Arsenic Sent Farmer Near Goree In Form of "Beer" Chemical Analysis Shows

If anybody leaves a bottle of beer in your mail box, be careful, for it may have arsenic in it, is the advice of N. Manoushagian, bacterologist for Golver's laboratories.

A few days ago Manoushagian received two bottles of "beer" from R. P. Chamberlain, farmer, living near Goree. Chamberlain found the bottles in his mail box. He became suspicious and sent them to Wichita Falls to be tested. Chemical analysis showed an ounce of arsenic in each bottle.

Chamberlain is at loss to know which of his "friends" left the liquor there, and doesn't know of any enemies with intentions against his life.

SHIPMENTS OF FREIGHT MUST GUARD 36 HRS. AGAINST COLD

Warnings on Livestock Injury Sent Out By Bureau

MUCH COOLER HERE

Temperature to Hit 20 or 30 Degrees Thursday, Forecast

The weather man evidently knew whereof he spoke Tuesday when, through the medium of Dallas, Houston, New Orleans and other observation stations he sent word of a severe cold wave and below-freezing temperature for Oklahoma and North Texas.

Wichita Falls, after enjoying an ideal Indian summer day, went to bed last night with a norther whistling around the eaves, ominous black clouds scudding across the sky and every indication that by Wednesday night this whole section would be in the grip of real winter frigidity.

20 Degrees.

One prediction came to the effect that temperatures of 20 degrees would be experienced by Thursday night.

The advance of the cold wave had reached as far south at Raton, N. M., last night, reports received in Wichita Falls indicated. Its steady advance would bring it here at least by Wednesday night, it was thought, with a possibility of it arriving earlier.

Warn Ranchers.

Livestock and storm warnings came in a steady stream throughout Tuesday. The Dallas, Houston and New Orleans bureaus all agreed on the impending cold wave and Denver, Colo., sent word of a Rocky Mountain region blanketed with snow and clutched in near-zero thermometer readings.

As Tuesday night faded into Wednesday morning the temperature dropped lower, the wind increased in velocity and the cloud blanket thickened.

The next few days promise to be somewhat chilly.

COLD WAVE IN PANHANDLE.

HOUSTON, Oct. 27.—Unsettled with increasing cloudiness is the forecast of the United States weather bureau for Wednesday, according to I. H. Daingerfield, government meteorologist. Rain and much colder weather is anticipated in the north portions of East Texas.

A cold wave which will be accompanied by rain or snow is expected in the Panhandle for Wednesday.

Shippers in the northern portions of Texas (within 350 mile radius) are advised by the weather bureau to protect 36-hour shipments against freezing in the northwest and near freezing in the north portions of Texas.

A cold wave with a hard freeze will hold Oklahoma in its grip during Wednesday reports say. Light rain will probably turn to snow in this section.

STRIKES SOUTHWEST.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The southwest got its first breath of winter tonight when temperatures started a downward course and snow began falling in many places. SUB ROSA BY MIMI

The Wrong Kind of Opposites.

"Opposites are attractive to each other and should marry" so the wiseacres tell us.

And on this theory blonde girls marry dark men, talkative women capture strong silent heroes, dashing sheiks woo and win shy retiring violets who have never been out of mother's sight.

And in the majority of these cases, the marriages are successful—the oddly assorted couples live fairly happily ever after and everybody is satisfied that the old saying is a sound one.

But there is one kind of opposition which seldom mixes for a happy marriage.

The gay butterfly who marries a sober stay-at-home fellow and endeavors to carry him along with her in the social whirl, soon learns that though opposties may be attracted to each other, they shouldn't necessarily get married.

And the man about town whose wife prefers the quiet hearth and a book to an evening's gaiety, finds that he must either give up his dinner parties, his dances, his weekly show or his wife.

Sometimes girls think complacently that they'll change their sweetheart's roving ways as soon as they're all settled down in the new home.

Katherine thought so. She figured out that Tom had gone in for the social stunt so heavily simply because he hadn't a nice little home and a charming wife to make it worth while his staying in a few evenings a week.

But Tom soon changed her mind about that. His favorite remark over the breakfast table was: "By the way, you know we're dining with the Van Raesallaers this evening. Yes, I know they should have asked you first, but Van just extended the invitation informally to me, and on the spur of the minute, I accepted."

And poor K., who hated the thought of a dinner party with dozens of strange people she didn't know and didn't want to know, had to nerve herself evening after evening for an ordeal which she had never expected to face.

She loved Tom—yes. But her life with him could not have been called particularly happy, since it consisted of a series of social events which took up all her time and left her not a minute for the things she loved doing.

Bea, on the other hand, asked for nothing better than to be continually in the social swim. She loved meeting people. She adored the constant excitement of rushing off to some dance every evening.

But Roger, her fond husband didn't see things that way at all. He refused to be made miserable because of his wife's taste for excitement.

And because Bea loved him, she finally cut out all the gaiety and the mad rush.

But she isn't happy, really—she mopes at home wishing Roger would lay down his everlasting book and suggest their buzzing off to the dance at the Country club.

Get it definitely settled before you marry either that you'll do the giddy whirl—or that you'll lead the simple home life. Don't think you can compromise. One or the other of you always has to give in, and that one is always unhappy.

DOROTHY DIX ADVICE

All Mothers May Be Divided Into Six Groups: The Cannibal Mother, the Doormat Mother, the Goat Mother, the Press-Agent Mother, the Vampire Mother, the Real Mother and the Greatest of These Is the Last

Now, roughly speaking, mothers may be divided into these classes;

First, the cannibal mother. The cannibal mother devours her children alive. She never lets them have any life of their own. She never lets them have a single thought of their own, or gratify a single personal taste or inclination, or have any individuality whatever.

When they are small children she holds them by the hand whenever they go out for a walk, and she makes them sit at her knee anad listen to improving stories instead of playing with other children. She mawes them eat the kind of food she considers best fo rtheir little tummine. She icks out their clothes for them, and makes their friends for them, and decides on their careers, and selects their husbands and wives for them, and absorbs them so completely that they have no more originality than a rubber stamp, no more initiative than a bowl of mush and milk and no more backbone than a fishing worm.

Even after her children are married, the cannibal mother still continue to feast on their bones and to nibble on their husbands and wives as a sort of side dish. For she considers that she has a perfect right to continue to manage her sons' and daughters' affairs and she thinks herself grievously ill used when her in-laws emit loud shrieks of agony when they see themselves and their homes and their happinesn about to be gobbled up by her.

Second, the doormat mother. The doormat mother prostrates herself before her children and begs them to walk all over her and kick her around. Before they are three weeks old her babies have got her completely under control and can make her do their bidding.

She never thinks of such a thing as making her children obey her or show her any respect. On the contrary, she minds them and lets them be as impudent and insulting to her as they like. When they criticize the food she has spent hours in preparing and find fault with the clothes that she has sent half the night making for them, she is humbly apologetic because she failed to please, and when they tell her that she is a fool and deride her opinions, she bows her head before their rebukes.

The doormat mother sighs sadly as she tells you that she can do nothing with her 10-or-12-year-old children, and she weeps and wrings her hands because her flapper daughter stays out joy-riding until 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning and her cake-eater son is rupning with a lot of booze hounds. Mercifully, it does not occur to her that children accept their parents at their own valuation, and that if a mother thinks she is nothing but a rag fog her children to trample on they will do it.

Third, the goat mother. The goat mother is the one who considers that her chief duty in life is to make a living sacrifice of herself for her children.

She begins by giving up everything for baby as soon as baby is born. Before that world-shaking event she was pretty, aand intelligent, and interesting, and well dresned, and liked to go about with her husband to places of amusement. But after baby's birth she goes dowdy because baby pulls at her chiffons. She never even takes time to comb her hair decently. Her conversation dwindles to a dribble about sterilized baby foods and she never goes anywhere because she has to stay at home and hold baby's hand while it sleeps.

When the children are older she makes a brunt offering of herself on the kitchen stove, making three kinds of different cake to humor the food fads of her youngsters. She never has a new hat so that Sally may have six at a time. She puts off the operation that means her very life so that Tom may join a swell fraternity. Her hands are rough and sodden with dish water so that her daughter's may be pink and manicured.

The goat mother develops all the selfishness and greediness there is in her children's characters and se never understands why it is that she is unloved and unappreciated, and why her sacrifices are made in vain.

Fourth, the press-agent mother, is one of the world's greatest bores and about as great a handicap as any boy or girl could have. For mother tries to sell her children to the general public at her own valuation, and she boosts her goods so high and so out of proportion to their real worth that she makes them ridiculous.

Everybody with eyes in their heads can see that Mary is a nice, healthy, ordinarily good looking girl, but mother raves over her as a beauty who would have knocked Lillian Russell for a goal. Mother calls her carroty hair "Titian," her pale blue eyes "violets drenched in dew"; she describes her scrawniness as "a willowy figure." And mother tells of mythical millionaires who are beseeching Mary to marry them.

Everybody knows Tom for the type of boy who is turned out by the yard from our public schools, but mother touts him as a genius who is going to set the world afire and relates how big business men are just struggling to get him in their offices.

The result is that we all discount Mary and Tom and rate them far below their real worth. Chief among the obstacles that young people have to overcome are the prejudices that their press-agent mothers have raised against them in our minds. We are no tired of hearing about them that we are not willing to even give them a fair show.

Fifth, the vampire mother. The vampire mother is the mother who sacrifices her children to herself.

She is the mother who makes a brilliant daughter give up a great career to stay at home and nurse her, or who forces her son to promise not to marry as long as she lives, so that he can give her all of his time and attention and money.

She is the mother who perisist in living with her married children, even though she knows that she is an element of discord in their homes and that she separates husbands and wives and orphans little children.

Sixth, thereal mother. The real mother is the mother who loves her children wisely as well as tenderly.

She teaches them to obey her. She forces them to respect her. She develops their individuality and teaches them to stand on their own feet and walk alone, metaphorically as well as physically. She strengthens their backs by laying burdens on them and cultivates unselfishness in them by teaching them to consider others.

And because she has taught them obedience and self-control, they grow up into good citizens and because she has been a shining example to them, they worship her. DOROTHY DIX.

MARS VERY CHILLY.

So Says Scientist After Investigation of Temperatures.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Mars may or may not be inhabited, but if so it is a life apparently enjoying anything but a warm and salubrious climate.

With the use of an extraordinarily delicate instrument he has invented for finding out such distant facts, W. W. Coblentz of the bureau of standards has concluded that the mean annual temperature on the surface of Mars is in the neighborhood of 20 degrees Fahrenheit, compared with the earth's 59 degrees.

There is a difference in coffee

SUPPOSE you had spent years selecting choice coffees from the best producing countries on the globe, blending them, roasting them. Suppose your experience had taught you that there were many varieties, grades and types of coffees. And suppose you chose to produce only a blend of the world's highest grade, highest type coffees.

Wouldn't you say "There Is a Difference in Coffee"?

Of course you would, and that's the same reason we do not mince words telling about Folger's Coffee—the finest coffee that science and money can produce. It is always the same delightful blend, unsurpassed. And its high quality makes it economical.

We are naturally enthusiastic about Folger's Coffee, but you, yourself, can easily decide on its quality. Simply alternate Folger's Coffee for a few mornings with the coffee you are now using.

Drink Folger's Coffee tomorrow morning; the next morning drink the coffee you have been using the third morning drink Folger's again. A morning or two and you will decidedly favor one brand or the other. That's fair, isn't it? The best coffee wins!

Public Service and Public Opinion

SUCCESS in public service depends upon public opinion. Public Service — heat, power and light, etc. — is a part of the prosperity of a community. Public Service vitally concerns every person and every industry in the city, or in the town, where it is located. Public Service is, in fact, personal service. We all know that the quality of personal service which we receive depends largely upon the degree of our personal co-operation and consideration for those who serve us. Maintain an unfriendly attitude toward public service, and you injure every individual in your community, you hamper development, you balk business.

Unfriendliness toward public service is in reality unfriendliness toward the public itself. Constant criticism — without understanding; knocking — without investigation — all tends to react against your own interests.

Public Service is not defending itself. It needs no defense. It is patent that public service, by its very nature, is more interested in doing the right thing than are its critics.

The successful manager of an electric light and power company knows positively that the public's best interest is paramount. One of the greatest contemporary writers in the United States says: "I do not know a class of business men who are trying harder and who are succeeding more in their efforts to build up towns and cities, local interests and industries, than those of the public service companies. They are co-operating with the cities all over the country to create more industry. They are helping in every way possible to build better and bigger business in the towns where they are located."

Public Service and Public Opinion are interdependent.

FIRESTONE ON TH ERUBBER LINE

Great Britain dominates the rubber plantations of the world. John Bull has a monoply of the rubber producing fields. Raw rubber is sold at a most exorbitant figure. Americans consume 70 per cent of the supply. Motor vehicle owners are taxed heavily in order that the sons of Mr. Bull who are engaged in the rubber industry may take down fat dividends and roll in luxury.

Business is business. Perhaps if Uncle Sam dominated the rubber industry of the world and the British consumed 70 per cent of the production, Uncle Sam would charge all the traffic would bear. Now Mr. Bull's monoply is to be broken in the near future. Harvey Firestone and Henry Ford and other multi-millionaires in the auto and tire industry have been planning to break the British monoply for a long time. Now they are acting.

Harvey Firestone has obtained a 99-year lease on a million acres of land suitable for rubber production in the black republic of Liberia on the coast of Africa. He has taken over two or three large rubber plantations and he is going to invest for himself and associates $100,000,000 under Liberian skies.

Not many months ago the government of Liberia sent agents to America to negotiate a loan of $5,000,000. It is said these Liberian agents negotiated their loan. Now Firestone and those who are close to him have obtained the concessions they needed and they are going to invest the huge sum named to break the monoply of Mr. Bull and to show to all the nations of the earth that Americans of the 1925 model are running true to form.

There was a time when Brazil supplied the world with raw rubber. There was no great demand for rubber in those days. It was before the coming of the motor vehicle and the tire industry. Hence, the rubber industry of Brazil was permitted to perish and coffee growing was substituted by Brazilian planters for an industry which had vanished.

Now Brazil dominates the coffee market of the world, and Americans drink more coffee per capita than the people of any other nation, the Brazilian planters draw rich dividends from the American consumers. Mexico is ideal for the coffee industry and the Brazilian monoply may be broken some day by Americans who have the capital and the nerve to underfake the job.

As for rubber, Liberia is not the only land where it can be produced. We have the Philippines and the wise men of America say that in a few years these islands of the Pacific would produce sufficient rubber to supply the American demand and forever prevent the nationals of other countries from monopolizing the industry and realizing hugh fortunes by the sale of their products.

The Firestones, father and son, are on the rubber line. Colonel Firestone has his agents in Africa and he has sent his son to London to open offices there for the transaction of business in the future.

THAT OMAHA SPEECH

President Coolidge's Omaha speech continues to receive the praise of the independent newspapers and many of the independent thinkers of America. This excerpt appears to have made a powerful impression upon the minds of many:

"In dealing with our military problem, there is one principle that is exceedingly important. Our institutions are founded, not on military power, but on civil authority. We are irrevocably committed to the theory of a government by the people. We have our constitutions and our laws, our executives, our legislatures and our courts, but ultimately we are governed by public opinion. Our forefathers had seen so much of militarism and suffered so much from it that they desired to banish it forever. They believed and declared in at least one of their state constitutions that the military power should be subordinate to and governed by civil authority. It is for this reason that any organization of men in the military service bent on inflaming the public mind for the purpose of forcing government action through the pressure of public opinon, is an exceedingly dangerous undertaking and precedent. This is so what ever form it might take, whether it be for the purpose of influencing the executive, the legislature or the heads of departments. It is for the civil authority to determine what appropriations shall be granted, what appointments shall be made and what rules shall be adopted for conduct of its armed forces. Whenever the military power starts dictating to the civil authorities, by whatsoever means adopted, the liberties of the country are beginning to end. National defense should at all times be supported, but any form of militarism should be resisted."

And ten thousand former service men saw the point. General William Mitchell did not attend the Omaha convention. His friends, some of them from Texas, did not press their resolution applauding the vitrolic words of General Mitchell and committing themselves to his burning attacks upon the army and navy chiefs. They meekly sidestepped an issue which Mitchell had raised and the most vociferous of the Mitchell partisans became as amiable as cooing dores.

Now Colonel Mitchell must face the court martial. He invited it and no doube he will accept the penalty or punishment returned against him with the fortitude of a stoic. Of course, Rear Admiral Simms praised the courage of Mitchell and then refused to accept his plan for an air service as a separate arm of national defense.

Rear Admiral Simms ran true to form. He declared that the navy is not dominated today by uneducated persons on shore, and they are as lamentably ignorant of the science of naval defense as their predecessors in the days when Woodrow Wilson was the president.

Simms never did like Josephus Daniels. He had scant respect for the men who surrounded Daniels. He had supreme contempt for all army or navel officials who failed to bow down to the invincible and all-wise Simms.

There are men who are cast in that mould. They are not responsible for their speech or their action.

Uncommon Sense

WHAT THE BOSS MUST LEARN

Remember, before you begin to think what you would do if you had the boss' job, that the boss' first job was to learn to boss himself.

And that is a bigger task, as the Bible tells us, than the taking of a city, which is quite a complicated and difficult undertaking.

No boss is fit to control other men, or will ever succeed in it unless he has learned self-discipline.

Self-discipline means self sacrifice.

Self sacrifice means going without things you want.

And there is nothing much harder than that.

One of the benefits of military training is that it teaches men to get along on plain food, to keep regular hours, and to take the exercise necessary to keeping them in good physical condition.

Furthermore, they learn that every duty must be done in its appointed time, and not at the time the man happens to feel like doing it.

Military men make good executives, because they learn executive business in the military schools.

Others do not have that advantage. They must learn it by themselves. There is no school that has the equipment to teach the handling of thousands or even hundreds of men.

The notion that men are born executives is not always well founded.

Any man who really wants to boss others can learn how to do it, if he is willing to pay the price.

But he must give over all forms of laziness and self-indulgence and learns to supply the men he is to lead an example of industry and straight conduct.

Employes always know when they have an incompetent boss, and he will get little work out of them.

They will submit to sterness and sometimes ill temper in a competent man.

They will pity an imcompetent man if they like him, despise him if they do not.

But he will never acquire any influence over them.

The young man who can force himself to do things he knows he ought to do, whether they are distasteful or not, who does not spare himself in the matter of hours when there is extra work to do, and who never lets the desire to be thought "a good fellow" lead him into bad habits can make himself a first class executive—provided he knows the business that he wants to boss.

It is worth doing, for the boss' job pays better and is more important than that of the followers.

But it is no goal for the easy-going and the idle.

Nor is any boss' job worth having to the man who has not the persistence to grow and develop in it, and keep it.

The unhappiest men I know are men who have been bosses for a little while, and then have been obliged to go back and work for other men.

Forever they remain soured and discontented, and life holds little for them but memories which have become very bitter.

Be a boss if you can, but if you are a boss, keep on being one.

IT HAS NO CONSCIENCE

Beware of being just one of a crowd.

A crowd is not human, as we understand human individuality.

"A crowd," Morley Roberts wrote, "is a flood of life, a giant mass of deadly forces;

"It has no very clear foresight;

"It takes the present only;

"It has no conscience.

"A man in a crowd can commit crimes and come out without knowing he has done so.

"It's a naw organism, a creature not in the books.

"Drag one of its parts out, knock him down and cool him, and see him come back slowly to humanity again. . .

"The psychology of a crowd is the psychology of a pure instinctive.

"A madman may act as a crowd acts; he's gone down to the raging level of a mass.

"The hot average of an angry number is a devilish thing."

In the crowd considered in Robert's manner, as a simple organism, a single thought always dominates.

It is not, as a rule, a lofty or enobling thought, for without much training, a mass of people are rarely capable of being moved by fine motives.

It is not surprising thet an organized crowd in action is often a destructive organism, as in a Southern lynching bee, or California "radical" raid.

You may see the same thing in strikes where the "nervous system" of a trades union fails to control a badly organized body of men.

In every crowd, of course, there are the rudiments of a nervous system; somebody springs to the front and becomes a ringleader.

If he harangues and harangues successfully, he always represents what the others want and usually puts it in a few words in an idiom the others easily understand.

What is usually called contemptuously an agitator is nothing more or less than a positive part of the inchoate nervous system of a new body.

By the time it is properly organized we usually cease to call the leaders abusive names, and if they keep a firm nervous control over their numbers we are prepared to do them more or less honor. In time they become our heroes. The radical agitators who stired up the American revolution, for instance.

YOU CANNOT LIVE TOMORROW

The Professional Orators are telling us continually that "We are confronted by great problems.'

They would have us believe that life is such a complex thing that it must be experimented with forever.

They have made it so commonplace that life isn't understandable; that we must resign ourselves to our lot and pray that we will be Better Off in the Next Life.

It isn't true: there were few great problems in the beginning, and they have been worked out, or have worked themselves out.

Life is simple. It is easy to know its rules; Nature is everywhere proclaiming them.

Millions of men merely exist today, and, drunk with roseate hopes, tell themselves glibly, "I'll LIVE tomorrow."

Tomorrow I will live, the fool does say:
Today itself's too late, the wise lived yesterday.

They have to learn that the present hour alone is man's;

And that "he who postpones the hour of living as he ought, is like the rustic who waits for the river to pass along (before he crosses); but it glides on and on and will glide on forever."

Has life a meaning? It doesn't matter, for whether it has, we have to live—and die.

More important is the knowledge that a useless life is the same as an early death.

"It is not necessary to live, but to carve our names beyond that point, this is necessary," as D'Annunizo opines.

Life is not measured by the time we live.
It matters not how long we live, but how.

Wise advice is this, "Live in such a way as, when you come to die, you will wish to have lived."

Live as if you were to die tomorrow.
(In truth, WE ARE ALWAYS DYING).

Under Franz Hals' incomparable picture, The Laughing Cavalier, these are the lines:

"I have fought my life I have lived my life
I have drunk my share of wine;
From Trier to Coln there never was knight
Led a merrier life than mine."

Do you want a better epitaph?
Then you must earn it—TODAY.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE

Scorpio.

Today's planetary aspects are variable and uncertain. In the early morning, they are quite adverse, and apparently inimical to everything that savors of originality or initiative. At about noon, they undergo a decided change, and become favorable, without being vibrationally stimulating. This indicates that the monotonous duties of every day will assume a more alluring aspect than they usually have, but does not encourage any new or startling innovation. In the late afternoon, the aspects revert to their early forbidding character, and if will be found necessary to establish poise and maintain calm, in order to overcome the temptation to do those things that had better be left undone.

Children born today will, according to the signs, enjoy normal health, and the time when most care is necessary will be that between their teens and their majority. The indications show that there will be no need for alarm, although they reveal that watchful attention will be demanded. Temperamentally, they will be inclined to be evasive, rather than frank, and will be more careful of their own individual interests than solicitous for those of others. They promise to be, on the whole, successful, but their ambitions will run along material, and not spiritual, lines.

If today is your birthday, you are very satisfied with yourself, and, although, you, possibly, have the right to a reasonable amount of pride, there is no justification for conceit. You are endowed with a fair amount of intelligence. There are others, however, who possess more. You are kind, and, at times and in your own way, considerate. There are others, nevertheless, who are more unselfish, although you are dutiful and loyal, you do not possess a monopoly of these virtues. You, unfortunately, judge others harshly and unfairly, and decide a case on the plaintiff's allegations, without taking into consideration the arguments of the defense.

It is not, of course, desirable that people should undervalue themselves, as such a mental process induces undervaluation by others. On the other hand, overvaluation is a danger to be avoided, as it engenders a "holier-than-thou" attitude, which is repellant to good friendship and inimical to intimate association.

HOW IT STARTED

COFFEE

So popular a bevrage is coffee and so much a topic of discussion that we should know the story of how it started.

The ancients in Greece and Rome, knew no coffee. Their loss, many of us may say. And it has now been definitely agreed that the coffee bean originated in Arabia, whence it was introduced in the Sixteenth century into Egypt and Constantinople. A German physician, Leonhard Rawolf, by the account of his travels in the east printed in 1573, is credited with having been the first to make coffee known in Europe.

Soon after the introduction of coffee its use was stimulated by the opening of coffee houses. Constantinople had one as early as 1551. And one morning in 1652 London awoke to find its first coffee house established in Newman's Court by a Greek cook named Pasqua-the-forerunner of an institution that was to play an important part in the social and political life of the city. The Greek Pasqua who established this first coffee house had been the servant of an English merchant named Edwards who brought some coffee with him from Smyrna and whose house, when the fact became known, was so thronged with people eager to taste the new beverage that it desperation to get rid of the nuisance he established his servant in a coffee house and sent his visitors there.

SYNOPSIS

Connemara Moore and David Lacy, strangers, until tonight, are racing across Long Island in David's car. On the ferry, crossing from Connecticut, a stranger, announcing himself as "Pooch," had joined them. Pooch, now in the back seat, has just leaned over and handed the mystified girl a big roll of bills. Back in Aunt Celimena's Connecticut home is a worried company. Connie was to have announced her engagement tonight—to Bing Carrington or Salt Adams—but, instead, she has disappeared.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

And what a situation! Midnight or thereabouts. Somewhere between Manhasset Bay and Hempstead Harbor; Connemara Moore in deceptive fancy dress, planted in a brokendown—not to say up—car in the company of two strangers, obviously of nefarious calling, bent on criminal endeavor. For there could be no doubt about it; Mr. Pooch, of course,—with his fifty thousand dollars which Connemara could hear crackling in one of the more intimate recesses of her costume—but also Mr. Whatever-his-name-was. A nice young man too. A little slow on the uptake, perhaps, although he had picked her up fast enough, Connemara was forced to admit. Yes, a nice young man—a little less than Salt and more than Bing, which was probably just about the right combination—but a crook, a crook, Connemara reminded herself. A fifty-thousand-dollar crook!

"I wish he hadn't been a crook, I really do," Connemara remarked sadly to herself. She certainly had no intention of associating herself with any bright young stranger who appeared to be headed for Atlanta or some other federal resort, unless he were dead back there in the road, which seemed not unlikely.

Where was everybody, anyway?

Connemara's wheel came to a stop—it could only have been a few seconds since the crash—and Connemara found herself staring at the two individuals from the Pierce who had now advanced much closer.

"What goes on, Ku Klux?" one of them inquired.

A flashlight blinked in her face, blinding her, and at the same moment there was the crack of a revolver over her shoulder. Connemara felt a hand on her arm, found herself jerked backward onto the road, heard the inimitable accents of Mr. Pooch in her ear, "You come with me, kid—over the speckled sands!"

"But Mr.—Mr.—your friend!" Connemara protested, and wondered why.

"To hell with him!" Mr. Pooch announced, dragging her after him into the shadows. "He'll have to look out for himself with them highjackers. Guess perhaps he's croaked, anyway!"

Yes, perhaps so. Anyway, there was nothing to be done now but follow Mr. Pooch, much as a tender follows its engine. As for the nice young man—let him go, the fifty-thousand dollar crook.

Which was exactly what David Lacy was saying to himself from his place of precarious concealment in the ditch in which he was picking odds and ends out of his hair. She was a nice girl—more than that, mysterious, charming, alluring: David Lacy allowed himself the world, intriguing.

But she was a crook—no question about it, a friend of that poisonous Pooch, who had recognized her and given her money. Too much money. It was all too bad—too damn bad—but let her go, the fifty-thousand-dollar crook.

"Good riddance," David Lacy decided under his breath. "You—you Whited Sepulcher."

In spite of which he found himself wriggling along the ditch, in the direction taken by Mr. Pooch and that smooth-tongued young deception.

For perhaps the first time in her vivid young life, things were happening almost too fast for Connemara. She was able, usually, to pluck at least the tail feathers, as it were, from any passing event, but on this occasion the needle of Connemara's mental recording apparatus was seismic in its evolutions upon the chart of her perceptions. She was being dragged along madly through the dark by the snorting Mr. Pooch. Behind her on the road a commotion of voices and revolver shots bespoke an increasing tumult, in the midst of which the gentleman in the overturned sedan could still be heard, plaintively abusive.

"What you firing at me for?" he kept inquiring. "What do you think I am, a shooting gallery?"

Aside from that, Connemara found herself just a breath or two behind the pageant of human events rocketing past her — in fact, she found herself entirely out of breath, in her enforced attempt to keep pace with the fugitive Pooch, whose grasp upon her arm had not for a moment, needless to say, relaxed. Mr. Pooch was steaming across open fields, hurling himself through hedges, floundering over ditches, decanting himself on the further side of only too frequently recurring fences, and wherever Mr. Pooch went, Connemara was obliged to follow, a reluctant, gasping, willy-nilly tail to his comet, much encumbered by her nun's attire.

At last there was a sandy slope, the sudden level of a deserted beach, a glimmer of water at sight of which Mr. Pooch went into rzverse. Connamara sat down at once.

"Wh-wh-wh—?" she remarked, and Mr. Pooch laughed.

"All in, ain't you, kid?" he grinned at her. "Pretty light on my feet for a heavy guy, I am. No time to lose back there; had to make our get-away."

"You n-needn't have b-bothered about me," Connemara assured him, and Mr. Pooch roared with mirth.

"Zat so?" he chuckled. "Say, kid, you're a hot one. Think I'd leave you behind with all that dough for them highjackers to get their hooks on? Now everything's going to be fine—you just stick with me and you'll wear diamonds!"

With this dazzling prospect in view, Connemara arose to her protesting feet, for the good and simple reason that Mr. Pooch had begun to move forward again—his hand, if anything, firmer upon her arm—prospecting along the beach. A few hundred yards away they came to a dinghy, a black dinghy with a white bottom, fast in the sand. Mr. Pooch shoved the boat clear with one hand and turned to Connemara.

"In you get," he commanded, "and sit in the stern—that's the square end—where I can see you, my goil!"

Connemara sat in the stern, and Mr. Pooch climbed in after her and possessed himself of the oars.

"Now we'll look for this baby's mother," he remarked and began to row, sloppily but not without results, for soon a darker shadow proclaimed a boat at anchor in the deeper water—a small power yacht, black with a white bottom showing when she rose on her line.

"Ain't no one aboard," Mr. Pooch observed, and let the dinghy bump.

But Mr. Pooch was wrong. There was someone aboard, who manifested himself from the tenebrous cockpit in the form of a genial voice heavily freighted with Scotch—both linguistically and liquidly speaking.

"Hooray!" said a voice, somewhat unexpectedly.

"Hooray yourself," Mr. Pooch replied. "What time is it?"

"'Snine bells," the voice assured him. "Nine bells, daylicht-savin' time. Come richt aboard and have 'smore coffee?"

"We'll do that little thing," Mr. Pooch chuckled, and helped Connemara up the side, much as a policeman helps a prisoner into the van.

The voice in the cockpit revealed itself as a little man in a white-visored cap, grinning delightedly from ear to ear. He was, it was evident, fried, blotto, ossified, in short drunk, as only a Scotchman can be.

Dr. Beede Characterizes "Marathon Fold" As "Marathon Myth"

SAYS LONG NE EXTENSION IS UNWARRANTED

Looks Rather for Big Fold On South of Sheffield Terrace

BIG LAKE "LOW"

Prominent Geologist Expresses Opinion of Mooted Formation

"In my opinion the so-called Marathon Fold is the Marathon Myth!"

The statement is that of Dr. J. W. Beede, one of Texas' foremost geologists, and co-author with Dr. J. A. Udden of a Texas university booklet on the geology of Coke county, in which especial reference is made to the location of the "Marathon Fold." The booklet contains a plat of Texas showing a hypothetical extension of the Marathon Fold from the area of the Sheffield Terrace in Crockett county through Reagan and Irion county on the Red river in North Texas in Hardeman county.

Since the issuance of the bulletin in 1918 this hypothetical extension of the known fold area in Southwest Texas has been subjected to considerable criticism by members of the geological fraternity. Those that did not actually question the existence ot the fold over such a large area did question the basis for extending a known formation 600 miles or more with practically no information to warrant it.

Used for Promotion.

The drawing contained in the booklet on Coke county is disclaimed by both Dr. Udden and Dr. Beede, however. Their comment on the fold is little more than an item in the booklet itself, but such as it is has been used in connection with the plat to project innumerable promotion schemes in West Texas.

The extension of the fold shown on the plat, according to Dr. Beeede, was made on the basis of topographical conditions, which in the region of the Sheffield Terrace conformed with known sub-surface conditions. Subsurface work since that time has more or less relageted the old extension to the "myth" class and as such is it generally regarded by geologists.

The extension to the south will bear a little more watching, though, according to Dr. Beede, who states that work has been done there which shows the existence of a major fold there. This fold is not as many think one long regular fold southwest from Big Lake through Crockett and Pecos county to the Marathon mountains, but is, according to Dr. Beede, a series of folds, separated at irregular intervals by known synclinal areas.

Big Lake in a Slough.

Dr. Beede characterizes the Big Lake field as in a "slough" and stated a few nights ago that so far as geology on the place goes the discovery well would never have been drilled if the vehicle transporting the rig hadn't broken down at the spot and made spudding there necessary. The high spot, he says, is southwest of the Sheffield Terrace.

The axis of the fold or Sheffield Terrace, according to observations of Beede and Udden is about 60 degrees east of north from a point on the extreme eastern end of Pecos county.

Dr. Beede was a Wichita Falls visitor a little more than a week ago and made the trip southwest of here with Dr. Gould and Wichita Falls geologists.

Drill 43 Holes; No Well Yet

"Percentage" Some Call It; Others "Average"

In poker games they call it percentage; in higher mathematics it is propounded as the theory of averages. Be that as it may oil men usually figures that one in every twenty or so wildcats should make a well.

There are no operators in the Wichita Falls district that have demonstrated this better than Knight and Hines, erstwhile Consolidated Oil company. Following their Freeman-Hampton strike these operators drilled 23 dry holes; then came the Ragle discovery, which netted them in excess of $1,250,000 before they were through. Since the Ragle discovery the two have drilled as consistently as any operators in the district, and with the completion of their Brashear and Netherton holes a day or so ago chalked off Nos. 42 and 43. Of the 43 holes one was a producer, the company getting about $500 worth of oil out of it before it turned to salt water and was abandoned. The well is referred to is the Knight-Hines discovery in southeastern Wilbarger county.

"About time——" is the only characterization W. T. Knight, president of the company makes on the figures.

2 Youths Held In Theft Of Cotton

Two youths suspected of implication in the theft of 900 pounds of cotton from the S. J. Beazley farm, six miles southeast of Wichita Falls, were arrested Tuesday morning by Deputy Constable N. O. Roberts. No charges have as yet been filed against them and officers are not certain they had anything to do with the theft.

The cotton was taken from a wagon which had been filled by pickers Monday. Mr. Beazley intended bringing it to the gin Tuesday but when he went out yesterday morning it had been emptied. A motor truck had been driven through the field and cotton sacks emptied into it.

The truck was located by Roberts but nothing has as yet been discovered showing conclusively that the youths under arrest had anything to do with it.

WE CAN live without pictures but cannot live well, one great writer has said. And it is true we can live without many things, but cannot live well. It is really strange how many things human beings can live without. We can exist without music or religion, but how much nicer it is to have the soul awakened even once in awhile by the beauties of life—the worthwhile little things that go to make up full well rounded out lives.

One of the newest and fastest growing organizations in Wichita Falls is a band whose purpose is to make people happier—to bring to people living in the poorer districts and to those who for some reason or other are unable to attend church, the better things of life. And this organization is on the job every day in the week. They carry messages of cheer into the homes, and that is not all for where they find children unable to attend school there on account of insufficient clothing, these workers see that they are supplied.

Every Sunday finds the band holding services in some church or mission where their kind of work has never been carried on. These meetings are announced ahead, and large crowds are always there to greet them.

And music is part of the services. The band has an orchestra of 10 pieces to assist them. They also have among them singers, teachers and preachers, and they are always taking in new members. Last Sunday, they decided to divide the band into two sections for the coming Sunday and half of them go to "south field" four miles out of Electra, in the heart of the oil fields, while the other half will go to Lake View, another rural community.

The object of the workers is to carry to people the teachings of the Christ, and at the same time, with musical and other talents entertain them and give to them a new inspiration that will help to make life more "The Volunteer and Special Workers Band" and are working in connection with the B. Y. P. U. county association.

The officers of this band are Jewell Cunningham, president; W. R. Harper, secretary and Mrs. George H. Patterson reporter.

But what kind of work, talents or accomplishments are worthwhile without we have health? At least this question is asked by one group of women, and these are the members of the health department of the Wichita Falls Woman's Forum. At a meeting held at the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday morning, Dr. L. D. Parnell told the women all about various kinds of fractures and what should be done first in cases of that kind. He said in part: "The doctor should go to the fracture cases when a child is hurt at school or out some where, instead of the patient being rushed to the doctor, as is more often the case. The patient, he said, should be made as comfortable as possible on the ground and left there while the doctor is sent for. Then instead of probably having besides the fracture, a muscle and nerve wound to treat, caused by moving the patient, the doctor only has the fracture to deal with.

Mrs. T. A. Welty, former dietician at the Junior College talked to the women about the proper kind of diet for babies and children which is food for the bones and teeth, and said that nothing is better than a well balanced diet with plenty of eggs and milk, fresh air and sunshine.

The Forum members were interested in both and asked any question which happened to be upper most in their minds. All were satisfactorily answered by the speakers.

LOVERS' LANES TRAVERSED BY CHURCH FOLK

City Union of C. E. Enjoys Unique Hallowe'en Party

Two hundred young people at the First Presbyterian church enjoyed a "walk through lovers' lanes" with a thousand thrills, and many went home happy after the experience of a fortune telling when the City Union of Christian Endeavor societies of Wichita Falls were entertained at a Hallowe'en party.

A play of the "Division of Murder" was given with Helen Ruth Willgus, W. H. Apple, Grady Snuggs and Joyce Samuels taking part. A shocking communication with the spirits was also a feature of the evening's program. Mrs. J. S. Pitman read "Little Orphan Annie."

For refreshment, each guest took hold of a stick, and to it was attached an apple representing a man with peanut arms and limbs and a candy head.

The loving cup was won by the Christian Endeavor society of the First Christian church for the organization having the most points, the greatest number of members taking part in meetings during the past two months during the contest. The cup was presented by William Spreen, educational director of the First Christian church and president of the city union.

Through a Woman's Eyes

STILL LOOKING FORWARD.

It wan a delightful play the kind that comes into the over-heated atmosphere of the spectacle and sex-ridden theatre like a clean, cool, perfume-laden shower on a torrid day.

It was a love story, sweet with real old-fashioned romance. And it sent one home feeling that the world is a good old place to live in after all.

A seat or two over, in the row in front of us, sat a woman and a girl, obviously mother and daughter. There was something about them that drew one's interest. For after they were pointed out to us during the first intermission, we could not help observing them a bit.

The girl of post-flapper age, was thrilled. Her face carried into the intermissions the rapt look which had probably been there when she first heard the story of Cinderella and the fairy prince. She was all eyes and ears, unconscious of anything but the romance before her.

What she saw, of course, was herself in the place of the girl on the stage, with the charming hero courting her, each gallant attitude, each manly act, every amorous glance for her. She was dreaming, this little girl, of herself in days to come, when kindly winds should waft to her her romance, her love, and happiness ever after. She was looking forward, and her heart was glad.

The mother was past middle age, with all the trust and sweetness of her daughter's face still in her own. You felt she was a widow—or he would have been by her side.

Her, too, the play was holding. She also saw herself upon the stage, the leading lady in a story of youth and romance and love. Her eyes too, grew starry, her expression wistful rather than thrilled. For she was looking not forward, but backward. She saw not a future fairy prince, but her own king, tried and found true in sickness and sorrow, in joy and troublous times.

She lived again those happy days that were behind her. And in her face was not turmoil, nor resentment and unhappiness that he was gone. Only peace was written there, and gratitude and simple faith. She was grateful that such love had been hers and she had faith that he was not gone forever, but would meet her where there is no further parting.

When the lights went up, her smile, like her daughter's was full of hope. Both were looking into the future, she with a double hope, for she was living over again the dreams of love to come for her little girl, and for herself, too, she could look forward to the great beyond.

And as they passed us by a prayer escaped me for that little girl—that if like her mother she should love and still in the midst of life have lost, she be given the sweetness and simple faith that keeps her mother still looking forward.

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS, DRINK WATER

If Back Hurts or Bladder Is Troubling You, Take a Little Salts

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—Adv.

Does Winter Fill You With Dread?

Better Get Rid of Your Rheumatic Pains and Twinges—NOW.

James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., suffered for years with rheumatism. Many tmes this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finallly decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called ALLENRHU, to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed Wichita Falls druggists and druggists everywhere to dispense ALLENRHU with the understanding that if the first pint bottle does not show the way to complete recovery he will gladly return your money without comment.—Adv.

More Truth Than Poetry

TO A HOG

O modest, unassuming brute,
Serene and philosophic porker,
No poet yet has tuned his lute
To say in rhyme that you're a corker.
You have no joyous song, it's true,
You are not graceful, like the swallow,
And nearly all your lifetime through,
In rather grubby mire you wallow,
For you no minstrel's raptures thrill—
You live, unnoticed and forsaken,
Yet when your day is done you will Bring home the bacon.

The thrush and lark delight the ear,
Their music has the power to win us—
But when our dinner time is near
And hunger gently wakes within us—
Their notes, however clear and sweet,
No longer serve to satisfy us,
And off we haste on hurrying feet
For what you always can supply us.
A tender ham, enwreathed in steam,
With silver fat about it clinging,
Is worth far more to man, we deem—
Than any singing.

But such are we who walk this earth,
The songs we make are only lifted
To sing, not of real solid worth,
But to heap incense on the gifted.
What time you wallow in your sty
The Wordsworths and the Poes inspect you,
With but a cold and callous eye—
And ever in their rhymes neglect you.
Blind, unobserving, casual men,
These poets, who are only able
To understand your merits when
You're on the table.

Coyotes Scrimmage Indians In Drill For Week-End Tiffs

TOP O' MORN STUFF
By BLONDY CROSS.

A few scribes broke out with bombastic declaration the past weekend to effect Rice outplayed Texas although sliding under a 27 to 6 defeat. Not so Bill Ruggles who arises to aver the opposite. This critic, probably the closest student of southwestern football, opines the varsity was fortunate only in that the intermittant rain was but a light sprinkle and did not slow up the Longhorn backs.

* * *

Ruggles points out that no alibi could be offered by Rice in that Underwood and Herting were lost in the third quarter, the victory period, for the Longhorn offense was largely substitute strength.

Duke Apparently Has Goods

The showing of young Duke Trammel Monday night when he beat McMullen out in three rounds was little short of a revelation to the small coterie of fans who stuck by him all the way even though here not so long back he was in a terrible slump.

* * *

Trammel, ordinarily the slow-footed, slow fisted slugger type, looked every bit the part of a finished boxer and yet still carries the slugger's heavy punch. He met Elmer with a straight left jab in the first round that jarred his opponent to his heels and then kept shooting it.

* * *

Duke completely outboxed McMullen, which on the face of it may not be saying much, but he carried all the earmarks of a first class fisticuffer in doing so. There wasn't a lost motion. He knew exactly what he was doing every second, had Elmer helpless at long range and worse than that at close quarters.

* * *

He'll Make 'Em Jump

If Trammel can keep at this gait it will not be long until the Fort Worth lad will be a certain menace to any of the boys in the top layer of the welterweight division. At this moment he can give any of the second raters fits and quite a number of the firsts, that is, if he can perform in the manner displayed against McMullen.

* * *

Quite a gob of the credit for Duke's sudden improvement, we are told, should go to Dick Griffin, Fort Worth feather, who has been coaching him off and on the past several weeks. There are mighty few in the game today who know more about the ins and outs of the ring warfare than does Griffin.

Goose Can't Recover Goat

Goose Goslin apparently had better luck with his automobile than his goat. When his car was stolen from in front of his fair one's home he recovered it in three or four hours.

In the late lamented (for Washington) world's series, Earl Smith, Pirate catcher, stole Goslin's nanny and the Washington slugger has never recovered it.

Which may be either a sad commentary on the ability of the ball park police or a tribute to Smith's genius in devising and carrying out a "perfect crime," so says Norman Brown.

Big Eight in East?

It is reported there's a movement in the east to establish a "Big Eight" in football. That's significant.

It indicates that the famous big three, Yale, Harvard and Princeton, are awake to the crisis in their football lives. Second, it indicates the ever-growing realization of the mounting supremacy of football in the middle west and the reason for it—organization.

Development of the game in the middle west, the adoption of the open game in all its various angles, struck the first blow to the supremacy of the big three. Western teams went east and by the very virtue of their dash and daring, robbed eastern clubs in general of the glamor which had been theirs. Then the big three with exception of Yale fell into dark days. Princeton and Harvard got licked right along by the little fellows.

Now Yale, Harvard and Princeton apparently are forced to admit the presence of other schools, must ask them to join in a mutual benefit association. Pennsylvania, Cornell, Dartmouth, Pittsburgh, Lafayette and several other institutions no doubt are willing to discuss the matter.

* * *

One feature of play of Chicago's football teams has come to be an integral part of Coach Stagg's system—a sort of traditional form.

This is the "Chicago" shift. In this shift the tackles are drawn back and there are three possible shifts by the backfield men, ranging from a one-step shift. The varied number of plays formation makes it a confusing one which are started from this shift for the opposition. The defensive team cannot foretell whether the play is to be a kicking, passing or running one.

Burk Elks Enjoy Winning Grid Run

The Burkburnett Elks are having a highly successful run in football this season, having captured their fourth straight win last Sunday afternoon from the Hilltown club by the score of 9 to 6.

The stars of this game were Montgomery and Kay, both coaches at then Wichita Falls Junior high school. Montgomery's 65-yard run proved to be the deciding score of the contest. Both Kay and Montgomery backed up the line well while Crisey shown brilliantly in the line. Pryor of Hilltown, was the star for the losers. His 40-yard return of a punt was the feature of the Hilltown play.

The Burk Elks play Medil, Okla., Sunday in Burkburnett, and hope to make this their fifth win in a row.

PACK LOOKS GOOD WITH NEW PLAYERS

Tribe Rounds Into Shape for North Texas Aggie Go

The Junior College Indians and the Coyotes held a hard scrimmage Tuesday afternoon on the Junior college grounds. Two complete squads of both clubs were on the field at the same time. The Coyote first string men were set to work on the offense while the Redskins were the defenders.

The Tribe showed a hard game at breaking up the passes of the Coyotes which was tried by the Pack with regularity. Jack Thurman, Indian quarterback, showed up better than the rest of his mates at this work. The Pack, however, managed to get away with several, and with better effect after the scrimmage had lasted longer.

With the other set of scrimmagers the work was different, and more on the order of the real game. These boys were battling for the downs, and for the possession of the ball. Covering of a Coyote punt on the Indian two-yard line by Jewell Sisk, Coyote end, placed the Tribe in a very bad position. The Indians attempted to kick out of the danger, but the center threw low to Crites, the punter, who made the best of the play by heaving into an open space with the hope of having the pass incomplete and placed again on the two-yard line. But this was snared by a Coyote and returned to the Indian three-yard line, from where Rugsly carried it over.

Young McKinney, recent addition to the Indians, played a great defensive game for the first squad.

The Coyotes were dealt another hard jolt by an injury to Morgan Gillum, star guard. Gillum had the fingernail on the third finger of the right hand torn off. Wilks Dobson, Coyal Francis and Walter Penny were all back in uniform Tuesday and all but Dobson seemed to be ready to go. Dobson still has a limp in his walk, but he believes he will be in shape for the Vernon tilt Saturday.

The Pack was given several new plays for the Saturday game, and after working them on the second string men tried them out on the Indians, with quite a bit of success.

The Junior college looks all to the Okeh for the north Texas Aggie game at Spudder park Saturday.

TIGERS PREP. FOR QUANAH

Electra's Tigers, undismayed by their setback at the hands of the Vernon Lions the past week-end, are plunging through daily workouts in preparation for the game with Quanah scheduled for the Electra gridiron Friday. This contest originally had been slated for Saturday, but the date was moved up earlier so that Electra and Quanah followers could attend the Vernon-Wichita Falls contest at Vernon Saturday.

The Tigers haven't won a game this year. They tied three and lost 7-0 to Vernon, but the dope has it Jim Reese's men will topple Barnette's lighter Indians Friday and break into victory column.

The Tigers worked under Assistant Coach Coke Monday. Reese was in Wichita Falls on business.

Coke made a number of changes in the first team lineup in order to give a number of likely looking substitutes a chance in the backfield. John Louie Wright and Lendon Smith were placed in the backfield to replace Vincent Trammil and big Dell Cooledge as Trammil was sent to calling signals for the second team in place of Wright and Cooledge was sent back to the line and replaced Ralph Turner. Pug Sanderlin was not out for this afternoon's workout due to a shoulder injury sustained in the first few plays of Saturday's conflict. His injury was not thought to be serious at first but it will probably keep him out for at lenst ten days. Ralph Turner was placed at Sanderlin's end in the signal session.

Coke put his charges to returning punts with the second stringers on the receiving end and the ends sent down to tackle the runner. Trever Bell displayed ability in circling the first team ends on these punts.

Willis Carnahan, first team center, was out in uniform this afternoon for the first time since his knee injury, sustained in the Tiger-Coyote game October 17. He saw very little work, however.

JUNIORS MAY FOOL HAWKS

The Junior High Pups will find the Iowa Park Hawks hard to handle Friday, if you would put any stock in comparative scores. Devol beat the Pups, 19 to 0. Iowa Park beat Devol, 24 to 7. These scores point out the Iowa Park club to be the stronger by about 18 points. With the comparing of scores over the Pups are picked to lose, but with the fighting spirit they seem to have in the late practice sessions they should give the Parkers a better fight than the dope would indicate.

The Iowa Park club probably will enter the game with three star men out of the lineup, and in this case the odds should be greatly decreased Enloe, star quarterback, Denny and Fitzgerald, both guards, will be out of the game.

The Pups will go into the game with their full strength unless some injury comes up in practice, which is unlooked for.

Montgomery probably will use Clyde Fly at quarterback for his first game from that position, and unless Brackett is able to get back in the game by then "Shoestring" Dulaney may be used at half.

The Pups will have a much stronger and harder drilled line than the one that was pitted against Devol Friday. Coach Key has been working the line hard and has been working on new methods of attack and defense.

Nichols, Powell, Mix, Bains, Berry, Giles and Floyd Herndon probably will be the starring linesmen.

Win or lose the Pups will be in the game fighting for every foothold, and with the hopes of upsetting the dope and capturing the contest with their old rivals.

Mr. Herman Ruth Tells World He's Sappiest of Saps

Yankee Slugger Sluffs Off $500,000, So He Says

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Babe Ruth, baseball's "bad boy" whose extravagances and follies are figured to have cost him $500,000 in an interview given to Collier's Weekly, once was fined $9,000 by Manager Miller Huggins of the Yankees the story also reveals.

This, it says, was the outgrowth of continued violation of training rules in 1922 culminating in a "wet party" on Broadway, but the fine later was rescinded because Ruth was "riding the crest of one of his inspired batting streaks, hitting a homer almost every day."

This precedent was not a part of public knowledge, incidentally, late this season when Ruth was fined $5,000 by Manager Huggins for "misconduct off the field" while the Yankees were in St. Louis.

Ruth, in his story, recounts his missteps and recalls tremendous losses through gambling, ill-starred business ventures and in fighting legal suits, all of which he figures at $250,000 besides an equal amount estimated to have gone for "high living, parties, charities, gifts, etc. Once, he admits, he lost $35,000 on a single horse race.

"I have been the sappiest of saps," he adds, "but I'm going to make good all over again," as evidence of his intention to come back, Ruth, after finishing a hunting trip in the north woods plans to go to St. Petersburg, Fla., the Yankee training camp, next month, then visit Hot Springs before rejoining his team mates in Florida for the regular conditioning grind.

Pirate Wagerers Gyped In Bets By Worthless Checks

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 27.—(AP)—A number of Pirate supporters who placed their money on the Pittsburgh club and then thought they had "cleaned up" when their favorites won the championship, now find that they didn't win a cent, police having received numerous complaints within the last few days that the money was "covered" with bogus certified checks.

Among the betters who found their "checks" to be worthless was a former pugilist who bet $25,000. In another instance a theatrical manager placed $5,000, but did not realize on his investment." Other wagers ranging from $50 to $500 have come to the notice of police who figure that a total of $100,000 was covered by the spurious paper. Baltimore and Washington banks are said to have been the institutions on which the "checks" were certified, and several of the complaints declare the men who "took" their money said they were from Cleveland.

Inspector of Detectives John Harry says there is no way in which the winnings can be collected although there might be gleaned a few crumbs of satisfaction by prosecuting the men who posted the checks on charges of issuing worthless paper. That is, if the men can be located.

Saints Buck Jinx In Medic Clash

AUSTIN, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Two former Southwest conference grid stars will play for the Tennessee Medics Saturday when the Tennessee eleven takes on the St. Edwards' University Saints of Austin at Memphis. Payne, star guard of the 1923 championship S. M. Mustang eleven and Sammy Sanders, former star Texas Aggie back, are the men in question.

If the Saints are able to win over the Medics they will be the first players to win from the Doctors at Memphis in six years. Coach Jack Meagher and his men, however, are hopeful they will be able to do the unexpected.

Probably the outstanding athlete of the Medic eleven is "Tarzan" Holt, who won all-Southern honors when playing end at Tennessee.

Matsuda Tumbles Mister Brown

CHAMP FINDS JIM HARDER THAN BEFORE

Matmen Stage Great Bout Before Big Charity Crowd

Matty Matsuda, the wily Japanese world's welterweight mat champion, is still king of the little fellows.

Jim Brown, persistant Chicago challenger, lost out again in a furious match staged last night in the interest of the day nursery building fund sponsored by the Kiwanis club. The Majestic theatre, in which the bout was held, was crowded almost to capacity.

The match was the cleanest and most thrilling enacted in Wichita Falls since advent of the Wichita Falls Wrestling association several months back, and went quite a distance toward placing the wrestling game on a high plane in sports of this city.

Matty, though ultimate victor, was pushed to the limit to defend his belt. The Nipponese was not able to win in straight falls, for after beating Brown with a step over toe hold for the first fall, his opponent came back furiously and pinned him in the second.

Hard Match.

The grapplers tore at each other through 40 minutes of exciting milling before Matsuda won the initial fall. Brown on several occasions seemed near to pinning the Jap with a series of headlock applications. Matty, on the other hand, kept Brown in trouble with arm strangles and toe holds. In fact, the fall came when Matsuda by what appeared to be a last herculean effort, pulled out of a vice-like headlock and slipped into the step over toe hold which ultimately brought him the fall.

Brown came back after the intermission limping, but still strong. They sparred for a minute, and then Matty fell into a head lock. From there on it was head lock after head lock with Brown the aggressor. After 18 minutes and 30 seconds of work, the Chicagoan came through to take the fall.

They went at it still harder for the third fall. Several times Matsuda seemed about to win with an arm strangle. Once he all but had Brown with a grapevine, but a desperate lurch and twist by the Chicagoan turned the tables. Constant application of the head lock kept Matty in a bad way, but after about 22 minutes of wrestling the champion managed to get away with a flying mare, the same trick which proved Brown's undoing in his match with Matty the week before. Jim came to his feet slowly, and the Jap got across with the maneuver again. Three times in all did Matsuda toss Brown over his shoulder with his flying mare, and the third time after several seconds of struggling, pinned his opponent.

ST. ED'S GAMES TO COUNT IN T. I. A. A. RACE, IT'S SAID.

ABILENE, Texas, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Contrary to published reports, it was said here today that football games played by St. Edwards university of Austin during the current season will count in the race for the T. I. A. A. championship.

The Passing Hour

~ by Wm. B. Ruggles ~

WORK BOTH WAYS

If now and then, the world you feel
Acts offishly towards you, and strange—
Reflect that now and then they peel
The glory off some flying Grange.

And if they've stymied you for fair
And made you pull up lame and weak,
There is no need for dark despair,
Next time this Grange is quite a streak.

There really isn't any rule
By which to judge your mental pep—
Sometimes you fail with every tool—
Sometimes you win at every step!

The forward pass was invented in 1907, but football has been an overhead game for 50 years—over the heads of the spectators.

But it succeeds like the highbrow drama—because nine-tenths of the audience will not admit that they do not understand it.

The Debt.

Professional football, an eastern publicity article says, is prepared now to stand or fall on its merits. Teams in 17 cities are now members of the league, which apparently is prepared to put strong clubs in the various towns and which is organized to go through.

If professional football is a success—as it may be—it is one sport at least that owes a debt it not only will seek to repay, but which it will not only with the fans and the club owners, but with the players. He was not a perfect manager—he made many mistakes—but this is a natural condition when you consider that he was serving only his second year as a pilot and that managing ball clubs is not an intuitive but an acquired art. It takes practice.

He did possess the happy faculty of winning the confidence of his men and thereby getting their best efforts. And this is given to few managers and frequently supplants the missing quality of greatness.

Packers are seeking to produce synthetic beef. Synthetic baseball is already a marketable product.

One probable reason why J. Monroe Sweeney likes to officiate in football games is that the open season on referees is only one day per week.

Not So Likely Now.

One argument urged in favor of the summer ball rule now in vogue in the Southwestern conference is the old one that you must either legalize the phase of professionalism or be certain that the players will draw summer pay anyway and lie about it.

Yet this is no longer as simple as it used to be when news services were not so well developed and a young man could play 200 miles away from his home location without much fear of discovery.

Nowadays, there are few opportunities to play under an assumed name or for pay without some one interested in a rival team putting up a howl.

Getting away with it is being reduced to a minimum.

New Jersey town council proposes to war on rotten golfers. Those New Jersey councilmen have cut out a lifetime job.

The rotten golfer, like the bad actor, however, exists only in the eyes of the spectator.

Breathes there a man with soul so pure—
A critic keen, a judge so sure,
That, leaning on his golf club's head,
He to the folks around has said:
"I'M A ROTTEN GOLFER."

At the End of the Game.

The editorial written for this column on the plane crash of Marvin Goodwin at Houston was penned before the news came that the fall had been fatal. Now that death has intervened to terminate any plans for next year, it may probably be admitted that the Houston club expected Goodwin to again head the team in 1926 and that while this was not definite, it was a certainty in case that spitball pitcher did not qualify as a Cincinnati regular.

Maybe Shifts In Steers Saturday

AUSTIN, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Hoping to have his men in perfect condition for Saturday's clash with the S. M. U. Ponies, Coach "Doc" Stewart today sent his men through a lively scrimmage. Splendid showing of Fred Thompson, Johnny Estes, Olle and Joe King against the Rice Owls indicates the Steer starting lineup may be a bit different from the one that started against Vanderbilt and Rice.

Max Saxon who was handicapped by injuries in the Rice fracas, and who was relieved by Estes in the second half, is expected to be in good shape for the test of Saturday, and likely will gain more yardage than any other Texas player. Estes showed to such splendid advantage against Rice, scoring two sensational touchdowns, that many believe he will take Stallter's place in the starting Orange and White lineup.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 27.—(AP).—The cotton market was fairly active today and prices after ruling lower during the morning on poor cables, the failure of killing frost to materialize and on selling resulting from yesterday's big crop report by the government ruled firmer later in the day owing to good trade buying and covering by shorts on predictions by the weather bureau of a hard freeze for Oklahoma and Texas Panhandle and on indications of severe cold weather in the far northwest. The early decline of 21 to 27 points was later recovered and a small net gain established, the market closing two to six points net higher on all active months but December, which closed 4 points net lower.

Liverpool cables were lower than due and the map failed to show any evidences of the predicted killing frost. First trades showed losses of five to seven points and as there was further selling resulting from yesterday's crop report, prices eased off until, by the middle of the morning December traded down 21 to 27 points below yesterday's close. Prices later improved on trade buying and on evidence of colder weather in the far northwest, recovering all of the early decline before noon.

The market ruled steady in the early afternoon although easing off slightly from the highs but in the late trading good buying and covering caused a fresh spurt which carried prices to new highs at 19.40 for December, or 25 to 28 points above the lows. The close was at practically the highs.

Exports for the day totalled 65,259 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP).—The bearish influence of yesterday's government crop report was reflected by further today, but after selling off to 19.95 for December, prices recovered part of the ther liquidation in the cotton market early loss on covering trade buying. December closed at 20.18, the general market closing steady, net three points higher to five points lower.

Opening was unchanged to seven points lower. Active positions sold 23 to 28 points lower in early trading under continued liquidation, southern local selling. The bearish view of yesterday's increased crop figures was encouraged by relatively easy Liverpool cables, accompanied by considerabl hedge selling here. Offerings seemed to taper off around 19.25 for January and 19.52 for March contracts, however, and the afternoon market was steadier on profit taking by recent sellers combined with a moderate demand from the trade. Busines which had been active at the start, became comparatively quiet on the rally, but most of the more active positions close within two or three points of the best.

The prospect for another cold wave in the southwest was probably a sustaining influence during the day in view of yesterday's official statement regarding the crop situation in West Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas. Opinion reveals that on the 18th there was still a good deal of cotton in these sections which might be damaged by unfavorable weather and it was pointed out there had been some very low temperatures in the southwest since that time. On the whole, however, local brokers said that buyers were less disposed to emphasize the possibility of rains in the crop estimated than the prospect of a large business in cotton goods with correspondingly heavy world takings of the American cotton this season.

Exports for the day were 65,259 bales, making 2,121,054 so far this season.

Port receipts 77,254. U. S. port stocks 1,255,299.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP).—Reactionary tendencies became more pronounced in today's stock market, net losses of one to nearly five points being spread over a rather board list. The decline was by no means general, however, as most of the motors and a number of specialties recorded substantial gains. Trading continued at a brisk pace, total sales again crossing two million shares.

Except for the continuance of relatively stiff call money rates, there was nothing in the day's news to bring about the reaction which was generally accepted as a natural correction of a weakened technical position. The quarterly statement of the United States Steel corporation which was issued after the market closed, was unusually favorable, net earnings of $42,400,413 for the three months ended September 30, compared with $40,624,221 in the preceding quarter and $40,718,415 in the third quarter of 1964.

U. S. Steel common which sold yesterday at 130¼.. the highest price since the war, sold down to 128⅞ today for a net loss of more than a point.

Motors gave another impressive demonstration of strength, the rapidity of the advance in some suggesting the further retreat of an over-crowded interest, Chrysler showing an extreme gain of over 8 points at 223⅜, a new record top, and then reacting to 219⅝. Hudson was run up over six points to 104⅜ and then dropped back to 101⅛. General Motors touched a new top at 138 but slipped back later to 135. Dodge Brothers "A", White, Motormeter "A", Stromberg and Yellow Truck preferred showed net gains of one to two points. Mack Trucks and Chandler were heavy.

Standard industrials lost ground on profit taking. American Can broke over four points to 251. Baldwin closed more than two points 122 1-8 and American Smeiting and Refining, DuPont, General Electric, Pan-American "B", Sears Roebuck and U. S. Industrial alcohol were among the many issues to show net losses of a point or two.

Rails fell back in sympathy with the industrials, such popular issues at New York Central, Rock Island, Reading, Southern railway and Delaware and Hudson yielding a point or more. Bangor and Aroostook touched another top at 54½, on buying influenced by reports that the annual divident probably would be increased to $5.

Specialties to which public attention has been attracted by reports of large current earnings were bid up in spirited fashion. Woolworth soared nearly ten points to 204; United Drug moved up 7 to 163½; Foundation company was run up nearly six points to 162½ and United Cigar Stores showed an extrem gain of four points at 107¾, all new high records.

Call money opened at 4½ per cent and then advanced to 5. This money rates hardened slightly, 60-90 day maturities being quoted at 4¾ to 5, instead of an a flat 4½ per cent basis, and the longer dates ranged between 4¾ and 5 instead of between 4½ and 5. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange rates were slightly reactionary. Demand sterling held fairly firm above $4.84½. French francs were firm at the opening but later broke about 10 points to around 4.20 cents on the resignation of the Painleve cabinet. Other European rates moved within rather narrow and irregular limits.

PLAN SCHOOL CARNIVAL

Stage Is Set for Big Show at Junior High School Friday Night

Plans are going fine for the carnival to be held Friday night at Junior High school, according to reports from the principal's office yesterday. Everyone is invited to the frolic which begins at 7 o'clock at the school building. Those who wish will wear costumes and masks ,and a prize will be given to the cleverest makeup. Following the awarding of the prizes a musical program under the direction of Mrs. Hermine Stewart Vaughn will be given in the auditorium.

Whereas, the Grim Reaper has again entered our ranks, taking one of the good and gentle members of our profession, Hon. Robt. A. Lyle; and,

Whereas, it is fitting that the living should pause and pay respect and tribute to the memory of one who walked among us and labored with us for so many days; and,

Whereas, it is not only proper and fitting that respect be paid to him who has passed, but realizing, also, that in such a time those of his loved ones who remain are stricken with grief, it, therefore, also, becomes our duty to speak words of condolence and good cheer to those loved ones, and so help them in their darkest hour of trouble and assist them to cherish the fondest memory of the love and esteem that we each have for this, our brother;

Therefore, be it resolved: That we cherish with tenderest memory the good and kindly deeds and the loving disposition of him who so recently left us, and that we extend to his good wife, and other loved ones the sympathy of each and every member of our organization; and we pray that God and the years may bring healing and recompense, and that in time all that was strong, good and kindly in his character may be the richest store in memory's fondest treasure for all those who now mourn so much his loss.

Senators Attack U. S. Crop Report

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—(AP).—The department of agriculture estimate indicating a cotton yield this year of 15,226,000 bales drew fire from two senators from cotton producing states.

Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, declared that any one who is acquainted with conditions in the belt this season realizes that there are not 15,226,000 bales or anything approaching that figure of spinnable cotton in the southern states this year. Senator Harris, Democrat, Georgia, expressed doubt that the final figures for the season would exceed 14,000,000 bales.

Livestock

FORT WORTH, Oct. 27.—Salesmen experienced a more satisfactory cattle market Tuesday. Prices were no better than steady with Monday's decline, but buyers were willing to trade on that basis, and all kinds met with a relatively broad demand. Receipts were about up to the average Tuesday proportions for the Fort Worth yards, around 3,000 head of cattle and 1,000 calves appearing. It was a day when quality did not amount to a great deal, mixed shipments predominating.

Packers obtained about as many beef steers Monday as they cared for, but a real scarcity developed Tuesday, the showing being too small to make a market quotable. Most of the cattle obtained came in small lots, and were sorted from mixed shipments.

Mixed shipments were rather numerous but buyers took hold gingerly, and trading moved along with pleasing rapidity, at values that were on an even keel with the decline quoted Monday. A few cars of good cows were here, and sold around $4 to $4.15, but the bulk of the run lacked flesh, and went at spread of $2.25 to $3.25. As a rule canners sold at $1.85 to $2.00, but there were instances where prices were under $1.85. Cutters brought $2.25 to $2.85.

Buyers were anxious for heifers, yearlings and bulls, the meager receipts moving scaleward early in the session under very satisfactory conditions. Several cars of fairly desirable heifers went at $6.75. Small drafts brought more money. Heavy bulls, selling as singles, made $4 to $4.15 Calf prices were more even than at any time Monday. Trading was active and cully steady. Vealers were scarce, but a few cars were here and sold around $8 to $8.50. Heavies of the best sort made $7.50. Fair to medium calves were taken at a range of $5.50 to $6.50.

Stockers consignmentsnt were disposed of to a moderately good call, all kinds being disposed of at rates that indicated a steady trend.

Hogs reached the 12 cent basis, shippers in competition with the big packers with light receipts offered, being responsible for another big advance in the market. Elsewhere, the trend of values was toward lower levels. Early receipts were limited to about three loads, packers buying at $11.85, with shippers paying $11.75 @$12.00. Prices averaged 25 to 35c higher than the packer market of Monday. Receipts were figured at 500 head.

Although 1,500 head were counted for the sheep trade, only a few decks were here for the opening market. Direct billed consignments made up part of the receipts. The session was a brief affair, packers buyin geverything available at fully steady rates. One feature was the receipt of a small bunch of fed lambs that cleared at $14.000. This is the highest value posted in the sheep house recently, but lambs cleared at that figure were much better than anything that has been coming.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Brisk buying led to a rapid advance in wheat values late today. Evidence that stocks of the contract grades of wheat in Chicago are being seriously depleted had much to do with turning the market upward. Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 1 1-2c to 2 1-4c net higher, new style, nearly the days top figures, with December $1.49⅝ to $1.49⅝ and May $1.55¼ to $1.46¼. Corn finished at 1¼c to 1½c gain, oats ¼c to ½c up, and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 60c.

Corn and oats moved up with wheat. New corn was in much better demand. Meanwhile, receipts of corn today were light, and no too were country offerings to arrive.

Provisions were affected by month-end buying of October ribs. At one time today this delivery ran up $1.25 on account of competitive bidding.

Market Gossip

MARKET GOSSIP

R. E. Flowerree and Co., Brokers, today received the following market comment from Fenner and Beane of New York, New Orleans and Shicago.

COTTON

The bearish impression made by yesterday's crop estimate was much in evidence with the resumption of trading today and prices sold off to new low levels in the first half hour.

Most of the early selling was attributed to interior spot houses hedging their holdings.

Short sellers were also active. Prediction of a hard freeze or snow in Texas Panhandle and Oklahoma tonight, preceded by rain and prospects of a freeze over entire northern limits of belt in next 24 hours taking by recent sellers developed later in the day on the weather outlook and prices gradually recovered all the early loss ,closing practically unchanged from Monday's finals.

Confidence in higher cotton values has been so upset by the government's figures that few look for a sustained advance, though many expect a further rally if the freeze materializes.

GRAINS

It is not possible to point to any fresh item of news to account for the strength in wheat today, therefore it must be assumed that the market is commencing to recognize the strong situation in cash wheat. it is to be noted that the cash article and the nearby deliveries rule at good premiums over the deferred deliveries in every market in the world, including Liverpool and Buenos Aires.—

From this condition, it can be deduced that the advancing tendency is due to legitimate conditions and not to anything of a speculative character.

There should be a maintenance of firmness in the market with decided strength when importers realize that North America is their only source of supply.

Decidedly wintry conditions over overspread the West and Northwest.

STOCKS

While motors continued the strongest features during the early trading, there was also further brisk demand for other issues such as tobacco and rails.

Chrysler Motors continued its sensational advance of yesterday in the course of which the stocks was lifted to a new high. Considerable strength was exhibited by United Cigars and it established a new high record. Among the rails, C and O., B. and O., and Frisco common were in good demand and New York Central established the highest price since 1909.

Trading on a large scale throughout the day came into Woolworth sending the stock up to new record ground in anticipation of capital readjustment. Pathe and Fox films registered strength at higher prices also. Profit taking was again on in large volume with selling orders coming into the market in big blocks, causing some of the most active stocks to recede after making advances during the first hour, but the demand continued good on such recessions.

LESS COTTON IS GINNED IN TEXAS, REPORT

Output To October 18 Is 800,000 Bales Under Last Year

HOUSTON, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Cotton ginned in Texas on Oct. 18, was more than 800,000 bales less than on the same date last year, the U. S. department of agriculture, through H. H. Schultz, statistician, announced here today. The crop gives promise of making 4,050,000 bales of 500 pounds each, the report said. The ginnings by Oct. 18, has amounted to 2,404,460 bales as compared with 3,275,144 on the same date last year. This was estimated at 60.9 per cent of the estimated total production in running bales and last year's ginning on the same date were 67.5 per cent of the final ginnings.

The preliminary estimate of cotton acreage abandonment in Texas is nine per cent, compared with a final abandonmen of three per cent in 1924 and 34 per cent for the ten-year average. An abandonment of nine per cent for Texas would leave about 16,586,000 acres for harvest, said the report.

Brief reports by sections follow:

Northwest, a large proportion of the crip is opening fully two weeks later than in 1924 and very irregularly.

North, heavy rains have retarded picking and damaged cotton in the fields.

Northeast, every county will exceed last year's production unless the rains persist too long.

West and west central, the recent heavy rains and hail have cost several thousand bales.

Center, in the drouth area much of the remaining cotton is so scattering that it may not be picked.

East, yields are resulting better than expected and all but a few counties will exceed last year's out turn if the wet season is not too persistent. In localities only a few bolls of the crop remain to be picked, in others practically all have been picked and the stock turned into the fields.

Southeast, a number of counties are doing better than last year, much of the early planting having yielded very well.

Seek Injunction Vs. Iowa Park Man

Injunction proceedings to restrain S. P. Cowert of Iowa Park from permanently closing what is said to be a public road in that territory were started in the 89th district court here Tuesday by W. D. McClure, Jess Stephenson, J. H. Preston and J. T. Young. A hearing on the matter was set by Judge P. A. Martin for 9 o'clock on the morning of Nov. 7.

The plaintiffs allege that for some 35 years past a second class road has been in use near the northeast corner of the corporate limits of Iowa Park. It is the only one giving access to the McClure farm, it is alleged, and is also used by the other plaintiffs in reaching property owned by them in that vicinity.

The defendant, it is alleged, constructed a wire fence down the center of it some four or five days ago and refuses to remove it despite the protestations of the plaintiffs.

Insurance Firm Is Asked To Pay $7,200

An appeal from the award of the industrial accident board and a suit for $7,200, representing a salary of $20 a week for 360 weeks was filed Tuesday in the 89th district court by D. L. and Lizzie Eubanks of Electra against the Texas Employers Insurance association.

The suit is an outgrowth of the death on May 29 of Archer J. Edwards, father and husband of the plaintiffs, who was crushed and fatally injured while unloading pipe for the National Supply company at Electra. This company, the petition recites, carried industrial accident insurance on its workmen.

"The Evil Eye" will be the subject of the lecture which Dr. N. F. Grafton will give at the mid-week service at the First Presbyterian church Wednesday night, 7:30 p. m. He will tell why donkeys of the east wear bends, and why a mother hurries home after hearing complaints on her baby and throws dirt on the child's face, the dirt taken from the four corners of the room.

MUSIC LOVERS MAY HEAR NEW VICTOR TODAY

Marvelous Orthoponic Machine at Nunn Elec. Company

One of the outstanding musical events of the season will be a demonstration of a new and revolutionary type of talking machine, to be given by Nunn Electric Co., Victor dealers, today at 909 Scott street.

Said by acoustical experts and musical authorities to be not less than 100 per cent more efficient than any previous development in the reproduction of sound from a record, the new instrument, known as the Orthophonic talking machine, is to make its debut here today. This demonstration has been arranged to give leaders in local musical circles an opportunity to hear the instrument before it makes its formal bow.

Developed upon the same basic principles which made possible long distance telephone communication, the Orthophonic talking machine is described as a mechanical instrument which reproduces accurately practically the entire range of musical sound. Its outstanding virtue is said to be the elimination of all unmusical vibrations which marred reproductions on old type instruments, and the extraordinarily faithful preservation of tone color. Notes which heretofore could not be reproduced at all, or were so distorted as to be unpleasant or almost unrecognizable, are now said to be given forth by the Orthophonic instrument in all their true beauty.

Following today's demonstration a big presentation of the Orthophonic Victrola will take place at Nunn Electric Co. Monday, opening at 8 a. m., and continuing until 6 p. m.

At both the demonstrations today, and the presentation Monday, the Orthophonic instrument will be played in comparison with the old type instrument, to give its hearers an accurate conception of the vast musical advance that has been made.

RAIL DEFECT CAUSED LOSS OF 16 IN WRECK

Crack Train of South Crashes Down Embankment

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 27.—(AP)—An invisible defect in a 96-pound steel rail tonight was held responsible for the loss of 16 lives and injury to more than 50 other persons when the Sunnyland, St. Louis and San Francisco passenger train—one of the fastest and best equipped trains operating in the south—was derailed early today near Victoria, Miss., 33 miles south of Memphis, and smashed down a 25-foot embankment.

Four sleepers, a chair car, a combination negro coach and smoker with the baggage, express and mail cars, hurtled down the embankment into a ravine telescoped and pounded by the impact into a mass of tangled wreckage.

Tonight wrecking crews still were clearing away the debris.

UNRENDERED ROLL ON SCHOOL TAX GREATER

Increased To $5,651,300 Under Unit Plan This Year

A good-sized increase in the total of the unrendered roll for city and school taxes this year has started some consideration on the part of city officials for a return to the personal assessment basis in obtaining renditions next year. In 1924 when deputy assessors covered the entire city and visited all pieces of property for the purpose of taking assessments, the unrendered roll amounted to $1,650,470. This year under the unit system of valuation the personal visits were not made and all property owners were ordered to come to the tax office to make their renditions. As a result this year's unrendered roll is $5,651,300.

Whether such steps will be resumed next year remains to be seen but it may be done.

The total property valuation in Wichita Falls this year as shown by the rolls of Tax Assessor and Collector W. R. Hyer and which have just been approved by Mayor R. E. Shepherd and the commissioners, is $39,905,620. In 1924 the valuations were $34,097,470. Personal property in 1924 was listed at $9,761,710 against $9,581,800 for this year. The decrease this year is explained by the fact that a large number of assessments are not included on livestock, pianos, old automobiles and such items in the city, collections on which have never been made. Last year these were included in the assessment sheets but payments were never available.

Real estate values in 1924 were $24,335,760 against $30,328,820 for this year.

Those critics of the American home were criticized themselves by the speaker, who said she though the American home is fixed as the rock of Gibraltar. For here is concentrated cooperative effort on the port of women for the better things in life.

"Women are interested in all the practical issues which effect the home," she said. "They are interested in the child, they are interested in economic betterment, in health, in sanitation, safety and in morals. We have laws to safeguard these and it is our duty to see that they effect the homes and are enforced.

"Women are said to be natural born law enforcers. If mother fails in law enforcement or reals largely in suspended sentences, government breaks down. Our democracy will rise no higher than our homes. The home must train the future citizen."

Welty Urges Irrigation for Wichita Falls

LOW PRESSURE SYSTEM URGED BY EXPERT HERE

Could Solve Problem at Cost Of $500,000, He Says

The advantages and availability of an extensive low pressure water system for Wichita Falls were presented the Technical club at its meeting last night by P. A. Welty, consulting engineer of the big valley project. A saving of about two-thirds of lawn sprinkling costs and the availability of unadulterated water especially suitable for irrigation were named as advantages of such asystem by Welty, who in discussing the availability of such a project for the city estimated its probable cost at about $500,000.

The subject of a low pressure water system for the city was first brought to the attention of the Technical club by J. A. Kemp, who in a recent talk before that organization suggested that the club might well give its attention to the problem of getting the irrigation water available for farm land in the valley to the city itself, pointing out that plenty of water insured the beauty of a city, citing as examples the cities of California.

Watering Costs Cited.

In his talk before the Technical club last night Welty showed that sprinkling a lawn in the city of Wichita Falls by means of the city's high pressure system cost $97.80 per acre. An acre of land in the irrigable farm area is given the same treatment, Welty showed, for a cost of $1.05 an acre. The $97.80 figure does not include the ad valorem tax for the purchase of the water plant on city property. The tax on irrigable farm land for the construction of the irrigation project amounts to $2.45, making the total for farm land irrigation $3.50.

He pointed out that the figure paid for water in the city for irrigation purposes was thus nearly 90 times as high as on the farm, and stated that this infinitely higher cost was for water inferior to the low pressure irrigation water for the use it was put to. The high pressure city water undergoes chlorination and doning which renders it especially unsuitable for aiding plant growth, according to Mr. Welty. This process has no part in the irrigation water from Lake Kemp.

Gives Cost Figures.

Mr. Welty estimated the cost of a project to take in half of Wichita Falls as about $500,000. Such a project to include piping, trenching, and a very few pumps needed for the higher portions of the city would not cost in excess of half a million, he stated, pointing out that all of Wichita Falls below the level of the Sam Houston school could be irrigated by a low pressure gravity system and that low pressure pumps would be needed only at extremely high portions of the city such as at the far end of Tenth street.

In all, he estimated, the low pressure system could be installed and water furnished the residence section at a cost of about $30.00 an acre or $6.00 per lot per year, this figure representing a saving of about two-thirds over the present cost of water for city irrigation purposes.

A low pressure system would place water aplenty at the door of every Wichita Falls home, Mr. Welty said, and insure the beauty of Wichita Falls as a city for all time.

FREE PASSAGE OVER RIVER BY JAN. 1 PLANNED

Wichita and Burk Business Men Work Out Proposal

Free passage across Red River not later than the first of the year is the aim of Wichita Falls and Burkburnett business men who, in a conference here Tuesday, virtually agreed that a temporary wooden structure should be built at once near the site of the new inter-state bridge and made available for public use during litigation and construction of the permanent structure.

Such a temporary bridge, it is believed, can be built for about $25,000. Effects are being made to work out a plan whereby the contractors for the county bridge will take over the temporary bridge and use it for hauling supplies, materials and machinery. Then, it is proposed, the contractor and those building it share in whatever salvage value it may have when the main bridge is finished.

A contract for the big job will be awarded Nov. 3, next Tuesday, in Oklahoma City.

WATER SYSTEM TO BE FEATURE OF ADDITION

Low Pressure Supply to Aid Development of Westmoreland

Low pressure water is going to have its part in the development of Westmoreland, newest, and as projected, one of Wichita Falls' show places of the future, according to Julian Montgomery, in a talk before the Technical club at its meeting last night. Water sufficient under low pressure for all irrigation needs in the new residential district will be supplied by large mains radiating from a five-acre lake within Westmoreland, according to Mr. Montgomery.

In discussing the improvements at Westmoreland, Mr. Montgomery called attention to a white way system, paving, parking, sewers, gas and low pressure irrigation water, that are projected for the district. In addition beautification efforts will include the construction of Dutch windmills and small lakes and ponds to be placed at various places in the park. Paving will be of asphalt on concrete base, and will be of a better type than has heretofore been used in Texas, according to Montgomery.
