Church Wins $500 Award

Charles Church, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Church of Olton, has been named recipient of a $500 scholarship from the Texas Farm Bureau Federation.

He has several creditable credentials to present to Texas A&M University this fall, where he plans to major in veterinary medicine.

Church is a 1966 graduate of Olton High School, and was salutatorian of his graduating class. He was a member of the National Honor Society, and played in both the high school band and the stage band. He lettered in football four years and basketball three years. He was captain of the basketball team his senior year.

He was awarded the State Fair of Texas Honor Award in 1963, the 4-H Gold Star Award, and a Kiwanis Club Award. He received a Leadership Award from the Farm Bureau in 1964, and was the garden winner at the National 4-H Club Congress in 1965. This past year, Church has been a member-at-large of the county council.

"A very considerate person who takes responsibility upon himself and helps others", was the way Marcheta Wood, assistant county extension agent, described the youth.

"Through my different 4-H calf projects my interest in animals has increased and I am anxious to pursue a career in the exciting field of veterinary medicine," Church commented.

Carnival, Sales Here

In case anyone hasn't noticed, the carnival is here again.

Sponsored by Olton Lions Club, the carnival will continue through Saturday on the south side of the square.

Rides and games are open each night as is the now famed "dunkin' board".

In connection with the carnival, several Olton merchants this week are running "Carnival Specials" for Friday and Saturday.

A glance through the paper will reveal savings up to one-half on many items, as merchants offer a shopper's weekend at the same time.

LITTLE LEAGUE TO END FRIDAY

Little League ball play will end the season here Friday night with a double-header starting at 6 p. m.

All-star team will be named after the games. Members of all six teams are asked to come to the games dressed in uniform.

Little League teams include Halfway Red Sox, Halfway Blue Sox, Thompson Implement, Olton Co-op Gin, Farmers Gin and Olton State Bank.

Gun Club Meets

The Olton Gun Club will have a meeting and gun shoot Sunday, July 10 at 2:30 P. M. All members are urged to attend.

VISITING SERVICEMAN SAYS

Japanese People Turning More To Our Way Of Life

"They're hanging their kimonos up..."

This is the way Tc. Sgt. J. E. Newton described many of the Japanese people after he has been stationed in Yokota, Japan for the past four years.

Newton, his wife and two children, Mike, 6, and Julie, 5, recently visited in the home of his sister, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Green.

In the service for 17 years, Newton will now be stationed in Goldsboro, N. C. While in Japan, Mrs. Newton was employed by the Wing Commander.

Newton noted that most Americans think of Japan as being very oriental, but this is changing and the people are turning more to our way of life, especially in the cities.

He added, however, that housing facilities, very crowded, could be compared to labor camps here.

There is approximately three feet between houses with entire families living together or in adjoining houses built side by side.

Oldest sons are responsible for their parents and wives of the sons do all the work with mother and daddy just "taking it easy".

One of the things the Newtons mentioned was the Japanese police force, which they described as "one of the world's most efficient".

They said that there is no arguing with the police and candidates for the police force are chosen from the most highly respected youth. These youth are observed by the head of the police and the mayor from the time they are very young until they become old enough to be policemen.

"Tokyo is the most beautiful city there is," the Newtons said, adding that prices are very high.

A pair of alligator shoes in Tokyo would cost at least $300 with a purse to match costing the same.

"You see a lot of purses still sitting on the shelves," they commented.

Stores often cover a full block and are from 9 to 10 stories high. The fronts of the stores are covered with heavy steel doors built on the outside of the glass.

In the country, however, stores are in the open and have

The league also will announce its queen for the year at the game, according to Gene Trotter, baseball association president.

will have to be kept separately but Mrs. Singleterry said this was a simple matter.

A certain amount of hospital and doctor's expenses will have to be paid by those on social security. Those people under old age assistance do not have to pay this deductible fee.

The local hospital, along with others in the county, was approved for the hospitalization program on a year to year basis. Hospitals will be examined again next year to see if they still meet social security and state health requirements.

Persons enrolled in the plan are asked to bring their medical cards with them to the hospital when they need medical attention.

Mrs. Singleterry said that it is essential that they have cards.

With no great influx of sick, elderly people at this time, Mrs. Singleterry said the hospital has no plans at present for hiring new staff members or for any changes in the physical plant. "We'll just have to wait and see," she added. "I don't anticipate any critical problems but time will tell."

Wage Act May Ruffle Few Feathers

Farmers and small businessmen in the area have been keeping an eye on a law that is now in Senate committee. Reaction to the 'wage law' is varied but the act may well 'ruffle a few feathers'.

Entitled an "act to amend the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to extend its protection to additional employees, to raise the minimum wage and for other purposes", the bill will affect big-scale farmers and other businesses formerly exempted from the minimum wage requirement.

The 35-page document, which was approved by the House of Representatives May 26 is now in a Senate committee. Sources in Washington expect the bill to reach the floor sometime during the week of July 18.

If passed as it now stands, the amendment will go into effect Feb. 1, 1967, raising minimum wage levels in several industries now covered by the present law, and establishing first time minimums for some 7.24 million employees in the United States.

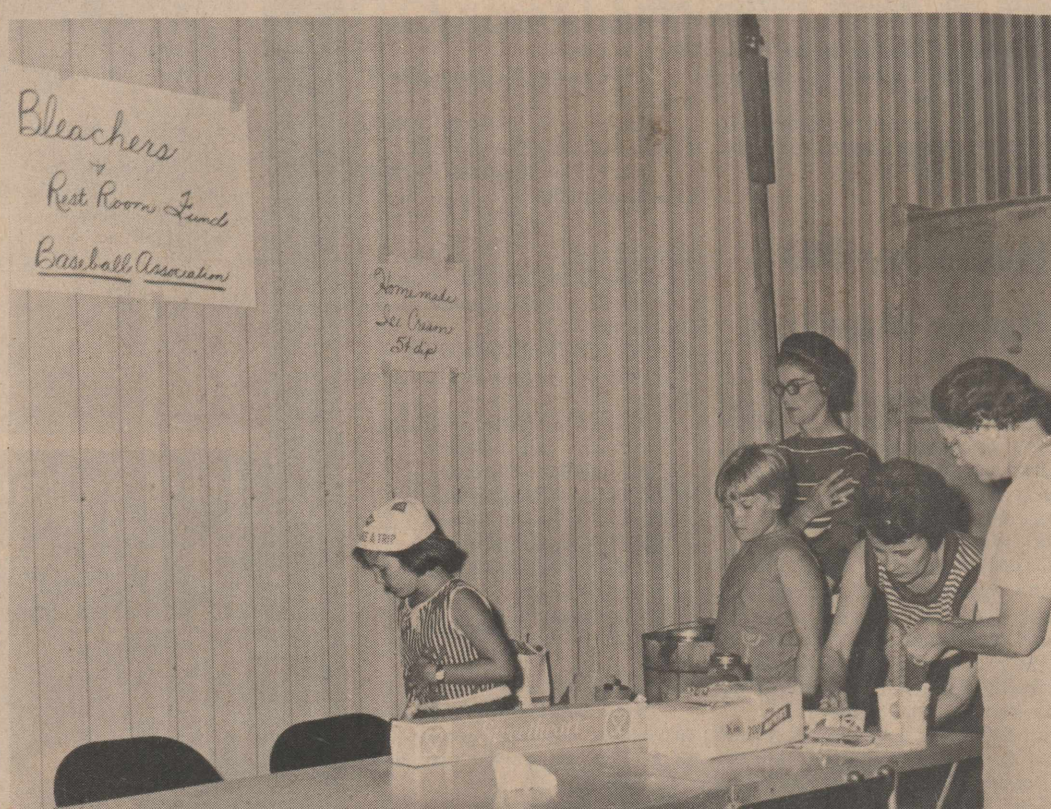

By 1967, according to estimated employment figures, almost 37 million workers will be covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act.

MRS. AIKMAN, CAMPBELL WIN ORC TOURNEY

Winners in Monday's partnership am-am at ORC were Susie Aikman and Barney Campbell with 60. Each received $34.95 in merchandise.

Second place went to Leslie Ross and Dean Foshee, Earth, with 62. Two teams tied for third with 64 were Owen Norfleet and Frank Cornelius, Joe Bailey and Jerri Bailey of Hart.

Second place winners received $21.75 each in merchandise. Third and fourth place prizes were added together to give each member of the teams tied for third $15.22 in merchandise.

A BOOTH TO BUILD BLEACHERS

ALREADY PREPARING for a Babe Ruth League tournament which will be held here next summer are these workers at Olton Baseball Association's booth at the Lions Club Carnival. The baseball association is serving homemade ice cream, in an effort to raise money to build bleachers at the Babe Ruth ball park. A large group of out-of-town fans will be on hand for the tourney, which has been definitely scheduled for Olton in 1967.

"MISS FIRECRACKER"
Olton's Kay Schultz

Olton Lass Is Winner Of 'Miss Firecracker'

Kay Schultz, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Schultz of Olton, was named "Miss Firecracker" of 1966 Monday at Hale Center's July 4 observance.

Another Olton resident, Bartow Riley, was also recognized at the celebration.

Riley, a well-known local fiddler, placed fourth in the open division of the fiddler's contest.

Miss Schultz, representing Olton Lions Club, thanked the Lions at a noon meeting Tuesday for giving her the opportunity to represent them in the contest.

"I told them Olton was the best place on earth to live... the judges laughed, but I guess it worked," she said.

For talent, she did a dramatic reading called "Day of Decision".

Miss Schultz, along with other contestants, appeared in the Hale Center parade Monday morning "in a shiny, yellow convertible, flanked by flowers".

Other contestants included five from Hale Center and three from Cotton Center.

"I thought it might be unlucky... the fact that I drew the first spot in talent and interview," the new Miss Firecracker said Tuesday after explaining that she was the first of the 12 contestants to appear before the judges in each case. But, it all turned out that she

No Tax Increase If Bonds Voted

Voters will go to the polls here Saturday for a second chance at a proposed $60,000 paving program.

Polls will be open from 8 a. m. to 7 p. m. at the city hall.

Voters turned down the paving proposal in an April 5 vote, 139-120.

Backers of the program then asked for a new election, saying that the turnout was light and that the issue would have been approved if more facts had been made known.

City council then agreed to call a new election if 150 signers could be found for a petition requesting the vote.

A petition bearing 208 names was presented to the council last month and the new election was set. W. G. Finney was named presiding judge and Elton Franks as election official.

The proposed $60,000 bond issue concerns about 25 blocks of new paving and a large amount of seal coating and repair to other streets in the city.

About $35,000 would be spent on new paving and $25,000 on seal coating.

In the first election, voters were told that the bond issue's approval would mean a 14 per cent increase in taxes.

Since that time, voters have been told that there will not be a tax increase if the paving bond is approved.

This change was brought about after Joe Smith of First Southwest Corp. of Lubbock, pointed out the manner in which the city's sinking fund surpluses have been building up.

These surpluses have come to something over $42,000. This money alone would be enough to pay bond requirements almost three years in advance.

This surplus is the reason that the council can now take on a new paving program without an increase in taxes.

If approved, the $60,000 in bonds would be paid over the period between now and 1983.

Anticipated cost to property owners on new paving would run between $4.25 and $4.50 per front foot.

New proposed paving includes the following blocks:

Ave. G--five blocks from 9th St. to 14th St.

Ave. E--two blocks from 9th St. to 11th St.

10th St.--one block from Main to Ave. E.

Ave. D--four blocks from 9th St. to 5th St.

7th St.--two blocks from Ave. E. to Ave. C.

Ave. C--one block from 5th St. to 6th St.

2nd St.--one block from Ave. G to Ave. H.

6th St.--two blocks, one from Ave. E. to Ave. D and one from Ave. H. to Ave. I.

9th St.--three blocks from Ave. J to Ave. M.

Ave. L--two blocks from 7th St. to 9th St.

Ave. H--one block from 9th St. to 10th St.

BUCK GREGORY: FIGHTER ACE

Career Officer Backs U.S. Step-Up In Viet Bombings

While the rest of the nation may bicker about our approach in Viet Nam, a career navy officer visiting in Olton last week was emphatic in his approval of the recent step-up by the U. S. in the conflict.

"The recent bombings of communist oil supplies there is good news to professional military men," said Cmdr. H. A. (Buck) Gregory, who visited here in the home of his brother, Dan Gregory.

Commander Gregory said he felt most military men are ready to get the job done in Viet Nam.

He is commanding officer of a naval recruiting district which includes West Texas and eastern New Mexico, with headquarters in Albuquerque.

While Commander Gregory, 51, has not seen service in Viet Nam, the business of war is not new to him.

As a navy pilot in World War II, he became one of the nation's "fighter aces", a nickname tacked on men who qualified for the American Fighter Aces Association.

The 400-member organization holds its annual convention in Colorado Springs recently, and the commander, who likes to be called "Buck", was there. He was in select company, mingling with the likes of Bob Scott, famed for the book, "God is My Co-Pilot," and others of America's best flyers of World War II.

During WWII, Buck knocked down five enemy fighters, confirmed, and had three more probables.

Flying a Grumman "Hellcat", he battled the famed Japanese "Zero" and other fighting planes.

Once he led a strike on Japanese naval vessels at Kure harbor, near Hiroshima, knocking out a Jap carrier. His action resulted in him receiving the Silver Star, the nation's third highest military award.

Another time he was in a group of six American aircraft besieged by 16 Japanese aircraft.

Fifteen of the Japs went down and five Americans followed suit. Buck's plane was severely damaged, and through as far as combat was concerned.

"I was lucky, I guess. The lone remaining Jap must have been out of commission, too, because he flew away. I limped home."

His duty as a combat pilot also resulted in his earning the

BUCK GREGORY

Distinguished Flying Cross with three stars, the Air Medal with four stars and the Army Commendation Medal.

Through it all, he had some close calls, "but I never got a scratch during combat," Buck says.

Gregory, the son of D. S. Gregory, Lubbock, was reared in the Lubbock area, attending schools at Lubbock and Littlefield. He was graduated from Texas Tech with a degree in petroleum engineering in 1941.

He and his wife have three children, Nancy, 19, Robert, 16 and Jerry, 11.

He entered the Naval Air Corps in June 1941, and served the early part of World War II on anti-submarine patrol duty in the Caribbean. In the latter part of the war, he served as carrier fighter pilot aboard the USS Bennington in the Pacific.

Before assuming his recruiting district command, he served as assistant personnel officer on the staff of the Chief of Naval Air Training at Pensacola, Florida, and as petroleum officer in the Mediterranean, Middle East and North Africa areas for the Sixth Fleet.

Taste Of Inflation

Rising food prices are getting to be the source of some rising tempers for budget-minded housewives.

But don't blame the farmer...at least not according to a recently issued report of the National Commission on Food Marketing. This controversial report indicates that farmers are being made the scapegoats by other segments of the economy.

Just where is your food dollar going, then? For one thing, you're paying for all the services involved in producing, processing and distributing the food.

According to the report, the marketing bill made up 68 percent of your food dollar. The farm value was 32 percent.

Using 1964 figures, the report noted $69.8 billion spent by consumers with $47.3 billion going for the marketing bill. This included $20.8 billion for labor costs, $5.1 billion for transportation and $18.7 as "other". This includes such things as buildings and equipment, containers and supplies, advertising and promotion and corporation profits. Farm value was $22.5 billion.

The report states that although farm prices of a market basket of foods were unchanged between 1950 and 1965, the farm-retail spread rose 37 percent and retail prices increased 20 percent.

Well, it is encouraging to hear the farmer isn't to blame for something, isn't it?

Then too, considering the steadily rising costs of just about everything, food may still be one of the best buys around.

At least, it leaves you with a good taste.

Wise Old Owl Isn't

On public bodies, the guy who does all the talking is often dismissed as a blow. There's a popular belief that the man who really wields the power, and gets things done, is the silent one who does his work in the cloakroom, the coffee shop or the hallway.

After years of watching local boards in several cities at work, we would say it's largely untrue.

Being four square for early adjournments, we hesitate to say it, but the talkers of this world have too long been confused with a few annoying windbags.

With exceptions, the man who talks is most often the man who is interested in the work. He has opinions. He thinks it important that others be convinced. Generally, he does more than talk. He's the one who's working, trying to put across his ideas.

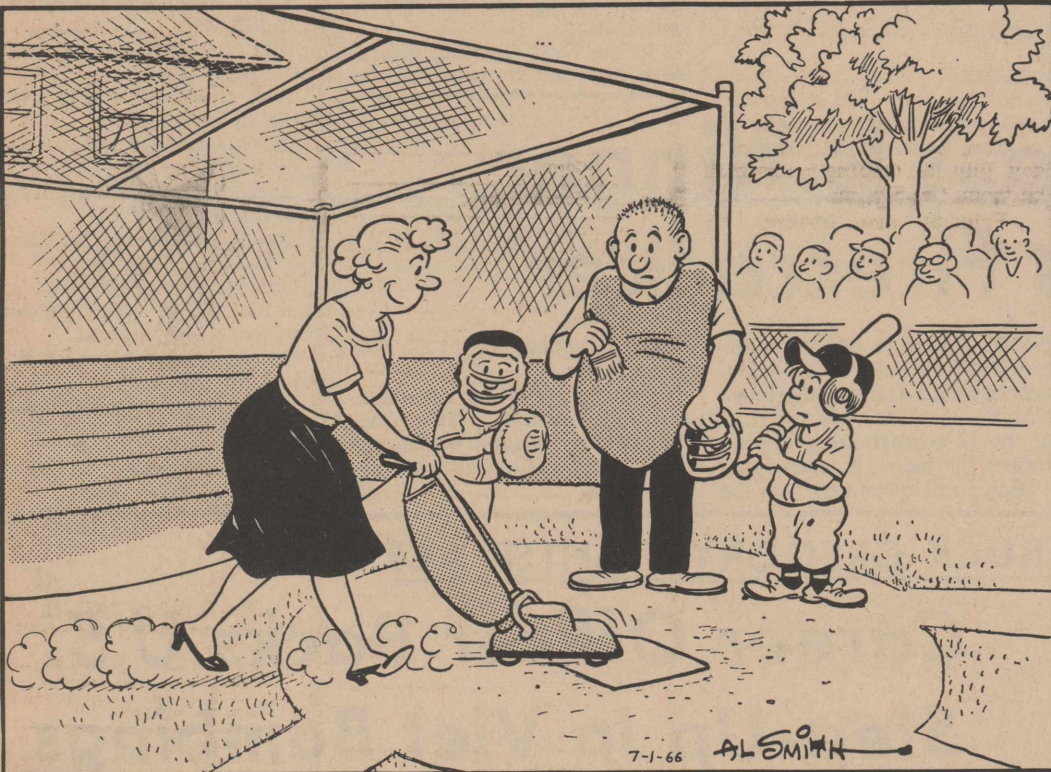

The out-spoken and the soft-spoken do not always offer a pearl of wisdom. At times, some of them haven't known when to shut up. But they have been the men who got things done.

The wise old owl got his reputation by keeping his mouth shut.

But what did the owl ever do?

their customs in connection with plans to build a new house or business.

"They must rope off the place where they are to build and then they hang some strips of white paper above. The owners and contractors sit and drink sake and eat. The idea is to drive the evil spirits away and to entertain the contractor."

The Newton children enjoyed Japan and picked up quite a bit of the language since they had a Japanese maid who stayed with them while their mother worked.

"I would trust my children in the hands of the Japanese more than the Americans," Mrs. Newton said, explaining that the Japanese would never hurt a child since children to them are sacred.

Until a child is three or four years old, there is no discipline such as spanking or slapping of hands. At this age, they are turned over to their fathers for the proper discipline since mothers never discipline children.

"I believe they have the most disciplined children in the world," Mrs. Newton added.

Japanese schools are very advanced with children attending classes six days a week until 6 p. m. each day. They have only one month, August, off for summer holiday.

All school children wear uniforms with the girls in black pleated skirts and black sailor tops. Boys wear black pants, caps, no shirts and jackets that button down the front with mandarin collars. Girls wear their hair cut or in braids. They are not allowed curls until they are 15 or 16.

Japanese people are usually thought of as being small in stature and it is quite common to see someone four feet tall. Due to the use of more western food, however, the Newtons note that it is becoming increasingly common to "look up, not down" at the Japanese.

Japanese who drive automobiles are considered nothing more than student drivers and the Americans are considered professional.

This can present difficulties since the American driver has two strikes against him. First, he is an American and second, he shouldn't be there.

According to the Newtons, an American involved in a wreck would be at fault because he, should not be in Japan and because, since he is such an excellent driver, the wreck should not have happened.

"If your car is parked on the street," Newton said, "and someone happens to hit it, it is your fault just for being there."

Mrs. Newton added that it is good to see the open highways here after "driving 25 miles per hour maximum." She also said that, when they first returned to this country "it scared us to drive so fast."

Japanese people love country, western and hill-billy style music. They even have their own "beatles" with "long, stringy hair" and guitars. They are also very fond of square dancing.

"Their funerals are really something to see," the Newtons said.

They said that almost everyone is cremated and then the family lines up with the first person taking a pair of chop sticks, picking up a bone from the body and putting it into an urn. This urn is passed down the line of the family until it reaches the last in line. This person then puts another bone in the urn and takes it home to the family who keeps the urn.

There are a few Christian cemeteries built on hillsides where land cannot be cultivated.

"It looks like they are almost buried on top of one another," Mrs. Newton explained, adding that they are built like shelves. At the head of each grave is a tall brown board with Japanese inscription.

"It's wonderful to be back in the United States," the Newtons concluded.

"Every American should go out of the United States to really appreciate it."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Olton Enterprise
Olton, Texas, 79064
Dear Editor:

This is for the 14,395 crippled children and adults whose names are on the patient rolls of affiliates of the Texas Society for Crippled Children and Adults and whose current source of pride is the collection of 1966 Easter Seal Campaign stories clipped from your paper.

The agreement is unanimous; the Olton Enterprise is a very special friend of the disabled.

Our patients thank you for the financial help you have fostered through your thorough and accurate reports of the Easter Seal program in Texas. The assurance is theirs that treatment will continue in the year ahead.

And then they say thanks for the understanding you have persistently conveyed to your readers. This, perhaps most of all, bolsters their conviction that independence—for each of them—is in the offing.

Ask Amy
BY AMY ADAMS

AMY'S VIEWS DIFFER FROM RUDI'S

Dear Amy:

I'm far from a prude, but I was actually embarrassed when my husband and I went to the shore to see women wearing extremely revealing bathing suits. I know for a fact that 'nice' girls wear them also but what I don't understand is how they summon up the nerve to walk around in public so scantily dressed.

What are your views about this?

Blushing Red

Dear Blushing:

My views are not those of Rudi's (Gernreich, that is).

A woman who dresses to excite a man's imagination is more attractive than the woman who undresses and leaves nothing to the imagination!

Dear Amy:

HOORAY FOR PAPERBOYS!! Please send Mrs. McMan of Gilbertsville, Mass. a big THANK YOU for her descriptive poem. Our boys are only seven and four... but they may be paper-boys someday.

Sincerely,

Mr. & Mrs. J. Tait
(Bakersfield, Calif.)

Dear Amy:

I am 13 years old and have an uncontrollable temper. When my parents are angry at me, I fly into a tantrum of anger. It's like holding back a flood; all of a sudden my temper bursts out, and then I have real trouble. Trying to control myself doesn't work.

Full of Temper

Dear Temper:

You're not trying hard enough! A temper is like a high explosive... which in your case can be licked by removing the wick. Accept the criticism and suggestions of your folks quietly and intelligently, and if you don't "pop your top," you may learn something you don't already know.

Dear Amy:

At the time of this writing, I'm raging mad. But I probably couldn't write unless I was mad.

Why don't people mind their own business? My husband and I have been happily married three years, are expecting our third child and planning for more. I'm sick of people telling me what a beautiful home we'd have if we had just a few kids. What good is a beautiful house with unhappy people inside. I've seen families with one child, screaming all the time just to get his or her way. And then I've seen large families with each child sharing things and each doing his own chores around the house.

Thanks for listening. I feel better now especially knowing that some busy-body might read this and perhaps take heed.

Mrs. Anon

Dear Amy:

Last year my husband was very sick and I was stuck-without him being able to drive me shopping, etc. So I went to a driving school and learned how. I was very happy with my accomplishment and couldn't wait until he recovered to show him. Well, all he does is complain that I don't drive to suit him. We've had nothing but arguments over my driving. I try to drive as he wishes me to, but I can't please him.

He works as a printer. To add further insult and burn me up worse, he brought home a paste-on sign and put it on the bumper. It reads: "Don't Drive Like My Wife".

What should I do about this... and that man? If other women have had this problem, I would like to know how they resolved it.

A Good Woman-Driver

Dear Driver:

I have received similar problems from other 'good' women-drivers. When they are driving alone, they concentrate on driving sensibly and safely. When they are with the 'back-seat boss', they hand him the wheel.

P. S. Ignore the sign. He's 'riding' you. It's a sign that he's a poor sport!
