Ask Us

Q. — If parents are paying school taxes, why shouldn't students be able to dress and wear their hair like they please?

A. — This question prompted many lawsuits during the late 1960s and early 70s. In 1972, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals--which governs federal courts in Texas--ruled in the case Karr vs. Schmidt that school districts have absolute authority to mandate dress and grooming policies as long as these policies are not arbitrarily unreasonable. At that time, the Supreme Court denied hearing an appeal to the case and all federal courts within the 5th Circuit were ordered to dismiss all pending cases related to this question.

Fair to open its 3-day run

A rush of entries was expected Wednesday afternoon at the Scurry County Coliseum as preparations wind down toward the opening of the 22nd annual Scurry County Fair at noon Thursday.

The beginning of the countywide domino tournament and the "Fly or Fry" chicken flying contest will be the highlights of the fair's opening day Thursday.

The domino tournament begins at 6 p.m. in Room A of the coliseum and the chicken flying event will start at 7 p.m. in the adjacent ag annex.

In addition to the domino tourney and chicken flying event, free entertainment for fairgoers will be offered at the stage area. At 8 p.m., The Singing Cowboys will offer musical selections.

Also at 8 p.m. at the ag annex, karate demonstrations are scheduled.

Carnival attractions will be available on the coliseum grounds, as will the kiddie barnyard at the ag annex, a children's "treasure hunt," the kid's wash, the opening of a flea market west of the carnival and helicopter rides from the fair grounds.

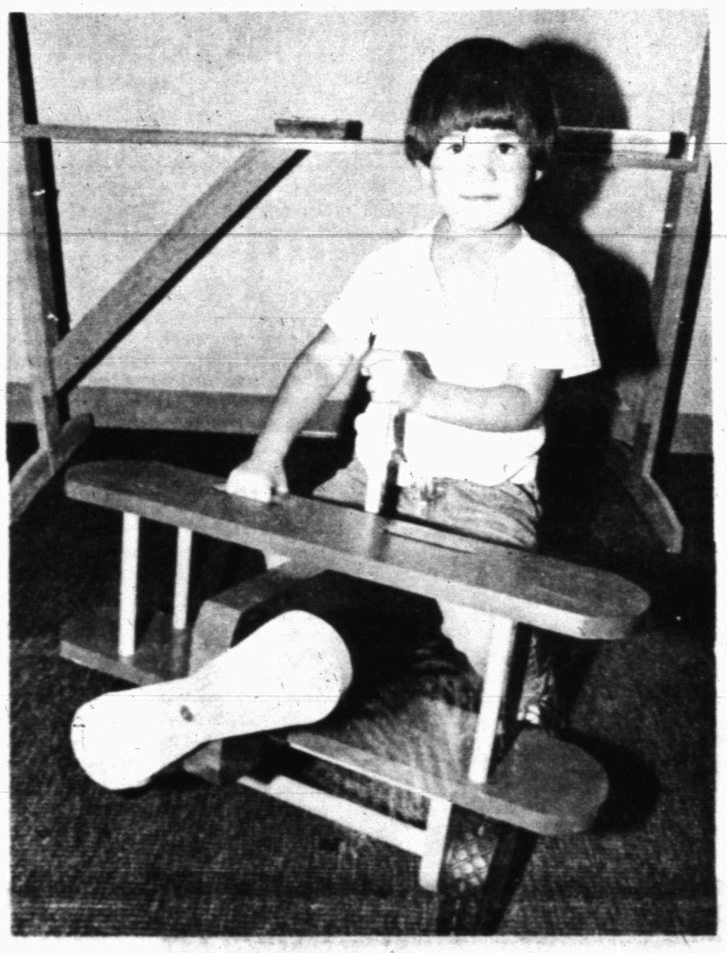

In preparation for Thursday's opening, entries for container grown plants will be accepted until 6 p.m. Wednesday and, until 8 p.m., entries may be turned in for textiles, handicrafts, agricultural products, educational and community exhibits, canned goods, open beef, dairy cattle and breeding sheep.

These competiton areas, along with art show entries and flower show entries, will be judged Thursday morning. Entries for the flower show, to insure freshness, will be accepted from 8 until 10 p.m. Thursday.

Late entries will be accepted from 8 until 9 a.m. for agriculture, textiles, handicrafts, educational and community exhibits and livestock entries as well.

The judging of most entries will begin at 9 a.m. to allow the placement of ribbons prior to the fair opening at noon.

The flower show, traditionally located in the north side meeting area of the coliseum, will open to the public from 3:30 until 9 p.m.

READY FOR FAIR — The 22nd annual Scurry County Fair will open to the public at noon Thursday, but Kallie Billingsley says she's been ready for days. The plane she's riding in is to be an entry in the handicrafts division. (SDN Staff Photo)

'Buff schedule revealed

This week's prime attraction for county residents will be the 22nd annual fair, but scheduling plans are now complete for a second traditional fall event here, the White Buffalo Days celebration.

Planners for the event released the schedule Tuesday, a plan which calls for White Buffalo Days-related activities over two different weekends.

In another departure, the Whirlagig show, which has closed out the activities the past three years, will not be held this year.

The annual historical celebration will be kicked off Saturday, Oct. 10, with a dance and fund-raising auction at the Snyder Country Club beginning at 7 p.m. Music will be provided by the Jody Nix Band.

The following Saturday, Oct. 17, the more traditional White Buffalo Days activities are slated, events which center around the Scurry County Coliseum and its ag annex.

The day will begin, however,

In Brief

Told to quit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Joseph Biden, strongly urged by close aides and relatives to give up his damaged campaign for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination, intends to make a statement of his plans later today, sources said.

These sources, who refused to be identified by name, said Biden would make an afternoon announcement.

Bork update

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, appearing on behalf of Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork, told the Senate Judiciary Committee today he has never seen a confirmation hearing "with more hype and more disinformation."

City sanitation service is tax addition Oct. 1

The previously untaxed service of municipal garbage collection is about to come under the state sales tax, and Snyder residents will see a change on their monthly bills effective Oct. 1.

The state sales tax will be 6 percent and will be added to the city sales tax of 1 percent. In addition, effective Jan. 1, the county sales tax, approved Aug. 8 by county voters, will add another ½ percent to this.

The net result, at the beginning of 1988, city customers will see a combined tax of 7½ cents per $1 charged. Rural customers who receive city sanitation services will be taxed as well.

City officials note also that local organizations and public entities which have a tax exempt status with the Internal Revenue Service and receive city sanitation service must fill out a form at city hall to be waived from the new tax requirement.

Q. — What other symptoms indicate my child might be turning to drugs or alcohol?

A. — Parents should be on the lookout for missing prescription drugs or liquor from their home. Other signs include falling grades, the sudden use of incense or eye drops and phone calls from strangers.

Missing auto leads to suspect's arrest

A 19-year-old man was arrested late Tuesday at Colony, near Denton, for stealing a tan 1983 Plymouth belonging to a Snyder man early Monday.

Police said they had been notified that Colony police had arrested Todd Allen Mowery in connection with the theft of the car from Mike Brown of 301 23rd St. The car had been recovered, they said.

The theft was reported at 5:53 a.m. Monday and the arrest was made at 12:50 p.m. Tuesday.

A department spokesman said Mowery is being held in Colony to be picked up and brought back to Snyder within the next several days.

He said Mowery was known to the Brown family prior to the theft and had been a suspect from the time the car turned up missing.

Proposition 4 seeks economic loan

Proposed constitutional amendment No. 4 is a key measure, from the legislature's point of view, because it would authorize loans and grants to fund the economic development package enacted by lawmakers earlier this year.

It would authorize the funding of the Texas Agricultural Fund, the Texas Small Business Incubator Fund and the Texas Product Development Fund and permit local governments to seek voters' approval for the issuance of general obligation bonds for economic development programs.

Vote

Supporters say the amendment is needed to clarify that public loans and grants are constitutionally permissible for the purposes of economic development and diversification, the elimination of unemployment and under-employment, the stimulation of agricultural innovation, the growth of agricultural enterprises and the expansion of transportation and

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Money may not buy friends, but it will rent some interesting people."

John Boren, Pop Kidd, Buck Rambin and Mickey Nunley are a regular foursome at the Snyder Country Club.

Boren, an avid golfer, told about the fellow who received an ultimatum from his wife. "She says she's going to divorce me if I don't stop playing so much golf."

"That's tough," sympathized the golfing buddies.

"Yes, it is, and I'm really going to miss her."

That reminded us of an old story about the fellow who was playing one Saturday afternoon. He was just about to putt when a funeral procession approached.

The golfer paused, removed his hat and watched respectfully until the last car in the motorcade passed.

The reverence of the occasion impressed his golfing buddies. "That was kind of you. Did you know the deceased?"

"Sure thing. She was a faithful wife for more than 40 years."

Snyder's Chic Hale brought us an article on how to preserve a husband.

"Be careful in your selection. Do not choose too young. When selected, give your entire thoughts to preparation for domestic use.

"Some wives insist upon keeping them in a pickle. Others are constantly getting them in hot water. This makes them sour, tough and sometimes bitter.

"Even poor varieties may be made sweet, tender and good by garnishing them with love and seasoned with kisses. Wrap them in a mantle of charity, keep them warm with a steady fire of domestic devotion. Thus prepared, they will keep for years."

And we might add....send 'em to the golf course regularly.

Democrats fearing permanent taint

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gary Hart's extramarital activities spawned a lot of jokes. So have Joe Biden's borrowed words and his puffed up resume.

But will the laughing stop before it devastates the rest of the Democratic presidential field?

Can the field survive another rush of publicity highlighting the personal foibles of a would-be Democratic president?

There is an uneasy feeling among many Democrats that if there is much more of this, voters will view it as a peculiarly Democratic epidemic.

"Most Democrats are getting deeply concerned about what seems to be a systematic discrediting of our candidates," said Bonnie Campbell, chairman of the Iowa Democratic Party. "This has effectively diverted the dialogue from public policy matters to kind of seamy, personal questions. There's a cumulative effect that's damaging.

"As a political party leader I'm very interested in getting this stopped," she said.

"With Hart and Biden back to back, there are now serious repercussions for the field," said Robert Beckel, who managed Walter F. Mondale's 1984 presidential campaign.

He speculated it might force candidates to become overly cautious from fear that any misstatement could blow them out of the race.

A shift toward dullness is hardly what the Democrats need at this point.

But the impact of the Hart and Biden stories might extend beyond politics.

Peter Hart, a Democratic pollster, said he spoke to a business group in the Chicago area recently and gave his appraisal of the 1988 race.

"The first three questions were all on the media," he said.

The pollster said people asked him, "Why is the press spending all its time digging into this?"

Questioners were asking Hart if he thought "the campaign process is perverted and that the press has too much control."

According to William Schneider, a senior fellow at the American Enterprise Institute, the news media are replacing party leaders who once screened candidates in smoke-filled rooms.

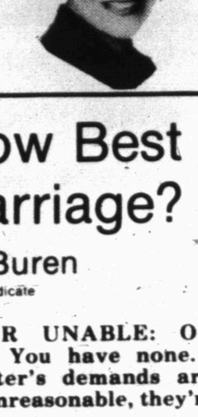

Out of the sight of the public, party leaders demanded of candidates the kind of personal information that now ends up on Page 1 of newspapers.

Ironically, Gary Hart was a leader of the reform movement that took party power brokers out of the role of assessing the field.

In the old days, Hart would have been confronted by the boys in pin-striped suits and between puffs on their foot-long cigars they'd have asked him if there was anything to the rumors he'd spent some time with a young model from Miami.

Does Mother Know Best On Matters of Marriage?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: As a 79-year-old male, I protest your advising that 22-year-old girl to marry Sammy against her mother's wishes. Who else is more interested in the girl's future happiness than her own mother? And who is better qualified to advise in this matter?

Sammy can find happiness with another mate, and the girl can find happiness with another man. She should consider the risks involved, and let her head rule her heart this time.

CHARLES J. BURCH,
VERO BEACH, FLA.

DEAR CHARLES: What risks? The man she loves with all her heart happens to be short, poor and Jewish. The girl says he's a good person from a dirt-poor family, and he's working two jobs to put himself through college.

I don't question the mother's interest in her daughter's future happiness, but she is far from qualified to advise her in the choice of a husband if she "hates" a man because he's poor, short and Jewish. It appears that Sammy is the one taking the risk. He'll have a mother-in-law who's bigoted, snobbish and ignorant.

DEAR ABBY: Are we losing our minds, or has "Eileen," our 39-year-old daughter, lost hers? Eileen never married, and has not lived at home for 21 years. She has just informed us that she is going to marry the divorced man she's been living with for the last seven years. He is a 57-year-old grandfather.

She wants to be married in the city where she has resided for the last 21 years because that's where all her friends are. (Incidentally, it's 1,500 miles from here.) We understand this, and have no objections to that whatsoever, but she has informed us that it is "customary" for the parents to pay for their daughter's wedding and reception — as long as it is her first. The estimated cost (she says) will be about $15,000.

Abby, we are retired and living comfortably on a pension, but we are not able to finance a $15,000 wedding. Please tell us what our obligations are in this case.

UNABLE TO OBLIGE
IN WEST TEXAS

DEAR UNABLE: Obligations? You have none. Your daughter's demands are not only unreasonable, they're outrageous.

DEAR ABBY: I am nearly 21 years old and I met my real father for the first time six months ago at the funeral of my grandmother. (She was his mother.) That day my father was very kind to me, and I was thrilled to meet the father that I had been missing for so many years. (He and my mother divorced when I was a baby.) I gave him my address and phone number and waited and waited to hear from him, but he never called or wrote.

I wrote him a letter telling him I wanted to see him again to establish a real father-daughter relationship with him. He wrote back saying it was impossible, and he did not want to see me again!

Abby, I know it is his new wife's doings. I really want a father in my life and this man is my blood father, and it is not fair for him to reject me. I feel so hurt and alone, and I really need a close relationship with him. We live 2,000 miles apart, but that is no excuse.

Please help me figure out how I can get him to see me and treat me like his daughter. I have written him countless letters, begging him to call or write me, but I have had no response.

What should I do? Now that I have found him, I want him in my life.

REJECTED AND HURT

DEAR REJECTED: You cannot force your father to be a "real father" to you if he chooses not to. It's sad, unfortunate and unfair, but he has made his feelings for now crystal clear. Accept this painful decision and do not pursue him.

Doctor charged with illegal dispensing of drugs caught

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A physician who eluded authorities for more than a year has been arrested in Pennsylvania on a 15-count indictment charging him with dispensing drugs for non-medical purposes, officials say.

FBI agents nabbed Dr. Charles Melenyzer of San Antonio on Monday, and he was ordered held without bond by federal Magistrate Ila J. Sensenich until his scheduled detention hearing Thursday in Pittsburgh.

"We've chased him around the country, and have come close several times," San Antonio District Attorney Fred Rodriguez said Tuesday. "This time he got arrested on a request we made to the feds on an unlawful flight to avoid prosecution charge."

An FBI spokesman in Pennsylvania declined to release details on the arrest, but he said it appeared the doctor had moved from Texas to Florida and lived in Jacksonville the first three months of 1987 before moving to Pennsylvania.

Melenyzer's license was revoked June 12, 1986, for allegedly writing bogus prescriptions, authorities said.

Texas and federal officials began investigating the 66-year-old doctor that year when they suspected he used voter registration lists to write precriptions for fictitious patients.

Investigators believe most of those drugs — amphetamines and barbiturates — went to street drug peddlers and users.

A Bexar County grand jury charged Melenyzer with 15 counts of dispensing drugs for non-medical purposes Sept. 16, 1986.

When Melenyzer fled, U.S. Magistrate Jamie Boyd signed a warrant for the doctor's arrest May 22, 1987, on a charge of unlawful flight to avoid arrest.

Rodriguez said his office was attempting to have Melenyzer returned to Bexar County for trial.

John C. Lawn, the administrator of the Drug Enforcement Administration, said that doctors are responsible for 90 percent of the prescription drugs that are used illegally.

Warning system will save money, prevent collisions

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Flashing warning signals will save the state and truckers a lot of money by preventing oversized tractor-trailer rigs from crashing into a 16-foot bridge, Texas Highway Department officials say.

"What we're trying to do is awfully inexpensive compared to fixing the bridge," department traffic safety engineer Bill Stebbins said.

The $30,000 warning system with sensing equipment and caution signs for the bridge may prevent trucks from slamming oversized loads into the concrete overpass at U.S. 385 and Texas 158, several miles north of Odessa, state officials said.

In the past few years, two wrecks at the overpass at "Miniskirt Junction" have cost the state approximately $140,000 in bridge repairs, officials said.

But now, steel poles 600 feet north and south of the Texas 158 overpass direct a beam of nonvisible infrared light across the road, Stebbins said.

Truckers who tow loads as high or higher than the 16-foot overpass will trip the beam, causing yellow warning flashers placed several hundred feet down the road to be activated. Then the trucker will be directed to detour around the bridge, Stebbins said.

A series of three diamond-shaped warning signs inform drivers in a rather unconventional way that the flashing yellow lights mean business.

"This is no lie. Lights will flash. When load's too high," the signs read.

"That structure has been hit several times in the past years by trucks," said Richard Phillips, public affairs officer for the Highway Department said of the Texas 158 overpass.

"In most cases, the load will break," Stebbins said.

But in two cases, the accidents have "bent the reinforced concrete girder that supports the bridge," he said. The repair bill for each incident has cost the state about $70,000, Stebbins said.

The legal height limit for truck loads is 13½ feet, according to the Department of Public Safety in Midland.

But drivers routinely secure permits for hauling oversized loads. It's the responsibility of the truck driver to know the size of his load and use caution when driving beneath bridges, said a DPS spokesman.

Survival course

By James Jacoby

What's the best line of play? Declarer can afford to lose the heart king and two spade tricks. If the defenders also get a diamond ruff, then the contract is set. Certainly the right play at the outset is to win East's club queen with the ace and ruff the club jack in dummy. What next?

Suppose you take the heart finesse and it loses. West might now return a diamond. You would win and lead a spade back toward your king. If that lost to West's ace and East got a diamond ruff, then the spade queen would be the setting trick. Therefore cash the diamond ace before leading trumps. Then, instead of taking the heart finesse, simply play the ace and 10 of hearts. If West wins the king of hearts, there will be no danger. But with the actual deal there is a risk. East wins the king and still has a heart left. And he returns a spade. Now what?

It's time to recall the bidding and the play. East was the dealer and passed. He played the queen of clubs at trick one. When South trumped the club jack in dummy, West did not cover and so presumably East also holds the club king. East has just won the heart king. Can he also hold the spade ace? Although possible, it's very unlikely (most of us would open the bidding with A, K and K-Q). So declarer should play East for the spade queen by playing low on the spade return. West can win the ace and give his partner a diamond ruff, but South will still have 10 tricks.

'Lock-out' scheme alleged between 2 separate parties

DALLAS (AP) — Newmont Mining Corp. plotted an alleged lock-out scheme to keep an investor group led by oilman T. Boone Pickens from buying shareholders' stock in the company, a suit filed by Pickens' Ivanhoe Partners claims.

"Newmont and its directors have facilitated a scheme which, if implemented, will effect a change of control of Newmont without all shareholders participating equally and no shareholders receiving a control premium," an Ivanhoe Partners' statement said Tuesday.

Vice Chancellor Jack B. Jacobs is expected to decide today whether to side with Ivanhoe and issue a restraining order against Consolidated Gold Fields PLC of Britain from purchasing additional Newmont shares, law clerk David Schaffer said.

The restraining order sought against Consolidated, which currently owns 26.2 percent of Newmont's stock, was filed in Wilmington, Del.

Ivanhoe's suit filed Monday alleges that an agreement between Newmont and Consolidated is part of a "lock-out scheme" that is causing shareholders to receive a substantially lower price for their shares than Ivanhoe's offer.

The suit also charged that Newmont's board of directors have "assisted Consolidated in its misuse of Newmont's confidential business information to which other shareholders do not have access."

Newmont announced the agreement with Consolidated Gold Monday, which limited Consolidated's stake in the company to less than a majority. But Newmont also said Consolidated planned to increase its Newmont holdings to as much as 49.9 percent, as indicated in a document the British company filed Monday with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

In its SEC filing, Consolidated Gold indicated that it would expand its holdings in Newmont through both purchases on the open market and negotiated deals — which means it could arrange to buy 6.65 million shares, representing 9.95 percent of the total outstanding, now owned by Ivanhoe.

Neither Newmont spokesman James Hill nor Pickens group spokesman David Batchelder returned phone calls from The Associated Press Tuesday.

The Pickens group recently launched a $105-per-share tender offer for 28 million Newmont shares, but Tuesday scaled back its offer to $72 per share in response to Newmont's announcement Monday that it would pay a $33-per-share dividend to fend off Ivanhoe's hostile bid.

Beds depend on the sleepers

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT -- My daughter plans on getting waterbeds for her girls, 11 and 16. My opinion is that a firm mattress is much better for the growing child. Who is right?

DEAR READER — The argument about which is best, a soft mattress or a firm one, has yet to be resolved. Some people appear to sleep more comfortably on a waterbed, while others swear by a harder surface. For a growing child, either a soft bed or a hard one is OK, depending on personal preferences.

If your granddaughters do not find waterbeds to their liking, would your daughter allow them to switch back to a firmer mattress? I think this is the crux of the issue. A waterbed is a fairly large financial investment and, once purchased, probably is going to be permanent. Therefore, unless the girls have had waterbed experience, they may be stuck with your daughter's decision. I'd like to ensure that their preferences — and not the adult's — are considered.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm 47, and about six months ago I experienced a severe trauma. At the same time I stopped menstruating. Any connection?

DEAR READER — The hormones that govern menstruation are influenced by environment. Trauma, stress, starvation and strenuous physical activity are known to disrupt the menstrual cycle. Of course, at 47, you are probably entering menopause and this may explain your amenorrhea (cessation of menses).

However, severe emotional upset may certainly have played a role. Ask your gynecologist's advice.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is it true that one will develop a lump at the site of a bruise or a blow to the breast?

DEAR READER — A woman sometimes will develop a lump at the site of a breast injury. This is usually due to tissue inflammation and bruising, and cysts can form. The lump will usually disappear with time.

However, there is one danger to this type of breast trauma. For reasons that are not understood, some women will develop breast cancer at the site of an injury. Therefore, following a blow to the breast, a lump that does not go away within a few weeks should be checked by a physician.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I purchased a small douche kit. While rinsing the plastic nozzle, I discovered two very sharp, rough edges. Someone in quality control goofed. Please alert your readers to check "internal" equipment carefully before use.

DEAR READER — Good advice. Thanks for writing.

Continental is back on track

HOUSTON (AP) — Explosive growth may have made Continental Airlines one of the most complained-about carriers in the country, but Texas Air Corp. Chairman Frank Lorenzo says his employees are getting the company back on track.

In a pep rally of sorts for about 4,000 employees at a downtown convention center and thousands more by satellite, Lorenzo said the airline wants to rebuild a reputation for quality service with consistency, saying its success depends on frequent business flyers who generate a lot of money.

"We're going to win them back," he said Tuesday. "We'll meet and exceed business travelers' demands for consistent quality and service and we'll continue to lead the industry in offering value to the flying public."

Lorenzo admitted mistakes were made and customers have been lost, but nevertheless praised his employees' efforts.

"I'm proud of all of you because you took the problems head-on under the toughest of circumstances and you came through flying," he said.

"There was rapid growth and expansion. But there were also plenty of growing pains," Lorenzo said. "There were delays, cancellations, lost bags. But that's changing and it's going to keep changing for the better."

Earlier this year, New York Air, Frontier Airlines and People Express merged operations into Continental, a subsidiary of Houston-based Texas Air.

The merger created the nation's largest domestic carrier, and Continental became the most groused-about airline in America as the consolidation spawned a series of service problems and a flurry of customer complaints.

The Department of Transportation reported that Continental topped its passenger complaint list for the first three months of this year, although it had dropped to No. 2 by August with 1,343 complaints behind Northwest Airlines' 1,585.

Tuesday's rally included a high-tech slide show, a performance by the singing group, "Gladys Knight and Pips," and cheers from a special section of employees wearing hats and waving banners. The whole crowd cheered several times during the hour-long presentation by Lorenzo, who also is chairman and president of Continental, and other company executives and employees.

About 20,000 people saw the presentations — one held Tuesday morning and one in the afternoon — either in person or by via satellite.

Spires elected to angus group

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.–Le Roy Spires of Snyder has been elected to membership in the American Angus Association.

The American Angus Association, with over 30,000 active adult and junior members, is the largest beef cattle registry association in the world. Its computerized records include detailed information on nearly 11 million registered angus.

The association records ancestral information and keeps records of production on individual animals for its members. These permanent records help members select and mate the best animals in their herds to produce high quality, efficient breeding cattle which are then recorded with the American Angus Association. Most of these registered angus are used by the U. S. farmers and ranchers who raise high quality beef for U. S. consumtpion.

Volunteers gather 215 tons of trash

AUSTIN (AP) — Volunteers who trolled for trash on Texas beaches picked up almost 215 tons of debris in three hours, Land Commissioner Garry Mauro says.

But the Saturday cleanup was temporary at best, Mauro said Tuesday.

"Saturday afternoon, for the first time in many years, most of the beaches of Texas were clean. Unfortunately, that's changing right now. Every tide brings another load of garbage," he said.

Sixteen Texas beaches were cleaned during the 1987 Texas Coastal Cleanup, sponsored by the General Land Office and the Center for Environmental Education. Volunteer trash haulers filled out data cards that will be used by the CEE to publish a report on the project.

"We were thrilled with the response to the cleanup effort and wish to thank everyone who helped," said Linda Maraniss, CEE's regional director.

Mauro said all of Texas' accessible beaches have been adopted under the Texas Adopt-A-Beach Program, in which groups promise to keep stretches of beach clean. He said 119 groups have signed up for the program. Texas has 186 miles of beaches.

"These cleanups also send a message to Washington in support of passage of federal legislation which would regulate the dumping of garbage in the ocean in accordance with the international agreement known as Annex V of MARPOL," Mauro said.

MARPOL is an international agreement concerning prevention of pollution from ships. It would also require ports to provide garbage disposal facilities for the vessels.

During Saturday's cleanup, volunteers signed petitions urging U.S. senators to ratify the agreement.

"These petitions will be sent to Washington to let the Senate know that Texans are tired of beaches covered with milk jugs and light bulbs," Maraniss said.

About 8,000 persons suffer bites from venomous snakes in the United States each year but only 10 to 15 die.

Some whooping cranes have begun southward journey

AUSTWELL, Texas (AP) — Some whooping cranes have begun their 2,500-mile fall trek from north central Canada, but the birds aren't expected at their winter nesting grounds at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge until next month.

More than 130 whooping cranes are expected to migrate south to the refuge near Austwell from their Canadian nesting grounds at the Wood Buffalo National Park in the Northwest Territories, wildlife officials say.

According to U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Canadian Wildlife Service officials, there has been a record production of 23 or 24 whooper chicks this year.

Coupled with the 109 whoopers that wintered in Texas last year, the new chicks indicate a potential of 133 birds for 1987—the best year since records were kept.

Wally Jobman, a wildlife biologist with the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Enhancement Office in Grand Isle, Neb., said that a "probable sighting" of three subadult whooping cranes was reported on early Sept. 7 near the Chase Lake National Wildlife Refuge in North Dakota.

In addition, he said Canadian wildlife officials have confirmed a sighting of eight whooping cranes flying with sandhill cranes near Last Mountain Lake in south central Saskatchewan on Sept. 6.

One of the responsibilities of the wildlife enhancement office is to track the migration of whooping cranes.

Kenneth Schwindt, Aransas assistant refuge manager, said that as usual, the wildlife refuge is not expecting the first whooping cranes to reach the refuge until mid-October.

"It is just too hot for them," he said, noting that most of the adult whoopers "stay in Saskatchewan to sometimes weather two or three snows."

The several-week journey takes them through central Canadian provinces and the midsection of the United States, including North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

Whooping cranes do not migrate in a single flock, and arrive sporadically throughout the fall months. Some whoopers have waited until late December before making the brackish waters on the refuge and Matagorda Island their winter home.

The production of whooper chicks marks the fourth record year for the ancestral flock. The summers of 1984, 1985 and 1986 have consecutive records, with 15, 16 and 21 young, respectively, reaching flight age.

In 1941, the number of whooping cranes in the wild had dwindled to 16 birds.

A Canadian wildlife biologist found 32 whooping crane nests containing some 62 eggs at Wood Buffalo National Park this spring, wildlife officials said.

Of the 62 eggs, 12 were removed for a foster parenting program with sandhill cranes in Idaho and 12 were taken to a captive breeding program in Maryland. Field surveys in June showed at least 27 chicks had hatched, with 23 or 24 making it to the fledgling stage in August. Twenty-one of the chicks were banded by biologists.

During player's strike...

NFL castoffs eager to play

by The Associated Press

When the NFL sent out a call for players, they answered. They came from Canada and Arena Football and the near-forgotten United States Football League. They were castoffs and culls, earning minimum wage as cab drivers or night watchmen. Semi-pro players took up the call, and a few high school players applied. They answered even though they faced the taunts of "scab." They came to play football in the NFL.

"It's a special kind of strike," said John Hynes, once cut and now re-signed by the Los Angeles Raiders. "It's not like a blue collar job where you'd be taking food off someone's table.

"If they've got to eat, they can sell their Porsches."

With the NFL strike in its second day, Hynes and perhaps 1,000 other non-union players were to begin practice today for the league's second season. If a settlement cannot be reached in time for this weekend's games to go on, NFL owners plan to resume their regular schedule on Oct. 4 with any players they can find.

Already, there are signs of animosity between striking and non-striking players. "I'd sure hate to be one of those scabs in our camp next year," Cincinnati Bengals quarterback and player rep Boomer Esiason said.

Hynes, who has been making ends meet as a cab driver and security guard since being cut by the Raiders during minicamp in May, can't be scared off, though.

"It's not like I ain't been verbally and physically abused before," the 245-pound tackle said. "I've been playing football for the last 13 years."

Although most of the strike teams will be made up of players like Hynes, several veterans say they might also play. Among them are Dallas defensive linemen Randy White, a nine-time Pro Bowler, and Don Smerek, quarterbacks Gary Hogeboom of Indianapolis and Marc Wilson of the Raiders, defensive end Mark Gastineau of the New York Jets, and defensive back Leonard Smith of St. Louis. Recent NFL players, such as quarterbacks John Reaves and Jim Zorn, also have resurfaced.

"It was a tough decision because I don't want there to be problems in the team," said Hogeboom, the Colts starter. "Obviously there will be some hurt feelings, but I have to do what's best."

Coaches and front office people are split on how successful the strike teams will be with only about 10 days to prepare.

"We were scrimmaging the Los Angeles Raiders after three days in training camp," Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said. "It would be no problem playing a game in 10 days."

New England general manager Patrick Sullivan was not enthusiastic about the plan, but he said his club would follow orders from the NFL Management Council.

"We're going to play with the hand we're dealt," he said.

A lot of the striking players say the hand is short of high cards.

"The fans are paying big money to see superstars," Seahawks rookie linebacker Brian Bosworth said. "The fans won't accept 'scab' football. It'll be sandlot football. It'll be a joke."

Earlier in the week, the Chicago Bears said they had signed their second Payton, a quarterback named Sean who played as a backup for the Chicago Bruisers of Arena Football. At the same time, the Atlanta Falcons turned down several local high school players who applied, saying they only wanted players with pro camp experience.

Flag football meeting slated

Underclassmen vie Thursday

Snyder eighth grade gridders play at home Thursday night while local junior varsity, freshmen and seventh grades are all on the road.

The eighth grade squads play Lamesa at 4 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. at Travis Field.

Lubbock Coronado will host Snyder's junior varsity team at 4 p.m.

The rest of Snyder's underclassmen will match up with Lamesa in Lamesa on Thursday. Seventh grade teams play at 4 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. The freshman game was originally slated for 5:30 p.m. but has been changed to 5 p.m.

8th graders enjoy victories

Snyder's eighth grade football squads will be riding victories into Thursday's games with Lamesa.

Last week against Levelland, Snyder B-team won 6-0. Steve Rose scored the only touchdown in the game.

The A-team topped the Lobos 22-0. Leddy Lewis tallied first for Snyder. Michael Torres scored the second as well as a follow-up extra point, and the third TD came on a pass from Haywood Clay to Mark King.

Defensive standouts for the A-team were King, Chad Fox and Chris Carrasco.

Netters overcome Sweetwater squad

SWEETWATER – It was a hard, tough battle that finished under the lights but when they loaded up the buses Snyder came out on top of Sweetwater 10-8 in District 2-4A team tennis action here Tuesday.

"It was a hard-fought match but we knew it would be real close. We knew we would have to play well to beat them," said Snyder Coach Charlie Chrane, whose Tigers are 2-1 now in district team play. "The kids came through when they had to. They showed good concentration and good determination. We got a strong performance from a lot of team members."

Snyder will face another tough opponent Saturday when the Tigers bus to Pecos to meet the Eagles and Lamesa.

"Pecos is real tough. I think it will be real close, just like this," said Coach Chrane.

Snyder's boys dominated Sweetwater, winning eight of nine matches in doubles and singles play. Michael Rodriguez, Alfred Brice, Kevin Winter, Brandon Martin and John Griffin were all two-match winners.

Lady Tigers fall to Lamesa; get ready now for Monahans

LAMESA – Snyder Coach Vicki Nelms wasn't making any excuses for her Lady Tigers following a key loss to Lamesa in District 2-4A volleyball action here Tuesday night.

"We didn't play as well as we're capable of playing. We had no offense whatsover. We had some kids play their worst game they've played all season. Nobody really had a good game," said the coach, whose Tigers fell 15-12, 15-9 to the defending state champions.

Snyder will try to regroup over the next few days and get ready to host Monahans on Saturday. The Tigers are 10-7 overall now and 4-2 in district play. The loss broke a six-match winning streak.

"Our kids knew after the game they didn't play as well as they are capable of playing. They know they can play better," said Nelms.

Snyder's serving game was a low 68 percent. The Tigers were 72 percent on serve receives. Those areas combined to allow only a sputtering offense.

"Most of our points came off of blocks. We really didn't have any offense," noted the coach. "If there was one positive note it was how well we blocked. But we didn't take advantage of their mistakes. In four rotations they missed four serves in a row and we didn't take advantage of it. If you don't play well you don't deserve to win."

Lamesa improved to 17-3 overall and 5-1 with the win.

Lady Tigers serving for points were Denise Overton 6, LaFon Williams 4, Sandra Morin 3, and Becky Becerra, Kelly Walker, Sandra Powell and Melody Pickering 2 each. Overton had two aces.

Saturday's varsity match with Monahans begins at 3 p.m. in the Snyder High School Gym.

JV ups record to 15-4

LAMESA – Snyder junior varsity volleyball girls improved to 15-4 on the season as they defeated Lamesa here Tuesday evening.

"I was proud of the girls for coming back the way they did," said Coach Patty Grimmett, whose young Tigers whipped the hosts 15-11, 15-11. "Offensively we played really well, though we missed a lot of serves. We were behind in the second game 10-1 and we came back and won it. So we did a good job of pulling it out."

Serving for points for Snyder were Cindy Srna 12, Teena Braziel 10, Annette Ramos 3, Jennifer Pate 2, Shelly Tomlin 2 and Brandi Bell 1.

The Tigers play their next match at home as they host Monahans at 2 p.m. Saturday in the SHS Gym.

Frosh turn the tables

LAMESA – Snyder freshmen turned the tables on Lamesa here Tuesday evening.

The young Lady Tigers, who had lost to the Tors 15-8, 15-11 in the Big Spring Tournament last weekend, whipped the hosts 15-11, 15-11 Tuesday.

Serving for Snyder were Liz Greathouse, 9 points, 2 aces; Robbie Braziel, 3 points, 3 aces; Freda Clay, 3 points, 1 ace; Vinnie Clay, 5 points, 3 aces; Angie Burleson, 1 point, 1 ace; and Monica Garcia, 7 points, 2 aces;

"We had a much better defensive game against them plus our offense played much better," said Coach Connie Comer. "We still need to improve on our serves. We only got 70 percent in this area.

"Katina Brandon had a good game on offense with three kills. Camille Thompson, Dayla Church and Dessie Ware came off the bench in a key situation and did a great job for us."

The squad, 5-4, will play at home Saturday, hosting Monahans at 12:30 p.m. in the high school gym.

Ortega announces partial cease-fire

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The leftist government has announced rough details of a partial truce in its war against the U.S.-backed Contra rebels, and said an influential opposition radio station could resume broadcasting.

A top Contra leader reacted cautiously to the cease-fire proposal, while Reagan administration officials dismissed it as "meaningless."

The announcements about a truce and Radio Catholica, the Roman Catholic Church's official broadcast voice, were the latest aimed at compliance with a new Central American peace plan. In the past month, Nicaragua has allowed two banished priests to return and has said it will allow the opposition newspaper La Prensa to re-open without censorship.

Ortega also has appointed a leading critic to head a National Reconciliation Commission and has said his government would begin talks with internal opposition groups.

"We are going to go in a gradual way," Ortega said about the truce proposal at a news conference Tuesday. "It's the first concrete step to move ahead in the cease-fire process."

He did not specify a timetable for the plan but said: "We are working on concrete actions to make known the first zones where the cease-fire will be declared."

He said soldiers would be withdrawn to designated areas as a step toward a total cease-fire with the Contra rebels, who have been fighting his government since 1982.

In Washington, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said: "A unilateral cease-fire is meaningless without conditions." He said cease-fire negotiations must involve the Contras — a demand the Sandinistas have rejected.

Alfonso Robelo, a top anti-Sandinista rebel leader, said in Honduras that Ortega's move may be aimed at dividing the Contras by sowing confusion in their ranks.

Political opposition leaders in Nicaragua adopted a wait-and-see attitude.

"It's clever," said Enrique Bolanos, head of the private enterprise organization known as Cosep. "But a unilateral cease-fire is difficult to work out because you need the consent of the other side."

Bolanos and Social Christian Party leader Erick Ramirez said the reopening of Radio Catholica and the opposition newspaper La Prensa represented the restoration of freedoms taken away.

'Good' beef grade to become 'select'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new name for third-ranked "good" beef soon will make its way into the nation's supermarkets to provide what the Agriculture Department hopes will be an upbeat choice to consumers who prefer meat on the leaner side.

The old "good" will give way to "select" in the federal beef grading system, although "select" beef will still be behind "prime" and "choice" in the lineup.

Even so, the name change has been a much-sought goal of consumer and meat industry leaders alike. They hope it will mean new pizazz for leaner cattle that don't require as much grain in their feed as those grading "choice" and "prime."

The name change will take effect Nov. 23, Karen Darling, deputy assistant secretary for marketing and inspection services, said at a news conference Tuesday attended by consumer advocates, health officials, and meat and livestock representatives.

Beef consumption is taking a back seat this year to poultry, according to USDA figures. Will the new "select" label help boost beef to its former prominence?

"Anything that helps promote consumption of agricultural products, we think is a good thing," Ms. Darling replied. "And if this helps promote the consumption of beef — absolutely, it's a good thing."

The name change is only that. Nothing in the government's grading specifications is being altered, said J. Patrick Boyle, administrator of the department's Agricultural Marketing Service.

Grading is not compulsory like federal meat inspection. It is a voluntary service performed by USDA on a fee basis. Standards for beef grades describe such factors as the amount of fat and texture of a cut of meat, which indicate its tenderness, juiciness and flavor.

Boyle said the new name "provides a more positive image for this grade of beef and will help calorie-conscious consumers" choose leaner cuts.

Traditionally, the "prime" and "choice" cuts of beef have enjoyed the greatest consumer demand. The "good" grade usually has not been labeled as such by retailers, who frequently sell it under a house label describing it as lean.

The name change was initiated by a petition filed in June 1986 by Public Voice, a Washington-based consumer group. It gained support from many other consumer groups, health associations and the beef industry.

"In my knowledge, this is the first time in the history of the Department of Agriculture that the department has responded to a consumer petition," said Public Voice Executive Director Ellen Haas. "For too long, we believed that (USDA) proposals and policies have been industry driven and not consumer driven."

Ms. Haas said the switch from "good" to "select" serves as an information tool for consumers to make decisions on what they choose to eat, and as a marketing tool for cattle producers who respond to consumer demands.

As to whether the switch might help consumers demand more beef, she said:

"The name 'good' just was pejorative after 'prime' and 'choice.' It didn't sound too good. With a positive name, consumers will have an indication that they are buying lean beef. I think that they will want to go back and return to beef as a major part of their diets. I see that it will have some very positive effects on the meat industry."

According to AMS officials, about 12.8 billion pounds of beef were graded in calendar 1986. An additional 3.9 billion pounds were "certified" as meeting buyers' specifications.

The balance of the beef produced last year, although not officially tabulated by AMS, was estimated at around 6 billion pounds. That was ungraded or "no-roll" beef, so called because no ink-roller grading stamp was used to mark the carcasses.

Paul M. Fuller, head of the AMS livestock and seed division, said about 80 percent of the no-roll beef would qualify for "good" or "select" grade. Thus, as much as 4.8 billion pounds of currently ungraded beef could theoretically qualify as "select" grade.

NBC adds more top ten shows in pre-season week

NEW YORK (AP) — The first official week for the A.C. Nielsen Co.'s people-meter ratings got off to a bumpy start, but that didn't matter to NBC, which put two new shows into the top 10.

"Mama's Boy," a sitcom starring Bruce Weitz as a newspaper columnist whose mother (Nancy Walker) comes to live with him, ranked fourth behind its Saturday night lead-in, "Golden Girls."

And "My Two Dads," starring Paul Reiser and Greg Evigan as bachelor fathers to a 12-year-old girl, ranked 10th, thanks to a lead-in from No. 5-ranked "Family Ties."

"Ties," moved to Sunday this season, beat the season opener of CBS' "Murder, She Wrote."

NBC analyst Gerald Jaffe said it was the first time NBC beat a first-run "Murder, She Wrote" with regular programming. But CBS analyst David Poltrack pointed out that CBS' lineup was delayed 17 minutes by football, and that the Emmys telecast on Fox drew audiences from the networks.

The Emmy Awards show, in its first outing on Fox, a network of independent stations, rated an 8.8, considerably lower than the 23.1 rating it garnered last year on NBC. The Academy of Television Arts and Sciences signed a three-year deal with Fox.

The rating is a percentage of the nation's estimated 88.6 million households with televisions.

Saturday night's Miss America pageant on NBC performed pretty much up to standards, getting a rating of 20.4. Last year, its rating was 23.0.

"NBC Nightly News" won the week with a 10.0 rating. The "CBS Evenings News" and ABC's "World News Tonight" tied with a 9.5. There was an asterisk by the finish, however, because CBS' number was a four-day average instead of a five-day average like the other two. That was because live coverage of tennis last Monday pre-empted CBS' news in half the country.

Nielsen's new ratings system had trouble starting up on time. The national figures for the week are usually available Tuesday morning, but Nielsen has had trouble with the computer software that processes the new people-meter ratings, so the numbers didn't come in until the end of the business day, and one number was still missing as of Tuesday night, so the networks had to estimate their averages for the week.

Network estimates were: NBC 15.6, ABC 11.8 and CBS 11.7.

Gunman shoots, kills three people

CORSICANA, Texas (AP) — A man known as a "crazy" Rambo-esque eccentric who dallied with pit bulldogs and powerful weapons went on a cross-town shooting rampage that killed three people and two of his pets before he turned a gun on himself, police say.

Frank Stewart, 37, of Corsicana filled his camouflage suit's pockets with ammunition clips Tuesday before setting off on a half-hour spree that terrorized a restaurant crowd and left his estranged wife, a friend of hers, his former employer and himself dead, police said.

Stewart, who neighbors nicknamed "Rambo," also may have been responsible for three execution-style murders in Missouri last week, according to police who said he told several people earlier this week that he had killed three people there.

"Everything he said he did is true so far, so this may be, too," Detective Dwayne Hensley said.

Mark Johnstone said Stewart, who recently lost his job at Hulcher Services Inc. and was afraid of losing his wife, talked of his plans to kill his spouse, Brenda Stewart, over coffee Monday.

"He said he was going to do what he did today," Johnstone said Tuesday. "I'm divorced and I've said things I didn't do. He said if he couldn't have her, nobody could have her. I told him you just don't kill people.

"He was crazy as a bedbug. I wish I had taken him more serious. But if I had told the police, they wouldn't have done anything. If he was talking about the pope or the president, maybe they would have arrested him," Johnstone said.

Sometime before 1:40 p.m. Tuesday, Stewart shot his two pit bulldogs and left them in his van on a hillside near Lake Halbert just south of this city of 23,000 about 50 miles southeast of Dallas.

Also found in the abandoned van were a litter of six puppies, two Claymore anti-personnel mines and a poster of the "Grim Reaper" that was plastered on the dashboard.

Stewart then rode his motorcycle to Hulcher, a company specializing in cleaning up railroad accidents where he had worked until a few weeks ago, police said.

There, he shot and killed Dennis James Wade, who had been his foreman, and stole a company truck, police Sgt. Lewis Palos said.

Stewart drove to the Western Sizzlin' steakhouse, where Mrs. Stewart, 34, was a manager. He brandished two pistols, a .22-caliber automatic with a 50-shot magazine and an antique breech-loading .38-caliber for which he prepared his own loads, Hensley said.

U. S. claims firm evidence of Iranian mining waters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has "incontrovertible" evidence that Iran has been sowing mines in the Persian Gulf, according to Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, who says the Navy is releasing the crew of an Iranian ship that was attacked by U.S. forces.

Weinberger, in a television interview Tuesday, said the United States attacked the Iranian ship after discovering it in the act of planting mines and now has all the evidence it needs to show the world that Iran is engaged in "hostile acts" against neutral shipping.

The Iranian ship Iran Ajr, after being disabled Monday night in the U.S. helicopter attack, was boarded and mines and arming devices were discovered, Weinberger said Tuesday night on the "MacNeil-Lehrer NewsHour."

Some of the crewmen also have been interviewed and acknowledged they were laying mines at the time the U.S. helicopters attacked, Weinberger continued.

The Iran Ajr was a "warship" that was engaged "in a hostile act; not hostile intent, but a hostile act," the secretary added.

"And when you have hostile acts committed against you, our rules of engagement and the rules of international law followed by civilized nations require that you take appropriate action to stop those hostile acts, and that's what we did."

The Pentagon said three Iranians were killed and two were listed as missing, while 26 Iranians were rescued, four of them wounded. It said a Navy boarding party found 10 mines aboard the Iran Ajr, a 1,662-ton amphibious landing craft.

Reporters in a Pentagon press pool who were allowed to visit the Iranian vessel said there were three large gashes in the hull and deck and that it was pockmarked by machine-gun fire and stained with blood. They quoted sources as saying it appeared the crew had destroyed documents before abandoning the ship.

News photos showed mines sitting on the ship's deck.

In addition, the form must be filled out prior to next Monday at the utility office at city hall.

The addition of garbage collection to the state sales tax was passed by the state legislature during its recent session. It was one of many services added to the tax to help the state through a budget income shortfall linked to a decline in the oil industry.

commerce.

Opponents argue that the proposition is an attempt to circumvent the long-time constitutional prohibition against the use of public funds for private enrichment.

"It is hard to think of a business venture that could not fit under the 'economic development' rubric," a spokesman said. "Political influence would inevitably determine who would receive grants and who would not — an invitation to corruption that the current restrictions are designed to avoid."
