Warren of Michigan New Attorney-General

Charles Beecher Warren, of Michigan, former U. S. Ambassador to Japan, has been named attorney-general by President Coolidge to succeed Harlan F. Stone, who now becomes a Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court.

FEATURES.

In this issue will be found the last of twelve articles that have been running the past few months under the heading, "Keeping Well," when space permitted. These articles were authoritative and we hope that many of our readers have received some worthwhile information from reading them.

Next week will conclude a series of informative articles, one will be found in this issue too, under the heading, "Marvels of America."

Next week a series, somewhat different from anything we have heretofore run as a feature, will appear. This feature, written by a noted culinary expert, will appear each week for the next few months under heading, "The Kitchen Cabinet." These articles should be of particular interest to the housewives who read the Eagle. It would be well to clip them out each week and make a scrapbook that will be found valuable in the future.

Another series of articles will begin next week and run for several weeks is, "Things Unusual." We believe these articles will be of interest to nearly all the Eagle readers. If you like any or all of these special articles that we are giving you, in addition to the news of the county, we would like to know about it, as we are continually striving to give our readers just what the majority want in a home newspaper, and your suggestions, even if not favorable—in other words, if you like the paper tell us and also your friends. If you don't, just tell us.

P. T. A. MEETING.

The Parent-Teachers met Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the auditorium of the school house with only a very few parents present on account of the bad weather.

After a reading, given by Mrs. H. O. Patterson, the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, then a short business meeting followed. It was decided and voted upon that we donate a small sum for an addition to the Library, also that the P. T. A. buy two large pictures for the auditorium, to be selected by Mr. Miller.

The fourth and sixth grades received pot plants for having the largest number of mothers and fathers present, after which the meeting adjourned until next meeting day.—Reporter.

COMMISSIONERS' COURT IN SESSION MONDAY

A special meeting of the Commissioners' Court was held in the County Judge's office Monday and a considerable amount of routine business taken care of.

All members of the court were present. Commissioner Roy King qualified as commissioner from precinct 4. Judge Randolph was appointed County Attorney and accepted the appointment and qualified. Rudolph Becker, elected constable at the November election, also qualified Monday.

The work on the South Llano road is progressing nicely under Commissioner Hodge's supervision, and this work will be continued up the River as long as funds are available. Some work in this precinct is also contemplated on the Cedar Creek road, to begin this week.

Mr. Ragsdale expects to have some work done on the Copperas road shortly after the first. This road, which leaves the highway at Copperas school house, will be placed in first class condition as far as funds are available. It was better to build a shorter distance of permanent road than to scatter the work over the entire length, which would necessarily be only temporary.

As soon as the taxes are in, a statement of the funds available for each precinct will likely be published and the tax payers of the several precincts will know the amounts that will be available for road improvements during the year.

A number of citizens from the east end of the county were here the first of the week and were assured that that section would be given every consideration and that they would probably receive even more than their share of this year's available funds.

Wal Mains and family and Sidney Ramsey of Menard were visitors here Sunday and Monday.

It pays to read the ads.

HOME NEAR TOWN DESTROYED BY FIRE

The residence of Mrs. Wharton, located about a mile northwest of town, was completely destroyed by fire of unknown origin about five o'clock Sunday afternoon. No one was at the home when the fire started, but a number of local people, passing along the road, saw the fire and gave the alarm. In a short time hundreds of people were on the ground, but nothing could be done. A few articles of household furniture were saved. The tank near the house had very little water in it and those arriving before the fire had much headway, had nothing to work with in an attempt to stop the fire. There was very little wind blowing at the time which accounts for the fact that the barn, only a few feet away, was not destroyed.

Mrs. Wharton was on her way to Kerrville at the time. While it is not known how the fire started, it is supposed that it caught from the cook stove, as the kitchen was in flames when the first persons arrived.

HOLLAND-CHAPMAN.

Word reached Junction the first of the week that Clay Holland and Miss Ara Chapman had married in Menard Sunday. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Arnsperger, and the young couple left that afternoon for their new home. Only a few relatives and close friends were present at the marriage ceremony.

Both are well known here and in the northwest section of the county, and have many friends who join in extending the best wishes for a happy and prosperous life.

Mrs. Vera James leaves Monday for Dallas to attend the Dallas Style Show and to purchase stock for the Model Shop. Miss Elizabeth Patterson will take her place while she is away. Miss Joan Wilson will meet her in Dallas and will also attend the style show.

HEYMAN STORE HAS NEW SODA FOUNTAIN

One of the latest and most attractive style fountains is being installed at the Heyman Drug Store this week. An expert mechanic from Dallas is here doing the work.

This fountain, mechanically operated, known as the Frigid Air System, has a capacity of 40 gallons of ice cream in addition to compartments for other fountain equipment. It has two sets of draft arms, allowing two or more sales people to work at the fountain at the same time without interfering with each other. A system of coils, in which carbonic acid gas is circulated all thru the storage compartments, by a 1-4 horsepower motor. Both plain and carbonated water also runs thru a long coil covered with ice and brine, before going into the drinks. The new fountain will add to the attractiveness of the store as well as proving both economical and convenient, both for customers and clerks.

Woman's Missionary Society.

Friday afternoon the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist church held their regular meeting. After the devotional exercises the newly elected officers were installed by Rev. J. Virgil Davis.

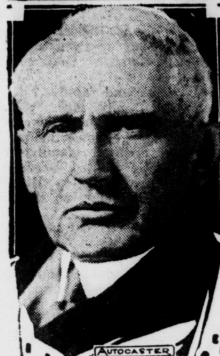

An interesting program from the Missionary Voice was conducted by Mrs. George Caviness, followed by Bible study led by Mrs. J. Virgil Davis.

The society will hold their business meeting next Friday afternoon at the church. All who are interested are invited to attend.

A couple of real estate deals were negotiated here last week. Mrs. A. C. Bissett sold her residence to Mrs. Williams, and purchased a lot from Chris Schraub, located between Mr. Schraub's residence and the Frank Bissett residence.

Uncle Billie McKee is driving a new Buick coupe, recently purchased.

Coming Home to be Secretary of State

Frank B. Kellogg, of Minnesota, is on the high seas enroute to Washington from the Court of St. James at London, where he was serving as U. S. Ambassador. He is to succeed Chas. Evans Hughes (resigned) as Secretary of State, beginning March 4th.

LARGE PUMP PURCHASED.

A large Gould Triplex Pump with a maximum pumping capacity of 15,000 gallons per hour was recently purchased by the Light Water and Telephone Company and delivery made here last week.

The pump weighs more than 4200 pounds and requires from 15 to 20 h. p. to operate. It will be installed within the next few days and will greatly facilitate the concern's ability to supply the town with water. The next big improvement needed is a 6 or 8 inch main to the business part of town.

FUR INDUSTRY GROWING IN COUNTY

Some idea of the revenue derived from the sale of furs can be gleaned from the fact that one of the local buyers, Schreiner-Hodges Co., has done unusually heavy buying during the past few weeks. Mr. Hodges stated to the Eagle reporter Monday that he had bought around $2,500 worth of furs since Jan. 1st, last Saturday being the best day, when more than $950 worth were bought here.

BIG LAND DEAL.

One of the biggest land deals consummated here for some time, and probably the largest cash deal in several years was made yesterday when the Lester Hodges ranch of about 4600 acres was transferred to Dr. Moody of San Antonio. The cash consideration was $34,000 and in addition to this, Dr. Moody purchased 1100 head of sheep from Mr. Hodges at $8. The deal was negotiated thru E. Holekamp of Junction and a realty firm in San Antonio.

Frank McMillan and wife of Calvert were in Junction last week. Mr. McMillan was formerly County Demonstration Agent here and did some splendid work among the farmers and ranchmen while working in that capacity. "Mc's" many friends here were glad to see him again and to learn that he is meeting with fine success in his farming operations.

H. W. Bierschwaile, prominent ranchman from the Noxville country was in town Saturday and says that his section of the county is in fair condition notwithstanding the continued dry weather. While the range is necessarily short, livestock are holding up well, cattle requiring some feeding.

WALSH TO INVITE COOLIDGE WEST

Col. C. C. Walsh, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, believes that President Calles of the Republic of Mexico and President Coolidge of the United States will speak from the same platform for the first time at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Mineral Wells this spring.

Colonel Walsh is going to call on President Coolidge next week and personally present the invitation from this great civic organization and if President Coolidge accepts, he will probably go to Mexico City and urge President Calles to take advantage of this opportunity to visit this part of Texas and to meet President Coolidge.

Colonel Walsh has made arrangements for an audience with the President through Senator

Morris Sheppard. Senator Sheppard wired him today that the audience had been arranged for and that the entire Texas delegation in Washington desired to accompany him to the White House and urge the President to come to Texas this year.

With J. Miles O'Daniel, secretary of the Wool Growers' Central Storage Co., Colonel Walsh will leave on the Orient Saturday night for Dallas and San Antonio and then go to Kansas City, St. Louis and Chicago, before going to Washington. They will visit banks which have been aiding the Wool Growers' Central Storage Co. in financing sheepmen in this section of the country.

In Dallas, Colonel Walsh will speak at 8 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. as a part of the Thrift Week Campaign that is being carried on in Dallas. This campaign was opened last week by an address at the same place by Dr. George Truett and will be closed Sunday week by Dr. Walter Splawn, president of the University of Texas.

In San Antonio he will attend the meeting of the Texas Centennial World's Exposition Directors.—San Angelo Standard.

GUBERNATORIAL QUALITIES?

In an open letter to court reporters from Felix D. Robertson, published in Sunday's Dallas News, the semi-distinguished jurist and erstwhile Ku Klux candidate for governor of Texas, among other things says: "It's idiotic to insist on grand juries setting in judgment on a case and returning an indictment when the same results could be obtained by permitting the district attorney to file information. It's idiotic to permit lawyers to waste time in foolish and useless empanelling of juries. It's idiotic to permit the employment of the 'silent man' to transcribe the deluge of bull, buncome and rot constantly emanating from what we are pleased to call court houses."

The writer is very glad indeed that he is not numbered among the men who voted for such a man for governor of the great state of Texas. Do away with grand juries, court reporters and burn the court houses and trials will be as near secret as any one would attempt to make them. The framers of the Constitution were wise men, and the grand jury clause was incorporated to prevent the private citizen from being the victim of some highly prejudiced district attorney, who, under Judge Robertson's plan, could indict and punish any man that he may dislike. The grand jury is a safeguard that will be maintained, in spite of the learned jurist and court houses will still be courthouses and the court reporters will continue to be necessary evils.—Coleman Democrat-Voice.

Buying GOOD COFFEE

Coffee excellence is coffee flavor. Coffee flavor is in the blend and the roasting. Cost is no criterion of quality. The real test is the flavor—the flavor in the cup.

That is where Sunset has made its thousands of friends. Sunset flavor is complete coffee satisfaction to most folks.

Unlike most things that are completely satisfying, Sunset costs no more than ordinary coffee. Good coffee that is also pleasing to the taste.

Use care in measuring and making, but be sure you use good coffee. Sunset is the favorite of thousands of housewives who are convinced it is the most satisfying coffee they can buy at any price.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES.

It is earnestly hoped that many members will be present next Sunday morning, for after the service a special conference will take place regarding the 1925 campaign.

On February 3rd is our W. M. U. general meeting. "An Afternoon with Lottie Moon"—Mrs. Oren Reid will tell the story of this wonderful woman's life.

A "Buckner Orphans' Party" is planned for the afternoon of Valentines Day. Every woman is asked to get ready, not only her "party frock" but her gifts for the orphans.

To the many folks celebrating their birthdays in January, we truly wish many happy and useful years. The oldest of these being Mrs. J. H. Stephens, who completed eighty years on the 25th, and the youngest Luice Knox, aged three.

We are thankful our flu patients in town are all on a good road to recovery, and it is sincerely hoped that dear little Creighton Reid is doing as well in San Antonio.—Reporter.

School Notes

The mid-term examinations are over at last, and the students can get a good breath. The teachers have most of all the papers graded and Mr. Miller says that the report cards will be given out sometime during the week. He told the students that they mustn't sit down and quit working now that mid-terms are over, for the finals are coming. Work makes all things easy, he says.

Audrey Blackburn left at the beginning of the second term to enter the Itasca High School. Audrey will stay with Miss Jessie Quisenberry, a former teacher of Schiener High School. The high school students, and especially the senior class, miss Audrey's smiling face.

Many pupils have been absent from school the past two weeks, due to illness.

A volley ball and net have arrived and the boys and girls are working hard practicing as they intend to have two winning teams, a boys and a girls, at the Hill County meet this year.

There are many girls working on Declamations for the various meets, but there are only four boys trying. Wake up boys! We want to win the Declamation contests at Kerrville this year.

The Junior Class plays arrived Monday, so the juniors will soon be at work on the plays.

Mr. Miller has only two trying for debate this year, one boy and one girl. He must have 10 more so we can have two debating teams. "Come on students let's get to work." Two new books on debate, briefs and argumentation have been added to the library; also material from Senator Sheppard has arrived.

The Senior Class met Monday afternoon and decided on their class colors, motto, and flower.

The following article taken from an account in the Ballinger Ledger relating to the recent banquet of the Young Men's Business League of that city. Judge Alex Collins of San Angelo and Mark Magee of Brownwood, present Adjutant General of Texas, were among the other speakers on this occasion—Editors note.

Judge Coke R. Stevenson, of Junction, was the second speaker. Judge Stevenson is a native West Texan, spending the greater part of his life in the Menard and Junction country, and he referred to the time when Ballinger was the trading center of such a vast territory to the South and Southwest. Judge Stevenson said that he could recall when Menard received all its supplies from Ballinger, and ever since that time he said he had cherished Ballinger as one of the best towns in Texas.

Judge Stevenson also congratulated Ballinger for her splendid progress, and stated that cities were not accidents, but were the results of the efforts of the citizens who work and strive for better things of life. He pictured how other towns and counties were bidding for trade, bidding for new citizens, and constantly fighting to attract development, and drew an imaginary conflict in which it was Ballinger against the world, or the world against Ballinger, and he appealed to the bankers to co-operate and work to let the outside world know what a good town Ballinger was in which to live.

KEEPING WELL

SHOULD COUSINS MARRY?

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

IS THERE any foundation for our prejudice against the marriage of closely related persons?

In more than a third of the United States marriage of first cousins is forbidden. In Oklahoma not even second cousins are allowed to marry.

Yet in England marriage between cousins is quite common and has been for generations. An Englishman can marry his father's brother's daughter, but until recently he was not allowed to marry his deceased wife's sister, who was no relation to him whatever.

Professor Paul Popenoe, the well-known authority on this subject, says that whether or not cousins should marry depends entirely on the cousins.

Marriage between persons of the same ancestry and the same personal traits tends to produce children with these traits more strongly developed.

If the inherited characteristics are good, the marriage results in better children.

If the inherited traits are bad, then poorer children are the result.

Professor Popenoe concludes that if both interested parties to the marriage are strong and healthy, mentally and physically, above the average, with no bad tendencies in their common ancestors for several generations back, their children will probably be above the average.

But if the cousins are mentally or physically below the average, if their ancestors had undesirable traits, or if any evidences of insanity, feeble-mindedness, liability to disease, eccentricities, or other undesirable peculiarities were present, then their marriage would be inadvisable.

Professor Popenoe's conclusions are in line with what every live stock breeder knows from experience.

The breeder knows that when the parents are carefully selected and all animals with bad traits and physical defects are cut out, there is no quicker or surer way of building up a fine grade of stock than by inbreeding.

On the other hand, the breeder knows that if the parents are defective, low grade or "scrub" animals, the general average of the herd is lowered.

So the answer to the question whether cousins should marry is that it all depends on the cousins. And the best advice to those in doubt is that of Punch—"Don't!"

Rieck's Goat Coat

N. D. Taylor Says:

Vance, Texas, Nov. 28, 1924.
Mr. H. W. Rieck,
Roosevelt, Texas.

Dear Sir:

Replying to your letter regarding the goat coats which I bought last spring, I will say I placed them on 100 does when shorn and let them run with other does. I was delighted to find that the other does in the shed and walk out and feed in the rain. When they came in, they did not hump and huddle, but lay around like unborn goats.

I soon found they were giving more milk and were better than the kids.

At the end of thirty days, when I removed the coats, I was surprised to find they had grown more hair and were in much better flesh than the uncoated does.

I expect to have a coat for every goat I own, and then I can sleep sound.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) N. D. Taylor.

Inquiries are respectfully invited.

The Rising Star X-Ray, purchased last year by our friends, Doc Sellers, formerly of Brady, has made wonderful progress since Mr. Sellers took it over, and in order to carry out the big work Doc has ahead of him, the name was changed on the first of the year to the Rising Star Record, and in commenting on the change Editor Sellers states that new name is a proper one, for the paper is truly a record of events of interest to the citizens of that town and surrounding country.

We are always glad when the Record reaches our exchange desk, and are glad to see that Mr. Sellers is enjoying a splendid business. He is well known here as a fisherman of no little ability and we are looking forward to the time when he will make his annual visit here to camp on the Llanos.—Junction Eagle.

There you go, Grady, getting a fellow's mind off his business. The first paragraph of your editorial is fine, and to the point, as a lawyer friend would say, but when you ring in this thing of fishing on the Llanos you strike us in a vulnerable spot and you know it is a good while 'til spring. Any man who has ever been fishing on those Llanos around Junction just naturally can't keep his mind on business when he gets to thinking about those crystal cold springs, the clear sparkling waters of the rivers with the big bass flopping up, and we believe that Editor Petty should be suitably reprimanded for mentioning fishing out of season.—Rising Star Record.

The House of Burnet still governs the thirty-third judicial district of Texas. Last week Governor Neff set his official seal on the enthronement of another scion of this famous house. When San Saba county Democrats voted for Payton Moses of Burnet for district attorney 23 years ago they little dreamed that they were voting a fee simple title to the office for Burnet county, to be perpetuated thru the appointive power of the governor of the state. The succession to the throne, it develops, is very simple in its operation. One Burnet district attorney gets another job, or gets tired of the office, he resigns and asks the governor to appoint his kinsman, a member of the same law firm, and another son of the house of Burnet is elevated. Apparently no succession to a royal throne in Europe was ever more certain or less precise.

F. H. Hammond of Burnet, member of the law firm of Hammond, Christian & Hammond, was last week appointed by Gov. Neff as district attorney of the 23rd judicial district to succeed George E. Christian, resigned. This kind of politics has gone on in the 33rd district until it has begun to stink to high heaven.

The people of this district may stand for this kind of official perpetuation a long time, may be forever, but Sun-of-a-Gun is brim full of it, and we are guessing the people are going to get fed up on it some of these days. On its face it looks like the governors are using the 33rd district as a training camp for official positions. Dayton Moses served the district for many years. He got a bigger job, took his resignation in his hand, walked into the governor's office and asked him to appoint a law partner district attorney. The governor did it, and Capt. Hammond of Burnet was district attorney. At the end of his term he asked the people to endorse his work. They did it. Capt. Hammond got tired of the job and turned his resignation into the governor and asked that his kinsman and law partner be appointed. The governor did it. Mr. Christian at the next election asked the people to endorse his work. They did it. Now Mr. Christian gets a place under the big Capitol dome at Austin, hands his resignation to Pat Neff and his kinsman and law partner of Burnet is the new district attorney. So far as the practical effect of this method of perpetuation is concerned the house of Hapsburgs, the Hohenzollerns or the Stuarts of Kingridgen, Czar-cursed Europe never had a safer, surer succession to a throne than this law firm has, by this appointive method, to the attorneyship of this district. The people are helpless until the next election. Then it will be their say.—San Saba News.

Camp Wood now has a newspaper. The Leaky Leader, purchased recently by A. W. Hunter, has been moved to Camp Wood and the name changed to the Camp Wood Crony. It will continue to be the official organ of Real County, as publication of a newspaper at Leaky will be discontinued. The first issue reached us this week and is a creditable little paper of four pages and it will doubtless be responsible for advancing the interests of Camp Wood in particular and the county in general to the satisfaction of its patrons in the canyon country.

Mrs. E. H. Sewell and children of Medina and Mrs. Sallie Doubler of Dallas were weekend guests of their brother, W. E. Nance.

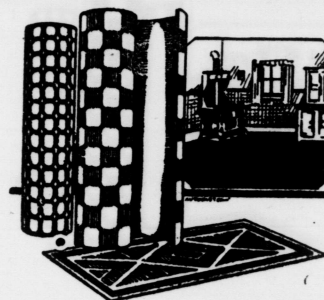

We resolved to give you better service during the New Year, and we hope the people of our community will give us an opportunity to show them the kind of merchandise we sell, and the fair prices we make.

Trade with us during 1925 and we will both profit. Your success is our success. Come to see us.

HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM
—ON—FEBRUARY 19, 1925

The Public will be cordially invited to visit this, the first Style Show for Junction.

During this Style Show an entertaining program will be given by the classes of Mesdames Lee J. Corkill, Jim Moore, H. O. Patterson and Miss Lois Hankins.

ADMISSION FREE

Watch for further announcements in next week's paper.

I have a few good fams, and some city property to offer in trade for Kimble County ranches. If something like that will suit you, see John R. Rennie. The Llano Valley Realty Co.

Mrs. W. W. Allen, who will have charge of a play under the auspices and for the benefit of the Cemetery Aid Society, reports that the date as mentioned in last week's paper will have to be changed as the hall could not be secured for the Monday night following the 22nd. The date will be sometime in February and will be announced definitely in a few days.

Elsewhere will be found an advertisement of the Itz Chrome Tannery of Fredericksburg, which is under the management of Mr. Erwin Itz. While we do not know Mr. Itz, personally, we have made some inquiry and have been informed that he is thoroughly reliable and that the work turned out by this Tannery compares favorably with the best. Along with the letter came a booklet showing the numerous kinds of work they are able to do, and is commendable that Mr. Itz has established an institution of such magnitude right here in the Hill County and it is no longer necessary to send your hides or wild animal pelts to distant places to have them tanned.

ANOTHER FIRE.

The large two-story barn at the W. M. Henderson residence, in the north part of town, was completely destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. The fire was discovered about three o'clock, but nothing could be done, except keep the livestock away from the fire.

About 750 bales of hay, 250 bushels of corn, two or three tons of cotton seed and a large quantity of meat were destroyed in the fire, entailing a loss of several hundred dollars.

O. T. Jarvis of Brownwood is visiting here this week.

H. O. Denman was in San Antonio for the Radio Show last week.

Mesdames T. C. Johnson and Bill Jarrett of Kerrville and Mrs. Dora Carson of S. D. surprised Mr. and Mrs. Henry Murr by arriving for dinner last Wednesday. Mrs. Johnson is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murr, and Mrs. Carson, formerly Miss Dora Johnson, is a granddaughter. Mrs. Carson's little daughter also accompanied them.

Presbyterian Services.

I will fill my appointment at the Methodist church next Sunday at 11 o'clock. The sermon will be a special message on Christian fellowship. Some neglected high points of this Christian grace will be enjoyed with their rich experiences of joy and their religious obligations. Those who can attend will please study in advance the fourth chapter of Philippians. Glad music and glad songs will give pleasure to the happy service.

W. L. Downing.

M. Wilkinson, who has been a valued member of the Eagle force for the past two and one-half years, left Wednesday for San Marcos, where he has accepted a position with the Record. Mrs. Wilkinson and Miss Tyler will remain here for another month. During this time Mr. Wilkinson has made many friends in Junction who will regret his moving away. He has been a very conscientious worker and the management assures Mr. Buckner of the Record that he will find in Mr. Wilkinson a valuable addition to his force.

It is not too early to begin thinking about and planning for a fair this fall, or in the late summer. Kimble County ought to have a big one this year and the organization should be perfected and committees started to work at an early date. We ought to have a fair, open to everyone and should even encourage outside people to enter their livestock, poultry, etc. If we don't have as good breeds in this county as other people do, we ought to know it. Let's start it off and tell everybody we are going to put on a big one, then do it!

Sallie's Temptations

THE NEW SALLIE PUZZLES CURTISS

Coming back from St. Augustine Curtiss Wright was strangely quiet. Several times I tried to break in upon his meditation, but he answered me in monosyllables and I knew his thoughts were distant.

Before lighting from the car he turned to me and said slowly: "I've been thinking, Sallie, that it would be better for me to clear out until your father has completely recovered and work on the settlement can be finished."

"I said nothing. "Walter Hull and his wife have invited me on a hunt at their lodge near Orlando," he continued. "I hadn't thought of accepting, but—"

"Anything NOW is better than being my guest, is that the idea?" I interrupted.

"It isn't quite fair of you to say that and under the circumstances I believe you understand why I am leaving."

"I don't understand anything," I pouted. "I suppose Anne Coddington will be accompanying you on this sort of house-party-in-the-woods arrangement."

"I told me to bring some girl along with me, and if you really think that she'd enjoy it, perhaps I haven't asked her, but they shall pass on to her the invitation."

"I was furious and a rising sense of loneliness crept over my whole being."

He must have felt my unhappiness, for he reached over and took both of my hands in his, saying very gently:

"I know YOU don't want to go, Sallie. I know you don't want to go—the worse kind. There'll be no hot water nor any sort of fluffy-ruffles. Just simple and wholesome, not even a drop of—"

"Oh, but I'd love and adore it. I'm so-o-o tired and sick of everything and everybody. Please please take me with you." The words came in pleading cadence, swiftly tumbling one after the other.

"What?" he exclaimed, "the most sought-after belle in the South begging to go on a camping party? A girl with more scalps at her slender waist-line than a Princess, wanting to go and leave all the suitors and where you'll have to live the gay time for a whole week sweet and simple?"

"But I'm wild about shooting!" I lied glibly, not daring to tell him that my only experience had been with clay pigeons at a State Fair shooting there I determined that I'd show Curtiss Wright I was as good a gallery. But right then and sportsman as Anne Coddington—if it killed me.

All was idleness within the camp that morning. Men and women sat in little groups together, chatting and smoking. There was a spirit of satisfaction in the air that was contagious. The morning needed no set plans to mar its perfection of freedom. In the open spaces the sunlight was a glistening veil that caressed the green grasses and semi-tripical foliage, and, not satisfied with the caress, hovered in waves that were poised and restless.

The shaded places were moss-draped vistas, bowers with dapples of gold dancing on the carpet of shadows, as the leaves above were lifted and buoyed by a breeze that was wine-like in its languor, yet zestful in its exhilaration.

Curtiss sat alone, brooding. Then he left his place, returning quickly with a rifle. He entered the slightly discernable path and I knew he was on his way to the little stream where he had gone every morning while the others waited for the dog's arrival.

I followed. The grasses swishing about his ankles prevented him from hearing my footsteps.

I saw him stop at a giant oak and I saw his gaze fix itself on some feathers across the tiny stream. He was seeng again the sylvan tragedy of the day before. The hawk's swift swoop, the struggle of the wood-thrush—its song strangled by the clawing talons, the majestic sweep of the bird of prey as he lifted his inert victim to the high branches. He saw no more. He had turned away from the rest.

Yes. There were the feathers; the hawk might come again today. He had an unobstructed view of the high perch, unoccupied.

His eyes were trained upon that dead, bare limb where he expected the feathered marauder. His vision was one of sun-drenched leaves and flashing rays of brilliance smote his eyes obliquely. Some minnows disported in the stream, and their bright sides glistened.

His rifle lay by his side, his hands having slid from it. He did not start when I sat beside him, but acted as if he had rather expected me to follow.

"I'm sorry," I said softly. "I don't know what you mean," he replied, looking at me intently. "but then I haven't been able to figure you out since the hunt started. I think you are teasing and yet you seem more demure, more honest, somehow; even your eyes are larger and more open. Right at this moment there is no twinkle, only the wavering depths of sincerity. A new Sallie."

"And you don't think I'm a fraud, coming here under false pretenses?"

"Oh, that," he reminded, smiling slightly. "I knew you couldn't shoot, and that's why you've been even more a brick to put up with all the rough and tumble and not kick about it."

"I told the others we wouldn't go along with them today. I felt like I HAD to be alone with you, Curtiss."

Running Like a Clock!

You have heard it said, "The old boat is running like a clock" and usually it is. However, unless oil has been changed regularly, all bolts tightened, adjustments made, and average precaution taken to keep mechanism in first class condition, the car may be even then piling up damages to parts which eventually are going to be expensive.

The automobile owner who realizes the full value on his investment is the owner who brings his car regularly to our garage for inspection and such necessary repairs and adjustments as are necessary.
