Castro lashes out at West, calls for 'new world order'

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Fidel Castro, addressing the U.N. General Assembly for the first time in 19 years, lashed out today at Western "imperialism" and "exploitation" and demanded establishment of a "new world order." But he said he would refrain from direct attacks on the United States.

The bearded Cuban president, whisked into the United Nations under tight security, said he was speaking to the 152-member Assembly not as the representative of his country but as the current head of the movement of non-aligned nations.

Referring to the United States, he declared in the first few minutes of his speech he was not here to "wound with unnecessary adjectives our powerful neighbor to the north in his own house," or to speak of "the attacks on our small but noble country for the past 25 years."

Instead, Castro said, he was speaking on behalf of a Third World that is "struggling for an eradication of poverty, of hunger, of disease, of illiteracy, from which hundreds of millions of human beings suffer."

He demanded establishment of a "new world order based on justice, on equity on peace" to replace 'the unjust world system that exists today."

Under the current system, he said, "wealth is still concentrated in the hands of a few powers" who profit from "exploitation" of the Third World.

Earlier today, Castro emerged from almost 36 hours within the iron security of the Cuban Mission today and rode by car to the United Nations.

He had been expected to report on the stormy Havana summit of non-aligned countries and address the economic issues dividing the world's rich and poor.

Wearing his customary green fatwgue uniform, he was greeted at the delegates' entrance by U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, who escorted him to the secretary-general's 38th-floor office for a private talk before Castro's late-morning speech to the General Assembly.

Castro was welcomed by a few shouts of "Fidel! Fidel!" and light applause from U.N. personnel in the lobby. He and Waldheim strode off under the protection of a phalanx of security guards.

There were no demonstrators around the mission on East 38th Street as cars departed, first a decoy motorcade and then Castro's, for the seven-block ride to the U.N. site along the East River. The motorcade threaded through a secure zone of five blocks between two areas set aside by police for demonstrators.

Anti-Castroites were permitted no closer than Dag Hammarskjold Plaza, at 47th Street, four blocks north of the U.N. entrance, and supporters of the Cuban president were confined to a site one block south of the entrance, at 42nd Street.

Only a handful of anti-Castro protesters were gathered when he arrived, but the number grew to a few thousand by 11 a.m., a half-hour before the speech was scheduled to start.

The cleared five-block area in front of the United Nations was eerily quiet, the only sounds the clop of police-horse hooves and the clicks of police hand radios. The sound of police helicopters overhead carried away in the wind.

Following his speech, Castro had a lunch date with U.S. Ambassador Donald McHenry and 90 other dignitaries.

Castro, who arrived on U.S. soil Thursday for the first time in 19 years, says his visit will last five to 10 days. He has signaled a willingness to talk to American officials during his U.S. visit, but he said such a meeting depends on the U.S. officials.

A State Department spokesman said there were no plans for a meeting with Castro, but McHenry, America's new U.N. ambassador, will have a chance to chat with the Cuban leader at a luncheon scheduled to follow Castro's speech.

McHenry's office said he would attend the luncheon, to be hosted by Waldheim in a reception room on the top floor of the Dag Hammarskjold Memorial Library, but did not say whether the ambassador would meet with Castro.

For Castro's scheduled 4½ hours at the United Nations, hundreds of America, Cuban and United Nations security men blanketed the East River headquarters and the surrounding streets. U.N. grounds were closed to the public today. The security net included police boats patroling the river.

Castro, who played host to a non-aligned summit in Havana last month, was making his first address to the General Assembly in 19 years.

As chairman of the non-aligned movement, Castro tried unsuccessfully to steer the Third World nations into the Soviet camp at Havana. A slim majority, led by Yugoslavia's President Josip Broz Tito, the elder statesman of the movement, blocked the shift and pushed home a declaration setting the movement firmly on middle course between superpower politics.

In an interview with The Washington Post Thursday night, Castro said of U.S. concerns over Soviet troops in Cuba: "I'm not interested in the quarrel between Cuba and the United States. I've had lots of opportunities to talk about that."

Texan proposes U.S. pay for spill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Joe Wyatt, D-Texas, introduced a proposal today that would provide up to $80 million in federal funds to compensate for damage or losses caused by the massive Ixtoc I oil spill.

Two bills already introduced, one of them by Wyatt, also would authorize funds for oil spill compensation.

"This is an alternative," Jon Fisher, Wyatt's aide who drafted the new bill, said.

The latest proposal refers to the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act amendments of 1978, Fisher said, while the other bills amend the Federal Water Pollution Control Act and extend past the issue of compensation for Ixtoc I.

The new bill also authorizes $6 million for a saltwater fish hatchery in Texas, which would be operated by the state Parks and Wildlife Departmen.

Fisher said the hatchery operation would prevent a possible drop in the red drum fishery three or four years from now as a result of te spill. Redfish spawn in the Gulf and some questions have been raised about the effect the oil may have on their larvae.

Wyatt's district includes the stretch of the Texas coast from Port Aransas to Bay City.

Texas congressman first signing on as co-sponsors are Rep. E. "Kika" de la Garza, whose district takes in the southern Texas coast including some of the hardest hit areas; Rep. Ray Roberts; Rep. J.J. Pickle; Rep. Bob Eckhardt; Rep. Tom Loeffler; and Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez.

The still uncapped Ixtoc I well in Mexican waters blew out in June and began spewing oil carried by currents to the Texas coast.

The transportation secretary would administer the compensation program under the new proposal.

Fisher said he had been told the bill would be referred to the House Water Resources Subcommittee chaired by Roberts and the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

Cuban gunboats appear near U.S. naval base

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Cuban missile boats have appeared at a Cuban port about 50 miles from Guantanamo, the U.S. naval base where about 2,200 Marines soon will stage a reinforcement exercise, according to administration sources.

Although Soviet-built Komar boats are not usually seen in Santiago, the sources indicated no concern that the craft, armed with Styx missiles, might try to interfere with the Marine landings next week from three Navy amphibious ships.

Cuban President Fidel Castro has taken a low-key approach to the impending Marine operation, telling one journalist, "I'm not worried about the maneuvers."

The Russians have denounced the U.S. reinforcement exercise as "gunboat diplomacy."

Reports reaching here say the Cubans have increased aerial observation of the 45-square-mile U.S. base on the eastern end of Cuba, but that Cuban air force planes have approached no closer than 20 miles from Guantanamo.

The base is said to be under 24-hour surveillance from posts in the low, scrub-covered hills overlooking it.

The sources, who asked not to be named, said there have been no unusual Cuban troop movements in the vicinity of the base. An infantry brigade there was said to be following its normal pattern of activity.

Newsmen who visited Guantanamo last Friday found a relaxed atmosphere. Commanders said there was no tension among the base's 6,000 military and civilian inhabitants because of the diplomatic flap over the presence of a Soviet brigade some 500 miles to the west.

The temporary reinforcement of the 420 Marines normally guarding the base will be the biggest since 1975, according to Marine officers who described it as "a typical amphibious exercise."

Rental subsidy plan near reality

First applications to be taken in November

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

For the first time in the history of Midland, a rental subsidy program for low income families could be put into motion when the first applications are taken Nov. 2.

Betty Sheeler, volunteer director, said applications for the subsidized rental housing will be taken from 8:30 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday at 1101 E. Garden Lane.

To speed up processing of applications, interested persons may pick up verification forms at the office after Wednesday, said Mrs. Sheeler. If these are completed by the time an application form is filled out, less time will be needed to check out the applicant.

These forms require the applicant's Social Security number and verification of income, medical expenses and child care.

The Midland Housing Association will be administering the program, and Mrs. Sheeler is a member of that group.

On Aug. 2, the Department of Housing and Urban Development approved $39,000 to be used for 20 units of rental subsidized housing in Midland County, outside the city limits.

Midland County is the governmental agency that applied for the funds, which is why the money must be used on housing not inside the city limits.

The rental assistance funds can be applied to houses, apartments or mobile homes whose landlords are willing to participate in the program, said Mrs. Sheeler.

However, rental units must pass an inspection test.

"This gives us some control over what kind of housing is subsidized," Mrs. Sheeler said.

The director said housing association members plan to have all 20 units filled within two months of taking the first application.

After applying, would-be renters have 60 days to find a suitable unit, she added.

Two income "schedules" to qualify have been established by the Midland Housing Association.

According to HUD regulations, at least 30 percent of those being assisted with these funds must have "very low incomes," Mrs. Sheeler said.

For Midland, applicants must have below $6,250 yearly income for one person; two persons, $7,150; three persons, $8,050; four persons, $8,950; five persons, $9,650, and six persons, $10,400.

Income levels for higher-income applicants are: For one person, $10,000; two persons, $11,450; three persons, $12,900; four persons, $14,300; five persons, $15,200, and six or more, $16,000, she noted.

Maximum rents allowed for housing will be $150 a month for an efficiency; $182 for a one-bedroom structure; $214, two bedrooms; $247, three bedrooms; $279, four bedrooms.

Mrs. Sheeler said the cited rent figures include utilities, although there is a utility allowance made in the rent when an owner requires a renter to pay utilities.

The schedules are for unfurnished units.

The Housing Assistance Payment Program is available to low income families, elderly or disabled persons, Mrs. Sheeler said.

MHA will compute the person's or family's share of the rent — which amounts to 15 to 25 percent of the rent figure — and the association then will pay the remaining amount.

A deduction is allowed for medical expenses and child care, so a parent can work outside the home if he or she needs to, Mrs. Sheeler said.

Applications for participation in the program will be approved on a first come-first served basis, she added.

LULAC won't endorse candidate, but will be more visible politically

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ruben Bonilla, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, says he does not expect his organization to break tradition and endorse a presidential candidate in 1980.

But that does not prevent the group from trying to be more visible on the political scene.

One measure might be the guest list for the national board of directors' meeting today.

Vice President Walter Mondale and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., had been scheduled for appearances at the luncheon featuring Esteban Torres, President Carter's new assistant for Hispanic affairs, as the main speaker. Mondale canceled just prior to his scheduled appearance.

Other officials scheduled for meetings with the LULAC board during the day included Patricia Harris, secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare; Labor Secretary Ray Marshall; and former Texas congressman Bob Krueger, nominated as ambassador-at-large for Mexico.

Stuart Eizenstat, Carter's top domestic policy adviser, kicked off a steady stream of official visitors during the group's 3-day meeting by insisting Thursday that the administration is effectively meeting the needs of the Hispanic community.

"In a wide variety of areas, this has been an administration committed and dedicated to help the disadvantaged," Eizenstat said.

He said a strong affirmative action program includes the consideration of Hispanic candidates for current vacancies.

"I hope you won't be disappointed by the outcome," Eizenstat said.

Tony Bonilla of Corpus Christi, Texas, told the White House adviser taht LULAC's three prime targets for Hispanic appointments are secretary of the newly created Department of Education, commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service and ambassador to Mexico.

Talmadge plans re-election moments after renouncement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Within moments of being overwhelmingly denounced by his Senate colleagues for "reprehensible" financial conduct, Herman E. Talmadge started beating the drums for his re-election.

"I intend to serve as the senior senator from the grand state of Georgia for a number of years to come," Talmadge said Thursday, shortly after the Senate vote to denounce him.

Talmadge, serving his fourth term, is the first member of the Senate to be disciplined by his colleagues in more than 10 years.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said as far as he is concerned, the 81-15 vote to denounce Talmadge ends the case.

"I think we should put this matter behind us," Byrd said. "The senator has accepted the Senate's decision."

As chairman of the Democratic caucus, Byrd would play a critical role in any possible further disciplinary action against Talmadge, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Although such action is considered unlikely, Senate Democrats could vote to strip Talmadge of his 23 years of seniority and remove him as head of the Agriculture Committee.

In denouncing Talmadge, the Senate accepted the unanimous recommendation of the Senate Ethics Committee, which had rejected the more traditional penalty of censure.

Only two of the seven senators who have been censured in Senate history have been re-elected.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, one of the 15 senators who voted against the resolution of denunciation, urged the Senate to "consider more fully the career of the senator from Georgia before we take action that could bring it to an end."

However, Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., a close friend of Talmadge, said, "The people who know Herman know he is no crook. They know he is ethical."

Talmadge himself declared the Senate's vote a "personal victory" and said he had been vindicated of allegations of intentional wrongdoing.

After leaving the Senate floor, Talmadge acted more like a man who had been cleared than one who has been punished by his peers. With several staff aides in tow, he walked across the Capitol grounds waving to bystanders and tourists.

Talmadge voted "present" on the resolution to denounce him, as did fellow Georgia Democrat Sam Nunn and George McGovern, D-S.D., and Walter Huddleston, D-Ky. McGovern and Huddleston said their decision to pass was prompted by their membership on the griculture committe chaired by Talmadge.

Talmadge and his supporters in the Senate, mainly southern Democrats, conceded that Talmadge made errors, butinsisted he was innocent of any intent to break Senate rules or federal law.

The resolution approved by the Senate found that Talmadge falsely claimed $43,435 in Senate expenses and failed to report more than $10,000 in campaign contributions.

Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., chairman of the Senate ethics committee, conceded that the panel did not conclude Talmadge knew $39,000 in campaign contributions and Senate expense funds were funnelled through a secret bank account.

However, Stevenson said, "I did not say there was no evidence of such knowledge. That is for other agencies to decide."

Jury in Lee Chagra murder case resumes deliberations

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The fate of a 20-year-old Army soldier accused of killing flamboyant El Paso lawyer Lee Chagra was in the hands of a jury today, after testimony that took less than two days.

The panel got the case Thursday afternoon but retired without a verdict. It returned at 8 a.m. today to continue its deliberations.

Much of the defense effort for David Leon Wallace was aimed at convincing the jury that Chagra was killed during a cocaine delivery, not an armed robbery.

Chagra was shot to death last Dec. 23, a Saturday morning, in his plush, tight-security office in downtown El Paso.

Defense attorney Michael Gibson ended his testimony Thursday by asking the jury to consider reducing the verdict from capital murder to simple murder, which does not carry the mandatory death or life imprisonment.

Gibson painted a picture of Chagra surrounded by felonious friends, dope, gambling and fear of federal drug agents.

Assistant District Attorney Gary Weiser called the argument "a fairy tale" and told the jurors, "David Wallace has not been on trial. Lee Chagra has."

Weiser noted that Wallace testified he removed Chagra's boots looking for money. The prosecution contended Wallace and another soldier, Donald White, were robbing Chagra's office at the time of the shooting.

White has pleaded guilty to murder, and another man, Louis Esper, has been convicted of conspiracy in the case.

After his arrest in California last March, Wallace signed a statement saying White shot Chagra during a robbery.

But Wallace testified Thursday that he gave the statement under duress and made no mention of the cocaine because he had received an anonymous telephone call warning him against it.

He said Esper offered White and him $5,000 each to deliver 10 pounds of cocaine to Chagra. He said the shooting occurred when Chagra took the package of cocaine to a locked part of his elaborately protected office. He said White shot Chagra when it appeared the lawyer was reaching for a gun.

Chagra's brother, Joe, had testified that Lee was a gambler who used cocaine openly.

Chagra had successfully defended numerous defendants in narcotics cases.

Sandy Messer, Lee Chagra's secretary, testified Wednesday that she saw about $200,000 in his office the day before he was killed.

Thursday's high breaks record set in 1947

The temperature Thursday broke a longstanding record, reaching a new high of 94 degrees. Previous record for an Oct. 11 was 92 degrees set in 1947.

Saturday should see a shift back to fall-like weather — mostly fair and a little cooler — with the high expected to be only in the low 80s.

Low tonight should be in the mid-50s.

Today's westerly winds are expected to shift to the northeast late tonight, according to the forecasters at the National Weather Service office at Midland Regional Airport.

The overnight low recorded today of 55 degrees did not approach the record low for today of 40 degrees set in 1946.

No rain is in the forecast, so the annual accumulation should remain at 12.28 inches.

So far this month, the weather service's rain gauge has remained bone dry.

Elsewhere, hot weather returned to Texas today, with the readings threatening to set records for the warmest ever for an Oct. 12.

Temperatures were expected to reach the 80s and 90s statewide under sunny skies.

A few high thin clouds floated by the western Texas sky Thursday evening and night, but the rest of Texas had cloudless skies.

Absentee voting termed 'steady'; Only one week left to vote absentee

Absentee voting for the Oct. 23 school bond election has been "steady" most of this week, according to Don Furgeson, business manager for Midland Independent School District.

With just one week of absentee balloting remaining, 289 persons had cast ballots by 9 a.m. today in the school district office, 702 N. N St.

Absentee voting for the $10.2 million issue ends at 5 p.m. next Friday.

Furgeson predicted the pace would pick up in the last week of balloting, although he said he could not project a turnout for the regular Oct. 23 election based on the number of absentee ballots.

Registered voters may vote absentee if they are 65 years old or older, plan to be out of town, have medical or religious reasons for not voting on the regular day or are confined to jail.

Poll workers assigned to precincts other than their own also may vote absentee.

The $10.2 million bond package includes $5.5 million for expansion and renovation of Midland High School, $2.1 million for a new elementary school in northwest Midland, $1.3 million for renovations and additions at Lee High School, $431,000 for vocational facilities and $844,600 for other maintenance and fix-up projects in several MISD schools.

United Way now at 45.5 percent

Midlanders have pledged a total of $462,461.00 toward the goal of $1,017,000 in the Midland United Way campaign for 1980, as of noon Thursday.

The amount is 45.5 percent of the goal, campaign chairman W.F. "Bill" Ortloff said.

A complete accounting of money pledged to date was announced Thursday at a noon report meeting of volunteers. An objective of 45 percent had been set for the meeting.

The reported percentage was actually 45.5 per cent.

The next report meeting, scheduled for noon Oct. 18 in Texas Electric Service Co.'s Reddy Room, has an objective of 70 percent of goal.

Shooting death ruled as suicide

The shooting death Wednesday of W.R. "Bill" Mints, 61, who lived in a garage apartment behind 3101 W. Michigan Ave., was ruled Thursday to have been a suicide.

Peace Justice John Biggs made the ruling.

Mints was found about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday by Midland County Sheriff's deputies near his automobile parked along County Road 715 about six miles south of Midland.

Mints had been shot in the head with a .357 caliber pistol found near his body, deputies said.

The Midlander was pronounced dead at the scene by Peace Justice Biggs.

Carter sticking with original '80 game plan

By DON McLEOD

WASHINGTON (AP) — In football, a team that sticks with its game plan under pressure has a better chance of winning than one that changes signals. In politics, that's what President Carter has decided to do in the face of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's challenge.

After soulful deliberation, the White House and the Carter-Mondale Committee announced last week that Carter will make his presidential announcement on Dec. 4, more than two weeks after his first showdown with Kennedy.

This was a deliberate decision to wait for their own time instead of announcing early in reaction to the inroads of the Kennedy draft movement in Florida.

Although Kennedy is not a candidate, his boosters have mounted a highly active and professional campaign in Florida, where caucuses Saturday will begin the first test of the 1980 presidential nomination battle.

Delegates chosen in the caucuses will go to a state convention in St. Petersburg, where they will cast straw ballots Nov. 18 for their presidential favorites.

The vote will have no official meaning whatsoever because Florida's delegates to the Democratic National Convention won't be chosen or committed until the primary next March.

But if Kennedy, who already leads Carter in public opinion polls, should defeat him even in a non-binding preference vote in Florida, it could cripple the president for the early primaries next year.

Nevertheless, Carter chose to stick to his plan, and for these reasons:

—Although obviously concerned, he is not all that unsure about Florida.

—Rushing an announcement to boost his cause in Florida would have been an obvious sign of panic and could have done more harm than good.

—And Carter still thinks his best chance of a political recovery lies in his doing well in Washington this fall. Any overtly political turn to his presidential role might have endangered legislative successes that he hopes will help him later.

"And the game plan makes sense," a campaign official said. "There was a reason for it. For one thing, we want the president to run on his record, and we want the record to be as good as possible."

"We don't want to distract him from his legislative program for the next month or six weeks," the offical said. "Right now, things are going better on the Hill."

In his news conference Tuesday, Carter confirmed this strategy, saying the December date is "late enough to give me a chance to do what I can with this year's Congress," but in time to meet the primary filing deadlines.

And there are other tactical considerations. Kennedy's best chance will come Saturday, when roughly half the Florida convention delegates will be chosen.

These will come from the rank and file, where grassroots organizing and his personal popularity will have the most impact. The other half will come from public and party officials more tied to the survival of the Carter administration.

"We hope to carry the caucuses, but even if we had a bad loss in the caucuses, it would be possible for us to still win the straw vote," one Carter adviser said.

Just a look at the calendar, then, shows Carter couldn't have put together a respectable announcement before Saturday, and an announcement after that time would have been too late to help him over the toughest obstacle he faces before December.

The planned announcement is an elaborate affair, coordinated with local events and kicking off a week of campaign travel by Carter, his wife and Vice President Walter F. Mondale. It could not have been rushed without risking chaos.

Nevertheless, last week's unusually conspicuous announcement of an announcement sent a signal to supporters in Florida. It was as much of a gesture as his managers thought necessary.

And Carter clearly had begun to counter-attack against the Kennedy threat. His campaign committee filed formal charges with the Federal Election Commission charging the Kennedy draft committees with illegally conspiring to coordinate their fund-raising and targeting activities.

Carter may be playing catch-up ball, but the game plan has survived the anxiety attacks brought on by Kennedy' challenge.

Discovery Technique

By Alfred Sheinwold

"How would you play this hand?" Queen Isabella asked, almost 500 years ago. "With discovery technique," Columbus replied.

Most experienced players would take the heart finesse at the second trick and would eventually lose the club finesse as well. Down one.

Columbus led dummy's king of spades at the second trick to discover who had the ace. East naturally played the ace, and South ruffed.

LOSES CLUB

South now tried the club finesse, discovering that East had the king of clubs, the jack-ten of diamonds and the ace of spades. East almost surely had the queen or jack of spades since otherwise West would have led the queen of spades.

If East also had the king of hearts he would have opened the bidding in third position. Since East passed, West must have the king of hearts. South's only chance was to play the ace of hearts in the hope that the king was unguarded.

Three cheers and one slam for Columbus.

Wrong help for steel

The ailing American steel industry needs help from Washington, but not the kind it is getting. The industry's chief ills are aging, inefficient plants and an inability to raise sufficient capital to either modernize existing mills or rebuild new facilities incorporating the latest production technology.

It's a classic Catch-22. Without more modern plants, the industry will continue to lose ground to more efficient foreign competitors. And unless American producers can meet the competition on more equal terms, they cannot attract sufficient investment capital to rebuild a creaking production base.

The graphic evidence of this worsening predicament makes grim reading. This country's share of the world steel market has slipped from 60 percent in 1947 to 16 percent today. American producers turned out less steel in 1975 than they did in 1955 despite steady growth in demand over these same two decades.

Since 1977, 25,000 American steelworkers have been permanently furloughed victims of plant closings. Meanwhile, imports of foreign steel grow year by year and now account for nearly 20 percent of the domestic market. Foreign producers, notably Japan, supply 44 percent of the demand for steel on the West Coast.

Only two complete process steel mills have been built in the United States since the Korean War. Japan has added 15 modern plants just since 1964. Taiwan, South Korea and Brazil have created burgeoning new steel industries from scratch in little more than the 12 years since the last U.S. plant was completed.

Washington has responded to all this with its customary clumsiness.

The Carter administration sought to protect the domestic industry by implementing a complex set of regulations intended to prevent foreign steelmakers from selling their products in this country at prices below the actual cost of production. Fair enough, except that this so-called "dumping" of foreign steel is not the primary, or even a very important, cause of the domestic industry's decline.

The administration has also begun to guarantee private sector loans for modernization of existing steel mills.

While this program appears to address the industry's basic problem, its actual effect may be to prop up marginal producers and reduce available investment capital for better-managed companies.

Some industry executives also see the loan-guarantee program as the first step toward eventual nationalization, a surefire prescription for disaster.

A more appropriate, and far cheaper, remedy is readily available. Tax depreciation schedules for the industry's plant and equipment are far less liberal than those that apply to foreign steel industries currently underselling American producers.

This unnecessary and ill-advised handicap ought to be removed. Appropriate legislation has been introduced in Congress, but so far it has attracted little support from the administration or from congressional liberals.

Equally counterproductive is Mr. Carter's determination to hold increases in domestic steel prices at or below 8 percent at a time when the industry's energy and production costs are rising at an annual rate of about 12 percent.

It is generally agreed that American steel producers must spend about $6 billion per year through the mid-1980s just to maintain existing production facilities and meet environmental standards.

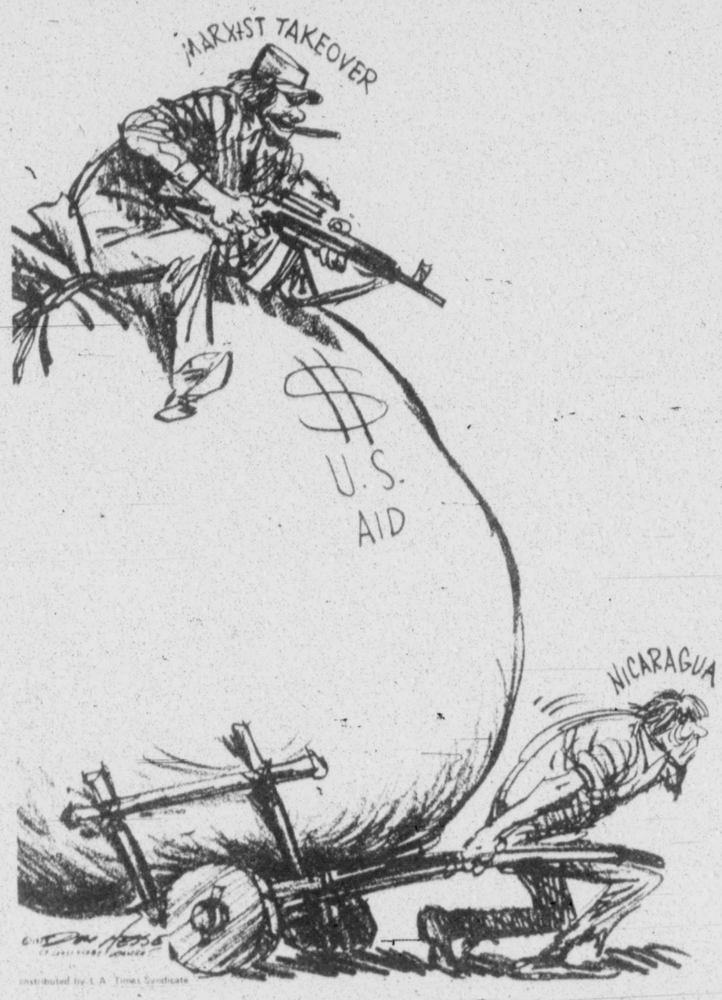

But even assuming full operation levels, the industry can expect to generate only about $4 billion a year.

Moreover, the industry's current rate of return on equity is just over 6 percent compared with nearly 17 percent for all domestic manufacturing.

The tax, monetary, and depreciation policies that directly affect the nation's investment climate are determined in Washington. Unless this climate improves, an already anemic steel industry will only grow weaker, and smaller.

Flag lowered, Panama Canal Zone has ceased to exist

By CHARLEY REESE
Sun Belt Syndicate

Charley Reese

ORLANDO, Fla. — The American flag has been lowered and the Panama Canal Zone has ceased to exist. The Panama Canal Treaties are in effect and the damage they will do to American interests cannot now be prevented. There's no point in kicking a dead horse.

Still, the surrender of a major U.S. asset is an appropriate occasion to think about the concept of pride. Pride is a reasonable and deserved self-respect and it is as necessary to the national health as it is to an individual's health.

Probably the most succinct definition of mental illness is lack of self-esteem. Individuals who lack self-esteem cannot function effectively and neither can a nation. That's why the habit of so many Americans of destroying pride in their own country is a serious business.

Every American can look at his country and find plenty of justification for "reasonable and deserved self-respect." The Panama Canal is one example. Politics aside, it was gigantic accomplishment of engineering and organization.

The Republic of Panama can take no pride in it. Their only contribution was a strip of largely uninhabitable land which they had stolen from Colombia. Even their own independence was a gift, for they certainly could not have achieved it without U.S. support.

The difference between American feelings about the canal and Panamanian feelings is the difference between pride and arrogance.

The Panamanians are arrogant. Theirs is an unjustified pride. This is true of a great many of the Third World countries, most of which lack any justifiable and deserved reason for being proud. Many of them have sold out their countries or hopelessly botched them up because of greed and incompetence. That's why Marxism, which preaches that one person's failure is caused by another's success, is so appealing.

We as a nation certainly have no monopoly on virtue but none is required to justify pride. We gave the world, for the first time, a practical and coherent concept of freedom. The American Revolution was a genuine revolution. Subsequent revolutions, most especially the communist ones, have in the fullest meaning of the concept been counter-revolutions — attempts to reimpose what the American Revolution overturned: rule of the many by the few.

Since then and because of our freedom, Americans have made tremendous contributions in every field of endeavor. Americans have created a huge store of wealth. Americans have been generous in sharing that wealth and generous in spilling their blood to defend others.

Unlike our British cousins, we never aspired to have the sun always shine on the American flag. With one brief deviation, we never sought colonies or conquest.

Since that fact is so obvious, communists and Marxist dolts have been reduced to accusing us of economic imperialism. That charge, however, cannot stand examination. There is no way you can equate an American business planting bananas or digging oil wells with military occupation.

Too often we fall into the trap of believing our enemies' propaganda. We should never let them make us feel guilty about our success. Again, the Panama Canal provides a good example.

The original Panamanians wanted us to guarantee their independence which they could neither gain nor keep themselves; they wanted us to build a canal which they could not build; they wanted us to pay them more than we wished and on top of it all, hand them the title.

In those days of more realistic American leaders, we simply made a better bargain. we guaranteed their independence, we built the canal, we paid them a fair price. Far from exploiting them, we were extremely generous.

Today, too, many of our leaders are not realistic. Not only do they not take pride in their own country, they apparently lack self-esteem. We should retire them, because, as the canal treaties will demonstrate, policies based on guilt and self-loathing tend to be disastrous.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Vesco, Billy Carter and Qaddafi

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department is trying to tie together the loose threads of a bizarre plot involving financial freebooter Robert Vesco, Libyan dictator Muammar Qaddafi and President Carter's irrepressible brother Billy.

The names of other Washington bigwigs, including White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan and Democratic National Chairman John White, have also been dragged into the investigation.

Last week, The New York Times reported in a guarded story that the case likely will be presented to a grand jury in November. Meanwhile, we have been trying for a year to untangle the threads of this story. Here are our findings:

FIRST THREAD: We have established that Vesco has a secret relationship with Qaddafi. On more than one occasion, Vesco has flown to Libya to confer with the revolutionary ruler. Qaddafi has granted arms and asylum to international terrorists and has befriended some of the world's most notorious renegades.

SECOND THREAD: There is documentary evidence that Vesco transferred $12 million worth of stock in 1977 to a group of Georgia influence peddlers with White House connections. They agreed to use their influence to fix Vesco's legal troubles in Washington. A key figure in the complex stock transaction was Jerry Dorminey, an Albany, Ga., businessman who controls the Dean Oil Co. The Securities and Exchange Commission blocked the Georgians from cashing in the stock and laundering the proceeds through a dummy corporation in the Bahamas.

THIRD THREAD: Witnesses told us that Vesco offered to divert an oil tanker from Libya to supply Dorminey's company with desperately needed oil. According to one source, Veseo requested a 50-cent-a-barrel commission which was supposed to be paid to Billy Carter. There is no evidence that the president's brother has collected a penny.

FOURTH THREAD: Billy Carter has become so close to the Libyans, meanwhile, that the Justice Department is investigating delicately whether he has stepped across the legal line and should register as a foreign agent. Billy Carter belatedly has asked for the registration forms. Our investigation indicates that the Libyans made the approach to Carter through an Atlanta real estate operator named Mario Lianza. We have found no connection between Vesco and Lianza.

FIFTH THREAD: Even before President Carter was sworn in, Vesco tried to pull strings inside the Carter camp through Spencer Lee IV, an Albany, Ga., attorney who was a close friend of senior aides Hamilton Jordan and Richard Harden. Lee accepted $10,000 for his influence and was also promised a share of the $12 million stock deal. In fact, Lee helped incorporate the Bahamanian company that was supposed to launder the payoff money. He reported the Vesco conspiracy to Harden but swore his White House friend persuaded him to pull out of the deal. Justice Department sources told us that a lie detector test indicated Lee was lying about this.

SIXTH THREAD: About 10 months after he claimed to have cut off ties with Vesco, Lee was approached about a new Vesco scheme to import Libyan oil into the United States. Lee demanded a $500,000 fee but the negotiations eventually fell through.

SEVENTH THREAD: Not long afterward, Billy Carter turned up in Libya with an entourage of Georgia businessmen. An estimated $50,000 in plane fares, hotel bills and gifts were picked up by the Libyans. We flew to Libya to investigate the story behind this strange visit. Trustworthy sources told us that the Libyans spoke to Carter about lifting the freeze on eight C-130 transport planes, which the Libyans have purchased from the Lockheed Corporation but which the U.S. government has held up.

EIGHTH THREAD: The Justice Department is investigating reports that the amazing Vesco had arranged with the Libyans to pay $38 million in bribes to get the planes released. His cut was supposed to be $5 million. Apparently no bribes were actually paid.

NINTH THREAD: Democratic national chairman John White was photographed by the FBI keeping a rendezvous with Mansur Rashid Kikhia, the Libyan representative to the United Nations. White has told the FBI that the meeting was wholly innocent. The Libyan diplomat wanted an appointment to see President Carter, but no money was offered or accepted to arrange the meeting, White swore.

TENTH THREAD: The FBI has obtained tapes of telephone conversations, which refer to Libya by the code name "Sand Box." The name of Hamilton Jordan came up in the conversations, but there is no evidence that he had any knowledge of the Libyan oil deal.

ELEVENTH THREAD: Most members of the Georgia congressional delegation, meanwhile, joined Billy Carter in trying to break the ban on military transport shipments to Libya. But there is no reason to believe that any of them accepted a bribe.

Everyone inplicated in this strange tangle of events has denied any wrongdoing.

NICK THIMMESCH

The meaning of the visit of Pope John Paul to America

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON — This city, belonging to everybody and nobody, was good to Pope John Paul II, but didn't turn out the superlative numbers as other cities did where ethnic and religious pride flourish.

Still, this rugged Pope made an enormous impression here, as he did elsewhere, for he is whole as a man and whole as the enunciator of the Catholic faith. Thus he gets the love and respect of virtually all people, as few humans rarely do these days.

Wise people admire him because they recognize him as an authentic leader at a time when leadership is a most difficult occupation. Pope John Paul II did not stint on expressing his strong personality or strong doctrine. His week in our democratic nation, where he exercised freedom of speech, stimulated people to think and debate the issues he addressed so straightforwardly. This is good.

He is a strong, warm person. He excites and commands attention because he has suffered Nazism, communism and materialistic secularism, and shows love instead of bitterness. His narrow eyes pierce, and his courage insists that he indict the selfishness, cruelty and destruction in the world, whether it be economic, political or the assault on the sacredness of human life.

He genuinely loves children, he is natural and loving with the handicapped. He was neither domineering nor deferential. He is at once human and majestic. Unlike many men of the cloth, he does not impose guilt, he challenges people to actions based on their highest instincts — put aside the arms race, give help and food to the poor, extend democracy, protect human life in all forms.

If capitalism, dictatorships or amoral medical or social practice stand in the way, this Pope urges people to overcome these barriers. Pope John Paul II is an ecclestiastical John Wayne riding fearlessly across the world. He wants to visit the Soviet Union in 1980.

Those who wished he wouldn't raise controversial issues should have known better. The very integrity that makes him so admired also requires him to express Catholic doctrine on birth control, clerical celibacy, divorce, abortion, homosexuality, the state of women and the family. He did not condemn those who differ with the Catholic Church's teachings on these questions. But he makes everybody think about them.

Birth control is still a debatable question, even inside the Church. Abortion is not. On other questions, he is insisting on traditional standards, knowing full well that we are all humanly capable of not always living up to them. He lifts heads, makes people realize that living according to Judeo-Christian teaching can be painful. He did not offer pap.

The Nazis and Communists who persecuted him were cruel and powerful. Secular-materialism is also cruel, in its way, and almost the most powerful force in Western civilization today. It drives humans into frenzied quests for consumer goods. Its distractions and sophistries destroy family life and alienate people from each other to the point that everybody is lonely though not admitting it.

It has made an enormously successful contemporary like Norman Lear into the prime-time Pope of television who produces electronic encyclicals diametrically opposed to what the Pope enunciates as humanism.

Secular-materialism is powerful enough to make a Sen. Edward Kennedy, whom most Catholics adulate, consistently vote pro-abortion, and cause the greater aberration of a Catholic priest congressman, the Rev. Robert Drinan of the Society of Jesus, to do the same. It is not easy to be Catholic.

Enough. The good here is that American democracy, nurtured by its Protestant roots, made it possible for John Paul II to speak to millions of Americans. His impact was so great as to cause debate, but what good are ideas unless they can be suggested and debated?

Surely, there can be ecclesiastical debate over whether the purpose of the sex act can be for man and wife to express love as well as to procreate. Surely, there is precedent in the Church for a married clergy. And Rome's wise men can be reminded that St. Paul once said, "In Christ, there is neither male nor female."

Since John Paul II shows a huge heart, there must be room in Catholic thinking for compassion for people who have gone through tragic separations or divorces after their marriages failed.

In the political realm, the Vatican's nonrecognition of Israel can be questioned. Cannot the reality of this small nation be kept separate in the Vatican's historical and cultural thinking from the designation of Jerusalem and environs as the Holy Land?

It was good that John Paul II toured our country as he did, entered the White House and talked straight from the shoulder. We are not a Catholic nation, but we are now grown up enough to receive a Pope, hear him out and weigh and measure our values against his statements. We are richer for having been exposed to this remarkable human being.

IT HAPPENED HERE

30 YEARS AGO (Oct. 12, 1949):

Mrs. L.W. Leggett is chairman of the flower show judging school which the Midland Garden Club will sponsor Tuesday and Wednesday. Mrs. M.C. Ulmer and Mrs. Frank Stubbeman are the official hostesses. Mrs. A.P. Shirey is in charge of ticket sales.

Mark Russell says

In case you are wondering what happened to the people who erroneously declassified the secret of the hydrogen bomb, one of them is the person who told President Carter that those Puerto Ricans released last month were completely rehabilitated and would most likely go home and weave baskets.

Another one is now an agent for the government of Libya. He recently informed his client that once Billy Carter sobered up, he would lose interest in working for them.

Another former atomic declassifier does publicity for the Kansas City Royals — having just advised the team's management that after three Western Division championships, manager Whitey Herzog had to go.

Another is a consultant to state and local governments. He just sent them his opinion that even though there seems to be plenty of gas people would continue to observe the odd-even plan on a voluntary basis.

Washington Center YMCA reopens doors

After being closed for several days recently, the Washington Center YMCA at 1600 E. Wall St., has reopened its doors.

The closure became necessary following the resignation and departure of Earl Townsend, executive director of the center, which left no one to direct the center, spokesmen for the "Y" organization in Midland said.

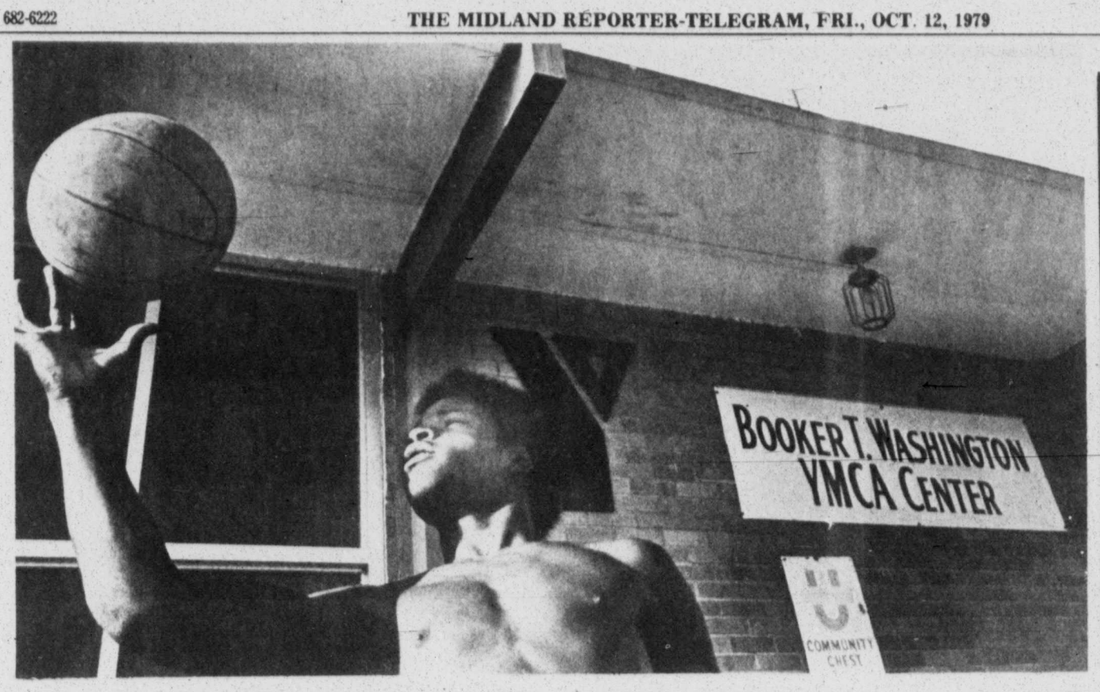

The center also had lost several staff members.

The Washington Y now is open each weekday afternoon and early evening. Hours are approximately 4 to 8 p.m., with Don Clay in charge of the program of activities.

Clay is a former executive director of the Washington Center Y.

During the several days the center was closed, most of its structured program of activities was handled by the Park Center Y, spokesmen said.

The Washington Center facility has been a part of the Midland YMCA organization since January, 1976. Before that, it was the Washington Youth Center facility.

With the Washington YMCA reopened, southside youngsters such as Jimmy Reed, 15, will once again have a neighborhood activity center. (Staff Photo by Bruce Partain)

Chinese students declare victory over occupation

PEKING (AP) — People's University students declared victory today in their three-day battle to get the army to end its seven-year occupation of their campus.

The students, who have boycotted classes since Wednesday, said the army agreed to return one dining hall and an 800-seat auditorium immediately. They said they were hopeful the estimated 1,000 troops who occupied the university seven years ago during the Cultural Revolution would be gone by April.

"Our actions are fruitful and we want to thank the State Council for help, said student spokeswoman Liu Yaw Wen, a second year English language major. She said students would return to classes on Monday.

The troops agreed to move to a Peking suburb after a meeting of army officials, student protesters and representives of the State Council, including at least one unidentified vice premier, Liu said.

Students had complained that the army occupation deprived them of dormitories, forcing some to commute as many as four hours a day to get to classes. They also said the army had taken over all the dining halls, leaving students to eat in the open or in makeshift shelters.

On Wednesday, about 2,000 students and teachers began their protest by marching into Peking from the campus on the outskirts of the city and sitting-in for about two hours at the central government headquarters.

Students also flew banners on the campus to call attention to their protest.

"We have no power, we have no backing, but we have the truth. We do not have guided missiles or rockets but we have courage.

Cafe reminder of days before the crackdown

PEKING (AP) — The liveliest nightspot in town is a shabby cafe where hundreds of young Chinese smoke expensive cigarettes, eat hot dogs and ice cream sundaes, guzzle beer and champagne and let off steam.

A Chinese girl, her hair curled by a permanent, her lips blushing with a hint of lipstick, boldly smokes a cigarette and warms to the admiration of a lonely African.

A 35-year-old philosophy student eagerly asks Westerners about Hegel and Kant and such films as "The Sound of Music" and the vintage "Wadebloo Bridge."

A 24-year-old student with a brash lost-generation air downs tumbler after tumbler of a potion of beer and Chinese champagne. He boasts his father will buy him anything he wants. He wants a tape recorder — at any price.

Cafes like this existed in China before Communist Party radicals cracked down on fun and frolic 14 years ago. After years of austerity, this down-at-the-heels rendezvous is something of an experiment, officially condoned for the present.

The brightly lit cafe, with no real name but known as the Peace Hotel Cafe because it adjoins the hostelry, has been open since Jan. 1. More like a soda fountain than a bar, it is a meeting ground for Chinese and foreigners.

The sometimes raucous room is filled with students, laborers, professionals, the unemployed and bored-looking youth returned from the countryside.

Weighty discussions are scarce; this is a decompression chamber for fun-seekers, not dissenters.

From 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. every day, under the gaze of dour plainclothes police, young people park their bicycles in an alley and enter the narrow dingy room, where plastic flowers adorn the tables and Strauss waltzes fill the air.

They order and compulsively devour an avalanche of food: hot dogs, ice cream sundaes with chocolate sauce, potato salad, pastries, pickles, sausage, milkshakes, mooncakes and beer, always beer.

"My parents give me the money for this," said one young person who did not want to be identified. Others said the same.

On a good day, one worker said, the little cafe does about 3,000 yuan in business — about $1,250. It sells about 1,000 bottles of beer and 500 of champagne on such a day.

Waitresses referred other queries to their supervisor, who referred them to the manager, who referred them to the information department of the foreign ministry.

Each morning, the early crowd sits killing time, waiting for the government to assign them work. A 14-year-old student pulls on his cigarette, slops ice cream into his orange soda and says he wants to practice his English and get a good job.

At night the cafe is jammed. People stream in and out, moving from table to table, toasting each other, shouting and laughing.

The harried and visibly vexed waitresses are treated rudely, but they hold their tongues in front of these young high rollers with high connections.

A few girls come with Chinese friends. Most are smartly dressed in matching panos and jacket, embroidered sweaters, dimestore pins and even fake pearls. They are boldly admired, or frankly ogled, by African and Arab students, to the clear dismay of Chinese men. Sometimes there are fights.

Lawmakers to resign en mass as a protest

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The opposition New Democratic Party decided to have its lawmakers resign en masse Saturday to protest the expulsion of its leader, Kim Young-sam, from the National Assembly.

Party sources said the mass resignation is intended to force a new parliamentary election, but many political observers believe the government party is unlikely to accept the resignations if tendered.

The Assembly expelled Kim Oct. 4 on charges of anti-state remarks and activity in connection with his recent political offensives against President Park Chung-hee.

With Kim's ouster, the party now has 66 seats in the 231-member assembly. The splinter opposition Democratic Unification Party with three seats has already decided to resign.

WORLD NEWS

Soviet dissidents fear crackdown

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet secret police searched the Moscow apartments of three dissidents raising fears here of new government crackdown against human rights activists, dissident leader Andrei D. Sakharov said today.

Sakharov told Western correspondents that agents of the KGB secret police spent 12 hours Thursday searching the home of Tatyana Osipova and her husband Ivan Kovalev, son of imprisoned biologist Sergei Kovalev. Osipova is a member of a group monitoring Soviet compliance with the East-West Helsinki human rights agreement, he said.

At the same time, a second team of agents combed the apartment of human rights activist Tatyana Velikkanova, he added.

"We are all very concerned," Sakharov said. "We fear it's the beginning of something very unpleasant."

During the search of the Osipova-Kovalev apartment, agents confiscated Helsinki group documents, 15 copies of the latest issue of the underground "Chronicle of Current Events," along with two typewriters and two tape recorders, Sakharov said.

They also seized a variety of other items including about $600, some 40 cans of meat, four pairs of gloves, three coats and several sets of long underwear, he said.

The couple apparently had been preparing to send the clothing and canned meat to Sergei Kovalev, who sentenced in December 1975 to seven years' imprisonment and three years in exile for anti-Soviet activity.

Turkish ambassador's son killed

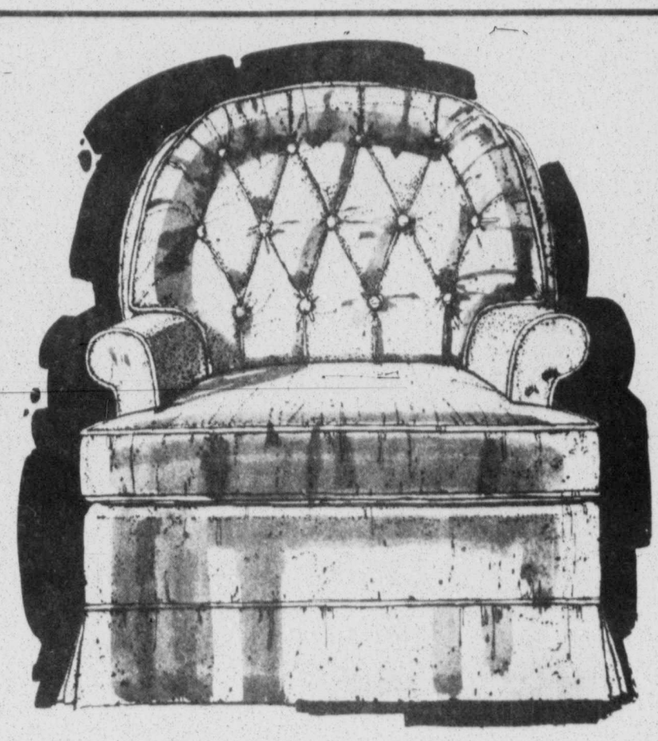

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — A gunman presumed to be an Armenian terrorist shot and killed the 28-year-old son of the Turkish ambassador to the Netherlands today on a street in the center of The Hague.

A Turkish Embassy spokesman identified the victim as Achmed Benler, the son of ambassador Ozdemir Benler. He was a student at a technical university in Delft, southeast of The Hague, the spokesman said

Forces capture armed gunman

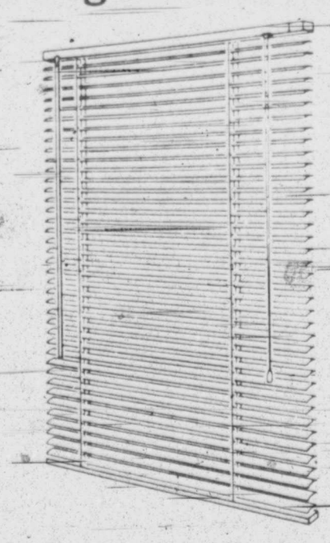

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Security forces stormed a farmhouse and overpowered a gunman identified as an ex-GI who shot and killed a policeman and wounded another outside a farmhouse in western Australia today.

Fifteen policemen burst into the house 222 miles southwest of Perth after a three-hour siege and grabbed Donald Edward Parre, 37. They said he was hospitalized with gunshot wounds, but did not say how they were sustained.

Marathon activities scheduled

A run-walk-bike-thon sponsored by the American Cancer Society will begin at 8:30 a.m. Saturday in Cubs Stadium at Hogan Park.

The event is open to people of all ages, according to marathon runner Norm Smith, chairman.

There will be one-, three-, six- and 10-mile races after the other regular events for those who prefer races, Smith said.

Entry forms are available at the American Cancer Society office, 601 S. Main St., the Central and Alamo YMCAs and all schools.

Participants must have sponsors to pledge a certain amount of money for each mile the persons walks, runs or bikes. These forms will be turned in Saturday.

A grand prize will be awarded to the person raising the most pledges overall, said Smith. The prize is a $50 gift certificate from Taylor Sporting Goods.

Plaques will go to those who place first, second and third in the amount of pledges in each division of the event.

And there will be a special prize for the oldest and the youngest participants, said Smith.

Good ol' Tower not THAT old

DALLAS (AP) — Sen. John Tower, in the tradition of Texas politics, might consider himself a good ol' boy, but he'd like the Social Security Administration to know that he's not THAT old, thank you.

Tower wrote the Social Security Administration in Baltimore, Md., about a problem a Fort Worth, Texas, man was having with his disability benefits.

Somehow, Tower's name was punched into a computer as both the letter-writer and the social security recipient.

A letter from Baltimore followed, addressed to Tower. It said:

"This refers to your inquiry of recent date on behalf of Mr. John G. Tower, 4528 Odessa Avenue, Fort Worth, Texas.

"We are giving your letter our attention and will be in touch with you again as soon as possible."

The letter was signed by Stanford G. Ross, commissionr of social security, or perhaps by a machine adept at duplicating Ross' signature.

Tower's office pointed out that the Republican from Texas just turned 54, and is neither retired nor disabled.

Not so 'great' to Denver girls?

DENVER (AP) — The "Greatest Show on Earth" still may have an allure for some would-be circus performers, but apparently that's not the case in Denver.

Officials of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, which is performing in Denver this week, had announced they would hold auditions Wendesday for young women interested in becoming showgirls.

But no one showed up.

Last year, at similar auditions in Denver, 19 women tried out for the opportunity to ride elephants, hang by the ankles from swinging ropes and wear skimpy costumes. One of the 19 was hired.

But this year, the non-response had circus performance director Tim Holst shaking his head.

"Could it be there are no pretty girls in Denver interested in joining the "Greatest Show on Earth?" he asked. "I just can't understand it."

Holst said the auditions, conducted in each major city along the circus tour, are advertised beforehand and often attract up to 50 young women.

Rotarians hear about minister's summer of European travel

Reflections of a summer of travel and study spent in Europe, England and Scotland were related by Dr. Robert Boynton Smith in addressing the Midland Rotary Club at its Thursday noon meeting in the Midland Hilton.

Dr. Smith, minister of Midland's First Presbyterian Church, was inroduced by Ted Kerr, program chairman for October.

Mrs. Smith and their two sons accompanied the minister on his travels.

"We traveled across Europe, following the backroads and visiting in the villages where the people live, bypassing the regularly traveled tourist routes," Smith said, adding that it was a rich experience in travel, study and learning.

"It gave us a chance to look at the world in which we live," he said.

Returning to Midland and reflecting on the observations gained in their travels, the speaker said there are many other countries and peoples who are proud of their cultures, traditions and lifestyles.

He observed, however, that the world of the West "is suffering the worst case of the flu imaginable. It is wracked with a fever. It is deteriorating rapidly. A brokenness is evident in its cultures. There is moral decay.

"All countries have concerns, pressures and problems, although some are well hidden. Ireland is the biggest sore in the world. Frustration, ineptness, defeat, helplessness and despair are widespread."

He noted that in the European countries visited, there is a vast difference between being free and not being free.

Smith said that in the eyes of peoples of other countries, the United States is a counry distrustful of one another ... in government, business, labor and the masses. There is an omission of respect and trust, he added.

The speaker said that in Europe there is an acute awareness of America's consumption of energy and food, of racial strife, poverty and alcohol and drugs.

He said that "we as citizens of America" need to become alert and responsive to the multiple problems which exist in Midland, in Texas, in the Southwest and across the nation. He said that such action could have a tremendous impact for good worldwide.

Connally may raise Chappaquiddick issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican presidential candidate John B. Connally, noting he had received much news media scrutiny in the milk fund scandal, says he expects journalists to be similarly thorough in examining Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's role in Chappaquiddick.

If they aren't, he said, he may raise the issue himself.

Connally, who was acquitted by a federal jury on charges of taking a bribe to influence milk price supports, told the Washington Press Club on Thursday:

"For nine months, you all (the press) have talked about the milk fund trial and that's fine with me. And I assume that for the next nine you're going to talk about Chappaquiddick in the press.

"I assume you're going to treat it fully and fairly and completely and exhaustively," he continued. "Now if you don't, I'm going to take another look at it. I may talk about it ... if you don't."

Connally was asked about a Baltimore Sun story that quoted him as saying of his trial and acquittal: "I was tried and found not guilty. I never drowned anybody. I wasn't kicked out of college for cheating."

Connally replied: "Those are true facts, but I don't recall saying that; the quote isn't familar to me."

However, Connally told Associated Press Radio in an interview several days before publication of the Sun story:

"The jury acquitted me right here in the District of Columbia. You know, what else can I say? Do you equate that with Chappaquiddick?

Tritium firm owes $2 million

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The American Atomics Corp., accused of emitting excessive amounts of radioactive tritium gas, owes slightly more than $2 million to its 10 largest creditors, according to documents filed in federal bankruptcy court.

The documents filed Thursday did not include a list of total indebtedness and assets. Bankruptcy Judge William Scanland has agreed to let the company continue to operate the business under court control.

American Atomics filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of federal bankruptcy laws a week ago. It contended the action was spawned by orders from Gov. Bruce Babbitt to have the state seize about $500,000 worth of tritium and truck it to an Army storage bunker in Flagstaff, 270 miles away.

In March, the company was accused by the Arizona Atomic Energy Commission of allowing excessive leaks of tritium, used in the making of tiny tubes that light digital watches. Higher than normal levels of tritium were found in a nearby school kitchen in June, and the facility, which prepared daily meals for 40,000 students, remains closed.

When Babbitt ordered the seizure, he said the company was moving too slowly towards the decommissioning of its plant. It agreed to close its tritium operations and surrender its license to handle tritium during state hearings in July.

Babbitt also cited the possibility of lethal releases of radiation in case of fire or explosion at the plant, located two miles from downtown Tucson in a semi-residential area.

Meanwhile, the AEC voted to give the company a one-month extension of the Oct. 19 decommissioning deadline. About 100,000 curies of tritium remain in the plant, much of it trapped in machinery.

Carol Burnett

Valerie Giscard d'Estaing

Names in the news

PARIS (AP) — "If you're not here, you're no one," a critic from the Louvre Museum commented at an invitation-only opening of a government-sponsored exhibition of some 800 works by the late Pabl Picasso.

French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing formally opened the exhibition Thursday. Most of the works were taken by the government to settle Picasso's inheritance taxes.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur Hartman and his wife Donna, both avid art buffs, were there. American pop art painter Jasper Johns, incognito, studied canvasses and muttered "beautiful" and "wonderful."

Less shy was France's premier abstract poster painter, George Mathieu, delighting television crews with his flowing moustache and showmanship reminiscent of his surrealist colleague and friend Salvador Dali. Proclaimed Mathieu: "Staggering."

•

WASHINGTON (AP) — Comedienne Carol Burnett says reading is fun, and to prove it she imitated her favorite childhood literary figure with a piercing scream of Tarzan's jungle cry — in the East Room of the White House.

"You see what you can get out of reading," she told children Thursday at a White House ceremony. "It's terrific."

Her performance, which brought laughter from the children, was part of a promotion of "Reading is Fun Day," a nationwide event to promote reading among youngsters by giving them free books.

The hostess was President Carter's daughter Amy.

After speeches by first lady Rosalynn Carter, NBC News anchorman John Chancellor and others, the 200 or so children who were the guests were invited to the State Dining Room for cookies, then out to the South Lawn for balloons and, of course, a free book.

•

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — New England over the past 15 years has supported United Farm Workers boycotts more consistently than any other region, says UFW president Cesar Chavez, seeking support for a boycott of iceberg lettuce sold under the Red Coach brand.

He says he doesn't know whether New Englanders are motivated by tradition or political liberalism, but says he has found "New Englanders are always ready to respond to human needs."

Florida caucuses: Much ado about nothing

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Saturday's county caucuses of Florida Democrats have turned into a pressure-cooker of presidential politics, even though the only thing at stake is delegates to a state convention.

"It's like the movie Superman," says Democratic National Committeeman Sergio Bendixen, head of the Florida movement to draft Senator Edward Kennedy. "Everybody knew it was superficial and meaningless, but they went anyway."

President Carter's supporters and insurgent Democrats backing Kennedy's undeclared candidacy today wind up statewide campaigns with all the earmarks of powerhouse electioneering.

The Carter administration sent speakers to stump the state, made astute use of patronage powers and wooed potential delegates intently. Federal grants to local governments blossomed, and one even went to a man who asked Carter for help in designing a solar home.

One woman joined the Carter camp after she said she got about 35 phone calls. The callers, she said, ranged from Carter Press Secretary Jody Powell and former United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young to local officials who back Carter.

The caucuses, held in each of Florida's 67 counties, will select 879 of the 1,717 delegates to the Democratic state convention scheduled Nov. 18 in St. Petersburg. The onvention agenda includes a nonbinding but psyhologically important presidential straw vote.

Overall, about 50,000 Democrats are expected to gather around the state Saturday. The delegates they elect will join 838 others appointed by party leaders and elected officials.

Neither the caucuses nor the straw ballot directly affects selection of state delegates to the 1980 Democratic National Convention. They will be chosen in the state's March 11 presidential primary.

But both sides have approached the caucuses as the first test of the 1980 political season, giving the struggle the look of a presidential campaign.

"It is certainly a test of support and intensity of support, and a test of organizational ability," White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan said in Washington on Thursday.

Some examples:

— Carter staged a "town meeting" in August in Tampa, focus of the pivotal central Florida contest. He sent first lady Rosalynn Carter and top aides on numerous Florida trips. Mideast envoy Robert Strauss, wearing a yarmulke, tried to cut into Kennedy's strength in heavily Jewish southern Florida. Carter's mother, Lillian Carter, will campaign in Tampa on Saturday.

— Using his appointment powers, Carter named former Gov. Reubin Askew as his special trade representative, a move that would give ambassadorial status to the popular former chief executive. The president also focused attention on Florida's 400,000 black Democrats: Two blacks were named to federal judgeships, state Rep. Carrie Meeks of Miami was part of the official U.S. party to Lord Mountbatten's funeral in England and former Miami City Commissioner Athalie Range was named to the Amtrak board.

— The White House has increased federal aid to Florida, awarding $31 million for housing units for the elderly across the state and $20 million for public housing projects in Miami, plus a loan guarantee for an electric cooperative in Palatka.

— During the Tampa town meeting, John Craig complained to the president that his effort to develop a solar house wasn't getting enough support from the government. Craig was later invited to the White House to meet with Carter. On Thursday, he said he'd been told he will receive a $10,000 Department of Energy grant.

The Kennedy campaign does not have similar resources, but has had help from out-of-state Kennedy supporters. More than half the $190,000 the Kennedy group has raised has come from outside Florida.

Draft Kennedy leaders acknowledge they are the underdog. They announced Thursday that they had secured delegate candidates for 843 of the 879 to be chosen Saturday, but an Associated Press spot check of 40 of those listed showed four uncommitted and one supporting Carter.

Suit fails to delay caucuses

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Florida's Democratic caucuses will go on as scheduled Saturday, despite a Hebrew teacher who says they fall on the Jewish Sabbath.

David Kaufman had filed a federal court suit seeking to delay the caucuses, claiming they violate constitutional guarantees of religious freedom.

But the petition was denied Thursday by U.S. District Judge George Young, who said the caucuses are non-binding and not funded by state, local or federal goverments.

"I think any exercise of participation in government is important," Kaufman, a teacher at Temple Israel in Orlando, said after the ruling. "I think proviions should be made" fr Jews not willing to vote Saturday.

He wanted the caucuses rescheduled or open to absentee ballots because Saturday is also is the final day of Sukkot, a remembrance of the Biblical Jews' 40 years of wandering during the exodus.

Young downplayed the importance of the caucuses, saying hheir effects are more of a "public and psychological reaction."

Rabbi Chaim Rozwaski of Temple Israel argued it would be "impossible" for Orthodox Jews to vote Saturday because Jewish law prohibits work, writing, driving and other activities on the holiday.

"There is no constitutional issue here," said Terry Hadley, attorney for several state party officials, in closing arguments. "It is political. The Democratic Party excludes no one knowingly."

Alfredo Duran, chairman of the party, said a delay would cause "tremendous harm" while executive director George Farmer called it "a nightmare." Farmer estimated $1 million had been spent on the caucuses, in which President Carter and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., are competing for delegates to the state convention next month.

Kaufman's attorney, Jerome Bornstein, said he had "no present or immediate intention of appealing" because there wasn't enough time.

On Saturday, Florida Democrats will elect 879 delegates, with no presidential affiliations, to attend the party's state convention Nov. 16-18. At the convention, they and 838 other delegates picked by party leaders and ejected officials will vote in a nonbinding straw poll on presidential hopefuls.

The poll has no actual significance, since Florida's delegates to the Democratic National Convention will be chosen in a primary next March 11. But it is expected to have some psychological effect.

'Non-political' tour nets political gains for President Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's latest cross-country "non-political" tour seemed to net him political gains with two important groups — Western governors and representatives of unionized construction workers.

Carter ended his two-day journey Thursday with a brief stop in San Diego where he got a rousing reception at the annual convention of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department.

The president, who has stepped up his travels in advance of formally announcing his candidacy for re-election, said earlier Thursday in Albuquerque, N.M., that a two-hour meeting with eight Western governors Wednesday night was a success.

At a reception attended mainly by New Mexico Democrats, Carter said that at the end of the session "differences among us were almost non-existent" — a sentiment that mirrored the governors' own public assessments of the meeting.

The politically uncommitted AFL-CIO group — made up of 16 craft unions representing nearly 4.5 million members — repeatedly interrupted Carter's remarks with applause and at one time gave him a mid-speech standing ovation.

Fragile compromise may end paycheck impasse

WASHINGTON (AP) — House-Senate negotiators today pieced together a fragile compromise that could end an impasse that already has put 1.3 million federal workers on half-pay and threatens the paychecks of 2 million others.

The agreement calls for the Senate to accept the House-passed pay raise, a proposal that would add $3,200 a year to current congressional salaries of $57,500.

It also calls for both the House and Senate to accept a modification in existing language limiting federal funding for abortions.

Both House and Senate negotiators expressed hope that their respective chambers would accept the bill. But they announced they would reconvene to consider a stop-gap measure if either chamber rejects the proposal.

That fallback measure would make no mention of federal funding yor abortion or of the pay raise. It simply would provide continuing funds for the operation of the government through Nov. 1.

Agreement on the compromise came after less than 30 minutes of open debate. Leaders from both sides earlier huddled in a private chamber to discuss the situation.

And, in a reference to Thursday's action in which a compromise appeared to be reached only to fall apart at the last minute, Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., closed the conference by saying: "Before we change our mind, we'll recess."

If no compromise is reached by Saturday, 116,000 workers from the departments of Agriculture and Housing and Urban Development will get short pay next week.

If the impasse continues until Monday, the Pentagon estimates that 2 million military personnel will get no paychecks at all next week.

And if there is no agreement by Tuesday, some 198,000 Veterans Administration employees, due to be paid that day, could also be affected.

The impasse is holding up passage of an emergency money bill needed to pay for the operation of seven Cabinet departments and various smaller agencies. The agencies have been getting by on money left over from the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30 but have no authority to pay for work done after that date.

UAW expected to give, not take

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union resumes bargaining at Chrysler Corp. on Monday, and it could be the toughest in years. Instead of taking, the UAW will be giving.

It's been clear since the formal opening of talks in July that Chrysler, the nation's No. 3 carmaker, would get concessions because of its shaky finances, though the union has not said so flatly.

UAW President Douglas A. Fraser has said several times the union would "live up to its responsibilities."

That does not mean a two-year wage freeze, as the company suggested in an opening bargaining proposal personally delivered by Chrysler Chairman Lee A. Iacocca. Iacocca, who is expected to get into the talks in person again, has been meeting privately with Fraser.

Fraser said in delivering the rejection that economic issues at Chrysler could not be negotiated until after agreements were reached with General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. — settlements now completely in hand, except for ratification by Ford workers.

The two settlements are similar. Though GM has not given a figure, there have been published estimates that the agreement will boost GM's labor costs by 33 percent over three years, if inflation runs at 8 percent per year.

Chrysler workers average $9 an hour, compared with $9.05 at GM and $9.03 at Ford.

"Imagine," said a union official after the Ford settlement, "having to negotiate our own takeaways."

But the reverse bargaining is not new. American Motors Corp., was given an easier contract years ago when it was having trouble and now is back in rough parity with the Big Three companies.

The negotations will be closely watched in Washington. Teasury Secretary G. William Miller has made clear that any rescue plan for Chrysler will have to involve sacrifices by everybody concerned with Chrysler — workers, banks and suppliers.

Chrysler, the world's 14th largest industrial corporation, lost a record $207.1 million in the second quarter of this year and asked the government for a $1 billion tax credit. Miller turned down the tax credit, but said the Carter administration would consider loan guarantees of $500 million to $750 million. The Senate Banking Committee is holding hearings in Washington on what kind of government assistance, if any, should be given to Chrysler.

Some Chrysler workers already are sacrificing — the approximately 28,000 on indefinite layoff, about a quarter of the production work force.

One option to watch for is the possibility of deferred wage increases. Iacocca is working at a $1-a-year salary for two years, with the possibility of earning it back if Chrysler' stock is selling in August 1981 where it was in August this year. If the stock goes up, the chairman earns more.

Some 1,700 executives were handed pay cuts of 2 percent to 10 percent under the same earn-back scheme.

Fraser said at the time such a scheme was worth looking in to.

Another wrinkle is the possiblity of direct UAW aid. Some observers have wondered why Chrysler's $885 million pension fund for 50,000 retired UAW members could not be used to bail out the company. Fraser has said he thinks the trustees — a group of banks — would not go along, because of the great risks, without explicit government approval.

Court upholds steelworkers union

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Steelworkers union leaders say they are ready to negotiate a contract with Newport News Shipbuilding following a federal court decision upholding the union's right to represent 17,500 blue collar workers at the world's largest private shipyard.

The unanimous decision Thursday by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond affirmed the National Labor Relations Board certification of the United Steelworkers of America as bargaining agent for production and maintenance workers at the Newport News, Va., yard.

Shipyard spokesman James Griffith would not say whether the company will begin negotiations with the Steelworkers, declining comment on the ruling until company officials have seen the decision.

Jack Howar, USWA sub-district director, said Thursday night the union "will be calling a membership meeting, probably next week," to discuss the court decision, and added he hoped soon to be "sitting down at the bargaining table to negotiate a contract."

Asked if he thought the shipyard would honor its promise not to carry its case to the Supreme Court, Howar said, "Well, that's what they said. It's now just a matter of waiting and finding out. It is hoped they will abide by it and sit down and bargain and reach an agreement by which both parties can live."

The company had challenged the January 1978 union election in which the Steelworkers ousted the independent Peninsula Shipbuilders Association, which had represented yard workers since the 1930s.

The shipyard contended there was widespread voting fraud and asked the appeals court earlier this year to overturn the election. The court instead ordered the NLRB, which had supervised the election, to conduct hearings on the allegations.

The Steelworkers, weary of being rebuffed, struck the yard that builds many of the Navy's nuclear ships on Jan. 31, 1979, but called off the strike April 23 with no resolution of the controversy.

An NLRB administrative law judge conducted hearings in March and April and cleared the union of vote fraud. The NLRB again affirmed its certification of the Steelworkers, and the company, which had indicated it would abide by the decision, appealed again.

In its opinion, the three-judge panel said, "Overall, we think that the board's order directing the company to bargain is supported by substantial evidence and it and the proceedings leading to its adoption were without legal error."

Chief Judge Clement Haynsworth added "the fact that there were more voters than ballots cast, the fact that only two voters testified they were given more than one ballot, and of those only one cast two ballots, convinces me there was no possibility that ballot boxes were stuffed."

Carter blasts TV coverage of Pope's visit

SAN DIEGO (AP) — President Carter has taken a verbal swipe at television coverage of Pope John Paul's visit to the United States last week.

Speaking before the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department convention Thursday, Carter said commentary after the Pope's arrival speech in Boston blemished "a beautiful and significant moment."

He did not identify the network.

"It was a rare moment in our lives, an emotional moment. A moment for history. But immediately a TV commentator turned to his colleague and said 'It was a gracious speech, gentlemen, but there was nothing new in it. Did you think so?

Reluctance to approve SALT pact endangering Carter's new drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate reluctance to approve the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty is endangering President Carter's drive for new and more powerful U.S. nuclear weapons in Europe.

The State Department re-emphasized the administration's stand Thursday: Nearly 600 Pershing II and ground-to-ground cruise missiles, capable of hitting the Soviet Union from Western Europe, need to be installed to counter the Soviets' new SS-20, which can hit any target on the European continent or in Britain.

But several European leaders are on record as saying they want SALT II ratified before they accept the new missiles on their soil.

Much of the difficulty in the Senate is over a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba, and the desire of some senators for more U.S. spending on defense.

In Europe, where there is little concern about Cuba, support for SALT is partially related to Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev's speech last Saturday in East Berlin.

He offered to remove some Soviet missiles if Western allies would promise not to put in any new ones of their own. And he sweetened the offer with an announcement that he was withdrawing 20,000 troops and 1,000 tanks from Central Europe.

U.S. officials from Carter on down are reacting coolly to Brezhnev's remarks, but the Soviet offer looks attractive to many Europeans.

Such leaders as West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and Belgian Foreign Minister Henri Simonet have to worry about left-wing groups inside their own parties who are strong for SALT and strong against both nuclear weapons and any increased military spending.

Carter noted the situation Tuesday at his news conference:

"I might point out that Chancellor Schmidt said, I believe yesterday or day before, that a prerequisite to a decision by our NATO allies to take these steps which he considers to be so vital for the security of NATO is the passage of SALT II."

Simonet, who was visiting Washington, told The Associated Press shortly afterward:

"I personally will not accept the idea of a NATO decision in December if there is no guarantee that SALT is to be ratified."

In the Netherlands, Prime Minister Andreas van Agt said his government "would not bind itself unconditionally" to the decision on the missiles as long as there is no decision on SALT.

Any of these three governments could block a decision on the new missiles at the Brussels, Belgium, meeting of NATO in mid-December, which Defense Secretary Harold Brown and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance are scheduled to attend.

Maj. Gen. Robert Close, who heads the Belgian government's Commission on Defense Problems, suggested in a speech in Washington Wednesday that it was the influence of the European anti-nuclear groups now pushing SALT that led to indefinite postponement of the neutron warhead. That weapon was once part of the modernization program planned for U.S. nuclear forces in Europe.

Britain striving to rescue talks

LONDON (AP) — Britain and Patriotic Front guerrillas, deadlocked in talks to end seven years of war in Zimbabwe Rhodesia, were seeking support today from front-line African states supporting insurgents in the rebel British colony.

Britain on Thursday rejected demands by black nationalist guerrillas Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe to incorporate their forces into the army of Zimbabwe Rhodesia, but sought to stave off collapse of the five-week old talks by giving the rebels additional time to consider a draft constitution.

The third party to the talks, the biracial government of Zimbabwe Rhodesia Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa, has accepted the British draft. Muzorewa hopes Britain will be pressured into recognizing his government and ending economic sanctions against his coalition which took office in April.

Mugabe and Nkomo conferred late Thursday with envoys from Zambia, Tanzania and Botswana. They did not respond to repeated British demands for a definite answer on the constitution.

Britain is relying heavily on the three black front-line states to squeeze more concessions from the Patriotic Front.

Some of the front-liners, especially Zambia, face economic ruin because of the conflict and are eager for a settlement. Zambia hosts Nkomo's guerrilla forces and Marxist Mozambique, a former Portugese colony not part of the commonwealth, provides bases for Mugabe's guerrillas.

Nkomo and Mugabe gave no indication they were under pressure from the front-line states Thursday. Except for a minor concession, they stuck to their principal objections to the draft constitution Britain calls the only realistic hope for compromise.

During a meeting between the three conference participants, the rebels backed off their objections to provisions that would guarantee citizenship to members of the white minority. But they would not ease demands on compensation for nationalized white-owned land, pension guarantees and appointment of senior officials and army commanders under a new black government.

Dollar climbs to the highest point in year against yen

By The Associated Press

The U.S. dollar climbed to its highest point of the year against the Japanese yen today as interest rates continued to rise sharply. Stock prices opened higher as activity on Wall Street continued to calm after a wild slide early in the week.

The dollar rose in Tokyo to 226.85 yen, up from 225.90 the day before, and it also strengthened against other major currencies. The Japanese economy is being buffeted by a wave of inflation brought on in part by higher oil prices.

The U.S. Treasury Department on Thursday sold long-term bonds with a yield of more than 10 percent for the first time ever. The bonds, which mature in 15 years and one month, brought an average yield of 10.17 percent.

The higher interest rates and stronger dollar stem directly from the Federal Reserve Board's decision last weekend to tighten credit, an action that sent the stock market into a deep decline.

Stock prices were up today after showing signs of stabilizing on Thursday, when the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks slipped 4.70 to 844.62, bringing the week's loss to 52.99 points. Advancing issues led decliners on the New York Stock Exchange.

The price of gold, which has been gyrating wildly in recent weeks, dropped below $390 an ounce in London and Zurich today.

In Hot Springs, W.Va., the Business Council, a prestigious group of corporate executives, released their annual forecast of the economy, predicting the recession will see a decline in economic outlook of about 2 percent by March 1980. That would make the recession about half as bad as the 1974-75 downturn.

Picasso retrospective called the 'art event of decade'

PARIS (AP) — The French government, staging what some critics say is the art event of the decade, have opened a sweeping Pablo Picasso retrospective, unveiling several unknown masterpieces from the private collection of the late artistic genius.

"Enough masterpieces for six great painters," said one critic.

"A one man artistic revolution," said another.

"Stunning" and "overwhelming" were other superlatives used at opening cermonies led by French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing on Thursday.

Picasso dominated Western art in the 20th century until his death in 1973 at age 91. The Spanish-born artist lived in self-exile in France, carefully saving his unsold works. The French government took possessimn that collection to settle the otherwise incalculable inheritance tax from his estate.

A team of 11 experts worked three years to catalogue the collection before the exhibition opened under the glass dome of the 19th century Grand Palace.

Picasso apparently forgot about one canvas shown for the first time at the exhibition, the 1911 cubist work "Man with a Guitar."

TESCO files motion to intervene

DALLAS — Texas Electric Service Co. has filed a motion to intervene in a Texas Railroad Commission hearing on the Gulf Oil Corp. request to raise the contract price of natural gas it sells to a major TESCO fuel supplier, TESCO President Bill Marquardt said today.

The hearing on the request has been set for Nov. 7.

Gulf has asked the commission for permission to increase the price of certain gas it sell to Odessa Natural Gasoline Co. by $25 million retroactively and about $50 million between now and the expiration of the contract at the end of 1981.

"If the Railroad Commission allows Gulf to pass this $75 million to Odessa Natural and then allows Odessa Natural to pass through to TESCO the $75 million, this will result in TESCO's customers paying an addition $75 million in their electric bills through the end of 1981," Marquardt said.

Odessa Natural sells all or part of the gas it purchases from Gulf to TESCO.

Odessa Natural is resisting Gulf's request, but has asked that it be permitted to pass any cost increase on to TESCO.

Ector schools comply with laws

ODESSA — The Office of Civil Rights of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Dallas ruled Thursday that Ector County schools were "totally in compliance" with the laws prohibiting discrimination against handicapped employees.

The OCR's findings were made after an investigation of a complaint made by Floydine Stallings, a clerk in the school district's special education department.

Mrs. Stallings has a hearing impairment and had charged she was discriminated against in salary and promotions.

Rifles, shotgun reported missing

A screen on a door was cut and the door unlatched to gain entry to a home at 1200 W. Storey Ave., according to a Midland police report.

Rifles and a shotgun valued at $620 were found missing from the residence, the Thursday report indicated.

Taken was a 12-gauge automatic shotgun, two .22-caliber rifles and a pellet rifle, police were told.

A pair of sunglasses reportedly was left at the scene of an apparent burglary reported to police Thursday.

A television video game computer, 35mm camera, flash strobe and binoculars valued at $689 were reported missing Thursday from a residence at 2817 W. Roosevelt Ave., according to the report.

Entry was gained through a window, the report indicated.

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter nominated U.S. Magistrate Harry Lee Hudspeth and Odessa attorney Lucius Bunton on Thursday for federal judgeships in the Western District of Texas.

Hudspeth, 43, of El Paso, would fill the position Congress added to the district's bench last year.

Bunton, 55, would replace U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears, who has announced his decision to take senior status.

The nominations, recommended by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, must be confirmed by the Senate.

Two vacancies remain to be filled in the Western District.

Bentsen has recommended state district judges Hipolito F. Garcia and Clyde Frederick Shannon of San Antonio for the other positions.

Business leaders back Fed's credit strategy

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — The Federal Reserve's new credit-tightening strategy has won the endorsemet of U.S. business leaders who see it as strong medicine that may, at last, begin to cure inflation.

"I have yet to meet a single businessman who is not supportive of this move," said Reginald H. Jones, board chairman of General Electric Co.

Jones spoke to reporters Thursday night at the start of the fall session here of the Business Council, a prestigious group of corporate executives that was formed in the 1920s as a forum for business comment on government policy. Jones heads the group.

Jones and other council leaders agreed that the nation's families and businesses would have to tolerate high interest rates, some shortage of loan money and a slowdown in overall economic activity now if they hoped to see price increases slow in the future from their current, record 13 percent annual pace.

That is just what the Federal Reserve hopes will happen as a result of the policy adopted Saturday. The central bank, in an unprecedented maneuver, boosted its key loan rate, increased bank reserve requirements and redirected efforts to control the money supply.

The actions, designed to fight inflation and prop up the dollar, will probably result in some liquidation of business inventories, less capital spending, fewer home sales and slower growth in consumer borrowing and spending, the businessmen said.

"The inflation disease in our society is so virulent that the medicine you take to cure it is not very pleasant," said Jones.

Added Irving S. Shapiro, chairman of E.I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.: "The sooner we suffer the pain, the sooner we will be through."

The "pain" was reflected in the council's economic forecast released today. It foresees "a moderate recession in line with average post-war experience" but a slower recovery than previously expected.

The council's 20 economic advisers, all of them corporate analysts, prepared the forecast before the central bank's monetary policy change. But Clifton C. Garvin Jr., Exxon Corp. board chairman, said "a majority had anticipated some sort of action from the Federal Reserve in their forecasts."

The report, bleaker than one issued by the council in May, says the nation's economic output probably will fall about 2 percent by the end of March. That would make the recession about half as severe as the 1974-75 downturn.

"Barring further shocks, the economists project recovery to be under way by mid-year 1980, albeit at a fairly modest pace," the report said.

The council's analysts believe that unemployment will climb by more than 1.2 million people by mid-1980.

Inflation, however, should drop from its current double-digit pace to an 8 percent annual rate by next year, the council predicts.

The unemployment and inflation projections are about the same as those anticipated by the Carter administration, but the recession forecast is a bit deeper than official government figures.

Garvin said the majority of the council's economists anticipated that the administration would cut taxes by up to $25 billion next year. The administration now opposes such a move.

Garvin said the Federal Reserve's credit-tightening was "entirely appropriate and long overdue."

Walter Wriston, chairman of Citicorp., the nation's second largest bank, agreed. He predicted that the prime rate, the interest banks charge their most credit-worthy customers, was "close to the top" at the 14.5 percent level it hit Tuesday.

The Federal Reserve's new monetary policy will produce "two weeks of chaos in the marketplace, and then it will settle down," he said.

Each of the businessmen admitted that his industry would suffer some setbacks because of the higher interest rates.

Security guard union attempting to close public schools in Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Union leaders representing some 400 striking security guards said they would ask boiler and furnace operators to honor their picket lines today in an effort to shut Detroit Public Schools.

"I doubt the schools could stay open if they were cold," Teamsters Union Local 214 President Joseph Valenti said Thursday.

Robert Ross, business agent of Local 547 of the International Union of Operating Engineers, said his workers have not been formally asked to honor picket lines.

However, he said, "we've been known to honor legitimate picket lines. I'm sure the Teamsters will be in touch."

Weather forecasts call for highs in the upper 40s in Detroit today.

Thursday's walkout by the guards was the third for the 213,000-pupil Detroit district this school year. Local 214 led 700 bus drivers, food handlers and warehouse workers out when their contracts expired. That strike entered its fifth day today.

The city's 12,000 teachers staged a 17-day walkout in September.

The district's contract with the security guards expired at midnight Wednesday.

Local 214 met Thursday morning with the school board in an effort to hammer out new contracts to replace one that expired at midnight Wednesday. But talks were fruitless, the union said, and leaders walked out of a night negotiation session.

Classes have continued through the Local 214 walkouts, unlike the teachers' strike which closed the schools.

Teachers, administrators and aides walked the halls Thursday, taking over for the guards, whose hall patrols supplement the beats of city police. No trouble was reported.

"Precincts will be notified and they'll give special attention to the schools. That's just normal procedure," a city police spokesman said. Most of the 23 uniformed officers were assigned to junior and senior high schools, he said.

The walkout by bus drivers, food handlers and warehouse workers halted bus service for about 30,000 students.

Meanwhile, strikes by more than 8,000 teachers disrupted classes for pupils elsewhere in Michigan and in San Francisco and smaller districts in Illinois, Ohio, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

TV presidents don't fear growth of cable industry

BOSTON (AP) — The advent of cable television and home video tape recorders doesn't scare television network presidents — at least that's what they're saying now.

"We are watching the growth of other technologies and their influence on us," acknowledges ABC president James Duffy.

However, Duffy says commercial television always will have one advantage over cable and other pay systems — it's free.

Duffy and his colleagues at NBC, CBS and the Public Broadcasting Service attended a luncheon Thursday sponsored by the New England chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

"Networks will remain the mass media for advertising," insisted James Rosenfield of CBS.

"It will be five years before we feel the impact of other technologies, and 10 years before we need to respond," he said.

But CBS is already branching out in its entertainment division. Rosenfield pointed out that CBS recently has announced plans to go into film production and video discs, which are used on disc players that can be plugged into televisions sets to show movies.

It remains to be seen whether the alternate systems will provide innovative programs, or just echo commercial television.

Many of the newcomers feature first-run films and specials not offered by the networks. Many cable companies draw from over-the-air television, piping in independent channels from other cities.

"I don't see all this adding up to the demise of network TV," said NBC's Robert Mulholland, referring to the growth in video technology.

PBS president Lawrence Grossman predicted that the increase in programming will create an atmosphere in which there will be more emphasis on quality.

"Cable should not be considered a threat, but a means of diversifying TV," he said.

One advantage networks have over most cable and pay systems is their ability to draw on local affiliates for news. The television executives promised more news and live shows in the next few years.

"Creativity has changed the medium, and news will continue to grow," predicted Rosenfield.

"We will bring live news and sports into prime time," he continued.

Gulf Coast toll from cancer highest

HOUSTON (AP)— A cancer researcher says lung cancer mortality along the Gulf Coast, especially in the Texas and southern Louisiana regions, is among the highest in the nation.

Dr. Linda Pickle, a biostatistician with the National Cancer Institute, said Thursday such things as high hydrocarbon emission levels and industrial exposures "have to be taken into account" for the high rate of death.

Ms. Pickle is one several research specialists attending a three-day seminar at the Baylor College of Medicine on asbestos-associated diseases.

She said the institute's preliminary review of mortality among chemical workers, particularly in the Port Arthur area, showed an abnormally high number of lung, skin and stomach cancer cases.

Another cancer-causing factor, she said, was smoking. "We found that workers in southern Louisiana apparently smoked more than the national average and cancer mortality was higher there, too."

Dr. Irving Selikoff, environmental science director at Mount Sinai School of Medicine, said smoking caused "an extraordinary multiplication of cancer danger among workers in the asbestos industry."

Here's the answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — The wall plaster of one of our rooms has a number of cracks in it. I have been told that I can avoid patching them if I use a textured paint. Is this true? Also, what can you tell me about the kind of paint?

A. — Textured paints will cover small cracks in plaster, but large cracks or other defects should be patched first no matter what kind of paint is used. So-called sand or other texture paints create interesting walls, since you can make almost any kind of finish you want, depending on what the paint is applied with and how it is done. In fact, it's a good idea to do some testing on some scrap material. Consider the use of texture brushes, rollers, sponges, bristle brushes and almost anything else you can think of that will produce interesting designs. When you have the effect you want, repeat the process on the walls to be finished.

Q. — I soon will install insulation blankets in the ceiling of our garage so cold air won't go upstairs. I know I have to put the vapor barrier facing upstairs. Do I put them between the floor joists or over them and how do I estimate how much I need?

A. — Put the blankets (or batts) between the joists. To know how much insulation you will need, multiply the length of the area to be covered by the width. If the joists are 16 inches apart, multiply by .90. If they are 24 inches apart, multiply by .94. The answer is the number of square feet of insulation you will need.

Q. — Why is insulation given an R number? Does it show how thick the insulation is?

A. — R numbers stand for resistance to heat loss during cold weather and heat gain during warm weather. One brand of insulation might be slightly thinner or thicker than another with the same R number, but they will resist heat flow equally well. Generally, R-22 and R-19 mineral-wool batts will be between 5 and 7 inches thick; R13 blankets 3½ to 3⅝ths inches; R-11, 3 to 4 inches.

(Where and how to insulate are included in Andy Lang's booklet, "Save Money by Insulating," available by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Netherlands lavish with bulb flowers

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

As we toured the vast Keukenhof gardens of bulb flowers at Lisse in the Netherlands, we jotted down the names of tulips, narcissus and hyacinths that struck our fancy, to consider for fall planting at home. This didn't last long; it would have taken too much time. There were so many.

Despite the heavy rain during the first of our three visits, the 10 miles of paths were crowded with viewers. The bulbs were at their peak, generally, and there was a triple holiday — Queen Juliana's 70th birthday observance, Memorial Day, May 4, and World War II Liberation Day, May 5.

We were introduced to other magnificent bulb flowers, the spectacular amaryllis, pretty freesia, dainty scilla, attractive cineraria in lavender and white, pink and deep orange, the showy, capped fritillaria imperialis with its bell-like hanging blooms, colorful anemones, little crocus, muscari.

There were other bulb flowers and blossoming trees along the winding walkways and in the greenhouses — the latter especially popular during the rain. In the glasshouses, attractions besides the major bulbs were lilies, cymbidium orchids, iris, multi-headed tiny narcissus of yellow with orange centers, and flowering trees.

Keukenhof not only has big, formal and informal displays near its ponds and streams, but is developing small displays to show what you can do with as few as five flowers. There is also a room at the Queen Juliana pavilion where expert flower arrangers demonstrate placing flowers and tree branches to decorate the home.

On a typical, busy day during the seven or eight weeks the Keukenhof gardens are open, there are 40,000 to 45,000 visitors.

Flower shape inspires the arrangement

HOLLISTON, Mass. (AP) — A cardinal rule of flower arranging is that the shape of the container and the shape of the flowers influence the shape of the arrangement, says Dottie Temple, a floral designer here who coordinates floral arrangements for White House special events.

"For instance, a teapot dictates a round, full arrangement," she points out, "while a tall container that's wide at the top calls for a triangular shape. Tall flowers don't belong in a short container, nor do small, round flowers suit a very large vase.

"The best way to achieve a relaxed, charming arrangement is to work with the size and shape of the flowers," she explains. "When cutting stems, remember to vary the lengths to create a three-dimensional effect. Otherwise the arrangement will look like a line of toy soldiers."

Before beginning the arrangement, decide what it will be used for and where it will be displayed, she advises. For instance, if it is planned as a centerpiece, it will be viewed from all sides and must be balanced. Others may be seen only from the front and sides, so more fullness can be used in one area.

A single flower can be effective, Ms. Temple notes. She uses water tubes, small pointed vials of glass or plastic, rubber-capped against spilling, with a tiny hole in the cap for the stem. They fit easily into seashells, which can be attractive containers, or can be attached to pin backs for wearing in lapels.

"In the state dining room at the White House I've used white cattleya orchids in water tubes, making a reverse sweep around Lincoln's portrait," she says.

Another unusual arrangement is one flower head floating in a small glass candle holder. The effect can be made even more dynamic, she says, with three or four different size holders of the same shape, eachholding a floating flower.

Camping safe sport

COLLEGE STATION — Check your tent before going camping to avoid potential hazards, advises Carla Shearer, a health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Camping itself is not unsafe -- in fact, its related injuries rank lower than any other sporting activities, she points out.

Chemical company says charges not true

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Cyanamid Co. denies government charges that five women workers were pressured into being sterilized as a condition for keeping jobs that exposed them to toxic lead particles

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration is proposing that the chemical company be fined $10,000 for alegedly requiring the wmen to be sterilized to continue working in the lead pigment section of a Willow Island, W.Va., plant.

OSHA said Thursday the alleged action is a "willful violation" of the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

Veils and large flowers are part of the fall fashion look, as shown by Debbie Dotson, Odessa College cosmetology student from Midland.

Lisa Wright, Odessa College cosmetology student from Kermit, models a fur and the shorter haircut of the '80's.

Today's woman seeks fashions that complement her lifestyle

ODESSA — "Today's woman has changed," says Faye Morgan, head of the Odessa College cosmetology program. "She is living a lifestyle that has altered greatly during the past few years. Her interests, responsibilities and activities have changed dramatically, and she seeks new fashions that complement her changed outlook on life."

Morgan says the first fashion trend of the 1980's is the "Wave Syndrome" haircut.

"'The 'Wave Syndrome' is a glamorous hairstyle that is practical with easy care," she says. "Although most women will be wearing it shorter in 1979-80, this style is adaptable to any woman's preference in hair length."

"The 'Wave Syndrome' can be styled with precision waves or worn with gentle braids and tousles," she says. "It is business-like for work, fun for weekends, beautiful and glamorous for after dark."

Accenting the new hairstyles this season will be hair ornaments and hats.

"Hair ornaments display a definite Oriental influence in 1979-80," Morgan comments. "Gold, sequins, rhinestones, feathers, combs, and almost anything wih lots of color or highlighting hair."

"The hair renaissance of the spring and summer of 1979, which reintroduced the seductive veil, is even more popular this fall," she continues. "Pill box hats, veils with large flowers...all rcall the elegance and femininity of the '40's."

"The interplay of bright colors, especially the iridescents, is a big story in this first fashion season of the '80's," Morgan notes. "There is no longer an emphasis on earth tones—magenta, mauve and fushsia will be popular colors."

"Many fashions in this season's collections are based on elaborate color schemes, contrasting fabrics, vivid jewelry and rich detailing, but an equally charming impression can be attained throuogh simple fashions," she adds.

"With more and more women working, the suit is the most popular choice for the day," Morgan explains. "Wools and knits have always been staples of the winter wardrobe, and this year the fashion continues with a classical styling that suggests more sophistication than in the recent past."

She says that pants continue to be straight-legged and skirt lengths remain below the knee.

She believes people are enjoying dressing up more than they have for years, adding that "after dark" fashions will include a return to long evening gowns for women.

"Fashion looks and feels rich this season," Morgan says. "For instance, the rich cowgirl influence, seen most often as a fashion boot or in other accessory items, continues to be a constant feature in American fashion."

A revival of furs is expected for the fashion look of the 1980's.

"Furs are for any occasion, and, with this revival, will remain fashionable through any seasons," Morgannotes.

Accessories are important for a total look this fall, according to Morgan.

"Earrings are large and stand out as either buttons or dangling gold and gemstone pieces," she says. "Bracelets are an important accessory, along with necklaces, including the choker."

"Pins are a surprising new accessory, revived from earlier years," she adds. "All jewelry is elaborate and bejeweled with jade, enamels, cloissones, fake diamonds, and other attention-getting stones."

"Creating a total, coordinated look is the fashion focus for 1979-80," Morgan believes. "The American woman is aware of herself and confident of who she is and where she wants to go. And she has adopted fashions that correspond with her new self-possession."

University offers new course on business end of music industry

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Music students trained in the business end of the music industry can look forward to a healthy job market, says the director of the recently established music-industry program at Syracuse University.

Stephen F. Marcone, assistant professor in Syracuse University's School of Music, says music-industry executives have long been aware that many of their employees, although well trained in music, have no knowledge of business, while those handling business affairs often know very little about music.

Marcone says he discovered the need for a program that would cover both areas while traveling as a musician.

"I was on the road in the early '70s with a CBS recording group and realized that even with my traditional master of music in music education, I still had very little training in survival in the business," Marcone said.

"I thought that since most young people were listening to jazz rock music at that time, and many undoubtedly planned to enter the field, universities and colleges should not continue to neglect educating students who want to pursue a career in the music industry. With skills in both music and business, graduates of a program like ours have an excellent chance at making a success in the field."

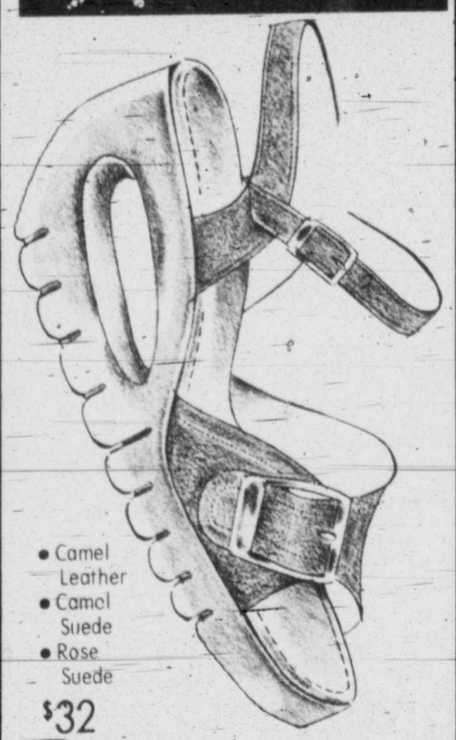

The bachelor in music industry program at Syracuse University includes internship work in recording companies and publishing houses as well as courses in the legal and business aspects of the industry.

Couple to celebrate 50th anniversary Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hoyt Burris, 1603 N. Main St., will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary with a reception Sunday.

The event will be held from 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of the Bellview Baptist Church, 1710 N. Big Spring St.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hoyt Burris

Burris and the former Meneta Shelburne were married Dec. 22, 1929, in Midland.

Their children include Mrs. Bill Crawford of Hobbs, N.M.; Cathy Burris of Midland and the late Stanley Burris.

They also have six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The couple has lived in Midland most of the past 50 years, though they traveled for eight years beginning in 1930 while Burris was working in the construction business. He was also employed for 30 years with the Midland Fire Department and Police Department.

They are members of Bellview Church.

Hosts at the anniversary reception will be the couple's daughter and daughter-in-law.

DEAR ABBY

She wants a man to baby her

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 31-year-old divorcee with a 10-year-old son. I desperately want another child. I have noticed that in the last few years more single women are having and keeping their babies. I know I could manage another child myself. I have been the sole support of my son, who is a happy, well-adjusted child despite having no father in his life. I have saved enough money, so another child will not be a financial burden.

The problem is my family. I'm sure they wouldn't approve of the idea, and I hate to hurt them. But I am not getting any younger, and if I don't have another child within the next couple of years it will be too late.

Also, I do not have a special man in mind to father my child, but there are several who would do me the favor. I don't want to marry again, and I have made that plain.

I'm sure my family will think I got "caught" because the idea of having a baby outside of marriage would be totally unacceptable to them. I hate to embarrass them.

I just know that I desperately want another child. Please advise me. —LONGING FOR MOTHERHOOD

DEAR LONGING: A woman sufficiently mature to handle single parenthood as you insist you are, would not (a) seek my advice or (b) need her parents' aproval. If I were you, I would scrap the idea.

DEAR ABBY: I am having a friendly argument with someone and hope you can settle it. I say that, according to law, a male doctor may not give a female patient a complete physical examination unless there is a female nurse in the room. My friend says I am mistaken.

Can you help us? — FRIENDLY ARGUMENT

DEAR FRIENDLY: Whether or not a male doctor has a nurse present while examining a female patient is up to the doctor, the patient, or both. If there is a state law setting a different standard, I would be surprised.

DEAR ABBY: This letter may be of interest to those who are constantly complaining about rising food costs.

I am a clerk in a chain grocery. Yesterday I spent three hours picking up items off shelves where they didn't belong, because somebody decided they didn't want them after all and just put them down any old place.

Now just who do you think is paying me for three hours labor to do this?—You—the consumer, that's who!

All right, forget the wages. Let's talk about the TV dinner someone left in the cereal aisle. When found, it was partially thawed out and not fit for resale. Or the carton of milk that was left standing out of the cooler for half a day. Or the cellophane-wrapped pork chops someone had put on top of the spices. These items are spoiled and must be thrown out.

But who pays for them? YOU DO! I would guess that about one out of every 10 shoppers has been guilty of the above, at least occasionally.

So, the next time you go marketing, please put those unwanted items back where they belong, and help keep prices down. And it might not be a bad idea for grocery store managers to post this on the cash register. It may help. —FOR LOWER PRICES

DEAR FOR: It may NOT help. But it can't hurt.

Pork purchased by USDA for school cafeterias

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has bought canned pork for the first time this year for donation to school cafeterias.

Officials had rejected previous offers from processors because of a lack of competitive bidding on the contracts and because prices asked were too high.

But a week ago, the department announced changes in its canned pork specifications to make it easier for processors to offer bids.

The first contract, announced Thursday, was for 369,750 pounds of canned pork at a cost of $494,000 — about $1.33 a pound.

It went to Blue Star Foods, Council Bluffs, Iowa, one of two bidders. The other was not identified but asked $1.45 a pound.

Last spring the Council on Wage and Price Stability directed Agriculture, the Defense Department and the Veterans Administration to reduce purchases of costlier beef and buy more pork and poultry.

The department is also buying poultry for donations to schools this year, but still is buying ground beef, including an additional 1.77 million pounds announced Thursday at a cost of more than $2.3 million or about $1.31 a pound.

Falsely charged 'shoplifter' awarded $20,000

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Kay Brandau, awarded $20,000 in damages after being falsely charged by J.C. Penney Co. with shoplifting, says, "I'm just glad to put Penney's where they belong."

A U.S. District Court jury awarded her the damages Wednesday after a day-long trial.

Mrs. Brandau was charged in March 1978 with shoplifting at the Tanglewood Mall store.

The charge was dismissed in April 1978 in Roanoke County General District Court.

The nurse then filed a $250,000 damage suit against the company, alleging J.C. Penney had ruined her reputation and credit rating and had "subjected her to insulting and vicious interrogation."

"I'm just a little person and they are a big company," she said. "I was right and they were wrong ... I feel very good."

During the trial, Mrs. Brandau's attorney said a young, insufficiently trained security guard swore out the warrant against Mrs. Brandau and subjected her to humiliation without good cause and despite her reasonable explanation.

Penney's lawyers told the jury Penney's was trying to protect itself against shoplifters and said the security guard was not a judge.

They said the guard had seen Mrs. Brandau place a pair of pantyhose in a bag before paying for them and he acted on the reasonable belief she intended to leave the store without paying for them.

Mrs. Brandau said she had put the pantyhose in her shopping cart but when her 10-month-old son began chewing on the package she put the hose in a bag with some other items so he wouldn't choke on the cellophane wrapper.

She said she was stopped by the guard before she got to the checkout counter, interrogated for an hour in front of her children and forced to sign a document agreeing not to shop at the store. She was arrested the next day on the store's warrant, fingerprinted and booked at the jail.

Trend toward small farm population may be ending, census figures show

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new government analysis of 1978 census figures shows the general trend downward in the U.S. farm population may be ending after more than 60 years of decline.

The report, a joint effort by the departments of Commerce and Agriculture, said 1978 census figures are "not significantly different" from the 1977 farm population.

"It is possible that this finding could be a signal that the long-term decline in farm population has finally come to an end," the report said.

"But, if so, it will require data for several additional years to confirm such a finding."

Annual farm census figures peaked at about 32.5 million persons in 1916, when one in about every three Americans lived on farms.

The total farm population did not decline every year since 1916, but the trend was generally down. In the depression years of the 1930s, for example, the farm population increased, rising from about 29.4 million in 1930 to 31.2 million in 1933.

By 1936, however, it had dropped back to 30.4 million and 20 years later, in 1956, fell to 18.7 million, according to USDA records.

One complication in reciting current farm population figures is the government's change in the definition of a farm. Previously, a farm was a unit of 10 acres or more if it sold at least $50 worth of products a year, or one of less than 10 acres if marketings were at least $250 annually.

The new method defines a farm as a unit that markets at least $1,000 worth of products a year.

Thus, by the new definition, the new report said there were slightly more than 6.5 million persons living on farms, on the average, in 1978.

By the previous definition, the farm population would have been slightly more than 8 million persons, it said.

The 6.5 million people listed officially as living on farms represent 3 percent of the nation's total population last year of about 218 million, the report said.

"The farm share ... has declined fairly steadily for more than half a century," the report said.

In 1920, 30 percent of the U.S. population still lived on farms. By 1950, the proportion had dropped to 15 percent, and by 1970 to 5 percent.

Some other observations included in the report, "Farm Population of the United States: 1978," included:

—Farm men outnumbered farm women by a ratio of 109 to 100 in 1978, compared to 93 men for every 100 women in the nonfarm population.

—The report said the disparity "is most pronounced in the late teens and early 20's and again after age 60, when women have the highest probabilities of being single and widowed."

—The farm population has a higher proportion of white people than the nonfarm group, and "a lower proportion of blacks and persons of Spanish origin."

He did it himself: it worked

LAREDO (AP) — Officials were unsure at first what to do about a driverless car that was running in circles backward, bouncing over curbs, smashing mailboxes, knocking over trash cans and scattering garbage.

They rejected as too risky a suggestion to shoot out the tires.

Finally, an emergency medical technician dived into the speeding car through the passenger door and turned off the engine. No one was hurt.

The owner had been outside the car repairing the ignition just before the incident. It worked.

Five held in robbery

NORMANGEE, Texas (AP) — Five suspects were being held today on armed robbery charges in connection with the holdup of a Normangee bank in which masked bandits escaped with $96,000.

Four bandits, wearing nylon stockings over their faces, entered the Normangee State Bank Thursday, according to Centerville police. After herding employees into a vault, the robbers fled in two vehicles, investigators said.

A bank officer who hid in an office during the robbery telephoned authorities shortly after the holdup.

Central Texas authorities caught the suspects at a roadblock near Bryan several hours after the holdup. Officers said they recovered the money taken in the robbery.

Justice of the Peace T.R. Rodell ordered the five held under $50,000 bond each on armed robbery charges. They were identified as Jesse Noble, 22; Theotis Stephens, 22; John Lee Moore, 25; Larry Harrison, 25; and Tommy Banks, 27.

Cat to idle - even more

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Caterpillar Tractor Co. has announced layoffs of more than 3,500 additional workers in three states, in a move the company said was caused by an unauthorized strike by United Auto Workers at the company's Peoria works.

The company announced Thursday that the newest layoffs would include some clerical and production personnel at nine plants in Illinois, Iowa and California.

Livestock

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures edged higher Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade amid brisk commercial business and talk of possible dry weather damage to young winter wheat.

Commercial grain firms were both buyers and sellers of wheat, an analyst said. There also was talk that dry weather might impair development of the recently planted winter wheat crop in some Great Plains states.

The exchange reported that wheat trading both Tuesday and Wednesday shattered a previous volume record set in 1933. The new record set Wednesday was 39,070 contracts, or 195,350 bushels of wheat, traded in a single session.

Corn and soybeans came under harvest-time pressure as the corn and soybean harvests were reported progressing fairly well despite recent rains. The corn harvest remains behind schedule, but most traders anticipate no severe delays unless there are further rains this weekend in the corn and soybean belt.

Selling by local traders was a majoh factor carrying prices lower.

At the close, soybeans were 3 to 8 cents lower, November $6.83; wheat was 1 to 2¼ cents higher, December $4.36½; corn was ¾ to 2½ cents lower, December $2.80¾; and oats were ¼ cent lower to ¼ cent higher, December $1.54.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Trading follows pattern of thinking

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — It was like a big bowling ball rolled down Wall Street and the other counting house lanes such as LaSalle Street, Chicago, and Montgomery Street, San Francisco, and many a Main Street too.

Stock prices dived, then rallied. Bonds plunged. Gold and silver prices exploded. Long-term money rates leaped, and short-term rates scattered chaotically but in every instance landed on higher ground.

The pattern of trading on Wednesday, the busiest day for stocks and for some other securities and commodities too, symbolized the pattern of thinking. Big bankers and small investors were equally confused.

When that happens, it has been observed, investors think more of security than anything else, profits included. And so the dollar, which is supposed to benefit from monetary restraint, sank too.

This was the scene on Wednesday, Oct. 10, third business day after the Federal Reserve announced a more restrictive monetary policy, meaning that money, especially credit, will be harder and more costly to get.

Ordinarily, such a day might have alarmed a rather small circle that included brokers, professional traders and knowledgeable outsiders. It was a bad day, disastrous for many, but not that rare. Just a year ago, almost to the week, the stock market had similarly whipsawed.

Still, it was unique. It was the general atmosphere that made it so. Everyone is aware these days of economic problems. They are warned that a recession is due. They see the national problem in their own wallets.

And there is more to the atmosphere too: This is the anniversary of the great fall, the economic collapse in which the country went as splat as Humpty Dumpty instead of bouncing, as it used to, like a ball.

So much has been written and will be written about that experience and the confidence-shattering decade that followed that it is almost being relived. Kondratieff's name will even be heard in saloon disputes.

Kondratieff? He's the Russian economist who discerned the 50-year economic cycle of long waves in production, trade, prices. For certain, some will therefore insinuate we are helpless against inflation.

Paul Volcker and the Federal Reserve Board do not agree. We need not remain at the mercy of rampaging, ruinous prices. We created inflation and we can restrain it. It is our child; we don't take orders from it.

But doubts, about that — and about the Fed's course too — will plague the markets. Some inflation really is beyond our control; OPEC gives the orders. And some people aren't sure they themseles can be restrained.

That is, they believe that one of the legacies of such pervasive and persistent inflation, and the failure of Washington to do much more than worsen it, is that the nation has nearly lost its sense of community.

What is left, it is said correctly or incorrectly by critics every day, is a nation of people looking out for their personal interests, with little willingness to sacrifice for the common good.

The Fed's action is making less money available for lending, and forcing up the price of what is lent, is aimed at removing the decision-making process from such people. It is an edict, nothing less.

Or a bowling ball. What the Fed has done, or attempted to do, is destroy the spirit of cynical speculation by scattering the speculators like duckpins and making it difficult for them to regroup quickly.

In the process, of course, it has created chaos, but out of that chaos it hopes that the spirit of restraint and equilibrium will recapture the marketplace, and that people will recognize it as the common good.

This boilermaker not 'average'

By STRAT DOUTHAT

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Debbie Blue was talking about her job and watching her arm jump as she flexed her muscles. The brown-haired, blue-eyed young woman grinned as a visitor felt her bulging bicep.

"I worked hard to get it," she said. "I'm proud of what I've accomplished in the past three years."

There's a definite connection between Mrs. Blue's pride, her muscles and her job. The 26-year-old woman is a boilermaker. She spends her days rigging and welding huge boilers at electric power plants around West Virginia.

"I'm a certified welder and I just got my journeyman's papers in field construction," she said. "I'm the first female in the country to graduate from the union's apprentice program."

An official of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers in Kansas City confirmed Mrs. Blue's story.

"She's the first female to graduate from our program," said David Lewis. "We have about 25 female field construction apprentices around the country now. Our first one was killed three years ago while working on the Alaskan pipeline."

"I grew up in Moundsville," Mrs. Blue said. "My father is a boilermaker. I was job-hunting three years ago and he told me to go down and sign up for the union's apprenticeship program.

"To complete the program you must pass 48 study lessons and put in 6,000 hours of on-the-job training. The study program usually takes four years but I finished the lessons in 18 months."

In addition to the study program and rugged work schedule, Mrs. Blue, who has a 4-year-old son, said she has had to endure the taunts of many of her male co-workers.

"It's been about 50-50," she said. "Some of the men I work with are friendly and helpful and some of them still don't accept me, even after three years. They'll ask me why I don't go back to the kitchen where I belong."

Mrs. Blue's home is at New Martinsville. At present, however, she's staying with her brother in Huntington and commuting to the Appalachian Power Co. generating plant at Glasgow, in Kanawha County.

"I ride to work with my brother and sister," she said. "We've got a lot of boilermakers in my family. My father's a boilermaker. My husband's a boilermaker. I'm a boilermaker. My brother's a boilermaker. And my sister's a boilermaker trainee."

Her sister, Tammy, 21, sat nearby. She said she earned $23,000 last year as a trainee.

"A boilermaker's pay is $12.20 an hour," she said. "A lot of men don't like it that women are making that kind of money. They say we're taking their jobs."

Union officials, under pressure from the federal government to have more minority-group members and women, say they are tryng hard to recruit women. Mrs. Blue is skeptical.

Skin-bleaching drugs useful

Dear Dr. Solomon: Since I began using oral contraceptives, I've developed a dark patch on my skin. Is there any preparation I can safely use to lighten it? — Jeanne

Dear Jeanne: There are a number of skin-bleaching drugs on the market which are useful. The major ingredient in most of these preparations — hydroquinone — has been described as safe and effective by an expert panel in a report to the Food and Drug Administration. The bleaching effect occurs through the suppression of pigment formation in skin cells.

However, there are products containing other ingredients, six of which have been found to be either unsafe or ineffective. The most dangerous of these is mercury, which can be absorbed through the skin; and preparations containing this ingredient should be avoided.

Dear Dr. Solomon: At 45 years of age, my husband, who was never athletic, has discovered exercise. I tell him that 45 is past the age of adolescence, but he doesn't listen. Will you please discuss the acceptable age limits for a person to begin exercising? — Mrs. A.E.B.

Dear Mrs. B.: The age limits you ask for simply do not exist; people can start exercising at any age, and that goes for youngsters as well as for the elderly. Obviously, an exercise program should be tailored to the special needs of each individual. One suitable for most 18-year-olds would not be appropriate for an 80-year-old.

Your husband has a wide choice of exercises from which to select, exercises that will improve the cardiovascular system and the body's ability to use oxygen efficiently. They include running, walking, skipping rope, bike riding, swimming, skating and rowing.

Anyone over 35 years of age contemplating entering a running program should arrange with a physician for a thorough examination, probably including a stress test and electrocardiogram. An exercise-tolerance test, which makes use of a bicyle or treadmill, usually takes about 15 minutes to complete, and permits the physician to evaluate the level of exereise suitable for a patient.

Of course, exercise can be overdone if one is compulsive about it. It is not necessary to go jogging when roads are icy or the temperature abnormally hight or low. Neither should anyone plunge into a heavy exercise schedule after doing nothing more vigourous than occupying a hammock for years.

Start in gradually and with moderation, allowing yourself the time to become conditioned. Don't exercise at all, or at least modify your program, when you are not feeling well, and don't exercise after a serious illness without your doctor's approval. This is simply common sense.

Few things in life are free. But a sound exercise program is one of the cheapest investments a person can make in good health. Instead of discouraging your husband, why not join him? Try it — you may even like it.

McConn asks for preparation of bond plan

HOUSTON (AP)— Houston Mayor Jim McConn Thursday asked the city Legal Department to prepare a $200 million bond program to help low and middle-income citizens buy homes.

McConn said the need for low-interest mortgage money is crucial in the nation's fifth largest city and that many residents "are now completely shut out of the home-buying market."

The City Council must approve sale of the bonds.

The money would be used to cover mortages on 3,200 new and used homes selling for less than $70,000.

McConn said the average mortgage under the program would be $50,000 and families applying must make less than $30,000 a year.

"There are a lot of couples where both husband and wife are working, earning $20,000-$22,000, and they are completely shut out of the home-buying market," the mayor said.

Martin Perlman, president of the Greater Houston Home Builders Association, said the bonds probably would provide home mortgage in interest rates of 7.5 percent to 8.25 percent. The current rate on conventional mortgages in Houston is 11 percent while those financed through federal government-backed programs are 10.5 percent.

McConn said because of the legal work involved it would be "possibly as long as six months, maybe a little longer than that" before the funds would be available.

Home building in Houston has dropped 23.5 percent during 1979.

Is Education First With Us?

The people of Midland will answer this all-important question at the polls on October 23rd. We have a record of answering and anticipating school needs in this city, and we now must decide where our priorities really are.

- By the time it can be constructed, we will desperately need the proposed new northwest elementary school. We can't afford to "get caught" in the way Odessa did by failing to plan for the future--they now are forced into half-day classes in 8 elementary schools. Midland must plan better than that!
- We voted overwhelmingly for two equal high schools--and Midland High must be renovated, its library and administrative areas and its vocational and athletic facilities expanded, if a quality program is to be provided.
- General plant improvements to school facilities are badly needed. The bond issue will provide to $2159,900 of these essential improvements.
- Lee High, our "new" High School, is nearly 20 years old. Over one million dollars is ear-marked for updating and improvements to Lee.

Middle East replaces Asia, Mexico as heroin suppliers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Middle Eastern nations of Afghanistan, Pakistan and Iran are becoming the major source of heroin exported to Western Europe and the United States, government officials believe.

Peter Bensinger, head of the Drug Enforcement Agency, says the Middle East is replacing Southeast Asia and Mexico as the biggest potential threat to efforts to curb heroin traffic.

"The Middle East's potential to produce heroin is serious," he remarked recently. "Under optimal conditions, that is assuming every kilogram of opium is converted into heroin, this region could produce 80 tons of heroin for worldwide consumption."

According to DEA calculations, that one-year production would be enough to feed the habit of every junkie in America three times over.

Officials at DEA and the State Department are particularly concerned over the political instability in the Mideast region and its effects on heroin traffic.

In Afghanistan, the Marxist regime has no control over the radical Moslem movement in rural areas of the country where huge quantities of poppies are grown. Similar tribal areas of Pakistan are able to export the opium that poppies produce there without government control.

State Department officials contend the long-range answer is economic aid from the West to build up new crops that will replace the poppies as a cash crop for natives.

For now, the U.S. is seeking greater cooperation with law enforcement officials in the Mideast countries to cut down on smuggling.

A State Department official who asked not to be identified by name said new Islamic fervor in the region, epitomized by the Ayatollah Khomeini in Iran, is helping the crackdown on illicit drugs.

"There has been good cooperation with Afghanistan and Pakistan to curtail the drug traffic," the official said. U.S. figures show that 41,800 pounds of Mideast opium have been seized so far this year, more than was captured in all of 1978.

But Bensinger has said "imaginative diplomatic proposals are urgently needed" by the U.S. and Western European countries to step up the fight.

China resurrects congresses to unify Taiwan, mainland

PEKING (AP) — In a new drive to reunite Taiwan with the mainland, China has resurrected the national congresses of eight non-communist parties and a capitalist organization silenced during anti-rightist purges in the 1950s.

The official Xinhua news agency said 2,533 delegates of minor parties and the All-China Federation of Industrialists and Businessmen opened a meeting Thursday to take part in the China People's Political Consultative Conference.

Xinhua called upon the delegates to "unite their members and associates, fire their enthusiasm for modernization, promote democracy, take part in consultations on the nation's guiding principles and policies, and exercise their role of mutual supervision as well as to work for Taiwan's early return to the motherland."

The consultative conference, revived in its advisory role last year on the impetus of senior Vice Premier Deng Xiaopeng, called in July for Taiwan's ruling Nationalist (Kuomintang) Party to end 30 years of hostility with Peking.

Explaining the resurrection, Xinhua said the minor parties have taken on a new character "as political unions of socialist workers and patriots who support socialism."

Nothing in the Xinhua report indicated the consultative conference or the minority parties would participate in the government as they did in the 1950s.

But the government of Premier Huo Guofeng has already asked them to comment on the current modernization drive and the radical 1966-69 Cultural Revolution.

Observers here believe the main purpose of the revival will be to arouse support for reunification with Taiwan, established as the Republic of China by the late Chiang Kai-shek's Kuomintang after the Communist Party took over the mainland in 1949.

Some of the delegates attending the current meeting are former Kuomintang members who cooperated with the communists in the early 1950s, doddering old men and women whose ties with the elderly communist leaders have recently been renewed.

Former UMW president gets three life terms for murders

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — W.A. "Tony" Boyle, who once headed the powerful United Mine Workers union, has been sentenced to three consecutive life prison terms for murders committed by three hired assassins.

Before his appearance in court Thursday, Boyle, 78, had been convicted twice of arranging the Dec. 31, 1969, murders of union rival Joseph "Jock" Yablonski and his family. Yablonski, his wife and daughter were killed as they slept in their Clarksville home in the western Pennsylvania soft coal region.

"I am innocent of the crimes of which I have been convicted and I want everyone to know that," Boyle insisted in a typewritten statement read in court.

Yablonski failed in a bitter fight to topple Boyle from the union presidency two months before he was killed. The state contended the assassins were hired to prevent any challenge to the election result.

The first jury verdict was set aside by the state Supreme Court in 1977, and Boyle was found guilty a second time 20 months ago.

Delaware County President Judge Francis Catania, who presided at both trials, imposed the same sentence as the first time and gave Boyle 30 days to file a new appeal.

"I intend to do that," Boyle told the judge.

Boyle has been held in the hospital ward of the nearby Eastern State prison since his second conviction, when $250,000 bail was revoked. He suffers from a heart ailment and also has stomach problems as a result of a drug overdose in a 1973 suicide attempt.

Boyle's lawyer, A. Charles Peruto, who had won reversal of the first verdict, withdrew as counsel. He told Catania he hadn't been paid for his recent work.

Boyle said he is without funds and the judge said he would appoint a lawyer to represent him.

Suit claims Penthouse was 'unprofessional'

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The clothes were too big, the shoes the wrong size, and Teresa Mackey says the photo session in a Florida hotel room for Penthouse magazine seemed "very unprofessional."

The 19-year-old Charlotte woman claims, in a suit filed Thursday in Mecklenburg County Superior Court, that she was coerced into snorting cocaine and having sexual relations with the photographer — and never got paid for posing for a "Pet of the Month" centerfold.

The allegations are "false and without any foundation in fact. It is a lie," Joseph Kraft, Penthouse International's general counsel, told the Charlotte Observer.

The suit accuses the New York-based magazine, its publisher Bob Guccione and art director Joe Brooks, who took the pictures, of fraud, and asks more than $1.6 million in damages.

The suit claims Brooks lured Ms. Mackey to Florida and promised her the plum of being named Pet of the Year, worth $150,000, in order to have sexual relations with her when he photographed her in August in the Mutiny Hotel in Coconut Grove, near Miami.

During three days there, the suit says, Brooks took 1,728 pictures of Ms. Mackey in an assort of underwear and forced her to have "continuous" sexual relations with him.

Brooks promised her $4,000 if she appeared in a centerfold, or $3,000 if the photos weren't used, the suit says.

Kraft confirmed that Brooks photographed Ms. Mackey, but said Brooks denied using wine, cocaine or offers of money and fame to induce her to have sex with him. Kraft said he had no idea whether the two had sexual relations.

Kraft said Brooks needed to hold another photo session, but "apparently she would rather have a lawsuit than a retake." He added that Penthouse had paid all of Ms. Mackey's travel costs.

Ms. Mackey said she is the manager of a private club that will open soon at a Charlotte motel.

Largest record collection could sell for $1 million

SEATTLE (AP) — From Enrico Caruso to Elvis Presley, Verne Todd's voluminous record collection filled every shelf in his garage and basement and spilled over onto the floor.

By the time he died three years ago at 83, Todd had accumulated one of the world's largest record collections — about 250,000 recordings, of all types of music, that may be worth $750,000 to $1 million.

"I sometimes wondered at my father's taste in music," said Judson Todd, riffling through a pile of Elvis Presley 45 rpm records. "But he'd always say, 'Caruso wasn't the only singer in the world, you know.'"

The collection's worth will be determined when it is sold sometime "in the immediate future," hopefully to a single buyer, Judson Todd said Thursday.

Police conning thieves out of millions of dollars

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — For three months, Rochester police officers asked local criminals what they knew about a fencing operation working out of an old downtown grocery store.

Word spread.

So when thieves began driving stolen cars into the garage behind the store this spring, they never suspected the "fence" who was buying the cars was really an undercover police agent.

Agents made deals for 64 stolen cars, paid $250,000 for other stolen property and in three months collected enough evidence to arrest 36 persons on 111 counts of possession of stolen property.

With greater frequency, police across the country are using "stings," phony fencing operations, to con thieves out of millions of dollars in stolen goods.

—In Buffalo, N.Y., an undercover officer posing as an antique dealer bought half a million dollars worth of stolen goods in nine months, including diamonds, pearls, rare coins, gold ingots and a 1655 Rembrandt painting stolen in France.

—In Memphis, Tenn., "Operation Hotstuff" convinced local criminals the proprietor of a wholesale lamp sales outlet was related to a former East Coast underworld boss. In eight months, agents had infiltrated interstate drug fencing organizations and arrested 74 persons, 73 of whom pleaded guilty to 224 felony indictments.

—In Los Angeles, the county sheriff's office and the FBI ran a 22-month sting that used seven storefront fencing operations to recover more than $42 million worth of contraband. More than 260 persons were arrested.

The operations were all part of a new federal attack on property crime, one that has seen $190 million worth of goods recovered with an expenditure of $6 million.

Responsible for the increase in anti-fencing operations is the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, which has funded 79 "sting" operations since 1974 and is now financing another 55.

The operations aim to disrupt the system by which stolen property is distributed. Taking away that market, LEAA officials say, is a new approach to cutting property crime, which accounts for about 90 percent of all crimes reported in the country.

"We're actively going after criminals instead of waiting for them to come to us," said Rochester Police Chief Thomas Hastings.

"Receiving stolen property is probably the biggest moneymaker for criminals in the country," said Rod Carr, a Syracuse, N.Y., police spokesman. "It's bigger than drugs, bigger than anything. And now that we have the funds from LEAA, we're finally doing something about it."

Since 1974, sting operations have led to more than 6,400 arrests across the country.

According to the LEAA, 8,691 indictments have been handed down, and because the evidence is so convincing, prosecutors have posted a conviction rate of better than 90 percent, more than 17 percent above the national average for criminal convictions.

Critics say the CAT scanners are too much of a good thing

NEW YORK (AP) — The computer-assisted tomography scanner has sparked such a revolution in medicine that some critics call it too much of a good thing.

The first "CAT" scanner was installed in a U.S. hospital in 1973, about two years after its development in Britain.

Today, there are more than 1,300 of the machines in this country, according to the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment, and the number is growing at about 20 a month, despite efforts to regulate them.

Private physicians in the nation own 227 CAT scanners — more than the total number in any other country in the world. And there are nearly as many CAT scanners in Kansas City — 17 — as in Sweden, where there are 20.

"I don't think there's a historical parallel of a technology becoming so widely accepted so fast at such a high cost," said Dr. David Banta, the OTA's manager of health programs.

What concerns critics is the high cost — estimated at $500,000 for the machine itself and $400,000 annual operating costs for the first five years — at a time when health care costs are skyrocketing.

Guidelines issued in March by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare say a CAT scanner isn't needed unless a hospital does more than 2,500 scans a year. But Banta said the national average is only 1,500 to 2,000 scans annually.

A head scan costs about $245 and a body scan about $275.

"The problem is Blue Cross, private insurance companies, Medicare and Medicaid all pay for CAT scans. It's not the physicians' fault. I think it's a system failure," Banta said.

But advocates point out that the new technology has revolutionized diagnosis and surgery for tumors and fractures of the head. It also has improved study of the kidneys, pancreas, adrenal glands and other internal organs that don't show up well on an ordinary X-ray.

"I believe CAT will replace enough other diagnostic procedures that its net cost will be very little. But for that to occur, CAT has to be widely available," said Dr. Ronald Evans, head of Mallinckrodt Institute of Radiology at Washington University in St. Louis.

The more than 200 health systems agencies set up by the 1974 Health Planning Act are the agencies that review whether a hospital really needs a CAT scanner.

Otha Linton, the American College of Radiology's chief lobbyist in Washington, says it's unfortunate that CATs came in at the same time the health planning agencies were set up.

"Instead of being welcomed as a dramatic new breakthrough, people who have supported it (CAT scanners) have had to fight their way through," he said.

Rita Fritz, head of technology policy for the American Hospital Associaton, predicted CAT scanners would eventually prove so useful that hospitals will wish they had more.

Baby in trash 'meant'

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The baker who found a newborn baby in his garage thinks the child was meant for him and wants to adopt the infant.

"The circumstances which led us to the baby make us think he was meant for us," says Perfecto Rodriguez.

Rodriguez, who has four daughters, found the healthy, 10-pound baby early Monday morning.

"He didn't look more than 20 minutes old," said Rodriguez, who has worked as a maternity ward orderly.

"We've been calling the welfare department every day to see what we can do to get the boy, but they haven't given us much hope," he added.

Fifth Ave. last stand for rats

NEW YORK (AP) — Rats on Fifth Avenue? About 1,000 of the rodents, displaced from Central Park by construction and a systematic effort to kill them, have dug in for a last stand outside some of Manhattan's poshest hotels and apartment buildings.

"They really aren't bothering anyone. They just aren't nice to have around," a technician said. "Rats are as indigenous to big cities as roaches, pigeons and even people."

At night the rats have been creeping from the park, looking for food left in trash bins along the park perimeter and for tidbits dropped by food vendors and their patrons who daily crowd the classy area near the Plaza and St. Moritz hotels and the FAO Schwarz toy store.

Chinese leader Hua on tour

PEKING (AP) — Chinese leader Hua Guofeng left Peking today on the first leg of a three-week tour of Western Europe.

The premier and party chairman left Peking at midmorning. He will spend the next two days in Urumqi, the capital of Xinjiang province, resting and conducting official business before heading to Europe.

Hua and his 15-member party arrive in Paris on Oct. 15, West Berlin on Oct. 21, London on Oct. 28 and Rome on Nov.3.

It is Hua's first trip to Western Europe and his third trip abroad. He has visited Yugsolavia, Romania, Iran and North Korea.

Hua has said his latest trip, the first to non-communist European countries, will help solidify China's political and economic relations with the West. He is downplaying any contact with European Communist parties and has emphasized that his is a state-to-state visit.

City may suffer from sign law

DALLAS (AP) — The first victim of a brouhaha over the city's sign ordinance may be the City of Dallas seal that illegally decorates the front of the Dallas City Hall.

A consultant hired to review the city's sign code said Tuesday that the seal is too close to the right of way and too large to comply with the ordinance.

Hance leads motion fight

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, D-Tex., in a major floor debate on oil price controls, called on Congress to "bite the bullet" and to "face up" to its earlier mistakes of imposing price controls on domestically-produced crude oil.

The Texas congresman drew applause from many of his colleagues on the House floor after his speech in which he emphasized that the amount of crude oil available and its price is strictly a "supply and demand situation" and should be left at that without government interference. The action came Thursday afternoon during debate on an amendment by Rep. Toby Moffett of Connecticut which would have overriden President Carter's decision to phase out controls. Moffett sought to reimpose price controls on oil but lost the debate. The House turned down the motion 257-135.

In his speech Hance traced the history of oil production to show how oil prices deopped whenever the free enterprise was left alone. Oil from the first wells in Pennsylvania dropped from $40 per barrel to "a dime a barrel" after independent businessmen began drilling, Hance emphasized. He also cited a U.S. Geological survey in 1900 which claimed no major significant oil reserves were left in the United States.

"In less than one year...Capital Lucas hit a well called Spindletop in Beaumont that flowed 100,000 barrels per day and in less than six months the price of oil in Beaumont dropped to a penny a barrel".

"I think it's a supply and demand situation and you can blame big oil, you can blame the OPEC countries, but the real blame goes back to this body (Congress)...by putting price controls on."

President wins decisive victories on oil-pricing

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, turning back efforts to reinstate price lids on home heating oil, diesel fuel and domestic crude oil, has given President Carter a free hand in setting oil-pricing policy.

In two decisive energy victories Thursday for the president, House members solidly rejected arguments by liberals that the administration's deregulation policies were lining oil industry pockets at the expense of American consumers.

The House first voted 257-135 to let stand Carter's plan for allowing the price of domestically produced crude oil to rise to world market levels by mid-1981. The president has said this is a crucial element in his drive reduce U.S. reliance on imported

Then, by a 243-124 margin, it turned down a proposal to reimpose price controls on heating oil and diesel fuel for the coming winter. Those ceilings were lifted in 1976 by then-President Gerald R. Ford. Carter has the power to reimpose them but has chosen not to do so.

"Decontrol must be the base for a rational energy program for our country," said Rep. Timothy Wirth, D-Colo., echoing the White House position. "We must be willing to admit to ourselves that the time of cheap energy is gone."

The votes on oil-pricing policy came as the House worked on legislation authorizing funds for the Department of Energy for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

The double-barreled action marked the first clear-cut energy victories the president has been given by the House in months. And they reversed two earlier non-binding votes by House Democrats renouncing the president's oil-pricing policies.

Imported crude oil, whose price is set by members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, now costs about $23 to $24 a barrel — roughly twice the average controlled price of U.S. oil.

Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn., leader of the forces pressing for price controls, argued that big oil companies have invested billions of dollars in new exploration anyway and do not need the added incentives provided by unrestricted prices.

Quake hits New Zealand

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — A major earthquake occurred today south of New Zealand, registering 7.7 on the Richter scale, the U.S. Geological Survey reported.

The quake was centered about 150 miles off the southern tip of South Island and some 700 southwest of the New Zealand capital of Wellington, according to the Survey's National Earthquake Information Service in Golden.

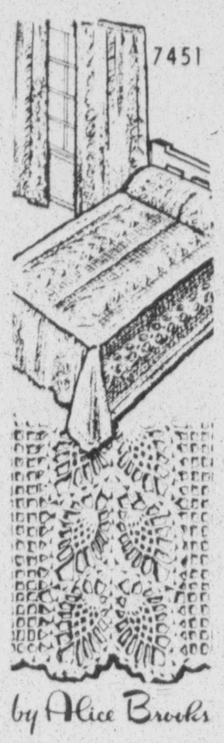

The quake occurred at 9:25 p.m. local time — 6:25 a.m. EDT.

Spokesman Don Finley said the earthquate was the strongest in the world since a shock that registered 8.0 in Indonesia on Sept. 12. He said there were no immediate reports of casualties or damage.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

An earthquake of 7 on the Richter Scale is considered a "major" earthquake, capable of widespread heavy damage.

Man has Carter to thank for check for solar house

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — John Craig says he has President Carter to thank for a $10,000 check he's getting from the federal government to help build his energy-saving solar house.

Craig, 24, learned Thursday from the Department of Energy the check will be in the mail within 30 days. The money is for him to use to complete drawings for the prototype of his passive solar home design.

News of the grant came six weeks after Craig asked Carter for help at a town meeting in Tampa — and two days before Democratic caucuses around the state where Carter and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., are competing for delegates to the state convention next month.

"If it wasn't for President Carter and the town hall meeting I feel government wouldn't have dealt with this at all," Craig said. "I'm very happy the president went as far as he did. But I'm disappointed, too."

Craig told energy officials he needed $48,000 to complete the first phase of his estimated $150,000 project. The $10,000, he says, will only cover cost of the drawings.

"The Department of Energy said we were lucky in getting $10,000 in 30 days — that usually it takes 12 months because of red tape," Craig said. "Why can't they eliminate the red tape for people like me?"

On Saturday, Florida Democrats will elect 879 delegates, with no presidential affiliations, to attend the party's state convention Nov. 16-18. At the convention, they and 838 other delegates picked by party leaders and elected officials will vote in a non-binding straw poll on presidential hopefuls.

The poll has no actual significance, since Florida's delegates to the Democratic National Convention will be chosen in a primary next March 11. But it is expected to have some psychological effect.

Craig's home county — Hillsborough — is considered a key battleground for central Florida. North Florida is generally thought to be in the Carter camp and South Florida in the Kennedy column.

White House press secretary Jody Powell has been quoted as acknowledging reports government agencies were directed to speed up federal grants earmarked for Florida.

n recent weeks, the federal government has announced grants of $31 million for housing for the elderly across the state and $26 million for public housing projects in Miami and a loan guarantee for an electrical co-op in the town of Palatka.

In Washington, Energy Department officials said the $10,000 grant had received priority handling because of Carter's personal assurance to Craig and not because of the approaching caucuses.

Man convicted for murder now witness for grand jury

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A Houston man convicted in a 1968 murder-for-hire is among 35 witnesses subpoenaed by a federal grand jury investigating the May 29 assassination of a federal judge and the assault last year on a federal prosecutor.

The witness, Charles V. Harrelson, 41, of Houston, was sentenced in 1973 to 15 years in prison in the July 6, 1968 slaying in the Rio Grande Valley of Hearne grain dealer Sam Degelia Jr. The first trial ended in a hung jury.

Harrelson and the other 34 witnesses have been subpoenaed to appear Wednesday and Thursday before the federal panel investigating the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. and the attempted assassination last Nov. 21 of Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr.

Other persons subpoenaed to testify next week include: members of the Bandidos motorcycle club; Peter Krutchewski, a friend of fugitive drug smuggler Jimmy Chagra, and Salvatore Michael Caruana, a Boston man the FBI has said in court has direct links to New England organized crime leaders.

The subpoenas do not mean Harrelson or any of the witnesses are targets of the Wood or Kerr investigations, only that investigators feel they can shed light on the cases.

Kerr, who had been heavily involved in a massive federal investigation of an international drug smuggling ring centered in El Paso, escaped serious injury when his car was riddled by bullets.

Wood, 63, was known as "Maximum John" for his stiff sentences in drug cases, including some arising from that investigation. A sniper cut down the judge with a single shot as Wood climbed into his car to leave for work.

No arrests have been made in either case.

Harrelson, a dental supply salesman from Houston at the time of the Degelia shooting, completed his parole Oct. 24, 1978, according to the State Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Testimony in the 1973 trial revealed that Harrelson shot Degelia twice in the back of the head with a .25-caliber pistol at the request of Degelia's partner, Pete Scarmado.

Scarmado, a pallbearer at Degelia's funeral, was convicted by an Edinburg jury as an accomplice in the slaying and received a seven-year probated sentence.

Harrelson was acquitted of murder charges stemming from the 1968 slaying in Angleton of Alan Berg, a Houston carpet firm executive.

A witness testified during the 1973 trial that Harrelson had told her he killed Degelia as a favor to Scarmado ecause Harrelson had lost some heroin belonging to Scarmado.

Feud over federally-funded abortions has little impact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of abortions underwritten by the federal government has decreased so drastically that the congressional feud over money to finance the operations has had little impact.

The House and Senate have been locked in conflict since late last month over conditions under which the government's Medicaid program will pay for abortions for poor women.

The disagreement, which spilled over into the fiscal year that began Oct. 1, has tied up the budget for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which oversees Medicaid, and dozens of other federal agencies.

Even before the latest congressional dispute on abortion payments heated up, however, the number of federally financed abortions had begun falling noticeably with enforcement of federal restrictions on abortion payments.

Where Medicaid reimbursed states for 300,000 abortions in 1976, only 4,800 have been underwritten with federal money since Feb. 14, 1978, said Patricia Schoeni, spokeswoman for the Health Care Financing Administration.

Six states did not claim any federal reimbursement — California, Hawaii, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota and Montana. In many cases, a state will pay the full cost of a poor woman's abortion when the procedure does not meet the federal criteria.

Medicaid pays about half the cost of abortions that fall within the federal restrictions.

"This impasse will not have very much impact," Ms. Schoeni said.

"Whatever they're doing (the states), they're going ahead" and just not asking for any federal reimbursement, she said.

Until Sept. 30, when the legislation that funds Medicaid and other HEW programs expired, the federal government would pay for abortions if a woman's life was endangered by a pregnancy, in cases of rape or incest that had been reported promptly to authorities

Pirates even World Series in rain

BALTIMORE (AP) — The two men involved in one of baseball's most unusual trades combined Thursday night to tie the 1979 World Series between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Baltimore Orioles at 1-1.

Manny Sanguillen, 35, ripped a single to right, scoring catcher Ed Ott with the winning run in the top of the ninth to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 3-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

ONLY TWO years ago, the Pirates felt the aging Sanguillen from Panama was expendable. They shipped him and a reported $100,000 to Oakland for A's Manager Chuck Tanner, who replaced the late Danny Murtaugh as Pittsburgh field boss.

It isn't everyday you see a player traded for a manager.

The Pirates, however, hadn't forgotten Sanguillen was an intregal part of their last World Series team in 1971.

After one season in Oakland, Pittsburgh reacquired Sanguillen for three players. He was relegated to bullpen work and pinch-hitting.

"Anything we do in this Series," said Sanguillen in his halting English, "we are doing for (the late) Roberto Clemente."

CLEMENTE IS a Hall of Fame outfielder who was the most valuable player in the 1971 Series for the Pirates in a seven-game triumph over Baltimore. He died in a plane crash while on a mercy mission Dec. 31, 1972.

"Roberto was with me in spirit," Sanguillen said. "My hit — all I do to help the ball club win — is for him."

After Clemente's plane crashed, Sanguillen personally made dives into the ocean, looking for his friend and teammate. Finally, friends convinced Sanguillen that his plunges into the choppy water were too dangerous.

"I wasn't thinking about Roberto when I was at the plate," Sanguillen said. "But after the game ... after we won, it came to my mind.

"If Roberto was alive, he might be a coach or a manager, but he is still with us. God took him away from us. That is the way life is and it will happen to us all some time. But I still have roberto in my heart."

In the ninth inning Thursday night, with rain sweeping across Memorial Stadium, Tanner called upon the craggy veteran who had helped make a Tanner dream come true.

TANNER WANTED to manage the Pirates ever since he was a boy in New Castle, Pa., near Pittsburgh.

The Pirates had runners at first and second with two out and the score tied 2-2 on the cold, wet night. Tanner told Sanguillen to grab a bat and go out to face ace Orioles reliever Dan Stanhouse.

The Pittsburgh runners were Ott, who had singled, and Phil Garner, who had walked. Stanhouse went to one ball and two strikes on Sanguillen before he threw a pitch out of the strike zone.

Sanguillen, one of the best bad-ball hitters in baseball during his prime, still swings at anything he can reach. He slammed the outside pitch on a line to right for a single.

OTT NEVER stopped as he lit out from second and just slid under the tag of Orioles catcher Rick Dempsey on a relay from outfielder Ken Singleton to first baseman Eddie Murray to the plate.

In the bottom of the ninth, Pirates reliever Kent Tekulve, who saved 31 games during the regular season, came in and did his act. He retired the side in order, striking out two, and the Pirates headed home for three games in Three Rivers Stadium.

Sanguillen was asked what pitch he was looking for from Stanhouse.

"I just tried to make contact. I don't try to pull the ball with two strikes. He made a good pitch, but it was outside. I don't think it was a strike," Sanguillen said.

Tanner plans to use left-hander John Candelaria in tonight's third game against Baltimore left-hander Scott McGregor, who won the deciding game of the American League playoffs for Baltimore.

The Pirates built an early 2-0 lead in the second inning behind starter Bert Blyleven. Willie Stargell, John Milner and Bill Madlock singled in succession, Stargell scoring, and Ott delivered a sacrifice fly to send home Milner.

THE ORIOLES pecked away at Blyleven, scoring a run in the second on a home run by Murray, who has four hits and three walks in the two games.

In the sixth, Ken Singleton singled and Murray doubled him home to tie the score. That's the way it stayed until Sanguillen did his thing.

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver refused to second-guess Murray on cutting off Singleton's throw trying to cut down Ott in the ninth.

"The third base coach sent him home. We were trying to force the play. They (the Pirates) won the National League pennant and are probably going to make the play more than they won't. When you shoot craps, sometimes you lose," Weaver said.

Tanner was asked if he was playing a hunch when he pinch-hit with Sanguillen.

"No, I wasn't," Tanner replied. "I know Sanguillen can handle the bat, and with the type of pitcher Stanhouse is, I felt he could do the job."

Stanhouse said of the pitch Sanguillen hit: "It was a slider. It didn't slide at all. Today it was him. Maybe tomorrow it will be me."

Murray said he cut off Singleton's throw because he thought the ball was off line.

Singleton said he would rather have seen his throw go through, but admitted it was a split-second decision.

"Eddie (Murray) did what he thought he had to do. I thought we still could have had him, even after the cutoff," Singleton said.

Texas-OU battle tops SWC action

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

While the eyes of Texas and Oklahoma are on the annual Red River roughhouse between the two state schools in the Cotton Bowl, there will be some vital Southwest Conference football matchups Saturday particularly the joust between Baylor and Southern Methodist.

SOUTHERN METHODIST can stretch its SWC ledger to 3-0 with a victory over the Bears.

Baylor could make its record 3-1 with a win before an expected 60,000 fans Saturday night in Texas Stadium an hour or so after the Longhorns and Sooners battle it out across town.

Rice and winless Texas Christian plays for cold scraps in Houston but defending champion Houston puts its unblemished bib on the line in College Station against the frustrated but talented Texas Aggies.

ARKANSAS IS at Texas Tech to play the rejuvenated Red Raiders.

Texas is a one-point pick over Oklahoma while Baylor is rated a one-point nod over SMU. The Houston-A&M game is "pick 'em" and Rice is a four-point favorite over TCU.

Arkansas is a field-goal pick over Texas Tech.

Baylor has burning memories of blowing a 21-point lead to the Mustangs in Waco last year before losing 28-21.

"SMU sure did humiliate us last year," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "They had a chance to go under but never did. I would think if I was a (Baylor) youngster that would mean something. We're much better than we were a year ago, but so is SMU."

SMU was idle a week after losing to Tulane.

"These next four games will determine what kind of a season we have," said SMU defensive tackle Harvey Armstrong. "It will tell us how we finish in the conference and whether we go to a bowl game. We know how tough Baylor can be."

MUSTANG NOSEGUARD Charles Hunt added, "Rough, that's what Baylor is. They'll be the most physical team we've faced this year."

Baylor cornerback Howard Fields said, "We've got something to prove to SMU this week. Last year they beat us because our secondary let down and allowed four touchdown passes."

Pack seeking to rebound against Steers tonight

By BOD DILLON
Sports Writer

What kind of character do the Midland Bulldogs have?

Midland fans will find out tonight when the Pack entertains the Big Spring Steers in Memorial Stadium in a District 5-4A football game.

Coach Dennie Hays' Purple Pack will be coming off a 35-6 defeat at the hands of Odessa Permian while Big Spring lost to Abilene, 26-0 last week in its 5-4A opener.

Kickoff is set for 8 p.m. with Radio Station KCRS doing the play-by-play of the game.

Midland takes a 3-1 season record into the game compared to the Steers' 1-3 reading. Their only win came over Hobbs, N.M. by a 7-0 count three weeks ago.

"We need to bounce back and I feel like we will. We have a good group of youngsters, but Big Spring will not be easy tonight. They (Big Spring) are probably as large as Cooper in the line, so we could be in for a long night if we don't bounce back," said Hays.

Last year, Midland won, 21-12 and Hays and his staff still fell like the Pack will go on and have a good season despite the loss to Mojo.

PHYSICALLY, THE Bulldogs have a few bumps and bruises and will go with the same lineup as last week and in the previous three weeks when they polished off Amarillo Tascosa, El Paso Eastwood and Lubbock Monterey. Monterey, by the way, is 4-1 on the year and thumped Hobbs, 49-0 last week. Monterey's only loss was to Midland, 22-21.

Michael Feldt will again take the snap from center Steve Mills tonight in trying to crank up the Bulldog offense which had troubles last week-end. One back for the Pack who did have a good night was senior fullback Jeff Robnett. The 175-pounder rushed for 102 yards in 13 carries, including a 67-yard touchdown jaunt against the Panthers last week. He is the No. 3 rusher in 5-4A behind Abilene's Leo Parrish, a talented sophomore and Permian's Ricky Reynolds.

Midland is sixth in offense and seventh in defense after one league game while the Steers are last in offense and sixth in team defense.

JOHNNY MARQUEZ, a 160-pound junior, is the No. 2 passer in 5-4A after one week of action. He connected on five of 16 passes for 75 yards last week and he has good receivers in wingback Mike Domino and split end Joe Willie Jones. Both have good speed and could spell some problems for the Bulldog secondary which gave up 104 yards passing last week to Permian.

The Steers can also insert Greg Jones, a 220-pound junior at the fullback slot in the place of Conway.

The Steers have good size up front in the enterior line with the likes of Jerry Bennett (200), Steve Painter (220), Jack Odom (210) and Mark Knight (198) while on defense, all four also play too, giving them good size both ways.

Besides Marquez, the other quarterback is David Coffey, a 160-pound junior who hit three of seven passes for 13 yards against the Abilene Eagles.

HAYS WILL start Robnett, Feldt along with Billy Applin, 192-pound senior tailback and Russel Hays, 150-pound junior, at wingback again. Feldt is a 6-foor-1, 197-pound junior signal-caller.

The Bulldog are anxious to play well in front of the home folks this week and after a slow start on Monday, they had good practices the rest of the week, according to Hays.

Coach Ron Logback is highly-impressed with the Bulldogs. "They (Midland) played especially well on defense last week against Permian and after the first half, I thought had a chance to upset the Panthers," said Logback. Logback went on to say that Hays and his staff have done a good job this season. "We know we will have our hands full and the Bulldogs may just be a little bit mad over the Permian game which won't help us any."

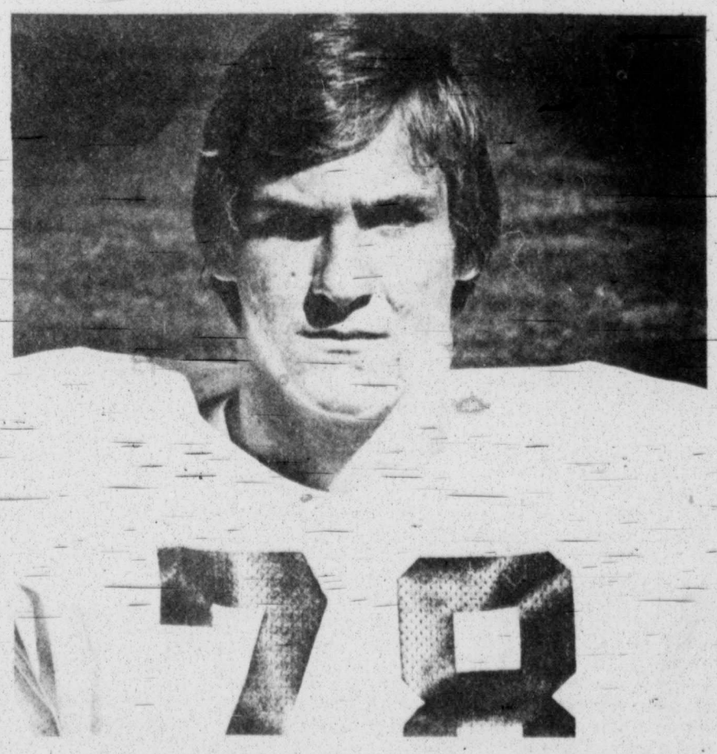

The Bulldogs' defense is led by linebacker Rick Ankerholz along with Bill Young, Jerry Dedrick, Hays and Wade Johnson. Royce Cottrell and Johnson give the Pack some size too at 228 and 230 pounds, respectively while David Vinson (195) and Gary Willis (197) are a pair of promising junior tackles that start for the Bulldogs.

Pittsburgh wants to win four in row

BALTIMORE (AP) — Catcher Ed Ott says the Pittsburgh Pirates plan no return trip to Baltimore.

"We went into this game thinking — knowing — that we were going to take the next four in a row," Ott said Thursday night after he scored the winning run in the ninth inning as Pittsburgh beat Baltimore 3-2 in Game Two of the World Series.

The Series now stands at a victory apiece. The Pirates could end it with victories on their home turf tonight, Saturday and Sunday.

"We didn't want to repeat the 1971 World Series by going home no games to two," said Ott.

"We all got together and said four-out-of five is not bad. That's the way we feel. We feel we can take four in a row — this one here and three in Pittsburgh."

With two out in the Pittsburgh ninth. Ott hit a bouncer on the wet grass that took a funny bounce and hit second baseman Billy Smith in the chest. Ott was safe at first and it was ruled a base hit.

"Smith didn't get a glove on it," said Ott. "It hit him and broke a chain he had around his neck. He showed me the chain when I got to second base.

Ott got to second when Don Stanhouse walked Phil Garner. Then Manny Sanguillen lined a pinch single to right.

Though the basepaths were muddy, Ott made a neat turn around third, then slid home ahead of the throw.

"I don't run fast enough to slip. I don't run fast enough to take a wide turn," Ott said with a laugh. "It was the ideal situation for me."

Meanwhile, it wasn't quite the ideal situation for winning Pirate reliever Don Robinson.

While Robinson was dealing with a muddy mound and the Orioles, his wife, Rhonda, was at home in Pittsburgh expecting their first child any day, maybe any hour.

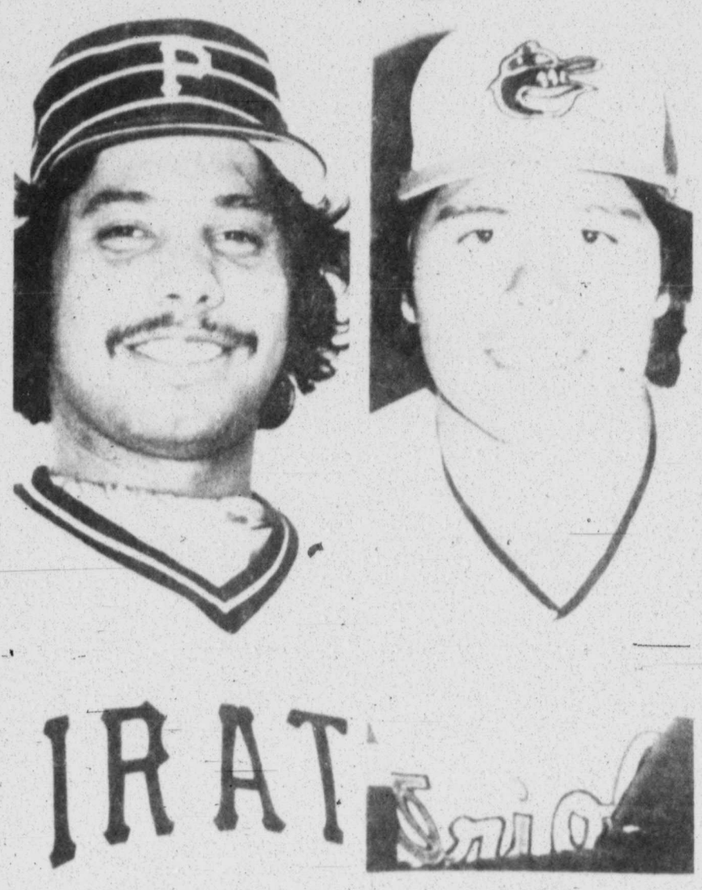

"I didn't think about it when I was on the mound," Robinson said. "You don't think about that when Ken Singleton is up to bat with the bases loaded."

Robinson got out of the jam bu striking out Singleton. He was aided by a slick double play in the eighth and reliever Kent Tekulve, who put the Orioles away in order in the ninth.

Pirate relief pitchers managed 82-3 scoreless innings in a first-game loss to Baltimore. They added three more scoreless innings Thursday night.

"I really don't think Baltimore can hold a candlestick to our relief pitching," said Ott.

"We've got the advantage going back to Pittsburgh," said Robinson. 'We'll be on artificial turf. We'll be in front of our fans. This was a great big win for us."

Oppossing pitchers in tonight's third game of the World Series will be Pittsburgh's John Candelaria, left, against Baltimore's Tippy Martinez, right, as the two powers stand 1-1 after the first two games. The Bucs won Thusday night, 3-2 to even the Series. (AP Laserphoto).

Orioles not miracle workers

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles won 37 games in the seventh inningor later this season, but they came up short by muffing two excellent chances in the second game of the World Series.

After Ken Singleton struck out with the bases loaded in the seventh and John Lowenstein grounded into an unusual double play in the eighth, the American League champions dropped a 3-1 decision to the Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday night to even the series at 1-1.

"Sometimes these guys aren't miracle men," Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver said. "They can't come through every time they come to the plate. It's just impossible. That's a fact.

"We had a shot to do it," Weaver added. "All you can hope is that they come through. They've been doing it all year."

Singleton, who led the Orioles during the regular season with 111 RBI, struck out in the seventh after Pittsburgh reliever Don Robinson had walked three batters.

In the eighth, following a single by Eddie Murray and an error by shortstop Tim Foli on an attempted force, Lowenstein swung away. Foli fielded the grounder, forced Doug DeCinces at second and then Murray was trapped in a rundown for the second out.

"I chose for Lowenstein to win me the ball game," Weaver said, explaining why he didn't order a sacrifice bunt. "I figured it was as good a shot as we were going to get all night."

Murray drove in both Baltimore runs with a homer and a double, but the Orioles had five runners stranded in scoring position. Four of them reached third base, including Murray, who was doubled at the plate trying to score on a fly by Lowenstein in the sixth.

"Parker was in close," Weaver said, referring to Pittsburgh right fielder Dave Parker, "But we shot the dice and they rolled up snake eyes. I'm glad I wasn't in Vegas."

Commenting on the repeated questions about not bunting, Weaver said: "Now if I was God or had one of them crystal balls, that would be different. But I'm not and I don't."

The winning run scored in the ninth on a two-out pinch single by Manny Sanguillen, Ed Ott sliding across the plate after first baseman Murray cut off a throw by right fielder Ken Singleton.

Singleton thought his throw was on target and Dempsey had taken a step up the line to block Ott. But Murray cut it off because "I just thought the ball was off line."

Dempsey said when he retreated to take the relay from Murray, "I didn't know where home plate was. Eddie is generally really good at doing that, so I can't complain."

Loser Don Stanhouse, who is playing out his option, said he wasn't worried about serving up the winning hit.

Frosty night on tap for World Series

PITTSBURGH (AP) — It looks to be another night of frosty breath, frozen hands and a slippery playing surface.

The National Weather Service says Game No. 3 of the World Series tonight between the Baltimore Orioles and the Pittsburgh Pirates likely will feature temperatures below Thursday's high 30s and low 40s in Baltimore.

And that rain which slickened things in the late going of Game 2 is likely to make a return appearance. That is, unless the night features snow flurries instead, the forecasters say.

Sanguillen dedicates game-winning hit to Roberto Clemente

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

BALTIMORE (AP) — "I carry the memory of Roberto Clemente in my heart," said Manny Sanquillen, sweat dripping from his shaggy black beard and another kind of water oozing from his flashing dark eyes. "I dedicate my winning hit to Roberto. I hope we play the whole series for Roberto."

Baseball is a sentimental game and sentiment prevailed Thursday night when this 35-year-old third-string catcher with an anemic .230 batting average was called out of the bullpen to strike the blow that sends the 1979 World Series to Pittsburgh tied at a game apiece with the Baltimore Orioles.

His ninth-inning, two-out single to right scored Ed Ott from second with the run that gave the Pirates a rain-drenched 3-2 victory.

"Roberto, he was always an inspiration for me," the bench-warmer said afterward. "I never forget the 1971 World Series. Roberto, he tells everybody, 'Get us in the World Series and I hit .400 and win it for you.' That's what he did."

The 1971 Series between these same two teams went seven games, with the Pirates rallying from an 0-2 deficit to win it. Clemente batted .414, hit two home runs and pulled off spectacular fielding plays to dominate the series.

It became known as the "Roberto Clemente Series." Spurred by his baseball idol, a younger Sanguillen himself got 11 hits in the series and batted .379.

Fourteen months later, the talented Clemente died in a plane cash carrying supplies to victims of the Nicarauguan earthquake.

Defense vs. offense in big OU-Texas battle

By The Associated Press

Texas has the defense and Oklahoma the offense. And both have yards of emotional intensity for their annual "Battle of Big D" football game Saturday.

"Texas simply has the finest defense in the country," said Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer as he prepared to play Texas in Dallas.

Oklahoma's high-powered offense has produced 45.5 points and 442 yards a game. The Texas defense, meanwhile, has allowed only 165 yards and six points per game thus far.

Both schools come into the Red River rivalry unbeaten for the 22nd time. Third-ranked Oklahoma is 4-0 and No. 4 Texas is 3-0.

"They won't be the best offense we've faced this year, but their defense is their pride," says Sooner defensive back Mike Babb.

Texas leads the overall series 43-27-3 but the teams are tied 16-16-1 since World War II.

There's little problem getting them ready for this game.

"We have a lot of starters from Texas," said Babb.

The only Oklahoman on the Texas team is tight end Steve Hall.

Switzer says there's "no other matchup this year like it in collegiate football."

Some 72,000 fans are expected to witness the nationally televised meeting in the Cotton Bowl.

In other games involving the Top Ten teams, No. 1 Southern Cal plays host to Stanford, No. 2 Alabama visits Florida, Kansas plays No. 5 Nebraska, No. 6 Washington tackles Arizona State, No. 7 Houston plays at Texas A&M, Indiana visits No. 8 Ohio State, No. 9 Florida State is host to Mississippi State and No. 10 Notre Dame plays Air Force.

Elsewhere, it's Minnesota at No. 11 Michigan, No. 12 Arkansas at Texas Tech, No. 13 LSU at Georgia, Wake Forest at No. 14 North Carolina, Oklahoma State at No. 15 Missouri, No. 16 BYU at Utah State, Maryland at No. 17 North Carolina State, Vanderbilt at No. 18 Auburn, No. 19 Michigan State at Wisconsin and Illinois at No. 20 Purdue.

Southern Cal Coach John Robinson is concerned with Stanford's air attack, among other things.

"They pass the ball and have good quarterbacks and good receivers," said Robinson. "And, as usual, they're hard to figure out. When they played Army, you wondered if Stanford even realized it was a real game. Then they came back and played good against UCLA."

Stanford lost to Tulane and Army, then beat San Jose State and Boston College before upsetting UCLA 27-24 last Saturday to put the Cardinals' Pac-10 mark at 1-0. Southern Cal is 5-0, 2-0 in the conference.

Florida's team is riddled with injuries for the Alabama game.

"If we had a healthy team, some momentum going and hadn't missed part of our spring and fall practice work, there would be room for a lot of special feelings," Florida Coach Charley Pell said. "But with the problems we're concerned with, we don't have time for special feelings."

Newlin traded

HOUSTON (AP) — Guard Mike Newlin, a nine-year veteran who had played with the Houston Rockets since the National Basketball Association franchise was established, is on his way to New Jersey.

The Rockets traded the 6-foot-5 guard from Utah to the New Jersey Nets Thursday for a second-round draft choice and an undisclosed amount of cash.

The Rockets also waived guard Slick Watts and placed Alan Leavell, Paul Mokeski and Jacky Dorsey on injured reserve in order to bring the team roster within the 11-man limit.

Newlin has a 14-point career scoring average, and hit 10.2 points per game last year.

"Basically, the fourth guard on your club will play 600 minutes a year and the fifth guard plays zero," said Rockets General Manager Ray Patterson. "We felt like with Calvin Murphy and Tom Henderson starting and with Mike Dunleavy and Rudy White playing well behind them, we were well set at guard.

"Mike has always expressed an interest to be a starting player, and he'll have that opportunity with the New Jersey team," Patterson said.

Newlin had three years to go on his present contract at more than $200,000 a season.

Lopez Melton trying comeback

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Seven over par and 10 shots out of the lead, Nancy Lopez Melton says: "I think I can come back." She is making a bid to become the first on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour to win $200,000 in one year.

But it will be an uphill struggle for Melton, whose 79 in Thursday's opening round was her worst round of the year. Jan Stephenson and Shelly Hamlin shot 3-under-par 69s for the first 18 holes of the 72-hole, $100,000 tour event over the 6,100-yard Elizabeth Manor course.

Amy Alcott and Joanne Carner were one shot back at 70, while Sandra Spuzich birdied the last two holes for a 71. An eight-way tie at par-72 included Sandra Post, the No.2 money winner on the tour this season with $151,000.

"I was under par and playing well and I made two dumb, rookie mistakes," said Stephenson, the 27-year-old blonde from Australia who ranks No.16 on the money list with $61,000. At a time she was two under regulation, Stephenson said, "I misjudged the distance on the par-3 hole (No. 6) and the ball buried in a sand trap. I lost concentration and left the ball in the sand. I just lost my head, I guess." It cost her a double bogey.

But Stephenson, who had six birdies for the day, rallied to go 4 under through 16 holes.

"On the 17th, I made a bad chip shot after working all week on my short game. I was so mad about the chip shot I missed the putt from two feet," Stephenson said. That cost her a bogey, and she then missed a 6-foot birdie putt on the 18th.

The 30-year-old Hamlin, a former national collegiate champion from Stanford, also had six birdies. She missed a 5-foot putt on the 17th for a bogey, then also missed a 6-foot birdie putt on the final hole.

While there was only a slight wind, the course was wet from an all-day rain Wednesday and temperatures were in the mid-50s.

"I'm a bad weather player, although today I hit the ball fairly consistently and the main thing is, I'm missing the shots better," said Hamlin, who missed just three greens. "At least I'm missing them straight now."

Melton, whose earnings this year stand at $193,750, shot a 1-under-par 34 on the front nine, then took three double bogeys — including the last two holes — on the back.

"I don't think a pro golfer should ever make a double bogey," said Melton, who skipped last week's tournament at Wheeling, W.Va.

"I wasn't hitting the ball solidly at all. I didn't practice last week and that turned out to be a mistake. I never felt comfortable in my stance all day," she added.

Carter knee surgery is termed successful

Freshman defensive tackle Mike Carter, SMU, was recovering from surgery for removal of torn cartilage in his left knee. Carter, a shot put champion who aspires to compete in the 1980 Olympics, will not play football for the rest of the season, but the operation was termed a success... Austin College tailback Kelly Hyde was named offensive player of the week by the TIAA and Tarleton State's Dan Smalley was named as defensive player of the week. Hyde, a junior from Arlington, carried the ball 18 times for 87 yards and two touchdowns, and caught three passes for 54 yards and another touchdown in leading Austin to a 31-10 win over Sul Ross State...Texas A&M officials are warning football fans planning to attend Saturday's game with Houston to arrive early because of construction work in progress at Kyle Field... Texas Coach Fred Akers disagrees with those who see Saturday's contest between his No. 4 Longhorns and No. 3-ranked Oklahoma as mostly a classic matchup between his defense and their offense. "I know for a fact that Oklahoma has a very good defense, and I feel that we have a good offense, Maybe our defense is our stronger part and their offense is theirs, but both teams will have to play all phases of the game and play them well."...

Beat Texas rally draws 3,500 fans

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Some 3,500 University of Oklahoma fans gathered here Thursday night to rally for the Sooners in preparation for Saturday's clash with the Longhorns in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas.

The rally was the 75th annual Beat Texas Rally and was complete with pompom girls, cheerleaders and the Pride of Oklahoma marching band.

Nothing connected with the University of Texas was saved from ridicule, expecially the Longhorn mascot Bevo, whose papier mache look-alike was collared and thrown to the ground by OU Ruf-Neks.

One Texas native son renounced his Yellow Rose heritage and quickly sided with the Sooners of Oklahoma.

"I had the misfortune of being born in that second-rate state," said OU President Bill Banowsky. "But my father assures me that I was probably conceived in the state of Oklahoma."

Banowsky warned that the Longhorns are going to be ready because "we seriously embarrassed them last year."

His upside down hook 'em horns sign brought cheers from the crowd, but it was the appearance of Sooner Coach Barry Switzer that brought the fans to their feet.

Calling the matchup one of the great classics of college football, Switzer said there are millions of athletes who have played the game but never know the incredible feeling of standing on the ramp of the Cotton Bowl in Dallas for an OU-Texas game.

While he didn't make any predictions, Switzer said the team would give its best effort.

Paul Tabor, Sherwood Taylor, George Cumby and J.C. Watts attended the rally, but Switzer said the Sooner starters were just too shy to talk.

"We'll do our talking on the field Saturday," Watts said.

Bean captures Japanese lead

NAGOYA, Japan (AP) — Andy Bean, winner of the Atlanta Golf Classic last June, fired a 3-under-par 69 for a 36-hole total of 138 today to take over the halfway lead in the $180000 Tokai Classic golf tournament.

Playin under clear weather, the 6-foot-4 American pro scored a 34-35 card which gave him a one-stroke lead over first-round lader Hsieh Minnan of Taiwan and three Japanese pros: Yutaka Suzuki, Kazuo Yoshikawa and Tsutomu Irie.

Hsieh, the 1979 Japan PGA champion, shot an even par 72, Suzuki 68, Yoshikawa 70 and Irie 69 for a two-round total of 139 on the 6,460-meter, par-72 Miyoshi Country Club course near here.

Two strokes back at 140 were Ben Arda, a veteran Filipino pro, and Japanese pros Seiji Kusakabe, Kikuo Kitta, Seiichi Kanai and Joji Yokoi.

Bickham will sue Baylor

WACO, Texas (AP) — Former Baylor quarterback Sammy Bickham Jr. has filed a $2 million lawsuit accusing the school of fraudulent recruiting practices, broken promises and causing physical injuries.

Bickham complained he suffered "irreparable physical damage" after he was given pain-killing drugs and sent back onto the field "without appropriate medical supervision."

Bickham played football and baseball for Baylor before transferring to Southern Methodist in 1977 during his sophomore year, and played baseball last season at SMU.

The suit claims Bickham, 21, suffered "a severe injury to his left knee in the course of a football game which has left him permanently disabled and which has required extensive medical and surgical treatment."

Bickham and Baylor Head Coach Grant Teaff both declined to comment on the suit, which was filed Wednesday by attorneys Richard "Racehorse" Haynes and Sam D. Rhem of Houston.

The action also accused Baylor of "fradulent tactics" in recruiting Bickham in the fall of 1975 and the spring of 1976.

Bickham contended he came to Baylor on the strength of several unfulfilled promises made to him by Teaff and baseball coach Mickey Sullivan.

The suit alleged that Baylor recruiters told Bickham he was "the best athlete and ... they would provide him with the best football team in the state to compliment his passing ability and to protect him from being hurt ... that they would look after (Bickham) as if he were their own son."

MHS, Lee win volleyball tilts

The Midland High and Midland Lee volleyball teams both notched their second straight victories in District 5-4A play Thursday night.

Both teams are now 3-3 in the first half race heading into Tuesday's battle between the two schools at Midland High. Junior varsity action begins at 6 p.m. with the varsity matchup to follow.

Midland High defeated Abilene Cooper Thursday in Abilene in a hard fought 6-12, 15-6, 15-12 contest while Lee downed Abilene High, 15-7, 4-15, 15-13, in another close battle at the Lee gym.

The Midland High JVs ran their record to 2-4 with their second straight victory, a 14-12, 9-15, 13-8 win over Cooper. The Lee JVs fell short to Abilene High by a 15-9, 15-12 score.

Canadiens open NHL season with 3-1 win over Flames

By The Associated Press

"Boom Boom" Geoffrion made a lot of noise through the years in the National Hockey League.

Thursday night, they made some noise for him when the onetime Montreal star returned to coach the Canadiens.

"I was very moved by the ovation," said Geoffrion, whose real name is Bernie and who played brilliantly for Montreal in the 1950s and 1960s.

His coaching was up to his playing standards as the Canadiens opened their season with a 3-1 victory over the Atlanta Flames.

"The old saying is that the best offense is a good defense," said Larry Robinson, who scored one of the Canadiens' goals. "This year is not any different than last year. When Scotty Bowman was here, he stressed the defensive part of our game, cutting down on our goals against."

Elsewhere in the NHL, Boston beat Winnipeg 4-0, Minnesota stopped Hartford 4-1, Buffalo defeated Washington 6-3, Philadelphia turned back the New York Islanders 5-2 and St. Louis and Colorado played to a 3-3 tie.

Robinson's goal at 16:05 gave the Canadiens a 2-1 lead and their eventual winning point. While being the first victory for Geoffrion with Montreal, it was actually his 100th in the NHL. He recorded 59 victories with the Flames and 40 as the coach of New York Rangers.

Bruins 4, Jets 0

Al Secord scored 40 seconds into the game to trigger Boston over Winnipeg, last year's champions in the now-defunct World Hockey Association.

North Stars 4, Whalers 1

Brad Maxwell, Bobby Smith and Steve Payne scored first-period goals, powering Minnesota over Hartford. Gary Edwards was outstanding in goal for Minnesota, blanking the Whalers until 14:15 of the final period.

Sabres 6, Capitals 3

Danny Gare scored two goals and assisted on another to pace Buffalo over Washington. The Sabres scored twice in the opening three minutes, then added two more goals within 29 seconds to go ahead for good in the second period.

Flyers 5, Islanders 2

Goals by Paul Holmgren, Brian Propp and Al Hill in an 81-second span of the second period led Philadelphia past the New York Islanders. The victory was the first for the Flyers over the Islanders in two seasons.

Blues 3, Rockies 3

Ralph Klassen capped a three-goal rally in the third period to help St. Louis gain a tie with Colorado. Until the Blues erupted for the final three goals of the game, the Rockies had delighted a home opening-night crowd of 12,815 who had come out for Coach Don Cherry's debut.

Girl wins right to play on boys team

ST. LOUIS, Mich. (AP) — Ninth-grader Rebecca C. Humphrey has won the right to practice with the freshman football team at St. Louis Hgh Schoolin Gratiot County.

Midland County Circuit Judge Tyrone Gillespie issued a temporary order allowing the 5-foot-5, 155-pound girl to practice with the all-male team for the last two weeks of the season, starting Thursday.

The order was issued at a preliminary hearing Wednesday.

On Aug. 29, school officials told her that she would not be eligible to practice with the team.

Her father, Marvin, hired a lawyer, Gerald L. White, who told the judge that school officials were discriminating against the girl on the basis of sex.

The school board acted legally when it prohibited the girl from playing on the football team, Harry Zeliff, a lawyer for St. Louis schools, told the judge. Zeliff also suggested there were other school sports that Rebecca could play.

The ninth-grader told the judge she was not interested in playing any sport except football.

Gillespie said that in light of current mores, the school board took a "natural path" in restricting her from playing on a boys' team. He said, however, that some women are athletically superior to some men and should be given the opportunity to try.

She has said she hopes to play next year on the school's junior varsity football team. Gillespie set a full hearing for Nov. 8.

"What we're concerned with now is putting her on an equal footing for continuing through the system," said White. "Let her try now."

Gillespie's temporary order does not require the coach to allow her to play in the team's two remaining games.

The girl's goal is to play in the National Women's Football League.

Richard inks pact with Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Major-league strikeout king J.R. Richard is staying in Houston.

Astros General Manager Tal Smith announced Thursday that Richard has signed a four-year contract extending through 1983. Smith did not disclose the financial details of the contract, however.

Richard led the National League in strikeouts this season with 313 and became the first NL pitcher to fan 300 or more batters in consecutive seasons since Sandy Koufax did it in 1955-56.

He struck out 303 in 1978 to become the first right-hander in the league to break the 300 mark.

Hawks waive veteran

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Hawks waived a second-year veteran and two free agents to reduce their roster to the 11-man limit for the season-opener against the New York Knicks today, the National Basketball Association team announced Thursday.

McCullough leads Open

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Mike McCullough was feeling pretty good after taking the first round lead at the $200,000 Southern Open Golf Tournament but so was defending champion Jerry Pate, who plays the tournament like he owns it.

McCullough blasted out a 5-under-par 65, which he hopes will help end a six-month slump during which he earned less than $4,000. But his play over the hilly, 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club course Thursday couldn't shake Pate.

The 26-year-old former U.S. Open winner, who has dominated this event for the past two years by capturing the title with par-shredding play, was at 66, along with Eddie Pearce.

Pate, who has earned $188,000 this year without a victory, said he's still confident of taking the first prize of $36,000.

"I have to feel confident," he said. "I play this course better than any I've played. I averaged 66.9 strokes here for eight rounds (in winning the past two years) and still haven't been in the 70s."

The Pensacola, Fla., resident said he feels three more 66s would be more than enough to win, conceding that "12-under par would do it."

—McCullough, who had earned about $37,000 after four months this year before falling into his slump, had failed to survive the cut in his last four tournaments.

"I don't know what happened but it feels good to play well again," said the former Bowling Green University golfer. "This is my best start ever in this tournament. I'm very pleased."

Pearce, who tied for second last week in the San Antonio-Texas Open, put together six birdies, but a double bogey 6 on the par-4, 462-yard 11th hole prevented him from taking the lead.

"It's been a long time. It's nice to be back playing well again," said the 27-year-old player who has never won a tournament during his seven years on the tour.

"I like to play here. I've been coming here since I was about 10 and playing in the Southeastern Juniors. I feel comfortable here," said the former Wake Forest golfer from Orlando, Fla.

Pearce finished just moments before darkness descended upon the course. The start of play was delayed 75 minutes by an early morning fog.

Ben Crenshaw and Mike Reid were two shots off the lead at 67; a group at 68 was headed by Frank Beard, Peter Oosterhuis and former Masters champion Tommy Aaron.

Phil Hancock, who has finished second to Pate here the past two years, headed a contingent at 69 that included Bill Kratzert, Gibby Gilbert, Dewitt Weaver and Tom Wieskopf.

Second-leading money winner Larry Nelson and Arnold Palmer each had his problems, however. Both shot 74s with Palmer bogeying the final three holes.

Johnson, Butler get ax from NBA outfits

By The Associated Press

Lyndbert "Cheese" Johnson and Larry Butler, two of the nation's top collegiate players last year, are among the last casualties as National Basketball Association teams cut down to the 11-player minimum for tonight's season openers.

Johnson, rated by some to be Wichita State's greatest forward in history and a third-round draft pick, was cut Thursday at the 11th hour by the Golden State Warriors. The Warriors also placed guard Phil Smith on the injured reserve list to reach the limit.

Meanwhile, Butler — the nation's leading collegiate scorer who averaged 31.1 points per game for Idaho State last season — was among the casualties in the Chicago Bulls' organization. Butler is a 6-foot-3 guard who was the first player chosen in the second round of the draft.

Elsewhere, the Kansas City Kings placed three veterans on waivers — guard Lucius Allen, forward Bob Nash and center-forward Darnell Hillman. Guard Earl Evans, a rookie from Nevada-Las Vegas, was placed on the injured list by the Detroit Pistons because of a sprained right ankle.

The New York Knicks also used the injured list to get down to the limit, deactivating center Marvin Webster and guard Earl Monroe. Webster is suffering from tendinitis in his right knee and is expected to be out of action for two months. Monroe, who has an inflammation of the right hip, will be eligible to return after sitting out five games.

The Washington Bullets placed forward Garcia Hopkins on waivers and put Mitch Kupchak and rookie Steve Malovic on injured reserve. The Atlanta Hawks asked waivers on Rick Wilson and free agents Sam Pellom and T.J. Robinson. Rookie guard Johnny Moore was placed on waivers by the San Antonio Spurs.

Clarence "Foots" Walker was placed on injured reserve by the Cleveland Cavaliers. The New Jersey Nets released Phil Jackson and Louie Dampier, placed Bob Elliott on injured reserve and named Jackson an assistant coach. The Philadelphia 76ers placed Clint Richardson on the injured list. The Portland Trail Blazers put Dave Twardzik, Mychal Thompson and Maurice Lucas on the injured list.

The San Diego Clippers reached the 11-man player limit by waiving guard Nate Barnett and placing Greg Lee and John Olive on the injured reserve list.

Organizational cage meeting is scheduled

An organizational meeting for the Midland Men's Basketball Association will be Oct. 23 at 7:30 p.m. at the Midland Parks and Recreation Department office, 300 Baldwin.

Policies, fees and dates for the upcoming season will be discussed and anyone interested in sponsoring a team or joining a team should attend.

Aoki records hole-in-one

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Isao Aoki of Japan shot a hole-in-one at the World Match Play Championships on the wentworth course today and won a Scottish home worth $120,000.

Aoki holed out at the 155-yard second hole with a 7-iron. Golf authorities said it likely was the richest single shot ever made in golf.

Aoki became the owner of a house at Gleneagles, Scotland, overlooking the Gleneagles golf course, one of the most famous in the world.

It was offered by a construction company for the first player in the tournament to make a hole in one.

The house was valued at $86,000 when the offer was first made at the start of this year, but a tournament official said the value had risen since.

Aoki is defending his title in the world match play.

The first prize, put up by the Japanese sponsors, Suntory, is $64,500. So Aoki could be richer by a total of $184,500 by winning the title next Sunday.

Player captures win in World Match play

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — Gary Player, the gutsy little South African golfer, pulled off his own version of The Great Escape Thursday to the move into the second round of the World Match Play golf championship. He has won this one five times in his illustrious career. Player, 43, came from 4-down with 11 to play and crushed Japanese sar Tohru Nakamura over 36 holes and then said: "At my age you begin to feel the strain over 36 holes."

Player, great competitor that he is, never showed any sign of strain. Through sheer determination he clawed back to be even after 34 holes and then won the next two holes to win the match 2-up.

"The crowd certainly got their money's worth," he joked. "But I feel a little more tired than I would have a few years ago."

Player's remarkable fight-back — a repeat of the semifinal against Tony Lima here in 1965 when he came back from 7-down to win — earned him a second round tie against U.S. Master's champion Fuzzy Zoeller.

"He will have the edge," said Player. "He is younger, stronger, and didn't play 36 holes today. But I will be out there trying."

Player was joined in the second round by American Lanny Wadkins, who defeated Vicente Fernandez of Argentina 3 and 1, Bill Rogers of the United States, who trounced Briton Sandy Lyle 4 and 2 and Australian David Graham who defeated Britain's Mark James 3 and 2.

Graham, the U.S. PGA champion, was scheduled to play defending champion Asao Aoki of Japan Friday, Wadkins was meeting British Open winner Severiano Ballesteros and Rogers was challenging two time champion Hale Irwin.

The seeds were given first round byes. Suntory, the new sponsor of this $240,000 event, has changed the format from 16 players to 12 this year.

The competitors are chasing a $64,500 first prize over the 6,945-yard par 72 Wentworth course.

Rogers, playing in a match play event for the first time in his pro career, was delighted with his form against Lyle.

"I really enjoyed it. I wasn't sure what to expect, but it was a lot of fun," said the 28-year-old Texan who is sixth on the U.S. money-winning list.

"Match play suits my game," he added. "I played well and I kept up the pressure when things were going for me."

Ryder Cup star Lyle, leading money-winner in Europe, was impressed with Rogers' form. "He is really steady," said the Briton. "He is putting well and could win this."

Rogers said of his match with Irwin: "Hale is the toughest man in the field, but it will be a challenge playing him."

Wadkins changed putters midway through his match with Fernandez and a scrambling finish helped him into the second round.

"The shaft was too soft on the putter I was using," he said. "I was not hitting the ball hard enough

Navratilova, Lloyd take easy Phoenix net wins

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd, seeded No. 1 and No. 2, respectively, breezed past their opponents in straight sets Thursday night to move into today's quarterfinals of the $100,000 Phoenix Classic.

Navratilova, defending champion in the women's professional tennis tournament, took 45 minutes to dispose of Mary Carillo 6-1, 6-1 while Lloyd glided past Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia 6-2, 6-1.

In today's quarterfinals, Navratilova was to play Laura DuPont, Lloyd was to meet Ann Kiyomura, fourth-seeded Wendy Turnbull was up against Caroline Stoll and Kate Latham was to play No. 5 seed Kerry Reid.

Navratilova easily beat the left-handed Carillo, who appeared slowed by a bandaged knee and played with a serving problem. It was Navratilova's second straight win over a lefty in the tournament, which winds up Sunday at the Arizona Biltmore Hotel.

"When you're use to mainly right-handed players, it's a slight disadvantage to play a lefty," said Navratilova, herself a southpaw. "But I really played well and got all my first serves in."

Lloyd said she felt "a little more confortable" beating Jausovec than she felt in her first-round victory, which was over Yvonne Vermaak.

"But my timing on this court is still not right," said Lloyd. "I probably should have gotten here three or four days before the tournament to get accustomed to the court."

Earlier Thursday, unseeded Kate Latham scored the biggest upset thus far in the tournament, ousting third-seeded Dianne Fromholtz of Australia 6-3, 6-3 to advance to the quarterfinals.

Latham, 26, is ranked 26th on the Women's Tennis Association's computer rankings, compared to Fromholtz' No. 6 position.

In other second-round action, 18-year-old Caroline Stoll, who upset sixth-seeded Greer Stevens Wednesday night, edged Bettyann Stuart 7-6, 3-6, 7-5. Laura DePont, who eliminated seventh-seeded Viginia Ruzici on Wednesday, edged Bettina Bunge 5-7, 6-2, 7-6.

Spurs waiving Texas standout Johnny Moore

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs have waived rookie guard Johnny Moore of Texas — the last of numerous roster moves that leave the Spurs with three rookies and two other newcomers on their 11-man roster for Saturday night's season opener.

The National Basketball Association's defending Central Division champions open here Saturday night against Detroit with last year's starting lineup intact, but with a host of new faces on the bench.

The Spurs have lost veteran free agent reserves Coby Dietrick, Allan Bristow and Louie Dampier to other teams. Reserve center Mike Green was traded to Kansas City for a draft choice and reserve forward Glenn Mosley was cut this week.

To beef up their depleted front line, the Spurs purchased forward Kevin Restani from Milwaukee and traded a draft choice to Los Angeles for 28-year-old rookie forward Irv Kiffin.

The Spurs obtained 6-foot-9 forward-center Paul Griffin from Utah as compensation for Bristow.

Rookie guard Mike Evans of Kansas State beat out Moore for the fourth guard position. The Spurs also kept No. 1 draft choice, forward Wiley Peck, who has a guaranteed contract, but hasn't impressed Coach Doug Moe.

The Spurs got guard Tate Armstrong from Chicago as compensation for Dietrick, but later cut him. The Spurs asked no compensation for Dampier.

The starting five of guards George Gervin and James Silas, forwards Larry Kenon and Mark Olberding and center Billy Paultz remains intact. Veteran guard Mike Gale also returns.

The 6-1 Moore scored more than 1,400 points at Texas and is the school's third all-time leading scorer. He was a two-time All-Southwest Conference selection and twice led the SWC in assists.

He got 50 points and 27 assists in seven exhibition games for the Spurs this year.

In a pre-arranged deal, Seattle drafted Moore in the second round last year and immediately sold the rights to San Antonio.

RICHARD VINCENT

Andrews-Kermit game headliner

Super nonconference tests appear in the offing tonight for a pair of District 2-AAA teams as the schoolboy football season rolls on.

In one of the tussles, Andrews tangles with the Class AA Kermit Yellow Jackets, 4-1, at 8 p.m. in the Mustang Bowl.

ANDREWS HAS scored 139 points to their opponents' 47 enroute to a 5-0 ledger. In last week's 26-12 victory over Brownfield, senior Kevin Bartley quarterbacked the squad, scoring once and throwing for another score. Bartley was subbing for injured starter Keith Brooks.

Junior tailback Van Pearcy is third in 2-AAA rushing with 406 yards on 83 tries. He's also second in receiving and — perhaps most importantly — he's the district's leading punter with a 42.1 average.

On the other hand, Kermit had the rug pulled out from under them last week by Monahans as the Loboes notched a 14-7 upset. Just a week earlier, the Yellow Jackets had manufactured a brilliant 14-0 conquest of then-unbeaten Fort Stockton.

BUT THE loss to Monahans can be considered a let-down from the week before.

Kermit's statistics speak for themselves. They average 267.2 yards of offense a game while giving the opponents 173.6. Both figures are tops in 7-AA. The Yellow Jackets have scored 87 points while yielding 27.

Quarterback David Fulbright leads 7-AA rushers with 455 steps on 59 cracks for an amazing 7.7 yards an effort. He's also the leading scorer.

THIS FRAY obviously has the potential to become a dilly. Andrews, no matter who quarterbacks, is going to have problems with the Yellow Jackets, a team with the ability to steam-roll. It looks like Kermit over Andrews by 17-9.

Now, on to the other nifty matchup, which pits Odessa Ector, 5-0, and San Angelo Lake View, 4-1 and eighth-ranked in this week's AP prep poll.

Granted, the Eagles are flying high, but it's largely on the strength of an explosive offense that revolves around cat-quick tailback James Ricks. Ricks has 557 yards on 64 carries for a remarkable 8.7 per trip. Ector averages 285.4 yards offensive a night, most of which comes on the ground.

ACCORDING TO stats, Ector is last in 2-AAA defense, allowing 202.8 yards per game, which isn't all that shabby. They've given up 54 points.

Lake View, however, seems in the midst of a banner campaign. The 3-AAA Chiefs, 4-1, own one of the state's major upsets, a 3-0 shocker over Brownwood. They've scored 125 points and allowed 36.

WHAT COULD be the key factor is Lake View has faced several sterns tests while Ector, some say, hasn't really played that tough one.

Well, it's coming this week for the Eagles and they'll know they've been in a battle after the Chiefs defeat them 21-15.

Stanton's Buffaloes should extend their District 5-A record to 2-0 against the Shallowater Mustangs. The Buffs, 3-0-1 overall, have a senior-dominated squad that's played fine football to date. Meanwhile, Shallowater started fast but seems to be suffering from the bends lately, especially after last week's 41-0 humiliation at the hands of Seagraves. The Buffs over the Ponies by 35-14.

McCamey's Badgers annihilated Van Horn 62-7 last week to increase their record to 3-1-1. This week, coach Larry Nabors' bunch takes their act to Eunice. It looks like the Badgers may finally have things together and they should take a 24-14 nod over Eunice.

Another 6-A team, Rankin, 3-1-0, travels to Menard for a clash with 9-A Yellow Jackets, 2-2. Menard's big and tough but coach Dwayne Turner's Red Devils can really pop you. And when sophomore fullback Terry Turner gets loose, he's lethal. The Devils over the Jackets in a hard-earned 16-10 affair.

For Lamesa, it looks like another bad Friday night. This week the Golden Tornadoes, 0-5, run into the buzzsaw known as Lubbock Estacado. Estacado simply has too much for the Tors and will probably romp to the tune of 40-7.

ROUND THE REGION — Fort Stockton 20, Gadsden, N. M. 7; Pecos 35, Snyder 17; Brownfield 14, Hereford 9; Iraan 17, Ozona 7; Sonora 10, Wall 3; Plains 24, Anton 6; Forsan 9, Ropes 0; Seagraves 49, O'Donnell 3; Fabens 17, Clint 6; Marfa 13, Alpine 7; Junction 7, Llano 0.

WILD ONE OF WEEK — Sweetwater will give returning alumni something to cheer about as the Mustangs take one of the handful of victories they'll pocket this year. Monahans has continued to make progress, but the Loboes will be caught snoozing as the Ponies package themselves a neat 12-10 upset.

Odessa battles No. 1-ranked Cooper tonight

Odessa High travels to Abilene tonight to take on the powerful Abilene Cooper Cougars in P.E. Shotwell Stadium in a big District 5-4A battle.

Coach Jerry Millsapps' Bronchos will be without starting quarterback Billy Rumbaugh for the second straight week. Rumbaugh was injured last week in an automobile accident and his fine passing arm will be missed tonight as OHS takes on the No. 1 Class AAAA team in the state in Coach Ray Overton;s Cougars.

WHILE OHS and Cooper are squaring off, Midland Lee travels to San Angelo; Midland entertains Big Spring and Permian celebrates homecoming in a game with Abilene High in W.T. Barrett Stadium in Odessa.

Odessa takes a 3-1 record into the Cooper game and the Bronchos are a physical team and are expected to give the Cougs their first real test of the year after four straight victories.

Quarterback Johnny Subia will start and the junior is a fine runner, but weak in the passing department. He has three good backs in the backfield with him in Geordie Mason, Jim Harris and Trey Hawkins, Hawkins had a 52-yard touchdown run in last week's 14-13 loss to Midlane Lee while Mason's 64-yard scamper, set up the second OHS TD against the Rebels.

COOPER HAS rolled past Brownwood, Wichita Falls, Haltom and San Angelo and has really not been tested so far, but the Cougars espect a severe test tonight. Overton uses two quarterbacks in Lanny Dycus and John Slaughter. Keith Pantalion and Terry Orr join the backfield and both are gifted runners. Pantalion has more speed than Orr, but Orr is a power runner.

DAVID WILLIAMS is a fine receiver and has more than 300 yards in receptions this far although he didn't have a great game last week in Cooper's 35-0 vcitory over San Angelo.

Permian rolled past Midland High, 35-6 with tailback Ricky Reynolds paving the way with two touchdowns, one on a 52-yard jaunt, Quarterback Kelly Howard and fullback Alan Hainline missed the Midland game along with guard Mark Albritton, linebacker Mike Williams and center Joel Perry. Perry is out for the year with knee surgery, but Howard and Albritton should play some tonight for the 3-1 Panthers.

Abilene has a new weapon in sophomore Leo Parrish who rushed for 138 yards while scoring three touchdowns last week in the Eagles' 26-0 victory over Big Spring in their District 5-4A opener. Quarterback Loyal Profitt can throw well and the Warbirds have some size in the line and could give Mojo a tussle tonight in Odessa.

Cooper and Permian stand one-two in team offense after one week of play. The Cougars rolled up 455 yards total offense last week against San Angelo while Permian had a total of 440 yards against Midland High as both took imoressive victories.

LEE AND OHS hooked up in their usual slam-bang affairs with the Rebel defense breaking down twice during an otherwise flawless performance, according to Coach Gil Bartosh. Fullback Mark Thomspon is out tonight for the Rebels along with tackle-linebacker Claude Smith, linebacker David Cornelius and linebacker James McGarritty.

"We just hope we can get them healed up in time for Cooper in two weeks." said Bartosh.

Bulldogs, Rebs get nod

BOB DILLON

Well now fans, District 5-4A opened last week with no real surprises as all four favorites won.

This week looks like another easy one, at least in 5-4A games, but then it may get a little tough before the state playoff represenative is selected to take on the District 6-4A kings in November.

Last week was another good one for this corner, hitting 52 out of 57 Class AAAA games for a percentage of .881 or 88.1. So, on the season, it stands 156 correct and 27 incorrect for an .857 per cent going into this the sixth weekend of the current season, including the open date two weeks ago for 5-4A outfits.

MIDLAND HIGH will show Bulldog fans it has lots of character and will take on the Big Spring Steers in Memorial Stadium tonight. The Pack is still shooting for a banner season and will win their fourth game in five outings over the hapless Steers, 28-7.

MIDLAND LEE has four or five starters that may miss tonight's game with the San Angelo Centrak Bobcats in the Concho City. That may be a blessing what with Abilene Cooper coming to town in two weeks, but Coach Gil Bartosh still isn't taking Central lightly. Going with the Rebels to be unbeaten after five games with a 28-6 victory.

ODESSA'S BRONCHOS have the dubious task of taking on the No. 1 Cooper Cougars in Abilene tonight. It will be s long evening for Coach Jerry Millsapps' crew, but one thing's for sure, the Red Hosses do like to hit and the Cougars better lace on their shoes tightly for this one. Cooper to post a 21-7 victory over OHS. The Broncs sure will miss quarterback Billy Rumbaugh in this one.

ODESSA PERMIAN has finally generated some offense and they will need it tonight as the Panthers celebrate homecoming against the dangerous Abilene High Eagles. Mojo's defense will be too tough for the Warbirds wo am going with John Wilkins' outfit to post a 21-0 victory to remain in first place with Cooper and Lee.

OTHER GAMES: El Paso Andress over El Paso Jefferson; El Paso Austin over Irvin; Burges to nip El Paso High; Eastwood to storm past hapless Hobbs, N.M.; Las Cruces, N.M. over Parkland; Amarillo over Clovis (Texas teams too strong for New Mexico elevens); Caprock over Lubbock on Saturday; Palo Duro over Canyon; Tascosa to edge Borger; Pampa over Lubbock Coronado; Hereford over Brownfield; Lubbock Monterey to whip Carlsbad, N.M. in preparation for next week's big shootout with Plainview; Denton over Newman Smith; Lewisville opens 6-4A play with win over Carrollton-Turner; Wichita Falls and Rider are open this week; Arlington Heights wins six in row without loss over Poly; Western Hills over Eastern Hills; Southwest rolls over Dunbar; Wyatt over Trimble Tech; Arlington Lamar 14, Arlington Bowie 10; Sam Houston over Arlington High; Richland to defeat Burleson; Duncanville over South Grand Prairie; Trinity Euless over Irving; L.D. Aggies favored over rest of SWC cage field

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf didn't mind it a bit Thursday when the other Southwest Conference basketball coaches tabbed his heavily-favored Aggies as the team to beat. He just hopes those opposing coaches know what they're talking about.

SWC basketball teams can't even begin practicing until next week, but SWC coaches were already applying the pressure on Metcalf and the Aggies in a luncheon here to kick off the 1979-1980 season.

The season culminates here in late February, with San Antonio hosting the SWC tournament for the first time. The tournament had a successful two-year run in Houston.

To a man, the SWC's other eight coaches were saying the experienced Aggies were the team to beat in the SWC — especially when they could needle Metcalf in front of the large luncheon crowd.

"I think Texas A&M is the team to beat. I think they are a possible Final Four team. So, Shelby, the bug is on you," quipped Baylor Coach Jim Haller.

"I think it will be the best race in the history of the Southwest Conference, other than A&M going through undefeated and winning it," said Houston Coach Guy Lewis.

"Metcalf will beat you as bad as he can beat you. It shouldn't be called the Southwest Conference tournament. It should be called the A&M invitational," said Rice Coach Mike Schuler. "If he doesn't win it all, you Aggies can fire him."

Southern Methodist Coach Sonny Allen, whose Mustangs are expected to be one of the SWC's top teams this year, didn't let up on Metcalf: "We feel that if we play up to our potential, we have a chance of finishing second behind the Aggies."

Texas Tech Coach Gerald Myers, who was in Metcalf's position when he had 6-foot-8 star Rick Bullock, noted that Metcalf returns 6-foot-11 star Rudy Woods and told the Aggie coach, "Shelby, it's the big price you pay when you have the big man."

Metcalf was one of the last coaches to address the crowd.

Cowboys facing confident Rams in Sunday night tilt

By The Associated Press

No matter what the Dallas Cowboys and Los Angeles Rams say, Sunday night's nationally televised encounter is a whole lot more than just another National Football League game between a pair of divisional leaders.

What it is, in fact, is a good ol' case of the hates.

"We don't look at it as revenge," Coach Ray Malavasi of the Rams says. "We look at it as competition. We're very confident."

Perhaps Malavasi is low-keying it because the last time the Cowboys got riled up they murdered the Rams 28-0 in the 1978 National Conference championship game, they're second solid whomping of Los Angeles in a title showdown. In 1975 Dallas rolled over the Rams 37-7.

"We've got the Rams just where we want 'em and that means we're going to keep beating 'em because they are our main competitors in the National Conference," says free safety Cliff Harris of the Cowboys. "I can't think of anybody I'd rather beat. They like to talk a lot. Of course, we have Thomas Henderson to try to match that. But Thomas isn't talking all that much this week. He is just thinking it."

Sunday's afternoon games are Philadelphia at St. Louis, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, San Francisco at the New York Giants, New Orleans at Tampa Bay, Buffalo at Miami, Washington at Cleveland, New England at Chicago, Denver at Kansas City, Seattle at San Diego, Houston at A're, Atlanta at l'nd Detroit vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee. On Monday night Minnesota visits the New York Jets.

Jabouille gains slot

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Jean-Pierre Jabouille, winner of this year's French Grand Prix in only his first full year of Forumla 1 racing, and eight-time IMSA GT champion Peter Gregg have been named to the final two spots for the 1979 International Race of Champions series.

Jabouille and Gregg join Mario Andretti, Emerson Fittipaldi, Alan Jones, Jacques Laffite, Clay Regazzoni and John Watson in the international field.

Their IROC qualifier will be held Saturday, Oct. 27, during Grand Prix weekend at Riverside International Raceway.

Following Saturday's 30 laps in their equally prepared Camaros on Riverside's 2.547-mile grand prix course, the first four finishers will advance to Sunday's final IROC road race of the Grand Prix weekend at Riverside.

Pope, Brezhnev have little in common but much to say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pope John Paul II and Soviet Party Chairman Leonid Brezhnev, who don't have a whole lot in common, had some interesting things to say recently on the same subject: arms control.

The pope was subtly plugging for Senate passage of the SALT II nuclear weapons limitation treaty. And Brezhnev was trying to persuade the United States' NATO allies to turn down new U.S. rockets.

"The United States plays a particularly important part in the quest for greater security in the world and for closer international collaboration," the pope said from the White House steps.

"With all my heart, I hope there will be no relaxing of its efforts both to reduce the risk of a fatal and disastrous worldwide nuclear confrontation, and to secure a prudent and progressive reduction of the destructive capacity of military arsenals."

The pope's appeal must have cheered President Carter, who is having a difficult time scraping together the two-thirds vote needed for Senate ratification of SALT II. The appeal was a genuine call for arms control.

Brezhnev's offer to withdraw up to 20,000 Russian troops and 1,000 tanks from East Germany and to put his own medium-range nuclear missiles on the negotiating table requires a more skeptical reading.

Over the years, the Soviets have made a number of tempting proposals to reduce tensions in Central Europe that lost their appeal upon closer inspection.

In June 1978, for instance, the Soviets for the first time accepted the principle that there should be an equal number of Eastern and Western troops in the region.

This raised hopes of a breakthrough in negotiations aimed at a matching reduction in NATO and Warsaw Bloc forces in Central Europe. The talks had plodded along for five years without much success.

The optimism died when it turned out the Soviets were claiming to have about 150,000 fewer Warsaw Bloc troops in Central Europe than NATO estimated.

In other words, equal cutbacks would have left the Soviets with a continuing advantage of some 150,000 soldiers.

Brezhnev's latest proposal is seen in that cautious light, at least by Zbigniew Brzezinski, the most skeptical of Carter's advisers when the Soviet Union is concerned.

He suggests that by offering to withdraw troops and tanks, Brezhnev is trying to sidetrack U.S. plans to deploy 572 new medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe.

The plans, involving 464 ground-launched cruise missiles and 108 Pershing rockets, have the approval of a NATO panel in Brussels, Belgium, and will be presented in December to the NATO ministerial meeting.

The missiles have ranges beyond 1,000 miles and could strike targets in western parts of the Soviet Union.

According to Brzezinski, the Western allies have to go ahead with those plans, and also increase conventional forces in Europe, because "right now there is inequality — inequality to our disadvantage."

Brezhnev offered to withdraw the Russian troops and tanks from East Germany on a unilateral basis. But he is willing to reduce the Soviet medium-range nuclear weapons targeted on Western Europe only if U.S. plans to place missiles there are dropped.

Texas development firm to save prairie chickens

LEAGUE CITY, Texas (AP)— A Houston development firm is spending $15,000 this week to save some prairie chickens.

The developer (General Homes Co.) plans to build 1,500 homes on a 370-acre tract near League City. Officials of the company learned that about 60 of the rare Attwater's prairie chickens were living on the undeveloped tract.

So, the firm contacted wildlife experts and then offered to spend the money needed to fly the chickens by helicopter to a refuge in nearby Victoria County.

Nova Silvy, a Texas A&M ecologist, and Wayne Shifflett of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Department, are in charge of trapping the birds and sending them to their new home.

Texas airports among those to get wind shear protection

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration said Thursday it will equip 34 more U.S. airports with a safety system to warn of potentially dangerous wind shears. Twenty-four airports now have the system.

The FAA reported it had signed a $2.3 million contract with Sangamo Weston Inc. of Sarasota, Fla., to deliver all the new units by mid-1981.

Wind shears are caused by a sudden change in wind direction and speed. They reach speeds of 50 miles per hour and often occur within 500 feet of the ground, posing a hazard to aircraft taking off or landing.

The alert system monitors wind direction and speed through sensors located around the airport. When it senses a significant change in the wind, it triggers an alarm in air traffic control towers, which then can warn pilots.

The new units will be installed at Cincinnati; Charlotte, N.C.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Nashville, Tenn.; Phoenix, Ariz.; Milwaukee; Louisville, Ky.; West Palm Beach, Fla.; Birmingham, Ala.; Baltimore-Washington International; Dayton, Ohio; Tulsa, Okla.; Albuquerque, N.M.; Columbus, Ohio; Salt Lake City; Buffalo, N.Y.; Washington's Dulles Airport; Omaha, Neb.; San Juan, Puerto Rico; San Antonio, Texas; Roanoke, Va.; Sarasota, Fla.; Norfolk, Va.; Des Moines, Iowa; Knoxville, Tenn.; Mobile, Ala.; Little Rock, Ark.; Raleigh-Durham, N.C.; Jackson, Miss.; Rochester, N.Y.; Los Angeles; Las Vegas, Nev.; Wichita, Kan., and Houston Hobby Airport.

Airports which already have the system are Oklahoma City; Atlanta; Tampa, Fla.; Houston Intercontinental; New York Kennedy and LaGuardia; Miami International; Denver; Dallas-Fort Worth; Washington National; Orlando, Fla.; Kansas City, Mo.; Memphis, Tenn.; Detroit.

White keynote speaker

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Texas Attorney General Mark White will be one of three keynote speakers at the state convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which began here today.

Benjamin Hooks, national exeutive director of the NAACP, also is tentativey scheduled to speak, NAACP officials said.

Over 2,000 persons are expected to attend the three-day conference, being held in Abilene for the first time.

Refugees overcome problems while awaiting resettlement

CHERATING CAMP, Malaysia (AP) — "One more time", the teacher ordered. Reading from the blackboard, his class chanted "I do, you do, he does, she does..."

English Lesson Six, devoted to the present tense of the verb "to do," was in session at Cherating refugee camp. About 30 Vietnamese boat people ranging in age from 4 to 54 concentrated on learning a language they would need in their new homelands.

More than 3,000 of the 7,879 men, women and children behind the rusty barbed wire at Cherating have been promised resettlement in the United States, Canada and Australia.

The camp is at the edge of a sandy beach 300 miles across the South China Sea from Vietnam. Refugees express little interest in the travel-poster seascape, however. They are serving time until an interviewer from a foreign country "opens a file" which at last confirms they are candidates for resettlement.

"The biggest problem is overcrowding," said Nguyen Van Thach, 43. A homemade badge pinned to his T-shirt identified him as "Cherating Camp Leader Mr. Thach."

"There is only about three square feet per person, so morale cannot be good," Thach told a visiting reporter.

Thach said he worked for Caltex, a U.S. oil company, as terminal superintendent at Can Tho in South Vietnam's Mekong Delta before the communist takeover in 1975. He spent 13 months in detention being "re-educated" and then was told to be a farmer, he added.

"They acted like I was a spy," Thach said of the new regime.

He said he escaped with his wife and five children and has been at Cherating four months. The United States accepted him for resettlement, but a nervous breakdown suffered by his 19-year-old son may make Nguyen Van Thach a Swiss citizen instead.

"I must get a waiver for the boy before he can be admitted to the United States, but that takes about two months. If I wait another two months, my son's condition could get worse. So I changed my mind and will apply to Switzerland."

Swiss representatives seek the sick, handicapped and elderly for resettlement.

The 10-acre camp opened last December and charts in the makeshift office inside the main gate provide these statistics:

—The camp has forwarded 4,940 people to new homes in 18 countries.

—Cherating's 7,879 people came from 101 boats.

—They are about equally divided between ethnic Vietnamese and those of Chinese ancestry.

—There are 2,600 men, 2,109 women, 2,834 boys and girls aged 2 and 17 and 336 children under 2.

Man indicted by grand jury on charge of raping child

A 28-year-old Midland man was indicted Wednesday by the Midland County Grand Jury on a charge of aggravated rape of a child with serious bodily injury.

William Richard Ward, 1911 S. Colorado St., was indicted in connection with the alleged rape Oct. 3 of a 2-year-old girl.

Ward was arrested about 7:30 p.m. Oct. 3 after police became aware of the incident, according to police reports.

Neighbors told police they last saw the child playing in the yard at 1911 S. Colorado St.

The girl's family took her to the hospital following the incident, according to police.

Ward remains in jail in lieu of posting $50,000 bond.

The grand jury also returned indictments against eight other persons Wednesday. Names of four of those indicted were not immediately released.

Kelly Sue Wiggins was indicted on a charge of possession of heroin. She currently is free on $10,000 bond.

Edward Spencer Sampson was indicted on a charge of possession of more than four ounces of marijuana. He is free on $7,500 bond.

Ronnie Dan Ross was indicted on a charge of theft over $200, but less than $10,000. The charge was enhanced by charges of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, burglary and malicious destruction of private property. He remains in jail in lieu of posting a $50,000 bond.

Marc Howard Tanchester was indicted on a charge of theft over $200, but less than $10,000. He is free on $7,500 bond.

Bank balks at showing records

DALLAS (AP) — A county grand jury probing business dealings of the Dallas Independent School District wants to look at bank records, but the bank is balking.

Subpoenas were issued Tuesday for the personal banking records of former Superintendent Nolan Estes as well as for several other groups and individuals.

But Merchants State Bank of Dallas filed a motion to block the subpoenas to protect the "good will" of depositors.

Former Congressman loses another license

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Former Congressman Joshua Eilberg of Philadelphia lost another professional license Thursday when the state revoked his insurance license.

Eilberg already had been disbarred by the disciplinary board of the state Supreme Court following his guilty plea to charges of receiving illegal compensation for services rendered before a federal agency.

State Insurance Commissioner Harvey Bartle III said the state's latest action also was based on Eilberg's guilty plea in federal court last February.

Eilberg was accused of accepting more than $100,000 in favors and benefits from his former law firm for work the firm did to obtain a federal grant for Hahnemann Hospital in Philadelphia. In his plea, he admitted accepting $20,000.

Eilberg also ignited a controversy by telephoning President Carter and asking him to fire the federal prosecutor who eventually investigated his case.

"The crime to which Mr. Eilberg pleaded guilty amounts to a flagrant violation of the fiduciary duty owed to the public and to a flagrant violation of the public trust," Bartle said.

He said elements of the crime were closely akin to bribery, and added: "As such, it constitutes grounds under Pennsylvania law for determining that a licensed agent is not worthy of holding a license in the commonwealth."

Pennsylvania insurance law requires that licensed agents have "a good business reputation" and have no record that would reflect badly on their integrity.

Justice also a winter writer

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Edwin Torres does a lot of his novel writing while driving to his job as an Acting Justice of the New York Supreme Court.

"I carry pieces of yellow paper in my pocket," the 48-year-old Torres explains with a smile. "I'll be driving along and all of a sudden I'll hear voices in my head, dialogue. So, when I stop for a traffic light, I write it down and then drive on when the light changes.

"When I get home in the evening, I'll take what I've written on those slips and work it into my manuscript."

Torres has written three novels. His latest is "After Hours," a tough, realistic story of crime, corruption and violence.

A slender, easy-spoken man, Torres, who lives in New York City with his wife and their four daughters, came late to writing.

"I was about 44 when I wrote my first novel, 'Carlito's Way,' " he says. "For years I'd been complaining about scenes I'd see on television or in the movies or read in books. I kept telling my wife that I didn't think they were authentic, that the people shown didn't really act or talk that way.

"Finally, she got tired of listening to me and said, 'If you can do it better, do it.' I said, 'I will.' I sat down, wrote my novel, and, lo and behold, it was published.

"The whole thing was quite a surprise. You see, I hate to write. When I was serving in the Navy I hated to write letters."

Returning home to New York from the service, Torres says, "I had no idea of what to do with myself. My father, who came to this country from Puerto Rico as did my mother, told me there was a dearth of people of Puerto Rican background in the law. My dad was a kind of frustrated lawyer. He spoke English and at times he would go to court and speak for neighbors of ours who didn't have English. He pushed me. He kept telling me to get schooling, and I did."

After graduation from Brooklyn Law School, which he helped put himself through "doing a lot of menial stuff — waiter, delivery boy" — Torres first worked in the district attorney's office, then went into private law practice.

He did that for about 16 years, working often as a defense attorney. "That experience helped me in my writing," Torres says. "Compared to a prosecutor or a judge, a defense attorney gets much wider exposure. Dealing with literally thousands of criminal cases, I handled everything — rape, murder — and this gave me an endless variety of experiences to draw on.

"Add to that the fact that I've served as a New York City Criminal Court Judge and am now with the Supreme Court and you see that I've covered all aspects of the criminal-justice system."

Torres says he currently has no book going, partly because of his job demands and partly "because it's warm out."

"My muse," he says with a laugh, "is a cold-weather muse. It's a strange thing, but I have to be more or less locked in before I can write.

"During warm weather, I walk around a total blank as far as writing is concerned. But when it gets cold outdoors, usually in January, the muse arrives. Characters appear to me and I hear voices in my head. It's like I have secret tapes in me.

"Then I can't get it down fast enough. I'll sit down about midnight and write most of the night. I'll sleep a couple of hours and then get up and go to work. Obviously, I can't keep up this sort of pace for too long so I write my books in about five weeks.

Papal path: confetti-covered look at the American way

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Confetti found blowing in the wind along the papal path of John Paul II in Dublin, Drogheda, Galway, Knock, Limerick, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Des Moines, Chicago and Washington.

•

Lacquered up in the brightest red like a lady's fingernails to catch the ever-present TV lights, the TWA Boeing 727 that jetted the pope around the country was officially dubbed "Shepherd One" in black letters on the nose and carried the papal seal over the door. The two identical press planes that followed in its wake were nicknamed "Wolf One" and "Wolf Two."

•

Politicians will be politicians, even in the papal presence. Boston Mayor Kev White's biography, as handed out on the garage under the Boston Common that served as a press room, ran to 15½ pages. The Pope's biography, as distributed by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, which organized his tour of the United States, covered five pages.

•

Could it be that the Holy Father already has grown as weary of "Stolat, Stolat" (May you live 100 years) as Harry S. Truman did of the Missouri waltz? At one point in his peregrinations — it could have been Chicago or Philadelphia, by this time all the days tumble down to a confused blur for those of us who made the trip — he complained "it has become a national hymn" and instead led the crowds in reciting the Lord's Prayer.

•

Besides the eminent cardinals, red-robed bishops and usual retinue of monsignori, priests and altar boys, the papal procession always included at least two young men in dark suits carrying tiny suitcases. These were neither the Vatican photographers nor the Vatican physicians. They were Secret Servicemen with break-down shotguns in event of a terrorist incident. TV pope-watchers probably also noticed the Oldsmobile station wagon, banked with flowers in the back seat or sometimes seemingly piled high with suitcases, which was always placed third in the papal motorcade, just after the open Secret Service car with running boards riding right behind the Pope's open-top limousine. This is the "battle wagon," loaded with all kinds of automatic weapons and tear gas and a key component in the security picture of every high ranked foreign visitor.

•

Chicago journalism has not lost its rough and ready "Front Page" flair. When Luciano Pavarotti, the great operatic tenor from La Scala and the Met, intoned Schubert's "Ave Maria" in the Holy Name cathedral during the pontifical visit here, one of the Windy City photographers was beside himself with bravos: "Tha fat guy's got a great set of pipes, he should turn pro."

•

The passage of the first pope ever through the streets of Philadelphia did not miss the attention of the disc jockeys on their rush hour talk shows. Just as the press corps was about to enter the Civic Center for the pope's anxiously awaited homily to the priests, we heard a local radio commentator wind up his breakfast hour coverage of John Paul II's visit to a southside Polish church: "And so concludes another exciting hour of early morning popery."

•

Arriving in his popemobile from the vicinity of the right field bull pen, the Pope came into Yankee Stadium to a tumultous ovation that out-decibeled any relief pitcher being golf-carted to the mound with the bases loaded in a World Series game. Up in the press box, one of papal scribes was moved to remark: "Seeing this crowd on a weekday night, George Steinbrenner's on the phone right now offering the College of Cardinals Bobbie Murcer, Reggie Jackson and two players to be named later for Karol Wojtyla."

One of the Pharisees peddling papal pennants to the crowds in the upper deck said he was the first stadium superstar since Mickey Mantle whose opening words weren't "play me or trade me."

•

Despite the rain, the Pope drew a blizzard of confetti as he made his way in an open limousine down Broadway toward the Battery, but New York tickertape parades aren't what they used to be. In the half century since Charles Lindbergh got back from Paris, most of the skyscrapers (which the Pope pronounced to rhyme with "wrapper") have installed windows that can't be opened because of the air conditioning and the stock tickers that produced the perforated tape are mostly computer modules that flash stock prices on a screen unsuitable for defenestration.

•

Speaking of motorcades, the bishops in New York metropolitan area went to Yankee Stadium from St. Patrick's Cathedral in half-block long Lincoln limousines equipped with color TV and a bar. Almost all were seen following the progress of the papal cavalcade on the tube, but none availed themselves of the in-flight liquidities. In two weeks of travelling with the episcopacy in Ireland and across America, this humble observer of the pontifical scene has noted that in times of stress and fatigue the right reverend maonsignori have been known to seek the solace of a dry martini with a twist; bishops seem to favor the stand-up manhattan, while cardinals tend to meditate alone.

•

Everywhere the Pope's message through the land was memoralized in posters, buttons, T-shirts and souvenir pennants. "I peeked at the Pope" was a favorite sentiment on such theological trivia. Coming into Washington from Andrews Air Force Base, the Holy Father could see a life-sized replica of himself enshrined in the windows of a poster shop, flanked on one side by a sweating Muhammad Ali and on the other by a menacing Bruce Lee. Joan Jewczyn, aboard the papal press cavalcade for NBC Radio, became a T-shirt collector and, by the by, a comparison shopper who could testify that "the rip-off at $7.50 a shirt was worse in Des Moines than most other cities, where $5 to $6 was par for the papal course." At the end of the trip, the most prized item of papal schlock in her collection was a canvas shopping bag purchased from a hawker on the Mall in the nation's capital. It was inscribed "Tote a papal blessing."

Corn-popping helpers sought

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Nevada first lady Kathy List is expected to decide Friday which one of dozens of volunteer corn-poppers she will enlist to provide the executive mansion's treats this Halloween.

Gov. Robert List reported earlier he was having trouble figuring a way to come up with the 3,000 or so bags of popcorn traditionally handed out at the mansion. Those offering to help have ranged from a Carson City Girl Scout troop to the president of an Ohio popcorn popper company.

A Reno man offered an antique corn popper he said was large enough to squeeze three people into. A Hawaii firm offered a popper and a man in an eight-foot-tall costume to promote nutritional information about popcorn.

The appliance company president said his popper uses hot air instead of grease to pop the corn, but cooks only one cup of kernels at a time. The governor's office said it needed something with a bigger capacity than that.
