Ask Us

Q—If bingo is placed on the ballot and passes, would any entity be able to set up bingo games, or just the VFW?

A—Any entity within Peace Justice Precinct 1 — that is, all of Scurry County except Hermleigh, where bingo is already legal — would be able to hold bingo games, providing they adhere to state codes and qualifications.

County to receive certified petitions for bingo election

Certified petitions calling for a local option election to allow bingo will be presented to the Scurry County Commissioners Court when it convenes at 10 a.m. Monday.

On Jan. 31, representatives of Snyder's Veterans of Foreign Wars post presented petitions that had been circulated calling for an election to legalize charity bingo in Peace Justice Precinct 1 which includes the City of Snyder and the majority of Scurry County.

The VFW is hoping that commissioners will set the election for May 7, the first available date for holding special elections. May 7 is also the date for local board elections.

When the petitions were first presented to the commissioners court, VFW representative John Fair said he believed the petitions contained more than 800 names that could easily be verified by the county clerk's office.

State law requires verification of at least 10 percent, about 464 signatures, of the number of votes cast in the last election for governor.

County Clerk Frances Billingsley said Friday that her office had been able to certify 849 names which will be presented to the commissioners court, responsible for calling the election.

Bingo has already been approved in Peace Justice Precinct 2 which is the Hermleigh area.

In other business Monday, the court will open and consider bids for replacement of a boiler at the coliseum. The court will also consider adoption of a county ordinance for food service establishments, setting a permit fee schedule.

Also on the agenda is a line-item transfer for the road and bridge fund, an advertisement for bids for a used tractor for Precinct 1, and payment of bills.

Republican candidates tangle over bid for senatorial district

For weeks, both Republican candidates for the 30th Senatorial District have been running against Democratic incumbent Steve Carriker.

One GOP hopeful has added another opponent — President Bill Clinton.

First however, Tom Haywood of Wichita Falls and Doyle High of Haskell must first settle the question of who will become the Republican nominee. That decision comes on primary election day, March 8.

The senatorial race as well as a contested race for county judge on the Republican ballot in Scurry County is expected to draw a record number of GOP primary voters here.

Both Republican hopefuls for senate describe Carriker as the liberal darling of the trial lawyers — a party partisan who is more focused on state politics than on the 30th District.

Still, Tom Haywood or Doyle High must first win the primary before they can officially challege Carriker. Both agree that Carriker needs the boot, but the disagreement comes over which Republican has the best chance.

Enter President Bill Clinton. Tom Haywood, who narrowly lost to Carriker two years ago, quickly points out that High voted for Bill Clinton.

High, a pharmacist who recently switched from the Democratic to the Republican Party, was criticized by Haywood for his Clinton vote.

"Doyle has been a Republican less than 60 days and he does not know the definition of a conservative Republican," Haywood said.

On Friday, High said the week's sparring between himself and Haywood has resulted from his trying to answer questions truthfully.

"I was asked on TV if I voted for Bill Clinton. I made a mistake two years ago and owned up to it. That mistake is one of the reasons I switched to the Republican Party.

"I won't lie to you now and I won't lie when I represent you as senator in Austin," High added.

Haywood, in Snyder Wednesday for two political events, said there are other differences. Haywood says High's view on sex education in the public schools should include the proper use of condoms.

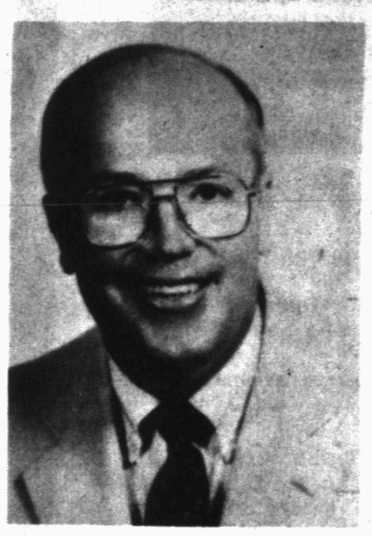

"Tom Haywood believes the family is the proper place to discuss these issues," Haywood added. Haywood is distributing copies of the Texas Pro-Family Coalition Voter's Guide which showed High's answers to questions on sex education.

High said Haywood's effort to discredit him with the sex education issue is untrue and unfair. "When I answered the question, I had in mind sex education in the high school with local control. I believe the home is the proper place for sex education, but we live in the real world where the home does not always do its job. Therefore, I do favor sex education, but not in the first grade."

Haywood said another difference surfaced at a political forum in Wichita Falls in which Haywood says his opponent said he agrees with the 5-day waiting period for the purchase of a gun. Haywood said he opposes the Brady Bill and any form of gun control.

Haywood's main theme is his claim that he is the best able to unseat Carriker. "We've run the race

National Anxiety 4th sale, show set Monday

National Anxiety 4th Hereford Breeders will have a bull and female show and sale Monday in the county coliseum ag complex.

The show begins at 9 a.m. with the sale to follow at 12:30 p.m. Robert Carr, of L-Bar Ranches in Austin, will be the judge. Stanley Stout is the auctioneer.

A dutch treat supper will be held at Golden Corral on Sunday at 6:30 p.m.

The sale will include 86 bulls, 33 females, pairs, bred and open heifers.

Special representatives will include Beau White, president of the Texas Hereford Association; Jim Boyd, American Hereford Association and Journal; Jack Chastain, Texas Hereford Association; E.C. Larkin, Gulf Coast Cattleman; and John Dudley, director of the American Hereford Association.

Consignors include ranches from Snyder, Post, Roby, Big Spring, Stamford, Coleman, Hamlin, Stanton, Plainview, San Angelo, Abilene, Cotton Center, Abernathy, Wildorado, Dalhart, Mullin, Benjamin and Graham, and Logan, Utah.

Early voting: one week left

Scurry County residents have one more week to cast a ballot in the March Primaries early voting period.

According to the county clerk's office, 249 Democratic ballots and 147 Republican ballots have been cast since the early voting period began a week and a half ago. The period ends Friday, March 4.

Early voting is conducted from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. in the county clerk's office in the courthouse. The actual election will be held March 8, at various balloting locations in the county.

SISD plans activities for Schools Week here

More than three million students in Texas, including Snyder ISD students, will celebrate Texas Public Schools Week, beginning Monday.

The theme for this year's celebration is "Creating Connections." Activities in 1,051 independent school districts across the state will focus on achievement, and parents, legislators and community members are invited to visit classrooms and see the classes.

"Community members, elected officials and parents are always welcome in our schools," said Dalton Moseley, SISD superintendent. "Texas Public Schools Week gives us an opportunity to showcase the positive things happening in our schools and the excellent education our children are achieving. We encourage parents and taxpayers to get involved in education by visiting Snyder schools."

Activities will be occurring on each campus:

Central Elementary

Monday through Friday, parents are invited to eat with their student. Parents are asked to call in reservations as early as possible or no later than 9 a.m. the day they plan on eating. Call the school for reservations. Lunch is $1.75 for adults, 90 cents for children.

On Monday through Thursday, Central Parent Council will hold a bookfair.

Tuesday is Central Night Out at the Subway.

On Tuesday and Wednesay, the Science Spectrum will present "Mission: Exploring Our Solar System." The event is sponsored by the parent council.

2nd suicide occurs here

A 35-year-old man has become the second victim of suicide in the city in two days.

John Brad Ramby was pronounced dead shortly after 12:30 Saturday morning at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. His death has been ruled a suicide.

Police received a call from the victim's sister in Midland at 10:16 p.m. Friday, asking them to check on the welfare of her mother, Joyce Ramby of 2701 Ave. Y. According to police reports, the caller told officers that her brother was at the residence with a gun, and was apparently intoxicated.

Officers responded to the call and determined that Mr. Ramby was intoxicated; however, no gun was found. Officers were told that he had access to a police scanner, and had put the gun away when he heard a dispatcher request that police respond to the daughter's request.

All was apparently calm when officers left the residence. However, at 12:32 a.m., Mrs. Ramby called to tell police that her son had shot himself.

Police said Mr. Ramby was alone in the living room when he shot himself in the head with a .44-caliber black powder pistol.

It was the second suicide in Snyder within the past 48 hours. Thursday evening, a 62-year-old Snyder man shot himself in the head with a .22 caliber revolver while sitting in his pickup on Houston Parkway.

Graveside services for Mr. Ramby will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday in the Rotan Cemetery.

The SDN Column — By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Love may be blind, but it seems to find its way, even in the dark."

Sometimes expressions of love require a little help. That's why candy, cards, flowers and other items were invented. They are especially helpful to guys.

Sometimes, even more help is needed — especially to overcome some of the elements in West Texas.

Valentine's Day is especially hectic at flower shops. Such was the case at Friendly Flowers in Snyder where owner Jo Ann Prince had sent Velma Davis, for the umpteenth time that day, with a van load of deliveries.

One order was a bouquet with 30-inch helium balloons. Just as Velma went out the back door, she stumped her toe and the balloons sailed off, courtesy of a brisk west wind.

Attached to the balloons was a card addressed to Delores Guerra of Snyder. But alas, Delores received her long-blown Valentine card in the mail.

The card was found by Dale Middlebrook west of Paint Creek in Haskell County, still attached to one of the deflated helium balloons.

Love also helps people overlook flaws in other people. Take for example the guy who usually had very little to say.

Girl: Do you love me with all your heart and soul?

Boy: Uh-huh.

Boy: Uh-huh.

Girl: Do you think my lips are like rose petals?

Boy: Uh-huh.

Girl: Oh, you say the most beautiful things!

Smoking in restaurants ban possible

HOUSTON (AP) — Full service restaurants say they expect smoking to be banned eventually, but many aren't ready to follow McDonald's in nipping smoking in the butt.

Restaurants have found themselves at the center of an ongoing legal and public debate over the health dangers of secondhand smoke.

Many owners say they would like to ban smoking but can't afford to upset paying — smoking — customers.

"I think it's only a matter of time and you are going to see it, where the market does buy into that," said Harris Pappas, president of Pappas Restaurants, which has about 15 full-service restaurants in Houston and 40 statewide.

Tilman Fertitta, president of Landry's Seafood Restaurants, said, "You cannot believe the abuse we take. I wish they would outlaw smoking altogether."

McDonald's Corp. announced Wednesday's it will ban smoking in its approximately 1,400 corporate-owned restaurants.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales moved Friday to dismiss a lawsuit filed Feb. 16 that charged the restaurant had misled customers in suggesting that its nonsmoking sections protected them from smoke hazards.

Other fast-food restaurants also are expected to follow suit in adopting nonsmoking policies.

Morales still has lawsuits pending against Kentucky Fried Chicken, Taco Bell, Long John Silver's Seafood Shops and Burger King.

Restaurant owners say that unlike fast-food eateries, where customers eat quickly and don't mind not smoking, they would risk alienating a large share of customers if they institute a ban.

"The problem is, if you lose 10 percent of your customers, you're in big trouble. You can't do it," said Edd Hendee, owner of Taste of Texas, a west Houston steak restaurant.

The nonsmoking areas of restaurants have grown from 60 percent to 75 percent in recent years, owners say. But, they still feel that the smoking contingent is large enough not to risk a ban, especially since the average check for smokers is generally higher than the average for nonsmokers, said Wendy Webster, spokeswoman with the National Restaurant Association in Washington, D.C.

"The dynamics of table service are very different, and there is nowhere near the consensus," she said. Full-service restaurants "can't afford to treat any customer, smoker or nonsmoker, as a second-class citizen."

Both the national association and the Texas Restaurant Association favor allowing market forces to decide smoking policies.

Some restaurants have put the question of smoking up to a vote among their customers, Webster said. Others, like Nosmo King in New York City, a health food eatery, have incorporated nonsmoking as part of their image.

Many Houston restaurant owners say they just wish the issue would go up in smoke.

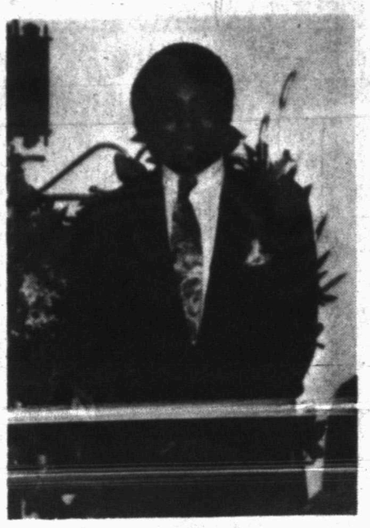

"It's really a tremendous management problem," said Fertitta of Landry's, who says his chain gets two to five complaints a month from nonsmoking customers.

Senior Center sets dominoes

Senior citizens who enjoy dominoes are invited to join domino games starting at 9:30 a.m. Monday in the Senior Center. Play will end before the serving of the noon meal.

Hoss Clayton and his band will be performing in the center's dining room at 11 a.m. Tuesday. The Local Yokels are scheduled for a performance at 11 a.m. Thursday. The Kitchen Band will entertain the residents of Snyder Day Care Center in a program starting at 10 a.m. Wednesday. The Sunshine Choir will meet for rehearsal at 10 a.m. Friday, with the Sing Along following at 11:30 a.m.

Senior citizens who need help with Medicare and supplement insurance forms can get assistance at the Senior Center. Interested persons may contact Pamela Fenton, activities director, for more information.

Free tax assistance for low-or-moderate-income taxpayers 60 and older is also available at the center. The Tax-Aide program is sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service Tax Counseling for the Elderly. Dot Stokes is the tax aide here and gives assistance from 9 a.m. to noon and 1-2:30 p.m. on Thursdays. Persons wishing assistance are to bring current tax records and a copy of last year's income tax return.

Planning has begun for the Senior Center's 1994 May Day and senior citizens are being asked to consider what they want to do to make the day a success. May Day is the major fund raiser for the Senior Center and includes a barbecue, musical entertainment and an auction featuring quilts made in the center.

Art competition now in progress

An art competition for area high school students was to be held this weekend on the campus of Western Texas College, sponsored by the WTC Art Department.

Art instructor Ben Sum said he expected more than 100 entries at the event, which was to conclude Saturday with an awards presentation in the Scurry County museum at 4 p.m.

From 2-3:30 p.m. there were to be art demonstrations in the museum, including examples of Sum drawing and Ty Brunson throwing ceramics and working with glass.

The public was invited to the art demonstrations and to view the works of entrants.

Snyder High School was expected to bring 15 art students, displaying some 30 works. Other schools expected to attend were Lubbock Estacado, Abilene Cooper, Sweetwater, Merkel, Hawley, Colorado City and Idalou.

Atlantic City. N.J., staged the first Miss America Bathing Beauty contest in 1921.

We've got that hometown spirit and we're passing it around!

A Bright Spot In Our Hometown!

Bob Doty

When people want something done, they fall back on the concept that the person you can count on is the guy with the most to do.

That often must be the case when folks look to Bob Doty, rodeo coach and agricultural professor at Western Texas College. He serves the community in so many ways, he is a natural choice for Snyder National Bank's hometown spirit award.

In his 15th year at Western Texas College, he is assistant professor of agriculture and serves as coach of both the men's and women's highly-successful rodeo teams. He has been honored both by co-workers and by students.

Fellow faculty members chose Doty to serve as president of the WTC Faculty Association during the 1991-92 school year. WTC students honored him with the Founder's Day award in 1991.

Students from his rodeo teams have qualifed for the national finals for 13 consecutive years. His men's team captured the national championship in 1976 and was runnerup in 1982.

Doty has served as faculty director for the Southwest Region of NIRA for four years and he was national faculty president in 1988-89.

A recent accomplishment is the development of the agriculture-rodeo complex southwest of Snyder. The 300-acre facility is used for rodeo stock plus crop and livestock production.

He and other ag faculty members helped established the WTC Livestock and Land Judging contest held each March, an event drawing hundreds of high school contestants. Doty coached the WTC judging teams from 1979-83.

In addition to sponsoring two junior rodeos each year, Doty and WTC, in conjunction with the junior college rodeo, host a special rodeo for Humble-Smith exceptional students each April. When Snyder was host for the AJRA National Finals Rodeo, Doty served on the local planning committee.

His volunteer work includes being an assistant coach in the Snyder Boys Little Dribblers program for the past three years. He also serves as vice president of the Union and Fluvanna Water Supply board of directors.

Doty grew up on a stock farm near Leuders. He earned a bachelor of science degree from Abilene Christian University and a master of education degree from Sam Houston State University. Doty taught ag at Lueders-Avoca, Fort Davis and Big Spring before joining the faculty at WTC.

Doty and his wife, Darla, director of college relations at WTC, are members of the 37th St. Church of Christ where Doty serves as a deacon. The Dotys have two sons. Jay is a 6th grader and Sterling is in the fifth grade.

HEADED TO HOUSTON — Jeremy House, Snyder sophomore FFA student, will show this Maine Anjou heifer Saturday, March 5, in the Houston Livestock Show. Jeremy House, Maine Anjou heifer are headed to Houston

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

Jeremy House has been looking forward to next week for a long time. After months of preparation and anticipation, he and a calf he purchased in May are headed to the annual Houston Livestock Show.

The heifer, a registered Maine Anjou, was purchased with the money he won a year ago during the 1993 Houston Rodeo Calf Scramble. He will show her on Saturday, March 5.

Jeremy, a sophomore Snyder FFA student, and 25 other FFA and 4-H members throughout the state, literally "scrambled" for one of the 13 calves turned loose simultaneously in the Astrodome.

The object of the annual event is to "grab hold" of a calf without the use of a halter. A halter may be used to secure the calf after it has been caught and lead it across the finish line.

Jeremy and the others "lined up in a V formation," and, after the calves were released from their chutes, each contestant tried various means to try and catch one.

At the start of the contest, Jeremy said he just "jumped into the middle," caught a calf and then "held on."

Each winner received $1,000 donated by the sponsor of the calf they caught. Since Jeremy won the 1993 event, he is no longer eligible to enter again.

Since puchasing the calf in May, Jeremy has been getting her ready for the big show in Houston. Routine things he concentrated on include breaking the calf to a halter, gentling it, working with a show stick and daily rinses and combing or "training" his hair.

In winning the calf, Jeremy, the son of Jerry and Rita House, followed in his dad's footsteps as he won a calf in the 1961 Scramble and showed it the following year. He was in FFA at the time. In his day though, Jerry said he also had to write a 250 word essay to qualify.

Interested counties applied in June for positions in the Scramble. The 4-H and FFA organizations are allowed to each have an entry.

To accomodate his busy schedule, Jeremy's days begin at 5:30 a.m. and it's often late evening before he is through tending his animals.

He played football and was on the varsity baseball team during his freshman year. This year he is concentrating on baseball and FFA. In addition, he is listed on the A-B Honor Roll.

His crossbred heavy weight steer was named reserve grand champion during the Scurry County Stock Show and went on to place seven out of 50 entries in the recent Fort Worth Livestock Show. The animal sold for $1.75 per pound.

Jeremy's long range goals include playing baseball at a university and eventually he wants to turn pro. At the tender age of two, Jeremy was introduced to the sport through five older brothers. He began playing at age seven.

Inventor Thomas A. Edison received a patent in 1887 for his "Kinetoscope," a device that produced moving pictures.

WTC receives 2nd, 3rd places

Two squads from Western Texas College's judging team placed second and third in competition last Monday and Tuesday in the National Southwestern Hampshire Swine Conference in Sweetwater.

The two teams competed in live swine evaluation. Seven teams entered the competition, and Howard College took first place.

Second place team members include Shannon O'Neal, Jennifer Beard, Chris Meador and Jennifer Trevey. O'Neal was third high individual and Jennifer Beard received fourth high individual.

Other team members competing were Michael Hess, Ronda Parker, Steven McDonald, Justin White, Jody Cook and Alicia Kubena.

Coach Jim Judah and the meats teams will go to the Houston Livestock Show for competition in two weeks.

Judge denies ex-attorney's request to regain law license

EL PASO (AP) — A former attorney who confessed to conspiracy charges in the assassination of a federal judge cannot have his law license reinstated, a state judge has ruled.

Joe Chagra Jr., a paralegal in El Paso, served 6½ years in prison for his role in the 1979 slaying of U.S. District Judge John Wood.

Chagra surrendered his license in 1983 after pleading guilty to conspiracy charges in Wood's killing. He had filed a petition to get his law license back.

But State District Judge Pete Lowry of Austin said in a letter that he was denying Chagra's petition, even though he appears to have been rehabilitated.

"It is the conclusion of this court that his reinstatement ... after conviction of conspiracy to murder a federal judge, when that conviction was based on his own sworn testimony, would not serve the public interest or the ends of justice," Lowry wrote in the letter to attorneys in the case.

Joseph C. Parker Jr., chief of litigation for the State Bar of Texas, said the bar was pleased with the decision.

"It was the right result," he said.

Neither Chagra nor his attorney, David Botsford, immediately returned telephone calls Friday to The Associated Press. Botsford's office released a statement expressing disappointment at Lowry's ruling.

"We feel a deep sense of sadness for Mr. Chagra's family and all of the people who unselfishly chose to step forward and support Mr. Chagra's efforts to practice law again," said the statement from Botsford and attorney Kurt Sauer.

Texas Tech's Glaser set for Friday

Pianist Steve Glaser, professor of music at Texas Tech University, will perform Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Western Texas College Fine Arts Theatre.

The program is free to the public.

His performance is billed "An Evening with a Virtuoso," as Glaser will play several difficult piano arrangements.

The program will include works by Frederic Chopin, including his "Seven Etudes;" Franz Liszt's "Transcendental Etude in F Minor;" and Sergei Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in C-sharp Minor."

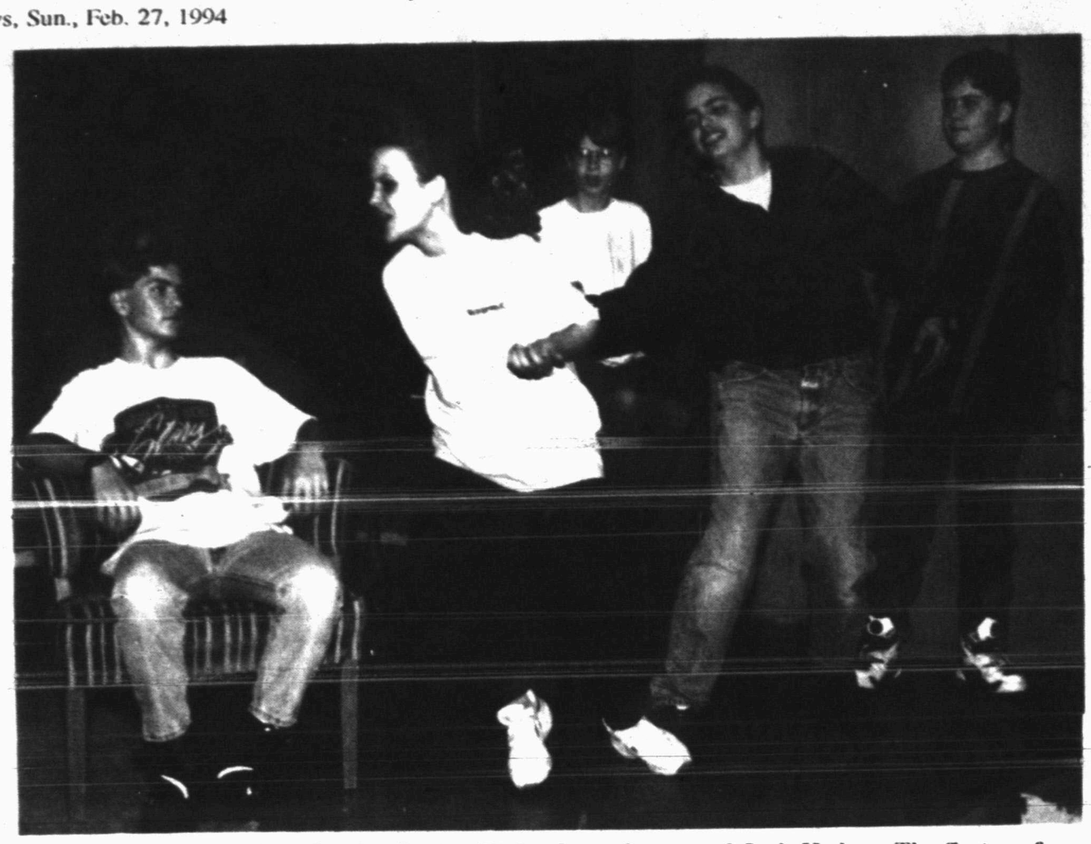

Other offerings will include three works by Domanico Soanatti, "Sonata in D Major," "Sonata in A Minor" and "Sonata in F Major." Also, he will play "Sonata in D Major" by Muzio Clemenil.

Glaser holds degrees from the University of Michigan and the Juilliard School, where he was a scholarship student of the late pianist and renowned teacher Nadia Reisenberg.

He is the winner of such prestigious national and international competitions as the 1st New York Chopin Competition and the Society of American Musicians Competition.

A total of 638 NFL players served in the armed forces in World War II, and 21 of them died in action.

U.S. expels Russian in spy case; others could follow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retaliating for the CIA spy scandal, the United States expelled Russia's reputed top intelligence officer in Washington on Friday after Moscow refused to withdraw him. Officials left open the possibility of punishing other Russians if they're implicated.

Aleksander Lysenko, described as a counselor at the Russian Embassy, was declared persona non grata and ordered to leave within seven days.

Lysenko "was in a position to be responsible for the activities" of CIA agent Aldrich Ames and his wife, Rosario, State Department spokesman Mike McCurry said. He said Lysenko was the Washington "resident" of the SVRR, the successor to the Soviet KGB.

Ames and his wife were arrested Monday on charges of selling secrets to Moscow from at least 1985 to 1993.

The Russians protested the expulsion. American officials said it was likely now that an American intelligence officer would be expelled from Moscow, repeating the tit-for-tat pattern familiar in the Cold War era.

Washington had tried to resolve the spy case with Moscow without resorting to an expulsion, hoping relations had matured enough to defuse the sensitive issue with the voluntary recall of Lysenko.

However, Moscow refused to go along, perhaps out of concern that would leave Boris Yeltsin vulnerable to attack from his critics.

Even in expelling Lysenko, the administration softened the blow by emphasizing the importance of strong ties with Russia and the continuation of reforms. Also, the seven-day deadline for his departure was not as harsh as it could have been.

President Clinton said he'd ordered the CIA and FBI to see if the alleged spy case went beyond Ames, once head of the CIA's Soviet counterintelligence division.

"Sometimes it happens that when you're in a criminal investigation and you're onto something, the investigation turns up information that could not have been anticipated in the beginning," Clinton told a news conference. "I am not trying to say that has occurred."

Clinton said that if the charges against the Ameses were true, the couple "caused significant damage to our national security and betrayed their country."

President Franklin D. Roosevelt ordered in 1942 that men between the ages of 45 and 64 register for nonmilitary duty.

York and Collier set for 'Scramble'

Jason York, 16, and Will Collier, 15, both FFA members from Snyder will compete in the 1994 Houston Rodeo Calf Scramble on Saturday, March 5, in the Astrodome.

The calf scramble is an exciting part of Houston rodeo action, featuring Vince Gill as part of that evenings performance.

Jason, the son of Larry and Keta York, and Will, the son of Tim and Connie Collier, will compete for two of 252 calves to be awarded at the 1994 show.

Additionally, as many as two youngsters from each of the 18 rodeo performances will be awarded "hard luck" certificates for their efforts in attempting to catch a calf, resulting in 36 more certificates actually given.

An entertaining event whose net proceeds provide educational contributions to Texas students, the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo ranks as the nation's largest donor of agricultural scholarships. Currently, more than 1,000 students are attending Texas colleges on show-sponsored scholarships. The show's educational commitment for the 1993-94 school year exceeds $3 million.

Equally important is the show's commitment to youngsters competing at the event itself. The calf scramble is one of the show's major programs benefiting youth, requiring a yearlong commitment on the part of the winner to the animal project.

Beginning with athletic competition in the Astrodome, the program ends 12 months later with top-notch competition in the Astrohall show ring.

The actual calf scramble event involves 28 energetic youngsters pitted against 14 vigorous calves. Each youngster is committed to capturing and bringing a calf to the finish line - but only the successful ones receive $1,000 calf purchase certificates.

The certificates, donated by generous companies or individuals, are used to purchase purebred beef or dairy heifers.

The calves are raised by the winners for special showring competition in the Astrohall at the following year's show. The yearlong project is closely supervised by the appropriate county extension agents or agricultural science teachers.

Additionally, the winners are required to submit financial records, photographs and a scrapbook to the calf scramble office to detail the progress of the venture. The youngsters are encouraged to provide updated reports to their donors as well.

Proper livestock evaluation techniques, efficient cattle feeding and production methods, and principles of money management are all realistic learning experiences for the youngster who manages to get a firm hold on a calf.

To date, the Houston calf scramble has put almost 13,000 animals valued at more than $3 million into the hands of Texas youth.

FD battles house fire

A fire early Saturday morning caused extensive damage to a residence at 2701 Ave. J.

Firemen received the call at 2:53 a.m. and responded to the residence, which was engulfed in flames. The home is occupied by Valentino Gutierrez Jr.

Cause of the fire is still under investigation.

Financial Focus

Investment firms that are members of the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE) are governed by many stringent regulations that may not apply to other investment firms.

For example, NYSE rule 405, the "know your customer" rule, requires registered representatives of NYSE-member firms to obtain pertinent facts about every customer's security holdings, financial condition and investment objectives. This information helps identify potential investments that may or may not be compatible with the customer's needs.

If an investor wishes to purchase a security that the investment representative believes is incompatible with the customer's stated objectives and risk tolerance, the investment representative is likely to ask the investor to read and acknowledge a "risk letter" prior to purchase.

Risk letters give investors an opportunity to seriously consider their positions before making investments. A risk letter is typically a standard form that the investment representative and client complete together. The form includes the amount and description of the purchase and a brief statement explaining why the customer wants to buy the security. If the security is sold by prospectus only, the investor also must acknowledge in the risk letter that he or she has received the prospectus and has been informed of any fee, commission or surrender charge that may apply to the transaction.

The risk letter also emphasizes potential risks, such as market fluctuation or over concentration in one industry or sector. If, after reading the letter, the investor still wants to make the purchase, he or she and the investment representative sign the risk letter, and it becomes part of the investor's file.

Many investors question the need to sign risk letters when they can make other investments without question. Risk letters are required by most brokerages whenever a proposed investment is not consistent with the customer's stated objectives or with his or her normal investmtents.

Risk letters are designed to ensure customers understand the risk of certain investments and are willing to accept that risk before an investment is made.

First Republican Candidate In Knox County History

Wilma Hogan, small business owner from Munday, Texas announces her candidacy for State Representative of District 70. This seat is currently held by David Counts of Knox City. The 54 year old Hogan has been married to Wendell "Bud" Hogan for 31 years and has two grown daughters and five grandchildren.

"I have been involved in politics since I cast my first vote for John F. Kennedy in 1960," says Hogan. Although once a Democrat, she stated that in her opinion the Democratic party's liberal platform had deserted the mainstream conservatives in her area. "District 70 deserves a truly conservative representative and I want the opportunity to be that representative." Hogan added that Mr. Counts was given a 34% rating last year by the Free Market PAC, a conservative group that tracks legislation. "To us that means that 66% of the time, he is voting liberal."

Hogan has been involved in the political realm for years and has campaigned for many candidates and causes but this is her first attempt at candidacy. She stressed that citizens should become actively involved in the political process by voting, staying informed on the issues, and communicating with those who represent them in state and national government.

It was in her job with the Plainview school district that Hogan said she first discovered the government waste of tax dollars. During the seven years she worked with Federal programs assisting in writing applications for Federal funds she realized how much money could be saved. Then after becoming a small business and property owner, Hogan said she saw her taxes begin to rapidly escalate. She said she felt it was time that the average American tax payer had a say in how the government was spending their money.

Mrs. Hogan believes in less government not more. "The state budget has grown from $46 billion to $70 billion in only three years. Texas is going to end up in the same mess as Washington if we do not begin to control spending." She said that local control of schools, cities, and counties is what Texans need. "Austin politicians have lost touch with their constituents." Mrs. Hogan also supports term limits and stated that "most professional politicians have forgotten the voters at home they were elected to represent."

AISD seeks absense from test for eclipse

AUSTIN (AP) — The Austin Independent School District is one of a handful of districts in the state that wants its students excused from taking part of a standardized test May 10 because there is a solar eclipse that day.

In Austin, 85 percent of the sun is expected to be covered by the moon that Tuesday morning.

Students in third through eighth grades are scheduled to take the reading section of the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills that day.

But school officials are worried the solar eclipse will spook them or distract them enough to lower test scores, on which schools and districts are rated.

The Austin school board is scheduled to vote Monday whether to seek a waiver from the Texas Education Agency that would allow the test to be given another day. Trustee Melissa Knippa said, "We'll have to see if we can plan ahead enough to all pop our sunglasses on when we vote."

For all the data collected and compiled into reports by schools, there seems to be no definitive study on how well students perform on the dark side of the moon. There is only anxious speculation.

"Kids are going to spazz out," said AISD spokesman Jeff Prescott. "You can imagine them taking a test and then it gets dark."

TEA spokeswoman Della May Moore said requests for waivers from the testing date are being considered individually. Ms. Moore said the agency has no intention of granting an across-the-board exemption.

So far, five school districts — all in or near El Paso, where the eclipse is expected to be near 100 percent — have requested waivers, she said. All have been granted.

Moore said the TAAS is administered on the same day across the state to 2.2 million students to prevent security breaches.

One high-ranking AISD official, Evangelina Mangino of the Office of Research and Evaluation, said the school district had considered all its options and narrowed them to two.

"I'm requesting to either change the date of the eclipse or the date of the test," Ms. Mangino explained.

Israel TV: soldiers shot some victims

HEBRON, Occupied West Bank (AP) — The army Saturday denied reports that some of the 39 Palestinians who died in the Ibrahim Mosque massacre were killed by Israeli soldiers rather than by the Jewish settler mowed down rows of worshipers.

The reports by Israel TV and PLO officials came as violent protests sparked by the masacre continued for a second day. Three Palestinian teen-agers were killed by troops in the violence Saturday.

In all, at least 61 people have died in the massacre and its aftermath: the victims in the mosque, those killed in protests and the gunman, who apparently was beaten to death at the mosque.

Some of the dead at the mosque were killed in the panicked stampede that broke out amid the shooting, the TV and PLO reports said.

Lt. Gen. Ehud Barak, the armed forces chief of staff, said soldiers fired only warning shots outside the mosque and "not inside, not against the Arabs."

Jailed hard-liners leave prison

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia's former parliament speaker Ruslan Khasbulatov and other hard-liners who have fought against President Boris Yeltsin walked free from their prison Saturday after being granted amnesty.

Khasbulatov was the first to walk out of the maximum-security Lefortovo Prison. He left through the back door, and was greeted outside by his wife, daughter and about a dozen men from his native Chechnya, a separatist Russian province.

Khasbulatov's face looked pale, and he walked with his head down, pausing to wave his hand weakly at reporters. He was whisked away in a blue jeep.

A crowd of about 500 supporters and curious onlookers gathered outside the walls of Lefortovo, a forbidding former KGB prison in central Moscow.

Snyder's future depends on visionary leadership...
I'm voting for Bob Doolittle

A few people — I won't name names, but you know who you are — think there's nothing to running a county.

They think, what's there to know? You run an ad. Get some votes. Get elected and you're on your way to fame and fortune. Right?

Let's Talk Openly.
It takes a whole lot more than a slogan and a flip chart to successfully manage a county. And you don't learn over night. Bob has worked hard for the position. He has learned the ins and outs of running our county. He's keenly aware of the issues. While I'm on the subject, some would suggest that a shrinking ad valorem tax base is a new problem. I know for a fact that working in our rapidly changing economic situation has been and will continue to be Bob's highest priority. Remember this...Bob didn't cause this problem. He's trying to resolve it.

Ask C.A.D.A. (Snyder Council On Alcohol & Drug Abuse).
Ever notice how you seldom hear of good news? Let me tell you about how Bob salvaged C.A.D.A. Seems C.A.D.A.'s state funding was about to expire and be consolidated into the Sweetwater office. C.A.D.A. would have to shut its doors. Bob got on the phone, drove to Austin, met with the right people and within a few weeks had $100,000 in state funding back in C.A.D.A.'s coffers. Like I said, Bob's a doer. He's proven.

Yoked Together.
When Bob took office, the city and county heads could not even agree on the day of the week let alone envision cooperation on cost-saving changes. Today, we're working closely together in an effort to save money. Our new intergovernmental agreement is a testimony to his leadership.

Vote Character...Not Ticket.
Most folks don't know this, but did you realize you can vote either side of the ticket? Whether you're democrat or republican you can vote the man. Let's keep someone in there that knows what he's doing.

Hope This Helps.
I paid for this ad out of my back pocket because I believe in Bob. I believe he's a man of vision, of character, of proven stability. I would encourage you to join me and vote for Bob Doolittle as our County Judge (early voting at the Scurry County Courthouse, 3rd Floor, Feb. 16 - March 3rd or in the Republican/Democrat Primary on March 8). Our future depends on it.

Radio Shack offers refunds for electronic pinball game

DALLAS (AP) — Radio Shack said Friday it has apologized for selling an electronic pinball game featuring an image of a swastika, cancelled all future orders and is offering refunds to offended customers.

Radio Shack did not notice the symbol until it was contacted by the Anti-Defamation League, which received complaints about the game from all over the country, said Mark Briskman, the league's regional director in Dallas.

"A lot of people were very upset by it," Briskman said.

The swastika escaped the company's notice because it is one of several images that appear randomly on different levels of the Pinball Master game, said Fran McGehee, spokeswoman for Radio Shack parent Tandy Corp.

"It wasn't our intention to offend anyone. The problem actually was discovered by our customers and the Anti-Defamation League. It's such a random thing in the product that we didn't discover it automatically when we tested it," Ms. McGehee said.

Radio Shack sold the $19.99 games as a Christmas item. Ms. McGehee said she did not know how many had been ordered or sold. However, Briskman said Radio Shack originally purchased about 55,000 Pinball Masters.

Neither knew the name of the game's vendor, but they said the manufacturer was a private-label supplier in the Orient.

"The graphic in question is also a good-luck sign in the Buddhism religion, so the supplier did not actually realize that using this symbol could actually offend anyone," Ms. McGehee said.

"We never intended it to happen, we never intended to offend anyone. It just kind of got by us," she said. "We apologize and we're willing to give a refund to anyone who's offended."

The Anti-Defamation League, which fights anti-Semitism, said Radio Shack's response had been quick.

Re-Elect Wanda Rushing
Your
Justice of the Peace
Precinct 1

TO ALL SCURRY COUNTY VOTERS:

My name is Wanda Rushing and I want to take this opportunity to thank you for allowing me to be your public servant. I am asking you for a second term as Justice of the Peace, Pct. One. I have spent 16 years in the JP office, 12 as clerk and 4 as judge, so I know every phase of the office. I feel that my training and experience will benefit you, the taxpayers of Scurry County.

I have worked hard at being a good judge and stand on my record and performance.

The Justice of the Peace door is always open to you and I am ready to listen and assist with whatever problems you might have. Many out-of-towners are shocked that they can speak directly to the judge, but this is a daily occurance here.

The Justice of the Peace office is a busy place. We strive to provide courteous and efficient service with fair and impartial rulings.

I have cut the salary budget $10,000 per year by assisting with clerical duties. I am a working judge.

If you want a proven dedicated, experienced and working judge I ask you to check my qualifications and look at my job performance before casting your vote in the Democratic Primary, March 8th.

I desire to continue to serve you as Justice of the Peace, Pct. One. THE CHOICE IS YOURS!

Your vote and influence is appreciated.

Sincerely,

Wanda Rushing

Seattle hands Celts 11th loss

by The Associated Press

Here's a record the Boston Celtics won't take pride in.

The Celtics, who love to tout their record 16 NBA championships, set a franchise mark with their 11th consecutive defeat Friday night, losing 115-102 to the Seattle SuperSonics.

Their old record for consecutive losses was 10 set in 1949.

"The guys are working as hard as they can," Boston coach Chris Ford said. "We just don't have the talent. We've got to keep working hard and hopefully get a win somewhere down the road."

Elsewhere on a busy night in the NBA, Miami beat Philadelphia 115-84, Chicago beat Washington 116-94, Orlando defeated New Jersey 114-102, Atlanta beat Milwaukee 111-100 and Cleveland beat Golden State 107-97.

Also, Indiana beat Detroit 110-90, Denver beat New York 102-94, Utah defeated Phoenix 107-87, the Los Angeles Clippers beat Sacramento 121-111, and San Antonio stopped the Los Angeles Lakers 126-110.

Kendall Gill scored a season-high 25 points, Shawn Kemp had 23 points and 13 rebounds, Detlef Schrempf had 23 points — his best since joining the Sonics —and Gary Payton added 20 points.

Xavier McDaniel came off the bench for 21 points and Rick Fox scored 17 for the Celtics, who scored 100 points for the first time in the losing streak.

Spurs 126, Lakers 110

At Inglewood, Calif., Willie Anderson scored a season-high 33 points, leading San Antonio to its 14th victory in 15 games.

Anderson, who played only the first three quarters, made 14 of 18 shots.

Vlade Divac had 21 points and 10 rebounds and Nick Van Exel scored 18 points for Los Angeles, which was swept by San Antonio in a season series for the first time. The Lakers have dropped five of six games

David Robinson, the NBA's second-leading scorer, had 26 points, and Vinnie Del Negro finished with 24 for the Spurs. Dennis Rodman grabbed 18 rebounds.

Clippers 121, Kings 111

At Los Angeles, Elmore Spencer had a career-high 28 points and Harold Ellis scored 16 of his 26 points in the second quarter as Los Angeles ended a five-game losing streak.

Mitch Richmond made eight 3-point shots, setting a Kings franchise record for 3-pointers in a game, and finished with 37 points.

Mark Jackson added 18 points and eight assists for the Clippers, who blew all but one point of a 19-point lead in the third quarter.

Hawks 111, Bucks 100

At Atlanta, Duane Ferrell, starting in place of the departed Dominique Wilkins, scored 20 points and Kevin Willis scored 17 of his 21 points in the fourth quarter for the Hawks.

Willis, who also grabbed 13 rebounds, made eight of nine shots in the final period.

Danny Manning, obtained from the Los Angeles Clippers on Thursday for Wilkins, the Hawks career scoring leader, watched in street clothes.

Magic 114, Nets 102

At Orlando, Nick Anderson scored 28 points and Dennis Scott 23 as the Magic defeated New Jersey for a franchise-record sixth straight victory.

Anfernee Hardaway and Shaquille O'Neal had 21 points apiece as four Magic starters scored 20 or more points.

Kenny Anderson had 33 points and 12 assists and Derrick Coleman, who signed a five-year, $37.5 million contract earlier in the day, added 23 points and nine rebounds for the Nets.

Roby ousts H'land with 77-53 victory

Jason Osuna hit four of Roby's 10 3-point baskets as the Lions eliminated Highland from the Class A basketball playoffs with a 77-53 win Friday at Snyder High School.

Roby, taller at every position, jumped out to a 9-0 advantage in the opening period, then held a 17-5 lead after eight minutes had elapsed. The margin grew to 41-16 at halftime.

Every player on the Roby team scored Friday, led by Osuna's 16 points and 15 from Ralph Amator.

Highland, which finishes the season with a 16-8 record, was led by Toby Harbuck and Ricky Sutton, each with 14 points, and James Womack, who canned 12.

The Lions carry a 27-1 season mark into the next round of the playoffs where they will face District 23 runner-up Sterling City.

In another area playoff game Friday, District 21-A champion Loraine was hammered by District 22 runner-up Robert Lee, 91-41. Robert Lee moves to 19-4 while Loraine winds up with an 18-5 record.

Pampa, 25-8, will battle Big Spring, 13-16, at 7 p.m. Saturday at Frenship High School in Wolfforth and Plainview, 30-3, will take on Sweetwater, 21-10, in a 7 p.m. Saturday contest at Lubbock Coronado in Class 4A action.

It's not unusual for celebrities to make public their personal sports favorites.

After thanking agents and managers and fans and writers and others involved in the making of the tape, Raye added, "and thanks Emmitt for signing."

After many years of personal winter exile, I finally joined a weekend exodus from West Texas to Ruidoso, N.M. to try my hand at skiing.

I found out why so many people love the sport, getting outdoors, exercising and playing in the snow.

It was great fun, even though is was as crowded as a mall at Christmas time.

Prior to hitting the slopes, or in my case, the slopes hitting me, my better half and I decided to go to classes.

Supposedly, she wanted to go to learn to ski and develop skills so that she could traverse the New Mexico tundra like a pro.

I suspect though, that it may have had something to do with the looks of the ski instructors.

A dozen or so blonde, tanned athletic looking young men were waiting in line to draw for classes early on our first morning there.

It was just like the movies. They all had Nordic looks and names like Vince, Chad or Bart.

Not coincidentally, women outnumbered men in the classes about 2-to-1.

Vince, our ski school Adonis, said that he enjoyed teaching the class because he liked being outdoors and he loved to ski, something he'd been doing for over 20 years.

Right.

I guess the way those women were ogling him had nothing to do with it.

Baiul skates away with gold

LILLEHAMMER, Norway (AP) — The most-hyped, most-anticipated and most-watched event in Olympic history couldn't have been closer — or more dramatic.

A shift of a tenth of a point by any of the nine judges could have given Nancy Kerrigan the figure-skating gold over Oksana Baiul, instead of the other way around.

By the end Friday night, there were no complaints, just relief. Kerrigan was relieved, eighth-place Tonya Harding was relieved, and doubtless much of the world was relieved that it was over.

"It's been tough. Now that it's over I can finally say it," Kerrigan said. "I've felt as if I've been in prison."

But the Lillehammer Olympics have not turned out to be the Tonya-vs.-Nancy Games. The Norwegians have seen to that with wildly enthusiastic spectators and exciting athletes who have made the medals podium a second home.

After a for-the-scrapbooks day on Friday with five medals, Norway took a nearly insurmountable lead in the medals race into the Olympics' final weekend. The Norwegians had 25 medals to Russia's 22 and Germany's 21, and the home team was loaded with more medals candidates while their pursuers were running out.

Five gold medals were to be handed out today, in women's slalom, the men's biathlon relay and three short-track speedskating races. Russia had a shot at a bronze medal in its hockey game against Finland; Canada and Sweden, each with 5-1-1 records, play for the gold on Sunday.

The Americans had only long-shot chances in the slalom but good prospects to pick up a record-breaking 13th medal tonight in the men's 500-meter individual speedskating finals and 5,000-meter relay, and the women's 1,000 meters.

The United States was one of the four relay finalists, and Andy Gabel of Pewaukee, Wis., was a favorite in the 500. Hard-skating Cathy Turner was seeking her fifth career medal in the 1,000.

The four-man bobsled competition also was starting today.

The skating competition kept the world transfixed.

Baiul, an impish 16-year-old who burst onto the scene by winning the world championship last year, skated a lively routine set to Broadway show tunes. After trailing Kerrigan when the night began and then seeing her post high scores, the Ukrainian plopped down in the "kiss-and-cry" box and began weeping from stress even before she knew who would win.

Five judges ranked her first; four gave first to Kerrigan. Only after Katarina Witt had skated, bobbling some jumps that moved her down from sixth to seventh, was a Baiul-Kerrigan finish determined, with China's Chen Lu taking third and France's Surya Bonaly fourth.

"I could not think about the gold after my performance," Baiul said after winning Ukraine's first Olympic gold medal. "I never do because my goal is to do well and give joy to the spectators."

"The hard life I've had up to now gives me strength to compete," said the teen-ager, whose mother died two years ago and who never knew her father.

Kerrigan said she thought, "in my mind and my heart," she'd deserved the gold. But she was gracious and uncomplaining after taking a silver to go with the bronze she won in 1992, when she was one spot ahead of Harding.

"I skated great and I'm really proud of myself," she said.

Harding, who stifled tears and stopped skating after 45 seconds, was granted a reskate to fix her laces and finished eighth, without performing her vaunted triple axel.

She heads home Sunday to Portland, Ore., and an uncertain future as the subject of investigations by a grand jury and the FBI. But she, too, gave herself a pat on the back for facing down the pressure.

"I think I did quite well under all the circumstances because I think I was ready to have a nervous breakdown before I went out the first time," she said.

Tigers outlast Central, 14-10

SAN ANGELO — The Snyder Tigers closed out their appearance at the San Angelo Best of the West Classic baseball tournament with a 14-10 consolation-bracket win over host San Angelo Central Friday.

The Tigers, now 1-2 on the season, finished their three games at the tourney with 34 hits, including 14 in their win over the Bobcats.

"Our bats have really come around," said SHS coach Albert Lewis. "I'm sure that our pitching will settle down, but our defense is going to have to stop giving up so many runs on errors."

The Tigers committed six errors against Central and a dozen in their three games at the tournament.

Snyder's Brian Lickey, making his first start of the season, lasted four innings, fanning four, walking five and scattering eight hits.

Curt Rinehart went the final three frames for the save, striking out five and walking none.

The Tigers opened the game with a six-run eruption in the top of the first inning, highlighted by a three-run homer by leftfielder Jimmy Henry.

Henry's blast drove in SHS second baseman Craig Lang, who had doubled in centerfielder John Clinkinbeard and rightfielder Reagan Key just two batters earlier, and catcher Brad Hart, who had walked.

Snyder added a run in the second, three in the third and four in the fifth.

Lang finished with a pair of doubles and two RBI, Key had three hits in four plate appearances, and Hart was a perfect 3-for-3 with four runs driven in.

Central's Billy Scott, who lasted less than an inning, was Friday's loser, giving up five runs, two walks and three hits.

Top hitters for the 'Cats were DH Cory Strange, who had two hits and two RBI, third baseman Ryan Ingram, who rapped two hits in four at-bats, and shortstop Chris Aufclenheichter, who punched two hits and drove in two runs.

Snyder will make its home debut Tuesday against Sweetwater at 5 p.m. at Moffett Field.

Lickey, Rinehart and Hart; Scott, Cartee and Pfluger; WP: Lickey (1-0); LP:Scott; 2B: Snyder — Lang (2), Lickey; Central — Graves, Hoelle, Speciale, Aufclenheichter (2); HR: Henry; Record: Snyder 1-2.

WTC in 9th-place tie at NMMI golf tourney

ROSWELL, N.M. — Western Texas College finished the opening day of the New Mexico Military Institute Invitational golf tournament with a team-total 600, good for a ninth-place tie with Southern Colorado.

The 15-team field played 36 holes Friday and were to finish with a final round on Saturday at the NMMI course.

Midland College Gold, led by individual leader Graham Davidson's 67-70--137, took first Friday with a combined 283-277--560, followed by New Mexico JC's 569, and a 577 from Texas Lutheran.

Trailing Davidson in the medalist's race is NMJC standout Johan Lundquist and Chad Campbell of Midland's Gold team, each with a 6-under par 138.

Cory Stone shot a 36-hole 147, including an opening round 72, for WTC scoring honors.

Isabel Soto followed with a 149, Monnie Soto chipped in a 152, as did Charlie Garcia, and Chris Rogers carded a 160 on twin 80s.

SHS golfers shoot 368 at Tall City Invitational

MIDLAND — High winds played havoc with team scores in Friday's opening round of the Midland Tall City Invitational golf tournament.

Snyder turned in a combined 368, good for 10th place, in the wind at Midland Country Club.

The tourney was to wind up Saturday with a final 18 holes at Green Tree Golf Club.

Fort Worth Paschal was the leader at the halfway point with a 332 total, followed by Midland Lee's 334, a 340 from Monahans and Odessa Permian with a 347.

Midland's Jeremiah Lutrell and James Edmondson of Paschal tied for individual scoring honors Friday, each carding an 80.

Family members pass out 'Justice For Joey' buttons

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Family and friends of Joey Fischer wore "Justice for Joey" buttons outside the courtroom Friday as testimony continued in the murder-for-hire trial of his ex-girlfriend's mother.

Fischer, 18, a Catholic Academy honor student, was shot to death in front of his suburban Brownsville home nearly a year ago. Prosecutors allege Dora Garcia Cisneros hired gunmen to kill him after he broke off a brief relationship with her daughter, Cristina.

Standing trial with Mrs. Cisneros on capital murder charges is Daniel Garza, 43, who is accused of paying Mrs. Cisneros' money to two Mexicans who allegedly carried out the slaying. Testimony will resume Monday.

Fischer's 16-year-old brother Eric testified Friday that he saw a white, four-door car, possibly a Lincoln, driving away after Fischer was gunned down on March 3, 1993.

Prosecutors introduced into evidence motel records showing that one of the accused gunmen, Heriberto Puentes Pizana, had checked into a Brownsville motel room on the day before the killing and checked out on the day after.

Puentes Pizana, of Matamoros, Mexico, wrote on the motel's registration form that he was driving a white Grand Marquis with Mexican plates, the records showed.

Prosecutors also introduced records that Garza was staying at the same La Quinta Inn from March 1 to March 11.

Defense attorneys questioned why Garza and Puentes would register under their own names if they were in Brownsville to carry out a killing.

Puentes, 21, who is in a Mexican jail on an auto theft charge, has denied any involvement in the slaying. The indictment identifies the other gunman as Israel Olivares, 23, who remains at large.

Prosecutors introduced bank records showing that Mrs. Cisneros withdrew $5,000 in cash from a $100,000 certificate of deposit on July 7, 1992.

Records showed that she then accessed a safe-deposit box that day.

Are three fatal fires linked?

HOUSTON (AP) — Arson investigators have called in federal agents to help determine if there are any links between three separate fire deaths in southwest Houston.

The U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms has been asked to develop a psychological profile of the victims and a profile of a hypothetical suspect, said Franceska Perot, spokeswoman for the ATF in Houston.

All three house fires were intentionally set, and each was started by the same type of flammable liquid, said Paul Gray, assistant chief of Houston Fire Department's Arson Bureau.

Although suicide has not been ruled out in two of the cases, death by self-immolation is so uncommon that investigators speculate the three cases could be linked.

"This is a very rare occurrence to happen at all," Gray said. "It's even more rare for it to happen in the same area and in such a short time frame."

He added that there are other similarities in the three cases that he could not disclose.

The first fire, on Dec. 23, killed Jack Smith, 49. Investigators first ruled the death a suicide but now have reopened the case.

In the second blaze, on Jan. 29, the body of James Barr, 56, was found burned beyond recognition in the garage of his Memorial-area townhome.

On Feb. 12, firefighters found the body of Deborah Harrison, 45, in the bedroom of her burned-out townhome.

In each case the victim was middle-aged and lived alone.

Packwood asking Rehnquist to delay turnover of diaries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Bob Packwood asked Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist on Friday to block the transfer of his diaries to the Senate Ethics Committee while he appeals the panel's subpoena.

Packwood's emergency petition said he "is being made subject to an unreasonable search and seizure of his private personal papers."

A federal judge earlier this month ordered the diaries turned over to the committee, which is investigating allegations of sexual misconduct, witness intimidation and obstruction of the inquiry.

A delay would be crucial to Packwood, an Oregon Republican, because the diaries have not yet been turned over to the committee. The audio tapes and transcripts first must be reviewed by Packwood and a neutral arbiter.

Packwood's lawyer, Jacob A. Stein, said in court papers he did not expect any attempt to give the diaries to the ethics committee before Tuesday.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit refused Feb. 18 to block the order by U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson, saying Packwood had not met the requirements for such a delay.

Court papers filed by Packwood's lawyers said the subpoena violates his right of privacy under the Constitution's Fourth Amendment as well as his Fifth Amendment protection against self-incrimination.

If a delay is not granted, "the issues on appeal will be moot long before oral argument" before the appeals court, Stein wrote.

"The central issue here is whether a truly personal diary is a writing entitled to Fifth Amendment protection," Stein added. "There is no authority holding that it is not so entitled."

Wants massacre to be catalyst for peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mideast negotiators will come to Washington and "stay here in continuous session" until work is finished on implementing the Israeli-Palestinian peace accord, President Clinton said Friday. He appealed to both sides to use the massacre of worshipers in a West Bank mosque as "a catalyst for peace."

Clinton condemned the slayings as "a gross act of murder" and said the lone gunman apparently sought to undermine progress toward an Israeli-PLO peace agreement.

Administration officials expressed deep concern that the incident "could swamp the progress" made toward implementing the agreement. They wouldn't rule out the possibility that Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat would join the talks at some point.

Israeli Ambassador Itamar Rabinovich said no date has been set for the shift of negotiations to Washington. He expressed optimism an agreement could be concluded to implement a transfer of limited governing authority in Gaza and the Jericho region of the West Bank from Israel to the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"Most of the important issues have already been addressed," he said. Unresolved are questions about the size of the Jericho area, security arrangements and issues involving water and links between the Israeli and Palestinian economies.

Secretary of State Warren Christopher issued the invitations in telephone conversations with Rabin and Arafat.

Clinton and other senior U.S. officials were quick to condemn the massacre of worshipers at the Ibrahim Mosque in Hebron, south of Jerusalem, and express hope the incident would not derail the peace process.

Card Of Thanks

Thanks

We take this means to express our sincere thanks to our many friends who were so kind to us in our darkest hour of sorrow (when our loved one was called away.) We deeply appreciate the kind words and beautiful flowers that were sent; also the food that was prepared and the prayers in our behalf. May you have just such friends if such sorrow ever visits your home. May Heaven's richest blessings fall on each of you.

Homebuying? Get a real PAL - a Pre-Approved Loan!

"You know, when you hear the word pal, you normally think of a friend, a buddy, a compadre. But at AmWest Savings, PAL also stands for Pre-Approved Loan. And when you're lookin' for a new home and want to move in quick, AmWest can be your best PAL.

Fact is, most of us go out lookin' for a home, find the one we want, and then go see about a loan. But, if you go see my friends at AmWest first, you can get pre-approved. Now I know that some banks will pre-qualify you, but I'm talkin' pre-approval. That way you know exactly how much you can buy, and you can go out and get the house you want, pronto!

So, if you're fixin' to buy a new home, take your PAL from AmWest with you."

Spielberg is honored

NEW YORK (AP) — Film, Steven Spielberg said, is the "most powerful weapon in the world."

The director of the Holocaust drama "Schindler's List" was honored Thursday night by the American Museum of the Moving Image.

"Filmmakers have the responsibility not just to entertain but to be responsible, to inform," Spielberg told actors, directors and other industry luminaries gathered at a hotel for the tribute.

Republican candidates

before, we stood up effectively to a very clever politican. It will be a tough race and I've proved that we're up to a tough race."

Haywood added, "Not only do I have the best chance to win, I can win and I also know the issues and understand government better than Doyle."

High said the race boils down to two issues — who can win and who can best serve the people.

High, in reference to Haywood's health problems, said only he has the endurance to run against Carriker in the fall and work 16 and 18 hour days when the legislature is in session. Haywood had Parkinson's Disease.

High cited an editorial in Haywood's hometown newspaper, the Wichita Falls Times Record News: "Tom Haywood's credentials and background clearly make him the superior of the two GOP challengers...We do question with all sincerity and without malice whether or not the rigors and demands of the legislature would prove to be more than Haywood could physically handle, putting him in an unfair position and at the same time limiting his effectiveness to represent the district."

High said Friday that he would be in Snyder next week, likely on Thursday, and would be traveling with GOP State Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry.

Workshop

A mini-workshop on violence in the classroom will be held Tuesday at 4:15 p.m. in the Northeast Elementary library. Everyone is welcome to attend.

2912 COLLEGE 573-1751
SNYDER, TEXAS

Scurry County Folks

By Shirley A. Gorman

The words on the blackboard say it all: "If you can imagine it, you can achieve; if you dream it, you can become it."

That's the basic philosophy of Snyder High School's ag teachers, Bob Hand and David Frazier.

David, a number one motivator, encourages students to find out what they are good at and then make the most of it.

The two men aren't exactly a matched set — more like fraternal twins — but together their dedication to Future Farmers of America (FFA) and devotion to their students has precipitated a phenomenal growth in membership, to more than 240 students in just three years.

Each year students win a variety of awards in area, regional and state contests and stock shows.

Bob, the more "laid back" of the two teachers, wears the traditional jeans and cowboy boots so often associated with agriculture. He moved to Snyder from Aztec, N.M., four years ago.

With that move, the veteran ag teacher returned to his roots, not only in West Texas, but in Snyder, as he attended grade school here.

David Frazier joined the Snyder school system the following school year. A seemingly endless ball of energy, the unlikely appearing ag teacher is more at home in dress slacks, long sleeve shirt and tie. He doesn't wear the more traditional ag clothing unless he is working with animals.

A cheerleader in college, David's deep committment to FFA made becoming a teacher a natural choice. His high school ag teacher played a key role in David's career choice.

David's zeal, dedication and determination so impressed Bob that Bob recruited his counterpart right after college graduation. Two years later, he nominated David for the Outstanding AgriScience Teacher of the Year Award for the state of Texas, which he won in 1992-1993.

Bob recruited David, he said, because "I liked his style. Both his programs and methods were different."

Today, David calls his fellow teacher "friend, confidant and mentor."

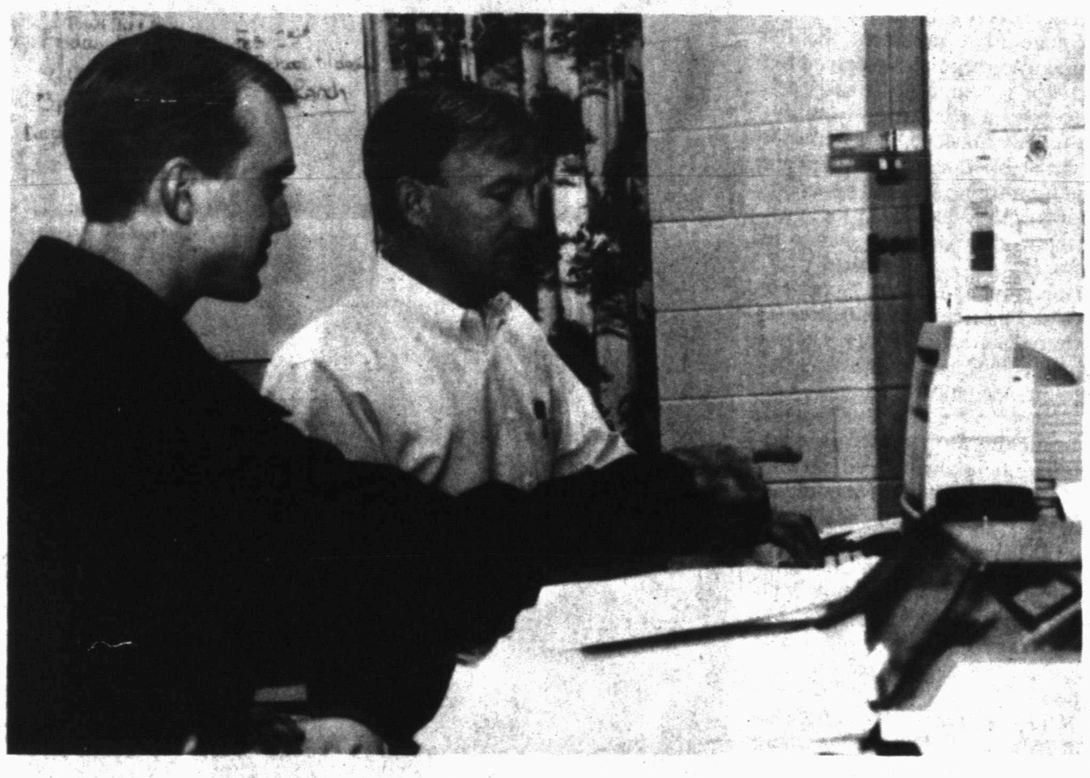

In spite of their differences, or, perhaps because of them, the ag teachers work well together; like "two peas in a pod," according to David. Each has areas which they specialize in. Bob's classes include environmental science and the two-hour ag mechanics, and he also superyises the commercial steer and lamb programs as well as the 20 FFA students who are currently enrolled in the ag co-op program and work in ag-related businesses after lunch.

David teaches horticulture, two honors classes — farm business management and animal science; landscape (fall semester) and food technology. He also works with the students who show hogs.

After a full day in the classroom, both Bob and David visit students' projects and take care of other ag-related business.

AT WORK — Snyder High School's ag teachers are David Frazier, right photo, and Bob Hand, left photo. Frazier is showing Christy Griffith how to pot a plant. They are working in the greenhouse located behind Humble Smith. Bob and Adam Scott are shown at the ag building's computer, a vital link to the world of agriculture. This is Bob's fourth year at SHS and David's third. Though different in background and style of dress, the two teachers work well together and in three years have expanded the local FFA membership. Both stress academics and "hands on experience." David also gives motivation top priority. FFA brought the two teachers together for the first time in New Mexico several years ago. Bob also encouraged David to accept the job in Snyder. The ag teachers have applied for a grant and, if approved, Bob said long range plans are to add an aqua culture science program as well as upgrade the current FFA facilities. The teachers and students who show animals are in Houston this weekend for the annual livestock show and rodeo. (SDN Staff Photos)

When Bob and David teamed up three years ago, they gave top priority to expanding Snyder's FFA program. They added a variety of classes to attract the non-traditional ag student, including horticulture last school year.

Contingent on whether their grant application will be approved, Bob said they are also planning to add classes for an aqua culture science program. This would entail marine science, studying how to use the ocean and raising fish as a commercial business.

Future long range plans would also include upgrading the FFA facilities.

To build a strong program, David said he and Bob concentrated on three areas: classroom curriculum, the FFA organization, and the Supervised Agriculture Experience (SAE) program.

Classroom instruction begins with "the basics." David said students enroll "because they know they will learn something."

FFA, organized in 1928 and "recognized the world over" is the largest youth organization in the world. Snyder's very active chapter is one of the largest in the state and currently recognized as one of the top chapters in Texas, David said.

The SAE program is for FFA members who want to show animals. For the past two academic years, Snyder members have earned considerable sums through revenues.

Academics are also stressed. In 1992-1993, local FFA students received $150,000 in scholarships.

David said they try and "push as many students as we can into college."

The FFA program offers its members many opportunities to grow, including earning degrees and awards. The Greenhand degree is for first-year members. Chapter degrees are for two-year members. The Lone Star Award is the highest state award. To earn the American FFA Award, members must invest and earn more than $7,500 in addition to other criteria.

Members learn to keep detailed record books and, in an effort to give their students a "taste of real life," both Bob and David encourage them to take out loans to purchase their animals just so they can "see the process at work."

They both stress the importance of "hands-on work."

David said it is important for students to "learn that to succeed, they must do the work."

Leadership training and contests occupy much of the fall semester. The spring semester is geared toward judging contests.

Leadership activities encourage public speaking, David said, and give students the "character and education to do anything."

Nothing pleases them more, David said, than to see their students grow, begin to realize their potential and to apply what they are learning in their daily lives. Public speaking is an integral part of the FFA program.

Students are also involved in BOAC (Building Own American Communities). Last school year they rebuilt the FFA greenhouse.

Through the Food For America program, elementary students are given a tour of the FFA operation and animals. Some 625 children participated last school year.

Show programs, the highlight of the year, according to David, take up a great deal of their time. Currently on the agenda is the Houston Junior Livestock Show, underway this weekend. Some 80 hogs have been entered by the local FFA.

David said their "little pigs" are often enrolled in weekend events. Each entrant puts up $25 and the best judged pig "jackpots," or wins all the money; something David said Snyder does consistently.

The lambs entered by FFA students in summer events also "jackpot" frequently.

The FFA program has expanded and now includes showing broilers and turkeys, David said, because they "cost less to purchase and mature faster." Both teachers supervise this new addition to the program.

Recently, what started out as day-old poults matured into 35-pound birds in just a few weeks.

"If you can imagine it, you can achieve; if you dream it, you can become it."

Snyder's FFA chapter has a "losing stinks" attitude, David said, adding that the students want "to win as much as the state offers." They don't want to settle for second, he added.

The ag teachers "teach students how to think, not what to think." They also strive for "quality" as opposed to "quantity."

"The kids know what is expected and they work harder than we do," David said. But, he added, "We don't lose sight of the importance of having fun."

David's students who show animals borrowed a good luck tradition from their teacher — troll dolls. Each team has its own and members carry it to contests.

The tradition began when David's high school teacher bought one. The then FFA president put it in his pocket and won and the tradition was born.

Since the FFA program at SHS has grown so much, David said both he and Bob asked parents to help last year. The result was the formation of the FFA Booster Club, which provides invaluable services.

Long before Bob and David teamed up to head the local FFA program, the two men met in New Mexico where Bob taught for several years and David, a native, was very active in both high school and college FFA programs.

The two had crossed paths many times over a period of years through their involvement in FFA. David served as state vice president his senior year in high school. After one year of college, David put his academic career on hold in order to serve as New Mexico's state president.

During that year, David's committment to FFA deepened and he honed his skills as a motivational speaker by visiting all high schools in New Mexico. He also traveled extensively in 30 other states. Working with young people is still the cornerstone of his life. Wanting "to make a difference" in someone's life is what fuels his desire to remain an ag teacher.

That's why he recently turned down a top national FFA post that would have involved extensive traveling in the U.S. and other countries.

David drew his inspiration not only from his high school ag teacher who "symbolized all I wanted to be" but also from his mother who worked three jobs to support her four children. Reared in Melrose, N.M., David said he and his siblings never let their impoverished background keep them from succeeding.

As a college freshman, David attended West Texas State University (now West Texas A&M) and Eastern New Mexico University for one semester each.

After serving as the New Mexico state FFA president, he returned to college and received his bachelor's degree at Texas Tech University. He is currently studying for his master's at Tech also. David's job doesn't leave much time for a social life, but he recently acquired "Jud," short for "Just a Dog," at an animal shelter in Lubbock.

Bob grew up in West Texas. He obtained his bachelor's degree at Tarleton State University. He has almost completed his master's degree in agriculture education at Tech.

Ironically, Bob's interest in becoming an ag teacher did not surface until later in life. He couldn't take ag in high school because his school did not offer it.

His father worked in the oil industry, but Bob had friends who were farmers and ranchers. He started out as a pre-law major and had been accepted into a law school.

After one semester of college he quit to join the U.S. Navy where he spent four years as a Seal. After being discharged, Bob returned to college.

After graduating from college, Bob learned that Hobbs was looking for an ag teacher. Not realizing then that this particular Hobbs was in Texas, he applied to Hobbs, N.M., where they also needed an ag teacher. He spent three years there. Next, he spent seven years at Grady High School in Martin County.

From there he moved to Aztec, N.M., where he taught ag and coached baseball and football for four years. Bob said he accepted the Snyder post because he "wanted to get back to Texas."

He said he likes teaching ag because "It is not the same thing every day. It's a challenge to stay current in order to teach these kids. Things change everyday. If you don't keep up, you go backwards."

The two ag teachers also have to cope with Texas Education Agency restrictions and the "10-day rule" which makes it harder for students to take time off from school for FFA-related events.

Since he and David have "different styles," he said the ag program has greater "diversity" and is "more appealing" to students.

Originally hired to teach ag mechanics, Bob said he elected to teach more classes after David came because he wanted to get to know all of the ag students.

Bob's wife is named Cindy. Children living in Snyder include Nicholas, a fifth grader, and Lorie, a junior high student.

Bob also has a daughter, Randi, who is a freshman at New Mexico Junior College. Twin sons, Cody and Garrett, attend Hobbs, N.M. High School.

Notes 50th anniversary

Roy A. and Geleska Jean Baze of Snyder were to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at a dinner on Saturday, Feb. 26 in Houston. Also, a reception will be held Sunday, Feb. 27, in their son's home in Houston for family and close friends.

Hosting the celebrations will be their sons and a daughter-in-law, Ben Baze of Tucson, Ariz., and Bob and Margaret Baze of Houston.

The honored couple have a granddaughter, Elizabeth, who is a junior in Princeton University and a grandson, Benjamin, is a sophomore at Salisbury School in Connecticut.

The couple married in Snyder on Feb. 28, 1944. Baze served in the European Theater of Operations in World War II. After his discharge, he began work for Exxon Company and retired in 1980 after 34 years.

The Bazes were living in Houston on their 10th, 20th and 30th anniversaries, and were visiting in Houston on their 40th anniversary.

Moving to Snyder from Houston in 1980, Mr. and Mrs. Baze have been active in local civic and community affairs.

The couple have also lived in Connecticut and Midland and several other places.

Choosing soccer camp

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Like choosing a college, choosing a soccer camp is a very personal decision, says Soccer magazine. "They're not for everyone, nor are all camps for all players. So first and foremost you have to ask what do you hope to gain by the experience."

The magazine identifies five types of camps: sportsman, soccer school, academy, specialist or dilettante. For example, if your child wants to play goalkeeper, look for a goalkeeping "specialist" camp. Then, in choosing a camp, there are six decisive points to consider: director, coaching staff, facilities, training aids and equipment, medical staff and costs.

All in all, Soccer says, the best way to judge a program is to ask a player who has been there.

In 1909, Einar Dessau of Denmark used a shortwave transmitter to converse with a government radio post about 6 miles away. It is believed to have been the first broadcast by a "ham" operator.

Eight on top; ninth is needed

Someone flips a coin nine times and it comes down heads nine times. You are asked to bet on the outcome of the 10th flip. Do you bet on heads or tails? What are the odds on the 10th flip?

In principle, it is still 50-50 between heads and tails. However, after nine heads in a row, it is likely that the coin is incorreetly weighted. You should bet on heads.

In bridge, five missing cards will normally split 3-2; but you should allow for 4-1 if you can — which happens about one-quarter of the time.

In today's deal, how should you plan the play in three no-trump after West leads the spade six?

South ducked the first trick, won the spade continuation with dummy's ace and ducked a club. Back came a third spade to South's king. When declarer led a club and West discarded a heart, South groaned inwardly. After winning with dummy's king, South continued with three rounds of diamonds. However, West won with the queen and cashed two spade tricks: one down.

"How could I go down with 28 points and eight top tricks in aces and kings?" wailed South.

"You shouldn't have assumed a favorable club split. You should have checked out the lie of the land," said North. "Win the first trick in hand and immediately cash dummy's top clubs. If they split 3-2, give up a club trick and claim an overtrick. But when West discards, you can turn to diamonds. Duck a trick there and get home when they break 3-3."

When you must lose a trick in a suit, usually it is right to concede it as quickly as possible — but not always.

Winter wedding unites couple

Donald and Jean McMillon announce the marriage of their son, Loy Mark McMillon, to Wendy Ann Fallon of Akron, Ohio.

Wendy received a bachelor of arts degree in political science from Bowling Green State University in Bowling Green, Ohio, and a juris doctorate from Thomas M. Cooley Law School, graduating cum laude.

Mark received a bachelor of arts in professional writing from Baylor University. He is currently in his second year at Baylor University School of Law. He was a two-year letterman for the Baylor Bears.

The couple married on Dec. 23, 1993, in The Mansion on Turtle Creek in Dallas. Their honeymoon was to Maui, and they reside in Waco.

Africa moves 600 elephants, noisy digestion disruptions

By 3-2-1 Contact Magazine
For AP Special Features

Trunk Load

How do you move a 6-ton elephant? Very carefully!

Wildlife authority Clem Coetsee would agree. Since August, he has moved more than 600 elephants hundreds of miles across Africa.

The elephants have been shipped from an overcrowded national park in Zimbabwe to other game reserves in Africa. They're being moved to help control the elephant population in the park.

How many workers does it take to pack up a pachyderm? Eleven. One to shoot it full of tranquilizers to make it sleepy. And 10 to lift the snoring elephant onto a truck.

Later, eight elephants are loaded on a tractor-trailer for the road trip. Why? It has plenty of trunk space!

Why Does Your Stomach Growl

You're sitting in class taking a test. It's quiet — except for the growling sound coming from your stomach. Don't worry. It's just your stomach trying to digest your food.

The stomach is a big muscle that holds more than just food. Even when you haven't eaten for a while, your stomach has acid in it. The acid helps soften your food and kills bacteria. Your stomach also holds enzymes. These chemicals help break down food, so your body can digest it. Last but not least, there is always air in your stomach. When your stomach has no food in it, all that liquid and air swishing around can make strange noises.

A lot of times, though, the noise isn't coming from your tummy. It's coming from your intestines. The intestines are a long, narrow, winding tube. The food can get pretty noisy passing from your stomach into this passageway. So you hear growling noises — and so does everyone else!

China Moon Catalog

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Restaurant owner Barbara Tropp has put together a mail-order catalog of her favorite oils, spices and cooking utensils.

Included in the first issue of her "China Moon Catalogue" are three items custom-made at Tropp's China Moon Cafe: chili-orange oil; a special Chinese spice mixture, roasted Szechwan pepper-salt; and tea smoke mix, for smoking fish and poultry. Tropp is the author of "China Moon Cookbook" (Workman) and "The Modern Art of Chinese Cooking (Morrow).

BOOK FEATURE

"Japanophobia," by Bill Emmott.

In "Japanophobia," Bill Emmott explodes the myth of Japan's sinister global reach. He convincingly argues that the threat to American business is an hysterical canard. Indeed, the Japanese economy is undergoing its worst slump in years. Emmott's theses is that the Japanese are simply taking advantage of economic and business phenomena that have been seen before. They don't take a uniform approach and they make plenty of mistakes.

Based on extensive research, the story unfolds of how Sony and Matsushita were mugged by Hollywood's superagents and stars, and how the fierce assault on Wall Street by Japan's top securities firms fell short. This is a useful and sober corrective to the fear concerning Japan.

Books for library

MIDDLETOWN, Wis. (AP) — Consumers who buy a boxed set of American Girls books at full retail price between March 1 and March 31 will be able to select a favorite school or library to receive a free matching boxed set, according to Pleasant Company, which publishes the books.

The boxed sets contain books featuring five American Girls characters: Felicity (1774), Kirsten (1854), Addy (1864), Samantha (1904) and Molly (1944). Prices for the sets range from $16.95 to $74.95.

To participate, consumers send in proof-of-purchase with a special coupon, available from participating booksellers, that names the school or library to receive the gift. Pleasant Company says it will send an identical boxed set with a special gift announcement card naming the child or adult who made the request.

By Anne B. Adams and Nancy Nash-Cummings

These duds are dandy for seniors

By Anne B. Adams and Nancy Nash-Cummings

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: Can you give me the names of any mail-order companies that specialize in clothing for elderly women? Living in a retirement center, I think there must be a large market for such a source. I get oodles of catalogs, and the clothes look fine on the young models. But I'm not so sure how nice they would look on 85s. — VIRGINIA WILLIAMS, Doylestown, Pa.

DEAR VIRGINIA: We have slews of catalogs and while we couldn't find a single one with middle-aged or elderly models, we are sure there are clothes in the catalogs you already have that will look peachy on you. Therefore, the solution lies in figuring out what kind of clothes you like to wear.

If you like casual skirts, shirts, sweaters, L.L. Bean (1-800-221-4221) and Lands End (1-800-356-4444) have good selections.

If you like complete no-nonsense duds, The Vermont Country Store carries a good line of everything from all cotton underwear to corduroy skirts, flannel dresses and pants with elastic waists. To receive their Voice of the Mountains catalog, write The Vermont Country Store, P.O. Box 3000, Manchester Center, VT 05255.

The Old Pueblo Traders also has a good selection of practical and zippy clothes. Their address is P.O. Box 27800, Tucson, AZ 85726.

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: Where can I find ceiling medallions made from plaster of Paris? I had a catalog several years ago that featured ceiling medallions and moldings and other decorative items found in homes with plastered walls — JOYCE NEREAUX, Baton Rouge, La.

DEAR JOYCE: Did you know that another word for ceiling medallion is anaglyph? We found a fine source for you: Renovator's Supply in Millers Falls, Mass. Their medallions are made of polyurethane and the text in the catalog says they are "virtually indistinguishable from plaster and more durable than wood." They also carry corner medallions, pediments and corbels made out of the same material. To receive a catalog, call 1-800-659-2211.

UPDATE: FOLDING CANE SEATS — The Solutions Catalog has run out of this item. It's considered a summer item and they don't know if they will re-stock it.

Fortunately, A. Burklund of Palatine, Ill., wrote to tell us that the mail-order company Miles Kimball has slightly different folding cane seat for just $10.98. They currently have 47 in stock. To order, call 1-800-546-2255.

We also found something called a "Sport Seat" in the Campmor catalog. It's a light-weight walking stick that quickly converts into a seat. It's item # 41111-J and costs $19.99. To order, call 1-800-526-4784. They have plenty in stock.

Astro-graphs

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Sunday, Feb. 27, 1994

In the year ahead you might have an opportunity to take over two endeavors that have been started by others. Even though they failed to gratify their anticipations, you could be considerably luckier.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your compassions are easily aroused today. If someone who has helped you previously needs assistance, you'll be the first one to respond. Good for you. Pisces, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Issues which are meaningful and of interest to you may also appeal to some of your friends. They may not know how to turn this into a group endeavor, but you will.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In conversations today where you focus on the virtues of others rather than their shortcomings, you not only boost their egos, you also make yourself look better in the process.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're basically a very imaginative person to begin with and this quality may be magnified today. To your credit, you'll put your ideas into action and not just make thoughts your aims.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Because you'll strive to treat others fairly in your commercial involvements today, this will turn out to be your greatest asset. Persons with whom you'll be dealing will respond in kind.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An enterprising and creative friend might provide you with two helpful tips today that may enable you to get more from something on which you already have a handle.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you might derive an unexpected bonus from a situation where your primary goal is to be of help to another. It will be a good example of getting from giving.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Even though your needs will be of importance to you today, they won't exceed parity on the needs of persons you love. You'll figure out a way to help them and yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Outward appearances may affect the way associates will view issues today, but not you. You'll know how to dig beneath the surface and deal primarily with root causes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your greatest asset today is your ability to make quick adjustments to shifting circumstances. You might have to do this in several instances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your material motivation could be quite strong today, but not necessarily for selfish reasons. What you're anxious to acquire for yourself you'll be willing to share.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A situation may develop today where you'll be holding all the trump cards, yet you'll not use your power unjustly. Your opposition will appreciate your restraint.

Your Birthday

Monday, Feb. 28, 1994

In the year ahead there are indications you might become involved in an arrangement with two others which could generate a second source of earnings. Be patient, because it may start off slow.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If a friend does something exceptional for you today, be sure to acknowledge his/her efforts. In fact, if you can make a fuss about it in front of other pals, all the better. Major changes are ahead for Pisces in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163 Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't make the mistake again today of letting a friend with poor judgment make critical decisions for you. Think for yourself and make your own evaluations.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If it is necessary for you to serve as an intermediary and relay important information to others today, it's best not to trust your memory. Work from notes if possible.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your probabilities for personal acquisition look okay today, provided you operate along traditional lines. If you speculate or take risks, then anything could happen.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not take anything for granted in your commercial dealings today, even when doing business with friends. Be sure guarantees and terms are spelled out in writing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You've heard that old saying, "It's best not to say anything about others if you can't say something nice." Unfortunately, this might not be an adage which will influence you today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Financial conditions could be a mixed bag for you today. What you gain with one hand, you might spend with the other. Try to be rational and balanced.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you do not have clearly defined objectives and direction today, don't expect others to be supportive of your positions. They may have the agenda you lack.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you might reveal something that has been told to you in confidence to a person who, in turn, may reveal the secret you told him/her to others. Be watchful of your words.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Doing favors for friends today because you hope they will do more for you in return could be a poor investment. The persons you'll pick might be the least likely to reciprocate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be sensible about matters that affect your career today, but don't be so timid you end up impeding your own progress. Be bold in situations where boldness is required.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Usually your logic and your intuition are fairly well synchronized, but this might not be true today. Don't let hunches get you off course.

Texas A&M secretaries are indicted

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — The chairman of the Texas A&M University System Board of Regents says he's confident two of his secretaries will be cleared of felony charges accusing them of tampering with school records.

Vickie Running and Sasha Walters were named in an indictment Thursday charging them with falsifying purchase vouchers and altering state records.

"The only thing these two young ladies are guilty of is trying to carry out their jobs at Texas A&M," Regents Chairman Ross Margraves said.

"They are both outstanding people. There are not two more dedicated hard-working employees. Everybody on the board loves them. Everybody supports them."

Mrs. Running, a 13-year A&M employee, was charged with eight counts of falsifying government documents by misrepresenting alcohol purchases as purchases of food and soft drinks.

Mrs. Walters, who has worked for A&M for four years, faces seven counts alleging the same conduct. In general, state law prohibits the use of public money for alcohol.

Neither woman was available for comment Thursday but school police director Bob Wiatt said both had agreed to meet with authorities today.

Margraves said he spoke with Mrs. Running Thursday and described her as "devastated." Mrs. Walters was said to be on planned vacation day.

A separate indictment alleges both women presented altered state vouchers to a College Station newspaper reporter to hide the source of income used to purchase the alcohol.

Margraves said the women were following procedures adhered to for years at the A&M System and probably long before they and the current board members arrived.

"That does not make it right, but it's certainly not a conspiracy to evade the law," he said. "I'm assuming the alcoholic beverages were used for various receptions put on for a number of years."

Asked if he knew the procedures could be illegal, he replied: "Absolutely not.

"All I can tell you and the public out there is there's never been any intent to do anything that was unlawful."

Brazos County District Attorney Bill Turner said the indictments "should not be taken as a conclusion of the investigation by the Rangers and the FBI."

"Both agencies anticipate that further presentations will be made to the grand jury," he said.

Turner said Ty Clevenger, a former A&M student body president and reporter for a defunct alternative newspaper in College Station, was given the false documents in December.

"We are shocked and disappointed that this action has occurred," the A&M System said in a statement that pledged cooperation with authorities. "We are anxious to have a timely and fair resolution of this matter."

"I'm greatly saddened that it's come to this," Margraves said. "I'm disappointed. I can't tell you how devastating it is to me and all the Board of Regents."

The secretaries could face up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine if convicted.

The Texas Rangers launched their investigation last September after allegations were made against Margraves in an anonymous letter sent to all board members except him.

The unsigned letter, which accused Margraves of orchestrating A&M business deals so he could personally profit, was turned oee to Gov. Ann Richards, who asked the Rangers to investigate. The FBI began looking into the matter on its own and the two agencies later combined efforts.

Margraves said he welcomed the probe, adding that it would exonerate him.

Among the deals questioned in the anonymous letter was A&M's $10 million contract signed in 1990 with Barnes & Noble Bookstores Inc. The deal gave the New York company rights to run the campus bookstore.

The Associated Press reported in October that Margraves and A&M Vice President for Finance and Administration Robert Smith had taken trips to New York that included limousine service, luxury hotels and Broadway show tickets paid for by the company while details of the contract were still being hammered out.

The AP later reported that at least five trips to New York were taken by Smith and Margraves at the expense of Barnes & Noble, including one with their wives in the summer of 1992.

Another trip by Margraves in the spring of 1993 occurred during negotiations for a contract extension signed last June that could pay Barnes & Noble $25 million in net sales.

1st female combat pilot completes her training

LUKE AIR FORCE BASE, Ariz. (AP) — Air Force 1st Lt. Jeannie Flynn is going where no woman has gone before.

Flynn, 27, is the nation's first female combat pilot.

"I've wanted to fly as long as I can remember," she said Thursday at a news conference marking completion of her six-month combat training course. "Once I knew something about airplanes, I knew I wanted to fly fighters."

But there was no way, even though she graduated first in her pilot training class, because she is a woman and the military didn't allow women to fly in combat.

Then in April, the Pentagon lifted the ban, allowing female Air Force, Navy and Army pilots to fly combat jets, bombers and helicopters.

Flynn will fly the F-15E Strike Eagle, which some consider the most advanced fighter-attack aircraft in the world.

"I wouldn't have qualms having her on my wing," said one of Flynn's instructors, Capt. Jeff Fiebig. "She is very tough, physically and mentally, and was definitely an above average student."

Her training included 224 hours in the classroom, 37 hours in simulators and 64 hours in the air, practicing such skills as night and day surface attacks.

It took a little time, but her male colleagues adjusted to her presence. "I was just another student," said Flynn, a St. Louis native who earned a masters degree in aeronautics and astronautics from Stanford University.

"I'm as ready as any of the other guys," she said. "When the time arrives I'll be able to do the right thing."

She completed her pilot training Feb. 10. An earlier meeting with the media at this base west of Phoenix was delayed because she had chicken pox.

She now goes on to 21/2 weeks of survival training at Fairchild Air Force Base in Washington before starting her assignment with the 336th squadron at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base near Goldsboro, N.C.

Other women also are training to do what Flynn does, Last week, Lt. Shannon Workman became the first woman to qualify to fly combat aircraft off Navy war ships. Workman, 26, flew her final qualifying flight Saturday from the carrier Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Flynn, who recognizes her status as a role model, had some advice for other women.

"Do what you want to do. This is what I want to do, and I work my hardest and here I am."

Hoon charged

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Could it have been a jealous rage? The lead singer for the rock band Blind Melon isn't talking. Neither is his label, Capitol Records. But police say Richard Shannon Hoon went wild at the Feb. 7 taping of the American Music Awards show.

Hoon allegedly punched a security guard at the Shrine Auditorium, tried to kick out the window of a police car, tore a telephone off a wall and spat twice on a detective.

Raye loses lawsuit against Midler

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "For the Boys," wasn't for Martha Raye, according to a judge who dismissed the actress' $5 million lawsuit against Bette Midler.

Miss Raye claimed Miss Midler was quite interested when she was offered a $1 million script based on her life several years ago. No contract was signed, but Miss Raye claimed the singer, 20th Century Fox and others based the 1991 movie on her life.

Miss Raye, now 77 and ailing, entertained troops in World War II, Korea and Vietnam and brought her flamboyant, loudmouthed style to numerous films and TV shows. Her attorney, Richard Ferko, said he would probably appeal.

Miss Midler said she was pleased to be done with the lawsuit but "extremely angry at the tremendous waste of time and the taxpayer's money resulting from this baseless action."

Top album artist

NEW YORK (AP) — The Village Voice's 20th annual music critics poll names alternative musician Liz Phair its No. 1 album artist.

Phair, who composes, sings and plays guitar, is the first woman to head the list since Joni Mitchell in 1974, the poll's first year. She's based in Chicago and her album is "Exile in Guyville."

The poll, published this week, tabulates responses from 309 pop and jazz critics.

Appreciation

Dear Editor:

The Snyder Bowhunters Association would like to express our appreciation to the Snyder Daily News, Snyder Chamber of Commerce, merchants, oil related companies and citizens of Scurry County for their support and contributions during our annual 3-D Invitational tournaments the past two years.

Members of our association recently voted to repay the community by offering free training and/or presentations on types of archery equipment, safety and shooting skills to any local organizations, clubs, or churches.

We recently purchased archery equipment for the purpose of training youth groups, ages 13 and under, in the Snyder area. The club will provide this training at our outdoor range located at Shepherd's Crossing near Ira.

Anyone interested in this program should contact any of the following members: Darryl Boone, 573-2851; Dr. Jerry Early, 573-1717; Dale Byrd, 573-8088; and Mark Thompson 573-9063.

Sincerely,
Dale Byrd,
Secretary/Treasurer

Letters to the editor must be signed and must give the address of the writer. Letters should be of reasonable length, and the newspaper does reserve the right to refuse letters if they contain libelous material or information deemed in poor taste.

Following a long-standing policy and practice, Snyder Daily News does not publish letters pertaining to a candidate or issue once an election has been called.

Opinions in favor or opposition to an issue or candidate may be published in paid political advertisements.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

Ann Landers used to say that the world was divided into two types of people: those who use and those who allow themselves to be used. She may be right, but I tend to think there are another couple of categories: those who like and appreciate satire as a form of humor, and those who find it offensive or otherwise don't get it.

After perusing the tattered and yellowy pages of the dictionary on my desk for a definition of satire, the best I can come up with is: the use of sarcasm and wit to say the opposite of what you really mean.

Satire has been around for a very long time. Solomon had a streak of sarcasm in him when he was writing the Book of Ecclesiastes, and Shakespeare used it liberally, sometimes in entire plays, such as "Much Ado About Nothing." Mark Twain was much more satirical than most folks realize, and if you think Jonathon Swift's "Gulliver's Travels" was a kiddie story, then you obviously never had to study it in depth for a college lit class.

"Mad Magazine," if you have never taken the trouble to read it, has a great deal to say about the foibles of our time.

Charlie Chaplin was being satirical when he filmed his silent masterpiece, "Our Times," and Ernie Kovaks went a long way in introducing satire to television comedy.

But nobody honed TV satire to a fine edge better than the short-lived sixties variety show, "Laugh-In," which threatened then-President Nixon so much that he eventally found a way to have it taken off the air. "Saturday Night Live" took its cue from them, and gets away with a great deal more because it is not on in prime-time.

Satirical cartoons abound, "Bart Simpson" being the most obvious. There are those of the so-called Generation X who might claim that "Beavis and Butthead" is satire, but the true earmark of good satire is that it is subtle; "Beavis and Butthead" is sledgehammer subtle and thereby becomes merely moronic.

"The writers would do well to read a little more Mark Twain and a little less comic books about Jeffrey Dahmer.)

Those of us who adore satire are a cynical lot. We tend not to think much of the human race as a whole. Many of us make our livings immersed in the worst of people: newspaper reporters, cops, paramedics and the like. But for the most part, we just regard life itself as one great big cosmic joke; we try not to take any of it too seriously. (We can't, you see, are we'd never stop crying.)

Those who do not appreciate satire tend to take everything rather seriously; they are the eternal Hall Monitors of life, always demanding that the rest of us display a pink slip before leaving the building. Their lives are circumscribed by a pretty narrow set of limits, rules, and regulations, and they are most comfortable when everything is humming along nicely within those boundaries.

Not us satire-lovers. We're an unruly bunch, and most of us have a teensy-weensy problem with authority figures. (Mainly, we don't share their godlike opinion of themselves, and so dearly love to hold up a mirror of their very humanlike faults and foibles.)

Very good satire has the ability to make all of us recognize ourselves and laugh. The true test of good political satire is when the politicians themselves get a kick out of it, as when George Bush invited "Saturday Night Live" mimic Dana Carvey to the White House to do his Presidential Shtick.

This sort of thing gives those who don't usually like it permission to laugh, which is important to them.

The rest of us don't care whether we have permission or not. Nothing is sacred and nobody is safe. We laugh until the tears stream down our faces — that way, nobody can tell when it really hurts.

Editorial Comment

Balanced budget amendment

The Pecos Enterprise

Congressional hearings are now underway on a proposed constitutional amendment that would require the federal government to have a balanced budget.

On the eve of that debate, the Clinton Administration is gearing up to oppose the amendment, using, in large part, scare tactics on how many in our nation would suffer with a balanced budget.

We have long favored a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget. If this vehicle had been in place during the past 30 years, our country wouldn't be in the mess that it is now in, mainly referring to the $4 trillion plus deficit.

With that kind of deficit, a large percentage of the federal income is spent just paying interest on that debt, keeping our country from doing many necessary projects — basically fulfulling human needs.

This kind of spending has got to come to an end. In spite of some concentrated efforts toward that end, the federal bureaucracy will not come to grips with its lavish spending habits unless required to do so.

To be sure, this is going to be an uphill battle, as members of Congress are hesitant to let go of their powers of spending, but it is something that needs to be done.

Write to your President and members of Congress to let them know how you feel on this very vital measure.

Homemaker equity bill

Fort Worth Star-Telegram

The Homemaker IRA Equity Bill is one of those pieces of legislation that is properly named. This bill, introduced by Sens. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas, and Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., really does center on fairness.

The bill, basically, would allow homemakers (wives, mostly) who choose not to work outside the home to make the same use of individual retirement accounts as those who work in the marketplace. ... It is a good and workable idea that would cost the Treasury a negligible $105 million over five years.

And now the interesting part: Many of the Democrats, most of them women, who have signed on to this measure would have been among those criticizing IRAs as "welfare for the rich" during the tax reform debates in 1986.

What has changed? Primarily the role of women in politics. This bill is being marketed as gender-based, a boon to women and families. So it is no longer "welfare for the rich," even to liberal Democrats.

Immigration reform bill

Dallas Morning News

With each passing week comes startling new evidence that America's immigration crisis is intensifying. Action is needed now. The national interest demands the implementation of a more effective plan to confront illegal entries than the one recently released by the Clinton administration.

Fortunately, Rep. Lamar Smith, R-Texas, and 34 Republican co-sponsors seized the initiative last week by introducing a broad immigration reform package. ... Rep. Smith's bill is actually a host of laws with teeth.

Key features would:

— Significantly enhance the punishment and deportability of criminal aliens.

— Expand the number of Border Patrol agents by 6,000, and the number of special investigators by 1,000 over five years.

— Facilitate employer sanctions by implementing a tamper-proof Social Security card and a Social Security number telephone call-in verification system.

— Further restrict government benefits to the undocumented and shore up the "SAVE" computer data base system, designed to verify the eligibility status of aliens claiming benefits.

— Expedite the exclusion of certain unqualified asylum claimants, streamline the asylum process and add penalties for failure to appear at an asylum hearing.

The Smith bill is by far stronger and more effective in confronting unauthorized immigration than the blueprint recently announced by Attorney General Janet Reno. And by adding a border crossing fee, the Republican plan has the additional merit of paying for itself. The entire Texas delegation — Republicans and Democrats alike — should get behind the more effective plan.

Buffalo Reef

By Bill McClellan

"Says here, 'guaranteed.' All you got to do is send in ten dollars and Sister Agdelina Saricopa Tavalaz Paterez-Little Dove Jones will see to it that you will have peace in your heart and money in your pocket. And for just five dollars more, you'll get a lucky coin. Just rub it, and good fortune will be yours."

"Does it say anything about the lottery?"

"Hmm. There's a whole list of stuff that Sister Agdelina Saricopa Tavalaz Paterez-Little Dove Jones can do for you. Heal a broken relationship. Find lost relatives. Cure alcoholics. Mend a broken heart. Cure rashes..."

"Heal the sick and raise the dead, huh?"

"Well, nothin' about raisin' the dead anyway. Wait a minute, here it is. Here it is."

"She can raise the dead?"

"No. The lottery. It's on Sister Agdelina Saricopa Tavalaz Paterez-Little Dove Jones' special list. Problem number thirteen, 'win the lottery.'

"That's it, then. Let's give her a try."

"I don't know..."

"Heck Elber, we've tried just about everything else."

"I know. I'm gettin' so sick of eatin' Lucky Charms...what do they put in that stuff anyway?"

"I don't know. Nothin' lucky, anyway."

"That's for sure. And them rabbit's foots. Whew!"

"Yeah, we shoulda let them cure a little longer. Did you see the look on ol' Reverend Tucker's face last Sunday?"

"Fortunately, he didn't know where the smell was comin' from. I think he was ready to baptize everybody in the place."

"Yeah. Shortest sermon he ever gave."

"So what about it? You want to send in fifteen dollars to Sister Agdelina May whatever Little Dove?"

"Sister Agdelina Saricopa Tavalaz Paterez-Little Dove Jones. And I think it's probably just a scam."

"You said the article says she is half native Cuban, half native Indian."

"Yeah, but she's got an address in New York. I just don't think any real Indian would live in New York."

"So what else can we try?"

"Here's an advertisement for a magical, mystical stone, guaranteed to bring you luck."

"Good or bad?"

"Doesn't say.

"Let's don't take a chance then."

"Right."

"Horse shoes?"

"Naw. We tried that, 'member? Played all day one Wednesday and again on Saturday. Not only did we not win the lotto either time, we lost 25 bucks to Fred and Joe Thompson."

"Oh, yeah."

"We've tried rollin' dice, usin' birthdays, anniversaries, even counted teeth at the old folks home that one Saturday."

"Yeah, it still hurts where ol' lady Crabtree bit my finger."

"I didn't think ol' lady Crabtree had anything but gums."

"She's got at least one tooth, I'll swear to that."

"That's one more tooth than we've got numbers right. I can't believe it. Not one single number in four months."

"We ain't tried quick picks."

"An' I never will, Smithy. It ain't right. My daddy said don't ever let a machine do the work for you when you can do it yourself. I reckon that goes for the lottery, too."

"They're not machines; they're computers."

"They are so machines, and they're hooked up to big long cords that run all the way to Austin where the government is, and they'll cheat you sure as you're born. Now that's whose gettin' rich off'n this lottery stuff — the government. I gotta' good mind not to ever pick no numbers again. Would serve the government right. Say, what time is it?"

"Well, it's ah, nine forty-five p.m."

"Nine forty-five! We're gonna' be late! Hurry up!"

"You just said you weren't gonna buy no more lottery tickets cause the government gets all the money."

"I didn't say I wasn't gonna. I said I had a mind not to. There's a difference. Besides, everybody knows that if you win the lottery, you're rich. And if you're rich, you don't pay no taxes. And if you don't pay no taxes, you can tell the government what to do. Cause the only people the government don't listen to is the people who pays taxes. Get it? Now drive."

"You got your dollar? Cause I ain't gonna' loan you no more..."

"Just drive. Just drive..."

Pay-Your-Way Party Cruise Proves Big Anniversary Hit

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter about the Vermont woman who was wondering if people in other states have ever heard about paying their own way to an anniversary party. Well, yes, I have. I live in New York, and last July, my sister and her husband were celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary.

I am a single mother with two children, going through a divorce. I work part time. There was no way I could afford to pay for a party. My younger sisters are married, but have no extra money. Our mother died a year ago, and Dad had no extra money either. I wanted very much to have a special celebration for my sister. She was my donor when I had a bone marrow transplant in 1987.

A friend gave me the idea: a dinner cruise on a ship on the Hudson River. The price of the party included an all-you-can-eat buffet, a champagne toast, cake, music by a disc jockey and the gift. Actually the "gift" was the party itself. Any money left over went to the couple.

With the recession and the economy and everything tight these days, it was the only way I could do it. I was nervous about asking people to pay their own way, but the response was overwhelming. Everyone thought it was a great idea. (We all want to do it again this summer.)

So, to the lady in Vermont: Get with it! Not everyone can afford to throw a party the "old-fashioned" way. You may use my name.

JANET CUDDIHY,
HOOSICK FALLS, N.Y.

DEAR JANET: Thank you for speaking up. Manners are not, as some people think, rules that are carved in granite. They are a barometer of the degree of sensitivity one displays in dealing with people one cares about. (If everyone lived by the Golden Rule, "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you," there would be no bad manners in this world.) Your motives in giving the anniversary party for your sister and brother-in-law were above reproach.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, "Cathy in Pittsburgh" wrote that when she was a waitress, six women came into the restaurant with a cake they had bought at a nearby bakery. They all sat down, ordered coffee, and asked a waitress to cut and serve the cake. I can top Cathy:

When I was a waitress at a truck stop in Valdosta, Ga., an out-of-state car drove up and a couple came in with four children and a big box of cornflakes.

They all sat down, ordered milk, then asked the waitress to bring cereal bowls so the children could eat their breakfast. There was a large bowl of sugar on the table. They emptied the bowl. Needless to say, they left no tip.

DEAR ABBY: My 90-year-old aunt was lamenting the fact that her address book is such a mess because people move frequently, remarry, etc.

She decided to start a new address book, but couldn't write small enough to make the book look neat.

I suggested that she cut off the return address labels from her Christmas cards — and other mail — and tape them into her book. She adored the idea.

KAY F., ALLENTOWN, PA.

DEAR KAY: Great idea. Readers, consider this a belated Christmas gift from Kay.

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Curious in Harrisburg, Pa.," who asked whether bananas should be washed, here's my experience:

I worked in the kitchen of a large hotel, where we were required to wash the bananas we served. We were told that bananas are sprayed with pesticides and chemicals, which would transfer to our hands. We were also informed that the Health Department required that bananas served in a food establishment must be washed.

FAITHFUL BANANA WASHER
IN ST. PAUL

DEAR BANANA WASHER: I was stunned by the volume of mail I received about washing bananas. I've changed my tune, and henceforth, I shall thoroughly wash all bananas before peeling. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Having knowledge of the primitive conditions workers endure in the tropics — no toilet facilities and no running water for hygiene — the bananas couldn't be clean enough to eat unwashed. Customers would be foolish not to wash them — with soap.

JEAN IN PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR ABBY: I grew up with parents who washed everything — bananas, oranges, apples, fresh vegetables, milk cartons, cheese packages, and even can tops — in soapy water and Clorox. We kids just assumed they were doing the right thing. Although I'm not as compulsive as they were, washing food falls under "better safe than sorry."

DESIREE HENDRICKSON,
ARLINGTON, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: When I was a child growing up in the Depression, we seldom had bananas, and they were a treat when we did have them.

I remember my mother warning me never to let my mouth touch a banana peel because in the country where they are grown, they have large, poisonous spiders that crawled on bananas. She even had newspaper articles about these spiders. Just seeing those pictures made me want to wash my hands after peeling a banana.

ANN PETERSON, ALBANY, ORE.

DEAR ABBY: We own a retail store in a town 70 miles from the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. Several years ago, a customer whom we had not seen in quite some time returned to our store. She explained that she had been sick a long time, and was finally diagnosed as having a parasite that she got from bananas. An article in the Cedar Rapids Gazette reported about two or three years ago that the Mayo Clinic is seeing more of this parasite in recent years, and warned people to wash their bananas with soap and water before peeling.

VICKI HARVEY,
DECORAH, IOWA

DEAR ABBY: My brother-in-law, who is now 92 years old, spent most of his youth as a merchant seaman. When I questioned him about washing bananas, he said that he had seen bananas loaded onto cargo ships complete with insects that infested them, along with the insects' feces and eggs, and that bananas required unusual clinical procedures.

ALBERT J. PELLESCHI,
LAS VEGAS, NEV.

DEAR ABBY: As a youngster in New York City, I remember fruit vendors opening cartons of bananas that had just been unloaded from the ships. It was common to see "banana rats" nursing their young among the bananas. Since I find it impossible to peel a banana without touching the fruit at some point, bananas should be washed to remove the contaminants of rodents and chemical sprays.

NORMAN DURMASKIN,
SUNRISE, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I just returned from a western Caribbean cruise, during which we visited a banana plantation in Honduras. Much to my surprise, the bananas go through three big water vats before they are packed. However, I still prefer to wash my bananas.

VIRGINIA ADYE,
EVANSVILLE, IND.

DEAR ABBY: As a kid growing up on a western Kansas farm, I pulled up tender carrots, wiped the dirt off them on my jeans, and ate them on the spot. I did the same thing with tomatoes. By some miracle I survived, but I'm taking no chances with bananas.

Oden called 'too political'

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' Republican U.S. senators say Democratic Travis County Attorney Ken Oden is too political for the job of U.S. attorney and have formally objected to his nomination, the Austin American-Statesman reported Friday.

Sens. Phil Gramm and Kay Bailey Hutchison sent their comments about Oden to members of the Senate Judiciary Committee late last week, the newspaper said.

Oden was nominated to the U.S. attorney's post last May by then-U.S. Sen. Bob Krueger, a Democrat who was defeated by Mrs. Hutchison in a special election.

Aides to Gramm and Mrs. Hutchison said Oden does not have the bipartisan attitude the senators look for in law enforcement posts.

"Sen. Gramm's view is that Oden is too political for the job of chief prosecutor," said Gramm spokesman Larry Neal.

Ex-top aide gets 21 months in jail

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deborah Gore Dean, a former top aide at the Department of Housing and Urban Development, was sentenced to 21 months in prison and fined $5,000 Friday for her role in the Reagan-era HUD scandal.

Dean was convicted last fall of 12 felony counts of defrauding the government, taking a payoff and lying to Congress. Her bids for a new trial and a directed acquittal were turned down two weeks ago by U.S. District Judge Thomas Hogan.

The one-time executive assistant to former HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce is by far the highest-ranking former Reagan administration official convicted in the drawn-out case. Pierce, who disclaimed knowledge of the high-level misdeeds in his department, has not been charged.

Dean could have been sentenced to a maximum 57 years in prison and $3 million in fines.

The 38-year-old Dean was one of 11 people convicted through trial or guilty pleas in the HUD scandal, and the investigation is continuing.

A federal court jury convicted Dean on Oct. 26, 1993, after a six-week trial.

She was depicted during the trial as being instrumental in funneling millions of dollars to housing projects that benefited politically connected Republicans.

She was executive assistant to Pierce from 1984 to 1987 when the agency was parceling out federal money under its moderate rehabilitation housing program.

Michael Jordan switches to baseball

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Michael Jordan may be a big star, but he's no Garth or Vince.

The former basketball star and current Chicago White Sox prospect could be shagging flies and aiming for the guitar-shaped scoreboard at the stadium where the Class AAA Nashville Sounds play, but that doesn't mean Greer Stadium is making any special preparations.

"We never have had a Michael Jordan here, but we've had big names here before," Sounds marketing director Jim Ballweg said Thursday. "We host the celebrity softball tournament with Garth Brooks, Vince Gill, Reba McIntyre, Wynonna Judd, all the big names of country music."

Jordan signed a contract with the White Sox last month, but he may have to work his way through the minors to make the big time.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Are there exercises that can be done for people with arthritic knees?

DEAR READER: The main advantages of exercise are to keep joints mobile and muscles trim. This is also true in arthritics. However, arthritic pain may severely hamper a patient's ability and willingness to exercise.

This is the reason that most physicians prescribe aspirin or aspirin-like drugs. Such medicines enable arthritic patients to enjoy physical activity and remain independent.

Thus, I recommend medication and exercise — up to a point — for my patients with arthritis. I say "up to a point" because it's not appropriate for such patients to exercise strenuously and put up with excruciating pain. Some stiffness and discomfort is acceptable, but if a joint really hurts, the patient should reduce the degree of activity.

For people with arthritic knees, walking and swimming are good exercises. Sometimes, with medicine, these patients can run, play tennis, skate and engage in other sports. This depends on the degree of arthritis, and the effectiveness of the medicine. Pain should be the limiting factor.

Also, I discourage arthritic patients from engaging in physically demanding activities, such as weight training, because of the additional burdens on an already painful joint. There are no exercises that will prevent or reverse arthritis.

You may wish to run this by your doctor, but I advise you to exercise moderately, within the limits of pain. Any exercise is beneficial; the degree of strenuous activity is something you and your doctor will have to decide as a team.

Remember, too, that arthritic joints may be quite sore AFTER exercise. This can be relieved by heat and gentle passive movements.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Managing Chronic Pain." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What complications might arise from medications given to transplant patients that are provided to keep the body from rejecting the new organ?

DEAR READER: Drugs, such as the steroid prednisone, used to prevent rejection of a transplanted organ, will also affect the immune system as a whole, often leading to susceptibility to infection and other complications.

However, like any other medicine, the risk/benefit ratio must be considered. If the risk of not taking a drug is organ rejection, the consequences of the medicine must be viewed simply as a trade-off. This is why physicians try so carefully to achieve a balance: maximal benefit with minimal side effects.

I'm in the process of trying to figure out why Americans make such a big deal out of things: Our attitudes 30 or 40 years ago were, in many ways, distinctively different than they are now — and were more "laid back."

For example, over the New Year's weekend, we were repeatedly told by breathlessly intense meteorologists that the "first winter storm" was "raging" up the East Coast and was predicted to dump — take a deep breath — "6 to 10 inches" of snow on New England. Wow. People in my community became unusually apprehensive. They stocked up on canned food and candles, expecting the worst. The "winter storm" was the No. 1 topic of conversation.

However, when the storm hit, it didn't seem like much of a crisis. Sure, there was some snow, with the resulting inconveniences but, really, it didn't affect our lives that much. Actually, it was a pretty standard snowstorm, the kind that most adults probably associated with the typical winters of their childhoods.

I don't want to be labeled a senile gaffer who lives in the past. But I can remember that years ago no one made a big production out of early winter snow. People seemed to accept snowstorms as a fact of life — Nature was behaving appropriately. Folks didn't have to drive 60 mph on highways that had been salted to death; they were content to drive slowly and cautiously if the roads were slippery. They put up with the inconveniences, the snowdrifts and the slush. They didn't close schools at the drop of a hat — or a flake.

This brings me to another pet peeve. Fewer children walk to school now than was the case decades ago. Now they're driven in fat, warm, yellow buses that stop every two blocks. If some earnest media weatherman (or woman) predicts a couple of inches of snow, schools close their doors for the most trivially inclement weather. Teachers grouse if their "snow days" are not all used up by May.

What is the big deal here? Why do we insist on characterizing our youngsters as helpless little ones who are incapable of adapting to the consequences of an occasional blizzard — no, not even a blizzard, merely a dusting. Perhaps we're performing an injustice by not insisting that, Nature being what it is, there are bound to be cold days, wet days and hot days and the kids ought to learn how to cope with the weather, over which we have no control.

This whole issue of natural order is distressing. Most of the patients I've lost, who chose to go to other doctors, did so because my idea of the natural world didn't jibe with their own.

If I tell a perfectly healthy grown-up that there's absolutely nothing I can do to ward off a cold or cure it once it starts, I'm viewed as anti-science. When I don't give out a prescription for antibiotics for this purpose, my patient will look elsewhere for medical care. When I sense that a cancer patient has reached the end of his rope and any more futile attempts at a cure will only prolong the agony and provide more pain, the family may say that they want "everything done" — and move on to another doctor who will disdain a humane, comfort-oriented approach, continue treating the patient with poisons and rejoice when the "victim" wins another three months of uncomfortable, dependent existence.

When I tell a heavy smoker that she will continue to suffer from bronchitis (no matter what I do) if she insists on consuming a pack of cigarettes a day, I'll lose that patient, who is searching for a miracle, not a remedy — and refuses to take responsibility for her own health.

There is, after all, a predictable pattern in Nature, even if that pattern appears at times to be chaotic.

Thus, I wish the media — and, by extension, all of us — would withstand the temptation to exaggerate, make news out of nothing and behave as though natural laws can somehow be manipulated and neutralized. There is just so much we can do to protect ourselves. In winter it's going to snow.

So what's new?

Williamson County changing its policy on strip searching

GEORGETOWN (AP) — Policy at the Williamson County Jail is being changed after strip searches of 20 young women who were among 59 underage drinkers arrested after deputies raided a keg party.

Males arrested at the party weren't searched.

"I was pleased when I heard about the arrest. When I heard about the strip search, I was not pleased. I regret that it happened," said Sheriff Ed Richards, whose office has been cracking down on underage drinking.

The women were searched by female corrections officers.

Bob Phillips, lawyer for three women, said his clients and their parents "were outraged, to say the least. It was a classic and egregious abuse of police authority."

Williamson County Attorney Gene Taylor said, "We did have something that happened that was inappropriate. It was an embarrassment."

Taylor has since dropped charges against the party goers, who were arrested Jan. 26 and charged with illegal possession of alcohol. All were under the legal drinking age of 21.

Taylor said the objective "is to get their attention." Since most of the drinkers remained in jail overnight, he said, he thought the county had gotten their attention.

"The best I can tell you is it was felt that justice was served," Richards told the Austin American-Statesman. He said confusion at the county jail resulted in the strip searches.

The stepped-up efforts to arrest underage drinkers rather than issuing tickets is an attempt to "cut down on the loss of lives and disabilities," the county attorney said.

The arrests occurred when a game warden and sheriff's deputies found minors drinking at a keg party on a ranch.

After their arrests, the men were taken to jail in police cars. Male corrections officers took control of them. The men, who did not undergo strip searches, were placed in a holding cell.

The women were taken to jail in a van. The female corrections officers who took charge of them conducted the strip searches because they apparently believed the women were to be placed in regular jail cells rather than a holding cell, the sheriff said.

"There was some confusion. The night of the arrest, we were also implementing our no-smoking policy in our jail," the sheriff said.

That night, jailers spent eight hours strip searching all 345 prisoners as they looked for tobacco products and other contraband.

"I put out a memo the next day when I heard about the strip search of the young women," Richards said. The new policy allows such searches to be conducted only when there is probable cause and when approved by the sheriff or one of two top assistants.

"To his credit, Sheriff Richards took immediate and severe measures to ensure that it never happens again," Phillips said.

O'Connor tried to kill herself

NEW YORK (AP) — Sinead O'Connor said she tried to commit suicide the night of last September's MTV Video Music Awards because she "wanted the rock star to die."

"I took lots of sleeping tablets and drank lots of vodka," O'Connor told ABC Radio News on Wednesday night.

Peter Gabriel and two other men checked up on her in her Los Angeles hotel room, but left "once they saw that I wasn't actually dead," O'Connor said. "They left me there by myself, and after that I did lots more tablets."

Gabriel, a close friend, said in a statement from London that O'Connor hadn't told them she was contemplating suicide.

"I wanted this false image of me to die," she explains now. "Which is part of why I ripped up the picture, too. I wanted the rock star to die."

In 1992 O'Connor ripped up a photograph of the pope on "Saturday Night Live." Two weeks later she was booed off the stage in New York.

O'Connor said twice-a-week therapy now helps her deal with child abuse she said she suffers and blames in part on Catholicism. She was interviewed at Carnegie Hall where she performed during a Roger Daltrey concert.
