The Woman's Day

By Allene Summer

Years and years ago Mrs. Somebody or Other needed a stamp in a hurry. She didn't have two cents handy, so she rummaged among her old letters, found an old stamp, licked it and sent it off. The other day the woman sent a brand-new stamp with a letter of remembrance to the U. S. Treasury. Told Uncle Sam she had suffered "loss" the ravages of conscience in these many years. And one feels so sorry—not for the woman, but for her family. Think of living with a woman who took the use of a cancelled stamp so seriously! Not that this is an apology for dishonesty but God pity the household of a woman who lets past sins haunt her to such a degree!

H. C. OF BEAUTY

Jane W. there, a model of Cleveland, Ohio, asked for income tax exemption to the tune of $234.50. She based her exemption on what she called "professional necessities." She listed under this head—hair-cutting, $25; manicure, $17.50; shampoo, $6; cosmetics, $35; manicures, $48. Seriously, there is certain food for thought here. Business men may claim exemption for "business necessities." And, believe it or not as you will, certain women hold certain jobs by virtue and simple of their appearance. They might argue with more or less logic that the cost of this appearance should be listed as a "business necessity." But who will decide when manicures and make-ups constitute a "business necessity" because a woman likes to look nice, whether she can

The lesson for the afternoon on romanticism and materialism in modern painting, was led by Mrs. Dorcas L. Rodenick, who was assisted by Mesdames Homer Pharr and O. L. Peterman and Miss Mary Meador.

Miss Blanche Bacon, in the fifth grade of the public schools, read a paper on the city of Washington as an original novel, but had been prepared by Miss Mayne Alexander.

ABOUT WOMEN

They've discovered something else about women. Women were the first billiards, say they. When the first "game" was invented the first "board" gave the rocking side to his lady for a coat, and when she started about like a modern sandwich advertiser, with the coat proudly displayed to the envious, she was advertising that her husband was a good provider. In the naughty 90's "something else about women" the husband should try to keep his attractions and should think of the little things such as occasionally investing a quarter in a bunch of violets or helping with the dishes.

A FLAPPER SPOUTS

Here's a few more words of wisdom from "One Of Us" who has written the dumbest book of the age entitled "Our Generation." The smart young thing has these sprightly, original, and very deepish words addressed to husbands—"The husband should try to keep his attractions and should think of the little things such as occasionally investing a quarter in a bunch of violets or helping with the dishes." Please don't think I "have it in" for you, I love you, but I believe that it should be seen and heard until it really has something of its own to say.

Chic Femininity Rules The Mode

EQUAL RIGHTS ESTABLISHED, MILADY NEEDS A MANNISH TONE NO MORE

Lace and chiffon wrap—by Rebox
BY HENRI SENDEL
For NEA Service

NEW YORK, April 6.—Back to strictly feminine lines is the predominant note in women's costumes as styles turn towards spring and summer.

Woman is established completely now in all her "equal rights." No more need to demonstrate her strength by affecting mannish attire. She has emerged definitely free and equal. Now she can choose anything she wishes to wear. And apparently she chooses the most feminine apparel, some of it even quite old-fashioned in its lines.

Gender Lines

Softer materials, more trimmings, tucks, ruffles and intricate stitchings are being used. Fuller and gender lines prevail.

Nowhere is this ultra-feminine tendency more noticeable than in the evening gowns and wraps that spell warm evenings when they are worn.

One of the plain, straight-line evening gowns. For even when made of gorgeous brocades and gold and silver cloth there was something definitely severe in many of them. Even instead evening wraps. Some are fashioned like capes, others made from squares of delicate, soft fabric. Dainty, becoming, they enhance their wearer's beauty as a severe garment rarely can.

Taffeta Stands High

Taffeta, having a suggestion of spring in its crispness of texture, is among the first choices of materials for evening. It is on light wraps of this type that Paris has bestowed its favor this season. Chiffon, for instance, is showing the model of black evening cape illustrated today.

Designed in deep graceful folds, it ties with an enormous bow at the side of the throat, is flounced in deep ruffles and has a deep pointed yoke in the back. It has proved so becoming and popular that similar models have been developed in American beauty taffeta with petalled flounces that make it look like a rose.

Black Gire Applique

Spidery black lace and pale green chiffon fashion one of Rebox's most charming evening wraps for warmer evenings. The lace is black and applied on green chiffon. The air with which milady holds the dainty wrap around her expresses her own type of wrap should be a shade darker than the evening gown worn under it. Or it should form a pleasing contrast by a different color.

It really is amazing what forms a few square have been made to take this spring. Hundreds of them, imported from France by the foremost couturiers, are delighting the feminine hearts they warm. Also pictured today is one of these charming squares made of blonde crepe lace edged with gold. It can be worn triumphantly as a shawl or worn, or draped as illustrated to form a coat.

White Chiffon

The black and white of daytime costumes is carried out in many evening gowns and wraps. White chiffon gowns, popular for alluring evening wear for balmy evenings, are doubly charming when accompanied by black lace wraps.

Of the pastel shades, greens predominate with lavenders, bordering on bluish tones. Laces come in shading to match any evening color. But open-patterned laces of gold and silver, combined with colorful chiffons, make more effective wraps.

DEEPER MEANING OF CLEAN-UP WEEK

a city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God. (Hebrew xi, 10). God made the country, and man made the town. runs William Cowper's oft-quoted line in "The Task." Yet the thought of God as a builder and maker of cities, as well as encountered frequently in Holy Writ. How that idea has entered into and shaped men's delicious conceptions is evident from the number of cities built and dedicated to the Deity—the ancient Heliopolis, Jerusalem, Constantinople, Mecca. Indeed, man's celestial abode as described in the Apocalypse is a "city" of pearly gates and streets paved with gold. Should not every city be—so far as human fallibility will allow—a city of God? At least it may cherish such an ideal, knowing that to the degree this vision is realized it will have attained unto that perfection to which the worthy community, no less than the noble individual, aspires. The foundations of so exalted an enterprise—a city built of God—necessarily must be a pure morality in civic, as in personal, life. Too, it must look after the material, as well as the spiritual welfare of its citizens and must give heed to creating and perpetuating forms of beauty. Observe the process by which God makes the country; Nature's purifying, renovating and beautifying service is going on continually. Lightning clears the atmosphere; the rain washes away impurities; grass, flowers and leaves cover up ugly and forbidding places. The lilies of the field, the Master said, are more beautifully arrayed than Solomon in all his glory. When it is not despoiled by man, the outdoor world is clean and lovely. And is there not a river running through the New Jerusalem, and close beside it the Tree of Life? Round about it the grass must grow perpetually green, and stretching away from it are fields of blooming asphodel. Beauty in the city may be, like faith in the individual, an outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual grace. A clean, attractive appearance will be interpreted as evidence of abiding qualities which make for progress—such as care of the public health, civic pride and a cultivated esthetic sense. As John Wesley said on the occasion of his famous sermon, "On Dress," to keep clean is to manifest a reverence for God. The body as the soul's temple, as the handiwork of the Creator, deserves clean habits. That truth applies with equal force to the city which would be fashioned after a divine model. "Slovenliness is no part of religion; neither this nor any text of Scripture condemns neatness of apparel. Certainly this is a duty, not a sin; cleanliness is, indeed, next to godliness." So, the great preacher said on would be godlike must give heed to this maxim. It should manifest even greater zeal than does the most scrupulous person over appearances, seeing that its collective responsibilities are so much heavier. The annual Clean-up Week campaign—now observed almost universally and with salutary results—thus will be seen to have not merely civic and sanitary, but religious, significance. The community that puts its heart into this crusade profits greatly and permanently. It is afforded beneficial spiritual exercise along with its physical activities, and it gives expression, in a form which all the world can see and understand, to its aspirations toward godliness.

AND SO WE JOURNEY ON

This old world is making speed. Progress is noticed in every part of the nation—the United States. In every line of industry there is a general forcing to the front. Rapid progress is being made. Machinery is speeding things up to a great rate. Railroads are built now in months that twenty years ago would have taken years to build. Highways stretch out through the hills and across the valleys. The plains are traversed, the deserts are penetrated. The mountains are scaled, and we go forward without much thought about how quickly things are happening. This is a marvelous age. It is an age of fast-going machines as a means of transportation. It is an age of education—people are eager to learn. They are getting knowledge from so many different sources. They get it through the reading of books, and from newspapers, and from the picture shows and over the radio. Every source of learning is crowded. The colleges and the Universities are jammed with young people and with middle-aged people seeking knowledge. The Public schools are crowded, and in this western country there is much money being spent for the education of the rising generation. This is commendable. But what attracts our attention is the fast life that we are living and the development of the country by means of the fast machines that are taking the day. In this day of restlessness and much fast driving, one is made dizzy when he begins to fathom it all. Great arteries of commerce have been born almost overnight by an industry that has taken its place as one of the modern necessities and has become established to the extent that today other industries have sprung up to support or supply the necessities with which the wheels of the former are kept in motion. In many places cities have grown up in which are housed thousands of workers who labor in the transportation field or its kindred undertakings. One has but to travel the highways to note that this is true, in that literally dozens of supply and filling stations are in operation sometimes within a few miles, and we are presuming that all are getting a satisfactory business, or they would cease to exist. The great stretches of the western part of Texas are no more when we reckon in time, as today the automobile accomplishes in a few minutes what it took the prairie schooner days to do, and ribbons of concrete stretch across the prairies where once the trail was the only convenience to guide the traveller as he wended his way into the unknown West. In places where a few years ago two or three prairie schooners would make the natives remark that the country was on a boom automobiles now whiz by in hundreds and the natives scarcely notice a machine which a dozen years ago would have created a sensation. Filling stations have sprung up at a rapid rate and camping grounds may be found at almost every desirable spot, and today it is barely possible to get out of sight of some sort of station that has been erected for the convenience of the traveler. At some places it has come to the point where almost every farm has its own filling station. Such is the growth of the industry of travel and from the present outlook it seems as there is to be no end as to how far it may all go. But with the automobile becoming more perfect and enduring with each new model, it may well be said that within the next three or four years we may witness greater development along this line than has been accomplished since inception of the industry.

ENGLAND'S NAVY

The imperial government has accepted the invitation of President Coolidge to discuss further the limitation of naval armament. We hope there is no harm in discussion, since the narrow limits of safety embodied in our present naval provisions must be well understood by his majesty's ministers. But as our present financial difficulties might awake in some minds unjustified expectations, let us point once more to the iron necessities which govern this question, at least as far as this country is concerned. With the United States it is different; to them a strong navy is no doubt in the nature of luxury, since they are in practically all the necessities of life a self-contained continent, and could not be starved out. Moreover, they are some thousands of miles from the nearest possible enemy. The United States are fortunate in having no cause for anxiety.

But with Great Britain and the British Empire things are very different. We live by the sea; our food, our very existence, is always afloat. We are so situated that an interruption of the services which carry our necessities across to us might starve us to death or to submission. This became so clear in the Great War that we do not see how anyone can question it today. Moreover, as we live by the sea trade which covers the whole world we are vulnerable at many points, and have to police many seas. At the present time, for example, disorders in China have drawn a large part of our fleet east of Suez. These things being so, even the present ratio to which we are condemned by international agreement is grossly unfair to this country. There is besides the disparity of our land forces to the armies of our neighbors. We must be strong at sea because we are weak on land.

Here let us say something of two common and closely related fallacies. One is that there is some powerful group within this country, in the government or elsewhere, perpetually athirst for war. Such is the acquisition of our enemies in Russia and in China; but it is false. As England lives by trade, war is to her the greatest of misfortunes (next to defeat), and her greatest interest is peace. This is so well understood that no party in this country could live if it tried to force on a war for any purpose of conquest or aggrandizement. England will only fight in self-defense. The other fallacy is that the existence of the British navy makes for war. The contrary is true; it makes for peace.

Had the British Empire no royal navy to inspire respect in the world her great wealth would cause enemies to spring up everywhere. Wealth without strength to defend it may be called the most fruitful of all sources of war. Consider the case of a jeweler who should display all night without even plate glass between them and thieves. Or consider the case of a town rich in jewelers' shops, which, to save the rates, abolished its police force. Such a policy would create robberies; and in the same way the disarmament of a rich empire would create wars. Our enemies would increase in the ratio that our strength diminished until we went down in such a universal conflagration of violence and rapine as the earth has not yet witnessed. And thus we see the fallacy of the argument commonly used that wars are caused by armaments. It would be as sensible to say that burglaries were caused by jemmies, dynamite cartridges and steel drills, and not by the rapacity and lawlessness which still lurk in human nature.

Compared with Sayeda Amra of Cairo, Egypt, our American bigamists are mere pikers. Amra married 36 wives in 12 years and No. 36 had had him arrested for forging divorce certificates.

Those who were country boys half a century ago will remember copper-toed boots and shoes. The Vicksburg Herald of August 22, 1865, advised: "Shoes are an important item in the expense of clothing children. They invariably wear out at the toe first. It will be wise for parents to buy metal-tipped shoes. We believe all shoe dealers keep them."

SO THINK WE

We think that the eternal triangles are composed in most cases of three cases of very bad judgment.

We think the flower exchange idea in Lubbock is a mighty fine thing, and it will no doubt be one of the best means of more beautiful yards. This makes a more worthwhile place in which to live.

We think the difference between a home and a residence is that the former runs largely to a family and the latter to automobiles.

We think Lubbock has many beautiful streets and she has a terrible lot of awfully rough ones. We, of course, are anxious that as many of them be paved as possible, and we are sure the people of this city will go forward as rapidly as possible.

We think it would be a wonderful thing if the girls and the women were as modest as they used to be. We are sure many of them would blush themselves to death.

We think Lubbock could be made a much cleaner town, and the people who live here are going to have to do the cleaning up. The non-residents are not going to do it. It is too bad that the fellows who have reaped the benefits of our pioneering and improvements cannot be made to help in the matter, but it seems that this is not possible so let's tee off, and put the clean up program over.

We think from the number of shade trees and the amount of shrubbery that has been brought to Lubbock this year and sold here that there is going to be a great deal of beautifying going on. And this is as it should be. Cooperation of neighbors will help. If one neighbor works all the while keeping the yard up in good shape, and a row or a chicken or a dog of the neighbor comes along and destroy in five minutes that it has taken several months to grow, very little progress can be made.

We think Lubbock people should wake up to the fact that many of the trees in this town that have been removed to the home for many years are being killed by insects, and something should be done to remedy this. They can kill out more in one year than we can grow in ten if the proper care is not taken of the trees.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that a strong fight will be made against the proposed tax on tobacco in Texas. We are of the opinion that it would be a rather capricious proposition to the dealers. Dealers in other states could send their stuff into Texas at a low price than the Texas dealer could sell it because of the tax, which one can readily see would be unjust to the Texas dealer.

It is reported that since spring has been lingering in the lap of winter an unusual time, although has become so upset that she has decided to march right in and take a rest before Miss Spring takes her departure.

It is reported that one woman in Lubbock says she has an ideal husband except that he always has the car down town when she wants it.

It is reported that some one of the high society ladies of this town says the reason the writer of this column is not a social success is because, when we attempt animated conversation we become incoherent. This report was intended for us to hear, and it came to us in a round about way. We would like to know who the smart little thing was for we would like to thank her for the information. We have been wondering for so long just what the trouble was.

It is reported that many of the trees of this city are affected with some kind of disease that is liable

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY

George W. Foster returned to his home here yesterday after a visit to Haskell county where he looked after his farm properties. Four inches of rain was recorded in that county during March, and farmers are pleased with prospects for the 1927 crop.

Funeral services of R. Williamson, 78 years of age, who died at the home of his son, E. Williamson at Wellfirth, Monday were conducted there yesterday morning and interment was made in the Lubbock cemetery.

Mrs. G. M. Terry and children have returned to their home here after spending two weeks with her people at Wellfirth.

E. B. Ribble of the firm of Ribble & Ribble, architects, returned to his home here yesterday after a business trip to Amarillo.

Judge E. A. Smith, president of the Littlefield chamber of commerce, was a business visitor to Lubbock yesterday.

G. N. Inabitt of Corsicana, traveling for the Inabitt company, spent yesterday in Lubbock.

Herbert Street returned to his home here yesterday after a business trip to Dallas.

COUNTY SCHOOL SURVEY RESULTS

During the past five years the number of rural schools in Wichita county, Texas, has been reduced from 24 to 21, according to a report of the progress those schools are making in the March number of "The Texas Outlook," the official publication of the Texas State Teachers' Association. Realizing that small county schools are unsatisfactory for the adequate training of boys and girls, Wichita county school patrons are endeavoring to eliminate such schools wherever practicable.

Other improvements in the county made during the past five years are twelve new buildings, four of which have large auditoriums, gymnasiums for school and community uses; nine new teacherages, making a total of fourteen at the present time; many local financial supports for the schools; better trained teachers, practically all of the present staff having had at least one year of college training; in addition to high school graduation; secondary school advantages for all children of the county; and transportation for people residing beyond walking distance of the larger schools.

The marked improvement in the schools of Wichita county, Texas, during recent years is significant because the changes resulted from a survey of the educational facilities of this county made in 1921-1922 by experts from the school of education of the University of Texas. A report of the survey with conclusions embodying recommendations for improvement was published as a bulletin of the state university and given wide circulation among the patrons of the county schools.

America's Highway System

America's present highway system, almost impassable roads. In addition, there is convincing evidence even in our large cities and contiguous territory that the automobile rapidly outgrows what may appear to be a more than sufficient network of good streets and highways.

There is no dearth of data to prove the necessity for constant expansion of our street and highway systems. It clearly is the duty of everyone to give the good roads thought a most aggressive quality instead of allowing it to grow torpid.

FACING LIFE

Face the day and all it brings. Knowing that its tasks must end. Waste no time in musing. Brave whatever the gods may send.

Whether skies be blue or gray, Whether fortune smiles or frowns, Bear your burdens best you may, Till the time to put them down.

Look at life with open eyes, Whether praise or blame is won, With the morning sun must rise, Still to tasks which must be done.

Be not dazzled or deceived, Long the way to reach the goal, What was yesterday achieved, Will be lost if now you fall.

Greater will your courage gleam If from failure of the past To the goal of which you dream You shall force your way at last.

Standfast from day to day, Cling to what you know is best, With a brave heart walk the way, Standing up to every test.

MATADORS TRIM CADETS IN SEASON'S OPENER

WALLER'S PITCHING FEATURE OF GAME WHICH TECH LADS ANNEX BY SCORE OF SEVEN TO THREE DURING MOUND DUEL

With the steady pitching of Big Day Waller, Texas Tech set fast ball pitcher, who twice times forced the Cadets of New Mexico Military Institute to retire to the bench in the opening game of the season's opener. The Freeland baseball crew won their initial game with a score of 7 to 3 before some 300 ball fans of the college and Lubbock yesterday afternoon at the Tech park. Waller was right and for the exception of one inning, the eighth, the Cadets were allowed but one hit in an inning. The big hit, and in scalding and black, hit the trained baseball recruits of Rowland down with four great hits. His first was a double, at bat was Mosher's off period and the Matadors whammed out three hits for extra bases, and scored five of their seven runs. Not only did the Matador meet squarely with the ball in this inning but members of the cadet crew crossed the plate and the Tech nine took advantage of their blunders and gave Waller a good lead to pitch work. Except for the first inning Mosher handled a neat game allowing the Freeland hitters but four other hits, which were scattered throughout the seven remaining periods.

Fast Combination
The combination used in yesterday's game proved to be fast and competent machine as Big Day Waller in his material and they worked together with accuracy and accuracy in throwing. One double play was registered by the Matadors against the Cadets in the fifth period when Mosher, Russell pitcher drove one to Nicholas, who tossed to Rigney and Rigney to Sams. The play was fast and effective. Although on the part of infielders was lacking occasionally, which indicated that it was truly an opening game, once Waller struck the ball back to the keyhole sack catching an Iphigeneus, had off his sock and had an eye put on, but Rigney was not observing and the play cost of advancement.

J. R. Red Hamilton, veteran Matador performer, turned in an excellent exhibition in working behind the plate. His hitting was outstanding in that he chalked up three of the seven hits, made off of the off-fering of Mosher and one was eluded out for two bases. Hamilton's chatter is another distinctive characteristic of his playing and never his teammates on the alert and eager throughout the encounter. "Chubby" DeWitt, product of Central High school of Ft. Worth, proved worthy of his position yesterday afternoon and filled his position with confidence. In the initial inning DeWitt pitched a slow ball, slow ball for three batters scoring two men ahead of him.

Trujillo, centerfielder of the Institute nine, was on his toes in the club yesterday afternoon and drew several of the Matador hard hit balls from the catcher's mitt. He was one of the most dangerous hitters in the Rowland group and crashed out one hit to score Kirkpatrick ahead of him.

Captain Ewing Y. Freeland is pondering over whom he shall send in the box for the second game with the Cadets. At present the pitching staff of the Tech crew is one of the manager's most difficult problems to solve. This afternoon's game will start at 4 o'clock with the same club as the Matador hit.

Bad Shoulder Fails Hinder Voight Play
PINEHURST, N. C., April 6 (AP)—Despite a sore shoulder that for a time appeared likely to cause him to forfeit his match today in the United North and South amateur golf tournament, George Voigt, Washington amateur, who yesterday turned in a 126 for a 36 hole qualifying round, continued playing winning golf.

Voigt defeated Eric Thomson, St. Johns, N. B., golfer, five and four, in the first round of the tournament. The Washington player caught cold in one of his shoulders last night and for two hours this morning was under the care of a physician and an expert masseur. Up to the time of his appearance it was doubtful whether he would play.

While Voigt was having a consultation, they say, time hit today's 12 holes. William C. Fowkes, Jr., of Pittsburgh, president of the United States Golf Association and former national amateur champion, was defeated by his fellow townsmen, Joseph Crawford, in the twenty holes won one up after a two-hour match.

George Dunlap, Jr., New York, took four out of the last five holes in his match with B. W. Cockran of Baltimore and won three and one.

R. Wilson, of Southern Pines, had little difficulty in winning three and two over Donald Meigs of Knoxville, Tenn.

MISSOURI LEGALIZES BOXING
ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 6 (AP)—Boxing was legalized in Missouri for the first time since 1873 when Governor Baker today signed a bill passed by the legislature to permit 30 round, no decision bouts if not set by relatives, fraternal, benevolent or patriotic organizations. The bill was sponsored by the Argonaut Legion.

Twenty-three letters in three years earned in nine sports—such is the record of Irving Neyson, 26-year-old, senior at the Tech high school, at Omaha, Neb. Neyson has earned letters three years in football, basketball, baseball, track, swimming, handball and tennis. He has received an insignia once in golf and once in squash. He graduates this year.

Strolling Down Sport Lane With James R. Dow

The Matadors opened their schedule in baseball yesterday afternoon by winning the opening game with the Institute Reds by a score of 7 to 3. "Big" Waller, lefty Matador hurler, had the Cadets in his hands yesterday and struck twelve of the demoralized members of the Rowland Military Institute out of the game.

"Red" Hamilton had his day at the bat yesterday with the N. M. I. club. He crashed out three for four and one extra base clout. Hamilton is one of the best college catchers in the state and is a great man for the Matador catching line.

The Matador infield looked pretty good yesterday—only "Big" one brain storm—but even Tru Speaker, Tom Coates and other noted diamond performers have them occasionally.

Coach Ewing Y. Freeland will have a problem in selecting a man to fill the pitcher's box this afternoon. But where there is a will there is a way. The "Big" monitor will announce his choice before he sends the bats in for the game.

The Lubbock Country club open golf tournament is attracting much attention and more interest is being shown in this meet than any other tournament previously played. John Jarrott, demon of the local links, went over a fit and those that witnessed his first round yesterday stated that it took the caddy keeper of the links and all the players to round John up. He shot a 43 in the first round but after the loss on the links got him cooled down he turned a 38 on the second round which did not make his total qualification score so bad after all.

Coach Higginbotham got right with the country club as well as with the mid-iron yesterday and shot a couple of 20's to qualify in the open tourney. Higginbotham has the lowest score so far and from indications will have throughout the qualification rounds. Dudie Bowen lightened up on his ankle braces and turned up his iron and bounced his "bouncing bottles" around the links for a total score of 92. Dudie says that is exceptionally good for him and is quite confident that should he be not qualify for the first division he has a cinch for championship in the second lot.

HIGGINBOTHAM WORKS PROTEGES HARD IN ANTICIPATION OF TRACK MEET WITH WEST TEXAS TEACHERS HERE SATURDAY

Coach Grady Higginbotham and his group of cinder path followers are working hard for the dual meet with the West Texas State Teachers college. Saturday afternoon Coach Higginbotham is expecting stiff competition with the Burton tracksters and in commenting on the classic stated yesterday afternoon that he had figured closely with the times and distances made in a tri-meet recently held between the Buffs, Simmons university and A. C. C. at Abilene and he is of the opinion that he will lose the meet by not more than five points, but is working hard with men and will attempt to over-power his competitors.

With Walker, the big pillar of Matador cinder pathmen, is in good shape Higginbotham is counting on three first places from him, in the 100, 200 yard dashes, the low hurdles, and the broad jump. With Christian back with the team he expects to take first in the high hurdles and a second in the low hurdles. The Matador relay team will likely defeat the Buffs in that event but Coach Higginbotham does not lead for first places in any of the sprint events. Brown and Davis will likely take their goals in the high jump and the 400 yard dash.

Although the Matador are expected to "carry" their home team in each event of the dual clash they are all working hard and will give the lads of the Pala Duro a good meet.

Open Tourney Draws Interest Of Fans

Decided interest is being shown in the Lubbock Country club's first wide open tournament with several of Lubbock best golfers making qualification rounds yesterday afternoon. Among the scores turned in yesterday afternoon Coach Grady Higginbotham, a noted golfer, brought in a couple of 39's for a total of 78 which is by far the lowest score yet registered on the official board posted at Bowen's drug store. Ross McWhorter registered up a 45 and 47 for a total of 92. Floyd Bowen came back with a 47 and 46 for a sum of 93; John Jarrott, ace golfer of the Lubbock country club, went wild and almost in a stampede on the first round and scored a 33 but in the last nine holes turned in a 38 for a total of 91; Hal Arnett scored 98 with a 50 and a 48.

Many others that have registered are yet to play the qualification rounds. Today is thought to be a busy day for the country club links with players making a qualification rounds. With the two division play-off schedule in drawing numerous outsiders to the meet and the classic will grow more interesting and the days come on. Time has been extended for the final acceptance of qualification score from Friday afternoon to Saturday afternoon.

Thirty-nine Teams Enter Sooner Meet

NORMAN, Okla., April 6 (AP)—Thirty-nine high schools and fifteen colleges from Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas had filed their entries for the Oklahoma relay meet here April 8, when a check was made tonight. Several more were expected to file before the entries close at midnight, swelling the number beyond 500.

Texas high school entrants include Amarillo, Burk Burnett, Cleburne, Greenville, Lybock, Masonic Home at Fort Worth, Oak Cliff and Rowland avenue at Dallas, and Wichita Falls, Burleson and Wesley colleges of Greenville, north Texas Teachers college at Denton and North Texas Aggies of Arlington will compete in the senior division.

'Grandpa' Wood Was Leading Moundsman

HEBURN, April 6 (AP)—George "Grandpa" Wood, who signed with the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday, was named the best pitcher in the Southwestern conference last season. While pitching for the Rice Institute team Woods turned in many excellent games and held the Owl's well in the conference race.

You can quote me on this—

P. A. MAKES the grandest home-rolled cigarette that ever saw the light of a match! Just read that again and take it for all wool and a yard wide. Why, the very fragrance of the tobacco itself is advance notice that you're in for some glorious smoke-sessions.

So cool and refreshing, so mild and mellow, yet with that full, rich tobacco body that satisfies to the full. You'll roll 'em and smoke 'em the live-long day. You'll enjoy every one as you never enjoyed any home-made cigarette before. Get some P. A. and see.

And when you roll one and light up, you'll agree that the aroma was no false prophet. The very first puff is a pleasure you never met before in the home-rolled line... a pleasure that repeats itself with every wonderful intake. I'm talking about Prince Albert, Men.

All that I've said about Prince Albert for cigarettes goes for pipes as well. P. A. can take the balkiest pipe and give it a sweet disposition on the very first fire-up. Men who were once pipe-shy are now jimmy-pipe regulars. No two ways about it, P. A. is great tobacco.

Ferguson Says Objects Of Anti-Amnesty Measure Are Unfair And That The Action Of Moody In Signing It Is Ridiculous

AUSTIN, April 6. (AP)—Referring to Governor Dan Moody as Senator Tom Love's governor, former Governor James E. Ferguson today branded Moody's action in signing the anti-amnesty measure, seeking removal of political disabilities, as unfair and ridiculous.

Moody last week signed the bill by Love which seeks to rescind amnesty which the 49th legislature attempted to grant Ferguson, impeached from the executive chair in 1917 on charges of irregularities. Ex-Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, the deposed governor's wife, was elected on a "vindication" campaign two years ago and was responsible, largely, for passage of the original amnesty act.

Ferguson's statement, characteristic of his old time speeches, was headed:

The OK of Tom Love's amnesty repeal.

"Respective of political differences," Ferguson said, "I would have thought that Governor Moody would have been willing to have given me a 50-50 break, and the people equally as much, in the running for office program. I believe that Governor Moody would have followed this course, but for the influence of Tom Love, of Dallas, K. K. fame, George Ruite, republican, ran against Mrs. Ferguson, Tom Love," Ferguson continued, "has handed me a side swipe in having his governor repeal the amnesty bill, which has for its purpose to give the people the right to elect me to office. While it ought not to be, yet the fact remains that Tom Love, 'resistor' from Dallas, is the irresponsible ruler of the Moody administration. If honor it be, then Tom Love enjoys the honor of the 'M. House' of the administration."

"Just to keep the record straight, let us not forget that this Tom Love is the individual who boldly declared that he would go in the democratic primary, and if my wife was nominated over his candidate, Dan Moody, then he would surely scratch the democratic nominee, and would not support the ticket. This man is the most dominating influence in the administration and the signing of the amnesty repeal but was in furtherance of the political wish that Tom Love craved over the head of Governor Moody."

"But the whole proceedings seems as ridiculous as it is amusing. If the Love-Moody crowd were good sports wonder why they were so afraid to give me a chance to ask for the people's vote if I wanted to. They look to me like the colored man's coon who was 'skinned'."

"The reasons assigned by Governor Moody for approval of Tom Love's bill, to say the least, were insufficient. He says that the original law, granting amnesty, and restoration of citizenship was unconstitutional and therefore, if it was so, and Mr. Moody had been governing at the time, he would have repealed the amnesty bill because of its unconstitutionality. Then that law was unconstitutional, then the act of the legislature, in attempting to repeal it, was of no force and effect. It would not make the law constitutional when it sought to repeal an unconstitutional law. If the original act was unconstitutional, then repeal must be unconstitutional for the same reason.

"Without asking any sympathy or seeking any quarter, I must insist that Governor Moody has not shown a disposition to fight fair. He knew that two members of the present supreme court had disqualified themselves to pass upon my impeachment and that if I undertook to run for office in connection proceedings would be instituted against me and I would be expected to reach the supreme court. Governor Moody would have the power to appoint a majority of the supreme court, who would likewise have the power to hold me disqualified from holding office.

"I shall avoid immoderate expressions, and there will come a time when justice and fairness will prevail. I sometimes have to pinch myself when I think of Dan Moody asking my support for public office and his friends asking me to give free advertising in the forum of Ferguson's newspaper, boosting him for attorney general, to come to the conclusion that it is the same man who is now bent on pursuing me into private life—and all within the last three years. I shall not complain. I have had many experiences of the same kind before and one more added to my list won't hurt much.

"Let my friends be of good cheer. The people generally, have begun to realize that this persecution is impelled more by personal ambition, for political gain, than from the impulses of patriotism and they will not much longer be deceived."

Seeks Death

After serving for the past three months as auto license inspector in this county, John C. Keller of the State Highway Department in Division five, left Wednesday for Borger to which he was ordered to report for Ranger service under Captain Tom Hickman, who with Captain Frank Hamer and eight rangers were sent to Borger this week in an effort to quell alleged lawlessness in that vicinity.

Mr. Keller, who holds a commission as a Texas Ranger, said before he left here that he does not know what line of duty he is to follow there or what disposition will be made of his job here. He said his orders which were received late Tuesday night are to report to Captain Hickman for duty. His transfer is believed to be only temporary.

Funds Are Granted For Operating Tech

The emergency appropriation for the Texas Technological college, which became a law Tuesday without signature of Governor Dan Moody, contains in whole the amount asked by officials of the college to support the institution both during the present Spring term and the summer school that opens soon after closing of the regular year. E. W. Provencher, business manager said today following a telephone conversation with state officials at Austin.

Reports received here yesterday in connection with the appropriation were generally interpreted to mean that the approximately $42,000 approved by both houses of the legislature for the summer school had been cut back from the bill but which is not the case, Mr. Provencher said he was informed. The entire emergency bill setting aside a little more than $113,000 was approved, it was said. The measure was approved by both houses of the legislature during the recent session.

This will provide for payment of teachers during the Spring term and miscellaneous expense as asked for and in addition to this a twelve weeks summer term is provided for, in which full work will be done. School authorities are now predicting one of the most successful summer schools of any institution in the state, pointing to the climate here as inductive to teachers and others from all parts of the southwest to attend the Tech during summer months.

Literature relating to the summer school is now being circulated over this and adjoining states and plans are proceeding in detail.

Frigidaire Dealer Gets Dayton Trip

M. L. Moody, Jr., local Frigidaire and DeLco-Light dealer, has qualified for a trip to Dayton, Ohio, with all expenses paid, according to an announcement, received yesterday from E. G. Fischer, president and general manager.

More than 1000 Frigidaire and DeLco-Light salesmen were awarded the trip for selling a specified amount of business in 1926. The trip will take them to Dayton for the annual sales convention of the two General Motors subsidiaries, April 12 and 14. A brilliant entertainment program, given by some of the world's best known artists and presentation of cash prizes, will be features of the convention, the announcement says.

Seven hundred additional salesmen have also qualified by selling a fixed quota of electric refrigerators and electric light plants during the first three months of 1927. These salesmen, however, will not participate in the cash awards.

Important convention visitors will include Alfred E. Sloan, president of General Motors, C. P. Kettering, vice president in charge of research, members of the corporation's executive committee and other high officials of the corporation.

FARMER GIVEN DAY IN JAIL FOR PARRYING CHECK

Julian Hardin, a farmer of near Shallowater, was released from the county jail Tuesday after serving a one day sentence and payment of a fine of $1 on charges of passing a worthless check, in which he pleaded guilty.

Judge Wabbe of Mifford, instead, released James Strain, charged with a misdemeanor, because the defendant was a poet.

case revealed that the girl had been employed by various produce houses here and that recently her father sent her money on which to make the trip to him in California.

The girl charged that she bought the ticket but was apprehended in El Paso while waiting for a train by her mother and a purported officer who she said forcibly returned her to this city. She charges that she is being deprived of privileges of school here, and that her father has promised she will be granted this and other privileges that she claims she is entitled to. Counsel for the girl made no further announcement of plans in the case Wednesday.

PETRIFIED BONE GIVEN TECH

Believed to be a buffalo bone partially petrified, a curio which was discovered 12 feet underground at Buffalo Springs by J. Andy Wilson, is to be presented to Tech college as a souvenir of the day when the buffalo herds ranged the plains here. The bone is about a foot in length and weighs three and a half pounds.

Benjamin Lancaster of Manchester, Eng., has posted a forfeit of $4,500, which will go to his wife if he ever makes another bet.

When We Are History

WHEN the world has spun on until 1927 seems quaint and bygone, historians will be writing our social history . . . how we lived and worked and played:

They will get their material from the old files of our daily newspapers. And how carefully they will study the advertisements, because it is advertising that truly reflects the customs of our times.

But, while our advertising will be interesting to the historian tomorrow, it is, more than interesting to us of today . . . it is vital. For advertising rings news of all that is best in our daily life. The pleasant things. The useful things. Things that lighten our burdens. Help us in our daily work. Bring ease, comfort and color into our lives.

In short, advertising shows us the way to get more out of living.

DAILY MARKET

COTTON STEADIER

NEW YORK, April 6. (AP)—The cotton market showed continued steadiness today, a further covering combined with a little more trade and commission house buying. July sold up to 14.35, or 12 points net higher and closed at 14.25, the general market closing steady, at net advances of 11 to 12 points.

The market opened unchanged to 2 points higher. Slight selling on the indifferent showing of Liverpool and complaints of a poor demand for cotton goods in Manchester, were the abated prices, after further trading.

The weekly report of the weather bureau seemed to be about a standoff, as a little more favorable than otherwise, but it failed to inspire any selling consequence, and fluctuation offerings were held.

Trade buying presumably by its prices for domestic printers seemed to help the tone of the market, while there was a little covering buying of later delivery. New Orleans was a buyer here during the early afternoon. Brokers with Wall Street connections also were buyers on the advance, which extended to 14.19 for May and 14.75 for December, or about 9 to 12 points above yesterday's closing figures. No special news factor was mentioned in connection with the improvement, but covering may have been promoted by continued large exports and reports of a continued short basis in south, notwithstanding the recent falling off in demand. A little more cotton was for sale around 14.50 for October, but was absorbed on actual basis of 5 to 6 points. Last prices were within 2 or 3 points of the best on the more active positions.

The weekly report of the weather bureau said that except for delay in field work by wet soil in the west, the week was generally favorable in the cotton belt.

Private cables reported hedging with local and continental liquidation in Liverpool and that Manchester was depressed with a small turnover in cotton today making 9,860,317, so far this season.

Port receipts 24,571, U. S. Port stocks 2,285,270.

COTTON GAINS

NEW ORLEANS, April 6. (AP)—Under the stimulus of rains in the belt, prospects for further unsettled weather and its sympathy with the strength of the New York Stock Exchange, the cotton market moved steadily upward today to close with net gains of 11 to 15 points.

The opening was 2 to 3 points up, reflecting better cables than the, but a momentary decline immediately after the call was responsible for the loss of the day with May trading at 14.25.

Chinese Raids (Continued from Page 1) Chinese had gathered at the gateways of the embassy to watch the prisoners dragged out. Some went quietly and others struggled violently.

Washington Disturbed WASHINGTON, April 6 (AP)—Raids by Chinese authorities at Peking on the Russian embassy within the diplomatic compound in search of evidence of pro-Chinese activities served today to center attention in Washington on this new development of the Chinese situation.

No official report in regard to the raid had reached the state department from Minister Mac Murray at a late hour, but there is little doubt in official circles that this violation of the diplomatic sanctity of the embassy affords the Moscow government cause for protest and that it conceivably could be an overtact which might result in drastic action by the soviet government by way of reprisal.

References in press accounts that authorization for the raid was obtained from the Peking diplomatic corps are not understood in Washington unless they have to do with the question of obtaining permission from the corps to enter the compound. Washington officials would not comment but it was evident that they found it difficult to believe that the Peking diplomats had authorized forcible entrance of any diplomatic mission.

Situation Gloomy While the Peking incident afforded ground for much speculation as to its possible political consequences, official advice regarding conditions at Yangtze river ports where American refugees are concentrating for evacuation continued to paint a gloomy picture.

Rear Admiral Hough, commanding the Yangtze patrol and who arrived at Hankow on his flagship, the gunboat Leabel on April 3, said the Hankow situation was "very bad. Japanese are evacuating their concessions since the recent riot. Foreigners generally were congregating close to the waters, since ready for flight to the ships," he said, and a state department report from Consul Lockhart dated April 4, said that the more than 100 Americans still at Hankow were spending the nights aboard the vessels, available as a measure of protection.

Hough indicated that he was preparing to order Americans to remain aboard the ships unless tension relaxed. He expected all but 30 or 40 men who are watching over important commercial interests at Hankow to leave for Shanghai within the next day or two.

A Few Remain The dispatches indicated a decision on the part of the American commercial representatives to remain at Hankow so long as the British residents stay there. Most American enterprises in the region are in the British concession which was the scene of the original anti foreign rioting in the present wave of disturbances.

Hough also disclosed a new evacuation problem in the upper Yangtze areas due to coal shortage. All naval and commercial vessels plying the upper river are coal burners. The admiral said that owing to strikes and labor disturbances, fuel for the ships, which are now being used to carry refugees down the river from interior points, was running low. Plans for re-occupying the upper river on this account have falling naval and other craft from been considered as there does not appear to be at Shanghai coal available to be shipped into the upper river for their use.

Marines Are Sent SAN DIEGO, Calif., April 6 (AP)—Bound for Shanghai to protect American lives in China, the sixth regiment of American marines worked hard tonight to complete the loading on the transport Henderson. They hoped to sail out of the harbor before noon tomorrow. They numbered 1,550, officers and men.

The departure of the sixth regiment tomorrow, advance detachments for the third regiment, to be mobilized, are beginning to arrive from the northwest and east coast. Bremerton, Mare Island, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Quantico, Norfolk here April 15, aboard the army transport Chateau Thierry.

Missionaries Are Ordered TO EVACUATE NORTH CHINA BOSTON, April 6 (AP)—General evacuation "with all possible haste" of the 135 missionaries in north China of the American board of foreign missions is proceeding, according to cables received at headquarters here today.

Pinedo Accident (Continued from Page 1) cabin to get fire extinguishers. Officials at Apache Lodge rushed extinguishers to the plane but they arrived too late to be of any use.

It was only a short time until the huge engine, which had carried the craft over its thousands of miles from their supports and dropped to the bottom of the lake.

Commander De Pinedo arrived at Roosevelt Lake at 10:14 this morning after a flight from the Elephant Butte Dam lake at Hot Springs, N. M. He had planned to stop here only long enough to refuel and continue his trip to San Diego.

Refueling of the monoplane was carried out quickly here and it was ready for the start when the boy dropped a match. The oily waters. As soon as it was seen that there was no hope of saving the plane a search was started for the youth but he had lost himself in the crowd and tonight attempts to identify him had proved futile.

As the ship burned the commander turned to Glenn, still manager of Apache Lodge and exclaimed with outstretched arms "Get a picture." There was no confusion. Those who were trying to fight the fire went about their work methodically, but the flames soon put an end to all attempt to check them.

Mrs. Josephine Villers, aged 85, was married at Marshall to a youth of 22.

A tin box containing $5,000 was found in a chamber of the high pressure still at the intense heat, 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit, had sprung the still. The explosion in the chamber set fire to nine other stills and two storage tanks. The flames were subdued after firemen from Hawkins joined the local firemen. Officials of the company have not decided what caused the accident but an investigation has been started by M. E. Pickett, Carbon county coroner.

The disaster, it is estimated, will cost the state of Wyoming between $75,000 and $100,000 in compensation paid to the widows and orphans of those killed under the state's compensation law.

Loss of $1,000,000 The loss to the Producers and Refiners corporation, it was estimated, will amount to between $500,000 and $1,000,000. Nearly all of the victims were married men with families of one or three children.

The accident today was the first serious mishap which has happened since Pareo was established by Frank Kistler, founder of the Producers and Refiners corporation nearly two years ago. Mr. Kistler built the town as a community center for employees of the company. It followed the Spanish style of architecture and was composed of permanent business and residence structures.

Farmers Of Lockney Make Cream Profits

Special to The Avalanche
LOCKNEY, April 6—Last Saturday the different produce houses of Lockney received 750 gallons of cream. The price of cream in Lockney was approximately $1.25 per gallon. The total amount of money paid the farmers in Lockney Saturday was about $950. The cream business at the present is not up to a high peak because of the fact that there are so many small calves that require so much of the milk.

The Lockney country is fast developing into a dairying section. During the past year there has been 99 cream separators sold by the local merchants not counting the ones shipped in by the wholesalers. These separators have been sold on the installment plan and in practically every case the payments have been made when they were due. The dealers state that the payments have been met from the saving that the separators net the farmer.

 The only outlet for the milk that the Lockney country produces is in the way of feed for calves, hogs and chickens. The business men of the town are now looking for a creamery, company that will come here and put in a creamery and cheese plant at this place. The milk production is fast increasing and with the added impetus of a creamery plant the farmers would appropriate more space, capital and time to the dairying business. Dairy cows at the present are very hard to obtain, but there are enough here already to supply milk enough and to spare for a good sized creamery and cheese plant.

Everything Else Failed But Tanlac Saves Her

San Antonio Woman Had Spent Hundreds of Dollars in Vain Search for Relief From Nervous Indigestion

"Utterly unstrung and almost hopeless," in the way Mrs. W. E. Smith, of 607 Artesian St., Corpus Christi, Tex., describes her condition at the climax of a breakdown, 8 years ago.
 "I had spent hundreds of dollars for different remedies and treatments," she continues. "I was almost a skeleton after years of severe dieting, had to spend many days in bed, and frequently failed to get any sleep till after midnight. Going to bed was like a nightmare.
 "A few bites of food would feel like a ton of lead in my stomach, and gas would create such pains I would be in agony for hours."
 "My sister, who had taken Tanlac and who thinks the world of it, got me to try it. Tanlac helped me immediately. Six bottles left me with energy to spare and feeling strong and happy. Now I work every day, helping my husband conduct our 'Do Drop Inn', and have gained over 30 lbs. Tanlac is wonderful!"

Many have had experiences such as Mrs. Smith relates. If you have tried other treatments without benefit, turn now to Tanlac. Tanlac is Nature's own remedy—safe, pleasant and effective—made from roots, barks and herbs. Ask your druggist for Tanlac—today!

COLEMAN, April 6—Leon Shields, oil man and banker of this city, has offered $100 in gold as prize money in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce "Home Town" speaking contest to be held in Wichita Falls during the ninth annual convention of the organization to be held there May 16 and 17. This is the second time Mr. Shields has offered one hundred dollars as a prize in this contest. He provided the prize of $100 won by Miss Mildred Marshall of Quannah at Amarillo last year.

According to information received here from the West Texas Chamber of Commerce general offices the money provided by Mr. Shields and the $100 already offered by Col. C. C. Walsh, ex-president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will be offered to the winners as follows: Winner of first place will receive $100 in gold and will receive scholarships to Texas Technological college and West Texas State Teachers college. In addition the winner will receive the Thomas Etheridge cup which is offered for annual competition. Winner of second prize will receive fifty dollars in gold. Winner of third place will get twenty-five dollars. Prizes of fifteen and ten dollars each are to go to the winners of fourth and fifth places respectively. The entry list for the contest promises to be the best ever. It is expected that fifty contestants will enter the preliminaries to be held in Wichita Falls on the opening day of the convention. Of these twelve will be selected in the preliminary contests to go into the finals on the last day of the convention.

In offering $100 for the second time, Mr. Shields stated that he gets more pleasure from spending money this way than from any money he ever spent. The spectacle of fifty live wire youngsters pulling hats for their names is one of the finest features of the convention, he declared and is well worth encouraging.

Hereford Chamber Hears Farmer Talk

Special to The Avalanche
HEREFORD, April 6—W. E. Murdock, a diversified farmer of the Summerfield community was the principal speaker at the Hereford Chamber of Commerce luncheon Monday. Mr. Murdock urged the local business men to center their efforts on a creamery and cold storage plant for eggs, so that local farmers could be assured a better price for their poultry and dairy products. "We need to ship our products in car lots," Mr. Murdock said, "and the time is ripe for us to do something to secure a bigger and better market for our stuff here."

E. W. Harrison, reporting for the creamery committee, said that his committee would make a study of the situation and see just what could be done regarding the creamery and cold storage plant. He did not favor a stock selling proposition because he was sure such a business would get from the start, if handled in the right way.

President Black appointed a committee composed of A. O. Thompson, J. C. Rickette and C. W. Humble to work out plans for Hereford's part in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Wichita Falls in May. This committee was asked to report next Monday.

T. D. Moss, J. E. Hill and S. E. Rossen, will work out program plans for the next month for the local luncheon club.

Mayor H. S. Ireland called attention to annual cleanup week and said he would immediately prepare a proclamation to cover this week. The home beautiful committee will work with the Mayor on this campaign.

Deaf Smith County Organizes New Club

Special to The Avalanche
HEREFORD, April 6—A new community club has just been formed in Deaf Smith county. At a recent meeting at the Ford school about thirty-five progressive citizens of that community perfected the organization. R. M. Whitaker, manager of the agricultural department of the West Texas chamber of commerce, was the principal speaker. Mr. Whitaker talked on diversified farming, and classed all livestock, field seeds, etc., as boarders on the farm, and said it was the duty of each farmer to see whether his boarders paid dividends. "The slashers should be eliminated, whether in poultry, dairy cows, or field crops, if a fair return is to be expected," Mr. Whitaker declared. He talked in a plain manner, and local farmers received some valuable information from

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
GARRETT FOLSOM is stabbed to death while swimming at Ocean Town, N. C.

Folsom's swimming companions had been ROGER NEVILLE, a business partner; MRS. HELEN BARNABY and CAMELIA VALDON.

ANASTASIA FOLSOM eccentric and masterful sister of the dead man, arrives and takes command, and it is established that one CROYDON SEARS is a fancier of various weapons. Sears admits buying two knives but not the pichas.

ANASTASIA engages TITUS RIGGS, an architect, to work on the case. DAN PELTON, Folsom's nephew, arrives and is puzzled by the curious French dolls in his uncle's rooms.

Croydon Sears sends for ELEMING STONE, famous detective. He tells him Folsom had been blackmailing him and he had lied at the inquest but was innocent.

Stone meets others of the circle, including NED BARRON and his wife, MADELINE, who puzzles him.

ROBIN SEARS, son of Croydon is surprised when Stone mentions the dolls Folsom had owned.

Later, Stone, after talking to ROSS, the dead man's valet, questions a bellboy, who says Folsom, on his arrival at the hotel, had seemed to recognize the Barrons and the Seares.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XLVI

"Well, I don't know anything about that," said the fat bellboy, "but Folsom waited for another car while he looked at them. They didn't see him; they were laughing and talking together, but he couldn't have been more kerflummoxed if he's seen the Old Nick himself."

"Was he unpleasantly surprised?"

"I don't think so, sir. He didn't seem either glad or sorry, especially, only just struck. That's all."

"Well, that doesn't seem to amount to much," Stone sighed wearily. "Hello, here's Myrtle. We seem to get clean towels every hour on the hour."

"That isn't why Myrt shows up so frequent," Tubby said, and laughing, he went away.

"Myrtle," the detective said to the chambermaid, "I suppose you know nothing of Mr. Folsom that you haven't told, do you?"

"Not a snick-speak," declared the girl. "Wish I did. I'd be rich if I could answer the questions that's been fired at me ever since the poor man died."

"He was nice to you?"

"He was a gentleman, Mr. Folsom was. He was nice, if you mean respectful with his money and polite-mannered. But if you mean anything like petting or silly talk, no."

"Still, you only saw him once or twice?"

"That's all, sir, but we girls size up a man in less time than that. And Mr. Folsom, he wasn't the sort to be silly that way. The only silly ways he had was this doll racket."

"She looked around at the dolls, still scattered about the room, and going to one of them changed its position to what she deemed a more picturesque pose."

"You're fond of them?" Stone said, as she fingered the short skirts and long slim legs of the doll.

"I love 'em," she declared. "As a baby I was always crazy about dolls. I had dozens of them, though none, of course, except cheap ones. And even as I grew older I didn't outgrow my love for dolls. Then a few years ago, these began to be the rage. I have two or three, but they are not the expensive kind like these. You know, they make imitations that are quite dear, but nothing of this sort is made over here. These are all French dolls, or imported ones, anyway."

As Myrtle talked she caressed and played with the dolls, and Stone watched her curiously.

Yet it was only the admiration of a child who loved dolls mingled with the natural feminine delight in exquisite fabrics and harmonious colors.

"Pelton gave you one of these dolls, I hear," he said. "Was it as pretty as these?"

"Beautiful!" Myrtle turned rapt eyes to him. "It was the one Mr. Folsom loved best. Mr. Pelton let me take my choice and so I took that one. Oh, it's beautiful!"

"Will you let me see it, Myrtle? Where is it?"

"In my room. Yes, sir, I'll get it."

She went away and returned with the doll.

"This is my hour off," she explained. "Mr. Pelton said he didn't mind if I came in here and played with the dolls so long as I don't touch anything else. This is the one he gave me. Isn't she lovely?"

Fleming Stone took the doll in his hands and stared at it.

For a moment he was speechless. Then he said:

"Did you tell me this was Mr. Folsom's favorite?"

"Yes, sir. I think it reminded him of somebody he loved. For he talked to it and said, 'You're mine—you shall be mine again—and forever!'" or some such words of that. Oh, yes, he loved this one best."

And Stone saw that the doll was the very image of Madeline Barron.

Go away now, Myrtle, Stone said, speaking, as she said afterward, like a man in a dream. "Go away, Myrtle. Here, take your doll, you another. If he doesn't I will. But go away now."

Myrtle glanced at him sharply. What had happened? This man was not the sort to have sudden fits of illness, nor did he look ill.

But there was no chance for her. Stone said so, and she went. Then Fleming Stone began to piece things together.

Garrett Folsom dolls who looked like the woman he had loved. The one he had possessed the "loved" best was the exact image of Madeline Barron.

Moreover, Folsom had declared that this doll, the one that looked like Mrs. Barron, was his best love, and that he would yet have her for his own again.

This implied that he had formerly loved her and—

Where was it all leading?

Clearly, Myrtle had never connected the appearance of this doll with the beautiful Mrs. Barron. But then, Myrtle doubtless did not know Madeline. The Barron's rooms were not on Myrtle floor, and the girl had no way of seeing her, as her duties never took her to the lounge or dining room.

Tubby might perceive the resemblance, but a boy would not notice such things.

For a moment Stone was so shocked so upset by the vistas opening before his troubled imagination, that he was tempted to call Myrtle back, buy the doll from her and burn it up.

Yet it could not, in honesty, suppress such a definite lead.

He shrank from the job of piecing things together, but it had to be done.

First he thought up everything he knew about Madeline Barron. It wasn't much, but it was definite.

To begin with, he remembered her unwillingness to talk on the subject of Folsom's death. When he had asked her a few simple questions about it, she had become so pervasively excited as to be almost hysterical.

Then, when he had fixed her with this, she had declared it was because she was sympathetic with Folsom's sister and nephew. But further probing had brought out an assertion that her unrest was because of worry lest Croydon Sears be suspected of the crime.

Then, too, she had stated that she had absolutely no acquaintance with Garrett Folsom, and knew nothing of him save what she had heard since his tragic death. She had deeply resented his queries, so deeply that it began now to seem she could scarcely have been so annoyed at inquiries about a real stranger.

Well, none of this meant much, but it all went to prove that Madeline Barron had a secret trouble that was not shared by her husband or her nearest friends.

Anyway, it had to be looked into, and perhaps—and Stone hoped—it would turn out to mean nothing and the doll's resemblance to the lady be the merest chance.

A brick like on the boardwalk seemed to be indicated, and with a sigh Stone went out to make it.

As he passed the squad of empty chairs at the great hotel entrance a sudden thought struck him.

He turned to the group of idle but alertly watchful chair-pushers, and said:

"Listen sharp, here, boys. Did any of you take Mr. Folsom out in a chair the night he was here? You know, the man who was killed in the ocean."

"Nope," and "No, sir," came from various disinterested heavers, and Stone was about to go on his way, when the sight of his hand suggestively in his pocket stirred the memory of one of the pushmen.

"I say Boss," he volunteered, "that Mr. Folsom, he didn't go out in no chair that night, but he came home in one."

"What?" Stone's hand sank deeper in his pocket and some coins clinked pleasantly. "Don't make up anything, now, that won't do."

"No sir," and the earnest voice betokened truth, "but that gentleman, he came right here to this door, about the middle of the evening. Say 'bout ten o'clock."

"Was he alone?"

"Yes, sir, all alone."

"There's a dollar, my man, and if you can find for me the chair man who brought him here, I'll double it."

(To Be Continued)

Why did Madeline Barron deny knowing Folsom? And why did Folsom have a doll in her image? Stone is nearing the solution now.
