Condarco tabbed for city commission spot

Appointment of Eugene Condarco to fill an unexpired term on the Hereford City Commission was unanimously voted by the commission Monday night.

EUGENE CONDARCO

The commission spent about six minutes in executive session before returning to the commission chamber to consider filling the position, left vacant by the resignation of Nancy Griego.

Condarco will take the oath of office for the Place Two seat at the commission's Feb. 5 regular meeting.

The two-year term expires with city elections in early May.

Griego resigned in December after she was called to active duty in the U.S. Army. A reservist, she was sent to Frankfurt, Germany, to replace personnel posted to Bosnia in the peacekeeping forces.

Mayor Bob Josserand pointed out that the commission felt the vacancy should be filled quickly for the benefit of the citizens of the Place two district.

Condarco was appointed on motion of Commissioner Carey Black, second by Commissioner Roger Eades and unanimous vote.

The appointee has served two years on the city's planning and zoning commission. He also has taken part in a variety of community activities.

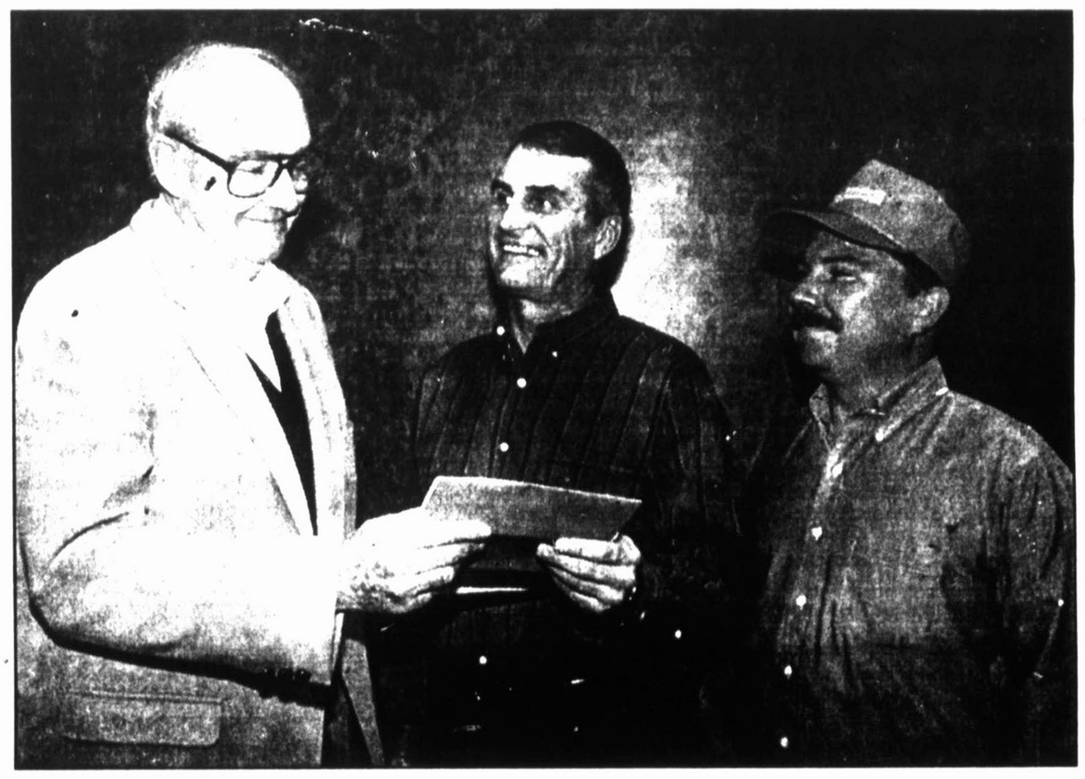

Condarco, 42, has lived in Hereford 35 years. He is a 1973 graduate of Hereford High School and has been employed by Holly Sugar for 15 years.

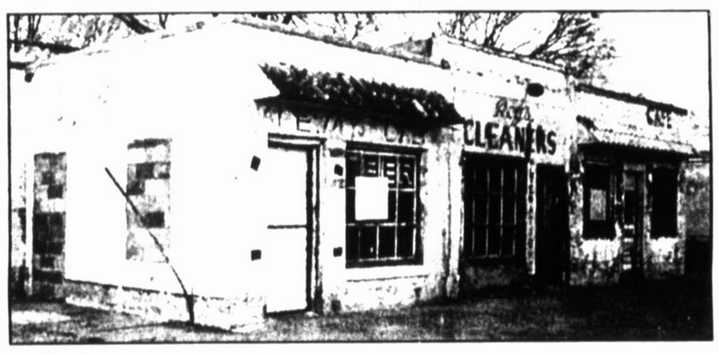

He and his wife, Cynthia, are parents of four children, Gene Lewis Condarco of Dallas, and Siara, Stafani and Soledad Condarco, all of Hereford.

Mayor Josserand welcomed Condarco to further city service.

The new commissioner-to-be thanked the commission of confidence shown in him.

"I will do my best," he said.

Eyesore to go

The dilapidated building, photo at left, will be demolished with approval of the owner. Mayor Bob Josserand accepts the demolition agreement from Don Tardy, center, and Wade Easley, and thanked the Hereford Beautification Alliance for work on the project.

1995 corn harvest placed at 7.37 billion bushels by Ag Department

Heavy demand continues, report says, in spite of higher prices; soybean prices also expected to rise

By ROBERT GREENE
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's corn growers harvested 7.37 billion bushels in 1995, the Agriculture Department reported today, noting that heavy demand for the weather-shortened crop continues despite higher prices.

Soybean prices were also expected to rise on a final harvest figure of 2.15 billion bushels. The department said South America faced lower production, raising world demand for the U.S. crop in the months ahead.

Both crops were plagued by a mix of weather extremes, including a wet spring, early freezes and hot, dry spells in between. Demand for corn in particular has not eased and prices are expected to range $3 to $3.40 a bushel through Aug. 30, up a nickel from last month's forecast.

Soybeans are expected to average $6.55 to $7.55 a bushel through Aug. 30, up 25 cents from last month's forecast. Although U.S. traders are expected to benefit, several countries likely will curb their imports as a result, the department said.

The final figure for the corn harvest was unchanged from the Nov. 1, 1995, forecast, and is 27 percent below the record 1994 crop of 10.1 billion bushels. The soybean harvest is 14 percent below the 1994 record of 2.52 billion.

Corn yields averaged 113.5 bushels an acre. Soybeans averaged 34.9.

The tight supplies were reflected in the department's report on grain in storage as of Dec. 1, 1995. Corn was put at 6.1 billion bushels, down 24 percent from a year earlier, when growers had harvested a record crop. Soybeans totaled 1.83 billion bushels, down 13 percent from a year earlier.

Wheat stocks were estimated at 1.34 billion bushels, down 10 percent from a year earlier and the lowest Dec. 1 total since the reporting period was adopted nine years ago. The department reported domestic use is down.

Wheat growers reported planting 52 million acres for the crop being harvested this spring. That's up 7 percent from 1995 and the largest acreage since 1990.

Also today, the department forecast the cotton harvest at 18 million bales.

Commissioners OK audit; eye ways to develop park

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

In a two-stage meeting Monday evening, the Hereford City Commission accepted the audit for the last fiscal year, received a report on a Hereford Beautification Alliance project, appointed members of the Deaf Smith County Juvenile Board and paved the way for a community-wide campaign for funding of improvements at Hereford Aquatic Center Park.

During the work session prior to the regular meeting, the commission adopted a plan for the drive to involve the community in development of the HAC Park, without use of tax funds.

A steering committee of citizens will be organized to conduct the drive for about $41,000 for landscaping and park facilities, the commission decided.

In the regular meeting, Wade Easley, HBA president, and Don Tardy, Hereford realtor, presented the commission with a demolition agreement signed by the owner of property in the 300 block of West First.

The HBA report reviews the work by the organization to improve the appearance of First Street, a main highway through Hereford.

Proposed demolition of the buildings in the 300 block was initiated by Tardy. HBA representatives contacted the owner, Phyllis Radovich Dishman, who agreed to the proposal. After a tenant moved out in December, the way was cleared for the city to raze two buildings.

The HBA report also noted that after demolition, members of the organization will clean up the lots and enhance the appearance of the area.

The audit for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1995, was presented by Pat McGinty of McGinty and Associates. He said the city's finances at the end of the year were in excellent condition.

Revenue, $3,291,197, to the general fund was exceeded by expenditures, $3,875,177. The $483,980 shortfall was covered by transfers from the water and sewer fund. A fund balance of $385,582 was in place at the end of the year.

The water and sewer fund revenue amounted to $1,892,145 and expenses were $1,252,662. The water fund balance, after transfers, stood at $463,582, the audit shows.

Hereford residents will be contacted to serve in the drive for donations for development of the park at between E. 14th and E. 15th on Avenue C. A meeting of the committee will be held next Tuesday.

The tentative landscape design proposes to plant approximately 100 trees at a cost of $28,000.

A picnic shelter is being constructed at a cost of $9,500, 16 park benches have been installed at a total cost of $720 and six charcoal grills will cost a total of $1,500. In addition, concrete tables and benches are being poured in forms built for the city. A dozen sets, costing $75 each, will be placed in the park.

Recognition of contributions of $50, or more, will be acknowledged on a donor board to be erected in the park. Lesser amounts will be noted on tiles that will be placed in the aquatic center's main building.

The commission also agreed to contact Texas Parks and Wildlife about stocking the fishing pond in the park.

Tentatively, the pond will be available primarily for children. Adults taking advantage of the pond must be accompanied by a child, the commission decided.

In other park improvement discussion, Mayor Bob Josserand said the city is working toward installing a "big" evergreen tree in Dameron Park. The tree will be the center of an annual Christmas lighting project in Dameron Park.

In other business, the commission re-appointed Commission Wayne Winget and Temple Abney to the Deaf Smith County Juvenile Board.

Concluding the meeting Josserand congratulated City Secretary Terri Johnson on her completion of certification requirements of the International Institute of Municipal Clerk.

Johnson has served as city secretary since January 1992. She was certified as a Texas Registered Municipal Clerk five years ago. She is a member of the board of Texas Municipal Clerks' Association.

Dozens turn out to voice support for superintendent

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

Hereford ISD trustees entered their second closed session for discussion of the future of Superintendent Charles W. Greenawalt on Monday with their ears ringing with the comments of district employees who turned out in support of their boss.

Rumor that trustees were poised to take action against the popular Greenawalt spread through Hereford like wildfire on Monday and by meeting time, more than 60 people -- including former trustees Joe Flood and Mike Veazey -- had shown up in the West Central Intermediate School library.

Many teachers and employees wore buttons supplied by the Hereford Educators Association that extolled Greenawalt's virtues; others submitted letters of support to the board.

Trustee Raul Valdez said this morning he did not know where the furor arose, noting that the board evaluates the superintendent every year around January or February.

"I think what has gotten the people's imagination is no formal action has been taken," Valdez said. "I really don't have any idea how rumors started or where they originated from."

Valdez said the board does not plan to take action on Greenawalt's status at next Tuesday's regular action board meeting.

"There is no guideline or step that we have to act" on the evaluation, he said.

The agenda for next week's meeting had not been completed as of this morning. Action concerning Greenawalt had not been placed on the agenda.

Traditionally, school superintendents have operated on three-year contracts, with other administrators receiving two-year pacts. Those contracts then are extended each year.

At meetings in July and August 1995, Hereford trustees expressed their opposition to such contracts. Nothing was done about the contracts at the time when Greenawalt reported that trustees did not need to take any action on contracts until they expire.

On Monday, 16 people stood during the public comment portion of the meeting. All of them -- mostly school employees -- expressed support for Greenawalt, with many of them having their comments backed up by applause from the audience.

One speaker, Tammy Charest, asked the board to answer "their reasons for this proposed action."

Board president Jim Marsh -- who could not be reached for comment Tuesday morning -- responded that nothing would be said "at this time."

Valdez declined comment on anything concerning Greenawalt's status. He said the board met about 1-1/2 hours Monday night in closed session to talk about the superintendent.

Superintendent and president

Charles W. Greenawalt, left, and Hereford ISD board president Jim Marsh look over their notes during Monday's regular board meeting. Dozens of teachers and other employees and residents turned out for the meeting in support of Greenawalt after rumors began that the board would act on an evaluation of him. No action was taken.

HISD trustees approve bids for roof at new HHS tennis facility

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

Hereford ISD trustees on Monday approved bids for a roof on the new high school tennis facility at a meeting where the focus was more on what didn't happen than on what did.

More than 60 people attended the regular discussion and information meeting, which was held in the West Central Intermediate School library, when rumors circulated about the employment status of Superintendent Charles W. Greenawalt.

The board took no action concerning the superintendent.

However, they did vote 5-1 to accept a bid from Birchwood Construction for $13,700 to build the roof on the new tennis building.

Last month, trustees approved a bid package for the project, which includes two new tennis courts and a building for changing rooms and offices.

That construction has already begun.

The bid was the only action taken by trustees.

In other business, West Central faculty, staff and students gave a presentation to the board on activities on the campus.

The group briefed trustees on what is going on in the adult education program, the HOSTS class, the new QUEST advanced placement class and the Awesome Afternoon program.

No public comments were received during a brief public hearing on the Academic Excellence Indicator System report received by the district.

The hearing is required by law.

The report summarizes the district's performance in TAAS testing, attendance, dropout rate and other indicators.

It confirms previously announced details including test scores at Hereford High School that resulted in the school's low-performing campus designation.

Assistant superintendents Nena Veazey and Corky Lockmiller presented the results from a survey conducted regarding a possible return to neighborhood schools.

However, the two learned soon after that some surveys may have been overlooked in the counting, so a recount was required.

The board's next meeting will be at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 23, in the board room. Monday's meeting was the regular session normally held on the second Monday of the month. Next week's will be the regular action meeting.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. - The questions just won't stop, but few are about the book Hillary Rodham Clinton has written. They're about her role in Whitewater and the White House travel office firings. And the questions are sure to continue as Mrs. Clinton embarks on a tour of her husband's home state today to promote her book on children's issues.

PERVOMAYSKAYA, Russia - Russian commandos and Chechen guerrillas stalk each other in the ruins of this village early today after the army pounded the settlement with artillery and rockets. Army commanders claimed they acted to save 100 hostages being held by the Chechens, but after a day of fighting just nine captives had been freed.

SAN ANTONIO - Staring at a "blank" patch of the universe, the Hubble Space Telescope captured images of hundreds of galaxies so faint that they never before have been seen. The images are of the faintest stars and galaxies ever seen, some 4 billion times dimmer than what can be discerned with the naked eye.

WASHINGTON - Deaths from infectious diseases rose 58 percent between 1980 and 1992, with the AIDS virus, respiratory diseases and blood infections the main culprits, government scientists said today.

MEXICO CITY - Mexico has proven to its northern neighbor that it is serious about fighting drug traffickers with the arrest of cartel leader Juan Garcia Abrego and immediate deportation to Houston to face American justice.

LA PALOMA - As a boy, Juan Garcia Abrego was no different than the other children who roamed the potholed streets of this South Texas colonia where he was born. "He was a simple person - and then he changed," says Pablo Barbosa, who knew Garcia Abrego as a child.

ARLINGTON - The streets where 9-year-old Amber Hagerman and her friends play are unusually quiet. Days earlier, they had echoed with screams as the third-grader fought a man who dragged her into his truck. She hasn't been seen since.

HOUSTON - Think of Newt Gingrich as a lightning rod. He shows up and sparks fly. "I'm here to make him realize a lot of Americans really don't like his Contract with America," Sally Sanders said Monday, making picket signs outside Houston's Westin Galleria Hotel where the House speaker was about to talk.

SAN MARCOS - House Speaker Newt Gingrich defends his endorsement of a former Democratic congressman, saying Republicans not only welcome but stick with party switchers.

City secretary earns certification

Mayor Bob Josserand commends City Secretary Terri Johnson on her certification by the International Institute of Municipal Clerks. She has held certification as a registered municipal clerk for five years and is a board member of the Texas Municipal Clerks Association. Josserand pointed out that she is the only city secretary in the northern Panhandle to earn the IIMC certification.

Texas AG files papers denying charges made against Texas Rangers

By TERRI LANGFORD
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Sexual harassment claims made against the Texas Rangers by two female investigators are baseless, the state attorney general's office says.

The statement came in a brief, five-page court filing last week in response to the federal lawsuit filed by Cheryl Steadman of Houston and Lisa Sheppard of Corpus Christi.

The two are suing the Texas Department of Public Safety, which oversees the Rangers, DPS Director James R. Wilson and a member of the policy-making Public Safety Commission.

In December, the women filed their lawsuit in U.S. District Court in Houston against the 172-year-old law enforcement unit, claiming "extreme and outrageous" conduct by officers caused them severe emotional distress.

The plaintiffs are seeking actual and compensatory damages of at least $1 million, plus unspecified punitive damages,

The defendants claim any actions taken against the two women "were free of any discriminatory intent or act."

The DPS and Rangers also claim that as state agencies they are immune to any civil action. However, the plaintiffs say that immunity was modified in 1972 and state agencies now can be subjected to lawsuits.

The state attorney general's office was closed Monday and a spokesman could not be reached immediately for additional comment.

An attorney for the women said the state's response was expected.

"I was not surprised by the Texas Rangers' general denial," said Beatrice Mladenka-Fowler. "What else could they say?"

The case has not been set for trial. A scheduling meeting between the parties is set for early June.

Ms. Steadman, 35, was one of two history-making women commissioned as Rangers in 1993, but she resigned a year later alleging discrimination and sexual harassment.

Ms. Steadman says she was subjected to ridicule and harassment after she refused to share a bunkhouse with other Rangers, all of them male, during a March 1994 overnight meeting.

Ms. Steadman was reassigned to the DPS vehicle theft unit in Houston.

Ms. Sheppard, a DPS criminal investigator, rejected a Ranger commission in 1994, accusing Maurice Cook, the senior Ranger captain, of a "calculated" act of sexual discrimination.

Her complaint centered on Cook's insistence that she be stationed in the San Antonio headquarters office, although vacancies purportedly existed in Sinton, Beeville and Kingsville near her Corpus Christi home.

The federal suit names Cook among the defendants.

Also named were Capt. W.D. Vickers and Lt. Robert Madeira, the ranking officers in the Rangers' Houston office, and Houston lawyer Ronald Krist, former chairman of the Public Safety Commission.

King Day attracts crowd of 35,000 to San Antonio street celebration

By KELLEY SHANNON
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - The memory of Martin Luther King Jr. has been kept alive on his birthday with marches, songs and prayers that his message of nonviolence will persist.

"Dr. King, we have come a long way. But we know the journey is not over," City Councilwoman Ruth Jones McClendon said during a huge street celebration Monday in San Antonio.

An estimated 35,000 people attended the 10th annual event, one of the largest King Day celebrations in the state. Elsewhere, Texans also gathered for rallies and prayers to remember the slain civil rights leader.

Under a sunny sky in San Antonio, people of many races and ethnic backgrounds marched more than three miles along Martin Luther King Drive to a noon rally at Martin Luther King Plaza.

A yellow garbage truck led the way, symbolizing that King was in Memphis, Tenn., in a support of a sanitation workers' strike when he was assassinated on April 4, 1968.

"I wish he could see you today. I wish he could see that his dream is alive," Ms. McClendon said. "I wish so much that he could see that little black boys and black girls are joining hands this morning with little white boys and white girls and little brown boys and brown girls and walking together as sisters and brothers."

Mayor Bill Thornton said the world needs King's message - that people should be judged by the content of their character, not the color of their skin, and that wrong should be opposed with nonviolence.

Some spectators had gathered hours earlier to begin listening to children's gospel choirs, mingling with friends or registering to vote. Food vendors sold brisket tacos, red beans and rice, and gumbo.

Nine-year-old Dustin Wayne Alexander was enjoying spending the day with his grandfather, Steve Alexander, a employee of Kelly Air Force Base. The significance of King's birthday celebration wasn't lost on Dustin.

"Martin Luther King was a good man, and he didn't have to die. He was just doing what he was right for," Dustin said. "I feel sorry for him. He was the best man and he had a dream and he was good and right."

At the Texas Capitol, some 250 people gathered for a celebration sponsored by the Austin Area Heritage Council. Speakers said King's message of peace and understanding should not be remembered only one day each year.

"His message was that we could all live together," said Erma Jefferson of Austin. "We have to remember that everyone from different cultures can contribute."

In Dallas, Paul Robeson Jr., son of the late black singer, actor and civil rights activist, spoke at the 8th Annual MLK Jr. Breakfast sponsored by the South Dallas Cultural Center.

Too often, Robeson said, King is "reduced by the popular culture to an icon supported by a single line: 'I have a dream.'

"Blacks as well as whites share complicity in the trivialization of his legacy and the mocking of his leadership. Black voices have joined white ones in the current cacophony of racist babble," Robeson said.

On Sunday, ministers preached King's message.

More than 1,000 people gathered at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center Theater to hear the Rev. J.W. Hanson, pastor of Rose of Sharon Baptist Church in Odessa. About 100 people assembled at Friendship Baptist Church in El Paso, where Henry Irigoyen told how he was forced to ride on the back of trolley cars as a child because of his ethnic background.

"Dr. King is the true father of freedom," Irigoyen said. "He was a man with a lot of guts, who fought for freedom, not only for African-Americans, but for all minorities."

Housing starts show big gain in November

WASHINGTON (AP) - Housing starts jumped 5.7 percent in November, the biggest gain in a year. But regional activity was mixed, with construction rising in the Midwest and South while falling in the Northeast and West.

The Commerce Department said today that construction of new homes and apartments totaled 1.42 million at a seasonally adjusted annual rate in November, up from 1.34 million a month earlier when they fell 4.6 percent.

Many analysts had expected a much smaller increase in the latest report. Originally scheduled for release on Dec. 19, the report was postponed until today by the federal government shutdown.

The 5.7 percent gain was the largest increase since a 5.9 percent advance in November 1994.

Starts in November were 7.6 percent below the 1.54 million rate a year earlier. For the first 11 months of 1995, they were 7.4 percent below the same period in 1994.

Work to start on crossing

Work is scheduled this month on the FM 1259 railroad crossing just north of U.S. 60 in Hereford, the Texas Department of Transportation announced Monday.

Crews are expected to begin Jan. 22, weather permitting, with the crossing scheduled to be closed about three weeks.

Traffic will be detoured along New York Avenue at Lawton or Lee streets.

Pope is nominee for Cultural FCE

The Cultural Family Community Education Club has selected Nell Pope as its nominee for FCE Club Woman of the Year.

The nomination was made during a recent meeting at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

In other club business, Perry Keyes was appointed delegate to the district meeting in Pampa.

Club president Pope appointed new committees and members in attendance completed yearbooks.

Virginia Sumner gave the opening prayer. Wilma Goettsch and Keyes read poems.

Members answered roll call with "What I can do to make my club better."

In attendance were Byrdie Fellers, Edna Marnell, Fannie Townsend, Marilyn Smith, Keyes, Pope, Sumner and Goettsch.

Chamber Singers to hold auditions

Hereford Chamber Singers will hold auditions Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Hereford High School choir room.

All persons who love to sing and are interested in sharing their talents with other gifted singers are asked to come.

Auditions consist of a person singing hymns in his or her voice part in a quartet setting.

The spring concert for the Chamber Singers will be held the afternoon of April 21. Practices are held each Sunday from 8 p.m.-10 p.m.

Jan Walser serves as the director and Susan Schriber is president of the board of directors. For further information, call 364-3110 or 364-5345.

Flood speaks to local garden club

Carmen Flood spoke to the Garden Beautiful Club on "Garden and Garden Design" at the club meeting in the home of Louise Streun.

Flood is a member of the Master Gardeners and one of the volunteers who contributes her talents to planning and planting the garden at the E. B. Black House. She discussed the great gardens in Europe and the romantic gardens in America, emphasizing that all gardens need to be planned and thought out before planting.

Marguerite Cole, president, presided at the business meeting.

Streun and co-hostess Leona Andrews served brunch to Vada Axe, Louise Axe, Thelma Axe, Doris Bryant, Audine Dettman, Jeane Dowell, Dorothy Noland, Helen Spinks, Bessie Story and Cole.

Hints from Heloise

BALLOON DRYER

Dear Heloise: I came up with a way to dry my husband's baseball-style caps wrinkle-free.

My husband is a farmer and gets a lot of hats dirty in a short amount of time. I wash them in either the dishwasher or washing machine but don't have enough bowls the right size to fit them over to dry. I even bought some of those special cap washers, but some hats would still be wrinkled.

The I bought some latex balloons. By blowing a balloon up inside the cap, it stretches out and gets rid of all the wrinkles. When the cap is dry, I let the air out of the balloon and the cap looks like new. — Betty Hockersmith, Oakley, Kan.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter is prompted by a column in which a reader wrote, "Love your mother because she may not be around long." My mother cut out that column and mailed it to me.

My wife and I both have been in counseling for years because of my mother, who is mentally ill. For a long time, Dad has ignored her strange behavior because it has provided him with a good excuse to see another woman on the side.

When we told Mom of our plans to marry, she insisted that we have the wedding out of town. She said she would not attend because she didn't have anything to wear and wasn't going to spend the money to buy a new dress. We are well aware that she has several nice dresses in her closet.

We have never given Mom a gift she liked. Lord knows we have tried, but it is always the wrong size or wrong color, doesn't fit, or is too much like something she already has. Giving her money is out of the question. We have tried. Her response was "Apparently, you don't think enough of me to shop."

We'd appreciate any suggestions you may have on how to deal with this woman. We are exhausted from trying to please her. Maybe we're too close to the situation to see things clearly.--Texas Dilemma

DEAR TEXAS DILEMMA: You have already stated that the woman is mentally ill and there is no pleasing her so I suggest that you stop trying. Be cordial and pleasant, but don't knock yourselves out. Just slip on your "emotional raincoats," and let the barbs slide off. When your mother sees that she can no longer get to you, she may be less inclined to try.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I frequently allow our children to invite friends along when we go to a fun place. Johnny, age 10, has an 8-year-old girl friend, "Laurie," who lives down the street. He often invites her to join us.

The problem is that Laurie is never dressed properly and is often just plain dirty. Yesterday, we went to a children's performance of the symphony, and Laurie had on stretch pants that were badly soiled and much too small. She wore Birkenstock sandals without socks, and her hair was actually smelly. I had phoned her mother to make sure she knew where we were going, and she said, "Oh, yes, have a good time."

I know Laurie's mom has chosen to stay at home with a new baby and they are stretched for money, but I have a problem with the child's hygiene. I want to do the right thing, Ann, but I can't decide if I should broach the subject with Laurie's mother or just stop taking the child with us. I need an unbiased opinion. What do you think?--Small Town in California

DEAR CALIFORNIA: Laurie needs help. If the child smells a bit ripe to you, others can smell it, too. Phone Laurie's mother, and tell her you would be happy to put the child in a shower at your house before going to a special event and to please send her with some fresh clothes.

At an appropriate moment, tell Laurie how important it is to bathe or shower every day and wear clean clothes. You could make a big difference in this child's life. I hope you will find the courage to do it.

"A Collection of My Favorite Gems of the Day" is the perfect little gift for that special someone who is impossible to buy for. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $5.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Collection, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Tech operates Hereford clinic

On Oct. 1, 1995, the Texas Department of Health transferred operation of their Hereford clinic to Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center who will manage the clinic under a contract with the Department.

The clinic's office will remain in the same location at 205 W. 4th and many of the same health care staff have been retained by Texas Tech.

For more information, please call the clinic at 364-2401.

Home health is topic of program

La Afflatus Estudio Club heard a program by Lisa Formby at its first meeting of the new year held at "Something Special."

Formby, who is employed by Hereford Home Health Care, discussed what home health offers, how it works and how rewarding it is to those who work with it and to those who participate in its services.

There was a question and answer session following the presentation.

President Louise Streun presided at the meeting and Leola Cook led the club collect.

Opal Elliston introduced Formby as the speaker for the meeting.

Virginia Beasley served as hostess to Virginia Curtsinger, Annie DeLozier, Alberta Higgins, Aileen Montgomery, Della Stagner, Emily Suggs, Mary Williamson, Elliston, Streun and Cook.

The next meeting is scheduled for Jan. 23 in Streun's home.

Wyatt is scheduled for appearance here

A special appearance of Kenneth Wyatt, widely known in art and a noted Methodist layman, will be hosted in Hereford Thursday by members of First Presbyterian Church.

Wyatt will speak at 7 p.m., talking about the relationship between his Christian faith and his work. He will show some of his original artwork to the audience.

Prior to Wyatt's appearance, the youth of the church will sponsor a chili dinner, open to the public. Donations will be accepted for the 6 p.m. meal.

Funds raised through the supper will be used by youth for a spring break mission trip to Juarez, Mexico, and to a conference on the family.

Wyatt, whose home is in Tulia, plans to attend the dinner, providing an opportunity for dialogue between him and others in attendance.

The artist has gained wide acceptance as a speaker, blending talent and humor with his strong faith.

HJH boys sweep Pampa

The Hereford Junior High boys' basketball teams swept four games from Pampa Monday night in Hereford.

The eighth grade A team won 54-49 in what was by far the closest of the four games - although the Hereford team never lost control of the game. L.J. Vallejo and Eric McNutt each scored 10 points for Hereford, Nick Whatley scored nine and Matt Lusk added eight.

The eighth B team won 50-34 behind 11 points from Mike Bedolla, 10 from Daniel Carnahan and eight from Morris Penalber.

The seventh grade A team romped, 60-29. Cody Hodges led the team with 16 points, Chayse Rives had 15 and Slade Hodges added 10.

The seventh B team held Pampa to only 16 points while scoring 41. Eddie Ruiz and J.P. Holman each scored nine points, and Hagen Henderson chipped in eight.

Hereford's freshmen boys' B team played the game of the night against Valleyview Monday in Whiteface Gym. Hereford lost 60-56 in overtime, but it was how the game got into overtime that made this game exciting.

Hereford trailed by 15 points after three quarters and by 17 with four minutes left in the game. The Herd rallied behind three pointers by Brent Berend, David Casarez and Brent Huseman, whose trey made the score 48-45 in the final minute.

Berend pulled the team within one with a driving layup, then Casarez hit 1-of-2 free throws with 10 seconds left to force overtime.

Valleyview took control with a 7-0 run late in the extra period.

Corey Ortiz led Hereford with 21 points, Berend scored 12 and Huseman had nine.

The Hereford freshman A team lost in the second game, 48-28. Cory Marsh led the team with seven points.

Both freshmen teams played Saturday at Pampa. The B team won, 52-42, getting 13 from Huseman, 12 from Berend and 10 from Casarez. The A team fell, 58-45, despite Gilbert Martinez' 17 points.

*

The HJH girls' basketball teams split four games Monday in Pampa.

The eighth grade A team won 35-15, getting all its points from three players: Tori Walker and Valerie Guzman with 13 each and Audra Witkowski with nine.

The seventh B team edged Pampa, 24-23. Bethany Williams led Hereford with 10 points.

The eighth grade B team lost, 39-28, despite Leslie Torres' 14 points. The seventh A team lost 15-12. Tessa Baker scored four of the points.

Local wrestlers place in tourney

All three of the Hereford wrestlers placed in the top five in their divisions in the West Rookie State tournament, held Saturday at Hereford Junior High.

Johnny Zamarripa took second place in the Division C (14-under), 180-pound weight class.

Jeffrey Gomez and Ricky Lara, both competing in the Division C, 92-pound class, finished fourth and fifth, respectively.

Only three members of the Hereford club participated because the tournament was limited to first-year wrestlers. Kris Hammarbeck was to compete, but no one else entered in his weight class.

A total of about 75 wrestlers competed.

Jack Dempsey knocked down Luis Angel Firpo seven times in the first round of their heavyweight title heavyweight title bout in 1923.

PSHOF honors coach Reeh

Hereford High School volleyball coach Brenda Reeh has been named the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame volleyball coach of the year.

Reeh coached the Lady Whitefaces to a 29-4 record, a District 1-4A championship and a No. 1 ranking in Class 4A. The team made it to the 4A state championship match, where it lost to Red Oak, 16-14, 15-10.

The PSHOF ceremonies will be held at 2 p.m. Feb. 4 at Amarillo College's Ordway Auditorium. Coaches and athletes from several sports will be honored. Amarillo High's Sarah Butler was named the volleyball athlete of the year for the second straight year.

Stephen Starring of the Patriots had a record seven kickoff returns in the 1986, 46-10 loss, to the Bears, in the Super Bowl.

Aikman gives ball to Switzer

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - So much for the suggestion that quarterback Troy Aikman and coach Barry Switzer don't get along.

Aikman gave Switzer the game ball from Sunday's 38-27 NFC title win over the Green Bay Packers, surprising those who believe Aikman is unhappy with Switzer's coaching.

"I had the ball on the last play of the game, but I don't keep souvenirs," he said. "I thought about giving the ball to my niece for a minute. Then I decided I'd give it to coach Switzer. He didn't know what to say."

Asked about reports that Aikman doesn't appreciate Switzer's coaching, Aikman said, "Barry and I get along fine. His coaching style is unique, but it's working for him."

He also gave a little more insight into what went on behind closed doors immediately after the game.

"We gave (offensive coordinator) Ernie Zampese a Gatorade bath," Aikman said. "The greatest thing about getting to the Super Bowl is that Ernie is going. It was his fifth NFC championship game, and he had never been to the Super Bowl. Now he is going. And boy, was he excited."

The Cowboys, who earned their third trip to the championship game in four years, say this may be their best Super Bowl trip of the 1990s.

Fullback Daryl Johnston, who provided the blocking for most of Emmitt Smith's 150 yards rushing and three touchdowns, said it has been a hard, difficult season for the team.

"The two previous Super Bowls were great," Johnston said. "The first one was special because it was a new experience. The second one was great because we began the year 0-2. This one feels really good because it has been such a roller coaster season for us.

"Everyone got down on us, and we came out to play and made it this far. We felt pressure getting here, but we knew success would follow if we settled down and just won."

Owner Jerry Jones said: "We did this the same way we went to the other two Super Bowls, with everyone pitching in. Everyone gets on Barry Switzer for his coaching, but all he has done is get to an NFC championship game and a Super Bowl. I'm proud of what he has done the past two years."

Center Derek Kennard said it feels great to get to the Super Bowl after all the adversity.

"Our offense came together," he said. "We had some great drives. That 99-yard drive we made was a classic."

Smith, who had an NFL record-tying sixth 100-yard rushing game in the playoffs, said the Cowboys showed a lot of character in hanging together.

"It's easy to jump off the bandwagon," he said. "A lot of people were wrong about the Cowboys."

Offensive tackle Nate Newton said the Cowboys played "tough, exciting, emotional football against the Packers."

"Now we have a week off for conditioning and getting Charles Haley healthy," he said.

Mavs maul Magic as Orlando starts trip 0-2

By The Associated Press

The Orlando Magic's longest road trip of the season is feeling even longer now.

They dropped the first game of a five-game trip Saturday at San Antonio, then ran into the resurgent Dallas Mavericks on Monday night. Dallas overcame a 14-of-18 shooting night by Shaquille O'Neal for a 119-104 victory that gave the Magic just their second two-game losing streak of the season.

Upcoming for Orlando are games at Phoenix on Wednesday, at Utah on Friday and a rematch of last year's NBA Finals on Sunday in Houston.

"We can't take anything away from this game. We just need to go out and play hard in the next game against Phoenix," Anfernee Hardaway said.

"We didn't play well at all. It happens. It's been a long season, but we'll be OK," O'Neal said.

In other games Monday, Chicago downed Washington 116-109, Houston beat Utah 107-99, Milwaukee defeated New York 98-92, the Los Angeles Lakers beat Miami 96-88, Seattle topped Golden State 104-95, Minnesota downed Sacramento 103-94, Atlanta got past Detroit 96-88 and New Jersey beat Toronto 108-83.

Orlando hadn't lost two in a row since Dec. 2 and 3, when the Magic, which was without O'Neal at the time, lost at Sacramento and Portland on the first two stops of a four-game West coact trip.

The Mavericks got 29 points from Jimmy Jackson, 27 from George McCloud, 22 from Popeye Jones and 20 from Jason Kidd.

Kidd also had 14 assists and seven rebounds to win the head-to-head showdown with Hardaway, who had 21 points and just five assists.

"As a team, we just didn't play very well. I can't explain it. If I could explain it, I would do something about it," coach Bob Hill said.

The Mavericks took control with a 19-4 run in the second quarter, and Orlando got no closer than five points in the second half. Dallas has won three times in its last five games, the team's best stretch since opening the season 5-1.

Rockets 107, Jazz 99

At Houston, Hakeem Olajuwon had 28 points, including nine in a row in a crucial fourth-quarter stretch, and Mario Elie had 20 points and a key slam dunk for the Rockets.

"It was a close game against a tough team," Olajuwon said. "Every time we play them, it's decided late. This is a team we'll be playing in the playoffs."

Utah, which lost for the fourth time in five games, was led by Karl Malone with 23 points and David Benoit with 17.

Bulls 116, Bullets 109

Michael Jordan scored 46 points - one game after he had a season-high 48.

"All things considered, we did a decent job on him," Washington coach Jim Lynam said. "It sounds crazy, but he had to take 31 shots."

Scottie Pippen scored 27 points and Dennis Rodman had 15 rebounds for the visiting Bulls, who improved to 31-3 with their eighth straight win and their 21st in 22 games.

The only other teams in NBA history to start 31-3 were the 1971-72 Los Angeles Lakers and the 1966-67 Philadelphia 76ers. The '71-72 Lakers set a league record with 69 victories, and the Bulls are in excellent position to top that.

"It's possible," Jordan allowed. "The history aspect will take care of itself. That's not for us to worry about."

Bucks 98, Knicks 92

New York had a chance to tie it with 17 seconds left, but Patrick Ewing missed two of three free throws after he was fouled attempting a 3-pointer.

The Bucks pulled away after that and sent the Knicks to their second straight surprising home loss. They dropped one to Sacramento on Saturday - their first loss to the Kings since 1981.

"This was the biggest win of our season," said Vin Baker, who had 30 points and 13 rebounds.

Lakers 96, Heat 88

Pat Riley returned to another of his former haunts and saw his team fall three games below .500 - its worst mark of the season.

Miami has scored fewer than 100 points in 17 of 18 games and is 1-5 since Alonzo Mourning returned from an injured left foot.

"We need to go back and start from scratch," Mourning said. "We need to do the little things that got us going early this season. We're just fighting through something, and I don't know what it is. We're having a lot of difficulty out there, and it's a strain."

Eddie Jones scored 20 points and Vlade Divac 19 in the Lakers' third straight victory.

SuperSonics 104, Warriors 95

Gary Payton had 23 points and Hersey Hawkins 22 as Seattle won at Golden State, the Sonics' 10th victory in 12 games.

Shawn Kemp had 17 points, 14 rebounds, three blocks and four assists and Vincent Askew added a season-high 17 points.

Timberwolves 103, Kings 94

At Minneapolis, Darrick Martin scored a career-high 20 points and Isaiah Rider had 29 as Minnesota snapped its five-game losing streak.

Hawks 96, Pistons 88

At Atlanta, Steve Smith scored 31 points and Mookie Blaylock added 21 as the Hawks went over .500 for the first time in nearly six weeks.

Nets 108, Raptors 83

At East Rutherford, N.J., Kenny Anderson had 23 points and 13 assists, Armon Gilliam added 20 points, Chris Childs 17 and Yinka Dare a career-high 12 - the first game in double figures for the Nets' 1994 first-round pick.

KU romps despite Vaughn's benching

By The Associated Press

From now on, Jacque Vaughn will let his coach do the talking.

Vaughn was benched for most of the first half by Kansas coach Roy Williams after picking up a technical foul for talking back to an official Monday night in the fourth-ranked Jayhawks' 85-71 win over St. Peter's.

Vaughn, one of the nation's best point guards, shot an air ball 3-1/2 minutes into the game and then said something to the officials, right in front of Williams and the Kansas bench.

The junior point guard was hit with the first technical foul of his college career and spent the rest of the half of the bench.

"I just decided I'd let Jacque sit there," Williams said. "I said I don't care what the score is, Jacque is sitting the rest of the half."

Vaughn, Kansas' most popular player, was nicked in the eye by a St. Peter's player a few minutes before the technical foul and the subsequent benching.

"It was the coach's decision. I have to live with it," he said.

"We can definitely learn from this game, not looking at the refs to call some calls we think are there," Vaughn said. "We have to play through them. If there's something we learned tonight, I think that was it."

Mostly without Vaughn, the Jayhawks (13-1) played some of their worst basketball of the season. They missed six of their first seven shots and 11 of their first 19 free throws, but a late run put them ahead 45-26 at halftime.

St. Peter's coach Rodger Blind said it was encouraging to see Vaughn out of the game.

Raef LaFrentz, who had 40 points in two games last week and was the Big Eight player of the week, scored 16 points for Kansas. Luis Arrosa had 17 points for St. Peter's (9-4), which lost its fourth straight game.

No. 6 Wake Forest 71, Richmond 60

Tony Rutland scored all 13 of his points in the final 9-1/2 minutes as Wake Forest bounced back after blowing an 18-point lead.

The Demon Deacons (11-1) led 40-22 with 18:43 left, but visiting Richmond (4-9) responded with a 24-2 run for a 46-42 edge.

Tim Duncan scored 16 points for Wake Forest, which won its eighth in a row. Adam Mobley and Eric Poole scored 16 each for the Spiders, who lost their sixth straight game.

No. 11 Virginia Tech 79, George Washington 71

Ace Custis scored 18 points, including a tip-in with 47 seconds left, and Travis Jackson tied his career high with 17 points as Virginia Tech (10-1, 3-0) scored its seventh straight victory and took sole possession of first place in the Atlantic 10 Conference.

George Washington (8-4, 2-1) overcame a 15-point deficit and led with seven minutes to play, but missed its four field goal attempts in the final minute.

Kwame Evans paced George Washington with 21 points, while 7-foot-1 Alexander Koul had 20.

The game was moved to Roanoke because 27 inches of snow accumulated on the roof of Cassell Coliseum, making it unsafe.

No. 8 Georgetown 74, Notre Dame 69

Allen Iverson scored 26 points and Georgetown won on the road despite shooting just 39 percent and getting outrebounded 43-34.

Iverson's 3-pointer with 12:10 left put the Hoyas (15-4, 5-1) ahead for good at 49-47. Notre Dame remained winless in the Big East (5-8, 0-6) with their fourth straight loss.

Ryan Hoover scored 26 points for the Irish. The game was the first between the teams since the 1989 NCAA tournament.

No. 15 Utah 67, San Diego St. 59

With coach Rick Majerus back on the bench, Brandon Jessie tied his career high with 28 points, and the Utes (12-3, 4-1 WAC) overcame an 11-point halftime deficit to defeat host San Diego State.

Brawl stops game at Angelo State

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) - For the second time in a week, a basketball game involving National Christian University, a third-year program out of San Antonio, has been stopped before its conclusion.

Last week, in a game at Abilene, Texas, officials stopped play and declared Hardin-Simmons the winner after a player from NCU, upset at a call, grabbed a chair and waved it menacingly at a referee.

Monday night, six minutes into the second half of a game against Angelo State, referees halted play after a bench-clearing brawl in which NCU head coach J. Cesar Cervantes suffered a concussion.

National Christian was trailing 65-48 when Xavier Burke of Angelo State delivered a hard foul while Julio Gonzales was driving to the basket.

Initially, Gonzales walked away from Burke and toward his own bench. Just prior to play resuming, however, Gonzales and Burke exchanged words and Gonzales threw a punch that missed Burke.

Burke pursued Gonzales toward the scorers' table, where Cervantes tried to separate them. As coaches tried to restore order, Gonzales pinned Burke against the stands behind the scorer's table and threw several punches at Burke's head.

Both benches emptied, and at one point, an unidentified Angelo State player came running over from the Angelo State bench, leaped into the middle of the mob near the National Christian bench and threw a wild punch. National Christian players were involved, as well, some grabbing chairs and holding them in a threatening manner.

The brawl, which involved about 15 players, lasted about 30 seconds.

Finally, some order was restored by coaches, game officials and university police. That's when someone noticed Cervantes lying on the floor.

Cervantes, apparently struck in the head or neck by an unidentified player, lay motionless for several moments while Angelo State trainers tended to him.

"He was complaining of having neck pain," Angelo State trainer Randy Matthews said. "At some point, he said he had some numbness and tingling in his extremities."

Players from both teams were escorted to their locker rooms by police and coaches while about 500 fans were told to leave the building.

Cervantes, who was conscious and coherent, was placed on a backboard and taken by ambulance to a local hospital, where he was treated and diagnosed with a concussion, then released and told to rest.

In the game a week earlier against Hardin-Simmons, NCU was charged with 23 fouls, including four technicals. Two of those technicals were assessed to Roderick Clak, the player who grabbed a chair and waved it threateningly at a referee.

Two technicals is an automatic ejection. Cervantes came onto the floor in that game, as well, and was given two technicals and ejected. He had to be restrained from officials.

Referees in that game had to be escorted from the gym by police and initially talked about pressing charges with Abilene police against Clak. They never filed charges, however.

Clak was one of the players from National Christian holding a chair and waving it Monday night.

"I don't know who from us was involved," Angelo State head coach Ed Messbarger said. "But there are some people who won't play in the next game."

NCAA rules require that any player leaving the bench during a fight be immediately ejected from that game and the next game, Angelo State athletic director Jerry Vandergriff said. The Rams' next game is Saturday at Abilene Christian.

Tech cracks Top 25

By JEAN PAGEL
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - No. 25 Texas Tech got ranked Monday in the college basketball poll for the first time since 1985, while Massachusetts remained the top team for the fourth straight week.

"This is something that was a long time coming," said Texas Tech coach James Dickey, whose Red Raiders (12-1) have lost only to Eastern Michigan.

"We had established when I came in five years ago we wanted to be a Top 25 program. We've had some chances to break into it before," Dickey said. "And with this team, I think they feel like it'll just come with the territory."

Texas Tech's 82-54 romp over Texas A&M on Saturday was the 24th straight victory in Lubbock for the Red Raiders, who improved to 2-0 in the Southwest Conference.

The home winning streak and the team's second national ranking in 20 years have helped salve what Texas Tech saw as a snub at the 1995 NCAA Tournament. Tech went on to lose 94-82 to Washington State in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament last year.

Dickey stuck to a one-game-at-a-time approach Monday.

"Our players understand, 'Don't get caught up in all the excitement and the hoopla of the prom, but you'd better concentrate on who you're supposed to be dancing with,' " he said.

Sixty-two of the 64 first-place votes in the poll went to the Minutemen (14-0), who received 1,598 points from the national media panel. Kentucky (13-1) held the runner-up spot for the fourth straight week, this time with 1,519 points.

Cincinnati (11-0) and Kansas (12-1) swapped third and fourth with the Bearcats receiving a first-place vote. Connecticut (14-1) received the other No. 1 vote and moved up one spot to fifth.

Wake Forest, which jumped two spots, Villanova, Georgetown, Memphis and North Carolina rounded out the Top Ten. Georgetown, which lost to Pittsburgh during the week, fell three places in the only other change among that group.

Project to help rural ministers learn how to help families affected by Alzheimer's

By KERRY CURRY
Amarillo Globe-News

AMARILLO, Texas _ Texas Panhandle ministers are learning how to help families affected by Alzheimer's Disease through a grant administered by the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center in Lubbock.

"Many had dealt with the issue but were lost," said Linda San Miguel of Dumas, an outreach specialist funded by the grant who last month conducted her first training seminar for Pampa ministers.

"A lot of them said, 'If I had known this ... it would have helped tremendously.' "

During the coming months, she will travel throughout the Panhandle to teach ministers about the disease.

About three years ago, a pilot grant from the South Plains Association of Governments provided initial funding for educational materials about Alzheimer's, said David Freed, a psychologist and associate professor in the Department of Neurology at Texas Tech University.

"We had to figure out how to best distribute the material and hit upon the idea of working with clergy to provide them with training and materials for their congregations," he said.

That led to more grant applications. Over the past year, Texas Tech Health Sciences Center in Lubbock received additional grant funds totaling $380,000 from several philanthropic organizations, Freed said.

The money will fund a project called the Rural Alzheimer's Disease Education Program through June 1997, Freed said.

The program's coverage area, which eventually will include much of West Texas, recently was expanded into the Texas Panhandle, said Joe Garms, a psychologist at the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center in Amarillo.

"The philosophy behind all of this is that a lot of folks, when they have a problem, they will go to their minister and get help," said Garms, who is overseeing administration of the program's Panhandle region. "Ministers are on the front line."

Rural ministers, especially, will be targeted, Freed said.

"Current statistics suggest there are 53,000 older adults with Alzheimer's Disease in West Texas," Freed said. "Most of those folks are living in small, rural communities that don't have a lot of services."

In addition, many rural communities in West Texas have large populations of older adults, he said.

Alzheimer's, a degenerative brain disease that results in an increasing loss of memory, is most common among older adults, according to the National Institutes of Health.

Nationally, about 13 percent of the U.S. population is 65 or older. But in some rural West Texas towns, up to 35 percent of the population is 65 or older, Freed said. "Ministers are familiar with these older folks," Freed said. "They are trusted and are already in place in these communities. It is a cost-effective, common sense approach."

Freed said the Rural Alzheimer's Disease Program hopes the education and training it provides will improve the quality of life for individuals with Alzheimer's and decrease the emotional burden on families providing care.

Besides training clergy, the program will sponsor caregiver seminars, educational forums, one-on-one consultations and dementia screenings, Freed said.

It also will work with the Alzheimer's Association to help establish support groups, Garms said.

For more information on the Rural Alzheimer's Disease Program, call the Lubbock office at 806-743-2643. Texas Panhandle residents can call Linda San Miguel at 806-935-9035.

'42' game night to be hosted by Pilot Club

Pilot Club of Hereford will sponsor a "42" and Family Game Night Thursday from 7 p.m.-10 p.m. in Hereford Community Center.

The drawing will be held for the grand prize trip for four to Carlsbad Caverns. Anyone who purchased a ticket to the game night in November will be eligible as well as anyone who purchases a ticket for the upcoming game night.

A drawing will also be held for the denim and jersey jacket made by Sharon Caro. Tickets for the jacket are $1 and are available from any Pilot Club member.

Games in addition to "42" will be offered, including some for children.

Drinks and finger foods will be available and door prizes will be given.

Program by Josserand given for La Madre Mia

In a presentation to La Madre Mia Study Club, Nancy Josserand related events on the trip she and her husband, Mayor Bob Josserand, took to England and Scotland.

She told about visiting museums and churches in London, and going to Hereford, England, where they met and visited with the mayor. They traveled by train to Edinburg, Scotland, where they rented a car and drove through the countryside. Josserand stressed they were never disappointed in anything on their trip.

Kay Hall, president, conducted the business meeting. Members answered roll call with "Your worst vacation experience," telling stories that were funny and interesting.

The home of Nancy Paetzold will be the site of the next meeting on Jan. 25.

Los Ciboleros DAR has annual business session

Los Ciboleros Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution met Jan. 11 in the home of Margaret Bell for its annual business meeting.

Regent Juanita Brownd, assisted by chaplain Ruth Knox, conducted the opening ritual.

The Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag was led by Patricia Robinson, Mary Williamson led in singing "America," Knox led the recitation of the American Creed and Helen Rose led the Preamble to the Constitution.

Argen Draper vice regent, read the President General's message from the January 1996 NSDAR Magazine.

National Defense article reviewed by Charlotte Clark from the January 1996 National Defender was an article by Jacques Steinberg on "State is Accused of Overuse of Bilingual Classes."

Kathryn Ruga, chairman of the American history committee, announced that the American history essays from the fifth through eighth grades had been collected. Winners will be announced for February's celebration of National History Month.

Margaret Bell, chairman of the DAR Good Citizen committee, related that the selection of winners, one from Hereford High School and one from Dimmitt High School, has been made and the names will be released soon.

Delegates elected to represent Los Ciboleros Chapter at the 97th Texas State Conference in Corpus Christi on March 21-23 were Juanita Brownd and Argen Draper with Patricia Robinson as alternate.

These same delegates were elected to represent the chapter at the 105th Continental Congress, April 14-18 in Washington, D.C.

Members present included Margaret Durham, Lois Gililland, Pat Pugliese, Donna Smith, Bell, Brownd, Clark, Draper, Knox, Newsom, Robinson, Rose, Ruga and Williamson.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS
Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.
• All 176 Pages in full color
• Each page measures a large 15x11 inches
• Presents the entire state in stunning detail
• Appendices and specialty maps of many different features
THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.
This 176 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing - county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

Get ready -- 10-digit phone numbers appear inevitable

Increase in use of fax, modem, cellular, beeper services impacting area codes

By KATIE FAIRBANK
AP Business Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Might as well get a jump on the game and learn how to use that autodialer on your phone. The 10-digit local phone number is inevitable.

The burgeoning use of fax machines, beepers, modems and cellular phones is rapidly eliminating the numbers available with current area codes. So, all those devices that were supposed to make life easier mean new area codes are being implemented in 23 parts of the country through 1996, according to the Federal Communications Commission.

With those new codes will come new dialing instructions and eventually more numbers to punch each time you dial a local call.

"Ten-digit dialing is going to be reality," said Southwestern Bell spokesman Chris Talley.

That doesn't mean people think it should happen now.

The issue of 10-digit dialing in Texas has been accompanying a two-year debate on two new area codes - 281 in Houston and 972 in Dallas.

To avoid that, Southwestern Bell is pushing an overlaid plan, saying customers would be too inconvenienced by geographically zoned area codes. The company argues that the overlay will provide enough new numbers to last a decade while numbers under a geographical split would be exhausted in four to seven years.

The Texas Public Utility Commission has been holding public hearings and was supposed to decide on how to implement the codes on Jan. 10. But the commission delayed a vote until Feb. 7 and scheduled more hearings.

"I think we can use a little more time to make a decision," said Commissioner Robert Gee.

Hundreds have shown up to tell the PUC they don't like the proposed plan to assign new area codes to new telephone owners, requiring 10-digit dialing. They want the area codes split geographically, like in the past.

With a split, customers who live near downtown Houston or Dallas would keep their numbers, but more than a million suburban customers in each city would get numbers in the new area codes.

Southwestern Bell's competitors oppose the overlay on grounds the company would have the sole ability to issue numbers to new customers under the existing 713 or 214 area codes.

"We see the overlay as having anti-competitive overtones," said Alfred Herrera, a senior counsel for MCI. "The Bell operators have traditionally wanted a split. Now, it seems too coincidental to me that they're proposing a unique overlay system."

The overlay system would mean that even next-door neighbors could have different area codes. Callers would have to dial the area code, prefix and four-number personal identification numbers each time they wanted to make a local call.

There would be no long-distance charges for the local calls, but 10-digit dialing would be here, and here to stay.

"If you look at the industry historically that seems to be the next logical step," said Herrera. "That may be true, but not necessarily now."

The arguments for leaving well enough alone is not a new one.

Phone numbers once began with alphabet identifiers until the number of telephones outgrew the system. Phone numbers then required four, then five, digits until again the number of telephones outgrew the system.

Now, most of the country is at seven-digit dialing.

And we're outgrowing the system.

"The same arguments we hear against 10-digit dialing were said against seven-digit dialing in the '60s," said Chino Chapa, Dallas spokesman for Southwestern Bell. "People want to remain with what they know."

"It's human nature. We're creatures of habit: They think they should be able to get around it," he said.

In the '60s there was such opposition to seven-digit dialing a California-based Anti-Digit Dialing League formed.

"They produced psychiatrists saying people couldn't remember seven digits," said Chapa.

Now, they will have to learn 10.

"Many large parts of the country are experiencing 10-digit dialing. In the Washington D.C. area, 90 percent of the calls experience 10-digit dialing," said Talley.

Dallas and Houston aren't alone with the problem in Texas either. Within two years, the Fort Worth area will face it.

But Ben Klein, 42, of Houston says 10-digit dialing would be too confusing.

"This proposal was done by Southwestern Bell and given to the consumers as a done deal," Klein said.

Other opponents have asked why the company couldn't simply issue the new area codes to fax machines and cellular phones.

"If technology caused it, why not let technology solve it?" one woman asked at a public hearing.

Talley said the FCC has ruled against that type of number assignments, saying it is anti-competitive. Only New York City has that capability because the system was grandfathered in when the FCC ruled against it.

Southwestern Bell says if people will get used to dialing all 10 numbers, just like they adjusted in the past.

"It's just making that mental jump to the future," Chapa said.

Stock investors advised to use their thinking, instead of relying on brokers to guide them

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - The past year in stocks should have taught investors a lot of things, none more important than to remind them again to do their own thinking rather than relying on that of others.

That advice is doubly important, it seems, when that dependence is on so-called experts, since most of the big-name brokerage firms failed last year to see the vigorous advance in the popular market averages.

There's nothing wrong in being wrong about the future of the market, since all forecasts are little more than informed guesses that remind us of our human limitations.

What is very wrong and dangerous too is when the public uncritically accepts these forecasts as coming from financial gods with the superhuman capacity for seeing beyond the horizon instead of processing the information and insights, and then rejecting them or accepting them into their own pool of knowledge.

That, of course, might involve much work and the assumption of a great deal of responsibility, neither of which can be termed common at a time when investors rely so much on portfolio managers and gurus.

Some of last year's professional forecasting failures resulted from an overly great reliance on the past. Ordinarily, the past contains useful guidelines, but last year one of them, the dividend signal, failed.

The old rule said stocks perform poorly when the Standard & Poor's dividend yield falls under 3 percent, but that yield hasn't even been attained for much of the past four years, and recently it has been under 2.5 percent.

Those who relied on this rule of thumb failed, it seems, to recognize two major changes, as pointed out by Wright Investors' Service, which manages close to $5 billion of investments.

First, rather than directing free cash flow to dividends, corporate managers increasingly used it to reinvest in the business, buy back shares or provide a cushion against the possibility of tough times ahead.

Secondly, they failed to measure the thinking of today's investors, who declared their indifference to yield and their apparent willingness to accept capital gains instead, especially with a capital gains tax cut likely.

One of the fatal errors of young investors is to believe the old rules no longer applies. Wise investors even listen for such talk, deeming it a warning. But last year, the dividend rule was at least suspended.

Based on last year's performance, Gerald Perritt, editor of Investment Information Services, a research and advisory concern, offers some other observation for your consideration and acceptance or rejection.

-It pays to swim upstream. A year ago, more than 60 percent of all investment newsletter writers were stock market bears.

-Don't ever abandon the stock market. If you were completely out of the stock market in late 1994, as many gurus advised, you probably didn't get back in at all during 1995.

-It pays to diversify. Not all asset categories had the same good fortune last year and they won't this year either.

-Don't fight the tape. When stocks are going up or down, don't be stubborn and insist that the market is wrong and you are right.

To which may be added: Think for yourself and respect the past - both are good sources of information - but don't believe either is incapable of misleading.

The story of Robinson Crusoe was inspired by the real-life story of Alexander Selkirk, who quarreled with his ship's captain and was left on a remote island. He lived there for 52 months until rescued.

Writer reviews Gulf War five years after conflict

EDITOR'S NOTE - Five years ago, the Gulf War shattered lives and politics in the Middle East. The shock waves it set off have helped realign the Arab world, and move much of the region toward peace. But Iraq's leadership has never changed: Saddam Hussein remains firmly in power, despite the suffering of his people. An Associated Press correspondent who covered the Gulf War looks back at the conflict and its aftermath.

By JAMAL HALABY
Associated Press Writer

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) - On Jan. 17, 1991, ferocious allied air raids launched a U.S.-led offensive to drive Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait and out of power.

Five years later, a defiant Saddam is still president of Iraq and his bitter standoff with the world shows no sign of abating. While the Iraqi leader has proved to be a stubborn survivor, the 20 million Iraqi people are becoming poorer and hungrier.

In the United States and elsewhere, analysts still debate whether the U.S.-led coalition should have tried to oust Saddam after driving his forces from Kuwait in a six-week war.

Even former President George Bush said his administration may have mishandled Iraq's surrender. If done differently, he said in an interview to be aired Tuesday on PBS, Saddam might not still be in power.

"I miscalculated," Bush said. "I thought he'd be gone."

The war and the U.N. trade embargo imposed five days after Saddam invaded Kuwait in 1990 have deprived Saddam of the oil revenues and the military muscle that fueled his dreams of becoming the paramount leader of the Arab world.

Saddam has imposed austerity measures in an attempt to halt the economic decline that has beggared the once-prosperous nation. He recently announced plans to freeze salaries, impose new taxes, raise utility bills and sell off a quarter of the government's automobile fleet.

"To implement the new economic policy ... the leadership is in dire need of your support," Saddam said in a Jan. 6 speech.

Before the Gulf War, the Iraqi dinar was worth more than three dollars. Now it's worth about 0.03 cents.

On street corners in Baghdad, children beg for money. Middle-class families sell off their furniture at huge flea markets to buy food. Hospitals and aid agencies report thousands of cases of malnutrition in places where none existed before the war.

The U.N. Security Council has offered to let Iraq sell up to $4 billion worth of oil a year to pay for medicine and food. Saddam has refused, saying it would infringe on Iraqi sovereignty.

"The bottom line is that he doesn't want to feed his own people," said Madeleine Albright, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. "He doesn't give a hoot about his own people. It's as simple as that."

U.N. weapons inspectors say Iraq has yet to reveal all about its programs to build weapons of mass destruction, one of the several conditions necessary for lifting the embargo.

Iraq's isolation has grown even deeper in recent months. King Hussein of Jordan granted asylum in August to two of Saddam's daughters and their husbands.

Iraq's government has sharply reduced the availability of telephone lines in an apparent attempt to limit contact with opposition groups in exile.

"Members of the ruling elite in Iraq might be fighting among themselves for survival, but the regime is here to stay," said Fahd Fanek, a prominent Jordanian columnist.

Outside Iraq, the Gulf War and the end of the Cold War combined to make a catalyst that ended years of political stasis in the Middle East, leading to landmark agreements that are reshaping the region.

Since the war, Jordan has made peace with Israel, Israel has reached an accord with the Palestinians and Yasser Arafat now rules over most residents of the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Even Israel's most implacable foe, Syria, is speaking optimistically about the possibility of a peace deal.

Another Gulf War legacy is the increased U.S. military presence in the region.

About 13,000 American military personnel and some 40 warships guarantee the safety of the conservative Gulf monarchies, which in turn work to keep oil flowing at moderate prices to the West. Every day, U.S. aircraft fly more than 100 sorties over southern Iraq.

"That's what gets Saddam Hussein's attention," U.S. Defense Secretary William Perry said during a tour of the region this month. "He can't ignore it. He sees it every day."

The United States considers Iran as dangerous as Iraq, and President Clinton has pursued a policy of "dual containment" in an attempt to neutralize the two countries. Support for the policy is less than unanimous European allies have rebuffed U.S. efforts to tighten trade sanctions on Iran, and militant Islamic groups oppose the U.S. military presence. A Nov. 13 car bomb in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, killed five Americans, an attack believed to have been carried out by Islamic militants.

Within Iraq, several conflicts threaten to boil over.

Kurds have an allies-established "safe zone" in northern Iraq, but rival factions continue to feud among themselves. Shiite Muslims in the south are a potential threat to Saddam's rule. And a brief rebellion last summer by a Sunni Muslim tribe long loyal to Saddam suggested another crack in his support.

Opposition groups in Iraq and abroad remain fractious, and some analysts fear that if Saddam fell it could lead to a breakup of Iraq, further destabilizing the region.

State Capital HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams & Ed Sterling
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — After spending $1.5 billion to increase prison capacity from 48,000 inmates to 146,000 over the last five years, the Texas Department of Criminal Justice is now launching a first-ever project to pin down what works and what doesn't work in reducing recidivism.

Soon after he took office Jan. 1, TDCJ's new executive director Wayne Scott promoted division director Dimitria Pope to a new position as his executive assistant with a high priority mission of designing a statistical analysis program to track ex-offenders to discern which prison rehabilitation treatments produce the best results.

Prison officials say recidivism numbers now available leave a lot to be desired because they aren't refined to track and correlate critical factors that heavily influence an offender's chances of staying straight, such as prison rehab programs by type and amount of time spent in them.

Pope's project will complement TDCJ's on-going recidivism reduction studies, an agency-wide effort which has been largely unheralded, but ranks as a high priority with TDCJ's governing board.

Board chairman Allan Polunsky of San Antonio says that "with more prison capacity and longer terms, we are taking violent offenders off the streets as never before, but for the long-range, Texas cannot afford to rely on incarceration programs with those offenders who will benefit and lead crime lives, and that effort starts with building a dependable statistical foundation."

Is It, or Is It Not a Duck?

The Texas Lottery Commission approved proposed rules that would allow bingo operators to install machines that dispense a 50-cent pull tab game, in accordance with HB 3021 passed by the state Legislature in 1995.

But the commission made it clear that the dispensers should be the manual variety, and not the casino-style slots with video display terminals that have an internal switch which converts the game from bingo to poker, blackjack or keno.

"If it looks like a duck and walks like a duck, the thought is that it probably is a duck. We need to define what is the device and keep sight of the legislative intent," said Keith Elkins of the Lottery Commission.

Three weeks remain for public comment on the proposed rules before a vote will be taken. Meanwhile, some bingo parlor operators have threatened to sue if they don't get the type of machines they want.

Insurance Rules Urged

State legislators, senior citizens' representatives and AIDS support groups urged state insurance officials to adopt rules that would regulate the resale of insurance policies by terminally ill Texans.

At a hearing last week in Austin, the groups and several "viatical" settlement companies that buy the life insurance policies for a percentage of the death benefit, endorsed rules proposed by Insurance Commissioner Elton Bomer.

Under Bomer's proposal, companies and brokers would have to tell potential policy sellers of their rights before a contract could be signed.

Those rights would be explained in a consumer booklet containing information on such issues as the settlement process, tax consequences, effects on the applicant's public health-care benefits and alternatives to viatical settlements.

Seven other states have viatical rules like those under consideration by Bomer, the Dallas Morning News reported.

Father 1st to Lose Permits

An El Paso funeral director became the first Texas resident to have his licenses suspended for not making court-ordered child support payments.

The Texas Attorney General's Office issued its first order suspending licenses issued to Harrison B. Johnson because he owes $53,980 in child support.

A law that went into effect Sept. 1 allows the state to suspend the driver's licenses, professional licenses, hunting permits and fishing licenses of people who are behind in paying child support.

Travis County Bans Guns

Travis County joined the growing list of governmental entities to dampen Texas' new "right to carry" law, which went into effect Jan. 1.

County Commissioners voted unanimously last week to ban concealed handguns in county buildings and vehicles, or wherever county business is conducted. In enacting the ban, Travis County follows suit with the City of Austin, Capital Metro, the Texas Department of Public Safety and dozens of other cities, counties and transit authorities around the state.

Other Capital Highlights

- Responding to a reporter's question on the probability of his seeking a second term, Gov. George W. Bush said: "I think the odds are that I'll run again, but there's no guarantee. There are a lot of possibilities. I may be like Sam Houston and go live with the Cherokee Indians."
- After hearing three days of testimony, U.S. District Judge Sam Cummings said he hopes to decide by Feb. 2 whether one-time suspected serial killer Henry Lee Lucas should be executed.

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best.

You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day.

And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message.

People believe it when they read it in the paper.

Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.
