Ocean To Keep Treasure

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

FAIRHAVEN, Mass. (AP) — An estimated $4 million in sunken treasure remains in the luxury liner Andrea Doria today despite a $250,000 effort to recover it.

The costly 26-day recovery expedition ended with just a few pieces of silver to show for the effort, leaving a wealth of jewels, cash and other valuables in the hulk of the Italian liner.

Two Navy aquanuats hacked through the hull of the wreck, only to find its interior a tangle of treacherous rubble after 17 years on the ocean bottom.

The diving team returned to Fairhaven on Friday with four trays, a spoon and a bottle of perfume, estimated to be worth about $2,000.

Meanwhile, 40 miles off Nantucket, the bulk of the sunken treasure remains guarded by sharks and a morass of twisted wire and wood that threatens the lives of future salvagers.

The two divers who planned the expedition, Chris Delucchi, 22, and Donald Rodocker, 27, both of San Diego, Calif., said they feared that local explorers would try to enter the ship through the hole that's been cut through its side.

"It's a cookie jar with the lid off," said one mission member.

But Rococker warned, "The Andrea Doria is there to stay. There is a great risk of life going in there to get the stuff. If local divers go in there, there is a great chance they won't come out."

The crew said it was unable to retrieve the treasures of the ship.

"We reached the point in the ship where the purser's office, the jewelry store and the bank were supposed to be, but they just weren't there," said Robert Covvey, one of the support divers.

But the mission was not considered a total loss.

One purpose of the trip was to experiment with an underwater technique called saturation diving, said Rodocker. "The mission was 90 per cent successful, because the system is checked out, and it tested fantastically."

Delucchi and Rodocker, using the technique, stayed on the ocean bottom day and night for eight days while they worked on the wreck. They ate and slept in a white, cigar-shaped chamber called "Mother" that they had anchored near the bulk.

The two said they had patents on the chamber, which they designed, and plan to build others to sell while using the original on easier treasure hunts.

The Italian liner Andrea Doria sank in 245 feet of water when it collided with the Swedish liner Stockholm July 25, 1956.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Sunday, Aug. 19, the 231st day of 1973. There are 134 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1934, Germans voted for Adolf Hitler as a successor to President Paul Von Hindenburg.

On this date—

In 1692, a clergyman and five women convicted of witchcraft were executed in Salem, Mass.

In 1812, the U.S. frigate Constitution-known as "Old Iron-sides"—defeated a British frigate in a battle in the North Atlantic.

In 1914, German troops occupied Brussels, Belgium in World War I.

In 1940, in World War II, Italian forces captured British Somaliland in East Africa.

In 1942, also in World War II, Canadian commandos staged a costly raid on Nazi forces stationed in Dieppe, France.

In 1955, one of the worst floods in the history of the Northeastern United States took 200 lives in Connecticut and nine other states.

Ten years ago: The military chiefs of the U.S. armed forces told a congressional hearing they all supported the recently signed treaty limiting nuclear tests.

Five years ago: President Lyndon B. Johnson said he did not favor any slowdown in the U.S.war effort in Vietnam unless the enemy also de-escalated.

One year ago: The Republican National Convention opened in Miami Beach, Fla.

Multiple Mexico Crash Kills 16

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — At least 16 persons were burned to death and 40 others were seriously injured, including four U.S. residents in a fiery multiple collision near here, authorities said early Saturday.

A Red Cross spokesman identified the injured U.S. residents as Ludwig Bergant, 65, of Chicago, Ill. (no street address immediately available) and his wife Esperanza Bergant, 39, as well as Elvira Hernandez Cantu, 28 of El Paso, Tex., and Rosa Maria Llano also of El Paso.

All four were aboard a passenger bus that collided with a car and a trailer truck on the Monterrey-Monclova highway Friday night, 24 miles from this northern Mexican city south of the U.S. border.

So far only one of the dead has been identified. He was Mario De la Garza, 19, who was driving the passenger, car the Red Cross spokesman faid.

He said De la Garza was a Monclova resident.

After the crash gasoline spilled and ignited setting fire to all three vehicles involved, the spokesmam said.

Most of the dead were passengers on the bus and the bodies were found still in their seats, the spokesman added.

Police said the car swerved onto the opposite lane where the bus and the truck were traveling. The bus was on an interstate run between this city in the state of Nuevo Leon and Monclova in neighboring Coahuila state.

Youth Found Dead

The body of a Scurry County youth who was reported missing last week, was discovered in a field about a mile west of his home about 4:30 p.m. Friday.

Justice of the Peace J.P. Billingsley said Johnny Dale Foster, 16, who lived about four miles northeast of Snyder, died as the result of a gunshot wound. His body was discovered by Fred Overman, according to Sheriff's Authorities, who said the youth's car was parked on a road nearby. They also said a 20 gauge shotgun was discovered near the body. The youth apparently had been shot in the mouth.

Graveside rites were held at 5 p.m. Saturday in Hillside Memorial Garden under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home. Richard Williams, a Church of Christ minister from Odessa, was the officiating minister.

Born Feb. 3, 1957 in Madill, Oklahoma, Johnny had been a resident of Scurry County for the past 11 years.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Foster, Sr. of the home; and two brothers, C.E. Foster, Jr. of Snyder and Gary Foster of Lubbock.

Off-Duty Crew Snaps Storm

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Skylab 2 astronauts interrupted sleep on their day off today to photograph a tropical depression southwest of Cuba.

Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma had planned to sleep late, but shortly before 8 a.m. EDT, Mission Control communicator Story Musgrave wakened them with:

"Sorry to bother you, but there's a tropical depression about 100 miles southwest of Cuba, heading into the Gulf."

Musgrave said the astronauts would pass overhead in a few minutes and asked them to take still pictures.

Mission commander Bean also suggested taking television pictures with a video tape recorder (VTR) for relay to the ground later in the day.

"We'll take both," Bean said. "It might show one of the advantages of man in space if we can get some VTR. The latter will get back to the states today, while the stills won't get there for more than a month."

Bean manned the still camera and Garriott the video as Skylab approached the storm. The station was out of radio contact when the photos were taken, and when contact was regained minutes later, the two apparently were back in bed. Bean had said:

"Sorry, we're going to get that storm pegged, and then Ower and I are going back to sleep in our bunks. We're going to sleep-in this morning."

Although the flight plan read "off duty," the astronauts requested time at the telescope console, and Mission Control scheduled five hours of sun study for later in the day.

Three hours were set aside for Garriott, who is a solar physicist, and one each for Bean and Lousma.

The astronauts also had a few housekeeping chores to attend to but otherwise were free to relax, read, listen to music or just gaze out their picture window at the earth or universe.

They were in the 22nd day of the planned 59-day mission.

The crew asked for the extra viewing time because they were thrown slightly behind schedule by illness and spacecraft problems that plagued them earlier in the flight.

Beef Freeze Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal appelate court upheld the beef price freeze Saturday, rejecting meat industry contentions that the Cost of Living Council was arbitrary, capricious and exceeded its authority.

A three-judge special U.S. Appeals Court panel said it is clear the Pacific Coast Meat Jobbers Association Inc. and the National Association of Meat Purveyers Inc. "had not made the showing necessary to entitle them to a preliminary injunction."

The decision upheld a ruling on Aug. 6 by U.S. District Court Judge Robert F. Peckham in San Francisco.

"For several reasons," the appeals court said, "it was entirely reasonable for the C.L.C. to decide to keep the ceiling on beef longer than on other meats."

Break In Weather Aids Firefighters

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cooling temperatures and diminished winds aided firefighters in the Pacific Northwest today in their fight to contain 19 major fires in six states.

Dick Klade, a spokesman for the Interagency Fire Center in Boise, Idaho, said crews faced new problems in northern California as three fires, believed to have been touched off by arsonists, threatened Yosemite National Forest and Cherry Reservoir — the main power supply for San Francisco.

The Cherry Reservoir fire is in the North Stanislaus National Forest east of Columbia, Calif. Klade said the 2,000-acre fire was spreading through timbered land. He said about $5 million worth of timber was threatened.

The center reported that approximately 40,000 acres have been blackened since the fire situation developed Wednesday. More than 6,000 men were on the fire lines.

Klade said that firefighters were making progress on most of the fires. Five Washington fires, two Idaho and two Montana fires have been contained, he said.

Tinderbox conditions in the drought-plagued region have produced the worst over-all fire situation in 20 years, said John Hafterson, fire service coordinator in Boise.

About 1,000 men have been transported from the Eastern United States to assist in the fire fighting. Another 1,200 have been brought up from New Mexico and Arizona.

Klade said the Forest Service was going to start today using a C130 aircraft to make drops of chemical fire retardant.

Eight major fires were still burning in Montana, two were blazing in Idaho, one major fire was reported in Oregon, and five were reported still smouldering in Washington. Added to the three major California fires, a total of 19 major fires were burning in the region. Klade said that an estimated 100 to 200 fires had been touched off in the area.

He said that all fires in Wyoming had been cleared up.

Residents of La Grande, a community of 10,000 in northeastern Oregon, returned to their homes after outlying districts were evacuated Thursday night.

Some 400 persons had turned out with rakes and shovels to set up emergency fire lines, beating back and containing a 5,400-acre blaze after it had destroyed eight buildings. A city official said damages were estimated to be $100,000 to $150,000 and could go higher.

In north central Oregon, U.S. Forest Service officials said a 7,300-acre fire on the eastern edge of Mt. Hood National Forest was expected to be contained at $264,000 to timber, grazing lands and livestock.

Charles Tandy, a Bureau of Indian Affairs fire coordinator in Boise said cooler temperatures and dying winds in Idaho and Oregon would aid firefighting efforts.

"If the weather stays as it has been, we've got a chance," he said.

More than 7,000 men were on the fire lines, including 400 civilians flown in by Air Force transport planes. In Oregon, Montana and Idaho, the National Guard wus called out to aid in evacuation, set up base camps and provide support services for smokejumpers.

Norwegian Girl Is AFS Student

Ingun Grytli, an 18-year-old girl from Asker, Norway, will be the foreign exchange student in Snyder High School this year. She will be staying in the George Stewart home at 2900 Thirty-second Street while she is here. She should arrive in Snyder Wednesday night. An official welcome for Ingun is scheduled at 5 p.m. Thursday in the city hall.

Ingun's father is manager of the Electricity Supply of Asker, and her mother is a teacher. Ingun is the only daughter in the family, but she has three brothers, one older and two younger.

Ingun has studied English for 8 years; she can also speak both German and French, besides her native Norwegian. Her favorite academic subjects are English and history. She lists her main interests as music, needlework and scouting. Sports she lists as her favorites are horseback riding, foot trips in the mountains, handball and skiing.

Ingun is one of a large number of foreign exchange students who have been selected to stay in Snyder over the years. This program is sponsored by the American Field Service, which is a private organization. Its purposes is to increase understanding among the peoples of the world and to enrich the education of secondary school students. The AFS experience affords an opportunity for students to meet and learn to know people from different countries and cultures, and in turn, to impart to others knowledge and understanding of the students' own countries.

INGUN GRYTLI

Ingun states that she likes all kinds of music. She sings and plays the piano some. She also plays the guitar a little. She also likes to work with her hands, especially knitting, sewing and "other sorts of needlework".

The Stewarts have three children; Karen will be a junior in Snyder High this year; Jeff will be a junior at Texas Tech, where he is majoring in business management; and Charlotte Mitchell, who is married, lives in Ballinger. Mr. Stewart is manager of the National Tank Company here.

Heat, Smoke Hamper Rescue

By TOM JOURNEY
Associated Preus Writer

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (AP) — Intense heat and smoke from a mine fire continued to hamper efforts today to rescue two men believed trapped 1,200 feet underground by a tunnel cave-in at a trouble-plagued central Arizona copper mine.

Six five-man reseue teams equipped with oxygen tanks and heat-resistant clothing alternated in an attempt to enter the mine. They retreated in the face of the heat. A spokesman said the temperatures were becoming gradually less intense and the men would enter the mine as soon as possible.

"Every effort is being made to get to the fallen debris." he added.

The men were cut off late Friday morning when the walls of a tunnel being drilled in the Hecla Mining Co.'s mine collapsed and a fire broke out. The mine is located on the Papago Indian Reservation, 35 miles south of here.

Dick Glover, director of personnel at the mine, said: "Hopefully, the two men are on the other side of the fire." He had said earlier the two men were "presumed alive."

Glover said the men were equipped with face masks to filter dust and smoke but did not have oxygen equipment. But there are oxygen supplies at first aid stations scattered throughout the mine, he said.

Two other miners were injured slightly, and a third fled the area unharmed.

Rescue teams battled intense heat and smoke to reach the trapped men, and one five-man team was driven back by the flames late Friday night. A second rescue team awaited additional oxygen and special heat-resistant clothing from Phoenix before attempting to re-enter the mine.

A fierce fire burning in timber shorings prevented rescue workers from reaching the two men.

"We've gotten 125 feet into the tunnel," said one rescue worker. "It is 110 degrees in there, and we can't see a thing because of the smoke."

One of the trapped men was identified as David Deeder of Casa Grande.

Ranchers' Net Profits Boosted

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Record high cattle prices the past year have brought sudden boosts in net profits to western ranchers, in some cases more than triple from a decade earlier, says the Agriculture Department.

In a report on northwest ranching operations issued Friday, USDA economists aid that in 1972 cattlemen in the northern plains area—including parts of Montana, Wyoming and South Dakota—had net profits average $43,614 per ranch, up from $30,504 per ranch in the same area, the report said.

A similar trend was shown for cattle ranches in the northern Rocky Mountain area comprising parts of Montana and Idaho. Ranches there averaged $45,272 each last year, compared with $30,801 in 1971 and $13,090 a decade ago.

The analysis was based on surveys and other information gathered by the department's Economic Research Service. It was one of a series issued periodically on cattle ranch costs and returns in selected areas of the country.

The report on northwest ranching noted that producers have stepped up cattle output dramatically over the past 20 years, including an increase of two and a half times in the rise of the nation's cow herd.

"Despite this increase, consumer demands for beef and other red meats are pressing hard on supplies and beef prices have mounted," the report said.

As a result, ranchers in the northwest have been getting top prices tor calves which are usually sold to others who either graze the animals or begin feeding them for slaughter.

Last fall, ranchers in the northern plains area received an average of $50.40 per hundredweight for calves, compared with $38.50 in 1971 and the decade-earlier average of $25.90, the report said.

Prices for steers, heifers and cull cows and bulls also rose sharply.

Ranches in the northwest require large investment, the report showed.

In the northern plains region, for example, the average spread was 11,500 acres and carried 492 head of cattle last year. Total ranch capital, including land buildings, livestock, machinery and crops, averaged $501,940 compared with 461,210 in 1971 and the decade-ago average of $293,290.

The average ranch in the northern rocky mountain area was smaller, including 5,900 acres with 435 head of cattle. The cattle herd size indicated ranches there were able to carry more animals per acre than in the plains region.

Ranch capital in the Rockies averaged $367,040 last year compared with $344,060 in 1971 and $234,470 in the early 1960s.

WASHINGTON (Ap) — Current high prices for eggs were explained partly Friday by an agriculture department report showing that six per cent fewer hens were at work on Aug. 1 than a year earlier.

The department said there were 281 million egg-laying hens on farms, compared with 300 million last year. Officials said the rate of "lay" on Aug. 1 averaged 62.1 eggs per 100 hens, down slightly from the 62.4 rate last year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The agriculture department said Friday that horses returning from shows in Canada within 72 hours will no longer have to be examined by veterinarians at ports of entry.

The new rule, effective Aug. 20, requires that horses must return to the United States through the same port of entry from which they left. They must also be accompanied by the same health certificate used to enter Canada.

Rules for horses entering Canada were tightened two years ago during an outbreak of sleeping sickness among horses in an effort to prevent spread of the disease. The disease, Venezuelan equine encephalitis or VEE, was brought under control and emergency measures ended last November.

A similar relaxation of regulations for Canadian horses entering the United States was announced last month

Papadopoulos Takes Oath

ATHENS (AP) — George Papadopoulos, a man who is considered a savior by his supporters and a despot by his opponents, takes the oath of office Sunday as the first president of the Greek republic.

It is little more than a change of titles for the 54-year-old former colonel who has ruled Greece since the April 1967 army coup.

Admirers say his elevation to the presidency is a fitting reward for a man who gave Greece the stability that few democratically elected premiers produced.

Papadopoulos has maintained this stability by six years of martial law and censorship. Most of his opponents have either fallen into line or are too weak to pose a serious threat to his rule.

In addition to his role as head of the government, the former soldier also holds the key portfolios of defense, foreign affairs and public order. And his vice president, Oddyseus Angbelis, 61, is handpicked for the job by Papadopoulos.

The swearing-in ceremonies are scheduled for the capital's Orthodox Cathedral and will be televised live to the nation. The ceremony is considered the final step in removing all vestiges of the 142-year-old monarchy and deposed King Constantine.

Papadopoulos' enemies claim that he designed Greece's July 29 referendum to give a cover of legality to his abolition of the monarchy and creation of a republic with himself as president.

Vaccination Program Set

VIENNA (AP) — The Vienna Health Department will start a vaccination program against German measles during the next school term that will extend to all 13-year-old girls in the Austrian capital. It is hoped this will prevent birth defects caused by the mother's infection with the disease during pregnancy.

As a matter of course, all new mothers in Vienna are inoculated against the virus.

Since last March, all new school teachers have been undergoing examinations to determine their resistance to rubella. The results are entered in their health records.

Hearing Set On Officials

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Owen Cox has scheduled a hearing for Tuesday here on a request for an injunction against Nueces and Duval County officials tring to serve a subpoena on the Mexican consulate in connection with a divorce suit.

Cox set the hearing after issuing a temporary injunction. Officials tried to serve the subpoena at the request of Duval County Judge Archer Parr who is seeking a divorce from his wif Parr filed for divorce in Duval County. His wife filed in Nueces County (Corpus Christi).

William Bonilla, Mrs. Parr's attorney, said that Parr has been attempting to obtain certain documents from the Mexican consulate dealing with the question of whether Mrs. Parr is a resident of Duval County or Nueces County.

The primary business of the Mexican consulate is the issuance of tourists cards for persons wishing to visit Mexico. When asking for a visa the applicant must list his permanent address.

The restraining order against the county officials trying to serve the subpoena was sought by the U.S. Attorney who claimed that Mexican government documents are immune for state process.

Bonilla said he became aware of efforts by Parr to obtain Mexican documents after Parr personally went to the consulate. Mrs. Ernestine Fernandez, the Mexican consul, was not at her office when Parr requested to see the documents, but an employe telephoned her. Mrs. Fernanjez then called Bonilla for legal advice on the request, apparently not knowing he was Mrs. Parr's attorney.

Bonilla said he advised Mrs. Fernandez to call the U.S. State Department. The action resulted in the request filed by the U.S. Attorney's Office.

A motion by Mrs. Parr to disqualify O. P. Carrillo, judge of the 229th District Court, is on file in Duval County. In the motion, she claims her husband "exercise great political control over officials in such county including the judiciary. . ."

Carrillo has asked another judge to hear Mrs. Parr's motion.

Language Courses At WTC

The foreign language department of Western Texas College will offer conversational courses from 6:30-9:30 p.m. this fall in Spanish, German, Russian and French.

The weekly schedule is as follows: Monday evening--Beginning Spanish and Russian; Tuesday evening - German and French; Thursday evening - Advanced Spanish.

Two levels of Spanish will be taught. The advanced Spanish course is for students who have had previous experience in Spanish. The beginning Spanish course is designed for those who have had no formal exposure to the language.

Conversational German will feature the acclaimed T.V. instructional film series "Guten Tag." The class will be opened periodically to the public in order that interested individuals may also view and discuss the films.

Last fall students commuted from several area towns for the conversational classes, and additional classes have been added this fall because of popular demand. Anyone with questions about the courses should call or write the foreign language department at Western Texas College. The phone number is 573-8511.

Charles M. Cashion has been employed as instructor in electromechanical technology at Western Texas College, as announced by Gene Robertson, Dean of Occupational-Technical Education.

Cashion, an honor student, graduated from the University of Texas at Arlington in 1966 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Electrical Engineering. He was awarded a Master of Science degree in Electric Engineer from the UofT in Austin in 1968. He attended the first year of graduate school on a National Science Foundation Fellowship and also worked as a teaching assistant in Fortran programming and first and second semester circuit analysis.

Prior to accepting the position at WTC, Cashion was employed as an electrical design engineer with Narco Bio-Systems in Houston, where he was responsible for the design of instruments capable of monitoring biological phenomena.

He has also been employed as a stabilization and controls engineer for both LTV Electrosystems, in Dallas, and Bell Helicopter in Fort Worth. At LTV he was involved in research in the areas of new stability and guidance systems as pertained to missile trajectory perturbation for a variety of paremeters. At Bell Helicopter, he was responsible for the analysis and design of stabilization and controls systems for gun turrets, camera turrets, autopilots and convertiplanes.

Cashion's master's thesis was entitled "Suboptimal Synthesis." He coauthoried a paper "Go, No'Go Logic Snythesis" in November 1968 for a symposium on proceedings of automatic support systems.

Cashion is married and has two children. He and his wife are members of the Baptist church.

Receives Injuries In Auto Mishap

Tim Duke, 21, Clairemont Route, Snyder, sustained possible head and back injuries in a one-car mishap on U.S. 84 about 12 miles southeast of Snyder at 12:30 a.m. Saturday.

She was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by investigating Highway Patrolmen.

They said she was a passenger in a 1972 Model Buick driven by Greg Burwick of Sweetwater. He was not injured. Officers said Burwick apparently lost control of his car and it ran off the roadway. There was considerable damage to the car.

Tower Discusses Project Sanguine

LLANO, Tex. (AP) — Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., described Wisconsin senators as "anti-military" in his plea to Hill Country residents not to be too hasty in judging a proposed Navy underground communications system.

"Project Sanguine" was to be built in Wisconsin, but residents there fought the project, and the Navy now wants to build it in a 1,250 square mile area in seven Central Texas counties.

"I think that the Navy figured it this way," Tower said, "that there is a difference in the mentality and the attitude of the people of Wisconsin and the people of Texas ... Texans are more intensely patriotic and more pro-military ... and more convinced that the United States has to be at least as strong as the Soviet Union."

Tower, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee and ranking Republican on the Military Construction Subcommittee, talked with some 150 residents at the courthouse Friday.

Most were members of a new committee to stop construction of the communications system.

He asked the residents to postpone their decision to block the project "until all the facts were in." But he said he was not "cemented" to the project being in Texas.

As for the switch from Wisconsin, Tower said, "It's a matter of substantial and active opposition of the members of Congress in that state who would perhaps filibuster to clog the way of authorization of appropriations tor the project." He also described the senators as "anti-military."

Tower added that it is important to start construction now "because our current arms limitation agreements with Russia expire in about four years and we ought to be in a strong bargaining position to bargain with them on further arms limitation."

The communications hookup has been described as one which would enable the United States to launch a full counter-attack against outside enemies.

Local residents feel that blasting for the project would damage property, and several have complained the system would make the area a prime target tor an enemy.

"Asking these people to withhold their opposition to this project now is tantamount to asking the Llano River to stop running," said Robert E. Lea, a Mason lawyer and chairman of the citizens group to stop Sanguine.

The audience applauded.

Canada Shipping More Beef

CHICAGO (AP) — A spokesman for the Canadian government says beef shipments from Canada to the United States jumped more than 50 per cent during the first week of August over the previous week.

Cara Osler, information officer at the Canadian consulate, said on Friday that 1,618,176 pounds of beef were shipped into the United States the week ending Aug. 3 and slightly more than one million pounds were received in the week ending July 27.

Larry Campbell of the Meat Packers Council of Canada, who drew up the figures in Toronto, said "a beef embargo at this point would probably not be undertaken by the Canadian government," even though the beef shipments to the United States are "causing the Canadians to suffer because they are driving up the price of Canadian beef."

Charities—those that get sometimes give

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: What should I do about all the begging letters that have become so numerous they barely fit into my mailbox? I can't possibly give to all of them, but I don't want to ignore the ones that deserve it.

Some of these letters are so pathetic it hurts me to throw them away unanswered, but I've heard that some charities pay huge amounts to professional fund-raising agencies, and I prefer giving to charities whose money goes directly to those they help, rather than to professional fund raisers.

How does a person know which causes are legitimate and which are not? DELUGED AND BEWILDERED

DEAR DELUGED: Don't assume that all charities that engage professional fund-raisers are not legitimate. It takes money to raise money. However, all legitimate charities will provide, on request, a financial statement showing how much is spent for what. Request these statements, and make your selections.

Some communities have "Community Fund" or "United Giving" which includes many legitimate charities who share your contribution, but many deserving organizations prefer to run their own campaigns.

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend has a habit that absolutely drives me up a wall.

Whenever he takes me out, he says: "Excuse me, I have to go call my brother [or a friend—or a co-worker]."

Then he leaves me sitting alone for 20 minutes! I suppose he is on the phone, but why does he have to park me at a table in a bar somewhere and then make these calls?

If you think I am out of line for being furious with him when he does this, let me know. If you think he's out of line, please say so. I sometimes wonder if he isn't trying to line up a date with somebody for later. SUSIE

DEAR SUSIE: Occasionally one must make a phone call in the course of an evening, but frequent 20-minute calls are suspicious. And if you wonder if he's trying to line up a late date, don't waste any more time on a clown with telephonitis.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 30, widowed, and has a 6-year-old child. She is well-educated, has a responsible job, and makes a good salary. But, Abby, her values are certainly misplaced, and we cannot watch our grandson raised in such an environment!

Mainly, she is a terrible housekeeper. You can't imagine all the clutter. She would rather read, hike, plant flowers, write poetry, or do other useless things. Her excuse? When choosing what's important to her, housekeeping is at the bottom of the list!

She could afford to pay a housekeeper if she didn't waste money on ballet lessons and vacations.

She never misses an art exhibit, and she drags the child with her. Abby, what can a 6-year-old learn from an art exhibit?

She refuses to see a psychiatrist. The law in this state allows grandparents to assume custody of a grandchild with unrealistic parents. What is your recommendation? AT WITS' END

DEAR AT: I recommend that you keep hands off your widowed daughter and her child. And if her lifestyle continues to bug you, a psychiatrist will do YOU more good than it will your daughter.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HENRY: Money IS important. But only because it enables you to buy the things that are more important than money.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Bridge Claims 492nd Victim

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tolling church bells intended to dramatize the 491 known suicides from the Golden Gate Bridge became a requiem for the span's latest victim, the son of Maryland's lieutenant governor.

Authorities said Pierre Boal Lee, 27, son of Lt. Gov. Blair Lee III, became the bridge's 492nd known suicide Friday when he plunged 260 feet onto jagged rocks near the north tower.

Lee had been stopped by two California Highway Patrolmen suspicious of his behavior, and they were escorting him to their patrol car when he broke away and jumped. "I tried to grab him, but I just touched air. He was gone," said officer Ray DeMartini.

Less than two hours later, dozens of churches throughout the San Francisco Bay area began tolling their bells in a ceremony planned to call attention to the suicide problem on the bridge. Since it opened in 1937, the 1.6 mile bridge has claimed more victims than any other in the United States.

The bells were timed to coincide with a meeting of bridge directors to consider erecting an eight-foot-high barrier made of vertical bars on the single-span suspension bridge.

Directors, who met in a windowless building at the toll plaza where they could not hear the bells, voted four to two to raise the priority of the project from desirable to necessary but stopped short of labeling it urgent.

Battle On Oil Field Recessed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The battle between major oil companies over a proposal to split the East Texas oil field has been recessed until Tuesday morning.

Clint Small Jr., representing General American Oil Co., told three Railroad Commission hearing examiners his firm would be able to proceed with its case immediately after Exxon Corp. finishes its case if a long weekend break was declared.

At Friday's session, R. L. Hocker of Tulsa, Okla., representing Amarada-Hess Oil Co., said his company supports the division proposal, and it also favors increasing the oil production allowable to 100 per cent in each half.

The present production allowable is 86 per cent of potential. If it is increased to 100 per cent, it will mean tens of millions of dollars to some of the large oil companies with leases in the field.

Exxon opposes the division proposal because most of its leases are in the lower-pressure southern half of the field. Exyon wants the field to remain one unit, with a 100 per cent allowable.

Cities Service, General American and 32 independents support the division and favor a 100 per cent factor for the northern half. Their position is that the higher-pressure northern half can produce at the maximum without creating waste.

Exxon says the same is true of the southern half, but Exxon obviously feels it will be harder to persuade the commission to increase the allowable in the southern half if it is separated from the northern half.

Exxon has introduced 92 exhibits at the hearing. It plans to introduce at least 30 more next week.

Attorneys for Cities Service, General American, the independents and perhaps American Oil Co. will cross-examine Exxon's witnesses at the conclusion of Exxon's presentation.

The hearing is expected to last another two weeks or more, after which the examiners will study the exhibits and make a report to the commission.

Girl Mauled By Alligator

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — "I grabbed her hair, but it kept pulling me down too," said the father of a 16-year-old girl who died after being mauled by an alligator as she was swimming.

A state wildlife official said that, if an autopsy confirms that the alligator killed the girl, it would be the first documented case in Florida.

Bert Russell Holmes said he and his daughter, Sharon Elaine, were swimming in a lake at Oscar Sherer State Park south of Sarasota on Florida's lower Gulf Coast during a family outing Thursday.

He said his daughter was in the middle of the five-acre lake and he was standing in shallow water when she suddenly yelled for help.

"She screamed 'Daddy' like something had got a hold of her," said Holmes. "I turned around and looked, but Sharon wasn't even in sight.

"Then I saw her hand come up for just a moment," Holmes said. He said he swam to where he had seen the hand flash on the surface and after some searching managed to grab her hip-length blond hair but couldn't pull her to the surface.

"I dove again and again," said Holmes.

Several hours later, after divers had searched the lake, the mauled body of Miss Holmes was found on the lake's bank. It was guarded by a 10-foot alligator which crawled into the water as officers approached.

"We killed the alligator Friday morning and found a hand and an elbow in its stomach," Deputy Eddie Palmer said

Gas Ceilings To Vary By Dealers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many gasoline retailers who hiked prices during the gasoline shortage may have to roll them back from one to three cents a gallon on Sept. 1, the Cost of Living Council says.

However, council spokesmen also said the Phase 4 gasoline price ceilings may result in higher prices at other gasoline pumps. The ceilings will vary from dealer to dealer.

The new guidelines, released by the council Friday, provide that the ceiling price on gasoline to take effect Sept. 1 will be the retailer's average cost of purchasing gasoline on Aug. 1 increased by the same markup he charged last Jan. 10.

The markup is the amount above cost that the retailer charges for his product.

William N. Walker, attorney for the council, said restricting dealers to their Jan. 10 markups will eliminate many of the price increases intended to take advantage of the spring and summer gasoline shortage.

The current price freeze will be lifted from oil and most other petroleum products on Monday, but is being extended until Sept. 1 on gasoline to give retailers time to compute the price ceilings.

In other economic developments:

—The government announced Friday that inflation during the April-June quarter reflected an annual rate of 7.3 per cent-up from the 6.8 per cent of the first quarter—while the nation's economic growth slowed to 2.4 per cent, compared with the 8.7 per cent growth rate for the first quarter.

John A. Love, President Nixon's top energy adviser, urged a group of oilmen Friday to shift refinery output away from gasoline and to more heating oil, warning that the nation faces a potentially serious heating oil shortage this winter.

Two major tire manufacturers, Goodyear and B.F. Goodrich, announced plans to increase tire prices in 30 days, by 5.9 per cent and 4.4 per cent, respectively.

Nixon In Florida

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — Preparing to step up the pace of his public appearances, President Nixon is spending the weekend in sunny Florida resting and writing a major speech.

An indication of the importance he attaches to his address Monday to the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention in New Orleans is the presence of one of his top speechwriters, Patrick J. Buchanan, who is helping with the final draft.

The President, who had been the Maryland mountains, decided to come to Florida instead after a weather forecast of a rainy weekend in the Washington area. He will fly to New Orleans Monday morning and after his speech to 4,500 VFW convention delegates will head on to his San Clemente, Calif., home where he will stay until after Labor Day.

While in California, Nixon will hold a news conference his first in more than five months. Indications are he will make other public appearances to underscore the desire expressed in his Watergate speech Wednesday night to "get on with the urgent business of the nation."

There's a far better way to get water than with a divining rod or witching wand. Low-cost electricity from the Midwest Electric Cooperative produces water on demand. An electric pump or a water corporation can turn the trick for home use, for industry or irrigation.

Tigers Begin Football Drills Monday

With high hopes of being strong contenders for the District 4-AAAA football crown, Snyder's Tigers begin their football drills at 7 o'clock Monday morning.

Maurice (Mo) Hodges, head football coach and athletic director, is expecting in excess of 100 candidates for the varsity, junior varsity and sophomore varsity football teams. The high school again will field three teams.

The Tigers were chosen by the district coaches to come in second this season behind the perennially-tough Monterey Plainsmen.

"We've got a chance to win it and will do everything that we can to do so," declared Hodges.

Last season was an uphill fight all the way for the Tigers. It was their first year in the Class AAAA district and they finished with a 2-8 record. However, with a year of seasoning and more experience than last year they should finish higher this season.

"We were as green as gourds last year with only one returning starter," recalled Coach Hodges.

This time around the Tigers will be going into action with seven offensive and seven defensive regulars back in the fold.

Returning defensive starters include ends Wilbert Thompson, 155, and David Yearwood, 165, both seniors; tackles Grant Knipe, 240, and Mickey Gonzales, 230, both seniors; middle guard Willie Smith, 220, senior; right linebacker Welton Cobb, 190, junior; and, rover John Boren, 165, senior.

Cobb and Willie Smith saw action both ways last year. Cobb was a starting fullback as a sophomore. Last spring he won the district 100 yard dash in 9.6 seconds and will give the Tigers an all-the-way threat. Smith doubles as a quick guard on offense.

Most of the regulars coming back have good size. Other offensive starters returning are Jerry Webb, 195, senior, quick guard; Robert Braziel, 190, senior, strong tackle; Tim Jones, 150, senior, quarterback; Ralph Lewis, 180, senior, halfback; Richard Gorman, 185, senior, fullback; and, Hubert Crayton, 170, senior, tailback.

Crayton also has good speed and is another break-away threat. Gorman has been switched to quarterback where he will compete with Tim Jones and Widgeon Emerson, a 150-pound senior, for the starting job.

The Tiger coaching staff was generally well-pleased with spring training, feeling that much was accomplished. They went into the spring drills thinking that the defensive secondary was going to be a weak spot since everyone except Boren had graduated. However, some newcomers displayed some real ability and now Coach Hodges feels the defensive secondary could be a strong point.

In all, the Tigers have 16 lettermen returning. Other numeral winners include Kerry Smith, 150, senior, halfback; Tommy Welch, 215 senior, fullback; V.T. Roberson, 160, senior split end; and Nicky Neves, 160, senior, guard.

Two transfer students could be a big help this year—Jerry Fore, 170, strong end, who came here from Odessa; and Doak Witherspoon, 195, senior, strong end. Both saw action on the JV last season.

Two brothers, David Mayes, 160, junior halfback, and Buddy Mayes, 160, senior, defensive back, both could make their presence felt. David was on the soph team and Buddy competed with the JV last year.

Other lads who could be a big help this year are Dennis Young, 160, junior, back; Roy Lee Carter, 165, junior split end and defensive back; and, Steve Grimmett, 160, senior, defensive back.

Richard Gorman also saw some action last year at rover and could help in the defensive secondary. He, Boren, Kerry Smith, Buddy Mayes, Dennis Young, Roy Lee Carter and Steve Grimmett all looked good in the defensive secondary in spring drills.

"They'll get tested early," pointed out Coach Hodges. "We play some good passing teams. We're hoping they can be strong without the experience. They have good natural ability."

Of course, there are several other newcomers who could break into the lineup. The coaches are going to take a close look at all of the candidates.

The first four days of drills will be in shorts. The team dons pads Friday, Aug. 24, for the first time. That will also be the picture day as local and area photographs will gather to snap the team.

The Tigers again will operate from a multiple set T offense and an Oklahoma five defense.

Only one scrimmage has been scheduled this year, The Tigers will have a scrimmage with Midland High at 7 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31, in Tiger Stadium.

The Tiger's first game is here Sept. 7 against Lubbock Dunbar. The schedule includes 10 games, five at home and five away. District foes include Lubbock High, Lubbock Coronado, Lubbock Monterey, Hereford and Plainview.

Evert, Richey In Semifinals

By MIKE HARRIS
Associated Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — This year's $90,000 U.S. Clay Court Open tennis tournament could well become known as the "Starless Open."

Saturday'ssemifinalroundfeatured some of the net sport's best unknowns or lesser stars, with only Chris Evert and Cliff Richey really among the headliners in U.S. tennis.

Miss Evert, the 18-year-old defending champion from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., was one of only two seeded players in the semifinals. She was scheduled to play 1970 Clay Court champion and No. 7 seed Linda Tuero of New Orleans.

The "unknowns" on the ladies side—Veronica Burton and Lindsey Beaven, both of England—met in the other semifinal match.

Miss Evert easily got past Pat Pretorius of South Africa in the quarterfinals Friday, 6-2, 61. Miss Tuero surprised No. 3 seed Ilana Kloss of South Africa, 3-6, 7-6, 6-4, coming back from a 5-3 deficit in the second set.

Miss Burton, who knocked off No. 5 seed Patti Hogan of La Jolla, Calif., in the first round, slipped past No. 4 seed Jeanne Everet 6-3, 6-3. And Miss Beaven dumped Janet Hass of Miami Beach. Fla., 4-6, 6-0, 6-3.

No. 5 seed Richey, from Sarasota, Fla., made it to the semifinals, as did the men's top seed, Manuel Orantes of Spain. Richey, one of the world's top ranked performers, slipped past upstart Brian Gottfried of Ft. Lauderdale, 6-2, 2-6, 6-3, in Friday's most exciting match.

Wins National Putting Crown

TULFA, Okla. (AP) — Daryl Freeman of Bristol, Tenn., won $2,500 and the national putting championship Friday.

Freeman posted a 95-under par total of 193.

The play Friday ended the 1973 tournament competition, which took five months and was played in several states.

Tech Has Good Passing Game, Strong Runners

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Texas Tech Coach Jim Carlen couldn't resist talking about the upcoming Southwest Conference football season even in the middle of his backswing during a round of golf in late June.

"The offensive lines are the key to the year and I just hope ours ripens fast," said Carlen as he pummeled a drive 275 yards into the rough. "We've only got two returning starters, guard Dennis Allen and tackle Tom Furgerson.

"Texas again has the best incoming offensive line in the league. Oh, I wish we could play them later in the year."

The Red Raiders are deemed the most serious threat to Texas' sixth consecutive SWC title but must play the Longhorns in Austin Sept. 29.

Many SWC experts believe the Red Raiders have the talent to gun down Texas in September.

All nine receivers who caught passes for Tech return along with quarterback Joe Barnes. Among the receivers is tight end Andre Tillman, a 6-foot-5, 230-pound senior.

"If there's a better tight end in the country I don't know about him," said Carlen, who seldom goes overboard on a player.

To go with Tech's Grade A passing game is an exceptional corps of big, fast backs headed by fleet George Smith, Cliff Hoskins, James Mosley, John Garner and Rufus Myers.

The Red Raiders will operate from the "I" formation with an option series.

Pushing Barnes for the top job will be Jimmy Carmichael and sophomore flash Tommy Duniven. There's always the possibility Carlen will redshirt Duniven, who played so well for the Picadors last fall.

On defense, the Red Raiders will be blessed with defensive tackle Ecomet Burley, the most valuable lineman in the Sun Bowl, and noseguard David Knaus, who played exceptionally well last season as a backup to All-American Donald Rives.

The defensive secondary returns as a group headed by left cornerback Kenneth. Wallace and strong safety Danny Willis.

Tech should have no problems in the kicking department with Don Grimes back. Grimes hit 12 of 18 field goal attempts and boomed 34 straight extra points.

Tech has a favorable non-conference schedule, meeting relatively weak Utah, New Mexico and Arizona. However, the Red Raiders have a toughie in Oklahoma State Oct. 6 at Stillwater.

"It will be a race against time for us," Carlen said. "If can get the offensive line settled down in the first two games (Utah and New Mexico) then we could be ready for Texas."

"Beat Texas" has been the SWC battle cry for years. Tech has the muscle to give the Longhorns a run for it.

Mexican Birds Must Be Reported

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Game birds killed in Mexico by Texans must be reported within 30 days, the Parks and Wildlife Commission voted Friday. One year was the old time limit.

The commission adopted state policy in accord with a law enacted by the 1973 legislature on imports from Mexico. The law also provides for a $1 importation permit for each crossing.

The new policy states that migratory game birds killed in Mexico must be in compliance with regulations of the U.S. Department of Interior, fish and wildlife, division. The policy states that the number of wild game birds killed must not exceed the number permitted by Mexican laws and regulations.

Live game birds may be brought back from Mexico only under a special permit, and a special permit also is required to import "protected" wildlife which—other than game birds—is indigenous to Texas.

Jockey Ron Turcotte thinks Riva Ridge has a longer stride than Secretariat. He won the Kentucky Derby riding both colts.

SMU Puts Hopes On Keith Bobo

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Dave Smith inherited a treasure chest of talent when he left Oklahoma State to come to Souther Methodist University but nowhere to be found was an experienced Wishbone-T quarterback.

Smith must find someone to turn the offensive crank this year before the treasure chest can be opened.

Smith believes senior Keith Bobo, who was so effective in departed Coach Hayden Fry's wide open offense last year, will come through despite a dismal spring training.

"I think it is important that Keith Bobo and our entire football team knows that Keith Bobo is going to be our quarterback," Smith says. "It's important for a lot of reasons—the big reason is that the team can grow with his leadership and I think he has ability to be a leader in a winning way for us.

"Although Keith didn't perform well in game type scrimmages we believe in him ... We believe he has ability to execute our offense."

Kenny Harrison, SMU's All-SWC wide receiver, could be Smith's quarterback sleeper although the slippery Beaumont product was injured during a spring training quarterback experiment.

Smith says of the talented Harrison "I don't think working him at quarterback will take away much from using him at wide receiver.

"There will not only be situations but series within our games when we will want him to play quarterback. He's got a good, quick arm, quick speed and balance. He is very intelligent. He just needs work and we plan to give it to him early next fall. He COULD be our No. 1 quarterback if it works out that way."

At running back it's no problem for the Mustangs with sophomore sensation Wayne Morris and senior Alvin Maxon, who has gained over 1,000 yards in each of the last two seasons.

SMU has an adequate offensive line behind veteran tackle Kelly Arnold, guard Bill Thomas, center Mike Smith and tight end Oscar Roan.

Defensively, the Mustangs are hurting in the secondary with only strong safety Andy Duvall returning, with such stellar players as Robert Popelka and Kris Silverthorn departing.

Louie Kelcher is the cowbell of the Mustang defense. The 6-foot-4, 260-pound defensive tackle is a sure-fire All-America candidate.

"He's something," says Smith. "I guess he's the best defensive lineman I've been around."

Steve Morton and Ed Johnson are top defensive ends and Ted Thompson is a crack returning linebacker.

Smith says "We could have a very good team, but we're lacking in overall depth."

The Mustangs won't be particularly hard-pressed in nonconference games, playing Santa Clara, Oregon State, Virginia Tech and Missouri. Only Missouri appears in SMU's class.

Smith, at least, is starting out with something less than a bare breadbox. In fact, there could be enough talent on hand to give SMU its first SWC title since 1966.

Land Use Regs Needed

Austin, Tex. (AP) — A plea for help in controlling outdoor shooting in subdivisions led Parks and Wildlife commission Bob Burleson to comment Friday that if land-use regulations are not adopted, Texas' Hill Country "will not be fit to live in in 15 years."

Rep. Bennie Bock II, D-New Braunfels, told of complaints from Comal County residents that lives were being endangered by hunting in subdivisions which are cropping up in the rapidly growing area.

"Bullets don't stop at property lines," Bock said, "and in some of the subdivisions it is difficult to get up in the morning without being (accidentally) shot at."

The commission was told that 146 subdivisions have been created in Comal County, many since the popular Canyon reservoir was built in 1966.

Commissioner Pearce Johnson said that a state attorney general's opinion in connection with Canadian riverbed hunting prohibited the commission from regulating the taking of wildlife "on the basis of safety."

He said the only basis the commission can use is the protection of the wildlife population—not the hunter, or others.

Burleson, of Temple, said the Comal County problem was "just the tip of the iceberg—we must have a land-use program to keep the land from being chopped up" to keep up with the "people explosions."

Okie Schoolboys Whip Texas All-Stars 37-27

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — Texas schoolboy football—supposedly the best in the nation—received a large black eye Friday night from a talented crop of Oklahomans led by a 6-foot-3 quarterback with all the characteristics of a potential Joe Namath.

Oklahoma whipped Texas 37-27 in the 31st annual Oil Bowl classic, a test of graduated senior high school football muscle between the Red River rivals.

Some may argue that Texas didn't field its best team—onlv eight players who participated in the North—South Texas High School Coaches Association game were on hand.

However, the 13,500 witnesses in Coyote Stadium left wondering if Texas' best could have put chains on Putnam City quarterback Pat Ryan, who sadly for Sooner fans is headed for the University of Tennessee.

The poised Ryan, who has a snap release reminiscent of New York quarterback Namath, rifled touchdown strikes of 65 and 36 yards and sneaked across from a yard out for a third touchdown.

Ryan triggered a three-touchdown third quarter landslide by the Sooners, who overcame a 7-6 halftime deficit after Texas Joe Bizzell of Odessa Permian had dashed 57 yards for a touchdown on a punt return just 39 seconds before the gun.

Oklahoma wasn't taking any chances after losing three straight games in the series which Texas now leads 21-6-1. The Oklahomans showed up with 22 players who participated in their All-Star game.

Ryan connected on seven of 12 passes for 191 yards, a record for Oklahoma in the long series. The Sooner point total also was a record.

Bizzell, who also caught a 54-yard scoring pass from Pat Lyons of Midland Lee, was the victim on the 65-yarder. Carl Stremme of Tulsa Hale, slipped behind Bizzell and Ryan nailed his receiver perfectly.

Ryan's other touchdown shot was mailed to Putnam City teammate Sam Lisle.

The other Oklahoma touchdown came on a 10-yard run by Joe McReynolds of Purcell and two runs of one yard each by David Jameu of Pauls Valley.

James Oliphant of Huntsville bulldozed six yards and Ivey Suber of Fort Worth Wyatt bolted two yards for the other Texan tallies.

Chez Evans of Seminole, Okla., was voted the Most Valuable Lineman and Ryan was the Most Valuable Back.

David Clyde Stars For Texas Rangers Again

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — In the dark days of August, the Texas Rangers continued to find a source of fullfillment in their sweet bird of youth, David Clyde.

The 18-year-old lefthander, less than three months after his graduation from Houston's Westchester High School, put the skids on an eight-game Texas Ranger losing streak here Friday night.

Clyde chilled the New York Yankees with a seven-inning performance which yielded seven hits but only one run as the Rangers rolled to an 8-1 win.

"Somebody told me that I was nine years old the last time the Yankees won a pennant," remarked Clyde, who was given his customary trip to the clubhouse by Manager Whitey Herzog after spending his allotment of 120 pitches.

It was Clyde's first career performance against New York. "Naturally it was a big thrill to beat the Yankees," said Clyde, who evened his record at 4-4.

"Funny thing, I was always against the Yankees when I was a kid. I guess it's a matter of always rooting for the underdog."

Clyde was making his first start in a week, after Herzog swapped his spot in the Ranger pitching rotation with Jim Bibby.

"I think the rest did my arm good," Clyde acknowledged. "However, the extended layoff may have done something to my rhythm. I felt a little offbalance in the early innings, but really felt strong in the sixth and the seventh. That's when I did my best pitching."

Shortstop Gene Michael knocked in the only Yankee run with a two-out single to right in the second inning. The Rangers rallied with three runs in the fifth, keyed around a throwing error by third-baseman Craig Nettles.

The Rangers sealed all doubt in the eighth on a two-run homer by second baseman Dave Nelson, giving the Rangers' notoriously lightweight attack eight home runs in their last eight games.

"We got key hits and made good fundamental plays," said Clyde. "It was little lapses in fundamentals that's been the cause of that losing streak."

"The kid had good stuff," acknowledged Ranger catcher Rich Billings. "He was a little erratic at times in the early innings. His mind seemed to wander a little, but there's nobody on this team who hasn't been guilty of that from time to time."

The Yankees offered praise for Clyde in their first exposure to the young phoenom.

"He has amazing poise for an 18-year-old," said Yankee pitching coach Jim Turner, who is 52 years older than Clyde. "He was having some trouble getting his breaking stuff over tonight, but when things would get tight for him, he'd just bow his neck and come in there that much harder. It was impressive."

Split Seasons Set For Ducks

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Split seasons for ducks, coots, geese and brant were approved again Friday by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission.

The commission also raised the daily bag limit of geese and brant, from last year's four-bird limit to five birds.

The divided seasons for ducks and coots, for the second straight year, will be:

Oct. 25 to Nov. 25 and Dec. 8 to Jan. 20—for the High Plains unit west of a line from the international bridge at Del Rio, north to San Angelo, Abilene, Albany, Vernon and the state line in Wilbarger County.

Nov. 10 to 25 and Dec. 8 to Jan. 20—Other portions of the state.

A point system will be in effect for determining bag and possession limits but the changes from last year.

The 100-point ducks will be canvasbacks and redheads, except the season is closed om the two species in Aransas, Brazoria, Calhoun, Cameron, Chambers, Galveston, Harris, Jackson, Jefferson, Kenedy, Kleberg, Matagorda, Nueces, Refugio, San Patricio and Willacy County.

The 70-point ducks will be Mallard hens, wood ducks and hooded merganser s.

Ten-point ducks will be bluewinged teal, cinnamon teal, widgeons, scaups and mergansers except hooded.

The 20-point ducks will be all other open species of ducks.

The daily bag limit will be reached when the point value of any bird reaches or exceeds 100 points. Possession limit is the maximum number of birds that could have legally been taken in two days.

Bag limit on coots is 15 and possession 30.

The bag limit on geese is five with certain restrictions. East of U.S. 81 which runs from Laredo to San Antonio, Austin, Waco and Dallas, the daily bag may not include more than one Ross' goose and in the alternative not more than one Canada or one white-fronted goose.

West of U.S. 81 the daily bag may include not more than one Ross' goose, and in the alternative. one white-fronted and one Canada goose, or two Canada geese.

For sandbill cranes the season will be open:

Oct. 27-Jan. 27 for the area west of a line running from the international bridge at Del Rio north to San Angelo, northwest to Dumas and to the state line in Dallas county.

Dec. 1-Jan. 27 for the area west of a line from San Angelo to Abilene to Albany, Vernon and to the state line in Wilbarger County; and for the area east of a line from San Angelo to Dumas and to the state line in Dallam County.

Daily bag limit of three and possession limit of six.

Offenhauser Dies At 85

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of the most famous names in automobile racing history, Fred Offenhauser, is dead at the age of 85.

Offenhauser, whose name is on the racing engine that has won the Indianapolis 500 race 28 times in the last 40 years, died in his sleep at his home Friday.

Starting in 1934 the four-cylinder powerplant won the Indy 500 mile race every time it was run, with just eight exceptions. It powered Gordon Johncock to victory this last May.

The original builder of the engine, Harry Miller, went out of business in 1933 and Offenhauser, his plant superintendent, bought the designs and reorganized the company.

Offenhauser Engineering was sold to Louie Meyer and Dale Drake in 1964 when Offenhauser retired.

His wife Ethel passed away several years ago after more than 50 years of marriage. There were no children but two brothers and three sisters survive Offenhauser, who was a native of Los Angeles.

Services are scheduled Monday at Inglewood Park Cemetery.

Nastase-Smith Match Delayed

ALAMO, Calif. (AP) — The first singles match of the year between Stan Smith and Ilie Nastase, by the luck of the draw, will come up at the very Finals between the United States and Romania.

"It doesn't make any difference. I'll have to play him sooner or later," said Nastase before today's opening matches in the three-day competition on Round Hill Country Club's cement courts.

But the Romanian star, ranked second among the world's tennis players, admitted the meeting with No. 1 ranked Smith on Monday may very well be anticlimactic.

Smith was heavily favored to beat 24-year-old Marty Riessen today's opening singles match, and Nastase was expected to beat 31-year-old Marty Riessen in today's other match.

But if Smith and Erik van Dillen beat Nastase and Ionel Sartein in Sunday's doubles match, Riessen could assure the U.S. team of victory by beating the lightly regarded Ovici in Monday's first singles match.

The American team, by winning here, would be in position to claim a sixth straight Davis Cup title at Cleveland in December, when the final round opponent will be Australia or Czechoslovakia.

Second baseman Felix Millan brought a .281 career batting average to his new employers, the New York Mets. He was obtained from Atlanta last Nov. 1.

Owls Begins Drills

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Rice Owls officially open the 1973 Southwest Conference football campaign Monday with the start of the football training.

Rice Coach Al Conover will greet seven offensive starters and five defensive starters off last season's unit. The Owls open Sept. 15 against the University of Houston.

Arkansas, which faces the task of opening with national champion Southern California, get underway Tuesday.

Texas A&M, Baylor, Houston, Southern Methodist and Texas Tech open training Thursday while Texas and Texas Christian wait until Aug. 27.

Baylor opens at Waco Sept. 15 against Oklahoma, Southern Methodist under new Coach Dave Smith hosts Santa Clara; The Texas Aggies host Wichita State, Arkansas is at Southern Cal, and Texas Tech hosts Utah.

Texas doesn't open until Sept. 21 when the defending SWC champion Longhorns travel to Miami.

TCU is the last SWC club to play, hosting Texas-Arlington on Sept. 22.

The SWC posted a 21-11-1 intersectional slate last year—the best won-loss percentage in nine seasons.

The aggregate 1972 record of the 29 schools meeting SWC teams this fall is 187-157-6.

Remembers Clemente

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jose Pagan of the Philadelphia Phillies and Roberto Clemente were the closest of friends when Pagan played seven seasons with the Pittsburgh Pirates. "Roberto was the most misunderstood man in baseball," says Pagan, who starred for the Pirates in their 1971 World Series victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

"From 1960 on he was hitting well above .300 and nobody seemed to give him the credit due him. He was the greatest person I ever knew and that goes for on the field and off the field. He had great talent."

It might be recalled that Pagan played five years with Willie Mays on the San Francisco Giants, 1960-64.

Single Shaft Sulkies Win

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — The U.S. Trotting Association reports that standardbreds pulling single shaft sulkies are winning 80 per cent of the races held at Windsor Raceway in Ottawa. On July 22, all ten Windsor winners were equipped with Joe King's single-shaft bikes.

Plan More Wildlife Info

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Parks and Wildlife Commission voted Friday to increase from five to 11 its information and education offices across the state.

The increase was in the overall parks and wildlife budget adopted by the commission.

Currently there are information and education offices in Sarf Angelo, Waco, Tyler, LaPorte and Rockport. Under the new plan, Waco and San Angelo will be dropped and Houston will become the regional headquarters in Hargis County, instead of LaPorte. Tyler and Rockport offices will be retained.

The other office locations will be at Lubbock, Wichita Falls, Dallas, Beaumont, Brownsville, San Antonio, El Paso and Austin.

The Dallas office will serve the most people—2,535,499 and the Lubbock office will serve the largest area—54 counties and 52,352 square miles.

Each information and education officer must take a six-weeks training program.

"Particular attention will be placed on prospective I&E officers with professional experience in journalism, radio-TV, education advertising-public relations and salesmanship," said a staff proposal submitted to the commission.

Duane Thomas Loses Temper

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Duane Thomas, who virtually tore apart the Buffalo Bills in a National Football League preseason game Friday night, was the victim of the fans' ire near the game's end.

Thomas was sitting on the Washington Redskins, bench when a group of fans shouted obscenities and tossed refuse at him.

He jumped up and ran toward the four-foot-high concrete wall.

"He got one leg over, but we got him down," said teammate Ron McDole.

After the game, Redskins, Coach George Allen said "a few people started throwing things at the team bus, looking straight ahead with eyes glowering."

Thomas refused to talk with newsmen.

Soviets Head Track Events

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union, dominating the track and field events, carried nine goldmedalsintoSaturday'seve of the World University Games, with the United States team far behind.

The U.S. track and field team, which had to settle for a silver medal on Thursday by Kathy Schmidt, the Long Beach City College javelin thrower, collected only a bronze on Terry Porter's third-place finish in the pole vault Friday.

Although the American men's basketball team has scored two easy victories, the Games so far have been a disappointment for the Americans, and it appears it will take next week's swimming events to restore American pride.

The Soviet team, which pickedup four golds Thursday, added five Friday. Nadezhda Tkatchenko won the women's pentathlon, world record holder Faina Melnik won the discus and Yuri Silov took the 100-meter dash—a race in which America's Steve Reddick of Norfolk, Va. College could take only fourth place.

Today, the Americans have a possibility in the 110-meter hurdles where Larry Shipp of Louisiana State University has reached the finals, and in the 800 with Rick Brown.

Dennis Schultz of Oklahoma University and Darwin Bond of the University of Tennessee are in the 400-meter finals.

The U.S. women's basketball team, which lost its opener to the Russians, came back and beat France 54-43. The U.S. men routed Sweden 120-31.

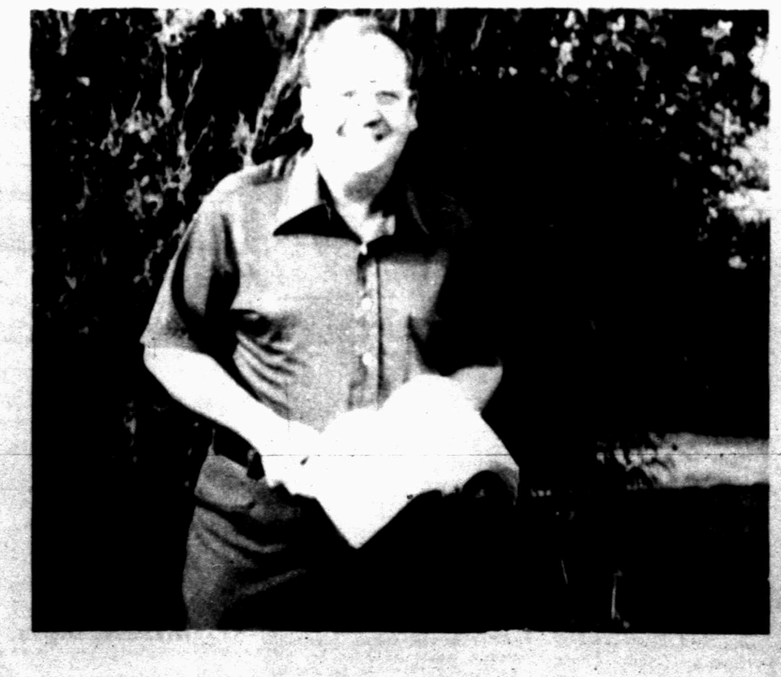

After two full days of competition, the Soviet Union led with nine gold medals, two silver and two bronze for a total of 13. The U.S. has only one silver and one bronze.

CELEBRITIES ON THE COUCH

By Dick Maurice

Michelle Phillips is starred in her first picture, American International's "Dillinger," and she does have a star-making role as Billie Frechette, girlfriend of John Dillinger. Michelle was a member of "The Mamas & The Papas," now disbanded but in the late 1960's, one of the most successful entertainment ensembles. Before her acting and singing career Michelle was a model in New York.

MAURICE: How does Michelle Phillips see herself?

PHILLIPS: Well I'm likeable, charming 5'7", I'm very good natured and I'm clean.

MAURICE: You once stated that you wanted to be a very big star. Do you feel that in today's industry you have to walk over many people in order to reach stardom?

PHILLIPS: I think that you have to avoid walking over people. Being a big star is really matter of picking your parts very carefully. The fate of your career is so much in your hands that every move you make is critical. When I said I wanted to be a big star I meant it but I also meant I want to be the best at what I do.

MAURICE: Do you miss working with the group, The Mamas & The Papas?"

PHILLIPS: Everyone sees each other and misses the group activity.

MAURICE: Any possibility of the group getting back together?

PHILLIPS: It's hard to say. Maybe if our careers aren't going well we'll get back together.

MAURICE: Was there some jealousy between you and Mama Cass?

PHILLIPS: I think she hated me because I was slim and beautiful. However, she loved me like a sister as well. I was jealous of Cass too. Her voice was so much better than mine. There was unbelievable tension within the whole group.

MAURICE: Do you think this tension was responsible for the breakup of your marriage to John Phillips?

PHILLIPS: I think the group struck trouble when my marriage began crumbling. For awhile, John replaced me with another girl. I hated that. But what's funny is that no one can even remember her name. They even tried to pass her off as me. Finally, I got back into the group and the marriage. But John like a lot of geniouses was impossible to live with, so the marriage had to end.

MAURICE: Didn't you remarry?

PHILLIPS: Yes, I married again to actor Dennis Hooper and he was an impossible man. As a matter of fact, the marriage lasted 8 days.

MAURICE: Any thoughts of getting married again?

PHILLIPS: No, I'm not considering marriage right now. I miss the companionship of marriage and I don't especially like living alone and I was married very young so I'm used to being married. I'm much happier when I have someone around me. But I haven't met someone that I want to marry.

MAURICE: Has anyone ever told you that you look like the actress Sandy Dennis?

PHILLIPS: I have been told that I look like Sandy Dennis, Faye Dunaway and like Leslie Caron. And I was even told once that I look like Michelle Phillips. I denied that I was Michelle Phillips once. The man said I should start a group like The Mamas & The Papas, because I look so much like her. I said but I can't sing a note. He said, well don't worry about it - she couldn't either.

MAURICE: How does it feel to see yourself on the screen?

PHILLIPS: It's very distorting at first. It was difficult getting used to seeing myself 20 feet high on the screen.

MAURICE: Do you really enjoy living in Hollywood?

PHILLIPS: No, I think it is awful, it's immoral and it's just the worst place in the world.

MAURICE: Where would you prefer to live?

PHILLIPS: You won't believe this but I have fallen in love with Fort Worth, Texas. It's the greatest place and perhaps some day soon I will be living there.

MAURICE: If you don't mind, I would like to talk with you again about the Mamas & The Papas. Why is that Cass never really made it as a solo singer?

PHILLIPS: She has a beautiful voice but she needs discipline and an iron hand of someone like John Phillips. He use to tell us what to do and we did it. We didn't sing one note that we weren't told to sing, and that was why the group was a success.

MAURICE: When the group started out, wasn't it originally planned as a trio?

PHILLIPS: Yes, Denny and John and I were singing in a club in the Virgin Islands where Cass was a waitress. Cass was so desperate to join that she use to sing along with our performances. We wanted to keep her out, but she persisted.

MAURICE: I understand that you were pretty good at piercing ears.

PHILLIPS: Yes, how did you know that: Did Mama Cass tell you? I pierced her ears with an ice cube, a pin and a string. I never saw so much blood.

MAURICE: You mentioned before that you hated living in Hollywood, but you're a Los Angeles girl by birth, aren't you?

PHILLIPS: Yes, I was born in Los Angeles but when my mother died when I was 5, my father took me to Mexico City to live. Later on, I returned to Los Angeles to attend high school but for my childhood, it was air-pollution free.

MAURICE: Dillinger wasn't the first film that you tested for.

PHILLIPS: I made seven tests for other pictures. I began to wonder when I would start working again. It was a trying time but I felt I was right for the role of Billie Frechette. After all, she's right out of Americana. I'm from pioneer American stock and I should be playing her.

MAURICE: To play the girlfriend of John Dillinger, what sort of preparation was necessary for the role?

PHILLIPS: I tried the month before the filming to get myself into the right frame of mind. I read all the books I could find on him and even carried his picture in my wallet.

MAURICE: Seeing you in the film indicates you did the right thing. I think its great that a '60s singer can play a '30s gun moll in Dillinger.

Offshore Oil Town Unusual

EDITOR'S NOTE: The desolate moonscape of the surrounding Egyptian desert stretches far away. From a helicopter you can see Mt. Sinai where Moses dellyered the word of God. And here is a transient village on the sands, serviced by eight boats, 50 vehicles and four planes. Its reason to be is offshore, an oil field of great promise.

By C.C. MINICLIER
Associated Press Writer

RAS SHUKHEIR, Egypt (AP) — If you like your boom towns with a little raw and racy excitement, this oil town hard on the shore of the Red Sea isn't the place.

There are no women, no vegetation, not even a market place or a common saloon. A night on the town comes to two cold beers and a movie.

The reason for Ras Shukheir's existence is lost in the mists off shore. It is a huge oil field, opened just before the war with Israel in 1967, a lucky piece of timing since the Israelis gobbled up another major Egyptian field when they swept across the Sinai to victory.

Two years after oil was discovered Ras Shukheir was a full blown town, a sprawling warehouse, two-story villas, its own squash court, everything needed to operate the Morgan oil field. But little else.

There is no field in the conventional sense. "And there is no Mr. Morgan," field superintendent Mahmoud Ibrahim Allam patiently explains to visitors. The word "Morgan" comes from some local coral.

Located 18 miles offshore, it was discovered by American oil men and it is Egypt's major oil source, pumping 403 million barrels since it opened.

It is the 16th largest known underwater field in the world. A new area was opened recently and is expected to produce 100,000 barrels a day by the end of the year, Allam says.

Visitors to the off shore facilities are surprised to learn they are closer to Israeli-occupied Sinai—only five miles—than to Ras Shukheir.

Not visible from here in the morning mists, the field is clearly visible at night from both sides of the Gulf of Suez, marked by two giant bsrn-off flames, consuming some 250 million cubic feet of unwanted natural gas daily.

From an approaching helicopter one can see in the distance Mt. Sinai, where Moses is said to have received the Ten Commandments.

Although the oil was discovered by the American Oil Co., AMOCO, there are only five Americans on the 370-man payroll here. The oil is produced by the Gulf of Suez Petroleum Co., jointly owned by AMOCO and EGPCO, the state run Egyptian General Petroleum Corp.

"Oil is good for everybody and I expect there is a lot more oil in the gulf," says process supervisor Sabry Mohamed el Sherif, 29, who started work here two days before the field opened.

Oil from Morgan is shipped to Japan, Brazil, the United States, England, Spain and Italy.

Fischer Prefers Life Of Seclusion To Millions

EDITOR'S NOTE — World chess champion Bobby Fischer returned from Iceland on top of the world — and not only the chess world. Offers poured in — television, books, appearances, records. Bobby could have made millions. Instead, he went into seclusion and some chess players worry he may be hurting his game.

By DAN BERGER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — He could be a television star, a noted lecturer, a famous author or simply a millionaire if he chose. He could dine with the president, travel like a king and be toasted on every continent.

Instead, world chess champion Robert J. Fischer has chosen to lead a life of seclusion and mystery since his smashing victory over Russia's Boris Spassky last summer.

Fischer, 30, came home from that triumph in Iceland with offers of every sort. He could have become as much a pop hero as Olympic swimmer Mark Spitz. Yet Fischer has remained in virtual hiding, turning down all offers except for a couple of television appearances.

When he returned he lived with friends in nearby Pasadena, home of the Worldwide Church of God, a religion he follows. Recently, he has been living in Denver. Most of his former friends say they haven't heard from him in months.

One said Fischer's reluctance to accept the money offers is because "he's the most principled person I know. I don't know what motivates him much of the time, but I do know he doesn't like his name attached to products."

Another, however, says Bobby wants more than what has been offered.

"If someone says they'll give him a million dollars, he thinks there's a lot more available and he wants it all. He's very immature in that respect," the friend said.

The offers would seem overwhelming:

— The Las Vegas Hilton Hotel offered him $1 million to defend his title there against anyone, his lawyer, Stanley Rader said.

— Warner Brothers offered him $1 million to turn out a series of records which had been pre-sold, Rader said. He estimates it would have cost Fischer about five to 10 hours of his time.

— A publishing company offered him a small fortune to write a book on his views of the title match.

— A television producer wanted him to make a series of chess films which could be marketed throughout the world.

— An electronics firm wanted to use a picture of Bobby, holding one of their radios, in its advertising. Bobby admits he loves the radio and wouldn't own any other brand, yet did not agree to the use of the photo.

— An automobile manufacturer offered Bobby $75,000 and a new car if he'd say he drove only that car. The offer was declined.

Larry Evans, an international chess grandmaster and the man who helped Bobby train for the title match, says Bobby's reluctance to take such offers is a bit strange but not unusual for Fischer.

"His lawyers have been trying to convince him to take some of those offers," said Evans, who writes a nationally syndicated chess column from his home in Reno, Nev.

"I think he feels that lending his name to something is beneath his dignity. He's just basically lazy about things other than chess and he's basically suspicious of people he doesn't know."

Fischer's friends know the quickest way to alienate him is to talk about him to other people, especially the press.

The driving force in Bobby's life may be the most mentally demanding of all games, but his approach to the rest of his life is nearly non-cerebral.

Wherever he goes, he carries a transistor radio which blares rock music. He walks through city streets at such a pace that friends jog to keep up.

At 6 feet 1 and 190 pounds, however, he looks like an athlete and approaches chess matches with the rigor of a boxer.

He swims and runs and bowls to stay in shape. He plays a vicious game of tennis, darting around the court like a madman.

In his spare time, he goes to the movies and reads news magazines occasionally.

When he studies the game of chess, his mind enters a different realm. Fischer's depth of concentration is unmatched in chess history, some masters say, and they admit that probably no man has ever devoted the amount of time to all facets of the game as has Bobby.

Chess is his vocation, hobby, pasttime and obsession. When he wants to relax, he occasionally plays chess.

Fool's Gold

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — A rockhound identified a rock found at a quarry 250 miles from here as gold, and hundreds of people flocked to the area with shovels.

A later analysis showed the substance was pyrite — fool's gold.

Propose Terminals For Supertankers

By JACK LEFLER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oil tankers are getting bigger and bigger, and the problems of moving their cargoes onto shore are getting tougher and tougher.

Supertankers hold part of the answer to alleviating the fuel shortage by transporting a greater volume of petroleum from abroad at lower cost. But if they are too mammoth to use existing ports, what is the solution?

A Los Angeles-based company IMODCO, Inc., says one solution is a deepwater offshore terminal system rather than deepening existing ports.

Since 1958, IMODCO and its licensee, Hitachi Zosen of Tokyo, have sold 41 of the 106 offshore terminal systems known to have been installed throughout the world. None is off the U.S. coast.

Basically the IMODCO system contains a floating buoy terminal, floating and underbuoy hoses, terminal mooring and submarine pipelines.

IMODCO says the main advantage is that the systems' cost of between $650,000 and $2 million represents considerably less investment than the construction of conventional harbors. And they can become operational much more quickly than conventional port facilities.

Interest in and demand for the systems has heightened with the rapidly increasing construction of the very large crude carriers (VLCCS).

Economics, plus greater safety, lie behind the demand for these huge ships. Not only do they permit lower per-barrel cost of transportation but their size increases seaworthiness. As a result, oil companies and independent shipowners continue to expand their fleets in order to meet an expected western world production of 75.5 million barrels of oil per day by 1980. The demand for oil has been doubling each decade.

Ships of 200,000 deadweight tons which only recently were considered behemoths, now are on the "small side," compared with the 325,000-ton ships going into service in increasing numbers.

Currently under construction are three VLCCs of 477,000 tons. On the drawing board's are designs for a 500,000-ton tanker and another of one million tons.

Ecology also figures in consideration of the offshore terminals. Heavy port traffic and the potential for accidental smillage within the confines of enclosed harbor is of growing public concern.

IMODCO says that obviously, with less traffic offshore, there is less traffic offshore, there is less change of spillage, and contends that even if this were to happen at a deepwater terminal, in most cases the spillage would be carried out to sea.

Square Dancers To Hold Lessons

Square dance lessons are scheduled to start on September 5 in the National Guard Armory, and will be sponsored by the Sparkle City Squares. Following two "no obligation - see if you like it" sessions, a series of ten weekly lessons will be conducted by club caller, Sleepy Browning of Jayton, Texas. Additional information may be obtained by calling Larry and Barbara Bills 573-2852, Bill and Wanda Early 573-2990, or Bill and Maribeth Vestal 573-9964.

Square dancing is a "fun" activity that is enjoyed by thousands of Americans of all ages. Though modern square dancing evolved from our pioneer heritage, it is far removed and much improved over the barn dance of by gone days. With the development of the light weight, high powered transistorized public address system, it became possible for the voice of one "caller" to be heard by hundreds of dancers at one time. As a result, square dancers in their colorful western style clothing may be seen "doing their thing" in the finest convention facilities and ball rooms from coast to coast.

Though fun to watch, square dancing is primarily a participation "sport." As proof of the nation wide popularity of square dancing, it was noted that more than 17,000 square dancers from every state and several foreign countries recently participated in the 22nd National Square Dance Convention in Salt Lake City, Utah. San Antonio, Texas, and its Hemisfair Convention Center is the site of the 23rd National Convention next June 27-29, and it is anticipated that over 20,000 "participating" square dancers will attend.

In addition to the mid-week lessons beginning on September 5, other scheduled dances are as follows: August 25, Dick Parrish from Hobbs, N.M., calling; Sept. 8, Roger Fleckenstein, Stanton; Oct. 12, Billionth Barrel Square Dance Jamboree (free) with Sleepy Browning from Jayton and Dave and Nita Smith from Lubbock; Oct. 27, Tommy White, Odessa; November 10, Second Annual Snyder Square and Round Dance Festival with Rex Coats of Andrews and Joe Greer of Lubbock as the featured square dance callers and Manning and Nita Smith, College Station, Texas, as the round dance leaders.

Spectators are always welcome at square dance activities and there is never any charge.

Unusual Pot

BOSTON (AP) — A South Boston mother has told police she was puzzled by two young men who knocked on her door, said they admired the four-foot plant in her window and offered $5 for it.

She told police on Friday that she refused because her 8-year-old son had given it to her for Mother's Day, after finding it in the neighborhood.

The two young men upped their offer to $20. She again refused.

They asked her for a few "cuttings," and she refused.

When they left, she took the plant to the district police station, where Capt. John Bradley told her she had been growing a marijuana plant.

The woman left it with police but said her son would be distressed.

"I'll just have to tell him it died," she told Bradley. "I wouldn't have the heart to tell him that it was pot."

Halts Production

STOCKBRIDGE, England (AP) — A bricklayer at a steelworks outside Sheffield planned to keep his lemonade cool by placing the bottle in water feeding the plant's cooling system. But the bottle fell into a twisting, 1½-mile-long pipe and blocked the water flow. All production stopped and could not be resumed until workmen had located the bottle.

TUNES UP ENGINE — Nineteen year old James Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Davis of 2709 Avenue Q, is shown tuning up his engine. He has had polio since he was two and a half years old. Today, James is able to do various things with his body and wheelchair.

James Davis No Longer Handicapped By Polio

By PAM BLOCK

"No, I don't consider myself handicapped anymore. Everybody has his own limitations. I believe everybody is handicapped in some particular way. Some are more obvious than others while some just don't show."

When two and a half years of age, James Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Davis, was stricken with polio and has been, in some particular parts of his body, handicapped ever since that age.

Not only James was stricken with this type of disease, four out of five of his family were too. James was the first to show up with it while his older sister, Mrs. Cynthia Davis Darlin, Clovis, New Mexico, who was seven years old at the time, came after him. His father, Mr. Wade Davis, and his mother, Elois, had a sign of it. The physicians treated Cynthia and Mrs. Davis before it had become serious. The doctor believed Mr. Davis would never be able to walk again but he surprised them. He can walk, but has a limp.

His younger sister, Laurel, four, was not born at the time when this dreadful disease was going around.

Has Pleasant Life

James recalled that his life is just as pleasant as a person who is able to walk simply because he "never really knew any difference."

"Yes, life in our family has changed. Our whole lives are kind of revolved around James," stated Mrs. Davis.

James' polio has affected his right side, legs, and back.

"I have had several operations. These include a hip correction, an operation on the legs and the feet as well, and a backbone operation. My backbone was the major one and it turned out the easiest. My back bone was cricketed. I have had operations in Abilene Galveston, and Houston.

His most recent operation was in June of this year on his right thumb.

James may not be able to walk on his own two feet in the near future. Nevertheless, he is able to walk with the aid of leg braces on the hips and also on crutches.

The Snyder resident explained he doesn't need any particular treatments. "I just stay "in touch" just like everybody else, of course."

Proud to be a Christian

Asked what his prides and joys were, he replied, "I am extremely proud to be a Christian. That is my main one. Others are my car and tape deck."

The warm-hearted boy has traveled to long-distance places. He visited a missionary in Australia and went on a bus with other Christians to help with vacation Bible school in Collingwood, Canada.

"I fold up my wheel chair in the back seat and hop over to the front seat with my arms. It doesn't hurt—I am used to it. Sometimes I get into the car and pull the chair in after me."

James has a "L" bar in front of him in his car and the bar has hand controls. He pushes down on the bar toward the floor board to stop.

"Everybody is able to drive his vehicle. One can also drive it like a regular car," explained Mrs. Davis.

James can not only drive a car, he also can do tricks and dance in his wheelchair. One might say he has a "dancing wheelchair." When he was a sophomore at Snyder High School, he presented an assembly for the student body. He danced in his wheelchair to hard rock songs.

"When I was 12 years old, a veteran of a World war gave the idea of doing tricks in a wheelchair to my mother. I tried a trick and succeeded the first time. I made up tricks as I went along. Within a month, I could balance back with either hand.

"I have never laughed so hard in my life when Joe Wilson, a member of my Church, (East Side Church of Christ), got into my wheelchair and tried to do some tricks. He got the front of the chair up and was all balanced and then he said, 'Hey, look at me!' and all of a sudden he fell back and collapsed."

Practices Falling Down

Born on October 31, 1953 in Snyder, James explained that most people are shocked about hit tricks and most try to help. "I really appreciated help when I need it. But then, who doesn't? Usually, I never need it."

One thing shocks a lot of people—James practices falling down in his wheelchair. He never had any serious accidents. He ran through the glass door twice at the church. He was also in a head-on collision at the age three during the Christmas holidays.

"I went to the Boys' Club one day and this friend came to me and said, 'Get out of your chair and let me time you to see how fast you can get back into it."

"It took me exactly four second to unfold my chair, prop it open, and get into the chair."

Loves Electronics

He directed his attention to Lamar Junior High, which he attended for two years. However, he was tutored in the seventh grade because at the time he was wearing a body cast.

At Snyder High, where he graduated in May of 1973, he won many ribbons in the field of industrial arts. These included tests on electronics, projects, and metals.

People was his pleasure in Snyder High School. He stated he probably had not met as many people as he did if he had not gone all the way through it.

James plans to enter Western Texas College next month and major in electronic mechanics and minor in photography. He not only enjoys electronics and photography but listed recording eight-track cassettes as one of his hobbies.

"I have always liked to fix things and make things work better because I felt if I could overcome my handicap, I could make other things work with a handicap. When electronics were introduced to me, we sorta "fell in love with each other. I also fix tapes, work on my car, and assemble my baby sister's toys."

Personal Feelings About Being Handicapped

Asked if he wanted people feeling sorry for him, James explained quickly, "NO!! I can "smell" pity a mile off because I've found no matter how handicapped a person might be, he can always find someone a little worse. For example, I met a guy at a hospital who was complaining about his feet hurting until he met this new patient that didn't have any feet or arms. This patient played ping pong, chess, etc., and could write better with his two stubs than most people could with a good right hand. This is no exaggeration!!"

"I have always been a "good kid" mainly because of my parents and family. They taught me to respect myself first and then to realize my limitations. Secondly, they taught me to respect my God more than anything and to put him first. That's all anyone needs to be a success...but you have to care.

James Davis may not ever walk without the aid of braces or crutches but his spirits are high!!!

Reds May Have Missile Edge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Successful Soviet tests of multiple nuclear warheads that can be aimed at separate targets could give the Soviet Union a clear missile striking edge over the United States by the 1980s, says Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger.

He told a news conference Friday that he feels the Russians will require only another two years before deploying their first combat-ready Multiple Independently Targetable Warheads (MIRVs).

They probably will be able to equal the United States in the number of multiple warheads on land-based missiles in about six years, he said.

If they are able to develop a MIRV for their submarine-launched missiles, he said, the Russians will have a "very formidable force structure."

He said the Pentagon has hard evidence of successful Soviet MIRV tests with at least six warheads on SSX-18 missiles and at least four warheads on a smaller missile.

Chances for controls on MIRVs in the current round of U.S.-Soviet arms limitation talks "have deteriorated sadly," said Schlesinger.

He said that the first five-year U.S.-Soviet agreement on limitation of the numbers of missile launchers resulted in a rough balance. The Soviets held an advantage of about 2,268 to 1,710 in missiles, offset by the U.S. lead in multiple warheads and in the accuracy of the weapons.

Harvesting Is Active In Texas

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Grain sorghum harvesting is about complete in South Texas and only about 15 per cent of the crop remains in fields in the Southwest, Dr. John Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says.

Harvesting also is active in West Central and Central Texas, he said. Prices and yields are good.

About 25,000 bales of cotton have been harvested in the Rio Grande Valley although operations have been slowed by rains, Hutchison said. Some early cotton is opening in the Blacklands, and the crop looks generally good elsewhere.

Peas are being harvested in East Texas and are bringing a good price—$4.50 to $5 a bushel, he said. Demand is high.

Potatoes, onions, cucumbers and some early cabbage are being harvested in the High Plains, Hutchison said. Planting of fall vegetables is active in the Coastal Bend, the San Antonio-Winter Garden area and the Rio Grande Valley.

Range and livestock conditions are good over the state although some western areas need rain, he said. A bumper hay and alfalfa crop is being harvested but baling wire shortages are causing some delays and losses.

Small grain seeding has begun on the High Plains and in some western counties, Hutchison said.

District agricultural agents gave these reports: Panhandle: Some small grains are being planted to provide early grazing for livestock. Crops are making good growth. Early grain sorghum has headed and corn is in the roasting ear stage. Forage sorghums are generally late but making good growth. Vegetable harvesting is active with potatoes, onions, cucumbers and some cabbage moving to market. Stocker cattle are moving into the area.

South Plains: Hot weather is boosting the cotton crop and providing for normal fruiting. Wilt disease is increasing in some cotton, and recent hail destroyed some fields. Ranges and pastures generally look good.

Rolling Plains: Grain sorghum harvesting is expected to start soon. Cotton is fruiting well. Insects are heavy in some locations. Baling wire is in short supply in some counties. Rains have boosted range conditions.

North Central: About 90 per cent of the corn crop has been harvested. Soybean and grain sorghum harvesting is beginning. Land is being prepared for seeding oats and wheat. Hay yields double the normal average. Baling wire is still in short supply. Peach harvesting is complete. The pecan crop is only fair. Surplus grazing is available to livestock.

Northeast: The hay crop is the best in several years. Harvesting remains in full swing although baling wire is in short supply. Grain sorghum harvesting should start in about a week. Yield prospects are good. The peach harvest is about complete. Pastures and livestock look good.

Far West: Ranges and dryland crops need rain. Cotton is fruiting well but insect damage is increasing. Cantaloupe harvesting is nearing completion in the Pecos area. The pecan crop generally looks good with nuts filling well. Calves are moving into market with high prices.

West Central: Grain sorghum harvesting has started with yields fair to good. Cotton is making normal growth, but boll weevil damage is heavy in some fields. Some small grains are being planted Ranges are generally in good shape although some sections need rain. Livestock marketing is active with good prices. Fall shearing of sheep and goats is in progress. A second case of screwworms has been confirmed in Sterling County.

Central: Cotton is maturing rapidly with some bolls opening in the Blacklands. Bollworms and boll weevils are increasing in late planted cotton. Grain sorghum harvesting is in full swing with good yields and prices. Baling wire is in short supply. The pecan crop is light. Pastures and livestock are in excellent condition with marketings increasing.

East: Cotton is beginning to open. Corn harvesting is active and moving toward completion in some areas. Yields are fair to good. Peanut harvesting will start soon. Watermelon harvesting is slowing. Armyworms are active in pastures. Livestock are in good shape with marketings increasing.

Southeast and Upper Gulf Coast: About half the grain sorghum crop has been harvested with good yields. Open weather is needed for rice harvesting and for cotton bolls to open. Rains and baling wire shortages are slowing the hay harvest. Some field peas, mustard and cucumbers are being harvested. Watermelon harvesting is about complete.

South Central: Grain sorghum harvesting is in full swing although rain showers caused some delays. Cotton is fruiting well. Peanuts look good but need more moisture. Fall gardens are being prepared. Insect damage remains heavy on pecans. Livestock are in good condition with marketing heavy.

Southwest: About 15 per cent of the grain sorghum crop remains to be harvested. Yields have been good. Corn harvesting is underway. The peanut harvest is about 40 per cent complete. Baling wire is unavailable in some areas. Cucumbers, carrots and cabbage are being planted. Pastures and ranges are furnishing good grazing.

South: The grain sorghum harvest is about complete. Pastures are excellent. Livestock are in good condition. Ticks and screwworms remain a problem in livestock. Baling wire shortages are limiting hay making.

Free Meals For Elderly

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe announced the opening Monday of a federally funded food program for the elderly in Hidalgo County.

McAllen and Pharr are the target areas, with the meal site in Pharr, Briscoe said. "... adequate transportation (will be) provided to take the elderly from their homes to the site where hot meals will be served five days a week," he said.

Cost of the program, $165,000, includes $10,000 in state money.

It is available to persons over 65, with poverty level incomes, who live alone.

Texas Oilmen Set Strategy Session

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas independent oilmen will hold a strategy session Aug. 23, the day before the start of a U.S. Department of Interior petroleum symposium in Dallas.

The Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association (TIPRO) said it hopes to develop a number of policies, including on crude oil prices and the allowable for the mammoth East Texas oil field.

"There is widespread agreement that production in portions of the East Texas field is excessive to the point of reducing ultimate recovery," TIPRO said in a news release Saturday.

TIPRO said the symposium would concentrate on oil imports and fuel allocation Aug. 24-25.

Miss Sadler, Bullard United In Evening Service August 11

Miss Debbie Kay Sadler and Joe Cliff Bullard were united in marriage in an evening service at the altar of the Colonial Hill Baptist Church, August 11. Rev. Miller Robinson, minister of the church, officiated in the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jean E. Sadler of Big Spring, former residents of Snyder, and Mr. and Mrs. James C. Bullard of 3404 Jacksboro.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal length gown of chalet over skinner satin. The fitted empire bodice was fashioned of white satin, chantilly lace and chalet overlay. The scooped neckline, full chalet cuffed sleeves and empire waist were accented with seed pearls. The A-line skirt fell from the waist into a chapel length train. Her full length veil was attached to a pill box head piece and wes edged with wide chantilly lace. She carried a cascade of white pixie carnations, purple statice and baby's breath centered with an orchid cattleya and accented with orchid satin leaves on a white prayer book.

The bride's mother chose a formal length long sleeved dress of blue double knit. The groom's mother wore a formal length orchid knit dress. Each wore an orchid tint cymbidiam to enhance their attire.

Miss Susan Ferrell served as maid of honor for the occasion. Mrs. Troy Koening, sister of the bride, attended as matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Miss Becky Clements of Arp, cousin of the bride, and Miss Jana Bullard, sister of the groom. Each attendant wore formal length gowns of orchid polyester and cotton fashioned according to the bridal attire. Orchid garden hats entwined with blue velveteen ribbon streamers complimented the fashions. They carried traditional colonial bouquets of purple statice and orchid daisy pompon mums adorned with blue baby's breath and satin streamers.

Miss Kimberly Koening of Snyder, niece of the bride, spread flowers in the bridal path. She was attired in a formal length dress fashioned after the bridesmaid's gowns. She carried a basket of purple statice and orchid daisy pompon mums with pale blue baby's breath.

Best man for the ceremony was Mike Dennis of Snyder. Bobby Price, Art Kidd and Steve Weyel, all of Snyder, served as groomsmen. Ushering guests of the bride and groom were Troy Koening, brother-in-law of the bride, Glen January, Butch Buchanan, all of Snyder, and Tim King of Lubbock.

The altar of the church was centered with a brass arched candelabra of fifteen, tall burning tapers. Matching tree candelabras with eighteen burning tapers decorated with garlands of boxwood complemented the arch. A prayer bench and a memory candle adorned with boxwood, with orchid and blue flowers completed the candlelight setting.

Miss Jana Bullard, featured soloist, was accompanied by guitarist, Tim King, as she sang "Wedding Song." She also sang "The Lord's Prayer" accompanied by Mrs. Wayne Bethel of Snyder as the couple knelt at the altar.

The fellowship hall of the church was the setting for a reception honoring the couple. The bride's table featured a three tiered wedding cake and a memory candle from the wedding decorations. The confection was adorned with three white wedding bells and clusters of blue and orchid flowers. Dixie Harrell, Marci McCormick and Brenda Crosby presided over the service. The groom's table was decorated with an arrangement of gold and orange mums on a beige tablecloth. Hollye Crenshaw and Patty Richardson presided. Sheri Bullard, sister of the groom, registered guests in the bridal book. This table was covered with a white satin cloth with white lace edging. A blue feathered pen was used to register friends and relatives.

For the six day wedding trip to Ruidosa, N.M., the bride wore a purple and white pant suit with white accessories. A purple cattleya from the bridal bouquet was worn as a corsage to accent the attire.

The couple will reside in College Station where the groom will continue his education in Petroleum Engineering.

The bride is a 1972 graduate of Snyder High School and attended Western Texas College. The groom is also a 1972 graduate of Snyder and has attended Texas A&M University for one year. He was listed on the Dean's Honor List and was a member of the Freshman Honor Society.

Out of town wedding guests were from Arp, Big Spring, Bridgeport, Elgin, Okla., and Lawton, Okla.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at the American Restaurant on August 10.

Quotable Women

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Here are some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"My sister prayed for a baby brother. Then she had a terrible fight with a boy and she prayed, 'Cancel that cat. I want a baby sister for Christmas.' That's why they called me Merry and also why they call me Baby Sister." Merry Clayton, singer and former Raelet with the Ray Charles singers.

"I was trying to write for so many women, from 14-year-olds terrified of what their parents would think, to 45-year-old women facing menopause as well as an unwanted pregnancy. That presented enormous problems in writing, and the only solution was to be as direct and down-to-earth as possible." Beth Richardson Gutcheon, author of "Abortion: A Woman's Guide."

"The question is whether we want to be a nation of those who cry, complain or quit in the face of difficulty, or a country of the courageous who squarely and boldly face their trials and privations." Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India, in an address broadcast nationwide on the 26th anniversary of Indian independence.

"I know my father will never give up the tapes because that would be something that is completely alien to our system of government." Tricia Nixon Cox.

"At least 95 per cent of all women in this country still get married. Then they are subtly pressured to have children; otherwise, they're less than a person. It's hard to explain that there's nothing wrong with the plumbing but you just don't want to have children." Judith Senderowitz, first woman president of Zero Population Growth.

MRS. MORRIS DALE HELMS

Vows Repeated In August 10 Service

Miss Deborah Claire Roth and Morris Dale Helms repeated nuptial vows August 10 at the First Baptist Church of Burkburnett. Rev. Murrell Johns, pastor of the Progress Baptist Church of Progress, officiated at the 7 p.m. ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Birdie M. Roth of Burkburnett and E.C. Roth of Chicago, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Alvin M. Helms of Monahans are the parents of the groom. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. A.E. Deen of Snyder.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of silk cyrstaline and chantilly lace. Her basque bodice featured an overlay of lace. Matching lace was repeated at the victorian neckline and on the gathered lantern sleeves which were gathered to deep lace cuffs. Pearl studded lace motifs sprinkled over the controlled skirt and chapel length train, and formed a spray above the deep flounce at the hemline. Her elbow length veil of imported French illusion was secured to a lace and pearl demi-cap. She carried a cascade of white French carnations surrounding an orchid, atop a white Bible.

Maid of honor was Miss Margie Clemmer. Miss Debbie Treadwell of Wink, Miss Janet DiMarzio, and Miss Jackie Brown were the bridesmaids. The attendants were gowned identially in pale blue floor length dresses overlaid with white and blue ribbon lace. The empire bodices were designed with scooped necklines and lantern sleeves. Blue picture hats with matching ribbon lace encircling the crown completed their costumes and they carried hurricane lamps with blue candles.

The groom was attended by Joe Sewell of Euless, the best man. Groomsmen were Owen Smith and Terry Flemmer, both of Monahans, and Lynn Raybon of Hobbs, New Mexico.

The bride's cousin, Lori Allmon was the flower girl while Kevin Raybon of Hobbs, a newphew of the groom, carried the rings.

Guests were seated by Randy Allmon, cousin of the bride, Tommy Brown of Dallas, Don Holland and Ricky Gum.

Pre-nuptial selections were presented by Mrs. Vernon Duke at the organ. "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Wedding Prayer" were sung by Joel Graves.

The wedding scene was centered with a white satin prie dieu beneath an archway of greenery. Satin ropes and newell posts linked twin baskets of white gladioli and two seven branched candelabra to complete the decor.

Blue and white were featured in decor at the reception held in the fellowship hall following the ceremony. Members of the houseparty were Mmes. Revis Wooten, Storey Allmon, Berroy Barnes, Susan Hall and Susie Slaydon.

For the wedding trip to Ruidosa, New Mexico, the bride chose a bittersweet knit suit with a white floppy hat and white accessories. The couple will be at home, following their trip, at 2700 Ave. E, Brownwood.

The bride is a graduate of Burkburnett High School and is a sophomore at Howard Payne College. Honors received include Queen of the Pioneer Bowl, District Lions Club Queen, and a talent winner in the Ideal Miss Contest. Her academic awards were in math, history, Spanish, and home economics. She was also a member of the National Honor Society and Future Homemakers of America. The groom, a Monahans High School graduate, is a junior student at Howard Payne.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at Ruth's Cafe in Burkburnett.

Anti-Theft Devices Little Help

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston detective says anti-theft devices on new cars help very little in preventing a car from being stolen.

"The professionals always seem to find the ways and means to take cars they want," burglary and theft Det. J. D. Hunt says.

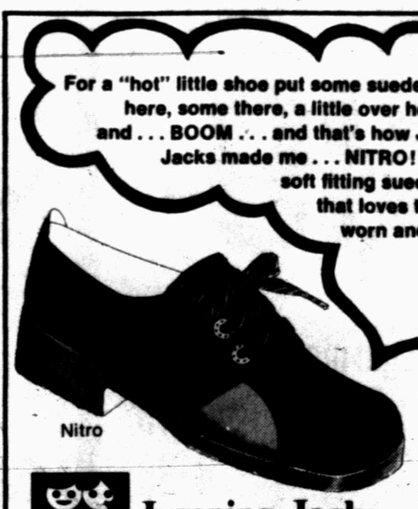

Late model cars have been rolling off the assembly lines equipped with what manufacturers call improved ignition safety systems and other items such as locking steering wheel mechanisms. Burglary alarms on a few makes of cars were offered as optional equipment.

"A big screw driver is usually all it takes to break the steering wheel locks," Hunt says. "And thieves have even used wreckers to haul away some cars."

Hunt says the last real improvement on cars came a few years ago when one manufacturer stopped making ignitions where the car could be started without the key — in the "off" instead of "lock" position.

"That was changed and it probably had some effect on the 'joy riding' thieves," Hunt says.

GIFT OF MARIGOLDS — Mrs. Fred Davis of the Twilight Garden Club and Mrs. Guy Stoker of the Twentieth Century Study Club are helping prepare some 500 marigolds being planted at the Scurry County Coliseum in conjunction with the Beautification Program for the "Billionth Barrel of Oil" celebration in September. Smith and Rios of the Youth Corp are pictured rearranging the flower boxes to hold the plants given for this project.

Chicken Shortage Is Forecast During September

Chicken shortages during September are likely to result as a consequence of the recent price freeze, according to Dr. Robert Wunderle, Director of Economic Research for the National Broiler Council.

Although chickens were exempt from the freeze as a raw agricultural product, the freeze did apply to poultry distributors who economically could not afford to pay producers more than their freeze price at which they could sell broilers. (Distributors' freeze prices were generally 2c per pound over the processors' price during the base period.) The net effect was that broiler prices during the freeze period were held down at artificially low levels, in many cases below producers' cost of production. In some cases producers lost as much as 6c per pound on weekly production volumes of approximately 2 million pounds.

At the same time, the costs of feeding chickens remained relatively stable at record high levels because most producers had bought feed ingredients before their prices dropped in response to export controls.

The consequence of the cost price squeeze created by the freeze was reductions in the number of eggs hatched and chicks placed in houses for growing. Government figures indicate that from September 4 through September 29 approximately 17 million fewer chickens will be marketed than during the same period last year. This will place September production nearly 7 percent below last year's level. Thus far this year marketings are off 1.5 percent compared to last year, directly as a result of price control problems created in December, 1972. The problems created by the recent price freeze will obviously bill be even greater.

Price controls in agriculture, and particularly for broilers, can be effective in keeping prices down, but you may not have any chickens to buy.

Skin Tip that may come in handy to consumers is that it is not necessary to remove chicken skin for low fat or low calorie dieting unless an extremely low fat content is desired. The National Broiler Council points out that chicken skin contains only 17.1 grams of fat per 100 grams raw. Compare that with 26.7 grams of fat for 100 grams of raw beef sirloin. Chicken skin has rich flavor, so enjoy it. It also helps to keep the chicken tender and juicy while it is cooking.

A lot for your money is chicken with its high quality complete protein, according to the National Broiler Council. A cheery note for the consumer who watches calories is that 100 grams of raw chicken has only 4.9 grams of fat. Compare this to 100 grams of raw hamburger which has 21.2 grams of fat. Those who keep their cholesterol level in mind will be interested to know that the fat in chicken contains up to ten times as much linoleic acid as the fat of ruminant animals such as beef cattle. Linoleic acid is a polyunsaturated fatty acid necessary for growth and reproduction. When it is fed as 25 percent or more of the fat, linoleic acid lowers blood cholesterol in adults under certain dietary conditions. This is one reason why the use of chicken is desirable on cholesterol-modifying diets.

Win budget game by learning to cook chicken many different ways so that this well-liked, lower-cost meat can be served more often. Chicken can appear on the table two or three times a week because of its obliging way of taking to so many different ingredients and accompaniments. Here are basic chicken cooking methods and variations from the National Broiler Council:

BASIC CHICKEN COOKING METHODS

FRIED: Roll chicken pieces in flour seasoned with your favorite herbs. Some good choices are thyme or tarragon—½ teaspoon per chicken, or paprika—1 teaspoon. Add coated chicken, skin side down, to ½ inch of oil and fry over medium heat. Cook uncovered for 15 to 25 minutes on each side. Drain on paper towels.

BROILED: Sprinkle chicken halves, quarters or pieces with desired seasonings; for example: 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, and ½ teaspoon tarragon, per chicken. Broil, skin side down, for 20 to 30 minutes. Turn and broil 15 to 25 minutes longer. Have chicken 3 to 6 inches from heat in gas range and 6 to 9 inches from heat in electric range. If desired, baste chicken with melted butter, margarine or salad oil several times while cooking.

SIMMERED: Place one chicken in saucepan with 2 cups of water, 1 small onion, sliced, 3 celery tops, 1 tablespoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Bring to a boil. Cover tightly and simmer 1 hour or until tender. Remove from heat; strain broth and refrigerate. When chicken is cool, remove meat from skin and bones. Slice for sandwiches and use chunks for casserole or salad.

SKILLET: Brown chicken pieces on all sides in heated butter or margarine. Add 1½ cups liquid, such as chicken broth or tomato juice. For some great flavor combinations, add 1½ cups of mushrooms, sliced zucchini, broccoli flowerets or cubed pineapple per chicken. Cover and cook for 20 to 30 minutes or until chicken is tender.

Learning Art In Leisure

OTTAWA (AP) — About 100 Ottawa youngsters are learning about art and art galleries during their leisure hours this summer, thanks to a special program sponsored by the National Gallery of Canada.

"We want them to grow up to be adults who know what art galleries are about," says Jessica Bradley, one of the gallery's educational officers. "We are not offering art instruction but are exposing the children to different things in the gallery."

Yale Doctorate Goes To Youngest

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Pianist Andre Watts, 26, this year became the youngest person to receive an honorary doctorate from Yale University since 1776.

The citation read in part, "In an age which too often glorifies the spontaneous and depreciates competence, you offer the example of a person of most formidable accomplishment who has nevertheless sought painful perfection with all the intensity that has been the mark of the great artist of every age.

Showering Before Exercise Better

EMMAUS, Pa. (AP) — Recent research suggests that showering before exercise rather than after is more beneficial to the body.

According to a report in Fitness for Living Magazine, the outer blood vessels constrict in a cold shower, so the core temperature can be kept down during exercise without bringing the blood all the way to the body's surface. Thus there is more blood available to carry oxygen to the muscles and tissues, and to carry wastes away from the muscles. The pulse rate is lower, and the recovery rate faster than normal.

Wife's Craving Is Expensive

CHESTER, England (AP) — Patricia Southall's latenight craving for fresh salmon two days before the birth of her baby netted trouble for her husband, Gordon.

Anti-Yankee Sentiment Rising In South America

EDITOR'S NOTE — The winds of change blow across Latin America, and a new anti-Yankee sentiment arises. The continent home for 120 million, has been the target of a number of self-serving U.S. policies, and now finally cynicism surrounds the Latin image of the Yankee, and more and more South America seeks to be free of U.S. domination.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

With some surprise, Uncle Sam is beginning to see his Latin American cousins in a new light, and there's a good deal for him to worry about.

Powerful waves of turbulence batter traditional structures and remake the hemisphere's political map. Hispanic America, indeed, often seems to astonish itself with frequent outburts of boisterous, blustery, defiance at the Yankee Colossus.

Long accustomed to its own brands of violence and confusion, much of Latin America now finds itself moving steadily to the left by ballot, military coup or evolution.

Much of it, too, has been displaying eagerness to shuck off the dominating influence of the United States.

The North Americans have been getting increasingly harsh criticism, some from people usually considered friendly. On the other hand, the Soviet Union gives every appearance of being alert to Latin opportunities. Its cautious, go-slow approach seeks political gain through trade, aid and diplomacy. Moscow cautions Communists to be warily selective about the use of violence.

In any case, today's Latin America is not the Latin America of a dozen years ago when the Alliance for Progress was aborning, spawned by a fear shared by Washington and hemisphere governments of the influence of Fidel Castro's Cuban communism.

Today the South American continent, where more than 120 million live under one or another brand of military government, is witnessing a yeasty ferment. Chile, Peru and Argentina have signaled a sharp swing leftward, while booming, restless turmoil has sparked a sudden behind-the-scenes army takeover and a heavy-handed crackdown on liberties. And in many areas, new anti-Yankeeism seems rising swiftly.

The Yankees' difficulties can be traced back a century or more, but briefly, the recent background is this:

Before World War II, Washington proclaimed a "good neighbor" policy, but by and large the United States tended to regard the area as a somewhat comic aggregation of banana republics, convenient as sources of commodities or as receptacles for lucrative investment.

To meet a postwar Soviet threat, the United States poured tens of billions into a prostrate Europe. But there had seemed no menace to Latin America, and the United States largely neglected it, supporting whatever regimes, whatever strutting dictators, happened to be in power.

Things changed suddenly when, on New Year's Day, 1958, Fidel Castro's revolution took over in Cuba. The United States began paying more attention.

When President John F. Kennedy launched the Alliance for Progress, a major problem was Latin America's enormously uneven distribution. The wealth in most countries was concentrated in a thin crust representing less than 10 per cent of the population.

The Alliance Charter called for rapid Latin American economic development, fairer distribution, land reform to break up the huge holdings of the oligarchs, sharply increased farm production, attacks on illiteracy, generally raised living standards and a number of other things including, overall, political stability.

The choice, said President Kennedy, was between peaceful evolution through economic-social reform or violent revolution. But the entrenched oligarchs wouldn't reform easily.

The Alliance also sought to isolate Castro communism as incompatible with membership in the OAS — the Organization of American States. Only Mexico refused to go along with the quarantine.

The Alliance proved over-optimistic. It fell far short of its goals, and that in turn engendered disillusion. Cynicism was nourished by such things as the Hickenlooper Amendment, sponsored a decade ago by Sen. Bourke Hickenlooper, the Iowa Republican, requiring the U.S. President to halt aid to any country breaking a contract with a U.S. company or moving to take over U.S.-owned assets. To younger, revolutionary-minded elements, the Yankee attitude was typified by the 1965 U.S. invasion of the Dominican Republic to prevent a leftist takeover.

Shortly after taking office in 1969, President Nixon dispatched New York's Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller to Latin America. His mission ran into violent demonstrations in a number of areas. Rockefeller's report was glum. It said the United States had allowed a historic relationship to "deteriorate badly," warned that continued neglect would "create a vacuum in this hemisphere and facilitate the import into the region of hostile powers."

Little, if anything, specific happened thereafter to change the Latin Americanconception of the Yankee attitude. In fact, many felt they had new confirmation for the idea that U.S. policy was incorrigibly predatory. One example for them was the report of an attempt by the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. to defeat Salvador Allende, the Marxist, in Chile's 1970 presidential election.

While suspicion of the Yankees persisted, fear of Castro ebbed. He had preached export of his revolution early in the game but in 14 years had failed to accomplish it. Perhaps under Moscow prodding, he backed away from the idea in recent times.

Cuba's chaotic economy, almost totally dependent on Soviet subsidy, would hardly be a model for others, but her experience in other respects could capture imaginations: the attack on adult illiteracy, the efforts to redistribute wealth, the land reform, housing and health programs — all things most of Latin America sorely needed.

These days the OAS quarantine of Cuba is about dead. Havana has diplomatic ties with seven hemisphere governments and more in prospect. Increasingly, voices are raised demanding the end of the U.S. economic blockade of Cuba.

Anti-Yankee sentiment has seemed to grow in direct proportion to flagging U.S. interest in Latin America. At an April OAS meeting in Washington, many reflected unhappiness with the Nixon administration's attitude toward social and economic development.

QUESTION: Who was Queen Victoria?

ANSWER: Queen Victoria was a great and beloved ruler of England from 1837 to 1901. Her reign of 63 years was the longest of any British monarch. Victoria was wise and of sterling character. She commanded the respect of her countrymen and was a Constitutional Monarch who was assisted by many able statesmen during her long reign. Notable prime ministers during her tenure were Sir Robert Peel, Lord Palmerston, Benjamin Disraeli, William Gladstone and Lord Salisbury.

Victoria ruled England in an era of great prosperity. The British led the world in trade and territorial expansion. The marriage of her children allied the English Royal House with the thrones of Russia, Germany, Greece, Denmark and Rumania. Her impact on British life and culture was strong, as shown by references to the Victorian Era. Victorian style of architecture and Victorian decoration and furniture are prized by many people. Many towns, cities, islands and lakes throughout the world have been called Victoria.

Briscoe Defends Politics

HOUSTON (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe told college graduates Saturday the Nixon administration "has helped foster the impression that Watergate is politics-as-usual."

"I want to tell you today that this is not politics as usual, from Democrats or Republicans," Briscoe said in a commencement address at the University of Houston.

The governor said the "scandal" of Watergate "has torn at the heart of our country," but the American people "can draw renewed strength" from it.

"Don't let those who are caught jimmying open the doors of their opponents offices or tapping the lines of their opponents phones or attempting to sabotage the campaign activities of other candidates convince you that they are acting no differently than every other politician," Briscoe said.

"Politics ... is not a dirty business," he added. "It is not a free ticket to an easy fortune."

Briscoe urged the graduates to "give of yourself to politics. Insist on a high level of political performance. Demand that politics reflect the ideals, the integrity and the responsibility our nation deserves.

"When young people decide they don't want to go into politics, the machinery will not only break down, it will come to a final half."

Higher Prices, Proposed Hikes Top Week's News

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
AP Business News Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Phase 4 opened this past week amid something less than a stampede toward higher prices, but among those posting notices were steel and auto makers whose prices have broad effects on the economy.

U.S. Steel Corp., biggest of the steel companies, joined other producers in notifying the Internal Revenue Service it plans to boost prices for sheet steel, the industry's largest single product.

The price of sheet steel, a basic material for autos and home appliances, hasn't been raised in 19 months. The price hike proposals would generally restore a 4.8 per cent increase delayed since June 17 by the Nixon administration's price freeze.

Armco Steel Corp., which led the price announcements, said its proposed boost of about 5 per cent would still fall "considerably short" of the dollar-for-dollar passthrough of increased costs allowed under Phase 4.

The latest phase of Nixon's economic program allows businesses to raise prices just enough to cover their own increased costs. Companies with annual sales of more than $100 million must give advance word to the IRS and can go ahead with increased prices 30 days later unless the hikes are challenge.

There was, therefore, no direct link between the steel and auto industry price moves. The automakers said they wanted to raise prices on 1974 models largely to cover the expense of government safety and emission regulations.

Some saw the moves as indicating the auto producers would go after price increases on 1974 models in a piecemeal manner seeking government approval later for more hikes to cover labor vosts now being negotiated. There have been estimates that the eventual hikes could come to $150 a car, an increase of about 5 per cent.

American Telephone and Telegraph Co. said Bell System telephone companies were putting higher rates into effect in Florida, Massachuuetts, Ohio, Oregon, Rhode Island and Texas. AT&T is a government-regulated company and as such isn't subject to the usual IRS approval procedure. The Bell hikes had already been approved by state authorities but had been delayed by the price freeze.

The Commerce Department reported business inventories were up a record $2.6 billion in June and sales were off $248 million in their first drop of the year.

Growing inventories and falling sales are usually considered a sign of slackening business. But government economists contended that inventories were still low, the increase was partly a reflection of rising prices. and early July figures indicated a happier sales pattern.

American Metal Climax Inc. said it had tentatively agreed to sell half its aluminum business to the Japanese trading company Mitsui & Co. for $125 million in cash.

Amax Aluminum Co. is the fourth biggest processor of aluminum products in the United States. Mitsui's investments include mining and manufacturing and the Japanese company is participating with Amax in an iron ore project in Australia.

Chavez Turns To Boycott

DELANO, Calif. (AP) — Thousands of striking United Farm Workers supporters left picket lines in rural California and headed for urban centers today as union leader Cesar Chavez turned to his favorite weapon - the boycott.

The change in tactics, prompted by the shooting death of a UFW picket, was the latest development in the running dispute between the union and the Teamsters over which union should represent farm workers.

All 3,000 UFW members who have been picketing San Joaquin Valley growers were to be dispatched to Los Angeles and San Francisco today to intensify boycott efforts, Chavez

The UFW executive board agreed Friday night to suspend picketing for three or four days until "we can get from the federal government the right to have picket lines that exercise our civil rights without being trampled on."

Chavez had asked the board to call off picketing temporarily to avoid any further injuries or deaths among his followers at struck grape vineyards.

It was the first time the UFW had ordered suspension of picketing since April. Picketing began that month in the Coachella Valley of Southern California when growers representing about 85 per cent of the grape crop in the valley signed Teamsters contracts instead of renewing UFW pacts.

There were incidents of violence in the Coachella Valley, but the violence worsened when the picketing moved north to the San Joaquin Valley.

Chavez urged the suspension of picketing and concentration on the boycott effort after shots from a passing pickup truck killed Juan De La Cruz, 60, at a picket line Thursday. Three UFW members received minor wounds in earlier shootings.

Chavez credits the long boycott of the 1960s with forcing Delano table grape growers to sign pacts with his union three years ago. He has said the boycott is his most effective bargaining tool.

Wells Are Completed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission reported Saturday that 201 oil wells and 116 gas wells were completed during the past week in Texas.

That raised the total oil well completions for the year to 2,715 compared with 3,079 a year ago, and gas well completions to 1,467, compared with 1,221 at this time in 1972.

The commission said 461 wells were plugged, including 115 dry holes.

Twenty-one wildcat gas wells were drilled—seven in the Kilgore district, three in the San Antonio No. 2 district, two each in the San Antonio No. 1 district and in the Houston, Corpus Christi, San Angelo and Pampa districts, and one in the Midland district. Twelve wildcat oil wells were drilled—eight in the Houston district, three in the Wichita Falls district and one in the Corpus Christi district.

The commission said the average calendar day oil production allowable in Texas as of Aug. 15 was 4,042,789 barrels, an increase of 12,255 barrels a day.

Plans Proceed For Festival

BENTON, Tenn. (AP) — Promoters of a Labor Day weekend music festival say they will proceed with their plans despite denial of a state health permit and a district attorney's petition for an injunction to stop the event.

"They're (the state) definitely wrong, and we're right," said Bob Alexander, an official of C. C. Manifest, Inc., the Evansville, Ind., firm promoting the "Midwest Monster Peace Jubilee and Music Festival"

State officials have estimated as many as 300,000 persons would attend the festival.

Alexander said construction for the festival would proceed on the site, a 500-acre farm owned by a local judge.

Earlier, Alexander said the two-day festival would be divided into two one-day affairs to circumvent the state's health permit criteria.

He said: "Our two-day festival is off. We'll instead have two one-day concerts that will last approximately 10 hours each."

Alexander's statements set the stage for a possible court battle. Dist. Atty. Richard Fisher of nearby Cleveland hinted that the promoters might be arrested if they went ahead with the festival without a permit.

Feds Eye LBJ Improvements

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The costs of improvements made to the ranch and office of former President Lyndon B. Johnson are under federal scrutiny here.

Darrell K. Glenn, regional director of administrations for the General Services Administration. said that the federal auditors arrived Monday to add up expenses ordered for the LBJ ranch when Johnson was president.

Glenn said federal auditors also are looking at records for improvements to Nixon's Key Biscayne home.

Five of the auditors are from the General Accounting Office i(GAO) in Washington.

President Nixon has come under criticism in some circles for the amount of tax money spent on improvements to his Florida and California properties.

The White House said the improvements were recommended by the Secret Service, an agency responsible for protecting the President.

Fort Worth is one of the four federal record centers in the United States and information about Florida works is stored here, Glenn said.

"Now if auditors were examining records of former President Eisenhower, they would have to go to Kansas City. As for Kennedy, they would have to go to Boston," Glenn said.

Glenn said that when Johnson was vice president, GSA built a new federal building in Austin and made security provisions for his ninth floor offices.

"While he was president and a former president, we made improvements to his ranch. Most of those were navigational aids and security fences," Glenn said.

Glenn said he did not know whether auditors also would be checking records of the Defense Department and Federal Aviation Administration.

"I think the DOD (Department of Defense) in Washington did order the runway extended at the ranch to allow jets to land," Glenn said.

GAO auditors are expected to report their findings to a congressional committee headed by Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex.

The committee is reportedly gathering information on spending for Johnson, Eisehower, and Kennedy and Truman for cooperative purposes.

One informed source said that the total spent on the ranch "will prove minute" when compared with the amounts expended on property used by Nixon.

Kennedy Rebukes SCLC

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Southern Christian Leadership Conference rebuked Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., for "political opportunism" before concluding its annual convention here.

The civil rights group Friday criticized Kennedy for presenting an Americanism award to Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace on July 4. The delegates called Kennedy's action "the height of political opportunium in the United States at a time when the crisis in our nation demands electoral leadership uncompromising with racism, police statism and mob rule."

The first national meeting of the SCLC held in the North ended in a shouting session over a resolution urging a possible purge of "ineffective" officers and board members.

The turmoil came on a resolution introduced by the Rev. Joseph Boone, Atlanta, calling for the 52 board members and officers to meet with SCLC chapter representatives with in 45 days "to evaluate every board member and officer."

Boone complained that some members "pay their $100 and never attend meetings." His resolution was approved by the delegates.

The Rev. John A. Jamnivky, a white Catholic priest, led a Chicago delegation that attempted to trim the power of President Ralph David Abernathy, asking that "more decision-making power be placed in the hands of the executive staff, thereby alleviating the president of the total burden of all decisions."

He was ruled out of order because the resolutions committee already had rejected the move.

The convention had rejected Rev. Abernathy's resignation two days earlier and had re-elected him to a sixth term under suspension of the rules. Re-elected Friday was Dr. Joseph E. Lowery of Atlanta, who will be serving his 16th term as SCLC board chairman.

He is a specialist for pig-management and animal-nutrition, and has, in his function as head of the Servetaria-Animal - Health - Service, 380 pig farms with an average stock of 300 pigs under his care. His work with cattle is emphasized on diseases of the milk-gland and on herd-infertilities in cows. His visits to farms and ranches are a valuable contribution to his daily task in Austria.

Besides this he runs a small animal practice and publishes an "Animal Page" in a monthly magazine.

In wintertime he is busy giving courses and speeches about animal health and hygiene.

Dr. Kaun, who speaks excellent English, enjoyed his visit in Texas and appreciates all the invitations of Snyder families.

Shell Report Indicates More Imports, Synthetics

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — A Shell Oil Co. report indicates imports and synthetic gas will supply nearly one-half of the nation's gas requirements by 1990.

The latest in a series of Shell papers on the national energy problem also says such supplementary supplies of gas will be quite expensive when compared with domestically produced natural gas.

Shell estimates marketed domestic gas production will drop from its peak of 21.3 trillion cubic feet in 1972 to about 11.2 trillion by 1990.

"Reserves have fallen from a 32-year supply in 1946 to a 10 to 11-year supply at present and are expected to stay in that range through 1990," the new paper reports.

"By that time, the share of natural gas in total U.S. energy supply will have decreased from about one-third to about one-eighth, and we believe that difference inevitably must be made up principally by imported oil."

President Nixon's April energy message recommended deregulation of prices on new interstate gas supplies and called for the tripling of federal lease sales.

The Shell paper describes such actions as "the essential first steps towards an improved situation" but adds that attainment of such objectives would not relieve the overall problem quickly.

"Although deregulation, if enacted by Congress, and increased lease sales must surely help in slowing the pace of decline in natural gas supplies, it would be unrealistic to reckon on an early major change in forecast trends," the report states.

As a further indication of supply decline, the report adds, production of natural gas during the 1973-90 period is expected to exceed additions to proved reserves by 108 trillion cubic feet.

The decline to 11.2 trillion cubic feet a year by 1990 takes into consideration potential production from both northern and southern areas of Alaska.

Total supply by 1990 is estimated at 20.7 trillion cubic feet a year. In addition to the 11.2 trillion cubic feet from domestic production, Shell estimates imported natural gas will account for 3.2 trillion, liquid natural gas imports will supply 1.6 trillion, synthetic gas will supply 2.5 trillion, and coal gasification will supply 2.2 trillion cubic feet.

The report states that domestic wellhead prices of natural gas now average about 20 cents per 1,000 cubic feet and that delivery of the gas by pipeline to the East Coast increases this to about 50 cents.

The paper estimates delivery of imported liquid natural gas to the East Coast now costs from $1 to $1.15 for 1,000 cubic feet but adds that this price range is expected to increase to $1.20 to $1.30 by 1980. Such prices, coupled with uncertainty of sources, are expected to limit such imports to about eight per cent of total U.S. gas requirements by 1980.

Shell estimates gasification of naptha, crude oil, and natural gas liquids cost $1.20 a thousand cubic feet now and is expected to remain higher than all other types of gas supply.

"The conversion of oil into a substitute natural gas is done at a considerable net energy loss, and is only a short-term stop-gap measure to ease the gas supply situation," the report states.

Steps For Podiatrist

Career Corner

by Joyce Lain Kennedy

Dear Joyce: Would you please write about podiatrists, starting with what a person should take in high school? — T.Y., Worcester, Mass.

A podiatrist is a specialist in the care of the human foot. He diagnoses and treats diseases, injuries and defects of the human foot by medical and surgical methods. He prescribes correct footwear and suggests proper foot hygiene.

I say "he" because this field is wide open for women but not enough are getting the message. Only 3-4 percent of current podiatrists, and 15 of the approximately 1,300 students now enrolled in the 5 schools of podiatry are female. And this is a career that combines ideally with homemaking responsibilities because most podiatrists can set their own hours and work part time if they choose. Further, only 60 of present students belong to minority groups, despite recruiting activities by the profession.

TRAINING FOOTHOLD. You'll need at least 6 years of college (2 undergraduate years plus 4 years at a college of podiatric medicine). Over half of graduating students spend an additional year or two in a hospital residency program. Most applicants accepted by the podiatric colleges have a bachelor's degree (4 years) or 3 years of college, which makes the average time in preparation between 8-9 years after high school. In high school, take a college prep program, including English, physics, biology, chemistry, or other sciences.

GOOD-PAYING PROFESSION. Figures from the American Podiatry Association indicate that podiatrists in practice about 7-10 years earn an average $35,000 a year after overhead expenses are paid. During the early years of practice, the podiatrists earnings are understandably low due to the many expenses involved, but earnings increase as your practice develops. It takes about 7 years to become established and earn close to your maximum income, although some are able to build a thriving practice in less time. The vast majority of podiatrists are in private practice. Some are commissioned officers in the armed forces, while others work in hospitals, clinics, departments of public health, or teach in colleges of podiatry.

FEW ARCH RIVALS. This is one of the least crowded of the health professions. There are an estimated 7,300 active podiatrists today, of which a large percentage are over 55. This means future demand will be stimulated by substantial replacement needs as well as the expected growth of the profession.

About 30 percent of podiatry patients are over 65, because of the low birth rate during the 1930s, there may be some slight lessening of demand by the older population during the decade of 1985-95, as the depression babies reach senior citizenship. However, this is likely to be offset, by the increasing trend toward preventive foot care for children, and a growing acceptance of the need for podiatry by middle-aged people. For example, hospitals for the first time have national standards to admit podiatrists to their medical staffs.

PODIATRIC ASSISTANTS. Recently a 2-year associate degree program has been developed to train podiatric assistants. They prepare patients for treatment, sterilize instruments, perform general office duties, and assist the podiatrist in preparing dressings, administering treatments, and developing X-rays. Three schools currently offer this program: Jefferson Community College in Louisville, Ky.; Pennsylvania College of Podiatric Medicine in Philadelphia, Pa.; and Hostos Community College in conjunction with the Lewi College of Podiatry in New York City. Other podiatric aides learn on the job.

READER SERVICE. The American Podiatry Association is preparing a detailed new career booklet, "Podiatric Education," and you may have a free copy by enclosing an eight-cent stamp and gummed return mailing label with your request. Send your request to Joyce Lain Kennedy at this newspaper. Write "Podiatry" in the corner of your outside envelope. Booklet will be sent as soon as it's back from the printers which is expected to be in early September.

Jeweler Released

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A jewelry store manager who told of being kidnaped by extortionists has been returned here and released to the custody of his lawyer.

The manager, Bill Baker, 28, told police Thursday he was approached by three men earlier who told him they were holding his wife hostage.

Baker told police one of the men demanded diamonds and cash from the jewelry store and then asked him to drive north of the city on IH35.

"We drove past the downtown exit and on north of 28th street ...," said Baker. He told officers the man kept him drugged for several hours.

Officers said it was not immediately clear how Baker escaped his captor and retrieved the $35,000 in diamonds and $600 in cash.

Shortly after Baker left the store Wednesday afternoon, his wife called seeking her husband because no one was in their apartment when she returned from work.

Cancer Conquest Plan To Cost Billion A Year

By WILLIAM STOCKTOM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A blueprint for the conquest of cancer—patterned after the "systemss analysis" approach that landed men on the moon—projects an escalating battle that will cost more than $1 billion a year by 1978.

The cost projections are contained in the first two volumes of the long-awaited national cancer program released by the White House Friday. The plan outlines a broad attack on America's No. 2 killer that ranges from basic research on why the biological cell goes awry and becomes cancerous to how to aid surviving cancer victims disabled by the disease or its treatment.

Cautioning that the projected costs are "planning estimates rather than funding requirements," the plan envisages total National Cancer Institute support of $800 million by fiscal 1978 and other federal, state, local and volunteer research costs of $400 million.

The cancer program already dominates federal health research expenditures, a fact criticised by some scientists who worry that other killer diseases may be neglected. If the projected figures prove accurate, the scientists say, cancer expenditures probably will take an even larger slice of future biomedical research budgets.

The National Cancer Institute's fiscal 1974 budget is $500 million, with another $300 million expected to be spent by other federal agencies, state and local governments and volunteer organizations.

The two volumes released Friday were termed the strategic portion of the cancer conquest plan. The operational volume detailing how the goals are to be accomplished, is expected to be ready about mid 1974.

The strategy calls for tackling the feared disease on seven fronts. They were listed as:

—Reducing the ability of outside agents such as chemicals, radiation and other environmental substances, called carcinogens, to induce cancer.

--Enhancing the body's ability to fight off unseen or unknown carcinogens and prevent formation of the disease.

—Finding a way to prevent normal human cells from "transforming" into cells whose runaway reproduction ability makes them cancerous.

—Preventing the transition of "precancerous" cells to cancerous cells and stopping the spread of cancer cells from one organ to other sites in the body.

—Developing greater public understanding of the general risks of developing cancers.

—Developing better tools to cure cancer patients or arrest the development and spread of a cancer that cannot be irradicated.

-Improving the rehabilitation of victims disabled by the disease.

Houston Teachers Optimistic

HOUSTON (AP) — The executive director of the Houston Teachers Association says progress has been made in contract negotiations but warned the possibility of a strike by the Houston School District's 9,000 teachers still exists.

Mrs. Norma Kacen said Friday she was more optimistic about the negotiations than she has been in months.

Mrs. Kacen warned, however, that there remains the possibility of a strike if no agreement comes prior to a tentatively scheduled mass meeting of HTA members Sunday night, the day before regular classes begin.

Supt. George Gerver, in a move interpreted as a softening of the administration's stance, said the district has some limited funds that could go for modest increases in teacher salaries this year.

The amount will be far less than the $11 million needed if the administration planned to meet the teachers' demands, Garver said.

The teachers, who currently receive $7,100 to $12,600 annually, are seeking an across-the-board $1,100 per year salary increase.

Women Demand Male Nudity

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The editor of Playgirl magazine says women are demanding total male nudity in the new publication.

"They are writing in, saying it is about time we had a magazine of our own. They want male nudity, and they are not satisfied with the football helmet or towel draped strategically in front. They want total nudity," Marin Milam said in an interview Friday.

The magazine, which first appeared in May, is modeled after Playboy but features male instead of female nudes. Its first issue sold 600,000 copies; 1.6 million copies will be printed of its fifth issue next month.

HEALTH TIP from DEAN
What is a simple and effective way to cool off on hot days? Just immerse your hands and wrists in cold water. Part of the effect may be psychological — part may be due to cooling of blood passing thru the wrists and hands— but it works! Naturally a cool shower or a swim will be more effective, but lacking this, cool water on hands and wrists will bring welcome relief.

Firms Admit Illegal Donations

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two more firms have admitted making illegal corporate contributions to President Nixon's re-election campaign. Phillips Petroleum Co. said it gave $100,000, and Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co. admitted to a $30,000 contribution.

Four other corporations previously had disclosed similar contributions.

A spokesman for the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President said on Friday that the contributions had been returned to the companies.

Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing, known as 3M, made its announcement in St. Paul. A spokesman refused to say who authorized the contribution.

Phillips, headquartered in Bartlesville, Okla., said the cash contribution came from W. W. Keeler, former chief executive officer and chairman of the board. Keeler resigned as chairman Jan. 1.

A company spokesman said the "contributions were made without the approval or knowledge of the board of directors." He said that, when the board first learned of the contributions last Monday, they ordered that special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox be informed.

Keeler; John Houchin, present chairman of the board; and W. F. Martin, company president, could not be reached

The finance committee spokesman said the committee had not been informed originally that the contribution came from a corporate source "and, in fact, we were given to understand the contribution came from individuals in Oklahoma."

Other corporate contributions reported include $100,000 from Gulf Oil Corp., $100,000 from Ashland Oil, Inc., $55,000 from American Airlines and $40,000 from Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

Federal law prohibits a candidate from receiving campaign gifts from corporations, labor unions or banks and provides for fines up to $10,000 and two years' imprisonment for violaters.

Seek To Cancel Gas Contracts

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The cities of Austin and San Antonio, the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) and the University of Texas System will ask the Texas Railroad Commission Monday to cancel 10 natural gas contracts entered into by Lo-Vaca Gathering Co.

The petitioners say Lo-Vaca, the distributing firm for Coastal States Gas Producing Co., has sold gas needed by them under contracts with Lo-Vaca or Southern Union Gas Co., which buys from Lo-Vaca.

LCRA furnishes electricity, much of it generated by burning natural gas, to 33 cities in Central Texas.

LETTER TO EDITOR

To The Snyder Daily News:

There is a growing trend in our community and nation of reliance on alcohol & drugs. You hear about drug problems all the time, accounts about young people who get into trouble with drugs. There is one drug that causes more problems than all the others - alcohol. When one drinks in excess, the problem is called alcoholism. It is a sickness that can get worse and worse, but it is treatable.

There are many people, both men and women, who use alcohol as a crutch to face their responsibilities. Drinking can complicate things, especially when it becomes a habit. The family suffers, and so does work; you could even lose your job. Many will not accept the fact that they have a drinking problem. Alcohol, when it becomes a habit, is a sickness, a tough problem to beat, and it may require the help of professionals. If your problem is drinking, if it is your husband's or wife's, your father or mother or a brother or sister, ask for help. Contact Alcoholism Treatment Center, your call is confidential; no one else will know.

I have noticed during the past week that another generation of webworms are hatching, so we need to be on the lookout for the small webs forming. When the webs are small they are so much easier to control, with less damage to trees than when they become real large.

If you haven't been out in the surrounding rural areas to see the crops, I think you would enjoy it now. The prospects for a good crop are excellent at this time. And according to the area extension entomologist newsletter insects are not causing a lot of damage or concern. Insect activity is sporadic, and only occasionally is there report of damaging infestations. As always, there are a certain number of insects present.

From the Texas Forest Service I received a supply of applications for windbreak seedlings this week. These are for the Spring, 1974, planting, but can be filled out now, and the date for delivery specified. These seedlings are bare-rooted and must be for a hundred or more in multiples of 50, of any one species. They must be used for windbreak purposes. The following species are available: Austrian Pine, Green Ash, Honeylocust, Mulberry, Oriental Arbarvitas, Osage Orange, Ponderosa Pine, Red Cedar, at a cost of $3 per 100. If you are interested in a windbreak you will need to pick up an application and mail it before Feb. 12, 1974.

During July, Texas had 350 outbreaks of screwworms. This does sound like a large number, and it is, but it was a 92 per cent drop from last July when Texas recorded 15,331. This is the worst July on record for screwworm cases in Arizona and New Mexico, and second worst for California. Texas has fared much better than the states to the west. Dr. Meadows, director of the Mission Screwworm Eradication Laboratory, says that they will get tougher before they improve, with the peak season approaching. Producers must be on the lookout for possible outbreaks in our area.

The kind of weather we are having and the conditions of our pastures and ranges remind us to be even more careful of fire. Much of this area is covered with a cover of vegetation, and as the grass dries it is very susceptable to fire. Fires can be extremely damaging. They destroy valuable livestock feed, and food and cover for wildlife. Also, by destroying the vegetation, it increases the possibility of soil erosion and accelerates water run-off following rainfall. Keep this in mind as you drive through areas where a fire hazard exists and take necessary precautions.

L-145 "Cotton Defoliation and Dissection" will not be revised this year since there have been no new harvest-aid chemicals recommended or released.

Absence Policy On Court Appearance

The board of trustees of the Snyder Independent School District approved a policy on absence due to a court appearance or as the result of arrest or court actions. This action was taken at the board's regular meeting last Tuesday night and pertains to Snyder High School.

A student subpoenaed to appear in court at no fault of his own will receive an excused absence or tardy slip.

Absences and tardiness will be unexcused unless the charges against the student are dropped and-or he is found innocent of such charges. A note from a parent, lawyer or judge will be required to receive excused absences.

A student not being subpoeaned but needed as a witness may receive an excused absence or tardy slip under one condition. If a statement from the lawyer or parent of the defendant is presented to the attendance office in advance requesting the student to appear as a witness, this student may receive an excused absence or tardy slip.

In most cases it seems unnecessary for more than one student to appear in behalf of another student.

If a student is charged or indicted on a felony charge, that student's relationship to the school and the student body is immediately altered. The school wishes to cooperate to the fullest extent possible in providing for that student's needs. However, consideration must also be given to the remainder of the student body and the effect upon it.

The student may be suspended from classes for a period of time deemed appropriate depending upon the charges and the attitude of the student involved. In most cases, a maximum time of suspension would be three days. Before he shall be permitted to return to class, a conference shall be held between the student, his parent and the administration. The school's position will be explained at that time as it relates to the case.

In general, the student involved in felony charges or indictments will be permitted to attend school under probationary conditions. If the student can attend school without creating a negative atmosphere or condition among other students and without becoming a discipline problem or demonstrating a poor attitude toward school through irregular attendance, he will be encouraged to continue his education.

If the student does not adhere to the agreed upon conditions, he may be suspended from school until the disposition of his case.

The school's position for students on court probations shall be the same as for those charged or indicted. If the student does not adhere to the agreed upon conditions, he may be suspended from school for a period of time deemed appropriate with the case involved.

Capital Spending

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — "The service center industry will spend over $150 million on capital equipment in 1973," R. G. Welch, president of the Steel Service Center Institute told the group's 64th annual meeting.

"Between 1960 and 1970, service centers doubled in size in terms of tonnage of material shipped," [illegible] Welch.

Hijacker Said Mentally Ill

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Libya said today the Arab who hijacked a Lebanese airliner to Israel was a mentally unbalanced Libyan citizen. This refuted widespread Arab claims that he was an Israeli agent.

A Cairo-dated dispatch by the Middle East News agency quoted Tripoli Radio as saying Mohammed Touni was a native of Zintan Village and had a Libyan passport issued on June 24, 1973.

The broadcast quoted his mother as saying he had been "mentally ill since his childhood and his father had frequently taken him to a mental asylum in Tripoli for treatment."

The mother said he was "always a loner and finally broke off relations with the family after several feuds." He worked for an insurance company in Libya but was discharged because of frequent absences, according to the broadcast.

Touni, 37, had been identified as Tourni by Israeli authorities. He has been jailed in Israel and faces possible life imprisonment for hijacking the Middle East Airlines Boeing 707 on a flight from Benghazi to Beirut Thursday.

The plane with 125 passengers and crew remained at Tel Aviv airport for five hours while the Israelis plied the hijack victims with brandy, cakes and questions and arranged several news conferences.

Touni told an Israeli court that he was a "God-fearing Moslem."

Supply Plentiful

BOSTON (AP) — There are mapped and explored reserves of 1.6 trillion tons of coal in this country, about half of which are recoverable by present technology, and probably another 1.6 trillion tons yet undiscovered, Arthur D. Little, Inc. reports.

Calling coal the most abundant fuel this country has, the research firm adds that 59 per cent of all coal mined in the United States is used to generate electricity.

Rizzo Wants Bell To Stay

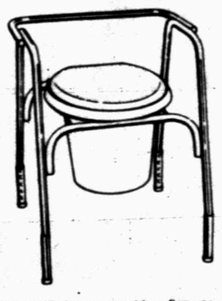

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mayor Frank Rizzo wants the Liberty Bell to stay in Independence Hall here.

An aide said on Friday that the mayor opposes a proposal by the Independence National Historical Park Advisory Commission that the bell be moved to a planned structure at the opposite end of a mall running northward from Independence Hall.

Rizzo wants the 220-year-old, 2,081 pound bell, which is owned by the city but is under the custody of the commission, to stay on the first floor of Independence Hall.
