British renew 'action' in Falkland Islands

By The Associated Press

Britain said its warplanes bombed the airfield on the Falkland Islands capital of Stanley again today. Argentina had no immediate comment on the report, but said it rescued 400 survivors from the General Belgrano, the cruiser torpedoed and sunk by a British submarine.

That left 642 crewmen officially listed as missing in the icy South Atlantic. The privately owned Argentine news agency DYN quoted naval sources as saying the majority of the 1,042 crew were rescued, but gave no figures.

Ireland, dropping its support for Britain in favor of neutrality, called for an urgent U.N. Security Council session to demand an immediate end to the Falklands fighting and a search for a diplomatic solution to the soversignty dispute over the British colony. Argentina seized the islands April 2.

In Washington, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said heavy casualties in the sinking of the General Belgrano may cause Argentina to stiffen its resistance to any compromise settlement of the Falklands crisis.

British Defense Minister John Nott told the House of Commons in London "a further sortie was made today to render the (Stanley) airstrip unusable for light supply, communications and ground attack aircraft operating within the Falkland Islands themselves."

Nott gave no other details. Britain said its first raids on the airport, Saturday, left the 4,000-foot main runway unusable for jet fighters.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, speaking in Parliament before Nott, defended Britain's sinking of the General Belgrano. A British submarine torpedoed the cruiser outside the 200-mile war zone Britain imposed around the disputed islands.

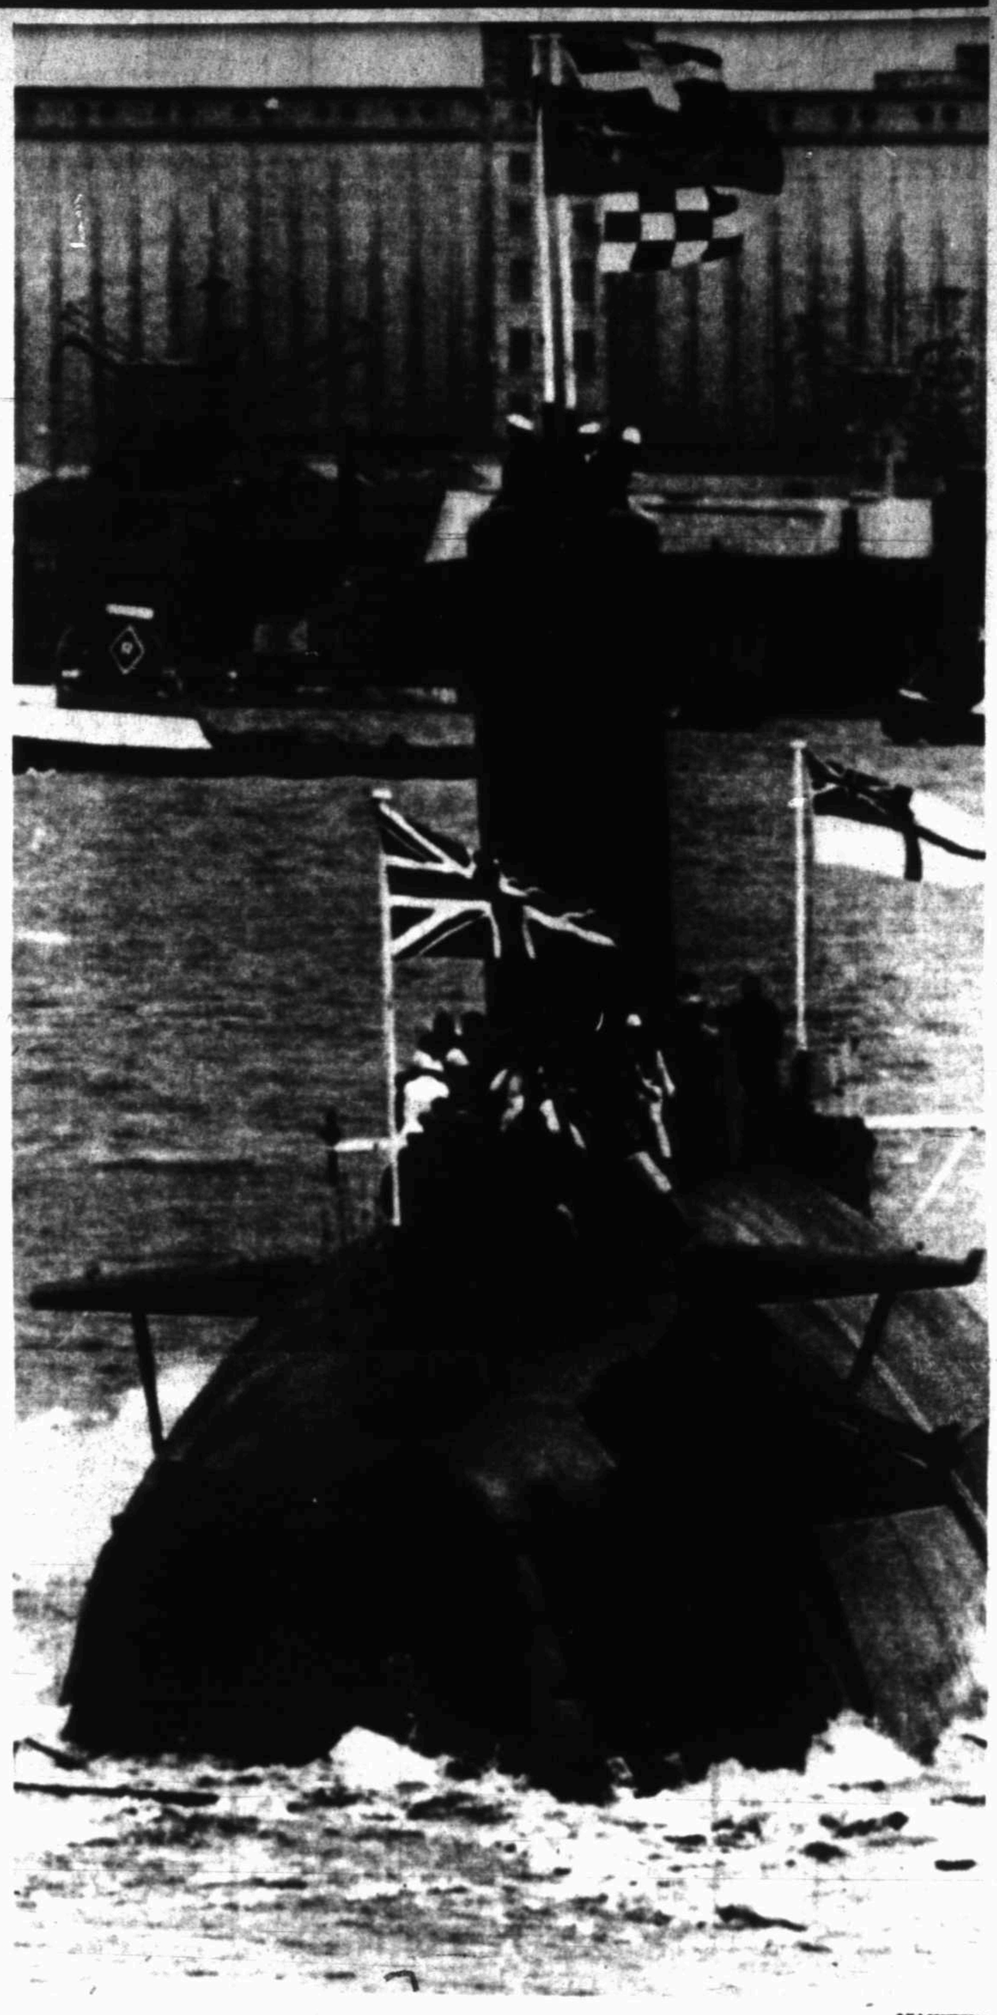

"If we had left it any later it might have been too late. I might have had to come to the House with the news that some of our own vessels had been sunk," Mrs. Thatcher told the Commons.

"The worry I live with hourly is that Argentine forces in attacks, both naval and air, will get through to our forces."

British Defense Ministry spokesman Ian MacDonald was asked earlier if the latest clashes involved rescue vessels searching for survivors of the General Belgrano. "If Argentine ships are engaged in picking up survivors, we would not interfere with them," he said.

McDonald said the British armada "is continuing by air and by sea both by day and by night to enforce the total exclusion zone around the Falklands." The 200-mile zone was imposed last Friday.

He reiterated earlier British claims that the General Belgrano, escorted by two destroyers armed with anti-ship and anti-aircraft missiles, posed a threat to British ships "because of its position relative to our task force and because of its weapons capability overall."

Fueling the fight

Polish violence continues

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The worst violence in Warsaw since the start of martial law bloodied the Polish capital as thousands of Solidarity supporters demonstrated in Polish cities for the second time in three days.

"They think they can still warm up the political climate as if they had not had enough," Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski told Parliament. "But if they think they'll achieve their aims, they are making a tragic mistake."

Police armed with rifles and clubs charged 25,000 people massed in Warsaw's historic Castle Square Monday for a rally called by underground Solidarity leaders.

The crowd screamed "Gestapo! Gestapo!" at more than 400 helmeted police and ignored their warnings to disperse, witnesses said. Water-cannon trucks pelted the crowd, and the police charged, firing tear-gas grenades.

Ambulances sped bleeding, beaten demonstrators to hospitals, but medical officials refused to say how many people were injured.

The government television service said the crowd attacked public buildings, smashed windows and burned vehicles. Witnesses said the rioters threw up barricades and fired sticks and stones at the police near the Parliament building and Communist Party headquarters.

The police chased the crowd down the cobblestone streets of the Old Town, but hundreds regrouped and returned to the fray. Witnesses said the clashes continued into the night, and police reinforcements were sent in.

Warsaw TV said several dozen protesters were arrested and would "account for their transgressions under summary procedure, in accordance with martial law."

It was the most serious violence since security forces killed nine miners in southern Poland shortly after martial law was imposed Dec. 13.

The government threatened to reimpose the nightly curfew lifted Sunday, Warsaw TV reported.

It said there were "demonstrations and incidents ... in some other cities" but gave no details. Official sources reported marchers jammed the streets of Gdansk, the Baltic port where Solidarity was formed in August 1980, but eyewitness accounts were not immediately available. The sources said foreign journalists were banned from the city.

"People who do not want to understand anything, who have learned nothing, have dragged the youth into the streets to oppose the idea of reconciliation," said Warsaw TV.

The rally was called to mark the anniversary of the liberal 1791 constitution, which was annulled two years later by the partition of Poland two years later between Prussia and Russia.

Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the premier and Communist Party chief, attended an official observance in Castle Square before the Solidarity rally, but it was held behind a police cordon and there was no trouble.

Reagan to back school prayer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is preparing to announce his support of a constitutional amendment allowing voluntary prayer in public schools, an administration official says.

The official, who asked to remain anonymous, said Monday the president will endorse a constitutional amendment on Thursday, which has been designated National Day of Prayer.

But Morton Blackwell, a presidential aide who serves as a liaison with the religious community, said a final decision has not been made on whether Reagan will endorse a proposed amendment on Thursday.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes, asked about the president's plans, replied, "I wouldn't deny it. I'd just wait and see."

Blackwell said between 15 and 20 different bills advancing a constitutional amendment to legalize voluntary prayer in public schools have been introduced in Congress.

It was not clear which version Reagan intends to back.

The Supreme Court in 1962 outlawed prayer sessions in public schools, contending the practice violated the First Amendment which prohibits governments from sponsoring religious activities and from becoming too involved in them.

But the high court did not forbid voluntary silent prayers or meditations in schools.

Reagan gained the support of conservative Christian religious groups during the 1980 presidential campaign when he said he opposed court decisions banning prayer in public schools.

Blackwell said the school prayer issue has been the "subject of several discussions in the administration over a long period of time." The talks have involved the Department of Justice, the Office of Policy Development, which handles domestic issues, and the Cabinet council on legal policy, he said.

Although backers of prayer in schools have pressed for a constitutional amendment since the 1962 Supreme Court decision, Congress has rejected such proposals five times.

In the past several years, some states have attempted to circumvent the Supreme Court's ruling by passing their own laws to try to return prayer to public schools.

But in two cases, the courts have struck down the state laws. Massachusetts' law was declared unconstitutional by the state's highest court in 1980, and the Supreme Court killed Louisiana's voluntary prayer law in January.

FAA still studying cause of plane crash

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

The failure of the engines of a Piper Navajo aircraft which led to a crash landing in a Midland residential area Sunday morning has been determined tentatively to have been the result of misfueling, according to the National Traffic Safety Board in Fort Worth.

"The FAA has been getting all the data for me since I was not at the crash site, and they were telling me the aircraft was refueled with jet fuel and that's what caused both engines to fail," said air safety investigator Armond Edwards.

However, Federal Aviation Administration official Victor Frier Jr. of Lubbock, who investigated the crash, told The Reporter-Telegram this morning that "we're still right in the middle of our investigation and we really haven't made any determination yet."

Pilot Fred Michna of Midland narrowly escaped injury when he was forced to land on Cedar Avenue between Main Street and Lamesa Road, shortly after re-fueling and taking off from Midland Air Park.

"These things happen and they just continually keep happening," said Edwards of misfueling. "When you put jet engine fuel in a reciprocating engine aircraft, it just burns the engine up. They get so hot they just stop running."

Edwards said the wrong-fuel-related crash was the fourth such air accident in Texas in the past two years. Three persons, including an Odessa businessman, died in a San Antonio aircraft crash April 18 after their craft was fueled with jet fuel, while similar accidents occurred in Houston and Dallas.

Because of the increasing prevalence of such accidents, Edwards said the NTSB is considering ways in which misfueling can be avoided.

"One of the things we're looking at is training of the re-fueling personnel," he said, "and also the possibility of having...filler necks for (fuel) tanks in different sizes, like (auto) tanks for unleaded and regular."

Runoff candidates open round by trading barbs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Jim Mattox and John Hannah, candidates for the Democratic nomination for attorney general, kicked off their campaigns for their June 5 runoff by verbally kicking at each other.

"He's spent the last 10 years of his life in partisan politics," Hannah said of Mattox Monday."I doubt he's seen the inside of a courtroom in six years."

Mattox said, "Some of us have progressed beyond the stage of ordinary lawyering. I'm not even sure John is a law school graduate."

Mattox, a Dallas congressman, led the balloting in Saturday's primary and will face Hannah, a former Tyler U.S. attorney, in the runoff. At his news conference, shortly after Hannah's meeting with reporters, Mattox opened by asking how many reporters had shown up for Hannah's event.

"You let him off too easy. You ought to ask him hard ones (questions)," he said.

Mattox claimed he has tried twice as many cases as Hannah, and said Hannah has tried to portray himself as "some type of super-lawyer" but "most of the things he has taken credit for, his assistants did."

Hannah said much of Mattox' courtroom experience came as an assistant district attorney trying traffic cases.

"I've never tried a traffic case," said Hannah.

Jury selection begins today in Sowell case

Jury selection got under way this morning in the Walter Sowell case after one of two charges against him was dismissed in pre-trial conferences.

Assistant City Attorney Paul Williams said he dropped a disorderly conduct charge against the 17-year-old furniture store employee because "there was evidence of disorderly conduct by profanity, but not enough to cause an immediate breach of the peace."

Sowell was arrested Oct. 16 and charged with disorderly conduct and public intoxication.

He initially pleaded guilty to both charges, but at a Nov. 11 hearing his attorneys successfully argued that the guilty pleas were generated by his fear of being returned to jail, where he claims he was beaten the night of his arrest.

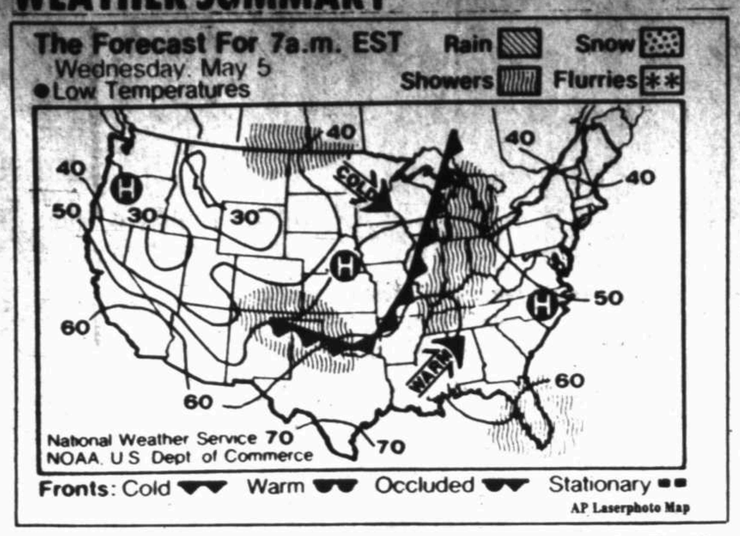

Municipal Court Judge Jim FitzGerald then threw out the guilty pleas and ordered a new trial which will now center on the public intoxication charge.

Two police officers were suspended in the wake of formal brutality allegations brought by Sowell last fall.

One officer later quit the department and the other is still on the force.

WEATHER SUMMARY

The National Weather Service forecasts rain Wednesday for Florida, from the upper Mississippi to the Great Lakes and in the Southwest. Cold weather is forecast for the northern Plains. Warm weather is expected for the Southeast.

Phoenix remembered as 'lucky ship'

SAN DIEGO (AP) — White-haired Richard Smith remembers the Phoenix, a sleek gray gunboat, as "a lucky ship." One of the few that survived Pearl Harbor, and four hard-fought years of Pacific combat.

"She went through a lot and never took a direct hit. She led a charmed life," said Smith, a 19-year-old deckhand when the Japanese struck at Pearl Harbor, leaving 18 U.S. Navy ships sunk or severly damaged, 170 planes destroyed and about 3,700 casualties.

Charmed it was, until Sunday.

A BRITISH submarine sank the 43-year-old cruiser, since renamed the General Belgrano, Argentina's second-largest warship. Argentine officials say more than 500 are missing in the icy South Atlantic seas.

Smith, 60, heard the news while driving to work Monday morning and immediately feared the worst.

"I knew it must be the Phoenix. It was one of the few big ships they've got," said Smith, a Navy retiree now working in the supply department at North Island Naval Station.

"It's a shame," he said in an interview with The Associated Press.

For five years, from 1941 to 1946, the Phoenix was Smith's floating home.

"It was my first ship, a fine ship. I'd probably still be on it if it wasn't decommissioned," said Smith.

Two years ago, when the Navy commissioned the fifth Phoenix, a submarine, in Groton, Conn., Smith was among 140 former Phoenix shipmates who attended. "We were dedicated to that ship," he said.

Smith was shining his shoes on the fateful morning of Dec. 7, 1941, when bombs began demolishing the surprised American fleet.

"The first thing I saw was the Arizona going up in smoke. We were too busy to think, we had to act. It took half an hour before we could fire a shot. We had to cut down the awnings that covered the guns and break locks on the ready boxes to get ammo," said Smith.

After escaping the holocaust unharmed, the Phoenix, St. Louis, Detroit and other remnants of the crippled task force assembled to search for the enemy carriers.

Close calls became commonplace for the charmed warship.

"It seemed like we were always dodging torpedos," said Smith, who remembers seeing Gen. Douglas MacArthur on the bridge of the Phoenix.

TWO NEAR-MISSES came near the end of the war, during the re-conquest of the Philippines in 1945.

Enroute to Lingayen Gulf for the invasion of Luzon, lookouts on the Phoenix sighted the conning tower of a diving submarine in the Mindanao Sea off Siquijor Island. Immediately, two torpedos began bearing down on the Phoenix. At the last minute, the battleship eluded the oncoming explosives and the destroyer Taylor blew the sub to the surface and rammed her.

On another occasion, "a kamikaze damn near got us. A blown-off wing flew off our starboard side and the plane crashed on the portside."

Monday, upon arriving home, Smith encountered his life's greatest irony. In his mail, addressed to surviving crewmembers of the Phoenix, was an invitation to this summer's reunion in San Antonio, Texas.

Richard Smith, a retired deckhand aboard the USS Phoenix when Pearl Harbor was attacked in 1941, watches films of his old floating home on local television news Monday night in San Diego. After hearing news of the British attack on the Phoenix, renamed the General Belgrano by the Argentines, to whom it was sold by the U.S., Smith found an invitation to a reunion of Phoenix crew members, which he is holding, in his Monday mail.

Reagan decides KKK-victimized family deserves visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — By the time he arrived for work in the Oval Office, President Reagan had already read the morning newspaper's account of how a cross-burning five years ago changed the life of a black family in suburban Maryland.

He wanted to do something about it, he informed his aides, and suggested that he visit the family to "tell them this isn't the way it is in America."

By mid-afternoon Monday, the details had been worked out and Reagan was in a helicopter heading for the College Park Woods ranch home of Barbara and Phillip Butler, both printers in the Government Printing Office.

Aides said the president had wanted to make the trip without reporters. Even though it was announced just minutes before he left the White House, a crowd of television cameras and neighborhood residents was there to greet him. So were the Butlers, having rushed home early from work.

REAGAN SPENT about 20 minutes inside the tan brick home, listening to the Butlers' tale of how they have not felt at ease in their own home since they discovered the burning cross on their lawn on Jan. 30, 1977.

Just before departing, the president told reporters he thought "maybe I might just call attention to how reprehensible something of this kind is."

Reagan's visit came only hours after he had issued a statement supporting a Senate compromise to extend key provisions of the 1965 Voting Rights Act. The president had been sharply criticized by civil rights leaders for opposing an earlier version of the extension of the landmark civil rights statute.

The Butlers were vandalized repeatedly when they became the fifth black family to move into the middle-class neighborhood. The incidents culminated with the burning cross in 1977.

Seven months later, William Aitcheson, a 22-year-old member of the Ku Klux Klan, was convicted of a criminal misdemeanor in the case and sentenced to 90 days in jail. A federal judge last week ordered Aitcheson to pay the couple $23,000 in civil damages, but his whereabouts are unknown.

Reagan, who first read about the couple Monday morning in The Washington Post, said he told them "how much I regretted any unpleasantness that they may have had because there shouldn't be any place in our country for that sort of thing."

The visit delighted not only the Butlers, but also their neighbors, who stood on the grass across the street waiting to catch a glimpse of the president.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes sat in on the meeting, which included the Butler's 4-year-old daughter, Natasha, and Mrs. Butler's mother, Dorthea Tolson.

Afterward, Speakes quoted Mrs. Butler, 39, as having told Reagan:

"It makes a difference when the president of the United States will take time to come from the White House to a little community like this. It's been a long, hard battle out here. There are times when we wanted to give up."

American, Braniff start air fare wars again

DALLAS (AP) — American Airlines and Braniff International have renewed the airline fare war with a three-for-two ticket promotion that cash-strapped Braniff started and American quickly matched.

The two Dallas-based carriers went head to head in similar two-for-one promotions earlier this year. Braniff also initiated that promotion.

Under the new Braniff promotion, passengers buying two round-trip tickets to any of nine cities can purchase a third round-trip ticket for $1 to any mainland Braniff destination, spokeswoman Betsy Hickman said Monday.

Unlike the earlier two-for-one promotion, however, the third ticket cannot be used at the same time as the first two, she said.

The three tickets must be purchased by May 10.

The first two tickets must be used between May 15 and Aug. 15. The third ticket is good from Aug. 16 to Nov. 15 and the flight must originate from the same city as the first two flights.

American's promotion is similar, but unlike Braniff's, tickets do not have to be paid for until two weeks before the flight, said Robert W. Baker, vice president for passenger sales.

The third ticket is free on American and must be used between Sept. 8 and Dec. 8. The American promotion is good only in cities where it competes with Braniff.

Safety panel examining winter runway safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal safety panel wants to learn from airline pilots about problems they face with slick runways in winter and how they decide when to proceed with a landing or takeoff.

Four pilots and the directors of flight operators for two airlines were scheduled to testify today before the National Transportation Safety Board, which is examining the problems with aircraft operations during severe winter weather.

The investigation was prompted by the crashes last January of an Air Florida Boeing 737 as it took off from National Airport in Washington and a World Airways jet that skidded off a runway and into Boston Harbor. Seventy-eight people died in the Air Florida crash, and two persons are missing and presumed dead in the World Airways accident.

In the first day of hearings Monday, airport operators and airline industry representatives acknowledged that runway conditions cannot always be gauged accurately and communications breakdowns at times prevent pilots from receiving proper weather reports.

"It's clear that confusion abounds," Capt. J.J. Ruddy, representing the Air Line Pilots Association, told the panel. He called for the Federal Aviation Administration to establish strict national standards governing removal of ice and snow from runways.

Two FAA officials said regulations require airport operators to "promptly and as completely as practicable" clear runways of snow, ice, slush, water or other impediments.

But Harry Hink, of the FAA's office of airport standards, acknowledged the regulations do not spell out detailed procedures for airport operators to obtain information about runway conditions.

Robert C. Davidson, president of the American Association of Airport Executives, opposed detailed FAA criteria for snow and ice removal, and other airport operators agreed.

"Each airport is unique, and the FAA really should not try to spend a lot of time trying to regulate each airport's snow removal efforts," William D. Coleman, the director of aviation at the Massachusetts Port Authority, said after the hearing.

But Coleman, from whose airport the World Airways DC-10 slid into Boston Harbor, suggested the FAA should spend more time on research efforts "to improve the standards by which we assess runway conditions."

A Canadian government official, Dean Broadfoot, told the board that only a "team approach" will prevent aircraft accidents in severe weather and noted that Canada has developed a formula to measure runway friction and aircraft braking capabilities on packed snow or ice.

U.S. officials have refrained from providing such detailed information, although the FAA conducted a test on a mechanical meter designed to gauge runway braking. While the FAA claims the tests showed the device works if calibrated correctly, airport operators have been critical of it, saying calibration is too difficult to maintain.

Area's chances of rain persist through Thursday

A chance of showers or thunderstorms is forecast for West Texas through Thursday, as temperatures should remain moderate.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport has issued a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms for tonight and a 50 percent chance for Wednesday. Scattered showers are likely on Thursday.

No precipitation was recorded Monday in Midland, leaving the 1982 total at 1.75 inches.

The high Tuesday reached 80, well off the all-time record for the date of 98 in 1947, while the low of 60 did not challenge the 38 of 1978.

The low tonight should be in the low 60s and the high Wednesday near 80.

Partly cloudy skies are expected in West Texas Friday and Saturday, with temperatures expected to rise somewhat on Saturday.

Midland murder trial testimony starts

Testimony was to begin today in Midland's 238th State District Court in the murder trial of Randall Ray Williams, 26, who is charged in the shooting death of Ralph J. Robinson, 49, at the Phase I disco club last May 11.

The shooting in the eastside club reportedly was prompted by an argument. Robinson was shot in the head with a .38-caliber pistol.

Prosecuting the case are Assistant District Attorneys David Joers and Jim Rex. Defense attorney is Edward T. Garza.

Judge Vann Culp is presiding over the trial.

GOP treasurer candidate says he wont' quit, despite 'plan'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The plan, the Republicans say, was to put Millard Neptune on the ballot as the only GOP candidate for treasurer, and then replace him after the primary.

The problem with the plan, Neptune says, is he is not going to give up the nomination he won Saturday in an unopposed race.

"They can't do anything about it unless I die or resign," Neptune said Monday.

Texas Republicans scrambled to get a treasurer candidate on the primary ballot after incumbent Democrat Warren Harding got in trouble with the law just before the filing deadline.

Wayne Thorburn, state GOP director, confirmed Monday that the party was shopping for bigger-name candidates to replace Neptune and Donald Hebert, the Waller farmer who was unopposed for the Republican nomination for agriculture commissioner.

If Neptune and Hebert withdraw at least 45 days before the November general election, state election law allows the State Republican Executive Committee to pick a nominee.

Neptune, 71, said he initially planned to step aside for a better-known candidate. But now, he says, forget it.

"That was my plan in the first days of the campaign. I now do not intend to step aside," he said.

Neptune said he is in the race to stay, "unless there would be some absolutely great candidate come along who has the same philosophy about the office that I have."

He said he had some names in mind, but he would not disclose them and he said he doubted any of them would be interested in the race.

Neptune will face the winner of the June 5 Democratic runoff between Harding, who is charged in an indictment accusing him of using state employees for campaign work, and former Travis County Commissioner Ann Richards.

Correction

The Reporter-Telegram incorrectly listed the winning margin of one of the candidates for County Commissioner, Precinct 2, from Martin County in Sunday's area election roundup.

The report stated that Don Tollison won the Democratic nomination for County Commissioner by a 156-126 margin over Wes Morgan. Tollison actually won by a 156-26 margin.

The Reporter-Telegram regrets the error.

Reagan behind voting act

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and a broad cross section of conservatives and liberals on the Senate Judiciary Committee are urging quick enactment of a compromise extension of key provisions of the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

The agreement virtually guarantees that the Senate will renew important sections of the statute by summer. The House has already passed a version with many of the basic provisions contained in the compromise. Extension of the law is the major priority of civil rights organizations this year.

A SINGLE VERSION of the extension now has the backing of Reagan, liberals like Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and such Republican conservatives as Charles Grassley of Iowa, plus all the major civil rights groups, including the NAACP.

Supporters predicted the compromise agreed upon Monday may attract as many as 70 votes in the Senate, enough to cut off an anticipated filibuster.

Under the compromise proposal, a judge could rule that discrimination occurred if actions by state and local officials had the effect, or result, of diluting minority voting strength. But he could not impose quotas for minorities in elected bodies.

The voting rights measure — renewed twice before — is generally praised as the most effective of the civil rights statutes approved during the 1960s. Civil rights advocates say its provisions have resulted in more than 1 million blacks being registered to vote.

Nonetheless, supporters of a tough extension say there are still deliberate efforts to dilute minority voting power, mainly through the way jurisdictional lines are drawn through heavily black or minority neighborhoods.

The judiciary committee, headed by conservative Republican Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, was scheduled to begin voting on the critical civil rights measure today.

Although Thurmond remains publicly opposed to the compromise, 13 members of the judiciary panel, including five Republicans, agreed to it Monday.

THE COMPROMISE WAS mainly the work of Republican Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas.

It would prohibit state and local officials from using any voting practice or procedure that results in discrimination against blacks and other minorities.

Such a "results test" provision is easier to prove than the standard in effect since a 1980 Supreme Court decision that held the law is violated only when state or local officials consciously intend to discriminate.

But the compromise also says that, when discrimination is found in a local or state voting jurisdiction, minorities have no automatic right to political representation in proportion to their numbers in the population.

And it would require that a judge consider the "totality of circumstances" and not just specific election results before finding that local voting laws were discriminatory.

It would extend for 25 years the requirement for certain jurisdictions with a history of voting discrimination to get advance approval from the Justice Department for election law changes.

The compromise followed several days of intensive negotiations involving all sides, including a three-hour, face-to-face meeting between Thurmond and Benjamin Hooks, executive director of the NAACP.

Thurmond said Thursday that he hopes "agreement can be reached" on parts of the compromise which he cannot accept. Dole said he believes Thurmond may yet vote for the measure, which could reach the Senate floor before Memorial Day.

After the compromise was announced at a news conference by Kennedy, Dole, Grassley, Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, Reagan said in a statement that it had his "heartfelt support."

HE SAID THE compromise will permit "swift" congressional approval before important provisions of the landmark civil rights measure expire in August.

In a statement, Reagan praised what he termed a "constructive, bipartisan compromise," saying it will "greatly strengthen the safeguards against proportional representation while also protecting the basic right to vote."

Reagan said, "The all-important goal now is to enact an extension of the law as quickly as possible so that we can put it into effect and assure all of our citizens that we are committed to protecting their most sacred rights."

Reagan had been sharply criticized by civil rights leaders for opposing an earlier version of the voting rights extension supported by 65 members of the Senate.

Thurmond and Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, with quiet support from Attorney General William French Smith, had urged a provision under which a judge would have to find evidence of deliberate intent to discriminate against minority voters.

Civil rights groups argued that would make it necessary to analyze the motives of many local politicians, some of whom are now dead.

Kennedy said Monday that such a test would require "courts to embark on a wild goose chase into the thicket of the intent of public officials."

THE NAACP AND all other major civil rights groups have agreed, reluctantly, to support the compromise to lure conservative Republicans, who challenged a voting rights extension approved by the House last fall.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., right, appears beside NAACP Director Benjamin Hooks Monday on Capitol Hill to discuss provisions of a compromise bipartisan voting rights act which would extend portions of the 1965 Voting Rights Act. The NAACP approves the measure, as does President Reagan, who urged Congress to press for its passage and said it has his "heartfelt support." The Senate Judiciary Committee, headed by Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., is scheduled to discuss the measure, which could reach the Senate floor for vote by Memorial Day.

Dallas chief named

DALLAS (AP) — A 17-year veteran of the Dallas Police Department takes control of the 1,968-person force today.

Assistant Police Chief Billy Prince was appointed Monday to the department's top spot, succeeding Glen King, who resigned March 17 after suffering a heart attack.

"Prince is our first choice," City Manager Charles Anderson said. "He is a top police professional and top flight manager who understands productivity and has a commitment to affirmative action."

Prince, 39, joined the department in 1964 and served as lieutenant, captain and deputy chief before being appointed assistant chief in 1979.

The Duncan, Okla., native said the new job would be "a great challenge for me. I'm looking forward to it. We've got a few problems, as any large organization does, but I view problems as an opportunity."

He said his top priorities in office will be correcting morale problems and easing the high turnover rate of officers. Prince said he believes that his experience in the department will help him in dealing with any problems.

"I intend to represent the police officers when they need my support," he said. "But I'll do my best to represent the entire city as well. It is extremely important to have the confidence of the whole community."

The new chief has received a master's degree from North Texas State University and a bachelor's degree from Sam Houston State University.

New budget compromise not sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House officials are playing down suggestions by Republican congressional leaders that there will be another attempt to forge a bipartisan budget compromise.

"We did what we could," said an administration official. "That's not our game. We tried that."

President Reagan's idea now, he said, is to revive the coalition with conservative Democrats that enabled him to push his budget through last year.

The official, who insisted that his name not be used, commented Monday after Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., and House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois emerged from a White House meeting with the president and indicated they again will seek a bipartisan compromise on the 1983 budget.

Meanwhile, the Republican-controlled Senate Budget Committee was resuming work today on drafting its own spending outline.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., the committee chairman, abruptly adjourned the panel last Thursday when Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., attempted to force a vote on the unpopular budget plan Reagan submitted to Congress Feb. 8.

Domenici was expected to try to head off Hollings' move today by offering his own substitute that would include a freeze on domestic spending, federal and military pay and government pensions except Social Security.

The committee agreed last week that, without action by Congress, the 1983 budget deficit will be $182 billion, then rise to $216 billion in 1984 and $232.5 billion in 1985.

At the White House, the president was meeting this afternoon with GOP members of the House Budget Committee as he continues his campaign to build a congressional coalition that can enact a budget outline to his liking.

Budget talks between Reagan and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., collapsed last week in disagreement over how to trim budget deficits.

However, both Baker and Michel, after meeting Monday with the President, said they planned to meet further with O'Neill.

"The president clearly still wants to work out a compromise bipartisan budget," Baker said. "He still wants to avoid a conflict. I think he thinks and I think that this country deserves better than to make this budget a political football in 1982."

Baker said he planned to talk to O'Neill to see "if there's some possibility that he and I, or our representatives in the House and Senate, can work something out."

Michel quoted O'Neill as having offered to meet with both himself and Baker. "He said, Bob, we have to get together and I said, 'We're certainly amenable to doing that because that's our job," Michel said, quoting a conversation he said occurred after Reagan's speech to the nation last Thursday.

But the administration official said the White House had done what it could in terms of working with the Democratic leadership and would now attempt to revive its old coalition with conservative Democrats.

"The emphasis has to be on 'responsible' Democrats," the official said, using the administration's code word for the supporters it has found among Democrats, often called the "Boll Weevils."

In addition, the official said, there is a difference of opinion between the Senate Budget Committee and the administration on tampering with cost-of-living adjustments in such government benefit programs as Social Security.

"We don't think you can get into COLA's (cost-of-living adjustments) unless you have the (Democratic) leadership," the official said. "We don't think it makes any sense."

Referring to administration's efforts to signal the financial markets that it is trying to hold down budget deficits, the official said "the markets are not going to respond to something that might get through the Senate" — he stressed the word "might" — while having no chance in the Democratic-controlled House.

Meanwhile, an aide to O'Neill, who asked not to be identified by name, said Monday the speaker would "respond to any call that Howard Baker makes to this office."

But the aide also accused Baker of attempting to focus attention on House Democrats at a time when the Republican-controlled Senate Budget Committee is working on a spending plan. "Sen. Baker has a problem. His own party won't accept the Reagan budget and he knows it," the aide said.

Former Reagan aide Nofziger hospitalized after minor stroke

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyn Nofziger, a longtime aide to President Reagan who resigned in January as the top White House political adviser, was hospitalized today with a minor stroke, a Reagan spokesman said.

Nofziger, who opened a political consulting firm here shortly after he left the White House, is in good condition and undergoing tests at Northern Virginia Doctors Hospital in suburban Falls Church, Va., where he resides. He is 57.

Peter Roussel, a deputy White House press secretary, said Nofziger had suffered a minor stroke and was experiencing weakness on his left side.

Roussel said White House chief of staff James A. Baker III told Reagan at 9 a.m. about Nofziger's hospitalization, and that Reagan planned to telephone his former aide as soon as Nofziger can take calls.

A hospital spokesman said Nofziger, complaining of nausea, was taken by ambulance to the hospital at 3 a.m. EDT and was admitted for testing. The spokesman declined further comment, except to say the tests probably would take about two days.

Friends who saw him Monday said he appeared to be in good health, but this morning he canceled a political appearance in Newark because of illness. He was to have endorsed Jeffrey Bell this morning for the Senate Republican nomination in New Jersey to succeed Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., who resigned in March.

Nofziger, a former California newspaperman, joined Reagan in 1966 as press secretary for Reagan's his first successful bid for governor of that state. He served off and on as a Reagan spokesman and political adviser over the years but preferred to remain in California.

Nofziger, who had close ties with Republican conservatives, was Reagan's chief campaign spokesman in 1980, and Reagan brought him to the White House after the election as assistant for political affairs.

Nofziger, a colorful, wisecracking figure who never penetrated the inner circle of Reagan's senior White House staff, quit one year later, saying "I don't like government — it's just that simple."

He left to become a political consultant, writer and public speaker.

Construction spending still falling; Businesses say many slow to pay

By The Associated Press

Businesses, struggling under the weight of the recession, are having problems paying their bills as profits plummet, new reports show.

The National Association of Credit Management, in a poll released Monday, said 82 percent of the business-credit grantors responding to the poll had moderate to severe problems with slow-paying customers.

Sixty-six percent cited customer failures as a major problem. More than half of the respondents also reported falling sales and inadequate cash flow as major problems.

Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., in a separate report, said preliminary estimates showed that corporate profits fell by almost $50 billion during the first three months of the year to a seasonally adjusted $165 billion annual rate.

That was a drop of 22 percent from the same period in 1981.

In another report Monday, Standard & Poor's Corp. said the number of companies reporting dividend increases fell to 124 last month from 185 in April 1981.

Unfavorable dividend actions, including decreases and omissions, more than doubled to 49 from 21 in April 1981, it said.

April was the ninth month in a row of year-to-year declines in the number of dividend boosts, according to S&P's publication Outlook.

Meanwhile, spending on new construction tumbled again in March, the government said. Construction spending fell 0.8 percent for the month, affected most seriously by an 8 percent drop in spending on private industrial plants.

There were increases in the value of new housing units built in March and in public construction, the Commerce Department report said. But the gains of 2.2 percent for new housing and 0.8 percent for public construction were insufficient to offset the decline in spending on industrial plants.

Robert Ortner, Commerce's chief economist, said that with many companies already hard-pressed for cash, "it becomes very easy to postpone the additions to capacity that you don't need anyway."

In other economic news:

—The trade journal Automotive News said the number of U.S. automobile dealerships fell by 276 in the first three months of the year, the steepest first-quarter decline in 21 years. Automotive News said there were 21,404 dealerships selling domestic makes as of April 1, down from 21,680 on Jan. 1 as the U.S. auto industry's sales slump continued in its third year.

—Steel production in the week ended May 1 totaled 1.49 million tons, down 4.4 percent from the previous week. In the comparable week a year before, steel production was 2.59 million tons.

—Negotiators for the United Rubber Workers union and Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. signed a tentative three-year contract covering 10,500 workers at 10 plants. The agreement is subject to rank-and-file ratification in voting expected to be held within two weeks.

Panel to monitor Nestle's compliance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Edmund Muskie is lending his prestige to a commission established to monitor the Nestle corporation's compliance with an international marketing code for infant formula. Nestle is financing the commission.

Muskie and company officials announced their plans for the eight-member Infant Formula Audit Commission on Monday.

The venture was criticized by the Infant Formula Action Coalition, which opposes Nestle's infant formula sales campaigns in Third World nations. The coalition participated in a four-year-old boycott of Nestle products called because of the company's marketing practices.

101-year-old widow of Exxon co-founder dies in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Funeral services are scheduled Wednesday for Ella C. Fondren, widow of the oilman who was a co-founder of what is now Exxon USA, the world's largest oil company.

Mrs. Fondren died here Monday at the Methodist Hospital. She would have been 102 on June 1.

She died at the hospital on whose board she served for more than 30 years. Mrs. Fondren donated more than $20 million in her lifetime to churches, hospitals and schools

Her late husband, Walter W. Fondren Sr., who died in 1939, organized the Humble Oil and Refining Co. in 1917 with Ross Sterling — later a Texas governor — Frank Sterling, W. S. Farish, Harry Wiess and Lee Blaffer.

Humble later became Exxon USA.

The Fondrens gave gifts in the millions to Rice University, Southern Methodist University, Southwestern University, the Methodist Home in Waco and to Scaritt College in Tennessee.

Mrs. Fondren was on the board of Houston's Methodist Hospital and took part in work that changed that institution from a small 120-bed facility to one with 1,200 beds. She also made donations to St. Paul's United Methodist Church here and the Young Women's Christian Association.

Mrs. Fondren served on the boards of Texas Medical Center, Baylor College of Medicine, Scaritt College and the Institute of Religion. Her memberships included Rice University Associates, the National Board of Hospitals and Homes of the United Methodist Church.

Character actor, soap opera star dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Hugh Marlowe, who played character roles in more than 20 motion pictures, has died here at the age of 70.

In recent years, he had appeared in the soap opera "Another World," playing the character Jim Matthews.

Marlowe suffered a heart attack at his Manhattan apartment Sunday afternoon, and was pronounced dead shortly afterward at Roosevelt Hospital, according to the city medical examiner's office.

One of Marlowe's best-known roles was that of playwright Lloyd Richards in the film "All About Eve." He also had supporting roles in such movies as "Meet Me in St. Louis," "Twelve O'Clock High," "Elmer Gantry" and "Seven Days in May."

Princeton professor emeritus dies

HOUSTON (AP) — Salomon Bochner, professor emeritus of mathematics at Princeton University, has died here of a heart attack. He was 82.

Bochner, the author of seven books, made significant contributions in the areas of probability theory, differential geometry, complex analysis and Fourier analysis.

He died Sunday.

In 1979, the American Mathematical Society gave Bochner the Leroy B. Steele Prize for the "Cumulative Impact of His Mathematical Work."

Bochner also was chairman of the math department at Rice University and taught for seven years at the University of Munich in Germany.

He is survived by his daughter, Deborah Bochner Kennel of Los Angeles, his sister, Fannie Rabinowicz of London, and two grandchildren.

"Losing Hair? Try This At No Risk"

HOUSTON, Texas— If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss... and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done". But now a firm of laboratory consultants has has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss...but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in the family," it is certainly not proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. If you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair... now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days—at their risk—if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail. Adv.

Paying for a crime

As ionic as it is that a man once sentenced to die for the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy can even remain alive in prison today, it's even more unfathomable that he could now be considered for parole.

But the fact that a California parole board chose some months back to set a parole date, but now is re-considering the scheduled release of Sirhan B. Sirhan in two years point to the destructive force of the liberalization of the criminal justice system in the United States. To release Sirhan now would be a mockery of law and order, of the tenet that punishment should fit the crime.

We are not saying that certain classes of prisoners should never be paroled. Although the statistics do not support the concept of rehabilitation, there are instances in which a prisoner can prove he has reformed to such an extent that he would be able to live in harmony with society. In those instances, parole is a valuable and humane tool.

But there are crimes that are so major in their effect as to forever preclude the thought of release for the felon. Such was the killing of Sen. Kennedy, the Democratic presidential hopeful gunned down in a Los Angeles hotel by Sirhan in 1968.

The vehicle that has provided this Sirhan parole question is not a logical, justifiable course of events, but reforms in laws that, strangely, did not even concern the fate of the assassin. California's death penalty was abolished in 1972 and Sirhan's sentence was commuted to life in prison. A liberalization of that state's parole policy opened the door for Sirhan's release just like other prisoners.

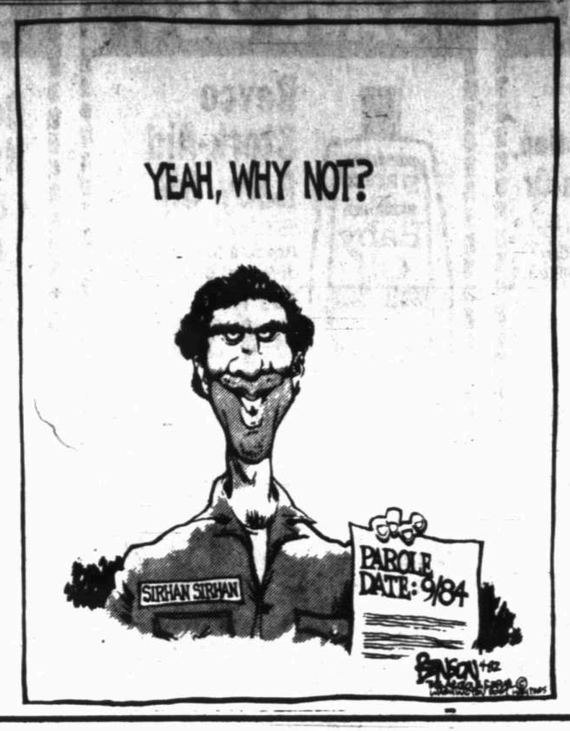

Sirhan was originally scheduled for release by the parole board in 1986, but that date was moved up to Sept. 1, 1984, because Sirhan has been what proponents of release call a model prisoner.

Sirhan's behavior isn't really at issue, although it should be considered by a parole board in granting a prisoner's release. What is at issue is the crime committed by Sirhan, the magnitude of that crime and its effect on society, the way the law was changed which opened the door for his release and, perhaps most importantly, whether Sirhan's debt to society has been paid.

Even if the evidence being considered by the board, the threats allegedly issued from prison by the convict, were not enough reason to take away Sirhan's 1984 release date, it is obvious that Sirhan — a murderer whose actions changed the entire scope of American history for better or for worse — should never be released. His was a crime the effects of which cannot be remedied by 14 years — or even a lifetime — behind bars.

"SOME MEN SEE THINGS AS THEY ARE, AND SAY, 'WHY?' I DREAM OF THINGS THAT NEVER WERE, AND SAY, 'WHY NOT?'"
--Robert Kennedy

Sen. Hayakawa's advice

Lameduck politicians are often easily ignored, which is too bad. Their best speeches can be made after they stop worrying about offending voters.

Not that California Sen. H.I. Hayakawa was ever one to mince words. Still, his testimony on bilingualism before the Senate Labor and Human Resources Education Subcommittee the other day deserves attention from every American.

Sen. Hayakawa is sponsoring legislation which would make English the official U.S. language and make the goal of bilingual education to teach English rather than promote a plethora of second languages. Native languages may be beautiful and instill a sense of ethnic pride, but they are of limited practical value and can be politically divisive, according to Hayakawa.

Anyone disputing that claim need only to look at America's northern neighbor, Canada. Its national unity in recent years has been threatened by rivalry between its English and French language population groups. And the recent "patriation" of its national charter from England — an action comparable to ratification of our own constitution — was marred by the Quebec government's refusal to participate.

Sen. Hayakawa is living proof of the value of learning English through total immersion as a youngster, the approach he would like to see taken with other young Americans who don't speak English. It's hard to believe that he would have had the same opportunity to become an internationally renowned linguistics expert, college president and U.S. senator if English were only his second language.

Nuclear (in)sanity

True, no sane individual is in favor of a nuclear holocaust any more than any sane person is in favor of jumping into a fiery furnace, but it will take more to prevent nuclear war than a unilateral nuclear arms freeze by the United States.

That, in effect, is what the current wave of protests is limited to advocating. No nuclear freeze demonstrations are being held in the Soviet Union.

You may draw your own conclusions as to why communists here and abroad are so enthusiastic about the anti-nuke demonstrations being held in the United States.

Before you draw them, it might be interesting to glance at the nuclear strategic weapons balance between the two powers. The Military Balance as of August 1981, based on research by the American Security Council, was as follows:

Strategic offensive forces: intercontinental ballistic missiles, USA, 1,052, USSR, 1,398; strategic bombers, USA 376 (of which 317 are the generation-old B-52s), USSR 250 (all newer models than the B-52s); submarine launched ballistic missiles, USA 576 in 36 subs, USSR 989 in 85 subs.

Stratetic defense forces: surface to air missile launchers, USA 0, USSR 10,000-12,000; interceptors, USA 273, USSR 2,600-2,700; anti-ballistic missiles, USA 0, USSR 32.

Well, what is wrong with freezing at current levels even though the USSR does have a heavy edge?

That calls for trusting the USSR. But not only is the USSR a notorious, chronic trust-breaker, it is expansionist and militaristic. Once its troops or underground forces take over a country, that country is part of the communist block forever.

The rulers of the USSR have little regard for human life and none at all for human freedom. In forging the power of the Soviet police state, they have killed and imprisoned tens of milions of people. Soviet leaders cannot be expected to have humanitarian scruples about the use of nuclear or any other kind of power.

One thing that they do respect, experience shows, is power itself. There can be no doubt that the principal deterrent to Soviet use of nuclear weapons is the danger of retaliation against the USSR.

That makes a balance essential to the equation of peace. At present there is no balance. The USSR has the advantage.

The debate over nuclear weapons has gone on for a long time. It will continue for a long time. Certainly the debate is preferable by far to nuclear war. But it would help anyone trying to understand nuclear balance to be clearminded about certain points.

For example, if President Harry S Truman had known that the Japanese possessed nuclear bombs and were capable of dropping them on U.S. cities, would he have ordered the nuclear bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki?

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Dulled 'Cap the Knife' resists defense cuts

WASHINGTON — Caspar Weinberger is a formidable public servant of great capacity, enormous expertise and obvious dedication to large purposes. As budget director for President Nixon, Weinberger earned the nickname "Cap the Knife" by slashing federal programs.

Jack Anderson

But since he took over the Defense Department last year, Cap's knife has grown dull and rusty. White House sources say that Weinberger, like other defense secretaries before him, has become an arch-representative of the military-industrial complex.

Instead of trimming the fat out of the Pentagon budget, he has joined the military spendthrifts who squander the public's money.

The day after Weinberger took over the Pentagon, he got a letter from Elmer Staats, who was then head of the General Accounting Office. Noting the promises of massive defense increases, Staats warned Weinberger that frugal management "has never been more important." He then listed 15 "high payoff" opportunities that could save the Pentagon several billion dollars a year.

Today, a follow-up letter from the GAO to Weinberger is ready for the signature of Staats' successor, Charles Bowsher. GAO personnel who worked on the letter say it expresses disappointment at the snail's pace of the cost-saving changes recommended by Staats over a year ago.

These GAO experts explained that only quick and forceful action can slow the military spending juggernaut. Weinberger, for all his skill and experience, has been neither quick nor forceful in the battle against waste. "Time is running out," a GAO source told my associate Peter Grant.

While Weinberger has failed to use his power against the bemedaled wastrels, the Pentagon's puff artists have been busily shoveling out propaganda that claims victory after victory in the war on waste. Many of these claims are pure baloney. For example:

— Deputy Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci boasted to Congress last year that under Weinberger 69 percent of the Pentagon's contracts had been the result of competitive bidding, compared to only 41 percent in the Carter administration. In fact, statistics were manipulated by excluding certain categories of non-competitive contracts. This created "the illusion that tremendous progress has been made in obtaining competition," the government auditors charge.

— The defense bureaucrats take credit for saving $23.8 billion by putting a cap on pay increases. What they fail to mention is that it was the White House budget office that imposed the pay limits, which applied to the whole federal government.

— Part of the $51 billion Weinberger claims to have cut from the Pentagon budget is the result of economies taken by the previous administration — like the 1979 closing of air defense sites in Alaska and the 1980 consolidation of the armed services' news offices. In fact, the Pentagon vehemently opposed these savings and only grudgingly bowed to congressional insistence. "We shoved them down their throats and now they're taking credit for them," observed a Capitol Hill source.

— The Army claimed to have achieved $647 million worth of energy savings. No mention was made of the fact that it spent about $500 million to do the job.

All this is bad enough, but to make matters worse the Weinberger Pentagon has made it difficult for the GAO auditors to look at the books. The investigators have to threaten administrative action to get what they need, and in 10 cases they actually had to bring legal proceedings. Eight of these were decided in GAO's favor; two are still pending.

Footnote: When asked about the questionable cost-cutting claims, Defense Comptroller Jack R. Borsting acknowledged with some embarrassment that "we did a less than perfect job." He added: "We had a major administrative task setting out the valid items from the invalid ones in the time available to us."

NEW SCARS: The lifelong psychological impact on Americans who grew up during the Great Depression has been described as "the invisible scar." Evidence is accumulating that the current severe recession is having a similar effect on many school-age children.

Consider these reports from files of the National Education Association:

— Connie Jackson, elementary-school teacher in Pontiac, Mich.: "One child I taught was a good student, but then her grades suddenly began to drop off and her attitude got worse. I found out that her mother had been laid off after 15 years at the auto plant."

— Gil Bergsrud, high-school teacher in Waterford, Mich.: "An unemployed father killed his entire family. Once we discovered a child living in a car. Another was locked out of her home because her parents could no longer afford to care for her."

— Len Lawr, fifth-grade teacher in Aberdeen, Wash., said many students don't turn out for sports because they can't afford athletic shoes. One youngster tearfully reported that her parents were considering putting her up for adoption because of their financial plight.

— A New York City mother said her youngest boy was scoffed at by classmates because of his ragged clothes. Her oldest son refuses to go to school "because he's not dressed the way the other kids are; he's embarrassed."

INSIDE REPORT:

Sen. Baker trying to bury a 'bloody hatchet'

WASHINGTON — Trying to bury a bloody hatchet, Senate Republican leader Howard Baker has promised President Reagan that Sen. Bob Packwood, chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee, will cease attacks on Ronald Reagan and Reaganism.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

Baker, one of Packwood's closest political allies, insisted that any effort to replace Reagan's liberal hairshirt would lack the votes to depose him. But if Packwood continues to bloody Reagan's nose, Baker continued, Baker himself would lead the charge to oust him.

The president reluctantly agreed, but not with much confidence that Packwood would stop his attacks on Reagan policies. Packwood's criticism has infuriated Reagan and alienated Republican financial contributors. One result: Advance ticket sales to the Republican fund-raising dinner May 4 are more than $1 million under last year's off-year take.

WARNING DOBRYNIN

A sharp protest over Soviet conduct in the Falkland Islands crisis was delivered directly to Soviet ambassador Anatoliy Dobrynin April 16 by Under Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger.

Eagleburger handed the veteran Soviet diplomat a formal note protesting high-voltage Soviet commentary against the U.S. and Great Britain. Anti-American charges dominated Soviet press coverage of the British-Argentine showdown in the South Atlantic. The basic accusation of the government-controlled media: The U.S. has teamed with Britain in a latter-day revival of colonialism. Behind the Soviet charge was this hope: to stir anti-Yankee sentiment throughout Latin America.

Since Eagleburger gave Dobrynin the note, Soviet press coverage has been quieter (which Reagan officials doubt will continue). But Eagleburger's private protest showed the high degree of Reagan administration worry that the Soviets might cash in on the struggle between two U.S. allies.

CARBAUGH TO THE RESCUE

Secretary of State Alexander Haig's surprising ally in infighting to form a new government in El Salvador following the national election there is none other than John Carbaugh, right-hand man of Haig's longtime foe, Sen. Jesse Helms.

Without fanfare, the ubiquitous Carbaugh slipped into San Salvador a few days after Roberto d'Aubuisson was elected president of the Constituent Assembly resulting from the March 28 national election. With the full backing of Haig and Assistant Secretary of State Thomas Enders, Carbaugh used his influence in direct talks to persuade d'Aubuisson that the U.S. Congress never would accept a government without some moderate leavening.

Carbaugh's utility as an undercover diplomatic-political agent derived from his own credentials as Helms' top aide and his reputation as a conservative. The search for a new government in El Salvador continues, but Carbaugh's influence was decisive in delivering the warning to d'Aubuisson.

PERLE'S LURE

When Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker finally agreed to let the Senate hold a top-secret session for a briefing on the Soviet military threat, he did not know that Assistant Secretary of Defense Richard Perle had thought up the idea.

The Soviet threat briefing by the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA) was Perle's way of luring fence-sitting senators to support President Reagan's new defense bill. Perle, former defense adviser of Democratic senator Henry M. Jackson, knew that the briefing had powerfully affected individual senators who had heard it (including Sen. John Glenn, a potential Democratic presidential candidate).

Baker resisted the briefing partly because some of his aides, more interested in cutting the budget than seeing a big defense bill pass, argued it would make it harder to cut the Reagan defense budget. That judgment confirmed Perle's original thought. The actual briefing is to be conducted by Sen. John Tower, chairman of the armed services committee, with DIA experts standing by to help.

SUPPLY-SIDER CONABLE

One of the surprises of the protracted budget negotiations was Rep. Barber Conable of New York, senior Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, lecturing Democrats on the need to retain President Reagan's tax cut.

Conable, no supply-sider, was economic adviser to George Bush during his 1980 presidential campaign when Bush referred to Reagan's tax cut proposals as "voodoo economics." Although Conable loyally backed the Reagan economic program, the intensity of his support in the negotiations was unexpected.

A footnote: Republican leaders in Albany are determined not to let New York state redistricting put Conable and Rep. Jack Kemp in the same district and will try to keep both their districts pretty much intact. Conable has warned he may retire from Congress if forced to run in a basically new district.

Hats are off to officers

To The Editor:

Midland Memorial Hospital has hired a new director of security. With the new director comes various changes. Some of which will no doubt be good but others are being opposed by many of the staff members.

The main issue facing objection is the discharge of the off-duty Midland police officers and a hiring of civilian "security officers." Many of us feel there is a definite need of a person with authority to be maintained in vital areas such as the emergency department, ICU, PCCU and others. These areas often have a need for qualified crowd control and with that of dealing with very hostile and often abusive people. With the dark of night and the closing of the local "night spots" there come a certain type of person, one who is quick to anger and faster to respond with a sharp blade or a high velocity missile. When their victims are transported to the hospital, the disagreements are often left unsettled, only to be settled later on the hospital parking lot or worse, in the emergency department waiting rooms.

It is with this knowledge and possible threat to our personal safety that we wish to cling to our pillar of security — the Midland police officer. The Midland Police Department has proven itself invaluable many times to the people of Midland and the uniform itself automatically commands respect.

Since our pleas have gone unheeded, many of us would like to take this opportunity to thank the police officers who have worked in their off-duty hours since October 1, 1981. Their presence has been a source of reassurance and has given us a feeling of personal security. Our hats are off to the Midland Police Department and to their continued protection!

Sylvia sings

To The Editor:

To Georgia Temple I can only say, she has the "guts" to "bad-mouth" Sylvia, as a singer, when she as a "reviewer," can't even spell Cline? (as in the famous Patsy Cline)

I, as an occasional reader of her column, think Sylvia is a far better singer than she is a "reviewer!" And I might add, Sylvia is not one of my favorite singers!

As for the recommendation that Sylvia take singing lessons, I'm sure that many of the world's great singers never took lessons, and many people that did never became great singers. I'm also sure that she must have had much "education" in the field, and I say again, Sylvia is a far better singer than she is a "reviewer." So what does that prove, do you think?

It's my guess that she wouldn't know a "good singer" if one fell on her! She'd know if they were "well trained," in the proper key, etc. But those things don't necessarily make a "good singer." So permit me, as a lover of "good singing," to correct her. She said, and I quote, "...if Sylvia wants to be a singer..."

Let me tell you, Georgia Temple, Sylvia IS a singer! You blew it again!

A great show

To The Editor:

I want to thank Wanda Mouton and The Midland Reporter-Telegram for publicity for the West Texas Iris Society. A thank you also to the Commercial Bank who allowed us to have our show there the past two years.

A great big thank you to those who entered, for without iris there would not have been a show.

Last but by no means least, a thank you to Linda Cranfil and Janie Cappadonna, our show chairmen, and a thank you to the members who worked tirelessly to produce "The Greatest Show on Earth."

Multiple thanks

To The Editor:

As hostesses for the recent Texas Mothers of Multiples Ninth Annual Convention, the members of the Midland Mothers of Twins Club would like to take this opportunity to express our appreciation to the many Midland merchants and wonderful individuals for their contributions to our organization. Thanks to their generous donations, some 200 mothers of twins and triplets enjoyed a very educational and entertaining weekend in the Tall City.

We would especially like to thank the people at MidTran for their cooperation in helping with our transportation. Having public transportation at our disposal enabled us to offer a much wider variety of activities than would have been possible without MidTran's existence.

Due largely to the generosity of so many Midlanders, the TMOM convention was a wonderful success. Thank you!

Millions of Americans are saving money by clipping and using coupons.

Shoppers turn coupon-clipping into big business

By LOUISE COOK

The snip of the scissors is the sound of saving for millions of Americans who have turned coupon-clipping into big business.

There are books which tell you how to get the most from coupons, clubs whose members trade coupons with the enthusiasm of youngsters swapping baseball cards.

Stores lure shoppers with promises of refunds equal to double or even triple the face value of coupons. Manufacturers combine coupon offers with refunds which boost the value of some promotions to several dollars.

The A.C. Nielsen Co., which keeps track of marketing trends in a wide variety of areas in addition to television, reports that manufacturers distributed 90.6 billion coupons in 1980, up 12 percent from 1979.

More than 900 manufacturers' coupons were distributed for every U.S. household. And that doesn't count the coupons issued by retailers.

Only about 4 percent of the manufacturers' coupons are redeemed, but the redemptions add up. In 1979 alone, for example, the value of the redeemed coupons was about $160 million.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates that four families in five use coupons. Until recently, the people who used coupons most were the ones who needed them least — middle and upper-income consumers. There are signs, however, that coupon use is spreading on all levels.

A study by Nielsen showed, for example, that 69 percent of families with incomes of $10,000 or less used coupons in 1980, up from 51 percent in 1975. The study also showed that 57 percent of non-white households and 69 percent of Hispanics used coupons, a finding which Nielsen said was "contrary to traditional perceptions."

To get the most from coupons, it is important to use them properly.

Josephine Swanson, a consumer educator from Cornell University, points out that you don't save money if you use a coupon for a product you don't need.

"Ultimately, consumers end up paying for the cost of offering coupons," she says. "If you would buy the product anyway, use a coupon, by all means. But don't use one just because it's offered."

Ms. Swanson also says that coupons rarely save you much on staples. "You could never feed a family on couponed items only," she says. "Basic foods such as fruit, vegetables, milk and meat, for example, are rarely couponed."

The cost of cheating can be high. Industry sources say as many as 20 percent to 30 percent of all coupons are misredeemed; the cost of the fraud is added to your supermarket bill.

Here are some steps you can take to save:

—Check newspaper and magazine advertisements and store shelves for refund offers which can be combined with coupons. If you see an ad for a refund and your store doesn't have the forms, ask the manager to get some.

—Organize your coupons, separating them according to category and date of expiration. You don't need a fancy filing system; a few envelopes will do. Go through the file periodically to weed out unused or expired coupons.

—Plan your shopping around coupons. Suppose you see a coupon offering 20 cents off on paper towels — this week only. It makes sense to buy the towels now, even if you don't need them right away.

—Familiarize yourself with regular prices so you know whether an advertised "bargain" is really a good deal. If you visit a particular store to take advantage of a coupon offer, make sure you don't wind up paying higher-than-normal prices for other items.

—Read the fine print. Some coupon offers have strings attached. A store may tie coupon use to a minimum purchase. Don't let yourself be lured into buying things you don't need just so you'll meet the minimum.

—Compare prices for national brands, house brands and generic products. A national brand bought with a coupon may still cost more than the house brand or the generic. Unless you have a good reason for wanting the national brand, it doesn't make sense to spend extra just so you can use the coupon.

Amputee champions cause of handicapped

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ralph Winner Jr.'s screams could be heard for blocks as a doctor amputated the leg that had been trapped between steel beams on a bridge slated for demolition.

Now, speaking out about his three-hour ordeal for the first time since the 1978 accident, Winner says the screams were "the one thing I regretted."

"I wish I had put a handkerchief or something in my mouth," he said.

The former ironworker, 52, said he never gave up hope as he lay atop a beam on the Brady Street Bridge.

"No way. I love to live. I never wanted to die," said Winner, of nearby Ross Township.

He had shied away from reporters, but ended his silence last week for a cause he champions.

Winner said he supports legislation proposed by state Sen. Ed Early, that would increase from $15 to $100 the fine levied against able-bodied motorists who are caught parking in spots reserved for the handicapped.

Winner accompanied Early to a news conference at a suburban Pittsburgh shopping center to talk about the proposal Early introduced Monday. Local governments would also have to pass ordinances to impose the higher penalty.

An ironworker for 30 years, Winner was injured May 23, 1978, as he cut the superstructure on the bridge to prepare it for demolition. The girders suddenly shifted and his legs were trapped between two 30-inch beams.

Winner helped other construction workers slice through steel to free his left leg. While co-workers comforted him, engineers were summoned to determine where cuts could be made to free his right leg.

But the engineers decided more cuts in the superstructure would jeopardize everyone on it. After they explained the risks, Winner agreed to the amputation.

While hushed spectators watched from the banks of the Monongahela River, a surgeon was hoisted to Winner's perch. Winner was given morphine intravenously, but the ironworker remained conscious while Dr. Joseph Young amputated his leg at the knee.

After Winner was taken safely to the ground, the Brady Street Bridge was razed and replaced by the Birmingham Bridge, connecting downtown Pittsburgh with the city's south side.

Winner, who is now unemployed, uses an artificial right leg. His left leg, which doctors were able to save, is uncomfortable.

"I have a lot of pain in it. The ligaments are shot in my knee and I have a little arthritis. Only half of my calf is left and I have no feeling at all below my ankle," he said.

In an out-of-court settlement last year, Winner was awarded $750,000. He had sued the state, which owned the bridge, and the company handling the demolition, Joseph Bucheit Co. of Youngstown, Ohio. But Winner said no compensation would be adequate.

"There's nothing that will make up for this. There's no amount that would replace that. I'd rather have my leg and be working," he said.

Helms, Thurmond lock horns over legislation

By MIKE SHANAHAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of the Senate's most powerful southern conservatives, Republicans Jesse Helms and Strom Thurmond, are locked in a behind-the-scenes struggle that has blocked or slowed several major pieces of legislation this year.

So far, Helms is winning.

The North Carolinian has repeatedly outmaneuvered Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Thurmond on a series of social, law enforcement and civil rights issues like voting rights and changes in the federal criminal code.

The 79-year-old Thurmond, a courtly South Carolinian, is as conservative on most issues as Helms. But Thurmond is a member of the Senate establishment and a compromiser who is well-liked personally by Senate colleagues as politically diverse as Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Orrin Hatch, R-Utah.

Helms, meanwhile, makes skillful use of Senate rules on debate and procedure to devise ways around legislation debated and voted on in the judiciary committee, where his views are often echoed by another conservative North Carolinian, freshman Republican John East.

Thurmond declined to comment publicly on Helms' tactics, but he is known to have said privately that they accomplish little except to anger him and other members of the Senate.

When Republicans took control of the Senate in 1980, conservatives thought they had a good shot at passing a number of social agenda issues, including proposals on abortion, school prayer, busing for desegregation, gun control and a federal death penalty.

The Senate so far has approved an anti-busing bill, but none of the other issues has even been debated on the Senate floor.

There also is a fundamental disagreement about whether constitutional amendments are required on a number of touchy issues like abortion, or if changes can be made through legislation.

A constitutional amendment can be enacted only with a two-thirds vote of the House and Senate and approval by three-fourths of the states. Bills only require a majority vote in both houses of Congress.

Most often, Thurmond supports the lengthy amendment process, while Helms has introduced a series of bill stripping the federal courts of jurisdiction on issues like abortion and school busing.

Until last week, the rift between Helms and Thurmond had simmered in the background with little public attention.

But last week, Helms succeeded in torpedoing one of Thurmond's biggest Senate priorities, legislation to streamline the country's criminal laws, a reform urged for a decade by federal judges, prosecutors and the American Bar Association.

Thurmond had worked for months to produce a compromise criminal code bill acceptable to both conservatives and liberals.

But Helms and his allies insisted on attaching volatile amendments like a death penalty and anti-gun control measures to the criminal code bill, and it died before formal debate was even begun.

Similarly, legislation extending key provisions of the 1965 Voting Rights Act has been delayed in the Judiciary Committee.

Civil rights organizations have lined up 65 Senate sponsors for a version opposed by both Thurmond and Helms.

Despite his own opposition, Thurmond has promised not to block votes in the committee, where liberals and moderate Republicans have a majority.

Chinese teachers glimpse American Dream

By DEBORAH ZABARENKO

GOSHEN, Ind. (AP) — They have watched television, listened to rock 'n' roll and shopped in supermarkets.

When the People's Republic of China sent nine teachers to study English at Goshen College, it was for more than a study of methodology and grammar, says college president J. Lawrence Burkholder, who founded the exchange program.

Burkholder said the Chinese wanted their teachers to know enough about culture in the United States to bring back a slice of it to enliven their classes in Sichuan Province.

"They do get something of the American Dream here," Burkholder said. "It's hard for them to understand the freedom and individuality. They go back wondering whether they could adjust to this kind of culture."

The teachers — seven men and two women ranging in age from 25 to 49 — have spent the school year at the Mennonite institution set in a farming community 90 miles east of Chicago. They live at the college, but spend holidays and birthdays with Goshen families.

They had studied and taught English at institutions in China, but their visit to northern Indiana provided many of the teachers with their first exposure to native English speakers.

When they return to China, they will use their improved language skills and their impressions of U.S. life to inform their students, said Ruth Gunden, head of the international studies program.

"They're very highly motivated," Ms. Gunden says. "It's very clear cut that what they learn here will be of use over there, especially their understanding of the American way of life."

Negotiations for the program began in 1979 when Burkholder traveled to Sichuan Teachers College to lecture. He had lived in China from 1945 to 1948 doing relief work.

Forty-one Goshen students so far have studied in Sichuan, Burkholder said. The first batch of Chinese teachers came for the 1980-81 school term, and denied most requests for interviews.

This year, the Chinese are minor celebrities here, inspiring curiosity and spawning invitations from townspeople, said the Rev. Paul Koepke, whose family has "adopted" Wang Shiwei.

He called the Chinese excellent guests: "It was so refreshing to find the courtesy, the sensitivity they showed us."

For Li Mingyuan, a teacher at Sichuan Institute of Foreign Languages at Chongking, the calm of Goshen was a surprise.

"When I came here, I expected to see more violence. I had read a lot of detective stories and there were a lot of crimes. Once I was here, I was amazed at the safety I felt."

Some of the teachers have specific ideas about changes in their classes that were sparked by their studies at Goshen.

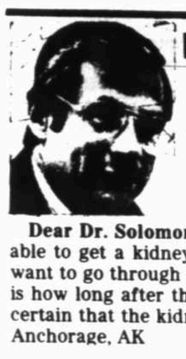

Gong Dengyong said he'll spice his American literature classes with science fiction novels and the works of novelist Saul Bellow because they are "very important to understanding American culture."

Liu Suhua said she will explain Christmas — and its advertising campaigns — to her students when she returns to China in June.

In general, the teachers say they are appalled by rock music and most TV programs, which they find violent and riddled with commercials. U.S. dairy products and red meat got high marks, but the Chinese teachers prefer to stir-fry their own vegetables, finding American-style vegetables too soggy.

The Chinese and Americans have played ping pong — the host families lost — and discussed politics and blue jeans. The teachers have toured schools, factories and businesses and visited New York, Washington and Philadelphia.

On one recent field trip, the Chinese bantered with chicken farmer Claude Schwartzendruber, asking about feed, fertilizer and expenses.

NEIL SOLOMON, M.D.

Rejection of transplanted organs always possible

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have been told that I might be able to get a kidney transplant, but I don't know if I want to go through with it. What I would like to know is how long after the operation I would be able to be certain that the kidney will not be rejected. — Danny, Anchorage, AK

Dear Danny: You are asking for assurance in an area where it is not possible to give complete assurance. There is no point at which rejection is not possible, although the greatest risk is during the first six months. New techniques and procedures have reduced the rejection rate, but some attrition continues even after many years have elapsed.

Because of this possibility, a patient who undergoes kidney transplantation has to remain on a continuing course of treatment with drugs for life.

Dear Dr. Solomon: If you believe everything the joggers tell you, running is good for everything from losing weight to improving your sex life. One of the guys who works on a machine next to me in the shop runs marathons, and he says it keeps him from catching colds. Do you know if there is anything to this? — Sonny, Manchester, Ct.

Dear Sonny: It would be logical to assume that the better physical condition of marathoners, including weight loss and other beneficial changes in their lifestyles, could lead to a decrease in respiratory infections. But according to Dr. Richard L. Green and his colleagues at the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine, distance running, itself, does not affect immune function which helps against infections. The conclusion is based on a study of 20 male marathon runners.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband, who comes from a family with heart trouble, was referred to you by our family doctor because he would not lose weight. He also had a high triglyceride count. Since you treated him, he lost 62 pounds; now weighs 170 pounds. He is 6 foot tall. Best of all, his triglycerides have come down 127 points and are now normal. Is it unusual for triglycerides to come down when you lose weight? — Mrs. W.K., Chicago

Dear Mrs. W.K.: It is fortunate that your husband lost weight and had a drop in his triglycerides — fatty substances in his blood. His chances of having a heart attack are reduced by both — losing weight and decreasing his triglycerides. It is not unusual for triglycerides to drop when you lose weight on a proper diet. The majority of my patients who have high triglycerides do lower them when they lose weight. Congratulations to your husband.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I could give up eating meat with very little trouble, especially at the prices we have to pay today. But what do I eat in its place to get the protein I need? — Nellie, Wilmington, Del.

Dear Nellie: Protein may be obtained from nuts, eggs, milk, cheese, whole grains, and legumes. A peanut butter on whole-wheat bread sandwich, which combines a legume and a grain, is rich in protein. The same holds true for rice and chicken, which combines a grain and lowfat meat.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Mothers often plagued by guilt

HASBROUCK HEIGHTS, N.J. (AP) — Both employed mothers and those who stay at home often are plagued by guilt — just another worry on top of cut knees, meetings with teachers and balanced diets, the organizer of a motherhood convention said Saturday.

"Mothers have too many opportunities to feel guilty, and guilt is unproductive," said Kay Willis, a 52-year-old mother of 10 from Rutherford who also founded Mothers Matter.

"Stop pitting us one against the other," she said. "We've got to get beyond judging the mother and what she wants to do."

Even in this enlightened age, Mrs. Willis said, society imposes extremes on mothers — "the career mother versus the stay-at-home mother."

Mothers often have problems learning to be comfortable with their own style of mothering, and society makes it more difficult by imposing rigid and unattainable roles mothers, she said.

A mother with a career is not considered as a good a mother as one who stays home with the children. Yet, the woman who chooses to stay home is regarded as less than a productive human being, she said.

"It shouldn't matter to you what everybody else thinks," said Theresa Ebert, a mother of 12 from Cornwall, N.Y., and one of 100 mothers attending the convention. "But every year, what they think keeps changing."

"If I go away overnight, people say 'you're leaving Jerry with three kids?'" said Kathy Potts, a 28-year-old mother from Bayonne. "But he goes away every June to Canada to go fishing and nobody ever says 'he's leaving you with three kids?'"

That attitude, Mrs. Willis said, is the kind of "invasion of privacy" that mothers often take too seriously.

"People who feel like they can comment if you're pregnant...," Mrs Willis said, before being interrupted by enthusiastic cries of agreement. "If you ask them why they don't have more children, they would think you were really invadaing their privacy," she continued.

"When I was pregnant with John, people would say to me, 'What? You're pregnant again?' People looked at you as if it's a crime for you to be pregnant," Mrs. Potts said.

Mrs. Willis founded Mothers Matter in 1975 and has conducted smaller workshops in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Washington, D.C., New York and New Jersey. Her organization now is affiliated with Fairleigh Dickinson University in Rutherford, and more than 1,000 women have been through her program in the past four years, she said.

"The woman who always has been a full-time mother is not often believed to be a legitimate person," Mrs. Willis said. "And this new influx of women having their first child at 30...somehow they are believed to be more legitimate.

"Mothers as mothers need to know each other better and find that place where we are comfortable and accept who we are."

Catholics as likely to have abortions as Protestants

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite the Roman Catholic Church's stance against abortion, Catholic women are just as likely to have abortions as Protestant women, according to a new analysis of poll data.

The analysis also says 67 percent of American women believe that abortion should be legally available to every woman.

The analysis, compiled from two unrelated 1981 polls, appeared in the March-April issue of Family Planning Perspectives, the journal of the Alan Guttmacher Institute.

Family Services of Midland is now accepting registration for the "Systematic Training for Effective Parenting" (STEP) program to begin June 7 at the agency offices, 2101 W. Wall. Parent-child relationships to be explored at workshop

Improving parent-child relationships will be the focus of the educational program for parents beginning Monday, June 7 at Family Services of Midland, 2101 W. Wall. The seven sessions will be from 7 - 9 p.m., according to David Hickman, coordinator of the nationally recognized parenting program.

"The series of presentations, film strips and discussions are based on 'Systematic Training for Effective Parenting' (STEP), the most widely used parenting program in the country," said Hickman. "More than one million people throughout the United States, Canada and other countries have participated in STEP discussion groups since the program was introduced in 1976."

Hickman said, "STEP encourages mutual respect between parent and child, increased cooperation, more effective communication, and a more responsible, self-reliant attitude among children."

The STEP program held in March and April was completely filled, according to Hickman, and parents are already signing up for the next series to begin in June.

To register for the STEP program to be held in June, or for further information, call Family Sevices of Midland, 683-4241.

DEAR ABBY

Stewardess grounded by high-flying lifestyle

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a young woman who recently became friendly with another young woman who is a flight attendant with an airline. She is a very together gal with a warm and winning personality — friendly, charming, vivacious. She has it all.

She asked me over last Saturday so we could have lunch and take in a movie. When I got to her apartment, she was making the last of 14 telephone calls — mostly to married men.

She told me that she had just discovered that she had contracted a venereal disease, and she was calling every man she had been with for the last three or four months so he could be examined immediately and not risk infecting his wife or any other woman. I admired her concern and sense of "honor," if you can call it that, but I must admit that I was badly shaken.

Why am I writing this? To ask you to please warn every sexually active man, woman, girl and boy that no matter how "clean" a person looks, it's foolish to take a chance with a stranger.

This girl looks like the most immaculate, ladylike, discriminating, cautious person you would ever want to see. Please, Abby, print this. All it takes is one wrong guess. — SHOOK

DEAR SHOOK: I'm printing your letter. A word to the wise is sufficient. And it may even help the foolish.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 18, and my high-school graduation is coming up soon. I want my father to attend, but I don't want Linda. She's his second wife. I'm afraid if I don't invite Linda, Dad won't come.

He left Mom eight years ago to marry this no-good barfly. Mom makes us kids visit Dad on weekends. We hate going there because Linda is so hateful toward us when Dad is not around.

Mom never remarried. She says she's waiting until she has us five kids raised, but we think she's still in love with Dad. She's so much nicer than Linda. We don't know what he saw in her. We'd like to get Mom and Dad back together again. I think he still cares, but he's too bullheaded to admit that he made a mistake.

How can I get Dad to attend my graduation without his wife? — WANTS DAD

DEAR WANTS: If your Dad is aware of your dislike for Linda, ask him to attend your graduation alone. (He may surprise you and accept.) If he's not aware, then the invitation should be sent to Mr. and Mrs., and it's up to Linda to accept or decline.

About getting your Mom and Dad together again: If your father "made a mistake but is too bullheaded to admit it," he will have to live with the consequences.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to comment on the letter from "Going Crazy," whose 7-year-old son still sucks his thumb.

I'm 27, and I still suck my thumb. My teeth are perfect and I've never had braces.

I have never felt the need to suck my thumb during the daytime. I am a sheriff's deputy and I'm very well adjusted. I find sucking my thumb at bedtime very comforting. It helps me to relax. You can lose a teddy bear, but you can't lose a thumb. Sign me ... SHERIFF'S DEPUTY IN INDY

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's new booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letters Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Orthotics can help where it hurts

By SUSAN PAYNTER
Hearst Feature Service

SEATTLE — Contact lenses for your feet? Not exactly, but close.

Orthotics — little resin forms that are prescription-fitted to flat or otherwise troubled feet — aren't new. But suddenly, orthopedists like Dr. Stanley Newell are being overrun by runners, skiers and other active amateurs who are finding out what athletes have long known: orthotics can help where it hurts.

The forms, which slip unseen into everyday footwear, ski boots and running shoes, are not intended as an inexpensive answer to tired feet. They cost as much as $300 and are meant to treat a range of maladies resulting from mal-alignments and flat-footedness.

The inserts start with a blunt edge near the ball of the foot and curve to the heel, cradling the foot and compensating for the combined effects of nature and wear and tear.

While Newell has been fitting them for a dozen years, he says the ailments of America's more than 25 million runners have really brought the little shoe-liners into the limelight.

The solution may start with the foot, but the problems often don't. According to Newell, an advisor to the U.S. Olympic team, most people complain of backaches, leg pains, bad knees and ankles. Skiers often complain more of control and performance problems on the slopes than of medical pains.

He says a person may not be bothered until the repetitive act of running aggravates the problem. "When you run, you plunk your foot down between 800 and 1,500 times per mile," says Newell. "If you're compensating for something, it's apt to show up then."

People often are born with a built-in weakness, he says, such as a tendency toward flat-feet. Time, age and the effects of running may cause the arch to flatten out. The enemy may be a job that calls for standing all day on concrete. Other problems like claw toes, hammer toes and bunions may surface and be blamed on bad shoes.

"Some pediatricians and orthopedists let kids go on with leg aches and cramps," he said. "I'm treating one boy who's out of sports for a year, and that's a long time for a kid. He was given blood tests for a problem that turned out to be tendonitis. That's a matter of ignorance and the sin is the physician's."

Newell says he's also seeing more older people, and he's getting more referrals from other physicians who have eliminated the possibility of other medical causes.

When a patient comes in, Newell makes sure it's a structural problem and there are no other medical reasons for the pain. Then he measures the range of motion at the hip, knee, ankle, and the length of both legs.

Newell sometimes tapes the feet and sends the patient back out to play his or her sport and see what happens. If the pain disappears he can be pretty sure an orthotic is the answer.

The only snag Newell sees is when fashion clashes with function for his women patients. The orthotic isn't very effective in shoes with heels higher than an inch and a half.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Thawed out by lunch

DEAR HELOISE:

If the kids or hubby have no place to keep their lunch cool when the weather is warm, freeze part of it ahead of time.

A canned drink, fruit or dessert cup, yogurt, etc., may be frozen when lunch is packed. It will be thawed out by lunch time, but still cold.

The rest of the lunch will be kept cool, thus allowing for a variety of sandwich spreads and salads that can be taken and left unrefrigerated. — Judy Hertz

Great way to insure a good lunch and a cool drink, come noon. — Heloise

TABLE MANNERS

Dear Heloise: Table manners are something everyone needs to learn.

I've found that planning a formal meal with just the family is a good way to teach children from the time they are old enough to sit at the table.

I use our best china and place all the proper forks, spoons, etc., in their correct places. This way, in the privacy of our own home, the children learn eating etiquette, and they and we feel more confident when invited out or dine in a restaurant. — J.C.H.

HINTS FROM HIM

Dear Heloise: When you travel a lot and one town looks like the next, and one hotel room looks like the last, I always carry a matchbook with the hotel's name and address when you leave the room.

Should you get confused and forget the name of the hotel, the name is at your fingertips and any cabbie can get you "home." — Steve Prince

PRETTY PANCAKES

Dear Heloise: For my children and now my grandchildren, when I fix pancakes, I first dribble the child's initial onto the hot griddle.

Then, a few seconds later, I cover it with the full-sized pancake. When it's turned over there's a personal pancake. The child's initial is just a few shades darker than the surrounding pancake.

Just remember to make the letters backwards so when turned it reads right. — Priscilla Rose

Father's Day means TLC

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's dads will be getting a lot of TLC on Father's Day, June 20, but in addition to standing for tender loving care it will stand for ties, lotions and cigars, according to recent research by the Father's Day Council Inc.

"No doubt the lasting popularity of neckties, after-shave lotions and cigars is partially due to the ease with which they can be purchased at the last minute," says Theodore M. Kaufman, the council's executive director.

For merchants, Father's Day is second only to Christmas in sales of men's goods, Kaufman says. Some 1 billion cigars — a quarter of the annual sales — were purchased last year just before Father's Day, the Cigar Association of America reports.

New trustees

NEW YORK (AP) — Two new members have been elected to the board of trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

They are John M. Crawford Jr. and Mrs. Belle Linsky.

Ann Landers says she'll stop 'recycling' letters

By JAMES LITKE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Ann Landers says she has recycled 15-year-old letters in her advice column over the past 18 months, but will stop because the practice was questioned and "my credibility is all I have."

Miss Landers had said publicly in the past that the letters in her column were authentic. In print, she often chided Yale University students for trying to sneak phony letters past her.

A joint investigation by The Associated Press and the Pontiac (Ill.) Daily Leader found that from April 1981 to April 1982 there were 33 clearly identifiable examples of items that had appeared in Miss Landers' daily column in late 1966 and early 1967.

Editors of the more than 1,000 newspapers worldwide who buy her column and her estimated 70 million readers were not told she was recycling previously published letters, sometimes using only slight changes in wording and details like names and ages.

FOR EXAMPLE, in a Feb. 22, 1976, letter from "Irving's Wife" a woman said her husband was too attached to his mother, stopping at her home each morning for "coffee and a bagel" and each night for "some chicken soup or some chopped herring." His mother telephoned every night to ask: "Is Irving all right?"

On Feb. 22, 1982, a letter came from "Millie in The Bronx" and the man's name was Sam. He stopped for "a cup of cocoa and some homemade coffee cake" and later for "a bowl of soup or chopped herring." Sam also got a nightly call from his mother.

In an interview Monday with an AP reporter and assistant publisher James Pearre of the Daily Leader, Miss Landers was shown 12 examples and acknowledged letters had been recycled. She said the practice was rare in her column and that she didn't think it "extraordinary or unsual."

"I think people read my column for advice, guidance, amusement...I don't think the reader cares. The important thing is to get the information out," she said.

"I feel if I get the advice out in a way that is useful or powerful, then I think the technique doesn't matter."

IN A STATEMENT issued later Monday, she said it had not occurred to her that using recycled material would be considered deceptive. She said she would stop reusing old letters immediately.

"My credibility is all I have and I would never knowingly do anything to damage it," said Miss Landers, whose sympathetic personal advice column has been syndicated for 26 years.

Steve Jehorek, president and chief executive officer of Field Newspaper Syndicate, distributor of the column, said Monday columns in the hands of subscribing newspapers would be reviewed for recycled material and substitute columns provided if necessary.

Jehorek said the syndicate's editors were not aware of the practice and that if they had known would have advised Miss Landers against using old items without clearly labeling them as repeats.

"The items are legitimate questions from readers of the Ann Landers column. They are not contrived or inaccurate and the advice in them stands. They are simply repeats," he said.

Jehorek said several newspaper editors had inquired about an AP story Monday reporting Miss Landers' use of recycled material.

Editor Dave Smith of the San Rafael (Calif.) Independent Journal, a subscriber, said Monday the newspaper would publish a coupon asking readers to comment on the disclosure.

"We have no plans today to discontinue the column," Smith said. "We will ask the readers how they feel, and would hope to respond accordingly."

ANN LANDERS IS the pen name for Esther Pauline Lederer, 63, whose twin sister Pauline Esther Phillips writes the similar syndicated advice column "Dear Abby" as Abigail Van Buren.

"Ann has always been proper, ethical and honest and I'm sure there was no intentional deception," Miss Van Buren said in a statement issued late Monday through her office in Hawthorne, Calif.

Asked if Miss Van Buren ever used recycled material, her secretary, Katie Beal, quoted her as saying that if she reruns an item "it is clearly labeled as such."

Barbara Sancken, a part-time editorial staffer with the Daily Leader, first discovered similarities between old and new Landers columns while doing research in the newspaper's microfilm library for a daily feature looking back at history.

AFTER THE Daily Leader began comparing items from Miss Landers' recent columns with those of 15 years ago, Managing Editor Gary Holaway contacted the AP.

Pearre said the paper would still publish her column because Miss Landers said she would no longer rerun old items without identifying them.

He added, "We also feel the column has great readership appeal and that it has conveyed much useful information to her readers over the years."

The Daily Leader pays $725 a year for the column.

Using microfilm at public libraries in Chicago and Pontiac, hundreds of columns from January 1981 through mid-April 1982 were compared with those between November 1965 and February 1968. January and February were also checked on a spot basis back to 1964.

A 1967 ISSUE of the Daily Leader piqued Mrs. Sancken's interest.

"For some time I'd occasionally had a nagging feeling that I'd read a particular Landers letter before," she recalls. "But I also read 'Dear Abby' and I thought perhaps Ann and Abby were just getting similar letters from their readers."

Then, one day while scanning a page of a 15-year-old copy of the Daily Leader a particular phrase in Miss Landers' column "just jumped out at me."

"I read it and reread it, and there was no doubt that I had read it recently, so I looked up recent Landers columns and, sure enough, there it was."

Subsequent investigation showed least seven 1981 columns contained recycled items, as well as at least 26 more so far this year.

During an interview in her apartment overlooking Lake Michigan, Miss Landers was asked why some of her columns carried material clearly labeled as reprints while others did not. She replied, "It would take up unnecessary space and the reader doesn't care."

HERE ARE OTHER examples of matching columns:

—In her column of Feb. 22, 1967, Miss Landers ran a letter from four children who had written in response to a woman's lament that she felt "left out" because her husband refused to let her see him without his partial plate.

The children said they allowed their father to use a hair-darkener for years without letting on they knew he was graying. They said their father hid his bottles in his tackle box.

"Mother knew about it and so did us kids, but we wouldn't have let on for anything in the world," they said.

300,000 letters each year addressed to Ann Landers

CHICAGO (AP) — Since 1955, Ann Landers has given her counsel to the frustrated, angry and curious as one of America's most trusted pen pals.

Her opinions have been sought on everything from troubled love affairs, bridal etiquette and intrusive in-laws to drug abuse, alcoholism and snoring.

She's even been asked to decide one of the great American questions: Which way is the toilet paper supposed to fall — over the roll or under it?

Three hundred thousand letters a year are addressed to Dear Ann Landers, providing fodder for a syndicated column that appears in more than 1,000 newspapers worldwide with an estimated readership of 70 million.

"I am not a love-lorn columnist — that word is an embarrassment," Miss Landers, 63, said on the 25th anniversary of her first column. "I would like to think of it as human relations because that's what I'm dealing with."

Eppie Lederer, as she is known to her friends, was a housewife before beginning her career at the Chicago Sun-Times, where she took over the advice column Oct. 16, 1955, following the death of Ruth Crowley, the newspaper's original Ann Landers. Today, she owns the pen name.

Miss Landers has written pamphlets on such topics as sex and drug abuse and three books. "The Ann Landers Encyclopedia: A to Z" was a best-seller.

While she had never had a paying job before becoming Ann Landers, today she reportedly commands a $7,000 lecture fee. Her 15-room apartment with Picasso etchings on the walls overlooks Lake Michigan.

Last year, the World Almanac and Book of Facts listed Miss Landers and her twin sister Abigail Van Buren, author of the similar "Dear Abby" advice column, among the 25 most influential women in the United States.

Miss Landers has served as chairwoman for the American Cancer Society's national crusade; a member of the visiting committee of the Harvard Medical School's board of overseers and a trustee for the Menninger Foundation.

Esther Pauline Friedman was born on July 4, 1918, in Sioux City, Iowa, 17 minutes ahead of her twin sister Pauline Esther. Her parents, Russian-Jewish immigrants, owned a prosperous string of movie theaters.

The girls were very close in their earlier years. They jointly announced their engagements, got married in a double ceremony on July 2, 1939, and honeymooned together.

Miss Landers says people sought her advice even when she was growing up.

"I think that they thought I was maybe a little more solid than some of the others because I never touched a cigarette, to this day, and never had a drink. I was considered a prude and not ashamed of it," she once said.

Today, Ann and Abby are each other's biggest professional rivals. Abby began her column in the San Francisco Chronicle two months after her sister became Ann Landers.

Both acknowledge there were hard feelings at that time, but insist they are now good friends. "I'd fight like a tiger for my sister and she'd do the same for me," Miss Van Buren said in a magazine interview last August.

Following her divorce in 1975 — when her husband, former Budget-Rent-A-Car executive Jules Lederer, left her for a younger woman after 36 years of marriage — Miss Landers said her sister had been "especially supportive."

The public also responded after she ended her July 1975 column with blank space "as a memorial to one of the world's best marriages that didn't make it to the finish line." More than 30,000 readers wrote to express sympathy.

Miss Landers has said she would like to remarry, and once declared she judges the men in her life by the chocolates they bring her.

Typical of her style is the way she talked in 1980 about her own dating:

"In my pamphlet 'Teen-age Sex and 10 Ways to Cool It,' I advise 'four feet on the floor and all hands on deck.' It applies to 60-year-olds as well. I'm a pretty square old lady."

Producers, family dispute reasons Andrea McArdle quit production

McArdle

BOSTON (AP) — Andrea McArdle has left her starring role in the musical "The Threepenny Opera" after less than a week of previews, and the producers and her family differ on the reasons.

The 18-year-old actress and singer, who was the original Annie in the musical of the same name, was reported to be rehearsing other material in New York on Monday and was unavailable for comment.

Her father, Paul McArdle, said in a telephone interview from his Philadelphia home that his daughter left the Boston show because of unresolved contract issues.

The show's producers said Miss McArdle was asked to leave the show because she couldn't "handle the part."

McArdle said she would have had to leave the show's cast by June 12 at the latest because of other commitments through the summer.

"Last Wednesday I conferred with them in Boston," McArdle said, "and I served notice then that if the se (contract) issues were not resolved by Saturday, May 1, that when Andrea came home on May 2 she would not return to Boston."

However, Frank Sugrue, owner of the Charles Playhouse and co-producer of The Threepenny Opera, and Geraldine Fitzgerald, director of the musical, issued a statement Monday through spokesman Scott Sproviero, saying they asked Miss McArdle to leave.

It said, "We asked Andrea to leave the show because we didn't feel that the rehearsal time remaining before the May 12 opening was sufficient to allow Andrea the time to capture the dimensions that the role of Polly Peachum required. She wasn't able to handle the part."

He declined to identify the matters in dispute.

The show is in previews and is scheduled to open formally May 12.

Webb

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jack Webb, Sgt. Joe Friday of "Dragnet" and producer of "Adam-12" and other action TV shows, faces a $2 million "palimony" suit from a would-be "step-son."

In the unusual action filed Friday in Superior Court, Richard J. Sherman said his late mother, Jane Sherman, had a relationship with Webb from 1973 to 1980.

As administrator of her estate, Sherman claims Webb promised his mother $3,600 a month in support and agreed to give her a condominium in West Hollywood and an automobile. She died Jan. 15.

He also seeks $2 million in punitive damages. Webb said he had no comment on the matter.

Reynolds

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles city attorney says Burt Reynolds won't be charged in an incident in which the actor allegedly roughed up a free-lance photographer who was trying to snap his picture.

"One has a right to use a reasonable amount of force to remove a trespasser," said a statement issued Monday by City Attorney Ira Reiner.

Photographer Russell Turiak, 37, of Sherman Oaks, had told police that Reynolds pummeled him April 26 outside the actor's West Los Angeles home.

A police report said that when Reynolds arrived at his house with actress Loni Anderson of television's "WKRP in Cincinnati," the photographer hopped out of his car and began snapping pictures.

In the report, Turiak contended Reynolds smacked him in the face and threw his camera.

But Reiner's statement said "our office has received a previous complaint involving this 'paparazzi' who has become violent in the pursuit of previous celebrity photographs."

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP) — President Reagan rates a "10" for his political sex appeal, according to a close adviser who wants to see the president appear more often on television to promote his program.

"You can't overexpose a president like Ronald Reagan," Sen. Paul Laxalt said Monday.

"It's like Bo Derek," the Nevada Republican said, referring to the actress who became a hit as a scantily clad love object in the movie "10." "You can't overexpose her. It's not going to happen."

Workers trying to correct Sunsphere's alarming ills

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Workmen are trying to fix the problems that have caused at least two false fire alarms to interrupt dinner guests at the Sunsphere, the centerpiece structure at the 1982 World's Fair.

The workers are trying to correct the trouble by adjusting fire alarm sensors for the 266-foot tower, said Gene Arnold, president of the specialty food service division of Hardee's Food Systems, which operates the Sunsphere's two restaurants.

"People are leery of a big building like that and they don't understand that it has every safety feature," Arnold said Monday. "The thing is as safe as it can be. It's just fine-tuning, like you have to do in any new building."

The alarm-tripping sensors were apparently placed too close to heat sources in an equipment and maintenance room at the Sunsphere's base, Arnold said. The problem is to be corrected by relocating some sensors and installing fans to ventilate heat from the room, he said.

The top of the $8.5 million Sunsphere, a five-story, gold-glazed ball atop a blue steel tower, houses two dining rooms, a kitchen and two observation levels. A fast-food restaurant is located at the tower's base.

Arnold said one of the false alarms occurred before Saturday's opening day of the fair. The other happened Saturday at about 6 p.m. In both cases, people who were in the Sunsphere went to the structure's stairway and some walked down, Arnold said.

Most of the people who were in the globe Saturday night returned to dinner after the false alarm, he said. "Two didn't pay their bills," Arnold added.

He said the building's operators have conducted fire drills under supervision of the Knoxville Fire Department.

Arnold didn't know how many people were in the Sunsphere when the false alarms occurred, but he said the number was considerably less than the 720 people the sphere can accommodate.

The Sunsphere is to remain as a permanent fixture on the downtown Knoxville site after the six-month World's Fair ends Oct. 31. The structure's design is patterned after the Eiffel Tower and Space Needle theme structures of previous world's fairs in Paris and Seattle.

Fair attendance up; 4,000 get in free

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Attendance at the 1982 World's Fair was up Monday, despite a mixup earlier in the day which forced fair officials to let about 4,000 people in for free.

After disappointing weekend attendance, fair officials said 57,300 people visited the fair Monday, following a 35-minute opening delay which was caused by a staff shortage and cash delivery problems at the three-day-old exposition's four gates, said Bill Carroll, the fair's vice president for communication.

And on the eve of a city election, officials were confused about whether state liquor laws and Knoxville blue laws would allow beer to be sold at the fair Tuesday before polls closed at 8 p.m. EDT. Knoxville is one of several Tennessee cities holding local primary elections.

City council scheduled a 9 a.m. meeting Tuesday — an hour before the fair's gates open — to examine the problem and possibly change the blue law.

Bill Koch, counsel to Gov. Lamar Alexander, said a bill the governor signed last week appears to allow beer-by-the-drink sales in some cases on election day, regardless of local ordinances. But he said he wasn't sure whether the new law applied to the World's Fair.

"It will cost us $12,000 to $15,000 if we can't sell beer," said Tom Edgcumbe, manager of Exposition Food Services Inc., which sells beer at five locations on the fair site.

Judge to decide venue change

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A state judge will announce next Monday whether the retrial of a prison inmate charged with the capital murder of a warden will be moved from Galveston.

District Judge Fred Hooey heard testimony on a change of venue motion Monday in the retrial of Eroy Edward Brown, whose capital murder trial ended in a mistrial here in March. Hooey said he would rule next Monday.

Brown was tried on charges in the slaying of Ellis Prison Unit Warden Wallace Pack, who was killed April 4, 1981. Brown also is charged with capital murder in the slaying of prison farm manager Billy Max Moore.

In testimony Monday, Dorothy Kemp of LaMarque, the lone juror who voted for conviction in Brown's trial, testified that she believed the state could not get a fair trial in Galveston.

She said she didn't think the average juror would have the nerve to vote honestly after learning about the public attitudes toward her vote to convict.

Mrs. Kemp said she has been accused of being a racist because she voted to convict Brown.

Walker County assistant district attorney Frank Blazek, who filed the change of venue motion, contended that the state would not get a fair trial in Galveston and that the Galveston County jail could not safely house the 16 Texas prison inmates who would have to testify.

Defense attorney Craig Washington presented testimony from several Galveston lawyers, however, who said they believed a fair trial was possible in Galveston.

Chagra FBI statement still in judge's hands

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal judge is considering whether to make public a statement given to the FBI by Joseph Chagra, one of the four people charged in the murder of U.S. District Judge John Wood Jr.

Four newspapers have demanded that the statement be released. Chagra's lawyers say publicizing the statement would jeopardize the prospects of a fair trial for Chagra, a 35-year-old lawyer from El Paso.

U.S. District Judge William Sessions said he would rule on the demand today.

Also charged in the case are Chagra's brother Jimmy Chagra, 37, a convicted narcotics trafficker; Elizabeth Chagra, 28, Jimmy Chagra's wife; and convicted hitman Charles V. Harrelson, 43.

Two weeks ago, U.S. Magistrate Robert O'Connor went behind closed doors to discuss introduction of Chagra's FBI statement.

Lawyers for The San Antonio Express, The San Antonio News, The San Antonio Light and the Fort Worth Star-Telegram maintain that Chagra's lawyers presented insufficient evidence to show that publishing the statement would be prejudicial to the defense.

Another formal objection, filed by the four newspapers plus the Dallas Morning News and San Antonio television station KENS, said parties moving for closed court proceedings must show that no other alternative was available before First Amendment rights could be bypassed.

Mark Cannan, representing the Express-News, said the public and press had a right to see the results of a three-year investigation that has cost taxpayers more than $4.5 million.

Chagra's lawyers, Billy Ravkind and Charles Roberts, said the statement, made March 20, 1981, contains "part of our efforts to keep Mr. Chagra from being indicted."

Thomas Sharpe Jr., the lawyer for Harrelson, objected to the statement being made public. He said it might violate lawyer-client privilege. Chagra was once Harrelson's lawyer.

Manges-backed committee gave judge $82,000

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Dallas Civil Appeals Court Judge, who narrowly won the Democratic nomination for Texas Supreme Court Justice, received $82,000 in contributions from a committee funded by South Texas rancher Clinton Manges, official records show.

According to a report received by the Secretary of State's office Monday, the Manges-backed Citizens for Change Committee contributed the money to Judge Ted Robinson's campaign and made a last-minute $30,000 contribution to U.S. Rep. Jim Mattox's campaign for the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

Mattox, who faces former U.S. Attorney John Hannah of Tyler in a June 5 runoff election, had earlier reported contributions of $20,000 from two Manges-backed committees.

Richard Jensen, a campaign aide to Robertson, issued a statement for the judge saying: "I accepted the money with no strings and made them (Manges and attorney Pat Maloney) the same promise that I made all my contributors, to administer the laws of the state fairly and impartially and to be the best judge I possibly could."

The latest report brings the Duval County man's contributions to candidates in Saturday's primary to at least $927,000.

Manges' indirect contributions of $196,000 to another Supreme Court candidate, Woodrow Wilson Bean, emerged as a campaign issue in Bean's unsuccessful attempt to unseat incumbent Judge Charles W. Barrow.

Hostage-taking inmates indicted

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Three Central Prison inmates who held hostages at knifepoint for more than 41 hours in March have been indicted on kidnapping and assault charges by a Wake County grand jury.

Each of the three inmates — Darrell Little of Dobson, Melvin Surgeon of Annapolis, Md., and Ezekiel Hall of Brooklyn, N.Y. — was charged with eight counts of kidnapping and eight counts of assault with a deadly weapon.

Little, 27, and Surgeon, 31, also were charged with the armed robbery of items such as wallets, cash and keys which belonged to three of the eight hostages.

Hall, 28, was charged with possessing a hostage's knife, which was allegedly stolen by the other two inmates.

The indictments named as victims the six prison employees and two inmates who were seized and held in the prison's diagnostic center.

The three men seized five prison staff members, a guard and two convicted murderers on March 23. They released the first four hostages in exchange for food, water and cigarettes.

A fifth hostage was released because he had a medical problem and the last three were exchanged in return for the hostage-takers' transfer to a federal prison in Virginia.

The three were taken to Virginia but were returned the next day, March 26. They subsequently were placed in solitary confinement at Caledonia Prison in Tillery.

Prosecutors say bite marks main evidence in inmate's trial

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Prosecutors say bite marks on the body of a stabbing victim will be the main evidence in the capital murder trial of Death Row inmate Jay Kelly Pinkerton.

District Attorney Danny Hill of Amarillo told the jury of seven men and five women on Monday that he will present forensic specialists who will testify that the bite marks on the breast of Sherry Lynn Welch match Pinkerton's dental impressions.

Pinkerton, 20, is charged in the 1980 rape and stabbing death of Mrs. Welch, 25, at the Amarillo furniture store where she worked. The trial is being held in El Paso on a change of venue.

"The evidence is very technical and very scientific," Hill said in opening arguments, adding that he would also present witnesses whose testimony would "put (Pinkerton) at least in the area of the murder."

Large color photographs of the blood-spattered body were shown to the jury Monday despite objections from defense attorneys Richard Stokes and Dean Roper, who said the photos were inflammatory. District Judge Jerry Shackelford of Amarillo overruled the objections.

The pictures showed the furniture store where Mrs. Welch worked and her mostly nude body, which was found April 9, 1980 after store owner Earl Herring went to the store to see why she had not gone home.

Herring testified that he found the body and a bloodied bank deposit bag behind a counter in the store.

"I saw Sherry's body," he said. "She was lying face down on the floor. I called out to her and then I noticed there were wounds in her back."

Herring said he called police and then returned to the body to see if there was any sign of life.

"I got right down by her ear and shouted as loud as I could and got no response," Herring said.

Amarillo policeman James Cook, the first officer on the scene, said the body was "still warm" when he arrived. He said Mrs. Welch was naked except for a blouse pulled up around her neck.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, May 5, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Actor John Ragin, who plays Quincy's boss on the TV series of that name, shares this birthday with you. Also born on this date: Country singer Tammy Wynette and Washington Post editor Bob Woodward. In the months ahead, you find it easier to deal with the public and can count on business to pick up. You have a lot of catching up to do financially. Hard work, not shortcuts, will provide the income you need. Domestic life becomes more fulfilling as family members draw closer together. Do not let your reserve prevent you from confiding in those closest to your heart.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Do not gamble or speculate. A spiritual experience gives you new insight into another person's motives. Join an organization that promotes freedom and justice.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Teamwork is unlikely to bring the desired results. Stick to tasks you can handle alone and avoid making hasty decisions. Examine the fine print on contracts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Money could be at the root of your difficulties. Get business plan off the ground by contacting friends who can offer financial backing. Study subjects related to your career.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You are now interested in entering a new field of employment. Focus on the profits to be gained from your career efforts. A surprise gift from a loved one pleases you greatly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A very good day for closing deals. Write memorandums that say exactly what you mean. Reject partner's ideas for financial investments. Do not lend money to casual friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your ability to express yourself receives new attention. Wills and joint financial agreements are favored. Avoid becoming the subject of gossip. Be discreet!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A romantic image could be deceptive. Concentrate on developing your platonic relationships and widen your social circle. Entertain at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Avoid both extravagance and overconfidence. A romantic interlude follows a social or cultural event. Share the limelight with mate or partner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Adopt a more serious approach to your job and your advancement will be rapid. Travel may be necessary to solve a financial crisis. A will holds some of the answers you need.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lose your temper and you will aggravate an already touchy situation at place of employment. Member of opposite sex may not be putting all of his/her cards on the table.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A compliment makes you nervous because of its source. Do not project a defensive attitude. Your loved ones are pulling for you and that's what's important now.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): One partner is more serious than the other where romance is concerned. Better level with each other. If you do not want to make a total commitment, let loved one go.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	4 NT	Pass
6 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ◇.

Put your bridge wizardry to the test. Cover up the East and West hands and decide what's your best chance to make six no trump after a diamond lead.

North's bid of four no trump does not ask for aces — there is no agreed suit. It is simply a quantitative raise in no trump, and asks partner to bid six no trump if he has a maximum. South had, and did.

At first glance it seems that you have to play for one of two finesses being right. As the cards lie, the heart finesse succeeds, so you make your contract. You took a line that gives you a slightly better than 3-to-1 chance of success. But you didn't take quite the best line. You could have given yourself a slight additional chance.

Since it's even money on the location of the heart king, win the opening diamond lead in your hand and lead a low heart toward the jack. If West has the king of hearts and goes up with it, you don't need the spade finesse. You can take four tricks in each minor suit, three in hearts and the ace of spades.

If West has the king of hearts and plays low, the jack will win. Now you can abandon hearts and take the spade finesse. If it wins, you have all the tricks; if it loses, two hearts and two spades bring your total to twelve.

If the jack of hearts is captured by East's king, you can still fall back on the spade finesse. But your eight of hearts could be the ace in the hole. Before taking the spade finesse, cash the ace-queen of hearts. If either defender started with three hearts including the 10-9, your eight will set up as the twelfth trick and the spade finesse is unnecessary. It is spotting that extra hope that moves you up to the expert ranking.

Spring PTA conference names 1982-84 officers

About 150 members of District 17 of the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers attended the recent spring conference in Midland.

Dorothy Colemen of Odessa was elected president for the 1982-84 term. Vice presidents elected included Geriann Green of Midland, Carolyn Meyers of Odessa, Mary Jane Morgan of Alpine, Nelda Reagan of Big Spring and Shirley Hannah of Pecos. Janet Jackson, of Odessa, will serve as recording secretary and Berdyne Ross, also of Odessa, will serve as corresponding secretary.

Glenda Pruitt, outgoing president, was presented a PTA National Life Membership Award. A PTA Texas Life Membership Award was presented to Nancy Christopher of Monahans.

A life membership award went to San Jacinto Junior High School for the largest percentage of membership increase. San Jacinto also was the recipient of the Oak Tree award. The Roadrunner Award was presented to Bowie Elementary School for the fourth consecutive year. Bowie also was the winner of the Parent and Family Life Education Award with 90 persons completing their PAFLE courses.

Eight workshops, presented to help incoming PTA officers with their duties, included "PTA Leadership," Jo Ann Carroll; "How to Start a Storytelling Troup," Nell Furgeson and the Midland City Council VIPS Storytelling Troup; "Parent and Family Life Education," Pat Polk, state PAFLE chairman; "Home-School Communication," Royce Austin, Kay Thomas and Doris Braun; "Television and Its Impact on Our Children," Dr. Dick Zimmer; "Assertive Discipline," Keller Stamy and Bob Watkins; "Emotional Child Abuse," Dr. David Cockrum; and "New Students and Families and How PTA Can Help," Joe Cummins, Dr. Barbara Thompson, Lanell Honeyman and Joy Stark.

Winners of the Cultural Arts contest from District 17, who were special guests at the meeting, included the following:

Arts

Primary: Jennifer Sowders, first place, first grader at Emerson Elementary; Jennifer May, second place, second grader from Big Spring; and Robert Neatherlin, third place, third grader at Sam Houston Elementary.

Intermediate: Ron Dry, first place, fifth grader from Odessa; Heidi Wood, second place, sixth grader from Odessa; and Trina Hughes, third place, sixth grader from Odessa.

Junior High: David Walvoord, first place, ninth grader at Midland Freshman.

Senior High: Rozena McCabe, first place, senior at Lee High; and Stacy Reeves, second place, senior at Lee High.

Literature

Primary: Matt Robinson, first place, second grader at Bowie; Jodie Ellis, second place, second grader from Pecos; and Melanie Martin, third place, third grader from Big Spring.

Intermediate: Stewart Taylor, first place, fifth grader at Sam Houston; Lisa Sayer, second place, fourth grader at Henderson; and Leigh Ann Wallace, third place, fifth grader from Big Spring.

Junior High: Danny Dutton, first place, ninth grader at Lee Freshman; Stephanie Walker, second place, ninth grader at Midland Freshman; and Jennifer Reese, third place, ninth grader at Midland Freshman.

Music

Intermediate: Austin Biel, first place, fifth grader from Big Spring; Connie Kreger, second place, fifth grader at Sam Houston; and Shannon Banks, third place, sixth grader from Pecos.

Junior High: Missy Kibler, first place, ninth grader at Midland Freshman.

Kay Stringer, daughter of Gene and Joyce Branch, is the recipient of a 1982 United States National Award in speech, presented by the United States Achievement Academy. Miss Stringer, a senior at Midland High School, was nominated for the award by MHS speech teacher Debbie Gainer.

Group hopes to prove importance of Freedom of Information Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liberals and conservatives, consumers and businessmen and even state officials trying to keep track of the federal government all have used the Freedom of Information Act.

The act has been used to expand public knowledge of such diverse topics as the CIA's testing of drugs on unwitting Americans, the cancer risks of pregnant women taking the hormone DES, and pollution in the Ohio River.

With the Senate Judiciary Committee planning to consider amendments later this month to restrict use of the act, the Campaign for Political Rights issued a study Sunday detailing more than 500 examples of how consumers, businesses, journalists, historians, state officials and political groups have used the act to obtain federal government documents.

"MANY OF THE 500 cases are familiar stories to the American public," said Peggy Shaker, executive director of the private, liberal group which opposes the amendments before the Judiciary committee. "But few people realize that this information would never have left the government's filing cabinets if it weren't for the FOIA."

The 180-page study includes cases of disclosures under the act involving consumer product safety, drug safety, government behavior control, the environment and nuclear power, fraud, waste, government corruption, labor, civil rights, business, history, foreign affairs, defense, government intrusion into political activities and taxes.

Among the better-known disclosures listed are those about the investigations of the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy and civil rights leader Martin Luther King, the radiation exposure of U.S. soldiers in nuclear tests during the 1950s, FBI spying on dissenters and various automobile defects.

The Reagan administration supports amendments sponsored by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, that would restrict access to law enforcement, intelligence and business records held by the government. Hatch and the administration argue that the law imposes undue burdens on government agencies and has not been used as much by the public and the press as originally envisioned.

But David Sobel, counsel for the campaign, said in a forward to the study: "The law has uncovered dangerous health and safety conditions, fraud, waste and illegal government conduct. It has helped authors and journalists provide important information to the public. It has also assisted individuals, unions and businesses in pursuing their legal rights in the judicial system. In short, the act has fostered democratic participation in the affairs of state."

AMONG THE EXAMPLES cited in the study:

—The Public Citizen Health Research Group obtained University of Chicago research from the Food and Drug Administration showing a possible increase in breast cancer among pregnant women taking DES. The Surgeon General later sent a nationwide advisory asking doctors to notify women exposed to DES to get special check-ups for cancer.

—The Center for National Security Studies obtained extensive CIA files on its testing of drugs, viruses and chemical agents on prisoners, terminal cancer patients and some unwitting human subjects. The results appeared in numerous newspaper and magazine articles, several television broadcasts and a book, "The Search for the Manchurian Candidate," by John Marks.

—The Louisville Courier-Journal obtained Environmental Protection Agency audits showing manufacturers were violating local sewage codes by dumping hazardous wastes in the Ohio River, which provides drinking water for those downstream. A month after the newspaper published the information in August and September 1981, the county ordered 46 companies to cease sewage violations.

Mixed drink sale revenues increase

AUSTIN — State Comptroller Bob Bullock reported Tuesday that Texas received $34.5 million in taxes at the end of the 1982 first quarter on the sale of mixed drinks, which is a 21 percent increase over the same period last year.

Bullock's office will be sending checks totaling $10 million to 216 counties and 404 cities as their 15 percent rebates of the taxes they collected.

Midland County will receive $55,422.69, or 15 percent of its $369,484.58 tax revenue. The city's 15 percent portion totals $48,978.78 of the $326,525.20 tax revenue.

Under the law that legalized the sale of mixed drinks in the state, Texas cities and counties receive the 15 percent rebate of the tax collected on mixed drinks sold within their boundaries.

The tax is collected by the Alcoholic Beverage Commission and city-county rebates are sent out quarterly by the Comptroller's office.

Bullock said the first quarter tax collections represent the sale of more than $345 million worth of mixed drinks.

Dismissed charges concern NAACP

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is hiring a lawyer to look into the dismissal of misconduct charges against two white police officers charged in the death of a young black man last summer.

Christine Belnavis, the local NAACP president, said in a report Sunday that the civil rights group has hired lawyer Dale Phillips.

'60 Minutes' case may decide New Jersey shield law status

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — New Jersey's shield law comes under scrunity this week when a Superior Court judge hears from two police officers who want a look at unused tape from a "60 Minutes" segment.

The two officers filed suit against CBS in August, claiming they were defamed in a "60 Minutes" segment entitled "Equal Justice." The officers — Orange Police Capt. Frank Possert and former Orange detective Sgt. Jack Farley, now an investigator with the Essex County Prosecutor's office — maintain portions of the program were incorrect.

CBS has refused to turn over the tapes, invoking provisions of the shield law, which protects reporters' notes and news sources.

Low turnout noted at polls

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Only 21 percent of Texas' registered voters turned out to cast ballots in Saturday's primaries, according to Secretary of State David Dean.

The total vote was roughly the same as the vote in the 1952 primaries, Dean said Monday.

Dean, who had predicted a 29 percent turnout, said: "I am dismayed at the voter apathy as indicated by the final voter turnout figures."

A total of 1.4 million Texans voted Saturday. About 6.6 million Texans are registered to vote.

The Democratic primary drew 1.2 million voters. The GOP balloting drew 199,978 voters.

"The statewide voter turnout in the 1982 primaries equals the statewide voter turnout in the 1952 primaries of 1,356,392 voters, which represented 58 percent of the state's registered voters at that time," said Dean. "Thirty years later, we have roughly three times the number of registered voters with a voter turnout of 1,355,143, equaling a dismal 21 percent turnout statewide."

Dean said he has started an election analysis to pinpoint the causes of the voter apathy.

Hinckley jury selection finished

WASHINGTON (AP) — A custodian, a garage attendant, two secretaries and a woman who has done graduate study in psychology are among the 12 jurors who will judge the mental state of the man catapulted to infamy by shooting President Reagan.

Opening arguments were set today in the trial of John W. Hinckley Jr. and were to be followed by the first testimony of prosecution witnesses.

Prosecutors said Monday they wanted to summon Reagan to the stand to tell what he saw and felt on the rainy spring day he was shot. But the White House ruled out his testimony, citing security and demands on his time.

THE UNITED STATES attorney's office acquiesced in that determination, said a statement by U.S. Attorney Stanley S. Harris.

As the jury was selected Monday afternoon, Hinckley's eyes followed each man's and woman's slow walk from a wooden pew in the courtroom to padded swivel chairs in the jury box.

Many of the final 12 — five men and seven women — were relieving juror candidates seated and then stricken by prosecutors and defense lawyers. Ten potential jurors were sent away by the government, six by the defense. Attorneys did not have to state their reasons for rejecting the 16.

After the jurors were chosen, five women and a man were seated as alternates.

The jurors who will try the 26-year-old Hinckley range in age from 22 to 64. Four are government employees, two are retired and six work in private business.

The panel — none of their names was released — includes a hotel banquet worker, a food service technician, a supply specialist, a shop mechanic and an information control clerk. They're joined by the custodian, the garage attendant, the two secretaries, the two retirees and the research assistant who studied maladjusted people.

PUBLIC NOTICE

YOU ARE ENCOURAGED TO PARTICIPATE IN MIDLAND'S 1982-1983 COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

The City of Midland has begun the application process for 2nd-year funding from its current 3 year Community Development Block Grant (CBDG). The initial planning phase involves the gathering of information concerning the needs of the community as expressed by the people of Midland. The City invites all interested agencies, groups, and/or persons to participate in this initial planning phase. Citizens' written views and recommendations are welcomed and will be integrated into the application process. A public hearing on input gathered from interested persons will be conducted sometime in June.

Hundreds of laid-off workers hit the bars

By ELLEN HADDOW
Associated Press Writer

PARACHUTE, Colo. (AP) — Hundreds of Exxon USA oil shale workers, bitter about losing their jobs, hit the bars for solace while waiting to collect their last paychecks today so they could head out of town.

Many of the 2,100 workers who found the gates at the desolate construction site locked Monday morning were later loading trucks and trailers with their belongings.

"They're getting madder," said Pat O'Neill, owner of one of the town's two bars. "Not only did they lose their jobs, but they've been, in effect, told that they're only small ants in the giant Exxon antpile."

Exxon announced Sunday that escalating costs were forcing it to abandon the multibillion-dollar Colony Shale Oil Project, the nation's largest synthetic fuel project. It was a move that was expected to bust the boom in this recently flourishing area.

The decision followed by two days an announcement by a group of Canadian oil companies saying they had scrapped plans to produce oil from tar sands near Alberta.

This worried energy analyst Peter Warren from the Colorado School of Mines, who predicted the abandonment of such synthetic fuels projects would give "carte blanche" to the OPEC countries to set prices on crude oil. Once the site was completed, workers were to have mined oil shale, then crushed and heated it to extract oil.

In Battlement Mesa, a company-built town across the Colorado River from Parachute, Police Sgt. Britt Wurl said an evening thunderstorm temporarily dampened the ire of angry construction workers, who found out Monday they were out of jobs.

"But I don't know how long this lull will last," Wurl added.

Parachute bars were crowded Monday night, and law enforcement officials were worried about further outbreaks of violence — which were limited during the day to isolated skirmishes and minor vandalism.

Meanwhile in Denver, Gov. Richard Lamm met with members of his Cabinet to assess the impact of the Colony shutdown, which he termed "a disaster" for Garfield County but "not a mortal blow" for Colorado as a whole.

Police shut down the liquor store in Battlement Mesa on Monday, but Parachute Police Chief Steve Rhoads later rejected a request by sheriff's officers to close down the two bars in neighboring Parachute.

"These guys are angry and they're going to drink," he said. "I'd rather keep them here than have them on the road endangering innocent people."

Dennis Schmitz, a construction worker who says he spent all Monday drinking beer and shots of whiskey in Battlement Mesa's trailer park, is heading back to Arizona as soon as he gets his paycheck.

"The ones who can afford it will leave," he said. "The ones who can't will be on welfare in Colorado. This Reaganomics just ain't working."

The effect on the area's economy will be disastrous, according to regional officials and business executives. The Colony project was planned to produce 48,000 barrels of shale oil daily by 1987 and would have employed 7,000 workers at peak construction.

"Its shutdown will hurt banks from Grand Junction to Glenwood Springs," said Ray Guerrie, president of the First National Bank of Battlement Mesa. "Our intent is to take care of the survivors."

Ironically, Monday was the first meeting of the new Parachute Chamber of Commerce.

"It was a bit somber," said Dr. Robert Traul, a dentist who opened a practice on Battlement Mesa several months ago.

"Like everybody else, I'll just keep going and hope Union provides enough to keep us alive," he said.

Trial of $2 billion in huge 1978 oil spill claims begins

CHICAGO (AP) — About 60 French mayors are expected to attend a trial beginning today of a suit seeking $2 billion in damages from the second-worst oil spill in history, the wreck of the Amoco Cadiz.

Plaintiffs include the government of France, several local French governments, the Shell Oil Co. and the New York-based attorneys who represent them.

The principal defendants are the the owners and operators of the Amoco Cadiz's load of oil, Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, two of its subsidiaries and a company manager.

Presiding over the case in U.S. District Court will be Judge Frank J. McGarr.

A court clerk said the trial could take up to four months.

The complex case stems from the March 16, 1978, grounding of the Liberian-registered supertanker off the coast of Brittany in northwestern France.

The oil — 223,000 tons of it, owned by Shell but transported by Amoco — created a slick 18 miles wide and 80 miles long. It blackened about 245 miles of coast, caused extensive marine damage and crippled commercial fishing operations in Brittany.

Cleanup costs have been estimated as high as $50 million. It was the worst spill on record until a Mexican oil well spilled more in 1980.

Suits were filed on behalf of French governments and businesses in four American courts, but were consolidated into one case before McGarr.

"We don't believe there was any fault on the part of my clients, and that's what we'll prove," said Frank Cicero Jr., the Chicago-based attorney for Standard Oil. He refused further comment.

Carl Meyerdirk, a Standard Oil spokesman, had no comment.

In 1979, McGarr ruled there was no reason under admiralty law to limit the liability of Standard Oil, Amoco International Oil Co. and Claude Phillips, the transport company's manager of marine operations. McGarr's ruling said Amoco Transport Inc.'s liability would be limited to the $800,000 bond it posted after the loss of the ship, unless negligence were proven, Cicero said.

Attorneys for the French parties will argue that negligence by Standard Oil officials caused the spill, said Barry Kingham, who represents a coalition of local French governments and local businessmen.

"Our position in the case is that the Amoco Cadiz went aground as a result of the negligence of what we call the Amoco parties, that there was also some fault on the part of the tugboat which tried to save the vessel ... that as a result of all those people, the ship went aground, split in two, and poured 220,000 tons or 58 million gallons of crude oil into the English Channel," Kingham said.

Merit Taste Stands Alone.

Extensive research confirms MERIT proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking.

Landmark smoker study confirms that the majority of higher tar smokers who have switched to MERIT have one thing in common —Praise for MERIT taste.

Taste Debate Ends.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers who switched from higher tar are glad they did. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Taste Verdict: MERIT.

Further, extensive unmarked-pack tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than —leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

Top-seeded John McEnroe stretches to return a shot from Chris Johnstone of Australia in Monday night's opening round of the WCT Tournament at Forest Hills in New York. McEnroe took the first step toward a possible meeting with arch-rival Ivan Lendl by defeating Johnstone 6-4, 6-1.

McEnroe unimpressive in WCT

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — John McEnroe is the defending Wimbledon and U.S. Open champion, is ranked No. 1 in the world and has a victory under his belt in the $500,000 WCT Tournament of Champions at the famed West Side Tennis Club.

Chris Johnstone isn't impressed.

"I thought he could serve me right off the court," the 21-year-old Australian said of McEnroe. "I thought he played badly. I wasn't as impressed as I thought I would be."

Despite the lack of respect, McEnroe advanced to the second round by beating Johnstone 6-4, 6-1.

"It's just good that I won," McEnroe said. "I didn't win any last year. It's not everyday I lose in a first round of a tournament."

It was in this tournament a year ago that Carlos Kirmayr of Brazil upset McEnroe in the opening round. Kirmayr, using serve-and-volley tactics on the slow clay surface, battled his way into the finals where he lost to Eddie Dibbs.

"It's tougher playing on clay because I only play a couple of events a year on clay," said McEnroe.

The lefthander said he is using this tournament somewhat as a barometer, "to see how my body and my ankle react" and to determine if he is ready to play the Italian and French Opens.

McEnroe severely sprained his ankle earlier this year and now has it taped.

Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, ranked No. 3 in the world and second-seeded in this tournament, played his first-round match today, facing Damian Keretic of West Germany.

Also making their T of C debut today will be third-seeded Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina, fourth-seeded Johan Kriek of South Africa and fifth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis.

Although Johnstone wasn't impressed with McEnroe, the Australian certainly drew respect from his opponent.

"He's quick around the net," McEnroe said of Johnstone. "He's beaten a couple of good players, so I was expecting whatever he gave me. I wasn't going to be surprised by anything."

Eighth-seeded Mark Edmondson of Australia was surprised by Sweden's Stefan Simonsson 6-2, 6-4.

"He's like a little Borg," Edmondson said, comparing Simonsson to his more famous countryman, Bjorn Borg.

"I played very well, steady from the baseline and passing well," the Swede said. "I think he's (Edmondson) a good player on clay, but today his game was off."

Edmondson was the only seed to fall Monday. No. 12 Mel Purcell beat Robert Van't Hof 6-0, 6-4; No. 11 John Sadri stopped Brazil's Julio Goes 6-4, 6-1 and No. 14 Shlomo Glickstein of Israel ousted Marco Ostoja of Yugoslavia 6-3, 7-6.

In other matches, Tim Wilkison defeated Van Winitsky 6-2, 2-6, 6-2; Rod Frawley of Australia downed Brazil's Tomas Koch 6-4, 6-2; Russell Simpson of New Zealand defeated Jose Garcia of Spain 2-6, 6-3, 6-3 and Chris Lewis of New Zealand eliminated Rick Meyer 6-2, 6-2.

Celtic sub makes NBA Hall of Fame

By TRUDY TYNAN
Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Frank Ramsey, the "Sixth Man" of the Boston Celtics, was still shaking his head in disbelief as he lined up with the likes of Willis Reed, Hal Greer and Slater Martin to be installed in the Basketball Hall of Fame.

"I've got to be the only sub in the Hall of Fame," said Ramsey, who totaled 8,738 points coming off the bench during a nine-year pro career during which the Celtics won seven National Basketball Association championships.

Also inducted Monday were Winston-Salem State Coach Clarence "Big House" Gaines, the winningest active coach in basketball with a 683-299 record; Alva Duer, executive secretary of the NAIA from 1949 until his retirement in 1971 and the late Everett Case, former coach at North Carolina State.

Danny Biasone, who as owner of the old Syracuse Nationals, revolutionized the pro game in 1954 by persuading the other owners to institute the 24-second clock, received a specal award as an outstanding contributor to the game.

"I couldn't believe it when I opened my mailbox. I thought I got the wrong mailgram," recalled Ramsey, 52, who returned to his hometown of Madisonville, Ky., after his playing days to become a banker and farmer.

"We never played for stats, we played to win. "Heck, I would have sat on the bench all year to get those seven titles."

For Reed, the big, quiet center who came out of tiny Grambling College to lead the New York Knicks to the NBA championships in 1970 and 1973, the words "team play" were the key.

"The people I played with, my teammates, put me here," he said."You don't make halls of fame in a team sport by youself and I played with some of the best from the time my high school won the state championship."

Reed is now coaching at Creighton University.

Standing a foot shorter than Reed, Martin, at 5-10 one of the smallest players ever to make the Hall of Fame, agreed.

"I still amazes me," he said. "I knew my teammates would get here, they were all shooters, but you don't expect it when you are under six feet and play defense."

An All-American at Texas, Martin, 56, played on four NBA championship teams with Minneapolis Lakers one with the St. Louis in the 1950s. He scored 7,337 points and 3,160 assists in an eleven-year pro career.

For Greer, the NBA's eighth-leading scorer, the honor was a long time coming, but he was all smiles Monday.

"I thought it should have come earlier, but I'm not mad anymore," said Greer, an All-American at Marshall University in 1959. His deadly accurate jumpers from the foul line were a trademark of a 15-year pro career with Syracuse and Philadelphia that included 10 All-Star games.

"It's been quite a few years, but sometimes it's better when you have to wait for it," said Greer, who first became eligible five years after his retirement in 1973.

"I've never had but one job and that's just been a game," said Gaines, 58, who has coached Winston-Salem since 1947. His teams, which have included such future pro stars as Earl Monroe, have had only two losing seasons.

Case, who died in 1966, amassed an 87-percent winning percentage in 47 years of coaching.

Flanagan feeling smooth, faces 27

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Mike Flanagan was just too strong in the early going this season.

On Monday night, he was just too good.

"The last four times I've pitched, I've felt too strong," Flanagan said after facing the minimum number of batters in firing a three-hit shutout for his first victory in four decisions as the Baltimore Orioles whipped the Seattle Mariners 6-0.

"In those games, I felt so strong that I tried to overthrow. Tonight, I felt smooth. It was just a matter of slowing myself down."

Elsewhere in the American League, the Boston Red Sox trimmed the Minnesota Twins 6-2, the California Angels nipped the Cleveland Indians 5-4, the Oakland A's downed the New York Yankees 5-4 and the Kansas City Royals edged the Milwaukee Brewers 3-2.

Rich Dauer and Gary Roenicke backed Flanagan's pitching with home runs. Dauer hit a two-run homer off rookie Mike Moore in the first inning and singled a run across in the fifth, while Roenicke connected for a three-run homer off Larry Andersen in the eighth.

Despite the three Seattle hits and one walk, Flanagan pitched to the minimum number of batters. He picked one runner off first, another was thrown out trying to stretch a single into a double and two were erased on double plays.

"I had good control of my fast ball," Flanagan said. "It's nice to be able to go out and feel in total command. I just made the pitches when I had to and got some good defensive support."

"Mike had good command of his fast ball," added Ray Miller, the Orioles' pitching coach. "He stuck with the fast ball for most of his outs. That's the power pitching of the Mike Flanagan of old. That's the way he threw in '79 when he won the Cy Young. If he has his fast ball, his curve can get anyone out."

Baltimore third baseman Cal Ripken Jr. was hit in the head by a pitch from Moore in the fifth inning. He went to a hospital for X-rays, which were negative.

Red Sox 6, Twins 2

Two-run homers by Dave Stapleton and Rick Miller powered red-hot Boston to its fourth consecutive triumph and 12th in the last 13 games, while Chuck Rainey and Bob Stanley combined on a five-hitter. Stapleton's inside-the-park homer capped a four-run first inning after Carl Yastrzemski's two-run double erased a 2-0 Minnesota lead. Miller's homer followed Rich Gedman's double in the fifth.

Stapleton's homer came when his high fly down the right field line fell just out of reach and skipped away from a diving Mickey Hatcher.

The Twins, with a 9-16 record, have hit 29 home runs. Boston, which leads the AL East at 16-7, has just 14.

"Home runs don't mean anything. It's runs scored," said Boston Manager Ralph Houk. "We're scoring runs. We led the league last year in runs scored. We're not the type of ballclub that hits home runs."

Angels 5, Indians 4

Don Baylor drove in the tying run with a seventh-inning double and then hit a ninth-inning sacrifice fly for the winning run, while Andy Hassler and Don Aase combined for 7 1-3 innings of sparkling relief. Rod Carew led off the ninth with a single off Dan Spillner and Fred Lynn walked. Carew went to third on Reggie Jackson's fly ball and scored on Baylor's drive to deep center.

Hassler relieved starter Mike Witt in the second and pitched five scoreless innings — he is unscored upon in 13 innings this season — before Aase retired the final seven batters, striking out five. The Angels trailed 4-0 but scored twice in the fourth inning off Len Barker on two walks, an error and a sacrifice fly. Consecutive singles by Carew, Lynn and Jackson made it 4-3 in the seventh.

A's 5, Yankees 2

Singles by Dwayne Murphy and Tony Armas drove in the tying and lead runs as Oakland rallied for four runs against Tommy John and Rich Gossage in the eighth inning and went on to its fifth consecutive victory. The A's had managed six hits and one run until pinch hitter Jeff Burroughs opened the eighth with an infield hit. Rickey Henderson walked and Murphy, who drove in Oakland's first run with a third-inning triple, singled to score pinch runner Jimmy Sexton with the tying run.

Henderson scored when Armas greetzd Gossage with a bloop single. Cliff Johnson's sacrifice fly scored Murphy, with Armas taking second on the throw. Gossage wild pitched Armas to third and he scored on Joe Rudi's squeeze bunt. Matt Keough went the route for the A's, scattering seven hits and walking seven. The A's also committed four errors, two by Keough on pickoff throws.

Royals 3, Brewers 2

Greg Pryor's home run and Hal McRae's two-run double gave Kansas City a 3-0 lead against Mike Caldwell in the sixth inning. Paul Splittorff carried a four-hit shutout into the seventh, then gave up a two-run homer to pinch hitter Larry Hisle, who hadn't played since April 17 because of a sprained wrist and an eye infection. Dan Quisenberry relieved at that point and checked the Brewers the rest of the way on one hit for his league-leading eighth save.

Phils on longest streak of year

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

A little knowledge can be a dangerous thing, and Philadelphia rookie Bob Dernier is getting smarter with every game.

Dernier stole his sixth and seventh bases of the season in the first inning, then doubled home the go-ahead run in the fourth as the Phillies defeated the San Francisco Giants 5-3 Monday night.

The victory was Philadelphia's second straight, representing the first time the Phillies had won games consecutively this season. Dernier's second stolen base came on the front end of a double steal with Pete Rose, and he and Rose scored the first two runs of the game on Gary Matthews' single.

"He can run, and he likes to run," Rose said of Dernier. "When he learns more about the pitchers, he'll be stealing a lot more bases."

The Phillies scored a third run in the first inning on George Vuckovich's single, but San Francisco tied it with two runs in the second — one on Darrell Evans' homer — and another run in the third on Jack Clark's RBI single.

Dernier broke the tie, however, when he doubled in the fourth inning off Dan Schatzeder, 0-4, scoring Ivan DeJesus, who had walked and was sacrificed to second. The Phillies added their insurance run in the eighth on Dick Davis' sacrifice fly.

In the rest of the National League, the New York Mets got by Los Angeles 6-3 in 12 innings, Montreal beat San Diego 8-2, Atlanta downed Pittsburgh 10-4 and St. Louis defeated Chicago 9-4.

Manager Pat Corrales was happy to see his Phillies put two victories together, but he added: "The heck with streaks, though. I'll just take two games out of three in every series all year and be happy."

On Sunday, Philadelphia beat San Diego 3-0. Dernier and Rose also had a double steal in the first inning of that game, setting up the first run.

"He does make things happen, doesn't he?" Corrales said of Dernier.

The winner was Sid Monge, who worked five innings, giving up three hits in relief of Dick Ruthven. Ed Farmer preserved Monge's first National League victory.

AP Laserphoto

Pittsburgh Pirate Omar Moreno dives into second base in an attempted steal and is greeted by Atlanta Brave Rafael Ramirez for the put out on a throw from catcher Bruce Benedict during first inning action Monday night in Pittsburgh.

Mets 6, Dodgers 3

Hubie Brooks drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single in the 12th inning as New York ended a six-game losing streak at Dodger Stadium. Brooks' line single scored George Foster and Joel Youngblood to snap a 3-3 tie. Another run scored on Ron Gardenhire's fielder's choice.

Foster started the three-run inning with a single off Terry Forster, 1-3. Dave Kingman sacrificed Foster to second, and Foster went to third on Youngblood's single. After Forster hit John Stearns with a pitch to load the bases, Steve Howe came on for Los Angeles and yielded the two-run single to Brooks.

Ed Lynch, 1-1, the fifth Mets pitcher, picked up the win with two scoreless innings of relief.

Rick Monday and Pedro Guerrero homered for the Dodgers.

Expos 8, Padres 2

Gary Carter and Chris Speier eached homered, and Bill Gullickson hurled his first complete game of the season for Montreal. Gullickson struck out 10 and scattered seven hits, waiting out a rare 22-minute rain delay at San Diego in the top of the seventh.

Speier's third-inning homer, his second this season, snapped a 1-1 tie, and Carter had a two-run shot in the eighth inning. Al Oliver also drove in a pair of runs with two singles.

The loss represented the first time this season that the Padres have dropped consecutive games. John Montefusco got the loss, despite allowing only four hits in seven innings.

Braves 10, Pirates 4

Atlanta continued its string of road victories, winning its ninth straight without a loss, and 43-year-old Phil xniekro picked up his first victory of the season.

Niekro, who started the season on the disabled list with a rib injury, was relieved with one out in the sixth after giving up three runs on six hits.

Claudell Washington backed Niekro with a three-run homer, and Glenn Hubbard also had three RBI. Niekro drove in a pair of runs with a double.

The loss was the fourth straight for the Pirates. Jason Thompson homered for Pittsburgh.

Cards 9, Cubs 4

Darrell Porter's two-run homer, his first since April 7, sparked a five-run rally in the St. Louis seventh inning. Keith Hernandez and Dane Iorg had RBI singles in the inning, and another run scored on Cubs catcher Jody Davis' throwing error. The victory was the third in nine games for St. Louis.

Leon Durham's two-run homer in the Chicago fifth had tied the score 4-4.

MC banquet honors athletes

Celebration may be premature

Midland College held its annual All-Sports Banquet at the MC Student Center Monday night, and normally such events signify the conclusion of the athletic year.

That's hardly the case at MC, however. Chap teams still have business to attend to that could add as many as three more national championships to the NJCC Basketball Tournament title already in the trophy vault.

MC STILL has men's and women's tennis teams in nationals, after second place finishes for each in the Region V tournament, while the women's golf team is also questing national championship gold this month. Such a sweep would be unprecedented in Juco annals.

But perhaps that's dreaming. Even as it is, there was more than enough glory for an evening's entertainment with lettermen plaques, MVP, Fighting Chaparral and a host of other awards presented.

TWO OF the most coveted went to women's golfer Wendy Swift and men's tennis player Tony Macken, who received the awards for Academic Achievement from Dr. Tom O'Hara, president of the faculty senate.

Golfers Rebecca Bradley and Bruce Carroll were named Most Outstanding Athletes by the MC Student Senate and received their awards from fellow student Kevin Gillette. The awards honor not only athletic achievement, but involvment in many facets of campus life beyond athletics.

After its national championship, the MC basketball team was honored at a special Chaparral Appreciation Night, but Coach Jerry Stone made MVP presentations to Puntus Wilson and Spud Webb while Lance McCain was named recipient of the Fighting Chaparral Award.

Stone admitted a national championship does make a difference. "Now when I go recruiting, everyone knows where Midland is and some are even calling us. And I'm recruiting a lot of people just because Spud is coming back." The latter was in reference to Spud Webb, who was feared lost for his sophomore year after he signed a letter-of-intent with North Texas State.

Betty Murrah, sponsor of the national champion cheerleaders, couldn't settle on a MVP, so she gave a plaque to each.

For men's golf coach Delnor Poss, Bruce Carroll was MVP while Steve Goetzmann and Mike Petersen shared the Fighting Chaparral Award and David Waszak was recognized for his All-Regional accomplishment.

For Susan Holland's nationals-bound women golfers, Jill Himmelman, from far off Nova Scotia, was MVP and Sabra Srader and Wendy Swift were co winners of the FCA.

"This is the best team MC has ever had. Most of our competition is against four year colleges, so we don't win many tournaments, but we're getting ready to win one now," promised Coach Susan Holland.

DR. LEON Dulin has two teams headed for nationals. Vancouver's Tony Macken was named MVP after winning No. 1 in Region V while Luis Zavala was FCA winner. For the women, Liz Alvarado was the MVP and Jodi Wertenberger was the FCA award winner. Kim Sommerville also garnered all-conference honors while Monty Saul and Barry King corraled all regional.

Athletic Director Delnor Poss awarded Chaparral Spirit awards to Mike Stephens, Ted Battles, Terry Williamson, John Nichols, Nathan Poss, Charles Loper, James "Doc" Dodson and Larry Freeman.

H.A. Tuck served as Master-of-Ceremonies while MC President Dr. Jess Parish offered the welcoming remarks.

Cubs romp over El Paso

EL PASO — A grand slam by Carlos Lezcano in the first inning followed by home runs by teammates Carmelo Martinez (two) and Joe Carter set the pace for a 17-7 Texas League victory for the Midland Cubs over El Paso here Monday night.

The bases-loaded blast by Lezcano gave the Cubs a 4-0 lead over the Diablos with Martinez' solo shot in the third putting Midland up 5-0. In the bottom of the frame, El Paso picked up two runs to pull within three, 5-2 and Bill Foley's solo shot in the fourth brought the Diablos within two, 5-3. But, that was as close as they'd come.

Midland started piling up the runs. The Cubs built up a 9-5 lead after five and led 11-5 after six. They added one, three and two runs in the final three innings while holding El Paso to just two to claim the victory.

On the mound, Mike King picked up his first win of the season against two losses. Tom Smith came in to relieve in the seventh, but couldn't get any outs while giving up two runs. Kenneth Pryce was then called upon and came up with three shutout innings for his third save of the year. For El Paso, Steve Parrott fell to 1-2 with the loss with Jim Uhey and Ray Gallo pitching in relief.

Tonight, the Cubs return home for a five-night stand against the San Antonio Dodgers with play beginning at 7 p.m. In the first meeting of the two clubs, San Antonio swept the series, posting a 5-0 record.

Texas to defend baseball title

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The four top baseball teams in the Southwest Conference will clash in the post-season tournament, which starts May 14 at Pat Olsen Field in College Station.

The tournament — featuring the University of Texas, Houston, Arkansas and Texas A&M — will run through May 16 with two games each of the three days. A seventh game, if needed, will be played May 17.

Texas, which wrapped up its 55th SWC title with its 9-7 victory over Texas Tech in Lubbock last weekend, is the tournament's defending champion.

The Tech-Texas series was shortened by rain and the loss dropped the Red Raiders from their fourth-place tie with Texas A&M.

Had Tech won Sunday, the Raiders would have taken the fourth tournament position and Arkansas would have been host for the tournament in Little Rock.

Arkansas and Houston will open the tournament Friday afternoon and the Aggies will meet Texas, which is looking for its fourth straight tournament championship. The Longhorns swept the Aggies in their three-game regular season series.

In 1980, Texas won at Olsen Field with victories over Texas Tech and two wins over Arkansas. Texas and Arkansas have met in the final game of the double-elimination format tournament for the last three years.

This will be the second time Olsen Field has been the site of the tournament.

Pole vaulter Billy Olson and distance runner Mary Decker Tabb were chosen the outstanding athletes of the 1982 indoor track and field season by the New York Track Writers Association Monday. Olsen, of Abilene Christian University, won 10 of his 14 indoor meets and took the top prize in the Mobil Grand Prix. He raised the American indoor record for the pole vault to 18 feet, 6¼ inches in a meet at East Rutherford, N.J., then broke the world indoor best four times — 18-8¾ in Toronto, 18-9¼ in Louisville, Ky., 18-9½ in San Diego and 18-10 in Kansas City. Tabb, back in competition after missing the 1981 season because of injury, won all six of her indoor reces. She set world indoor bests for the mile of 4 minutes, 24.6 seconds in Los Angeles, 4:21.47 in New York and 4:20.5 in San Diego. In one race in L.A., she set world indoor bests of 5:51.1 for 2,000 meters and 8:47.3 for 3,000 meters...

Former welterweight and middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson and ex-middleweight king Jake LaMotta will serve as color commentators for tle closed circuit telecast of the May 24 middleweight title fight between champion Marvin Hagler and Thomas Hearns. Robinson and LaMotta fought six times, twice in Detroit just across the river from Windsor, Ontario, where the Hearns-Hagler bout will be held. Sal Marchiano will handle blow-by-blow for the fight...

Vanderbilt will open its 1982 football season at Memphis State on Sept. 11 instead of at North Carolina a week earlier, the university announced Monday. Lew Harris, Vanderbilt's sports information director, said the Commodores will play the Tar Heels at Chapel Hill, N.C., at 1 p.m. EDT on Sept. 18. He said the change was made from Sept. 4 to help North Carolina's efforts for a televised game. Harris said there were no plans to televise the North Carolina-Vanderbilt contest.

The Hamilton Tiger Cats have signed import wide receiver Mack Cummings and non-import linebacker Michael Graffi, the Canadian Football League team announced Monday. Cummings played college football at East Tennessee State University where he also ran 60- and 100-yard dashes for the track team. Cummings, 24, has had tryouts with the Washington Redskins and the Kansas City Chiefs of the National Football League. He played for Charlotte (N.C.) Chargers in a semipro league in 1980 and 1981...

The Entertainment and Sports Programming Network and METRO—SPORTS have signed an exclusive cable television agreement for major college football and basketball events. Included in the agreement are a total of 80 Big Ten Conference basketball games over the next three years, Notre Dame football and basketball games, the Liberty Bowl, the Aloha Bowl, eight UCLA basketball games, and the Rainbow Classic basketball tournament from Hawaii. The rights to additional events will be announced later. ESPN, the 24-hour sports cable network, reaches 16 million homes nationwide over 3,600 cable affiliates. METROS-PORTS syndicates collegiate sports for cable networks...

The United States women's field hockey team defeated a West Australian all-star squad 3-1 Monday night in an exhibition match at the Commonwealth Stadium. Julie Staver, Bess Ander and Shar Morett scored for the Americans, who had tied the West Australians 1-1 Saturday...

The drawings was held Monday for matches in the third amateur World Boxing Championship tournament. Preliminary rounds begin Tuesday, with 271 fighters from 45 countries competing. Among the contenders are five gold medal winners from the 1980 Moscow Olympics — Schamil Sabirov of the Soviet Union, Petar Lessov of Bulgaria, and Angel Herrera, Armando Martinez and Teofilo Stevenson of Cuba. The matches will be held in the stadium built for the 1972 Olympics. Four countries — the United States, the Soviet Union, Romania and Cuba — have competitors in each of the 12 weight classes. In the super heavyweight class, over 200 pounds, American Tyrell Biggs will meet Ferend Somodi of Hungary...

Jairo Velasco of Colombia won the 41st international tennis tournament here by defeating Ernesto Vazquez of Spain 6-3, 6-2 in the final Monday. The women's final was won by Anne Larsen of Denmark, who beat Tina Soerensen, also of Denmark, 7-5, 6-1.

Big 10 to try 3 pointer

CHICAGO (AP) — Big Ten basketball coaches are recommending experimental introduction of three-point goals during the 1982-83 conference season, says Commissioner Wayne Duke.

At a meeting with conference athletic directors last week, the coaches also voted to recommend changes in the NCAA post-season tournament format, Duke said Monday.

Duke said the coaches will be asked this week to indicate their preference on the distance beyond which a basket would count for three points. The choices will be from 19 to 22 feet, he said.

Duke said the recommendations will be submitted to the Big Ten athletic directors if at least six coaches agree on a distance for the three-point goal. The conference athletic directors are scheduled to meet May 10-12 at Ohio State University.

"We will have a three-point play in the Big Ten next year," Illinois Coach Lou Henson said Monday. "The athletic directors must still approve it, but I feel they will."

Chaps' guys, gals in nationals

They finally wound up the Region V Junior College tennis tournament at Midland College and Coach Dr. Leon Dulin of the host Chaparrals could have been happier with the results only if MC had pulled off a miracle in the men's competition. They almost did by a whisker and they almost missed, by the same margin, qualifying for the nationals at Ocala, Fla.

As it was, Midland College pulled off the remarkable feat of qualifying both its men's and women's teams for the nationals by finishing second in both divisions.

Cooke County won the women's title, but the real stunner came in the men's division where McLennan, the odds-on favorite to win it all, lost out to Midland in a thrilling finish.

"McLennan lost a couple of quick upsets, got behind and spent the rest of the tournament trying to catch us," Dr. Dulin said. "It came down to the last doubles match our No. 2 doubles team of Monty Saul and Barry King beat McLennan's team of Mario Rauch and Ed Stucker, 7-6, 7-6."

AS CLOSE as MC came to finishing third was about as close as they came to winning, "We were within couple of match points in singles of winning it all," Dr. Dulin said.

New Mexico Military Institute won the men's team title to gain the other spot in the finals, which begin next Tuesday with the women's tournament whmle the men's competition follows the next week.

Tony Macken of MC pulled a big surprise by beating NMMI's Shoichi Horuichi in the No. 1 singles finals, "And we'll be trying to get Tony a No. 1 seed in Ocala," says Dr. Dulin.

Midland's other first was by Barry King in No. 2 singles.

IN THE women's division, "Cooke was the obvious power, but they didn't come on as strong as I thought they would," said the MC coach.

Kim Somerville won the No. 3 singles while Liz Alvarado, who beat Yaskmo Yashida three of five during the season, bowed to her NMMI rival in the No. 1 singles finals.

Cooke won the title with two singles and a doubles title.

"I just hoped we played well going into the tournament and hoped something good would happen," said Coach Dulin. It did.

As far as Dr. Dulin is concerned, the worst is over. "In the last eight years, the national champion has come from this region, so getting out of here was the tough part."

WTC, OC gain golf nationals

Western Texas College fired an 889 to beat out Odessa College by a comfortable 16 strokes at Odessa Country Club recently, but both teams earned berths in the nationals at Scottsdale, Ariz., in two weeks. McLennan finished third at 906 followed by NMJC 07, Midland College 913, South Plains 942, Grayson 921, Weatherford 926 and NMMI 960.

David Waszak was low for Midland with a 226 and earned all regional. Bruce Carroll of the Chaps was named all WJCC.

Barnes, Moore, Harvey triumph

Darryl Barnes defeated David Rogers 6-0, 6-1 to win the Midland Junior Tennis Association's Boys 16-under tournament while Kevin Moore won the Boys 13-Under play with a 6-0, 6-4 win over Robert Moore. In the Girls 13-Under, Krystal Harvey defeated Tammy Iteljorg in the finals.

Boys 16-under—Semifinals—Darryl Barnes d Grady Gilliland 6-2, 6-1; David Rogers d Walter Hickman 6-3, 6-2. Finals: Barnes d Rogers 6-0, 6-1. Consolation: Jimmy Walker d John Brenneman 6-4, 6-0.

Boys 13-under— Semifinals: Kevin Moore d Chris Jauz 6-3, 6-1. Joey Robert d Mike Ivan 6-3, 6-3. Finals: Moore d Robert 6-0, 6-4. Consolation: Robert Rogers d Craig Reed 6-0, 4-6, 6-4.

Girls 16-under Semifinals— Krystal Harvey d Laura Schnedier 6-0, 6-2. Tammy Iteljorg d Kay Knox 6-0, 3-6, 6-3. Finals: Harvey d Iteljorg 6-1, 6-0. Consolation: Dussy Lusk d Michaela Hasek 6-0, 6-1.

Pro exhibition is May 11

The pro tennis exhibition involving pros Stan Smith, Bob Lutz and Tim and Tom Gullikson will be held 7 p.m. May 11 at Chaparral Center. It was originally listed as May 14. Both singles and doubles matches will be played with Lutz and Smith meeting the Gulliksons in doubles.

Tickets are $10 and $8 at Endless Horizons, any Midland country club pro shop with proceeds to go to Midland tennis organizations.

Lee Booster Club meets tonight

The Midland Lee Booster Club will meet 7:30 p.m. tonight at the Lee Youth Center. Officers will be elected for 1982-83.

Coach Spike Dykes will give a report on the progress of spring training and prospects for next year.

Harris, Britton win MCC Open

Bill Harris defeated Miles Boldrick 6-1, 6-4 to capture the men's division of the Midland Country Club Open Singles Tennis Championship. The tournament was played May 1-2. Susan Britton won the women's division with a 6-3, 7-5 straight set victory over Laurie Runyon.

'Hit Man' injures fingers in fall

PLYMOUTH, Mich. (AP) — Boxer Thomas Hearns could be forced to postpone his scheduled May 24 title fight with middleweight champion Marvin Hagler because of two injured fingers on his right hand, according to Hearns' manager-trainer.

Hearns said Monday that he injured the little finger and ring finger last week when he tripped while running and tried to break his fall with his right hand.

"Those fingers — particularly the little finger — have remained swollen," manager-trainer Emanuel Steward said. "Last weekend, the doctor advised him to take three days off from training, but he still has soreness there."

"I'm very concerned about it," Hearns said. "This (boxing) is all I have."

The former World Boxing Association welterweight champion continued sparring at his Plymouth training site following the injury, but the finger apparently became infected, Steward said.

In Texas League games Monday night, Amarillo edged San Antonio, 3-2, Shreveport slipped past Tulsa, 7-6, in 10 innings and Arkansas edged Jackson, 7-6.

John White limited the San Antonio Dodgers to only six hits as the Amarillo Gold Sox edged the Dodgers, 3-2.

Tony Brewer slugged his seventh homer of the season for San Antonio.

The losing pitcher was Dean Renneicke.

Jim Wojcik's two-out single in the 10th inning drove home Rob Deer with the winning run as the Shreveport Captains slipped past the Tulsa Drillers, 7-6.

Shreveport held a 6-0 lead after five innings on a home run by Bob Cummings and a two-run double by Deer.

Doubles by Don Scott and Bobby Ball allowed the Drillers to pull within one run at 6-5 in the sixth inning.

Tulsa threatened to pull out a victory in the bottom of the ninth inning when Tim Jirschele tripled and scored on a double by Ball. Shreveport reliever Mike Brecht retired the side, leaving Ball stranded to set the stage for Wojcik's 10th inning game winner.

Brecht, 3-0, was the winner. Tom Henke, 1-2, was the loser.

Louis Ojeda walked home from third with the winning run in the bottom of the ninth inning as the Arkansas Travelers edged the Jackson Mets, 7-6.

Hostage feared rescue attempt

HOUSTON (AP) — A man held hostage on a Honduran airliner says he worried most that authorities would try to rescue him, a move he says would have ensured his death.

The four leftist guerrillas had wired windows and entrances with dynamite which one touch would have set off, Jack Simpson said Monday.

"It's not boring," said Simpson, 57, recalling the four days he spent aboard the plane as it sat in stifling heat on a runway in Tegucigalpa, Honduras. "You spend 24 hours a day looking out the window and wondering if they're going to try to strike the plane from outside."

Simpson was the last of a group of 11 North Americans who escaped through windows and a rear door of the plane as their captors slept Saturday. He said he was certain at the time that the discouraged guerrillas were going to blow up the plane within 30 minutes

The hijackers eventually negotiated for another plane, released the remaining 15 hostages and flew to Cuba. They had demanded $100,000 from the Honduran government airline, Tan-Sasha.

Simpson blamed a lack of security for allowing the four men to board the plane carrying sticks of dynamite and large-caliber pistols.

"Do not board a plane that does not have security checks," he advised.

Leftist gunmen are sheltered behind hostages Saturday as they leave the plane they had hijacked three days earlier. They ultimately agreed to trade the hostages for a second plane and permission to fly to Cuba.

Soviet military buildup considered by committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is interrupting work on a $180 billion defense authorization bill for a closed-door briefing by two committee chairmen on the Soviet military buildup they say makes all that spending necessary.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, the Armed Services Committee chairman, and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., who chairs the Intelligence Committee, planned to put the Senate in unusual secret session for about two hours this afternoon to discuss evidence of the buildup.

Opening debate on the bill late Monday, Tower said the classified briefing "should help to put this authorization request into perspective."

And Goldwater said he found it hard to believe that any member would doubt that the Soviet buildup poses an increasing threat to the West. He cited estimates that the Soviets are building five times as many tanks and four times as many tactical aircraft as the United States each year.

The defense bill, which Tower's committee trimmed by $3 billion below the Reagan administration's request, is the first budget bill to reach the floor of either house of Congress this year and is being considered before budget limits for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1 have been enacted.

Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., complained that this procedure "puts the cart before the horse." He said the Senate "would be following a course of common sense and ... discretion" the American people expect if it waited until overall budget figures have been approved.

But Tower and others said the bill has been ready for more than two weeks and the Senate cannot allow legislation to stack up while the protracted budget fight continues.

Tower said the defense bill, which permits obligation of funds for weapons development and procurement, daily operations and maintenance of the armed forces and Civil Defense, could be adjusted later if lower budget targets result.

In his opening statement, Tower said the bill continues the rebuilding drive begun last year after what he called a fallback in defense over the previous 20 years.

"Obviously, the imbalance that has developed between the Western allies and the Soviet bloc over that length of time cannot be corrected in a single fiscal year," he said. "Only a sustained commitment to real growth in our defense investment can restore our nation's security."

Sen. John C. Stennis of Mississippi, ranking Democrat on Tower's panel, endorsed the chairman's statement and said greater attention also must be paid to ferreting out waste.

Plane crash kills Algerian diplomat

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Algerian Foreign Minister Mohammed Benyahia, who mediated the release of the American hostages in Iran, was killed in a plane crash in northwest Iran, and Iran accused Iraq of shooting his plane down.

The official Iranian news agency, IRNA, said everyone aboard the Algerian government plane was killed. APS, the Algerian news agency, said they included eight other high-ranking Algerian officials en route with Benyahia to Tehran for an official visit, an Algerian journalist from APS and the executive jet's four crew members.

Among the delegation members were Saadeddine Benouniche, Benyahia's chief aide in the hostage negotiations, the deputy director of the Central Bank of Algeria, and the directors general of the ministries of foreign trade, energy and petrochemicals, and transport and fishing, APS said.

IRNA said the Grumman G-2 crashed Monday 4½ miles inside Iran at Qotur, a small town 94 miles south of the juncture of the Iranian, Soviet and Turkish borders.

The plane "was apparently attacked by some Iraqi jet fighters within Turkish air space in an area 62 miles from the nearest Iraqi air base as it was crossing the border," the agency said.

There was no immediate comment from Iraq.

IRNA said the same Iraqi fighters chased a West German Lufthansa airliner en route to Tehran early today, but Iranian air force planes escorted it back to Ankara, the Turkish capital. The agency did not explain why the German plane was not escorted to Tehran, which was considerably closer than Ankara.

An Iranian embassy source in Ankara claimed an Iraqi jet which caused the crash of the Algerian plane was shot down by Iranian jets on the Turkish side of the border in Van province, But the provincial governor, Behcet Eren, was reached by phone from Ankara and said, "We have no knowledge of any plane coming down on our side of the border."

Turkish press reports, quoting official sources and unnamed witnesses, said there was a dogfight near the border Monday afternoon between Iraqi and Iranian jets, an Iranian plane crashed on the Iranian side of the border, and the pilot parachuted safely.

The Algerian news agency said when Benyahia and his delegation did not arrive in Tehran on schedule, "Iranian officials informed the Algerian ambassador in Tehran that the Algerian aircraft had landed in Damascus airport and that its passengers would spend the night in the Syrian capital."

After Syrian authorities advised that the plane had not landed at Damascus, "contacts went on all night between the Algerian and Iranian authorities on the one hand and authorities in other capitals in the region on the other to obtain more precise information," APS said.

Iranian authorities did not announce the crash until 6:30 a.m. Tehran time, the Algerian agency said.

IRNA said a team from the gendarmerie and the army, accompanied by a special representative of Iranian President Seyyed Ali Khameini and a deputy foreign minister, were investigating the crash.

Benyahia was heading the first high-level official Algerian delegation to visit Iran since Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolution three years ago. The Iranian news agency said he was to discuss ways of ending the Iraq-Iran war as well as relations between Algeria and Iran and international and regional issues.

Benyahia, 50, was one of the theoreticians of Algeria's revolutionary regime and was active in the struggle for independence from France. He was ambassador to the Soviet Union and then was information minister, minister of education and scientific research and finance minister before President Chadli Benjedid named him foreign minister three years ago.

Benyahia was aboard a Mystere jet, taking him to a meeting of the Organization of African Unity, that crashed last May in Bamako, Mali. Radio Algiers announced his death in the crash, but he was injured and was brought back to Algiers, where he recovered.

Arab woman killed, another wounded in rioting today in occupied Gaza Strip

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli troops shot and killed an 18-year-old Arab woman during a riot in the occupied Gaza Strip today, the military said.

A second Arab woman was wounded in the incident, a spokesman said. Arab sources in Gaza said five Arabs were wounded.

The military said troops spotted 10 knife-carrying Arabs entering the El Uda girls' school in Khan Yunis, in the central Gaza Strip.

When soldiers chased the Arabs into the schoolyard, the pupils started rioting and threw rocks, chairs and bricks at the soldiers, the spokesman said.

After firing warning shots, the soldiers aimed at the rioters' legs, hitting the two women, both of them students, the spokesman said.

The dead woman was identified by Khan Yunis hospital as Ihsan Halil Daras, 18, from the Abasan refugee village southeast of Khan Yunis.

The death brought to 12 the number of Arabs killed in clashes with Israeli troops in the past six weeks in Gaza and the occupied West Bank of the Jordan.

Two Israeli soldiers also have been killed.

In other violence today, Arab demonstrators threw rocks at an Israeli bus north of Jericho, injuring an Israeli woman passenger, the military said.

It's 'service with a snarl' for Soviets, media says

By DAVID MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — When the airline Aeroflot tried to sell him a ticket dated Feb. 30, a Soviet worker pointed out to the saleswoman that February had only 28 days.

"No exceptions. Only the 30th," retorted the saleswoman. "It's not my worry if the date doesn't suit you. Who's next?"

The exchange, which took place in January in the Byelorussian city of Gormel, was reported recently by Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper, after the worker had written a letter of complaint, one of a number appearing recently in the Soviet press about the treatment of consumers.

In another such incident, a Russian woman wrote to the newspaper Sovietskaya Rossia that she got no sympathy from postal officials when she complained that a package of fruit took 25 days to reach her through the mail.

"You can imagine what I got instead of fruit," she said.

The problem of poor service to consumers also was broached by Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper.

"Responsibility, accuracy, respect — these are the hallmarks of high-class service," it said in a recent front-page editorial on improving service industries.

People are routinely turned away at Moscow's few quality restaurants, even when tables are empty, because they haven't written a letter asking for a reservation.

If they do get inside, they often find limited menus, slow service and lukewarm food.

Soviet citizens still must line up every day for scarce goods and services, often to be confronted with rudeness or indifference from sales personnel, the press accounts indicate.

Department stores, food markets, restaurants, laundries and dry cleaners, shoe and appliance repair shops, service stations and the public transport system have been mentioned in a spate of letters and critical articles in the state-run press.

President Leonid I. Brezhnev himself acknowledged the problem when he demanded improved public services in a 1980 speech outlining his government's five-year plan.

"People go to shops, canteens, laundries and dry cleaners every day," he said. "What can they buy? How are they welcomed? How are they spoken to? How much time do they have to spend doing various household chores? It is largely on the strength of how these problems are solved that people judge our work."

Complaint books must be kept at every Soviet business so that customers can cite instances where they are mistreated, and employees can be docked wages if they are named too often in them.

But the books are often kept out of sight to discourage complaints, and some Soviets say customers face blacklisting by the stores if they dare to report abuses in writing.

A manpower shortage is one of the reasons cited for the failure of Soviet managers to crack down on employees who insult customers or do sloppy work.

Chronic shortages of food, quality clothing, appliances and luxury goods make shopping difficult. Many desirable items never make it to the shelves and are sold instead "out the backdoor" for bribes.

"I keep on the best terms with my butcher," one Muscovite acknowledged to a Westerner. "He lets me know when choice meat arrives, and I do certain favors for him in return."

Recent newspaper reports cited a variety of problems in customer services:

—Timetables for trains, buses and planes aren't printed, so information desks at terminals are flooded with requests for arrival and departure schedules and have no time to counsel travelers.

—Vacuum cleaners assembled at a plant in the Ukrainian city of Dnepropetrovsk have to be sent to Ufa in Siberia if electric motors need repairs.

—A shoe repair shop in Novosibirsk in Siberia provided such abysmal service that it was deluged with 236 written complaints and more than 600 oral complaints in one year. Many problems stemmed from the lack of materials and trained personnel to handle the jobs.

The letter of the Aeroflot customer who was offered the Feb. 30 ticket on Jan. 27 complained that all the reservation personnel in the airline office sided with their colleague and gave him the same story — take the ticket for Feb. 30 or nothing. He finally complained to the shift manager, and was told to report back at 6 p.m. to get a ticket for an earlier date.

Returning at the appointed hour, the worker wrote, he found the office locked and a note on the door saying, "Closed for cleaning. Come back Feb. 4."

"We don't dare quote more from the man's letter," Izvestia said, "because the writer used a number of colorful words to describe the employees of Aeroflot."

Summit 'no closer,' source says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a flurry of statements indicating President Reagan and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev may meet this fall, the two are no closer to a summit conference than when it was first suggested, an administration source says.

The well-informed official, who asked that he not be further identified, said that there has been no progress in arranging the full-fledged summit conference that the ailing Soviet leader says he wants.

With different aides presenting nearly contradictory pictures of the likelihood of a summit conference, some officials said the president was willing to accept such an invitation from Brezhnev while others cautioned Monday that speculation about such a meeting was erroneous.

Lyndon Allin, a White House spokesman, said, "There has been no decision to go to this summit."

Early last month, Reagan told reporters he hoped Brezhnev would attend a United Nations disarmament conference in New York in mid-June. The president said he would like to meet the Soviet leader at that time.

Brezhnev responded in an interview with Tass, the Soviet press agency, several days later. He indicated he would not participate in the U.N. meeting but said he wanted to hold a full-fledged summit conference with Reagan in the autumn.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said no specific preparations were under way for an autumn meeting with the Soviet leader and that Reagan still hopes he can meet Brezhnev in New York next month.

The spokesman said a formal invitation for Brezhnev to confer with Reagan in New York hinges on the Soviet president's acceptance of the U.N. invitation.

The United Nations meeting is likely to attract seven or eight heads of state, Speakes said.

In Moscow, meanwhile, a senior Soviet spokesman today ruled out a U.N. meeting next month between Brezhnev and Reagan and said the Kremlin was holding out for a "prepared" summit in Europe this fall.

"We are waiting for a clear and accurate reply from the American president" on Brezhnev's summit proposal, Yuri Zhukov, the leading commentator of the Communist Party newspaper Pravda, told a news conference.

Zhukov said Soviet officials heard that Reagan was considering Brezhnev's proposal to meet in Finland or Switzerland in October but that there had been no official acceptance from Washington.

He accused the Reagan administration of failing to respond to Brezhnev's various proposals since 1981 for "limiting the arms race and disarmament."

The last meeting between Brezhnev and a U.S. president was in 1979, when the Soviet leader and Jimmy Carter met in Vienna and signed the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, which has not been ratified by the Senate.

Britain says more fighting, gives no details

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Defense Ministry today reported more fighting with Argentine forces around the Falkland Islands but gave no details and said there was no word on any British casualties.

"There has been action which I don't have full details of yet," said spokesman Ian McDonald.

He did not say whether the clashes happened Monday or today. But he added: "I have no knowledge of British casualties."

Asked if the clashes involved rescue vessels searching for survivors of the torpedoed Argentine cruiser General Belgrano, he said: "If Argentine ships are engaged in picking up survivors, we would not interfere with them."

Argentina's Joint Chiefs of Staff announced in Buenos Aires that 400 survivors have been picked up from the General Belgrano, torpedoed and sunk by the British on Sunday.

The British government defended the sinking of the General Belgrano and said it would "continue to tighten the screw" on Argentina.

"The General Belgrano was a threat to our men and therefore it was quite correct that it was attacked by our submarine," Defense Minister John Nott told reporters Monday.

"Our first duty is to protect our own men."

The Defense Ministry, in its first announcement Sunday of the torpedoing of Argentina's only cruiser, said it was attacked outside the 200-mile British blockade zone around the Falklands because it "posed a significant threat" to the British war fleet in the South Atlantic.

The Argentine Joint Chiefs of Staff announced Monday that the cruiser was attacked and sunk 36 miles outside the maritime exclusion zone proclaimed by Britain around the islands that Argentina seized from Britain on April 2.

Less than 12 hours later, two Royal Navy helicopters sank an Argentine patrol boat and damaged another after a pair of helicopters from the carrier Hermes were fired on 90 miles north of East Falkland, the Defense Ministry said.

The helicopters dropped life-saving equipment after the attack on the boats, but the fate of the Argentine crewmen was unknown, the ministry said.

Argentina said a patrol boat had been "hit and damaged" while going to the aid of a downed Argentine pilot, but it did not elaborate.

Nott said the British task force would give assistance and medical aid to the survivors of any Argentine ships it attacked. But he said Britain would "continue to tighten the screw" to force the junta in Buenos Aires to withdraw its estimated 9,000 troops from the islands it seized April 2.

Nott said Britain still sought a peaceful solution to the dispute and was aiming for the "minimum loss of life on both sides."

Foreign Secretary Francis Pym returned today from a three-day U.S. visit and was expected to brief Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and her Cabinet on his talks with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

The government requisitioned the Queen Elizabeth 2 to transport 3,000 infantrymen to the South Atlantic. The luxury liner returned from a trip to New York early today and docked at Southampton for "slight modifications," including installation of a helicopter pad.

The drafting of the QE2 ended vacation plans for 1,750 passengers who had been booked to sail today on a 13-day Mediterranean cruise.

Argentine survivors reportedly picked up

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The Joint Chiefs of Staff said today that Argentine navy rescue vessels have picked up 400 survivors of the cruiser General Belgrano, torpedoed Sunday by a British submarine in the South Atlantic.

Naval sources expressed optimism that more survivors would be found.

A communique from the Joint Chiefs of Staff said the 400 survivors, members of the cruiser's 1,042-man crew, were aboard the support vessel Gurruchaga en route to Ushuaia, at the tip of the South American continent.

The communique said rescue work continued in the area where the cruiser was hit by British torpedoes. Some 15 rescue vessels were involved.

The commander of the Argentine navy said Monday that the sinking of the General Belgrano, Argentina's only cruiser, was "this country's worst single military setback in more than 100 years."

But Adm. Jorge Anaya said the torpedoing of the ship by a British submarine would "strengthen the decision to continue the fight" for the Falkland Islands, which Argentina calls the Malvinas.

People seen on the streets of Buenos Aires took the news of the sinking quietly Monday, with sadness.

"This really hurt," said one man. "Most of those boys on the ship couldn't have been more than 18 years old."

Argentina charged Britain with "a treacherous act of armed aggression" because the attack off the southern tip of South America occurred 36 miles outside the 200-mile blockade zone Britain imposed around the archipelago.

British Defense Secretary John Nott replied that the attack was "quite correct" because the Belgrano threatened the Royal Navy armada blockading the estimated 9,000 Argentine troops in the Falklands.

Argentina also said a British attack Monday "hit and damaged" a patrol boat that was trying to pick up a downed Argentine pilot. Britain announced that some of its helicopters sank one patrol boat and damaged another 90 miles north of the Falklands after the boats opened fire on two helicopters from the carrier Hermes.

Education secretary: Demise still planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Education Secretary T.H. Bell says he is not giving up on his plan to downgrade the Education Department to a foundation.

Bell, at a news conference Monday, good-humoredly rejected a reporter's suggestion that the plan was "a corpse."

"I deny that in any way that's a corpse," Bell rejoined. "Of course, you're talking about my baby. It pains me to hear you declare it a corpse already."

The education chief devised the plan to shed some programs from his $14 billion agency and convert the rest to a non-regulatory Foundation for Education Assistance to fulfill President Reagan's campaign promise to dismantle the department.

Bell unveiled the plan Feb. 5 and said legislation would be sent to Congress in a few weeks. But he admits that a lack of support has forced the administration to delay submitting the bill.

Bell said he was "slowly but...steadily gaining support" for the plan. "I'd admit that it isn't a shining star that's blinding your eyesight, but it's getting brighter all the time."

Meanwhile, a coalition of education groups fighting to save the department called a rally outside the White House this afternoon to mark the agency's second birthday.

Congress and then-President Carter created the department in October 1979, but the actual legal separation of the "E" from the old Department of Health, Education and Welfare did not take place until May 4, 1980.

Critics planned to use the rally to blast Reagan's efforts to cut aid to schools and college students.

Bell charged Monday that the news media and "almost hysterical" critics have misled students into believing little federal aid is available for college.

"We're not emasculating the student aid program," said Bell, adding that his department will spend $4.3 billion to help people attend college in the year ahead.

He charged that critics are "alarmed and apprehensive and almost hysterical about it and because of that, some students are making decisions not to go on to school at all, when, indeed, they could still afford to do it if all of our proposals were adopted."

MEDICAL TECHNOLOGISTS REGISTERED NURSES

South Park Hospital has current openings for medical technologists and registered nurses who are looking for the opportunity to work in a progressive, well-equipped facility. Located in southwest Lubbock, this hospital is a 99-bed acute care facility, offering an excellent salary based on experience, plus one of the most generous benefit packages in the health care industry. Openings are now available on all shifts for nurses, and on the day and evening shifts for medical technologists.

Through our affiliation with Hospital Corporation of America, we are able to offer outstanding benefits to the successful applicants, as well as unique local benefits.

- Company paid hospitalization, major medical & life insurance
- Company paid retirement plan--newly revised to benefit both the long and short-term employee of HCA
- Paid vacation and holiday time off
- Generous sick leave policy with reimbursement
- Employee stock purchase plan
- Nurses will work on our unique "7 day on/7 day off" staffing pattern; Medical Technologists work conveniently arranged schedules.
- Tuition reimbursement plans available for all employees
- Criteria based performance appraisal system for all employees--you are evaluated on the work you perform twice each year.

For applicants seeking a pleasant community in which to reside, Lubbock offers a very low cost of living (one of the nation's top 10 cities with a low cost of living index), plenty of affordable housing, and a year-round pleasant climate,

If You Know What An Owner/Operator Is...
You Know It's Worth $2,500 To Become One.
The only thing stopping a lot of good truckers from becoming owner/operators is the tractor cost. That's why Aero-Mayflower developed a new tractor lease program. It's a way for owner/operators to get started. All it takes to begin is $2,500. As an owner/operator with Mayflower you'll get:
1. 56% of the line haul ($560 out of every $1,000.)
2. If the fuel goes up, so does your fuel surcharge.
3. Training (if you need it) at our expense.
4. Your own business with a very successful company behind you.
We'd like to tell you more. Call 1-800-428-1220 (in INDIANA call 1-800-382-1212) between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Eastern Standard Time.
