Troops sent to Saudi Arabia

■ President George Bush dispatches ships and warplanes to guard oil giant Saudi Arabia against Iraqi attack as the U.N. Security Council seeks ways to encourage participation in its sanctions against the military giant.

Associated Press

President Bush ordered U.S. troops and warplanes to the front line of the explosive Persian Gulf standoff Tuesday to guard oil giant Saudi Arabia against military giant Iraq.

A fresh U.S. Navy task force set sail for the region, meanwhile, as an economic and military noose slowly tightened around Iraq.

Turkey shut down the Iraqis' vital oil outlet to the Mediterranean, honoring a U.N. trade embargo ordered to punish Iraq for last week's lightning conquest of Kuwait. In Saudi Arabia, the Iraqi oil flow was reported slowing to a trickle through another pipeline.

Despite the global pressure, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein remained defiant, declaring in a nationwide speech that he would never back down and leave Kuwait.

"We would rather die than be humiliated," he said, "and we will pluck out the eyes of those who attack the Arab nation."

A crisis atmosphere took hold in official Washington, where Bush called together his Cabinet to review options for squeezing Iraq and rolling back its invasion force, which the White House declared an "imminent threat" to outmanned Saudi Arabia.

A Pentagon source later said the president had ordered deployment of U.S. combat troops and warplanes to Saudi Arabia to help protect the U.S.-aligned desert kingdom against Iraq.

The units are expected to include elements of the 82nd Airborne Division from Fort Bragg, N.C.; the 24th Division (Mechanized) from Fort Stewart, Ga., and the 101st Airborne Division from Fort Campbell, Ky., Pentagon sources said.

Another source said the American GIs would be part of a multinational force, a condition set by the Saudis. Capitol Hill sources said Egypt and Morocco were joining the effort.

As diplomats worked to arrange for evacuation of Americans and other foreigners stranded in Kuwait and Iraq, tensions heightened along the Saudi border with Kuwait.

Travelers reported seeing Saudi missiles deployed along the frontier, and a

Continued hikes in oil prices would produce mostly loser

NEW YORK — Houston real estate dealers and the Soviet Union are potential gainers, but nearly everyone else stands to lose economically if the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait leads to a spell of high oil prices, analysts say.

"The oil price increases are both recessionary and inflationary and there are many more losers than winners," Allen Sinai, an economist with Boston Co. and Economic Advisers Inc., said in an interview Monday.

"If the price increase sticks, it will lead to a major transfer of wealth from non-oil producing countries to oil countries."

He and other economists and industry analysts listed a long string of losers if the Middle East crisis leads to sustained oil price increases: the auto industry, housing, nearly all consumer-related industries, and entertainment and travel firms.

But higher prices might benefit others, analysts say: investors in gold and other precious metals, domestic oil companies and oil drilling companies, and the economies of oil-rich states like Texas and Louisiana.

Neighbors sending forces to Liberia

■ A Liberian rebel leader holds foreigners hostages and threatens U.S. Marines, prompting intervention from West African nations.

Associated Press

MONROVIA, Liberia — West African nations agreed Tuesday to send troops to Liberia, where a rebel leader was holding foreign hostages and threatening to attack U.S. Marines unless nations intervened to end the civil war.

More hostages were taken Tuesday, raising to 22 the number held by rebel leader Prince Johnson. The hostages include one American. About 14 to 16 foreigners were seized from a hotel on the outskirts of Monrovia Monday night.

Johnson presented the 22 hostages from eight countries to foreign reporters at a news conference Tuesday. He said they would not go free until a peacekeeping force comes to this West African nation, where 5,000 people, mostly civilians, have died in the 7-month-old civil war.

Street battles raged in Monrovia, meanwhile, as rebels loyal to Johnson fought troops of President Samuel Doe, who remains holed up in his fortified mansion. Heavy fighting broke out near the U.S. Embassy.

It was not immediately clear if the deployment of the five-nation West African force would prompt Johnson to free the captives.

The hostages were presented to foreign reporters in a back room of Johnson's camp at Caldwell, a town a few miles from Monrovia.

Most of the hostages said Tuesday their best hope for freedom was intervention by the West African force.

"Our safety depends on these people coming," said a hostage who gave his name only as Anthony. "The worst that could happen is that Charles Taylor should come in here."

Taylor is the leader of the rebel National Patriotic Front. Johnson split from the front in February to form a rival faction.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said a representative of Johnson's group had informed U.S. officials Tuesday the hostages were all well and would not be harmed.

American diplomats invited Johnson to send a delegation to the U.S. Embassy to discuss the hostages.

The Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS), meeting in Banjul, Gambia, did not say when the soldiers would go to Liberia. They said the troops were being deployed "in the interest of the African people as a whole and for the maintenance of international peace and security."

"What this country really needs is the peaceful intervention of the United States or ECOWAS," Johnson said. "If they don't intervene I will attack the American Marines."

The beleagured Doe, who has repeatedly called for international intervention, welcomed the West African initiative in a telephone call Tuesday to the British Broadcasting Corp.

Taylor's envoys told the Gambia meeting they might accept such a force.

Some of the 235 Marines airlifted into Monrovia to evacuate Americans and other foreign nationals took up defensive positions within the walled U.S. Embassy compound after Johnson's threat.

The Marines were sent in Sunday a day after Johnson threatened to kidnap Americans and other foreigners to provoke foreign intervention.

Firm seeks profit from JFK assassination theory

■ Midlander Ricky Don White is employed by a company that could profit from claims that his father, Roscoe White, participated in the assassination of John F. Kennedy.

Hearst News Service

DALLAS — A Midland man who claims his father was a U.S. government agent when he participated in a conspiracy to kill President John F. Kennedy acknowledged that he works full-time for a company set up to profit from his story.

Ricky Don White, 29, said during a news conference at the JFK Assassination Information Center that he wants to see a book written about his father's involvement in the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination.

He said his father, Roscoe Anthony White, joined the Dallas Police Department in September 1963 in order to carry out the assassination.

White said his father, who died in 1971 of burns from a suspicious fire, fired the shots that a number of witnesses claimed came from behind a picket fence on the so-called grassy knoll near the Texas School Book Depository in Dallas, hitting Kennedy in the head and throat.

White said his father kept a diary detailing the conspiracy. In it, his father wrote that he was one of three men who fired upon Kennedy as his motorcade passed the Texas School Book Depository. He said his father operated under the code name "Mandarin"; the other two men were identified in the diary only by the code names "Lebanon" and "Saul."

White said the diary has disappeared and suggested a Midland FBI agent slipped away with it after the agency interrogated him in 1988.

Tom Ferris, the FBI agent who allegedly questioned White at the George Mahon Federal Courthouse, said he was "not at liberty to say" anything about the incident.

In response to questions from skeptical reporters, White said he works full time for Matsu Corp., a Midland-based company formed to assist him and share in any profits that may arise from his allegations.

"Originally, we got into this thing to help Ricky solve the story," said Gary Baily, president of Matsu, which is owned by a group of Midland oil and gas investors. "And it turned out that there was going to be a lot of money involved, so we got into a contract arrangement with him to split any potential profits

Partly cloudy skies likely

Staff Report

National Weather Service forecasters at Midland International Airport are calling for partly cloudy skies today and Thursday, with a high today in the upper 80s and southwest winds at 10 to 15 mph.

The low tonight will be in the mid 60s, and Thursday's expected high will be in the upper 80s.

The high Tuesday was 78, compared with the record for Aug. 7 of 104, set in 1964. Tuesday's low was 64. The record low for today's date is 54, set in 1989.

STATE

North Texas' fiery summer heat was tempered Tuesday, while the southernmost parts of the state saw thunderstorms.

Swells, strong currents and beach flooding prompted by Hurricane Diana swamped the lower coast.

Isolated showers dotted some sections of South Texas between Cotulla and Eagle Pass. Flood warnings continued in Val Verde County near Del Rio.

Much of North Texas was covered by a 200-mile-wide band of cloudy skies and was fanned by light variable winds.

Afternoon temperatures over most of the state were in the 80s and 90s, ranging from 68 degrees at rain-cooled El Paso to 97 degrees at Kingsville.

Record lows for the date were set in Amarillo, at 56 degrees, San Angelo, with 59 degrees and Waco, 65 degrees.

The National Weather Service forecast for Wednesday calls for mostly cloudy skies, showers and widely scattered thunderstorms along the coast and across deep South Texas, with partly cloudy skies over the remainder of South Texas.

WHITE: Son wants book written

(From 1A)

that may come about."

Baily said the group has not made any money on the 1½-year-old agreement.

Matsu formed after White told his story to an independent oil and gas operator in Midland, who got six friends interested in backing White's research.

"He wanted to quit his job so he could do his research full-time, and since then he's turned down three job offers," said Baily. White had previously worked for a Midland pesticide company.

In the past 18 months the company has spent more than $100,000 on the project, with 40 percent of the figure paying White's expenses and salary.

"We brought the story before the public at this time because we were worried about the FBI or someone taking the telexes we'd recently found and we were concerned about Ricky's safety," he said. "By no means has the investigation ended."

Matsu would negotiate any book or movie rights, said Baily, adding that film director Oliver Stone has expressed an interest in White's information.

"But he's wanted to do something on the assassination for years," Baily said, adding that he didn't expect any deals to be made any time soon.

White told reporters that since revealing his father's involvement in the conspiracy he fears for his life.

White and his mother, Geneva White Galle of Odessa, were investigated by a Senate select committee in the late 1970 in connection with the assassination, Baily said.

Representatives of the JFK Assassination Information Center said they will ask the Texas Attorney General's office to investigate the allegations.

Jim Mattox plans to look into the new conspiracy theory. Mattox spokesman Kelly Fero said Tuesday that Mattox has agreed to review the evidence.

AP Laserphoto

Ricky White, 29, with his wife Tricia, attends a news conference in Dallas on Monday. White claims his father was one of three men who fire fatal shots at President Kennedy 26 years ago.

"They contacted Mattox yesterday afternoon asking whether he would look at their evidence were they to supply it. He said yes," Fero said. "But they haven't presented it yet."

White said he is not interested in working with the FBI because agents treated him like "a nut" in 1988 when they questioned him about the claims.

An FBI spokesman in Washington, D.C., said White's claims were reviewed in 1988 and "determined not to be credible."

"Of course the FBI and the CIA are going to deny this from now to the end of eternity," said Baily

White said others would corroborate his story once they are assured of protection by authorities.

The Rev. Jack Shaw, an ordained Baptist minister in Dallas, said White's mother, Geneva, who also is said to have seen the diary, told him that she overheard Dallas nightclub owner Jack Ruby and her husband discussing plans for the assassination.

Ruby shot and killed the accused assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald, as he was being led out of the Dallas police station.

White also said his father, and not Oswald, shot and killed Dallas Policeman J.D. Tippit shortly after the assassination of Kennedy. Oswald, who claimed innocence after his arrest, and Tippit were "patsies" in the conspiracy, White suggested.

"I don't think he was a bad person," White said of his father.

"He was told by our government to do something. That would be just like you being in the Vietnam War, and they handed you a rifle to take that hill. You don't question the government."

White also said that, after his father died, he found covert Navy Intelligence cables in Paris, Texas, that apparently ordered the assassination. The cables, allegedly involving an apparent CIA operation, are stored in a Houston vault under the care of Joe H. West, the Houston private investigator researching White's claims.

One of the alleged cables says in part, "The next assignment is to eliminate a national security threat to worldwide peace. Destination will be Houston, Austin or Dallas."

West said the container holding the frail yellow telexes also had Roscoe White's Marine dogtags and the negatives of several family photographs to establish the cables' credibility.

White refused to say why the U.S. government would want Kennedy killed. But West, the Houston private investigator researching White's claims, said at the news conference that elements of the CIA may have wanted to retaliate against Kennedy for not taking more affirmative military action during the Cuban Bay of Pigs operation.

The CIA, which seldom responds to inquiries, had a strong rebuttal Monday to White's claims.

"These allegations — that this was done on CIA orders, that this guy worked for us and that CIA had any role in the assassination of President Kennedy — are ludicrous," CIA spokesman Mark Mansfield said in Washington.

"This individual, Roscoe White, was never employed by the CIA or associated in any way with the agency," Mansfield added. "Normally, we never confirm nor deny employment, but these allegations are so outrageous that we felt it necessary and appropriate to respond."

White said his father served in the Marines with Oswald, the man the federal government concluded killed Kennedy. He also said his mother worked for Ruby.

"He traveled on the same boat as Oswald and served on the same base with him. Roscoe was probably Oswald's mentor and set him up to take the rap," said West.

"It's eating me apart," said White. "I'm sharing a story with you that has built up inside of me, because I loved the man that you are telling about."

OIL: Higher price not all good news

winner."

Analysts stressed that the impact depends on whether the oil price increase proves to be a blip or a long-term fact of life.

John Chadderdon, editor of Offshore Data Services, a Houston-based publisher of information on drilling for oil and gas, said if oil prices rise well above $20 a barrel and stay there, that might spur exploration in the Gulf of Mexico.

The price of West Texas crude has risen to about $25 a barrel, up about $4 in the last week, Chadderdon said.

"If it's long term, that's something that should spur U.S. activity. A $20-per-barrel price is just not enough for many companies to go after areas in the Gulf of Mexico. It's just too expensive," he said.

He speculated that what's good for domestic oil companies might be good, in the long run, for local real estate in oil-producing regions of the country.

George McCauley, an oil analyst for the National Utility Service Inc., a consulting firm, said motorists already feeling the effects at the gas pump will continue to be losers, along with air travelers.

Pan American World Airways and Northwest have announced ticket price increases to offset rising jet fuel costs.

And the oil price increases may mean a long, cold and expensive winter for homeowners, he said.

"If the rise in oil futures prices translates into actual dollar increases, then come fall when utility companies draw down current inventories, they will have to be replaced at higher cost which will be passed on to the consumer," McCauley said.

Sinai added that oil prices would be bad news for nearly all investors. Only holders of commodities and precious metals might stand to gain.

"Normally, the dollar does well; that is not happening this time," Sinai said.

TROOPS: Navy task force en route

(From 1A)

Beirut newspaper said the Iraqi occupation force in Kuwait installed missiles near the border to strike at Saudi oil wells if foreign forces lunged into Kuwait.

Reports from Kuwait said armed resistance against the Iraqi occupation had erupted anew in Kaifan, the area of the main military barracks, diplomats in the Gulf said. They said the resisters were believed to be Kuwaiti soldiers and civilians.

U.S. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, in Egypt, persuaded Egyptian officials to allow the U.S. aircraft carrier Eisenhower to transit the Suez Canal on Tuesday night to move closer to the embattled Gulf region, Pentagon sources said.

One military option was a multinational naval blockade against Iraq. But in Moscow the Soviet Foreign Ministry deflated expectations that even the Soviet navy might join such a maritime boycott, declaring that "naval muscle-flexing ... is not the best line of action."

Aftershocks of the Gulf explosion still reverberated through the world economy:

■ The Tokyo stock market fell sharply again Tuesday. But the London market edged upward. On Wall Street, the Dow Jones average was down moderately.

■ Crude oil prices slipped back slightly, but still stood one-third higher than prices two weeks ago, driven up by fears of oil shortages.

■ Senate and House subcommittees met in Washington to investigate what some called a "rip-off" by oil companies that raised gasoline prices by as much as 19 cents a gallon since the invasion.

Iraqi forces poured into Kuwait last Thursday after Saddam complained that world oil prices and Iraqi oil revenues had been driven down by Kuwaiti overproduction. He also accused Kuwait of stealing oil from a border oilfield both countries claim.

In Tuesday's speech, Saddam said the invasion rectified unjust borders drawn up by colonial powers. The takeover of Kuwait gave Iraq control of 9 percent of world daily oil production.

A conquest of Saudi Arabia would raise the Iraq-controlled of world oil to almost 20 percent. But the Iraqis have repeatedly denied any plans for a follow-up invasion of Saudi Arabia.

Many governments around the world Tuesday were drawing up regulations to enforce the anti-Iraq trade embargo ordered Monday by the U.N. Security Council at the urging of the United States. If fully enforced, the boycott could cripple Iraq, which depends heavily on its oil exports for economic survival.

Kuwaiti lawyer stuck in Texas

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A lawyer from Kuwait says he's been stranded in the United States since Iraq's invasion of his home country and says he fears for the safety of his family back in the Middle East.

Meanwhile, the parents of a San Antonio man telephoned their son to say they made it safely out of Kuwait and into Saudi Arabia.

Hasan Abdula, 36, an attorney from Dhia, Kuwait, arrived Saturday in San Antonio on vacation, but said Monday he now is stranded and feels like a man without a country.

"My wife and two children, my mother and father and many brothers and sisters are still in Kuwait," Abdula said.

Abdula, who joined about a dozen demonstrators Monday at San Antonio City Hall to plead for a continued embargo of Arab oil imports, calls Iraqi president Saddam Hussein "the butcher of Baghdad."

He said thousands of others from his home country also are stranded in the United States and elsewhere.

MALDEF asks public to back passage of civil rights bill

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An Hispanic rights organization Tuesday urged citizens to back a civil rights bill before Congress and chided President Bush for opposing it.

"We're asking the public to write to Bush and urge him to sign a strong, strong civil rights bill," said Guadalupe Luna, an attorney for the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund.

The Civil Rights Act of 1990 restores anti-discrimination laws that existed for years before the U.S. Supreme Court chipped away at them, Ms. Luna said in a news conference.

"This bill restores fairness to our employment laws and restores congressional intent," she said. "It also sends a message to this (Supreme) Court that they should leave well-established civil rights laws alone."

Provisions in the bill range from a ban on racial harassment in the workplace to reopening court-approved fair-hiring agreements.

The House approved the bill Friday over objections from Bush, who has called it a quota bill and has threatened to veto it.

MALDEF leaders said the administration's quota argument is an attempt to divide the public.

"It's an effort to pit working people against each other," said Judith Sanders-Castro, another MALDEF attorney. "It's a divisive kind of technique very thinly disguised."

Bush supports a $100,000 ceiling for punitive damages in discrimination cases involving women, religious minorities and the disabled. The House bill limits punitive damages to victims of intentional job discrimination to $150,000 or compensatory damages, whichever is larger.

The House and Senate, which passed a similar bill last month, are working out differences in a conference committee. A proposed amendment to the bill will further clarify that it is not quota legislation, Ms. Luna said.

Medicaid payments suspended

AUSTIN (AP) — Health care for hundreds of thousands of poor Texans may be threatened by a suspension of Medicaid payments to doctors and hospitals in the state, officials said.

Department of Human Services Commissioner Ron Lindsey confirmed that National Heritage Insurance Co., which pays the bills under state contract, cut off payments because department funds have run out.

The insurance company says payments won't be made for services after July 25 and won't resume until the state sends more money. That probably won't be until after Aug. 24 when the Legislative Budget Board is expected to send $120 million to the agency, the Austin American-Statesman reported Tuesday.

"...We had hoped they would carry us through the month — but they chose not to," Lindsey said of NHIC.

Medicaid is a federal-state program that helps pay for health care for the needy, aged, blind and disabled, and for low-income families with children.

Lindsey said DHS had enough money to cover all of August costs except NHIC. He stressed that state payments for nursing home care and drugs are not affected.

"I know the ramifications of this, but I don't think we're in much of a position to argue with them," he said.

"We are hoping that the providers don't start turning people away," Lindsey said. "If that happens, then very clearly the issue will be that people can't get the care they need."

Gov. Bill Clements said he thought adjustments and fund transfers would take care of any problem.

He also said he did not think doctors would cut off services to the poor.

The insurance company asked health care providers to continue services.

Officials said the payments total about $4.5 million a day to hospitals, medical labs, home health services, ambulances and maternity clinics, as well as doctors, chiropractors, midwives and physical therapists.

Bishop says he excommunicated pair because of pro-abortion stand

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The Catholic bishop of Corpus Christi said he formally excommunicated two abortion clinic employees to stop what he called the "scandal" of Catholics saying the church condoned their involvement in the abortion business.

Bishop Rene H. Gracida issued formal decrees of excommunication in February and June to a Corpus Christi physician and an abortion clinic director. He told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times he took the action because they were publicly identified with abortion.

Tuesday's interview was the bishop's first since the excommunications became public last month.

Gracida's decrees of excommunication, believed to be the first issued over the issue of abortion, sent shocks through the Catholic Church.

The excommunicated physician, Dr. Eduardo Aquino, said he would join another Christian denomination. Abortion clinic director Rachel Vargas said she would appeal the bishop's decree.

Another abortion clinic director, Elva Bustamante, has received warning letters, but no decree of excommunication.

Since the end of June, when the excommunication decrees were made public, Gracida has been on vacation and unavailable for comment. He still refuses to discuss specific aspects of the warning letters and decrees.

He said he doesn't understand why Aquino and Ms. Vargas publicized their excommunications.

"It seems to me that no Catholic should be proud of being in a state of excommunication..." Gracida said. "But I suppose that it is possible for an individual to be so caught up in the political aspects of the abortion controversy in our country as to see some value in going public and announcing to the world that they have incurred the penalty of excommunication."

The bishop took issue with "the false assumption some are making that I am trying to assume national leadership in the forefront of the anti-abortion movement. Those who really know me know I'm a shy, retiring introvert."

Catholic Church law forbids Catholics to have abortions or to help others obtain them and declares that Catholics who violate the law are automatically excommunicated. Gracida said his decrees made formal what canon law says had already occurred. Excommunication makes Catholics ineligible for church sacraments, including Communion.

Ms. Vargas appeared on national television, accusing Gracida of using church law to push an anti-abortion political agenda and intimidate Catholics.

Bottler settles last wrongful death suit

EDINBURG (AP) — Valley Coca-Cola Bottling Co. has settled the last of the wrongful death lawsuits from a school bus accident last year that killed 21 children.

The latest settlements involved the deaths of Carmen Michelle Cruz, 18, and 13-year-old Alberto Vasquez. Officials said each of the suits settled Monday involved more than $4 million.

Twenty-one junior and senior high school students died when their bus slammed into a water-filled pit after it collided with a truck owned by Valley Coca-Cola Bottling Co. It was the state's worst school bus accident.

Another 60 students were hurt in the accident at Alton.

The beverage company previously settled 18 of the death cases for $4.5 million each and another for $1.5 million.

Still to be settled are numerous lawsuits from families of the injured and from rescue workers who claimed they were physically or emotionally injured by the disaster.

Negotiations continue in most of those cases, Coca-Cola attorney Mike Mills said.

The National Transportation Safety Board last month blamed the accident on Ruben Perez, the 25-year-old driver of the soft drink truck that collided with the school bus last Sept. 21.

The board said Perez failed to brake properly. Investigators said Perez told them that the truck's brakes were two-thirds of normal and that Perez should have been able to stop in time if he had begun applying them 300 feet before the intersection.

Perez is scheduled to go on trial later this year for 21 counts of involuntary manslaughter. He has contended that the brakes on the truck failed.

A pre-trial hearing in that case is set for September.

He is suing the company, claiming he was "hung out to dry" by the company. He said the company knew some of its trucks were unsafe but forced drivers to use them, anyway. The company has reserved comment on his suit.

Miller scores easy victory over Young

Associated Press

Lt. Gov. Zell Miller scored a whopping victory in Georgia's Democratic gubernatorial runoff Tuesday, dashing Andrew Young's hopes of becoming the nation's second elected black governor.

In Kansas, first-term Gov. Mike Hayden was locked in a close race against real estate executive Nestor Weigand Jr., who tried to capitalize on voter anger over higher property taxes. On the Democratic side, former Gov. John Carlin led two rivals in his comeback bid.

Two other states also held primaries. Michigan Republicans picked opponents for two Democratic incumbents seeking third terms — Gov. James Blanchard and Sen. Carl Levin. In early returns from the gubernatorial primary, state Sen. John Engler was far ahead of General Motors engineer John Lauve. In the Senate primary, Rep. Bill Schuette held a comfortable edge over lawyer Clark Durant.

And in Missouri, Rep. Richard Gephardt, the House majority leader, easily captured the Democratic nomination for an eighth term, claiming 82 percent of the vote against Nicholas F. Clement, a newspaper carrier who is a follower of extremist Lyndon LaRouche.

In Georgia, with 69 percent of precincts reporting, Miller had 410,132 votes or 66 percent and Young had 209,590 votes or 34 percent.

"We're obviously gratified," said Miller's campaign manager, James Carville. "... We're pleased that Georgia Democrats have selected us as their standard bearer in the general election. We hope to continue to offer a campaign of new ideas and solid vision for the future."

Young, a former Atlanta mayor, congressman and U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, had hoped to follow in the footsteps of L. Douglas Wilder of Virginia, who last November became the first black elected governor of any state.

But Young finished 12 percentage points behind Miller in the primary July 17 and recent polls had shown him trailing by even more as the runoff approached.

In the final weeks of the campaign, Young, 58, adopted a more aggressive stance, suggesting that Miller, a white moderate who has been lieutenant governor for 16 years, pushed banking legislation that helped his friends.

Miller, also 58, denied the charge and kept plugging away at the major themes of his campaign, including support for a state lottery.

Miller now faces Republican Johnny Isakson in November.

Report says pickup beds risky for kids

CHICAGO (AP) — Children who ride in the back of pickups risk serious injury, say researchers who report that 127 youngsters died nationwide in one year in such accidents and an estimated 1,000 were injured.

Only eight states have measures restricting travel in the back of pickup trucks, said the researchers, who call for tougher laws.

"The ultimate goal should be a legislative intervention eliminating travel in the back of a pickup truck where no opportunity for restraint exists," the researchers wrote in Wednesday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

Their study, led by Dr. Phyllis F. Agran of the pediatrics department at the University of California, Irvine, examined data on 290 children who were injured or killed in pickups from 1980 to 1989 in Orange County, Calif.

The children were infants through age 14, and eight of them suffered fatal injuries. A total of 201 children were riding in truck cabs when injured, while 89 were in the back of pickups.

Four of those who died had been traveling in the back; the other four were in the cab.

More significantly, the researchers found that 24 percent of those in the back were injured in non-crash events — such as a sudden stop or turn — compared with 9 percent of those in the cab.

The authors said that National Highway Traffic Safety Administration statistics show that in 1987, 127 children under age 20 were killed nationwide while riding in the back of pickups. About 1,000 children were injured that same year, the authors said.

In 1989, 103 youths aged 21 and under died while riding in pickup truck backs, NHTSA statistics show.

White's claim lacking evidence

Ricky White's assertion that his father, Dallas police officer Roscoe White, was part of a CIA conspiracy responsible for the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas in 1963 and that the elder White was later killed by a CIA "witness elimination" squad certainly should revive interest in the president's murder.

Even now, almost 27 years after that fateful day in Dallas and numerous inquiries later, the evidence is not present to convince many Americans that they really know the truth about the assassination. Since Kennedy's death, there has been ample speculation and innuendo about what actually happened — even the exhumation of Oswald in 1981 to prove that the remains in the grave were his. At that time, a team of medical experts concluded that the individual buried in the grave truly was Lee Harvey Oswald, ending speculation that a Soviet agent was buried there.

But White, who says he lives in Midland now, will have to do more to convince the skeptical that he is not merely attempting to improve his lot in life by climbing aboard the conspiracy theory bandwagon. He says he is unemployed and acknowledges he has talked to others about the possibility of a book or a movie.

The elder White's diary, from which White says he got much of the information he released to the media Monday in Dallas, in which he contended his father was a CIA operative who joined the Dallas police department as part of a conspiracy to kill Kennedy, isn't available and without it his story is nothing but unfounded speculation. White theorizes that FBI agents took the diary, but most Americans will reject attempts to implicate official government agencies in the killing or suppression of physical evidence without something to back up such claims.

Gary Shaw, vice president of the JFK Assassination Information Center, noted that "there were a lot of things that weren't mentioned" during the Monday news conference that will be checked into further. That's as it should be and if more evidence is forthcoming to substantiate White's claims, it could merit another inquiry into the JFK assassination.

As noted earlier, there are still too many loose ends to the Kennedy killing to satisfy many people. If there is enough evidence to justify another look at the assassination, there certainly is more than enough interest on the public's part in finding the truth about what happened.

But hard evidence is what is needed to merit such an inquiry, and that wasn't presented at Monday's news conference.

Williams' leading on school issue

It's understandable that a teachers' union activist like Gilberto Garcia would be skeptical about Clayton Williams' school choice/voucher proposals. Yet the well-documented mediocrity of American public schools demands a solution. All concerned citizens should call The Brookings Institution at 1-202-797-6258 and order "Politics, Markets, & America's Schools" by John Chubb & Terry Moe.

The choice/voucher idea is simple. The state would issue a voucher for each student. Parents would enroll the student in a school of their choice, which would redeem the voucher to receive about $4,000, the amount currently spent per student by public schools.

The fact is that public schools are huge, government-run monopolies, and as such they suffer the same special-interest politics and bloated bureaucracy of any other nationalized industry. Stringent regulations imposed from above (a la Ross Perot) don't work. Throwing money at schools doesn't help. In the best schools, a strong principal chooses effective teachers and works with them to decide curriculum and teaching methods, without interference from bureaucrats in the administration or distant Austin.

The only way to make this happen is to let the market do its magic — set the schools free to find their own paths to excellence, and set the customers (parents and students) free to vote with their pocketbooks.

There are details of implementation to be worked out. Transportation should be subsidized for the poor. Integration must remain a goal. Schools must be accredited in order to join the voucher program. But today, school choice plans of various flavors are in use in England, Minnesota, Cambridge, New York City, and Milwaukee. They are proving popular with parents and unpopular with unions and administrators.

Garcia should realize that minority education could only improve in a choice system. The Texas education commissioner recently said, "When it comes to Hispanic children, our system is an utter disgrace, an utter disgrace."

The political bandwagon for school choice is only beginning to roll; Clayton Williams is simply ahead of his fellow politicians. On this issue, he deserves the active support of anyone who cares about education.

On this date:

In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte set sail for St. Helena to spend the remainder of his days in exile.

In 1844, Brigham Young was chosen to head the Mormon Church following the killing of Joseph Smith.

In 1876, Thomas A. Edison received a patent for his mimeograph, which he described as a "method of preparing autographic stencils for printing."

JACK ANDERSON

Accused drug runner has special privileges

WASHINGTON — John Hull is not just any Indiana farmer. He used to have a little spread down in Costa Rica, and, during the Nicaraguan civil war, he used the ranch as a supply depot for the contra rebels. When Costa Rica arrested him for drug trafficking, Hull jumped bail and came home. Now he's also wanted for murder in Costa Rica.

Anderson

But Hull has little to worry about. The last time Costa Rican officials tried to give him a hard time, 19 members of Congress wrote a letter to Oscar Arias, then president of Costa Rica, hinting that anyone who messed with John Hull could endanger friendly relations between the two countries.

If you bounced a check in Costa Rica, the U.S. government wouldn't think twice about extraditing you there to pay your debt to society. But there isn't much chance that John Hull will be similarly inconvenienced. The record shows that he has led a charmed life.

Here is the list of particulars:

— According to a 1988 Senate subcommittee report and Costa Rican authorities, Hull allowed his ranch to be used as an arms-for-drugs swap meet. Between 1983 and 1985, the subcommittee found, Hull let pilots fly in with contra munitions and out with cocaine bound for the United States.

— The same Senate report claimed that in 1983, Hull borrowed $375,000 from the Overseas Private Investment Council, using false documentation, and pocketed the cash. OPIC is a government-sponsored program to stimulate U.S. investments in foreign countries.

— The subcommittee also alleged that Hull falsified affidavits to a U.S. attorney investigating allegations of gun running and neutrality violations in Costa Rica.

— In January 1989, Costa Rican authorities arrested Hull on charges of drug trafficking and neutrality violations. He jumped bail last August and fled to the United States.

— Last December, a Costa Rican prosecutor charged Hull with homicide in a 1984 bombing that killed eight people. The target of the bombing, dissident contra Eden Pastora, survived.

Costa Rican authorities have not yet asked for Hull to be extradited to face the charges. If they do, they will find a wall of resistance by some members of the administration and Congress. An airing of his case could revive the embarrassing Iran-contra scandal.

Jeffrey Feldman knows what happens when one takes on Hull. He was the U.S. prosecutor who tried to investigate Hull in 1985. Feldman's team got the runaround from the U.S. Embassy in Costa Rica, and his request to convene a grand jury was denied. Then the Justice Department dropped the case and sent Feldman to Thailand on other duties.

Federal public defender John Mattes met the same brick wall in 1986. He was researching a case for a client arrested for gun running, and he came upon Hull's name. Mattes went to Costa Rica and unraveled details of Hull's contra supply network. He says he encountered "clear attempts to obstruct the truth by elements of the Justice Department and the FBI."

One of Mattes' prime witnesses was Jack Terrell, who ended up being labeled a "terrorist" by Oliver North after Terrell tattled on Hull to Congress.

To date, the Justice Department has taken no action against Hull, and officials refused to tell us if there is any investigation pending.

Bush shows unusual display of impatience

WASHINGTON — Days before Iraq created crisis conditions by invading Kuwait, a peeved President Bush decided to come home early Thursday night after his defense preparedness speech in Aspen, Colo.

Bush told advance men early in the week he had no desire to spend the night near Aspen as originally planned and was eager to get back to his family in Maine. Aides grumbled that the president's impatience would cost $10,000 in unused hotel rooms for staff, quite apart from additional flight expenses. Bush had predinner cocktails with Ambassador Henry Catto, back from the U.S. Embassy in London, then ate dinner on the plane flying home.

Evans and Novak

Earlier in the week, the usually cheery Bush had complained about the need to attend long-planned receptions. "The boss is really crabby," one insider told us. The reason is believed to be the budget summit stalemate and the deepening savings and loan crisis (including the problems of his son, Neil).

Speaker's Soft Soap

Speaker Thomas Foley inadvertently drew muffled chuckles from the House Democratic Caucus Thursday when his pre-summer recess pep talk praised what a terrific session of Congress this has been.

Foley pointed to the lead editorial in that morning's Washington Post extolling the pace of legislation in Congress. He then specifically lauded his colleagues for campaign-reform legislation, the civil rights bill and passing 10 out of 13 appropriations bills.

That generated a little mirth among the Democratic House members. "Has Tom heard that we haven't got a budget yet?" one senior member whispered to another. The consensus among Democrats, as with Republicans, is that the session has been unproductive with not much time left. WHERE IS BAKER?

Usually attentive to Republican right-wing leaders in the Senate, James A. Baker III has puzzled Sen. Jesse Helms, top Republican on the Foreign Relations Committee, and many of his GOP colleagues by failing to answer his July 19 letter asking if the secretary of State really does favor the big new bill for U.S. aid to Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

Helms, who finds the bill highly objectionable, wrote Baker that Sen. Claiborne Pell, the Democratic Foreign Relations chairman, told him the Bush administration "does not oppose" the bill. The measure was approved by the committee over Republican objections.

Telling Baker that "my understanding is that the administration opposes the bill," Helms pleaded: "Jim, I need to know as soon as possible whether the chairman's statement is accurate." Two weeks later, there has been no answer from Baker.

Advice from Moscow

The phenomenon of a world turned upside down was underlined this week when education reformer William J. Bennett was given advice by a Russian government official on how to improve schools.

Valery Borschov, a member of the reformist Moscow City Council visiting Washington, ran into Federal Drug Czar Bennett at the Heritage Foundation (a conservative think tank). Borschov said he and his colleagues had known of Bennett's call for school reform as President Reagan's secretary of Education. He expressed his pleasure at meeting him.

The Russian then told Bennett that the Moscow City Council had abolished kindergarten. Instead, Muscovites were being given vouchers to use as they saw fit – for church schools, if desired. The "choice option," Borschov suggested, might well be considered by the Americans.

Pressuring Israel

Rep. Joseph P. Kennedy of Massachusetts has warned Ambassador Moshe Arad if Israel does not formally announce that 17,000 West Bank Arab university students will be allowed back in the classroom within six months, the House will pass a long-pending resolution demanding that the schools be re-opened.

Two strongly pro-Israel Democrats, Reps. Gary Ackerman of New York and Mel Levine of California, joined Kennedy in sending that message to Arad. The ambassador has privately assured members of Congress for months that the institutions of higher learning would soon be opened.

Unless Israel now makes a public promise, Kennedy and his associates warned Arad, the House will feel compelled to pass the resolution that will give Israel a black eye. Israel and its chief lobbyist, the American-Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC), have been beating back the proposal much of the year.

LEWIS GRIZZARD

Hymns reason for lag in church attendance

I was reading that church attendance is on the decline in the United States. I can give several reasons for that myself. Saturday night is one reason.

Another is the great movies Ted Turner's Superstation shows on cable Sunday mornings during church hours.

Grizzard

It's the 10:35 Eastern slot. There are old movies, classic movies, like "In Harm's Way," with John Wayne; "On the Waterfront," with Marlon Brando, and, a personal favorite, "Zulu Dawn," where about six zillion Zulu warriors come running and screaming over a hill and kill Burt Lancaster.

And there's one more reason why I think a lot of people — and I am certainly included — don't darken the doors of church as often as they once did.

It's church music. Something has happened to it since I left Moreland Methodist, the church so dear to my childhood.

There was in my youth a wonderful thing known as the Cokesbury Hymnal. You could find one in the back of the pew in front of you.

Many were worn and dogeared from years of use. Steve Bohannon led the singing at my hometown church, and the old hymns we sang have never left the part of my heart they touched.

I'll mention a few of my favorites:

"Precious Memories": I want somebody — Willie Nelson preferably — to sing it at my funeral.

"The Old Rugged Cross": A haunting melody.

"Just As I Am": The proverbial "hymn of the invitation," everybody sang while wayward sheep came forward on the last night of revival and rejoined the flock.

"Love Lifted Me": It was a wonderful moment in my life when my voice finally changed and I could sing the deep parts.

"In the Garden": I even found it on a jukebox at a beer joint once. The Statler Brothers recorded it.

"Peace in the Valley": I'm not certain who sang it best, Red Foley or Elvis.

I could go on here for hours.

"The Little Brown Church in the Wildwood," "Power in the Blood," "When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder," "Nearer my God to Thee," which is what I would have sang if I had noticed there were six zillion Zulu warriors running and screaming over a hill at me.

They rarely sing any of those songs when I go to church nowadays. The last time I was married, I went to a Presbyterian church to which my wife belonged.

Nice church. Nice people. Great minister. But I'd never heard of a single song they sang.

I went to another Methodist church a few weeks ago. No Cokesbury hymnals, and a woman in the choir got up and sang what sounded like something from an opera and hurt my ears.

In the middle of it all, I wanted to stand up and shout, like Steve Bohannon, "'Beulah Land'! — first and last verses," but I didn't. They probably would have called the cops.

I mentioned my fondness for the old hymns and the fact I wanted "Precious Memories" played at my funeral to my stepbrother, Ludlow Porch, the famous radio star.

"What do you want them to play at your funeral?" I asked Ludlow.

He thought for a moment and then answered, "Volleyball."

At the bottom of all this probably lies the fact that big city churches have all become too sophisticated to sing the old songs.

They have huge choirs and expensive organs with monstrous pipes and they have ministers of music, some with Ph.Ds.

At Moreland Methodist, an old piano played the dear, sweet music. Our minister of music, Steve Bohannon, incidentally, ran a service station.

NASA releases new liftoff plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Space shuttle Columbia, sporting new hardware to replace the leaky pipes that grounded it earlier, will be rolled to the launch pad late this week and prepared for an early September liftoff, officials said Tuesday.

William Lenoir, NASA's associate administrator for spaceflight, said the agency is so confident that Columbia will be ready to fly that a plan to test the space shuttle for leaks of its hydrogen fuel has been cancelled.

"We're back on track and more or less are in our normal operating scheme," Lenoir said at a news conference.

NASA has not launched a space shuttle since April. Launch attempts of Columbia and of Atlantis were scrubbed after hydrogen leaks were discovered on the craft. The leaks forced the space agency to ground the shuttle fleet until engineers found the source of the leaking hydrogen and corrected the problem.

Americans buy bonds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans poured $629 million into U.S. savings bonds in July, a 4 percent increase over their investment a year earlier and a 2 percent gain over June, the government reported Tuesday.

The Treasury Department said July's purchases brought total sales for the first 10 months of fiscal year 1990 to $6.58 billion, up from $6.57 billion during the same period of 1989.

It also brought to $122.55 billion the value of savings bonds now held by Americans, 7 percent more than a year ago.

Savings bonds held 5 years or longer earn market-based interest rates or a guaranteed rate, whichever is higher. The current semi-annual market-based rate is 7.01 percent, effective through Oct.31. The guaranteed rate is 6 percent.

Salmonella reported

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Raw tomatoes may be the common link in a salmonella outbreak that has sickened more than 100 people in four Midwest states since July, health officials say.

In Illinois, 51 salmonella cases have been reported since July 1, mostly in the Chicago area, said Dr. Bernard Turnock, the state's public health director.

Minnesota has reported 38 cases, Michigan 10 and Wisconsin three.

Minnesota officials said Monday the outbreak of salmonella javiana was definitely linked to tomatoes. Turnock said test results from Illinois cases "show an association with tomatoes as the common source."

Investigators believe tomatoes from a single farm or distributor may have been contaminated with manure used as fertilizer, but the source hasn't been pinpointed, said Tom Schafer, a spokesman for the Illinois Department of Public Health.

Tomatoes associated with the outbreak came from grocery stores and were eaten at restaurants.

Barry jury reaches verdict on 1 charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marion Barry's attorney conceded Tuesday that the mayor might be convicted on "one or two" of the 14 drug and perjury charges against him. Jurors earlier announced that they had reached a verdict on one charge, but refused to reveal their decision.

Defense attorney R. Kenneth Mundy said during deliberations that he had confidence in the jury, but admitted that they might not acquit Barry on all charges.

"You're going to get some hung counts ... some acquittals ... you might get one or two convictions," Mundy said. It was Mundy's first public prediction since deliberations began last week and the most pessimistic speculation to come from the Barry camp.

Later Tuesday, jury foreman Edward Eagles, sent a note to U.S. District Court Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson saying the jury had "reached a verdict on count 12," a misdemeanor cocaine possession charge.

That count stems from the testimony of former Carter administration aide Doris Crenshaw, who said that she and Barry had snorted cocaine together in her Washington hotel room between November 7-10, 1988.

To declare a verdict on each count, jurors must have voted unanimously either to find a defendant guilty or innocent.

"Have you reached a verdict?" Jackson asked the jury foreman.

"I would prefer that you poll the jury," Eagles said.

After a moment, Jackson asked whether the jury wanted to reveal its decision.

"Not at this time," said a female voice.

Jackson then dismissed the jury for the day after answering a separate, routine evidentiary question. Deliberations were to continue Wednesday.

One former local prosecutor, now a criminal defense attorney, said that it was common for one or more jurors to have second thoughts after reaching a verdict but before announcing that verdict in open court. And he speculated that was what occurred with the Barry jury.

"Obviously someone was a little shaky in their resolve during the 20 minutes or so it took to assemble people in the courtroom," said Allen Palmer, a former assistant U.S. Attorney.

Defense claims prosecutor trying to incite jogger jury

NEW YORK (AP) — A defense lawyer Tuesday accused prosecutors of trying to incite jurors to vengeance against three teenagers charged with beating and raping the so-called Central Park jogger.

Defense lawyer Robert Burns, in his closing statment, also criticized prosecutors for putting the jogger on the stand and for showing the jury color photographs of her injuries. Burns is the attorney for Yusef Salaam, 16, one of three teens on trial for the attack.

"I believe the district attorney has made an attempt to appeal to your emotions," Burns told the jury. "When the prosecutor waves all those ghastly pictures at you, those are attempts to catapult you into a spirit of vengeance.

"You decide a case on the evidence, not on emotions raised by pictures," Burns said. "The pictures are shown to you because there is no evidence."

Salaam, Raymond Santana, 15, and Antron McCray, 16, are accused of gang-raping and nearly killing the jogger and assaulting two male runners in the north end of Central Park the night of April 19, 1989.

They are on trial on charges of attempted murder, rape, sexual abuse, riot, assault and robbery.

The 30-year-old woman is back at work as a vice president at Salomon Brothers investment bankers, but she testified that she still suffers from impaired sight, balance and smell as a result of the attack.

The principal evidence against McCray and Santana are statements they gave police. Salaam did not give police a statement but a detective testified he took notes of admissions Salaam made during questioning.

Stark apologizes to Sullivan over remark

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Pete Stark apologized to Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan for calling him a "disgrace to his race" last week, spokesmen said on Tuesday.

Neither Sullivan nor Stark's office would release the text of the letter of apology delivered Monday night.

"He did apologize," said Bob Shemermund, a spokesman for Sullivan.

Stark's remark last week infuriated Sullivan, the only black member of President Bush's Cabinet.

Stark, who said the intended target of his criticism was Bush administration policies he believes harm blacks and the poor, said on the House floor afterward, "I blew it."

Sullivan did not take that as an apology.

He did take the letter that way, but did not send a reply, Schmermund said.

Judge upholds school choice

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Hundreds of poor city students could be enrolled in private schools with state money this fall, say supporters who won a court challenge of the nations' first school voucher plan.

However, opponents, including Wisconsin's top education official, began plotting an appeal Tuesday.

Dane County Circuit Judge Susan Steingass on Monday ruled the program was legal because it aims to improve education "to the benefit of the entire state," thereby filling the "public purpose" requirement of Wisconsin's Constitution.

The republican candidate for state treasurer said she is confident that Tuesday's endorsement by presidential offspring George W. Bush will add momentum to her bid for the state treasurer's office.

City looks at drainage projects

■ City officials may issue $1.2 million in certificates of obligation to pay for Wadley drainage improvements and are planning a $700,000 project for southeast Midland.

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Wadley Avenue, in addition to serving as one of Midland's most well-traveled traffic arteries, has been an effective drainage channel when rain comes.

Drivers daring enough to ford Wadley after a downpour must maneuver their vehicles at a crawl through intermittent stretches of curb-high water from Midland Drive to Garfield Street.

"It's a major drainage street," said Harvey Hansen, the city's traffic and engineering director. "It was designed to carry drainage. But when it rains, it does interfere with traffic."

But city officials said Tuesday that they are looking at issuing $1.2 million in certificates of obligation in early 1991 to pay for drainage improvements for Wadley.

In addition, a $700,000 channel project is being considered to help runoff in southeast Midland.

City administrators and councilmen met with Parkhill, Smith & Cooper Inc. planners Tuesday to discuss the projects.

Councilman J.D. Faircloth said installing a drainage system beneath Wadley from Whitney Drive to Godfrey Drive will be part of an overall repair project for that thoroughfare. The flow of water down Wadley during recent years has eroded parts of the road, Faircloth said.

The city in January 1991 is expected to issue certificates of obligation to pay for the project, which is scheduled to begin that spring and take about six months to complete, he said.

The city two years ago spent $1.2 million to improve drainage on Wadley from I Street to Whitney.

Although the system has been effective in keeping water off eastern sections of Wadley, water still gathers on the western stretches, especially at the Midland Drive and Midkiff Road intersections, Faircloth said.

A $700,000 channel project for southeast Midland has also been scheduled for the 1990-91 fiscal year.

Hansen said rain runoff in a ditch near Fairgrounds Road sometimes backs up and floods the road and surrounding area.

"When it really rains, sometimes it's a foot deep for quite a ways," Hansen said.

The ditch, which now turns south and travels beneath Highway 80, would be extended

Neighbors get together to show concern about crime

A little rain didn't stop some Midlanders from expressing their feelings about crime by participating in the National Night Out Against Crime, Tuesday evening.

"It's a chance to get together and take care of crime too," said Gayle Dodson, a Neighborhood Watch captain who got together for the Night Out with some of her neighbors.

"We're all very, very close and nothing happens in this neighborhood that we don't know about," Ms. Dodson said.

She and her neighbors got together even before being part of a Neighborhood Watch program, she said.

"It's a contribution they (program coordinators) made ... bringing people out," she said. "It gives people an opportunity to come out, otherwise they never would."

For Dodson's group, the Night Out meant a barbecue, all the fixins' and homemade deserts. "We're even going to have bingo tonight," she said.

"I think it does bring back the old-fashioned get-togethers," Ms. Dodson said. "I have some many friends that don't even know their neighbors."

Ms. Dodson's group is so enthusiastic about the event, that they are planning to do it again on Labor Day.

One neighbor who showed up at the Dodsons' get-together was Torivio Duran.

"A lot of people don't like to get involved. A lot of people say it (being burglarized) won't happen to me. But it will sooner or later. I

Brothers go to movies for the first time

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Going to the movies in summer usually isn't a big event for many Midlanders, but for Manuel and Efren Escontrias it was the chance of a lifetime.

The two wheelchair-bound brothers visited a movie theater for the first time in their lives Monday. Escorted by Vincent Nieto, Manuel, 20 and Efren, 18, viewed the 2:10 p.m. showing of "Presumed Innocent" at Midland Park Mall Cinema.

The brothers both have Duchenne muscular dystrophy, a debilitating disease. The inherited muscle disorder causes a slow, but progressive degeneration of the muscle fibers. Confined to their wheelchairs since they were 7 and 8, the Escontrias brothers have seldom ventured out of their home, except to attend school.

The brothers have become movie buffs since the television is their primary source of entertainment. Their first opportunity to view a film on the big screen was a success, Nieto said. "They loved it," he said.

Knowing that the Escontrias could view even more movies if

Crane to honor one of its own

■ The town of Crane is proclaiming Saturday Paul Patterson Day in honor of the West Texas folklorist.

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

CRANE — Paul Patterson, who has a folksy flair for bringing Western folklore and other wild-but-true tales to the printed page, will be on center stage Saturday — Paul Patterson Day in his hometown of Crane.

Patterson

"This is the biggest thing that has happened to me," Patterson said Tuesday. "I feel like one of the big ones."

Among folklorists, he is.

At 81, the ex-cowboy and retired schoolteacher is the author of about 10 books, including "Sam McGoo and Texas Too," "Pecos Tales," and "Crazy Women in the Rafters."

The title of "Crazy Women," which reflects on his boyhood days in West Texas, alludes to pioneer women who lost "their minds due to loneliness" on the prairies and wound up in attics, while their husbands were out working cattle or herding sheep and "all that fun stuff."

Additionally, Patterson has compiled a two-volume collection, "A Pecos River Pilgrim's Poems," and written many articles about cowboys and cowboying.

"There's a lot of things worse than getting old," said the humorist, "but I can't think of any of them."

Paul Patterson Day will be celebrated amid the Crane High School Reunion.

Patterson and his published works, manuscripts and memorabilia will be featured in the Crane High School Big SUR (Student Union Room) from 9 a.m. until noon on Saturday. A Dutch-treat luncheon will be held in the Sixth Street Community Hall.

Patterson's fellow author and former journalism student at Crane High School, Western novelist Elmer Kelton of San Angelo, will pay tribute to Patterson at 3 p.m. Saturday in the Sixth Street Community Hall. Following that, Patterson will be recognized at the Crane Exes' barbecue supper in the Exhibition Building.

The Spring 1990 issue of Southwestern American Literature, a journal published by New Mexico Junior College in Hobbs, solely was devoted to a study of Patterson's literary works. Previous issues were devoted to Texas novelists Larry McMurtry and Kelton.

Patterson was president of the Texas Folklore Society in 1966 and was friends with the late Southwestern folklorists, J. Frank Dobie and Mody Boatright.

Patterson has cowboyed on either side of the Pecos River, traveled by covered wagon, rodeoed to earn a few bucks at college at Alpine in the tough 1930s, played hillbilly music on a Fort Worth radio station, wrote books and poems, and turned to school-teaching at Marfa, Sanderson, Crane and Sierra Blanca to support his flair for the Western life.

"He was cowpoking when he came to Crane to teach in the late 1930s," said Doug Chrane, a retired Crane schoolteacher. "He's been through all this country here."

As a teacher of Spanish and journalism, Patterson had "quite an influence on our students here in Crane," Chrane said. "We've honored him a lot of times for this 'n' that and others things — his folklore stories."

A Crane ex-student who is coming to the reunion and to Paul Patterson Day remarked, said Chrane, that "They would have to set up a roadblock to keep me out this time."

Patterson's teaching and writing careers were interrupted by World War II, when Patterson was declared the biggest teller of tall tales in the Army, Navy and Air Corps and won a $100 and medal for that feat, Chrane said.

But Patterson's wife, Marjorie, says that for Patterson, telling wild tales is "no big deal," said Chrane, since Patterson "has had a lot of practice" doing that.

After the war, he returned to teaching and writing.

During his day in Crane, Patterson will be autographing his books and telling wild tales.

"You can't keep him from telling wild tales," said Chrane.

Chiropractic clinic sued by doctor

By David Morris
Staff Writer

An Odessa doctor has filed a multimillion dollar suit against the beleaguered Mid-America Inc. chiropractic clinic, claiming that the organization misused his name to add credibility to its operation.

Attorneys for Dr. Edward T. Driscoll filed the suit Monday in Midland District Court, records show. The suit seeks at least $4 million in actual and punitive damages, plus attorney's fees.

Mid-America and some of its former officials are already facing a lawsuit filed against them in April by the State Attorney General's Office. That suit claims that Mid-America employees gave unauthorized medical exams to patients and falsely represented themselves as medical doctors.

Driscoll claims that Mid-America and its former president, Dr. Joe T. Boyd, damaged his reputation by falsely depicting him as the clinic's chief of staff. Also named as defendants in the suit are former clinic employees R.W. Bratcher and James H. Crockett.

The suit says Driscoll, a semi-retired orthopedic surgeon in his

VOLUNTEERING

Let your spirit soar — become a community volunteer.

■ Midland's public schools need volunteers. A local elementary school is looking for several volunteers to assist the school office with its clerical activities. Duties include answering phones, light typing, filing and running copies. Hours for this program are flexible so you can set your own schedule and work only as many hours as you would like.

■ Volunteers are needed to work the registration booth at a walk-a-thon to benefit Juvenile Diabetes. The walk-a-thon will be held Sept. 15 at Midland College from 7:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. A barbecue lunch will be provided for all volunteers. Volunteers will also receive a free commemorative T-shirt. A short training session will be provided by the hosting agency.

■ The beginning of school is just around the corner and the need for reading tutors and homework helpers will increase. You can help elementary school children successfully complete their homework and learning goals. Volunteers will be needed one or two afternoons Monday through Thursday between 2:30-3:30 p.m. or 4:30-6:30 p.m.

■ Listening, running errands, clerical duties. These simple tasks will go far in being there for hospice patients and their families. You can fill these vital needs while awaiting the next session of formal volunteer training. The need for caring volunteers is ongoing.

■ Make a world of difference for a disabled or homebound person by picking up a few items at the store or a prescription drug and delivering them to the person's home. You can see the meaning of your volunteer work instantly. This is a flexible opportunity, so set your own schedule.

BUSH: Candidate for state treasurer gets endorsement

(From 1B)

Bush, accompanying Ms. Hutchison on a campaign and fund-raising swing through West Texas, said he hoped his endorsement would call attention to the Hutchison campaign.

"The best thing I can do is help her raise money and get people from the media to show up," said Bush, owner of the Texas Rangers baseball team and the eldest son of President Bush. "I think my presence ... gets people's interest, so hopefully Kay will get some decent media."

Bush said he is confident that Ms. Hutchison will win the November election against her democratic opponent Nikki Van Hightower of Houston.

Ms. Hutchison said Ms. Van Hightower lacks the business and finance background necessary for a treasurer candidate.

"I think it's important that we have more people with business experience in government ... because it makes (those people) appreciate it from the other side's perspective," said Ms. Hutchison, a Dallas lawyer who lists several business ventures on her resume. Those ventures include part-ownership of a Dallas-Houston furniture showroom, former ownership of a candy company and part-ownership of a Dallas bank.

Ms. Hutchison also attacked her opponent's alleged support for a state income tax.

"I don't think we should be looking at new taxes at all," Ms. Hutchison said, adding that she hopes to eliminate some governmental red tape if elected in order to spur the Texas economy.

"Regulations are too prolific and we need to be cutting back on that," she said. "Business needs to be free to expand if our economy is to improve."

Joe Gorton, Ms. Van Hightower's campaign manager, denied that Ms. Van Hightower supports a state income tax for individuals.

"That is absolutely untrue and Hutchison knows it's untrue," he said in a phone interview. "Nikki opposes a personal income tax, and Hutchison knows that."

Ms. Hutchison, meanwhile, said that her banking experience will stand her in good stead when, as treasurer, she is charged with investing the state's money. She suggested that someone without that experience could end up losing the state's money.

Gorton, meanwhile, argued that Ms. Van Hightower — the Harris County treasurer since 1986 — already knows the ins and outs of public finance.

"The treasurer authorizes the movement of all funds in county government," he said, adding that Ms. Hutchison has no experience in public finance.

Ms. Hutchison discounted Ms. Van Hightower's experience in the Harris County treasurer's office.

"In Harris County, the county treasurer has no investment authority whatsoever," Ms. Hutchison said. "There is no correlation between the county treasurer's office ... and the state treasurer's office."

Both candidates, meanwhile, seem to agree that the state needs to explore methods of increasing non-tax revenue.

Ms. Hutchison said that vigorous pursuit of a triple-A bond rating for the state would be one method of saving money. Gorton, meanwhile, said Ms. Van Hightower supports pooling of investments by taxing entities statewide to increase investment revenue.

BROTHERS: Wheelchair-bound men get chance to go to movies

they had a video cassette recorder (VCR), Nieto has been making arrangements to get them one.

Nieto, visiting Midland from Spain, is a guest artist who performs children's productions. "His productions are Sesame Street type performances which involve puppets," said Charlene Wurtz, Midland Hispanic Chamber president. Nieto, whose visit is sponsored by the chamber and the Midland Arts Assembly, has taken the brothers under his wing, according to Ms. Wurtz.

Even better than experiencing a movie or getting a VCR to watch video tapes, would be to see movies in the making, according to Elvia Hernandez of the Midland Hispanic Chamber. The chamber has been accepting donations to send the brothers — who need round-the-clock assistance — and their parents to Disneyland and Universal City Studios in California.

Ms. Hernandez said the chamber has collected $750 to fund the brothers' trip and Midland Travel has donated two round-trip tickets to Los Angeles. "We still need two round-trip tickets and at least $500 more," Ms. Hernandez said. She said the chamber decided the young men should also visit Disneyland in Anaheim, while in California.

The chamber began raising funds for the brothers after Make-A-Wish Foundation in Odessa denied their request for a trip to Universal City Studios. The organization's guidelines limit it to providing services for youth with a life expectancy of 18 years or less. Persons with Duchenne have a life expectancy of the early 20s.

Ms. Hernandez said transportation has been arranged for the brothers and their parents once they get to California. "They will be staying in California a week," she said. "TTS Transportation in Van Nuys will pick them up from the airport and provide transportation to and from Disneyland and Universal City Studios to their hotel."

Ms. Hernandez arrangements for a hotel are still being negotiated.

Donations to send the brothers to Disneyland and Universal City Studios may be sent to: Midland Hispanic Chamber, P.O. Box 11134, Midland, Texas, 79702.

DRAINAGE: Projects considered east so that it will drain into nearby Scharbauer Draw, he said. The project should be completed before September 1991, he said.

Another project set for completion that month is the excavation of Midland Draw from Loop 250 near Big Spring Street to about a half mile north, Hansen said.

Faircloth said city officials during the year also will design a five- to 10-year drainage renovation plan, which may include widening area draws or lining them with concrete to quicken the flow rate.

Most of the projects will take place in east Midland, where flooding in low-lying areas has been a problem for years, he said. "The whole east side of town backs up," he said.

The projects may require acquiring property and renovating bridges, Faircloth said. While some bridges may need to be widened, others may need to be replaced, he said.

"We can't do that in one year," Faircloth said of those projects. "It may take five to 10 years. It's all going to take time and money."

There have been no estimates yet on how much money it will take to improve east Midland drainage, he added.

CRIME: People congregate

think this (the Neighborhood Watch strategy) will stop it all together," Duran said.

"It's like a whole big family, the neighborhood," he said.

In another part of town, Kathryn Nichols, a watch captain, also shared a barbeque with neighbors.

"The new neighbors are getting to meet everyone," Nichols said.

Nichols said being part of a Neighborhood Watch encourages residents to keep their eyes open for any suspicious activity.

"It's made us all aware that you shouldn't wait (if you see something suspicious); you should call the police," she said.

According to Ron Sartor, Crime Prevention Officer for the Midland Police Department, at least 80 percent of crimes, such as home burglaries, that are solved or prevented are where someone who sees something suspicious calls the police.

Sartor was one of several law enforcement officials from the police department and the sheriff's office who was out visiting with people who participated in the Night Out.

About 40 Neighborhood Watch groups in the city and county met for the event Tuesday night.

"I think it is responding very well," Police Chief Richard Czech said, at one of the get-togethers.

"It shows that they are concerned. The police can't do it all themselves and (we) need the public's help," Czech said.

Information sought on attempted assault

Staff Report

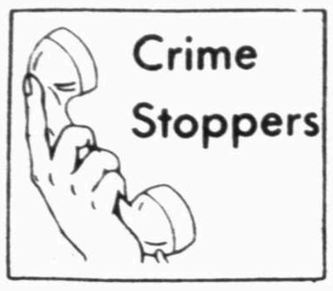
ODESSA — This week Odessa Crime Stoppers is seeking information which may help solve an attempted sexual assault that occurred at an unknown location in Odessa.

On July 20, the victim left work and went to have a drink with friends. The victim became ill and phoned her sister to come and pick her up.

She was sitting in the front of the nightclub waiting for her sister when a Hispanic man picked her up in his arms and placed her in his vehicle.

The suspect drove to a vacant house where he attempted to assault her. After failing at his attempt, he drove the victim back to the nightclub and left her laying in the alley.

The suspect is described as a Hispanic male in his mid-20s, 5 feet 8 inches tall, about 190 pounds with black hair and a moustache.



Anyone with any information which leads to the arrest and indictment of the person involved in this crime, it could be worth up to $1,000 cash reward this week only.

Call Crime Stoppers in Odessa at 333-TIPS or in Midland at 694-TIPS.

CLINIC: Doctor's lawsuit claims his name misused

(From 1B)

80s, did do some part-time consulting work for Mid-America during the clinic's first five months of existence between January and April.

The suit does not indicate how long Driscoll was associated with the clinic, but says Driscoll became suspicious of Mid-America's operation after a meeting with a representative of the State Board of Medical Examiners.

After the meeting, Driscoll obtained a court injunction against the clinic forbidding Mid-America from using his name and "had nothing further to do" with the clinic, the suit says.

The suit further claims that the names of several physicians not directly associated with Mid-America were included on Mid-America's letterhead.

Neither Driscoll nor his lawyer, Gary C. Riley of Austin, could be reached for comment Tuesday.

The suit denies that Driscoll either acted as the clinic's chief of staff or had any voice in the management of Mid-America.

But Paul White, an attorney for Mid-America, said Driscoll's name was not misused by the clinic.

"He was the chief of staff," White said of Driscoll. "That's always been our position."

White declined to comment on other aspects of the case. Boyd could not be reached for comment Tuesday afternoon.

Earlier this week, White said Mid-America, which moved out of its 700 W. Louisiana offices in April, has essentially ceased to function because of a lack of patients.

Boyd, meanwhile, continues his practice at the Boyd Chiropractic Clinic in the 2500 block of West Ohio Avenue. His chiropractor's license is due to be revoked this week in the wake of a court order issued last week in 318th District Court, White confirmed.

Judge Dean Rucker last Thursday upheld a 1987 ruling by the State Board of Chiropractic Examiners which held that Boyd's license should be revoked because he made false claims about his healing abilities, White said.

SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT
TEXAS
MIDLAND COUNTY

Crime Prevention Division

Residents of Midland County:

Every day we each run the risk of becoming a victim of crime. In this county one of the most common and hardest hitting crimes is that of residential burglary. In 1989 there were 165 residential burglaries reported to the Sheriff's Department. While that total is down 15% from the previous year, we can't just sit still and hope for crime to decrease on its own.

One of the best methods to fight burglary is the Neighborhood Watch Program. We would like to encourage anyone interested in starting a new Neighborhood Watch Program or reviving an old one to contact us at the Mildand County Sheriff's Office. If we all cooperate and watch out for each other we can make a difference.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A mix-up with receipts could complicate your day. Double-check your work. Concentrate on boosting your earning power. Your health remains strong despite recent stress.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Maintain an air of calm in your business dealings. You could end up in the winner's circle if you persevere. Ration your energy and time carefully. Call home if you must work late.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Patience and tact will help you work miracles today. Unpredictable behavior on the part of a loved one may confuse you. Kind words will win someone over. Take a teen-ager into your confidence.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Make allowances for someone's mistakes. A broken agreement could work to your advantage. Thoughts of old times put you in a nostalgic mood. Phone someone at a distance.

TODAY'S CHILDREN prefer the contemporary to the traditional. They look to the future with eager anticipation and are greatly interested in high technology. Astronomy will fascinate these curious Leos. Confident and efficient, these youngsters yearn to assume responsibility. They resent being in a subordinate position and may rebel against authority. Witty and sunny if humored, they can become very withdrawn if ignored. Be firm but kind when explaining your rules.

Opening lead: King of ◇

There is nothing unusual about today's hand, except that it is misplayed more often than it is played correctly. The possibility of a trump finesse creates a blind spot for most declarers.

The auction is simple enough. North is too strong for a single raise in hearts, but lacks the fourth trump needed for a limit raise (and the strength for a forcing raise). The solution is a temporizing bid of one spade, followed by a jump preference in hearts, which is not forcing in the modern style.

If trumps are 3-2, there's no problem in taking 11 tricks. What if hearts break 4-1? The defenders start with three rounds of diamonds, and most declarers ruff and cash the king and ace of trumps to discover the trump distribution. If East has the long trumps, declarer is in a position to finesse the ten, draw all the trumps and claim the rest of the tricks, making five-odd.

But what if West turns up with the four hearts. The declarers then turn their attention to the spade suit. Unfortunately, West ruffs the second spade and exits with a trump, and declarer still has to lose a couple of club tricks for down two.

The hand is almost too simple for words. After ruffing the diamond, declarer should cash the king and queen of trumps from hand. If both defenders follow, all's well. If either shows out on the second heart, declarer abandons trumps and starts to run spades. When the second spade is ruffed, declarer can win any return, enter dummy while drawing the last trump with the ace, and cash the high spades for two club discards from the closed hand. The contract is guaranteed.

Don Johnson to participate in Hudson River boat race

NEW YORK (AP) — "Miami Vice" star and powerboat racer Don Johnson said Tuesday he's taking his favorite sport to the Hudson River on Aug. 18.

The race is sponsored by the Offshore Professional Tour, which Johnson heads.

The course will run 10 laps from Spuyten Duyvil in the Bronx to Tarrytown, a distance of nine miles, Johnson told a Manhattan news conference.

Johnson, who races his personal boat in competition, holds second place in the Superboat class: boats that can travel up to 135 mph on straightaways.

Madonna

NEW YORK (AP) — Pop singer Madonna has made another record.

The telecast of the final concert Sunday of her "Blonde Ambition" tour was the most-watched entertainment special in HBO's 18-year history, the cable company said Tuesday.

The two-hour concert, "Madonna — Live!," was shown in the United States on a tape-delay basis because of the time difference in Nice, France, where she performed.

The program had a 21.5 rating, meaning it was seen in more than 4.3 million households that pay extra each month for the HBO service. HBO serves 20.3 million households, according to Nielsen estimates.

LeMond

EDINA, Minn. (AP) — A restaurant owned by champion cyclist Greg LeMond and some relatives opened Tuesday in this Minneapolis suburb.

LeMond, a three-time winner of the Tour de France, is a partner in Scott Kee's Tour de France restaurant being run by Kee and his wife, Lisa.

LeMond and his wife, Kathy, are partners in the venture along with David and Sacia Morris, the parents of Mrs. LeMond and Mrs. Kee.

"Scott has been a chef for about eight years and his dream has always been to have his own restaurant," Mrs. Kee said Monday. "Greg has an interest in restaurants. When he and Kathy are in Europe, they go to all the best restaurants."

LeMond, who lives in nearby Wayzata part of the year, didn't attend Tuesday's opening, but flew into town briefly for a test meal prepared Saturday night to fine-tune the staff.

"He was really excited," Mrs. Kee said. "He sees this as a place where he can come and bring friends, a place you can call your own."

Smith

DETROIT (AP) — Singers Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme helped retired General Motors Corp. Chairman Roger B. Smith say goodbye to hundreds of friends at an opulent bash featuring smoked duck and $120-a-bottle champagne.

"It was one of the most elegant functions like that that I've ever attended, and I've been to quite a few," said David Cole, a University of Michigan official and son of the late Edward Cole, former president of GM.

"I would have traded my salary for what it would have cost to put that on," Cole said. "I'm sure it was an expensive proposition."

Sunday's get-together became known as "the $5 million party." GM officials said that figure was "ridiculous," but declined to say how much it cost.

"This is the usual party we have for retiring top executives," said GM spokesman Jim Crellin.

There were 326 people on the guest list, including seven of Forbes magazine's 400 richest people in America. No one from Ford Motor Co. nor Chrysler Corp. was there.

The guests were entertained by Lawrence and Gorme, backed by the Johnny Trudell Orchestra.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Ricardo Montalban, who played the genial host of televison's "Fantasy Island," sued Columbia Pictures on Tuesday for $10 million-plus, claiming the studio didn't pay a promised 5 percent in profits.

The Superior Court lawsuit, which seeks $10 million in punitive damages in addition to the profits, claims the 1977-1983 series on ABC earned more than $100 million and was one of the most successful in TV history

The lawsuit charges that Columbia Pictures Television and Columbia Pictures Industries Inc. manipulated accounting practices to avoid paying Montalban a portion of the profits.

The lawsuit said Montalban was unaware of the alleged accounting practices until he got a distribution statement from the studio in 1987 showing "large and unwarranted interest charges on the cost of production and other items."

The lawsuit said the studio denies the show ever turned a profit.

The studio declined to comment on the lawsuit.

Downs in dumps

AUSTIN (AP) — Lubbock Downs owner Jean Arnett could face a license revocation hearing later this year after failing to prove that she has $5.5 million to finance construction at the track.

"At this time, we don't have formal plans in front of us to begin revocation proceedings," said Texas Racing Commission administrator Dave Freeman.

He said, however, that a revocation hearing is one of the options that the staff will consider.

The commission gave Mrs. Arnett until Monday to prove she had the necessary funds for construction at the track.

Renewal of the track's Class 2 parimutuel license was contingent on the proof of financial backing, an order from the commission passed last month said.

In a letter faxed to the commission Monday, Mrs. Arnett said, "Despite diligent efforts, our construction is not irrevocably arranged."

Mrs. Arnett noted in the letter that she still has funding possibilities and requested 90 more days to get the money.

Mrs. Arnett said she has been in contact with two possible financial backers in Pennsylvania and England.

Since her license was granted in June 1989, Mrs. Arnett said she has talked with 15-20 potential investor groups or individuals.

"I know they think I haven't been working, but this is all I do 24 hours a day," Mrs. Arnett said Monday. "Basically, I am working unceasingly on this."

Racing Commissioner Glenn Blodgett of Guthrie said he expects Mrs. Arnett to be given time to address the commission when it meets Sept. 10.

Angels win 4-3

■ Midland Angel utilityman Jeff Barns showed why he was a Texas League All-Star with a game-winning pinch hit in the bottom of the ninth inning that scored fellow pinch hitter Reed Peters.

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

Combined, Reed Peters and Jeff Barns played less than five full minutes of baseball Tuesday night at Angels Stadium. But that's all the playing time the pair of pinch hitters needed to propel the Angels to a three-run ninth inning and a 4-3 comeback win over the San Antonio Missions.

Barns, whose two-out single got past first baseman Eric Karros and scored Peters with the winning run, said he felt the hit before he struck it.

"I said to their catcher, Lance Rice, 'This is it. I'm either the goat or the hero.' He kind of chuckled. But I had that aura that I was going to take one into a hole," the seldom-used All-Star said.

"I hit it and saw Eric (Karros) dive for it. I said 'please let it get through' and it did. It was kind of self-satisfying."

Midland closed its five-game stand against the Western Division leaders with a 3-2 record and did it with a rally that seemed improbable after collecting only three hits over the first eight innings.

The Angel rally ruined an evening that belonged to San Antonio pitcher Zak Shinall for seven innings. The Mission righthander held the Angels in check by allowing just the three hits and one run before giving way to closer Jim Poole, who brought his team-high 10 saves to the mound to start the eighth. The 3-1 advantage was his to lose.

Mark Howie led off the last of the ninth with an infield single that took a bad hop and banked off the chest of short stop Luis Martinez. Howie was ruled out on a close force play at second, but with Mark Doran at first, Poole walked Tim Salmon, who was activated from Palm Springs the day of the game.

Poole got Doug Davis to fly to deep left center field, and Doran tagged and went to third. Then Peters, pinch-hitting for Kevin Davis, provided a two-out single off relief pitcher Jim Poole that barely escaped the glove of diving second baseman Eddie Pye and scored scored Mark Doran to tighten the game at 3-2.

"He (Poole) had been throwing good sliders all night, and I just guessed I'd get a slider," Peters said. "But I got a fastball and hit it anyway."

Sam Perkins as he announces his free agent signing by the Los Angeles Lakers.

Mavs mine for Nugget

■ After losing free agent forward Sam Perkins to the Los Angeles Lakers Monday, the Dallas Mavericks are looking at Alex English as a replacement.

Associated Press

DALLAS — Stunned by the defection of power forward Sam Perkins, the Dallas Mavericks said Tuesday they are looking at the possible acquisition of Denver Nuggets forward Alex English.

"We are taking a hard look at him. There's been communication between Rick Sund and his agent," Mavericks head coach Richie Adubato said.

"I don't know if we're too late on this or not. Alex has been out there (on the trading block), and several teams have been looking at him. Whether we are going to be able to accomplish this remains to be seen," Adubato said.

English, a career 20-point scorer, no longer appears to have a future with the Nuggets, who have moved into a rebuilding stage. Although English lacks the defensive and rebounding abilities of Perkins, his ability to score would fill perhaps the Mavericks' biggest need.

"Alex English could add scoring to our team, plus he's a tremendous person," Adubato said.

English, like Perkins, is an unrestricted free agent who can sign with the team of his choice. Although he is one of the most prolific players in NBA history, at 36 he is also one of the older current players.

English, who has said he intends to play for one more season before he retires, made $2 million last season. That is no problem for the Mavericks, who had set aside $3 million a year to sign Perkins.

Perkins agreed to a 6-year, $20 million package with the Los Angeles Lakers on Monday. Adubato had planned to

Stewart takes Shoal Creek course conditions to task

■ Payne Stewart claims the rough at Shoal Creek Country Club is too tall to be playable.

Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Payne Stewart may have started another controversy at the PGA Championship on Tuesday.

"If the PGA knew the course wasn't good enough without growing rough like this, they should have taken it to a different golf course," Stewart said.

The defending champion took the PGA to task — not over the racial controversy that has caused such a furor in the last month — but over the deep, tough bermuda rough.

"Almost unplayable," he said. "I'm very disappointed with the way the PGA set up the golf course. It's like there were red lines down both sides of the fairway; like it's a hazard any time you're out of the fairway.

"You can't chip out of it — it's more of a chop," Stewart said after a practice round at Shoal Creek, the previously all-white club that became the center of a controversy over the membership policies of clubs hosting professional tournaments.

That situation apparently was resolved with the inclusion of a black businessman as an honorary member at Shoal Creek and actions by the PGA, PGA Tour and U.S. Golf Association to avoid taking their tournaments to clubs that have exclusionary membership practices.

The Southern Christian Leadership Council abandoned plans to picket the tournament. No protesters or demonstrators were in evidence during the first full practice round on Tuesday.

But Stewart, apparently unwittingly, may have revived some ill will with an off-hand remark during a press conference.

"I don't want to talk about it," he responded to a question. Then he talked about it.

"It's none of my business. I play golf for a living. I think the players probably are making more jokes about it than anything else," he said.

U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin declined comment.

"It's done," Australian Greg Norman said. "Everybody is happy with the decision. I don't really want to comment."

He didn't hesitate to talk about the rough, however. And, generally, he agreed with Stewart.

"You better keep it on the short stuff. No question about it. If you miss a fairway you're going to make bogey 80 percent of the time," he said.

While Irwin agreed that the rough is tough and the course extremely difficult, he applauded the situation.

"It tends to eliminate those of us who are not playing well and rewards those of us who are," he said. "I'd rather see too much rough than not enough."

Stewart, a winner of two American tournaments this season and runner-up to Nick Faldo in the recent British Open, said the condition of the course will penalize the fans.

"They're the ones I'm thinking about," he said. "We're supposed to be the great players. The fans come out to see us manufacture great shots from the rough. There's no option here. Give us the opportunity to make the great shots. You can't do it from this stuff.

"There's no finesse involved. You get it in this stuff and you have to get on top of it to see to even see the ball. It's going to be a tough tournament for the marshals. They're going to have trouble finding the ball in the rough."

Stewart, however, said he was confident of his ability to handle the situation.

"I'm the only one with a chance to repeat," he said. "I think the golf course fits my game. I'm probably as patient as anybody. I can back off. I feel I'm playing pretty well right now. I'm putting well. And I can chop it with anybody."

Norman, however, pointed to Faldo, the Englishman who won the Masters and British Open, as a favorite.

"Nick's a fairly conservative player, and he's a very good driver. He doesn't get in the rough, and that's a critical consideration this week," Norman said.

That description also fits Tom Kite, the veteran who won in Memphis last week and became the first player to go over $6 million in career earnings.

Some other major figures in the 150-player field include Paul Azinger, Curtis Strange, Mark Calcavecchia, Seve Ballesteros of Spain, Ian Woosnam of Wales and Wayne Levi, the only three-time winner on the American tour this year.

Colts knew of Dickerson injury

Associated Press

ANDERSON, Ind. — The hamstring injury that caused Eric Dickerson to fail a physical was not a complete surprise to the Indianapolis Colts, Coach Ron Meyer said Tuesday.

"We were aware that he had strained the left hamstring," Meyer said during his daily news conference.

The six-time Pro Bowl running back reported the injury in a telephone call to the team's trainer in early June, the coach said.

But Meyer added that the club assumed the problem had been healed when Dickerson said last week that he was ready to play football.

Dickerson, who ended an 11-day boycott of training camp on Monday, failed a physical Monday when his left hamstring tested 40 percent weaker than his right. He will seek rehabilitation in Houston.

"He'll be in tonight," Tom Williams of the Williams Rehabiliation Clinic and Sports Center in Houston said Tuesday. "I talked with him today. He said he'd be at our clinic this evening and we'll start evaluating and working on his rehabiliation in the morning."

Tribe's four-run eighth deals 8-4 loss to Rangers

Associated Press

Brook Jacoby, Sandy Alomar and Alex Cole hit RBI doubles during a four-run eighth inning as the Cleveland Indians beat the Texas Rangers 8-4 Tuesday night.

Cleveland hit a season-high six doubles in the game, including two by Cole. Rookie Colby Ward (1-0) got his first major-league victory, striking out the only batter he faced, Mike Stanley, in the eighth inning. Doug Jones finished with a scoreless ninth.

Loser Kevin Brown (12-8) was victimized by three early unearned runs although the Rangers rallied to tie the game 4-4 in the sixth.

Candy Maldonado started the Cleveland eighth with an infield hit and was sacrificed to second. Jacoby's double broke the tie and, after Cory Snyder was walked intentionally, Alomar doubled home another run and Tom Brookens hit a pop-up that shortstop Gary Green caught running toward center field, letting Snyder tag and score. Cole doubled Alomar home, chasing Brown.

Texas took a 2-0 lead against Tom Candiotti in the fourth on Ruben Sierra's two-run homer, his 13th of the season but his first in 24 games. Sierra doubled in the second inning, extending his hitting streak to a career-high 15 games.

Cleveland came back in the bottom of the fourth with three runs, aided by three Texas errors, including two on one play by second baseman Julio Franco.

Cole led off with a grounder through the legs of third baseman Jeff Huson for an error. One out later, Dion James hit a sharp grounder that Franco first bobbled, then threw wildly trying for a force at second. Cole scored and James went to second. He scored on Chris James' double and Jacoby followed with an RBI single.

Cleveland made it 4-2 in the fifth on Cole's double and a single by Dion James, who has a career-high 12-game hitting streak.

The Rangers tied it in the sixth on an RBI single by Rafael Palmeiro and Sierra's sacrifice fly.

Blue Jays 11, Tigers 5

Jimmy Key shut out Detroit for seven innings and John Olerud drove in three runs with a homer and sacrifice fly, powering the Toronto Blue Jays to a victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Loser Jack Morris (9-14) lasted three-plus innings, yielding eight runs and seven hits. Alan Trammell, Cecil Fielder and Gary Ward hit consecutive home runs to start the Tigers' ninth. It was Fielder's 35th.

Pat Borders' sacrifice fly and Glenallen Hill's two-run double to give Toronto a 3-0 lead in the second inning. Fred McGriff started the inning with a double and took third on Olerud's groundout. Rance Mulliniks walked and Manny Lee followed Borders' sacrifice fly with a single before Hill doubled.

Olerud hit a two-out homer, his 13th, in the third with Kelly Gruber aboard via a single. That made it 5-0 and the Blue Jays added four runs in the fourth despite only two hits.

Brewers 5, Twins 3

Jaime Navarro pitched six perfect innings, blew a 3-0 lead in the seventh but picked up the victory when Robin Yount hit a tie-breaking double in the eighth as the Brewers beat the Twins.

Navarro (3-3) breezed through the first 18 batters with nothing really close to a hit before Nelson Liriano hit a ground ball up the middle that second baseman Jim Gantner gloved but had no play. Randy Bush followed with his fifth homer and one out later, Gary Gaetti tripled and scored the tying run on Kent Hrbek's sacrifice fly.

The uprising ended a string of 24 scoreless innings by the Twins.

But with one out in the eighth, Edgar Diaz singled and scored on Yount's two-out double. Yount scored on a single by Gary Sheffield.

The Brewers took a 2-0 lead on Rob Deer's 19th homer in the second inning following Dave Parker's single. A double by Diaz and Paul Molitor's single made it 3-0 in the sixth.

Navarro, who has shuttled back and forth between Milwaukee and the minors all season, is in his third stint with the Brewers. Since being recalled on July 4, he compiled a 1.59 ERA in nine relief appearances before starting against Chicago last Thursday.

White Sox 5, Royals 3

Alex Fernandez, who has gone from college ball to the majors in the last two months, got his first victory and Sammy Sosa and Scott Fletcher drove in two runs apiece as the Chicago White Sox rallied to beat the Kansas City Royals.

Fernandez (1-0), who missed out on a victory in his debut when the White Sox bullpen blew a lead in the eighth inning, gave up three runs and nine hits in six innings.

The Royals loaded the bases in the first inning on singles by Jim Eisenreich and George Brett and a walk to Gerald Perry and took a 1-0 lead when Fernandez walked Mike Macfarlane.

Bill Pecota's double scored Brian McRae in the second inning but Pete Filson (0-3) couldn't hold it although he did not give up a hit until Ozzie Guillen's two-out double in the fifth.

McRae, son of former Kansas City standout Hal McRae, tripled and scored in his first major league at-bat and hit an RBI single in the sixth. McRae, whose father was one of the most popular players in Royals history, got a standing ovation from the crowd.

Astros shrink slumping Giants

Associated Press

Mark Portugal allowed five hits in 7 1-3 innings and had a season-high eight strikeouts, leading Houston to a 4-0 victory over slumping San Francisco and extending the Astros' winning streak to six games.

Portugal (5-9) struck out four of the first six batters he faced as he improved his career record against the Giants to 5-0. The shutout was the first pitched against San Francisco in 83 games since a 7-0 loss to Montreal on April 6.

San Francisco lost its third straight game and fell six games behind NL West-leading Cincinnati, which beat Los Angeles 1-0.

The Giants, trailing 1-0, had their best chance to score in the top of eighth when Terry Kennedy and Dave Anderson led off with singles to put runners on first and third. But Portugal got Gary Carter to fly to shallow left, reliever Juan Agosto got Brett Butler on a short fly to left and Dave Smith retired Robby Thompson to end the threat.

Smith finished up for his 19th save and the Astros added some insurance in the bottom of the eighth against Steve Bedrosian and Atlee Hammker on a bases-loaded passed ball by Carter, Ken Caminiti's RBI single and a run-scoring wild pitch by Hammker.

Giants starter John Burkett (10-4) retired the first nine Astros until Eric Yelding led off the fourth with a single to center field.

Reds 1, Dodgers 0

Tom Browning won a pitcher's duel with rookie Jim Neidlinger and the Cincinnati Reds beat the Los Angeles Dodgers on a wild pitch by reliever Tim Crews in the eighth inning.

Billy Hatcher reached base on an error by Alfredo Griffin and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Browning (11-6). With two out, Barry Larkin walked. Neidlinger (0-1) went to 2-0 on Paul O'Neill, who had Cincinnati's only two hits, before Ray Searage came on to finish the walk after throwing a wild pitch.

With the bases loaded, Crews came on to pitch to Chris Sabo. After getting ahead 0-2, Crews threw a pitch that bounced to the backstop, scoring Hatcher to give Cincinnati only its fourth victory in 15 games. Los Angeles has lost five of its last seven.

Neidlinger pitched 7 2-3 innings, striking out six and walking two. Browning gave up eight hits, struck out five and walked two in eight innings. Randy Myers pitched the ninth for his 22nd save.

Padres 7, Braves 2

Padres 11, Braves 9

Mike Pagliarulo's two-run single capped a five-run fifth inning as the San Diego Padres held off the Atlanta Braves 11-9 to complete a doubleheader sweep.

The Padres won the first game 7-2 as Andy Benes scattered eight hits over eight innings.

San Diego's sweep came despite three solo home runs by Dave Justice, playing right field in Atlanta's first home game since the trade of Dale Murphy. Justice hit his ninth homer of the season off Benes (8-8) and added two more against in the nightcap against Eric Show (3-8). Justice also had a pair of RBI singles in the second game.

The surging Padres now have won 12 of their last 16 games while the Braves have dropped seven in a row and 12 of 13. Prior to their hot streak, the Padres had lost 11 of 12 games.

Cubs 5, Cardinals 3

A two-run homer by Ryne Sandberg, only his second since the All-Star break, gave the surging Chicago Cubs a victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

With one out in the seventh inning, Jerome Walton reached first when third baseman Terry Pendleton erred on his grounder. Sandberg followed with his 26th homer, off reliever Scott Terry (1-6), to make a winner of reliever Paul Assenmacher (4-2).

Mitch Williams got the final two outs for his 13th save as the Cubs won for the fourth straight time and 16th in 21 games. The victory ended the Cardinals' three-game winning streak.

Pirates 4, Expos 3

Jay Bell's sacrifice fly after Jose Lind's leadoff double in the 12th inning gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a victory over Montreal, the Expos' season-high sixth straight loss.

Mark Ross (1-0) pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the top of the inning for his first major-league victory since Sept. 1, 1984. Ross, called up earlier in the day from Buffalo, has a 2-2 career record in six seasons.

Lind doubled to left to start the 12th off Dale Mohorcic (1-2), the Expos' fifth pitcher. Mike LaValliere bunted Lind to third and Sid Bream, who hit a go-ahead homer in the eighth, was intentionally walked.

Bell then hit a long drive to right to score Lind standing up as the Pirates won for the sixth time in seven games and the Expos lost for the ninth time in 10 games.

Phillies 9, Mets 0

Rookie Jose DeJesus allowed two hits in the first shutout and complete game of his career, and the Philadelphia Phillies beat Frank Viola to hand the New York Mets their fourth straight loss.

DeJesus (3-3) won for the third time in his last four decisions. He struck out four and walked two, giving up a single to Daryl Boston in the second inning and a single to Darryl Strawberry in the seventh.

Check Those Belts And Hoses!
Question: Which two relatively inexpensive links in your powertrain chain are capable of crippling even the most powerful car or truck? Answer: engine drive belts and coolant hoses. A broken belt can mean a lame water pump, a loss of power steering and power brakes, and/or a complete electrical system shutdown that leads to a dead battery. A split or broken radiator hose can be even worse—any engine might be ruined if it's run without coolant for long. So remember: Always make sure your belts and hoses are in good condition—and always carry some spares!

COLTS: Dickerson should be ready for regular season

From 1D

Williams said the clinic had worked with Dickerson during the off-season on the right hamstring that he injured last season, but had done no work with the left hamstring. Dickerson apparently injured it during his own off-season workouts.

"We will have to determine how strained it is and go from there. We can't give an accurate evaluation until Kim Creech, our physical therapist, and Kevin Gill, our chief athletic trainer, have seen Eric," Williams said.

Earlier Tuesday, General Manager Jim Irsay said he estimated the injury would take one to three weeks to rehabilitate. Dickerson should be ready to play in the Sept. 9 season-opener at Buffalo.

"That really is in Eric's hands," Meyer said of the rehabiliation.

ENGLISH: Agent wanted move

From 1D

build his 1990-91 team around the versatile, 6-9½ forward.

"It would have taken a large amount of money to sign Perkins, but if you listen to Derek Harper and Rolando Blackman, they knew how important he is, because they played everyday with him," Adubato said.

Adubato also says Perkins' agent wanted him to play for a different team, and that made it difficult.

"There had to be something to say about championship banners hanging in your gym, and the opportunity to play with Magic (Johnson)," Adubato said.

Another factor probably was that Perkins was a college roommate of Lakers starting forward James Worthy, Adubato said.

"We are frightened because not only have we lost Sam, we lost him to the Los Angeles Lakers, which gives them a tremendous front line, the best in the league."

Dallas traded away its first-round draft picks this year to acquire two other front-line players, guard Fat Lever from Denver and forward Rodney McCray from Sacramento.

"We helped ourselves, but it looks like the rich are getting richer here," Adubato said of the Lakers. "With Perkins gone, things are different for us, and we are just going to have to explore every opportunity."

"The versatility of Sam, his ability to be our best defensive player, was going to help us. Fortunately, Rodney has been on the first team all-NBA defensive team, and so has Fat Lever. We're just going to have to work a little harder now and be happy that we at least had enough foresight to help ourselves with those two players," Adubato said.

Major question marks for the Mavericks are center James Donaldson, hampered in the past two years by ailing knees, to stay healthy, and forward Roy Tarpley.

Agee, Johnston duel for Cowboys' fullback job

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Fullbacks Daryl Johnston and Tommie Agee are locked in the most competitive position battle in camp, Dallas Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson said Tuesday.

Johnston, a second-round draft pick from Syracuse University entering his second season, opened camp as an almost sure starter, but has been slowed by a shoulder injury.

That gave an opening to Agee, a Plan B free agent with only two NFL carries to his credit at stops in Seattle and Kansas City. Agee played collegiately at Auburn.

Johnson has praised Agee's ability as a blocker and inside runner, but Johnston still was listed as the starter Tuesday on Johnson's first depth chart.

The Cowboys open their exhibition season Saturday night against the San Diego Chargers at Jack Murphy Stadium.

"It's hard to gauge that battle because Johnston's had an injury that has slowed him down," Johnson said. "Daryl is a very consistent player and a very productive player.

"But Agee has really been impressive in camp. The deciding factor is what happens in the preseason games. (But) it's close because of Agee's performance."

Johnson's first depth chart after three weeks of camp shows four Plan B acquisitions are first-team on offense, none on defense. The Cowboys signed a league-high 16 Plan B free agents during the offseason.

Tight end Jay Novacek, right guard Tony Slaton and wide receivers Dennis McKinnon and Rod Harris are Plan B pickups who are scheduled to start against the Chargers.

McKinnon and Harris will retain the positions until last year's starters, Michael Irvin and Kelvin Martin, have made complete recoveries from serious knee injuries, Johnson indicated.

Irvin and Martin will be held out of the San Diego exhibition, but Johnson said he expects both to play in the second preseason game against the Los Angeles Raiders.

Johnson said the early depth chart should not be taken too seriously. "Nothing's written in stone," Johnson said. "There'll be a lot of changes in the depth chart in the next few weeks."

In other training camp news at St. Edward's University, Johnson said he made telephone contact with holdout linebacker Jesse Solomon on Monday and that Solomon said he was anxious to get to camp.

The two sides remain far apart, however, as Solomon's holdout reached its 17th day on Tuesday.

"The only problem is that he wants a raise bigger than we're offering," Johnson said.

Solomon, acquired last year from the Minnesota Vikings in the Herschel Walker trade, is seeking a 3-year deal worth a reported $2.65 million. The Cowboys are said to be offering a 3-year package worth $1.4 million.

Solomon said he called the Cowboys on Monday and talked briefly with Bob Ackles, the Cowboys' chief negotiator. Solomon said he repeated his pay-me-or-trade-me request and then talked to Johnson.

"He (Johnson) told me he under no circumstances would he trade me," Solomon said. "And I told him under no circumstances was I going to come in for the money they're offering.

"We're at a standstill."

But Solomon added, "I'm optimistic. Jimmy wants to win in the worst way. He wants his players in working together."

Peete to start

Associated Press

Rodney Peete and Bob Gagliano are fighting for the Lions' quarterback job, Stump Mitchell is fighting for any job and Mike Ditka is trying not to fight at all.

Camps

Detroit coach Wayne Fontes announced Tuesday that Peete will be his starting quarterback for Thursday's exhibition opener in Houston.

"Rodney has been in camp since Day 1 and he's playing very well," Fontes said. "His knees are fine and I think he deserves to start the first game.

"I want to get them all in the game. How long they play will depend on how the game goes."

Gagliano missed the first week of camp because he was without a contract, but both quarterbacks know the job is still wide open and neither is placing much importance on who starts the first exhibition game.

Cardinals

Mitchell was released by Phoenix "with Stump's best interests in mind," general manager Larry Wilson announced Tuesday.

The 31-year-old running back is attempting to come back from a severe left knee injury last September. He had been with the Cardinals nine years and was the team's all-time leader in combined yardage and kickoff returns.

Bears

Offensive coordinator Greg Landry said that he and Ditka will try to avoid repeating last season's arguments over play-calling.

"What we both try to do this year is ... communicate more during the week so we both understand what we're trying to accomplish on Sunday," Landry told reporters.

"I don't want him not coming up to me. He's got a great mind."

Their disagreement over play selection came to a head last season in Game 8 against the Los Angeles Rams when Ditka grabbed the game plan away from Landry.

Steelers

Coach Chuck Noll said the Steelers' top three draft choices have missed too much training camp to contribute this season and shouldn't even bother signing contracts.

Noll said the team's management "is screwed up if they pay them all kinds of money and they can't help you now." He said he really doesn't want tight end Eric Green, quarterback Neil O'Donnell and defensive tackle Craig Veasey on his team.

"These people have missed training camp as far as I'm concerned. They're going to have trouble" when they do sign, Noll said. "I'd just as soon not see them sign."

Browns

Offensive tackle Rickey Bolden said he's retiring to become a minister.

"I feel like a thousand pounds has been lifted off my shoulders," said Bolden, who will enter the Ashland Theological Seminary in Ashland, Ohio.

"Some of the guys on the team ask how I can walk away from all that money. I'm not going to let money make my decisions. One guy said, 'God doesn't pay the rent.' And I said, 'Well, the God I serve will provide."

Redskins

Joe Gibbs isn't giving free agent Alvoid Mays a bum rap.

"Along with the other defensive backs, I think Alvoid has had a good camp so far," Gibbs said. "Alvoid is one of the guys who is working hard. When you start talking about names, though, it's still too early."

When the Houston Oilers, who picked Mays in the eighth round in 1989, cut him last preseason, Mays went home to Palmetto, Fla. to cut rap records.

Broncos

Tight end Clarence Kay pulled his left hamstring as Denver practiced in pads for the first time since returning from Tokyo.

The severity of Kay's injury wasn't immediately known, but his thigh was wrapped and he was limping noticeably.

Prices rising

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices moved higher again Tuesday as prospects of curtailed supplies from the Middle East triggered frantic trading amid market rumors.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, the September contract for West Texas Intermediate climbed 26 cents to settle at $28.31 a 42-gallon barrel.

It was the highest level for the the benchmark grade of U.S. crude since Dec. 6, 1985, when the price reached $28.74 per barrel, the Merc said.

"It's hard to envision a more bullish scenario than what we have now — the potential that two of the largest producers in the Persian Gulf could go to war," said Andrew Lebow, an energy futures analyst with E.D.F. Man International Futures Inc.

Lebow said unconfirmed rumors — including ones that Iraq had invaded Saudi Arabia — drove the market up and down fitfully.

The market opened calmer than expected on word that Iraqi leader Sadaam Husein would allowe foreigners in Kuwait and Iraq to leave, a statement that calmed the markets.

Also bearish for the market was a report that Assistant U.S. Energy Secretary John Easton told Congress the government is prepared to use its Strategic Petroleum Reserve in the event of a severe supply interruption.

Among other products, natural gas settled down 1.11 cents to $1.447 per million British thermal units.

Dollar higher

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar ended higher Tuesday against all major currencies except the German mark, as traders kept a close watch on the Persian Gulf crisis and its effect on interest rates.

Gold prices were mixed.

On the New York Commodity Exchange, gold bullion for current delivery settled at $384.50 a troy ounce, down 20 cents from Monday.

In fact, interest rates in the public bond markets have risen sharply in recent days on inflation fears.

In Tokyo, where global trading begins, the dollar closed up 150.60 Japanese yen from 149.50 yen Monday.

The dollar was mixed against the British pound compared to Monday. Sterling bought $1.8765 in London, up from $1.8725, and $1.8715 in New York, down from $1.8725.

Dollar rates in Europe: 1.5763 West German marks; 1.3315 Swiss francs; 5.2295 French francs; 1.7785 Dutch guilders; 1,155.37 Italian lire, and 1.1495 Canadian dollars.

Gold rose in London to $383.25 an ounce from $382.50 late Monday.

T-bills fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities fell at auction to their lowest level in about two years.

The Treasury Department sold $9.2 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 7.23 percent, down from 7.50 percent last week. Another $9.2 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 7.15 percent.

Oil prices show need to control budget

■ Experts say the current rise in oil prices makes the need to control future budget deficits more urgent.

By Peter Passell
N.Y. Times News Service

With the American economy seemingly headed for recession and the exploding cost of imported oil about to push it over the edge, analysts widely agree that cutting the budget deficit this year no longer makes sense. But by the same token, they argue, the case for making a credible deal now on future deficit reduction is more compelling than ever.

The resulting psychological lift would make it far easier for the Federal Reserve to fight the economic downturn without touching off a self-fulfilling inflationary panic.

Under the threat of automatic budget cuts, White House and congressional negotiators have been tugging delicately at the Gordian knot of deficit reduction since President Bush abandoned his no-tax stance.

And in recent weeks negotiators seemed to be edging toward agreement on a combination of excise taxes on energy and income levies on the affluent.

But from the beginning of the talks the prospect that higher taxes or lower spending would weaken an already anemic economy has tempered enthusiasm for deficit reduction.

Last week's report of an unexpected surge in unemployment further increased fears of a recession in the making.

And for many erstwhile deficit fighters, the run-up in oil prices since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait was the last straw.

An extra penny extracted at the pump costs consumers about $2.5 billion annually. And with imports supplying half of American consumption, a $10-a-barrel increase would reduce domestic purchasing power by about $30 billion annually.

President Saddam Hussein of Iraq has thus already imposed a heavy tax on Americans, the argument goes; why tax them twice?

Why indeed, argues David Hale, an economist at Kemper Financial Services. What he calls a "cyclical cul-de-sac" has probably already deteriorated into an old-fashioned recession. And even a

Senator finds legal basis to cancel bailout

By Dave Skidmore

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, says he thinks a subcommittee he chairs has established the legal basis to overturn a 1988 savings and loan bailout he describes as "very sweet."

Fail

Arizona insurance executive James M. Fail acknowledged on Monday there were inaccuracies and omissions in disclosure statements he signed before acquiring 15 failed thrifts, now operating under the name Bluebonnet Savings Bank, Dallas.

One of the penalties for improper disclosure is removal as S&L owner.

"I believe there is enough to reopen and renegotiate the contract. The real issue is can we save the taxpayers millions and possibly billions of dollars. I believe the answer is yes," Metzenbaum told reporters after an all-day session of his Judiciary subcommittee on antitrust.

Fail acknowledged omissions in documents filed initially with the Federal Home Loan Bank Board concerning fraud allegations leveled against him in 1976 in Alabama. However, he said that before the bailout deal was signed on Dec. 22, 1988, he fully disclosed the relevant details.

Former senior regulators who testified to the subcommittee previously said they did not know all of the details of the fraud allegations and that if they had, Fail would have been disqualified.

Metzenbaum said the Bluebonnet deal and other bailouts completed in a headlong rush at the end of 1988 were "very sweet," virtually assuring S&L acquirers a profit from generous government subsidies.

"The regulators couldn't possibly have known what they were doing in the hustle and bustle," he said.

In the Bluebonnet transaction, Metzenbaum is scrutinizing the role of GOP lobbyist Robert Thompson, who represented Fail in negotiations with regulators. Thompson was an aide to President Bush when he served as vice president.

Thompson, who had been fighting the panel's subpoena, appeared briefly at the hearing, delivered documents and read a prepared statement. He is scheduled to be questioned by the panel Sept. 11.

The lobbyist continues to dispute the subcommittee's jurisdiction, but said, "I do not want to give any one any excuse to say that my absence from these proceedings indicates I have something to

Rising interest rates threaten home sales

■ An upturn in home sales are being threatened by rising interest rates resulting from the Iraqi invation of Kuwait.

By John D. McClain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sluggish home sales that had picked up lately as mortgage rates fell are under a new threat from rising interest rates resulting from the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, analysts said Tuesday.

"The single factor that affects housing nationally is mortgage financing," said John A. Tuccillo, chief economist with the National Association of Realtors.

Tuccillo and other economists said Tuesday that a worldwide embargo on oil from Iraq and occupied Kuwait will result in price increases for most goods, including a likely rise in mortgage rates of .25 to .50 percentage points in the near term.

"If they go up .50 now and the thing is resolved in a few weeks, they will go down .50 and will continue going down," Tuccillo contended. "If the crisis lingers on ... mortgage rates are going to go up and they'll stay up and housing's going to be in pretty bad shape."

Robert Van Order, chief economist with the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp., or Freddie Mac, said a .25 percentage point increase in rates would result in an additional mortgage payment of $25 a month on a $100,000 house.

According to weekly surveys by Freddie Mac, the average cost fixed-rate, 30-year mortgage fell from its 1990 peak of 10.67 percent in May to 9.84 percent last Friday. The rates do not include add-on fees known as oints.

Realtors President Norman D. Flynn said that when mortgage rates began falling in May, buyers resumed house hunting, particularly in areas with relatively affordable prices.

As a result, the Commerce Department reported gains in new home sales during May and June after five consecutive monthly declines.

And the Realtors said sales of existing homes, which represent about 80 percent of the housing market, posted a 1.2 percent increase in June. It was their first advance in seven months.

But the decline in existing home sales in April and May resulted in a 0.5 percent drop in overall resales during the second quarter compared to the same period of 1989, the Realtors said Tuesday.

According to their most recent survey, second-quarter resales totaled a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.68 million units, compared to 3.70 million units during the April-June period of last year. Sales dropped 2.7 percent from the first quarter to the second.

By region, sales were off 14.5 percent to 650,000 units at an annual rate in the Northeast and 3.1 percent to 620,000 units in the West. Sales gained 4.4 percent to 1.41 million units in the South and 4.2 percent to 990,000 units in the Midwest.

BAILIE GRIFFITH FIRESTONE has closed its store in Dellwood Plaza and now has one location, at 709 N. Big Spring.

"Our lease was up (at Dellwood Mall), and it was held by a New York bank that wanted to triple the lease and wouldn't make major repairs," explained Firestone Manager Les Strickland.

"We had a good business and didn't want to close," he added.

The company has wanted to build a new store on north Midkiff across from Midland Park Mall, but has not been able to secure zoning changes. Strickland said Firestone would continue to wait and hope zoning changes would be made in the near future.

Bush urged to stop 'price gauging'

By Steven Komarow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats charged Tuesday that oil companies are engaging in price-gouging and exhorted President Bush to stop it.

"Someone is making a killing," Sen. John Kerry exclaimed, at one of three hastily arranged public hearings on sharp increases in American fuel prices following Iraq's occupation of Kuwait.

Charles J. Di Bona, president of the American Petroleum Institute, vehemently denied the accusation. Critics of the oil industry are taking "a naive, one-sided view of how markets work," he said.

U.S. oil companies had no choice but to pass on to consumers the higher cost of oil on the world market, Di Bona maintained, saying prices would drop if world prices fall.

But angry members of Congress said Bush should jawbone industry leaders for price relief — in much the same way President John F. Kennedy did with the steel industry.

Bush also was urged to tap the government's crude oil reserve. The aim would be to cushion American consumers against further economic repercussions from Mideast hostilities.

Oil companies have raised gasoline prices by as much as 25 cents a gallon since Iraqi President Saddam Hussein sent his forces into neighboring Kuwait last week. Company executives said their prices are the result of increases in crude oil costs from $16 a barrel in July to $27 after the invasion.

The American Automobile Association reported Tuesday that prices for self-service unleaded gas went up an average of 1.5 cents per gallon overnight and have averaged 12.6 cents higher than they were Aug. 1. The average is now $1.20 per gallon, the highest since 1985, said the AAA, which checked 1,400 service stations nationwide.

Tuesday's spate of hearings was an unusual occurrence during a congressional recess. But lawmakers were anxious to vent constituents' anger over price hikes. They were joined in this high-profile public interrogation by officials of state and local governments and consumer groups.

Despite oil industry denials of price-gouging, several witnesses maintained, the evidence was otherwise. They complained that oil companies are quick to pass on price increases but slow to pass along any savings.

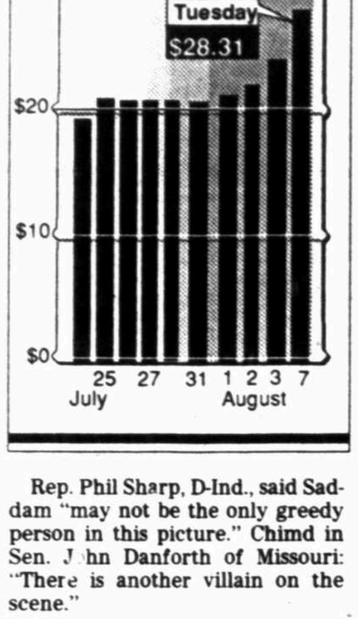
"The American public is angry. It's mad as hell. They have a sense they are being held hostage to you, the oil companies," said Sen. Richard Bryan, D-Nev.

The industry executives were summoned a day after the Justice Department pledged it would look into the soaring fuel prices. Anti-competitive pricing activities will be aggressively prosecuted, it said.

But that did not satisfy angry congressmen.

"In the last week, American consumers have been ripped off on a massive scale," Sen. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., complained to witnesses appearing before a Senate Commerce consumer subcommittee.

Prices for West Texas Intermediate continue to increase on the New York Stock Exchange.



Rep. Phil Sharp, D-Ind., said Saddam "may not be the only greedy person in this picture." Chimd in Sen. John Danforth of Missouri: "There is another villain on the scene."

History indicates price hikes unjustified

By BERNARD D. KAPLAN
Hearst News Service

PARIS – The big spurt in world oil prices and the economic handwringing resulting from it are both unwarranted, according to leading economists here.

Jacques Seguin, managing director of Nord-Sud Export, a French consulting group, charged Tuesday that world oil markets have been dealt a "deliberate dose of panic."

The actual balance of petroleum supplies measured against demand remains, even now, remarkably stable and doesn't justify the leap in prices, Seguin insisted.

"World stocks have never been bigger," he said. "The main industrialized nations have more than 150 days of net oil reserves."

In addition, according to other industry sources, there are three to five weeks supply "at sea," that is, en route to world markets but not yet included in the reserve figures.

The Paris-based Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development said Tuesday that government-owned oil reserves of the 24 OECD member countries, including the United States, are 470 million metric tons, the highest on record.

The international embargo imposed Monday by the United Nations on Iraq and occupied Kuwait will deprive the world of 4.5 million barrels of oil a day, industry sources estimate.

But London oil analyst Dan Smith said about 3 million of that amount "could be made up by the unused capacity of the other Gulf producers."

hide."

Thompson said his representation of Fail "followed all rules of propriety" and "not one word has been uttered, not one fact has been disclosed, that suggests I did anything improper."

He said he was promised 2 percent of Fail's profits in the deal but has received nothing because Bluebonnet has yet to pay a stock dividend. Fail disputes him, saying he knew that would be an improper arrangement under federal regulations.

In the Alabama case, Fail was indicted on fraud charges, which were subsequently dismissed, and a company he controlled, United Security Holding Co., pleaded guilty to fraud and paid a $5,000 fine. As part of the settlement, Fail agreed not to conduct insurance business in Alabama.

Fail said he reported the details in a Dec. 18 letter to Thomas Lykos, then in charge of the bank board's bailout program in the Southwest. Fail said that on Dec. 19 he sent an attorney to New York to further discuss the case.

No time limit set on redeeming U.S. bonds

By Bill Doyle

Q. In cleaning out my safe deposit box, I discovered three $25 War Bonds — Series E, U.S. Savings Bonds. Two were issued in 1942, the other in 1945, and are due in 10 years.

I had my local bank send the bonds to the district Federal Reserve Bank. They returned them, saying the bonds were too old to be redeemed. I wrote a letter, asking why I don't get back at least the money I paid. They never answered. Can you tell me why?

Doyle

A. There is something very wrong here. Except for newly issued Series EE bonds, which cannot be redeemed for six months, all series of U.S. Savings bonds can be redeemed — regardless of their age.

Assuming your local bank is a U.S. Savings Bond paying agent, as virtuality all banks and savings and loan associations are, that bank is authorized to cash your bonds. Return to your bank and speak to an officer and/or the person in charge of savings bonds.

Now for some good news. You will receive much more than the $18.75 you paid for each $25 face value bond. E bonds were sold at 75 percent of face value and were worth full face value on their scheduled maturity dates. But all savings bonds were granted extended maturity periods. They continue to accrue interest right up to the end of their final extended maturity.

Your bonds have matured because E bonds issued in November 1965 and earlier reach final maturity in 40 years. E bonds issued from December 1965 through June 1980 finally mature in 30 years, as do all EE bonds, H bonds and U.S. Savings Notes. HH bonds reach final maturity in 20 years.

Depending on the month of issue, each of your bonds now is worth more than $90. The people at your bank can provide the exact number by looking it up in the Tables of Redemption Values booklet they receive from the U.S. Treasury Department.

You should have cashed in each E bond when it became 40 years old and reached final maturity. It makes no sense to keep them after they have stopped accruing interest.

Q. I purchased EE bonds in August 1986 at an interest rate of 7.5 percent. If I hold these bonds past August 1996, will they continue to accrue interest at the 7.5 percent annual rate?

A. Not unless interest rates in general shoot up. After 10 years, the guaranteed interest on your EEs will drop to 6 percent, because those bonds will enter an extended maturity period.

EEs issued from November 1982 through October 1986 accrue interest at a guaranteed rate of 7.5 percent during their 10-year initial maturity period. However, the guaranteed interest on all savings bonds entering an extended maturity period after October 1986 falls to 6 percent.

Along with all EEs, Es and savings notes that have not reached final maturity, you bonds will be eligible for the variable "market-based" rate after you hold them for five years. That rate, which changes every May 1 and November 1, is 85 percent of the interest our government pays on five-year U.S. Treasury securities.

The market-based rate now is 7.01 percent. It usually has been higher than 6 percent, but seldom above 7.5 percent.

Q. Can I avoid paying income tax on the E and EE bonds I own by giving them to my children or by transferring the value of these bonds to the "new" bonds to be used from the children's college education?

A. There is no legitimate way to transfer the federal income tax liability on U.S. Savings Bonds from one living person to another. You'll be stuck for that when you redeem your bonds.

The complicated deal on college bonds applies strictly to EE bonds purchased after January 1, 1990, by a parent 24 years old or older. If the bonds are redeemed to pay most post-secondary education costs, the accrued interest escapes income tax. To get this break, total household adjusted gross income must be under $60,000 for parents filing a joint income tax return or $40,000 for single filers.

PRICES: Add pessimism to economy

modest move toward fiscal constraint, magnified by consumer caution, could push it into deep decline.

Fred Bergsten, director of the Institute for International Economics, offers another reason for increased pessimism. The only bright spot in the economy in recent months, he notes, has been the growth in exports to the booming economies of West Germany and Japan. Higher prices for economies that remain heavily dependent on imported oil could easily divert foreign enthusiasm for buying American.

Robert Reischauer, the director of the Congressional Budget Office, is not quite ready to join the doom-and-gloom school. But he does acknowledge that "a sustained oil price increase" could bring growth to a halt.

And he agrees with Hale that "the case for changing the structural deficit is stronger than ever."

It is not hard to see why. The immediate prospects for the American economy, most analysts say, turn on the monetary stance of the Federal Reserve Board and its chairman, Alan Greenspan.

With production running well below capacity, the Fed might be expected to ease credit, encouraging businesses to invest and consumers to buy houses and cars. But in spite of encouragement from the Bush administration, the Fed has been reluctant to loosen the money spigot.

Inflation, Greenspan publicly argued, remained a greater threat to the economy than recession.

Last week's depressing unemployment statistics, coupled with the reduction in purchasing power associated with higher oil prices, might be expected to tilt the Fed toward easier money.

But the higher energy prices also mean more inflation. Fed officials worry that accommodation of the oil shock — injecting cash into the financial system to replace the purchasing power lost to imports — would lead business and labor to conclude that the higher inflation would be tolerated indefinitely.

Just such a change in expectations after the 1974-75 oil shock led to double-digit inflation.

Cookbook makes rib-sticking addition

By Carrie White
N.Y. Times News Service

If this cookbook's author and title look remotely familiar, there's good reason. "Barbecued Ribs, Smoked Butts and Other Great Feeds" was originally published by Jeanne Voltz under the title "Barbecued Ribs and Other Great Feeds." That was five years ago.

The 1990 edition has been revised and expanded by 60 recipes, and a chapter on smoking foods has been added.

The new edition has a definite '50s feel from its cover jacket to its graphics, black-and-white snapshots and period food labels sprinkled throughout.

Making the cookbook easy to read are the off-white pages embossed with black and red type. You really can't believe how the print stands out and how attractive and readable it makes the book.

But to the meat of the matter — the recipes.

I GUESS I NEVER realized just how many foods you can cook on the grill. Most of those given in this book are accessible with uncomplicated recipes and ingredients. But the flavors promise to be subtly delicious as hinted by Voltz in a note on Grill-Roasted Lamb.

"We once drove up the Napa Valley on a summer afternoon when grapes were filling out to hang heavy on the vines for the harvest a few weeks later. Stopping to buy a few bottles of wine, we noticed the heavy aroma of barbecuing lamb in the air. I followed my nose and found the winegrower's wife basting lamb with a sauce so simple that lamb remains the main taste: white Zinfandel, garlic, curry powder and a few spoonfuls of currant jelly for sweetening."

You'll be familiar with a few of Voltz's food offerings — Fajitas, Barbecued Beef Ribs and various kebabs.

Other recipes are interestingly new, such as Smoked Pork Butt with Smoky Apple Chutney, Barbecued Chicken with Sweet Potatoes and Grilled Scallops in Bacon.

Only a handful of the recipes aren't practical for your everyday barbecuer — Barbecued Buffalo Ribs, Smoked Pheasant Legs and Fish Roasted in Ti Leaves. I suppose if you've got some of that stuff around, this book is as good a place as any to find out what to do with it.

"Barbecued Ribs, Smoked Butts and Other Great Feeds," published by Jeanne Voltz offers cooks a variety of recipes for succulent ribs.

The cookbook starts off with a rundown on grills, accessories, fuel, fire, cooking techniques and safety. All good information for the newcomer to the grill.

"To understand barbecue cooking, one must realize that the heat is dry, intense and not easily controlled," Voltz writes. "Charcoal or wood fires are suitable primarily for prime or choice beef, first-quality tender pork cuts, lamb and tender poultry. Less tender meats require special handling, marinating or grinding (as with sausages) to make them edible on a barbecue fire. Thick cuts of meat must be cooked long and slowly to ensure thorough heat penetration."

FROM THERE WE go into the preparation of different meats, followed by chapters on sauces and seasonings, kettle foods, go alongs and desserts. Happily, a chapter has been added on sources for special foods. (Yes, you can send away for buffalo.)

While I'm real high on this cookbook, I do wish there were photographs pertinent to the recipes presented. What does this stuff look like anyway?

On balance, this would be a good addition to your cookbook collection. Or maybe a gift for a friend or a spouse-to-be.

"This book takes the best from hundreds, maybe thousands, of backyard barbecue adventures, a lifetime of great eating and fun at grills of all sorts and in all conditions," Voltz writes in the preface.

Barbecued Ribs allows diners the results of those experiences without the bloopers and bleepers.

SOY-HONEY GLAZED CHICKEN BREASTS

2 chicken breasts, split, 1 pound each
¼ cup minced scallions
2 cloves garlic, pressed
1 tablespoon honey
2 tablespoons dry sherry
2 teaspoons grated fresh ginger root (optional)
½ cup soy sauce

Skin chicken breast pieces. Combine scallions, garlic, honey, sherry, ginger root and soy sauce. Dip chicken in sauce, then place in plastic bag and pour in remaining sauce. Close bag and marinate at room temperature 30 minutes to 1 hour.

Grill over hot coals, turning as needed to prevent charring and to cook evenly. Grill until just done. About 25 minutes. Brush with sauce as needed to keep moist. Heat any remaining sauce and serve with chicken and hot cooked rice.

Makes 4 servings.

Polish sausages add tasty spice to summer barbecue

By Karola Saekel
N.Y. Times News Service

With barbecue season in full swing, folks might want something a little spicier than a hot dog.

The taste panel evaluated six packaged Polish sausages — many of which include ingredients other than the once-standard beef and pork. The sausages, in the deli cases of several major supermarkets, were almost evenly divided between the red-meat kind and poultry variety.

Each Polish sausage tested could earn 100 points — 20 each from the five tasters. Each brand was judged on taste, appearance, texture and whether the taster would buy it.

First place with 82 points went to Hillshire Regular, which had the smoky flavor people associate with Polish sausage, though a couple of tasters thought it a bit salty. Two commented on the coarse grind, which gives it the chunky consistency favored for this kind of robust sausage. Everybody on the panel would buy this product.

In second place with 60 points was one of the turkey sausages. Louis Rich was considered bland, though one person complimented a smoky quality and another noted a pleasant fruity flavor. Two people would put this on their grill.

Third with 59 points was another turkey product, Foster Farms. These sausages were generally considered very smooth — too smooth for several people's liking, though three tasters might buy them.

Fourth place went to another turkey sausage, Butterball, with 53 points. Some tasters found its smoky flavor pleasant and some found it artificial; several thought the casing was excessively tough. Two would buy the product.

Coming in fifth with 50 points was Hillshire Lite. It pleased some tasters with its definite texture, but the reduction in fat also seems to result in a reduction in flavor. Two would buy these sausages.

In sixth place with 49 points was Armour. It elicited comments on intense red color. One person liked the spicier quality of these sausages; another said they tasted more like that company's most famous product, the dog kids love to bite. Two of our adult tasters would love to bite these Polish.

The tasters were a caterer, a food writer, a mother of three, and two chef-restaurant owners.

Microwaving chicken first cuts its cooking time on grill

NEW YORK (AP) — Microwave-grilling combines the quick, cool cooking of the microwave oven with the benefits of outdoor grilling.

Microwave-grilling is ideal for poultry. Cooked a short time in the microwave, it is then whisked to the grill for even color and crisp skin. The following recipes are provided by Perdue Farms:

MICROWAVE-BARBECUE DRUMSTICKS

5 chicken drumsticks
Basting Sauces (recipes follow)

Prepare barbecue grill for cooking. Rinse drumsticks and pat dry. Place drumsticks, spoke fashion, on a microwave-safe, bacon-roast rack, with the meatiest portions toward outside edges of utensil. Cover loosely with plastic wrap. Cook on 100 percent (high) for 2 minutes; turn and cook 2 minutes longer on 100 percent power. Cook 9 minutes on 70 percent power (medium-high); turn drumsticks over, cook 9 minutes more on 70 percent power.

Arrange drumsticks on barbecue grill about 8 inches above medium-hot coals. Grill 15 to 20 minutes, turning drumsticks frequently and brushing with basting sauce of choice. Remove from grill, cover, let stand 5 minutes and test for doneness; juice should run clear when drumstick is pierced with a fork. Makes 2 to 4 servings.

Note: For broiler-sized chicken parts, microwave 10 to 12 minutes on 100 percent power (high), then grill 15 minutes.

HONEY LEMON BASTING SAUCE

½ cup honey
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
½ to 1 teaspoon dried dillweed

In a small bowl, combine all ingredients. Brush on chicken during grilling.

RANCH BASTING SAUCE

½ cup cider vinegar
⅓ cup salad oil
1 clove garlic, minced
1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1½ teaspoons steak sauce
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon instant minced onion
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
6 to 8 drops hot pepper sauce

In a pint jar, combine all ingredients, cover and shake to blend. Brush on chicken during grilling.

SWEET AND SOUR BASTING SAUCE

⅓ cup apricot preserves
1½ tablespoons cider vinegar
1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon salt

In a small bowl, combine all ingredients. Brush on chicken during grilling.

Magazine includes 'light' chicken recipe

NEW YORK (AP) — Apple pie, barbecued chicken and oven fries — with less fat and calories — are among the recipes featured in the July-August issue of Cooking Light magazine.

The magazine also features fresh, light buffet ideas for summer cooking with recipes low in fat and cholesterol including Radish Dip, Spinach-Chevre Potato Bites and Iced Shrimp with Ginger-Plum Sauce.

Side dishes good accompaniment for grilled chicken

NEW YORK (AP) — To accompany grilled chicken, serve Bake-N-Grill Potatoes, Hurry-Up Summer Vegetables and Fresh Fruit on a Stick. The potatoes get their start in the microwave oven, for faster cooking on the grill.

BAKE-N-GRILL POTATO

4 medium-sized baking potatoes, scrubbed
¼ cup melted butter or margarine
¼ cup dry onion soup mix
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
¼ medium-sized green pepper (2 tablespoons), finely chopped
¼ medium-sized sweet red pepper (2 tablespoons), finely chopped

Pierce potatoes with fork. Arrange, spoke fashion, on a paper towel in the microwave oven. Cook on 100 percent power (high) for 5 minutes; turn potatoes over, cook on 100 percent power 5 minutes longer. Potatoes should be underdone. Remove potatoes from microwave. Make 4 long slashes in potatoes, cutting almost to the bottom.

In small bowl, combine melted butter, onion soup mix and Parmesan cheese. Spoon mixture between slashes in potatoes and sprinkle with chopped peppers. Wrap each potato in a square of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Grill over medium-hot coals 7 minutes, turn potatoes and grill 8 minutes longer. Makes 4 servings.

HURRY-UP SUMMER VEGETABLES

2 medium-sized zucchini, sliced or cubed
2 medium-sized yellow squash, sliced or cubed
1 cup diagonally-sliced carrots
¾ medium-sized green pepper, cut into ¼-inch wide strips
¾ medium-sized sweet red pepper, cut into ¼-inch wide strips
1 tablespoon water
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Place vegetables in a 2-quart microwave-safe baking dish. Add water; dot with butter or margarine. Cover. Cook on 100 percent power (high) for 10 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Experts' tips make grilling easier

NEW YORK (AP) — Everything from bread to fruit tastes better when it's cooked on the grill. To prevent these foods from sticking, brush canola oil on the grill's surface before cooking.

These grilling suggestions are from the makers of Puritan Oil:

■ For a mild flavor, marinate poultry and meats for 30 minutes prior to cooking. Use extra marinade to baste food while grilling; this will keep the meats from drying out. For a stronger flavor, marinate poultry and meats for 2 to 24 hours. If marinating for more than 1 hour, be sure to place foods in the refrigerator.

■ Vegetables contain little fat, so be sure to brush them with oil before placing them on the grill. For easy turning, place vegetables in a hinged grilling basket. Grill vegetables first, so they won't absorb meat flavors from the grill, then serve at room temperature.

FRESH FRUIT ON A STICK

2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
2 tablespoons honey
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
4 fresh nectarines, unpeeled
1 fresh pineapple, peeled, cored, and cut into 1-inch wedges

In a small bowl, combine butter, honey and cinnamon. Rinse and quarter nectarines and thread onto 12-inch skewers, alternating with pineapple wedges. Place on grill 8 inches above medium-cool coals. Brush top with honey mixture and turn. Brush other side. Turn and brush frequently, cooking 5 to 10 minutes or until lightly brown; do not overcook. Makes 12 servings.

Fresh tomatoes are a favorite gem of summer's bounty, and sauce made from fresh tomatoes is unbeatable.

Fresh tomatoes, basil make sumptuous sauce to top summer pasta

By Marian Burros
New York Times News Service

Nothing says summer as well as a fresh, uncooked tomato sauce flavored with basil atop a steaming mound of pasta.

Especially if you add a few ears of just-picked corn. It's the kind of meal you can prepare with very little effort, with ingredients that are at their peak for just a few months.

TOMATO SAUCE WITH ROTINI

6 quarts water
4 cloves garlic, peeled
2 pounds ripe tomatoes
2 tablespoons coarsely chopped fresh oregano leaves
¼ cup coarsely chopped fresh parsley
⅔ cup tightly packed fresh basil leaves
2 tablespoons richly flavored extra-virgin olive oil
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
1½ pounds rotini
Freshly grated Parmigiano Reggiano

Bring water for pasta to boil in covered pot.

Cut garlic in half and with food processor running, put garlic through feed tube to mince.

Cut tomatoes in large chunks and squeeze out seeds. Addtomatoes and oregano, parsley, basil, olive oil and pepper to the processor and process until mixture is coarsely pureed. Spoon into serving bowl. (If your processor is small you may have to do this in two batches.)

When water boils, cook pasta according to package directions. Drain and mix immediately with sauce. Serve with cheese.

Yield: 4 servings.

Pasta dishes complemented with garnishes

NEW YORK (AP) — Looking for new ways to garnish your favorite pasta dish? The best garnish often comes from unused portions of ingredients in the dish. For example, celery leaves or the tops from green onions make a great impression on pasta salads made with chopped celery and onion.

The National Pasta Association in Arlington, Va., also has these suggestions: for a colorful dish, top macaroni and cheese salad with a few slices of cherry tomatoes; line a large, clear bowl with dried pasta shapes such as rotini or shells, then place a slightly smaller clear bowl on top to hold the cooked pasta dish.

Use a few whole olives to top a salad made with sliced olives, or use a few large walnut halves to top a salad made with chopped walnuts. Instead of parsley, tuck rosemary and tarragon around a platter of pasta.

DEAR ABBY

Wife has no right to open husband's mail

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: After visiting with my brother and his wife and family in another state, I was quite upset with the way I was treated by him during my stay. Upon returning home, I made an appointment with my doctor, a psychiatrist, to talk over the situation and ask for recommendations as to what to do. I really wanted to let my brother know how I felt. She suggested I write him a letter.

Van Buren

I let out all my feelings in this letter, told him off, and reiterated each instance in which he made me feel like dirt. Soon afterward, I received a letter from his wife, saying that she had opened my letter, read it, and felt it was too strong to give her husband. (It would hurt him.) So, she answered my letter, chastizing me for saying such terrible things to her husband, and denying that anything I said had happened. Actually, she was not present at these times.

I was stunned and very angry at her for opening mail that was meant for my brother only, then taking it upon herself to hold it from him and answer it herself. Her defense was that, as his wife, she had the right. Does she, Abby? When I mentioned this to my brother, he was angry to have had his mail intercepted in this way. After a while, she said, "Let's drop the matter."

What do you think, Abby? Does a wife have the right to open and read her husband's personal mail, keep it from him, and answer it as well? — UPSET SISTER

DEAR UPSET: A wife does not have the "right" to open her husband's mail and read it. And for her to have kept it from him — and answered it — is an outrage! Well, at least now you know that if you want to convey a confidential message to your brother, you will have to find some other way to reach him. Send it to his place of business.

DEAR ABBY: Would you please give me some advice on how to respond to seeing a parent physically abuse a child in public?

Recently, my wife witnessed a woman pull her child's hair and slap his face until he stopped crying. The little boy appeared to be 3 or 4 years old. My wife was stunned. The woman seemed to enjoy beating her child.

What could my wife have said or done that would have made a difference? This happened in a large department store. — ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA

DEAR ST. PAUL: I doubt if any mother "enjoys" beating her child. The scene your wife witnessed involved a woman out of control. Your wife could have very gently and quietly attempted to calm the mother by saying, "I know exactly how you feel. What mother hasn't been in your shoes? Sometimes taking a child that age shopping is more than we can handle." And, without being judgmental, in a soft, friendly and sympathetic tone, she would have intervened and brought an out-of-control woman back to reality.

This sometimes takes more courage than most people have in today's "mind-your-own-business" society, but to do nothing while witnessing child abuse is, in my view, indefensible.

Readers: Be aware that there is now a toll-free National Child Abuse Hotline for parents to call when they feel that they are out of control. It's (800) 422-4453.

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend was married to Bill for 10 years. They were divorced. Bill recently passed away. Is my girlfriend a widow or a divorcee? Thank you. — HER FRIEND IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR FRIEND: Your friend is a divorcee whose ex-husband recently died. If Bill had been married to another woman at the time of his death, that woman would be Bill's widow.

DEAR ABBY: I have never written to you before, but as I was walking with my 4-year-old son this afternoon, before we crossed the street, we stopped at the curb, then I recited the rhyme my father had taught me when I was about the age of my son. It goes like this:

"Look to the left, look to the right,
"Before you cross the street.
"First you use your eyes,
"Then you use your ears,
"Before you use your feet!"

I don't know who wrote it, but it always runs through my mind when I am about to cross a busy street. Perhaps others can use it. — TONI FROM COLORADO

"How to Write Letters for All Occasions" provides sample letters of congratulations, thank-yous, condolences, resumes and business letters — even how to write a love letter. It also includes how to properly address the clergy, government officials, dignitaries, widows and others. To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Eating right begins with buying right at supermarket, expert says

NEW YORK (AP) — Choosing nutritious low-fat foods is the first step toward a healthful diet. But for many people, this isn't an easy task.

"Eating right depends on buying right," says Janet Helm, a registered dietitian and contributor to the Environmental Nutrition newsletter.

"Although there's been an explosion of choices, the keys to smart shopping are still the same," she says. "Make a list before going to the store and scour package labels once inside to compare choices."

Some tips from Environmental Nutrition for smart shopping:

■ Choose whole fruits over fruit juices. Whole fruits have more fiber and no sugar is added.

■ Buy evaporated skim milk as a substitute for cream in recipes or your coffee.

■ Look for beef cuts with "loin" or "round" in the name. Sirloin, tenderloin, eye of round, or top round are among the leanest cuts.

■ Choose enriched 100 percent whole-wheat breads and rolls including French bread, Italian bread, pita bread, English muffins, bagels and bread sticks.

■ Compare fiber and sugar content of cereals. Select oatmeal and other hot cereals without added fat and sweetened fruit. Look for cold cereals with a grain, not sugar, listed as the first ingredient.

■ Look for reduced-fat cheese or cheese made with part-skim milk, such as mozzarella and ricotta. Make sure these cheeses have no more than 5 grams of fat per ounce.

■ For low-fat snacks, choose pretzels and popcorn, but not regular microwave popcorn, which is high in fat. Low-fat cookie choices include fig bars, vanilla wafers, graham crackers, animal crackers and gingersnaps.

■ Buy frozen dinners with less than 10 grams of fat per serving or about 3 grams of fat per 100 calories.

■ Select low-fat frozen desserts like sherbet, sorbet, Italian ice, low-fat frozen yogurt, popsicles and frozen fruit bars.

For a copy of "Buy Right, Eat Right," which contains 27 tips for smart shopping, send $1 in check or money order and a self-addressed, No. 10 envelope with 45 cents postage affixed to: Environmental Nutrition, Supermarket, 2112 Broadway, Suite 200, New York, N.Y. 10023.

Former Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto is surrounded as she leaves the official residence in Islamabad, Pakistan, Tuesday. Mrs. Bhutto, the first woman to lead a Moslem nation, had her 20-month-old government dismissed Monday by President Ghulam Ishaq Khan, who charged her administration with corruption and nepotism.

Army-backed government takes control of Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — An army-supported caretaker government assumed power Tuesday and ordered former Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto and other top officials not to leave the country.

One diplomat called it a "constitutional coup."

Ms. Bhutto, dismissed by the president on Monday, spent her first day out of office meeting with former Cabinet ministers to chart a strategy for their party, which is now deeply divided and demoralized.

Ms. Bhutto, members of her government and members of the disbanded federal legislature were ordered to remain in Pakistan, spokesmen for the new and former governments said.

Pakistan appeared calm after the action and troops deployed to maintain order began returning to their barracks Monday night.

President Ghulam Ishaq Khan invoked his constitutional authority and dismissed Ms. Bhutto's government, alleging widespread corruption, misuse of power, judicial intimidation and failure to curb ethnic violence that has claimed more than 400 lives since May in her home province of Sindh.

Ms. Bhutto called the charges baseless and said she had only one demand: "Hold fair and free elections, on schedule, and let the people decide."

The president appointed opposition leader Mustafa Jatoi as acting prime minister, set new elections for Oct. 24 and declared a state of emergency that gave the new government sweeping powers to suspend all laws and individual rights.

But many members of Ms. Bhutto's Pakistan Peoples Party said privately that the link between Ms. Bhutto and grass roots members has been almost severed, largely because of her unwillingness to compromise and allegations that senior government officials used their positions to make huge fortunes.

"We simply blew it," one former minister said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The president's decision took Ms. Bhutto and senior officials by surprise.

But some opposition officials said the president starting drafting the order two months ago after telling Ms. Bhutto to reform her government.

"She has nobody to blame but herself. She had plenty of warnings," said Abida Hussein, a former lawmaker and one of Ms. Bhutto's most outspoken critics.

According to sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, the Pakistani army also had become increasingly impatient with Ms. Bhutto's inability to find a political solution to the ethnic violence in Sindh and her perceived meddling in military affairs.

The sources said the army gave Ishaq Khan the green light to dismiss the government after a meeting between army chief of staff Gen. Mirza Aslam Beg and Ms. Bhutto failed to resolve the dispute.

"This was a kind of constitutional coup staged while world attention was focused on the events of Kuwait and Iraq," one diplomat said, speaking on condition of anonymity. "But something had to be done. If things had continued to deteriorate, the only ultimate solution would have been martial law."

The military has ruled Pakistan for 25 years of its 43-year history.

Members of Ms. Bhutto's former government alleged the interim administration appointed by Ishaq Khan was considering investigating and punishing Ms. Bhutto.

"They may be planning to have tribunals of accountability and not let her stand in the next election," said her former minister of information, Ahmed Saeed Awan.

The tribunals under consideration would reportedly have the authority to suspend participation in elections for five to seven years.

New Colombian leader sworn in

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Economist Cesar Gaviria became president of Colombia Tuesday and swore he would make no concessions in the country's war against drug traffickers.

In his inaugural address, the 43-year-old Gaviria proposed creating an international court to try drug traffickers. He said fighting drugs should be an international effort, not just a Colombian one.

The new president asked the United States and Western European countries to remember that this nation of slightly more than 30 million people is not a wealthy country, and to lower trade barriers to help it finance the drug war.

He also said the United States and other countries must do more to cut consumption of cocaine.

"No success is possible if the consuming countries do not achieve a substantial reduction in demand," he said.

Heavy security was in effect. Helicopter gunships circled Bogota, the capital city of more than 6 million. Anti-aircraft guns aimed at skies over the presidential palace. Thousands of troops backed by armor patrolled streets.

Gaviria and invited dignitaries sat behind bullet-proof glass. Vice President Dan Quayle represented the United States among 88 foreign delegations.

Gaviria became the candidate of the governing Liberal Party and won May elections after the first candidate, Sen. Luis Carlos Galan, was shot to death by drug lords in August 1989, leading to a government crackdown that continues. "Drug trafficking is the main threat against our democracy. We will fight it without concessions," Gaviria said.

Colombian military police patrol the capital Monday as more than 5,000 soldiers and police officers converge for the inauguration of Cesar Gaviria as the nation's 102nd president.

"There is no other way to eradicate from Colombian life the mass murders, the hundreds of deaths from car bombs, the children killed on Mother's Day."

Two car bombs in Bogota last Mothers Day, May 18, killed 18 people.

"No country in the history of humanity has paid such a high price as Colombia in confronting international crime," Gaviria said.

Gaviria, a small, slender man who formerly served as treasury minister, took office for a four-year term, succeeding President Virgilio Barco.

As a congressman and Cabinet minister, he gained a reputation as an efficient administrator and a shrewd negotiator.

Gaviria cautioned on Tuesday that extradition of suspected traffickers to the United States — the fate the drug lords here fear most — cannot be the only weapon or the main strategy in Colombia's fight against the cocaine cartels.

But he didn't rule out continued extraditions. In the last year Colombia has extradited 22 trafficking suspects to the United States and has 15 more waiting to be be extradited.

The government took no chances Tuesday despite a cease-fire purportedly declared by drug traffickers last month.

The Bogota daily newspaper El Espectador said blood types of visiting dignitaries and heads of state were noted to ensure ample blood supplies if needed.

Four armored U.S. Blackhawk helicopters equipped with missiles accompanied Quayle's helicopter from the airport to an army base.

Gaviria inherits a nation weary of its fight with terrorists and drug traffickers and looking for an end to the violence.

Barco, who was prohibitied by the constitution from running again, received international praise for launching the government's war against drug traffickers. He will reportedly become Colombia's next ambassador to Britain.

Of the major candidates, Gaviria took the strongest stand in support of a continued hard line against the Medellin and Cali cocaine cartels, which are believed to supply 80 percent of the cocaine reaching the United States.

Since the crackdown began a year ago, police have blamed drug traffickers for exploding about 300 bombs throughout Colombia and killing about 500 people.

Palestinian group says it will free Swiss hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A group calling itself the Palestine Revolutionary Squads said Tuesday it will release within 24 hours two Swiss hostages of the International Committee of the Red Cross.

The previously unknown faction made the announcement in a handwritten Arabic language statement delivered to the independent Beirut newspaper An-Nahar shortly before midnight Tuesday.

The 10-line statement was accompanied by an instant, color photograph of Swiss captive Emmanuel Christen, 32. The close-up showed him with a short beard and moustache.

The other hostage is Elio Erriquez, 23.

The two were kidnapped on Oct. 6, 1989 in Sidon, the provincial capital of south Lebanon. No group had previously claimed responsibility for their abduction.

The statement said the decision to free the Red Cross captives came in response to the wishes of President Hafez Assad of Syria, Libyan leader Col. Moammar Gadhafi and President Chadli Bendjedid of Algeria.

Police in Sidon, 25 miles south of Beirut, had blamed the abduction of Christen and Erriquez on the Libyan-financed Fatah-Revolutionary Council faction, led by notorious Palestinian terrorist Abu Nidal. The group denied it. The Abu Nidal group has been reported undergoing bloody internal purges over the past year.

The two Swiss captives are among 16 foreigners held hostage in Lebanon. The others are six Americans, four Britons, two West Germans, an Irishman and an Italian.

Longest held is Terry Anderson, 42, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, who was seized in Beirut on March 16, 1985.

Two American hostages — educators Frank Herbert Reed and Robert Polhill — were released eight days apart in April.

This is the text of Tuesday's statement:

"After we acquired guarantees that our demands will be met, and in response to the wishes of the Syrian command personified by the president, Field Marshal Hafez Assad, the leader of the September 1 revolution, brother Col. Moammar Gadhafi and Algerian president Chadli Bendjedid that the two International Red Cross delegates we hold be released, and after expressing our gratitude for the efforts exerted by them to fulfill the demands we presented, the organization of the Palestinian Revolutionary squads announces that it has decided to free the two Swiss prisoners within the next 24 hours.

"Victory shall be for the revolution,

"The Palestinian Revolutionary Squads."

WORLD IN BRIEF

Jet's engines burst into flame

LONDON (AP) — Two engines of a Boeing 747 charter jet burst into flames Tuesday shortly after the plane landed at Gatwick Airport from Montreal, airport authorities said.

The 439 passengers and crew on Nationair Flight NXA124 were evacuated down emergency chutes and 24 passengers suffered minor injuries, airport and ambulance authorities said.

"They all had minor injuries — sprained ankles, bruises, cuts — and they were all given first aid at the airport. There were no broken limbs," the company said.

Two firemen overcome by smoke and fumes were treated at East Surrey Hospital and later discharged, the Surrey Ambulance Authority said.

The two engines caught fire as the plane turned off the runway toward a parking bay at 11:12 a.m., said a spokeswoman for Gatwick airport. She spoke on condition of anonymity.

Fire engines raced down the runway and extinguished the blaze.

Boys' deaths avenged

JERUSALEM (AP) — Jewish mobs on Tuesday attacked Arabs to avenge the slaying of two Israeli teen-agers believed killed by Palestinians. Thousands of mourners at the youths' funeral chanted "Death to the Arabs!"

Thirteen people, including two Pakistani tourists, were hurt in one stone-throwing attack, police said.

Police arrested 22 Jewish youths who were among a crowd of about 100 that moved toward Arab east Jerusalem, police spokesman Uzi Sandori said.

Early Tuesday, a Palestinian woman was fatally shot as she rode past a Jewish settlement in the occupied West Bank. Police said they suspected Jewish vigilantes.

Fire damages shrine

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A fire has damaged Poland's holiest Roman Catholic shrine and injured four monks who tried to save centuries-old volumes from the blaze, media and officials said Tuesday.

The fire at the Jasna Gora monastery in Czestochowa did not endanger the jewel-robed Black Madonna, the burnished icon to which millions of pilgrims pay homage every year, said Sister Daria at the Roman Catholic curia in Częstochowa.

Four monks suffered smoke inhalation while rushing through the burning building to save books, including some illuminated manuscripts dating to the 15th century, from the two-story library built in 1739.

The monks were hospitalized in stable condition, Polish television reported.

GULF CONFLICT

Naval blockade of Iraq seen as option

WASHINGTON (AP) — A naval blockade to sever Iraq's oil lifeline may be the best hope for pushing Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait, but it would require hundreds of ships and perhaps months of enforcement, military experts said Tuesday.

Meanwhile, government sources said President Bush was dispatching American warplanes and ground troops to Saudi Arabia where they were to be joined by forces from Egypt and Morocco in an effort to discourage Iraq from pushing on into Kuwait's larger neighbor.

While that move was being made and talk continued of a United Nations-sanctioned blockade by U.S., European and perhaps Soviet forces, other more drastic and risky military options were available, experts said.

Among the options:

■ Launch air strikes on Iraqi oil fields. Iraq's economy is built on oil. Destroying the oil production facilities would be tantamount to destroying the economy.

■ Bomb troop supply lines in southern Iraq. The purpose would be to isolate the 100,000-man Iraqi occupation force in Kuwait by preventing supplies and reinforcements from crossing the border.

■ Engage the Iraqis in a full-scale air and land battle in Kuwait and Iraq. Experts say this would be highly costly and would risk starting an Arab-Israeli war.

The U.N. Security Council voted 13-0 on Monday to impose a worldwide ban on trade with Iraq. Bush hinted afterward that he was prepared to order a naval blockade to enforce that embargo if Iraq finds a way to circumvent it.

Marine Cpl. David Ellis reads "Red Badge of Courage" as he waits portside at Morehead City, N.C., for a ship bound for six months deployment in the Mediterranean. Ellis is stationed at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

"These sanctions will be enforced, no matter what it takes," Bush said Monday.

Vice Adm. Henry C. Mustin, a recently retired deputy chief of naval operations, said in an interview that an international naval blockade of Iraq's three main oil outlets — in the Mediterranean Sea, the Persian Gulf and the Red Sea — would be the best military option so long as Saddam has not invaded Saudi Arabia.

Mustin added, however, that a blockade would run the risk of triggering actual combat.

"A blockade is an act of war. To effect a blockade you have to enforce it," he said.

If the United States set a blockade on its own the operation "would take probably most of the U.S. Navy," meaning several hundred ships and tens of thousands of sailors, Mustin said.

Reconnaissance aircraft would be needed to ensure that tankers in the gulf not carrying Iraqi or Kuwaiti oil actually arrived at their stated destinations.

A joint operation with European allies would be more effective, Mustin said. The Washington Post reported Tuesday that the Pentagon had proposed an international blockade that would include Soviet ships, but a Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman said, "I don't think that we are thinking about such an idea."

The United States has two aircraft carrier groups in the gulf area and a third on the way. It also has a group of eight naval ships inside the gulf. Britain has one ship in the gulf and two more due by week's end. On Tuesday a French naval destroyer sailed into the Suez Canal enroute to the gulf by way of the Red Sea.

Journalists in helicopters reported spotting a Soviet destroyer nearing the Straits of Hormuz, the narrow entrance to the gulf from the Arabian Sea.

Gen. Jack Merritt, recently retired from the Army and a former U.S. representative to NATO's highest military council, said he doubted that either a naval blockade or carrier-based air strikes against Iraqi economic targets would be enough.

Of the chances of dislodging the Iraqi army from Kuwait with air power alone Merritt said, "Just forget it."

Merritt said that if Bush's goal is to deter Saddam from striking at Saudi Arabia the administration should already be moving ground and air forces into the gulf area from Western Europe. The United States has no military bases in the area.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said Tuesday that in addition to preparing for a possible naval blockage of Iraq, the Bush administration should be trying to persuade Egypt or other Arab nations to participate in a multinational ground force deterrent in Saudi Arabia.

"I think it's enormously important this not simply be a Saudi-U.S. operation," Nunn told CBS News.

So far, U.N. has only moral force for santions

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. Security Council began work on Tuesday to enforce the worldwide economic boycott it ordered against Iraq, but so far the only weapon in the U.N. arsenal is moral persuasion.

The 15-member council began informal consultations on forming a committee to monitor compliance by the member states with the sanctions resolution adopted Monday.

"We already are in an enforcement mode," said a U.N. official.

If the Security Council decides on military steps, it could call for an international blockade of Iraq to force Iraqi invaders to withdraw from Kuwait. But diplomats said Tuesday they hoped Iraq would heed international will and force would not be necessary.

Like many of the sources, the diplomats and U.N. official spoke on condition of anonymity.

Publication of a member's failure to comply with the sanctions is one of the strongest moves the United Nations can make, unless it votes to take military action.

President Bush on Tuesday ordered deployment of U.S. troops to Saudi Arabia to help protect the oil-rich kingdom from Iraq, a Pentagon source said. Iraq's increasingly isolated President Saddam Hussein has rejected foreign pressure to withdraw his forces from Kuwait.

A separate source in Washington said the U.S. deployment would be part of a multinational force.

Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar cabled copies of the council's resolution to all 159 U.N. members Monday and informed them the sanctions were legally binding.

He was expected to request soon that all members inform him in detail of steps they have taken to enforce the sanctions. He is to report to the council in 30 days.

The United Nations has no means of enforcing the resolution and must rely on the good will of member states and international pressure.

The resolution, one of the strongest ever adopted by the council, calls for a worldwide ban on oil purchases from Iraq; a general trade embargo; freezing of Iraqi and Kuwaiti assets, and a halt to all military arms sales and aid to Iraq.

It asks member states to supply information requested about their trade, financial and military relations with Iraq.

Canadian Ambassador L. Yves Fortier told the council Monday: "The sanctions resolution would impose hardships on many countries, public and private organizations and individuals throughout the world. But sacrifices are necessary to maintain the peace and security of states and the integrity of the international system."

The U.N. boycott of Iraq was only the third time since the world body was founded 45 years ago that the Security Council imposed sanctions on a member state.
