Iraq talks of pullout

White House wary; 'war goes on'

N.Y. Times News Service

AMMAN, Jordan — Baghdad announced early today that its "epic, valiant battle" to hold Kuwait was ended and ordered its troops to withdraw.

The White House immediately dismissed the broadcast message and declared that Saddam Hussein must "personally and publicly" agree to an unconditional withdrawal.

"We continue to prosecute the war," presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said at 9:30 p.m. CST, five hours after the surprise statement over Baghdad Radio.

The broadcast, monitored here, quoted an unnamed "official spokesman" as saying that the Iraqi leadership had agreed to comply with United Nations Security Council Resolution 660, which calls for immediate and unconditional withdrawal from Kuwait.

But, the statement said, the withdrawal would be in accordance with "the Soviet initiative." It was not immediately clear whether this referred to a Soviet proposal last week, rejected by the allies because it contained conditions and allowed an unacceptable 21 days for withdrawal, or a new initiative presented Monday to a closed-door session of the U.N. Security Council.

Guard 'being beaten'; Scud strikes Dhahran

■ Missile attack kills 27, wounds 98; allies take thousands more prisoners.

DHAHRAN, Saudi Arabia — The American war machine, pushing deeper into Iraq and Kuwait, clashed Monday with the elite Iraqi Republican Guard. Hours later, Baghdad surprised the world by announcing it had ordered its troops to withdraw from occupied Kuwait.

The Iraqis, reeling before the advance of the U.S.-led alliance, fired a Scud missile that struck a U.S. barracks here, killing 27 U.S. service personnel and wounding 98, the U.S. command said.

The U.S. statement, released this morning, followed a night of searching for the victims.

The Baghdad radio announcement of a Kuwait pullout said Iraqi troops "have completed their duty of jihad," or holy war. But it did not specify a timetable, and it threw the diplomatic-military picture into confusion.

It appeared the Iraqis might attempt a retreat into their home territory under American fire. If successful, it could foil the desire of some alliance leaders to destroy more of Iraq's military power.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters Monday night that allied forces "will not attack unarmed soldiers in retreat but we will consider retreating combat units as a movement of war."

Fitzwater said there was no evidence to suggest the Baghdad radio report was a genuine peace offer.

A senior Pentagon official said Monday night allied intelligence sources had reports of "some movement of (Iraqi) units going north." "It's too early to say whether it's repositioning or withdrawal," said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The official Iraqi radio said President Saddam Hussein ordered the withdrawal in line with a Soviet peace plan. A Soviet plan last week was rejected by Washington, but the Soviets on Monday presented undisclosed new proposals at a closed U.N. meeting in New York.

In Washington, the White House dismissed the Baghdad announcement. "The war goes on," President Bush's spokesman said.

The war went well for the Desert Storm forces Monday, as they smashed scores of Iraqi tanks and scooped up thousands more prisoners, the U.S. command reported. Military officials said

Judge issues 'boot-camp' sentence to Williams' son

By David Morris

A federal judge on Monday sentenced convicted drug-user Clayton Wade Williams, son of former gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams Jr., to six months in a boot-camp style prison.

Judge Lucius D. Bunton III recommended Williams, 20, who pleaded guilty in December to possession of LSD, for a term at the Intensive Confinement Center (ICC) in Lewisburg, Pa.

If he successfully completes the Lewisburg program — which reportedly features military drills and training as well as drug abuse counseling — Williams will be furloughed to a halfway house in Odessa, where he will spend another six months. Bunton also ordered him to perform 100 hours of community service, pay a $2,000 fine and serve a year of supervised release.

Lottery proposal fails to gain needed votes

By James Cullen

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A state lottery proposal fell at least nine votes short in the Texas House of Representatives Monday but sponsors held out hope they could still pass the measure to the Senate.

Supporters, including Gov. Ann Richards, hope to put the lottery issue on a May 4 statewide ballot, but Monday's 90-56 vote lacked the required two-thirds majority in the House.

Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, voted against putting the lottery on the ballot, while Rep. Gary Watkins, D-Odessa, and Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, voted in favor of the constitutional amendment.

Craddick said his district has consistently opposed a lottery. Watkins said in his re-election campaign he supported letting the people decide, "So I was just carrying out a campaign promise."

Group welcomes soldier on leave

They were worried about the fatal missile attack in Saudi Arabia, and skeptical of Saddam Hussein's announced withdrawal from Kuwait. But Midland's service personnel support group still mustered an enthusiastic welcome Monday for an Air Force sergeant home on leave.

Sgt. Doug Eccleston, a member of a specially trained Air Force unit operating in the Persian Gulf, said he was grateful for the hugs and handshakes that awaited him at Monday night's support group meeting.

"I really can't express my feelings about it," said Eccleston, who left Saudi Arabia on leave about two weeks ago after surviving a helicopter crash. "It's so different from what I thought it would be like."

He said he'd expected to see war protesters, not yellow ribbons. News reports in Saudi Arabia have shown a lot of U.S. anti-war demonstrations, he said.

"The good stuff never really makes it to the news as much as the bad stuff," said Eccleston, the son of Dave and Donna Eccleston of Midland.

A 1984 Midland High School graduate, Eccleston said he's had some difficulty readjusting to life in the states. American food is delicious, he said, but tough to stomach after months of subsisting on goat and camel meat.

He said he'd been in the Persian Gulf about six months when he was ordered back to the United States. The crash of his helicopter, however, was not a factor in his recall.

Saddam or Kuwait

United Nations sanction No. 660 calls for the immediate withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait. As the war has unfolded, many U.S. strategists have concluded that nothing short of removing Saddam Hussein will resolve the Middle East crisis.

Do you think the allied war effort should make ousting Saddam its ultimate goal? Or is the liberation of Kuwait enough?

War update

■ At the United Nations, the Soviet Union presented a new initiative Monday for a peaceful settlement of the Gulf War. Hours later, Baghdad radio reported that Saddam Hussein had ordered his forces to withdraw from Kuwait in line with a Soviet plan.

■ The White House reacted icily to the Baghdad radio dispatch. White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said, "The war goes on."

■ The Iraqis scored a direct hit with a Scud missile attack on a U.S. barracks in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia. The missile demolished a barracks housing about 100 American soldiers. The U.S. military said 27 servicemen were killed, 98 were wounded.

■ Outside Kuwait City, 50 miles north of the border, paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Division who were dropped over the capital's outskirts Sunday were holding positions around the international airport.

■ The U.S. command said 18,000 Iraqi troops were taken prisoner in the first two days of the all-out ground offensive.

■ U.S. losses were "extremely light" — four Americans killed and 21 wounded, the U.S. command said. It also reported the loss of four U.S. aircraft, three of whose pilots were rescued.

Speaking Out on the Gulf War

'They're doing a wonderful job over there. We need to keep going for it. You don't want to deal with Saddam Hussein five years from now. You don't hit an old boy in the chin, knock him down and then rush over and see how he's doing.'

Local support team ready to help returning veterans

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Midlander Cindy Reed has seen both sides of the trauma caused by war. She understands what it can do to veterans as well as their families.

That is why she enlisted in a local support team getting ready to assist veterans returning from the Persian Gulf war.

The Operation Desert Storm Support Team, which met Monday morning to outline a strategy for action, will work to build a smooth transition between war and home.

The group, meanwhile, also will assist veterans' families with everything from buying food to finding a babysitter.

Ms. Reed, a team member whose husband was seriously disabled in the Vietnam War, said having a strong support network on the home front is critical to returning soldiers and their loved ones.

"After being in a position of dealing with someone who is totally disabled, I know what they're dealing with," she said.

Dr. Fernando Garza, a team organizer and Midland Vet Center director, said the support group will act as a liaison between veterans and outreach programs.

Although it appears the war could end quickly and with relatively few casualties, Garza said he fears the worst is yet to come.

"I hope the numbers (of casualties) stay low, but knowing the history of previous wars, it will get worse," he said.

The new support team, which currently has about 12 members, will conduct food drives, blood drives and put veterans and their families in touch with agencies throughout the Permian Basin that can help them overcome physical, emotional and even financial problems, Garza said.

The team will help veterans find jobs through the Texas Employment Commission and help them receive loans for housing, Garza said.

The group's service area will include Big Spring, Pecos, Fort Stockton and Odessa among other West Texas communities.

Ricardo Saldana, director of Midland College guidance and counseling, said people at home need to give more support than they gave to veterans of World War I and II, Korea and Vietnam.

"I know what they deal with. I know the physical and psychological problems," said Saldana, a Korea and Vietnam veteran who plans to assist the support team.

Garza said it takes a minimum of 90 days for a returning soldier to adjust to mainstream life back home.

La Verne Smith, team chairwoman and mother of a U.S. Marine serving in the war, said even a simple social greeting at the airport will mean a lot to the returning veterans.

"We want them to feel welcome to come back," Ms. Smith said. "When those young men come back, they're going to be under a lot of stress."

The coordinating body of the team, the Desert Storm Action Committee, will meet again Monday at 9:30 a.m. at the Vet Center, 3404 W. Illinois Ave. For more information call Garza at 699-5705.

PULLOUT: White House waves off radio report

nouncement, the Security Council urgently scheduled a 9 p.m. CST closed-door meeting at the request of the Soviet Union. The purpose was to discuss the announcement and whether Baghdad accepted terms of the latest Soviet initiative.

Details of the new Soviet proposal were not made public. But a United Nations official said Monday evening that it suggests a withdrawal timetable "in line with" the one-week period demanded last week by President Bush. However, he added that the new Soviet plan does not address the other 11 U.N. Security Council resolutions that, among other things, demand that Baghdad pay war reparations and imposes economic sanctions on Iraq.

Regardless, Fitzwater said Saddam must agree to withdrawal terms Bush set out last Friday. They call for Iraqi troops to immediately begin pulling out, to be out of Kuwait City within 48 hours and to have left Kuwait entirely within seven days.

Moreover, Fitzwater said, Saddam must "personally and publicly accept explicitly" all 12 U.N. Security Council resolutions — especially one rescinding Iraq's annexation of Kuwait and another demanding Iraq pay reparations to Kuwait and others harmed by the war.

The requirement that Saddam do these things "personally and publicly" was new. Fitzwater said this is necessary "because of the many broken promises of Saddam Hussein, because he has not responded either directly to us or the United Nations.

"Yet he purports to be interested in a withdrawal," Fitzwater continued. "If this is the case, we ask him to be up front and publicly let the whole world know what his intentions are."

Fitzwater, speaking to reporters in the White House briefing room, said retreating Iraqi soldiers would not be fired upon. But if they move "as combat units," he said, they will be treated as hostile enemies and attacked.

At one point, he suggested the Iraqi forces simply lay down their arms and begin walking out

The Baghdad Radio broadcast implied that Iraqi troops were ready to begin withdrawing even if they met opposition from allied forces standing in the way of their departure.

"Our armed forces, which have proven their ability to fight and stand fast, will confront any attempt to harm them while they are carrying out the withdrawal order," the radio broadcast said.

Indeed, Pentagon officials said earlier in the evening that there were hints of some Iraqi units trying to withdraw. But Fitzwater said this was not the case. "In fact," he said, "Iraqi units are continuing to fight."

WAR: Allies take thousands more prisoners

(From 1A)

American units were having "tremendous success" in their first battle with the tough Republican Guard.

The forwardmost American troops were 75 to 90 miles into Iraq, said informed sources who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Before the deadly Scud attack, the command reported U.S. losses so far as "extremely light" — four Americans killed and 21 wounded. It also reported the loss of four U.S. aircraft, three of whose pilots were rescued.

The command said 18,000 Iraqi troops were taken prisoner in the first two days of the all-out ground offensive to free Kuwait of Iraq's control.

Marines and U.S. paratroopers tightened their grip around Kuwait City. But one U.S. official said "it's going to be while" before the Americans or allied Arab troops fight house to house to retake the capital.

Saudi commander Lt. Gen. Khalid bin Sultan said the Iraqis continued a reported terror campaign of "rape, murder and torture" in the city, and warned they would be "held responsible before an international court."

In Washington, Bush, continuously updated by his generals on the progress of the war, told a White House audience the campaign was "on course and on schedule."

In bomb-battered Baghdad, meanwhile, where residents were shaken from their sleep by thunderous explosions overnight, military communiques claimed unbroken triumphs for Iraq's troops.

The ruling party's newspaper urged Iraqi soldiers to "strike with all your force to salvage the nation from the abyss of slavery."

The Desert Storm offensive was launched early Sunday along a 300-mile front stretching from the Persian Gulf coast deep into the western desert.

Under cover of fighter-bombers, columns of tanks and troops from the United States, Saudi Arabia, France, Britain and seven other nations rumbled across the Saudi border, kicking up billowing clouds of dust as they rolled up territory.

The unfolding strategy appeared aimed at pinning down the Iraqis in Kuwait City with Marines and Saudi and Kuwaiti forces, while sending powerful allied armored forces through Iraq to loop around Kuwait's western borders.

GUNPOWDER: Iraqi infantrymen fled positions

(From 1A)

A-10 Warthogs and Army Cobra and Apache helicopter gunships have in recent days weakened the main Iraqi defensive positions guarding the way northeast toward the Euphrates River. "Most of them are fleeing north," he said.

Columns of American and French troops rambled into Iraq over a two-lane highway and moved northeast in three parallel lines, one on the paved road and two others across the hard, rocky desert. Meeting no Iraqi counterfire, they pushed ahead at 35 mph.

About 10 miles into Iraq, advancing columns saw the first evidence of the effects of the allied barrage: an orange Mercedes dump truck with its windshield shattered by a helicopter-fired rocket. Ahead, an American 5-ton truck was carrying six Iraqi prisoners from the orange truck, their captors guarding them with M-16 rifles.

Cheers arose from the northbound American cannon crews as they saw the captured Iraqis being driven south.

"Hot damn, we finally saw an Iraqi," said Specialist Bobby Raines, 23, of Henderson, N.C., a cannoneer.

Four hours after the official H-hour for the ground attack, the howitzers pulled off the main highway to the Euphrates and cut loose with their longest-range projectiles at Iraqi troops thought to be 18 miles ahead.

At one point the dust started exploding in a line about 1,000 yards ahead of the howitzers.

The gun crew, heaving the 98-pound projectiles in their helmets, flak jackets and chemical protective suits in the 70-degree weather, kept firing.

Half an hour later, an officer walked up to the 15-man cannon crew and told them that the explosions were planned hits by allied artillerymen stationed farther back.

There was a moment of confusion when two rounds puffed the dirt about 500 yards across the desert.

Major Turnage, who had driven forward from battalion headquarters to call the front-line cannoneers "heroes," picked up a communications handset and barked: "This is XO," or executive officer. "Somebody shot a round about 500 yards ahead of Gun Five."

A voice replied on the intercom: "We didn't fire any round. Must have been another unit or else it's incoming."

"I feel sorry for those boys," said artilleryman Sandy Adkins, 21, of Fayetteville, N.C. He shrugs and thinks about the Iraqi soldiers in his path. "Oh, well," he said.

LOTTERY: Sponsors still hold hope for passage failed attempts to earmark lottery proceeds to counties and prisons and to attach a prohibition on income tax.

The governor's office later issued a news release in which Ms. Richards said the lottery opponents assured the need for a "sizeable" tax bill later this year.

"I hope that the 56 members of the House who voted against this bill will now join together to find the necessary new revenue to meet the needs of this state," Ms. Richards said.

But the lottery sponsor, Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, said he might try again today (Tuesday).

Wilson said Monday's vote was encouraging. "It could have been a lot worse," he said, adding that he intends to work on 16 members he said could have voted either way.

Lottery supporters face a Friday deadline.

SENTENCE: Younger Williams to report by April

federal guidelines which called for a maximum six-month sentence in Williams' case. If Williams does not qualify for the Lewisburg program, he will have to serve 12 months in a minimum-security federal prison, the U.S. Attorney's Office reported.

"You're spoiled," Bunton told the younger Williams at a sentencing hearing in U.S. District Court. "When someone with the opportunities that you've had goes out and crushes them, it doesn't sit well with me."

Williams pleaded guilty Dec. 21, 1990, to misdemeanor drug possession charges after being implicated in a Department of Public Safety LSD investigation. He was not arrested or indicted on the LSD charge.

The elder Williams said he was surprised at the harshness of Bunton's sentence but said he supported the judge's decision, nonetheless.

Accompanied by his wife Modesta and the younger Williams' grandmother, Williams told reporters his feelings about drug abuse have not changed in light of his son's legal problems.

"He's going to learn the joys of busting rocks," Williams said of his son, repeating a campaign slogan reflective of his anti-drug stance. "I'm very supportive of that program. . . . They tear them down and rebuild them. Hopefully that will be a foundation that he can build his life on."

The ICC program, housed on the grounds of the U.S. Penitentiary in Lewisburg, is a new one.

Denise Murphy, the prison's public information officer, said the program accepted its first inmates last month.

She said ICC participants enter the program for six months and undergo physical training including military drills. Their six-day-a-week, 16-hour-a-day regimen includes academic and vocational classes, counseling, and "labor-intensive" work assignments, Ms. Murphy said. Those assignments, while they do not entail busting rocks, include cleaning, maintenance and landscaping chores.

Inmates are allowed visitors and phone calls only on Sundays, she said. They may listen to radios and watch television only one day per week.

"Unlike a boot camp, there is no summary discipline or summary punishment," Ms. Murphy said. "There is no physical abuse or verbal abuse."

To qualify for the program, offenders must be under 35 years old and facing at least a 12-month sentence. They must be first-time prison inmates and qualify for minimum-security status. They also must volunteer for the program.

The elder Williams' support for ICC notwithstanding, the younger Williams' attorney, Jeffery King of Washington, D.C., said he had not ruled out an appeal of Bunton's sentence.

The younger Williams was free Monday on an unsecured $25,000 appearance bond, the U.S. Magistrate's office reported. Bunton said April 8 is the earliest Williams can enter the Lewisburg program.

Bunton said Williams' history of drug abuse and the fact that he apparently was involved with a minor in obtaining the LSD led him to depart from sentencing guidelines.

According to investigators, Williams consumed one "hit" of LSD at a party last December at a Midland hotel.

SUPPORT: Group brushes aside war worries

(From 1A)

Although he declined to release details of the crash, he said the copter in which he was riding went down after being struck by enemy ground fire. No one was killed in the incident.

"We were very fortunate," said Eccleston, who returns to duty in Florida later this week. "By all rights we should be dead, but we had an extremely good pilot."

Eccleston, who has been in the Air Force for three years, said he felt sorry for the allied soldiers killed in Monday night's Scud missile attack on a barracks in Saudi Arabia.

"I think a lot of the reason that the people might have been caught off guard is because the Scud is such an inaccurate weapon" and people might not have taken the threat seriously, he said.

Where Radio Baghdad's announcement that Iraqi troops were pulling out of Kuwait was concerned, Eccleston was skeptical. He said he hoped an Iraqi withdrawal, if it materializes, will not result in a premature allied cease-fire.

Others at Monday's meeting, which was attended by about 40 people, also hesitated to believe Saddam's withdrawal announcement.

"I think we should wait . . . for a while and see what he's going to do next," said Becky Jaycox, whose 24-year-old husband Scott is in the Army in Saudi Arabia. "The radio announcement — I don't know if I believe it."

But Jesse Munoz, a Midland refrigeration serviceman, said he thought the withdrawal announcement was legitimate.

"I don't think they would lay that on the line just to be saying it," said Munoz, whose son, 28-year-old Army Sgt. Gilbert Mendoza, is a medical corpsman serving in the Persian Gulf.

Elena Phelps, whose 27-year-old son is an electrician's mate on board the USS Saratoga, said she thought Saddam's announcement was an attempt to cover up a wholesale retreat.

"I believe that the troops have begun to move back, but I don't believe it had anything to do with the announcement tonight," she said.

Ms. Phelps, a Midland accountant, said the upbeat tone of Monday's meeting, held at the American Red Cross office at 2306 Elizabeth St., reflected the progress of the war so far.

"A part of the reason we are coping as well as we are is because the war is going as well as it is," she said.

But Monday's fatal Scud attack represented a setback, and Ms. Jaycox said that despite her cheerful demeanor, she was worried about her husband. She said she'd tried to find out if he'd been hurt, but to no avail.

"It's been about four days since I've heard from him," she said. "That 800 number they have is just busy constantly."

The support group's founder, Virginia Martin, said members who are worried about loved ones can always call on one another for support.

"When you know that there's people with the same worries you have, it's easier to laugh," said Ms. Martin, who has two sons in the Navy.

OPERATION DESERT STORM

Allies pursue simple strategy of isolate and kill

Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — Lightning mobility on the ground and overwhelming firepower in the air permitted the massive U.S.-led ground assault to begin encircling and isolating Iraqi forces in just two days without major allied casualties, military analysts said Monday.

"What we're doing in this war is what we've always wanted to do," said Col. Jim Coyne, a retired Air Force military planner. "Overwhelming firepower; cut the enemy off from his source of supply and support; and then cut him off at the knees. So far it seems to be working very well."

By the second day of the ground offensive, allied forces Monday had begun closing in with two separate envelopments against Iraqi forces in Kuwait City and the main contingent of Iraq's elite fighting forces, the Republican Guard, dug into defensive positions just inside southern Iraq.

Allied forces engaged in the massive air-land offensive were reported by their commanders to be ahead of schedule in their effort to use classic flanking maneuvers to cut off Iraqi forces. The success of the offensive appeared to have prompted what Baghdad radio said Monday afternoon was an order for Iraqi troops to withdraw from Kuwait.

"This is an example of air, sea and land operations going on at once with tremendous synergy," Robert Kupperman, a military analyst at the Center for Strategic and International Studies, said of the massive allied ground offensive involving more than 200,000 troops from some 11 nations.

U.S. strategy is to avoid taking on the enemy "strongpoint to strongpoint," said Coyne.

British warship destroys missile

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Iraqi coastal gunners fired a Silkworm missile at the battleship USS Missouri, but air-defense missiles from an escorting British destroyer knocked it out of the air, military officials said Monday.

It was the first time the Iraqis had fired one of the old but dangerous missiles at allied ships in the Persian Gulf.

A British spokesman said U.S. carrier-based aircraft later destroyed the Silkworm launch site in Kuwait.

The Silkworm is a Chinese copy of the 30-year-old Soviet Styx missile.

It is well known to the U.S. Navy from the Persian Gulf "tanker war" in 1987-88, when the Iranians threatened to use it against American warships and devastated a U.S.-flagged Kuwaiti tanker with one.

The Missouri, part of a flotilla of more than 30 allied warships operating in the northern gulf, has been using its 16-inch guns to support ground forces in Kuwait since the land invasion.

Cmdr. John Tighe, a British naval spokesman, said the Silkworm firing occurred about 5 a.m. and was immediately detected by radar operators aboard the destroyer HMS Gloucester, several miles from the 48-year-old battleship.

The Gloucester fired two Sea Dart anti-missile missiles, at least one of which hit the Silkworm, exploding it, Tighe said.

Wolfpack Company punches into Iraq

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following dispatch was subject to U.S. military censorship.

WITH THE 1ST CAVALRY DIVISION IN SOUTHERN IRAQ (AP) — Dave Francavilla looked down the deepening hole his armored unit was helping punch into Iraq on Monday and saw empty bunkers and abandoned positions.

Lead armor units of the U.S. Army's 1st Cavalry Division's 2nd Brigade rolled north behind a line of heavy U.S. artillery fire. They encountered only sporadic return artillery fire and scores of Iraqi prisoners.

"What we're encountering now is a lot of abandoned positions," said Capt. Francavilla, 32, of Colorado Springs, commander of Charlie Company of the brigade's 1st Battalion, 5th Cavalry Regiment. "I don't know if they deserted or if they're destroyed or what, but we're being very careful."

Francavilla's company of Bradley fighting vehicles, nicknamed "The Wolfpack," and other platoons of Bradleys and M1-A1 tanks maneuvered through two minefields, one about 750 feet deep, and fired precautionary shots at abandoned bunkers.

One danger of such a fast plunge into opposing positions is the chance that ground units will get ahead of allied air and artillery cover, causing friendly fire casualties.

Charlie Company radio chatter included several warnings about the artillery fire thundering behind them.

"Our biggest concern is friendly fire," Francavilla said.

Allied artillery fired white phosphorous shells to create a smoke shield for the advancing armor. Apache attack helicopters hung low on the periphery to provide air support.

Black billows of smoke drifted into overcast skies from burning trenches filled with oil, the much-publicized Iraqi defense against an allied armored invasion.

The early ease of the operation did much to uncoil the tightly wound 1st Battalion, which absorbed its first casualties of the war Feb. 20.

A scout patrol with armored elements from Charlie Company and Alpha Company was hit by Iraqi mortar fire in an area that U.S. troops passed with ease on Monday. The patrol had taken an Iraqi bunker and seven prisoners when it was hit.

Three soldiers were killed and nine wounded. When the first casualties were brought back, it left other troops a little afraid, a little angrier and a lot better prepared to deal with what might lay ahead.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: New friends are the key to greater career success. Although a summer journey may be fun, it will not necessarily benefit business. Financial backing proves easier to find in the fall. Do your best at work and try not to worry about a less-than-ideal professional relationship. Positive changes are in the making. A calm, confident attitude will work to your advantage.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Tony Randall, comic Jackie Gleason, singer Fats Domino, country star Johnny Cash.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Domestic affairs may test your patience. Choose your words carefully, especially in conversations with those in authority. Handle routine matters yourself. A parent-child relationship improves.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your special talents will be praised and rewarded today. Rely on high technology to save yourself time and effort. Home life could become complicated later this afternoon.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Keep an appointment with your doctor or dentist. Neglecting your health would be a big mistake! Your dedication to your work attracts favorable notice from someone influential.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be more specific when dealing with facts and figures. Carelessness could cause financial hardship. Your popularity increases when a member of opposite sex seeks you out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Refrain from making casual promises you will not want to keep. A family member's mood improves, reducing domestic tension. You are able to cut through some government red tape. Reward loyal subordinates.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your energy level may be lower than usual. Avoid scattering your forces. A family quarrel can be resolved if you control your temper. Rely on your sense of humor!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Postpone making any major financial moves. A pet can be a joy if you provide good care. Think twice before allowing unforeseen events to change your long-term plans. Family ties are strengthened.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov.21): Guard your financial resources. Unrewarding projects can be eliminated if you are willing to change your routine. A desire to travel grows stronger. The time is not right. Wait a little while longer.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Young parents need more time alone. The cost of a reliable baby sitter is a good investment. A neighbor or friend may ignore your advice. Keep in touch with the folks at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your associates may be unwilling to endorse your ideas. Play a waiting game. Romance holds great promise. Admitting that a problem exists could remove an obstacle to your love relationship.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may be asked to write something today. Do not try too hard to sound witty. The mail is likely to bring good news. Take better care of your health; eat rather lightly.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A good day to mend some emotional fences. Careful handling of mutual funds could lead to higher profits. Avoid contacting someone from your past while in a nostalgic mood. Share secrets with loved ones.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are born charmers who like to play by their own rules. Wise parents will teach these youngsters not to abuse their influence with others. Although these Pisces sometimes seem to be in a world all their own, they can be very practical in business and finance. Their psychic gifts are a tremendous asset. A gentle nudge is more effective than ultimatums when dealing with these children. They want to win the approval of those they admire.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K42 ♡AQ7 ◇32 ♣AQ864
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	?

What do you bid now?
A.—The double fit has improved your already good hand, but there is no need for precipitate action. All you need do for the moment is bid three spades. That action is forcing, and gives partner room to further define his hand.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K42 ♡AQ7 ◇32 ♣AQ864
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ◇	Pass	?

What do you bid now?
A.—Matters continue to get better, and a grand slam might be in the cards. The one road to avoid is taking control by asking for aces. Partner has started a cue-bidding sequence. Continue it by showing the ace of hearts with a return cue-bid of four hearts.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A432 ♡K10765 ◇K6 ♣K8
Partner opens the bidding with three spades. What action do you take?
A.—At this vulnerability, partner shows some seven playing tricks with his preempt, so his hand almost certainly contains an ace. Therefore, you can count nine tricks, and one of your other kings or a ruff could account for the 10th. Bid four spades.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠9872 ♡6 ◇KJ4 ♣QJ1065
Partner opens the bidding with one diamond. What do you respond?
A.—You do not have the wherewithal to bid at the two-level, so you have to adopt a different approach. When partner opens one of a minor and you have a four-card major which you can show at the one-level, do so regardless of suit quality. Bid one spade.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K954 ♡4 ◇A4 ♣AK10873
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with a weak two-heart bid. What action do you take?
A.—If you simply bid three clubs, you run the risk of missing a 4-4 spade fit. Correct is to double for takeout. Should partner bid three diamonds, you are strong enough to try four clubs.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A1054 ♡7642 ◇A932 ♣7
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	Pass	Pass	Dbl

What action do you take?
A.—Partner's takeout double promises four cards in one major, but not necessarily both. Don't pick a suit unilaterally. Cue-bid three clubs and let partner choose. Despite two aces and a singleton club, don't hang partner for his balancing bid. If he can do no more than bid at the three-level, you should pass.

Near-fatal cycle crash changes Gary Busey's opinion on helmets

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Actor Gary Busey says his near-fatal motorcycle crash changed his life — and his perception of helmets.

Busey

The formerly outspoken advocate of wind-in-the-hair riding says he is designing a helmet that would protect a rider but also make him feel, hear and see like it doesn't exist.

Busey was in Chattanooga over the weekend promoting "My Heroes Have Always Been Cowboys," his first movie since the Dec. 4, 1988, crash.

"I don't remember four weeks of my life ... from Dec. 4 to Jan. 8 is a black hole, like a void," said Busey.

What Busey does remember is an out-of-body experience.

He said a voice told him he could either come into the light, leave his body and come back another time, or return to his body and continue his path of destiny.

He says the voice recommended he stay with his body.

After the accident, Busey had to be supported in a wheelchair for several weeks and had to re-learn how to speak.

NEW YORK (AP) — Gymnast Olga Korbut is hoping to rally support for others who, like herself, continue to suffer as a result of the Chernobyl nuclear disaster.

Korbut

Korbut, 35, who wooed world audiences with her performance at the 1972 Munich Olympics, has thyroid problems and exhaustion related to radiation poisoning.

She and her husband, Leonid Bortkevich, 41, a folk-rock star, have sent their only child, Richard, 12, to live with friends in East Brunswick, N.J.

But she said she has no plans to leave Minsk in the Soviet republic of Byelorussia.

"When I go home, it's hard to even walk outside, because I see the suffering of people and it hurts me. But I feel I must stay, because I have the responsibility to help my people with my contacts in the West," she told People magazine in its March 4 issue.

ANDERSON, S.C. (AP) — Tom Eplin, who plays a villainous character on NBC's "Another World," showed his good side at a fund-raiser only to be upstaged by a younger man.

Eplin, who plays the role of Jake McKinnon, auctioned scripts and other paraphernalia from the show on Saturday to raise money for a kidney transplant for 23-month-old Trent Williams.

But it was the toddler who stole the show as he made his entrance into the actor's arms.

Trent is scheduled to receive a kidney from his mother, Karen Williams.

Williams said Eplin was not at all like she had imagined.

"He's not like I thought an actor would be," she said. "He's really just like us."

DETROIT (AP) — Blacks need to look more to themselves and less to government to improve their standard of living, says Shirley Chisholm, the nation's first elected black congresswoman.

"We have to be accountable for the state of our race," Chisholm, D-N.Y. "Our bondage and our battle is economic. We're not slaves but servants. We have to spend more time at economic conferences, be producers and provide jobs."

At the 12th annual "State of the Race Dinner" on Sunday, Chisholm called on black organizations to pool the money they would spend at conventions for one year, as well as draw on union pension funds, to develop businesses.

Chisholm, 66, served in Congress from 1969-83.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Filmmaker Oliver Stone heads for Texas in April to begin filming the drama "JFK," which will present various scenarios relating to the 1963 assassination of President Kennedy.

The film stars Kevin Costner as former New Orleans prosecutor James Garrison, whose investigation maintained Kennedy was the victim of a CIA and FBI conspiracy and Lee Harvey Oswald was set up as their fall guy.

"We're looking at the old evidence and will present alternative scenarios not only based on Jim's book but on new information that came to light in the '70s and '80s," Stone told Daily Variety.

Stone didn't want to deliver details of the story line, saying only the film will "let the audience decide."

"John Kennedy was the godfather of my generation and a lot of us believe he was murdered for political reasons," said Stone. "And like Hamlet, we have to try and look back and correct the inaccuracies."

Daily Variety said Gary Oldman was tentatively set to portray Oswald and Sissy Spacek will be cast in the role of Garrison's wife.

Stone said Garrison, currently an appeals court judge, will portray U.S. Supreme Court Chief Justice Earl Warren, whose Warren Commission Report declared Oswald the lone assassin 10 months after Kennedy was killed in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

Bush won't bite Saddam's latest

Saddam Hussein's reported order for his troops to withdraw from Kuwait late Monday, in the wake of heavy advances by Desert Storm forces did not convince President George Bush to cancel the sweeping ground assault into Kuwait. "The war goes on," said White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater.

Bush's decision on Saddam's latest "offer" was understandably tempered by two events: one a Scud missile attack Monday on a barracks at Dhahran that killed 12 American soldiers and left 65 others either wounded or missing. The second was a ploy by Iraqis at Khafji where Iraqi tanks approached with their turrets pointed backwards — the signal of surrender — then opened fire. As one senior Pentagon official said of the reported Iraqi offer and Iraqi troops reported to be leaving Kuwait, "This could be a massive trick. We'll treat them as hostile, until they prove otherwise."

Judging from Saddam's earlier ploys and flip-flopping on peace offers, that approach appears the safest.

Forces from Desert Storm, which launched the ground invasion Saturday evening on Bush's orders, had encountered little resistance from Iraqi troops after two days of fighting, yet had taken some 18,000 Iraqi prisoners. Although military commanders cautioned against taking that fact as an indication that Iraqi resistance is non-existent, Brig. Gen. Richard Neal noted that "where we're meeting the enemy, we're defeating the enemy."

The allied ground assault had further been characterized by extremely light casualties — at least until the Monday attack on the Dhahran barracks. In fact, the Army didn't sustain a single death during the first 24 hours of the ground war.

The greatest resistance was expected to come from Saddam's elite forces, known as the Republican Guard, but reports on Monday's fighting indicated that Desert Storm's forces overwhelmed the elite force.

President Bush has continued to assure the world that allied forces will win the war and that Iraq will lose despite the fact that Iraq is regarded as the world's fourth strongest nation in terms of military power; there really was never much doubt that the war's outcome would be otherwise, since Saddam is a Third World leader carrying out a war against the world's strongest and most advanced nation, allied with 28 other nations.

The most pressing concerns at this point are whether Saddam's new offer is serious or simply a maneuver aimed at gaining advantage, whether he will resort to the use of chemical weapons since his back appears to be up against a wall in this war with defeat a virtual certainty or whether he will recognize reality and call it quits before more of his troops die.

President Bush is correct to play it safe. Until Saddam's true intentions are known, to risk easing up on the United States assault would not be a prudent military move.

Saddam appears to be on the run now but uncertain whether he wants to retreat or finagle an opportunity to play his dirty hand again. While that's the case, it's best to continue with the full force assault.

JACK ANDERSON

U.S. ground troop morale runs high

WITH THE 101ST AIRBORNE DIVISION, Saudi Arabia — Last July, Army Col. Thomas Garrett was picked to partipate in a war game involving a hypothetical Arab country that invades its Arab neighbor.

Anderson

The game was intensely played. And what Garrett remembers most now as he sits in his olive drab tent in northern Saudi Arabia was the nifty new desert camouflage uniform he got to wear during the exercise. The only problem was that the uniform was hot. Garrett recalls that he said at the time, "I hope I never have to wear these things in a real situation."

What he and his troops have done for the last six months is no game. Garrett heads the 101st Aviation Brigade with its more than 500 assault helicopters. Six months ago they were plucked from Ft. Campbell, Ky., and dropped in the desert to do battle with Saddam Hussein.

Sources in Washington say that the 101st Aviation Brigade fired the first shots in the Persian Gulf war on Jan. 16, when their Apache helicopters swooped down to take out Iraqi ground communications and radar so the first wave of Air Force fighters and bombers could fly in unmolested.

The actual plan for a ground war was classified, but military experts speculated that troops from the 101st and 82nd Airborne Divisions would be carried into Iraq to set up bases so the heavy armor could roll in and attack Iraqi forces from behind.

Morale was high at the 101st Aviation Brigade during our visit, as the troops awaited the order to move. One private told us that the troops trust and respect Garrett. "He's not out for glory at the cost of casualties, and he's not tightly wrapped like some commanders, which means we'll have fewer men injured than under many other commanders."

Garrett was equally upbeat about his troops, whom he said had performed flawlessly in the harsh desert. And, he said his equipment was doing better than expected with talcum powder-like sand everywhere. The sand has blasted some helicopter blades so badly that Garrett's troops must bind the blades with tape to protect the surface.

Late February brings a period of sandstorms to the Arabian peninsula that can be so blinding a man can't see his hand in front of his face. That concerned Garrett, but the sand would stop the enemy too. "If we can't fly, they can't move either," he said.

In the invasion scenario being speculated on back home while these troops waited for their orders to move, the 101st helicopters shared the first-in honors with the paratroopers of the 82nd Airborne Division. After they established secure airfields in southern and eastern Iraq, transport planes full of more soldiers and heavy armor would be close behind.

Though military commanders were aware that their secret plans were the subject of much talk in the media and by armchair military experts, they weren't concerned. Even if Saddam read the speculation on the front page of The New York Times, the only thing he could have done to thwart the plan actually would have helped the U.S. war effort.

The best Saddam could do would be to move his heavy armor and defenses away from positions in and around Kuwait and spread them along the Iraqi border with Saudi Arabia. That movement was exactly what the Air Force was hoping for. By bringing his army out of its dug-in positions, Saddam would make them sitting ducks for U.S. fighters and bombers.

In some minds, that made the ground war a no-lose situation, except there are always losers — those who die no matter how victorious and brilliant the strategy.

GORBY THE MIDDLEMAN — Mikhail Gorbachev has a long-range objective in playing the peacemaker with Iraq. He hopes to play a key role in forming the post-war order. Intelligence sources believe he will call for the Soviet Union, China and the West to guarantee regional security in the Persian Gulf. That would include a ban on nuclear, chemical and biological weapons. To be successful for Gorbachev, any plan must placate the hardliners in his own country — particularly Red Army generals — who are angry that he sided against Iraq, an old Soviet ally. And Gorbachev must also placate the huge Muslim population inside the Soviet Union. They have more loyalty to Islam than they do to the Soviet Union.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

Battle won in war for literacy freedom

Dearly beloved, we meet in reverent remembrance of the University of Texas' freshman composition course, revamped so as better to teach the horrors of racism and sexism.

Dearly beloved, the new English 306, scheduled to begin in September, has departed this veil of tears. It is no more. The moist earth lies atop its still, silent form.

Murchison

Let us speak what is on our hearts, brothers and sisters. Hooray, hooray, hooray!

And whoda thunk it?

The wonder of it all will take time to sink in — the forces of political indoctrination routed at a major Amerian university. Incredible! It doesn't happen this way!

At many another American university, including top schools like Duke and Stanford, the indoctrination squads ride booted and spurred through the classroom, denigrating DWM's (Dead White Males) like Dickens and Dante and promoting guilt over their long ascendancy in the curriculum; arguing the equality, if not the superiority, of Third-World writers and cultures; using lectures, essays, and reading assignments to promote a "multiculturalist" (i.e., non- or anti-Western) agenda.

Ah, but the several thousand UT students who sign up each year for freshman composition won't have to undergo an ideology check, at least not from the English Department. The committee that crafted the course resigned en masse in early February, frustrated by all the negative publicity the scheme was receiving, dismayed by lack of support from the administration and regents.

English 306 exists in order that students might learn to write clear, logical — who knows, even interesting — English sentences. This sublime mission was not abolished under the new dispensation; it was enlarged. Students would henceforth read and write about perceived social problems. The course in short had an ideological viewpoint — to wit, let's not be racist and sexist.

As originally crafted, the new English 306 would have required use of a sociology textbook with marked biases — Linda Rothenberg's "Racism and Sexism: An Integrated Study." Dr. Rothenberg likes to send her students to male and female restrooms to assess differences in toilet-paper quality — which differences are supposed to prove something or the other. UT freshmen would have been treated to some rare experiences had the new course gone through.

Again: Hooray, hooray! But keep your powder dry. English 306 is one skirmish; it's not the whole war for common sense on campus. A few blocks south of UT, State Rep. Ron Wilson, on Valentine's Day, introduced a bill making racism-sexism studies a prerequisite for college graduation.

CHARLEY REESE

Health's the name and heat's the game

A small businessman and inventor in Longwood, Fla., may have more impact on the nation's energy policy than President George Bush.

It's true that the president has belatedly decided the U.S. ought to have some kind of energy policy, since he used oil as one of his excuses for going to war.

Reese

But few worthwhile things in recent years have originated in Washington. Most of what is good in this country happens in the private sector and at the grass-roots level.

Gary Heath is about as grass roots as you can get. A Pennsylvania transplant who spent most of his life working in the electronics industry, Heath a few years ago invented and patented a couple of devices that appear to be able to save from 10 to 30 percent of the energy used in heating and cooling.

For the last five years, Heath and his little firm, Condyne Technology, have been working like the little locomotive that says I think I can, selling his two devices as best he could. More recently, a couple of investors have provided him with some working capital and now he's selling them in Taiwan, Venezuela and across the U.S.

I wouldn't know a transistor from a witch's wart, having never gone beyond the on-off switch in my study of electronics. I do have some expertise in spotting con artists, crooks, hot-air salesmen and the like, of which the energy-saving device field is full.

But Mr. Heath is the real thing, one of those guys with glasses that hang from cords and whose eyes light up like the dials on his equipment, when he starts explaining how they work in a language a layman can't fathom.

Basically, both units are microprocessors with memory. The smaller unit, which is plugged into a outlet and which is designed for things like refrigerators and household air-conditioning, monitors the current coming in and then smoothes it out, eliminating highs and lows, so that the motor runs smoother and cooler.

The larger unit works with thermostat-controlled units (electric or gas or oil). A regular thermostat is basically an on-off switch. When the set temperature is reached, it cuts the unit off. When the temperature falls, it cuts the unit on full blast. Mr. Heath's little machine calculates the optimum cycles for the temperature you want and controls the system more efficiently.

Equitable Gas in the Pittsburgh area is one of the utilities testing the product and T. A. McCune, the manager of the customer outreach division, told the Associated Press they were seeing savings of at least 15 percent on a small number of the units they've been monitoring for over a year. Florida Power has agreed to test some units, and a Florida-based supermarket chain and major airport will also test them.

The big savings can come from larger energy-users like department stores, airports, public housing projects, and enclosed malls. Mr. Heath, a modest and quiet man, fairly glows when he says that his little company could conceivably save the U.S. a million barrels of oil a day.

Whether that will be the case or not, I don't know, but the larger point is that the energy policy we ought to adopt should be based on conservation, not on increasing production. Producing and burning any kind of energy produces by-products, some of them nasty. Conservation is better for the environment. Conservation also reduces costs and makes our products and services more competitive. Clearly when it comes to energy, less is better than more.

And the best ideas and devices for saving energy will come from people like Mr. Heath, not from bureaucrats and politicians, whose specialties are red tape, red ink, and hot air.

LEWIS GRIZZARD

Bridging gulf of generations often difficult

Gary Ferguson of Kennesaw, Ga., wrote me a letter. He said we had a lot in common.

"I'm 42," he began, "and I've been married and divorced four times. I guess we've shared our own private little hell on red clay."

Grizzard

He went on to write about his 22-year-old son, Glenn, who is in Saudi Arabia with the French Foreign Legion.

He put a phone number at the end of his letter. The thing about a kid being in Saudi Arabia with the French Foreign Legion caught my attention.

"I'm in the construction business," Gary Ferguson told me when I called. "Three years ago Glenn worked for me all summer and saved up his money.

"I think he got the idea of the Foreign Legion from a magazine — Soldier of Fortune or something like that.

"He got his visa and used his savings for a plane ticket. He's been in the Legion for two-and-a-half years."

The French Foreign Legion. Beau Geste. It is made up of an assortment of souls. Some are adventurers. Some are running away. Some are trying to escape the law.

"Glenn got into a little trouble with the law," his father told me.

It wasn't much of anything and details wouldn't add much to the story. Glenn was a kid and a girl was involved. OK?

"I think he also did it for the adventure," Gary said. "He gets that from me. It was his own choice and I admire him for his grit."

I had read earlier of the Foreign Legion's involvement in the war in the Gulf.

"The Legion's been known for being expendable," Gary Ferguson said. "I guess when we go in they'll be right out in front."

He also told me his son had initially been trained as a sniper, but the last he heard from him, he was in a tank.

"That makes him a pretty big target," he said.

At the end of Gary's letter there had been a discussion of a dilemma he was going through at the time he was writing me.

He said he had had a hard time of it.

"I'd never written to a son in a war before," he explained.

That is a dilemma. I'd even thought of such a situation involving me. What if I had a son over there?

Gary Ferguson never went to war. I didn't either. If I had a son over there, would I write things to him that were foolish and naive? Would I write about things I knew nothing about, but thought I did?

What does a father write to a son who might be heading to a battlefield where death was awaiting him?

"So what did you finally say to your son in the letter?" I asked Gary.

"I told him I loved him. I told him I was proud of him. I told him he was in my heart and in my prayers, where I asked God to give him courage."

"I think you did a pretty good job on your letter," I said.

I meant it. What I didn't say that I should have said was, "If I had to write a letter to my son in a war, I hope mine would be as eloquent as yours."

Court battle could force Greyhound to rehire drivers

By David Ivanovich
Hearst News Service

When Greyhound Lines' union workers walked off the job, 19-year bus driver Larry Parnell went with them.

Now, a year later, Parnell doesn't know how he's going to make this month's mortgage payment. And there's his son, a senior in high school, who wants to go to college.

"I can't even afford to send the applications off," said Parnell, 47, of Houston.

In the long and bloody year since the start of the strike, Dallas-based Greyhound has managed to reconstruct much of its route system, despite filing for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection.

And while small towns and strikers struggle to regroup, a bitter court battle could force the company to rehire Parnell and other strikers replaced by new workers.

On March 2, 6,300 Greyhound drivers parked their buses and threw up picket lines. The strike by the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions brought 80 percent of the company's operations to a screeching halt.

The strike was of national concern. The sole company offering bus service coast to coast, Greyhound was the only means of intercity public transportation for 9,000 of the 9,500 communities it served.

Using replacement workers, Greyhound struggled to continue operating and build back its route structure.

Greyhound began its reconstruction work by reinstating service between large urban centers, which generate the bulk of the company's revenues.

Within four months, Greyhound was driving to 95 percent of the towns, bus stations and roadside stops it served before the strike, a level the company has maintained ever since, Greyhound spokesman George Gravely said.

Out of Houston, for example, Greyhound operated 38 departures a day before the strike. Today, Greyhound has 32 daily departures.

While service from Houston was merely trimmed, service to some small towns has been dropped.

Towns like Taylor 35 miles northeast of Austin haven't seen a Greyhound bus since the strike began.

But in July, Kerrville Bus Co. moved into the vacuum left by Greyhound. Now the regional bus company offers service seven days a week, compared with the five-day-a-week service Greyhound had provided.

Small towns like Taylor had begun losing intercity bus service long before the strike — the trend is two decades long. The number of communities served by intercity bus service is half what it was 20 years ago.

"We have not permanently discontinued service to any locations in Texas," Gravely said. "Some are under study, but we have not made any permanent decisions yet."

For years, Greyhound has cooperated with community transportation agencies in a program called the Rural Connection that was designed to help find alternative service for areas where Greyhound cannot operate profitably.

The strike, however, has hurt that effort, participants say. Several of Greyhound's employees assigned to the project have lost their jobs.

"That whole effort has really ground to a halt," said David Raphael, executive director for the Community Transportation Association of America. "The strike has thrown schedules and routes up in the air. Greyhound has just been unresponsive during this period."

But by not operating its least profitable routes, Greyhound has managed to trim its costs and boost its bottom line.

Trial begins for former communist leader

WORLD

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Todor Zhivkov, Bulgaria's Communist leader for 35 years, went on trial Monday on charges of misappropriating state funds and handing out cars and homes to friends and cohorts.

Zhivkov, 79, is the first leader of a former East Bloc country to stand public trial since a wave of revolutions threw out Communist rulers in 1989.

After the first day of the proceedings, he scorned the court and insisted he is innocent.

"For one full month, I and witnesses were questioned without a defense attorney, and now the court has decided to launch this trial. That's lawlessness," Zhivkov told reporters.

About 100 demonstrators gathered outside the courtroom, some shouting "Punishment!"

As he entered the packed courtroom, Zhivkov took the flashes of camera lights calmly. He appeared composed as he answered routine questions from court officials.

He is scheduled to testify Tuesday. Nearly 250 prosecution witnesses were scheduled to testify in the trial, which is expected to last four to six weeks.

Zhivkov's long-standing chief of Cabinet, Milko Balev, also appeared in court on corruption charges.

The panel of three judges and four jurors rejected an appeal by Zhivkov's defense to halt the trial shortly after it started in Sofia's downtown Supreme Court building.

Zhivkov and his lawyers claimed any sentence would be unfair because of procedural irregularities.

One of his lawyers, Reni Tsanova, said the prosecution seeks a sentence of 10 to 30 years in prison.

The prosecutor read a 75-page indictment against the former Communist Party and state leader, detailing allegations of widespread corruption and nepotism.

Zhivkov is charged with misappropriating about $4 million, and allowing top Communist officials, his employees and friends to buy apartments, cars and weekend houses at what the state news agency BTA termed "giveaway prices."

According to the indictment, Zhivkov ordered aides to provide 124 apartments for artists, actresses, nurses and others in his favor at especially favorable prices.

Prosecutor Krasimir Zhekov told the court that Zhivkov had ordered related documents destroyed even a day after his ouster.

A top functionary could purchase a Mercedes-Benz, unavailable to most other Bulgarians, for one-tenth of the official price of $990,000.

The indictment said that since 1962 all Politburo members had received illegal "food allowances," which in 1974 amounted to $6,600 per person per month. Zhivkov's monthly allowance reportedly was about $8,500, four times the average monthly wage.

The extra payment for Zhivkov and his family was unlimited after 1981, the prosecution said.

Zhivkov resigned under pressure from key Politburo members on Nov. 10, 1989.

School finance divides justices

■ By a narrow margin, Texas Supreme Court rules state's current school funding system ultimately is unconstitutional.

By Peggy Fikac

AUSTIN (AP) — A sharply divided Texas Supreme Court said Monday that rich school districts may constitutionally raise more supplemental funds to spend on education than poor ones.

The court did not back away from its earlier ruling that the Texas school finance system is unconstitutional.

However, it said in a 5-4 opinion, "The current system remains unconstitutional not because any unequalized local supplementation is employed, but because the state relies so heavily on unequalized local funding" to pay for education.

"Once the Legislature provides an efficient system ... it may, so long as efficiency is maintained, authorize local school districts to supplement their educational resources if local property owners approve an additional local property tax," it said.

The majority opinion was authored by Chief Justice Tom Phillips. In a footnote, it adds that the Texas Constitution forbids "vast disparities" resulting when rich school districts can tax low, while poor districts that tax high cannot get enough money "to meet even minimum standards."

Dissenting, Justice Lloyd Doggett decried the opinion as overstepping the court's jurisdiction. Doggett also called it a reaction to political pressure. Others dissenting were Justices Oscar Mauzy, Robert Gammage and Raul Gonzalez.

The court issued the latest opinion after poor school districts asked the justices to rule it constitutional to redistribute local school districts' property tax revenue statewide.

Such a "Robin Hood" plan would shift money from rich to poor districts without consolidating their tax bases.

The court refused to do so, then went further in ruling on supplemental education funding. It also said it would not consider any more motions for rehearing in the case.

The new opinion comes after the court twice, unanimously, ruled unconstitutional the $14 billion-a-year school finance system that relies on local property taxes, state aid and some federal money.

"Twice this court has labored arduously to speak with one, clear voice concerning this most significant case ... Tragically, today this unity has been abruptly abandoned, shattering the good faith upon which it was founded," said Doggett's dissent.

He accused the majority of "a frantic rush to influence the final stages of current legislative deliberations," saying the opinion would "prolong correction of our inefficient educational system at the expense of the school children of Texas."

The court went too far in addressing supplemental education funding, because the motion for rehearing by the poor school districts did not address the question, Doggett said.

The majority said the question was raised in other arguments it had considered.

Attached to Doggett's opinion was a newspaper article on the issue and a column written by unsuccessful Republican gubernatorial candidate Tom Luce, who advocated allowing local districts to spend more money for enrichment after a sound education program was established.

INTRODUCING ...

Beverly Shilling/Reporter-Telegram

Mae Dawson, who has been Theatre Midland's costumer for the last 25 years, says she enjoys the work, even though it often means having to make do with what's on hand.

What actors wear is her care

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Mae Dawson has about 43,000 outfits in her wardrobe. And she doesn't wear any of them.

She may not wear them but she knows everything there is to know about the clothes. She has to. As the costumer for Theatre Midland for the past 25 years, Mrs. Dawson is in charge of outfitting the cast of every play the theater puts on.

Whatever the part, Mrs. Dawson will make, borrow or use from existing stock the necessary costume. Seldom, if ever, will she buy a costume.

"We try not to go and purchase — I'm one of those 'Midland conservatives,'" she quips.

About 75 percent of the costumes in stock were donated by members of the community, with outfits dating as far back as 1885.

But costuming is more than just making or finding an outfit — it is choosing the appropriate style and type, Mrs. Dawson said.

Studying scripts, breaking down characters, consulting directors and cast members, and researching the clothing style of the time period the play is set, are some of the considerations in preparing costumes.

Mrs. Dawson oversees all the costuming as well as about nine volunteers who help her get the costumes ready.

Intrigued with the theater since she was in high school, the Midland native said she was attracted to the theater because of its creative offerings.

"I wanted to be an artist. I think I was born that way — self-expression," she said.

Her first 10 years working on costumes was strictly volunteer. When she was convinced to become part of the staff, she still worked without pay for the first two years.

"It's been work, work, work ever since," Mrs. Dawson said with a smile.

Since about 1978, theater productions have increased from an average of about seven per season to approximately 18 now.

In addition to the Midland Theatre, people from other theaters and schools putting on productions are always turning to Mrs. Dawson for assistance.

And that's one of things that keeps her going — the demand for her services, she said.

But there are times, she admits with a smile, that she has second thoughts — at least briefly.

"There are days I'm so tickled to close the doors on Friday ... but, then, what do I do? I go home thinking about it (her work) all weekend," Mrs. Dawson said.

"My heart's in it. It has to be or I wouldn't be here," she added.

"I think being part of something every day is important to everybody," Mrs. Dawson said.

And after all the years as a costumer, Mrs. Dawson said she still strives to be as accurate in her costuming as possible — something not always achievable.

Like many people, Mrs. Dawson said she feels elated each time she completes a project.

County hires redistricting demographer

■ The county and its entities soon will be forming citizens' committees for input on redistricting.

By Erin Blair
Staff Writer

Midland County commissioners made progress on their redistricting strategy Monday, agreeing to hire a demographer and form a citizens' committee.

The county, working in cooperation with the city council and the boards of Midland Independent School District and Midland County Hospital District, has agreed to hire Delbert Taebel, a demographer with the University of Texas-Arlington, as a redistricting adviser and population demographer.

County Judge Charles W. "Bro" Seltzer said Taebel will be available to handle all legal work involved in redistricting, including each entity's submission to the Department of Justice.

The county's share of the four entities' redistricting costs will total $6,500, said Seltzer.

Precinct 3 Commissioner Louisa Valencia said she was glad to see the county working with other governmental bodies.

'Citizens' involvement is important, and reapportionment is the most democratic of democratic institutions.'

— County Judge Charles Seltzer

Seltzer said the cooperation not only would guarantee more uniform voting boxes for all local elections but also would save the county money. Had the county opted to redistrict alone, it would have cost $22,500.

Taebel recommended that the county and the other entities each form a citizens' committee for public input into redistricting, Seltzer said.

He proposed that each commissioner recruit two representatives, preferably a Democrat and a Republican, from his or her precinct. Seltzer said he would sit on the committee and invite Midland County Democratic and Republican party chairmen to join the 11-

Texans to toast troops Saturday

AUSTIN (AP) — The "Toast to Texas" celebration planned for Saturday to mark the anniversary of the 1836 Texas Declaration of Independence will include a salute to Texans serving in the Persian Gulf, organizers said.

The 2 p.m. toast, organized by Texas Highways magazine, will be held at Washington-on-the-Brazos State Park, led by Sam Houston IV and use bottled Hill Country spring water.

Texans in other states and countries also are being encouraged to simultaneously toast the event.

"The celebration at Washington-on-the-Brazos, where the Texas Declaration of Independence was signed in 1836, is the centerpiece of a worldwide observance," said Tommie Pinkard, editor of Texas Highways magazine.

Organizers said the official toast for the event was written by historian Joe B. Frantz and says:

"To Texas, joyous and sparkling, evergreen when it rains, enduring in drought, timeless, endless in boundaries, exciting, home to the adventurous of yesterday and today, with shrines from the past and space and spirit for the future. To Texas, everlasting in the hearts of your people."

United Way Venture Grants total $7,500

Staff Report

United Way of Midland has awarded $7,500 in Venture Grants to four agencies that are implementing new programs. The action was taken recently by the United Way board following a recommendation by the grants committee.

Agencies, their new programming and amounts awarded are:

■ Buffalo Trail Council, Boy Scouts of America, $1,000. The money is for registration and program materials for a new in-school scouting program for second and third graders at South and Washington elementary schools.

■ Permian Basin Girl Scout Council, $1,000. This is for an "in-school" scouting program for second and third graders at South and Washington elementary schools. Funds would be used for registration and program materials.

Both scouting endeavors are targeted to reach youth in an area that has historically had low participation.

■ Casa de Amigos, $3,000. This grant will cover operational costs of providing a van for one year to transport clients. Casa is working jointly with the Job Training Partnership Act office for the transportation and JTPA will provide the driver. Individuals in JTPA's Project Direction will receive transportation to and from Midland College. Casa clients

If spotters are meeting, storms can't be far behind

By Michael Kashgarian

When the "Bakersfield Valley tornado" ripped through the McCamey/Iraan area last June, it moved a 90-ton oil storage tank five miles and up a 45-degree incline.

John V. Wright, meteorologist in charge of the National Weather Service in Midland, related this incident to illustrate the strength of a tornado at a seminar for tornado spotters. The seminar, held at Midland College Monday, was one of many being held in the area as the tornado season approaches.

"We are trying to prepare emergency people — and for that matter the public — before the beginning of the severe weather season," Wright said.

Prime time for tornados in West Texas generally begins in April and continues through June.

"Citizens' involvement is important," he said, "and reapportionment is the most democratic of democratic institutions."

Elections Administrator Bettye Calvert endorsed Seltzer's proposal.

"Redistricting is a painful process and no one likes change," she said. "But we have to change when our (population) figures change and citizens need to understand the process."

Seltzer gave the commissioners a March 6 deadline for finding their committee members.

The commissioners took advantage of a light agenda to make some policy clarifications Monday afternoon.

They told District Attorney Al Schorre that he could not use drug and crime forfeiture money to supplement his office staff's salaries.

Under a new law, district attorneys and law enforcement agencies must submit a forfeiture fund budget to county commissioners and seek their approval on expenditures.

Schorre wanted to divvy up about $10,000 among his seven assistant district attorneys and the investigators, secretaries and clerks in his office to compensate them for overtime and expenses caused by heavy caseloads.

But Seltzer and the commissioners said the plan amounted to "entrepreneurial government" and would cause morale problems among county employees who play no part in the sometimes lucrative law enforcement and prosecution agencies.

They chastised Sheriff Gary Painter for applying for an $87,000 Texas Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse grant to fund the county Drug Abuse Resistance Education program without consulting the commissioners' court. Seltzer said he learned of the grant, which Midland County won, only when he attended a Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission meeting.

Painter explained that he learned of the grant days before its deadline and did not have time to notify the commissioners before sending off the application.

The commissioners also took exception to a telephone solicitation company that currently is using Painter's and DARE coordinator Steve Skaggs' names to raise funds by selling tickets to a Midland County Sheriff's Office-Houston Oilers basketball game.

Skaggs told them the company had signed a contract with the Houston Oilers and the Midland County Volunteer Firefighters to generate a minimum of $3,200 for the DARE program.

He said the program was legitimate and would give half its profits to DARE.

The commissioners asked that they be notified before another such solicitation took place.

In other county business, the commissioners:

■ Passed a resolution requesting that the city of Midland consider annexing the Windowpane II area.

■ Decided to solicit proposals for a health maintenance/wellness program for county employees.

tornadic storm.

Spotters were trained to recognize the characteristics of a typical tornado including the severity, location, and "telltale signs" of a tornadic storm not present in other thunderstorms.

In addition, those attending the seminars were advised, for safety reasons, of where to position themselves while observing a storm.

There are about 1,200 spotters in an 18-county region that includes Midland, Wright said.

Spotters — predominantly made up of law enforcement and fire officials, paramedics, and amateur radio enthusiasts — act as "the eyes of the Naktional Weather Service." When the NWS detects a major storm with radar, spotters report to the NWS on what is beneath the clouds — whether it be an actual tornado or signs of an impending one.

The course of a tornadic storm — as may be observed by a spotter — includes a wind shift from the direction of the storm, followed by rain, then heavy rain with hail, large hail, no precipitation for about three to five minutes and finally the tornado, Wright said.

During a storm, the worse place to be "is in a mobile home, and second, an automobile," Wright said.

The safest place to be is in a house, preferably a brick house, on the lowest floor in a room toward the center of the house with as many walls between the person and the structure's exterior, Wright said.

"Don't open the windows, the wind will break them anyway," Wright said.

For those living in a mobile home, a ditch may provide the best protection, Wright said.

When a tornado is already in the area, "trying to outrun the storm is not recommended," Wright added.

7 piano students chosen for district competition

Staff Report

Several local piano students were selected Sunday at a Midland Music Teachers' Association performance to represent Midland in the District Texas Music Teachers' Student Affiliate Contest. The district competition will be held in the auditorium of the Odessa College Fine Arts Building April 5 and 6.

The following students chosen to compete in Odessa are Roger Belizaire, Ovid Stavrica, Vanessa Matthews, Heidi Tang, Michelle Garcia, Jane Varela and Dustin Brantley.

First and second place winners of the District Competition are expected to compete on the state level at the State Convention in Austin in early June.

Teachers whose students participated are Pam Bristol, Natalie Eustace, Joy Finley, Dorothy Matthews and Mickey Matthews.

Judges for the local contest were Charlene Moore and Norman Goad.

Police investigate stabbings

Staff Report

Two separate stabbing incidents occurred in Midland early Monday morning, police officials said.

At about 2:34 a.m., officers responded to a medical call at 1002 S. Fort Worth St. where Reynaldo Lazano, 32, of the same address, suffered multiple stab wounds to the abdomen and back. Lazano was transported to Midland Memorial Hospital where he underwent surgery and was in serious condition Monday evening, hospital officials said.

About 3:25 a.m., a 20-year-old woman, Litsandra Gene Gibson, was stabbed in the face with a drawing compass and beaten by two women at Red's drive-in restaurant, 1807 E. Front St., police said. The victim, who was pregnant, was transported to Midland Memorial hospital where she was treated and released.

No one has been arrested in connection with either incident, police said.

VA volunteer sees how patriotism can be blind

By John Mitchell

WACO (AP) — The requests Sherry Hughes gets by would-be volunteers — those hoping to rip bandages and fluff pillows for Desert Storm casualties at the Veterans Administration Medical Center — have a glossy, made-for-television tint.

"They see shows like 'China Beach' and 'MASH' and think those are the types of patients we get," the chief of voluntary services said. "We're not going to receive patients with big open wounds requiring surgery."

The long-term care center is currently making room for additional veterans that may be relocated to Waco from Houston's VA hospital, designated a tertiary location for war injured. And Hughes expects when the fighting is finished the hospital may receive post-traumatic stress sufferers.

But the U.S. conflict with Iraq has not brought an increase in volunteer spirit at the VAMC. Only some misplaced notions.

"I've seen a new spirit of patriotism," she said. "I think they want to show support for Desert Storm, and that's wonderful. But people aren't coming in to take care of the veterans we already have."

Pity, because longtime volunteers at the center nearly glow when talking about the rewards of helping out. By the greetings and grins from the mouths of the veterans and employees they interact with during a typical morning, emotional compensation is not solely limited to the volunteers.

"I say, 'There but for the grace of God goes my brother, my son,'" said Rowena Dempsey, who serves ice cream to bedridden ex-soldiers on the closed wards. "I was always so thankful they made it home. You just want to dedicate yourself."

Dorothy Coker, a nursing assistant whose husband is a patient, agreed.

"They just go out of their way to make you feel good and make sure your loved one is well-cared for," Coker said. "It's a small pleasure. It really makes you feel psychologically like you're contributing."

White-clothed clerks and medical professionals pad the second-story, labyrinthine corridors of one building on a recent morning. The echoes in the halls hum softly.

Until Coker steps through the elevator doors.

"I want to show you down here," she gestures, moving around a corner toward a patient laundry room. As she walks, Coker waves or says hello to all who pass.

"How have you been," she asks one nurse, stopping to offer a hug and a few words of encouragement. In the next second, Coker is inquiring about the health of a patient of which she has grown fond, a quadriplegic taking computer courses at McLennan Community College.

AP Laserphoto

Rowena Dempsey, a volunteer at the Waco VA Medical Center for more than 12 years, greets a patient during her morning rounds.

Two years ago, her husband, Jack, became a patient.

During those times he slept, Coker ask the nurses what she could do to help.

At first, she passed out ice water to veterans, before being asked to help with clerical work. She files and updates papers about eight hours each week.

It may sound boring, but Coker called it a tiny measure of saying thanks.

"I could never, never repay them for all they do," she said. "It makes me feel good on the inside."

Her ward dwellers know Dempsey as "The Ice Cream Lady," and are quick to request the sugary treat when they recognize her blue jacket. For more than 12 years she has been helping through the American Legion auxiliary at the hospital.

Dempsey could talk to "the guys" for hours about bingo or the weather, but knows time is too short to dote too long.

"I like to see the guys and tell them hello, then I'm on to the next one," she said. "All of them need encouragement."

When asked if she has adopted any particular patients, she indicates that would be too hard.

"They're all my favorites," Dempsey said.

Both volunteers realize the importance of interacting with the patients.

Coker is happy to read letters to some of the patients. She will even write home for some.

"A lot of patients are not visited often by family," she said. "This gives them a feeling that 'maybe somebody else is thinking about me.'"

Hughes said life is made easier for the estimated 800 patients at the center by about 340 volunteers.

In an environment where employees hustle to take care of medical and social needs, she said the volunteers add a touch of warmth.

"They sit down and talk to patients, and patients can confide in them," she said. "They just build a friendship. A volunteer can concentrate on that one need of giving them totally one-to-one attention."

What the VA employees get is a chance to fight the long-term concerns instead of getting bogged in the daily battle load, she noted.

Measure addresses Lake Meredith salinity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation was introduced Monday that would help finance efforts to reduce the flow of salt into Lake Meredith, a source of drinking water to many High Plains cities including Amarillo and Lubbock.

Similar legislation last year cleared the House and Senate, but died in a conference committee over an issue unrelated to the Lake Meredith desalinization.

The bill introduced Monday would authorize the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation to share the costs of stopping the flow of salt into the Panhandle lake with the state of Texas and the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority.

Sarpalius said pressure is forcing salt into the Canadian River in New Mexico, and the salt is being carried down river to Lake Meredith.

Cities that get drinking water from Lake Meredith include Amarillo, Borger, Brownfield, Lamesa, Levelland, Lubbock, O'Donnell, Pampa, Plainview, Slaton and Tahoka.

Yum Yums: Enjoy drive through convenience, tasty food

At Yum Yums, the lights are on at 7 a.m., where longtime Midlanders Jim and Barbara Landers are ready to prepare a delicious breakfast for you. Breakfast at Yum Yums is hot, fresh and most of all, convenient as you go to work or drop the kids off at school.

Yum Yums is the home of finger lickin', tummy tickling "M'mm M'mm goodies" at 390 N. Midland Drive on the M-System and KMart parking lot. Whether you are hungry for breakfast, lunch, a snack, an ice cold drink or a sno cone, Yum Yums has a variety of tasty treats which are sure to please.

Start your day off with a smile from Jim or Barbara and a warm, iced cinnamon roll and a cup of coffee. These large rolls are baked with raisins and pecans and they are heated and drizzled with icing after you place your order. Blueberry muffins and bagels with cream cheese are filling as well as delicious.

Biscuit fans will enjoy Yum Yums' three inch diameter biscuits. Choose from plain, sausage or sausage and cheese. Heartier appetites will relish the buttered croissant breakfast sandwich with sausage and cheese.

Try hot, steamy coffee, fresh brewed iced tea or soft drinks including Coke, Diet Coke, Sprite, Dr. Pepper and root beer. All of the soft drinks are available with mushy ice. If your taste buds need something different, try a refreshing old fashioned Coke or root beer float.

Another favorite drink at any time of the day is the "brown cow." Ask for the 16 oz. 400 or the 20 oz. 800. They take a thick, chocolate milk and pour it over mushy ice. It is served with a straw and a spoon for the very last drop of enjoyment.

Stretch your lunch hour by driving by Yum Yums for a delicious "on the go" lunch. Try a croissant sandwich with fresh chicken salad, tuna salad or smoked turkey and American cheese. You'll notice that the warm, buttered croissants make your usual bologna on white look pretty dreary. It's time for a change if you are in a brown bag rut!

Sandwiches come dressed with alfalfa sprouts and are topped with a cherry pepper. Add a side order of potato salad (two sizes available) or chips, top it off with a drink and a dessert and you are set for the rest of the afternoon.

Probably the most difficult decision you'll have to make is what snack or dessert to choose. Try a sugar wafer double dip cone or a cup of hand-dipped Blue Bell ice cream. Flavors are mint chocolate, pecan pralines and cream, rainbow sherbet, rocky road, vanilla, caramel pecan fudge, chocolate chip, cookies and cream and Dutch chocolate.

At Yum Yums, you can have a slice of "drive by pie" — flavors change often. One day they might have apple pie, or another day cherry or pecan. It's worth going by to find out! Ice cream may be added. Home made delicious chocolate brownies baked with pecans for a mid-morning or afternoon snack.

Yum Yums also has cakes on hand — cheesecake and others such as carrot and chocolate.

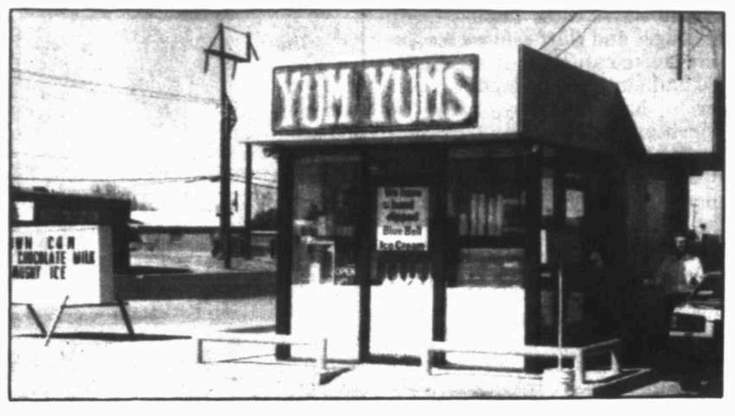
The cookie jar is always full at Yum Yums and peanut butter and chocolate chip are popular kinds. A variety of gum, candy and fresh popcorn is always ready to be sacked up.

Kids and adults — sno cone season is already here. Yum Yums offers five sizes from a small 4 oz. for the smaller sno cone lovers, 16 oz., 20 oz. to a 32 oz. cup for a really big treat. Ten flavors are available, and they change from time to time; however, the most popular are cherry , bubble gum, blue coconut and pina colada. You can get a sno cone any time of the year. A cream topping for your sno cones is available also.

For light eaters, Yum Yums offers delicious, cold watermelon by the slice and low calorie, high fiber drinks — the chocolate Slim Jim and the strawberry or banana Skinny Minnie.

Yum Yums is proud to offer you a favorite drink that seems to have lost its special taste over the years. Remember driving in the country to see Grandma and Grandpa on Sunday and around mid afternoon everyone would gather on the front porch and wait for that special treat of country tasting lemonade? Well, wait no longer.

Yum Yums will prepare for you that same country taste. Drive up and order a lemonade and watch them cut a fresh lemon and hand squeeze it into your glass, use good tasting water and a small amount of sugar all poured over crystal clear ice to give you the taste you will come back for again and again.



Breakfast, lunch, tasty snacks and great drinks are all specialties at Yum Yums, located at 390 N. Midland Drive on the M-System and KMart parking lot. Stop by for a sno cone or your favorite treat soon!

You can't miss the colorful blue and yellow building with the cute bear logo. Yum Yums is your answer for convenient, personal service and refreshing, delicious food. Call ahead if you know what you want and it will be packed and ready when you arrive.

Yum Yums is open from 7 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Saturdays. Jim and Barbara rest on Sundays. Give Yum Yums a try today!

Craft Bazaar booths filled with delightful new spring art

Hop into spring and the Easter season with a crowd of cheerful, handmade rabbits and spring novelties from Craft Bazaar. All sorts of delightfully handcrafted rabbits are on display throughout the store. Made by Midlanders for the most part, the selection includes rabbit welcome mats, wooden rabbits which claim, "This house protected by killer dust bunnies," ceramic bunnies, rabbit dolls and much, much more.

Crocheted Easter baskets, spring flower bouquets, brightly painted wooden tulips and assorted flowers, log and flower centerpieces and other unique, one-of-a-kind hand made items are found under one roof at Midland's newest arts and crafts mall.

Whimsical, decorative, practical and unique doesn't even begin to describe what is available at the Craft Bazaar booths. Patriotic and "Americana" crafts and art are spread throughout the store. You can even wipe your feet on Saddam Hussein's face on the "Kiss My Feet" rug. Stock up on yellow bows and American flag t-shirts while in the store.

Speaking of whimiscal, be sure to ask to see the "Pickled Hineys" and the "Cow Stools."

New to Craft Bazaar are colorful wooden yard ornaments and bird houses. Set up fat ladies, birds, bees, roadrunners, ducks, butterflies and more in your yard or garden. Also new are gingham and lace photo albums, address books and recipe books. Many are emblazoned with school colors and emblems for Lee High, Midland High, Permian High and the University of Texas.

Many Craft Bazaar crafters are talented crocheters. One of the most clever items at Craft Bazaar is the Poop Duck. This charming duck holds jellybeans which may be squeezed out — and you can figure out the rest!

One of the crafters is a talented custom seamstress who makes beautiful rompers and jumpers, which have been very popular this year. She can also repair treasured dolls and favorite stuffed animals.

Handicapped artists display their works at Craft Bazaar in the form of Western oil paintings and blue and mauve lead-free and microwave safe pottery.

Area crafters have limitless imaginations and their talents are evident at Craft Bazaar. For special occasions, you may custom order decorations to match your home. Or, make arrangements for party decorating. And if you like traditional, Southwestern, country or contemporary decorating, the booths of Craft Bazaar are loaded with great ideas.

Don and Liz Merckle, owners of Craft Bazaar, invite you into their large arts and crafts mall, which is open seven days a week. Craft Bazaar is located at 3712 W. Wall, across from Denny's and Motel 6.

Of course, there are lots and lots of children's toys and gifts, including rocking horses, doll cradles and doll benches. As you wander at leisure throughout Craft Bazaar, notice the brightly painted T-shirts, jackets, sweatshirts, hairbows, ceramics, calligraphy and watercolors.

Take a look at the large variety in many booths of country style woodcraft, Southwestern decorating items, kitchen magnets, shelves, rag dolls and reasonably priced quilts.

One booth is entirely devoted to school spirit and area schools are well represented in the form of festive sweatshirts, hairbows, corsages, earrings, laundry bags and more. Don't overlook these reasonably priced items as teacher's gifts at the end of the school year.

Other gift ideas in many price ranges are handmade Barbie clothes, rag baskets and rag rugs, wrap around bags and pet pillows, country quilt racks, wooden bookends, collector dolls such as Fairy Godmother and Queen Elizabeth, carpet samples, handpainted pajamas and delicate Victorian wood cut work.

Owners Don and Liz Merckle came up with the concept of involving the crafters of the Permian Basin together in a shared retailing effort. The "mall" idea turned into a successful venture which, so far, has attracted the talents of more than 100 different crafters.

Interestingly, the majority of these people live in Midland. Mrs. Merckle is a talented crafter, and you can see her silk flower designs and jewelry throughout the store. She has recently opened a silk flower room, complete with ready made arrangements and slik flower supplies. Mrs. Merckle strives to carry unusual flowers, such as black flowers, for example, and she can order special flowers not in the shop. You may bring in your own silk flowers and containers for a custom design or you may pick from her crop.

If you are a home crafter, you may want to consider leasing booth space at Craft Bazaar. A 4' x 4' space is $50 per month and many people lease multiple spaces. Each crafter works in the store one day per month or pays a $25 fee. Contact Don Merckle for details.

Layaways and special orders are welcome and gift wrapping is available. Store hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays. Call 689-8852 for more information.

Chaparral Wash & Lube: With oil change, get free car wash

If your car is showing signs of dust, grime, wear and tear, it's time to give your car the gift of a professional oil change and thorough car wash at Chaparral Wash and Lube Center, 2300 N. Big Spring.

Chaparral Wash and Lube Center offers the remarkable combination of a quality quick oil and lube change and maintenance check with a free car wash.

All you have to do is relax as the Chaparral technicians give your car the preventive maintenance it needs and no doubt a well-needed car wash as well.

Chaparral owner, Texas Tech graduate and Midland businessman Leon Jeffcoat invites you in to measure the difference that this centrally-located wash and lube center has to offer.

Generally open on inclement weather days, Chaparral's lube center and gasoline pumps are always at your service. With the purchase of gasoline or an oil change, if the clouds are threatening, you'll receive a rain check for your next car wash.

You won't have to lift a finger when you drive in to Chaparral Wash and Lube Center. Just sit back and let the friendly, dedicated technicians pamper your car for a fresh, cleaned up look.

Chaparral Wash and Lube has been well known for years for the best car wash Midland has to offer. Service and meticulous attention to detail are Chaparral trademarks.

Jeffcoat recommends an oil change for your car every three months or 3,000 miles. If you can't remember the last time you had an oil change, then it's surely time to have one. A free car wash is offered with each oil change in the Chaparral lube center.

Prices for the oil change and lube range from $18.50 to $23.50. Pennzoil, Quaker State, Havoline and other major brands of oil are available. For those who prefer using Mobil One, the price is $36.50.

You can count on more than just an oil change and lube in the Chaparral lube center. Technician C.C. Banks enjoys a reputation for being friendly, knowledgeable and able to trouble spot car problems. "C.C., in addition to being personable, has many years of experience in car maintenance," explained Jeffcoat.

Depend on the Chaparral technicians to examine your battery, tires, belts and hoses. Your vehicle is also checked for important proper fluid levels, including brake, power steering, transmission and windshield washer fluids.

As a part of this service, these fluids are replenished, if your car needs it. For an additional charge, Chaparral can install transmission oil, freon, light bulbs and windshield wiper refills. The friendly professionals at Chaparral Wash and Lube can help give your car the look and feel you want for one of your most valuable possessions.

Come by soon and pamper your car with some of the extra Chaparral services you can combine with your car wash. Check out the advantages of a professionally administered detail job from Chaparral. "We offer our service for a low price, in comparison to other businesses," commented Chaparral manager Steve Thompson.

A detail job includes spraying the engine to remove oil and grime, a thorough cleaning under the hood, hand waxing, carpet and upholstery shampooing, interior dash and door treatment and tire treatment. Prices for this service range from $49 to $79.

A full service car wash, which includes a wash by gentle cleansers, chamois brushes and soft water is just $7.95. Standard vans and Suburbans are just $2.00 extra. Each car is treated to a thorough wash down before it is cleaned gently by the brushes. Vacuuming, hand drying and window cleaning are included in the low price.

Save time while getting your car washed and have your car filled with Texaco gasoline and get a discount towards the wash. Fill up with more than 18 gallons and your wash is free.

Chaparral Wash and Lube Center is conveniently located at the corner of Big Spring and Scharbauer Drive. Texaco, Visa, MasterCard, American Express and Discover cards are accepted. Hours are 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays. Call 682-8013 for more information.

Chaparral Wash and Lube customers are repeat customers because the service is consistently friendly, professional and dependable. From left are Chaparral lube technician C.C. Banks, Chaparral owner Leon Jeffcoat and customer Hal Kempf.

By H.A. Tuck

Students...and a few faculty...were keeping one eye on the calendar and the other on the weather forecast this week. That's because next week is spring break. Part of the students are wishing for snow (those are the skiers) while the remainder are hoping for temperatures in the 80s (those would be the beach lovers).

This is the last week for regular-season Chaparral basketball games.

The Chaps wind up their conference schedule at 8 p.m. Thursday in Chap Center against nearby Odessa College, a team which has given MC fits the past few seasons.

Five sophomores will make their final regular season appearances on the parquet floor at Chap Center. Steve Armstrong, Carroll Boudreaux, Charlie Craine, Eric Walker and Eugene Witherspoon should see action next year with major college teams.

We hope you'll come to game to back the Chaps. If you can't see it in person, both games are being carried live on KCRS Radio, 550 AM.

Final talk in the African American History Month lecture series at MC is set for noon Wednesday in the Little Game Room of the Student Center. It's a brown bag affair. Rev. Michael DeVaughn is speaking on "The Legacy of Malcolm X." Sponsor for the lecture series has been the college's African American Student Alliance. There's no charge and the public is invited to attend.

The Chaparral men's tennis team plays Texas Tech today at Lubbock. It's their first action since grabbing all the ITCA Indoor Junior College titles last weekend at The Midlander.

Both tennis teams have a number of matches in North Texas and East Texas during the spring break.

If you just can't get enough basketball, the UIL Region I Class 5A boys high school tournament is being played at Chaparral Center Friday and Saturday. Semifinals are at 6 and 7:45 p.m. on Friday with the championship game at 11 a.m. Saturday.

Speaking of Chap Center, all the tickets for the Farewell Tour by The Judds are gone. Most of them vanished the first two days, with only scattered ones left after that. With the concert not scheduled until Sunday, March 10, it's the earliest sell-out ever at Chap Center.

Tickets still are available for the Harlem Globetrotters appearance on Wednesday, March 13. Tickets for the 7:30 p.m. event are $10.50, but discounted $2 for children or senior citizens. You also can charge your tickets in person or by calling 685-4584. There's a service fee for this.

Yeutter signs on to pact

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Agriculture and border states will benefit once the United States and Mexico sign a free trade agreement, outgoing Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter said Monday.

Yeutter, who leaves office Friday to assume the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee, also told the National Grain Sorghum Producers' annual meeting that a new global trade agreement is needed to equalize the international market for U.S. farmers.

While the situations in Mexico and Europe are different, Yeutter cited both cases to illustrate how farmers could gain by breaking down barriers and opening the borders to farm trade.

"I could spend a lot of time on this because I think it's the most important part of what's before all of us as farmers in this country and farmers around the world," Yeutter said.

Grain sorghum is a feed grain that is grown primarily in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri and New Mexico. And Yeutter said Mexico is already one of the United States' biggest buyers of grain sorghum, so President George Bush's move to negotiate a free trade agreement with Mexico will expand the market for farm products.

"A free trade agreement between the two countries will unquestionably increase economic growth in Mexico," said Yeutter. "And with increased economic growth will come improved diets, better eating habits and improved demand for agricultural imports."

Yeutter said border states will likely benefit because of the lower transportation costs and because Mexico trade will likely spark considerable commercial investment along the border.

Yeutter on Monday was en route to Mexico City to join Mexican officials for an announcement that the screw worm, a pest that weakens and kills cattle, has been eradicated in Mexico as it was in the United States under a bilateral agreement.

Yeutter, as U.S. trade representative and then as agriculture secretary the past two years, participated in the recent trade agreement between the United States and Canada. He complimented Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry for establishing an advisory committee to help Texas take advantage of the U.S.-Mexico pact.

Chaps drop the key one

■ New Mexico Junior College deals Midland College a severe blow with a 98-92 WJCAC victory.

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

HOBBS, N.M. – New Mexico Junior College had seven players score in double figures and the Thunderbirds put together the finest overall team effort Midland College has seen all season in a 98-92 win that apparently clinches a tournament spot for NMJC.

The T-Bird bench, helped by the combined 37 points from freshmen Bobby Kelly and Craig Delaney, outscored the Chaparral bench 48-8. Kelly hit 5-of-5 from three-point range in the first half; Delaney, a molehill among the mountainous Chaps, popped in 10 of his 21 in the first half.

"I don't think there's any question about it, our bench won us that game," NMJC head coach Ron Black said. "The kids showed a lot of heart, but not really a lot of brains when we were up by 14."

NMJC led 90-76 with under four minutes left and allowed MC a 13-2 run to draw to within 90-87 with 46 seconds left.

But Greg Brown and Pete Lewis hit 4-of-4 from the free throw line in the waning seconds and the T-Birds held a 94-89 lead with just 5.3 seconds reamining.

Carroll Boudreaux hit an uncontested three-pointer – his first attempt of the season – to bring the Chaps to within a bucket, 94-92, with two ticks left, but they would be the final points of the evening for MC.

When MC called a timeout with none remaining and was issued a technical, Brown returned to the free throw line and drained both and Delaney jammed one home at the buzzer for the 98-92 win.

Delaney and Kelly both had 18 to lead the T-Birds; Brown (10), Lewis (15), Chris Birden (12), Will Scott (11) and James Inman (12) also finished in double figures for the balanced T-Bird attack.

Boudreaux tied an individual single game scoring record with 12 consecutive free throws. Boudreaux made all 12 of his attempts as well to move into a fourth place tie for consecutive FTs during a game. The 6-9 sophomore for MC finished with a game-high 33.

Sophomore Eugene Witherspoon had 23 for the Chaps; Eric Walker finished with 10.

Former Midland Lee baseball star Randy Velarde gets some warmup help from New York Yankee conditioning coach Gary Troll. Velarde is one of several players, other than pitchers and catchers, who reported to training camp early.

Anyone know a doctor?

■ Baseball's spring training is underway, but already in need of medical help for some key stars.

Associated Press

The big news from several spring training camps on Monday came out of the doctor's office.

Frank Viola's elbow is acting up, Joe Magrane returned to St. Louis for an elbow examination and Mark Gubicza said he may not be ready for the start of the season.

An examination of Viola's pitching elbow on Monday revealed signs of small bone spurs, but the New York Mets said the left-hander would continue his workouts as scheduled.

Anti-inflammatory medication was prescribed for Viola, who underwent a magnetic resonance image examination. The MRI detected no loose bodies and the team said he would work out on Tuesday at Port St. Lucie, Fla.

"If we felt that a pitcher was seriously hurt, we wouldn't let him throw tomorrow (Tuesday)," Mets vice president Al Harazin said.

Viola (20-12 in 1990) reported soreness after throwing on Friday, which was unusual for him. "The only thing that concerned me is that I've never had problems at all, especially this early," he said.

Viola, entering the final season of a three-year $7.9 million contract, is seeking an extension of the agreement that will put over $4 million a year.

"In contract talks, you don't want to deal with damage goods," Viola said. "The Mets thought it would be good to get everything in the open. The early MRI makes the organization feel better and makes me feel better."

Magrane, also a left-hander, was in St. Louis on Monday to have his sore elbow examined by Dr. Stan London.

"We should know something within 48 hours or so," Cardinals spokesman Brian Bartow said.

General Manager Dal Maxvill said earlier that he hoped Magrane's absence from camp would be brief.

"You're always concerned when one of your big people is hurt," Maxvill said. "We've had some bad luck in past springs. Joe has been healthy through his career, so hopefully this is nothing serious. But until (the doctor) has a chance to look at him, we'll have our fingers crossed."

Magrane, 26, had experienced some tightness in the elbow. Trainer Gene Gieselmann called the condition an "irritation" that was not responding to treatment.

Gubicza, coming back from shoulder surgery, has modified his prediction that he'll be ready for Kansas City by opening day.

"I'll be ready, but I don't know what for," he said after a weekend workout at the team's spring training camp in Haines City, Fla. "If it's going north with the club, that's fine. If it's staying down here for extended spring training, that's fine. But I know I'll be ready to pitch at some level."

Gubicza, 28, underwent arthroscopic surgery on his right shoulder last Aug. 2 and didn't pick up a baseball for four months. He began throwing in early December and now is

Hawks hand South Plains its first loss

By Bill Price
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — In a game that lived up to every ounce of hyperbole preceding it, the No. 3 ranked Howard College Hawks upended second-ranked South Plains College 87-78 here in junior college basketball Monday night at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The win knocked the Texans from the lofty ranks of the unbeatens, as SPC's record went to 29-1 and 15-1 in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference.

Howard is now 28-1 and 14-1 in conference play, with its only loss being a 90-82 decision at SPC Jan. 24 in Levelland.

The here of the game for the Hawks could well be considered to be point guard Ritchie Campbell, who stepped off the bench to score 19 points with the illness of starter Antonio Valiengo.

Valiengo began the game and finished with 10 points, but it was Campbell who provided the spark when the Hawks needed it most with a trio of key three-pointers.

Another factor in the SPC loss was was when star 6-8 forward Charles Outlaw fouled out of the game with just more than five minutes left to play. Outlaw was limited to nine points, but provided seven blocked shots on the defensive end.

However, Howard head coach Steve Green felt Outlaw was less of a factor than 6-9 post Dwight Stewart, who fueled the Texans with 25 points, including a couple of treys from what is usually beyond a big man's range.

"Stewart was really killing us. To me he was hurting us more than Outlaw. I don't think it was that much of a factor when Outlaw fouled out," he said.

The game began with SPC jumping out to a 10-2 lead on the strength of its defense. But the Hawks also provided some "D," with Howard offsetting its 19 turnovers by forcing the Texans into the same number of miscues.

But Campbell came alive in the last 10 minutes of the first half, with three steals that helped the Hawks get back into the game and actually lead at half time, 33-32.

In the second half, SPC again went out ahead and led 40-37 before Green called a time out to re-group with 17:47 left. In the next 10 minutes, Howard went on a spree that saw the Hawks outscore the Texans 29-21.

Still, that game was tight in the final minutes, and the crowd of about 3,500 —

Greenwood goes against Comanche in playoff

■ The state high school basketball playoffs heat up tonight with games across the Permian Basin.

By Bill Grimes
Staff Writer

The Greenwood Rangers hope the same formula that worked so well against Clint last week does the trick against the Comanche Indians in today's Class 3A area round basketball playoff at 8 p.m. in Sweetwater.

Elsewhere tonight, Lamesa faces Fort Worth Poly in Class 4A regional action at 7:30 p.m. in Abilene. And in Class A area round action, Rankin faces Marathon at 7 p.m. in Fort Stockton.

Also, Chaparral Center will be the site of two Class 5A area round games. Plainview will face El Paso Coronado at 6 p.m., followed by the Lubbock Monterey-El Paso Hanks matchup at 8 p.m.

Plainview nipped Midland High 65-63 on Saturday to advance to tonight's doubleheader.

Greenwood, 13-14, stopped Clint in bi-district action by relying on its deep platoon of tall post players. Six-four Damon Dublin led the Rangers with 18 points, while 6-4 sophomore Ray Seales made his presence felt despite early foul trouble, and seniors Chuck Boecking and Cody Mebane played well off the bench.

Ranger coach Robert Chaney hopes for more of the same against Comanche, 25-5. The Indians earned the District 7-3A championship with a guard-oriented offense led by Jake Escobar and Mark Feist, who combined for 43 points in a 70-63 bi-district win over Lake Travis.

"We'll try to establish an inside game," Chaney said. The coach pins a lot of his hopes on inside starters Dublin and Seales.

"Dublin is capable of having a game like that (against Clint) every night," Chaney said. "And Ray Seales is a player.

"Ray has been in foul trouble each of the last two games, so I think he's ready to go."

And if Dublin and Seales falter, there's always Boecking and Mebane. Boecking has started most of the last two seasons, before the recent emergence of Seales, while Mebane is the best pure athlete on the squad. Both are capable of double-figure performances in points and rebounds on any given night.

Free throw shooting is Greenwood's main area of concern. The Rangers are shooting less than 60 percent from the line this season, though guards Eric Clutter and Mark Burfeind pulled out last week's game with free throws in the final seconds.

Barkley layup beats Lakers

NBA

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Charles Barkley scored 18 points, including a game-winning layup with 5.2 seconds left, as the Philadelphia 76ers beat the Los Angeles Lakers 92-90 Monday night for their fifth straight victory.

The lead changed hands eight times in the final 3:44 with Barkley's driving shot snapping a 90-90 tie. It was only the Lakers' third loss in their last 13 road games.

The Lakers twice inbounded the ball in the final 5 seconds, but a desperation shot by Magic Johnson was partially blocked and fell short as the game ended.

Armon Gilliam scored 19 points and Ron Anderson and Hersey Hawkins 15 each for Philadelphia.

Byron Scott's 18 points, James Worthy's 17 and 16 from Johnson paced the Lakers, who played their fifth game in seven days, including an overtime win over Detroit on Sunday.

The 76ers led 72-68 after three quarters and outscored the Lakers 9-4 at the start of the final period to lead 81-72 with 7:48 remaining. Gilliam's 5 points led the surge.

But the Lakers, with Johnson contributing a pair from the 3-point range, rallied 12-2 to lead 84-83 with 3:44 to go. Johnson's second 3-pointer gave the Lakers the lead.

Los Angeles edged in front 86-85, and after Barkley and A.C. Green traded baskets, the Lakers were on top 88-87.

Rick Mahorn's basket with 1:20 left pushed Philadelphia ahead, but Worthy's field goal gave the Lakers a 90-89 lead with 54 seconds on the clock.

Barkley made 1 of 2 free throws to tie the score and then drove past Green for the game-winning basket.

Sacramento's Antoine Carr (35) waits for a shot, but Atlanta's Moses Malone tries to seal off the basket.

Hawks 96, Kings 88

ATLANTA — Dominique Wilkins scored 31 points and had a career-high 19 rebounds as Atlanta extended its homecourt winning streak to 20 games.

Wilkins rallied the sluggish Hawks at the start of the fourth quarter, scoring eight points in the first 2:11 to give Atlanta a 77-72 lead.

It was the 24th consecutive road setback for the Kings, who completed a six-game road trip with a chance of winning. Sacramento had a 72-68 lead going to the final quarter.

The Kings haven't won on the road since beating Washington 87-82 on Nov. 20. They now have a 1-27 road record this season.

Suns 128, Hornets 108

PHOENIX — Tom Chambers scored 30 points and helped spark a decisive third-quarter rally as Phoenix beat Charlotte for its 13th consecutive home victory.

Kevin Johnson finished with 23 points and 14 assists for the Suns while Dan Majerle had 20 points, Jeff Hornacek 16 and Xavier McDaniel 15.

Phoenix has a 21-4 home record this season and hasn't lost here since Dec. 21 — a 130-128 overtime defeat to San Antonio.

Midland College linksters nail JUCO national champs by 11

Staff Report

PENSACOLA, Fla. — Cold drizzle did little to dampen the spirts of the Midland College golf team Sunday as the Chaparrals combined for 310 strokes in the final round of the University of West Florida Invitational and an 11-stroke victory over the nation's top-ranked junior college team.

Chaps Andrew Coltart and J.C. Hernandez shared medalist honors with 224 totals, and MC's 911-stroke tally at the 54-hole event was easily bettered that of No. 1 ranked Central Alabama Community College, which is the defending National Junior College Athletic Association champion.

MC's Steve Armstrong used a 228 to finish just four strokes off the pace over the the Tiger Point Course, which hosts the PGA Pensacola Open.

Texas wears out Stetson

SWC Basketball

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Dexter Cambridge sparked a late Texas run with 16 points and three assists as the Longhorns held on to beat Stetson 96-83 Monday night.

Texas (19-6) had five other players score in double figures, including Benford Williams, who had 21 points and a game-high nine rebounds. Joey Wright had 17 points, Locksley Collie had 16 and Courtney Jeans and Teyon McCoy 10 apiece.

Stetson (13-15) was led by Mark Brisker, who scored 27 points. Brisker's backcourt mate Frank Ireland added 24.

A basket and free throw by Brisker gave the Hatters a 71-70 lead with 9:58 remaining. But then Cambridge took over.

The 6-7 junior hit a short jumper in the lane to give Texas the lead for good 72-71. He hit another short jumper and in between two 3-pointers, dished off two assists to Williams to help Texas take an 84-77 lead with 4:46 left in the game.

Cambridge was 7-of-8 from the floor including two three-pointers.

Stetson led most of the first half and built its biggest lead at 24-17 with 12:08 left in the half. But a Jeans 3-pointer with 51 seconds left in the half provided the Longhorns with a 46-43 advantage at intermission.

Arkansas St. 60, Texas Tech 59

LUBBOCK — Arkansas State's Keith Gray made a 3-pointer with 26 seconds left and then hit two free throws with 6 seconds left to secure a victory over Texas Tech.

Arkansas State, of the American South Conference, improved to 20-7. Texas Tech, a member of the Southwest Conference, fell to 8-21.

Texas Tech attempted to take the final shot trailing 58-56 with 26 seconds left. But Steve Miles could not handle a pass in traffic and the Red Raiders lost the ball out of bounds with 8 seconds to play.

Bryant Moore hit a 3-pointer as time expired to pull Tech within one.

Philip McKeller led Arkansas State with 15 points. Fred Shepherd had 12 and Tyrone Hall added 10 points and 10 rebounds for the Indians.

Miles' fumble at the end of the game was the only blemish in an outstanding effort as he scored 26 points and grabbed 13 rebounds. Miles scored five points in a 7-2 run that gave the Raiders a 56-52 lead with 2:36 left.

HAWKS: SPC no longer unbeaten

a Garrett Coliseum record for Howard basketball — wasn't confident of the win until Johnny McDowell scored after stealing the ball for a layup following a missed jumper by teammate Mike Williams to make the score 79-75 with 1:05 to play.

In the final minute, the Hawks stretched the lead by 6-of-8 from the free throw line.

Joining Campbell with 19 points for Howard was Harvey Petty, while McDowell and Williams scored 12 apiece. Following for SPC were Corey Beck at 16 points and David Diaz with 15.

CHAPS: Thunderbirds close to playoffs

(From 1C)

Black said as far as he can figure, the T-Birds cinched a Region V tournament spot with the win. Regardless of what happens Thursday, Black says his team has the edge.

"I feel like we have (made the tournament), based on the power rating system," Black said. "But I'll feel a lot better if we can go up and beat Frank Phillips."

The loss drops MC to 16-13 overall, 7-8 in conference and into fifth place.

NMJC moves to 8-7 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference play.

The Chaps close out the 1990-91 regular season Thursday at home against Odessa College.

Free agency a dead end for many of baseball's middle class players

By Hal Bock
AP Sports Writer

For Sale: Baseball free agents. All positions. All experienced, with major league credentials. All immediately available. Will work cheap, comparatively speaking. Contact appropriate agents.

In a booming free agent market that produced record revenues for many players, the flip side are baseball's hard core unemployed.

For every Bud Black, equipped with a $10 million contract from the San Francisco Giants, there's a Rick Mahler waiting for the phone to ring.

For every Kirk Gibson, signed by Kansas City for $3.65 million, there's a Candy Maldonado sitting at home.

Free agency is Easy Street for some, a Dead End for others.

Still available are more than two dozen players like Brian Downing, Fred Lynn, John Tudor and Ron Oester, familiar names who had adequate 1990 seasons.

So how come they can't find jobs?

What appears to be happening is a not-so subtle squeeze play on baseball's middle class. Teams are perfectly willing, if not entirely happy, to fork over big bucks for marquee names. When it comes to the next level, however, the checkbooks don't flip open quite as quickly.

So world champion Cincinnati figures it can fill Mahler's seven wins with somebody making less than the $790,000 it was paying him, somebody perhaps like free agent Ted Power, signed for a bargain basement $500,000. That's a savings of $290,000, which can be applied to the $12.5 million contract the Reds gave Tom Browning and the $7.3 million they gave Bill Doran.

That left Mahler shopping for a new job and finding teams hesitant about signing a pitcher who will be 38 this summer. The situation puzzles his agent, Steve Comte.

"The money we're seeking is not a problem," he said. "We never envisioned breaking the bank. The situation is quite surprising. It's not like he threw poorly or was hurt. He's durable and versatile. He can start. He can relieve. He's never been hurt. He's rarely missed a start. You'd think that would be attractive to a lot of clubs.

"I've heard a diversity of reasons. Every club has its own excuse. If a club like Houston can't use him, nobody can."

The Astros, like the others, have so far turned down Comte's client. "At this point, I'm just asking clubs to bring him to camp. There's nothing to lose. He's a steal, but he's got to get to camp. It's been disheartening."

Comte's hope now is that with pitchers and catchers in camp, Mahler may become more attractive when teams see what they have in the way of available arms. "But how long can you wait?" he said. "It's going on four months. It's the most frustrating situation I've had in 13 or 14 years in this business. The guy can pitch."

And Maldonado can hit. At least he did last year when he led the Indians with 22 homers and 95 RBIs. Cleveland used the Branch Rickey formula for dealing with him.

Hall of Famer Ralph Kiner delights in recalling how Rickey offered him a salary cut following one of his 50-home run seasons with Pittsburgh, explaining that the Pirates had finished last with him and they could finish last without him. The Indians finished fourth in Maldonado's big year, paying him $775,000. They could finish fourth paying somebody else the minimum $100,000.

Tom Reich, Maldonado's agent, thought he had a job for his man in Baltimore. Then the Orioles traded for Glenn Davis and the opening evaporated. So, like Mahler and the others, Maldonado sits and waits.

Larry Sheets, who had 10 homers and 52 RBIs last year with Detroit, was in the same situation as Maldonado until agent Ron Shapiro got him a no-guarantee invite to the Orioles' camp. The squeeze was apparent.

"There is an apparent trend that it is somewhat harder for a mid-level player to get the free agent paydirt, maybe because of the mega-dollars going into the contracts for superstars," he said.

Players average $544,628 increase

NEW YORK (AP) — It's no wonder why baseball owners hate salary arbitration.

The 157 players to go through the process this year increased their salaries by an average of $544,628, according to a study by The Associated Press. That's a 104 percent rise over their 1990 incomes.

Although owners won 11 of 17 cases that went through to hearings — their best percentage since 1979 — they got hammered for the highest raises in baseball history.

The dollar increase, which took the arbitration average salary over $1 million for the first time, was the largest in the 16 years of the process. The percentage increase, slightly higher than last year's 102 percent jump, was the second-highest behind a 113 percent rise in 1981.

"Even when the owners win, they lose," commissioner Fay Vincent said. "You're talking about a system that's flawed."

Donald Fehr, the head of the Major League Baseball Players Association, countered that the system "works more or less as expected, expecially coming off collusion years."

"The overwhelming number of the prior salaries were collusion influenced," Fehr said. "Those were too low. And the owners have always insisted that salaries go up with length of service, so you're going to get an increase just if you're around."

Atlanta's Ron Gant did the best, increasing his salary 697 percent from $150,000 to $1,195,000. Gant was among 13 players newly eligible after 2½ seasons because of a change in the collective bargaining agreement.

Arbitration provoked a 32-day lockout that delayed the start of the 1990 season. But players won't give it up, and this year's results show why.

SPRING: Alomar inks

easing his way back into pitching shape.

In other news from spring trainging camps on Monday:

— Danny Darwin, who missed the first two Boston workouts as he honored a Little League commitment in Houston, threw from the bullpen mound for about 10 minutes. Darwin signed as a free agent with the Red Sox in December for $11.8 million over four years.

"He was impressive," manager Joe Morgan said. "He must have thrown 40 straight strikes, keeping the ball down both on the inside and down and out. That's what pitching is all about."

— The Texas Rangers opened spring training camp on Monday with 24 pitchers reporting, but one of them was absent — Nolan Ryan. In keeping with his strict workouts program, Ryan, 44, who led the American League in strikeouts, won his 300th game and pitched his sixth no-hitter last year, won't arrive from Alvin, Texas, until March 1.

— The Mets said they would give minor league tryouts this week to former major league pitchers Neil Allen and Mike Jones. Allen, a one-time Met, was in the Cincinnati organization last season and Jones formerly pitched for Kansas City.

— In money matters, Sandy Alomar Jr., the AL Rookie of the Year in 1990, agreed to a one-year contract worth $345,000 with the Cleveland Indians on Monday. Alomar, 24, was also the starting catcher for the AL All-Star team last season. In 132 games, he compiled a .290 average with nine home runs and 66 RBIs.

— Cincinnati catcher Joe Oliver is responding so well to physical therapy for an inflammed shoulder muscle that the Reds could cut his recovery time. Oliver's activity has been limited since the start of camp, when the Reds said his recovery could take two weeks.

Tar Heels move to No. 4

Associated Press

The Tar Heels might already be aiming at No. 2,000, but they'll have to settle for No. 4 for now.

North Carolina (21-4) became the first team to reach 1,500 basketball victories last week with wins over The Citadel and Clemson and, at the same time, moved from No. 6 to No. 4 in The Associated Press poll.

"The way it keeps going on and on even amazes the players," redshirt senior Pete Chilcutt said.

UNLV remained the unanimous No. 1, with Ohio State and Arkansas continuing to hold down Nos. 2-3.

UNLV breezed to three victories last week, extending its winning streak to 36 games, including 25 this season. The Rebels got all 63 first-place votes.

Ohio State (24-1) had 1,503 points to 1,455 for Arkansas (27-2).

Carolina's 1,500 victories and 21st consecutive 20-win season both are NCAA records. The Tar Heels got to 1,500 one game ahead of Kentucky. The Wildcats (20-6) stumbled at Vanderbilt last Wednesday, then beat Florida on Saturday for victory No. 1,499 and 20-win season No. 36, one more than North Carolina. The Wildcats dropped a spot to 13th this week.

Indiana (23-4), which closed its week with a 112-79 romp over Michigan, dropped one notch to fifth after an 80-79 overtime loss to Iowa earlier. The defeat all but ended Indiana's chances of catching Ohio State in the Big Ten.

Syracuse (24-4), beaten at Madison Square Garden by St. John's, maintained its lead in the Big East standings while falling one spot in the rankings, to sixth. The Orangemen were followed by Arizona, Duke, Utah and Kansas.

The only addition to the top 25 this week was Alabama (17-8), in at No. 24 in place of Georgetown, a perennial power which lost its ninth game of the season, a 78-65 decision to No. 22 Pittsburgh.

Ranked No. 25 last week, Georgetown fell out of the poll for the first time since the 12th week of the 1987-88 season.

New Mexico State heads up the second 10, followed by Oklahoma State, Kentucky, Southern Mississippi, Nebraska, UCLA, St. John's, LSU, East Tennessee and Seton Hall.

The last five are Princeton, Pitt, Mississippi State, Alabama and Virginia.

CFL's Argos has new team owners

TORONTO (AP) — Meet the CFL's newest owners — an American millionaire, a hockey superstar and a Canadian comic.

Los Angeles Kings owner Bruce McNall, Kings center Wayne Gretzky and comedian John Candy promised Monday to turn the Toronto Argos into a high-profile, community-involved franchise.

"We have to get involved in the community," Candy told a packed news conference at SkyDome, where the ownership team officially was unveiled. "We have to get back to when it was exciting to go to a game."

Gretzky said he'd do his part in promotion, as well.

"When you get involved as financially as I have in this, I'm not just going to leave it be," he said. "I'll try to do as much as I can to help marketing and promotion, whatever they want me to do."

And McNall said he isn't worried about the league's future.

"I feel very confident this league is strong and can survive," he said.

"I sometimes use the newspapers in second grade to reinforce what we learned in class. When I introduce a new concept in language or math, I can often find a relevant example in the paper. This process is not only fun, but also aids in retention of learned material. The children also enjoy learning to obtain news from the same sources as their parents. They have begun to understand that newspapers can be informative as well as entertaining."

Oil prices slide

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices fell in after-hours trading Monday night on a report that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein had ordered his troops to vacate oil-rich Kuwait.

Crude was traded at $17.69 per barrel in private cash dealings between oil companies in the wake of news reports on the Baghdad radio announcement, which came about 48 hours after an allied ground attack began in Iraq and Kuwait, said Peter Beutel, an oil analyst with Pegasus Econometric Group Inc., in Hoboken, N.J.

That was 25 cents cheaper than the closing price on the New York Mercantile Exchange, which Beutel called a significant response in the cash market. The White House said it had no information on the Iraqi announcement, so the war would continue, prompting some traders to say they would wait for more war news.

Dollar firmer

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar was lifted on world markets Monday as the U.S. war machine drove deeper into enemy territory, renewing hopes for a swift end to the conflict. Gold was mixed.

In New York, the dollar settled at 133.55 yen, up from late Friday's 132.15 yen.

In New York, sterling fetched $1.9265, less expensive than late Friday's $1.9445.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Friday, included: 1.5200 German marks, up from 1.5055; 1.3020 Swiss francs, up from 1.2925; 5.1665 French francs, up from 5.1225; 1,136.00 Italian lire, up from 1,127.50; and 1.1526 Canadian dollars, up from 1.1524.

Gold rose in the United States but fell in overseas markets. In New York, the precious metal's price for February delivery was $359.50 a troy ounce on the Commodity Exchange, up $2.50 from late Friday.

Stocks lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled for a mixed showing Monday after an erratic session closely influenced by developments in the land offensive against Iraq.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 30 points in the early going, closed with a 1.49 loss at 2,887.87.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by nearly 3 to 2 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 939 up, 649 down and 457 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 193.82 million shares, against 218.76 million in the previous session.

Agriculture would gain from trade pact

■ Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter says a free trade agreement with Mexico would benefit agriculture, particularly in border states.

Associated Press

SANTA FE, N.M. — Outgoing Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter told grain sorghum producers Monday that agriculture will benefit as a result of a U.S.-Mexico free trade agreement.

Yeutter

Yeutter, on his way to Mexico to mark the eradication of a troublesome bovine pest, said that Mexico's standard of living will increase as a result of a trade pact, therefore sales of U.S. farm products will increase.

President George Bush has made a free trade agreement with Mexico a high priority. Yeutter, as agriculture secretary the past two years and formerly as U.S. trade representative, participated in the landmark trade agreement between the U.S. and Canada.

Yeutter, who leaves office this Friday to assume the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee, said border states such as New Mexico could benefit more than others since they are closer and would have less transportation expense.

And he said it's likely that investment taking advantage of the bilateral trade pact might be greater along the border states than elsewhere.

Yeutter, speaking at the National Grain Sorghum Producers' annual convention, said the agreement will likely contain some provisions to prevent the dumping of low-wage products into the United States.

Yeutter told the grain producers that they should become more sophisticated about lobbying in Washington, focusing their attention beyond the Department of Agriculture to other offices that affect farmers and ranchers, namely assistant secretaries of state for economic affairs, the Environmental Protection Agency and the Department of Energy.

Grain sorghum is a feed grain that is grown primarily in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri and New Mexico.

Shut banks' impact may stay awhile

By Dave Skidmore

WASHINGTON (AP) — Months after the current recession is over and the economy is growing again, the government will be struggling with a legacy of failed banks.

Bank failures, in the vernacular of economists, are a lagging indicator. They follow rather than lead declines in the economy.

That's significant in light of the more than 1,000 bank failures in the past six years. They have gone under, not in hard times, but in the midst of the economy's longest peacetime expansion.

No one knows for sure how much more the banking system will deteriorate when the problems of a recession are added to an already weak industry, but the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. predicts 180 failures this year, up from 169 last year, and 160 in 1992.

And that's if the recession is mild.

If the downturn is worse than expected, failures likely will hit a post-Depression record of 230 this year, falling slightly to 210 in 1992, the agency said.

Under that scenario, the FDIC fund protecting more than $2 trillion in bank deposits would be depleted by the end of this year, requiring a bailout from member banks.

The FDIC board is scheduled Thursday to consider a proposal by banking trade groups to shore up its fund by borrowing $10 billion from the industry. But the plan is already being criticized as inadequate.

Three private economists have submitted a report to the House Banking Committee showing bank failures in a severe recession swamping the industry-financed insurance fund, necessitating a massive loan from taxpayers.

Robert Litan of the Brookings Institution, James Barth of Auburn University and R. Dan Brumbaugh, a San Francisco consultant, warn that taxpayers may have to pump as much as $50 billion into the FDIC.

They say that, at best, repayment by surviving banks would take 10 years and, at worst, would be impossible.

Banking's largest problem is foundering commercial real estate markets, said Carole S. Berger of C.J. Lawrence Inc.

In the past five years, real estate lending has been responsible for more than 60 percent of the industry's asset growth, she said, and banks have one in every five dollars invested in real estate loans.

Real estate troubles started in the Southwest after a collapse of oil prices in 1986 ruined the region's economy. A real

OPEC holds price talks

By Sally Jacobsen

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Six OPEC ministers worried about slipping oil prices met informally Monday to discuss measures to avert a complete collapse after the Persian Gulf War, but they remained tight-lipped about what was said.

Sadek Boussena, president of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, refused to give details of the closed-door session. It did not include members from the Persian Gulf states.

The OPEC president, also Algeria's mines minister, said only that the ministers discussed the "market situation."

"We made a general and informal review of the situation of the market," Nigerian Oil Minister Jibril Aminu said. He, too, refused to go into detail.

Ministers from Indonesia, Gabon, Libya and Venezuela also attended.

The meeting was hastily arranged about a week ago amid worries that an oil glut could lead to a price crash once the war ends. Prices have plummeted in recent months, and analysts predict a sharper decline once the fighting stops.

OPEC was bringing in an average of $16.64 per barrel during the third week of February, well off the target price of $21 per barrel.

The price skyrocketed to $37.22 in October but has fallen off amid ample supplies and the elimination of fears that the war could threaten oil facilities in Saudi Arabia.

Once the war ends, OPEC will be under pressure to restrain high production and put back in place its quota system to try to break the expected price fall.

After Iraq's invasion of fellow OPEC member Kuwait in August, the cartel suspended its quota system to make up for the loss of 4 million barrels a day of Iraqi and Kuwaiti crude, which was embargoed by the United Nations.

Without limits, the other 11 producers have turned up the taps. Current production is estimated at 23.6 million barrels a day, 1.1 million higher than the previous quota.

During Monday's meeting, the absence of Persian Gulf members, especially that of Saudi Arabia's influential Hisham Nazer, ensured that no action would be taken to try to halt the price decline.

The OPEC ministers could adopt measures at a formal meeting on March 11 to curtail production in an effort to bolster prices.

In addition to Saudi Arabia, countries producing extra oil during the crisis include Venezuela, the United Arab Emirates, Indonesia, Libya and Nigeria. The other OPEC members are Ecuador, Qatar and Iran.

Long horizontal well tested

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Union Pacific Resources Co. said its new horizontally drilled well, rated as the longest in Texas, tested at a production rate of 1,162 barrels per day.

The well, Borchers Trust No. 1, was tested last week after Union Pacific drilled 6,511 feet down and 6,142 feet across.

The horizontal portion is the longest of 841 such wells that have been permitted by the Texas Railroad Commission, agency spokesman Gary Garrison said. The previous record of 4,907 feet was held by the J.R. Hamilton No. 1 well operated by GLG Energy, an Austin-based partnership.

Of the 841 wells, 425 have been completed. Horizontal drilling is a relatively new technique that has created an oil boomlet, particularly in south Texas.

The Union Pacific Resources well is located eight miles northeast of Gonzales, a town of 6,000 50 miles east of San Antonio. The well test also produced a gas output of 382,000 cubic feet per day.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Money manager good for the inexperienced

By Bill Doyle

Q. I have very little experience in personal investments. Most I have ventured into have lost money. I will retire next month and will have about $600,000 from my pension fund to roll over into an individual retirement account.

Doyle

A large bank has a trust fund totalling $11.2 billion for retirees and other investors. The charge is 1 percent annually and approximately one-quarter of 1 percent on stock purchases. The fund's track record is good. I want a low-risk portfolio yielding 11 to 12 percent annually, with 7 percent from income and the rest from growth in value of the investment.

Is this arrangement suitable for me?

A. Probably. Turning an retirement nest egg over to a professional investment manager usually is a wise move for someone with limited investment experience.

From your letter, it's not clear whether your money would be commingled with other investors' money in a common trust fund or if you would have an asset management account which would hold individual stocks and other investments for you.

I suspect it would be the latter, because you mention charges for purchases, which also would apply to any securities sold for your account. It's likely the bank has a discount brokerage subsidiary and those charges are brokerage commissions.

You could open a similar asset management account with almost any brokerage firm. But banks usually handle investments more conservatively than many brokerages and generally are more suitable for people such as you.

A commingled bank fund is similar to a mutual fund. Take some time to look at them. Concentrate your search on true no-load mutual funds, with no charge when you invest or when you take money out and do not have 12b-1 plans, which are a form of ongoing sales levies.

Your desire for an 11 to 12 percent annual "total return" — a combination of dividend income and growth — is not unreasonable. Just be aware there is no assurance you will get that much, when you invest in stocks. You might do better or worse, with a bank fund, a brokerage account or a mutual fund.

Q. The bulk of my estate will be put into two trusts handled by a bank. All income from the trusts will be for the benefit of my wife, if she survives me. At her death, the estate will be distributed to my grown children.

What happens to my estate if the bank goes belly up after my death? My estate will be worth more than the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. $100,000 limit.

A. In the event of bank's failure, the trusts you established and other trusts at the bank should not be harmed. Your trusts then will either be handled by what ever successor bank takes over the busted bank's business or transferred to a different trustee — most likely another bank.

The provisions of your trusts will stay in force. Your widow and, later, your children won't lose anything — unless each trust has more than $100,000 on deposit, in certificates of deposit and other accounts, at the failed bank. Assuming the trusts' assets are spread around in various investments, that should not be the case.

Trust funds held by a bank are not part of the banks' assets. Therefore, the assets in the trusts cannot be claimed by a failed bank's creditors.

Q. My credit union is a member of a cooperative deposit insurance corporation, which insures my deposits up to $100,000. How safe do you deem this insurance to be?

A. In most cases, coverage by cooperative and/or private CU deposit insurance has been rock-solid. But exceptions to that general rule produced very unfortunate results, as evidenced by the Rhode

ANALYSIS

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed a small gain today, backing away from a strong early advance on the news of early success in the land offensive against Iraq.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 30 points in the early going, was up .24 at 2,889.60 by 2 p.m. on Wall Street.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 5 to 4 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues, with 809 up, 641 down and 480 unchanged.

Stock prices wavered indecisively Friday as the start of the ground campaign loomed in the Gulf War.

The market resumed its recent rally today amid indications that the attack was fulfilling hopes of rapid progress toward a victory for the U.S.-led coalition.

A White House spokesman said President Bush was "quite gratified" by the way things were going.

Volume on the Big Board came to 145.21 million shares with two hours to go.

U.S. built pace car

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — Chrysler Corp., wary of pressure from the United Auto Workers union and war-driven patriotism, dropped plans to offer a Japanese-made vehicle as the Indianapolis 500 pace car, officials said Monday.

In the place of the Dodge Stealth, made in Japan by Mitsubishi Motors Corp., Chrysler will supply the race with a home-grown Dodge Viper, a sports car not yet in production.

"The selection of Stealth didn't meet universal approval," said John Damoose, Chrysler's marketing vice president.

Nearly immediately after September's announcement of the Stealth as the pace car for the Memorial Day race, the UAW protested.

Damoose said another part of the decision to change the pace car stemmed from patriotism stirred by the Gulf War.

The Viper, powered by a V-10, 400-horsepower engine, is to go into production later this year. Only 200 to 500 of the cars will be built. Only nine test cars exist now.

IMPACT: Failures could swamp FDIC

(From 5C)

estate recession nearly as severe has struck New England, and more recently spread down the East Coast to the Mid-Atlantic states and the Southeast.

Eventually, nearly every market in the nation will suffer, according to William W. Weiant, managing director of the First Boston Corp.

"Non-performing real estate loans are expected to increase in 1991 for banks generally, and given the rolling recession, problems will become more evident in both the Midwest and California during the year," he said.

Except for the Southwest, real estate problems have not fully rippled through the banking system. Of 169 bank insolvencies nationally last year, 103 were in Texas. Only nine were in New England.

"Unfortunately, real estate is not the industry's only problem," Berger said. "With recession come credit losses in the consumer and commercial portfolios as well."

Those, too, will not fully take their toll for months, she said.

Unemployment likely will not peak until late this year and defaults on consumer loans until sometime after that. Business failures follow rather than lead a recession and likely will top out early next year.

"This credit cycle is far from over, even if we are now witnessing the weakest point in the economy. Real estate problems may endure through the mid-1990s, and commercial and consumer credit problems are unlikely to be on the mend until mid-1992," Berger said.

What is especially worrisome is that, unlike the 1980s, it's the nation's biggest banks that are under stress in the '90s.

Many already were weakened from lending to Third World nations, which have not repaid their loans. Sour real estate loans and bad loans in support of corporate takeover deals are stretching their resources even thinner.

Nineteen of the nation's 45 largest banks would fall short of new capital standards if they were imposed now instead of 1992 as scheduled, the Treasury Department said.

DOYLE: FDIC insurance varies at credit unions

Island Share & Deposit Indemnity Corp. failure in January. That brought on the closing of 45 CUs and small banks.

Although some co-op and private deposit insurance outfits are in excellent financial condition, their coverage simply cannot be counted as safe as that of the Nonal Credit Union Share Insurance Fund, which is administered by the National Credit Union Administration and backed by the full faith and credit of our federal government.

DEAR ABBY

If engagement broken, ring is returned

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: If you ever get tired of writing your advice column, you should consider the legal profession.

Van Buren

You had a letter in your column recently concerning an engagement ring. The question: If a man gives a girl an engagement ring and four hours later they break up, should the woman return the ring?

You said, "The gentleman has every right to expect the lady to return the ring. And if she doesn't, she's no lady."

I recently read an item in the Iowa City Press-Citizen that said, "Engagement rings become real gifts only when the wedding happens, and must otherwise be returned, the Iowa Court of Appeals has ruled."

The judges said it didn't matter who did the jilting. The court rejected as sexist and archaic earlier rulings that let courts award an engagement ring to the person who was jilted. — IOWA ABBY FAN

DEAR FAN: I've had that "who owns the ring" question put to me in a variety of situations. Examples: The couple enjoyed a three-year engagement with "sleeping-over privileges," so the woman felt that she had EARNED the diamond engagement ring. (Well, if she "earned" it, that makes her a professional.)

In another situation, after a two-year engagement, "Romeo" met another damsel who stole his heart. So, as a consolation prize and to assuage his guilt, he told Damsel No. 1 she could keep the ring.

I'm with the Iowa judge. An engagement ring is more than just a ring — it signifies a promise to wed. And if the wedding does not take place, the ring should be returned to the person who paid for it.

DEAR ABBY: "Shocked," "Educated" and "Disillusioned Teacher" were all addressing the lack of educated high-school graduates in this country. This is not a new issue. Politicians, educators and businessmen have been lamenting this problem for years. I do not pretend to have the solution to this crisis; however, there is something every parent could do to alleviate the problem.

When my son's first-grade teacher told us that "John" was not doing very well in school, my wife and I allocated one to two hours an evening to help him study while we actively coached him. John was not happy about the loss of his free time for play or television. (And we were not happy about our own loss of relaxation time.) We felt that the sacrifice was necessary to make him a good student before he developed bad attitudes or bad habits.

I am happy to report that our study time has made the family closer. John is now doing better in school. He no longer needs a lot of time to complete his studies, and we have not missed the time that we spent with him. Sign me ... CATCH THEM WHILE THEY'RE YOUNG IN MUNDELEIN, ILL.

DEAR CATCH THEM: You are absolutely right. One cannot expect children with poor study habits to blossom miraculously into scholars without supervision and additional coaching from a caring parent or caretaker. You made an investment in time and patience, and it paid off. Congratulations.

DEAR ABBY: A couple of my co-workers and I have been involved in a dispute lately that only you can settle. It seems that I read in your column about the way a bride wears her wedding ring. Question: Should the engagement ring go on first and then the band — or vice versa? Please settle this so we can go back to work in peace! — GAYLA IN LITTLE ROCK

DEAR GAYLA: The wedding band should go on first (so it's closer to the heart), then the engagement ring.

Use sense when dealing with wartime security at airports

Concerns of possible terrorist activities because of the Persian Gulf war have caused airports to increase security precautions. Travelers should expect delays.

Here are some ways to help traveling go more smoothly:

1. Arrive two to three hours before flight time to allow time for the long delays at check-in and baggage handling areas.
2. Say goodbyes at home. Without a ticket, visitors can't get past security checkpoints. Curbside drop-offs are restricted.
3. Don't leave bags or packages unattended. They will be picked up and destroyed. Don't lose your baggage stubs.
4. Report suspicious activity or unattended packages and bags to security personnel at once.
5. When possible, avoid long layovers in terminals, especially during international travel.

Many vacationers are sticking closer to home

By Leonard Sloane
N.Y. Times News Service

Travel agents and tour companies are forecasting sharp increases in vacation and leisure travel within the United States and to Canada this spring and summer as Americans cut back on bookings to Europe and other destinations they would normally reach by air. In many cases, they will substitute trips by car, bus, train and ship for airplane travel.

The shift became apparent after the start of the Persian Gulf War on Jan. 17. It follows the earlier twin shocks of a recession and higher oil prices that began to affect travel plans, as well as other consumer planning, late last year.

Steven Alesio, a senior vice president of American Express Co., said, "There is clearly a major shift from Europe to the Caribbean and the United States destinations of Hawaii, California and Alaska."

George C. Guenther, immediate past president of the National Tour Association, a group of packaged tour operators, and the president of Talmage Tours in Philadelphia, said: "We have never in recent years had such an expression of interest in U.S. and Canadian travel as we are seeing at this very early point in the year. I believe that trend will continue."

For example, Peter Rusnak, a commercial real estate developer in Washington, is planning to go to Hawaii on his honeymoon in April instead of France and England as originally planned. "It's primarily because of the situation in the gulf," he said.

WITHIN THE continental 48 states, motor-coach tour operators expect significantly bigger advance bookings for March and April. Amtrak said reservations were much higher than they were last year.

Mississippi River steamboat bookings are expected to be the best ever.

"The consensus for the spring and summer is pretty good," said Preston Robert Tisch, former chairman of the Government Affairs Council of the Travel Industry Association of America and the president of the Loews Corporation. "There is more competition and more choices."

The prime element behind the rush to domestic travel by land and sea, rather than air is the fear of terrorism or other violence stemming from the war.

"It's basically the war," Tisch said, adding that spring and summer bookings at the Loews Hotels in the United States are up 10 percent over 1990.

Many Americans are afraid to leave the country or even fly within it, experts in the travel industry say.

Adding to the uncertainty over foreign travel is the large number of State Department advisories telling Americans of danger. Currently, 73 countries including Cyprus, Romania, Colombia and Thailand, are on the list.

"People feel safer closer to home," said Lorraine Schechet, the president of Equinox Travel in Manhasset, N.Y. "The cancellations that have come in are mostly European cancellations."

Cynthia Newman, the president of Waters Travel Service in Washington, said: "We're getting many calls about the national parks. A lot of people are waiting to see what happens."

MANY OF THOSE planning to stay in the United States do not want to fly. Three weeks ago, most of the major domestic airlines held a half-fare promotion for tickets that are good for travel for as much as almost a year ahead.

Patrick Murphy, the vice president for operations of Mayflower Tours in Downers Grove, Ill., said: "We are looking at 1991 to be a good, strong North American travel year. We have over 2,100 confirmed passengers for April 1991, which is 51 percent over April last year."

Similar opinions are being voiced by representatives of some of the nation's major tourist destinations. "It looks good and we're pretty optimistic," said Mark Northington, research director of the Louisiana Office of Tourism.

Long-distance buses are not the only form of surface transportation luring domestic travelers. Advance train bookings for April and May are showing big increases.

"Calls to our reservation sales offices are substantially up over last year," a spokesman for Amtrak, Clifford Black, said.

New fruit snack may be substitute for raisins

By Linda Anderson

Remember raisins? Remember how you used to love them when you were a kid, but the older you got, the more wrinkled and un-appealing they got so that by the time you were in your teens you didn't want to be in the same room with a raisin?

Anderson

My kids are beginning their anti-raisin journey. When they were younger, they were perfectly satisfied with a handful of raisins or — better yet — one of those little boxes of raisins for their very own. Now, however, they have decided that raisins are on their "out" list. But I like to send them some kind of fruit in their lunchboxes, and I miss the convenience (not to mention the nutrition) of raisins.

However, we may have discovered an alternative. Ocean Spray's Craisins sweetened dried cranberries are "New" according to the label, and actually look a lot like red raisins.

The young taste-testers got to check out a box of Craisins for taste. I got the price and adversing accuracy part. (I don't like cranberries, even when they aren't wrinkled.)

A 6-ounce box of Craisins, which contained six 1-ounce individual-serving pouches, cost $2.19 — or about 37 cents per serving.

Label advertising claims Craisins are "a fruit snack that really is a fruit!" Then it explains: "There are lots of so-called 'Fruit Snacks' that are made with little or no real fruit. But new Craisins fruit snacks are different. They aren't just made from fruit... They are fruit... Honest-to-goodness Ocean Spray cranberries."

You even get a little history/geography lesson: "Did you know that cranberries are one of the three major native North American fruits? The others are blueberries and Concord grapes."

Then, the label advertising winds up and lets you have it with nutrition claims: "Cranberries are sliced, dried and naturally sweetened so they're plump and chewy, tart and tangy. Best of all, they're good for you too! Lots of Vitamin C. No artificial flavors, colors or preservatives. Just that special cranberry goodness you expect from Ocean Spray."

But nowhere in these claims are you informed that sugar plays a major role in this new fruit snack. Sure, they are called Craisins sweetened dried cranberries, but sugar (which is listed second on the ingredients list) is never mentioned in all those glowing reports of taste and nutrition.

OK, so what about taste? The kids said Craisins were good. The younger liked them quite a bit, but the older one was a little more reserved in her enthusiasm. She said, "Yeah, they're OK. But I'm the only one (among her friends) who likes them. Everybody else thinks they're yucky." See? The younger one is still young enough to appreciate raisins and Craisins. The older one and her friends are outgrowing them.

Anyway, Craisins are a welcome change once in a while, and they are perfect for lunchboxes because they aren't messy like fresh fruit. And they really are made with real cranberries.

But at $2.19 for six ounces, their per-pound price would be well over $5, and that's too much.

Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.

AT WIT'S END

Movie sends parents screaming from theater

By Erma Bombeck

For years, Hollywood has been trying to scare us half to death. It has filled the screen with everything from Frankenstein to Freddy Krueger. It has terrorized us with killer bees and swarms of flies. It has threatened us with globs of gel oozing under our doors and invasions of rats and birds. It has paraded before us bloodsucking vampires, psychotics with chain saws and buckets of blood at the prom. From Stephen King to Alfred Hitchcock, we've been driven to revulsion and an aversion to showers.

Bombeck

But now it's gone too far.

It's brought a small child to the screen who is inadvertently left (cue "Jaws" music) HOME ALONE. It is the ultimate, unspeakable terror of every parent.

The mere idea of a child without some kind of supervision, left to his own devices, has always been rejected by moviemakers because it is too chilling. One can only imagine the conversation that went on between the writer who pitched the story and the producer:

"I got this great idea for a film where the parents go on vacation and forget one of the kids."

"Are you crazy? We couldn't get a rating for anyone under the age of 80. Too violent."

"You don't understand. It's a comedy."

"Right. I'm laughing. The kid destroys a house and the parents can never go home again. Ha, ha. See? I'm breaking up."

It takes new parents a while to realize that a bundle of innocence is capable of taking on monster qualities. It's a fact. At age 2, a child can move twice his body weight and sink his teeth into flesh right down to the bone. At age 4, he can call Moscow on the phone, and start the car and drive it to Pittsburgh by sitting on a potty seat and holding a snow shovel on the accelerator. At age 8, a child can flood the entire house with a garden hose and watch it float to a new ZIP code. By the time he is a teen-ager, he controls your mind, your soul and your car keys.

No one could have predicted the success of "Home Alone" at the box office. It is reported that Macaulay Culkin, the 10-year-old star, is asking $2 million plus profit participation for a sequel. Look for "Bride of Home Alone" to hit the screen, where a grown child and his whining wife eventually drive his parents into an apartment. This will be followed by "Son of Home Alone," where the adult kids will move their entire families into their parents' house to live.

Bring back the sharks.

Not all charitable donations used as tax deductions are in cash

Copley News Service

Savvy taxpayers who itemize their deductions already know that contributions to tax-exempt organizations are deductible. However, many do not realize that contributions do not have to be in cash.

The value of old clothes, used furniture, appliances and other items you give to charitable thrift shops can also be deducted. So can the cost of ingredients in cookies you provide for the church bake sale or the crafts you created for the hospital bazaar.

Although you can not write off the value of time you spend doing volunteer work, you can deduct the out-of-pocket costs of such work, including uniforms, telephone calls and transportation (parking, tolls and 12 cents a mile for the use of your own car).

It is important to get receipts for all donations and to keep a log of mileage and other expenses to back up these deductions in case you are audited.

City vaccinates against measles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — City clinics stayed open through the weekend to vaccinate about 800 preschool children against the measles.

The success of the two Saturday clinics has prompted plans to hold other weekend innoculations, said Dr. Robert Levenson, director of the city Health Department's division of disease.

The disease has been sweeping through parts of Philadelphia, killing at least six children and infecting more than 800 people since January 1990.

Philadelphia has printed 10,000 pamphlets in English and Spanish and has ordered 40,000 more to circulate in the hardest-hit area — north-central Philadelphia. Pockets in west Philadelphia and south Philadelphia also have seen a large number of the cases.

Across the Delaware River in Camden, N.J., 39 measles cases have been reported since Jan. 1 and another 15 in Camden County. No deaths were reported. The epidemic gained widespread attention earlier this month when measles killed two girls belonging to the Faith Tabernacle Congregation in north Philadelphia, which shuns medical treatment.

Caution urged in Baltics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans need not defer travel to the Baltic states of the Soviet Union but still should be careful there, the State Department said Monday night.

A department travel advisory eased recommendations of an earlier one issued Jan 12, when Soviet troops took over a television transmitter in Vilnius, the capital of Lithuania. Fourteen people were killed.

Monday night's statement said "there do not appear to be threats" to Americans in Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia," but "caution should be exercised and crowds and areas of unrest should be avoided."

Light term recommended

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The manslaughter sentence for Marlon Brando's son could hinge on a probation officer's recommendation of a light prison term, citing drug- and alcohol-induced brain damage and an abusive childhood.

Christian Brando's attorney has filed papers pleading for leniency and prosecutors have called for the maximum 16-year sentence, so the probation report could be critical. A sentencing hearing begins Tuesday.

The younger Brando and his celebrity father were expected to testify. The victim's father also was scheduled to appear.

Brando, 32, pleaded guilty Jan. 4 to voluntary manslaughter as part of a plea arrangement with prosecutors, who lost a legal battle to bring his half-sister, Cheyenne Brando, from Tahiti to testify.

Fatally shot was Dag Drollet, 26, Cheyenne Brando's fiance.

In a report to the court released Monday, probation officer Christine Alexander recommended a three-year prison sentence, with extra time for use of a gun.

She noted that Brando had no prior criminal record and that the killing occurred immediately after his sister, who was pregnant, told him Drollet had beaten her.

The report said Brando's early years were marked by custody battles between his mother, actress Anna Kashfi, and his father. He was kidnapped several times by one or the other parent, molested by a hired kidnapper and abused by his alcoholic, mentally ill mother, the report said.

Marlon Brando gained custody of the boy when he was 13, but left his adolescent rearing to a succession of maids, the report said.

Described as an extremely bright and sensitive child, Brando suffered brain damage as a result of drug and alcohol abuse in his early teens and dropped out of school in the 10th grade, the report said.

Smoke interrupts meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House attendants forgot to open the flue Monday night when they lit a fire in the Oval Office fireplace for President Bush and his national security advisers.

Smoke quickly backed up as aides rushed in with three fire extinguishers to douse the flames.
