Woodpecker Corps Hard Worked, Says Letter to Barter

When one joins the Citizens Conservation Corps and goes into camp in connection with the reforestation program of the government, he sees interesting country and, while he works plenty of hours, he may look forward to city conveniences in his remotely situated living quarters after the drudgery of camp making is completed, writes Alfred Barter to his parents here.

His letter, posted at C. C. Co. 842, Camp 13-A, Blue, Ariz., follows:

"I left Fort Bliss last Thursday and we arrived in Arizona Sunday. We stayed about five hours in Rincon, then we went to Silver City and stayed one night. We got up about 4 o'clock and left in army trucks that brought us to Arizona, stopping for dinner by a mountain stream. The water froze and stayed one night. We climbed mountains about four or five thousand feet high, and did we come around the mountains! We had a good driver, but one truck nearly ran off the side of the mountain."

"We stayed in Pine that night, and did it get cold! It is just now spring here we are.

"We arrived in Arizona and pitched camp. Our camp was in the wide open spaces with mountains all around us. We are about 7,500 feet above sea level and there are mountains 10,000 feet above us. Another night I climbed the mountain last night. This morning eight others and I hiked over to Blue, which is about three miles from our camp. We went to the top of the mountain and looked down at the valley. We are about 150 miles from a railroad, and the nearest town is about 70 miles from camp. We are around an old Indian reservation and I surely like it beautiful.

"It has rained four or five times in the last week, and it is raining tonight. I took a swim in the key stream and it sure makes you feel good. We are building our camp and soon we will have hot water. They are keeping us busy until we finish our camp. They are making a summer home for us. We are hunting and fishing camp. I hear that we will have to leave here about the first of September or be snow bound. We are around the place where the dead horse and started to death about two years ago. I think they are going to send us to another post here.

"We are going to Fort Bliss about the first of September. I think we will be allowed to keep our clothes. I hope so. The army surely did give us a pretty raincoat, but I guess it will be ruined before I get it. As I have to work in the rain and walking through the forest will surely tear them.

"Some of the boys are going to quit the first of July because they don't like the camp. I am going to stay the six months if I possibly can. It won't be so bad when we get our camp fixed so we won't have to work so long. Maybe it will be also. We are going to work on the road, however. The thing that is going to be hard is fighting fire. The companies next to our have already had one fire. Last night our camp got a fire to come and fight a blaze, and four boys went. They couldn't locate it; the rain put it out, likely.

"There certainly are plenty of campfires and poisonous insects of all sorts. Keeps one on the qui vive."

Boy Identified By School Ring

CHARLEROI, Pa.—A high school class ring on the body of a youth found at Big Spring, Texas, was given Eugene Jossion, 20, by Anna Reola, 20, to identify the body before he left for the west.

Jossion's family expressed belief he was slain in the box car. He had not planned to go to Texas, but intended to visit the Chicago exposition.

BIG SPRING—One of two questions arising out of mystery surrounding discovery of a decomposed body in a box car here June 14 has been answered with identification of the body.

It was identified Thursday as that of Eugene Jossion, Charleroi, Penn.

Identity was established by means of a ring given Jossion by a Charleroi school girl.

Justice Cecil Collins was notified Thursday that the body had been identified. A telegram from T. L. Pollock, superintendent of Charleroi schools, Jossion was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jossion, 209 Luella, Charleroi. The boy was listed as having a population of 12,000.

C. L. Melenzyer, Belle Vernon, Penn., requested information on cost of returning the body to Pennsylvania. Collins wired him Thursday morning but had not received an answer early in the afternoon.

The unanswered question is: How much did Eugene Jossion cost? A hole the size of a half dollar over his left ear indicated he died of violence.

Midland Day Designated at World Fair; Only Small Town in World So Honored

July 6 will be Midland day at the World's fair in Chicago.

Midland will be the only city in the world under a quarter of a million inhabitants to have a special day designated.

The special Midland day was designated on request of the Midland chamber of commerce. It frankly was a publicity stunt and will give Midland national regard.

Midland was the first city in the United States of fewer than 2,000,000 people to have a special day at the International Petroleum exposition at Tulsa. In fact, Chicago, New York, and Midland were the only cities in the world for two years to have special days at the show.

Following is a copy of a letter The Reporter-Telegram received from Roy A. Neal of the agents division of the Chicago World's fair regarding Midland day:

"We are promising to designate a specific day as 'Midland, Texas, Day.' We will follow through on this but this is a rare exception we are making and hope that Midland will appreciate it. Ordinarily, in order for us to designate a specific day for a city, the city must have a population of a quarter of a million with an assurance of 1,000 minimum attending in a group on the designated day and bringing their own band, with the attendant publicity. However, we will not disappoint our chamber of commerce secretary, as he already is making plans. We will designate July 6 as 'Midland, Texas, Day' as suggested."

"Now that we have accorded Midland this signal honor, Midland will, no doubt, want to make this a representative day of Midland and the best way to do this is through wide publicity in your locality, striving for as large attendance as possible. I believe you could easily stimulate enough interest to make up a special day for Midland. I assume you have streamers on the coaches announcing your identity and designation. If your publicity covers all neighboring towns, you can readily make this a banner day for your city."

COTTON CONTROL COMMITTEEMEN HERE ANNOUNCED

Miles and Mims have also donated their services for two years on the committee.

Europeans can now buy their prunes at lower prices because of the falling value of the American dollar.

ACREAGE REDUCTION CONTRACTS FOR COUNTY FARMERS EXPECTED SATURDAY

Contracts for farmers to sign in agreeing to reduce their cotton acreage for government subsidies are hoped to be ready to deliver to cotton growers of Midland county Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the district court room. ## Wart on Horse Disrupts Plans

W. F. alias Frank, alias Wart, alias Beary Roberts has been added to the list of Jelly Bean race jockeys. It was announced here Thursday by his backers, Roy John D. Rocky Holloway and Red Craddock.

Beary's mount has not been announced but he and his owners declare that it makes small difference to them whether the race is 100 yards or a mile long. They say Wart is ready, regardless of distance.

Some believed that he would ride Red Star, the bay race mare on which Craddock recently "started." He started to the Audie Francis ranch from Boggs, Evansville place in the morning, going after Red began kicking himself out of the brush. He declared that he erred in that he attempted to ride her with a stock saddle.

Beary Roberts rides at only 135 pounds plus whatever sort of saddle he uses.

E. McDonald, state commissioner of agriculture, in an explanation of the federal government's cotton acreage lease and retirement plan.

Invitations have been sent through newspapers, throughout this district and it is expected that more than 1,500 farmers will gather here, since those of this region are especially interested in the plan, due to unusually dry conditions at this time.

Rancher Kills Nine-Foot Lion with Rifle

EAGLE PASS—Probably the largest lion ever killed in this section of the country was brought down on the Arizona-Ranch in Coulters recently—done to death with bullets from a .22 calibre rifle.

A B. Harper, veteran cowboy, boasts the conquest. Settling out with two hound dogs, he gave chase to the Mexican lion, which has been sought for several years because of his depredations on goat, sheep and cattle herds. The dogs treed the animal after a long chase, and Mr. Harper killed him with several well-placed shots.

The lion measured 9 feet 3 inches from tip to tip, and weighed 210 pounds.

Judgment also will I lay to the line, and righteousness to the plummet; and the hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies, and the waters shall overflow the hiding place.—Isaiah 28:17.

BLOODHOUNDS TRACE BOYS TO HIDING PLACES

Four Charged with Murder of Prison Smithy Employee

MERIDIAN, June 23. (UP)—Grady Applegate of Wood county and Willard Scott of Oklahoma City were captured eight miles north of here early today. They were the last of the quartet who killed Foreman E. J. Leonard at Gatesville reformatory Wednesday to be captured.

They were held here. James Anderson of Fort Worth and Clarence Raines of Centerville, captured yesterday, were returned to Gatesville.

Goodhounds trailed Applegate and Scott to Morgan where they were found hiding in a box car. They did not resist arrest.

Deputy Will Baxter said Scott confessed he welded the ax which killed Leonard. Scott was weak from loss of blood from a wound he received Wednesday night when he was shot by a Meridian constable. The four will be held here indefinitely.

Farmers Told THEY MUST CUT FARM ACREAGE

ST. PAUL, June 23. (UP)—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace today warned farmers that they must restrict acreage or the government attempt to raise agricultural prices will be futile.

"The farm act offers opportunity. It is up to the farmers to make use of it," he said.

Secretary Wallace predicted that the carryover of wheat and flour will be 350,000,000 bushels, with exports for the season now closing totaling only 35,000,000. The wheat processing tax depends on the outcome of the international wheat conference, he said.

Daylight Saving Time Confusing

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UP)—When Joe Dille, a state commissioner, voted to put daylight saving time into effect here he didn't know what perplexing problems it would bring. A baby was born to the Dillees at 11:20 p. m. May 23 (mountain standard time) or 12:20 a. m. May 24 (daylight saving time).

Neither of the parents can decide whether Sunday or Monday was the baby's birthday.

Facts About State Revealed Recently

Residents of El Paso, Texas are closer to Los Angeles than they are to Beaumont or Port Arthur, Texas. Brownsville, Texas is farther from Dalhart, Texas than Dalhart is from North Dakota. Dalhart is nearer the capitals of six other states than it is to its own state capital.

Area compilations show the state, with 262,398 square miles, to be larger than pre-war Germany, larger than France and more than twice as large as England, Scotland and Ireland combined.

POPULAR GOVERNMENT STANDS THE TEST

Few congressional sessions in American history have seen more important work accomplished than the special session of the past spring. And few have done more to enhance Congress' reputation.

The Congress that convened in extraordinary session last March came to Washington at a moment when representative government in this country was more unpopular, probably, than at any time since the adoption of the constitution.

People were afraid, people were angry, people were deeply distrustful. They knew that the country needed swift and drastic action, and they did not believe that Congress was capable of furnishing it. If the president had refused to call a special session and had ruthlessly seized the legislative function for himself it is probable that many American would have applauded.

The president, of course, had no intention of doing any such thing. Congress convened, listened to what he had to say—and then proceeded to demonstrate that America's representative government can function just about as efficiently and intelligently as the severest critic could ask.

To be sure, Congress made mistakes. It kicked over the traces now and then; it indulged in a last round flare-up over cuts in veterans' compensations. But in the main it played ball. It gave the president just about what he asked for, and it gave it to him fast.

And this, perhaps, is as encouraging a thing as has happened all spring.

Our whole system of representative government was on trial when this Congress convened. People were impatient of delay, of protracted talk, of petty politics. If Congress had failed, a profound shift in our democratic form of government would have been almost inevitable.

Congress came through; and it came through, not because its members were finer, more patriotic men than the members of preceding Congresses, but because the right kind of leadership was forthcoming from the White House. It proved that the legislative branch of a democratic government can work efficiently and speedily if the executive branch knows how to demand it. It justified our traditional faith in our representative democracy.

OUR SAFER HIGHWAYS

For the first time there is an indication that the American people are learning how to handle their automobile traffic safely.

The National Safety Council points out that motor vehicle fatalities last year dropped for the first time since autos took to the highways. To be sure, fewer autos were being driven than in the year before; yet the reduction in traffic fatalities—about 13 per cent—was twice as great as the decrease in automobile travel, as gauged by gasoline consumption.

Of course, one swallow doesn't make a summer. The total of traffic deaths is still shockingly high; there is every reason to expect that it will continue to be so for many years. But it is encouraging to notice that we are at least making a start on the job of cutting it down. If we can continue with our safety campaigns, if we find new ways of regulating the flow of traffic and if individual drivers come to recognize more clearly their responsibility, we should be able to reduce the toll a little each year.

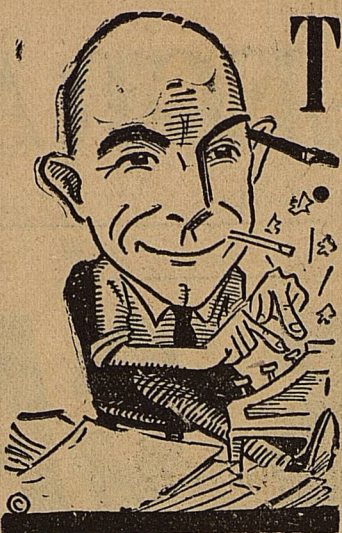

Surveying his handiwork on the following day, the amateur gardener now laboring with his first lawn is inclined to wonder whether, instead of digging up dandelions, he hadn't been setting them out.

A Washington dispatch relates that the daughter of a farming-state senator, having decided to raise a garden on a newly acquired tract in a Virginia community, went from store to store in quest of a package of potato seed. If you read the foregoing without smiling you, too, have yet to experience the pleasure of planting your first potato patch.

around their necks?" someone asked. She was equal to the occasion. "A lecturer said flapper's clothes resemble dish-rags, but he'd better leave the country before those flapper finds out what dish-rag looks like," she said.

A staff man said the visitor is pretty, petite and a few other adjectives. But may I remind him that just because a fellow prefers blondes that doesn't make him a gentleman.

Harold Becherer, our skylarking friend, told us of a couple that married in a plane and lived happily ever after. He said the wife did not object to one describing her husband as being flighty.

Mrs. Don Carlos Davis says the only males of this era who boss the household are under three years of age.

Rick Lewellen told a staff member any considerate motorist will give a woman half of the road if he knows which half she wants. And Eddie Blanche was quoted soon afterward as publicly saying by far the most scathing remark yet heard about women drivers was this: "Here comes one now!"

A little boy asked Harry Adams if he combed himself with a razor. Which reminds us, the first razor cure for dandruff was invented by a Frenchman. He called it the guillotine. That crack is directed at the barbers, but hold to your seats—here's another: The greatest predicament is shown in the case of the barber who contracted lockjaw. Which reminds us an author is taking legal action against a publisher because he received only 25 cents for 7,000 words. This is the very thing that's always burned up the barbers. And research records disclose the fact that the thing that weakened Sampson was protesting he didn't want a shampoo and massage.

Grains Needed for One Year Usually Produced on Farm

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is a continuation of a series on food required for a family of five for one year.

A farm can usually produce the grains needed in the diet. Whole wheat can be prepared for breakfast food by coarse grinding or chopping, or it may be canned whole. Hominy may be prepared for fresh use or for canning. Home ground corn meal is more likely to contain the whole grain, which is an advantage. For a family of five the amount of grains needed for one year totals 780 pounds; that is, 312 pounds of white and whole wheat flour, 312 pounds of corn meal, 52 pounds of rice and grains for cereals, 26 pounds of hominy, 52 pounds of grits, and 26 pounds additional grain foods from noodles, spaghetti and macaroni. Sweets required total 310 pounds.

Two cows bred to furnish 206 pounds of milk, 52 pounds of rice or hominy may replace one pound of sugar or one gallon of either may replace eight pounds of sugar. Sorghum or cane syrup is a good source of both lime and iron.

The lard and bacon from the hogs butchered and the butter from milk reserved for churning should furnish all the fat needed in the diet. The total amount is 234 pounds, 130 of butter, 52 of lard and 52 of salt pork and bacon.

Two cows bred to furnish a continuous supply of milk which is the most valuable single food of mankind. The one quart needed daily for each child and the one pint needed daily for each family may be divided between cooking and drinking. Ten gallons will be needed weekly for churning and one gallon or more for each pound of cheese made. The milk required totals 363 gallons.

INDIAN BABIES TAKE SUGAR FROM BILL CONNOR'S CHILDREN

LINDY CLUB GIVES BATH TO OIL SELLERS

The Hokus-Pokus playground ball club lost its first game of the season, when the Indian Babies of Doc Ellis lashed right merrily with the war club and Hokus-Pokus men stepped on their own shoe strings.

The score, 9-6, was nothing to compare with the score orchestrated by hundreds of leather throated gentry who shouted themselves hoarse as the deciding run trickled across. The sporting world loves a winner, but prefers the winner to be a club that rises from the depths in the role of a long shot and knocks off a high percentage aggregation.

Skipper Ellis blasted out a home run and waddled in with a tally that took the starch out of the Groceries' shelves. From there out they were like the cold turkey Bill Connor sells between the market counter.

ter. P. Cook had a good night catching balls and a better one sliding on his nose—but he came up with the ball. The boy qualified for one of the most sensational performances of the season.

The Lindy's, formerly described as a bit doddering, tossed aside their crutches and canes and administered a resounding spanking to the Blackmannen, though the score was only 4-3. Ed Estes hit one that went like a minnie ball, traveled four bases, tied the score and went into the home run lead for the league. Thereafter it was a cinch—with the mighty Ching Ramsey coming up to drive in the winning run. Ching circled the corners when no one threw to intercept him. Someone caught him before he could start a second lap.

DELICIOUS CEREAL OVERCOMES COMMON CONSTIPATION

ALL-BRAN Provides "Bulk," Vitamin B and Iron

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN meets a basic need of the American dietary. It supplies "bulk"—so helpful in correcting common constipation. In eleven years, ALL-BRAN has won millions of satisfied users.

New tests show added reasons for the success of ALL-BRAN. Laboratory experiments prove that, in addition to "bulk," it provides vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

The headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so often result from constipation can be overcome by this pleasant cereal. How much better than using pills and drugs.

ALL-BRAN is mild. Its "bulk" is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it absorbs moisture and forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. Chronic cases, with every meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Another benefit of ALL-BRAN is that it has twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Serve as a cereal, or use in cooking. Tempting recipes on the red and green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Reserving the Reservation

With the Indians

By R. C. Hankins

The regular conductor of this column, Mr. Jess Rodgers, is "out" again. With him that is no novelty. This time, he explains, some woman twitted him about his being a bachelor, telling him he has a selfish, callous, unscrupulous fellow who had cheated some worthy woman out of a divorce.

We might explain to the one who tossed the dart that the reason Jess hasn't married is the same that applies to the milkman—he sees women early in the morning.

Recently, a confidence man tried to steal 36 pounds from Georges Hill, m. He was knocked down by the ex-pugilist. The victim obviously thought it impossible that a heavyweight boxer would fight for so small a sum.

Tommy Irwin, local prize-fighter, told us that if all the heavyweights developed in recent years were laid end to end they would look natural.

Bill Moran, back from a minnow-catching expedition with Dr. Campbell, says a fellow he read about paid $500 for a bee, but that, while he was fishing, he would have given more, if he had it, for a certain mosquito bothering him. Dr. Campbell had a wise crack to make, as well; he said the mosquito, unlike a doctor, presents his bill before he works on you.

Andy Northington, a big gun with a smooth bore, made so many errors he shifted himself to first base. Imagine his embarrassment last night when a right handed hitter rolled on to him and beat the round one to the bag. Maybe Andy is getting like this department—a bit aged.

He should remember that and wear his hat. It's easier to check a hat than a cold. He's passed the vegetarian age; he's hobnobbing towards the octogenarian.

Ching Ramsey's feat in winding up on the bases after he had scored is another confirmation of absent mindedness in his family. Ching had an uncle who was a professor. One night he rolled under the desk and waited for his collar button to find him. Another uncle (libel laws should not extend to the sports column) was a friend of Capone, but, lighting a bomb, tossed the

Sixty-Eight-Year Old Man to Take Bar Examination

AUSTIN, (UP)—Mingled with the group of youngsters taking the state bar examinations here this month was white-haired D. E. Walsh of Fort Worth, confident that at 68 he can build up a law practice.

He is the oldest man to take the state bar examinations with the intention of practicing law as a profession.

Walsh read law many years ago. At the suggestion of a district judge in Fort Worth he recently decided to renew his studies with a view of admittance to the bar and practice.

Raised in Shackelford county, near old Fort Griffin, Walsh had an interesting career. He was a cowboy and then an officer in the stirring days of West Texas. He was a "big game" hunter and a deputy United States marshal at Colorado City, serving his deputyship under the noted Dick Ware.

While at Colorado City he helped build the Grand Saline hotel, his first salt in the old Lone Star state. Later he was called to Grand Saline to become superintendent of the salt works there. He was postmaster at Grand Saline for 19 years, serving under Presidents McKinley, Taft, Roosevelt, and Wilson. At Ft. Worth, he was for a number of years superintendent of the paper waste house, paper transfer and traffic of a Fort Worth publishing company.

The earliest banks on record were the national temples at Delphi and Delos, Greece.

Eighty million dollars has been estimated as the corporation indebtedness in the United States.

match away.

Rick Lewellen was having trouble in the box, so Ching pedaled out on a bicycle with a cool bottle of Coca Cola. Last year he broke up a game by taking a towel to the pitcher.

In both instances he forgot where he was and the pitchers had to show him the way back to the sidelines.

Doc Ellis and his Indians go to Big Lake Sunday. Did you ever notice the doc's nose? A sharp nose psychology used to tell us, indicates curiosity. However, a flattened nose indicates too much curiosity. At any rate, Doc wants to see if his nose and the pitchers had to show him the way back to the sidelines.

Our old friend, but not too old, Bryan C. Henderson and Mrs. Henderson (observe there's a comma at the right place) are golfing at Glen Rose. When he gets tired of his spade mashing around the tiny greens there we'll ask him to go to the Dallas office of the John Deere Plow company. There's a steno who will sell him something with which to take out divots comparable to his size.

These little girls who have been riding bicycles on the square should take warning. Such a rider with one eye was arrested recently for having his lamp out.

Those females at the tennis court at country club still make us miss points. We davis a hot of playing golf without a shirt, and they make cracks about it. We ventured to tell one of them her bow legs didn't look much better than her old back. "Bow legs are a sign of confidence," she comes back snappily. "They certainly are if their owner wears up to date tennis shorts," put in our caddy. Note: We played only nine holes that afternoon.

Lowe Pursues Dollars, Dames

"I Love That Man," drama of a woman's devotion to a man she knows is a crook, opens at the Ritz theatre with a preview Saturday night, and Sunday and Monday, with Edmund Lowe, Nancy Carroll, Robert Armstrong, Lew Cody, Warren Hymer, and Dorothy Burgess in the leading roles. Harry Joe Brown directed. The film was produced for Paramount by Charles R. Rogers.

Lowe sticks his tongue in his cheek in this drama of a woman's devotion to a black sheep, enacting the role of a slick "con-man," pursuing elusive dollars and dames. His exploits include the sale of words to a dictionary, tea to a bootlegger. In his leisure time, he promotes dames; finds, however, that love has promoted him when he meets Nancy Carroll.

The two join hands as partners in crime, sweep across country, loot the pockets of "dubs" in sundry rich-quick schemes. Finally evolve a deal to sell glass coffins to undertakers. It turns out so well that Nancy persuades him to go straight.

Good Will Tours to Advertise Carnival

BIG SPRING—Two good will trips to advertise the Carnival of Values have been planned by the advertising and publicity committee composed of Calvin Boykin, chairman; Pat Allen, Max Jacobs, and E. C. Jones. One route will be west and south, the other east and north.

All merchants in the Carnival of Values should make these trips," stated Mr. Boykin.

The first trip will cover 255 miles. The towns to be visited are Stanton, Midland, Odessa, Crane, McCombs, Rankin, Texon, East, Big Lake, Stiles and Garden City.

Lunch will be had in McCombs. This trip will probably take place on June 27.

Fred Dew and the Mexican Boy Scout Drum and Bugle Corps will accompany the caravan. Literature and other advertising matter will be given out on the trip.

The second trip will be taken on June 28. It will lead to Comanche, Westbrook, Colorado, Snyder, Gail, Lamesa and Ackerly.

Scientists Baffled At Pearls in Teeth

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UP)—Teeth set with pearls is the newest archaeological discovery in Pennsylvania. The teeth, taken from an Indian skull unearthed in Westernmoreland county, show pearl-like formations in the tooth or on the root proper.

The natural formations resembling pearls range from tiny spherical projections to one of good size. Scientists are baffled as to when and how the pearls got into the teeth. There are some who believe the formations resulted from eating certain foods, but actual proof of this theory has not been brought to light.

The pearl teeth have been placed on display in the Indian room at the Pennsylvania State Museum.

GOATS COST $2.50

SWEETWATER—Jack Boyd of Divide, recently bought 200 two-year-old nannie goats from J. A. Brashers, paying $2.50 a head. There were several kids thrown in. The goats were taken from the Brushy ranch 10 miles south of Sweetwater.

SWEETWATER—Most of the sheep and goats in Nolan county have been sheared, according to ranchmen who have moved most of their wool at good prices.

Mohair is selling around 20 cents a pound for grown hair and 40 cents a pound for kid hair, which has increased the earnings considerably in this county. Wool has reached 28 cents a pound.

Under the Dome Of the Capital

BY GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, Tex. June 22, (UP).—That Former Governor James E. Ferguson may again enter the field of politics personally by running for United States senator against Morris Sheppard, is being heard about Austin.

Liberal forces make no secret of the fact that they were disappointed that Gov. Ferguson did not name Congressman Joseph Weldon Bailey to call the wet convention of June 27 to order. They would have welcomed selection of Bailey whom they had hoped to pit against Sheppard.

If James E. Ferguson intends to match a race with Sheppard, the cards were well played to that end. By naming Senator Sheppard and B. Y. Cummings for the rural posts, the governor keeps Bailey out of the spotlight as Sheppard's opponent. Ferguson is outspokenly wet in the coming fight and has announced he will probably make a speaking campaign. If he can focus attention on himself as the chief opponent of the dries, led by Sheppard, he would be a logical candidate in event of a wet victory August 2.

Senator Tom Connally, who will vote dry, has a race coming up before that of Senator Sheppard. A wet victory on August 26 may give him an outstanding opponent, State Senator Welly (cq) K. Hopkins of Gonzales, is mentioned as the possible opponent.

The gubernatorial race more now than ever appears likely to have Attorney General James V. Allred in it. He refuses to discuss it but gets evident pleasure out of the references being made to him as "the next governor."

The list may also contain Mrs. Ferguson as a candidate for re-election though many Ferguson stalwarts have proposed that Speaker Coke Stevenson of Junction be a candidate. If her husband decides to run against Sheppard, it would help his chances for her to hold another term as governor.

Lieut. Gov. Edgar I. Witt of Waco and Tom Hunter of Wichita Falls runner-up of the Ferguson-Sterling campaign, can definitely be counted upon as entrants in next year's primaries. Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman, might be in if he does not run for attorney general. W. D. Cline of Wichita Falls, president of the West Texas chamber of commerce, mentioned as a possible candidate last time, might be available timber if the clash over whether federal relief for Texas must pass through Austin or go direct to communities becomes acute. At present, rivalry is keen between the regional chamber of commerce plan and the central state plan. It might become a state issue.

The next session of the state highway commission is to be held in the large hearing room of the new state highway building.

Completion of the $500,000, nine-story, modernistic office structure means the moving of numerous state offices. The state highway department, which had its first office in the West Texas chamber of commerce building, is moving to the new building. The latter has been occupying space in the state capitol.

Quarters in the land office building, vacated by the state highway department will be used by the state accident board, which now occupies rooms off the house and senate galleries in the main capitol.

A floor of the new building will be used for the state board of water engineers, the state reclamation department and affiliated activities.

The state auditor's office, which occupied temporary quarters in the governor's reception room at the capitol, now turned over to the state relief commission, will be housed in the old Travis county court house.

This building renovated and remodeled, was built by the county on a lot leased from the state. When the county decided on a new court house recently the lease was turned back, the state buying the old building. In its renewed state it has been designated as the "Walton" building. The name is in memory of an early Austin attorney.

Whether the divisions of the state department of education can all be grouped under the new arrangements seems doubtful. It is now badly scattered. There are divisions on various floors of the state capitol and in the "Walton" building.

Basement of the new building will house records of all departments.

To Debunk Old Dog Trick Adage

FORT WORTH, (UP)—A large number of grown-ups here are determined to debunk the old adage: "You can't teach an old dog new tricks."

With that in mind, and determined to prepare themselves for the best that life can offer in what they hope is to be a new era of business prosperity, men and women, mothers and fathers, have enrolled in a first vocational school here this summer.

Some of them, as old as 55, look arms with their sons or daughters and march to school to learn new "tricks." Nearly 1,000, a great many of them elderly persons, have enrolled for the summer session.

Changing business methods, encroachment of machines and other causes of unemployment have brought these men and women to realize their incompetency in a rapidly changing world. Entrants have enrolled for varied pursuits.

One 49-year-old father, a former telegraph operator, has joined his son in a course in bookkeeping and machine calculation.

A theatre organizer, shunted aside by sound pictures and who has been unemployed for two years, is taking a course in commercial art.

A 54-year-old farmer, father of 11 children, receives instruction in salesmanship.

Numerous similar cases are listed. Many reasons for seeking vocational training are given, but predominant among them is the factor of a changing business environment and preparation for a new era.

SWEETWATER—Olie Boyd of the Double Heart ranch sold five registered Hereford bulls last week at $45 per head.

He also bought 125 cows and 100 calves from Joe Eddy Hall of Water Valley at around $80 a head. The cattle were trucked from the Water Valley ranch to the Double Heart ranch, and required five large trucks. Pete Tyrone of Dora hauled the cows.
