Red China Threatening Armed Attack On India

Nehru Reveals Warning Note; Solons Stirred

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru told an aroused parliament today that Communist China has threatened to send troops into India's territory. He vowed India would resist and repel them.

In one of the most bitter denunciations of Communist China he has ever made, Nehru accused the Peiping regime of betraying India.

He told the lower house that just two days ago Communist China had sent a warning that unless India halts its military activities on the border, Chinese troops will march into Indian territory.

Nehru said the warning was in reply to India's Oct. 31 note protesting Red China's aggressive moves on the Sino-Indian frontier.

Nehru said he had feared trouble was brewing shortly after India recognized Communist China's rights over Tibet. But he said he had never expected that Communist China would commit aggression.

Shouting members of parliament demanded to know why he recognized China's right in Tibet.

Nehru replied: "We could not march into Tibet. No one in the world could stop it. The Chinese would have come there."

Opposition members in parliament Monday demanded that India break off diplomatic relations with Red China. All except the Communist urged Nehru to champion the cause of Tibet's freedom and not to sponsor Red China's admission to the United Nations.

Nehru released the text of the Oct. 31 note last week in parliament. There had been some sharp questioning of the government by members angered at reports of continued Communist incursions.

The note charged that Communist Chinese troops had violated the Indian border 11 times between April, 1960, and July, 1961.

Indian frontier forces have been having trouble with the Chinese Communists ever since the Peiping regime crushed the Tibetan rebellion in 1959 and forced the Dalai Lama to flee through the Himalayan Mountains to exile in India.

Nehru also disclosed today Communist China had requested India to discuss revival of the 1954 Sino-Indian trade treaty on Tibet, which had expired two days ago.

Nehru said the tone of this request was "very polite"—unlike other Red Chinese communications.

"Obviously, we cannot say come and discuss. It has to be conditioned," said Nehru.

Commission Asks More Data On Water Rates

Pampa's City Commission today continued its search for knowledge of detailed operation of various city departments with emphasis on special water rates to certain groups and organizations.

After lengthy discussion of the situation with Homer Hollar, manager of the city water department, and E. S. Lowery, superintendent of water department maintenance, Mayor E. C. Sidwell asked City Manager John Koontz, City Attorney Bob Bordon and water department heads to bring in a report on all water users outside the city with their recommendations on how reported inequities in rates could be ended.

"I do not believe it is fair," the mayor said, inasmuch as we will have to bond ourselves in the not too distant future for water department improvements, that this situation should exist.

"Why do we give certain customers outside the city the attractive rate that we do? I believe we have too many special situations."

There was discussion of rates to churches, schools, parks, clubs, etc., and water that is used but not metered.

Hollar told commissioners practically every city in Texas gives special rates or furnishes free water to churches, schools and charitable organizations.

Mayor Sidwell and other commissioners expressed pleasure at knowledge they had received from the city's water, sewer and tax departments in their quest for information.

City Manager Koontz then was asked to obtain similar reports from other city departments such as the street, sanitation and health divisions.

"We can't understand operations of the city unless we know what the various departments are doing and how those operations are carried out," the mayor said.

In other business the commission decided to hold up on the award of a city garbage contract until equipment used by a low bidder is investigated.

The bond for City Tax Assessor-Collector Aburey Jones in the amount of $10,000 was approved.

An ordinance levying paving assessments on property on S. Dwight, E. Albert, W. Harvester and E. and W. Crawford streets was passed on second reading. Final reading and adoption is expected at next week's commission meeting.

The city manager and city attorney were requested to proceed with necessary steps for acquiring right-of-way on SH 273 inside the city limits from Brown St. to McCullough and on Alcock St., preliminary to a proposed widening, drainage and paving program being planned with state and county officials.

Rep. Tom James Enters Race For Attorney General

State Rep. Tom James of Dallas, who won statewide attention as a member of a House committee that investigated vice and crime in Amarillo and Beaumont, today announced as a Democratic candidate for attorney general.

James made his announcement after a speech today at a meeting of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce. His Jaycee speach was one of some 90 non-political addresses he has made in the last four months. James stressed the need for better Texas law enforcement in his speeches.

James, who is serving his second term as a member of the House, said he expected to be opposed by "powerful groups."

"The definite lines are already drawn because of my record of consistently fighting organized crime, the professional politicians and their political machines as well as the special interest groups who now dominate Texas politics," James said in a formal statement.

James earlier had been a candidate for speaker of the next legislature, but withdrew from the race.

James is the second Democratic candidate to formally announce for attorney general. Austin attorney Tom Reavley announced earlier. Former House Speaker Waggoner Carr of Lubbock and Austin Dist. Atty. Les Procter are also regarded as candidates.

James, 32, is a graduate of the Southern Methodist University law school. He is a member of the Dallas delegation to the state legislature. He is married and the father of three daughters.

Reports Claim Katanga Attack On UN Forces

ELISABETHVILLE (UPI — Fighting was reported to have broken out in Elisabethville today, apparently involving U. N. forces and Katanga troops.

The report of the fighting was made by an American businessman living near where Katanga troops set up a roadblock. He said it started at around 1:50 p.m.

One report said mortars had begun firing close to the camp of the U. N. Ghurka troops which adjoins the U. N. headquarters.

Earlier today, U. N. spokesman Brian Urquhart said the United Nations had discovered a Katanga military plan to attack all U. N. strongholds today. He said fighting between U. N and Katanga forces was "imminent."

Streets in central Elisabethville were full of people running around in apparent panic and cars with horns blaring.

Eyewitness reports said Katanga forces moved their roadblocks 500 yards closer to the U.N.-held airport today and were strongly entrenched in the surrounding underbrush.

Urquhart said the Katanga government could not control its own army and that mercenary troops, whom the United Nations has ordered ousted, have joined regular troops.

JFK And Briton To Talk World Issues At Meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan are likely to tackle a broad list of cold war problems at their Bermuda meeting Dec. 21-22, including prospects for a Big Four conference with Russia next year.

Officials said today the two leaders probably would cover a wide range of East-West issues such as the Southeast Asia crisis, disarmament and nuclear testing as well as the Berlin situation.

Diplomatic officials said they understood Macmillan hoped the Western foreign ministers conference and NATO Council meeting in Paris in mid-December would decide that a Big Four session was possible. Kennedy and Macmillan then could take up the matter at their talks.

The White House, announcing the Bermuda meeting late Monday, said Kennedy and Macmillan felt it would be useful to meet "informally" as part of the series of talks which has been going on between leaders of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany.

Kennedy Family Back In Capital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy and her two children returned to the White House Monday night from their estate at Middleburg, Va., where they spent a long weekend.

St. Nick Coming Back With Sleigh

Santa Claus is coming back to Pampa.

He'll be in downtown Pampa from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m Thursday. —and this time he is bringing along his huge sleigh.

Children in the downtown area Thursday will have an opportunity to ride in Santa's sleigh. It will accomodate 60 on each ride.

Ride tickets may be obtained from any of the downtown stores.

The sleigh will be pulled by six Shetland ponies and Santa will be accompanied by "Miss Merry Christmas" who will act as hostess and his helper.

Christmas carols will be heard continuously in the background as Santa takes the children on the four-block sleigh ride.

The 30-ft. sleigh is bright red and trimmed in silver. It is equipped with Santa's hand mike and loud speakers which he uses to interview the children as they ride.

Loading points for the children will be:

From 10 a.m. to 12 noon—Area opposite the Parker Motor Co. at S. Cuyler and Tyng Sts.

From 12 to 3 p.m.—Santa Fe Railway station area at Atchison and Cuyler Sts.

From 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.—Parking lot at the corner of N. Cuyler and Browning Sts.

American States Schedule Parley To Discuss Cuba

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Foreign ministers of the American nations have agreed to meet next month for what could be the first step toward imposing sanctions against Cuba.

The council of the Organization of American States (OAS) voted 14-2 Monday night, in favor of the meeting. Only Cuba and Mexico opposed Colombia's proposal for the conference, but five other countries abstained.

The 21-nation group voted to have the foreign ministers consider the "threat to the peace and political independence of the American states that could come from the intervention, of extra continental powers aimed at breaking the American solidarity."

The ministers also were asked in the resolution to point out any threats that would "justify the application of measures for the maintenance of peace and security."

This referred to possible sanctions against Cuba, which could include economic measures such as a trade embargo. Cuba was not named specifically in the resolution, however.

The president of the OAS council will select the site of the meeting later, but it was believed the conference would be held in Panama.

Churchill Takes Another Vacation

MONTE CARLO (UPI) — Sir Winston Churchill today settled down on his third visit this year to the sunny Cote d'Azur. His secretary, Anthony Montagu Brown, said Churchill would return to his London home "in plenty of time for Christmas," probably after a 10-day visit here.

Commie Bullets Miss Western Berlin Guard

BERLIN (UPI) — Communist police fired eight pistol shots into West Berlin at a fleeing refugee and a Western border guard Monday night, Western police reported today.

No one was hit by the bullets, but the refugee was captured by nine East German police (vopos).

West Berlin police said the vopos opened fire on the refugee while he was on Western-held territory. Then they fired two shots in the direction of a Western sentry who shouted at them to stop firing at the refugee.

The incident occurred near the Britz Canal on the border of the American sector of Neukcelln and the Soviet sector.

Western police said the unidentified refugee returned to the Eastern zone under vopo gunpoint after crawling through barbed wire to the canal's south bank in an apparent attempt to swim to the West.

West Berlin police said 13 persons escaped to West Berlin during the 24 hours ending at 7 a.m. They included four Communist policemen.

An official Soviet command car was stopped early today in West Berlin by two U.S. military sedans one block from the tense Friedrichstrasse crossing point.

It was the second detention of a Soviet vehicle in the Western Allied sector in two days. A Russian jeep was detained about 15 minutes Monday.

The latest encounter between the Americans and Russians came as a 1,500-man U.S. battle group began leaving Manheim for the trip to Berlin along the 110-mile Autobahn through Communist territory.

U.S. Army headquarters in Europe said the first convoy left for Kassel, where it will spend the night before continuing to Berlin Wednesday.

Starting Wednesday, one battle group unit is expected to leave Kassel for Helmstedt daily to begin traveling on the Helmstedt-Berlin Autobahn. The massive transfer of men and vehicles is expected to take about one week, Army headquarters said.

Man And Three Women Charged In Check Cases

Charges were filed here Monday afternoon against three young women and an 18-year-old AWOL soldier, all from California, in connection with hot checks they are alleged to have passed in Pampa, Amarillo and Borger.

Eighteen-year-old Loren Mendell, the soldier; his wife, Pamela, 18, and Peggy Joann Yates, 18, each was charged in Justice J. W. Graham's court with forgery and passing worthless checks.

Carole B. Latus 24, was charged with being an accessory to forgery and the passing of worthless checks.

Justice Graham fixed bond in each case at $2,500. All four still were in county jail today pending action of the Gray County Grand Jury.

Sheriff Rufe Jordan said a fifth person is being sought as a member of the check-writing group.

All five are wanted in Amarillo and Borger on similar charges. The four charged here were arested last Friday night, after one of the quartet attempted to pass a check in a Pampa drugstore.

Coalition Rule For Dominican Republic Urged

SANTO DOMINGO, D.R. (UPI) —Opposition groups were expected to take a stand today on new proposals from President Joaquin Balaguer for a settlement of the week-old crisis which erupted into wild riots Monday.

The anti-government general strike here enters its second week today, apparently unabated despite Monday's mob effort to force strikebound stores to reopen. Seven persons, including an American news photographer, were injured in the day's violence.

Balaguer's office announced Monday night that any government worker who is not on the job today will be fired because the administration "cannot permit public employes to sabotage public services."

Leaders of the UCN and June 14 opposition parties were reported studying new government proposals.

Although no details were announced officially, Balaguer was said to have suggested formation of a "council of state" headed by the president and including four to six other members drawn from opposition ranks.

This junta would exercise both executive and legislative powers, assisted by a 12-man cabinet including seven oppositionists, three government men and two members selected by mutual agreement.

A UCN spokesman said it was unlikely that his party would consider any such arrangement until the government allows the opposition party to reopen its radio network, officially closed down early in the strike.

Maj. Gen. Pedro Rodriguez Echavarria, the 37-year-old secretary of the armed forces, was assuming an increasingly prominent —and increasingly unpopular—position in the Dominican picture.

Many people blamed Rodriguez for Monday's mob attack on the strikebound stores which they said was whipped up by an air force sound truck which toured slum areas.

Free lance photographer John Hlavacek was clubbed and slightly wounded while he was taking pictures of an anti-strike mob which eye-witnesses said was protected by troops.

Cuban Dictator's Son Reported Ill

BUDAPEST (UPI) — Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's 12-year-old son was reported by a local newspaper to be undergoing treatment here for influenza. The newspaper Heftoe Hirek said the boy, Fidel Jr., was on his way back to Cuba after a tour of Communist China, North Korea, North Viet Nam, the Soviet Union and East European Communist countries.

JFK Backs Plan To Unionize U.S. Workers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy has ordered prompt action to adopt an administration task force's proposed policy for unionization of government workers.

In a statement accompanying issuance of the task force's report Monday, Kennedy said the recommendations "will provide an effective system" for improving labor-management relations between the government and its 2.3 million civilian employes.

He said he had called for an executive order to be issued by the end of the year to carry out the recomemndations.

Among other things, the task force suggested:

—Government-wide acceptance of federal employes' rights to join or refuse to join a union that would bargain for them collectively under government limitations.

—Government refusal to recognize any union which discriminates against anyone because of race, color, creed or national origin, which has any corrupt influences or is dominated by Communists or others seeking to overthrow the government.

—Clear recognition that government employes "do not have the right to strike," and that the government cannot recognize unions advocating this. It also said "both the union shop and the closed shop are inappropriate to the federal government."

Although unions have represented government employes, within limits, for a number of years, their membership at present includes only 33 per cent—or 762,000—of all federal employes.

Nevada Seeking Bonafide Trade, Fewer Gamblers

By CY RYAN

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Nevada has more churches per capita than any other state.

Nevada's educational level is the third highest in the nation

Nevada's annual marriage rate far exceeds the divorce rate.

Nevada gets less revenue from legalized gambling than New York, California, Illinois and New Jersey, which have horse racing.

These are arguments put forth by Nevada's leaders in an attempt to change the "public image" of a state which gained a reputation for quickie divorces and open gambling.

A picture of stable institutions and serious - mindedness is being drawn by the administration in hopes of luring industry and enticing tourists to visit not only the gambling palaces, but also the natural and scenic spots.

The campaign is not aimed at eliminating gambling but decreasing the state's financial dependence on it.

However, most fiscal experts see a long upward road before the state can operate without gambling. Some predict that day will never come.

One of the most successful programs to date has been in attracting large firms to incorporate in the state. Since the 1960 legislature lowered the maximum filing fee, three big companies, Kimberly-Clark Corp., Socony Mobil Co. and Dow Chemical Co., have made Nevada their home base.

A number of industries have moved branch plants into the state, but not before being convinced gambling would not cause more personnel problems. State leaders cite records of Nevada companies to show gambling apparently has no adverse effect on the hiring or firing of personnel or on absenteeism.

Probably the biggest obstacle facing the state is its so-called association with the big-time "crime syndicate." Las Vegas has long been termed the headquarters of the underworld, with legal betting acting as only a front.

To fight this, Gov. Grant Sawyer, as one of his first acts upon taking office in 1959, instituted a tough policy on letting persons with racket connections have gambling licenses in Nevada.

During his tours around the nation, Sawyer pounds home one point: although Nevada makes $10 million a year from legalized gambling, New York collects $110 million from its horse betting. Sawyer says 14 states besides New York receive more revenue from gambling than Nevada.

The state's drive for a better national "public image" may have suffered two setbacks recently when Negroes picketed the state capitol during the 1961 legislature and by the controversy over "bare bosom" shows.

Social Agency Figures Spending As 'Profits'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Down at 197 East Broadway, some squares removed from the more outwardly quiet area of the Wall Street financial area, one of the city's older money-handling concerns is in its 70th year of doing business—as a deficit operation.

As financial giants go in this city, it doesn't rate very high. It gets more than $800,000 annually—and spends it all.

This particular group is the Educational Alliance, social work agency, training ground for workers, and possessor of what it says is the largest professional social work staff of any agency of its kind.

It is an outstanding example of one of the nation's "industries" which goes on year by year without making a penny of what in most circles could be egarded as profits — that of philanthropy.

Louis Berkowitz, chief executive officer of Educational Alliance, said:

"Our rule of thumb is. How can we best spend our available money to give us the greatest return in human values, in kids given a decent chance to make to live the rest of their lives with dignity, in making life a little more liveable for all the people in our community. There's no business like it."

Supported by "drives," by contributions, in some cases by endowments, and in rare cases aided by government funds, the philanthropic institutions of the country could conceive of making out a year's budget to spend all their money without a fixed rate of dollars and cents return.

The alliance, for example, will turn to its director to determine how money will be spent, but a board of trustees or within the framework it has drawn up.

Many outstanding businessmen are on the alliance board, Berkowitz explained. He said "they know literally how, where and when each cent is spent."

The alliance has many departments or divisions to spend the money from its sources of revenue, and for each fiscal period must find what it can "earn"—that is, raise—and then how to spend it most profitably.

The profits, Berkowitz said, are not figured "in such wonderfully concrete things as dollars and cents. Somewhere on our balance sheet are such great abstractions as human lives and community betterment."

Most of the alliance income is spent for salaries. The volunteer worker, backbone and most of muscle of such organizations in the past, still is a factor but now works with trained professionals.

Virginia 'Blue Laws' Puzzling To Reporter

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UP) — As the Virginia Legislature interprets the Gospel, it is implicitly a sin and expressedly a crime to sell bacon on Sunday.

But in this selfsame legislature's view of the credn. beer may be sold on the Sabbath with impunity, and presumably in good conscience.

These are two of the more eye-catching aspects of the new Sunday blue law that recently went into effect in the Old Dominion. To some eyes, they appear to be incongruous.

I will leave it to the theologians to say whether the politicians have made statute jibe with Scripture. But as a layman, I am prepared to discuss some of the practical affects of the law in my suburban neighborhood.

Those of us who reside on the Virginia side of the Potomac, and elsewhere in the state, have been living with the law for about four weeks now. In the beginning, as when the earth was created, there was chaos.

it took a couple of weeks for store owners to reach any sort of unamimity on what oods were, or were not, verboten to Sunday shoppers. Most of them now have posted lists for the guidance of clerks and customers.

As I understand it, the lawmakers did not intend to cut off the source of supply of items of necessity or of an emergency nature.

But in a neighborhood store that I sometimes patronize, there is a seventh day embargo on such goods as baby pants, can openers, fly swatters, handkerchiefs, keys, mouse traps, shoe laces and television tubes.

It doesn't require much imagination to envision an emergency need for any of those items—at least not if you have mice, flies or children in your house.

The main controversy thus far involves the operation of laundromats. Some legal experts hold that the washing of clothes on Sunday is not a necessity. Others maintain that cleanliness is next to Godliness.

Thus far, however, matters in Virginia suburbs have not reached the point that they have in Maryland suburbs, where rival automobile dealers have been turning each other in for blue law violations.

In my neighborhod, the major impact has been felt by those chaps who spend their week ends performing do-it-yourself projects.

Deprived of hardware supplies, but not of sudsy beverages, they now sit in around the house drinking beer.

Bob Hope Hurt In Film Accident

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actor Bob Hope suffered a two-inch gash on his forehead Sunday night when he was accidentally clunked with a champagne bucket.

The accident ocurred during filming of his Dec. 13 television show before a live audience. The show was delayed 20 minutes while attendants stopped the bleeding and patched up the comedian.

Hope was struck, in a scene filmed at the height of the Bel Air fire. A champagne bucket lowered from a helicopter dropped too quickly, striking the actor.

Waste Control Declared Prime Oil Industry Job

DENVER (UPI)— Prevention of waste of natural resources is the key to the nation's economic well-being, the president of the American Petroleum Institute said today.

Frank M. Porter, in an address to the annual meeting of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission, said that petroleum conservation is one of the great contributions to the period in which we live. He said the domestic petroleum industry now has the standby capacity to meet a demand of as much as 3 million barrels of crude oil a day beyond current levels.

"Enlightened conservation efforts have permitted the American people to consume petroleum products at record rates, including the prodigious production of two wars, and at the same time they have been able to build up and expand their reserves of this key source of energy," Porter said.

Porter spoke to the first general session of the IOCC meeting. Other speakers were Alvin C. Hope, president of the Independent Petroleum Institute of America; Govs. Stephen McNichols of Colorado, Matthew E. Welsh of Indiana and Price Daniel of Texas, and John M. Kelly, assistant secretary of interior for minerals, representing President Kennedy.

Daniel told the group that oil imports continue to loom as a major problem the commission must work to overcome.

"Commission expectations and hopes have not been fulfilled," the Texas governor said. "The ratio of imports to crude production continues to increase."

He said the ratio rose to 26.4 per cent in the first half of this year.

Kelly commended the commission for its past record in oil and gas conservation. But he warned the group still was faced with the task of bringing existing statutes and practices up to date.

"We are deeply concerned," Daniel said of the compact commission's attempts to curb imports, "over the serious effect of excessive oil imports in the premature abandonment of marginal oil wells, above-ground waste, from excessive crude stocks, and reduced exploration for new reserves."

The governor pointed out Texas has conservation statutes holding domestic production "in line with market demand," which have held production down to nine days for November.

"Despite this," Daniel said, "crude oil stocks continue to rise."

The commission chairman warned, "a new approach, or at least a major overhaul, is absolutely essential if the mandatory oil imports control program is to achieve its primary objective of maintaining a healthy domestc oil industry capable of providing for all of the civilian and military needs of the United States in the event foreign oil supplies are lost."

Military Forces May Shun Calls To Reservists In Future Crises

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Kennedy administration hopes to avoid mobilizing Army reservists in future crises and to rely instead on an enlarged regular force.

This apparent switch in military policy was influenced at least to some extent, authorities said today, by problems encountered in the current mobilization of 119,500 members of the National Guard and reserve.

Top defense planners now believe it would be better to maintain a standing army of 16 divisions, two more than the ground forces had under the Eisenhower administration and also two more than the present administration had planned.

In overall manpower, the present Army prospect is for about 960,000 men in the active forces. That is much more than the Eisenhower administration thought necessary and somewhat fewer than the Kennedy administration previously has planned.

Without disclosing specific figures, Army Secretary Elvis J. Stahr Jr. revealed the new official thinking at a news conference Monday. He dismissed as isolated instances complaints about conditions faced by reservists who have been mobilized and said morale of the overwhelming majority is high.

Stahr acknowledged the truth of many complaints about equipment shortages, idleness, clothing and other shortages, but said the problems largely have been overcome.

New Hampshire Gov. Wesley Powell plans to inspect conditions of his state's National Guardsmen this weekend at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Ft. Bragg officials said the governor would be free do do whatever he wanted to do. Powell, chairman of the National Governors Conference, said he would report to his fellow governors.

A Ft. Bragg information officer, Maj. Jim Corey, said 98 per cent of the complaints were "outright untruths," and that the remaining 2 per cent were due to manufacturers' backlogs and other supply problems.

Letters to Santa

Dear Santa;

I would like to have a transister radio, a sonow cone maker and a baby doll. Then two while clouses and some white bobby socks. Thank you for the things you gave me for Christmas last year. I live a 700 Bradley Dr.

Little Theater Group Rehearses

Pampa Little Theater met last night in the rehearsal hall, 612 W. Browning, for a workshop session presented by Mrs. Elbert Walker, speech and dancing instructor.

Following an introduction by Miss Kim Wilson, junior member of the theater group, Mrs. Walker gave a series of reading, which included dialects, impressions of small children, gossips, and a serious cutting from Van Dykes' "Friends."

During a brief business meeting, conducted by Homer West, president, the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Walter L. Worley, vice president.

Due to the resignation of Mrs. J. C. Roberts, Mrs. Glenn McConnell was named treasuer.

Following the workshop, cast members held rehearsals for "Arnenic and Old Lace," which is being directed by Mrs. Jack O. Miller and planned for presentation Jan. 19-20.

Tax Official To Return Wednesday

Bill Wagoner, deputy in the city tax assessor - collector's office will return Wednesday from a three - day session at a statewide tax institute in Austin.

The institute is a tax school for city, county and school tax officials who are members of the Texas Association of Assessing Officers.

The institute, sponsored by the Texas Municipal League, University of Texas and the TAAO, held its concluding sessions today.

Convict Doctor Seeks To Prove He Is Sane Man

RUSK, Tex. (UPI)—Dr. Harold Eidinoff, trying to convince a jury he is not insane, cross-examined a psychiatrist Monday who said he is an incurable paranoid.

Eidinoff killed El Paso lawyer Ted Andress in 1959 and was found insane and committed to the state hospital at Rusk. He seeks now to be judged sane, and released.

Prosecution witness Dr. Richard A. Laughlin testified, that when he examined Eidinoff in 1959, the physician was suffering from paranoia. Laughlin said he examined Eidinoff again last week and found him still a paranoid.

Moreover, the psychiatrist said, there is no cure for such insanity, which is mainly characterized by delusions of persecution.

The court allowed Eidinoff to cross-examine Laughlin. Eidinoff read from a text book on psychiatry which said paranoia is a state of mind, and can be cured.

After the doctors' dispute, court was adjourned for the day.

Eidinoff told the six-members jury that he has received no treatment during the two years he has been confined at the state hospital. But, he said, he doesn't need any because he is not mentally sick.

Eidinoff was tried for murder at Lubbock in 1959. The state charged that he shot and killed Andress at the El Paso International Airport on Jan. 28, 1959, because of a grudge. Trial testimony brought out that Eidinoff had accused Andress of showing around photographs taken of Eidinoff and his wife, in the nude while on their honeymoon.

Eidinoff was found insane, and therefore not criminally responsible for Andress' death. If the present jury finds he has been restored to sanity, he will be entitled to his freedom.

Concert Members Discuss Bookings For Next Season

said police fired directly into the crowds at least half a dozen times, but only one man was known to have been hit.

Three other American newsmen —NBC reporter Dick Valeriani, NBC cameraman Bernie Diedrich and AP reporter Robert Berrellez — said police fired on their car, but none of them was hit.

Despite these incidents, the general temper of the mobs appeared to be pro-American. Bystanders patted U.S. reporters and photographers on the back and urged them to get in and get the story.

One youngster shouted to Beatty: "Please send U.S. troops to fight these soldiers!" The young Dominican was seized by a soldier, who cursed him, hit him in the back with a rufle butt and then let him go.

Magic Numbers Keep Phone Busy At Star's Home

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — There are three excellent reasons why the phone rarely stops ringing in actress June Wilkinson's apartment:

41 - 20 - 36.

Miss Wilkinson, of London, England, is far and away Hollywood's anatomical champ. Marilyn Monroe and Jayne Mansfield flee when photographers try to get them to pose with her.

None of this alas soothes Miss Wilkinson's ego, which is suffering along with her bankroll — because producers rarely get around to judging her acting ability.

In a town where every actress knows it's what's up front that counts, the blonde performer finally took an unprecedented step:

She reduced her frontage to get more attention.

"I used to be in the mid-40s," she said in the apartment she shares with two other girls here.

Wearing a tight black dress, Miss Wilkinson, who has appeared on top TV shows and in movies, said she has natural warmth.

"I don't need a drink to get stimulated," she said. "If I'm in the mood, cola's enough."

The phone rang:

"Hello, baby. Yes, baby. Call later, baby."

Miss Wilkinson hung up and told how she got to this country, where she has appeared in the films "Thunder In the Sun" with the late Jeff Channdler, "The Private Lives of Adam and Eve" with Mickey Rooney and "Macumba Love":

"Some executives of a Boston plastics company saw me in my musical revue in London and agreed they'd like to take me back to America to help sell their product.

"They brought me to New York, and I appeared on the Dave Garroway show. Then I did business shows across the country for them. It led to the Garry Moore show, '77 Sunset Strip' and 'Alcoa Theatre.' "

Miss Wilkinson's monumental assets came to the attention of movie producer Ray Stark, who signed her.

"I was having some dresses made in Oleg Cassini's salon," she said, "and Mr. Stark saw me in the office."

The phone rang:

"Hello, Nicky, baby. What, baby? The answer is no. How come we have to go through this every time you call? Call me back."

Miss Wilkinson, who said her father led a "Guy Lombardo-type band," added that a girl really has to have talent to land a contract nowadays.

"I think people are stupid if they judge me just by my measurements," she said, "but at least I know they can't confuse me with anyone else.

Why did she come to the United States?

"It's the big money here," she said. "In England, a star gets paid what a bit player gets here."

The phone rang:

"No, baby, No, I don't want to do pictures for a magazine. What do I need that for? They haven't got the price anyway. Okay, Baby."

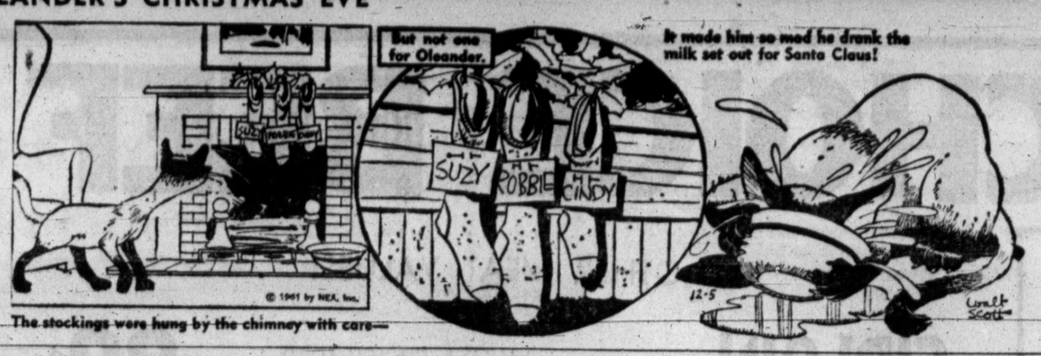

She hung up and said: "What a night! I've got a date to see 'Fiorello!' and I've seen it already in New York. I don't want to go. I feel like a cola."

Inexpensive Idea

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — An Idaho legislator thinks he has the next candidate for the name-changing trend which makes state colleges into state universities.

State Rep. Carl Burt of Ada County says there is wide support for making Idaho State College into Idaho State Ucniversity. The University of Idaho is the other major state-supported school in the Gem State. "It won't cost us anything," Burt argues.

Garment Maker Credits Helpers For His Success

By JESSE BOGUE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some people, said the gray-haired man as he reached out to answer another telephone call, have it easy. They have a monopoly, he said.

He took the call. "New high!" He said with a broad smile. The phone buzzed again. "Finest boy you ever saw. I'm telling you. You ought to hire him," and he finished that one.

"If you handle all these calls," he was asked, "doesn't that mean you run everything from here? You keep an eye on everything that's going on? Supposing there's a scrap between a couple of designers and —"

"Got a wonderful organization," answered the busy man, David Schwartz, chairman of the board and president of Jonathan Logan, Inc. "Sure, I can take a vacation. Leave it all here. Got the best people I can get."

He charged through a doorway into the big, brightly lighted adjacent room 26 floors above the streets of the garment district and minutes later he had a two-piece, junior-size suit off the nearest rack, shaking it at two salesmen. They hovered near the end of a row of buyers' booths, empty at the moment.

"Why is it still on the rack" he demanded. "I want to know about these things."

Someplace between the quiet of his own office, his attention to charities, the constant movement of the designing room and some conferences with some obviously astute financial advisers, Schwartz has directed the building of a corporation whose sales ($39,800,000 in 1960) put it among the world's largest manufacturers of women's apparel. Total annual volume of apparel sales in the United States is estimated at perhaps $12 billion.

To reach this point, Schwartz has taken advantage of all possible techniques of sales direction, advertising, sales and market research.

For example: His firm has for years aimed at the junior market. This is not a "junior" by the age of the prospective lady shopper; it's a size. The sales research shows that there is an always-ready market in the smaller, slimmer, short-waisted figure. The firm estimates about 90 per cent of its sales go to the older teen-agers and to women just past 20 (in age). And that the group 16 to 24 in age is a 21-million person market.

But more importantly, Schwartz has gone thoroughly into production. At the Butte Knitting Mills in Spartanburg, S.C. Jonathan Logan has what it hails as the first textile operation of its kind in the nation and the first large-scale production setup for double-knit jersey garments on this side of the Atlantic.

Wool tops come into the operation; finished dresses go out. They are spun, dyed, knitted, cut and sewed.

Jonathan Logan is not the only big dress producer, nor the only one listed on exchanges. The next few years probably will see others joining the multi-million dollar class in sales, but few predict the industry ever will see the disappearance of the small unit, working in types of apparel for which mass production concepts are not practical.

Put-in-Bay, in Lake Erie, is rated as the third best fresh-water fishing area in the United States.

Stevenson Soon To Decide About Race For Senate

CHICAGO (UPI) — The most powerful Democratic voices in Illinois are rallying behind the proposed candidacy of Ambassador Adlai Stevenson for the U.S. Senate, but one party leader was not enthusiastic.

State Rep. Paul Powell, speaker of the Illinois House, who has indicated he'd like to run next year against Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., said, "I'm not excited."

Powell, a powerful southern Illinois voice in a party which must get downstate votes to win, was all but alone in his grudging acceptance of the suggestion that Stevenson take on Dirksen.

Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., an old Stevenson running mate in the latter's successful 1948 bid for the Illinois governorship, said he thought a try for the Senate by the U.S. envoy to the United Nations would be a "splendid idea. I think he would be our strongest candidate."

Douglas said he wrote Stevenson two weeks ago, urging him to run. Stevenson has promised a decision by Jan. 1.

Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley, who controls the bulk of Democratic votes in Illinois, said he suggested that Stevenson run for the Senate "as far back as the presidential nomination."

The only announced Democratic candidate for the Senate next year, State Rep. Paul Simon, said he would withdraw and leave Stevenson a clear field if the former governor decides to run: "I have such high regard for Mr. Stevenson that I wouldn't want to run against him."

ALL FOR HER—This is a propaganda picture of the type being used by the East German Communist government to explain the building of the wall between East and West Berlin to Germans behind the Iron Curtain. According to the caption, the little girl, identified only as Gritta J., was abandoned by her parents in East Berlin. The Communist caption explains: "More and more it occurred that parents betrayed the German Democratic Republic (East Germany) and settled in West Germany or West Berlin and left helpless children. . . . These crimes can no longer occur."

Lutherans Asked To Cancel Yule Church Services

NEW YORK (UPI)—A Lutheran leader attacking the commercialism of Christmas, has urged churches to cancel Christmas services and leave the holiday to television and department stores.

The Rev. Dr. Edgar S. Brown Jr, director of worship of the United Lutheran Church in America, the nation's largest Lutheran body, made the appeal in "The Lutheran," his church's weekly newsmagazine.

"Christmas, the annual pious salute in the direction of religion is now the property of the business world, and I say it is high time that the church said in unmistakable clear words that it intends to divorce tself firom the whole mess," he said.

A special table for children's refreshments at Christmas open house can be gaily festive in red, white and glitter. A frothy fruit drink served from a punch bowl and special yule sweets are the magnets in this attractive setting. To avoid accidents, keep decorations off—but near—the table.

For Very Young Hosts Plan Yule Party Nook

KAY SHERWOOD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A party for the children during the holidays is on the docket of more than one homemaker. I know some determined youngsters whose birthdays fall near Christmas and they assure me they won't permit their birthday celebrations to be lost in the general hubbub.

But that's not why I'm getting ready for a children's party. When we moved from our old neighborhood into a new one and a new school district we automatically acquired some new problems.

One of them, which has kept me hopping this fall, is the happy settlement of the children into the new school with new schoolmates.

Established cliques of youngsters, like adults, as I'm sure you know, are slow to throw open their arms to the shy newcomer. Progress has been steady but slow.

If you have moved to a new community, you may be hearing from your kids the same question I do: "Do you know George's (or Polly's or Jim's or Wendy's) mother and daddy" I would guess the same question is being asked by George and company of their parents. When the answer comes up "No," this seems to me to reinforce shyness on one side, suspicion on the other.

It's in the interest of getting better acquainted all around, that you'll find a children's table at our annual Christmas Day open house. We'll invite as many of our new friends as we can squeeze into the house.

To keep refreshments separated, the children will gather at their own table, to be helped (I hope) by our young ones dressed like their pals in their holiday best.

This must be a festive occasion and yet I can't spend too much time fussing with decor. Our dining table will be reserved for the adults.

A gay children's table, suggested by a friend of mine for this or a birthday, combines tried-and-true red and white and glitter. A round table (which I will get from the rent-all agency) is covered with a red cotton cloth. White lace plastic mats on top of the red define where to put the refreshments (guide for juvenile table - setters) and add bauty as well.

Decorations are kept off the table but arranged behind it on a table, or server or shelf. Long spikes of rhododendron or long-needled evergreen, for example, can be hung, with shining Chistmas tree balls. Bright blue, red and silver balloons anchored to lace paper doilies and sticks might be added to the greenery.

In keeping with the holiday spirit, a frothy fruit punch will be served in a white glass punch bowl, cupcakes on a cranberry glass cake plate, and candy in white milk glass compotes.

Incidentally, you can rent punch bowls and cups but nowadays bowl and cup sets are so inexpensive, it's easy to own one. Even those that look like costly antiques (a paneled grape milk glass set) sell for less than $10 for 27 pieces.

Dear Abby....

Father Will Come Through At Right Time

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our only daughter is to be married in three weeks and my husband is the problem. We have planned a church wedding and our minister said my husband must walk down the aisle with the bride. I bought Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" for our record player, and we have practiced "marching" every night. My husband goes to pieces every time I put the record on. He gets weak in the knees and cries and it just tears me apart to see a grown man sob like that. He says he can't do it. I love our daughter, too, and she is marrying a fine young man, so I can't figure out what my husband is all broken up about. Would it be proper for me to go down the aisle on the other side of the bride to help hold my husband up?

BRIDE'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Sorry, but you can't go down the aisle with the bride to "help hold your husband up." I suggest you quit rehearsing. When the big moment comes, your husband will come through with flying colors. (If he's crying NOW, wait until he gets the bills.)

DEAR ABBY: My son is in the sixth grade and his teacher gave him a book about the life of Winston Churchill. Every night my boy reads the book in bed for about half an hour. When his father gets ready for bed he will say, "Good night, Ralph. I'll bet you Churchill was born in Brooklyn."

Now, Abby, on the very first page it says that Winston Churchill was born at Blenheim Palace, England, November 30, 1874. Could you please tell me where Brooklyn comes in? I keep asking Ralph to ask his teacher, but he forgets. Thanking you, I remain,

WEARY MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: The book is correct and your husband is a tease. The best way to handle a tease is to ignore him.

DEAR ABBY: May I shake your hand for advising young wives to believe their husbands no matter how tall the tale sounds. Here is my story::

My husband used to come home at 4 a.m. and say he'd been at his "club". I never really believed him because I knew the lights went off automatically at 1 a.m. One night I had to find out for myself, so I left my baby alone and walked to the club in the bitter cold. I saw his car parked nearby, so I waited and watched. About 3:45 A.M. his friends started coming out of the club. He was with them. One man said "Jack, will you drive me home?" My husband replied, "Sure!"

I ran all the way home and crawled into bed like an icicle, feeling so ashamed for having doubted him. Yes, Abby, he was telling me the truth. Know what they were doing? Playing TOURNAMENT BRIDGE by candle light! Don't use my name. I don't want to embarrass my great-grandchildren.

ONE WOMAN TAUGHT A LESSON

Everybody's got a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, in care of this paper.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

The season of light, bright cottons and filmy materials calls for true femininity. Encourage this by using sachets in closets holding summer garments. Also, use floral scents in drawers for lingerie to enhance the light summer feeling.

FIRST DANCING CLASS

by Janet Henry

I led him with dragging feet
(His heart was on the football field),
And watched, from my parental seat,
Resentment that was unconcealed.

Then, slowly, he became aware
That this new world looked pretty good.
He straightened, smiled,
and smoothed his hair . . .
A dividend for motherhood!

★ Polly's Quiz ★

By Polly Cramer

Overscaled, overstuffed furniture is often the result of a past mistake in purchasing, and therefore hard to live with. In small rooms, these pieces command far too much attention for a successful room effect.

It isn't always possible to get rid of big, expensive pieces of furniture. But it is possible to minimize their bulk and size by using upholstery or slip cover fabric that matches or blends with wall or background color.

Don't fear that the result will be monotonous. The new covering will put the furniture in its proper place, and into a more pleasant relationship with the room and its other furnishings. Extra accents of color can be added in accessories, flowers, books, or a gay-patterned area rug.

Dear Polly: The ceiling plaster in our bedroom is bad. My husband insists that we have a new white ceiling of composition tiles. To Me, they suggest a basement playroom. What can I do about them if he insists on having them?—Worried.

DEAR WORRIED: Your worries are over. At a recent showing of rooms done by top flight decorators, tiles on one bedroom ceiling were stenciled for an individual look. The decorated squares made a border around the ceiling. For a more unified look, repeat this stenciled design elsewhere — on door panels, or perhaps around the window frames. Ask your local lumber dealer about tiles that are available decorated. These are easier to install, though they offer less scope in color and design.

Dear Polly: I am heartily sick of my bedroom. What can you recommend that is not costly? One window has white nylon curtains and white blind. Walls are papered beige. Bed is old white iron with patchwork cover. Floor is painted yellow with rag rugs. Woodwork is blue, as are dresser and chair. What do you think?—Mrs. J. F.

Dear Mrs. J. F.: I think that beige wallpaper should hide behind some snowy white paint.

Assuming that the blue and yellow look well with the quilt and rugs, I recommend adding 1-inch blue and yellow bands just above the hems and below the headings of your white curtains.

Paint the ceiling yellow, perhaps just a shade lighter than the floor.

Dear Reader: A heavy volume of mail doesn't permit Mrs. Cramer to answer her letters and post cards individually. But she will comment in her column on decorating problems of general interest. She cannot undertake to return floor plans or fabric swatches which are enclosed with letters.

Mental Diet Can Help Battle Bottle And Bulge

Woman To Woman
By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—A mental diet that's helped women — and men—battle the bottle also can help battle the bulge.

Who says so is Edward J. McGoldrick Jr., a lawyer who invented the diet 18 years ago to help himself when thousands of dollars spent on standard cures failed to curb his alcoholism.

McGoldrick said in an interview that the mental diet helps the excessive drinkers and the obese by helping them to mend broken fences of the mind that lead to problem drinking and gluttony.

McGoldrick is head of Bridge House, a male alcoholic unit of the New York City Welfare Department. His father, now dead, was a state Supreme Court justice. McGoldrick said he was headed in his father's footsteps until binges bent his course.

"When psychiatrists and rest homes didn't work," he said, "I tried to work out a therapy to help myself. I developed the mental diet leading to total management of the mind. It worked."

When the self-developed therapy cured McGoldrick, he gained the city's permission to try the therpay on other willing alcoholics.

At the same time in 1943, he gave up his $25,000 a year lawyer's income for a city salary of $2,500—which he earned as director of Bridge House, a now-nationally famous place for alcoholics who want to help themselves.

Its successes include doctors, lawyers, clergymen, actors, and persons from all walks of life.

Through the years more than 7,000 have checked into Bridge House. The cure rate is from 40 to 45 per cent.

McGoldrick's mental diet aims to help the victims of excessive drinking—or overeating—to apply plain old will power in an enlightened fashion.

Walking Trinity of Spirit

"Man—and woman—is a walking trinity of spirit, mind and body," he said. "To disregard moral questions is necessarily to preclude a consideration of man's spiritual source, make-up and eventual accountability.

McGoldrick claims the problem drinker—like the problem eater—needs information, not merely reformation. That's where the 17-point mental diet comes in.

It helps to convince the victims that they have within themselves the power to stop torment caused by overindulgence.

McGoldrick recently cut records describing the rehabilitation techniques used at Bridge House. The one for men is called "Conquer Your Alcoholism." The one for females is called — "Tormented Women."

The latter mainly is about the "mental diet" leading to management of the mind.

Writer Describes Ride Through The Air Tunnel To West Berlin

By TOM A. CULLEN

BERLIN — The pilot banked, then headed the DC-6B into the Berlin air corridor as coolly as though he were turning into one of Germany's autobahns.

For the next 253 miles we would be separated from the red sea of East Germany by an air strip only 20 miles wide. We would be flying down one of the three air tunnels which link West Berlin with the free world.

Theoretically, if we deviated by so much as a mile in either direction we could be forced down by East German fighters, or shot down in flames. I say "theoretically," for nothing of this sort has happened.

But not until we reached Berlin's Templehof airport could we again breathe in safety. Yet Pan American World Airways, which is the sole American carrier operating in Berlin, flies 32 round trips down the Berlin corridors daily. Its pilots shuttle down the corridors as many as six times a day.

Just how dangerous is it to fly down the Berlin air corridors? What is the morale of the pilots?

To find out I have just completed trips from Munich to Berlin, and from Berlin to Frankfurt in the cockpits of Pan American DC-6Bs. I have talked to a number of pilots. Contrary to some stories that have appeared in the U. S. press, I found their morale to be exceedingly high. None of those I talked to has asked for a transfer since the Berlin crisis began.

To a man they were fighting mad about stories that they were getting jittery and losing their nerve. They also branded as false the rumor that commercial air liners are being buzzed, or otherwise harassed in the air corridors by Soviet MIGs.

Flight Captain Graham W. Jones, of Ft. Smith, Ark., says: "When we are flying down the corridor we often see Communist planes take off or land at their airports below. Sometimes these planes have even flown alongside us long enough to establish our identity. But there has been absolutely no provocation."

Flight Captain Al Bisson, whose guest I was on the 0940 hours flight from Munich to Berlin, prefers tunnel to corridor as a description of the Berlin air route. "It's more like flying through a 20-mile wide tunnel," he explains, "because we are not only hemmed in on either side, but we must not fly below 2,500 feet nor above 10,000 feet. It gives some people claustrophobia."

By a strange coincidence, Bisson was born in another Berlin — Berlin, N.H., and he regards this as a lucky omen.

"See this salient?" he said pointing on a map to a wooded area. "It's pretty common knowledge that the East Germans have a missile base located in these woods. Therefore, we are careful not to cut any corners here."

A little further on, the headphones I was wearing began to crackle with data given out by an American radar post which identified itself only by the code name of "Telegram." "Telegram," I was told, would monitor our flight for half of the way through the corridor, then the Berlin radar posts would take over.

Meanwhile, fog had closed in, and visibility had dropped to 500 yards, according to the reports.

The co-pilot and engineer went about their business calmly, responding to the slightest change recorded by their instrument dials. About 64 miles from Tempelhof, Ground Control Approach took over and began to talk us down for a West landing. As we lost altitude the crew showed signs of tension for the first time during the entire flight.

Templehof is small and located in the heart of Berlin, therefore jets are barred, and even piston-engined planes must bank sharply to land. Making an instrument landing in thick fog is no fun.

A few hundred feet off the ground the fog suddenly lifted and we found ourselves coming in between parallel rows of red lights for a perfect landing.

"Well," I said, as Captain Bisson put his arms through the gold-braided sleeves of his uniform coat and reached for his brief case. "I suppose you're free now until this afternoon."

"Free?" the captain said incredulously. "Hell no, Ive just got time to grab a cup of coffee before flying this bus to Hannover down the middle air corridor."

But the pressures and strain the pilots operate under now are nothing compared to those during the 1948-49 Berlin airlift.

At the peak of the airlift, planes were landing in West Berlin at the rate of one every 45 seconds. There were casualties, too—72 men, including 31 Americans, lost their lives in accidents.

"Sure, we could do it again if we had to," one captain said reflectively. "But we ought not to have to resort to another airlift," he added.

"Someone should stand up to Khrushchev before it becomes a question of Berlin being cut off by road and rail. If we are firm we won't need another airlift."

Alabama Voted Top Grid Team

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sugar Bowl-bound Alabama, which closed out a perfect season last Saturday, today was crowned the nation's No. 1 major college football team for 1961 by the United Press International Board of Coaches.

The Crimson Tide winner of 10 straight games without a loss, edged unbeaten but once-tied Ohio State for the national championship in the final balloting of the 35 leading coaches. Alabama received 18 first place votes, three more than the Buckeyes, for a total of 318 points. Ohio State drew 311 points in one of the tightest races ever for the national title.

Alabama, coached by Paul (Bear) Bryan, thus regained the top spot it held two weeks ago from Ohio State. The Crimson Tide had capped a steady climb by taking over the No. 1 position two weeks ago — but the following week the Buckeyes advanced to the top while Alabama was idle.

But Alabama then finished up with a 34-0 rout over Auburn to join Rutgers as the only major colleges with perfect records this season.

Alabama will play Arkansas in the Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day.

Louisiana State, which plays Colorado in the Orange Bowl, finished third in the voting, nipping Texas, headed for the Cotton Bowl, 239-237.

Mississippi, bound for the Cotton Bowl against the Longhorns, was fifth; Minnesota, the 1960 champion which meets UCLA in the Rose Bowl, was sixth; Colorado seventh; Arkansas eighth; Michigan State ninth, and Utah State, which engages Baylor in the Gotham Bowl, ranked 10th to round out the nation's select group.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The final 1961 United Press International major college football ratings (with first-place votes and won-lost records in parentheses):

Team	Points
1. Alabama (18 (10-0)	318
2. Ohio State (15) (8-0-1)	311
3. Louisiana State (9-1)	239
4 Texas (9-1)	237
5. Mississippi (1)	219
6. Minnesota (7-2)	133
7. Colorado (1) (9-1)	124
8. Arkansas (8-2)	91
9. Michigan State (9-0-1)	75
10. Utah State (9-0-1)	28

Second 10—11 (tie), Purdue and Missouri 11 each; 13, Georgia Tech 16; 14, Duke 11; 15, Kansas 10; 16, Syracuse 8; 17, Wyoming 7; 18, Wisconsin 5; 19 (tie), Miami (Fla.) and Penn State 4 each.

Others — UCLA 3; Arizona Michigan and Rice 2 each; Tennessee 1.

Retains World Championship...

Floyd Patterson Kayoes McNeeley

TORONTO, Ont. (UPI)—Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson unmarked after his wild nine-knockdown victory over challenger Tom McNeeley, will begin training in about 10 days for his eighth title defense, manager Cus D'Amato disclosed today.

His announcement pleased Tom Bolan, president of Championship Sports, Inc., who promoted Monday night's melee in which Patterson knocked out the courageous McNeeley in the fourth round for the Bostonian's first defeat in a career of 24 professional bouts.

Sonny Liston retained his status as top contender by knocking out Albert Westphal of Germany in the first round at Philadelphia in the opener of the fight game's first electronic doubleheader. Both the Philadelphia and Toronto fights were sent out to theaters and pay-TV homes on closed-circuit television.

D'Amato refused to confirm today that Liston would be the next opponent, but he did say "Liston knows what he has to do."

That was interpreted by reporters to mean that Liston, the ring's somewhat matured "bad boy," must keep out of trouble until he and Floyd sign for their title fight next spring.

McNeeley was rounded out at 2.51 of the fourth round by referee Jersey Joe Walcott, former heavyweight champion, just a second before Irish Tom lurched to his feet after being on the canvas the 11th time, including two slips.

Patterson was down early in the fourth round from a left to the face, but Walcott announced he had called it a slip.

McNeeley's nine official knockdowns did not come up to the heavyweight title record of 11 suffered by big Primo Carnera in his defeat by the late Maxie Baer in 1934, but it equalled the second high figure of nine taken by the late Luis Angel Firpo in his historic two-round fight with Jack Dempsey in 1923.

McNeeley, who used mixed rushing and evasive tactics, was floored once in the first round and slipped once in that session. He was knocked down five times and slipped once in the third, and he was floored three times in the fourth session.

Champ's Afraid To Fight Says Liston

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Heavyweight contender Charles (Sonny) Liston, jubilant and joking after his one-round, one-punch, pole-axing, of Germany's Albert Westphal Monday night, was a picture of disappointment an hour later.

Liston's spirit sagged when he watched a closed-circuit telecast of the Floyd Patterson-Tom McNeeley bout, in an anteroom of Convention Hall and the champion failed to include him in his 1962 plans for two fights.

"I'm disappointed," said Liston who had demolished the 30-year-old Westphal in one minute and 38 seconds.

Then, as he turned to leave, Liston was asked whether Patterson is "scared of you."

"He's been scared of me for a year and a half," big Sonny said.

Liston went into the ring against the lighter, shorter, outgunned Westphal a prohibitive favorite. He acted like one in his return from a three-month suspension after two scrapes with the law last summer.

Westphal, a master baker from Hamburg, scaling 191 and showing a flabby 5-foot-7½-inch frame, carried the fight to the better than six-foot Liston, who held a 17¼ pound advantage.

He tried to jab to Liston's stomach and landed several swinging rights and lefts to his opponent's head. The huge Philadelphian bided his time, throwing an occasional straight left to the face of the wide-open Westphal.

Midway in the round, Liston shook his stubby rival with a combination of head shots. Then they moved to the center of the ring, with Westphal in his crouch.

Liston pawed with a left and caught the blond Teuton with a short right to the jaw. Westphal landed flush on his face with his arms slung under him and remained prone for at least a minute beyond the full count of referee Zach Clayton.

Pampa Cage Teams Hold Fine Marks

Coach Frank Craig's Pampa 7th grade Reapers opened their cage season last Friday with a thumping 31-6 victory over Phillips as local basketball teams continue to roll up impressive records in the young season.

The Pampa Harvesters and the Shockers extended their streaks to five straight wins by beating Phillips teams Tuesday and sweeping a pair of games from Lamar over the weekend.

Robert E. Lee's 8th graders notched win number two without a defeat by sinking Phillips 55-9 while the Lee 9th graders bounced the 'Hawks 38-31 in a conference doubleheader last Thursday. The Rebel 7th tripped Phillips 33 - 27 Friday behind Doc Cornutt and James Matney.

Pampa's 9th grade Reapers suffered their second straight loss of the campaign in losing to Borger Austin 33-23 last Friday.

Randy Matson, the Harvesters' 6-5 center, posted the city's top score as he burned the nets for 25 points against Lamar in the first of their two game series.

Craig's Reapers were paced by the five starters and a top reserve who all scored about the same number of points. The six boys who starred for Craig were Don Been, Larry Keyser, Robert Karr, Larry Stephens, Jackie Strickland and Steve Williams.

Action this week will be sparse with the Lee 8th and 9th grade hosting Borger Sam Houston Thursday afternoon and the Rebels 7th playing the same Borger school Friday afternoon. All games are scheduled for the Lee gymnasium.

The Pampa Reapers entertain Phillips 9th here Thursday while the Reapers 7th don't play again until they meet Borger Austin here Dec. 15.

Pampa's Harvesters and Shockers will entertain Haltom City (Birdville) at the Pampa High Gymnasium Friday and Saturday nights with game time set for 6:15 and 8 p.m. each evening.

The standings:

	W	L	Pct.	Pts.	Opp.
Harvesters	5	0	1.000	279	221
Shockers	5	0	1.000	268	196
Lee 8th	2	0	1.000	83	22
Pampa 7th	1	0	1.000	31	6
Lee 7th	1	0	1.000	33	27

Romero Notches Wrestling Win

Ricky Romero defeated The Bat Tuesday night in a three fall tussle at the Top O' Texas Sportsmen building in the opening of the wrestling program in Pampa promoted by W. O. Fuller.

Romero used a sleeper to put The Bat away in the third fall after each wrestler had taken one fall apiece in the main event before a large turnout.

In other events on the program, Nick Roberts won over Danny Savich in three falls and Killer Kowalski beat Cowboy Rocky Lee in a single fall match.

Roberts took Savich in the first fall, which lasted 15 minutes, with a knee drop and a body press. Savich took the second event in nine minutes with a diamond neck twist.

Judo chops and a body press by Roberts dropped Savich in the third fall. Kowalski used a knee drop and body press to beat Cowboy Lee.

Texas Tech Nips Buffs In Two Overtimes 84-82

By United Press Internation l

Defending Southwest Conference basketball champion Texas Tech showed Monday night it still knows how to win the close ones—nipping Colorado 84-82 in a double overtime intersectional game.

In other games, conference teams lost two and won one. Arkansas outshot Missouri 72-68, Florida beat Rice 70-67 and Baylor fell to the Oklahoma City University Chiefs 79-64. The Southwest Conference has now won six games and lost four in intersectional warfare.

In games tonight involving league teams, Texas A&M plays Houston at College Station and Southern Methodist tackles Oklahoma at Norman.

The Red Raider-Buffalo game was a thriller all the way. Colorado held an 11-point lead at one time but it withered away under the deadeye shooting of six-foot, 10-inch Harold Hudgens and five-foot, 9 inch Del Ray Mounts. Hudgens tossed in 31 points and Mounts 21.

Sid Wall's twisting jump shot from 10 feet, with two seconds left to play, gave Tech the tense game before 8,000 persons. Ken Charleton of Colorado scored 24 points.

Oklahoma City outscored Baylor 15-2 in the first five minutes of the game and the Bears could not recover. OCU's Larry Jones topped the game's point makers with 19. Herb Barrett and Tom Garrison each had 11 for Baylor.

Arkansas controlled the boards in the game against Missouri. Jerry Carlton, Larry Wofford and Tommy Boyer consistently hit the bucket for the Razorbacks.

Carlton, senior guard, had 21 points, Boyer got 15 and Wofford sank 16.

Florida battled back from a 9-2 deficit to trip the Owls. Lou Merchant of Florida pumped in 26 points Rice's Jim Fox paced the Owls with 14.

Football Banquet Set For Tonight

Texas Tech freshman grid coach and varsity baseball mentor Berl Huffman will be the guest speaker at the annual football banquet honoring the Pampa Harvesters and the Shockers tonight at 7:30 at the Robert E. Lee Junior High cafeteria.

Huffman is a widely sought after speaker and is well known in the Panhandle. He has been associated with Tech 10 years. The easy going Raider staff member coached at Tech from 1935-1947 with the exception of a four year hitch in the Air Force.

He went to New Mexico University in 1947 and stayed until 1952 when he left the coaching profession to enter private business. Tech lured him back to coaching this fall.

Paul Brown, president of the Quarterback Club — sponsor of the banquet, will preside as the emcee. He will also introduce the football sweetheart and the other candidates.

Dr. Joe Donaldson will introduce Huffman and coach Weldon Trice will introduce the Harvesters and Shockers and will name the "Fighting Heart" award winner.

Guests will be introduced by Charlie Robison.

Tickets for the banquet are on sale at Malone's Pharmacy and Richard's Drug. They sell for $2.50 each according to Brown.

Talbert, Saxton On All Star Team

NEW YORK (UPI)— The Southwest Conference co-champions placed three men on the 22-man All-America football team named today by Look Magazine and the Football Writers Association of America.

Tackle Don Talbert and halfback James Saxton of Texas were picked along with halfback Lance Alworth of Arkansas.

The team was selected in a vote of about 1,100 writers.

Bearcats Named To Third Place

NEW YORK (UPI) — Defending national champion Ohio State opened defense of its title today as the first weekly leader in the United Press International Board of Coaches ratings.

The high-scoring Buckeyes, upset by Cincinnati in the NCAA finals last season, were the top pick of 26 of the 32-man UPI rating board in the first of this season's ratings. However, the Bearcats, who were picked for the top spot by eight coaches, were second on 25 other ballots to rank a close second behind Ohio State—341 points to 320.

Ohio State was the second pick if nine coaches and thus was named either first or second by the entire board. The Bearcats were named third on one ballot and fourth on another to make it strictly a two-team race for the top two spots. The board picked Ohio State to win the national title again in its pre-season balloting.

There was a close fight for third place between Wake Forest, Providence and Kansas State, with the third spot going to the Deacons by just two points as Providence and Kansas State tied for fourth. Duke was sixth, followed by Purdue, Southern California, Arizona State and West Virginia to round out the top 10.

Ohio State whipped Florida State, 72-47, in its first game of the new season Saturday but has a busy week ahead with games against Pittsburgh, Wichita and Wake Forest. Cincinnati also had an easy win, in its first start, routing Indiana State, 86-63. Its opponents this week, are Miami (Ohio) and Wisconsin.

Wake Forest, reputed to be one of the top teams in the South this season, started with a 95-82 win over Davidson, but tangles with North Carolina State tonight before taking on Ohio State on Saturday.

New York Titans Sign Alex Kroll

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Titans of the American Football League — committed to a $250,000 campaign to sign new players — acquired one of the nation's biggest stars Monday when they signed Alex Kroll, center and captain of unbeaten and untied Rutgers.

The 6-foot, 2-inch, 238-pound Kroll is expected to play linebacker for the Titans, who outbid the Los Angeles Rams of the National League for his services. The Titans' No. 2 draft choice, Kroll decided to play for the Titans partly because he wants to play in New York where he will have numerous opportunities to start a career in advertising.

The Pampa Daily News

AN INDEPENDENT FREEDOM NEWSPAPER

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by any government, with the gift of freedom, and that it is every man's duty to God to preserve his own liberty and respect the liberty of others. Freedom is self-control, no more, no less.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guides expressed in the Ten Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. For only when man understands Freedom and is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilites in harmony with the above moral principles.

Reducing Cattle Gamble

Texas cattlemen are trying to give up gambling, an effort which has no bearing on the personal moral standards of the gentlemen involved. They want to take the gamble out of their industry.

Cattlemen have always gambled - first their scalps and their lives, and lately their money and their ulcers.

First and foremost, a profit or loss in the cattle industry depends on the knowledge and training of the rancher. Knowledge and training will not produce rain, but it will show the way to make the most of the rain that does fall. Awareness of the latest scientific research concerning the nourishment value of certain grasses, and whether such grasses require much or little moisture, can mean the difference between fat cattle on the range, or a forced sale at a loss.

Knowledge of medical research, feed additives, freight rates and tax laws are modern necessities for staying in the cattle business.

The Texas Beef Council is the industry's effort to reduce the biggest gamble in their business — public acceptance of the product.

Texans like beef. Opinion surveys have shown that beef is the favorite meat of approximately 70 per cent of all Texas families. Only one factor inhibits the use of beef; some housewives think it is too expensive.

Cattlemen, who know that the relative cost of beef has actually decreased during the past 30 years while the quality has been immeasurably improved, feel that these few housewives are not aware of the tremendous versatility of their product.

Through the Beef Council, they have attempted to make every homemaker aware that beef, bought wisely and prepared properly, can be served every day in a hundred delicious meals.

Through the Beef Council, cattlemen have tried to make every mother aware that beef is a prime source of essential protein necessary to the growth of young bodies, the maintenance of healthy ones, and the repair and rehabilitation of the ill. By using beef properly, a Texas homemaker can keep her children well, herself slender, and her husband happy by balancing the food budget.

There is some evidence that the cattlemen are winning their fight - that producing cattle for a living is less a risk than it once was. Consumption of the inexpensive forequarter cuts of beef has increased every year since the Beef Council was organized. When EVERY homemaker is aware of the value of beef to her family, the demand will be steady, the price will fluctuate less, and ranching will be what modern cattlemen are trying to make it — not a gamble, but a business.

War And Poverty

There is an amazingly false notion which crops up in respect to war. It is that war breeds prosperity.

Such a notion is false on its face, if anyone cares to examine the question reasonably. How can war produce prosperity when the entire action of war is geared to destruction? How can the world be better off when crops are not grown; when houses and buildings are destroyed; when lives are lost; when ships are sent to the bottom of the ocean; when production is geared to mass murder rather than to an improved standard of living?

Then why do so many people actually believe that war and prosperity go hand in hand? The notion arises from the irrational belief, held by so many, that dollar wages relate to prosperity.

Competent studies in this field reveal without question that dollar wages have very little to do with prosperity. For instance, during the latter part of the nineteenth century, dollar wages were low and rose very slowly. However, producivity was high, and this nation improved its standards more rapidly and systematically than at any other time since the Constitution was written.

The characteristic of this period was the fact of low wages, low prices and rising standards of living. Since 1932, the fact of our existence has been rising wages, rising prices and a declining rate of increase of productivity and of standards of living

And take this statement, so often heard from those who believe that war and prosperity are linked. "Americans never had it so good as they did during World War II."

E. C. Harwood, economist with the American Institute for Economic Research, gives us some interesting figures relating to World War II. He points out that production of passenger automobiles for civilian use during the war years virtually ceased altogether. The huge investment of private funds in private vehicles decreased because of wear and tear and depreciation and obsolescence.

Construction of new residential housing was reduced by 85 per cent during this same period.

A comprehensive index of production of new consumer goods between the years 1941 to 1945, inclusive, shows a 25 per cent decrease.

How, in view of the facts, can people believe that Americans were never so prosperous as they were when they couldn't buy automobiles, or tires, or radios, or butter, or new houses?

The reason lies in our illusions about dollars. During this same period wages were high. People got top pay and could hardly find avenues for spending. In consequence, they saved their money, many billions actually going into the purchase of war bonds which purchases helped to bring on ruinous inflation, rising prices and further erosion of savings and invested capital.

Now we are told that the one thing needed for the American economy is to have a war with Russia. This, it is assumed, will keep us "prosperous." In actual fact, it could bring on our total economic ruin.

If a war did occur with Russia or with some other foreign power, it would mean massive rationing and shortages all over again. There would be less gasoline, fewer buildings, travel would be limited, clothing would deteriorate in quality and quantity. But most of us would have lots of dollars and many would be fooled into thinking that they were growing wealthy as a result of dollar savings. Yet stealthily, beneath the surface, inflation would be in process of impoverishing our wage earners and making it more and more difficult for us to have the things which really are wealth.

Until we learn that money is NOT wealth, but is only a medium of exchange, we will fall victim to this erroneous type of thinking. Greatly increased dollar flow in an economy marked by a curtailment of the goods and services we want, and a rising price on everything still available, would impoverish us all, even tho our bank accounts were full of money.

War is not an enricher. It destroys all. We are always worse off, not better off, as a result of these politically contrived catastrophies.

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — Whenever the taut events in a tense world become more than is bearable, I like to seek out the company of a tiny woman who has been a star for 41 years and who, from 1924 until now, has been a personal enthusiasm for me. She is a woman in whose life sunlight and shadows have both come, a woman who has entertained possibly more people in more countries than any other performing artist. When we meet we do not meet on the plateau of star and reporter. We meet, I always have deeply felt, as friends. Her name is Molly Picon.

We walked out of the stage entrance of the Martin Beck Theater just after matinee the other day. She had just finished the afternoon performance of "Milk and Honey" and we were bound for the Famous Kitchen next door, where they keep a table for her. There were perhaps 40 women and a few men in a crowd at the stage door. I expected that she would be asked for autographs, she would be stopped to sign a picture of herself. Instead, these people with evident and real affection merely sought to touch her arm and murmur, "May you live forever," "May you always be in health," "May you shine for all time."

In the restaurant, we sat and talked at length. She spoke of the emotion that surged over her when such expressions of good will were made to her. They touched her.

"You know," she said, "if someone has been a star for more than 40 years, it is expected that one will be callous, cold to such expressions from the public. How could you be? If you worked as an actress for 141 years, it still would be an expression of affection that could not be ignored. I was born in Broome St. We were poor. Everybody around us was poor. It was not singular with my family. We often had a hard time of things. I remember once my mother, my sister and I lived in a theater in Philadelphia for a year. There was nowhere else for us to live. We weren't working much. We slept in dressing rooms, bathed standing up at hand basins in the ladies lounge. We only could go there when the theater was empty, no audiences. Saroyan did a play a season or so ago called 'The Cave Dwellers,' about some old actors living in a derelict theater. Well, we weren't old, the Philadephia theater wasn't derelict, but we lived there. I've heard actors say, 'Oh, I never feel I am living until I'm in the theater.' I can say it, too — I wouldn't have been living if that theater hadn't sheltered us for a whole year."

Was it true, nonetheless, that she complained to her mother because she received only 50 cents a performance, each performance consisting mainly of crying hard at some pathetic point in a melodrama?

"Yes, I did," said Miss Picon. "What I said was, with some youthful arrogance: 'For 50 cents who needs to cry so hard?' Later, when I was trying to get someone, anyone, to take me seriously in New York, they said: 'All right, Molly, we have a job for you. All you have to do is cry.' When I tried for jobs on Broadway they offered me the jobs of calamitous, sobbing, breast-beating old women. I was young—I was 29 years old. I didn't want to cry and play old Jewish mothers with a heavy burden. I wanted to sing and dance. My then new husband rescued me. He said he would take me to Europe and make a European star out of me and we would come back to Broadway on clouds of gold. He did take me to Europe, where he said I was an American star, and by playing for four years in Vienna, Berlin, Bucharest, Warsaw, Sofia, Paris, London, I became a young, gay musical European star. We came back to New York and I was now a European star — but I didn't get to Broadway to sing and dance. Will you believe me that for 10 years, half a century, I thirsted to sing and dance as a star on Broadway. Now—NOW—it comes to me. I waited 50 years to do what I'm doing in 'Milk and Honey.' Don't ever let anyone tell you actors are impatient people."

I once wrote of Molly Picon that if they could bottle what she has as magic, I'd order a case of it.

A case? A roomful.

Allen - Scott Report:

Employers' Owe Government More Than $1 Billion In Withholding, Social Security, Unemployment Taxes

WASHINGTON — Employers throughout the country owe the government more than $1 billion in withholding, Social Security and unemployment taxes collected from hundreds of thousands of workers.

The $1,072,440,000 total is slightly greater than the $1,071,016,000 in such employer delinquencies the previous year.

That's what the Treasury Department has reported to Senator John Williams, Del., ranking Republican of the Finance Committee and long-time crusader for Internal Revenue reforms.

The Treasury's study discloses that only 5 out of 63 districts showed decreases in delinquent collections.

Brooklyn, N.Y., led this meager list with a 22.5 per cent reduction.

On the other hand, delinquent collections increased in 19 districts — one, Kansas City, Mo., by 182 per cent.

Among this group is Williams' own state, Delaware, with a 32 per cent increase.

Other districts in which employer delinquencies increased are:

Puerto Rico 74 per cent; Denver, Colo., 68; Aberdeen, S. Dak., 48; Nashville, Tenn., 44; Phoenix, Ariz. 44; Cheyenne, Wyo., 43; international operations (foreign countries), 42; Portland, Ore., 39; Helena, Mont., 33; Pittsburgh, Pa., 36; Albuquerque, N.M., 34; Baltimore, Md., 34; Portsmouth, N.H 31; Los Angeles., Calif. 30; Austin, Tex., 26; Camden, N.J., 25; and Columbia, S.C., 25.

Senator Williams brought these jolting facts to light to stress that this huge $1,072,440,000 tax debt is a double loss — to the government and the hundreds of thousands of workers involved.

"The failure of employers to pay these taxes represents not only a tremendous loss in revenue to the Treasury," said Williams, "but also means that workers are not getting the proper credit for the payment of their withheld taxes, income, Social Security and unemployment insurance.

"Particularly disturbing is the considerable increase in certain districts of delinquent unemployment tax payments. Three offices show an increase of more than 100 per cent in such delinquencies. I regret to state that one of these offices is in my own state—Delaware, with an increase of 125 per cent over the previous year."

The other two are Cheyenne, Wyo., 108 per cent; Puerto Rico, 111 per cent.

MORE JOLTS — Total delinquent unemployment tax payments are $236,843,000 — a jump of 9.4 per cent over the previous year.

In 11 districts, these employer delinquencies were up 50 to 100 per cent; in 12 others, from 25 to 50 per cent. These two groups are as follows:

Burlington, Vt., 98 per cent; Helena, Mont., 86; Aberdeen, S. Dak., 76; Denver, Colo., 74; Reno, Nev., 72; Springfield, Ill, 66; Des. Moines, Iowa, 66; Puerto Rico, 64; Cincinnati, Ohio, 58; Louisville, Ky, 57; and Fargo, N. Dak., 53.

Hartford, Conn., 45 per cent; Milwaukee, Wis., 45; Camden, N.J., 43; Omaha, Nebr., 37; Portsmouth, N.H., 34; Nashville, Tenn, 31; Salt Lake City, Utah, 30; Indianapolis, Ind, 29; Jackson, Miss., 29; Phoenix, Ariz., 29; Boise, Idaho, 28; and Los Angeles, Calif., 26.

Internal Revenue Comissioner Mortimer Caplin, in a memorandum to Senator Williams, attributed the marked increase in these delinquencies as due "primarily to the adverse economic conditions which developed sporadically during the year, and which could not be measured either in terms of scope or depth."

Williams has been crusading against the failure of employers to pay these taxes since 1954. That year these delinquencies totaled $1,614,494,000 and involved 1,754,474 employers.

"Over the seven - year period," said Williams, "the number of such delinquent taxpayers has been cut by nearly 700,000, and there has been approximately a $540 million reduction in over-all delinquent taxes. That is a 33 per cent gain, and is a very commendable improvement. But the huge total of these delinquents still remaining is shocking, and an extremely serious loss both to the government and hundreds of thousands of innocent workers who have paid their taxes and are being gypped."

THE LADIES — Four-year-old Caroline Kennedy loves to mimic her father, including sitting in a rocking chair. She has a small white one in her room, with her name printed on the back, and is very fond of rocking it it, especially when her father is in the room. . .In addition to the House having a new Speaker, the country is going to have a new Third Lady — the wife of Representative John McCormack, Mass., who is slated to be the next Speaker. The late Speaker Sam Rayburn had no wife, and on the few occasions he entertained, a sister acted as his hostess. Mrs. McCormack is a one-time opera singer who still sings on occasion. Her taste in music includes jazz. The McCormacks live in a hotel during sessions of Congress, rarely go to parties, preferring instead to entertain small groups of close friends. It is one of their proud boasts that in more than 40 years of marriage, they have spent few days apart. . .Mrs. Estes Kefauver, wife of Tennessee's anti-monopoly crusading Senator, is a talented artist and conducts a studio for students. They include youngsters, diplomats, housewives, officials and businessmen. Mrs. Kefauver's specialty is portraits, of which she has done a number. . .Latest imported creation displayed by Mrs. Gwen Cafritz, one of the capital's more zealous "society queens," is an emerald green Balenciago gown of heavy pebbled crepe, with a deep cowl neckline in back and sheath skirt with train and slit in front. Topping this off, Mrs. Cafritz wore an emerald and diamond necklace and earrings to match.

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Tuesday, Dec. 5, the 339th day of the year with 26 to follow in 1961.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning star is Venus.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1776, the first scholastic fraternity in America, Phi Beta Kappa, was organized at the College of William and Mary.

In 1848, President Polk confirmed the discovery of gold in California, thus making the gold rush of '48 and '49 inevitable.

In 1933, prohibition was abolished with the 21st Amendment.

In 1934, 66 persons were executed in Russia following the "purge" trials at which they were charged with plotting against the Stalin regime.

A thought for today: George Washington said: "There can be no greater error than to expect or calculate upon real favors from nation to nation."

The American Way

WHO WERE THESE MEN?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Willis E. Stone is author of the "Proposed Liberty Amendment" and Chairman, National Committee for Economic Freedom, Los Angeles, Calif.)

Those who believe in American principles and stand solidly for our constitutional rights to private property and enterprise seem to invite persecution. One might well wonder that our institutions of freedom have managed to survive at all.

Remember General Billy Mitchell? He was court martialed for daring to advocate air power. The same clan that did this now clamors for a few billion tax dollars for a flight to the moon.

General Douglas MacArthur was fired for wanting to win the Korean War against communists. General Edwin Walker was fired for training his men to fight communism in Europe, while the Defense Department at home trained communists in the use of our best jet military aircraft.

Are these inconsistencies? Apparently not. It is not the rulers, but the people who love freedom and have somehow brought it about and, in a fashion, sustained it thus far in America.

It has always been so. History tells us it was petty jealousies that put John Paul Jones ashore in France during the Revolutionary War and deprived him of a ship. When a ship was arranged, by Benjamin Franklin, he contributed mightily toward victory and independence.

The most amazing inconsistency of history is that once a group of men, with a nation in their grasp, set aside the lust for power and at fantastic personal risk spoke out for American style freedom in the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

Have you ever wondered what breed of men were these who so completely reversed history and gave us our freedoms? Our history books skip over the signers of the Declaration of Independence with scarcely more than passing notice. Each signer knew in advance that he was signing his own death warrant if he were caught by the British or if their cause failed. Yet they signed, and pledged their lives, their fortunes and their honor. Best of all — THEY KEPT THEIR PLEDGES.

Who were these men? Twenty-four of the fifty-six were lawyers and jurists. Eleven were merchants, nine were farmers and plantation owners. They were all in positions of financial security and moderately well educated, yet they put their lives, property, position and honor in jeopardy because they loved freedom more.

Five of the signers were captured by the British and tortured before they died.

Francis Lewis saw his home and properties destroyed and his wife captured. She later died.

John Hart and his 13 children escaped when the British sacked his home. His sick wife did not escape, and died. The children were scattered and vanished, and John Hart died of a broken heart in 1780.

Philip Livingstone and Lewis Morris had their estates and properties laid waste, and never recovered their properties.

Braxton Carter saw his fleet of ships swept from the seas, and died a bankrupt.

Thomas McKean served the Continental Congress without pay, and lost all his possessions to the enemy.

The properties of Ellery, Clymer, Middleton, Rutledge, Hall, Gwinnett, Hayward and Walton were looted.

At the Battle of Yorktown, British General Cornwallis made his headquarters in the home of Thomas Nelson Jr. Observing this, Nelson requested General Washington to fire upon his home, and, it was destroyed.

This is the price they paid for freedom. Dare we do less? They believed freedom to be worth the sacrifice. We know it was and is. Then why do we not give new vitality and force to the freedoms they gave us? We can, if we will by applying the terms of the LIBERTY AMENDMENT pending in Congress as H. J. Res. 23. It has already been approved by Wyoming, Texas, Nevada and Louisiana. It provides that:

"Sec. 1. The Government of the United States shall not engage in any business, professional, commercial, financial or industrial enterprise except as specified in the Constitution.

"Sec. 4. . .Congress shall not levy taxes on personal incomes, estates, and or gifts."

Beauty And Beast Meet And Talk Of Many Things

By HENRY McLEMORE

The Beauty and the Beast of columnists met today — Arlene Dahl and myself. And I don't think I need to tell you which was which.

We talked of many things. Newspaper columns, for one thing.

Miss Dahl writes one, too. It's a beauty column entitled, "Let's Be Beautiful." But she has a terrible time with deadlines. "I only wish I would typewrite," Miss Dahl said. "It would save me so much time. I write in longhand, and I stand up when I'm writing."

Did she write the column herself, or did she hire a pretty ghost writer?

"I write it," she said with what I took to be an indignant toss of her red hair. "When you read my prose, you may be sure you are reading pure Dahl."

I asked what she most wanted to tell the American women in her column.

"To buy clothes and accessories with the whole picture in mind," she said. "A woman on a budget must not spend most of her money on a bag just because it is beautiful. Or on a pair of shoes. Or a dress. She must think of the whole — the ensemble. She must spend her money on the whole effect. European women spend that way, and as a result they are more chic."

Miss Dahl is a woman of many talents. She is first — and she emphasized this — a wife and homemaker for her husband, Chris Holmes. She is an actress, and a designer. All the lingerie produced under the label "Arlene Dahl Enterprises" are designed by her. "With no help, either," she said.

Did Miss Dahl think that being a housewife hurt her as an actress?

"Just the opposite," she said. "I now have security. I do not have to work for a living. I do not have to take any part that comes my way. I am no longer an artist in a garret. I can make the pictures I please. I can interpret parts the way I think best. In short, I can relax. If the director doesn't like me, I can go home to Chris. I know he likes me."

Was she going to continue as an actress?

"Until the moment when it conflicts with my life with Chris. Then I quit. He comes first."

The Beast asked Beauty a few more questions.

Who was her idea of the prettiest woman she had ever seen?

"I think I must say Hedy Lamar," she said. "But I can't forget Lady Diana Duff Cooper and Dolores Del Rio. Maybe Dolores is the most beuatiful woman I ever saw. I interviewed Miss Del Rio once, for my beauty column, and I found out that she has a rub every day with oil of geraniums. Wonderful. She makes people swoon."

Her favorite restaurant?

"Scandia, in Hollywood. And then the Farmers' Market in Los Angeles."

The best movie she ever saw?

"'Gone With The Wind'. I have seen it ten times. Better every time."

Had her own beauty ever been a burden?

"It's been fun," she said. "That is, if I am a beauty. People say I am, but I often look at myself and think I'd better read my newspaper column, as well as write it."

A most pleasant lady, Mrs. Holmes.

Visitor Reveals Wake Isle Now Seems Forgotten

By JIM DOWNING

WAKE ISLAND (NEA) — With the Rising Sun beginning to shed its glow on some unlikely spots in the Far East and "incidents" sending seismic tremors across the Pacific, the U.S. Navy, early in 1941, decided Wake Island would be a fine place to fix up an air base.

The Marines, Seabees and civilian construction crews came in to scrape at the coral, put up some buildings and erect the air base. The job was half done when, on Monday morning, Dec. 8, 1941, at breakfast, word came that the Japanese had attacked Pearl Harbor, 2,000 miles east across the international dateline where it still was Dec. 7. The 1,731 Americans on Wake knew they had had it.

They had, in fact, until 11:58 a.m. to load up what guns they had, gas up and deploy the dozen fighter planes, dig trenches and generally batten down the hatches.

The Japanese bombers came in low and plastered the place in a personal salute from the Emperor. Sure, they took Wake, finally. But the price paid was fantastic, considering what they got.

For 15 days, the Japanese threw everything they could muster against Maj. James P. S. Devereux' 378 Marines, Maj. Paul A. Putman's 60-man Marine Squadron, Cmdr. W. S. Cunningham's 72 Navy men, Capt. Henry Wilson's handful of Army communications men and Dan Teters' construction gang of 1,146.

In those 16 days, the Japanese lost — by their own admission — 11 ships, 29 airplanes and an incredible 5,700 men, either drowned or shot down or killed in combat.

When Devereux surrendered after a massive landing, our losses were a dozen planes and 96 men.

If you're like me, 20 years later, you get off your trans-Pacific airplane and you feel the goose pimples, a lump in the throat, a sting in the eye. Wake Island. . ."the enemy has landed and the situation is in doubt. . ." That was Cunningham.

Is there a momument marking, for the thousands upon thousands of trans-Pacific tourists, the fact that this indeed is hallowed ground?

Going through the air terminal, turning right past the cluster of terminal and service buildings and walking a few hundred feet to the fork in the road will reveal a "monument."

A pitiful pile of coral surmounted by the prop and engine cowling off an F4F, flanked by a pair of wooden signboards and partly overgrown by the mesquite-type island brush. A tiny bronze plaque is corroded and slightly askew.

Someone has tried. Someone with the proper respect, if somewhat lacking in education. The plaque was donated by a Tacoma "foundary," the sign reveals.

The fading signs hail the defenders and note that the prop and speedring are from Capt. Henry T. Elrod's last Marine fighter plane, crash-landed after attacking a Japanese destroyer. His bones are somewhere hereabouts possibly, because he died in hand-to-hand combat the day before the surrender.

Hank Elrod, his last plane lying in wreckage, crouching in a slit trench somewhere here on the night of Dec. 21 with a rifle in his hand, almost certainly would have laughed at the thought of a monument as he looked at the stars for the last time.

Today, even with a modicum of modern conveniences, plenty of food and water, movies every night and cold beer at the "Drifters Reef," Wake is a lousy place to live and work.

Wake is a three-square-mile conglomerate of three islands, roughly V-shaped.

Wreckage strews the south shore, especially in the area where the rusting hull of a Japanese supply ship Suwa Maru lies beached — what is left of it after the typhoon of 1952 that swept the island almost clean of man's handiwork.
