

$16,000 IS TAKEN IN DALLAS HOLD-UP

HOME TOWN TALK

By Beddy

Direct highway connection between Midland and Lamesa has been assured, the Midland newspaper announces. The project is to be completed after five years of effort.

While we attempt to permanently improve state highways we must not overlook the vital position of lateral and county roads. To pay for this road the Martin and Midland county commissioners court and the Midland Chamber of Commerce, to the extent of $600, will put up the necessary cash. The Martin county communities of Tarrant, Badgett, Lenora, Courty and Patricia will be touched by the new road.

Which recalls a sporadic effort of last year to open a more direct traffic way between Big Spring, Andrews, Hobbs and other New Mexico points—an effort that died in its infancy.

We can sit here asleep or quailing over the necessity of adhering to demands of the state highway commission if we wish but so long as we do we assure ourselves that the highways in this county will grow steadily worse.

Another spoke in the wheel that represents the concentration in Big Spring of transportation facilities is represented by the Cotton Belt Lines, a motor bus concern doing interstate business only. C. S. Spelling, regional passenger agent, announced Monday that division headquarters were being moved here from Midland. A garage will be maintained here; drivers will move here; an extra bus will be kept here. Every little bit helps.

We've got one trunk line railroad; two air mail and passenger lines; bus lines in all directions.

When the fight to build the Texas and Pacific Northern has been won and when the highways are paved if ever this will be truly a transportation center. Highways must be provided, however.

$16,487.780 Is Total County Tax Valuation

The tax valuation of Howard county is $16,487.780, it was announced today by J. O. Tamsitt, deputy tax collector.

The tax rolls were approved by the county commissioners, after several changes in assessments.

According to Tamsitt the tax rolls for both state and county are complete, and taxes are ready for collection.

Taxes may be paid until January 31 without penalty. After that date, however, penalties, interest and costs will be enforced.

WOMAN FAILS IN THREAT TO BLOW UP BANK

FORT WORTH, Oct. 20 (AP)—A 33-year-old woman walked into the Union Bank & Trust Co. here today, asked Cashier C. M. Pearce for $1,000 and threatened to "blow up the place" if he did not give her the money. In her hand was a small bottle containing a coffee-colored liquid.

At that moment Policeman Dollar, off duty and dressed in civilian clothes, entered the bank. Dan Lydick, bank president, motioned to the officer.

The policeman grabbed the bottle from the woman's hand. At the police station she said the bottle contained milk and copperas, a solution used in treating chickens. She said she is a trained nurse but that she had been out of work for five months.

Bus Concern Moves Office To Big Spring

Cotton Belt Changes From Midland To Maintain Garage

Division headquarters of the Cotton Belt Lines, a motor bus concern handling interstate passenger traffic between Saint Louis and Los Angeles, are being moved from Midland to Big Spring, according to C. S. Spelling, regional passenger agent.

The Cotton Belt operates a schedule both east and west daily, arriving here from the east at 8:30 a. m. and from the west at 7:40 p. m. Local ticket offices are in the Douglass hotel.

A garage will be maintained on East First street in the building formerly occupied by the Union Bus Terminal. An extra bus, available for special trips, will be kept here. Drivers will reside here, changing at this point, which will be the only division headquarters between El Paso and Dallas.

Only those passengers traveling between points in two different states are accommodated on the line buses of this line, which offer unusual comfort.

Supreme Court Refuses To Act On Texas Cases

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP)—The supreme court today refused to pass upon cases brought to it by the following petitioners leaving unchanged the rulings of the lower courts.

By the receiver for the failed First National Bank of Denton, Texas, against the decision of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals holding J. Fred Raynor not liable for a $4,000 note he had given to the bank.

By H. Schaefer, its president, F. O. R. Seagraves of Galveston contesting the decision of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals holding him liable under a contract to pay to Henry M. Wallace and others approximately $57,000 with interest for stock in the Corpus Christi Gas Company.

By Mattie Rogers, formerly Mattie Willis, contesting the decision of the Oklahoma supreme court holding she was not entitled to share in the estate of Hickman Willis, a deceased Choctaw Indian.

By group No. 1, Oil Corporation of El Paso, contesting the federal government must refund approximately $737,000 in taxes collected between 1924 and 1928 on income from the operation of oil leases granted the corporation by Texas.

'Fighting Chance' To Elect Governor Seen By Col. Talbot And Republican Supporters

FORT WORTH, Oct. 20 (AP)—Seeing a "fighting chance" to bring about the election of the first republican governor in Texas by stressing measures to better the economic situation, party members in a statewide rally for their nominee, Colonel W. E. Talbot of Dallas, here today rallied to a campaign to submerge politics in favor of a program to foster the basic home industries of the state.

Talbot himself sounded the keynote of the campaign when he said in addressing a session of the republican state executive committee that the fight for the governorship will not be one of party aggrandizement but a "pocketbook" campaign for the people of the state. The campaign will have reached its aim, even if it falls short of election of a republican governor, he said, if it educates the citizenry to support of Texas institutions and patronage of home industries.

Such a movement, by bringing more money into circulation and causing it to be kept within the state, will force outside industries to establish themselves here, developing the natural resources and using the raw materials produced, he said.

THREE INJURED IN EXPLOSION AT PALESTINE

PALESTINE, Texas, Oct. 20 (AP)—Three persons were injured, one probably fatally, in a mysterious explosion that wrecked two buildings on Main street at 1 p. m. today.

Miss Marie Moser, 19, was in a critical condition in a local hospital and physicians said she could not live. At first it was believed she had been killed.

Others injured were M. A. Moser, father of Miss Moser, in whose office the main force of the explosion occurred, and Jewett Lamier, who was standing in a shoe shop next door to the Moser office. Moser was taken from the wreckage seriously burned and suffering with internal injuries. Lamier was burned and bruised.

The Ash and Trice buildings were wrecked by the blast. The Copeland Jewelry Store occupied a space in the Ash building, but no one in it was hurt.

Officers had not determined the cause of the explosion. Some expressed a theory that it was caused by nitroglycerine while others said it was from a gas pocket that formed in pipes beneath the floor.

The force of the explosion broke windows in houses as far as two blocks from the blast.

PALESTINE, Texas, Oct. 20 (AP)—One person was probably fatally injured and at least four others injured in a mysterious explosion which wrecked a business house here at 1 p. m.

Officers investigating the explosion expressed belief that it was caused by nitroglycerine.

The Copeland Jewelry Store was totally wrecked. At least three persons were taken to a hospital, but their names were not immediately available.

The blast shook houses and broke window glass in a large area as far as two blocks from the explosion.

School Boiler Explodes; One Man Burned

BILL OLSEN, high school janitor, narrowly escaped death or serious injury Monday morning when an explosion in the boiler, located in the basement, damaged the heating unit.

Two windows were blown out of the building, and a door knocked off its hinges. The boiler was badly damaged, the rear end being blown out, school officials said. The building was without heat today as a result of the explosion.

The explosion occurred when Olsen attempted to light the burners. There was apparently an accumulation of gas.

Olsen was burned about the hands and face, but was not seriously injured.

The door of the boiler barely missed his head.

According to information furnished by Gibb Gilchrist, state highway engineer, the cost to Howard county of construction and reconstruction of the two highways will aggregate $700,000. Actual cost to this county for work on the two arteries is set at $601,780. The estimated cost of the two projects is $1,805,340, with state and federal aid amounting to approximately $1,203,560.

The steel safe was wrecked, the back of it being knocked out. The robbery was discovered when the building was opened this morning. Entrance to the building was gained by breaking a chain and lock on a door on the southeast side of the building.

Hearing On Southern Pacific Application To Buy Control Of Cotton Belt Draws Many

DALLAS, Oct. 20 (AP)—High officials of practically every rail system operating in the southwest attended the opening today of the hearing on the application of the Southern Pacific to purchase the controlling stock interest in the Cotton Belt. The hearing was before Thomas F. Sullivan, examiner for the interstate commerce commission.

Representatives of chambers of commerce or trade bodies of St. Louis, Kansas City, Little Rock, New Orleans, San Antonio, Houston, Fort Worth, Trinity, Groveton and Livingston, Texas, appeared as intervenors. The Arkansas railroad commission also was represented.

At the outset, the Illinois Central, through its general counsel, R. V. Fletcher, stated it had no objection to the proposed move. The Cotton Belt had been originally placed in the Illinois Central grouping but the proposed stock purchase would put it in the Southern Pacific division.

Holden Talks

Hale Holden, chairman of the executive committee of the Southern Pacific, the first witness, said the purchase would stimulate rather than eliminate competition. Because of their locations, the Southern Pacific and the Cotton Belt could not be competitors, he said, but the two together would furnish competition to the north-south lines operating in the southwest.

Holden said it was the present intention of the Texas and New Orleans, Southern Pacific subsidiary, to preserve existing through routes and joint rates with the Cotton Belt. He was unwilling, however, to agree that no changes would be made in the future.

The witness would not say whether the Southern Pacific would go ahead with the purchase if the commission should rule that no changes should be made in existing through routes and joint rates. Holden made these answers in response to questions by attorneys of the Missouri Pacific and Texas Pacific.

GANG OF BOYS IN JAIL HERE FOR BURGLARY

Sentences in the state training school for boys at Gateville were expected to be pronounced by Judge H. R. Lebeport this afternoon against several boys ranging from 11 to 14, who have confessed to robbing several business establishments in Big Spring within the last month.

One of the boys was arrested Sunday afternoon by City Police-man Howie, as he left the Winn Produce Co. He immediately implicated other members of the youthful "gang" and told of robbing several business establishments here during the last month.

Five of the boys were in the Howard county jail today, and others were expected to be arrested this afternoon.

Four of the five boys in jail are under suspended sentences, given at Colorado after they were arrested there two weeks ago in the act of robbing a hardware store.

Oldest 14

The oldest of the group is 14, and the youngest 11.

Questioned this morning by city and county officers, the youths freely admitted entering two lumber yard offices, a produce house, a dry goods store, and shoplifting and bicycle theft.

The Cicero Smith Lumber Co., the Coe and Parks Lumber Co., and the Winn Produce Co. were broken into Sunday night by the youths, they declared. About 15 cartons of cigarettes were taken from the produce company, a pistol was taken from Coe and Parks and "a big cigar" was the loot removed from Cicero Smith Lumber Co., they said.

A bicycle, allegedly stolen, was found in the rendezvous of the boys. They had recently completed a cave, with a long tunnel ending in a large room. Nothing else was found in the cave.

The boys gave the names of those who had purchased cigarettes from them.

One of the group told of robbing the Acorn Store of a pair of shoes and a suit of clothes. The suit was given to "a bum," the boys declared.

The pistol, and fountain pens, pencils, cartridges, keys, marbles, a box of dyes, were turned over to the county authorities.

Several youths not under arrest were said to have been implicated by the "leader" of the gang.

The boys were placed in jail shortly before noon today. "The Howard County Hotel" was the way the 11-year-old boy referred to the red stone building. All were smoking cigarettes as the cell door was locked behind them.

The youths were brought before County Judge Debenport, who spent thirty minutes last week lecturing them on "following the criminal trail" and advised them to change their way of living. He postponed a formal hearing until this afternoon. He has made no announcement regarding the recent arrest of the boys. All of the boys were enrolled in school. Two are 11, one 13, and two 14 years old. One of the boys declared he had not been with the other boys since the Colorado affair.

According to a statement made to County Attorney James Little, some of the boys have broken into the Winn Produce Co. three times. They were questioned regarding robberies of various residences, and the high school, but denied they had "ever worked anywhere but in the business district."

Union Station Cashier Victim Of Bold Yeggs

Guard Also Struck Down In Midst Of Crowd On Busy Street

DALLAS, Oct. 20 (AP)—Working with clock-like precision, four men robbed H. W. Moore, ex-union cashier of the Union Terminal company, of between $10,000 and $17,000 today while he was en route to a bank to deposit the money. Moore and C. H. Murray, a policeman, who was accompanying him as a guard, were knocked to the sidewalk with improvised black-jacks wielded by two of the men.

Austin & Commerce

As the cashier and his escort reached a point at the corner of Austin and Commerce streets, where hundreds of shoppers were passing, an automobile drew up to the curb.

Two men alighted and struck Moore and Murray from behind. Moore was knocked unconscious and taken to a hospital in a serious condition. Murray was only stunned. Two other men remained in the automobile while the slugging was going on.

One of the men dropped his club as he snatched Murray's pistol from his holster and the other took the stachel containing the money from the cashier. They stepped into their automobile and as the car departed a man in the rear seat was brandishing a shot gun.

The automobile speeded down Commerce street and rounded a corner into Lamar street and disappeared in the traffic.

The black-jack left by one of the sluggers was made from a piece of water hose filled with shot.

Daring

Police said the hold-up was the most daring since the Jackson street postoffice robbery 10 years ago.

Moore said he had been over the same route on similar missions every day for the past 11 years.

"Without any kind of warning the men struck from behind," he said. "I fell to the sidewalk, still swinging on to the money bag, but it was snatched from my grasp."

He said he was able to get only a meager description of the automobile. He described it as "a dark blue or dark green closed car."

Policeman Murray was unable to describe the robbery.

"I knew nothing of what was happening until the man struck me on the back of the head," he said. "The blow staggered me and I tried to grapple with him. He tore my coat open and took my pistol from the holster. He attempted to strike me again with the black jack but I jerked it from him. He was a young fellow wearing a brown suit of clothes. I was so dizzy from the effects of the blow on the head I did not see them get into the automobile."

County and city officers armed with sawed-off shot guns went in pursuit of the fleeing automobile as soon as they could get organized. All highways leading from Dallas were placed under guard and officers in adjoining counties were notified to watch for the automobile.

Police were furnished with the license number of the automobile by passersby who jotted it down when it became apparent a holdup had taken place.

"BIG FOUR" TO TANGLE THIS WEEK

A glance at the standings of clubs in this district of the Inter-scholastic League shows the Steers have played five games—more than any other in the loop. The leaders arranged the schedule whereby they have played but three. But another probe shows members of the Big Four clashing on Armistice Day—the only game scheduled for that great holiday. All the fans can go to this game, all the money pouring into this one coffers. On Thanksgiving Day there are three district games, with the Eagle-Lobo contest the outstanding one. Breckenridge and Ranger, however, chose to play Nov. 23, with no other game carded. Big Spring doesn't have a Class A opponent on Thanksgiving day, taking on the Class B Colorado team. Merely said in passing.

On paper—that unreliable paper—the Steers are stronger than the Bobcats which they meet Friday afternoon at 3 p. m. central standard time at San Angelo. Taking things as a whole, the Steers should cop. Yet, the Angolans are at home. That is a great barrier standing in front of the Steers. The Steers took Mineral Wells into camp; Angelo did also, by a seven point margin. The Bobcats won't lose to Cisco as badly as Big Spring did. Neither will they hold Breckenridge to a 13 point margin as the Steers did. Ranger shouldn't beat the Steers as badly as they beat the Bobcats. But Cisco wasn't supposed to either. That's the trouble with this grid game. There are too many tangents to shoot off on.

Yet, the Steers should make history and combine it with whoopee Friday afternoon along the banks of the lazy Concho river where the vulgar boozing, the hideous way, it is said by the historians, as well as the statisticians, that Big Spring has never, whammed the Bobcats on Bobcat soil—generally known as the cemetery gridiron. It is added that up to 1929 the Bobcats had never whipped the Steers on Howard county territory. The Bobcats turned the trick in 1929. There is no reason why, with the football players Stevens and Bevers have on tap for the fray, the same couldn't be pulled in the future's vicinity. It will be a neat battle, and no setup by any means for either of the two aggregations. If the Steers ever did need the support of local fans it is Friday. A special train—bearing business men as well as high school students, should be puffing out of this city beautiful early Friday morning. It is hard for a football team that has been buffeted around by the leaders of this district to give 90 million away from home and give their best when just a handful of fans from the old home town are on hand. Not only that—but the business men should sponsor the train. Shows there is a little support behind them, the Steers would need through the Kitchens. If not, they stand a good chance to be cantered through themselves. That is the difference.

Friday will be a gala day for this department. This department will breeze into the San Angelo newspaper office, regret out the desk of the Angelo scribe and like Shylock, demand our dues. Merely a little wagger with Mr. Bruce Cross that the Angelo inflation would go into a big puncture with Ranger. We feel certain he hasn't forgotten it. In fact we don't see how he could as much as we have reminded him of it. We can hardly see how.

It looks like Rice University couldn't win a ball game if they staged one Rice versus Rice. It would probably be tied. Doped to win over the Arkansas Porkers by a couple of touchdowns, if not more, the Owls hooted at the idea and dropped the fray 7-6. In the meantime, however, the University of Texas played its trump card and immediately jumped into the contesting class—a direct opponent of Texas Christian University. The Baylor Bears are probably laughing up their sleeves, while the S. M. U. Mustangs are prancing with tears in their eyes as a result of their 16 encounter with the Bruins. Over-confidence, they say, combined with Mason's absence beat the Ponies. Over-confidence has whipped better teams than the 1936 edition of Southern Methodist University.

Sometimes over-confidence is worse than no tactics.

We believe the 62 to 9 plastering handed the Steers by Chapman's golden brigade has little bearing on the fray Friday. The Steers went into battle, knowing the odds were 100 to 1 against them. They were, if not more so. They lost they expected to lose. This week it is a bit different. They aren't doped to lose. And they shouldn't lose. When Stevens and Brown say the Lobos were marching onward, they jerked the mainstays and whispered, "It's for Angelo's sake" in their respective ears.

The Angelo scribe again brings the term "hash meat" into action in reference to the Longhorns. He decides us in particular, after all the nice things we've said for him too. Tune in on this static: "Wau! Sympathies, heartfelt, are extended the Big Spring football team because of that 62 to 0 massacre at Cisco Friday evening. We cannot refrain a chuckle, however, at expense of Mr. R. C. Campbell, the rock-sure Big Spring sports expert. The Department, merely following its routine duties the past

Longhorns Stand As Leading Rivals To Christians In Southwestern

Mustangs Falter Before Over-Confident Barrier And Lack Of Mason; Texas Crew Climbs Into Band Wagon

BY GAYLE TALBOT JR., Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS, Oct. 20 (AP).—The Southern Methodist Mustangs having faltered and fallen back, partly because of over-confidence and partly because they are not so very tough with Weldon Mason on the sideline, the University of Texas Longhorns stand today as the leading rivals to Texas Christian University for the Southwest conference football crown.

By defeating the University of Oklahoma here Saturday, 17 to 7, the Longhorns left no doubt that they had something on the ball. They did it with a furious last-quarter drive that netted two touchdowns and a field goal. The Mustangs, meanwhile, practically were nullifying their chances at the title by getting no better than a 14-14 tie with the Baylor Bears at Waco. Without Mason, the Mustangs were a very ordinary football unit, beaten at their own passing game by the inspired Bruins.

Texas Christian left its record unscathed by noosing out the Texas Aggies, 3 to 0, at College Station, a field goal by Atkins giving the Horned Frogs their second conference triumph, after their famed running attack had been spiked for three quarters.

The Longhorns will have an opportunity to break into the conference win column this week, when they encounter the Rice Institute Owls at Houston. Having lost to Arkansas, 7 to 6, in their first championship test last week, the Owls will be conceded little chance of stopping the Longhorns' great running attack.

Indiana Now Southern Methodist, despite its indifferent showing against Baylor, will be favored over Indiana University in their inter-sectional fray at Dallas. Chances are that Mason will have recovered from his knee injury in time to face the Hoosiers.

Two cellar contenders, the Texas Aggies and Arkansas, were scheduled to meet on neutral grounds at Little Rock, Ark., in the week's second conference tilt. The Razorbacks showed symptoms of coming back to life when they scored in the opening minutes of play, against Rice and then held their advantage the rest of the way. All the Aggies displayed was a fine goal-line defense against the Frogs, failing to make a single first down as compared to 13 for the conference champions.

Heartened by their "moral" victory over Southern Methodist, the Baylor Bears prepared to engage the Centenary College Gentlemen at Shreveport. In tying the Ponies, the Baptists proved that they have a passing game to be feared by any opponent, and in Jake Wilson, a broken-field runner without an equal in the southwest, Centenary has to its credit a scoreless tie with the Texas Longhorns and a victory over the University of Iowa.

Texas Christian's conference leadership was safe for another week, at least, the Frogs being billed to play Texas Tech at Fort Worth. The Matadors have appeared weak so far, having been soundly beaten by Texas College of Mines last week.

Turkey School Opens In Angelo

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Oct. 20 (UP).—The turkey grading school, under the auspices of the federal government and A. & M. extension service, opened this morning with 88 registered from 30 counties. E. N. Homgreen, poultry husbandman of A. & M., presided in the absence of O. B. Martin, who was delayed in arriving here by rains.

Killing and dressing demonstrations were on the program for the afternoon sessions. Speakers this morning stressed appearance of turkeys as determining their value, declaring that badly handled turkeys are the ones that glut the markets.

Week and with no malice toward the Big Spring eleven, remarked Cisco would make hash meat of the Steers. The Howard County Herald hopped on that passage and for several days held up to ridicule this humble reporter. What a sap we were for predicting such an occurrence. Mr. Campbell, however, is lively and learning. More hash meat likely will be made out there on the cemetery gridiron Saturday too.

Yale, unbeaten by a sectional rival, also rates consideration as does Western Maryland, conquerors of Georgetown.

Big Ten—Northwestern's overwhelming victory over Illinois and Michigan's triumph over Ohio State were the outstanding developments. The only conference games this Saturday pit Purdue against Wisconsin and Michigan against Illinois.

Southern Conference—Alabama leads with three straight victories, the last over Tennessee which had not lost a game since 1926. Georgia also is highly regarded as a result of its smashing defeat of North Carolina. Other leaders include Vanderbilt, Florida, Kentucky, Georgia Tech, Clemson and Tulane. The principal games this week send Alabama against Vanderbilt and Georgia Tech against Tulane.

Big Six—Kansas as a result of victory over the Kansas Aggies, shares the lead with Oklahoma, beaten by Texas in a non-conference game. Oklahoma meets a tough foe in Kansas Aggies this week while Kansas battles Iowa State, beaten only two points by Nebraska. Missouri plays its first conference game Nov. 1.

Pacific Coast—Washington State, Stanford and Oregon are the only unbeaten teams. Oregon stopped Washington, 7-0, and Stanford beat Oregon State, 13-7. The high spot this week is the meeting of Stanford and Southern California. California takes on Washington, Washington State tackles Montana, and Oregon plays Idaho.

Rocky Mountain—Utah, perennial champion, is the only team in the conference unbeaten and untied but gets its first real test Saturday against Denver. Utah showed a great offensive against Brigham Young Saturday. Colorado College bowed to Denver in the other major game. Colorado Aggies, unbeaten in the conference, face Colorado University this week. Colorado University also is unbeaten, but has been tied by Utah Ag-

Southwest—Texas Christian, by virtue of a 3-0 victory over Texas A. & M., sets the pace with two conference victories. Southern Methodist's record has been spoiled by a 14-14 tie with Baylor. ## 650 Persons Are Burned In China Blaze

CANTON, China, Oct. 20 (UP).—Six hundred and fifty persons died in a holocaust in the tea house district of Wuchow, on the Kwangsi-Kwangtung border today.

The fire was reported to have started in a floating restaurant in the West river, or Sikiang. It spread rapidly to other craft, hundreds of which jammed the stream, and finally reached buildings on the shore.

Hundreds of persons leaped into the stream from blazing boats. Some of them managed to reach shore, but scores were reported to have drowned.

Because of a peculiarity of the West river, a considerable portion of its business is done aboard boats and on pontoons. A difference of about 60 feet in the water level between full water in summer and low water in winter caused many merchants to have their stores and offices afloat. The most prosperous part of the city is located along the river.

Pershing Writes Own War Story

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (UP).—General John J. Pershing has written his own story of America's participation in the World War. His memoirs are to be added to those of other great military leaders 12 years after the end of the conflict. Announcement was made today by the publishers of the 200,000 word record of the American high command that the book will be ready after newspaper serialization. The work is described as an intimate, soldierly account of America's part in the war, not without humor and studied with "close-ups" of the world figures with whom General Pershing was in constant contact.

Eagles Invade Bulldog Sod As Lobos Trek To Buckarooville

Steers Meet Bobcats; Mustangs Move To Mineral Wells; Lions Clash With Mavericks For Cellar Rights

The death knell will sound for two members of the Big Four in this hectic District Two race for title honors this week-end. The week-ends of the past have seen the favorites crashing through, crushing smaller and weaker teams, and leaving in their wake a bunch of big scores and one-sided victories.

This Friday and Saturday, however, it will be a story with a different theme song. It will be the first opportunity the Huge Quarter have had to kill each other off. As teams of lesser importance take on teams of lesser importance, those of the top rung take on their brethren, and may the best man win, or something to that effect.

Friday afternoon the Breckenridge Buckaroos, 1919 co-champions, and said to be still contending for like 1930 honors, and the Cisco Lobos, rated the strongest team in the district, will clash at Breckenridge. When this affair is Ranger 30, Sweetwater 7.

Breckenridge 28, Eastland 6.

San Angelo 20, Mineral Wells 13.

SCHEDULE

favorite to cop. Dangerous Danie McCarty—nature's gift to the Eastland County hamlet—and Chuck Bird—Mineral Wells' gift to the same village—are destined to be just too much McCarty, Bird and Company for the Elephants of Ablene to cope with.

It is not unlikely that the district title will be decided Nov. 1, when the Lobos and the Bulldogs have their little pounding party. Should Breckenridge win, the affair will terminate when Ranger meets Breckenridge on Thanksgiving day, providing Ranger beats Ablene Saturday, of course.

Other Frays While the leading four teams are cutting things down to a contender two, the battle for possession—undisputed and otherwise—of the cellar rights will be underway. Dawn on the Concho River, a the city of running water, sheep herders and Bill Blaset the Big Spring Steers will shoot their best barrel at the San Angelo Bobcats. Think, probably, is the outstanding game between what is generally referred to as the fodder for the big guns. The game is set for Friday.

In the meantime Eastland and Brownwood will meet, while the Mineral Wells Restorers and the Sweetwater Mustangs go into a huddle. Both of the games will be played Saturday. Brownwood going to Eastland, and Sweetwater moving into Mineral Wells.

In this tussle for basement honors, Eastland is expected to show Brownwood just a bit further in descending direction, assuring the Lions of the bottom rung. Sweetwater and Mineral Wells are more evenly matched, with the odds in favor of the Mountaineers. The battle the Mineral Wells crew staged at San Angelo last week, losing a 20-13 decision placed them above the Ponies.

In the third Little Six conflict the Steers take the Bobcats, although it is a matter of fact that the Bobcats are noticeably harder for the Steers to take on the Bobcats' premises.

The Steers, crushed 62 to 0 the past week by the Big Dam Lobos, are in excellent shape, however, a the main string was jerked at intervals during the third and fourth quarters of that fray in order to save them for the Angel conflict.

The Breckenridge-Cisco clash will see two of the greatest back field men in the district in action—one against the other, with the odds of reinforcements going to Cisco's ledger. It will be Boon Magnus versus Johnny Connell.

ONE will always stand out

Girl Of 24 "Thrilled" By New Job As Louisiana Secretary Of State Appointed By Huey P. Long

BATON ROUGE, La. (UP)—The third highest office in the state of Louisiana is held by the lovely and charming 24-year-old Alice Lee Grosjean—yesterday a secretary. She was appointed secretary of state by Governor Huey P. Long, whom she had served six years as private secretary.

She would become governor should the governor and lieutenant governor be removed.

She becomes a member of the building committee of the new capitol and her name will be carved on the cornerstone.

She was thrilled by her appointment and her first day in office resembled more a debutante party than a public office.

Her friends poured in to congratulate her and she had a smile and handshake for all.

"I like it a lot," she said.

She hastened to explain that she will not run for election when her appointment expires in 1937 but would go to Washington as the private secretary to Governor Long when he takes his oath as United States senator.

"So you are not particularly interested in holding public office?" she was asked.

"Oh, no, I prefer my politics from the side lines," she smiled. "I never dreamed I would ever be a state official. Of course, I have had aspirations. Every girl does, just like every boy hopes to be president."

At 15, she became secretary to Long when he was a member of the Louisiana Public Service Commission.

She helped him in his first successful fight for the governorship and since then has been credited with planning some of his most brilliant political maneuvers.

As private secretary to the governor, she had full charge of office affairs and it was necessary to see her to see the governor.

"This job will be more or less a rest," she smiled. "You see, I have been working very hard lately. Maybe I'll have time to being a descendant on her paternal side of Colonel Robert Lawson. Miss Grosjean landed her first job at 16 and worked around until she obtained a position with Long. She married James Terrell, then a boy of about her own age during this period. This marriage was happy. She obtained a divorce and resumed her maiden name.

The Cook's Nook

SOME wise soul who must have a Mother herself, has said that while Willie and Nan go to school for 12, or 16 years, Mother sometimes goes all her life, or at least as long as she has children in attendance. It's Mother who helps puzzle over the arithmetic problems, Mother who picks flowers for teacher, and Mother who fixes the eternal school lunches.

"Filling hollow legs" is not so difficult in the summer time, when the children are available at all hours, but it takes careful planning and minding of the "p's and q's" of healthful diet to keep her brood healthy through the Fall and Winter.

Talk about the "3 R's"—they're a-b-c compared to the "3 meals." Mother has to ponder over, especially when the children carry their lunches, and variety, balance and palatability must all be put into the small iconicles of a lunch kit.

Health specialists tell us that the school lunch must contain milk in some form, fruit of some kind, foods of high energy content which are readily digested and assimilated, and for childhood's sake, a little surprise, to stimulate interest and appetite, or to act as a reward. The calorie requirements of youngsters, but the lunch should be calculated to furnish one-third the day's total calorie intake.

Children crave sweets, in fact, need them, for their high energy content. The sweet of the school lunch, however, should be provided in a simple, gessert, cookie or fruit. Those confections and fruits which contain "invert sugar" are the kind desired, for invert sugar, the natural fruit sugar—dextrose—does not need to undergo a bodily change before digestion, is assimilated more quickly and therefore provides energy more quickly than the other forms of sugar. Because of their invert sugar content dried fruits, such as figs and pasteurized dates, are especially suitable in the child's menu, also foods made with corn syrup will also provide this desirable form of sugar. Corn starch puddings and cream soups thickened with cornstarch are especially wholesome.

1-2 teaspoon vanilla
1-4 cup nut meats (may be omitted)
Add the sliced dates to the scalded milk in the top part of a double boiler. Mix cornstarch and sugar with cold milk, stir the paste into the scalded milk. Continue to stir until the mixture is thickened. Cover tightly and cook ten minutes.

Beat the egg slightly; add sugar, and combine with cornstarch mixture one minute before it is removed from the flame. Add the vanilla and nuts. Cool slightly. Pout into individual serving dishes. Chill thoroughly.

If a molded dessert is desired, increase the cornstarch to 3 tablespoons, and pour the pudding into individual molds which have been rinsed in cold water. This recipe will make 6 servings, 190 calories to each serving.

Scrambled Vegetables (For the Home Lunch)

1 pint chopped cooked potatoes
1 pint mixed cooked vegetables
3-4 cup white sauce
1-4 cup cooking oil
Tomato or chopped egg sauce

The mixed vegetables may be any kind, as cooked carrots, turnips, cabbage, beets, peas, sweet corn, onions, etc. Combine the ingredients. Heat the corn oil in a medium-sized frying pan, pack in the hash an inch deep and fry until browned.

Fruit Sandwich Spread

1 pkg. pasteurized dates, pitted
1-4 cup (1-2 lb.) walnuts (measured after chopping)
1-2 lb. layer figs
Bollin gewater, milk, cream, or orange juice

Pit dates, remove stems from the figs, shell walnuts. Put the fruit and nuts through the food chopper, using the medium knife. Add liquid until the mixture is of the proper consistency to spread. Sufficient for 2 dozen sandwiches.

Children and Dishpans

COMPULSORY dishwashing never puts a rainbow around the dishpan. But it does have a lot to do with that chronic business of being too tired to wash the dishes. Just the same, mothers can't seem to break themselves of the habit of putting tea towels in their daughters' hands and suggesting that they wash the cups and saucers and brush the crumbs away.

But now Miss Marion S. Van Liew, chief of the Home Economics Education Bureau of the University of the State of New York City, has cast her influence with the daughters. Mothers are all wrong. Compulsory dishwashing, according to Miss Van Liew, has driven millions of girls a crazy outlook on home economics. It has made them hate housework.

And it is all their mothers' fault. Still—with a large family that must be fed three times a day, to say nothing of after-school bread-and-butter-and-jelly sandwiches, it isn't always possible for a mother to attend to the cleaning of the plate if she would darn the family socks, sew on the family buttons, wash and iron and scrub and sweep and dust and bake and stew and nurse and market and plan the menus and tell the agents that she isn't interested in anything today!

Of course, if Sally and Sile and Mary didn't have to assist in the cleansing of the dishes they would have the thrill of novelty when they did their own rosebud china into the foamy suds.

It is a sad state of affairs. If modern labor-saving devices can't strengthen the case for the after-dinner exercises there seems to be little to be done about it—except let the mothers attend to the ablutions of the china.

Dishwashing used to be something that every normal girl had along with measles and mumps and chickenpox. Now it would appear that it should be banished from the childhood ailments along with the other hindrances to health and freedom.

There is nothing to be done, apparently, but let the mothers perform the purification rites for the porcelain and dresser—unless common sense arises to remark that children don't always need quite as much cooing as the experts seem to think.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

England Hard on Gangsters

Toronto Globe:
GANGS of criminals do not find England a safe place for the carrying on of their activities. The proof of this is the fact that the visit to Toronto of a British police officer who will be accompanied back by a man charged with giving leadership to a notorious group of London hoodlums. This is going on every day, as these efficient officials may be found in any part of the world on similar quests. From the ends of the earth they gather in the criminals who have sought to escape British justice; the fugitive knows well what that means.

Except in expected emergencies, the British police are not armed, and, strangely enough, this is advanced as a reason why there are so few armed criminals in the great cities, and the rarity of shooting during conflicts between the police and the men they seek. But things are different in England. Organized gangs are not allowed to run loose; in fact they are harried to such extent that they soon break up. The known criminal has not much freedom of movement in England. When a foreigner is successful in passing the port of officials, he is marked for constant surveillance, and knows it. He knows also that the carrying of firearms will mean a bad time for him if arrested. England is an uncomfortable place for the professional crook from other lands. His reputation precedes him, and he knows that he will be met the moment he leaves his ship.

Britons themselves are law-abiding people, and this, coupled with unceasing attention to foreign crooks, accounts for the fact that

OPERATION IS AVOIDED BY ARGOTANE

"THE DOCTOR SAID I WOULD HAVE TO HAVE AN OPERATION FOR GALLSTONES, BUT I WAS BETTER AFTER I HAD TAKEN MY FIRST BOTTLE," SAYS MRS. THORPE.

"I suffered from gallstones for years and the doctor said I would have to have an operation right away when I started to take Argotane but I was better before I finished my first bottle," said Mrs. A. Thorpe, wife of a prominent farmer, who is talking to the Argotane representative recently. "I had a hurting in my right side which the doctor said was in my gall bladder and my back ached terribly from kidney trouble," continued Mrs. Thorpe. "I couldn't hardly eat anything and lost weight all the time. I suffered until I felt raw and miserable all over. Honestly, I was nearly dead when I heard about Argotane and decided to try it."

"That was a lucky day for me because the pain in my side was better before I finished my first bottle. The kidney trouble is relieved. I can eat anything I please and nothing hurts me. I have gained about eighteen pounds and I have been feeling better than I have for a long time. I think Argotane is a great discovery, and I honestly think it will help any one who will give it a fair trial."

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Big Spring at Collins Bros. Drug Store—adv.

criminal statistics present the country in a very good light as compared with other nations. It would be impossible to conceive of such conditions as exist in Chicago prevailing in England. It must be admitted that the few ports of entry to the country make it easy to guard against any influx of criminals, and the comparatively small area of the island militates against bands of hoodlums running at large for any length of time. But the courageous police force in England—and especially in the greatest city in the world—the police are unarméd, and that they always are in complete command of the situation.

How Is Your HEALTH?

Edited by Dr. Iago Galdston for the New York Academy of Medicine

Tired

Precisely what does a person mean when he says he is tired? This question has fascinated all students of the human body, and the answers offered to this query are numerous and complex.

In most instances, the term "tired" is used to indicate muscular fatigue. During muscular work, a number of very complex chemical changes take place within the muscles and the body, giving rise to waste and so-called fatigue products. Among these are carbon dioxide, lactic acid and other acids.

It is the accumulation of these substances in the body which gives rise to the sensation of tiredness. This was demonstrated in an experiment performed on two dogs. One dog was worked until he manifested unmistakable evidence of fatigue.

A certain quantity of his blood then was withdrawn and injected into a second dog, which had been kept at rest. After a while, the injected blood produced in the rested animal, signs and symptoms of fatigue, similar to those noticed in the first dog.

This was evidently due to the "fatigue products" which were injected with the blood from the worked dog.

The remedy for normal fatigue is rest. Rest enables the body to rid itself of the fatigue substances and to re-establish the normal chemical state of the body.

Failure to allow adequate rest to the tired body often is followed by ill results. In cases of extreme fatigue, the essential structure of the body cells is affected in such a manner that it takes them a long time to recuperate.

Railroad Revenue Case Before Court

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP)—Placed at the head of the list for argument next week on the supreme court docket is a case affecting revenue of railroads covering nearly a third of the country.

Twenty-six southwestern carriers are seeking to have set aside the interstate commerce commission order of June, 1929, that joint rates for the southwest and western trunk line territory be readjusted in favor of the western lines.

Only 15 of the 44 class one railroads in western trunk line territory, which includes Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, North Dakota, South Dakota, Missouri, Wisconsin, Northern Missouri and the upper peninsula of Michigan, would benefit under the order.

And only 25 of the 37 class one carriers in southwestern territory, which includes Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, west of the Mississippi river, and Southern Missouri, would be affected by the readjustment. All these named are parties to the suit brought in the name of the Beaumont, Sour Lake and Western railroad.

The commission is attacked specifically on the ground it basing the order upon group conditions among the railroads involved. The southwestern roads contend the law requires that conditions and needs of each carrier be considered in fixing joint rates and that in this case, the commission employed an

Hollywood Sights

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The ever-swinging pendulum of film fashions seems to be bringing back, slowly but surely, the much-berated musical movie.

But it is coming back changed, and chastened, humbled by the brief exile into which a groaning fan public and wary producers sent it, and not at all eager to usurp the entire screen scene as it threatened to do

GRACE MOORE for a while. Most of the Pan Alley for months a mighty factor in Hollywood, has returned to New York, but one studio signed a pair of song-writers the other day and that was news.

It doesn't mean that the others left too soon; most, in fact, stayed too long; the two signed were of the first rank, and Hollywood's musicals, too many of them, were the work of second-raters. Quantity was often gressed rather than quality in the rush to get on the bandwagon of the musical cycle.

THE DARKNESS CLOSES IN

As the old clock in the hall struck midnight, the study door opened. Nurse Casey rose and went softly forward to meet Nurse Ellesmore. Together they stood by the heavily sleeping man.

"He hasn't stirred since ten," said Nurse Casey, in a whisper. "And there's no swelling round the eyes yet."

"You know how to tend for Dr. Lytton when the toxin begins to work, don't you? And the doctor is being called at four, anyway, because he doesn't really expect any results before then. I do hope the experiment succeeds, don't you?"

"Yes," assented Hallie. "I do find it so difficult not to get—well—personal about my patients," Casey confessed. "If Mr. Grannock goes blind I shall cry myself sick. He's awfully nice. Much nicer than his half-brother, for all his beautiful eyes and his laughing ways."

A slow flush covered Hallie's face. "The reason I mention Mr. Brown," went on Nurse Casey, "is that he isn't home yet and when he does come, he may be noisy."

"Noisy?" "Well, he very often is slightly intoxicated when he comes home late and then he's noisy."

"Mr. Grannock hasn't been disturbed."

Hallie looked at the sleeping man and marvelled at the strangeness of life. When she had received instructions not to return to New York at the end of her holiday but to report to Dr. Lytton she had been glad to think that work would keep her in the house in which Saxey Grannock was meeting fate. When she had learned that she was actually to be his side during the encounter she had felt savagely triumphant.

She believed that she had decided not to marry Lester Brown. An hour passed and another. Grannock slept. And then, as the clock struck two, Lester returned.

Hallie heard an oath, a crash and a laugh in the hall. Her face contracted with disgust. She stiffened and rose. He was coming to the study. She opened the door and slipped out.

"You cannot come in here," she said coldly. "Mr. Grannock is asleep."

"That's exactly why I can come in, Hallie darling."

THE ROSE IN THE DARK

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS: Hallie Ellesmore, beautiful young nurse, comes to keep a rendezvous with her fiancé on a cliff overlooking Long Island Sound, but finds another older man there. Feeling strangely drawn to each other, they become acquainted. The man is Saxey Grannock, and is suffering from partial blindness, for which he is soon to undergo treatment that will either cure him or leave him totally blind.

Hallie decides she does not love Brown after all. Meanwhile she is hired as night nurse for Grannock without his knowledge, on the night he is to undergo treatment for his eyes. Her duty will be to report certain symptoms to Dr. Lytton as soon as they develop.

President Of Chinese Seeks End Of Wars

NANKING, Oct. 20 (AP)—A new China, united and strengthened, rising above the ashes of rebellion and anarchy, is envisioned by President Chiang Kai-Shek, who announced ambitious plans for the republic.

With the northern revolt apparently crushed and a punitive army sent into the south central provinces to subdue communists, President Chiang, who announced ambitious plans for the republic, envisaged a unified, chastened China to emerge and effect rehabilitation along the following lines:

First, eradication of communism and banditry; second, rehabilitation of national finances; third, creation of efficient, honest governmental administration; fourth, achievement of industrial development; fifth, development of national and local autonomy, thereby paving the way for true democracy.

"Our campaign against banditry and communism already has begun," the president said. "It is expected that within six months the objective will be achieved."

"Rehabilitation of the national finances depends on enforcement of a budgetary system which has been awaiting execution but has been impossible because of regional unruliness of war lords in constant revolts against Nanking."

"With these revolts ended, the budget will be enforced. Also, the unification of national currency and abolition of 'Likin' or regional taxes, will be carried as soon as possible."

"Creation of efficient governmental administration involves eradication of lethargy, inefficiency and corruption. The first two due to ambiguous demarcation of powers and responsibilities of officials, while corruption is attributable to the fact that evil practices long chronic in the body politic cannot be wiped out immediately."

"The administration system requires revision and improvement with clearly defined responsibilities of officials, while supervision and impeachment of officials guilty of corruption must be vigorously enforced."

"Industrial development means we must procure on honorable bases foreign capital, thereby bringing economic expansion. However, such capital should be confined to developing the nation's basic industries in accordance with the Jointinang party's reconstruction program."

Concerning local autonomy, President Chiang said: "Upon its achievement depends our ability to establish a democratic form of government. These tasks await immediate realization if the national government is to continue to live."

Chiang said the entire resources of the government would be thrown against any faction threatening to disrupt national unity by force.

First Flying Missionary

How a young Jesuit will take a radio equipped ambulance plane into the Yukon country, carrying spiritual as well as physical relief to people for hundreds of miles about a most remote Alaska mission

Brother George J. Feltes, S. J. . . . had a natural bent toward mechanics, and some theoretical knowledge of flying. . . . That was how he came to be trained as the world's first aerial missionary.

Brother Feltes' plane, "The Marquette Missionary" . . . was solemnly blessed and flown across the country . . . before shipment to its Alaskan goal.

At the Holy Cross Alaska Mission . . . boys of the neighborhood are shown splitting driftwood . . . as a bulwark against the long bitter cold winter nights to come.

BLAZING glare of the Arctic winter sun on expanse of glistening snow limited only by the horizon. Air crackling with static in a temperature of 40 below zero. A dead world in a shroud, completely barren of life and movement except for six tiny dots creeping up the side of a mountain.

Close up, each tiny dot is a panting, sweating, straining thing of life. A creature with life in enough abundance to fight off the fingers of death reaching, sometimes clawing, sometimes imperceptibly feeling, but never stopping, searching for a weak spot in an armor of will and something more.

Five tiny dots are shaggy wolf-like husky dogs tugging against taut traces fastened to a loaded toboggan. The sixth, perched hood thrown back from his sweat-dampened hair, is a man, adding the power of a big muscular physique to the fight over a zig-zag course up the side of a mountain.

At last victory—the mountain top. But so sheer is the other side that there must follow another straining effort to hold back the heavy sled from plunging down to destruction of all of its load—life-sustaining provisions, blankets and, to the man at least, important as the rest, priestly vestments of the holy rite of extreme unction.

And the valley finally accomplished, only a scant half mile and then another snow-clad mountain as steep as that so desperately just left behind.

Little time out for pemmican and tea for man and frozen white fish for dogs. Occasional stop to painstakingly remove caked ice from paws and nurse and bind up lacerated footpads. Sleep—most persistent among the clutching fingers—unceasingly active allies—therefore not to be thought of for more than a half hour at a time in sweat-soaked clothing with a temperature of 40 below.

Eleven days and nights of this that a doomed Eskimo woman might die with the Last Sacraments—established a record of hardship and speed on the trail that will stand among all the amazing tales of human endurance and sacrifice that have been the almost daily story of a little Jesuit mission at Holy Cross, Alaska.

Eleven days of unrelenting toil to accomplish a distance of 185 miles.

IN this coming winter, already beginning to set in throughout the back country along the famous Yukon, snow-covered peaks will fade away in rapidly-passing procession under Brother George J. Feltes, S. J., if the call again sends one of the Fathers of the mission out over this same terrifying trail. One hundred and eighty-five miles will roll away beneath him in no more than two hours as the only flying missionary speeds on his errand. Medicines arriving in time, or a now easily-reached hospital cot, may rout death time and time again where until now he faced only pitifully inadequate competition.

Fame, fortune and hero worship have been the fruits of accomplishment for many pioneers of the air. For Brother Feltes, and the Fathers whom he will carry in his plane, there will be little more than that which comes to men of the cloth from knowledge of helpful ministry to others.

Flying across snow-clad crags where any failure of man, plane or engine could result only in disaster, defying nature in all the stark pitilessness she exhibits to those who travel the Arctic trails, will be all part of the day's work to Brother Feltes. His flying to obtain a license and prepare himself for next winter's work has been that. There were no heroics, for instance, about such a thing as a trip of 3300 miles from coast to coast.

There was no fanfare as he set out from Roosevelt Field, L. I., on the first leg of his journey into the far north country. With Father I. P. Delon, S. J., his superior, and the priest in charge of the mission to which he has been assigned, and accompanied also by Captain George Pickenpack, who was to give him his final instructions in cross-country flying, and Walter Kade, mechanic, he set out as if on a prosaic trip to Philadelphia.

A competent pilot who must also be mechanic, spiritual comforter and physician. . . . Brother Feltes will do his flying where it is a long way between service stations.

ABILITY to travel on schedule meant more to him than any record-shattering cross-country run, as a test of the equipment with which he is to dare the rigors of the Arctic. His route took him to Buffalo on July 19, and to Detroit on July 20. Three days were given to study of the motor in the Detroit plant where it was built. He flew to Chicago on July 23, to Dubuque, Iowa, on July 24, and there he had a meeting which held him a day. Wichita was reached July 26 and Albuquerque on the next day. From Albuquerque he flew to Phoenix through terrific heat on July 28, going on to Los Angeles the next day. He reached San Francisco July 30. His schedule was maintained throughout almost to the exact minute.

This part of the journey covered 3300 miles and was accomplished in 34 hours flying time and with the use of 340 gallons of furnace oil for the Packard Diesel engine with which "The Marquette Missionary," his specially-designed Bellanca, is powered.

Little or no comment was made on the trip, despite the fact that four men traveled from New York to San Francisco in 34 hours at a fuel cost of only $34, only a fraction more than a cent a mile. Kade, the mechanic, by the way, offered profuse apologies because he said each time fuel was taken on a few quarts were spilled, due to the construction of one of the filler spouts. The fuel wasted was included in the total consumption of 340 gallons.

Brother Feltes' flight to the West Coast at another time, and only a few months ago, would have been considered an epochal event of world-wide importance, for it was the first transcontinental flight ever made with a Diesel aircraft engine.

After putting in as many flying hours as possible at San Francisco, Brother Feltes had the plane disassembled, crated and shipped by rail to Seattle, whence it was shipped by boat 400 miles up the Yukon to the little hamlet of Holy Cross, which is to be his home for the next few years.

IT will be his first experience in the Arctic country when he arrives there just before ice sets in to close the country from entrance by way of the Yukon. He was selected as the world's first flying missionary and assigned to his new post because of a natural aptitude for mechanics and theoretical knowledge of aeronautics.

Since receiving notice of his new opportunity for service he has spent a year in intensive study of the practical side of aviation. He started his training July 16, 1929, at the Alameda airport near San Francisco, and made his first solo flight August 5, after eight hours of dual instruction flying. Less than a month later he had won his private license from the Department of Commerce.

While learning to fly, Brother Feltes at the same time was seeking all the knowledge obtainable about conditions in the back country of Alaska and about flying in Arctic climates.

Father Feltes, S. J. . . . one of the pioneer Jesuit missionaries in Alaska . . . shown with some of the Eskimo children of his parish.

climates. He received much valuable information from members of Admiral Byrd's South Pole expedition.

From Father Delon, in the many days of their close association, the Flying Brother learned much of the people and of the country into which he is going. He came to know the fallacy in the moving pictures of the "North Country" which show great teams of 10 or a dozen big dogs racing across the snow with a sled, a driver riding behind, yelling "mush" and cracking a long whip. He learned instead the true picture of danger, sacrifice and toil.

FROM Father Delon he heard the simply-told stories of the experiences which have been Father Delon's in the years that he has watched over and ministered to the people in his far-flung district in the frozen north country.

"Sometimes Father Delon told him, 'one will fight with all that is in him and all that his dogs possess, only to find that in 12 to 14 hours he has been able to travel only three miles, or even less. In our country a man must pull with his dogs to get through. He does little riding on the trail. It takes 32 days to cover our territory, and such time can only be made when conditions are the best for traveling. With our plane we will be able to cover the same routes in no more than eight hours flying time.'

"At times no one is able to travel at all in our country. The snow is very deep through the whole of the winter. An ice crust forms on the top and it is this ice which bears up the weight of man, dogs and sleds.

"In the spring, when the crust has melted, travel ceases, except for the comparatively short distances that can be negotiated by mailmen and others who must travel. It is a struggle for a man to get through the snow, but when necessary men do wade through for distances they can traverse with such short rations as can be carried on their backs.

"Until now, many times men, Indians and Eskimos, who venture far afield have been forced to face death alone, because no word of their plight could be sent out. Many times lives could have been saved in hospitals, close by as distances go in this part of the world, but hopelessly removed by the rigors and slow travel of the trail. Our plane will enable us to keep in closer touch with our people and render aid quickly when necessary.

"THE Marquette Missionary" is a big Bellanca cabin monoplane. It is equipped as an ambulance or an emergency hospital ship. It will carry much surgical and medical equipment and a hospital cot in which a sufferer may be moved swiftly through the air to the nearest hospital, perhaps 100 or 200 miles away. There is a short-wave radio sending and receiving set which can be used while flying or when the plane is at rest on the ground.

Service stations for airplanes are few and far between in Alaska. Brother Feltes will be his own mechanic. In a pinch, it is believed the plane could be run on whale oil, which is usually available in the north country.

Brother Feltes, who is but 32 years old, has been a member of the Jesuit order for 15 years. On the same day that the plane was solemnly blessed and officially presented by the Marquette League of Brooklyn, N. Y., its donors, to the Jesuit missionaries of Alaska, eight of his brothers who gave their lives more than 200 years ago for the work to which he, now more adequately armed by modern science, has consecrated his life, received perpetual honor. All eight, Jesuit missionaries in the north, died for their faith at the hands of Iroquois Indians.

At almost the same hour as the solemn service over "The Marquette Missionary," in St. Peter's at Rome Pope Pius XI canonized these other eight self-sacrificing brothers of the past.

LITTLE may be heard in the next decade of Brother Feltes and his 225 horsepower "toboggan of the air," for the works of men such as he go unheralded to the world.

However, among Indians and Eskimos, ill, injured, dying or without food and cut off from the rest of the world, he may well become regarded as a real angel of mercy from heaven.

And if his great winged aerial chariot and his own self carry any ease and comfort to those dying or in distress he will have received reward. It will be to him compensation far beyond that accorded other successful pioneers of the uncharted air-land. He is that type of man.

Bishop Crimont of Alaska came all the way to Roosevelt Field, Long Island, for the ceremonies at which the plane was turned over to the mission workers. For it was his appeal which had resulted in the plane's purchase, and it was he who blessed the ship with the same ceremonial with which ships of more primitive character have been blessed for hundreds of years. Bishop Crimont accepted the ship "in the name of my fellow missionaries . . . and all my Alaskan people, white, Indian, and Eskimo, who will be blessed.

When "The Marquette Missionary" first takes the air to soar above the bleak Alaskan mountains, a new era will have dawned in the efforts of white men to minister to their red brothers of the north.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

Answered By
Dr. S. Parkes Cadman

Questions from readers are answered by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Radio Minister of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

Kansas City, Mo.
How would you interpret Isaiah, chapter six, verses nine and ten?

The passage you cite reads as follows: "Hear ye indeed, but understand not, and see ye indeed, but perceive not. Make the heart of this people fat, and make their eyes heavy, lest they see with their eyes and understand with their hearts and turn again and be healed." The language is that of inspired poetry. It expresses in a distinctly Hebraic way the fact that those to whom the prophet ministered were utterly incapable of appreciating spiritual things.

They deliberately nullified their souls' understanding of unseen realities and willfully pursued their course in corruption and iniquity. The depths to which Isaiah's generation had sunk are vividly reflected in his further words: "Woe unto them that call evil good and good evil; that put darkness for light and light for darkness; that put bitter for sweet and sweet for bitter."

Intemperance, arrogance, ignorance, cupidity, lust and irreligion had made "the whole head sick and the whole heart faint," from the sole of the foot unto the head there is no soundness in it, but wounds and bruises and festering sores.

Plainly enough the prophet fearlessly tore the cover off that luxurious yet rotten period. His work was severe but surgical, sanitizing and remedial. It was since that time that the world has been groping for the world's health in days to come.

Charles W. N. C. All my life I have lived in a shell partly hereditary and partly acquired. I absorbed education and culture like a sponge, but until recently had neither the ability nor the desire to make friends. I now realize I must serve others if I am to secure life's richest blessings.

What in your judgment would be the best line of social service to take up?

At any rate the shell is smashed and you are prepared to enter into activities which will take you out of yourself. Do not yield to the seduction of a convert. Keep your self well in hand so that your interests may be properly proportioned. Sometimes in escaping isolation the released spirit forsakes these benefits which foster the individuality essential to efficient service. The Master cherished life's retirements because He loved its human associations. He withdrew from the multitudes in order to minister more fully to them.

I know nothing better for a woman situated as you are than to devote your time to welfare work among unprivileged children, or the relief of your neighbors' troubles. Do not forget that there are splendid companions in the dustiest neighborhoods if we are sufficiently alive to their possibilities. Main Street is a label on the moral and intellectual side of rural communities because it sticks to the stupid phase of their existence. You are always fortunate in having neighbors. What you make of them largely depends on yourself.

Bridgeport, Conn.
For the past eighteen months my husband has worked in his office until 11:30 and 12 midnight, leaving me entirely alone. There are no children. I have no allowance of my own, practically no friends and no variety in life. His mother and sister are constantly on our doorstep and take every occasion to insult me. They have set him against me from the day we were married. I have tried deliberately to obtain a business position but cannot do so. He refuses me any money for myself, even if I give him his freedom. What ought I to do?

I hesitate to advise you to consult a reputable attorney, first because recourse to the law should be deferred until it becomes a necessity, and again because it is equivalent to a declaration of domestic war. But your position is such that with no money and few friends you are in need of legal advice as to your present position and its future.

On the face of it the policy of your husband and his family is to freeze you out without any compensation whatever. This is a callous attitude and one which no true wife should be called upon to endure. The time has come for you to make a stand in your own behalf.

As a layman I cannot pretend to say what your legal position is, or what can be made out of it, but it would appear as though a separation were in order. The present condition of affairs in your home is scarcely anything else than that, in view of your husband's prolonged absence and his family's offensive presence, two elements which in themselves constitute a social attitude which is well nigh hopeless.

If you can get a position in an office is it your intention to leave him? Would not that be playing into his hands, since he might claim you had deserted him and repudiate all financial responsibility for your support? Do not give him this chance of escape. On the whole I suggest that you find a capable lawyer of good standing and be guided by him.

Man's Greatest Gift

An old carpenter around whose bench very few chips and old pieces of lumber were to be seen, one day was asked how he managed to keep so free from odds and ends. He calmly replied: "Well, I measure twice, and cut once." In other words, he was a thrifty mechanic; he carefully planned first what his hands were to do next. He knew how to use man's greatest gift—the ability to think.

Unemployment Cabinet Called

To First Session

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. (AP)—The special cabinet committee directed to consider means of reducing unemployment relief expenditures nationally this winter was called to meet today for the first time.

Secretary Lamont is chairman. Views as to the outlook were to be sought; and an attempt will be made to estimate the degree and extent to which relief efforts must go.

At the same time, it was the impression of individuals closely in touch with President Hoover's program that some unprecedented proposals would presently emerge. The cabinet committee is expected to report before the end of the present week and suggest that relief work on a scale involving expenditure perhaps of billions of dollars be undertaken.

The president is expected to transmit the program with favorable recommendations to congress.

Documents Of Pre-War Era Are Published

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. (AP)—A bulky volume of state documents, whose publication was delayed a year to avoid any international embarrassment while discussions preceding the London naval conference were in progress, today shed new light on the diplomatic maneuvers of 1916.

The new publication issued by the state department, reproduces notes exchanged between the powers and between American diplomats and the department during the period preceding entry of the United States into the World War. It was printed a year ago and prepared for distribution to the press on Aug. 7, 1929, but was withheld until now the London treaty is ratified by its signatories.

Many of the papers contained were published at the time the notes were exchanged between the governments. Others, particularly communications to and from this country's foreign representatives, and memoranda on conversations between American officials and foreign diplomats here, are new to the public. By far the larger part of the volume deals with the subject of neutral rights. Another section covered peace overtures by the central powers and their reception by the allies.

The publication is in the nature of a 1916 supplement to the department's previously published volumes of papers dealing with foreign relations.

All the talk of peace, including the important message from Ambassador Gerard in Berlin on May 2, informing this government after a lengthy conversation with the kaiser, that he had the best reason to believe Germany would welcome mediation by President Wilson, is reproduced. Immediately thereafter came word from Madrid that King Alfonso was ready to cooperate with President Wilson for peace. A few exchanges followed but they dropped off for a period of months until, toward the end of 1916, they came to a climax.

On Sept. 25 Germany voiced readiness to send delegates to a peace conference. In October the British ambassador told the state department his government regarded the German proposal "insincere." On Dec. 12 the central powers communicated a definite offer for peace to the allies, through the American secretary of state. The allies turned it down.

The larger section, devoted to neutral rights, followed step by step the development of American policy, particularly regarding submarine operations and leading up to America's warning that continued unrestricted submarine warfare of the central powers would bring this country into the war. It included also the extensive correspondence between the state department and the British government on the subject of the effects of the allied blockade of Germany on neutral commerce. This correspondence was published at the time. The divergence of policy between this country and Great Britain on the question of freedom of the seas which led to great strain during the period dealt with by the present volume, still exists and so far has proved too difficult a topic for international agreement.

Two Killed In Explosion Of Oil Barge

TROY, N. Y., Oct. 20. (AP)—Two men were killed, two others severely burned, and two tug boats and an oil tank barge destroyed in a gasoline explosion aboard the barge in the Hudson river today.

The cause of the explosion is not known, but there was a terrific blast aboard the barge which enveloped that craft and the two tugs tied alongside in flames. The detonation shattered all windows in five blocks of River street, this city, and blew all the glass out of three blocks of buildings in Water-viet on the opposite bank of the river.

At the instant of the blast Captain John Auckerman of Brooklyn, master of the tug Dynamic, yelled to the six or seven members of his crew to jump overboard, which they did. All were picked up shortly afterward except one man, who was not immediately accounted for but who is believed to have been among those rescued.

The dead and injured were on board the tug Craig. The two injured were taken to the Troy hospital as soon as they could be removed from the blazing tug.

The known dead are Fred Denoyers of Pleasantdale, a former member of the Craig's crew, and a man believed to be Philip Gallineau of Waterford, a deckhand. Denoyers quit work on the tug Saturday night, but returned today to get his clothing and was on board at the time of the explosion.

The barge was owned by the Oil Transfer company of New York City. The Dynamic was owned by the Connors Transportation company and the Craig was the property of the Marine Transportation Corporation company.

Spectators saw what appeared to be two men's bodies lying on the deck of the burning tug Craig.

Thousands of persons lined the river banks, where ambulances waited for firemen to reach the boats. One man was crowded over the dock and carried out between the burning tugs. Firemen rescued him.

Jury Pries Into Recent Parole

CHICAGO, Oct. 20. (AP)—The grand jury wants to know more about a parole granted George (Red) Barker, labor union racketeer.

Particularly, according to Assistant States Attorney Homer Dodge, information is sought about a fund of $11,000, reported to have been raised to finance Barker's parole from a reformatory after he served less than a year of a ten year sentence for larceny.

Although Barker was recently returned to the state reformatory at Pontiac for violation of the parole, two witnesses—State Senator Victor P. Michael of Peoria and Chauncey H. Jenkins, a former judge and state director of public welfare under former Governor Len Small, have been summoned to testify.

Dodge said that John Sheridan, secretary and treasurer of the Chicago Coal Teamsters Union had already testified concerning the fund. According to Dodge, Sheridan said the money, $3,000 in cash and an $8,000 check, payable to Sheridan, were withdrawn from the union treasury at the time Barker was freed by the late Judge T. N. Green of Peoria county.

At his home in Peoria last night Senator Michael said he knew of no reason why he should be summoned, but that nevertheless he would appear before the grand jurors this afternoon.

Kellogg Says Nations May Obtain Peace

THE HAGUE, Oct. 20. (AP)—Frank B. Kellogg, former United States secretary of state, who will be installed as a judge of the world court on Thursday, today in a statement told the Associated Press that if the nations of the world say "we want peace," they will have it.

It goes without saying, Mr. Kellogg declared, that the world-wide business depression has caused anxiety. Of this, he added, Germany provides a typical example but "there is no cause for undue anxiety."

Mr. Kellogg said he was very optimistic about efforts being made on all sides for advancement of world peace. "Fortunately," he continued, "the world progresses and does not go backward." The question is simply whether the politicians and the people wish to devote themselves to peace.

Both Parties Say They Will Lead In House

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. (AP)—Spokesmen for both major parties were out today with flat predictions they would control the house after the November election.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee, for the first time yesterday placed his formal declaration beside the optimistic pronouncements of other members of his party.

"A dispassionate summary of the facts, allowing full consideration to over-optimism in some of our reports," led to the conclusion, he said.

Representative Will R. Wood of Indiana, chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, immediately replied: "The next house of representatives not only will be Republican, but safely Republican."

Shouse predicted a minimum of 60 seats and added he firmly believed the overturn would be closer to 70. He counted at least seven states in New England, at least 15 in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia, and all districts lost in the southern states two years ago.

To these he added 30 seats in the middle west from Ohio to Kansas. Wood replied: "The Republican landslide of 1928 is not going to be followed by a landslide in the opposite direction on November 4."

"Generally we will hold our own in the November elections; we also will capture a few districts now represented by Democrats. Democratic forecasts of today mean no more than the forecasts of two years ago."

Touching on the senate situation Shouse said the Democrats might gain a majority of one in that body if the party's candidates won in three out

Hearing

As a separate unit as long as there was a substantial number of minority stockholders and added that his road did not now contemplate the purchase of any more stock than it was not now in position to buy involved in the hearing, which would give it approximately 28 per cent.

The question of the disposal of short lines connecting with the Cotton Belt was a matter, which had to be ironed out at the hearing. R. C. Duff, president of the Waco, Beaumont, Trinity and Sabine, was one of the several representatives of the short line roads.

The Southern-Pacific now owns approximately 35 per cent of the St. Louis Southwestern stock, purchased for $11,682.50 and the remainder would cost $7,887,488.62.

Holten characterized the Southern Pacific and St. Louis Southwestern as "inherently complementary." He pointed out that the S. P. system extended no farther north than Denison and Paris, Tex., and Shreveport, La., whereas the acquisition of the Cotton Belt would give the system an outlet to Memphis and St. Louis. More than 15 per cent of the Cotton Belt freight traffic is given to that road by the Southern Pacific, he said.

The witness said the Cotton Belt was not now in position to buy any of the short lines touching it. He said that such was unnecessary as long as existing rate agreements and routings were preserved.

Mrs. Miller Damages Plane in Winslow, Ariz.

WINSLOW, ARIZ., Oct. 20 (AP)—Mrs. Keith Miller, British flier, was here today awaiting minor repairs on her light biplane, damaged in landing at the end of the first leg of her west to east transcontinental record attempt.

Landing at 6:20 a. m. (M. S. T.) on a flight from Los Angeles yesterday, Mrs. Miller broke a wheel and damaged the tail skid of her plane. Mechanics said it would take less than a day and night to repair the damage to the tail skid, but a new wheel must be brought from Los Angeles before the aviatrix can take off again. She expected to leave by Wednesday morning.

CONROE, Texas, Oct. 20 (AP)—The political situation in Montgomery county was tense today, after county Judge A. W. Morris was temporarily removed from office yesterday on an order issued by District Judge S. A. McCall, based upon a petition charging Morris with misconduct in office.

Judge McCall appointed E. T. Smith of Conroe as acting county judge. Hearing on the charges against Morris was set for Oct. 27. The suspended county judge issued a brief statement saying the charges against him were an outgrowth of a heated Montgomery county political campaign preceding the July primaries this year.

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON, Oct. 20 (AP)—The wool market shows a fairly firm undertone. The narrow demand of last week following recent declines in Australia, influenced some holders of domestic wools to accept lower bids than they were previously willing to consider. A fairly firm market in Australia however, was considered a favorable factor in the immediate outlook and in view of small amount of buying done in Australia for American accounts, several houses have firmly refused to make down their asking prices. Receipts of domestic wool during week ending October 18 amounted to 7,648,700 pounds as compared with 547,200 pounds during previous week.

Proposed Amendment Would Cost Owners of Property Nothing

When an amendment to the constitution does not cost the taxpayers a cent yet allows the University of Texas and Texas A&M College an adequate instead of a woefully limited return on their investment of endowment, I am glad to advocate and even urge the adoption of the amendment by voters of this district.

Suppose the constitution limited the investment of the average man's money to government bonds paying about 4 per cent and destined to pay, in the present trend, no more than 2 1/2 per cent in 1933 when $12,000,000 of the University's permanent fund is to be reinvested. This is the situation of the two
