SCHOOL BILL PASSED BY SENATE

Fair Starts Despite Threatening Clouds

RAIN FAILS TO DAMPEN SPIRIT OF HUGE CROWD

DIRECTORS SIGN UP NEW FREE ATTRACTION AS EXPOSITION OPENS

Undaunted by low hanging, dull, gray clouds, broken only by an occasional half-hearted rift of sunshine, the Thirteenth Annual Panhandle and South Plains Fair opened this morning, according to schedule. The several days of cold and rainy weather had marked the exposition, however, and many of the displays of all departments were not ready for inspection.

The fair grounds were a veritable beehive of activity throughout today, hurrying, scurrying workers laboring breathlessly to complete exhibits while onlookers stumbled about viewing the available sights. All through the morning and early afternoon solid lines of delivery cars and passenger machines lined the muddy road leading from the city to Fair park, slipping and sliding in the treacherous mud.

While officials of the fair have been too busy with details, and making last minute decisions due to the necessitated changes of plans from the inclement weather, to make early reports, it is estimated that the muddy roads have caused very little deflation of the opening day crowds. If fair weather dawned with tomorrow the warm wind which has been blowing across the plains throughout today will leave the roads in a very passable condition and will assure success of the exposition, Manager A. B. Davis asserted this afternoon.

The faith and optimism of the directors in the final outcome of the fair was apparent shortly after noon today with the announcement that Kar Tai troupe of Chinese acrobats, had been signed for free performance during the last three days and nights of the fair. The Chinese will arrive in Lubbock early tomorrow morning and will give their first performance tomorrow afternoon. This addition to the free attractions, made at an expenditure of $500, gives the fair three troupes of performers, the other two being the Five Flying Fishers and the Pallidors Trio. The Kar Tai troupe comes here following an engagement at the West Texas Fair at San Angelo.

Band Is Delayed
The exposition was opened this morning at ten o'clock with a parade over the downtown district. The

McPherson Hearing Recessed When Mother Of Defendent Collapses

State Evidence Viewed By Evangelist With Apprehension

(By the Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, CALIF., Sept. 29. (AP)—A recess was ordered in the Almeo Semple McPherson hearing today when Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of the evangelist, appeared on the verge of collapse.

Mrs. Kennedy, pale and stumbling, was led from the court room by Mrs. McPherson and Attorney Arthur Veach. She was taken into the judge's chambers, the door to which was closed and locked.

A transcript of Mrs. McPherson's testimony before the grand jury was being read when Attorney Gilbert rose suddenly and asked for a recess. Judge Blake ordered a five minute intermission but at the expiration of that time he adjourned court until 2 o'clock when it became apparent that Mrs. Kennedy could not return at once.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 29.—Almeo Semple McPherson today will witness the introduction of the first detailed documentary evidence in the third investigation of her kidnapping story which opened in municipal court here Monday.

With the job of defendant in a charge of criminal conspiracy added to that of evangelist, the Angelus temple pastor watches the accumulation of state evidence with some apparent apprehension but retires to his room in the evening. His secretary, Mrs. Benedict, who has been in the temple for several months, has been followed and in turn ridiculed her occurrences.

Steno's Record Introduced
Stenographic records were introduced yesterday in an attempt to prove that the evangelist spent part of the five weeks she was absent from her temple in a cottage at Carmel-by-the-Sea, owned by Kenneth G. Ormiston, her former radio operator. The records comprised purported conversations between Howard C. Benedict and Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sielfaff. Benedict is the owner of a cottage at Carmel where Ormiston spent ten days with a begoggled woman whom he has designated as "Miss X," and who the evangelist branded as Mrs. McPherson. Mrs. Sielfaff is the confessed perpetrator of a hoax to produce a masquerade for the hole of "Miss X."

The short hand statements were taken during the two meetings between Benedict and Mrs. Sielfaff and during which she had attempted to convince him that she had been the radio man's companion at Carmel. Benedict branded the woman as a "monumental faker" in testifying to his conversations.

Handwriting Expert Called
After calling numerous witnesses from Carmel, several of whom identified the evangelist as the woman who occupied the cottage, District Attorney Alan Keyes indicated plans for introducing the documentary evidence today by instructing Milton Carlson, hand writing expert to be persuaded to take the witness stand. Carlson is being called to give expert testimony regarding the hand writing on two grocery slips found in the Carmel cottage. The slips and exhibits of Mrs. McPherson's hand writing, contained in her sermon notes picked up on the beach at Ocean park after her disappearance, will be handed to the expert for comparison. He will also be asked to identify the hand writing of the telegram received at Angelus temple from Oakland, Calif., several days after Mrs. McPherson disappeared, stating she was safe.

As the hearing progresses the nationwide search for Ormiston continues with no positive information as to his whereabouts.

Henry In Action
WILMINGTON, Del. — Henry Ford would like that special car he gave to the phony Baron Krupp, who is now in the house-garage because of some checks. At least Henry wants the equivalent in cash. He has written to the courts asking what can be done about it.

Schwab On Again
RICHMOND, Va. — Charley Schwab, golfer, optimist, speaker and sundry other things, has still another capacity to keep him busy. He has been elected president of the American society of mechanical engineers.

Bernice Morris (left), Los Angeles stenographer, was one of the witnesses on whose testimony charges of conspiring to produce false evidence have been made against Almeo Semple McPherson, evangelist. Mrs. Morris, secretary to a lawyer whom Mrs. McPherson retained, declared she heard her employer and the evangelist planning fictitious testimony about Mrs. McPherson's "kidnaping." She is shown here with her sister, Madge.

Bootlegger In Plane Fined $700

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 29.—San Antonio's first airplane liquor smuggler to be arrested has been fined $700.

Caught near here a few months ago, Fred E. Caldwell was brought to trial in federal court Tuesday and was found guilty by a jury after 35 minutes deliberation. Judge Charles Boynton of El Paso fined him $250 for possession and $450 for transportation of liquor. He was alleged to have brought 70 gallons of alcohol from Mexico.

Federal authorities have a problem in disposing of the plane confiscated, valued at $3,700, but probably it will go the way of confiscated automobiles.

TWO BODIES FOUND IN FOREST FIRE

RENO, Nev., Sept. 29. (AP)—Fire fighters searching the hills west of Carson City which were swept yesterday by a brush and forest fire today found the charred bodies of two men, one identified as Ralph Morse, section hand for the Virginia and Truckee rail road and the other as one of the two inmates of the Nevada state prison who had been fighting the flames.

RENO, Nev., Sept. 29. (AP)—Three men are believed dead, two are in a hospital here suffering from dangerous burns and a dozen other men received minor burns as the result of a forest and brush fire near Carson City yesterday. The fire swept up the hills near the King's canyon grade toward Lake Tahoe last night after destroying two ranches and taking a heavy toll in timber and property.

Arthur Sunday forest ranger, and Bryant Whittemore, state prison guard, were caught in a fire trap shortly before noon. Little hope is held for Sunday's recovery.

George Brown of Churchill county, and J. E. Mitchell of Clarke county, state prisoners who were in a contingent which volunteered to fight the flames, have been missing since noon.

An Indian, working with a crew of railroad employes, also is missing. The fire reached a mile of the state capital building before a changing wind sent the flames in another direction.

Eleven Policemen Will Aid At Fair

Eleven special policemen, ten for duty at the Panhandle and South Plains fair grounds and the other for use in the downtown section of the city have been sworn in for the period of the exposition, peace officers said today.

(Bud) Johnston, however will put on no special deputies, and assumed the festival today that his regular force would be well able to handle anything which might come under its surveillance, even with the fair in full sway. Deputy Sheriff Verne L. Ford will spend practically all of his time on the outside of the office during the fair, Sheriff Johnston said.

Great damage was done to the surrounding villages. The sea resort of Villa Del Mar was completely destroyed as well as the Carbon station which is estimated cost half a million dollars.

Shipping in the harbor sustained great losses and it was believed that many small fishing craft were destroyed. It was reported that the wind velocity reached 200 kilometers per hour. All communication by land was interrupted. The city was flooded last night by heavy rain fall.

DAVIS MEASURE BOOSTING FUND GIVEN APPROVAL

University Probe Asked
AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 29. (AP)—Investigation into the University of Texas, the acts of the authorities in converting Bockenridge Hall, the boys' dormitory into an office building, the payment of fees to attorneys for services, and the discharge of certain students, was urged in a resolution introduced in the senate Wednesday by Senator Thomas G. Pollard of Tyler.

The resolution charges that the university has charged admission fees in excess of the limit of $25, and that these fees have ranged to $100.

Special Counsel Hired
It is charged that the attorney general of the state is designated the legal advisor and representative of all regents and trustees of educational institutions, and yet the university is paying W. A. Keeling $4,000 annually to advise it concerning legal matters, and has at various times employed other attorneys in lieu of the attorney general, paying Charles Black a fee of $2,500, and Dudley Woodward $2,500.

The resolution asks investigation of the rule passed by the regents which prohibits any faculty member or student from bringing matters to the attention of the regents without the consent of the president.

1,600 Foot Depth On Ellwood No. 1

Dan Lewis of Colorado City, who is drilling El Capitán's Ellwood No. 1, a 1,600 foot test in Hockley county, twenty miles northwest of here, reports that a depth of approximately 1,600 feet has been reached. According to Mr. Lewis the 1,600 foot mark will be struck before Christmas. The terms of the contract call for at least 2,500 feet before drilling operations shall cease.

Mr. Lewis also has the drilling contract on the El Capitán company's Robertson number 1, located in Crosby county, just over the southeast corner of the Lubbock county line. He expects to spud in by the middle of October and already has part of his equipment assembled at Slaton.

Satterwhite Says He Has No Apologies

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 29. (AP)—Surrendering his gavel Speaker Lee Satterwhite of the house declared Wednesday he had no apology to offer for the fact the American Bankers league financed his trips to Washington last fall when, with other Texas legislators, he protested a federal inheritance tax.

YANK INFIELD GREENEST LIST EVER IN SERIES

JOE DUGAN ONLY VETERAN ON INNER DEFENSE OF YANKEE MACHINE

(By Associated Press) NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The rookie infield of the New York Yankees is the greenest inner defense that has ever confronted a world's series contender.

Smart pitching and an airtight defense are the factors that are considered to have the better chance to win the big prize in baseball. This year finds the Yankees with only one veteran player on its infield—Joe Dugan at third base.

Whether this infield will stand up during the strain of battle for the season's honors is a question. When Miller Huggins' team cracked wide open in the 1925 campaign it tumbled from second to seventh place. There were holes at shortstop and at second while first base was slowing up.

During the winter the Yanks obtained Tony Lazzeri from Salt Lake City of the Pacific Coast league, where he battered the fences with his hitting and sent up a record of 50 home runs.

Spring came and Huggins placed the fiery Italian at second where he made the grade while Koenig filled the gap at shortstop. Koenig has nerves at times, making bobbles on the easiest chances and making hard ones look easy.

During the winter Huggins let Wally Schang, the club's first string catcher, go to the St. Louis Browns, and purchased Pat Collins from St. Paul.

DIXIE SERIES GOES TO NEW ORLEANS

DALLAS, Sept. 29. (AP)—The setting for the south's annual baseball classic was being shifted today to New Orleans where tomorrow the Dallas Steers and the New Orleans Pelicans are scheduled to resume the Dixie series.

The Pelicans departed homeward, cheered by the prospect of staging their back-to-back stand in native haunts. The Steers have won three victories and need only one more to tuck away the championship.

'Red' Hamilton Is Eligible For Play

James B. "Red" Hamilton, McKinney, last year's first string quarterback on the Matador football team and who was unable to play against the Abilene Christian college aggregation last week due to eligibility rules, is now ready for play. It was stated here yesterday.

Hamilton has been working out regularly with the grid squad and is in as good physical condition as if he had been eligible for play. He is expected to be seen in action again when the Tech clashes with Schreiner Institute during the fair.

THE AFFEREE

What's this fighting weight of Paul Doyle?—D. F. N. About 146 pounds.

Where did Mary K. Browne finish in the qualifying round of the women's national golf tournament last year?—D. G. K. Tied for fifth with card of 82.

Dallas Steers Take Edge On Dixie Series, Winning Thursday In Ninth Inning Rally 4-3 With Brainard Up

DALLAS, Sept. 29.—The tie play off of the Dixie Series was broken yesterday when Brainard Steer outfielder, drove a single to left field after Morse walked, and Gross had sent him to second with a deep centerfield bingle the winning run being scored by Morse, and Dallas took the lead in games won over New Orleans for the baseball championship of Dixie 4 to 3. Dallas now has won three games and New Orleans two.

Both teams battled for five frames before a count was made; then at the sixth session both clubs scored a run each. New Orleans scored on a fielder's choice, in this way—Tucker walked and was advanced to second with Deal slow roller, which Deal beat out; Edwaldt walked filling the bases, then with a grounder to second which was slow to cut Tucker off at the plate scored Tucker.

Steers Drive In Run Dallas, however, hit their score in. It was when Riley singled and scored with Weeber's hard double to center field that the Steers tie the contest.

The Steers then apparently cinched the contest driving in two runs in the eighth—when Riley walked with Weeber sending him to second with a sacrifice, and Tate laying one down which advanced Riley to third and he was safe at first; Josh Billings worked a perfect squeeze play scoring Riley and advancing Tate to second base. Riviere then singled to center scoring Tate.

Gross Cost Steers Two Scores After Dallas had practically won the game and had it put on ice—Love was sent in the ninth to relieve Riviere; Love walked Oestergard, who batted for Scott, Oestergard was sent to second with Gardner's single. Tucker grounded to Gross who fumbled the ball, which filled the bases. Whaley hit to Gross who threw wild to first scoring Gardner. It was "Turkey" Gross's two blunders that cost his team two runs which tied the contest.

Teams Rest Today The teams will be en route to the Crescent city where the finals of the contest will likely end. Should Dallas win the first game in New Orleans, the pennant will be awarded to the Texas League in case New Orleans wins the game the series will be in a tied condition again.

The score by innings: New Orleans 000 001 002—3 7 1 Dallas 000 001 021—4 11 2

Moss, Scott, Martina and Bowie; Shuman, Riviere, Love and Huggins.

SLATON READY FOR PLAINVIEW GAME

(Special to Daily Journal) SLATON, Sept. 29.—The Slaton Tigers took a very light work out here yesterday afternoon which will conclude their practice prior to the clash with the Bulldogs of Plainview at the Panhandle South Plains fair at Lubbock Thursday. Slaton fans at Lubbock forward to this game as a genuine one to their hopes for the Class B championship of the Lubbock Inter-scholastic league district. It was Plainview that defeated the Floydada Whirlwinds 10 to 6 last week-end; should the Tigers hold the Bulldogs to a closer game a good insight may be found as to the year's outcome with the district title, as it with the Floydada Whirlwinds that the championship is favored in the Class B schools.

While Coach Miller has a flock of good heavy material to handle, they are green and inexperienced. Only four letter men returned this season among the four are: Huckabay, who is considered one of the best high school centers in the Panhandle; Duckie Allen, mentor of the Plainview eleven has a host of letter men back in his line-up this season and are fleet and fast.

O'FARRELL IS MOST VALUABLE MAN SKIPPER SAYS

NEW YORK CITY, Sept. 29. (AP)—If Rogers Hornsby knows his Cardinals, and he thinks he does, he has an ace in his first string catcher, Bob O'Farrell. The former Cub is credited by his manager with being the most valuable player on the club and this flattering opinion is shared by many other who base ball men. Although Hank Severid carries vast and valuable experience with him behind the bat for the Yankees, and Pat Collins is a dangerous long distant hitter, close observers give O'Farrell a decided edge over either of Huggins' receivers. O'Farrell, barring injury, will catch every game for the National league entry. The work of back stopping for New York probably will be divided between Severid and Collins. Ernest Viek, ready to substitute for O'Farrell if necessary, although holding a post-graduate degree as a football player, still is a major league apprentice.

O'Farrell and Collins have the same batting average, .232 if the unofficial averages are to be believed. The same source credits each rival catcher with seven home runs. O'Farrell, however, has played 146 games while Collins has appeared in 101.

GLENNA CONTINUES TO WIN HAVERTFORD, Pa., Sept. 29. (AP)—Glenna Collett, defending her title as women's national golf champion, over the Merion links, scored an easy victory in her second round match today against Mrs. Norman Rood of Wilmington, Delaware, 8 up and 6 to play.

Sam Langford Goes To Shamrock, Texas

Elton (Sam) Langford slugging fly chaser, will not spend the winter months in Lubbock as he first planned but will live in Shamrock, where he has secured the kind of a job he has been looking for, he told friends at the Journal office this morning before catching the northbound train for his new home.

According to Sam his illness this summer has given him a big physical setback and he is twenty pounds under weight. In order to regain the right weight he wants hard work and plenty of it. He will return to Lubbock about the middle of February to spend a little time with friends before reporting for spring training.

AGGIES TO AID FANS ON SIDELINES NUMBERED

(Special to the Journal) COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Sept. 29.—The 26 members of the A. & M. football squad have been given numbers to enable the fans to identify them during the coming season. In the draw, Captain "Ox" Dieterich received No. 32, while No. 1 went to F. H. Weston of San Antonio, who is trying to make good in the backfield. No. 13 went to J. P. Criswell of Forney, a center, and the fans are wondering if this number will be unlucky or lucky for him.

Following is the personnel of the Aggie squad, with the numbers they will wear during the season: No. 1, F. H. Weston; No. 2, P. C. Colgin; No. 3, V. M. Woodman; No. 4, W. R. Bodine; No. 5, P. J. Wayland To Meet Buffaloes Saturday

(Special to Journal) PLAINVIEW, Sept. 29.—The Wayland College Jackrabbits and the Canyon Buffaloes of the West Texas Teachers College will meet in a football game at Plainview Saturday for the first time in four years. The last game between these two teams was in 1922 when the Jackrabbits defeated the Buffaloes nineteen to nothing. The Buffaloes called off football relations with Wayland College following this game. Wayland will place a lighter and less experienced team against the Buffaloes however a hot contest is expected.

CHARGE OF PELICAN ROOTERS DENIED

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 29. (AP)—An unintentional exaggeration was the version which baseball officials and sportsmen here today placed on the charges of New Orleans fans that they had received "unsportsman-like" treatment at the Dallas games of the Dixie series.

Seventy-six rooters returning to New Orleans yesterday, after their team had been defeated by the Dallas Steers, were quoted as charging that Pelican pitchers were blinded with mirrors in the stands, that New Orleans fans were separated, and that they were not provided with proper reservations.

Tahoka Bulldogs To Meet Floydada

Coach Lewis, with his eleven Bulldogs, arrived here shortly after noon today for the clash with the Floydada Whirlwinds this afternoon at the fair grounds. "The bunch are in good condition and are ready for the game. Can not say just how the game will result for it is my first time to meet the Floydada club, but I will have my team there. They are good hustlers and won't give up until the last whistle is blown."

Eagle Lake Man To Reside In Lubbock

Roensch Roberts of Eagle Lake will arrive in Lubbock on October 1 to begin his duties as assistant cashier of the Citizens National bank. F. A. Norman, vice president of the organization said today. His home town paper, the Eagle Lake Herald, in a recent edition, announced Mr. Roberts' leaving, praising the fine qualities of the young man.

AGGIES ELATED WITH VICTORY OVER TRINITY

FARMER FOLLOWERS SAY DOPESTERS HAD BEST REFIGURE SQUAD

(Special to the Journal) COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Sept. 29.—Back on Kyle field to put in a week of preparation for the Southwestern games here, the last hurdle before the team enters the major part of its schedule with the Sewanee battle in Dallas at Fair Park Stadium on Oct. 9, there is considerable elation around the camp. After the unexpected one-sided victory over the formidable Trinity Tigers, there is a feeling among the supporters of the Farmers that those dopsters who have been figuring A. and M. definitely out of the Conference race this year had best do a little more work with the pencil.

Whether this elation is justified can be judged more accurately after the coming two games, especially that with Sewanee. The Aggies do not fear the Southwestern as much as they did Trinity, and fell now that they will go to Dallas on the next two victories in their bag. While the Sewanee game has no bearing at all of course on the Conference race, it is the final test before the Aggies go against their own class in this section and it will tell definitely whether the coaches have been able in a few short weeks to whip into shape a worthy successor of the championship team of 1925.

Those who saw the Aggies at Waxahachie last Friday are inclined to believe that he has done it. It is true that the Aggies ran the simplest kind of plays from only two formations, but the A. and M. in the past two years indication of rivaling the fine work of their two predecessors and on offense showed a promising enough running and plunging attack, mixed with a little overhead, to run true to the type of teams Bible puts in the field.

Pointing for the Sewanee game, the Aggies unquestionably will gauge the success of their own season by it. Yet they are fully aware that they have the hardest task of their contract period with the Tennesseans to date. Sewanee has come so close to defeating A. and M. in the past two years when the Aggies were favorites that this year when the Purple comes with a veteran team against the Aggies' new one, the uncertainty attending the outcome does not favor the Texas side, so far as hope is concerned. But hope does not win football games. Here at the College the coaches are going ahead instructing their new machine in a firm faith it will prove itself on the field, even against Sewanee.

Floydada Gridders Arrive For Game

The Floydada Whirlwinds arrived here shortly afternoon after pulling heavy roads between the Flood county city and Lubbock. The boys are very tired having been on roads since 3 o'clock this morning, and makes a great difference in their work on the grid," stated Coach Wester, mentor of the Whirlwinds.

There were 22 of them—big huskies of the rich Floyd county wheat area in the cars. Two complete teams with many of them regulars of the last season club; who are well trained and have a good knowledge of the tactics of the game.

The Whirlwinds meet with the Tahoka Bulldogs here this afternoon at the South Plains Fair ground at 4 o'clock.

PLAINVIEW LOOKS FOR HARD GAME

(Special to the Journal) PLAINVIEW, Sept. 29.—Plainview's bloodthirsty Bulldogs are expected to bite into a tough piece of meat when they clash with the Slaton Tigers at the Panhandle-South Plains Fair in Lubbock Thursday. Plainview is a class A school and Slaton is in class B; however, both teams have been champions in their districts and a closely fought game is expected when the light and fast Bulldogs meet the heavier Tigers.

Guy Allen, coach of the Bulldogs, in commenting on the game said: "I believe that Plainview III has a slim chance to win against the Tigers and I do not mean to say that our team is weak or has been weakened but I do know that Slaton has one of the strongest teams in West Texas and that if we win against them, our chances will be fairly good to win over Lubbock and Amarillo."

Plainview took their first game of the season from Floydada by a score of fourteen to six at Floydada, Friday.

SAINT AND SINNER

BY ANNE AUSTIN COPYRIGHT 1926 NEA

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE CHERRY LANE, IS tiny, beautiful, copper-haired, as different from her sister, FAITH, as two girls can be. Faith is compelled to stay at home and keep house for the family of six because her mother is a semi-invalid.

The other two children are UNIOR, nicknamed "Long" Lane, and JOY, nine. Cherry's long list of admirers includes CHESTER HART, formerly an admirer of Faith's; BOB HATHAWAY, a young architect for whom Mr. Lane, carpenter and contractor in a small way, is to build two bungalows; ALBERT ETTELESON, a married traveling salesman; her present employer old MR. CLUNY, whom Faith surprises in the act of making love to Cherry, and CHRIS WILEY, over whom a girl has committed suicide, and many others.

GEORGE PRUITT, rich man's son and amateur artist, falls in love with Faith, whom he compares to the Venus de Milo, but Faith has already lost her heart to Bob Hathaway, who has eyes only for Cherry. Pruitt invites the two girls to a studio party in his father's garage loft. Faith works all day and most of the night to make a party dress for herself and Cherry.

While Faith is sewing late at night, Bob and Cherry return from a "date" and Cherry succeeds in making Hathaway kiss her. She admits as much to Faith, who begs her to play fair with Hathaway, but Cherry impudently replies that she will not marry him if she can get Pruitt, who is interested in Faith.

CHAPTER XII "It's too long, Faith!" Cherry wailed crossly. "I told you I wanted it just to my knees, and it's two inches below them."

Faith, on her knees before the little figure in the new printed chiffon, pushed damp wisps of hair from her forehead with a weary hand. "But I keep telling you that a bouffant skirt can't be clear up to the knees, Cherry! When you dance, it would swirl way above your knees. Besides, there isn't time to do a thing to it now. It's half past seven and I've got to bathe and dress yet."

"No daughter of mine is going to wear a dress any uglier than that," Jim Lane walked from the cluttered dining table into the living room, spectacles pushed high on his forehead, the sheets of the afternoon paper trailing from his hand. "It's a sin and a shame the way you foolappers are dressin' these days."

"A lot you know about it, Jim Lane!" said Mrs. Lane, adding heavily into the living room, waving a palm leaf fan to cool her face. "If you're going to sew for Faith, I should think you'd make her dresses like she wants 'em."

"Oh, Lord!" Faith groaned, sinking back upon her heels and flinging an arm across her eyes, as if to shut them all out. "Here I've worked all night and all day to get her dress ready, and this is the thanks I get for it! I wish I'd ever stuck the scissors into it!"

"Faith Lane, how dare you talk to your mother like that!" Mrs. Lane bent over the girl and shook her fan in her face. "I've a good mind to slap your face for you, young lady, even if—"

But the sentence was never finished. Mrs. Lane's voice choked queerly, then suddenly her big body lurched and fell, knocking Faith flat. The girl's arms went out, heaved at the fainting woman's body. Jim Lane was tugging, too, with all his strength. Between them, Faith and her father got the heavy, inert body into bed, while Cherry stood by, wringing her hands helplessly.

It was eight o'clock when the doctor arrived, and Mrs. Lane was conscious again, her lips purple, perspiration ice cold.

Upon her brow. Faith had worked over her mother steadily the half hour before the doctor's arrival, with Jim Lane awkwardly assisting. Cherry had fled, weeping hysterically, into her bedroom, with one last violent charge hurled at her sister: "Now look what you've done!" Junior was out, and Joy, playing in the streets, had not been summoned.

"High blood pressure, tricky heart, the heat," summed up the doctor's diagnosis, when he had administered a sedative and had given directions for Mrs. Lane's care during the night.

"Oh, Dr. Atkins—" Faith was started to see Cherry, fully dressed, ready for George Pruitt's party, step out of her bedroom and accost the good-looking young physician. "Is there any—any—danger?"

"She'll be all right now—for tonight, at least." The doctor's appreciative eyes took in the copper-curl'd little figure. "If you were planning to go to a party, go right ahead. She'll be all the better for the quiet."

"I wouldn't go a step if I thought there was any real danger," Cherry told him, her golden eyes filling with tears. "It's just a little studio party at the Pruitts—the Lincoln Trusts, you know."

When the doctor had gone, Cherry whirled on Faith, who was looking at her with steady, scornful eyes. "Don't look at me like that, Faith Lane! I don't see any reason why both of us should stay at home! And you caused it all! If you hadn't made Muggy angry by sassing her, it wouldn't have happened."

"That's not true, Cherry. I told the doctor all about it. He said it was likely to happen any time now. She's really sick, Cherry, awfully sick. I'm afraid. It's not fair of you to put all the blame on me. I feel like a dog anyway." She covered her face with her hands and began to sob heavily.

"Oh, Faith, I'm a little beast! I'm sorry! But you will stay with her and let me go to the party, won't you, honey?—I just couldn't bear to miss it, and you don't like parties much anyway. Oh, there's a car now! I wonder if it's Chester or George? George said he was going to come early for you, before the other guests arrived, didn't he?"

"If it's George Pruitt, I can't see him, looking like this!" Faith lifted a corner of her kitchen apron, which she had not had time to remove, and wiped her eyes. "Tell him I'm sorry to miss the party. I don't suppose he'll mind," she added, with a tinge of bitterness.

It was George Pruitt, and Faith, her hand to her throat, stood at the closed door between dining room and living room as Cherry's subdued voice explained.

"And Faith's awfully sorry she can't come, George. I wanted to stay with darling Muggy, but Faith says I'm so little I couldn't lift Muggy if she needed turning over in bed or anything like that. Faith's such a big strong girl, you know. Isn't it awful to be little and good-for-nothing like me?"

"And I planned this party for her!" George Pruitt's words sent the blood into Faith's cheeks. But, oh, why couldn't it have been Bob Hathaway who had so quickly and unaccountably taken a real liking to her? In her humbleness, Faith did not dare use the words, "fallen in love."

When at last George Pruitt had gone and Chester Hart had come in his roadster and taken Cherry away with him, Faith refilled the ice bag and placed it gently on her sleeping mother's forehead. Then she slipped noiselessly out of the room, to her own bedroom, when she flung her arms about the pretty new maize chiffon, with its great, silk-petaled, frim-fur flower, and gave herself up to grief.

At half past ten she heard a car stop at the curb, but she did not leave her vigil at her mother's bedside. Two minutes later her father came tiptoeing to the door, beckoning Faith to join him in the hall.

"It's young Hathaway, Faith. He wants to see you—come from the party specially to bring you some of the refreshments. Pretty white of him, eh?"

"Tell him I'll be out—right away," Faith gasped, her face widening with incredulous joy. "Talk to him till I change my dress, Dad. Mother's asleep."

Obediently a sudden, mad impulse to make the most of the moment vouchsafed her by fate, Faith stripped off her "gallow" apron, utilitarian white slip and underwear, and, with hands that trembled with haste and eagerness, arrayed her body in her best silk combinations, a dainty pink crepe costume, given her as a Christmas gift by her mother, and over all the soft, cloudy maize chiffon that she had finished that day.

As she breathed a prayer that she failed to notice that her silk pumps were breaking in the creases, into the mirror loop of smooth, brown hair on the nape of her neck, she stuck a high Spanish comb, studded with imitation emeralds.

It made her look queerly, she told her reflection in the mirror, holding her head with new pride. During into her bedroom, she rummaged in the top dresser drawer (Continued on Page 9)

DAILY MARKET

NEW ORLEANS TRADING
NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 29 (AP)—Announcement by the weather bureau of three tropical storms in the Caribbean sea and the West Indies caused the cotton market to open firm. Numerous cables also stimulated the firm opening and first trades showed gains of 15 to 17 points. Prices advanced further after the start with December trading at 14.52 and January 14.53, which was 17 to 19 points above yesterday's close. Hedge selling was attracted by the advance and prices soon lost 10 to 12 points. The weekly weather and crop report was considered bullish.

The market eased off after the first hour on prospects of better weather in the west, December trading down to 14.34 and January to 14.40. There was less pressure to sell, however, and hedge selling and more or less support developed. There was improvement in the spot situation and as a result prices rallied 15 points from the lows, recovering practically all the loss and carrying prices back to within a few points of the highs. Near noon the market was steady.

The market rallied in the afternoon mainly on covering by shorts which defeated the effect of a heavy rain in the northwest part particularly in Oklahoma. December advanced to 14.63 and January to 14.70 or 23 to 26 points up from the lows and 30 to 32 points above the previous close.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP)—Cotton futures opened firm: October 14.30; December 14.52; January 14.62; March 14.82; May 15.02.

Sales 6,906 bales, 3,000 American. Receipts 8,900 bales, American 7,900.

NEW YORK TRADING

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP)—The cotton market opened at an advance of 20 to 22 points as if influenced by reports of a steadier tone in Liverpool unsettled weather in the south and apprehensions that the tropical storm reported north of Porto Rico might move in the direction of the belt. There was active covering with some trade and Liverpool buying at the start, but when initial buying orders had been supplied prices eased off several points under continued southern and commission house selling. December which had sold up to 14.55 at the start, reacted to 14.42, the general market showing net advances of about 10 to 14 points at the end of the first hour.

After selling off to 14.37 under pressure from the south and renewed liquidation, December steadied on less favorable weather news, covering and reports of better trade demand. The detailed weather reports showing heavy rains in Oklahoma and Arkansas stimulated buying somewhat and at mid-day December was selling at 14.49, the general list showing net advances of about 12 to 26 points.

CHICAGO TRADING

CHICAGO, Sept. 29 (AP)—Wheat values developed firmness today after down turns at the start. Liverpool displayed more strength than looked for, and the crop movement in Canada continued to lag. Starting unchanged to 1/2c off, the market here soon secured slight general gains.

Corn and oats were easy, corn opening to 2-4c off, and showing but little power to rally. Provisions held steady.

WALL STREET TRADING

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP)—Stock prices failed to follow a clearly defined trend at the opening of today's market, although trading was broader and more active, representative rails such as Union Pacific, Rock Island and Frisco responded to the excellent August earnings reports but General Motors, DuPont, Allied Chemical and American Lined preferred were weakened by profit taking. Sinclair Oil opened fractionally lower following the government's victory in the circuit court in the Teapot Dome case. Constructive forces soon gained control of the price movement by the effective distribution of buying orders among popular railroad, public utility, equipment, sugar and specialty shares. Indications of favorable dividend action by several railroads as a result of expanding earnings was a bullish factor. Rock Island mounted more than a point to a new high, Frisco again crossed par and substantial gains were recorded by Atchafalpa and Nickel Plate. Expectations of an early rate decision promoted buying of Brooklyn Union Gas, Consolidated Gas and Brooklyn Edison, the leaders among local utilities. Union Tank Car and Commercial Solvents "B" each rose 3 points or more. With raw and refined sugar at the highest prices of the year, a brisk demand developed for the sugar stocks, including American, Cuba cane preferred and South Porto Rico. Mack Trucks, Westinghouse, "B" General Motors, and Louisville and Nashville were heavy. Foreign exchanges opened steady in dull trading.

Tahoka band, one of the best musical organizations on the Plains, was to have led the march but was mulled between here and the Lynn county seat and failed to arrive until eleven-thirty. The band, however, will be available at the fair tonight and is planning to parade the business district late this evening.

All of the exhibits will be in place by tomorrow morning. Manager Davis said this afternoon, and with but few exceptions will be open to inspection to visitors tonight. The following is the program for tonight:

P. M.—Carnival.
7:30 P. M.—Band concerts.
P. M.—Viewing exhibits.

8:30 P. M.—Free acts on football field, Flying Fishers and Pallone Trio in three big circus acts.

9 P. M.—Lubbock Fire Department in Special Drill.
9:15 P. M.—Fireworks.

Many From Out of Town
One marked feature of the first day was the presence of many out-of-town and out-of-county patrons.

Braving the muddy roads and taking a chance on the absence of more rain in spite of the fact that the sky was anything but clear during the morning, visitors from Crosby, Lynn, Dawson, Hockley, Hale, Cochran and Garza counties were noted on the streets and at the fair grounds. Fair leaders believe that with clear weather tomorrow the sectional visitors will pour in from all sections of the Plains and that in the three days yet to come the fair may still break all records for attendance.

MCPHERSON HEARING RECESSED WHEN WOMAN FAINTS

William N. Carter, foreman of the grand jury which was discharged for irregularities in the McPherson case investigation, the first witness called today testified that Mrs. McPherson appeared before the grand jury and he himself administered the oath of truth. He said that on her request he did not administer the oath of secrecy. The same oath of truth, he said, was administered to Mrs. Kennedy.

Agnes McCarrett, official reporter for the discharged grand jury, testified Mrs. McPherson came before the inquisitorial body in July and gave testimony in the disappearance investigation. She identified a transcript of the testimony by the evangelist.

The evangelist testified, according to the transcript, that she left her home near Echo park about noon May 18, in company with her secretary, Miss Emma Schaeffer for a "dip" in the ocean. She then told the story of her alleged kidnaping.

Attempt To Burn Gin Unsuccessful

CORSICANA, Sept. 28 (AP)—An unsuccessful attempt was made Tuesday night to burn to Holmes cotton gin at Emhouse, ten miles north of Corsicana, according to reports reaching the sheriff's office. A quantity of kerosene is said to have been poured in front of the gin stand but the march thrown in the kerosene apparently failed to ignite the oil. Tracks leading to the gin were found.

FISH AND GAME DEPARTMENT OF STATE BOOSTED

BIG INCREASE SHOWN IN REPORTS OVER LAST YEAR'S RECORD

AUSTIN, Sept. 29. (AP)—A comparison of the fiscal report of the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission for 1925 and 1926 is interesting in that it shows a large increase in property values belonging to the department and in cash on hand. In 1925 the value of the department's property was $36,000 while in 1926 it was $240,000. Last year the cash on hand was approximately $155,000 and in 1926 $263,000. Despite the increase the department has spent more than in previous years in construction of three fish hatcheries and stocking fifteen of the 35 game preserves it has taken over this year.

With the close of the fiscal year, Commissioner Turner E. Hubby set a precedent not only in his department but in other state departments in that he had a complete audit made of the commissioner's books by a certified public accountant. This report accounts for all funds spent and shows the books of the department to be in perfect condition. He also recommended in his report to the governor that a law be passed requiring this at the close of each fiscal year.

This audit of the commissioner's books is not the only one set by the commissioner in that he has undertaken a scientific study of marine life in the coastal waters of the state and has taken the public into the confidence of the commission by asking suggestions and aid in putting over the plans of the commission.

Results over these are gratifying. Commissioner Hubby said. Oysters planted in previous years, were found by experts of the Federal Bureau not to have made new beds. Their published reports say these plants of oysters can still be seen where they were dumped and were either dead when planted or little care was used in the selection of the bottoms where they were planted. Under the present system, the commissioner pointed out, the planting was placed under the supervision of oyster experts. The closing of the back bays on the coast was done so at the suggestion of the experts and the thousands of fish in them bear out the wisdom of the advice, the commissioner said.

The report shows that the pollution of lakes and streams in Texas is a difficult evil with which to contend, and the commissioner has appealed to the public to prevent pollution in order to save the water life of the state.

CHILDREN ARE BEST CROP RAISED IN VALLEY

MISSION, Texas, Sept. 29. (AP)—The best crop raised thus far in the Rio Grande Valley on a small acreage is children. Gas E. Rome, who has reared nine children on his little farm of 18 acres near Mission, appears to hold the record thus far.

Mr. Rome and his family are held out to visitors as one of the Valley's prizes because, as it is pointed out, a Northern farmer would ordinarily require a much larger place to rear such a family.

When Mr. Rome arrived in this vicinity from Franklin, Louisiana, in about 1909, he had nothing much, but the family. He came first, and when he brought his wife and children, the wife took one look at the desolate patch of cactus and sage brush and exclaimed:

"What in the world brought you to this place?"

Mr. Rome was unable to say what had brought him to this place. He just had an urge. It was then a wilderness. He had been manager of various sugar plantations in Louisiana for many years, and wanted to get a little place of his own. In the intervening years, however, he has been able to answer fully the question his wife put to him in 1909. Crop after crop of cabbage, onions, grape fruit, and other fruits and vegetables have been the answer. He paid $100 an acre for the 12 acres and a few weeks ago turned down an offer of $30,000 for the farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Rome had 13 children. Two died in infancy, one from illness

MERTON CALLED BY PROSECUTION IN FRAUD TRIAL

TO BE CROSS-EXAMINED BEFORE SAILING FOR EUROPE TOMORROW

NEW YORK, Sept. 29. (AP)—The prosecution called its last and eightieth witness in the Daugherty-Miller conspiracy trial today.

Richard Merton, German metal magnate who testified he paid John T. King, late Republican national committeeman from Connecticut, $441,000 for the release of $7,000,000 impounded enemy shares, was the last witness called. He also was the first.

Merton was recalled by the government to give the defense an opportunity to further cross examine him before he sails for Germany tomorrow. The eightieth witness identified the two hundred and fifty first government exhibit. He was Emanuel Harris New York attorney, who gave testimony about the estate of King.

Thomas W. Miller, as alien property custodian, and Harry M. Daugherty, as attorney general, are charged with conspiracy, in connection with the payment to Merton of the $7,000,000 shares of the American Metal company which the United States had seized as enemy owned.

William S. Rand, counsel for Miller brought from Merton a reiteration of his belief that the claims he presented on behalf of the Societ Suisse Pour Valeurs de Metaux, were valid.

Bonds Traced to Smith
NEW YORK, Sept. 29. (AP)—Five liberty loan bonds with a value of $40,000 that formed a part of the $391,000 "commission" paid John T. King for rushing a $7,000,000 claim through the alien property custodian's and attorney general's offices were traced to Jesse W. Smith today in the Daugherty-Miller conspiracy case.

The name of Smith, described as Harry M. Daugherty's "man Friday" has blitted through the 15 days trial. It first was mentioned when it was testified that Smith helped to acquaint Richard Merton, German metal magnate with Thomas W. Miller an assistant to Daugherty then it was shown that Smith got half of the $50,000 "retainer" Merton gave King.

Today Edward N. Toland, an assistant in the attorney general's office, told how he traced to Smith $40,000 of the bonds Merton gave to King. Smith had the bonds sold in 1922 through the Washington brokerage firm of W. B. Hibbs.

PENNY WISE

The City of Lubbock and some property owners who reside therein are saving money in a highly questionable manner.

Yet while they're saving a few pennies they're running a risk of paying for the privilege in human health and human life—the health and lives of a few adults but of many little children.

Lubbock is blessed this year with the addition of two new school buildings. Modern, efficient, good to look upon are these two buildings—yet both of them—one in the south part of the city and the other in the north part—are literally "stuck in the mud."

Parents of children attending the Dupre and Sanders schools are objecting—and rightfully so—to the fact that their youngsters are forced to run the risk of catching colds or perhaps pneumonia, going to and from these schools. Teachers who compose the faculties of these two institutions are making the same objections. The Journal agrees in full with both parents and teachers—it isn't right to expect them to wade mud and water to and from these schools.

It is likewise true, of course, that sidewalks are not essential to the general public in these two localities as they are in other, more thickly settled neighborhoods. Yet some day they will be as essential and that time is not far off. In the meantime, then, is it not to work an unnecessary hardship on public and teachers of the Liff Sanders and M. M. Dupre schools? Have not the teachers and pupils of these schools the same right to health safeguards and personal comforts as the teachers and pupils of the other city schools? The Journal believes that they have.

The first move must be made by the property owners.

People who own property in the vicinities of these schools have more valuable property now than they had before the schools were erected. Due to the presence of these buildings in their neighborhoods they can well afford to put in the sidewalks abutting the property.

BIG BUSINESS

This is about the time of the year when the big clothiers in Washington will begin fussing because President Coolidge has had his old felt hat renovated instead of buying a new one. It is claimed by those in touch with the situation that T. P. Russell is going to have his straw hat dyed black, put on flaps on it and wear it through the winter.

Scop overhead Charlie Falkling at breakfast the other morning after the big rain say: "This is the first full meal I've felt like eating in months." Another big wheat man felt so good he walked in a local store and said: "Give me the best two dollar pant you got in the house."—Plainville News.

Ho, hum, "funny how we think. How do you suppose the writer of the above article ever happened to hit upon it as an editorial comment? Still that's what makes our editorial pages—originally—and there's no one who can say that the News editor was not original in his thought.

If it weren't for engine trouble some parkers never would be used.

Hal Cochran's Daily Poem

ODDS AND ENDS

There stands, in the attic, an old-fashioned trunk that's filled to the brim with a heap of old junk. The ragman would get a real thrill from the clothes that mom stows away in it. Why? Goodness knows.

It's moth-proof, I guess, for the things still exist; such things that were hidden, and ne'er will be missed. A wee little dress that the baby once wore; the "baby" who, nowadays, is twenty or more.

An old colored blanket that mother once worked. It's only half made. She grew weary, and shirked. She laid it away in a trunk drawer and then, just figured she'd finish it later. But, when?

A hat with a bird perched high up on the crown. A derby that dad wore, in old days. It's brown. A suit and a dress that today, I'm afraid, could only be worn at a queer masquerade.

Yes, antiques a plenty are stored in the trunk. On first thought the saving idea is bunk. And yet we all do it, for somehow, we care. The answer, of course, is there's sentiment there.

IN NEW YORK SEE-SAWING UP and DOWN BROADWAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—All that portion of this nation's population that keeps its eye on the hectic adventures of the "mighty dollar" has heard by this time the tale of the newspaper reporter and the recent Wall Street gusher.

A great run had started, sending General Motors vaulting to fabulous figures. Then a reporter got a "tip." He happened to interview a member of the house of Morgan just as that worthy was sailing for Europe. The magnate commented in the course of his talk that the stock should go much higher.

With this extraordinarily information in his possession the reporter leisurely went upon his week-end holiday. He didn't so much as buy a dime's worth, on margin or otherwise.

And in the course of a day or so he mentioned his interview to his office. The paper pounced upon it. Its publication all but knocked the roof from the Stock Exchange. If a member of the Morgan firm had so much faith in it—well—There was a panic to purchase. General Motors' rise ranks among the historic stock booms.

Things happen that way occasionally on Wall Street.

Some little hint is given; some little "tip" goes out and—boom!—sensational ups or downs follow.

Knowing this, wise manipulators of the street use every rumor and disturbing factor in the world's news to bring pressure on stocks.

There was another historic "interview" that Wall Street will not soon forget.

One of the big bankers of the money belt called about him, on a certain day in 1916, the reporters of the market zone. He told of having information that Germany had sent to America an appeal for the ending of the war.

The next day the U-S3 made its spectacular appearance at Newport and the State Department denied the authenticity of the interview.

But upon the heels of the interview, came the spectacular selling wave of "war babies" as securities of war industries were then termed.

And there was the time in 1906 when Jacob Schiff stepped in upon the suicidal wave of speculation.

The money market was being badly hit by the riot of speculation in several countries. Money rates were running 25 to 125 per cent and Schiff, with due appreciation of the seriousness, sounded warning that a great panic would follow continuation of "this insanity."

The next day began a great break in prices.

The "street" is full of such tales. E. H. Gary said "so-and-so" and Morgan said "such-and-such." The word on an individual throws Wall Street one way or the other—depending, of course, on who the individual may be.

And therein lies one of the treacherous tides of this financial sea. All about are "wise guys" who, like touts at the race tracks, go about pretending to be on "the inside." They have the "low down" on what the great financial figures are going to do or say—if you believe them. And there always are new suckers to believe them and be deceived.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

"DIPLOMATIC IMMUNITY" IS HANDY FOR FOREIGNERS

By CHARLES P. STEWART, NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—A high-powered car from one of the foreign legations here ran into a poor old Washingtonian of nearly 80 the other day, as he was slithering along R street, and killed him.

All accounts agree that it was an inexcusable accident.

If anything but a "diplomatic car" had been responsible for it, in all probability the driver would face charges of manslaughter.

But a diplomat can get away with anything.

He simply flashes his diplomatic card, claims "diplomatic immunity," gets the police salute, and that ends it so far as he's concerned.

"Diplomatic immunity" is recognized the world over.

The theory is that a diplomat isn't subject to the laws of the country he's accredited to. No special exception is made in his favor in the statute books, but it's international usage.

If a diplomat does something that positively can't be tolerated, his home government can be asked to recall him, but he mustn't be punished by the one whose guest he is.

Even the most barbarous people feel terribly mortified if anything unpleasant befalls a foreign envoy who has trusted himself in their midst. Hate him though they may they must guard him like a million dollars while he's with them in his official capacity.

The diplomatic corps in Washington is made up responsible folk, in the main.

They don't take advantage of "diplomatic immunity" to commit burglary, arson and murder. A few of them have been suspected of holding prohibition in rather light esteem, but it's as traffic law offenders that they're the biggest nuisance.

Many a man who'd shrink from deliberate crime will fudge a little on speed regulations, even at the risk of paying some penalty or other for it. How much more will he fudge if he knows he can do it in perfect safety!—to himself, not to others.

Let it be assumed that the "way up diplomats—men of years and discretion, like British Ambassador Sir Esmé Howard and Japanese Ambassador Tameo Matsudaira and Minister Constantin Brun of Denmark—have judgment and caution enough to tell their chauffeurs to keep off the accelerator.

The fact remains that all the embassies and legations have corps of attaches, secretaries, clerks and other underlings—sporty youths, with lots of jazz in their blood and little sense of responsibility.

There are 52 embassies and legations in Washington. It's a very skinny one which doesn't muster a personnel of half a dozen and some run up to 20 or more. Six to seven hundred is a moderate estimate of the total—quite a colony.

Now turn that number loose in a community, with an equal number of automobiles—for most of them have "omnibus" "diplomatic immunity," and you've got a town where life's an uncertain thing for a pedestrian.

He pushed the blooming button but No person did it bring. That might be strange, but isn't 'cause The doorbell didn't ring.

BLOOD VESSELS COOLING SYSTEM FOR BODY

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene the Health Magazine

When the human body is exposed to a raised temperature, particularly in the presence of a certain amount of humidity, it sweats. The temperature of the skin usually is at a little lower level than that of the blood.

Heat constantly is being dissipated from the surface of the body. When the temperature around the body becomes warm the blood vessels on the surface dilate and if the temperature becomes too warm the moisture output of the skin is increased and cooling is provided by more evaporation.

Dry heat is more easily borne than moist heat. If the air surrounding the body is saturated with water, a temperature of 90 degrees Fahrenheit may be fatal.

Some persons perspire much more easily than others. In addition to the perspiration that is visible on the surface of the body, there is a loss of material from the skin by vaporization that is represented by the term "insensible perspiration."

This loss goes on constantly and has been found by Dr. F. S. Benedict and his associates in the Boston Nutrition laboratory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington to bear a direct relationship to the metabolism, or chemical interchange constantly going on within the body.

Persons with diseases of the thyroid gland, whose metabolism is high were found to have a large amount of insensible perspiration, whereas persons with diabetes, whose metabolism is low, had smaller loss.

The determination of the basal metabolism is a complicated process as compared with the measurement of the insensible perspiration. If it can be shown that the two factors are closely correlated, it will be possible to use the newer method on patients who may be too ill or not well adapted temperamentally to the usual methods of measuring the metabolism.

The measurement of the insensible perspiration is actually merely a very accurate measurement of the weight of the body. It may seem that too much emphasis is being given here to a very simple test, yet the determination of the pulse, the respiration and the temperature are equally simple and afford information of great value to the physician.

Drs. L. C. F. Cheves and P. E. Mumford of the Parkside Mental Hospital in Manchester, England, have studied the amount of perspiration of patients with mental diseases of various types. They found that patients with dementia praecox perspired less easily than did normally healthy persons, or those suffering from other mental diseases.

This seems to be associated with a relationship of this disease to some disturbance of the glands of internal secretion and the sympathetic nervous system, which is, of course, associated closely with the work of these glands.

With Our Contemporaries

THE "YES MAN"

Persons have been asked to give the definition of a "yes man." He is one who has no mind of his own; he is eternally agreeing with those who are patently his superiors. It is impossible to get a contradiction from him.

A friend once tried to put a "yes man" to a test. "George," he said, "When I was out West I saw a buffalo on a tree eating grapes." "Did you?" said the "yes man" as he smiled amiably. "George," the other man went on "did you ever see any buffaloes up trees?" "No, I can't say that I have," replied George. "But I know they are very fond of grapes."—Amarillo Globe.

Although the term has not invaded West Texas to the fullest extent of its popularity we have with us "Yes Men" in great "gobs" as it were. You've seen them; talked to them and side-stepped them many times in your every day life—these spineless creatures who seem to feel it necessary to agree with everybody on everything. Of course it takes all kinds of people to make up a successful world, and beyond a doubt we have plenty pugnacious people. But somehow these "Yes Men" seem to get everybody's goat!

and found a lipstick that Cherry had discarded because it was too dark for her complexion. Stretching her lips as she had so often seen Cherry do, Faith emphasized the natural Cupid's bow of her lips with the rich crimson.

The result was startling. Her cheeks, dusky at the cheekbones with natural color, was immeasurably heightened by the vivid splash of color on the lips. Red-brown lights sprang to life in her great eyes, which looked serene in spite of her excitement, and a sheen glimmered on the smooth bands of hair drawn like a veil on about her ears.

"Please, God, make him see me now -now that Cherry isn't here to dazzle him. You know that! And I'd give my life to serve him, to make him happy."

Although she had let her secret out into a jeering world.

She found him in the living room a humber upon his knees. And at sight of his face she forgot the innocent shame which had made her dress herself to attract him. He was very pale under the tan of his lean cheeks, and his mouth looked tight and twisted with pain. His blue eyes looked at her blankly, as if they had been wrenched from some dreadful vision. He rose slowly, setting the hamper carefully on the wide arm of the old wicker chair.

"George wanted to come himself, but he could hardly get away. I asked to be allowed to come, and I've brought our supper with me. George packed the hamper himself, and I think he put in enough to feed an orphanage, judging by the weight of it. Hope you're hungry." He smiled a faint caricature of that boyish grin which had so charmed her the first time she had seen him.

That was awfully thoughtful of George-and you," Faith said gently, seating herself in the wicker chair. "Mother is sleeping, and I was so glad to know that I was going to have a bit of the party after all, that I put on the dress I had made for tonight."

He looked over the tall, erect figure, and slowly appreciation, recognition of Faith Lane as a person, dawned in his eyes. The shadow that had darkened their brilliance lifted for a moment. "I say, you're looking wonderful!" he said boyishly. "What have you done to yourself anyway? Oh, I didn't mean it that way! I'm an awful blunderer. But that's a peach of a dress. It's a shame George can't see you. He's-he's got you on his mind tonight, Miss Faith."

Faith smiled up at him without coquetry, but her eyes were flooded with radiance. "Shall I make a little spread on the library table tonight, and while we eat, you can tell me why you were looking so dreadfully unhappy when I came in-that is-" she became pensive at the tightening of his mouth. "If you want to-"

"I think I do," Bob Hathaway said slowly, his eyes suddenly very wistful and very young and very hurt.

MRS. THOS. E. CAUFIELD returned late Monday evening from Denton and other East Texas points where she has been visiting for the past two weeks. She made the trip overland and because of excessive rains found it quite a task to drive back. She was met in Post by her husband who assisted her with the car during the last lap of the journey.

Drunkenness In U. S. Shows Heavy Increase In 1925 With Pre-Volstead Level Now Reached, Anti Leaders Say

(By the Associated Press) NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Drunkenness in the United States last year increased almost twice as fast as it did in 1924 and now has reached its pre-prohibition level, the Moderation League, Inc., reports, announcing the findings of a nation-wide survey of conditions in more than 1,500 cities. Reaching the conclusion that "the Volstead Act has failed utterly to promote temperance and sobriety," the report expresses the belief that "a greater degree of temperance would be attained by a wise restrictive law."

Survey Is Second One
The survey was the second conducted by the League, a similar finding as to the effectiveness of enforcement under the Volstead Act having been announced last year. The League is an organization composed of men from all ranks of life and is incorporated under the laws of the State of New York with its announced object the "Restoration of Temperance."

The League bases its findings on reports obtained from police department records of intoxication arrests which in 254 cases extended back 12 years. When on the basis of these records, the report states, "we consider that drunkenness generally has already increased to the pre-prohibition level, and that drunken drivers and drunken children have increased far above anything ever known before in this country, we cannot escape the conclusion that the Volstead Act has failed utterly to do what it was intended to do, namely, promote temperance and sobriety."

"Moreover, since conditions have become worse, not better, each year, and with the next generation drinking as never before, there seems to be no hope that the Volstead Act, in its present drastic form, can ever accomplish its purpose."

Stationary Before War
During 1914 and 1915 before the war boom got under way, drunkenness remained practically stationary, the report states.

During 1916 and 1917, war boom years, there was a perceptible increase following the known rule that other things being equal, drunkenness increases with good times and decreases with hard times.

"In 1918 and 1919 emergency wartime restrictions on alcoholic beverages (far short of bone-dryness, however) were imposed. Drunkenness took an astonishing drop during these years. Near the end of 1919 the Volstead Act went into effect. In 1920 there was a further drop which the 1921 rise wiped out. Since then there has been an increase each year, so that by 1925 there were more arrests for drunkenness than in 1914."

Conditions in the former so-called "dry" states were worse today, the report states, compared with 1914, than are conditions in the so-called "wet" states.

"Perhaps one reason for this greater increase in drunkenness in the 'dry' states," the report says, "is that most of these so-called 'dry' states were not really so, but were, in the main, merely restrictive."

Many Drivers Drink
"The most curious result of National bone-dryness," the report states, "is the remarkable increase in the number of drunken drivers."

"The number of drunken drivers before National prohibition was more or less constant from year to year, showing only small fluctuations, with a tendency toward a gradual rise commensurate with the increase in the number of automobiles," the report says.

"The reason for this enormous increase in drunken drivers seems fairly clear, the report states. 'After prohibition one could not purchase intoxicants, or at least 'safe' intoxicants, almost anywhere, as previously. This necessitated procuring an ample supply—a case or bottle—in advance, and it was then carried around on the hip or in the car and consumed in transit. Drinking before prohibition was largely done indoors; and after prohibition, from a flask on the road."

Minors Imbibe Freely
Figures obtained from public welfare organizations and police officials the report states, shows an alarming increase under prohibition of intoxication among minors.

This can only mean, it states, that each year we are raising a new crop of drunkards which is much larger than the annual crops we used to raise, even under the saloon.

Summing up the results of its survey, the League announced from the experience, before national prohibition, of the states which had restrictive laws, from the experience of the whole country during the restrictive years 1918-1919, and from the experiences of the Canadian provinces and the Scandinavian countries, we believe that a greater degree of temperance can be attained by a wise restrictive law than by a bone-dry law which does not command the respect of a large part of the people.

"We are also of the firm conviction that such a policy of wise restriction would have the incidental advantage of eliminating almost entirely the scandalous corruption and bribery of public officials, would stop the growth of the bootlegging millionaire class, would check disrespect for the law and would in addition produce a handsome national revenue."

Kiwanis To Stage Unique Program Here

Mystery in deep and dark form will shroud the regular weekly luncheon of the Lubbock Kiwanis club here Thursday. It was said Wednesday by President Garland Woodward, who, with the program committee has completed arrangements for one of the most unique programs ever staged in civic circles here.

Attendees will know nothing whatever of the plan of the program beyond the fact that President Woodward said he will call upon a chairman from the gathering when the meeting is opened, and he will be expected to take charge of the session. In turn calling upon members of the club to extemporaneously discuss subjects that will be assigned. These subjects include "Suggestions for Club Betterment" and "What Kiwanis Means to Me." It was also said that a musical quartet will be selected from the group to render a selection of two or three songs of the club are urged to be in good condition.

NEW CARPET IS BIG WORRY TO STATE SOLONS

NEW FLOOR COVERING FOR LEGISLATIVE HALL IS "GIANT" PROBLEM

(By the Associated Press) AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 28.—The house devoted half an hour Tuesday to a spirited discussion of whether a new carpet should be placed on the floor of the hall of representatives and by a 64-43 vote tabled a resolution providing for expenditure of as much as $5,000 for such improvements.

A resolution by Representatives Webb and Masterson recited that new carpets should be placed in the hall and in the house reception room, and new linoleum in the galleries. It declared present conditions "are a reflection on the management of the house and a disgrace to the state."

Representative McFarline declared the resolution should be tabled, and any repairs should be ordered by the 4th legislature.

Representative Smith of Travis said he believed the carpet on the floor of the hall had been placed there in 1888 while others declared it had been there only 16 years.

The senate finally passed the bill by Senator Benjamin F. Berkeley of Alpine validating the acts of the land commissioners office on the west Texas land relief measure of the 29th legislature, the administrative part of which has been attacked in the courts. Land purchasers who, under the relief measure, forfeited their land and re-purchased under reappraisal are thus protected, Senator Berkeley explained.

Carrying with it amendments making it apply only to chickens and turkeys, the bill by Senator Pierce R. Ward of Cleburne, making it a felony or a misdemeanor to steal a chicken or turkey, was passed by the senate by a vote of 21 to 4.

The house concurrent resolution by Representative T. K. Irwin, authorizing an investigation into the Hidalgo county bond issues, was presented and referred to the senate committee on state affairs.

Appointment by the speaker of a committee of five to investigate conditions at Texas University and Texas A. and M. particularly alleged higher fees and report any irregularities to the 29th legislature in special session was urged in a house resolution by Representative Masterson of Brazoria. It will be acted on Wednesday.

New Warehouse For City Is Functioning

With Former Police Sergeant Wiley L. Metcalfe as foreman, the city's new warehouse building was occupied for the first time yesterday, municipal authorities said today.

While the warehouse building, located on Avenue K at the Santa Fe tracks, it not full from the standpoint of fixtures the crew is busily working to put it into shape and before many days have passed will be entirely completed, Mr. Metcalfe said. The institution of the warehouse, in which will be kept all the city's utilities supplies, is a part of the program of the commission to put the city on a "business basis."

7,000 Ballots Are Ordered For County

Forecasting the largest vote in the history of the South Plains for one county, County Judge Charles Nordyke has sent in an order for 7,000 ballots, to be used in the general election here on the second Tuesday in November. It was announced yesterday.

Slightly more than 5,000 ballots were in the primary held by the democratic party here this summer and the judge figures that with Republicans and democrats both voting in contested races the total will run slightly higher.

Clever shoppers always compare

In buying a new hat you judge style and value by comparing one hat with another. Only by comparison can you select the one hat you like best.

It is the same with coffees. Only by comparing their flavors can you really choose the one coffee you like best.

We could tell you many things about Folger's Coffee. Its delightful flavor. Its fragrant aroma. The joy and satisfaction that you get with each steaming cup. The economy of its high quality.

Instead, we ask you to compare Folger's with the brand you are now using by making the Folger Coffee Test. It is the logical, easy way to shop for Coffee.

The Folger Coffee Test: Drink Folger's Coffee tomorrow morning; the next morning drink the coffee you have been using; the third morning drink Folger's again. You will decidedly favor one brand or the other. The Best Coffee Wins. That's fair, isn't it?
