City enters new era in garbage disposal

Hereford's garbage will be dumped on Amarillo Saturday, and in the future. To comply with federal and state rules on landfill operations, the City of Hereford will lock the gate of the landfill Friday afternoon. Hereafter, only certain materials, such as tree limbs, building materials, grass clippings and appliances, will be placed in the Type IV landfill. All household garbage and other wastes deposited in residential and business dumpsters will be hauled to the City of Amarillo landfill near Bushland or to a privately-owned facility at Canyon. City Manager Chester Nolen said Friday that some test runs have been made to the landfills. Beginning Saturday, city trucks will transport garbage daily. "We expect to make six to eight trips a day," said Nolen. The trip to Bushland will be 44 miles, one way, while the Canyon landfill is about 30 miles away. The city asked for bids from landfills to handle the garbage and Amarillo submitted the low, $12.50 per ton. The private facility asked for about $20 per ton, initially. "After we took the Amarillo bid, BFI came back and said they'd handle it for $12.50, too," Nolen said. He expects the city, for the most part, to use the Amarillo landfill. Weather conditions may dictate where trucks are sent, he said. The City of Hereford decided more than a year ago to close the city's (See CITY, Page 2)

Skepticism apparent at health care-only meeting

By TOM RAUM
 Associated Press Writer
 MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) - The White House got what it wanted: a town-hall meeting with questions limited to health care. But even in such an accommodating forum, President Clinton encountered plenty of skepticism, underscoring the plan's vulnerability with the public, and in Congress. Clinton today was wrapping up a week-long pitch for the measure with yet another televised town hall meeting and a rally.

happened earlier this week at a town hall session in North Carolina. And at least one of the questioners - the leadoff one - was selected from a list submitted by the White House and asked a softball question that Clinton joked sounded like one he could have written himself.

DSCHD draws six candidates for May voting
 Six candidates, including three of the four incumbents, will be on the ballot for the trustee election of Deaf Smith County Hospital District on May 7. The filing deadline was Thursday and three incumbents filed documents to seek reelection. They are John Ferrin, current board chairman; Boyd Foster and Merle Clark. The fourth incumbent, Paul Abalos, decided not to seek reelection. Three challengers had filed last week. They are Steve Cortez, Dean Crofford and Larry Watts. Since the trustee positions are all at-large seats, the top four finishers in the race will win election to the hospital board.

On Thursday night, Clinton explained and defended his complex national health insurance program for 90 minutes in a Kansas City, Kan., televised town-hall meeting. He used colorful charts and moved around on the small stage like a talk-show host. "Please urge your members of Congress, not necessarily to agree with me on every detail but to seize this moment to do something profoundly important for the American people," Clinton said at the session that was broadcast in four Midwestern states. But aides conceded that, despite months of promoting the plan, they still are finding support for it to be lukewarm. The Kansas City station, KCTV-TV, that sponsored the town-hall meeting limited questions to health care, affording Clinton a rare opportunity to showcase the measure without being pelted with distracting questions on other subjects, including Whitewater - as happened earlier this week at a town hall session in North Carolina. And at least one of the questioners - the leadoff one - was selected from a list submitted by the White House and asked a softball question that Clinton joked sounded like one he could have written himself. But while most of the participants were seeking information on specific situations and conditions, others voiced clear apprehension about it. "For many, many businesses like mine, the cost of your plan is simply a cost that will cause us to eliminate jobs," Herman Cain, chief executive officer of Godfather's Pizza, told the president. "What will I tell those people whose jobs I will have to eliminate?" Clinton argued that the plan shouldn't require Cain to lay off workers. But Cain persisted. Clinton told him to send the White House his calculations and, "We'll work on it." Cain, who spoke from a studio in Omaha, Neb., is the incoming president of the National Restaurant Association.

Health fair happenings
 Informational displays, free handouts, medical tests and festive decorations were all highlights of Thursday's Hereford Regional Medical Center Health Fair, which featured 33 exhibitors lining the halls of the hospital for four hours. Here, registered nurse Jan Matthews, right, of the Texas Department of Health, prepares to check Chiselada Hernandez's blood sugar level at the health department's booth. Exhibitors represented a wide range of health-related agencies and organizations.

Letter scam shows up in Hereford

A scam that appears periodically, in one form or another, has surfaced in Hereford, offering recipients of a letter a chance to make a lot of money. Gene Gerringer, investigator for Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul, said Friday that letters purportedly from a government official in Nigeria offer a chance to share in $30 million, in return for financial assistance in getting the money out of Nigeria. "The letter says Prince Shedreck Ibi is a government official who stole $30 million," explained Gerringer. He will share the money when he gets out of Nigeria, added the investigator. There is a ring of truth because the address, telephone and fax probably are real, added Gerringer. "This kind of scam has run off and on for years from Nigeria," he continued. "Sometimes they hire Nigerian college students to address the letters and they may even hand deliver them," Gerringer said. The scam is conducted by mail, also, he said. Names often are picked up from telephone books and city directories. "The whole thing plies on the greed of people," said Gerringer. The letter asks for banking information, which could result in withdrawals from accounts by the perpetrators of the scam. Investigations are being conducted by state and federal authorities, including the U.S. Postal Service, as well as county officials, Gerringer said. Gerringer said persons receiving letters such as described are asked to turn them over to him.

Bentsen's name now on money

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen had counted 442 days since taking office without seeing his name on U.S. currency. Now the only thing he will likely be counting is the dollars that go into his pocket bearing his signature. "Do you know how much money they've printed with someone else's name?" he asked a crowd of about 200 who gathered at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing's Western Currency Facility on Thursday. Bentsen returned to his native Texas to introduce the money printed with his signature and that of U.S. Treasurer Mary Ellen Withrow. Currency bearing Bentsen's name could not be printed until there was a new treasurer. Ms. Withrow, who joined Bentsen at the ceremony, was sworn in March 1. "I waited 442 days," the former Texas senator told the group, which included numerous family members, political supporters and dignitaries. "I would have gone ahead, but this department required two signatures." Since taking over as treasury head, Bentsen said the country's two plants - in Washington, D.C., and Fort Worth - have printed nearly 11 billion notes worth about $145 billion. Laying end to end, they would make 387 round trips between Dallas-Fort Worth and the nation's capital, he said. Each day, the two plants together print about 35 million notes with a face value of about $465 million. "I surely can't wait to see them cranking out those Bentsen bills," he told the crowd before setting out on a tour of the plant, where he inspected the money, shook hands with workers and signed autographs. One woman handed him an over-sized dollar to sign and apologized that it didn't bear his name. Fifteen-year-old Lloyd Bentsen IV, who accompanied his grandfather on his walk through of the facility, said he plans to collect some of the currency. Bentsen's 12-year-old granddaughter Lori Smith said seeing the Bentsen name in print is really exciting. "We've been waiting for such a long time and finally it's happening," she said.

Damaging radio promotion may actually help libraries

By LINDA LEAVELL
 Associated Press Writer
 DALLAS (AP) - A shocking incident in which money-hungry radio station listeners went barreling through a Fort Worth library ultimately may benefit the lending facilities nationwide, a spokeswoman said. Libraries need more funding - not gimmicks. But the publicity generated by the radio station's stunt may focus new attention on their problems, Fort Worth library spokeswoman Marsha Anderson said Thursday. Officials of radio station KYNG, which calls itself "Young Country," have apologized for the promotional stunt and promised to cover damages. Hundreds of people stormed the downtown library late Tuesday, tossing more than 3,000 books to the floor, after a disc jockey told listeners that the station had planted money there. The disc jockey later said he thought the promotion would be a good way to get people to visit the library. "I think one of the biggest ironies that came out of the situation here in Fort Worth is our budget has been slim for the last couple of years, so certainly the books that we purchased are more treasured than maybe they are during a good budget year," Ms. Anderson said. "We are not unique ... in that situation. It just kind of hurts to watch the product that you are able to afford become airborne." Fort Worth library and KYNG officials came to a proposed settlement Thursday. The station will pay for all damages and expenses, which so far total $2,000 for the 100 books that are irreparably damaged, Ms. Anderson said. The station will donate $10,000 for new books, participate in library promotions and throw a party for library employees to apologize to them, she said. Circulation of library materials and circulation of materials per capita - which are two ways to measure library usage - have increased between 1989 and 1992, according to recently released figures from the Texas State Library. Per capita local government spending has grown from a little over $6 in 1982 to a little over $10 in 1992. "Funding is a lot more important than patronage," said Michael Clark, a spokesman for the Texas State Library. "Libraries are not going begging for people." Keith Swigger, dean of the School of Library and Information Studies at Texas Woman's University, said although per capita funding has increased, the cost of materials has skyrocketed. "So that's the funding crisis," he said. Local officials often propose cutting library, parks and other services they consider "non-essential" during tight fiscal times, experts said. And that's when the facilities are needed most. "Nationwide, when times are bad more and more people turn to the public library for job information, for family entertainment, and all the other things that go along with a poor economic climate," said Pat Woodrum, president of the Public Library Association. Libraries that get the majority of their funding from local governments are facing budget cuts, particularly in the metropolitan areas and on the east and west coasts, Ms. Woodrum said. California is a prime example, she said. According to the California State Librarian's report for fall 1993, public libraries have reduced public service hours by 14 percent, closed 25 facilities and cut library staff by 11 percent. Ms. Woodrum, who is executive director of the Tulsa City-County Library System, said 95 percent of her Oklahoma library system's funding comes from property taxes, which tends to be "one of the most stable ways of financing public libraries that I have seen." In Texas, 7 percent of the money spent on public libraries comes from federal and state sources, or $13 million. Local money provides the rest, Clark said. Statewide, libraries spend about $9 per Texan. The national average is $17.80 per person. "Local funding for major public libraries is pretty well in crisis mode. I mean, libraries don't have enough money to do what they need to do," he said. In addition to providing books and reference materials, libraries increasingly are offering adult education. For example, some offer literacy training, English as a Second Language courses and parenting instruction, Clark said. Also, libraries face the prospect of major capital outlays to buy the new computer technology that will put them on the information superhighway. "We're dealing with libraries statewide that don't have the ability to buy a modem" or pay the telephone bill for one, he said. "It's becoming essential for libraries to be fully automated and fully electronic and that costs a lot of money that they don't have." To combat the funding crisis, said Ms. Woodrum and Clark, libraries are establishing endowments and foundations to raise their own money. These often go beyond the traditional "friends of the library" groups, which mainly provide volunteer services.

Swedish agriculture consultant visits area

BY RICK LANNING
 Staff Writer
 Sweden came to Hereford last week in the form of a blue-eyed, silver-haired retired agricultural consultant named Tore Olbjer. "I feel right at home here in your community," said Olbjer, 70. "People thought Hereford would be boring. It is not. I think what you are doing here with cattle feeding, cotton, and agriculture is very interesting." Olbjer was a guest of Geary and Beth Gearn, owner of Gearn Industries in Summerfield. The Gearns said they were pleased the Swede accepted their invitation to visit Deaf Smith County. "We met him at a dinner party and invited him to spend some time with us," said Mrs. Geary. Geary Industries makes equipment for feed mills. The Gearys visited Sweden last year and enjoyed their stay in the country. Their daughter, Stephanie, is married to a native of Sweden who works for an international marketing firm in Arlington. Olbjer is a graduate of the College of Technology at Gothenburg, Sweden and has a M.S. in civil engineering. He has worked over the years with a Swedish Farmers Cooperative as an advisor and was president and part-owner of an agricultural consulting firm headquartered in Malmoe, Sweden. In 1987, he became a member of the board of the Third Generation University at Lund, Sweden, which was responsible for courses in ecology and botany. As an agricultural consultant, Olbjer was involved in many different programs involving food and feed production. He worked closely with grain elevators, flour and feed mills, bakeries, slaughterhouses, dairies, and meal processing plants. The Swede praised Hereford and Deaf Smith County for its "incredible feed lots...what you have is unique in the world." Olbjer is a widower who has two grown sons. His wife passed away 18 months ago. What impressed him most about Hereford? "The Deaf Smith County Museum, the Cowgirls Hall of Fame, and the friendliness of Texans," he said. "I have seen 'Annie, Get Your Gun' many, many times. "I never realized until I came here that she was a real person." He appreciated the Deaf Smith County Museum, he said, "because you are trying to conserve tradition. I think this is very useful for generations to come."

Coming in Sunday's Brand
 So you say you don't know where the Seychelles Islands are - or even how to pronounce them? Well, ask Hereford's Josh Coneway. He didn't know either, until he spent time there as part of recent U.S. Navy duty in Somalia. On Sunday, Coneway recalls his time in and around Somalia and tells what it was like seeing the embattled city of Mogadishu.

Richards joins safe school compact

State agencies to share violence-fighting programs

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - In hopes of once again making schools a safe place for children, Gov. Ann Richards joined education groups and other state officials in signing a compact to share violence fighting programs.

"This compact is so significant because it says out loud that we've all come to an agreement about how we're going to survive together and how we're going to support each other," Richards said Thursday after signing the Compact for Safe Schools along with members of the State Board of Education, Texas Juvenile Probation Commission and representatives of 14 education associations.

Carolyn Bell - representing the education groups, which include teachers, administrators, board members and business people - said the compact is a starting point to unite educators and residents in each school district to fight violence. Local compacts are envisioned to address specific problems in different communities.

The document also is meant to be a focus for state-level efforts to share information about local programs that work, push revision of education laws to give educators more flexibility in making schools safer and secure funding for such proposals as alternative programs for violent and expelled students.

"We've got to find a place to get our kids out of the hurricane. They cannot learn in a hurricane," said Ms. Bell, vice president of the Fort Worth Independent School District board.

She said she has discovered first-hand that violence "is no longer a random specter that invades the lives of people that we don't know." Her mother was brutally murdered in Tyler nearly a decade ago, and she herself was attacked in her Fort Worth home about four years ago.

Richards, who with other state leaders has said there won't be a tax increase for government services in the next two-year budget period, said she didn't know whether funding would specifically be set aside for alternative campuses. She said that's a part of overall school budget considerations.

The compact also calls for a special fund to support necessary security improvements in school districts. But John Cole of the Texas Federation of Teachers, one of the groups signing it, said "90 percent of what we're talking about can be done with what we have, if we just have the backbone to stand up and do it."

John Stevens of the Texas Business and Education Coalition agreed that more money alone isn't the answer.

The key is for school systems to establish clear standards for acceptable behavior, and to enforce those standards with the support of parents and others in each community, he said.

Texas Classroom Teachers

Association President Carol Barrett also stressed the need for more teacher training to deal with violence.

More than 86 percent of teachers surveyed last year by the Texas Federation of Teachers said school violence is more of a problem now than five years ago, with more than a third saying they had significant problems in their classrooms.

A Texas Education Agency report presented Thursday to the Education Board and Juvenile Probation Commission noted that survey. But it said there are no uniform national or state data for school crimes and disciplinary problems.

The Texas Department of Public Safety and Education Agency are discussing putting in place a uniform crime reporting system for Texas school districts. Nine school districts in a pilot program in 1992 reported a total of 2,479 crimes, with 1,932 of them larceny or theft.

Prison official criticizes audit showing 5,000 beds available

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - A state prison official is critical of an audit that says 5,500 more inmates could be housed in Texas prisons without violating a federal settlement in a longrunning prison lawsuit.

The audit released Thursday by the state comptroller's office says additional prisoners could be moved into the prison system to help alleviate the backlog of 29,000 state inmates in overcrowded county jails.

The 400-page audit described the Texas Department of Criminal Justice as a "troubled giant" beset with mismanagement.

Comptroller John Sharp said recommendations in the audit would save the state $737 million over the next five years.

Allan Polunsky of San Antonio, a member of the Criminal Justice Board, strongly disagreed with Sharp.

"The vast majority of beds that Mr. Sharp has referred to are in the scope of the Ruiz judgment, and we are therefore prohibited from using them," Polunsky said.

The longrunning Ruiz lawsuit, which forced improvements in the state prison system, was settled last year.

"Sharp knows we cannot use those beds. It is a great disservice and is nothing more than political demagoguery," Polunsky said.

Sharp said Texas Attorney General Dan Morales told him that the Ruiz settlement would not preclude the use of those prison beds. He accused Polunsky of being one of the problems in the criminal justice system.

The release of the audit caused political explosions in the Capitol.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Pete Laney said the recommendations wouldn't provide immediate relief and could re-open the Ruiz lawsuit.

"Anytime you re-enter a lawsuit, there is the possibility of losing as much as winning," they said.

"The most important thing to remember is that we want state control of our penitentiary and prison system. We have been through a situation where we have been under the thumb of the federal court and we do not want to return to that position," she said.

Carol Vance, chairman of the Texas Board of Criminal Justice, said there are no extra beds in the prison system. Some of the audit recommendations, such as putting two gang members in one cell, are questionable, he said.

Under the federal prison lawsuit settlement, the state has agreed to isolate in single cells prisoners who are dangerous to the staff, themselves or others.

landfill rather than comply with expensive requirements set down by the Environmental Protection Agency and supervised by the Texas Natural Resources Conservation Commission.

Nolen said the regulations - known as Subtitle D of the Resource Conservation and Reclamation Act - required Hereford to lay a 2-1/2-foot clay liner, dig groundwater monitoring wells and install a system to collect the liquid that oozes from decomposing trash.

Rather than pay an estimated $250,000 for the upgrades, Nolen said, the city chose to start hauling its garbage elsewhere.

"Everybody is apprehensive when they're forced to go private," said Matt Marrs, director of physical planning for the Nortex Regional Planning Commission in Wichita Falls. "Once you close and get rid of your vehicles, it leaves no option for the future. It's scary."

Eighteen months ago in Marrs' region, 32 landfills were open. Today there are four.

Ron Bond, director of the municipal waste division of the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission in Austin, says the expense and liability of Subtitle D drove many smaller dumps out of operation.

The number of landfills in Texas has fallen from about 800 three or four years ago, to 411 in mid-1993, and to 247 at Bond's last count.

Furthermore, he said, state officials anticipate an average 30 percent increase in costs of trash disposal.

"A lot of times you hear of the negative impacts in terms of cost and convenience," Bond said. "But the major impact will be the protection of our groundwater supplies."

But long-term benefits won't be easy to measure: "It's hard to say, 'Golly, we saved an aquifer today,'" Bond said.

Robin Woods, an EPA spokeswoman in Washington, declined to speculate how many landfills will close nationwide because of Subtitle D.

than 25 inches of rain falls a year, and where less than 20 tons of trash is dumped daily. Such places - mostly west of Abilene and San Angelo - run less risk of contaminating the groundwater through seepage.

Twenty applications are pending for new landfill permits in Texas, he said.

Malcolm Laing, a TNRCC field investigator, practically runs out of breath listing the Lubbock-area landfills that closed recently.

"It requires a change in thinking and a change in planning," Laing said. "Most people were used to the idea that they could take it (garbage) down the street and around the corner."

Yet officials had years to prepare, he said. "I'm real pleased with the way the city and county officials have accepted it. They may or may not have liked it, but for the most part they have complied."

Governor protesting power plant

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards says she has told Mexican officials she is concerned about a coal-fired power plant outside of Piedras Negras in Coahuila.

"The last time I was in Mexico ... I told them that the construction of that plant in its present configuration was totally unacceptable to us," Richards said Thursday.

It is the second such plant in the area. The National Park Service says when it is fully operational, emissions from the two plants could reduce visibility in Big Bend National Park by 60 percent, according to the Sierra Club.

"I told the Mexican leadership that I saw that that plant either is going to have to have scrubbers installed that is going to clean up the emissions, or they are going to have to examine a way in which the fuel that they are using, which is coal, be combined with some other clean-burning fuel," she said.

"I'm going to be pretty tough on this issue because we all breathe the same air. The accident of a river does not make that any different," Richards said. She said if persuasion doesn't work, provisions in the North American Free Trade Agreement would give the state recourse.

In a related matter, the Texas Railroad Commission re-opened a hearing on a proposed permit application by Dos Republicas Inc. to build and operate a 3,000-acre strip mine outside of Eagle Pass, Texas. The coal from the mine is to be supplied to the plants near Piedras Negras.

The hearing was re-opened at the request of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and a rancher who said a previous hearing did not include information about endangered cat species and the proposal's effect on ground water.

Herd upsets No. 5 Harvesters

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

First Randall was favored to win the District 1-4A baseball title after winning two tournaments and going into district with a 12-3 record.

Then Pampa announced its presence by beating state-ranked Randall in the district opener.

So, now who's the favorite?

Hereford dumped fifth-ranked Pampa 7-1 Thursday in Pampa behind the pitching of Andrew Tijerina and the hitting of Chris Vallejo. The win gives Hereford an early 2-0 lead in district play--though Borger also is 2-0--and improved the Herd's overall record to 8-8.

Coach J.J. Villarreal said the win would give the Herd confidence--"Any time you're 2-0 in district, it gives you confidence," he said--but he stopped short of proclaiming his team the new district favorite, saying they'd play them "one at a time."

Tijerina went the distance on the mound, allowing only four hits and striking out 10.

"He hit spots. He was on," Villarreal said. "He and the catcher (Scott Ahola) worked real well together."

Vallejo, the second baseman, went 3-for-3 with 3 runs batted in. His two run double in the second inning gave Tijerina all he needed.

In the second, Ahola doubled, Josh Tice walked and Ronald Torres singled to load the bases. Vallejo's double drove Ahola and Tice home.

Pampa came back with a run in the bottom of the second, but Hereford got the run back when Jacob Lopez reached on an error and came around to score on Ahola's sacrifice fly.

Hereford exploded for four runs in the fourth. Stacey Sanders, Torres and Vallejo all singled, with Sanders scoring on Vallejo's hit.

Villarreal ordered a squeeze play with Tanner Murphey at the plate and Torres at third. It worked, scoring Torres. It worked so well that Murphey was credited with a single, and the pitcher overthrew first on the play, allowing Vallejo to score.

Murphey went to second on the error and scored on two wild pitches.

Ahola and Torres both went 2-for-3, and Lopez went 2-for-4.

Next up for Hereford is Caprock (1-1, 7-9), which drubbed Dumas 18-8 on Thursday. The Herd will host the Longhorns at 1 p.m. Saturday at Whiteface Field. The schools' junior varsity teams will make it a doubleheader by playing after the varsity game.

Soccer tourney set here

The 1994 Soccer Inauguration tournament will be played Sunday at two sites in Hereford.

Hereford's own Milan Soccer Club, the defending champions of the tournament, will play, as will five others: Sanpdoria of Friona; Excel of Plainview; Rayos of Bovina; Juventos of Friona; and Cruz Azul of Clovis, N.M.

The tournament will start with the Inauguration ceremony at 11 a.m. Sunday at 15th St. and Ave. I. Play will begin at noon at that site and at 15th St. and Ave. C.

The Hereford team will play its first game at noon at the Ave. I site.

Cowboys sign Johnston, Newton to long contracts

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The world champion Dallas Cowboys have taken a big step toward keeping their team mostly intact by signing fullback Daryl Johnston and offensive guard Nate Newton to multi-year contracts.

Faced with losing both players to other clubs, owner Jerry Jones departed from his past strategy by spending money rather than time in negotiations to retain the two Pro Bowl offensive stars.

The Cowboys offered Johnston a three-year, $4.2 million contract Thursday, making him the highest-paid fullback in NFL history, including a $1.8 million signing bonus. Newton got a three-year, $3.46 million contract with a $1 million signing bonus.

The twin signings mean the two-time defending Super Bowl champions now have seven of their eight offensive Pro Bowl players from last season under contract - all but center Mark Stepnoski.

Besides Johnston and Newton, the five other 1993 offensive Pro Bowl players under contract to the Cowboys are running back Emmitt Smith, quarterback Troy Aikman, wide receiver Michael Irvin, tight end Jay Novacek and tackle Erik Williams.

After head coach Jimmy Johnson quit last week and was replaced by Barry Switzer, Johnston had said he probably would be with another team next season.

The Washington Redskins, whose new coach is Norv Turner, the Cowboys' offensive coordinator last season, had made a big push to sign Johnston.

The Cowboys' offer to Johnston was said to be similar in terms of total value to the Redskins' offer. But the Cowboys' signing bonus was hefty, more than the $1 million that Washington proposed.

"That says a lot about commitment,"

Mize takes early lead at Masters

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) - Chip Beck was heavily criticized for not going for the green with his second shot on the par-5 15th last year in the Masters.

Twelve months and one Masters round later, some of the world's best players were going for that green on their fourth, fifth and sixth shots.

Larry Mize, the first-round leader in the first Grand Slam event of 1994 wound up on the green in four uncomfortable strokes.

"I didn't want to hit my fourth shot," Mize said Thursday after extracting a 4-under-par 68 from the glass-slick greens and diabolical pin placements on the Augusta National Golf Club.

"I just didn't want to hit it," he repeated with emphasis and sincerity.

But he had no option. So, after fussing and fretting and fuming, Mize played a delicate little pitch to about 13 feet and two-putted for a bogey.

Guess what. He was delighted to escape with the fat 6.

After all, that wasn't so bad compared to the five 7s, two 8s, two 9s and a solitary 10 that hole inflicted on the international field of 86.

The 500-yard hole, more or less straightaway, with a shallow green guarded by a pond, was the pivotal point of the first round.

From the lead, Tom Watson hit one in the water and made an 8.

"A humbling game," Watson said.

Needing a birdie for the lead, Tom Kite reached the green in two shots, then three-putted for par.

Going for the lead, Greg Norman went for the green in two and hit it in the water. He had to make an 18-footer for par.

Of the leaders, only South African Fulton Allem had any appreciable success on the hole. He chipped to 15 feet and made the putt for birdie.

Allem, who now resides and plays most of his golf in the United States, and Kite shared second at 69. With Mize, they were the only players to break 70.

Watson, Norman, Ray Floyd, Seve Ballesteros of Spain, Vijay Singh of Fiji and Tom Lehman made up the group at 70.

Some of the game's great names were scattered behind them. Defending title-holder Bernhard Langer of Germany and Nick Price of Zimbabwe each shot 74. English ace Nick Faldo had a 76. And old foes Jack Nicklaus, 54, and Arnold Palmer, 64, each shot 78.

Mize, who beat Ballesteros and Norman with his magical playoff pitch-in for this title in 1987, came back from his bogey on the 15th with a 9-iron to 8 feet on the 17th. His birdie put him in the lead.

He preserved it with a 12-foot par putt on the last hole. The save of par was important he said; the save of the lead less so.

"It's fun to be leading," Mize said, "but I'm not even thinking about that, not with three rounds to go. I'm pleased with the job I did out there, but there's a lot of work yet to be done."

As opposed to the rest of the leaders, he had no complaints about the pin placements.

"I didn't come off the course thinking the pins were tough," he said.

Watson did. He rattled off a list of 12 which he said were the toughest possible.

Correction: Smith omitted

was inadvertently left out of the caption.

The other members of the team are Stewart Carr, Paul Delgado, Kevin Wingett, Russell Carr, Weston Wilcox, Cody Marsh and Mathew Northcutt. The team's coaches are Kim Wilcox and Karen Marsh.

Nuggets rise up against Sonics

By The Associated Press
Are the Denver Nuggets feeling the pressure from the Los Angeles Lakers in the Western Conference playoff race?

Actually, they are more concerned with what will happen if they reach the postseason and have to play Seattle in the first round.

The Nuggets saw the Magic Johnson-led Lakers trim a 6-1/2-game deficit for the conference's eighth playoff to 2-1/2 games going into Thursday night's game at Denver against the SuperSonics, who have the NBA's best record.

But the Nuggets broke open a close game in the final minutes to beat the Sonics 104-90, ending their nine-game winning streak and Denver's four-game losing streak.

"We knew they would want to send a message to us," Denver's Robert Pack said. "So we had to come out and play hard. We got our intensity level up in the second quarter and we were able to continue it through the end of the game. I hope we sent a message to them. We knew we would have to play ferocious defense and we really responded with great intensity."

Reggie Williams led all scorers with 24 points for the Nuggets. Shawn Kemp had 20 points, 12 rebounds and seven blocks, while Gary Rayton scored 17 points for Seattle.

Dikembe Mutombo had his third triple-double of the season with 13 rebounds, 13 points and 11 of Denver's 15 blocked shots.

Nuggets coach Dan Issel was ejected with two technicals with 2:02 remaining in the first period, and the Sonics led 24-16 after the free throws.

But Denver responded to assistant coach Gene Littles' direction to hold Seattle to 38.8 percent shooting.

"Our players stepped it up after Dan got kicked out. This is probably the team we will play in the playoffs, so it was a real big win," Littles said. "We already had our game plan in place, so we didn't change much after Dan left. We just stepped up our level of play the last three quarters."

Seattle coach George Karl was disappointed.

"We ran out of the attitude we need to win on the road. We're one of the best shooting teams in the league, but we haven't been shooting well for the past couple of games," Karl said.

Jazz 99, Mavericks 82

Utah beat Dallas for the fifth straight time this season behind Karl Malone's 25 points and Felton Spencer's 17 points and 14 rebounds.

The Jazz, winning for just the third time in 12 games, held the Mavericks to 38 percent shooting from the floor. Malone scored 18 points in the first half, which ended with Utah ahead 52-38 after Dallas scored just 12 points in the second quarter.

Jamal Mashburn and Sean Rooks scored 14 points apiece for the visiting Mavs.

Rockets 134, Warriors 102

Houston set a franchise record by making 12 of 17 3-pointers, and Hakeem Olajuwon had 26 points, 13 rebounds and 10 assists in the rout of Golden State.

The Rockets, whose previous high in points this season came in a 128-112 victory over Washington on March 21, extended their Central Division lead to one game over San Antonio as Robert Horry and Otis Thorpe scored 21 points apiece.

Billy Owens scored 21 points and Chris Mullin 19 for the Warriors.

Knicks 97, Cavaliers 94, OT

New York won its ninth straight home game and completed its first season sweep of Cleveland in 12 years when Derek Harper hit his second 3-pointer of overtime with 6.7 seconds left.

Harper finished with 22 points and Charles Oakley had a season-high 24 points and 15 rebounds for the Knicks.

Nets 93, Hawks 87

New Jersey pulled into a tie with Indiana for seventh place in the East and extended its margin over ninth-place Charlotte to 5 games with a victory over Atlanta.

Derrick Coleman had 24 points and 13 rebounds for the Nets. Kevin Willis led the visiting Hawks, who lost for the third time in four games, with 18 points and 12 rebounds.

Yankees stomp on Rangers, 18-6

By The Associated Press
Not in decades had so few seen the Yankees score so much in Yankee Stadium.

"It's kind of like stepping on their necks when they were down," Mike Gallego said. "That's what we tried to do."

New York scored in each of the first seven innings Thursday and routed the Texas Rangers 18-6. The last time the Yankees scored that many runs in Yankee Stadium was a 19-1 victory against the Washington Senators on April 13, 1955, when the Dodgers were beating Pittsburgh 6-1 at Ebbets Field.

Not that many fans will remember Thursday's big win. Just 5,851 showed up for the makeup of Wednesday's rainout, the smallest crowd at Yankee Stadium since Oct. 4, 1972, when just 5,210 attended a game against the Milwaukee Brewers.

"We had a good offensive ballclub last year," said Danny Tartabull, who drove in four runs. "They know we're coming."

Five Texas pitchers walked nine and hit a batter. Kenny Rogers, the Rangers' leader in wins last year with 16, was chased after three-plus innings. He allowed eight earned runs and nine hits.

"We were absolutely brutal today," Texas Rangers manager Kevin Kennedy said. "We'll come back tomorrow, but I'm real disappointed."

Mike Gallego homered twice, and Bernie Williams hit a three-run homer, just the ninth drive into the centerfield bleachers since Yankee Stadium reopened in 1976.

"I thought the 13th and 14th runs we scored were big runs," Yankees manager Buck Showalter said. "They had the momentum coming back to 12-6."

Texas, which led 1-0, trailed 12-1 before closing with five runs in the sixth.

"I have some concern. I'm not liking what I'm seeing with my pitching," Kennedy said. "They didn't throw particularly well in the spring and then this happened."

Terry Mulholland won in his Yankees' debut, allowing six runs and seven hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Red Sox 9, Tigers 6

Mike Greenwell, Andre Dawson and Tim Lincecum homered as Boston completed a season-opening, three-game sweep at Fenway Park.

Cecil Fielder and Dan Bautista hit two-run drives for Detroit, and Lou Whitaker hit a solo shot.

Danny Darwin (1-0) allowed three runs and seven hits in five innings, and Greg Harris got six outs for the save. Tim Belcher (0-1) was chased after 3 1-3 innings. He gave up five runs and nine hits.

Twins 7, Angels 4

Scott Erickson gave up 11 hits in the Metrodome, but still helped Minnesota to its first victory. Dave Winfield drove in three runs and Kirby Puckett two for the Twins, who lost their first two games to California by a combined 12-3.

Erickson allowed 14 runners in 6 1-3 innings, but escaped trouble until allowing two runs in the seventh. It was his 50th career victory.

Mark Guthrie allowed Chili Davis' two-run homer, and Rick Aguilera pitched two innings of one-hit relief for the save.

Loser Chuck Finley allowed six runs - five earned - and eight hits in 4 2-3 innings.

Brewers 12, Athletics 2

Bill Wegman won his first game since May 30, and John Jaha and Kevin Seitzer both hit two-run homers at County Stadium.

Wegman allowed only an unearned run and five hits in seven innings. A's starter Ron Darling allowed five runs and eight hits in four-plus innings.

Indians 6, Mariners 2

Winner Jack Morris pitched five scoreless innings before faltering in the sixth as he made his Indians debut.

The game was the first at night under the vertical, toothbrush-shaped lights at Jacobs Field.

Eddie Murray hit the Indians' first home run of the season, driving it over the 19-foot-high wall in left leading off the seventh.

Loser Chris Bosio gave up five runs - three unearned - and eight hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Marlins blank Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The Florida Marlins led the National League last season with 64 one-run games, 37 of which they lost.

So it is no surprise their first three games of 1994 have been decided by one run. After opening with two losses, they finally came out on the plus side, beating the Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0 Thursday night behind the strong pitching of Chris Hammond and Bryan Harvey and the hustle of Jerry Browne.

"They're only encouraging if you win," manager Rene Lachemann said. "It's nice to get No. 1 under our belts. We did not score enough in this series, but we pitched well."

In other games in the National League on Thursday, the Atlanta Braves completed a sweep of their four-game series with the San Diego Padres by winning 10-8 in 11 innings, and the Philadelphia Phillies made it three straight against Colorado, outslugging the Rockies 13-8.

Hammond (1-0) scattered four hits over 7 2-3 innings, coming within four outs of his first shutout in 80 major league starts. Harvey came on with Mike Piazza at bat and the tying run at first, and retired all four batters he faced for his first save of the season.

"Chris went out there, pitched his butt off and kept us in it the whole night," said Jeff Conine, who drove in the only run with a first-inning infield single. "It's too bad we couldn't have put together a little more offense for him, but he made it stand up."

Browne scored all the way from second on a grounder in the hole by Conine that second baseman Delino DeShields chased down on the outfield grass. Browne kept coming and beat DeShields' throw to the plate.

The game marked the major league debut of 21-year-old Dodgers reliever Darren Dreifort, the second player chosen overall in the June 1993 draft. Dreifort retired the Marlins in order in the ninth.

Dreifort, wearing the same No. 37 he wore when he pitched Wichita State to the final game of the 1993 College World Series, came on in relief of Ramon Martinez (0-1), who allowed six hits over eight innings and struck out 10.

Braves 10, Padres 8, 11 innings

At San Diego, the Braves finished off their sweep when David Justice drove in the go-ahead run with an 11th-inning single.

San Diego rallied from a 4-0 deficit, then blew a 7-4 lead. The Braves scored two unearned runs in the eighth, then tied it in the ninth on Gene Harris' wild pitch.

In the 11th, Mike Kelly doubled off rookie A.J. Sager, Fred McGriff was intentionally walked and Justice singled. Following Terry Pendleton's intentional walk, rookie Javier Lopez hit a sacrifice fly.

Phillies 13, Rockies 8

At Denver, Philadelphia won its third straight over Colorado. Mariano Duncan's go-ahead, three-run homer keyed a five-run seventh inning.

Colorado rallied from a 4-0 deficit with five runs in the sixth for an 8-6 lead. But in the seventh, pinch-hitter Tony Longmire reached on an error, Lenny Dykstra singled off and loser Steve Reed relieved. He promptly gave up Duncan's homer. Ricky Jordan tripled and scored on Dave Hollins' sacrifice fly. Kevin Stocker added an RBI single.

Andres Galarraga and Dante Bichette homered for the Rockies. Darren Daulton hit a wind-blown, two-run homer for the Phillies.

How's this for star-gazing?

Indianapolis hires Harbaugh

By HANK LOWENKRON
AP Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Bill Tobin has reached back to his past as he continues to give a new look to the Indianapolis Colts.

Hired to rebuild a team that finished 4-12 last year, the former Chicago Bears executive decided former Chicago quarterback Jim Harbaugh can help get the job done. Harbaugh, 30, was headed to Indianapolis today to take a physical and sign a contract. Coach Ted Marchibroda wants him signed early so that he can participate in next month's mini-camp and be familiar with the offense when training camp begins.

Meanwhile, the Colts released veteran quarterback Jack Trudeau on Thursday.

Harbaugh accepted a contract that included a $200,000 signing bonus and a $700,000 salary for 1994, said his agent, Leigh Steinberg.

The 6-foot-3, 215-pound Harbaugh started 15 games last year. He became an unrestricted free agent on March 16 when he was waived by the Bears.

Harbaugh posted a 35-30 record as a starter in seven seasons with Chicago and ranks second to Sid Luckman in Bears history with 11,567 passing yards. His 74.2 quarterback rating is the third-highest in Chicago history.

"He played very well for the Bears. They decided to go in another direction and I feel fortunate we were able to get Jim," Tobin said.

The release of Trudeau, who was scheduled to receive approximately $1.2 million in 1994, and the recent trade of Jeff George to Atlanta leaves Don Majkowski as the only other quarterback on the team's roster.

The Colts have the second and seventh picks in the draft.

"Signing Jim doesn't change a thing as we prepare for the draft. It's our plan to take the player we feel is the best on the board and won't jump around to pick the best player for a specific position," Tobin said, adding he didn't anticipate making a trade involving the second pick.

COWBOYS

ment because, in effect, they've guaranteed 40 percent of the contract," said John Maloney, Johnston's agent.

Maloney said the Cowboys signed Johnston solely because they knew he was prepared to travel to Washington or Pittsburgh if they failed to reach an agreement Thursday.

"I consider this the place I wanted to be. I hoped this is how it would turn out," Johnston said. "There were times when I was nervous it wouldn't happen like this, and I would have to pick up and make a change."

Newton became impatient waiting for the Philadelphia Eagles to make an offer they promised for weeks. He said he was concerned that interested teams were approaching the salary cap.

"The market was dropping. Nobody was getting money," Newton said. "We called this morning and told them we wanted to get it over with. Maybe I could have had $1.3 million or $1.4 million somewhere. But what's the point? I know what I will have in Dallas. I know what the offense can do for me in Dallas."

Newton added: "I'm not a contract buster. All I wanted was market value, and $1.2 (million) is market value right now."

The Cowboys, who ranked second in the league in available money for players Thursday morning at $6.3 million, now have $3.7 million remaining under a $34.2 million NFL salary cap to compete for three other unsigned starters.

Those are Stepnoski, offensive lineman Kevin Gogan and linebacker Ken Norton.

"The No. 1 priority we've had is to keep this great championship team together. Daryl and Nate are certainly integral parts of that. This was our first big free-agency test, and we were sitting here with the resources to handle it," Jones said.

"The NFL could wake up and see the two-time defending champion Dallas Cowboys have retained the most continuity in the league," Jones said.

The Cowboys lost four players to free agency earlier in the off-season - Jimmie Jones, John Gesek, Tony Casillas and Eddie Murray. Steve Beuerlein and Kelvin Martin left after the 1992 season.

Johnston has been with the Cowboys since 1989 and has not missed a game during that five-year span, encompassing 86 straight games.

His popularity became evident last season, as fans yelled his nickname, "Moose," in unison every time he carried the ball.

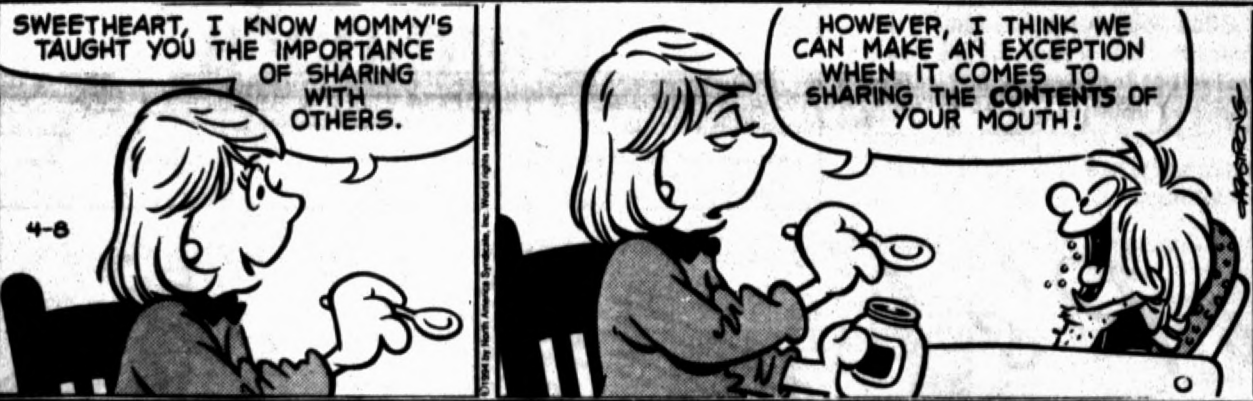

Last season was one of his finest. He finished third on the team with a career-high 50 receptions and was fifth in the NFC in receptions among running backs, trailing Herschel Walker (75), Larry Centers (66), Edgar Bennett (59) and Smith (57).

With 140 regular-season receptions and 1,146 yards, Johnston is second to Smith among active Cowboys running backs in both catches and yardage. His eight career TD catches are the fourth-highest active total on the team.

You can help environment

Cleaner air, less damage from floods and many more environmental benefits come from planting trees, experts agree.

That's why the Community Tree Planting Program of the National Tree Trust is so important.

The Trust, a non-profit group created as part of the 1990 "America the Beautiful" campaign, receives seedlings from a coalition of forest product companies across the country which makes up its Tree Bank. These seedlings are generally one year old and can be either plug or bareroot. The Trust will provide volunteer groups with an available species list and their general seed source.

If appropriate seedling stock is not available from the Tree Bank, the Trust will work with a local volunteer agency to arrange for the collection, processing and storage of suitable seeds for the region. The nurseries participating in the Tree Bank will receive the seeds, plant them and raise the seedlings. The seedlings will then be used for the Community or Highway Tree Planting Program in the region where the seeds were collected.

For additional information about the National Tree Trust and how you can help, call 1-800-846-TREE.

Golda Meir became prime minister of Israel in 1969.

A nursery is available. For additional information, call 364-5874.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am in my mid-40s and have been happily married for almost 20 years to "Dan," who I thought was the perfect man. One day out of the blue, he was arrested. Dan was tried and convicted of molesting my 8-year-old niece. When I asked him how he could have done such a thing, he said it was a very strong compulsion he was unable to control.

Dan was sentenced to 20 years, with a 10-year suspension. With good behavior, he could be out in five. His trial was extremely hard on me. But I managed to keep from collapsing and promised I would wait for him.

After thinking about the ordeal he has put me through and considering all the advice I received from relatives and friends, I am not sure I can or SHOULD wait for him. I've done a lot of reading on child molestation and now realize that Dan has probably molested other children and will most likely do it again.

Ann, I am well aware that what Dan did was not normal. Is this a sickness or what? I'm confused and don't know what to do. Five years is a long time to put my life on hold for a man who might never be cured. I don't want to make a decision in haste. Please help me.--Depressed in Arkansas

DEAR ARKANSAS: Your husband does indeed have an illness. It is called pedophilia, which is a sexual preference for children. And you are right when you say Dan has probably done it before and will most likely do it again.

I checked with a sex therapist and was told that you should get counseling from an authority in this field. You need to thoroughly understand the nature of your husband's problem.

The therapist also said it can be managed if Dan is willing to take a drug that will reduce his sexual urges drastically. A physician must prescribe it. This drug, of course, will put an end to any sexual activity with you. It's a tough call. I wish you luck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you please tell me why salespeople are more interested in customers who call on the phone than those who are right in front of them with money?

It seems no department is better or worse than any other. Have you ever been standing at a counter with your purchase in hand, waiting to pay, when the phone rings? When this happens, you are immediately relegated to second place. The phone call becomes the first priority.

I have started to mount my own war against this indignity. I immediately tell the salesperson that if a potential customer is more important than a paying customer, I can take my business elsewhere. I have walked out several times, leaving the items I intended to buy.

What do you think, Ann? Am I being dumb about this? I realize that the phone is a business tool, but I'd like to hear the caller told, "I have a customer. Please wait or call back."--Elgin, S.C.

DEAR ELGIN: I agree it is rude (and foolish) to give a phone call preference over a customer who is right there.

Would I walk out? Not if I really wanted the item. It could be sold within minutes and may not be available at another store. I see nothing smart about cutting off your nose to spite your face.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This article ran in the Fort Lauderdale Sun-Sentinel recently. I hope you will print it to show your young readers that honesty is appreciated and can pay off.--Harold in Florida

DEAR FLORIDA: News stories such as the one you sent are especially gratifying at a time when we are reading too much about dishonesty, greed and crime. Thanks for the lift. Here it is:

Teen Learns That Honesty Pays

"On his way to a school bus stop with a friend, 12-year-old Evan Dobkin found a red wallet stuffed with $1,100 and 10 credit cards.

"His friends urged him to keep the money. But Evan turned over the wallet to a security guard at the Flamingo Villas Townhomes where he lives.

"Susan Wilkinson, a tourist from Columbus, Ohio, had lost the wallet. 'I was sick about it,' she said. 'That was all the money I had.'

"Evan, a seventh-grader at Walter C. Young Middle School, paid the price for being honest. 'The kids on the bus called me stupid because they said I should have kept the money,' Evan said. 'They just couldn't understand why I had given the money back, and they teased me about it all day.'

"While Evan took heat from his friends, Wilkinson and her husband, William, were getting good news from the security guard. They were visiting their daughter in the Flamingo Villas complex.

"I was amazed," Wilkinson said. 'I couldn't believe that this little boy had been so honest.'

"The Wilkinsons gave Evan a $100 reward."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am tired of hearing and reading about people with cancer -- how brave, courageous, noble and gallant they are. Often they are described as "heroic." Such flowery language might appeal to those who are seeking martyr status, but it's a real turnoff for me.

We who have cancer simply do what we have to do. We have no choice. We are not brave or courageous. We are scared to death, but we are realistic. We cling to anything to keep us afloat.

My daughter, at the age of 30, was diagnosed with terminal bone cancer. I wasn't brave or courageous. I found that a heart can actually break. But I did what people in my place have always done. I decided I had to keep my head on straight and take care of her.

A year ago, I had a breast removed because of cancer. I am neither brave nor courageous, but again I am doing what I have to do, just as millions of others with cancer are doing. The world is every bit as beautiful as it was before I became ill. I still have the love of friends and family. Every day counted before cancer, and every day counts now. I never thought of death as an enemy or that my pain and sorrow were a special cross I alone carried.

It is embarrassing to have friends and relatives tell me how brave I am and that they don't know how I do it. I want them to know I am one of millions who are doing the only thing we CAN do, and that is keeping going.--Tennessee

DEAR TENNESSEE: What a solid, sensible woman you are. Bless you for your uncommon common sense.

CHICAGO (AP) - Wearing a Chicago Cubs cap, Hillary Rodham Clinton threw out the first ball of the season opener against the New York Mets and accepted a big smooch on the cheek from announcer Harry Caray.

The first lady got a mixture of cheers and boos as she made the right-handed toss from the first row.

During the seventh-inning stretch, Mrs. Clinton and Caray, who is starting his 50th year as a baseball announcer, led the crowd in a rousing "Take Me Out to the Ballgame."

Hints for homemakers

When it comes to making home improvements, expensive and time-consuming activities like painting, wallpapering or building an addition come to mind. Fortunately, however, some of the best home improvement ideas are the simplest.

Switching to rechargeable battery power is a quick and easy home improvement that anyone can make, without the plague of plaster dust and paint fumes. Batteries are a part of virtually every American household; in fact, the average home includes 22 battery-powered items. Today's rechargeable batteries can provide convenient, permanent power for a wide variety of products in the home.

"Rechargeable batteries offer consumers an economical, easy-to-use and reliable power source," says Carol Ebert, director of communications for the Millennium Power System. "By keeping chargers plugged-in in the kitchen, workroom or den, battery power is always readily available at home."

The more than one billion battery-powered products currently in use in the U.S. include everything from children's toys to consumer electronics and portable audio equipment. Rechargeable batteries are best-suited for products that move or make noise, including many of today's most popular gadgets.

"The beauty of rechargeable is that they can be used over and over - up to 1,000 times," Ebert says. "And, Millennium batteries feature a lifetime replacement guarantee so that if they ever fail to accept or hold a charge, the buyer can return them to Millennium for free replacements."

Today, rechargeable batteries are much more than round cells and charges. Millennium, for example, offers a full range of rechargeable power products including Power Cells and Rapidchargers: camcorder, portable phone and hobby power packs; and cellular phone power products.

Adding rechargeable power to the home is an easy improvement everyone can feel good about. So, get a jump on spring home improvement and start simple - invest in a rechargeable power system and always have battery power on hand.

Public Notice

On February 22, 1994, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company ("Southwestern Bell" or "Company") filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("Commission") to restructure the Company's Local Transport and Directory Transport categories of its Switched Access Service. This matter has been assigned to Docket No. 12784. The tariff sheets in Southwestern Bell's application, if approved, will bring the Company's intrastate Access Service Tariff into structural parity with the Company's interstate Tariff No. 73 for Local Transport. Southwestern Bell's companion interstate tariff became effective on January 1, 1994.

The transport rate elements provide for the transmission facilities between the customer's premises and the end office switch(es) where the customer's traffic is switched to originate or terminate the customer's communications.

Southwestern Bell proposes to implement the revised tariffs on a revenue neutral basis. Although the proposed tariff changes will affect all customers subscribing to Switched Access Service, the Local Transport and Directory Transport categories of Southwestern Bell's Switched Access Service is primarily for interexchange carriers. If approved, this application will result in an increase in Southwestern Bell's revenues of approximately $1682.00 during the first year. Southwestern Bell proposes that the changes be effective on December 1, 1994.

Persons who wish to intervene in or comment upon these proceedings should notify the commission as soon as possible, as an intervention deadline will be imposed. A request to intervene or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission's Public Information Office at (512) 458-0256 or (512) 458-0221 for text telephones. The deadline for intervention in the proceeding is May 6, 1994.

You can help environment

Cleaner air, less damage from floods and many more environmental benefits come from planting trees, experts agree.

That's why the Community Tree Planting Program of the National Tree Trust is so important.

The Trust, a non-profit group created as part of the 1990 "America the Beautiful" campaign, receives seedlings from a coalition of forest product companies across the country which makes up its Tree Bank. These seedlings are generally one year old and can be either plug or bareroot. The Trust will provide volunteer groups with an available species list and their general seed source.

If appropriate seedling stock is not available from the Tree Bank, the Trust will work with a local volunteer agency to arrange for the collection, processing and storage of suitable seeds for the region. The nurseries participating in the Tree Bank will receive the seeds, plant them and raise the seedlings. The seedlings will then be used for the Community or Highway Tree Planting Program in the region where the seeds were collected.

For additional information about the National Tree Trust and how you can help, call 1-800-846-TREE.

A nursery is available. For additional information, call 364-5874.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am in my mid-40s and have been happily married for almost 20 years to "Dan," who I thought was the perfect man. One day out of the blue, he was arrested. Dan was tried and convicted of molesting my 8-year-old niece. When I asked him how he could have done such a thing, he said it was a very strong compulsion he was unable to control.

Dan was sentenced to 20 years, with a 10-year suspension. With good behavior, he could be out in five. His trial was extremely hard on me. But I managed to keep from collapsing and promised I would wait for him.

After thinking about the ordeal he has put me through and considering all the advice I received from relatives and friends, I am not sure I can or SHOULD wait for him. I've done a lot of reading on child molestation and now realize that Dan has probably molested other children and will most likely do it again.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

PLAGUES OF THE BIBLE

THE FIRST PLAGUE MENTIONED IN THE BIBLE WAS THAT SENT ON THE PHARAOH OF ABRAHAM'S TIME. IT WAS FOR THE PROTECTION OF SARAH, THE WIFE OF ABRAHAM, (GEN. 12:17) THAT THE EGYPTIAN KING DID NOT MAKE HER HIS WIFE. THE NEXT PLAGUES WERE THE TEN INFLICTED ON THE EGYPTIANS IN MOSES' TIME! THESE WERE INFLICTED TO PERSUADE THE PHARAOH TO LET MOSES AND THE ISRAELITES GO OUT OF EGYPT (EX. 7:14-35) FIRST THE RIVER TURNED TO BLOOD, THEN EGYPT WAS OVERRUN WITH FROGS, THEN THE SPREAD OF PESTILENCES LIKE SAND FLIES, OR FLEAS PRODUCED FROM DUST, THEN SWARMS OF FLIES, THEN BOILS AND SORES ON MAN AND BEAST! THE SEVENTH WAS A DESTRUCTIVE HAILSTORM AND A FLOOD BY THE RIVER NILE! OF COURSE, IT WOUND UP WITH THE DEATH OF ALL FIRST BORN SONS BEFORE PHARAOH WOULD GIVE HIS CONSENT! THERE WERE MORE PLAGUES THROUGHOUT THE HISTORY OF THE ISRAELITES BUT NONE SO SPECTACULAR AS THE TEN PLAGUES OF EGYPT—ALTHOUGH THE PLAGUE VISITED ON THE ISRAELITES, (II SAM. 24) BECAUSE KING DAVID NUMBERED THE PEOPLE AGAINST GOD'S WISHES, WAS SPECTACULAR ENOUGH SO THAT 70,000 PEOPLE DIED!

ALL OF THE EGYPTIAN CATTLE DIE - BUT THE ISRAELITES' CATTLE ARE UNHARMED!

Cable company aiming at having 500 channels

By JEANNINE AVERSA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Two years ago, John Malone, president of the nation's largest cable company, made a bold prediction: In not too many years, TV viewers would have 500 channels to choose from.

On Thursday, Malone's Denver-based Tele-Communications Inc. took a crucial step in that direction when it opened a $100 million facility that, using new technology to "compress" electronic signals, will allow TCI to cram as many as 10 times more channels onto the wires that carry television into the home.

The TCI facility, located in a Denver suburb, will take movies and other programs and convert them into a digital format for delivery to cable systems via satellite and fiber-optic cable. These systems will relay the programs into homes over existing coaxial (twisted copper wire) cables, where a newly designed set-top cable box will reconvert the signals back into the analog format required by today's TV sets.

Some cable programming already is delivered to cable systems in digital format from satellites. But the new system will be able to carry digital signals all the way into the home, which should improve picture and sound quality.

In a few years, when digital TV sets come on the market, cable systems will be able to carry crisp, nearly indestructible digital signals all the way from the movie or TV sound stage to home viewing screens.

"Five years ago, digital TV was sort of a dream," but the rapid pace of technology is making it a reality, Malone said Thursday.

Digital technology converts programs into electronic pulses, using the computer language of ones and zeroes instead of the carrier-wave, analog format, the longtime standard for TV and radio distribution. Digital signals are more precise and less susceptible to interference and other factors that can degrade analog signals.

When compressed - or squeezed down - digital programs take up much less space than comparable analog signals, allowing transmission of far more information over a given TV channel.

TCI initially will compress six digital signals into the space that one analog channel now uses. But the technology has the ability to eventually put 10 digital signals in the space of one analog channel.

Several hundred thousand TCI customers in 23 mostly rural and suburban communities will be the first cable customers to have access to the service in 1995, TCI Senior Vice President Robert Thomson said.

For an extra monthly charge, cable subscribers who want more channels will have to rent a special set-top box to receive programs in the digital format, Malone said. They also will pay a yet-to-be-determined price for 150 to 300 channels that will be offered individually, Malone said. More channels will become available based on demand, he said.

Most small cable systems have 36 to 54 analog channels.

Cable companies, chafing under federal rate regulation, are looking for ways to make money from unregulated services. Because consumers can buy channels offered on TCI's service one at a time, those offerings could qualify as unregulated channels under the Federal Communications Commission's price rules, analysts said.

Richmond, Ind., is the first TCI system targeted for the service. Others are Cheyenne, Wyo.; Wahpeton, N.D.; Grand Island, Neb.; Beaumont, Texas; Durango, Colo.; The Woodlands, Texas; Port Clinton, Ohio; East Lansing, Mich.; Murphysboro, Ill.; Missoula, Mont.; Provo, Utah; North Bend, Wash.; Carson City, Nev.; Cumberland, Md.; Romney, W.Va.; Lebanon, N.H.; West Hartford, Conn.; Lock Haven, Pa.; Drexel-Valdese, N.C.; Clinton, Iowa; Fairhope-Daphne, Ala.; and Dunedin, Fla.

Hosokawa quits in disgrace because of political scandal

By ERIC TALMADGE
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) - Prime Minister Morihiro Hosokawa, who rose to power vowing to clean up Japanese politics, today announced he would resign in disgrace over the very type of money scandal that plagued his predecessors.

Hosokawa's sudden resignation over questionable financial dealings deepened the country's political confusion.

His government, the first from a new party in nearly 40 years, lasted only eight months.

"I have told the leaders of my coalition government and an emergency meeting of the Cabinet of my intention to resign," Hosokawa said today. "I have received their approval."

Hosokawa, mired in a scandal over his personal finances that has paralyzed initiatives in Parliament, would be the fourth of Japan's last five prime ministers to step down because of scandal.

Hosokawa said that although the questions regarding his finances relate to transactions that occurred before he took office, they were "something for which I must take moral responsibility."

"I apologize, and ask for your understanding," he said after the Cabinet meeting. He said he made the decision to step down Thursday night after talking with his wife.

It was unclear when Hosokawa would actually step down. The Japan Broadcasting Corp. said Hosokawa's Cabinet could offer their resignations as early as Saturday. They would then become lame ducks until Parliament approves a successor.

Though no clear successor had emerged, speculation centered on Foreign Minister Tsutomu Hata. Coalition leaders were meeting this evening to discuss the succession.

Hata, who is also deputy prime minister, refused to comment on his own ambitions.

"It's all happened so fast, I haven't had time to think about it," he said. "The most important thing now is to resume our tasks and maintain harmony."

President Clinton, told of Hosokawa's decision, was sorry to hear the news, a spokeswoman said. She said he looked forward to working with the new government.

Japan's political world had been in a state of confusion since two politicians who dined with Hosokawa earlier this week told reporters the beleaguered prime minister said he felt like quitting.

Pantex closes for repairs

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - The disassembly of nuclear bombs at the Pantex Plant has been halted for a monthlong maintenance project.

The Department of Defense suspended its weapons shipments to the facility about 17 miles northeast of Amarillo, officials said Thursday.

Defense spokesman Tom Walton said Pantex's contracting company decided Tuesday to shut down disassembly - and launch maintenance work planned throughout 1994 - after a manager found a faulty filter in an air system designed to trap contamination in case of a nuclear accident.

Walton said Pantex employees will perform maintenance work on devices such as security alarms, radiation detectors and fire suppression tools.

About 2,000 nuclear weapons are expected to be disassembled this year at Pantex.

Troops on rampage in Rwanda

By PAULINE JELINEK
Associated Press Writer
NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) - The death of Rwanda's president in a suspicious plane crash left the country at the mercy of rampaging troops who have killed the acting premier and as many as 11 U.N. soldiers.

Three Cabinet ministers and two Rwandan human rights activists were reported abducted as intense gunfire and explosions echoed across Kigali, the capital.

Seventeen Jesuit Rwandan priests also were reported killed in the bloody aftermath of the crash Wednesday that killed President Juvenal Habyarimana and Burundi's president, Cyprien Ntaryamira, on their return from a peace summit.

Youths bearing machetes and clubs were roaming otherwise empty streets in the Rwandan capital Thursday, and some Rwandans were reportedly being killed in their homes, said U.N. spokesman Mactar Gueye said by telephone.

Acting Prime Minister Agathe Uwilingiyimana was dragged from a U.N. compound and killed by presidential guards in front of U.N. volunteers, U.N. sources said. She had escaped to the compound after soldiers disarmed her U.N. guards as she left home, the sources said.

Soldiers killed 17 Jesuit priests, said Radio France Internationale, citing a witness in the former Belgian trust territory. The radio was monitored by the British Broadcasting Corp.

It was not clear who controlled Kigali, much of which was without electricity late Thursday. Telephone lines to the central African country were jammed this morning.

Rwanda's government said the presidents' plane "was shot down" at Kigali airport "by unidentified elements in circumstances which are still unclear."

Witnesses reported hearing heavy-weapons fire moments before the plane crashed, said the French Embassy in Kigali. U.N. sources could not confirm the cause of the crash.

The presidents were returning from Tanzania after trying to find a solution to ethnic hostilities in both nations. Hutus and Tutsis have been fighting for decades in Rwanda and Burundi.

Rwanda has been torn by divisions among ruling Hutus over a peace accord that Habyarimana, a Hutu, signed in August with rebels of the minority Tutsi tribe last year.

Texas was readmitted to the Union in 1870.

Candidates' final debate marked by unusual twist

By MICHAEL GRACZYK
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) - Democratic Senate candidates Jim Mattox and Richard Fisher broke little new ground in their final face-to-face meeting before next week's runoff election.

But an hour-long debate between the two Thursday had one new twist - a semblance of civility.

"We're at the end of a long road," Fisher said after a tame appearance with Mattox on a phone-in show on Houston radio station KTRH. "We're very close to the finish line."

"I think we're both kind of dog tired," Mattox said when asked about the low-key debate.

Fisher and Mattox fielded more than a dozen questions, spanning diverse topics like the federal deficit, international affairs, Social Security and crime and refrained from much of the mudslinging that has marked a campaign that ends with Tuesday's balloting. The winner will face incumbent Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison.

"I think we've got to get away from the high school politics and showmanship," Fisher said afterwards. "This isn't a game of showmanship. This isn't a television show. This is trying to get elected to the United States Senate."

The Dallas businessman said he thought Mattox had responded to his presence in the race by assuming his position on issues like campaign finance reform. Fisher also said Mattox was concentrating much more on small business issues.

"Win or lose, Jim's come around," Fisher said. "He sounds a little bit more like me. I'm rather happy to see I'm being parroted to an extent."

Mattox, however, denied any turns toward Fisher.

"I think you can go back and check my record," Mattox said. "I don't have to worry about his positions."

"I've been for campaign finance reform since the beginning. I supported the Small Business Administration. I supported setting up and still support setting up a program of selling small business loans into a secondary market. I have specific suggestions of how you do it instead of the kind of nebulous statements that Mr. Fisher likes to make."

In the debate, Mattox did accuse Fisher of flip-flopping on his support for the space station.

"In the last campaign, he opposed it," Mattox said.

Fisher conceded he had altered his stance but said his shift reflected the Clinton administration's changes in the NASA budget.

There was no discussion of personal financial assets, a subject which erupted during a similar joint television appearance earlier this week.

"I think enough has been said about that subject," Fisher said.

"I don't really care how much money Fisher's got," Mattox said. "I don't think there's any doubt he's a very wealthy individual. I think how he got his money is something that can be explored by the press at another time."

"It doesn't appear either one of us really care a whole lot how much either of us has got or don't have. I don't think it makes much difference now."

In other political developments: Gov. Ann Richards made public her 1993 federal income tax return showing she owed $27,639 in taxes on income of $110,645. That includes $94,086 in salary, $4,520 in interest on her savings and $12,039 from mutual funds, her campaign said Thursday.

Because she paid more than she owed in taxes, Richards is due a refund of $1,232, which she asked be applied to her 1994 estimated tax.

The Democratic governor also again released three previous years' tax returns, showing total income of $92,211 for 1990, when she was state treasurer; $101,633 for 1991, her first year as governor; and $102,044 for 1992.

She has made her returns public every year since entering public office as a Travis county commissioner in 1976.

Richards' spokesman, Chuck McDonald, challenged GOP gubernatorial candidate George W. Bush to also release four years of his tax returns.

"Texans know nothing of him and it's time he started letting them know about his personal wealth and how he got it," McDonald said.

Bush campaign spokeswoman Deborah Burstion-Wade said Bush would release tax returns by the federal deadline of April 15. Reggie Bashur, a spokesman for the campaign, said returns would be released for 1991-93.

"To release the last three years appears to be the most appropriate," Bashur said. "Ninety-three is the year he announced for governor, and '91 and '92 cover the years Ann Richards has been in the governor's office."

Border crossing property costs New Mexico $629,954

LAS CRUCES (AP) - The state has paid more than $6,450 an acre for nearly 100 acres needed for a permanent U.S.-Mexico border crossing at Santa Teresa, Gov. Bruce King said.

"We had a hard time getting all of the titles straight," he said Thursday. "But ... we have completed all the transactions of clearing the titles at every level where we can transfer title over to the permanent operation of the port of entry and we will be doing that very quickly."

The state wanted the property to deed to the federal government. It paid $629,954 for 97.65 acres.

The U.S. General Services Administration is to begin building the permanent border crossing facilities this year on the acreage, King said.

The border crossing about nine miles west of El Paso, Texas, opened in January 1993 with temporary, state-owned facilities housing the U.S. Customs Service.

The federal government will build the permanent port of entry, at a cost of about $18 million, adjacent to the temporary facilities, the governor's office said.

The 1994 state Legislature appropriated $631,000 to buy the land originally owned by developer Charles Crowder, the moving force behind development of the Santa Teresa port of entry.

Arthur Waskey, general counsel for the state Highway and Transportation Department, said the land was appraised at about $740,000, while the total value of the liens on the property was about $1.2 million.

Crowder originally had all the acreage, but Paseo del Norte Limited Partnership acquired 49.06 acres subject to a lien, Waskey said in Santa Fe.

Crowder and his wife, Phyllis, had 48.59 acres, Waskey said.

Sarah Pat Pyle, who works in Washington, D.C., held a judgment lien against Crowder and the partnership totaling about $1.1 million plus interest, Waskey said.

CIT Group-Equipment Financing Inc. of Tempe, Ariz., held another judgment lien against Crowder, Waskey said.

Crowder and the partnership agreed to donate the land "if we procured the releases of the liens" held by Pyle and CIT, Waskey said.

"We negotiated with the lien holders to see what we could do to come up with some kind of settlement to release their liens," he said.

The state paid $587,000 to Pyle and $42,954 to CIT to release the liens, Waskey said.

In addition, the partnership kicked in a bit more than one-half of an acre lying between the temporary and permanent border crossing facilities, he said.

The state Board of Finance last August agreed to accept the 97.65 acres contingent on release of the liens, proof of clear titles and review by the attorney general and other state lawyers.

New program targets disadvantaged needs

If you're an economically disadvantaged adult or young person, you can take advantage of a computer learning center at Deaf Smith County Library.

It's part of a new program created by the Community Supervision and Corrections Department's Adult Education and Literacy Program.

The program was recently explained in Hereford at a Kiwanis Club meeting at Hereford Community Center by Kirk Spain Sr., a supervision officer.

Kristi Stubbings, remedial education coordinator for the Panhandle Job Training Partnership in Amarillo, said the computer learning center has 16 computers to serve people who qualify.

Class hours are held in the lower level of the library Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., with an instructor available to provide one-on-one training and group instruction.

Said Stubbings, "The Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) provides basic skills education for those who qualify and there is no cost to the individual.

"JTPA education programs assist economically disadvantaged adults and youth who did not complete high school and who want to build basic skills in reading, writing, and math."

The goal of students enrolled in the program is to get a G.E.D. When the G.E.D. is passed, JTPA is available to help students in a job search or vocational training, either at a post-secondary institution or through on-the-job training.

For more details on the program, call 1-800-477-4562.

The learning center was made possible through the combined efforts of Deaf Smith County officials, the 222nd Judicial District Community Supervision and Corrections Department, Hereford Independent School District, Texas Department of Human Services, Region XVI Education Service Center, and the Panhandle Job Training Partnership.

Tax deadline still facing many Texans

DALLAS -- With under two weeks before the April 15 income tax filing deadline, some 1.3 million North Texas have yet to submit their forms, according to Bobby E. Scott, director of the Dallas District of the Internal Revenue Service.

"Even though many filed earlier than ever before and refund checks are averaging close to $1,150, we expect to be busy helping those who waited," Scott said.

To aid those waiting until the last week, taxpayers may call the IRS assistance lines--1-800-829-1040--between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. this Saturday, April 9.

The IRS office at Texas Stadium also will be in operation during those hours.
