Heffington arrested

BIG SPRING — A Big Spring man, who has accused local police with brutality, was arrested by police Wednesday morning.

Ricky Elvis Heffington, 31, 1412 W. 3rd, was arrested by Big Spring Police Department officers at the 7-Eleven store at 1801 S. Gregg after officers answered a call there about a disturbance/suspicious investigation.

He was charged Wednesday morning with public intoxication, criminal mischief over $20, failure to identify and resisting search. He also was arrested under warrants from the Department of Public Safety in Midland for speeding, failure to maintain financial responsibility and violating promise to appear.

Heffington was arrested by police in April on a driving while intoxicated charge. While in police custody, Heffington said he was injured when his face was pushed into a wall. Although he retained an attorney, no action has been taken yet against the police department.

VALDEZ, Alaska — Marcia Thompson uses high pressure hot water to clean oil from the remaining stretch of beach at Point Helen on the south end of Knight Island in Prince William Sound Tuesday. With less than a mile of oiled beaches left to be treated, Exxon has reduced its workforce to less than 7,000 personnel. All remaining cleanup crews and support teams are expected to leave Prince William Sound and the Gulf of Alaska by Friday when Exxon plans to end their summer cleanup operations.

No one's immune

BIG SPRING — Even lawmakers aren't immune from lawbreakers.

State Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, found that out personally Tuesday when burglars entered the garage at his home at 606 Mathews.

The thieves took three 10-speed bicycles with a combined value of $950 and a dirt bicycle valued at $120.

Mobile home

SHEFFIELD, Ohio — Workmen move a house through a rural area west of Cleveland Tuesday on its way to a new location. The structure, moved from the site of an expansion of the Ford truck plant, was donated to the Collette Marie Infant Home in Avon, Ohio, and will house children afflicted with AIDS.

One is a quorum

BIG SPRING — The city's traffic commission finally solved its poor attendance problem.

With three members of the eight-person board present, the group agreed during its Aug. 15 meeting to allow the number present at each meeting to stand as a quorum. Under that rule, if one traffic commissioner shows up to a meeting, then that person constitutes a majority and can conduct business for the commission.

The commission had complained to the Big Spring City Council several months ago that not enough members were attending meetings for the group to have a quorum. Without the quorum, the commission said, the group couldn't vote on recommendations to send to the council.

Windham: Co-workers did false reports

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

ABILENE — A former Big Spring utilities superintendent testified today in federal court that he relied on co workers to prepare EPA reports later declared to be falsified.

But a federal prosecutor charged the superintendent was responsible for falsifying the reports.

W.W. Windham, water and wastewater superintendent from August 1983 until his resignation in September 1984, is charged with falsifying five monthly reports to the Environmental Protection Agency in 1984.

"There's no doubt in my mind they (the reports) had been changed..." (the former utilities clerk) said she never saw any other employees change the figures and assumed it was Windham who made the changes.

Windham is specifically charged with not accurately reporting discharges of biochemical oxygen demand (BOD) and total suspended solids (TSS) into Beal's Creek.

Accurate figures show discharges to be in excess of federal standards.

BOD is the amount of oxygen deleting organisms in the water.

TSS is the amount of excrement.

Windham, testifying for the first time in his defense, said today that he relied on another wastewater employee to double-check EPA reports. He testified that he never prepared EPA forms and he never knowingly used false figures. He also said he didn't get along with other employees at the wastewater treatment plant.

But state prosecutor Howard P. Stewart noted that Windham's signature appeared on all of the falsified documents and questioned Windham about the practice of using white-out on EPA forms.

Windham had testified that he never allowed the use of white-out on EPA documents but Stewart presented evidence that white-out was used.

Windham then replied that he never allowed the use of white-out on "pertinent information" on EPA documents but acknowledged it had been used when Stewart showed the former wastewater superintendent copies of reports where white-out had been used on specific numbers.

In Tuesday's session, the prosecution concluded its case against Windham after presenting six witnesses in more than seven hours of testimony.

Council OKs 911 bid to remodel

By RUTH COCHRAN
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — Although the city has not reached an agreement with Howard County over Emergency 911 service, council members here still awarded a bid to remodel the police department for 911 dispatchers.

The decision came on a 4-2 vote during the council's regular meeting Tuesday night at the Big Spring McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark.

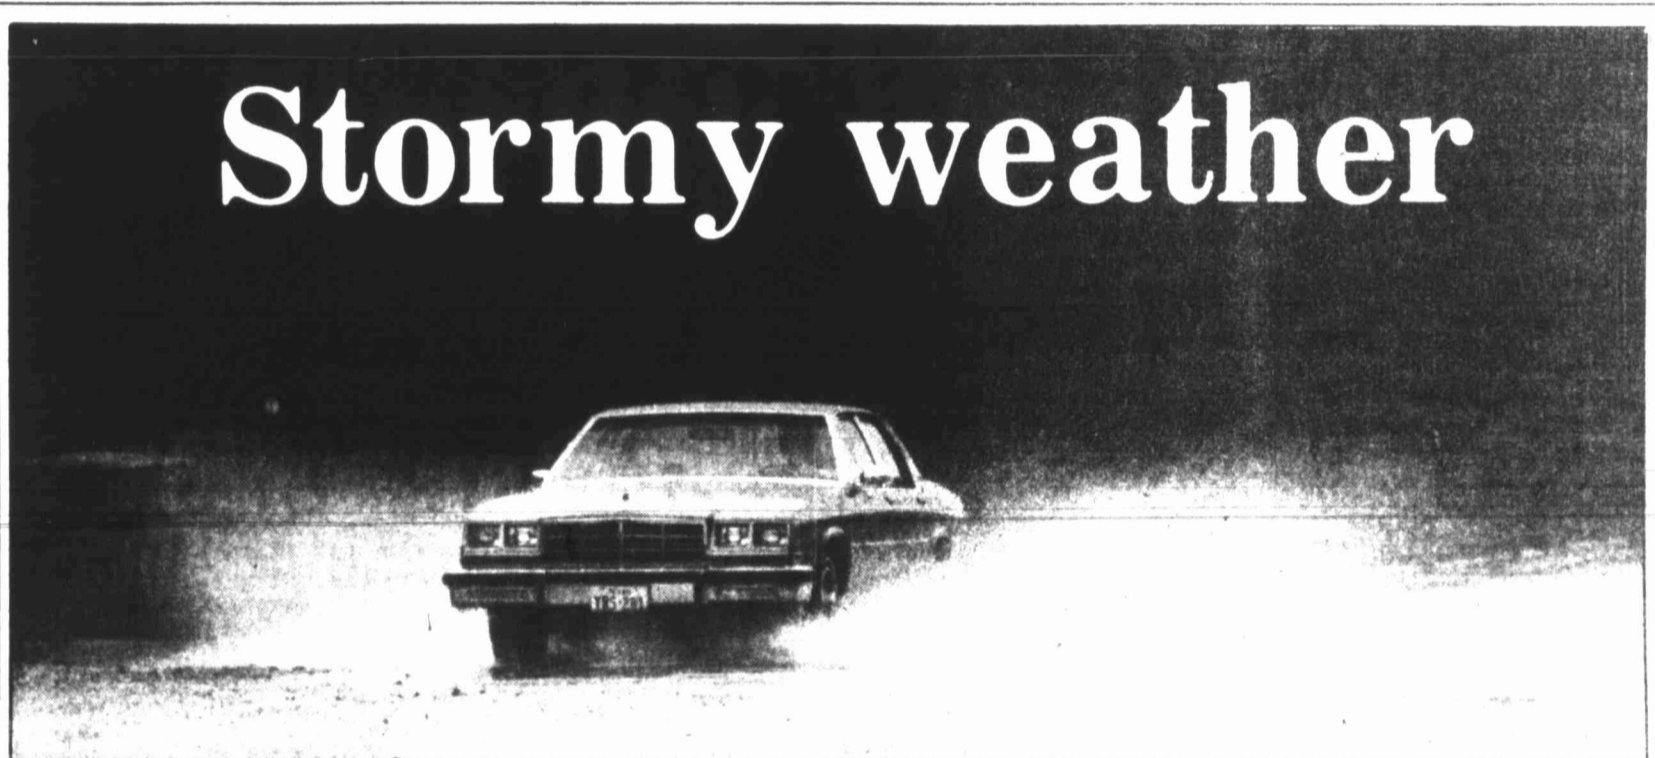

In a closer vote, council members approved the first reading of the controversial 3-cent tax increase, 4-3, after several council members failed in a last-ditch effort to get a bigger increase approved.

The council agreed to award a bid of $21,750 for remodeling the police department for 911 call taking. Two councilmen, Chuck Condray and Tim Blackshear, opposed awarding the bid, with both saying the city should wait until the county is willing to sign an agreement.

"I was wanting to see us under contract," with the county, Blackshear said. Although the city doesn't need the contract to proceed, he said, he would feel more comfortable with an agreement.

The city and county currently are still trying to negotiate an agreement for services between

Lightning leaves 2,000 without electricity

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — More than 2,000 electrical customers were temporarily without power early this morning after lightning caused an outage in the southwest portion of Big Spring.

Lightning struck an electrical regulator at 3:14 a.m. today, causing about 2,300 electrical customers to be without power for about 30 minutes, according to Bob Goodwin, district customer service and operations manager for TU Electric.

The majority of people without power were in the southwest portion of Big Spring and in the Silver Heels addition, Goodwin said.

Elsewhere, the company received complaints of line fuse blowouts, but Goodwin said those were scattered incidents.

Rain accompanying the lightning dumped more than an inch of rain in several portions of Howard County.

Wendell Shive of Coahoma reported 1.10 inches of rain as of this morning and 3 1/2 inches since Friday, but added that the precipitation would not be of much use to this year's cotton crop.

"Rainfall is always appreciated, but it's a little late for the cotton," he said. "This will be good for mostly small grains and pastures."

Other rainfall reports include:

• Boyce Hale, who lives on Wasson Road south of Big Spring, reported 1.25 inches as of this morning and a two-day total of 2.16 inches. For the year to date, Hale has recorded 15.17 inches of rain at his residence.

• Tommy Hart, 1750 Parlane St., reported 1.15 inches as of this morning and 2.85 inches since Friday.

• Red Thomas, 107 E. 13th, reported 1.3 inches as of this morning and 3.15 inches since Friday.

Area school enrollments offer few surprises

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

By and large, area enrollment figures after the first week of school have offered educators few surprises.

Some area schools are reporting increased enrollment; some show decreases. But, for the most part, area public school enrollment is largely unchanged from the same period a year ago.

The most pleasant surprise is at Howard College, which experienced its 13th consecutive semester of increased enrollment.

As of Monday afternoon, the college reported that 2,033 students have enrolled for the fall semester, Registrar Linda Conway said, adding that those figures are not final.

The 1989 enrollment represents a 9 percent increase over the previous fall's enrollment of 1,861 students. Conway said the increase — which marks the first time ever the college has surpassed the 2,000 enrollment figure — caught officials somewhat by surprise.

"We were hoping we'd have an increase, but you never know,"

Conway said. "At an institution like this... you don't know for sure who's coming until the first day of registration."

On the public school level, most area districts report largely unchanged enrollment figures.

Figures released by the Big Spring ISD show a small increase after the second week of school from last year. Enrollment as of Sept. 8 was 4,538 at all campuses, an increase of five from the same period in 1988.

As in recent years, enrollment in local elementary schools increased, while secondary figures decreased. Elementary enrollment increased by 31 students, while secondary enrollment dropped by 47.

Murray Murphy, assistant superintendent for personnel and instruction, was at a loss as to the reason behind the trend, saying that several West Texas school districts are experiencing the same elementary increase/secondary decrease figures.

"I think we had a pick-up in the birth rate during the early '80s, and we're seeing those children now coming into the schools," Murphy said.

If this trend continues, Murphy said it could bode well for secondary enrollment in particular, and overall enrollment in general.

Coahoma schools also showed a slight increase in enrollment, according to figures released by the district.

A total of 953 students at all campuses were reported as of Friday, administrative secretary Judy Park said. This represents an increase of 28 students from the COLORADO CITY — Allocating funds to upgrade water lines and a water treatment facility was the main order of business at the Colorado City Council meeting Tuesday night.

A $250,000 Texas Community Development Program Application with a matching fund requirement of $46,000 from the city was approved for water line extensions. The grant is for use in low to moderate income areas of town.

Stanton needs $750,000 to close city landfill

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

STANTON — The Stanton City Council passed a 1989-90 budget of $607,560 at their regular monthly meeting Monday night before they addressed a more ominous subject — how they are going to raise $750,000 needed to close the city landfill.

The budget features a 1 cent decrease in the tax rate from $1.05 per $100 valuation to $1.04. That, however, is counteracted by a 100 percent increase in the garbage collection fee, which will be used to raise funds to close the old landfill and open a new one.

The new monthly in-city rates will be $15 for residential and $49.92 for commercial use. The out-of-city rates are now $30 for residential and $69.98 for commercial.

In addition, the basic sewer charge was raised $1.50 per month to $9.25 a month for in-city residents and $9.20 for in-city commercial use. The out-of-city residential rate will be $16.50 and the commercial rate $18.40.

The budget also provides a salary increase, the first in three years, of $1,000 a year for all city employees.

In other business the council voted to accept bids for an aerator for the sewer plant and considered advertising for a replacement for City Administrator Jimmy Mathis, who is retiring in December.

A majority of the three-hour meeting was dedicated to a discussion — with Martin County commissioners in attendance — on the landfill closure.

For the record

It was incorrectly reported in Tuesday's edition of the Herald that W.W. Windham, former city utilities superintendent, is charged with falsifying documents to the EPA for five months in 1983. Windham is actually charged with the same offense for 1984, rather than 1983.

A report given to the Big Spring Herald in Tuesday's Outdoors page stated that Wessie and Virgil Fridy of Big Spring caught 29 catfish on a trotline at Moss Creek Lake. This was incorrect as trotlines are not allowed at the city owned facility. The catfish were caught on rod and reel.

In Sunday's Court Filings report, the names of Gil Cuadra and Michael McGrath were misspelled.

Windham

employee Mark Goodman charged that Windham used "executive privilege" to change wastewater figures while condemning the practice to other employees at the city facility.

Goodman said he considered problems at the facility an internal matter but said he eventually went to his superiors because "it got to where I couldn't sleep at night," he said. "I decided if I lost my job I lost my job."

Former city wastewater employee Kenneth Hoffman said he believes that some 1983 and 1984 monthly reports were changed, and indicated Windham was responsible. "(Windham) stated to me it was embarrassing to the city to be out of compliance," Hoffman said.

The former city employee also testified that there were other illegal practices regarding sanitation at the facility that Windham was aware of but did not take action to correct.

Asked by defense attorney Roy Longacre why he left his position at the Big Spring wastewater facility, Hoffman replied, "Mr. Windham stated I wasn't doing my job and suggested I would be happy elsewhere." Hoffman said he resigned a short time later but felt the criticism of his performance was unjustified.

Karen Hays, former clerk for the utilities superintendent from 1982 to 1985, said while she never personally witnessed Windham change figures on wastewater reports, in one instance Windham ordered her to change figures in a report, telling her that the lab technician who made the initial report "screwed up."

Hays testified she never saw any other city employees at the treatment plant change the figures.

Loretta Overby, a former clerk for the utilities superintendent in the period before Hays became clerk and again briefly while Hays was on maternity leave, testified that she believes Windham changed figures on some monthly reports.

"There's no doubt in my mind they had been changed," she said. Overby said she never saw any other employees change the figures and assumed it was Windham who made the changes.

Asked by Longacre what proof she had to connect Windham with the changes, Overby replied that changes on the documents bore Windham's distinctive handwriting.

"Are you an expert on handwriting?" Longacre countered quickly. Overby said that she was not.

Longacre asked why she didn't tell Windham if she noticed differences in figures submitted to him and those he submitted to the EPA and Texas Water Commission. Overby replied, "I wasn't qualified."

William Lockey, an employee with the Texas Water Commission, testified he first became aware of a possible problem at the wastewater treatment plant after he noticed information submitted to the EPA and the Texas Water Commission were not the same.

Lockey said he conferred with Windham about the discrepancies and was told differences were due to "typographical errors."

Robert James Goodfellow, an environmental scientist with the EPA, testified that Windham signed reports to the EPA which were incorrect. The figures signed and approved by Windham were lower than the actual numbers, Goodfellow said, and gave the indication the city was in compliance with the EPA guidelines when, in fact, they were not.

Asked by Stewart if he could understand how the figures submitted to the EPA were reached, Goodfellow replied that he could not, but that in most cases the actual numbers where pollutants were recorded were reduced by a third or more, putting them below unacceptable EPA levels.

Goodfellow testified he had no personal knowledge that Windham changed the figures, but said his signature appeared on the documents and that as supervisor he was legally responsible for any errors in the EPA-submitted forms. The forms make it clear that to submit false information to the EPA is a punishable offense, said Goodfellow, who read aloud in the courtroom possible penalties.

Longacre challenged Goodfellow's statistics used to show alleged discrepancies between lab work calculations and reports sent to the EPA. He charged that in some instances there was not enough valid statistics to make an accurate monthly report.

During re-direct, Stewart asked Goodfellow if the clean water act allows municipalities to guess at what they believe the actual wastewater figures are.

"No," Goodfellow said. The proper procedure when there is not enough information available to make an accurate monthly report is to list the results obtained from wastewater tests anyway and explain what the problem might be and how it could be corrected.

Longacre asked if it were not possible Windham signed the EPA documents but allowed another wastewater employee to more closely examine the figures in the report, but Goodfellow indicated that in his role as superintendent Windham should have checked the figures.

A decision in the case and possible sentencing are expected later today.

Sheriff A.N. Standard and Police Chief Joe Cook.

Carl Dorton, 911 director, said the 911 board made several changes in the remodeling specifications after the first round of bids came in $9,000 over the board's budget. Among other items, the changes include dropping much of the bullet-proof glass called for in the original plans, as well as a raised platform for dispatchers, Dorton said.

Dorton also mentioned that the board is considering bilingual dispatchers for 911 call taking.

The city's proposed 3-cent tax increase to 71 cents per $100 valuation passed 4-3 on the first reading after Mayor Max Green broke a 3-3 tie. Councilwomen Pat DeAnda and Gail Earls and councilman Chuck Condray voted against the increase.

All three said the increase isn't enough, and the city should pass a bigger increase even though it would make the city tax statements three weeks late.

Earls asked City Attorney Jean Shotts if the city could pass a larger tax increase before Sept. 22, the last day for a rate to be given to the tax collector's office.

"You could not meet the requirements to have it in by the 22nd... but you don't have to have it in by the 22nd," Shotts replied. "Yes, you can do it, but it will cost you a little more."

"It can be done but it's getting more and more difficult everyday."

If the new rate is given to the tax collection office after Sept. 22, it will have to send out a separate statement for the city at a cost of $5,000, Shotts said. Normally the office sends out a statement that lists taxes owed for all the taxing entities in Howard County, he said.

Personally, I'd like to go for the 8 percent increase," Earls said, because it's worth the extra $5,000.

However, the majority of the council felt the same as Councilman Sidney Clark, who said, "I don't support the part about being late or being fined," $5,000.

In other agenda items, the council:

Listened to a presentation by Howard County Commissioner Bill Crooker on the county's proposal to the Texas Department of Corrections for a prison facility. Crooker said he is highly optimistic that Howard County will make the short list, when the list of applicants are cut from 46 sites to 26 sites.

In a related item, the council agreed it would be willing to guarantee water and sewage rates to the TDC for at least one year.

Approved a request from the Big Spring Symphony Association for use of the city auditorium for three concerts. The symphony has scheduled concerts for Nov. 4 and April 7. It also set a Jan. 21 date for a performance by the Fort Worth Symphony.

Approved alcoholic beverage applications for the League of United Latin Citizens and for Dawson Geophysical Company.

Approved two applications for temporary mobile home permits, and approved an application for keeping livestock.

Approved a permit for a carnival to be held at the Howard County Fairgrounds.

Awarded a bid for road improvements at the airport to Price Construction of Big Spring, which entered the low bid of $178,700.

Awarded a bid for roof repair at Western Container to Sunbelt Specialty Services of Roby, which entered the low bid of $5,420.

Approved the first reading of a resolution authorizing an agreement between the city and the rape crisis center. The agreement calls for the center to provide the council with written monthly financial reports.

Appointed Don Crockett to his second term on the Civil Service Commission.

Agreed to study a request from the Fina Refinery to sweep their facility on a regular basis in return for adequate compensation.

Agreed to study Southwestern Bell Telephone's proposal for a Plexar telephone system for the city.

Approved specifications and permission to advertise for bids on items and materials purchased annually by the city.

same time last year.

The biggest increase came at the elementary level, where 30 more pupils are enrolled than at the end of the first week of school last year.

"We were down some (in enrollment) last year," Park said. "We were expecting a little bit of an increase, but not this much."

Forsan schools also reported increased enrollment, according to Superintendent J.F. Poyner. As of Friday, 533 students were enrolled at Forsan, up from 527 at the same time in 1988.

These figures represent an evening-out in FISSD enrollment, he said. Enrollment had been dropping at a steady pace since the peak year in 1984, but has remained fairly stable for two years.

Colorado City schools showed a slight decrease in enrollment as of Thursday. A total of 1,307 students were enrolled at that time, compared to 1,330 at the same time last year.

Glasscock ISD Superintendent Donn Stinger reported that Garden City enrollment was down eight students from the same time in 1988, but expected more students to report in the near future.

Sands ISD also reported a slight decrease in enrollment, from 253 in September 1988 to 242 through Friday. Superintendent James Blake said more students were enrolling, but that exact figures were unavailable.

As of Friday, 200 students were enrolled in Borden County schools, according to Principal Mickey McMeans. That figure represents a drop of "two or three" from early last year, he said.

Grady Superintendent Gerald Singleton reported an increased enrollment from 206 last September to 213 as of Friday.

inspections, manpower and equipment, man said.

If the application, which is due Oct. 1, is approved, it will finance 7,200 feet of water mains, eight fire hydrants, fittings and supplies, engineering fees and administration costs, Hammond said.

The improvements will take place in the downtown and westside areas, up to Ninth Street on the northside and Cedar Street on the eastside, she said.

The council also approved a capital improvement revision allowing $21,500 to be shuffled from other budget areas and added to the $13,000 originally allocated to that fund in the 1989-90 $2.4 million budget. It will be used for water main improvements in the downtown area to 10th Street on the northside — areas not covered by the grant application, Hammond said.

"It's the same type operation but it's different mains, different streets and different sections of town," she said. "We have sections of town that are running out of water due to water main deterioration."

The council is also considering the possibility of selling from $1 million to $3 million in bonds to make improvements on a water treatment facility and the main transmission lines, Hammond said. At last night's meeting, a study on long-range financing was presented by Joe Smith of First Southwest Company. No action was taken.

Another issue that the council did not take action on was an industrial team request variance of the fire code to allow National Foam to store products in the Truss King Building.

Fire Marshall Billy Ray Williamson recommended against it, saying it was a fire hazard that would require the installation of smoke removal, venting and sprinkler systems.

"What they're wanting to store is worse than cotton," he said. "I do have the authority to grant a variance myself but I will not. You as the council can grant a variance. I do want you to know of the liability you're getting yourself into."

He did say that it may be possible to put in some petition walls to cut down the used space, making it a legal size which would not require sprinklers.

In other business, the council decided to refinance a Caterpillar motor grader for $69,000 over the next five years.

They also approved a 20-year contract with Tele-Media, which recently changed owners and was called Cablevision. The company change did not affect the contract, Hammond said.

A former candidate for city council, Ricky Thompson, asked for a city election to decide whether the council should be elected from single-member districts.

"I think the only thing is to have an election and let the whole town decide whether they want single-member districts or not," he said.

The city attorney said an election would not decide the matter officially. Only the city council could do that.

"I guess you could tack it on as a referendum item," he said. "You make that decision. Certainly you can take guidance from a referendum election."

Oscar Ortiz, president of the local chapter of the League of United Latin Citizens, said it would not make a difference because it would still be an at-large vote.

"It's the same as electing city council," he said. "It just doesn't work."

Commissioners committed $61,671 to their 1989-90 budget for county-wide landfill closure funds but have not decided how much they will pledge to the closure. The county also will assist in at least one other county landfill closure, in Ackerly. The cost of that closure has not been estimated.

After some prodding from council members, who had hoped that the court would fund up to half of the bill, the commissioners agreed to discuss the issue further at their 9 a.m. Friday meeting.

After the commissioners left, Mathis said the city would have to sell $12,100,000 bonds over a year if the commissioners do not make a larger commitment.

Detailing the problem of closing the city-county dump, of which the city is primarily responsible, was Gary F. Harris of the engineering firm of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper Inc., a consulting firm hired by the city.

The landfill is a natural steep incline, which he estimated to be about 80 feet high. He said the top of the pile must be knocked down — about 10 feet was recommended — and everything smoothed over to a 4-1 incline for about 30 acres. Most highway ditches are a 3-1 incline, he said.

It must be shaped so that water will drain from it, and be covered with 18 inches of clayish soil and six inches of topsoil so that something can grow on it, he said.

All that must be accomplished by July in order to qualify for a three to five year monitoring period as stipulated by tentative Environmental Protection Agency regulations, he said. If it is not properly closed by the deadline, the city will be required to monitor the dump for a minimum of 30 years.

"We're going to have to do it," Harris said. "It's coming."

He said monitoring includes digging three test wells and running two tests a year on each to determine the levels of more than 48 substances such as heavy metals, chlorides, sulphides and methane gas.

Hydrants faulty

SAN ANGELO (AP) — They're painting part of the town red in this West Texas city, but it's no cause for celebration, according to fire officials.

Annual inspections that ended Aug. 21 have turned up 80 faulty fire hydrants and only four of them have since been fixed. Until they can be fixed, the out-of-service hydrants are being marked with red-painted discs to warn firefighters that they must find alternate water sources when an emergency occurs.

The faulty hydrants represent about four percent of the city's total, according to the San Angelo Standard-Times.

Fire officials said 23 of the faulty hydrants are in the southwest section of the city, which has a large proportion of residences with wood-shingled roofs. Another four are at the city's airport.

City public works director Will Wilde said every effort is being made to repair the hydrants in a timely manner, but there is no way he could predict when the hydrants will be repaired.

San Angelo Fire Chief Paul White said he has refrained from bringing pressure to speed repairs. "I understand summer is the busiest time of the year for the water department," White said. "I wish they would be quicker, but I understand their problems."

Reappointments

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' office has announced the reappointment of John McKissack of Forney, Sam Chase of Abilene and Robert Aguirre of San Antonio to the Crime Stoppers Advisory Council for two-year terms.

McKissack, 58, is retired as executive vice president of Coca Cola Bottling Co. of North Texas. Chase, 42, is a lawyer, and Aguirre, 39, is a special projects manager and consultant.

Other appointments announced Tuesday included:

Celia Salomons of San Antonio to the Council on Child Abuse and Neglect Prevention, replacing Martha Ortega of El Paso, whose term expired.

Marcia Mogetz Grimsley of Austin to the Governing Board of the Texas School for the Blind, replacing Dr. Anne Corn, also of Austin, whose term expired.

New director

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Department of Corrections director James Lynaugh has been selected as the interim director of a new board that will oversee management of the state corrections system.

The Texas Board of Criminal Justice selected Lynaugh during its first meeting Tuesday.

The board was created by lawmakers this year as part of a prison reform bill that consolidates the prison system and pardons and parole systems.

Travel requests

AUSTIN (AP) — The state filled 880,634 requests for travel information in the fiscal year that ended Aug. 31, a 112 percent increase over the previous year, the Texas Department of Commerce reported Tuesday.

The increase was fueled by a national multi-media marketing campaign, the department said. The inquiries were received by the tourism division of the Commerce Department and by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

The Texas visitor industry generated $17.6 billion in travel expenditures in 1987.

Dad sues school barring sons over long hair

HOUSTON (AP) — The father of two longhaired boys alleges in a lawsuit that his sons are being discriminated by a school district because of its hair-length requirements for male students.

The suit filed Tuesday by Dub Wilkinson seeks an injunction to block the Spring Branch Independent School District and top district officials from enforcing the rule and award unspecified damages to Wilkinson for frivolous prosecution against him.

Wilkinson's sons, Brian 17, and Travis, 15, have been barred from school since November 1988 for refusing to cut their hair, which falls below their shoulders. School rules allow no hair past shoulder-length.

Their father was fined $25 under a state law which requires school attendance and a hearing to challenge that fine was set for Tuesday before Harris County Criminal Court Judge J.R. Musslewhite. The hearing, however, was delayed for two weeks in light of the new suit.

"It's my understanding that the law and these kinds of claims were addressed in the early and mid 1970s and that the policies were upheld by the appeals courts and the claims challenging them were rejected," said Jeff Davis, an attorney for the school district.

"I feel all citizen rights are important and that I in some way can make my contribution to see that all people are protected by the Constitution," said Wilkinson, who also claims his sons' civil rights have been violated.

School officials have said in the past it was important for students to learn to live-by standards, and the local school board recently voted to uphold the hair rule.

"I refuse to be a blunt instrument for the schools to use to beat my sons over the head, so they use the state prosecuting system to be the blunt instrument because we will not comply with their wishes," Wilkinson said. "Once this is resolved, the books will be there, the teachers will be there, everything will be in place. If they want to avail themselves to the system, it will be there.

The Wilkinsons' attorney, Darrell K. McAlexander, said both sides were studying the case to determine the best way to resolve the matter.

"This is a sexually discriminatory policy in violation of the Texas Constitution and U.S. Constitution," he said. "The problem with the policy is they are making a policy that is gender exclusive—they're making it against little boys but not against little girls."

Ryan may make pitch for ag commissioner

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan says in a published report today he's considering trying to topple Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower in next year's state elections.

Baseball's all-time strikeout leader told the Houston Post that he could mount a race while pitching another season for the Rangers.

The 42-year-old Ryan, before taking the mound against the Kansas City Royals Tuesday night, told the newspaper he could play and campaign at the same time, but he has yet to decide whether he will pitch, seek office or both in 1990.

The Allen, Texas rancher publicly expressed interest in seeking statewide office as early as 1985. He said he was approached last week by the Texas Farm Bureau about running against Hightower.

Ryan said he and his wife, Ruth, met with Farm Bureau officials for several hours on Friday in Arlington. "We had some preliminary discussions and I'm considering it," Ryan told the newspaper in a telephone interview.

Ryan would neither discuss his feelings about Hightower's job performance nor when he would decide whether to make the race.

"I really don't have a timetable," he said.

Ryan said he probably would run as a Republican.

Rangers owner George W. Bush, who considered but ultimately rejected seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination next year, said he hopes whatever Ryan decides, it includes pitching at least one more season.

"I think Nolan could do anything he wants. He'd be a great candidate once he finishes pitching," Bush, the president's eldest son, said.

Ryan has never sought public office. His wife told the Post he never even ran for Student Council in high school "because he was too busy with sports."

Nevertheless, running for Hightower's post will be a natural because agriculture is Ryan's "second love," she said.

Neiman's goes Western

DALLAS (AP) — Neiman Marcus, seller of sumptuous fantasies for 81 years, is inviting its well-heeled clientele to put on a pair of spurs and recapture the Wild West.

The Dallas-based retailer Tuesday began delivery of its Christmas catalog, the annual wishbook of the wealthy. For one cowpoke with $108,000, Neiman Marcus will sell a hand-tooled saddle by Edward H. Bohlin Co., lavishly furnished with sterling silver and 18-karat gold.

A cowboy ain't a cowboy without a horse, so for $4,000 and up Neiman Marcus is offering a selection of champion bloodline painted horses from the Real Ranch in Kerrville. Buyers can choose from 1989 weanlings and up — from black to bay.

Those wishing to relive the great cattle drives of the Old West can reserve a pony to chase herd a weekend at the Y.O. Ranch, also near Kerrville. There is room for 150 people to attend the ranch's 110th anniversary in April 1990.

"I do not recommend this for pussyfooters," said Jan Roberts, a Neiman Marcus spokeswoman.

To give prospective ropers across the country an equal shot at the event, Neiman Marcus has set 11 a.m. CDT Oct. 18 as the time it will begin taking reservations. The weekend costs $627 for a double occupancy room.

"Texas is really in right now," Ms. Roberts said.

People gather to woo officials for prisons

AUSTIN (AP) — The "prison derby" has opened and some 46 communities are trying to position themselves to win a new state prison, and the economic boost in jobs and payroll that goes with it.

On Tuesday, prison officials were met at the door of the Senate chamber by Di Matthews of Beeville, who was dressed in a bumblebee costume, wearing a button that said "Bee for the TDC."

More than 100 people were on hand and they sat in the Senate gallery and cheered after the new Texas Board of Criminal Justice acknowledged their presence.

They came from Dilley, Hondo, Childress, Stamford, Pampa, Beeville, Woodville, Dalhart, Brownwood, Snyder, Karnes City, Abilene, Milam, Eastland, Freestone, and Hudspeth counties, and the Trans-Pecos region.

The representatives said a new prison will help the local economies.

Ernestine Beicker, of Karnes City, said the town, trying to recover from job losses in uranium mining and oil, wants a 2,250-bed maximum security prison.

Texas Department of Corrections director James Lynaugh said about 46 communities are interested in having a new state prison facility.

Spring cleaning after the spill

Exxon Corp., which is scarcely known for good public relations, has stained its black image even more by declaring it has cleaned up most of the oil spilled into Alaskan waters.

According to Exxon, Prince William Sound and 1,100 miles of surrounding shoreline have been "environmentally stabilized." The 11 million gallons of crude oil spilled when the Exxon Valdez ran aground poses no further threat to fish and wildlife, Exxon says. Having leaped to this incredible conclusion, the company is pulling out its cleanup crews this week.

This has prompted Environmental Protection Agency Administrator William Reilly to inform Exxon that the cleanup is far from completed and that the federal government expects the giant oil company to resume its efforts when weather permits. Failing that, he said, the government will direct the remaining cleanup operation and bill Exxon for the costs.

Despite its many attempts to elude full responsibility for the worst oil spill in U.S. history, Exxon should be held financially accountable for the damage it has caused. The multibillion-dollar corporation can afford to pay the bill. Last year, Exxon earned on average $14.5 million in profits each day. Some analysts even speculate that the steep increase in gasoline prices after the spill will generate enough extra revenue for Exxon to cover the cleanup costs, which are estimated at $2 billion.

Yet, who would pay for the cleanup if an oil company lacking Exxon's deep pockets were responsible for the next major spill?

Legislation is advancing in Congress to deal with this dilemma. The Senate has approved a bill that would impose an excise tax of 3 cents per barrel on all domestic and imported crude to help pay for potential environmental damage.

The measure, which is generally supported by the Bush administration, would establish a fund to compensate for damages that exceed the federal limits on liability, up to $1 billion per spill. It would streamline the cleanup process by eliminating lengthy court battles over who is liable and for how much.

The bill would also require the oil companies to prepare legally binding plans to prepare for spills and oblige the federal government to direct such operations when private parties are not doing so.

If the Alaskan tragedy has taught us anything, it is the importance of moving quickly to contain a major petroleum disaster. Creating a contingency fund is a sound first step in that direction.

We've got to stop the killing

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

It was a beautiful morning. I went out and got the paper off the lawn, poured my first cup of coffee and headed to the back porch to read the paper and drink the coffee. Life is good.

Item No. 1: A 10-year-old girl was accidentally shot by a man who lived in her home, police said.

Antoinette Dorsey of 5782 Boatrock Road, Apt. 135, was shot in the chest while she lay in bed at 12:30 a.m., Fulton County police Sgt. Donald L. Cook said.

Richard McCoy, 18, who lived at the same address, entered the victim's bedroom and was waving a .38-caliber pistol for unknown reasons. Sergeant Cook said Mr. McCoy then went into the hallway and sat in a chair while still waving the gun and the weapon discharged. The bullet passed through a stair rail and the bedroom wall and struck the child, Sgt. Cook said.

Mr. McCoy was charged with reckless conduct and being a minor in possession of a firearm.

I put the paper down, went back into the house and poured a second cup of coffee and then returned to the porch and resumed reading the paper.

Item No. 2: A 21-year-old Rome, Ga., resident was charged with murder in the shooting death of a 2-year-old girl whose mother was trying to "quieten her," police said.

Mark Brian Dupress was arrested and charged in the death of Lariesha LaShun Alexander. Police and jail records indicated Mr. Dupress told police he was playing with his 9 mm semiautomatic pistol when the gun went off.

He later told police he was arguing with his girlfriend, Kimberly Dean, Lariesha's mother, in the driveway of his home.

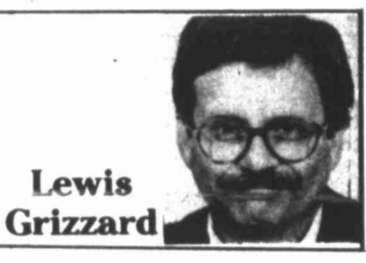

I found myself thinking about the guy who had verbally accosted me on a radio show a couple of days earlier. He said gun-control laws were "commonist."

I read on.

Item No. 3: A woman who was shot in the thigh in an attempted robbery said her attackers were four boys, two of whom looked younger than 10 years old.

"I'm, still surprised. I saw a child with a pistol in his hand," Donna Marbet, 45, of Seale, Ala., said from her hospital bed.

That's one kid shot, one kid dead and a woman shot in the thigh by a child with a pistol in his hand.

Item No. 4: Police arrested two people and were searching for a third in the robbery and shooting death of an Atlanta man in Grant Park.

Calvin Thomas Jackson, 18, of West Lake Avenue, was charged with murder and robbery in the shooting of Thomas Robert Compton, 24.

A second person, a 15-year-old juvenile, also was charged with murder and robbery. A warrant was issued for the third person, Anthony Quinn Butts, 20, of Newton Avenue, who later surrendered and was charged with murder and robbery.

Mr. Compton and two girls, ages 15 and 16, were leaving the park about 10:45 p.m. when they were approached from behind by three men who told them to lie on the ground while they robbed them of jewelry and money. Police said that when Mr. Compton moved he was shot by one of the suspects. A gun carried by Mr. Compton also was stolen, police said.

I put down the paper and went upstairs to the '58 Royal. Yeah, another gun-control column because kids are killing and dying, and, dammit to hell, something's got to be done to stop it.

Soviet pollution out of control

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

ON THE VOLGA RIVER, U.S.S.R. — Freighters plying this river spew a rainbow of chemicals into the water. Rusting pipes on the shoreline dump raw human sewage into the roiling concoction. Legend once had it that a dip in the "Mother Volga" could add 10 years to one's life. But anyone unwise enough to make that dip today will emerge covered with oil and gasoline. And thousands of caviar-bearing sturgeon go belly up in the Volga every year.

What happened to the river whose name means "holy"? The same thing that happened to the city water supply in Leningrad and the air in the Urals — seven decades of Communist Party rule, where industrialization was sacrosanct and the environment was expendable.

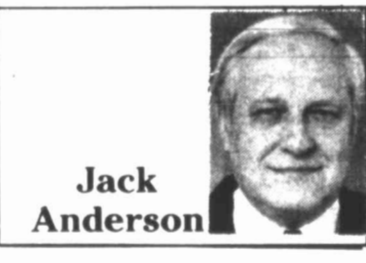

That callous disregard for Mother Nature has cost the Soviets their clean water and air, and maybe their lives. The Soviet Union has more doctors per capita than any other nation, but statistics show an alarming decrease in the general health of the people.

The average Soviet man can expect to live 60 years. That's six years less than the life expectancy of the '60s. A startling one-third of the men will get cancer, according to secret Soviet estimates.

Soviet babies are paying the highest price. Infant mortality in the Soviet Union is three times worse than in the United States. The Soviet Union is the only industrialized nation whose infant death rate is showing a steady increase.

One of the Soviet leaders raising hell behind the scenes is biologist and ecologist Alexei Yablokov. He reckons that one-fifth of the Soviet people live in ecological "disaster" zones, while another 35 to 40 percent live in ecologically "unfavorable" areas.

The horror stories are reported in the Soviet press or passed by their untreated waste into it.

The Chernobyl nuclear plant disaster may have slapped Soviets to their senses. Environmental groups are springing up. They form political committees and field candidates. Greenpeace will soon open a Moscow office. Mikhail Gorbachev has formed an "Environmental Committee" to survey the problem.

But perestroika may have come too late to save much of what the Soviets have carelessly destroyed. The Communist Party, in a relatively short span of time, created an industrialized nation with a military superpower status to stand up to any and all enemies from without. Now the country may be destroyed from within by disease because it fouled its own nest.

DENG'S NOSE OUT OF JOINT

— It is apparent from intelligence assessments that Chinese leader Deng Xiao-Ping was affronted by the student uprising this summer. Respect for elders and authority is ingrained in the Chinese culture. As a matter of honor, Deng would not have let the upstart students dictate to him, even if, as a matter of politics, he agreed with their cause.

MINI-EDITORIAL — George Bush's style of asserting himself has a stink of royalty about it. In the recent PBS interview with journalist David Frost, "King George" repeatedly implied that his opinion carried more weight than his detractors' because he is president and they aren't. Bush has a point, but he also has an obligation not to dismiss others with the blanket statement he used with Frost, "I'm the president." His attitude was most disturbing when he told Frost that he understood all the free-speech arguments against a flag-burning amendment, but that he would support one anyway. "If I'm wrong, too darn bad," Bush said. We wonder if Bush knows just how darn bad it can be when the president is wrong.

Work recalls Fair memories

By KAREN MCCARTHY
Staff Writer

I've spent the past few days getting material together for the Howard County Fair tabloid which will be included with your Sunday paper.

It's hard to write about this fair without remembering all the fairs, county and state, in my past.

I'm a country girl, raised on a farm. That meant 4-H was almost mandatory and I was a 4-Her for years. When I grew up and had children, my children joined 4-H and I graduated to being a leader.

But there were a lot of changes between my 4-H days in the 50s and those of my children in the late 70s and early 80s. For one thing, being a girl, I was encouraged to have cooking and sewing projects and actively discouraged from having livestock projects.

I sewed a lot of dresses and baked a lot of pies, but I always envied the boys who got the fun (and the big bucks) of raising steers.

That changed with my daughter. She started 4-H with a heifer that she had bottle-fed when she was barely big enough to hold on to the halter. Beulah, the heifer, supplied most of the male calves that later became T.J.'s steer projects. But one thing didn't change — the boys got to sleep in the barns with the animals and the girls got to go home at night.

That seemed unfair to me as a youngster and it seemed unfair to me as an adult. So every year we pitched a tent near the barns and I chaperoned my daughter and her girlfriends as they slept on the fairgrounds, if not in the stalls themselves.

Actually it was a very practical arrangement as we always had at least six or eight animals at the fair and rules required the animals to stay the full 8 days. Home was 30 miles away and that was a long drive at the end of the day.

Our county fair in Ohio was held during July so the kids could participate in the state fair. It always rained that week — I can't remember one single fair when it didn't rain at least four of the eight days. By the end of the week the kids were exhausted, I was grumpy, and we were all glad it was over. But we never missed a fair.

The last fair we participated in before moving to Big Spring almost did me in. I was doing a late night check on one of the steers when someone shot out a transformer, knocking out all the lights on the fairground. T.J.'s Black Angus steer was practically invisible in the darkness and I tripped over him as I tried to feel my way out of the stall.

I managed to dislocate a shoulder, which I am convinced is one of the most painful injuries possible. However, because I was responsible for several 14 and 15-year-old girls and could not find anyone left on the fairgrounds to take over; I could not go to the hospital for treatment. I sat in the car, trying desperately not to move, until dawn, when other parents started arriving. I think it was the longest night of my life.

I believe that was also the year that Beulah, still coming to the fair as part of a breeding project, chose fair week to come into heat.

The fair was a special time — time when I took a week off from farming and spent it exclusively with my children and their friends. Time to enjoy a chat with neighbors. Time to exchange quilting patterns and recipes and treatments for sick animals. Time to lean against Beulah in the stall, she with her cud, me with my book, and relax.

This week's fair preparations bring it all back.

Compromise sought on drug bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is asking Senate Democrats to compromise on anti-drug legislation, while President Bush warns young people not to "blow it" by getting involved in drugs.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, and his GOP counterpart, Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, held talks on the Democratic proposal Tuesday. Further meetings among lawmakers from both parties were planned today.

Dole and other top GOP senators also met with top White House officials, emerging to say Republicans want to make a deal with the Democrats.

"The administration ... is prepared at any time to sit down ... and see if there is some way to bring it together," Dole said.

The closed-door sessions were held after Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Robert Byrd, D-W.Va. — with Mitchell's support — proposed a $3.9 billion anti-drug program.

House passes flag-burning bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — House approval of a bill outlawing flag-burning weakens the push for a similar constitutional amendment, Democrats contend, but President Bush and others vow to fight for their politically more strident approach.

"I think there are probably enough members now that will vote against a constitutional amendment that they won't be able to get the two-thirds required by the Constitution to pass one," said Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., after Tuesday's 380-38 House vote for the statute.

Rep. Steny Hoyer, D-Md., chairman of the House

Democratic Caucus, said a constitutional amendment is not necessary to many citizens and lawmakers who want to protect the flag.

"If a statute will do it, fine," he said.

However, Bush and Republican leaders on Capitol Hill contend that a law cannot overcome the Supreme Court's 5-4 ruling in June that burning the flag is a form of free speech protected by the Constitution.

Many Democrats say a constitutional amendment would tinker dangerously with the Bill of Rights.

Drug company recalls products

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Eli Lilly & Co. says it has recalled batches of 10 prescription drugs and halted distribution from its plant here because of record-keeping violations found by federal inspectors.

The pharmaceutical maker said it is confident there was nothing wrong with the safety or effectiveness of the drugs, which were recalled Tuesday from wholesalers and had never reached pharmacies.

An inspection by the Food and Drug Administration last month found objectionable conditions in nearly every area of Lilly's Indianapolis capsule and tablet plant, including failure to have written standard operating procedures for many tasks and record-keeping problems.

Orders dropping for new cars

DETROIT (AP) — Houston auto dealer Alan Helfman says he will seate back his orders for 1990 model cars and trucks even though he has just five 1989 models left on his lot. He isn't alone.

Dealers across the country say they plan to trim their orders for the next model year's vehicles, due out next month, because of pressure from their own inventories, sagging sales and an uncertain economic outlook.

"I think we will be a little more conservative this year," Helfman, general manager of River Oaks Chrysler-Plymouth, said Tuesday. "When you look at everything, you've got to really forecast and you've got to be conservative."

After a few strong sales periods recently, car and light truck sales through the end of last month were running 3.7 percent behind last year's pace.

NEW YORK — New York Mayor Edward Koch, right, acknowledges applause while conceding the Democratic nomination for mayor to Manhattan Borough President David Dinkins Tuesday night. Koch was defeated in his bid for an unprecedented fourth term.

Democrats keep two House seats

By The Associated Press

New York Democrats chose calm, deliberate David Dinkins over brash Mayor Edward I. Koch, bringing the nation's largest city closer to electing its first black mayor.

backing from whites.

His theme of uniting the city took on unexpected urgency in recent weeks after a white mob in Brooklyn attacked and killed a young black man. Koch angered many blacks with his response to the killing.

Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, one of the first blacks to lead a major U.S. city, savored a big primary victory over a dozen challengers, and Democrats foiled Republican designs on House seats in Texas and California that were vacated by Speaker Jim Wright and Democratic Whip Tony Coelho.

Tuesday's primary election signaled the end of an era in New York, although Koch reminded supporters that it wasn't quite up.

"You'll have me from now to December 31st," he said in a concession speech. "I do not intend to keep my mouth shut."

In a victory speech, Dinkins urged supporters not to savor Koch's loss. "We're all together now," he said. "Remember me? I'm the guy who brings people together."

With all the votes counted, Dinkins had 537,313, or 51 percent, to Koch's 445,816, or 42 percent. Two lesser-known candidates, former transit chief Richard Ravitch and city Comptroller Harrison Goldin, split the rest.

Giuliani had 75,720 votes, or 67 percent, to Lauder's 36,905, or 33 percent. Giuliani will run as the candidate of the Republican, Liberal and Independent Fusion parties, and said he wanted to be a mayor in the mold of Fiorello LaGuardia, who served from 1934 to 1945.

Dinkins, the Manhattan borough president, will face former federal prosecutor Rudolph Giuliani in the Nov. 7 election. Giuliani powdered cosmetics heir Ronald Lauder in an unusually bitter GOP primary that saw Lauder spend an estimated $12 million on negative advertising.

Dinkins won the Democratic nomination by cornering near-unanimous support from blacks and getting greater-than-expected Dinkins was joined at a victory celebration by Jesse Jackson, who was active in the New York and Detroit mayoral races. Jackson supported the winner in New York, but wasn't able to rescue the failed campaign of Rep. John Conyers in Detroit.

Famed journalist flees China

HONG KONG (AP) — One of China's most wanted dissident intellectuals, the author of the controversial "River Elegy" television series, has escaped China and says the many people who aided him are all in "extreme danger."

"I've been living in terror for the past 100 days," journalist Su Xiaokang said in an interview 100 days after Chinese troops opened fire on unarmed citizens in Beijing crushing a movement for freedom.

"A lot of my friends have been arrested, a lot. I haven't seen my wife or my little boy since the massacre. The pressure on me has been intense."

Su said he left China about 10 days ago with several other dissidents also wanted by the Beijing government.

His escape contradicts recent reports in Chinese-language newspapers that the "underground railroad" to help dissidents and students has been cut.

Namibian nationalist leader slain

WINDHOEK, Namibia (AP) — A gunman killed a leader of the guerrilla movement for Namibian independence, and a Namibian newspaper today said callers claiming to represent a white supremacist group took responsibility.

Anton Lubowski was shot in the head Tuesday night in front of his home by an assailant who drove away in a red sedan, said police Lt. Kierie du Rand.

He said authorities had begun a manhunt. Police today offered a "substantial" reward but did not specify an amount.

Lubowski, 37, was the only white top official for the South-West Africa People's Organization. The nationalist group has waged a bush war since 1966 against South African rule of the territory.

The group's president, Sam Nujoma, is to end 30 years in exile on Thursday and the group's election director, Hage Geingob, said today neither the slaying or new threats against Nujoma would change his plans to return to Namibia.

Advisors sent to cocaine regions

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The government is shipping hundreds of army and police reinforcements to Colombia's cocaine regions and says it will send military advisers to help govern cities racked by drug-linked violence.

More than 500 new soldiers and police were deployed Tuesday in Antioquia state, of which Medellin is the capital. They will bolster the more than 4,000 security force members already in the northwest region, where drug gangs stage daily bombings, shootings and arson attacks.

In Medellin, home of the country's most powerful cocaine cartel, hundreds of mourners on Tuesday attended the funeral of former Mayor Pablo Pelaez Gonzalez, who tried to rid the city of drug traffickers.

Pelaez Gonzalez's assassination by gunmen on Monday spurred the government to call an emergency security meeting.

Guerrillas begin offensive

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Twenty-five rockets exploded around Kabul airport today, killing one soldier, injuring three and setting a Soviet supply plane on fire, witnesses said.

Also today, a guerrilla commander announced his fighters have started a northern offensive to cut Soviet supply routes to Kabul.

In the south, guerrillas reportedly pushed back a 1,000-vehicle army convoy with winter provisions for Afghanistan's second largest city, Kandahar.

Workers at Kabul airport said the facility was shut down after the attack, but air traffic resumed in the afternoon.

Officials would not confirm the attack.

The casualties occurred at a military base near the airport, used by civilian and military aircraft, airport workers said.

They said a Soviet-made Antonov supply plane was set ablaze by a rocket.

Debate hot on political ambassadorial appointees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Among State Department officials, there is no shortage of anecdotes about the moral and intellectual shortcomings of political activists who won prestige assignments as ambassadors.

Some of the more noteworthy tales:

—One recent ambassador to a European country had his bedroom covered with mirrors. He often frolicked there with call girls imported from a neighboring capital.

—When Maureen Reagan, the former president's daughter, showed up in an African country a few years ago, the local U.S. ambassador received her at the airport in an advanced state of drunkenness.

—An ambassador to an Asian country a decade ago was so ignorant about world affairs he was unaware that there were two Koreas and had never heard of the heads of government of either France or West Germany.

The debate over political appointees versus those chosen from the career diplomatic service heats up each time a new administration takes office, and President Bush's accession is no different.

The union of career diplomats is so upset with some of Bush's nominees that it is accusing the State Department in a lawsuit of covering up background information about some of the choices in order to avoid embarrassing disclosures.

The State Department declines comment on the suit but cites a 1970 ambassadorial appointment by President Nixon to defend the practice of going outside the foreign service for some key diplomatic posts.

The assignment was U.N. ambassador and the appointee was a defeated Senate candidate named George Bush.

The career service has never argued against political appointees. Indeed, the list of such ambassadors is long and distinguished. Mike Mansfield, who recently completed a 12-year tour as ambassador to Japan, is but one example. Otto Reich, who left Venezuela in July after a three-year stay, initially encountered official hostility in Caracas because he was thought to be a right-wing extremist. When he left, he took with him Venezuela's highest decoration.

Also, political appointees sometimes have the ear of their president, an asset few career diplomats can claim. They are sometimes more reliable in carrying out the president's policy than their more cautious colleagues in the foreign service.

Tony Motley, who as President Reagan's top aide for Latin America policy had almost 30 ambassadors under his scrutiny, said the best of them were equally divided between career and political appointees.

At issue now, however, are the credentials of a handful of Bush's selections, usually Republican activists who helped Bush in the 1988 campaign but who are untutored in diplomatic matters.

Examples are Joseph Zappala, a Florida developer who was nominated ambassador to Spain after contributing a reported $126,000 to the campaign.

Another Florida businessman who made a similarly generous contribution was Melvin Sembler, nominated to be Bush's man in Australia.

Della Newman won an appointment as ambassador to New Zealand after helping Bush carry Washington state. Peter Secchia, who helped deliver Michigan to Bush, was rewarded with the embassy in Rome.

He quickly alienated many Italians by suggesting that the Italian Navy now boasts glass bottom boats "so they can see the old Italian Navy."

Confidence in the process was not enhanced with the answers given by Sembler and Zappala when they were asked to write their special qualifications to be ambassadors.

Sembler wrote: "I have been known as a coalition builder, able to organize my peers to action in support of worthy civic, charitable and political causes." Zappala's response was almost identical.

It was episodes such as this that prompted Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., to dismiss the system as "insulting." And in going to court over the issue, the career diplomats' union, known formally as the American Foreign Service Association, believes the law is on its side.

A 1980 law says ambassadorial nominees should be knowledgeable about all aspects of the country of their assignment and that political campaign contributions "should not be a factor" in the selection process.

State lacks money for extensive AIDS therapy

AUSTIN (AP) — State health officials say they have no money to provide thousands of AIDS-afflicted Texans with AZT, a drug recent studies found helps people in the earliest stages of the disease.

"We don't have nearly enough money now, and this new mode of treatment will require more money," Texas Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein said.

It is estimated that the number of infected Texans without symptoms is as high as 100,000, based on data from voluntary statewide testing, annual screening of blood from newborns in hospitals across the state and statistics from U.S. Army enlistments in Texas.

The drug AZT costs each patient with acquired immune deficiency syndrome about $8,000 a year.

The findings on AZT recently announced by the National Institute for Allergy and Infectious Diseases come as Texas health officials are beginning to sort out what they have been empowered to do under the Human Immunodeficiency Virus Act that went into effect Sept. 1.

Health officials knew before the law passed that they weren't going to get all of the $45.8 million they requested, and they already were relying on federal money to provide AZT to Texans in the final stages of the disease. So the findings about AZT's added usefulness have compounded the state's financial problems in combating AIDS.

The new law is the state's first comprehensive attempt to meet the challenge of the AIDS epidemic. But Bernstein said it will be impossible to implement fully with the $18.4 million provided by the Legislature for the two-year budget period.

"All I can say is we'll use every penny of it and fall short in some areas," he told the Austin

American-Statesman. Bernstein said the department also will apply this week for continuation of more than $8 million in state AIDS programs previously funded by the federal government.

The new law enlarges many older AIDS programs that the state administers or contracts out to non-profit local groups, and it creates some new ones.

Beginning in January, for instance, Texans applying for marriage licenses will receive a brochure explaining how AIDS is contracted.

Other new programs would help local AIDS services groups by giving them a state clearinghouse for information on federal and charity grants, and letting them apply local tax and charity money toward cheaper bulk purchases by the state of medications for people with the disease. That program could help provide more AZT to more people.

But health officials also must worry about the demise at the end of this month of a federal program now providing about $1 million a month to pay for AZT for 1,720 indigent Texans in the final stages of the disease.

They represent 62 percent of the 2,778 Texans with symptoms of AIDS. As of Sept. 1, 7,236 Texans have been diagnosed with AIDS, and 60 percent of them have died.

"We always have hopes the feds will pick it up. They always have before," Bernstein said.

If they do not, he added, the state has only $2 million from the new AIDS appropriation with which to pick up the cost of the program, enough for two months.

Meanwhile, health officials say, a recent, apparent slowing in the rate of increase in diagnosed cases of AIDS statewide is encouraging.

Bust, Colorado up for sale

WOODLAND PARK, Colo. (AP) — For the price of a spacious suburban home, you can buy the entire town of Bust, population zero, complete with one building.

Lloyd and Helen Collins, owners of Bust, Colo., on Ute Pass say that after seven years of running the gift shop and being mayor, vice mayor, chief of police and the City Council of their own town they are ready to try a new venture.

So they are selling the place. Price: $159,000.

Since the Collinses live in Woodland Park, near Colorado Springs, and make the short commute to the store daily, Bust has no official residents.

Like Colorado Springs' early settlers, who flocked here by the cry of "Pikes Peak or Bust," tourists have been drawn into the store at the foot of the mountain by a huge sign on the roof.

"Bust, Colo.," it reads. "Colorado's Newest and Smallest Town. Elev. 7,500. Pop. Zero."

"Lots of people stop just because of that sign," Ms. Collins said as she waited on customers recently. "They don't believe it and have to stop to ask about it."

It was the novelty of the idea and the sign that prompted the couple to buy the store from its original owner in 1982. Now, they hope it will strike the fancy of someone else who can carry on the tradition.

Until then, the Collinses are working hard to keep Bust from going bust.

Easy-to-fix south of the border burrito burgers

By PAPA JOE REED
We're still talking sandwiches here at this meeting of M.E.N. (Men-Equality-Now). Today, we want to look for our inspiration south of the border. Yeah! I'm talking "Burrito Burgers." You've probably eaten burrito burgers, but not like these. This is a recipe your children will tell their children. I kid you not, it's that good!

BURRITO BURGERS
Refried beans (1 cup, 1/2 of-15 oz. can)
Green chilies (14-oz. can, chopped)
Onion (1 small, chopped)
Hamburger (1 lb.)
Salt

Cheese (4 slices)
Flour tortillas (8)
Lettuce (2 cups, chopped)
Tomato (1, chopped)
With your ingredients all together, you combine the beans with 2 tbs. of the chilies, the onion and 3/4 tsp. of salt. Add your hamburger to this and mix well. Divide this mixture into eight portions, shaped into patties. On one side of each patty, place a half a slice of cheese and fold over, forming a semi-circle; seal the edges. Now cook these in a large skillet for about five or six minutes a side. Heat the tortillas and serve the burgers in hot tortillas. Now sprinkle with the remaining lettuce, tomato and chilies. This will make about eight servings. Let me tell you, fellows. You can't go wrong with this recipe.

How to open an egg

For a dessert, let's have something different. How about this?

PEACHES AND TART ORANGE SAUCE
Yogurt (1 cup, plain)
Orange juice (frozen, 2 tbs.)
Peaches (1 can, chilled)
Coconut (shredded)

Drain the peaches, saving 1/4 cup of the syrup. In a small bowl mix the yogurt, the orange juice and the peach syrup. Spoon this mixture over the peaches. Now garnish with the coconut. There you have it. Simple, but delicious. I keep telling you men, there's nothing to this cooking. It's easy. It's fun and besides that, if you stick with me, you don't have to take a back seat to any woman when it comes to cooking.

Papa Joe's Kitchen Tip: You like cooked cabbage and onions, but don't like the unpleasant odor? Here's what you do. When cooking, add a wedge of lemon to the pot and this will prevent the usual cabbage or onion odor.

Woman wants help for kleptomania

DEAR ABBY: If you're an alcoholic, you can get help at Alcoholics Anonymous. If you're a drug addict, you can get help from any number of drug rehabilitation facilities. But if you're a kleptomaniac — and not rich — you are doomed.

Psychiatrists charge outrageous fees to help kleptomaniacs, even though kleptomania is a "sickness," the same as drinking, smoking and drug addiction.

I know that taking things without paying for them is stealing, yet I take small items I have no use for — I just can't seem to help myself. (It's just as hard to take things back, which I have tried to do several times.)

I am a churchgoing, middle-aged woman, and that's all I can tell you about myself. Please answer me in the paper. Maybe others with this problem will write in and tell you how they were cured. — KLEPTOMANIAC

DEAR KLEPTOMANIAC: There is help for you. Find "Mental Health" under "County" in your telephone book, and call. You will be told what kind of help is available near you.

You will be charged according to what you can afford to pay. There is no quick "cure," but a therapist may be able to tell you why you take things, and once you understand the reason for your behavior, you will be well on your way to overcoming it. I admire you. The person who knows he or she has a problem and seeks a solution is halfway cured.

DEAR ABBY: We have a problem that requires a quick solution. A wedding is coming up in our family soon, and there is a certain relative who takes her 6-year-old daughter everywhere. Wendy (not her real name) has attended every wedding, shower, anniversary party, etc. in the family. Wendy is very cute and loves to show off. Her mother encourages her, so consequently Wendy is always the center of attention.

Since Wendy's mother never tells her to sit down and be quiet, other family members eventually do when they have had it up to here. Also, when pictures are taken at these family celebrations, Wendy runs to be in every picture, while her mother just sits there beaming.

Should we politely ask Wendy's mother to please leave Wendy at home with a sitter? This has been going on for years, and we are — SICK OF IT.

DEAR SICK: Since you have tolerated Wendy's annoying behavior "for years," it's a little late to suggest that now she be left at home with a sitter.

You would be doing both Wendy and her mother a favor if you explained to this myopic mom that by encouraging Wendy to be the "center of attention," she will soon believe that she is the center of the universe. And self-centered children are usually unpopular with their peers and barely tolerated by adults.

DEAR ABBY: I am a kindergarten teacher and would like to offer a little advice to parents.

Several of my little ones are bed wetters, and the odor can get very strong at times. I suppose some parents do not notice it because they've grown accustomed to it, but I wish you'd remind parents to give their children a bath every morning before they're sent off to school. (Even a sponge bath would help the bed-wetters.)

I hope to see this letter in the paper. Thank you. KINDERGARTEN TEACHER

DEAR TEACHER: Shame on those insensitive parents who would send a child to school smelling bad. (Can you imagine the humiliation those odoriferous children must endure from their peers?)

Here's your letter, teacher. I hope the parents who need reminding get wind of it.

Measles epidemic

WASHINGTON (AP) — The

Centers for Disease Control reports that the nation is undergoing a measles epidemic, at least partly because of the failure of many parents to get their children immunized to prevent the disease.

There have been more measles cases in 1989 than any year since 1966, the agency said.

Measles was so widespread that it was considered a potential health hazard, according to health officials.

Measles is a disease people can be immune to, but younger children entering the classrooms of many communities are being closed to children who haven't had their basic set of vaccines, including the measles vaccine.

The Public Health Service says that preventive vaccines for measles, mumps, diphtheria, pertussis, tetanus, rubella is also called DTP. Rubella is also referred to as German measles.

Parents are urged to get a booklet explaining the benefits of these medications. The booklet is available and when received, parents are sent $1.25 to the Information Center, 81009. Ask for Parents Guide to Childhood Immunization, item number 166V.

There are also several booklets available to interested parents.

The process of immunization is simple. The Department of Health and Human Services encourages parents to take advantage of the services.

One concern is that dead or weakened versions of the measles vaccine, which is injected into the body or taken orally, results by producing antibodies against substances known as antigens.

Antibodies are proteins that attach to antigens and help destroy them.

Association gives U.S. C-plus for education

WASHINGTON (AP) — American students have little incentive to achieve good grades as many are lured into low-paying jobs to earn money for designer clothes touted by television advertisers, the head of the nation's largest school administrator group said today.

Scott Thomson, executive director of the National Association of Secondary School Principals, examined the learning conditions in America and compared them with those in South Korea and West Germany.

Concluding that "American society doesn't measure up," Thomson prepared a "National Report Card" in the October issue of the association's journal that awarded South Korea an A-minus and West Germany a B-plus. The United States received a C-plus.

Thomson pointed to a 1988 North Carolina survey that found half of the high school juniors were working, with 67 percent of these students holding jobs 20 hours or more a week.

In South Korea, he said students simply do not hold jobs while at-ending school." In West Germany, students through all 13 years of schooling are not employed in the job market except perhaps informally in family businesses.

"Compared to their international counterparts, most American students not only have fewer incentives to achieve good grades, they also have more incentives to hold jobs during the school week," Thomson said in the article.

"A high demand for cheap labor and a premium on teen-age consumption lure students into the job market," said Thomson, who examined five broad categories that researchers say consistently affect learning.

As for television, Thomson said 71 percent of 13-year-old Korean students consistently watch science programs, while only 37 percent of Americans of similar age watch science programs, the lowest of any group studied in an international assessment of math and science schooling.

Thomson said the market analysis firm, Teenage Research Unlimited, found that television's focus on the teen-age consumer market has now dropped from age 18 to 15 because the typical high school junior has nearly $60 a week in spending money from jobs and allowances.

"Brand loyalties are established at an early age, hence the hard sell to youth. The American television industry tends to view children and youth as consumers rather than as learners," he said.

The pressure on students to consume may soon extend to the school classroom as well, said Thomson. Whittle Communications, a subsidiary of Time-Life Publishing Corp., is offering students a daily 10-minute news show with two minutes of advertising in return for an offer of free television monitors.

America received a D for prevalence of illegal drugs and Bs for the percentage of Gross National Product devoted to public education, place of schooling in family value structure and the percentage of families below the poverty line.

The only A for America was in the percentage of youth age 16 in school.

Some good offensive teams and some not-so-good offensive teams

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The first week of Crossroads Country football turned out to be an eventful one. Of the 10 teams in the Herald's coverage, six came away winners, and two of the area teams played each other.

It's hard to form a solid conclusion after one week of play, but it looks like two area six-man teams might have great seasons.

I knew Grady and Sands would be forces, and last Friday's performances didn't do anything to sway my opinion.

Sands was totally awesome in its 66-8 slaughter of Hermleigh. Last year Sands' only downfall was lack of offense. I think coach Randy Roemisch has that corrected.

In 20 minutes of play, the Mustangs racked up 300 yards total offense. Ten times the Sands offense got the ball, and 10 times it scored. The other Sands score was by the defense.

It's a good thing they call off six-man games if one team is leading by 45 points. I'd hate to think what the score would've been if they had played the second half.

Last year the Grady Wildcats had a potent offense, averaging 31 points per game. If Friday's 56-8 win over Ropes is indicative of what's to come, the offense will be even more energized.

Coach Leandro Gonzales' Wildcats rolled to 467 yards total offense, and it was evenly divided, 226 on the ground, and 241 in the air.

While on the subject of high-powered offenses, the Big Spring Steers might just have one themselves. Despite numerous mental and physical mistakes against Hobbs, N.M., coach David Thompson's Steers exhibited a balanced offense. I know 278 total yards isn't an overwhelming number, (140 rushing, 138 passing) the figures could have been much higher. Twice the Steers had TD's called back, not to mention a whole lot of penalties.

The irony of it all is that Big Spring was penalized only twice in the first half for 10 yards. In the second half, the Steers were flagged for 65 yards in penalties.

I kind of got the impression the refs started feeling sorry for the Eagles, who now have a 16-game losing streak, and began looking for things to call on the Steers.

Another team that showed signs of having a good offense is the Garden City Bearkats. In their 39-0 win over Forsan, the Bearkats of offense accumulated 342 yards, 300 of it coming on the ground.

But don't think the Bearkats can't throw the football, they just didn't have too against outmanned Forsan. Coach Sam Scott believes in having a balanced offense.

Former Coahoma player and coach, Curtis and Larry Hudson, made a sterling debut at Kermit. Coach Hudson, who's in his first year as head coach at Kermit, saw his team beat McCamey 40-7.

Curtis, a 5-11, 160-pound senior quarterback, scored three times in the first half, racking up 89 yards rushing, and finished the game with 105 yards rushing and 18 in the air. Although he completed only one pass, Curtis intercepted a pass in the fourth quarter.

Kermit, a perennial football power, is picked in the preseason polls to finish second behind Crane in District 4-3A.

How about them Cowboys and Oilers? If Sunday's openers are anything of what's to come, we Texans have a long season in front of us.

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones and coach Jimmy Johnson got a fine welcome into the NFL. They found out all that exhibition stuff doesn't mean a thing.

The Cowboys looked pitiful in their 28-0 loss to the New Orleans Saints. Even falling on a loose ball was a challenge for the upstart Pokes.

Poor tackling, poor pass coverage, and virtually no offense. The only one I was impressed with was rookie quarterback Troy Aikman, who handled the pressure well. Aikman accounted for all but seven of the Cowboys total offensive yards. He was the leading rusher with 13 yards in one carry.

The Cowboys have never been held to 20 yards rushing. That seems impossible with a Heisman Trophy winner in your backfield. But the Cowboys have a history of doing the impossible.

I bet Mr. Jones never envisioned a team that managed only 20 yards rushing, not even the expansion Cowboys of 1960 and last year's 3-13 team plunged to such record lows.

And the Oilers, picked by many to contend for a Super Bowl berth, were picked apart by Wade Wilson, Anthony Carter and the Minnesota Vikings, 38-7.

The Oilers offense was even worse than Dallas' offense, managing a whopping 112 yards. That's got to be some kind of record low also.

Carter, the two-time Pro Bowler, had a field day against the Oiler secondary, catching seven passes for 123 yards and one touchdown.

Carter made such mockery of the Houston secondary that even the coaches didn't see eye-to-eye.

After the loss, Oilers coach Jerry Glanville said: 'I was disappointed with our coverage on Carter, especially since he was double-covered.'

Vikings coach Jerry Burns said: 'They gave us man coverage, and it's hard to hold a guy like him (Carter) with man coverage.'

Like I said, it could be a long season.

Steve's stuff

Terrell, Morales top players

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The first week of Crossroads Country football action had plenty of stars, but none stood out more than Grady's Scott Terrell and Garden City's Richard Morales.

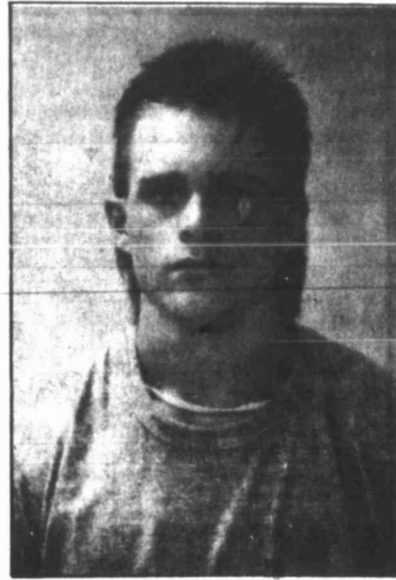

Terrell, a 5-11, 147-pound senior, was the "main man" in Grady's 56-8 romp over Ropesville. The slick wide receiver scored five touchdowns while catching seven passes for 177 yards, and carrying the ball six times for 110 more yards. A combined total of 287 yards in any classification is a great night's work.

For Terrell's effort, he's the Crossroads Country Offensive Player of the Week.

Morales, making his first varsity start, had a remarkable game in Garden City's 39-0 win over Forsan. The sophomore cornerback made seven tackles, recovered three fumbles, caused two fumbles, and intercepted a pass, returning it 24 yards.

He's the Defensive Player of the Week.

Other defensive headliners were: Klondike safety Corbett Foster, who made seven tackles, intercepted two passes, returning one 78 yards for a score, in Klondike's 34-16 win over Wilson.

SCOTT TERRELL

• Garden City outside linebacker Roy Ramirez, who made nine tackles in a win over Forsan. Middle linebacker Eric Seidenberger made eight tackles.

• Grady linebacker Mike McKaskle made 14 tackles in the win over Ropesville. Cornerback Scott Glaze made 13 stops.

• In Colorado City's 21-7 win over Alpine, end Raymond Sutton made eight tackles, and linebacker Adon

RICHARD MORALES

DeLeon made 12 tackles.

• In as losing effort to Seminole, Coahoma tackle DeWayne Bradbury made nine tackles and got two quarterback sacks, while end Thomas Hoggard made eight tackles and sacked the QB once.

• In Big Spring's 21-17 win over Hobbs, N.M., tackle Charles LeGrand made seven tackles and sacked the quarterback two times.

The offensive stalwarts were:

Honor Roll

• Garden City fullback Eric Seidenberger scored two TD's and rushed for 75 yards in 10 carries in the Bearkats win over Forsan. Guards John Seidenberger and Roy Ramirez helped pave the way for 342 offensive yards.

• Grady quarterback Lynn Garza completed 8 of 14 passes for 181 yards in Grady's victory over Ropesville.

• In Colorado City's romp over Alpine, fullback Tracy Edwards rambled for 144 yards in 18 carries and two TD's.

• In Sands' 66-8 win over Hermleigh, running back Bill Griggs rushed for 104 yards in 8 carries; quarterback Albert Franco completed 5 of 6 passes for 66 yards; running back Charles Rhodes carried 8 times for 66 yards; and wide receiver Jay Johnston caught 4 passes for 43 yards, and kicked 6 extra points.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Kansas City Royals teammates hoist Pat Tabler in jubilation for his ninth inning two-run homer that won the game for the Royals against the Texas Rangers, 6-5. Tabler was pinch hitting when he knocked the 3-2 pitch from Kenny Rogers over the left field fence.

White Sox club Orioles, 11-1

By The Associated Press
Chicken a la King will never replace crab cakes as a Baltimore specialty even though Eric King is making a specialty of beating the Baltimore Orioles.

The Chicago White Sox dined on Oriole a la King Tuesday night as King beat Baltimore for the third time this season and Ivan Calderon, Carlton Fisk and Scott Fletcher homered in an 11-1 slaughter.

The Orioles, however, weren't doing any laughing since the setback prevented them from gaining ground in the American League East. They remained two games behind Toronto, which lost to Minnesota 8-2.

"I don't know what it is. It just happened to be them," said King,

8-9, who yielded only three hits in seven innings. "I know I'm comfortable out there pitching against them. I take them like they're any other team. Just because they're having a good season doesn't have any effect on me."

Twins 8, Blue Jays 2
Kent Hrbek had a grand slam and a career-high five RBIs and David West won for the third time in four starts since arriving in the Frank Viola trade. West yielded six hits and struck out a career-high seven in seven innings.

Brewers 7, Athletics 6
Greg Vaughn's three-run homer capped a five-run fourth-inning rally and Dan Plesac tied a club record with his 97th career save as Milwaukee came back from a 5-0 deficit for its sixth straight victory.

The victory pulled third-place Milwaukee within 6½ games of Toronto in the AL East. Oakland's lead over Kansas City in the West dropped to three games.

The A's took a 5-0 off Chris Bosio in the second inning, which included RBI singles by Dave Henderson and Mike Gallego and sacrifice flies by Rickey Henderson and Jose Canseco. Canseco also homered in the eighth.

Royals 6, Rangers 5
Pinch hitter Pat Tabler greeted Texas reliever Kenny Rogers with a two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning, nullifying 13 strikeouts by Nolan Ryan. Frank White doubled leading off the ninth. Rogers relieved Ryan and yielded Tabler's second home run of the season.

Rick Luecken, the fourth Kansas City pitcher, was the winner despite yielding a run in the top of the ninth on a two-out walk to Jack Daugherty and Fred Manrique's RBI double.

It was Ryan's fifth straight double-figure strikeout effort, 17th of the season and 198th of his career. He increased his major league-leading strikeout total to 277, his highest since 1977 and the most ever after 29 starts for the 42-year old right hander.

Indians 1, Tigers 0
Jerry Browne singled home the game's only run in the eighth inning.

Cubbies increase lead in East

By The Associated Press
The best race in the National League East right now is for second place. The Cubbies are waging a goodby.

Mike Bielecki pitched a two-hitter — allowing no hits over the final seven innings — and the Chicago Cubs beat Montreal 2-0 Tuesday night to take a 4½-game lead over St. Louis.

The third-place New York Mets are 5½ out and the Expos trail by six.

The way the Cubs are playing, that probably wouldn't be good enough.

The Cubs, who most observers thought would fade in June, have won four straight and five of six heading down the stretch.

Bielecki gave up a leadoff single to Tim Raines in the first inning and a single to Tim Wallach with one out in the second.

Bielecki, 16-6, and Smith, 10-9, were locked in a scoreless duel when Vance Law opened the fifth with a single and moved to third on Shawn Dunston's double.

Smith retired Rick Wrona on an infield pop and struck out Bielecki. Jerome Walton then swung at a 1-0 pitch that eluded catcher Nelson Santovenia and Law scored an unearned run on the passed ball.

Ryne Sandberg led off the eighth inning against reliever John Candelaria with his 30th homer to give the Cubs a 2-0 lead. Sandberg became the first second baseman to hit 30 home runs in one season since California's Bobby Grich did it in 1979.

Pirates 5, Cardinals 2
Bob Walk allowed five hits in 8 2-3 innings for his fourth victory over St. Louis this season and Pittsburgh continued its role of spoiler by beating the Cardinals at Busch Stadium.

The Pirates, who have won four straight, took two of three in New York over the weekend to shatter the Mets' hopes and are doing the same to the Cardinals.

Walk, 13-10, gave up a single to Milt Thompson with two outs in the ninth and Bill Landrum relieved Pedro Guerrero then hit his 15th homer.

Joe Magrane, 18-8, lost for the first time since July 25.

Phillies 2, Mets 1
Dickie Thon homered with one out in the ninth inning to lift Philadelphia past New York at Veterans Stadium.

Reliever Don Aase, 1-5, retired pinch-hitter Len Dykstra on a popout to start the ninth, before Thon hit a 2-2 pitch over the left field wall for his 13th home run — tops among NL shortstops.

Roger McDowell, 4-6, pitched two scoreless innings for the victory. Since being acquired from the Mets on June 18, McDowell has not allowed a run at home and two of his wins are against New York.

Braves 6, Giants 5
Dale Murphy hit a three-run homer off Steve Bedrosian to cap a five-run Atlanta rally in the eighth inning and lift the Braves over San Francisco at Candlestick Park.

Combined with San Diego's victory over Houston, the loss reduced the Giants' lead over the second-place Padres to five games in the NL West.

Baseball to elect new commissioner

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Fay Vincent will be elected baseball commissioner today, replacing the late A. Bartlett Giamatti.

The executive council on Tuesday unanimously recommended that Vincent fill the remaining 4½ years of Giamatti's term, and moved up the vote on his election from Thursday to this afternoon.

The executive council, consisting of the two league presidents and four club representatives from each league, met for 3 hours, 15 minutes on Tuesday and did not reveal its decision. Sources familiar with the meeting said Vincent, Giamatti's deputy commissioner, had p.m. EDT.

AL president Bobby Brown and NL president Bill White emerged from the Tuesday meeting after two hours and Brown read a brief statement on behalf of both.

"The executive council will make a recommendation to the leagues tomorrow but in deference to the rights of all the owners, will not make any announcement until that time," he said. "I'm sorry we can't make any comment. I'm sure you'll understand why."

Baseball's executive council has been running the sport since Giamatti's death on Sept. 1 following a heart attack. A commissioner can be elected only during a joint meeting of the leagues and must receive three-quarters of the votes, including at least five from each league.

Vincent, 51, who headed Columbia Pictures Industries Inc. for almost a decade, arrived at midday Tuesday for the meeting and later said the council revealed its decision to him. He would not confirm it, however.

"We worked hard," he said as he left the meeting. "It was the agenda Bart and I put together. It was substantial business and we went through it."

Lady Steers whip Lake View Maidens

SAN ANGELO — The Big Spring Lady Steers evened their district record to 1-1 by defeating the San Angelo Lake View Maidens in two straight games, 15-10, 15-9 Tuesday night.

"We finally did it in two games," said a relieved Lady Steers coach Lois McKenzie. "We played real good, I'm real pleased with them. The kids came out with a whole different attitude. Lake View is much improved from last year."

Leading the Lady Steer service points were sophomore Teveyan Russell, who served nine points. Freshman Amber Fannin served eight points.

"I changed the lineup to where I had two freshmen (Fannin and Cassie Underwood) and a sophomore (Russell) all on the back line at the same time," said McKenzie. "I was a little concerned about it, but it worked out real good."

McKenzie added that hitter Dorothy Viasana and softer Jennifer Cranford played good games.

The Lady Steers will Andrews at 1 p.m. Saturday in Andrews. Big Spring is now 9-10 overall and 1-1 in district play.

Indians fire Doc Edwards

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians fired Doc Edwards as manager and named John Hart his replacement on an interim basis.

Edwards was nearing the end of his second one-year contract with the Indians. He replaced Pat Corrales as manager July 16, 1987, and compiled a record of 173-207.

Hart was Baltimore's third-base coach last year and was brought to Cleveland as a scout by Indians' President Hank Peters, formerly Baltimore's general manager.

Jury convicts Gioiosa

CINCINNATI (AP) — A federal jury convicted Thomas Gioiosa of participating in a cocaine ring and conspiring to hide Pete Rose's racetrack winnings from the Internal Revenue Service.

The U.S. District Court verdict bolsters the government's case against Rose, who is being investigated by a federal grand jury in Cincinnati looking into his tax claims.

Federal prosecutors convinced the 12-member jury that Gioiosa falsely claimed a $47,646 racetrack ticket that actually was owned by Rose. Rose's gambling and other sources of income are the focus of the federal grand jury probe, which is expected to last for at least several more weeks.

Gioiosa, 31, of New Bedford, Mass., could be sentenced to 28 years in prison and fined up to $1.5 million. Judge S. Arthur Spiegel did not immediately state a sentencing date.

The jury found Gioiosa innocent of two other counts of filing false income tax returns for 1985 and 1986.

Spencer's killer pleads guilty

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A Riviera Beach man has pleaded guilty in the slaying of former NHL player Brian Spencer and has agreed to testify against his accused accomplice.

Leon Daniels, 25, was sentenced to 18 years in state prison Monday after pleading guilty to second-degree murder, robbery and attempted robbery.

He and Larry Johnson, 30, were charged with first-degree murder, but each of them implicated the other as the triggerman.

Spencer played in the NHL from 1969 to 1979 for the Toronto Maple Leafs, Buffalo Sabres, New York Islanders and Pittsburgh Penguins.

Johnson is expected to face trial on a first-degree murder charge in November.

Ex-player facing theft charges

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Former NBA player Marvin Barnes was ordered to stand trial on charges of petty theft and resisting arrest after allegedly stealing adult videotapes and lingerie from an adult video and bookstore.

Barnes, 37, who played at Providence College and began his professional career with St. Louis of the American Basketball Association went on to play for Detroit, Buffalo, Boston and San Diego in the NBA, allegedly entered the Adult Video and Bookstore on several occasions in July, each time taking merchandise he did not pay for.

Charlotte to get All-Star game

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Charlotte will be the site of the 1991 NBA All-Star Game, commissioner David Stern announced.

The 41st annual game will be played Sunday, Feb. 10, 1991 in the 23,388-seat Charlotte Coliseum.

Charlotte follows expansion-mate Miami as host of the All-Star Game. The Miami Heat, which entered the NBA last season along with the Hornets, will host the 1990 game.

Americans dominate hurdle races

VERONA, Italy (AP) — Roger Kingdom captured the 110 hurdles with a time of 13.245 seconds beating Reinaldo Nehemiah and Eric Cannon in the City of Verona track and field meet.

Andre Phillips led another 1-2-3 American sweep in the 400-meter hurdles, beating Nat Page and Danny Harris in 48.70 seconds. American Mike Buncic won the discus with a mark of 201 feet, 7 1/2 inches.

Murphy hit Bedrosian's second pitch over the right-field fence for his 19th homer after Kelly Downs faltered in relief of Rick Reuschel. It was Murphy's 54th career homer against the Giants and the first run allowed by Bedrosian, 3-7, in 14 appearances at Candlestick since he was acquired from Philadelphia on June 18.

Jay Aldrich, 1-0, pitched three innings for the victory.

Padres 9, Astros 0

Bruce Hurst pitched a two-hitter for his ninth complete game and Roberto Alomar drove in four runs, leading surging San Diego past Houston at Jack Murphy Stadium.

The Padres have won 18 of their last 22 games.

The Padres swept the two-game series from the Astros to take over second place in the NL West.

Jim Clancy, 7-12, entered the game 4-0 with a 1.74 ERA against the Padres this season. This time, he allowed five runs and six hits in four innings.

Dodgers 5, Reds 4

Pinch-hitter Mike Marshall's bases-loaded, two-run double with none out in the ninth inning off Rob Dibble, 8-5, rallied Los Angeles over Cincinnati at Dodger Stadium.

Jay Howell, 5-3, who allowed two runs in the eighth, pitched two innings for the victory.

Black walked two and struck out four in his second straight shutout and third of the season.

Mariners 5, Red Sox 3

Greg Britley hit a two-run homer and Jay Buhner had a two-run double as Seattle handed Boston its seventh consecutive loss.

After Mike Greenwell doubled a run home in the top of the first, Seattle scored three times in the bottom of the inning. Henry Cotto doubled and scored on a single by Alvin Davis. One out later, Ken Griffey Jr. doubled and he and Davis scored on Buhner's double.

The Mariners made it 5-1 in the second when Omar Vizquel walked and Briley followed with a home run, his 13th, off Eric Hetzel, who lasted only 1-1-3 innings.

Angels 7, Yankees 6

Wally Joyner's RBI single with two out in the ninth lifted California within four games of first place in the AL West. Claudell Washington doubled with one out off Chuck Cary. After Devon White fled out, Chili Davis was intentionally walked but Joyner singled to score Washington.

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Jamie Lee Curtis says motherhood, a happy marriage and a satisfying career have given her "the life I have always wanted."

But getting there wasn't easy, she says in Redbook magazine's October issue. Among the difficulties, she recalled, was having famous parents.

When she was in seventh grade, her father was arrested for marijuana possession and her schoolmates taunted her with the words: "You're father's Tony Curtis and your mother's Janet Leigh, your father just got busted but your mother still is free."

Travolta, "Perfect," that bombed. After starring in a few smaller films, Ms. Curtis came into her own as a comedian in "A Fish Called Wanda," in which she played a sexy con artist.

Ms. Curtis, 30, is married to actor Christopher Guest, with whom she has an adopted daughter.

NEW YORK (AP) — Isabelle Adjani thinks one actress has cornered the market on English-speaking roles that require foreign accents.

"Meryl Streep is the most effective customs and immigrations officer," the French actress says in Vanity Fair's October issue.

Howard County Fair is county event

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

The annual Howard County Fair, which will be conducted up the week of Sept. 18-23, culminates a year's work by a board of directors, headed by its President Skipper Driver, and a host of "Friends of the Fair," and community volunteers.

The directors, which include: Arnold Marshall, chairman of the board; second vice presidents, Jewell Tubb and Bob Nichols. Each of the vice presidents have division chairmen directly under them, composed of the remaining directors, including, Mark Morgan, Laverne Gaskins, Zula Rhodes, Repps Guitar, Tom Koger, R.G. Click, Ruth Mitchell, Jewell Tubb, Danny Wright, Howard Armstrong, Don Richardson, Geraldine Posey, Jerry Roman, Wayne Hunt, Sonny Choate, and Naomi Hook who serves in an advisory capacity.

The fair also assisted by a group of supporters known as "Friends of the Fair" who contribute in several ways. Volunteers also assist in many departments. The Fair itself is offering "Something for Everyone" — and in deed it does. It is the only community event that actually involves groups and individuals from all representative interests throughout the county.

This year's fair features school enrichment programs each day for kindergarten and elementary classes, a queen's contest, professional entertainment, including Jody Nix and the Texas Cowboys, and the all time favorite Clyde Foley Cummins, Nashville, Tenn. A rock band, "Caution" is also featured this year and the popular petting zoo will return to delight people of all ages.

County schools will be seeking the honor of champion in the Battle of the Cheerleaders. The 4-H Club will be conducting its omelet supper again this year and there will a bar-b-que cook-off. A mule show, horse show, Santa Gertrudis cattle, junior steers and lambs and a pet show will be featured for those interested in livestock.

Kids will be shown off in the Country Kids contest and artists and photographers will again be featured in the art show. Educational exhibits, commercial booths and plenty of a variety of foods are an integral part of any county fair and will be so at the Howard County presentation.

Farmers and home gardeners will have the opportunity to exhibit their best produce in the agricultural products show. Cotton farmers will be competing for a $100 award for the best stalk of cotton exhibited.

The best cooks, seamstresses and home crafters will also have the chance to show off their skills and talents in the women's divisions.

The best feature of all, perhaps, is the opportunity a county fair offers the people in the community to get out of the house, postpone or miss a meeting or two and see and visit a lot of friends on an easy, un-hurried leisurely basis.

If you are interested in participating in some of the events, details can be found in rules and regulations available at the County Extension Office at the Howard County Courthouse.

"I've received 3 times as many calls from my classified in the Big Spring Herald as the same ad placed in my home town newspaper!"

Scott Lawlis
San Angelo

"I placed a classified ad for property and a home on the river in the San Angelo Standard-Times and the Big Spring Herald. I've had more calls from Herald readers than the San Angelo paper. The ad only ran 1 week in Big Spring — 2 weeks in San Angelo, but the Herald advertisement still pulled in more callers," Scott Lawlis told us.

Scott feels he has an excellent potential buyer, and the buyer is from the Big Spring area!

Be picky with international cuisine

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent

The cuisine of every nation includes both healthy and not-so-healthy practices.

In this country, where the availability and variety of food is unmatched anywhere in the world, we have an exciting opportunity to draw from the best that other national cuisines have to offer.

By incorporating the best and avoiding the rest, we make healthy eating an international adventure.

Tips for healthful eating around the world include the following:

- The cuisine of nations with access to the sea often includes many recipes for fish and seafood, a wise meat group selection because certain types of fish may have less fat and cholesterol than other choices. Fish that is broiled, steamed or poached — popular cooking methods in Polynesia — is better for you than fried fish of the British Isles or smoked fish of Russia and Scandinavia. Frying adds fat and calories. Smoked fish is higher in sodium content.
- In many countries, food is prepared and served with low-fat sauces and spices: lemon and pepper sauce in Brazil, red chili salsa in Mexico or soy-based sauces in the Orient are a few examples. However, many Oriental recipes use extra sodium.
- Japan's tofu (soybean curd), beans so popular in Mexican and Latin American cooking, and lentils found in many Indian dishes provide excellent low-fat sources of protein, particularly when served with rice.
- Oriental cuisines that rely on steamed vegetables produce much healthier dishes than sauteed vegetables of classic French cuisine. High-fat Polish recipes which present vegetables simmered in sour cream or garnished with sauteed bread crumbs would not be a good choice unless prepared with light sour cream or skim milk.
- In many nations, including Poland, Sweden and Italy, where quantities of meat are not always readily available, sausage, scrapple, head cheese and cold cuts are often prepared to stretch the meat supply. These foods are high in fat and sodium and should be consumed only in limited amounts.
- Marinating foods is a common way to introduce flavors without adding fat. In Indonesia, for example, skinned chicken pieces are marinated in lime juice; corn, safflower, soy, canola or avocado oil; garlic; lite Italian dressing, lemon-pepper, and white pepper before broiling.

It pumped 154 barrels of oil with 18,000 CF gas and 79 barrels of waste water daily on an open choke.

With Barbara Fasken of Midland as the operator, the well will produce from the Fusselman Formation, 10,517 to 10,527 feet into the wellbore.

First production figures have been filed for the No. 3 Gillihan, newly re-completed oiler in the Big Spring Mississippian Field, five miles northeast of Big Spring.

It flowed 49 barrels of oil with 450,000 CF gas per day along with five barrels of salt water.

It was plugged back for shallower pay by Phillips Petroleum Inc. of Odessa. Production is from new perforations at 9,328 to 9,345 feet into the wellbore.

The Sara-Mag Field saw a new producer come on line when the No. 1 Chandler "A" was finished by Bettis, Boyle and Stovall of Graham.

Building a cabin in the Davis Mountains

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH
In 1975 we purchased some land in the Davis Mountains, which I consider to be the most scenic part of Texas. In previous years I had found all sorts of reasons to get to the mountains. I fell in love with the area the first time I went there. Our place is in a mountain range between Fort Davis and Valentine. When we bought the land there was a mobile home on it which used butane gas. Electricity was provided by a gasoline-powered generator. A number of mice lived in the mobile home. The butane gas was a problem. The fumes were smelly and made us sick. The generator held only enough gas to last four hours. In cold weather we would freeze until I trudged up the mountain at 3 a.m. to put more gas in the generator, which was always hard to start. We struggled along for a couple of years, going down to the mountains whenever we could. We spent a lot of time sightseeing so we wouldn't have to stay in the mobile home. In 1977 a lady wanted to buy our mobile home and move it to some land she had purchased. We let her have it. We decided to replace the mobile home with a nifty cabin. We went to an architect in our hometown and he drew up some plans. We liked some of them. Then we looked around the state at different cabin styles. We incorporated the features we liked and discarded the rest. The final result was some very crude plans drawn on a paper bag. Then we started looking for a carpenter to build it. The ones who even bothered to look at our drawings told us they had too many real projects to bother with our little one. So many carpenters turned us down we decided to build it ourselves. After all, I had made a book case and a stereo table before and they came out alright. The crew consisted of: BZ, age 9; Kevin, age 12; my wife Susan and myself, both above drinking age. The first thing we did was to buy $2,000 worth of lumber from a man who was tearing down an old hangar at what was once an Air Force base. The lumber was heart pine and was 2 by 6's of various lengths. They were actually posts. Four of the 2 by 6's had been nailed together. It was our job to pry them apart and get them into single boards. Because we had other interests and couldn't devote full-time to the project, the lumber sometimes was stacked up for months at a time. Once we went down to work and found a rattlesnake had taken up residence in the lumber. We dispatched it with a pry bar, hung it up and took a picture of it. We bought a 1954 Chevrolet pickup to haul stuff down to the mountains. We loaded it unmercifully and had flats all the time. We made friends with lots of passing motorists who stopped to help. More than once we nearly lost control while going down a steep hill. The heavy load on the trailer we were pulling was like being pushed by an 18 wheeler. It seemed to rain every time we went down to work on the cabin. The pickup provided the only roof

Hitch-n-Post open house celebrates 10th anniversary

Custom-framing is a specialty at Hitch-n-Post with a full line of mats and ready made frames in stock. Ernestine Day, owner, shows some examples. Hitch-n-Post will celebrate its 10th anniversary September 14 and 15 with an open house for new and old customers "to show our appreciation."

The Hitch-n-Post, 1601 E. FM 700, celebrates its 10th anniversary with a two-day open house September 14 and 15, according to the owner, Ernestine Day.

"I want to extend an invitation to all my present and past customers — and prospective new customers, as well — to drop by for refreshments and a visit," says Ernestine. Visitors can register for a variety of prizes to be given away during the open house, "to show my appreciation for their business."

Located in a weathered Old West-style building, the Hitch-n-Post has long been a mecca for shoppers looking for arts and crafts supplies. The shelves are filled with instruction books, patterns, school art supplies, floss, hoops, needles, buttons, pompoms, shells, iron-ons, fabric glue, ribbons, beads, paints, counted cross stitch supplies, and 1001 items to fill every creative urge.

Plus the store goes one step further — it provides assistance in putting it all together. There is a roomy classroom in the back where arts workshops and instruction classes are held. And Ernestine will give you tips or basic instructions and answer your questions — "We try to offer personalized service."

The biggest fad is still painted clothing, the owner says, and the store carries T-shirts and sweat shirts suitable for creative designs. Ernestine can give basic instructions, but she suggests signing up for a clothing painting class.

Custom-framing is a specialty, with a full line of mats and ready made frames in stock. The store offers a vacuum mounting process, especially appropriate for prints, maps and posters. "You can frame them, or simply hang the items unframed."

Many places sell arts and crafts items, says Ernestine, "But we feel that our store offers in unique — we teach the customer how to do it, and we're always here to help them." The store serves customers of all ages.

To register for any classes — such as adult art classes in oils, watercolors and pastels; art classes for children; earring design; fabric painting or other classes for which there is a demand — call 263-0783 or go by the Hitch-n-Post.

The store is open Monday through Friday from 9:30 to 5:30; and on Saturday from 9:30 to 1 p.m. Ernestine's daughter, Marsha Bishop, works there parttime.

Big Spring businesses open, expand, change ownership

Corral expansion

BIG SPRING — The Golden Corral Restaurant on FM 700 is planning a major expansion, according to manager Ralph Johnson.

The date hasn't been set but Johnson says the building addition will be able to accommodate 85 people and will include an entrance near the new parking lot currently under construction north of the present building.

"It's needed," Johnson said Saturday. "Business here has always been good but this is something we've been working on for a couple of years now. It's just been approved by the company."

Johnson has been manager at the Big Spring restaurant for two years. "Business has continually increased," he said. "It has grown ever since the store was placed here five or six years ago. The annual sales just keep increasing every year."

Sandwich shop

BIG SPRING — Sante Fe Sand-

BIG SPRING — Henderson's Hallmark in the Big Spring Mall has changed hands and is now called Suggs Hallmark. The new owners are Ricky and Deborah Suggs, who officially took over the business on August 1.

Business

wiches opened in the Big Spring Mall last Friday — the first Sante Fe sandwich shop for a company that hopes to make good with franchises.

"We couldn't ask for any better business," said restaurant manager Sharon Dodson. "It's great."

Dodson says the slogan for the shop is "The best food that's good for you", but don't think it's a health food restaurant.

"It's not health food, it's healthy," Dodson says. That healthy food includes a salad bar filled with salads, fruit and soup to go along with a wide menu of sandwiches.

The restaurant also features low fat Columbo yogurt and what Dodson says is their most popular item — fruit shakes.

The best selling meal is the Com-

BIG SPRING — Ralph Johnson, the manager of the Golden Corral stands in front of a lot that is being leveled as part of an expansion project at the restaurant. The lot will become the parking lot, with the building being expanding into the current parking lot. No starting date on the building expansion has been named, but it could begin as soon as Thanksgiving.

anche Combo, Dodson says, which consists of a half sandwich, and a choice of soup or salad.

"A lot of people are coming in just to eat at the restaurant," said Dodson, who said many of these customers are also mall employees. "It started out just great Friday and Saturday, and on Sunday we're open from 12 to 5 p.m., an hour earlier than the mall hours."

Sante Fe Sandwich shops are owned by Tim Jewett of Midland. Ron Morgan was designer for the stores, and Dodson said the next Sante Fe Sandwich store is scheduled to open in the Lubbock mall in the near future.

Hallmark owners

BIG SPRING — New owners of the Hallmark store at Big Spring Mall say business has been good.

Ricky and Deborah Suggs took over ownership of the business on August 1.

They purchased the business from Ralph and Jeannette Henderson, who owned both Hallmark stores in Big Spring at one time.

"Hallmarks aren't really a franchise store," Deborah said. "You agree to buy the Hallmark cards exclusively and you have to carry the majority of Hallmark products in your store."

The Suggs store features "lots of gifts," cards, albums, stationery and a "big selection of other things."

"We're adding new merchandise all the time," Suggs said. "We want to do some minor remodeling. I definitely think Big Spring Mall is growing... with the opening of Sears and Sante Fe Sandwiches it will continue to improve."

Eagle resigns

BIG SPRING — Chamber of Commerce Convention/Visitors Manager Toni Eagle has resigned from that position according to Chamber Executive Vice-President Wayne Moore.

"Toni has contributed to the positive actions of the 1989 Focus on Results projects," Moore said. He mentioned in particular the "What's Happening in Big Spring"

Number 267-2727; the TRAX System, a tie into the State of Texas Tourist inquiries by computer; Highway Department Information Boards and the recently completed postcard contest.

A search for her replacement will be continued by the Chamber office, according to Chamber President Hooper Sanders.

Eagle has resigned the position to get married and will move out of Big Spring.

"Being a part of the Big Spring team and working with the many volunteers that comprise the many committees of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce has been rewarding," Eagle said. "Convention/Visitors programs are dependent on the total economic development program that the Chamber Board of Directors provides to meet the goals of the community and Chamber membership."

"I have enjoyed the opportunity to be involved in the total effort to build a strong economy. I have gained invaluable knowledge on how each part of the economy must be developed with consideration of the total community. The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce is a professional organization with clearly defined programs and goals."

Moore said Eagle may continue in her job until mid-November.

Expansion

MIDLAND — Raj K. Reddy, M.D. of Big Spring has announced the expansion of offices and services to include a satellite office in Midland at 3310 Wadley.

"This expansion will offer more convenience for all of our patients in the Permian Basin area," Reddy said. "We will continue our practices in Big Spring as before, but will be able to offer a choice to our patients for both office and hospital location."

According to the patient's preference, surgeries and procedures may continue to be scheduled at Scenic Mountain Medical Center in Big Spring, or at Midland Memorial Hospital in Midland.

"We will be providing the same services as we have in the past at both locations," Reddy said, "including all aspects of Orthopedic and Anesthesia practice."

The Midland office opened August 21.
