Board expected to hire principal

Selection of a new high school principal will be the primary business for a special meeting of the Big Spring School District Board of Trustees, to be at 5:15 p.m. Thursday, at the Board Room in the High School.

Superintendent Bill McQueary said he had received 33 applications for the post, and that three to five of the applicants merited a closer look from the Board.

McQueary said that he would give the Board a recommendation for the post that evening.

Local man in stable condition

By KERRY HAGLUND

A Big Spring man injured in an automobile accident Monday near Stanton is in stable, but guarded condition in the intensive care unit of the Scenic Mountain Medical Center, a hospital spokeswoman said today.

Another man is in good condition at the Martin County Hospital and a third man was treated and released after the Monday morning accident.

Billy Mitchell Ballard, 59, Route 3 Box 57, sustained internal injuries when the car he was driving collided with a vehicle parked in the outside lane of an overpass on Interstate 20 about 5 a.m. Monday, according to a Department of Public Safety spokeswoman.

Dayle Duane Motley, 48, 2409 E. 25th St., is "doing well," according to a Martin County hospital spokeswoman, who said he suffered head injuries.

Kent Ballard, 18, Route 3 Box 57, was treated and released from Scenic Mountain Medical Center for facial cuts. He was a passenger in the vehicle driven by Billy Ballard.

Ballard was reportedly traveling west on I-20 and began traveling the east side of an overpass when he struck the rear of a vehicle parked in the outside lane without its lights on. The parked vehicle was knocked 135 feet into a guard rail and Ballard's vehicle was knocked 81 feet before hitting the same guard rail, according to the accident report.

The accident occurred one mile north of Stanton on Interstate 20 and about 1/4 mile from the Highway 137 overpass.

According to the accident report, Motley had left the scene before authorities had arrived and was found walking 1/2 mile west of the scene.

He was cited for being a drunk pedestrian and failure to maintain financial responsibility.

Ballard was cited for failure to wear a seatbelt.

Being parked in a traffic lane without lights and being under the influence of alcohol were listed on the report as contributing factors in the accident.

Local prison numbers set a record

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

A Big Spring Prison Camp official said this morning inmates numbers at the camp have reached a record level — 723. He also confirmed reports Monday that the camp is operating at approximately 50 percent above capacity.

Despite the numbers, officials do not consider it to be "a problem that we're not prepared to cope with."

The prison camp has operated with approximately 715 inmates for the past 1 1/2 months, Assistant Superintendent Lloyd McMillan said. The number of inmates changes on an hourly basis because of daily admissions and releases, he said. The total increased by eight within the past 24 hours.

The Dallas Morning News reported Tuesday the nation's prison system is "bulging at the seams with about 150 percent more inmates than its units' rated capacity, far exceeding the overcrowding at Texas' state prisons."

McMillan said Morning News figures that Big Spring Federal Prison Camp had 717 prisoners and a capacity of 482 accounting for an inmate population 49 percent above capacity were accurate. The numbers were based on June 4 records from the U.S. Bureau of Prisons.

McMillan said Monday's inmate count stood at 715 inmates and capacity was 480. This morning the count had risen to 723.

"It's been over capacity for the two years that I've been here," McMillan reported.

"I don't think it's a problem that we're not prepared to cope with," he said of the overcrowding.

However, McMillan reported "the increase in staff has not kept pace with the percentage increase of inmates." The prison employs 130 people, he said.

McMillan explained that the prison has no control over the number of inmates it houses.

"We can't say to the U.S. marshal 'we have no more room' — obviously we would like to have 480 inmates," he said.

"We don't want to be in a situation of being overcrowded, but in the case of Big Spring, we are making the best of a bad situation."

McMillan said he sees overcrowding as a more serious problem at maximum security prisons, which house inmates convicted of violent crimes.

Most Big Spring inmates are first-time offenders and non-violent offenders, McMillan said. They are accounted for five times a day, which becomes time consuming as the number of inmates rises, he said.

Federal officials contend that unlike Texas' prisons, which are under a federal court order to ease overcrowding and improve conditions, federal prisons can operate constitutionally because they are able to maintain acceptable levels of safety, sanitation and other services, the Morning News reported.

McMillan said the federal prison system has a goal to have the crowding levels reduced to 20 percent over rated capacity by 1993.

However, all projections indicate a permanent increase in the number of inmates, he said.

A proposed expansion of the Big Spring Prison Camp did not materialize because of the increase in inmates, but because facilities need to be upgraded, McMillan said.

City budget cutting will be examined

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

The 1987-88 city budget will be on the table for cutting Wednesday morning as department heads meet behind closed doors, said Finance Director Tom Ferguson.

Officials are expecting a considerable drop in revenues from this year, but figures haven't been developed yet, he said.

However, Ferguson said he is not going to recommend a tax increase to the City Council. He hopes to have the budget proposal ready for Council attention next week.

The Council meeting probably will be an all-day or a two-day workshop, he said.

"It's going to be very tight. We're going to have to review it very diligently to come up with a budget," he said.

Department heads will discuss which items can be cut at the Wednesday meeting, he said.

Some capital expenses probably will be among the casualties, but cutting employees or benefits has not been considered, he said. He added that the latter item is usually discussed, "but how seriously is another question."

Officials expect to have to revise this budget in January, to effect necessary changes, he said.

In a 1986-87 fiscal year budget revision in March, the city general fund was reduced by $102,440, to $6.7 million. Reduction of capital expenses and deferred paybacks to the revolved capital fund were the primary changes made, City Manager Mack Wofford said.

The general fund is "pretty well pared down to a bare bones operation," accountant James Welch told the Council at that time. Welch presented the annual audit report at a February Council meeting.

He said city expenditures exceeded by $267,000 the $6.6 million received in revenues for 1986, he said.

However, the city did not go into debt because it had funds left over from the previous year, Ferguson has said.

Horsin' around

Riding can be a pleasure, but half the fun is getting mounted, as these two Big Spring youngsters know. Five-year-old Anna Marie Faught got some assistance Monday evening from Faye Saucy, 12, daughter of Bill and Marge Saucy. Anna Marie is the daughter of Shawn and Lee Faught and was participating in a parade practice session at the Youth Horsesmen's Arena along the Garden City highway. A quarter horse show is planned for Saturday at the site.

Forsan sets reduced budget

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

FORSAN — The School Board approved a tentative budget for the 1987-88 school year of $3,421,972, a 2 percent reduction from last year's budget.

Superintendent J.F. Poynor said he did not anticipate that figure changing between now and Aug. 17, when the Board will approve its final budget.

Despite having a tentative budget, Poynor said he could not say what the tax rate would be until after property values are set in July.

In other business, the Board:

• Voted unanimously to raise the prices for school meals from: 25 to 35 cents for a student's breakfast; 50 to 70 cents for a student's lunch; 50 cents to 75 cents for a school affiliated adult's breakfast and $1 to $1.50 for lunch; and $3 to $4 for an outside adult's lunch.

Poynor said the increase in meal prices was the first at Forsan in 10 years.

Without the increases, the district would have fallen

$90,000-$95,000 short of expenditures for the food service program, Poynor said. He estimated the increases will save approximately $20,000 of that amount.

Poynor said Forsan meals would still be cheaper than at most schools. Board president Rip Patterson said that a 50 cent lunch was the "buy of the year."

In a related matter, the Board voted to use food service personnel to prepare food used in concessions at athletic events — a move that Poynor said would avoid an addi-

Coahoma sticking with 10% pay cut

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Personnel and budget matters highlighted last night's meeting of the Coahoma School Board as members voted to maintain a 10 percent pay cut for non-degreed workers and named a new high school principal.

The board also rejected a superintendent's proposal for a teachers' salary increase.

Mary Womack, cafeteria supervisor, asked board members to ease the 10 percent pay cut assigned to personnel in her department. She said that the cafeteria was a profit-making operation and state law prohibits spending revenue from cafeteria operations on outside programs.

Board president Jim Wright sympathized with Womack, but said that the board had to stick to the guidelines they had set. Member Jimmy Sterling echoed Wright's position, saying if cafeteria workers' pay cut was reduced, Board members would have to ease the cut of other personnel as well.

Member Stanley Phillips sided with the cafeteria workers, saying that the Board shouldn't have mandated a bigger pay cut for them than that for teachers and administrators, which is 5 percent.

Board members then voted 4-3 to maintain the pay cut at proposed levels.

Womack said after the meeting that she and her staff were going to "hang in there" and hope for the best.

"We'll go along (with the pay cut), but it won't do any good," she said. "Because I'll have to hire more help. I'm not going to make my women work so hard. We lost the battle, but I'm going to hang in there."

Treasurer cautioning legislators on budget

AUSTIN (AP) — Failure during the Legislature's special session to enact a permanent solution to Texas' continuing money woes would send a bad signal to Wall Street, State Treasurer Ann Richards warns.

"It may be that (in) this session of the Legislature, the best thing we're going to get is some temporary address to our problems. I'm sorry about that if that turns out to be the case," she said after a budget briefing conducted Monday by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Another temporary solution, Ms. Richards said, "undoubtedly is going to result in a very long, hard look at the dedication of the leadership of the state of Texas to deal with the problems that the state is facing."

During his briefing for about 50 business leaders, Hobby urged that the state's fiscal crisis not be solved by slashing spending on human services or education programs.

"We cannot afford to balance our budget at the expense of human services and higher education," Hobby said. "Recent budget cuts have damaged our colleges and universities. So far, it is not irreparable, but another round of reductions might be."

Hobby said some business leaders discussed the possibility of a state income tax during the hour-long meeting, but he said he doubted that would be enacted.

The lieutenant governor said he expected the Legislature's answer this summer would be a temporary tax surcharge — on the sales tax and other levies — to get the state through the 1988-89 budget period.

"I doubt that there's going to be any major revision of the tax structure this summer. I think what we'll see is probably ... a surtax on the sales tax and all other taxes to get us by a difficult period," Hobby said.

"Surtaxes are kind of the traditional way of avoiding thinking through a problem," he said.

Hobby said he would propose a "starting point" for budget negotiations in the special session beginning June 22 that would require a $6.7 billion tax increase for 1988-89.

"That is an enormous amount of money to raise," Hobby said. "Therefore, reductions most likely will be made in this starting point budget in the next few weeks."

But during his news conference, Hobby declined to say where cuts might come. He said he considered the proposal totaling about $39.3 billion too low.

"I think this is below an acceptable level," he said.

tional $5,000 from the food service deficit.

Poynor had recommended using food service personnel at games to cut losses in that department, to have better food, and to lessen the chance of food poisoning. Poynor said the food service personnel would not be paid extra for the extra work, but he said he believed they would be willing to do it.

Board member Lee George said he was concerned that the junior and senior classes needed the money made with concessions for special events, such as the senior trip.

High school principal Jack Woodley said "the parents do the work and the kids get all the glory." He said he could name the one or two parents who would end up working the concessions. He recommended letting the food service personnel handle the concessions.

Patterson said that juniors make money for juniors, but money saved by using food service personnel would benefit all the tax payers in the district.

At George's suggestion, the Board decided to let the juniors and seniors sell the concessions and let the food service personnel handle preparation and organization. The junior and senior classes will receive 25 percent of the profits, and the district will receive the remaining 75 percent.

Agreed, upon Poynor's recommendation, to create a committee to study the district's sick leave and disability leave policy. Poynor said employees are allotted 8 sick leave days per year by the district.

He explained that the district has an incentive plan in which employees receive one half-day's pay for each unused sick day accrued up to 60 days. That money is paid when the employee leaves the district.

district.

"There's quite a potential for accrued liability within the district," Poynor said. He warned that the legislature or courts could change the law to prohibit districts from reimbursing employees for sick leave.

Poynor said such a change could cause severe morale problems among teachers expecting their accrued sick leave pay. He recommended formation of the committee to study the issue and to educate the employees and board members.

The Board told Poynor to select a committee, which he said will include a board member, an administrator, and a group of teachers that is "reflective of different types."

Voted to decrease the open hours of the gym and to continue to keep the weight room open at all hours. The gym will be open the same hours as the swimming pool — Tuesday through Sunday from 2:5 p.m. and Tuesday and Friday from 6-8 p.m.

Woodley said there have been no problems caused by the weight room's hours, and that it is used by "some pretty diligent kids" who lift weights at night after work.

Decided to use West Texas Roofing to make roof repairs that Poynor said would be under $5,000. The 21-year old shop roof needs repair the most, Poynor said.

Voted to install a speed bump by the gymnasium, after Poynor requested they do so.

Voted to take bids for the district's buildings, legal liability, vehicle and health insurance needs.

Voted to offer an insurance package for students, although Poynor said the students won't be required to be insured and the school isn't required to insure students. The district will offer insurance from the same company that handled Forsan's insurance last year.

The district bought the insurance for the last two years, but decided at an earlier board meeting not to do so this year.

Decided, after taking bids, to continue banking at First National Bank in Big Spring.

Voted to cancel the delinquent tax attorney's contract after Business Manager Rob Roberson recommended they do so. Roberson said the Austin firm of Huey & Vasalka hadn't done any work for Forsan in 18 months.

Poynor said the district probably will seek a new delinquent tax attorney.

Hired John Stilwell to be the new director of maintenance and accepted the resignations of part-time teacher Suzanne Haney and assistant football coach Steve Park. He accepted a job as head football coach at Coahoma. The Board hired Colleen Slaughter to replace Haney.

Changed July's Board meeting to Monday, July 27.

table middle ground," Hobby said.

Hobby noted that lawmakers also failed in two special sessions last summer to permanently repair the state's tax-and-spending structure.

"Very little has changed except that our circumstances are even more urgent," he said.

Ms. Richards said that between $1 billion and $1.5 billion in state notes need to be sold soon to provide a shot of cash when the new fiscal year begins Sept. 1, and to sell those notes lawmakers must enact a budget by Aug. 1.

Police beat

Screen doors damaged

Vandals damaged three screen doors and a yard ornament between 3 and 4 a.m. Monday, police reports said.

Screen doors at the residences of Ernestine Rennaux, 2412 Alabama St.; Julie Herbert, 1908 Morrison St.; and Marcus Hayworth, 2104 Morrison St., were damaged extensively, possibly by kicking, the reports said.

A porcelain deer yard ornament at the residence of Mary Townsend, 2102 Alabama St., also was damaged.

Thieves stole a red 1983 Chevrolet Camaro with the doors unlocked and the keys inside, between 12 and 7 a.m. Monday, according to police reports. The car was stolen from 538 Westover Road Apt. 231, the residence of Jackie Merrick, who owns the vehicle.

Police arrested a man they said attempted to leave Vernon's Liquor Store, 602 S. Gregg St., Monday afternoon with six bottles of liquor, valued at $83.90. Arrested was Tommy Lee Johnson, 34, 1502 Bluebird St., on a charge of theft over $20. He was transferred to the county jail and released on $750 bond.

Thieves stole two batteries, valued at $224, from cars at Bob Brock Ford, 500 W. Fourth St., between 4 p.m. Saturday and 9:30 a.m. Monday, according to police reports.

Someone stole $75 cash from a coin-operated machine at the Scenic Mountain Medical Center coffee room between 12 p.m. Friday and 12 p.m. Monday, police reports said.

Teresa Berkley, 1909 N. Monticello St., told police that someone stole her child's bicycle, valued at $110, between 7 and 10 a.m. Monday.

Keith Gamel, 23, 1911 S. Johnson St., was arrested at 2900 W. Highway 80 Monday night on a charge of driving without a license, second offense, according to police reports.

At the same time, police arrested Ernest Hollis Cunningham, 1012 W. Third St., on a Weatherford warrant for driving while intoxicated.

Joe Vera Jr., 30, 1301 Scurry St., was arrested at 900 W. Fourth St. early this morning on a charge of driving with a suspended license, police reports said.

The Wall

Visitors to the Moving Wall read the names of the men and women who did not return from Vietnam. The Vietnam Wall Committee will meet at 8 p.m. at the Chamber of Commerce office Wednesday. The public is invited. The Wall is scheduled to be in Big Spring September 30 to October 6.

Boy on bike hit by car, few injuries

Superintendent Jerry Doyle said, "We really hate to lose her. In my opinion, she's the best English teacher I've been associated with in my 20 years of school work."

Tabled a proposal from Vocational Agriculture instructor Stanley Blackwell. He proposed limiting himself to a half-day of teaching, citing time restrictions as the reason. He also suggested that the Board hire another instructor to take some of his classload. The Board decided to delay action until its next meeting.

He reported that the district had collected $3,129,644 this year — 98 percent of projections. He expressed confidence that the percentage would be raised to 99. He also reported that 1987-88 property values would be approximately $200 million after exemptions.

Approved Chapters I and II federal expenditures for the district.

A Big Spring boy riding a bicycle suffered injuries when he was hit by a car at 5:46 p.m. Monday at Randolph Street and Wasson Road. Israel Martinez, 13, 2614 Dow St., suffered minor injuries, police reports said.

He was riding his bike in the right lane on Randolph Street when he attempted to turn left in front of an approaching vehicle, the reports said.

The auto was a 1986 black Ford pickup driven by Tracy Eileen Wright, 24, 2606 Fairchild. 1-year-old Kyrie Wright of the same address was a passenger.

The driver braked but could not avoid hitting Martinez, police reports said. The truck left 10 feet of skid marks.

cut for the coming year, they deserved to know that the district was trying to get them a raise.

Wright said the Board first needed to establish operating capital and lower the tax rate. The Board concurred with Wright's sentiments, and Doyle withdrew his recommendation.

Unanimously selected Steve Parks as the new head football coach and athletic director.

A former Coahoma assistant, he spent the last four years as an assistant to Coach Jan East at Forsan. Parks previously served as head coach at Stanton and coached at Bronte.

Hired two additional teachers: Michael Buchenau, high school English, and Linda Neighbors, elementary.

Accepted the resignations of three teachers: Sheila Abusaab, Eddie Hill, and Faye Parks.

Abusaab resigned to take a teaching assignment with the Big Spring school district. Coahoma

C-City to vote on sales tax increase

Colorado City voters will have a chance Aug. 8 to decide whether to increase the local sales tax by one-half of one percent and to decrease property taxes the same amount.

City Manager Brenda Tarter estimated the cost of the election at $1,000. If approved, the sales tax increase and property tax decrease will take effect Jan. 1. Tarter said there will be about a 25 percent decrease in property tax revenue if the measure is approved.

The Council has approved an ordinance amending the taxation chapter of the city code relating to telecommunications services.

By amending the ordinance, Tarter said the city may be able to regain about $6,000 in lost tax revenues since the split between Southwestern Bell Telephone and

AT&T. The city will be able to impose a franchise tax on all telecommunications companies that offer long-distance service to local telephone customers.

The Council also pledged its support to the Little League, which wants to build another field at Ruddick Park to accommodate the growing program. Officials hope to have the field completed by next year.

DWI suspect out on bond

Blen B. Brewster, 61, Crane, was released from custody Monday evening on a $1,500 bond after being arrested earlier on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, second offense.

Two out-of-state residents were released from the Howard County jail Monday afternoon. The two were arrested on suspicion of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle Sunday. Phillip Alan Gibbs, 23, McClaire, Va., and Richard Staples, 25, San Diego, Calif., were released after the state of California and Texas declined to file charges against the two, according to sheriff records.

Eugene Marquez, 28, 705 N. Douglas St., was released on a $1,500 bond Monday after being arrested by city police on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

Officials work on plea bargain

SAN ANTONIO — Defense and prosecution lawyers are working on a plea bargain arrangement that would call for a San Antonio man to tell authorities where they can find the body of his stepdaughter, the San Antonio Light reported today.

Ray Moberg, 39, remains jailed in lieu of bonds totaling $2 million on at least 15 charges.

Authorities have been attempting to find the body of Debbie Moberg, 18, a senior at MacArthur High School who has been missing since Jan. 9 when she and Moberg's 8-year-old daughter were abducted.

The suspended EMS technician was charged with seven counts of aggravated sexual assault, six aggravated kidnapping charges, and one count each of burglary and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. The charges include sexually assaulting his own 8-year-old daughter.

Without the body, authorities cannot prosecute Moberg for murder.

The newspaper quoted sources as saying the plea bargain arrangement was being considered, but neither District Attorney Fred Rodriguez nor defense attorney Steve Hilbig would comment directly about the report Monday.

Investigators Friday received information that the body of 18-year-old Deborah Moberg may be buried in a Southeast Side landfill, authorities said.

Assistant City Manager Bill Donahue said a decision on the search at the undisclosed site will be announced today.

Juror sent to psychiatric ward

DALLAS — A judge has ruled that the punishment phase of the trial of a man convicted in the slaying of a convenience store customer can continue with only 11 jurors.

State District Court Judge Ron Chapman made the ruling Monday in the case of one of the jurors who convicted Andre Lewis in the 1985 slaying of Matt McKay of Oklahoma City.

He said the juror, who suffered an apparent nervous breakdown, could be dismissed without declaring a mistrial in the case.

The juror, a 66-year-old man, was admitted to Methodist Hospital for 90 days of psychiatric care.

Lawyers for Lewis contend that the juror, who was not identified, could have been mentally unstable.

A Dallas County psychiatrist who examined the juror said the "acutely psychotic" condition that suddenly incapacitated the juror may have been a stress-related problem triggered by the five-day murder trial.

"You could tell he was preoccupied with this trial," Cliff Cornett of the Dallas County Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center said. "He somehow thought he was involved in the crime itself. My examination revealed that this man had poor judgement."

White found guilty of murder again

McKINNEY — Robert Excell White, who has been on Texas' death row longer than anyone, could be sentenced to death again.

In a retrial ordered by a Texas appeals court, White, 49, was convicted Monday for a second time of capital murder for killing a Collin County grocer more than a decade ago.

A Collin County jury, which deliberated about 2 1/2 hours before returning the guilty verdict, was instructed to return this morning for the punishment phase.

The prosecution was seeking the death penalty again.

Testimony in the retrial ended Monday morning, as proceedings went into their second week in state District Judge John Roach's court.

The jury began deliberations about 3 p.m. and returned with a verdict 2 1/2 hours later.

White was convicted in 1974 and sentenced to death for the May 11, 1974 murder of grocer Preston Broyles, 73.

Two 18-year-old customers — Gary Coker and Billy St. John — also were shot to death in the Hilltop Grocery near Princeton, a community seven miles southeast of McKinney, but White was tried only for Broyles' murder.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals overturned the conviction in March on grounds that White was not told that what he said to a court-appointed psychiatrist could be used against him.

Jury to decide Davis suit today

FORT WORTH — A jury will be asked for perhaps the final time today to determine if millionaire defendant Cullen Davis was the man in black who gunned down four persons at the showplace Davis mansion on a hot summer night in 1976.

Two died, including a 12-year-old girl.

Attorneys were to swap closing arguments and then surrender

Davis' financial fate to a jury of eight women and four men.

Jurors were expected to get the multimillion-dollar wrongful death case by midafternoon.

Davis, 53, an heir to a vast oil-related fortune, is accused in consolidated civil suits of killing two and wounding two in a bloody shooting spree 11 years ago at the glittery white mansion that he once called his "dream home."

Rooster postpones 'Animal' trial

BELTON — Jerry "Animal" McFadden's capital murder trial has been delayed for a week because a rooster severely injured one of the jurors.

District Judge F.L. "Tiny" Garrison said he had been assured by juror Johnny Herring's physician that Herring would be able to serve by next Monday.

The judge said Herring, 41, a city electrical inspector in Temple, was injured Monday when a rooster attacked him and left two deep wounds in his leg.

Opening arguments in the trial had been scheduled to begin today.

Garrison said he did not know how Herring was attacked. News reporters were unable to contact

Herring because of a gag order issued that prohibits people involved in the trial from talking to the news media. The juror's wife told one reporter that the bird had spurred her husband while he was feeding chickens in the yard about 6 a.m. Monday.

"I feel this is the best alternative I have at this point. By the time we called in another panel of prospective jurors and seated one, Mr. Herring would have been up and around. So, I see no point in going to the added expense and time," Garrison said.

McFadden, 39, is accused in the May 1986 slaying of Suzanne Harrison, 18, a Hawkins High School cheerleader. The trial was moved to Belton on a change of venue from Upshur County.

Team rescues four in two incidents

AUSTIN (AP) — Two Dallas men floating in inner tubes on Town Lake were saved by a Fire Department rescue team after they went through a floodgate at Longhorn Dam and were trapped in a vicious undertow.

Scott Drake, 22, and Robert Gunn, 23, became caught in swirling currents that pulled them underwater and back toward the dam after they went through the floodgate, officials said.

Both men, who were visiting in Austin, were later arrested for violating a city ordinance against swimming in Town Lake.

"We were just going to float down the Colorado River," Drake said after being pulled from the water Monday.

"We didn't know the dam was there until we approached it, and it started to pull me down," he said. "It just kept moving me around and pulling me down. At one point I was underwater for about 10 seconds. I thought I was going to die."

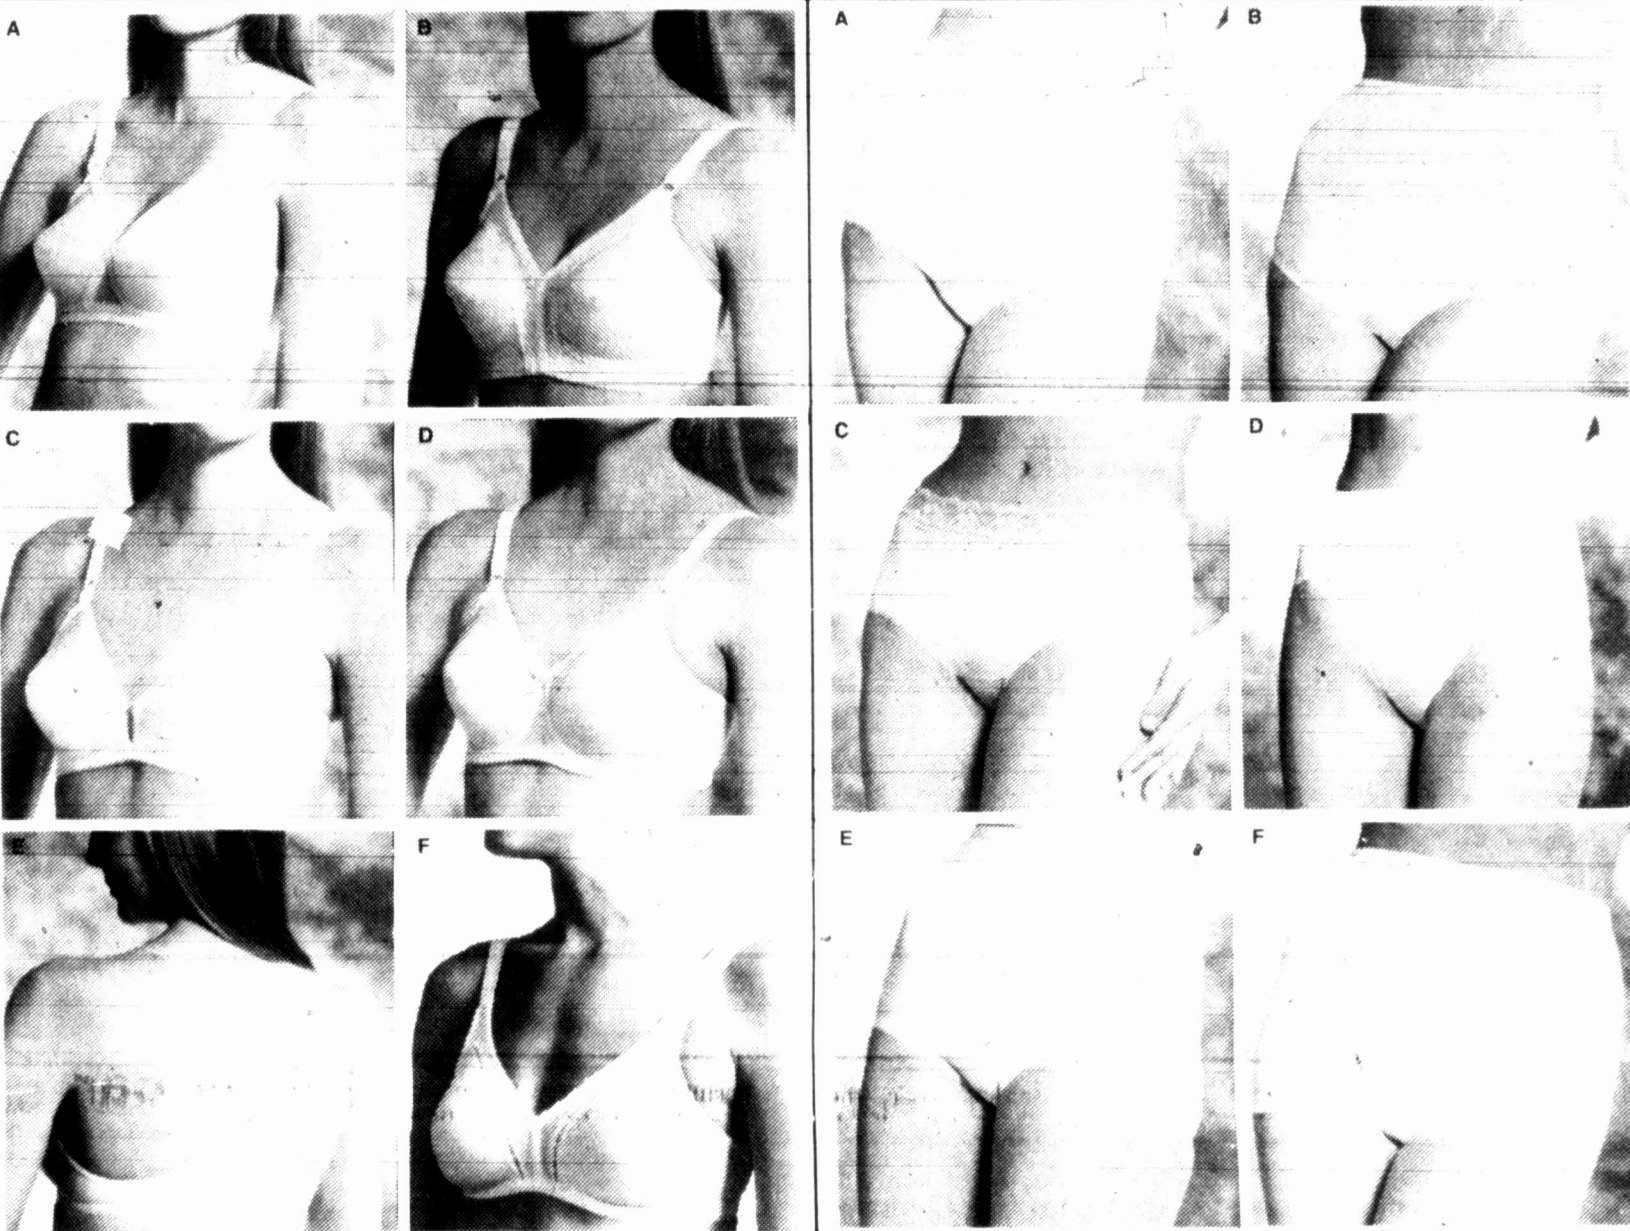

Emergency Medical Services officials said the men on the inner tubes were lucky to escape the churning waters.

"What they got caught in is a perfect drowning machine because the waters there create a hydraulic effect," said Gordon Beigh, an EMS supervisor. "It just pulls you back and forth. You come up for a short time, then it pulls you back down."

Later Monday, firefighters rescued two other men who abandoned their small boat after it got pulled into swift water at Tom Miller Dam.

Neither man was injured, but the boat broke into pieces as it went through the floodgate.

Opinion

SSC efforts not complete waste

We are disappointed by the decision of the Garden City SSC Commission and Permian Basin leaders to halt the campaign to bring the superconducting supercollider to the Garden City site.

But we continue to praise the cooperative efforts by the leaders in the four area communities — Odessa, Midland, Big Spring and San Angelo. Their foresight realized the many benefits of the scientific project, and prompted them to make the major effort to bring it to West Texas.

We know that the failure to attract the project to Garden City wasn't the result of a lack of effort. We suspect, instead, that political tomfoolery was responsible for elimination of the Garden City site.

Crying over spilled milk, however, resolves nothing. But we believe something very positive resulted from the local SSC proposals.

It was the spirit of cooperation by the leaders of the four communities. We believe that cooperation must continue and will substantially increase this area's ability to improve its industrial and economic situation.

The four communities can offer so much more in population, resources and versatility through continued cooperation to attract other major industrial or economic developments. The term that applies is synergy, which means the results of combined efforts by several entities can be many times more effective than the total of the individual efforts.

In addition, we think area leaders now should join the continued statewide effort to bring the SSC to either the Dallas or Amarillo sites. It was pointed out months ago that all of Texas will benefit, regardless of which SSC site is selected within the state.

Synergistic efforts for both the SSC in Texas and Permian Basin industrial developments can only lead to a better future for West Texas residents.

Japan economy has trouble now

Take heart, America. Three monkey wrenches have been thrown into Japan's well-oiled economic machine. It's only a matter of time before that powerful engine of productivity begins to sputter and fail.

What could cause such a sharp turnaround?

High interest rates? Increased unemployment? Lower productivity? No, it's something much more economically debilitating — and permanent.

Three American lawyers have become the first foreign attorneys permitted to practice law in Japan. What's more, two of them are from New York! The decline has begun.

Japan has one attorney for every 10,000 residents, compared to the U.S. ratio of one attorney for every 390 residents. For every 100 attorneys trained in Japan, there are 1,000 engineers. In the United States, that ratio is reversed.

But a law that became effective on April 1 permits foreigners to practice in Japan for the first time since 1955. Already, an additional 20 American and six British lawyers have applied for permission to open practices in Japan.

Soon, American attorneys may be as common in Japan as Japanese autos and electronics products are in the United States.

If anything can slow the Japanese economy, it's the presence of American attorneys. What better way to even our balance of trade than to send Japan our costliest surplus commodity?

Brits in Ireland faked CIA documents in attempt to link agency with IRA

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — British Intelligence printed and circulated fake CIA identity cards in Northern Ireland in the early 1970s in an attempt to discredit the U.S. spy agency, according to a former senior official in the British Army.

According to the official, Colin Wallace, the point of the bizarre counterfeiting operation was to link the CIA with the outlawed Irish Republican Army, which has carried out terrorist attacks for years in hopes of forcing the British out of Northern Ireland. Wallace was a senior information officer at British Army headquarters in Lisburn in the late 1960s and early 1970s.

Wallace, who has since spent six years in prison, claims to have seen the phony ID cards printed and photocopied. In a report he sent to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher in 1984, he explained why British officials were anxious to discredit the CIA. "I can recall the quite strong feeling in British Intelligence circles that the CIA had not only turned a blind eye to arms smuggling from the USA to the IRA, but also encouraged it," he wrote.

Our reporter Lisa Sylvester has seen an excerpt from Wallace's confidential report, as well as copies of the fake ID cards. One card, dated November 1972, contains the statement: "This Certificate of Credentials is issued under the authority of the Central Intelligence Agency. It is requested that the bearer be afforded the necessary help to enable him to satisfactorily discharge his duties." On the flipside is the bearer's name, thumb print, vital statistics and passport number, as well as some writing that appears to be in Oriental script.

Wallace said two different cards were forged and circulated. "They were designed to create the impression that the CIA was active in Northern Ireland. The rumor was that American intelligence believed the IRA could come under control of Eastern Bloc countries who would supply weapons and ammunition," he told us.

Wallace said he was trained to use psychological warfare in his Northern Ireland tour of duty. He said he left the service because he objected to efforts by British Intelligence to discredit and oust then-Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

Wallace's claim of a carefully planned disinformation campaign against Wilson by British Intelligence coincides with charges made by Peter Wright, a former intelligence official. Wright's book detailing the charges has been banned in Britain.

Wallace said he first made his allegations about improper British Intelligence operations in a report he submitted to a deputy minister in Parliament in 1975. In the 12 years since then, he has been charged with murder and convicted of manslaughter.

Released last December, Wallace now lives in Sussex,

England. He said he was set up on the homicide charge to quiet him.

William Colby, who headed the CIA at the time, told us he had never heard of the alleged forgery of ID cards. He would not discuss CIA operations that might have been going on in Northern Ireland, but pointed out that CIA agents on covert assignments do not carry cards identifying themselves as such.

"It doesn't sound like it makes any sense to me," Colby said.

Wallace agreed. "That's quite right," he said. "But it's not a question of what the CIA would do. It's what the people in Northern Ireland believed."

The Protestant majority in Northern Ireland has long believed that Catholic Irish-Americans are the main support for the IRA. Faked evidence that the CIA was assisting in this support would conceivably discredit any U.S. efforts on behalf of the Catholic minority. Why British Intelligence would encourage this is not clear.

THEY'RE OFF! In the international high technology sweepstakes, Japan is already rounding the clubhouse turn while the United States is stuck in the starting gate, trying to decide what kind of a race to run.

Policy disputes have hampered U.S. space-communications technology, and the Japanese are taking advantage of this uncertainty to take the lead. One alarming example of this is Japan's higher-frequency 30/20 Gigahertz communications satellite.

A recent Congressional Research Service report explains the implications of this Japanese "first": "Most communications satellites today operate at lower frequencies, and those bands are becoming congested. (The 30/20 GHz technology) is expected to be the wave of the future." And the Japanese are, so far, all alone on that wave.

In this country, meanwhile, progress has been impeded by policy wrangles centering on whether the government or private industry should finance the development of advanced communication satellite technology, the research service reports. The result: "Slowed development of U.S. technology while the Japanese forged ahead."

The Japanese lead is a long one. Japan's first operational 30/20 GHz satellite, the CS-2, was launched in February 1983.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Remember the U.S. military officer in Vietnam who said it was necessary to destroy a village in order to save it? Well, Interior Secretary Donald Hodel apparently feels the same way about Earth.

Asking other nations to join us in curtailing the production of chlorofluorocarbons that are destroying the planet's protective ozone layer, Hodel said, would fly in the face of the administration's stand against government regulation. People should use lotions and wear sunglasses instead, Hodel added.

MINI-EDITORIAL: As more and more Harvard Business School alumni seem destined to exchange their Brooks Brothers threads for prison denim, we've heartened to see that the old school tie apparently remains in fashion.

When asked about a $900-a-day consulting contract he gave to an old classmate last year, former Postmaster General Albert V. Casey expressed surprise that anyone should even raise the issue.

His old buddy's work was first-rate and the $900 a day was "just the going rate," said Casey. "His typical rate was $1,000, but we worked it out," Casey explained.

Being witness for committee takes practice

By ART BUCHWALD

I walked into Foggy Bottom's office and found him sitting at a table saying, "I had the money, but I didn't have it. That is to say, it was promised to me but it wasn't ever delivered because I got the wrong Swiss bank account number, and somehow the funds disappeared into someone else's hip pocket — and the Sultan jumped over the moon."

"What are you doing?" I asked him. "I'm practicing to be a witness at the Irangate hearings. I hear Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams' job is up for grabs, and if I can testify well there is a chance I could get it."

"Why would anyone want to call you as a witness in the hearings? You don't know anything about contramuck."

"Neither does anybody else. I'm ready to blow the whistle on the whole thing because I was just following instructions and assumed all the orders were coming from higher up, which means I can say no crimes were committed."

Foggy Bottom continued, "I think I found the trick of testifying in front of the committee. You give an answer which is neither the truth nor a lie — but something in between. Like if they ask me if I had any dealings with Col. North, I reply I went to school with his cousin and that is why I didn't know he was running an illegal taxi company in Iran. Ask me a tough question," Foggy Bottom begged.

"All right. In your estimation, was Col. North a loose cannon?"

"He had to be a loose cannon or he wouldn't have paid all his laundry bills with travelers' checks. By the same token, how could he be a loose cannon and still have direct access to the President? My answer to the question is that North was loose when he had to be loose, and tight when he had to be tight, in that never picked up a luncheon check in his life. Did you understand any of that?" Foggy Bottom asked.

"Not much."

"Then it proves I would make a good witness for the committee. Did I tell you I know for a fact that we solicited money from Bangladesh, and this money was sent to Canada with a man named Raoul to fight acid rain in the tundra?"

"You know that for a fact?"

"No, Elliott Abrams told me about it after the Secretary of State said he was no longer sworn to secrecy."

I said to Foggy Bottom, "What if I asked about your relationship with Secretary Shultz?"

"I would reply that although we know each other slightly, we park our cars in separate garages. This is not to say we don't work together, because we both were constantly trying to raise funds from private sources to finance American foreign policy in Central America since Congress wouldn't give us any money. For example, I was the one who asked South Korea to buy Girl Scout cookies from Gen. Secord."

"Would you say North knew George Bush?"

"I'm not sure of it, but I heard through the grapevine they danced with each other at least year's U.S. Marine Corps ball. This does not mean Bush knew any more about Nicaragua than he did about Iran. My job was to keep everyone in the dark on anything having to do with American foreign policy."

"You're making all this up, aren't you, Foggy Bottom?"

"Yeah, except for the part about building a dirt airstrip in Costa Rica."

"Why would you build an airstrip in Costa Rica?"

"North wanted it so he could fly Cessnas to Moscow and land on Red Square."

Judge amends charge

NEW YORK — The judge in the trial of Bernhard Goetz has given the jury different versions of his instructions on three key points, enraging lawyers for both sides.

The changes concern the testimony of a neurologist, the judge's instructions on excessive force, and his instructions on inferences from bullet holes in a jacket worn by one of the young men Goetz shot on a subway train.

"We have seen the judge charge justification three different times, three different ways," Defense Attorney Barry Slotnick said. "I hope the jury's not confused."

Award may set record

NEW YORK — A woman who turned down a $2 million divorce settlement has been awarded $7 million in a decision lawyers say could break new legal ground.

Beverly Karp, a movie producer, received the award last week. It could be the largest ever granted in a state without community property laws, according to attorneys on both sides.

However, it fell short of the 50-50 split Mrs. Karp would have gotten in a community property state, her lawyer, Norman Sheresky, said Monday. The joint net worth of Beverly and Harvey L. Karp during their 31-year marriage was listed at $20 million; they moved to New York from California, a community property state, in 1968.

Murderer electrocuted

ANGOLA, La. — Jimmy Wingo calmly declared his innocence and gave a thumbs-up sign to witnesses this morning, just moments before he became the fourth man in 10 days to die in Louisiana's electric chair.

"I am an innocent man," Wingo said after four guards led him into the death chamber at the state penitentiary. "You are murdering me this day. I do still love you all in Christ. God bless you all."

Wingo was a 35-year-old former boy scout who had served for a year as a park ranger in Oil City, La., before he turned to crime and wound up in the Webster Parish jail on burglary charges. He escaped from jail along with cellmate Jimmy Glass on Christmas Eve 1982 — the night Newt Brown, 55, and his 51-year-old wife Erlene were shot to death after being bound and gagged in their own bed.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A gunman on amphetamines who said he took his girlfriend hostage because he loved her surrendered to police today after holding three women captive for up to 16 hours in a downtown office building.

The last of the hostages, the unidentified girlfriend, emerged sobbing from the King Cole Building at 7:22 a.m.

No one was injured in the standoff, which began at 3:15 p.m. Monday. Police Chief Paul A. Annee said he believed the women wore down the gunman by playing on his sympathy.

The man, identified by police as Stan Richard Beatty, 37, of Indianapolis, was taken to Wishard Memorial Hospital for observation because he had been taking drugs, police said.

Asked as he got into a squad car why he took his girlfriend and others hostage, the man said, "Because I love her."

Police said he faces five counts of confinement with a deadly weapon, one count of recklessness and one count of violating the state firearms statute.

The girlfriend, along with co-workers Cheryl C. Broadus and Beth Greene, were seized Monday in Legal Registry, a document filing service on the 10th floor of the building, which was partially evacuated.

The gunman found two other women hiding on the same floor about four hours later, but allowed them to flee down a staircase, officials said.

"This is unreal," said Mrs. Greene's daughter, Betty, as she waited for news of her mother. "Hostages don't get taken in Indianapolis."

Annee said the gunman made "crazy demands" for the hostages' release, but he would not specify what they were. He said negotiators and police psychologists talked with the gunman by telephone.

"Some demands are outrageous. Others are reasonable, given the situation," Annee said. "He's moody. He's got peaks and valleys, but he's holding a conversation."

Officers learned from the women that Beatty was armed with a .38-caliber gun and a .357-caliber Magnum revolver, he said.

Annee said Beatty, who has served jail time, had a history of harassing his girlfriend at the office and police had been called there before.

"He is using speed and so goes from being very exhilarated to very depressed," the chief said. "We were led to believe he has beaten his girlfriend before. The nature of their falling out is based on his history of violence and substance abuse."

Mrs. Green, a co-owner of the business, and Ms. Broadus, a personnel consultant, were released after 12 hours.

"I have a feeling they just played on his sympathy and wore him down," Annee said. "They were not mistreated and are in good shape."

Police spokeswoman Barbara Sinclair said the gunman requested a pizza, which was sent to him, and some cigarettes, playing cards and pillows and blankets for his hostages.

Soldier survives trek

JASPER, Alberta — A British soldier trudged for 14 hours across rugged, frozen mountain terrain to alert authorities after three companions were swept away in an avalanche, a Parks Canada spokesman says.

The bodies of the three soldiers were recovered Monday on Mount Bryce, one day after the avalanche on an 11,573-foot peak northwest of Calgary, near the British Columbia border, said Doug Wellock, acting superintendent of Jasper National Park.

The survivor had walked out and was picked up by a logging truck Monday morning, said Cpl. Hans Burki of Royal Canadian Mounted Police office in Golden, British Columbia, where the soldier was taken.

"To reach that, he would have had to traverse ice, snow, rock and almost jungle forest, so he really made a heroic trek ... certainly 20 kilometers (about 12 miles) of hard traveling by himself," Wellock said.

160 feared drowned

NEW DEHLI, India — A crowded boat capsize today in a crocodile-infested river in eastern Orissa state, and more than 160 people were feared drowned, the United News of India reported.

The boat was believed to be carrying 200 people when it overturned near Patrapur, about 12 miles east of the city of Cuttack, the news agency said.

The report said 36 passengers were rescued. It quoted officials as saying there was little chance anyone else survived.

24 killed on boat

SEOUL, South Korea — A sightseeing boat carrying 81 people caught fire and sank off South Korea's southern coast today. The navy helped rescue 40 people, but officials said 24 others died and 17 were missing.

The Yonhap News Agency said 28 of those rescued suffered serious burns.

The agency said many of those aboard the vessel were women and elderly people. It said some jumped overboard, but many others, who apparently could not swim, stayed aboard and were burned or went down with the stricken vessel.

Parents visit teen pilot

MOSCOW — A West German teen-ager who flew across hundreds of miles of Soviet airspace and landed a sport plane in Red Square received a visit from his parents today.

A West German newspaper reported today that the young pilot is undergoing psychiatric tests in the Soviet prison to determine if he is fit to stand trial. It was not possible immediately to confirm the account in the Hamburg-based Bild, which quoted an unidentified Kremlin source.

Indian church sues to use drug

DALLAS (AP) — An Indian battle will be waged in a federal courtroom this week, not over tribal lands, but over the use of a hallucinogenic plant called peyote.

A tiny group in Arizona calling itself the Peyote Way Church of God has sued Texas and the U.S. government for the right to use the plant in religious ceremonies.

Government attorneys contend the church is nothing but a "sham" that wants to use sacred Indian religion as a front for getting high out in the desert.

Peyote, a cactus-like plant that grows along the banks of the Rio Grande, has been used in Indian religious ceremony and can put users behind bars for up to five years.

After a lengthy legislative battle, the Native American Church won federal permission some time ago to use the drug in ceremonies.

Peyote Way Church founder Immanuel Trujillo insists that if NAC, an umbrella group of 36 tribes representing some 250,000 Indians, can use the plant, his group ought to be able to do the same.

But U.S. Justice Department attorney John Bannon says the government sees it this way: "If you're caught using peyote, you have to be a member of the Native American Church and an Indian to raise the exemption argument."

The NAC requires that its members have at least 25 percent Indian blood, but many Peyote Way members are not Indians, he said.

"We don't think it (Peyote Way Church) is a legitimate religion," Bannon added. "And we intend to prove they're a sham."

Peyote Way attorney Raymond White of Dallas argues the tiny Peyote Way Church is not bogus.

"It is entitled to be exempt from the current prohibition in a religious context," he said. "Congress intended to exempt all bona fide peyotist religions, and the existing exemption for only the Native American Church violates the equal protection clause of the U.S. Constitution."

The Native American Church has aided the state and federal government in the case, said Austin attorney Doug Becker, who represents the state.

"This case is of enormous importance to them. If peyote use is opened up to non-Indians ... the supply is not unlimited," he said, adding that it takes seven years to grow a mature plant.

Austin attorney Doug Becker will represent the State of Texas in a federal courtroom over the use of peyote, a hallucinogenic plant, by a tiny group calling itself the Peyote Way Church of God. Attorneys for the government contend the church is a "sham" that wants to use sacred Indian religion as a front for getting high. The trial is set today in Dallas.

"Those Indians had to go through all kinds of efforts to get their exemption," Becker said. "They see their position endangered, because if a court says all groups should have the exemption if one does, the state might say, 'OK, then nobody can use it.'"

Trujillo claims to be one-quarter Apache, although Texas and U.S. attorneys have an affidavit from his son, Serge Wallis, saying that isn't true.

"His son says the Apache thing was just to help him sell pottery in Sante Fe, that he is not an Indian," Becker says.

Trujillo's son also said in an affidavit introduced in 1982 that his father routinely used drugs such as marijuana, hashish and LSD at his desert retreat near Klondyke, Ariz., a charge Trujillo denied in court.

Becker said he couldn't divulge where Wallis lives because Trujillo has made threats against his son. The Associated Press could not reach Trujillo for comment because neither he nor his church have listed telephone numbers.

Trujillo joined the NAC in the 1940s and split off into an independent church in the 1960s, according to White. The Peyote Way Church was incorporated in 1979 and began working to get a peyote permit.

In May 1980, three Peyote Way members were arrested in the Dallas suburb of Richardson and charged with possessing the drug. That charge was later dismissed after questions of illegal search and seizure arose, Becker said.

Two years later, in May 1982, Peyote Way filed its civil suit seeking permission to use peyote in its religious ceremonies.

"The lawsuit seeks to muddy the waters by suggesting the use is OK because some of its members are Indians," Bannon said. "It wants to expand the exemption to include Indians and non-Indians."

U.S. District Judge William Taylor granted the government's request for a summary judgment and dismissed the suit in August 1983, but Peyote Way appealed to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

In 1984, the appeals court sent it back to the lower court for trial.

U.S. District Judge Robert Maloney will hear the case this week.

Bannon said the only other group to seek to legalize its use of peyote was the Native American Church of New York, which eventually went to trial and lost.

"They tried to show they were a legitimate church," he said. "But they weren't even Indians."

Best Father's Day present you can give is gift from the heart

DEAR READERS: This Sunday is Father's Day. You're broke? Not to worry. Here's a suggestion for a Father's Day gift that won't cost you a dime, but will probably be the best gift your father has ever received for any occasion.

It doesn't matter if you're 8 years old or 60, if you're lucky enough to have a father, sit down and write him a letter. It doesn't have to be a literary masterpiece; just a few sentences telling him how much he means to you, and why, will do. Of course, if you are in a chatty or sentimental mood, go ahead and express the thoughts you may have found difficult to verbalize. And when you sign it, be sure to add the date. Long after the neckties, shirts, sweaters and wallets are worn and discarded, I'll bet your Father's Day letter will remain tucked away for safekeeping with the rest of Dad's important papers.

How do I know? Mine were.

DEAR ABBY: Please rerun the enclosed letter so your young readers can see it. It may help them to see the light.

SAVANNAH SENIOR

"DEAR ABBY: My father wrote to you at least 12 years ago, and you put his letter in your column. You printed it twice on request. My father had it framed, and when we brought him here to live with us, he carried it in his hands for fear it might be damaged or lost.

"When we heard his letter had been framed and hung in the chapel of a cemetery, he said, 'What a pity it will be seen only by those for whom it is too late. It would accomplish more on the bulletin boards of high schools and colleges.

"Abby, he made me promise that after he died I would write to you and ask you to run it again.

"He died one week ago at age 72. Please print it once more for my beloved father.

FAITHFUL READER

"DEAR READER: The letter that meant so much to your father has been requested more than any other. And here it is:

"DEAR ABBY: I am the most heartbroken person on earth. I always found time to go everywhere else but to see my old, gray-haired parents. They sat home alone, loving me just the same.

"It is too late now to give them those few hours of happiness I was too selfish and too busy to give, and now when I go to visit their graves and look at the green grass above them, I wonder if God will ever forgive me for the heartaches I must have caused them.

"I pray that you will print this, Abby, to tell those who still have their parents to visit them and show their love and respect while there is still time. For it is later than you think.

TOO LATE"

DEAR ABBY: I can relate to the wife who's approaching 40 and announced to her husband ("Frustrated in Downers Grove") that she had lost all interest in sex. "Frustrated" wants to know why. Let's give him a few reasons:

1. Does he bathe regularly?
2. Does his breath turn her off?
3. Does he wear clean clothes?
4. Does he consider her needs when having sexual relations?
5. Does he consider her needs when NOT having sexual relations?
6. Does he stimulate her desire for sex with "I love you," "You are wonderful," "You are all I need," before and after sex?
7. Does he remember special occasions?
8. Does he prevent her life from becoming a bore?
9. Does he share the problems that she has with the kids?
10. Does he consider her a "lovemate," not just a housekeeper?

If he will take a look at himself, I'm sure he can find plenty of love and sex at home.

Helpful tips for emergency situations

From BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS
A Meredith Magazine

In an emergency, do you know the quickest way to get medical help? Seconds count, so you have to react automatically. You may need to summon an ambulance.

Make the following advance preparations now, suggests Better Homes and Gardens magazine:

- Be sure your house number can be clearly seen from the street, day or night. The number should be prominently posted on the house. Consider having the number painted on the street curb as well.
- Post all emergency numbers — ambulance, police and fire — by each telephone. Many emergency services provide phone stickers.

— State the precise nature of the emergency and do not get upset when the dispatcher asks questions. With the proper information, ambulance technicians will be able to bring the necessary equipment into your home when they first arrive.

— Turn on porch lights and other inside lights if it is dark. If possible, have someone go outside to watch for the ambulance.

— Move furniture and other obstacles so a stretcher can be brought as close to the patient as possible.

— Lock up pets in another room.

— Be ready to show the ambulance technicians any medication the victim is taking. Provide the name of the person's physician.

Organization celebrates 50 anniversary

ABILENE — Members of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas in Abilene will celebrate its 50th anniversary June 17 at 10:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Marshall Durham, 1925 Willow Road (Lytle Lake).

Members of the organization live in Anson, Baird, Big Spring, Moran, Sweetwater, Winters and Abilene.

The Dr. Ducalion Aldridge Perry Chapter was organized Jan. 29, 1937 at the home of the late Mrs. J.M. Wagstaff, who served as the chapter's first president.

Officers of the club are Mrs. Custer Russell, president; Mrs. Lucion Brooks of Moran, past president and secretary; Mrs. Wynona Dickens of Sweetwater, treasurer; and Mrs. Cathy Lester of Big Spring, chapter historian.

Russell says, "any woman who is 16 years old and is a lineal descendant of a man or woman who was loyal citizen of the Republic of Texas prior to the consummation of the Annexation Agreement of the Republic of Texas with the United States, Feb. 19, 1846 is cordially invited to attend the get-acquainted brunch."

Further membership information may be obtained from Mrs. Susan Navarro, registrar, 1133 Vine St., Abilene, Texas 79602 or call 915-673-4866.

Names in the news

By the Associated Press
ALBION, Mich. — Basketball star Earvin "Magic" Johnson plans to team up with a teen-age rap group for an anti-drug video.

"The High on Myself Rappers" will meet the former Michigan State University star, who now plays for the National Basketball Association's Los Angeles Lakers, when he returns to his alma mater June 24.

"You can't get 'em down off the clouds," group leader Harry Bonner said this week of the Albion teen-agers, Robert Chapman, Teja Lane, James "Slim" Moore, Donetta "Fefe" Moye and Tymico Stone.

Johnson plans to help kick off the campaign "Drug Free and Proud to Be ... High on Myself" and to speak to about 3,000 teen-agers at a 4-H event at the university.

LOS ANGELES — Mariette Hartley, co-host of CBS-TV's "The Morning Program" and a wisecracking star of camera commercials with James Garner, has been given a star on Hollywood's Walk of Fame.

Miss Hartley received the 1,849th star on the Walk of Fame on Thursday in front of about 150 friends and admirers. "It's one thing to walk along Hollywood Boulevard and see stars (in the pavement). It's another to trip over your own," she said.

Miss Hartley made her film debut in "Ride the High Country" with Joel McCrae and Randolph Scott. Her TV appearances include "Star Trek" and "The Rockford Files," the latter with Garner.

Her series of commercials with Garner earned her three Clio advertising awards.

The Hollywood Chamber of Commerce installs the stars on Hollywood Boulevard for a $3,500 fee and a guarantee that the star will appear at the installation.

SEATTLE — Authorities fearing racial violence canceled a rap concert scheduled for Wednesday by the Beastie Boys and Run-D.M.C.

City police recommended cancellation, citing reports that black and white teen-agers were planning to brawl at the show at the Seattle Coliseum, said Terry McLaughlin, finance director for the arena's operator.

Police were confident security could be maintained during the show but not after, McLaughlin said. Unruly fans have caused violence at other stops on the groups' tour.

About 3,500 tickets had been sold for the show and will be either refunded or accepted for use if the concert is rescheduled at another location, McLaughlin said.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Randy Travis has been inducted into the Country Music Hall of Fame and Walkway of Stars before nearly 200 fans who had waited in line, some for hours, for the ceremony.

Also inducted in separate ceremonies Thursday were singer Earl Thomas Conley and Grand Ole Opry star Jeanne Pruett.

Travis' latest hit is "Forever and Ever Amen." His "Storms of Life" was the first debut album by a country music artist to sell 1 million copies in less than a year.

A Grand Ole Opry regular, Travis won the 1987 Academy of Country Music album, single and performer of the year awards.

Members of the Walkway are elected by a majority vote of the board of directors.

NEW YORK — Save your high school yearbook. It may become valuable, especially if you have a classmate named Nixon, Ford, Reagan or Elvis.

A yearbook signed by Elvis Presley sold at auction Thursday night for $1,200, according to the auctioneer, Herman Darvick. The 1953 annual from Humes High School in Memphis, Tenn., was inscribed, "Best luck to a swell guy, Elvis," Darvick said.

A 1930 Whittier (Calif.) Union High School yearbook that includes a speech about the Constitution by graduating senior Richard Nixon sold for $660, Darvick said.

The Dixon (Ill.) High School yearbook from 1927, which includes President Reagan's photograph, sold for $400. A 1929 Grand Rapids South High School yearbook with football star Gerald Ford pictured sold for $200.

NEW YORK — John McEnroe, the world's top-ranked tennis player six years ago at age 22, says he would like to be No. 1 again this year, but "it's not like I'm going to bag it if I don't make it back."

"I'm not going to panic if I lose some matches," tennis' bad boy told Esquire magazine in an interview in its July issue.

McEnroe was eliminated in the first round of the French Open in Paris last month.

He walked off the court last month during a World Team Cup match in West Germany against Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia. The Men's International Professional Tennis Council fined him $5,000 but on Thursday declined to take further action, saying it accepted his story that a back injury prevented him from finishing the match.

McEnroe withdrew from a grass court tournament in Scotland on Wednesday because of a leg injury.

Tragedy brings opportunities

SARAGOSA — The pinpoint accuracy of the tornado was striking. Saragosa is 10 miles north of Balmorhea, 30 miles south of Pecos, and smack in the center of nowhere. There are thousands of miles of empty, desolate Texas countryside that the tornado could have hit.

But hit here it did.

In the span of about two and a half minutes — about 150 seconds — a small town that was home to about 400 mostly poor farm workers and their families was wiped off the face of the map.

Oh, sure, there have been relief efforts. The dead have been buried. Most of the rubble has been carted away. There are trailers to needs of the citizens. There is even a post office.

But the homes are missing. As terrible as the photos may be, you at least had the impression that people lived there — not anymore.

The town is gone, brother.

Father Ralph Barranger, whose parish includes Saragosa, said the scene reminded him of photos of the Hiroshima aftermath. "A moonscape" is how Richard White, advertising director of the Herald, described the situation.

To me, it looked like they razed the town and replaced it with a huge, muddy parking lot.

The town is gone.

Consider this: Out of a population of approximately 400, 310 were injured, 38 were hospitalized (six of whom remain in the hospital), 127 all, 29 were killed.

This may sound cruel, but in a way, the dead are the lucky ones. At least they don't have any more problems. The survivors, however, have a long row to hoe.

Around the rim

First and foremost of their problems is housing. Remember, the disaster hit, and now they have emergency loans — and there is no world as they ever going to repay them?

Big problem, right?

Wrong, brother, gigantic opportunity.

Because as disastrous as the tornado was, it has presented us mere mortals with a chance that doesn't come around very often. We have a lift up our fellow man, all at the same time.

Sister Julietta Mendoza, director of Catholic Charities in the Saragosa area, along with Father Barranger and other concerned that, if it works, could break the awful chain of poverty that currently has the survivors of Saragosa in a vise grip.

Spinks whips Cooney; Tyson next foe on list

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Michael Spinks answered questions about his credentials as a heavyweight the best way any heavyweight can — with power punching against the power puncher of yesterday. Now he must do it again against the power puncher of today.

If he succeeds in that, there will be no disputing his claim as world champion.

Mike Tyson owns the World Boxing Association and World Boxing Council titles. Spinks has only his own claim to the title after a very impressive beating of favored Gerry Cooney on Monday night.

Spinks knocked down Cooney twice before stopping him in the fifth round. For Spinks, the first light heavyweight champion ever to move up and take the heavyweight crown, it matched the kind of punching power more associated with Tyson — and, for that matter, the reluctant warrior Cooney.

Spinks, 30, landed 182 of 278 punches, including a devastating 84 of 101 in the fifth round. He staggered Cooney with a vicious right hand after Cooney missed a looping left hook. And Spinks kept battering the rusty Cooney, who had fought only seven rounds in three fights in five years, with a series of rights and some hard lefts. Twice, Cooney went down from rights; twice he got up only to find Spinks waiting to hit him some more.

When Spinks landed 15 consecutive punches to the head, Cooney's legs sagged and referee Frank Capucino stopped it.

"I slammed him with a lot of rights to the side of the head," Spinks said.

He landed so many punches that even he wasn't sure which ones did the damage.

"I think it was a left hook or a right outside hook that first dazed him. I shook him up with jabs or the outside right hands or straight rights. I was hitting him hard, but I was surprised he went down."

In his two IBF title fights with Larry Holmes, Spinks showed little power. As a light heavyweight, he had 19 knockouts, but the question was, could he hit like a heavyweight? Ask Cooney, when and if he decides to talk about it.

"I felt, with my jab and hitting off my jab, I knew I could get him," Spinks said. "It was working very good. I had a sure shot throughout the fight."

Spinks will be anything but a sure shot against Tyson, who he was accused of ducking to fight Cooney. Now Spinks will have to wait for Tyson, and it probably will be at least a year.

Tyson is committed to fighting International Boxing Federation champion Tony Tucker, who Spinks refused to meet en route to the heavyweight unification showdown against Tyson. That led the IBF to strip Spinks of the title. Tyson also has two other bouts planned, starting in the fall with 1984 Olympian Tyrell Biggs.

"It's important for us to fight him," Spinks said of the 20-year-old Tyson. "I don't give away any fight plans. I'll fight like I fight everybody else — with all my heart and guts."

Spinks said Cooney showed those same qualities. "Gerry came to fight," he said. "He said once he got in the ring, he'd bring his all. I tip my hat to him. Gerry has nothing to be ashamed of. He can walk with his head high. He didn't lose to just anybody."

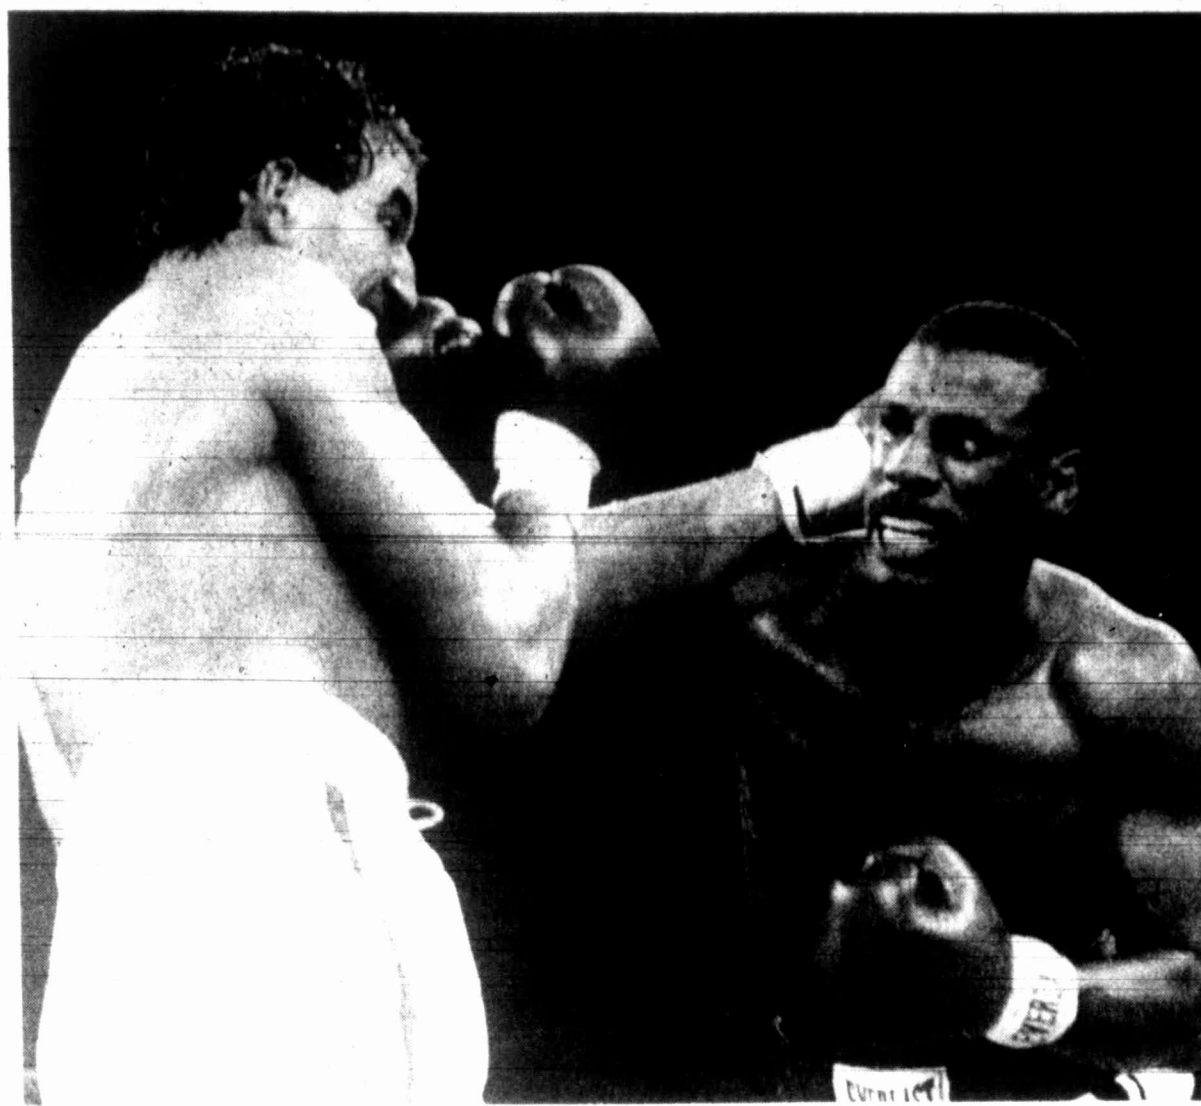

Cooney, who was the Invisible Man at a post-fight news conference, was, according to Spinks, fighting the Invisible Man.

"I didn't feel I just wanted to run around the ring," Spinks said. "I wanted to be there and not be there. When he punched, I wanted to be gone. I had to make Gerry miss."

Which he did. Cooney connected on only 68 of 220 punches, including just five of 26 in the final round. Cooney never could trap Spinks on the ropes or in the corner. Cooney did land some good lefts in the third round, but couldn't take advantage of a cut over Spinks' right eye.

It was Spinks who did the punishing. "I fought smart," he said. "The ropes were really the place he wanted me to be. He cut the ring on me good, but he couldn't do what he wanted with it."

"It took me a long time to map out how I would fight Gerry. I didn't watch one film. I knew I wouldn't get much out of seeing all those knockouts. It would frighten me a little bit."

But Spinks wasn't being overly defensive. In fact, he considered it critical that he, the boxer, be the aggressor, the puncher.

"I wasn't thinking decision," he said. Cooney was "disgusted and disappointed," with his performance, according to spokesman Rich Rose. After so few fights since losing to Holmes in a WBC title bout in 1982 and after such a weak showing against Spinks, Cooney isn't likely to be back in the picture — or the ring.

Park takes head job at Coahoma

COAHOMA — Steve Park, who started his coaching career as an assistant at Coahoma in 1973, will return to Coahoma as the Bulldogs head football coach and athletic director.

Monday night the School Board voted unanimously to hire Park. For the past four years, Park was an assistant coach under Jan East at Forsan. Before that, Park was at Stanton for six years, the last four as athletic director and football coach.

Previous to that he coached at Bronte and Coahoma, where he was an assistant from 1973-76.

The Forsan native said he was "pretty excited" about returning to Coahoma. Last season the Bulldogs finished 9-10.

Figure 7 has summer events set

Figure Seven Tennis Center will have a number of various tournaments this summer starting with a adult tournament Saturday, June 27.

During the summer months, Friday mornings will be ladies play day at 11 a.m. Summer hours at Figure Seven are 11 a.m. until 9 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday and from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Arrangements can also be made for "family night" during the week.

For more information call Charleen Sparling at 267-7777.

The Big Spring Church League will have a meeting Tuesday, June 23 at Highland Lanes.

All league participants are urged to attend.

Reds schedule tryouts in June

The Cincinnati Reds are holding several tryouts in the area for players between the ages of 15 and 23. Those trying out must supply their own glove, shoes and uniform.

The Reds will pay no expenses unless a player is signed to a professional baseball contract — if signed, the player will be reimbursed for his expenses. Players on American Legion teams must have a note of permission from their coaches.

The tryouts, all of which will start at 9 a.m., will be: June 22, at Hardin Simmons University in Abilene; June 23, at Harkins Field in Wichita Falls; June 24, at Amarillo High School in Amarillo; June 25, at Texas Tech University in Lubbock; June 26, at Midland Lee High School; and June 27, at Sul Ross University in Alpine.

McEnroe will skip Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Three-time champion John McEnroe will skip Wimbledon this year because of a persistent back ailment.

"There is no reason for me to come to Wimbledon unless I'm 100 percent fit," McEnroe said in a telex Monday to officials at the All-England Club. "I have not been able to train since I returned from Paris and I'm tired of walking onto the court worried whether I shall be able to give it my best effort."

McEnroe complained of injuries when he walked off the court in the final of the World Team Cup at Dusseldorf, West Germany, last month. Two days later at Paris, he was eliminated in the first round of the French Open by unseeded Horacio de la Pena of Argentina.

In his last Grand Slam tournament before Paris — last year's U.S. Open — he was upset in the first round by Paul Annacone.

Dr. Michael Cindrich, a New York chiropractor who has been treating McEnroe, as has his wife, Debra Keimman-Cindrich, told the New York Times Monday that he wasn't surprised by McEnroe's decision.

"He would not be breezing through Wimbledon in perfect physical health," Cindrich said. "And there was a chance of re-injury. ... He loves to play well at Wimbledon, and it is difficult to do that while nursing an injury."

Cindrich described the problem as a sprained weight-bearing ligament in the lower back.

"It has begun manifesting itself in other places — the calves, ankles, hips," Cindrich told the Times. "The nature of the sport is giving him the problems. He's got to take it easy. The back has got to have some time to heal."

In his last appearance at Wimbledon, McEnroe lost 6-2, 6-2, 6-4 in the 1985 quarterfinals to

John McEnroe ...fighting back problems

American Kevin Curren.

The left-hander, who also has won the U.S. Open four times, skipped Wimbledon last year when he was in the midst of a self-imposed sabbatical of nearly seven months.

Peter Lawler, a representative for McEnroe, said in the same telex to Wimbledon that McEnroe "continues to be plagued by back problems, which have caused him trouble all year. His physicians have advised him to take at least four more weeks off."

McEnroe is expected to return in the United States' Davis Cup matches against West Germany at Hartford, Conn., July 24-26.

Wimbledon officials said that, while McEnroe's withdrawal would not affect attendance, his absence would be a loss.

"All things being equal, one would like to see all the top players participating," said Chris Goringe, chief executive of the All-England Club. "But they've got to be fit. Otherwise, there's no sense in them sacrificing themselves in any tournament."

The announcement that McEnroe would miss the prestigious grasscourt tournament for the second straight year came as organizers were announcing the seedings for the tournament, to be held June 22-July 5.

Defending champions Boris Becker of West Germany and Martina Navratilova of Fort Worth, Texas, were made the top seeds. Navratilova as expected and Becker in a surprise.

Becker is ranked second in the world behind Czechoslovakia's Ivan Lendl, but has won Wimbledon the past two years and is at his best on grass courts. He won the Stella Artois tournament on grass at Queens Club on Monday, beating American Jimmy Connors 6-7, 6-3, 6-4. Connors, a two-time Wimbledon winner, is seeded seventh.

Although seedings are normally done on computer rankings, the Grand Slam tournaments have the authorization to change them. Two years ago, when Chris Evert defeated Navratilova in the French Open final and took over the No. 1 computer ranking, Wimbledon made Navratilova and Evert co-No. 1 seeds.

Lendl and West Germany's Steffi Graf, the men's and women's champions at the French Open earlier this month, were seeded second at Wimbledon. Mats Wilander, runner-up to Lendl at Paris, is No. 3 among the men, while Evert, a three-time Wimbledon champion, is seeded third among the women.

Based on his computer ranking, McEnroe would have been seeded eighth.

Troubled times for UT football

AUSTIN (AP) — Several members of the Texas football team, including All-Southwest Conference tailback Eric Metcalf, have been declared academically ineligible for the 1987 season, the Daily Texan student newspaper reported today.

The newspaper quoted sources close to the University of Texas athletic program as saying the players had been declared ineligible for football in 1987.

A counselor in the College of Liberal Arts, where most of athletes were enrolled, said the number of athletes lost for the season could grow to more than 20.

The full list of athletes has not yet been disclosed, but includes sophomore split end Jeremy Robertson, senior lineman Michael Jackson, freshman lineman Stan Thomas, sophomore linebacker Bobby Rhodes and sophomore lineman Charles Seafous, the source told the newspaper.

"They're gone, and it's going to be hard for them to get back in," the source said. "Dean (Susan) Lippman is not playing anymore."

The source told the newspaper that Lippman, an associate dean in the College of Liberal Arts, has recently taken a harder stance regarding dismissals and appeals of athletes than the college has taken in the past.

"I have no comment, and I don't want to discuss it," Lippman told the newspaper.

The players were unavailable for comment after numerous attempts to contact them, the student newspaper reported.

All of the players were projected to see considerable playing time in 1987, especially Metcalf. The All-SWC performer also doubles as a member of the UT track team, and won the 1986 national championship in the long jump.

Metcalf was expected to provide game-breaking potential to the Longhorn offense.

Leon Black, assistant athletic director for student affairs, said he did not know about the players being declared ineligible.

"It is news to me," Black told the newspaper.

Other members of the Longhorn coaching staff were unavailable for comment because they were attending a football camp. Bill Little, sports information director, said.

The source also told the newspaper three other football players, linebacker-defensive end Bobby Duncum, running back Darron Norris and defensive back Jorrick Battle, face a similar academic situation.

Rodman speaks his piece

DALLAS — The Detroit Pistons Isiah Thomas had his chance on national TV, with the captive attention of everyone watching Game 2 of the NBA finals.

Teammate Dennis Rodman got to speak his piece Monday, but from a tiny gym on the south side of Dallas with an audience of only those within earshot.

"I regret what I said," was Rodman's apology to Larry Bird and the rest of the basketball world, angered about his comments after Game 7 of the Eastern Conference final between the Pistons and Bird's Boston Celtics.

It was then that Rodman, who is black, called Bird "way overrated."

"I don't think he's the greatest player," Rodman said May 30 after covering Bird during the series that Boston won, 4-3. "Why does he get so much publicity? Because he's white. You never hear about a black player being the greatest."

Thomas' follow-up remarks — "I agree with Rodman. If he (Bird) were black, he'd be just another good guy" — took much of the attention away from Rodman and prompted the six-year veteran to apologize to Bird on TV.

"What Isiah said — it's not me (talking)," Rodman told the Dallas Morning News. "If you know Isiah, you know he jokes around all the time. That's the way he is."

"Nobody knows me all that well. I was a rookie."

While he wouldn't say if he his feelings toward Bird have changed, Rodman expressed regret for speaking on the subject in the first place.

"It was one of those things that never should have been said," Rodman explained. "It caused a lot of commotion. Really, I've already said enough."

Rodman, though, hasn't felt as much furor as he expected immediately following the incident.

"Everybody has been talking about all this, but there haven't been that many people bothering me," he said.

Ten honored by NHL

DETROIT (AP) — Bobby Clarke, Eddie Giacomin and Jacques Laperriere were among a group of 10 inducted into the Hockey Hall of Fame Monday night.

Clarke, currently general manager of the Philadelphia Flyers, won three Hart Memorial trophies as the NHL's Most Valuable Player during a distinguished 13-year career as a forward with the Flyers.

Clarke, recognized in his time as the league's best "defensive forward," compiled career totals of 358 goals and 852 assists in 1,144 games.

Giacomin had 54 shutouts and a 2.54 career goals-against average during his 13-year NHL career with the New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings.

One of goaltending's great ironmen during the early part of his career, Giacomin appeared in 296 of a possible 318 regular-season games for the Rangers from 1966-67 to 1980-81.

Laperriere was a key figure on six Stanley Cup-winning teams with the Montreal Canadiens.

Throughout his 12-year career, Laperriere was recognized for his great defensive play. He was the Norris Trophy recipient as the NHL's premier defenseman in 1965-66.

Also inducted at the 27th annual induction dinner Monday night were NHL President John Ziegler as a "Builder", former linesman Matt Pavelich in the category of "On-Ice Official", and five members of the media: Ben Olan of The Associated Press; Rex MacLeod of the Toronto Star; retired Detroit News writer Bill Brennan; Fran Rosa of the Boston Globe and Boston Bruins radio announcer Bob Wilson.

With the addition of the 10 inductees this year, the total number on the Hall of Fame Honor Roll will include 182 players, 69 builders, 10 On-Ice officials and 39 media honorees.

Having hit a home run, Texas Ranger Pete O'Brien extends his hand to shake those of (left to right) manager Bobby Valentine, Darrell Porter and Bob Brower in the first inning against the California Angels. The Rangers won the game 9-7.

Hurler fires four-hitter and loses

By The Associated Press
Detroit's Walt Terrell got the Toronto batters to hit the ball at his fielders. Jimmy Key did the same thing to the Detroit batters, but got different results.

Alan Trammell, leading the American League with a .357 average, hit a line drive that Blue Jays right fielder Jesse Barfield did not see Monday night, and it went for a fourth-inning triple that gave Detroit a 2-1 victory in Toronto.

AL

bined on a five-hitter for the Tigers in a game between two of the hottest teams in the American League East.

Detroit has won four in a row and 22 of its last 30 games. Toronto has lost two straight after a team-record 11-game winning streak.

"I've never seen it happen before," said Key, who lost despite pitching a four-hitter.

Terrell and two relievers combined to pitch a four-hitter.

Twins 5, Brewers 0
Bert Blyleven pitched a four-hitter for his 55th career shutout and Minnesota won in Milwaukee.

Randy Bush hit a three-run homer in the fourth off Bill Wegman, 5-6. Wegman gave up 11 hits in a complete game.

Athletics 7, Royals 6

Tony Phillips hit a two-run homer in the top of the ninth that put Oakland ahead and right fielder Mike Davis preserved the lead by throwing out Kansas City's Danny Tartabull at the plate in the bottom of the ninth.

Rangers 9, Angels 7

Pete Incaviglia, who had struck out six straight times, homered in his first two at-bats and powered Texas over California.

Incaviglia hit a two-run homer during a four-run first inning and connected for a solo shot, his 15th, in the third. Incaviglia and Pete O'Brien, who homered in the first and had an RBI double in the third, had three hits apiece.

Reliever Jeff Russell, 1-1, held the host Angels to one run in 5 1-3 innings. Chuck Finley, 0-3, took the loss.

Doug DeCinces hit a three-run homer for the Angels.

Yankees 9, Orioles 2

Mike Pagliarulo drove home four runs, three with a double in the sixth inning, and Tommy John won again as New York beat visiting Baltimore.

The Orioles have lost 11 of their last 12 games.

John, 7-2, gave up two runs on seven hits in 5 1-3 innings before leaving with a cramp in his left calf. Pat Clements finished with two-hit relief for his second save.

Eric Bell, 5-5, gave up five runs and left in the fourth.

Pagliarulo, who had an RBI groundout in the second, capped a four-run sixth with his bases-loaded double that made it 9-2.

Mariners 8, White Sox 2

Lee Guetterman and Jerry Reed combined on a five-hitter and Domingo Ramos hit a three-run, inside-the-park homer that helped Seattle over Chicago.

Guetterman, 4-0, yielded two runs on four hits in 5 2-3 innings. Reed pitched one-hit relief for his first save.

John Christensen hit a two-run homer and Phil Bradley and Mickey Brantley also connected for the host Mariners.

Ramos' sixth-inning homer came on a ball that caused right fielder Ivan Calderon and center fielder Ken Williams to collide.

Fish are biting at area lakes

By H. BOYCE HALE
LAKE J.B. THOMAS — According to reports from Lake Thomas, trotling has been good — perhaps a result of the best catch of water in a number of years.

A little more than a week ago, the lake gained 6.18 vertical feet, and now impounds about 98,000 acre-feet — 48 percent of capacity.

Crappie catches have been fair along the rocky areas while black bass have been taken in the bushy places.

White bass — often called sand bass — were being caught while trotling, but the big news was about catfish.

Larry and Kelton Clark of Ira caught 10- and a 26-pound yellow cats. And three fishermen from Snyder took 20- and 25-pound yellow catfish off their trotlines.

Local lucky fishermen were James Chancellor with a 10-pound blue and Sam Froman, who boated a nice 14-pound yellow.

LAKE COLORADO CITY — Foy Dunlap, formerly of Big Spring and now living on the lake shore, reported that he and Virgil Young of Coahoma caught a 17-pound yellow and a 5-pound blue while trotling with goldfish and perch.

PLEASURE LAKE — Mike Welling, a deputy sheriff from Martin County, reported that a friend caught three black bass about four weeks ago that weighed a bit over 16 pounds.

Mike said, "I wouldn't have believed it, but I weighed them."

Barring a prolonged drought, we may have the hottest fishing hole in the Permian Basin by next year — right in our own back yard.

Need a Colorado hunting camp?

Recently, Remington Arms Co. announced that a lucky outdoorsman may "Win a Piece of Remington Country." A cabin and 40 acres of prime hunting land in Southern Colorado is the grand prize in the sweepstakes.

The total value of the land and cabin kit is $75,000 and the sweepstakes continues from June 1 through Dec. 31, 1987.

In addition to the top prize, the sweepstakes offers 1,830 consumer prizes. Retail dealers will participate with the opportunity to win a top prize of as much as $100,000.

Remington officials said they believe it is the largest sweepstakes ever offered by a sporting arms and ammunition manufacturer.

BOYCE HALE

Anyone may enter by completing the form available from any local Remington dealer. No purchase is required.

Customers also can win an additional $5,000 for themselves and their dealer by completing a brief bonus sentence on the entry form.

Winners will be selected by two random drawings Jan. 5, 1988, and they will be notified within two weeks after the drawing.

Thirty first-place winners will receive a Model 700 mountain rifle, 60 rounds of ammunition and assorted foul weather gear. Shotgun options are available to upland and waterfowl hunters.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has proposed 1987-88 waterfowl hunting seasons and bag limits that basically remain unchanged from the previous season.

Dale Witt, migratory game bird program director, said the recent decline in breeding populations of waterfowl makes necessary a continuation of the conservative harvest implemented in 1985.

All hunting regulations for waterfowl will be published in the department's "Late Season Migratory Hunting Guide," which will be available from department offices and hunting license outlets during September.

Sandhill crane seasons are scheduled for a three-zone arrangement, and bag limits of three per day or six in possession are proposed. A special permit, as in the past, will be issued by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Permits are issued upon written request to the department at 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Texas 78744.

Scott goes on strike against Reds

By The Associated Press
Mike Scott's memory must be failing him.

With a no-hitter and a Cy Young Award at the end of last season and an 8-3 start already this year, his performance Monday night against Cincinnati is the one that sticks out.

"It's the best I can remember pitching in a while," said Scott, who tied a career high with 14 strikeouts in a 4-0 Houston victory. "I wasn't getting behind the hitters."

In other games in the National League, it was Philadelphia 3, Chicago 2; Pittsburgh 3, St. Louis

NL

1; and Montreal 4, New York 0.

Scott didn't walk one batter and allowed seven hits before Hal Lanier brought in Dave Smith in the ninth.

"Hal made a good move in calling for Smitty before he even talked to me because I would have probably tried to talk him out of it," Scott said.

Smith entered after Bo Diaz led off the ninth, reaching base on Terry Puhl's error. He then struck out three straight.

"I felt good from the first inning on," Scott said. "I had my good stuff tonight and when you have your good stuff, you should win the game."

Scott, who pitched a no-hitter in a 2-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants on Sept. 25 to clinch the NL West, has had good stuff much of this season.

His 14 strikeouts ties him with Seattle's Mark Langston for the major league lead with 116.

The 32-year-old right-hander struck out 14 on Sept. 14, 1986, in a 3-2 loss against San Diego and repeated the feat on Oct. 8 in Game 1 of the National League playoffs, beating the New York Mets 1-0.

"We had two guys who got the 'Golden Sombra' tonight," Reds Manager Pete Rose said. "You know what the Golden Sombra is don't you? It's the hat trick plus one. Our No. 1 and No. 8 hitters struck out four times each."

Ron Oester and Tracy Jones struck out three times each against Scott and once more to Smith.

Bill Doran, who was 2-for-26, homered off Bill Gullickson, 7-4, in the sixth for Houston's first run.

The Astros scored again in the seventh, off Frank Williams.

Scott hit a fielder's choice grounder to shortstop Kurt Stillwell, who stepped on second to force Dickie Thon but tossed it wide of first allowing Scott to go to second. He later scored on Billy Hatcher's single to left field.

Glenn Davis singled in the eighth and was followed by a triple Kevin Bass and Ron Reynolds' sacrifice fly.

Expos 4, Mets 0

Dennis Martinez allowed only three hits and Dwight Gooden lost for the first time since returning from drug rehabilitation.

Martinez, 1-0, struck out six and walked three in his first complete game of the season. Martinez did not allow a New York runner past second base.

Gooden, 2-1, allowed seven hits and four runs in seven innings. Tim Wallach, who was 3-for-26 against Gooden in his career before the game, had a double, single and walk, scoring a run and driving in one.

Pirates 3, Cardinals 1

Mike Dunne pitched a three-hitter in only his third major league appearance and Mike LaValliere and Andy Van Slyke hit RBI doubles to end St. Louis' four-game winning streak.

Dunne, who was traded along with LaValliere and Van Slyke to Pittsburgh from the Cardinals before the season, struck out four and walked seven.

Mike Diaz hit his 10th homer in the eighth for Pittsburgh's final run.

Phillies 3, Cubs 2

Steve Bedrosian pitched the ninth inning to earn his National League record ninth consecutive save, handing the Cubs their fifth straight loss.

Glenn Wilson scored from third on Lee Smith's ninth-inning wild pitch after Juan Samuel had apparently scored the lead run in the eighth on Von Hayes' double but was ruled out on an appeal play for not touching home plate.

Smith, 2-4, threw the wild pitch with pinch batter Rick Schu at bat.

Kent Tekulve, 2-2, was the winner and Steve Bedrosian, who pitched the ninth inning, picked up his 16th save.

Smith leading NL vote-getter

NEW YORK (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals shortstop Ozzie Smith, who has started the last four All-Star Games for the National League, leads in his position by more than a half-million votes in this year's fan balloting for the July 14 contest at Oakland.

Smith also leads the major leagues with 658,489 votes, the baseball commissioner's office announced Monday. Montreal's Hubie Brooks is a distant second in the NL balloting for shortstop with 124,932.

In the first base balloting, Keith Hernandez of the New York Mets moved past Cardinals slugger Jack Clark.

Laurel Shelton was the loser for the Red Raiders, who had beaten the Blue Diamonds twice.

James led a 22-hit Blue Diamond attack with three homers and five RBIs.

On Friday, the Blue Diamonds downed the Bad Jammers 12-8, raising their record to 13-0.

Division II

Yellow M&M's 13, Fighting Dragons 7

In a battle of heavyweights, the M&M's kept their record perfect at 13-0. The Dragons dropped to 11-2. Both losses came to the M&M's.

Cassie Underwood was the winner and Amber Fannin took the loss. Annie Rodriguez and Melissa Yanez each homered for the winners. Gawn Myers and Fannin were top hitters for the Dragons.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY JUNE 17, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You will find new ways to handle matters of importance to you. Patience and cleverness will be necessary to cope with delays and sudden pressures.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Although difficult, persevere and handle private affairs. Put off favors for your mate to avoid difficulties.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Allow time for delays in obtaining your wishes. Don't bring up moot points with friends, try to harmonize.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle your public duties conscientiously. To show your superiors you have tact, talk less and listen more.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Mull over new plans before getting involved. Get facts on a newcomer before making any judgments.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Easy-looking problems have strings attached, so be careful. Be honest in answering questions from your mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Keep a chat with your partner impersonal to reach an accord. If your reputation is at stake, stay uninvolved.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle routine tasks more efficiently. Act amused at a co-worker's mood swings, then you'll get along well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Put your creative ideas to work, allowing for delays. Show patience with your mates moods and drive carefully.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) The weather will effect home affairs: pleasant one moment, bad the next. Have only cheerful guests into your home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) The morning will start smoothly, but be careful handling later situations. Visit friends, but drive carefully.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Money matters take priority today, so use common sense. Advice from a scheming elder could cause trouble.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle personal goals, and don't feel others are against you. Friends may be sullen over private matters.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be artistic and sensitive. Teach your child to be objective and to accept criticism. With this ability, your son or daughter will excel in any job requiring precision and perception. Discipline should not be harsh, and good food is very important.

President Reagan reads from his notes during a nationally televised speech from the Oval Office of the White House Monday night. Reagan addressed budget issues and the U.S. position in the Persian Gulf. He attempted to persuade Congress that American warships should protect oil tankers in the Gulf.

President argues in favor of U.S. protecting tankers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, trying to persuade a wary Congress that American warships should protect oil tankers in the Persian Gulf, warned Monday night that "if we don't do the job, the Soviets will."

In a nationally broadcast speech, Reagan said U.S. national security would be jeopardized if the Kremlin is the guardian of gulf oil.

"Our role in the gulf is vital. It is to protect our interests and to help our friends in the region protect theirs," he said in the text of his address from the Oval Office. "Our immediate task in the gulf is clear — and should not be exaggerated."

Members of Congress, including some of the president's fellow Republicans, have complained that the administration is embarking on a risky course in agreeing to protect owned by the tiny gulf nation of Kuwait by placing them under American flags and captains and providing escorts by U.S. Navy warships.

Reagan's critics think the administration should have gotten a commitment from America's allies in Western Europe, who depend far more on gulf oil than the United States, to help protect the Kuwaitis.

Noting the controversy over the reflagging of 11 Kuwaiti ships as U.S. vessels, the president declared, "We will accept our responsibility for these vessels in the face of threats by Iran or anyone else."

"If we fail to do so, simply because these ships previously flew the flag of another country, Kuwait, we would abdicate our role as a naval power," he said.

"And we would open opportunities for the Soviets to move into this chokepoint of the free world's oil flow."

In a word: if we don't do the job, the Soviets will. And that will jeopardize our own national security as well as our allies," he said.

In other points in his 16-minute speech, Reagan:

— Said allied support cleared the way for a major arms-reduction agreement with the Soviets on short- and medium-range missiles in Europe and said the next step could be a 50 percent cut in the superpowers' strategic forces.

— Chastized Congress for failing to come up with a deficit-reduction plan and called anew for a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget and legislation permitting him to veto specific items in comprehensive appropriations bills.

Reagan, reporting on his talks at last week's seven-nation summit in Venice, said he was gratified that the allies gave him support for his policy. "It was extended without hesitation," he said.

While offering diplomatic support, the allies did not offer any military backing to escort Kuwaiti ships. The president noted that Britain has given military protection to more than 100 of its ships in the gulf this year and said France also has a naval presence in the gulf.

Reagan said Americans can be "gratified by the sense of unity and support our allies expressed" in U.S. dealings with the Soviet Union and noted that "we and our allies have reached full consensus on our negotiating position" for arms control talks.

At a post-summit meeting in Reykjavik, Iceland, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization approved the elimination of medium- and shorter-range missiles in Europe. Reagan originally proposed such a plan in 1981, and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev revived the offer in April.

The president said the United States, in negotiations in Geneva, would propose the global elimination of shorter-range missiles along with deep reductions in — "and we hope the ultimate elimination of" — longer-range missiles.

Reagan said there also was strong support in Venice to press Moscow for progress on other arms control issues, such as a 50 percent cut in the blockbuster strategic nuclear forces.

The president, who returned from Europe last Friday night, tried to counter reports that the summit did not produce much progress.

"You've been hearing and reading reports that nothing was really accomplished at the summit and the United States in particular came home empty-handed," he said. However, he said, "the truth is we came home from this summit with everything we had hoped to accomplish."

Administration officials had acknowledged in Venice that the United States did not press the allies for any military help in the Persian Gulf; it was clear that such a plea would go unanswered.

Influential members of Congress — including Sens. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and Claiborne Pell, D-R.I. — have registered strong opposition to the administration's gulf policy and have urged Reagan to either reverse course or delay implementing his plan.

Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas has expressed unhappiness the allies did not give the United States any military support.

In his speech, Reagan said summit partners agreed to continue working against trade barriers and made "significant progress" on the issue of agricultural subsidies. He said it was "a real step forward" merely to get the issue on the summit agenda.

Deficit a matter of perspective

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan gave a new answer Monday to the nation's record budget deficits: He began referring to the red ink in a manner that makes it look like it's disappearing.

Using what could be called "deficit-speak," the president told the nation that he had cut the deficit nearly 40 percent in four years.

That probably surprised some Americans who recall that last year the federal budget deficit was $220 billion, the largest imbalance in history.

In his nationally broadcast report on the Venice economic summit, the president said he felt among the other six world leaders "a sense of unease about America's commitment to a consistent, enforceable plan to reduce our deficits."

Many Americans feel the same unease a fact reflected in polls that show budget deficits near the top of public concerns.

Almost since Reagan entered office, he and Congress have argued over budget priorities and the deficits have steadily increased. The debate has not been along partisan lines. While the Republicans controlled the Senate during the first six years of the Reagan presidency, Democrats could sit back and watch GOP Senate leaders proclaim administration budgets "dead on arrival" at Capitol Hill.

The president made it clear in his latest speech that the budget argument is certain to continue.

Reagan referred to the calls from the new Democratic leadership of the Senate for a budget summit to try to resolve differences over priorities, but he left little hope it could accomplish anything.

"We're ready to talk and consult at any time but not if the objective is additional spending, more taxes, and less defense," said the president. "What we want is less spending, period."

Reagan never mentioned the budget deficit figure — the $220 billion.

Instead, he chose to describe the deficit as a percentage of the gross national product, the measure of the entire U.S. economy.

"All of us who take pride in our economic achievements know the efforts we've made on deficit spending," he said.

"In 1983," he added, "deficit spending was a full 6.3 percent of our gross national product; today, that figure stands at 3.9 percent — nearly a 40 percent decline in just four years."

"This year, too, our deficit is programmed to be cut by nearly $48 billion, a more than 20 percent reduction."

It was perfectly legitimate to describe the deficit in terms of gross national product. But the fact is, it rarely is referred to that way.

One reason is that the GNP — about two-thirds of which is consumer spending — is far less subject to government control than is the federal budget.

Secondly, by offering the GNP argument so late in his administration, Reagan left the impression he has very little hope he can reduce the gross dollar figure for the deficit and is trying to shift the debate to terms that make him look better.

A major portion of the big decline he cited for the current fiscal year is the reduction in defense spending Congress is pursuing over his objections and an unexpected speed up in tax revenues under the revised tax code adopted last year.

The new tax law, which may not prove as "revenue neutral" as its backers described it a year ago, is likely to bring in $10 billion to $15 billion more in revenue this year than was anticipated.

On the defense budget, Reagan asked for $312 billion, a figure Congress is likely to chop to somewhere between $295 billion and $300 billion.

Reagan, Demos exchange accounts of budget blame

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, warning that the strength of America and its allies will be jeopardized unless "we act responsibly here at home," chastised the Democratic-controlled Congress on Monday night for failing to pass a deficit-reduction plan this year.

"If our budget reduction efforts are not consistent and credible, we will be sending trouble signals all over the world that the American economy is in trouble again," the president said in a television address.

But Democratic leaders said Reagan and his Republican allies were blocking their deficit-reduction plans, trying to subvert the will of the voters who last November brought Democrats back to control of the Senate for the first time since 1980.

Reagan repeated his oft-stated request that Congress give him more control over the budget process. He asked for the ability to veto individual items in spending bills and for a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget, items which Congress has denied him during his six-year presidency.

Budget deficits have soared to record levels during Reagan's term, more than doubling the red ink accumulated in the nation's history through 1980. The government currently pays interest on about $2.3 trillion in debt.

Reagan called on Congress to obey the Gramm-Rudman law, which requires the fiscal 1988 budget have no more than $108 billion in red ink. Congress "ignored" the budget the administration drafted to meet that goal, he said.

Reagan said his talks with allied leaders at last week's Venice summit told him that failing to live up to the mandate of the deficit-reduction law was of worldwide concern. "Your future and mine and that of our children ... will be jeopardized unless together we can act responsibly here at home," he said.

The president also said he soon would be revealing an "economic Bill of Rights" to reduce the government burden on individuals.

Administration officials conceded recently that Reagan's spending plan missed the deficit target by more than $25 billion. That blueprint had more military spending, fewer new taxes and less domestic spending than the plan Democrats are drafting.

Final approval of the budget in Congress has been delayed mostly by a Democratic dispute over the exact amount of military spending.

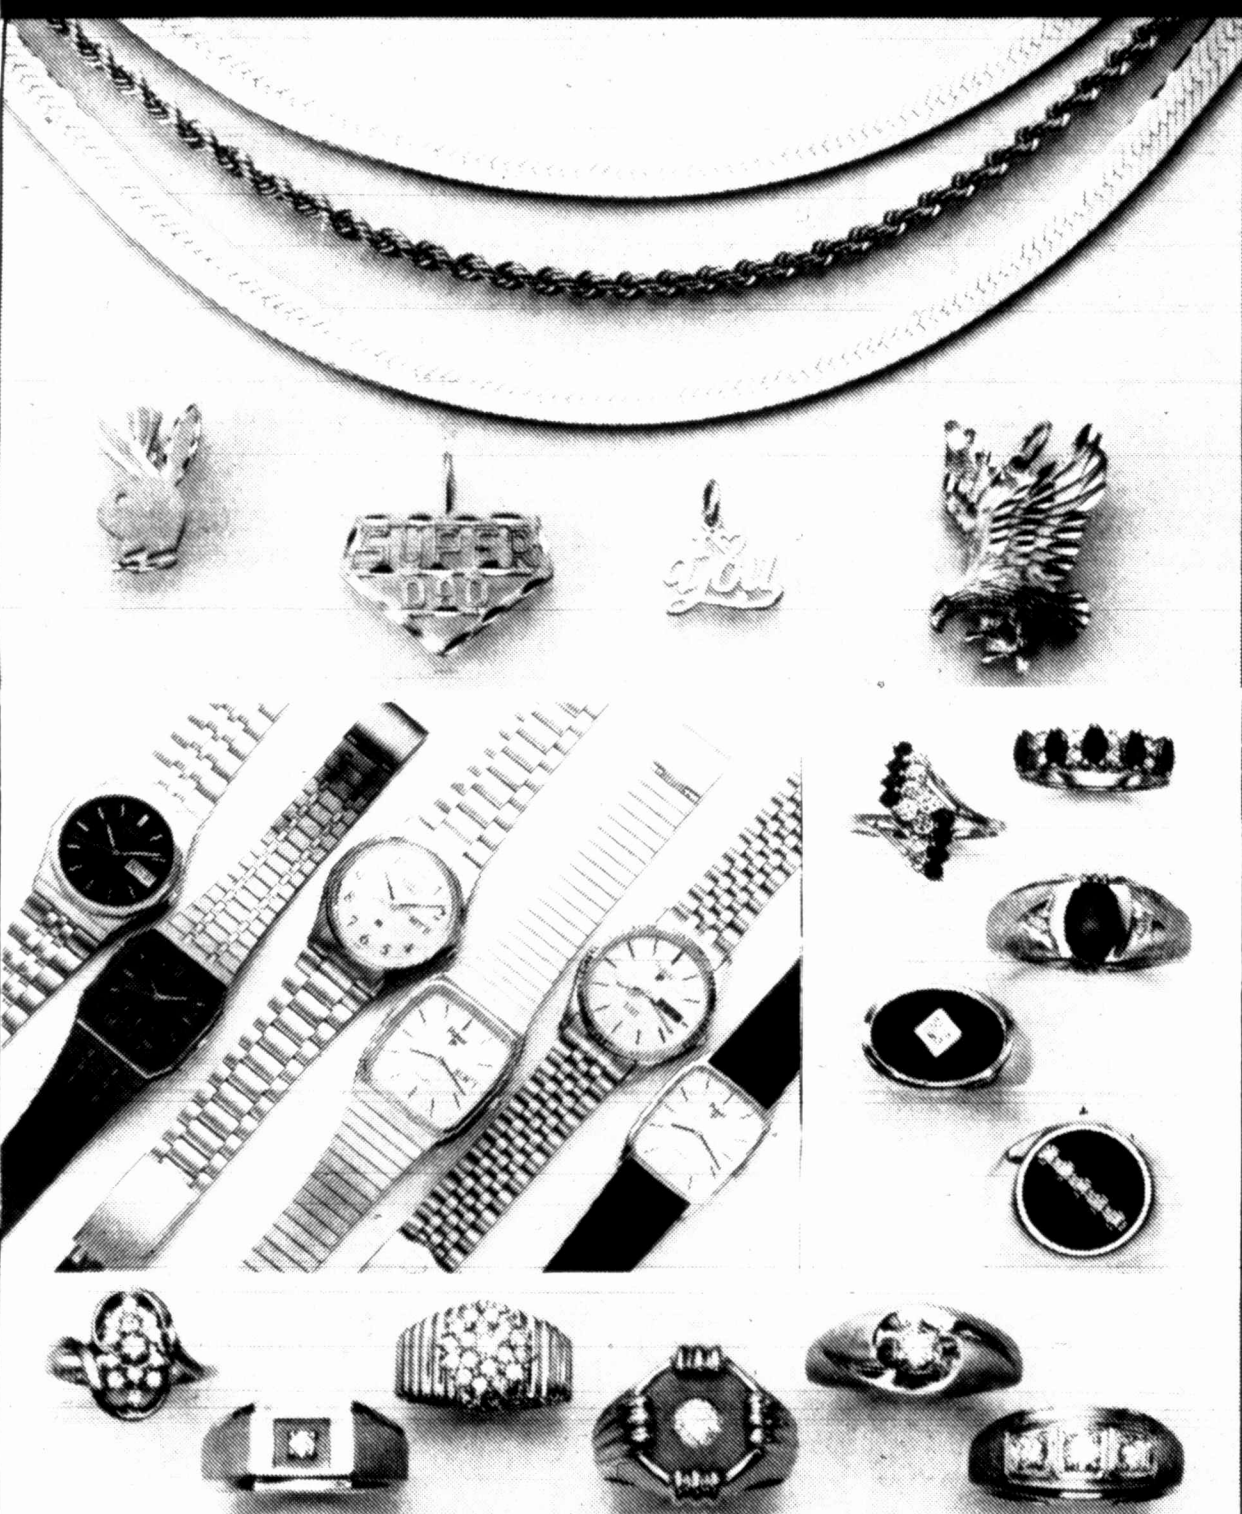

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said Monday that intransigence by Reagan and congressional Republicans was aimed at preventing the Democrats from taking action.

"It was my hope that the president would recognize the results of last November's election and recognize that the Congress, even a Democratic Congress, has a legitimate voice in determining national policy," Byrd said in a speech to the Steelworkers Legislative Conference.

"The president and his allies in the Senate have taken a new approach to the legislative process. It is a 'we won't play the game unless we play it our way,' he said. 'I have every confidence that we will pass a budget within the next few days despite Republican opposition. I do not intend to have the will of the people obstructed by naysayers.'"
