Carter seeks tax breaks for wage compliance

WASHINGTON (AP) — With fresh and welcome support from members of a key committee, the administration is sticking with a controversial plan to use tax cuts to shelter workers from inflation if they comply with wage guidelines.

"We are going to make a real effort to pass this program," Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal vowed Monday before the House Ways and Means Committee, which must go along if the plan is to emerge from Congress.

"It's very high on our list of priorities," he said.

Blumenthal's testimony came while an agency of Congress raised doubts whether the administration will be able to meet either of its announced goals for containing inflation and unemployment in 1979.

During almost five hours of Blumenthal's testimony, none of the 37 members of the Ways and Means Committee flatly rejected the novel "wage insurance" plan, although several were skeptical.

"It's like using a Band-Aid on a broken arm," said Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., reflecting the criticism that has been heard since Carter first mentioned the proposal last October.

But five members of the panel volunteered to support the plan.

"I generally support this legislation," said Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., noting public outrage over inflation. "This is a time for creativity."

Also indicating approval were California Democrats Fortney Stark and James Corman and New York Republicans Charles Rangel and Tom Downey.

President Carter's chief economic adviser, Charles L. Schultze, and Alfred E. Kahn, the administration's chief inflation fighter, arranged to testify on the tax credit today.

Meanwhile, the congressional Joint Economic Committee was to hear Chairman G. William Miller of the Federal Reserve today for his assessment of the economy.

The Congressional Budget Office issued a report Monday that was more gloomy about the economy's prospects than the administration's forecast.

The CBO foresees an inflation rate of 7 percent to 9 percent in 1979, compared to the 7.5 percent projected by the administration. Inflation averaged 9 percent in 1978.

The CBO also foresees unemployment ranging between 6.2 percent and 7.2 percent; the administration projects a 6.2 percent rate.

The congressional agency said the economy is likely to go into a mild slump during the last half of the year. This would make it difficult for Carter to meet his goal of holding the federal deficit to about $29 billion.

A downturn in the economy would mean fewer jobs, a drop in tax collections and higher government spending for unemployment compensation, food stamps and welfare.

Blumenthal said the Carter administration has no alternative plan to check wage inflation if Congress rejects the president's proposed "wage insurance" tax credit.

"We'll just have to use the voluntary kind of approach," the treasury secretary said.

Under the plan, qualified workers whose "employee groups" accept pay raises averaging 7 percent or less this year would get a tax cut if inflation this year exceeds 7 percent.

For example, a $15,000 worker who meets the qualifications would get a $75 tax credit if inflation matches the 7.5 percent forecast by Blumenthal. Should inflation go to 10 percent — the maximum covered by the program — the $15,000 earner would get a $450 credit.

The proposal aims to ensure that those workers who follow Carter's voluntary 7 percent wage-increase guideline are not hurt if inflation exceeds expectations.

"Questions inevitably arise about a genuinely new idea ... but it is important at the outset to stress that no other instrument has been suggested that could so effectively encourage voluntary wage restraint," Blumenthal said.

The administration does not pretend the tax credit assures success of the anti-inflation fight, he said, "but it plays an important and unique role in that effort."

Carter, Teng conclude talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping of China concluded their formal talks today, and Teng announced that the Chinese and American people have "broad prospects" for building a new relationship.

Carter and Teng left the White House Oval Office in late morning after a two-hour meeting, and the president described their talks with a rush of adjectives.

"Far-reaching, frank, honest, cordial, harmonious, beneficial and constructive," were the words a smiling Carter used before Teng stepped into his limousine and rode to Capitol Hill for meetings with members of Congress.

"I agree to every word the president has just said," Teng said.

"Through this visit, I am even more convinced that China and the United States and the Chinese people and the American people have broad prospects in various fields — politically, economically, in the science and technological fields and in the cultural field, et cetera," the Chinese leader said.

Carter said they would meet again briefly Wednesday to sign an umbrella agreement covering exchanges in students and scholars, science, technology, agriculture and energy.

The two leaders refused to answer questions about whether they had disagreed on such tougher issues as their attitude toward the Soviet Union or the future of Taiwan.

Carter agreed to end diplomatic recognition of the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan, and to abrogate the 1955 mutual defense treaty between the United States and Taiwan, as a condition for establishing full diplomatic relations with the Peking government on Jan. 1.

A smiling Teng arrived at the White House promptly at 9 a.m. for his third meeting with Carter within 24 hours. After reviewing global and regional problems Monday, the two leaders shifted today to such bilateral issues as trade and exchange programs.

Teng later faced a series of meetings on Capitol Hill and questions about China's policy toward Taiwan. The administration hoped his responses would help blunt the criticism it has drawn over the decision to normalize relations with Peking.

Details of Monday's talks at the White House were sparse.

It was clear, however, that the Soviet Union was discussed. And sources indicated the administration was relieved the emphasis of the talks was shifting to bilateral matters.

Teng said he and Carter reached "an understanding" about Soviet matters at a morning meeting, but did not say whether Carter agreed with his hardline views.

The first fruit of the talks was an exchange of invitations. Carter was invited to Peking and Chinese Premier Hua Kuo-feng was invited to Washington. Both accepted, although no dates were set.

On the other hand, the two sides decided not to issue a joint communique, or statement of shared views, after Teng leaves Washington Thursday for Atlanta, Houston and Seattle.

The differences between Teng and Carter over policy toward the Soviets were only thinly veiled in their public statements Monday, as Carter welcomed Teng with an honor guard, a state dinner and an entertainment gala at the Kennedy Center.

In his toast at the state dinner, Teng said, "We view our bilateral relations in the context of the overall international situation."

And he reminded Carter that the United States and China had only recently pledged themselves to fight against any effort to establish "hegemony" in Asia. "Hegemony" is the word the Chinese use to describe Soviet aspirations.

The American sources, who asked not to be identified, said Teng was not proposing any formal alliance in his private conversations with Carter. And they made no secret of the fact they would have preferred him to tone down his anti-Soviet rhetoric.

The officials favor focusing the talks on other issues. "We've had one day of talks. I wouldn't say there's anything we ought to pick out and

Iran OKs Khomeini's flight home

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The Iranian government today approved permission for Air France to fly Ayatullah Ruhollah Khomeini back to Iran, ending his nearly 15 years of exile. Indications were he would leave Thursday.

The Iranian government first said the Moslem leader would leave for Iran early Wednesday, but a Khomeini spokesman in Paris said the trip would be delayed.

In Tehran, a committee making plans to welcome him back proposed he delay his return until Thursday so arrangements for a larger welcome could be made. Committee spokesman Ali Reza Nourbakhsh said Khomeini had accepted the proposal.

The return of the spiritual head of the Iranian promises to present a new and stronger challenge to the shah appointed goverment of Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar.

A government statement said the decision to permit the Moslem leader's return was made at a long Cabinet meeting.

Earlier today the U.S. Embassy ordered the evacuation from Iran of all dependents of U.S. government employees and again urged all non-essential American citizens to get out of the country following attacks on three Americans.

The embassy ordered all U.S. government dependents "to depart Iran temporarily at the earliest feasible date." It added that all dependents of American citizens should depart the country temporarily along with non-essential Americans employed here.

This is the first time the U.S. government has actually ordered anyone out of Iran. Previous announcements have encouraged people without important business to leave.

There are fewer than 10,000 Americans left in Iran, down from a peak of 45,000 when the unrest here started a year ago. Those remaining include about 900 members of a military advisory group, government employees and employees in the petroleum and aircraft industries.

Three U.S. military planes arrived here today to evacuate another 202 Americans, mostly civilians.

The order was issued after a shooting attack on an American Air Force major Sunday night in Tehran and the beating of U.S. Consul David C. McGaffey and an American employee of Bell Helicopter International in the central Iranian city of Isfahan on Monday afternoon.

U.S. Consulate sources in Isfahan said the trouble there began about 4 p.m. Monday with an altercation between the Bell Helicopter employee and an Iranian taxi driver near the city's Khoroush Hotel. The sources said a shot was fired during the dispute and the taxi driver had been hospitalized with a facial wound.

Details on the attack on McGaffey were not immediately available.

Iran's airports were supposed to be open today, but only one commercial

Pope tells peasants church supports 'proper' property expropriation

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II told 250,000 impoverished peasants in southern Mexico that the Roman Catholic Church defends the right to private property, but it is not opposed to expropriation "if it is done in the proper manner."

Scolding "powerful classes who sometimes tend unproductive lands that hide the bread that so many families lack," the pope on Monday told an emotional throng of Indians at a village in mountainous Oaxaca state.

It is not just, it is not human, it is not Christian that certain situations that are clearly unjust should continue. There must be action soon and profound ... urgent reforms.

"The measures to be taken should be adequate. The church defends the legitimate right to private property, but it teaches with no less clarity that hovering over private property is a social mortgage. God-given wealth must serve the general good, and if the common good demands it, there can be no fear of expropriation if it is done in the proper manner."

The Indians, who traveled as much as 24 hours from as far away as Guatemala to see the first pope to visit Mexico, cheered and applauded repeatedly as the brief speech was translated into the Zapotec dialect. The pope spoke in Spanish.

He listed seven rights of the peasant to the same respect that any other class is entitled to, to full recognition of his dignity, not to be deprived by tactics that often take away the little he has, to the removal of barriers to participation in his own development, to freedom from exploitation, to effective assistance which is neither a handout nor the bread crumbs of justice, and to access to the development he is entitled to.

"Thank you, peasants, for your valuable contribution to social welfare," he said. "Humanity owes you a great deal. You can feel proud of your contribution to the common good."

But the pope told them they must organize to achieve their rights and better their condition.

"One evil that is considerably extensive is the tendency to individualism on the part of farm workers while action that is better coordinated and has solidarity could serve not a little good," he said. "Think about that, beloved children."

Today, the fourth day of the pope's visit to Mexico to open the third decennial conference of Roman Catholic bishops in Latin America, he flies to Guadalajara. He returns to Mexico City tonight and leaves for Rome Wednesday.

Judge grants extra time to amend bond petition

ODESSA — Ector County residents Monday were given 15 days to amend the pleadings in their contest of the $21.6 million Ector County Independent School District bond election held December 1978.

Judge R.L. McKim of the 161st District Court presided Monday over a six-hour hearing during which he finally granted the additional time to allow the contestors to be more specific in two areas of their pleadings.

The school district then will have 15 days to prepare its response to the amended pleadings.

One of the areas dealt with school district employees who allegedly voted absentee but who were in the county on the day of the election. The second area concerned alleged discrepancies between the number of votes reported and the number of voters signed in as having voted.

McKim pointed out that it was not likely the act of voting absentee and then not being absent would invalidate the vote, even though it could put a voter in jeopardy of prosecution for a Class A misdemeanor.

McKim also said a discrepancy between signed in voters and number of ballots cast would have to be significant, and not merely accidental variance due to clerical errors, to constitute grounds for contest.

Contestors served three petitions on the ECISD Board of Trustees and school administration officials earlier this month. The petitions were considered in Monday's combined hearing along with the school district's response and plea of abatement.

The hearing was complicated by the contestors not having retained legal counsel, with each person representing himself in court. Most of the contentions came from several members of the group seated at the counsel's table. Included in that group were Robert Frias, Mrs. Lou Triplett, Billie Jean Stewart, Evelyn Hershey, Marjorie Lindsey, Vergie Martin and Van Canfield.

McKim repeatedly told the contestors that while they had a right to represent themselves in court, only

Pecan trees to be sold through the weekend

Midlanders will get a second chance to beautify West Texas, save money and support the Chamber of Commerce Visual Improvement Committee this weekend.

The pecan tree sale sponsored by the Chamber's VIP Committee and The Reporter-Telegram has been extended to this weekend.

Some 3,000 trees were sold last Saturday and Sunday, Gordon Knox, committee chairman, said.

"We figured that was about three a minute for the hours we were open," he noted.

The hours for the sale have been expanded this weekend. Trees will be for sale on the parking lot at Illinois Avenue and Baird Street, across from The Reporter-Telegram building from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Each 8- to 10-foot tree is $9.75, Knox said.

Buyers may choose from the Stuart or Wichita varieties, the types recommended for Midland's soil.

Although the Lee High School Bandoliers, who will be conducting the sale, can accept checks, no credit cards may be used to purchase the trees, Knox said.

This is the second year for the community enhancement project, Knox noted. Last year the sale extended into Monday and Tuesday after the first weekend, but that was impossible this year, he said, so a second weekend of tree-selling was scheduled.

Each tree is grafted onto 4-year-old root systems, he noted, which give the trees a good chance for survival.

The trees must be planted during cold weather and watered once a week for several years, Knox said.

Bare roots must be kept in a warm place until planted, he warned, and the trees should be planted as soon as possible after purchase.

Patience is the key word in growing the pecan trees.

"People give up too fast," said Knox, noting care should be continued even if the tree does not leaf out the first year. Given proper care, it should show progress the next year, he said.

Governor may welcome Teng to state

By SUSAN STOLER

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says he is considering giving Chinese Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping a personal welcome to Texas when the foreign official arrives Friday in Houston.

"We're talking about that right now," Clements said Monday. "The State Department is asking if I would go to Houston and welcome him (Teng) that morning."

The governor told reporters he has no sympathy with planned protests of Teng's visit.

"He is our guest in Texas and our hospitality will be as usual," Clements said. "We will turn out in a normal show of Texas hospitality."

Some 1,500 attended a Sunday rally in Houston to support Taiwan and protest United States recognition of China. Rally speakers urged the crowd to demonstrate against Teng Friday and Saturday.

"Whether we agree with him politically, philosophically or whether we like chop suey or not is beside the point," the governor said.

Teng probably is interested in Texas-based petroleum technology, Clements said.

"It's in our interest, and certainly in China's interest, to develop petroleum reserves over there," said Clements, who established SEDCO, an international oil drilling corporation.

Additional oil supplies would create favorable market conditions and lower prices for gasoline and other petroleum products, he explained. Texas could benefit from recently discovered Chinese oil because of the state's concentration of petroleum technology, he added.

The governor talked about Teng's visit after signing documents recognizing the Future Farmers of America, industrial arts and proclaiming March 5-9 Texas Public School Week.

comment on," Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said Monday night.

Carter, in his toast to Teng, indicated the administration is sticking to its policy of even-handedness in dealing with Moscow and Peking.

He did not use the word "hegemony." Instead, his speech focused on the American "long-term commitment to a world of diverse and independent nations," the administration's description of its policy.

The Soviets have reacted warily to the U.S.-China normalization. State Department officials have said they think that wariness might have contributed to the delay in a SALT II treaty.

Some officials think the Soviet-endorsed invasion of Cambodia, China's ally, by Vietnam was meant to show that the Soviets would not be intimidated by the ties between the United States and China.

Connally says it's 'last bid'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former Texas governor John B. Connally says the upcoming presidential election will be his last shot at becoming the nation's chief executive.

Connally, a candidate for the Republican nomination also says that another one-time Democrat, Ronald Reagan, is the man to beat.

He told a news conference here Monday that he is is bidding for top spot and won't accept anything less.

"I don't want to be vice president," he said. "I'll either be successful this year or this will be my last hurrah."

Both Reagan and Connally switched to the Republican Party after a period as Democrats.

Connally said he won't show up in all of the state presidential primaries.

A campaign for nomination as president can cost $14 million, he said, "and that, frankly, is not enough to engage in 35 primaries. I will have to be selective ultimately as to which ones I will enter."

In his speech to the 42nd annual conference of the Potato Chip-Snack Food Association, Connally criticized Carter for giving in to Red China's demand that the United States end its recognition of Taiwan.

an attorney could represent another person in court.

The contestors repeatedly presented motions to the court, most of them asking for a continuance. These attempts were based on the contestors' need to prepare an answer to the school district's plea of abatement.

Ector school district attorneys asked that the case be dismissed on the basis of insufficient grounds having been stated by the the contestors under the law to contest an election.

Judge McKim Monday ruled most of the grounds in the petitions to be insufficient. He told the contestors, "Right or wrong, that's the way I've ruled and that's it. If I'm wrong, the appellate court can correct me."

Teng arrival protested

WASHINGTON (AP) — While one band of people stood in silent protest to Richard Nixon's one-night return to the White House, 500 Maoist demonstrators vented their rage at events in China by pelting police with fishhooks.

For a few minutes Monday night, the scene outside the White House was reminiscent of those that occurred often when Nixon was the chief occupant there.

"But the viciousness was worse than anything we ever had back then," said a spokesman for the National Park Police.

In a five minute street clash, police and hospital spokesmen said 14 policemen and 42 demonstrators were injured and 69 demonstrators were arrested.

Mounted policeman Julius Gottlieb was hospitalized when his horse, struck by thrown fishhooks, fell to the ground.

The target of the demonstrators' wrath was Teng Hsiao-ping, vice premier of the People's Republic of China who was inside, wearing a black Mao suit.

The demonstrators' complaint was that, in doing business with the West, Teng has betrayed the revolution led by Mao Tse-tung.

As evening fell, the protesters marched through downtown Washington chanting, "Mao Tse-tung did not fail! The revolution will prevail!"

Inside the White House, as a guest, was Richard Nixon, whose meeting with Mao paved the way for reopening contact between China and the United States.

It was the former president's first return to the White House he left in humiliation five years ago.

And his presence drew a band of 20 to 30 protesters, on a corner with a banner: "Nixon — You Belong in Prison, Not the White House."

The Maoists were members of "The Committee for a Fitting Welcome." The committee had spent most the day listening to denunciations of Teng at a rally at All Soul's Church.

Bob Avakian, 34, one of their leaders, addressed them: "We're going to strike a blow today, a blow that will be heard around the world."

When they left the church, they carried little sheets of paper printed with chants for the occasion.

One went like this: "Teng Hsiao-ping comes begging on his knees; the days are numbered for traitors like these."

Some wore black berets. Some wore construction hardhats. Most were young. The police said under their coats they carried bags containing bottles, rocks, nails and fishhooks.

The police stood waiting, shoulder to shoulder.

Suddenly the marchers surged toward the White House.

The police countercharged.

The battle lasted five minutes. Most of the demonstrators raced away, through Lafayette Park.

Earlier in the day, two protesters — standing 10 feet from the podium — interrupted President Carter's welcoming speech. A woman shouted "Teng Hsiao-ping, you are a murderer." Agents dragged her away. Then a man shouted that Teng was a traitor. He was hauled off too.

The two, Sonia J. Ransom, 26, of Seattle, and Keith Kojimoto, 28, of New York City, had obtained reporters' credentials. They were released on $100 bail each after pleading innocent to disorderly conduct charges. A hearing was set for Feb. 16.

Cover-up of nuclear study charged by civilian on research panel

BOSTON (AP) — Amid charges of a government cover-up, medical detectives hope to determine if hundreds of men died because they worked on the nation's first atomic submarines — and if more are dying because they now do the same work.

Health experts from the Center for Disease Control's National Institute of Occupational Health and Safety were to meet today with civilian scientists assigned by Congress to oversee a study of alleged radiation-induced cancer deaths at Portsmouth Naval Shipyard.

It is the first time the civilians have been consulted since the government study began a year ago, and their lack of involvement has generated suspicion about the adequacy of the investigation.

Dr. Irwin Bross, a bio-statistician from Buffalo, has charged the government was trying to cover up the radiation study.

"Everything the government has done since it started the investigation has been designed to prevent an honest study of the radiation health risks," he told The Associated Press Monday.

Bross termed "ludicrous" statements made by Center for Disease Control director Dr. William Foege and National Institute officials that it may be impossible to link the Portsmouth deaths to radiation exposure because of the presence of many cancer-causing agents.

White House and congressional pressure prompted the study when Dr. Thomas Najarian, a Boston blood specialist, detected a high level of cancer deaths among workers at the shipyard in Kittery, Maine.

Najarian, working with reporters from The Boston Globe, explored the death certificates of hundreds of shipyard workers and concluded nuclear workers contracted leukemia at a rate four-to-six times higher than non-nuclear workers.

The medical experts agree that if a health hazard exists at Portsmouth it may also affect an estimated 250,000 workers who have passed through seven other nuclear shipyards across the nation.

Philip Bierbaum, National Institute manager for the study, said he hopes today's meeting "will clear the air and give everyone a better understanding of how difficult this investigation is."

Frost provides 'evidence' of overnight moisture in area

Frosted windshields early today offered the only visible evidence of any moisture overnight, according to the weatherman.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport said today's clear skies should become partly cloudy Wednesday. Temperatures should get colder tonight, but warmer weather is expected on Wednesday.

The low tonight should be in the low 20s. The high Wednesday should be in the middle 50s, the weatherman said.

Monday's high was 50 degrees. The overnight low was 24 degrees. The record high for Monday is 78 degrees set in 1967. The record low for today is two degrees set in 1948.

Sunset today will be at 6:21 p.m. Sunrise Wednesday will be at 7:43 a.m.

Only a slight trace of rain fell on Midland in the last 24 hours. Total rainfall for the year and month to date is .16 inch.

Clear skies and cold temperatures were reported by area weather watchers early today. Most area towns also had frost on windshields, and several reported fog during the night.

Travelers advisories were in effect today for the Panhandle and extreme North Texas because of icy streets and highways. Some fog hampered traffic in South Central Texas.

Government dependents ordered to evacuate Iran plane was reported to have landed. Troops turned outgoing passenger-shaway, and Ayatullah Ruhollah Khomeini continued to delay his return from exile.

Mobs of Khomeini's supporters hit the streets of Tehran again, attacking a police officer, setting fire to a brewery and clashing with security forces at least twice. Peaceful demonstrations were reported in the towns of Sanjan and Rezayieh.

Military authorities announced that the airports would reopen today after being closed for six days to delay Khomeini's return. Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar told reporters Monday the Tehran airport would be open in a few hours.

In Paris, a spokesman for Khomeini said the 78-year-old Shiite Moslem leader would not leave for Iran Tuesday night because Air France, which will supply him a charter flight, wanted to check the security arrangements at the Tehran Airport for at least 24 hours after its reopening.

Khomeini, leader of the year-long campaign to oust Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and make Iran an Islamic republic, had planned to return last Friday after 14 years in exile. But Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar's government closed the airports, touching off street battles between the patriarch's supporters in Tehran and the army and police in which at least 63 were reported killed and hundreds were wounded.

Bakhtiar, after Khomeini rebuffed his attempt to go to Paris and negotiate personally with him, said the ayatullah could come home as soon as his safety could be ensured. Khomeini replied: "We don't ask any security from Bakhtiar or anyone. God is the best protector of my safety."

Millions of Khomeini's followers are expected to throng Tehran for his return and to greet his arrival with the wildest enthusiasm. Local religious leaders and their aides are certain to make every effort to prevent the mobs turning violent, but there is always the possibility of an attack by militant partisans of the shah or of a spontaneous incident touching off a battle between the crowd and the security forces.

Khomeini is returning to give new impetus to the fight to replace Bakhtiar and his cabinet by a provisional government named by him which would then end the monarchy and set up a republic dedicated to the tenets of Islam.

Although he has not explained how he plans to accomplish this, one of his chief local aides said the nationwide strikes called by Khomeini, which are paralyzing the economy, would continue until the government quit.

Supporters of Khomeini's campaign against corruptive Western influences and relaxation of Islamic strictures went on a rampage in poor district of south Tehran Monday.

Ardmore families may return to homes after derailment

ARDMORE, Okla. (AP) — About 75 families evacuated from their homes following a train derailment here Monday were expected to be allowed to return early today.

National Guardsmen were called out late Monday afternoon to seal off a 2,000-foot circle around the derailment. The area was evacuated after two railroad tank cars carrying vinyl chloride gas derailed and one began leaking slightly.

Col. Estle Hallmark said about 80 guardsmen from the 245th Transportation Battalion manned roadblocks and provided security in the area.

City Manager David Pence said the gas is very flammable, but sub-freezing temperatures were helping prevent an explosion.

He said a Santa Fe Railway Co. derailment crew arrived and stopped the leakage late Monday afternoon. There still would be some danger of an explosion, Pence said, when the crews set the cars upright. A total of six cars derailed, he said.

Robby Robinson, a state Civil Defense spokesman, said the railroad workmen would attempt to set the four cars that don't contain hazardous materials up first. He said they hoped to have the area cleared by 7 a.m. today.

State Health Department officials said exposure to vinyl chloride can cause severe burning of the eyes and can cause the skin to peel.

There weren't any injuries reported after the derailment in this city of about 21,000 persons.

The cause of the accident wasn't immediately determined.

All off-duty police and firefighters were called out to aid in the evacuation. Police drove through the residential neighborhood around the derailment using bullhorns to tell residents to leave their homes.

"A few have refused to leave," Pence said, "but most of them were very cooperative."

Among the buildings evacuated were two elementary schools and a trailer park.

About 40 evacuees who didn't go to stay with friends or relatives were being cared for in a church.

Destiny of America

Brig. Gen. Robinson Risner (USAF Ret.), the distinguished Air Force pilot who spent seven years as a prisoner of war of the North Vietnamese, today is apprehensive about the destiny of the United States of America.

"I had never been apprehensive about the destiny of America before, not even while in a prisoner of war camp, but I am now," the general said in speaking appearances here recently.

And the reason for his concern is because the United States today, he said, is a "second-rate" military power compared with Russia.

This should concern every citizen of the United States.

Gen. Risner, who now resides at Austin, addressed the annual Distinguished Service Award Banquet of Midland Jaycees and also a meeting of the Midland Downtown Rotary Club a few days ago, and his forceful message, which came from the heart, held the rapt attention of both audiences.

The general has a most significant story to tell — and he tells it well. Would that every American could hear his message. And would that the President of the United States, the Congress, the Defense Department and all other agencies and individuals involved would heed his warning. It isn't something which one particularly likes to hear, but it is a message with real meaning, based on personal knowledge and experience.

Risner told his listeners that the U.S.S.R. out numbers the United States in men in arms 2 to 1, has 45,000 tanks to America's 9,000, has more sophisticated intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs) than the U.S., more submarines capable of firing missiles, and has the laser weapon. He said Russia's ICBMs have the accuracy to destroy U.S. missile sites.

He explained further that unlike the U.S., Russia has dispersed its heavy industry to the countryside, to the mountains and to underground.

He said that back in the 1960s, the U.S. had 2,600 more tactical aircraft than Russia. Today, the Soviet Union has 1,000 more than this country.

If this isn't enough to make anyone apprehensive about the destiny of America, we don't know what is.

Risner said the United States simply must be strong enough militarily to stand between the "militant Communists" and the rest of the world. He believes further that anyone who trusts the Communists is "out of his ever-loving mind and has not read history books."

The general, an ace pilot in the Korean War, was shot down twice in the Vietnam War and was captured after he was shot out of the skies for the second time in September 1965 in the F-100 jet fighter he was piloting. During his seven years as a POW he was denied even the most basics of freedom.

And turning to freedom, Risner said, "Maybe I can't love freedom more than you. Maybe I can't love my country more than you. But maybe I'm more conscious of that freedom than you are."

He stressed the fact that freedom under capitalism in a democratic society "is the right to go anywhere when you want to go. It's the opportunity to be what you want to be."

Risner went on to say that "In order to talk about national security, you've got to talk about something worth protecting." He then cited some of this nation's blessings worth protecting, pointing out that people in the U.S. live "800 percent better" than the average man in the world.

"Complain if you will," Risner said. "Gripe if you want to. Talk all about the bad you want to in America, but we still have it better than anyone else."

He also called for a return to the traditional values which have made America great .... "or else we're going to go down the tubes."

Thank goodness for Gen. Robinson Risner who was sufficiently strong in discipline, determination and faith in the Almighty to survive the horrors of POW camps and who now is willing to preach the gospel of Americanism at every opportunity. He is a great Amerian.

ASIA MEMO:

Fast-changing face of 'never-changing' East

By EDWARD NEILAN
Copley News Service

Edward Neilan

WASHINGTON — In Asia, everything changes and nothing changes.

That may sound like an analect of Confucius misquoted by Charlie Chan. But it is a statement to ponder when viewing the new political map of Asia.

The United States has hauled down its flag in Taiwan and hoisted it in Peking. A reasonable, pragmatic, long-term move though it is, there is still some hurt about the way we have treated our friends and allies in the Republic of China.

It is the same feeling that many Americans had when the United States propped up, encouraged and then deserted the South Vietnamese.

Now, in an interesting perspective on the "Who lost Vietnam?" question, it could be said that China lost Vietnam.

The spectacle of Peking evacuating its clients from Phnom Penh, Cambodia, while the Soviet-backed Vietnamese march through the country underscores a classic Chinese mistake.

China's leaders saw the United States as the main enemy in Vietnam and backed the North Vietnamese with arms, ammunition and other supplies. Soviet aircraft were allowed to fly over China into Hanoi with equipment and advisers.

With the Americans gone, the Vietnamese have turned to the Soviets to balance off fears of China and to allow them to gain territory in Cambodia which Vietnamese for centuries have coveted. The Soviet Union is seeing its own interests served in Southeast Asia. And the move by Vietnam could be interpreted as a strong Soviet response to the U.S.-People's Republic of China normalization of relations Jan. 1. The member nations of ASEAN — Malaysia, Thailand, Singapore, the Philippines, Indonesia — are looking on in wonderment. Individually and collectively they would like to see more U.S. presence so they will avoid being trampled in the skirmishing between the dragon and the bear in Southeast Asia. The first positive response by the United States recently came in the virtually uncovered (by the U.S. press) signing of a new military bases agreement between the United States and the Philippines. Once upon a time, not so long ago, Peking radio demanded the withdrawal of U.S. bases from the Philippines. Now Peking is the most ardent champion of continued American force presence to counter the Soviets.

If the Jan. 1 normalization marked anything, it marked the end of 25 years of mutual (underscore mutual) misunderstanding by China and the United States.

Will the Soviet Union make Vietnam into a client state as it has Cuba? In Jakarta recently, Indonesian Vice President Adam Malik told me and other reporters that in his talks with North Vietnamese leaders they said no. Their idea is to make use of the Soviets to counter China, and when Vietnam becomes strong enough, Hanoi will tell the Russians to go home. It has happened before, in Egypt and China.

What about Korea? Is American policy designed so that there will be a flag-lowering ceremony in Seoul someday to match the ones in Saigon and Taipei?

The argument may be joined in earnest soon. An American table tennis delegation and some American newsmen will be visiting the North Korean capital of Pyongyang in April. The North Koreans were urged into this overture by the Chinese, who used pingpong to get relations unsnarled with the United States. The next goal is said to be visits by U.S. congressmen.

Asia is changing in the sense that modernization is taking place all over its vast landscape. Asia's unchanging face, on the other hand, includes those characteristics of resilience, traditionalism, pursuit of national interests which have long been used to describe the continent.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

U.S.S.R. may get Mexico's gas

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — President Carter may have blown an opportunity to tap Mexico's fabulous new oil fields for the petroleum that the United States will need in the 1980s. This would reduce U.S. dependence on the vulnerable, faraway oil wells of the Middle East.

The Mexicans were willing to boost their oil exports to the United States up to 4 million barrels a day by 1985. But they also need a market for the natural gas that will be unleashed with the oil. The wells in southeast Mexico, for example, are 36 percent natural gas, 64 percent oil.

Mexican officials reached an agreement with a U.S. consortium to pipe 2 billion cubic feet of surplus Mexican gas across the border daily in the near future. Otherwise, most of the gas will have to be burned off.

But Energy Secretary James Schlesinger squelched the deal because the Mexican gas is more expensive than Canadian natural gas. The difference would be a small price to pay, however, to assure the United States a secure future source of oil.

The deal would also improve living standards in Mexico, where 50 percent of the working people are either unemployed or underemployed. This has sent them surging across the U.S. border by the millions in search of a better life. It might be cheaper for the United States in the long run to help them find a better life in their own country.

President Carter appears to be oblivious to the affront he has caused by rejecting the natural gas deal. He will fly to Mexico on Feb. 14 for a state visit with President Lopez Portillo. From all available signs, Carter expects to turn on his famous smile and charm an agreement out of the Mexican leader for future oil.

But Carter may have to offer something more substantial than Southern molasses. Portillo recently confided to friends how he intends to handle Carter.

The Mexican president recalled the story of Jose the house painter. Jose stood on a ladder painting the ceiling when a friend called to him. "Hold on to your paint brush, Jose," admonished the friend. Jose asked why. "Because," said the friend, "I am going to take away the ladder."

Portillo promised quietly that he intends to pull Carter's ladder out from under him. The Mexican leader said he had already made a secret deal with the Soviets to ship $1 billion worth of oil to Cuba over the years. This will save the Soviets the cost of transporting it all the way from Russia.

Portillo complained that Carter had given Mexico a low priority until the new oil fields were discovered. Now the Central Intelligence Agency, he said, is busily assessing the oil find. "I know the CIA man Carter has in my office," boasted Portillo, smiling. "The reason I don't shoot him is that he is useful."

'POOR' INSURANCE: Every week for the past 29 years, insurance agents from five different companies have gathered at the doorstep of a 79-year-old Tennessee woman we'll call Mrs. Smith to collect premiums on 30 life insurance policies.

The total face value of the insurance policies Mrs. Smith has taken out over the years on herself and members of her family — including a 5-year-old granddaughter — is only $13,000. Yet the total amount of premiums she pays is staggering by her standards: $98.85 a month, more than half her $177 monthly income.

Mrs. Smith has paid out more than $8,000 in premiums so far. At her current rate she will have paid more in premiums by 1983 than the total face value of her policies. But if she were to cash in the policies before the insured dies, she would find that the accumulated cash value of the 30 policies is only $1,200.

Clearly, Mrs. Smith would have been better off putting her money in a bank — or even stashing it with no interest in the sugar bowl or under the mattress.

This situation is repeated all over the country, but mainly in the South and always among poor families. In Arkansas, a woman paid out more then $100 a month on over 50 small policies on herself and her son; in Texas, a couple living on Social Security benefits paid $9.85 a week on 22 policies; in Washington, D.C., a middle-aged cleaning woman spends 10 percent of her meager income on 15 life insurance policies for various family members.

This kind of "industrial insurance" — so called because it originated in England during the Industrial Revolution — is a $3 billion-a-year racket preying on those at or near the poverty level. The face amounts of the policies are usually $1,000 or less.

Preliminary evidence compiled by the Federal Trade Commission has led analysts to conclude that "overselling low-income households multiple, inappropriate policies appears to be a common practice which profits agents at the policyholders' expense."

One deception frequently practiced is failure to inform the buyer that the face value of a policy is not in effect on the day of issue. For example, after two years — and nearly $200 in premiums — a $500 face-value policy would pay only $250 in the event of death. Even this modest accumulation may be lost if the policy is allowed to lapse in the first few years.

The industry claims its policies are expensive because of the high cost of weekly door-to-door collection service, which is obvious, and because the lack of physical examination requirements means a higher "mortality table" must be used to calculate rates.

INSIDE REPORT:

Carter holds labor trump, and White House knows it

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Evans

Novak

WASHINGTON — The difference between labor leader Jerry Wurf haranguing his own union members, and facing President Carter just two days later suggests reports of an anti-Carter revolt on labor's left are greatly exaggerated.

Wurf, president of the nation's largest public employees' union (AFSCME), spared no rhetoric Jan. 10 in flogging the same president he had supported early on the road to the White House. At a nationwide meeting of AFSCME officials, Wurf contended the Carter budget "will destroy our jobs" without affecting inflation. He, therefore, promised to express "outrage" at the White House two days later, adding he might "get into a confrontation" with the president.

But the Jan. 12 session between Carter and labor leaders was conciliation, not confrontation. Wurf did criticize the restrictive budget policy but in scarcely the robust language used to his union members, and he omitted his complaint that Carter's budget cuts are ineffective against inflation.

This fits the pattern of Carter's relations with liberal unions, such as Wurf's. Comprising the heart of Carter's labor support, they are distressed by his turn to fiscal conservatism and publicly pressure him to change course. But in the expected absence of a presidential challenge from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, they have no place to go. That is Carter's labor trump, and the White House knows it.

The dilemma is particularly acute for dynamic and hot-tempered Jerry Wurf. Although he has close ties to the White House, his members as public employees are hit first by tightened public pursestrings. What's more, Wurf faces a possible challenge for the AFSCME presidency in 1980 from the equally dynamic and hot-tempered Victor Gotbaum, the union's New York leader.

Accordingly, when Wurf read the riot act on Carter to AFSCME officials here Jan. 10, an outsider would have prudently concluded a final break with the president. Asserting that "unions must start facing the truth," Wurf declared: "One of those truths is...what the president is doing to that budget that will destroy our jobs and destroy our ability to get raises and will have no effect upon inflation. The president knows it as well as we do."

Wurf added that the president knows "this terrible infliction of unreasonableness" upon "the have-nots and the public employee" will not impede inflation; "he is playing a public relations game, a political game, and you are the patsies.

"We can get so enthusiastic about electing a public official...that deep in our gut we're really not disappointed when he screws us after the election is over," he continued. "This means we need an arm's length relationship with the boss that has sometimes been missing."

Therefore, Wurf promised: "I intend to tell the president on Friday that we think what is happening is an outrage." While declaring "I have no desire" for a confrontation with Carter, Wurf added that "I also intend to let him know in the clearest possible tones that if confrontation is necessary, we are quite prepared for it." This pledge generated applause.

That Friday, however, Carter's confrontation was with Bella Abzug, not with Jerry Wurf. Once in the Oval Office, Wurf cooled his rhetoric. There was no talk of "outrage" or "confrontation." While asserting his union's vulnerability to cut budget cuts, he politely asked for better communications and greater sensitivity.

The contrast confirmed feelings within the labor movement that Wurf is a Carter man at heart, a view shared by the president's aides. But Wurf is not alone. Except for Carter-hating William Winpisinger of the machinist's union, there is a consensus among labor's liberals that they are stuck with Carter, for better or worse.

This explains delight at the White House over even more conservative fiscal stands by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., Carter's most likely Democratic challenger. If Wurf's speech to AFSCME colleagues temporarily assigned Jimmy Carter to purgatory, it permanently sentenced Jerry Brown to the lowest reaches of hell. Wurf called Brown a "prostitute," contended he "would take a position of Mary Queen of Scots" to be elected president and called him "a man without commitment to anything."

Unless and until Kennedy surprises everybody by running for president, Carter's political operatives can turn the other cheek to public sniping from the president's labor friends. With Brown as the only alternative, they are confident of nothing more strident than Wurf's muted criticism in the Oval Office on Jan. 12.

Cambodian victory claims appear exaggerated

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The Cambodian troops of ousted Premier Pol Pot claimed more battlefield victories today. Analysts said the troops had scored some successes but that the claims appeared exaggerated.

The Pol Pot forces said they killed 14,000 Vietnamese soldiers, knocked out 330 tanks and shot down 12 aircraft between Dec. 25, when Hanoi launched the invasion, and Jan. 25.

The Voice of the Democratic Kampuchea also persisted in its claim that Soviet and Cuban advisers were fighting with the Vietnamese and said more than 300 had been killed in the six-week-old war.

The broadcast said the Pol Pot troops were narrowing their encirclement of Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, from the south, west and northwest and were being aided by people from the countryside who killed the Vietnamese with knives, axes and other crude weapons.

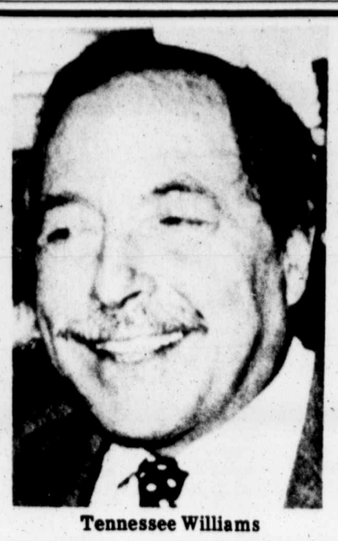

The broadcast described fighting over the last few days at Kompong Cham and Kompong Thom in eastern Cambodia, Kompong Speu on the highway leading from Phnom Penh to the sea and around the old temples of Angkor in northwestern Cambodia.

The Pol Pot forces said earlier that they had retaken Angkor — the symbol of Cambodia — and claimed that last Thursday the Vietnamese had emerged from the town of Siem Reap to recapture the nearby temples but were ambushed and repulsed.

A reliable analyst in Bangkok said Monday that there was evidence the Pol Pot claim about holding Angkor again might be true. The temples, some dating back to the 9th century, escaped damage during the 1970-75 war when they were held throughout by the Pol Pot guerrillas, and for a time, by their then Vietnamese Communist allies.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — It's Liv Ullmann's first Broadway musical and Richard Rodgers' 40th, but both the star and composer of "Mama" said they were jittery on the first day of rehearsals for the $1.2 million song-and-dance version of "I Remember Mama."

"I'm enormously nervous," Miss Ullmann said Monday. "But it's a good kind of nervousness. It's like opening day at school."

"Well, naturally I'm nervous. But then, you always are with every show," said the 76-year-old Rodgers, composer of such Broadway hits as "Oklahoma" and "South Pacific."

Miss Ullmann, 39, said she had been studying with a vocal coach but indicated she won't try to emphasize vocal technique. "I'll try to act it out," she said.

"Mama" is due to open at the Broadway Theater on May 3 after a Philadelphia tryout.

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Tennessee Williams says he and a friend were mugged by a group of young toughs who said they recognized the Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright.

Williams, author of "A Streetcar Named Desire" and "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," said he and author Dotson Rader were attacked as they walked down a street late Sunday. Williams said they were accosted by four or five men in their late teens or early 20s.

He told police one of the youths told him, "I know who you are."

Williams said he replied, "What of it. I'm not afraid. I'm not in the habit of retreat."

The 67-year-old Williams was shoved to the ground, while Rader was punched in the jaw. Neither was injured. The youths then fled.

Williams was here for the opening of a series of plays by the Tennessee Williams Repertory Company, a group formed to honor the part-time Key West resident.

NEW YORK (AP) — Feminist Betty Friedan says women who put down men do it for reasons of "insecurity and self-contempt."

"I'm suspicious of women who put down men with slogans like 'a woman needs a man like a fish needs a bicycle,'" Miss Friedan said in an interview published in the February issue of Family Circle magazine.

"I've noticed that they were really nothing unless they could attract the right successful men, I think they may hate men and feel the need to put them down with such foolish slogans because of their excessive dependence on them."

She added "a woman satisfied with most aspects of her life doesn't usually turn her back on men .. Most women need long-term commitment, someone to take care of and to be taken care of by, to share life with."

Police seeking driver of car that hit boy

An 8-year-old Midland boy was treated and released Monday night at Midland Memorial Hospital after he was struck by a vehicle whose driver initially stopped but did not remain at the site of the accident, said authorities.

Midland police officers today were looking for a suspect in connection with possible charges of failure to stop and render aid.

Tony L. Jones, the son of Donna Jones of the 600 block of Main Street, was said to have suffered only minor injuries, said a hospital spokesman.

Police said the accident was reported at 7:34 p.m. Monday, and was said to have occurred at the intersection of Main and Pennsylvania streets.

Authorities said they were told the boy was walking westbound when a northbound vehicle struck him. Officers said the victim apparently was crossing the street at the intersection.

Historian to speak

J. Evetts Haley of Canyon, rancher, author and noted historian, will be the speaker Wednesday noon at the meeting of the Downtown Lions Club in the Midland Hilton.

Haley was reared in Midland and spent his early life working on raches in the Midland area. He was personally acquainted with many of the early-day cattlemen of West Texas.

His valuable collection of historical books on the range country and its pioneers are housed in the Nita Stewart Haley Library and the J. Evetts Haley History Center, which Haley established here a few years ago.

In his Wednesday noon address, Haley is expected to review historical highlights of the West and to cite some of his early-day Midland experiences.

The program was arranged by Duke Jimerson, Lions program chairman.

Fire hits Midland home

A fire broke out late Monday afternoon in a west Midland one-story residence owned by Bobby Sample of the 4000 block of Roosevelt Street, said officials.

Midland City Fire Department spokesmen said no one connected with the house was hurt. The cost of damages had not been fully tallied this morning, said authorities.

However, fireman Tom Hogue received a cut finger while fighting the flames, said a spokesman. A total of four units responded to the fire.

Cause of the fire was under investigation today, officials said.

Thief gets away

A thief got away with $1,692.02 in cash taken from a Midland donut shop about 8:45 p.m Monday, said authorities.

Midland Police officers said Alex Tucker of Winchell's Donut Shop in the 700 block of North Big Spring Street told officers about the missing money.

Boy dies after attack

DALLAS (AP) — An 11-year-old boy, stabbed through the eye with a screwdriver two weeks ago, died in a Dallas hospital Monday just moments before his 8-year-old sister was rushed back to surgery.

Police investigators said they learned Clifford Cecil Gradi died as doctors at Baylor Medical Center began emergency surgery on his sister Aimee Gene Gray.

A spokesman at the Dallas hospital would not comment on the surgery early today, but said the girl was still listed in critical condition.

The children's mother, Kathleen Gradi, 32, is being held under $200,000 bond after being charged last week with attempted murder.

Comic strip judgment not peanuts

MIAMI (AP) — Good grief! The folks who give us Charlie Brown, Snoopy and Lucy went to federal court and they came away with a lot more than peanuts.

Three Florida firms accused of infringing on United Features Syndicate rights covering the "Peanuts" comic strip were ordered Monday in federal court to pay default judgments totaling $40,500.

The judgment was part of what the syndicate's lawyers said was copyright-protection battle involving more than 250 cases in courts across the nation.

U.S. District Judge James Lawrence King ordered Lesal Group Inc. and Leslie G. Beck of Miami to pay United Features $24,000; Dale Haiback of TSS Sports of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to pay $12,500; and Ann Rappaport, operator of a shop in Sunny Isles, north of Miami Beach, to pay $6,000. They were told to pay lawyers' fees as well.

All were accused of violating United's copyrights by selling likenesses of the Peanuts gang without authorization.

To prove their point, United Features lawyers showed up in court with iron-on decals of Lucy, Charlie, and their philosopher-beagle, Snoopy, in his famous Red Baron flying garb.

Odessa police make case

ODESSA — A Midland man was arrested here shortly after 9 p.m. Monday for alleged aggravated robbery, said a spokesman for the Odessa Police Department today.

The man was arrested after a vehicle was stopped in the 700 block of Dixie Boulevard, according to officers.

Police said the Midlander was being held in connection with the hold-up of a 7-Eleven Store, located at the intersection of University and Jackson streets, about 9 p.m. Monday. A man reportedly brandished a pistol and demanded the money during the incident, said officers.

Patrolman Richard E. Hirst stopped the vehicle and later was assisted by other officers, said authorities.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Lacks stamina

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am 23 years old and recently had my first grand mal seizure. My physician prescribed dilantin and the seizures are now well controlled. However, whereas I used to be able to run up to 15 miles a day, three times a week, now I have trouble completing five miles. Can the medication be to blame for my lack of stamina?—Steve

Dear Steve: There is no evidence that anticonvulsant medication, appropriately prescribed, interferes with athletic performance. This is not just theory, but a conclusion based on observation of many athletes—including professionals— who performed while on such medication.

Some people who learn they have epilepsy become worried and depressed, and this might adversely affect a patient's athletic ability. But all indications are that the medication is completely innocuous in this regard.

Dear Dr. Solomon: A neighbor of mine just had a heart attack, but the doctor told him he lived because he had good collateral circulation. What exactly is collateral circulation?—Mrs. D.R.

Dear Mrs. G.R.: Luckily the coronary artery system has a lifesaving method of growth and repair. When some of the coronary arteries become narrowed by gradual development of atherosclerosis so that they cannot carry enough blood to the heart muscle, nearby arteries get wider and even open up tiny new branches to deliver blood to the area of the muscle that needs it. This is called collateral circulation.

This collateral or substitute circulation often develops while the main coronary arteries are becoming narrowed. This explains why many of us who have narrowed arteries are not troubled with angina pectoris or with heart attacks. Once a heart attack occurs, the development of the collateral circulation may help the heart to mend itself.

When a clot suddenly shuts off the supply of blood to a part of the heart muscle; the central part of the area deprived of blood may die. The affected area must heal to form strong scar tissue. At the same time, a new blood supply to the area develops by means of the collateral circulation just described.

Treatment is aimed at giving the heart time to mend itself. Even though the patient feels well after the first week, he must continue to rest in bed or chair to give the heart time to heal. The time required for the patient to get back on his feet will depend on the extent of the heart injury, the rate of healing and whether or not complications develop. Although medicines are helpful, the patient's cooperation and understanding play a large part in his recovery.

Dear Dr. Solomon: If syphilis doesn't show up in Your blood for at least three weeks after sexual exposure, how often should a person get a blood test?—Cindy W.

Dear Cindy W.: Any woman who engages in free and easy sex behavior always runs the risk of infection. She should see a doctor or visit a local health department clinic after sexual exposure. Frequent examinations and blood tests offer protection against the late effects of syphilis.

Sherman minister under investigation

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — An investigation into the ministry of a United Pentecostal minister in Sherman will continue through the week, the state director of the denomination says.

The Rev. E.L. Holley of Lufkin, Texas, who oversees the operations of the state's United Pentecostal churches, went to Sherman last Friday after receiving a formal complaint, signed by two other preachers.

The complaint criticized the Rev. Charles E. Glass, 46, of Sherman's First United Pentecostal Church for "conduct unbecoming a minister."

Holley said he will give Glass a chance to answer allegations that he and his wife have put exaggerated emphasis on demons and evil spirits.

He said he talked over the weekend in Sherman to between 20 and 25 persons, all of whom expressed dismay and disgust over the activities of Glass and his wife, Mary Jo.

The charges could lead to Glass' ministerial credentials being lifted.

More than 150 persons have left the church in the past four years.

Glass' critics, many of them former members who still have relatives in the congregation, say the minister and his wife have steered the Sherman church into a fanaticism that has torn families apart, driven some families out of town and veered into emotional terrorism and physical harassment.

Sherman Police Chief Johnny Burleson said "about four" complaints of harassment were filed in 1977 by former members against present church members. Lately, the activity has resumed, he said.

The allegations against Glass — carried in Sunday's Dallas Times Herald, whose reporters interviewed church members — were:

Glass calls the accusations "bald-faced lies. Hate and love are but a hair apart. If what they are saying is true, they ought to hang me at sun-up. But if God be for us, who can prevail against us?"

He characterized the dispute as a small church spat involving ill will among members of four families in Sherman.

Program combines music, wit

By PATSY GORDON

The program was a combination of Jerome Kern, Richard Rodgers and Erma Bombeck and the outcome was an hour of superb entertainment.

But due to the heavy fog shrouding the Tall City, one of the expected performers Friday at Midland Country Club program, Chuck Hunnicutt of Houston, was forced to return to Houston because his plane was unable to land at Midland Regional Airport.

Margaretta Reeve Bolding of Houston and Elizabeth Ott of Kerrville gave a delightful performance, with Bolding reviewing Bombeck's books and Ott, who has appeared with Houston Grand Opera, the Texas Opera Theater and in Hill Country musicals, sang selections of Kern and Rodgers between Bolding's act.

Ott, who has a beautiful voice as well as a beautiful face, sang "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning," "Scarlet Ribbons," "Old Man River" and "You'll Never Walk Alone."

Bolding, a humorist, has performed in 80 cities.

Her performance at MCC had the audience believing she really was Erma Bombeck and that she actually did have a husband and children who were short on the virtue called understanding.

The two, in addition, to individual careers, have been doing musical reviews throughout Texas the past 13 years.

Hunnicutt is a pianist and organist-choirmaster with Palmer Memorial Episcopal Church, and he plays for Houston musical theaters and the Brownstone Restaurant. He has been accompanying Ott and Bolding the last four years.

Pam Bristol of Midland very ably filled in for Hunnicutt.

The event was the monthly luncheon of the Midland Country Club Ladies Association.

'Junk food' hearings under way

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The Department of Agriculture is trying again to restrict the sale of certain foods in the nation's schools, and this time the government is asking the public for help before, not after, drafting a proposed regulation.

The first of three scheduled hearings on the subject of so-called "junk food" are taking place today in Nashville, Tenn. Further hearings are set for Feb. 6 in Detroit and Feb. 13 in Seattle.

Last April, the USDA proposed banning the sale of candy, soda, frozen deserts and chewing gum in schools until after the final meal of the day. The proposal drew more than 2,100 comments.

Most of the comments were favorable, but, said Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman, they raised "significant issues which deserve additional public scrutiny." The department withdrew its proposal and announced it was starting all over again.

The hearings involve food sold in the 90 percent of America's schools which participate in the National School Lunch Program. In order to receive federal funds, the schools must offer so-called Type A meals, including minimum quantities of specific food components.

Schools may sell other items — officially known as "competitive foods." The revenue from the sale of these foods often is used for sports equipment, scholarships or extracurricular activities.

A number of those commenting on the original USDA plan expressed concern about the loss of money that would result from banning sales of some items. Candy manufacturers questioned the nutritional criteria used by the department in drafting its regulation.

In its initial proposal, the department zeroed in on four categories of food, which, said the USDA, are relatively high in sugar content, are usually considered snack foods and are generally identified as not making a positive composition to children's diets. In trying to draft a new rule, officials are considering other types of standards to determine which foods should be restricted.

Among the alternatives:

—A food composition standard based on the levels of ingredients such as sugar, salt, fat, etc. The USDA would set maximum acceptable component levels.

—A nutrient standard based on vitamin, mineral and protein content.

—A meal standard under which a school would be allowed to sell, on a competitive basis, any food served as part of a regular lunch.

All the hearings will start at 9 a.m. The Nashville meeting will be held at the University of Tennessee Center, Room 358, 10th and Charlotte Ave.

Woman's Club Mexican meal slated today

The Midland Woman's Club had a board meeting at the Hogan Park Clubhouse.

President Kathy Peters announced two new members voted to membership. They are Mrs. W. E. Fleetwood and Mrs. W.D. Gill.

It was announced by Marge Samples, Mrs. Jess Williamson and Jean Wilson that the Mexican "Ole Amigos," the annual Mexican Fiesta held by the Woman's Club, will feature foods of Mexico. It will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 6-8:30 p.m. Tuesday at the clubhouse. The public is invited.

Mrs. J. E. Sims is a new patron member.

A $200 scholarship was given toward the three students selected to receive scholarships.

The Junior Woman's Club announced that Genie Farrow, mezzo soprano, will appear at the Woman's Club Thursday for a luncheon program.

New directors for 1979-80 should be elected by March board meeting, according to Mrs. Peters.

Several memorials were announced as having been given to paving unit and to the scholarship fund.

Mrs. Robert (Sally) Patterson won the special prize for January.

Special heart cakes in three sizes for Valentine's Day now are being sold at the club. Orders can be placed by calling 684-6811.

The Book Review Unit of the Woman's Club will meet Feb. 5, the next board meeting will be Feb. 27, Play Day Unit will get together Feb. 26 and the next regular Woman's Club meeting is scheduled Feb. 15.

Guest Luncheons will be held Feb. 2, 9, 16, 23. The public is invited to these.

Babies sent to nursing homes, where they die

By MARC HUMBERT
Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — St. Margaret's House and Hospital for Babies is a bright, airy place. But most of its patients will never go home, never go to school, never play ball.

More than half of the infants who arrive at St. Margaret's, one of only a few such nursing homes in the United States, are terminally ill. Most live less than a month.

"Most of our discharges last year were because of death," said Diane Haines, director of nursing.

"About two-thirds of the babies have severe birth defects and genetic-related disorders," explained administrator Clinton Lewis. "Most of the others are here because of accidents, either at birth or when they are young."

Some children are hydrocephalic, their heads swollen into grotesque shapes. Despite the deformities, there is always affection. The babies need it. The staff provides it.

"There always seems to be someone who takes to a particular child," Lewis said. "It doesn't matter what the child looks like; there always seems to be somebody with a special feeling."

The staff of 65 is aided by 30 students from the training school for child care technicians that St. Margaret's runs, and at times all the workers feel the emotional drain of their work.

"We had one child here for more than three years," Lewis said. "The parents never came. But when the child died the father came and spent all day here. He was very upset.

"I remember him saying, 'We didn't come to visit, but she was with us every day.' I can't say they weren't involved."

The administrator said officials of the Episcopal Church-related facility want to convert a room into a chapel or a meditation area.

"Not just for the parents, but also for the staff," he said.

The 58-crib facility began as a foundling home in 1883 and has cared for children ever since. Its present facility was built in 1973. The annual budget is about $800,000.

"We had one child here for more than three years. The parents never came. But when the child died the father came and spent all day here. He was very upset.

"I remember him saying, 'We didn't come for a visit, but she was with us every day.' I can't say they weren't involved."

"More and more of our cases are terminally ill babies," said Lewis. "The average length of stay has fallen to less than a month."

Lewis said there are two principal reasons why there are more terminally ill babies: infants who previously would have died very quickly survive medical crises longer today due to improved hospital care, and doctors are prolonging lives with extraordinary measures because they fear malpractice suits.

Another reason that they are brought to St. Margaret's is that hospitals, geared to making people well, are expensive. Care at St. Margaret's costs $45 a day — and it's geared to the dying baby's needs.

"We make the babies as comfortable as possible and sustain them nutritionally, but we will not intervene to prevent death when it's inevitable. At least, that's the policy," said Mrs. Haines.

"But when you are on duty and a baby has stopped breathing, what do you do?" she said. "Sometimes you have to intervene. I would never reprimand a nurse for doing that. They won't be working here forever and they have to live with their consciences the rest of their lives."

DEAR ABBY

A rash statement

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My 6-year-old daughter received a doll for Christmas that is designed to develop diaper rash! The doll comes with a little kit of pills which, when mixed with water and fed to the doll, cause the doll to break out with diaper rash. There is another solution to feed the doll that will "cure" the rash.

Never have I seen anything so ridiculous in all my life. I think this doll should get the Christmas toy booby prize of the year, don't you?—PASCO, WASH.

DEAR PASCO: Well, let's just say the diaper rash doll is somewhere near the bottom.

DEAR ABBY: Count me as another wife who undresses in the closet, but not because I'm hung up about nudity or sex. Far from it. I am very uninhibited when the lights are out.

My husband drools over women with great figures. My figure used to be beautiful, but after four children, too much eating, and not enough exercise, I sag in some places and have bulges and rolls of fat in others. In other words, I'm ashamed of the way I look unclothed.

I also feel guilty because I'm just too lazy to do something about the shape I've let myself get into.

My husband doesn't notice the shape I'm in when I'm horizontal, but he would notice it if he were to see me standing up, undressing.

So I undress in the dark to spare his feelings as well as my own.—SPEAKING FOR MANY

DEAR SPEAKING: I'm sure you speak for many. The last thing you need from me is a lecture on the importance of diet and exercise, but hear this: She who does not take care of the equipment may soon find herself out of business.

DEAR ABBY: When I read your column on what to give and what not to give old folks for Christmas, I thought you should win the Woman of the Year award. Then I read the postscript and changed my mind.

You say, "To be alone at Christmas is sad beyond measure. Give the greatest gift of all to someone who faces the bleak prospect of being alone, an invitation to spend the holiday with you and your family."

You are so wrong, Abby! People who are accustomed to living alone would be driven to distraction by the confusion, noise, clutter and general turmoil of the average family Christmas.

Old people find it much easier to accept holiday greetings by mail or phone, or a short visit from grandchildren—not accompanied by noise-making toys or indigestible food.

Some parents find family festivities tiring, and we older folks are even shorter on patience and endurance. Being alone away from the commotion of holiday hubbub is far from sad. —ALONG BUT NOT LONELY

Symphony musicians strike

SEATTLE (AP) — Dressed in a tuxedo and holding his double bass, Ron Simon stood on the steps of the Seattle Opera House to announce that Seattle Symphony musicians had decided to strike.

The strike, called Monday night less than an hour before a scheduled concert, marks the first labor walkout in the orchestra's 75-year history.

Declarer played dummy's low spade without giving the matter much thought, but East had much to think about.

There was little hope if South had the ace of spades, but South surely held the jack of spades since otherwise he would play dummy's king at the first trick.

If South held only J-x of spades he would think long and anxiously at the first trick. Since South had played from dummy without anxiety, East shrewdly assumed that South had three spades to the jack.

NEEDS FOUR SPADES

There was no hope if South had the ace of hearts. If West had both missing aces, the defenders needed only four spade tricks.

East knew he could win the first trick with the queen of spades but then the defenders would get only two spades and one heart. East therefore signaled with the eight of spades at the first trick.

When West got the ace of hearts he cashed the ace of spades and led his spade, allowing East to defeat the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: S-Q8753; H-872; D-94; C-J72. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades with a reliable partner. Pass with a flighty partner. The only reason to bid is to make it difficult for the opponents to reach their best contract.

College administration delays release of student newspaper

GRAMBLING, La. (AP) — Grambling University's newspaper was kept out of student hands over the weekend, and the newspaper's staff on Monday accused the school's administration of suppressing the news.

The Gramblingite is usually distributed shortly after noon on Fridays, but Grambling's vice president, Dr. Kermit McMurry, ordered it held up until Monday.

McMurry said he just felt that Monday was a better day to distribute the papers, since so many students went home on weekends.

"I felt it was an internal thing — whether to deliver them on Monday or Friday," McMurry said.

But the newspaper's staff and its adviser said there was more to it than that. They said school officials first asked the paper not to run stories on the stabbing of one Grambling co-ed in a school dormitory and the killing of another who was on a co-operative work program in Dallas.

When they refused to withhold the stories, university officials ordered the papers kept out of student hands over the weekend, the paper's staff said.

"Over the past 20 years, I have always told student journalists to 'tell it like it is,'" said Pete Dozier, journalism instructor and one of two faculty advisers to the paper. "I now find that this is sound advice for university administrators."

Dozier was a newsman in Louisiana and Arkansas for 10 years before taking a college teaching position.

Caesar Andrews, editor of the weekly newspaper, said he and the staff felt the stories were impartial, straight accounts of documented facts and decided to ignore requests to withhold the articles.

The news accounts concern the stabbing of Keena Morgan of Baton Rouge in a campus dormitory on Jan. 20 and the strangling death of La Breda Ann Howard of Chicago in Dallas last Tuesday.

Miss Morgan was stabbed in the back and is currently confined to a Shreveport hospital, said Frank Phillips, chief of campus police. He said Miss Morgan apparently confronted someone in the bathroom of Jeanes Hall on the Saturday afternoon of her stabbing.

Phillips said a man was seen running down the hall of the dormitory at about that time, but no arrests have been made.

In Dallas, police said Miss Howard was found by an electrician working at the apartment building into which she had moved just three days earlier.

She was enrolled at Grambling, where she was studying accounting, but was in Dallas on a work program, school officials said. She was once chosen a beauty queen at Grambling.

No arrests had been made in connection with her death, either, police said.

McMurry said Monday that he read the Gramblingite stories and found nothing wrong with them.

"I thought they did a good job," he said. "I didn't find anything wrong with them."

He said a student committee has been appointed to discuss the best release days for the paper.

Tractorcade nears goal

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Some 900 farmers and their families prepared to set out today for the next-to-last stop on their tractorcade to Washington they hope will attract the attention of Congress.

The tractorcade, one of three sponsored by the American Agriculture Movement that will rendezvous Feb. 5 in the nation's capital, heads for a stop tonight in Augusta County.

Another column of farm vehicles spent the weekend near Charlotte, N. C., and a third was in Indiana. An AAM spokesman said the farmers plan to demonstrate and lobby in Congress for a 90 percent parity ratio on prices for 17 commodities grown in the United States.

There are an estimated 400 vehicles, including about 200 tractors, in this caravan, which started in Amarillo, Texas.

'Spats' now focus of actor's trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Lee Marvin's third day on the witness stand was scheduled to focus on the spats that ended his six-year love affair with Michelle Triola Marvin.

The actor, defendant in a $1 million property settlement trial, was to resume testifying today after a three-day weekend recess.

Miss Marvin's attorney, Marvin Mitchelson, who has called the actor as a hostile witness, said he planned to question Marvin about a night in May 1970 when the couple argued on the beach at Malibu.

Miss Marvin has described a tearful scene after an argument with Marvin that ended with her near-collision with a police car and her arrest and jailing overnight.

She said Marvin watched as she was taken to jail, but did nothing to assist her. She said she stayed in jail until her friends, comedian Milton Berle and his wife Ruth, bailed her out.

Police hold 'quiet' girl

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Brenda Spencer bragged to high school classmates last week that she was going to "do something big to get on TV."

Today, the 16-year-old is in police custody, held in a 15-minute burst of gunfire that left two persons dead and nine others, including eight children, wounded.

Police said Miss Spencer aimed a semi-automatic .22-caliber rifle she got for Christmas at the Cleveland Elementary School Monday morning, firing 30 rounds of ammunition.

Carter's decree shortens Patty Hearst's sentence

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst will be free for her wedding, blessed by a presidential decree cutting short her 7-year prison term.

"I haven't made any plans right now. It came as such a surprise that it will take some time to adjust to it," the elated newspaper heiress said Monday after President Carter commuted her bank robbery conviction.

She is scheduled to leave the Federal Correctional Institution at Pleasanton on Thursday, four days before the fifth anniversary of her kidnapping by members of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Among those expected to accompany Miss Hearst when she is released is her fiance, Bernard Shaw, 30, a San Francisco police officer who once was her bodyguard.

The couple had planned a Valentine's Day wedding, but Shaw said Monday they were postponing the wedding until they could be married in a church.

The Rev. Ted Dumke, who led the campaign for her clemency, said Monday the couple were now considering marrying on St. Patrick's Day.

Meanwhile, prison officials said Miss Hearst was transferred Monday to an isolated room, away from the 300 other women at the prison.

Duty officer Darell Hainline said she was moved "to be on the safe side," because of threats against her by other prisoners.

In granting the commutation, Carter agreed with a Justice Department recommendation that she has "been punished substantially," as a kidnap victim and during 22 months in prison. It said she needed no more rehabilitation nor punishment.

"She will be a law-abiding citizen," the department predicted.

"I'm really grateful that he was so courageous," Miss Hearst said of Carter's decision. "It would have been so simple for him to just leave everything the way it was.... I thought I'd be spending another Feb. 4 in prison."

Miss Hearst, who will turn 25 in three weeks, said she was "grateful for all the support from so many people I'll never know and never meet," referring to the dozens of politicians, movie stars and newspaper editorial writers who called for her early release.

The commutation does not absolve her from guilt for participating with three SLA members in the April 15, 1974, armed robbery of a San Francisco bank. It simply cuts short her sentence, although she would have been eligible for parole in July.

Miss Hearst and her captors, William and Emily Harris, eluded authorities for more than 19 months before they were arrested on Sept. 18, 1975, in San Francisco.

She said at her bank robbery trial she was forced by threats of death to join the SLA and participate in the robbery. She was 19 when she was kidnapped.

Attorney George Martinez, who represents Miss Hearst, said Monday she would leave Pleasanton shortly after 7:30 a.m. PST Thursday.

Epitaph for SLA written long before commutation

By NADINE JOSEPH

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The tiny band of terrorists who captured headlines by kidnapping Patricia Hearst had ceased to exist long before the newspaper heiress' sentence was commuted by President Carter.

Six members of the Symbionese Liberation Army are dead and four are in prison. Miss Hearst, whose sentence was commuted Monday, will be released from prison Thursday, in time for her wedding to Bernard Shaw, a San Francisco policeman and former bodyguard.

SLA members William and Emily Harris are serving prison terms after pleading guilty to abducting Miss Hearst from her Berkeley apartment on Feb. 4, 1974. Under the terms of their plea bargain, the Harrises are expected to be released in 1983.

Harris, 33, is "keeping a low profile and is pretty much doing his time quietly" in maximum security at San Quentin prison, according to prison public information officer Bill Merkle.

Mrs. Harris, 31, is serving her sentence at the Califonia Institute for Women, in Frontera, outside of Los Angeles.

Two of their comrades in arms, Joseph Remiro and Russell Little, are serving life sentences for the November 1973 ambush of Oakland schools Supt. Marcus Foster, a popular black whose assassination stripped the fledging revolutionaries of black support.

Killed in an hour-long shootout with Los Angeles police in May 1974 were Donald DeFreeze, the lone black SLA "soldier" who came out of the ghetto and took the name Cinque; Patricia Soltysik, William Wolfe, Camilla Hall, Angela Atwood and Nancy Ling Perry.

We don't sell you a seat, we sell you a service.

Someday, all the hullabaloo about fares and seating will settle down. And then you'll wonder what happened to the service you used to get. Continental hasn't forgotten. We built our reputation on personal service: after all we have to compete with far larger airlines, so we have to do better.

Our reputation for service was built on delivery, not promises. We have one of the most modern fleets in the business, DC-10's and 727's. So there's always plenty of room to relax, store things overhead, or just move around. And we plan our schedules around the times you like to fly, not just when we want to fly.

But we don't stop there, we cover the little touches like free stereo on all flights. We pour only premium liquor. The kind we know you'll like. And as a pleasant sight for your eyes, we've added handsome new uniforms.

You might say that service is an attitude. But at Continental we say it's also the key to our survival. So in these days of confusion over fares and flights, Continental is sticking to the kind of service that built our reputation. Rockefeller eulogized by son

NEW YORK (AP) — Fifteen-year-old Nelson Rockefeller Jr. eulogized his father as the ashes of the former vice president and four-time governor of New York were buried on his family's 250-acre estate.

Nelson Jr. spoke during the service Monday at Pocantico Hills attended only by family and a few close friends.

"Dad, we know how much you love us, and we want you to know how much we love you and how much we're going to miss you. Your spirit will live with us forever," he said.

"We'll try to live up to the example you've set us as a father, as a husband, as a brother, as a statesman and as a friend.

"But Dad, we're not saying goodbye, but until we meet again."

The small bronze urn containing Rockefeller's ashes was buried near the graves of his father, John D. Rockefeller Jr., and mother, Abby Aldrich Rockefeller. The founder of the family fortune, the original John D. Rockefeller, is buried in Cleveland.

A public memorial service is scheduled for Friday at Riverside Church, built largely with Rockefeller money.

President and Mrs. Carter will attend, as will Vice President and Mrs. Walter Mondale and former President and Mrs. Gerald Ford.

They will hear eulogies from former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Dr. Martin Luther King Sr., father of the assassinated civil rights leader.

With the conclusion of a state-imposed drilling moratorium that began in 1969, Aminoil USA, Inc., has recently begun drlling again from platform Emmy, located 1.3 miles offshore from Huntington Beach, Calif. The platform, which was built in 1962, has produced 14 million barrels of crude oil.

Lifting of drilling moratorium lets Aminoil reactivate platform Emmy

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif. — If this country is going to produce more oil at home, much of the increase will have to come from older, established fields, an executive for Aminoil USA, Inc., said.

In the wake of the relaxation of offshore drilling restrictions in California, production is now expected to increase at one of those older fields, the one at Huntington Beach which is operated by Aminoil.

Aminoil has produced oil and gas from four California leases lying offshore from Huntington Beach since 1938, slant drilling hundreds of wells from the shore out under the ocean during that time.

When it became evident that there were oil bearing zones that could not be reached from shore, platform Emmy was built in 1962.

Emmy, a 52-slot production platform standing approximately 1.3 miles offshore, is a prominent Huntington Beach landmark. Since February 1963, approximately 14 million barrels of oil have been produced from the platform's wells.

In recent years this production was affected by the California ban on offshore drilling which began in the wake of the 1969 Santa Barbara oil spill.

Aminoil is once more drilling from Emmy. As explained by Lead Drilling Dengineer Bill Melcher, the new drilling program is designed to tap the previously undrilled Fault Block 28 of the Upper Jones zone. Two of the first three wells, which were drilled to a depth of about 5,000 feet, were completed with no significant problems or delays. It is estimated that Fault Block 28 contains in excess of one million barrels of oil.

When Project Engineer Mike Flanigan was asked what effects the drilling moratorium had on production from Emmy, he indicated that "it was probably less than you might think." He explained there really is no simple answer. "Getting permission to drill was, of course, important," he said, "but the drilling economics were at least as important. Some drilling we couldn't have done simply because it would have cost too much."

Flanigan said that most of the oil available from Emmy is lower tier—oil that by government regulation must be sold at the lowest price. Fortunately, the production from Fault Block 28 qualifies for the higher upper tier prices which makes it fesible to pay the high costs of drilling—$200,000 for installation of the rig and $10,000 per day in operating costs.

"We might want to drill other wells that would incrase production of lower tier oil, but the high drilling costs compared to the low oil prices often won't let us. He explained that the deeper a swell is drilled, the more expensive it becomes. Many of Emmy's wells, with directional drilling, reach a measured depth that is often as much as a mile.

When the current drilling on Fault Block 28 is complete, Aminoil is planning additional drilling to tap some of the shallower zones, the TM and AA ziones, that can only be reached from Emmy.

The low gravity oil from those shallow zones will have to be produced by steam stimulation, a process that makes recovery of the oil much more expensive. The current drilling program is expected to continue until the end of February.

There is no doubt that more oil can be produced from this country's older fields. It is estimated that as much as 70 percent of the original oil remains in many of them, an Aminoil official said. Recovering that oil is expensive, and companies that want to go after it simply won't be able to unless the economics are favorable, he added.

No radioactive material loss found at accident

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A cargo of nuclear waste containers, dumped when a tractor-trailer overturned on a mountainous stretch of interstate highway, was reloaded Monday and sent on its way for disposal.

Public health officials said none of the radioactive material leaked from the 46 barrels the truck was hauling from a plant near Chicago to a disposal site near Barnwell, S.C.

A massive traffic jam, stretching west several miles toward Nashville on Interstate 24, built up when two unrelated traffic accidents blocked the only two detour routes from the interstate at Monteagle to Chattanooga.

Shortly before 2 p.m. EST Dave Downer, communications officer for the Tennessee Highway Patrol in Chattanooga, reported that all three roads had been cleared and traffic was moving.

The truck hauling the nuclear waste overturned about 8:15 p.m. Sunday about three miles east of the town of Monteagle as it descended treacherously steep Monteagle Mountain, site of frequent truck wrecks.

Barrels containing the material bounced across the highway and police officers arriving on the scene immediately closed it to traffic.

Ron Culberson, an official in the state Department of Public Health, said one barrel had a thumb-sized hole in it but there was no leakage from the multi-layered container. He said the hole was patched.

He said the other containers were tested by running rags over them and then checking for radioactivity.

"Nothing showed up on our geigers," he said.

With I-24 — the main link between Nashville and Chattanooga — closed to eastbound traffic, the highway patrol began routing traffic down the mountain on Tennessee 150. Monday morning, however, a truck load of oats overturned and blocked that highway.

Troopers routed the traffic in an even wider circle through Grundy County and down Tennessee 108. But in mid-morning two tractor-trailer rigs wrecked, blocking it as well.

"If you're trying to come east, you're sitting," Downer said earlier when all the traffic was blocked.

Highway Patrol Sgt. Lloyd Baker in Chattanooga said the driver of the nuclear waste rig reported he was hauling about 40,000 pounds of material, initially identified as cobalt 60 and cesium 137.

The driver, Russell Binns, 23, of Conway, Ga., was released from a Chattanooga hospital after treatment for minor injuries.

The accident was the second in this area involving nuclear waste in the past five months. In September, a truck overturned about five miles west of Chattanooga. There was no leakage in that wreck either.

Hearings scheduled

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has scheduled hearings for Feb. 16 on the safety of natural gas pipelines and distribution systems in Cotulla and Teneha.

The commission said the cities would have a chance to explain why their cases should not be turned over the attorney general for prosecution.

On Nov. 17, 1977, the commission said it found 16 safety violations in the natural gas pipeline of Tenaha in Shelby County. The city has not provided evidence of compliance with safety regulations, the commission said Monday.

A March 9, 1978, safety check showed nine violatins in the Cotulla natural gas distribution system, but the South Texas city has not replied adequately to the citations, the agency said.

Oil workers back on job

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) — One of five Texas coastal area strikes by oil workers ended Monday as about 250 employees at the Amoco Chemicals Corp. plant ratified a two-year contract.

Strikes continued at the Marathon refinery in Texas City, the Phillips Chemical Co. plant in Pasadena, and at the Gulf Oil refinery and the Arco Polymers plant in Port Arthur.

The Amoco contract approved by Local 4-449 of the Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers Union followed a national pattern providing for a wage increase of 73-cents an hour .

Iranian oil shutoff now being felt

TULSA, OKLA. — With Iranian oil production still at a trickle, consuming nations are beginning to feel the squeeze.

Spot market prices for crude oil have risen sharply, and supplies are tightening, according to the Jan. 29 issue of the Oil & Gas Journal.

Some international companies that produce Iranian crude are reducing supplies to their customers.

Analysts sa speculative stockpiling may be compounding price and supply problems.

In the U.S., small refiners whose contract supplies have been trimmed are turning increasingly to the spot market to make up the shortfalls. Some can't afford the high prices on that market and have sought releif from the U.S. government.

European refiners are operating as usual, although stocks are decreasing. British Petroleum Ltd. cut crude deliveries to its customers by 30 to 35 percent, the Journal reports.

Cosuming nations outside the U.S. and Europe are scrambling for supplies. Japanese crude buyers have flocked to Iraq, where spot cargoes of crude oil and being offered at premiums of $2 to $3 a barrel.

The Journal says two factors will determine whether the global supply squeeze reaches crisis proportions;

—How long it takes Iran to stablize its political scene and return crude production to near-normal levels.

—Whether Saudi Arabia will continue to produce at more than its self-imposed ceiling to compensate for the shortfall.

Stablization in Iran is an elusive goal at this point. The makeshift civilian government of Shahpour Bakhtiar has been unable to contain civil unrest and appears to have only flimsy support.

Iranian crude production remains 100,000 barrels a day sort of domesti requirements.

Football's merciful end goes to Nationals, 13-7

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It wasn't exactly son of Super Bowl XIII that brought the National Football League's longest season ever to a merciful end. Maybe a great, great grandchild would be more appropriate.

And although some rabid fans might disagree, many of the players seemed happy to call it a year.

"I'm feeling great ... this capped off a very nice week with a lot of nice guys," said Minnesota's Ahmad Rashad after helping the National Conference to a 13-7 victory over the American Conference in the annual Pro Bowl extravaganza at the Coliseum Monday night. "One of the highlights of my career was just being here. The most valuable player award was just gravy."

Rashad caught five passes for 89 yards and was one of at least a handful of players who were MVP possibilities in the nationally televised game played before 38,333 fans. More than a third of those who purchased tickets — 13,310 — either stayed home or went elsewhere.

It was a requirement of Los Angeles Rams' season ticket-holders to purchase a ticket to the Pro Bowl.

The NFL kicked off its 1978 exhibition season last July 29. Following were four preseason games, 16 regular-season games, three weeks of playoffs and the Super Bowl.

The victory was the fourth for the NFC in the past five years and the fifth in nine games overall since the all-star contest changed formats to pit the two conferences against each other.

There were only 20 points — on three touchdowns and two extra points — scored in a game where the teams combined for 616 yards in total offense. It was a far cry from the Pittsburgh Steelers' wild 35-31 triumph over the Dallas Cowboys in the Super Bowl eight days earlier.

"This was not the Super Bowl, it doesn't ease that loss, but it's nice to win an all-star game," said running back Tony Dorsett, who has helped the Cowboys to two Super Bowl berths in as many NFL seasons. "It's been a long year, but a good year. I've enjoyed it.

"But I can't wait to catch that big bird in the morning and fly the friendly skies back to Dallas," added Dorsett, who gained 27 yards on seven carries Monday night. "I'm going to relax for a long, long time."

Roger Staubach, a teammate of Dorsett's, rifled a 19-yard touchdown pass to yet another Cowboy, wide receiver Tony Hill, with 3:43 remaining in the third quarter to give the NFC its victory.

The only score of the second half followed a 16-yard punt by Oakland's Ray Guy and capped a 45-yard, five-play drive.

The winners took a 6-0 lead after 7:06 of the second quarter on a 2-yard run by Philadelphia's Wilbert Montgomery. The touchdown came on a fourth-and-1 play.

New Orleans quarterback Archie Manning engineered the 70-yard, 11-play march. Los Angeles' Frank Corral was wide on the conversion attempt.

The AFC retaliated with its only score of the night, moving 62 yards on nine plays after the ensuing kickoff. The touchdown came on an 8-yard pass from Miami's Bob Griese to Seattle's Steve Largent. Garo Yepremian of the Dolphins added the extra point.

Largent, the first member of the Seahawks to play in a Pro Bowl, finished with five catches, all in the second quarter, for 75 yards. Both he and Rashad tied the Pro Bowl record for number of receptions.

Staubach outplayed Terry Bradshaw, his counterpart in Super Bowl XIII, with nine completions in 15 attempts for 125 yards. Bradshaw hit on seven of 17 for 54 yards.

Second-stringers Griese and Manning made their presence felt. Griese completed 10 of 20 for 122 yards and Manning, the first member of the Saints to play in a Pro Bowl under the current format, was eight of 17 for 78 yards.

The AFC's Earl Campbell, who led the NFL in rushing as a rookie for Houston with 1,450 yards, topped all ground-gainers with 66 yards on 12 carries. New England's Sam Cunningham had 49 yards on eight attempts for the losers.

Montgomery led the NFC in rushing with 53 yards on nine tries.

"I never got up for it," said Bradshaw, the NFL's most valuable player. "I wanted to be alert, but I really didn't want to play another game.

"I don't think anybody wanted to play, but it's an honor to be in it," he added. "I'm glad nobody got hurt, that's the important thing. I'm tired, I'm emotionally drained, mentally fatigued.

"It's been a great year, but I'm glad it's over."

Rashad felt that players on both teams wanted to win the game, which meant $5,000 to the 40 NFC participants and $2,500 to members of the AFC team.

"Egos get involved, your pride kind of takes over," said the Vikings' wide receiver. "The best kind of comes out. There's no losers involved. Everybody's a winner. Once the game starts, you want to play your best football and win."

The NFC victory enabled Tom Mack to end a fine career on a winning note. It was the 11th Pro Bowl appearance for the Rams' offensive guard.

"I knew this was coming at least the past month," said Mack. "I set my mind to it before the playoffs."

Mack received a standing ovation with about a minute left to play.

"It was very flattering," he said. "It's a little overpowering. This whole week has been amazing. You don't think that many people know who you are."

Mack, who played in 184 consecutive games in a 13-year career with the Rams, announced his retirement last week.

Chaps look like imposters, but defeat South Plains

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Although Midland College didn't nail down the 76-71 win until the final 30 seconds, Monday's victory over South Plains College wasn't your standard barn-burner. Not, at least, if you saw the Chaps a week ago when they came to the wire blazing from the hip, shooting everything that moved, for that 64-62 upset of Western Texas College.

In comparison, these guys looked like imposters and even Coach Jerry Stone was trying to figure out whether his Chaps were flat, cold or suffering from approaching spring fever after it was over.

STILL, THE win propelled the Chaps into a tie for first place with Western Texas College, which had the rug pulled out from under it, 80-69, by New Mexico Military Institute at Roswell. Both teams are now 7-2 at the halfway mark of the Western Junior College Conference race.

In other results, Frank Phillips whipped Howard College, 64-51, Odessa edged Amarillo, 79-76, in overtime and NMJC beat Clarendon, 88-81.

"It was a crazy game. I couldn't figure out what was wrong, but I do know I was scared to death we were going to lose."

Stone continued, "Maybe we had a sense of false security playing at home or maybe it was because we hadn't worked out here since the Western Texas game because of the concert. But this (South Plains) is a good team and I know one thing, that Cullen Mayfield is worth a million dollars."

The 5-9 sophomore from Dallas South Oak Cliff was the one guy the Chaps could hang their hats on throughout the night and especially down the stretch when he scored eight of MC's 10 points when they were most needed.

WITH THE Texans leading 71-70 with 1:51 left, Mayfield scored on a fast break and then with 34 seconds remaining, converted a pair of free throws for a 74-71 lead. Six-seven Luis Alvarado, coming up with some vital rebounds and feeding Mayfield on one of his baskets, added the coup de grace off a backcourt steal in the final 10 seconds and a game in which MC lead comfortably almost all the way and almost let get away was finally in the win column.

It may not have been neat, but it raised the Chaps' Western Junior College Conference record to 7-2 (15-7 for the season) and puts MC tied with Western Texas College as the first half comes to an end.

That's especially important, since Midland goes on the road for three of its next four, traveling to Hobbs, N.M., Thursday for New Mexico Junior College, a team which Stone feels is finally putting it altogether, and then next Monday it's back to the Land of Enchantment for NMMI at Roswell, one of the other teams challenging the Chaps for second place.

MEANWHILE, South Plains College Coach Dennis Patton probably muttered all the way back to Levelland that "any time you outrebound the opposition by 19 (51-32), you ought to win and win big."

Maybe, but not when you committ 35 turnovers to only 13 for the opponent as the Texans did Monday.

For three quarters of the game, it looked like the Chaps had South Plains on a yo-yo string, leading by as much as 26-16 and 41-30 in the first half and by as little as 26-25. In the second half, Midland opened a 50-40 gap and it wasn't until 6-3 Charles Rogers drove the lane for two that SPC had its first lead, 56-55, with 10:10 left. They led only two more times, 68-67, and 71-70, but the Chaps didn't have a moment's peace until those Mayfield free throws.

Mayfield wound up with 23 points, hitting nine of 18 from the field, but as a team, MC was far off its usual form, making only 29 of 75 for 39 per cent. Ralph Tate, 14, and Chucky McGill and Tim Shelby, 12 each, joined Mayfield in double figures, but Midland usually has six or seven at that level. The usually flamboyant Kenneth Young couldn't buy a bucket inside, winding up with four points.

Rogers and Rickey Phillips scored 17 each for South Plains.

McGill and Tate led MC in rebounds with 10 and seven, respectively, while Shelby had five assists followed by McGill and Tate with four each.

Bulldogs, Rebels set stage again

The Midland High and Midland Lee girls are heading for another District 5-4A basketball showdown.

Both teams took important league victories Monday night with the Bulldogs posting an exiciting 36-34 victory over Abilene and the Rebels breaking open a close game with a 21-point outburst in the final period to take a 63-47 victory over Cooper in Abilene.

Susan Rock's 12 points paced Midland's victory in a defensive battle in the MHS Gymnaisum and it was big victory since the Bulldogs and Eagles shared the first half title with 6-1 records. The win gives Midland as 3-0 loop mark and a season record of 22-10 going into Thursday's game with San Angelo in San Angelo.

Besides Rocks' 12 points, Karen Cook was next with eight points for Coach Jane Young's Purple Pack while the big gun for Abilene was Karen Wasington with 16 markers.

Midland also won the junior varsity contest, 45-25, with Janice McDonald and Sandra Black netting 14 points each.

Lee took a 42-36 lead going into the final period in Abilene over Cooper's Cougars and then erupted for 21 points, to win going away. Coach Shirley Stephenson's outfit now stands 23-7 on the season.

Dee Dee Poole poured in 21 points to pace the Rebels while Deborh Kittle and Deborah Ledbetter added 14 each with Gale Wilson right behind with eight points.

Julie Gibbs and Teresa Seldon netted 12 points each for the Cougars.

Lee's girls won the junior varsity game, 37-32, in overtime with Jackie Ratliff's nine points paving the way. Lee's JV is 3-0 in district play with the victory.

Big Spring is Lee's next opponent in Big Spring on Thursday night.

San Angelo upset Odessa High in another District 5-4A contest and Odessa Permian was an easy winner against winless Big Spring.

Longhorns rip Cougars

By The Associated Press

It was the same song, another verse as the Texas Longhorns rolled to an easy 79-53 Southwest Conference basketball victory over Houston Monday night.

It was the same because Texas coach Abe Lemons criticized the officiating and chided sports writers, telling them people would say Houston had a "bad game."

In other SWC action, Texas Tech romped to a 91-71 victory over Texas Christian, Texas A&M beat Baylor, 71-58, and Southern Methodist whipped Rice, 80-67.

Anyone who thought the addition of a third official this season for Southwest Conference games would Lemons happier with the officiating was wrong. Sometimes the criticism is for calling games too close and sometimes it's for calling them too loose. It was too loose Monday night, according to Lemons.

Complaining of the way the officiating was handled, Lemons said "Somebody could have gotten hurt in there the things they were letting go on. It's amazing how three people can get into the position that they can't see what is going on."

Almost all season long Lemons has chided sports writers for saying that teams Texas beat had a "bad game" instead of saying that Texas had a good game.

"They'll say Houston had a bad game against us. It seems like everybody has been having bad games against us this year. We never really beat anybody when they have a good game, or so everybody says," the colorful Texas coach said.

"I guess some night when the other team wins, then they'll say they had a good game," Lemons said.

Ron Baxter had 23 points for the Longhorns and Jim Krivacs added 22 as the Longhorns jumpout to a 39-28 halftime margin.

Krivacs became Texas' all-time leading career scorer early in the game when he tossed in a jump shot to pass Raymond Downs, who had 1,513 points.

Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers praised the Red Raiders for their intensity in the romp over Texas Christian.

"We played good defense the first half. And we have to play good defense to do anything else well," Myers said.

Six Red Raiders finished in double figures. Freshman David Little had 14 to lead the Raiders. Jim Hund had 17 points for TCU.

Texas A&M coach Shelby Metcalf said he believes holding Baylor's Vinnie Johnson to only 12 points in the 71-58 victory over Baylor was the Aggies best defensive effort of the season.

"We played an outstanding game. We learning to be more patient with our shots. Anytime you can win a game on the road, it's a big win and that's what this was tonight for us," Metcalf said.

Rudy Woods had 20 points for the Aggies.

SMU coach Sonny Allen had praise for SMU's guards after the victory over Rice. "We played pretty well, especially our guards. We had good shot selection and we hit well, which we haven't been doing lately.

Richard Harris and Reggie Franklin each had 15 points for the Mustangs. Rice's Bobby Tudor had 20 points.

Football Hall honors four

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ron Mix has no trouble remembering the many hours of "hard work and boring preparation" during an 11-year National Football League career. But now, he believes he has received the ultimate reward.

"All that running, lifting weights, it was very, very boring," said Mix, who spent most of his career with the San Diego Chargers. "It was an awful lot of hard work. This really makes it all worth it.'

Mix is one of the four most recent ex-NFL greats to be voted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame by the 29-member board of selectors, raising to 102 the number so honored.

"I'm extremely thrilled to be selected," said Mix, who became only the second former American Football League performer to be honored. "It was such a shock when I found out.

"It's particularly thrilling in that Lance Alworth, my teammate for so many years, was the first AFL player inducted," said Mix. "And now, I'm the second."

Results of the 1979 Hall of Fame selections were announced Monday. Joining Mix at formal enshrinement ceremonies in Canton, Ohio next July 28 will be Johnny Unitas, Dick Butkus and Yale Lary. All but Unitas appeared at a news conference Monday.

Mix began his career with the Los Angeles Chargers in 1960. The franchise moved to San Diego the next year and Mix played there through 1969.

Blackout rule may cost Vikes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Owners of National Football League teams have rejected a proposal to ease the sellout or blackout local television rule — although failure to relax the policy could threaten the Minnesota Vikings' hopes to play in a new domed stadium.

"I would like to get permission to move if they don't build it," Vikings' President Max Winter said of the stadium-television issue. Winter said owners of other NFL teams were "sympathetic" at Monday's meeting, prior to the annual Pro Bowl game.

The Minnesota Legislature has passed a law saying the Vikings would have to televise home games if 90 percent of seats in a proposed stadium were sold 72 hours before kickoff time. The existing NFL rule calls for a total sellout three days prior to a contest before it can be telecast locally.

"The proposal was voted down, that's all I can say," said an NFL spokesman. "There was nothing else of major consequence that went on at today's meeting."

The possibility of a replacement franchise for Los Angeles after the Rams move to Anaheim in 1980 was not discussed, the spokesman said.

A Jethro Pugh ends pro career

DALLAS (AP) — When Jethro Pugh was tabbed out of tiny Elizabeth City State University by the Dallas Cowboys in the 11th round of the 1965 draft, it gave Dallas writers and fans a new joke.

"What is a Jethro Pugh?" they asked.

The 6-foot-6, 255-pound defensive tackle ended his career Monday, his name a household word among Cowboy fans.

The lone survivor of the old Dallas Doomsday Defense, Pugh called it quits after 14 seasons, seven operations and more playoff appearances (23) than any other player in National Football League history.

"I like to think I've had a good, clean, honest career, but now it's time to do something else. I simply feel I've reached a point where I should discontinue football and pursue another career," Pugh said.

Pugh said he has no definite plans now, but is looking at several business opportunities. He said he plans to make Dallas his permanent home.

Pugh, 34, never made a Pro Bowl or All Pro in his 14 years with the Cowboys, yet was one of the primary reasons they made it to five Super Bowls.

Plagued by knee problems through the second half of the 1978 season, he missed Super Bowl XIII because of injuries.

Pugh said the grind of training camp and daily practice became tedious and that he gave serious consideration to retiring during last summer's training camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif.

"I went to 14 training camps, and there wasn't a one I didn't consider leaving at one time or the other. Then the practices became a lot like a regulr 9-to-5 job. I found myself driving in rush-hour traffic to get to work and then rush-hour traffic to go home," he said.

"Game days were different. I still got excited when I got to the stadium. That part of it never quit being fun," Pugh said.

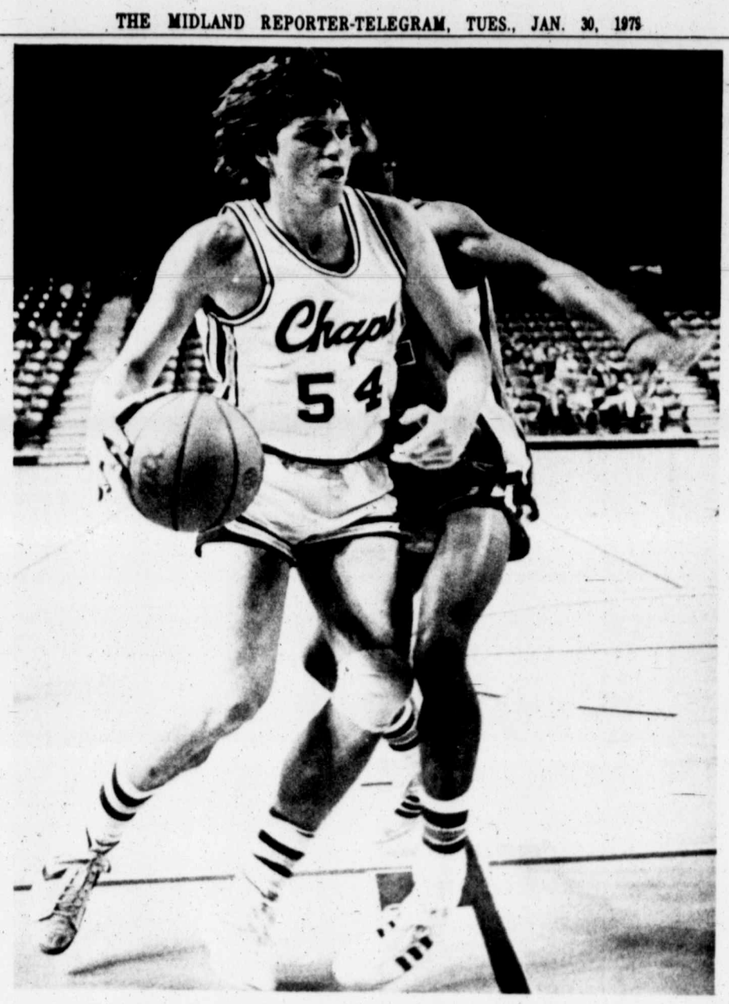

It was Pugh whom Green Bay's Jerry Kramer blocked in the infamous 1967 "Ice Bowl" NFL title game, setting up a quarterback sneak by Bart Starr for the winning touchdown with seconds to play.

Pugh said the memory of that game, played in temperatures of minus 13, still bothers him.

"That still disturbs me. It's been a bother because it has been an almost constant reminder," Pugh said. "The ground was frozen and our line just couldn't dig in. I'm still bothered by frostbite from that game to this day."

Pugh said his biggest thrill was the Cowboys' winning Superbowl VI.

"Maybe it was more of a relief than a thrill," he said. "We had been there before and this showed we weren't chokers. I suspect my biggest disappointment was Super Bowl V when we had the best team and didn't win.

WTSU slices athletic budget

CANYON, Texas (AP) — Regents say they must "live within their means." But coaches at West Texas State University are shocked and dismayed over unexpectedly severe budget cuts, scholarship reductions and the firing of Athletic Director Dick Dietl.

There was speculation the regents would vote Monday to withdraw the university from the Missouri Valley Conference. But instead regents slashed the athletic department budget by $236,000, trimmed athletic scholarships from 121 to 73 and opted not to renew the contract of Dietl.

Dr. Myron Dees, 47, the head of the department of health, physical education and recreation since 1969, assumed Dietl's duties Today. Dietl will remain with the university in a consultant's role.

"We have to live within our means. We cannot spend money we do not have," said T.L. Roach of Amarillo, the chairman of the board of regents.

"We don't have any choice," said Regent Jack Shelton of Amarillo. "It's past time to act."

But the decision drew sharp responses from the coaching staff.

"I've worked 11 years, took this program from nothing to where we can compete, and now you've pulled the rug out from under me," said Bob Kitchens, track WTSU track coach, reacting to a cut in the number of track scholarships from 11 to four.

"I cannot compete in the conference on four scholarships. You've made me the doormat of the conference. I've worked to build up the program and now you've pulled me back down," Kitchens told the regents.

"I expected the cut," said Dietl, "but really not that deep. This is a (NCAA) Division II football budget."

Available football scholarships were reduced from 85 to 43. However, the university currently has only 68 students with football scholarships.

The board also reduced the athletic department budget for salaries from $300,000 to $210,000, a move that prompted speculation of wholesale salary cuts or that coaches or staff members may be fired.

University President Max Sherman met with Dietl Monday afternoon and then announced Dees would become athletic director.

"President Sherman contacted me a week or so ago and asked if I would even consider the position," said Dees. "It obviously was not something I relished ... but if the board and he (Sherman) felt that it would help in maintaining the athletic program, I certainly would work along that way.

"I anticipate this being not a killing of the sports program but a means of getting back to something we can live with and move on. A lot of people in the Panhandle are tired of paying bills on money we have already spent," said Dees.

Basketball and tennis were the least affected by the cuts. Regents reduced baskeball scholarships by three and tennis from five to four.

The meeting was a boon for women's athletic programs. Women's scholarships were increased from five to 10 and the budget raised by $12,000.

Indiana State loses one to Irish

NEW YORK (AP) — It took 11 weeks, but Indiana State finally lost one — off the court that is.

Notre Dame, despite garnering only 15 first-place ballots to the Sycamores' 32 and losing a game in the final seconds to Maryland last week, retained the No. 1 position in The Associated Press college basketball poll today.

The Irish received 1,124 points in balloting by a nationwide committee of sports writers and broadcasters, edging Indiana State, 18-0, by a mere 13 points in one of the closest votes in AP poll history.

Both teams were named on each of the 60 votes cast by committee members. Notre Dame was tabbed no lower than sixth by the members, while the Sycamores were listed as low as 10th by one member.

While Notre Dame and Indiana State were battling hard for the No. 1 spot, last week's rash of upsets created wholesale changes among the rest of the Top Ten.

Preseason favorite Duke, ranked seventh last week, moved into the No. 3 position with eight first-place votes and 1,025 points following victories over Virginia and Marquette.

North Carolina, No. 2 last week and seemingly the heir apparent to the No. 1 ranking after Notre Dame's loss on Saturday afternoon, took themselves out of contention later that night, dropping a 66-61 decision to Clemson. The Tar Heels settled for fourth this week with 970 points, including one first-place vote.

UCLA, ranked sixth before victories over Washington and Washington State last week, received two first-place votes and 957 points, edging Louisville for the No. 5 position by one point. The Cardinals, who were fifth last week and posted triumphs over St. Louis and Virginia Tech, received the remaining two first-place votes.

Ohio State, which knocked Duke from the unbeaten ranks earlier this year and was unranked three weeks ago, continued its rise, moving from 10th to seventh with 851 points.

Eastern powers Syracuse, 692 points, and Georgetown, 623, took the eighth and ninth positions, while Louisiana State rounded out the Top Ten with 497 points.

Texas, No. 17 last week, headed the Second Ten, followed by Marquette, Alabama, Illinois, Michigan State, Texas A&M, Maryland, Temple, Arkansas and Vanderbilt.

Michigan State and Illinois took the wildest rollercoaster rides. The Spartans fell from fourth to 15th after losing to Michigan and Northwestern, while the Illini tumbled from eighth to 14th after being upset by Michigan and Iowa.

North Carolina State, a member of the Top Twenty since the beginning of the season, was the only team to drop out of the poll. Maryland, which has been in and out of the Top Twenty all year, is this week's only new member.

McBath gives up football for books

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Mark McBath, the quick-footed southpaw quarterback who came off the bench to guide Texas to two successive nationally televised victories, will pass up his senior season.

McBath told Coach Fred Akers on Monday he needs extra time this spring and next fall to try to raise his grades high enough to get into medical school.

Akers said McBath's decision was a total surprise.

"Mark's a bright young man, and he's thought this out and gotten counseling on it," said Akers.

McBath said when he informed Akers, the coach said he was "sorry" he was quitting and asked him if there were any alternatives. "I said 'no' and he (Akers) told me he would be as helpful as he could."

McBath's departure leaves Donnie Little and Jon Aune as the prime prospects for 1979, a year in which Texas probably will be near the top in pre-season polls.

Little had 629 yards total offense as a freshman but hurt his thumb near the end of the season. Aune, who will be a junior, missed the season with a severe knee injury suffered in October 1977.

"My major goal in life has always been medical school," McBath said in a statement. "While I presently have a 3.39 grade point average (out of a possible 4.0), the average is less than competitive for admission to the medical school I want to attend."

McBath made a 3.9 average in the fall and said he is taking a heavy load of 19 hours this semester, including organic chemistry, genetics and microbiology. He plans to take 20 hours of pre-med courses next fall, as well the Medical College Aptitude Test.

He figures he needs at least a 3.6 grade average for medical school. He said he will apply to three or four state schools.

McBath started nine games in three years at Texas, and the Longhorns won seven. Three were celebrated — and possibly pivotal contests.

Rebels fight for 5-4A survival

Midland Lee and Midland High are viewing tonight's District 5-4A basketball battles in a different light, but they both own the same mission.

Both would like to put a victory under their belts today, but Lee's Rebels are backed into a corner and they must win in order to maintain any hopes of gaining the loop's top ring.

The Rebels host Abilene Cooper at 8 p.m. today in the Lee gym, and both have one loss on the record in this half of play. A loss by either team would surely sink the ship as far as title hopes are concerned.

Both were upset by the surprising San Angelo Bobcats last week, and for either Lee or Cooper to gain a playoff berth, they would have to win or tie for the second half with someone other than Midland High, who won the first half race with a perfect 7-0 record. Right now that prospect seems dim for either Lee or Cooper, but a loss tonight would make it more than academic.

Midland High, on the other hand, faces Abilene High on foreign hardwood. The Bulldogs and San Angelo lead the second half with a 2-0 record. Midland needs only a tie for the second half title to advance to the playoffs and they have as of yet to stump their toe along the way.

The Bulldogs were aided greatly last week by San Angelo and Odessa Permian. San Angelo upset Cooper and Permian shocked Abilene High. If San Angelo loses a game in the second half, Midland could still lose a game and advance to the playoffs.

So at this stage of the war, Midland High holds four aces and only a stunning royal flush can keep them out of the playoffs--that and an unexpected fold with four aces showing.

San Angelo appears to be safe for another night since they face 0-2 Odessa High in Odessa. Odessa has not won a district game this year. Odessa Permian, 1-1, will try to keep its slim hopes alive tonight when they travel to face the 0-2 Big Spring Steers.

The Lee-Cooper contest may be heard on KBAT, 93 FM, at 8 p.m.

Cuevas dumps Clark in two

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Challenging for the World Boxing Association welterweight championship, Scott Clark said he would use his head to win.

Champion Jose "Pipino" Cuevas instead used Clark's head as a target for left hooks and succesfully defended his 147-pound title for the eighth time. It took him less than two rounds.

"The left hook did all the damage," said the 21-year-old Cuevas. He knocked down his 20-year-old foe from Orlando, Fla., twice in the second, before referee Luis Sulbaran stopped the bout with 45 seconds remaining in the round.

Cuevas, 146, of Mexico City, did all the heavy hitting against the 145½-pound Clark.

The challenger did come out punching in the first round, but Cuevas virtually ignored that storm and set out in the second to bring the quick ending.

A left-right-left combination put Clark down the first time and a left hook did the same a few seconds later.

"The referee should have stopped the fight after the second knockdown," said Cuevas. "After that, I was afraid I was going to hurt him."

The WBA champion said his next defense would be in Mexico City although a foe has yet to be selected.

Speaker, committee leader slate March 1 target date

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Floor action on bills implementing the 1968 Tax Relief Amendment to the Texas Constitution is just over a month away, according to House Speaker Bill Clayton.

Clayton said Monday he and Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, had agreed that March 1 was a reasonable target date.

"If we are going to get school finance settled by the end of the session, we have got to get it out of the way," Clayton told reporters following a 22-minute session of the House.

School finance formulas are directly related to the Tax Relief Amendment because of changes it makes in local tax bases.

He said Davis told him March 1 seemed practical but "it wasn't any particular deadline. I just wanted a date we felt like could be met."

Davis announced to the House that his committee would begin hearings next week on legislation putting the Tax Relief Amendment into effect. The amendment was approved by the voters in November.

He said first on the agenda will be establishment of a formula to evaluate agricultural land according to its ability to generate income, not its value on the real estate market.

Next, Davis said, the committee will hold hearings on how to deal with intangible property such as bank accounts, stocks and bonds.

The amendment dropped the requirement that intangibles be taxed, but existing school finance law includes intangibles in determining each district's need for state aid, starting with 1979-80.

Rural areas want a generous agricultural value formula, while urban areas want intangibles dropped from the state school aid formula. If intangibles are counted, large urban districts would lose virtually all their state aid.

Clayton said no decision has been reached whether to deal with the tax relief legislation in one bill or a package of bills.

But, he said, "it would probably cause less suspicion" if both intangibles and agricultural values can be handled together.

Other features of the tax relief amendment that must be implemented by the Legislature include special homestead exemptions, up to $10,000, for the elderly and disabled and exemption of family autos from property taxation.

Davis also included in his timetable hearings on consolidation of all property tax appraisals in one office per county — a recommendation of Gov. Bill Clements.

In its brief floor session, the House adopted a memorial resolution honoring the late Nelson Rockefeller and a Senate resolution wishing actor John Wayne a speedy recovery from surgery that removed his cancerous stomach.

Senators passed and sent to the House a bill allowing prosecutors 60 days instead of the present 30 to bring traffic cases and Class C misdemeanors to trial. A class C misdemeanor is punishable by up to a $200 fine.

Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, the sponsor, said the 1977 Speedy Trial Act needed the change because of the large numbers of misdemeanors — particularly traffic offenses — handled by city and county prosecutors.
