Grand jury indicts 2

A Midland County grand jury indicted two men Wednesday for capital murder in the April 14 shooting death of a Midland man.

Ramsey B. Harrell, 17, of Odessa and Michael Scott Thomas, 19, of Midland were charged with the murder of Tommy Edward Musick, 48, of Midland. Musick was shot in the head several times and left for dead on a county road. He died several hours after the incident.

The suspects are accused of stealing the victim's car during the incident.

Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre said he did not anticipate seeking the death penalty for the suspects.

Neither man has any prior offenses, Schorre said.

Harrell was released on a $60,000 surety bond last weekend. He was placed under house arrest and remains confined to his home. Thomas remains in the Midland County Detention Center in lieu of a $100,000 bond.

Gunman terrorizes

LOS ANGELES — A man was critically wounded and a 9-year-old girl was shot in the foot when a gunman walked into a crowded McDonald's restaurant and fired more than 10 rounds as terrorized customers ran for cover, police said. The gunman — suspected of being a gang member — entered at 4 p.m. Wednesday and started firing at a rival who was with some friends in the restaurant, said Sgt. Brad Young of the Los Angeles Police Department's Foothill Division. "He just began shooting," Young said. "Nobody paid any attention to him until the first shots went off."

Opponents declare war on proposed energy tax

By Steven Greenhouse
N.Y. Times News Service

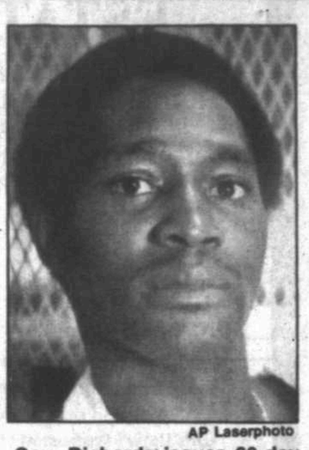

WASHINGTON — Manufacturers' and farmers' organizations declared war on President Clinton's proposed energy tax Wednesday, while at the same time opponents in the Congress said it would hurt industry and agriculture.

On the day that the House Ways and Means Committee took up the energy tax, the National Association of Manufacturers and the American Farm Bureau announced that they had formed a coalition of more than 900 companies and associations that would fight to kill the tax.

The new coalition asserted that the tax would make American industry less able to compete in the world market and seriously harm rural America.

Gov. Richards issues 30-day reprieve for Gary Graham.

Spared inmate describes death-house experience

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Gary Graham, spared from execution last week thanks to a 30-day reprieve from Gov. Ann Richards, said Wednesday the experience of being taken to the death house to await lethal injection was so frightful he was unable to sleep for days.

"It was horrible, nerve-wracking," Graham said of his near-execution a week ago. "I was mentally exhausted and emotionally exhausted."

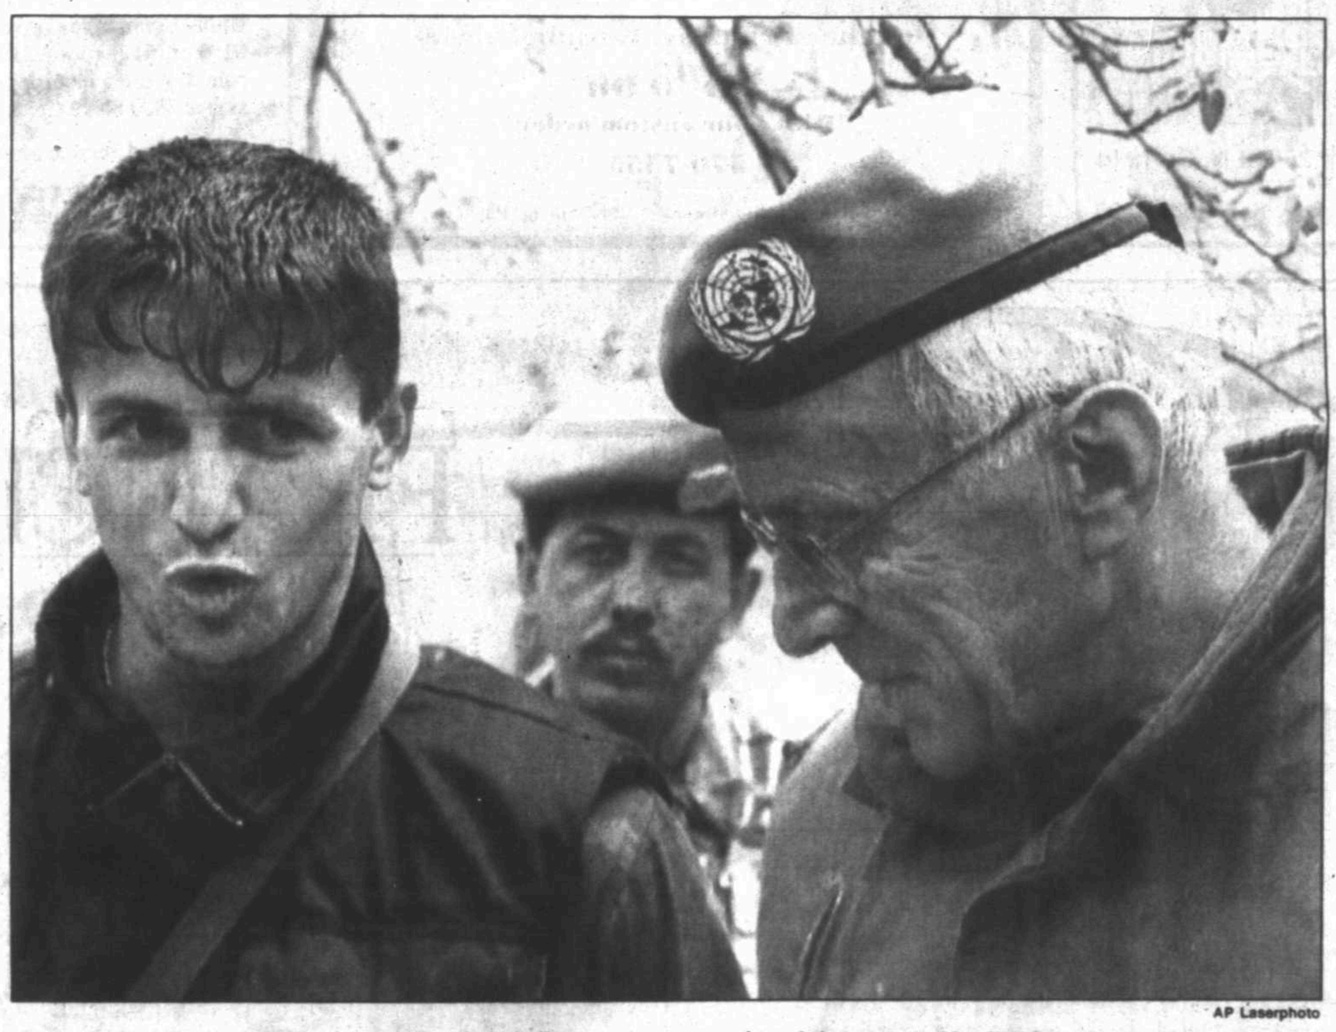

Graham, 29, had made the 15-mile trip from the Ellis Unit, home of death row, to the Walls Unit in downtown Huntsville, where executions are carried out, when prison officials received word of the reprieve.

"It's a very draining process to be sitting away in that cell not knowing what the outcome

MOUNT JAHORINA, Bosnia-Herzegovina — The Bosnian Serbs' self-proclaimed parliament effectively rejected a U.N. peace plan to end the war in Bosnia early today by voting instead for a referendum on the plan.

The vote defied pressure from the Serbs' backers in Yugoslavia and abroad, and heightened prospects of military intervention to end Europe's bloodiest conflict since World War II.

The parliament's deputies voted 51-2 for a May 15-16 referendum by Bosnian Serbs on the peace plan. Twelve deputies abstained and 10 deputies present earlier in the day left before the vote.

After the vote, the president of Serb-dominated Yugoslavis Dobrica Cosic said, "The (Bosnian) parliament took the worst decision, and I don't know what the next night will bring."

Cosic and the leaders of Yugoslavia's two republics, Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic and Montenegran leader Momir Bulatovic, angrily stormed out of the meeting after the vote.

In New York, Bosnia's U.N. mission slammed the decision.

"It's pretty damn clear tha. the Serbs have no intention of following any directive from the West," Miles Ragusz, spokesman for the Bosnian mission, told The Associated Press.

U.N. mediator Cyrus Vance, who co-authored the peace plan, told PBS tele-

Americans grapple with intervention

By Robert Dvorchak
Associated Press writer

Once again, America is at odds with itself.

The nation's heart demands it do something about Bosnia. But reason and experience suggest the price in blood and money could be higher than hoped. What to do and how to do it makes for an unwieldy equation.

Kirsten Sachson believes the war between Serbs and Muslims in the former Yugoslavia demands "whatever it takes to stop it," even if it means U.S. intervention.

"I don't like military force. I was against the Vietnam War, but people are dying," said Sachson, a nurse who was visiting Los Angeles' Museum of Tolerance at the Simon Wiesenthal Center, itself a memorial to those systematically killed in a war from a half-century ago.

Hers and other American voices reflect the complexity of interfering in another country's internal struggle. Still, images beam into America's living rooms and consciences of innocents maimed by shells, women raped and hollow-eyed captives dumped into barbed-wired concentration camps.

"Call it what you will, we cannot stand by and allow there to be a systematic slaughter under the name of 'ethnic cleansing,'" said evangelist Jay Strack, who is doing a revival at the Geyer Springs First Baptist Church in Little Rock, Ark. Inflation, materials cost squeeze next city budget

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

Next year's budget for the city must be trimmed slightly to compensate for inflation and the rising cost of materials — forcing the loss of three to five positions from the nearly 900-member work force.

City Manager Mike McGregor is optimistic that the local tax base will hold steady or show a small increase this year for the first time in six years.

Preliminary property appraisal reports indicate a 1½ percent tax base increase, although the final numbers will not be released until August. McGregor said he anticipates that those numbers will level off resulting in a slightly smaller rise.

The other major revenue source for the city — sales tax — received a significant boon last December when $9.3 million in receipts broke the city's all-time monthly sales re-

Sides battle to determine TU Electric rate increase

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

The two sides battling over TU Electric's proposed rate increase remain at odds over the increase although a final decision is expected later this month, city officials said.

The electric company in February announced plans to raise the electric rate 15.3 percent by April 26 to help cover higher-than-expected operation costs at Comanche Peak Power Plant near Fort Worth.

That increase would effectively cause the average monthly residential utility bill to jump $10.80.

But an intervention group — composed of representatives of several dozen cities who would be affected by the increase — has met with TU Electric several times since the announcement to hammer out an acceptable agreement.

"We recognize that TU needs about $180 million to make a return on their investment and to

Colon cancer discovery may lead to earlier detection

WASHINGTON (AP) — Researchers have discovered a gene defect that identifies people with a 95 percent probability of developing an inherited form of colon cancer. The finding could lead to quicker diagnosis and save thousands of lives, they say.

"We have proven beyond any shadow of a doubt that a genetic predisposition for colon cancer exits," Dr. Bert Vogelstein, a Johns Hopkins University cancer researcher, said Wednesday. "We now can tell who will get it (the inherited form) and who will not."

Colon cancer kills 55,000 Americans annually, though the cure rate is 90 percent when detected in the early stages.

The researchers found that a mutated gene, carried by about one in every 200 people in the Western world, identifies people with an inherited and extraordinarily high risk of the disease.

"Patients who are positive (have the mutation) will have a 95 percent chance of getting cancer," Vogelstein said Wednesday at a news conference organized by the journal Science.

'We have proven beyond any shadow of a doubt that a genetic predisposition for colon cancer exits. We now can tell who will get it (the inherited form) and who will not.'

— Dr. Burt Vogelstein
Cancer researcher

The gene defect is thought to be responsible for about one in every seven colon cancer cases.

People most likely to have this gene, he said, are those with two or three close blood relatives who had colon or uterine cancer. There are an estimated five to 10 million Americans in such families, he said.

Such people, said Vogelstein, "should immediately go to their physician.

"We hope ... to get people who have a strong family history to go their doctor tomorrow and make their doctor aware," he said. Vogelstein advised such patients to tell their doctors, "I am at risk of colon cancer."

Scientists in the Hopkins lab of Vogelstein and in the lab of Dr. Albert de la Chapelle of the University of Helsinki located the gene defect on a segment of chromosome 2 of the human gene pattern. Reports by de la Chapelle, by Vogelstein and a related study by Dr. Stephen Thibodeau of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester are to be published Friday in the journal Science.

De la Chapelle said the cancer-causing mutation is located in such a small area of chromosome 2 that researchers using sophisticated genetic laboratory studies can now identify people with the gene flaw.

"Within six months to a year, we hope to be able to apply this test to affected families," he said. Once the defect is further identified, "it is conceivable that such a test can be applied to whole population."

Such screening, said de la Chapelle, "could potentially prevent thousands of cancer deaths a year. It will give doctors the power to predict who will get the inherited form of this colon cancer and who will not."

Vogelstein said the genetic test may be generally and routinely available within five to six years.

But for now, he urged people with a strong family history to seek examination by methods now in use. These include tests that can identify colon cancer at its early stages, when the disease is most often curable.

Scientists find new diarrhea bacteria germ

BOSTON (AP) — Scientists have identified an especially unpleasant new variety of microbe that can cause weeks of diarrhea.

The microbe, which probably infects people all over the world, causes what researchers describe as "explosive watery diarrhea" that typically lasts up to five weeks.

The parasite was first seen under the microscope in Peru eight years ago. But its identity was a mystery.

Now, they have found that the bug, which is still unnamed, is a form of protozoa of the coccidian genus cyclospora. Cousins of this microbe are widely recognized as a major problem among chickens and other farm animals, but this is the first time it has ever been found in humans.

Astronauts prepare for descent

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Columbia's astronauts flexed a life-size robot arm one last time in space Wednesday and squeezed in as many laboratory experiments as possible before packing for home.

The shuttle was scheduled to land at Kennedy Space Center at 9:03 a.m. today, 10 days after blasting off on the German-sponsored Spacelab mission. Low clouds and possible rain were forecast, both of which could threaten landing plans.

Wednesday was a bonus day. NASA extended the mission from nine to 10 days so the crew could repeat experiments that had been hampered earlier in the flight by equipment problems.

■ More nation news/8C

"Everyone in Germany is happy, and we are near the point of celebration," said Walter Brungs, a German payload official at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston.

The extra day enabled NASA's shuttle program to pass the one-year mark in space late Wednesday morning, counting the total time in orbit by all orbiters. This was Columbia's 14th voyage and the 55th shuttle flight overall.

"We think it's appropriate that happened on Columbia, the first one to fly back in 1981, and we're proud to be the crew that was on board when we did exceed that record," said shuttle commander Steven Nagel.

Brungs said the mission — the second and probably last shuttle flight to be chartered by Germany alone — met and in some cases even exceeded scientists' expectations. The only jeopardized experiments involved fish and tadpoles.

Many of the 480 young fish and tadpoles aboard died in orbit. It's uncertain how many — if any — will be alive when German biologists get their specimens back. Researchers wanted to study the animals' development and behavior in weightlessness.

"If you plan a mission like this, with that many experiments and that complicated, you cannot expect that everything is going perfectly," Brungs said.

Alamo joins campaign to strip marks

MIAMI (AP) — Alamo Rent A Car, sued over the murders of two vacationing German customers, said Wednesday it's removing all identifying marks from its 150,000-car fleet.

Rental car companies have rushed to alter their telltale license plates in Florida since the second slaying April 2, and Alamo, the industry's fourth-largest company, joins Hertz and Avis in extending the change to company stickers nationally.

"We feel that there's a peace of mind or higher level of security on the part of our customers when they rent a car that has no ready identifier that may mark them as a tourist," Alamo spokeswoman Liz Clark said.

Bright bumper stickers displaying company colors and license plate frames bearing company names were common until about two years ago, and nine states and the District of Columbia still issue distinctive rental car plates.

But tourists and business travelers became easy targets for auto thefts and burglaries and, more recently, violent robbers who ram bumpers and smash car windows to get at their prey.

Nasty weather storms through

Staff report

A brief line of storms brought a burst of nasty weather to Midland late Wednesday.

Although the National Weather Service at the Midland International Airport recorded no precipitation, rain and pea-sized hail fell in downtown Midland for approximately 30 minutes. The storm was caused by an upper level disturbance from Colorado meeting with a dry line and a thunderstorm warning was issued for Midland County for part of the evening.

Forecasters predicted a 20 percent chance for more rain for Wednesday night.

Today's forecast calls for mostly sunny skies with a high near 90 and south to southwest winds at 10-20 mph. Tonight should be mostly clear with a low near 60, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Friday should be mostly sunny with a high near 90.

After an overnight low of 63, Wednesday's high reached 91, compared to the record high for that date of 101 set in 1964. The record low of 37 was set in 1935.

STATE

An elderly couple died in floodwaters in San Antonio Wednesday as thunderstorms pounded Texas, dumping up to 8 inches of rain in parts of Bexar County.

Winds damaged buildings and uprooted trees in North Texas.

The start of the National Basketball Association playoff game between the Portland Trail Blazers at San Antonio Spurs was delayed 15 minutes because of the severe weather.

Spurs spokesman Tom James said the start of the game was pushed back to give fans time to safely reach HemisFair Arena.

Heavy rains in San Antonio often produce flooding in the city's many low-water crossings, and Wednesday was no exception. Rescue workers pulled stranded motorists from rising creeks and streams.

Thunderstorms pounded the city all day. The San Antonio International Airport, which closed late Wednesday afternoon because of the bad weather, reported 5½ inches of rain.

Police in San Antonio said the elderly couple who died were trapped in their car by high waters, but had no other details.

Winds up to 60 mph spawned by the thunderstorms in Central and South Texas swept through North Texas ahead of showers, causing scattered damage, including downed trees and powerlines in Arlington and contributing to car accidents during rush hour.

As usual during heavy rains, low-water crossings throughout San Antonio were flooded, stranding some motorists who tried to make it through the water. Authorities erected barricades at many of the crossings.

The National Weather Service issued severe thunderstorm warnings for Bexar and other counties in Central Texas. The weather service said the storms were the type that can produce tornadoes.

NATION

Rain and thunderstorms dampened much of the nation Wednesday, accompanied by hail, strong winds and flooding in Texas. Snow fell in the Rockies.

In Texas, hail nearly 1-inch in diameter fell at Lolita, thunderstorm winds gusted to more than 70 mph near Salem, and rain caused flooding in Atascosa, Bastrop, Bexar, Guadalupe and Wilson counties.

Storms dumped up to 8 inches of rain on parts of San Antonio, forcing San Antonio International Airport to close Wednesday afternoon because of bad weather.

Winds up to 60 mph caused scattered damage in North Texas, including downed trees and powerlines in Arlington. Some roofs of homes and business were damaged in north San Antonio.

About 200,000 homes and businesses reported power outages during the day, said San Antonio Public Service spokeswoman Barbara Stover. In many cases, electricity was restored a short time later.

At midday, rain and thunderstorms extended over western New England, the lower Great Lakes, the eastern half of the Ohio Valley, the central Atlantic Coastal states, central and eastern Texas, the middle Missouri Valley and the central half of the Rockies.

Rain changed to snow in the higher elevations of the Rocky Mountains. About 6 inches of snow covered the ground near South Pass, Wyo. at midday. An advisory for freezing overnight temperatures was posted for Colorado's west-central valleys.

Hail three-quarters of an inch in diameter fell near Perry, N.Y.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

vision that the ball was now in the Security Council's court. The council had already scheduled consulations on Bosnia this morning. The White House officials had no immediate comment.

The vote past midnight came after days of furious diplomatic efforts to get the Bosnian Serbs to accept the plan, already approved by Bosnia's Muslims and Croats.

At the meeting, leaders from Greece and Yugoslavia joined Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic in pleading with the lawmakers to accept the plan to avert military intervention.

Karadzic, who accepted the plan Sunday at a peace conference in Greece, said, "Either we accept this plan, or we can expect fierce attacks by NATO forces."

President Clinton has called for military measures, including air strikes against Serb artillery, if the Serbs back away from a settlement.

European allies and Russia have not directly endorsed his calls, however, despite overtures this week by Secretary of State Warren Christopher.

As Karadzic spoke, armed Serb militiamen in camouflage milled about the "Heavenly Valley" hotel where the parliament was meeting, 20 miles southeast of Sarajevo.

Despite such pressure, a hard-line mood prevailed. Many deputies feel that they would be giving up hard-fought gains if they accept the peace plan.

The plan gives the Serbs 43 percent of Bosnia in three non-contiguous provinces, but denies them land links to Serbia and Serb-held areas of Croatia. The Serbs have captured 70 percent of Bosnia since the war began.

Earlier in the evening, the deputies held a long, tense debate on conditionally accepting the plan. The conditions made demands that had already been repeatedly rejected by Muslims and Croats during arduous negotiations.

But the assembly ultimately ignored proposals for adding conditions and voted for the referendum instead.

Speaker after speaker had urged the lawmakers to fully accept the U.N. agreement.

Hoping that the Serb assembly would accept the plan, NATO had been preparing plans to send up to 75,000 peacekeepers to Bosnia to enforce a cease-fire.

Premier Constantine Mitsotakis of Greece, Serbia's only Western friend in the past two years, said, "Don't commit suicide."

"At this moment you have two roads: one is a confrontation with the whole world and the other is peace," Mitsotakis said.

Milosevic, who had been the Bosnian Serbs' main patron and arms supplier but whose state has been hurt by U.N. sanctions, urged the Serbs to "vote for peace." He received scant applause.

Miroslav Toholj, information minister in the self-declared Bosnian Serb government, said the Americans "are only bluffing" and will never intervene.

The war began after Bosnia's majority Muslims and Croats voted to secede from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia. Bosnian Serbs opposed secession.

The keystone of the plan is the division of Bosnia into 10 provinces. Each ethnic group would get three provinces in Bosnia, and a 10th, Sarajevo, would be jointly administered.

U.S. troops watch, wait

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. troops could be ready in hours to assist a NATO peacekeeping force in Bosnia, but getting such a force into action would take days if not weeks, senior military officials said Wednesday.

"We're not standing in the doors, waiting to jump," one senior Pentagon officer said. "We're poised, should an order be given, but I don't think anybody here or at the White House can predict exactly when that will be."

Before large numbers of U.S. troops are committed, there would have to be peace agreement among the warring parties in Bosnia, as well as agreement among the United States and its allies on the makeup and mission of the peacekeeping force, said the officer, who spoke on condition his name not be used.

Peace among the warring parties, however, seemed to fade late Wednesday as the Bosnian Serbs' parliament rejected a United Nations peace plan cord. The sales tax revenue has since dropped to a flat rate.

CITY: Next year's budget must be trimmed

"There has been growth, significant growth on the retail side. Some of it is due to Midland becoming more of a regional retail center where more area towns are coming to trade, but it also reflects a general stability in the economy," McGregor said. "We have stable to very slow growth in the other revenue markets."

McGregor said the city has several concerns on the expense account side including complying with new environmental landfill rules that could raise the cost of digging a landfill from $250,000 to $1,250,000 and a small water rate increase casued by the construction of a pipeline linking the city reservoir to the Lake Ivie pipeline.

Despite the additional expenses, council members last month pledged not to increase spending or increase the effective tax rate next year. The effective rate is the figure that will generate the same amount of revenue as the previous year.

Division heads have until next week to submit a completed budget to the accounting office, where the figures will be checked, sub-totaled and totaled, then printed in a standard format. Individual reviews with city management begin in late-May.

In that process, the division head explains to the city manager what's in the budget, line by line and outlines the differences as compared to the previous year.

Then, as a citywide budget, the figures will be detailed once again for the City Council during work sessions in mid-July.

The final prepared budget will be voted on in late August or early September.

RATES: Officials expect decision this month

(From 1A)

achieve that, we've come in with a 3.6 percent offer," said Fred Poe, Midland's retired city manager who is representing the city on a statewide intervention group.

Poe expects the final offer to fall somewhere in between the company's 15.3 percent proposal and the 3.6 percent offer. But the Public Utility Commission will have the final word on the increase.

Because the city charter requires two readings for utility concerns, the City Council will take action next Tuesday on the intervention group's lowest rate in order to have a decision on record by the end of May.

"The company realizes that we're trying to protect ourselves and our interest in the case," he said. "We're going in with our low numbers but we don't expect them to be the final numbers."

If the electric company's proposed rate is accepted, the city's bill — which includes electricity used at all municipal buildings, traffic lights and to operate water pumps and sewage treatment — would jump by about 30 percent.

"The net increase for the city — after the taxes we pay back to the city are figured in — will be a little over $200,000," said Pat Ennis, account manager for TU Electric. "TU pays a franchise tax for the use of alleys and that money goes back into city accounts."

The franchise tax — which amounts to three percent of all customer accounts within the city — is expected to be about $120,000.

In addition to operational costs at Comanche Peak, the electric company cites escalating state and local taxes and a mandated accounting change for employee retirement, health and insurance benefits as the main reasons for needing the increase.

"We feel quite comfortable with the proposal, and with the taxes weighed into it, we feel it's justified," said LuAnn Morgan, Midland district manager for TU.

If granted, the higher rates would raise company revenues by $760 million while absorbing the unforeseen expenses of the past two years into the base rate. That, combined with a series of already installed cost cutting measures — debt refinancing, energy conservation programs and declining operation costs due to increased employee productivity — would make another rate increase unnecessary for at least another five years, TU Electric officials said.

When the first of the two reactors at the plant came into operation in 1990, it caused a 10 percent rate increase. At the time, company officials promised they only would seek two 10 percent increases to bring Comanche Peak on line.

A similar intervention group in 1990 determined the power plant was not built prudently, but the rate increase was instigated nonetheless.

The company's proposed increase is pending before all cities in northern and western Texas — the area that TU Electric services.

According to Midland Independent School District officials, the increase would raise the district's electric bill by about $300,000 annually, which would in turn cause a slight increase in the school tax rate.

VOICES: Polls show division, reluctance

for inaction."

Air strikes, police actions and peacekeeping missions carry risks. But only the United States has a superpower's ability — and obligation — to step in, said Dr. Bill Henry of Little Rock.

"I kind of feel that when you have privileges as a nation, like we have, we have a responsibility," said Henry, who enjoyed a Geyer Springs church lunch of a barbecue sandwich, baked beans, potato salad, cole slaw and pecan pie.

At the Old State House in Boston, where the seeds of America's future were sown more than two centuries ago, Jim McCormack sipped a can of soda and pondered helping a far-off country.

"The U.S. is probably the only ones that can do it," said McCormack, a Vietnam era veteran. "Something's got to be done. If someone doesn't make a move there won't be anymore Bosnia."

But McCormack feels there should be conditions, such as the endorsement and support of other countries, especially those in Europe.

"I don't think we should do it alone," McCormack said. "It's a world problem and everybody needs to get involved."

Polls show division and reluctance among Americans. A Newsweek poll last week found a 49 percent to 44 percent split against getting involved, and 60 percent opposed to using ground troops. Also last week, a Time-CNN poll showed 52 percent felt America had already done enough to stop the fighting, and the same percentage opposed bombing the Serbs.

The Bosnian question has been a topic of conversation at American Legion Post 34 in Indianapolis, where veterans recall how their country stood up to facism, fought communism in Korea and Vietnam, evicted a bully from Kuwait and quieted warlords in Somalia.

Robert L. Maddox, an ex-Marine and Vietnam vet, thinks intervention can stop the Bosnian bloodshed "if they go over and do the job and let them do it and keep the politics out.

"We went into Africa and did the job, so why not, if it will save little kids' lives? They got the food distributed (in Somalia)," said Maddox, 48, a cook who sat at the bar sipping a beer and puffing an unfiltered cigarette. "They shouldn't have let it get this far. . . . I just feel sorry for the people."

Others support humanitarian efforts but disagree with using force.

"If there's another place that has Vietnam written all over it, it's Bosnia," said Janet Himmelberg, 38, who was visiting the Gateway Arch in St. Louis with her students from Keytesville High School.

"The people over there are going to have to solve their problem. I don't think we can solve it. The world can't solve it, the United States can't solve it, Germany, Italy, Britain, none of those people can solve it," she said. "I wish we could export all the kids and all the innocent people out of there and give the fighters guns and say, 'Here, whoever's left standing, it's yours.' "

On the college campus, at least part of the caution stems from an unfamiliarity with the region and the reasons for the conflict.

"I don't think going in would have a good result. The idea is to get the sides to re-establish communications. We are not familiar with the root of this turmoil and the historical baggage behind it," said Ken Palmer, 47, a professor of mathematics at the University of Miami.

ENERGY: Opponents declare war

(From 1A)

rectly hurts the American economy at so many important points," said Jerry Jasinowski, president of the manufacturers' group. "This particular tax is a jobs killer."

The coalition's concerns were voiced just a few hours later by members of the Ways and Means Committee, the House's chief tax-writing committee, as Republicans said the energy tax would weaken American industry and farm-state Democrats voiced uneasiness with it.

"You're raising the price of every manufactured product," said Rep. Bill Archer of Texas, the committee's ranking Republican.

Rep. Peter Hoagland, D-Neb., said farmers would have problems passing on the increased costs stemming from the tax because they operate in a fiercely competitive global market.

The administration's energy tax is based on the heat content of fuels as measured in Btu's, or British Thermal Units. The proposed tax would be levied on coal, gasoline, natural gas and other forms or energy and is expected to raise more than $20 billion a year.

Sander Levin, D-Mich., who was one of the committee's most vocal defenders of the tax, said the tax was an important part of the president's proposal. He laid down a challenge to the tax's opponents, saying, "It's important to ask, 'If it were removed, what would be in its place?'"

Even with a few Democratic defections, the proposal is expected to survive the Ways and Means Committee, where Democrats outnumber Republicans, 24 to 14. But it will face a tougher time in the Senate Finance Committee, the Senate's principal tax-writing committee, because the Democrats have 11 members to the Republicans' 9. In addition, some Democrats on the panel come from states dominated by agriculture and the energy industry.

The new coalition is called the Affordable Energy Alliance and includes the American Petroleum Institute, the American Dairy Products Institute and the National Federation of Independent Business, a grouping of 600,000 small businesses. Notably absent from the coalition was the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Many energy producers oppose the tax because it would raise energy prices and probably eat into energy consumption — and industry profits.

Responding to the formation of the coalition, a Treasury official said: "There are a lot of business concerned about the effect that the deficit has on our nation's economic prospects, who are supporting the president's plan, Btu tax and all. They are concerned about the consequences of a continued failure to rein in the deficit."

In a news conference, Jasinowski said the new coalition hoped to block the tax in the House, but he predicted that the opponents would have a better chance killing it in the Senate. He said the coalition would focus on contacting lawmakers in states with large energy industries, including Louisiana, Wyoming, North Dakota, Texas and West Virginia.

How successful Washington-based industry groups are in blocking the tax could hinge largely on whether they succeed in getting thousands of businesses and farmers around the country to fight the tax.

The coalition said the new tax would significantly slow economic growth and cost the nation more than 600,000 jobs by 1998 — an assertion administration officials said was vastly exaggerated.

According to the coalition, the energy tax and raising the cost of using inland waterways would squeeze farmers, costing an Illinois farmer with 500 acres of grain $670 a year. But administratioan officials the cost to farmers would be minimal — just 7 cents a bushel of grain.

To increase the tax's chances, the administration has changed it several times since it was unveiled on Feb. 17. Petroleum products are supposed to be taxed at a higher Btu rate than other fuels with the aim of reducing oil imports. But bowing to pressures from senators in New England, the administration decided not to place the special levy on home-heating oil because so many New England homes are heated by oil.

INMATE: Governor issues reprieve is going to be or the result is going to be," Graham said Wednesday, seated in a cage in the death row visiting area. "You hope and pray for the best but you don't know exactly. That's probably the most draining aspect of it, not knowing."

Richards took the unusual action only hours before Graham was to have been executed early April 29 after Graham's supporters waged an intense campaign backing his claims that he was innocent of killing an Arizona man during a robbery outside a Houston supermarket in 1981.

"I feel it was the right decision on her part after looking at the case," Graham said. "I was very hopeful something was going to happen. I felt with the amount of attention on the case, that so many people had raised their voices in opposition to what was happening, something was going to happen somewhere."

Graham described prison guards in the death house waiting area as "overly courteous, which only adds to the nerve-wracking. They pick a fine time to decide they want to be nice to you."

Less than two days after Richards' reprieve, State District Judge Donald Shipley reset Graham's execution for June 3.

"I think it's a reflection of the fanatical madness in this state regarding executions and carrying out executions," Graham said.

Once he was returned to his prison cell where he was greeted by jubilant fellow inmates, "I just basically tried to get everything reorganized and determine the next step. I really didn't sleep for a couple of days," he said.

Graham said he and his lawyers are petitioning the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles "for a full, fair and impartial hearing. We're still hopeful."

Defense attorneys said they had witnesses come forward in recent days who insisted Graham was not the man who killed Bobby Lambert, 53, of Tucson, Ariz., on May 13, 1981. Prosecutors have termed the witnesses' statements inconsistent and ludicrous.

Graham was 17 at the time of his arrest and was convicted and sentenced to death largely on the testimony of one woman who watched the holdup and identified him as the assailant.

Graham also had pleaded guilty to 10 similar robberies where a victim was approached in the parking lot of a supermarket. In two of the robberies, the victims were shot. In a third, a woman was raped.

Wind can't blow this Celebration!

If you were one of those nearly blown away Saturday when destructive winds hit Midland — tearing the roofs off some buildings, blowing fences down, disrupting the crowd at Celebration of the Arts and resulting in cancellation of the street dance, which was to have featured Palomino Road, there's a brighter day coming.

The storm created havoc in parts of the city and resulted in property loss for a number of Midlanders. It also resulted in a financial loss for the Arts Assembly of Midland because of lights, tarps and peg-board walls for artists being broken, torn, and damaged, and because of the necessary cancellation of some of Celebration's events.

But, according to Becky Bailey, assistant director of the Arts Assembly, "we'll be back next year better than ever."

Ms. Bailey noted that a couple of people were disgruntled because of the unpredictable storm's damage, but said that overall the artists and the people in the crowd responded in good fashion to the storm's effects.

"It was the best Celebration ever until 5:45 p.m.," she noted.

That was when the cold winds hit, dropping Saturday's warm temperatures by 20 degrees and creating havoc for artists and Celebration-goers alike.

During its 10-year existence, Celebration of the Arts has enjoyed tremendous crowds, strong support and, generally, good weather. Ms. Bailey noted that "one year we had rain."

That isn't a bad record for a part of the state where the adage asserts that if you don't like the weather, wait five minutes. It'll change!

Already the Arts Assembly has announced it will be hosting the Summer Art Aid Concert, which will feature Palomino Road. The date will be announced in the next few days.

And next year, Celebration of the Arts will return for yet another celebration. Midlanders will be ready — come wind, rain or shine!

Bosnia policy lacks clear purpose

It looks like President Clinton has mercifully abandoned his search for the immaculate conception on Bosnia. He now seems to realize there is no policy for Bosnia that can miraculously roll back Serb aggression without risking an American life, reconcile the irreconcilable warring factions and unite Gandhi and Godzilla.

Gelb

So he finally appears to have gathered up his courage, ended his endless policy seminars and chosen among the unhappy choices.

Unless he has third thoughts, Clinton has decided to bomb Serb forces in Bosnia and arm the Muslims. But he will not act alone, nor should he. His advisers expect the allies to go along, more or less, grudgingly.

The President's proposed actions are mostly on target, as Serb "interest" in the current Athens peace parley shows.

But something critical is missing — a crystal-clear statement of sensible objectives. Without this, Clinton looks like he's drifting, allowing events to shape goals and simply making tactical decisions to blunt political pressures.

The omission of purpose could prove disastrous.

First, it creates the impression that Clinton doesn't know exactly what he's trying to accomplish. Conversations with administration officials do not inspire confidence on this score either. All too revealing and depressing, Secretary of State Warren Christopher's prepared statement on Saturday contained nothing about objectives.

From day one, the President and his team have been all over the lot about war and peace aims. At various times, they talked vaguely about bringing about a cease-fire, ending Serb aggression and supporting the Vance-Owen peace "process." Any one of which goals would demand massive military intervention.

Second, if Clinton fails to spell out his goals, others will do it for him, with potentially fatal effects. Already the void is being filled by military officers against U.S. intervention and legislators with politics on their minds. If the U.S. uses force, they say, the U.S. must win a lasting military victory.

When President George Bush dispatched U.S. troops to Somalia, no one argued they had to force the warlords to surrender. The idea was to give Somalis a chance to work out a more peaceful future. That aim was clear, sufficient and wise then, and now.

To insist on military victory in Bosnia would be catastrophic. Either it would drive the U.S. and others to pour hundreds of thousands of troops into battle in order to win, thus replaying Vietnam. Or it would make the reasonable use of limited force for limited and sensible ends look like failure. Either way, Clinton and the U.S. would lose.

In Bosnia, Clinton must not divorce ends from U.S. interests or allow means to dangle without ends.

U.S. interests in Bosnia are mainly humanitarian and regional. They are to save lives and deter the Serbs from igniting a wider Balkan war.

The ends sufficient to those interests are to protect innocent civilians from being slaughtered, to give Muslims a chance to defend themselves, and finally to punish Serb genocide and tame Serb ambitions. In time and with the proper application of force and economic sanctions, it would also be possible to seek a balance of power, a cease-fire and some kind of political settlement.

Candidates win with tactical deception

WASHINGTON — Roll Call newspaper has been covering Capitol Hill for 38 years, so by now it should be unshockable. Nevertheless, it is recoiling, and the entire political class should be, from the idea the Senate Rules Committee is entertaining concerning sexual harassment allegations against Oregon's Republican Senator Bob Packwood, who last November was elected to a fifth term.

Will

The idea is that Packwood should be unseated because he lied to The Washington Post and misled other media before the November election. "This claim," says Roll Call, "is so lame, so downright weird, that we can't believe a committee that has far better things to do is wasting more than eight seconds on it." Hush, Roll Call. This could be hilarious.

As Election Day neared, the Post, pursuing rumors long circulating here and in Oregon, was investigating allegations of sexual misconduct — aggressive and unwanted physical attention — by Packwood toward various women over a 20-year period. Shortly before Election Day he denied to the Post that he had behaved improperly. He allegedly misled Oregon media about the Post's investigation and he allegedly tried to discredit or intimidate some of his accusers.

Nineteen days after the election, which Packwood won by 78,000 votes and with a 52 percent margin, the Post published a lengthy documentation of the allegations. Packwood subsequently apologized for unspecified actions that were "just plain wrong."

The Constitution empowers each house to judge the elections and qualifications of its members, and to punish members, even with expulsion. Two clear grounds for exclusion or expulsion from either house would be treason, an offense against the safety of the nation (some members were expelled for allegiance to the Confederacy); or bribery, an offense against the integrity of government.

A third ground would be vote fraud, such as stuffing ballot boxes, rigging voting machines, registering ineligible voters — physical acts that assault the integrity of the democratic process. But the people petitioning the Rules Committee to unseat Packwood are arguing that he was not "duly elected." They want to expand the idea of election fraud beyond irregularities regarding the casting or counting of votes, to include the making of false statements or the omission of information by a candidate during a campaign that could have affected voters' decisions.

Well. It will be interesting to see which senator wants to be the first to cast that political stone at Packwood.

If the Senate vastly expands its activities as judge of who has and who has not been "duly elected" — who has conducted fully candid campaigns — it had better brace itself. There will be a flood of requests by losing candidates for reviews of the veracity and completeness of statements made by winning candidates.

It is just seven months since Bill Clinton ended the Democratic Party's presidential slump (five losses in the last six elections) with a campaign promise to lighten the middle-class tax burden and featuring many other remarkably perishable promises.

George Will's column is distributed by Washington Post Writers Group.

Graduates to suffer loss of all innocence

As I gaze down from the stage at the class of 1993, I am impressed by the fresh, eager faces wearing their caps and gowns with such pride. I wonder how long it will be before they lose their innocence in the real world they are about to enter.

Buchwald

Over to the left is Gail A. Levine, who intends to be an orthopedic surgeon. Not far away is Jeremy Barker who, as soon as he gets his law degree, will be suing Gail for malpractice.

Sitting two rows behind Jeremy is Janet Mapletree, who will sue Jeremy for sexual harassment.

On my right in the first row is Bill Ohle. Bill will soon discover that there's not much demand for a degree in Chaucer. So he will opt for Wall Street and single-handedly take over the Nabisco Company for $20 billion.

Just behind him, drinking champagne, is Chuck Coates, who's getting a B.A. in macroeconomics and has decided to live at home and sponge off his parents for the rest of his life.

Laughing it up in the eighth row is Lureen Darling, who has completed her course in the School of Public Administration. She will take a job in the State Licensing Bureau and will refuse to grant a permit to Robert Dolting, sitting next to her, for a sewer at his $30 million housing project — thus causing him to go bankrupt.

Reading a newspaper over there is Lionel Gray Horse, who will open a gambling casino on an Indian reservation in Northern California and offer a $5 million jackpot on the giant slot machine.

A few seats away is Arthur Donovan, slated to become a detective. In a few years time he will arrest Victor Thomas, seated in front of him, for laundering $500,000 in drug money from Colombia.

In a seat near the aisle is Alexandra Pelosi, who will be elected governor of California in 20 years by defeating George Healy, who once kidded her in the student union about her political ambitions.

What a wonderful class and how little they know about the outside world. Donald Brown, wearing a straw hat instead of a mortar board, is throwing spitballs at Walter Crater, never realizing that Crater will be in charge of IBM's economy drive in 1997 and will chop off Brown's head.

In spite of all the things the graduates will end up doing to each other, there are quite a few holding hands and obviously very much in love. These include Ringo Newman in the 10th row who keeps touching Sally Michaelson's knee. They will be married in a week, but they'll face stormy weather in five years when Sally joins the Navy and commands a mine sweeper, just to get out of the marriage.

Harvey Blumstein, playing Nintendo during the ceremony, will become a professor and remain on campus for 40 years, never leaving except to take his car out for an oil change and a lube job.

Finally, there is Fred Farnsworth, sitting at attention in the first row. He has no idea that in 10 years he will stick up a gas station. When asked why he did it, he will reply, "I didn't want to be late on my student loan payments to Uncle Sam."

Fighter pilot is frame of mind

I am a male non-chauvinist retired fighter pilot. That sounds like an oxymoron, but I just have an old-fashioned respect for womanhood which leads me to believe that women should not serve in combat so long as men are available for the job.

I was taught to fly by a female instructor in Corpus Christi in 1946. The lady, Pauline Glasson, is still instructing students in airplanes in 1993. In the air she is tough as a boot, but on the ground she is all silk and velvet. There are pilots who fly fighters and there are fighter pilots. Pauline would have made a helluva fighter pilot. It's a frame of mind, among other things. But despite my regard for her as a pilot, I wouldn't want her flying combat over enemy territory. Home air defense would be OK, if she were needed.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, et al, have the Hollywood view of the fighter pilot who bails out in the morning over southern England and gets another Spit to fight the Hun that afternoon. In the real world, that hasn't been possible since Pearl Harbor Day. Today, the fighter, recce or bomber pilot does his work over enemy territory, and a shootdown usually results in death or capture.

During World War I a POW might expect to be treated with some degree of humanity. In World War II the treatment varied from poor to diabolical, as in the Rape of Nankin. In Korea and Vietnmam it was a chamber of horrors. The Iraqis were bad enough and would have been worse had they not known they were subject to getting creamed by the good guys. We already know how women are being treated in Bosnia.

It's one thing to strive for equal rights for women — but it's quite another to expect equal treatment for them should they become a prisoner of war today.

I am well aware of the good work that women do in the military, but we shouldn't expect a daughter, wife, or mother to be subject to capture so long as there is one man left who can face the dangers instead. What will history say about a country that would even consider such an ungallant — or even cowardly — course of action?

The whole thing sounds like a ploy to pay back a special interest group, get even with tailhooker chauvinists, hector the military — and all thought up by a draft dodger who has it "decided" by a cabinet officer to take the blame in case it backfires.

U.S. believes China sent missile parts to Pakistan

WASHINGTON (NYT) — U.S. intelligence agencies have accumulated compelling evidence in the last four months that China has shipped missile parts to Pakistan in violation of its pledge not to export such technology, government officials said Wednesday.

The classified reports seem to conflict with the official American position that there is no proof that China has broken its promise. The reports, which have begun to circulate within Congress and the Clinton administration, could lead to an American decision not to renew China's beneficial trade status.

China's trade status, which comes up for renewal this year, has been repeatedly challenged by critics of Beijing's record on human rights and arms proliferation. President Clinton is said to be ambivalent on the issue, with some in the administration arguing that it is important to maintain good relations with China.

To maintain its trade benefits in the face of congressional criticism, Beijing promised the Bush administration in writing last year that it would honor an international treaty forbidding missile technology transfers. But the government officials said information obtained by intelligence agencies since the beginning of the year left little doubt that China was not living up to its assurance.

In particular, they said satellite photographs and other sources had provided the most solid indications to date that China has shipped components to Pakistan that have made it possible for technicians there to assemble their own version of the Chinese-made surface-to-surface M-11 missile.

The Clinton administration must decide by June 3 whether to recommend that China's most favored nation status be renewed. That decision is to be based on an assessment of Beijing's record on human rights and the spread of weapons, and administration officials said Wednesday that the new findings were being examined as a central step in that process.

Some administration officials said Wednesday that the new information may still fall short of the legal standard necessary to declare China in violation of the Missile Technology Control Regime. But other officials said they had found the reports persuasive and said they would be difficult for the Clinton administration to overlook.

A government official who said he had previously been unconvinced that China had violated its promises asserted that the new evidence was "as solid as can be."

Last year, President Bush vetoed legislation that would have linked China's trade status to its performance on the spread of weapons. But President Clinton, who criticized Bush for being too willing to tolerate Chinese misconduct, is facing powerful scrutiny from congressional Democrats who have urged him at minimum to resurrect that strict condition.

The CIA is expected to share the new information about China's missile transfers with members of the Senate Intelligence Committee next week at a closed hearing scheduled in preparation for congressional debate about Beijing's trade status.

The government officials who described the evidence in advance of that presentation insisted on anonymity, describing the findings as sensitive both for political and security reasons.

Peruvian troops grab rebel leader

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Soldiers have recaptured a high-ranking guerrilla leader in a northern jungle area after she twice broke out of confinement, the army said Wednesday.

The arrest of Lucero Cumpa was seen as a major blow to the leftist Tupac Amaru Revolutionary Movement, already weakened by divisions, arrests and desertions. The movement's chief, Victor Polayo, was captured in June 1992 and is serving life in prison, as is his lieutenant, Peter Cardenas.

Gen. Nicolas de Bari Hermoza, head of the joint chiefs of staff, said Ms. Cumpa headed a column of pro-Cuban fighters near the city of Tarapoto, where she was arrested Saturday. Tarapoto lies 380 miles north of Lima.

"This is a new and significant success in our actions against terrorist groups. It's a major setback" for the Tupac Amaru, Hermoza told reporters.

Security forces arrested Ms. Cumpa at a guerrilla house, Hermoza said. Also arrested was the movement's communications chief, Luz Cornejo, he said.

Gunmen ambush kills 4 officers, 5 injured

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Assailants surrounded a police truck and opened fire with AK-47 assault rifles, killing four black officers and wounding five others Wednesday.

Police combed the sprawling black township of Soweto for the killers.

A caller identifying himself as a member of the militant black Azanian People's Liberation Army said it staged the ambush, the second such claim made in the group's name this week. It opposes blacks negotiating with the white-minority government on installing a multiracial democracy.

The truck carrying 14 officers through Soweto, outside Johannesburg, was attacked when it stopped at a traffic light, police Maj. Herman Oosthuysen said.

Three policemen died at the scene and a policewoman died at a hospital, he said. Two of the five wounded were in critical condition.

"There was a lot of shooting,"

■ More world news/1D

Oosthuysen said. "We found at least 30 AK-47 cartridges at the scene."

A man calling himself Comrade Kaboko telephoned the South African Press Association and said five Azanian fighters attacked the police vehicle. He warned of more ambushes "until the land is restored to us."

Earlier in the week, another caller claiming to be an Azanian member said the group was responsible for an attack at a hotel bar that killed five whites Saturday night.

Both incidents were similar to previous attacks claimed by the group, which is the military wing of the radical Pan Africanist Congress.

Police are considered a prime target in the group's campaign. Militant blacks denounce black officers as collaborators with the apartheid system.

Blacks, who make up about half the police, account for the majority of those killed. A record 226 officers were killed on duty last year.

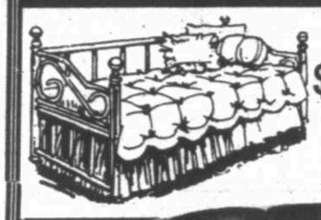

Fears of widespread violence and a possible race war have risen since the April 10 slaying of black leader Chris Hani — the popular leader of the South African Communist Party — allegedly by a white rightist.

Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1984 for his campaign against apartheid, said Wednesday that recent violence underlined the need for political groups to set a date for multiracial elections.

"If we don't, we really are in trouble," Tutu said.

Bus accident

A Midland woman was treated and released at Memorial Hospital and Medical Center following a two-vehicle accident involving a school bus Wednesday afternoon.

According to a police spokesman, the school bus, containing five children, was northbound on A Street when it ran a red light at the intersection at Wall Street. A van, driven by Haylie Marshall Urias, 22, was eastbound on Wall Avenue and struck the bus on the left side. Ms. Urias was transported to the hospital.

None of the five children on the Bus 505 — picked up from West Early Childhood Center — were injured, according to Wes Washam, director of transporation for Midland Independent School District.

Washam said a shuttle bus came and transported the children from the scene of the accident.

He said the bus has a slight dent and damage to the left rear tire.

Duke honors area students

■ Duke University will recognize four Midland students among the nation's brightest seventh-graders.

Staff report

Four Midland students are headed for a Duke University ceremony honoring their academic achievements.

The Duke University Talent Identification Program is sponsoring a Grand Recognition Ceremony to honor the nation's brightest seventh graders. Midland students tapped to attend the recognition ceremony are Goddard Junior High School students Micah Prude and Timothy O'Hara, and Trinity School students Brent Morgan and Laura Wilson.

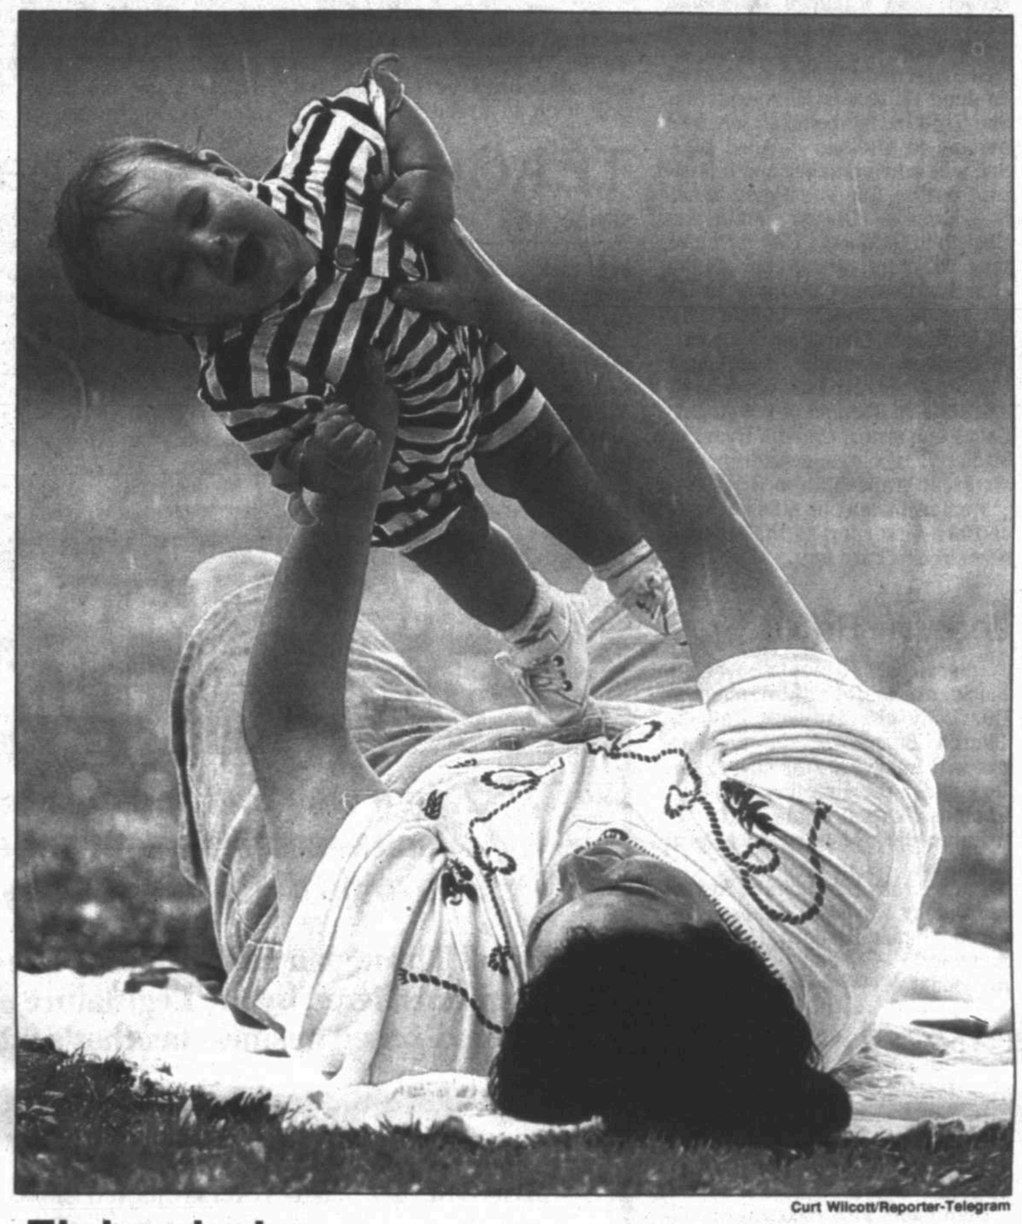

At Trinity School, a private school, 21 of the school's 29 seventh graders qualified for Duke's talent search program. Seventh graders from every junior high in Midland Independent School District also qualified.

Students must have scored in the 97th percentile or above on the national norms of the mathematics subtest, the verbal subtest, or the total composite of a standardized achievement, aptitude, or mental ability test battery to be eligible to participate in the Talent Search.

Students invited to represent their state at the ceremony earned scores on the SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) or the ACT (American College Testing) assessment higher than 65 percent of college-bound high school seniors. Of the almost 62,000 seventh graders participating in the talent search, only 2,173 qualified for this honor.

Other students who qualified to participate in the search from Trinity School are Heather Bartlett, Javon Clay, Courtney Cristiani, Will Crump, Sarah Gif-

Fire marshal offers electrical safety tips

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff writer

With the hot summer months approaching, electrical use will increase as will the danger if caution is not exercised.

Midland Assistant Fire Marshal Lon Dominguez offered some safety tips in recognition of National Electrical Safety Month.

Dominguez first advises to use electricity wisely and safely to avoid dangerous shocks, fires or explosions.

"When a fuse blows don't just replace the fuse. First, find out the cause of the problem and take care of it. There are a lot of older homes in Midland that use fuseboxes, so those people need to exercise caution," he said. "If you haven't fixed the problem, you could start a fire," he said.

He added that residents should keep a fresh supply of fuses on hand and never use a penny or a foil-wrapped fuse to bypass the fuse. He also emphasized using the same size fuse as a replacement.

Dominguez said since many of the older homes in the Tall City don't have central heat and air, the use of window air conditioning units will in-

Summertime sun rays can be soaked up safely

■ Living in the southern states increases the risk of skin cancer, as does having red or blond hair, blue or light-colored eyes and fair skin.

By Katherine Poteet
Staff writer

As the temperature begins its steady climb into summer digits, thoughts begin to turn to outside activities, such as lawn work, picnics, baseball games and sunbathing.

However, increased activity in the sun also means increased chances for heat-related emergencies and skin damage.

"It's so important to remember that at the first of the season, you burn very easily," said Barbara Sumner, interim manager for the Midland County Chapter of the American Red Cross. "You should wear a hat and a shirt. A lot of men think that by taking off their shirt, they are cooling off and

Parents eager to learn from bilingual teacher

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff writer

On Tuesday evening, Milam Elementary School took on a festive air as students, their siblings, parents, and grandparents gathered to file into Room 115.

While most of classrooms were closed for the night, the door to Felicitas Baesa's third grade classroom was propped wide open as entire families entered to take seats.

"It all started when some of my kids were not doing their homework," said Ms. Baesa, a bilingual teacher. "Part of the problem is that they said their parents couldn't help them."

While most of the students speak English in class, many of their parents speak only Spanish.

"The parents were intimidated by homework assignments given in English. I told them, just listening to your children is a skill in itself," Ms. Baesa said.

However, in order to help parents understand the assignments, and to offer them tips on motivating their offspring, the teacher volunteered to hold sessions in the evening to go over class assignments.

She expected to offer a few sessions in January and was completely taken aback by the response.

Entire families crowded into her classroom week after week, with many parents eager to learn along with their students.

"I never planned on it to be like this. Mostly mothers come, and some fathers. If the parents can't come, then they send older brothers and sisters. It's been very successful," she said.

It's been so successful in fact, the teacher said Milam principal Tom Miller once came in to see what was going on at the school one night when he saw so many trucks and cars parked in front of the campus.

"He thought it was a party or something," Ms. Baesa said, laughing.

The principal immediately became a supporter of the program.

"It's great for a teacher to go in on their own initiative and offer something like this," Miller said. "She is there every Tuesday teaching parents how to

Heroes achieve greatness in spite of humanness

Clay feet.

Why do our heroes and heroines, revered like statuesque Greek gods and goddesses, who also had their foibles, take on such common human failings years after the grave has claimed them?

Todd

Is it naive to wish for our heros to have aligned themselves with high-minded principles — principles that each of us admire but feel are almost unattainable or, if reached, cannot be sustained?

Indeed, what or who is a hero? And must heroes, like the most common of the common folk, have feet of clay.

Did Sam Houston's penchant for taking a snort detract from his legacy and power behind the Republic of Texas?

If George Washington really never did cut down that cherry tree and, therefore, had no cause to resist the temptation to lie about that deed, does that take away from his aura of honesty?

Is Winston Churchill's greatness diminished by his lust for tobacco and strong drink?

What about the emerging tales surrounding genius-statesman Thomas Jefferson messing around behind the wood pile?

And what if Ben Franklin had a gay ol' time in France? Was he not a phenomenal printer, politician-statesman and inventor?

And, now, look at Thomas Edison: brilliant and obsessed with invention. In today's age of personal analyses, do we dare criticize him for his obsession, his perseverance, to achieve technological marvels, such as the microphone, phonograph and the light bulb? Was he overly obsessed, an overachiever?

And what about those daredevil Wright brothers, Orville and Wilbur, who proved mankind's kinship with the birds by way of flying contraptions?

Hero or heroine: The object of our adoration is accorded with courage and strength of character. In American history, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, Robert E. Lee, Ulysses S.

TODD: Heroes achieve greatness

(From 1B)

Grant, John Wesley Powell, John James Audubon, Clara Barton, Susan B. Anthony, Mark Twain, Theodore Roosevelt, Sinclair Lewis, Charles Lindbergh, Amelia Earhart, Emily Dickinson, Babe Didrikson Zaharias, Eleanor Roosevelt, Marian Anderson, Albert Einstein, Mahalia Jackson, Chuck Yeager, Cole Porter, Marian Anderson, J. Frank Dobie, Robert Frost, Carl Sandburg, George Burns, and Martin Luther King can be lauded as national heroes, heroines, and treasures.

Heroes of the heart, those who have help shaped your life and character, may be your father, mother, uncle, aunt, brother, sister, neighbor, friend, teacher, preacher, coach, editor, mentor, or an old-timer out whittling and reflecting on life.

In today's bare-all, publicity-greedy society, in which smut television and pulp journalism have captured much of the nation's attention, it seems that success has been re-defined as fulfilled avarice: rich in greed and greedily rich.

More than the quest for success, it is wanton desire that has been linked to the luck of the lottery and to riches in entertainment: the high-dollar athletes and sportsmen, top-charted musicians, and come-and-go Hollywood stars.

Is it not pathetic greed when a lottery winner begrudges that he or she must share a $50-million jackpot with a baker's dozen of winners instead of claiming it all for himself or herself and the Internal Revenue Service?

But that distorted view of success, rather, riches, which is hardly heroism, is like the view of a workhorse fitted with blinders — very narrow in scope. It is pop art, like Andy Warhol's Campbell's soup label art: entertaining but no Rembrandt. It is imitation of imitation: the label, like the map, is not the thing.

Instant riches claim headlines and emulation: Overnight millionaires, who in Texas have one chance in 16 million to hit the Lotto jackpot, and athletes who promote sports wear, such as pump-up, shoes for big bucks.

So, today, who are our heroes? Do we have heroes? Or do we simply have idols? And if we do, who and why?

The popular broadcast and print media have set up for idolization, perhaps admiration of some, the likes of Madonna, Michael Jackson, Magic Johnson, Clint Eastwood, Norman Schwarzkopf, Robert De Niro, Arnold Schwarzenegger, and Mother Teresa.

No doubt, all have been blessed with superb talents. And except for the altruistic Mother Teresa and her blessed kind, many others have made much money off of their talents however well they may have been used and for what gain.

While historians and journalists may, from time to time, focus on the negative aspects, the frailties of character and the contradictions in speech and behavior, the discerning public should never forget that it is quite "human to err," as the Bard penned, and it is human to achieve greatness.

TEACHER: Parents learn assignments

help their students. It is a unique program which really encourages parent involvement."

Ms. Baesa allows that some teachers have cast a wary eye on a professional offering services without pay.

"My sons are grown and I have more time," she said, allowing that it would take away time most teachers spend with their families.

"These are my kids now and I have seen their self-esteem increase. They are more open and their parents have the confidence to come down to the school or call me when their is a problem."

The teacher said direct lines of communication between her and parents resulted, eliminating the problem of making a child a go-between.

"I don't have to say: 'Go ask your parent this,' and they don't have to come back and say: 'Well, my mom wants to know this,'" Ms. Baesa said.

"But most of all, my kids are more motivated, and I'm doing it for the kids. I see their improvement," she said."

The teacher said she will send out surveys to parents to analyze the program before deciding if she will offer it again, or in the same way.

FIRE: Official encourages electrical safety crease. He indicated that many of these units have three-pronged plugs and should be used with the correct outlet.

"Three-pronged grounding-type plugs should be inserted only into a three-pronged outlet or a grounded adaptor. Never cut off or bend the grounding pin of the plug. If you have a polarized plug, with one side wider than the other, never file it down or try to make it reversible," he said.

Also arriving with the warmer months is an increase in yardwork. Dominguez said care should be paid to the use of electrical power outdoors.

"Be careful. For permanent outdoor lighting, use only weatherproof outlets, cords and fixtures. Also make sure rooftop antennas are grounded and have lightning arresters."

When trimming tree branches, the groundskeeper should watch and stay away from power lines. Also, keep ladders, especially metal ones, away from wiring and power lines. Dominguez also urged people to be cautious while using electrically-powered tools in the yard.

"Don't use electrical appliances outdoors in wet weather. When using an electric weedeater, for example, make sure not to drag the cord through wet grass or water," he said.

He also encouraged checking to make sure hands and feet are dry before operating an electrical object.

Dominguez said electrical safety should be practiced year-round and offered the following tips.

"Make space for appliances, such as stoves and irons, away from furniture, curtains, bedding or towels. Also, give televisions, stereos and computers plenty of air-space so they won't overheat," he said.

Dominguez also encouraged calling a professional to replace any damaged cords or plugs. The same rule goes for frayed, cracked or hot wires. He said to remove the fuse or open the circuit breaker before unplugging the damaged cord or plug.

Cords also should be kept out of the path of traffic. Cords and wires should not be placed under carpet or rugs, because if the wires are damaged a fire could result.

Finally, Dominguez said children should be protected by placing plastic inserts for receptacle outlets not in use to keep children from putting anything, like a spoon, into an outlet and getting electrocuted.

SUN: Summertime can be safe

they're not."

Anyone who is going to spend time in the sun should drink plenty of liquids, adequately protect their skin from the sun's harmful rays and not overdo it.

"If someone feels dizzy or overheated, they should get out of the sun immediately," Ms. Sumner said. "Don't drink ice water, just cool tap water."

Prolonged time in the sun could lead to one of three heat emergencies: heat cramps, heat exhaustion or heat stroke.

"Cramps are the least dangerous and a stroke is the most dangerous," Ms. Sumner said.

A person experiencing heat exhaustion will have an increased body temperature and will feel hot, dizzy and disoriented. A person suffering heat stroke will not be sweating, but their body will be clammy to the touch. The person could also pass out.

For all three emergencies, Ms. Sumner said getting out of the sun and drinking a lot of liquids is the recommended course of action. However, for heat stroke, which can be life-threatening, cool, wet towels should be placed on the body in addition to drinking liquids. If the person passes out, medical help should be contacted immediately.

The most common way to overexposure to the sun is sunbathing, which not only leads to possible heat exhaustion and burns, but without proper protection, accelerates the possibility of skin cancer.

According to the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center in Houston, of the more than 700,000 new cases of skin cancer that are expected this year, about 90 percent could have been prevented by protection from the sun.

Living in the southern states increases the risk of skin cancer, as does having red or blond hair, blue or light-colored eyes and fair skin.

However, skin cancer can be prevented with adequate protection and a little common sense.

Ms. Sumner advises that anyone who is just starting to work on their tan use a sunscreen with a sun protection factor (SPF) of 15 or higher.

"At the first of the summer, use the higher number sunscreens," she said. "Then, as the skin becomes more tan, you can go to the lower numbers."

Sunscreen should be reapplied every 60 to 90 minutes, or after coming out of the water or perspiring heavily.

Ms. Sumner also said to remember to generously apply sunscreen to areas of the body that are not normally in the sun, such as the top of the feet, the ears, the back of the legs and the neck.

Sunbathers should avoid going out between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., when the sun's rays are the most intense.

Extreme sunburns can cause soreness, nausea, dizziness and blisters. Ms. Sumners said moisturizing cremes or aloe vera will not make the redness go away, but it will ease the skin's pain. However, if blisters occur, the person should get medical attention.

Child dies after being struck by van

Staff report

ODESSA — An Odessa girl died Wednesday due to injuries sustained when she was hit by a van Tuesday afternoon.

According to a police report, a white 1979 Ford Econoline van, driven by 42-year Alvarado Torres, was westbound in the 900 block of E. 18th at 5:28 p.m. Three-year-old Guadalupe Jeanette Tijerina was in the front yard of 921 E. 18th and ran south into the street in front of the van, the report stated. She was struck by the van and transported to Medical Center Hospital emergency room with a fractured skull and massive internal injuries, a hospital spokesman said.

Guadalupe was pronounced dead at 4:43 a.m. Wednesday at the hospital.

Torres was not injured.

No charges were expected to be filed in the case, police said.

Texas Can Solve the School Funding Problem

... in a way that satisfies the courts
... enhances the quality of education
... avoids big increases in your individual taxes.

How? Through a new proposal, one that has not previously been considered by the Legislature or the citizens of Texas — a broad-based business tax that's fair to all Texas taxpayers.

Now You Have A Choice

Last Saturday, Texas voters rejected the Robin Hood plan. Many Texans may now believe that one of four things is inevitable: closing of the schools on June 1; consolidation of school districts; paying for schools by increasing property taxes; or by creating a new personal income tax.

Not so!

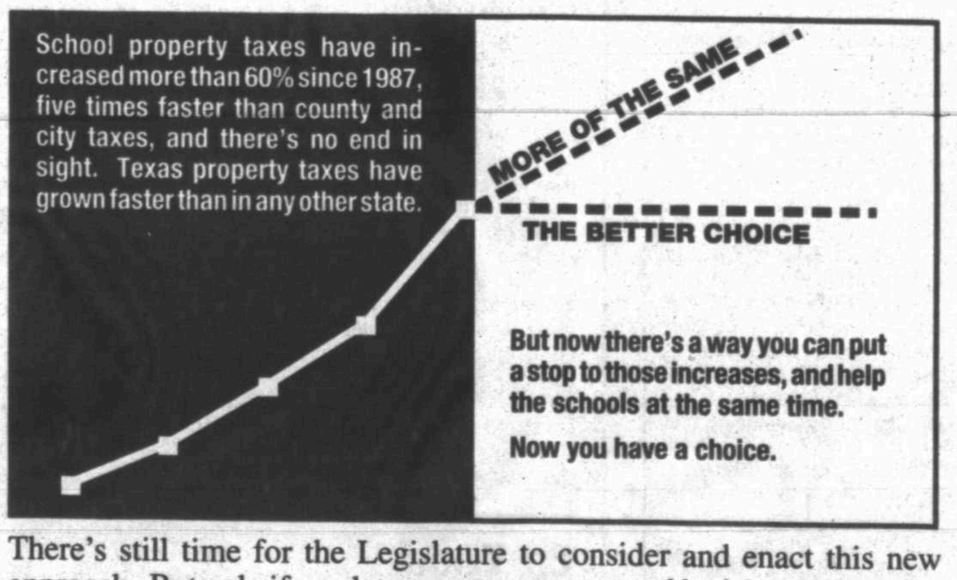

The choices are not limited to these alternatives.

The school funding crisis can be solved through a fresh approach:

- Without more increases in your property taxes;
- Without a personal income tax;
- Without sales tax increases, or other individual taxes; and
- Without school consolidation that would remove local control.

In other words, equity can be accomplished without increasing your personal tax burden.

Remember, you can stop the rise in school property taxes and solve the school funding problem ... with a long-lasting solution, not just another short-term fix of an old and obsolete system.

There's still time for the Legislature to consider and enact this new approach. But only if you let your state senator and legislator know you want a broad-based business tax to pay for the schools considered.

How can you help?

ALLIANCE FOR QUALITY EDUCATION

The Alliance for Quality Education is a business-led coalition supporting a long-lasting solution to the Texas school funding crisis. Our concept is simple: a broad-based business tax that companies pay in proportion to their economic activity in Texas. It has taken a lot of time and effort to refine this concept for Texas. In the days ahead we will be presenting the details of how our plan works. For now, though, we just wanted you to know there is an alternative.

Some relatives dispute psychiatrist's claims about cult children

HOUSTON (AP) — Ken Sonobe didn't want to be bothered Wednesday with questions about his grandchildren, and their life inside the Branch Davidian compound.

He had to get them to counseling, he said.

"I don't want to talk about it anymore. I'll leave it to the doctors to talk. I don't have anything new to say," said Sonobe, who lives in Hawaii. "I think that the doctors' word is good enough for me."

What the doctors have said is that the children inside the Mount Carmel compound had been subjected to harsh discipline and inappropriate sexual instruction.

Sonobe wouldn't say if he agreed with the findings, or how his 6-year-old and 3-year-old granddaughters were faring.

"They miss their Mommy and Daddy," was all he said before heading off to another appointment with a counselor.

Others with ties to the Branch Davidians were more willing to shoot down the findings of Dr. Bruce Perry, who led a team counseling the 21 children who left the compound during the standoff.

"A bunch of crap," said an aunt of David Koresh, the cult leader who is believed to have fathered the 17 children who perished April 19 when the cult's compound burst into flame.

"Those kids were not abused," she said, refusing to give her name. "They're just putting words in those kids mouths."

Government officials have said one of the reasons they moved to end the 51-day siege was because they were concerned some of the children were being abused.

Perry, a psychiatrist at Baylor College of Medicine said Tuesday the children were subjected to beatings with a wooden paddle for minor mishaps. But he stopped short of calling Koresh a child abuser.

Perry also said there were explicit sexual discussions in front of the children. He said the children knew the girls — as young as 11 or 12 — were considered sexual partners. But he would not call that knowledge abuse, only that it was "abusive."

A Houston attorney said Wednesday that some of the nine cult members who survived the inferno have told him the children were not abused.

Cult members, in jail interviews of through their attorneys, have frequently disputed many claims by authorities concerning the standoff.

"All I can tell you is I've talked to some of the survivors about child abuse, (and) they said they never saw any child abuse," said attorney Jack Zimmermann, who went inside the compound during the siege to discuss legal issues with the Branch Davidians.

"They (the survivors) saw mothers discipline their children," he said, adding that the cult members never used the word "beatings" to described the discipline.

"The term used was 'Christian discipline," Zimmermann said. "The children were taught the meaning of the word 'no.' ... Discipline is not abuse."

The 21 children are from nine families, said Stewart Davis, spokesman for the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services in Austin.

Six have been released to their parents. Ten have been placed with relatives and four remain in the Methodist Home child care center in Waco, and one in an alternate care center in Waco.

Jack Daniels, president of the Methodist Home, on Wednesday agreed with Perry's assessments of the children.

Maroon bluebonnets please researchers but not purists

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — The search for red and white bluebonnets to accompany the traditional blue flower in a sesquicentennial flag at the Capitol in 1986 just recently ended with the "screaming red" blossoms of about five plants in a field in San Antonio, officials said.

Along the way, researchers discovered hues from lavender to maroon.

The latter, which first appeared about four years ago, had Aggies "flipping," said Jerry Parsons, a horticulture specialist with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service in San Antonio who lead the search for the new colors.

Dubbed the "Aggie bluebonnet," the maroon flower is still in the developmental stages. It may or may not be put on the market, depending on how the research goes.

"What we're trying to do is stabilize that maroon so it will last longer," he said, noting that some colors are easily altered with weather and age.

Don Wilkerson, floriculturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M, said he is anxiously awaiting the new shade.

"We have selfish reasons for wanting a maroon bluebonnet... What could be more Brazos Valley or Texas than an Aggie bluebonnet?"

However, not all wildflower enthusiasts share the Aggie's sentiment.

Parsons said that while the maroon and other "unusual" shades exist naturally in the genetic structure of the bluebonnet, some people still think they are manmade.

The prospect of a pink or white or lavender bluebonnet makes some people "mad as hell," he said.

"God created these (colors). If you want to fuss with somebody, fuss with him."

Jury acquits driver blamed in accident

EDINBURG (AP) — A Coca-Cola trucker who blamed faulty brakes for a accident that killed 21 students in a school bus was acquitted Wednesday of criminal negligence charges.

Ruben Perez stood motionlessly as the judge read the jury's verdict, reached after three and a half hours of deliberations.

"Thank God everything is over and the truth is out," Perez said, fighting back tears.

About 30 family members and friends knelt and prayed in the courtroom after the verdict.

"Thank you for this wonderful verdict and now Ruben can get on with his life with maybe some sanity," said lead defense attorney Joseph Connor.

Perez said he's wanted to reach out to the victims' families since the day of the accident, when he learned so many died while being treated for head injuries at a hospital.

"My feelings were so much deep in myself," he said, speaking publicly for the first time since the September 1989 wreck. "The only thing I wanted to do was send flowers, to send anything for myself ...

"I wish some of them would talk to me now that the truth came out," he said in hushed monotones.

Prosecutors argued that Perez was inattentive behind the wheel of a tractor-trailer that passed a stop sign and knocked a school bus into a flooded caliche pit where the 21 victims drowned.

"Every intersection we can characterize as an accident waiting to happen. Of course they are — if we don't pay attention to the little red sign that says, 'Stop,'" Hidalgo County District Attorney Rene Guerra said in closing arguments.

The defense said Perez was being made scapegoat for an accident that could have happened to anyone.

"He didn't kill those children. That vehicle killed those children," Connors said.

Perez, 29, was charged with one count of criminally negligent homicide for each student who died.

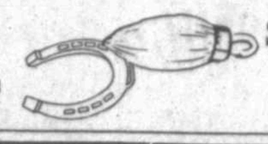

The defense urged the jury to blame Valley Coca-Cola Bottling Co., which owned the truck, and Blue Bird Body Co., which manufactured the Mission School District bus.

Lawsuits against Blue Bird alleged that its exits were poorly designed for emergency escapes.

Both companies paid multi-million-dollar settlements to the families of the dead students and the 60 who survived.

"Coca-Cola paid $133 million to cover up something. Blue Bird paid $23 million to cover up something," Connors said.

"Better brakes and there'd be no dead children. Better bus, there'd be no dead children," he added.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, MAY 6, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You find fresh sources of inspiration when you need them most. Although romance could have its ups and downs this summer, you and your partner will experience golden moments in September. The companionship of a child or parent is a special gift; treasure it. A legacy or promotion in November will mean new financial freedom. Early in 1994, building or buying a vacation home holds great appeal. Check a contractor's references.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: explorer Robert Peary, baseball legend Willie Mays, heartthrob Rudolph Valentino, rock star Bob Seger.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Both your mate and a close associate encourage you to take on new challenges. Settling financial questions will require a careful investigation. Singles find romance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): An emphasis on action motivates you to assert yourself. Organizing your home is also rewarding. Finish up old projects before beginning new ones.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Any irritation you or your partner feel can be handled sensibly, but it would help if you took the initiative. The company of someone you respect leads to a new spiritual awareness.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Speak your mind to the one you love. Avoid making accusations if you want a sympathetic hearing. Those lovers who have a private language find that it brings them closer together.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The power to do a great job is yours. You will enjoy cooperating on an important project. Someone expresses affection for you publicly. You may not be ready for a commitment, though.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Announcing the results of recent research leads to success. You think of faraway places. Have a serious money talk with the powers that be. Emphasize teamwork.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Extraordinary mental energy makes this a great day for studying and learning. You may decide to travel. Expressing resentment over old grievances could cause a dear one pain. Forgive and move on.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Try to remain calm in the face of a challenge. Imagination is more important than money when choosing a gift. Find out what your partner needs and do your best to supply it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Taking care of business promptly brings peace of mind. You feel impelled to tackle new tasks. Try to be more realistic about a romantic relationship.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Greater authority will soon be yours. Use it wisely. Your efforts to help a friend could lead to charges of favoritism. Keep all business arrangements strictly aboveboard.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A bit of conflict in the work atmosphere need not spark animosity. Offer your services as a mediator. A budget revision helps relieve stress.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Household or community affairs capture your attention. As love grows stronger, some of you think about making a permanent commitment. Family members will applaud a decision.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are born skeptics who must see something to believe it. They love to discover things for themselves and will be especially happy exploring the great outdoors. Give these headstrong children plenty of support and appeal to their better nature. Uninterested in fashion, these Taureans may need to spruce up their appearance. Innovative and practical, they are especially suited for the world of commerce.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Two of ♣

There is nothing that the average player likes more, yet is viewed with disdain by the expert, than the simple finesse. Make it a two-way finesse and matters change. While ordinary mortals flounder, the star seldom goes wrong. Here's why.

The auction started off routinely with a one-no-trump opening bid and a two-club inquiry for major suits. East seized the opportunity to double, showing a club suit. That did not stop South from introducing hearts and North was full value for the raise to game.

West dutifully led a low club. East cashed the king and ace, then shifted to a spade. Declarer, the great Italian star Benito Garozzo, won in hand, forced out the ace of trumps to complete the defensive book, won the spade return in hand and now was faced with the problem of bringing in the diamond suit without losing a trick to the queen.

If John or Jane Doe was at the helm of this hand, they would probably be engaging in a lot of heavenward gazing, some heavy sighing and then a guess. Garozzo did better.

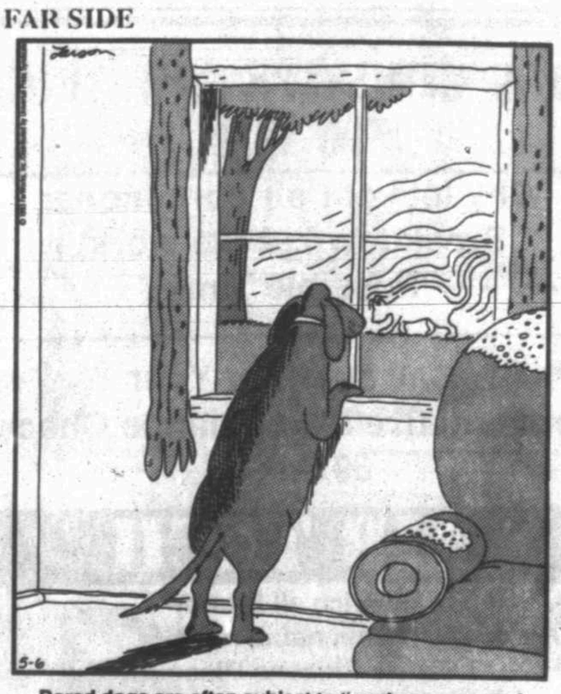

After first drawing trumps and noting East's discard on the third round, Garozzo cashed the ace of spades, fetching another club from East. The count of the hand was now complete.

East had shown only four cards in the major suits and, since the lead had marked West with at least three clubs, no more than six clubs. Therefore, East had to hold three or more diamonds and was a favorite to have the queen. So South cashed the king and ran the ten to land the game.

Actor Jaye Davidson puts end to secret of 'Crying Game' film

NEW YORK — Actor Jaye Davidson, who was at the center of the mystery twist in the film "The Crying Game," has put an end to the secret himself.

Davidson, who dressed as a woman in the movie, has posed for a black-and-white Gap ad in a sleeveless denim shirt that is left unbuttoned to the waist. The ad copy identifies the cross-dresser only as a "performer."

The ad was photographed by Annie Leibovitz last December when interest in the film, and its secret twist, was at its peak.

The ad appears in the May 7 issue of Entertainment Weekly and the May 10 issue of The New Yorker.

WASHINGTON — Actress Jessica Lange lent her name Wednesday to congressional efforts to deny Romania favored trade status unless it improves the plight of thousands of orphans.

Lange

Lange spoke at a news conference in a House office building at which Rep. Bart Gordon, D-Tenn., sought to broaden support for legislation linking preferred trade status for Romania with efforts to help the orphans.

An estimated 80,000 Romanian children are warehoused in orphanages, often under substandard conditions.

Lange said that during a recent visit, she failed in efforts to bring out a a 5-year-old girl who has been blind from birth.

"When I first walked into this institution my emotions evaporated in the midst of this unbelievable humanity," she said.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Singer-songwriter Alan Jackson has been honored by the Country Music Association with a Triple Play Award for writing three No. 1 songs last year.

The songs were, "Better Class of Losers," "Dallas" and "Midnight in Montgomery." Jackson recorded "Dallas" and "Midnight in Montgomery" and Randy Travis recorded "Better Class of Losers."

Jackson was among 15 songwriters given plaques Tuesday commemorating Triple Play Awards.

CHICAGO — Conductor Daniel Barenboim has canceled his appearances with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and the Civic Orchestra of Chicago this week because of illness.

The 50-year-old CSO music director is suffering from severe bronchitis and an upper respiratory virus. His doctor prescribed the time off.

James Paul, conductor of the Baton Rouge Symphony, will replace Barenboim at CSO concerts on Thursday and Saturday nights.

CSO assistant conductor Michael Morgan will replace him at Sunday's Civic Orchestra concert.

Barenboim could be back next week, said spokeswoman Joyce Idema.

NEW PORT RICHEY, Fla. — The ex-wife of country music star David Bellamy wants a new divorce settlement, saying Bellamy's attorney violated ethical rules.

At a hearing Tuesday, Janet Bellamy's attorney, Ann Kerr, asked a judge to disqualify attorney Glen Greenfelder, a retroactive move that could nullify the couple's 1990 divorce agreement.

That agreement gives Mrs. Bellamy a lump sum of $180,000, plus money to care for the house she was living in at the family ranch near Dade City. She also is fighting for custody of the couple's five sons, ages 3 to 14.

ATLANTA — Michael Jackson had a front row seat at a concert Wednesday night sponsored by Jimmy Carter project's anti-poverty program, but refused to perform despite audience chants of "We want Michael!"

Jackson came on stage only at the end to wave while the audience of about 10,000 joined in a rendition of Jackson's hit, "Heal the World," performed by local singers. Earlier, the crowd had chanted, "We Want Michael! We want Michael . . . ."

The concert was sponsored by the Atlanta Project, former President Jimmy Carter's program to combat poverty and social ills in inner-city Atlanta.

LOS ANGELES — Tracey Gold, who left the TV series "Growing Pains" because of anorexia, said she is recovering from the eating disorder that left her skeleton-thin and in fear of dying.

Gold, 23, said she saw similarities between herself and "pictures of people that I've seen die of anorexia. So that's what scared me. I saw myself actually dying of it."

In an interview with ABC's "PrimeTime Live" airing Thursday, she said she became a frail skeleton who bruised constantly. The 5-foot-3 actress, at one point, dropped to well under 100 pounds.

Producers of the sitcom "Growing Pains" asked her to leave the show and seek help when she shrunk to a size one dress, her blood pressure plunged and she contracted bronchitis.

House tentatively approves bill to allow hunting in state parks

AUSTIN (AP) — Visions of fathers and sons denied the chance to hunt went up against the specter of a child camper dodging bullets during House debate Wednesday on a bill to allow more hunting in state parks.

The hunters won — with provisions that also would open more wildlife areas to what Rep. Allen Hightower called the "bird-watchers" and "tree-huggers."

And the executive director of the Parks and Wildlife Department, Andrew Sansom, said campers have nothing to fear.

The bill by Hightower, D-Huntsville, already has passed the Senate and was given preliminary House approval with a vote of 95-40. If passed by the House in another vote, the measure returns to senators for consideration of House amendments.

"There are thousands and thousands of people in this state, fathers and sons, that do not have a place to hunt," said Hightower, citing those who can't afford the cost of a deer lease and haven't been selected under the current system of hunting in state parks.

There were about 15,000 applications in fiscal year 1993 for such public hunts, authorized by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission in 20 of the state's 135 state parks, according to the House Research Organization. There were 1,650 permits granted.

> 'There are thousands and thousands of people in this state, fathers and sons, that do not have a place to hunt.'
> — Rep. Allen Hightower

Rep. Al Granoff, D-Dallas, unsuccessfully pushed an amendment to prevent hunting within a mile of campsites, hiking trails, bird-watching areas and similar locations.

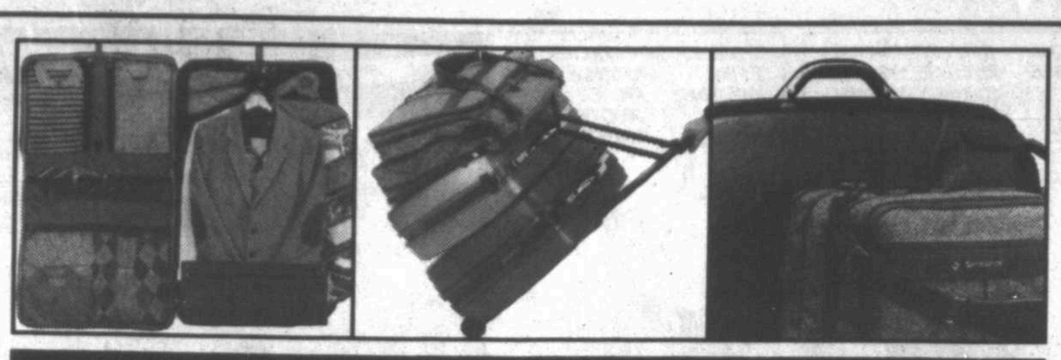

He said that's about the distance a bullet flies, so his measure would ensure that it wouldn't "hit the head of a small child on a camping trip."

But Sansom said that wouldn't happen. "What I think you're going to see is hunting will not occur in a park at a time in which there are any other people in the park," he said after the House vote.

Granoff said the measure would hurt tourism and Texas' economy, while making parks the "private preserve" of hunters when they are there. "When the hunters go in, everybody else has got to clear out," he said.

Sansom said that hunts probably would continue to average about five days a year, when other use of parks is light.

Hightower said that hunting is better than allowing deer that have overpopulated an area "basically to lay down and die of starvation." But others said the commission now can address overpopulation.

UIL ruling

AUSTIN — The University of Interscholastic League has stripped the Conroe McCullough High School girls' swimming program of its 1992 state championship for rules violations. Humble Kingwood High School was crowned the new state champion.

The UIL's state executive committee ruled Wednesday that Conroe McCullough allowed a swimmer to compete in three relay events during the 1992 state meet. Rules allow a student to participate in only two relay events in one meet.

Because Conroe McCullough was forced to forfeit its victory in the 400-yard freestyle relay, it lost 32 points in the team standings, making Humble Kingwood the champion.

Stars tickets

DALLAS — The Dallas Stars on Wednesday launched a season ticket campaign for the club's first season since departing Minnesota.

The club, along with the Dallas Mavericks, announced it would refurbish all seats at Reunion Arena in time for the 1993-94 hockey season in October.

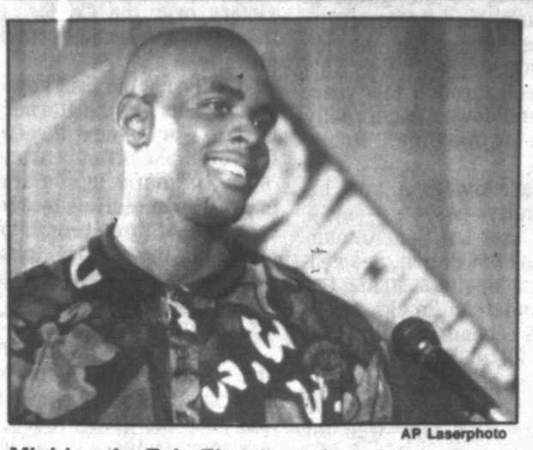

Brochures outlining different season ticket options were mailed to residents who reserved space via a hotline when Green was gauging fan interest in bringing professional hockey to Texas.

Ticket prices for Stars home games will range from $9.50 to $50.

Michigan's Fab Five is reduced by one as Chris Webber, above, decides to go pro.

Webber turns to NBA

■ Michigan's Chris Webber foregoes his final two years of college basketball.

Associated Press

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Chris Webber, an All-American who led Michigan to the NCAA championship game for two consecutive years, said Wednesday he will skip his final two years of eligibility to enter the NBA draft.

"Not winning a college championship makes leaving hard to do, but that's not going to make or break me," Webber said at a news conference, where he was joined by his family and Michigan coach Steve Fisher.

"It's a decision I felt was necessary for me to keep moving and move on. There's no doubt in my mind that I'm ready for the next level."

Webber, whose illegal timeout call with 11 seconds to play cost Michigan a last chance to win the NCAA title, was a part of the Fab Five recruiting class considered one of the best in college basketball history.

Michigan lost to Duke in the 1992 title game and to North Carolina this year, but Webber said he has no regrets about his college career.

"I learned how to be patient," he said. "I learned how

Spurs go one up on Blazers

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — San Antonio Spurs coach John Lucas had declared Game 3 against the Portland Trail Blazers a must-win battle.

■ NBA Playoffs

Willie Anderson, still recovering from injuries to both legs, answered his call, scoring 13 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter and sparking a 107-101 come-from-behind victory Wednesday night.

"I'm not jumping and dunking and slicing like I used to, but it's just good to be out there playing," said Anderson, who had surgery last year to repair stress fractures to both legs.

The victory gave San Antonio a 2-1 edge over Portland in their best-of-5 Western Conference playoff series. This marks the first time the Trail Blazers have trailed in the first round since they were eliminated by the Los Angeles Lakers 3-0 in 1989.

"This was a big one for us," Lucas said. "They're an awfully good basketball team. I can see why they've been to two finals."

The two teams face each other again for Game 4 Friday night at San Antonio.

NCAA set to rule on Schultz case

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The NCAA will rule today if executive director Dick Schultz participated in an improper loan program at the Univerity of Virginia.

Schultz, athletic director at Virginia from 1981-87, denies any knowledge of a program in which athletes received no-interest loans in violation of NCAA rules.

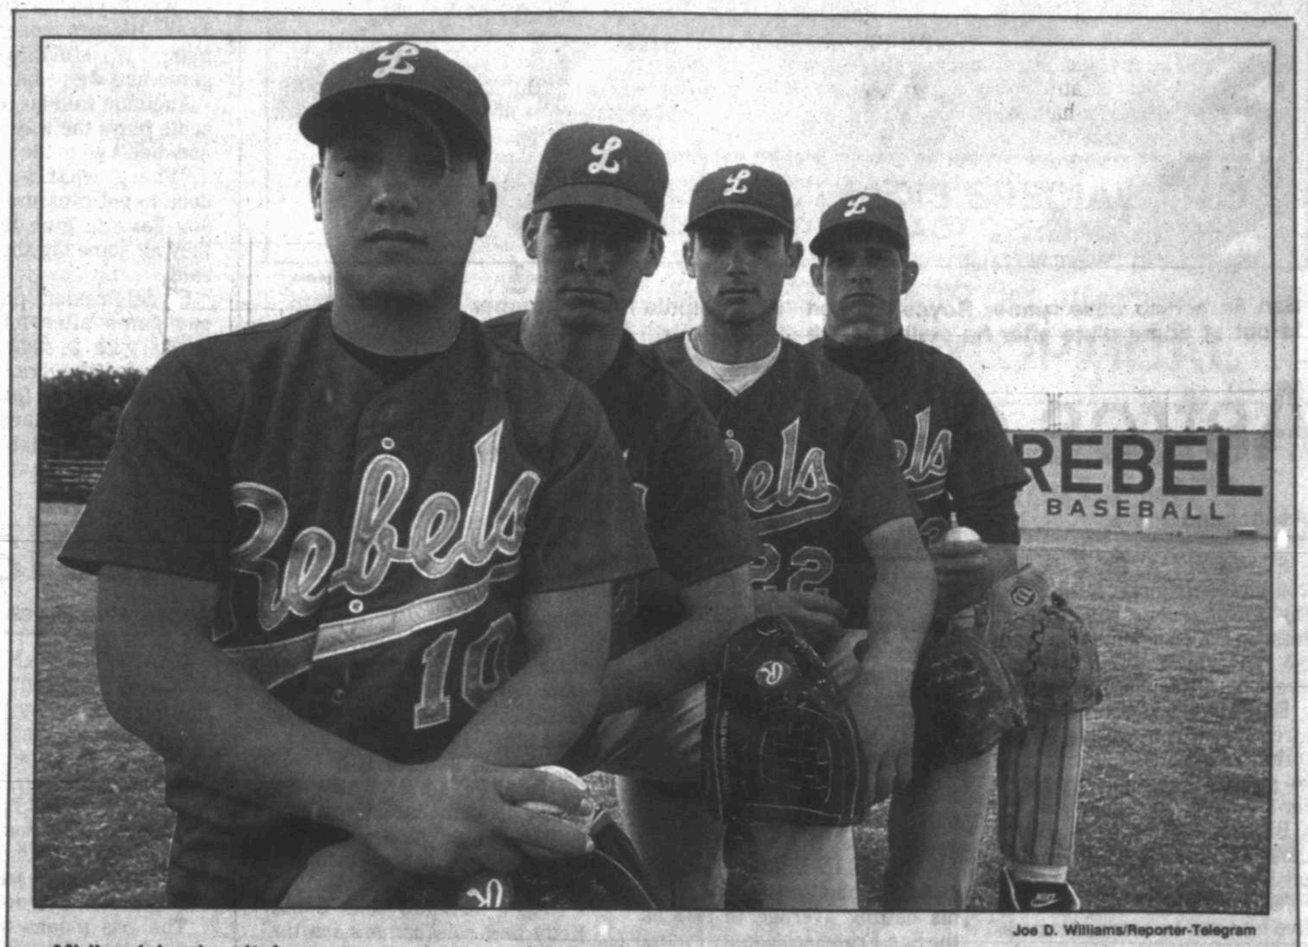

After meeting with the NCAA's Infractions Committee a second time last weekend, he said he could not predict if he will be exonerated.

"It depends on who you want to believe," Schultz told The Associated Press.

The NCAA called a news conference for 9 a.m. CDT today. Next to act, if Schultz is not cleared, would be the NCAA's Executive Committee and Joint Policy Board, the NCAA groups with supervisory powers over the executive director.

If the committee finds Schultz culpa-

Midland Lee's pitchers are a strong point for the 1993 Rebels. They are, from front to back, senior Brian Cordova, senior Kirk Ulrich, junior Alex Hale and senior Jason Baker.

Reb pitchers a hit

■ Arms are one of the reasons Midland Lee has legged into the playoffs.

By Bill Price
Staff writer

Midland Lee's pitch men don't want to sell you a used car. Nor do they go door to door peddling magazines or life insurance. All they do is record outs.

Coming into the 1993 high school baseball season, the Rebels fully expected to have a strong and deep pitching staff. And even after senior Julian Urquidez, who has 15 career wins for Lee, broke his foot and was lost for the season after posting a 5-1 record, the Lee hurlers kept on rolling.

The playoff-bound Rebels, who open the postseason in a best-of-3 series beginning Friday against Lubbock Coronado in Lubbock, compiled a 2.91 ERA in District 4-5A competition on their way to a 23-5 overall record.

The highlights include a 12-game winning streak, Kirk Ulrich's 13-strikeout one-hitter in an 8-0 win over Odessa Permian, and Jason Baker's one earned run performance against Abilene Cooper in a 2-1 district playoff loss last Saturday.

Ulrich, Baker and Brian Cordova are all seniors while Alex Hale is a junior. They are all righthanders.

Seles vows on return to tennis

Associated Press

VAIL, Colo. — Monica Seles vowed Wednesday to return to tennis stronger than ever, though she acknowledged she will be thinking "about the guy behind me: What are his intentions?"

Seles winced at the raw pain she felt even from leaning back in a chair, and she bolted forward to relieve the pressure on the still open stab wound between her left shoulder blade and her spine.

Her left arm, the one she used to power some of the hardest serves in women's tennis and become No. 1, hung limp and immobile at her side as she spoke publicly Wednesday for the first time since her attack in Hamburg, Germany, five days earlier.

Except for that one aching moment when she sat down, Seles smiled and spoke evenly about her ordeal, seeming neither traumatized nor depressed, though she worried about flashbacks in the future and the security of all athletes.

She said she didn't recall seeing her German assailant before, and hasn't watched the videotape of the attack, but she's since heard that he might have been stalking her for a long time.

"All I've seen of his face is just this one second when I felt his knife going up," she said, expressing no anger or bitterness over the incident, but rather an acceptance of her situation.

She's put out of her mind any anguish over missing the Italian Open this week, the French Open in 2 1-2 weeks, probably Wimbledon in June and possi-

4-5A kicks football out of spotlight

Williamson

Wherever you go across the state (and I've even heard of it in the far reaches of Florida), someone will bring up District 4-5A football when they find out where you live.

District 4-5A has a reputation — for football. But you don't hear much about our other sports.

In fact, at the Region I track, golf and tennis competition in Lubbock Friday and Saturday, the inevitable questions would arise, "How good is Permian going to be in football?" "Will Lee make it back to the (football understood) playoffs this year?" "I hear Odessa High might be pretty good (football understood) this year. What do you think?"

However, last weekend in Lubbock went a long way toward spreading that image to other sports.

The district had a field day in Lubbock. Let's consider some facts.

Odessa Permian won the Region I boys track championship. Abilene High won the girls Region I track championship. The district also landed 17 of 64 possible state track berths. That's 28 percent of the state berths belonging to one district. District 4-5A also had champions in nine events, including six from Permian alone.

Region I track winners included Permian's Kendrick Parrett in both hurdle events, Gerrod Bergen in the 100, Lavorick Robinson in the 200 and two relay entries. Lee swept the shot put titles with Scott McLeod and Tanisha Mills. Mills was also second in the 400, the event she won region and state titles in last year. And San Angelo's Vanessa Garcia won the high jump.

It didn't stop there. 4-5A also won three of four Region I tennis titles with San Angelo's Bradlee Holland taking boys singles, Abilene Cooper's John Cole and David Robinson winning boys doubles and Abilene High's Mandy Peoples and Chelsela Gonzales taking girls doubles. In addition, the district qualified for five of the eight Region I state tennis berths, including Midland High's boys doubles team of Kevin McIlvain and Allan Neighbors.

Want more? The District 4-5A girls golfers won both Region I team state berths and both medalist slots. Abilene Cooper sophomore April DeVries won the medalist title over Lee's Paula King.

The shutout came in boys golf where the district did not gain state entry, but Lee was competitive and in the hunt for one of the top two spots. But how much can you ask the district for in one weekend of work?

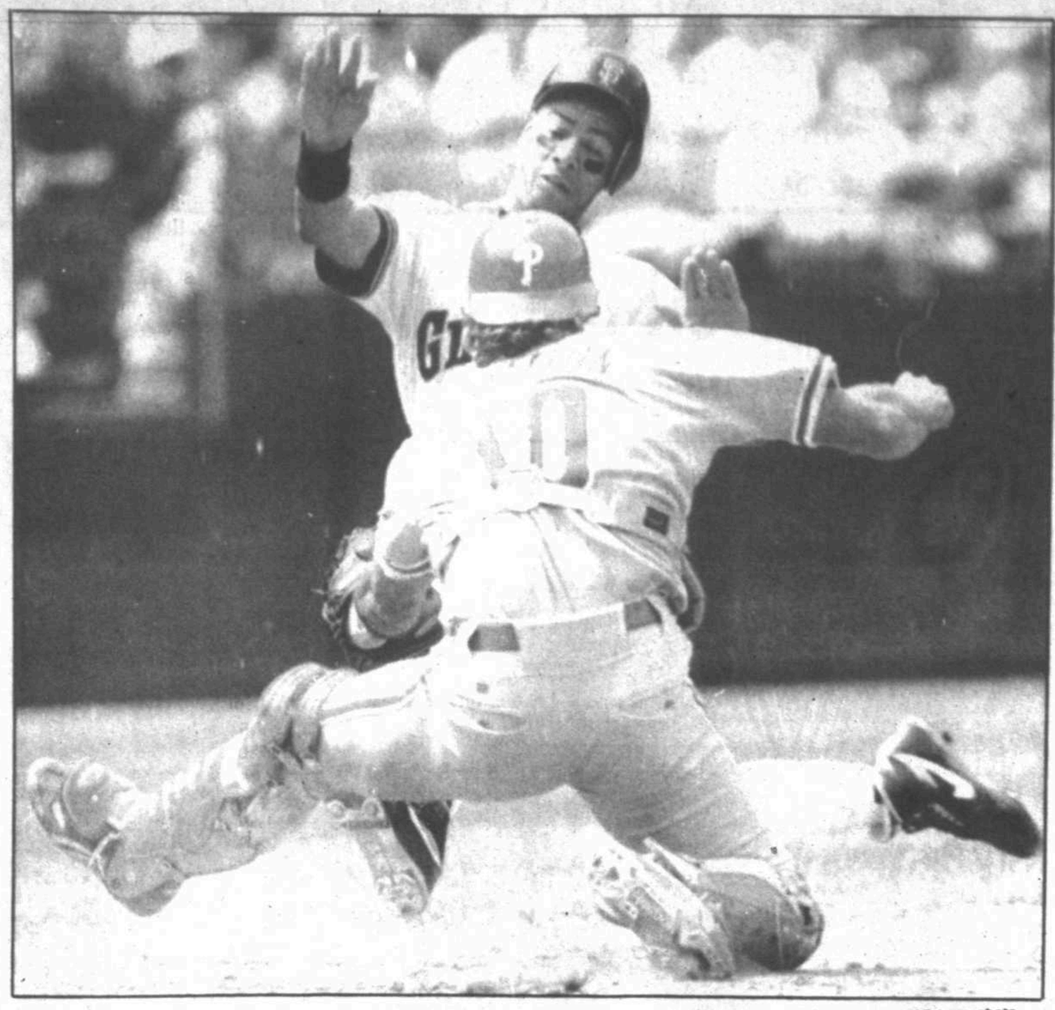

If you would like to take one step back to February, Midland High swept Region I titles in both girls and boys swimming.

The bottom line is that the district is rock solid in a lot of sports and all of the schools contributed. Every school in the league will have state representatives next weekend in Austin and there is good evidence that some state titles are on the way.

Permian has a legitimate shot at winning the state team title in boys track. The Lee and Cooper girls are solid contenders in golf, and tennis, too, could see a state champion named in one or two events.

We won't even try to contest the fact that 4-5A is the King in football. In fact, we love the notoriety, but let's not forget that old 4-5A ain't too shabby across the sports board. Before the weekend was over, 4-5A football was put aside by West Texas — until about Aug. 4.

Terry Williamson is sports editor of the Reporter-Telegram.

Astros drop Cards, 6-3

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Craig Biggio continued his torrid hitting, going 4-for-4 with a homer while leading the Houston Astros to a 6-3 victory Wednesday night over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Biggio has a six-game hitting streak in which he has batted .619 (13-for-21). He's hit in 13 of 14 games, averaging .423 (22-for-52) over that span.

Biggio's four-hit game tied a career high he has accomplished four times.

Mark Portugal (3-2) allowed five hits and two earned runs in 5 1-3 innings for the Astros, who are 9-4 on the road. Doug Jones pitched a scoreless ninth for his fifth save.

Cubs 3, Rockies 2

CHICAGO — Steve Buechele homered and Ryne Sandberg hit a pair of sacrifice flies to make up for his first throwing error in three years, leading the Chicago Cubs to a victory over the Colorado Rockies.

Buechele homered in the fourth inning off Armando Reynoso (1-1) to snap a 1-1 tie and put the Cubs ahead to stay. It extended his hitting streak to 13 games, longest in the National League this season.

Greg Hibbard (2-2) gave up

five hits in eight innings for his first victory since April 12. Randy Myers pitched the ninth for his eighth save.

Sandberg's first sacrifice fly came in the first inning after Joe Vizcaino and Mark Grace singled. He hit another in the fifth after Dwight Smith doubled and moved to third on a balk.

Giants 11, Phillies 2

SAN FRANCISCO — Barry Bonds went 4-for-4 to increase his batting average to .432 as the San Francisco Giants routed the Philadelphia Phillies in a matchup of NL division leaders.

The Giants also got a big game from Royce Clayton, who hit a three-run triple and drove in a career-high five runs.

Bonds knocked in a run and had two doubles. He leads the league in average, RBIs (29) and is second with eight home runs to teammate Matt Williams.

Bill Swift (3-1) pitched seven innings for the victory. He allowed eight hits with four strikeouts and two walks.

Pirates 4 Braves 1

PITTSBURGH — Jeff King drove in three runs, and Bob Walk continued to frustrate the Atlanta Braves in Pittsburgh, pitching one-run ball over seven innings and adding a key double.

The Pirates had lost four of their previous five games and were in danger of falling two games under .500 for the first time since 1989.

Reds 6, Marlins 2

MIAMI — Tom Browning continued his comeback from knee surgery by pitching six strong innings, helping the Cincinnati Reds beat the Florida Marlins.

Reggie Sanders and Bobby Kelly had solo homers for the Reds, who took advantage of wildness by Ryan Bowen (2-3) to score four runs in the fourth inning.

Browning (2-2), who sustained a season-ending knee injury last July 1, turned in his second consecutive strong start and lowered his ERA from 9.64 to 7.65.

Expos 6, Padres 5

MONTREAL — Larry Walker's second RBI double of the game scored Marquis Grissom in the bottom of the ninth inning, and the Montreal Expos beat the San Diego Padres.

Grissom hit a one-out single and scored all the way from first on Walker's double to the left-field corner.

Rangers thump Jays, 7-1

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — First baseman John Olerud made back-to-back fielding errors in the sixth inning Wednesday night, leading to four unearned runs as the Texas Rangers beat the Toronto Blue Jays 7-1.

With the bases loaded and the score tied 1-1, David Hulse hit a grounder that scooted through Olerud's legs to score two runs. Dean Palmer doubled and Ivan Rodriguez singled before the error.

Three pitches later, Julio Franco hit a grounder to Olerud's right with the ball glancing off his glove. Manuel Lee, who walked with two outs, and Hulse both scored on the second error.

Olerud, who made a third error in the eighth inning to tie a club record, had one error in 25 games going into the game. Willie Upshaw also made three errors for Toronto at first base in 1986.

Texas starter Kenny Rogers (3-1) gave up five hits and one run in eight innings, fanning eight to improve to 4-0 lifetime against the Blue Jays. Todd Burns finished.

Jose Canseco hit a solo homer in the third inning for Texas, extending his hitting streak to eight games. Canseco has 14 hits in 33 at-bats during the stretch (.424) with five doubles, a triple, three homers and 11 RBIs.

Royals 4, Tigers 3

DETROIT — Harvey Pulliam hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning, giving Kansas City a victory over Detroit.

The loss was the first in six starts for Detroit's David Wells (4-1), who allowed four runs on only five hits in eight innings.

With the Tigers leading 3-2, Brian McRae hit a two-out single, went to third when Wells threw wild on a pickoff attempt at first, then scored on Pulliam's first home run since Aug. 27, 1991. Pulliam's homer landed in the lower deck in left, just inside the foul pole.

Jeff Montgomery (2-1), the fourth Kansas City pitcher to work in the seventh inning, finished up and got the victory.

Orioles 3, Twins 0

MINNEAPOLIS — Mike Mussina pitched a two-hitter and shut out Minnesota for the second time in a week as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Twins.

The Orioles, trying to overcome a terrible start, have won five of seven games but are still last in the AL East at 10-15.

It was the sixth major league shutout and 12th career complete game for Mussina (4-1), who has recorded the Orioles' last four shutouts. Mussina's only loss in 12 decisions since last Aug. 21 came in this season's debut. His five-hitter beat the Twins 11-0 at Baltimore last Thursday.

White Sox 3, Brewers 1

MILWAUKEE — Robin Ventura homered in the ninth inning and Steve Sax made a run-saving catch in the eighth, helping the Chicago White Sox beat the Milwaukee Brewers.

Ventura homered off Jesse Orosco (0-2) to break a 1-1 tie. Chicago got another run on Sax's double and an RBI single by Craig Grebeck.

Scott Radinsky (1-0) retired two batters in the eighth for the win, and Roberto Hernandez struck out the side in the ninth for his fourth save.

Indians 3, Mariners 2

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Indians won their fifth straight game, beating the Seattle Mariners as Mike Bielecki got the better of an unlikely pitching duel with rookie John Cummings.

Bielecki (3-2) entered the game with a 6.41 ERA, but held the Mariners scoreless until Rich Amaral chased him with a two-out homer in the seventh.

Red Sox 3, Athletics 1

BOSTON — Ivan Calderon, slumping much of the season but playing because of Andre Dawson's knee injury, drove in two runs with a single and a triple, giving the Boston Red Sox a victory against the Oakland Athletics.

The hits gave Calderon four in five at-bats after he managed just three hits in his previous 24.

Angels 6, Yankees 2

NEW YORK — Gary DiSarcina hit a three-run homer and the California Angels snapped a five-game losing streak by beating the New York Yankees.

John Farrell (2-3), who missed all of the last two seasons due to elbow surgery, held the Yankees scoreless on three hits until Kevin Maas hit his third homer and second in two nights, a solo shot in the seventh.

NBA: Hornets win playoff series

(From 1C)

David Robinson led the Spurs with 26 points and 14 rebounds and hit a crucial field goal with 49 seconds remaining in the game to push the Spurs' lead to 104-101.

"We're really getting the job done, I think all the things this team has been through this year, all the ups and downs, have really prepared us for this time," Robinson said.

But it was Anderson and his three consecutive baskets — one a 3-pointer — that led San Antonio back from an 87-80 deficit. Sean Elliott also hit a 3-pointer during the run, and Anderson made a key steal with 19 seconds to play.

"The key for us were the back-to-back three-pointers by Willie and Sean," Lucas said. "But we had so many guys play well for us."

Portland did not score at all the final 3:05 of the game.

"We played our tails off," said Trail Blazers coach Rick Adelman. "We still have to win one game and we're back in it."

Adelman said his team didn't execute plays the way it should have and didn't go to the basket enough.

"That's what we should have done to put pressure on them. But you have to give them credit — they hit some big shots," Adelman said.

Clyde Drexler, playing his second game after missing several weeks with a strained left hamstring, led the Trail Blazers with 19 points. That followed his 21-point effort in Saturday's Portland victory, marking his first extensive playing time in a month.

Hornets 104, Celtics 103

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Alonzo Mourning's top-of-the-key jumper with 0.4 seconds left ruined a fourth-quarter Boston comeback and gave the Charlotte Hornets a victory over the Celtics, moving them into the second round of the playoffs.

After losing the first game of the best-of-5 series, the Hornets came back to win the next three in their first-ever playoff appearance.

The dramatic loss marked the end of Kevin McHale's 13-year career. One of three remaining players from the Celtics' championship teams of the 1980s, McHale was reduced to a reserve role in his 71 games this year.

McHale finished with 19 points and six rebounds. Mourning and several Hornet players hugged him once the game ended, and it was some ending.

Mourning, who scored 33 points and made 15 of 18 free throws, took an inbounds pass from Dell Curry, dribbled once, squared up and swished a shot from behind the college 3-point line, setting off a midcourt celebration.

But just enough time remained on the clock to give Boston one last chance.

From midcourt, McHale tossed an alley-oop pass toward Dee Brown, but Brown's shot glanced off the side of the rim.

Cavaliers 93, Nets 84

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The Cleveland Cavaliers' All-Star talent finally subdued the wounded New Jersey Nets.

Larry Nance scored 11 of his 23 points in the pivotal third quarter and All-Star teammate Brad Daugherty had 10 of his 22 in the same period as the Cavaliers took a 2-1 lead in their best-of-5 Eastern Conference playoff series.

The Cavs, who finished 11 games better than New Jersey in the conference standings, took advantage of New Jersey's devastating depth problems at center.

The Nets had to play most of the game with fourth-stringer Dwayne Schintzius in the middle after Sam Bowie sprained his left ankle in the second period. Chris Dudley already was out with a broken foot and Rick Mahorn has the flu.

Mahorn, at the Meadowlands arena but not in uniform in the first half, finally spelled Schintzius in the third quarter, but did not score. Schintzius, playing in his 83rd NBA game in three years, finished with a season-high nine points.

Clippers 93, Rockets 90

LOS ANGELES — Mark Jackson hit three of four free throws in the final 33.2 seconds as the Los Angeles Clippers defeated Houston to even their playoff series at two games each.

Houston's Hakeem Olajuwon played the final 5:42 with five fouls and missed two baskets in the closing seconds that would have clinched Houston's first opening-round series win since 1987.

Instead, the Clippers forced a deciding fifth game Saturday at Houston.

Ron Harper scored 21 for the Clippers, Stanley Roberts added 20 and Danny Manning had 19. Olajuwon led the Rockets with 25 points.

McHale retires after loss

Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Kevin McHale's storied NBA career didn't end the way he wanted it.

"It's tough," he said. "I really wanted to play one more game at the Boston Garden."

McHale scored 19 points Wednesday night as the Boston Celtics fell just short of coming back from a 19-point deficit in losing 104-103 to the Charlotte Hornets.

The loss means the Celtics are out of the playoffs and McHale goes home to Minnesota. Charlotte, which won the series, goes on to the next round.

An emotionally drained McHale made his retirement official on the court after the game.

"I'm not a press conference kind of guy," he said.

While McHale didn't get the storybook finish he planned, the 24,000 screaming fans in the Charlotte Coliseum got a good dose of his greatness.

After Alonzo Mourning hit a last-second shot from the top of the key to give the Hornets a 104-103 lead, McHale inbounded from the sideline with four-tenths of second left.

He threw a hard pass to the basket to a leaping Dee Brown, and the ball was knocked away by Kendall Gill, McHale screamed for goaltending. When he didn't get it he fell to the floor, his hands on his head, while the Hornets swarmed center court.

After 13 seasons, after playing on some of the great Celtic teams, the career of the 35-year-old forward ended in a moment of exasperation.

Playing 33 minutes despite his aching knees and back, the future Hall of Famer hit 8 of 14 shots and grabbed six rebounds. But it wasn't enough as the Hornets grabbed a big lead early and just held on.

"It was fun," McHale said, trying to fight back tears. "I wanted to go out like a warrior.

"I really thought that we had them," he said. "Alonzo made a big shot."

The end of the season could mark a new chapter for the Celtics, who may now have to replace leading scorer, Reggie Lewis.

Lewis may have to quit the game after being diagnosed with heart problems after he collapsed in the opening game of the series.

Last year, superstar Larry Bird retired after teaming up with McHale, Robert Parish and Dennis Johnson to lead the Celtics to three championships in the 1980s.

For McHale, whose retirement has been one of the worst-kept secrets in the NBA, it was clear early on that his storybook ending came last Saturday when he scored 30 points in a double-overtime loss to Charlotte at the Boston Garden.

PITCHERS: Foursome steps up

(From 1C)

Ulrich has the best record on the team with an 8-1 mark, while Baker is 5-2, Hale 3-1 and Cordova, who has become mostly a relief specialist, is 1-0.

But when Lee lost Urquidez, also the team's leading hitter who will next play a baseball game in the uniform of Seminole Junior College after eschewing an offer from Texas Christian, some wondered if the rest of the staff could pick up they slack.

It did.

"I think we all felt a little pressure. We didn't put pressure on ourselves but we felt it from other people. But I though we could do it because we're deep and our pitching is strong," Hale said.

"It's bad for Julian, but I think we picked it up well. And I think we will pick it up even more as a team in the playoffs."

For Baker, who along with Ulrich have been the Rebels' most reliable starters since the loss of Urquidez about a month ago, his senior season has surpassed expectations.

"I did better than I expected. Last year I had a tough season (0-2) and was having trouble getting the ball over the plate. But in summer ball I worked on that. This season has been better than what I expected," said Baker, who has recorded fastballs in the 90-plus mph range and has signed a national letter of intent with college baseball power Texas.

"We have plenty of pitching depth and our batting is strong (a district high .370 average). We can hang with just about anybody in the state."

Evidence of that bold statement lies with the Rebs' record against tradition powers Lubbock Monterey and Cooper. Lee is 1-2 against Cooper after its 2-1 loss for the 4-5A championship. And the Rebels are the only team to have beaten ninth-ranked Monterey. Lee is 3-2 against the 25-3 Plainsmen this season.

And Ulrich, who moved in from Denver in the off-season, has played an instrumental role in Lee's success and could record double-digit victories with any playoff success.

"I didn't have my hopes up. I was last year (a two-figure winner), but coming to Texas where I knew they took pride in their high school sports, I really didn't have any expectations. Thing just seemed to work out," said Ulrich, a curveball specialist.

And Cordova, the only Lee pitcher who also faced Coronado in the playoffs two years ago as a sophomore, seems to know what it takes to win in the playoffs after the Rebs dropped that first-round series to the Mustangs in 1991.

In that series Lee won Game 1 in Midland but dropped a doubleheader in Lubbock the next day. This year, the home-field edge is reversed.

"It's definitely an advantage (to play Game 2 and the possible Game 3 here). Since we lost the second game, they definitely had the momentum going into that last game because they were on their home turf. It'll be big playing at home because our fans really pump us up," Corvoda said.

"I think we (the pitchers) have picked up the pace a little, and we will need it if we get into a one-game playoff down the road. Knowing that you can possibly be the state champions is a good feeling, but we can't slack off."

Five Irish players get recognition

Five members of Midland's Fighting Irish '78 soccer team are doing well in the Olympic Development Program with the North Texas State Soccer Association in Dallas.

Adrian E. Castresana, who was classified under the U.S. Southern Regional Team, was recently recognized as Regional/National Soccer Athlete with 16 other '78 regional team players in four regions throughout the United States. He will attend a soccer event in Philadelphia on April 23-25, playing against the Region I '78 team, a Canadian team and the Pennsylvania '77 state team.

The Irish's Robert Evans has been placed on '77 North state team and J.D. Garcia has been placed on the '77 U.S. Southern Regional III team.

In addition, Devon Butts, Michael Ratanasavetavadh and Kalani Young are competing for a spot on the '78 North Texas state team.

Blast girls 2nd

AUSTIN — The Midland Blast '81 girls won second place in the USA Spring Cup Invitational soccer tournament this past weekend, ensuring the team an invitation to the national tournament in Steamboat Springs, Colo., this summer.

The only team to beat Blast in the tournament was the under-12 Division II state championship team, the ASC Eagles of Round Rock.

Blast knocked the Houston Red Zingers from the list of unbeatens with a 1-0 win and defeated Westlake Chaps, 1-0. Blast also tied Austin USA Magic, 1-1. Goals were scored by Catherine Durbin, Linsey Johnson and Melinda Baca.

Other Team Members: Kathleen Coleman, Valerie Power, Jessica Salgado, Tara Wutke, Teryl Arnold, Tiffany Barden, Monica Keyes, Lindsey Leaverton, Katie McLane, Robyn Peterson, Suzy Prucka, Katie Watkins and Brett Best.

Rojas no-hitter

Thirteen-year-old J.R. Rojas pitched a no-hitter for the Ulmer Park Athletics April 29 against the Phillies.

In six innings pitched, Rojas allowed just one unearned run in the 6-1 victory. He had 14 strikeouts and four walks in 24 Phillie at-bats.

SELES: Star could miss French, U.S. opens

(From 1C)

bly the U.S. Open in August.

"My thing is just to have my arm back and hope to God to play tennis again," she said with a nervous laugh. "I love the game. I just want to go out there and hit the ball again. I'll hope I can come back. I don't want to say how well I'm going to do. Nobody knows that. Mentally it takes a while to come back. But I'll come back when I feel I'm ready. I try to have good thoughts in my head, not think about what happened.

"I'm going to have to be psychologically ready to play. But I'm sure I'll be thinking about the guy behind me: What are his intentions?"

The good news, as far as Seles was concerned, was that when she does return she might be better than ever as a result of the rehabilitation program she's on to strengthen muscles surrounding the wound and all over her body, along with aerobic training.

"I'm a pretty strong person mentally when I'm on the court," she said. "Physically, this is probably going to help because I'm going to get strong in some other areas.

"I'm trying not to move my arm now so the muscle has enough time to grow back. And it just hurts if I start moving it a lot."

The inch-long wound from a slender butcher's knife cut into a couple of muscles and bruised nearby tissue, said Dr. Richard Steadman, who heads a team treating her here at the Steadman Sports Medicine Foundation. The wound is beginning to close on its own, but has not been stitched so it can be cleaned and dressed daily.

"Those muscles should heal," said Steadman, who treated Seles for a stress reaction in her leg that caused her to miss Wimbledon in 1991. "She's a great healer and a great athlete, and what we've found in the past is the best athletes are the best rehabilitators. My anticipation is that she will get back to the same level she was before, but I can't give a guarantee."

Seles and Steadman have set short-term goals — daily increases in strength and movement in her left arm — rather than looking ahead to particular tournaments.

"I'm quite happy I can play tennis again, hold a racket," Seles said. "It would have been kind of a hard ending of my career at age 19. I do hope I have a few more years of tennis left in me. I look at the positive side. It happened, and I just have to look at the next step."

Seles recalled her thoughts after the knifing by the man who told police he was an avid fan of Steffi Graf and couldn't tolerate seeing Seles as No. 1.

"I was down 3-love in the set (to Maggie Maleeva) and I came back 4-3, and I just told myself to concentrate and try to break and finish the match," Seles said. "I just leaned forward (on the changeover) to put the towel on and concentrate and all I felt was, whew, something in my back.

"I automatically went forward, because I knew something went in. I saw blood coming out. Then I turned back and saw a guy with a knife. I didn't know what was going on, how bad it was. I was lucky my brother was there. He kind of helped me to keep calm."

Blues beat Leafs 2-1 in 2OT

■ NHL Playoffs

TORONTO — Defenseman Jeff Brown scored on a rebound 3:03 into the second overtime to give the St. Louis Blues a 2-1 playoff victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs on Wednesday night.

The Blues' victory tied the Norris Division final at 1-1 and sent the series back to St. Louis for the third and fourth games on Friday and Sunday.

It was the second straight double-overtime game in the series and a record 17th in the playoffs, breaking the mark of 16 in the 1982 playoffs.

Prices gain

NEW YORK — Oil prices settled slightly higher on Wednesday in light trading with little news of supply or demand changes to influence the market.

Weekly figures released Tuesday night by the American Petroleum Institute showed little change in inventories of oil or refined products.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in June settled at $20.46 per barrel, up 7 cents on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Prices varied little during the day, holding within a 21-cent range.

Local crude purchasers raised their posted price 25 cents to $19 per barrel.

Natural gas prices were lower, with contracts for delivery in June settling at $2.224 per 1,000 cubic feet, down 9.3 cents.

Dinosaur war

NEWARK, N.J. — Unlike the carnivorous battles of their prehistoric prototypes, Barney is dragging a look-a-like stuffed dinosaur into court, not a swamp.

The makers of Barney toys, based on the popular singing and dancing multimedia dinosaur, have sued a New Jersey company, accusing it of violating their copyright by selling a look-a-like toy.

Lyons Partnership of Allen, Texas, has gone to court to ban the sale of Dino-Buddy, a purple dinosaur doll marketed by Kids of America Corp. of Fairfield.

Dollar rises

NEW YORK — The dollar rose against most major currencies Wednesday as interest in the greenback waned in favor of cross-trading in other currencies.

In New York, the dollar was quoted late Wednesday at 110.55 Japanese yen, up from 110.25 late Tuesday.

In New York, the British pound fetched $1.5650, slightly less than late Tuesday's $1.5660.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Tuesday: 1.5805 German marks, up from 1.5755; 1.4180 Swiss francs, down from 1.4205; 5.3275 French francs, up from 5.3085; 1,467.00 Italian lire, down from 1,470.00; and 1.2745 Canadian dollars, up from 1.2711.

Stocks edge up

NEW YORK — Most stocks edged higher Wednesday as investors anxiously awaited April employment data, hoping for more indications about the strength of the economic recovery.

Small issues again turned in the best performance, reflecting investor unease with the economy. It was the seventh straight gain for the Nasdaq over-the-counter index.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 2.91 points to 3,449.10.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 13 to 9 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Fed sees spring pickup in economy

■ Nation posts improved numbers in April after weather-related slowdown in March.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The economy improved in April across much of the nation after a weather-related slowdown in March, the Federal Reserve said Wednesday in a mostly upbeat assessment of regional business conditions.

Manufacturing was strong in most of the central bank's 12 districts, and a drop in sales in March was described as temporary for the most part.

"Reports . . . indicate generally modest improvement in economic conditions across much of the nation," said the Fed's beige book, named after the color of its cover.

"Shopper traffic and retail sales were reported to have rebounded modestly in April, following general declines in March resulting in part from severe weather," it said.

Recent government statistical reports have cast the economy's performance so far this year in a far more negative light than Wednesday's beige book, which is based on interviews with business people across the country before April 23.

Last week, the Commerce Department said growth as measured by the gross domestic product slowed sharply to an anemic 1.8 percent in the first quarter from a five-year high of 4.7 percent in the fourth quarter.

Compared with most private analysts, the Fed is attributing more of the slowdown to a mid-March blizzard that hit the eastern third of the country.

"The basic message was the weather was an important factor in the economy's slowing, there's no fundamental weakness and, as the weather improves, the statistics should improve," said economist Robert G. Dederick of The Northern Trust Co. in Chicago.

He said the Fed's assessment means it is unlikely to cut short-term interest rates anytime soon without further evidence of economic weakness.

"I think the Fed is clearly not going to do anything. . . . But if they see that demand remains sluggish (in April and May) after the weather got better, that would begin to send out alarms," he said.

In Wednesday's report, the central bank was particularly upbeat about manufacturing. Steel and auto factories are operating at near capacity, and most manufacturers are reporting increased orders.

However, it noted that so far most factories are meeting higher production schedules through overtime rather increased hiring.

"Job conditions are mixed in most regions. ... Some firms are hiring modestly. . . . However, no district anticipates a flurry of new hiring in the near term."

The beige book was prepared for use at the May 18 meeting of central bank monetary policy-makers. The Federal Open Market Committee will meet behind closed doors to determine the course of short-term interest rates over the next six weeks.

Most analysts believe the Fed is likely to opt for leaving rates unchanged for some months yet. The key short-term rate controlled by the Fed, the rate charged among banks on overnight loans, has been at 3 percent since early last September.

Noting other upbeat developments, the report said residential real estate activity is strong and on the rise in most districts. It said bank lending is picking up for consumer purchases and mortgage refinancing and, in some areas, for small businesses.

It said prices were stable, except for steel and energy.

Regionally, California continues to have the softest economy, it said.

"Job cutbacks in aerospace and defense-related manufacturing are combining with recently proposed military base closing to hurt consumer confidence and economic activity," the Fed said.

In New York, the explosion at the World Trade Center actually helped the economy slightly by providing cleanup and reconstruction jobs, it said.

West, Northeast home values fall in 1st quarter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Home values fell in one-third of the nation's housing markets surveyed during the past 12 months, and increases slowed in many others, a real estate trade group said Wednesday.

Homeowners in the West, particularly in California, and the Northeast were hit the hardest in the first quarter of this year compared to the same period last year, according to the National Association of Realtors. The survey covered previously owned, single-family homes in 131 metropolitan areas.

Until the economy began to weaken in the late 1980s, declines in home prices were rarely seen during a 20-year, inflation-paced boom.

The Realtors said home values fell 0.5 percent in the West, to a median price of $142,200, and were unchanged in the Northeast at $137,400. The median means half the homes cost more, and half cost less.

Prices rose 2.7 percent in the South, to $90,7000, but the pace was off the 4.3 percent advance posted in the fourth quarter.

Homeowners in the Midwest, on the other hand, saw their property values jump 7.8 percent, to a median of $83,900.

"The Midwest has a good combination of economic stability and low-cost housing," Realtors economist John A. Tuccillo said.

Nationally, prices increased 5.1 percent to $104,200, compared to a 4.3 percent advance during the October-December quarter. But 46 of the 129 areas surveyed posted declines.

Falling prices in many areas of California helped pull down values in the West. For instance, they were down 8 percent in Los Angeles, 5.6 percent in the Anaheim-Santa Ana market and 3.8 percent in San Diego.

"California is feeling the impact of unstable economic conditions," Tuccillo said.

Other areas of the West did better. In fact, the Richland-Kennewick-Pasco market of Washington state led the nation in the appreciation of previously owned single-family homes for the second straight quarter.

Only five other markets had double-digit percentage hikes, compared to 18 during the fourth quarter of 1992. In addition to the Richland area, they were Detroit, up 19 percent; Syracuse, N.Y., up 11.2 percent; Spokane, Wash., up 10.9 percent; and Ft. Myers-Cape Coral, Fla., and Charleston, W.Va., both up 10.2 percent.

The companies did not disclose the financial terms.

The partnership will serve a franchise area with more than 1 million homes.

Southwestern Bell last year began offering telephone service with its cable business in the U.K. About 9,000 of Southwestern Bell's 57,000 cable television subscribers also are phone customers.

Cox Cable is a division of Atlanta-based Cox Enterprises Inc. Cox Cable owns and operates 24 cable television systems with 1.7 million customers in 17 states.

Analysts: Annual Food Lion meeting might be turbulent

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — Food Lion's annual shareholders meeting will be business as usual, a company spokesman says. Don't count on it, some shareholders and analysts say.

Food Lion's dwindling stock price, its continuing battle with ABC News and co-founder Ralph Ketner's sudden departure from the board are likely topics when shareholders meet with the North Carolina based company's board at Catawba College today.

The exchange also might focus on several shareholder lawsuits listed in the company's proxy statement and Chairman Tom Smith's compensation package.

Food Lion's stock has lost nearly two-thirds of its value since its troubles began last year. The stock dropped dramatically after a Nov. 5, 1992, broadcast by ABC's "PrimeTime Live" that accused the chain of unsanitary food handling.

Food Lion's stock price hovered near a new 52-week low on Wednesday, just one day before the shareholders meeting. After closing on Tuesday at $5.875, both Food Lion's Class A and Class B stocks fluctuated Wednesday around $6.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Brokerages handle initial public offerings

By Bill Doyle

Q: From whom can I buy shares of common stock of a new company coming to the stock market with an initial public offering?

A: From a brokerage firm handing the sale. When a corporation "goes public" by selling shares of its stock to investors, it lines up a group of brokerages to act as investment bankers by underwriting the offering.

The underwriting group, also called a syndicate, buys the stock from the company and attempts to sell those shares to investors at a slightly marked-up price. If all goes as planned, the company gets the money it wanted to raise and the brokerages in the underwriting syndicate pocket a profit.

But things do not always work so smoothly. Sometimes initial public offerings become "sticky issues" and do not sell out. When that happens, the brokerages "bust the syndicate" and either hang onto the stock or sell those shares for whatever price is available in the marketplace —losing money in either case.

Q: Are shares in an initial public offering always offered at a premium? Or can I get them at a lower price from the company?

A: First off, companies seldom sell stock directly to investors. And no company ever does so when it's in the process of making an offering of stock to the investing public through an underwriting syndicate.

Q: I always thought "par value" was important to common stock. The accountant who did our income tax returns claims that is not so. Is he correct?

A: Right as rain. In the case of common stock, par is simply the dollar amount assigned to the share by the company's charter. Par value might also be used to compute the dollar amount of common shares on the balance sheet. Many companies issue no-par common stock but list a stated per-share value on their balance sheets.

Par value has little or no relationship to common stock's market value —the price it will fetch when sold. Market value is the true measurement.

The story is different for bonds and preferred stocks. Interest on most bonds and dividends on many preferreds are figured as a percentage of par value. Also, when a company is liquidated, payment often is made at par value —first on bonds and other debt securities and then on preferred shares.

Q: We own stock in a manufacturing company that went bankrupt, and the value of the stock is zero. The company has been selling all its assets. Is there anything we should be doing to ensure we get a piece of what, if anything, is left?

A: You can try to stay in touch with the bankruptcy trustee doing the chore of liquidating the company's assets. If you get no results, contact the federal bankruptcy court that assigned the trustee to the job.

Just don't expect voluminous reports, with great details on how and at what prices various company assets were sold. Although corporate liquidation proceedings can drag on and on, reports on them are usually cut and dried.

Above all, don't have high hopes about getting a piece of what might be left, especially since the stock's price is zero.

President revises vaccine plan to poor and uninsured children

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration abandoned its plan Wednesday to buy vaccines for rich and poor children alike and said it would instead provide free shots for those who are on Medicaid or are uninsured.

The $1.1 billion Clinton immunization plan ran into heavy opposition from congressional Republicans and the pharmaceutical industry. Even a key Democrat, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, the Ways and Means Committee chairman, said it was too expensive.

At the White House, President Clinton said, "We did the best we could with the money we had."

"A lot of these things are going to be a function of how much money we have," he said when asked about the scaled-back program by reporters during a ceremony honoring nurses. He said the program still would be "a big advance over where we are."

Administration officials were still negotiating the details of the compromise with Democratic allies, but Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., said it would cost half as much as the original plan.

The revised plan seeks to provide universal access, but not "central purchasing of all vaccines by the government," said Waxman, chairman of the House Energy and Commerce health subcommittee.

Waxman said, "The fundamental purpose of the Clinton administration bill is kept intact, which is to reach out and immunize every child in this country."

Making the government the sole vaccine purchaser was never "the fundamental issue," he added. "Since that provision raised a lot of controversy, the administration decided to back down."

Dee Dee Myers, the White House press secretary, said, "The president is still committed to making vaccines accessible to all 2-year-olds. ... A lot of the important points of this program will be preserved."

Health and Human Services Secretary Donna E. Shalala said the compromise gives the administration "90 percent of what we thought we needed. ... It's a big victory for kids.

"It includes the (computerized) tracking system; it includes coverage for all the poor kids, plus everyone else who isn't insured," she said. "It allows us to design a delivery system that works."

Only about half of 2-year-olds are fully immunized against nine preventable diseases including polio, measles, mumps and whooping cough, federal officials say.

Senate Republicans introduced their own $450 million alternative plan Tuesday to expand Medicaid coverage for immunizations, launch the tracking system and bolster outreach efforts.

Agriculture Department to impose labeling mandate on meat, poultry

By Marian Burros
N.Y. Times News Service

For the first time since the federal government began regulating the safety of the American food supply, the Department of Agriculture announced Wednesday that it would require all raw meat and poultry sold in bulk and at retail outlets to have labels with cooking and handling instructions.

The outline for the new regulations were included in a legal document settling a lawsuit brought against the department by a consumer group and others.

Such labeling of meat and poultry has been under consideration for several years, but the issue was brought to a head early this year when the deaths of three people and the illnesses of more than 350 others were attributed to hamburgers served at a fast-food chain in Washington State.

The parents of a child who became ill in the outbreak of the bacteria — specifically E.coli 0157: H7 — joined the consumer group Beyond Beef.

Beyond Beef sued Agriculture Department in February, demanding that meat and poultry be labeled to warn of the dangers of bacteria that is found in the raw products. The next month the Department said that it wanted such instructions on the products before the end of the year.

The agreement requires that the Agriculture Department propose rules for the labeling by Aug. 15, followed by a public comment period.

The Department of Agriculture said that the exact language had not been determined and that it was not certain whether warnings about bacterial contamination would appear on the label.

Both sides claimed victory in the resolution of the lawsuit, which was announced Wednesday. But they appear to have widely divergent interpretations of the settlement.

Jeremy Rifkin, president of Beyond Beef, a coalition of 20,000 people who want to reduce beef consumption and insure that what is available is raised organically, says the agreement requires a warning label on raw meat and poultry that will tell consumers what to do "to avoid bacterial contamination."

■ Irving Howe, author, critic, dead at 72

NEW YORK — Author Irving Howe, who used the English he learned on the streets and the socialism he embraced in the Depression to become one of America's foremost critics, died Wednesday. He was 72.

Howe died at Mount Sinai Hospital of a ruptured aorta, hospital spokeswoman Kelly Larkin said.

Howe was an old-fashioned, anti-Stalin left-winger, whose 1976 book, "World of Our Fathers" chronicled Jewish immigrant life in New York. It won the National Book Award.

In addition to numerous articles of criticism, commentary and scholarship in magazines and journals, Howe published such books as "Politics and the Novel" in 1963, "Steady Work" in 1966, "Thomas Hardy" in 1967, "The Decline of the New" in 1969, "The Critical Point" in 1973, "A Margin of Hope" in 1982, "Socialism and America" in 1985 and "The American Newness" in 1986.

■ Teachers reject science textbook

VISTA, Calif. — A committee of teachers rejected a science textbook that attacks the theory of evolution and promotes the idea that life was created by intelligent design or a master intellect.

But the decision announced Tuesday night may not end the struggle over evolution and its alternatives in this San Diego County school district, some observers said.

The science teachers said the book "Of Pandas and People: The Central Question of Biological Origins," was unscientific, would do nothing to help children learn and should not be included in the district's curriculum.

The book's premise "is not put forth within a logical construct of facts and hypotheses," the teachers said.

In addition, the textbook does not meet state guidelines and contains no opportunity for students to experiment with topics, the teachers said.

The teachers' report criticized several passages in the book, including one stating that because DNA is complex like language, people can assume that it also is designed.

"Of Pandas and People" is published by a small Texas company that says about 12,000 of the books are used in schools nationwide. The publisher will not identify those schools.

■ Man survives arrow impaled in skull

PORTLAND, Ore. — A man who was shot through the skull with an arrow by a friend trying to knock a fuel can off his head survived with no brain damage.

Surgeons removed the arrow from Anthony Roberts' head by drilling a larger hole around the tip at the skull's back and pulling it through.

Roberts, 25, was shot Saturday at the friend's home in Grants Pass, about 200 miles south of Portland.

Paramedics saved his life by restraining him when he tried to pull the arrow out himself in the helicopter on the way to University Hospital in Portland, said Dr. Johnny B. Delashaw.

Roberts, an unemployed carpenter, lost his right eye.

At a hospital news conference Tuesday, Roberts initially told reporters he was walking through a park when he heard a bow fired, then felt the arrow hit.

Later, he told them his friend was trying to knock the gallon can off his head as part of an initiation into a rafting and outdoor group called Mountain Men Anonymous.

Investigators said there was no doubt the can story is true. Roberts said he was drinking with friends when the accident occurred.

"If the arrow had been a millimeter closer to his nose, it would have severed major blood vessels, and Mr. Roberts could have died on the spot," Delashaw said. "I've never seen anything like it."

The arrow's tip went 8 to 10 inches into Roberts' brain.

"I feel really stupid," Roberts said.

No charges were filed against his friend.

The World in brief

■ Minority group fears riots during funeral

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — Thousands of Tamils fled the capital Wednesday, fearing violence during the state funeral for Sri Lanka's assassinated president.

Police have accused Tamil rebels, who have been fighting for independence in northern and eastern Sri Lanka for 10 years, of training the suicide bomber who attacked President Ramasinghe Premadasa.

Premadasa was a member of the country's Sinhalese majority, and many of its people hate the Tamil rebels. That could cause riots today when the funeral procession passes through Tamil areas of the city.

Clashes also could occur between supporters of the governing party and the opposition Democratic United National Front.

Three thousand soldiers and 8,000 policemen have been deployed in the city for the funeral. He will be cremated inside a 20-foot-tall wooden pyre in central Independence Square.

Hundreds of thousands of people are expected to march in the 3-mile-long funeral procession.

■ Mideast economic talks end on agreement

ROME — Participants declared the latest round of Mideast economic talks a success Wednesday and agreed to begin studying joint projects.

The World Bank was assigned the job of sifting through projects suggested by many of the 42 nations involved and then setting up studies. The European Community said it would put up $6 million for the studies.

The joint projects to be studied include a road survey, reducing trade barriers and connecting regional electricity grids.

The talks, tied to the Mideast peace negotiations started in Madrid in 1991, also focused on the economic situation of Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Syria and Lebanon are boycotting the talks, saying Israel must first withdraw from their territory that it occupies.

■ Fighting threats stop relief flights in Sudan

NAIROBI, Kenya — Relief flights to one of the most famine-stricken areas of southern Sudan have been suspended again because of the threat of new fighting in the 10-year civil war, the United Nations said Wednesday.

The relief operation near the town of Kongor had only resumed two weeks ago. It was suspended March 27 when rebels ransacked the U.N. compound and mistreated a relief worker, officials said.

Officials of the U.N. Children's Fund and World Food Program indefinitely suspended them again Monday after receiving word of fighting in the area, said Brenda Barton, food program spokeswoman in Nairobi.

Experts: North Korea may build nuclear bombs

TOKYO (NYT) — Experts monitoring North Korea say they are increasingly concerned that the country may be preparing to use 50 tons of uranium now fueling a large reactor as raw material for nuclear weapons.

The diversion, under the guise of a long-planned change of fuel in the reactor, seems likely to come within weeks or months of June 12, when North Korea officially withdraws from the treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons. If efforts to persuade North Korea to respect the treaty fail, the country's hard-line Communist leadership would be free on June 12 to convert the spent fuel into plutonium, the element at the core of nuclear bombs.

The 50 tons would be enough to produce two or three nuclear bombs. But the elaborate process could take several months or a year, depending on the size and sophistication of North Korea's sites. U.S. intelligence officials say Pyongyang has kept at least some reprocessing ability hidden from international inspectors.

The inspections, which started only last year, ceased about three months ago, just before North Korea announced that it would pull out of the treaty. After fencing with the International Atomic Energy Agency for months, Pyongyang said it would leave the treaty when the agency insisted on visiting two sites that U.S. intelligence identified as being at the center of the weapons project.

Ordinarily the removal of reactor fuel is closely monitored to assure that none is diverted to weapons. But North Korea has kept the agency guessing about whether it will be allowed to oversee the process, or precisely when it will occur.

Indeed, there is a growing suspicion that the government is using the chance to monitor the removal — and to take samples showing whether some fuel may have already been diverted to weapons — as a bargaining chip in its tense negotiations with the West.

"They are dangling this in front of us, perhaps as a negotiating ploy," said one official involved. "They know that we know that once this spent fuel disappears, we suddenly will have a big problem."

The Clinton administration is pressing China, North Korea's closest ally, to persuade the government to permit a "special inspection" of two buildings in Yongbyon, a heavily guarded research station 60 miles north of Pyongyang.

In recent weeks U.S. officials have said that if North Korea rejoins the treaty's members and allows full inspections, Washington may be prepared to open direct talks with North Korea. Indeed, United States and North Korean officials met Wednesday in Washington to lay the groundwork for high-level talks to defuse the tension over the nuclear program, Reuters reported.

Several American and Japanese officials say they doubt that diplomacy will lead the North to back down. Their view is that President Kim Il-sung and his son, Kim Jong-il, have determined that international inspections would eventually bring North Korea's multi-billion-dollar nuclear program to a standstill.

"North Korea's regime sees its nuclear program as vital to its survival, and there is every reason to believe it will go to the mat to protect it," Gen. Robert W. RisCassi, the commander of U.S. forces in South Korea, told the Senate Armed Services Committee last month in one of the most pessimistic assessments yet of the chances of keeping North Korea from becoming a nuclear power.

RisCassi, who appears to view developments in North Korea with even more alarm than do many in the intelligence community, said he was "increasingly concerned that North Korea could slide in an attack as an uncontrollable consequence of total desperation or internal instability."

"We must disabuse ourselves of the confidence we gained during the cold war that North Korea was manageable," he warned.

Indeed there is growing disagreement on the question of how to negotiate with North Korea, and in recent weeks officials in Washington, Tokyo and Seoul have frequently found themselves at odds. For weeks a debate has raged on whether actions by the Security Council to impose economic sanctions against Pyongyang would help to halt the nuclear project, or whether, as South Korea fears, it may provoke the North to lash out. Nor is it clear that China, which holds a veto in the council, would approve sanctions.

Moscow mayor bans reform groups rally

MOSCOW (AP) — Moscow's mayor barred anti-reform groups Wednesday from marching in weekend Victory Day celebrations, hoping to prevent a recurrence of May Day street fighting.

A 25-year-old policeman injured during last Saturday's riot died of injuries Wednesday. President Boris Yeltsin sent condolences and called Policeman Vladimir Tolokneyev's death a "loss for all of Russia," ITAR-Tass reported.

Mayor Yuri Luzhkov denied the anti-reform groups permission to march with war veterans or hold rallies next Sunday.

Plus sizes no longer have to feel like they are fish out of water

By Francine Parnes
Associated Press

Stylish swimwear is making a splash in the large-size apparel market, so women sizes 16 and up can feel as chic at the beach as their smaller sisters.

"No longer do I have to wear a bathing suit with a stupid skirt that smacks me in the face when I swim," says Carole Shaw of Beverly Hills, Calif. Shaw is editor of BBW: Big Beautiful Woman, a bimonthly fashion magazine for larger women.

It wasn't long ago that women who wore size 16 or up were style-starved for swimwear. But U.S. apparel industry discovered it's penny wise to court these large-size shoppers. After all, they account for 30 percent of American women and $15 billion in annual sales, up from $2 billion in 1980, according to the National Bureau of Health Statistics.

First came sportswear, suits and dresses. Now it's swimwear's turn, says Shaw, a size 22 who started the magazine in 1979.

"You actually have to read the sign now to know you're in a large-size department," she says. "We have two-piece suits, halter tops, blouson tops, fitted tops and French-cut legs, just like regular people."

While plus sizes offer the same styles, prints and colors as misses' lines, proportions accommodate and flatter a larger figure. Silhouettes typically include slenderizing details such as deeper necklines, short skirts and shirring.

BEEFED-UP CONSTRUCTION and added support are important, too. Many suits have sturdier elastic, tummy and hip panels and up to twice as much spandex as ordinary suits.

Underwire bras are a staple. Lines such as Roxanne, Wonder-Bra and the Slimsuit offer styles sold by bra size.

"The big sizes want to wear exactly what the smaller woman — the fashion customer — wears, so if you can design a selection of suits in their size and they look good, then why not?" says Miriam Ruzow, president of Gottex in New York. The company's 2-year-old large-size line comes in sizes 14W to 22W.

"They love bright colors, they love florals, geometrics and animal prints. They love all the same things a smaller woman loves," Ruzow says. "The beauty of it is that usually the styles are the same ones we run in our normal fashion line."

Gottex prints appear on a darker ground that slenderizes. Draping and gathering camouflage errant bulges. Control panels support the bust and stomach. All are fitted on a large-size model.

"We make the proportions completely different — the shape of the legs, the back, the width of the straps," Ruzow says.

Gottex suits sell from about $106 to $156 at Saks Fifth Avenue's Salon Z and selected Jacobson's, The Forgotten Woman, Audrey Jones and Nordstrom.

The Slimsuit by Carol Wior of Los Angeles has a patented inner lining that purports to take an inch or more off the waist and stomach and lift the buttocks at least half an inch. It's sold with a tapemeasure so you can see the difference yourself.

Solid-colored maillots are popular at Slimsuit, but a bronze and brown metallic cheetah print is the best-seller for both misses and large sizes. There's also a short, elastic-waist skort in solid colors, $28, which converts a maillot into a skirted suit.

Slimsuits are available in 18 styles, from 16W to 26W. From $62 to $76, they're sold at The Broadway, Dayton's, Hudson's, Macy's and Nordstrom.

Cover-ups are an important part of the large-size swimwear market. Slimsuit offers a mid-thigh kimono in black cotton, $48, and nylon and Lycra pareos, $24 to $26.

Cover-ups are always strong sellers at The Forgotten Woman, a nationwide chain for larger customers.

"The customer is desperate for one," says Nancye Radmin of New York, founder of the Forgotten Woman.

Radmin says her stores' best-selling cover-ups are from Gottex. In sizes 1X to 3X, they're typically long-sleeved oversized shirts in florals or animal prints, about $150 to $370.

Shades should offer best protection

By Irwin Siegel, Ph.D.
Associated Press

Looking at the world through rose-colored glasses might be good for the soul, but may not afford the best sun protection for your eyes.

And there are more important things to consider than how glitzy they look when laying out good money for a pair of eye protectors.

One major factor to consider in the purchase of sunglasses is the amount of protection the lenses will give you from eye-damaging ultraviolet (UV) radiation. Most lenses that reduce UV radiation should be clearly labeled.

You should pay particular attention to UV protection if you are in an occupation that exposes you constantly to the sun and heavy UV radiation —farmer, fisherman, ski patrol member, or lifeguard, for example.

Also special precautions should be taken if you live or work at higher altitudes since the dangers of radiation are more pronounced the closer you are to the sun.

Prices for sunglasses vary greatly, depending on the durability of the frame and the quality of the lenses.

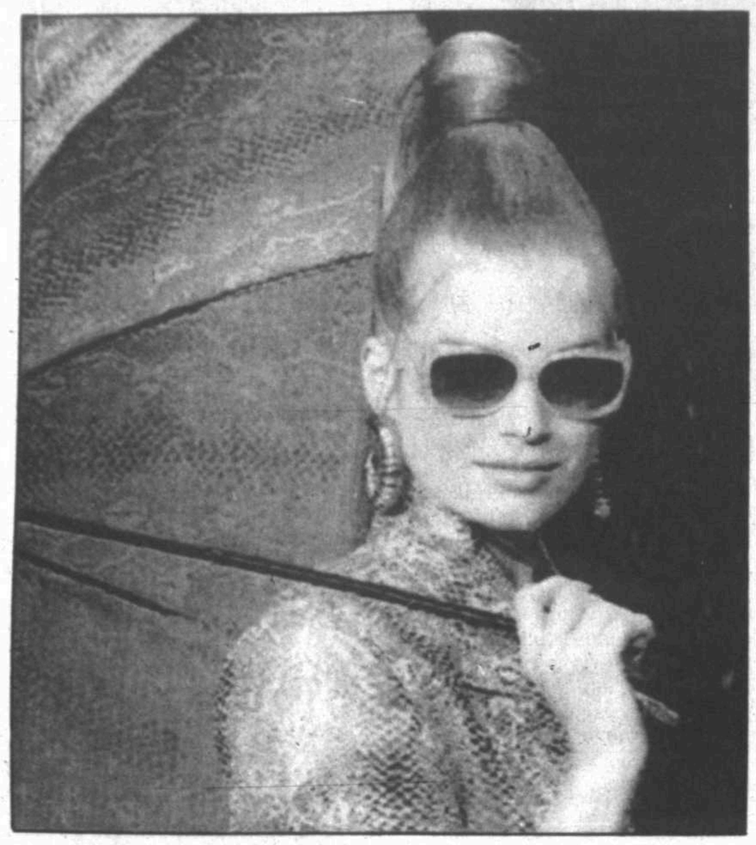

Less expensive lenses generally are pressed out of flat sheets of plastic and contain many distortions. Better lenses are injection-molded — like high-quality prescription lenses — and are optically superior.

A good test for checking lens quality is to look through the center of the lens and rotate the glasses. No distortion should occur. Inferior lenses interfere with the way light rays come through, producing image irregularity.

Although glass doesn't scratch as easily as plastic, most sunglasses are made of plastic because of legal restrictions. If a glass lens is prescribed by a specialist, a specially-treated heated lens must be used to prevent shattering.

Another option is photochromic or photosensitive lenses. These lenses are usually made of shatterproof glass with a layer of gel in between. This gel chemically changes the color of the lens as a function of light intensity.

Because of this, photosensitive sunglasses generally are heavier and more costly than other types. They darken quite rapidly but don't relighten very fast. So beware of driving a car with this type of lens on highways containing tunnels and underpasses.

AP Laserphoto

Even the Paris runways know the importance of sunglasses. This model sports a fashionable pair of shades with a transparent crocodile-like jacket that matches her umbrella designed by Japan's Hanae Mori for his spring/summer 1993 ready-to-wear collection.

The old expression about "looking at the world through rose-colored glasses" may contain some truth because certain tints could dramatically alter vision.

Brown, gray and earthy shades of green are the best recommended tints for sunglasses. These colors are considered to be neutral or in the middle of the color spectrum.

Gray is neutral, but may seem boring to look through. Certain shades of red will make things that are blue or green appear much darker. Green tinted glasses will do the reverse, making objects that are pink or red look darker.

In addition, most shades of green tend to make nearsighted people a little more nearsighted.

Brown has the advantage of being a neutral tone that filters out most colors equally, and because it is in the yellow family, will tone down the blue sky and thereby reduce sky glare.

Sunglasses should be purpose-oriented. Will you be using them occasionally, for recreational purposes, for driving, or will you be wearing them daily in your line of work? Depending on the purpose, the depth of tint and color should be appropriately chosen.

If looks and price are the only factors in obtaining sunglasses, avail yourself of what's offered in drug stores and department stores. But be prepared to get what you pay for. A pair of sunglasses fitted comfortably to your ears and nose by a professional is well worth the extra cost.

Irwin Siegel, Ph.D. is a professor of research ophthalmology at New York University Medical Center.

Search for contenders has begun

Staff report

The search for 1994 Miss Teenage America began in Kmart's ladies fashion department Saturday when official entry forms became available to contenders. Entry deadline is July 15.

"The Miss Teenage America program emphasizes many of the same American ideals embodied in Kmart's 5-year renewal program," said Rick Pellino, divisional vice president of Kmart Fashions.

"Female teens more frequently select Kmart as their source for on-trend, quality fashions, friendly service and the best value for their money," Pellino said. Kmart has been a major corporate sponsor of the Miss Teenage America program for the past nine years.

'TEEN Magazine operates the program which recognizes outstanding young women between the ages of 12 and 18. Now in its 32nd year, the competition emphasizes scholastic achievement, individual accomplishment, community service, poise, general awareness, appearance and personality. Contenders must have a 3.0 or better grade point average and be enrolled in high school through at least 1994.

Miss Teenage America 1994 will receive a $15,000 college scholarship and a year's worth of clothes from Kmart. She will have modeling opportunities with the program's sponsors, her own monthly column in 'TEEN, and will appear on the cover of the magazine.

The 1993 recipient of the title is Mary Nyguen, 17, from Fullerton, Calif. She was selected from more than 10,000 applicants.

DEAR ABBY

Boyfriend's red roses received by green lady

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend says I'm acting like a jealous 15-year-old child. (I'm 29.) For Valentine's Day, he gave me a dozen red roses. He also gave his 6-year-old daughter from a previous marriage a dozen red roses, too. However, I noticed that my roses were the short-stemmed variety and his daughter's were the long-stemmed kind.

Van Buren

Abby, I was under the impression that St. Valentine's Day was for lovers. I know it is also an occasion for family members and friends to express their love, but isn't it primarily for lovers?

When I told him that I was hurt because I got short-stemmed roses, but his daughter got the long-stemmed variety, he said we were both supposed to get the long-stemmed variety, but the friend he asked to get them for him goofed. I still can't help feeling jealous.

We've been dating for three years, and we've talked about marriage. Do you think I'm making a big deal out of nothing? — JEALOUS VALENTINE

DEAR JEALOUS: Yes, and I also think you're making a big mistake to compete with your boyfriend's 6-year-old daughter. Perhaps he's bending over backward to make her feel secure and loved. Children of divorced parents are often the beneficiaries of extravagant gifts from fathers who feel guilty because they can't be full-time daddies to their children.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have two sons — both in their 30s. They live at home and show no signs of leaving.

They are not on drugs or anything like that. They don't seem interested in girls, but I don't think they are gay. They are no problem, but I am wondering if this is normal. Their only interest is in working and saving their money.

Are we doing the right thing to let them stay with us? We would like to have grandchildren someday, but I am beginning to wonder. — NEWARK, N.J.

DEAR NEWARK: If, as you say, they are no problem, I see no reason why you shouldn't let them continue to live with you. Gay or straight, they appear to be living a clean, productive lifestyle. Asking them to move will not guarantee you grandchildren.

Have you discussed your concern about their future with them? If not, please do.

DEAR ABBY: If the neighbors with the barking dog won't cooperate, obtain their telephone number, and when you are awakened in the middle of the night by the barking, dial their number, let it ring until they answer it, then "bark" into the phone and hang up.

This has worked for us in past years at two different locations. — LLOYD HENDERSON, OROSI, CALIF.

AT WIT'S END

Spic and span no longer an obsession

By Erma Bombeck

The white tornado who used to sweep through our cities spreading the gospel of antiseptic is gone.

Bombeck

So is Mr. Clean, the first guy I knew to wear an earring. And remember the Tidy Bowl captain who set sail on a blue sea in our toilet tanks? He's history.

Women no longer look for their reflections in their dining room tables or attack yellow wax buildup on their hands and knees. They no longer take the blame for ring-around-the-collar, but place the guilt where it belongs — men who don't wash their necks.

Gordon Jump, the lonely Maytag serviceman, sleeps by a phone that never rings.

Slowly but steadily, the women who flipped their mattresses every spring and hosed down their porches have become an endangered species. Cleaning house is no longer a religious experience. Women of the '90s claim they have better things to do.

Giving up housecleaning wasn't hard for me. What converted me to apathy was cleaning my kids' rooms. It was as ludicrous as cleaning an oven the day before it caught fire. I'd retrieve glasses and plates of food hidden under the bed, take socks off light bulbs, rescue pets lost in the woodwork, gather up wet towels and discarded clothes, put out the fire in the aquarium, and dress my daughter's naked dolls who looked at me with fear in their eyes. The next day I'd do it all over again.

No one seemed to notice one way or another.

Bleached dish towels weren't any more absorbent than dingy gray ones. Bathroom faucets cleaned with a toothbrush never got me a standing ovation. If my husband was refused a promotion because his boss saw spots on my glasses when they came from the dishwasher, no one mentioned it.

What I'm saying is housekeeping is an art that was taken for granted. I never heard my dad say to my mother, "I could eat a meal off the top of your refrigerator. That is why I love you so much." My grandmother's obituary said she left behind a grieving husband, five children and 24 grandchildren. It never mentioned she left a clean oven, spices arranged in alphabetical order and a waxed driveway.

The Greek chorus of spokesmen for cleaning products are playing to a limited audience unless it's an item that saves time. Today's homemakers have discovered the miracle cure for housework: deodorant spray. You may never get their heads in their buckets again.

Summer Childcare DIRECTORY

As a childcare provider you are well aware of the vital concern for today's children by today's parents. For this reason we will be publishing the Annual Childcare Directory on Sunday, May 16th.

If you have ever wished for a method to reach more parents with information about the services that you provide, the Childcare Directory is your wish come true. Midland parents have come to rely on this directory as a guide to quality childcare. This section focuses on the basic "who, what, where and when" of quality childcare in the our area and includes a locator map.

You will probably want your facility represented with an ad in this special section, a dot on a location map, a photo and a story about your facility. We have some special packages for this ranging from 8" ads to 18" ads. We also have ads that are not packaged and can run in the section without any of the other special advantages. For more information and to reserve your ad in the Childcare Directory call:

Midland Reporter-Telegram 687-8813

The deadline for the Childcare Directory is Wednesday, May 12 at 5:00 p.m.
