia" will be no more for the theater folk of Wichita Falls. Have you seen it? If you haven't, here is a word picturization of Mae Murray's gorgeous gowns designed and planned especially for this picture:

Gowns made of gold or silver mesh—such as is used for coin bags—are all the rage now in Hollywood.

Mae Murray started the new vogue in her new Spanish film, "Valensia."

Pale green velvet is used as the material for the under dress of one striking gown and the coat is made of solid gold, in the form of a fine mesh, which was literally built over the actress' body.

The new picture, filmed on a spectacular scale is a vivid romance of Spain, with Miss Murray in the role of a circus girl who arouses the love of the governor of Barcelona, and through this is plunged into one of the strangest nets of intrigue ever depicted on the screen.

Lloyd Hughes plays the hero, and the cast includes Roy D'Arcy, Max Barwyn, Michael Vavitch, Michael Vlaroff and other well-known players.

COON HUNTING

City's Firemen Return To Old Sport On Wichita River

Coon hunting is the latest diversion of the city's fire fighters, since it has been discovered that large numbers of the animals are to be found on the banks of the Little Wichita river, some 18 miles south of Wichita Falls.

A party of nine firemen made the trip Monday night and returned early yesterday morning with one large coon, caught by a spotted hound called "Kentucky Bill."

Members of the party were, Bud Jones, Vernon Gresham, Rachael Bailey, Solon Harvick, Bill Habern, Bill Long, Felix Stewart, Kenneth Eochman and Earnest Byron.

CLUB TOLD OF PIPE COSTS

$15,000 Wichita Falls Annual Bill, Says Douglass

Deterioration of galvenized and cast iron pipe used in water distribution in Wichita Falls is costing close to $15,000 annually, Dr. A. H. Douglass, manager of the city water department, told members of the Technical club at the bi-monthly meeting of that organization Tuesday night at the Wichita club.

Dr. Douglass' address was of a highly technical nature and dealt with th echemistry of water to a large extent. Modern purification methods of water which were brought out in a recent water works convention in Dallas were explained by the speaker.

Galvanized, zinc coated pipe used in the city is costing about $6000 annually in depreciation, Douglass said, while cast iron pipe, which tuberculates badly under present water, has a minimum deterioration cost of $8500.

C. J. Holland, president of the club, presided.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache; no hawking, snuffling, mucous discharges, or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly.

It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.—Adv.

Runaway Flappers Glad To Return Home After Day In Jail Here

Four days spent in the seclusion of their room in a private residence here, and one night in the city jail without lipstick, mirror or beauty compact, were too much for two 15-year flappers who ran away from their home in Cleburne, Texas last Thursday.

They are going home today with their parents who arrived late last night upon summons of Chief of Police George Hodgins.

At first it was great sport, they told the chief. The thrill of traveling alone, of being searched for, and all that sort of thing. They even tried to "vamp" the handsome detective who brought them to the city hall.

But after a few hours in the village bastile they began to weary of the experience and were glad to hear that they soon were to return to "mother."

Local police had been on the lookout for the two girls for several days, and when one ventured down town to a restaurant she was immediately "spotted," and she told where her chum was to be found. They had left with only a pittance, and one of them had even pawned an expensive watch in order that they might live
