AEC Head Backs Plea For Test Ban Treaty Approval

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, testified today that underground testing will permit a wide range of nuclear weapons development, including warheads for antimissile defense.

As the third witness at Senate hearings, Seaborg strongly backed earlier testimony from Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara that ratification of the limited test ban treaty would be in the best interests of the United States.

The treaty would prohibit nuclear testing in the atmosphere, in outer space, and under water, but it would not bar continued testing underground.

One of the questions some senators have raised is whether the treaty would seriously handicap U.S. development of missile defenses.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., asked Seaborg whether he was confident an antimissile missile program can be developed without further atmospheric testing.

Seaborg, a Nobel-prize winning scientist, replied:

"Yes, I do. The AEC is responsible for the development of the warhead for the missile. This can be done. We already have a number of warheads eligible for that purpose and can develop a new warhead by underground testing."

Seaborg said "it appears technically feasible to test underground up to several hundred kilotons and perhaps, with more experience and greater ingenuity, to even higher levels."

"This would permit a wide range of development including complete development and proof-test of warheads for battlefield, air defense, antimissile, and antisubmarine use."

He also said that "promising applications of nuclear explosives for peaceful purposes will be developed and demonstrated under the treaty."

"At such times as the benefits have been demonstrated," he added, "the parties may wish to modify the treaty to permit extension of the technology and benefits to all."

The Foreign Relations group, with members of the Armed Services and Senate-House Atomic Energy Committees sitting in, is holding hearings on the treaty to prohibit testing in the atmosphere, underwater, and in outer space, but not underground. Senate ratification requires a two-thirds majority.

While McNamara conceded that atmospheric testing of a complete antimissile system would not be possible under the treaty, he insisted that kind of testing would "not be necessary to reach a decision on whether or not we should deploy the system."

"We have tested the design of the warhead to the extent that we know it will work," he said.

McNamara said the Russians' high-yield nuclear tests in the atmosphere in 1961 advanced their understanding of such a system, but he added he didn't believe the Soviet Union has developed a workable system. Nor, he said, has the United States.

While Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., raised the issue in questioning McNamara, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said in a statement that President Kennedy has "seemingly sentenced to death" the development of such a system by saying the project is "beyond us."

Goldwater said he wanted ironclad assurance that antimissile development will not be inhibited by the treaty or the President's personal pessimism."

McNamara testified that an effective defense against missiles can be developed without further atmospheric testing.

The core of his testimony was a contention that the United States has nuclear warheads "in the tens of thousands" and that the treaty would help preserve a U.S. lead over the Soviet Union.

He gave his "unequivocal support" to ratification and sought to assure the Senate of U.S. determination to maintain a nuclear force he called "manifestly superior to the Soviet Union's."

Under questioning by Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, McNamara said he believed all his military advisers, including the Joint Chiefs of Staff, consider the treaty, with its safeguards, "compatible with the security of the United States."

The Senate preparedness subcommitee, headed by Stennis, sounds out Gen. Maxwell bd. taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs, in closed session today.

Taylor's testimony, like that of physicist Edward Teller, an avowed opponent of the treaty who appeared before the subcommittee Monday, will be made public after security deletions.

"I know of no one of my senior scientific advisers, and no one on the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who recommend against support of ratification of this treaty with safeguards," McNamara testified.

He said the safeguards were provided by underground testing, plans to prepare for quick resumption of atmosphere tests if the Soviet Union abrogates the treaty, full operation of weapons laboratories, and strong inspection and detection systems.

Nuclear Test Solves Van Allen Belt Mystery

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP)—The nuclear bomb which the United States detonated above the Pacific last year helped scientists determine the path and rate of decay of high-energy electrons, thus solving a major mystery of the Van Allen radiation belt.

This was reported to a satellite conference today by Wilmont N. Hess of the Goddard Space Flight Center.

"While the nuclear explosion shortened the lives of some satellites and increased the intensity of radiation around the globe, it had a valuable side effect," he said.

"To students of the Van Allen belt, it was almost like having a controlled experiment in space."

Before the explosion, said Hess, scientists could only guess at the travel pattern and life of high-energy particles throughout the belt. Now, these facts are known with reasonable accuracy to a distance of 5,000 miles.

The information has led to better understanding of the Van Allen belt, a zone of trapped radiation which extends from 400 to 40,000 miles above the earth. It will help in the design, engineering, and equipping of spacecraft, Hess said.

The artificial band of radiation created by the 1.4-megaton hydrogen detonation released electrons which merged with the lower level of the Van Allen belt.

Hess said satellite instruments readily distinguished the blast-created electrons from natural radiation.

"There was a very rapid decay immediately of the highest-energy particles," he said. "About one-half of the artificial radiation disappeared in the first year. Now the decay rate of the lower-energy particles is smoother and slower, and the amount of artificial radiation is being reduced by about one-half its amount each year."

Hess said the loss rate should increase as radiation layers on the sun increase toward a period of maximum solar activity in two years. He said the maximum period may wipe out the man-made radiation.

Hess said the high-altitude explosion provided data on the inner zone of the Van Allen belt, but that electron movement and life in the less dense outer zone still is not known. H said a plan is being studied to shoot a piece of radioactive copper 16,000 miles high, to release positron energy particles.

Positrons could be readily investigated by satellites, Hess said. He reported that positrons act almost like electrons and would not contaminate space.

Scurry County Area Gets Welcome Rains

Welcome rains, the first in some two months, dampened Scurry County late Tuesday and early today.

The big end of the moisture apparently was concentrated in the south half of the county, although beneficial showers were reported in most areas.

Heaviest rainfall report came from Lake J. B. Thomas, where two inches was measured at the Snyder pump station near the dam.

Ira had a total of 1.2 inches, with most of it falling Tuesday afternoon and the remainder, about .15, this morning. The Pat Moore place south of Ira had a total of 1.7.

Hermleigh had good showers, with about an inch reported Tuesday afternoon and .3 more this morning.

At Dunn, 1.5 inches of rainfall was reported at the E. J. Goodlett place.

Snyder had a total of .37 inches in the official gauge at the city water plant. However, heavier showers were reported to the south.

The official gauge at the Wayne Williams place at Polar logged .29 inch, although some reports of showers up to .75 inches were reported in that general area.

Fluvanna had only .20 inch, the lightest report received this morning.

The heavier rains at Lake Thomas apparently were confined to the immediate lake area. There was little or no runoff reported into the lake this morning.

Many other areas of the state had heavy downpours as a cool front pushed toward South Texas.

As much as 4 inches of rain drenched part of Fort Worth and up to 3.21 inches in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas within an hour during violent electrical displays.

Lightning struck Andy Aliaz, 5, at Hurst, a Fort Worth suburb. Although the bolt melted metal zippers in his clothing, he apparently did not suffer serious injury.

Cooling rains started Tuesday morning in the Panhandle-Plains sector of West Texas and slowly pushed deeper into the state. It stayed hot and dry in South Texas areas not touched by the mild cool front.

Gauges caught 3.30 inches of rain at Claude, southeast of Amarillo, and 3 inches at Colorado City. Farmers and stockmen greeted a 3.20-inch fall in the Big Spring vicinity as "a million dollar rain."

The moisture, first at Big Spring since June 20, sent the temperature diving from 93 degrees to 70 in 90 minutes.

Cleburne underwent winds up to 50 miles an hour but received only .20 inch of rain. At Alvarado, a 2.40-inch downpour damaged several tents of a carnival.

Other rain totals over the state included Joshua 3, Burleson 1.84, Dalhart 1.18, Amarillo .47, Lubbock .11, Alpine .28, Waco .98, Abilene .34, Mineral Wells 1.70, Big Spring 1.03, Weatherford .93, Corsicana .96, Cresson 2.51, Ennis .65, Tyler .41, Longview .55, Childress .28, Killeen .23, Crandall 1.21.

Part of the Polk Street Baptist Church auditorium being built in Dallas collapsed during the storm. Power and telephone lines took a beating and a few streets and underpasses were flooded briefly.

There also were heavy electrical storms at Abilene, where one home was damaged, and at Eastland. Merkel, west of Abilene, received 1.75 inches of rain and Eastland 1.55.

Showers and occasional thunderstorms continued until nearly daylight Wednesday in a 25-mile wide belt from Midland eastward to San Angelo, Waco, Longview, Tyler, Palestine and Shreveport, La.

Forecasts called for diminishing and widely scattered showers in most sections of Texas through Thurday. Cooler air was expected to spread deeper into East and Central Texas but no heat relief was in prospect for coastal areas.

Austin's high of 103 degrees was the highest temperature in the state Tuesday afternoon.

Student Loses Both Hands In Explosion

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—A college student from San Antonio lost both hands today in the premature explosion of a homemade bomb.

Eddie Ralph Mustain, 22, was in critical condition. He is a student at Southwest Texas State College in San Marcos.

Roger Passant, 19, was cut and received a possible chest injury when the iron pipe bomb exploded in a park in southeast San Antonio.

William Klein, 25, one of three other young men watching, said Mustain made the bomb as an experiment. He said Mustain tried to throw the bomb away before it exploded but failed.

Drug Makers Must Prove Their Claims

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Food and Drug Administration has ordered drug manufacturers to prove their claims for antibiotics in a wide variety of compounds such as throat lozenges, nose drops and sprays, which generally can be bought without prescription.

The FDA set a deadline of Sept. 6 in the order published in the Federal Register of July 23. A spokesman for the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Assn. said today many companies cannot comply by that date.

The spokesman expressed the opinion the companies probably cannot devise tests to prove the effectiveness of the drugs, as required, "let alone carry them out." He said he had no definite figures on the sales value of affected products, but doubtless it is well over $1 million a year.

FDA acted under authority contained in the 1962 amendments to the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act which allows it to require proof of both efficacy and safety of drugs.

The agency has not questioned the safety of the antibiotics, of which about 30 of the lesser used ones are affected. But it said labeling claims on effectiveness of the products are not suppoted by available medical data.

'Rainmaker' May Not Be Needed Now

SAN ANGELO (AP)— Mother Nature supplied San Angelo with two inches of rain today and may have knocked a mysterious rainmaker of Tulsa, Okla., out of a job.

The Weather Bureau gauged an inch of rain, but various areas of the city reported up to two inches of badly needed moisture.

Good rains also fell on important San Angelo watersheds. The Middle Concho River, which runs into San Angelo's new Three Rivers reservoir, was running 4 to 5 feet after good overnight rains.

The Bob Johnson ranch, 40 miles west of San Angelo, measured 4.70 inches in two days. Other area rainfall includes: Sterling City 1.50 inches, Garden City 3, Winters 2.70, Water Valley 2.50, and Stiles 1.93.

The Jack Herring ranch near Norton in Runnels County reported 3.50 inches.

The North Concho River also was reported rising after three inches of rain over its watershed.

Meanwhile, the seven-man San Angelo Weather Information Center, Inc., has scheduled a meeting today to decide its future course in view of today's rains.

The group has been dickering with the Tulsa rainmaker, and has pledges of $7,000 in a $10,000 fund-raising drive to get the rainmaker to San Angelo to try and break the area's costly drought.

Top School Budget Set

The Snyder school board last night gave their approval to the largest budget in the consolidated school district's history.

The revised estimate of cost for running the schools for the 1963-64 school year was fixed at $3,005,844, with $2,308,882 to be spent for actual operation of the schools, and the balance to be used for repayment of bonds and interest.

Only one visitor attended the budget hearing. He was R. E. McBride, tax specialist for the Standard of Texas Oil Company.

McBride was questioned at length by school board members concerning the procedures used in getting values on oil properties for tax purposes. A reduction of some $350,000 had been made by the tax consultants employed by the school board.

Because of the reduction in values, a small increase in rate of taxation to $1.97 per $100 valuation was needed, and was voted by the board. Total valuations of county properties for school tax purposes now stand at $130,850,000.

In other action the school board approved the resignations of four teachers and the hiring of eight new teachers. Superintendent of schools T. E. McCollum reported that the schools now were at full faculty strength.

Resignations accepted were Miss Etta Sue Simpson, homemaking teacher at Travis; Mrs. Donna Davison, who was to have taught biology at high school; Mrs. Virginia Lewis, third grade at Lincoln; and Mrs. Shirley Stanfield, seventh grade at Lincoln.

Hired were Mrs. Nettie Edwards, third grade at Lincoln; Mrs. Dorothy Gladson, sixth grade at Northeast; Miss Joyce Heathcott, P. E. at high school; Miss Clarice Leverett, fourth grade at Northeast; Mrs. Viola Gracey, homemaking at Travis; Claude McKinzie, sixth grade at Lincoln; Mrs. George Faye Cromwell, P. E. at West; and Mrs. Maurine Robinson, who will instruct the Special Education classes.

The school board also approved the calendar for the coming year. School will start Sept. 3, and the final day of school next year will be May 27. There will be 177 teaching days in the year.

Aug. 29 Seems Plenty Close As Rail Dispute Continues

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP)—With rail negotiations stalemated and new doubt cast on legislative prospects, Aug. 29 seemed awfully close today.

That's the day set by most of the nation's railroads for new job-eliminating work rules—a move the five operating unions have pledged to meet with a strike.

What makes Aug. 29 seem closer than 15 days away is that a pall has settled over the two major procedures for averting a nationwide tieup—negotiating for a settlement of the four-year-old dispute and legislation to turn the problem over to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The negotiations, sponsored by the Labor Department, sputtered to a halt Tuesday with announcement by the carriers of "a positive stalemate" on the key firemen's issue. The carriers want to eliminate 32,000 firemen on diesel locomotives in freight and yard service on the grounds the men are no longer needed. The unions say they are required for safe and efficient operations.

J. E. Wolfe, the railroads' chief negotiator, announced the deadlock after a two-hour bargaining session with representatives of the firemen's and engineers unions.

"As far as the firemen's issue is concerned we have reached a positive stalemate which indicates at this time that a negotiated agreement is hopeless," he said.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz was only slightly less pssimistic.

"The most recent attempt to get a negotiated settlement has been unsuccessful," he said. "These efforts will continue, but the prospects of settlement by bargaining depend entirely on one side or the other making a new proposal."

No new meetings of carrier and union representatives have been scheduled, although both have been asked to stand by.

H. E. Gilbert, president of the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, said: "From the beginning the railroads have failed to meet their responsibilities in the collective bargaining. Their latest announcement, if final, leaves the employes no other alternative than to prepare for whatever railroad management endeavors to force upon the employes and the American public."

The 156-member General Chairmen's Committee of the union meets today to decide whether to remain in Washington. Even if it disbands, a spokesman said, a subcommittee would remain, prepared to negotiate.

If negotiations are at a dead end, the best hope for averting a strike seemingly would lie with Congress. However, one highly placed senator told a reporter it is doubtful now that President Kennedy's plan for submitting the dispute to the Interstate Commerce Commission can be passed.

After the rail talks bogged down Wirtz and Lawrence F. O'Brien, special assistant to Kennedy, met in the office of Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana. The 1½-hour session was attended also by Sens. Warren G. Magnuson, chairman of the Commerce Committee; John O. Pastore, D-R.I., second ranking Democrat on the committee, and Wayne Morse, D-Ore.

Afterward both Mansfield and Magnuson said no decision was reached to proceed at once with legislation.

"The best solution," Mansfield said, "still would be a negotiated settlement."

White Group Files Suit

WASHINGTON (AP)—A group of white postal workers have gone into court with their complaint over the promotion of three Negroes to supervisors in the Dallas post offi

Ten white employes filed suit against the Post Office Department in U.S. District Court here, charging they were discriminated against because of their race.

Their suit claims the white workers ranked Nos. 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11 and 12 on a promotion register while the top ranked Negro stood No. 54.

Japan Signs Test Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japan, the only nation ever hit by a wartime atomic attack, added its agreement today to the treaty banning nuclear tests in the atmosphere, outer space and under water.

Although no mention was made of it at the State Department signing ceremonies, the action came on the 18th anniversary of Japan's surrender ending World War II. The surrender was hastened by the dropping of atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Mrs. Kennedy Is Back Home Today

By FRANCES LEWINE

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy, holding the President's hand and managing a smile, went home from the hospital today and her doctor promptly suggested that she curtail all of her official activities "until after the first of the year."

The long convalescent period was similar to one Dr. John W. Walsh had advised for Mrs. Kennedy after the birth of her first son, also by Caesarean section, in 1960.

Mrs. Kennedy "had made a very satisfactory recovery," said White House press secretary Pierre Salinger in a statement shortly after Mrs. Kennedy left the hospital at Otis Air Force Base.

She flew by helicopter with the President to their Squaw Island summer home near Hyannis Port where she will stay now probably into mid-September.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy walked slowly down the two stone hospital steps and the short distance to a waiting blue car, which drove them to a nearby helicopter pad. The President helped Mrs. Kennedy into the car.

Mrs. Kennedy had a long hairdo, vastly different from the bouffant ones she usually wears.

Photographers and reporters stood behind a rope barrier and Air Force personnel, families and children came out to watch Mrs. Kennedy's departure after a week in the hospital following the birth of her third child, Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, who lived less than two days.

Led by two Air Force police cars, the motorcade moved out to the helicopter landing area, where they took off for the 12-minute ride back to the Kennedy summer home on Squaw Island, near Hyannis Port, where Mrs. Kennedy will convalesce with her family.

Mrs. Kennedy's press secretary, Pamela Turnure, described her condition as very good.

The Kennedy youngsters, Caroline, 5½, and John Jr., 2½, as well as a new puppy, were waiting at Squaw Island to welcome Mrs. Kennedy home.

New Leads Found In Train Robbery

By JOHN GALE

LONDON (AP) — British police investigating the great mail train robbery followed up a new avenue of leads today uncovered by the discovery of a lonely farm that was the gang's hideout.

Scotland Yard had:

The name and address of a man to whom the farm was sold less than a month ago.

A description of a charming, expensively dressed man who came to collect the keys.

Descriptions of a ginger-haired stranger and a brunette woman seen in the district by suspicious country folk.

Although the police appeared to be making progress, there was still no trace of the more than $7 million snatched from the Glasgow-London night mail train last Thursday.

Detectives, fingerprint men and other police experts swarmed over Leatherslade Farm, the robbers' den 18 miles from the scene of the crime.

An unconfirmed report said an underworld source had furnished the names of 10 criminals supposed to have taken part in the raid.

Inquiries stretched to the French Riviera. The leader of the gang was thought to have gone there some days before the robbery to provide himself an alibi.

A truck and two army type vehicles used by the bandits were found at the farm. Police also found empty mailbags, supplies of canned food and a hole in the front yard, apparently dug with the idea of burning evidence.

The area was sealed off and no unauthorized person could get within half a mile of the farm.

Less than a mile away is an air strip which could have been used for a getaway.

Police said they believed the gang quit the hideout in panic two or three days ago. There were signs of a hasty departure.

Bernard Rixon, former owner of Leatherslade, said "the name and address of the man who bought the place has been given to the police by my lawyer."

Lily Brooks, 60, was custodian of the keys to the farm while it lay empty. She said a man picked up the keys at her home two weeks ago.

"He was tall, fair and charming," she said. "He was dressed in an expensive sports suit and did not look like a country man. He had a London accent."

Herdsman John Maris, 33, claimed he first tipped detectives to check the farm after his suspicions were aroused by the new occupants.

He said they never seemed to do any work and blacked out the windows of the brick farmhouse.

Insurance companies and the postoffice have offered a $720,000 reward.

Panel Begins Work On Rights Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eleven members of a House Civil Rights subcommittee meet today to begin work on legislation the administration hopes will ease racial tensions.

For the next few weeks at least, the 11 representatives will try to give legislative form to the proposals President Kennedy has called "responsible, reasonable and urgently needed solutions" to the problems of racial discrimination.

They deal with voting rights, school desegregation, employment opportunity, federally assisted programs and discrimination in places of public accommodations.

Schools To Be Provided For Negroes

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia Gov. Albertis S. Harrison Jr. today announced, with the approval of the Department of Justice and white and Negro leaders, the organization of a biracial group to provide private free schools in Prince Edward County this year.

Harrison's announcement at a crowded news conference was given an immediate pledge of support by the Rev. L. Francis Griffin, president of the Virginia National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, who sat beside the governor at the conference.

The plan to provide schooling for some 1,700 Negro pupils who have been largely without classroom training since the county closed public schools four yerrs ago—as well as white children who may desire to attend the free schools—was outlined by the governor as follows:

"A biracial board of trustees of three white and three negro educators will lease from Prince Edward County several of the presently unused public school buildings, will sign up faculty and administrative personnel, and will operate on finances obtained privately.

A number of foundations and individuals have already indicated their willigness to contribute.

Rights Resolution Expected To Pass

HOUSTON (AP)—Despite vocal opposition, delegates to the American Municipal Association convention expected its human rights resolution to pass by a landslide today.

The 2,000 mayors and other high municipal officials vote on the human rights proposition before the association's 40th annual congress ends today.

Vice President Lyndon Johnson's appeal in behalf of human rights did not arrest the opposition—and a counter challenge was in the mill. Still, majority opinion at the huge gathering pointed to overwhelming support for the resolution.

Mayor John Barr of Pittsburgh, Pa., and vice Mayor Sam Massell of Atlanta, Ga., said that a much more strongly worded resolution was passed by the United States Conference of Mayors in June after the same kind of controversy.

"The AMA is composed of many of the same people; we heard the same rumors; and there was a debate on the floor at the Honolulu convention of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, but the issue passed with very few 'noes'—although they were loud 'noes,'" Barr said.

Meanwhile, the Mississippi and South Carolina delegations continued plans to try to block the resolution. The latter group said it would try to table it.

Mayor Allen Thompson of Jackson, Miss., who had engaged in a heated hotel lobby debate with two Michigan Negro city officials, said that while "the vice president is a wonderful man, his address did not change our thoughts, plans or procedures to oppose the resolution."

In a strong off-the-cuff appeal after his prepared address had been delivered to the delegates earlier Tuesday, the vice president urged the city officials to go home and "try to make good the rights of all of our citizens given them over 100 years ago in the Constitution."

Mayor Thompson of Jackson, Miss., was asked heated questions—to which he gave heated replies—in what turned into a public debate in the hotel lobby as he was monitoring a moving picture display about his city.

The questioners were Dr. Frank Howell of Muskegon Heights, Mich., and C. A. Hamlin of Inkster, Mich., both city councilmen. They challenged Thompson on what kind of rights Jackson's Negro citizens have.

Urges Order Be Held Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said the order by the armed services to declare "off-limits" on segregated areas should be held in abeyance until congressional committees can investigate the order.

Tower assailed the Tuesday directive by Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara authorizing the armed services to declare off-limits areas where "relentless discrimination persists against Negro servicemen and their families."

Tower said in a statement, that "the military establishment was created for the purpose of defense against foreign enemies. It was not created to be used as a tool or device by which domestic political goals might be achieved."

'March' Set In Houston

HOUSTON (AP)—A "Freedom march" by some 40,000 Negroes will be held in downtown Houston Sept. 29, the president of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, has announced.

The scheduled march was revealed Tuesday at a meeting of the Houston chapter of the NAACP. The chapter at the same time said it will ask for a city ordinance prohibiting discrimination in public places in Houston.

The chapter also discussed arrangements for sending a group to the national march on Washington Aug. 28 and a group to Austin the same day.

The Rev. A. A. McCardell, president of the branch and pastor of the Pleasant Grove Baptist Church, told some 40 persons at the meeting that an official announcement of the march would be made soon.

Neilan On Attack Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edwin P. Neilan, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, today renewed his attack on "widespread public immorality in the use of federal funds," and he again compared it to the sex-spy scandal in Great Britain.

In a television interview, Neilan said the modern political pork barrel is a much greater problem than the Profumo scandal in Great Britain and he said that its impact was greater. He added, "But I doubt that it will bring down any Cabinet members."

In a speech last week, Neilan had characterized such programs as the Area Redevelopment Administration as "billions for ballot bribery," he said that some congressmen had become "bagmen" and that voters had willingly gone along with prok barrel projects.

Balloon Is On Way Down

PALESTINE, Tex. (AP)—A big research balloon sent aloft to gather meteorite particles was scheduled to start drifting back to earth today after reaching a heigh of 9,000 feet.

Spokesmen at the launching station here said no report of trouble had been received. Thunderstorms were reported in the area between Palestine and Pecos, where the balloon is scheduled to land.

Lifted by a quarter million feet of helium, the 85-foot tall bag rose a thousand feet a minute after it was released early Tuesday.

John Sparkman, station manager, said the balloon would start its descent after traveling about 500 miles.

Child Accidentally Killed In Suicide

HITZKIRCH, Switzerland (AP)—A 57-year-old man committed suicide at his home here today and unknowingly killed his baby granddaughter.

The bullet passed through the man's head and through the ceiling and hit the head of the year-old baby sleeping on the floor above.

Guilty Plea Received

Darvin Day of Snyder entered a plea of guilty this morning in county court on a charge of child desertion.

Day was sentenced to 30 days in jail and assessed court costs of $26.35.

Dear Abby...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column recently from a woman who thought that the practice of parakeets flying over the dinner table at mealtime was unsanitary. And you agreed with her. Abby, I thought you were supposed to be a pretty hep gal. Haven't you ever heard of Parakeet Diapers? They are made of washable jersey and come in three sizes. Small, medium and large. They will not hamper birds in flight and are designed with a comfortable halter neck so the birds can't lose them. This is no gag, and I don't sell them. But I've bought them.

FRED IN ALBANY

DEAR FRED: Now I've heard everything! I don't sell them either, but I'll bet a lot of readers would like to know who does.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: This may not seem important to you, but I want to know how to follow through on something that has bothered me for a long time. I am considered a good-looking young man, but my ears stand out, away from my head, to a very noticeable degree. I have read that some movie actors have been operated on to have this defect corrected. Is it dangerous? Is it expensive? And where can I get an operation of this kind?

DUMBO

DEAR DUMBO: Surgery is always dangerous unless performed by an expert. I don't know how "expensive" it is, but you can get all the information you want by asking your family doctor to refer you to a plastic surgeon.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My husband has always been quite well-to-do. Our daughter wanted to marry a 27-year-old man of whom we did not approve. She was too young to marry without our consent, and we forbade her to do so. The day she became of age they went to City Hall and were married. We told her we never wanted to see her again. We got our wish. It has been nine years since we have seen her. And we have never seen our two grandchildren. We never realized that in making such a threat we would be the ones to pay. Please print this for parents who might be tempted to keep apart two people who really love each other.

SORRY

DEAR SORRY: Are you saying that parents should set aside their better judgment when an underage daughter announces she wants to marry? True, you shouldn't have said you never wanted to see her again. THAT was your mistake, NOT for bidding your daughter to marry a man of whom you disapproved. Quit punishing yourself. Make an effort to see your daughter. One of these days she'll realize that she is being foolish, too.

* * *

Clear Lake Votes Bonds

HOUSTON (AP) — The Clear Lake Water Authority, which expects to eventually populate its 24 square miles with 180,000 people, had all its qualified voters cast ballots in its first election.

This was for $24 million worth of tax bonds. The proposition was approved Tuesday by a vote of 15-0.

The much-publicized authority, which occupies about 12,000 acres of southeast Harris County land which Houston has under a partial annexation and 3,000 acres by Pasadena, expects the $24 million to last six years.

The money, which represents $1.6 million for each of the qualified voters in the authority, will be used to build water, sewer and drainage facilities for the first 4,500 acres of the 15,234-acre authority.

The authority is adjacent to the space agency's manned spacecraft center.

Baby Teeth Jam The Mailbox Of Housewife

MONTREAL — "How a little nobody from Cote St. Luc could get involved in something like this, I don't know," says Mrs. Ethel Kesler, the Montreal housewife who started women across Canada saving baby teeth for scientific research.

Mrs. Kesler, a former social worker, has aroused international interest in her Montreal Baby Tooth Survey and has just been asked to write a paper on her work for Dr. Benjamin Spock, the renowned baby expert.

The mailbox at her suburban Cote St. Luc home is jammed with teeth and inquiries from mothers as far away as the Yukon. Sometimes entire sets of baby teeth arrive and she has even received teeth from dogs and cows.

Scientists agree that teeth shed by children are an invaluable source of information about the strontium 90, thought to be the most dangerous of radioactive materials produced in a nuclear explosion.

Began in St. Louis

The first tooth survey was set up by St. Louis housewives, who have collected more than 110,000 deciduous teeth since 1958, following a suggestion by Dr. Herman Klacker, Johns Hopkins university biochemist, in a science journal. Scientists at Washington University in St. Louis, aided by the U.S. Public Health Service, use the teeth to study effects of strontium 90 on children's bones.

Concerned about radiation hazards for some time, Mrs. Kesler learned about the St. Louis project, and, in 1960, began what snowballed into a national baby tooth collection in Canada.

The Montreal baby tooth survey began under the sponsorship of the Quebec Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament. This year Voice of Women has taken over the project, now operating in eight Canadian cities. Dr. Ursula Franklin, a physicist with the Ontaro research foundation and the University of Toronto, is directing it.

Canadian baby teeth go to the laboratories of Dr. A. M. Hunt of the University of Toronto's School of Dentistry. Dr. Hunt in his research has found that breast - fed babies absorb less strontium 90 than those fed on bottles and that children of certain age groups have absorbed more than others.

Dr. Hunt tested teeth from 1957 and found the strontium-90 absorption rate went up each year. Now he needs teeth to test the period from 1957 to 1961.

Mothers are asked to fill in forms obtainable at local chain stores and send teeth with forms to the local survey office. Youngsters get buttons saying "I gave my tooth to science."

Helped by Sons

Mrs. Kesler says her own boys, twins of 11 and a 9 - year - old, are among her best salesmen.

The nucleus of the Montreal survey consisted of herself and two other housewives. But she has hundreds of volunteers whenever she needs help.

Mrs. Kesler feels there is a dangerous "free floating anxiety" in this nuclear age and that giving baby teeth for research somehow helps mothers alleviate this feeling.

She is aided by an advisory committee of scientists. But people seem to regard her as some kind of a "lay dentist."

"I get requests for all sorts of information about teeth."

Rice Was Ever Loner

MINORITY REPORT: An autobiography. By Elmer Rice.

When he was 21, Elmer Rice made a jackpot debut in the Broadway theater with his first play, "On Trial." Fifty dramas and countless articles later he submits to the reading jury this summation of a restless, absorbing career.

Why such a title? He grew up on the sidewalks of New York, and got an early, diisenchanting closeup on the way youngsters — and grownups — can behave en masse.

"From the first time I ventured into the streets, I have distrusted and shunned crowds," he says. "The minority man I have always been is just a grown-up minority boy."

So through this narrative of ups and downs as an innovator of stage techniques ("The Adding Machine," "Street Scene" and others) and of his far travels, there are numerous interludes of action in areas of political liberalism and sociological reform.

Rice may not exhibit much of a sense of humor, but he is candid and homes in the 70-year search for his decalogue of existence.

"Minority Report" takes you along on a highly rewarding journey with an unquiet companion.

Graduating LVNs Have Celebration

A banquet marking the end of the year-long Licensed Vocational Nurses training was held last night at the 66 Dining Room.

The fourteen graduating nurses of the Cogdell Hospital Vocational Nurses School, along with their instructor, Miss Louease Stinson, welcomed special guests Bill Newsom, hospital administrator; Miss Gwendolyn Groves, supervisor of nurses; Mrs. Ethel Wadleigh, presently assistant supervisor of nurses; Miss Barbara Holman, who was assistant supervisor during most of the course; and Mrs. Mildred Sparks, hospital dietitian.

Mrs. Mamie Lou Burditt is president of the graduating class.

The class will receive diplomas and pins in a graduation ceremony to be held Thursday, Aug. 15, at the Trinity Methodist Church.

Applications for the new class to start Sept. 5 are being accepted by the hospital through Aug. 23.

When a recipe calls for "grated" nuts, use a hand-operated rotary-type nut grater. Putting nuts through the fine blade of a food chopper does not usually give the same effect as grated nuts.

Singular Sandwiches

The hole in the Swiss cheese is not the only unique feature this aged delicacy has to offer. It also is a good traveler. Stands up well without refrigeration and makes for enjoyable eating. It forms the basis for many an excellent sandwich filing.

Female Monster Most Feared Individual Around Viet Nam

BY INEZ ROBB

Why is it that Uncle Sam always lets himself, with the best will in the world, be euchred into the support of such repellent characters as Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu, the iron-fisted, hard-faced dictator of Vietnam?

It must be obvious even to the State Department that this haughty, arrogant woman, devoid of compassion and any decent human feeling, is the true ruler of the unhappy land that the United States has been trying to save from communism with our men and our money.

But this female monster, with the morals of a Hitler and the manners of a Storm Trooper, is a sure thing to turn more despairing Vietnamese toward Marxism than will ever be won by the Vietcong — if she is allowed to continue in power.

This evil woman, who has long despised the United States more than she ever hated communism, cynically revealed herself for the heartless creature she is in an interview in which she said she would clap her hands if the Buddhist opposition would burn 30 women. She boasted that she would beat "10 times more" the Buddhist priests who have been protesting the treatment accorded the Buddhist majority in Vietnam.

The most feared individual in her country, she made a callous boast of naked power when she declared, "I am not a woman of intrigue. People of intrigue are people without means, but I have plenty of means."

Indeed she has "plenty of means" and no scruple in using it. She has been using it in a rear-guard action against the United States and its representatives, including the armed forces, ever since this country committed its prestige to the defense of South Vietnam.

She has used every sort of harassment against American personnel even issuing, in the interest of "morality", petty ukases that prohibit Americans stationed in Vietnam from dancing in their own homes.

No tactic against American personnel in her country has been too small or mean. And even as American lives are being lost to save South Vietnam from a Communist take-over and our money is poured in like water, Mme. Nhu continues to denounce this country and its representatives.

Only last week Mme. Nhu inveighed against America as a blackmailer. She screamed that the United States Embassy had "threatened and blackmailed" HER government in an effort to "shut me up."

Even now there are strong suspicions both in and outside South Vietnam that Mme. Nhu and her husband, Ngo Dihn Nhu, brother of Vietnam President Diem, are plotting a fascist coup to take over the government from weakling Diem, whom she has ruled for months.

Hers would be a strong-armed regime in which the Buddhists, who comprise 70 percent of the population, could expect neither mercy nor fairness. She has already expressed herself on how the Buddhits opposition should be treated.

This is not a fight between Catholocism, which the Ngo family represents, and Buddhism. To interpret the present unrest in Vietnam as a religious struggle is to misunderstand completely the true situation and to play into Mme. Nhu's hands.

The struggle is between the feudal rule and overlordship of the powerful Ngo family, into which Mme. Nhu married and which she now bosses with all the finesse of a Jimmy Hoffa.

It is a power struggle, pure and simple, to preserve not a democractic but a feudal rule. Since his coronation Pope Paul VI has twice issued veiled but plain warnings to the Nhu regime to treat the Buddhists as brothers and resolve fairly the grievances of the weak majority against the strong minority

Mme. Nhu's ruthless reply to both the Pope's injunctions and to other attempts to adjudicate fairly the internal struggle in South Vietnam was her boastful and vengeful press interview.

After all these years, it would seem that the United States would have learned the futility of fighting communism through dictatorial regimes such as that of Mme. Nhu-cum-President Diem. Wherever we have backed dictators, whether in Latin America or in Asia, we have only increased the restlessness of the oppressed population and hastened its turn toward the left.

This is a self-defeating exercise. Not only self-defeating, but a shocking sacrifice of American lives and funds.

The United States will not win in South Vietnam and we will not vanquish the specter of communism there by supporting Mme. Nhu and the puppets through whom she rules. We will only antagonize the people she oppresses.

How much longer are we going to allow ourselves to be saddled with this witch beside whom Eva Peron would appear almost saintly?

QUESTION: How can living plants come from dead earth?

ANSWER: In our picture, Betty is asking herself this question, too—it seems hard to believe that the wonderful colors and delicate shapes of the wild flowers could have come from dark, muddy earth. Yet there's a point here that Betty, and our questioner, have missed. The dark earth didn't just throw up that green grass and those brilliant flowers.

What happened was that seeds from other plants settled down on the earth—either dropped there, or deliberately placed there, or, very often, blown there through the air. The earth provides the things the seeds need to turn into plants. First of all is moisture. This makes the seed swell; it bursts its coat and the embryo inside begins to grow. Then, throughout the life of the plant, the earth contributes vital substances and materials such as nitrogen. The plant takes air, moisture and these minerals from the earth and turns them into food through the action of its green leaves. So, one plant comes from another, using moisture, air and earth in the process. Where did the first plant come from? No one knows the answer to that, as yet.

• • •

FOR YOU TO DO: This is a good time of year to study the miraculous world of seeds. Find some seeds which have wings; some which have parachutes; some which pop from plants, and some which "hitchhike."

Here's New Lesson In Double Talk

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — It's time again to brush up on our conversational skill with another lesson in double talk.

Double talk, you will recall, is one of the highest art forms of modern civilization.

It is the ability to say one thing clearly and convincingly—while actually you are thinking just the opposite.

Anyone today who says exactly what he means, and means exactly what he says, is hopelessly neanderthal or wildly eccentric.

To get along with the other fellow, you tell him what he wants to hear — and keep your honest opinions to yourself.

Truth is for polar bears; people can't stand the strain of it. They prefer the illusion of truth.

For those who haven't learned how to play the game, here are a few examples of double talk—followed, parenthetically, by literal translations:—

"It's a lovely roast, but I think I've had plenty." (Cut me another piece, stupid, or are you trying to save it all for the dog?)

"Oh, here comes the waiter now with the bill. Shall we go dutch, Mabel?" (Pick up the check, you henna-haired Midas. You know I bought lunch the last time).

"Yep, reverend, that was a real inspirational sermon. I got a lot out of it." (What the devil was he mumbling about, anyway?)

'What a cute kid! He's a spitting image of you, Bill." (What do you call him—'slobbering Willie'?)

"It's not just the money, boss, I feel I deserve a raise as a matter of principle." (It's the money).

Gee, Hortense, I could just sit and look at you all evening." "(But how about a little action, baby? I'm slowly falling alseep.)

"I think a little extra weight on a man makes him look more attractive." (But not when he already looks like a walrus.)

Spahn Wins, Sets Strikeout Record

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was all very simple. No bugles blaring, bombs bursting, or lightning flashing.

Hawk-nosed old Warren Spahn simply cranked up his 42-year-old arm and threw a third strike past Bob Miller of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Hardly unusual. Old Spahnie had done that sort of thing only 2,381 times before. Later he raised his record to 2,383.

But this was the one that put him in the record book. It broke Rube Waddell's 53-year record of 2,381 strikeouts by a left-hander and brought the Milwaukee marvel one of the few pitching records still eluding him.

"You always think about records being set with a big, dramatic act," Spahn said Tuesday night. "But in the seventh Miller just stood there and took the third strike, and that's all there was to it.

Spahn finished with five strikeouts in the 4-3 victory over the Dodgers for a career total of 2,383. The victory was his third without loss this season against Los Angeles, his 14th over-all, and 341st of his career.

The Dodgers, however, maintained their four-game National League lead when the second-place San Francisco Giants were stopped 4-0 on two hits by Cincinnati's Jim Maloney.

St. Louis closed to within five games of the leaders and one of the Giants by beating Houston 4-2 in the only other National League game played. Pittsburgh at New York was rained out, and Philadelphia and Chicago were not scheduled.

In the American League, the leading New York Yankees were rained out in Boston. Chicago shut out Cleveland 3-0, Baltimore beat Minnesota 6-1, Kansas City edged Detroit 4-2 and Los Angeles broke a seven-game losing string 4-3 against Washington.

Spahn's victory, in his first start since he was sidelined with arm trouble July 29, was particularly gratifying. It came at the expense of the only club which has an edge against him. He went into the game with a career record of 21-34 against the Dodgers and had to work hard to pull it out.

The Dodgers pulled into a 3-3 tie with a run in the sixth, but Denis Menke's sacrifice fly drove in Hank Aaron with the tie-breaker for the Braves in the eighth.

Maloney, a 6-foot-2 right-hander allowed only singles to Felipe Alou and Harvey Kuenn, struck out seven Giants and walked only one in posting his 18th victory of the season for Cincinnati. He got all the backing he needed on two-run homers by Frank Robinson and Vada Pinson.

Baltimore Coach Starts Off Right

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Don Shula, the new coach of the Baltimore Colts, got the job because Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the club, said he wanted to "give the game back to the football players."

Rosenbloom is enthusiastic about the progress made by Shula in his first head coaching job. In their first pre-season game, the Colts defeated Philadelphia 26-21. They play the Cleveland Browns Saturday night in the second half of a doubleheader at Cleveland.

"Team spirit is vitally important in any game, especially in pro football," said Rosenbloom. "It is important that all the players want to play for the coach."

Rosenbloom, who fired Weeb Ewbank last winter after the end of the National Football League season and hired Shula to replace him, had only the best to say for Ewbank, now coach of the New York Jets in the rival American Football League.

"Weeb believes that the coach is supreme," he said. "I wanted to set up committees of the players to handle fines for any infractions," said Rosenbloom.

"Weeb didn't think that was the way to handle it.

"People said that we got rid of Weeb because he used Lenney Moore as an inside runner. That wasn't the case at all. I don't think Weeb was wrong in doing that. Shula is doing it too. I think Don expects to let Lenney run the option play more than Weeb did.

"In fairness to Weeb, I do think we would have done better last year if it had not been for injuries. Remember, we lost Moore for six weeks. Weeb is a good fundamentalist. Sometimes he is a little stubborn. We still are good friends."

Rosenbloom said he had been impressed by Shula since his days as a defensive halfback with the Colts.

"Don never was a great player, just average," he said. "He always was taking pictures, talking football. He always had wanted to coach. From us he went down to Virginia as an assistant and then Kentucky. He did a great job as defensive coach at Detroit the last three years. I feel strongly that he is going to be great. He's only 33. Some of the players are older than that."

Rosenbloom said the Colts' rookie crop of John Mackey of Syracuse, Bob Vogel of Ohio State, Fred Miller of LSU, George Wilson of Alabama, Willie Richardson of Jackson State and Jim Maples of Baylor has shown to advantage. Mackey or Wilson will wind up as regular tight end, Vogel at offensive tackle, Miller at defensive tackle and Richardson at defensive back or flanker. Maples is a linebacker.

The Colts came up with a new field goal kicker who has shunted Dick Bielski out of that job. He is Grady Wade, a free agent from Vanderbuilt who booted one 49 yards against the Eagles.

Indoor Championships Set For Next Year

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Three regional NCAA indoor track and field championships will be staged in February 1964, says the executive committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, and a national championship will begin in 1965.

The committee wound up a two-day meeting in San Francisco Tuesday by selecting Louisville, Ky., Portland, Ore., and Lubbock, Tex., as sites for the regional meets on Feb. 28-29.

Texas League Race Tighter Than Ever

By The Associated Press

Front running San Antonio checked its slide but second place Austin made it four losses in a row Tuesday night, and the Texas League race was tighter than ever.

From fourth to second the difference is only two games.

San Antonio increased its margin to 2½ games by beating El Paso 4-2 as Ray Cordiero southpawed a four-hitter. The loss dropped El Paso back to fourth since Tulsa beat Austin 3-1. The Oilers pulled into third place.

Dick Dietz of El Paso clouted his 33rd homer of the season.

Larry Jaster retired seven men in order to pull Gordon Richardson through as Tulsa beat Austin. The Oilers scored two runs in the first inning on Jim Beauchamp's double.

Albuquerque still is 4½ games out of fourth place and the Dukes don't plan to let cellar dwelling Amarillo overtake them. Albuquerque beat Amarillo 4-2 as Jim Ward pitched a three-hitter. Its bulge over Amarillo now is 10 games.

A second game at Albuquerque was called at the top of the second inning without a score because of rain.

Amarillo and Albuquerque will try to play a twin bill again Wednesday night. San Antonio is at El Paso and Tulsa at Austin.

Favorites Rule In Junior Girls Golf

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Pre-tournament favorites continued to rule as the top choices today for the U.S. Golf Association's National junior girls championship.

Rain splattered the 6,002-yard, par 72 course during the first round of match play Tuesday. In addition, one of the pre-tourney favorites, Janis Ferraris of San Francisco, was hobbled slightly by an injury to her left leg suffered at a swimming party Monday night. Still she was a 1-up victor over Sandra Paine of West Orange, N.J.

Jeanie Butler of Harlingen, Tex., was matched with Sherry Taylor of Oklahoma City in today's pairings.

Williams KO's Barrow For 47th Knockout

HOUSTON (AP)— Third-ranked heavyweight Cleveland Williams scored his 47th knockout as he demolished Kirk Barrow in the third round of their scheduled 10-rounder Tuesday night.

Williams shook off the Spokane, Wash., challenger's left hook and threw a lightning right cross. Barrow went down.

The end came at 2:15 of the round. It went as a technical knockout because Barrow, after two staggering tries, finally succeeded in getting his legs under him at the count of nine. A handler jumped into the ring as he rose.

Barrow was outweighed 214 to 190 and a foot shorter in reach.

Gulf Coast Regional Pony Title Game Set

KINGSVILLE (AP) — Groves, Tex., and Monterrey, Mexico, will clash tonight for the Gulf Coast regional Pony League title.

Houston To Clash With Patriots

By The Associated Press

It's only an exhibition game and doesn't count in the standings but the clash of the Houston Oilers and Boston Patriots at Lowell, Mass., tonight definitely won't be a ho-hum affair.

The Oilers and Patriots finished one-two in the Eastern Division of the American Football League last season but so far haven't looked like contending teams. Both hope to improve tonight.

In addition, the Patriots recall the last time they meet the Oilers in 1962 their veteran star quarterback, Babe Parilli, was knocked out of commission with a fractured collarbone. Houston wound up with an 11-3-1 record to Boston's 9-4-1.

Each team has had two exhibitions so far. Houston was upset 27-14 by Denver and then whipped the New York Jets 17-0.

Boston's weakness in the secondary was glaring in a 24-17 defeat by the surprising Oakland Raiders and a 50-17 shellacking by the healthy and beefed-up San Diego Chargers.

Texas PGA Tourney Set For Thursday

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP)— The Oso Beach muny golf course, where the Texas PGA will be played, is expected to take a terrific pounding—provided the winds are not too capricious.

It is only 5,850 yards long and par is 70.

In a pro-sponsor tournament Willard Wood of Bryan shot a 6-under-par 64 for low pro honors Tuesday.

Defending champion Tommy Burke of Corpus Christi shot a 65 as did Bert Weaver, who makes the PGA tour. Former Champions Bobby Morris and Earl Stewart of Dallas posted 66s. There were plenty of 68s.

The field of 80-odd pros held a pro-amateur today and will start the 72-hole tournament Thursday.

Texas Favored Over Oklahoma In Oil Bowl

WICHITA FALLS (AP)—A massive line that outweighs the opposition about 10 pounds to the man, a strong defense and a tough running attack have made Texas the favorite in Friday night's Oil Bowl football game with Oklahoma.

Mike Jordan of Denison, who ran for 1,442 yards and 126 points last fall, heads the Texas ground attack. Billy Bob Stewart of Prairie and Rusty Workman of Arlington are considered tops as linebackers.

Oklahoma will pin its hopes on passer Ken Stockdale of Ardmore, who completed 233 throws in two seasons.

The 2-man squads went through two workouts today.

Georgia Officials To Take Stand

By DON MCKEE

ATLANTA (AP)—University of Georgia officials were prepared to take the witness stand today in Curtis Publishing Co.'s defense against a $10-million libel suit filed by Wally Butts, former Georgia athletic director.

Attorneys for Butts said they would rest their case today in the wake of testimony Tuesday contradicting the publishing firm's key witness in its football-fix charges against Butts.

Dr. O. C. Aderhold, university president, and members of the athletic board were under subpoena as rebuttal witnesses for Curtis.

The trial entered its eighth day after testimony from William C. Hartman Jr., who coached football at Georgia during Butts' 21-year tenure as head coach of the Bulldogs.

Hartman said he was at a Feb. 22 meeting of university officials who confronted Butts with the substance of an affidavit given by George P. Burnett, Atlanta insurance salesman.

Burnett has testified he accidentally was cut into a call last Sept. 13 and heard Butts giving data on Georgia's team to Alabama coach Paul (Bear) Bryant. The Curtis-owned Saturday Evening Post used Burnett's affidavit as the substance of an article charging that Butts and Bryant rigged the 1962 Georgia-Alabama game.

"His (Butts') remark was that he had talked with Bryant many times . . . but that it (the conversation) had been misconstrued," Hartman said.

Earlier, a former associate of Burnett, John Carmichael, testified that the notes were not the same that Burnett had immediately after replacing the telephone Sept. 13.

Hartman testified he did not consider the notes of any significance.

American League Rookie Has Big Day

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dave DeBusschere, 22, felt so tall today he probably could rebound against Wilt Chamberlain.

The reason for that wonderful feeling was a 3-0, six-hitter over the Cleveland Indians that gave the gangling Chicago White Sox rookie hurler his first complete game, his first shutout, and his first victory over an American League team other than the 10th-place Washington Senators.

A 6-foot-6, 225-pounder who made the basketball big league with the Detroit Pistons last winter, big Dave now has a 3-4 record for the season. The other two wins were over the Senators, so you couldn't fault the right-hander for feeling that he finally had made the baseball majors with the whitewash job over the first-division Indians Tuesday night.

The victory moved the runner-up White Sox within 8½ games of the league-leading New York Yankees, who were rained out at Boston, and 2 games in front of the Minnesota Twins who were trounced 6-1 by the fourth-place Baltimore Orioles. The Los Angeles Angels snapped a seven-game losing streak by edging the Senators 4-3, and the Kansas City Athletics beat the Detroit Tigers, 4-2.

In the National League, Warren Spahn, 42, took over the left-handed strikeout record with 2,383 in tumbling the league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3; the Cincinnati Reds blanked the San Francisco Giants 4-0; and the St. Louis Cardinals topped Houston's Colts, 4-2. Pittsburgh was rained out at New York in the other scheduled game.

DeBusschere paid off a chuck of his $70,000 bonus with a poised performance against the Indians at Chicago. He was in trouble only in the third inning when the Indians loaded the bases on singles by Tito Francona, John Romano and Al Luplow. He got Max Alvis to end the inning and set the Injuns down with two hits the rest of the way.

Steve Barber, the Orioles' speedball southpaw, boosted his record to 16-9 on a fine eight-hitter that advanced the club within half a game of the home Twins. Barber fanned nine and walked one. Harmon Killebrew spoiled the youngster's bid for his third shutout with an eighth-inning homer, his 27th.

The Angels went through the winger at Los Angeles in finally ending their losing spell. What proved to be the winning run came in the eighth on Billy Moran's double, relief pitcher Ron Kline's wild pitch, and Ed Sadowski's squeeze bunt.

In the top of the eighth the Senators had the Angels on the ropes, but two fine plays by shortstop Jim Fregosi helped sooth Mgr. Bill Rigney's sizzling stomach.

Singles by Dick Phillips and Chuck Hinton and Jim King's double scored one run. Paul Foytack replaced reliever Jack Spring.

Don Lock smashed a rising liner that was tagged hit until Fregosi leaped high and speared the ball. Don Zimmer, who hit his seventh homer in the first inning, was purposely walked to load the bases. Pinch-hitter Don Leppert then bounced to Fregosi, who started an inning-ending double play.

The Tigers, who have been fielding demons of late, tossed away the game at Kansas City. The A's got two runs and broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth on a wild throw by first baseman Norm Cash.

With men on first and second, Cash tried for a force at third on Wayne Causey's sacrifice bunt. He threw the ball away, and the two runners scored.

Reliever Ted Bowsfield received the victory for a 5-6 record. Starter Jim Bunning was pinned with his 12th defeat to eight victories. The Tigers outhit the winners, 11-5.

DALLAS (AP) — The Trinity University football team of 40 years ago and former coaches of the school once located at Waxahachie will hold a reunion here Aug. 18.

The occasion will be a meeting of the Dallas chapter of the Trinity Alumni Association.

Among former coaches to attend are J. H. Goodman of Lubbock, A. J. Robinson of Waxahachie, Logan Stollenwerck of Irving, Barry Holton of Dallas, Leland Wilkins of Lafayette, La., Alvah Boggs of Alamo, Bill James of Hunt and W. C. McElreath and Dale Morrison of San Antonio.

Lester Jordan of Dallas, former sports publicist at Trinity, said a survey of Trinity lettermen lettermen showed a 10-3 victory over Baylor, defending Southwest Conference champion, in 1925 was considered the school's greatest gridiron triumph.

Alonzo Stagg To Be 101 Friday

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP)—Amos Alonzo Stagg, the grand old man of football, will pass his 101st birthday Friday.

Though Stagg's senses are gradually failing as he lives in a Stockton convalescent home, he's still alert enough to recognize faces and remember his players, as Navy Coach Wayne Hardin learned Tuesday.

Hardin, who played for Stagg at then-College of The Pacific in 1947, visited the former Yale All-America before a civic birthday luncheon in Stagg's honor.

"I shook hands with him and he still recognized me," Hardin proudly told the luncheon audience. "He said to me, 'Wayne's a good boy,' and that's something I'll always treasure."

A year ago Stagg appeared at his 100th birthday celebration but this time he could not.

Stagg came to Stockton in 1933 to coach at COP after his mandatory retirement from the University of Chicago, where he coached for 41 years.

He retired from COP in 1947, helped his son at Susquehanna for six years, then returned to Pacific as advisory coach.

In 1960 he wrote Coach Larry Kentera: "It is with a deep feeling of regret that I will not be able to accept your invitation to come out for football practice this year. For the past 70 years I have been coach. At 98 years of age, it seems a good time to stop."

Cool Spell Spreads Out

By The Associated Press

Cool air covered broad sections from the north central region into the Northeast today. Fairly heavy rain was reported in sections of the Northeast and in parts of the South.

Two to three inches of rain doused areas in southeastern Alabama. Nearly two inches fell in a one-hour period in Bessemer, Ala., with some flash flooding reported in the city's business district. A funnel cloud was sighted southeast of Birmingham.

Rainfall measured up to two inches in parts of northeast Texas but mostly light rain was reported in the southeastern Rockies. Rain continued during the night and early morning in parts of Maine, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

Strong winds made the weather feel much cooler along the cold front which extended from northern New England southwestward to Texas. Temperatures were mostly in the 50s in the north central and northeast sections, with the 60s in central areas.

Possibility Of Two Upcoming Events Has Capital In Swirl

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington is in a slow swirl, psychologically and politically.

It waits for the massive civil rights demonstration Aug. 28, hoping that whole memorable day will go off peacefully.

Negotiations between railroads and unions are stalemated. Unless some way is found to stop it, there will be a railroad strike Aug. 29.

The arrival and departure of 100,000 or more demonstrators in one day, even if everything is peaceful, will be an unforgettable burden.

But to have the demonstration followed the next day by a rail strike would be piling climax on climax.

While the city waits, Congress, bumbling along at the slowest pace in years, continues to drag its feet and may be here until the end of the year.

The center of this quiet stage is occupied now, and will be for a couple of weeks, by Senate hearings on the limited nuclear test-ban treaty.

That treaty, once approved, could be a fiendish embarrassment to the Kennedy administration if the Russians then try tricks to American disadvantage.

If nothing goes wrong, it will be an asset to President Kennedy in seeking re-election. If it goes wrong it will be an issue in the 1964 campaign.

The administration, conscious of both possibilities, acknowledges risk but insist the treaty's advantage outweigh the disadvantges.

The two most likely Republican presidential candidates as of now—New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Arizona's Sen. Barry Goldwater — are conscious of the for and against possibilities too:

Both have provided themselves an "I told you so" if the treaty proves a dud.

The treaty has wide popular support, it seems sure to pass the Senate by a wide margin, and neither Rockefeller nor Goldwater has come out against it.

Rockefeller, in fact, has suggested it be approved but then he added a list warning of things to look out for.

But most of the things he warned about already had been discussed in one way or another by the administration.

For instance, he said this country should "pursue research and development in the vital area of antimissile defense."

He said that Sunday, Aug. 11. But on Aug. 1 at his news conference Kennedy said developing an antimissile missile is "beyond us and beyond the Soviets."

He was supported in this Tuesday by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

He said developing an antimissile system is something neither the United States nor Russia has solved. But he didn't say it was impossible.

And Tuesday Goldwater, who hasn't yet gone as far as Rockefeller in saying the treaty should be supported, added his warning.

He hammered on the antimissile business, too, saying he wants "iron-clad assurance" development in this field won't be inhibited by the treaty.

Goldwater is an Air Force Reserve major general.

McNamara told the committee: "I know of no one of my senior scientific advisers and no one on the Joint Chiefs of Staff who recommend against the treaty with safeguards."

Arguments about the treaty should provide the most excitement in Washington until the civil rights demonstration two weeks from today.

Opposing Trends On Money Market

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Money is getting tighter and short-term interest rates are rising. At the same time, Americans are increasing their installment debt to new heights and banks and other lenders are competing hard for new outlets for their cash on hand.

The opposing trends are alarming some on both sides of the credit fence. The debate over cheap money vs. dear—never entirely stilled—is due to break out loudly again.

The spurt in the cost of short-term borrowing is reflected in the rise this week in the U.S. Treasury's 91-day bills' yield to 3.335 per cent, highest since May 26, 1960.

The money managers had planned it that way. They recently raised from 3 per cent to 3.5 per cent the discount rate which member banks are charged to borrow from the Federal Reserve banks.

The aim is to put yields so high that idle dollars will stay in this country instead of flowing abroad to upset further our international payments, with resulting strain on the dollar and on our gold reserves.

Some feel the money managers are also convinced that credit has been too easy.

The conservatives cite the rise of installment credit outstanding to more than $50 billion, due largely to the near record sales of autos and increased purchasing of big ticket appliances on time.

They also note that some banks have been stretching the time in which auto loans can be repaid, and charge that some financial institutions have been lending money on mortgages where the credit risk was higher than they would have approved awhile back. Increased use of credit by stock speculators also is charged.

Conservative financial circles always shudder when credit standards are being relaxed.

But thoe who see economic growth as today's main goal, disagree.

They want even easier money. They argue that cheaper short-term money aids smaller businessmen in their day-to-day activities.

They contend that longer term borrowing must be easy and cheap if business is to expand and thus create new jobs for the unemployed, a sizable group that threatens to increase.

Easier money advocates also wants more homes built with financing readily available at terms that middle and lower income families can afford.

And the huge installment debt has been a bulwark of many consumer industries that otherwise would see their sales dwindle.

ABA Urges Support Of Integration

CHICAGO (AP)—The American Bar Association has urged the nation's lawyers to assist in better racial understanding by supporting and taking an active part in integration movements.

The ABA House of Delegates, 258-member policy making group, adopted by voice vote Tuesday a report of a special civil rights set up at the request of President Kennedy.

In a separate move, another group — the Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law—announced its official organization and immediate start of a legal battle against an injunction to maintain segregation in Clarksdale, Miss.

The LCCRUL was suggested by the President at a White House meeting July 21 as a means to erase racial tension by volunteer citizen action. It decided Tuesday to file nonprofit organization incorporation articles in Washington, D.C.

"Mass demonstrations must give way to mass determination that the races will live together in this country in mutual respect," the ABA report declared.

Current racial problems must be settled around the conference table, the report said, and not on the street.

Time Ebbs For Jimenez

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Time appeared to be running out today on Marcos Perez Jimenez, but the pudgy former Venezuelan dictator may not be taken back to his homeland until Friday.

The Venezuelan government claims Perez Jimenez embezzled more than $13 million while in office, and Secretary of State Dean Rusk has ruled he must return to stand trial.

Judge Robert H. Anderson of the Dade (Miami) County Circuit Court Tuesday dismissed a request to prevent Perez Jimenez from leaving until he put up $300,000 bond to provide for a child that blonde Ilona Marita Lorenz, 26, said she bore him.

Anderson then ordered the exdictator released from custody of the sheriff, but stayed the order so the Florida District Court of Appeals could review the paternity action.

The appeals court is on vacation and County Attorney Darrey Davis said the hearing probably would not be held before Friday.

Crystal City Has Stormy Council Meet

CRYSTAL CITY (AP) — A leader of a rival political faction was arrested on a charge of verbally abusing the Crystal City mayor after a stormy city council session Tuesday night.

"He called me an S.O.B.," Mayor Juan Cornejo said in ordering the arrest of Clarence Harper, an automobile dealer and secretary of the Citizens Association Serving All Americans.

Harper posted $400 bond. He refused to discuss what had happened. His organization opposes the Political Association of Spanish-speaking Organizations and the Teamsters Union, which are credited for electing the all-Latin city council here.

As about 60 angry spectators packed the city hall lobby, city councilman Mario Hernandez demanded a vote on a petition which in effect would call another municipal election in the fall. Hernandez and other council members have split since they were elected in April.

Cornejo moved to table the motion and city manager Georga Ozuna told Hernandez he was out of order.

"I'm the councilman — you're working for me," Hernandez retored.

The council session nevertheless was adjourned as Harper demanded to be heard.

Cornejo then ordered police chief Ray Perez to arrest Harper.

Harper went to the office of County Atty. Curtis Jackson. Texas Ranger Capt. A. Y. Allee and Perez followed. The police chief emerged half an hour later and said Harper had posted bond.

"I don't like this situation a bit," Perez said. "Someone may get killed here yet."

A moment before going to Jackson's office, Harper told several sheriff's deputies: "The people of Crystal City no longer have any rights. We are in the comrade camp."

Negro Area In Chicago Is Patrolled

CHICAGO (AP) — Police patrolled a South Side Negro area today after school integration pickets pelted police with bricks, stones and chunks of concrete in their demonstration against installation of mobile classrooms.

Four policemen and one woman were hit. One officer, struck on the forehead with a piece of concrete, was reported in fair condition in a hospital.

Task force commander Robert J. Lynsky, head of the police force at the site where 19 mobile classrooms are to be installed, was hit by a flying brick. He was not injured.

"This is no longer a demonstration," Lynsky said. "It is approaching the dimensions of a riot. I will no longer tolerate these rabble rousers and brick throwers."

About 50 persons were arrested during Tuesday's demonstration, the second day in a row of violence at the school site. Nearly 50 others were arrested Monday. Most of the persons arrested are Negroes.

Integration leaders said the picketing will continue.

Demonstrators say the classrooms foster de facto segregation in Chicago's schools and that Negro and white children should share each school in Chicago.

The Board of Education says the mobile classrooms are planned for the picketed site and "they'll stay there."

Adoula Still Faces Massive Financial Problem In Congo

By ROBIN P. MANNOCK

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Premier Cyrille Adoula was in a financial jam when he went to Europe for economic talks. He has returned to find himself still between the devil and the deep blue sea.

The devil is the specter of national bankruptcy from runaway inflation and massive government over-spending. The alternative is a devaluation of the Congo franc. This is being urged on Adoula by international experts.

A long-standing problem became urgent three weeks ago. The United States, the Congo's main source of aid, suspended two important items of aid in July in an attempt to force through reforms.

These items were money to finance the import of consumer goods to fill yawning gaps on the shelves of Congo shops and money for public works projects. Last year these accounted for nearly half the $73 million the United States poured into the Congo.

Experts say the current exchange rate of 65 Congo francs to the dollar is unrealistic. Some advocate a devaluation of up to 500 per cent for some imports. They say the present rate penalizes exporters, favors importers and encourages smuggling.

This is costing the Congo millions of dollars a year. Diamonds, coffee, tea, rubber, cotton and palm oil are being slipped across wide-open frontiers while customs men are bribed to look the other way.

Some importers have been smuggling out goods bought cheaply abroad with foreign exchange from the Congo's paper-thin reserves and selling them in neighboring countries where they fetch high prices in hard currency.

There has also been brisk illicit trafficking in surplus food donated by the United States to feed hungry Congolese. American officials here tear their hair at the sight of this food in Brazzaville, capital of the former French Congo.

This smuggling was one of the reasons for the cuts in aid, although shiploads of food are still arriving.

Most exerts are agreed that a devaluation, accompanied by other reforms, must come quickly if this drain on the Congo's economic strength is to be halted before the country bleeds to death.

Despite three troubled years, production of many export commodities is buoyant. In some cases it reaches the levels of the days when the Congo was a Belgian colony.

But government over-spending is likely to hit 17 billion Congo francs — about $260 million — this year, according to some experts. And internal prices have risen 300 per cent since 1960.

Informed sources said Belgium agreed in talks with Adoula to assume responsibility for almost half of the Congo's debt of 46 billion francs.

These sources said Belgium would take over the bulk of the foreign debt of 26 billion francs while the Congo would take charge of the rest.

Belgium also was reported to have agreed to hand over the Congo's portfolio of securities. The size of this portfolio is unknown, but it includes one-quarter of the shares of Katanga's giant Union Minieri copper and cobalt complex and the former Belgial Colony's holdings in other companies operating here.

An agreement also was reached on payment for the 2,100 Belgian teachers, doctors and technical advisers in the Congo. The sources said Belgium will pay two-thirds of their salaries.

Belgium may provide some of the short-term loans Adoula will need to bolster the Congo franc in the event of a devaluation. The United States had told Adoula it will not help unless Belgium is willing to help back the Congo franc, the best available sources say.

One expert estimated at least $50 million would have been necessary to prop up the Congo franc if devaluation had taken place July 15, the original D-day.

Estes Home Not Popular

PECOS, Tex. (AP)—The Billie Sol Estes home looks like a rank failure as a tourist attraction, the Pecos Daily News says.

Estes opened up his palatial home to tourists at $5 per carload and $20 for picture-taking last Saturday soon after he and his family moved to Abilene, Tex.

But the Daily News reported Tuesday night that only a trickle of visitors had been through the home, two miles from downtown Pecos.

"As far as we know," a reporter said, "nobody has taken advantage of the $20 price for taking pictures."

The Estes family left for Abilene after a cross was burned on the lawn and a shot fired into the house.

Estes is free on appeal bond after two fraud and swindling convictions.

Soviets Keep Mum During U. S. Debate

GENEVA (AP). — Diplomatic sources reported today Soviet Premier Khrushchev's government promised the United States last week not to exploit in any way the U.S. Senate debate over ratification of the limited nuclear test ban treaty.

They said that was why Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tesarapkin made no comment at disarmament talks here on U.S. Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara's claim that the United States is way ahead of the Soviet Union in nuclear power and the treaty would help keep it that way.

There has so far been no counter to McNamara's statement from Moscow either.

Delegates to the 17-nation disarmament conference agreed Monday to suspend debate on major issues, until the end of the year, but to keep up twice-weekly discussions of general subjects.

In today's session, the United State called on the Soviet Union to follow up the treaty with specific agreements to stop the nuclear armaments race and reduce the stock of fissionable material used to produce nuclear weapons.

Here's What Tax Plan Means To Individuals

EDITOR'S NOTE—The tax bill now being shaped by the House Ways and Means Committee is of bread-and-butter interest to every American who pays taxes. Although a long road to enactment lies ahead, the measure has advanced far enough to examine its dollars and cents meaning to you.

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP)—The tax bill is moving well enough along in Congress to have a look now at what it would do for you—or to you.

But before getting to the fine points, the big picture should be made crystal-clear: as things stand now, the measure would cut your tax payments.

True, the tax bill has a long way to go before it reaches President Kennedy's desk. The House Ways and Means Committee has lots of work still to do on the measure. Then it has to clear the House Rules Committee, face the full House and travel over to the Senate for another round of hearings and floor action. There it may run into a filibuster on civil rights.

This being understood, let's have a look at the tax bill as it stands now and see what it means to you if the measure in its present form wins approval.

If you pay any taxes at all, you'll be paying less. You would have to have a most peculiarly constructed income not to get some benefit from an across the board slash of tax rates, even though the package also includes some tax-raising features.

The Treasury puts the average rate cut, for taxpayers with taxable incomes through $60,000, at 15½ per cent. This picture is painted with a broad brush and applies to the rate changes when they would be complete, Jan. 1, 1965. Take it as a rough guide if you like—but no more than that. For 1964, figure two-thirds of the full saving.

However, in tax matters, everybody is a special case. How much benefit you would actually reap depends on a number of factors. Your income bracket, whether you receive dividends, whether you drive your automobile a lot, whether you buy and sell stocks, whether your income fluctuates widely from year to year — all these and more can be important.

Some guidelines can be plotted, subject to possible change. Among them are these, all applying to the complete revision planned for 1965 and subsequent years:

—If your income is either very high or very low, you would do better proportionately in the reductions than the man in the middle.

The Treasury says a typical taxpayer, if there is such a creature, married and with two children, earning $4,000, would save $100, about 41 per cent of his present tax bill.

His counterpart in the $10,000 class would save $202, or 16.9 per cent.

For taxable incomes above $100,000, the savings would rise sharply. The new top rate would be 70 per cent from $100,000 up. The present top goes to 91 per cent at $200,000.

—If you have been in the habit of itemizing your deductions and claiming the amount paid in state gasoline taxes, a bit of your benefits would be nibbled away. Local gasoline, liquor and tobacco taxes would no longer be deductible, although income, real estate and general sales taxes still would be.

—And if you dent old trusty's fender, you would not be able to claim the whole repair bill as a casualty loss, only the amount over $100 for each mishap to car or other property.

—If you have considerable income from dividends, one change the Treasury wants made would nick your over-all tax gain. This would be repeal of the 4 per cent tax credit, a considerable offset to the tax benefit of many higher-income taxpayers. There may be a compromise that would minimize the effect on smaller dividend recipients.

—But if you are thinking of selling some stocks, real estate, or other property you have held at least two years and on which there will be a profit, you're in luck. You would only have to include 40 per cent, instead of 50 per cent of such capital gains in your taxable income. And if you're in a high bracket, your top capital gains tax would be only 21 per cent, instead of 25.

—One or two cautions: if you are in the business of building or buying real estate, taking maximum depreciation and selling in a few years to take the most advantage of capital gains—you face stiffened rules. And if in the future you inherit property on which gains have accumulated, you would encounter somewhat tighter tax treatment.

—If you are an author who sells a book to the movies, or an actor who lands in a hit after a series of lean years, or for some other reason your income shoots up more than a third, catapulting you into a higher tax bracket—you would have relief. The new tax law would provide a way of taxing the extra income as though it were spread out over five years.

—On fringe benefits, the changes would have an uneven effect. If you get sick and your employer continues your pay, you would get a special deduction for it only after a month, instead of the present rule of a week.

—But if you have moving expenses in connection with a job, you may get a better break. The rules would be liberalized in some details.

—If your employer buys a big group life insurance policy for you, you might be taxed on part of the value of the premium as income. But you don't have to worry about this unless the employer's contribution alone buys more than $30,000 coverage for you.

—If you are an executive benefiting from a stock option plan, look for a tightening of the regulations: An important change would require you to hold option stock for at least three years if you want to enjoy the benefits of capital gains tax.

—If you are 65 or older, the new law would give you at least two specific benefits. Your purchase of medicines would be fully deductible, without regard to the present 1 per cent of income floor. And if you sold your home, you would get capital gains tax consideration on any increase in value, even if you did not buy a new house. There would be no tax on gains if the house sold for no more than $20,000, and there would be a reduced tax if it brought more.

Town Under Martial Law

BRAZZAVILLE, Congo Republic (AP)—Martial law preserved an uneasy calm in Brazzaville after a day of battle that may herald the formation of a revolutionary movement seeking to overthrow President Fulbert Youlou.

A 5 p.m.-to-5 a.m. curfew was enforced, and gatherings of more than three persons were forbidden.

Labor unionists, after launching a general strike, stormed the Brazzaville jail Tuesday, freed imprisoned labor union leaders and all other prisoners and set the building afire. They also sacked the city's television station.

Decrease Is Seen In Crude Demands

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission forecast Tuesday a drop in crude oil demand for September of 35,280 barrels daily.

September nominations are for 2,522,455 barrels daily. The Bureau of Mines forecast is 2,560,000 barrels daily, off 50,000 barrels daily from August.

The forecasts will be considered by the commission Thursday when it sets the September allowable.

Space Winds Hit Invisible Walls

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Imagine a hurricane wind smashing an invisible wall?

Space satellites are finding evidence that just such a collision occurs 40,000 miles from earth with dramatic effect, Dr. Louis A. Frank and Dr. James Van Allen of the State University of Iowa said today.

The wind is composed of atomic particles from the sun and smacks the walls of the earth's magnetic field at its outer limit.

The collision, Dr. Frank said, could explain why the shimmering northern lights turn on; why the earth has a long tail stretching out on its nightside; why radios sometimes black out; why some radiation hazards are for astronauts and, even how the outer Van Allen radiation belt is formed.

Frank, 24, read the joint report to a symposium summarizing the results of the International Geophysical Year in 1957-58, when space satellite exploration began. It was then that the first Van Allen radiation belt girdling the earth was detected.

Subsequent data from satellites, especially explorers 10, 11 and 12 and 14, and the Soviet's Mars 1, 2 and Lunik 2, have formed this picture for scientists:

The solar wind, composed of electrons and protons, runs into the outer limits of the earth's magnetosphere, the field of magnetic force surrounding the earth about 40,000 miles out.

A shock wave is created when the solar wind, traveling many thousands of miles per hour, strikes this magnetic field. The wind bounces back but much of it could flow on around, pushing the earth's magnetic field into a tail on the dark side of the earth.

In an amplifying interview, Frank said the evidence could explain a number of phenomena, including some that are witnessed on earth.

It could explain some of the solar wind particles reach earth to cause northern lights or produce storms high in the atmosphere that make radio communications fail.

Rites Held Tuesday For Sen. Kefauver

MADISONVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Estes Kefauver, a Tennessee Democrat who made his mark in the U.S. Senate and created a memorable campaign picture as the man in the coonskin cap, was buried Tuesday at the family home in east Tennessee.

As the mahogany casket was lowered, a downpour swept over the crowd of mourners, among them Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and Adlai E. Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Kefauver, 60, died last week after a heart attack.

His widow, Nancy, forced a smile occasionally during the simple service on the porch of the century-old home. Their son and three daughters sat with her.

An Air Force honor guard bore the coffin, draped with the flag, to the grave.

Many of Kefauver's colleagues in the Senate, where he crusaded against crime and monopoly, were present along with the Tennessee congressional delegation and Gov. Frank S. Clement.

Business establishments of his hometown, population 1,800, were closed in tribute. A state trooper estimated the crowd in town at 5,000 to 10,000.

Kefauver sought the Democratic presidential nomination in 1952 and 1956, losing both times to Stevenson. He was Stevenson's running mate in 1956.

3 Wounded By Gunman

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A berserk gunman fended off policemen with wild blasts from a shotgun for more than two hours Tuesday night, wounding three persons before he was flushed from his home by tear gas and captured.

Armand A. Borgese, 29, a Pittsburgh fireman, repeatedly fired from the windows as policemen ringed his North Side home, crouching behind patrol cars and other objects for cover.

Pellets from Borgese's gun wounded a patrolman and two bystanders, none seriously. A shot in the direction of police Supt. James W. Slusser finally triggered his capture.

Slusser and another officer were at the home of Borgese's father, next door, when a shotgun blast shattered window glass near their heads. Slusser returned a carbine shot that wounded Borgese in the foot, and police let go with two volleys of tear gas.

As the stinging fumes filtered through the house, Borgese walked outside, still carrying the weapon.

"No shooting! no shooting!" police cried.

Lurking behind a car was patrolman Robert Everett and his police dog. The dog lunged at Borgese, and Everett moved in, wresting the husky fireman to the ground.

Borgese was taken to St. John's General Hospital, where he was reported in fair condition.

The hectic night for police began as a routine assignment to investigate a domestic disturbance.

THIS POSE WAS OKAY — Green - eyed Anna Luisa Rispoli, representing Italy in this year's Miss International Beauty contest, didn't mind this playful pose with a "wolf" at Disneyland, but later she rebelled when a magazine photographer asked the 87 contestants to pose lying on the floor of the Long Beach, Calif., auditorium — in their formal gowns. Fifteen other beauties sided with her, but the rest dutifully complied. (AP Wirephoto)

'Operation Tips' To Provide Information About Industry

By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN (AP)—In mid-September the Texas Industrial Commission will begin teaching, city by city, how to attract industry.

The commission, assigned the task of bringing industry to the state and helping local businessmen present a better sales talk to out-of-state interests, call its new program "Operation Tips," a shorter name for Texas Industrial Planning Seminar.

Using roundtable-type discussions, commission personnel will sit down with city leaders from two communities each month for a full day of talk on local problems relating to industry.

Irving has the first appointment Sept. 19. Bill Shelton, assistant executive director of the commission, says two busloads of residents are expected.

"There will be no lecturing," he said. "We hope to sit down and talk with local leaders, making available to them our experience and knowledge."

"By bringing local leaders to Austin we will be free of interruptions and will have more time to talk than when we attempt to visit them in their communities."

Shelton said the commission will submit by mail items that the various communities may wish to discuss.

"For instance," he said, "If a community has water problems, it will check that item and we will bring in authorities in that field to talk with the city's leaders when they come to Austin. We hope to employ any state agency or official that might be helpful to local communities, including the governor.

"In fact, the governor is very enthusiastic about the program and was instrumental in getting it started."

Shelton said that although the commission had considered such a program for several months, it was not until last week that a meeting was held with Gov. John Connally to work out final plans.

A six-month schedule of meeting has been drafted, Shelton said, but available dates have not yet been mailed out.

He said Irving already was scheduled only because it heard about the program unofficially and asked for the first appointment.

Meeting dates are Oct. 18-25, Nov. 8-15, Dec. 6-13, Jan. 10-24, Feb. 7-21 and March 6-20. Others will be set later.

Bathyscaphe Tries Again

BOSTON (AP) — The bathyscaphe Trieste returns today for a second try at finding the nuclear submarine Thresher, this time with help from brightly painted discs planted on the ocean floor.

Trieste will be towed to the search area 220 miles east of Boston. The trip takes four days.

Thresher disappeared April 10 while on a test dive with 129 men aboard.

Painted and numbered discs were planted in a pattern around what is believed to be the grave of the Thresher, 8,400 feet below the surface.

The Navy said 1,441 discs, each weighted to secure it to the bottom are intended to provide more precise data on the bathyscaphe's position as she crawls along the bottom.

Only 109 meteorites have been discovered in Australia. Six times that many are known in the United States.

Search For Trio Held Up

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP)—Rescuers waited today for ventilation to clear deadly gasses before resuming the search for three miners trapped and presumed dead 380 to 450 feet below ground.

Trapped in the Fellin Coal Co. mine near Sheppton, about 15 miles from Hazleton Tuesday, were Louis Bova, 42, Pattersonville; David Fellin, 58, Sheppton, and Henry Throne, 48, Hazleton. The slope where they were working was filled with tons of coal and rock.

Mine officials indicated there were no hope the men survived.

H. B. Charmbury, state secretary of mines, suspended rescue attempts after workers were forced back by deadly gas and passages blocked by rock, coal and debris. Charmbury ordered the walls shored to prevent another cave-in.

Texas Beauty Wins Title

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The new Miss American Photogenic is a Wichita Falls beauty, Barbara Ellen Baker, 18, who won the title Tuesday night at the opening of a four-day beauty contest.

The green-eyed dazzler, drawing the press photographers' lenses to her from the time she arrived Aug. 8, was one of 41 U.S. entrants vying for the title of Miss American Beauty.

The 15 finalists for the honor selected Tuesday night face further judging to pick the top winner tonight.

Miss Baker, who is 36-22-36, is a Wichita Falls secretary.

Nuclear Test Solves Van Allen Belt Mystery

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP)—The nuclear bomb which the United States detonated above the Pacific last year helped scientists determine the path and rate of decay of high-energy electrons, thus solving a major mystery of the Van Allen radiation belt.

This was reported to a satellite conference today by Wilmont N. Hess of the Goddard Space Flight Center.

"While the nuclear explosion shortened the lives of some satellites and increased the intensity of radiation around the globe, it had a valuable side effect," he said.

"To students of the Van Allen belt, it was almost like having a controlled experiment in space."

Before the explosion, said Hess, scientists could only guess at the travel pattern and life of high-energy particles throughout the belt. Now, these facts are known with reasonable accuracy to a distance of 5,000 miles.

The information has led to better understanding of the Van Allen belt, a zone of trapped radiation which extends from 400 to 40,000 miles above the earth. It will help in the design, engineering, and equipping of spacecraft, Hess said.

The artificial band of radiation created by the 1.4-megaton hydrogen detonation released electrons which merged with the lower level of the Van Allen belt.

Hess said satellite instruments readily distinguished the blast-created electrons from natural radiation.

"There was a very rapid decay immediately of the highest-energy particles," he said. "About one-half of the artificial radiation disappeared in the first year. Now the decay rate of the lower-energy particles is smoother and slower, and the amount of artificial radiation is being reduced by about one-half its amount each year."

Hess said the loss rate should increase as radiation layers on the sun increase toward a period of maximum solar activity in two years. He said the maximum period may wipe out the man-made radiation.

Hess said the high-altitude explosion provided data on the inner zone of the Van Allen belt, but that electron movement and life in the less dense outer zone still is not known. H said a plan is being studied to shoot a piece of radioactive copper 16,000 miles high, to release positron energy particles.

Positrons could be readily investigated by satellites, Hess said. He reported that positrons act almost like electrons and would not contaminate space.

AEC Head Backs Plea For Test Ban Treaty Approval

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, testified today that underground testing will permit a wide range of nuclear weapons development, including warheads for antimissile defense.

As the third witness at Senate hearings, Seaborg strongly backed earlier testimony from Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara that ratification of the limited test ban treaty would be in the best interests of the United States.

The treaty would prohibit nuclear testing in the atmosphere, in outer space, and under water, but it would not bar continued testing underground.

One of the questions some senators have raised is whether the treaty would seriously handicap U.S. development of missile defenses.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., asked Seaborg whether he was confident an antimissile missile program can be developed without further atmospheric testing.

Seaborg, a Nobel-prize winning scientist, replied:

"Yes, I do. The AEC is responsible for the development of the warhead for the missile. This can be done. We already have a number of warheads eligible for that purpose and can develop a new warhead by underground testing."

Seaborg said "it appears technically feasible to test underground up to several hundred kilotons and perhaps, with more experience and greater ingenuity, to even higher levels."

"This would permit a wide range of development including complete development and proof-test of warheads for battlefield, air defense, antimissile, and antisubmarine use."

He also said that "promising applications of nuclear explosives for peaceful purposes will be developed and demonstrated under the treaty."

"At such times as the benefits have been demonstrated," he added, "the parties may wish to modify the treaty to permit extension of the technology and benefits to all."

The Foreign Relations group, with members of the Armed Services and Senate-House Atomic Energy Committees sitting in, is holding hearings on the treaty to prohibit testing in the atmosphere, underwater, and in outer space, but not underground. Senate ratification requires a two-thirds majority.

While McNamara conceded that atmospheric testing of a complete antimissile system would not be possible under the treaty, he insisted that kind of testing would "not be necessary to reach a decision on whether or not we should deploy the system."

"We have tested the design of the warhead to the extent that we know it will work," he said.

McNamara said the Russians' high-yield nuclear tests in the atmosphere in 1961 advanced their understanding of such a system, but he added he didn't believe the Soviet Union has developed a workable system. Nor, he said, has the United States.

While Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., raised the issue in questioning McNamara, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said in a statement that President Kennedy has "seemingly sentenced to death" the development of such a system by saying the project is "beyond us."

Goldwater said he wanted ironclad assurance that antimissile development will not be inhibited by the treaty or the President's personal pessimism."

McNamara testified that an effective defense against missiles can be developed without further atmospheric testing.

The core of his testimony was a contention that the United States has nuclear warheads "in the tens of thousands", and that the treaty would help preserve a U.S. lead over the Soviet Union.

He gave his "unequivocal support" to ratification and sought to assure the Senate of U.S. determination to maintain a nuclear force he called "manifestly superior to the Soviet Union's."

Under questioning by Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, McNamara said he believed all his military advisers, including the Joint Chiefs of Staff, consider the treaty, with its safeguards, "compatible with the security of the United States."

The Senate preparedness subcommittee, headed by Stennis, sounds out Gen. Maxwell bd. taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs, in closed session today.

Taylor's testimony, like that of physicist Edward Teller, an avowed opponent of the treaty who appeared before the subcommittee Monday, will be made public after security deletions.

"I know of no one of my senior scientific advisers, and no one on the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who recommend against support of ratification of this treaty with safeguards," McNamara testified.

He said the safeguards were provided by underground testing, plans to prepare for quick resumption of atmosphere tests if the Soviet Union abrogates the treaty, full operation of weapons laboratories, and strong inspection and detection systems.

Scurry County Area Gets Welcome Rains

Welcome rains, the first in some two months, dampened Scurry County late Tuesday and early today.

The big end of the moisture apparently was concentrated in the south half of the county, although beneficial showers were reported in most areas.

Heaviest rainfall report came from Lake J. B. Thomas, where two inches was measured at the Snyder pump station near the dam.

Ira had a total of 1.2 inches, with most of it falling Tuesday afternoon and the remainder, about .15, this morning. The Pat Moore place south of Ira had a total of 1.7.

Hermleigh had good showers, with about an inch reported Tuesday afternoon and .3 more this morning.

At Dunn, 1.5 inches of rainfall was reported at the E. J. Goodlett place.

Snyder had a total of .37 inches in the official gauge at the city water plant. However, heavier showers were reported to the south.

The official gauge at the Wayne Williams place at Polar logged .29 inch, although some reports of showers up to .75 inches were reported in that general area.

Fluvanna had only .20 inch, the lightest report received this morning.

The heavier rains at Lake Thomas apparently were confined to the immediate lake area. There was little or no runoff reported into the lake this morning.

Many other areas of the state had heavy downpours as a cool front pushed toward South Texas.

As much as 4 inches of rain drenched part of Fort Worth and up to 3.21 inches in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas within an hour during violent electrical displays.

Lightning struck Andy Aliaz, 5, at Hurst, a Fort Worth suburb. Although the bolt melted metal zippers in his clothing, he apparently did not suffer serious injury.

Cooling rains started Tuesday morning in the Panhandle-Plains sector of West Texas and slowly pushed deeper into the state. It stayed hot and dry in South Texas areas not touched by the mild cool front.

Gauges caught 3.30 inches of rain at Claude, southeast of Amarillo, and 3 inches at Colorado City. Farmers and stockmen greeted a 3.20-inch fall in the Big Spring vicinity as "a million dollar rain."

The moisture, first at Big Spring since June 20, sent the temperature diving from 93 degrees to 70 in 90 minutes.

Cleburne underwent winds up to 50 miles an hour but received only .20 inch of rain. At Alvarado, a 2.40-inch downpour damaged several tents of a carnival.

Other rain totals over the state included Joshua 3, Burleson 1.84, Dalhart 1.18, Amarillo .47, Lubbock .11, Alpine .28, Waco .98, Abilene .34, Mineral Wells 1.70, Big Spring 1.03, Weatherford .93, Corsicana .96, Cresson 2.51, Ennis .65, Tyler .41, Longview .55, Childress .28, Killeen .23, Crandall 1.21.

Part of the Polk Street Baptist Church auditorium being built in Dallas collapsed during the storm. Power and telephone lines took a beating and a few streets and underpasses were flooded briefly.

There also were heavy electrical storms at Abilene, where one home was damaged, and at Eastland. Merkel, west of Abilene, received 1.75 inches of rain and Eastland 1.55.

Showers and occasional thunderstorms continued until nearly daylight Wednesday in a 25-mile wide belt from Midland eastward to San Angelo, Waco, Longview, Tyler, Palestine and Shreveport, La.

Forecasts called for diminishing and widely scattered showers in most sections of Texas through Thurday. Cooler air was expected to spread deeper into East and Central Texas but no heat relief was in prospect for coastal areas.

Austin's high of 103 degrees was the highest temperature in the state Tuesday afternoon.

Student Loses Both Hands In Explosion

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—A college student from San Antonio lost both hands today in the premature explosion of a homemade bomb.

Eddie Ralph Mustain, 22, was in critical condition. He is a student at Southwest Texas State College in San Marcos.

Roger Passant, 19, was cut and received a possible chest injury when the iron pipe bomb exploded in a park in southeast San Antonio.

William Klein, 25, one of three other young men watching, said Mustain made the bomb as an experiment. He said Mustain tried to throw the bomb away before it exploded but failed.

Drug Makers Must Prove Their Claims

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Food and Drug Administration has ordered drug manufacturers to prove their claims for antibiotics in a wide variety of compounds such as throat lozenges, nose drops and sprays, which generally can be bought without prescription.

The FDA set a deadline of Sept. 6 in the order published in the Federal Register of July 23. A spokesman for the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Assn. said today many companies cannot comply by that date.

The spokesman expressed the opinion the companies probably cannot devise tests to prove the effectiveness of the drugs, as required, "let alone carry them out." He said he had no definite figures on the sales value of affected products, but doubtless it is well over $1 million a year.

FDA acted under authority contained in the 1962 amendments to the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act which allows it to require proof of both efficacy and safety of drugs.

The agency has not questioned the safety of the antibiotics, of which about 30 of the lesser used ones are affected. But it said labeling claims on effectiveness of the products are not suppoted by available medical data.

'Rainmaker' May Not Be Needed Now

SAN ANGELO (AP)—Mother Nature supplied San Angelo with two inches of rain today and may have knocked a mysterious rainmaker of Tulsa, Okla., out of a job.

The Weather Bureau gauged an inch of rain, but various areas of the city reported up to two inches of badly needed moisture.

Good rains also fell on important San Angelo watersheds. The Middle Concho River, which runs into San Angelo's new Three Rivers reservoir, was running 4 to 5 feet after good overnight rains.

The Bob Johnson ranch, 40 miles west of San Angelo, measured 4.70 inches in two days. Other area rainfall includes: Sterling City 1.50 inches, Garden City 3, Winters 2.70, Water Valley 2.50, and Stiles 1.93.

The Jack Herring ranch near Norton in Runnels County reported 3.50 inches.

The North Concho River also [illegible] inches of rain over its watershed.

Meanwhile, the seven-man San Angelo Weather Information Center, Inc., has scheduled a meeting today to decide its future course in view of today's rains.

The group has been dickering with the Tulsa rainmaker, and has pledges of $7,000 in a $10,000 fund-raising drive to get the rainmaker to San Angelo to try and break the area's costly drought.

Top School Budget Set

The Snyder school board last night gave their approval to the largest budget in the consolidated school district's history.

The revised estimate of cost for running the schools for the 1963-64 school year was fixed at $3,005,844, with $2,308,882 to be spent for actual operation of the schools, and the balance to be used for repayment of bonds and interest.

Only one visitor attended the budget hearing. He was R. E. McBride, tax specialist for the Standard of Texas Oil Company.

McBride was questioned at length by school board members concerning the procedures used in getting values on oil properties for tax purposes. A reduction of some $350,000 had been made by the tax consultants employed by the school board.

Because of the reduction in values, a small increase in rate of taxation to $1.97 per $100 valuation was needed, and was voted by the board. Total valuations of county properties for school tax purposes now stand at $130,850,000.

In other action the school board approved the resignations of four teachers and the hiring of eight new teachers. Superintendent of schools T. E. McCollum reported that the schools now were at full faculty strength.

Resignations accepted were Miss Etta Sue Simpson, homemaking teacher at Travis; Mrs. Donna Davison, who was to have taught biology at high school; Mrs. Virginia Lewis, third grade at Lincoln; and Mrs. Shirley Stanfield, seventh grade at Lincoln.

Hired were Mrs. Nettie Edwards, third grade at Lincoln; Mrs. Dorothy Gladson, sixth grade at Northeast; Miss Joyce Heathcott, P. E. at high school; Miss Clarice Leverett, fourth grade at Northeast; Mrs. Viola Gracey, homemaking at Travis; Claude McKinzie, sixth grade at Lincoln; Mrs. George Faye Cromwell, P. E. at West; and Mrs. Maurine Robinson, who will instruct the Special Education classes.

The school board also approved the calendar for the coming year. School will start Sept. 3, and the final day of school next year will be May 27. There will be 177 teaching days in the year.

Aug. 29 Seems Plenty Close As Rail Dispute Continues

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP)—With rail negotiations stalemated and new doubt cast on legislative prospects, Aug. 29 seemed awfully close today.

That's the day set by most of the nation's railroads for new job-eliminating work rules—a move the five operating unions have pledged to meet with a strike.

What makes Aug. 29 seem closer than 15 days away is that a pall has settled over the two major procedures for averting a nationwide tieup—negotiating for a settlement of the four-year-old dispute and legislation to turn the problem over to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The negotiations, sponsored by the Labor Department, sputtered to a halt Tuesday with announcement by the carriers of "a positive stalemate" on the key firemen's issue. The carriers want to eliminate 32,000 firemen on diesel locomotives in freight and yard service on the grounds the men are no longer needed. The unions say they are required for safe and efficient operations.

J. E. Wolfe, the railroads' chief negotiator, announced the deadlock after a two-hour bargaining session with representatives of the firemen's and engineers unions.

"As far as the firemen's issue is concerned we have reached a positive stalemate which indicates at this time that a negotiated agreement is hopeless," he said.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz was only slightly less pssimistic.

"The most recent attempt to get a negotiated settlement has been unsuccessful," he said. "These efforts will continue, but the prospects of settlement by bargaining depend entirely on one side or the other making a new proposal."

No new meetings of carrier and union representatives have been scheduled, although both have been asked to stand by.

H. E. Gilbert, president of the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, said: "From the beginning the railroads have failed to meet their responsibilities in the collective bargaining. Their latest announcement, if final, leaves he employes no other alternative than to prepare for whatever railroad management endeavors to force upon the employes and the American public."

The 156-member General Chairmen's Committee of the union meets today to decide whether to remain in Washington. Even if it disbands, a spokesman said, a subcommittee would remain, prepared to negotiate.

If negotiations are at a dead end, the best hope for averting a strike seemingly would lie with Congress. However, one highly placed senator told a reporter it is doubtful now that President Kennedy's plan for submitting the dispute to the Interstate Commerce Commission can be passed.

After the rail talks bogged down Wirtz and Lawrence F. O'Brien, special assistant to Kennedy, met in the office of Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana. The 1½-hour session was attended also by Sens. Warren G. Magnuson, chairman of the Commerce Committee; John O. Pastore, D-R.I., second ranking Democrat on the committee, and Wayne Morse, D-Ore.

Afterward both Mansfield and Magnuson said no decision was reached to proceed at once with legislation.

"The best solution," Mansfield said, "still would be a negotiated settlement."

White Group Files Suit

WASHINGTON (AP)—A group of white postal workers have gone into court with their complaint over the promotion of three Negroes to supervisors in the Dallas post offi

Ten white employes filed suit against the Post Office Department in U.S. District Court here, charging they were discriminated against because of their race.

Their suit claims the white workers ranked Nos. 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11 and 12 on a promotion register while the top ranked Negro stood No. 54.

Japan Signs Test Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japan, the only nation ever hit by a wartime atomic attack, added its agreement today to the treaty banning nuclear tests in the atmosphere, outer space and under water.

Although no mention was made of it at the State Department signing ceremonies, the action came on the 18th anniversary of Japan's surrender ending World War II. The surrender was hastened by the dropping of atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Mrs. Kennedy Is Back Home Today

By FRANCES LEWINE

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy, holding the President's hand and managing a smile, went home from the hospital today and her doctor promptly suggested that she curtail all of her official activities "until after the first of the year."

The long convalescent period was similar to one Dr. John W. Walsh had advised for Mrs. Kennedy after the birth of her first son, also by Caesarean section, in 1960.

"Mrs. Kennedy had made a very satisfactory recovery," said White House press secretary Pierre Salinger in a statement shortly after Mrs. Kennedy left the hospital at Otis Air Force Base.

She flew by helicopter with the President to their Squaw Island summer home near Hyannis Port where she will stay now probably into mid-September.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy walked slowly down the two stone hospital steps and the short distance to a waiting blue car, which drove them to a nearby helicopter pad. The President helped Mrs. Kennedy into the car.

Mrs. Kennedy had a long hairdo, vastly different from the bouffant ones she usually wears.

Photographers and reporters stood behind a rope barrier and Air Force personnel, families and children came out to watch Mrs. Kennedy's departure after a week in the hospital following the birth of her third child, Patrick Bouvier Kennedy, who lived less than two days.

Led by two Air Force police cars, the motorcade moved out to the helicopter landing area, where they took off for the 12-minute ride back to the Kennedy summer home on Squaw Island, near Hyannis Port, where Mrs. Kennedy will convalesce with her family.

Mrs. Kennedy's press secretary, Pamela Turnure, described her condition as very good.

The Kennedy youngsters, Caroline, 5½, and John Jr., 2½, as well as a new puppy, were waiting at Squaw Island to welcome Mrs. Kennedy home.

New Leads Found In Train Robbery

By JOHN GALE

LONDON (AP) — British police investigating the great mail train robbery followed up a new avenue of leads today uncovered by the discovery of a lonely farm that was the gang's hideout.

Scotland Yard had:

The name and address of a man to whom the farm was sold less than a month ago.

A description of a charming, expensively dressed man who came to collect the keys.

Descriptions of a ginger-haired stranger and a brunette woman seen in the district by suspicious country folk.

Although the police appeared to be making progress; there was still no trace of the more than $7 million snatched from the Glasgow-London night mail train last Thursday.

Detectives, fingerprint men and other police experts swarmed over Leatherslade Farm, the robbers' den 18 miles from the scene of the crime.

An unconfirmed report said an underworld source had furnished the names of 10 criminals supposed to have taken part in the raid.

Inquiries stretched to the French Riviera. The leader of the gang was thought to have gone there some days before the robbery to provide himself an alibi.

A truck and two army type vehicles used by the bandits were found at the farm. Police also found empty mailbags, supplies of canned food and a hole in the front yard, apparently dug with the idea of burning evidence.

The area was sealed off and no unauthorized person could get within half a mile of the farm.

Less than a mile away is an air strip which could have been used for a getaway.

Police said they believed the gang quit the hideout in panic two or three days ago. There were signs of a hasty departure.

Bernard Rixon, former owner of Leatherslade, said "the name and address of the man who bought the place has been given to the police by my lawyer."

Lily Brooks, 60, was custodian of the keys to the farm while it lay empty. She said a man picked up the keys at her home two weeks ago.

"He was tall, fair and charming," she said. "He was dressed in an expensive sports suit and did not look like a country man. He had a London accent."

Herdsman John Maris, 33, claimed he first tipped detectives to check the farm after his suspicions were aroused by the new occupants.

He said they never seemed to do any work and blacked out the windows of the brick farmhouse.

Insurance companies and the postoffice have offered a $720,000 reward.

Panel Begins Work On Rights Measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eleven members of a House Civil Rights subcommittee meet today to begin work on legislation the administration hopes will ease racial tensions.

For the next few weeks at least, the 11 representatives will try to give legislative form to the proposals President Kennedy has called "responsible, reasonable and urgently needed solutions" to the problems of racial discrimination.

They deal with voting rights, school desegregation, employment opportunity, federally assisted programs and discrimination in places of public accommodations.

Schools To Be Provided For Negroes

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia Gov. Albertis S. Harrison Jr. today announced, with the approval of the Department of Justice and white and Negro leaders, the organization of a biracial group to provide private free schools in Prince Edward County this year.

Harrison's announcement at a crowded news conference was given an immediate pledge of support by the Rev. L. Francis Griffin, president of the Virginia National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, who sat beside the governor at the conference.

The plan to provide schooling for some 1,700 Negro pupils who have been largely without classroom training since the county closed public schools four yerrs ago—as well as white children who may desire to attend the free schools—was outlined by the governor as follows:

A biracial board of trustees of three white and three negro educators will lease from Prince Edward County several of the presently unused public school buildings, will sign up faculty and administrative personnel, and will operate on finances obtained privately.

A number of foundations and individuals have already indicated their willigness to contribute.

Urges Order Be Held Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said the order by the armed services to declare "off-limits" on segregated areas should be held in abeyance until congressional committees can investigate the order.

Tower assailed the Tuesday directive by Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara authorizing the armed services to declare off-limits areas where "relentless discrimination persists against Negro servicemen and their families."

Tower said in a statement, that "the military establishment was created for the purpose of defense against foreign enemies. It was not created to be used as a tool or device by which domestic political goals might be achieved."

Rights Resolution Expected To Pass

HOUSTON (AP)—Despite vocal opposition, delegates to the American Municipal Association convention expected its human rights resolution to pass by a landslide today.

The 2,000 mayors and other high municipal officials vote on the human rights proposition before the association's 40th annual congress ends today.

Vice President Lyndon Johnson's appeal in behalf of human rights did not arrest the opposition—and a counter challenge was in the mill. Still, majority opinion at the huge gathering pointed to overwhelming support for the resolution.

Mayor John Barr of Pittsburgh, Pa., and vice Mayor Sam Massell of Atlanta, Ga., said that a much more strongly worded resolution was passed by the United States Conference of Mayors in June after the same kind of controversy.

"The AMA is composed of many of the same people; we heard the same rumors; and there was a debate on the floor at the Honolulu convention of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, but the issue passed with very few 'noes'—although they were loud 'noes,'" Barr said.

Meanwhile, the Mississippi and South Carolina delegations continued plans to try to block the resolution. The latter group said it would try to table it.

Mayor Allen Thompson of Jackson, Miss., who had engaged in a heated hotel lobby debate with two Michigan Negro city officials, said that while "the vice president is a wonderful man, his address did not change our thoughts, plans or procedures to oppose the resolution."

In a strong off-the-cuff appeal after his prepared address had been delivered to the delegates earlier Tuesday, the vice president urged the city officials to go home and "try to make good the rights of all of our citizens given them over 100 years ago in the Constitution."

Mayor Thompson of Jackson, Miss., was asked heated questions —to which he gave heated replies—in what turned into a public debate in the hotel lobby as he was monitoring a moving picture display about his city.

The questioners were Dr. Frank Howell of Muskegon Heights, Mich., and C. A. Hamlin of Inkster, Mich., both city councilmen. They challenged Thompson on what kind of rights Jackson's Negro citizens have.

'March' Set In Houston

HOUSTON (AP)— A "Freedom march" by some 40,000 Negroes will be held in downtown Houston Sept. 29, the president of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, has announced.

The scheduled march was revealed Tuesday at a meeting of the Houston chapter of the NAACP. The chapter at the same time said it will ask for a city ordinance prohibiting discrimination in public places in Houston.

The chapter also discussed arrangements for sending a group to the national march on Washington Aug. 28 and a group to Austin the same day.

The Rev. A. A. McCardell, president of the branch and pastor of the Pleasant Grove Baptist Church, told some 40 persons at the meeting that an official announcement of the march would be made soon.

Neilan On Attack Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edwin P. Neilan, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, today renewed his attack on "widespread public immorality in the use of federal funds," and he again compared it to the sex-spy scandal in Great Britain.

In a television interview, Neilan said the modern political porkbarrel is a much greater problem than the Profumo scandal in Great Britain and he said that its impact was greater. He added, "But I doubt that it will bring down any Cabinet members."

In a speech last week, Neilan had characterized such programs as the Area Redevelopment Administration as "billions for ballot bribery," he said that some congressmen had become "bagmen" and that voters had willingly gone along with prok barrel projects.

Balloon Is On Way Down

PALESTINE, Tex. (AP)—A big research balloon sent aloft to gather meteorite particles was scheduled to start drifting back to earth today after reaching a heigh of 9,000 feet.

Spokesmen at the launching station here said no report of trouble had been received. Thunderstorms were reported in the area between Palestine and Pecos, where the balloon is scheduled to land.

Lifted by a quarter million feet of helium, the 85-foot tall bag rose a thousand feet a minute after it was released early Tuesday.

John Sparkman, station manager, said the balloon would start its descent after traveling about 500 miles.

The balloon was sent up to collect meteorite dust for the Dudley Observatory at Albany, N.Y.

Dear Abby...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column recently from a woman who thought that the practice of parakeets flying over the dinner table at mealtime was unsanitary. And you agreed with her! Abby, I though you were supposed to be a pretty hep gal. Haven't you ever heard of Parakeet Diapers? They are made of washable jersey and come in three sizes. Small, medium and large. They will not hamper birds in flight and are designed with a comfortable halter neck so the birds can't lose them. This is no gag, and I don't sell them. But I've bought them.

FRED IN ALBANY

DEAR FRED: Now I've heard everything! I don't sell them either, but I'll bet a lot of readers would like to know who does.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: This may not seem important to you, but I want to know how to follow through on something that has bothered me for a long time. I am considered a good - looking young man, but my ears stand out, away from my head, to a very noticeable degree. I have read that some movie actors have been operated on to have this defect corrected. Is it dangerous? Is it expensive? And where can I get an operation of this kind?

DUMBO

DEAR DUMBO: Surgery is always "dangerous" unless performed by an expert. I don't know how "expensive" it is, but you can get all the information you want by asking your family doctor to refer you to a plastic surgeon.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My husband has always been quite well - to - do. Our daughter wanted to marry a 27-year-old man of whom we did not approve. She was too young to marry without our consent, and we forbade her to do so. The day she became of age, they went to City Hall and were married. We told her we never wanted to see her again. We got our wish. It has been nine years since we have seen her. And we have never seen our two grandchildren. We never realized that in making such a threat we would be the ones to pay. Please print this for parents who might be tempted to keep apart two people who really love each other.

SORRY

DEAR SORRY: Are you saying that parents should set aside their better judgment when an underage daughter announces she wants to marry? True, you shouldn't have said you never wanted to see her again. THAT was your mistake, NOT for bidding your daughter to marry a man of whom you disapproved. Quit punishing yourself. Make an effort to see your daughter. One of these days she'll realize that she is being foolish, too.

* * *

Clear Lake Votes Bonds

HOUSTON (AP) — The Clear Lake Water Authority, which expects to eventually populate its 24 square miles with 180,000 people, had all its qualified voters cast ballots in its first election.

This was for $24 million worth of tax bonds. The proposition was approved Tuesday by a vote of 15-0.

The much-publicized authority, which occupies about 12,000 acres of southeast Harris County land which Houston has under a partial annexation and 3,000 acres by Pasadena, expects the $24 million to last six years.

The money, which represents $1.6 million for each of the qualified voters in the authority, will be used to build water, sewer and drainage facilities for the first 4,500 acres of the 15,234-acre authority.

The authority is adjacent to the space agency's manned spacecraft center.

Judgments In Slant Well Cases Filed

TYLER (AP) — Judgments in two slant oil well suits were on file today in federal district court.

The judgment declares the plaintiffs are entitled to recover:

From the two Longs and Southwestern Life $28,745.

From the Longs $125,059.

From the Ericksons, H. L. Long and Southwestern Life $10,779.

From the Ericksons and H. L. Long $46,897.

From Southwestern Life and its subsidiary, Valley Royalty and H. L. Long $55,426.

From Southwestern Life and H. L. Long $137,194.

From H. L. Long $401,129.

From H. L. Long and Stubblefield $4,966.

Also a total of $17,503 for production proceeds now held by Mobil Oil Co. and not taken into account in the other listings.

Judge Sheehy said Pan American is entitled to 96.56 per cent of the proceeds and Socony Mobil 5.43.

Texaco sued H. H. Harrington Jr. and others in the other case.

The judge ruled that the plaintiff's interest in the oil produced is $83,603.

WOMEN

Baby Teeth Jam The Mailbox Of Housewife

MONTREAL — "How a little nobody from Cote St. Luc could get involved in something like this, I don't know," says Mrs. Ethel Kesler, the Montreal housewife who started women across Canada saving baby teeth for scientific research.

Mrs. Kesler, a former social worker, has aroused international interest in her Montreal Baby Tooth Survey and has just been asked to write a paper on her work for Dr. Benjamin Spock, the renowned baby expert.

The mailbox at her suburban Cote St. Luc home is jammed with teeth and inquiries from mothers as far away as the Yukon. Sometimes entire sets of baby teeth arrive and she has even received teeth from dogs and cows.

Scientists agree that teeth shed by children are an invaluable source of information about the strontium 90, thought to be the most dangerous of radioactive materials produced in a nuclear explosion.

Began in St. Louis

The first tooth survey was set up by St. Louis housewives, who have collected more than 110,000 deciduous teeth since 1958, following a suggestion by Dr. Herman Klacker, Johns Hopkins university biochemist, in a science journal. Scientists at Washington University in St. Louis, aided by the U.S. Public Health Service, use the teeth to study effects of strontium 90 on children's bones.

Concerned about radiation hazards for some time, Mrs. Kesler learned about the St. Louis project, and, in 1960, began what snowballed into a national baby tooth collection in Canada.

The Montreal baby tooth survey began under the sponsorship of the Quebec Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament. This year Voice of Women has taken over the project, now operating in eight Canadian cities. Dr, Ursula Franklin, a physicist with the Ontaro research foundation and the University of Toronto, is directing. it.

Canadian baby teeth go to the laboratories of Dr. A. M. Hunt of the University of Toronto's School of Dentistry. Dr. Hunt in his research has found that breast - fed babies absorb less strontium 90 than those fed on bottles and that children of certain age groups have absorbed more than others.

Dr. Hunt tested teeth from 1957 and found the strontium-90 absorption rate went up each year. Now he needs teeth to test the period from 1957 to 1961.

Mothers are asked to fill in forms obtainable at local chain stores and send teeth with forms to the local survey office. Youngsters get buttons saying "I gave my tooth to science."

Helped by Sons

Mrs. Kesler says her own boys, twins of 11 and a 9 - year - old, are among her best salesmen.

The nucleus of the Montreal survey consisted of herself and two other housewives. But she has hundreds of volunteers whenever she needs help.

Mrs. Kesler feels there is a dangerous "free floating anxiety" in this nuclear age and that giving baby teeth for research somehow helps mothers alleviate this feeling.

She is aided by an advisory committee of scientists. But people seem to regard her as some kind of a "lay dentist."

"I get requests for all sorts of information about teeth."

Rice Was Ever Loner

MINORITY REPORT: An autobiography. By Elmer Rice.

When he was 21, Elmer Rice made a jackpot debut in the Broadway theater with his first play, "On Trial." Fifty dramas and countless articles later he submits to the reading jury this summation of a restless, absorbing career.

Why such a title? He grew up on the sidewalks of New York, and got an early, diisenchanting closeup on the way youngsters — and grownups — can behave en masse.

"From the first time I ventured into the streets, I have distrusted and shunned crowds," he says. "The minority man I have always been is just a grown-up minority boy."

So through this narrative of ups and downs as an innovator of stage techniques ("The Adding Machine," "Street Scene" and others) and of his far travels, there are numerous interludes of action in areas of political liberalism and sociological reform.

Rice may not exhibit much of a sense of humor, but he is candid and homes in the 70 year search for his decalogue of existence.

"Minority Report" takes you along on a highly rewarding journey with an unquiet companion.

Female Monster Most Feared Individual Around Viet Nam

BY INEZ ROBB

Why is it that Uncle Sam always lets himself, with the best will in the world, be euchred into the support of such repellent characters as Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu, the iron-fisted, hard-faced dictator of Vietnam?

It must be obvious even to the State Department that this haughty, arrogant woman, devoid of compassion and any decent human feeling, is the true ruler of the unhappy land that the United States has been trying to save from communism with our men and our money.

But this female monster, with the morals of a Hitler and the manners of a Storm Trooper, is a sure thing to turn more despairing Vietnamese toward Marxism than will ever be won by the Vietcong — if she is allowed to continue in power.

This evil woman, who has long despised the United States more than she ever hated communism, cynically revealed herself for the heartless creature she is in an interview in which she said she would clap her hands if the Buddhist opposition would burn 30 women. She boasted that she would beat "10 times more" the Buddhist priests who have been protesting the treatment accorded the Buddhist majority in Vietnam.

The most feared individual in her country, she made a callous boast of naked power when she declared, "I am not a woman of intrigue. People of intrigue are people without means, but I have plenty of means."

Indeed she has "plenty of means" and no scruple in using it. She has been using it in a rear-guard action against the United States and its representatives, including the armed forces, ever since this country committed its prestige to the defense of South Vietnam.

She has used every sort of harassment against American personnel even issuing, in the interest of "morality", petty ukases that prohibit Americans stationed in Vietnam from dancing in their own homes.

No tactic against American personnel in her country has been too small or mean. And even as American lives are being lost to save South Vietnam from a Communist take-over and our money is poured in like water, Mme. Nhu continues to denounce this country and its representatives.

Only last week Mme. Nhu inveighed against America as a blackmailer. She screamed that the United States Embassy had "threatened and blackmailed" HER government in an effort to "shut me up."

Even now there are strong suspicions both in and outside South Vietnam that Mme. Nhu and her husband, Ngo Dihn Nhu, brother of Vietnam President Diem, are plotting a fascist coup to take over the government from weakling Diem, whom she has ruled for months.

Hers would be a strong-armed regime in which the Buddhists, who comprise 70 percent of the population, could expect neither mercy nor fairness. She has already expressed herself on how the Buddhits opposition should be treated.

This is not a fight between Catholocism, which the Ngo family represents, and Buddhism. To interpret the present unrest in Vietnam as a religious struggle is to misunderstand completely the true situation and to play into Mme. Nhu's hands.

The struggle is between the feudal rule and overlordship of the powerful Ngo family, into which Mme. Nhu married and which she now bosses with all the finesse of a Jimmy Hoffa.

It is a power struggle, pure and simple, to preserve not a democractic but a feudal rule. Since his coronation Pope Paul VI has twice issued veiled but plain warnings to the Nhu regime to treat the Buddhists as brothers and resolve fairly the grievances of the weak majority against the strong minority

Mme. Nhu's ruthless reply to both the Pope's injunctions and to other attempts to adjudicate fairly the internal struggle in South Vietnam was her boastful and vengeful press interview.

After all these years, it would seem that the United States would have learned the futility of fighting communism through dictatorial regimes such as that of Mme. Nhu-cum-President Diem. Wherever we have backed dictators, whether in Latin America or in Asia, we have only increased the restlessness of the oppressed population and hastened its turn toward the left.

This is a self-defeating exercise. Not only self-defeating, but a shocking sacrifice of American lives and funds.

The United States will not win in South Vietnam and we will not vanquish the specter of communism there by supporting Mme. Nhu and the puppets through whom she rules. We will only antagonize the people she oppresses.

How much longer are we going to allow ourselves to be saddled with this witch beside whom Eva Peron would appear almost saintly?

QUESTION: How can living plants come from dead earth?

ANSWER: In our picture, Betty is asking herself this question, too—it seems hard to believe that the wonderful colors and delicate shapes of the wild flowers could have come from dark, muddy earth. Yet there's a point here that Betty, and our questioner, have missed. The dark earth didn't just throw up that green grass and those brilliant flowers.

What happened was that seeds from other plants settled down on the earth—either dropped there, or deliberately placed there, or, very often, blown there through the air. The earth provides the things the seeds need to turn into plants. First of all is moisture. This makes the seed swell; it bursts its coat and the embryo inside begins to grow. Then, throughout the life of the plant, the earth contributes vital substances and materials such as nitrogen. The plant takes air, moisture and these minerals from the earth and turns them into food through the action of its green leaves. So, one plant comes from another, using moisture, air and earth in the process. Where did the first plant come from? No one knows the answer to that, as yet.

• • •

FOR YOU TO DO: This is a good time of year to study the miraculous world of seeds. Find some seeds which have wings; some which have parachutes; some which pop from plants, and some which "hitchhike."

Here's New Lesson In Double Talk

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — It's time again to brush up on our conversational skill with another lesson in double talk.

Double talk, you will recall, is one of the highest art forms of modern civilization.

It is the ability to say one thing clearly and convincingly—while actually you are thinking just the opposite.

Anyone today who says exactly what he means, and means exactly what he says, is hopelessly neanderthal or wildly eccentric.

To get along with the other fellow, you tell him what he wants to hear— and keep your honest opinions to yourself.

Truth is for polar bears; people can't stand the strain of it. They prefer the illusion of truth.

For those who haven't learned how to play the game, here are a few examples of double talk—followed, parenthetically, by literal translations:

"It's a lovely roast, but I think I've had plenty." (Cut me another piece, stupid, or are you trying to save it all for the dog?)

"Oh, here comes the waiter now with the bill. Shall we go dutch, Mabel?" (Pick up the check, you henna-haired Midas. You know I bought lunch the last time).

"Yep, reverend, that was a real inspirational sermon. I got a lot out of it." (What the devil was he mumbling about, anyway?)

'What a cute kid! He's a spitting image of you, Bill."' (What do you call him—'slobbering Willie'?)

"It's not just the money, boss, I feel I deserve a raise as a matter of principle." (It's the money).

Gee, Hortense, I could just sit and look at you all evening." "(But how about a little action, baby? I'm slowly falling alseep.)

"It is now my pleasure to yield the floor to my esteemed colleague—." (Old blabbermouth always has to get his two cents worth in.)

"Well, I guess I will have just one more for the road, Bob. Make it light." (But at least wet the bottom of the glass this time. You pour liquor like it was priceless glue.)

"Please stop, Hector, or I'll scream." (Thank heavens, I've got laryngitis.)

"I think a little extra weight on a man makes him look more attractive." (But not when he already looks like a walrus.)

"Wonderful party. Where'd you find so many interesting people to invite?" (The zoo? The bowery: The city dump?)

American League Rookie Has Big Day

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dave DeBusschere, 22, felt so tall today he probably could rebound against Wilt Chamberlain.

The reason for that wonderful feeling was a 3-0, six-hitter over the Cleveland Indians that gave the gangling Chicago White Sox rookie hurler his first complete game, his first shutout, and his first victory over an American League team other than the 10th-place Washington Senators.

A 6-foot-6, 225-pounder who made the basketball big league with the Detroit Pistons last winter, big Dave now has a 3-4 record for the season. The other two wins were over the Senators, so you couldn't fault the right-hander for feeling that he finally had made the baseball majors with the whitewash job over the first-division Indians Tuesday night.

The victory moved the runner-up White Sox within 8½ games of the league-leading New York Yankees, who were rained out at Boston, and 2 games in front of the Minnesota Twins who were trounced 6-1 by the fourth-place Baltimore Orioles. The Los Angeles Angels snapped a seven-game losing streak by edging the Senators 4-3, and the Kansas City Athletics beat the Detroit Tigers, 4-2.

In the National League, Warren Spahn, 42, took over the left-handed strikeout record with 2,383 in tumbling the league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3; the Cincinnati Reds blanked the San Francisco Giants 4-0; and the St. Louis Cardinals topped Houston's Colts, 4-2. Pittsburgh was rained out at New York in the other scheduled game.

DeBusschere paid off a chuck of his $70,000 bonus with a poised performance against the Indians at Chicago. He was in trouble only in the third inning when the Indians loaded the bases on singles by Tito Francona, John Romano and Al Luplow. He got Max Alvis to end the inning and set the Injuns down with two hits the rest of the way.

Steve Barber, the Orioles' speedball southpaw, boosted his record to 16-9 on a fine eight-hitter that advanced the club within half a game of the home Twins. Barber fanned nine and walked one. Harmon Killebrew spoiled the youngster's bid for his third shutout with an eighth-inning homer, his 27th.

The Angels went through the winger at Los Angeles in finally ending their losing spell. What proved to be the winning run came in the eighth on Billy Moran's double, relief pitcher Ron Kline's wild pitch, and Ed Sadowski's squeeze bunt.

In the top of the eighth the Senators had the Angels on the ropes, but two fine plays by shortstop Jim Fregosi helped sooth Mgr. Bill Rigney's sizzling stomach.

Singles by Dick Phillips and Chuck Hinton and Jim King's double scored one run. Paul Foytack replaced reliever Jack Spring.

Don Lock smashed a rising liner that was tagged hit until Fregosi leaped high and speared the ball. Don Zimmer, who hit his seventh homer in the first inning, was purposely walked to load the bases. Pinch-hitter Don Leppert then bounced to Fregosi, who started an inning-ending double play.

The Tigers, who have been fielding demons of late, tossed away the game at Kansas City. The A's got two runs and broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth on a wild throw by first baseman Norm Cash.

With men on first and second, Cash tried for a force at third on Wayne Causey's sacrifice bunt. He threw the ball away, and the two runners scored.

Reliever Ted Bowsfield received the victory for a 5-6 record. Starter Jim Bunning was pinned with his 12th defeat to eight victories. The Tigers outhit the winners, 11-5.

Trinity Reunion Set

DALLAS (AP) — The Trinity University football team of 40 years ago and former coaches of the school once located at Waxahachie will hold a reunion here Aug. 18.

The occasion will be a meeting of the Dallas chapter of the Trinity Alumni Association.

Among former coaches to attend are J. H. Goodman of Lubbock, A. J. Robinson of Waxahachie, Logan Stollenwerck of Irving, Barry Holton of Dallas, Leland Wilkins of Lafayette, La., Alvah Boggs of Alamo, Bill James of Hunt and W. C. McElreath and Dale Morrison of San Antonio.

Lester Jordan of Dallas, former sports publicist at Trinity, said a survey of Trinity lettermen lettermen showed a 10-3 victory over Baylor, defending Southwest Conference champion, in 1925 was considered the school's greatest gridiron triumph.

Alonzo Stagg To Be 101 Friday

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP)—Amos Alonzo Stagg, the grand old man of football, will pass his 101st birthday Friday.

Though Stagg's senses are gradually failing as he lives in a Stockton convalescent home, he's still alert enough to recognize faces and remember his players, as Navy Coach Wayne Hardin learned Tuesday.

Hardin, who played for Stagg at then-College of The Pacific in 1947, visited the former Yale All-America before a civic birthday luncheon in Stagg's honor.

"I shook hands with him and he still recognized me," Hardin proudly told the luncheon audience. "He said to me, 'Wayne's a good boy,' and that's something I'll always treasure."

A year ago Stagg appeared at his 100th birthday celebration but this time he could not.

Stagg came to Stockton in 1933 to coach at COP after his mandatory retirement from the University of Chicago, where he coached for 41 years.

He retired from COP in 1947, helped his son at Susquehanna for six years, then returned to Pacific as advisory coach.

In 1960 he wrote Coach Larry Kentera: "It is with a deep feeling of regret that I will not be able to accept your invitation to come out for football practice this year. For the past 70 years I have been coach. At 98 years of age, it seems a good time to stop."

Spahn Wins, Sets Strikeout Record

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was all very simple. No bugles blaring, bombs bursting, or lightning flashing.

Hawk-nosed old Warren Spahn simply cranked up his 42-year-old arm and threw a third strike past Bob Miller of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Hardly unusual. Old Spahnie had done that sort of thing only 2,381 times before. Later he raised his record to 2,383.

But this was the one that put him in the record book. It broke Rube Waddell's 53-year record of 2,381 strikeouts by a left-hander and brought the Milwaukee marvel one of the few pitching records still eluding him.

"You always think about records being set with a big, dramatic act," Spahn said Tuesday night. "But in the seventh Miller just stood there and took the third strike, and that's all there was to it."

Spahn finished with five strikeouts in the 4-3 victory over the Dodgers for a career total of 2,383. The victory was his third without loss this season against Los Angeles, his 14th over-all, and 341st of his career.

The Dodgers, however, maintained their four-game National League lead when the second-place San Francisco Giants were stopped 4-0 on two hits by Cincinnati's Jim Maloney.

St. Louis closed to within five games of the leaders and one of the Giants by beating Houston 4-2 in the only other National League game played. Pittsburgh at New York was rained out, and Philadelphia and Chicago were not scheduled.

In the American League, the leading New York Yankees were rained out in Boston. Chicago shut out Cleveland 3-0, Baltimore beat Minnesota 6-1, Kansas City edged Detroit 4-2 and Los Angeles broke a seven-game losing string 4-3 against Washington.

Spahn's victory, in his first start since he was sidelined with arm trouble July 29, was particularly gratifying. It came at the expense of the only club which has an edge against him. He went into the game with a career record of 21-34 against the Dodgers and had to work hard to pull it out.

The Dodgers pulled into a 3-3 tie with a run in the sixth, but Denis Menke's sacrifice fly drove in Hank Aaron with the tie-breaker for the Braves in the eighth.

Maloney, a 6-foot-2 right-hander allowed only singles to Felipe Alou and Harvey Kuenn, struck out seven Giants and walked only one in posting his 18th victory of the season for Cincinnati. He got all the backing he needed on two-run homers by Frank Robinson and Vada Pinson.

Baltimore Coach Starts Off Right

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Don Shula, the new coach of the Baltimore Colts, got the job because Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the club, said he wanted to "give the game back to the football players."

Rosenbloom is enthusiastic about the progress made by Shula in his first head coaching job. In their first pre-season game, the Colts defeated Philadelphia 26-21. They play the Cleveland Browns Saturday night in the second half of a doubleheader at Cleveland.

"Team spirit is vitally important in any game, especially in pro football," said Rosenbloom. "It is important that all the players want to play for the coach."

Rosenbloom, who fired Weeb Ewbank last winter after the end of the National Football League season and hired Shula to replace him, had only the best to say for Ewbank, now coach of the New York Jets in the rival American Football League.

"Weeb believes that the coach is supreme," he said. "I wanted to set up committees of the players to handle fines for any infractions," said Rosenbloom. "Weeb didn't think that was the way to handle it.

"People said that we got rid of Weeb because he used Lenney Moore as an inside runner. That wasn't the case at all. I don't think Weeb was wrong in doing that. Shula is doing it too. I think Don expects to let Lenney run the option play more than Weeb did.

"In fairness to Weeb, I do think we would have done better last year if it had not been for injuries. Remember, we lost Moore for six weeks. Weeb is a good fundamentalist. Sometimes he is a little stubborn. We still are good friends."

Rosenbloom said he had been impressed by Shula since his days as a defensive halfback with the Colts.

"Don never was a great player, just average," he said. "He always was taking pictures, talking football. He always had wanted to coach. From us he went down to Virginia as an assistant and then Kentucky. He did a great job as defensive coach at Detroit the last three years. I feel strongly that he is going to be great. He's only 33. Some of the players are older than that."

Rosenbloom said the Colts' rookie crop of John Mackey of Syracuse, Bob Vogel of Ohio State, Fred Miller of LSU, George Wilson of Alabama, Willie Richardson of Jackson State and Jim Maples of Baylor has shown to advantage. Mackey or Wilson will wind up as regular tight end, Vogel at offensive tackle, Miller at defensive tackle and Richardson at defensive back or flanker. Maples is a linebacker.

The Colts came up with a new field goal kicker who has shunted Dick Bielski out of that job. He is Grady Wade, a free agent from Vanderbuilt who booted one 49 yards against the Eagles.

Indoor Championships Set For Next Year

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Three regional NCAA indoor track and field championships will be staged in February 1964, says the executive committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, and a national championship will begin in 1965.

The committee wound up a two-day meeting in San Francisco Tuesday by selecting Louisville, Ky., Portland, Ore., and Lubbock, Tex., as sites for the regional meets on Feb. 28-29.

Texas League Race Tighter Than Ever

By The Associated Press

Front running San Antonio checked its slide but second place Austin made it four losses in a row Tuesday night, and the Texas League race was tighter than ever.

From fourth to second the difference is only two games.

San Antonio increased its margin to 2½ games by beating El Paso 4-2 as Ray Cordiero southpawed a four-hitter. The loss dropped El Paso back to fourth since Tulsa beat Austin 3-1. The Oilers pulled into third place.

Dick Dietz of El Paso clouted his 33rd homer of the season.

Larry Jaster retired seven men in order to pull Gordon Richardson through as Tulsa beat Austin. The Oilers scored two runs in the first inning on Jim Beauchamp's double.

Albuquerque still is 4½ games out of fourth place and the Dukes don't plan to let cellar dwelling Amarillo overtake them. Albuquerque beat Amarillo 4-2 as Jim Ward pitched a three-hitter. Its bulge over Amarillo now is 10 games.

A second game at Albuquerque was called at the top of the second inning without a score because of rain.

Amarillo and Albuquerque will try to play a twin bill again Wednesday night. San Antonio is at El Paso and Tulsa at Austin.

Favorites Rule In Junior Girls Golf

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Pre-tournament favorites continued to rule as the top choices today for the U.S. Golf Association's National junior girls championship.

Rain splattered the 6,002-yard, par 72 course during the first round of match play Tuesday. In addition, one of the pre-tourney favorites, Janis Ferraris of San Franciso, was hobbled slightly by an injury to her left leg suffered at a swimming party Monday night. Still she was a 1-up victor over Sandra Paine of West Orange, N.J.

Jeanie Butler of Harlingen, Tex., was matched with Sherry Taylor of Oklahoma City in today's pairings.

Williams KO's Barrow For 47th Knockout

HOUSTON (AP)— Third-ranked heavyweight Cleveland Williams scored his 47th knockout as he demolished Kirk Barrow in the third round of their scheduled 10-rounder Tuesday night.

Williams shook off the Spokane, Wash., challenger's left hook and threw a lightning right cross. Barrow went down.

The end came at 2:15 of the round. It went as a technical knockout because Barrow, after two staggering tries, finally succeeded in getting his legs under him at the count of nine. A handler jumped into the ring as he rose.

Barrow was outweighed 214 to 190 and a foot shorter in reach.

Gulf Coast Regional Pony Title Game Set

KINGSVILLE (AP) — Groves, Tex., and Monterrey, Mexico, will clash tonight for the Gulf Coast regional Pony League title.

Groves won 11-6 to square their series Tuesday night.

The winner will go to the divisional meet at Marietta, Ga.

Footballers To Take Physicals Tomorrow

Physical examinations will be given at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning to the high school football players. Coach Bostick urged that all boys, whether they will be members of the A or B Teams to meet at the Field House. Each boy has to have a physical before he can work out.

Houston To Clash With Patriots

By The Associated Press

It's only an exhibition game and doesn't count in the standings but the clash of the Houston Oilers and Boston Patriots at Lowell, Mass., tonight definitely won't be a ho-hum affair.

The Oilers and Patriots finished one-two in the Eastern Division of the American Football League last season but so far haven't looked like contending teams. Both hope to improve tonight.

In addition, the Patriots recall the last time they meet the Oilers in 1962 their veteran star quarterback, Babe Parilli, was knocked out of commission with a fractured collarbone. Houston wound up with an 11-3-1 record to Boston's 9-4-1.

Each team has had two exhibitions so far. Houston was upset 27-14 by Denver and then whipped the New York Jets 17-0.

Boston's weakness in the secondary was glaring in a 24-17 defeat by the surprising Oakland Raiders and a 50-17 shellacking by the healthy and beefed-up San Diego Chargers.

Texas PGA Tourney Set For Thursday

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP)— The Oso Beach muny golf course, where the Texas PGA will be played, is expected to take a terrific pounding—provided the winds are not too capricious.

It is only 5,850 yards long and par is 70.

In a pro-sponsor tournament Willard Wood of Bryan shot a 6-under-par 64 for low pro honors Tuesday.

Defending champion Tommy Burke of Corpus Christi shot a 65 as did Bert Weaver, who makes the PGA tour. Former Champions Bobby Morris and Earl Stewart of Dallas posted 66s. There were plenty of 68s.

The field of 80-odd pros held a pro-amateur today and will start the 72-hole tournament Thursday.

Texas Favored Over Oklahoma In Oil Bowl

WICHITA FALLS (AP)—A massive line that outweighs the opposition about 10 pounds to the man, a strong defense and a tough running attack have made Texas the favorite in Friday night's Oil Bowl football game with Oklahoma.

Mike Jordan of Denison, who ran for 1,442 yards and 126 points last fall, heads the Texas ground attack. Billy Bob Stewart of Prairie and Rusty Workman of Arlington are considered tops as linebackers.

Oklahoma will pin its hopes on passer Ken Stockdale of Ardmore, who completed 233 throws in two seasons.

The 2-man squads went through two workouts today.

Georgia Officials To Take Stand

By DON MCKEE

ATLANTA (AP)—University of Georgia officials were prepared to take the witness stand today in Curtis Publishing Co.'s defense against a $10-million libel suit filed by Wally Butts, former Georgia athletic director.

Attorneys for Butts said they would rest their case today in the wake of testimony Tuesday contradicting the publishing firm's key witness in its football-fix charges against Butts.

Dr. O. C. Aderhold, university president, and members of the athletic board were under subpoena as rebuttal witnesses for Curtis.

The trial entered its eighth day after testimony from William C. Hartman Jr., who coached football at Georgia during Butts' 21-year tenure as head coach of the Bulldogs.

Hartman said he was at a Feb. 22 meeting of university officials who confronted Butts with the substance of an affidavit given by George P. Burnett, Atlanta insurance salesman.

Burnett has testified he accidentally was cut into a call last Sept. 13 and heard Butts giving data on Georgia team to Alabama coach Paul (Bear) Bryant. The Curtis-owned Saturday Evening Post used Burnett's affidavit as the substance of an article charging that Butts and Bryant rigged the 19[illegible] Georgia-Alabama game.

"His (Butts') remark was that he had talked with Bryant many times . . . but that it (the conversation) had been misconstrued," Hartman said.

Earlier, a former associate of Burnett, John Carmichael, testified that the notes were not the same that Burnett had immediately after replacing the telephone Sept. 13.

Hartman testified he did not consider the notes of any significance.

TOP TV TONIGHT

By BUD EVANS

9:00 CBS "Circle Theatre" repeats the drama about a blind and deaf teenaged girl who is brought to this country from the slums of Singapore for training and education. Principal roles are played by Zia Mohyeddin, the Pakistani actress who co-starred in "A Passage to India" on Broadway, and Irene Sen, who was seen in the road company of "Flower Drum Song". Paul McGrath is featured in "The Journey of Poh Lin".

OTHER HIGHLIGHTS

6:30 ABC "Wagon Train". Robert Ryan is guest star as a priest, doubtful of his dedication to humanity, who gets a chance to redeem himself in his own eyes through a young Indian who is found to be a leper. Perry Lopez has the role of the Indian boy.

6:30 NBC "The Virginian". Trampas tries to save the life of an ex-convict during a search for a cache of $50,000 in stolen gold. Trampas agrees to go along on the search only after learning that an ambush has been set up. John Dehner and Bradford Dillman are featured. COLOR.

7:30 CBS "Dobie Gillis". Dobie's infatuation with devastating anthropology student Clydens Quigley lands him and Maynard in the darkest jungles of South America on a dangerous expedition in search for shrunken heads.

8:00 CBS "The Beverly Hillbillies". When Pearl decides to give yodelling lessons at the Clampet mansion, she touches off a neighborhood controversy which brings a team of policemen and a pack of Ellie May's animal friends to invade the estate.

8:00 NBC "Mystery Theatre". Five persons defy warnings and enter the labrynth of the legendary man-eating minotaur on the island of Crete. The ultimate threat would bring each face to face with his own conscience. Patrick O'Neal and Salome Jens are starred.

8:30 CBS "Dick Van Dyke". Singer Joan O'Brien plays the role of Jane Leighton, a high school friend of Rob's who pressures him into helping her launch a singing career. Shortly thereafter, the Petry marriage is put to a painful test.

9:00 NBC "Bing Crosby" returns with his special program built around the theme of America at holiday play. Crosby is joined by Bob Hope, Edie Adams, Garry Crosby, the Smothers Brothers and clarinetist Pete Fountain.

Cool Spell Spreads Out

By The Associated Press

Cool air covered broad sections from the north central region into the Northeast today. Fairly heavy rain was reported in sections of the Northeast and in parts of the South.

Two to three inches of rain doused areas in southeastern Alabama. Nearly two inches fell in a one-hour period in Bessemer, Ala., with some flash flooding reported in the city's business district. A funnel cloud was sighted southeast of Birmingham.

Rainfall measured up to two inches in parts of northeast Texas but mostly light rain was reported in the southeastern Rockies. Rain continued during the night and early morning in parts of Maine, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

Strong winds made the weather feel much cooler along the cold front which extended from northern New England southwestward to Texas. Temperatures were mostly in the 50s in the north central and northeast sections, with the 60s in central areas.

DISTANT GREETING—Two West Berliners wave handkerchiefs in the hope that relatives on the other side of the Berlin wall will see them. At various points along the Communist-built wall, West Berliners held memorial services to mark the second anniversary of the barricade erected to halt flow of refugees to the west. (AP Wirephoto)

Possibility Of Two Upcoming Events Has Capital In Swirl

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington is in a slow swirl, psychologically and politically.

It waits for the massive civil rights demonstration Aug. 28, hoping that whole memorable day will go off peacefully.

Negotiations between railroads and unions are stalemated. Unless some way is found to stop it, there will be a railroad strike Aug. 29.

The arrival and departure of 100,000 or more demonstrators in one day, even if everything is peaceful, will be an unforgettable burden.

But to have the demonstration followed the next day by a rail strike would be piling climax on climax.

While the city waits, Congress, bumbling along at the slowest pace in years, continues to drag its feet and may be here until the end of the year.

The center of this quiet stage is occupied now, and will be for a couple of weeks, by Senate hearings on the limited nuclear test-ban treaty.

That treaty, once approved, could be a fiendish embarrassment to the Kennedy administration if the Russians then try tricks to American disadvantage.

If nothing goes wrong, it will be an asset to President Kennedy in seeking re-election. If it goes wrong it will be an issue in the 1964 campaign.

The administration, conscious of both possibilities, acknowledges risk but insist the treaty's advantage outweigh the disadvantages.

The two most likely Republican presidential candidates as of now—New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Arizona's Sen. Barry Goldwater — are conscious of the for and against possibilities too.

Both have provided themselves an "I told you so" if the treaty proves a dud.

The treaty has wide popular support, it seems sure to pass the Senate by a wide margin, and neither Rockefeller nor Goldwater has come out against it.

Rockefeller, in fact, has suggested it be approved but then he added a list warning of things to look out for.

But most of the things he warned about already had been discussed in one way or another by the administration.

For instance, he said this country should "pursue research and development in the vital area of antimissile defense."

He said that Sunday, Aug. 11. But on Aug. 1 at his news conference Kennedy said developing an antimissile missile is "beyond us and beyond the Soviets."

He was supported in this Tuesday by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

He said developing an antimissile system is something neither the United States nor Russia has solved. But he didn't say it was impossible.

And Tuesday Goldwater, who hasn't yet gone as far as Rockefeller in saying the treaty should be supported, added his warning.

He hammered on the antimissile business, too, saying he wants "iron-clad assurance" development in this field won't be inhibited by the treaty.

Goldwater is an Air Force Reserve major general.

McNamara told the committee: "I know of no one of my senior scientific advisers and no one on the Joint Chiefs of Staff who recommend against the treaty with safeguards."

Arguments about the treaty should provide the most excitement in Washington until the civil rights demonstration two weeks from today.

Opposing Trends On Money Market

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Money is getting tighter and short-term interest rates are rising. At the same time, Americans are increasing their installment debt to new heights and banks and other lenders are competing hard for new outlets for their cash on hand.

The opposing trends are alarming some on both sides of the credit fence. The debate over cheap money vs. dear—never entirely stilled—is due to break out loudly again.

The spurt in the cost of short-term borrowing is reflected in the rise this week in the U.S. Treasury's 91-day bills' yield to 3.335 per cent, highest since May 26, 1960.

The money managers had planned it that way. They recently raised from 3 per cent to 3:5 per cent the discount rate which member banks are charged to borrow from the Federal Reserve banks.

The aim is to put yields so high that idle dollars will stay in this country instead of flowing abroad to upset further our international payments, with resulting strain on the dollar and on our gold reserves.

Some feel the money managers are also convinced that credit has been too easy.

The conservatives cite the rise of installment credit outstanding to more than $50 billion, due largely to the near record sales of autos and increased purchasing of big ticket appliances on time.

They also note that some banks have been stretching the time in which auto loans can be repaid, and charge that some financial institutions have been lending money on mortgages where the credit risk was higher than they would have approved awhile back.

Increased use of credit by stock speculators also is charged.

Conservative financial circles always shudder when credit standards are being relaxed.

But thoe who see economic growth as today's main goal disagree.

They want even easier money. They argue that cheaper short-term money aids smaller businessmen in their day-to-day activities.

They contend that longer term borrowing must be easy and cheap if business is to expand and thus create new jobs for the unemployed, a sizable group that threatens to increase.

Easier money advocates also wants more homes built with financing readily available at terms that middle and lower income families can afford.

And the huge installment debt has been a bulwark of many consumer industries that otherwise would see their sales dwindle.

ABA Urges Support Of Integration

CHICAGO (AP)—The American Bar Association has urged the nation's lawyers to assist in better racial understanding by supporting and taking an active part in integration movements.

The ABA House of Delegates, 258-member policy making group, adopted by voice vote Tuesday a report of a special civil rights set up at the request of President Kennedy.

In a separate move, another group — the Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law—announced its official organization and immediate start of a legal battle against an injunction to maintain segregation in Clarksdale, Miss.

The LCCRUL was suggested by the President at a White House meeting July 21 as a means to erase racial tension by volunteer citizen action. It decided Tuesday to file nonprofit organization incorporation articles in Washington, D.C.

"Mass demonstrations must give way to mass determination that the races will live together in this country in mutual respect," the ABA report declared.

Current racial problems must be settled around the conference table, the report said, and not on the street.

Time Ebbs For Jimenez

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Time appeared to be running out today on Marcos Perez Jimenez, but the pudgy former Venezuelan dictator may not be taken back to his homeland until Friday.

The Venezuelan government claims Perez Jimenez embezzled more than $13 million while in office, and Secretary of State Dean Rusk has ruled he must return to stand trial.

Judge Robert H. Anderson of the Dade (Miami) County Circuit Court Tuesday dismissed a request to prevent Perez Jimenez from leaving until he put up $300,000 bond to provide for a child that blonde Ilona Marita Lorenz, 26, said she bore him.

Anderson then ordered the ex-dictator released from custody of the sheriff, but stayed the order so the Florida District Court of Appeals could review the paternity action.

The appeals court is on vacation and County Attorney Darrey Davis said the hearing probably would not be held before Friday.

Crystal City Has Stormy Council Meet

CRYSTAL CITY (AP) — A leader of a rival political faction was arrested on a charge of verbally abusing the Crystal City mayor after a stormy city council session Tuesday night.

"He called me an S.O.B.," Mayor Juan Cornejo said in ordering the arrest of Clarence Harper, an automobile dealer and secretary of the Citizens Association Serving All Americans.

Harper posted $400 bond. He refused to discuss what had happened. His organization opposes the Political Association of Spanish - speaking Organizations and the Teamsters Union, which are credited for electing the all-Latin city council here.

As about 60 angry spectators packed the city hall lobby, city councilman Mario Hernandez demanded a vote on a petition which in effect would call another municipal election in the fall. Hernandez and other council members have split since they were elected in April.

Cornejo moved to table the motion and city manager Georga Ozuna told Hernandez he was out of order.

"I'm the councilman — you're working for me," Hernandez retored.

The council session nevertheless was adjourned as Harper demanded to be heard.

Cornejo then ordered police chief Ray Perez to arrest Harper.

Harper went to the office of County Atty. Curtis Jackson, Texas Ranger Capt. A. Y. Allee and Perez followed. The police chief emerged half an hour later and said Harper had posted bond.

"I don't like this situation a bit," Perez said. "Someone may get killed here yet."

A moment before going to Jackson's office, Harper told several sheriff's deputies: "The people of Crystal City no longer have any rights. We are in the comrade camp."

Negro Area In Chicago Is Patrolled

CHICAGO (AP) — Police patrolled a South Side Negro area today after school integration pickets pelted police with bricks, stones and chunks of concrete in their demonstration against installation of mobile classrooms.

Four policemen and one woman were hit. One officer, struck on the forehead with a piece of concrete, was reported in fair condition in a hospital.

Task force commander Robert J. Lynsky, head of the police force at the site where 19 mobile classrooms are to be installed, was hit by a flying brick. He was not injured.

"This is no longer a demonstration," Lynsky said. "It is approaching the dimensions of a riot. I will no longer tolerate these rabble rousers and brick throwers."

About 50 persons were arrested during Tuesday's demonstration, the second day in a row of violence at the school site. Nearly 50 others were arrested Monday. Most of the persons arrested are Negroes.

Integration leaders said the picketing will continue.

Demonstrators say the classrooms foster de facto segregation in Chicago's schools and that Negro and white children should share each school in Chicago.

The Board of Education says the mobile classrooms are planned for the picketed site and "they'll stay there."

Adoula Still Faces Massive Financial Problem In Congo

By ROBIN P. MANNOCK

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Premier Cyrille Adoula was in a financial jam when he went to Europe for economic talks. He has returned to find himself still between the devil and the deep blue sea.

The devil is the specter of national bankruptcy from runaway inflation and massive government over-spending. The alternative is a devaluation of the Congo franc. This is being urged on Adoula by international experts.

A long-standing problem became urgent three weeks ago. The United States, the Congo's main source of aid, suspended two important items of aid in July in an attempt to force through reforms.

These items were money to finance the import of consumer goods to fill yawning gaps on the shelves of Congo shops and money for public works projects. Last year these accounted for nearly half the $73 million the United States poured into the Congo.

Experts say the current exchange rate of 65 Congo francs to the dollar is unrealistic. Some advocate a devaluation of up to 500 per cent for some imports. They say the present rate penalizes exporters, favors importers and encourages smuggling.

This is costing the Congo millions of dollars a year. Diamonds, coffee, tea, rubber, cotton and palm oil are being slipped across wide-open frontiers while customs men are bribed to look the other way.

Some importers have been smuggling out goods bought cheaply abroad with foreign exchange from the Congo's paper-thin reserves and selling them in neighboring countries where they fetch high prices in hard currency.

There has also been brisk illicit trafficking in surplus food donated by the United States to feed hungry Congolese. American officials here tear their hair at the sight of this food in Brazzaville, capital of the former French Congo.

This smuggling was one of the reasons for the cuts in aid, although shiploads of food are still arriving.

Most exerts are agreed that a devaluation, accompanied by other reforms, must come quickly if this drain on the Congo's economic strength is to be halted before the country bleeds to death.

Despite three troubled years, production of many export commodities is buoyant. In some cases it reaches the levels of the days when the Congo was a Belgian colony.

But government over-spending is likely to hit 17 billion Congo francs — about $260 million — this year, according to some experts. And internal prices have risen 300 per cent since 1960.

Informed sources said Belgium agreed in talks with Adoula to assume responsibility for almost half of the Congo's debt of 46 billion francs.

These sources said Belgium would take over the bulk of the foreign debt of 26 billion francs while the Congo would take charge of the rest.

Belgium also was reported to have agreed to hand over the Congo's portfolio of securities. The size of this portfolio is unknown, but it includes one-quarter of the shares of Katanga's giant Union Minieri copper and cobalt complex and the former Belgial Colony's holdings in other companies operating here.

An agreement also was reached on payment for the 2,100 Belgian teachers, doctors and technical advisers in the Congo. The sources said Belgium will pay two-thirds of their salaries.

Belgium may provide some of the short-term loans Adoula will need to bolster the Congo franc in the event of a devaluation. The United States had told Adoula it will not help unless Belgium is willing to help back the Congo franc, the best available sources say.

One expert estimated at least $50 million would have been necessary to prop up the Congo franc if devaluation had taken place July 15, the original D-day.

Estes Home Not Popular

PECOS, Tex. (AP)—The Billie Sol Estes home looks like a rank failure as a tourist attraction, the Pecos Daily News says.

Estes opened up his palatial home to tourists at $5 per carload and $20 for picture-taking last Saturday soon after he and his family moved to Abilene, Tex.

But the Daily News reported Tuesday night that only a trickle of visitors had been through the home, two miles from downtown Pecos.

"As far as we know," a reporter said, "nobody has taken advantage of the $20 price for taking pictures."

The Estes family left for Abilene after a cross was burned on the lawn and a shot fired into the house.

Estes is free on appeal bond after two fraud and swindling convictions.

Soviets Keep Mum During U. S. Debate

GENEVA (AP) — Diplomatic sources reported today Soviet Premier Khrushchev's government promised the United States last week not to exploit in any way the U.S. Senate debate over ratification of the limited nuclear test ban treaty.

They said that was why Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tesarapkin made no comment at disarmament talks here on U.S. Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara's claim that the United States is way ahead of the Soviet Union in nuclear power and the treaty would help keep it that way.

There has so far been no counter to McNamara's statement from Moscow either.

Delegates to the 17-nation disarmament conference agreed Monday to suspend debate on major issues, until the end of the year, but to keep up twice-weekly discussions of general subjects.

In today's session, the United State called on the Soviet Union to follow up the treaty with specific agreements to stop the nuclear armaments race and reduce the stock of fissionable material used to produce nuclear weapons.

Here's What Tax Plan Means To Individuals

EDITOR'S NOTE—The tax bill now being shaped by the House Ways and Means Committee is of bread-and-butter interest to every American who pays taxes. Although a long road to enactment lies ahead, the measure has advanced far enough to examine its dollars and cents meaning to you.

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP)—The tax bill is moving well enough along in Congress to have a look now at what it would do for you—or to you.

But before getting to the fine points, the big picture should be made crystal - clear: as things stand now, the measure would cut your tax payments.

True, the tax bill has a long way to go before it reaches President Kennedy's desk. The House Ways and Means Committee has lots of work still to do on the measure. Then it has to clear the House Rules Committee, face the full House and travel over to the Senate for another round of hearings and floor action. There it may run into a filibuster on civil rights.

This being understood, let's have a look at the tax bill as it stands now and see what it means to you if the measure in its present form wins approval.

If you pay any taxes at all, you'll be paying less. You would have to have a most peculiarly constructed income not to get some benefit from an across the board slash of tax rates, even though the package also includes some tax-raising features.

The Treasury puts the average rate cut, for taxpayers with taxable incomes through $60,000, at 15½ per cent. This picture is painted with a broad brush and applies to the rate changes when they would be complete, Jan. 1, 1965. Take it as a rough guide if you like—but no more than that. For 1964, figure two-thirds of the full saving.

However, in tax matters, everybody is a special case. How much benefit you would actually reap depends on a number of factors. Your income bracket, whether you receive dividends, whether you drive your automobile a lot, whether you buy, and sell stocks, whether your income fluctuates widely from year to year — all these and more can be important.

Some guidelines can be plotted, subject to possible change. Among them are these, all applying to the complete revision planned for 1965 and subsequent years:

—If your income is either very high or very low, you would do better proportionately in the reductions than the man in the middle.

The Treasury says a typical taxpayer, if there is such a creature, married and with two children, earning $4,000, would save $100, about 41 per cent of his present tax bill.

His counterpart in the $10,000 class would save $202, or 16.9 per cent.

For taxable incomes above $100,000, the savings would rise sharply. The new top rate would be 70 per cent from $100,000 up. The present top goes to 91 per cent at $200,000.

—If you have been in the habit of itemizing your deductions and claiming the amount paid in state gasoline taxes, a bit of your benefits would be nibbled away. Local gasoline, liquor and tobacco taxes would no longer be deductible, although income, real estate and general sales taxes still would be.

—And if you dent old trusty's fender, you would not be able to claim the whole repair bill as a casualty loss, only the amount over $100 for each mishap to car or other property.

—If you have considerable income from dividends, one change the Treasury wants made would nick your over-all tax gain. This would be repeal of the 4 per cent tax credit, a considerable offset to the tax benefit of many higher-income taxpayers. There may be a compromise that would minimize the effect on smaller dividend recipients.

—But if you are thinking of selling some stocks, real estate, or other property you have held at least two years and on which there will be a profit, you're in luck. You would only have to include 40 per cent, instead of 50 per cent of such capital gains in your taxable income. And if you're in a high bracket, your top capital gains tax would be only 21 per cent, instead of 25.

—One or two cautions: if you are in the business of building or buying real estate, taking maximum depreciation and selling in a few years to take the most advantage of capital gains—you face stiffened rules. And if in the future you inherit property on which gains have accumulated, you would encounter somewhat tighter tax treatment.

—If you are an author who sells a book to the movies, or an actor who lands in a hit after a series of lean years, or for some other reason your income shoots up more than a third, catapulting you into a higher tax bracket—you would have relief. The new tax law would provide a way of taxing the extra income as though it were spread out over five years.

—On fringe benefits, the changes would have an uneven effect. If you get sick and your employer continues your pay, you would get a special deduction for it only after a month, instead of the present rule of a week.

—But if you have moving expenses in connection with a job, you may get a better break. The rules would be liberalized in some details.

—If your employer buys a big group life insurance policy for you, you might be taxed on part of the value of the premium as income. But you don't have to worry about this unless the employer's contribution alone buys more than $30,000 coverage for you.

—If you are an executive benefiting from a stock option plan, look for a tightening of the regulations. An important change would require you to hold option stock for at least three years if you want to enjoy the benefits of capital gains tax.

—If you are 65 or older, the new law would give you at least two specific benefits. Your purchase of medicines would be fully deductible, without regard to the present 1 per cent of income floor. And if you sold your home, you would get capital gains tax consideration on any increase in value, even if you did not buy a new house. There would be no tax on gains if the house sold for no more than $20,000, and there would be a reduced tax if it brought more.

Town Under Martial Law

BRAZZAVILLE, Congo Republic (AP)—Martial law preserved an uneasy calm in Brazzaville after a day of battle that may herald the formation of a revolutionary movement seeking to overthrow President Fulbert Youlou.

A 5 p.m.-to-5 a.m. curfew was enforced, and gatherings of more than three persons were forbidden.

Labor unionists, after launching a general strike, stormed the Brazzaville jail Tuesday, freed imprisoned labor union leaders and all other prisoners and set the building afire. They also sacked the city's television station.

Decrease Is Seen In Crude Demands

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission forecast Tuesday a drop in crude oil demand for September of 35,280 barrels daily.

September nominations are for 2,522,455 barrels daily. The Bureau of Mines forecast is 2,560,000 barrels daily, off 50,000 barrels daily from August.

The forecasts will be considered by the commission Thursday when it sets the September allowable.

Space Winds Hit Invisible Walls

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Imagine a hurricane wind smashing an invisible wall?

Space satellites are finding evidence that just such a collision occurs 40,000 miles from earth with dramatic effect, Dr. Louis A. Frank and Dr. James Van Allen of the State University of Iowa said today.

The wind is composed of atomic particles from the sun and smacks the walls of the earth's magnetic field at its outer limit.

The collision, Dr. Frank said, could explain why the shimmering northern lights turn on; why the earth has a long tail stretching out on its nightside; why radios sometimes black out; why some radiation hazards are for astronauts and, even how the outer Van Allen radiation belt is formed.

Frank, 24, read the joint report to a symposium summarizing the results of the International Geophysical Year in 1957-58, when space satellite exploration began. It was then that the first Van Allen radiation belt girdling the earth was detected.

Subsequent data from satellites, especially explorers 10, 11 and 12 and 14, and the Soviet's Mars 1, 2 and Lunk 2, have formed this picture for scientists:

The solar wind, composed of electrons and protons, runs into the outer limits of the earth's magnetosphere, the field of magnetic force surrounding the earth about 40,000 miles out.

A shock wave is created when the solar wind, traveling many thousands of miles per hour, strikes this magnetic field. The wind bounces back but much of it could flow on around, pushing the earth's magnetic field into a tail on the dark side of the earth.

In an amplifying interview, Frank said the evidence could explain a number of phenomena, including some that are witnessed on earth.

It could explain some of the solar wind particles reach earth to cause northern lights or produce storms high in the atmosphere that make radio communications fail.

Rites Held Tuesday For Sen. Kefauver

MADISONVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Estes Kefauver, a Tennessee Democrat who made his mark in the U.S. Senate and created a memorable campaign picture as the man in the coonskin cap, was buried Tuesday at the family home in east Tennessee.

As the mahogany casket was lowered, a downpour swept over the crowd of mourners, among them Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and Adlai E. Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Kefauver, 60, died last week after a heart attack.

His widow, Nancy, forced a smile occasionally during the simple service on the porch of the century-old home. Their son and three daughters sat with her.

An Air Force honor guard bore the coffin, draped with the flag, to the grave.

Many of Kefauver's colleagues in the Senate, where he crusaded against crime and monopoly, were present along with the Tennessee congressional delegation and Gov. Frank S. Clement.

Business establishments of his hometown, population 1,800, were closed in tribute. A state trooper estimated the crowd in town at 5,000 to 10,000.

Kefauver sought the Democratic presidential nomination in 1952 and 1956, losing both times to Stevenson. He was Stevenson's running mate in 1956.

3 Wounded By Gunman

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A berserk gunman fended off policemen with wild blasts from a shotgun for more than two hours Tuesday night, wounding three persons before he was flushed from his home by tear gas and captured.

Armand A. Borgese, 29, a Pittsburgh fireman, repeatedly fired from the windows as policemen ringed his North Side home, crouching behind patrol cars and other objects for cover.

Pellets from Borgese's gun wounded a patrolman and two bystanders, none seriously. A shot in the direction of police Supt. James W. Slusser finally triggered his capture.

Slusser and another officer were at the home of Borgese's father, next door, when a shotgun blast shattered window glass near their heads. Slusser returned a carbine shot that wounded Borgese in the [illegible] and police let go with two volleys of tear gas.

As the stinging fumes filtered through the house, Borgese walked outside, still carrying the weapon.

"No shooting! no shooting!" police cried.

Lurking behind a car was patrolman Robert Everett and his police dog. The dog lunged at Borgese, and Everett moved in, wresting the husky fireman to the ground.

Borgese was taken to St. John's General Hospital, where he was reported in fair condition.

The hectic night for police began as a routine assignment to investigate a domestic disturbance.

By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN (AP)—In mid-September the Texas Industrial Commission will begin teaching, city by city, how to attract industry.

The commission, assigned the task of bringing industry to the state and helping local businessmen present a better sales talk to out-of-state interests, call its new program "Operation Tips," a shorter name for Texas Industrial Planning Seminar.

Using roundtable-type discussions, commission personnel will sit down with city leaders from two communities each month for a full day of talk on local problems relating to industry.

Irving has the first appointment Sept. 19. Bill Shelton, assistant executive director of the commission, says two busloads of residents are expected.

"There will be no lecturing," he said. "We hope to sit down and talk with local leaders, making available to them our experience and knowledge."

"By bringing local leaders to Austin we will be free of interruptions and will have more time to talk than when we attempt to visit them in their communities."

Shelton said the commission will submit by mail items that the various communities may wish to discuss.

"For instance," he said, "If a community has water problems, it will check that item and we will bring in authorities in that field to talk with the city's leaders when they come to Austin. We hope to employ any state agency or official that might be helpful to local communities, including the governor.

"In fact, the governor is very enthusiastic about the program and was instrumental in getting it started."

Shelton said that although the commission had considered such a program for several months, it was not until last week that a meeting was held with Gov. John Connally to work out final plans.

A six-month schedule of meeting has been drafted, Shelton said, but available dates have not yet been mailed out.

He said Irving already was scheduled only because it heard about the program unofficially and asked for the first appointment.

Meeting dates are Oct. 18-25, Nov. 8-15, Dec. 6-13, Jan. 10-24, Feb. 7-21 and March 6-20. Others will be set later.

Bathyscaphe Tries Again

BOSTON (AP) — The bathyscaphe Trieste returns today for a second try at finding the nuclear submarine Thresher, this time with help from brightly painted discs planted on the ocean floor.

Trieste will be towed to the search area 220 miles east of Boston. The trip takes four days.

Thresher disappeared April 10 while on a test dive with 129 men aboard.

Painted and numbered discs were planted in a pattern around what is believed to be the grave of the Thresher, 8,400 feet below the surface.

The Navy said 1,441 discs, each weighted to secure it to the bottom are intended to provide more precise data on the bathyscaphe's position as she crawls along the bottom.

Only 109 meteorites have been discovered in Australia. Six times that many are known in the United States.

Search For Trio Held Up

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP)—Rescuers waited today for ventilation to clear deadly gasses before resuming the search for three miners trapped and presumed dead 380 to 450 feet below ground.

Trapped in the Fellin Coal Co. mine near Sheppton, about 15 miles from Hazleton Tuesday, were Louis Bova, 42, Pattersonville; David Fellin, 58, Sheppton, and Henry Throne, 48, Hazleton. The slope where they were working was filled with tons of coal and rock.

Mine officials indicated there were no hope the men survived.

H. B. Charmbury, state secretary of mines, suspended rescue attempts after workers were forced back by deadly gas and passages blocked by rock, coal and debris. Charmbury ordered the walls shored to prevent another cave-in.

Did Someone Sink Your Gravy Boat?

We hope not, but if they did, and it was the Golden Rhapsody China from your El Paso Red Flame Service Station, then it can be replaced. But hurry, for after 32 months of a most successful promotion, El Paso is going out of the china business . . . yes, we're going back to selling oil and gasoline.

But, we don't want to leave you with a half-completed set, so see your friendly El Paso Red Flame dealer this week, and ask him to box for you the china you need.
