Rail Labor Accepts 10 Per Cent Wage Cut for One Year

YIELD TO DEMANDS OF ROADS AFTER TWO WEEKS NEGOTIATING ESTIMATED SAVING $225,000,000

CHICAGO, Jan. 30. (US)—Representatives of the 2,000,000 railway workers of the country agreed tonight to accept a 10 per cent reduction in wages for one year.

The cut is expected to go into effect Feb. 1.

The decision came after conference among themselves and with the nine presidents representing the railroads of the country which have been in progress here since Jan. 14.

The 10 per cent wage cut is estimated to save the railroads approximately $225,000,000 in the next year, a saving which they insisted was necessary that they might meet their bonds maturing in 1932.

The railway labor executives, who reached the agreement tonight after days of stormy and sometimes bitter debate, will meet at 10 a. m. tomorrow with the nine presidents for the purpose of signing a formal pact.

That there will be no further hitch was the confident belief of David B. Robertson, spokesman for the railway workers. Emerging from the meeting of the labor chieftains tonight to announce the agreement, he said:

Acceptance Expected

"We have unanimously adopted a program which we are satisfied the railroad presidents will accept.

"I am sure that a formal agreement will be consummated when we meet with them tomorrow.

"We have abandoned our reservation asking the presidents to assure us that after the expiration of this agreement that they will not again for a year attempt to impose another reduction."

Robertson refused to say if the workers were making any conditions to the acceptance in the way of asking some sort of a guarantee as to stabilization of employment, conveying the impression, however, that nothing would be interposed which would stand in the way of

CONFERENCE OF OLDER BOYS TO CLOSE SUNDAY

Address by Harry Hines Features Saturday Night Session

SPEAKER URGES CLOSE CONTACT WITH MAKER

Final Program to Be Held At Junior College Auditorium

"Utilizing Intangible Power," Harry Hines told more than 1,500 delegates and visitors at the annual bidistrict older boys' conference at the final Saturday night session at the Memorial auditorium, "is the using of spiritual guidance, that something received from close contact with God."

The meeting was the fifth session of the conference which began here Friday morning and which closes at noon Sunday. The conference, employing throughout the theme of "What God and Christ Expect of the Older Boy," is sponsored in Wichita Falls by the city churches and the Wichita Falls Hi-Y club.

Close Relationship

"Realization of our intangible power comes," the speaker declared "with close relationship with God through secret prayer. To realize and probably use that power means achievement of the highest citizenship. Youth first understands the possibilities of life and then asks God to give assistance and to offer guidance in appreciating the joys of clean livelihood.

"Courage, will power, vision, faith and self-confidence come to the Private Elevator Secretary Lamont Costs $6.35 Daily

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. (US)—It costs Uncle Sam $6.35 a day to get the secretary of commerce up and down stairs in the new commerce department building.

It was disclosed today that the building has a private elevator for the secretary, operated by a woman at $3 per day and guarded by a department policemen at $3.35 per day. The lift is carefully concealed and is the ne plus ultra of elevator luxury.

THREE KILLED TEN INJURED TRAIN WRECK

LURGAN, N. D., Jan. 30. (AP)—Three trainmen were killed and 10 other persons slightly injured when the Great Northern Empire builder plowed through a Milwaukee freight train at a junction here late today.

The engineer and fireman of the Milwaukee freight and the fireman of the Empire builder were killed. The Empire builder engineer was reported not seriously injured.

The Empire builder, eastbound, was running 45 minutes late out of Fargo and had the right of way at the Lurgan crossing which is about two and one-half miles north of Wahpeton.

The Milwaukee locomotive had just hit the junction when the limited crashed into it.

The dead were Gerald O. Ostrander, Fargo, Milwaukee road engineer; Timothy O'Connor, Minneapolis, Milwaukee road fireman, and Burt Kippings, Crookston, Minn., Great Northern fireman.

Mrs. R. J. Young, Fargo, and her 9-year-old son, Robert, were badly injured.

EXPECT COUNTY POLL TAXES TO REACH 11,000

Issue 10,000 Auto Licenses Up to Midnight as Deadline Nears

MONDAY LAST DAY FOR EVADING CAR PENALTY

Long Waiting Lines Confront Tax Collectors Here Throughout Day

The poll tax total for Wichita county appeared likely to exceed 11,000, according to estimates made by members of the tax collector's department late Saturday night.

It was impossible to give an accurate count as reports had not been received from substations at Burkburnett, Iowa Park, Electra and Thrift.

Approximately 10,000 automobile licenses had been issued at midnight Saturday, when Tax Collector Arthur C. Howard closed his office. Unlike poll tax receipts, however, which had to be bought before midnight Jan. 31, automobile licenses can be purchased without penalty until midnight of Feb. 1, and at least 1,500 additional licenses will probably be issued Monday.

Large payments of delinquent city, county, school and irrigation taxes were made Saturday, but no estimates of these could be obtained from overrushed and harried officials. An additional large amount of delinquent tax payments was expected to be placed in the mail Sunday, as the interest and penalty on all back taxes goes back into effect Monday.

County and state current taxes become delinquent Monday as do the first quarterly school tax payment. The two water improvement districts granted a one-month extension for the payment of current taxes and the city gave two months additional time.

Long queues of people waited in front of the county tax collector's office all day Saturday and until past 10 p. m. The other tax collection agencies also had long waiting lines during most of the day.

VALLEY GROUP TO SEEK 5,000 NEW MEMBERS

Mass Meeting Tuesday Will Launch Campaign For Year

DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM WILL BE PRESENTED

All Taxpayers to Be Invited To Give Support to 1932 Plans

With 5,000 members as its immediate goal, the Wichita Valley Development association has called a meeting for Tuesday at 3 p. m. at the Kemp hotel, to get its 1932 program under way.

Reports on what has already been accomplished, announcement of plans for 1932, and election of directors will constitute the program. All persons interested in the valley program are invited to attend.

The Wichita Valley Development association was organized last summer for the sole purpose of speeding up the development of the irrigated project. It was felt that the time had come to get business men and taxpayers interested in the project as a task apart from other civic undertakings. The organization has already accomplished much, as will be shown by the reports to be made Tuesday. The purpose of Tuesday's meeting is to enroll a much larger number of Wichitans in the work.

"We are asking 5,000 taxpayers of Wichita county to join us in this task," A. E. Kelly, president of the chamber of commerce and chairman of the association's publicity committee, said Saturday. "We believe that every one who has to contribute, in taxes, to the support of the irrigation project should be interested in making that project more profitable to Wichita Falls than it has been.

"The membership fee is just one dollar. With 5,000 members, a fund

CRANFILL-REYNOLDS WILDCAT OIL WELL FLOWING BY HEADS

LONGVIEW, Texas, Jan. 30. (AP)—The Cranfill and Reynolds, Rash No. 1 wildcat test well, located in Upshur county 12 miles north of Longview, continued to flow in the heads at noon today. Owners held hopes of obtaining a sustained flow before night. Gas pressure was increasing gradually and indications pointed to a production of possibly 5,000 barrels.

Another test made of the oil strengthened the belief that an entirely new oil pool had been found. If this proves to be the case the East Texas field will be extended nearly three miles to the north. The oil tested 34 gravity, seven points less than that of other oil found in near-by wells.

SENATOR BORAH WARNS ECONOMIC BOYCOTT OF JAPAN WAR-LIKE MOVE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. (INS)—Branding an economic boycott as a war-like measure, Senator William E. Borah, Republican of Idaho, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, this afternoon announced his vigorous opposition to any use of force by the American government to restore peace in China. Other senators have urged such a boycott.

Borah declared he was opposed to an economic boycott against Japan because it would be "more cruel and inhuman" than the Japanese acts which have met widespread condemnation.

Borah said he had received numerous telegrams from peace organizations and Pacifists urging a boycott against Japan.

"Those who are urging an economic boycott on the part of our government seem to look upon it as a peace movement," said Borah. "It would, in my opinion, be a movement of a wholly different character. An economic boycott is in the nature of a threat and might easily be the first step toward war.

"It is the employment of force and often of the most cruel and inhuman kind. Regardless of what one may think of Japan's course and the deplorable situation in Shanghai, a boycott should not be urged by our people."

Borah said he was "not clear about the wisdom" of prohibiting sales of arms and ammunition to China and Japan, as proposed in the Dill resolution. He advanced the reason that "it might easily work to the great detriment of China."

Asked whether he would support the movement for building the American navy up to its treaty strength, Borah said he did not regard the Sino-Japanese affair as a reason for increasing our navy. He indicated he saw no danger of war between Japan and the United States.

The city of Shanghai, now a cosmopolitan armed camp, is shown in this map of the international settlement and adjoining native quarters. Western, northern, central and eastern districts, as well as the French quarter, comprise the international section. With the outbreak of Japanese and Chinese fighting in the native district of Chapei, American marines are guarding the boundary marked "A." British troops are protecting the western district. The old native city, center, is walled and has been further fortified against a Japanese invasion. In the Whangpoo river, where the docks are located, are more than two dozen Japanese war vessels. From Shanghai the river flows eastward to the sea, and at its mouth is the Woosung fort, where Chinese batteries were silenced by Japanese gunboats. Minor Chinese fortifications also extend along the west bank of the Whangpoo in the vicinity of the native city.

Shanghai Situation Filled With Dynamite Floyd Gibbons Says

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Universal Special Cable

SHANGHAI, Jan. 30.—Hello everybody!

The situation in old Shanghai gets rapidly no better tonight, and I want to punctuate the rifle and machine gun fire that's stirring up the air over here with a little explanation.

You see, there's one particular portion of this international mess that finds Uncle Sam out on a limb that may crack at any time.

I don't want our boys brought into this mess. Yank marines are present here to protect American life and property and in performance of that duty the whole 1,500 of this fourth regiment of leathernecks are willing and ready to accept whatever fate awaits.

But they have no interest in helping Japanese troops to invade China.

In accordance with pre-arranged agreement, American marines took their places to help guard and patrol the international settlement. There are representatives of all nationalities in all zones of the concession, but armed patrols, by agreement between their commanders are supposed to confine their movements to the zones assigned to them.

Dangerous Condition

SHIPS COLLIDE IN DENSE FOG

Fail to Locate One of Vessels in Crash

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. (AP)—A collision in a dense fog between the British steamship Kashgar and an unidentified German vessel 30 miles south of Dungeness, England, was reported by the steamer City of Hamburg to the Mackay Radio corporation tonight.

The City of Hamburg reported it heard several short whistle blasts as the German vessel disappeared in the fog. It was unable to ascertain whether the ship had sunk, and said radio stations were attempting to locate it.

The collision occurred at 6:30 p. m. C. S. T., the dispatch said.

Another message from the City of Hamburg to the Mackay corporation at 9:25 p. m. said the Kashgar had proceeded to Southampton, taking in water at the No. 2 portholes. There still was no word from the other ship.

CHINA MOVES CAPITAL TO PREPARE FOR WAR AS JAPS TAKE COLONY

SHANGHAI, Jan. 31. (Sunday) (AP)—Japanese military forces here were increased today by the landing of a carefully concealed number of men from three additional cruisers which arrived from Japan.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 31. (Sunday)—(AP)—Eight "stokes" mortar shells, apparently fired from the Chapei native section, were reported to have fallen within the northern boundairies of the international settlement today, killing one Chinese and wounding a Japanese volunteer.

A young Portuguese was reported slightly wounded by shrapnel and a dozen persons by stray bullets.

Japanese "reservists" in civilian clothes beat Chinese in the Hongkew area of the settlement whose actions appeared to them as suspicious.

The reservists were reported to be extending their occupation along the north bank of Soochow creek in the direction of United States marines, who were patrolling the southern shore.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 31. (Sunday) (AP)—A Scottish company of soldiers was ordered into the business section of Shanghai's international settlement today after a huge Chinese crowd stoned and chased American and British volunteer police through the streets.

Japanese marines and bluejackets, meanwhile, cleared the entire area of Honkew within the settlement of civilians. Foreign lives were endangered when the Japanese opened fire in streets around the Catholic general hospital between the international and French concessions.

Efforts to arrange a truce between Japanese and Chinese forces were ended without definite result in the face of the battle between snipers and Japanese machine gunners across a nearby creek at the edge of the international settlement.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 31. (Sunday)—Japanese airplanes flew over Shanghai this morning and Japanese marines systematically set fire to buildings in the international settlement where they said Chinese snipers were concealed.

Despite Sino-Japanese truce negotiations announced by Japanese authorities, the Japanese marines dicated they intend to continue with their campaign of ruthless terrorism.

The marines surrounded the Hongkew hotel on North Sze Chuen road, a quarter of a mile inside the international settlement, rounded up all guests and servants, and systematically set fire to the building.

Fifteen planes from the Japanese aircraft carrier Kaga cruised about in the edomnstration over the settlement. No bombs were dropped. If explosives had been released, there would have been a massacre, for thousands thronged the streets, attracted by the roar of the engines.

China has decided to make a formal declaration of war against Japan.

In preparation for it the seat of the government was moved for safety today from Nanking to Honanfu, in western Honan province.

Meanwhile Japanese invaders crushed the authority of the international administration of the foreign settlement in Shanghai.

Japanese military rule was made supreme throughout a great slice of the settlement in which the inter-

Presumably the legally insane murderer of Detective Chief Sam Street was heading for the Mexican border.

GREAT BRITAIN JOINS PROTEST SENT TO JAPAN

President Keeps in Close Touch With Acute Situation in Orient

WARSHIPS AUTHORIZED TO PROTECT CITIZENS

Japan's Assurances That Rights Will Be Respected Fall Short

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. (AP)—American warship reenforcements pointed toward China tonight, authorized to go into action if the riotous tumult of death at Shanghai should spread to entrap United States citizens.

While orders for preparedness to lift anchor were flashed to Manila, this government and Great Britain protested emphaticly against the Japanese occupation that has led to ravishment of oriental sections in the opulent seaport.

President Hoover kept even more closely in touch with the acute situation. Early and late he had by his side officials directly concerned with American policy; but neither Secretary Stimson nor Undersecretary Castle divulged his views.

The tensity of the situation was reflected at the capitol, where many of the legislators discussed the potentialities privately but few would otherwise.

One, Senator Borah of Idaho, cautioned against talk of an eco-

Co-Defendants Honolulu Slaying Returned to Custody U. S. Navy Released Under Restricted Bonds

HONOLULU, Jan. 30. (AP)—Mrs. Granville Fortescue and her three co-defendants, the principal characters in the drama of crime that has shocked this "paradise of the Pacific," were returned today to the custody of the United States navy.

Mrs. Fortescue, Lieut. Thomas M. Massie, U. S. N., and two navy enlisted men, charged with second degree murder in the slaying of Joseph Kahahawai, an Hawaiian, were released under bond, but their freedom will be restricted.

Under the terms of Circuit Judge A. M. Cristy's order, the defendants will be restricted to the Pearl Harbor navy yard. Also, they must report daily to Capt. Ward K. Wortman of the navy.

Mrs. Fortescue, prominent in society circles of the eastern United States, provided $5,000 bond while the three navy men put up $2,500 bail each.

Cooperation of the navy with civil authorities in obtaining the release of Mrs. Fortescue and Lieutenant Massie, her son-in-law, and the two enlisted men, E. J. Lord and A. O. Jones, was with approval of Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams.

Traction Company to Give 20-Minute Service Under New Reduced Schedule Release 20 Men From Pay Roll Here

Street car and bus service will be continued in Wichita Falls on a reduced schedule for 30 days as an experiment to determine whether citizens want the service enough to patronize the line, according to an announcement made Saturday.

Twenty employes of the Wichita Fall Traction company will be let off Monday and beginning that day the more important trunk lines will operate every 20 minutes during the rush hours of early morning and late afternoon instead of at 10 and 12-minute intervals as in the past.

Manager L. L. Allbritton said that he had been given full charge by the parent company, the Texas-Louisiana Power corporation, now in the hands of receiver and that he intended to operate on the curtailed schedule for one month.

"If the people patronize the line enough to enable the company to make expenses we will continue to operate," he said. "Otherwise I will be forced to shut down all bus and street car service. We are letting about 20 men go but will endeavor to give regular 20-minute service for the people."

national council, two members of which are Americans, ceased to exercise the slightest semblance of authority.

The Japanese arrested whom they pleased and those held were subject to the decision of the Japanese naval authorities.

From the supposedly neutral ground of the settlement the Japanese based their operations to clear out of Shanghai the Chinese troops that have abruptly halted their advance.

Authorized to Act

American warship reinforcements, pointed toward China, were authorized by Washington to go into action if American citizens were entrapped in the Shanghai disorders.

President Hoover remained in closest touch with developments. Senator Borah cautioned against talk of an economic boycott against Japan, saying such a move "might easily be the first step toward war."

Admiral William V. Pratt announced 40 warships of the Asiatic fleet would protect American residents. Even if the Japanese objected.

"That is our job," he said. "If any one objects, we are very sorry."

Flashlight Signals

In Nanking American residents were ordered to be ready to evacuate on two hours' notice. A system of flashlight signals was arranged to keep United States naval vessels in the Yangtze river informed of developments ashore.

Chinese reinforcements were rained on Shanghai from Nanking. Thousands of demonstrators cheered them as they departed.

Dispatches indicated all China was surging with a demand for a formal war. The defeatism of a week ago was gone.

In Tokyo a war office spokesman said a "terrible responsibility" would rest on the council of the League of Nations if "a world conflagration" were precipitated through its Sino-Japanese policy.

The Paris foreign office announced two French reserve battalions were being held in readiness in Tonkin, China, to protect the French concession at Shanghai.

Paris indicated it would remain aloof from the protest of the United States and Great Britain against the Japanese occupation.

Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain sped toward London from Derbyshire for an important conference expected to settle the British policy. Four homeward bound British destroyers were held in Singapore for others.

Reports of China's impending declaration of war spread alarm among statesmen gathering in Geneva for the disarmament conference Tuesday.

Reports of "serious destruction" by the Chinese along the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria were published in Moscow, but there was no indication the Soviet government, joint owner of the road with China, would become involved in the Manchurian dispute.

Strong Arm Action

By MORRIS J. HARRIS
Associated Press Staff Correspondent
(Copyright 1932, by Associated Press)

SHANGHAI, Jan. 31. (3:15 a. m. Sunday) (AP)—Overriding every protest, the Japanese invaders of Shanghai today trampled down the authority of the supposedly neutral international settlement by occupying a great slice within its boundaries which they used as a base for operations to clear the army of China from the city.

This strong arm action was taken by the Japanese military after news came that the Chinese government at Nanking had decided to make a formal declaration of war.

For the last 12 hours Japanese marines and men in mufti, originally engaged in fighting the Chinese in the native Chapei district, have penetrated into the settlement in small groups.

They took into their firm grip On Hongkew where many Americans live and the wayside districts, known as the Jap section. Throughout this area Japanese military rule was supreme.

Police Without Authority

Settlement police, settlement courts, and every arm of the settlement government, administered by a group of voluntary cooperating nations dedicated to neutrality, ceased to exert the slightest authority.

The Japanese arrested whom they pleased and those they imprisoned were subject to the decision of the Japanese naval authorities, under whose direction the occupation of the international territory was carried out.

One of those seized was an American youth named Kay Johnson. It was reported he was held at Japanese headquarters charged with having sniped on Japanese from a second story window in the Hongkew section. The American authorities were understood to have taken action to bring about his release.

Wave of Lawlessness

Japanese occupation of territory within the settlement came on the heels of a wave of lawlessness which swept over the northern portion of the area yesterday. Armed bands of Japanese roamed the streets, arresting whomever they desired, entering and searching buildings indiscriminately, and keeping up small arms fire that turned the district into bedlam.

Many Chinese, fleeing in terror from the horror of Chapei which still was in flames, were shot at and beaten by those roving mauraders.

Under the firm domination of Japanese naval patrols, order was restored today. Quiet almost was absolute. Virtually no one dared to move.

Shops and dwelling owned by Chinese were barred and shuttered Whether they were deserted no one knew, but it seemed likely their owners had fled away from the menace of the roving bands.

Chapei, where until noon Saturday, Chinese and Japanese troops were locked in sharp fighting, also was quiet early today. Detachments of troops of both sides remained in the section, and there were reports they were reorganizing, rebuilding their shattered positions and preparing for renewed action.

Efforts to Mediate

The American and British consuls general did their utmost to mediate between the Japanese and Chinese commands. Just exactly what success they encountered was not made clear, but it was understood a meeting between the enemy commanders might take place today.

The municipal council, administrative body of the international settlement, was reported to have issued an appeal that the United States and Great Britain send additional troops to safeguard the foreign residents of Shanghai.

A protest against activities of the Japanese within the settlement was presented by the council to Edwin S. Cunningham, United States consul general and senior consular officer in the city.

The municipal council charged the neutrality of the area had been violated and requested Mr. Cunningham to make an accusation before Shanghai's consular body with the view of forwarding the complaint to the governments concerned.

Danger of Attack Grave

Municipal authorities said the danger of attack on the settlement by the Chinese because the Japanese were using it as a base of operations, was grave. Many more American and British troops were immediately necessary, they asserted, to meet this menace. The nearest American forces are at Tientsin and Manila, and there are British troops at Hong Kong. The present American strength in Shanghai is 1,200 men, the British have 2,000 and the French 1,700.

The various foreign communities were getting panicky. Residents complained of divided authority and insufficient troops.

As the conflict continued American interests and American authority became more and more involved.

United States marines, on guard in the international settlement, picked up 14 Japanese, armed with pistols and dressed in civilian clothes who had invaded the American area.

American Rifles in Action

American rifles were brought into action to effect this capture. The trouble started when a marine sentry heard the ping of bullets past his head. The sentry saw two groups of men running away from him and he pursued, firing into the air. He got his men.

A few minutes later eight Japanese, all heavily armed, were arrested in the same vicinity. All the captives were turned over to the municipal police.

A detachment of 100 United States marines was thrown around the plant of the Shanghai Power company, an American property which supplies electric light and power to the entire international settlement and to much of the surrounding territory.

An American destroyer was assigned to a position in the Whangpo river to assist in guarding the plant and to keep an eye on the properties of the Standard Oil company, on the opposite bank.

Search for Helpless

Groups of Japanese—blue-clad marines, reservists and men in civilian clothes—surged through the streets of the north section of the settlement, searching for helpless Chinese.

They encountered thousands of refugees, some of them lucky enough to have rickshaws, some carrying their mean belongings on their backs, and all headed toward sections of Shanghai where they thought they might find refuge.

The Japanese marines, many of them equipped with side-car motorcycles and automobiles, swept the streets with machine gun fire.

Their work was finished by Japanese in civilian clothes swinging clubs and baseball bats.

These invaders declared they were searching for snipers but how they separated snipers from the civilian population was not apparent. They broke into stores and dwellings hunting for hidden Chinese, neither bolts nor barricades stopped them, and how many deaths occurred behind the shuttered building fronts was impossible to determine.

The refugees from Chapei, terror stricken from hours of dodging air bombs and machine gun bullets and from the conflagration that had devastated their part of the city, thronged into the refuge of the international settlement. Many of them were bandaged and blood-smeared.

These hapless ones flung themselves on the ground or into whatever corners they might find where they might have a chance for a little undisturbed rest.

The exodus from Chapei was terrible to witness. Family groups of three and four clung together, clutching the bundles in which they had wrapped whatever valuables they might own. Children wailed, grandfathers and grandmothers limped along mourning for the members of their family killed by Japanese bullets and bombs and by the fire that swept away their homes.

A message to the American people, urging them to advocate justice in the Far East, was published by a group of Chinese societies, including the Universities union, the Chinese Institute of Pacific Relations, the Pen club, the Y. M. C. A., the China Critic and the Chinese Students federation.

(By NEA Service)

Shanghai, the "world's newest powder keg," is the commercial and financial capital of China's 400,000,000 people, and a city of vast importance in world trade as well as in China's economic affairs. Its strategic position at the basin of the Yangtze river makes it practically the only outlet for foreign trade for 180,000,000 people.

As a place of contrasts, it is perhaps without an equal in the world. Its population of 3,000,000 is a strange mixture of western enterprise and oriental squalor. It is the fifth largest port in the world, the largest in Asia, and the major link between China's teeming millions and the western world.

More than 60 per cent of all Chinese cotton mills are situated there. Workers employed by these mills number more than 125,000.

Silk cloth, shipbuilding, iron and steel, cigarets, and many other products are turned out in vast quantities by Shanghai's manufacturing plants.

Called a western city in China, Shanghai nevertheless numbers less than 40,000 foreign inhabitants among its three millions, and nearly half of these are Japanese. British subjects in the international settlement number more than 7,500 and Americans are estimated at 1,800. Population of the international settlement and the French concessions, which are governed separately, is approximately 1,500,000, and most of the city's industries are there.

BRITAIN JOINS IN PROTEST TO JAPAN

Fleet in Readiness

After conferring with Secretary Stimson, Admiral William V. Pratt announced the orders for the Asiatic fleet to be in readiness to evacuate Americans in China "or to protect them if a crisis arises where mob rules prevail."

He said the two-score warships of the fleet will take "whatever steps are necessary to protect our people," even if the Japanese objected. His words were:

"That is our job. We can't draw any line as to who objects. If any-one objects, we are very sorry."

In the midst of developments, Secretary Stimson urged the American forces at Shanghai to exercise every forbearance and conciliation to avoid armed conflict with the Japanese.

A renewal of assurances from Japan that international rights at Shanghai would be scrupulously respected fell far short, in view of the havoc by bullets, bombs and fire progressively wrought at the seaport. The protest followed.

In this, Washington and London dealt not alone with rights in the treaty-protected settlement but also sweepingly opposed Japanese action in the whole port.

It was based on the contention that the Chinese had agreed to Japan's demands and then the Japanese had acted to take over the native city without warning.

Positions at Odds

The American and Japanese positions on the taking over of the native city were shown by the American protest to be sharply at odds. Ambassador Debuchi told Secretary Stimson today that the dispatch of Japanese forces into the native city had been on the basis of a previous arrangement with municipal authorities of the international settlement. The American position was that the Japanese action endangered the whole port of Shanghai and was unjustified in view of China's acceptance of Japan's demands.

Substantiating the position of the American government was an appeal by the municipal authorities of Shanghai in filing a protest with the powers against the Japanese action.

The fears of the American consulate at Nanking for the lives and safety of Americans there and at Wuhu were expressed in dispatches to the navy department tonight asking that war vessels be sent to the two points.

SHANGHAI FILLED WITH DYNAMITE

sending motor trucks loaded with Japanese marines and irregulars on patrol through the zone and the area assigned to American forces. And if you don't think such a condition is packed with dynamite, just ask any legion pal you meet.

It means just this:

If the Japanese patrols attack Chinese within the American zone, then the Chinese residents will naturally believe that Americans are working in conjunction with the Japanese in the present hostilities—which is distinctly not the case.

At the same time, if the Japanese invade the Chinese city from the American zone, kill and burn and then retire behind the American lines—well, what can the Chinese think then about American neutrality in this squabble?

If the Japanese patrols and the American patrols are not speaking the same language, and the former are both truculent and unfamiliar with American regulations—if these patrols have clashed last night or tonight—if anger and heat and darkness should bring such misfortune tonight or tomorrow night, then what?

Previous Disorder

It happened just like that between American and Japanese soldiers in Peking in 1915 and again in Siberia in 1918 and it might happen here in Shanghai right now.

So great is this danger that both American military and consular authorities as well as the Shanghai municipal council have protested to the Japanese commanders against violation of the zone agreement and the Japanese have promised to discontinue the practice. But they have not and today the protests are being renewed.

I'm going out there to the sandbags in the Yank marine dugout on the Soochow creek tonight to smoke up another yarn for you tomorrow, and until then, I'm shoving off.

BRITISH NAVY CONTINUES SEARCH FOR SUBMARINE

PORTLAND, England, Jan. 30. (AP)—The navy continued today its search for the lost submarine M-2 which sank Tuesday off the coast here although all hope that any of the members of the crew of 60 might be saved has been abandoned.

Divers worked all last night with the aid of powerful searchlights. Objects have been found on the floor of the channel frequently but in each case they proved to be old and forgotten hulks of former tragedies.

Fifteen naval vessels continued to patrol the west bay and instructions received from the admiralty department said the M-2 must be located at all costs.

WORLD FEELS VIBRATIONS OF JAPANESE GUNS

VARIOUS SPECULATIONS AFLOAT IN WASHINGTON

Japan's Status Among Civilized Nations Undergoes Change

By BYRON PRICE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. (AP)—International relationships the world over are feeling vibrations from the Japanese guns at Shanghai, but present signs forecast for the United States an eventual diplomatic readjustment rather than actual war.

Plenty of rumors of war were abroad today in the capital. On street cars, in barber shops and down the corridors of government buildings John Jones was asking Bill Smith, half-seriously, if he was ready to enlist. Washington at large had just a touch of that air of hushed expectancy which characterized the critical days of '17.

These rumors and speculations found no substantial basis among responsible officials. Congress alone can declare war, and although the leaders there would say nothing publicly, they agreed privately they saw no prospect of such a step.

Among administration officials, too, the dominating note was one of confidence that the situation would be solved with only such use of armed force as may be necessary to guard American citizens and property in the war zone.

Japan Reprimanded

In the wider field of world diplomacy, however, readjustments of the widest significance now are in the making. This aspect officials will not discuss at all, but the evidence of shifting relationships now lies plain on the surface of passing events.

First of all, Japan's status in the company of civilized nations has undergone a radical change.

She has been told rather bluntly by the United States that she has violated her word, as pledged in the nine-power treaty and in the anti-war treaty. She has been told by inference both by the United States and Great Britain, that, if necessary, she will be dealt with by force.

Since the Washington conference in 1922 American faith in the stability of the far east has rested on a conviction that Japan would keep her engagements. One great pillar of the faith was the nine-power treaty, in which Japan and all of the other great powers agreed to respect China's integrity. Not a single one of those powers followed the lead of the United States when it invoked that treaty, nor when it appealed to the anti-war pact.

Guarantees Futile

Thus has the Washington government not only found futile the guarantees of peace it depended on in the Pacific, but it has seen the older policy of the open door of economic opportunity in China seriously threatened. Its whole outlook there has clouded.

Meantime, puzzling signs have appeared elsewhere. France a cosponsor of all these pledges, is refusing to manifest the slightest interest in recent developments. Russia, traditionally jealous of every political move in Manchuria, has looked on without raising a finger as that province passed under Japanese control.

Many unofficial reports of Japanese-French and Russian-French understandings have reached Washington. Officials have not commented, but they plainly have been surprised and mystified as one after another of their hopes were trodden under foot.

Only to a lesser degree has this disappointment been apparent with respect to Great Britain, whose present difficulties at home are recognized. After the Anglo-Japanese alliance was ended in 1922, the world generally believed the American and British navies never would be found far apart in the event of trouble in the Pacific. Japan has played her trump card, however, at a time when the possibilities of British cooperation are limited.

All in all, a sweeping resurvey and realignment of the world situation seems inevitable when the present trouble is over.

This chronology-map shows how Japan's troops, utilizing the most modern methods of warfare, swept swiftly and steadily through Manchuria in the last four months before threatening to occupy Shanghai in China proper as a reprisal for anti-Japanese boycotts. Seizing Mukden in the first real conflict with Chinese soldiers, the Japanese drove northward through the Nonni river district to Anganchi and Tsitsihar. Then came the "big push" through many cities to the west, reaching a climax in the capture of Chinchow. Meanwhile, street fighting broke out in many Chinese cities and an American mission at Tientsin was shelled. Now the United States has taken steps to protect citizens in the foreign settlement at Shanghai.

sufficient for the detail work that is planned will be available, and the association can assure every member that this money will be wisely spent. The association is working out a plan whereby competent farmers will be located on 40-acre tracts, on terms that will enable them to become owners. The landowners are cooperating in this plan, and most of the money to be raised will be spent in furthering this particular phase of the year's work. We hope that every Wichita Falls property owner will join.

"Each individual, firm and corporation will have only one vote, regardless of the number of memberships purchased."

The meeting will be called to order by B. B. Greever, president, who will give a report on what has been accomplished so far. The plan for locating farmers on the 40-acre tracts will be explained by H. A. Gray Jr., secretary, and the membership plan will be explained by Mr. Kelly. The constitution and bylaws, recently approved, will be read by J. H. Allison, and directors for 1932 will then be elected. Dillard Anderson will give a report on pledges of land and improvements and on the ownership program. J. N. Sherrill will report for the marketing committee, on the recent auction sale, the plans for a livestock exchange, the turkey market and the cantaloupe sign-up.

Officers of the association hope to give great impetus to their 1932 plans at this meeting.

MUNDAY CITY COUNCIL CUTS SALARIES EIGHT EMPLOYES $135 MONTH

MUNDAY, Texas, Jan. 30.—F. N. Warren, member of the city council, resigned at the regular weekly council meeting tonight and his resignation was accepted. Mr. Warren said he planned to move away from Munday in the near future and no longer had time to devote to his official duties.

The council ordered reductions in the salaries of eight city employes totaling $135 per month. The minimum monthly charge for water and sewage service was also reduced from $2 to $1.50.

MAY REGISTER TEST VOTE ON RELIEF MONDAY

Plan to Take Up Measure Proposed by LaFollette

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS RESERVING JUDGMENT

Administration Leaders to Attempt to Prevent Consideration

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. (UP)—The senate may register a test vote on the question federal aid for employment relief Monday.

This may indicate whether the eagerness with which congress recently voted to help business with a $2,000,000,000 stimulant also extends to giving federal money to help feed clothe and shelter destitute unemployed.

The vehicle is the LaFollette-Costigan bill to appropriate $375,000,000 to be distributed to states for unemployment relief. Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, intends to call it up Monday. Administration forces are expected to attempt to prevent it from being taken up.

Democrats Reserve Judgment

Democrats are reserving judgment. The Democratic steering committee has appointed a subcommittee to study the measure. Minority Leader Robinson said:

"Whether the senate proceeds Monday or refrains from taking up the bill, I believe it may be desirable to recommit it to the manufacturers committee."

This measure brings into conflict those who believe the federal government must assume direct responsibility for welfare of its citizens in emergencies and those like President Hoover who believe the individual must look to his city or state for direct help while the federal government seeks to improve general conditions by aiding business. Why the federal government should help a bank or a railroad but not a starving family is the question LaFollette will press his opponents to answer.

Fund of $375,000,000

The LaFollette-Costigan bill would set up a fund of $375,000,000. Forty per cent of this would be distributed in the next 18 months to states on a basis of population. New York would rate $15,439,000; Pennsylvania, $11,812,000; Illinois, $9,358,000; and others in proportion.

These maximum amounts would be provided only if states increased their own relief funds sufficiently. They could obtain from the federal government two-thirds as much as they themselves provided, and not more than 40 per cent of the increased expenditures they made for relief as compared with the normal year 1929. Private contributions would be counted in such totals.

The remaining $225,000,000 of the federal fund would be distributed to states which certified, with supporting evidence, that their own efforts and the previous federal grants were not enough. A federal emergency relief board would scrutinize expenditures to guard against waste.

Some insist these advances be loans instead of outright gifts as the bill provides. Others urge that governors of states certify to need before advances are allowed.

Some brand the proposal as a "dole."

CHEEK DECLINES TO DIVULGE NATURE OF MISSION IN CHICAGO

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 30. (INS)—Maurice Cheek, asistant attorney general, left today for Chicago on an unexplained mission for the state.

In the absence of the attorney general, Cheek declined to divulge the nature of the investigation, but it was reliably reported it would bear upon the transportation and sale of Texas natural gas in Illinois.

Recently independent operators of the Panhandle section, source of pipe lines to the East, protested that major companies there were refusing to take their gas equitably as provided for by state law. There also have been charges made concerning the price paid for gas in the Panhandle as compared to its re-sale price at terminal.

Cheek admitted he would visit Springfield, Joliet, and other Illinois cities.

CONGRESSMAN GUINN WILLIAMS ANNOUNCES REELECTION AFTER NAME CERTIFIED TO CHAIRMEN

By CHARLES S. HAYDEN
Daily Times Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Representative Guinn Williams has decided to again be a candidate for congress from the 13th district of Texas, subject to the action of the Democratic primaries next summer. This rescinds the announcement made by him at the close of the last congress when he stated that he did not expect to again seek reelection.

The announcement of his intention to make the race this year is being sent out to friends in the district and is in direct response to requests from them. Ever since congress reconvened Representative Williams has been receiving letters and messages from friends throughout the district insisting that he reconsider and again make the race. Finally several of them declared that if not granted they intended to act without such authority and proposed to draft him

Petitions Circulated

In fact, such steps already have been taken and petitions have been circulated in a majority of the counties in the 13th district to place his name on the ballot.

Congressman Williams feels that if his friends who have repeatedly honored him in the past feel as strongly as this he cannot in justice to them and to himself further ignore their demands. More than that, he recognizes that, with the Democrats now in power, he is in position to be of greater service to his district and consequently, today is sending out the following notice:

"When the present congress convened on the first Monday in December, as is well known, the Democrats organized the house and elected the Honorable John N. Garner of Texas speaker. Inasmuch as congress operates under the rules of seniority in service, Texas automatically was awarded chairmanship of six major committees, an honor and distinction that seldom comes to one state. I became chairman of the committee on territories and ranking member on the committee on insular affairs, another major committee. My friends at home and my Democratic colleagues here assert that this places me in a position to render a real service to the people of my district, state and nation.

Influenced by Change

"When I announced last year that I would not be a candidate this year the Democrats were in the minority, the Republicans controlled the house by over 100 majority, and the most optimistic thought there was no prospect of the Democrats organizing the house. Since this change in affairs has come about many of the people in the district have written, wired and petitioned me to become a candidate for congress this year, saying that I am now in position to render the maximum amount of service. These solicitations have reached the point where some of my friends have availed themselves of the provision of our election law and upon their petition I understand my name will be placed upon the official ballot as a candidate for congress in the coming primary election.

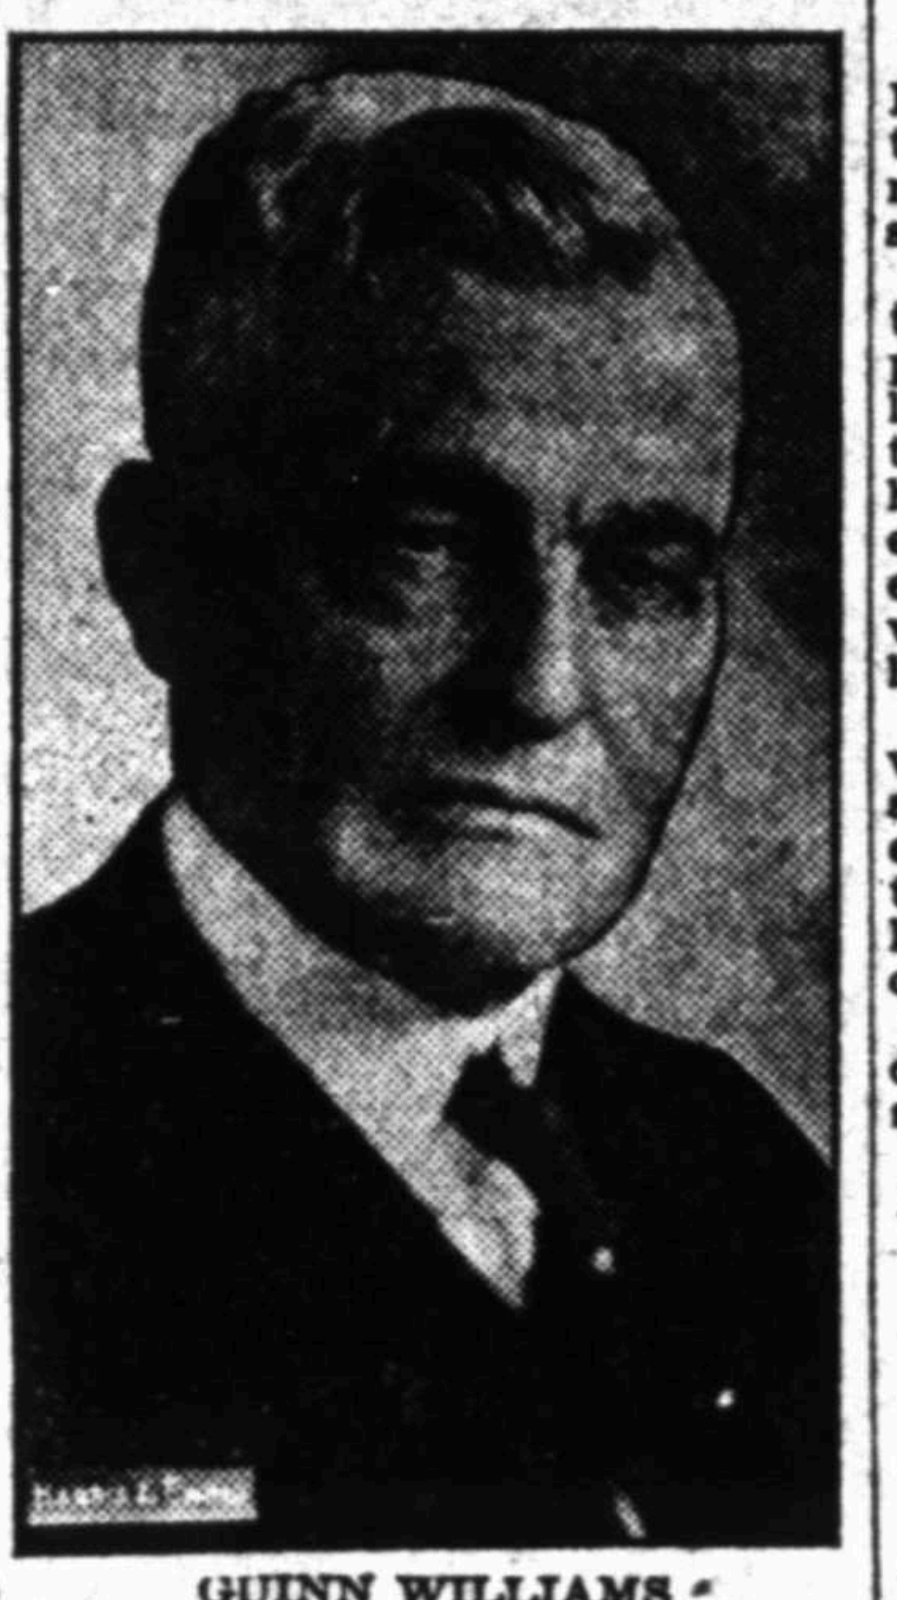
"These solicitations are too numerous and respectful to be disregarded. I can not be insensible to the position in which I am now placed to render a service to my people, and being deeply grateful to each and every one of my friends for this manifestation of their confidence and esteem, I hereby announce my candidacy for re-election to congress from the 13th congressional district, subject to the Democratic primary election to be held on July 23, 1932.

"In politics a man is as weak or as strong as his friends, and while I am depending upon the active support of my friends, I will return to the district in time to make an active campaign and to give an account of my stewardship."

Name Certified

Leslie Humphrey, as chairman of the Democratic executive committee of the 13th district, Saturday sent letters to the Democratic county chairmen in the district, certifying the name of Guinn Williams as a candidate for nomination for congress.

This certification followed the filing of petitions from Democratic voters in every county in the district, asking that the name of Williams be placed upon the ballot in the July primary.



GUINN WILLIAMS

Mr. Williams announced last summer that the condition of his health would make it necessary for him to retire from congress at the end of his present term. His health has greatly improved in the meantime, and with Democratic control of congress, he has become chairman of several important committees and his opportunities for service have greatly increased, his friends declare.

Chairman Cites Law

District Chairman Humphrey, in his letter to the county chairmen, cites article 3112 of the revised statutes of Texas which sets forth that upon petition of 25 qualified voters of the district it becomes the duty of the district chairman to certify the name of the person named in the petition upon the official ballot.

The petitions state that Mr. Williams is affiliated with the Democratic party, that his present occupation is that of representing the district in congress, that he is a banker by profession, that his residence is at Decatur in Wise county.

The petitioners further declare that they are filing their request because:

"First—We wish to have a well-informed man of long experience, good judgment, energy, integrity, and influence to represent this district in congress during this period of financial depression when every character of 'nostrum' will be presented in congress as a 'cure all' of the numerous problems confronting us.

"Second—Because every indication gives us assurance of a national Democratic victory in the general election next November, which would give the Democratic party the presidency and the majority of both branches of congress. Guinn Williams, our congressman, owing to his length of service in congress, is chairman of major committees and in this position, he can and will render distinctive service to the nation, in addition to the honor and prestige it gives to Texas in the national capitol."

Roosevelt's Entry May Force Smith To Show His Hand

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 30. (AP)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's entry into the Massachusetts presidential primary may force Alfred E. Smith to show his hand.

If Smith intends to contest with the governor for the Democratic presidential nomination, it was believed here he could not pass up the opportunity of gathering in the heavy block of votes in Massachusetts, a state where he is considered especially strong. To get these votes he would have to enter the lists against Roosevelt.

The former governor has not revealed his plans but reports that he and Governor Roosevelt had broken are based largely on the assumption that the 1928 candidate is at least receptive to the idea of another nomination.

Roosevelt gave permission yesterday to enter his name in the Bay state primary, set for April 28.

Victory Monument Of Ancient Ruler Mayas Discovered

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. (AP)—A "victory monument" of some ancient Indian ruler, carved long before the days of Columbus, has been discovered to add knowledge of the lost empire of the Mayas of Central America.

Finding of the monument on the site of the old Maya metropolis of Chichen Itza in Yucatan, Mexico, was announced today by the Carnegie Institution of Washington. It is a stone platform, beautifully sculptured and painted.

The design represents 17 elaborately costumed prisoners bound with ropes approaching an armed rule who stands on two prostrate human figures. The scene is framed by four plumed serpants.

The platform is described in the Carnegie institution's announcement as the best of its type so far uncovered at Chichen Itza. It is believed to have formed the base of an altar. The design is interpreted as perhaps commemorating the victory of some Mayan chief in war. The plumed serpents are symbolic of one of the Maya gods, who was always represented in this form.

The exact age of the platform is unknown, but it was found in the group of ruins which includes the temple of the warriors, dated at about 1200 A. D. It was discovered by Karl Ruppert, archaeologist of the Carnegie institution, who is directing excavations at Chichen Itza.

WICHITA FALLS MAN TO ATTEND GOODYEAR MEETING IN DALLAS

E. A. TALMAGE

E. A. Talmage, sales representative for the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company in Wichita Falls and surrounding territory, is leaving shortly for Dallas where he will attend one of the largest conferences of the year in the automobile tire industry.

The conference will be held at the Adolphus hotel, Feb. 3-4, and will be signalized by the presence of President P. W. Litchfield, who in addition to being an outstanding figure in the rubber industry, is directing the construction of the ZRS-5, sister ship of the U. S. S. Akron, recently completed for the navy.

Mr. Litchfield, who has been connected with the rubber industry since his graduation from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1896 and who joined Goodyear four years later as superintendent, is making first-hand study of dealers' problems and of car owners' interests.

The conference will last two days and cover various phases of merchandising and distribution. R. S. Wilson, vice president in charge of sales; J. E. Mayl, manager of tire sales; W. H. Miller, division manager; H. E. Blythe, assistant to the president, and other company executives will attend the session.

An interesting figure is Litchfield, one of the first technical men attracted to the rubber industry. He set up a small laboratory and designed the first Goodyear automobile tire. Going up the ranks as factory manager, vice president, and president since 1926, he has in that period directed the construction of nearly 200,000,000 tires, the largest number credited to any individual in the world, and from his experience as a production leader won the name in the industry of the tire master.

NIGHT RIDERS TERRORIZE NEGRO TENANT FARMERS

HUMBOLDT, Tenn., Jan. 30. (AP)—Bands of night riders are terrorizing negro tenant farmers in the Fruitland and Edison communities, near here, officials disclosed today.

Sheriff Bradshaw said the riders had posted warnings on the homes of the tenant farmers that they "must leave the community in 10 days."

"Some white farmers, unable to pay farm rent, are trying to force out the negro tenants in order to get their places," the sheriff added.

One man has been arrested under an old night riding statute.

In spite of efforts of newspapers in many cities and various public and private institutions to arouse the American people to the perils of motor traffic the year 1931 rolled up in the United States the red total of 34,400 persons killed and 997,600 injured, a casualty list equaling the entire population of the state of Colorado.

This was an increase of 3.3 per cent in the number of fatalities over the previous year, despite a decrease of motor vehicle registrations of about 2 per cent. The 15-year record of street and road deaths, from 1917 to date, shows a total of 309,835, which is the most ghastly waste of human life in normal times in the annals of civilization. The annual motor traffic death rate has more than doubled in 10 years. The almost certain prospect is that thousands more will be killed in 1932 than lost their lives in 1931, for nothing that is effective is being done to curb the evil.

Accidents Increase

I am able to announce these sickening statistics from information privately gathered by actuarial experts of the Travelers Insurance company and brought down to the last hours of 1931.

The investigators find that at least nine out of every 10 motor vehicle accidents last year resulted from human errors of drivers and pedestrians.

The figures reflect the fact that increased speed was in considerable measure responsible for the upward trend in deaths and the greater severity of non-fatal injuries in the year, the latter shown by the fact that 41 per cent of the non-fatal cases were reported as "serious," whereas this number in the previous year totaled only 36.5 per cent. Accidents last year were somewhat fewer than in the previous year, but deaths were in increased number. Interpreted, these facts are taken to mean that automobiles are being driven more rapidly and when they crash naturally do more damage.

Newspaper men who are everywhere confronted by local phases of this social monstrosity will, I feel sure, be interested in the following classification of fatal and non-fatal cases as reported for the whole country last year:

Collision With—	Number of Accidents	Per Cent Injured
Pedestrian	315,000	36.6
Automobile	402,100	46.8
Horse-drawn vehicle	5,900	.7

Causes of Tragedies

It will be observed that the principal cause of death is that an automobile has struck a pedestrian. The second chief fatality cause is that an automobile has collided with another automobile. Running off the road, tipping over and other accidents of the kind, all non-collision cases, formed the third fatal rank. Collision with some fixed object, like telephone poles or trees, was the fourth most disastrous type. Collisions with railroad trains do not happen as frequently, there being only 4,300 such disasters, but when this does occur the result is terrible, 1,480 men, women and children having thus met their mortal fate.

Many practical lessons to automobile drivers, and those who are trying to cope with this national horror, are to be found in these statistics.

Of all accidents occurring last year by far the largest number were caused by drivers who committed some one of the following nine cardinal faults in driving:

(1) Drove where they did not have the right of way; (2) exceeded the speed limit; (3) drove on wrong side of the road; (4) drove off the road; (5) met disaster while turning to the left; (6) drove recklessly, without looking ahead or with proper concern either for their own safety or the lives of others; (7) cut in; (8) skidded, probably due to indiscreet use of brakes; (9) were hit or hit some one else while stopping or slowing down.

Of course, nearly every one who has an accident also has an alibi, but the authorities who record automobile cases say that these nine causes are responsible for the bulk of road disasters. Other bad driving practices, which have resulted in fatal accidents, are given as: Failure to signal properly, backing without looking, parking on the side of the road or stopping in the track, passing on the wrong side, passing on hill or curve and passing a standing street car.

The astounding fact is that if drivers would keep the established rules of the road, drive under controllable speed, and keep their wits about them, there would be relatively few accidents.

It is a commentary upon the American temperament that 18.5 per cent of 645,000 analyzed accidents resulting in death or injury can now be traced back to the action of the drivers in directing their cars where they had no right to be, "beating the light," trespassing in some manner on forbidden ground. Think, also, of the fact that the 1931 figures show that 6,390 people were killed and 66,100 hurt by drivers who ran off the roadway. Once in a while this might happen accidentally, but behind those gruesome figures must lie a terrible guilt of carelessness. Speed maniacs of the country, last year, killed 3,920 persons and injured 76,500. My friend, G. D. Newton, former newspaper man, now expert on automobile accidents for the Travelers, puts this matter interestingly: "To gain a minute of time on the road a driver exceeds the speed limit and dies in an accident. It is a terrible gamble, at odds of 1 to 17,000,000, for the latter number constitutes the probable total number of minutes of life expectancy of the average man in such circumstances. This goes on nearly every day, but the average man would not think of risking 17,000,000 dollars to gain one."

It is my observation that there is more indignation in this country over accidents to pedestrians than to automobilists. There are vital reasons for this. The pedestrian is in a rather pitiable situation on the street or road. He has no bumper guards to protect his skin. He cannot move as rapidly as an automobile. He may have faults, such as looking down and variously disregarding traffic rules, but the burden of responsibility usually does not lodge with him. Then, too, he was the chief victim last year, as we have seen. There are records of more than 2,500 persons killed while walking on rural highways last year, mainly because they permitted two cars to come abreast of them, or walked in the dark without a light. But the worst havoc was the city streets. Crossing between intersections was the most frequent fatal mistake, though more than 20 per cent of all pedestrians killed were struck at street intersections. Children playing in the streets compose 11.8 per cent of the total casualties among pedestrians in the whole country. Newspaper editors who wish to warn their readers against accidents to pedestrians should stress the following:

Don't cross streets between intersections, for 3,920 persons were killed and 76,390 hurt that way last year.

Don't let children play in streets open to automobile traffic.

Don't walk against signals.

Don't keep your eyes on the ground, especially when coming from behind a parked car.

Don't take chances on rural roads.

Don't cross intersections diagonally.

Don't risk your life to gain 30 seconds.

Child Victims

My insurance informants at Hartford gave me an immense volume of findings from their statistics. To conserve space I shall record some here in question and answer form:

Q.—"How much are children victimized by motor accidents?"

A.—"More than 20 per cent killed last year were under 15, but more than 60 per cent of fatalities were among persons in the prime of life."

Q.—"What is the nature of most of the injuries?"

A.—"The record shows 72,480 bone fracture cases, 160,020 sprains, dislocations and wrenches, 314,910 general shock with contusions and lacerations, 426,330 slight shock and shakeup, 8,710 fractured skulls, 420 broken spines, 6,290 brain concussions and 8,440 internal injuries."

Q.—"How about types of brakes?"

A.—"Among 1,281,400 vehicles in accidents, 24.2 per cent had two-wheel brakes and 75.8 per cent four-wheel brakes."

Q.—"How fast is an automobile going when traveling at 60 miles per hour, if you can make a comparison?"

A.—"Traveling at 60 miles an hour it has the same capacity for inflicting damage that it would have if it were falling to a street from the top of a building 120 feet, or 10 stories high."

Q.—"What are the most dangerous days for driving?"

A.—"Last year 151,000 accidents happened on Sunday, 149,000 on Saturday, while the average for the other days of the week was around 112,000."

Q.—"What are the most dangerous hours of the day?"

A.—"Between 5 and 6 p. m. But notice that more than 10 per cent of the deaths occurred on streets and roads between 1 and 6 a. m."

Q.—"Suggesting boozy drivers?"

A.—"Sobriety is essential in safe driving."

Q.—"How about types of cars?"

A.—"There were 31,640 passenger cars, 6,060 commercial cars, 660 taxis, 450 buses, 910 motorcycles and 90 others in fatal accidents."

Q.—"How about the 'terrible woman' driver?"

A.—"Not as terrible as reputed. In fact, she is only about 25 per cent as dangerous as her brother. Among 7,600,000 drivers of both sexes a same was involved in a personal-injury case for every 21 male drivers licensed, where as a female was involved in a personal-injury accident for every 86 females registered."

Q.—"How about the age of drivers?"

A.—"Drivers under 20 do the most damage, 39 out of every 1,000 being involved in accidents last year. Only 18 out of every 1,000 persons of 50 years or older were in accidents."

Q.—"Are inexperienced drivers dangerous?"

A.—"No, the vast bulk of drivers in accidents have had a year or more at the wheel. Few new drivers, being naturally cautious, are involved. This is another proof of recklessness."

Q.—"Are most accidents on wet or icy surfaces?"

A.—"No. The bulk are on dry roads, in full daylight. Less than 3,000 fatal cases involved snow or rain."

Q.—"The property loss must be heavy?"

A.—"As a consequence of motor vehicle accidents last year the loss was about $2,500,000,000, which is more than the annual cost of the public school system, five times the national fire loss, costing the American people $20 per capita."

Q.—"In view of 2 per cent fewer registrations in 1931, due to hard times, the higher death total is in spite of lessened road operation, I take it?"

A.—"This seems to follow, though you must remember that gas consumption for the year increased 4 per cent. So cars in operation must have covered greater distance."

National Horrors

After reading this account of our banner national horror, worse year by year, one might consider these additional significant facts: Only nine states protect their citizens by having operators' license laws with mandatory examination of new drivers, state police or state highway patrol forces and to some extent regulation of motor cars on roads and streets. So, as a matter of fact, dangerous motor traffic may be said to be uncontrolled by the vast majority of states. Of course, cities do attempt to control traffic, but with such success as the 1931 death and injury roll eloquently attests.

E. Raymond Cato, chief of the highway patrol of California, states: "Control of accidents rests in coordination of three great factors: (1) engineering; (2) enforcement; (3) education." It seems to me that most cars are safe from an enginerring standpoint, though passenger cars are made to run too speedily for safety; enforcement of law is a questionable matter in this amazing day when a uniformed grafter is so common as no longer to excite comment; education is the obvious need. This writer still insists it is a job for the American press.

BURKETT PROTESTS PLAN MAJORITY VOTE ELECTING CONGRESSMEN AT LARGE

AUSTIN, Jan. 30. (AP)—Joe Burkett of San Antonio, candidate for congressman at large, said today that should a majority vote be required for the three at large places all of them would probably be elected from North or Northwest Texas.

Burkett contended the state Democratic executive committee would not be supported by the law in compelling candidates for congressman at large to be divided into three groups, the two highest in each to enter a runoff primary.

He said such a plan would "be manifestly unfair to South, Southwest and West Texas candidates.

"A majority of all the voters of Texas live within a radius of 100 miles of Dallas, and, therefore, candidates from that territory would manifestly have the advantage of candidates from West, Southwest or South Texas in a runoff primary," Burkett stated. "If a runoff scheme should be adopted by the committee all three of our congressmen at large would probably be elected from North or Northeast Texas."

ORDER STANLEY T. WEBB RETURNED TO TYLER COURT

DALLAS, Jan. 30. (AP)—Stanley T. Webb, Dallas oil man, was ordered returned to Tyler today by United States Commissioner Lee R. Smith on charges of using the mails to defraud in connection with oil operations in East Texas. An indictment was returned against him in the eastern district of Texas. He appeared before the commissioner here and admitted his identity.

By WILL ROGERS

FROM THE FAR EAST, by Mail.—Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, and what I see as I prowl hither and thither. You know I kinder like people to talk and write about more than I do places, and Temples and Churches. Well Sir there was on our Boat coming out here quite an interesting bunch. We dident have many passengers outside of the steerage, but we had a mighty interesting little bunch.

Two Germans who had been home from Japan on a visit, prominent business men, spoke good English, that is about like me. Said things were very bad in the old Country, even worse they thought than most of the other places. But seemed mighty cheerful and optimistic about it. Great race those folks. When they do come back they will do it with a Bang, for they are built of fine stock.

These were great Readers, well informed on everything, and told us more of Japan than even a Japanese Scientist that was with us. He was mighty pleasant, but he wouldent tell us exactly what we asked him. He was smart though, he had been down to Pasadena, and studying with Prof. Milliken and all those fellows that Einstein was with. You know, funny thing, it was just a Japanese gardner that had a Truck patch away out in the Desert toward Arizona that had a sort of an Amateur globe of some kind and he found a Star, a new one that none of the Scientists had ever found. There was a big fuss made over it, I remember at the time, and they give him a new set of tools, or Spy Glasses or whatever it is you find odd things with, just for his contribution to Science, so he went right on picking Radishes, and I bet in about another year he will bob up with another Star, or Planet. Hope he finds one that hasent been hit by depression.

By the way I wonder if they are hit like all the rest of the World anyway. If they are it just shows you how far Hoovers influence reaches. Then of course we had Floyd Gibbons on there, and he knows about everything, and has been everywhere, and read everything. A Scotch Golf Player from Canada that was as liberal as any one you ever saw, I dont know where they get that Scotch stuff. Then a Standard Oil man from the Jersey Company, Mr. Walton. He was headed for Batavia, where they have big Holdings.

But the fellow that I want to tell you about was the "Bee Man." His name was Riddell. He had lately come from up in Alberta, Canada, and he was just about as odd and human a Fish as you will find in a years trooping. He had on board 500 hives of Bees, taking them out to China. Well up to the time I met him I dident know any more about a Bee than I do about Shakespeare. But the Bee man told me a lot. He had em all stored on deck, right out in the cold. He first had em down below, but he was afraid of the heat, so they brought em up, and they was roped down, for believe me you Brother those Bees did some rocking if they was with that Boat.

He would send all over the Country just to buy Queen Bees, that's the Head bee. There is some Guys called Drones that dont do anything as long as they live, but they bump those Babies off mighty soon, so the life of a Drone while its restful, its rather curtailed. He says they are all organized and that each one has his certain work to do, some bring it in, some store it away, some stand guard. I am going to get that Book of Materlinks on Bees and read it. He says that's what drove him in the Bee business.

I remember Materlink when he was brought out years ago to Hollywood with the Sam Goldwyn Company that I was with at the time. I dident know he knew anything about Bees then or I would have asked him. He was a mighty pleasant old fellow, and had a plum pretty little French Wife. I knew he had written a Play about I think it was Blue Bird, but I dident know a thing about this Bee business. But it was the other qualities that made this Bee man stand out. He at first was kinder a "Windy." But as we kept trying to pin him down, why we found out he had really been there, or he had read it. By Golly those fellows on the Boat that had really read a lot couldent find anything to stick old Bees on. I finally horned in with my repotoire of books consisting of Ibanez "The Cabin," Sandbergs "Lincoln," McGuffys Fourth Reader, the Life and Exploits of Jesse James, "When the Daltons Rode," and on the way over Lamb's "Genghis Kahn," and "Marco Polo." Now thats my lifes work digging through that mess, and here this Bee Guy not only had read all of em but memorized most of em, and then would tell me companion books that I should read following these up. But the Rascal was just book smart and he didn't have much real Horse sense knowledge. He had read a little beyond his limit.

He was what you call a kind of a well read Nut. He thought the three greatest men in the World was, well I cant even remember either one of them. I believe one was Thoro, or some name like that, a poet or something like that, and Whitman, and another Writer, he really thought these men had contributed more than a man like Lincoln or Edison. You see they ought to be a law to stop a man reading when he gets too far. Imagine a Poet, dont care what kind of a Poet he was (even a good one) being worth more to the World than Edison. How could you read the Poetry if it wasent for Edison? You would have to do it in the day time.

But Old Bees was pretty tough to down in all argument, and you would about have to buy him a drink to beat him. He was a young fellow too, about forty-two, but he was high on old Thorou or whatever his name was, he lived up around Boston, Harvard man I guess. I never could find out from Bees just what type of stuff he turned out, Maby was a Collumnist. He had also read a lot of Chinese stuff. He and the Japanese would argue over that, I tell you this old Bee man was a freak.

He knew an awful lot about Ants too. Thats something he got me interested in, and soon as I can get my mind off Movies I am going into the Ants. This old Boy just put more ambition into me. He has just got me all excited to learn, so no more Hoover and the Senate and Boarsh and all that, I am going to devote my time from now on to Ants. They do something.

BRINKLEY GAINS APPEAL RIGHTS

Judgment Corrected and Case to Go Higher

DALLAS, Jan. 30. (AP)—Counsel for Dr. J. R. Brinkley, "goat gland specialist" of Milford, Kan., and Del Rio, Texas, today overcame legal obstacles to an appeal from a district court judgment denying him change of venue to Del Rio, in the state's suit to revoke his medical practice license in Texas.

When the appeal was filed Jan. 20 before the fifth court of civil appeals at Dallas, that tribunal pointed out that the district court judgment, overruling Dr. Brinkley's privilege, was had on Dec. 17, 1931, and that the 30-day limit within which an appeal might be filed had expired.

District Judge Royall R. Watkins entered a corrected judgment today, after hearing arguments by counsel, showing that the hearing was held Dec. 17 and judgment announced in open court, but that the formal order was not entered until Dec. 23.

Jed C. Adams, counsel for Dr. Brinkley, announced that the appeal would be renewed immediately before the higher court. Judge Watkins said he would not set the case for trial until the civil appeals court had passed on his ruling.

The state alleged, in the suit filed there several months ago, that Dr. Brinkley's treatments of certain ailments were fraudulent and unprofessional and that he was "practicing" in Dallas because radio listeners here received programs he broadcast from his station, XER, at Villa Acuna, Mexico, across the Rio Grande from Del Rio.

DOROTHY KNAPP ASKS PERMISSION TO SEEK ABOVE $250,000 DAMAGES

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. (AP)—Dorothy Knapp, who once was described by Earl Carroll, stage producer, as "the most beautiful girl in the world," believes that the $250,000 she is asking from Mrs. Anne W. Penfield, Philadelphia society matron, is not enough.

She has filed a request in supreme court for permission to amend her complaint and seek additional damages for "mental distress" resulting from an alleged breach of contract.

Miss Knapp's bill charges that Mrs. Penfield, as the sponsor of an Earl Carroll show, "Fioretta," compelled Carroll to discharge her at a time when she was under contract at $1,000 a week.

NEXT AUCTION SALE WILL BE HELD FEB. 12

Another auction sale Feb. 12 was announced Saturday by the Wichita Valley Developmnet association, following the very successful first sale held at Call field Friday.

The sale Friday convinced directors of the association that there is a demand for this means of disposing of livestock and other farm property, and they hope for an even larger attendance next time.

About 500 attended Friday's sale. Purchases included 25 head of cows and calves, four mules, 29 pigs, and such other articles as feed, harness, farm implements, furniture and poultry. No buyers were found for five pigs, one incubator, one horse, two cows, 10 sheep and a sewing machine, but everything else that was offered was sold by J. R. Ray, the auctioneer. All sales were closed as made, and it was 5 o'clock before the auction ended.

J. N. Sherfill, chairman of the association's marketing committee, said Saturday that the organization was well pleased with the initial sale. The attendance was considered excellent, especially in view of the sharp weather.

DANDRUFF· Ends Overnight!

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy never fails.—Adv.

RUTH JUDD ILL NOT SERIOUS

Suffers Acute Attack of Bronchitis

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 30. (US)—Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, baby faced defendant on trial for the trunk slaying of her two "best friends," Agnes Anne LeRoi and Miss Hedvig Samuelson, was reported ill with acute bronchitis today after an examination by County Physician J. D. Mauldin.

Dr. Mauldin said Mrs. Judd had a temperature of 100.

Dr. George W. Stephen, on later examination, said Mrs. Judd's temperature had increased to 101 and that she had been subject to slight hemorrhages during the night, but with proper rest and care she probably would be in condition to resume her place in Judge Howard C. Speakman's courtroom on Monday morning.

Will Await Recovery Jurors

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 30. (AP)—The state of Arizona, having spent nearly $25,000 in the trial of Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, will make every effort to prevent a mistrial because of illness of jurors, Judge Howard C. Speakman stated today.

No testimony has been given in the case since Wednesday when two men in the jury box were stricken by severe colds. Judge Speakman declared he would await recovery of the jurors "if it takes days, weeks or months."

Court has been recessed until Monday. Physicians of Joseph L. Standage, alternate juror, said he had developed "a pronounced case of intestinal influenza."

Mrs. Judd observed her 27th birthday in jail yesterday. Sheriff J. R. McFadden allowed her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Harvey J. McKinnell of Darlington, Ind., and her husband, Dr. C. W. Judd, Los Angeles physician, to visit her.

Mrs. Judd is on trial for the murder of Mrs. Agnes Anne LeRoi. She also is accused of slaying Miss Hedvig Samuelson.

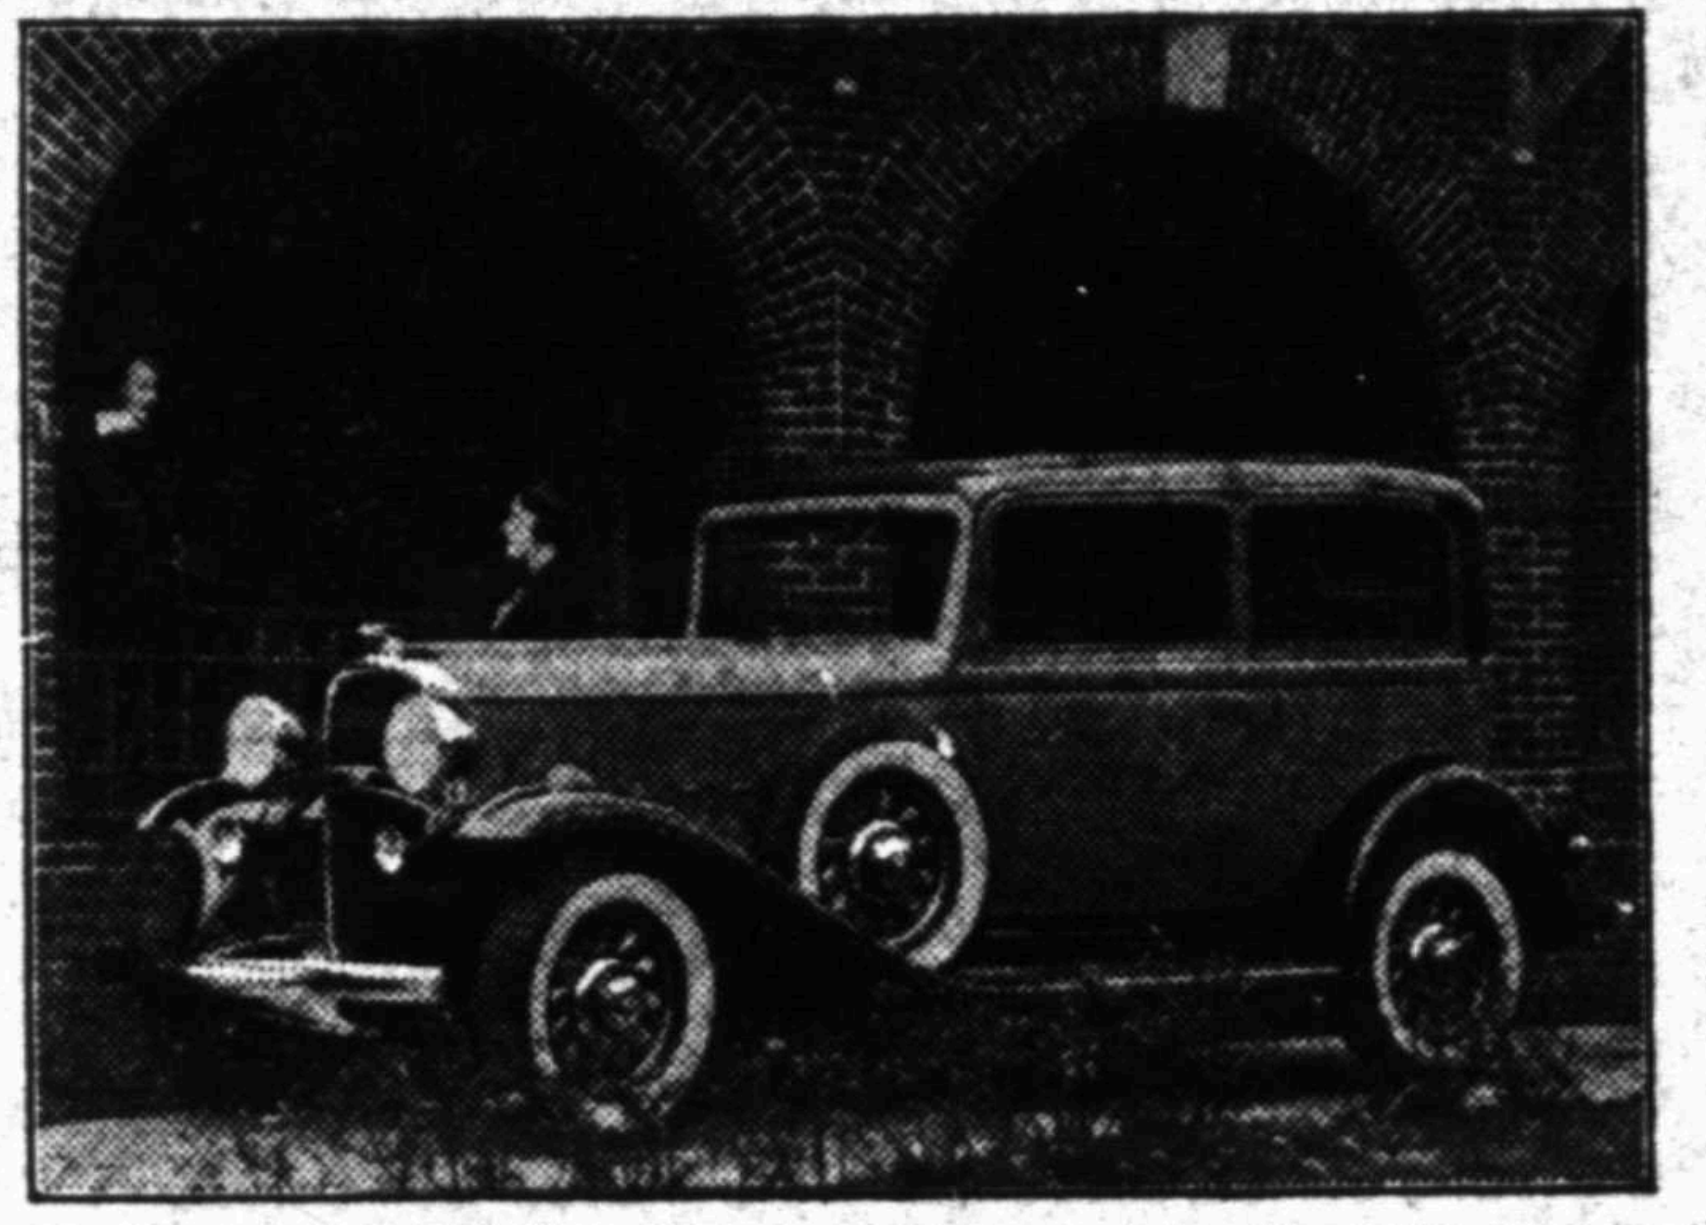
1932 OLDSMOBILE TWO-DOOR SEDAN



The new Oldsmobile, larger, more powerful and representative of modern styling, with many engineering features that provide exceptional performance, is now being shown by the Ben Lockhart company, 605 Lamar.

The outstanding advancements are engineering details that make driving simpler and easier than ever before and increased riding comfort, as well as general car performance. Engineers report that these advancements are greater than any introduced in a previous Oldsmobile model.

Riding comfort has been enhanced by such improvements as a selective ride regulator; double-action hydraulic shock absorbers; longer wheel base; larger tires; Marshall-type seat cushion springs, and complete insulation against noise.

The wheel base is 116½ inches, three inches longer than the previous model, and the engine horsepower has been increased to 74. A 20 per cent increase in acceleration, and driving ease heightened by free wheeling, with selective control on the dash; improved syncro-mesh transmission with silent second gear; smoother and more powerful brakes; and a 17 to 1 steering gear ratio.

Bodies are of the well known Fisher-built composite wood and metal construction, amply braced at points of stress and featuring "open-joints" where squeaks might occur. As a result of the larger chassis, added seating space and leg room is provided.

DESTROYERS WITHDRAWN FROM DUTY IN SALVADOR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. (UP)—The destroyers Philip and Wickes today were withdrawn from duty in El Salvador.

The navy department was informed by Rear Admiral Arthur C. Smith, commander of the special service squadron, that the two ships would return to the canal zone, stopping en route at Nicaraguan ports. The cruiser Rochester is still at Acajutla, El Salvador.

The warships had been sent to El Salvador as a precautionary measure to protect American lives and property during the recent uprising. The Salvadorean government announced yesterday that order had been restored.

M'FARLANE MAKES COMMENT ON FILING OF WILLIAMS' NAME

W. D. McFarlane of Graham, former state senator, now in the race for congress from the 13th district, while in Wichita Falls Saturday, learned that Congressman Guinn Williams' name had been certified to the clerks of the several counties comprising the district as a candidate for re-election. Mr. McFarlane said:

"My candidacy for congress is based upon my desire to serve the people of this district in the great crisis confronting the nation and by active fighting of the people's battles to reduce our expenses to come within our revenues. My candidacy is not conditioned upon the changeable mind of someone else. The need is great for active representation of this district in congress. The people will not be misled by the petitions sent out over the district for signing to place the name of Mr. Williams on the ticket."

ELGIN, OKLA. BANK ROBBED

Third Bank in County Robbed in Few Weeks

LAWTON, Jan. 30.—Two posses composed of county and federal officers are scouring sections to the east and south this afternoon in an attempt to apprehend a black Chevrolet sedan which carried three bandits who this afternoon looted the Bank of Elgin, 18 miles northeast of this city, of approximately $2,000.

The car was parked in front of the bank at 2:30 this afternoon and three men disembarked. One stationed himself outside and two entered the bank with drawn pistols, commanding the five persons found inside to "stick 'em up." One of the bandits handed a sack to Miss Bernadine Ecclesfield, bookkeeper, and commanded her to scoop all the money inside the sack. R. J. Jones, cashier, and B. R. Stephens, president, and two customers, with the bookkeeper, were then marched inside the vault which the bandits failed to lock. The five emerged from the vault as soon as they heard the car drive away and gave the alarm.

Spectators saw the men enter the car which drove north, then east, and then turned to the south toward Duncan. Officers at all surrounding cities were notified and urged to join in the pursuit.

The bandits were all young men, and appeared to be amateurs, according to bank officals. They were roughly dressed. Many shoppers were on the streets and in the stores at Elgin while the robbery was progressing. The bandits accomplished the robbery within a very few minutes.

This makes the third country bank robbed in Comanche county within the past few weeks, the others being the Bank of Cache and the Bank of Sterling.

Tools of Ancients

PEIPING.—That the ancient Peking man used fire and primitive tool is shown in he exhibition of the young Chinese geologist, W. C. Pei, at the recent meeting of the Chinese Gelogical society here. The geologist displayed bones, tools and other implements and evidence that the ancients of the Peking man's age use fire. This pushes the use of fire back 920,000 years ago, the age in which the Peking human is thought to have existed.

AMUSEMENTS

Marie Dressler, featured in "Emma," her latest and best, at the Majestic Sunday and Monday.

James Cagney, with Loretta Young, in "Taxi," showing at the State Sunday for three days.

Scene from "Hell Divers," with Dorothy Jordan, Marie Prevost, Clark Gable and Wallace Beery, coming to the Majestic next Friday.

Marie Dressler in 'Emma' Playing 'High Pressure' Next at Majestic; James Cagney in 'Taxi' at State

"I'd rather play a dramatic part than a comic one." That's what Marie Dressler recently said to a group of reporters. But there's a hitch to it. For Marie claims that a good dramatic role allows plenty of room for real, natural humor.

Her new starring picture, "Emma," is a typical example of what Marie Dressler means. The story is a dramatic one, abounding in situations which bring forth her fine emotional talents. But, in truth, there are many more comic situations in "Emma" than serious ones. And Marie simply loves to make you shed an unabashed tear one moment and laugh heartily the next. This same paradoxical situation existed in one of Miss Dressler's recent hits, "Min and Bill," for which she won the academy award for the finest performance of an actress for 1931. And in "Emma," now playing at the Majestic you'll see Marie Dressler in a strong character part lightened by gay moments of grand, infectious comedy.

The cast of "Emma," in addition to the incomparable star, includes Jean Hersholt, Myrna Loy, John Miljan, Purnell Pratt, Barbara Kent, Kathryn Crawford and George Meeker.

To add to your enjoyment you will see, "Pretty Puppies," with Ford Sterling; "Fox Hunt," a Silly Symphony and Fox news in sound.

"High Pressure"

In "High Pressure," coming to the Majestic next Tuesday, you will see the suave and polished William Powell supported by Evelyn Brent, in his latest starring vehicle.

Movie fans will no doubt remember William Powell in "The Street of Chance" and "The Road to Singapore." Exhibitors and the public raised Powell to stardom and their faith was rewarded by his remarkable performances of the past.

Blessed with a superfine voice, a handsome physique, personal magnetism and the ability to live his roles, he stands in the top rank of his profession. In these days when the smart public demands the best there is they are not disappointed in William Powell.

In addition you will see, "Panic Is On" with Charley Chase;" "Souvenirs" a novelty and Paramount news in sound.

"Hell Divers"

Theater-goers with weak hearts have been cautioned to beware of high-voltage excitement in recent mystery thrillers. Similar shock warnings might well be issued for "Hell Divers," a thriller of a different sort which starts next Friday at the Majestic. Starring Clark Gable and Wallace Beery, this picture is guaranteed to make your cardiac organ side-slip, nose-dive and do fancy Immelmann turns with a whole squadron of U. S. navy planes.

In addition you will see "Musical Justice" with Rudy Vallee; "Any Rags," a cartoon, and Fox news in sound.

JAMES CAGNEY IN "TAXI" STATE STARTING SUNDAY

James Cagney, who recently starred in "Blonde Crazy" at the Majestic, comes to the State Sunday for a three-day engagement in "Taxi" and playing opposite him in the leading feminine role is Loretta Young.

Jimmie's hundreds of admirers in Wichita Falls will welcome his excellent portrayal in this role, he having graduated from the wisecracking gangster type to a role more suitable to the personality it is his good fortune to possess.

The setting of this play is that part of New York City which lies between 34th and 40th streets and west of Eighth avenue. The characters are the younger generation of that noisy, overcrowded section. They are not crooks or gangsters, but honest, hardworking young people who live their lives to the fullest, obeying the tenents of their own moral and ethical codes as religiously as do their more fortunate brothers and sisters on Park avenue.

"Husbands Holliday"

Wednesday comes "Husbands Holiday" featuring Clive Brook, Charles Ruggles, Vivienne Osborne and Juliette Compton. The story of "Husband's Holiday" as described by a New York critic in a recent review reads: "The world is dizzy from lightning courtship, too-quick marriage, and too-late repentance. Here is a story of that fast living world . . . of the new kind of woman . . . the girl of today who will be the mother of children of men in the years to come. This girl, who fears no humiliation, who defies the accepted conventions of society, portrays literally, what is common-

Wheeler-Woolsey Combination Gem Attraction Sunday

A talkie that doesn't talk any more than it should is the comedy success "Caught Plastered," at the Gem theater, starring Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, supported by the popular partner of all their triumphs, diminutive Dorothy Lee.

Sounds like an innovation where least expected, and that it most emphatically is.

Credit goes to Douglas MacLean, who wrote the original story, conceived the action and supervised the production.

After MacLean's retirement from the screen several years ago, he was lost to view for a while, until "Cracked Nuts," a Radio Pictures' vehicle for Wheeler and Woolsey, blazoned its title sheet across the sky, with MacLean as co-author and supervisor.

The former comedian simply sat back and studied, soaked up production knowledge, and delved into audience appeal, all with the idea of specializing in the writing and production of comedies that would supply the utmost screen entertainment.

Judging from the success of "Caught Plastered," he has hit the spot. It stamps him as a firm believer in the efficacy of pantomimic art and the deletion of unnecessary chatter.

RED HOT RHYTHM TO BE KEYNOTE OF NEW SHOW

Red hot hythm served up by that inimitable master of ceremonies and showman, Bob Nolan, with the aid of an orchestra of 10 pieces and a male quartet, will scorch its way onto the airwaves Monday night, Feb. 1, 6:30 to 6:45 p. m., central standard time, when the San Felice serenade makes its debut over an NBC-WJZ network. The program will be heard each Monday and Friday thereafter.

Nolan has been through all the phases of entertainment, from symphony orchestra to vaudeville. At one time he organized and directed the Palcio Ballis Artis, a symphony orchestra of 105 pieces in Santiego, Chile.

ENGLISH EXPLORER TO TALK ON LOST ATLANTIS

Frederick Albert Mitchell-Hedges, noted English explorer and author, will be heard in the first of two talks on "The Lost Atlantis" when he faces the WABC-Columbia microphone Sunday, Jan. 31, from 7 to 7:15 p. m. C. S. T. Having devoted most of his life to exploration and deep sea research in the neighborhood of Central America, Mitchell-Hedges has become one of the leading contributors to the anthroprological and ichthyologicla sciences. He has been accredited with numerous world's records for the capture of giant fish, and has presented large collections of hitherto unrecorded specimens to leading British museums.

Details of 10-Year Purchase Plan For Irrigated Lands Announced by Development Association This Week

Full details of the 10-year plan whereby the Wichita Valley Development association hopes to increase the number of farm owners in the valley and to build up a more profitable system of agriculture have been announced by the association.

Last week arrangements were concluded for the offering of 11 of these tracts.

The plan in detail is as follows:

The Wichita Valley Development association was organized through the efforts of some of the leading citizens of Wichita Falls in October, 1931. These citizens realizing that if the Wichita irrigated valley is to be properly developed a plan must be worked out which will enable progressive and ambitious farmers to purchase small tracts of land from the large land owners on a basis that by hard work and thrift will enable the purchaser to make a fair living and at the same time pay for his land and investment in a reasonable length of time, not to exceed 10 years.

We have a fine valley of land irrigated and owned in large tracts. Oil development and irrigation have kept values high, consequently development has been slow. Farming has been on a rental basis, each renter has had double the crop he could work. The plan outlined as follows enables the land owner to sell his land at a reasonable and fair price and will give to a number of selected and deserving farmers the opportunity of purchasing and owning their own farm and home.

The Plan of Purchase

The Wichita Valley Development association will contract with the land owner of some of the larger tracts in the valley for the sale of a number of 40 or 50 acre choice tracts. These tracts will be selected from the best land in the valley. They will be located well as to roads, schools and markets. The land is in cultivation but will be sold without improvements at an average price of $50 per acre on 10 year terms at 5 per cent interest. With the cooperation of local material dealers, the Wichita Valley Development association will finance a number of selected buyers in the fencing and improvement of the property. The matter of improvements has been investigated thoroughly and a good 28 by 32 frame four room house, a chicken house, smoke house, a 28 by 32 barn material for fencing and planting of two acres in orchard, grapes and berries can be placed on the property at a total cost of about $1,200. This amount will be carried by the material dealers furnishing the material at 6 per cent interest to be paid in five years.

The buyer must furnish satisfactory references and must show a good financial statement. He must have adequate work stock and tools and the equivalent of two milk cows, hogs for meat or breed and 100 laying hens. In addition to the purchase of the land and improvements he must assume the payment of insurance and taxes on the property and must secure the Wichita Valley Development association for their payment together with the land and improvement payments. The cost of the irrigation water is $3.50 per acre and the county and school taxes are about 50 to 65 cents per acre making an estimated cost on a 40 acre tract about $190 per year.

Below is a schedule of gross and net returns to be expected from the operation of a 40 acre tract under the supervision of the farm planning committee of the Wichita Valley Development association.

Returns From Forty Acre Farm

Six bales cotton		$240
Truck		600
Poultry and milk		175
Total		$1,015
Clothing and living expenses not supplied on farm		$250
Net returns		$765
Water rent, taxes and insurance	$220
Interest on land and investment	175	$395
Balance to retire purchase price		$370

The schedule of payments adopted and easily within the limits of the farmer's earnings on the 40 acres are as follows:

Year	Principal Land	Principal Improve's	Interest Land	Interest Impvts	T'tl
1	x	$100	$100	$72	$272
2	x	150	100	66	316
3	x	200	100	57	357
4	x	250	100	42	392
5	x	500	100	32	630
6	$200	x	100		300
7	300	x	90		390
8	400	x	75		475
9	500	x	55		555
10	600	x	30		630
	$2,000	$1,200			$4,317

The buyer will have the option of prepayment on all notes and shall be given a deed on his land on completion of all papers in connection with the sale, which papers shall consist of:

1. Land notes and interest coupons.
2. Improvement notes and interest coupons.
3. Deed of trust securing payment of all above notes, interest.
4. Chattel mortgage securing payment of all above notes, interest, insurance and taxes.

In the event of failure on the part of the new owner to meet his obligations it shall be the purpose of the association to liquidate the security held and find a new party to assume the remainder of the obligation.

The Plan of Farming

The Wichita Valley Development association in order to insure the success of the farmers who will purchase farms through the association has created a farm planning committee. This committee will assist the farmers in the selection of profitable crops; planning proper rotation and division of crops to be grown. After a thorough investigation this committee has come to the conclusion that a 40-acre farm properly planted and diversified presents the most logical size tract to be successfully farmed.

It is recommended that a 40-acre farm be divided as follows:

Two acres house and buildings.
One-half acre berries and grapes.
One-half acre general garden for home use.
Six acres permanent pasture.
Seven and one-half acres feed.
Seven and one-half acres cantaloupes and truck crops.
Seven and one-half acres grain.
Seven and one-half acres cotton.

Variations will be made in this plan where the purchaser has some specialty, provided such change shall meet with the approval of the farm plan committee.

The income from these crops plus the income from the sale of poultry and milk will give the farmer ample funds to furnish his family the needs not supplied on the farm; to pay water rent, taxes, insurance, interest and to retire a substantial portion of the purchase price each year.

Marketing

The Wichita Valley Development association realizes that to insure the success of the farmer that will be placed on these farms that an adequate market for their products must be assured and maintained. The marketing committee of the Wichita Valley Development association is headed by J. N. Sherrill. This committee plans to encourage the operation of the Wichita Valley Growers association which is organized under the Capper-Volstead federal act and the Texas marketing act. This is a cooperative organization and is at present giving its undivided attention to the signing up of the growing and marketing of cantaloupes. The scope of the work of this organization is not confined to cantaloupes, but the plans to encourage the growing and marketing of other fruits and vegetables through the organization.

The location of Wichita Falls to the primary market is much more favorable for the early arrivals after harvesting and freight rates than many points of origin of similar fruits and vegetables. It is the program of the marketing committee to encourage the development of a poultry marketing association in all of its branches, as this community has long been recognized as being favorable for the production of poultry and its products. This committee has before it at the present time the organization of a cooperative dressed turkey market. It is not planned to depend on local consumption for a market for poultry products. Surplus production will be shipped to eastern points. The marketing committee has endorsed the organization of a livestock exchange and stock yards in Wichita Falls. Plans are being made at the present time to have a large stock and farm property auction at regular intervals in Wichita Falls. This livestock exchange and auction will serve a very useful purpose in that it will bring the buyer and seller of any livestock or commodity together and will furnish an outlet for the farmers who have a few head of stock to sell and also the farmer whose requirments along this line are limited.

Drainage

The Wichita Valley Development association at this time considers the drainage problem a local one, and from time to time, as occasion arises, will recommend that the drainage be taken care of in local areas.

The Wichita Valley Development association believes that the plan as outlined above is one of the most complete and practical plans that has been conceived to develop the Wichita irrigated valley. The problems of sale, financing, farming, marketing, etc., have been investigated thoroughly and shall be handled on a conservative and well planned basis.

CONGRESS LIBRARY MUSICALE SERIES WILL BE STARTED

Noted music ensembles of America and Europe will be heard in the Library of Congress musicale series to be inaugurated over an NBC-WJZ network Sunday, Feb. 7, at 10:30 a. m., eastern standard time. The programs, each of which will last an hour, are under the auspices of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge foundation of the Library of Congress.

In the series will be heard the Musical art string quartet, the Elshuco trio, and the Kroll string sextet, the London string quartet, Nina Koshetz, soprano, with the Philharmonic string quartet, and Jacques Gordon, violinist, with Lee Pattison, pianist.

The fund also endowed free concerts there and in other cities for 100 years. Mrs. Coolidge is also founder of the Berkshire festivals.

Among midwest stations over which the program will be heard are WLW, WREN, KOIL.

EXPENSES CUT DURING 1931 BY ALL OFFICIALS

City and County Reduce Cost of Operation $376,791 Last 12 Months

C-C, CHEST AND SCHOOLS ALSO SPEND LESS MONEY

Extend Deadline for Paying Irrigation Taxes for One More Month

By LOUIS T. HAMLET

The city and county governments reduced expenses $376,791.80 during 1931 under totals for the preceding year and slashes in the budgets of the schools, chamber of commerce, water improvement districts and community chest brought the total amount saved last year to $538,122.

> G. A. Remington, manager for the two water improvement districts, announced Saturday night that the deadline for paying current irrigation taxes had been extended to March 1.
> Current water district taxes can now be paid throughout the month of February without penalty or interest. Delinquent taxes, however, start drawing penalty and interest again Monday, as there has been no extension of the moratorium on delinquent taxes declared by the legislature.

Most of the governmental and civic organizations entered the new year with all debts paid and a cash balance on hand. Budgets have in all cases been pared down to even lower levels for 1932 in order to compensate for probable delinquencies in income.

Officials of various departments were optimistic in their expressions of confidence for 1932 and proudly compared the financial record of the city, county, etc., with those of other departments over the nation, many of which have become completely insolvent.

County Out of Red

The expenditures of Wichita county during 1931 aggregated $685,927.08, a decrease of $255,669.21 from 1930, when the total was $941,596.29, according to figures obtained from the auditor's office.

Administrative expenses were cut materially during the past year but a large portion of the large total for 1931 was due to the fact that the Scott avenue bridge was built that year, a larger road construction program was followed and the county took advantage of an opportunity to retire bonds, which were not yet due, at a discount.

There was added expense during 1931, however, as the county spent thousands of dollars on charity to take care of the needy unemployed.

The county was $74,376.92 in the red on Jan. 1, but this amount was more than made up by December tax collections, which were not transferred to the county's book until after the first of the year. The deficit was in the following funds: General, $40,647.72; precinct 1, $24,269.75; precinct 3, $254.99, and precinct 4, $9,204.46.

Since December tax collections more than took care of this overdraft, the collection of current and delinquent taxes during January will all be applied on 1932 expenses and the county is really starting the new year with a clean balance sheet.

The most important proof of the county's solvency, however, is in the fact that Wichita county is from one to three years ahead of schedule in paying most of its bond issues off.

City Has Balance

The city of Wichita Falls reduced its operating expenses $121,122.59 during 1931, but paid off about $30,000 more bonds than in the preceding year.

In 1931 the city paid out $619,813.43 for operating expenses and spent $270,869.91 out of the interest and sinking fund. In 1930 the totals were $740,936.02 for operating expenses and $241,370.63 for interest and retirement of bonds.

The large reduction in the city's expenses was accounted for by general reduction of salaries and cuts in the budget for every department.

The city finished both 1930 and 1931 with a cash balance of a little in excess of $20,000.

Water Districts

The two water improvement districts entered the new year with a cash balance of $22,059.98, but are in default on about $75,000 bond interest due last October.

The two districts spent $99,615.94 on maintenance and operation in 1931, a decrease of $10,200 from the preceding year when expenditures for the same purpose totaled $109,808.17. A heavy decline in receipts was recorded, however. In 1930 the maintenance and operating fund received $139,066.83 and a balance of $52,218 existed on Jan. 1, 1931. During 1931 receipts were only $69,175.32 and $30,000 had to be taken from the 1930 balance to cover the deficit between receipts and expenditures.

The drainage districts expect to spend about $65,000 during 1932 for maintenance and operation. Salaries of employes were cut $7,500 by the boards of directors and less permanent construction will be done. Necessary drainage work will be taken care of, however.

For the interest and sinking fund the districts collected $377,669.89 in 1930 and spent $393,274.28. In 1931 this fund collected $316,027.48 and spent $310,480.41. All mature bonds have been paid off but a default of $75,000 interest still exists.

On Jan. 1 delinquent taxes owing to the two districts and unpaid aggregated $354,133.59. The amount of these collected during January has not yet been totaled for release. The 1931 tax assessments totaled about $500,000.

C.-C. Slashes Budget

The chamber of commerce reduced its expenses from $42,000 in 1930 to $32,700 in 1931 and finished the year with a clear slate. The total for 1930 expenses includes $8,000 used to pay a debt left over from 1929. Further reductions will be made in 1932 expenses and only $27,000 has been pledged.

Manager John Boswell said the chamber of commerce was spending about the same amount on its activities but had reduced overhead expenses. During 1931 new activities included a secretary for the farm and home demonstration agents, new retail trade activities and an increased appropriation for agricultural work and the Wichita county fair.

The community chest expended $63,719.32 in 1931, about $7,000 less than expenses for the preceding year. This organization finished the year with a clean bill of health, no unpaid obligations and money in the bank.

Budget for Schools

The budget for the Wichita Falls school system for the 1931-32 session is $621,336, a cut of $134,131 from the preceding term's budget when the schools spent $755,467.

During the first half of the school year for 1931-32 the schools stayed within the new low budget. All teachers took a 10 per cent salary cut at the beginning of the term.

Teachers received checks Saturday for the second half of their last month's salary, due Jan. 8.

youth through God and a realization of His universal power.

"If youth does not violate the laws of the Maker, he can definitely contact Him and thereby utilize the power He transmits.

To Develop Power

"To truly live," Mr. Hines said in closing, "youth must learn to develop his intangible power through communication with God and, in doing so, learn to realize the joys of life and the good the utilization of such power will do."

Dr. R. H. Peterson presided over the meeting which was formally opened by a 30-minute concert by the Maskat temple band under the direction of Gerald Pond.

An informal entertainment was presented by delegates under the supervision of R. E. Shepherd, who also sang a solo.

"Down to Earth" was a playlet presented by the Girl Reserves in which the aims of the organization were portrayed.

J. H. Henry, executive secretary of the state Y. M. C. A., pronounced the benediction.

Officers Elected

Joe Witherspoon Jr., of Wichita Falls was named 1932 president of the conference at the annual election held late Saturday morning. Other officers elected were Roy Baker of Denison, vice president, and Beverly Howell of Fort Worth, secretary-treasurer. The election was conducted by H. G. Spruce, boys' work secretary of the Dallas Y. M. C. A.

The outstanding feature of the Saturday afternoon program was the social and "hand-out" given for the delegates by the Wichita Falls Girl Reserves, under the supervision of Miss Juanita Kinsey, reserve sponsor. Each of the attending delegates was met by a member of the Girl Reserves, who remained his partner throughout the duration of the party.

Delegates were taken on a sightseeing tour of the city by Wichita Falls business men. The tour was conducted by Frank B. Creighton, Boy Scout executive.

Addresses were made during the morning and afternoon session by Patrick Henry Jr., of Texas Christian university at Fort Worth; Dr. A. B. Cunningham, instructor at Texas Technological college at Lubbock, Texas; Charles Max Cole of Dallas; and H. G. Spruce of Dallas.

Singsongs were conducted during the morning meeting by R. E. Shepherd, accompanied by Mrs. Shepherd. There were two discussion group sessions during the morning. Opening prayers were made by Dr. George P. Horst, of the First Presbyterian church, at the early Saturday morning session, and by Dr. H. T. Wood, of the First Christian church, at the second morning period.

Sunday Program

The conference picture was taken at noon before the educational building of the First Methodist church where the two Friday and the Saturday morning sessions were held.

The program for the Sunday morning session, the fifth and closing one of the conference, will be held at the Junior college. The complete program follows:

Judge Randolph Candidate

AMARILLO, Texas, Jan. 30. (AP)—Judge Hal C. Randolph, associate justice of the seventh court of civil appeals, Amarillo, today announced for re-election. He was appointed to the local court in 1923, and formerly was on the appeals commission at Austin.

FIGHT LOOMS IN HOUSE OVER PLAN TO SLICE BUDGET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. (AP)—Another house battle over slashing federal expenditures is expected when the appropriations committee reports the war department supply bill next week.

Complaints by cabinet officers against reductions made in three money bills already submitted to the house have irritated members of the committee.

Added to that, Secretary Hurley today conferred with Speaker Garner on the Byrns bill to consolidate the war and navy departments and the prospective slash of the war department appropriation bill for the next fiscal year.

Informed of the conference and recalling charges of Secretary Wilbur that the committee had about crippled the interior department by a $6,000,000 reduction, Chairman Byrns declared "no cabinet officer is going to dictate to congress what appropriations are to be made."

In the meanwhile, Representative Wright, Democrat, Georgia, member of the house appropriations military subcommittee, charged:

"President Hoover advocated economy and when the appropriation committee applies economy, the cabinet officers set up a howl about it."

FORMER ASSOCIATE OF NOTED DION O'BANION RETURNED TO CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 30. (US)—Louis (Two Gun) Alterie, a former associate of Dion O'Banion, was brought bac kto Chicago tonight from Colorado to answer a charge of complicity in the kidnaping last March of Edward Dobkin, a betting commissioner.

Extradition was granted by Colorado authorities on evidence submitted by Chief Investigator Patrick Roche of the state's attorney's office of Cook county.

Alterie was one of Chicago's notorious gangsters during the reign of O'Banion, but of late years has retired to a dude ranch in Colorado, coming to Chicago only occasionally to look after the interests of a janitors' union of which he is head.

CONVENTION OF MINERS OPPOSE USE INJUNCTION

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 30. (AP)—The biennial convention of the United Mine Workers of America late today adopted a resolution, after more than two days of debate, opposing the use of injunctions in labor disputes and asking the Illinois miners to have dissolved an injunction against the international officers of the union.

Adoption of the resolution, which was by an overwhelming majority, represented a victory for the administration of President John L. Lewis and defeat for the officials of district 12 in Illinois.

The district union obtained an injunction against the international officer to prohibit their interference in Illinois affairs. The fight between the two groups has been going on more than two years. The climax came late today when President Lewis in a two-hour speech scored the action of the Illinois district officers and denounced the use of injunctions.

COLD WEATHER HALTS SEARCH FOR AIRPLANE

Dashes Last Hope Eight Persons Will Be Found Alive

CLOUDS AND DARKNESS END SEARCH SATURDAY

Not Believed Party Can Survive Rigors of Severe Storm

GLENDALE, Calif., Jan. 30. (AP)—A blizzard broke over the rugged Tehachapi mountains late today, halting a search for five men and three women, passengers and crew of a missing tri-motored air liner.

Several hundred men and threescore airplane pilots, who flirted with death throughout the day as they pushed the search for the flier, were thrown into wild confusion when two women motorists brought an unverified report that the ship had been found. The liner has been unreported since late yesterday.

Report Not Verified

Immediate check with all searching parties and officials failed to find support for the women's story. Then as night darkened the storm clouds, all searching operations were brought to a temporary halt by snow swept down on the mountains by a high wind.

Airplanes were flown back to their bases quickly and ground parties scurried for cover. They were suffering with cold and declared passengers could not possibly survive the rigors of the storm.

Drifts were piling up rapidly on the highways and little used mountain roads and the cold was intense.

HINDUS ASK BRITISH AID

Terrorized by Bands of Moslem Rebels

BOMBAY, Jan. 30. (US)—The revolt of Moslem hatchet-men in northern Kashmir today brought a call for help from Maharajah Sir Hari Singh.

Additional British troops were dispatched from Delhi to assist the Maharajah's forces in quelling a rebellion that already has cost more than 5,000 lives.

Hindus, terrorized by the Moslem rebels who slay with hatchets and razor-edged swords and leave a trail of pillaged, burning villages in their wake, are fleeing across the Kashmir border into British territory.

These developments in the north have not taken the edge of excitement from the peaceful war waged on Britain in the Bombay area by the Nationalists. The second week of the British campaign to cope with the new anti-British wave of civil disobedience sweeping India closed today with more than 5,000 Nationalists jamming Bombay's jails.

There is no indication here that the movement is diminishing in force or that the country is growing quiet. There are many indications that a long, hard struggle has just begun.

KANSAS TAKES SUNDAY LAW TO FEDERAL COURT

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 30. (UP)—The state of Kansas has carried its Sunday labor law to the United States circuit court of appeals.

The state, through its attorney general, Roland Boynton, has appealed to the circuit court to have dissolved an interlocutory injunction obtained by the Fox West Coast Theater corporation in which authorities are restrained from interfering with motion picture operation on Sundays.

Federal District Judge Robert Pollock granted the injunction upon the application of the Fox corporation and the Fox Kansas Theater company. The theater companies allege they cannot make a legitimate profit unless they are allowed to conduct Sunday shows and they are being discriminated against in Kansas.

J. Schwab, who will conduct the service here and rites from the family residence at Bowie Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

"Encouraging reports have been received from all of the cities," Hawk said, "and it is only a matter of time until the budget will be raised. In most cities the quotas have been pledged, and in some instances over-subscribed."

BATTLESHIPS WILL SAIL SUNDAY FOR CRUISE TO HAWAII

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Jan. 30. (AP)—The United States battle force will pull anchor here shortly after midnight Sunday for a cruise to Hawaii "fully prepared, for any contingency," according to Admiral Richard H. Leigh, the commander.

Leigh stated, however, that no changes in the cruise of the battle force of 65 vessels nor of the subsequent maneuvers of the entire United States fleet, are expected as a result of the situation at Shanghai.

During the past week nine dreadnaughts and two aircraft carriers of the battle force, aside from scores of auxiliary craft, have loaded food supplies valued at more than $1,000,000 and sufficient to last the squadron a year in emergency.

Forty-five ships of the scouting force are being brought from the Atlantic coast by Vice Admiral Arthur L. Willard. They will join the battle force in maneuvers in March.

VISUALIZING THE TRAFFIC PROBLEM

There is an article in today's paper that deserves thoughtful reading. It is a statistical study of traffic accidents, clipped from the Editor and Publisher.

A reading of it will enable the reader to visualize the traffic safety problem and to understand his own particular part of that problem, in an impressive way. The toll of traffic fatalities mounts steadily, year by year. It is increasing more rapidly than the number of automobiles is increasing. We are paying a ghastly price for the time the automobile saves us and for the added convenience it gives. Surely we have intelligence enough to find the way to reduce that price without restricting the automobile's usefulness.

New legislation is needed. But the greater need is for the individual autoist to realize his own responsibility.

THE HIGH COST OF OFFICIAL VANITY

The government printing office at Washington turned out nearly three and a half billion pieces of printed matter, during the last fiscal year. That figures about 24 pieces for each inhabitant of the United States. Readers of this paper who got less than their quota will not, we trust, feel aggrieved. For this office received enough to maintain the average. Or at least it seemed so to those who handle the office mail.

Bureaucracies have a mania for seeing their deeds recorded in print. Much has been said about the amount of printing that congressmen have done at government expense, and there is too much of it, of course. But it is the departmental printing that piles up highest. The public printer's report tells of destroying 800 tons of printed matter, with most of the pieces still in their uncut wrappers. Reports, bulletins, circulars and more reports, world without end. In scores of instances, a document is read by no one except the proofreader, who draws pay for doing so.

Official vanity costs our government many millions annually, and it isn't worth it.

THE TAXPAYER AND HIS STAKE IN THE VALLEY

One of the purposes of the mass meeting called for Tuesday afternoon by the Wichita Valley Development association is to launch its membership campaign for the year.

Officers of the organization have set 5,000 members as their goal. They believe that every taxpayer in Wichita Falls has a stake in the valley, by reason of the contribution he makes to it in the form of water district taxes. We have been paying these taxes for about a decade without getting the returns we might have gotten. The development association wants to make the valley pay some dividends on the investment the Wichita Falls public has made in it. That is its whole purpose. That is why its efforts deserve the support of every Wichitan who is assessed for water district taxes.

It is asking for a very modest sum to carry on its important work. One dollar is the membership fee. The $5,000 which it hopes to obtain in this way will be expended on a program, carefully worked out, that is vital to the valley's development. It is by the number of those who take part, not by the size of the amount, that it expects to finance its activities.

We must look to the valley, more than to any other one resource, to bring this city and section out of the existing conditions. The Wichita Valley Development association is the organization committed to this task. It is entitled to a full measure of support.

THE SEABURY REPORT

The Seabury investigation of Tammany has been in progress for about six months and it is estimated that at least 12 months more will be required to complete the task. Even if it were to be halted now, and no additional disclosures made, the report for the first six months as recently submitted by Mr. Seabury, would constitute a sufficiently damning indictment of New York's municipal government. Mr. Seabury apparently believes that there is much more rottenness to be uncovered and nobody doubts it.

The report recently made will furnish material to students of government for many years to come. Briefly, it shows that the conduct of municipal affairs in New York City has degenerated into a racket. And the racket, reprehensible though it is, usually has the guise of legality. Some of the officials whose unexplained wealth Mr. Seabury has revealed are, in all probability, violators of the law; but many other enriched themselves at the public expense without ever transgressing any statute or ordinance. The investigating committee may expose them, hold them up to public scorn, but it cannot convict them nor can it bring about the disgorging of their gains. In racketeering, the public pays without being aware that it is paying. And likewise, the New York taxpayer foots the bill for the enrichment of Tammany's henchmen without realizing that it is doing so.

That is why it is going to be hard to arouse public sentiment, regardless of the additional disclosures that may be made, regardless of the noisomeness of the odors that arise. There is little indication just now, a week after the Seabury report, that New Yorkers are indignant. There is no real reason to believe that they can be made indignant. They may be displeased, but they are not shocked. Many of them sympathize with Tammany, as it whines about the blackening of the city's good name.

The remedy which Mr. Seabury seems to have in mind and which, his report indicates, he will urge more diligently as the investigation proceeds, is the city-manager plan. Centralized authority and centralized responsibility. New York would look upon it as a desperate remedy, and probably Mr. Seabury cannot shock it into recognition of the need thereof.

THE TAXPAYERS' RELIEF PROGRAM

The Taxpayers Association of Texas at its recent meeting at Fort Worth adopted a five-point program for lessening the tax burden.

The individual who finds himself in financial straits knows that he must do several things. First, he must reduce his expense to the minimum. Second, he must collect whatever is due him by debtors and avail himself of every opportunity to earn more. Third, he must avoid incurring additional debts.

The five-point program of the association proposes to do these things for the taxpayer. It wants state bureaus and offices consolidated so as to reduce public expenses. It wants to find the way to reach and assess property not now on the tax rolls. It wants to make it more difficulty to create public debts.

The candidate for office, this year, will find that the taxpayer is much more in earnest than before, about this tax business. He may find that the old vague and equivocal promises have no appeal; that he must be specific in his pledges on the tax question and that he must be able to convince the voters that he means business. There are signs that the taxpayer is getting peeved. His dissatisfaction with existing conditions has been written into this five-point program, and he may call on candidates to be definite about their attitude toward it. This may be a poor year for politicians who haven't discarded some of their old ideas and habits.

Real Political Issues of 1932

THE CHALLENGE OF DELOCALIZATION

The reformers are worried because half or more of the voters of America stay away from the polls.

Some of this can be checked up to indifference.

Much of it must be charged to causes less personal.

All governments, ours included, have been invented to express the will and safeguard the interests of localized peoples.

I live, it may be, in Nashville.

I am supposed, therefore, to have a sustained interest in the municipal government of Nashville.

But Nashville is in Tennessee.

I am supposed, therefore, to have a sustained interest in the state government of Tennessee.

And Tennessee is in the United States.

I am supposed, therefore, to have a sustained interest in the national government of the United States.

But, as a matter of fact, as an average American, I am not likely to be anyway near as localized a creature as this triple citizenship would indicate.

In modern America, the individual does not stay put. He may be born in Massachusetts, educated in California, begin his business career in Illinois, and shift his headquarters to Nashville, and so lack the native's interest in the personalities and problems of the city's politics.

While his office may be in Tennessee, he may have investments and interests in a half dozen other states, and so have far more real interest in the legislation of the other half dozen states than he has in the legislation of Tennessee.

As he climbs higher on the ladder of business achievement, his investments and his interests may be scattered through other lands, so that, although he is a citizen of the United States, he is deeply interested in the legislation of England, Germany, France, or South Africa.

Modern life is fluid.

Government is fixed.

The state is localized.

The society it serves is delocalized.

Twenty years ago, H. G. Wells forecast this maladjustment between a fluid social order and a fixed political order, and said that the invention of methods for the political expression and collective direction of peoples that were, in themselves and in their interests, essentially migratory would be one of the pressing political necessities of the 20th century.

This may sound highly theoretical, but it underlies much of the political futility of the America of 1932

ROUGHLY SPEAKING
by John Gould

"Crazy Quilt"
Some parts of it were clever,
  And some were brightly comical,
But in all my young life I had never Seen anything so anatomical.

The purpose of it all, I guess,
  Was to glorify the torso,
That seemed the object, more or less,
  But mainly, more so.

There weren't any quilts in it, despite its name. But there were occasions when even so scanty a piece of dry goods as a handkerchief would have been helpful.

A Good Idea

There was a piece in the paper the other day that interested us very much. It was about a straw vote for president that was conducted by a newspaper up in Kansas. The final count showed that a newspaper colyumist had received more votes than any of the politicians who have been mentioned.

This country has had one president who became a colyumist after his term ended but it has never had a colyumist who became president. The president who tried colyumizing for a while gave it up. He found out that it takes more than one new idea a month to get by at it. The Kansas ballot encourages the hope that before long the country will realize that it needs a good colyumist at Washington, and will elect one to the presidency.

The outstanding qualification for a colyumist, as it happens, is such as to meet the country's present outstanding need. That is, a well-developed sense of humor. It is true that high officials and others not so high frequently do amusing things ,but they aren't intentionally funny. Take Senator Fess, for instance. He is often funny, without intending to be. What the country needs is somebody who will be funny on purpose. It can't depend on Murray or Long or Jimmie Walker. True, they furnish it plenty of comedy, but what it needs is constructive comedy.

If War Threatened

Right now, for example, there is a situation that may really need somebody with a sense of humor. There is trouble in what is called the far east, although it is about as far west as it is east, but never mind that. Just suppose that Japan, which is feeling kind of cocky just now, should say to the United States, "Big boy, we want you to do so-and-so, and make it snappy, or else we will take the Philippine Islands away from you. Accept the renewed assurances of our distinguished consideration." That last sentence is just diplomatic stuff, like smiling at a banker.

What would the average president do, in such a case? He would get all hot and bothered. He would call the cabinet together and talk it over with them, and ask what to do.

"We'll have to have a war, I guess," says one of them.

"Oh, no, no, we can't have any more wars just now," speaks up Andy Mellon, considerably agitated.

"How come we can't?" says the first one, "haven't we got to defend the nation's honor?"

"Yes," says Andy, "but we can't have a war right now. Why, there's about 63 payments still due on the last one."

But that wouldn't make any difference. Countries can finance wars when they can't pay their help. So the cabinet would decide to fight, and would send rush orders to the salmon canneries to get busy and turn out a big supply of canned salmon. There had been lots of talk about making war more humane by cutting out poison gas, but nobody has paid any attention to salmon. And the cabinet would round up the army and navy and appoint a few thousand head of second lieutenants and other necessities of war, and go fighting.

Now then, if we had a colyumist as president, how would he handle the situation when Japan's ultimatum arrived. He would deal with the problem much more simply.

When the Japanese ambassador handed him the note, he would read it and then start laughing.

"What are you laughing at, esteemed and honorable sir?" the ambassador would ask. (He would be polite about it. The Japanese are the politest people on earth. Even when they are bombing an orphan asylum or shelling a seaport, they always explain that they don't mean anything personal).

"Say, this is rich," the president would say, "Here we've had the Philippines for about 30 years, and they've been a worry and an expense and they're always talking about freedom, and now you come along and want to take 'em off our hands. They've been useful in some ways, because it was a place to send politicians we were afraid to keep at home, but you're welcome to 'em."

"The politicians or the islands?" asked the ambassador.

"Yes," the president would say, "But listen—there's one condition, before we turn 'em over to you. You've got to agree to take Hawaii, too."

"No, no, a thousand times, no," says the Jap ambassador, turning pale and beginning to get wobbly at the knees, "no, no, anything but that. Here—"

And he would reach for the ultimatum and tear it up and go cable the emperor that the Americans were getting smart, at last, in their international affairs.

Another Illustration

That's just an example of how a colyumist-president could handle diplomatic affairs. And he would deal with other difficulties in the same spirit. Just suppose that Mr. Hoover were a colyumist instead of a great engineer, and somebody brought up the question of the marines in Nicaragua.

"What are they doing down there?" he would ask somebody.

"They're helping hold the elections," would be the reply.

"Are they any good at it?"

"Well, the administration ticket always wins," he would be told.

"Have 'em come home right away," he would say, "I know where I can use 'em, at home."

There are reasons, other than that of the sense of humor, why a colyumist might do well as president. They are used to hard work, for one thing. And, as a class, they are only slightly below the average in intelligence. It might be worth trying.

Those Japs had better be careful shelling Methodist missions. We'll sick Bishop Cannon on 'em, the first thing they know

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON.—What's all this talk about the "right to work" that you hear so much about?

If people have any such right it appears that about 7,000,000 of them are being cheated—deprived, that is, of the right. And yet there appears to be an overwhelming preponderance of opinion that each human being is born with such a right.

Diligent research fails to discover the recognition of any such right in the constitution, in the acts of congress or in the old common law. Federal Judge Wilkerson of Chicago 10 years ago laid down from the bench the dictum that "the right to work is not an absolute right," as he granted a labor injunction.

That little crack of Wilkerson's, however, is one of the things that will be used against him when progressive members of the senate try to prevent confirmation of his promotion to the federal circuit court of appeals. They contend that, although the law books do not mention it, there is an absolute moral right to work which no one dares dispute. Their theory is that when society denies a man the right to work—or a chance to work—it is, in effect, sentencing him to death by starvation or to a life of crime.

But probably the first attempt to make a legal provision of "the right to work" is advanced by Congressman David John Lewis of Maryland, who was working in the coal mines at the age of 9 and is now recognized as one of the most able members of the house. Lewis has introduced a bill for a national system based on the Gerard Swope plan for employment stabilization backed by results of the congressman's studies in this country and Europe. He points out that whereas the Swope program would confer such benefits as old age pensions, life and disability insurance and unemployment insurance on workers already employed, it is also necessary to provide for the unemployed.

Lewis proposes a semi-compulsory equal division of employment.

"The right to work is as indisputed as the rights of property," Lewis says, "but it is ineffective because it has not yet been clothed with the same legal sanctions as property. So this right, the most primeval of rights, will not insure the worker a loaf of bread tomorrow, or his wife and children against eviction. The section of my bill undertaking to provide such legal sanctions says:

"It is hereby declared as a principle of social justice that (a) the citizen possesses a right to work and is entitled to the protection of the laws in asserting such right and in demanding an equal share of the employment available in the trade; and (b) it is also declared to be the duty of the trade association concerned to provide him with an equal share of the employment available for which he is competent; and in default thereof to render him just compensation in lieu thereof."

The Lewis bill embodies Swope's idea of national trade associations and supervision by the federal trade commission, giving equal representation—three members to employers, three to employes and three to the consuming public—on the trade association managing boards. The board, furthermore, would determine monthly the gross hours of employment available in the coming month, then divide that by the employes having jobs plus the registered craftsmen out of work, arriving at a monthly employment quota per worker. The employer who worked any one in excess would pay an excise tax equal to half the wages of the overtime involved, to go into the unemployment compensation fund. Disemployed workers would be able to sue the trade association when they failed to obtain their quotas of employment.

Health and Diet Advice

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper

DISORDERS OF THE SKIN
Dry Skin

Dryness of the skin or astaetosis is caused by too little oil being secreted by the glands. This may cause the skin to crack and scale, giving it a harsh appearance. First, cleanse the skin with warm water and soap, which should be rinsed off, after which a small amount of olive oil or almond oil should be rubbed in. Dry skin is benefited by the application of a good cold cream. In an over-dry skin the circulation is not normal, and the cells are starving for fat lubricating oil. Any exercise which tends to quicken the circulation of the skin, such as slapping, will tend to bring on the normal secretion of oil. A large quantity of oils and fats may be added to an otherwise balanced diet.

Pimples or Acne

This is a very persistent trouble frequently occurring at adolescence. The best treatment for pimples is change of diet, using lots of apples, oranges, melons and other fruits, and plenty of vegetables for both luncheon and dinner, and using at least one large raw salad daily. All rich fatty foods must be avoided, including such foods as chocolate, nuts, cheese, ice cream, etc.

It is a good plan to use a daily warm shower followed by cold, and a brisk rubbing over the entire body with a rough towel, especially over the areas affected by the acne. For the face, steam the skin gently, then open the whitehead of the pimples with a sterile needle, which has been sterilized in a flame and gently press out the pus with the pressure of the fingers upon a clean towel at each side of the pimple. Where there is a severe case of acne, it would be well to write in for detailed information about treatment.

Chapping

Chapping of the skin often occurs with dry skins where there is a lack of the normal lubricating oil. The skin may roughen and crack painfully, and small bleeding fissures may develop. During the warm weather the oil glands function more thoroughly than in cold, and this is why cold weather brings on chapped hands and lips. Some of the causes are exposure to cold and biting wind, washing too often with harsh soaps, and not drying the skin thoroughly after washing. Use mild soap and warm water, and do not rub the skin too vigorously. After drying thoroughly, be sure to rub in a protective cold cream. Almond or olive oil may also be used.

Cold Sores and Fever Blisters

The cold sore probably got its name from the fact that it is often found with people who have colds. It is a little blister generally occurring near the mouth. Although it may develop on the eyelids, it appears suddenly and is tender, although without great pain. Sometimes the sore dries up and a scab may form over like a crust. After the crust falls off, a reddish spot is left. Indigestion as well as a cold may cause these. Children have them more frequently than adults, and women more frequently than men. A cold brisk wind may bring them out. Cold sores are a digestive warning. It is a good plan to keep the sore clean and use nothing but acid fruits for several meals. Put pure borated vaseline over the blister.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Sore Jaw

Question—Stanley writes: "My jaw is sore and cracks when I chew. It sounds as if the bones are rubbing. What do you suppose is wrong with my jaw?"

Answer—The trouble with your jaw might be produced by arthritis, or it might come from a strain or injury. Such a condition is sometimes experienced after dental work is done until the jaw becomes accustomed to the new size and shape of the teeth.

Overcoming Alcohol Craving

Question—Roger asks: "Will you kindly advise me if there is anything I can take to stop the craving for alcohol?"

Answer—The craving for alcohol as well as drugs can usually be overcome by the use of a fruit fast for a few days and then the use of a balanced diet with good food combinations. After the first day or two of the fruit fast, you will find that the craving for alcohol can be easily overcome if you will use positive mental suggestions to yourself.

Cancer Not Infectious

Question—K. O. F. asks: "Will you please tell me if cancer is catching? Now, for instance, a person who has been operated on for cancer of the rectum is home now; would it be unwise to do that person's washing? This person has to wear a tube the rest of his life."

Answer—It is possible to contract certain kinds of infections from the discharge from a cancerous lesion, but there is no possibility of contracting cancer in this way.

IN NEW YORK
with Gilbert Swan

venient cuff: Guardians of the J. Pierpont Morgan mansion on Murray Hill, I've noted, are among the big town's most watchful. . . . Any effort to lean against the fence or shown signs of loafing is summarily discouraged. . . . I've never seen any one resembling a watchman about the uptown Rockefeller residence.

Whenever the boys and girls of the press want to be mean about Greta Garbo they refer to her feet. In the mannish, underslung brogans she affects, they seem to be somewhere around number sevens. . . . Gloria Swanson, on the other hand—or foot, rather—has the smallest feet among entertainers.

Heywood Broun, the columnist-critic-actor-producer, and his wife have adopted the Katherine Brush idea of separate penthouses. . . . Each has an individual roof-top lean-to, adjoining, but allowing individual freedom. . . . Each may decorate and operate his own menage according to independent tastes. . . . And there's no one to say that a fellow can't put his feet up on the table.

Richard Halliburton's unsuccessful effort to fly over Mt. Everest brings from the old cuff a memo concerning the last time I saw that greatest of rover boys. . . . A party had been staged for him at one of the swanky New York hotels. . . . It so happened that the press-agent who had Halliburton under his wing also handled publicity for Peggy Joyce. . . . Both had books coming out. . . . The p. a. thought it would be a good idea to get them together and drop hints of romance. . . . "But I," boasted Halliburton with serious face, "attempt to achieve only the unusual or impossible. . . ." The idea was canceled because Dick threatened to get stage fright.

Because she had been away from her hubby so long, Lilyan Tashman usually appeared in the Manhattan night spots with two escorts. . . . People will talk, you know!

Benn Levy, young British playwright whose opus, "The Devil Passes," is one of the immediate Broadway hits, had a love-at-first-sight attack when he met his leading lady, Diana Wynyard. . . . The only reason they're not married, it's said, has to do with straightening out family religious notions. . . . Benn is Jewish.

St. Malachy's—generally referred to as "the actor's church"—still uses the good old "pledge" system for those performers who find their cups too tempting.

When the "pledge" has been taken the reformed one is given a neat little card that can be handily carried in a pocket. Not only can this card be flashed boastfully, but if some of the boys suggest "just a little nip" it can be produced by way of explanation.

Scores of stage personalities have been good tipplers and any number of them, having heard of the church's system which has been functioning for many years, have taken out their cards.

WHITHER FLAMING YOUTH?

As Told to Bessie K. Roberts
By JOHN LANGDON-DAVIES
(Copyright by Public Ledger)

JOHN LANGDON-DAVIES

"The new picture of the universe has certainly altered our attitude toward morals and only a hypocrite can pretend that the ten commandments mean what they did," contends John Langdon-Davies, young English economist.

"People complain of what young people do. As a matter of fact, most conduct is reprehensible on account of vulgarity and lack of good taste. If the campaign against so-called immorality were directed from the esthetic rather than the moral viewpoint there would be more sense to it.

"There is a basic ethical code, of course. But it is made extremely difficult because of the cluttering up with antique superstititions. As soon as we ourselves are perfectly honest we will have something to teach our children."

"What will be the effect of changing moral attitudes on the next generation?" I asked him.

He foresees a morality not based on fear as a result of these changing moral attitudes.

"The church today follows the cult of a jumping cat," he said tersely.

"What in your opinion is the danger age?" I asked him.

"From the standpoint of the other fellow I'll tell you what I think. Unmarried deans of women of 50 are more dangerous on those under their control than anybody else. So long as we insist on having virgins as teachers and deans of women, how can we expect to have a healthy and enlightened social life in our schools and colleges. There is too much of virgin control."

The only teachers should be married people, he maintains.

He notes in this country a tendency to grow up too soon. He cannot refrain from making a comparison of the American girl with her English cousin of the same age.

"It seems a pity that adulthood begins so early. It is a curious phenomenon of the moment in America. This tendency to become sophisticated so young. The girl of 16 dresses just like her mother. Women and girls of the same size wear the same styles of dress, a custom which is not always appropriate," he observes.

"You wouldn't want all of us to look our age, would you?" I asked a little anxiously.

"No, not that. It is only that the young girl grows up too fast in America," he explained.

The English equivalent of the French "jeune filles" has no American prototype. It is our flapper who is making history, at least in the newspapers.

Great changes are taking place in the modern world, Mr. Langdon-Davies believes. There can be no doubt that great changes are taking place in what people regard as "moral" for them to do. The great contribution of the "New Renaissance" is that it has eliminated nine-tenths of the fear which dominated the lives of our ancestors.

"It is the fashion to think and speak ill of the younger generation," he pointed out. "They break the law and the commandments. A chorus comes from certain quarters that jazz, cheap cars, hip flasks, the movies, pychoanalysis, birth control and modernism are wrecking the home, marriage, love, innocence, purity and many other high-sounding things. People are no longer ashamed of doing what shocks their grandmothers."

Along with the old moral taboos, he believes that the young modern has eliminated fear. They are not afraid. And the importance of this is that perhaps lack of fear will bring lack of cruelty.

"Cruelty," he says, "has usually been the result of fears, and the picture of the universe which has lessened the one may, we hope, in time lesson the other."

The trouble with modern youth, he indicates, is not that they are immoral. That, after all, is a matter of opinion, he states. But they are vulgar. And in addition to that, science has made them lose their fear of what frightened their parents.

"If there is a legitimate complaint against modern youth, it is not because science has made them lose their fear of what frightened their parents, but because poety has not yet built up a lovely structure of emotions and ideals in which they may live.

"Fifty years ago they would have been making illicit love just as much as they may be now, but then whatever beauty might have been in their emotions would have been destroyed by fear.

The modern man's Bible has among its commandments the one "Be tolerant." In consequence, the most valuable commandment in the Christian's Bible, "to love one's neighbor as oneself," will become easier to obey, he states.

Science has brought humanity the gift of tolerance, he believes. If the modern man desires to be good—and all human beings do, he believes—he can achieve goodness by studying and trying to understand the best picture of the universe which his epoch can afford.

Science has also served to eliminate the old idea of sin. And with the elimination of the old idea of sin has come a justification of joy in life. Freud, he thinks, has had a tremendous influence on the human outlook on life. Since 1900 science has completely changed man's conception of his universe. Physics, biology and psychology have all helped to bring about this change. Thus we have a new man in a new universe.

Such a picture of the universe Mr. Langdon-Davies has given us in the story of man's continuous struggle to adjust his inherited beliefs to the ever-changing world of scientific discovery.

This viewpoint, which is achieved through recognizing the changes brought about by science, is especially significant in dealing with our attitudes toward the younger generation and their so-called follies. Mr. Langdon-Davies is recognized as one of the foremost thinkers of the day.

New Officers, New Speakers and New Writers Will Feature Forum Meetings During Coming Week

With the election of officers for the coming year to take place Tuesday, Feb. 2; with the address to be given that afternoon by Lennox Robinson, manager and director of the Abbey theater in Dublin, Ireland; with the Musicians club holding their February program at the clubhouse Thursday morning at 10 o'clock and members of the writers department following their monthly luncheon the same day with an original program by the junior members of the forum, entertainment for the coming week promises diversified features.

New officers chosen by the nominating committee are already posted at the Forum clubhouse. Mrs. Guy Rogers is named as president; Mrs. J. C. A. Guest, first vice president; Mrs. John Martin, second vice president; Mrs. J. Truman Stevens, fourth vice president; Mrs. Bernard Martin, fifth vice president; Mrs. G. D. Fox, treasurer; Miss Clara Schulz, recording secretary; Mrs. W. Newton Maer, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Claude Woods, parliamentarian; Mrs. G. D. Anderson, general department chairman; chairman of the Garden club, flower show chairman. New directors named are Mesdames William Huff, W. P. Killingsworth, T. A. Hicks and Bert Bean.

Officers will be elected the same afternoon on which Lennox Robinson, famous Irish playwright, will speak at the Forum clubhouse on drama. Mr. Robinson, manager and director of the national theater of the Irish Free state, which is closed for the season with its company of actors in the United States presenting a repertoire of famous Irish plays, will talk on the development of the Irish drama during the last three decades and include a review of the influence of the Abbey theater on the Irish drama and its discovery of new dramatists.

Other Artists Coming

Mr. Robinson will tell the inside story of the Irish literary renaissance movement which centered around the Abbey theater. A recent issue of the Irish Times stated that this theater had lifted Dublin from the status of a decaying provincial city to that of one of Europe's intellectual and artistic capitals.

The Irish people have come to regard the Abbey theater of such importance that it has been voted a subsidy by the parliament of the Irish Free state.

Mr. Robinson has been the managing director of this intellectual and artistic institution for nearly 15 years and is thoroughly steeped in its history and traditions. His address promises to be one of the most interesting of the season. He is a speaker of charm, personality and force.

Mrs. E. L. Fulton will introduce the speaker and Mrs. G. K. Wilson will act as chairman of arrangements. Hostesses will include Mesdames Clifford M. Moores, Sam Acton, H. W. Barton, L. L. Boardman, G. W. Cooper, E. M. Crump, W. E. Cobb and Marshall T. Evans.

February will be rich in entertainment, for two artist programs will be given in this month. On Feb. 12, Capt. C. W. R. Knight will be presented in "Filming the Golden Eagle." At this time pictures of the golden eagle will be shown.

Writers Department

With an ideal that looks toward the development of writing ability in the young people, the monthly meeting of the writers department will have a program on Thursday, Feb. 4, by Junior forum members.

The luncheon will take place at 12 o'clock sharp and the program will be given as follows: Feature story, Mary Louise Staley; poems, Bertha Mae Kruger; story, "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," Kay Cason; one-act play, Jennie Louise Hindman.

Hostesses will include Miss Mary Virginia Barron, Mesdames P. P. Langford, T. A. Hicks and Claude B. Woods.

Luncheon reservations, which must be made by Wednesday evening, will be taken by Mrs. O. W. Harvey and Mrs. Ann Barker.

CARRIGAN SCHOOL P.-T. A. HAS THRIFT PROGRAM

Thrift in the home was treated in an interesting manner by Mrs. Paul Woodward, one of the mothers, at the regular meeting of the Carrigan P.-T. A. Wednesday afternoon. She said not to just talk but to practice thrift and gave as an appropriate definition, "thrift is economical management. Make all you can, save all you can, give all you can is a good practice of thrift" she stated. "Let children have practice in handling money, give them a small allowance; this teaches them the value of money, the power to judge, self-restraint, to share with others and also to be able to distinguish between his and others' things. Talk things over with the children. Have a family conference. This helps them to take a better place in home and community by being taught thrift as they grow."

J. T. Rundell gave an interesting explanation of how thrift is taught in the school rooms. He told of how many little ways a child may be made to realize the value of thrift in the school.

Miss Rorabaugh, nutritionist, gave a talk on "Thrift in Relation to Health" and stated that each child has the right to grow up economically sound, also that food is biggest factor in the health of children, and mothers should know their food needs.

The meeting was opened by the singing of "America," by the group and Mrs. Alex Micheal gave the devotional. This also followed the thrift plan.

Francis Micheal gave a reading which was well received and during the business session plans were made for a quilt to tbe made by the members as a means of raising funds for welfare work. Mrs. Hathorn, welfare chairman, gave a report of her work up to the present time, which has been varied.

There were about 50 members present. After the business session a white elephant sale was held.

LINVILLE P.-T. A. HAS THRIFT PROGRAM

The Thrift program presented at Linville school Friday evening by the P.-T. A. was of unusual interest. Joe Bashara, the speaker on "Thrift," held the undivided interest of his audience.

Mrs. John Wright gave an impressive devotional and musical numbers were furnished by the rhythm band under the direction of Miss Zelma White and by the glee club under the direction of Mrs. W. W. Gresham.

In the social hour following the program, delicious homemade refreshments were served to approximately 60.

PEGGY PIEDMONT Says

WITH real springlike weather ushering in the last short month of winter, the social calendar is filled to overflowing with delightful affairs, all crowding one upon the other in an endeavor to sandwich in before the season of lent begins. The woman's Forum has posted names selected by the nominating committee for the new officers for the coming year, and is also announcing two lecturers of national and internation fame for this month, besides the numerous departmental programs and meetings which are always events of more than passing interest.

THE Y. W. C. A. held its annual mass meeting Thursday night, when more than 150 members and guests heard the splendid reports of work accomplished and enjoyed the speaker of the evening, Mrs. Luther Hogsett, of the national board, and the clever comedy presented by the Junior college and high school Girl Reserves under the direction of Miss Juanita Kinsey.

FRIDAY was also a full day with numerous club meetings, the banquet and dinner for members of the First Presbyterian congregation, and the musical comedy at the Memorial auditorium, "Crazy Quilt" in which a trio of broadway favorites took part as well as a wonderful supporting cast.

THE 1922 Study club members did themselves proud Thursday afternoon in the clever program and informal seated tea given at the home of Mrs. R. A. Lincoln on Harriet boulevard, which is one of the annual affairs given by this group of women. Members of the Standard club, the mother organization, and friends of the hostess club enjoyed the affair, which was colorful with valentine decorations. The program was just long enough—not too long, and thoroughly entertaining and amusing. Harriet Bradley, well known contralto, and favorite local artist opened the program with two pretty numbers, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. A. H. Mahaffey, and this was followed with a most amusing one-act comedy given by members of the Blue Curtain players. A misplaced line said by one of the actors in the comedy, but fitting in admirably, caused the actor much embarrassment, but gave the play added amusement and was received by the audience with an uproar of laughter.

AMATEUR theatricals are literally taking us by storm these days. The Harlequin players have recently been organized and are planning a performance to be given soon; the Epworth leagues in the local Methodist churches are rehearsing for a series of performances, and the Blue Curtain club is furnishing numerous programs with their one-act plays, as are the Girl Reserves and other organizations.

AN UNUSUALLY clever idea along this line has been brought to my attention and it seems that it might be carried out by one of our own splendid amateur actresses, is the monologue, "The Wives of Henry the Eight," which Cornelia Otis Skinner is giving. Julia Blanshard says that the story behind this production rings like the saga of a genuine pioneer, a woman who has the courage to do original things naturally.

SHE says that Miss Skinner, daughter of the famous Otis Skinner, trained for the stage at Bryn Mawr and in Paris, and has had stage experience here in a number of productions and that she was interested in little character sketches that she herself wrote and gave. Miss Skinner used to amuse her friends with her monologues and admits being startled and delighted to have women's clubs call her up and offer her money for appearing for their entertainment.

SEVERAL years ago, in England, Miss Skinner decided upon the theme of the love life of King Henry the Eighth, the writer says, and that she did research work in vast libraries in England for a whole year. Her idea was to pick out the most dramatic incident in the life of each of his six wives and to present each in that incident in a way to show just what each woman really was like.

SHE wrote the sketches herself, tried them out with such acclaim from the critical English, that she decided to bring them over here. All of her friends and former managers advised against attempting any single-handed performances this winter on account of the depression, but the actress had made up her mind. She didn't want to put a whole fortune into her production. She, according to Miss Blanshard, explains it as follows:

"I studied Holbein's paintings of these women all over again, this time not for character but for their costumes. I scoured the public library for every bit of information on materials, colors, styles to make their dress authentic. Then I scoured every trunk and closet I had to see what could be used.

"MY most successful costume, the one worn by Anne of Cleves, cost only the making! For years my husband has had a bed covering that he adored, but one that I disliked tremendously, because it was such a hard green and such a fancy pattern. In looking at paintings of Anne, I discovered the very use for that bedspread.

"SO I took it and designed the dress with it. Of course my husband asked where it was, about that time, so I told him I had found a marvelous use for it, to come to the theater and see."

OTHER costumes were evolved in much the same way. Bits of old lace that she had inherited, pieces of gorgeous brocades that she had brought back from the Orient, along with other materials she had collected, all went into the making. And when she started her production on Broadway, she modestly took such a small theater that within a week she had to move until she filled one of New York's largest.

NIGHT after night now she presents all of Henry's six wives. By day she is a social registrite, lives in the exclusive East River section, and finds her greatest pleasure in playing with her young son.

THE above sketch of what one actress accomplished by originality and work, is given with a thought that some of our Wichita Falls' talent might profit from it, and one that doesn't see why it could not be given by some of the numerous splendid local talent, is yours "for a tip."

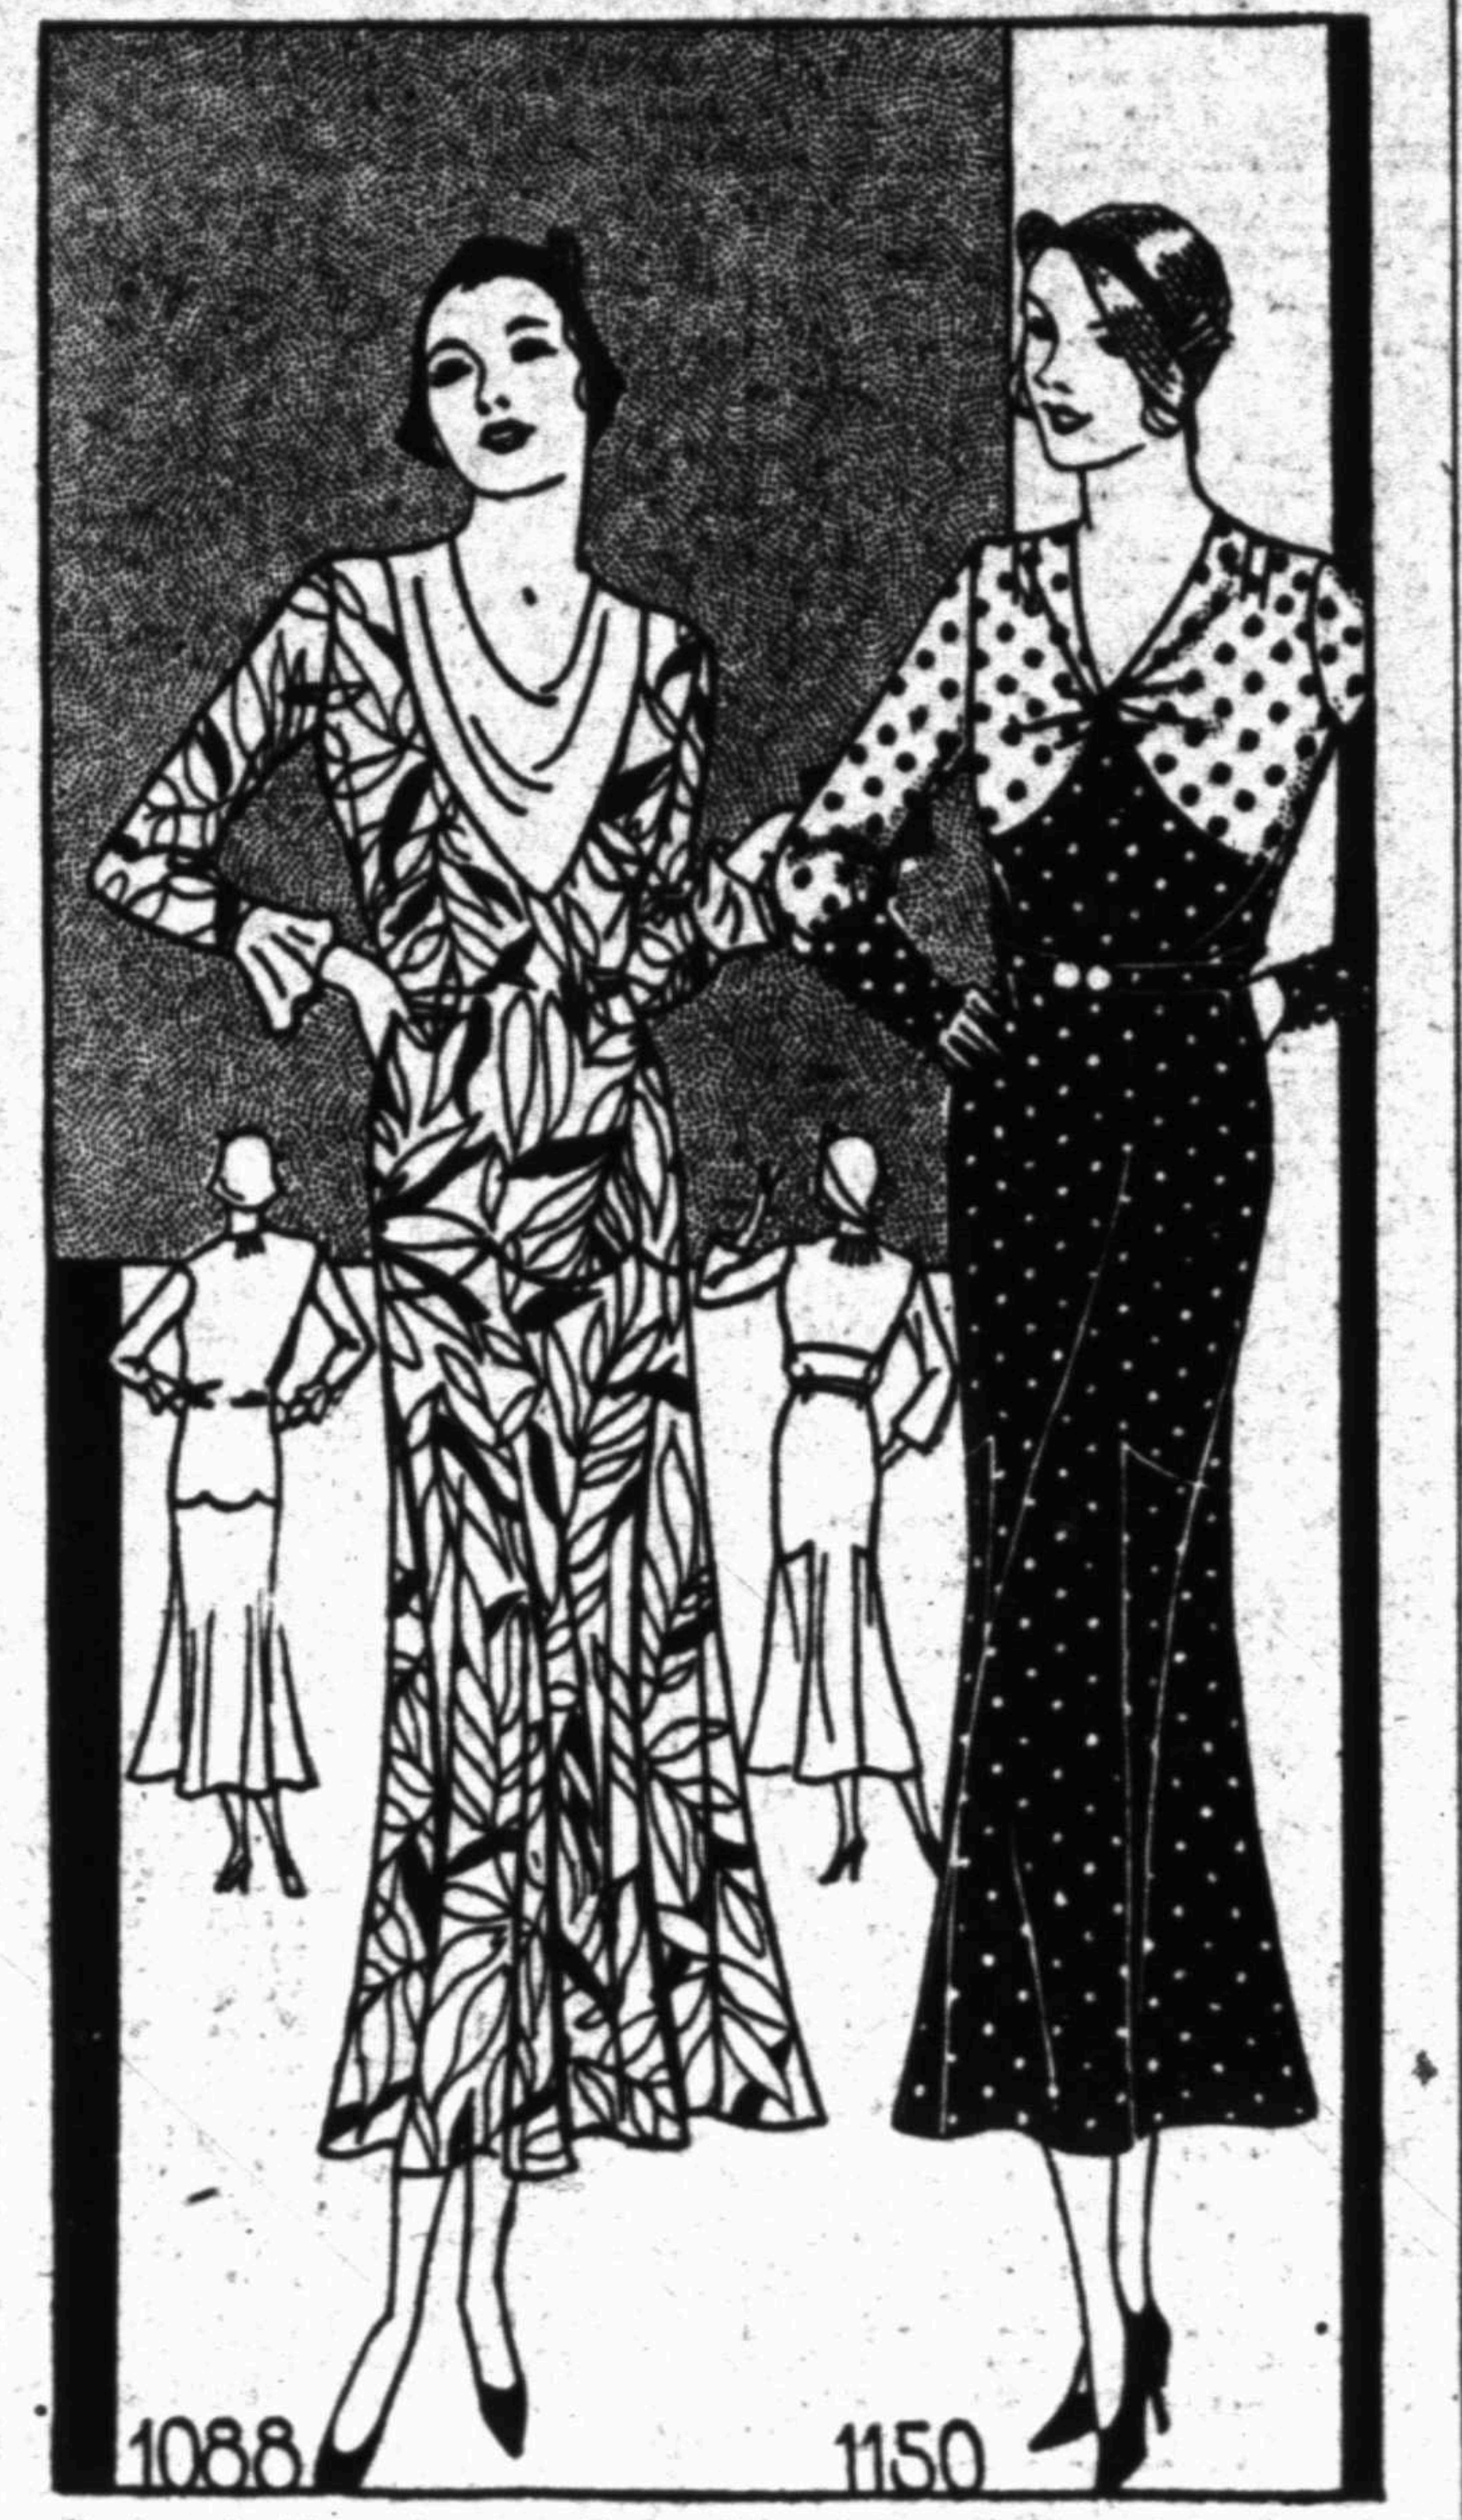
RECORD-NEWS PATTERNS



Spring fashions have entirely discarded period reminiscences and feminine frills, so much in vogue during the winter season. In their place is a simplicity that is exclusive, most attractive, and a decided relief to the feminine world at large. Daytime clothes are distinguished by their fabrics, colors and simple seaming. Skirts reach the middle of the calf and belts are frankly lowered to a becoming waistline. Contrast continues to play a most important role, whether inaugurated into the frock itself, or added by means of a bow, or scarf.

Pattern 1088

This model, which discards its belt altogether, molds the bodice to the figure with shirring in the side seams. A delightful note of contrast is introduced in the draped vestee and the sleeve flares. For this model we suggest flat crepe printed in three shades of tan and trimmd with eggshell; or green and black print with green trim. Sizes 14 to 20 and 32 to 42. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39-inch fabric, ⅝ yard contrasting.

Pattern 1150

Dark colors with the inevitable contrast of bright hue are favorites among smart women. This frock was made, in the original model, of rust red canton crepe with the top part of bodice and sleeves in pale green. It was quite the smartest thing we had seen in a long while. It will be equally lovely in blue and eggshell, brown and gold or black and white. Size 14 to 20 and 32 to 42. Size 16 requires 2¾ yards of 39-inch fabric, 1 yard contrasting.

These models are very easy to make as each pattern comes to you with simple and exact instructions. Yardage is given for every size.

Send 15c in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each patterns. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern ordered.

Send for our fashion catalog. It offers an opportunity to select smart current styles for afternoon frocks, sport models, house dresses, lingerie, pajamas, clothes for the kiddies, and accessory patterns. This catalog is 15 cents when ordered alone. Catalog and pattern together, 25c. Address all mail and orders to RECORD NEWS PATTERN DEPARTMENT, Wichita Falls, Texas.

The Story of Sue

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

The ringing of the telephone wakened Ruth Bradley early the morning after she left home. For a second she was quiet, not moving, trying to remember where she was, what had happened, if the bell was an alarm clock or a doorbell. Then she remembered. She reached across the desk and picked up the phone.

"Yes?" She said it softly, questioningly.

"Ruth Bradley? How will 10 o'clock do for your rehearsal?"

"Oh!" She knew that the round word collapsed just like a balloon but she couldn't help it. She had so hoped that she would hear Dr. Raynor's voice at the other end of the line. That was ridiculous, she told herself. She didn't want Joe Raynor to know that she had stayed there the night before. But if he did know, she wanted to set things straight at once, her inner self went on arguing. It was Dale Courtney to whom she was speaking on the telephone.

"Then I'll have the orchestra get the score ready," the man's voice answered calmly. Ruth thought she heard him laughing. She wasn't sure. Then he spoke again. "I'm sorry I didn't turn out to be the person you thought I would be."

"Who else could it have been but you?" Ruth answered gaily. "No one else knows my address. I'm moving out today, though. I'll see you pretty soon. Good-by."

She packed before she left the room. It was a dreary place in the early morning light. The dull mirror made her face look gray and ghastly. She dabbed some perfume back of her ears, around her lips, in the warm hollow at her neck. The odor of anesthetics would banish it soon enough. But for a little while she needed the wholesome sweetness of the lilacs.

Dressed, she went downstairs, turned in her key at the desk and wandered onto the street. She didn't want to go any place for breakfast where she would be known. A coffee shop sign sparkled down the street. She went in and found a place at a counter that was hidden by a large coffee urn.

She tried to face the thing she had done. She had left home. Her father and mother had demonstrated very clearly that they would sacrifice her reputation—as well as her happiness—if it would save Sally from the folly of Sally's own sins. Sally had proved again that she would like to escape trouble, not minding that her lies involved her sister. And Ruth was free. Se would keep her own salary. She reflected ruefully that Sally would not have many clothes now. There would be no one at home to do the family errands, sew up hems, dust and arrange flowers. The one maid would have to work overtime, or her mother and sister would have to get busy.

Ruth decided not to go to school at all. She called the superintendent's office and explained that she couldn't come in until afternoon.

"Are you ill, Miss Bradley?" the secretary's voice asked. "I'm so sorry. You are so faithful that we knew that something is really wrong when you are absent. I hope you will be better soon."

Ruth thanked her and hung up. She leaned against the wall in the pay station for a few seconds before she went on the street. She was so faithful, she reflected, that there was no danger at all that she would be caught. So steady. So reliable. So . . . uninteresting. No if it had been . . .

"You've got to snap out of this," she told herself. "You're not going to keep comparing yourself with Sally! You're you! And you're interesting. And you're going to the theater and do your stuff!"

With that resolve she started down the street again.

Next—Ruth meets Sue.

VARSITY NEWS

By BETTY LOVE RUGELEY

By the time this article goes to press, the students of the University of Texas will be celebrating the termination of the week of final examinations. No reader from the outside can thoroughly appreciate the effect of such a week in the college routine. It is the one time during the year when everybody studies long and hard, when social activities are willing to be left alone, when the drag is vacated for study tables and when the campus is loaded with busy, active, long-faced students.

For the general student body, there has been a three hour examination in each course taken, and each of these exam grades is at least a half of the student's course grade. Most of the grades will be posted by Monday and grades will be issued to the parents at the end of next week.

The result of this process will be in the nature of a general shift. Many students will fail, many will withdraw, quite a few are getting married, many will be put on "special observation," and lastly, over 100 freshmen will be entering for the first time.

Practically every one will go out of town for at least a day between terms. San Antonio and Houston will draw most of the crowd. The second semester starts officially on Tuesday, Feb. 2.

Mu Phi Epsilon, national musical sorority, entertained at the university conservatory of music Sunday afternoon with several selections being given by Mrs. Harwood Stacy, who formerly lived at Wichita Falls.

Many university students have asked for a report from Vernon Black of Wichita Falls, who has been out of school since Christmas on account of illness.

A university paper carried the results of the East Texas Basket Ball conference, and stated that the Texas A. & M. squad at Kingsville, which is coached by A. Y. "Bud" McCallum, formerly of Wichita Falls, are conference leaders thus far. Many boys from Wichita Falls are playing with A. & M. this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther R. Garrett have come to Austin recently from Wichita Falls, where they have lived for several years. They expect to make their home in Austin for a while.

Among debutantes who are being extensively entertained in San nAtonio this season are Marianna Engelking, Mary Webb, Ella Katherine Mills and Annie Pearl Wiggins, all of whom were students in the university last year. Misses Webb and Wiggins are members of Pi Beta Phi sorority and Misses Mills and Engelking belong to Kappa Alpha Theta. Miss Engelking is the neice of Mrs. E. C. de Montel of Wichita Falls.

Plans are being made by the staff at the Scottish Rite dormitory for various social entertainments for the new semester. A date will soon be set for the regular spring formal dance, and also for the annual George Washington tea. Littlefield dormitory for freshman girls will continue to have its monthly birthday parties and will also entertain with a spring formal dance at an early date.

Arno "Shorty" Nowotny, assistant dean of men, recently elected chairman of the third annual Texas round-up to be held in the spring is considered one of the most popular men on the university campus.

An account in the Daily Texan went something like this: "One of the latest applications for membership in the 'tall story' club concerns Leo Baldwin of Cotulla, an ex-student of the university. While the deer season was still open, Mr. Baldwin and two companions formed a hunting party on the Buena Vista ranch. The hunters, after three days without seeing anything to shoot, were returning to the camp when they walked up on a large buck. All three of the men began shooting at the buck and shot until their supply of ammunition was exhausted. The deer was not hit. And it was discovered that after the shooting was over, they picked up 78 shells, which had been used."

Miss Lorraine Glass of China Springs, who formerly lived in Wichita Falls, was married in Dallas last week to Harrold B. Cummins of Dallas. They will make their home in Dallas.

Miss Emmy Lou King has been chosen as lady-in-waiting to Miss Glynn Fowler, who is to be the duchess of Fort Worth at the Galveston Mardi Gras Feb. 6. Both Miss Fowler and Miss King were in the university last year.

HARRINGTON ELECTED HEAD OF WILBARGER RED CROSS CHAPTER

VERNON, Texas, Jan. 30.—J. A. Harrington was elected general chairman of the Wilbarger county chapter of the Red Cross to succeed J. B. Lawson at a meeting of the membership here Thursday. Other officers named include: Miss Esther Swartwood, vice chairman; D. B. May, treasurer; Miss Ethel Haney, secretary. Departmental chairmen include Mrs. Bertha Ross, home service; Fay Eggleston, roll call; H. B. Alexander, disaster; R. K. Tabor, first aid and life saving; Mrs. Flossie Adrian, volunteer service; Mrs. N. R. Heath, Junior Red Cross; J. L. Swartwood, utility; J. B. Lawson, finance; Mrs. R. D. Shive, publicity.

When FAT Goes Back Comes Vim

The World Way

The right way for treating obesity is now employed by doctors the world over. It is based on a new discovery —a gland cause.

Modern science finds that a great cause of excess fat lies in a scanty gland secretion. Then food which should be turned to energy simply piles up fat. Thus people grow both fat and lazy through the same gland cause.

Doctors everywhere now feed that lacking factor. They know that abnormal exercise and diet can never bring fat down, and vim back, while that lack exists.

Marmola prescription tablets do what modern doctors do. They feed a like gland, taken from food animals. A famous medical laboratory prepares it to fit the average case.

Marmola has been used for 24 years—millions of boxes of it. Users have told others the results, and the use has spread. Excess fat has been disappearing fast in those years, as everybody knows. It will go faster when more people recognize this right way to reduce.

Go try Marmola. A book in the box gives the formula, and tells why it does what it does. Cease the methods which have failed you. Combat the cause. Do what multitudes are doing with results you see. Go start today.

Mrs. F. R. Collard To Give Recital In Vernon Today

Mrs. F. R. Collard, prominent Wichita Falls musician, is playing a twilight organ recital in Vernon this afternoon at 4 o'clock. This recital is being presented by the Etude club of Vernon and will be given at the First Presbyterian church.

Mrs. Collard has won state-wide recognition as an organist and Texas newspapers have commended her recitals most highly. The Temple Daily Telegram said of her recent appearance there "Mrs. Collard displayed real artistry, with perfect registration, excellent interpretation, and a decided taste for melody in the highly classical. The Toccata and Fugue in D minor by Bach was particularly exquisite in its rendition." A large audience of music lovers from Temple and surrounding territory was present for the recital which was declared by members of the Temple Music club to be one of the most successful events ever presented by that organization.

Mrs. Collard will be assisted by Miss Annette Walsh, outstanding pianist known especially for her many noteworthy concert performances. Miss Walsh will contribute a number to the recital program playing Grieg's "Concerta in A Minor" (first movement). She will be supported by an ensemble composed of the following artists: Mesdames J. E. Hall, A. M. Miller, and Fred B. Sharp, violinists; Mr. Edwin A. Bebb, cellist; Mrs. F. R. Collard, organist. The complete program is as follows:

Grand Processional March, (Le Reine de Saba)	Gounod
The Largo, from "Xerxes"	Handel
Tocata and Fugue in D minor	Bach
Caprice	Edmond Johnston
Concert Overture in E Flat	Faulkes
Romance	Edwin Lemare
Symphonic Tone Poem "Finlandia"	Sibelius
"Memories"	St. Clair

Down to the Sea in Ships

THE HARBOUR MASTER, by Wm. McFee, Doubleday Page & Co., 439 pages. $2.50. Literary Guild choice for January.

William McFee . . . writes of devastating Love in "The Harbour Master."

The genius of William McFee is shown in "The Harbour Master," the January Literary guild choice, when the two characters standing for hero and heroine meet a tragic end at the beginning of the story and reader is undisturbed in his enthusiasm.

That "necromancy of verbiage," of which Mr. Spenlove accused Captain Flaxman is an attribute one approves in McFee. He can capture the imagination with his juggling words.

Mr. Spenlove, chief officer of the Camotan, a ship waiting off the coast of Puer Balboa, reveals an interesting self as he tells a chosen group of passengers the story of Frank Fraley and Francine, that Francine of whom he speaks as one of those goddesses of adventure who play the devil with lives, and whose funeral cortege was at that moment winding its way around the hills ashore. And in the story of Frank and Francine the chief tells whimsically of his own love affairs.

Frank Fraley comes to us first when as a young man full of the pride of his profession, he seeks work on a really decent ship. We see his weather bronzed face and his steady gray eyes focussed for long distance and he brings with him into the story that smell of the sea and that tang of fresh air we meet in every tale McFee writes.

From the beginning, Frank Fraley thought of women in one rather crude classification—but Mr. Spenlove has the biological history of pre and postwar women at the tip of his tongue. We find him giving vivid sketches of life and of women met in port after port. Though Mr. Spenlove disputes the fact that a sailor has a wife in every port, he says of men, "Most of 'em merely rebound from one woman to another." But no matter how much the discerning Mr. Spenlove, whose thoughtful sentences brighten every page, tells of women, he tells as much of the net that waits to tangle the feet of virile men.

Francine, the sister of a popular member of the demi-mondane and herself at one time barmaid in a Marseilles wine shop; a murderess; a woman of unbridled love and jealousy; a creature of untaught natural instances, still has at times, the raconteur states, "a celestial radiance" in her face. He speaks of her elementally beautiful soul, her love and her fidelity and her lack of evil intent.

The frank Mr. Spenlove's opinion of women enlightens the story. They engage in conflict, he says, not so much for moral issues as because they happen to be fundamentally devergent creatures. Mr. McFee's spokesman announces that the Englishman's idea is that woman should combine the glamous of Calypso and the virtue of Penelope; then the elemental Francine is brought into a life where she has evrey day contact with this ideal.

Frank Fraley's honesty and his surprising faithfulness to Francine lost him the captaincy of his ship and the latter part of the lovers' lives was spent in Puerto Balboa, where Frank was harbour master. Even there, his fidelity could not win place for her. Their life together was one of storm and passion and winning back each day the destruction done yesterday.

McFee readers know his beautiful style; his picture sentences; his far seeing vision and his magnificent characterization. The Harbour Master is a good book for thinking adults.

Man's Physical Needs

THE CARE AND FEEDING OF ADULTS by Logan Clendening. Published by Alfred A. Knopf, New York, $2.50.

Mr. Clendening examines the various physical and spiritual maladies of mankind, pointing out the fallacies into which exponents of change in the old attitudes toward health and morals have fallen, and concludes that it is safer and better in the long run to approach new fashions in physical, social, and spiritual remedies cautiously, for these are unproved and do not have a history of even moderate success behind them; whereas, the old ways of thinking and doing at least have been worthy of survival. He says "All old ingrained native customs, habits, and ways of doing things are the wisest for most people to follow. They make for the greatest amount of happiness in the long run and for the greatest amount of peace. As soon as people begin to free themselves from their own native, established customs—whether it be national costumes or marriage rites—they immediately begin to become ugly and unhappy." Many of the new thoughts that are handed out as scientific truths are mere speculations, and on actual application are not only unhelpful, but harmful.

The book is divided into two parts. In the first are considered man's physical needs—exercise, clothing, sleep, food and drink; in the second, man's morals. He heads his discourse on the latter subject "Doubts about" this and that. However he leaves no doubt as to how he feels about these matters. He says his heart leaps up when he is able to recognize that the prophet of the new day to whose voice he is listening is wrong, and from the force of his ragings one might wonder if perhaps his heart hadn't leaped up too far for scientific evaluation of all new departments of philosophy.

The book is interesting because of the vigor with which Clendening lays bare his opponents, and because he laughs and keeps you laughing throughout, or nearly so—when he leaves health and enters morals he gains ardor but loses humor. He exaggerates too much to be considered thoroughly scientific, but he intermingles with his ravings enough good, common sense to overshadow even such statements as that birth control is no more common today than it was in Victorian times.

The BOOK SURVEY

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Writer

Paul Von Hindenburg was in his sixties, a retired general of infantry, when the world war broke out. He had already, so to speak, lived one life—a long, active and useful one. Having finished it, he was waiting placidly for death.

With the war he began a second life—as legendary hero of Germany's armies, a returned Barbarossa, an incarnate Wotan smiting the fatherland's enemies. For four years this second life continued, ending only with the armistice.

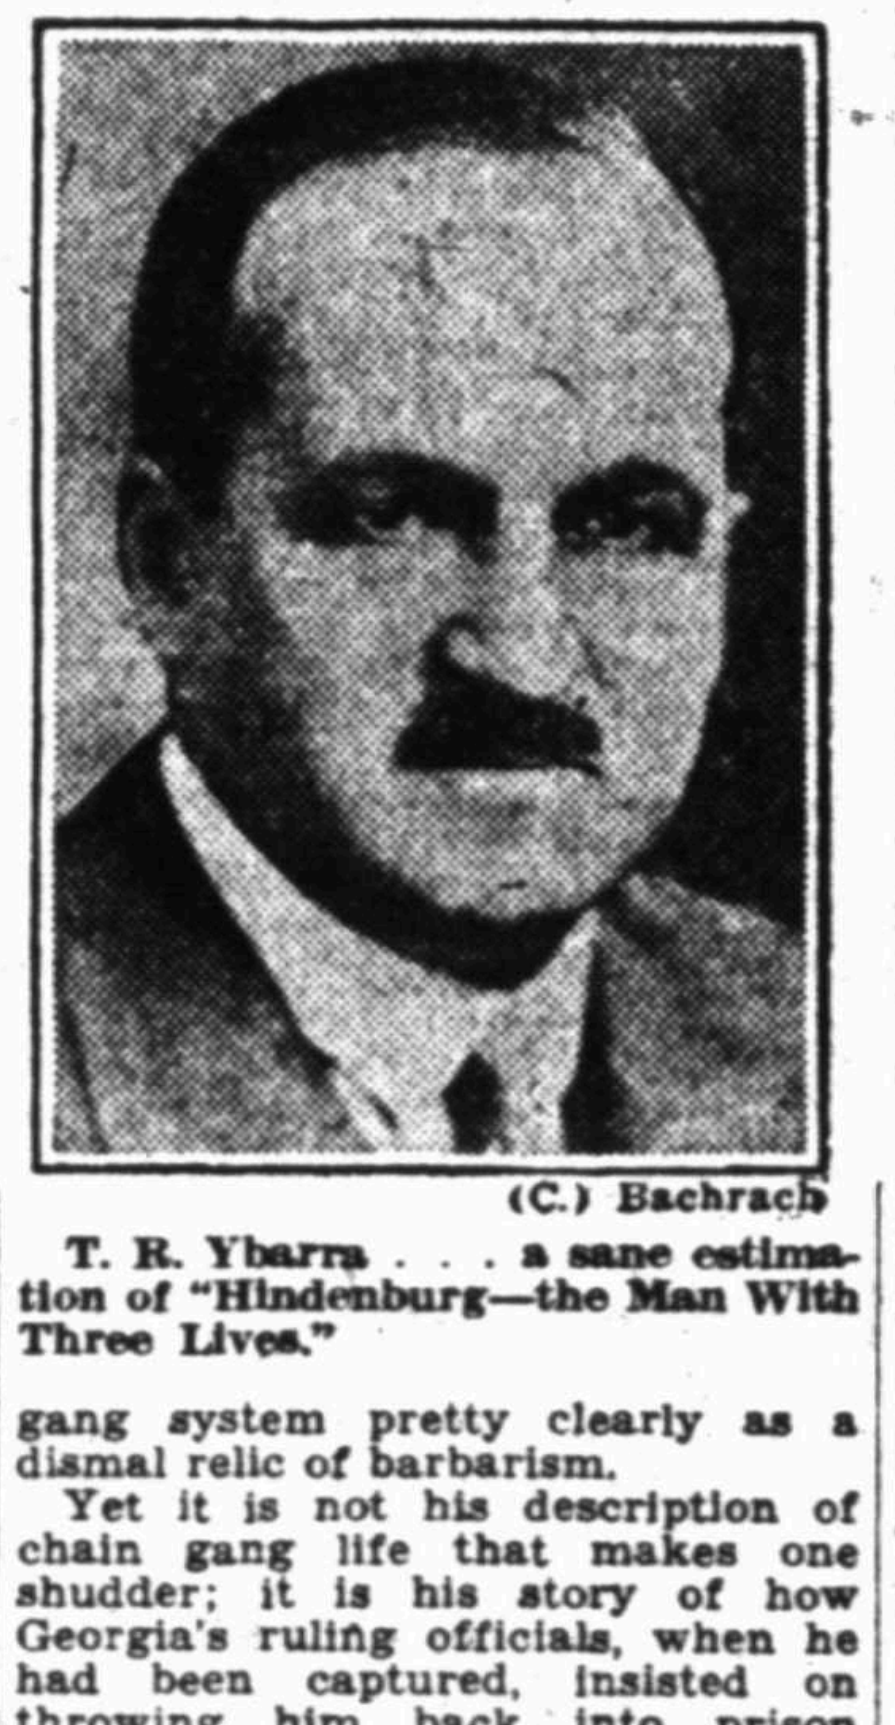
Then, years later, began his third life, when he was made president of the German republic. And here, perhaps, his services were greatest of all. He preserved the republic, checkmated the monarchists, gave such statesmen as Stresemann and Bruening the support without which they could not have carried out their policies.

That, briefly, is the way T. R. Ybarra sums the man up in "Hindenburg—the Man With Three Lives," published this month by Duffield & Green at $3. It makes an engrossing book and provides a clear and, I think, very sane picture of the famous old warrior-statesman.

In his discussion of the war days Mr. Ybarra is less fortunate than he might be, and he shows a tendency here and there to do Von Hindenburg's private soliloquizing for him. But in the main his book is sober and well-grounded, and it makes exceedingly timely and interesting reading.

An Escaped Convict

"I am a Fugitive From a Georgia Chain Gang," by Robert E. Burns, who escaped from Georgia's medieval prison system several years ago established himself as a magazine editor in Chicago, was captured and sent back to prison and finally escaped again, tells all about his experiences and exposes the chain gang system pretty clearly as a dismal relic of barbarism.



(C.) Bachrach

T. R. Ybarra . . . a sane estimation of "Hindenburg—the Man With Three Lives."

Yet it is not his description of chain gang life that makes one shudder; it is his story of how Georgia's ruling officials, when he had been captured, insisted on throwing him back into prison again despite the fact that he had amply proven his right to be considered a useful member of free society. That is his real indictment against his captors—that they insisted on vengeance instead of humanity.

The book will keep you interested from start to finish. It will also arouse your indignation. It is published by the Vanguard Press, and costs $2.50.

Those Naval Experts

In "The Navy: Defense or Portent," Charles A. Beard takes the naval expert apart to see what makes him tick, and demonstrates that the creature is far from infallible. He begins by showing how Germany went astray because it failed to keep a check-rein on Von Tirpitz's big-navy clique at the dawn of the century, and intimates that the same sort of crew is spreading its influence in the United States.

His discussion of the ineffable Mr. Shearer and the Navy League is devastating; so, too, are his comments on the admirals who clamor for a big navy without following their own arguments through to conclusion. All in all, his little book is an extremely useful bit of ammunition for those who would like to get on the firing line against naval jingoism.

It is published by Harpers, and sells for $2.

Early American Civilization

A book which should have been reviewed much earlier but which is given a new timeliness by the recent archaeological discoveries on Monte Alban in Mexico, is "Columbus Came Late," by Gregory Mason. Here is a very well-handled summary of the known facts and principal theories about the ancient civilizations of the New World; and Mr. Mason is so enthusiastic about his subject, and writes with such an infectious swing, that his book ough to arouse a new interest in American antiquities among people who have never bothered about such things before.

Occasionally his enthusiasm runs away with him a bit, to be sure; but for the most part he keeps his feet on the ground, and it is greatly to his credit that he has made such a dusty-dry subject as archaeology become interesting, even exciting, for the lay reader.

"Columbus Came Late," is published by the Century Co. at $4.

Practical Lessons in Journalism

ETHICS AND PRACTICES IN JOURNALISM. By A. F. Henning. Ray Long and Richard Smith, Inc., New York City.

Alf Henning, veteran Texas newspaper man, and now professor of journalism at Southern Methodist university, has put into book form some of the lectures he has been delivering to students of journalism. "Ethics and Practices in Journalism" is the title. Its stated purpose is to give the student the background for the calling he expects to enter.

I wish that every newspaper reader could read this book. It was written for journalism students, but it tells so much about the inner workings of the newspaper, so much that it would be good for the general public to know, that I wish it could have a much wider circulation than its author intended for it. Most of the newspaper's troubles, day in and day out, are due to the average reader's ignorance of its purpose, its methods and its limitations. The reader who thinks that his newspaper should be continually crusading for this cause and that, the reader who wonders why this story is printed and why there is no reference to some happening he thinks should be reported—these and a host of others would profit by reading Mr. Henning's volume. It will be worth much to the students who use it in their classes. It would be worth much to the newspaper profession to have it widely circulated.

There isn't, after all, anything mysterious about the newspaper business. Its primary purpose does not differ from that of a bank, a hamburger stand or a railroad; that is, to pay dividends on the money invested in it. There are some people who say that newspapers cannot serve the public as they should until we have endowed newspapers, absolutely free of the cash register's baneful influence. I have an idea that if such a newspaper ever appears, and functions as such a paper ought to, those who long for endowed papers will be among the first to yelp at its policies. Mr. Henning makes it plain that everything a newspaper does must be done with a view to this main purpose, of paying dividends. Obvious as that is, it is something the public often forgets.

He does not try to take the student into the inner temple of journalism's mysteries. Instead, he simply shows that there aren't any mysteries. Without undertaking to preach he deals frankly with various journalistic sins of omission and commission. His chapter on crime news clears away much of the fog that has gathered in recent years about that phase of reporting. His chapter on suppression of news is the fruit of a good many years of experience on a news desk and it answers the plaints both of those who have wanted things suppressed that weren't and of those who have wanted things printed that were suppressed. He deals severely but justly with journalism's disreputable camp-followers.

Mr. Henning has rendered a service to both students of journalism and to the professional itself by this book.

Interesting Interviews

Apparently the series of interviews with authors which Thomas L. Stix, president of the Book League of America, is conducting on Thursdays from 3:15 to 3:30 p. m. over WJZ is going over with considerable enthusiasm, judging from the mail that's coming in. Here are the forthcoming broadcasts:

Feb. 4—Thomas L. Stix will interview John Langdon-Davies on "Science for Eberybody."

Feb. 11—Thomas L. Stix will interview Emanuel Hertz on "Abraham Lincoln."

Feb. 18—Thomas L. Stix will interview William McFee. Subject pending.

Feb. 25—Thomas L. Stix wil interview Alec Waugh, on "That American Woman."

March 3—Thomas L. Stix will interview Kathleen Norris. Subject pending.

March 10—Thomas L. Stix will interview Silas Bent on Oliver Wendell Holmes.

We call your special attention to the broadcast with Frank Sullivan. When asked who his favorite presidential impossibility was, he said: "My favorite candidate is Dorothy Parker. What this country needs now is a good cry, and I know no one who can give it to the country as adequately as Mrs. Parker."

It Pays to Wait

"I think about my books for years and then it takes me years to write them," Jacob Wassermann told Irma Kraft when she paid him a visit at his home in Alta Ausse, Austria. "The World's Illusion required the better part of 10 years. It took three to write The Maurizius Case. I write six or seven hours a day—and yet I write slowly. And I have a great deal of reading to do. The first part of Doctor Kerkhoven has much to do with medicine. So I have now been studying medicine, yes, actually studying it for four or five months. I must always know everything my people are required to do . . ."

Doctor Kerkhoven is published in this country by Liveright, Inc. The translation is by Cyrus Brooks, and the release date was Jan. 22.

MAN WITHOUT COUNTRY FINDS HOME IN ENGLAND

MINOT, N. D., Jan. 30. (AP)—William Luckin no longer is a man without a country.

After being held in jail since last April because no nation claimed him, he was en route east today. British officials ordered him transported to England, after investigating his story.

Immigration officers took him into custody as an alien near the Canadian boundary. Then they sought to deport him to Canada or England, but neither could accept him.

Luckin said he grew up in an orphanage in England. But he still doesn't know where he was born, whether he has relatives or if Luckin is his correct name.

Federal men said Luckin took the situation philosophically.

PEEPING AT NEW BOOKS THROUGH UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS

LITERARY KNOT-HOLE

By LORENA DRUMMOND

"More Than Half Good"

American writers on American literature, it is true, is another anthology, but not just another anthology. John Macy, the editor of the volume, is striving for a new type of criticism that will be both erudite an animated; an unofficial skeptical criticism, thoughtful enough to see literature as life itself, yet wholesome enough to remember that humor and merriment may sometimes keep company with intellect. Mr. Macy optimistically believes that such a criticism is just around the corner in America, and that this boot "contains more than a hint of the required elements."

Thirty-seven more or less distinguished contemporary American writers have contributed as many essays on the chief figures and currents of the American literary landscape. The subjects range from the Colonial historians to the present-day philosophers, from the revolutionary pamphleteers to the contemporary poets, from America's aboriginal literature to its Yiddish writings.

The broad field covered by the book is partly responsible for its multi-author plan. Obviously no one man can know thoroughly both ends and the middle of even the 300 years of American literature. Under the plan here adopted, presumably each man selected to treat a particular topic is a specialist. The authors of some of these essays are masters in their fields: Louis Untermeyer writes "Contemporary Poetry"; Raymong Weaver, "Herman Melville"; T. V. Smith, "Modern American Philosophers." The list of fortunate adaptations of author to subject could be extended. But in other instances the choice has not been so happy: "Poe" has been entrusted to Edwin Markham and "Whitman" to James Oppenheim, Lanier has fallen to Stanley Williams, who substitutes a supercilious attitude for a statement of facts.

The book is distinctly a collection of isolated essays rather than a sustained treatment of the growth of American letters. For this very reason the editor has been forced into certain sacrifices. For variety and adaption of subject to author he has sacrificed that personal, gossipy atmosphere of intimacy which grows between writer and reader only after they have traveled some distance together. And—a greater sacrifice—for the sake of freshness of style and brevity of presentation, these essayists have had to dispense with thoroughness of treatment. Even after these sacrifices have been made, the material, as it is presented certainly in the less worthy essays, has too much the academic flavor to prove palatable to the general reader. Who outside a university, for example, cares whether Whitman is Homeric or Periclean? The book is, therefore, neither scholarly nor popular.

Yet certain of these essays make most refreshing reading to one accustomed to the traditional verdicts of American literature. Howard Mumford Jones in "Longfellow" manages to be both entertaining and accurate. T. V. Smith treats the "Modern American Philosophers" with an intimacy equivalent almost to personal contact. William Allen White in "Fiction of the Eighties and Nineties" achives both literary style and wealth of facts. Percy H. Boynton in "American Drama" enters the theater rather than the classroom.

Such essays make American writers worth reading and worth owning. If the book could today be slipped into Mark Twain's hands the great humorist with characteristic intuition would skip over approximately two-thirds of the essays in Mr. Macy's collection, read the other third with a satisfied chuckle, and then remark of the book—as he did of his friend—"more than half good."

Homely Verse

Simple, homely thoughts, couched in unassuming words, comprise the verse of Mrs. J. M. Flatt, a Texas woman, in her little book of poems, Home Lyrics, which was recently published. Mrs. Flatt, who lives at Cleburne and considers her life work that of keeping her home and rearing her large family of children, several of whom are grown, has written these little verses in her spare moments, as she tells us, "with no attempt at artistry or any display of superior knowledge or wisdom on the part of the author." The poems are closely intertwined with the everyday life of the author and her family and neighbors. Many of them deal with the common problems that come before the townspeople, while others partake of the home atmosphere, with frequent references to the school work done at home, the radio, pay-day, and washing dishes.

The book is divided into poems of inspiration, poems of love and nature, those of humor and those of philosophy. Among the fresher, more worth while poems are "Happiness," "Now," "Days in Life's Calendar," "I Have Seen God," "Wild Geese," "Autumn Leaves," "This Life," and "My Cup."

City Physician Urges Protection By Vaccination

A warning that both diphtheria and smallpox cases were now under quarantine and urging the people to obtain vaccine protection against these diseases was issued Saturday by Dr. R. R. Wolford, city physician. He said that the city health department would immunize those unable to obtain the services of a private physician.

The statement of Dr. Wolford follows:

"This is the season when two of our most dreaded contagious diseases, diphtheria and smallpox, are prevalent and we have some of both in the city at present in spite of the fact that both are absolutely preventable.

"Every child should be given protection against diphtheria and every one, both young and old, should be protected against smallpox.

"Those who cannot get immunization against these diseases from a private physician will be taken care of by the health department."

MAN ATOP 200-FOOT TOWER DEFIES POLICE

AKRON, Ohio, Jan. 30. (AP)—While police and firemen suffered nervous "jitters," a 28-year-old rubber worker remained perched atop a 200-foot water tank at Wadsworth, near here, four hours last night, defying them to come and get him.

At first they tried to coax him down with shouts that he "wasn't allowed up there and besides it's dangerous." Next, they tried climbing, but it was a long way up (also down) and worse, the tank-sitter shook the ladder.

Threatening to jump if pursued again, the man then produced an ear of yellow field corn and munched it with signs of relish.

At last, a downpour of rain caused him to descend. Two disgusted policemen took him to the police station, where he was placed under observation. He said his name was John Michler.

Who Is the Dedicatee

These Restless Heads, the first book by that new and promising author, Branch Gabell, contains the following dedicatory poem:

Journeys end in lovers meeting;
Only June may follow May;
Hearts like muffled drums are beating;
Not a dog but has his day.

Absence makes the heart grow fonder;
Learn to look before you leap;
Blondes are better yet when blonder;
Early sow and early reap.

Rules like these, with others not of Themes less varied, I pursue
Mindful of what more I wot of Aximos thus trite yet true
Controverted by a lot of Younger folk than I or you.

The name of the dedicatee stares you in the face. Who is he?

County Red Cross News

The Red Cross locally as well as nationally has the policy of making inquiry before sending an individual or family on into a new community. For instance if some one applies for assistance in order that he may go to a city or community in another county or state communication is had with the proper persons at the other end in order to see if the person asking assistance will be able to take care of himself when he arrives at his new destination. If it is found that he will be self-supporting in the new location he is usually assisted. Otherwise, to prevent the transient problem, no help is given to such as want to be transferred through the agency.

Feb. 1 is the time to begin some of the garden for the summer. Spinach, onions and peas may be started at this time.

The best way to prevent pellagra or border-line cases is to use plenty of milk, eggs and fresh vegetables. In other words, the families who keep a cow and chickens and have a garden are able to protect themselves from pellagra.

Wheat germ, that part of the wheat grain that has much vitamin content, may be purchased from the mills or from the grocers. It gives much nutrition to food and may be added, a teaspoon to the person, to such foods as breakfast cereals, biscuits, gravies, and all flour mixtures. Especially at this time of the year it is a valuable addition to the diet.

Liver should be included in the diet of children about once a week. Baked, as liver loaf, in sandwiches, scalloped and so on. Fried liver should not be given to children any more than any other fried food.

Divide your dollar into five parts when buying food: 25 cents for milk and cheese, 25-20 cents for vegetables and fruit; 15-20 cents for flour, wheat, corn meal, oats, rice, grits, bread and other grain foods; 20-15 cents for butter, lard, other fats, sugar and molasses; and 15-20 cents for meat, fish, and eggs. If enough milk is provided for your family so that you need not buy it then divide the dollar as follows: 25 cents for vegetables, 25 cents for cereals, bread, and beans, 25 cents for fats and sugars, and 25 cents for other foods.

The Junior Business girls enjoyed a Holland setting for their regular dinner Monday evening at the Y. W. C. A. To make the setting more complete, Mrs. Harry ten Brink met with the girls and led an interesting discussion for them on the customs of Holland. The regular nutrition class work followed this part of the program. Last year these girls took a six-lesson unit in general health and nutrition. They will receive certificates for this.

With the Magazines

By L. N. C.

"What's a college for?" asks an editorial in the current Saturday Evening Post. The investigations of a faculty and alumni association of a small eastern college of the highest type, who are engaged in a sort of intellectual stock taking, are the cause of the editorial.

There are now upwards of a million students in colleges and universities, the editorial states; there are more young people asking higher education than the institutions devoted to it can accommodate.

The alumni who assisted in the investigation found that English was thought the most important subject in college, both from a utilitarian and a cultural viewpoint; mathematics was second for utility and philosophy for its cultural value. Broad intellectual interests, ability to reason and analyze facts and a alibity to distinguish important things of life were stressed as importants results of college life.

Anent new books: the New Yorker announces "Book titles more or less reflect how things are going," and speaks of one entitled "How's Your Blood Pressure?" "The books on sane sex life, which sprouted like dandelions during prosperity," says The Talk of the Town, have dwindled, it would seem. Apparently people are more worried about how to get through the day than how to get through the night.

Charles A. Beard, writing in the February Harpers Magazine on "Our Confusion over National Defense," was interesting to us, one of the distinguished plain citizens whom he thought of as overcome wtih a palsy of bewilderment. Mr. Beard speaks for the advocates of peace (thunder on the left), then turns to the navy league side, (thunder on the right), but concludes with a plea for a navy sufficiently strong for the defense of the American continent.

"Would I like to have children again?" is a Sydney Cleveland article in the same magazine. Mrs. Cleveland isn't altogether satisfied with life as she's known it. She criticizes her life-loving husband, who is still no model for young sons and her answer to her own question is this:

"The only reward that might make the game worth the candle would be the feeling that I was leaving in my place a child equipped to carry on when my strength fails. I cannot feel that.

"But deliberately to choose, after what I've learned, to bear children in my own image, to be bound and disciplined and bowed to the yoke of the prison we call Life . . . Children who will in turn bear more slaves in their own image . . .

"No. Not again. Not for me."

Then in Harpers "A Doctor's Wife Speaks Up." She tells emphatically how it is the patient who preys and preys yet doesn't pay who is to blame for economic stress in the early part of a doctor's life and then, explaining why even in the economic heyday of the doctor's career, when fees are high they are still not flush with cash, she writes:

"I remember that when I was first married I made a proper call on an older woman, the wife of a very successful man. She spent an hour telling me to take good care of my husband and not let him work too hard. She told me that her husband, then in his 50s, was so busy that he had to eat his luncheon in his car, between hospital and office. I remember thinking then that if my husband ever had enough patients to make him busy, and a car to get about in, to say nothing of a chauffeur, I should never worry about his luncheon or anything else. I did not know then about the curious whirlwind that descends on doctors in their 40s and 50s and drives them, no matter haw they try to preserve their calm, patient exterior, into a passion of activity. At last they are having their chance; their profession with its problems is splendidly vast; the possibilities are limitless; life is short, and if they can't carry the world on their backs, at least they can try. And so they do."

"House Beautiful" is a delusion and a snare and should never be given to a poor person unless he is a dreamer of dreams. Even the tree shadows and the lights on the box shown in a picture of a prize house built in New York, clutch at the heart. But House Beautiful has some neat bits of information for the non-millionaire. For instance: "Nothing can give more whimsical interest to a room than the new mirror screens of three panels, which, when put in a dark corner with the sides at acute angles to the center panel, give a delightful modernist reflection to the most sedate of rooms. Another mirrored screen seen had New York's sky line painted on the surface and was placed in an entrance hall which had no windows, but which gave the distinct impression of a reflection from an opposite window," and "Articles on waterlilies, the cutting garden, plant diseases, and gardens in Japan, pages of garden furniture and garden ornaments, and a new garden department, are some of the features that will complete an important spring number," which makes garden lovers look forward joyfully.

And as usual, we cannot refrain from mentioning Collier's feature "Keeping Up With the World." Every week we learn things that we pass on and make some person think us profound. For instance, we can tell the missionary society "Up to the present time, 825,000,000 copies of the Bible have been printed in 91 languages and dialects. In Braille, the entire Bible has been done in English and Japanese, and parts of it in about 40 other languages."

And we tell lovers of Heflin this: "Alabama raises a species of goat which is undoubtedly the world's most timid animal. When suddenly frightened, the poor kids become paralyzed with fear and fall in a faint." What a noise Heflin must have made!

Mr. Lewis Browne, speaking on "This Believing World," recently said that the chief difference between Baptists and Methodists seemed to be a question of whether you wanted your soul to go through the laundry or preferred it dry cleaned—or words to that effect. Mr. Freling Foster tells us of India, "Hinduism and Mohammedanism, the two religions which rule 90 per cent of India today, are so diametrically opposite in beliefs, observances and rituals that they have even made necessary two drinking wells in every railroad station—one "For Hindus" and one "For Mohammedans."

The February Atlantic Monhtly is a joyful find for a lover of literature. We mention only a few things. Christopher Morley writes a lovable essay in "Pebbles From Gissing Pind." Henderson D. Norman has a story "Felipa and Christopher Discover America," and you need not think the two are foreigners. Felipa was born in the Shenandoah valley, "surrounded by the rest of Virginia," and Christopher came up out of the blue grass regions of Kentucky. But Christopher's work carried them into all parts of the country, happily for the reader. They came at last to the Pacific coast, settled by "enthusiastic men and homesick women."

It was there that Felipa, who had been educated by governesses, came in touch with public school work and was amazed that "required reading" was a part of the curriculum. She exclaimed over the fact that children were taught it is a task to read good literature, and quoted the boys in the Appalachian mountains who had been willing to go hungry to get "that good l'arnin" and of the little maid who after working all day, went to school at night to learn of the stars, "just for the gladness of knowing."

A driver took them, after a snowstorm, out on the McKenzie river road one January day to see the broad leafed evergreens covered with diamonds of ice, the fir trees sparkling and the fairylands that had been made when the sun followed the snow.

"The driver stopped the car where river, forest, and far-gleaming snow-capped mountains made the most breath-taking panorama. 'Now admit, you easterners,' he said exultantly, 'that you never saw beauty till today.'

"Christopher gazed, enrapt and silent; but Felipa turned upon her host reproachful eyes. 'Never saw beauty?' she repeated. 'Why, I was born in the Valley of Virginia!' "

STERLING OPPOSED TO SPECIAL SESSION ON COTTON ACREAGE LAW

CORSICANA, Texas, Jan. 30. (AP)—Gov. R. S. Sterling in a letter today to Representative A. N. Justiss of Navarro county, said he was opposed to calling a special session of the state legislature at this time to act on the Texas cotton acreage law.

He said be believed the courts would decide the issue within a short time. His reason for opposing calling a special session was that the people of Texas should not be called upon to stand such an expense.

The letter was in reply to Justiss' query about whether a special session would be called to repeal or amend the reduction law.

SUNDAY'S RADIO BROADCASTS

PLAN BROADCAST WINTER OLYMPIC GAMES NEW YORK

Every important event of Winter Olympic games to be held for the first time in the United States at Lake Placid, N. Y., from Feb. 4 through Feb. 13, will be reported through NBC microphones.

From the official ceremony formally opening the games, which will take place in the Olympic stadium, until the closing ceremonies on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 13, NBC announcers, engineers and field equipment will be present.

George Hicks, Edward Thorgersen and Ben Grauer are the announcers assigned to the Olympic games.

Perhaps the most impressive scene will be the opening ceremonies, which begin at 9 a. m., central standard time, Thursday, Feb. 4, in the Olympic stadium. At this time all the athletes participating will stand in the center of the stadium and take the oath promising to contend with sincerity and fairness in the games.

This ceremony, said to be traditional since the earliest of the Olympic games, will be heard over an NBC-WJZ network.

A complete resume of each day's events will be given every afternoon, except Sunday, Feb. 7, from 3:45 to 4 p. m., central standard time over an NBC-WEAF network. On that day 30-mile dog sled races will start from the stadium at 1:15 p. m. Clem McCarthy, NBC's racing authority, will picture them.

On Monday, Feb. 8, the scene will shift from Lake Placid proper, to nine miles from the town, where the III Olympic winter games committee has constructed, with the aid or the town and New York state, the only official and regulation Olympic bob-run on the North American continent. It was hewn out of Mt. Van Hoevenberg and extends for one and a half miles down the mountain side.

Twin Epidemic

SUDBURY, Ont.—You can't class sets of twins as a disease, but there was an "epidemic" of them here during 1931, nevertheless. According to records of Dr. W. J. Cook, health officer, there were no less than six sets of them in this town of about 9,400 population.

GROUND HOG TO BE GUEST OF HONOR AT RADIO PARTY HELD IN PHILADELPHIA ZOO FEB. 2

The annual coming out party in which the groundhog (arctomys monax to you) serves as weather forecaster will be accorded a shadow-by-shadow description over the WABC-Columbia network from 10:45 a.m., to 11:15 a. m. C. S. T. Tuesday, Feb. 2.

It is on Candlemas day, according to tradition, that the groundhog rouses himself from his winter's nap and emerges from his burrow to let the world know whether it will have a late spring or an early spring. If arctomys monax sees his shadow he rushes back to the hole and the next six weeks will be cold and stormy. If, on the other hand, there is no shadow, then he stays out in the open and enjoys lenient weather.

A great deal has happened since the lazy critter retired last fall: Notre Dame was beaten; the Japanese and Chinese phffft in Manchuria; New Year's resolutions were made and broken, and the Democrats took control of the house. The groundhog knows nothing about any of these and it is possible that he will interview the broadcasters instead of permitting the broadcasters to interview him.

At any rate a Columbia microphone will be sent out to the groundhog headquarters at the Philadelphia Zoological garden and Jack Bolton, staff announcer at WCAU, Columbia's Philadelphia outlet, will be on hand to describe what happens, if anything.

There are two disturbing factors in arranging the broadcast. The first is that the groundhog hasn't accepted the invitation to appear at his own party and may not be there at all; no one can be found who knows definitely whether, before he retired, he was sent a 1932 calendar. Of equal importance is the doubt as to whether the groundhog makes any noise. There is one school of thought which holds that arctomys utters a modulated, gasping sound something like that of a crooner. An opposing contention is that the groundhog is completely silent, as some crooners should be.

As a prelude to the beast's appearance, if any, C. Emerson Brown, director of the Philadelphia Zoological garden and president of the American Society of Zoological parks and gardens, will discuss the guest of honor and the legends that the day has developed.

Then, at noon, comes the hoped-for appearance of the groundhog. Afterward George S. Bliss, sectional director of the Philadelphia weather bureau and the Pennsylvania section, will conclude the broadcast with a talk in which he tells why arctomys has nothing to do with the weather, or anything else for that matter.

CARVETH WELLS TO DISCUSS IOWA IN TRAVELOG SERIES

Iowa, the "farmers' paradise," checkerboarded with improved highways and dotted with 42 beautiful state parks, a state rich in pioneer lore and richer in modern industrial development—this is the picture painted by Carveth Wells, noted explorer, in his NBC network radio tour for Sunday, Jan. 31, at 10 a. m. C. S. T. Wells' radio tour of Iowa is one of a series of "Exploring America with Conoco and Carveth Wells," including many American states, and sponsored by the Continental Oil Co.

Sketching Iowa's early history, from the days of Dubuque, the French colonizer, through the Black Hawk war, Wells tells graphically and interestingly of the natural resources and man-made attractions which appeal to the motor tourist.

The talk includes a word picture of the state university of Iowa City, Cedar Rapids, where most of Scotland's porridge is made, along with pork, pumps, and patent medicines; Des Moines, where soldiers once were stationed to protect the Indians; Fort Dodge with its enormous gypsum beds; and Council Bluffs, where the Indians anciently hold their councils. Of particular interest to tourists are the famous statue of the chieftain, Black Hawk, and the D. A. R. tablet to the memory of Lincoln, which Wells describes.

The Conoco-Wells program is to be broadcast at 10 a. m. C. S. T. over the following NBC stations: WENR, Chicago; WOC, Davenport; KVOO, Tulsa; WDAF, Kansas City; WKY, Oklahoma City; WBAP, Fort Worth; WOAI, San Antonio; KOA, Denver.

PRESIDENT TO BE HEARD WASHINGTON BIRTHDAY PROGRAM

The bicentennial celebration of George Washington's birthday will be inaugurated over National Broadcasting company networks Monday, Feb. 22, from Washington, D. C., with programs in which President Hoover, Secretary of State Stimson, Dr. Walter Damrosch and a chorus of 12,000 will participate.

President Hoover's address before congress will be broadcast from the floor of the house of representatives at 11 a. m, central standard time and, at a signal from the president, Dr. Damrosch will direct a chorus of 12,000 school children and men in the singing of "America."

A massed army and navy band also will participate in this ceremony, which will mark the opening of the official bicentennial celebration, and a battery of cannon placed within hearing distance of the microphone will be fired at a signal from Dr. Damrosch.

Previous to the program at the capitol, the Pan-American union's tribute to Washington will be heard over an NBC network at 10:30 a. m., central standard time. Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state and chairman of the board of the Pan-American union, and Dr. Orestes Ferrara, ambassador from Cuba and dean of the diplomatic corps, will be the principal speakers on this program, which will also include patriotic musical selections.

PLAN TO REJECT MOVE FOR TAX ON AUTOS IF OTHER SOURCES FOUND

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. (US)—Treasury department recommendations for a tax on automobiles, trucks and parts will be rejected if other sources of revenue can be found, members of the house ways and means committee declared today.

Adoption of a sales tax on electricity and gas and a levy on oil imports would make it possible to cut materially or eliminate entirely proposals for special taxes on the automotive industry, it was said.

A tax on autos will be imposed only as a last resort, according to a majority of the committee.

Speaker Garner and Representative Crisp, Democrat of Georgia, the latter a ways and means committee member, are advocating sales taxes on three or four commodities that would produce about $400,000,000 in revenue.

Around Town

Deputy Sheriff H. L. White will leave Sunday for Tyler to take into custody a man indicted by January grand jury on a charge of wife desertion. The officer expects to get back with his prisoner Monday night.

Paul Barnett, county auditor, who has been confined to his home by a severe attack of influenza, was back at his office in the courthouse Saturday.

Conan Cantwell, young attorney formerly associated with McDonald & Anderson of this city, who moved to East Texas several months ago, was a Wichita Falls visitor Saturday.

Costly Drink

WORCESTER, Mass.—One drink of whisky costs a lot in these times of prohibition without getting a fine tacked on to it. Andrew F. Johnson told Judge Riley that he had only one drink when he crashed into the car of Eric Nelson. Judge Riley fined him $75 for driving while under the influence of liquor.

Plan Broadcast Of Attempts to Wreck Lusitania

An attempt will be made to broadcast over the WABC-Columbia network a description of the salvage operations on the wreck of the Lusitania, which will be started within the next few months by the Lake-Railey Lusitania expedition.

The expedition has as its aim the recovery of articles of historic and intrinsic value from the wreck of the liner Lusitania, which was torpedoed off the head of Old Kinsale, Ireland, on May 7, 1915. The work is to be carried out largely by the aid of a steel tube long enough to be lowered to the decks of the Lusitania at a depth of about 200 feet.

ZERO WEATHER SPREADS EAST

Chicago Expects Coldest Wave Two Years

CHICAGO, Jan. 30. (US)—Zero weather that swooped down out of the northwest today was spreading eastward tonight.

In Chicago the temperature dropped to only 4 degrees above zero this morning. At 3 o'clock, the warmest part of the day, it was only 15 above.

Zero may be reached in Chicago tonight. If it is it will be the coldest weather in two years. Last winter one above zero was the lowest recorded.

In the Dakotas, Montana, Northern Iowa and Minnesota temperatures ranged to 20 below zero.

The cold will continue bitter for the next three or four days, weather charts indicated, and will gradually spread over the entire eastern port of the country. Up to this time the weather has been mild.

More than 3,000 homeless men were cared for tonight at relief stations throughout the city. Three persons suffering with frost bites were taken to hospitals.

Sub-Zero Temperatures

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 30. (AP)—Loitering winter, with sudden speed, has overtaken the calendar.

January normalcy, half forgotten in the favors of lenient seasons, is the phrase with which weather forecasters describe an icy array of sub-zero temperatures from Yukon, Alaska, to Stockton, Kan.

Suffering has marked the path of the cold wave in its rapid sweep from Canada toward the gulf of Mexico. Cries for food, fuel and clothing have increased in the snowbound drouth area as Northern Nebraska with its minimum temperature of 18 below zero.

Livestock was reported suffering there and in South Dakota where a bitter northwest wind swept the flat range lands while the temperautre reached 22 below.

It was 40 degrees at Prince Albert, Sask., and 31 below at Hibbing, Minn. Firemen were wrapped in sheets of ice fighting a blaze at Rice Lake, Wis., where it was 28 below.

The mercury dipped below the zero mark in Northern Illinois, Iowa, the Dakotas, Montana, Missouri and other states farther to the north. A drop to 30 below was predicted for Iowa tonight.

AMERICAN STEAMER RESCUES NINE MEN ON SINKING SHIP

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 30. (AP)—As their vessel sank beneath them, nine men were rescued today by the American steamer Flour Spar.

A cryptic message, without details, told of their being taken from the British auxiliary schooner Ruth F., listed by coast guard headquarters at Boston as a liquor runner out of St. John's, N. F.

The east coast radio signal service here received only the bare fact of the rescue from its Cape Race, N. F., station, which said the position was approximately 100 miles southeast of St. Pierre, Miquelon.

RAILWAY WORKERS ACCEPT WAGE CUT

ratification by the railroad presidents.

The agreement reached tonight had been awaited with interest and anxiety throughout the business and financial world.

Had the labor men insisted upon the concessions they presented the presidents remained obdurate, the whole controversy would have been thrown into arbitration with the possibility of many months elapsing before a settlement was reached.

The railroads, incidentally, had the matter gone into arbitration, would have demanded a 15 per cent cut instead of the voluntary 10 per cent.

The delay in an agreement here was caused first by the demand of the labor executives that the railroads make a definite guarantee as to the stabilization of employment, and finally by four counter proposals which were submitted to the railroads by the labor men.

Daniel Willard, spokesman for the presidents, flatly refused to accept any of the counter proposals, chief of which sought to have 3½ per cent of the 10 per cent wage cut set aside for relief for the unemployed.

SAYS EVERYONE KNOWS HOW TO MAKE WHISKY WHEN ASKED BY JUDGE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 30. (UP)—Everyone knows how to make whisky nowadays, R. L. Noblin, Cushing, told Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught today.

The court had asked the defendant who taught him to make whisky. Noblin pleaded guilty, was fined $350 and sentenced to 90 days in jail.

Tom Skeyhill to Speak Thursday Night at College

TOM SKEYHILL

Tom Skeyhill, noted Australian lecturer and soldier, will speak here in a return engagement Thursday under the sponsorship of the city teachers association.

Mr. Skeyhill, who has twice addressed Wichita Falls' audiences at the Woman's Forum, will present his lecture in the Junior college auditorium at 8 o'clock Thursday night. The subject of the address has not been announced.

He is a member of the Anzacs, famous Australian and New Zealand organization during the world war.

Roosevelt Has Birthday Party Hyde Park, N. Y.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Jan. 30. (AP)—This little Hudson river village was giving a birthday party for a home town boy—Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor and presidential candidate.

Some of the country folk who received "invites" for the birthday party in the Statsburg school house tonight remembered a Jan. 30 50 years ago when James Roosevelt announced he had a son and had named him Franklin Delano. The boy, they recalled, roamed about the countryside, sailed skiffs on the Hudson river, went away to school and then drifted into law practice and finally politics.

The friends banded together when he ran for the governorship in 1928 and formed a "Roosevelt Home Club." The club puts on the party tonight. The governor spent the day at his farm here among the scenes of his boyhood.

Smith Expected To Indicate He Would Accept

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. (AP)—The Brooklyn Eagle, says "former Governor Smith within a month will dispel the mystery surrounding his exact position in the present pre-convention race for the Democratic presidential nomination."

"The Eagle learned," it continues, "on the best authority that the 1928 standard bearer will announce his availablity for the nomination before the first of March.

"The understanding is that Governor Roosevelt's one-time personal and political intimate will inform a curious public that if the delegates to the national convention choose to nominate him, he will accept.

"The New Hampshire primaries do not require the consent of the entrant, but Smith is said to feel that in all fairness he should make a public statement of his willingness to submit to the plan to put him in the race."

MANGRUM AND RUNYAN GO INTO LEAD IN TEXAS OPEN EVENT

Wichita Falls High School Coyotes, boasting a wonderful practice season record, make their first real bid for popular recognition when they clash with the Vernon Lions here Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock. Realizing this city's sad lack of interest in basket ball generally, the school has made little ado over its Coyotes to date. If the present team had turned out to be "just another basket ball team," it is hardly likely that the Coyotes would have received much attention from any source. But Barry Holton's six-footers have proved beyond the last shadow of a doubt that they made up no ordinary team, and Tuesday night has been selected as the date for presenting the Pack to the public in a formal way.

Until Coach Holton had checked his hospital list Saturday, things looked pretty dawggone blue for the Coyotes and the Vernon game. Friday afternoon no less than seven of his squadmen were confined to their homes with heavy colds, and it looked like the team was to be visited by a sure enough epidemic. Several of the men were back on their feet Saturday, however, and the coach expected the entire squad, barring a further outbreak, to be on the practice scene Monday afternoon. At full stregth, there is no doubt whatever of the Coyotes' ability to hold their own with any team in this part of the world. As this is written, the team boasts a string of 12 consecutive victories over high school opposition, and No. 13 was in sight as the Pack went into battle against the Tigers Saturday night at Electra.

Wichita Falls' 11th victory in the string was scored at the expense of the Vernon team that is to be encountered here Tuesday night. The Lions' loss to the Coyotes was only their second of the campaign, and along with the Coyotes and Olney Cubs, the Wilbarger boys represent the cream of district No. 4 teams—and the district consists of no less than nine counties. In the vernacular, Tuesday night's game is a "natural"; an ideal spot to present formally the Coyotes to the public at large. School officials are doing all they can to make the event a high spot in the current cage campaign. The student body is to stage a big pep rally Monday or Tuesday morning, the football pep squad is to be hauled into action for concerted cheering at the game, the school band will be there, and it is hoped that the auditorium will be packed with students and fans. Coyote supporters not only are invited but are urged to turn out Tuesday night.

A former Spudder who probably has been all but forgotten astounded the baseball world last season when after many years of ups and downs, mostly the latter, proved to be one of the best pitchers under the big top. Heine Meine. Remember him? Not unless you belong to that group of "regulars" that keeps close tab on everything in a baseball way and never forgets anything. Meine was grabbed in desperation by the Spudders in 1923 when Walter Salm's pitching staff was null and void. He had failed at San Antonio and it was merely a case of grabbing at the last straw that he was taken on by the Wichita Falls club. Meine stepped in and won six or seven consecutive games and then bobbed up one afternoon with his arm in a sling and announced his retirement for the season. He eventually appeared at Kansas City where he had been signed as a free agent and proceeded to make the Blues a winning pitcher for several seasons, though he retired a time or two in between his good seasons. Pittsburgh took a chance on the veteran and after a season or two of so-so pitching, he blossomed forth in his old age last summer as one of the shining lights of the major leagues—the Pirates' most effective flipper. Meine lives in a St. Louis suburb and owns and operates a cafe.

Another Spudder of about that same era and one far better known hereabouts than Meine shifted clubs the other day, and strangely enough, the teams involved were Kansas City and Pittsburgh. Bob Osborn was a wow of a Texas league pitcher in his second season with the Spudders and he graduated to the Cubs to linger in big time, except for brief visits to subsidiary teams of the Chicago string, until the Pirates passed him off to Kansas City last week in a player trade. Like Meine, Osborn always has been bothered with a fragile pitching arm. He has never been able to get through a complete season without bumping into arm troubles. Otherwise, we sincerely believe Osborn would have become one of the real stars of the game. He is an El Paso boy and happened into the Spudder fold through the recommendation of one southpaw umpire known as Harry Kane, who has watched the youngster come up on the El Paso sandlots.

A baseball park more notorious even than Waco's "cigar box" and the old stand of the Exporters at Beaumont, where lazy flies to right field carried the fence for two bases, was the old Western league plant at Sioux City, Iowa, according to James Cato Galloway, who served much of his apprenticeship in the Western league back in the dark ages. As at Beaumont, it was the right field fence that nestled so close to the plate. A street just outside the park prevented lengthening the right field fence at Beaumont, but the obstacle was even more difficult at Sioux City. The wall was built smack on the banks of the Missouri river and the clubowner employed a fellow in a rowboat to retrieve the many balls hit over the short fence. Galloway was playing at Denver one season when Gene Fowler, then a Denver scribe, figured up Jim's batting average for the Sioux City park and found it to be no less than .750. It's not difficult to picture Jeemes hitting so much in that sort of park, for he could smack a ball to right field just about as hard and often as anybody.

Friday Pace Setter and Clark Tie for Next Two Positions

By BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 30. (AP)—Ray Mangrum of Los Angeles, and Paul Runyan of Westchester, N. Y., professionals, led the field Saturday at the end of the first 36 holes of the $2,500 Texas open golf tournament. Each had a card of 143.

Mangrum shot even par, turning in 36-35—71. Runyan blazed around two under par with 35-34—69. Friday Mangrum had a 38-34—72 and Runyan 36-38—74.

Joe Kirkwood, noted trick shot artist from Philadelphia, who Friday led at the finish of 18 holes with one under par 70, Saturday night was tied with Clarence Clark, Bloomfield, N. J., professional, with 144.

Sunday the great $2,500 money stampede starts with 55 professionals and 10 amateurs in the field. Professionals with scores of 143 to 164 qualified for the final 36 holes and the 18 money prizes. Amateurs with cards of 149 to 158 qualified for the "puritans" trophies.

Moreland Leads Amateurs

Gus Moreland, Texas amateur champion, led the simon-pure field with a fine 38-36—74 Saturday. It gave him a total of 149.

Gene Sarazen, New York professional, and Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn professional, are tied for third place with cards of 145. After a fine 71 Friday was off his game Saturday and had trouble putting together a 38-36—74.

Wiffy Cox had a 77 Friday. Saturday he played in a threesome with Harry Cooper and Clarence Clark and breezed in with the best individual score of the day, a 36-32—68.

Hugh Carpenter, silent playing professional from Dallas, held fourth place. Carpenter has turned in two brilliant rounds of 73 each for 146. He went out Saturday and stroked home in 35.

Harry Cooper, Chicago professional who learned his golf in Texas, was well to the front Friday with a 72 but Saturday his best was a 39-38—77 for a total of 149.

Champ Totals 150

Lefty Stackhouse, Dallas professional, finished with a 35-37—72 and a 36-hole total of 149 which left him in the running.

Al Espinosa, defending champion, put another 75 with his one of Friday to get a total of 150.

Dick Grout, long hitting Fort Worth professional, had the toughest luck of the day. Friday Grout was there with the leaders plus a 37-37—74. He started Saturday with a par 36 on the front nine but finished the back nine with a 45. His tee shot found a trap at the 17th and it required eight strokes for him to get down. His 81 Saturday left him with a total of 155.

Although he has small chance of winning, Tomekichi Miyamoto, Japan open champion and winner of the amateur-pro event, is among the 55 professionals who will play the final 36 Sunday. The Jap was in all sorts of trouble Saturday, taking a 44-37—81. He has a 158 total.

Everybody Is Happy

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 30. (INS)—Enthusiastic over the imminent success of the charity renewal of the Texas open golf tournament in progress here, L. D. Ormsby, local golf lover who underwrote the links classic to save it from discard this season, announced Saturday he would back personally a $5,000 tourney next year.

First money will be between $2,000 and $2,500.

Incidentally the happy turn of affairs accompanying the financial success of the tournament this year brought to an abrupt climax the argument over whether Robert B. Harlow, secretary of the tournament bureau of the Professional Golfers association, would get the promised refund of the $1,250 which he posted as a guarantee of a good field of pros.

He will get his money back and all parties will be satisfied.

It was pointed out that a highly creditable turnout of professionals is on hand even though some of Harlow's asserted promised entries failed to blow in.

One-Year Transfer and Eight-Semester Rules Adopted

Shreveport Assured Club in Texas Chase

HOUSTON, Jan. 30. (AP)—The Texas league Saturday declared itself unprepared to sponsor a class D league in East Texas this year, but retention of the Shreveport franchise in the loop was insured by the league club owners in their annual schedule session here.

Beyond assuring Shreveport that its club would be cared for, the league took no definite action toward establishing the financial basis. However, it was understood a deal looking to the purchase of the majority of the stock is pending. Until the negotiations are closed next week, no definite announcement of the club's future will be made.

League Not Interested

Wayne Windle, former Texas league shortstop, now interested in formation of a class D circuit of East Texas towns, was advised by the league this did not appear to be an opportune time for the Texas loop to attempt to back a league in that section.

The 1932 Texas league playing schedule was adopted.

The schedule will open on April 13, with Houston drawing a home game and Galveston as the guest; San Antonio opens in Beaumont, Fort Worth at Dallas, and Wichita Falls at Shreveport. On April 14, Dallas opens in Fort Worth, and on April 15 the remaining three clubs have their openers with Shreveport at Wichita Falls; Beaumont at Galveston and Houston at San Antonio.

Few Double-Headers

A 154-game schedule was adopted, with only two sets of double-headers on the card. The schedule will be completed in 152 days, and includes no "artificial" double bills. The mathematical half of the season occurs with the games of June 28, with the second half starting June 29. The season ends on Sunday, Sept. 11. If the season is split, such action must be voted by the clubowners prior to June 23.

Guy Airey, secretary of the Wichita Falls club, said that the Spudders were discussing the matter of lighting their park, but had not definitely decided to do so.

COYOTES AND LIONS TO TANGLE HERE TUESDAY NIGHT IN BIG BATTLE

While the Wichita Falls High school Coyotes were in Electra Saturday battling the Tigers in the second of a series of two games between these foes of old, school officials here were planning to make of next Tuesday night's clash here with Vernon the season's biggest basket ball event prior to the district championship tournament scheduled late next month.

The entire student body, as well as pep squad and band, will be called out in support of the Red and Black Tuesday night, and fans are extended an invitation to turn out for the occasion. The game will start at 7:30 o'clock on the Coyote court.

Vernon and Wichita Falls are two of the three favored teams in district No. 4 and the battle here is expected to provide one of the most thrilling tussles of the entire season. In an earlier game the Coyotes handed the Lions their second defeat of the season.

High Schools in Favor Important Changes in Rules

Transfer Rule Goes Into Effect Next Year, Committee Announces

AUSTIN, Jan. 30. (AP)—Two rules aimed at raising the standard of high school athletics have been adopted overwhelmingly by the Texas Interscholastic league, Bedichek, secretary of the league's executive committee.

One of the rules would prohibit a student who has been in attendance in school more than eight semesters from participating in interscholastic athletics and the other would bar a student transferring from one school to another from playing for one year.

The rules were adopted by vote of the member schools of the league. The eight semester rule was approved, 460 to 235, and the one-year transfer rule, 422 to 276. The vote was announced by Roy Bdichek, secretary of the league's executive committee.

The one-year transfer rule will become effective with the opening of school next September. The eight semester rule will not become effective until September, 1933.

First Half Title At Stake Tuesday In Basket League

Two Christian Quintets Tangle for Sunday School Race Honors

The "battle of the age" takes place Tuesday night on the Floral Heights Presbyterian church basket ball court with the two undefeated Christian teams tangling for clear title to the first half crown. The two teams have battled their way down to the final game, bowling over all opposition and Tuesday night they meet for the first time. Both teams have presented fast passing and deadly shooting combinations throughout the race and their first meeting on the league court is sure to draw the attention of the died-in-the-wool court fans.

By the original schedule, these two teams are booked for the first battle of the weekly triple-header, but efforts are being made by managers of both teams to get the game moved back to the grand final.

The two supporting games of the evening will bring together the Floral heights Presbyterian and Temple Israel teams for the scheduled second game. The scrappy little East Side Presbyterians, who up until last week were in the thick of the fight, will meet the Floral Heights Methodists in the third battle of the evening.

Jim "What-a-Man" Janeway last week pushed up his scoring total to 88 points for the four games to date. Janeway leads 39-18 in field goals and 10 to 6 in free pitches to lead the scoring in each department. Monty Griffin, a teammate, and Maynard Creighton, star basket shooter of Highland Heights Christian, still continued to hold down second and third places, respectively.

LEWIS' SUSPENSION ORDERED IN MISSOURI

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 30. (UP)—Suspension of Ed "Strangler" Lewis, world heavyweight wrestling title claimant, in Missouri because of failure to accept a match with John Pesek of Nebraska, was ordered Saturday by Harry Davis of the Missouri State Athletic association.

Davis said he would ask Lewis' suspension in all states affiliated with the National Boxing association.

PINKEY WHITNEY DENIES RUMORS HE IS HOLDOUT

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 30. (INS)—Arthur "Pinkey" Whitney, young San Antonian who holds down third base with the Philadelphia Nationals, Saturday denied reports emanating from Philadelphia to the effect he had declined to sign his 1932 contract.

Furthermore Whitney said, he has not even received his contract.

Mauler Suspended On Charge in Mississippi

CHICAGO, Jan. 30. (UP)—Jack Dempsey's "comeback" tour was stopped Saturday by a National Boxing association order suspending the former world heavyweight champion in all mmber states because a Mississippi exhibition show's bills went unpaid.

The Chicago stadium, notified of the suspension, cancelled Dempsey's booking for Feb. 18. It was understood that the edict also caused cancellation of a Milwaukee date for Feb. 8.

Leonard Sachs, Dempsey's manager was in Chicago and declared that the suspension was unjust. He appealed for a hearing before Gen. John V. Clinnin, chairman of the Illinois Athletic commission and president of the National Boxing association.

A boxing show at Columbus, Miss. last fall brought about the drastic action against Dempsey while he was in the midst of a campaign to condition himself for a return to ring activities.

Dempsey Suspended

The Mississippi Boxing commission suspended Dempsey after the show. It was charged Dempsey had failed to pay for the construction of the Columbus arena. The amount involved was estimated at between $2,500 and $3,000. Sachs also was suspended. There the matter rested until the stadium's announcement of the Feb. 18 cancellation Saturday.

Mississippi is affiliated with the National Boxing association, which generally recognizes suspensions voted by a member state, and enforces them in all other member states.

Sachs asserted that Dempsey did not owe the unpaid bills for the Columbus bouts.

"Dempsey was not the promoter, nor did he apply for the show's license," Sachs said.

Dempsey in Denial

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Jan. 30. (AP)—Jack Dempsey said Saturday he was not worried when informed he had been barred from territory controlled by the National Boxing association. He declared the move would not affect his coming fight of the Middle West.

Dempsey explained debts in connection with an exhibition trip through southern states were incurred by a promoter whose name he could not recall. Non-payment of these debts was the reason given for Dempsey being barred by the N. B. A.

"I didn't have any debts in the South," Dempsey said. "That was up to the promoter. He didn't pay me or other fighters he had. The whole thing is a laugh. I'm not worried."

The former heavyweight champion expressed belief his manager Leonard Sachs, now in New York arranging details of the coming eastern invasion, would straighten out the matter satisfactorily.

WIELDERS OF ROD AND REEL TAKE LAST FLING SATURDAY AND SUNDAY

Wielders of rod and reel Saturday and Sunday were getting in the last of their sport for the current season, and after midnight Sunday the three big lakes of the irrigation district will be closed for a period of three months, February, March and April.

Hundreds of fishermen were on Lake Kemp, Diversion lake and Lake Wichita and other hundreds were planning their final jaunts Sunday, through a check of the favored fishing spots at all three lakes indicated that good catches have been the exception rather than the rule throughout the week.

The special law controlling fishing on the three lakes bans all types of angling during the closed season. As well, it is unlawful to fish in the Wichita river connecting Lake Kemp and Diversion lake.

Pack Starts Slow But Speeds Up to Take 42-22 Game

Brandon, Reeves and Estes Continue Heavy Scoring Against Electra

ELECTRA, Texas, Jan. 30.—The figure 13 held no terror for the Coyotes here Saturday night as Wichita Falls' fast breaking, accurate passing quintet smothered the Electra Tigers, 42 to 22, for their second victory of the season over the county rival and their 13th successive triumph over high school opposition.

Coach Barry Holton gave his regulars a thorough workout and kept a starting lineup of Captain Bran at center and Janeway and Thompson at guards on the floor until last at guards on the floor until the last few minutes of play, and then made only three substitutions. Most of Wichita Falls' reserves were left at home to nurse severe colds, but with the starting five clicking to perfection after a slow first period, substitutes were not needed.

Tigers Use Dozen

An even dozen Tigers were ushered into the game by Coach E. M. Tampke in an effort to stop the Coyotes, but no combination succeeded in halting the point grabbing of Brandon, Estes and Reeves. The Pack's leader gathered 15 points from seven field goals and a free throw and Reeves and Estes were almost as effective, with 12 and 10 points, respectively. Janeway, besides pacing the invaders' passing game and figuring prominently in the defense, added five points to the total.

Two of the Tiger forwards, Foy and Parr, broke through the Coyote defensive lines for eight and seven points, respectively, but all in all, the Bengals were given little chance to score after the first period, in which they held the upper hand.

Electra Leads Early

The Tigers played a lot of basket ball in the first eight minutes to lead at the end of the quarter by an 11 to 10 margin but in the second period the Coyotes settled down to serious business and counted 10 points while Electra was failing to register, bringing the half score to 20 to 11. Wichita Falls exactly doubled the home club's score in the last half, 22 to 11.

The Wichita passers will attempt to run their string of victories to 14 Tuesday night when they take on the Vernon Lions on the Wichita Falls court.

WEATHER CONTINUES TO IMPEDE OPERATIONS IN DISTRICT

Ten New Locations Staked Out Early In Week, Archer, Wichita and Young Counties Participating in New Work

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

The district's oil situation remained unchanged since the previous week's activities were reported. Activities, which started off in a brisk manner in the beginning of the week, were forced to a curtailment by the heavy rain which soaked the fields to such an extent as to make it impossible to continue work with any degree of success.

In the early days of the week a total of 10 new locations were staked out, Archer, Wichita and Young counties each reporting one or more. A few wells, both producers and failures, were reported, and a number of new tests had been spudded in.

As usual, the major portion of these locations centered on the various tracts adjoining the shallow areas in the Orth and Newcastle townsites in north Young county. In this section probably a score of spudder tests are drilling to the shallow producing pays.

Pipe line runs from the pools of the district continued to show a decrease, one-seventh takings having its effect as each week passes. The nine counties of the district showed a total of 47,422 barrels daily, a loss of 247 barrels as compared with the runs reported Jan. 23, 1932.

SENATOR WALSH OF MASSACHUSETTS TO SUPPORT AL SMITH

CLINTON, Mass., Jan. 30. (AP)—United States Senator Davis I. Walsh, Democrat, today recommitted himself to support of Alfred E. Smith for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"I am of the opinion that it would be ungrateful for the democracy of Massachusetts to consider any other candidate while Governor Smith was receptive," said Senator Walsh.

Governor for Smith

BOSTON, Jan. 30. (AP)—Gov. Joseph B. Ely, Democrat, today said he was a supporter of Alfred E. Smith for the Democratic presidential nomination, "first, last and always, as long as he wants the nomination."

Dr. Cyr Has Two Men Arrested for Shadowing Home

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 30. (AP)—Dr. Paul N. Cyr, claimant to the Louisiana governorship, announced here today he had two under-cover agents of Acting Governor Alvin O. King's administration imprisoned at Jeanerette, his home, for shadowing him.

Dr. Cyr said documents found on the agents, in which the names of Senator Huey P. Long and governor were mentioned, directed that close watch be kept on Cyr and that he be trailed wherever he went.

He said the instructions specified that license numbers of all automobiles stopping in front of Cyr's home or office be listed, along with the names of persons making visits.

Two Arrests Friday

JEANERETTE, La., Jan. 30, (AP)—Sheriff Paul A. Landry disclosed today that he had arrested E. Tucker and L. H. Courtney of New Orleans on a charge of conspiracy on complaint of Dr. Paul N. Cyr.

The men were arrested yesterday, he said, and kept in jail last night but were released today on $400 bail each. The sheriff said documents in their possession showed they had trailed Dr. Cyr in New Orleans and Jeanerette and the papers indicated they were using a state highway commission automobile.

Sheriff Landry said the men appeared in Jeanerette last Monday, had been sleeping beside Dr. Cyr's house and followed Cyr wherever he went.

FIRST DEGREE MURDER CHARGE AGAINST WOMAN IN SLAYING STEPMOTHER

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 30. (AP)—A charge of first degree murder was filed today against Mrs. Mildred Helm, 36, formerly of Des Moines, Iowa, confessed slayer of her stepmother.

Mrs. Helm, enraged because the stepmother, Mrs. E. L. Hoag, 67, watched her house cleaning, yesterday knocked her down, pounded her head against a radiator and then struck her in the head with a sea-shell.

FLOODS THREATEN IN MOUNTAINS KENTUCKY

PINEVILLE, Ky., Jan. 30. (INS)—Kentucky's mountain sections were being ravaged today by floods from raging rivers and creeks swollen by the record-breaking rainfall of the past 48 hours.

The torrents were taking a toll of lives and property, incomplete reports disclosed but clearing skies and colder weather promised relief from the dangerous conditions.

The known loss of life reached a total of three today when Wilbur Clark, 17, was drowned in Straight creek near Pineville, trains and busses stalled, telegraph and telephone wires crippled and whole cities isolated throughout the mountain region.

Persistent Husband

SPRINGFIELD.—John A. and Mrs. Helen Applegate were divorced last September. Recently John met his former wife and asked her to drive with him to Riverton. There, she says, he forced her with a gun to remarry him, holding the pistol against her side during the entire ceremony. Then he took her home and kept her a prisoner until she escaped out of a window. She is now seeking annulment of her second marriage.

Sixteen New Tests Started and 13 Completions Reported Last Fiscal Week in Oil Fields of Sooner State

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 30.—More new wells were started in Oklahoma during the fiscal week than there were completions. Sixteen first reports were found by scouts and producers finished only 13 tests, six being oil wells and adding 7,800 barrels of new production to the already high shut-in production of the Sooner state. One gas well and six failures finished the completion report.

HOWARD TESTS DEEPENED FOR GREATER YIELD

Drill in Producer in Pecos County Sections for Strong Hit

RECOMPLETE CROCKETT CO. WELL FOR GREATER YIELD

Two Ward County Tests Hit Oil in Highlight of San Angelo Week

SAN ANGELO, Jan. 30.—Obtaining of more pay in deepening by L. C. Harrison's No. 1 Denman, an extension well in Howard county; drilling in of a producer in Pecos county, the striking of oil in two Ward county tests and the recompletion of a Crockett county well for increased yield were among this week's West Texas oil developments.

Group No. 1 Oil Corporation's (Texon) No. 3-B University in Reagan county began producing at the rate of 93 barrels hurly at a new world's record depth of 9,004 feet in lime, when opened Wednesday to test at the ninth level since it started deepening at 8633 feet. John F. Shipley and Byrd & Harmon's No. 1 Monroe, northwestern Ward county discovery well, pulled tubing to deepen from 4666 feet, where it was averaging around 60 barrels a day.

Weekley Oil corporation and Casteel & McCurdy's No. 1 E. F. Cowden, Ector county wildcat gasser and perhaps the most closely watched test in the Permian Basin, was scheduled to drill plug late in the week at 3190 feet, where on Tuesday it cemented 8¼-inch casing with 150 sacks. Late last week it recovered drilling tools that were blown up the hole Dec. 13 by a gas increase from 3795-97 feet. With the hole clear the gas increased to an amount estimated by the operators at 10,000,000 cubic feet. It was killed with rotary mud before the casing was run. No. 1 Cowden is considered generally to be running high structurally and may open a new pool about eight miles northeast of the Penn field and 15 miles south of Stanolind's (formerly Southern Crude's) two producers on the Dick Cowden ranch. Location is in section 33, block 43, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

L. C. Harrison's No. 1 Denman in Howard county obtained some increase in oil in deepening from 2737 to 2807 feet, where it swabbed 57 barrels in 2½ hours and prepared to run tubing. Oil was struck Dec. 18 from 2735-37 feet and when it began rising the well was shut down for the erection of storage. When opened four days later there was only 1200 feet of oil in the hole. No. 1 Denman is 330 feet from the east line and 2310 feet from the south line of section 10, block 30, township 1 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, one-half mile west of Sinclair No. 1 Dodge, the discovery producer in the area.

Cardinal Oil Co.'s No. 2 Settles in section 6, block 32, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, spudded on Jan. 21, drilled to 185 feet in lime and cemented 15½-inch casing. Another test to get under way was Mann & Currie's No. 1 fee, a Glasscock county wildcat in section 27, block 34, township 3 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey. It had drilled to 125 feet in lime.

Pumps 60 Barrels

Corvette Oil Co.'s (Culberson Bros.) No. 2-A Monroe in the Toborg-Tippett shallow field immediately northwest of the Yates pool in Pecos county, topped the oil sand at 464 feet, drilled to 470 feet and pumped 60 barrels of oil with some water the first 11 hours. It is 575 feet from the north line and 150 feet from the east line of the northwest 80 acres of section 39, block 194, G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey, 425 feet south of Corvette No. 1-A Monroe, a producer. Corvette staked a location for No. 7 Monroe, 575 feet from the north line and 1717 feet from the west line of section 39, block 194.

Deepening from 2556 feet to 2604 feet, Trans-Pecos Oil Co.'s (originally Young & Donnelly's) No. 1 Shannon in Crockett county obtained new pay at 2596 feet. It pumped 40 barrels of net oil the first day and 35 barrels each the next two days, then shut down for tank room. Before deepening the well was pumping only 10 barrels of oil with 100 barrels of water daily. During the summer of 1929 it extended the Powell field almost two miles south, being located 983 feet from the south line and 2323 feet from the southeast line of section 42, block BB, E. L. & R. R. Ry. Co. survey.

In southeastern Ward county, Eppenauer Drilling Co.'s No. 1 Purcell, in section 17, block 34, H. & T. C. Ry. Co. survey, had filled 2000 feet with fluid, mostly oil from 2440 to 2465 feet, when drilled to 2583 feet in lime. More pay was expected around 2610. Gas estimated at 6,000,000 cubic feet daily was struck from 2487 to 2500 feet, blowing the tools up the hole 40 feet and lodging them. When the tools were recovered the gas virtually had exhausted. When the oil was struck a small amount of water from slightly below 1900 feet was being carried but apparently was exhausting.

Stanolind Oil & Gas Co.'s No. 1 M. Weiss, in section 4, block 34, H. & T. C. Ry. Co. survey, had a showing of gas at 2276 feet, a slight showing of oil and an increase in gas from 2282-92 feet and a further increase in drilling to 2295 feet. The oil quickly rose 400 feet and continued filling up. No. 1 Weiss is about 2500 feet north of Stanolind No. 1 Brown, a producer recently completed.

Sid Richardson's No. 6 O'Brien in section 5, block F, G. & M., M. B. & A. survey, in northern Ward county, which had filled with oil in drilling to 2665 feet, had an increase from 2680-85 feet and shut down for a drilling line. Gulf Production Co.'s No. 9 Hutchins, in section 5, block F. G. & M., M. B. & A. survey, had increased to a flow of around 140 barrels daily in drilling to 2750 feet. While cleaning out to 2670 feet the week before it averaged about 120 barrels daily. Prairie Oil & Gas Co.'s No. 2 Archenhold, in section 23, block 5, H. & T. C. Ry. Co. survey, had had only small shows in drilling to 2510 feet, where it shut down for orders. It is a diagonal south offset to Sturm & Simms' No. 1 Jones, which obtained production from 2475-85 feet.

Wheat Test Chances Small

A test one mile southeast of production in the north end of the Wheat pool in Loving county offered small chances of production as Columbia Oil & Gas Co.'s No. 1 Wheat in section 77, block 1, W. & N. W. Ry. Co. survey, prepared to shoot. It had shown no free oil in drilling to 4443 feet, where a small amount of water was encountered, and plugged back to 4440. Kenneth Slack and others' No. 1 Lynd, in section 3, block 2, W. & N. W. Ry. Co. survey, was standing with 5-inch casing cemented at 4040 feet.

H. O. Bird of Fort Stockton was reported to have taken over Ervin & Mohres' No. 1 Thorp, which has been shut down for about a year at 810 feet, and will begin drilling miles northeast of the Wheat field, soon. The wildcat is about eight in section 46, block 53, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

In the world's deepest oil pool, in Reagan county, Big Lake Oil Co.'s No. 2-C University was preparing to test at 8840 feet after deepening from 8815 feet, where it averaged 2368 barrels daily. Three other Big Lake deep wells were on steady production. Big Lake No. 6-C University, which several months ago lost drill pipe when it had reached 4810 feet, ran more cement in an effort to sidetrack. Texon No. 1-B University, the discovery deep well, recently drilled to 8596 feet, remained standing with 5¼-inch casing cemented at 8528 feet. Texon No. 2-B University drilled to 8740 feet and ran 8573 feet of 5¼-inch casing. The drill pipe struck while being lowered and parted 22 joints down. It was to be cut.

Six of the world's deepest wells, two producing irregularly due to deepening, yielded 108,181 barrels of high gravity oil during the week ending the morning of Jan. 23, a decline of 1,032 barrels from the preceding week.

Stanlind's No. 1 W. H. Williams, deep wildcat in section 1196, T. C. Ry. Co. survey, in southeastern Irion county, had drilled with rotary to 6858 feet in sandy lime. Plymouth-Benedum No. 1 Sugg was drilling plug at 5618 feet, where 8¼-inch casing was cemented nine feet off bottom. Straughn and Adkins Bros. No. 1 Lee near Sherwood was underreaming 8¼-inch pipe to shut off water from 1230 feet and test an oil showing obtained at 1347 feet in lime, the total depth.

J. D. Wesner's No. 1 W. R. Nicks was fishing for tools at 5580 feet in shale. Eastland Oil Co. and others' No. 1 Tisdale had drilled to 4750 feet in shale. Both are Schleicher county tests. Mintex Oil Co.'s No. 1 Waring in Concho county had drilled to 750 feet in blue shale. Resuming drilling at 840 feet after more than a month's shutdown. H. H. Sides' No. 1 Bates-Felps in Terrell county had drilled to 585 feet.

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UP)—The wolf isn't at the door yet, but he already has invaded the streets of this town. Well, maybe it was a coyote, but at any rate, Patrolman L. C. Stammers ended the career of a big four-footed animal, which was trotting along the downtown section, recently.

Rotarians to Hear Charles Ingersoll At Thursday Meet

CHARLES H. INGERSOLL

Wichita Falls Rotarians will have an opportunity at their luncheon Thursday to hear Charles H. Ingersoll, representing the Manhattan Single Tax club of New York, of which he is vice president, as he will stop here in the course of a coast-to-coast tour.

Mr. Ingersoll, who is the "Original Ingersoll" launched the "watch that made the dollar famous" back in 1892 and was for more than 30 years the active factor in making and selling one-third of the three hundred million of his kind of watches that have served humanity, has during his business career been a constant and close student of economics and especially of taxation.

He believes that the present business depression, unemployment and poverty, are directly caused by the tax burden that is tied to the legs of industry instead of being properly balanced on its back; and by the exempting of land values, paying a premium on speculation, holding valuable land from the use of capital and labor, which are the sole producers of things that the consumer needs.

Mr. Ingersoll's talk to business groups are said to be unique in their clearness and their original attack upon the alleged absurdities of our present tax system.

He is traveling by motor with a friend, John S. Maclean, manufacturer of Columbus, Ohio, and filling speaking and conference dates en route.

OPERATIONS IN DUNCAN FIELD BECOME ACTIVE

Three New Locations Staked Out During Past Week In Sooner Area

WILD GAS WELL DRAWS INTEREST TO SECTION

Development Activities Highest Level in Last Two Years

DUNCAN, Okla., Jan. 30.—Three new locations were staked out in the new territory five miles south and two west of Duncan during the last week, as the bringing in of a "wild" gas well by the Continental Oil company enlivened interest in the area. The new locations brought activity in the county to the highest level in two years.

The Continental was running liner to complete its No. 1 Dare, in the NE SW SE of 2-2s-8w, which blew out unexpectedly 10 days ago in a new sand at 1433-38 feet. The well tested 9,800,000 feet of gas with 575 pounds of rock pressure, but operators said the hole had bridged from cavings and estimated the well worth 18,000,000 cubic feet of gas, with about 25 barrels of oil daily.

Continental staked location for its No. 2 Dare, in the NW SW SE of the section. This will be a south offset to the P. L. Gilbert and associates No. 1 Dare, completed recently for 100 barrels at 1360 feet.

The Dunmar Oil company made location for its No. 1 Donham, in the NW NE NE of 11-2s-8w, on the section southeast of the Conoco well.

George L. Pace has completed derrick and is waiting on tools for his No. 3 Allen, in the NW SE SE NE of 3-2s-8w, on the first section west of the Conoco well.

J. C. Chambers and associates were preparing to build derrick for their No. 1 Jewell Pollard, in the NW SE SE of 2-2s-8w, east offset to the new Continental well.

Will H. Smith still was shut down at 800 feet, repairing rig, at his No. 1 Ridgeway, in the NW NE SE of 17-3s-4w, a wildcat two miles south and two east of Loco.

This is an east offset to the Frank Gouin and associates No. 1 Burton, completed a year ago for 100 barrels to make a nice southeast extension of the field.

The Mid-Kansas and Ramsey No. 6 Preston-Culp, in the NW NW NE of 6-5n-9w, deep test in the Cement field of Caddo county and deepest hole ever drilled in the United States, is making around 10,000,000 cubic feet of gas and 23 barrels of fresh water from sand between 6035 and 6089 feet. Operators have not decided whether or not to complete the well as it is.

Joe Anderson's No. 2 Wild, in the NE SE SE of 28-3n-5w, in the Carter-Knox field of southern Grady county, is rigged up and shut down.

Economists Watch Formation of Reconstruction Corporation for Signs of Business Improvement

By RICHARD L. GRIDLEY
United Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. (UP)—Business men followed the railroad wage negotiations at Chicago this week, hoping for agreement on some plan that would restore railroad credit and permit resumption of normal purchases of supplies and equipment.

The steel industry believed a 10 per cent railroad wage reduction would bring considerable buying by the carriers, the industry's best customer. Automobile demand has been light.

Economists continued to watch formation of the administration's $2,000,000,000 Reconstruction Finance corporation, expected to go far in alleviating economic stress when it gets into operation in another week. It is expected that operations will broaden out to take over those now being conducted by the National Credit corporation—a $500,000,000 cooperative bank credit aid organization formed last fall.

The 1931 earning statements made public last week generally made poor reading for stockholders.

The United States Steel corporation report, showing the preferred dividezd only half earned last year served to unsettle confidence. Moreover directors slashed the first quarter common payment to 50 cents, against $1 paid in the previous quarter. Bethlehem suspended "common payments and reported an even smaller comparative profit for 1931.

Pennsylvania railroad directors ordered the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share and held that future dividends are contingent upon future business.

War talk from the far east created scarcely a stir in business circles notwithstanding American investment of $115,000,000 in Shanghai.

Federal reserve authorities continued to proceed slowly in their easy money policy to aid business despite the threat of heavy foreign withdrawals of gold. Rediscount rates at both Richmond and Dallas were reduced to 3½ per cent.

Second in importance only to the railroad wage negotiations, the announcement of a 25 per cent wage cut effective May 1 by the New York Building Trades Employers association, was considered particularly significant. The building industry, one of the largest in the country, is one field where failure to readjust costs and prices has been most pronounced. A similar wage cut was considered at Cincinnati. This has restricted much needed construction.

Southwest Review

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 30. (UP)—News in livestock circles held the attention of business in the Southwest during the past week. Other trade departments were unchanged, and steady.

Increases in the number of cattle, sheep and swine in the district were revealed in the United States department of agriculture annual livestock report. Cattle in Kansas totaled 3,392,000 head; Nebraska, 3,104,000; Oklahoma, 2,151,000; Missouri, 2,660,000; Texas, 6,127,000.

Swine holdings amounted to 3,105,000 in Kansas, 1,205,000 in Oklahoma, 5,110,000 in Nebraska and 4,001,000 in Missouri.

Demand for hogs showed activity at times, but prices failed to rally. The top for cattle this week was $9.25, for the third week this year, and lambs $6.25, or within 10 cents of the year's high.

Grain markets remained around closing levels of the previous week despite developments in supply and demands were bearish in nature.

Railroads announced rates on grain and grain products in effect July 31, 1931, would be restored on Feb. 20. This requires the filing of a new schedule by the carriers with the Interstate Commerce commission on or before Feb. 10.

Agitation for a tariff on foreign oil occupied the attention of leaders in the petroleum industry.

Oil leaders continued to insist present conditions in the domestic industry were potentially bullish. Amos L. Beaty, president of the American Petroleum institute, predicted that prosperity in the industry "that will pave the way for a general economic pick up" will be determined within 30 days by success of present curtailment.

Flour sales turned upward, and most demand was due to a flurry in wheat prices during the early part of last week. Prices were unchanged to 20 cents lower.

An irregular trend was noted in the tri-state metal market. Zinc sold $1 a ton higher to $1 a ton lower. Smelters offered floats for $15 and prime westerns at $16 a ton, $1 a ton below the previous week. Lead sold unchanged at $37.50 to $42.50 a ton.

Other lines of business, including banking, collections, wholesale and retail trade, shipments, building and construction showed practically no change over the preceding week, the federal reserve research department reported.

LITTLE ACTIVITY IN STOCK MARKET WITH PRICES NEAR LOWS

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. (AP)—War news from the Far East and the lack of news from Chicago where executives representing railroad management and labor were still seeking a settlement kept the stock market in a waiting mood today.

Many traders stood aside to await developments, apparently on the theory that with prices not far from their average lows a definite trend must soon develop and that events now in the making might well figure largely in determining the direction to be taken. Dispatches on the Sino-Japanese trouble were eagerly read, one result of their perusal being a mild flourish in a handful of so-called "war stocks," namely Du Pont, Atlas Powder and Savage Arms.

On the whole, however, the day was inconclusive. Fractional losses ruled at the close despite considerable firmness midway in the session. Selling of General Electric, which lost the better part of a point to a new low, unsettled the industrials, bringing narrow declines for U. S. Steel, American Can, Radio, General Motors, Westinghouse and Case. Rails waited patiently for final word on the wage cut. Utilities were dull. Even the temperamental specialties traded sluggishly. Volume amounted to 488,208 shares.

Another rise in wheat, perhaps on the theory that if Russia became actively involved in far eastern difficulties it would mean the removal of Soviet export threats, gave shares some courage during the first hour, but the grain market tapered off into net declines. Vague reports of recent cotton purchases by Japan and China were heard in speculative circles. Cotton quotations firmed slightly.

Brokers' views of the market are conflicting, as is usually the case when it is felt that a test period has been reached. Some firms are recalling that although price averages penetrated their mid-December lows earlyth is month they did so by only a narrow margin, meeting effective support. Whether such a performance can be repeated is, of course, the question, and its answer depends on whether a violation of old lows at this time would be followed by enough liquidation to open another phase of the major decline..

COTTON ADVANCES ON FAIRLY STEADY LIVERPOOL CABLES

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. (AP)—Cotton was quiet but showed a generally steady tone today with prices ruling a few points higher on trade buying and covering promoted by reports of continued small offerings from the South and the fairly steady showing of Liverpool.

May contracts sold up to 6.91 and closed at 6.88 with the general market closing steady at net advances of 4 to 7 points.

General business was quiet and appeared to be restricted by a disposition to await further developments in the far east. The bulgest attracted some realizing and closing prices were slightly off from the best.

The Liverpool market was irregular but private cables reported trade calling and covering with a scarcity of contracts and said there was a fair demand for cotton cloths from Indian. These advices said the proposed strike of cotton mill operatives in the Brunley district of Lancashire called for today was postponed with the settlement of the differences expected, and this may have helped the tone of the Liverpool market.

Houses sometimes credited with operating for Japanese interests were said to be selling a little here during the early trading, apparently against further spot purchases in the South. There was comment on the prospects for colder weather in eastern and central belt sections as it is not yet too late for a severe cold snap to reduce the number of boll weevils in hibernation but this was not generally mentioned in connection with the action of the day's market. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 170,000 bales against 114,000 last year.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 30. (AP)—The cotton market was only moderately active in today's short Saturday session and prices showed a very limited range although ruling steady. After opening 2@4 points up prices advanced on firmness in grain and the war-like news in the Orient, reaching levels 4@5 points above the previous close. There was a reaction of 2@3 points near the end on realizing for over the week-end and on weakness in stocks. The close was steady, showing net gains for the day of 2@ points.

The market opened steady at Liverpool cables were 2@3 penny points better than due. Private cables stated that there was short covering, developing a scarcity of contracts. Manchester cabled that there were fair cloth sales to India and that the Burnley mill strike had been postponed and would probably be settled.

March closed at 6.70 up 2 points net for the day, May at 6.86, up 2 point snet and July at 7.02, also up 2 points net. Although the war news was considered bearish for stocks it was also believed to be bullish for cotton and grain.

Port receipts 52,220, for season 7,559,731, last season 7,572,878. Exports 55,129, for season 4,790,775, last season 4,353,012. Port stock 5,007,444, last year 4,200,577. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 209,780, last year 96,450. Sport sales at southern markets 30,508, last year 10,684.

New York Cotton Market Displays Keen Interest in War Development Japan and China Leading Buyers

HURRY TO COLLECT PROFITS CARRIES GRAINS DOWNWARD

(Associated Press Market Editor)

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Hurry to collect profits tumbled grain prices downward today, and transformed advances into setbacks.

Chiefly influenced by expectance of crop damage as a result of sudden extreme cold, wheat rose briskly to more than 3 cents a bushel over yesterday's low point, but then gave way fast. War developments attracted some buying of wheat, though this influence appeared greatly eclipsed by likelihood of crop damage.

Wheat closed unsettled ⅞@1¼c under yesterday's finish, corn ¾@1c down, oats ¼@½c off, and provisions unchanged to 12c higher.

Corn and oats largely paralleled the action of wheat. A new feature at one stage was considerable speculative buying of corn against selling of wheat. There was some increase of rural offerings of corn to arrive here.

Provisions gathered strength from upturns in hog values.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, May 57⅞, 60⅛@¼; July 58@58⅛, 60¾@⅞; Sept. 59⅝, bids. Corn, May 39⅞@40, 41; July 42, 42⅞.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. (AP)—The New York cotton market was considerably more interested in the war clouds arising in the far east than the narrow fluctuations of today's market suggested. Inasmuch as Japan and China are normally leading buyers of American cotton.

Japanese bankers here who look after the financing of cotton purchased for that nation took occasion today to repudiate reports which found many believers on the cotton exchange floor, namely that Japan might be expected to buy cotton heavily for munitions.

A small advance of 20 to 35 cents a bale in cotton contracts was regarded by some traders as the market's interpretation of bullish possibilities of the far east conflict, but it was by no means a unanimous opinion that raw cotton prices would be constructively influenced by the Sino-Japanese war.

The possibility that the war might have a depressing effect on the market, held by some experienced cotton people to be more valid than the opposite view, was summarized in a letter issued today by C. T. Revere, of Munds, Winslow & Potter, a well known authority on cotton.

The letter said: "We are not inclined to take a bullish view until more is known of the situation, as we believe that extension of warfare between China and Japan would result in the blockading of Chinese imports which thus far have been rather large.

"Moreover strained relations between the United States and Japan might lead to a suspension of shipments."

EASY UNDERTONE IN LIGHT SESSION OF CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. (AP)—In the smallest Saturday volume since Aug. 1, the curb market continued to show an easy undertone today, prices of many leading issues working slightly lower during the two hours. Transactions approximated only 90,000 shares.

A trickle of offerings kept the utility group under light pressure, although representative stocks of other descriptions tended to participate in the decline. The number of issues figuring in the session was small.

Electric Bond & Share dipped to 10¼ and closed at 10⅝, off ⅝. While Associated Gas "A" and Niagara Hudson had nominal losses. United Light "A" closed firm. Northern States Power "A" lost a point.

Childs company preferred, on which the dividend was passed this week, broke 15 points to 30 on odd lot offerings. Small fractional recessions appeared in Cord Corp., Ford Lt., Newmont Mining and Deer. Pennroad was unchanged, while Aluminum of America managed to rally half a point on the day. Singer Manufacturing was off 2¼.

Oils were lifeless. Gulf's fractional reaction was one of the few changes. Indiana finished at 15, which was also Friday's closing quotation.

STRENGTH OF U. S. LOANS FEATURE OF TRADING IN BONDS

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. (AP)—The strength of United States government loans and the weakness of rails and Japanese obligations were the features of today's somewhat lustreless bond market.

The treasury issues were especially strong, some of them advancing nearly a point. The liberties also joined in the upward movement, but their net gains were smaller.

Buying of the federal was attributed partly to the belief in some quarters that the Federal Reserve banks are preparing to inaugurate an easy money policy by reducing the rediscount rate at an early date.

The seriousness of the Sino-Japanese situation at Shanghai was a disturbing factor in the Nippon list. Japanese government bonds added from 1½ to nearly 3 points to their losses of yesterday. Oriental development also shed about 2 points and Tokyo City and corporate issues exhibited renewed weakness.

Most of the railroad liens showed a downward trend, losses of from fractions to around 3 points being registered by a number of these mortgages. Discouragement over the lagging wage reduction conference in Chicago caused most of the selling.

Industrials and utilities showed some improvement near the close and their prices were somewhat above those of yesterday. The foreign section was mixed. German government 7s gained a point but British 5½s declined. South American loans were easy.

Sales totaled $6,910,000.

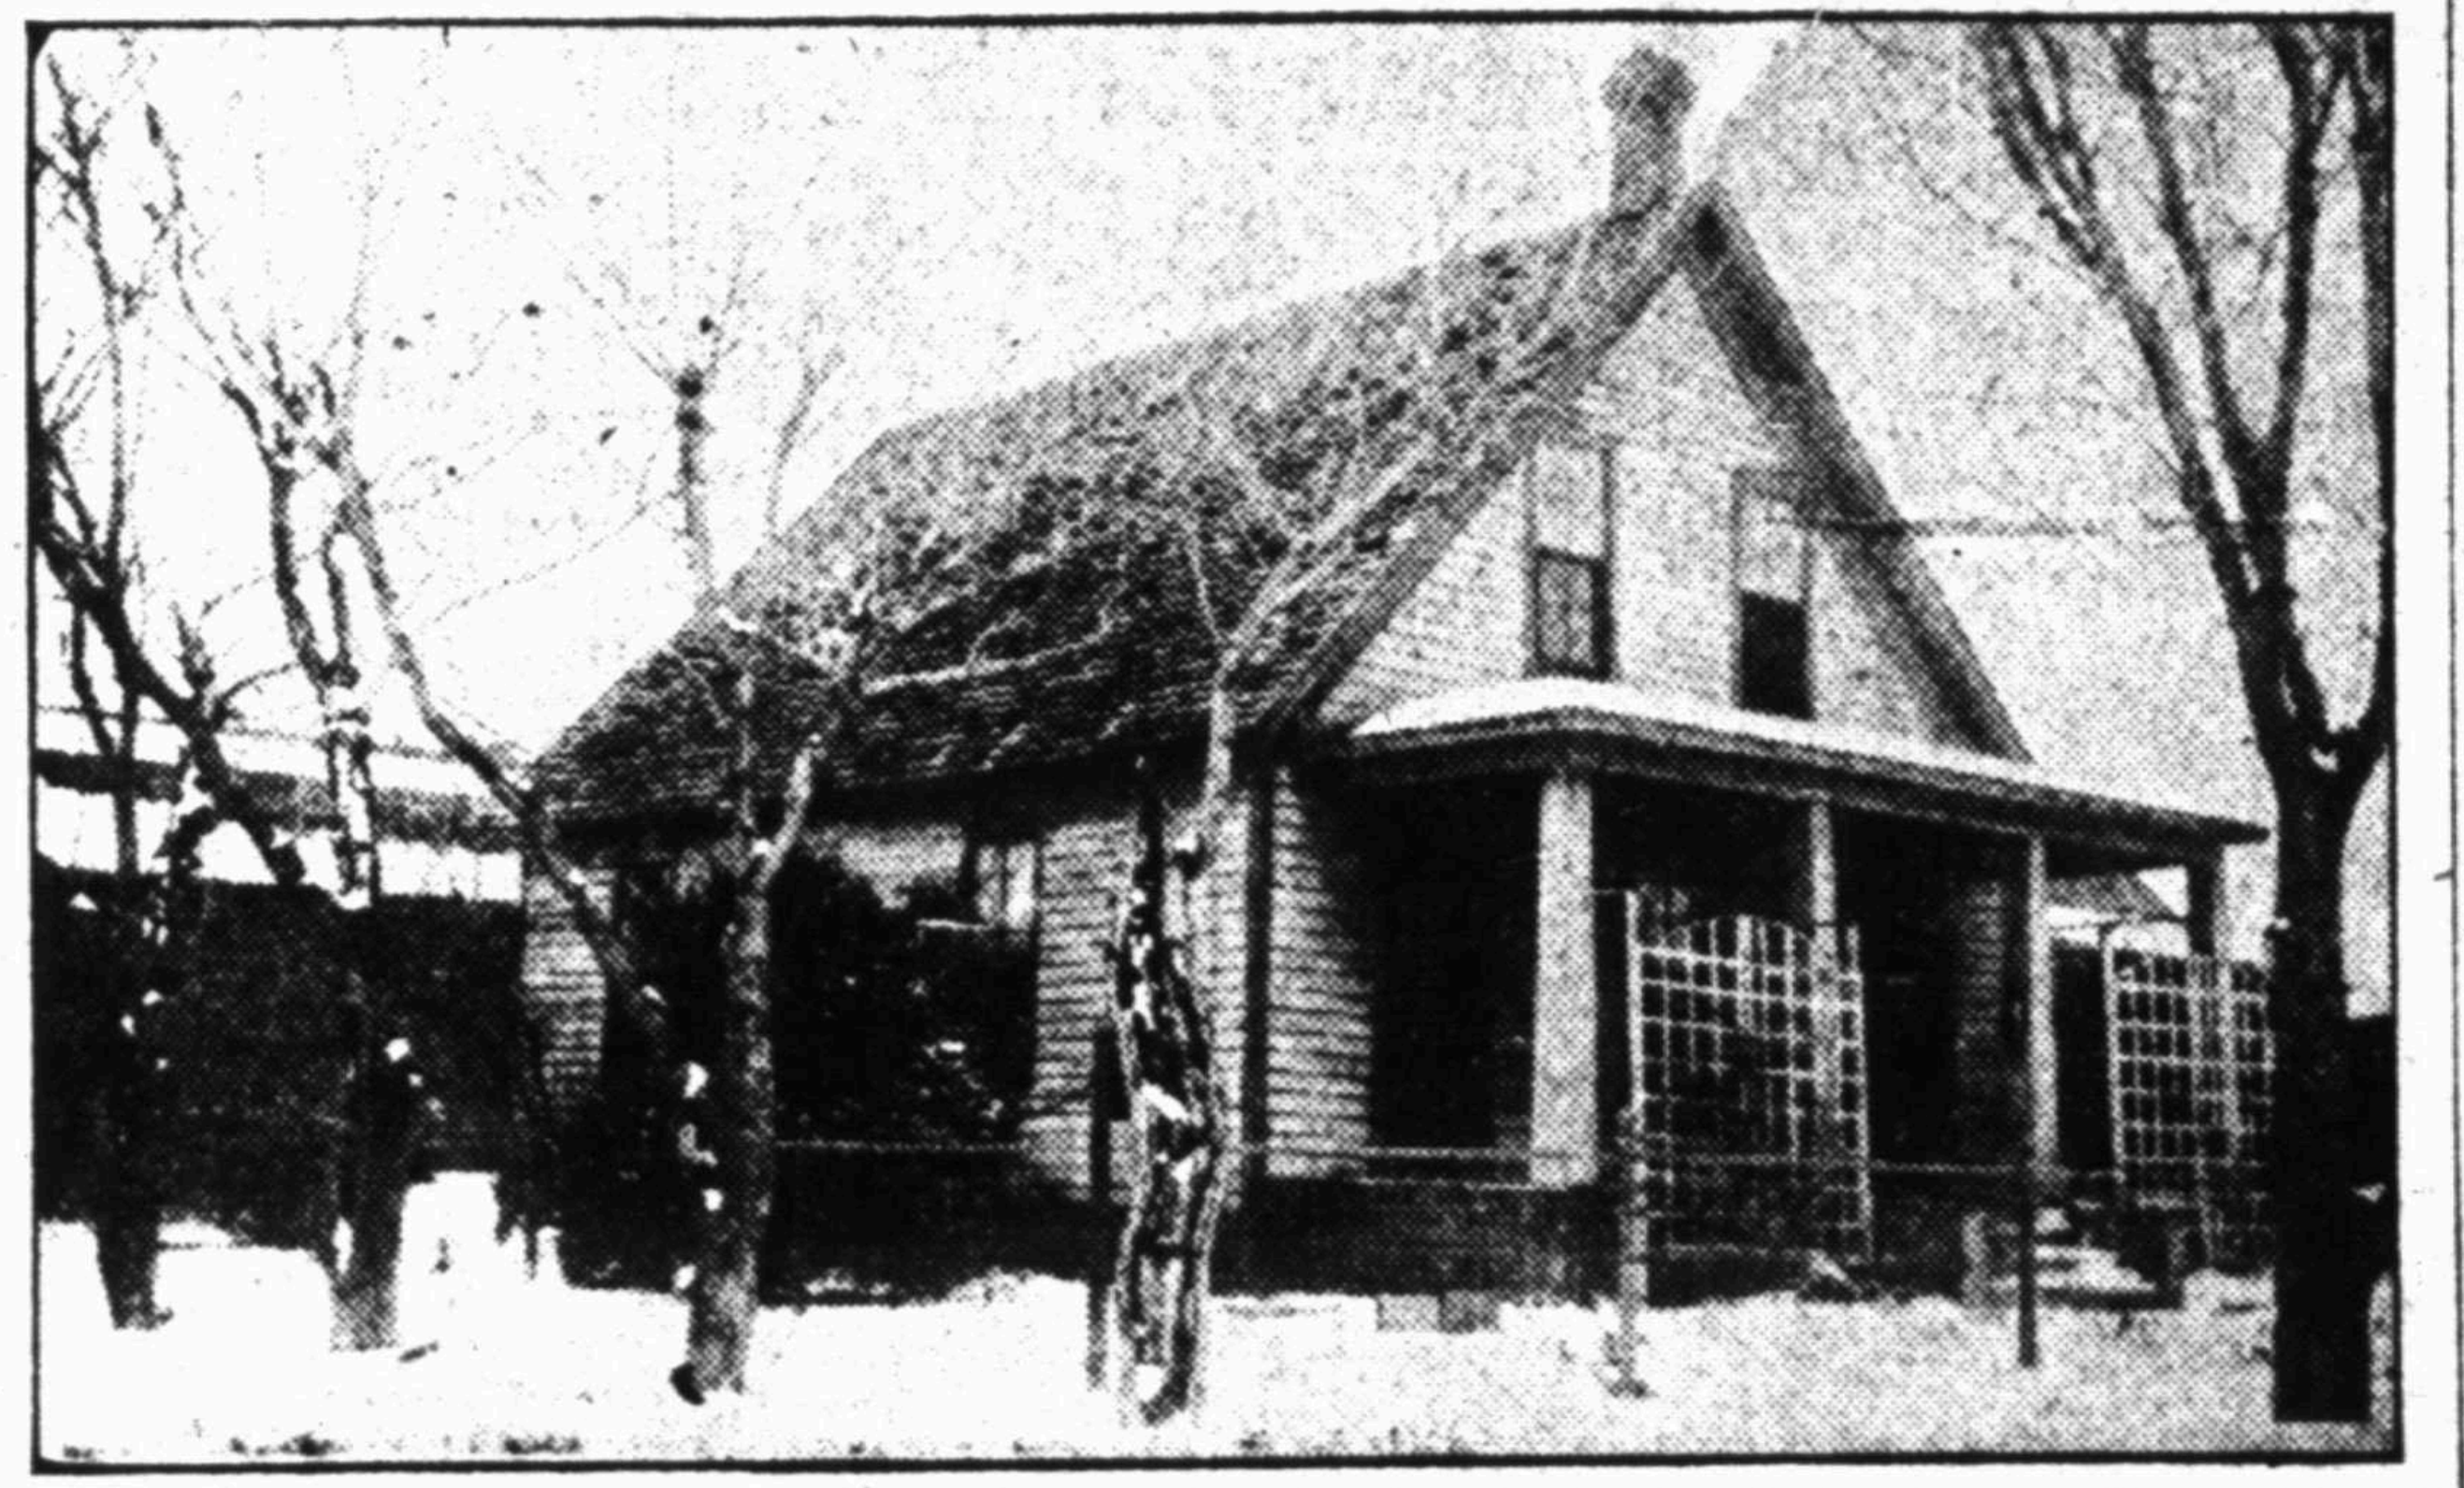
First Frame House in Wichita Falls Still In Good Condition at Corner Fifth and Lee

By GREGORY EWING



Reminiscing over the days of the past 50 or more years, William T. Harris, 1201 Austin, tells of the day he and his father, the late Maj. A. H. Harris, brought lumber from Dallas with which to build the first frame house in Wichita Falls.

The house still stands at the northeast corner of Lee and Fifth streets.

In 1880, Mr. Harris does not recall the month, his father and he hauled lumber from Dallas, and in two months' time the two built the six-room, two-story house.

It has stood for 52 years a landmark of the city—the first frame dwelling house constructed in Wichita Falls. It has been unchanged during that time, except for the slight altering of the front gable.

At the time the house was built, there were no hotel accommodations, and Major Harris offered rooms to transient cowboys. A charge of 50 cents a night for rooms was made, while breakfast and supper were provided at 25 cents a meal. The cowboy guests, impressed with the courtesy and excellent service offered by the Harris hostelry, spread the good word wherever they went—"That Harris place is a good place to stay." Word of mouth continued to spread its fame, and within a short while the Harris establishment was known over North Texas, the Panhandle and in Oklahoma.

Recalls Early Days

Mr. Harris, who delights in talking over the old days with friends at the Masonic temple, recalls Wichita Falls in its early days—the few box houses, the occasional store, the cowboys and other fast disappearing landmarks of pioneer Texas.

He tells of his father building a hotel on the site where the Texan hotel is now located and of doing a thriving business there for four years, after which it was sold to a Mr. Stockett of Fort Worth and Denver lines. The hotel had 22 rooms. It was destroyed by fire seven years later, Mr. Harris said.

His mother planted the first tree in the city, a hackberry that still stands. It is located at Travis and Fifteenth and is the largest and oldest tree in the city. The Harris family moved to Travis and Fifteenth after the sale of the second hotel and built a home there. The tree grew from a twig from a hackberry tree that Mr. Harris gave his mother, saying, "See if it will grow."

Mr. Harris is the last survivor of the family. He is the second oldest living settler of the city.

Proposed Merger of Irrigation and County Tax Collections Impractical And Illegal Manager's Report Says

Proposals that the work of collecting taxes for the two Wichita irrigation districts be placed in the hands of the county tax collector have been declined by the board of directors, it was learned Saturday from H. A. Gray Jr., president of district No. 1.

Mr. Gray said that numerous suggestions had been submitted to the board urging that the tax collection work be turned over to the county as an economy measure. Not only would such a program be illegal and unconstitutional, Mr. Gray said, but it would be impractical from the viewpoint of the irrigation districts, according to G. A. Remington, manager. Mr. Gray cited a letter from Mr. Remington which gives the results of an investigation into the possibilities of combining the two tax collection offices.

This letter, addressed to Mr. Gray, sets out in detail the problems of the irrigation district. It follows:

"Regarding the matter of the collection of our irrigation district taxes by the Wichita county tax collector which you and I discussed yesterday, I wish to say:

"This is a matter that has been discussed by former boards of our districts a number of times in the past, and by this letter I desire to call your attention and the attention of the other members of your board to several things in connection with a change of this kind.

"1. Article 7622 to article 7807 of our Texas statutes sets up the necessary legal machinery for the organization and conduct of irrigation districts in this state, which includes article 7642 to 7644 covering the employment of a tax collector for district funds and fixing his maximum salary.

"2. Every irrigation district in this state has its own tax collector because there is no other legal way to do this work, and because it is impractical to do it in any other way probably accounts for such a statute.

"3. The Medina district near San Antonio is located in four counties; our own district No. 2 covers a part of Archer, Clay and Wichita counties and you can understand that it would be very impractical to have a collector for district funds in each county.

Difficulties of Assessment

"4. The preparation of tax rolls for an irrigation district is usually a very complicated matter. In district 1 the valuations used are different than the valuation on the same property in Wichita county. In district No. 2 the assessments are based on the irrigable and non-irrigable areas and not upon the ad valorem valuation of the property. Even in our tax office it is necessary to prepare the rolls from separate renditions in each district as one district levies on an ad valorem basis and the other district levies upon an acreage basis. In district No. 2, especially, we have property described upon the county rolls, only a portion of which is irrigated and included within the district. The only maps made up to show the irrigable and non-irrigable areas in district No. 2 are the property of the irrigation district and not the property of Wichita county. It would be a simple matter to place our assessments upon the county tax rolls were it possible to place them in with the county tax totals and apportion the amount out to the districts as collected each month, but on account of different valuations, different descriptions and different bases of taxation and necessary rates it could only be handled in a practical way by the counties by the preparation of separate tax rolls even though the law permitted it to be done.

"5. In other states where tax collections are permitted to be made legally by the districts or the counties you will find by careful investigation that where the county does the collecting it is simply as agent for the district and that it is always necessary for the district to make up the tax roll in duplicate and furnish the county with a copy for collection purposes only. In most cases in other states where it is optional the district does its own collecting as it has been found impractical to do it in any other way.

Political Changes

"6. Mr. W. C. Martin is assessor and tax collector for districts Nos. 1 and 2 and his work requires special training which can only be obtained by long experience. He has held this position with our district for about six years. A county collector is subject to change every two years and we might have a man as county tax collector who would be totally unfamiliar with irrigation matters and who would not work in harmony with the district boards and the districts be powerless to remove him. Surely no one gives serious consideration to turning this work over to the several county tax collectors, even if it could be done. We should remember that the tax collectors of the several counties are elected by the voters of said counties and large portions of the counties are not in our irrigation districts and are not interested in the success of irrigated agriculture. In too many instances the dry farming sections of the county are hostile toward irrigation welfare. The tax collector should remain an employe of the board of directors of the territory within the districts and not of the counties or cities covering other and disinterested areas. It would be unfortunate, indeed, to make a political and consequently an inefficient matter out of the collection of district taxes instead of a matter of business as at present.

"7. Surely those who advocate a change of this kind would not be doing so if they thoroughly understood it. The province of a board of directors of an irrigation district is executive and administrative rather than legislative and we have in this state and in every other state a code of laws covering irrigation district practice. After you have read the laws of this state pertaining to irrigation matters, the contracts that have been entered into in our districts and the proceedings regarding bond issues, etc., that have gone on before, you will find that the path of your board is pretty well defined in legal and in other ways.

"8. Regarding our tax rolls in general, I desire to say that there is a possibility of working up a permanent tax roll covering a number of years which would likely save considerable work in the tax department of our districts but there has not been sufficient study given to this matter so far and no district has been found that has its rolls so prepared as a practical demonstration for us to follow. This change will probably be made in our tax department sometime soon."

Three Girls Get Parole in Trial For 'Wild Party'

Three girls were placed on parole and the parole of a boy was revoked in four juvenile trials here Saturday.

The youth, 17, was ordered committed to the state training school at Gatesville and his parole in a previous case was revoked by Judge W. W. Cook in the 78th district court when the defendant was convicted of chicken theft.

Three girls, two 16 and one 17 years of age, were arraigned before Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court charged with being delinquent. The trio was arrested by officers in a tourist camp cabin near a dance hall on the Henrietta road and were alleged to have been drinking.

Two of the girls said they had been married and were separated from their husbands. The third announced she was engaged to be married within the next few months. Judge Martin paroled all three of them to relatives. They had spent several days in the juvenile ward of the Wichita county jail.

O. L. (RED) GIBBS ASKS RE-ELECTION AS JUSTICE PEACE

Judge O. L. (Red) Gibbs, justice of the peace for precinct 1, place No. 2, Saturday announced that he would be a candidate for re-election, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

Judge Gibbs has lived in Wichita Falls for the last 27 years and points to his record as a citizen here as the basis on which he will make the race for justice.

"During the time I have served in office I have made every effort to be impartial and fair in handling both civil and criminal cases," Judge Gibbs said. "As a servant of the people I have tried at all times to handle cases as speedily as possible and at the same time to give them the consideration necessary for a just decision of the case.

"If re-elected I will continue to give the people of this precinct the best that I have and I request all voters to investigate my past record and see for themselves the manner in which I have transacted the business which has come before me.

"The justice court is more important than many people think. Preliminary hearings in most murder cases and other important criminal charges are held in justice court and it is the justice of the peace who sets the bond in such cases. The justice of the peace also has to hold inquests and make a coroner's report in cases of violent or mysterious death.

"For these reasons it is important that a man be elected justice who has the experience necessary for handling these matters."

JURY IN $100,000 SUIT DISCHARGED HERE AFTER FAILING REACH VERDICT

The jury trying the $100,000 damage suit of T. P. Duncan against John Alexander before Judge W. W. Cook in the 78th district court was discharged when the foreman reported that they were hopelessly hung about 3:45 p. m. Saturday. The jury had had the case for 24 hours without reaching an agreement.

The plaintiff asked $100,000 damages in a petition alleging that the defendant had made fraudulent representations concerning the value and assets of the Alliance Milling corporation of Denton, Texas, a majority interest in which was purchased from Alexander by Duncan.

GRAND JURY WILL MEET MONDAY FOR FEBRUARY SESSION

The January grand jury will reconvene before Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court Monday to take up cases that have come to the attention of authorities since the inquisitors adjourned early in January.

Members of the district attorney's office said that cases to be presented to the grand jury would probably include that of James E. and Roy Parker, both charged with assault to murder the former's wife, Mrs. LaVina Parker; the charge of murder against an 18-year-old Oklahoma girl in connection with the finding of a baby's severed head in an ashcan in a Wichita Falls alley, the Evans pharmacy hijacking case and some 10 burglary cases.

MONEY and HAPPINESS

To leave money or property to those whose comfort you wish to make secure may not be to assure them happiness. Such wealth may be fleeting, leaving in its wake only the trouble, privation and tragedy you thought to avoid.

The necessary thing is to provide that what you leave will be protected against unwise use and loss.

This can be accomplished by making a will and appointing this bank as executor and trustee.
