Claudette Reborn

MIAMI (AP)-Tropical storm Claudette, previously downgraded to a tropical depression, was reborn today when it regained strength while moving northwestward through the Gulf of Mexico.

Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center said the storm's top winds were at 40 mph - just over the 39-mph threshold at which tropical depressions become named storms. It was expected to get stronger as the day passed, the forecasters said.

At 9 a.m. EDT, the broad center of Claudette was near latitude 27.0 north, longitude 92.5 west, or about 225 miles south-southeast of Lake Charles, La.

Alarm Alerts Workers

TEXAS CITY (AP)-"They ran." That's how most workers at Amoco's Texas City refinery managed to escape two tremendous explosions that injured 14 Saturday, according to Amoco's Pat Donovan.

Miss Donovan said they ran because a safety siren went off seconds before the blast.

"It alerted our people there was a leak, and they evacuated the area," she said. "I don't know how much warning they had. It was a minute or less."

The two blasts were caused by a leak of either propane or butane gas, according to plant officials. The explosions were so strong residents reported shattered windows as far as 20 blocks away from the Gulf Coast refinery.

Charting Oil Slick

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP)-Scientists and Coast Guard experts today will try to complete a chart showing the exact location of a massive oil spill in the southern Gulf of Mexico.

The oil is spurting from a blown-out Mexican oil well in the Bay of Campeche, off the coast of Mexico. It has been spreading into the Gulf of Mexico at a rate of 30,000 barrels a day, since the well blew out June 3.

To Request Somoza

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP)-Nicaragua's revolutionary government is going to request the extradition of dictator Anastasio Somoza to face trial for war crimes, but it says there will be no wholesale execution of his supporters like those after the revolution in Iran.

There will be "no death penalty in Nicaragua and no executions ordered by the courts," the new chief justice of the Supreme Court, Roberto Arguelo Hurtado, told reporters Sunday.

"It is possible there may be excesses including executions before we can get regular courts organized," said Arguelo. "But they will only be personal vendettas or just plain hate between people and any executions will not be authorized."

Headed For Texas

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)-The 50,000th Indochinese refugee to leave Thailand for resettlement in the United States left Bangkok today for Texas, a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy announced.

She was Monick Souvannakhily, a Laotian nurse who boarded a Pan Am plane with her 5-year-old daughter. Her husband, a former captain in the Laotian army, now lives in Texas.

Mrs. Souvannakhily arrived in Thailand in January. The Embassy said she lives in Amarillo.

Three Murdered

EVERGREEN, Va. (AP)—Three people were murdered and a fourth was wounded this morning at a house near this Appomattox County community, state police said.

The injured man was taken to Lynchburg General Hospital. His condition was not available immediately.

A state police spokesman at Appomattox said someone reported hearing shots and screams at the house about 8 a.m.

When police went to the house, they found three men dead and a fourth wounded. Their identities were not released immediately.

Lebanon To Protest

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)-Lebanon will bring a protest to the U.N. Security Council against Israeli air raids south of Beirut that killed more than 20 persons and injured at least 60 Sunday, a government spokesman said today.

Tidal Wave Toll Rises

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)-The death toll rose today to 539 in the tidal wave last week on Lomblen Island as the district governor declared 364 missing persons dead.

Gov. Ben Mboi said a thorough search had been made for the missing, but all of them apparently were washed out to sea by the wave more than six feet high that penetrated as much as 500 yards inland early last Wednesday and destroyed four villages.

At left, Cheryl Terry of Roby steers her mount around a barrel in the only event for ladies. Over $24,000 was at stake in the 44th Annual Scurry County Rodeo that concluded Saturday night in the Coliseum. The highly ranked show drew over 300 cowboys from several states to Snyder and entertained over 7,000 fans. Cowboys Vie For $24,000...

7,000 Attend Rodeo

When the dust settled Saturday night after the fourth and final performance of the 44th Annual Scurry County Rodeo, over $24,000 had been parceled out to cowboys from a half-dozen states who followed the trail to Snyder to try their hand at fleeting glory and cold cash in front of an estimated 7,000 persons in the Scurry County Coliseum.

Over 300 cowboys from as far away as Wyoming competed in the rodeo, which is considered by many to be the best of its size anywhere in the Southwest. There were no serious injuries reported. However, Taos Cribbs of New Mexico had a close call Saturday night when his bull pitched him near the chutes and kicked the breath out of him before clown Jeff Franks could get between him and the animal, also to get knocked down.

Preceding the show Saturday was the presentation of awards to winners in the Scurry County Rodeo Association Stockholders' Roping Contest. Winners were Mike Seago for best average of four head; Joe Beaver, best calf roping; V.O. Rasberry and Bob Lloyd, team roping; Bill Zimmerman, oldest roper. Buddy Trevey, a retired member, received an honorary award.

It was a Fort Stockton cowboy, Bob Wilfong, who raked up the most points in bareback bronc riding. He received $612 for his 72 points. Terry Lee and Les Mason were only one point behind with 71 points each to split $918 for second and third places.

Sid Morrow of Capitan, N.M., rode a horse named Belly Dancer Thursday night, scoring 72 points and winning first place and $780 in the saddle bronc riding event. Another New Mexico cowboy, Joe Bob Nunez of Gallup, won second and $650.

Joe Levi won the bull riding contest and $1003 with a score of 70. Kenneth McKey posted 67 points for second and found $830 in his pay envelope. Ed Welch took home $657 points and third place.

In calf roping, Sylvester Mayfield trussed his animal in 14.84 seconds for first and $1,003. Billy Teig was second with a time of 8.61. Second place paid $830. Jimmy LeMond won $657 for third with a time of 8.63.

The fastest barrel racer in the rodeo was Penny Wood. She made the trip in 14.84 seconds and received $818. Terry Langston was one-one-hundredth of a second slower for second place. She was awarded $677. Kimbra Dorset was third with 15.02 and received $536.

Jimbo Martinez and Emilio Vasquez were the most successful team ropers. They had their animal stretched out in 6.40 seconds and split $2,917. Les Dial and Rudy Benividez took home second place and $2,415. Their time was 6.66. Bill Haley and L.D. Haley won third and $1,911.

Saturday night results are as follows: Bareback riding--1. Bob Wilfong, 72. 2. Craig Wellman, 67. 3. Bob Ribble, 63. 4. Randy

Chamber May Start Council

Snyder Chamber of Commerce may organize a Small Business Council as a service to the community, Chamber Manager Bill Warner said.

Warner plans to conduct a survey to determine if local businesses would be interested in the council.

The council would keep small businessmen informed on government action affecting small businesses. Businessmen would be informed on how to express their likes and dislikes towards government regulations and rulings, Warner said.

The council might also offer a counseling service with management consultants, an attorney and other resources available for small businesses.

"Small businesses need an opportunity to become involved, work together and help each other," Warner said.

Highest In 2 Years...

Lake J. B. Thomas Catches 6.3 Feet

Recent rains and runoff into Lake J.B. Thomas southwest of Snyder has resulted in the best lake elevation in more than two years.

Lake officials reported that the three-day rains in Scurry County last week resulted in a runoff of 6.3 feet into the lake.

CRMWD officials report that the runoff represented 12,400 acre feet of water, bringing the total in the lake to 26,610 acre feet. The lake is at its best elevation since Aug. 1, 1977.

Lake Spence, which receives much of the water that flows through Deep Creek into the Colorado River, received a runoff of 2.1 feet. This represents a total catch of 10,450 acre feet. Water district officials report that Spence is still receiving some flow Monday morning and that another 2,000 acre feet is projected. This puts the lake level at the same figure as this time last year.

Water district officials were elated at the rainfall and runoff since it was not expected in late July. The water district expects to catch most of its water in the two lakes sometime between Aug. 20 and Oct. 20.

The rains which fell last week were greeted with enthusiasm throughout the area. The moisture gave a much needed boost to area cotton and also soaked thirsty pastureland.

Reports from Colorado City indicate that Lake Champion had risen one foot. Lake Colorado City caught more than one acre foot of water.

Drivers License Office To Close

The drivers license office will be closed Monday, July 30 and Wednesday, Aug. 1 due to vacation schedule.

The usual business hours, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. five days a week, will resume Monday, Aug. 6.

Energy Issue May Return To Spotlight

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Carter, whose reshaping of his White House staff is expected to consume less of his time than his Cabinet shakeup, is likely to return to work this week on energy issues.

"Now that the Cabinet-level changes have been made, there will be additional focusing of the president's attention on the Energy Mobilization Board and the Energy Security Corp." White House press secretary Jody Powell said Sunday.

Proposals to establish the board, intended to cut through red tape to speed up development of energy projects, and to create the energy corporation, to finance energy development, were sent to Congress last week. The Senate Energy Committee tentatively agreed Saturday to support the mobilization board.

While he has completed the firings that shook his Cabinet last week, the president is still looking for a new secretary of housing and urban development, a new Federal Reserve Board chairman and a new transportation secretary.

Some of the changes he is contemplating in his White House staff, although unlikely to add any new faces to the inner circle of advisers, may be revealed this week, Powell said.

Carter, in a meeting with several reporters Saturday, made clear that he wants to see some stability returned to White House operations, after nearly three weeks of uncertainty. It was also made clear that Carter knows what changes he thinks should be made to strengthen the staff and increase the diversity of his advisers.

Reporters also learned that the overriding theme in the Cabinet shakeup was loyalty, a point stressed Sunday by Hamilton Jordan, the new White House chief of staff, who said on NBC's "Meet the Press":

"Once the president makes a decision on policy or a piece of legislation, it is the responsibility of people in government to support that action or leave the government."

Carter clearly felt that Joseph A. Califano Jr., whom he fired as secretary of health, education and welfare, had been working at cross-purposes to presidential goals.

First Lady Begins Tour At Texas Health Clinic

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP)—First lady Rosalynn Carter, greeted by a warm reception on a hot morning along the Rio Grande, today toured a federally funded health clinic that provides medical care for thousands of South Texas poor people.

The stop was the first on Mrs. Carter's Texas tour that also will take her to Fort Worth and Dallas.

Mrs. Carter was shuttled from her motel to Su Clinica Familiar in a mobile health care unit operated by the clinic. A crowd of about 300 and a Mexican mariachi band greeted the first lady's entourage.

After a brief hand-shaking and photo-taking sessions outside the clinic she was escorted in for a tour of the multi-service facility.

The morning tour was to conclude with the presentation of an award to Mrs. Carter for her support of similar programs.

Francisco G. Gonzalez, director of the clinic, said the facility now has an active load of 45,000 patients. The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, provides the facility with $2.5 million a year. Two of the clinic's three buildings are provided at no cost by the local Catholic diocese.

"Anyone who wants to be served must be served," Gonzalez said. But he acknowledged that the majority of the patients comes from the low-income communities in this border area.

He said most of the patients pay less than 10 percent of the actual cost of their treatment.

The fees are based on the patient's income.

The clinic, founded in 1971 as a locally funded facility, has drawn criticism from local physicians who claim it is not economical. While Gonzalez said many area doctors have worked with the program, the director said there has been some resentment.

Gonzalez added that the clinic is "somewhat the last resort" for many of the patients.

big and small agree

The House Ways and Means Committee's action on a "windfall profits tax" for oil was blasted by the head of the Independent Petroleum Association of the Mountain States. Robert C. Roehrs, president of the organization, said, "If the 22 members of the committee who voted for the proposal were to deliberately set out to cripple the domestic petroleum industry, they could not have chosen a more effective course."

Roehrs termed the action "irresponsible, demogodic, politics" and charged that it would be "discourage domestic exploration and production at a time when foreign oil prices are skyrocketing with no end in sight. Independent producers are disheartened by the committee's action which virtually eliminates the incentives of decontrol and may force many small independents to sell out to larger companies thereby reducing competition."

"As world prices keep going up, the only thing the tax will accomplish is to give the federal government a fantastic windfall in tax revenues without producing one barrel of new domestic oil," Roehrs said. He pointed out that the tax would not reduce prices to consumers, who will still pay for oil products based on rising world market prices.

Roehrs explained that the Ways and Means proposal would set a 70 percent severance tax on all but newly discovered oil and make the tax permanent rather than temporary as proposed by the Carter administration. Newly discovered oil would be subject to a 50 percent tax until it reached $26 per barrel at which time it, too, would be subject to the 70 percent level.

"The net effect of these taxes," Roehrs said, "will be to enable the federal government to control crude oil prices forever, contrary to their claim of decontrolling them. "These actions have nothing to do with sound economics or energy policy. They are pure and simple politics as usual which is what has brought this country to the brink of disaster in the first place," Roehrs concluded.

All this is not "Big Oil" speaking. These words are from a spokesman for the innumerable small producers who, through their efforts, bring in the well which establish new oil fields. The little guys who daily risk their time and money to explore for new oil resources are the ones who will take the brunt of the illconsidered action now pending.

All of the small oil drilling companies will try: many will fail and some will keep on going. But any of them would probably settle for an assured profit of less than a fourth of the windfall tax the federal government is trying to grab for itself.

Yet the politicians have the colossal nerve to accuse these vital producers of profiteering, even as the lions share of any profit is snatched for the federal bureaucracy. And, the politicians accuse, not for anything done, but rather something these producers might do in the future.

What independent oil drilling company can claim anything in profits close to the amount of loot now anticipated as a tax grab? Is it any wonder that our domestic oil industry is now in such a mess?

family week

There should be no reason to question a man's hospitality merely because he has come up with a suggestion for an annual Family Week to be held about this time of the year.

The proposal is an outcome of the summer season when visits by traveling kinfolk and friends from distant points place a burden of additional entertaining and housework upon Mother and play havoc with Day's program of summer chores.

"Family Week" is described as a seven-day stretch during which the family would close ranks, turn a deaf ear to the telephone, and welcome no outsiders--at least none who would involve extra work for anyone in the clan.

All meals would be minimum chores necessary to keep the house in order. Dad would call a halt to his do-it-yourself projects. Everybody would relax.

Loafing for seven days might be the "lift" many individuals need along about now.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

Wherever parents gather, the question comes up whether it is harder to raise children nowadays than it used to be.

The vote is a unanimous, "Yes!"

Everyone has their theories and I have mine. I think a lot of it hinges on the passing of laws that worked on us, but are frowned upon by modern-day parents.

For example, who among you over age 30 can ever forget the Hit-Now-Ask-Later Disciplinary Act used by your parents. It worked very simply. Whenever your mother "thought" you did something, she'd reach over and give you a swat. When it was proven you didn't do it, she reminded you of her bookkeeping system where that rap was for all the times she didn't see you when you did do something. For some reason, I always owed her. She never owed me.

I miss using the Search and Seizure Statute. I cannot, for a minute, imagine my mother standing outside of a closed door in respect for my privacy saying, "Do you have a dog in there?"

Yet, the other day when I was missing my tennis racket, I was not permitted to enter my kids' rooms until they were sure I was only looking for my racket. No one will ever convince me that they did not flush my racket down the commode.

Our children don't know how lucky they are to be protected by the You-Cannot-Be-Tried-Twice-For the-Same-Crime Decision. I was tried at least 5,000 times for a lamp I broke while doing a cartwheel in the living room. To this day whenever I make an illegal left turn, or drop an egg on the floor, my mother will remind me of the lamp.

A lot of laws for raising children have gone by the boards in the past twenty years. Some of them should have gone. I always felt that soap in the mouth was never an effective cure for profanity, and switching legs with branches from a tree was not in the best interest of ecology.

But sometimes when I've listened to a child take three hours to tell about a movie that only lasted an hour and a half, I yearn for the days when you didn't "have a right to remain silent" . . . you had a duty!

AUSTIN (AP)—If you want to see a man happy in his work, take a snapshot of Bill Clements.

"I'm having a wonderful time being governor," the Republican said at a news conference one day, grinning from ear to ear.

"He really is having the time of his life," said one of his closest aides.

When Clements was sworn in Jan. 16, he chuckled gleefully as he lifted his hand from the Bible -- and he has been chortling ever since.

All Texas governors want the power and the glory that go with the state's chief executiveship, but not all of them have been happy with some of the quasi-officials duties that all governors are expected to perform.

"I'd rather take a whipping than go through one more proclamation signing ceremony," former Gov. John Connally once told an aide. He particularly disliked public ceremonies in the governor's reception room where he had to have his picture taken with delegations presenting him with local agricultural products and such.

Former Gov. Preston Smith got a kick out of public ceremonies, but he also had a photographic quirk. He wanted photographers to wait until he put on a special pair of spectacles that had no lenses, so there would be no reflections.

Former Gov. Dolph Briscoe was a warm and interesting conversationalist in a one-to-one meeting but sometimes turned brusque and defensive at press conferences.

Clements loves it all.

He'll try on or taste anything presented him. He is always ready for just one more posed picture.

Crowds gather in the governor's reception room several times a week.

"Good to see you" is Clements' first greeting. He shakes every hand within reach and waves to everyone else.

He may arrive 15 to 20 minutes late, but he will stay until his aides drag him away.

One day a group appeared advertising a peanut festival. Within minutes, Clements had tried on two peanut-decorated hats, pinned a peanut button on his lapel, kissed two peanut princesses, eaten part of a peanut patty, and signed a proclamation.

When Clements signed the proclamation making June 19 a state holiday for Texas blacks, the ceremony was on the Capitol steps with bands, an honor guard, rifle squad and several hundred spectators. At the end of the signing, a legislator offered Clements a T-shirt labeled "Juneteenth." Off came Clements' coat and on went the T-shirt, with all cameras clicking.

Throngs of followers of evangelist Lester Roloff came to Austin one day to petition Clements that Roloff's child-care homes be allowed to operate without a state license. Clements stood on a chair in the Capitol rotunda and told the crowd he would pray for them - but the state law would be enforced.

At his weekly Capitol news conferences, Clements refuses to be intimidated by any question.

At the close of the recent legislative session, a reporter asked how Clements felt about the defeat of several of his choice issues.

Clements replied that 13 of his top 17 priorities had passed.

"That's a batting average of .760 and that ain't bad for a rookie," he said.

Another time, an out-of-town reporter demanded to know what Clements would do with a new gasoline allocation.

"Well, we're certainly not going to sit on it and wait for it to hatch," Clements replied.

commentary

donald f. graff

Maybe he will be able to pull it off.

After all, there were those who laughed - and even more who paid no attention whatsoever - when he set out four years ago to become president.

Jimmy Carter has demonstarted that he is capable of accomplishing the unlikely. Maybe he will be able to do it again on a much vaster scale, rallying Americans to his crusade against the energy crisis and in the process leading the nation to a moral and spiritual regeneration.

Maybe. But success in the long haul is going to require more than a Sunday School lesson, an admittance of past failings and a vow to do better.

Americans are going to have to do more than join hands and speak well of their country. What is being asked of them, and at what cost, is going to have to be explained clearly, in detail and very convincingly if their support for an energy program that may lead to independence only after great sacrifice is to be won and, more important, sustained.

Maybe Jimmy Carter, who promises leadership, will be able to do this. But promises are one thing, delivery something else entirely.

As it is, he is initially raising more questions than he is answering in the serial unfolding of details of his $142 billion master plan.

The expense of the undertaking is of an order greater than anything the nation has hitherto been asked knowingly to commit itself to. He says that the required billions will be redirected from foreign suppliers into American pockets. But they also must first come out of American pockets in the form of higher fuel prices before being rechanneled into energy developments via a windfall profits tax. The oil cartel may be out the income, but it is still Americans who will be footing the bill.

His alternative energy proposals are a repackaging of old ideas, not innovations to capture the imagination of the public and fire it with a will to succeed. The prospects are already the subject of thorough discussion. Also the drawbacks.

We are reminded that the United States has "more oil in our shale alone than several Saudi Arabias." True, but it also needs to be explained that recovery of shale oil in sufficient quantity may be possible only at the cost of converting much of Colorado and Wyoming into a slag heap. Are the Americans prepared to make this sacrifice for energy independence?

Waste disposal and pollution are also problems in increased use of coal, whether burned directly or exploited as a source of synthetic fuel. And there is some question that successful development of a multi-billion dollar synthetic industry could really buy energy independence.

What if the oil cartel slashed the artificially exorbitant price of its product, as it could still profitably do at any time? Would Americans willingly continue subsidizing the synthetic product when the real thing was plentifully available on the world market for half the price?

Solar energy on a large scale, requiring the development of virtually a new technology to be feasible but nevertheless possibly the most promising energy investment in the long haul, is still decades in the future. And the plans for nuclear power, something which to many Americans is less desirable than dependence on the oil cartel, is going to requrie a great deal of explaining.

The president may be able to answer these and many more questions as his road show continues. And he did warn that the struggle would not be easy.

To achieve our freedom, he said, we must have faith - miles and miles of faith, it would appear, to paraphrase the ditty from "Damn Yankees."

Well, that will certainly help. But a great many Americans are going to be looking for something more as the battle for energy independence drags on against an elusive enemy, who is in part ourselves.

They are going to want not periodic rallying cries but real, continuing leadership. Leadership they can recognize as such.

Discount Rate Raised By Feds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board Friday raised the discount rate from 9.5 percent to a record 10 percent, effective immediately.

The action will make it more expensive for banks to borrow money from the Federal Reserve and likely will have the effect of pushing up other interest rates, such as the prime rate for industrial borrowers.

The action was taken less than 24 hours after the Federal Reserve announced the U.S. money supply jumped a sharp $3.2 billion in the week ended July 11.

The board's latest move came at a time when uncertainty over the U.S. energy situation and Cabinet resignations had depressed the value of the dollar on foreign money markets and pushed gold prices over $300 an ounce for the first time in history.

The discount rate - the interest charged on loans the Federal Reserve makes to its 5,000 member banks - was last raised Nov. 1 as part of the Carter administration's dollar rescue program.

At that time, the rate rose from 8.5 percent to 9.5 percent.

letter to editor

To The Daily News:

When you list the O.P.E.C. nations, don't leave out the United States because without this good customer (eight million barrels of oil daily) the oil cartel would be a failure. Since the start of the oil cartel in 1974, three presidents (Nixon, Ford and Carter) have postponed any program to improve our position to bargain with the oil cartel. Cheap domestic oil has promoted waste, done away with the initiative to produce more or try to develop more energy.

The Russian government is the only government that thinks we are doing the right thing about our energy problems. When they get us behind the eight ball, they will move in and confiscate the oil cartel and close our foreign oil imports to zero.

This crash program that President Carter revealed to the public is a plan to bring this country closer to a socialist government. The big oil companies have been producing, refining and marketing oil for about 70 years. They have the experience to do the job at about half what the government can do.

The added tax on the oil companies will reduce them to merchants for the government. Then it will be the government left to explore and create new energy sources.

England's government is not the best in the world, but when the people lose confidence in their leader, they elect a new leader. It is time that we use that club in this country.

Fall Salads Start With Summer Planting

Why not toss colorful, tasty salads this fall with your own homegrown lettuce? You can by sowing seeds of your favorite varieties in late summer. This means the month of August in much of the United States. In areas where severe cold weather comes early, you may need to advance the planting date a little. In mild sections with nearly frost-free winters, planting can continue into autumn.

PERK UP FALL MEALS-Royal Oak leaf lettuce is delicious in salads. Plan now to grow your own salad makings for fall eating.

Loosehead types are the easiest to grow and supply a bonanza of delicious greens in different leaf shapes, textures and colors. Royal Oak Leaf has interesting oak-like, dark green leaves. Green Ice combines crackling-crisp texture with sparkling color. Salad Bowl looks pretty with its ruffly, deeply lobed leaves and tastes good, too. Ruby supplies frilly green leaves deeply shaded intense red to delight eye and palate. Each variety is delicious by itself but extra tasty and appetizing when tossed together for gourmet salads.

Butterhead varieties of lettuce also produce well in the fall and are a delight to the home chef. The elongated, tightly folded heads are fresh, crisp and sweet, yet with a piquant flavor. Cos and also the Butterhead types of lettuce take a little longer to mature than the Loosehead varieties. Late July to about the first of August is the time to plant them in most areas.

Lettuce thrives in average soil in a sunny to partially shaded location. It's a great follow-up to earlier-maturing crops which have been harvested, for instance snap beans. If you don't have garden space, you also can grow lettuce in planter boxes or other containers at least six inches deep and a foot wide, or larger.

Prepare the ground well, work in a balanced garden fertilizer according to package directions, level and smooth the soil surface. Sow the seeds evenly and thinly in rows one foot or more apart. Cover with ½ inch of fine soil and firm it lightly.

Unless the ground is quite moist when you plant, or you're lucky enough to get a shower right after sowing, you'll need to water with a fine spray. Also continue watering frequently if the weather if hot, dry and windy. Keeping the ground damp while seeds are sprouting is a "must" for good results. This is one of the most important points to remember for success with summer sowing.

As the seedlings grow, gradually thin them to stand six inches or more apart. Thinnings make tasty first salads. Cultivate occasionally to control weeds, or better yet use a mulch (covering) over the ground around the plants. Hay, straw, buckwheat hulls, peat moss, even grass clippings smother weeds, hold moisture in the soil and gradually add organic matter to improve the tilth. Plastic mulch can also be laid down before you plant, and the seed sown through slits in it.

Mature lettuce can stand moderate frost but not a severe freeze. You can often save your crop if any early cold snap is forecast by temporarily covering the plants with old sheets, burlap, newspapers or some other protection. After this premature blast of winter, you can uncover the lettuce to enjoy delicious greens all during "Indian Summer."

Oswald: "South knew that North wasn't going to have any help for him. But acting on the old theory that when you start with eleven tricks the gods of chance will find a twelfth for you, South jumped right to six diamonds."

Alan: "In an ordinary game South would go down to defeat because East would have nothing to hold onto except clubs and he would get his two club tricks. In an expert game, South might work out a swindle. Of course, a spade lead would have given him that twelfth trick, but West had opened a heart."

Oswald: "It was an expert game and South worked the swindle. He took his ace of hearts, played two rounds of trump and led a low club. West held the trick with his nine and went into a long huddle."

Alan: "Expert West finally outthought himself. He should have realized that South's failure to bid four notrump indicated a spade void. In order to prevent a possible heart-spade squeeze, he led his king of spades and the impossible slam came home."

Ask the Experts

A Vermont reader asks if there are any systemic meanings for opening bids of five and six notrump.

There are some which are so farfetched that they aren't worth thinking about.

Farm Tax Management Is Year-Round Task

COLLEGE STATION---"Income tax consequences of farm and ranch decisions should be weighed year-round," contends Dr. Ashley Lovell.

Cash-basis taxpayers tend to think of tax management strategies near the end of the taxable year, notes Lovell, an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. However, unless tax-saving moves can be completed before the year's end, many tax management strategies become inappropriate after Dec. 31.

"Solutions to business management problems should contribute to maximizing after-tax income and net worth of the business," contends the economist. "When profit opportunities are limited, sufficient taxable income should be generated to equal the manager's zero bracket amount in the appropriate tax table or schedule."

Successful farm income tax management requires an awareness of tax provisions applicable to farming and ranching and of the particular accounting system used.

"Good records are essential for efficient farm management and are useful in preparing credit applications," emphasizes Lovell. "They can also lead to maximum social security coverage and income tax savings."

Accurate and complete accounting of expense and income items is essential to tax management. An omitted $1 expense in 1979 may cost 14 to 70 cents in extra tax dollars, depending on the tax bracket, points out the economist.

"For the year-end maneuvers to be more effective and less expensive, income tax consequences of business decisions should be considered throughout the year," emphasizes Lovell.

"Today's farmers and ranchers must look at income tax management as a year-round task, not just one that requires attention when tax filing time rolls around."

The economist encourages taxpayers to consult a tax accountant or attorney regarding particular business details.

Pat Walker's presents: the Splendor of being Slender

'SIZE 18? THANKS, BUT NEVER AGAIN!'

—Ray Barnwell

Lots of little pleasures—like shopping for a smaller size—are part of the joy of attaining a slender figure. Ray Barnwell, for example, enjoys looking for new clothes now that she has lost 60 pounds on our proven program of weight reduction. A petite 113 pounds, she slips easily into size 6—and that's much more exciting than trying on the size 18 (or larger) she wore before she started treatments at Pat Walker's. She writes:

"After years of being overweight and trying all types of diet plans, I discovered a truly workable solution. Pat Walker's is helping me take off the weight plus the inches I have struggled with all my life.

"This plan is also teaching me how to put all types of food into my daily meals. For the first time I'm getting down to the size I want to be and feel I can control my weight without being on a starvation diet."

Reduce the pleasant way

Like Ms. Barnwell, you can achieve your weight goal at Pat Walker's—safely, pleasantly, without stringent diets or strenuous exercises. You'll feel completely at ease in our quiet, tastefully appointed salon, which has absolutely nothing in common with a gym, spa or health club.

Our food plan works—and keeps on working—because it's based on your own food likes and dislikes. The plan is individualized to include your preferences so that you can eat favorite foods every day, always in nutritional combinations that make healthy tissue.

And you benefit from these other important advantages:

- trained professional counselors
- complete individual privacy
- safe passive exercise
- personalized program to meet your needs

Search On For Ways To Stay Cool

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Whew!

Millions of Americans are searching for ways to keep cool this summer as energy conservation measures boost temperatures in offices and other buildings.

Medical and meteorological exports say there are certain basic rules to follow: Wear loose clothing, for example. Drink plenty of water. Try to slow down.

But the experts also say that keeping comfortable is a physchological as well as physical problem.

"Seventy-eight degrees the level required in most non-residential buildings, is not all that hot," said Frank Chappell of the American Medical Association. "You might be a little uncomfortable, but most of the discomfort is going to be in your mind."

There are arguments about who feels worse - men or women. Do iced drinks make you feel cooler than hot ones? Should you take a cold shower or a steaming bath?

"I don't think sex has much to do with it," said Chappell. Lifestyle is more important than gender. You will be less affected by an increase in temperature if you are used to working outside in hot weather than if you spend your days in an air-conditioned office.

Chappell also said it "doesn't make a bit of difference" whether you drink your coffee iced or hot. The main thing is to replace your body fluids.

You will feel better if you sweat - as long as the sweat evaporates. That's because evaporation requires energy, in the form of heat. Too much sweating can be bad, however, because your body can lose necessary salt, creating a chemical imbalance. Salt tablets are generally recommended, however, only for athletes or others who cannot avoid the exertion that brings on heavy sweating. They should be avoided by anyone who has a heart condition or is on a salt-restricted diet. If you have any doubts, ask your doctor.

Heat brings danger as well as discomfort. According to the weather service, nearly 200 persons die from summer heat and too much sun in a normal year. The death toll in years where there are heat waves rises sharply. In 1952, for example, 1,401 persons died as a result of what is officially listed as "excessive heat."

There is no formal definition of a heat wave.

Like comfort, however, heat waves are relative. "If you go to Arizona, they'll run temperatures in the 100s, but those people are used to extended periods like that during the summer. If the temperature in New York were to get 10 degrees above normal for three days, literally, the world would come to an end. The mortality rate would go up..."

Dear Abby

When He's Alone, He's With a Bum

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of nine boys. Their father is dead. Rudy, 23, is my oldest. He married Agnes, a 15-year-old girl, because she said he got her pregnant. Their baby is 2 now and is the picture of the fellow Agnes went with before Rudy married her.

Their marriage is on the rocks because she is pregnant by a sailor she met when she went to visit her mother in Seattle. Rudy won't take her back because he's in love with a 21-year-old girl who has two babies and is expecting a third by a fellow who isn't her husband although she's still married.

Rudy gets umemployment. He runs all night and lies around my house all day. He acts real crazy. I never know if he's on drugs or just drunk. All right, so much for Rudy.

Jody is my 20-year-old. He got a 17-year-old girl pregnant but won't marry her because he says he's not ready to settle down yet.

Abby, I've been a church-going Christian woman and a good mother and I don't know how I could have turned out kids like these. If they hang around the younger boys, they will be a mess, too. Please help me.

A MOTHER WHO FAILED

DEAR MOTHER: Don't feel guilty. If you've been a good mother, you haven't failed, your kids have. Let the older boys know they can't lie around your house all day. Your problems are too heavy to carry alone. You need to talk to an understanding, supportive person. Your clergyman is ready when you are.

DEAR ABBY: When would you say a person has reached middle age?

FORTY AND CURIOUS

DEAR FORTY: When he (or she) climbs out of the bathtub and is glad to find the full-length mirror all steamed up!

DEAR ABBY: I have a lazy teen-age daughter who has to be reminded over and over again to write thank-you notes for gifts she receives at Christmas, her birthday and, more recently, for her high-school graduation. Now she has a new cop-out. She thanks people for their gifts by telephone. Her grandparents live 1,500 miles away and so do most of her aunts and uncles, so the calls aren't exactly free. She says she will pay for the calls herself, but so far I haven't seen a penny.

Her father was furious when she told us she was planning to thank everyone for her graduation gifts by phone, but we both agreed it would be better than not thanking them at all.

Daughter argues that a phone call is much more personal and gives her a chance to ask how they are and to tell them what she is doing, how the family is, etc.

Do you think a telephoned thanks is proper?

MOTHER OF A TEEN

DEAR MOTHER: A written thanks is better. But a phone call is better than no thanks at all.

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Free Enterprise Grant Announced

A one thousand dollar grant to be used by the Private Entperprise Development Commitee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to award excellence in the teaching of free enterprise has been announced by the West Texas Chamber Foundation.

A foundation spokesman stated that the grant carried with it a great deal of significance since it is the first grant made by the foundation which was chartered in 1971. In making the grant the directors of the Foundation felt that there was no better way to formally activate the Foundation's efforts on behalf of West Texas than through recognition of the free enterprise system as it relates to future generations that must be depended upon to perpetuate the free enterprise system.

Bob Corkins, WTCC president accepted the grant on behalf of the regional chamber. Corkins stated that the money would be used to encourage the achievement of excellence in the field of free enterprise education in the public school systems of West Texas.

Fred Barrington, chairman of the private enterprise development committee, responsible for administration of the funds said that an awards program would be announced at the beginning of the 1979-80 school year encouraging teachers actively engaged in teaching the required course on the "American Free Enterprise System" in public school systems to enter competition for an award.

The awards program will be open to secondary level teachers representing a public school located within the WTCC service region.

Award recipients will be announced at the 62nd annual meeting of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to be held in San Angelo in April, 1980.

The West Texas Chamber Foundation was created to conduct research, accumulate and disseminate information of a charitable, scientific, literary and educational nature which will result in solutions to urgent problems facing West Texas.

Chiropractor Referrals Considered By AMA

By KEVIN McKEAN
AP Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Delegates to the American Medical Association convention go to work today on a controversial proposal to let doctors accept patients referred to them by chiropractors whose practice the AMA has previously labeled "An unscientific cult."

The proposal, part of a report by the Ad Hoc Committee on the Principles of Medical Ethics, is among 61 reports and more than 150 resolutions before the AMA's House of Delegates at the meeting.

More than 270 delegates, and an equal number of alternates, are attending the five-day annual convention, which began Sunday.

The reports and proposals come up for committee action today. If approved, they'll go to the full convention later this week.

The new ethics code would drop a part of the Principles of Medical Ethics adopted in 1957 that says: "A physician should practice a method of healing founded on a scientific basis and he should not voluntarily associate professionally with anyone who violates this principle."

Since the AMA officially regards chiropractic as "an unscientific cult," the ethics code discourages doctors from accepting patients referred by chiropractors for further diagnostics such as X rays.

Chiropractors in Illinois, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York have attacked the policy with lawsuits that charge it's a violation of anti-trust laws.

Fighting legal battles with chiropractors and with the Federal Trade Commission over a ban on physicians' advertising is costing the AMA $1 million a year, according to executive vice president James Sammons.

Litigation in the latest chiropractic suit filed in New York earlier this month is expected to run $400,000.

There are 20,000 chiropractors in the United States and they treat 5 million Americans a year. Chiropractic is a method of healing based on the theory that illness results from pinched nerves that can be cured by manipulating the spine.

While not addressing the chiropractic issue specifically, the proposed ethics code says:

"A physician, except in emergencies, shall be free to choose whom to serve, with whom to associate, and the environment in which to provide services consistent with appropriate patient care."

Thus, it would leave it up to an individual doctor whether to accept a chiropractor's referral. The AMA Board of Trustees made a similar pledge with regard to Pennsylvania physicians in an out-of-court settlement of the chiropractic lawsuit there in May.

But not all doctors agree with the proposal. The Pennsylvania Society of Radiologists and the American College of Radiologists refused to join in the settlement. And resolutions pending before the convention would reassert that chiropractic is unscientific.

Hospital Board Meets Tonight

A special meeting to consider air conditioning repair and replacement information is set for 7 tonight in the hospital conference room.

The hospital board's regular meeting is set for 7 p.m. Thursday, according to Administrator Cy Miller.

Tax Man Due Here Wednesday

AUSTIN – Comptroller Bob Bullock announced he is sending a representative from his Abilene office to Snyder on July 25th to assist local taxpayers and answer questions about state taxes.

Bullock said enforcement officer Island will meet with local taxpayers at the Scurry County Courthouse from 11:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m.

"If Snyder area merchants, or anyone else for that matter, have any questions about state taxes or need help in preparing tax forms, Mr. Island will be there to assist them," Bullock said.

"We're trying to cut the red tape in this office and we believe these face-to-face sessions with taxpayers help do just that," Bullock added.

Bullock reminded those taxpayers who are unable to meet with his representative on July 25th that they can still get their questions answered quickly by calling his toll-free information number in Austin. That number is 1-800-252-5555.

The Abilene office headed by James Martin serves Taylor, Brown, Callahan, Coleman, Comanche, Eastland, Fisher, Haskell, Jones, Mitchell, Mills, Nolan, Scurry, Shackelford, Stephens and Stonewall Counties.

For 260,000 Indochinese...

Refugee Asylum Pledged

By PAUL CHUTKOW
Associated Press Writer

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—The U.N. conference on Indochinese refugees has ended after producing pledges of asylum for 260,000 of the 400,000 refugees in Southeast Asian nations, $190 million for the relief program, new transit centers and a Vietnamese promise to cut off the exodus temporarily.

"The conference in many ways was a success," said U.S. Ambassador Dick Clark, President Carter's special envoy for the refugee problem, "but all the promises, pledges and initiatives now have to be followed up. Actions will have to do the talking."

That was the thinking, too, of the Southeast Asian nations of "first asylum" - Thailand, Malaysia, Indonesia, the Philippines and Singapore which, with Hong Kong, have been flooded with those who have fled from Vietnam and Cambodia. These governments brought the refugee problem to a crisis by refusing to accept any more.

The conference's pledges were "altogether encouraging," said Malaysian Home Minister Ghazalie Shafie, but there must now be "some dramatic development to make the deeds match the words."

Despite Vietnam's promise to try to stop what it called the "illegal departures," the other Southeast Asian countries still refused to comply with U.S. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim's appeal that they lift their blockade against further refugee boats. Refugee officials in Malaysia said 400 Vietnamese who landed there a month ago were towed out to sea Saturday, the last day of the two-day Geneva conference.

Other reports from Southeast Asia said there had been a big drop in the number of refugees landing on the coasts and islands of Indonesia and Malaysia. Vietnamese Deputy Foreign Minister Phan Hien assured delegates and journalists this was a demonstration of Hanoi's "good will." He said it was the result of increased coastal surveillance.

But many of the Western and Southeast Asian delegates were skeptical. Some said the decrease was a "negotiating tactic." Others said the start of the monsoon rains in the South China Sea probably were discouraging would-be refugees from attempting the dangerous voyage.

Singapore Foreign Minister S. Rajahratnam said the drop disproved Vietnam's claim that it has no control over the exodus.

"If they can turn off the flow for a few days, they can turn it off permanently," he said.

Psychic Misses

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)-The mayor of this resort city said he felt "a sense of relief" when the time for a predicted rockslide at Niagara Falls passed and only normal amounts of water flowed over the world-famous attraction.

But the self-styled psychic who started all the concern with a prediction of disaster says she only missed on the timing.

Mayor Michael O'Laughlin was on board the Maid of the Mist tour boat under Niagara Falls at Sunday's predicted rockslide hour of 4:56 p.m., O'Laughlin had joked earlier "there's a priority established for abandoning ship - mayors go first."

Jordan Longtime Carter Favorite

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP)-Every president has his right-hand man, and Hamilton Jordan was Jimmy Carter's long before the president named him White House chief of staff.

Carter hadn't planned on having a staff chief in his White House. Instead, his top assistants were supposed to function as spokes of a wheel. But the wheel was squeaky, and the president decided he had to change his way of doing business as part of the effort to revive his leadership.

Jordan said the idea of naming him chief of staff had come up before, "but I resisted it, and the president was not convinced we should do it."

Carter's reasons dated back to his campaign days and to his experience as governor of Georgia.

Politically, there was an advantage to retiring the title and the role held by H.R. Haldeman as chief of staff to President Richard M. Nixon.

Carter's was to be an open presidency, and Haldeman has written that he purposely used his power as staff chief to build a wall around Nixon.

"I did not have a single chief of staff as governor," Carter said when he was campaigning for president. "I had, I would say, three or four persons who had equal responsibilities for different aspects of my own duties. And I would probably continue that approach as president."

He tried it for 2½ years, but the Carter people now concede that what worked at the statehouse doesn't suffice at the White House.

Instead, the lack of a top lieutenant with the kind of power now delegated to Jordan seems to have erected another kind of wall isolating the president.

Carter's time and attention apparently were being diverted too often by internal disputes among administration aides and Cabinet members, and by others matters that really didn't demand his personal involvement.

The president said in his July 15 address to the nation that he had found himself speaking too frequently about matters of concern to the government and to Washington, and means to spend more time from now on listening to the people and addressing their concerns.

Now Jordan is to deal with the in-house differences that need settling. Jordan said that some decisions which in the past have gone to the president will, instead, be his to make.

Carter is said to have told the rest of the White House staff that from now on, they should act on Jordan's decisions as if they came from the president personnally.

In addition, Jordan is to become a gatekeeper, deciding when Cabinet members and other presidential aides really do need to see Carter.

Accident Frees 9 Million Bees

FLINTSTONE, Md. (AP)-A traffic accident freed about 9 million bees along a highway near Flintstone, and state police spent nine hours guiding startled motorists through clouds of the buzzing bugs.

John Lindner, a retired state apiary inspector, and volunteers tried to lure the bees into spare hives while police supervised traffic on Sunday.

Extra hives were left along the highway and in nearby fields in hope that more bees would be recovered over the next few days. Authorities estimated nine million were set free in the accident.

Six persons were injured in the 6:50 a.m. accident on U.S. Route 40 near the Allegany - Washington county line. One was hospitalized.

The highest mountain peak in Canada is Mount Logan in the Yukon Territory. It towers 19,850 feet.

4-H ELECTRIC CAMP-The annual 4-H Electric Camp is being held this week in the Sacramento Mountains, of New Mexico. The camp, sponsored by Southwestern Public Service Company is located 28 miles southeast of Cloudcroft. Representing Scurry County is Blanche Chisum, County Extension Agent, H.E. The Southwestern instructor is Bill Harr from Lubbock.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Trend to improvement

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I've been wondering about something and maybe you can shed some light on it. Our government is so concerned about our health, warning us about cigarettes and artificial sweeteners, food dyes and so forth. Why isn't something said about those vegetable oils, coconut and palm oils that are so high in saturated fat?

My husband is on a low-cholesterol diet and I have been using many of these products for many years before I became aware of the fact that they are harmful. I'll bet many other people are doing the same thing unknowingly. It's almost unbelievable how many so-called low-fat foods contain some of these harmful ingredients.

DEAR READER — One problem has been the difference of opinion about how important some of these dietary constituents are. At the present time, there's almost unanimous agreement among heart specialists and various scientists working on the problems of fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries that one should limit saturated fat intake. Now that's not the same thing as cholesterol. Actually, cholesterol only occurs in animal products, such as meat, milk and milk products.

It's always been my position that regardless of any difference in opinion about saturated fat in the diet, the buyer has a right to know what he's buying and that includes knowing how much saturated fat is in the food you purchase.

You touched on an important point by referring to these as vegetable oils. For years commercial interests have been permitted to simply record in the ingredients "vegetable oil" which often is a synonym for coconut oil.

One of the most important parts of a diet to prevent fatty-cholesterol deposits is eliminating obesity and control of calorie intake. For that reason I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-12, Kitchen Power for Weight Control. It will give you some guidelines in preparing good meals and limiting calories. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I'm afraid the real reason that we haven't had more accurate food labeling sooner has to do with commercial interests. Our government, with all its diversity, is influenced by all sorts of different pressure groups.

It's interesting to know that a few years ago it was actually against the law to put on the label how much saturated and how much polyunsaturated fat was in the foods that you were buying. To this I will add that in some states, and it may still be true, it was against the law for restaurants to serve anything but butter. Margarine of any type was strictly illegal. I'll leave it to you to conclude why such laws were in existence. I'm happy to say, though, that currently the trend is toward providing improved food labeling so people will know what they are buying. Hallelujah!

According To Texas Football Magazine

Tigers Ranked Ninth!

Ninth in the state is a pretty strong rating for a team which returns only half of its 1978 starters, but that's the ranking Dave Campbell's Texas Football Magazine has given the Snyder High School Tigers.

The mag, one of the most popular and largest selling of its kind, also picked Texas to win the Southwest Conference.

What it all means is that football, unquestionably still king in Texas, is close at hand. Snyder, for instance, begins workouts Aug. 13 and opens its season here Sept. 7 against Midland Lee. If that's not soon enough, Dallas Cowboy fans can watch their 'Pokes pitted against Oakland's Raiders in the annual Hall of Fame game, Saturday on television.

And the all-star break, baseball's half-way mark, was held only a week ago. Whew!

Snyder's Tigers experienced a 9-3 season in 1978, winning its first bi-district title in over 40 years. Snyder lost to Lubbock Estacado - ranked fourth this year according to Campbell's TFM - in the quarter-finals.

This season, Snyder returns 8-9 starters (one, while not full time, played quite a bit). Unfortunately, center Brantley Kitching, personally mentioned in the brief sketch by the magazine, will not be playing for the Tigers in '79. His family will move to Bay City.

Another mentioned returning letterman, Danny Doss, has exited to Robert Lee. Where does that leave Snyder's No. 9 ranking?

"I think it's realistic," commented Tiger defensive coordinator Wes Poarch. "Somebody will just have to step up there and take up the slack...and play a little harder, but you can't close shop just because a couple of people move off."

Poarch also believes the ranking will work to Snyder's advantage. "Coming off last year's record, I think it will be an advantage to them (the Tigers) because I think they can cope with it. Some teams can't cope with the pressure and they end up losing. Our kids are honored."

In addition to the players returning, Snyder is privledged to add a new bunch that went 10-0 as freshman and 9-1 as a junior varsity unit.

Returning from last year's starting lineup are fullback Bobby Degrate, offensive right tackle Sam Willis, offensive right guard Neil Evans, defensive tackles Tony Degrate and Morris Anderson, monster Alan Pollard, defensive halfback Bryan Vincent, and safety, Thomas Selmon. John Hanson, Toby Neves, and quarterback Paul Gafford were among the top 'extras' for a good deal of last season, and should come on strong in 1979.

Experience, the enthusiasm of coming off a bi-district championship and a winning junior varsity group moving up are the ingrediants Snyder hopes will make the No. 9 ranking - or higher perhaps - come true.

Texas Football Magazine sees the class AAA top ten this way: 1. McKinney, 2. Jasper, 3. Brownwood, 4. Estacado, 5. Tuloso-Midway, 6. Kerrville, 7. Bay City, 8. Beaumont Hebert, 9. Snyder, 10. Paris.

In the Southwest Conference, TFM says the 'Horns will win a Cotton Bowl berth, with Houston taking second, A&M third, SMU and Tech in a tie for fourth, Arkansas sixth, Baylor seventh, and TCU and Rice to be eighth and ninth, respectively.

The magazine annually polls metropolitan sports writers as to the best of the Southwest (conference) and they've come across as follows, points based on four for first, three for second, and so on: 1. Texas, 131½; 2. A&M, 68; 3. Houston, 64½; 4. SMU, 36½; 5. Texas Tech, 33; 6. Arkansas 32½; and Baylor, 4. points.

Weibring Cards 65, Victory At Quad Open

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP)—The first PGA victory is always special, but it had greater meaning for D.A. Weibring, who dedicated his triumph in the $200,000 Quad Cities Open to his ailing father who taught him the game, and the golfer's pregnant wife.

"I dedicated the win to both of them," said Weibring after firing a sensational 65 in Sunday's final round to stave off a charge by Milwaukee Open winner Calvin Peete and finish the tournament with a record 266, 14-under par.

Moments after parring the 18th hole to assure the victory, Weibring turned to his 62-year-old father, who had suffered a heart attack a week ago, and said: "I tried hard for you, Dad."

The elder Weibring grinned broadly and exclaimed, "This is the biggest thrill of my life."

One of the day's highlights came when ageless wonder Sam Snead, who had made PGA history Friday by becoming the first man on the tour ever to shoot his age - 67 - topped the remarkable achievement Sunday by carding a 66, making him the first PGA pro ever to shoot below his age.

Meyers Putts 'Classic' Win

TIMONIUM, Md. (AP)—Pat Meyers took a deep breath, steadied her shaking hands, and tapped in a 6 inch putt Sunday to win the $75,000 Greater Baltimore Golf Classic for her first victory on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Meyers, faced with a 25-foot birdie putt on the 18th green, wanted to get it close so she would have a simple shot for her victory.

She got the ball to within six inches, then came back and told her caddy, Dee Darden, "My hands are shaking so, I don't know whether I can make it."

Moments later, she dropped her putter and threw her arms up in triumph after firing a 2-under-par 71 for the victory, finishing with a 9-under-par total of 210.

"The key was handling the greens. I was in a good frame of mind and I was determined not to back off any putts," said Meyers, who has been second five times during her three-year professional career.

"In the back of my mind, I have thought about these seconds, but I tried not to," she said. "It seemed like a matter of odds. You get up there enough times and something will break."

The 25-year-old from Ormond Beach, Fla., finished one shot ahead of Dot Germain and Sally Little. Germain had the final day's best round, a 69, while Little, fourth in last week's U.S. Open Championship, finished with a 70.

Sportsmanship... A Dying Thing?

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Whatever happened to the great American spirit of sportsmanship.

Who tossed the dagger that slew Grantland Rice's immortal lines, "When the one Great Scorer comes to write against your name...It matters not whether you won or lost, but how you played the game?"

Who snuffed out Baron Pierre de Coubertin's theme that the job of Olympic sports lies "not in winning but in taking part?" What of the Duke of Wellington's and General MacArthur's exhortations about the "fields of friendly strife?"

Bosh: Sentimental rubbish, you say, reviewing some of the events that have occurred in the last few weeks.

At Wimbledon, Jimmy Connors loses a semifinal tennis match to Bjorn Borg, brushes past sedate All England Club officials, slams the door of his limousine while snapping, "You can take this tournament and snuff it."

A week later, Jimmy's pal, Vitas Gerulaitis, normally a very nice kid, loses a tennis match at Forest Hills to Poland's Wojtek Fibak. Instead of walking to the net for a traditional handshake, the playing pro of Studio 54 wheels, picks up his rackets and flees the premises.

The incident provokes this dissertation from our Polish guest:

"These young American players - they not only do not act like gentlemen, but not like people. They grow up in a way that they only know to win. They never learn to lose. They act like robots. They have no manners."

In Seattle, the New York Yankees take a drubbing from the lowly Mariners and Lou Piniella, with a short temper fuse but normally pleasant, flings a glove at the Mariners' celebrated "Chicken" and singes the entertainer's feathers with searing epithets. A couple of days later, Reggie Jackson breaks up Nolan Ryan's no-hitter in the ninth and gestures to the press box as he rounds first. "Bush," says Rod Carew, "and I'm going to tell him when I see him."

But the coup de grace of Yankee arrogance and lack of class is saved or the Pan Am games in San Juan, Puerto Rico, where our awesome red, white and blue forces run rough-shod over smaller and weaker rivals of the hemisphere.

This is an ideal platform for Bobby Knight of Indiana University, coach of the USA basketball team, whose credo is "Win, win, win."

First, with his team leading the Virgin Islands by 35 points, he berates an official so vigorously he is thrown out of the game. He draws a reprimand from the International Amateur Basketball Federation.

He subjects one of his players, Isiah Thomas, to a brutal tongue lashing in front of everyone, later grabs the youngster and continues the tirade as they trudge to the lockerroom - an ugly, demeaning act.

Then he gets into a rumpus with a Puerto Rican cop.

Then the United States beats the host country, Puerto Rico, for the gold medal 113-94. Big deal. The USA, birthplace and capital of the hoop sport, a nation of 230 million, whips a little island of 2.5 million. Okay, Bobby, go blow your horn.

Riding the shoulders of his victorious players, the coach raises his first in a show of definance. Later, he says, "The only people on this whole damn island I care about are my players."

It isn't a scene to make an American proud. It gives us pause to wonder: It is 1979. America, do you know where your children are.

As K-City Stops Texas...

Brett Slaps 3 HR's

ARLINGTON (AP)—George Brett says if he goes to the plate trying to hit a home run, it doesn't happen.

But the Kansas City third baseman admits it was on his mind in the eighth inning Sunday night after he had already slammed three out of the park in a 7-6 victory over the Texas Rangers.

With one out and a runner on second, Sparky Lyle walked Amos Otis to get to Brett, and the Rangers got him out for the only time all night when he flied to center.

"I wasn't trying to hit a home run. I just wanted to hit it hard somewhere. But when you've already hit three home runs, you don't think of a line drive to left field or a ground ball between first and second. That's impossible. You want another home run," Brett said.

The 26-year-old Brett, who has been named to the American League All-Star team the past four years, hit 2-run homers in the first and fourth innings off Ranger starter Steve Comer, then returned to boom a solo homer in the seventh off reliever Bob Babcock.

Richie Zisk countered with two RBI singles and a solo homer for Texas and the game was tied 6-6 going into the ninth.

But Willie Wilson lined a bases-loaded single to center to give Kansas City the win, its first after eight straight losses on the road. The decision kept Texas two games behind California in the Western Division.

Brett's only other three-homer game came in last season's American League playoffs at Yankee Stadium, and all of them were solo homers.

"Most of my homers are solo. For 80 games this year I've been first or second in the batting order. Tonight I'm hitting fourth and people are on base."

Dan Quisenberry, 1-0, Kansas City's fourth pitcher, got the win. Lyle, 4-7, who started the eighth inning for Texas, got the loss.

Merit Changes Smoking.

'Enriched Flavor'™ cigarette sparks whole new taste era in low tar smoking.

Not too long ago, smokers believed that if a cigarette had less tar, it had less taste too. Low tar cigarettes simply didn't taste very good.

Then along came MERIT and a whole new taste idea called 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. And in three short years, smoking changed:

1. No other new cigarette in the last 20 years has attracted so many smokers as quickly as MERIT!
2. MERIT has swept past over 50 other brands in record time.
3. MERIT is continuing to attract high tar smokers—the most taste-conscious smokers of all!

It's clear: MERIT taste is changing attitudes toward low tar smoking.

For just $30 you can have solids pumped out may save digging new ditches & faying new lines. For a trouble free system, clean once or twice yearly. May be too late when tank runs over.
