Four Korean ministers die in bombing

Chun Doo-hwan

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Chun Doo-hwan, who narrowly escaped a bombing in Burma that killed four Cabinet ministers, blamed North Korea for the attack and returned to Seoul today for emergency meetings with government leaders.

The bombing Sunday was "a barbarous crime, unpardonable by the conscience of all mankind," Chun said after returning to his mourning nation, cutting short a planned an 18-day, six-nation goodwill tour that began with the Burma visit.

Meanwhile, more than 7,000 people took part in rallies in Seoul and seven other cities to denounce North Korea. Similar rallies were planned for Tuesday, when the bodies of the 16 South Korean victims are to be brought home for a "national funeral service." The service is tentatively set for Saturday with burial in the National Cemetery.

A government spokesman said most sporting events and various cultural and folk festivals would be postponed until after Oct. 20.

The explosion shattered the roof of the Martyr's Mausoleum outside Rangoon, sending up a billowing cloud of smoke and engulfing most the South Korean delegation waiting for Chun to arrive for a wreath-laying ceremony, officials said.

The blast shook buildings a mile away in the Burmese capital, killed 19 people, including the South Koreans, and wounded 19 others. It was not clear what type of explosive was used, but South Korean news agencies said it may have been a time bomb planted in the ceiling of the one-story shrine.

The victims included South Korea's deputy prime minister and foreign minister.

Witnesses said Chun's limousine was three minutes away from the memorial site and immediately wheeled around and fled the area. One report said the president and his wife had been delayed because the car was tied up in traffic.

After arriving at the heavily guarded airport in Seoul, Chun said his government "will study all possible countermeasures in punishing such injustice and violence" although he gave no specifics.

"It will not only be our people alone who point to the North Korean communist group, the most inhumane on earth, as the mastermind of the crime (which) perpetrated an extremely atrocious sin in an attempt on my life," he said.

Watt calls it quits

Interior Secretary James Watt reads a copy of the resignation letter he sent to President Reagan. Watt made the announcement to a small group of reporters and photographers on the Barrack Ranch in Santa Ynzez, Calif. At Watt's side is his wife, Leilani.

Search starts for Watt's replacement

■ Reaction to Watt's resignation — Page 2A

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Watt, the victim of a mouth that misfired once too often, will give up his job as interior secretary as soon as a replacement can be found by the president and confirmed by the Senate. The search begins today.

Watt gave up an 18-day struggle to hold onto his Cabinet post Sunday but vowed to never abandon his crusade for "spiritual freedom and political liberty."

Standing in a California cow pasture, Watt read his resignation letter to a small band of reporters Sunday, his voice quavering at times. His wife stood at his side, holding the reins of their horses.

President Reagan accepted the resignation "reluctantly" and an aide said the president hoped to nominate a successor in one to two weeks.

"The time has come," Watt said. "It is my view that my usefulness to you in this administration has come to an end."

Reagan praised Watt for the "outstanding" job he had done managing the country's natural resources and said his "dedication to public service and his accomplishments as secretary of the interior will long be remembered."

Neither man in their formal statements mentioned Watt's wisecrack Sept. 21 in a U.S. Chamber of Commerce speech in which he referred to "a black, a woman, two Jews and a cripple" on a coal advisory commission.

But asked whether the controversy over the remark had prompted the resignation, Watt said, "It did accelerate it."

Watt, joking that he wanted to answer reporters' questions from atop his horse so he could get away quickly if necessary, said he felt he had accomplished his objectives as interior secretary and "it's time for us to move on to the next phase of our lives."

Asked what that would be, Watt said, "We will continue our crusade and our efforts to establish spiritual freedom and political liberty in this country, for that is the real battleground."

Watt refused to name a preference for a successor and administration officials said Watt and Reagan did not discuss that topic in a 10-minute telephone conversation Sunday afternoon.

Before talking to Reagan, who was at Camp David, Md., Watt first called presidential counselor Edwin Meese III.

New accounts have been pledged to FNB

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

A pledge campaign to get Midlanders to make deposits into The First National Bank of Midland has garnered promises amounting to several million dollars, said one of the organizers this morning.

But because many of the people are refusing to disclose how much they will deposit, the group has changed its tactic, according to Goodrich Hejl, also involved in the movement.

Instead of getting dollar amounts pledged, the group is approaching it from the "attitude standpoint. Everyone is responding and saying 'I'll get on the bandwagon, too,'" said Hejl.

"We had hoped to get dollar indications of large amounts."

Hejl, along with Margaret Captain and Ken Lough started the campaign Saturday evening to obtain pledges of deposits in a show of support for the financially-troubled FNB.

Ms. Captain said she couldn't pinpoint a figure, "but we know we have several million. It varies from $300 to a couple of $250,000 pledges and several $100,000."

Four men slain execution-style

■ Victims became friends over hobby — Page 2C

SHERMAN (AP) — Three men whose friendship grew with their love of ultralight aircrfaft were killed execution-style with a bullet in the head and another friend was shot to death as he ran from a hangar where they were to sell one of the small, noisy and colorful aircraft.

Authorities, who declined to speculate on a motive, said three of the men were shot in the head and the fourth — who may have surprised the killer — was shot twice in the back as he apparently ran for his life.

"We know we've got four dead people. And we know a .22 was probably used... and that's about it," said Grayson County Sheriff Jack Driscoll.

"It is not like when somebody walks into a 7-Eleven and shoots a clerk in the head. You know what the motive is then. It's the money. With something like this, you don't know. There is no reason," said Driscoll.

Three of the four had gone to the hangar Saturday at a North Texas ranch to discuss selling one of the planes to a fifth person.

Driscoll said ranch owner Bob Tate, 51; Grayson County deputy sheriff Philip Good, 29; and Jerry Brown, 51, were shot in the head and their bodies were found covered by a carpet a few feet away from pools of blood on the floor and a card table.

He said the fourth man, former Sherman police officer Ronald Mayes, 37, may have walked in on the slayings and tried to run for his life. Mayes' body had been dragged almost nine feet and was lying face down in a pool of blood against the side door. He had been shot twice in the back.

A friend of Mayes, who asked not to be identified, said they had talked during the week about the execution-style slayings of five people abducted from a fast-food restaurant in Kilgore.

"We were talking about Kilgore at work last week," and Ron said, 'They'd have to shoot me in the back. There's no way I'd stand still and wait for it to happen,'" said the friend.

Driscoll said the bodies, which were taken to Dallas for autopsy, "were all warm. It had not been long."

He said investigators found 11 .22 caliber shell casings scattered around the hangar.

Investigators also found money ranging from $13 to $100 in the men's wallets and all still wore their jewelry, Driscoll said.

Wife-beating most under-reported crime, says FBI

Editor's Note: From the newborn to the elderly, from the poor to the wealthy, abuse is found in every category of human life. This six-part series explores various forms of abuse and the impact on its victims. Where first names of the victims are used, these names are fictitious. But the stories are true. This article looks at spousal abuse.

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

She searched her mind for a reason. Could it have been a bad day for him? Or, maybe the kids made too much noise.

Whatever the reason, when Nancy's live-in partner hit her, she was left with a black eye.

It was a rainy August afternoon in Abilene. Her three children, all under 7, romped through the house. No harsh words passed between the 30-year-old woman and her partner.

After dinner, Nancy cleared the table. Then it happened. The impact made her head pound. She felt faint. It took a minute before she realized her boyfriend's fist caused the pain.

Abuse

The unreported epidemic

Unlike most women, that's all it took for Nancy to leave. She gathered her three children and sought refuge at a shelter for battered women.

Because the Abilene center was full, she came to Midland, where she is staying at the Permian Basin Centered for Battered Women and Their Children.

BATTERY IS the major cause of injury to women, and some 2,000 to 4,000 women are beaten to death annually, according to statistics. The FBI considers wife-beating the most under-reported crime in the country, with one beating every 15 seconds.

Nancy reported her beating. But not all women do. The Texas Council on Family Violence includes wife battering as part of the "unreported epidemic."

Midland Assistant County Attorney Diana Anderson estimates that a small percentage of spousal assault cases go through the judicial system.

"Abused women rarely go through the criminal justice system," Ms. Anderson said. "It's usually a husband or boyfriend who has abused her and she doesn't want to press charges. They won't leave the guy. If they do press charges when they're mad, they usually drop them later.

"It's frustrating a lot of times," she added.

WIFE BATTERING is everywhere. It's not new. It covers all socio-economic levels, according to Irene Clouse, director of Midland's shelter.

"I've had a judge's wife, a doctor's wife, an oilman's wife and a policeman's wife at the center."

But men are also abused, according to experts.

"I really don't like to make this a feminist issue," Ms. Clouse said. "We're dealing with people — male and female. Generally, the male is so much more forceful, larger, but women can also batter."

"I'm convinced there are battered men," said Dr. Jim Olson, a Midland pyschologist. "But the battered husband is still in the closet. It's going against his masculinity to affirm he can't handle the little lady."

Midland District Attorney Vern Martin added that "men can be emotionally battered and are as frequently as women."

But until statistics are completed, most of the information available on spousal abuse pertains to women.

According to the Texas Council on Family Violence in Austin, one out of every four women over 18 years old has been abused by her husband or live-in partner. Two out of three families are seeking emergency refuge from a violent home.

"A month ago (August), we had 50 people here," Ms. Clouse said. "Women are realizing they can leave, they have alternatives."

Watt's supporters not surprised

By The Associated Press

Supporters of Interior Secretary James Watt were disappointed but not surprised at his resignation Sunday, partly blaming the media for his demise, while his opponents, although pleased, said the real problem lies with President Reagan's land policies.

"I think it's sad that he had to resign because of saying something that was obviously unfortunate and poorly said," said former Interior Secretary Stan Hathaway, who was appointed by President Ford in 1975 after a stormy confirmation hearing and resigned for health reasons just five weeks later.

"He's done a good job but that's the way it is in government service today. We won't remember what he did, we'll remember what he said. Most politicians react to reporters, that builds the fires."

"I'm pleased to see James Watt gone, but to a certain extent, Watt got a raw deal," said Dr. George Hulsey of Norman, Okla., a member of the board of directors of the National Wildlife Federation. "He was simply doing what Ronald Reagan wanted done as far as conservation is concerned.

"Although Watt has some peculiarities and suffers from hoof-and-mouth disease, what should be repudiated is Ronald Reagan's conservation policies."

Peter Anderson, president of the group Wisconsin's Environmental Decade, also said Watt was merely following Reagan's bidding.

Resignation is "cause for relief for all those distressed by his policy of exploiting our natural resources. However, the real James Watt is actually Ronald Reagan, who has steadfastly supported Watt in all of his activities except, perhaps, for his dislike of the Beach Boys. Thus, the big question mark is who will replace Watt at Interior," he said.

"We are obviously pleased. But we're still concerned about really changing the policies of that department and not just the standup comic," added Phil Hocker of Jackson, Wyo., national treasurer of the Sierra Club.

Watt, who at one point was given a model foot with a hole in it by Reagan because of his penchant for controversial remarks, resigned two weeks after a comment about members of a federal advisory panel. His characterization of them as "a black, ... a woman, two Jews and a cripple" was widely denounced.

Reagan, who accepted Watt's resignation, praised the secretary for doing "an outstanding job as a member of my Cabinet and in his stewardship of the natural resources of the nation."

Dr. Richard L. Gordon, a member of the Federal Coal Commission who has a paralyzed right arm, said Sunday night that although he had been "distressed" at being described by Watt as a "cripple," he was indifferent to the news of Watt's resignation.

"My reading of this is, it's a general reaction to Secretary W... cumulative actions," said Gordo...

"I think it's a tragedy that ... quit, if we're going to start l... people because of what they ... said Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ar... leading conservative whose st... one of those most affected by ... rior Department decisions.

"I don't like what he said," G... water said, but added the re... was similar to one that was ... months going around Washingto... a joke. He just said it in public, ... that was a mistake."

Rep. Manuel Lujan Jr., R-N.M., who has been one of most ar... backers of Watt and has been m... tioned as possible successor to Energy Secretary Don Hode... Hodel gets Watt's post, said: "I'm sure that Secretary Watt did w... he thought was best for the coun... I hope that we can now mo... forward on Interior issues that ... critical. Days expected to be sunny, mild

Sunny days have replaced the overcast at least through Tuesday.

And days will be mild rather than scorching.

For tonight, the weatherman with the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport has predicted a low in the mid-50s and southerly winds at 5 to 10 mph.

The peak temperature on a sunny Tuesday is to be in the mid-80s. Winds are to be southerly at 5 to 15 mph.

Sunday's high temperature was 78 degrees, and the record high for an Oct. 9 is 92 degrees set in 1965. The overnight low was 62 degrees, and record low for an Oct. 10 is 43 degrees in 1979.

New accounts pledged to FNB

They received two out-of-state calls Sunday, one from Alabama and another from Detroit, and these may also amount to several million dollars, said Ms. Captain.

The group hasn't encountered any negative reaction, said Hejl. "Everyone is positive in the approach we're taking. No one is negative to what we're doing. No one has said we're barking up the wrong tree."

Lough is scheduled to meet with Thomas J. Wageman, president and chief executive officer of FNB, this afternoon to determine how the "for deposit only" lines will be set up, according to Ms. Captain.

She noted, too, that several calls had been from persons promising to open new accounts at First National.

Persons wanting to join the list may call 683-4864, or go by 205 E. Michigan Ave.

After a proxy statement saying the bank needed to raise between $40-100 million in capital to remain solvent was publicized last Thursday, more than the normal number of clients withdrew cash from the bank. On Friday, various groups started gathering support for the bank by asking them to sign petitions and to make deposits.

A town hall meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m Tuesday in Midland Center for the public to voice its support of First National.

Reagan begins search for Watt's replacement

Asked if he or other administration officials had tried to talk Watt out of resigning, Meese said by the time Watt called, the interior secretary had made up his mind.

Both the president in his statement and Meese in an interview praised Watt for carrying out Reagan's policies.

"We wanted to support him and keep him in the job," Meese said. "I don't think any Cabinet member has done more than he had toward achieving the president's goals."

Meese said the search for a successor would begin today and he expected Reagan would announce his choice in a week or two. He said the White House hopes the Senate can confirm the nominee before it goes home, probably in late November.

While Meese said no list of possible replacements has been drawn up, speculation in the administration and on Capitol Hill has centered on former Sen. Clifford Hansen, R-Wyo., who was Reagan's first choice for the job in 1981; former Sen. James Buckley, R-N.Y.; Rep. Manuel Lujan, R-N.M.; Energy Secretary Donald Hodel, and Interior Undersecretary J.J. Simmons III.

Meese said Watt sounded relieved and "certainly not downbeat" in his telephone conversation. However, a longtime friend, Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., described Watt in recent days as "in anguish" as more and more former supporters attacked him and called for his resignation.

Watt issued an abject apology to Reagan the day after the remark and then dropped out of sight, hoping to ride out his latest gaffe as he had so many in the past. For the past five days, he had been secluded at the Thomas J. Barrack ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif.

But the storm didn't subside and, unlike past controversies, a substantial number of Republicans joined Democrats in denouncing Watt. Facing certain passage on Oct. 17 of a Senate resolution calling for his dismissal for conduct "unbefitting a senior Cabinet member," Watt chose to resign.

Watt's departure was hailed by environmentalists, who have spent 2½ years attacking his push to develop energy and other resources on the federal lands.

William Turnage, executive director of the Wilderness Society, said of the 43 men who have served as secretary of the interior, Watt was the "worst of all."

Rafe Pomerance, president of Friends of the Earth, said, "The general in charge of Reagan's war on the environment may be gone, but the commander-in-chief and just about all the officers remain."

But Richard Viguerie, the conservative direct-mail fund-raising king, said he was saddened by the departure of "the most outspoken conservative and born-again Christian in the Reagan administration."

Nixon among those attending Cooke's funeral

NEW YORK (AP) — About 1,000 white-robed priests ranging from cardinals to curates gathered with government officials, celebrities and a former president today for a "celebration of joy" — the funeral and burial of Cardinal Terence Cooke.

Tickets for places in St. Patrick's Cathedral, the symbol of Cooke's authority in life and the resting place of his remains in death, were held by about 2,500 people, including former President Richard Nixon, comedian Bob Hope and Gov. Mario Cuomo.

The Rev. Peter Finn, spokesman for the archdiocese of New York, described today's Mass as a "celebration of joy," not a lamentation of death.

"It's a Mass of resurrection, celebrating the eternal life that faithful Christians enjoy with Christ," he said.

Worshipers at the annual Columbus Day Mass this morning at St. Patrick's prayed that Cooke might enjoy "the fullness of eternal life in the company of the saints forever." The Columbus Day parade had been canceled because of Cooke's death.

Among the 1,000 concelebrants expected at Cooke's Mass of Christian Burial were several bishops who had been mentioned as Cooke's possible successor as leader of 1.8 million people in the archdiocese.

O'Keefe, vicar general under Cooke, was named Thursday to administer the archdiocese until Pope John Paul II appoints a successor.

The archdiocese said the list of concelebrants had 78 bishops, 16 archbishops and seven cardinals, including John Krol of Philadelphia, Luis Aponte Martinez of Puerto Rico, Thomas O'Fiaich of Ireland and William Baum. Baum, former archbishop of Washington, D.C., is the top-ranking American in the Vatican.

The chief celebrant, Archbishop Pio Laghi, is the pope's Washington-based delegate to the American church.

Cooke died Thursday at age 62 after 15 years as spiritual leader of more Catholics than any other American bishop.

As archbishop of New York, Cooke also headed the military vicariate that ministers to about 2 million Catholics associated with the armed forces.

More shelters for battered women needed

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

In the 1800s many states had a law which allowed a man to beat his wife with a switch — as long as it was no wider than the thumb.

Today women are giving a thumbs down sign to the "Rule of Thumb" law.

Shelters for battered women and their children have cropped up throughout the U.S. In Texas there are 35 shelters for family violence victims. And that's not enough, according to studies by the Department of Human Resources.

About two-thirds of Texas women and children requesting shelter are turned away. In his 1984-85 budget speech to the Legislature, Gov. Mark White said: "Currently, the victims of family violence in most areas of the state have nowhere to go in times of crisis. This budget includes funds to help provide 12 additional shelters for those shattered by family violence."

It was recommended the number of shelters should be increased to 44 and the level of state support should be raised from 26 percent to 75 percent. The Legislature approved to increase funds 45 percent over 1983 and the goal is to have five to seven new shelters in 1984.

In Midland the Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and Their Children is funded 60 percent by the DHR, the Texas Council on Family Violence and United Way of Midland. The other 40 percent is from private contributions.

Before 1979, a small trailer in Midland offered support and refuge for battered women. Then, a four bedroom house was purchased, providing refuge, counseling and referral information.

According to the shelter's executive director Irene Clouse, the Midland center provides a safe, temporary emergency shelter for female victims of domestic violence and their children.

Additional objectives of the center include:

— Professional and lay counseling.

— Rehabilitating the victim for self-identity, education and employment.

— Assisting in moving the victim to another shelter.

— Providing transportation to appointments and from the police station in an emergency situation.

Irene Clouse

Wife-beating under-reported crime, says FBI

IN 1983, Midland's center sheltered 444 women and children. According to Ms. Clouse, as of July there have been 452 people who have passed through the shelter. She estimated 20 to 25 women come to the shelter each month.

"We see more of the lower socio-economic level of women here," she said. "Generally, people with money have resources — a job, money, education or a primary support system (family).

"The women we get here have little or no education. Their husbands are generally economically stressed. The women have no cars. The family doesn't have any money. And the women fear their husbands."

Why do women stay with men who abuse them.?

"We're talking about a love-hate relationship," Ms. Clouse said. "When you have a stressed family — pushed by society to stick with it and work it out — then you're going to see women staying."

The women who do not try to get out of an abusive relationship say to themselves: "I love this person, but I really wish he wouldn't do this to me again."

Ms. Clouse said most spouse abusers are "very apologetic after the battering. They make a multitude of promises and they mean it. But they're out of control.

"Anyone can provoke anger," she added. "But violence is the responsibility of the person who strikes."

According to a study of behavioral characteristics of domestic violence, the batterer has an explosive temper, is jealous, has low self-esteem and is emotionally dependent. Also, the batterer believes forcible behavior secures the family and controls a partner by threatening homicide or suicide.

"The battered woman has figured out it's all her fault," Ms. Clouse said. "But it takes two people to get into a rage."

Tuesday: Sexual abuse.

Four Sherman men slain execution-style

Relatives said an ultralight aircraft was missing from the hangar. And Driscoll said several people told investigators there should have been more than one plane in the hangar.

"I understand you could take one down and put it in a compact position in two hours," said Driscoll. He said the main hangar doors were locked but a side door was not.

Brown's daughter, Lynn, said Brown, Good and Tate had gone to the hangar at 4 p.m. to meet a man from Dallas who was going to buy the plane for $4,000.

Mayes, who lived within sight of the Tate ranch, knew that the men were in the hangar, became curious when they never opened its doors and went over to investigate, said his uncle, George Barbee of Dallas.

His body was found by Tate's wife and son, who had gone to the B&B Ranch about 8:30 p.m. Saturday when Tate failed to return home when expected, Driscoll said. Sheriff's deputies found the other three bodies lying side-by-side on blue carpeting and covered with more pieces of carpet. Each had been shot once in the head.

A man who lives near the ranch told investigators he heard shots about 6:30 p.m., but Driscoll said the shots may have come from hunters.

Driscoll said he was certain the slayings took place in the hangar because of the amount of blood present and said the scene was undisturbed except for a chair tilted against a table.

Good, a licensed pilot, and Mayes were members of Brown's Sunday school class at a Sherman church. Brown, a deacon, talked the two into visiting the West Sherman Baptist Church where Good and Mayes later became members.

"He (Brown) was the kind of people who was always inviting people to come to church," said the Rev. Danny Wood.

Tate, Good and Brown flew the planes "ever chance they got, every time the wind was out," said David Watkins, Tate's son-in-law.

Mayes lived nearby and was friend with the other three, but he did not fly in the ultralight aircraft.

He was "scared of those things and hated to fly," said a friend of Mayes' who asked not to be identified.

A relative of Tate's who asked not to be identified said Tate would "buy and sell anything. He's a wheeler-dealer."

She said Tate had told another relative the name of the man he was going to meet.

Bombing in Burma kills four Korean ministers

The South Koreans offered no proof to support their allegation, but they frequently have accused North Korea of terrorist plots to destablize their non-communist system ever since the Korean peninsula was divided following World War II.

North Korea reported the bombing without comment. The official (North) Korean Central News Agency, quoting foreign news reports, said Chun was "greeted with a strong bomb explosion in Rangoon."

Chun met for about an hour with government officials at the airport and then went to the Blue House presidential residence for another emergency session, officials said.

Earlier, Prime Minister Kim Sanshyup ordered a national alert for the armed forces and sent an emergency medical team to Rangoon to care for the wounded South Koreans. The government also sent a team of investigators to work with the Burmese officials in probing the blast.

The government urged the public to remain calm, saying the military and police were prepared to guard national security. Many people interviewed by domestic television and radio stations said North Korea should be punished.

A Defense Ministry spokesman said today there were no reports of unusual activities along the 151-mile armistice line separating the South from the North. A U.S. official said no special alert was issued to the 39,000 American troops in South Korea.

Despite the deaths of the government leaders, South Korea's basic economic and diplomatic politics were not expected to change.

Flags flew at half staff throughout the country and people filed past an alter set up at the national cemetery outside Seoul, bowing in tribute to the victims. Television and radio stations canceled their regular programs and played solemn music interspersed with news accounts of the bombing.

The city government in Pusan, 230 miles south of Seoul, asked residents to wear dark clothing and black ribbons as a sign of mourning.

The four Cabinet members killed were Deputy Prime Minister Suh Suk-joon, 45, who also headed the Economic Planning Board; Foreign Minister Lee Bum-suk, 58, who in the 1970's played a leading role in attempts at talks between South and North Korea and who later served as Ambassador to India; Commerce and Industry Minister Kim Dong-whie, 51, and Energy and Resources Minister Suh Sang-chul.

Also killed was Kim Jae-ik, 45, a secretary for economic affairs and a leading architect of this country's economic policies. Lee Kye-chul, South Korea's ambassador to Rangoon, died, as did Hahm Pyung-choon, chief presidential secretary who once served as ambassador to Washington.

In Rangoon, South Korean diplomatic sources said today the Burmese government formed a special committee to investigate the explosion. Burma has diplomatic relations with both South and North Korea.

Burma was the first stop of a scheduled tour that also was to have taken Chun to India, Sri Lanka, Australia, New Zealand and Brunei.

The news of the bombing was the second shock for South Koreans in little more than five weeks. On Sept. 1, a Korean Air Lines jetliner was shot down by a Soviet jetfighter over the Sea of Japan, killing all 269 people aboard.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Sue Pittman said the Reagan administration was "shocked and saddened" by the explosion. Mark Weinberg, White House assistant press secretary, said it did not affect President Reagan's plans to visit South Korea next month.

THE BETTER HALF

"Maybe you should have some more coffee and then try it again."

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Tuesday, Oct. 11, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: FDR's First Lady, Eleanor Roosevelt, was born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: Washington journalist and author Joseph Alsop, country singer Dottie West, actor Ron Leibman and choreographer Jerome Robbins. You reap business or financial benefits from joining a special club or group. A love you thought lost can be restored. Guard your valuables when on the road. Travel helps both career and romance. Count on a reunion to be joyful. Although a move or transfers will complicate your personal life for a while, the rewards will be many. Do everything you can to cement an alliance with someone influential.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A promise you keep today will bring you new business opportunities. Suggest a novel approach to a financial problem. Bankers are receptive. An indirect route helps you cut through government red tape.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your willpower will be severely tested. An outsider tries to stir up trouble between you and a long-time colleague. Be cautious in romance. Enormous changes lie ahead. Marital ties grow stronger.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You meet someone you have been trying to contact for a long time. Make the most of an unusual opportunity. You learn more from a child's behavior than from his words.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A sacrifice could be misinterpreted. Discuss your financial plans with a family member who understands loans and tax matters. Loved one may be hiding something to protect your feelings. Draw her out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You have been through some rough times recently. Better days lie ahead! Family members cooperate on a budget. Do not do anything foolish. A sudden invitation could be part of a cover up.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Stop procrastinating and get to work! A financial problem should be kept quiet until you have found a solution. A new romance is filled with hope and excitement. Be discreet about the past.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The business outlook improves. Spend money to modernize operations. You have a chance to move into the spotlight and be noticed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A mental block is standing between you and real success. Although your big heart makes up for your occasional outbursts, you should learn to curb your temper. People will admire your restraint.

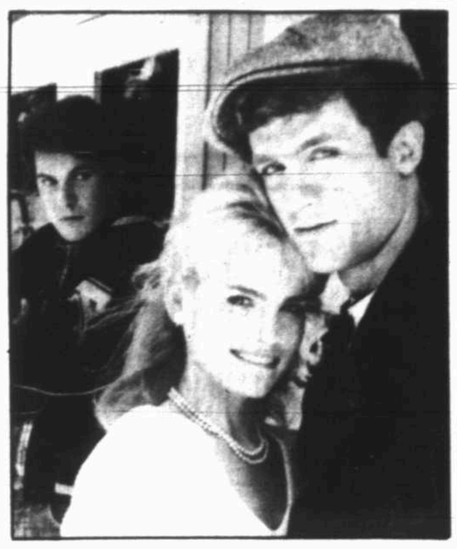

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You can turn a financial situation around by using your powers wisely. Get better organized and profits will rise. Romance has you on a roller coaster, but you enjoy the ride.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Mixed signals at place of employment leave you confused. Observe the rules and you stay out of trouble. Quick action will put things right for everyone.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Events in the business world put you under special pressure today. You win the boss' respect by keeping cool in times of crisis. Stop criticizing mate. He/she needs your wholehearted support.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Extra cash to pay bills improves your mood. Do not let a colleague push you around. Be very firm on a matter of principle. Mate gives you the benefit of the doubt.

NBC movie to focus on kidnapping

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC's "Adam" is a difficult movie to watch. The subject, missing children, is a parent's nightmare. So be grateful that tonight's film is in sensitive hands. The result is a compassionate, sobering and emotionally wrenching treatment of an important issue.

According to Child Find, a child-tracking agency in New Paltz, N.Y., 50,000 children a year are abducted by strangers.

"Adam," a true story, chronicles the agony of John and Reve Walsh, whose 6-year-old boy was abducted from a Hollywood, Fla., shopping mall. His severed head was later found in a canal. From this tragedy, the Walshes found the strength and dedication to work toward federal legislation to coordinate law-enforcement searches for children.

Their activism is reminiscent of that of Candy Lightner, whose grief over the hit-run death of her teen-age daughter inspired her to create Mothers Against Drunk Drivers. "M.A.D.D. The Candy Lightner Story," a TV movie nominated for an Emmy, was on NBC earlier this year.

Daniel J. Travanti, who plays Frank Furillo in "Hill Street Blues," and JoBeth Williams from "Poltergeist" are controlled and compelling as Adam's grief-stricken parents.

NBC and the film's executive producers, Alan Landsburg and Joan Barnett, demonstrate excellent taste throughout. The low-key, realistic production never sensationalizes, never exploits. The abduction scene, for example, is not shown, nor is the discovery of Adam's head.

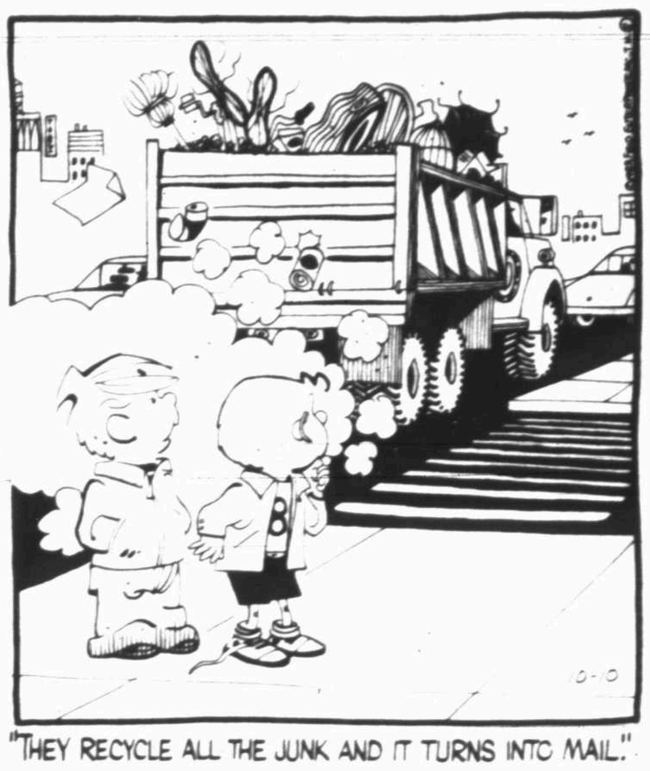

Later, when John listens to tapes of tortured children in an effort to determine whether Adam could be linked to a particular suspect, we don't hear the voices. The scene plays grippingly through Travanti's twisting face as he listens through headphones. He wants desperately to find his son's killer, but doesn't want to learn that his son has suffered.

The awful feeling of being incapable of helping your child is devastating to any parent. During the hunt for Adam, his mother breaks down. "He must be so afraid." Later, John even blames himself for the abduction. "I wasn't there when he needed me."

The film begins in the Walsh kitchen, where John is glowing over Adam's rendition of "Figaro." Adam is at the stage of seeking greater independence. But his request to travel to the park alone is turned down by his father.

In the next scene, Adam and his mother are in a department store. As has been her custom, Reve leaves Adam alone in the toy department, with clear instructions not to leave.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQ9763 ♡A ◇AKQ ♣754
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
3 NT	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A. — If you bid at all now, you are looking for trouble. North's bidding has warned you that the hand is a misfit and, despite your great strength, your side is unlikely to have a ready source of tricks. Pass — this could be your last makable spot.

Q.2 — As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q7 ♡KJ8763 ◇A102 ♣AK
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	Pass

What do you bid now?

A. — Again, if you bid at all, you don't understand the auction. You invited partner to bid game and he accepted. Had he been interested in some higher contract, he had other bids he could have made. Pass. If you bid on, you are giving partner an impossible choice — he can play either three hearts or five hearts, but not game!

Q.3 — East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♡AQ84 ◇AK93 ♠AJ952
Partner opens the bidding with three spades. What do you bid now?

A. — Partner has promised six tricks with his preempt if the hand is played at spades. You have at least four tricks for him. Raise to four spades, even though you are void in the suit. How can you possibly expect to make nine tricks at three no trump when partner has told you that virtually all of his strength is in your void suit?

Q.4 — East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQJ8762 ♡7 ◇953 ♣62
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
3 ♠	Pass	3 NT	Pass

What action do you take?

A. — This hand is a corollary to the previous example. Your hand contains no surprise for partner — you have exactly what you promised with your bid. Nevertheless, partner has said that he expects to make nine tricks at no trump. Don't doubt him. Pass.

Q.5 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠10952 ♡KQ ◇KJ72 ♣K63
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A. — Despite the fact that you are a passed hand, partner is fishing for slam. You could hardly have a better hand, and you should be very willing to cooperate with his efforts. Since you have no first-round control to cue-bid, show your king of clubs by cue-bidding five clubs.

Q.6 — Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A762 ♡A8543 ♣Q964
Partner opens the bidding with four spades. What action do you take?

A. — Before you launch gaily into slam, bear in mind that partner has made a preemptive bid. To make slam, partner must have the ace or king of clubs or shortness, and either a singleton or the king of hearts. Even then, he may not be able to avoid losing two tricks in hearts and clubs. Pass and take a sure game.

Soviet comfort

We would have been surprised if the international pilots union had continued its boycott of flights to Moscow long enough to really punish the Soviets for shooting down that Korean airliner. The discipline to sustain sanctions of any kind against the Soviet Union has never been a Western trait. Well, we were not surprised.

The boycott began to collapse Friday, Sept. 30, 19 days after it was imposed for a scheduled duration of 30 to 60 days. Even a 60-day boycott would have been little enough to impose for the appalling act of shooting down a 747 jumbo jet and killing all 269 aboard.

But what really stands as an insult to the families of the 269 dead is the excuse the pilots are giving for ending their boycott. Union officials are saying they are "encouraged" by signs the Soviets are willing to cooperate in measures to prevent another such atrocity. Pray tell, what signs?

So far, the world has heard the Soviet foreign minister and his chief deputy plus the chief of staff of the Soviet armed forces all say in so many words that the Soviet Union reserves the right to shoot down any aircraft that strays into its "sacred" airspace. Measured against these official statements and restatements of Soviet policy, the mumblings of a few Soviet functionaries about improving radio communications and the like mean nothing.

Who believes that six months or a year from now the Soviets will have given credible assurances that no more civilian airliners will be shot out of the sky? If no such assurances are forthcoming, the international pilots union will owe the 269 families plunged into grief by the horror of flight 007 a profound apology.

But lest we pick on the pilots, it should be said that they at least did more than most. A majority of Western governments banned landings by the Soviet airline Aeroflot for only two weeks. Bits and pieces of wreckage, and fragments of bodies, were still washing up on Japanese beaches this past weekend as the Soviet state airline resumed most flights to Western Europe.

But then, at least the Aeroflot pilots and their government know their airliners won't be shot down. That must be comforting.

Poor page reform

There's a new scandal involving congressional pages. It doesn't concern sex or drug use with their mentors, but Congress' predictably wasteful way of reforming its errand-boy institution.

Separate schools for Senate and House pages are estimated to cost taxpayers $500,000 this year even though one school could accommodate all 96 pages at half the price. Thirty Senate pages go to a school operated under the administration of the Washington, D.C., school system, while 66 House pages attend a new school established as one of the reforms of the page system following the recent sex-drug page scandal.

The Senate has refused to go along with the House school, according to Senate staff officials, because it is too experimental and a "rush job." Rep. Joseph Minish, D-N.J., chairman of the Page Board, counters that pages in the D.C.-administered school logged average Scholastic Aptitude Test scores nearly 50 points below those of public school students in suburban Washington (although higher than D.C. public school scores).

While pages may serve a bicameral legislature, it stands to reason they would be more properly and economically supervised in a unicameral school.

Trip well canceled

The latest response, a month after the deed, of the Philippine regime to the assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino is to trot out a purported confession that it was all ordered by the Communist Party. They did it, President Ferdinand E. Marcos claims, to "destabilize" his government. Asked during a televised interview about opposition charges and grave suspicions around the world that he or the military which serves him was responsible for the assassination, he said, "Let's not be ridiculous. Why should we want to kill Aquino? That's the most idiotic suggestion ever made by anyone."

It is, of course, neither ridiculous nor idiotic. Mr. Marcos' government had sentenced Mr. Aquino to death, for transparently political reasons, before his fatal return to his homeland. Though that sentence had been lifted, it gave unnecessary emphasis to the extent of Mr. Marcos' fear of Mr. Aquino and of the moderate opposition to the tyranny of the Marcos regime.

Though it is carried out by a powerful army and other pervasive officials and devices of the Philippine government, that tyranny is identified directly with Mr. Marcos — as it should be, for he is its architect and its unquestioned leader.

And that identification, the symbolism of Mr. Marcos' unrelenting insistence on holding power as he has in the past, is the most persuasive of all reasons that the United States, in its own long-range national interests, should do nothing to lend support to Mr. Marcos.

And that is why it is well that President Reagan has canceled his planned trip to the Philippines. Mr. Marcos had repeatedly and publicly insisted, before the assassination and increasingly since it, that the Reagan visit would be just that — symbolic support of his regime. That, and not concerns about personal security or about a busy congressional session, was the proper reason for Mr. Reagan's canceling his trip. Now, Mr. Reagan should make it unmistakably clear that the United States is not lending itself, morally or politically, to the Marcos government.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Air traffic illustrates tensions

WASHINGTON — The increasing tension between the two superpowers is alarmingly illustrated by top-secret air traffic in the Caribbean, across the Atlantic and from Washington, D.C., to Indiana.

Jack Anderson

Here's the story on the three missions, all of which have ominous strategic implications in the East-West military rivalry. My associate Dale Van Atta learned the details of the flights from high-level military and intelligence sources.

— In the Caribbean, the Soviets have quietly flown 14 of their older jet fighters — MiG-17s made in the mid-1950s — from Eastern Europe to Cuba, where they are now ready for delivery to the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua.

The move was in response to the bombing of Managua in early September by planes of the anti-Sandinista guerrillas. The bombing runs were the brainstorm of the CIA, which persuaded its "contra" clients that they must escalate their faltering campaign on the ground to an air war if they hoped to show Congress they were worthy of continued U.S. support.

The bombing may not have impressed Congress, but it convinced Nicaraguan officials that countermeasures had to be taken. At their request, the Soviets flew the MiG-17s to Cuba, where they reportedly will be turned over to trained Nicaraguan pilots.

The MiG-17s may be antiques by state-of-the-art combat standards, but they are more than a match for the anti-Sandinistas' bombers. In addition to a clear ability to sweep the skies clear of enemy raiders, the MiG-17s can also be effective in ground attack against rebel hideouts in rural Nicaragua and in any aerial combat with Honduran fighter planes.

In retaliation, the Pentagon is seriously considering a "surgical strike" against the MiGs if they ever do arrive in Managua. Thus the CIA, which unleashed the anti-Sandinista guerrillas in the first place, has succeeded in escalating the Nicaraguan conflict to a level that could now involve direct U.S. military action.

— The secret trans-Atlantic flights were by U.S. military transport planes, which have been shipping missile parts to West Germany and other European locations. The missions will frustrate the West German protest movement, whose leaders are trying to find out where and when Pershing and cruise missiles are arriving for deployment in their country. The protesters hope to block the arrival with massive demonstrations.

But with the missile parts already in Europe for assembly, the Pentagon hopes to have the first of the Pershings ready for operational deployment by the December 15 target date.

— Another secret flight will be that of the president's "doomsday plane," the converted Boeing 747 that is to be the commander-in-chief's airborne command post in the event of nuclear war. It will be moved from Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Washington to a location in Indiana.

The reason is simple and scary: In the event of a Soviet attack, there wouldn't be enough time for the president to reach Andrews and take off in the airborne command post. Soviet submarine-launched missiles, coming in at a low trajectory, would cut the warning time from half an hour to less than 10 minutes. The president would never make it to his command post.

The plan now is to move the president inland during the early stages of a crisis, or send him by chopper to a bunker command post when the first warning of a Soviet launch is given. Then he would later be transported to the airborne command post in Indiana.

MOST VALUABLE AMERICAN: Life in this town can be tough on marriages. Politicians are particularly vulnerable — working long hours, subject to the pressures and temptations that power brings. Perhaps no Washington marriage survived greater odds than that of former Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., and his wife, Polly.

As the powerful chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, Mills held the federal purse strings in his hands. The trials and tensions drove him to drink; he became an alcoholic. His wife also found respite in the bottle, but she quit drinking in 1973. Mills recalls that when she stopped, "I thought she didn't love me," and he sank ever deeper into the alcoholic haze.

After refusing treatment for years, Mills finally turned to his wife for help after his escapade with Argentine stripper Fanne Fox made his problem clear to the world — and, more importantly, to himself.

Mills quit drinking, retired from Congress and is now a Washington lawyer. He and Polly are looking forward to their golden wedding anniversary next year. Their story is told in a forthcoming book, "Giving Time a Chance," by Ronna Romney and Beppie Harrison.

My most Valuable American Award this week goes jointly to Polly and Wilbur Mills.

INSIDE REPORT:

Reagan gets re-election 'threat'

WASHINGTON — Former governor Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire has quietly informed President Reagan that unless he moves back to the right, Thomson will make a vigorous campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

His signal to Ron Reagan was not delivered as a threat, but it struck home in the Oval Office. Although his recent moves on communist China, arms control and strategic trade have brought conservative bitterness to a high pitch, Thomson's warning of a direct challenge to Reagan in the primaries is the first the president has heard.

Reagan listened when Thomson outlined grievances, then asked the 1973-1979 three-term governor to put it in writing, which he did. Even though Reagan would be untouchable in primaries against any Republican next year, a Thomson decision to run could prove embarrassing — particularly in New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary.

GLENN MANAGER'S BLOOPER

Less than two weeks before the AFL-CIO endorsement for president, Sen. John Glenn's national campaign manager crossed an unmanned picket line to eat at a Washington restaurant blacklisted by labor.

Diners at The Broker on Capitol Hill were surprised to see Bill White there the evening of Sept. 20. No Restaurant Workers Union members were on picket duty that week, but the union considers the picket line in existence even when nobody is on it.

Although The Broker's labor troubles have dragged on for months, White told us he was not aware of the strike. If he had been, he added, he would not have eaten there.

HENRY HITS KREMLIN

Henry Kissinger, the chief architect of the first SALT treaty, is saying privately that yes, indeed, the Russians have cheated on important parts of his handiwork — an acknowledgement that warms anti-SALT Republican hearts.

The former secretary of state has not explicitly defined the nature of what he sees as Soviet violations, but in the past his criticism of the Kremlin centered on its taking advantage of loopholes in both the anti-ballistic missile treaty (ABM) and the unratified SALT II agreement.

The U.S. now has hard evidence of a new Soviet radar complex in Siberia that is the most pronounced violation of the ABM treaty ever discovered. Kissinger's conservative enemies will now try to get the world's most famous diplomat to admit publicly that his SALT treaties contained large holes.

MUBARAK WARNS REAGAN

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, a favorite of President Reagan's, warned him in their tete a tete last week not to forget that Israeli Foreign Minister and Prime Minister-designate Itzhak Shamir refused to endorse the Camp David agreements signed by outgoing Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Reagan listened intently, aware of the fact that his own Mideast peace plan is built on the Camp David foundation. Reagan gave no indication to Mubarak that his advisers have told him Shamir may be facing insuperable obstacles to setting up his new government following Begin's imminent retirement.

Mubarak also told Reagan that he should persuade Israel to agree to a strict timetable for withdrawing Israeli troops from Lebanon as the only way to get Syrian troops out too.

LAXALT'S DECISIONS

"An absolute disaster" is the way White House aides describe the appointment of Sen. Alfonse D'Amato as President Reagan's re-election campaign chairman in New York. His selection was insisted on by Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, who is in overall command of the campaign.

Presidential staffers were nearly as dismayed by Laxalt's decision to let Sen. Lowell Weicker pick Connecticut's campaign chairman. Weicker, a liberal with a poor support record for Reagan programs, is seen at the White House as discouraging Connecticut Reaganites. Although D'Amato is a conservative, the president's men doubt that he can lead a unified and coherent state campaign.

The two selections confirm that Laxalt will not be content to repeat his 1976 and 1980 figurehead roll as Reagan's national chairman. That concerns some White House aides, who cite the New York and Connecticut decisions as evidence that Laxalt is too willing to defer to his Senate colleagues.

CHARLEY REESE

Intellectual freedom key to survival

The key to survival of the West is its intellectual freedom. This key, however, is negated by the left-liberal intellectual monopoly in the national news media.

Charley Reese

This is the analysis of a Russian intellectual, Lev Navrosov, who is writing a book entitled "The New York Times: A Specimen."

Navrosov reasons that for the West to benefit from its intellectual freedom, the leadership must be exposed to the free flow of competing ideas which this freedom generates. This does not occur, he says, because of the left-liberal bias of the Times, The Washington Post, and the three national television networks.

Navrosov says that he is not a conservative and that there is nothing wrong per se with the left-liberal ideas, some of which may be valid. What's robbing American leadership of the greatest single advantage a free society has over a dictatorship is the lack of exposure to competing ideas.

He cited as one example the Times disinterest in an article exposing the CIA's defects in its assessment of the Soviet Union at the time the SALT II Treaty was being debated. The Times, Navrosov charges, favored the treaty and was not interested in undermining it by exposing the CIA's inability to detect violations.

Another Russian, Alexander Solzhenitsyn, has also pointed to the same problem. He devoted a segment of his famous Harvard commencement address to the American press's propensity to censor any ideas which are not fashionable.

I agree with both men. First, Navrosov is correct in pointing out that it does not much matter how unbiased the press may be outside New York and Washington. Those are the two media centers which have the greatest influence on national leadership.

Secondly, the censorship that results from the left-liberal bias is not conscious or even deliberate. It is simply human nature overcoming professional training. It is natural for all of us to think that those people who disagree with us are not very smart while those who do agree with us are absolutely brilliant.

Thus, left-liberal bias manifests itself in emphasis which is given to left-liberal ideas and left-liberal spokesmen. A quick example from a CBS news radio program. The reporter correctly reported that five doctors testified before a Senate subcommittee, four opposing abortion and one supporting abortion. Then the reporter gave a lengthy quote from the one doctor supporting abortion.

Thus, the emphasis was on the left-liberal position, which is pro-abortion.

The problem arises, as Navrosov sees so clearly, because there are no conservatives in decision-making positions in the major national news organizations.

American political leaders are therefore continuously exposed to a left-liberal consensus on issues such as support for internationalism, for the Federal Reserve System, for the International Monetary Fund, for disarmament, and so forth.

Non-liberals were warning of a massive Soviet arms buildup as early at 1971, but it was not until some members of the American Establishment took note of it nearly eight years later that the national news media finally began to report it.

We are, as a matter of principle, opposed to business monopolies and we should oppose intellectual monopolies for the same reason. Let ideas compete and let the national leaders be exposed to all of them.

'High court confused about punishment'

HOUSTON (AP) — An Alabama official who supports the death penalty and a former U.S. Supreme Court justice who wants it abolished say the high court is confused about how to handle capital punishment and point to the 11th-hour stay of a Texas execution as an example.

"They don't know what they're doing and, as a result, state courts and appellate courts have to hit a moving target and predict what the Supreme Court is going to do," Alabama Attorney General Charles Graddick said Sunday on the CBS broadcast, "Face the Nation."

Former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg said more than 1,200 convicts nationwide wait in their death cells because the high court "doesn't know itself where it comes out."

Goldberg said capital punishment should be abolished once and for all.

"The Supreme Court is faced by an intolerable situation which can only be solved by declaring the death penalty unconstitutional. In our country, are we to witness the mass executions of a thousand people?" Goldberg asked.

The debate over capital punishment flared again last week after Supreme Court Justice Byron White delayed the execution of James David Autry, who was condemned for the killing of a Port Arthur, Texas, convenience store clerk during a 1980 robbery.

The high court had refused to block the scheduled Oct. 5 execution. But White granted a reprieve about half an hour before a lethal dose of chemicals was to be injected into Autry's veins.

The stay was based on a last-hour appeal that Autry's case should have been reviewed for proportionality, or compared with other death row cases to make sure his crime was not less aggravated than the crimes of other murderers given life sentences. The Supreme Court will hear arguments on the issue next month.

The state, arguing that Texas has proportionality review of death sentences, plans to ask the Supreme Court to dissolve the stay and clear the way for Autry's execution.

Graddick, a defender of capital punishment, said the Supreme Court has been inconsistent in its actions. He said the federal review process needs to be changed.

"Capital punishment is society's form of self-defense," he said. "Why grant a stay on a legal technicality when we're talking about guilt or innocence?"

Texas Gov. Mark White, a Democrat and an advocate of the death penalty, said on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley" that the death penalty was "appropriate punishment for the most severe, most heinous crimes committed by people."

Search continues for plane

DENVER (AP) — Search planes scoured a vast swath of Colorado's Front Range today for a light aircraft with a Texas man aboard that vanished en route from Wyoming to Texas.

Approximately 10 planes from the Civil Air Patrol in Colorado and Wyoming traced the anticipated route of the missing Piper Cherokee before nightfall, while a solitary search plane flew along the same path after dark to look for signal lights or fires.

The search was to resume in full force early today by air and on the ground.

Colorado CAP Lt. Col. Richard Oakes said late Sunday the pilot had been identified as 57-year-old Richard Kruse, of Odessa, Texas.

"There has been no contact with the plane since it left Buffalo (Wyo.) late Saturday morning for Odessa," Oakes said, though he added that a Wyoming CAP plane was checking a report of an emergency locator transmitter signal late Sunday night near Douglas, Wyo.

He said the search was being conducted largely along the Front Range from the Wyoming border to Colorado's southeastern border with Oklahoma. No flight plan was filed. The pilot had been expected to refuel in Pueblo, Colo., but there was no record of that happening, Oakes added.

Oakland teachers vote for strike settlement

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Oakland teachers voted heavily in favor of a settlement Sunday that will raise their wages by 14 percent in two years and end what their union president described as "one of the most successful teachers' strikes in California."

In an evening meeting, members of the Oakland Education Association voted 1,659-64 to approve the new contract and to end a four-day walkout that had been supported by 90 percent of the teachers and 77 percent of their students. The teachers will be back in classrooms Monday.

Roger Gooden, president of the 3,500-member OEA, representing teachers, nurses, counselors, psychologists, librarians and substitutes, had endorsed the settlement and had predicted a "strong vote" for ratification.

The tentative pact came early Saturday after 34½ hours of non-stop negotiations with state mediator Diane Fivey.

The agreement gives Oakland Unified School District teachers a 7 percent wage increase in November and another 7 percent raise next July 1. Beginning teachers, however, would get a bigger boost — from $11,909 to $13,500 on Nov. 1, scaling up to $18,000 by 1986 in an effort to meet state requirements.

Top-scale city teachers now make $23,599.

Salary will be renegotiated in 1984-85 if the district has more than an anticipated $3 million ending balance after adoption of the 1984-85 budget.

Women need to feel like part of GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maureen Reagan has some advice for her father, President Reagan. She says the key to closing the gender gap is to make women feel like part of the Republican Party, rather than stressing what the Reagan administration has accomplished for them.

In a recent interview, Ms. Reagan said she was convinced the bipartisan women's movement is coming to an end, marking the beginning of a very partisan campaign between Republicans and Democrats for the women's vote.

"It's not bipartisan anymore," she said emphatically. "It's us versus them. I say that with some amount of sadness. I have a lot of friends over there" in the Democratic Party.

Ms. Reagan said she made her views known to the president late this summer. She said he bemoaned the fact that women didn't seem to understand how many women he has appointed to office and how important they were in his administration.

"I told him I didn't think he was getting the full picture," she recalled. "I told him this was a much bigger problem to be addressed than simply putting out the more positive aspects of what had been accomplished in the administration."

Maureen Reagan

Specifically, Ms. Reagan said she explained that the allegedly bipartisan women's movement "is taking a partisan position and in effect destroying the home base of Republican feminists."

A few weeks later, Ms. Reagan said she met with White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III and Deputy Chief of Staff Michael K. Deaver to discuss the matter.

"We realized that somebody was going to have to direct traffic," she said. So she was hired by the Republican National Committee as a part-time consultant.

In her new role, Ms. Reagan will make speeches, get involved in GOP women's programs and probably put out a newsletter "to communicate to a lot of women supporters around the country," according to a Republican strategist who did not wish to be identified.

But one of her most important duties will be behind-the-scenes at the White House, where one aide said she would help resolve policy debates and help make the men who run the White House more sensitive to women's concerns.

"I personally think she will help — if nothing more than to basically bring it to us and let us know there's a key word you shouldn't say, there are some things that you shouldn't do...There are some sensitivities that we need to have," the aide added.

A Reagan organizer, who refused to be identified by name, said Ms. Reagan has credibility with the public "because she's well known to be independent-minded. No one will think she's just a shill because they know better."

Inside, "she can sensitize the administration to women's issues because she has total access." Already, she has held meetings with several presidential advisers to plot strategy. In fact, she often stays at the White House when she's in Washington.

Using nuclear weapons as threat risky

WASHINGTON (AP) — Using the threat of nuclear weapons to deter Soviet aggression in Europe is risky and creates insecurity among the NATO allies, defense experts say.

The experts, in a report to the Trilateral Commission, said Sunday the United States, its NATO allies and Japan should adopt a defense strategy that relies more on conventional forces than the threat of nuclear weapons. Strengthening non-nuclear forces would cost the allies another 1 percent above the 3 percent they are pledged to increase their defense budgets.

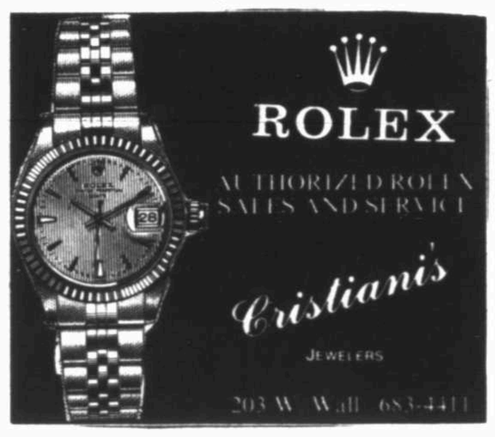

The report said threatening to use nuclear weapons first would be "suicidal" if carried out.

The report was prepared by Gerard C. Smith, a former U.S. arms control negotiator; Paolo Vittorelli, chairman of the Italian Institute of Defense Studies and Research; and Kiichi Saeki, chairman of the Nomura Research Institute of Japan.

"One of my main motivations in pushing for a conventional buildup is to be able to negotiate more freely about a nuclear reduction," Smith said Friday.

At the same time, he said, "we're trying to prevent a situation where the Soviets can prevail quickly in Euorpe."

The report also criticized the Reagan administration's program to develop 100 new MX missiles and to deploy the heavy land-based weapons at

Feminist to go on trial

GRETNA, La. (AP) — Her lawyers have stopped trying to get the case dismissed. There are no more news conferences.

Feminists who have condemned her arrest as a political plot are watching and waiting.

Nine months after Ginny Foat was arrested in California in a 1964 killing, the former president of the California chapter of the National Organization for Women goes on trial Tuesday accused of murdering a businessman for his money.

A little more than a week ago, after Ms. Foat's lawyers narrowly lost a fight to have the indictment thrown out, defense lawyer John Reed said he wouldn't appeal a state Supreme Court ruling that cleared the way for a trial.

With one of her four ex-husbands serving as the key prosecution witness, Ms. Foat will be tried for murder in the death of Moises Chayo, 62, a visiting Argentine businessman who had gone out for a night on the town in 1964.

Ms. Foat allegedly lured him from a New Orleans bar where she worked as a go-go girl, drove him to an area outside the city and killed him with a tire iron.

Ms. Foat allegedly used one to club Chayo to death when he resisted robbery. If convicted of murder, she would face up to life in prison.

Ms. Foat has pleaded innocent and is free on $125,000 bond. Now 42 and living in Los Angeles, she has said the murder accusation is only an effort by John Sidote, her second husband, to get back at her for leaving him. She has denied knowing anything about the killing.

Sidote, 45, an ex-Marine who is an inmate of a prison in Carson City, Nev., was quoted in a recent newspaper interview as saying he was only testifying against Ms. Foat because he would be in more trouble if he didn't.

"It's a shame this had to happen to Virginia," he said. "She could have been somebody."

Ms. Foat was president of the 40,000-member Califonia chapter of N.O.W. when she was arrested.

DALLAS— It was almost as though Dallas and Tampa Bay had cooked up something special just to cap off Roger Staubach's halftime induction to the Cowboys Ring of Honor, that magic circle of ex-Cowboy greats.

Dallas' 27-24 overtime victory Sunday was a chapter right from the Staubach story, a bit of deja vu for the Cowboys' record-setting quarterback who brought Dallas from behind to win in the last two minutes 14 times from 1969 to 1979.

It was a bit more than Coach Tom Landry had envisioned or, perhaps, expected. The vehicle's ending was artistic enough, but the Dallas coach wasn't enthralled by the overall production, a matter about which the Cowboys will undoubtedly hear more this week.

"I think Roger was more worried by the end than he had been about getting the award," Landry said after the game. "It was a two-play game, the one where we let them go for a touchdown to take the lead in the fourth quarter and then the one where they let us go down the sidelines to tie it up."

It was James Wilder's 23-yard run up the middle that propelled winless Tampa Bay, the team humiliated a week ago 55-14 by Green Bay, that put Tampa Bay ahead, 24-17, with 8:53 left in the game.

TIMMY NEWSOME, playing because Tony Dorsett was hurting, converted a dumpoff pass into a 52-yard scoring play with 43 seconds left to tie it just when it seemed Dallas had little hope left.

Then, in overtime, Rafael Septien kicked a 42-yard field goal 4:38 into the overtime to win it.

But that only hints at the drama of the closing minutes.

The Cowboys' last hope seemed to have evaporated when quarterback Danny White's pass into the end zone on a first down from the Tampa 18 was intercepted by defensive back Cedric Brown.

Only 1:53 remained and Dallas used up all of its time outs during Tampa Bay's possession.

The hopelessness after the interception was reflected in Texas Stadium aisles where fans were fleeing to the exits to beat the crowd out of the parking lot now that the game was lost.

When the Cowboys finally got the ball again, it was at the Dallas 26 and only 1:19 remained. The Cowboys worked the ball to the 47 and only 57 seconds remained.

WHITE, downfield receivers blanketed, went to safety valve Newsome in the left flat. A defender missed by a hair of dashing in front of Newsome and intercepting for a gimme touchdown.

"I never saw the defender until after I caught the ball," Newsome related, and it's probably a good thing. If he had caught sight of him out of the side of his eye, it might have ruffled his concentration and caused him to drop it.

"I turned and took two steps to see what I had. When Donley, wide receiver Doug, threw that tremendous block, that's when I knew I could score."

Newsome fled down the sidelines, hurdling one would-be tackler at about the 25, barely staying in bounds on the 53-yard journey.

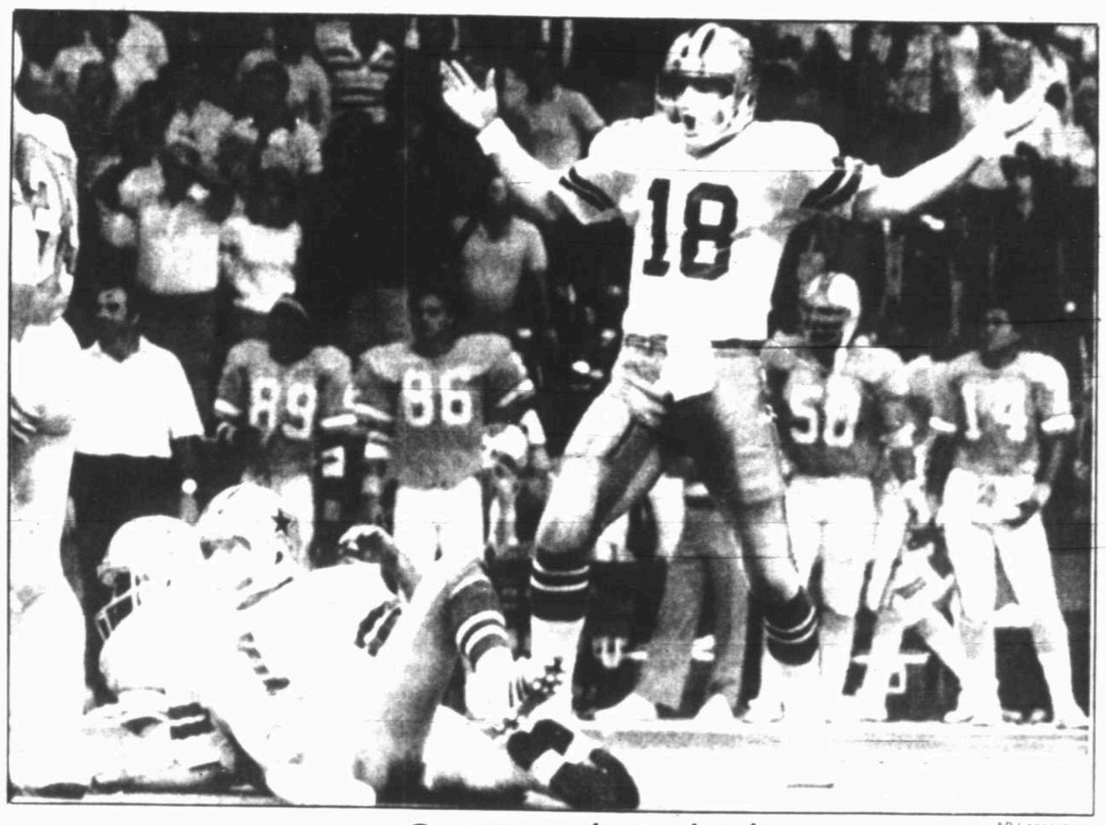

"No, I don't think he was trying to knock me out of bounds," Newsome analyzed. "He didn't want to stop the clock and that's where he made his mistake. No, I never ran track in college. I hated track."

IN OVERTIME, it was a roughing the kicker penalty that gave Dallas a second chance after Septien had missed a 50-yard field goal. The Cowboys drove from the Tampa 33 to the 24 from where Septien got another chance.

"I'm disappointed I didn't make the first kick," Rafael apologized. "I wasn't performing like a winner. But the second time, I had more confidence."

The excitement was tarnished by a combined 26 penalties for 294 yards. "From the number of penalties, you could say this was not a well played game," Landry rehashed. "We could have gotten beat. We weren't ready to play, but you have a hard time being ready for this type situation. We heard all week how easy it was going to be."

Dennis Thurman summed it up pretty well after the game. "This was the toughest since that Redskin game in 1979, when we came from behind to win 35-34 after trailing 34-21 with two minutes left. And Tampa Bay isn't an 0-6 team, and the way we've been playing we're not a 0-0 team. We could easily be 4-2."

Buffalo's Joe Danelo jumps for joy after hitting an overtime field goal to give the Bills their first win against Miami in the Orange Bowl since 1966.

Bills edge Miami, 38-35

By The Associated Press

The Buffalo Bills, shut out 12-0 in their last meeting with Miami, edged the Dolphins on Joe Danelo's 36-yard field goal. Joe Ferguson also was a hero for the Bills as he passed for 419 yards and five touchdowns, completing 38 of 54 passes against the NFL's No. 1 pass defense. Ferguson's scoring passes went nine and 30 yards to Byron Franklin, 11 yards to Booker Moore and four and one yard to Joe Cribbs.

Danelo's game-winner came after Miami placekicker Uwe von Schamann missed on field goal attempts from 52 and 43 yards in OT.

Ferguson's fifth touchdown pass of the game, a one-yarder to Cribbs with 23 seconds left in regulation, tied it 35-35. Miami had gone ahead for the first time on rookie Dan Marino's 14-yard pass to Mark Clayton with 3:06 remaning.

Clayton earlier threw a touchdown pass to Mark Duper on a reverse play. Duper also caught a 63-yard TD bomb from Marino, who was making his first NFL start.

Matt Bahr booted a 44-yard field goal as time ran out to lift the Browns over the Jets in Cleveland. A wind listed at 16 mph but gusting off Lake Erie helped push Bahr's longest field goal of the year through the posts. The other scores came on Bobby Jones' diving first-half reception of Brian Sipe's 32-yard pass for the Browns, and Richard Todd's 15-yard TD toss to Bruce Harper with 1:28 to go for the Jets.

Like Bahr, Morten Andersen was a last-second hero, kicking a 35-yard field goal to lift the Saints over the Falcons, who had blanked New Orleans in its last two trips to Atlanta. Andersen kicked four field goals and gave the Saints a 4-2 record, the best start in their 17-year history.

Washington won its eighth straight road game as John Riggins ran for 115 yards and three touchdowns and Joe Theismann passed for two scores. Riggins carried 22 times to become the league's fifth all-time leading rusher. It was the Redskins' 13th victory over the Cardinals in the last 15 meetings.

Houston lost its 13th in a row as visiting Denver, ranked 28th in the NFL in total offense with an average of 245 yards, had 262 at the half. Steve DeBerg, replacing No. 1 draft pick John Elway at quarterback, threw for two scores. Rich Karlis kicked four field goals and Sammy Winder rushed for 165 yards for the Broncos.

Minnesota was unusually effective on the ground as Tony Galbreath ran for 104 yards and Darrin Nelson added 78. Nelson broke a 56-yard scoring run for his first NFL touchdown and Galbreath had a 52-yard TD jaunt. Walter Payton finished with 102 yards for the host Bears.

At Pontiac, Mich., rookie fullback James Jones ran for three touchdowns and Eric Hipple passed for two others as the Lions snapped a four-game slide. Jones' three TDs tied a club record shared by six others.

Surprising Baltimore won its third straight as Raul Allegre snapped a 7-7 tied with a 52-yard field goal, and the hometown Colts added a safety when Donnell Thompson sacked Steve Grogan for a safety with two minutes left. Allegre has hit 13 of 14 field goal tries and three from over 50 yards.

Ron Jaworski threw two touchdown passes to Mike Quick and Tony Franklin kicked a 25-yard field goal for visiting Philadelphia. Quick caught a five-yard TD pass from Jaworski, then made a one-handed catch of an 18-yard touchdown pass as the Eagles pulled ahead 14-6.

Rookie Eric Dickerson, the NFL's leading rusher, picked up 142 yards and the visiting Rams' only touchdown. Chuck Nelson kicked a 41-yard field goal for LA and Ivory Sully blocked Ray Wersching's last second field goal attempt.

At San Diego, the Seahawks built a 21-0 margin, but the Chargers charged back. Andre Young streaked 40 yards with an intercepted pass to score the winning touchdown with 2:04 to go. Quarterback Dan Fouts, playing his third game with a broken wrist, ignited the 21-point second-half rally by hitting Bobby Duckworth on a 59-yard TD strike in the third quarter.

Marcus Allen recovered teammate Frank Hawkins' fumble in the Kansas City end zone with 8:29 remaining to lift the host Raiders over KC. Hawkins was hit at the Kansas City one and the ball rolled into the end zone, where Allen fell on it, capping a comeback from a 14-0 deficit.

Akers carries on Texas tradition

AUSTIN (AP) — Make no mistake about it, says football coach Fred Akers, coaching isn't as easy as it was in years gone by, but he wouldn't trade his job at the University of Texas for anything.

The Akers era at Texas began in mid-December 1976, after Darrell Royal — the coach some Longhorn fans called "Saint Darrell" — had resigned, stating, "There's more to living than football."

Royal's career at Texas included national championships in 1963 and 1969 and a 30-game winning streak in 1968-71.

His winning percentage of .762 over 20 years was the best of any college coach for that period, and his teams won or shared in 11 Southwest Conference championships and went to 16 bowl games. He was immensely popular.

It was a hard act to follow, and the comparisons of Royal and Akers were inevitable. But Akers, then 38, now says, "In my way of thinking, that kind of thing goes with the territory."

Akers had been at Wyoming for two years, after nine years as Royal's assistant, when UT president Lorene Rogers notified him in a phone call that the Texas job was his if he wanted it.

He said when he was being considered for the Wyoming positon he was asked if he viewed it as a "stepping stone" to a larger football power. "I told them there were two schools that I would be interested in if the opportunity came about — one was Texas and the other was Arkansas."

No other school, such as Oklahoma?

"Texas or Arkansas," Akers said in a recent interview, "and I don't mind telling you I had other job offers while I was at Wyoming."

His hiring was so unexpected that The Austin Citizen, which later went out of business, gambled and printed a front-page headline — "It's Mike" — hours before the announcment.

Mike Campbell, an assistant to Royal all 20 years at Texas, was thought to be the odds-on favorite to succeed his former boss, and Campbell himself said, "I thought it would be just a matter of formality."

Royal had salvaged a 5-5-1 record his final season to keep intact his amazing record of never having a losing season in coaching.

He also left behind great players, such as running back Earl Campbell and defensive tackle Brad Shearer. The cupboard, Royal said, was not bare.

Akers scrapped Royal's wishbone-T and had Earl Campbell running out of the Veer and "I" formations, and plugged in a more reckless defense to replace the successful bend-but-don't-break defense Royal had favored.

Akers' first game as Texas head coach was a 44-0 home victory over Boston College, and it remains one of his favorite victories. "It was a new system, a new program and it was successful," said Akers. "That was very satisfying."

His first team in 1977, with Campbell winning the Heisman and Shearer the Outland Trophy as lineman of the year, was 11-0 but lost a national championship when Notre Dame whipped the Longhorns in the Cotton Bowl 38-10 to give the Irish the national title.

"I think the two teams were comparable, but they weren't better than we were — they were that day, which is all that counts," says Akers, who was coach of the year.

One story that reflects, perhaps, Akers' personality had him in the dressing room, 1½ hours after the loss, still courteously talking to a University of Houston student reporter.

Since Akers' first year, the Longhorns have consistently ranked in the top 10 among college football teams, and persistent firing rumors surfaced only once — in 1980, after Texas lost its final three games and finished 7-5. Regents and school officials quickly squashed the rumors.

The next year, Akers reinforced their support by winning the Cotton Bowl over Paul "Bear" Bryant and Alabama 14-12. "Already they're calling it a classic, one of the Cotton Bowl true classics," says Akers.

Without much notice, Akers, 45, has compiled a 58-16-1 record in six-plus years, which at .773 is the best winning percentage ever for a Southwest Conference coach who stayed at least five years.

The pressure to win doesn't bother him, he says. "That's part of being in this business, and if outside pressure affects you, you don't need to be in this business."

Asked how he relaxes, Akers said, "That's another way that people differ. Darrell was a big golfer, a very fine golfer — he loved it, and he came along when that was a popular thing to do. But I think Darrell's generation of coaches — the Frank Broyleses and a few others like them that were really active in golf — I think that's the last coaching generation that is going to experience much time on the golf course. Recruiting rules have changed, limits (of recruits) have changed, we're called on more to make personal appearances before our ex-students over the country. And you simply don't have much time to spend on the golf course."

"I like family things when I get a chance to relax. I enjoy being with my family. And it doesn't necessarily have to be an action-packed agenda," says Akers.

He and his wife have bought a 120-acre ranch about 30 minutes from the office for an occasional weekend out.

Series features differing styles

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Platoon. No longer is it a word that belongs to football alone.

It has become, as well, a baseball term.

To some, it has become a dirty word, tantamount to the words "bench" or "reserve." But for others, it has bought playing time, and for some teams, it even has brought championships.

There is no better example of these contrasting viewpoints than in this year's World Series combatants, the American League champion Baltimore Orioles and the National League champion Philadelphia Phillies.

When the World Series begins Tuesday night, television viewers across the country will see two examples of baseball's platoon system. The Orioles made it famous, in some ways pioneered it; the Phillies have taken to it just lately, and it wasn't well received. The two systems do have one thing in common, though. They both work.

The Orioles instituted the system under 15-year Manager Earl Weaver and continued it — if somewhat modified — under Joe Altobelli, who took over this season for Weaver.

With it, the Orioles have won seven American League East Division titles, six AL pennants and two World Series since 1966. They have become the most successful postseason team in baseball by using six outfielders.

"This serious platooning goes back to Earl Weaver, who was such a statistical wizard," says John Lowenstein, a left-handed hitter who platoons in left field for the Orioles with righty swinger Gary Roenicke. "Joe Altobelli has continued it, but he goes more for right-hander-left-hander, left-hander-right-hander platooning, whereas Earl used Gary against certain right-handed pitchers."

Roenicke supports the viewpoint that platooning is good. It has made him a regular — if not everyday — player for the Orioles.

"It's not frustrating," he says. "John has had another great year. That's how we got here, with both of us sharing the position. From Day One this season, I've played against left-handed pitchers, and John has played against right-handed pitchers."

The way it worked out this season, the two virtually split playing time, with Roenicke getting 323 at-bats to Lowenstein's 310. And between them, they drove in 124 runs, 64 for Roenicke and 60 for Lowenstein. The other outfield positions also were split — center field between veteran Al Bumbry (378 at-bats) and rookie John Shelby (325 at-bats), and right field between Dan Ford (407 at-bats) and Jim Dwyer (196 at-bats).

"We don't have a Jim Rice on this club," Lowenstein says. "Basically, we just go out and play. It's terribly uncomplicated."

For the Phillies, the system got a little more complex. Paul Owens, who came down from the front office to replace fired Manager Pat Corrales on July 18, instituted the system. It created all sorts of grousing.

Third baseman Mike Schmidt complained publicly that players were unhappy, that no one knew his role, except, of course, for himself. And Gary Matthews was unhappy over splitting time in left field. They were not enamored of the system.

"He (Owens) went out on a limb and told a lot of the players that they would have new roles," says the Phillies' Pete Rose. "He said, 'Gentlemen, this is the way it's going to be. From now on, this is a platoon team.'"

Before he could institute the system, however, he had to make some player moves. Outfielders Sixto Lezcano a right-handed hitter, and Joe Lefebvre, a lefty, were acquired from San Diego. The Phillies also called up Len Matuszek, but too late to use him in postseason.

Under the system, right-handed hitting left fielder Gary Matthews, who was slumping, platooned at times with lefty swinging Greg Gross and at other times with Von Hayes, another lefty. Lefebvre and Lezcano platooned not only in right field, but also in the cleanup spot in the batting order. And Matuszek, a lefty, began to play against right-handers, then took over entirely for Rose at first.

"When Paul took over, only three players — (catcher) Bo Diaz, (shortstop) Ivan DeJesus and Mike Schmidt — knew they'd be in the lineup every day," Rose says. "Paul told us what our roles would be, that this was the way it was going to be.

"It wasn't easy to accept," Rose says. "I'd been in the major leagues 20 years and five months, and I'd always been a regular. Now, I wasn't. It was the same thing with Gary Matthews.

"But, after a while, it sunk in that if I could help as a pinch-hitter, then that would be fun, too."

Clipper forward star off court

Terry Cummings has this habit of making believers out of people.

Put a Bible in his hands and the San Diego Clippers forward, an accredited minister, makes a convincing argument that there is a higher force. Put a basketball in Cummings' hands and even the most critical basketball observer has to admit that the kid can play.

"Terry Cummings is the best player to come into this league since Magic Johnson and Larry Bird," Cleveland Cavaliers coach Tom Nissalke said after observing Cummings early last season.

Nissalke recognized early what others discovered only toward the end of a season in which Cummings was named Rookie of the Year by the National Basketball Association and finished among the top 10 in scoring (23.7 average) and rebounding (10.6), demonstrating that Boston's Bird isn't the only power forward who can shoot.

Even Cummings' college coach, Ray Meyer of DePaul, predicted that Cummings would be a very solid, all-around professional, but not as good as former Blue Demon Mark Aguirre, who plays for the Dallas Mavericks.

Cummings, meantime, has just played basketball and let others judge him by his deeds. When Cummings said last year that he wanted to be recognized as the leader of the Clippers, Tom Chambers (who has since moved on to Seattle) replied incredulously, "He is the Clippers."

Though some may have underestimated Cummings' worth, Cummings never did. Nor did he doubt his return to the NBA after he was found last summer to have an irregular heart beat.

Initially, he refused to accept the seriousness of the problem and even postponed some of the cardiac tests that had been scheduled at Northwestern Memorial Hospital in Chicago. But when his physicians finally convinced him that the problem could be life-threatening, as well as career-ending, Cummings cooperated and became determined to overcome the problem.

"It was hard to accept at first," he said in an interview. "I was telling myself it was nothing more than a loss of breath. And the doctors didn't know what was wrong. They couldn't identify it. Now I feel good."

Cummings' heart will be monitored during all the Clippers' exhibition games.

Team physician Dr. H.C. Palmer said Cummings' medication has proven effective, and the dosage has been reduced so Cummings no longer feels "high" from the drug. But the real test will be how he responds in games.

"The human part always makes me stop and wonder," Cummings said. "But usually I just concentrate on playing basketball and don't worry about it. I just want to play."

Cummings indicated that he may play longer than he originally intended.

"Somewhere along the line I got it in my mind that I didn't want to play very long," he said. "I still want to leave the game with my body in good shape, and I'm not going to play 15 years — even if I could — but I'm not putting a limit on the number of years I'll play. I want to leave my mark on the game."

Jim Lynam, the Clippers' new coach, already is impressed. Lynam, who considered Cummings a "terrific" player last year, said the 6-9 forward is a stronger rebounder than he thought.

Apes are Redskin fans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The gorillas and the orangutans at the National Zoo have become the latest breed of football fan — they watch the Washington Redskins, play every Sunday from television sets in their cages.

"We did it to counteract the boredom," said Caldwell Graham, animal keeper leader at the Great Ape house. Television gives the apes something else to look at besides each other and visitors, he said.

Hercules, an 18-year-old male gorilla, ate straw and pomegranate pieces as he sat spellbound watching the Redskins defeat the St. Louis Cardinals 38-14 Sunday.

But other apes, like Azy the orangutan, were more expressive. As players returned to the scrimmage line, Azy leaped up excitedly and stared into the television.

Black wins Southern

By TOM SALADINO
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) - Unknown Ronnie Black came from three strokes off the pace to catch Scotland's Sam Torrance, then dropped in a six-foot birdie putt onthe fourth playoff hole to win the $250,000 Southern Open Golf Tournament Sunday.

Torrance missed a 35-foot approach shot on the final playoff hole, the par 4, 378-yard 13th hole, leaving it only inches short to finish with a par.

Black then knocked in his winner to capture the $45,000 first prize, more than doubling his earnings for the year.

The 25-year-old Black caught Torrance on the par 3, 210-yard 14th hole when Torrance wound up with a double bogey-5 after hitting his tee shot into a sand trap, then chipping over the green and needing another chip and two putts for the five.

Black, meanwhile, hit his tee shot on the green on the same hole, but needed three putts and wound up with a bogey himself.

Both parred the final four holes, forcing the playoff which began on the par 4, 365-yard 10th hole, in which both parred.

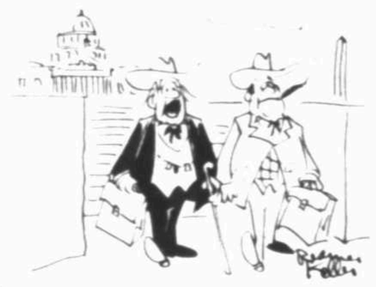

Each parred the 11th and 12th holes with Black missing an opportunity to win when his six-foot putt lipped the cup on the par 4, 368-yard No. 12.

Veteran Wally Armstrong shot a 68 and was alone in third place at 274. First-day leader Payne Stewart and Joe Inman were next at 275. Stewart had a 70 and Inman a 67.

Scott Hoch and Mark Lye were at 276. Hoch had a 67 and Lye a 65.

Defending champion Bobby Clampett had a 278 after a 69 while Jim Colbert, the winner of last week's Texas Open, and Johnny Miller each finished at 279 after shooting 67s Sunday.

Black, a second-year former Lamar University player from Kountze, Texas, was three shots behind entering the final round after a 65 Saturday and 202 total.

"My aide and I have a long association of mutual trust . . . I've got as much on him as he has on me!"

Sampson held to four points

By MIKE EMBRY
AP Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ralph Sampson readily admits that there are going to peaks and valleys while he makes the transition from the college ranks to the National Basketball Association.

The 7-foot-4 center, the No. 1 draft choice out of Virginia, hit one of the low points Sunday night in the Houston Rockets' third exhibition game. Sampson scored only four points and grabbed eight rebounds in a 115-96 loss to the Milwaukee Bucks.

"All NBA players, from top to bottom, have their ups and downs," Sampson said, "no matter who they are. You just try to remain consistent from one game to the next."

In the Rockets' first two preseason games, Sampson scored 24 points in a 122-111 setback to Dallas and eight points in a 120-105 loss to Washington.

"I'm still trying to learn the game," Sampson said. "I'm getting myself ready to come in a play the game. It's quite an adjustment playing every day. But I'm working to get myself ready to play."

Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson thought Sampson, three-time College Player of the Year, would have been more aggressive on offense, where he hit only one of seven shots. "I'd like to think our defense had something to do with it," the Bucks' coach said.

While Sampson was having his problems, the Bucks' No. 1 draft pick, 7-3 Randy Breuer of Minnesota, was having quite a night. He scored 17 points and pulled down a game-high 10 rebounds.

"We're trying to get him in as many minutes in the exhibitions as possible since he won't play that much in regular season," said Nelson. "I thought he played all right tonight."

The Bucks completely dominated the game, never trailing in rolling to a 61-45 halftime advantage. The biggest lead came with 8:56 left in the game when guard Charlie Criss hit a push shot in the lane for a 101-74 advantage.

Guard Junior Bridgeman led the Bucks in scoring with 19 points, sinking eight of 13 shots from the field. Sidney Moncrief chipped in 15 points, Bob Lanier 13 and Bill Varner and Criss 11 apiece as Milwaukee made only 39 of 99 shots for 39.4 percent.

Houston forward James Bailey topped all scorers with 26 points. Lewis Lloyd was the only other player in double figures with 15 as the Rockets hit 32 of 81 from the field for 39.5 percent.

The liberal substitutions resulted in a high number of floor mistakes with Houston turning the ball over 34 times and the Bucks 24.

Oiler's Nielsen on five-game trial

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler quarterback Gifford Nielsen discovered that he had a five-game make good schedule the same way that the press found out — at Coach Ed Biles' postgame news conference.

"We decided we wouldn't even consider making changes in that position until after Gifford had five games," Biles said Sunday in response to a question about Nielsen's future as a starter.

Nielsen, in his third start since assuming the starting job after Archie Manning was traded, showed a new scrambling ability in Sunday's 26-14 loss to Denver but a pass late in the game did not please Biles.

Nielsen had tight end Walt Arnold open near the Denver goal and overthrew the receiver.

"They're getting paid good money not to make mistakes like that," Biles said following the game.

Nielsen said he was unaware of any timetable on his future at the quarterback position.

"If I direct the team and we win, everything will be fine," Nielsen said. "If I don't, then they have to make a decision.

"I've done everything in my power to win. He's the coach and he makes the decisions (about who starts). I have given 100 percent. I can't give any more."

Nielsen regained the starting job three weeks ago after Archie Manning and tight end Dave Casper were traded to the Minnesota Vikings, Sunday's opponent.

The Oilers have lost all three games under Nielsen and have an 0-6 record going into the game.

Nielsen said he didn't think about whether such a timetable was fair.

"One thing I've learned in this game is you don't know how things are judged and how fair things are," Nielsen said.

"How fair was it to trade Archie Manning and Dave Casper to Minnesota? When you're in this league you don't think if something fair or not, you just go out and do your best."

Cowboys, Eagles flip game

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Next Sunday's National Football League game between the Philadelphia Eagles and the Dallas Cowboys has been switched to Texas Stadium in Irving, Texas, because of the Philadelphia Phillies' participation in baseball's World Series.

The Cowboys will play in Philadelphia on Nov. 6 at 1 p.m., the original date for the game at Texas Stadium. Tickets that would have been used for Sunday's game will be honored at the Nov. 6 game, Eagles officials said.

The Eagles-Cowboys game is not the first to be shifted because of a World Series. New York Jets games were moved in 1969 and 1973 because of the Mets' participation in the series.

The Phillies will play host to the Baltimore Orioles in the 1983 World Series at Veterans Stadiumm on Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Games 3, 4 and 5.

Iraq wants 'natural right'

KUWAIT (DPA) — Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz has warned that Iraq will not accept Iran continuing to enjoy the smooth export of its oil through the Persian Gulf while Iraq is being denied what he called its similar natural right.

In an interview published here Sunday by the Kuwait daily "Al-Anbaa," Aziz said "We do not deny the aggressor this right, but it is not acceptable that Iraq be deprived of similar rights which are directly linked to its own vital interests."

Referring to the call last June by Iraq President Saddam Hussein for a halt to military operations in the gulf, for gulf nations to be able to use their ports for trade and oil exports, and for free navigation, Aziz said the call "was in the interest of all parties including Iran" and for the industrial and non-industrial world.

Observers here point out that Iran is still using the gulf for its oil exports, while Iraq's Basra oil terminal, located on the northern tip of the gulf, has been closed since the outbreak of the Gulf War three years ago.

Iraq also used to export its oil through two other terminals through pipeline that runs through Syrian territories. But Syria, which sides with Iran, shut off the flow saying that a dispute over taxes first had to be settled before allowing the oil to flow again.

Iraq's only oil export is being made through a pipeline that runs through neighboring Turkey.

Amid reports that five French Super-Entendard jet fighters have been delivered to Iraq, Aziz said that Iraq's relations with France were good, and he expressed the belief that "France is determined to support Iraq not because of favoring one party over the other but because Iraq has a good and clear stance."

As to Iraq's relations with Egypt, the Iraqi foreign minister told the newspaper that the special ties with Cairo did not constitute a departure from the decisions of the 1978 Arab Summit Conference held in Baghdad in which Arab countries decided to boycott Egypt for signing the Camp David peace accord with Israel.

Jobless rate hits lowest level

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's jobless rate fell to 9.3 percent last month, the lowest in 17 months.

The Labor Department said Friday that total U.S. civilian employment rose by 382,000 in September to a record 101.95 million. At the same time, the labor force increased by 107,000 to 112.37 million people.

That left 10.4 million Americans still unemployed nine months after the recession peak of 12.5 million out of work last December, for a jobless rate of 9.3 percent last month compared with 9.5 percent in August.

The unemployment rate was 10.8 percent in December, the highest level in 42 years. By comparison, the rate was 7.4 percent when President Reagan took office in January 1981.

The latest report said unemployment rates dipped last month to 8.7 percent from 8.8 percent for adult men and to 7.8 percent from 8 percent for adult women. The two categories are most likely to include family breadwinners.

For other categories, the rates were:

—Teen-agers, 21.8 percent, down from 23 percent in August.

—Whites, 8.1 percent, down from 8.2.

—Blacks, 19, down from 20.

Wilson shows student Bruce Darling the basics of another defensive technique called the "gaun sau" block.

Wing tsun kung fu instructor Ron Wilson, right, demonstrates the "bong-sau," or wing-arm, block against an attack by fellow instructor Gilbert Leal. While warding off the attack, Wilson is simultaneously counter-attacking with his leg.

Kung fu

Legend has it that the soft, fluid movements of wing tsun kung fu originated when the Buddhist nun who developed the form in China 400 hundred years ago observed a snake and a crane locked in combat.

To her, the snake represented the traditional, brute force style of kung fu in vogue at the time.

The crane, however, displayed the graceful, elusive qualities that are the hallmark of wing tsun, which Bruce Lee studied prior to his coming to the United States.

"Wing Tsun relies on wisdom and skill, not power," said Daniel Abeyta, who is estblishing a wing tsun school in Midland — the second of only two such schools in Texas.

"Wing tsun is not only a way of fighting, it's a way of thinking. It's new to this country and wasn't taught outside of China until 1950. Bruce Lee was among the first to study the form."

Lee, who went on to popularize the martial arts in movies, studied in Hong Kong under wing tsun grandmaster Yip Man.

Dr. Leung Ting was the last to study under Yip Man and is credited with spreading the form to about 20 countries, including the U.S.

Dr. Leung, who lives in Hong Kong, is scheduled to conduct a 10-day seminar in San Antonio, where the only other wing tsun school in Texas is located. The seminar is to begin Friday.

The basic principle of wing tsun that distinguishes it from other forms of kung fu is the "center line theory", which divides the body vertically from head to groin.

"Basically," said Abeyta, "you defend that center line and don't have to worry much about the rest of the body. Other forms generally rely on a sideways stance.

"The advantage is that you can use both limbs at once without having to twist or turn the body into position.

"The hands are positioned in such a way that offensive blows are easily deflected, and you use the other person's momentum against him."

Another difference is the unique "rolling arm" exercises that, once perfected, allow the hands and arms to function automatically, without conscious thought.

"Other forms can be likened to a bull," said Abeyta. "Wing tsun can be likened to a matador, who uses quick, very small movements instead of brute force to overcome his opponent."

Noting that wing tsun was created by a woman, Abeyta added: "Since it uses soft, flexible movements and requires no rigorous physical training, it is easily adopted by women and the elderly. Our intention is to promote it in Texas."

Abeyta and his students practice Mondays and Wednesdays at 7 p.m. in Dennis The Menace Park on South Garfield Street. When the weather turns bad, they'll move the 1½-hour sessions to his garage.

"It doesn't take much space," he noted.

Wilson and Midland wing tsun school operator Daniel Abeyta, left, show student Roger Gose the proper position for executing the "guan sau" block. Abeyta's school is one of only two such schools in Texas.

Darling, his wife Diane, along with Gose and Leal, practice the "Siu-Nim-Tau," or "little idea" — the first of three basic forms that must be mastered in learning the wing tsun system of kung fu.

Stranger brings terror to man's life

EDITOR'S NOTE — Reuben Moore says a stranger he gave shelter to became such a good member of the community he first seemed sent by God. But then he brought terror to Moore's life. The stranger — Henry Lee Lucas — has since claimed to have killed as many as 150 women, and an official said Lucas explained that he killed because he enjoyed sex with the dead.

STONEBURG, Texas (AP) — Henry Lee Lucas was clearly a man in need of help when Reuben Moore first saw him standing with a young woman and a pile of luggage beside a Texas highway in the hot sun of an early summer day.

Moore, a gentle-spirited man of God accustomed to helping troubled strangers, never hesitated. He eased his car to a stop and opened the door.

It was the first step of a journey into darkness for Moore and for this small community in the rolling ranchland of North Central Texas.

Within months, Moore and his wife, Faye, would be living with fear, working for God by day and huddling, armed and alert, behind locked doors at night. Henry Lee Lucas was about to give the Moores and, eventually, the rest of the world, a glimpse into the twisted underside of human character, a vista of perversion and death.

BUT FOR MOORE, on that May afternoon in 1982, Lucas was just a man in need.

Lucas said he had been working as a handyman at the ranchhouse of Kate Rich, an 80-year-old woman who lived near Ringgold. Mrs. Rich's daughter had told him to leave and now, said Lucas, he and his wife were trying to hitchhike to California. It seemed a good place to go.

But Moore had another suggestion.

A year before, the 52-year-old Moore had bought a failed chicken ranch, a cluster of long, tin-roofed barns between Stoneburg and Ringgold. He had placed a plywood steeple atop one of the barns and created a church he called the House of Prayer for All People.

FOR THE NEXT three months, Lucas became such a valued member of the community, Moore was sure he had been sent by God.

"He was friendly and quiet and as good a worker as I've ever seen," recalls Moore. "I needed help and he was a real help. I thought I was really lucky to have him."

Lucas did carpentry and other work around the one-time chicken ranch, helping to turn it into a comfortable residence and a well-appointed church. He quickly became popular with the neighbors, according to Moore, because he helped with chores and never accepted money.

Lucas often attended Moore's church serves and, after a few weeks, he "confessed," announcing to the congregation he was a sinner, but was resolved to improve his life.

THE MINISTER and his family were thrilled.

"I don't think Henry knew God until he came here," said Mrs. Moore.

For three months the contented idyll continued, though Moore says now there were things about Lucas that puzzled and worried him. One was Becky, the young woman Lucas claimed as his wife. She appeared to be 19 or 20 and Lucas was 47. They seemed a strange pair.

AP Laserphoto

Henry Lee Lucas is led to district court on June 23, 1983, in connection with the death of a Ringgold, Texas woman. Lucas claims to have killed 156 persons, and is in the Montague, Texas county jail.

THE SEIGE OF terror for the Moores began on Aug. 20, 1982. Lucas and Becky announced they were going to Florida.

"Becky said she had kinfolks there," recalls Moore. "Henry said he couldn't let her go by herself. They were going to hitchike."

The next day, Lucas came back to the House of Prayer in tears.

"He was crying," said Moore. "He told us Becky had run off with a truck driver. As soon as he could, he said he was going to go looking for her."

Lucas continued to work around the church, but he stopped bathing or shaving, and wore the same clothes day after day. Moore noticed that Lucas was awake at all hours and never seemed to sleep.

A FEW DAYS LATER, Lucas left again, but returned very soon. He said he had found Becky in a San Antonio motel with a truck driver and that their marriage "was over."

Slowly, Moore's impression of Lucas changed. He began to notice that Lucas would have "spells," sudden changes in countenance that Moore began to fear.

"He couldn't sleep because, he said, 'that woman would come into my mind,'" Moore recalled. "He didn't explain."

Another time, said Moore, Lucas offered, "I'm bad and I've got evidence to prove it." Again, he didn't explain.

IN SEPTEMBER, Moore, who also is a roofing contractor, accepted a job in Altus, Okla. Lucas worked as part of the crew for four days and then went back to the church in Texas. He cleaned himself up and got a ride to nearby Bowie, Texas, where he bought new clothes. Then he dropped out of sight.

That night, Kate Rich disappeared.

A few days later, Montague County Sheriff W.F. Conway called on Moore, looking for Lucas. The sheriff said Lucas was a suspect in Mrs. Rich's disappearance.

Lucas called Moore from out of state in October and asked for money. Moore sent $100 and Lucas showed up a few days later with two friends who left after a time.

SHERIFF CONWAY came to the church and arrested Lucas on stolen car warrant from Maryland. When Maryland refused to extradite him, Lucas was released.

But Conway and Moore now knew who Lucas was. He was a native of Blacksburg, Va., one of two sons born to a woman who cleaned houses and made whiskey so she could feed her children and a crippled alcholic husband. Lucas, the Texas authorities learned, had been convicted of killing his mother in 1960 and had served time for the crime in a Michigan prison and in a mental hospital.

He also had been in prison for auto theft, burglary and for kidnapping of a young girl. They also learned that Lucas married the widow of a cousin, but the marriage ended when he made advances on his wife's three daughters. He also threatened to kill his half sister, dated his nephew's wife and attempted to run away with a niece.

But he didn't tell Lucas to leave because, "I was afraid he would sneak back during the night."

ONCE, LUCAS sat down within view of Mrs. Moore and watched her, staring intently, for a whole day. The next day he did it again, and the following day once more. Staring, staring, staring.

Sheriff Conway and his deputies kept a watch on Lucas. Moore said the lawmen's cars often drove past the lonely chicken ranch and sometimes parked nearby.

Moore got a pistol and began going armed whenever he noticed Lucas' "spells."

"There were times when he was normal," said Moore. "There were times when you knew he was dangerous."

THE NIGHTMARE ended for the Moores and started for the rest of the world the day Sheriff Conway came to the church. He said he believed Lucas killed Mrs. Rich. Lucas, said the sheriff, was a dangerous man, but he could not be arrested because there was no evidence and no charge. During the discussion, Mrs. Moore mentioned the .22 pistol.

Conway slapped his knee. "That's all we need. That's a felony."

As an ex-convict, Lucas could not own a gun in Texas.

LUCAS WAS arrested on the weapons charge. At first he would say nothing. But then, like a dam bursting, he began to talk. He confessed to killing Mrs. Rich and began giving details of other killings.

He had stabbed Mrs. Rich, said Lucas, and stuffed her body in a culvert. Later, he said, he had carried parts of the body back to his apartment at the House of Prayer and burned them in a wood stove.

He led officers to a field in Denton County where the scattered bones of Frieda Powell — "Becky" — was found. Officers learned she was a 15-year-old Florida runaway, and never married to Lucas.

And there were other slain women, perhaps as many as 150, Lucas claimed, in 17 states. Lawmen from all over the country began checking for a Lucas connection with their unsolved murders. Lucas was taken to several counties in Texas, leading lawmen to sites where bodies were found.

ON THURSDAY in Conroe, Lucas was indicted on three counts of capital murder after he led officers in Montgomery County to wooded sites where the bodies of three women were found.

He was charged with murder in Hale County, where a headless body had been found last year. The head, apparently a grisly companion in a cross-country trip, was found in Arizona. In Ector County, Texas, Lucas was charged with the 1981 strangulation of Beverly Joyce Luttrell, 46, of Odessa, and in Williamson County, with the strangulation of an unidentified woman whose body was found last month. He also is charged with murder in Fort Bend County, in the stabbing death of Delon Marie Wilkinson, 22, of Houston, and in Monroe, La. in the murder of Kathy Whorton, 19, of Bastrop, La.

Why, he was asked, did he kill so many?

"It was a sex thing," said an official who was familiar with the case. "He enjoyed sex with the dead. It's called necrophilia."

IN INTERVIEWS and affidavits given to officials from several counties, Lucas told how time after time he would first kill then rape, said the official, who asked not to be identified by name. Some victims were strangled, others stabbed and others cut apart. Lucas said his motive in the deaths was sexual gratification, the official said.

For Reuben Moore and his wife, there was relief, and sadness, and a tinge of guilt.

The last time they saw Lucas, he told the Moores, "I'm sorry it all happened on your place."

Then he looked at Moore with that one eye and added: "I gave you every possible clue. I don't know why you never caught on."

Midlander remains critical

A Midland woman remained in critical condition today following a two-car accident on U.S. Highway 80 early Sunday morning.

In the intensive care unit at Midland Memorial Hospital this morning was 22-year-old Mary Jane Munoz of 2700 Loma Drive.

She suffered head injuries when the 1980 Ford Pinto she was driving and a 1976 Chevrolet Monte Carlo driven by 22-year-old Lea Keesee of Odessa collided near the intersection of West Highway 80 and Loop 250 about 3:45 a.m. Sunday.

According to city police, Ms. Munoz was eastbound on Highway 80 and attempted a lefthand turn onto the Loop road when her vehicle and Ms. Keesee's westbound car collided. Ms. Keesee suffered minor injuries, according to police.

A passenger in Ms. Munoz' car, 22-year-old Ann Lerma, also of 2700 Loma, was released following treatment at MMH.

Gas blamed for explosion

A gas leak is blamed for an explosion that destroyed one westside home and damaged another early Sunday morning.

Destroyed was a house owned by A.C. McCurdy at 706 Devonian. Five fire department units responded to the call about 5:15 a.m. Sunday and firemen remained on the scene almost two hours.

The house at 704 Devonian, owned by Doug Gordon, had two windows blown out and sustained minor fire damage to the roof. No injuries were reported.

Firemen said fumes from a leaking gas line in the house at 706 Devonian ignited, touching off the explosion and fires.

In complaints to city police over the weekend, Antonio Carrasco Olivas, no address available, told officers he was driving in the 500 block of Eugene Avenue about 9 p.m. Saturday when four men in a pickup truck forced him off the road and robbed him of $200 at knifepoint. Olivas suffered facial cuts and police are investigating the incident.

Jewelry, guns and coins valued at a total of $1,725 were reported taken in a Friday afternoon burglary at the Joe Campbell residence, 2003 Country Club Drive. Entry was gained through a kitchen window.

Transsexual's license disputed

FORT WORTH (AP) — A marriage license issued to a woman and a transsexual who now identifies himself as a man is being challenged by Tarrant County attorneys who say it is not clear when a sex change operation takes effect legally.

Tarrant County Clerk Madrin Huffman said he sought guidance from the district attorney's office when he was told that a license was issued Aug. 6 to the couple.

The pair was married soon after receiving the license by Peace Justice Gary Ritchie.

Survivor listed as serious

Guadalupe Smith, sole survivor of a Saturday night traffic accident that killed seven people, has been taken off the critical list and is now reported in serious condition at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Ms. Smith, 19, suffered head, leg and internal injuries in the two-car, head-on crash, which occurred about 6:15 p.m. Saturday three miles west of Garden City on Texas Highway 158.

Five Odessa residents ranging in age from 8 to 29 were pronounced dead at the scene. A 17-year-old San Angelo woman died while undergoing surgery at MMH. And 3-year-old Vanessa Ramos of Midland was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital.

Attorneys to begin jury selection

LIPSCOMB, Texas (AP) — Attorneys in the trial of a man accused of murding a member of a Panhandle drug syndicate have come to this small town to try to find a jury to decide if Michael Anderson killed on orders to silence a witness.

Anderson is accused of killing Robert Eugene Hall, 28, of Sayre, Okla., whose body was found March 2 in a grave behind Anderson's home near Kelton, about 35 miles east of Pampa.

State District Judge Grainger McIlhany ordered the trial moved to this Panhandle town 70 miles northeast of Pampa and scheduled jury selection to begin today.

Anderson surrendered to police in Lake Charles, La. on March 3. District Attorney Guy Hardin said Anderson fears for his life and has chosen not to post a $25,000 bond for release.

At a pre-trial hearing in June, McIlhany ruled that much of the evidence discovered during a search of Anderson's home was inadmissible, since the search was conducted without a warrant. The judge ruled that no mention of the body or its discovery will be allowed during the trial.

Hall died from four .45-caliber shots to the back of the head. An autopsy showed he had been dead about a week when his body was discovered.

Authorities claim Anderson was ordered to kill Hall by a drug suspect in custody in Elk City, Okla. Hardin said the man ordered the killings because he feared Hall would testify against him in an upcoming trial.

'Central Park' stroll benefits Cerebral Palsy Center

A cattle and art auction at the 10th Beefeater's Ball Friday evening raised $127,000 for Midland Cerebral Palsy Center.

About 600 Midlanders attended the festive biennial event at the Midland County Exhibit Building off East Highway 80.

In keeping with the ball's theme of decorating the barn-like exhibit hall to resemble faraway places, attendants were treated to a trip to New York's Central Park.

THE BUILDING'S exterior was decorated with flags to resemble Rockefeller Center. The red carpet was rolled out and the Beefeater, Ennis Cole, opened car doors for arriving guests.

At the entry, a young woman attired in black tie, tails and top hat handed out programs and welcomed party-goers to "The Big Apple." Young men dressed in white tuxedoes and top hats escorted female guests over a grey arched "brick" bridge to the festivities.

The bridge, lighted by glass globes on either side, crossed over a pond complete with fake deer and ducks, 100 real goldfish and cattails.

Around the pond were wooden benches, pots of silk flowers and decorative birds perched in topiary trees, although the park's famous pigeons were noticeably absent.

A STUFFED BAG lady "dozed" on a bench with a New York sightseeing brochure clasped in her hands and a Gucci shopping bag at her feet.

At the other end of the bridge a "bag lady," Mary Lou Cassidy, plucked live carnations from a white, wooden cart topped with a blue gingham awning, and presented the "real New York" flowers to female guests.

Mrs. Cassidy, who described herself as the ball's "ambience" wore a rumpled brown suit jacket over a purple prairie skirt, ankle-length "combat" boots over orange striped socks, a green floral print shirt and a tan wool sweater vest devoid of buttons, fastened with a large safety pin.

On top of her mussed grey wig she wore a crushed straw hat trimmed with pink flowers. The "bag lady" kept her Adidas bag stashed under her cart.

THE MEN IN their tuxes and the women in their boas, ruffles, glitter, sequins and flowing gowns, stepped off the bridge into the "park" which glowed with the light from silver stars suspended from the ceiling, a mirror ball and trees with blinking white lights.

Mrs. Tom McIntosh who chaired the decorating committee with Mrs. Bruce Pope, scanned the room with a satisfied look. "I've never been to New York," she admitted. "But I just love to decorate," she said. "Juanita (Mrs. Durward Goolsby) brought me two bags of stuff from New York and we just started from there."

The New York "skyline," a 20-by-9 foot five-piece panel done in black ink pen by Mrs. Pat Thames overlooked the setting.

SEVERAL CIRCULAR TABLES with blue tablecloths and blue umbrellas, reminiscent of the street corner chestnut or pretzel stands, offered oysters on the half shell and salmon with cream cheese.

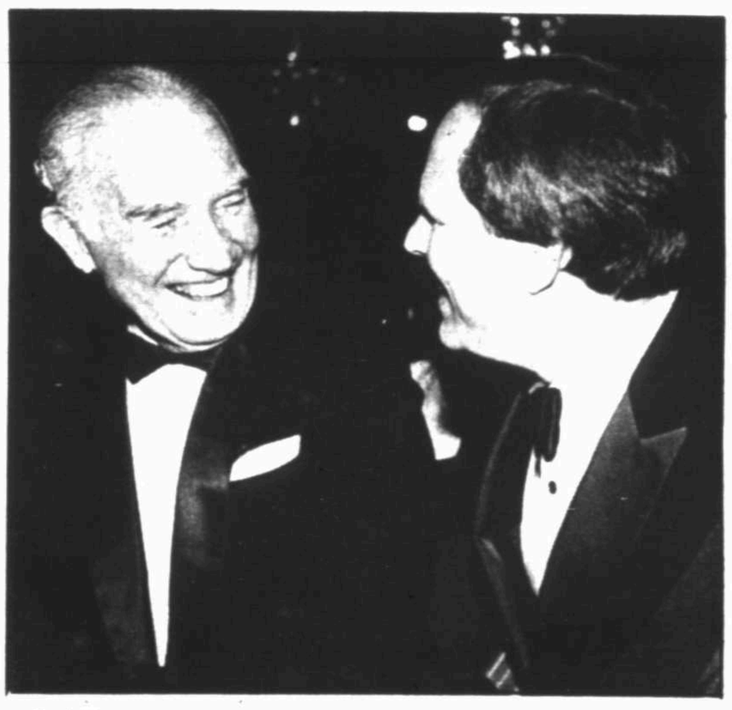

The bars, in each corner of the room, were decorated with broadway show posters such as Annie, Dancin' and A Chorus Line. Lights flashed around the bar, which resembled a theater marquee.

Guests strolled through Central Park and kicked up their heels to the big band sounds of Mal Fitch of Dallas.

The auction was conducted from a railed pen spread with hay opposite the bridge. A fountain with colored lights and three original paintings decorated another park bench setting at the foot of the auction pen.

Bill and Sara St. Clair serve themselves from the buffet dinner at the Beefeater's Ball. The meal included beef tenderloin, wild rice with mushrooms, artichokes and asparagus.

Ted Kruger, left, and Dennis Grubb, a spotter at the cattle auction, chat about a bid on a steer. The Beefeater's Ball raised $127,000 for the Midland Cerebral Palsy Center from the sale of 20 steers and three paintings.

Mary Lou Cassidy, the "bag lady" takes a break on a park bench.

This steer was auctioned to raise money for the Midland Cerebral Palsy Center. Gayle Ingram of Quitman was the auctioneer.

EVERYONE WAS SEATED at the round dining tables for the auction of 20 choice steers. F. Ferrell Davis, ball chairman, was master of ceremonies. Gayle Ingram of Quitman was the auctioneer.

The steers were brought in through a gate which opened to the outside and one by one were auctioned for $4.50 to $8.50 a pound.

Several men worked the crowd, waving green flags when a bid was made and called on people by name to bid on the beef cattle that nervously pranced and circled the pen.

The auction concluded with the sale of an oil painting by Duane Alt and two watercolors by Betty Lynch.

BIDS TOTALED $127,000 according to Mrs. Durward Goolsby, one of the affair's organizers.

Buffet tables decorated with huge live flower arrangements, were set up under chandeliers and guests lined up to fill their plates with beef tenderloin, wild rice with mushrooms, artichokes, asparagus, salad, rolls and wine.

Papaya halves filled with fruit and chocolates and brandy were enjoyed after the meal.

Over 260 Midlanders sponsored the ball this year, the largest group since the ball started in 1965, Mrs. Goolsby said.

The ball is the primary fundraiser for the Cerebral Palsy Center, said Jim Crawford, the center's director and physical therapist. The Children's Service League stages a fashion show on alternate years.

SINCE THE CENTER does not receive city, county, state or federal support, Crawford said, "The C.P. Center would not be able to operate without this affair."

Annual operating costs are $270,000, he said. About 370 children with cerebral palsy and other disabling diseases receive therapy at the center.

"It pleases us that people come out and have such a good time," Mrs. Goolsby said. "We have a fun party and raise funds for the C.P. Center.

"Midlanders are so generous to support us," she said. "Because it all stays right here."

Writers honor American author

Erskine Caldwell

NICE, France (AP) — American novelist Erskine Caldwell, conceding that he finds other authors "very conceited" and prefers to avoid them, was nevertheless honored by writers with a showing of the 1941 film version of "Tobacco Road."

The film was shown Sunday at the World Writers' Conference, a gathering of more than 250 writers at this Mediterranean resort.

Caldwell, 79, also the author of "God's Little Acre," said in an interview, "I am not a member of a school or coterie of writers, so I do not associate with writers."

"Writers are very unpleasant people to live with," said Caldwell, known for his realistic and earthy novels of the American South.

"They are only interested in their own activities," he said. "Therefore, I find them very conceited. I much prefer to associate with common people who are not seeking fame or fortune."

Caldwell did not participate in any of the discussions at the conference but was on hand throughout because, he explained, "I was invited to come here."

Elizabeth Dole

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole told worshippers that the pursuit of her government career once crowded out the "priorities" she learned growing up in North Carolina.

Mrs. Dole, who preached the sermon Sunday at Washington's Foundry United Methodist Church, said that during her childhood the Christian Gospel was "as much a part of our lives as fried chicken and azaleas in the spring."

But she said that at one time, she allowed pursuit of her government career and perfectionism to obscure what she had learned from her grandmother were "life's most important priorities."

In achievement-oriented Washington circles it is easy to become spiritually starved, said Mrs. Dole, 47. And when she realized that was happening to her, "I got down on my knees and prayed. Slowly — no faster than I was ready for — God led me to people and circumstances that put Him back in the center of my life."

Mrs. Dole's husband, Sen. Robert Dole, D-Kan., also a member of the downtown church, was out of town and could not attend. But he had flowers placed in the sanctuary, and Mrs. Dole's mother, Mrs. Mary Hanford of Salisbury, N.C., was in the congregation.

DENVER (AP) — Cary Grabt was there. So were Linda Evans, Jill St. John and Robert Wagner. In fact, the Carousel Ball attracted so many celebrities that Denver Mayor Federico Pena didn't know who half of them were.

About 2,400 people attended a dazzling Saturday ball sponsored by Barbara Davis, wife of Denver billionaire Marvin Davis.

"My problem is, I don't watch TV, so I don't know who half these people are," said Pena as he made the rounds. "I just fake it."

The guest list included Lucie Arnaz, Lucille Ball, Ernest Borgnine, William Christopger, Gary Coleman, Joan Collins, Jamie Farr, Betty Ford, Gerald Ford, John Forsythe, Merv Griffin, Ron Howard, Timothy Hutton, Ann Landers, Michael Landon, Hak Linden, Rich Little, Dolly Parton, Stephanie Powers, Wayne Rogers, Diana Ross, Robert Stack, James Stewart, Donald Sutherland, Loretta Swit and Raquel Welch.

The Davises began the event, which benefits diabetes research in 1978 after they learned their daughter Dana, 15, suffers from the disease. The goal this year was to raise $2 million, and organizers said it appeared that figure was topped.

Former secretary of state Henry A. Kissinger, who had to be in Panama today with President Reagan's commission on Central America, commented, "After a day of Davis hospitality, one is usually in an advanced state of dissolution."

LYNDEN, Wash. (AP) — Randy Bachman of Bachman-Turner Overdrive says he's "really proud" of the $1.3 million, 11-bedroom, seven-bathroom "dream house" he had built in 1976, but now it's up for sale.

The stone and wood Tudor mansion sits on 300 acres of pasture land just south of the Canadian border near Lynden. And in Bachman's soundproof study hangs an enormous wood overdrive gear, the emblem that symbolized BTO's hard-driving sound. The musicians are said to have discovered the six-foot gear during a photo session in a field.

Actress Joan Hackett dies

Joan Hackett

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joan Hackett, a Broadway actress who branched out to TV and movies, winning an Oscar nomination for her portrayal of a hypochondriac socialite in the 1982 film "Only When I Laugh," is dead of ovarian cancer. She was 49.

Miss Hackett died Saturday at Encino Hospital, where she had been under treatment for about three weeks, said nursing supervisor Parvin Pasha.

Miss Hackett received an Academy Award nomination and a Golden Globe Award for her role as Marsha Mason's best friend in "Only When I Laugh," a Neil Simon comedy.

She discovered she had cancer during filming of that movie, said New York publicist and friend Bobby Zarem.

"She'd been hospitalized two or three times over the last year and a half," Zarem said, adding that, "Even to her closest friends, she didn't actually acknowledge it."

The actress arrived at the 1982 Golden Globes in a wheelchair, but walked to the stage to receive her award, said publicist Jacqueline Green.

Miss Hackett was born March 1, 1934, in Harlem to an Irish father and Italian mother. She became a teen-age model in New York City's garment district and made her acting debut in the 1960 Off Broadway play "A Clearing In The Woods." She then moved to Broadway for a revival of Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing."

She won an Obie award for her stage performance in the 1961 Off Broadway production "Call Me By My Rightful Name."

She started her film career with the 1966 Sidney Lumet movie "The Group," in which she played a Vassar College graduate struggling with marriage and motherhood.

Miss Hackett was married for two years to actor Richard Mulligan, who starred in the TV series "Soap" and the film "S.O.B." The marriage ended in divorce, Zarem said.

Her TV movies included "The Young Country," "How Awful About Allan," "The Other Man," "Five Desperate Women," "Class of '63," "Reflections of Murder," "Stonestreet," "The Possessed," "Pleasure Cove," "The Long Days of Summer," and "The Long Summer of George Adams."

In May 1982 she was in ABC's movie "Paper Dolls" as the pushy mother of a teen-age model, and this year she starred in a TV pilot with Karen Valentine, "A Girl's Life." It was broadcast by NBC but did not become a series.

New Yorker critic Penelope Gilliatt wrote that Miss Hackett had "the beauty, humor and racehorse nerves to equal Katharine Hepburn."

Off screen, Miss Hackett was active in many causes, including feminism and adaptation of solar energy. A member of the National Organization for Women, she toured the country in support of the Equal Rights Amendment and was an outspoken supporter of the 1980 Screen Actors Guild strike.

"She was considered among her peers to be one of the finest people in her craft," Zarem said. "She was a real purist. In a way, she was just coming into her own as a person and a commercial actress."

She made many television guests appearances on such shows as "Ellery Queen," "Young Doctor Malone," "The Defenders," "The Alfred Hitchcock Show," "Dr. Kildare" and "The Twilight Zone."

Services are scheduled for Wednesday at St. Victor's Catholic Church in Hollywood. Interment will follow.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Pregnancy not likely before menstruation

Dear Dr. Solomon: I was taught in high school that sexual maturity for women begins with the start of menstruation. Does that mean that a girl cannot become pregnant before she begins menstruating? — Doris, Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Doris: Dr. Lillian D. Nash, of the Fertility Research Foundation in New York City, says that while it is not very likely that a girl will become pregnant before she has her first menstrual period, it is possible.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have given birth once prematurely, but I hear that it can now be prevented. How is this done? — Mrs. J.L., Wilkes Barre, Pa.

Dear Mrs. L.: Premature birth may not always be prevented, but it can sometimes be delayed. Dr. Ronald J. Wapner, of the Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia, says that one technique involves the use of a drug called ritodrine, which helps stop the uterus' contractions.

Dear Dr. Solomon: A neighbor of mine claims that the vaccine for whooping cough can result in mental restardation. Is this true? — Mrs. E.F., Toledo, Ohio

Dear Mrs. F.: It is possible that the pertussis vaccine may adversely affect intellectual development in a very small percentage of children. According to a study by British researchers, however, the risk is much lower than that associated with getting the disease if the child is not vaccinated.

Dear Dr. Solomon: We were recently told that our son has juvenile arthritis. We have both seen arthritis in adults, and we did not like what we saw. Is the juvenile kind as bad as in adults? — Mr. and Mrs. J.V., Denver, Colo.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. V.: Dr. John Baum, of the University of Rochester School of Medicine and Dentistry, notes that childhood arthritis is less disabling than adult arthritis. Some children with juvenile arthritis make a complete recovery, most have only intermittent problems, but some do have more serious disabilities, including deformities.

There are now a number of drugs available to treat juvenile arthritis, but they can be effective only if the patient complies with the physician's instructions. I should add that most physicians today are also alert to the psychological needs of the patient with juvenile arthritis.

For Grace, Huntington, W. Va.: The trouble with your theory is that there is no drug available today that will only destroy cancer cells. If there were, then massive doses such as you suggest might be feasible. However, the drugs currently in use for the treatment of cancer kill healthy cells as well. If the dose is not controlled, chemotherapy would kill the patient before it eliminated the cancer.

Efforts are now under way to target these drugs more specifically. If this effort is successful, treatment would become more effective at the same time that adverse side effects would be reduced.

Lennon's birthday celebrated

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — About 200 people gathered near Santa Monica Pier for a candlelight vigil and peace celebration in memory of songwriter John Lennon.

The Sunday evening event included a gong-ringing ceremony for world peace, birthday cakes for the slain former Beatle and his son, Sean, 8, and a chant of the Beatles' song "Give Peace a Chance" held around an old war cannon displayed near the pier.

The vigil was sponsored by the Santa Monica chapter of the Alliance for Survival, which calls itself a grass roots organization working for peace and disarmament.

Lennon was born Oct. 9, 1940, and shot to death in New York on Dec. 8, 1980.

Alliance for Survival coordinator Jerry Rubin said participants also were "trying to focus attention on an Oct. 22 international day of disarmament," a day of world protest against the deployment of Pershing II and Cruise missiles in Europe.

"We inititated a peace scroll at the vigil, over 100 feet long. It has messages for peace and disarmament which will be sent to arms control negotiators in Geneva," Rubin said.

"The only way you can achieve peace is to work for peace. If John Lennon were alive today he would be leading this drive," Rubin said.

Shamir seeks approval for new Israeli Cabinet

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister-designate Yitzhak Shamir today seeks Parliament's approval for his new Cabinet, which would replace the six-year-old government of Menachem Begin and plunge the country immediately into an economic crisis.

Shamir and his Cablinet were expected to narrowly win a vote of confidence from the 120-seat Knesset, or Parliament. His coalition holds 64 seats, the same line-up of religious and right-wing parties that governed under Begin.

Shamir and his Cabinet ministers are to be sworn into office immediately after the vote, which was scheduled after Shamir announced last week he had put together his coalition.

Shamir's government would be confronted immediately by a banking crisis brought on by a steady erosion in Israeli exports and a mounting foreign debt that stood at $21.6 billion in July, the highest per capita debt in the world.

On Sunday, citizens reacted with fury to a sudden reform in bank stocks that is expected to decrease their worth by as much as 30 percent. The Israeli stock market was shut down indefinitely to prevent a panic.

The ailing Begin, who retired last month, midway through his second term, was not expected to attend today's Knesset session. He reportedly has been secluded in his home for five weeks with a rash on his face that keeps him from shaving.

Yitzhak Shamir

The Begin era, during which Israel made peace with Egypt and thousands of Jewish settlers moved into occupied Arab territory, ended with public distress over the economy and melancholy over the drawn-out entanglement in Lebanon.

Shamir, lacking the charisma and personal loyalty that Begin generated, may have trouble holding together his contentious Cabinet, which has opposing factions representing the rich and the poor.

American woman wins Nobel prize in medicine

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The 1983 Nobel Prize in medicine was awarded today to Barbara McClintock, an 81-year-old American whose pioneering research in genetics went largely unrecognized for more than 30 years.

McClintock

Miss McClintock, who still works at Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory on Long Island, N.Y., becomes the first woman to receive the prize in medicine for work she did alone.

Two other women have won Nobel science awards on their own — France's Marie Curie in 1911 and Britain's Dorothy Crowfoot-Hodgkin in 1964 — and they both won for chemistry. Two women have shared the prize in medicine with men: Rosalyn Yalow in 1977 and Theresa Cori in 1947, both Americans.

Miss McClintock, who will be awarded about $190,000, was cited by the faculty of Sweden's Karolinska Institute "for her discovery of mobile genetic elements."

Born in Hartford, Conn., in 1902, she was honored chiefly for her discovery of genetic elements in corn more than 30 years ago, the awarding panel said. The discovery also had a bearing on research of viruses carrying diseases.

"McClintock's experiments were carried out with great ingenuity and intellectual stringency. They reveal a whole world of previously unknown genetic phenomena," the Karolinska medical faculty explained in its statement accompanying the award.

In 1981, 30 years after making her most important discovery while working alone in a small laboratory, Miss McClintock won the $15,000 Lasker Award, the most prestigious American prize for medical research. She also won an award of $60,000 a year from the MacArthur Foundation.

Miss McClintock has worked since 1941 at Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory, a leader in research on cancer and viruses. She has several small rooms to herself where she analyzes samples of maize, or Indian corn.

For many years she raised corn on a small plot of land on the laboratory grounds. She painstakingly crossed one variety of maize with another, and carefully examined the results.

In the late 1940s, she noticed that parts of the leaves on some corn seedlings were losing their color and other parts of the leaves were gaining color.

Commission members probing Aquino assassination resign

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — All five members of the commission investigating the assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino resigned today, saying they wanted to clear the way for appointment of a more credible investigative panel.

The announcement was greeted with a standing ovation from an audience of about 300 people who had gathered for the scheduled resumption of public hearings on the Aug. 21 slaying.

Acting commission chairman Felix Antonio, a former Supreme Court justice, said the commission wanted to give a "free hand" to chairman-designate Arturo Tolentino, who announced earlier today he would not accept leadership of the group as it had been appointed by President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

Tolentino, who did not appear at the hearing, said in a separate statement released by his office, "My conclusion was that under the present circumstances my designation would only serve as a cosmetic for the commission."

He proposed that a new investigative body be set up that would include non-politicians.

Antonio said that Marcos appears to have accepted suggestions made by Tolentino on forming a new commission, but there was no immediate comment from the government.

Tolentino had told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that the commission appeared to have "prejudged" the assassination at Manila's airport, which the government says was carried out by a gunman promptly shot and killed at the scene by guards.

The assassination triggered massive demonstrations by government opponents who accused Marcos' forces of complicity in the killing of his arch rival. Marcos has denied the charge.

The commission's session today lasted only 15 minutes, and the commissioners then left the hall in the Philippine International Convention Center where the hearings were to have been conducted.

Tolentino said he met with Marcos on Saturday and told the president "perhaps the commission needs some drastic changes. Its image, its nature and its present membership have to altered. I told him I can't be of any effective help to the commission as it is now constituted."

Tolentino said Marcos created the commission through an administrative order that rendered the body "not an independent commission — but a mere arm of the president."

The commission's hearings had been suspended amid charges from the opposition and Aquino's family that the panel was biased and not truly independent of influence by Marcos.

The accusations, and three petitions before the Supreme Court which questioned the legality of the commission, prompted the resignation of its first chairman, Supreme Court Chief Justice Enrique Fernando. Two weeks ago Marcos named Tolentino, who was out of the country at the time, to replace Fernando.

The commission was scheduled to call Gen. Prospero Olivas, who headed the military probe into the killing, along with five men identified as the security personnel who escorted Aquino off an airliner when he was shot. Gen. Luther Custodio, head of the military group charged with protecting Aquino, also was to testify.

Kissinger commission to meet with Central American leaders

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — A fact-finding commission headed by former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger today begins a week-long series of meetings with leaders in war-torn Central America, but Kissinger says the group won't conduct negotiations.

Kissinger said the commission members, who arrived in Panama City late Sunday night, "are here to study and collect information" and would focus on economic, political and security issues during the six-nation tour. He said all activities of the delegation would be made public.

"The progress and security of Central America are a vital American concern," said Kissinger.

Kissinger and the other members of the Bipartisan Commission on Central America were scheduled to hold a series of meetings today with Panamanian leaders.

The commission was formed in July to help President Reagan formulate a long-term approach to the political and economic problems of Central America. Kissinger said the commission will continue deliberations after it returns to the United States and will submit a final report to Reagan Jan. 10.

Before flying to Panama on Sunday evening, Kissinger said a meeting with Daniel Ortega Saavedra, leader of Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government, may take place during the tour.

Couples from nine nations exchange vows during the first mass wedding celebrated by a pope at St. Peter's in Vatican City.

Pope marries 38 couples

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II performed a wedding ceremony at St. Peter's Basilica for 38 couples from nine nations, including the United States, in the largest mass wedding performed by a pope.

The Americans wed at the service Sunday were Deborah Carol Smith, 23, of Bel Air, Md., and Patrick Scott Cassilly, 25, of Chevy Chase, Md.

Pope Paul VI officiated at a similar ceremony in 1975, marrying 13 couples.

John Paul called on the couples to practice the rhythm method of sexual abstinence — the only form of birth control sanctioned by the Roman Catholic Church — as a way of limiting the number of children they have.

Mugabe threatens to take land

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — Prime Minister Robert Mugabe is threatening to confiscate white-owned land and use it to resettle peasants if Britain refuses to give promised compensation.

Mugabe, addressing peasant families in eastern Zimbabwe, said he had heard Britain would stop future grants for the Harare government to buy farms from white owners and give to landless blacks.

Britain has pledged $40 million for land resettlement in Zimbabwe, the former white-ruled British colony of Rhodesia. Some British newspapers reported that Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher might stop the grants to protest Zimbabwe's decision to jail six white officers after they were acquitted of sabotage charges July 31.

NEW MILANI HOT & HEARTY HOT BROTH MAKES DEBUT

Melrose Park, IL-- September 16, 1983-- Milani Hot & Hearty Hot Broth Drink is a 100 percent natural product line recently introduced by Alberto-Culver Company's Milani Specialty Foods Division. A low-calorie, caffeine-free alternative to coffee and tea, the line of hot drinks offers a healthy change of pace that's fast and easy to prepare and serve.

The product is available in four tasty flavors: beef, chicken, vegetable and onion. All are fat-free and cholesterol-free, and have only four calories per 6-oz. serving. They offer more flavor and energy than either coffee or tea.

Hot & Hearty, in individual serving packets, is handy for the home or away from home. All that is needed is boiling water for an instant and delicious pick-me-up.

Milani Hot & Hearty Hot Broth Drinks are available in attractive boxes which are color-coded by flavor. Each Hot & Hearty box holds 20 individual packets for quick and easy use, and can be found in the specialty coffee or specialty tea sections at supermarkets. Suggested retail price is $2.29.

Milani markets other consumer food items including Milani 1890 Dressings, and also offers more than 400 food products to restaurants, hotels, schools and hospitals. It is a division of Alberto-Culver, an international company marketing a broad range of toiletry, house-hold, grocery, institutional and fashion products.
