Castro Calls Carter Liar About Troops

President Sets Monday Night Talk

HAVANA (UPI) — Cuban President Fidel Castro Friday flatly rejected charges that Soviet combat troops were stationed in Cuba and angrily accused President Carter of creating the crisis and being "dishonest, insincere and immoral."

In an extraordinary news conference in the Presidential Palace, Castro answered questioned from eight American newsmen who were permitted to fly to Havana to question the Cuban leader.

Castro said there were Soviet troops at a base that he identified for the first time as "training center number 12" near Havana.

The troops, he said, have been there for 17 years — since just after the Cuban missile crisis of 1962.

In Washington, the White House announced President Carter will make a broadcast report to the nation at 8 p.m. CDT Monday on his plans to deal with the "issues connected with the Soviet combat brigade in Cuba."

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance canceled his planned trip to Panama this weekend for ceremonies on the Panama Canal treaties, although Vance said there was not "a crisis."

Dources said Carter's speech may include a display of top secret intelligence photographs and other data to support the U.S. position that combat troops are in Cuba.

White House attention to the situation escalated after talks between Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko broke off Thursday night with "inconclusive" results.

Castro accused Carter of "creating an artificial crisis, micromissile crisis."

"The essential question is, why it is now a problem?" Castro said. "Why are they (the Americans) trying to create a crisis now?"

He said there has been no change in the function or approximate number of the troops, but he rejected one American reporter's suggestion that U.S. journalists be permitted to inspect the camp.

Castro returned frequently to Carter's motives.

"The fact that Carter is in a crisis is no excuse," Castro said. "It is dishonst, insincere, immoral. He has been deceiving world opinion by making believe that the Soviet Union and Cuba have taken a new step and that we changed the status quo."

Charges Carter

Castro, dressed in his customary tailored olive fatigues, puffed continually on small cigars as he returned again and again to the charge that it was President Carter, led by his adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski, who created the crisis.

Asked if he would meet President Carter face-to-face to discuss the problem, Castro said, "I would not propose it because I have an elemental feeling of dignity."

He accused the United States, through five presidential administrations, of creating "tense hostility and blockades against Cuba."

"The United States occupies a piece of our territory at Guanatanamo with troops and ships," he said.

He surmised that Carter "had created the crisis" in the first place to disrupt the recent summit of non-aligned countries that met in Havana. Then, he said, "They didn't think that this would boomerang and threaten SALT and create a political disaster."

"Impose Humiliation"

"Or maybe they thought that because SALT is so important they could impose humiliation on the Soviet Union and Cuba with kind of a micro-crisis of October," he said.

Castro was asked about his opinion — stated in 1977 — that Carter was an honest man of Christian beliefs. He said, "After that was expressed there was a crisis over our MiG 23, then over one submarine we had, then the Shaba (Zaire) crisis. This has been repeated and now it was done on the eve of the (nonaligned) summit."

"He has not been honest with the world," he said. "He is not dumb. He is not an idiot. He shouldn't play with world peace."

Castro conducted the news conference in Spanish through a translator. But as it finished and reporters gathered

By TRAVIS BROWN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

THE THREAT to the United States posed by several thousand Russian combat troops in Cuba doesn't worry Alexander Haig, former Supreme Allied Commander of Europe and head of NATO.

"No, I'm not terrified of a brigade of Soviet troops 100 miles off our shores," Haig said Friday during a news conference in Lubbock.

However, Haig does fear unchallenged Soviet and Cuban intervention in Africa and Central America, and laments President Carter's decision to end American recconaissance flights over Cuba.

While in Lubbock, Haig was reluctant to criticize Carter's reaction to reports of Soviet troops in Cuba. Haig was in town to speak at the annual Lubbock Chamber of Commerce banquet.

"It's best for private citizens such as myself to leave these kinds of decisions to the people who have access to inside information," Haig said. "I do recognize that this is a serious problem. And we need to get behind our president and hope he can work his way through this difficult problem. Then, if we don't like the way he handles it, we can vote him out of office."

On the topic of votes, Haig also said Friday he is seriously considering running for the Republican presidential nomination.

"I have been encouraged to do so, although I have not yet been overwhelmed by the encouragment," he said. "I'm going to watch it a few more weeks, and then be sure it is the right thing to do." Haig added he also might run for the Senate seat being vacated by Sen. Lowell Weicker in Haig's home state of Pennsylvania.

Speaking to a banquet crowd of more than 500, Haig said the next decade will be the most dangerous in history because of the "worsening nuclear strategic balance between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"With or without the SALT II agreements, the United States will be deficient between 1982 and 1989 to the Soviet Union in strategic nuclear power," Haig sid.

Haig said he does not fear the prospect of any nuclear holocaust in the near future. Instead, he is concerned with the president's ability to deal with "lower levels of pressure" in meeting Soviet challenges in Africa and Latin America.

"We must have new leadership that understands that our sterile involvement in Southeast Asia is over," Haig said. "But that leadership also must understand that the isolationist attitude that followed that period also is over."

Haig also said he is convinced the U.S. can "influence the Soviet Union to more responsible behavior," such as eliminating the social injustices prevalent in that country.

"We cannot view every international illegality as the result of Marxist-Leninism," Haig said. "But we also cannot ignore Soviet intervention."

Haig added that he fears that the emerging new leadership in the Soviet Union "will not be acutely aware of the sacrifices made by that country in

Attendance Record Near As Fair Winds Up Today

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY

TWIRLERS, SQUARE dancers and equestrians will be among the thousands enjoying the closing day of the Panhandle South Plains Fair today.

Friday's crowd of 34,791 boosted total fair attendance this year to 249,645 — only 25,408 short of breaking last year's attendance count. An enthusiastic crowd of 1,327 turned out Friday to hear Tom T. Hall.

Lubbock and area square dance clubs will do-si-do at 3 and 7:30 p.m. on the outdoor stage at the fairgrounds.

Early-risers have their choice of two events beginning at 8 a.m. The Livestock Pavilion will be crowded with spectators at the Quarter Horse Show,where the purse total will be $2,550. At the same time, an audience in the Coliseum will be cheering on contestants in the 26th Annual Twirling Festival. Girls age 6 and younger will be competing for the title of "Tiny Tot Twirl and Strut" and other age categories will be performing solos to win trophies and other titles.

The midway will be open from 10 a.m. until midnight and youths who bought ride coupon books will be eagerly cashing in the last of their stubs for one more spin on "The Sizzler" and one more dizzy toss on the "Side Winder."

The call of midway barkers ("Just put the ball through the hoop and win a prize") will grab the attention of many fairgoers and some of them will leave with stuffed teddy bears and fuzzy purple snakes.

But win or lose, the business of aim-and-toss works up an appetite for buttery corn-on-the-cob, caramel apples and that staple of carnival foods, the foot-long hot dog.

Margo Smith, country-western singer of the current release "Baby, My Baby," will take the stage at 5 and 8 p.m. today with Rex Allen Jr. and George "Goober" Lindsey at Fair Park Coliseum.

Miss Smith is replacing Tammy Wynette, who was compelled to cancel her appearance because of illness.

Steve L. Lewis, general manager of the fair, said tickets will be refunded at the Fair Park box office to those who do not want to attend the show with the replacement entertainer.

Miss Smith's number one singles have included, "It Only Hurts A Little While," "Little Things Means A Lot," and "Don't Break the Heart That Loves You."

Finalists in the All Youth Rodeo will compete at 7:30 tonight at the Livestock Pavilion. Cash prizes will be awarded in all events, including bareback riding, bull riding, tie-down calf roping, ribbon roping, barrel racing and pole bending.

Today At The Fair

The following activities are scheduled today at the 42nd annual Panhandle South Plains Fair:

8 a.m. — Quarter horse show, livestock pavilion; 26th annual Twirling Festival, coliseum.

3 and 7:30 p.m. — Lubbock and area square dance clubs perform an outdoor stage.

5 and 7 p.m. — "Sam Hill and the Tennessee Sounds," free, outdoor stage.

5 and 8 p.m. — Margo Smith Show, Fair Park Coliseum.

7:30 p.m. — All Youth Rodeo, livestock pavilion.

All day: Gene Ledel Million Dollar Midway; displays in women's building; commercial displays, both indoors and outdoors; winning agricultural exhibits in agriculture building.

Senate Kills Money Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Friday killed an emergency money bill needed to keep the government operating past Sunday. Senators were angry over the House position on abortion financing and a congressional pay raise.

The action, on a vote of 55-9, means the bill now must start all over in a House committee — a time-consuming process.

The Senate action on the continuing resolution came despite the pleas of Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., that the Senate simply amend the compromise report and send it back to the conference with the House.

But several senators objected to that maneuver and their objections blocked Byrd from pursuing his approach.

Byrd himself originally voted not to kill the bill but then changed his vote and urged other senators to reject it.

Much of the Senate's ire was directed at the House decision to leave on a week-long Columbus Day recess while the future of the emergency appropriations bill remained unsettled.

Gold Retreats At $400 Level; New Surge Seen Next Week

By The Associated Press

GOLD, the glittering precious metal that sold for as little as $35 an ounce 10 years ago, touched a record-shattering $400 Friday but retreated amid continuing worries over the health of the U.S. economy.

Dealers said they expected the lull to be brief.

"Next week, I think gold could go through $400 again," said a trader on the floor of New York's Commodity Exchange Inc.

The dollar, meanwhile, was mixed on the world's currency exchanges, standing just above the level that prompted President Carter last fall to launch a $30 billion dollar-rescue plan.

Bullion hit $400.20 a troy ounce in early morning trading in Hong Kong Friday, fell back to close at $396.25, then moved slightly over $400 again briefly when markets opened in Zurich and London.

At the close, gold stood at a record $397.50 in London, up $3.50 from Thursday's record close, and at $396.50 in Zurich, up $1 from a day before.

By late Friday, Republic National Bank of New York was quoting bullion at $395, while gold for October delivery slipped $4 to $395 on the Commodity Exchange. Gold ended 1978 in London at $226.375 and sold on the British market for $322.90 Sept. 1.

"There was a little resistance, a little profit-taking" at the $400 mark, said a trader. He added, "everybody's just sitting back and waiting right now, fearing another currency realignment" may come out of today's meeting in Hamburg of top U.S. and West German economic officials.

The strong West German mark, along with gold and other precious metals a haven for panicky investors fleeing the battered dollar, was revalued upward this week against major European currencies in a bid to stabilize foreign exchange markets.

The move failed to stop the dollar's steep drop, prompting West German Finance Minister Hans Matthoefer to de

Balloon Skims Rocky Peaks

DENVER (AP) — A gossamer-thin helium balloon with four persons aboard skimmed less than 1,000 feet over the rocky peaks of the Continental Divide on Friday in the third day of an attempt at the first non-stop transcontinental balloon flight.

"It's fantastic," Rudolph Engelmann, one of the pilots, said in a radio-telephone interview. "We just went over Trail Ridge and Longs Peak is right in front of us. We can see...I don't know, but it must be 100 miles."

The balloon then glided southeast, looking like a tiny, glistening tear drop as it moved over Denver just south of the business district.

Mothers and children stood on sidewalks and people went to the roofs of office buildings to watch the balloon as it slipped to the east, heading over the wheat country of eastern Colorado toward the Kansas plains.

The 100-foot-tall DaVinci Trans-America balloon had been traveling at between 17,000 and 18,000 feet as it approached the line of 14,000-foot-plus peaks that form the crest of the Divide in Rocky Mountain National Park about 70 miles north of Denver.

But Engelmann said the balloon had dropped to 15,100 feet as it moved toward Longs Peak. At 14,256 feet, Longs Peak is the highest point on the Divide in the region of the balloon's flight.

"I'll tell you this, we don't want to go any lower than 14,257 feet," said Engelmann. "I can almost reach down and touch some of the peaks we are going over."

The balloon descended slowly to about 10,000 feet as it passed Denver, but the crew dropped ballast east of the city and regained altitude.

Bob Rice of the Weather Service Corp. of Bedford, Mass. said the crew would return to about 13,000 feet and head for southern Kansas.

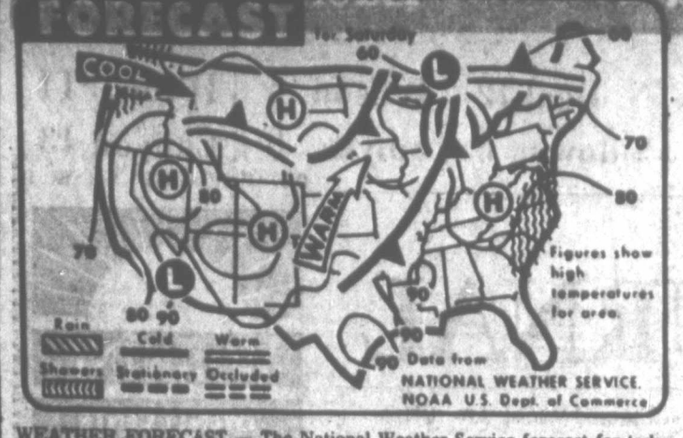

The flight, named the DaVinci Trans-America after the 15th Century artist-scientist, took off Wednesday morning from the town of Tillamook in an Oregon coastal valley. Engelmann said they still hoped to reach the East Coast by Monday.

Aboard the balloon were Engelmann, who lives in Boulder, Colo.; Vera Simons of McLean, Va.; Fred Hyde, a Kansas City-area doctor, and NBC-TV cameraman Randy Birch.

The flight originally was promoted as a blend of science and art, but a major part of the scientific portion of the flight was scrubbed when the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration withdrew its support and $28,000 worth of scientific equipment because of possible conflict of interest.

Tech Student Life Director Appointed To MSU Position

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Dr. Moses Turner, director of student life at Texas Tech University, was named to a similar position at Michigan State University Friday by the MSU board of trustees.

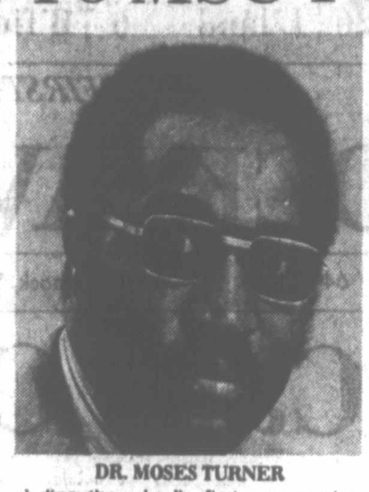

The 41-year-old Turner, who has been at Tech since 1977, will begin his duties at vice president for student affairs and services at MSU on Nov. 1.

Dr. Cecil Mackey, MSU president and former Tech president, recommended Turner to the MSU board for the position, citing his work record at Tech and other universities.

By unanimous vote, the MSU board appointed Turner to the $48,500 post. The current vice president for student affairs, Dr. Eldon Nonnamaker, announced this month he was leaving the post to return to the teaching faculty at MSU.

Turner was in East Lansing, Mich., Friday, and could not be reached for comment on his new job.

Also at Friday's board meeting, two other vice presidents were named, including the school's first woman vice president. Connie Stewart, 40, director of policy communication for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, was named vice president for university relations.

DR. MOSES TURNER

MSU alumnus Joe Dickinson, 52, associate director of development at University of Michigan, was named vice president for development at MSU.

The three latest appointments round out Mackey's new administrative staff. There are no other vacancies open. Former Tech vice president for finance and administration Kenneth Thompson was named to an MSU post earlier and began his duties there Sept. 1.

Turner's job responsibilities at MSU will be similar to those he has had at Tech, but the scope will be wider. MSU's enrollment of 44,700 is almost double Tech's student body.

Prior to his Tech appointment, Turner was assistant dean of students at Washington State University from 1972 until 1977 and director of music at Columbia Basin College in Washington state prior to that.

He received his bachelor's degree from Albany State College in Georgia, his masters degree from Central Washington State College and his doctor of education degree from Washington State University.

Reading Specialist Addresses Meeting

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A reading specialist told a group of area educators Friday that teachers are neglecting to acquaint kids with the "beauty and precision" of the language they read.

Arthur Heilman, until recently the director of the University Reading Center at Pennsylvania State University, addressed some 900 area teachers and administrators gathered at the Civic Center for the annual Lubbock Area Reading Conference.

The two-day conference, sponsored by the Texas Association for the Improvement of Reading (TAIR), is a joint project of Lubbock and area public schools, Texas Tech University and Lubbock Christian College.

Heilman, who has devoted a number of workshops and publications to the subject of reading, said, "We've been a little bit derelict in trying to acquaint kids with the power of language — the beauty and precision of language."

He said that there is "little magic available to teachers, but language is magic."

He noted that "in theory, schools are supposed to feed the minds of students. Have we asked, 'Are we providing a good language diet or are we providing junk food?' "

Heilman said that many educators teach children to read by emphasizing the letter code — how to put together the words — but they are not emphasizing the power of language. He said such a teaching process is "threatening American education."

He proposed that teachers expose their students each day to "language that really turns them on, that shakes up their heads. It would have to be the most inspiring... bit of language we can find."

He said he believes that less than one percent of material written by great writers can be quoted by most people.

The reading specialist noted that he asked a group of teachers in a reading class one time to jot down some bit of language that impressed them or guided them in times of stress. Half of the teachers there could think of nothing to write, he said.

"We ought to let our kids sharpen their teeth on the best passages of writing," Heilman said.

Heilman observed that "there are hundreds of words with hundreds of meanings" and suggested that teachers throw out words to students who should then state different definitions of the words or suggested that the teachers compile a list of figurative expressions and ask for the actual meanings.

He told teachers to utilize exercises pointing up the importance of intonation — of stress and pitch — in reading. "People who can't use it (intonation) in reading can't read for enjoyment and they won't be avid readers," Heilman said. He cautioned teachers that such exercises should not be graded. "Grades are what makes kids hate school and gives teachers messy work. Just go out and see who can learn."

Heilman said that educators are hiding educational tools like word games from the students and added that such tools are "what makes the curriculum more meaningful."

The reading conference will continue today with guest speaker James Walden addressing the general session at 9:15 a.m.; followed by interest sessions lasting from 10:15 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. A special parent involvement session stressing tips for parents in encouraging their children to read will be held in Room 110.

Dry, Hot Weather Expected To Continue

Temperatures are expected to soar to the lower 90s again today, as the South Plains continues a dry, hot approach to fall appreciated by farmers, if not by city residents hoping for some cooler breezes.

Friday's high was 93 degrees, compared to a low of 59, and the National Weather Service says the South Plains is due highs today and Sunday in the lower 90s and lows at night in the middle 50s.

Winds are expected to be light and variable.

Friday's only precipitation in the state was created when a weak cold front between Childress and Wichita Falls produced some light showers scattered along a line from Mineral Wells to the Red River, just east of Wichita Falls.

Unseasonably warm weather was the rule across North, Central and West Texas Friday.

Rain fell on the eastern Ohio Valley and the lower Great Lakes Friday, causing some minor flooding around Pittsburgh, while sunny skies prevailed west of the Mississippi River.

Couple Possessing Gun Charged

A couple arrested Thursday after allegedly trying to sell a submachine gun were formally charged Friday with carrying a prohibited weapon.

Vikky Lynn Woodruff, 22, of Route 2, Box 654, and Hector Lee Castro, 19, of 4614 43rd St., were arrested about 3:30 p.m. Thursday after officers received information they might have the weapon in their possession.

A Galaxy Pawnshop employee telephoned officers and told them the couple had entered the business shortly before 3 p.m. and said they would be back with the gun. When the suspects left the 1621 19th St. business the second time, a police officer stopped their vehicle in the 1800-block of Avenue K and the duo was arrested.

Students Arrested In School Fight

WELLESLEY, Mass. (AP) — A high school cafeteria fight between blacks and whites in this affluent Boston suburb led to the arrest of three students, police said.

Associate School Superintendent Ted Rokicki said rumors that black students had been seen tampering with lockers contributed to increased tensions that boiled over Thursday. He said the rumors had been disproved.

Two black students were arrested after they allegedly walked into a cafeteria swinging a baseball bat and tire iron. A white youth was arrested outside the school, police said.

Estacado Seeking Ex-Cheerleaders

The Estacado Ex-Student Association is looking for former cheerleaders to participate in homecoming activities Oct. 12.

Any student that was a cheerleader from 1967 to 1978 and is willing to get involved should contact student activities Director Jim Broome at 763-7021.

A meeting already has been scheduled at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the student activities office.

Government Index Says Economy Trends Sluggish

ECONOMIC INDICATORS ARE UNCHANGED IN AUGUST — The U. S. Commerce Department's Composite Index of Leading Economic Indicators showed no change in August. The government said this gives cloudy signals on whether a recession is under way. (AP Laserphoto)

BOUNDARY PROBLEM

HOUSTON (AP) — Carl Smith, the Harris County tax assessor-collector, says Houston has some fringe areas in which it is difficult for residents to know whether they live inside or outside the city. Because of the problem, Smith said, judges in 60 precincts that straddle city boundaries will be sent detailed maps for use in preventing non-residents from voting in Houston's Nov. 6 general election.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government index designed to forecast economic trends continued to show weakness in August, remaining unchanged after dropping for two months, the Commerce Department said Friday.

The department's Composite Index of Leading Indicators "is telling us the economy is sluggish, but doesn't give us any clue to the magnitude of the problem, said department analyst Adren Cooper.

Meanwhile, the government reported that the nation's 4,700 federally insured savings and loan associations posted their worst August savings flow rate since August 1974, when the nation was in its last recession.

Savings deposits increased $729 million last month, only about half the increase of the previous month, according to the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. It was the worst inflow since December, which traditionally is low because people withdraw their funds for holiday shopping.

And the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks said net deposits at savings banks fell $500 million in August. It was the fifth consecutive monthly decline, the trade group said.

The savings flow figures are important because they give a clue about how much money the thrift institutions will have available to lend out in mortgages in future months.

Housing, which traditionally is among the first industries affected by an economic downturn, has remained relatively strong so far this year. But analysts expect the savings crunch and high interest rates to push housing construction well below last year's level before the end of 1979.

The lack of movement in the composite index followed slight drops of 0.2 percent in July and 0.3 percent in June.

Three consecutive monthly declines in the index traditionally have signaled the start of a recession.

The index, however, has been mixed since hitting a peak of 143.7 in October. It fell a sharp 2.3 percent in April, in part reflecting the truckers' strike, and in August stood at 139.1.

The August figure means that the 10 components of the index were 39.1 percent ahead of their 1967 base.

The Commerce Department said four of the components were up in August: liquid assets, sensitive prices, stock prices and building permits. The increases were offset by six declines: average workweek, layoff rate, vendor delivery schedules, contracts and orders for plant and equipment, money supply and new orders.

Cooper pointed out that the "mixed" index is not unlike other measures of the nation's economic health.

The nation's inflation-adjusted output of goods and services, for example, fell in the second quarter but is expected to show no change or rise in the third, he said. Auto sales were off but are reviving, and housing starts are down, but not yet as far as predicted, he continued.

Many economists say the nation's seventh post-World War II recession began in the second quarter this year and that the downturn will persist into 1980, even if third-quarter output figures show improvement.

Although a recession could help dampen inflation, currently raging at an annual rate in excess of 13 percent, it also would throw many people out of work. The Carter administration estimates that the downturn, though mild in comparison to the 1974-75 recession, will cost more than 1 million people their jobs.

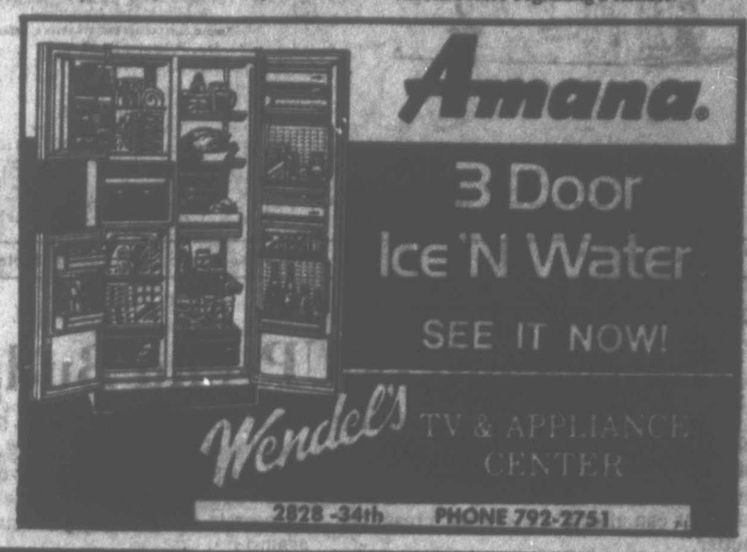

Commerce also released its so-called Composite Index of Coincident Indicators, which is supposed to read the economy's current performance.

This index fell 0.9 percent in August, the largest drop since a 1 percent decline in May.

The coincident index hit its peak in March before beginning a tumble.

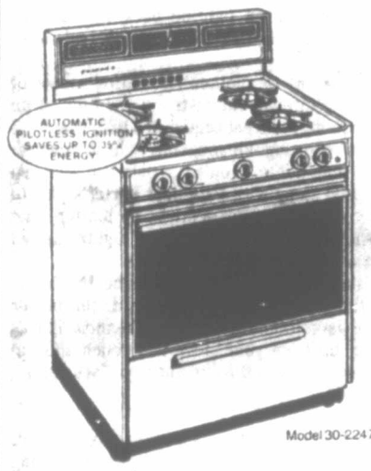

IMMIGRATION CONFERENCE

AUSTIN (AP) — About 225 Texas attorneys interested in immigration law are expected for the third annual conference of the University of Texas Law School on immigration and naturalization in San Antonio, Oct. 4-5. Scheduled speakers include David Crosland, general Counsel for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service; John Diggins, Austin, retired American consul general in Toronto, Canada.

AN EDITORIAL:

Big Spenders UP-end Budget

LYNDON JOHNSON'S foolhardy political philosophy that the federal taxpayer could afford both "guns and butter" has sprouted horns and a tail: Congress now believes the taxpayer can afford "guns, steak, cream and butter."

That is to say, the budget approved by the heavily Democratic Congress for next year proposes that the government shoot the cow and eat it, fully expecting it to continue giving milk and butter for years to come.

The House voted a 1980 federal budget of $548.2 billion with a projected deficit of $28.9 billion. The Senate's version calls for $546.3 billion in spending and projects a $31.6 billion deficit.

Differences will be ironed out in conference committee.

BOTH HOUSES THEN voted to create President Carter's Department of Education because the existing dozen Cabinet-level departments can't spend money fast enough to suit them.

This headlong rush toward economic destruction represents about a 10 percent year-to-year increase in the federal budget.

Under the House version, spending will be about $16 billion higher than the "target" adopted by Congress last spring, when the members were not quite so far removed from the reality of a taxpayers revolt that the voters had threatened in last year's elections.

But, said House Budget Committee Chairman Robert Giaimo, D-Conn., you can't expect to hold down spending when previously approved social welfare programs are being automatically triggered by a deepening recession.

No, indeedy.

NO REPUBLICANS joined the 212 big-spending Democrats, including U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock, who voted for the massive budget in the House. Fifty-two Democrats joined 154 Republicans in voting against it.

Hance, who voted against creating the Department of Education and for earlier attempts to balance the budget and cut spending, said he nevertheless voted for the record budget because "it looked like the best deal we could cut."

The GOP had proposed a $20 billion tax cut, accompanied by a $20 billion spending cut, in order to lift the nation out of recession and restore confidence in the future but the liberals would have none of that.

"Pie-in-the-sky," Giaimo said of the idea that budgetary sanity be restored.

As approved by the House majority, the budget for next year will include less for national defense and more for social welfare than does the Senate version.

IT WOULD, FOR example, create 100,000 more make-work public service jobs and require that the federal treasury borrow money to give to the poor to help them pay their utility bills.

If Congress would, instead, cut spending and cut taxes it would trigger an economic recovery that would create productive jobs and lower the cost of living for the poor.

This would not, however, buy re-election votes for the liberals, who want to keep the poor in bondage and so grateful to them for handouts that their political futures will be assured.

How much longer will the taxpayers put up with this?

AN EDITORIAL:

We Planned It That Way!

IS THE U.S. coming up to another "dollar crunch?"

And if so, what effect will it have on the current rate of double-digit inflation, U.S. foreign trade, the energy question, indeed the personal lives of all Americans?

As the price of gold soared past the "magic $400" an ounce this week and the dollar continued to have its sinking spell in world markets, new worries about the future were raised. Both the experts and average citizen seem to be in the same boat. Neither has a sure-fire crystal ball.

BUT, WHILE what happens next may be a puzzle, one thing isn't. The effects of years of irresponsible "Spend Today, Pay Back Someday" philosophy finally are coming home to roost.

For one thing, starting just after World War II, the nation embarked on a philosophy that the more the Federal Government collected in taxes and then spent the better things would be. Deficit financing became a way of life for the nation, a passport to office for politicians.

Also starting in that period, the American people's historic belief in a day's work for a day's pay started being eroded. Production slumped. Foreign nations started working harder and grabbing off U.S. markets, even those within the nation. Ever escalating Big Labor demands brought on foreign competition. Finally, a Big Brother government took over.

Soaring gold prices, a slumping dollar, foreign inroads into Americans' lives? Why should we be surprised?

M. STANTON EVANS:

Carter's SALT-Sellers Acting Above The Law?

WASHINGTON—Are the President of the United States, members of his Cabinet, and officials of the State Department required to obey the law?

That's the question that was raised in federal court by nine members of the House and Senate who filed a suit against the Carter administration.

Their allegation: That by lavish use of public funds to promote the SALT II treaty, the Carter regime has violated constitutional and statutory provisions barring use of taxpayers' money to lobby Congress.

AMONG THOSE making this charge, and asking that the administration be enjoined from such activities, are Sens. Jake Garn of Utah, Jesse Helms of North Carolina, Paul Laxalt of Nev, and James McClure of Idaho.

Joining them in the complaint are House members John Ashbrook of Ohio, Robert Bauman of Maryland, Philip Crane of Illinois, Mickey Edwards of Oklahoma, and Steve Symms of Idaho. All are directors of the American Conservative Union, which is also a plaintiff in the suit.

On the face of it, the issue here would seem to be clear-cut. The U.S. Code, while permitting members of the executive branch to communicate requested information to Congress, also contains some definite prohibitions intended to keep the executive branch from pressuring the lawmakers.

The law dictates, in no uncertain terms, that members of the executive branch are not to engage in legislative lobbying.

THE RELEVANT statute says:

"No part of the money appropriated by any enactment of Congress shall, in the absence of express authorization by Congress, be used directly or indirectly to pay for any personal service, advertisement, telegram, telephone, letter, printed or written matter, or other device, intended or designed to influence in any manner a member of Congress, to favor or oppose, by vote or otherwise, any legislation or appropriation by Congress, whether before or after the introduction of any bill or resolution proposing such legislation or appropriation."

That seems to be pretty plain—and comprehensive. A reasonable stretching of this provision would allow the President and his subordinates to expound their views on legislation, supply data to cooperative lawmakers, testify before committees, etc.

But if the English language still has any meaning, there is no way the executive branch can legally run a full-scale lobbying effort designed to whip up public pressure on Congress and bend the legislature to its will.

Yet, on the evidence, that is exactly what the Carter administration is doing with SALT II.

IN THE COURT complaint submitted by the senators and congressmen, a host of lobbying activities by the Carter regime are documented.

These include fielding pro-SALT speakers on hundreds of trips across the nation, mailing out massive quantities of pro-SALT literature, staging conferences designed to generate pressure for ratification, and gatherings in the White House itself to urge American citizens to lobby senators for passage of the treaty.

The plaintiffs cite estimates that the Carter administration has spent more than $1.2 million in pursuit of such activities:

* The State Department and Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, it is alleged, sponsored more than 1,700 speaking engagements and media events last year and this, in favor of SALT;

* Senior officials of the government have appeared at 39 pro-treaty conferences; the State Department has sent out 507,000 SALT-related documents to the public, and so forth.

OCCASIONAL EFFORTS are made to suggest such presentations are somehow balanced, but, the complaint alleges, the pretense is feeble.

A cited example is a SALT conference in Providence, R.I., July 25, in which a single critic of SALT was permitted on the program, and who was allotted less than 10 percent of the conference time.

The administration is engaged in "selling SALT," pure and simple, and, focusing all the pressures it can to push the Senate into ratification.

What was that we were hearing a couple of years ago, about an "imperial Presidency" that was "above the law?"

GEORGE WILL:

King Jim's Version

WASHINGTON—Unaccustomed though I am to approving change (and I am not really going to do that here), I now offer a very partial and tepid defense of those who have tried, and of course failed, to improve the Episcopal Church's Book of Common Prayer.

Intelligent people disagree about whether miracles occurred in first century Palestine. But something miraculous obviously occurred in 16th century England: Thomas Cranmer's prose.

Miracles are hard to define but easy to recognize, and Cranmer's Prayer Book is one.

It is not just stately; it helped create our idea of stateliness.

The revisers of the Prayer Book have diminished it. But they are not guilty, as some critics charge, of thoroughly vandalizing Cranmer's work. And some critics reason too much from aesthetic, and too little from theological, premises.

Several of the new rites preserve most of Cranmer. But, for example, this moving passage is gone from the burial service:

"Man, that is born of a woman, hath but a short time to live, and is full of misery. He cometh up, and is cut down, like a flower; he fleeth as it were a shadow, and never continueth in one stay."

Charity, a duty of Christians and others, prevents me from commenting on some of the new rites, except to wonder what becomes of the very idea of "common prayer" when the Prayer Book resembles a multiple-choice quiz.

THE REVISIONISTS' ranks included some essentially conservative liturgical experts whose aim was to restore practices of the early church.

It is arguable, for example, that by deleting from the General Confession the phrase "miserable offenders" and the passage "there is no health in us," what is excised is the medieval gloominess that eclipsed the early church's joyfulness.

Still, a glance at contemporary society suggests that this is not a propitious moment for encouraging mankind to think better of itself.

Some revisions reflect what C.S. Lewis called "liturgical fidget." Why else did the revisers flatten "till death do us part" into "until we are parted by death"?

YES, OF COURSE, language like Cranmer's sounds "artificial." All art is artifice, and the art of liturgy, being of unsurpassable seriousness, should be especially artful.

Yes, of course, people today do not talk the way Cranmer wrote. But people then did not talk that way either. Except when talking to God.

As Lewis said, liturgical prose "need to be not only very good but very good in a special way, if it is to stand up to reitrated reading aloud."

Much of what is being done to religious language in the name of "relevance" is something a sensitive person cannot face, even once, without shuddering. God is not dead, but he is powerfully embarrassed by books like "Are You Running With Me, Jesus?"

FRANK MANKIEWICZ, one of Washington's finer wits, has subjected himself to the "Good News Bible," and he says that "Thou shalt not kill" is there rendered "Don't murder."

The perpetrators of that improvement did not heed that commandment when they assaulted the cadences of what they doubtless call the King Jim version.

In order to bring the Prayer Book closer to the "language of the people," the revisers had to ignore the laity's emphatically expressed preference for Cranmer's language.

It is hard to suppress the suspicion that ecclesiastical egalitarians are scoring ideological, not theological, points. They probably are vaguely put off by language that is not as immediately and universally comprehensible as a Pepsi jingle.

AMONG THE dismally remarkable achievements of the modern world is this:

Life is, simultaneously, indescribably noisy and impoverishing to the senses. So the revisionists are, in a sense, right: Cranmer's Prayer Book is out of place here.

Perhaps Christianity's many revisers are, as a matter of fact, bringing Christianity into conformity with the spirit of the age. But I thought it was supposed to work the other way.

Now, a postscript.

ANDREW TULLY:

Brazil Is Not Nuts

WASHINGTON—"I suppose," said the man at the Brazilian Embassy wryly, "that the great and powerful U.S. some day will reach the point at which it's doing something about production of a substitute for gasoline. Brazil is already there."

The diplomat was commenting proudly on the fact that his government started doing something about the OPEC-sponsored oil crisis back when the crisis was created—in 1973.

As a result, ethyl alcohol output has increased from 169 million gallons in 1975 to an estimated 910 million gallons this year. That, he noted, "is more than total alcohol consumption in the whole rest of the world."

GASOHOL? Brazilian cars already run on a mixture of 20 per cent alcohol and gasoline, while Washington only talks about the hope that eventually American cars will be using a mixture of 10 per cent alcohol to 90 per cent gasoline.

Brazil's aim now is to make pure ethyl alcohol the exclusive fuel for automobiles. It already has started to replace its official government fleet with alcohol-powered cars.

Meanwhile, in the proud U.S., only a scattered few filling stations are selling gasohol. And those outlets may dwindle now that the gasoline crunch seems to have ended.

Tests in Brazil have shown that automobile engines powered by pure alcohol perform better and—because the engine temperature is lower—last longer than conventional cars.

AS A BONUS, alcohol produces a much cleaner exhaust than even the "cleanest" gasoline-burning engines.

Brazilian President Figueiredo calls his government's gasohol program "a means of saving the automobile. When the world's oil supplies run out, the car will be obsolete."

It is ironic that GM, that American giant, is playing a big role in the Brazilian program. GM already has produced the first 252 alcohol-powered vehicles at its Sao Paulo plant and will begin mass production early next year.

GM's new engine is "multifuel"—that is, it will run on gas, alcohol or a combination of both. The company will invest $500 million in its manufacture during the next four years. Yet, the news ticker the other day quoted a GM spokesman in Brazil as saying the company has "no plans at present" to manufacture the engine in the United States.

WHY NOT? Are Americans, obsessed with chic, too proud to buy an alcohol-powered car? Maybe. But if you're sniffing for rats in the woodpile, Big Oil might be one of the villains. Obviously, a lot less gasoline would be sold at premium prices if the country's automobiles enjoyed an attack of alcoholism.

Meanwhile, Brazil is realistic, if not as "great and powerful" as the U.S. Its government has encouraged consumers to switch by cutting taxes and easing credit restrictions for folks who buy alcohol-fueled cars. It also has decreed a pump price of 87 cents a gallon for alcohol, compared with $1.86 a gallon for regular gas and $2.98 for high-test.

Americans can forget ideas like that. Everything Brazil is doing is too simple in an America locked into the sophisticated approach to its problems.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE:

Gimme A Breather

DALLAS—So there you are: You've spent a bundle on extra insulation for your home...you've installed triple-glazed windows...every possible air leak has been caulked with polyethelyne goo...and all outside doors are weatherstripped.

You now have a "leak-proof" house. You've cut the high cost of electricity and heating by 50 percent and you're saving enough energy to drive a sheik to drink. All you need now is someone to save your life.

That's right, folks. By sealing yourself up in an energy-efficient house, as Big Brother has been begging you to do, you are exposing yourself and your family to all kinds of "indoor smog." Smog that the World Health Organization has determined is injurious to your health.

It's "Catch-22," sure as you breathe. And the less you do of that, the better, too. Here's how it works:

BACK IN the old days, when most houses leaked like sieves and nobody worried overmuch about it, we got a fresh-air "transfusion" every couple of hours. Now, thanks to progress in engineering, building materials, and the war against OPEC, we breathe the same air for 10 hours.

And what air! Full of noxious contaminants like formaldehyde, carbon monoxide, nitrogen dioxide and a radioactive gas called radon. Not to mention stale tobacco smoke and the odors from last night's fried onions.

We are living in what health experts call a "chemical gas chamber." Even nuclear physicists go along with that. Natural radiation, they say, is even more dangerous than the man-made stuff from the giant reactors. That's because we're exposed to it for a lifetime, not just a few days.

RADON PROBABLY worries the most. The smarter our scientists get, the more they realize we are exposed to this radioactive jab from Mother Nature every time we walk into a stone building, stroll across our yards or use water from a well.

The day may come, if it isn't here already, when we'll need a Geiger counter to see if it's safe to take a shower. A test in the bathroom of one home recently found levels of radon gas from well water were higher than the "safe working levels" established for uranium miners.

Living rooms are booby traps, too; full of sofas, drapes and carpets just sitting there waiting to get you. They're all made from materials that ooze formaldehyde, asbestos and other harmful stuff.

Then there's the kitchen. What it's full of is enough to make you turn in your apron for a gas mask. Pollution escapes from gas stoves, self-cleaning ovens, cleaning liquids, aerosol sprays, bleaches and whatever is in the rest of those bottles under the sink.

DON'T COUNT on fighting back with an air-freshener. They're full of chemical emissions, too.

This brings us to another fascinating aspect of better living through chemistry: "acid rain." Pull up a tranquilizer and get acquainted with this.

Say you're sitting, all snug and tight in your energy-efficient home. You're a patriotic soul, so you've gone along with President Carter's plea to set the thermostat at 78 degrees, no matter what the weather's doing outside your tightly sealed windows.

This shoots up the humidity inside the house and, although you may not notice it, the higher moisture is combining with the chemical clouds billowing up from your stove and couch and underarm deodorant sprays to turn on "acid rain." Indoors, yet.

WHAT THIS does to the finish on your antiques and the upholstery on your furniture is nothing compared to what it does to your lungs. Better you should open the windows and take your chances with factory smoke, automobile fumes, and the real acid rain out there.

There is another way: You can always install an air-purification system in your home. For a mere $5,000.

Some folks, faced with the futility of it all, might be tempted to say the heck with it, put it out of their minds and relax with a cigarette and a double scotch. Except that now they tell us that, too, causes cancer.

I don't know about you, but I've figured out how to save that five thou and my lungs.

I'm going to stop hollering at the kids when they leave the back door open. My doctor and the President may not like it, but the gas and light people will.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

Q. HOW DO the keepers of war prisoners go about that thing called brainwashing?

A. Key to it, I'm told, is in depriving the prisoner of sleep. Keep a person awake long enough, and said party will tend to suffer hallucinations. In that condition, nothing matters much. The victim does as directed, thinks as directed, speaks as directed. Even if then given sleep, the prisoner tends to awaken in a depression that can last for a long time. And in that condition, too, the victim remains susceptible. Or so says an authority on the phenomenon.

If you can afford to go on a hunting safari in Africa, you might wish to learn how some of the Very Rich do it: First they donate the price of the expedition to a museum of their choice, no matter how big or small. The donation is tax deductible. Then the museum sends them on a trip, their objective being to bring back trophies for said museum. While there, they also may knock down a few beasties on their own license to pick up trophies for their own mansions. There is usually a certain amount of financial margin in these deals, enough to make it attractive both to the museum and the hunter.

What sort of professional man makes the best husband? Agatha Christie claimed, "An archaeologist is the best husband a woman can have: The older she gets, the more he is interested in her."

Any housewife who failed to boil her dustcloth after using same was liable to imprisonment. Such was the law in old California.

Just about 31 percent of the children in foster homes are there simply because their parents don't want them. Or so report the experts. Incidentally, there are now four times as many youngsters in foster homes as there were 18 years ago. Something fierce is going on.

Protracted Strike, Rate Rise Spawns Havoc At Elevators

By PAT TEAGUE
United Press International

A protracted strike of the Rock Island line, coupled with a shortage of railroad grain cars this summer and expected inereases in freight rates, has created havoc at some Panhandle grain elevators.

The havoc has spawned intense anger among some elevator owners including Ed Crabtree, a 36-year veteran of the business whose Conlen Mercantile and Grain Co. sits alongside the Rock Island line near Stratford.

Most of the problems created by a month-old Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks union strike against the Rock Island can be traced to the Interstate Commerce Commission, Crabtree says.

"Just repeal the ICC," Crabtree said recently, "'cause (the grain) would start moving tomorrow."

Crabtree said the bankrupt Rock Island line has tried to sell out to other railroads ever since the feisty elevator owner entered the business in 1943.

"They've got some deals made up, but the ICC won't honor it. (The ICC) have sold out to the Santa Fe. By the Santa Fe contesting (a Rock Island sale), the Santa Fe gets a lot of extra business," he charged.

The bottom line, says Crabtree, is that grain from the Conlen elevator must be trucked 80 miles these days to Amarillo. And that's extra time and expense for Crabtree.

"If it continues long enough, I'll either have to build a place to load on another (rail)road or quit. Would you be very happy if you had to truck your grain to Amarillo and the main line of the Rock Island runs right by your house?" he asked.

"When you go to a bureau to change some regulations, you end up with a bunch more regulations that are worse than the first ones. Why have to run a bunch of trucks tearing up the public roads when the railroads are made to haul grain? That's their business."

The Rock Island line has operated its 7,200 miles of track under court supervision since 1975 and the strike has forced the railroad to use supervisory personnel the last three weeks.

The Interstate Commerce Commission announced in Washington Wednesday the Kansas City Terminal Railway Co. has been ordered to provide 60-day emergency service during the autumn harvest in the Midwest. The KCT has tentatively accepted the government's order and may provide strike relief as early as Monday.

In the meantime, T.I. Welch who owns Welch Grain Co. at Dalhart says the strike is not the only factor that has slowed grain shipments to the Gulf.

"We don't know what the problem is. It's not just the strike. All of a sudden the railroads have come up short of (grain) cars," he said.

Welch said freight rates will increase by 7 cents to 8 cents a bushel in October and purchased grain upheld from shipment by a variety of factors will cost more to move.

A grain elevator owner, he said, "should have some compensation, because he bought (grain) on the (cheaper) rate. We're going to be caught with about 300,000 bushels and that's a $25,000 loss, not counting the interest we pay.

"I've never seen it like this before," added Welch, who got into the grain business in 1947.

It all adds up to a vanishing profit margin, he added.

"We're indebted for about 200,000 bushels to the bank. It's just going to cut into our (profit) margin to where there probably won't be any margin left. It's terrible, really."

Brice McRhee, manager of the Continental Grain Co. elevator at Capps Switch near Sunray, north of Amarillo, pondered the problems of the transportation industry and the Rock Island line recently.

"Does the Rock Island need to keep going and get government money or go out of business?" he asked to no one in particular. "I'd hate to have to answer thatquestion."

Hospital Schedules Nursing Workshop

A two-day workshop on "Nursing Services Standards" will be held Wednesday and Thursday at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

The purpose of the workshop is to familiarize participants with the 1980 Revised Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospital Standards of Nursing Practice. Implementation of the standards and how they affect Medicare reimbursement will be discussed.

The College of Nursing at the University of Texas, El Paso, is sponsoring the workshop and will award 1.2 continuing education units to each participant who completes the workshop.

Marta Reeder, instructor at UTEP nursing school, will conduct the workshop. She has had extensive clinical and administrative experience and has been a staff nurse, head nurse, instructor and director of nursing services in both small and large hospitals.

The Lubbock workshop is one of seven being conducted across the state this fall.

South Plains College Slates Engine Course

A five-week short course in diesel engine tune-up will begin at 7 p.m. Thursday at South Plains College at Lubbock.

The course is designed to assist mechanics who wish to upgrade their skills in doing tune-ups on diesel engines.

The course will meet Tuesday and Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m. at 1302 Main St. and will cover complete tune-up sequences for mechanical and hydraulic governor engines.

Tuition can be paid and registration completed at 1302 Main St., or by phone at 748-8111.

Nicaragua is the largest of the Central American countries but the most sparsely populated with only 2,390,000 inhabitants.

Trial Witness Claims Seeking Protection From Roommate

FORT WORTH (AP) — A defense witness said he solicited protection from millionaire defendant Cullen Davis' defense team because he was afraid of his former friend and roommate, Pat Burleson.

Convicted rapist Jodie Mack Oliver, 30, said he and Burleson were close friends and lived in Burleson's downtown Fort Worth karate studio until February, when the friends split up and Oliver moved out.

On cross-examination, prosecutor Jack Strickland asked Oliver if he had become "pretty good friends" with Burleson.

"He kind of took care of you in a lot of ways?" Strickland said.

"He sure did," replied the stocky, blond witness.

"In point of fact, that relationship became sort of like father and son," Strickland continued.

"Yes, sir," Oliver said.

Davis, 46, is charged with scheming to hire the murder of his divorce judge, Joe Eidson, and others during the summer of 1978.

The Davis defense team contends Davis is the victim of an elaborate frame-up concocted by key prosecution witness David McCrory, Burleson and Davis' ex-wife Priscilla.

Oliver told jurors he sought protection from the FBI and from the U.S. Marshal's office, who told him they had no jurisdiction in the matter. The witness said he did not call the federal agencies until after he received $1,090 from the defense team for transportation and living expenses while he was in hiding in East Texas.

Oliver said he left Burleson because he became afraid for his life "when I was asked what kind of acid would burn a body up or where to hide a body," he said.

Strickland asked why Oliver thought that reference was a threat to his own life.

"I had observed certain things that happened and heard things to the point that if I thought I knew too much, I might be the one," he replied.

Oliver said he talked to district attorneys' investigators before entering the hospital, but refused to talk to them when he was released two weeks late. He saida defense-hired private investigator picked him up at the hospital.

"You found out that the prosecution would not offer you anything but protection, no money," Strickland said. "Thereafter, you went right back to your sugar daddy, isn't that true?"

Lead defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes objected to the question and Oliver was not allowed to answer.

Oliver earlier testified Burleson told him on the eve of Davis' Aug. 20 arrest that "they're going to do it to Cullen Davis tomorrow. They're going to kill him or arrest him."

The next day, Oliver said Burleson handed him a note that said "It's going down now."

"You did not mention the note or the conversation in Houston did you?" Strickland asked.

"No, sir," Oliver said.

"In fact, you told no one until after you received the $1,090?" the prosecutor continued.

"Yes, sir. That's true."

The Houston proceeding ended in a mistrial earlier this year when jurors deadlocked in favor of conviction 8-4.

Illegal Aliens May Get School

DALLAS (AP) — Civic and religious leaders are taking steps to provide schooling for children of illegal aliens since a federal judge has ruled, at least temporarily, that local school districts are not obligated to do so.

The coalition began Thursday to solicit funds from foundations and other private sources.

Among those endorsing the move is Superintendent Linus Wright of the Dallas Independent School District. However, he did not commit DISD funds or personnel. It was the DISD who went to court to keep alien children from attending school for free.

"I would certainly encourage churches and other organizations to do what they can to provide some kind of education for these kids," Wright said. "And I hope they understand DISD's position which forces us to exclude them unless they pay tuition." State law prohibits the use of state funds to educate children of illegal aliens.

The meeting to form the coalition was organized by the Community Relations Services Divsion of the Justice Department. The Immigration and Naturalization Service, another branch of the Justice Department, is supposed to deport illegal aliens.

The coalition has suggested special classes in church affiliated schools, home tutoring by paid teachers or volunteered retired teachers or establishment of a special school.

U.S. District Judge Robert Hill refused to grant a temporary injunction against the DISD sought by 19 parents of illegal aliens. He set trial for Nov. 19.

The Grass Everyone's Talking About

DIXIE GREEN

ELITE OVERSEEDING MIXTURE

A BEAUTIFUL GREEN LAWN FOR ALL SEASONS

HOW DO I PLANT "DIXIE GREEN"

1. Overseed an existing Bermuda Lawn
   a. Scalp, or mow existing lawn or bermuda as low as possible, and pick up the clippings.
   b. Apply "Dixie Green" seed with a cyclone or drop type spreader at a rate of 2-4 pounds per 100 sq. ft.
   c. Apply fertilizer (Zipp 16-8-8, Fertilome w/iron, or Pax Winterizer, note: DO NOT USE ANY WEED & FEED FERTILIZERS!
   d. Water & keep damp for approximately 10 days. Do not allow water to puddle or run.

2. New Yard, Bare Areas Caused by Shade, or No Existing Turf.
   a. Rototill soil to a depth of 1½"-2" in order to loosen soil. (Note: some new yards, that have just been prepared by the builder have enough loose soil on top that no tilling is needed.)
   b. Rake until a good level seed bed is prepared.
   c. Sow, seed, fertilzer, and water as above.
   NOTE: The Dixie Green is not meant to take the place of Tex-Turf 10 or any other Bermuda, however, since it is getting too late to have coverage with Bermuda, the "Dixie Green" will give a beautiful lawn this fall & winter, then Bermuda may be sprigged into "Dixie Green" next spring.

3. Mowing?
   "Dixie Green" should not require mowing for the period from Dec. 1st through March 1st, unless there is an extended period of unseasonably warm weather.

NOTICE! Do not confuse Dixie Green with other so-called shade tolerant or overseeding mixtures. "Dixie Green" is the registered trademark for the mixture of two award winning championship grasses. There is only one Dixie Green! It has been tested and proven all over the southern United States as well as this area of Texas and always comes out head and shoulders above all competition. Remember DO NOT ACCEPT SUBSTITUTES!

Labor Reps Condemn Nuclear Plants At Rally

By MARILYN HOLMES
A-J Correspondent

CARLSBAD — United Steelworkers of America labor representatives were among the first of several national speakers arriving here Friday to participate in an anti-nuclear rally this weekend.

A large crowd is expected to protest the proposed Waste Isolation Project Plant (WIPP) — an underground nuclear waste storage site to be located near here.

Mike Olszanski, chairman of the Indiana Harbor, Ind. Local 1010 Environmental Committee, and Cliff Mezo, vice chairman, said their organization was the first local to come out against nuclear power.

"We did not come here to tell people what to do in their own backyard," Olszanski said during a press conference Friday, but he labeled the proposed nuclear waste storage site to be located near Carlsbad as a 'dangerous' proposal.

"Why are we here? We've been through a lot of these processes in the past," he said. "The issue here is credibility. What has the record been like in the past? Corporations lie consistently. The government lies. We've had experience with that."

The labor spokesman said that the Department of Energy cannot guarantee that the proposed burial of nuclear waste in underground salt beds near Carlsbad will be safe.

The two labor representatives cited incidents of unsafe practices at existing nuclear power plants, where they said officials attempted to try to cover up problems.

Mezo also accused the government of forcing the project on an area with a large Chicano minority population which supposedly would not fight back.

The village of Loving, which is 85 per cent Hispanic, is 17 miles away from where the government wants to locate the nuclear dump site.

Olszanski commented that in his district, with 120,000 steelworkers represented, a unanimous resolution was passed calling for a halt to nuclear power in favor of developing safer energy alternatives.

He admitted that many labor representatives at first supported nuclear power, although "more now are changing that position" as information is gathered, he said.

"The labor movement was lied to and misled," Olszanski said.

He emphasized that many of the promised jobs associated with establishing the WIPP site at Carlsbad would go to "outside people, white people."

Olszankski said the nuclear industry was "promising a lot of jobs that are not going to materialize."

He cited a report compiled by the U.S. House Committee on Government Operations stating that costs of nuclear power are far more expensive to the consumer than was originally projected.

The report favored solar energy development, while mentioning that far more jobs would be provided with this alternative than with nuclear energy, Olszankski said.

The Indiana labor representatives accused corporations of blocking solar development because, in the long run, it would be much cheaper to the consumer.

"It is a question of profits versus people," Olszanski said.

Charles Van Dolsen, a representative of the local Carlsbad Steelworkers Union, said labor organizations were lied to when the government first proposed a pilot project for the area.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR SEP. 29, 1979

PHYSICAL
Criticals:	10, 21, 33, 44, 56, 67	Ease up, slow down
Highs:	11-20, 34-43, 57-66	You have strength today
Lows:	1-9, 22-32, 45-55, 68-75	Overexertion not for you
EMOTIONAL
Criticals:	7, 21, 35, 49, 63, 77	Overly defensive
Highs:	8-20, 36-48, 64-76	Can be a trend easily
Lows:	1-6, 22-34, 50-62, 78-85	An introverted day
INTELLECTUAL
Criticals:	17, 33, 50, 66, 83	Anxiousness may prevail
Highs:	18-32, 51-65, 84-95	Count on your mind
Lows:	1-16, 34-49, 67-82	Hard to concentrate

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.

25 Persons Die In Austrian Hotel Fire

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Fire swept through a tourist-packed hotel before dawn Friday, filling it with poisonous fumes from burning plastic and killing 25 persons, authorities said. Among them were an American beauty queen and two other members of a U. S. tour group that had switched from another hotel at the last minute.

The dead Americans were identified as tour guide Ellen Wight, 24, of Bath, Maine, who was Miss Oklahoma in 1977, and Donald and Frances Fraser, an elderly couple from Kennebunk, Maine. Most of the other dead were believed to be Yugoslavs, returning from a pilgrimage to Poland's Roman Catholic shrine of the Black Madonna at Czestochowa, and tourists from elsewhere in Europe.

Eighteen other persons, 12 from the same Maine tour group, were hospitalized, mostly for treatment of smoke poisoning. None was in critical condition. Another American, Stephen Ransom, was listed as one of those hospitalized, but he told reporters he was staying at the hospital with his wife and was not in need of treatment.

The death toll was the worst in a fire in post-war Austria.

Authorities and eyewitnesses said the fire in the four-story Am Augarten Hotel erupted with an "explosion-like sound" shortly after 5 a.m. in the ground-floor reception area and swiftly spread to the upper floors through elevator shafts. The male receptionist on duty later was found dead.

Fire officials said most of those killed apparently were overcome in their sleep by fumes released by the burning of plastic floor and wall coverings.

An Interior Ministry official investigating the blaze said he traced the source of the fire to a wastepaper basket in a room used by hotel doorkeepers. He did not elaborate on the possible cause of the blaze.

Witnesses said dozens of panicked guests, trapped in their rooms, leaned or hung from their windows, screaming for help. City officials said Miss Wight jumped from her upper-floor window and later died of injuries from the fall.

Many of those who escaped said they were awakened by the sound of screams or fire engine sirens.

Ransom, 71, of Newcastle, Maine, said he and his wife opened their second-floor window and waved a flashlight so firemen could reach them with a ladder.

The intense blaze — it bent some of the steel rails in the elevator shafts — was brought under control within an hour by the 120 firemen and 30 trucks that responded. But firemen said they believed most of the victims were dead even before the fire engines arrived.

Dr. Wilhelm Holzabeck, a Vienna University forensic specialist, said it appeared that those who died probably never awakened. "They must have been unconscious after 10 to 20 breaths," he said. "The poisonous fumes and smoke gas ... led to rapid death without those affected ever becoming aware of the danger."

In Maine, Eva Wight, co-owner of the Wight Travel Agency, which organized the tour, and mother of the dead woman, said it was tragic chance that brought the group of 32 Americans to the Am Augarten.

"They were scheduled to stay in the Hotel Avis, which is also in Vienna, but for some reason they probably hooked up with another tour grop and went to this hotel where the fire was," she told a reporter. "It's just one of those things that can happen on a chartered tour."

Her husband, Carl Wight, 51, who was also on the two-week trip, was rescued by firemen uninjured. Most in the group were retired people from the Bath-Brunswick area.

Mrs. Wight said the tourists' travels had taken them through Switzerland, Venice and Austria. They left Innsbruck by bus for Vienna Thursday, and were scheduled to fly back to Maine Sunday night.

They spent Thursday night at Vienna's Prater amusement park.

Authorities said all 57 rooms of the medium-class Am Augarten were filled. Police said 106 persons were in the hotel at the time of the fire, including 90 guests.

Identification of the dead was made difficult by the loss of hotel registration records in the blaze.

The hospitalized Americans were identified by Viennese officials as William and Beulah Crosby; Albert and Marietta Parker; Ransom's wife, Ida; Constance and Eugene Coughlin; Dorothea Thurston; Melissa Fitzgerald; Iladek and Roland McIntosh, and Roberto Manson-Doyle. All were suffering from smoke poisoning except Manson-Doyle, who suffered a back injury.

Last Minute Change In Plans Ends In Tragedy

BATH, Maine (AP) — A last-minute change in plans took 32 Maine tourists to a hotel in Vienna, Austria, where a predawn fire killed three of the Americans and at least 22 other people Friday, the co-owner of the agency that arranged the tour said.

"They weren't supposed to stay in that hotel," said Eva Wight, whose daughter, a former beauty queen, and two other group members died.

Thirteen Maine residents were injured at the blaze at the Hotel Am Augarten. All 32 members of the group had been accounted for, authorities said.

"Some were couples, some single, but mostly middle-aged," Mrs. Wight said.

"They were scheduled to stay in the Hotel Avis which is also in Vienna, but for some reason they probably hooked up with another tour group and went to this hotel where the fire was," she added.

"It's just one of those things that can happen on a chartered tour. They also made a last-minute change of hotels for Innsbruck just before the group left here."

The dead were identified as Ellen Wight, 24, of Bath, the 1977 Miss Oklahoma, and Donald L. and Frances L. Fraser, who moved to Kennebunk from Marion, Mass., after their retirement last year.

The other participants in the ill-fated tour were mostly senior citizens from the Bath-Brunswick area, Mrs. Wight said. The group was led by Mrs. Wight's 51-year-old husband, Carl, who helps operate Wight Travel Service.

Americans hospitalized for smoke inhalation were identified by Viennese officials as William and Beulah Crosby, Albert and Marietta Parker, Ida and Stephen Ransom of Newcastle, Constance and Eugene Coughlin, Dorothea Tyrston, Melissa Fitzgerald, Iladek and Roland McIntosh and Roberto Manson-Doyle.

Mrs. Wight said the tourists' travels had taken them to Switzerland, Italy and Austria. They left Innsbruck by bus for Vienna on Thursday, and "the 27th was their first night in Vienna," she said. The group had been scheduled to fly back to Maine on Sunday night.

Doomed Trains Given Extended Stay On Track

By The Associated Press

Federal judges issued restraining orders Friday keeping four of Amtrak's five doomed trains on the rails beyond their scheduled Oct. 1 cancellation.

In Wichita, Kan., U.S. District Judge Frank Theis said it appeared "there will be irreparable harm sustained by plaintiffs if the trains are to cease on Oct. 1."

His order covered the Lone Star, which runs from Chicago to Houston; the North Coast Hiawatha, which runs from Chicago to Seattle, and the Floridian, which runs from Chicago to Miami and St. Petersburg.

In Washington, the U.S. Court of Appeals issued an order blocking Amtrak from halting the National Limited from New York to Kansas City, Mo.

Amtrak spokesman Jim Bryant said attorneys were studying the order, which would keep the train running through Oct. 13.

Theis set a hearing on his order for Oct. 11 and said the temporary order would become effective Monday, the day the three trains were to be eliminated as part of Amtrak's reorganization plan eliminating 20 percent of the passenger railway's service nationwide.

The ruling came on a suit filed by Kansas Attorney General Robert Stephan. The suit claimed Amtrak failed to hold public hearings and did not file environmental impact statements before deciding to eliminate service.

In Washington, Amtrak said attorney Paul Mickey boarded a plane late Friday for Wichita in hopes of persuading Theis to withdraw his order. Mickey requested a Saturday court session to present his arguments but was told he would have to wait until Monday, Amtrak said.

Amtrak spokesman Brian Duff said all passengers who had reservations on all the trains had been notified that they would not run. At this point, however, he said Amtrak has to assume they will operate.

Aviation Chiefs Puzzled Over Runaway Mishap

LONDON (AP) — Aviation chiefs puzzled Friday over the riddle of a million-dollar plane whose crew of two apparently lay slumped at the controls while it drifted for seven hours in circles of doom across busy international air lanes.

It crashed in France instead of landing in Britain, killing both men and starting what British newspapers called the "Flying Coffin Mystery."

As pieced together from aviation authorities on both sides of the English Channel, here is what happened:

The plane took off from Stansted Airport, 40 miles northeast of London, on Tuesday and when it failed to make its scheduled landing at 4 p.M. At Exeter in the west of England, the alarm was raised.

Radio calls to the plane went unanswered.

British Royal Air Force and French Air Force jets sped aloft to try to intercept the runaway. They flew close alongside and reported seeing the two men aboard motionless at the controls. There was nothing the British and French pilots could do to rescue them or help the spiralling plane.

Traffic controllers on both sides of the Channel warned other aircraft and monitored the plane's spirals—circles that all too obviously would end in death and destruction, and possibly even a major disaster were it to crash into a town.

It eventually crashed in a meadow near Nantes, France, a city of some 200,000 people.

Killed were Tom Lampitt, 48, a top British pilot, and Capt. Fausto Aguiar de Barros Zella of Sacavem, Portugal. Lampitt was demonstrating the plane and giving instruction in its high-altitude capabilities.

A veteran British government engineering inspector, Les Shaddic, was taking part in the official French inquiry into the crash, which occurred after the plane, apparently flying on automatic pilot, ran out of fuel over Brittany.

The plane was an American-built twin-engined Beechcraft Super King Air 200 turbo-prop, which has military and civilian uses and is flown by the U.S. Air Force and U.S. Army.

"We just do not know what happened," Ian Duncan, a spokesman for Britain's Department of Trade, told The Associated Press.

He declined to comment on a theory that the two men may have lost consciousness because of a loss of oxygen. This could have been caused by a failure in the plane's pressurization system, and emergency oxygen, for some reason, was not used.

Lampitt's widow Barbara, left with two children, Wendy 18, and Paul 15, said: "We can only assume something went wrong with the aircraft, like pressurization problems, but we shall have to wait along with everyone else for the results of the official inquiry."

The plane was owned by Eagle Aircraft of Leavesden, 20 miles northwest of London. Eagle had asked Lampitt, who used to work for them and who was on vacation from his post as an inspector with the British Civil Aviation Authority, to give high-altitude instruction to the Portuguese.

RESPECT PROGRAM LAUNCHED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Catholic Conference says Roman Catholics in some 18,000 parishes across the country will launch the church's annual "Respect Life" program on Oct. 7 — the day that Pope John Paul II is scheduled to say Mass in the nation's capital. The program was developed by the National Council of Catholic Bishops in response to pro-abortion efforts "and other threats to human life."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to arrange your plans so that you can conduct future affairs in good order. Think in terms of the expansion you wish to make and forget negative responses of the past.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Carefully study your surroundings and waste no time in making improvements. Be more optimistic about the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have fine ideas for improving the quality of your life so follow through. A day when you can cultivate new acquaintances.

GEMINI (May 31 to June 21) Handle regular chores in the morning so you'll have more time for social activities later. Good day for self-improvement projects.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to come to fine accord with your mate and life will be happier. Not a day for delving into civic activities.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Waste no time in attending to chores that must be done. A wiser attitude toward mate brings excellent results at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good day for having personal enjoyment even though you may have to spend more money than you want to part with.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you don't maintain poise at home this weekend unpleasant arguments could result. Take time to engage in favorite hobby.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You can easily obtain the information you need now to advance in career activities. Avoid one who is a pain in the neck.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle financial matters early in the day and then turn your attention to other affairs. Be more willing to cooperate with others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Know what your goals are for the future and take initial steps in the right direction. Outside contacts are important now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make long-range plans to live a more inspiring life. A good adviser could give you fine ideas. Take time to confer with this person.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Consult an influential person and get the advice you need for a new project you have in mind. Finish one thing at a time.

IF YOU CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be able to take autority of any assignment and carry through to a successful conclusion. Teach to work along harmonious lines instead of forceful ones and much success will follow. Don't neglect ethical teachings.

Hall Of Fame Inductee To Be Honored At Tech

Harry Montgomery, editor of Texas Tech's first student newspaper, "The Toreador," will be posthumously inducted into the Texas Tech Mass Communications Hall of Fame as a major highlight of Mass Communications Week in February of next year.

Mass communications chairman Billy I. Ross announced Montgomery's selection Thursday.

Pauline Montgomery, his widow, will be invited to attend the induction ceremony at a noon luncheon on Feb. 22, 1980.

Montgomery was associate publisher of "The Arizona Republic" and "The Phoenix Gazette," newspapers he served for 24 years. The two newspapers are the largest in Arizona. When he retired in June 1971, he ended a journalistic career that lasted almost half a century. Montgomery died Jan. 19, 1979, at the age of 76.

Before he settled in Arizona, his journalistic work included stints with the Associated Press in Texas, Minnesota, North and South Dakota and the Arizona Newspaper Association.

Montgomery received awards from the University of Arizona, Northern Arizona University and the Arizona Newspaper Association. He also was one of the few journalists selected to cover the first atomic explosion at Alamagordo, N.M.

When Texas Technological College opened in 1925, Montgomery made an agreement with Paul Horn, the president, to publish the official newspaper, the "Toreador." He became editor of what is now "The University Daily." Montgomery also became Texas Tech's first public relations director.

To qualify for induction into the Mass Communications Hall of Fame, nominees must be alumni who have distinguished themselves in the field of mass communications or persons who have specifically aided the educational programs in mass communications at the university.

Montgomery was selected to receive the honor by the mass communications faculty, Student Advisory Committee and the Mass Communication Advisory Committee.

Past inductees include: Don Belding, 1973, national advertising agency executive; Joe H. Bryant, 1973, Lubbock radio and television broadcaster; Wallace E. Garets, 1974, former chairman of the journalism department at Texas Tech; C.W. Ratliff, 1975, Lubbock newspaper and television news editor and director; L.U. Kaiser, 1976, Houston direct mail and advertising executive; J. Culver Hill, 1977, Lubbock department store advertising director and marketing specialist; Wendell Mayes Jr., 1978, Austin radio broadcasting executive; and Wayne Sellers, 1979, Palestine "Herald-Press" publisher and editor and former president of the Texas Daily Newspaper Association.

Parents Sue Sheriff After Son's Death In County Jail

DETROIT (AP) — The parents of a 24-year-old man who died of a twisted bowel say sheriff's deputies at the Macomb County Jail deliberately ignored their son's pleas for medical help over a three-day span.

An attorney for the parents of Ronald Jacobs Jr. filed a $12 million lawsuit Thursday in U.S. District Court in Detroit. They said deputies at the jail north of Detroit showed "deliberate indifference" to Jacob's pleas. He began complaining of pain Aug. 7 and died three days later, said attorney George Michaels, who is representing the dead man's parents.

Michaels said Jacobs first was confined in an area of the jail know as "the hole." When he continued to complain, the suit alleges that guards hosed him down and gave him a laxative.

"The tragedy is that there's no reason for this death. This is Macomb County, not Dachau," said Michaels. "He could have been saved through simple surgery."

The suit asks $4 million in the death and $8 million in punitive damages. Macomb County Sheriff Bill Hackel was unavailable for comment. The case has been assigned to U.S. District Judge Robert DeMascio.

Jacobs was awaiting trial on a charge of second-degree criminal sexual conduct. He was arrested July 30.

EXPORT CAUCUS FORMED

WASHINGTON (AP) — Concern over what some lawmakers see as a declining American competitiveness in world trade has led to formation of the Senate Export Caucus on Capitol Hill. Founded by Sens. William Roth, R-Del., and Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., the caucus already claims 52 members of the 100-member Senate as members. Roth and Stevenson said they felt the caucus was necessary to ensure introduction and passage of legislation needed to strengthen the U.S. role in international trade. "Our international trade problems are simply not going to go away on their own," Roth said Friday. "Our exporters have been telling us for a long time what deep trouble we're in — it's high time we listened — and acted."

Lecturer To Compare Tech Versus Harvard

Dean K. Whitla, visiting lecturer from Harvard University, will discuss the topic, "Texas Tech versus Harvard: Personal Growth, Intellectual Mastery, Football — Who is the Winner?"

Sponsored by the College of Education at Texas Tech University, the lecture is open to all interested students, faculty and public at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Coronado Room of the University Center.

"His presentation will be interesting, informative and entertaining, said Tech's education dean Robert H. Anderson, who announced plans for the Harvard professor's visit. "It is our hope that as many city and area school people as nation's greatest educators.

In addition to his lecture, Whitla will meet with the Jones Fellows in a seminar. The Jones Fellows are doctoral candidates in the College of Education who are supported by a grant from Lubbock benefactor Helen DeVitt Jones. Following the seminar Whitla will confer with college faculty on the "Value Added Project," which consists of a comparative study of freshman and senior students. Tests will be given to both groups to ascertain which aspects of the undergraduate experience contribute to young people's development in intellect, problem-solving, morals and social skills, as well as creative imagination.

At Harvard Whitla is director of the Office of Instructional Research and Evaluation, lecturer on education and psychology and social relations, associate director of admissions at Harvard and Radcliffe College and director of the Harvard-Danforth Center for Teaching and Learning.

Whitla received the bachelor of science degree in 1949, master of arts in 1950 and Ph.D. in 1957, all from the University of Nebraska.

Whitla has written numerous papers on education, including effects of tests on students, admissions to colleges and encounters with learning.

He also has written handbooks dealing with introducing, improving and maintaining innovative science activities at the elementary level, social studies tests, and the role of the college board.

Prof Predicts Expansion In Governmental Accounting

With government's rapid growth and increasing indebtedness, Dr. Robert J. Freeman foresees a "career explosion" in the expanding new area of governmental accounting.

"Governmental accounting is clearly one of the fastest growing fields and is just now being recognized," said Freeman, distinguished professor of accounting at Texas Tech University.

"There is a push for government to be more efficient and economical, to be managed in a more business-like manner."

Recently named distinguished professor, Freeman is internationally known for his work in governmental accounting. This field encompasses financial management, accounting, reporting and auditing of the non-business sector, which includes both governmental and non-profit organizations.

Working primarily with state and local governments in an advisory capacity, Freeman assists clients in reporting and auditing financial records.

The professor served as consultant to the mayor and deputy mayor of New York City when it was experiencing severe financial difficulties.

At Texas Tech Freeman teaches an undergraduate course, "Public Sector Accounting." He is co-author of the leading text in that field. He also teaches a graduate seminar on that subject.

"My role is to establish Texas Tech, both in fact and in reputation, as a center of excellence in governmental accounting," he said. He plans to accomplish this through teaching and research.

Freeman enjoys volunteer work, he says, especially his work on the National Council on Governmental Accounting (NCGA). Consisting of 21 members from across the nation, NCGA sets standards for how state and local governments should do their reporting.

Freeman received the B.S. degree from Louisiana Tech University and MBA and Ph.D. from the University of Arkansas.

Prior to coming to Texas Tech, he taught at the University of Alabama.

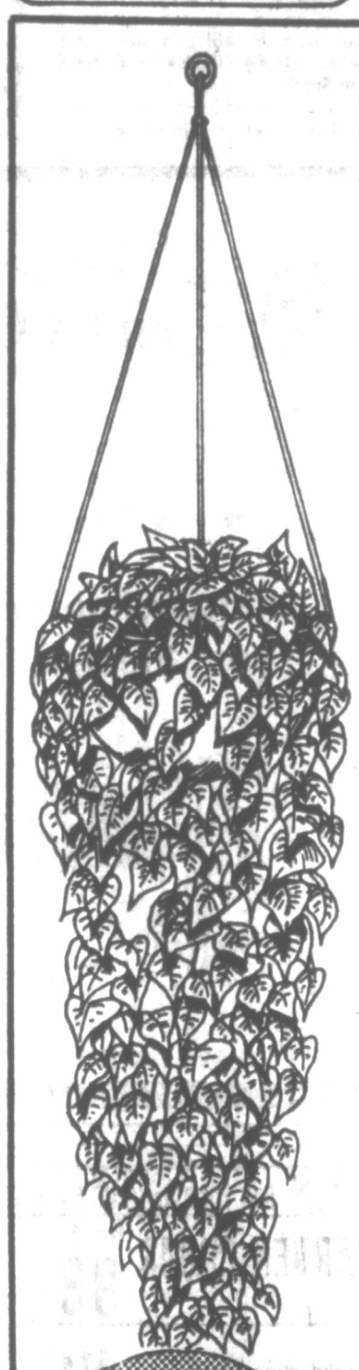

In 1976 Freeman resigned his position there to become a national partner of Arthur Young and Company in Chicago. Because of the time it took from his family and other interests, he decided to return to teaching, he said.

Gerhardus Mercator, a Flemish mapmaker of the 1500s, was the first person to name a book of maps an "atlas."

Sea Gardens Flourish At Connecticut Port

By EARL ARONSON
Associated Press Writer

The gardens at Mystic Museum Seaport in Connecticut flourish because they contain compatible plants, many introduced long ago by sea captains returning from distant voyages, and others resistant to sea-air damage.

"Every plant around the exhibits is there not to detract from the seaport displays but because it belongs there," says head gardener Louis Pellegrino, a retired navy submariner. Lou has been on the scene for 21 years and has done extensive research.

Pellegrino related that people coming from England in the colonial days brought packets of seeds to the port on the Mystic River.

"In 1687," he related, "the blacksmiths had plants near their forges and often exchanged cuttings with visitors.

"Of course, it is impossible to go back to some original flowers because hybridists have made so many improvements," he said.

But his largely organic gardening includes familiar marigolds, chrysanthemums, impatiens, red barberry ("they fit in with the old buildings and provide berries for birds") and hydrangeas ("that have been here for years and are excellent for dry arrangements.")

Pellegrino guided us to the Captains' Garden, with specimens of plants brought to Mystic by roving skippers. There was cryptomeria, a Japanese evergreen; snapdragons and daisies for color and cut flowers; zinnias, verbena, ornamental salvia ("the red variety that will grow in salty, foggy weather"), lilies and dahlias.

Other plants that do well, he said, were marguerite (chrysanthemum frutescens), mariner petunia and mock orange.

Our host, Bill North, also pointed out the hackmatack trees (larch) whose roots provided an L-shaped knee often used in the old days in the keep of wooden ships.

There were living memorials also, two big hollies, apple and hawthorne trees — honoring people who had helped the Seaport Museum spread beyond what was the site of the George Greenman & Co., Shipyard. The yard operated from 1837-1879, when the Mystic River community was an important whaling port.

There are old, finely maintained ships, including the square riggers Charles W. Morgan at Chubb's Wharf and Joseph Conrad off Seaport Street.

The Seaport's public exhibits focus on the building and preservation of wooden vessels, the work of maritime artists and craftsmen, and the impact of maritime commerce and industry on 19th-century life.

Volunteers check and change cut flowers and plants in the numerous museum buildings, prepare centerpieces of springbulb flowers, dogwoods and geraniums, and help with hanging baskets of fuchsia, scented geranium, Swedish ivy and begonias.

In his greenhouse, where he propagates plants and helps many through the rugged New England winter, Pellegrino displayed a red flowered Epiphyllum orchid cactus.

"I do some trading with the horticulture people at Cornell University," he confided. He prepares his own white-fly traps, pieces of yellow painted wood dipped in a moist adhesive. Yellow attracts insects.

He snipped a stem from a magnificent begonia, explaining he always does them by hand and that the clipping makes them bushy. He prefers starting them from seed.

Rex Allen Jr. Enjoys Environment At Fairs

REX ALLEN JR.

"I like playing concerts and fairs. That kind of environment is fun. I find clubs frightening, generally because people come to drink and be entertained — and in that order."

The speaker is Rex Allen Jr., slated to appear tonight at the South Plains Fair with George Lindsey and headliner Margo Smith (replacing Tammy Wynette, who cancelled due to illness). It is Allen's second trip into Lubbock, having opened for Ronnie Milsap at a Civic Center concert earlier this year, and he's looking forward to it.

"Gosh, the audiences in Lubbock were just unbelievable. The people are fantastic, just extremely receptive. They listen to what you're doing. I tell you, we're planning on doing a live aloum some time soon; and when we do, you can bet at least part of it will be recorded in Lubbock."

Allen, who recently fired his record producer, says he hopes to return to a simpler sound. Noting that The Statler Brothers are the top selling country group, he says he sees no need in having a large band on albums or stages. "You take your standard band," he said, "and then they want you to add strings and maybe four girl singers. All of a sudden you've got 26 people in the studio making the album, and there's no way you can recapture the sound with just the five-piece band on the road.

"Unfortunately, that's what Nashville thinks it takes to break into the pop and MOR markets. But that's not what I'm interested in."

Indeed, Rex Allen Jr. is a country entertainer, one who makes no bones about hoping for future Country Music Association Awards. In his mind, country fans are the most loyal around. ("They still come out to see Jeannie C. Riley, and she hasn't had a hit in years," he says.) As for awards, he thinks, "The people who don't like awards generally already have won a bunch of them. I think awards are recognition for a job well done, and I want as many as I can get.

"The more awards I can win, the prouder I'll be."

Rex Allen Jr. will be featured with comedian George Lindsey and singer Margo Smith in concert at 8 p.m. today at the Fair Park Coliseum at the South Plains fair. Tickets are still available.

Fair Displaying World Record Shark

By RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Paul Dirk, a saltwater game fisherman, is proud enough of the catch he made in July that he's spent more than $25,000 to show it to everyone possible.

What he says is the world's largest hammerhead shark is in a glass freezer-trailer near the merchants building at the Panhandle South Plains Fair with bait, hook and line still dangling from the 13-foot-one-inch-long carcass.

The female shark, estimated to be about 43 years old, weighed 749 pounds when Dirk pulled her out of the waters near Port Aransas.

Before Dirk made his unexpected catch in July, the previous world record for the largest hammerhead was 703 pounds, according to records of the International Game Fish Association.

However, said Dirk, "Our state record is bigger than the world record, because until recently IGFA did not recognize the hammerhead as a game fish.

"A friend of mine caught one 14 feet 5 inches long, and the next year IGFA accepted it (hammerhead sharks) as a game fish."

Dirk fought with his gigantic catch 4 1/2 hours with a large rod and reel beginning at 3 a.m. that July morning, when she snagged up some shark meat Dirk had dunked as bait in five feet of water.

"I was shark fishing, I just didn't know it was going to be that big," he said.

After making the catch, the fisherman placed the live fish in a blast freezer used for freezing shrimp at 180 degrees below zero.

"Six hours later, it was as hard as a rock," he said.

Dirk had bought the trailer the fish is exhibited in now to put a large tiger shark on display this summer, but instead decided to show his record-breaking hammerhead.

"I told eight to 10 guys we were going to take the shark out of the blast freezer and load her in here when the boat came in, and when I got there we had so much help everybody was in the way," he said.

The shark is bolted onto the trailer to keep the heavy carcass from slidingthrough the six layers of glass that cost the fisherman $4,000.

The Kansas native said he only plans to show the fish about six months because the freezer draws moisture from the body inside the glass shell. Already the large carcass has begun shriveling.

The highlight of the exhibition period will be the Chicago Boat Show in November. But Dirk said that the attention his catch is drawing probably will pay for the initial cost of the trailer after three more shows.

Dirk, who says he knows where "not to go" when hunting shark, explained that sharks fight on top of the water, and that they're "as agile as a snake."

The fisherman has been chartering fishing trips five years and already is booked two years in advance. His season runs from mid-May to Labor Day and during the winter Dirk usually works as a concrete contractor.

"But I sold out my concrete company for this," he said, waving toward his exhibit.

The people that catch the fish on Dirk's boat usually eat the shark, he said. And, he adds, most people eat shark anyway, without knowing it. Ninety-five percent of scallops are made of shark or stingray today because scallops, a hard-shell fish, are rare, he said.

Showing fish is new to Dirk, who said his only problems on the fair trek was being placed between two side shows on the midway at Abilene and his freezer being unplugged.

"When I was in Abilene I was booked with a carnival," he said, "I couldn't understand why no one was coming in, and then I realized I wouldn't believe the shark was real either."

Kennedy Supporters Will Open Office

HOUSTON (AP) — Backers of Sen. Edward Kennedy for the Democratic presidential nomination plan to open a Houston office Monday.

John O'Sullivan, head of the group, said the Texas Gulf Coast for Kennedy campaign has established a working relationship with the National Clearinghouse for a Democratic Alternative in 1980, the national draft Kennedy effort.

O'Sullivan made the announcement Thursday before the Houston Democratic Lunch Bunch.

Louise Cadell, San Antonio member of the Texas Democratic Executive Committee, said a statewide meeting will be held Nov. 10 in Austin to decide how to set up a Texas organization to function until Kennedy announces he will seek the nomination.

RECORD EMPLOYMENT

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas has a new record size civilian labor force of 6,287,300, the Texas Employment Commission reported Friday. The influence of summer workers caused a climb of one percent from June to July, the TEC said, and the July figure was 196,800 over July 1978. Meanwhile, unemployment declined by 19,200 from a year ago to a July level of 296,400. The Texas unemployment rate for the month was 4.7 percent compared to 4.8 cent in June and 5.2 percent a year ago.

Synthetic Fuels Not Answer, Says Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Synthetic fuels may provide some help, but will most likely not become the major alternative to U.S. dependence on foreign oil, a congressional report said Friday.

The study said the country should go slow on developing synthetic fuels until it becomes clear which method of producing them will work.

Synthetic fuels are most often defined as oil and gas extracted from coal, and oil shale and tar soil, found mostly in Montana, Colorado, Wyoming and other western states.

In July, President Carter proposed an $88 billion synthetic fuels program which he said would produce the equivalent of 2.5 million barrels of oil per day by 1990.

The president has since said he would accept a much smaller $20 billion effort that will soon be approved by the Senate Energy Committee.

The committee was expected to finish work on the proposal next Tuesday. The panel tentatively agreed Friday to permit the government to buy as many as three synthetic fuel plants, to be operated by private contractors.

The report prepared by a Senate Budget subcommittee on synthetic fuels said of the president's initial proposal, "this large an oil import reduction plan using expensive synthetic fuels is not justified on ... economic grounds."

Instead, the report indicated that greater emphasis should be placed upon conservation by home owners and businesses, combined with a quick conversion of many industrial plants and utilities to coal instead of oil.

By 1990, the report said, an intensive coal conversion and conservation scheme would save 5.5 million barrels of imported oil daily.

An additional 2.4 million barrels per day would be saved when oil prices are completely decontrolled, the report said.

In contrast, the synthetic fuels meaure now bfore the Senate Energy Committee is designed to produce the equivalent of 1.5 million barrels of oil by 1995.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., the chairman of the subcommitee which prepared the report, said he is opposed to Carter's proposal to establish an Energy Security Corp. as an independent financing agency to decide how the $20 billion will be spent.

However, Hart said at a news conference that the question is not whether to develop synthetic fuels. "The question is how to do it, how fast and at what cost," he said.

Hart said the study shows that Carter's initial "crash program" won't work.

His subcommittee's study was prepared on the basis of research done by three private consulting firms and the Congressional Budget Office.

Canada To Curtail Oil Exports

NEW YORK (AP) — Canada will virtually eliminate exports of high-quality light crude oil to the United States in November and December to help avoid a heating oil shortage at home, an oil industry source said Friday.

But the source said the cutoff was not expected to cause hardships in the northern Midwest, the destination of most Canadian oil shipments.

Canada, which supplies 4 percent of U.S. oil imports, announced earlier this month that it would reduce light crude shipments to the United States from 55,000 barrels a day to 14,000 barrels a day in October. A barrel contains 42 gallons.

On Friday, a spokesman for a major U.S. oil company said it had received unofficial but strong indications the shipments would be cut to a token 50 barrels a day by November.

"It's about as official as it can be," said the spokesman, who asked not to be quoted by name.

Burial will be in Lorenzo Cemetery under direction of Rix Funeral Directors.

Rainwater was pronounced dead on arrival at West Texas Hospital in Lubbock after becoming ill at his home shortly after 3 p.m. Wednesday.

Rainwater was born in Anson and lived in Ralls from 1929 until 1954, when he moved to Bailey County for a year. In 1955 he moved to Idalou, later serving as chief of police there. He was married to Viola Hale in Brownfield on Dec. 21, 1929. He was a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include two sons, Lee of Big Spring and Granville with the U.S. Navy in San Diego, Calif.; one brother, N.J. of Lubbock; two sisters, Beulah Wood of Idalou and Lottie Young of Anson; and two grandsons.

Pallbearers will be Albert Smyer, Monty McRea, Ronnie Stanton, BillSkirlock, Caddo Magica and A.W. Nelson.

Dorothy Shipman

ABERNATHY (Special) — Services for Mrs. Floyd (Dorothy) Shipman, 74, of Abernathy are pending with Chambers Funeral Home here.

Mrs. Shipman died at 4 p.m. Friday at Hi-Plains Hospital in Hale Center after a lengthy illness.

She was a native of Green Castle, Mo., moving to Plainview in 1910. She moved to Abernathy in 1957.

A member of the Nazarene Church, Mrs. Shipman also was a member of the Sunshine Club and The Garden Club.

Survivors include her husband; two daughters, Mrs. Jim Blagg of Lubbock and Mrs. Wanda Welch of Lockney; two sons, Gene Bloys of Floydada and Billy Bloys of Plainview; 10 grandchildren; 13 great-grandchildren and eight stepgreat-grandchildren.

Hal Spencer

Services are pending with Sanders Funeral Home for Hal P. Spencer, 81, of 2214 27th St.

Spencer died Friday morning at his residence. Justice of the Peace L. J. Blalack ruled the death was due to natural causes.

Spencer moved to Lubbock from Honolulu, Hawaii, in 1949. He was an engineer at Reese Air Force Base until his retirement several years ago. Spencer was retired from the Army with the rank of major, and had served with the Marines in World War I and with the Army in World War II.

He received a citation from the French government for his World War I service.

Survivors include his wife, Mary; a daughter, Carol Jean Wolcott of San Diego, Calif.; five sisters and two grandsons.

The family suggests memorials to St. John's Methodist Church or to a favorite charity.

MELVIN EDWARDS

MARGARET EDWARDS

Services Set Today For Mishap Victims

Requiem Eucharist for Melvin B. Edwards, 55, of 2117 67th St. and his wife, Margaret Lee Edwards, 53, will be at 3:30 p.m. today at St. Christopher's Episcopal Church with the Rev. Robert Granfeldt, vicar, officiating.

Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Henderson-Singleton Funeral Home.

The couple's bodies were found at 3:30 p.m. Thursday after a one-car accident Wednesday night on Interstate 10, six miles south of Comfort.

Justice of the Peace Bernard Steiler of Comfort pronounced the two dead at the scene.

According to Department of Public Safety reports, the Edwards were traveling south on the interstate when their car left the roadway going into a curve and hit the center median. The car went over a rail and fell between two bridges into a 30-foot concrete ravine.

Edwards served as executive secretary of the Southwest Chapter of the Electrical Apparatus Service Association. He and his wife were traveling to the association's fall convention in Corpus Christi when the accident occurred.

The couple was married May 20, 1958, in Amarillo. Mrs. Edwards was the former Margaret Lee Gore.

They moved to Lubbock from Amarillo in December 1960 and were members of the Church of the Holy Cross Mission here.

Edwards was a native of Stamford and was employed in Lubbock as district claims manager for Trinity Universal Insurance Co. He was a 32nd degree Mason and a Shriner. He was a World War II Army veteran, serving in the 517th Parachute Infantry Regiment, Company D, 2nd Battalion.

Mrs. Edwards was a native of Sapulpa, Okla., and was a PBX operator at Community Hospital.

The couple is survived by two daughters, Kelly and Pennee, both of Lubbock.

Edwards is also survived by his father, Dick of Stamford; two sisters, Charlsie Underwood of Anchorage, Alaska, and Betty Secker of Dallas; and a brother, Wayne of Dumas.

Mrs. Edwards is also survived by her father, V.J. Gore of Ponca City, Okla.; her mother, Gertrude Holman of Lubbock; and a brother, John Gore of Ponca City.

Funeral Services Set Today For Former Finance Director

Services for Sterling Miller, 46, of 4903 15th St., the City of Lubbock's finance director for the past 14 years, will be at 2 p.m. today in the sanctuary of the First United Methodist Church.

Dr. Samuel P. Auslam, director of the council on professional ministry of the Northwest Texas Conference of United Methodist Churches will officiate. He will be assisted by the Rev. J. Waid Griffin, associate minister of First United Methodist Church.

Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Franklin-Bartley Funeral Home.

Miller died Thursday at 9 p.m. in Methodist Hospital following an apparent heart attack. He reportedly had been working in his yard when he collapsed. EMS attendants brought him to the hospital at 8:20 p.m.

The Santa Fe, N.M., native was hired as internal auditor for the City of Lubbock on Feb. 25, 1958, and was promoted to director of finance in June 1965. Prior to working for the city, he had served in the Air Force.

Miller was a member of the board of trustees for the Texas Municipal Retirement System. He was appointed to that board by the governor in 1972. He was an officer in the Texas Municipal Finance Officers Association and had received an award from that group for outstanding financial reporting.

Miller also was treasurer for the Lubbock Firemen's Relief and Retirement Fund.

Mayor Dirk West said late Thursday that the city had lost one of the finest persons in municipal financing in the country.

"He did an outstanding job," West said. "We'll miss him very much."

City Manager Larry Cunningham, who had worked with Miller for the past 13 years, said that he was shocked and extremely saddened by Miller's death. It's as great loss to city government and this community," Cunningham said.

Cunningham called Miller "a financial wizard" and termed him "one of the top people in his field in the state."

Through the vigorous investment program he developed in the late 1960s, roughly 98 of every 100 dollars received by the city is now invested to earn maximum interest, according to Cunningham.

Cunningham said Miller obtained improvements in benefit programs through the statewide municipal retirement system and brought about a 400 per cent increase in the interest paid on employees' contributions into the retirement program.

He was a member of the First United Methodist Church here, and a 1955 graduate of Texas Tech.

He married Mavis Fluke Jan. 30, 1954 in Lubbock.

He had lived in Lubbock since moving here from Santa Fe, N.M. in 1946.

Survivors include his wife Mavis; a son, Sterling Jr. of Lubbock; three daughters, Rebecca and Deborah and Teresa Oppermann, all of Lubbock; a brother, Robert of St. Louis; and one grandchild.

Pallbearers will be Larry Cunningham, Jim Blagg, John Brooks, Charles Northington, Jim Bertram, Tom Foster, Rod Bouffard, Willie Watson, Vaughn Hendrie and Sam Wahl.

Honorary pallbearers will be members of the Texas Municipal Retirement System Board and Staff.

AFL-CIO President George Meany To Retire

MEANY THROUGH THE YEARS — George Meany, 85, founder of the AFL-CIO and its president for the past quarter-century, is retiring this fall, it was announced Friday. From left, Meany is shown as treasurer of the AFL in October 1941; as president of the then newly formed AFL-CIO in December, 1955; appearing on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" in September, 1970; and on NBC-TV's "Today" show in January, 1978. (AP Laserphoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — An ailing 85-year-old George Meany, the undisputed patriarch of the American labor movement for the past quarter-century, announced Friday he is retiring as AFL-CIO president in November.

Meany, whose gruff voice has counseled and chastised eight American presidents, has been in failing health since April, and his retirement had been expected within the labor movement.

His decision was relayed to reporters by AFL-CIO Secretary-Treasurer Lane Kirkland, 57, who is considered a virtual certainty to succeed Meany as president of the powerful 14-million-member federation at its convention in mid-November.

Kirkland announced Meany's decision after emerging from a special session of the AFL-CIO executive council, which unanimously endorsed an accord with President Carter on a new voluntary wage-price guidelines program that organized labor will help shape.

Although a sharp contrast to Meany in style, the scholarly, soft-spoken Kirkland is the AFL-CIO president's alter ego on policy and is expected to pursue the federation's liberal positions on domestic issues and conservative stances on foreign policy.

Kirkland, who has been the AFL-CIO's No. 2 man for the past decade and Meany's personal choice as successor, told reporters of Meany's decision at a news conference called to announce the agreement with Carter. Kirkland said Meany telephoned him Thursday night with his decision, but gave no reason.

Asked if he intended to seek Meany's job in November, Kirkland, a former merchant mariner from South Carolina, said, "Yes."

Union leaders who sit on AFL-CIO executive council said they were not surprised to learn of Meany's decision. They also said Kirkland seemed assured of election to a two-year term.

Meany, who had been scheduled to preside over the council meeting Friday, remained at home with a minor ailment, aides said.

Immediately after his retirement was announced, praise poured in from both friends and longtime antagonists.

"George Meanny has given unparalleled service to the nation and its working people," said Labor Secretary Ray Marshall. "The American people owe him a great debt of gratitude."

R. Heath Larry, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said he and Meany have had many differences, "but these were always articulated openly and with rectitude. We salute him and wish him well."

Meany was a principal figure in the merger of the AFL and CIO in 1955, and has served as its first and only president for the past 24 years.

As the autocratic head of the federation, the cigar-smoking, onetime Bronx plumber has been the most dominant force in organized labor. In that role, he emerged as one of the most influential and durable shapers of American economic, foreign and social policy. His post also made Meany a principal factor in the selection of Democratic presidential candidate.

Since he spring, however, Meany has been slowed by the twin afflictions of advancing age and frail health, although aides said his mental faculties remain sharp.

Meany has not made a public appearance in five months and has visited his office only occasionally since April because of a painful arthritic hip forced him into a wheelchair.

There has been speculation for the past decade that "Mr. Labor" would retire, but the rumors took on new seriousness in March, when Meany's wife of 59 years, Eugenie, died and he was hospitalized briefly for a recurrence of a chronic bronchial condition.

In mid-April, Meany injured his leg in a golfing accident while vacationing in Palm Springs, Calif., and was hospitalized. A stay there caused his arthritic hip to act up again.

"It's not that he's in such bad physical condition," said Ernest Lee, Meany's son-in-law and an AFL-CIO official. "It's just that he recognized that the job requires enormous physical energies" that he no longer has, Lee said.

Lee said Meany made up his mind on his own — without any pressure from anyone else.

Increasingly in recent years, Meany's critics in the labor movement have been calling on him to retire. They said the job should be turned over to a younger man who could refurbish organized labor's "old-man" image.

But Meany spurned those retirment calls, retorting that he would step down when he was good and ready.

At his last formal news conference in February, he was asked whether he was thinking about retiring.

"I'm thinking about it all the time," he snapped. "I've been thinking about it for a number of years. I'll keep thinking about it — for a number of years."

Meany was born Aug. 16, 1894 in the Harlem section of New York City to a large family of devout Irish Roman Catholics. He followed in his father's footsteps as both a plumber and union activist.

He became president of the New York Federation of Labor in 1934, and was subsequently elected secretary-treasurer of the old American Federation of Labor.

A member of the War Labor Board during World War II, Meany became president of the AFL in 1952.

Three years later, on Dec. 5, 1955, Meany was unanimously elected president of the just-formed AFL-CIO. He was elected to 11 subsequent terms, all without opposition.

Meany has advised presidents since Franklin D. Roosevelt lived in the White House, and he was never one to mince his words or actions when he was unhappy with the nation's chief executive.

In 1971, Meany agreed to serve on a pay board under the Nixon administration's mandatory wage-price controls program, only to quit the panel six months later, charging the program was pro-business.

But a year later, Meany helped insure Richard M. Nixon's re-election over George McGovern when, in a controversial move, he kept his federation neutral in the race.

George Meany Praised By Friends, Enemies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Old allies saluted George Meany Friday as one of the great men of his times — and old antagonists called him a forthright, worthy spokesmen for what he believed.

Vice President Walter Mondale hailed Meany as a fighter for decency, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall called him a friend of all working people and R. Heath Larry, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, praised his well-known bluntness.

The occasion was the 85-year-old Meany's announcement that, after 24 years as founding president of the AFL-CIO, he would step aside in November.

"There was never any question of where he stood on an issue," said Larry. And there was never any question of his own belief that the positions he took were supportive of the national interest. We have had many differences, but these were always articulated openly and with rectitude."

Mondale, with long ties to the labor movement, said Meany's name "has been synonymous with decency, social justice and the dignity of American workers.

"Under his leadership, the AFL-CIO has fought for all the progressive causes that make our nation great," the vice president said. "I'm sure that in his retirement, George Meany will continue to be a voice for fairness and freedom."

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said Meany fought for justice for the 14 million trade union people he led but also "insisted, with equal vigor, that all people have the opportunity to live fuller, more rewarding lives."

On Capitol Hill, a leading Republican conservative, Rep. Robert Bauman of Maryland, said, "I didn't often agree with the man but he is a staunch anti-communist and I certainly agree with that."

Rep. Thomas Foley of Washington, chairman of the House Democratic Caucus, called Meany "one of the great leaders of our time." He added: "He has stood for freedom and expanding opportunity not only for Americans but for people throughout the world."

Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, said, "It's hard to think of a major legislative victory for working people over the past several decades where you didn't see George Meany in the front, lending his leadership and authority."

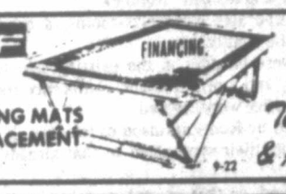

President Carter, whose relations with Meany were never close and sometimes stormy, mentioned Meany at a briefing on the creation of a pay board. He said Meany had "contributed with his heart and mind to the reaching of this agreement."

In Detroit, Douglas A. Fraser, president of the United Auto Workers, a union not in the AFL-CIO, said he was proud to have worked with Meany on common goals "even as we differed on some issues.

"Millions today are enjoying a better life because George Meany was there to fight the good fight for them," Fraser said. The UAW pulled out of the federation in 1968 because its leaders felt Meany was excessively conservative on some social issues.

CHURCH IN THE ROUND— All facets of the First Christian Church building in Brownfield is symbolic of the congregation's faith, beginning with the round shape and the outside walls and extending to the inner design. A new addition, full of its own symbols, will be dedicated at 3 p.m. Sunday.(Staff Photos)

New Addition To Church To Be Dedicated Sunday

(BROWNFIELD) — Garrett Hall, a $300,000 addition to First Christian Church in Brownfield, will be dedicated at 3 p.m. Sunday in honor of the church's longtime minister, Jack Garrett, and his wife, Robbie.

The 7,800-square foot building incorporates eight classrooms, a meeting hall for youth, and a kitchen. It doubles the facility size.

Included in the new construction were changes in the existing structure. Eight seats were added to the sanctuary and a prayer room, conference room, enlarged choir room and Sunday School office were created.

A series of 16 biblical symbols, carved by Rod Parkinson of Ruidoso, N.M., hang on one wall of Garrett Hall, adding their symbolism to that already incorporated into the original structure.

The church is round, Garrett explained, so that everything faces the communion table, center of First Christian belief.

Sixteen ceiling beams, representing the 16 prophets, converge on a circle of light, representing Jesus Christ, over the table with four lights representing the four gospels.

Stained glass in the baptistry window depict more symbolic images — the cross of salvation, the descending dove of baptism and the grapes and wheat for wine and bread of the Lord's Supper.

The window colors also are symbolic — green for life, brown for humility, gold for value and virtue, purple for royalty, white for purity, red for blood and sacrifice as well as zeal, yellow for wisdom and blue for faith and hope.

The building's symbols, Garrett explained, were incorporated by the architect at membership request that the church building represent the church philosophy.

Garrett added his own symbols.

"When you enter the door, you walk on earth I buried from Mount Zion where it all began and Kentucky where the revival movement began."

The new addition juts to the east, breaking the round image, but, Garrett noted, it holds to the concept by facing the sanctuary and the communion table in its center.

Garrett, who grew up in Cisco, attended Texas Christian and Brite Divinity School. He was pastor at Seminole and Wellington, then moved to East Texas for a time before coming to Brownfield more than 18 years ago. His wife is a teacher in the Brownfield schools.

Evangelist Slated As Guest Speaker

Evangelist Dale Freeman of Lubbock will be the guest preacher Sunday at First Baptist Church. He will preach at the 8:15 a.m., 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. services.

Freeman presently serves as associte evangelist for the Wayne Bristow Evangelistic Association and as staff evangelist for Highland Baptist Church.

Before coming to Lubbock, Freeman was a staff member with Youth for Christ International and was pastor in Southern Baptist churches in Idaho and North Dakota.

Recently Freeman accepted an invitation from the Southern Baptist Convention and Canada's United Baptist Convention of the Atlantic Provinces to preach a United Crusade in the Shelburne-Lockeport area of Nova Scotia.

Area Man To Attend Iowa Papal Mass

NAZARETH (Special) — Jerome Brockman, director of the National Catholic Rural Life Conference in the Amarillo Diocese, will be one of 150 persons to receive Holy Communion from the hands of Pope John Paul II at a field Mass in Des Moines, Iowa, Thursday.

Brockman is one of ten diocesan rural life directors in the country selected because he is actively engaged in farming while serving part-time as a permanent deacon, a recently restored ordained ministry in the Roman Catholic Church.

Pope John Paul II, like many Polish people, has an active interest in crop and livestock farming, and readily accepted the invitation of Bishop Maurice Dingman of Des Moines to conduct this special Mass during his U.S. visit.

Baptist Student Union To Add Staff

The Rev. Michael Lundy, director of the Baptist Student Union at Texas Tech University, has announced that Mark Dawson and Kathy Baum have joined the staff of the center.

Dawson, a graduate of the University of Texas at Austin, has been appointed mission coordinator. He will lead a study of mission responsibilities and coordinate local mission project participation by Baptist students.

Miss Baum, a graduate of Texas A&M University, has been appointed campus evangelism coordinator of the Baptist Student Union. She is involved in training and assisting students in on-campus visitation, witnessing and Bible study.

School Staff, Residents To Make Trip

This time last year, Lubbock State School staff members and residents began talking about a dream trip to California.

Beginning last winter, they started raising money with chili dinners, bake sales and rehabilitation cottage work. Then came car washes and community fund raising for the trip.

The money was finally raised, and Sunday the trip will become a reality.

Four chartered buses will leave at 2 p.m. Sunday with 120 state school residents and 69 sponsors, including school staff members and parents of residents, for visits to Disneyland, Knott's Berry Farm and Universal Studios.

The group will return to Lubbock Friday.

Temple To Observe 'Day Of Atonement'

Services Sunday night and Monday morning will mark the local observance by members of Temple Shaareth Israel of the Day of Atonement, Yom Kippur.

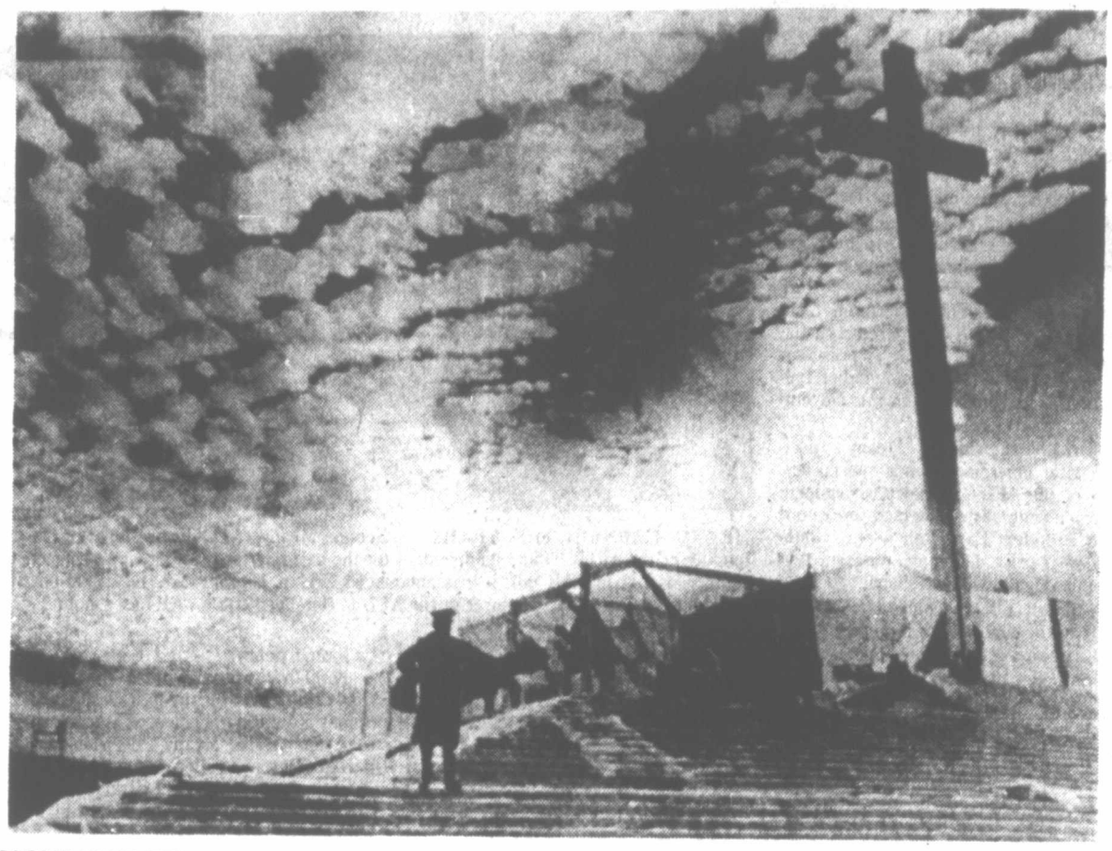

Yom Kippur is the holiest day of the year for Jews throughout the world. It is a period marked by penitence, prayer and fasting. The synagogue service begins with the chanting of the Kol Nidre, a prayer asking for God's forgiveness. A sounding of the shofar, or ram's horn, signifying a call to conscience, concludes the holy day observance.

DEATH TOLL HIGHER

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas traffic deaths are 4 percent above last year, the Department of Public Safety reported Friday. So far this year, there have been 2,865 deaths on Texas streets and highways, compared to 2,747 for the same period in 1978. There have been 2,490 accidents in which deaths occurred, the DPS said.

Dubliners Hurry To Greet John Paul II

DUBLIN PREPARES — A Dublin policeman stands watch at the alter in Phoenix Park, Dublin where Pope John Paul II will celebrate mass Sunday. The Irish government is planning extraordinary security precautions for the pope's visit. (AP Laserphoto)

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Breaking the habits of a languorous lifestyle, Dubliners by the hundreds of thousands headed out at the crack of dawn today to Phoenix Park to greet John Paul II, the first pope ever to visit Ireland.

The sun usually peeks over the horizon early in these northern latitudes, but Dubliners are seldom in a hurry to pop out after it.

What urged them onto the highways and to line up at the bus stops while the gulls were still laughing in the dark over Dublin Bay was the fact that police banned all traffic within a five-mile radius of the city center from 5 a.m., even though the pope's plane wasn't due at the airport until 10 a.m. and his big outdoor Mass was scheduled for noon.

In a city famous for its mid-morning sidewalk rush hour, with shop girls scurrying to work at stores that open as unpredictably as the pubs close, the early turnout of an expected million people in Europe's biggest park was evidence that Dublin would accord the pope an even greater welcome than President John F. Kennedy received in 1963.

"Bigger than the Eucharistic Congress in Phoenix Park in 1932," everyone who could remember that event kept telling you at every turn. One of the Dublin papers even resurrected a picture of what the crowds looked like way back then, when only a papal nuncio was the star attraction and neary a million jammed the soccer and hurling fields.

Like Boston, De Moines, Chicago and every place else on the pope's jet-paced, nine-day itinerary, "dear, dirty Dublin," as Brendan Behan called it, prettied itself up with papal flags and bunting and impromptu shrines in slum windows.

There were other peculiarly Irish decorations besides the Gaelic words "cead mile failte" — a hundred thousand welcomes — strung across the street along the routes of his motorcade. Pub keepers saw no disrespect in flanking a huge color photograph of a smiling pope with pyramids of whiskey bottles or Guinness stout cans in windows of their licensed premises, any more than the Zhivago discotheque sensed any insincerity in extending the 59 year old pontiff a cordial welcome.

Evident everywhere in the city was an intensely personal element in greeting the pope from Poland who preached "peace and reconciliation" after a decade of lingering and bloody religious strife in the North, even though few men thought he could bring it off.

"He might as well have ago at it, everyone else has but he better have a miracle in his flight bag to solve Ulster", shrugged a cab driver who had draped his meter in yellow and gold paper streamers and hung a notice to passengers on the back of his sun visor, "no weddings or funerals booked during the pope's visit".

Despite the pope's promised message of "peace and reconciliation" the program planners saw no contradiction in booking folk bands to warm up the crowds waiting for the pope in Phoenix Park with "rebel songs" that would cause a pub riot in the Protestant precincts of Belfast.

Many of th visitorsfrom the North would see the pope later in his first day at Drogheda, about 30 miles from the Ulster border, where the cause of reconciliation q would have to compete with parading the severed head of St. Oliver Plunket through the street, reminding the faithful that Ireland's most recently canonized saint had died for his faith at the hands of an English king 300 years ago.

No Irish high king, no football hero or pop star ever received the likes of the adulation that awaited John Paul II, who already in the past week of waiting had swelled the city's register of births with his chosen names.

At every Sunday Mass since his visit was announced two months ago, Ireland's Catholics had contributed to a special collection to defray the costs of preparations.

The sum stood at 1.5 million pounds, more than $3.2 million. But the bishops were still 400,000 pounds-around $860,000 — short of meeting the bills for altars, decorations, parking lots and whatever else was entailed in stagi a once-in-a-lifetime extravaganza without benefit of a box office.

Ulster Pilgrims Invade Ireland To See Pope

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — In a massive exodus under heavy security, thousands of Roman Catholic pilgrims streamed into Ireland from violence-torn Ulster Friday for the visit of Pope John Paul II beginning Saturday.

Officials in the British-ruled, Protestant-dominated North estimated 150,000 Catholics will cross the tightly guarded border during the pontiff's three-day visit, first ever to Ireland by a pope.

A shamrock-emblazoned Aer Lingus jumbo, named St. Patrick after Ireland's patron saint, was flown to Rome to bring the pope here Saturday. When it crosses into Irish air space the Boeing 747 will be met by a jet fighter escort at the start of one of the biggest security operations in the Irish Republic's history.

Papal fever was running high in this overwhelmingly Catholic country, its cities festooned with yellow and white Vatican flags and portraits of the Polish-born pontiff.

There has even been a run on the name John Paul at Dublin's maternity hospitals in the past week. One hospital said 12 boys have been given the pontiff's names in the past week alone.

With officials are expecting one million faithful to turn out for the papal Mass Saturday in Dublin's Phoenix Park, a turnout not seen here since a Eucharistic Congress Mass drew a similar number in 1932.

Starting at 5 a.m. Saturday, five hours before the pope's plane touches down at Dublin airport, all but essential traffic will be banned within a five-mile radius of the city center until 8 p.m.

The visit, preceding a week-long tour of six American cities, has deep spiritual and pastoral importance for Ireland but also is viewed as carrying profound political significance. Many members of Northern Ireland's million-strong Protestant majority see it as an endorsement of Ireland's claim to the British province in the North.

Pope John Paul had hoped to make a side trip to the North but ruled this out after the murder of Lord Louis Mountbatten, the British soldier-statesman, on Aug. 27. The killing was claimed by the "provisional wing" of the Irish Republican Army, an almost exclusively Catholic movement fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland and unite it with the South.

The pope has said he hopes his visit will contribute to, "reconciliation and mutual understanding" on the troubled island and he is expected to make a fervent plea for this during a stop Saturday in Drogheda, 30 miles south of the border.

Drogheda is the focal point for the Northern Irish pilgrims, many of whom will be camping in tents supplied by the British army.

There the pope will visit a shrine to St. Oliver Plunket, martyred in 1681 for alleged complicity in a "popish plot" against the Protestant crown. Plunket's head, kept under glass in the local church, will be taken out and carried through the streets in a procession to mark the pope's visit.

Officials have taken extraordinary precautions against any possible attempt by Protestant "loyalist" terrorists to retaliate for the Mountbatten killing.

Church To Begin Offering Mother's Day Off Program

Elgin Avenue Baptist Church will offer a Mother's Day Off program beginning Oct. 4, according to an announcement by Mrs. James F. Stratton, director of the program.

Mother's Day Off is open to any parent desiring care for children from birth to kindergarten age. The hours will be 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Persons wanting more information about this program may call Mrs. Stratton at 795-4718.

Native Chinese Evangelist Scheduled As Speaker

Very few people face a firing squad and live to tell about it. Chinese evangelist Nora Lam is one of those persons.

She grew up in Shanghai during the Japanese occupation of China. She was a university student during the time of the Communist take-over.

She refused to denounce her heritage and her Christianity and was taken before a firing squad.

She will describe her deliverance and the subsequent years of exile and hardship in a presentation Sunday at 6:30 p.m. at the Bethel Assembly of God Church, 36th St. and Ave. K.

THE STEEPLEJACK

Look closely . . . in this picture a man is risking his life!

An old and respected trade is his. It had its beginning centuries ago when Christianity first began to express its devotion in unique forms of architecture. How could Christians proclaim constantly their faith in Christ? How could they lift the eyes of others to behold the Lord of Life?

Soon, over gabled village roofs rose gleaming spires. And men who tilled the fields, and men who trod the lanes, rejoiced to behold the symbol of Faith.

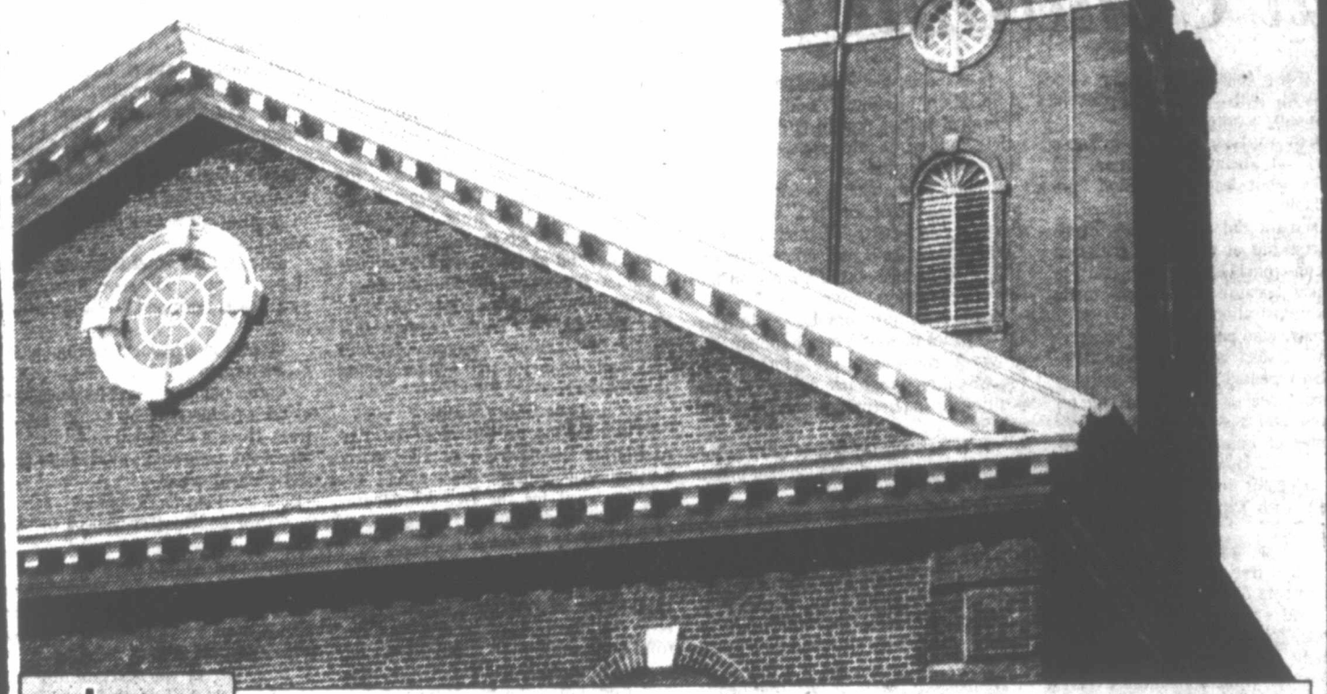

Then one day cities replaced villages . . . skyscrapers dwarfed the spires of God. And so, on the day this picture was taken, ten thousand people passed by and never raised their eyes. Only a few looked upward and thought in mild surprise, "Why, isn't that a man way up there on the steeple?"

Yes. A MAN. One of hundreds of millions whose skill and courage continue to be needed as the Church fulfills its mission.

Maybe your church doesn't have a steeple. But it has a task to challenge your skills . . . your courage.

Carter Asks Care For Illegal Aliens

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter told Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo on Friday that he is concerned about the treatment of Mexican workers who come illegally to the United States.

Lopez Portillo had promised a Mexican-American group that he would raise the issue with Carter.

White House spokesman Jerrold Schechter said Carter gave Lopez Portillo a copy of a letter he has written to governors in Southwestern states, urging them to protect the rights of "undocumented workers," even though they are in the country without permission.

Mexican-American groups have expressed fear that the workers are exploited by U.S. employers because they are afraid they will be deported if they go to police to protest abuses.

Third Summit Meeting

Schechter said the two presidents "had a good exchange" on the issue as they began their third summit meeting since 1977 with a one hour session at the White House.

At a state dinner Friday night, Lopez Portillo delivered a gentle lecture, warning the United States against "absurd solutions" to its energy crisis which "need no discipline."

His toast echoed the message administration officials say they have been getting from Mexico — that it will not increase production of its vast oil reserves to suit the demands of an energy-hungry United States.

Carter, in his toast, praised Lopez Portillo for the energy speech he gave at the United Nations Thursday and said that the "troubled and uncertain times between our two countries are gone forever."

Lopez Portillo At U.N.

The Mexican president arrived about 30 minutes late at Andrews Ar Force Bse in suburban Maryland. He had been in New York, addressing the U.N. General Assembly.

He was greeted by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance. The two men stood at attention on a red carpet as 21 guns roared a salute and a military band played their national anthems.

Then a motorcade took them to the White House, where Carter met Lopez Portillo, patting him on the back as they walked inside. Vice President Walter F. Mondale and national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski joined the meeting.

One issue on their agenda concerned the protests of Florida farmers that Mexico is "dumping" winter vegetables like tomatoes on the U.S. market, selling them below cost.

Issue More Sensitive

The issue has become more sensitive as Florida has emerged as a key early battleground between Carter and his possible rival for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

The farmers want the administration to get Mexico to agree either to limits on the number of vegetables it can export or to extra tariffs that will prevent them from undercutting the American market price. But Mexico, which sells $200 million worth of vegetables annually, has long pressed for fewer limits, rather than more, on its access to the U.S. market.

The two presidents did not discuss two other issues, Schechter said. One is the oil spill from a Mexican offshore well that damaged Texas beaches last month. Nor did they talk about the current crisis over Soviet troops in Cuba.

Vance and his Mexican counterpart, Jorge Castaneda, held a separate meeting at the State Department to discuss environmental issues, including the oil spill and charges by both countries about water pollution.

Mexico says the United States takes too much water from the Colorado River and that the water is salty by the time it reaches Mexico. The United States has complained about pollution in the New River, which flows into California.

The migration question is among the more sensitive problems in U.S.-Mexican relations.

The Mexicans are dependent on the ability of unemployed workers to cross the border and find seasonal or temporary work. But Carter is under pressure from U.S. labor unions to tighten up border crossings and reduce the competition for jobs.

The issue is so sensitive that about the only thing on which lower level negotiators have agreed is the method for counting the illegal migrants, as a basis for beginning talks about what to do about them. Schechter hailed even that agreement as "great progress."

The administration estimates that almost 1 million illegal migrants cross the border from Mexico each year and that between 3 million and 8 million are in the country at a given time, with 60 percent of them Mexicans.

Administration officials say they are looking to the recent natural gas agreement as a pattern for showing how the two countries can work out their differences.

In that agreement, the United States agreed to pay Mexico $3.625 per thousand cubic feet of gas, well above the U.S. domestic price, but below the original Mexican asking price.

The gas agreement did, however, improve the atmosphere left after the summit meeting in Mexico City in February, when Lopez Portillo upbraided U.S. arrogance toward Mexico and Carter spoke of catching "Montezuma's revenge" from the Mexican water.

Kennedy Nudges Closer To Official Candidacy

BOSTON (AP) — When some of the 1,000 members of the Massachusetts State Labor Council shouted encouragement Friday to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy to run for president, he told them to be patient, saying they won't be "disappointed" when he declares his intentions.

After hearing a resolution at the AFL-CIO council's annual convention urging his candidacy, the Massachusetts Democrat said:

"You'll be hearing my response to that resolution in the not too many days and weeks to come and I don't think you'll be disappointed."

Kennedy, often shouting to the packed convention hall, called the nation's economic problems his number one priority and criticized unnamed national officials who claim "our problems are too complex to come to grips with."

"I don't believe that to be the case," Kennedy said.

The senator, noting that a member of his family has been present at each of the labor council's annual conventions for 33 years, drew laughter when he said, " If nominated, I will not run, and if elected, I will not serve...as president of the AFL-CIO."

That was a reference to Friday's announcement that AFL-CIO President George Meany is resigning.

Kennedy expressed his "deep sense of regret" at Meany's resignation, but called the labor leader's decision "understandable."

The senator did not mention President Carter but at one point criticized "the unconscionable (financial) return to oil refiners because of decisions made by this administration."

Kennedy, who posed with a "Kennedy in 80" T-shirt worn by some delegates, also repeated his call for national health insurance, a windfall tax on oil companies, and a slowdown in the national rates of inflation and unemployment.

The delegates interrupted Kennedy repeatedly with applause and chanted, "We want Ted."

The loudest applause came when Kennedy cited free medical care available to members of Congress and added, "If it's good enough for Congress, it's good enough for the AFL-CIO."

Kennedy, urging "a more vigorous effort" against crime, announced Friday he will introduce legislation to crack down on fraud in federal aid programs.

In a speech to the Massachusetts Bar Association, Kennedy said America's "criminal justice system is in disarray" while "our crime rates are the highest in the western world."

"What is at stake is not whether we are labeled 'hard' or 'soft' on crime," the Massachusetts Democrat said. "What is at stake is our competence, our ability to reduce crime in responsible and effective ways."

Earlier, in testimony to a state legislative panel in New York, Kennedy said he would continue to press for prisoner rehabilitation programs despite his opposition to indeterminate sentences and parole.

"It is easy to mistake a call for the end of parole with the notion that prison rehabilitation is a failure," he said. "What must end is the comforting but totally unrealistic notion that a prisoner's release date should be determined by his response to prison rehabilitation. I will continue to urge my colleagues in the Senate to fund and promote a wide variety of prison rehabilitation programs."

Kennedy, a potential 1980 presidential contender, told the Massachusetts bar group that present laws prevent federal prosecutors from taking action when they find evidence that state and local officials administering federal programs have embezzled funds or taken bribes.

More than $250 billion in federal money is turned over to state and local administrators each year to be spent on child nutrition, highway construction, health care, employment training and other programs.

Because legal possession of the money has passed to the local governments, Kennedy said, federal prosecutors must rely on local authorities to prosecute cases of fraud. Too often, he said, "local officials won't prosecute, either because the money isn't theirs, or because of inadequate resources."

Kennedy said the Justice Department has not been able to estimate the losses, because most cases are not even investigated. But he said the losses are believed to be "staggering."

He said he will offer amendments, with the support of the Justice Department, to a criminal code revision bill to strengthen the government's hand. The bill is pending before the Judiciary Committee, of which Kennedy is chairman clare Friday the decline was "too much" and "beyond reasonable economic factors."

He also told the West German economic news service VWD he favors U.S. and German intervention on currency markets, if necessary, to bolster the dollar and combat speculation.

Matthoefer will meet today with Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, Federal Reserve Chairman Paul A. Volcker, West German Chancellor Helmudt Schmidt and German central bank officials. Currency matters also will be on the agenda this weekend at an International Monetary Fund session in Belgrade.

Matthoefer's comments caused the dollar to rally briefly, but then the U.S. currency turned mixed despite a round of U.S. prime rate increses to a record 13½ percent, a factor that normally could be expected to attract foreign investors to the dollar.

Government officials "can say all they like, but I think everyone's saying, 'I've got to see it to believe it,'" said a foreign exchange trader. "Words are one thing, but actions are another," commented a metals analyst.

Friday's late dollar rates in Japan and Europe included: Tokyo, 223.45 Japanese yen, up from 222.75 Thursday; Frankfurt, 1.7410 West German marks, down from 1.7456; Zurich, 1.5552 Swiss francs, down from 1.5553; Paris, 4.0950 French francs, down from 4.1000; Amsterdam, 1.9305 Dutch guilders, down from 1.9345; and Milan, 802.35 Italian lire, down from 803.45.

The British pound dropped to $2.20075 in London from $2.2045, and slipped to $2.1990 in late New York trading from $2.2115 Tursday. The pound had risen earlier in the week on reports the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries might begin demanding payment for their oil in British currency as well as in dollars.

At 3 p.m. CDT, the dollar was quoted in New York at: 1.7460 West German marks, up from 1.7370 Thursday; 4.0987 French francs, down from 4.0900; 1.5550 Swiss francs, up from 1.55485; 224.75 yen, up from 222.30; and 1.1602 Canadian dollars, down from 1.1607.

Florida Battle Set By Carter

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Presidential Press Secretary Jody Powell acknowledged late Friday that President Carter is mobilizing his forces to derail an active Florida movement to draft Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for president.

Powell, in the state capitol to address a rally of Carter supporters, said the president was intensifying his drive in Florida in preparation for Oct. 13 Democratic caucuses, when counties will elect delegates to the state convention.

"I think we're in for a tough fight down here," Powell told reporters. "A combination of circumstances has made these Florida caucuses important even though they don't have an effect on how many delegates get elected to the (national) convention."

Asked about a possible challenge from California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., Powell said: "The race here is primarily between the president and Sen. Kennedy."

Rape Prevention Seminar Sunday

How can women protect themselves from rape? What are the psychological scars a rape victim can suffer? What should a woman do if she is confronted by a potential rapist? What are a rape victim's legal rights?

These topics and others will be discussed at a rape prevention seminar open and free to the public from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday at the Civic Center Theatre.

The seminar, cosponsored by the city and the Rape Crisis Center, will be conducted by center director Becky Mahan. Talks by a rape victim and members of the criminal district attorney's office, Lubbock police and a home security expert will make up the program.

Oil Patch Sighted Near Texas Coast

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Observers aboard a surveillance helicopter reported sighting a large patch of oil drifting 12 miles off the South Padre Island coast Friday.

Coast Guard spokesman Richrd Griggs said the slick was about 40 to 45 miles long and varied in width from 500 feet to two miles.

He said another reconnaissance flight would be dispatched to the area Saturday to verify the location and extent of coverage.

"We do not know if the oil is from the Mexican well or some other source," said Griggs.

A runaway well in the Bay of Campeche, responsible for the world's largest oil spill, blew out June 3. Capping efforts at the well so far have been unsuccessful.

Griggs also reported that light accumulations of tar balls washed up on South Padre Island beaches Friday.

"We are sure most, or a good majority, of the tarballs are from the Mexican well," said Griggs.

However, he emphasized that the concentration was "very light."

Six Lubbock Men Charged In Drug Case

Six men suspected of distributing "substantial quantities" of methamphetamine in the Lubbock area were charged Friday with one count each of delivery of a controlled substance.

Officials with the Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney's office recommended a $10,000 bond for each of the men, but declined to comment on specific details of the investigation because four of the suspects remained free Friday evening.

Authorities, however, did say that the group of men had been under surveillance by the Lubbock Task Force, comprised of Drug Enforcement Administration agents and Lubbock police officers, since August and allegedly had been bringing in "large quantities" of pure methamphetamine crystal.

The six men reportedly had then distributed the drug, also known as "speed," in the Lubbock area. Friday's charges were based on alleged sales of the drug the men made to an undercover narcotics agent last month.

William Lewis Warfel, 25, reportedly had been arrested by local authorities Friday afternoon. But officials with Lubbock County Jail had no record of his arrest and no address is available for Warfel, who allegedly sold the controlled substance to the narcotics agent on Aug. 14.

A second man charged by Lubbock authorities, Kenneth Gene Wooten, 51, of 2111 8th St., is standing trial on federal drug charges in Brownsville.

Wooten allegedly sold methamphetamine to the Lubbock agent on Aug. 13.

Friday evening, however, four of the suspects remained at large. They are Forrest Phillips, 31, of 2102 8th St.; Rickie Von Speigel, 22; Teddy Joe McDonald, 23; and Jessie James Johnson, 27. Authorities had no addresses for Von Speigel, McDonald and Johnson, all of whom allegedly made illegal sales of the drug on Aug. 13.

According to investigators, Phillips sold a quantity of methamphetamine to the Lubbock narcotics agent on Aug. 20.

Castro Says Carter 'Dishonest' About Soviet Cuba Troops

around him, he spoke a few sentences in English.

He said, in English, "It is a most strange crisis because there is no basis for it." Still speaking in English, he added, "I have told you the truth and only the truth."

On another subject, Castro said Cuba has released 3,000 political prisoners to date, and "we will soon release hundreds more."

He said the release of political prisoners would have been faster "if the United States had not been so restrictive in granting visas to those who were released."

He said his former colleague in arms, Huber Montos, will soon finish his 20-year prison term and "we will fulfill the law."

Montos is scheduled to complete his prison term in October.

Carter planned to put finishing touches on his address at his Camp David retreat. He was scheduled to fly there this afternoon, returning to the White House sometime Monday.

First Chose Sunday

Carter had first attempted to schedule the address for Sunday evening, according to a White House source. Later, another aide, who also requested anonymity, said the Monday night time was picked in part to give the president the largest possible audience.

It comes at the start of the usual Monday night NFL football game, which ordinarily attracts a large viewing audience and also is in prime viewing time in all U.S. time zones.

A Sunday night speech would have conflicted with the Jewish Yom Kippur holy day. Also, NBC had protested that a Sunday night speech would conflict with a movie scheduled for that night, the aide said.

Carter convened a formal 90-minute meeting of his National Security Council early Friday, following by less than 12 hours an informal conference involving the same group of key advisers.

"Deliberate Process"

"It is a very calm and deliberate process that's proceeding in a timely but not a hurried fashion," said a senior Carter aide who asked not to be identified. He predicted the president's report "will merit and receive the support of the people of this country."

Carter has said that if negotiations with the Soviets fail, the United States would act on its own to change the "status quo."

Vance gave Security Council members an hour-long briefing Thursday night on his negotiations with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, which apparently failed to resolve the dispute. Earlier, Vance and Carter met privately for 30 minutes.

White House officials said no further Security Council meetings were planned prior to the broadcast but reported Carter and his advisers would be holding a series of sessions, separately and together, in the next two days.

Although U.S. officials did not entirely rule out possible further contact with the Russians, Powell said he knew of no plans for a new meeting with Gromyko, who was returning to Moscow.

A White House source, when asked about the impact of the troop dispute on the fate of the strategic arms limitation treaty, said Carter would prefer to campaign for re-election with a SALT II treaty ratified by the Senate but added that if necessary, the president will "campaign for it."

"There is absolutely no doubt of the president's determination to push forward on SALT," Powell told reporters. "This issue will decide the nature of the world we live in for a decade or perhaps more."

Powell, meeting reporters after Vance's Security Council briefing Thursday, said: "We would not characterize this as a crisis. It was a discussion."

Another official, requesting anonymity, said that, while there was no crisis atmosphere, "there is a problem."

Carter promised Tuesday he would report to the nation, probably within a week, on the troop situation.

Gen. Haig

World War II, when they had 20 million dead."

Such a leadership could be more prone to initiate war, Haig warned, possibly with China; the Soviets, he says, are "increasingly paranoic about the super power status it is reaching for."

During his speech, Haig also criticized the welfare system, the power of the news media and legislation protecting the environment.

"This excessive regulation to protect the environment has deprived American industry of the resources it needs to grow and maintain competition with other countries," he said.

Haig was introduced at the banquet by U.S. Rep. Kent Hance. George Mahon, former 19th District representative, also spoke briefly.

During the banquet, Tim Hatch turned over his office as chamber president to B.C. "Peck" McMinn.

Abilene Man Killed In Avalanche Slide

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Two Americans and a Briton were killed by an avalanche while attempting to climb the world's 10th highest peak, Mount Annapurna I, the Tourism Ministry said Friday.

The Americans were identified as Maynard Eugene Cohick, 40, of Republic, Mo., and Gilbert V. Harder, 33, of Abilene, Texas. The ministry said the Briton was Eric B. Robers, 33, of Ruthin, Wales.

They were swept away by an avalanche and died Sept. 19, the ministry said.

The three were part of an eight-member team led by Robert Wilson, 38, of Greshalm, Ore., which was trying to scale the north face of the 26,504-foot peak.

The team had established a fourth high altitude camp on the mountain the day before the avalance, the ministry said.

people from the research facility were involved in planning the flight.

Emblazoned on the side of the gondola is the name 7-Up, one of the sponsors. Other sponsors include NBC, which is paying to have its cameraman aboard; Nikon, Inc., the camera company, and Louisiana-Pacific Corp.

Miss Simons, an artist and promoter of the project, has said the art involved in the flight consists of recording sounds, distributing pine tree seeds, taking pictures and talking to persons on the ground over CB radio.

The flight path was to have taken the balloon over Washington, Idaho, Montana and into North Dakota, but winds pushed it south over Grand Teton National Park in Wyoming and into Colorado on Thursday morning.

"I told the people in Boulder we might decide to come through. Colorado," said Engelmann. "Tell everybody we are eating well. We're still working on the smoked ham the people in Tillamook gave us."

Limitations On FTC Rejected By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee has rejected limits the House wants to impose on the Federal Trade Commission.

A funding resolution approved by the House stipulates that the FTC could neither start new investigations of possible "unfair and deceptive trade practices" nor take final action on any new regulation already proposed. The Senate committee version approved recently has no such limits. The resolution is to provide money for the agency to operate after the start of the new fiscal year. If the full Senate goes along with its committee recommendation, differences between the House and Senate versions of the resolution would have to be worked out by a conference committee.

MAMIE STARTS THERAPY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors at Walter Reed Army Medical Center reported Friday that Mamie Eisenhower has started therapy in her struggle to recover from a stroke suffered earlier this week. Officials said the 82-year-old former first lady has begun taking some nourishment and has started physical therapy. Friday's medical statement from the hospital described the widow of President Dwight D. Eisenhower as more alert and said she hd spent a restful night.

Patient Continuing Simulated Dives To Speed Recovery Of Arm

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Jane Benton, saved from death last week by a desperation, three-day simulated deep sea dive in a high pressure chamber, took another brief follow-up "dive" Friday and surprised Air Force doctors with her speedy recovery.

"I am feeling fine and I'm anxious to get back to the classroom," said the Fairfield Bay, Ark., junior high English teacher as her 8-year-old son, Bret, stared in awe at the huge hyperbaric chamber.

Mrs. Benton, 42, then sheepishly admitted she got a good-natured scolding from doctors Thursday because she left San Antonio Community Hospital for an hour to shop for clothes. That trip was necessary, she explained, because she was wearing only a hospital gown when flown by air ambulance Sept. 19 to Brooks Air Force.

Doctors will decide Saturday whether Mrs. Benton should remain in San Antonio for more follow-up "dives" to speed recovery in her numb right arm — the most serious lingering effect from the near-fatal air bubbles in her brain only 10 days earlier.

"She is making quite a bit of progress, more than we expected," Air Force Dr. Dean Heimbach said Friday.

Mrs. Benton was undergoing routine biopsy surgery Sept. 18 in Little Rock when air bubbles got into her brain and choked off the blood circulation — causing the same effect as a stroke.

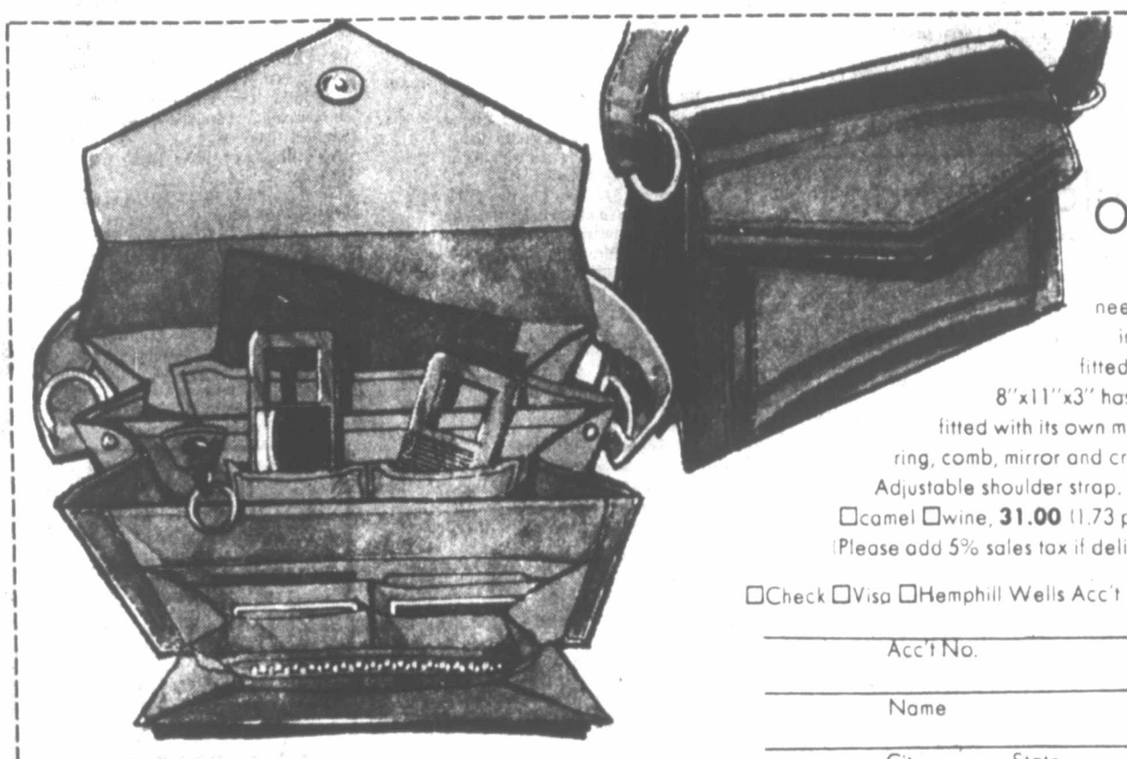

She slipped into a coma and relatives and doctors had almost given her up for dead when she was flown to Brooks' huge hyperbaric chamber the next day.

An Air Force doctor and a medical technician took the woman into the giant chamber, which is 10 feet in diameter and 25 feet long, and the three were "taken down" to a pressure equal to a 165-foot dive into the sea.

MAN' WORST ENEMY? — Unscrupulous dog breeders and irresponsible pet owners are causing the dog population to grow out of control. Humans can contract nearly 200 diseases from animals. Packs of dogs are causing some people to fear the animals as much as muggers. (AP Laserphoto)

Pet Owners Making Dog Man's Worst Enemy

By BARBARA McDOWELL

NEW YORK (NEA) — Man's best friend turning into man's worst enemy?

It's not the plot of a new horror film. It's a real threat posed by unscrupulous breeders, irresponsible pet owners and rapidly reproducing dogs, says Toronto writer Iris Nowell.

"Dogs have become an urban problem, an ecological problem," asserted MissNowell, author of "The Dog Crisis" (St. Martin's), during a recent interview. She offers some starting statistics to support her statement:

— Next to gonorrhea, dog bites are the most commonly reported public health problem. One million dog bits are reported annually in the United States, and health officials believe the real total may be two or three times higher.

— Humans can contract nearly 200 diseases — called "zoonoses" — from animals, including dogs. Miss Nowell says the "most dangerous and worrisome" of the dog-transmitted zoonoses may be toxocara canis, a roundworm in dried dog feces that can cause everything from mild stomach ache to blindness.

According to the author, the risk of contracting the disease is great though actual cases are few, partly because doctors have not yet learned to recognize it. "But anywhere from 10 percent to 30 percent of soil samples taken from parks where dogs go are contaminated with that parasite," she adds.

• Dogs pollute the environment, especially in cities. They are estimated to excrete 36 million liters of urine and 3,500 tons of feces daily in the United States. Strays searching for food overturn garbage cans, attracting flies and rats.

• Local governments spend $500 million annually to clean up after dogs and to catch, house and kill strays.

• Attacking dogs do an estimated $10 million in damage to U.S. livestock annually.

• Dogs are a frequent cause of auto accidents. A 1976 survey found that British dogs were involved annually in a least 1,500 accidents — and probably more because dogs usually leave the cash scene if they can.

• Dogs — especially strays traveling in packs — cause people considerable fear. A 1977 Pittsburgh survey found that people in some parts of the city were as afraid of biting dogs as of muggers.

Problems like these may reach crisis proportions in the future simply because of the rapid growth of the dog population, says Miss Nowell. She notes that dogs are 15 times more prolific than humans, calculating that at current rates dogs will double their number in the Western world by 1984.

Miss Nowell offers three major explanations for the dog population explosion: more free-roaming dogs that procreate with reckless abandon, increased popularity of large dogs that tend tohave larger litters and growth of "puppy mills" that mass-produce dogs with little concern for quality.

"There would be no problem if people were more responsible," says MissNowell. "If nobody's dog bit people, there could probably be the same number of dogs without their having a negative impact on the community."

Miss Nowell believes that dog owners are slowly awakening to their responsibilities. She cites the success of New York's "stoop and scoop" law that imposes a $100 fine on city residents who do not clean up after their dogs.

Miss Nowell calls for more such laws as well as for laws requiring that dogs be licensed, leashed and regularly immunized against diseases such as ra-

PETTITT VIOLIN MAKER FOR 50 YEARS

For Expression Violin Maker Uses Hands

By ESTHER LONGORIA

BIG SPRING (NEA) The small, white frame house appears no different from any other in the quiet West Texas neighborhood.

ESTHER LONGORIA

But when the lean old man who lives there slowly slides open the garage door, he reveals the difference — a quaint, dusty workshop filled with the sweet odor of wood and varnish.

Denver Lee Pettitt has been making violins there for more than 35 years.

"Nobody beats me when it comes to building a violin," he drawls. "When I build a violin I build it to last at least 200 years.

"I'm not an Italian or a German. But I can sure beat them at this."

The septuagenarian made his first violin in high school more than half a century ago.

"Back in those days, the schools didn't carry on music programs," he recalls. "But I wanted to play, so I just built myself a fiddle."

(Pettitt says strings make the differene between a violin and a fiddle. "The violin has gut strings while a fiddle has steel strings," he says.)

"I must have been 26 or 27 years old when I first learned the art," says the gray-haired Pettitt, sitting back and lighting his pipe.

"I was working for this chain music store, and they had one of the finest violin makers from overseas working for them. Fredgus Johannes, whose ancestors had started under Stradivarius, gave me the know-how. That great old character was the only teacher I ever had."

Pettitt's long, gnarled fingers grab a block of blond Norway spruce, the foundation of his instruments.

"I have to import my wood because that's the only way that I can get it old enough," he says.

He places the wood on a plane, where he meticulously cuts it in half. The smooth pieces will eventually be the top of a violin.

Pettitt follows the same procedure for the back of the instrument. But the wood he uses for the back, sides and neck is Great Northern maple.

He then lifts a wooden mold in the shape of a violin's body from the wall and places short maple strips along it to form the sides of a violin. He carefully glues the strips together with an old German water-boiled glue.

"This glue is the only glue I know of that will last for ages with no deterioration," he says. "It may last for more than 200 years."

Pettitt cuts the top and back to fit his mold.

Then his real work begins. Using crude handmade tools, his weathered hands gently carve the wooden pieces into the proper shape and thickness.

His expert craftmanship can be seen in his use of a length of white holly and ebony as a binder around the instrument.

"It keeps the wood from cracking," he says. "Some of those factory-made Japanese violins have just a black line painted on them, but not me."

When the body of the instrument is finished, he begins carving the neck.

While explaining the process, he reaches for two of his favorite works that hang on a wall. One, the "Lone Star," has an inlaid mother-of-pearl star in its neck; the neck of the other is adorned with a lion's head carved by Pettitt.

He then attaches the neck to the body and begins coating the instrument with a special varnish. "It usually takes about a dozen coats," he says.

Pettitt notes that the varnish can be colored to suit personal preference. "Some people may prefer a deep red finish while others may like a light tan one," he explains.

"Now it's time to dress it out," says Pettitt. He adds the keys, fingerboard, chin rest and tailpiece. All are made of ebony, imported from India or Africa.

"The keys and fingerboard are usually rough cut, but I finish them to size, length and thickness," he says. "And some of my tailpieces, like for my five-string instrument, I have no choice but to make myself."

His bows are made of prinambuco, a Brazilian wood. He likes to string them with pure Siberian horse hair — "but that hair is hard to get now and more than expensive."

Pettitt estimates that it takes him 100 hours "give or take 20" to make a violin. "But sometimes I'll whittle the fool thing for a week," he adds.

IN AMERICA

"A violin maker has got to put it all together," Pettitt explains. "He has to be craftsman enough to do the job. But after the handiwork, he still has to do something to make the violin have that perfect playing quality."

Pettitt considers himself a top-notch craftsman. But when it comes to playing the instrument, he say's it's a different story.

"I played when I was younger, but I can't even start to play now," he says. Yet he goes on to prove that he can still do some toe-tapping fiddling.

Why does Pettitt continue to make violins after all these years?

"We all have to have some way of expression," he says. "I never had the vocabulary. The only way I know to express myself is with my two hands."

Violin Maker Still Working

Today Denver Pettitt is still hard at work making violins in his garage in Big Spring.

The above feature story about the septuagenarian first appeared in "Spectrum" in the Sunday Morning, March 12, 1978 issue of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. It received national attention via distribution in Newspaper Enterprise Association's "In America" series.

The story was written by A-J staff writer Esther Longoria. Photo was taken by Norm Tindell.

The world's first-known fishing rod was excavated along with the remains of a 10,000-year-old man in northern Europe.

Drill Instructors Accused Of Abuse

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Three drill instructors charged with abusing 116 recruits have been ordered to face general courts-martial and a fourth faces a special court-martial for failure to report the incident.

Maj. Gen. Charles Cooper, commander of the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, on Thursday ordered the general courts-martial to begin in October. The three defendants were identified as Gunnery Sgt. Charles Bryant, 28, of Nashville, Tenn.; Staff Sgt. Rockie Cross, 29, of Anadarko, Okla.; and Sgt. Joseph Lopez, Jr., 23, of Fresno, Calif.

Sgt. Gilbert Speck, 22, of Commerce City, Colo., will face a special court-martial for failure to report the June 26 incident.

OVERCROWDED HOSPITALS

HOUSTON (AP) — The administrator of the Harris County Hospital District says overcrowding is creating unsafe conditions at two public hospitals. Robert L. Durbin, said Jefferson Davis and Ben Taub hospitals are experiencing an 18 to 20 percent growth in demand for services over last year.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: A girl with whom several of us have lunch insists on stuffing all the leftovers in her purse — with or without a doggy bag. She says, "I'm taking this home to my husband." Then in go the rolls, chicken or steak, wrapped in a paper napkin, along with whatever else isn't eaten at the table.

"Weird Vera" is not exactly a welfare case. She and her husband both have excellent jobs. They have no children — not even a dog.

When there's a buffet, "Weird Vera" really goes to town. It's embarrassing to be in her company. What should we say to her? — Mortified Trio

Dear Trio: Stocking the home fridge with food from a buffet is pretty tacky, but taking home leftovers when dining out is no longer considered gauche. Since the price of food has gone out of sight, nobody bats an eye.

Your friend should ask for a doggy bag (or carry one) for her leftovers. It's stupid to risk ruining a good purse with 70 cents' worth of hamburger steak.

Dear Ann Landers: Why must you print the name of the city along with the signatures? You have put me in hot water because of this, and I'll bet a lot of other people, too. I wish you would cut it out.

A letter appeared in your column a few days ago about a guy who is running around on his wife. He admitted it, told you how much he cares for the other woman, but can't leave his wife because she has a heart condition.

That letter was signed with the man's initials. As if that wasn't bad enough, you added, "From Greenville." Well, my initials are the same as his, and I live in Greenville. Everyone in town must read your column, because our telephone hasn't stopped ringing. My wife is humiliated, and I'm in the doghouse. I have never cheated on my wife in my life. You owe us an apology in the paper. — Innocent Victim

Dear Innocent: Sorry I created a problem for you, but according to the Postal Service directory, there are 26 Greenvilles in the United States. One each in Alabama, California, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin. I'm printing your letter but omitting the state. I don't think you want to hear any more about this matter.

Dear Ann Landers: Christmas is three months away, and already I'm dreading it.

Every year our family exchanges gifts. It has gotten completely out of hand. For example, my grandparents — who are retired — can barely manage on their modest pensions. They still buy 30 Christmas gifts a year — one for the daughters, sons-in-law, daughters-in-law and sons, and, of course, all the grandchildren.

Our family is not close. We rarely see each other except at funerals. When Christmas rolls around we get together, overspend and try too hard to enjoy ourselves. Most of the presents exchanged are useless. Is there a solution to this ongoing charade? — Lafayette, Ind.

Dear Ind.: A gracious and sensible way to put an end to it is to write notes to one and all saying you've decided to end the holiday gift-giving and hope they will not embarrass you by sending one. Announce that you are making a donation to a worthy cause in the names of all family members in lieu of presents. Then do it.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Yesterday is gone — so just forget it.

Tomorrow hasn't come — don't worry about it.

Today is here — make the most of it. — Gramps

DEAR HELOISE:

I know a lot of people don't put their picnic jugs and coolers away until after the football season, but here's what I always do.

I found by putting baking soda in a paper towel or napkin and placing it in the container with the lid on, it keeps the container smelling fresh.

I also put the cooler or jug into a plastic bag or paper sack to keep it clean and ready for the next use. — Mrs. C.A.D.

DEAR HELOISE:

My three children like to save all the school papers they bring home throughout the school year. This became quite a storage problem.

Now, each year before school starts, they each choose two sheets of a different color of large poster board paper and make an envelope by gluing or binding with wide tape, the two sheets together on three sides.

They can color or draw designs on the sides of the envelope to their own liking.

At the end of the school year I sit down with each ohild and together we decide which of the papers and projects to keep and which to discard.

Also, by looking through these papers, the child can see his or her progress during the past year. — J.K.P. Chase

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a hint to save more energy!

When boiling potatoes in their jackets for potato salad, drop your eggs in at the same time.

They can boil with the same heat and only one pan to clean up. — Sandy

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

In this hand from "The Tough Game" you get to a normal four hearts. The simple way to play the hand is to draw trumps as quickly as you can, make five odd if spades break 3-3, four odd if they break 3-2 and go down one if they break 5-1.

Kelsey points out that there is a complicated play to bring the contract home against a 5-1 spade break if the trumps are placed nicely for you. As he points out, it cost nothing to try this play.

Here it is. Win the diamond in your hand. Cash the ace of spades, lead a diamond to dummy's king, lead the last spade from dummy.

East can ruff, but he has ruffed one of your losers and you can ruff your other losing spade with one of dummy's trumps. If East discards you win: ruff a low spade in dummy.

Either way you make your game and the slight extra chance has been a winning one.

Ask the Experts

We are asking this question ourselves. You hold the West hand in today's article. What should you lead against four hearts?

The three of hearts. You want to get rid of dummy's trumps as fast as you can.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
BY DR. PAUL G. DONOHUE

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am in my late teens, weigh 85 pounds and am 5 feet, 3 inches. I developed chronic asthma when very young and still have it. I read in a book that this severe condition can be fatal and sometimes crippling. How can it? — J.R.

Doomsayers have to work very hard to come up with distressing news.

Asthma is a narrowing of the airways along with increased mucus production. It can be crippling if it cannot be controlled. Fortunately, it is extremely rare not to be able to control asthma today. There are drugs available to keep the airways dilated (expanded) — ephedrine, for example. There are others of this type, and more stubborn cases may require cortisone-like drugs.

If your asthma is triggered by allergy to substances in your surroundings — pollens for example — desensitization to those substances often helps. An allergist can say if you need desensitization. Small amounts of common offending substances are placed on or into the skin. The substances the skin reacts to are the ones to which you are allergic. From many such tests the allergist can "mix up" a serum and begin injections. The idea is to stop your body from overreacting to the offending substances when it contacts them in nature.

You need not worry about asthma being fatal if you follow your doctor's advice closely. It is not good to dwell on such rare happenings. Riding in an auto can be fatal or crippling, but we don't let that stop us from sensible use of cars.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 15-year-old girl and have been worried about something for quite a while. I have informed my parents about this, but they seem to believe that it is nothing.

When I stand up I have attacks of dizziness and my eyesight becomes blurry. I know this can happen from a change in blood pressure, but this happens every time and it is very annoying. I always feel tired and weak. I always have headaches and frequently have to urinate, which was never a problem before. I feel as though I am not on this earth most of the time and on another planet. I get enough rest so that couldn't be the reason. Could I have diabetes or some type of anemia? My grandfather had diabetes. Please tell me what you think. — Concerned.

A 15-year-old girl should not have any of the symptoms you have. Frequent urination and constant headaches need a thorough investigation. The diagnosis you suggest (diabetes) is possible. The chances of this increase if other family members have it. I would guess that you are a regular column reader. You do seem well-informed. There are, incidentally, other forms of diabetes not due to a lack of insulin from the pancreas. One (diabetes insipidus) is from a lack of another hormone (antidiuretic hormone) from the pituitary gland. Tests, both blood and urine, should tell much.

BRIDGE BUILDER — Cedric Reynolds holds one of the more than 100 models of covered bridges he has built. His scaled replicas are Vermont's version of a ship-in-a-bottle. (AP Laserphoto)

Vermont Man Builds Bridges-In-A-Bottle

SOUTH BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — The last beam in place, Cedric Reynolds steps back amid piles of sawdust and unused lumber to admire his completed work.

The arch of the trusses and the pattern of the lattice are just part of the art of covered bridges that continues to impress Reynolds, even after building more than 100 of them.

His bridges have a remarkable record. None has collapsed under the strain of a Vermont winter or from the weight of a heavy truck, an even more notable record when you consider they are held together with common, household glue.

Clearly, these are not your standard covered bridges. For what the 71-year-old South Burlington man has created is Vermont's version of the ship-in-a-bottle: scaled models of the state's covered bridges.

The miniature models fill his home like his love for bridges fills his life.

"You know, the bulk of Vermont's covered bridges were built by barn builders," he says. "Some of them couldn't read or write."

Nevertheless, they were not unskilled, he says, pointing with awe to the Fisher bridge in Hardwick that has held up under the weight of years of train traffic.

"I watched one day as a huge train engine passed through the bridge, pulling another engine and a train of freight," he says. "The people who built that bridge couldn't even imagine trains of that size and weight."

Reynolds' love for the symbol of times gone by dates to his youth, when he and others used to swim by a covered bridge in North Westminster.

His fascination led him 40 years ago to begin photographing covered bridges as he traveled through Vermont as an engineer for the New England Telephone Co.

Over the years, Reynolds and his wife, Hope, have criss-crossed the state a number of times, compiling pictures of every one of its covered bridges.

"We took a complete set of color and black-and-white photographs with an old camera," Reynolds says. "Then my son got a 35 millimeter camera we liked so much that we started all over again."

"Our kids thought we were nuts," Mrs. Reynolds adds.

But in 1960, Reynolds went to a convention of covered bridge enthusiasts and found that his photographs are as common as the bridges are rare.

"You can only take so many pictures of a bridge," he says. "So I started building the models."

Reynolds' work requires a powersaw, jack knife, and a good deal of patience.

He begins by measuring and photographing a bridge, drawing sketches, drafting out the model and cutting up the wood, usually spruce. "I wind up with more sawdust than bridge," he says.

Angry Town Denies Karen Ann Peace

By TOM TIEDE

MORRIS PLAINS, N.J. (NEA) — Each morning at the start of the work day a reporter from the local newspaper calls the Morris View Nursing Home to ask: "How's Karen?" And each morning the reply is routine. "There's been no change. She's just the same. Her condition continues to be stable."

Four years after Karen Ann Quinlan slipped into the coma that was supposed to have ended her life, and three years after the New Jersey Supreme Court removed ths hospital technology that was thought to be denying her the right to die with dignity, the comatose and very controversial young woman lives.

Doctors say her peristence is miraculous. She has no brain function to speak of, she is non-congnitive and unmoving; worse, her weight has shrunk to 65 pounds and she's described now as hardly more than a skeleton. Still, she endures, which means she goes on stirring up emotions, some of them hostile.

The original dispute involving the woman is now somewhat quiet. When Miss Quinlan's parents asked the courts to remove her from the life support systems, the shock was felt around the world. When she weathered the unplugging, however, indignity cooled; the "mercy killing" issue was rendered academic.

But the unfortunate woman does not now rest in peace. Though unseeing and, apparently, unknowing, she continues to be buffeted by argument and contention. Many in Karen Quinlan's home town have actually come to resent her ordeal; it's common for the locals to refer to her as the "National Vegetable."

Much of the resentment is associated with the cost of caring for the woman. When she was initially admitted for hospitalization, then age 21, Miss Quinlan was categorized as a "disabled adult." That meant she had no assets of her own hence her medical keep would have to be paid for by the public.

And that keep has been expensive. Her hospital bill for the first year alone was more than $188,000, plus an extra $50,000 for extensive police protection. Right now her care is said to cost in excess of $100 a day, and the total receipts for four years may be a half-million dollars or more.

Miss Quinlan's family points out that much of this expense is paid for by Medicaid. But critics say the people's purse is raided all the same. One disgusted resident here says he thinks the city should put Karen Quinlan on public display, charge $5 a ticket and "let her take care of her own obligations."

Not doubt the public would pay to see the hapless woman. Employees at Morris View Nursing Home say she still receives letters from around the nation. She also receives ongoing attention from the marginals; pranksters have called the hospital with bomb threats, sick jokes and obscenities.

From time to time the curious try to penetrate the 24-hour security that encapsulates Miss Quinlan. Religious fanatics and quacks have tried, for instance. And last year a newsman was charged by hospital officials with offering $200 to any employee willing to provide gossip for his publication.

Others have gotten the gossip without bribes. There is one rumor that Karen Quinlan occasionally sits up in bed. There is another that, over the years, she has spoken words. Doctors say that both rumors have some substance; at times, apparently, the woman functions involuntarily — by reflex.

But there is no truth in the occasional talk that she is getting better. Hospital attendants say there has never been an improvement in her vital signs. On the contrary, she has taken periodic turns for the worse, and once received the last rites of the Catholic church; at best, they say, she survives.

That survival is largely uneventful, and takes place in a private room at the nursing home. There, Miss Quinlan is fed nourishment through her nose, and she's regularly given antibiotics. Otherwise, no "aggessive" steps are taken to preserve her life, nor will they be in the event of any relapse.

Her room is plain, but her family has stocked it with photographs, flowers and mementos. The woman's parents are said to visit often; her brother and sister less often. Sometimes, one or more priests accompany the family to the room; they all agree that she is now "in God's hands."

Attending physicians will not comment about God's intentions. But other neurologists in the area say Karen Quinlan could conceivably live for years, perhaps many years. However, no one familiar with her condition gives her any chance for rebirth; she may go on breathing, "but she'll never wake up."

There are some here, including members of her family, who say this outlook is not sad. In fact, Karen Quinlan may have wanted it this way. Shortly before she lapsed into the coma she is said to have written that she wished "to curl myself into a fetal rose and rest in the enternal womb." She has, and is.

Rose Kennedy Improving After Surgery

BOSTON (AP) — Rose Kennedy was up and walking Friday, two days after the Kennedy family matriarch underwent surgery to remove a portion of her intestine, hospital officials said.

A spokeswoman for New England Baptist Hospital said the 89-year-old Mrs. Kennedy continued to improve. Officials at the private hospital said she might be released as early as next week.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., reported his mother was in "fine spirits" following a Thursday visit.

Mrs. Kennedy underwent surgery Wednesday after she was admitted to the hospital complaining of nausea. Doctors said a hernia had damaged a part of her intestine which was removed in a two-hour operation.

The inguinal hernia, common in elderly people, develops when a loop of intestine protrudes through a weak spot in the muscle wall of the abdomen.

Mrs. Kennedy is also the mother of the late President John F. Kennedy and the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, and the widow of financier Joseph P. Kennedy, once ambassador to Great Britain.

QUALITY ENCOURAGED

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., has reintroduced a bill that would provide federal grants to encourage quality programming in children's television. Heinz, the father of three young sons, intends to create a National Endowment for Children's Television that would disburse about $10 million in appropriations next year.

British Mint Releasing Sovereign

NEW YORK (AP) — The British Royal Mint released on Friday a 22-carat gold proof sovereign, its first proof gold offering in 42 years, to fulfill what it calls "an extremely heavy demand" from coin collectors.

The announcement was made as the price of gold was soaring near a $400-an-ounce peak around the world.

"It's a collector's version of the sovereign. ... We have received thousand of demands for these gold coins," said John E. VanEmden, president of the U.S. agency for the mint, as he introduced the coin formally at a news conference at the British Trade Development office here.

It is the third time that the gold coin, which features Queen Elizabeth II on one side and St. George slaying a dragon on the other, has been offered by the mint this century.

The frosted coin, slightly larger than a nickel, weighs 7.98 grams or about one-fourth of a troy ounce. The offering price, $138 per coin, works out to something over $550 per troy ounce.

An offering of proof sovereigns, with their fixed price of $138 each, differs from what the mint calls official sovereigns. The official sovereigns are the British government's way of selling gold to the general public. It, too, is uncirculated, but is priced at the prevailing price of gold.

USDA Says Farmers Getting Higher Prices This Month

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices that farmers get for raw products rose 1.5 percent in September, including a sharp upturn in the prices of meat animals, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said higher prices for cattle, hogs, milk, calves and wheat accounted for most of the gain. Lower prices for citrus, soybeans, potatoes, corn and grain sorghum helped dampen the increases for other commodities, however.

In all, the farm price index was 11 percent above a year ago.

Revised figures also showed prices had dropped 3 percent from July to August. A month ago, the prelminary report indicated a 4 percent decline, the sharpest in more than two years.

According to the preliminary September figures, the index of prices at the farm for meat animals soared 8 percent from August, signalling that recent declines in retail meat prices soon may end.

Compared with a year earlier, prices of meat animals were up 15 percent in September.

In a related report, the deartment said preliminary figures for September show retail beef prices rose from July, ending a three-month decline.

Retail pork prices were still averaging lower in the first two weeks of September, according to the preliminary figures, but were beginning to edge higher by mid-month.

The rise in cattle prices came after declines in four straight months. Hog prices rose in September for the first time since last February.

Prices paid by farmers to meet expenses, including living costs, rose 1 percent in September and averaged 14 percent more than a year ago.

Fruit prices overall plummeted 22 percent from August, including declines for all items except apples, the report said. The index was also down 22 percent from a year ago.

Dairy prices rose 3 percent from August, averging 12 percent higher than a year ago, according to the September figures.

In its preliminary report on retail meat prices, the department said the all-cut average for beef was about $2.23 a pound in the first two weeks of September, up from less than $2.21 a pound for all of August. Retail beef soared to a record of more than $2.40 a pound last May before dropping in the summer.

Retail pork prices, at an all-cut average of less than $1.35 a pound through mid-September was down from about $1.36 in August. Pork prices dropped steadily from a near-record of $1.57 last February.

Food prices overall are expected average around 11 percent higher than in 1978 when they gained 10 percent, according to department economists. Most of the increase occurred earlier this year before tapering off this summer.

Earlier this week, the USDA's chief economist, Hward W. Hort, predictd consumes will continue to see food prices increase in 1980 but at a slower pace than the 11 percent gain expected this year.

Economists do not consider farm prices in a single month to be reliable indicators of future retail food prices.

For example, this year the index has increased in five months, dropped in three and remained unchanged in one.

However, a steady pattern of farm prices over a longer period does have an impact on what consumers pay for food, if "middleman" costs, profits and prices follow normal patterns.

Farm prices in September averaged 140 percent higher than a 1967 benchmark. The index was 137 percent higher in August.

The September parity ratio for farm commodities was 70 percent, compared to 69 percent in August and 72 a year ago, the report said.

At 100 percent, the indicator would mean, theoretically, that farmers have the same buying power they had in 1910-14.

For example, the average actual farm price of wheat in September was $3.84 a bushel. That was 64 percent of the September parity price for wheat of $6.03 a bushel.

The report also said:

•Cattle averaged $66.90 per 100 pounds of live weight nationally in September, compared to $61.30 in August and $52.20 in September 1978. Those are average prices for all types of cattle sold as beef.

•Hogs averaged $37.50 per 100 pounds, compared to $35.50 in August and $48.00 a year ago.

•Corn's $2.50 a bushel compared to $2.54 in August and $1.98 in September of last year.

•Soybeans were $6.87 a bushel, compared to $7.07 in August and $6.20 a year ago.

•Upland cotton was 58.5 cents a pound on a national average, compared to 59.2 in August and 56.2 cents in September 1978.

Area Ranch Managers To Meet

A wide range of ranching issues from fencing to computers will be discussed at the 17th annual ranch management conference at Vernon Regional Junior College in Vernon, Oct. 5.

More than 350 area ranchers and ranch managers are expected to attend the meeting which will feature 20 speakers, including university researchers, federal officials and industry representatives.

The event is sponsored by Texas Tech University; Texas Section, Society for Range Management; Texas A&M University System; Abilene Christian University; Soil Conservation Service, USDA; and the Rolling Plains Economic Program.

A $5 registration fee will include a barbeque lunch for conference participants. Registration will be held in the lobby of the college auditorium at 8:30 a.m.

The conference will open with introductory remarks by Dr. Tommy G. Welch, of College Station, Texas Agricultural Extension Service brush and weed specialist, followed by a brief welcome from Dr. Jim Fritze, associate dean of instruction, Continuing Education, Vernon Regional Junior College.

The morning session will be presided over by Jim Humphreys of Guthrie, manager of the Pitchfork Ranch, while Gary Mathis of Stamford, assistant manager of the Swenson Ranches Partnership, will preside in the afternoon.

The first speaker will be Dr. W. J. (Dub) Waldrip of Lubbock, general manager of Spade Ranches. He will discuss methods of reducing cost and maintenance in fencing.

Texas Tech speakers at the conference will include Bev Herndon, research associate in range and wildlife at Quanah; Dr. C. Reed Richardson, assistant professor of animal science; and Dr. Willie L. Ulich, professor of agricultural engineering. The three will talk on the impact of shredding frequency on mesquite control, use of mesquite as a feed source and harvesting mesquite.

Participants from the Texas Agricultural Extension service will be Norman Brints, area economist, and Dr. Whitney Rounds, area livestock specialist, both of Vernon; Dr. Ray Sammons, area economist, Amarillo; and Dr. Dennis White, area livestock specialist, Dallas. Brints will talk on benefits of improved ranch management, Rounds and Sammons will discuss the use of mini-computers on the ranch, and White will speak about ways to save on supplemental feed.

The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station will be represented by Dr. Rod Heitschmidt who will discuss economical beef production. Texas A&M will be represented by Dr. Bob Whitson who will talk on management and profits in ranch operations.

Two West Texas ranchers, Stanton Brown of the League Ranch near Benjamin, and Lawrence Harmel of Seymour, will speak during the conference. Brown will talk on keeping good production records and Harmel will discuss the use of accounting records on the ranch.

The cause of winter losses in kleingrass production will be discussed by Dan Caudle of Abilene, soil conservationist, and the market outlook will be presented by Bob Price of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association of Amarillo.

The conference will conclude at 4 p.m.

Democrats Slate Ag Issues Conference

United Press International

The Texas Democratic party will sponsor an agricultural issues conference in Lubbock Nov. 3 to develop an agriculture platform for the party.

"Democrats in Texas will once again come together to discuss one of the vital issues that we, as Texans, face today," said party chairman Billy Goldberg.

"We want to involve our large agricultural community in determining a more effective role for the Democratic party in solving their problems. Our state's past, present and future are inexorably linked to farmland and those who make their living from it."

Among the guests at the conference will be Dr. Lynn Daft, associate director of domestic policy staff of the White House; Larry Meyers, deputy director for congressional affairs of the U.S. Department of Agriculture; Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, Speaker Bill Clayton and former Attorney General John Hill.

In 1920, Oxford University passed a statue admitting women to degree programs.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

NATIONAL COTTON COUNCIL PRESIDENT Hoke Leggett this week urged implementation of recommendations by the President's Export Council to improve the Commodity Credit Corp.'s export credit program.

The Export Council called for an immediate increase to $1.6 billion from $800 million in the amount of CCC short-term export credit (GSM-5) in the budget for all agricultural commodities. It also recommended that the GSM-5 program be split from other operations and set up as a revolving fund.

"Both recommendations are in line with the president's directives when he appointed the Export Council last June," Leggett said. "He charged the group with providing advice on how to improve the nation's balance of trade and with exploring export policy and export problems of agriculture and business."

Leggett, a Hobgood, N. C., cotton producer, pointed out that export sales of cotton and cotton products and those of other agricultural commodities are strong factors to helping to keep the U. S. trade deficit from widening even further.

A SURGE IN IMPORTS, INCLUDING a record-setting cost for foreign oil, helped to widen the U. S. trade deficit to $2.36 billion in August, the government reported this week.

"Increased availability of short-term export credit will help move more U. S. cotton to overseas mills and thus improve the nation's trade balance," Leggett explained.

"At the same time, the program will result in no cost to taxpayers and the federal government actually may make a profit, since the loans are repaid with interest at commercial rates."

Leggett also praised a recommendation that the GSM-5 program be set up as a separate organization, noting that such an action would stabilize annual funding levels. Fluctuating levels of fundings have presented problems, he said.

The recommendation came from the Export Council's agriculture subcommittee. It was included in the subcommittee's report to the Export Council. That report, in turn, will be submitted to President Carter.

KELLY HARRISON, DIRECTOR OF THE Office of General Sales Manager in the U. S. Department of Agriculture, told the su bcommittee that fluctuating CCC export credit levels in the USDA budgets have hurt the program by making it erratic.

Because CCC outlays for commodity support programs increase in years when commodity prices are low, he explained, the CCC export credit funds shrink proportionately. He said USDA policy makers have been discussing a plan that would remove export credits from the CCC umbrella and create a self-sustaining program.

Previous attempts to do that have failed.

The CCC earlier this month announced increased interest rates under the export credit sales program as a result of boosts in bank prime interest rates.

The new rate for six to 36-month credit terms will be 13.50 percent for U. S. banks, up 2 percentage points from the previous rate, and 13.625 percent for foreign banks, up 1.125 percentage points.

ALL COTTON CLASSING CARDS for cotton classed this season at the USDA's cotton division office in Lubbock will be completely computerized.

Paul Dickson of Lubbock, area cotton division director of the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said this includes the cotton classification card (green card) and all office records.

Except for 10 gins involved in an instrument classing program, all cotton will continue to be classed manually, Dickson said. Classification cards submitted with cotton samples will be replaced with an eye-readable, machine-readable punch card.

Only the Lubbock cotton office will be affected. There will be no such changes at the USDA's seasonal classing offices at Brownfield, Lamesa and Levelland.

THE HOUSE THIS WEEK PASSED on a voice vote a four-year extension of the Export Administration Act.

The action capped several days of debate, during which efforts were defeated to place export controls on hides and to require export licenses for wheat, corn and soybeans.

Expenditures of $14.9 million over the next two years are authorized to carry out the act, which provides the basic authority for controlling U. S. exports of most non-defense products.

House conferees now must meet with their Senate counterparts to resolve differences between bills passed by both bodies. No date for the conference has been set.

SUBSTANTIAL WITHDRAWALS FROM certificated stocks had prompted heavy trade buying and short covering in the futures market prior to Friday's break downward.

During the week ended Thursday, 23,170 bales were removed from the certificated stocks. Nearby futures advanced 235 to 122 points in that period.

As of Thursday, there were 103,690 bales left in the stocks. The big gains in futures prices had paralleled the significant fall in certificated stocks available for possible delivery against futures.

David Brandon, president of Allenberg Cotton Co., said the drop in certificated stocks was a result of the lateness of the crop, tightness of spot cotton near-term, the inability of warehouses to meet demand, and the large portion of penalty cotton in the stocks.

As of Aug. 31, there were 81,461 bales classed as penalty cotton in the total certificated stocks of 153,804 bales.

Cotton Advisory Hears Report Seed May Be In Short Supply

LAS CRUCES — (Special) — Members of New Mexico State University's Cotton Advisory Committee, meeting recently in Las Cruces, heard that some cotton seed may be in short supply next year because of hail damage to seed fields and because some counties are down in acreage.

On ther positive side, Bob Oyler, assistant administrator of the New Mexico Crop Improvement Association, also told committee members more seed for 1517-E2 will be available and seed for 1517E-I is being increased this year.

In ther reports NMSU agricultural economist, Robert Lansford, discussed results of an economic study comparing picker and stripper harvested cotton in the Pecos Valley.

Lansford's study shows that a used spindle picker gave the best returns, a new stripper harvester gave intermediate returns and a new spindle picker gave the lowest returns.

Committee members then reported on the number of acres planted in cotton for their areas. Specifically, Carl Ed Day of Roswell reported his area has about 8,000 acres of cotton with 1 1/3 bales expected per acre. Day added that 60 percent of the cotton in the Roswell area was planted to stripper or once-over harvest varieties this year, compared with only 20 percent last year.

John Wilson of Artesia reported there are 5,400 acres of cotton left in his area after hailstorms destroyed about 1,500 acres. Wilson says the he expects some two-bale cotton in that area.

Bill Ahrens of Carlsbad reported 4,000 acres were destroyed by hail and 4,000 acres remain for harvest in southern Eddy County.

SENIOR NEEDS DISCUSSED

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two members of the House Select Committee on Aging will conduct a public hearing Saturday in Pittsburgh to study the problems older Americans face in meeting rising energy costs. "The hearing should prove to be an effective vehicle for not only providing information, but giving a valuable insight into the problems of the elderly," Reps. Eugene V. Atkinson, D-Pa., and Marc Lincoln Marks, R-Pa., said in a joint statement announcing plans for the session. The statement said the committee also will "investigate the responsiveness of the utility industry to the particular needs of the senior Americans."

Lamesa Exhibitor Takes Grand Champion Trophy

Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

After competing with about 105 steers, a Lamesa exhibitor took the grand champion trophy and prize money with her Limousin cross Friday at the Panhandle South Plains Fair junior steer show.

Angie Airhart of Lamesa showed the 1,166-pound animal, winning the first place in the heavyweight class and champion crossbred title prior to the top place win.

Exhibitors from Morton and Muleshoe also took divisional championships in the steer show while junior lamb winners came from Lubbock, Lamesa, Del Rio, Mullins and Seminole.

Alan Harrison of Muleshoe showed the reserve grand champion steer. The animal, also a Limousin cross, was reserve champion of the crossbred division.

The champion banner in the British breeds junior steer show went to Kevin Demel of Morton. Jerry Gleason of Muleshoe showed the reserve champion British breed steer.

In junior lamb competition, Sandi Dillingham showed both the champion and reserve champion in the fine wool class.

Melissa Harris of Del Rio exhibited the champion fine wool cross while Jene Nance of Lamesa had the reserve champion in that division.

Medium wool championship honors went to Bryan Shaw of Seminole and Amy Sanders of Mullin took the reserve medium wool champion banner.

Mark Frampton of Lamesa showed both the champion and reserve champion Southdown lambs.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures fell Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade, partly in reaction to the price gains of the previous day.

Analysts said some increase in cash sales of corn and soybeans by farmers led to commercial hedge-type sales of futures to lock in current price levels.

Traders anticipated further cash sales over the weekend, and commercials sold some contracts in anticipation of increased country movement.

The corn and soybean harvest was reported progressing well amid generally clear weather. Sharp futures price gains of Thursday were seen as unrealistic by some analysts because farmers are beginning what is expected to be a record harvest. Traders were eager to square their books before the weekend and many took profits on Thursday's gains.

At the close, soybeans were 6 to 15½ cents lower, November $7.12¼; wheat was ¼ to 5¼ cents lower, December $4.50¾; corn was 1½ to 3 cents lower, December $2.82½; and oats were 1½ to 2¼ cents lower, Dec. $1.57¼.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON
U. S. Department of Agriculture

Trading on the Lubbock spot cotton market Friday was slow to moderate. Supplies of cotton for sale were light to moderate and demand was moderate.

The Lubbock Cotton Exchange's spot quotations declined 50 points.

The base price of grade 41, staple 34, mike 3.5-4.9 was 61.35, up 25 points from one week ago. Grade 42, staple 32, mike 3.5-4.9 was quoted at 56.45.

Growers sold mixed lots around 1,075 to 1,275 points over 1979 loan rates.

LUBBOCK SPOT COTTON

Quotations are the approximate prices reported to the Agricultural Marketing Service for qualities equal to the U.S. Official Grade and Staple Standards. Prices are for micronaire (mike) readings of 3.5 through 4.9, in mixed lots, uncompressed, free of all charges in the warehouse in the market.

Price trend: lower on Friday.

Commissioners Sign Railroad Agreement

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Railroad Commissioners have signed an agreement with the Federal Railroad Administration for a $1.6 million rehabilitation of 13 miles of track between Wichita Fallas and Burkburnett.

Under the agreement signed Thursday, $1,153,728 will be provided by the federal administration and $539.35 by the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad.

All construction work will be done by the MKT maintenance forces and monitored by the state commission.

Railroad commission staffers recommended the agreement, saying if the segment was abandoned it could result in the loss of 1,300 direct jobs, 1,905 indirect jobs and a payroll of $30 million in Wichita Falls and the county.

Mart Prices Fall Sharply

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices fell sharply Friday in a wave of selling attributed by analysts to a variety of economic worries including record-setting gold prices and prime interest rates.

Unlike previous days this week, when the bad news was offset by surges in particular groups of stocks, such as oils and metals, the market found little Friday to slow its slide.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 8.88 to 878.58, bringing its total loss for the week to 15.36 points.

Declining issues led advances by a 9-5 margin on the New York Stock Exchange, where the composite index of common stocks fell .44 to 62.24.

Activity on the Big Board was a moderate 35.95 million shares, compared to 33.11 million on Thursday.

Black Families Want Back Land Taken In War

DISPUTED LAND — Peninsula south of Savannah was taken during World War II by the armed forces for defense purposes. The self-sufficient black families who lived there had to leave. Survivors claim the matter was fraught with racism. They want Harris Neck back. (NEA Photo)

HARRIS NECK, GA.(NEA) — Some years ago a group of impoverished black people claimed a chunk of America's good life here on the Atlantic seaboard. Approximately 70 families had their own self sufficient hamlet on this scenic peninsula south of Savannah.

They fished, they farmed. They had a school, a church, a fire department, a court house and a grocery store. Best of all, they essentially followed their own stars; they were blessed with an isolation that conveniently separated their property from the white-dominated beadledom on the mainland.

Then, quite suddenly and brutally, it all came to an end. During World War II the United States took Harris Neck for what was supposed to be the defense effort. The blacks were sent away, their homes were condemned, their land was confiscated. Of course, their way of life was destroyed.

It was an ugly, if little known, moment in the American experience. Even government authorities now admit its indecency. But though survivors of the incident have been battling for rectification since the day they were evicted, the U.S. has resolutely refused to give back any of the land.

The survivors, remnants of 20 original property owners, say the matter from the outset has been fraught with racism. Mary Moran, for one, a young woman at the time of eviction, says her family's home was taken "because we were colored." She says that's the way it was in America four decades ago.

"Lord, it was a bad thing," she recalls. "We'd all lived fine for years. We didn't bother no one and no one bothered us. Then one day, when the war started, somebody spread this rumor that enemy submarines were seen off the coast here. I remember that was the beginning of the end."

No one knows if the submarines really had been seen. Locals believed they were a lie invented by mainland whites who wanted to break up the Negro community. In any event, it was 1942, and the nation was taking no chances. The armed forces quickly appropriated Harris Neck to build a small airstrip.

"They came one Friday to tell us we had 48 hours to get out," says Mary Moran. The following Sunday an armada of heavy trucks and earth movers appeared. "Some folks were gone by then," she adds, "Some weren't. Those who weren't saw everything they had (their homes) busted apart in minutes."

The U.S. paid compensation, certainly. Mary Moran's family received $750 for 20 acres and a lifetime's investment. There were a few white residents at Harris Neck, and they were reportedly treated properly, but the average indemnification for black property was $7 an acre: some of it sold at $2.50.

Mary Moran says the low payments were "accepted "because we had no choice." Besides, the families believed the takeover was temporary. "They told us not to move too far away," she claims, "because we'd get the land back after the war. Well, we never got the land back."

When the war ended, the U.S. ceded Harris Neck to McIntosh County, the area's governmental jurisdiction. Federal officers now admit it was "a colossal blunder." Not only were the rightful owners of the land injured once more, the county did little other than abuse the federal largess.

The county was supposed to use Harris Neck for an airport; it did not. The county was supposed to leave the timber stands alone; it did not. Worse, in the bureaucratic sense, the U.S. charged county agents with allowing cattle dung to collect and chemically erode the federal airstrip.

Then there were allegations that McIntosh County Sheriff Tom Poppell was enriching himself with Harris Neck property. He was charged with taking $18,000 worth of goods from the place. He was also said to be conspiring to buy the land, cheap, and construct a luxurious commericial fishing resort.

In 1961 the federal government took the land back from McIntosh County. It still did not return it to the Negro families, however. In 1962 the 2,687-acre parcel was turned over to the Fish and Game Service, to become the Harris Neck Wildlife Refuge. And it remains to this day a haven for birds.

Mary Moran says to hell with the birds. She's joined by members of 20 families who owned property on Harris Neck, and they are currently preparing for a last ditch effort to win justice in the courts. The group wants its land back, the homes rebuilt, and $50 million for the "illegal" occupation.

No one is packing clothes or counting their recompense yet, however. An attorney for the complainants, Clarence Martin, says the matter may take 36 months just to get through the lower courts. Appeals may take six more years. It could be 1990, then, before the blacks go home; or it could be never.

Dogs Posing Threat To People

bies. She also urges better policing of breeders and more efforts by schools and mass media to alert people to the nitty-gritty of pet ownership.

"No one ever picked the burs out of Lassie's coat," she explains. "No one ever fed Lassie. All she did was bound photogenically over fences and rescue the little boy from the well.

"The dog is portrayed as something that can take care of itself. And this is part of why people are irresponsible."

If these relatively simple solutions fail to bring the dog population under better controls, says Miss Nowell, limits may be placed on pet ownership. For instance, a family might be assessed a stiff fee of $100 or more if it wanted to own more than three dogs and/or cats.

What about banning dogs — except for police and dog guide work — as has been done in parts of Iceland and China?

"I would hope it wouldn't happen," says Miss Nowell. "I think there are great useful needs to be served by people's having dogs. The most important one is that a dog gives a person love unconditionally."

Politician Named As Appeals Judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Abner J. Mikva, a member of congress from Illinois until Wednesday, is now a federal appeals court judge in the nation's capital.

Mikva, a Democrat, was sworn in Thursday as a judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia. The prestigious court often is called the most powerful court in the nation next to the Supreme Court. In Illinois, meanwhile, a special election will be called to find a replacement for the former congressman.

Malaysians Arrest Thailand Criminal

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Malaysian police have arrested a man believed to be one of Thailand's most wanted criminals, a drug dealer who escaped from a maximum security prison in Bangkok last year.

Abdul Rahman Ismail, Malaysia's criminal investigations director, told reporters Wednesday that the suspect, identified as Siri Sirikul, was picked up Tuesday night at a house in the Butterworth district of northwestern Malaysia.

Siri was serving a life sentence for drug trafficking when he escaped from the Thai prison. He also is wanted by West German police who claim he eluded a 1976 police ambush in Bremen in which they seized nearly 150 pounds of heroin.

BOSE Hi-Fidelity
Spatial Control Sound System

The Bose Spatial Control Sound System. The open, spacious sound of the Bose 901-IV Direct/Reflecting speakers is already legendary. The Bose Spatial Control Receiver gives you unprecedented control over that sound.

Wide position — Narrow position

Set the spatial control at "Wide" for the open spacious sound of an orchestra or a driving rock band. Slide it to "Narrow" for the more intimate sound of a soloist or small group. The receiver is automatically programmed to direct the sound to the proper place in the room. The control is in your hands.

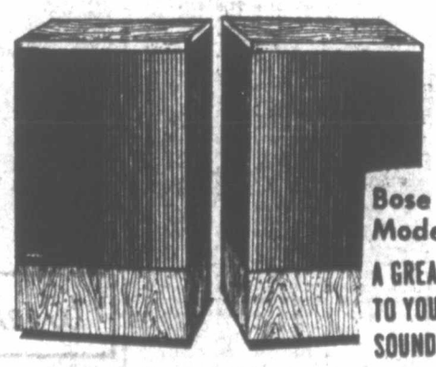

The Spatial Control Receiver has a built-in 901 equilizer. So we are able to save you money, because there is no need to buy the separate equalizer that normally comes with Bose 901 speakers. Still you get the equalizer's benefits.

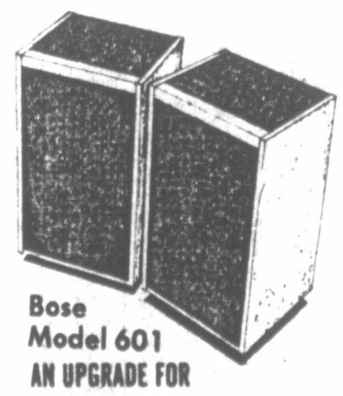

Special Source and Room Compensation Controls let you adjust 901 speakers for variations in room acoustics and recording quality. Hi Fidelity has put this system together with the Technics SL 3300 direct Drive Automatic turntable and Signet TK3E Handmade phono cartridge. To give you the ultimate in control over your music. $1878.00 SAVE! $155.00

ATTENTION FARMERS
Due to the extreme shortage of the nations number one selling tractors, the John Deere 4440 and 4640, we have combed the United States and managed to buy a few of these tractors. They are new and equipped like our customers want them. They carry the full John Deere factory warranty and our service.
Don't delay — We only have a very few of these tractors and the shortage promises to get worse as we go into the fall and winter, also all indications are for higher prices. Don't wait and be forced to pay more for less. If you need a different size John Deere, call us and we will attempt to find it for you. 9-29

TOOL AUCTION

2 P.M. each Sunday at THE TOOL YARD, 2327 E. 50th. St. Lubbock, Texas.

We have professional buyers and auction bird dogs in several large cities. Finding bargains in new and used equipment is the way they make their living, and they live very good. They can locate more good buys in a week than the average person could scare up in a year of gas burning looking. Come out any Sunday and let us show you the savings you may make by letting us do the work and you do the pricing.

As far as we know we are the only regular weekly tool auction in the nation, and we've been in business in this same location for over fifteen years so you know we must have something the public needs and appreciates.

Be warned ahead of time if you are a new customer, we sell, and you spend your money on tools, not a fancy building or a flashy location.

You are invited to be with us as a buyer, seller or just a spectator.

WHEN INTEREST RATES ADD UP, YOU NEED A NEIGHBORHOOD PROFESSIONAL MORE THAN EVER.

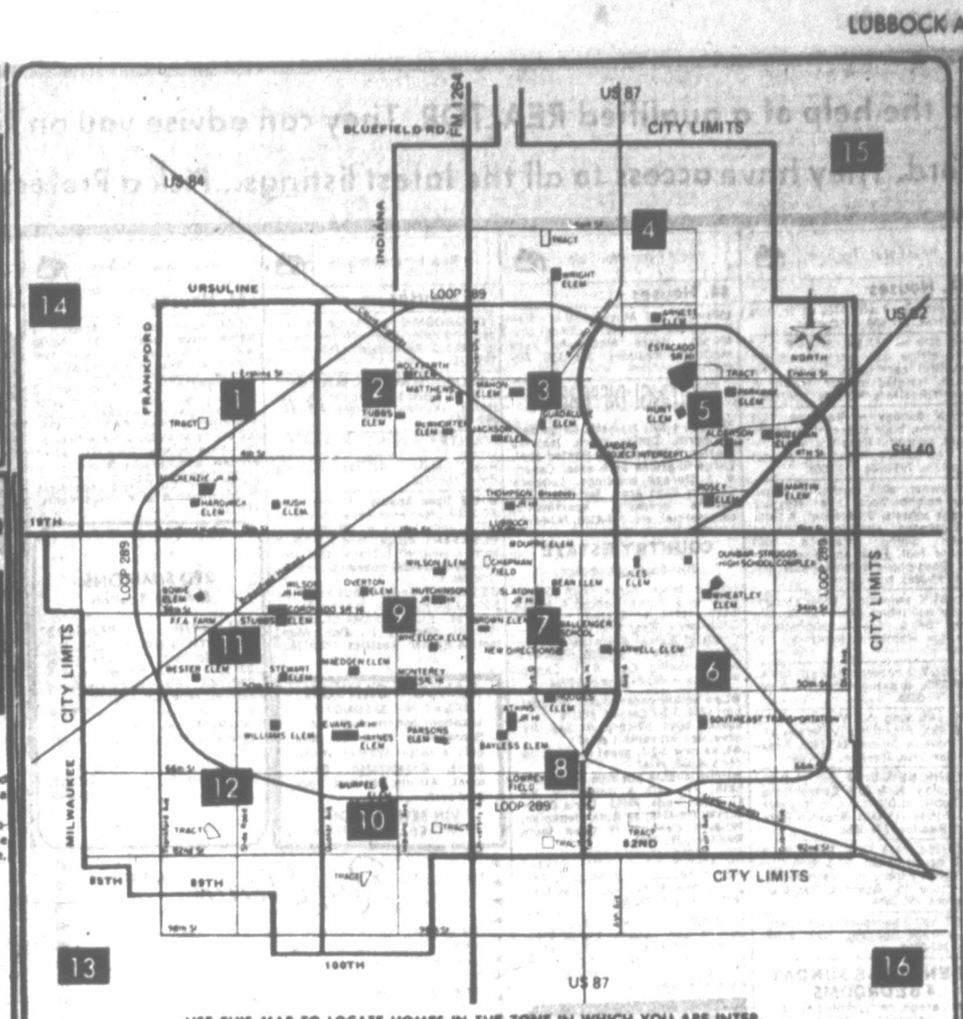

INTEREST RATES ARE HIGH AND MONEY IS TIGHT. IS THIS A GOOD TIME TO BUY PROPERTY?

At Century 21-Big State you'll learn such things as why interest and real estate taxes are deductible and how real estate can become a hedge against inflation.

When you decide to buy, a CENTURY 21-Big State Neighborhood Professional will help you prepare the offer, negotiate the terms and close the sale. Whatever is needed to make buying a home as simple as one, two, three.

Student At Estacado Suffers Stab Wound

An 18-year-old Estacado High School student suffered a superficial stab wound to his side during an incident at the school about 2:30 p.m. Friday, according to police reports.

Steve Barnard McGraw told police that he and a 17-year-old black female had argued earlier that day. The victim said the young woman wanted to fight with him that afternoon and that when he refused, she pulled a paring knife and stabbed him in the side.

Reports show that school staff members broke up the fight, and McGraw was treated at the school nurse's office.

An East Lubbock man told police that his ex-girlfriend rammed his car with her car in the 1900-block of Avenue S about 2:30 p.m. Friday.

Samuel Tatum of 1710 E. Colgate St. said that when he pulled up in front of the woman's car, she rammed his car and drove off.

Tatum described the suspect as a black female, 18 to 25, short and of medium build.

A 21-year-old dental technician said that a man exposed himself to her while she was walking in the 2800-block of Memphis Avenue about 7:45 a.m. Friday.

Reports show that the man had asked for directions to Lubbock High School and that when the woman gave him directions to the school, he then asked her if she wanted a ride. When the woman refused the ride, the man reportedly exposed himself to her.

The victim described the suspect as Mexican-American, 18 to 25 and thin. She said he was wearing a green shirt and red pants and driving a white, four-door Chevrolet.

Richard Shiers of 2601 Newcomb St. said that someone took his diamond rings and shoes, valued together at $1,700, from the green at the Hillcrest Country Club sometime between 1:30 p.m. Wednesday and 2 p.m. Friday.

James Findley, operator of a Fina service station at 3819 Idalou Road, reported that he found $145 in cash missing from the cash register Friday morning.

Philbert Richardson of 1801 E. 25th St. said that someone took a TV set and guns, valued together at $647, from his home sometime late Thursday or early Friday.

A Lubbock Christian College student who reportedly chased down a purse thief about 12:15 a.m. Friday in the 5600-block of 19th Street, lost his hold on the suspect after another man came to the alleged thief's assistance.

John May, who lives in Johnson Hall on the LCC campus, was beaten by the two men, resulting in his being taken to Methodist Hospital, where he was treated for minor injuries and released.

May told police he saw the man running across the campus with an LCC coed's purse, and caught the thief in an alley. However, another man arrived on the scene, and both suspects were able to escape, according to reports.

May described the suspects as Mexican-American men.

In a separate report, Roy Rucker, 40, of 3007 Emory St. said a man shot him in the nose in front of a club in the 800-block of 34th Street about 11 p.m. Wednesday.

Rucker, who was treated and released at West Texas Hospital, said he was asleep in a pickup truck in front of the nightspot when the gunman entered the vehicle.

Without saying a word, the man displayed a small pistol and shot Rucker before fleeing in an unknown direction, according to reports.

The victim described his assailant as black, about 6-feet-1 and weighing 240 pounds. The suspect reportedly had a long afro haircut.

An 18-year-old Lubbock woman told police she had to jump out of a moving car about 1:40 a.m. Friday at Main Street and University Avenue after the driver started making sexual advances towards her.

The victim, who suffered a laceration on the elbow when she jumped from the vehicle, said she was leaving a restaurant at 19th Street and Avenue X when she accepted a ride with the man.

However, the man allegedly told the woman after she was in the car that he was not taking her home, and then began grabbing at her. She said she was scared and jumped from the moving 1972 yellow Datsun.

The driver, who continued traveling north on University Avenue, was described as black, about 30, and wearing military service clothes.

Rickie V. MacDonald, a 17-year-old student at Coronado High School, said he suffered a loss of $500 when someone poured white paint over his car while it was parked at the school between 11 a.m. Thursday and 1:30 a.m. Friday.

A television set and $300 cash was reported missing by Stella B. Longoria after her apartment at 501 N. Ave. U was burglarized between 9 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Thursday.

Escapee Returned To Custody

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Ramiro Nino, 17, of Floyd County, who escaped from the Hale County Jail Wednesday afternoon, was back in jail Friday.

Nino was taken into custody by Floyd County authorities about 2 p.m. Friday in the northern part of Floydada. Floydada city police aided Floyd County deputies in the apprehension of Nino, who was taken back to the Hale County Jail.

Floyd County authorities Friday received a call telling them of Nino's whereabouts.

Nino and Francisco Ramirez, 18, of Plainview climbed a 6-foot chain link fence that surrounds the jail's exercise yard about 3:30 p.m. Wednesday.

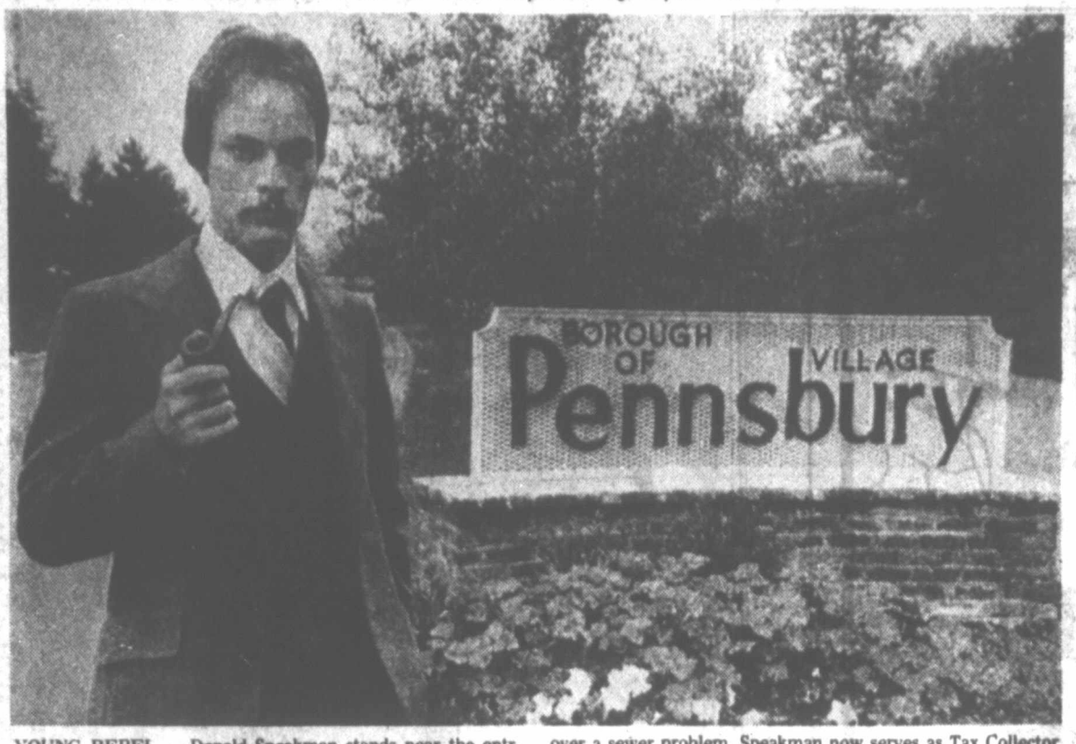

Ramirez was not in custody late Friday.

Nino, who was being held for auto theft in Floyd County, had been in custody for two weeks prior to the escape.

Proxmire Applauds Fed Rate Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., says the Federal Reserve Board was "exactly right" in raising its bank lending rate to a record 11 percent in an effort to slow inflation.

Proxmire, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, offered his compliments to Fed chairman Paul Volcker during a committee hearing recently. Volcker was there to testify in favor of legislation aimed at discouraging banks from withdrawing from the Federal Reserve System. "People are going to complain more and more, but your monetary policies are exactly right," Proxmire told Volcker.

YOUNG REBEL — Donald Speakman stands near the entrance to the Borough of Pennsbury Village, Pa. The Pittsburgh suburb was once part of Robinson Township, until it seceded over a sewer problem. Speakman now serves as Tax Collector in the condominium community. (AP Laserphoto)

Pennsylvania Village 'Happy' After Successful Secession

PENNSBURY VILLAGE, Pa. (AP) — At the borough council meeting last week only a few bored citizens showed up, eight at most. It was a sight for Don Speakman's sore eyes.

"Everybody must be happy," he mused.

He could remember a few years back when 200 or more jammed the room and they were anything but happy. They were there to fight city hall, a fool's errand, but they had fought anyhow. And they had won.

They had declared their independence, seceded, and had become perhaps the only condominium complex in the land to form its own lawful city and now everybody was happy. And bored.

"I guess that means it's working," Speakman said. He added, "Well, no two ways about it. It IS working."

Headlines about some community or another vowing to secede — from a city, a state, from adamant bureaucracy — appear from time to time in America and are quickly forgotten. Nothing seems to come of it.

Pensbury Vilage pulled it off.

The new municipality, the Borough of Pennsbury Village, is 48 acres with 503 condominiums in two-story brick and cedar units. The residents are mostly young couples starting out. Charcoal fires flavor the evening air; baby-sitting co-ops free young mothers for tennis; men gather in sunken living rooms for poker.

Don Speakman, 28, is the tax collector.

He was a natural for the job. Back when the residents had to raise $10,000 in legal fees to finance their rebellion, then $10,000 more, it was Speakman who rallied the rebels with the zeal of a missionary. He raised better than 99 percent of the goal.

"It wasn't hard," he said. "We were close-knit and had a common enemy, Robinson Township."

The issue was sewage.

Pennsbury Village, privately owned, was in the Pittsburgh suburb of Robinson Township. Four years ago the township ordered the village to hook into the township's sewer system. The law said that if a government-operated system existed, all had to tap in.

"It's a logical law," Speakman allowed, "but not in this case. We had our own system and it was better than theirs.

"They knew that. They just wanted our money to shore up their system. It would have cost us a huge sum to tap into an inferior system, then assessments to use our own lines. Ridiculous.

"We discussed it. We discovered that the only way we could avoid it was to become our own municipality."

Why not? Other services — water, heat, lights, garbage collection — were already provided through the condominium's "common charge" even though they paid property taxes to the township. If they levied their own property tax, it, unlike the common charge, would be tax deductible.

The court fight took two years. When word came down that they had finally won, the champagne party lasted until dawn.

"We have come out on top financially," the tax collector said, "but that wasn't really the point. The point was we want our money's worth. We don't mind paying for services but we want to get what we pay for."

Men, Horse Taken Into Custody Following Scene In Local Bar

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

You might say he was just horsing around, but that didn't stop police from taking him to the Lubbock County jail anyway.

It all started shortly before midnight Thursday at Lee's Lounge at 30th Street and Avenue H when the bartender refused to serve a man a drink because she thought he was too intoxicated.

So the man, apparently feeling the woman might at least water his four-legged friend, exited the club and re-entered on his horse.

"Will you please remove your horse?" the club manager asked the man. When he refused, police were called.

One of five officers dispatched to the scene said that when they entered the nightspot they found a "full-size" horse inside. Police ordered the man to take his horse outside, and, this time, he complied.

The man, who celebrated his 54th birthday Friday, was taken to the county jail on suspicion of public intoxication. His human companion was also jailed after police learned there was a warrant for his arrest on a bad check.

The horse also was taken into police custody and carted to the city animal shelter.

And then there was another club patron who was having a beer and minding his own business when the horseman galloped in.

When police arrived, they recognized the patron and took him to the county jail after learning there was a warrant out for his arrest for a traffic violation.

Some days it just doesn't pay to get up.

Senate Passes Bill Revising Drug Laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — The time required for gaining federal approval of new drugs would be shortened under a wide-ranging revision of U.S. prescription drug laws approved by the Senate.

Another part of the measure passed recently would give the Food and Drug Administration authority to monitor a new drug's performance after it goes on the market. The bill also would make it easier for the FDA to take a drug off the market, limit gifts from drug companies to doctors, require more information on drug labels, and make dozens of other, mostly technical changes. The bill now goes to the House.

PEOPLE PLACES THINGS

'Teddy' Song Recorded

NEW YORK (AP) — Teresa Brewer has recorded a song named "Teddy," which her record producer husband Bob Thiel says, "Kennedy and his people absolutely do not know about."

However, Thiel doesn't think Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and his supporters will be displeased. The verse starts: "Teddy, Teddy, I will follow you. Lead the way and we will see it through." And it ends: "My favorite guy ... If you say you're ready to fly, Teddy, you'll be No. 1."

The Massachusetts Democrat has said he is considering a bid for the presidency.

George David Weiss, who wrote "Mr. Wonderful" and "Oh, What It Seemed To Be," took his new effort to Thiel. The latter immediately put his favorite singer — who had a string of bright-voiced hits in the early 1950s — together with a Dixieland band on his Signature label. The record will be out and running next week.

Rock Singer Passes Out

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rock singer Elton John carried on in show biz tradition after passing out during a concert at the outdoor Universal Amphitheater.

ELTON JOHN

The 32-year-old British rock star doubled up at his piano Thursday night shortly after beginning the second of 10 sold-out show here. Stage hands led the singer backstage where an ambulance was summoned and he was revived. A short while later, he resumed playing and concluded the performance.

John, who made a triumphant tour of Russia last May, reportedly had been suffering from a bout with the flu and was in a generally weakened state, according to concert officials.

Spokesmen said he was expected to continue the concert series.

Pickpocket Aids Motorist

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — A Belgian driver gave a lift to a pickpocket and was glad he did, the newspaper De Standaard has reported.

The driver was driving at 81 mph on the expressway from Leuven to Liege when police stopped him for speeding. After giving the driver a ticket and checking the car's lights and tires, the officers let him go on his way, the newspaper said in its Tuesday edition.

The driver then heard his passenger say: "Don't worry. You won't have any ticket," and hand him the officer's ticket book, explaining: "I just left jail. I am a pickpocket."

Actress Doesn't Mind Aging

PARIS (AP) — Brigitte Bardot, the "sex kitten" who helped launch the sexual revolution nearly a quarter-century ago, doesn't mind that she turned 45 on Friday.

"After all, it's better to be old than dead," she said in a radio interview on the eve of her birthday. "What's important is to do the things you want to do, without saying 'I'm too old.' Age, after all, is part of life like everything else."

MISS BARDOT

Miss Bardot caused a sensation in the 1950s when she first appeared nude in a film, but she says things have gone too far since then.

"It's true I helped liberalize morals," she said. "I was one of the first to appear nude in a scene. But it was in the script, and it was natural ... Today, it has gone too far. I'm not a prude, but all this showing of human flesh on the beaches isn't beautiful."

The star of more than 20 movies said she planned a quiet birthday celebration Saturday at her Mediterranean home at St. Tropez, where she has lived for the past five years with sculptor Morozlav Brozeck.

Human Weed Eater

WILLOUGHBY, Ohio (AP) — Carmen DiPalma learned something during the Depression that's still saving him money. He eats weeds.

"I love to cook exotic things," he says. His culinary skills run to rose petal omelets, tiger lily fritters and cattail burgers.

He said he began eating weeds when his father died in 1936, leaving his mother, who could neither read nor write English, with four young children to support.

"My mother was born and raised in Italy where they, of course, did not have supermarkets," said DiPalma, a former chiropractor who now reads water meters for the city. "They ate what they could find out of necessity. It was that or don't eat at all."

The weed eater has no regrets.

"They did't have welfare at all in those days," he said. "You did what you could and I think we are better off for it. I will never have to worry about getting a meal some place."

He said gathering the right kinds of weeds can mean significant savings on the food bill. In a nearby field he gathers a weed which he substitutes for $3-a-pound coffee.

"I feel great about that," he said. "I am getting something for nothing."

'Nut' Throws Anvils

NEW CARLISLE, Ohio (AP) — Paul Wood admits his hobby is weird, but he says he has prehistoric instincts. He throws anvils.

His wife, Jo, says, "He's nuts."

This weekend Wood is competing in an anvil throwing contest at a Carriage Hill farm, which has been restored and is owned by Montgomery County.

"Hey, life gets boring and you need wierd things," said Wood, a 264-pound blacksmith and machinist.

"They used to have anvil throwing contests a hundred years ago — they really did — but as man got more intelligent they were discontinued," he said.

So why does Wood go around lifting heavy hunks of steel?

"I'm a prehistoric man," he joked.

The objective of anvil throwing is simple. It's simply to see who an throw the teel bloc the farthest. The circa 1800 anvil that will be used Sunday weighs 148 pounds, a medium weight as far as anvils go.

Drug Charges Dropped

MR. AND MRS. LEARY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Drug guru Timothy Leary and his wife, Barbara, weren't needed in court after all.

They had been scheduled to be arraigned Friday on charges of possessing dangerous drugs. But the district attorney's office said Thursday that drugs found by police in the couple's home last month were either prescribed or "not covered by the law."

The Learys were arrested last month after neighbors called police to complain of screams coming from the apartment.

Leary, 58, the drug guru of the 1960s and one of the first to advocate the use of LSD, recently launched a career as a comic "stand-up philosopher."

Comparing his drug experimenting to the first aeronautic efforts of Orville and Wilbur Wright, Leary says he and his wife "feel we're test pilots for our society."

Woody Hayes On Roll

FREMONT, Ohio (AP) — A local novelty toilet paper manufacturer is mopping up with tissue printed with a caricature of former Ohio State University football Coach Woody Hayes.

Chuck Laterza says even though Hayes left Ohio State nearly a year ago, the Woody paper is outselling by 2-1 similar tissue featuring Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler on each sheet.

Laterza says he plans to keep selling his Woody paper until the inventory of 1,500 rolls is depleted.

He said he will make more if Hayes decides to run for the Senate.

First Lady Backs President

PITTSBURGH (AP) — If there's one thing Rosalynn Carter is enthusiastic about, it's Jimmy Carter.

"He's a great president," the first lady told a $1,000-a-couple fund-raising dinner Thursday. "On issue after issue he's provided leadership and has consistently chosen to do what is right on very difficult and controversial problems.

"He didn't duck when politically it would have been better to have ducked."

Although Carter has not formally announced he will seek another term in office, the first lady has campaigned recently in South Carolina and Florida. She said Thursday she would continue making similar appearances across the country.

"We have decided on a date, but this is not the time for him to be a candidate," she said.

Views Agitate Union Leaders

BALTIMORE (AP) — The political views of actress Jane Fonda and her husband, Tom Hayden, apparently are too much for Baltimore labor leaders.

JANE FONDA

Local union leaders had been scheduled to meet the couple for breakfast Thursday, but the labor leaders cancelled the meeting, saying the couple's political views were a sore point with union members.

Thomas M. Bradley, president of the Metropolitan Council of the AFL-CIO, said Miss Fonda was too "controversial" and that the union disagreed with her opposition of nuclear power.

Miss Fonda and Hayden were in Baltimore as part of a 52-city tour to point out what they say are the dangers of nuclear power.

Poisonous Toad Found In U.S. Threatens Agriculture

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The Giant Toad, an amphibian that secretes a poison to defend itself, has been found for the first time in California in a creek bed near this Los Angeles suburb, state officials said recently.

"This amphibian contains one of the most virulent poisons known," said James St. Amant, a biologist for the state Department of Fish and Game. "The poison can cause temporary blindness and excruciating pain if you get it in the eye. The eggs are also highly toxic, and there are reports of human deaths in South America where frog eggs are sometimes used as a substitute for caviar."

A 4½-inch female Giant Toad was found in July by Nicholas Knox, 15, a Conejo Valley High School sophomore who was "scouting around looking for animals," fish and game spokesman Ralph Young said.

Knox turned the toad over to state officials, and it later died. A check of an area where Knox said he saw three other similar toads failed to turn up any additional Giant Toads, state officials said.

Young said the toads are a threat to agriculture, and the state Department of Food and Agriculture has circulated a warning to county offices. The Ventura County Health Department is also watching for the toads.

The brownish, yellowish, reddish toad, which grows up to 10½ inches long, has triangular glands behind its head which are studded with large pores, Young said. The toads can change color, he said.

"Incidentally, they kept one for years in the London Zoo, and they fed it live mice," Young said.

The toad is native to the Gulf of Mexico Coast and has also been introduced in Australia, Hawaii, Florida and other areas as a means of insect control.

"But in this case the treatment turned out to be worse than the disease," St. Amant said.

In Australia, he said, bounties are offered for the toad.

The toad is regarded primarily as a threat to insects or other predators that eat insects, and is not a serious threat to humans, state officials said.

It secretes poison only to defend itself — not to kill its prey — and St. Amant said dogs or cats that capture such toads have been known to die from the poison.

WHAT'S UP?

A capsule view of tastes, interests and attitudes

What's up in underdogs?

In most prizefights, the boxer with the better reputation wins. But occasionally it is the underdog whose hands are raised in victory.

These were the 10 most unforgettable upsets of all time, according to the "Big Book of Boxing" (winners listed first):

Underdog Spinks

1. Max Schmeling-Joe Louis (first fight)
2. Leon Spinks-Muhammad Ali (first)
3. Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston (first)
4. James J. Braddock-Max Baer
5. Muhammad Ali-George Foreman

What's up in sleep?

Sleep experts say there is much common sense in the old practice of counting sheep. If your mind is focusing on the image of sheep jumping over a fence, it will not turn to those anxieties that can keep you tossing and turning until morning.

Here are more tips for getting a good night's sleep from manufacturers of the new polyurethane-foam mattress:

— Keep your bedroom quiet and dark. If necessary, buy new blinds or drapes to keep out the light. When traveling, pack an eyeshade and earplugs.

— Best temperature for sleeping is between 60 and 68 degrees.

— It's difficult to sleep if your muscles aren't relaxed. Before turning out the light, stretch slowly and feel the gentle pull in all your muscles. Then take long, deep breaths.

— Hunger can keep you awake, so a light snack before bedtime may be advisable. But not a heavy meal or a stimulant such as coffee, tea or cola. Some doctors believe that the amino acid triptophan — found in milk among other foods — helps bring on sleep.

— Your mattress should be firm but not stiff. No matter what your weight, your shoulders, hips and lower back should be supported uniformly.

— Performing the same evening ritual — such as taking a warm bath — may help prepare you physically and psychologically for sleep.

— Go to bed only when you are sleepy. Your body will tell you when to call it a day.

— Get up if you are still wide awake after 20 minutes in bed. Do something not too stimulating that tires your eyes, such as knitting or reading a slightly dull book. Return to bed when you feel sleepy.

— Consult your doctor if you suffer from prolonged insomnia.

How much farther can O.J. Simpson run?

JUST ASK

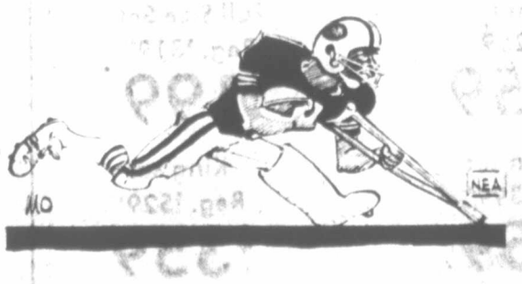

Murray Olderman

By Murray Olderman

The tipoff:

Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson, the linebacker who big-mouthed himself into notoriety at the last Super Bowl, worked himself temporarily into a spot on the bench of the Dallas Cowboys this season. The coaches, ignoring his words, haven't been happy with his spotty practice performances — and a tendency to stray from his assignments during a game.

Q. How many operations has O.J. Simpson had on his knee? How's he doing now? Does he have a chance to catch Jim Brown as the NFL rushing leader of all time? — Jack Callahan, Tulsa, Okla.

Simpson's left knee has been under the knife three times in the last two years. "And that's a lot of trauma," he says. The first surgery was for torn cartilage in November 1977. Almost a year later to the day, the doctors cut into the same knee to remove six pieces of cartilage. In follow-up surgery, a few days later they excised a tumor from behind the knee. The hinge will never be the same. Though he looked good carrying the ball in his first 1979 outing against Dallas, there's a noticeable drag to his gait and he plays in pain — just like a sore-armed pitcher — using ice after every workout. He started the season needing 1,537 yards to surpass Brown's career record on the ground (12,312 yards). I doubt he'll come close.

Q. On a televised Oklahoma game, it was stated that the Sooners' Billy Sims and David Overstreet were the No. 2 and 3 all-time leading rushers in Texas prep football history. We are curious as to who the No. 1 rusher is. — Geoff Brock, Jeff Daniel, Knoxville, Tenn.

The all-time Texas high school ground-gainer remains Kenneth Hall of Sugarland, Texas, known as "The Sugarland Express." From 1950 to 1953, he gained 11,232 yards. That's over two miles more than Heisman Trophy winner Sims gained at Hooks, Texas, where he rushed for 7,738 yards. Overstreet, from Big Sandy, picked up 7,652 yards as a prepster. Hall later played at Texas A&M and had short hitches as a pro with the Chicago Cardinals and Houston Oilers. But he never made much impact after high school.

Q. Exactly what kind of money do the television networks pay to televise professional football? I've heard that all the pro teams could let everyone free into their games and still make money. Is that true? — James Borg, Santa Barbara, Calif.

In round figures, each of the 28 teams in the NFL will collect $5 million for TV rights this season (they get a couple of hundred thousand more the next two years). That amounts to a nice kitty of $140 million from the three networks. At one time, they could meet their operating budget with such booty. But now the Oakland Raiders, for instance, have a player salary payroll of $4 million alone. The average team budget is about $8 million. Don't cry for 'em — they also figure to take in $6 million at the gate, leaving a round profit before taxes of $3 million.

Q. I noticed that in the starting line on offense for the Dallas Cowboys, all five players wore numerals in the 60's on their jerseys — Pat Donovan 67, Jim Cooper 61, tackles; Tom Rafferty 64, Herbert Scott 68, guards; John Fitzgerald 62, center. I thought the NFL had a rule that tackles had to be numbered in the 70s, guards in the 60s, centers in the 50s. Please explain this. — Amos R., Corpus Christi, Tex.

Centers do have to wear numerals in the 50s. But Fitzgerald, a nine-year veteran, gets a special dispensation because he played before the mandate went into effect. And guards and tackles are considered interchangeable, so they can be 60s or 70s.

Q. Has any major league pitcher ever thrown 27 strikeouts in a row — the perfect no-hitter? — Jim Dickinson, Reynoldsville, Pa.

No. The record for most strikeouts in a nine-inning game is 19, shared by Steve Carlton, Tom Seaver and Nolan Ryan. And none of those efforts were even no-hitters. In Don Larsen's "perfect" game for the Yankees over the Dodgers in the 1956 World Series, he fanned only seven batters.

Q. Has any woman played in professional football or baseball with men? — Junior Wilcoxon, Brownwood, Tex.

Not that I'm aware of. If the football barrier's ever broken, I'd say it would be by a woman placekicker. Of course, you had the spectacle of Ann Meyers trying out with the Indiana Pacers in pro basketball, with a guaranteed contract for $50,000. But that was just a stunt. She didn't have a chance competing with the big guys.

Parting shot:

It isn't strictly sports, but if you want a nice sociological ramble through the two decades and more that encompassed the playing period of Willie Howard Mays Jr., try Charlie Einstein's "Willie's Time" — an absorbing trek through the decades of the 1950s, 1960s and early 1970s.

Please send all sports questions to Murray Olderman, P.O. Box 6346, Incline Village, Nev. 89450. Because of the volume of mail, there will be no individual responses.

Captain's Body Removed Because Of Provision

DALLAS (AP) — For three decades, Captain Leo Francis Donohue II lived an adventurer's life at sea. Before he died 19 years ago, he asked to be buried in the Canal Zone, a land he loved.

Now, because of an obscure provision in the Canal Zone Treaty, the restless sea captain's body has been moved to a small Catholic cemetery in Dallas, the hometown he left for the sea.

"He had been happy down there and said he'd like to be buried there," said his widow, Edna, who lives with their son, Leo Francis Donohue III, in Virgina Beach, Va. "We were going to bring him home anyway as soon as we could. We are very glad to have him what we call back home."

According to a spokesman for the State Department, a Senate reservation to the treaty called for all Americans buried in Mount Hope Cemetary on the Atlantic side of the canal to be moved to the Corezal Cemetary north of Balboa on the Pacific side.

M.J. Spear said 1,126 bodies were moved to Corezal and 12 shipped back to the states at government expense. Six bodies were moved at family expense to other Panamanian cemeteries and 38 remained at Mount Hope at the request of the families.

Army Major Sam Floca at the Department of Defense said the bodies were ordered moved "so the American flag would be flying over the remains. There wasn't any hassle or anything."

Earlier this month, Donohue's body was unearthed from the scenic cemetery near Colon, Panama and returned to Dallas, where he was laid to rest Sept. 17 in the century-old Calvary Cemetery near downtown.

Born in Dallas, Donohue was a teenager when he left his landlocked hometown for the wandering life of a sailor. At 26, he became the youngest captain of any U.S. merchant ship.

During World War II, he repeatedly skirted through enemy ships on the hazardous North Atlantic run from Newfoundland to Europe.

Twice, he was torpedoed by Nazis, escaping injury. He never lost a ship, but relatives remember that he once managed to bring to port a half-ship — ripped in two by a torpedo.

"He loved the Canal," Mrs. Donohue said. "We looked on it as a living thing. He said he could go to sea and still be at home."

Family members recall the crowd of mourners who jammed the Panama funeral chapel and spilled outside when Donohue died.

Nineteen years, later, a dozen relatives were present when the wayfarer was laid to rest, hopefully for the last time.

He lies near his father, Leo Francis Donohue I, a Dallas business man who died in the Spanish influenza epidemic of 1918, and his mother, Margaret, who died in 1930.

Moved from the sun-kissed beaches of the land he loved, Donahue now lies nowhere near the sea. The closest sign of water is the muddy Trinity River, trickling through town five miles away.

Iran Cabinet, Oil Shuffle Reported

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan of Iran dismissed the head of the national oil company and reshuffled his Cabinet, naming a new defense minister and creating an oil ministry, Tehran radio reported in broadcasts monitored here Friday.

One broadcast monitored here said the national public prosecutor asked Bazargan to order Hasan Nazih, managing director of the National Iranian Oil Co., to report to the prosecutor within 24 hours, "to answer charges" following "repeated complaints" against him. The nature of the complaints was not specified.

Sources in Paris said earlier this week that Nazih was under surveillance and apparently in trouble. Friday's broadcast also said he had been replaced as oil company chief.

The new petroleum ministry is to be headed by Ali Akbar Moinfar, former budget and planning minister, the radio said.

Former chief of revolutionary affairs Mostafa Chamanh becomes defense minister, the broadcast said. He replaces Gen. Taqi Rihi, who resigned 10 days ago.

Darius Forouhar, former labor minister, becomes minister without portfolio, the broadcast said.

The broadcast said Ezzatollah Shabi had been named minister of state and head of the planning and budget organization, and Hoseyn Bani Asadi as minister of state for executive affairs.

LHS Westerners Hold Off Late Dunbar Rally

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Listen up Norman Vincent Peale and get an earful of what optimism is all about, pardner. Prof. Van Jefferson is about to teach a lesson in PT 133.

"If we'd had three more minutes, we'd won," said Dunbar coach Van Jefferson. "That's all we needed."

Jefferson said that, Norm, while Dunbar's first-team quarterback, James Nelson, walked by with an arm in a sling and 17 sophomores strolled right behind.

But Jefferson knows high school football games last 48 minutes and not the 51 he'd hoped for. So the Dunbar Panthers ran out of time and thus lost its fourth straight game of the season, this one to Lubbock High 21-14.

"I'm not blowing smoke when I say that we're going to turn this thing around," continued Jefferson. "I believe that. We looked better tonight than we did last week. And we looked better last week than we did the week before. Things are coming around."

By the time Jefferson was finished, he'd convinced everyone within earshot.

After falling behind 21-0 with 10:34 left in the game, the Panther offense began to come alive. Fabian Garcia started the rally when he scored from the eight yard-line to cut the LHS margin to 15 points, 21-6. However, the run for two extra points failed when Garcia was brought down just short of the goal. The impressive drive consumed 10 plays, 87 yards and a little over four minutes.

The TD was the first of the entire year for DHS, which had been held scoreless for 15 consecutive quarters.

Dunbar must have liked the taste of scoring because four plays later the Panthers got their hands back on the ball and began to march toward their second TD. It took DHS just six plays before Garcia scored his second touchdown of the game. After taking a pitchout from quarterback Kenneth Idom, Garcia headed right and with a burst of speed cut back up field for his 21-yard touchdown romp. Barry Pillow added the two-point conversion and the Panthers trailed 21-14 with 1:23 left to go.

But and onside-kick attempt failed and LHS simply ran out the last few seconds on the clock. Dunbar had no time outs remaining and LHS wasn't about to give them the ball back.

Red Raiders Going Hunting For Bear

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor

WACO — In all reality, today's excursion deep into the heart of Texas boils down to nothing more than a hunting trip for the Texas Tech football team.

And head coach Rex Dockery and his Red Raiders are coming to Waco loaded for bear — the Baylor Bears to be more exact.

The Red Raiders won't even have to track their game. The Bears are scheduled to show their hides at 2 p.m. on the artificial turf inside 48,000-seat Baylor Stadium. All Tech will have to do is figure out a way bring down its first Southwest Conference opponent of the 1979 season.

"We know Baylor is a good football team with some excellent people," Dockery said earlier this week. "This will be a conference game and I know both teams will be ready to play. Baylor already has a conference win and we need one badly."

The Bears are 1-0 in SWC action thanks to a 17-7 triumph over Texas A&M. Overall, Baylor is 2-1. The Bears opened the season with a 20-7 win against Lamar and lost a 45-0 decision to Alabama last week.

Tech is 1-1-1 against nonconference competition. The Raiders lost their season opener to top-ranked Southern California 21-7, came back the following Saturday to defeat New Mexico 17-7, and tied Arizona a week ago 14-14.

For the Red Raiders to bring back that trophy bear from Waco, their offensive unit will have to eliminate some of the costly little mistakes that have slowed it down on several occasions this year. Penalties and missed assignments have stalled Tech drives and the Raiders have worked hard this week to remedy the situation.

"We've had an excellent week of practice with a lot of good intensity from our players," Dockery stated Thursday. "The players have a lot of confidence in themselves and what they are doing. You have to have that confidence before you can expect things to go right."

Tech moved the football against Arizona — 326 total yards to be exact. Senior fullback James Hadnot, the fourth-leading runner in college football this week, had 141 on the ground against the Wildcats. Hadnot is averaging 129.3 yards per game.

Sophomore quarterback Ron Reeves had his most productive passing game of the young season against Arizona, hitting nine of 20 passes for 188 yards and two touchdowns, a 59-yarder to junior flanker Edwin Newsome and a 23-yarder to senior plit end Howie Lewis.

The play of Tech's wide receivers had to be a boon to Reeves' confidence. Newsome had a pair of receptions for 111 yards and one score and Lewis had four catches for 53 yards and a touchdown.

Reeves is currently the Southwest Conference's total offense leader with 147.7 yards per outing. Hadnot is fifth on the list with 129.3.

Baylor's offense has also had problems moving the football consistently this season. The Bears are sixth in the conference in total offense with 294 yards a game, 2 yards more per game than the Red Raiders.

The Bears are led by senior quarterback Mickey Elam, who played at Tech as a freshman, and sophomore tailback Walter Abercrombie. Elam is a quick runner who can hurt a team if he is allowed to get outside. Abercrombie has run for 223 yards in three games and is tough inside and can move around flanks.

Defensively, the Bears have one of the finest linebackers in the country in 6-1, 225-pound junior Mike Singletary, an all-America as a sophomore. Singletary is joined by tackle Gary Don Johnson, end Andrew Melontree and free safety Vann McElroy in leading Baylor's stubborn defense, presently fifth in the conference in total defense (334 yards per game.)

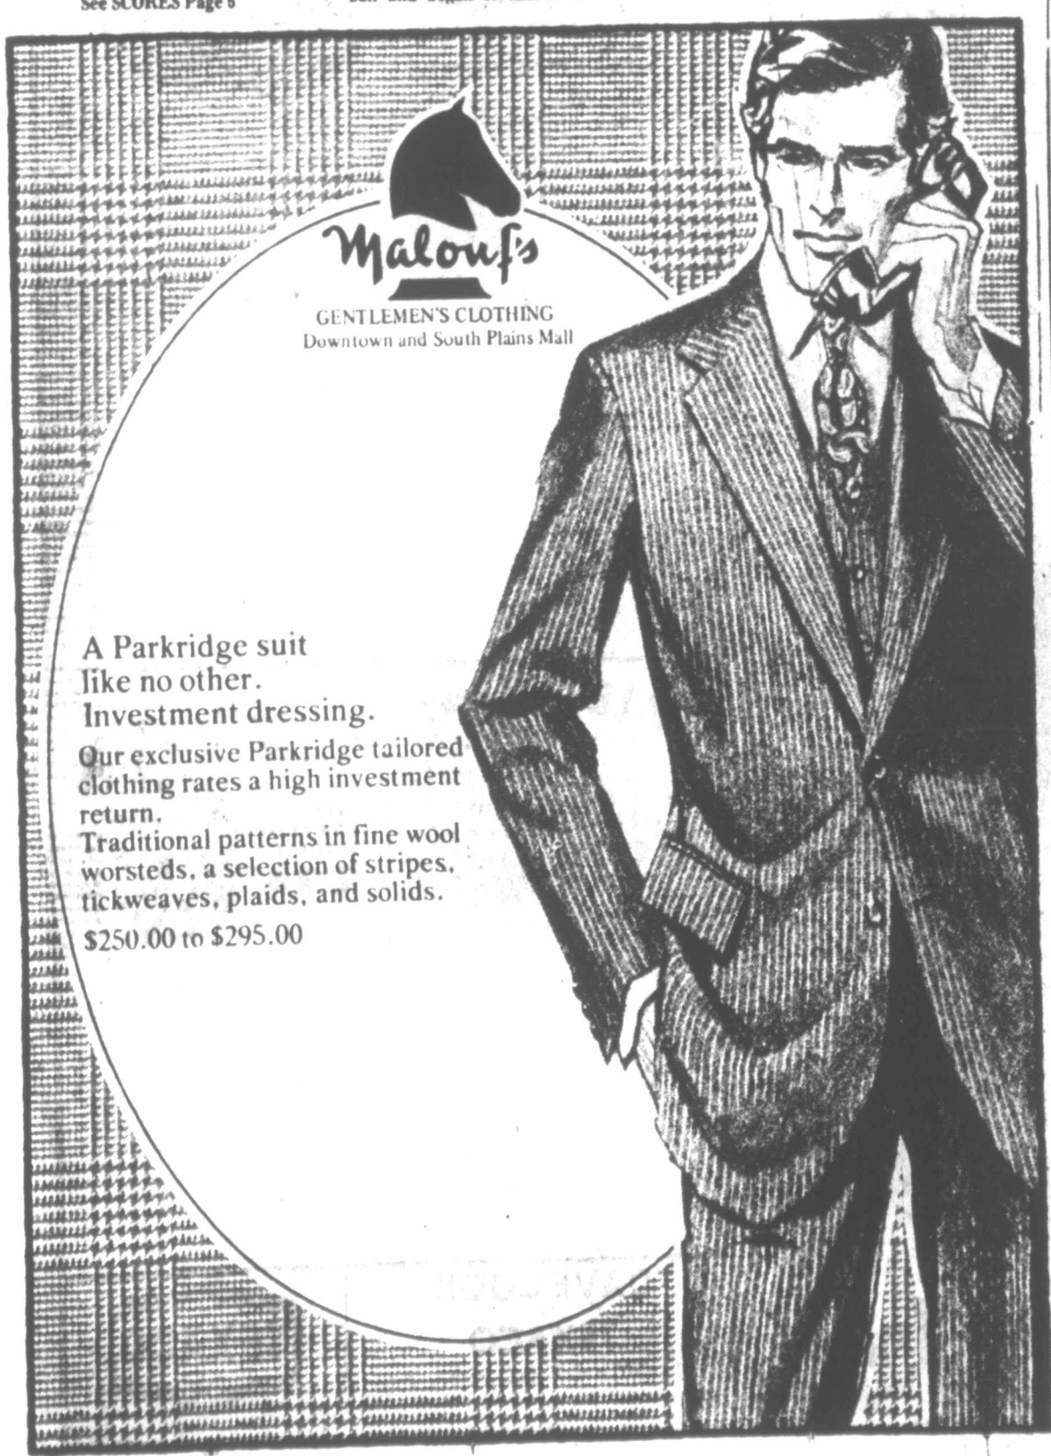

The Raider defense has yielded 339

Second-Half Scores Propel Abernathy To Win

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

ACUFF -All it was was a minor adjustment, but like the commercial says "Just a touch means so doggone much".

When Abernathy coach Larry Aldridge found out he could release his tight ends inside, that freed his tackle to block on the Roosevelt linebackers.

But enough mumbo-jumbo, the bottom line had the Antelopes taking a 21-7 victory on three second half touchdowns Friday night.

The Abernathy offense, which was limited to a mere 39 yards rushing in the first half, turned loose the horses in the second, rolling up 219.

Rather, make that turned loose the horse. The horse was Sylvester Dunn, a 160-pound junior halfback. After carrying only five times for 29 yards in the first half, he finished the night with 184 on only 18 tries. Included in that total were scoring runs of two and 63 yards.

The difference was that one little adjustment.

With those linebackers negated, Dunn popped the middle cleaner than wet watermelon seed, and with his speed he was often through the secondary before the startled defensive backs could react.

And Aldridge and the Antelopes took advantage of it.

With the score knotted 0-0 coming out of the locker room after the halftime Abernathy received the opening kickoff and went quickly to work.

Dunn cracked for 37 on first down, then for six more to take the ball to the Roosevelt 31 and set the tone for the drive.

Abernathy marched downfield to a first down on the Eagle 10, but with a third down and three to go for a score, the Antelopes were slapped for offsides. A Tony Heath pass fell incomplete and then the quarterback was sacked for a nine-yard loss while trying to pass on fourth down, ending the threat.

Why Abernathy took to the air on third and five is not real clear. At that point Heath had completed only one of seven passes — not that his throws weren't sharp, his receivers just couldn't hold onto the ball.

That strategy question was made pointless though, as on first down Roosevelt running back Junior Vasquez fumbled the ball. Abernathy recovered for a first and goal from the seven.

Sanders hit off tackle to the two and then Dunn whammed inside for the score. Willie Betts' extra point was good, making the score 7-0.

Roosevelt made some adjustments of its own as the Eagles took the ensuing kickoff and moved quickly downfield to tie the score.

With a first and goal from the Abernathy nine, it appeared Roosevelt might be in trouble when Beck was stopped for a two-yard loss and threw incomplete on second down.

He then gained four to set up a fourth and goal at the six. Beck took the snap from center and rolled quickly to his right, apparently looking for running room.

As the defense sucked over to stop the run, he stopped, pivoted and threw back to wide reciever Johnny Adkins who had dropped back behind the line on the wide side of the field awaiting the screen pass. He caught the ball, split his blockers and was met by three Abernathy defenders at the goal line. He had the momentum though, and fell over for the score. Junior Vasquez kicked the extra point to tie the game going into the fourth quarter.

Another Roosevelt mistake set up the winning touchdown. Vasquez had trouble fielding a high snap from center on a punt and shanked the kick out of bounds after only two yards.

With a first and ten from the Eagle 30, Sanders carried once for two. After that Dunn toted the ball five straight times for 27 yards to set up a fourth and goal from the one.

The Antelopes switched horses in midstream and sent Carraway diving over the line for the score.

Dunn clinched it with only 2:28 remaining as he popped free on another dive and sprinted 63 yards through the heart of the Roosevelt defense for another touchdown.

CTK Holds Off New Home Rally 37-26

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

It was, without a doubt, the longest fourth quarter in the history of Texas high school football.

And plenty of beards were grown in the stands during the Christ The King-New Home battle at CTK field Friday night. The contest yawned on for exactly 2 hours and 52 minutes.

But when it was all over, the Trojans had survived a last minute Leopard rally and a flurry of yellow flags to post a wild 37-26 victory over New Home.

The Trojans are now 2-1 on the year while New Home falls to 3-1.

For the first three quarters it was all CTK — then something went wrong. Leading 25-0 as the fourth quarter started, it looked like all the Trojans had to do was send in the reserves and watch the final 12 minutes tick away.

But NOOOOOOHHHHH.

The officials saw to that. The Trojans were whistled nearly once in every series to keep Leopard drives alive time and again.

Toss in a couple of blocked kicks — both converted into New Home touchdowns — and you have the makings of a comeback. Of course when you're down by 25, it takes a heck of a rally.

But let's take a look at the first half. After a scoreless first quarter, the Trojans scored three TD's in the final 6:09 of the second period to put the game on ice.

First Steve David broke loose on a 10-yard gallop to put CTK up 6-0. Only a minute and a half later, quarterback Darrell Kitten teamed up with Matt Washburn, who made a pretty over-the-shoulder snag for a 45-yard TD. Minutes later Wayne Supak scored on a 13-yard burst around the left end and the Trojans were up 19-0.

Kicker Craig Wilson had converted on one-of-three extra point attempts. At the intermission the Trojans had piled up 244 yards of offense to only 67 for the visitors.

The third period was uneventual — but it was just the calm before the storm. The only score came on a 5-yard Supak run. Again the conversion attempt failed and it was 25-0.

Finally New Home got on the board when quarterback Mickey Keith snuck over from the one. The two-point conversion failed but, surprise, another penalty. On the second attempt, Keith again took it in — 25-8.

But the Leopard elation didn't last long. Steve David returned the ensuing kickoff 81-yards for yet another Trojan TD. As usual the kick failed — 31-8.

Besides his kickoff return David was also the Trojans leading ground-gainer, picking up 101 yards on 16 carries. Washburn was the leading CTK reciever with four snags for 98 yards.

But New Home scored on the next drive. Quarterback Keith hit Robert Estrada for a 43-yard scoring strike. Again the conversion failed — 31-12.

CTK came right back with Wayne Supak scoring on a double reverse from 17-yards out. And guess what? The conversion failed — 37-14.

Keith again found an open man, this time it was Randy Roberson who rambled 28 yards for the score. That made it 37-20 following the standard missed conversion attempt.

And then, just for grins, the New Home defense blocked a CTK punt that Mickey McClintock fell on in the end zone. Again the conversion failed and then, mercifully, the Trojans were able to run out the clock. The game was finally over.

New Home attempted 22 passes in the second half, 16 in the final quarter. Eight of those were completed. But if you think the New Home QB suffered a sore arm, consider the officials. CTK was penalized 11 times in the second half alone.

'Roos Stick 'Rabbits In Pouch 32-8

RALLS (Special) — Everyone expected things to be hopping when the Kangaroos of Kress came to town to play the Jackrabbits of Ralls. But the Kangaroos got a quick jump on the Jackrabbits and soon had the game in their pockets, coming away with a 32-8 thumping of Ralls.

Kress is now 2-2, while Ralls falls to 1-3.

Kress had a 9-0 lead at the end of the first quarter, thanks to an 21-yard field goal by Henry Amador and a 43-yard run from scrimmage by quarterback Glen Terrel. Two TDs by Eddie Johnson, on runs of 2 and 78 yards, and a 51-yard interception return by Albert Alcozar completed the Kress scoring attack.

Ralls tried to get back in the ball game with an 80-yard bomb from Keith Webb to Avie Garcia in the second quarter — but could manage no other points until linebacker Lloyd Arthur sacked the Kangaroo quarterback for a safety late in the contest.

Petersburg Blitzes Longhorns 30-0

HART (Special) — It was all Mike Phillips in the first half Friday, with the Petersburg tailback scoring three times on a 75-yard pass and runs of 26 and 33 yards to lead his team to a 30-0 whitewashing over the Hart Longhorns.

Final scoring was completed by wingback Quentin Berry's 10-yard scamper in the third quarter, and a 12-yard pass from Todd Shurbet to end Eric Sell in the final period.

'Cats Massacre Southland 48-10

WELLMAN (Special) — Paced by halfback Ty Paris' 100 yards rushing and three touchdowns, the Wellman Wildcats celebrated homecoming Friday night with a 48-10 whipping of the Southland Eagles.

Wellman's scoring attack was balanced, with Paris' three TDs complimented by two from Freddy Martinez and one each from both Rodney Brashers and Mark Whitfield.

Jal Pounds Ruidoso 34-6

JAL (Special) — The game looked pretty even from the statistics. But statistics have never counted as much as points on the scoreboard, and from that standpoint it wasn't even close as the Jal Panthers beat the Ruidoso Warriors by a 34-6 margin.

Jal wasted no time in making its presence known, scoring on the first play from scrimmage on a 58-yard run by Brent Gage. Craig Summers followed with a 12-yard scamper, and quarterback Allan Dobbs' two-point conversion gave the Panthers a 14-0 lead.

Whirlwinds Defeat Olton

OLTON (Specil) — Floydada's Whirlwinds moved to their third win in four tries for the year with a 14-0 win over Olton here Friday night.

Mac Collins trudged one yard for the initial TD for Floydada, and 23 yards for the second.

Hale Center Owls Defeat Springlake-Earth Wolverines 19-0

By ERIC GALE
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

EARTH — It was an offensive display minus the display.

The Springlake-Earth High School football team's offense performed without making a sound during its 19-0 defeat at the hands of Hale Center Friday night.

The Wolverines were held to minus 2 yards total offense without a first down during a first half that found Hale Center leading 6-0 on a Gordon Compton 1-yard touchdown plunge with 10:03 left in the second period.

The Springlake offense found little more maneuvering room in the second half as it accumulated a meager two first downs and 24 yards total offense for 24 minutes worth of work.

"We were trying to take away their wishbone offense and option plays," said Skip Humphreys, Hale Center coach. "We put our ends on the outside and brought them in hard to key on their quarterback. We were successful, but I didn't think we'd shut them down that well."

The Wolverine defense, overburdened and forced to remain on the field for long stretches of time, performed admirably and yielded only 12 first downs the entire game. The Owls managed to sustain only one long scoring march the entire game and that was the 30-yarder that culminated in Compton's first half score.

Hale Center scored twice in the third period on Compton's second 1-yard run following a blocked Wolverine punt inside the 5-yard line, and Melvin James' 45-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Freddy Palacios.

"Springlake was the second-leading ground gainer in the Panhandle going into this game," Humphreys said. "They're nothing to sneeze at. But we took away their fantastic speed and turned loose some good, good defensive pressure against them."

Hale Center is 3-1 while Springlake dropped to 1-2-1.

Undefeated Idalou Routs Lorenzo

IDALOU (Special) — Idalou running back Alan Emery scored four touchdowns, kicked four extra points and rushed for 136 yards to lead the undefeated Wildcats to a 42-12 romp over the Lorenzo Hornets Friday night.

Idalou, of District 4-AA, is now 4-0 for the year, and Lorenzo of District 4-A is 0-4. It was Idalou's homecoming.

Idalou scored first when running back Ruben Reyes ran the ball in from three yards out. The extra point kick by Emery was good. Lorenzo came back to score later in the first quarter when quarterback Bobby Brown threw a 51-yard touchdown pass to receiver Joe DeLeon.

Idalou scored three times in the second quarter on 10 and 12 yard runs by Emery and a 4-yard run by Reyes to put the Wildcats ahead at the half, 28-6.

Emery scored again on a 65-yard scamper in the third quarter. In the fourth quarter reserve quarterback Tim Debusk threw a 10-yard pass to wide receiver Craig Burlesmith for a score. After a penalty.

Tahoka Defeats Golden Cranes

CRANE (Special) — Tahoka tailback Tracy White rushed for 204 yards and scored three touchdowns Friday as the Bulldogs whipped the Crane Golden Cranes 33-14.

After a scoreless first quarter, quarterback Todd Brown raced 5 yards for Tahoka's first touchdown. The extra point kick missed.

Later in the quarter White ran 13 yards for a score. The extra point kick by Kevin Elmore was good, and the Bulldogs lead 13-0 at haltime.

White scored again early in the third quarter when he galloped 66 yards for a touchdown. The kick by Elmore was good. Late in the quarter, Brown also scored on a 16-yard run to give the Bulldogs a 26-0 lead.

Crane got on the scoreboard early in the fourth quarter when Joe Sherman ran the ball in from 1 yard out. The kick for the extra point by Johnny Gonzales was good.

White scored for Tahoka again on a 17-yard run.

Silverton Upsets State-Ranked Horns

SILVERTON (Special) — The Silverton Owls upset state-ranked Lazbuddie Friday 6-2.

Silverton is now 3-1 for the season, while Lazbuddie is 2-2.

The Owls got their six points in the first quarter after Lazbuddie fumbled the ball inside their own 20-yard line. Running back Bobby McPherson ran one yard for the touchdown, but the extra point kick missed.

Outstanding defensive players for Silverton were middle linebacker Kelly Comer, who had 14 tackles, and guard Mike Cornett, who had 11.

Colorado City Ties Post Antelopes

COLORADO CITY (Special) — Post and Colorado City scored two touchdowns each within five minutes in the second quarter but couldn't crack the end zone the rest of the game and finished the game in a 14-14 tie here Friday.

Post scored first when tailback Lance Atkins bulled over from 2 yards out after the Antelopes had driven 75 yards at the beginning of the second quarter. Larry Rodriguez kicked the extra point to give Post a 7-0 lead at 10:26 in the period.

The Wolves struck back quickly, though, as halfback Jay Green bolted 78 yards off right tackle on the second play after Post's kickoff. Britt Chaney converted to tie the score.

But the Antelopes weren't to be outdone as Jackie Ayala took Colorado City's kickoff and raced 85 yards for his team's second and final touchdown.

Panthers Down Jaguars

WHITHARRAL (Special) — Thanks to a powerful display of running by Albert Lopez, the Whitharral Panthers scored 38 unanswered points in the second quarter and went on to beat the Guthrie Jaguars 52-18 Friday night.

Lopez had touchdown scampers of 52, 47, 3 and 7 yards in the second quarter.

Lamesa Succumbs To Hobbs 13-0

HOBBS, N.M. (Special) — Hobbs scored its first and second touchdowns of the season here Friday to shut out winless Lamesa and claim its first victory of the year 13-0.

Hobbs notched its first tally in 15 quarters this season when quarterback Marty McIlroy plunged over from 1 yard out in the third quarter. Barry Woods kicked the extra point to give the Eagles a 7-0 lead.

Woods accounted for the game's other score when he knocked in from 1 yard out in the 4th quarter. That extra point attempt failed.

Running Backs Lead Sudan By Matadors

MATADOR (Special) — Halfbacks Victor King and Joy Bellar each scored two touchdowns to lead the Sudan Hornets to a 37-8 stinging of the Motley County Matadors.

Sudan is now 3-1, while Motley County drops to 1-3.

A 3-yard pass from Hornet quarterback Kevin Fisher to tight end Odell Johnson put the first points on the board. But the second quarter saw the Sudan lead padded with three scoring runs, one by Troy Moss and two by Bellar.

Motley County avoided a shutout when quarterback Julian Zabielsky threw a 30-yard scoring pass to Dennis Gwinn.

Western Hills Defeated

THREE WAY (Special) — Running back Mike Nichols galloped 134 yards on 9 carries to lead his hometown Eagles to a 55-8 smothering of the Western Hills Eagles in a non-district six-man game, upping Three Way's record to 4-0 while Western Hills dropped to 0-4.

Nichols struck first in the first period when he leaped over from the 10-yard line, followed by a successful PAT by kicker Tommy Brown.

Holmes Outlasts Shavers For Heavyweight Title

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Larry Holmes got up from two knockdowns and battered an exhausted Earnie Shavers into submission in the 11th round Friday night to retain the World Boxing Council heavyweight championship in a savage brawl at Caesar's Palace.

It was a war, and both fighters looked like they were fighting in slow motion in the last couple of rounds.

The end came after Shavers absorbed 20 or 30 punches to the head in the 11th round. Referee Dave Pearl lifted Holmes' hand in victory as Shavers staggered to the ropes, his hands at his side. The time was 2:00.

Holmes didn't look like a winner until the 11th round. He went down in the seventh and again in the ninth, but Shavers didn't have the strength to keep him down or to put him down again.

Holmes was in control of the fight through the first six rounds, as he made use of his hand and foot speed, using all the ring. He tired Shavers.

Then suddenly with about 45 seconds left in the seventh round, Shavers shot a short right hand to the side of the jaw that dropped Holmes in a neutral corner. The champion jumped up immediately but obviously was hurt.

Shavers moved to the attack, but he was so tired he couldn't take full advantage. He landed some punches in the final seconds, but so did Holmes as both men staggered about the ring.

Holmes seemed to get his rhythm back in the eighth round when he landed several good jabs and six or seven head shots.

In the ninth, Holmes landed a right, a left-right and another right to the head that drove Shavers into the ropes. Several more head shots including four good right hads and a one-two moved Shavers across the ring.

Suddenly, Shavers threw a roundhouse right that caught Holmes and put him down. He got up at four and lasted the round.

Holmes, who weighed 210 pounds to 211 for the 35-year-old Shavers, hurt the challenger with two rights and a left-right in the 10th. Referee Pearl suddenly waved Holmes away, then quickly waved him back. The referee explained between rounds that he had mistakenly thought the bell had rung.

He battered him at will with both hands as Shavers had difficulty keeping his hands up. His legs were just as leaden as his arms.

At one point in the 11th, Holmes turned to Pearl and said, "Stop it."

A few seconds later, Pearl did, as Shavers stood helpless along the ropes, his bid to become the second oldest heavyweight champion in history foiled.

Flashy Leonard Scores First-Round Knockout

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard unleashed a flurry of lightning shots to the head and knocked out Andy Price in the first round of a scheduled 12-round welterweight fight Friday night.

Leonard's sensational performance came on the undercard of the Larry Holmes-Earnie Shavers heavyweight title bout at Caesar's Palace.

Leonard's victory was in defense of the North American Boxing Federation title. The unbeaten former Olympic champion is scheduled to fight for the WBC welterweight championship against Wilfredo Benitez here on Nov. 30.

Price, who holds decision victories over former champion Carlos Palomino and current World Boxing Association champion Pipino Cuevas, was supposed to be a tough test for Lenard. He didnt' have a chance.

Leonard pounced on him and unleashed a barrage of head punches, the last two being a right and a left. Price went down in a neutral corner and was counted out as he feebly tried to rise. The time was 2:52.

After the 10-count was reached by referee Harry Krause, Price dropped flat on the canvas, where he remained until he was revived by smelling salts.

Leonard, 146, of Palmer Park, Md., boosted his record to 25-0 with 16 knockouts. It had to be his most impressive performance.

Spur Bulldogs Tie Jayton Jaybirds

SPUR (Special) — The Spur Bulldogs scored a touchdown in the final quarter but missed an extra point attempt to tie the Jayton Jaybirds 6-6 here before a Homecoming crowd Friday.

Jayton jumped to a 6-0 lead in the 3rd quarter when Jaybird tailback Jimmy Smith streaked 45 yards off tackle. The two-point pass attempt fell incomplete, giving the visitors a 6-0 lead.

San Angelo Lakeview Upsets Brownwood

BROWNWOOD (Special) — The surprising San Angelo Lakeview Chiefs booted a 30-yard field goal in the second quarter and hung on to shut out traditional AAA power Brownwood 3-0 on the Lions home field Friday.

Lakeview drove from its 20 to the Lion 20 after blocking a Lion field goal attempt. The drive stalled and Dereck Rushing booted the 30-yarder to score the only three points of the contest.

Brownwood racked up several penetrations but the stubborn Chief defense stiffened each time.

Major League Roundup

Reds Clinch NL West On Astro Loss

By the Associated Press

Steve Garvey slugged a grand slam home run in the bottom of the eighth inning to lift the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 6-5 victory over Houston, eliminating the Astros from the National League West race.

Reds 3, Braves 0

The Cincinnati Reds clinched the National League's West Division title as rookie Frank Pastore, banished to Cincinnati's Triple A farm club in mid-season to work on his breaking pitch, shut out the Atlanta Braves 3-0 on four hits.

Pirates 6, Cubs 1

Dave Parker hit a two-run homer and Jim Bibby pitched a four-hitter to lead Pittsburgh to a 6-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs, reducing the Pirates' title-

Holmes Outlasts Shavers For Heavyweight Title

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Larry Holmes got up from two knockdowns and battered an exhausted Earnie Shavers into submission in the 11th round Friday night to retain the World Boxing Council heavyweight championship in a savage brawl at Caesar's Palace.

It was a war, and both fighters looked like they were fighting in slow motion in the last couple of rounds.

The end came after Shavers absorbed 20 or 30 punches to the head in the 11th round. Referee Dave Pearl lifted Holmes' hand in victory as Shavers staggered to the ropes, his hands at his side. The time was 2:00.

Holmes didn't look like a winner until the 11th round. He went down in the seventh and again in the ninth, but Shavers didn't have the strength to keep him down or to put him down again.

Holmes was in control of the fight through the first six rounds, as he made use of his hand and foot speed, using all the ring. He tired Shavers.

Then suddenly with about 45 seconds left in the seventh round, Shavers shot a short right hand to the side of the jaw that dropped Holmes in a neutral corner. The champion jumped up immediately but obviously was hurt.

Shavers moved to the attack, but he was so tired he couldn't take full advantage. He landed some punches in the final seconds, but so did Holmes as both men staggered about the ring.

Holmes seemed to get his rhythm back in the eighth round when he landed several good jabs and six or seven head shots.

In the ninth, Holmes landed a right, a left-right and another right to the head that drove Shavers into the ropes. Several more head shots including four good right hads and a one-two moved Shavers across the ring.

Suddenly, Shavers threw a roundhouse right that caught Holmes and put him down. He got up at four and lasted the round.

Holmes, who weighed 210 pounds to 211 for the 35-year-old Shavers, hurt the challenger with two rights and a left-right in the 10th. Referee Pearl suddenly waved Holmes away, then quickly waved him back. The referee explained between rounds that he had mistakenly thought the bell had rung.

The two men stumbled out for the 11th round, their trunks covered with blood from a cut over Shavers' left eye, pain and exhaustion etched on their faces. But the 29-year-old Holmes had more left than Shavers.

He battered him at will with both hands as Shavers had difficulty keeping his hands up. His legs were just as leaden as his arms.

At one point in the 11th, Holmes turned to Pearl and said, "Stop it."

A few seconds later, Pearl did, as Shavers stood helpless along the ropes, his bid to become the second oldest heavyweight champion in history foiled.

Flashy Leonard Scores First-Round Knockout

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard unleashed a flurry of lightning shots to the head and knocked out Andy Price in the first round of a scheduled 12-round welterweight fight Friday night.

Leonard's sensational performance came on the undercard of the Larry Holmes-Earnie Shavers heavyweight title bout at Caesar's Palace.

Leonard's victory was in defense of the North American Boxing Federation title. The unbeaten former Olympic champion is scheduled to fight for the WBC welterweight championship against Wilfredo Benitez here on Nov. 30.

Price, who holds decision victories over former champion Carlos Palomino and current World Boxing Association champion Pipino Cuevas, was supposed to be a tough test for Lenard. He didnt have a chance.

Leonard pounced on him and unleashed a barrage of head punches, the last two being a right and a left. Price went down in a neutral corner and was counted out as he feebly tried to rise. The time was 2:52.

After the 10-count was reached by referee Harry Krause, Price dropped flat on the canvas, where he remained until he was revived by smelling salts.

Leonard, 146, of Palmer Park, Md., boosted his record to 25-0 with 16 knockouts. It had to be his most impressive performance.

Spur Bulldogs Tie Jayton Jaybirds

SPUR (Special) — The Spur Bulldogs scored a touchdown in the final quarter but missed an extra point attempt to tie the Jayton Jaybirds 6-6 here before a Homecoming crowd Friday.

Jayton jumped to a 6-0 lead in the 3rd quarter when Jaybird tailback Jimmy Smith streaked 45 yards off tackle. The two-point pass attempt fell incomplete, giving the visitors a 6-0 lead.

San Angelo Lakeview Upsets Brownwood

BROWNWOOD (Special) — The surprising San Angelo Lakeview Chiefs booted a 30-yard field goal in the second quarter and hung on to shut out traditional AAA power Brownwood 3-0 on the Lions home field Friday.

Lakeview drove from its 20 to the Lion 20 after blocking a Lion field goal attempt. The drive stalled and Dereck Rushing booted the 30-yarder to score the only three points of the contest.

Brownwood racked up several penetrations but the stubborn Chief defense stiffened each time.

Major League Roundup

Reds Clinch NL West On Astro Loss

By the Associated Press

Steve Garvey slugged a grand slam home run in the bottom of the eighth inning to lift the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 6-5 victory over Houston, eliminating the Astros from the National League West race.

Houston's loss, coupled with Cincinnati's 3-0 victory over Atlanta earlier Friday, assured the Reds of the division title.

Houston had taken a 5-2 lead with four runs in the eighth on an RBI single by Dave Bergman and a three-run homer by Cesar Cedeno, his sixth.

Reds 3, Braves 0

The Cincinnati Reds clinched the National League's West Division title as rookie Frank Pastore, banished to Cincinnati's Triple A farm club in mid-season to work on his breaking pitch, shut out the Atlanta Braves 3-0 on four hits.

Pirates 6, Cubs 1

Dave Parker hit a two-run homer and Jim Bibby pitched a four-hitter to lead Pittsburgh to a 6-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs, reducing the Pirates' title-clinching magic number to two in the National League East.

Phillies 3, Expos 2

Keith Moreland singled home Greg Gross in the 11th inning as the Philadelphia Phillies capitalized on sloppy fielding by Montreal for a 3-2 victory, dimming the Expos' playoff hopes.

Rangers 5, Angels 0

Al Oliver and Buddy Bell drove in first-inning runs as Ferguson Jenkins handcuffed playoff-bound California on five hits, carrying the Texas Rangers to a 5-0 victory over the Angels.

Nolan Ryan, 16-14, who will start against Baltimore next Wednesday in the American League playoff opener, worked only five innings as he yielded three hits, three walks and struck out four before reliever Don Aase came on.

Orioles 14, Indians 6

Billy Smith drove in six runs with a grand slam homer, a double and a triple to pace the Baltimore Orioles to a 14-6 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Brewers 10, Twins 1

Cecil Cooper knocked in five runs with a pair of doubles and his 24th homer, powering Milwaukee and Mike Caldwell to a 10-1 victory over Minnesota.

Royals 13, A's 1

Jamie Quirk homered and doubled to drive in four runs and Darrell Porter scored three times as the Kansas City Royals buried the Oakland A's 13-1.

Porter's three runs boosted his season total to 99 and he needs only one more to become only the second catcher in American League history to collect 100 walks, runs and RBI in a season.

Red Sox 7, Tigers 4

Boston's Tom Poquette had two doubles and a single, driving in three runs to lead the Red Sox to a 7-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The Red Sox scored three runs in the third and added another three in the fourth as Boston pitcher Mike Torrez increased his record to 16-13.

Yankees 7, Blue Jays 3

Reggie Jackson slammed his 28th home run, a three-run blast in the fourth inning, and Oscar Gamble singled in two runs in the first as the New York Yankees toppled the Toronto Blue Jays 7-3.

Wildcats Recover To Down Lockney

LITTLEFIELD (Special) — Underdog Lockney raced out to a 14-point lead but fell under a 35-point splurge by the powerhouse Wildcats as Littlefield pulled away to a 42-14 win here Friday.

Lockney tallied twice in the first quarter on a 32-yard run by Arnold Alaniz and a fumble recovery in the Wildcat end zone by Bill McCarter, but those were all the point for the Longhorns.

The highly-ranked Wildcats, led by quarterback Eddie Gregory and running backs John Paul McCanick and Rex Freeman, controlled the remainder of the game.

Freeman scored from 7 yards out to open a 29-point barrage in the second quarter, and was followed by McCanick, who breezed for touchdowns runs of 25 and 55 yards soon thereafter.

Littlefield, raising its record to 3-0-1, rolled up 367 yards of total offense over the visitors, who gained 237 yards of their own.

Wilson Blanks Smyer

WILSON (Special) — The Wilson Mustangs only scored one touchdown in the final quarter of their Homecoming contest with Smyer here Friday, but that was all they needed to claim a 6-0 win.

Friona Records First Victory

FARWELL (Special) — The visiting Friona Chieftians scroed two touchdowns in the second quarter here Friday to ring up their first win of the season, a 14-0 victory over the Farwell Steers.

The Chieftians got on the board with 9:41 remaining in the half when running back Mike Hubbart scored from 3 yards out, and followed that score up with another 3-yard run by quarterback Joe Malouf with but 45 seconds remaining in the half. Both extra points were good, and the 14-0 intermission lead stood the rest of the contest.

Friona piled up 227 yards on the ground but failed to complete any of their 6 passes, one of which was intercepted. Farwell rang up 137 yards with an almost completely balanced attack — 70 yards rushing and 67 yards passing. But the Steers were picked off three times and never could make it into the Chief end zone.

Friona now stands at 1-2-1 while awaiting competition in District 3AA, while Farwell fell to 0-2-1 two weeks before their play in District 3A begins.

Crosbyton Scalps Morton

MORTON (Special) — The Crosbyton Chiefs scalped the the hometown Indians 22-16, leaving Crosbyton with a 3-1 record and the Indians with one win, two losses and one tie early in the season.

Crosbyton's Alan Adams scored the first points in the opening period when he intercepted a pass on the Indian's 31-yard line and ran it in. Adams also made the PAT.

Morton came back in the second quarter when back James Dent scored from 10 yards out, followed by a 2-point conversion on a pass from Lonnie Bracken to Kelly Kuehler.

But Crosbyton was there again in the same period when Adams went in from 1 yard out, and a 2-point conversion pass was good.

Monahans Evens Record

MONAHANS (Special) — Monahans evened its won-loss record to 2-2 here Friday night with a 14-0 win over Brownfield.

The Cubs are 1-3 for the year.

After scoring a touchdown early in the first quarter, the Loboes got an insurance TD in the final stanza when Joel Faulkenberry connected on a 30-yard pass to Tim Macon. Marvin Hogan kicked both extra points.

Andrews Beats Snyder Tigers

SNYDER (Special) — Despite their 63-yard scoring drive, which ended with only 56 seconds left in the game, the Snyder Tigers lost to the Andrews Mustangs 14-8 in a non-district clash.

The contest left the Mustangs undefeated in four outings, and gave the Tigers a 2-2 record early in the season.

The District 2AAA Mustangs were the first on the board when quarterback Keith Brooks found running back Ruben Acosta on a 13-yard toss in the opening period. The kick failed.

Caprock Whips Levelland 30-6

AMARILLO (Special) — The Caprock Longhorns scored three touchdowns in the first quarter and coasted to a 30-6 win over Levelland here Friday.

The Amarillo team took charge of the contest almost immediately when Mark Carroll caught a 35 yard TD pass from quarterback Sid Felton, and followed it up with a 30-yard scoring dash by Bobby Short.

Eagles Tie Vega, 14-14

VEGA (Special) — The Sanford-Fritch Eagles rolled to a TD and 2-point PAT conversion with only 2 minutes on the clock to spoil, or at least neutralize, Vega's Homecoming Friday, by tying the Longhorns, 14-14.

Vega, led by fullback Fred Fangman's 130 yards rushing, and Sanford-Fritch, led by Derrel Price's 139 yards rushing, finished as even in statistics as in scoring. The Eagles led in rushing yardage, 173-162, but trailed in passing yardage, 24-16. The teams tied in first downs, 6-6.

Bingham Engineers Meadows' Victory

MEADOW (Special) — Senior quarterback Lance Bingham rushed for three touchdowns, passed for another, kicked three extra points and ran for another, and intercepted two passes to lead the Broncos to an impressive 41-0 thrashing of Tatum, N.M.

Meadow's scoring machine opened up in the second quarter when Bingham tossed a 35-yard TD pass to Wrenn Howard. Bingham ran for two more scores, and halfback Eliseo Curiel added another before the half was done.

Rough Riders Drub Fumbling Mustangs

BOVINA (Special) — The Boys Ranch Rough Riders spoiled Bovina's Homecoming Friday when they trounced the Mustangs, 42-0.

Boys Ranch of District 1-AA is now 3-1 for the season, while Bovina of District 3-A, is 1-3.

The Mustangs fate was assured when they lost three of four fumbles and had two passes interecepted by Rough Rider defenders.

Claude Loses Close Game

CLAUDE (Special) — Claude outgained McLean 179 yards to 108 yards, but lost a close 10-6 decision to the visiting Tigers here Friday.

Tulia Edges Spearman

SPEARMAN (Special) — Terrell Roberts rushed for 123 yards on 19 carries and scored two touchdowns to help lead the Tulia Hornets to a 20-18 victory over Spearman here Friday night.

Roberts got his first score of the night on a four-yard run and added Tulia's third TD.

Amherst Whips Happy 28-6

HAPPY (Special) — Spurred by the running of Ronald Johnson, who gained more than 200 yards, the Amherst Bulldogs whipped the Happy Cowboys, 28-6, Friday.

The Bulldogs are now 4-0, while the Cowboys are 0-4.

After a scoreless first quarter, Happy scored first when quarterback PeeWee Moore threw a 28-yard scoring strike to end Raphe Shipman. The extra point kick was missed.

Pampa Blanks Borger

BORGER (Special) — Building up a 12-0 lead at halftime, the visiting Pampa Harvesters went on to beat the Borger Bulldogs 26-0 in Friday night schoolboy action.

Quarterback Leads Swifts To 34-0 Win

WHITEFACE (Special) — Nazareth High School quarterback John Steffens ran for two touchdowns and passed for another to lead the Swifts to a 34-0 shutout over the Whiteface Antelopes.

The Swifts first score in the first quarter came when Steffens ran 27 yards for a touchdown. The extra point kick by Bryan Huseman was good.

Later in the quarter, Steffens threw a 24-yard pass to end J. Schmucker for another touchdown. Husman's kick again was good.

THE 80'S HAVE ARRIVED — COME SEE!

'Stranger' Star Fond Of Privacy

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A Number of interesting questions arise when a young actress cloaks her private life in secrecy — does she have something to hide or does she simply lead a pedestrian life?

Take Carol Kane, the tiny feminine lead in "The World's Greatest Lover," "Valentino," "Hester Street" and "Carnal Knowledge," for instance.

Her personal life is a closed book. Not that a curious public is clamoring to learn if Carol sleeps in flannel pajamas or lacy nighties, lives with a Jesus freak or an orangutan trainer, smokes corn silks or Turkish delights.

Nor is the world waiting breathlessly to discover if Carol has had personal relationships with such costars as Woody Allen (Annie Hall) or Kermit the Frog (The Muppet Movie). The latter apparently is more likely than the former.

Carol rarely talks to the press and only if questions are limited to her career. Even in those circumstances Carol comes out of her shell only to promote a new movie, in this case "When A Stranger Calls."

Queries about her off-screen life are met with a standard and not-too-subtle reply, to wit: "None of your business."

Carol, 27, timid and shy, saves her emotional energy for the screen. She does not invite speculation about friends, lovers or social adventures.

Unlike, say, Farrah Fawcett or Jane Fonda, she does not wear her emotions on her sleeve, or anywhere else one can detect, off-screen.

She's starred in 13 movies in the past 10 years — more than most contemporary actresses — And still remains a curiosity. Her concern for privacy is not publicity hype so much as an apparent desire for anonymity.

"I'm not interested in seeing elements of my private life published," Carol said, her large eyes wide with sincerity.

"I recognize publicity is a necessary tangent to making a film if I want people to go see it. But I only talk about my work. I think it's detrimental to establish a strong personal image."

Carol was reminded that a strong image hasn't hurt the likes of Fawcett or Fonda. But she remained adamant.

"I get interesting parts because I can't be pinpointed when it comes to casting," she said. "I say I'm a character actress who can play anything from love interests to small, strange parts. I don't want to be identified with any particular sort of role.

"As it is, I do have real strong physical characteristics. I think I have a special face — It may not be my choice — but it is different."

And so it is. Carol has small, piquant features, a mass of red ringlets, enormous, Bette Davis-like eyes, and a figure that does not bring to mind Raquel Welch. Her voice is as tiny as her body.

Not in a hundred years would anyone mistake Carol for the typical 8American girl. Her roles are generally off-beat, dramatic.

Even in "The World's Greatest Lover" with Gene Wilder, Carol played an oddly crimped and forlorn character.

In "When A Stranger Calls" she portrays a babysitter terrorized by incessant threatening phone calls from a faceless killer. Seven years later, when she's a mother herself, the chilling calls start anew.

Carol played a psychotic killer in "The Mofu Case," a prostitute in "The Last Detail," a tough broad in "Annie Hall" and a dowdy immigrant in "Hester Street."

She leaves for Canada soon to star in a black comedy, yet untitled, in which she plays a kleptomaniac also afflicted with nymphomania.

The dissimilaries in her roles, plus her penchant for privacy, enable Carol to walk the streets in relative anonymity, a circumstance she wants to perpetuate.

She disclaims being timid in confrontations with the press, all the while giving the appearance of a frightened fawn.

"I think I've developed a technique for not being shy," she said shyly. "I present a certain okay-ness. I put my fears and problems where they don't count so much.

"But I'm still insecure about my work and the continuation of my talent, wondering if I can be good every time I do a picture.

"The first time I saw myself on screen I thought of myself as strange and unusual looking. I'm getting over that.

"I've never had a starring role in a major commercial hit, only artistic hits. But at least I know that President Carter is a fan of mine. I appeared in 'Out of Our Father's House" at the White House last year and the President told me he had seen just about all my pictures and liked them."

Carol did admit superstardom would interest her only because she'd have the luxury of getting her pick of the best scripts and developing her own projects.

Even then, however, one may rest assured her boyfriends (if any) and sleeping garments (if any) would remain "nobody's business."

News Reporters To Investigate Autopsy Report

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A Chancery Court judge Friday granted two network television investigative reporters limited access to the Elvis Presley autopsy report.

Chancellor D.J. Alissandratos ruled that Charles Thompson II and James P. Cole could examine the records for names, places and dates but said they could not view the medical data contained in the report.

Thompson, a producer for the ABC television program "20-20," and Cole, a free-lance writer under contract to ABC, filed suit Aug. 10 against Dr. Jerry T. Francisco, Shelby County medical examiner, seeking the release of the autopsy report.

Francisco has said Presley died of a heart attack. But ABC contends the 42-year-old singer's death was caused by overuse of prescription drugs.

Friday's ruling dealt with motions in the lawsuit, which has not yet received a trial date.

Alissandratos ordered that all the Presley records held by Francisco and the University of Tennessee Center for the Health Sciences be sealed and hand delivered to Chancery Court Clerk John C. Robertson.

Saying there was concern for the security of the records, he ordered Robertson to place the documents in a safe deposit box at an undisclosed bank and to allow the plaintiffs and their attorneys to view only the parts specified by the court.

"The only other persons to see the records are the persons who have the documents already," the chancellor said.

Alissandratos also warned that anyone releasing a copy of the Presley autopsy report, independently gained or not, would be subject to civil and criminal prosecution.

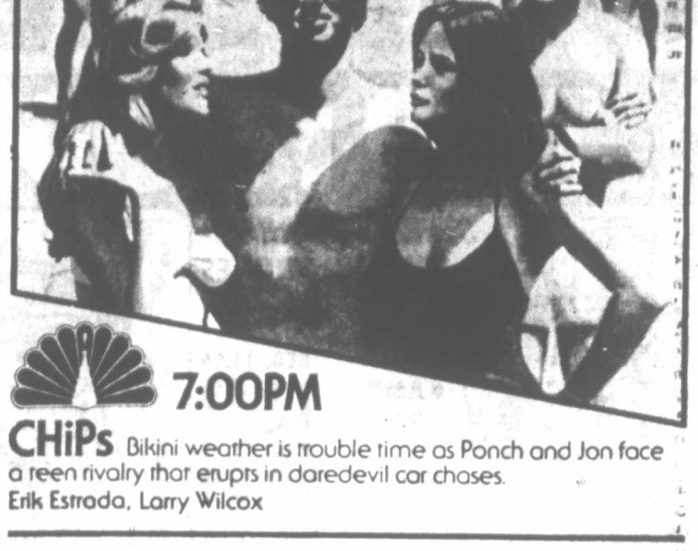

Michael Pleasants, the plaintiffs' attorney, tried unsucessfully to introduce a purported copy of the toxicology report on Presley's death. He said the report was signed by Francisco as Shelby County medical examiner.

Francisco, a member of the university medical staff, has contended he was acting as a private consultant to Baptist Hospital at the time of the Presley autopsy, and not as medical examiner. Therefore, he said, the records are not public record.

Friday's ruling did not apply to records at Baptist, where the autopsy was performed the day of Presley's death, Aug. 16, 1977.

LCC Patches Lineup For Austin College Battle

By DON HENRY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

SHERMAN — Lubbock Christian College has had to put a couple of patches on its starting lineup for today's battle with Austin College, and it's all because of trying to get ready for today's battle.

The Kangaroos host LCC in a 2 p.m. game, as both teams try to reverse losses from last week. LCC went at it in heavy workouts this week, and the work left coach Jerry Don Sanders scratching his head.

"You have to work hard, then you get some guys hurt," Sanders remarked prior to leaving Lubbock. "We lost (starting running back) Marvin Wiley and (starting linebacker) David Brook in the same workout."

Wiley sustained a slight knee sprain, and Brock is out with a hip-pointer. Sanders indicated that both could play, but he didn't want to take a chance on more serious injuries.

With the mishaps, Sanders will have to call upon Pat Worthey, a freshman from Estacado, to start in place of Wiley. Either Mark Harmon, a freshman from Muleshoe, or Kyle Musick, a sophomore from Grants, N.M., will fill in for Brock at linebacker.

Worthy has picked up 40 yards rushing this year, Thornton 71. Wiley was the leader with 136 yards.

"We know that Austin can throw," said Sanders, "but they also have two good running backs. Their passer (sophomore transfer Larry Shillings) can throw, and he had a big hand in them beating Tarleton in their first game."

It was Tarleton State that pasted a 55-0 loss on the Chaparrals last week. That same afternoon, Austin lost 16-6 to McMurry in a contest between unbeaten Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association teams. That loss dropped AC to 2-1 for the year — and in conference.

In addition to Shillings, the Kangaroos claim a pair of running backs that started last year. Kelly Hyde (180) will be at tailback in coach Larry Kramer's slot-I formation, with Rickey Turner (178) at fullback.

Doug Gollahon (170) lines up in the slot, and LCC coaches have alerted their secondary that he is one of Shillings' top targets.

Kramer has indicated that he prefers a ground game to throwing. This is Sanders' inclination, too, although the Chaparrals have gotten behind early in their three losses. This has forced them to throw more than Sanders likes.

Kent Allison, who was injured in that loss to Tarleton last week, will be playing today. The bruised back which forced him out of the Tarleton game has responded to treatment. However, if he is unable to perform, Sanders will go to Curtis Dean, who filled in last week.

After today, the Chaparrals will play at San Antonio next week against Trinity.

In the TIAA this week, league leader McMurry will host Sul Ross, and Tarleton will play at Trinity.

Dunbar's Late-Game Rally Falls Short

Lubbock, which won its first game of the season and now stands 1-3 on the year, got on the scoreboard in the opening stanza when Tino Chapa scored from the one-yard line. Larry Walker added the first of what would be three PAT kicks to give the Westerners a 7-0 with 1:20 left in the period.

During the opening stanza Dunbar got its hands on the ball for only six plays — and one of those was an interception by Rudy Barrera which set up the first LHS score.

"The first quarter hurt us the worst," said Jefferson. "I wish we could play it over."

Dunbar had only nine yards total offense in the opening 12 minutes, but finished with 195 yards, all on the ground. Lubbock, meanwhile, had 221 total offense, 132 on the ground and 89 through the air.

Pillow was the leading ball carrier with 94 yards on 16 tries, and Gilbert Cuevas, who played both receiver and quarterback, was the top passer, connecting on 4 of 8 aerials for 89 yards.

Neither Nelson nor Kenneth Idom, the sophomore who replaced Nelson in the second period, connected on a pass to a Dunbar receiver. But their completion percentage wasn't bad to LHS defenders — three to be exact.

It appeared Lubbock was about to run off and hide from the Panthers in the third quarter after a three-yard TD burst by Thomas Romero put LHS up 14-0, following Walker's PAT kick. On the run, Romero broke four arm tackles before going in standing up.

And after Raul Romero fell on a Geoffrey Crawford on the Dunbar 29 and Walker scored four players later from one-yard out, folks — few as there were — started heading for the gates.

But Dunbar decided to put on their last quarter heroics. "And the rest is history.

"We'll be back," said Jefferson, "I'll promise you that."

And he said that, Norm, while standing on the Lowrey Field floor watching his first-team quarterback, James Nelson, walk off with some kind of shoulder injury.

Rain Delays Firestone

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A steady rain flooded portions of the Firestone Country Club course and forced a postponement of Friday's second-round play in the $400,000 World Series of Golf.

The second 18 holes now are scheduled for today with a double round of 36 holes set for play Sunday.

The rain started early Friday morning and continued through the day. Bunkers, tees, greens and fairways were flooded and the 7,180-yard course was unplayable.

A one-hour delay in the starting times was announced while officials waited in vain for a break in the weather. Play eventually was washed out for the day at 10:30 a.m. CDT.

"The course was flooded," said Clyde Mangum, deputy commissioner of the PGA Tour. "We simply had no chance of getting it in shape to play today."

Andy Bean, who came within a single shot of the course record with an opening, 6-under-par 64, held a 2-shot lead after the first 18 holes of play.

Valley Wallops Paducah 70-0

VALLEY (Special) — The Vlley Patriots scored more than 60 points for the second week in a row as they walloped the Paducah Dragons, 70-0, Friday.

Last week, the Patriots demolished Spur, 60-0.

The Patriots of District 2-B are now 3-1 and Valley of District 4-A is 0-4.

Scoring by Valley in the first quarter included a 13-yard pass from quarterback Rod Carpenter to fullback Ray Williams, an eight-yard run by tailback James McNary, a 36-yard run by Williams and a 75-yard run by McNary.

In the second quarter, McNary scored on a 20-yard run and running back Michael Dowd scored on a 13-yard run. The first kick attempt missed, and Williams kicked the second one.

Valley lead 39-0 at halftime.

In the third quarter, Carpenter ran five yards for a touchdown, Williams ran 44-yards for a score, and running back Terry Brittian ran three yards for another score.

In the fourth quarter, McNary ran 18 yards for a touchdown and Carpenter ran 40 yards.

yards a game. Last week, Arizona picked the Tech defenders for 435 yards in total offense.

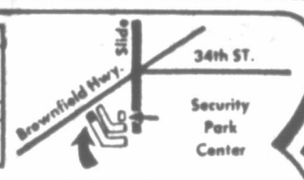

Tech's Maury Buford is averaging 44.4 yards per punt to lead the conference and place fifth in the national rankings. Buford has punted 18 times for 799 yards.

Ron Stowe of Baylor is second in punting in the SWC with a 42.5 yard average. Stowe has punted 19 times for 808 yards.

Longhorns Ready For Tough Missouri

By The Associated Press

Fourth-ranked Texas and fifth-ranked Missouri, who haven't met since 1946 when Tom Landry scored the game's final touchdown, tangle today in an intersectional joust that has all of Columbia, Mo. in a tizzy.

Faurot Field seats only 60,000 but temporary bleachers and a grassy hillside should balloon the crowd to a record 75,000.

Texas, which holds a 6-4 edge in a series that started in 1896, is a one-point pick but the Tiger players are sure to be sky high.

"We haven't played an emotional game yet, but we'll have to this week to beat Texas," said assistant coach Bob Bratkowski.

Offensive tackle Dave Guender of Mizzou says, "I'm looking forward to it. I think I can play better against a team that's highly-ranked."

Running back Bob Meyer says, "There's no doubt they're a great team, especially defensively. Somehow, we haven't been keyed up enough in the first half — and if we can't against a team like Texas, we never will."

The Longhorns are looking for a tough game against the Tigers.

"They are tough and physical and so are we," said Texas coach Fred Akers "It should be a heck of a contest."

Baylor and Texas Tech battle at Waco in the only Southwest Conference game today. The Red Raiders are one-point favorites. Tech tied 14-14 with Arizona last week while Alabama routed Baylor 45-0.

"They (the Red Raiders) embarrassed us last year," says Baylor coach Grant Teaff. "They manhandled our defense. We had cleat marks all over our chests from James Hadnot stomping on us. And they are a better team this year. That doesn't sound too good for a team coming off a 45-0 defeat.

"I've said all along that this team has a oneness and a character and that's on the line this week," Teaff continued. "I'd flat out say this is the most important game of the year for us."

In other games, 19th-ranked Southern Methodist was a field goal nod over Tulane; Houston was a prohibitive favorite over West Texas State; Texas Christian was a slim choice over Texas-Arlington; Arkansas was a 21-point selection over Tulsa; Texas A&M is a 10-point nod over Memphis State, and Oklahoma is a prohibitive favorite over Rice in Houston.

The SWC is 10-5-1 against outside competition.

"Alabama was an embarrassment to us," said Baylor quarterback Mickey Elam. "We're just going to have to put that behind us. But now we know that the rest of our games, except for one, are conference gamees and it's like a whole new season."

Superpowers Will Battle Today

By The Associated Press

There's going to be an upheaval in The Associated Press Top Twenty this weekend but don't hold your breath waiting for any stunning upsets.

The reason for the shakeup is because 10 members of the Top Twenty will be in action against each other and something's obviously got to give.

Top-rated Southern California visits No.20 Louisiana State for a night contest while in afternoon games fifth-ranked Missouri entertains No. 4 Texas, No. 6 Nebraska hosts No. 18 Penn State, No. 7 Michigan State is at No. 15 Notre Dame and No. 14 Ohio State at No. 17 UCLA.

The Ohio State-UCLA clash will be nationally televised (ABC-TV, 4 p.m. EDT) as the second part of a college football doubleheader. The first half consists of six regional games, with Penn State-Nebraska going to the largest audience.

Elsewhere, runner-up Alabama visits hapless Vanderbilt to open defense of its Southeastern Conference crown, third-ranked Oklahoma is at Rice under the lights while a few miles away eighth-rated Houston entertains West Texas State in a night game. Back in the daylight, No. 9 Washington plays host to Fresno State and No. 10 Purdue is at home against Oregon.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Michigan visits California, No. 12 Florida State is at Virginia Tech, Tulsa at No. 13 Arkansas, Wake Forest at No. 16 North Carolina State and No. 19 Southern Methodist at Tulane for a night contest.

Southern Cal and Alabama share the nation's longest winning streak at 11 games but USC Coach John Robinson says his Trojans "are playing one of the better football teams in America" in LSU.

Tailback Charles White, who gained 153 yards against Minnesota in less than a half last week after sitting out one game with a bruised shoulder, figures to move up from 10th place to eighth on the all-time NCAA rushing chart.

White, who has 3,987 career yards, trails Joe Washington of Oklahoma by eight and LSU's Charles Alexander by 48. He is 203 behind Jerome Persell of Western Michigan and a typical White season should move him past everyone except Tony Dorsett of Pitt. Runner-up Archie Griffin of Ohio State is not out of reach at 5,177.

LSU, working on a modest two-game winning streak, cracked the Top Twenty for the first time this week.

Last-Second Pass Sinks Plainview 7-6

PLAINVIEW (Special) -An eight-yard pass from quarterback Jeff Lamb to split end Jimmy Rifenberg and a Kyle Eddleman extra point kick with 57 seconds left in the game sent Amarillo past Plainview 7-6 Friday night.

Plainview scored on the first play in the second quarter on a 64-yard punt return by Bobby Reyes, but the extra point kick was wide to the right.

Eagles Set For Injured Steelers

By The Associated Press

Ordinarily, the opportunity to play a shaky, injury-jolted team is the stuff dreams are made of, and that's how Philadelphia Eagles quarterback Ron Jaworski views Pittsburgh.

"From what I've heard, some of their players are banged up," Jaworski said, looking forward to the Steelers' arrival this Sunday. "If it's true, I'm sure we'll be catching them at the right time."

Well, maybe — and maybe not. For most of the season the Steelers have had a spate of starters riding the bench. And three of the scores they've posted have not reflected their position as defending Super Bowl champions.

Yet those scores — 16-13 in overtime in New England, 24-21 in St. Louis and, last Sunday, 17-13 against Baltimore — have helped Pittsburgh post a perfect record thus far. Only three other teams — Tampa Bay, Cleveland and Miami — have unblemished records.

Sunday's other National Football League games are Tampa Bay at Chicago, Cleveland at Houston, Miami at the New York Jets, Minnesota at Detroit, the New York Giants at New Orleans, Washington at Atlanta, Buffalo at Baltimore, Cincinnati at Dallas, Denver at Oakland, Kansas City at Seattle, St. Louis at Los Angeles and San Francisco at San Diego. On Monday night it's New England at Green Bay.

It's been the Steel Curtain defense which has kept things under control, giving Terry Bradshaw & Co. the time to formulate the late-game heroics which have produced three of Pittsbugh's four victories. That defense doesn't scare Jaworski, though.

"We can move the ball on them," he says. "We can move the ball on anybody in the league.

"It's going to have to be one of those days when everybody plays his best. The talent is here. I believe we have the talent at all positions now."

Philadelphia's three victories have come against relative weaklings — two against the 0-4 New York Giants and one over 1-3 New Orleans. The Eagles' lone loss was to Atlanta, 2-2, considered a playoff contender. So Sunday's game will determine just how good the Eagles are.

"No doubt about it, we've got to start beating teams like that, like Pittsburgh and Dallas," says Jaworski. "No question, that's what we've got to do ... We're going to have to beat some of these good teams if we're going to make the playoffs.

"We're getting better. But I don't think we're anywhere near where we're going to be. I don't think I'm playing close to where I think I'm going to be five or six games from now. I really don't think we've come together offensively. We've shown flashes of it, a few great drives. But we've got to have more of them."

Tampa Bay will be trying to turn the National Conference Central race into a runaway. The Bucs lead Chicago by two games. "Last Sunday's win was a big one for us because it convinced a lot of people we could beat anybody," linebacker Cecil Johnson said of the Bucs' victory over Los Angeles, "but the Bears game will be even more important because it involves our own division."

Doug Williams, who threw two touchdown passes in the triumph over the Rams, passed for two scores and ran for one a year ago when the Bucs battered the Bears 33-19 in Tampa. But five weeks later, with Williams injured, Chicago rebounded by sacking Mike Rae eight times.

'Hawks Seek Infantry Attack Against NTSU

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — If Dan Fambrough breaks into song today, "Love is lovelier the second time around," might be on his lips.

But the drawling 56-year-old coach, pacing the Lawrence sidelines as head coach for the first time in four years, will more likely be humming — or screaming, stomping and shouting — something along the lines of, "Fools rush in."

The problem for the winless Jayhawks, preparing for a 1:30 p.m. kickoff against North Texas State, is they don't have anybody who can rush in, fools, wise men or otherwise.

Despite stout defensive efforts, the Jayhawks have fallen easy prey to nationally-ranked Pittsburgh and Michigan for a complete lack of a running attack. Fambrough's boys are averageing 4.0 yards per game on the ground — that's a grand total of eight rushing yards in two games.

"Our problems are obvious," said Fambrough. "We just have to get a rushing attack going. If we do that we can be a good football team. We have to get it going. We cannot be an effective passing team without a running game to go with it."

North Texas State Coach Jerry Moore is expecting the Jayhawks to jazz up their rushing attack as much as possible against what figures to be a much easier opponent following road games at Pittsburgh and Michigan.

"Knasas has a very good defense," he said. "It will probably be the best we've played this point. The offense is suspect because they haven't had an established running game. I'm sure they'll come into the game looking to improve the running attack."

"I'm not placing fault with any one person or area," he said. "I believe it's a combination of things. You have to remember that it takes time to implement a passing attack with a solid running game. At the same time, we may have some personnel changes."

No waiting. No lines.

You don't have to wait for your vacation to get a great tan anymore. Two or three visits a week to Sundance Tanning Salon and you'll look like you just got back from the tropics, no matter what time of the year it is.
And best of all, in the safety, comfort and complete privacy of a Sundance tanning booth, you can get an all-over tan, with no marks or white lines.
This whole "vacation" costs about $35 for 20 visits—that's $1.75 per session. Each session only takes 15 to 20 minutes. Stop by and check us out. And start your vacation now.
