Rigid Price Prop Bill Gains Support

By DAYTON MOORE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 —UP— The Senate Agriculture committee appeared Saturday to be leaning toward a farm bill providing for a return to rigid high price supports and a 45-million-acre soil bank costing about $1 billion this year.

The bill also will call for stepped-up efforts to reduce the $7.7 billion surplus of farm crops.

Probable provisions include a two-price system for rice this year and a limitation on the size of government price support loans.

Chairman Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) told the United Press he hopes the committee can complete action on the legislation next Saturday. It will start voting on its various provisions probably Thursday.

Most members of the 15-man committee have expressed support for some form of a soil bank which President Eisenhower proposed as a means of paying farmers to cut production of corn, cotton, rice and wheat. The committee probably wil extend it to peanuts.

A decision has not yet been reached on the basis of payment to farmers for voluntarily taking out of production 20 million acres of land planted under allotment to the five basic crops listed above. However, it was agreed that the payment per acre should be more than the farmer would have made if he had raised a crop on the land. This land would lie idle in an "acreage reserve."

A "conservative reserve," the other phase of the soil bank, is designed to get farmers to shift 25 million acres of marginal lands to conservation crops, such as grass and trees.

Cost Estimated

Cost of the entire soil bank this year is estimated at between $700 million and $1.25 billion.

Sen. Price Daniel (D-Tex.) said in a statement that "Benson farm program" has been a failure. He said he has urged the committee to look into a soil bank plan proposed by farmers in the Texas Panhandle and South Plains.

Under the plan farmers would not be paid to withdraw acres into the soil bank. But they would be guaranteed 90 per cent of parity supports on basic crops and feed grains if they diverted 15 per cent of the tillable land on each farm to conservation uses.

President Turns Down Red Bid For Non-Aggression Pact

By DONALD J. GONZALES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 — UP — President Eisenhower Saturday offered Russia a four-point "hand of friendship" peace plan in turning down a Red offer of a 20-year U. S.-Russian pact.

In a friendly but unmistakable language, the President said Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin's treaty proposal "might indeed work against the cause of peace."

Bulganin advanced his proposal in a letter delivered to Mr. Eisenhower Wednesday.

Mr. Eisenhower told Bulganin that the Soviet premier's treaty proposal might create "the illusion that a stroke of a pen had achieved a result which in fact can be obtained only by a change of spirit."

While avoiding acceptance of Bulganin's plan, Mr. Eisenhower said a "vast change would be effected not only in our relations but throughout the entire world" if there were:

1. "Prompt measures to reunify Germany in freedom within the framework of security. . ."

2. Carried through "our wartime pledge to respect the right of peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live. ."

3. Mutual opening of Russia and the United States to inspection so that the possibilities "of surprise attack would vanish" and release of productive power for betterment of mankind "if reductions of armament were made practical."

4. Free exchange of news, information, visits and ideas between the two countries would clear up "the mountain of distrust and misunderstanding" between the two.

Bulganin in his long letter to the President proposed that the two powers sign a "treaty of friendship and co-operation" which would last for at least 20 years after it came into force. Bulganin's proposed four - article treaty would pledge both sides to develop friendly relations "on the basis of equal rights, mutual respect for state sovereignty, and non - interference in internal affairs."

Mr. Eisenhower pegged the heart of his reply delivered to the Kremlin Saturday on the fact that such a treaty was really not necessary because both nations had undertaken such principles in the United Nations charter.

Mr. Eisenhower wrote Bulganin that the present state of international tension, however, was not prevented by the words of the UN charter.

"How can we hope that the present situation would be cured merely by repeating those words in a bilateral form?" Mr. Eisenhower asked.

"I wonder if again going through a treaty-making procedure, and this time on a bilateral basis only, might indeed work against the

Woman Killed In Automobile Mishap Here

Mrs. Elsie Elizabeth Chambers, 40, of Crescent, Okla., was killed in a one-car accident eight miles east of here on Highway 153 about 12:50 a.m. Saturday when the car in which she was a passenger missed a curve and collided head-on into a tree.

Claud Winkler, 38, who was driving the '55 Buick, received severe concussion of the brain and deep lacerations on the head as a result of the accident. He was admitted to Highland General Hospital for treatment about 1 a.m. Saturday. His condition was described as "fair" by the attending physician.

The automobile missed a curve by Heaton Elevators, according to investigating highway patrolmen, hit a guard post and collided head-on with a tree, smashing in one side of the car against another tree. The roof of the car was demolished.

It is believed that Mrs. Chambers died instantly. Her body was sent to Crescent, Okla., Saturday, and funeral arrangements are pending.

Education Banquet Set

Dr. Morris Wallace, dean of education at Texas Tech College and a member of the President's Advisory Committee on Education, will speak on the "White House Conference" for the Adult Education Banquet to be held in the high school cafeteria Thursday, Feb. 9, at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Wallace makes recommendations on his findings concerning school problems as a result of his study with the national committee. He will give a report on the educational conference held in Washington D.C.

A special invitation has been extended to the school superintendents, school officials, and PTA units in this area. Representatives are expected from White Deer, Lefors, Borger, Canadian, Miami, Groom, Wheeler and Shamrock, and about 200 leaders are expected to attend.

John Gregory, executive associate of the Adult Education program at Texas Tech, will be present.

Tickets are available at Loxett Memorial Library from Mrs. Lillian Snow, head librarian, and from other members of the Adult Education Board.

Mock Disaster Planned For Scout Units

Special training sessions were held for three Boy Scout Explorer Units Saturday morning in preparation for "Operation Disaster", a mock disaster program to go into effect sometime between now and March 10 of this year.

The specialized training sessions were held for Boy Scouts participating in three phases of the many-phase project, in rescue and first aid, traffic control, and operation of the control center. Post 4 Explorers received instruction in traffic control from Chief of Police Jim Conner. Crew 22 was instructed in control of the "nerve center" of the entire operation in the City Commission Room. Richard Newberry, representing Post 14, was instructed on the use of a gas mask and rescue work by Captain W. D. Powers of the Fire Department.

About 16 units of Explorer Scouts will participate in one of the largest projects of this type ever undertaken by Explorers, according to Phil Pegues, district scout executive.

Although the operation is planned primarily for Explorer units, the boy scout troops, National Guard, police and sheriff's department, and fire department will cooperate in the "mock" disaster.

The control center will keep a running situation map, keep a master assignment sheet making assignments to units as they come in, and dispatch radio units. They will keep in constant touch with each situation and report completion of problems to the man keeping the situation map. At the end of the operation, they will notify the fire department to give two long siren blasts to indicate termination of activities. They will use mobile radio units of the National Guard in the operation.

Other activities to be undertaken by scouts include: shelter and first aid, food distribution, search and first aid, an anti-looting patrol, collection teams, "victims" and looters.

Texas Insurance Probe

Key Witnesses Say Shoemake Sole Boss

By LLOYD LARRABEE

AUSTIN, Jan. 28—UP—Four key witnesses told House investigators Saturday A. B. Shoemake rode personal herd on his insurance enterprises and discussed the details with no one.

As members of the five-man House Committee called an indefinite recess, there were these other developments in Texas' insurance scandals:

1. Rep. Jerry Sadler of Percilla called for impeachment of Insurance Commission Chairman J. Byron Saunders and Commissioner Garland Smith, as well as legislators who exerted "undue influence" in behalf of U.S. Trust and Guaranty Co. The committee said it will act on no recommendations until their inquiry is completed.

2. Sen. Rogers Kelley of Edinburg expressed willingness to appear before either House or Senate committees investigating insurance scandals allegations, but denied any personal involvement. The Edinburg law firm with which Kelley is associated has been named as having received two checks, totaling $4,800, from Shoemake. Kelley said the money represented fees for handling "local, routine legal matters."

All Four Testify

The four witnesses testified from 10 a.m. until almost 2 p.m. They were Alfred J. Bistany, chief claims attorney for Shoemake's companies; Mrs. Mary Eggebrecht, chief cashier for Southern Medical and Hospital Services; and Tracy Hlavaty and Mrs. Gladys Hope, both of whom served as personal secretaries to Shoemake. All were from Waco, home-office of the Shoemake enterprises.

Bistany frankly told the committee he sought on numerous occasions to learn more of Shoemake's business activities.

He said it was the natural interest of an employe.

"Do you think you ever found out what was going on," committee chairman Wade Spilman inquired.

"I don't think anybody ever did," Bistany replied.

He Doesn't Know Much

Under committee questioning Bistany said he knew of no legal services performed by Kelley's law firm, Sen. Carlos Ashley of Llano or Sen. Kilmer Corbin of Lubbock.

Ashley told Senate investigators

Perryton Sets School Bond Vote Feb. 11

PERRYTON — (Special) —The Perryton school board has set Saturday, Feb. 11, as the date for a bond election to provide $360,000 with which to build new classroom space at the local school plant.

The election will be held at the high school building with Sam Hergert as presiding judge.

Plans have been under way for some time to present this bond election, and the board has employed the Amarillo architect firm of John P. Work and Associates to draw plans for the proposed buildings.

It is planned to add a 10-classroom building for the elementary grades and to build an additon to the high school.

A new cafeteria is also included in the plans, along with remodeling and changing the existing buildings to better provide facilities for all three schools.

Under the proposed plans submitted by the bonding companies, the $30,000 issue can be handled without addi.. any more to the yearly bond payments now in effect.

These bonds are to bear interest at 3½ per cent and are to be retired in 18 years.

The school board and administration have emphasized that the additional building program is based on needs for a normal growth in the Perryton schools and is not designed to take care of any unusual influx of students connected with the oil activity.

'Tokyo Rose' Free From U.S. Prison

By BOB McKOWEN

ALDERSON, W. Va., Jan. 28—UP— Tokyo Rose, the American girl who turned traitor for the Japanese in World War II, was released from prison Saturday and showed no repentance for the broadcasts in which she taunted American troops with swing music and talk of income.

After six years in prison as a female "Benidict Arnold," Mrs. Iva Toguri d'Aquino said "all I ask is a 50-50 chance to get back on my feet." But the federal government made the one-time Jap radio propagandist's future uncertain by threatening to deport her from the country she betrayed.

Mrs. D'Aquino, 39, walked out of the federal reformatory for women here at 6:15 a.m. After talking briefly to reporters she sped away in an automobile to Chicago with her brother, father and a sister.

She Carries Warrant

She carried a warrant which ordered her to appear in Chicago for a hearing at an undisclosed date when the government will open hearings to oust her from the country.

"It's nice to be on the outside," Tokyo Rose told newsmen waiting outside the prison walls in 15-degree cold.

She spoke in a low, soothing tone, apparently not unlike the sexy, seductive voice she used in radio broadcasts to taunt lonely American GI's throughout the Pacific.

Views Unchanged

Rose, a native of Los Angeles and a graduate of the University of California said the views which led her to work for the Japs had not changed. But she refused to discuss them further.

The former propagandist, who was sentenced to a 10-year term on Oct. 7, 1949, said she had "no complaints" about her stay in the prison where she worked as a secretary in the hospital. The authorities treated her "fine" and she got along well with the other inmates, she said, including Mildred Fisk, the "Axis Sally" who is serving a term for making similar broadcastes for the Germans to American troops in Europe.

Rose had hoped to find a job as an assistant to an American doctor or dentist, but immigration officials shattered this dream late Friday night. They awakened her in her cell and served the notice of deportation action.

KPDN Has New Weather Service

Radio Station KPDN is now on a 24-hour weather warning service following special arrangements with the U.S. Weather Bureau in Amarillo.

The arrangements were completed late Friday morning between H. C. Winburn, meteorologist in charge of the weather station in Amarillo and Coy Palmer, co-owner of KPDN.

The plan calls for personnel of the station being called by telephone from the Amarillo weather station at any hour of the morning that the station is off the air. That would be from 12:01 a.m. o 6:00 a.m.

The station will be opened and broadcasts of pending storm warnings made both directly from the weather station in Amarillo and from the main studios.

Palmer said the new set up is in line with KPDN's effort to steadily increase its public service to local and area listeners.

Throughout each day, at regular intervals, direct weather bureau reports are made over KPDN with either Winburn or one of the other meteorologists making the reports.

Chaing Claims He Could Defeat Reds

EDITORS NOTE— Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has given an interview to United Press Staff Correspondent William Miller in Taipei. In the interview which follows, Chiang discusses his prospects for staging a counter-attack on the Red Chinese mainland and his views on forthcoming Washington talks between President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Anthony Eden.

By WILLIAM MILLER

TAIPEI, Formosa, Jan. 28—UP —President Chiang Kai-shek said Saturday that if he is left unhindered by outside influences that the time has come when he can successfully counter-attack the mainland of China and overthrow the Communist regime.

President Chiang said the people of mainland China would rapidly join his cause once a beachhead is established on the mainland.

He said that after six years of preparations on his counter-attack base in Formosa an attack could now be launched at any opportune time.

The generalissimo said that if he had the free world's assistance in counter-attacking the mainland then well and good but he was not depending on it.

He asked only that the Western nations do not hinder him in his efforts to retake the China mainland.

Asked what outside influences might hinder him, Chiang replied he was referring to the Western powers, and particularly Great Britain.

The 69-year-old leader of Nationalist China made these remarks to the United Press and one other American journalist, (Emery Bass of the Saturday Evening Post) at his suburban home with Mme. Chiang Kai-shek at his side.

He emphasized these other major points:

1. The forthcoming talks in Washington between Prime Minister Anthony Eden and President Eisenhower may touch on matters relating to the China situation and the talks may adversely affect the Nationalist Chinese government.

At any rate, he expected no good to come of the talks.

2. The idea of two Chinas is impossible. If Red China is admitted to the United Nations, then Chiang would order Nationalist China out of the world body.

3. The offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu would be defended to the death and not one inch would be given up to the Communists.

Chiang emphasized that these islands were part and parcel of the Formosa-Penghu defense complex and were in no way similar to the Tachen Islands which were abandoned about this time last year.

Man Kills Family, Commits Suicide

PARSIPPANY-TROY HILLS, N.J., Jan. 18—UP—A father killed six members of his family, including his two small children and his aged invalid mother, with a shotgun Saturday and shot himself in the head, police reported.

Police Chief Leo D'Orsi said 48-year-old William Bauer, a trustee of the Parsippany First Methodist Church, went berserk "for no apparent reason" in his seven room ranch house here after a scheduled Florida vacation had been postponed unexpectedly.

He killed his wife, Alice, 43; his daughter, Elizabeth, 5; his son, Peter, 18 months; his mother, Ann, 84; and his mother and father-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Neiber, police said.

The bodies were found strewn through the Bauer home by a neighbor shortly after 12:30 p.m. The neighbor investigated when he saw an automobile in the Bauer driveway. He knew the family had planned to leave for Florida Friday and entered the house.

D'Orsi said the house was strewn with empty cartridges from Bauer's single-barrel pump action shotgun. He said the gun carries eight shells in one chamber. The weapon was found under Bauer's body in the living room.

The body of Bauer's wife was found in a hallway between a bedroom and bathroom. The children's

Juveniles Ordered To Pay For Thefts

Sixteen Pampa youths who were recently involved in damages and thefts fro man old farm house, called the "Haunted House," appeared in Juvenile Court before Judge Bruce Parker Thursday.

After the group admitted causing damage to the house, Parker ordered them to make restitution for the damages. He ordered three of them to pay for theft of old tires and metal taken from the farm.

Most of the metal taken has been recovered. However, some of it had been cut up by junk yards which purchased the stolen goods. The boys will have to return the usuable metal, repay the junk dealers and also make payment to a Pampa service station where they sold old tires.

The group also was to pay for damages to the farm house.

The owner of the property has not lived in the house for several years and is now living in South Texas. The land is being farmed by W. E. Jarvis.

Jarvis told the court he had been missing items over a period of several days. He said he waited around the barn until midnight Wednesday, when five of the boys came out and he caught them. He intervened, however in the boys' behalf and asked the court not to be severe in issuing punishment.

Parker added that the boys had been using the house to pull pranks on their friends.

That you can do what a pilot does. That you can switch the pitch of your Dynaflow blades—just by flooring the pedal. And that you get, instantly, a full-power take-off from cruising pace—an electrifying burst of acceleration—the most thrilling safety measure on four wheels today.

This is performance too good to pass up—and you really ought to try it.

It's performance sparked by the whispered might of big new 322-cubic-inch V8 engines raised to record highs in power and compression.

he accepted $10,000 in cash from Shoemake for legal work. Corbin said he was paid $500 to represent Southern Medical and Hospital Services.

However, Bistany said he understood a "lot of assignments were made by Mr. Shoemake personally ...there was a great deal of work, and who handled those matters, I don't know."

Bistany said he knew both by reputation and correspondence Sen. Jep S. Fuller of Port Arthur. Fuller told the Senate committee he was paid by Shoemake for actual courtroom representation of the company.

Bistany said this was ture to his personal knowledge.

He praised Fuller for doing a good job and added:

"I have to see any inference that he got any money he didn't earn. I talked to him (Fuller) on the telephone, but I never saw him. He did a fine job for the company and the policyholders ... he represented the company very adequately in the Beaumont area," Bistany said.

The witness said he had $50 invested in U.S. Trust and Guaranty "certified drafts" when the firm was put out of business in December.

In addition, he said the company owed him $30 in expense money.

Savings Withdrawn

Mrs. Eggebrecht testified she bought certified drafts at one time but drew them out, and later opened a regular bank account with her savings.

bodies were sprawled in the dinette. Mr. and Mrs. Neuber's bodies were sitting upright in the living room. Their bodies were riddled with shotgun pellets.

Bauer's mother, who had been bed-ridden for four years, was shot in the chest as she lay in bed. She was to have been taken to a nursing home while the family was away on a two-week vacation.

After Bauer stalked through his home, shooting one member of his family after another, he fired a shotgun blast into his head.

Police said Bauer, an inspector of road materials for the state of New York, had been a stalwart member of the Methodist congregation.

Neighbors said the Bauers were one of the "nicest" families on the street in the new Sedgefield section of town occupied by middle class families.

A total of 25 petitions were ordered along with applications and election notices. According to Thut, 10 men will be necessary to sign the aplication requesting the petitions, before they can be circulated for the 2,080 necessary signatures.

Notices will be posted after the County Commissioners receive sufficent names on the petition to call the election. The election will be ordered by commissioners after receiving the petitions with the required number of signatures. Each petition signer must indicate his address and poll-tax receipt number.

Refugee Relief Committee Formed Here

A Gray County Committee to act as representatives of the Governor's Committee for Refugee Relief was formed Friday night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Massa with 15 representatives of civic clubs present.

Mrs. Nina Spoonemore, county welfare director, was recently named local representative for the committee by John H. Winters, state committee chairman. She will act on behalf of the state committee in Gray County. The committee was appointed by Governor Allan Shivers at the request of President Eisenhower to inform the people of Texas on the Refugee Relief Program.

Mrs. Haven D. Lemmon, Potter County representative of the Governor's Refugee Relief Committee, led the discussion and explained the duties of the local committee set up to inform the public of the Refugee Relief Act of 1953.

Under the act, 214,000 displaced persons were declared admissible to this country. This includes 4,000 war orphans. Recent figures show that slightly more than 43,000 have obtained sponsors and have migrated to the United States. Of this number it is estimated that less than 500 have been brought to Texas.

The Gray County Committee, as representatives of the Governor's Committee, will give the details of the program to any group, citizen or employer interested in providing a new opportunity to a refugee.

Members of the board of directors are: Homer Craig, O. G. Stokley from McLean, Mrs. J. B. Massa, Miss Josephine Thomas of Alanreed, Mrs. Robert Sanford, Sam Begert, Rev. Ronald Hubbard, Dr. Joe Gates; and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Specht and Mrs. Carl Lang, who are immigrants to this country.

Representatives will contact prospective organizations and individuals to obtain sponsors for refugees, assist the refugees in making adjustments in their communities, and keep the public informed of the various voluntary agencies active in resettling refugees.

The next meeting of the group will be held Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Spoonemore, 617 N. Gray, to discuss the formation of a speaker's bureau to handle requests from clubs and to organize for information on the county. Plans call for the formation of a Rehabilitation Committee, an English class, and the forming of an International Club here.

cause of peace by creating the illusion that a stroke of a pen had achieved a result which in fact can be obtained only by a change of spirit.

"Friendly collaboration between states depends not solely upon treaty promises but upon the spirit that animates the governments of the states concerned and upon actual performance."

After stating this nation's conviction that American-Soviet relations must be "urgently" improved, the President said:

"This nation holds out the hand of friendship to all who would grasp it in sincerity. I have often said, and I now repeat, that there is nothing I would not do to promote peace with justice for the world. But we know that it is deeds and not words alone which count."

The White House said that this country's Allies "know of the tone" of the correspondence between Bulganin and the President.

Mr. Eisenhower's reply came only three days after Bulganin's letter was delivered personally to the President by Soviet Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin at an extraordinary White House meeting.

At the time, the White House described Bulganin's message as a "friendly letter" setting forth "certain ideas... in the interest of promoting world peace."

The President's reply completed the second exchange of correspondence between Mr. Eisenhower and Bulganin on the subject of peace since their Geneva summit meeting last July. It was at Geneva that Mr. Eisenhower had proposed his "open skies" disarmament proposal.

The first communication on the subject of peace was a letter from Bulganin dated last Sept. 1 in which the Soviet premier threw cold water on the President's plan. Mr. Eisenhower, following his Sept. 24 heart attack, replied Oct. 11 in a brief message saying a fuller answer required preliminary work by his advisers.

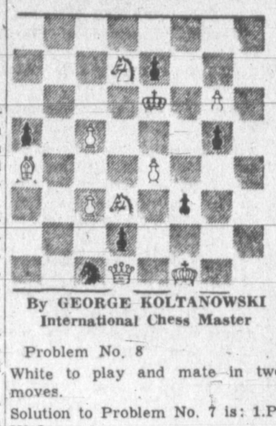
CHESS CHATS



By GEORGE KOLTANOWSKI
International Chess Master

Problem No. 8

White to play and mate in two moves.

Solution to Problem No. 7 is: 1.P-N8-Q.

Solutions should be postmarked not later than Friday and should be sent to "Chess", c-o Pampa Daily News, Texas.

THE NOTED HOME-RUN HITTER, if he cannot find his pet bat, is very "put out" — often literally. And everybody knows enough to keep out of the way of a champion golfer, if anything goes amiss with his favorite clubs.

Chess champions are no exception to the temperamental spasms natural to devotees of any exacting pastime.

Famous for his outbursts was the late David Janowski, who on this account was a poorer match than tournament player.

In his match with Frank J. Marshall, then U.S. champion, a small piece of plaster, or other material, perhaps one-eighth of an inch in size, fell from the ceiling to the chessboard.

Janowski started up, violently protesting he could not continue, that his "combination" was ruined, etc., etc.

Persuaded to resume, he lost the game, many moves later, and of course, claimed it was all the fault of the plaster. He lost the next game also, in much fewer moves, but it is not recorded whether the entire ceiling fell on that occasion.

Some noted players are quiet in their demeanor, but the nervous ones often slam down a piece, as if breaking it would enforce victory.

Alphonse Dellaney, French player, in a match in Belgium, brought down a pawn so hard as to shatter it. Asked for an explanation. "Pouff!" he exclaimed, "C'est rien (that's nothing); in Paris I break zee rooks!"

ALBIN COUNTER GAMBIT

Weaver W. Adams thinks 1.P-K4 wins for White, but he also thinks the Albin Counter Gambit wins for Black against 1.P-Q4. Nobody else agrees, but nevertheless it's always a problem how to meet the Albin. Here's how Tolush met it at Hastings when Horne played it on him:—1.P-Q4, P-Q4; 2.P-QB4, P K4; 3. PxKP, P-Q5; 4.N-KB3, N-QB3; 5.P-KN3, B-KN5; 6.B-N2, Q-Q 7.O-O, KN-K2; 8.P-QN4!

That's new to us. Play went on! —8....NxNP; 9.P1K6. BxP; 10.N-K5 Q-B1; 11.Q-R4ch, QN-B3; 12.NxN, NxN; 13.BxNch, PxB; 14.QxPch, B-Q2; 15.Q-K4ch, B-K2; 16.B-R3 with a winning game for white.

CHESS NOTES

Next Tuesday is the final night for finishing up the first round-round informal tournament. It is also the deadline for paying of poll-tax. Not that the two are connected in any way, or are they?

Tony Welker, tournament director, urges everyone to be present—and that includes every single person in the club— at the next meeting to finish up the old tourney and start in on the new. Results of the last tournament, with Dr. A. J. Welker leading way out in front, will be indicated in the next appearance of this column.

The results, by points, of the first seven chess problems will be indictated in this column next week and the final results will be announced at a later time.

A business meeting of the Executive Committee will precede a club business session to be held on Tuesday, Feb. 2, begining at 7 p.m. All members of the Pampa Chess Club are invited to attend this committee meeting.

When West doubled four spades in today's hand, he practically shook the room. There was no doubt that he expected to tear South limb from limb.

As it happened, Bill Joseph, well-known Paterson expert, held the South hand. Bill has been doubled before and has lived to tell the tale, so he didn't get panicky in this case. The outcome in fact, was far closer to his expectation than to West's.

West opened the deuce of hearts, and South immediately assumed that West had all of the missing trumps, some combination of three hearts, and the king of diamonds. East's opening bid had announced a long heart suit with very little high-card strength, and the penalty double of four spades told the rest of the story.

Armed with this information, declarer took the ace of hearts and ruffed a heart immediately. He next cashed the ace of diamonds and tried to sneak a diamond trick through by continuing with the nine of diamonds.

After much doubt, West stepped up with the king of diamond (fortunately for him) and shifted to the seven of clubs.

Bill took the ace of clubs in dummy, ruffed another heart, cashed the king of clubs, and then led the queen of diamonds. By this time West was reduced to his five trumps, with only one defensive trick taken thus far.

Bill Joseph continued with another diamond and West had to ruff with the jack of spades in order to shut the dummy out. With only trumps left in his hand, he had to return a trump.

Declarer won with the nine of spades won another diamond, forcing West to step up with the queen of spades.

Now West had to lead away from his king of spades, giving declarer a free finesse and the doubled game contract.

Kirk Douglas Strong Ulysses

Kirk Douglas is undoubtedly the only actor since Douglas Fairbanks Sr, who could have undertaken the strenuous title role in Paramount's magnificent epic "Ulysses," and played it with authority and a genuine feeling for the part. For Ulysses was a top-flight sailor, a champion wrestler, a bowman of extraordinary talent, and above all a man of superb physique and presence. All of these attributes Kirk Douglas comes by naturally, and in the mighty Technicolor drama now at the La Nora Theatre he displays them with power and commanding skill.

A former collegiate wrestling champ and Navy Purple Heart winner, Douglas performs with the agility of the trained athlete and sailor, and as co-star Silvana Mangano will testify, with the warmth and presence of a Casanova.

C of C Backs Gas Bill

The Pampa Chamber of Commerce fired telegrams yesterday to Texas Senators Johnson and Daniel and also to Congressman Walter Rogers last week in support of the Fulbright Bill which would sever Federal control of the producers and gatherers of natural gas.

The Chamber supported a companion bill known as the Harris Bill (H. R. 6645) in the House last spring which passed. Should the Senate Bill (Fulbright S. 1853) pass the Senate, the Federal Power Commission would no longer have control over producers and gatherers of natural gas. They would be left to the initiative of private interprise.

Arthur Teed, chairman of the Legislative Committee, of the Chamber in commenting on the matter, points out (1) that the gas producing industry is competitive and not a monopoly - it does not have the characteristics of a utility and therefore should not be regulated as such; (2) Federal control at the wellhead of interstate shipment would tend to limit use of natural gas to the producing areas, thus raising costs elsewhere; (3) Federal control would tend to stop expolrations for new sources of natural gas—risk taking enterprise responds to the free market; (4) Federal control would seriously interfere with the oil and gas conservation programs of the various states; (5) Federal control of natural gas would establish a dangerous precedent leading toward Federal control of competing and other industries.

A telegram was received by Teed last week from Walter Rogers in response to the telegram. The text of his wire is as follows:

"Please be assured of my continued, vigorous efforts for the early passage of legislation that will sever Federal control of the producers and gatherers of natural gas." (Signed - Walter Rogers)

ABC-TV Says Disney Not Swicthing Over To NBC

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK —UP— The channel swim. . .

ABC-TV is busy knocking down reports that their anchor man, Walt Disney, wil move to NBC-TV. Disney, who is reported to collect some $2 million a year from ABC-TV, is supposed to be asking for double that amount. One ABC-TV official, however, points out that Disney still has more than five years to go on a seven-year contract.

What you didn't see on NBC-TV's "Wide Wide World" last Sunday was even more interesting than what went on your home screen. A wildcat bit off a ranger's finger right to the knuckle in a shot from Florida's Everglades, a cameraman slipped on the ice at Niagara Falls and broke his arm—and the zoomar lenses froze tight on the cameras at six different cities, throwing them completely out of operation.

The dope around NBC-TV has it that there will be some major changes in the Steve Allen crew if and when he succeeds in moving his "Tonight" show to the West Coast. Right now, three hotels in the Los Angeles area are bidding for the Allen show.

The "double" who'll try to rescue 14-year-old George Wright on "The Big Surprise" this Saturday will be 14-year-old David Osborne of Columbus, Ohio. If the rescue comes off, young George will get another crack at the $100,000 prize.

The first sign that greets a visitor to Arthur Godfrey's sixth floor office at CBS-TV is this one: "Don't look back, some one might be gaining on you."

Ray Bolger may be back on TV in a new filmed series soon, "Greenwich Village."

CBS-TV is cooking up a spectacular for early summer built around John Hersey's novel, "A Bell for Adano."

Robert Montgomery, who is TV consultant to President Eisenhower, has made good use of his recent trips to Gettysburg. He directed some exterior scenes in the Gettysburg area which will be used in his forthcoming show about Abe Lincoln, "Good Friday, 1865."

Wanted Man Arrested In Perryton

PERRYTON — (Special) — Thomas Frederick Jessen, wanted in Kermit, Lovington, N. M., and Amarillo on charges of burglary and passing stolen payroll checks, was arrested in Perryton Friday morning.

Making the arrest were Woody Woods and Les Crain, city policemen, assisted by Clyde Crain, member of the Borger police force who was visiting his father Les Crain.

Jessen was surprised while sleeping in his car, a new Mercury, on Brillhart avenue across the street from the C&E Cafe. A pick-up order had been received by the police radio earlier in the evening, and Woods spotted the car that morning.

He went after the two Crains and the three men made the arrest, taking away a pistol from the surprised Jessen in the process.

A search of the car revealed an assortment of merchandise, plus an assortment of tools. There were clothes, blankets, a hacksaw, chisels, boots, shoes, welding mask and other miscellaneous items in the car.

Police chief Doc Binion called Jim Anderson, owner of the Anderson Paint and Body Shop, for assistance in searching the car for a quantity of stolen payroll checks. Anderson located the checks, hidden under the lining of the truck compartment of the car after he took the trunk apart. These checks were dawn on the Fanning Drilling Co. of Kermit.

Amarillo deputies came after Jessen Saturday morning. After handcuffing the man, they gave him another search, and found a large "switchable" knife concealed in a shoe.

La Swanson Tells Of Famed Schiaparelli

By GLORIA SWANSON
Written for United Press

ROME— "Shocking" and Schiaparelli are two words which bring to mind a beautifully vivid pink, a lovely scent and a dynamo of a person who lets off sparks in the form of new ideas. No longer is Schiaparelli a couturier confined to apparel, but a company known in France as "Signed Schiaparelli."

The ideas are not only for milady, but also now for gentlemen as well. For them she recently invented a drink called "Shock Rocks" (pink vodka on ice). This isn't a joke. I have seen it in her home in Paris.

And speaking of her home, here is a house unlike any other on this earth! It could easily be a museum.

To describe it in detail, I'd need an entire newspaper. Besides, it must be seen to be believed. If I tell you ot is cluttered, that is putting it mildly. I thought I saved things! (That doesn't mean we are collectors—it means we never throw anything away).

Well, my recollection out of a maze of "things" was a collection of horns. Not musical horns, animal horns! All sizes and shapes. Oh yes, and some very long elephant tusks.

I can't tell you what period the furniture was because I don't remember seeing it. The couch I sat on was covered with a leopard skin throw. The cocktail table was littered with bottles and glasses. Every other table and the piano had "objects of art" and bric-a-brac mementoes without an inch to spare because of the porcelain horns, crystal works of art (horns) and paintings, many of which rest on chairs that need repair — and more horns!

Books on Floor

This woman's passion for the unusual in the old as well as the new was certainly in evidence. I don't imagine there is a duplicate to be found in the whole world of anything in her petite salon, or was it a library? There were books but I seem to recall they were on the floor.

Her clothes collections when she had her couturier business in Paris were always unlike the French designers. It was she who started the pedded shoulders that were in vogue longer than any style I can remember.

Before we parted this week, Schiaparelli graciously invited me to stay with her in Paris, which I accepted promptly. All the horns pointed directly at my heart wouldn't stop me from seeing what is on the second floor.

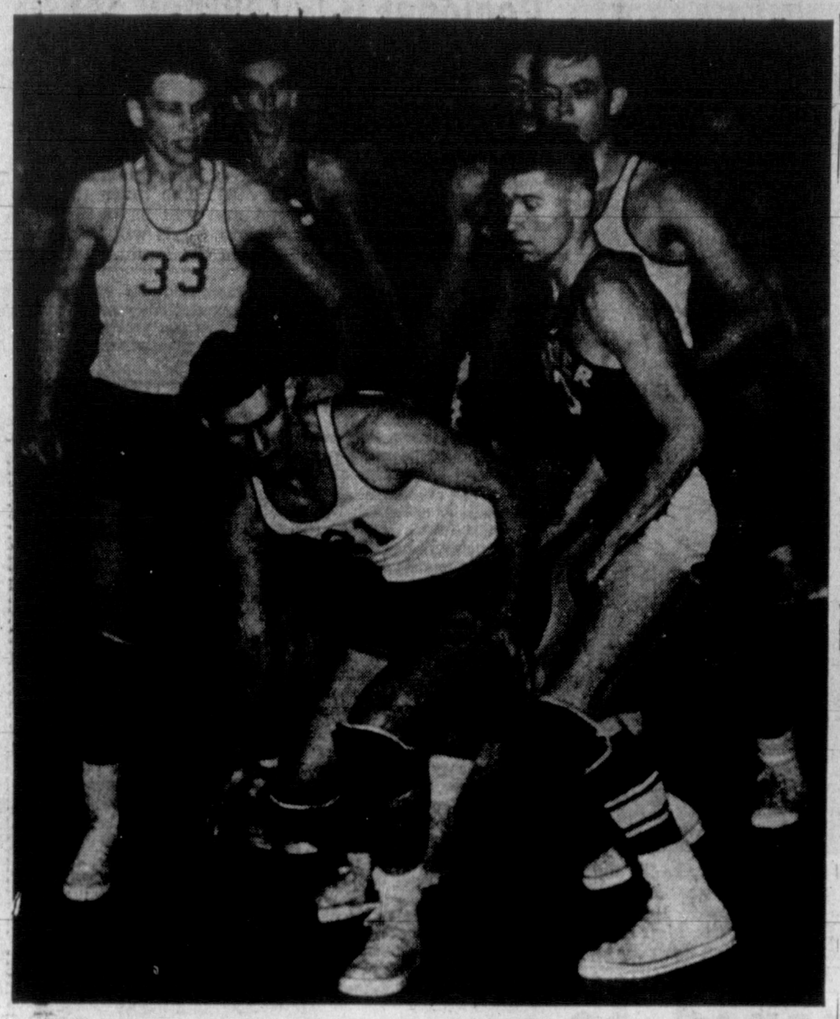
Bulldogs Nip Harvesters 63-57; Take District 1-4A Lead



OOPS — Buddy Sharp was fouled here by Jim Hines, 3. The foul was Hines' fifth of the game which sent him to the bench for the first time of the season. Sharp cut the Bulldogs' lead to six points, which was the shortest lead they had in the fourth period. Jerry Gee and Tommy Gindorf are right there to take the ball for a lay-up as the Green and Golders' basket is directly above Gee's head. The Bulldogs won 63-57. (News Photo)

Hall's 14 Points In First Quarter Gave Bulldogs Win

The top rated Borger Bulldogs pulled ahead of the Pampa Harvesters by nine points in the first quarter of the deciding game of the 1-AAAA district play Friday night and went on to defeat Coach Clifton McNeeley's five 63-57 before a packed house.

Jerry Hall, Borger sharpshooter, was hitting from all over the court during the first quarter to give the Bulldogs 14 of their 18 points. Gene Brown and Dickie Mauldin, who usually hit in the first period better than the remaining three, were cold until the middle of the second frame. Mauldin was scoreless and Brown had only two points in the first.

The first quarter lead was what defeated the Harvesters as they racked up three points more in the final three periods than the visitors.

Both the Bulldogs and Harvesters counted for 16 points in the second quarter but the Borger five hit for 11 in the third and Pampa made only 10. The Green and Golders racked up 22 in the last frame while Borger counted for only 18.

Jerry Hall's hot spot in the first period gave him more points in the single quarter than he was able to account for in the remaining three. He came up with the high point honors but counted for only 12 points on four field goals and the same number of free tosses after the first.

Jerry Gee was the high pointer for the McNeely five as he dumped in a total of 18. Gindorf was held to two free throws in the first period one of which put the Harvesters ahead of the Bulldogs 2-1 for the only time they led which was the score with three minutes of play gone.

The Harvesters defense on Jerry Hall loosened and he was allowed to take shots from the corner which he seemed unable to miss.

Two Borger cagers were held scoreless which was the first time such an incident had happened to Tex Hanna's ace guards, Simpson and Hines. Hines, who usually gets through a game with only one or no fouls at all, had to leave the game for the first time in his career with too many personals.

The Bulldogs led the Harvesters 18-9 at the end of the first quarter, 34-25 at the half, 45-35 at the end of the third and the final score was 63-57.

The two teams will meet in the Borger Fieldhouse on Friday February 3. They will rest this week with no scheduled conference game for Tuesday. Coach Clifton McNeely and Tex Hanna will both probably be working on offense and defense for the all-important game which could see either team win the Borger contest.

The defeat here in Pampa dropped the Harvesters into second place in district standings with the Bulldogs riding high just as many scribes predicted.

The Amarillo Sandies, by virtue of their defeat of the Lubbock Westerners Friday night, are in third place and the Westerners are last having been defeated three times in three games.

Burke Leads PGA Tourney In An Upset

DUNEDIN, Fla., Jan. 28—UP—Pete Burke, Huntington, N. Y., club pro who never won a major tournament, jumped into the lead of the annual PGA Seniors golf tournament Saturday with a two-under-par 70.

The 51-year-old Burke played methodical golf all the way and took over first place from opening round leader Bill Black of Huntsville, Ala. Burke, younger brother of former National Open champ Billy Burke also fired a 70 Friday and has a 36-hole total of 140.

Black had trouble with his putting and slipped to fourth with a second-round 76 over the tough PGA course here. The 54-hole tournament is for professionals 50 or older.

Ock Willoweit of Dayton, Ohio fired the best round of the day, a four-under-par 68 that put him in second place just one stroke behind Burke with a total of 141. Willoweit was unbeatable with his putter, never missing a shot at the cup under six feet.

Frank Strazza, Greenwich, Conn., professional, shot a 71 for a total of 142 and third place.

Defending champion Mortie Dutra of Calexico, Calif., who was tied for second Friday with Pete Burke dropped to a 75 in the second round for a total of 145 that put him in a tie for fifth with Billy Burke of Cleveland, who had a 73.

Rangerettes Win Runnerup Trophy In Gruver Games

PERRYTON — (Special) — The Perryton Rangerettes won the runner-up trophy in the Gruver Invitational Basketball tournament after dropping a 54-52 decision to Canadian.

The lead changed hands rapidly all during the game, and a last minute stall by Canadian staved off a late rally by the determined Rangerettes.

The Rangers dropped their first game to Dalhart, 58-47 and were eliminated from the tournament by Canadian.

The Morse Mustangs won the championship of the boys division by beating Gruver, 54-49.

Canadian won the consolation by beating Sunray, 48-37 while the Spearman girls beat Morse 35-27 for the girls consolation title.

Russia Takes Lead In Winter Olympics

By PETER UEBERSAX

CORTINA, Italy, Jan. 28 —UP—Russia flexed its powerful athletic muscles over snow and ice Saturday and pulled away to a commanding lead in the winter Olympic games with a world record in speed skating and a cross-country skiing gold medal by a 37-year-old lady school teacher.

Evgeniy Grishin, a 28-year-old jeweler and bicycle-racer, proved himself the world's fastest man on ice skates when he lowered the existing 500-meter record by six-tenths of a second in winning the event in 40.2 seconds.

Only a few minutes before, Lubov Kozyreva, a stocky, blonde teacher, won the USSR its first gold medal of the 1956 classic when she sped over the undulating 10-kilometer (6.2-mile) cross-country ski course in 38 minutes and 11 seconds.

Reds Take Big Lead

In each event, a Russian athlete also placed second and fourth giving the Soviet a bonanza of 36 points for the day in the unofficial team standings. Added to 10 gleaned in Friday's events, that gave Russia total of 46 points — more than three times the number of its closest pursuers.

Italy also achieved a 1-2 sweep, taking the first two places in the two-man bobsled competition to move into a second-place tie with Finland, at 15 points.

Lamberto Dalla Costa, a daring 35-year-old jet pilot in the Italian air force, won the event with the four fastest heats. Favored Eugenio Monti placed second.

Yank Star Hurt

For the Americans, it was another largely frustrating day marred by an injury to bobsledder Ed Seymour of Rochester, N. Y., which may hamper the U. S. chances in the four-man event next week.

The U. S. hockey team defeated Poland, 4-0 and virtually assured itself of a place in the six-nation championship round-robin pool. But the triumph was accomplished only after a tongue-lashing from the team manager for lack-luster play had aroused the Americans to a three-goal last-period spree.

U. S. athletes collected three points in bobsledding and another in speed skating for a meager 6 1-2 point total that placed them in a tie for seventh place in the unofficial team standings.

Oilers Replace Hardaway With Allen Cross At 3rd

The Pampa Oiler Community Baseball Association has signed Allen Cross, a veteran third baseman, for the coming season. He will be taking the place of Curtis Hardaway who was sold recently.

Cross is 28 years old and has been playing class AA baseball in the past years. He has played with Shreveport and Oklahoma City. He managed a Shreveport farm club last year and was released as a free agent when the club dropped the farm system.

Jim Martin, Oiler catcher last season, had a lot do with getting the third sacker to come to Pampa. The two had played together previously and Martin wanted him to be a team-mate this coming season.

Grover Seitz has heard from Paul Halter also and he will be ready to go when spring training gets underway in March.

The Oilers "Big Three" pitching staff, which won 60 games last year, will be back at bat this year. Red Dial, Jack Venable and Tom Pollet have all indicated that they are ready to "toe the rubber" for the Oilers.

Shreveport manager, Bonneau Peters, has promised the Oilers all the help he can give them this season. He is a good friend of Oiler manager, Grover Seitz.

Joe Fortin is dickering for the managing job this season and if he doesn't get it he will be right back at first base doing the Oilers a good job of fielding and keeping their home-run average up with his big bat.

Seitz will also have some more ball players signed up next week and if ace shortstop, Rack Slider, doesn't make the starting line-up of the Shreveport Sports he will be back with the Oilers for the beginning of the season.

Seitz said yesterday, "If Slider and other promises come through we should have a better infield than we had last season. We should compare favorable to that of the Amarillo Gold Sox and they are playing in the Western League."

The addition of two more veterans in the league should make it a great deal faster than it was last season concluded Seitz.

DALLAS, Jan. 28—UP—Cary Middlecoff, the nation's second leading money winner among the professional golfers in 1955, will be the principal speaker for the annual sports achievement dinner here Feb. 6.

Date for the diner, jointly sponsored by the Downtown YMCA Saturday Morning Quarterbacks Club and the Texas Sports Writers Association to honor the sports writers, coaches and athletes of the year, as well as selection of the speaker were announced Saturday for the first time.

The dinner will be held at the Downtown YMCA.

Monty Basgall To Manage Waco Club

PITTSBURGH —UP— The Pittsburg Pirates Saturday announced that Monty Basgall, former Pirate infielder would serve as playing manager of the club's Class B Big State League farm club at Waco, Tex.

This will be Basgall's debut as a manager although he has been in organized baseball 11 years. He served three hitches with the Pirates and later played with Hollywood and Seattle of the Pacific Coast League.

The Pirates also announced the signing of three outfielders, including Ramon Mejias, former Waco player who hit .216 as a Pirate rookie last year. The others were Bobby Del Greco and Lee Walls, both of whom were at Hollywood last season.

Gainesville Coach To Corsicana

GAINESVILLE, Tex. —UP—Ed Duesekhas resigned as football coach at Gainesville high school to become coach at Corsicana high school.

Dusek, a former Texas A&M back, coached two district championship teams in his three years at Gainesville.

B Team Coach Joe Harell, who was promoted to Eaves' job, is under consideration for a job at the University of Wichita.

Pampa Golfers Edge Amarillo In Tournament

The Pampa Harvester Golf team, coached by Weldon Trice, played in a four-way tournament Saturday and emerged champions.

Pampa's Don Prigmore came up with a 72 even-par for the low score of the Lubbock tourney.

Melvin Chisum was the second low scorer for the Pampa five as he shot a 74 for a two-over-par. He was followed closely by the other Pampa golfers, Bill McLeod, 81, Leslie Howard 82 and Bert Watkins who shot an 88.

The Pampa five emerged champions with a total score of 400 while the Amarillo five ran a close second only 15 points behind. Lubbock's Tom S. was third with a 427 and Monterey was fourth with a 436 mark.

Tulane Guard Signs NFL

NEW ORLEANS —UP— Tony Sardisco, an outstanding guard at Tulane University for the last four years, Friday revealed he has signed to play professional football next season with the San Francisco Forty-Niners.

Australia's Landy Cracks Four-Minute Mile Again

MELBOURNE, Australia —UP— World record-holder John Landy of Australia ran the second fastest mile in track history Saturday when he clocked 3:58.6 in the Victoria championships at Olympic Park.

This marked the third time Landy ever had run the distance in less than four minutes. His feat Saturday was six-tenths of a second slower than the world record of 3:58.0 which he set at Turku, Finland, on June 21, 1954.

Saturday's feat, witnessed by a crowd of 12,000, was regarded the convincer in Landy's indecision whether to compete in the Olympics. During the summer of 1954, Landy announced that he "was through chasing fast times" in distance races.

"I think I can do better," Landy said after Saturday's race. "I was very sluggish at the start but the last 150 yards were very pleasing. I never finished better."

The 24-year-old Australian also ran a "miracle" mile in the British Empire Games at Vancouver, B.C., when he lost to Dr. Roger Bannister of England, on Aug. 7, 1954. Bannister was clocked then in 3:58.8 and Landy in 3:59.6.

This marked the eighth time a trackman ever has broken four minutes for the mile, a feat that always had eluded the efforts of the world's greatest runners of the past.

Fairway Gambling Banned To Save 'Amateur Spirit'

By CARL LUNDQUIST

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—UP—The U. S. Golf Association, seeking to save the "amateur spirit" from destruction, imposed strict rules Saturday on all forms of fairway gambling and asked member clubs to enforce them on an honor system.

In a strong stand at the annual meeting, the USGA said flatly that gambling and golf were not compatible and that members who flagrantly violated the amateur rules would be in danger of forfeiting their amateur status. The rules also were directed at country clubs which have conducted questionable Calcutta pools and other tournaments with heavy emphasis on gambling. The executive committee declared in a statement that "golf is a game to be played primarily for its own sake, especially amateur golf."

"When it is played for gambling motives evils can arise to injure both the game and individual players," the executive committee report said. Therefore member clubs and all other sponsors of golf competition are urged to prohibit gambling in connection with tournaments."

The association named Bill Campbell, of Huntington, W. Va. the captain of the victorious U. S. Walker cup team as the recipient of its second annual Bobby Jones award for outstanding good sportsmanship. Last year's winner was the veteran amateur golfer, Francis Ouimet of Boston.

Mrs. Harrison F. Flippin of Ardmore, Pa., the non-playing captain of the women's Curtis Cup Golf team named seven players to compete in the bi-ennial amateur tournament with Great Britain, to be held this year at Sandwich, Eng., on June 8-9.

The personnel consists of Pat Lesser, the women's amateur champ from Seattle, Wash.; Jane Nelson of Indianapolis, the runner-up; Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore, the eastern amateur champion; Mrs. Scott Probasco Jr., of Chattanooga, Tenn., the women's southern champion; Polly Riley, the Trans-Mississippi winner of Fort Worth, Tex.; Barbara Romack of Sacramento, Calif., the runner-up for the British Women's championship and Margaret (Wiffi) Smith of St. Clair, Mich., a quarterfinalist in the 1954 girl's championships.

Trip To England Set For The PGA Senior Champion

DUNEDIN, Fla. —UP— An all-expenses paid trip to England was the big attraction here as a creaky but game bunch of 193 "old pros" teed off in the opening round of the national PGA seniors golf championship.

A $1,000 bonus also will go to the winner of this 54-hole tournament for golfers who have reached their 50th birthday. But most of the old-timers were shooting for that trip to England and a berth in the British Open championship.

Included in the bulky field were five former National Open champions — Olin Dutra, Billy Burke, Johnny Farrell, Fred McLeod and Tony Manero, who just turned 50 and will be the youngest player in the tournament.

Other prominent competitors were defending champion Mortie Dutra, 1954 Seniors champion Gene Sarazen, Jock Hutchinson Harry Cooper and Denny Shute.

Mitchell, Strickland Signed With Indians

CLEVELAND, Jan. 28—UP—The Cleveland Indians said Saturday that veteran outfielder Dale Mitchell and shortstop George Strickland have returned their signed contracts for 1956.

The two additions put 19 Tribesmen inside the 1956 teepee.

Mitchell has been used primarily as the club's No. 1 pinch hitter in the past two seasons. He has been effective in that role and last year had a .259 batting mark for the season, his lowest since joining the Tribe in 1946.

'Life Begins At 40' Golf Tourney Set

HARLINGEN, Tex., Jan. 28—UP—The fourth annual "Life Begins at 40" amateur golf tournament begins Sunday, but in order not to tire the participants the first day will be devoted to catching and eating of fish.

A total of 224 men from 17 states and Mexico have registered for the tournament of which Warren L. Riepen of St. Joseph, Mo., is defending champion.

Tournament favorites this year besides Riepen include David (Spec) Goldman of Dallas, Phil Powell of Wichita Falls, Norman Copeland of Chicago, Lonnie Wednland of McAllen, Tex., and A. J. Kuenstler of Alice, Tex.

A pre-tournament parade was held Saturday. The golfers, all amateurs who must admit to being at least 40 years old in order to play, were permitted to ride in automobiles, instead of having to walk through downtown Harlingen.

The all-day "fishing and-or boating" excursion is scheduled to leave Port Isabel Sunday morning and return in time for a fish fry Sunday night on Padre Island.

Qualifying rounds will be shot Monday. First-round matches in seven flights are scheduled for Tuesday.

The tournament continues throughout the week on the Harlingen Country Club course, with finals in all flights slated for next Saturday.

Optimist fighters won four of their six bouts at the Wellington Golden Gloves Tourney Thursday night. The card included 16 bouts with Pampa fighters featured in six.

Claude Bailey took a decision over Kenney Bradley, Tulia, for the first win for the Optimists. Bailey fights in the 65-pound pee-wee division.

Bill Martin came through with the second Pampa win in the 75-pound division over Raymond Sanders of Wellington. Durwood Williams, Borger, then came out to defeat Lucky Dunham in the first night fights. James Snider was the only other Pampa mittman to lose a decision as the other two Pampa fighters came through with TKOs in the first round.

Raul Ramirez and Larry Powell stacked up the only TKOs for the Pampa mittmen as Ramirez defeated Royce Young, Memphis, and Powell dropped Steve McGarock, Tulia.

Win Three Second Night

Pampa ring-men didn't do too well Friday night as they won three and lost three.

Dickey Powell lost a close decision to Wellington's Jerry Williams in the 60-pound class while Keith McKinney took one over Tulia's Ronnie Love. Bill Martin then took a forfeit from Chipper Baker of Memphis.

Paul Edwards, Pampa's 80-pounder, lost a decision to Wellington's Dale Gardner and Stanley Lawler was decisioned by Canyon's Zeke Clement.

Larry Powell and Dickie James came through for the Optimist mittmen again in the second night fights with victories over Tulia and Canyon glovemen.

James won by a TKO over Roy Stedham, Tulia, while Powell took a well earned decision over Ross Bond, Canyon.

Richard Conner got an eye cut and the fight had to be stopped with Austin White, Wellington, taking a TKO for his night's work.

Don North lost a close decision to David McCaskill, Wellington, for the last high school bout of the evening.

Pampa Mittmen in the finals Saturday night were Claude Bailey, Keith McKinney, Bill Martin, Joe Dunn, Dickie James, Larry Powell and Kenneth Wood.

Wellington's coach, Jimmy Thompson, has done a good job with the boxing club and should come up with a strong bid for the Regional team trophy according to Pampa coaches.

Goodwin Upsets Stewart

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Jan. 28—UP—Pert Joanne Goodwin, the 19-year-old golfing whiz from Dartmouth, Mass., upset medalist Marlene Stewart in a spectacular nip and tuck battle Saturday to win her way into the finals of the Doherty Women's Amateur tournament.

The shapely brunette, who has been the surprise star of the tourney, took the match from the Canadian Amateur champion on the 18th green when Miss Stewart just missed a nine-foot putt that would have given her a tie and a chance to win in extra holes.

The 1-up victory puts Miss Goodwin, Massachusetts Amateur champ, into the 36-hole championship round Sunday against Cookie Swift Berger of Buffalo, N.Y.

Miss Berger whipped Jeannie Dobbin of St. Louis, 2 and 1, in the semifinal round Saturday.

AT THEIR FINGERTIPS — Scotty Griesheimer jumps high to score with a fingertip shot for Ohio University as Jack Smith of Western Michigan attempts to block it.

Culberson Meets Packers In First Industrial Tilt

The Culberson Chevrolet five will take on the Panhandle Packing quintet Monday night at 8 in the opening game of the Pampa Industrial Basketball league.

The League, which was recently organized, will include a double round robin schedule with four teams participating.

The Culberson team is headed by Fred Jones while Wendell Fuchs is the coach of the Panhandle Packing five.

Noblitt - Coffey and Stanolind Oil are the other teams in the league. They will get together for their first league game on Thursday following the league opener Monday.

Regional G-G Tourney Set January 31, February 2-4

Optimist fighters are still at work preparing for the Amarillo Regional Golden Gloves Tournament which is set to get undreway January 31. The tournament will continue through February 4 and will be on television February 1 and 3. The last night finals will be the conclusion of the boxing program in the Panhandle of Texas.

The tournament will include district champions from four areas plus a host of other amateur fighters from Amarillo. The high school bouts should include fighters from Pampa, Borger, Wellington and Plainview and perhaps a few from Guymon, Okla.

The open division is expected to draw many of the champions from last year's tournament and some of the high schoolers from last year will be entering the open class this time.

The fights, scheduled for Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday will include some of the best talent of the tri-state area. Five of the open champions of last year have indicated that they would be back for another shot at the state title and with another year's experience they should present one of the best tournaments ever held.

The Amarillo Globe News sponsored tourney should include Duggie Jameson, Paul Pulley, Carrol Stafford, Herman Betke and Bill McFarland again this season.

No boy that has reached his 19th birthday before Sept. 1, 1955 will be eligible to enter the high school division. This new rule, proposed by the Pampa Optimists, has been put into use this year and if it works out will probably go down in the rule books.

The tournament is open to all amateur fighters under the age of 28. All high school fighters will have to have certification that they are eligible to participate in high school athletics.

Trophies will be presented to all winners and runner-ups in each division of the high school and open divisions and the open class champions will get an expense paid trip to the state finals held on February 15-20.

Several '55 winners who are not coming back this year are fly weight Joe Lira, bantam winner Charlie Cates and lightheavy Lester Ramsey.

Pampa and Borger split the high-school team trophy last year and each team will be out for the win again this year. Borger will be going without Scooter Darden this season and will be weakened slightly. They will be taking Jerry Argovitz, Gary Braden and Earl Young who did a good job in the '55 tournament though.

Pampa will be taking Clovis Shipp, Gary Wills, Gary Wilhelm, Larry Powell, Raul Ramirez, Jerry Lamar, Charles Snyder, Jesse Ring and Johnny Claunch in the high school class and Tommy Lamar and Kenneth Wood will be fighting in the open class.

Pampa's hopes of winning the tournament this year are about the same as last year's as several of the champions are on the list again this season.

Officials Try To Break TV-Guild Links

NEW YORK —UP— Tex Sullivan and his attorneys were expected to try to break an apparent link between his Monday-night TV fights and the International Boxing Guild at Wednesday's resumption of the New York State Athletic Commission's hearing.

The hearing will determine whether Sullivan and his London Sporting Club shall lose their licenses to promote the Monday fights at St. Nicholas Arena. Nine charges have been filed against them.

Willie Gilzenberg of Newark, N.J., was a co-promoter with Sullivan and a co-defendant until Tuesday when he surrendered his New York license as treasurer of the London Club and announced he had sold his interests in the club to Sullivan.

An apparent link between Sullivan, his club and the International Boxing Guild was forged Tuesday by Chairman Julius Helfand of the commission when he questioned Robert A. Dreyer, general colinsel for the Dumont TV network, about original negotiations for the Monday fights on April 27, 1954.

Helfand asked Dreyer, "When Sullivan and Gilzenberg came to your office to negotiate the fights, was anyone with them?"

Dreyer replied, "They were accompanied by Bill Daly, Jack Kearns and Charley Johnston."

Those three fight managers are officials of the International Boxing Guild — Johnston, president; Daly, secretary - treasurer, and Kearns, vice president.

The nine charges include consorting with criminals, and Tuesday's new charge of shifting $66,787 from New York to a New Jersey bank "to pay part of the money to persons not licenses by the New York Commission."

Goofiest Fights Have Happened To Ludwig Lightburn In Old Mexico

TODAY'S SPORTRAIT
By GLENN STACKHOUSE

SAN FRANCISCO — UP—Prize fighting has seen some screwy decisions since the days when the old Roman gladiators used to belt 'em out for keeps with a fistful of nuts and bolts.

But take it from Ludwig Tilden Lightburn — when the goofiest fights are fought today, they'll be staged in the tank towns of old Mexico.

The slim British Honduran lightweight with the heavyweight monicker should know.

Born on the shores of the Caribbean within shouting distance of the southern border of Mexico, Ludwig has pounded his way right up the middle of Central America with a pair of knobby brown fists that may one day knock the crown off the 135-pound champ.

Where else but in the land of manana could a fighter knock out his opponent in five rounds and decision him in 10 in the same encounter?

"It's true," says Ludwig. "That is what happened when I fight Gaby Macias in a little town close to Mexico City in 1952."

Ludgwig, a soft-spoken, easy-smiling young Negro said the Macias in question was the brother of Raul (Raton) Macias, the former world bantamweight champ.

"This Gaby is not such a fighter," says Ludwig. "In the fifth round I get him with a left hook to the stomach and he goes down. The referee counts to 10.

"I am taking bows and waving to the crowd when somebody hits me a rabbit punch in the back of the neck. It hurts plenty, I tell you.

"I turn around and its Macias. He's up off the canvas and he wants to fight some more.

"I just naturally go into a fighting stance and the crowd begins to holler. The referee motions for us to get going again.

"I win a decision in 10 rounds. The referee tells me he knew I couldn't lose anyway and he thought the crowd ought to get its money's worth."

These screwball deals seem to follow Lightburn around, especially in Mexico.

"One time I TKO Freddie Herman in seven and I lost the fight," he recalls.

"This one was in Juarez in 1954," he says.

"In the seventh round I have Herman on the ropes and I open a big cut over his eye. Herman covers his head with both arms and turns around the ropes and waves for the seconds.

"The doctor comes in a' looks at the eye and calls the fight off.

"Everybody gets excited. The first thing I know the ring is full of Mexicans and look across and the referee is raising Herman's glove.

"After the fight, the ref comes to my dressing room and says he's sorry. He says he meant to raise my hand but he gets mixed up and forgets what he's doing.

"We're supposed to have a rematch for a big gate," Ludwig chuckles delightedly at the memory. "But Herman has one more fight and retires. It's still in the books that I lost."

Ludwig had been campaigning in the States without attracting too much attention until he suddenly came into his own last month. That was when he took on Ralph Dupas in Madison Square Garden on a national TV hookup and proceeded to hand the New Orleans speedster a first class pasting.

Right now the slender, whip tough British subject is on his way to becoming 1956's first darling of the TV fans. And barring another Mexican decision, he could be the next lightweight champ of the world.

Baylor Quarterbacks And Guards To Get Attention

WACO, Tex., Jan. 28—UP—An abundance of quarterbacks and a lack of guards will get the most attention from Coach Sam Boyd as he starts his first spring training as head coach of the Baylor Bears Monday.

Boyd, an assistant who was promoted to head coach when George Sauer stepped up to full time athletic director in December said he planned few changes from the predominantly conventional and single wing T-formations in use under Sauer.

Two lettermen will be absent from spring drills — halfback Del Shofner and tackle Clyde Letbetter. Shofner is playing varsity basketball, yhie Letbetter, a 1953 sophomore who's been in service two years, will not re-enroll until September.

Will Seek Passing Attack

But, with Doyle Traylor, Bobby Jones and Kenneth Helms all available as tested quarterbacks, he said he planned to put more emphasis on passing to improve on the .498 completion record of last fall when Traylor sat out most of the season with a broken leg.

Willie Forebel and Gilbert Pelton will be the only lettermen guards to report among the approximately 80 candidates Monday. Disciplinary action and an injury took the team's top three guards at one whack last fall.

Boyd said he probably would do quite a bit of juggling of guards, tackles and centers to work out the best possible experienced combination.

Two promising tackle prospects in Dave Lunceford and Billy Joe Kelly will enhance Boyd's chances of making these shifts since starters Bill Glass and Bill Parsley return to their old jobs along with Bobby Jack Oliver and Fred Britton.

Transfers to Be Ready

Lunceford, a 1954 starter was ineligible last season; and Kelly had to sit out 1955 under the transfer rule. He was from Del Mar College.

Center Bill Bustin, a transfer from Kilgore Junior College, may win the pivot job from Sophomore lettermen Lee Harrington and Larry Cowart, while another Kilgore transfer, fullback Billy Pavliska, will offer insurance at fullback where Ronnie Guess will also be returning after a year's layout because of a knee injury.

And Excell Amyett also will be available again after a year's scholastic ineligibility to go along with lettermen ends Tony DeGrazier, Bill Anderson, Earl Miller and Jerry Marcontell.

Other lettermen returning include guard Henry Rutherford, halfbacks Bobby Peters, Dick Baker and Joey Allen and fullback Reuben Saage and Charles Dupree.

Tatum, Wilkinson To Tangle Again

CHAPEL HILL, N.C.—UP—New Coach Jim Tatum will get another crack at Orange Bowl foe Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma when North Carolina meets the Sooners Sept. 29 at Norman, Okla.

In this year's Orange Bowl clash, the Sooners downed Tatum's Maryland team for their second bowl victory over the Terrapins.

The game with Oklahoma will be the second on a 10-game North Carolina 1956 scheduled announced here Friday by Athletic Director C. P. (Chuck) Erickson.

The Tar Heels will face the same foes they met last year including in addition to Oklahoma such powers as Maryland and Notre Dame. The 1955 North Carolina squad won three and lost seven.

Two Minor Changes Made In '56 Texas League Schedule

DALLAS, Jan. 28—UP—Two minor changes have been made in the 1956 Texas League schedule since it was adopted by directors at Shreveport two weeks ago, the league office revealed Saturday in making the 154-game schedule public.

The schedule, to be run off in 148 playing days, will open April 13, ignoring a Friday the 13th jinx possibility, and close Sunday, Sept. 9 with the All-Star game set for Thursday, July 19, in the city leading the league after games of July 11.

The changes affect the Austin and San Antonio clubs, a game originally scheduled for June 6 at Austin being moved to San Antonio and one scheduled for San Antonio June 26 being shifted to Austin.

Austin will have 76 home days, Oklahoma City 72 and the rest 74; San Antonio and Shreveport will be on the road 73 days, the others 74; Tulsa and Shreveport will have 12 Sundays at home, Oklahoma City and Austin 10 and the others 11.

July 19-20 will be off days for all clubs, while Oklahoma City and Shreveport also will take an off day May 21 and Oklahoma City and San Antonio will be off June 4.

Grudge Match, Hypnotist Top Wednesday's Mat Card

They'll be here again this week! The two lady wrestlers, who turned on the referee last week, will be in the ring again this week to finish what they got started on last week's card.

The Shrine Club has signed Miss Kathy Lee and Miss Joan Ballard as the main event for Wednesday night's wrestling card.

The girl, after wrestling for two falls, turned on the referee, gave him a good mauling and tore his shirt off after "questioning" some of his decisions.

Referee Gene Detton declared the match "no contest" and neither of the girls was satisfied and challenged each other to a "no match if they could have another referee.

The girls have agreed if they can get Frankie Murdock to referee the match they will go again.

The other main event will be announced at a later date but Dr. Lee Grabble, world famous mass hypnotist has been signed to act between main events. His act will consume 20 minutes.

He appeared in Pampa three years ago and a great many fans still remember the show as one of the best ever produced. He agreed upon a price and the Shrine Club has decided there will be no advance in prices for his performance.

Dr. Grabble is one of the most scientific wrestlers the world over and has agreed to meet Mark Lewin in a one fall 30 minute warm up bout.

Tickets are expected to go rapidly for this all-star cast and a sellout crowd is expected. If you fans want to see this performance, tickets are on sale, until they are gone, at Modern Pharmacy.

Reservations can be made by telephone. The number to call is 4-6858.

All proceeds will go to the Pampa Shrine Club's crippled children's fund.

Chuck Spieser, Pastrano Fight Surprise Draw

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. —UP— Chuck Spieser, the baldish graduate of Michigan State University who held young Willie Pastrano to a surprise draw, asked for a shot at the light heavyweight crown Saturday "as soon as possible."

Spieser's body attack would have won an avenging decision over heavyweight Pastrano of Miami Beach Friday night in their return TV-radio 10-rounder at the auditorium had not the aggressive Detroiter tired in the late sessions. Jiggling Willie had outpointed hard-hitting Chuck at Chicago, July 25, and was favored at 12-5 to do it again. But the near-capacity 3,918 fans came close to seeing Pastrano's unbeaten streak ended at 15 straight.

Spieser, who was 11 pounds lighter than Pastrano's 182 1-2, said Saturday he wanted a shot at the March 13th winner of the London light heavyweight title fight between champion Archie Moore and Yolande Pompey of Trinidad.

Judge Fred Aaronson had Spieser ahead 96-95. But the referee favored Pastrano at 96 to 95. Judge Stu Winston called it even 96-96. The United Press gave Pastrano an edge 96-95, because of his stronger finish.

Pastrano, 20, declared, "I'm sure I won last night. And I certainly want another bout with him to prove it." Willie, who formerly lived in New Orleans, is slated to fight in that Louisiana Metropolis on March 26. The opponent has not been named. He will continue as a heavy although ranked second among light heavies.

Pastrano's third draw left his record: 35-4-3. Spieser's list now is 16-3-1. Two years in the Army Air Corps curtailed his fistic activities.

Panhandle Outdoor Life

By S. V. WHITEHORN

On one of the larger ranches in this area one of the cowboys feed about 40 deer each evening. These animals usually show up about feeding time without any encouragement.

One of the facts noticed that is very unusual is that out of this number there are only three this year's fawns. There were quite a few more earlier but they just kept dropping out until three is the present number.

What has happened to these young deer is anybody's guess however they boys at the ranch seem to think that bobcats are responsible for the misdeeds.

Coyotes are not numerous on the ranch but the cats evidently have been on the increase for some time. About the only way to destroy these predators is via the steel trap.

Bait stations can be set up for their rival the coyote and also gas guns but cats don't got for this type of eradication.

Cats not only prey on young deer but are also a great menace to turkeys. Their typical way of hunting is very similar to an ordinary house cat stalking birds. They will stalk their game when necessary, but the usual way is to lay near a path, used by game, and pounce upon the unsuspecting birds and animals as they are on their way to feed and water.

All game management practices are void unless the predators can be controlled.

The famed King ranch employs a full time trapper in their game management program. Many of the Panhandle counties have had the services of trained trappers but at this time the only regular trapper, employed by the Federal Fish and Wildlife serivce, is Bill Hamilton, who has been assigned to Moore county and has been in that area for sometime.

The largest cat killed in this area was killed recently north of the river by Floyd Whitehorn, Borger sportsman. This animal weighed in the vicinity of thirty pounds.

Ray Anderson, of the Fanny Ledrick ranch recently mentioned one of these predators killed on Chicken creek that went over forty pounds. The usual weight is about twenty five lbs.

A few years back we overheard Mr. Alex Simpson, Canadian Shamrock dealer, relate that when they, he and his parents, first came to the Panhandle, more than sixty five years ago, they settled on the Washita river, some thirty miles south of Canadian.

Mr. Simpson went on to say that at that time the Washita was "just one beaver dam after another, with the small lakes, that the dams made, full of channel cat."

"Time and man has changed the picture considerably. Up until a few years the clever were seemingly extinct and the river filled with soil, washed down during heavy rains from the plowed fields."

The overgrazing and washing probably won't be stopped but the beaver are right back just as they were in the pioneer days, that is on the A. L. Bowers ranch.

Mr. Bowers, one of the most alert wildlife conservation minded men in the Panhandle has seen to it that the beaver have not been trapped out in that area. It is a beautiful picture that presents itself, as you stroll along the banks and observe the signs of the beaver, where they cut their trees, drag them to the large ponds and build their dams. Some of these dams raise the water as much as four feet and are more than twenty feet in length.

There are a large number of beaver in the Panhandle, especially along Palo Duro Creek in Hansford county and along Wolf Creek in Ochiltree and Lipscomb Counties. The price was, at one time, about twenty five dollars per pelt but at present the price on all furs make it unprofitable for trappers.

Beavers are considered a nuisance in practically all of the Panhandle as they are quite destructive, sometimes cutting cottonwoods as large as three feet in diameter. The Washita river is an exception as there is an abundance of timber in that area.

Wildlife Films

The Texas Game and Fish Commission has in their film library a score or more interesting films that are available to the public thru your district Game Warden.

These films are usually shown to clubs interested in wildlife. Probably Boy Scout groups are the most usual to view these films.

If you are interested in one of these films contact your Game Warden, at least two weeks in advance and he will, if possible, be glad to make arrangements.

The Commission has one called the Pronghorn, which shows from start to finish the entire proceeding of trapping and transplanting these animals. This, as well as most of the other, is in sound and color. Most of the films are around twenty minutes in length.

If you are not a subscriber to the "Texas Game and Fish" then by all means send two dollars to the Commission at Austin and get your year's subscription to this interesting magazine.

This publication is made available to you at cost as the Commission is not in the magazine business.

The articles and information published are usually written by Wildlife Biologists.

Hildebrand Coach At Wake Forest

WAKE FOREST, N.C. —UP— Former Mississippi State star Billy Hildebrand will join the Wake Forest College football coaching staff Monday as line coach and No. 1 assistant to new coach Paul Amen.

Hildebrand, 31, turned down a substantial pay raise at Minnesota and a good offer from Warren Giese at South Carolina to join Amen here.

"I am very grateful for the chance to work with Coach Amen at Wake Forest," he said after his appointment Thursday.

A native of Memphis Tenn., Hildebrand was an All-Southeastern Conference end under Coach Allyn McKeen at Mississippi State where he captained the Maroons in 1945. He played in both the 1945 and 1946 Blue-Gray games.

He began coaching at his alma mater in 1947 and moved to Purdue in 1949. He was named an assistant at Tennessee in 1950 but was stricken with polio and never joined the Vol staff.

After recovering he served as head coach at Whitworth College in Spokane, Wash., and as freshman coach at Mississippi State. He moved to Minnesota in 1954 with Murray Warmath.

'Babe' Wins Fight

GALVESTON, Tex. Jan. 28—UP —Courageous Babe Didrikson Zaharias apparently conquering cancer with the same will to win that made her one of the world's great woman athletes, was dismissed from the hospital Saturday as "recovered" from her third bout with malignancy.

The Babe, who has been an athletic figure for two decades in basketball, Olympic track and field and golf, left John Sealy hospital at 9:30 a.m., held a quiet visit with her brothers and sisters and planned to fly to her Tampa, Fla., home Monday.

There, she will take it easy while trying to rebuild her strength for a return to competitive golf, a lucrative career that has now been interrupted by three visits in less than two years to John Sealy Hospital for treatment off malignant growths.

A hospital spokesman, Dr. H. W. Paley, said she would return to the hospital at intervals of "about every 90 days or as needed" for physical checkups.

How much golf she can play, Dr. Jameson said is a "matter of time."

"I imagine she will play a little golf but she shouldn't strain her legs or have too much strenuous exercise," she said.

She said the Babe will come back to John Sealy hospital at "intervals"—she didn't say how long—for checkups.

"She had X-ray treatments and as far as we can tell she got over the pains," Dr. Jameson said. "That's as far as we can tell now. You can't always tell about those things."

The Babe Friday, as has been her custom for a week or two, left the hospital Saturday afternoon to be with her husband, George, who has been staying at a Galveston hotel.

She plans to fly to her home at Tampa, Fla., Sunday.

This was the Babe's third trip to the hospital. Her first trip was in 1952, when a rectal cancer was removed. She came back last September because it was feared she had a recurrence.

She was released September 14 and went home to Tampa. It was announced she was "all right," She came back two months later because of pains in her hips and legs.

She had been in the hospital in Galveston since. Doctors said they have been giving her "precautionary X-ray treatments for the cancer."

She was let out of the hospital for a few days during December and came back with pneumonia and pleurisy, which apparently delayed her departure from the hospital. She has now recovered from these.

St. Francis, Temple Still Hold Perfect Season Marks

By UNITED PRESS

St. Francis of Brooklyn and Temple University emerged from their latest basketball battles with their perfect 12-0 records shining bright Friday, and in the bargain St. Francis also had half a lock on the New York area championship.

St. Francis, pretty much overlooked although it is one of the only four major-college teams in the nation still unbeaten, proved its class again with a come-from-behind 81-78 victory over Seton Hall.

And Temple, facing weaker opposition, had no trouble trouncing Delaware 108-81. The only other major teams with perfect marks are San Francisco and Dayton—which are rated first and second nationally by the United Press board of coaches.

Scrap by Top Teams

The St. Francis-Seton Hall scrap on the losers' court at South Orange, N.J., matched the two top teams now considered tops in the New York area. Al Innis led St. Francis with 21 points, but Dick Gaines had 26 for Seton Hall.

It was only the second loss in 15 games for Seton Hall. Both teams are virtually certain of a bid to the National Invitation Tournament and only a tremendous upset now can keep St. Francis from winning the unofficial but coveted New York crown.

Temple's easy win at Newark, Del., set new court records for points by a single team and by both teams. Moreover, little Hal Lear of the Owls pumped in 32 to become the third Temple player in history to notch 1,000 or more for his career.

In other leading games, Drake snapped a four game losing streak by beating Bradley 79-73 as Red Murrell tallied 29 for Drake, and Niagara downed Duquesne 60-51.

Three PCL Games

Three Pacific Coast Conference games help to highlight Friday night's court program. Southern California and Washington, currently in second place, hope to keep the pressure on pacemaking but idle UCLA by beating Idaho and Oregon State, respectively. And Stanford, ranked 20th nationally, shoots for its 12th win in 14 games against Oregon.

Utah, ranked 13th nationally, plays Hawaii for the second of three times this week in Honolulu and other features include Wake Forest-South Carolina in the Atlantic Conference; Texas Western-New Mexico A&M in the Border; and Connecticut-Syracuse, Eastern Kentucky - Murray State, Georgetown (D.C.)-St. Peter's, Mississippi State-Memphis State, Montana-Montana State, St. Francis (Pa.)-Seattle.

Washington's Grid Coach Fired Friday

SEATTLE —UP— Johnny Cherberg, who couldn't win friends and influence his players, was fired Friday night as University of Washington football coach.

Athletic Director Harvey Cassill lowered the boom on Cherberg after 70 per cent of his squad turned against him. The ouster was effective immediately.

Though he was an alumnus of the school, Cherberg's removal was not a surprise. The controversy over him has raged openly since last November when 35 players, many of them first-stringers, asked Cassill to fire their coach, because of his "tyrannical coaching methods."

University Vice President H. P. Everest denied published reports that Coach Raymond Tay Brown of Compton, (Calif.) Junior College has already been hired to replace Cherberg.

"There is absolutely no consideration being given to the hiring of Brown or anyone else at this time," Everest said.

Cassill acted under the authority of the university's board of regents, which stepped into the boiling controversy after Cherberg fired Jim Sutherland, his backfield coach. Cherberg implied at the time that Sutherland was responsible for the dissension.

There was no indication of Cherberg's future plans.

Herron Rites Set Monday

PINEHURST, N.C. —UP— Funeral services will be held Monday at Sewickley, Pa., for former National Amateur golf champion S. Davidson Herron.

The 58-year-old retired Pittsburgh investment banker died Thursday night at his winter home here.

Herron was twice Pennsylvania state amateur champion and defeated Bobby Jones for the 1919 National Amateur title. He was a member of the 1923 Walker Cup team.

No Time For Ducks

HARTFORD, Conn. —UP—Ducks prevented the Keney Park pond from freezing over by continually skimming over the surface. To satisfy ice skating enthusiasts park department attendants shooed the ducks away for several days by settingoff firecrackers. The ducks were iced out.

Peg O' Pampa

AFTER BEGINNING THE WEEK in a fog . . . and Peg is still in one . . . the end of the week turned out beautifully . . . sure grateful for that little moisture we got . . . hope we have lots more to keep the dust in place . . . but Peg's kids sure were glad to be able to get out again . . . and Peg must say she was glad to have them out again, too . . . having them under foot for a few days isn't exactly conducive to accomplishing a great deal . . . but Peg sure wouldn't trade them for anything in the world . . . would you?

Try to do to others as you would have them do to you, and do not be discouraged if they fail sometimes. (Dickens)

THE BETA SIGMA PHI table - setting contest sure was lovely! . . . it's too bad it wasn't a better night . . . the fog and "drizzle" kept a lot of people away. Peg believes . . . however, she was surprised at the number that did brave the elements . . . there was good variety this year . . . Peg got a big kick out of the sign where the Kiwanis table was supposed to have been . . . something like "we almost made it" . . . sure would like to know what happened . . the Lions Club picnic scene was cute . . . complete with "grass" and "tree" . . . with a sign that went something like, "By the men, for the men." . . . there were several lovely Christmas tables . . and some cute Easter tables . . . and the formal group had several "anniversary" tables . . . as Peg said before . . . there seemed to be a better variety this year . . . Red Wedgeworth did a good job announcing the winners . . . starting with the honorable mention . . . keeping everyone in suspense up to the top winners . . understand Jack Nichols sat in his office during most of the day playing background music, which added to the atmosphere of the contest . . . and the flower shops in Pampa had lovely floral arrangements on display which also added to the beauty of the setting . . . several of the tables were backed by screens this year, which helped break up the bareness of the field house walls . . . All in all, it was lovely, and a shame the weather wasn't more cooperative . . however, we need all the moisture we can get, I guess, so we shouldn't complain about the weather.

THE FEVER FOR SKIING seems to be spreading in Pampa . . another group has spent a week end on the snowy slopes, it seems . . . this was a group of Boy Scouts who went to Tres Rios, N.M. . . 12 in all . . . half had never been on skiis before, Peg was told . . but all survived . . . Milo Carlson, advisor of Troop 22, went with them, as well as Elmer Radcliff, advisor of Post 80 . . . these men say the boys looked a lot better on skiis at the end of the third day . . . they learned how to "snow plow," keep their balance and . . . most important of all . . . how to stop! . . . their instruciors were Henry Urbanczyk and J Non Urbanczyk . . . boys goin on the trip were from Troop 22, Post 14 . . . Post 80 . . . Troop 26 . . . and Troop 4 . . . Peg also heard the group that went to Santa Fe is planning a sequel . . . with basically the same persons to be included . . . Ron Waters and Joe Rogers are moving forces behind the return trip . . . they plan to go the week end of Feb. 10 . . . Maybe Peg will get out her long undies and go along, this time. . . . sure sounds like fun . . . don't know quite how she'd get along though . . . those two sticks of wood look mighty insecure . . . and Peg feels mightly fragile at time

IT LOOKS LIKE THE GARDEN CLUB movement is really coming along . . . they had a coffee the other morning of those persons who are interested . . . and there were about 25 people there . . . that certainly looks like a good start . . . they plan another coffee Tuesday in the Lovett Library . . . they plan to discuss the organization of such a club . . . if you're interested in gardening, it might be worthwhile just to see what it is all about . . . the coffee is open to the public . . . and a luncheon is planned for Feb. 6 . . . with speakers from the Phillips Garden Club to be featured . . . some of the women interested will be selling tickets to the luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce office . . . the Exchange Cluub is the group behind trying to get a Garden Club going again . . . Mrs. V. E. Wagner is chairman of the committee to work out details for organizing . . . and she has Grace Morris, Betty Hammerschmeidt and Lois McCain helping her . . . . when I said the Exchange Club is trying to get a Garden Club started "again" . . . I was referring to the fact that Pampa did have a Garden Club before the war . . . and they were really active . . . had all sorts of projects . . . believe one of them was giving trees to first graders to plant . . . and at the end of the year, they'd measure the trees and give a prize to the one whose tree had grown th most during the year . . . that's quit an undertaking . . . but a very worthwhile project . . . understand many of these youngsters, now grown up, look with pride upon "their trees" which are still doing well . . . Peg thinks it's wonderful to instill an interest in "growing things" in children . . . since she never was so inspired and now regrets it.

The Golden Rule is a law of physics: If you try to give someone happiness, you get some back yourself. (Albert Einstein)

HERE AND THERE . . . everywhere you go these days you see the League of Women Voters booths where you can pay your poll tax . . . Peg thinks this is a fine service to Pampans . . . after all, it is your duty as citizens to excercise this privilege . . . so why not take advantage of the convenience of the booths placed in various parts of town? . . . the Alvie Phillipses are proud grandparents . . . a son was born to their son and daughter-in-law recently . . . the Bobby Jack Phillipses of Wichita Falls . . . so sorry to hear the Joe Giddens are leaving . . . understand they're being transfered to Floydada . . . those of you, like Peg, who have your seamless hose tucked away, can start getting them out again . . . they are to be quite the rage for spring and summer . . . Peg rather likes the idea . . never has enjoyed the twisting and turning to get them straight . . . and then the "nagging doubt," after getting in and out of the car several times, of whether the seems are still straight . . . with the seamless hose, you can practically put them on backward and no one knows the difference . . . Understand Altrusa Club is interested in senior citizens who have hobbies . . . they'd like to know who has one and what it is . . . so, if you have a hobby, why not call Mrs. Lillian Snow at the library and tell her about it . . . seems they're looking into some sort of a hobby project . . . especially for Pampa's senior citizens.

Be faithful over home relations; they lead to higher joys: obey the Golden Rule for human life, and it will spare you much bitterness. (Mary Baker Eddy)

Miss Beverly Williams And J. C. Becker Exchange Vows In Double-Ring Service

Miss Beverly Williams and J. C. Becker exchanged wedding vows at 3 p.m. Jan. 15, in the Central Baptist Church. Rev. J. R. Manning officiated for the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Williams, 633 N. Wells, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. J. L. Becker, 329 Tignor, and the late Mr. Becker.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of chantilly lace over satin. The fitted lace bodice was designed with a small pointed collar accented with seed pearls and long lace sleeves that came to points over her hands. The bouffant, floor-length skirt, worn over hoops, was fashioned with eight tiers of scalloped lace.

Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a lace tiara, accented with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white rosebuds over a Bible.

Mrs. J. R. Manning of Plainview was matron of honor, and Miss Bert Noell of Kansas City, Mo., was maid of honor. Both wore identical light blue taffeta dresses, styled with high necklines, three-quarter length sleeves and bouffant skirts. Both carried colonial bouquets of blue and white carnations.

Brideamaids were Miss Ellen Henderson of Sunray and Miss Virginia Stoops of Pampa. They were attired in identical gowns of royal blue taffeta, fashioned with high necklines, three-quarter length sleeves and bouffant skirts. They wore blue carnation corsages.

Candlelighters were Miss Erma Dean Marchman of Pampa and Miss Dolores Megee of Dalhart. Both wore gowns identical to those of the bridesmaids, and their corsages were of white carnations.

Bob Becker served as best man and groomsmen were Jack Becker, Gerald Beaty and Laven Greer. Bob Bailey and Fred Williams were ushers.

The couple was married before an altar flanked by two large baskets of white gladioli. Miss Mary Ann Becker, organist, played "I Love You Truly" and the traditional wedding marches for the processional and the recessional. Mrs. Bill Davies, vocalist, sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Williams wore a brown and white silk print dress, and Mrs. Becker, the bridegroom's mother, was attired in a blue suit. Both wore white carnation corsages.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church's Fellowship Hall. The serving table was covered with a white lace cloth over blue. The centerpiece was the bouquets of the matron of honor and the maid of honor and was flanked by blue tapers in crystal holders.

The four-tiered white wedding cake, trimmed in blue, was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. Mrs. Frank Adams presided at the punch bowl, and Mrs. Laven Greer served the cake.

Guests were registered by Miss Fay Harrison.

For the wedding trip to Lubbock and Clovis, N.M., the bride wore a beige suit with avocado accessories. Her corsage was of white rosebuds from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will be at home at 115½ Wynne, Pampa.

The bride attended Pampa schools, Wayland College in Plainview, and West Texas State College, Canyon, where she was a member of Phi Gamma Nu, Baptist Student Union Council, Mary E. Hudspeth Honor Society and Buffalo Gals Club. She is now employed by the Stanolind Oil Company.

The bridegroom attended Pampa schools and has just returned from Korea after completing two-years' service with the army. He is now employed by the Magnolia Oil Company.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

When Lucy gets home from school, it's usually to begin fighting her little brother. Whatever crayon, paper or book he may be using, she's sure it's hers.

Sometimes it is; sometimes it isn't. The thing is, suspicious Lucy can never wait for ownership to be established. She'll just grab whatever Billy is playing with — and explode one of the brawls that plague their mother's life.

Often, Lucy's mother discusses this belligerence in the child's hearing. She'll say to someone, "She was at the baby again this afternoon. You'd think she'd treat him decently after being away at school all day. Not her. It's fight the minute she sees him."

Her complaint, though understandable, is not very reasonable.

As a small child, Lucy had to be shown how to button her pajamas and drink milk from a glass. Now, as a school-attending sister away from home all day, she needs instruction, not on how to drink milk without spoiling it, but on how to protect her property from Billy without hitting him.

What she needs are the thought and feeling behind words like these: "I perfectly understand how you fear Billy's abuse of your things. Why don't we try to protect them the way I protected the ash trays when he was a baby? Let's put all the things you don't want him to play with out of his reach and sight. How about this third shelf in the kitchen closet? Wouldn't you like it for your special shelf?"

Jealous children resent sharing their parents' attention. Unable to recover their old, happy, total possession of the most precious emotional property, they become very, very sensitive to their rights it their material belongings.

And like Lucy, will defend it passionately by the only method they know — direct attack upon the resented brother or sister.

It's as silly to condemn Lucy for her method of property protection as it would be to encourage her in it. We don't get mad at a small child for putting his galoshes on the wrong feet; we give him a method by which to tell them apart. We don't complain of his spilling milk — but suggest a more efficient way to hold his glass.

We recognize their clumsy solutions as appeals for more experienced ones. That is the recognition that Lucy needs. If we want her to discard her clumsy, attacking method of property protection, we have to offer a better one. We have to offer something helpful, like the third shelf in the kitchen closet.

Twentieth Century Club Has Meeting

Twentieth Century met recently in the home of Mrs. V. J. Jamieson, with Mrs. E. L. Campbell, president, in charge of the business session.

Mrs. Jamieson was elected delegate to the Federation convention in Plainview. The pledge to the flag was led by Mrs. W. R. Campbell, who also presented the devotional.

"It is amazing how far we can go if we just keep going," quoted Mrs. H. R. Thompson as she introduced the program, "Forward Through Knowledge."

The speaker, Mrs. Clifford Jones, was introduced by Mrs. W. R. Campbell.

"Adult education is education beyond our formal education," Mrs. Jones explained, continuing by giving a brief history of the Ford Foundation.

Mrs. Jones also told of the organization of the local Adult Education program, explaining its operation and activities.

"Our program is striving for the mature individual," she concluded.

Ona Bell Cox Circle Has Mission Study

The Ona Bell Cox Circle of the Trinity Baptist Church met recently in the home of Mrs. A. M. Giesler. Opening prayer was given by Mrs. Henry Maple, and Mrs. George Moore presented the devotional.

The second chapter of the mission study book, "Candle By Night," was reviewed by Mrs. Dow Flippin. Mrs. M. B. Smith closed the meeting with prayer.

During the social period, refreshments of cake, coffee and soft drinks were served. Members present were Mmes. A. M. Giesler, George Moore, Jim Brown, Dow Flippin, M. B. Smith, Arna Bryant Henry Maple, H. L. Braden, Williams Earls and John Dawes.

GRACE FRIEND

Dear Grace Friend

You are always so helpful with other people's problems that I want to ask you some advice.

I think it sounds silly to you but it does not to me. You see I am a plain looking woman no matter what I try, and because of that I am very jealous of pretty woman.

From the first time I met my husband I noticed he had a roving eye and naturally he always looks at a cute girl or pretty woman.

This makes me feel awful and very jealous. I wish I could do something about this because it bothers me very much.

Dear Grace, can you give me some advice?

Mrs. A. D.

Dear Mrs. A. D.

Your husband must have a great deal of discrimination to have found the qualities in you which will make for a happy marriage and a contended life together. Evidently he knows that there are many assets more important than prettiness and while he likes to look at pretty girls (as who doesn't?) he knows that it takes more than prettiness to make a good wife.

Of course, if he is a normal male he likes to look at a pretty girl, admire a beautiful woman. We all like to look at pretty things whether it is a child, a girl or a bouquet. Don't you notice a handsome man?

If you feel that you cannot be pretty, how about improving your personality. Men may look at pretty girls but they like women with personality and wit.

Keep your thoughts happy, your happiness will show on your face. Make a point of forgetting your grudges. Stand at your mirrror and practice looking happy and peaceful.

Watch your posture. Hold your head high, stomach in, chest out. Keep your weight at the right mark. Take exercises which will improve your figure. Perhaps attend a charm school and learn to walk correctly.

Learn to dress properly. Read everything you can on how to buy clothes. Consider what points are your best and emphasize them in your attire. If you can't be pretty you can at least be smart.

Make a point of doing kind deeds. Everytime you help someone the light of your good deed will shine in your face. As Goldsmith said, "Handsome is as handsome does."

Varietas Club Has Education Program

Varietas Study Club met recently in the home of Mrs. S. C. Evans, with Mrs. Dow King as chairman of the program, "Education Frontiers."

Mrs. King's topic was "Does Television Educate?" Mrs. G. C. Sims told the highlights of the results of the White House conference on education. Mrs. Lee Harrah spoke on "Teaching All Children to Read," stating that all children read, but do not always understand what they read.

Time for the program was: "Manhood, not scholarship, is the first aid of education."

Attending the event were Mmes. Cecil Dalton, H. P. Dosier, S. C. Evans, H. T. Hampton, Lee Harrah, W. C. Hutchinson, J. A. Hopkins, Dow King, J. E. Kirchman, R. W. Lane, C. L. McKinney, Otis Nace, J. R. Spearman, Ralph Thomas, J. C. Volmert, W. A. Wagoner, Sherman White and G. C. Sims.

Golden Wedding Anniversary Reception Given For Mr. And Mrs. H. L. Stokes

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Stokes, 634 N. Roberta, were complimented recently with a reception for their golden wedding anniversary in the home of their daughter, Mrs. M. A. Wooten, 525 Perry. Pampa Mrs. Clayton Stokes, a daughter-in-law, was co-hostess with Mrs. Wooten.

Mrs. Stokes was presented a corsage of gold chrysanthemums, and Mr. Stokes was given a gold chrysanthemum boutonniere. Guests were registered by Mrs. Albert Stokes, a daughter-in-law of the honored couple.

The serving table was covered with a lace cloth. The center piece was a four-tiered wedding cake, trimmed in gold, with the gold numerals, "50" on top, underneath an archway centered with a gold wedding bell.

Refreshments of cake, punch and mints were served. Mrs. Clayton Stokes presided at the punch bowl, and Mrs. Newton Stokes, another daughter-in-law, served the cake.

Approximately 125 persons attended the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Stokes were married in 1906 in Rains County, Texas. They moved to Carson County in 1924 and to Gray County in 1926 where they farmed until 1934. Since that time, Mr. Stokes has been in the trucking business.

The couple had 12 children, of which 10 are now living. They include 7 sons and three daughters. They have 33 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Attending the reception were seven children, with their families, and one daughter-in-law. They were Mr. and Mrs. Newton Stokes and son of Breckenridge; Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Stokes and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stokes and son, Mr. and Mrs. Everet Stokes, all of Pampa; Mrs. Jack Coon of Eunice, N.M.; Mr. and Mrs. John Baggerman and children of Groom; and Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Wooten and son and Mrs. Leon Stokes and children, all of Odessa.

"Two Lifetimes In One" Is Program Given To 20th Century Culture Club

Mrs. Rufe Jordan presented the program, "Two Lifetimes In One," at the recent meeting of Twentieth Century Culture Club in the home of Mrs. Doyle Osborne, 2107 N. Russell. She was introduced by Mrs. L. L. Chase.

"There are some people, a small minority of those born into our present civilization, who do not know the meaning of fatigue," Mrs. Jordan pointed out. "Barring serious handicaps, these are the people who, in whatever sphere they are active, achieve success and become outstanding in their field. No other single factor plays so large a part in success as abundant energy."

She went on to explain that persons who are never tired, usually do not realize they are immune to fatigue, attributing their energy to an unusual constitution. She added that those who are tired have no trouble in putting their finger on the cause, such as overtaxing their energy or working too hard.

"The one important thing to realize at the very beginning is that no one in good health need be tired," she advised. "It is normal not to be tired."

"If a man can work at the thing he'd like to play at, ten to one he won't be tired," she continued.

She went on to tell of the concern of factory owners over boredom among their workers and how they hire psychologists to find out the causes of boredom and what can be done to lessen the monotony of factory work. She told of new ideas constantly being suggested and tried, such as rest periods, improved physical conditions, bonuses, better social conditions, and music. She aded that nothing can be done about the boredom of an individual, however, except by that individual.

"To do the work we like or to like the work we do" is the answer to the problem of boredom, she advised.

"Most people have the wrong idea about work," she pointed out. "They seem to think pleasure begins when the day's work is over. They fight for shorter hours, more leisure. If only we were taught, almost before we were taught anything else, that work is the greatest happiness in life.

"For success, we must have this passionate absorption in our work; for happiness, we must have it in outside activities — as many outside activities as we can conveniently pack into our lives," she continued. "The more contacts we have with life, the more interested we will be in living, and the more interesting to others. Interesting people are people who are interested. Bores are people who are bored."

Mrs. Jordan pointed out that only the "dimmer intellects" go about complaining about boredom, giving the impression they have been everywhere and seen everything and that life has little more to offer. She also stated that a person who has lost interest in things can revive this interest, can "wake up and move on at a smart pace."

"It is impossible to be interested in something we know nothing about," she explained. "We must first acquire at least a little knowledge."

She went on to tell about worrying and its effect on energy.

"One thing is certain," she stated. "The man who worries is either living with the mistakes of the past or the dangers of the future. Most gifted worriers are doing both. The only solution is to live in the present."

She defined worry as a mental tornado, a complete cycle of inefficient thought whirling around a pivot of fear, and went on to tell of ways to overcome worry.

"You can use your own intelligence to see that it is defeating its own ends," she advised. "You can substitute constructive thinking for worry."

She explained that worry is largely a matter of temperament, with some people being better able to worry than others. She addded that worry has two close relatives, hurry and tension.

"You may believe in what you've heard today," she concluded. "Unless you now take action, it will remain for you simply something you will always wish you had done. Energy is action. Act. Begin by overhauling your emotions, subduing the destructive ones, emphasizing the vitalizing one. Act. Begin by taging an interest in something you've never had time to be interested in before, not merely a spectator interest, but a participant's interest. Don't delay. The enthusiasm of today quickly becomes the apathy of tomorrow.

"Act. Begin by acting as though you were not tired — head up, stepping along, keep an eye out for a beautiful sunset or a striking new spring hat."

During the business session, new officers were chosen. Elected were Mrs. Michael Wilson, president; Mrs. J. W. Edminster, vice-president; Mrs. Frank Fata, secretary; Mrs. Warren Hasse, treasurer; Mrs. J. R. Stroble, parliamentarian and critic; Mrs. E. R. Cameron Marsh Is Featured Speaker For Joint Meet Of Pampa PTA Units

"The History of Our Schools" was the topic of the speech by Cameron Marsh, Pampa High School teacher to the joint meeting of all Parent-Teacher Association units Thursday evening in the Junior High School auditorium.

Marsh pointed out that he was going to "tell a story," beginning with the "red school house" and leading up to the schools of today.

The first school in this country was establish in Charles City, Va., in the Jamestown colony, in 1621, he explained, adding that it was destroyed by the Indians. Seven years later, the "Plymouth school" was opened in Boston, Mass., with only boys between the ages of seven and 15 years of age attending.

"This was the Latin Grammar School, a far cry from schools as we know them today, "Marsh pointed out.

Next came the "field schools," he told the group, with teachers imported from England who taught the three "R's." The Colonial grammar schools were begun in 1680, and were the beginning of the trend that led to schools as they are today, he stated. These schools taught manual training and girls were allowed to attend.

"In 1751, the Academy came into existence," he pointed out. "From this school, we got music, math and English. They were quite like our American school of today."

The parochial schools were begun in 1791 and were staffed by the Catholic Church, he continued. They also paralled the schools of today.

"Horace Mann gave to our school system more than anyone else in our American history," he advised.

He stated that Horace Mann was born in 1796, in "relative poverty." He was the first secretary to the Board of Education in Massachusetts in 1837, an confiened his efforts to better training for teachers.

In 1850, came the decline of the Academy, he stated. At that time there were four million children in school. About this time came the great change in schools, he explained. In 1850 taxes were voted for high schools. He went on to give the history of the high school movement, and of the junior high school and junior college.

In comparing school enrollment, he stated there were seven million school children in 1900, and there are over 39 million children in school today.

"Freedom is the democratic way of life which gives men and women the same privileges," he concluded. "Our teachers are giving their very best to making better boys and girls for a better America of tomorrow."

Mrs. James Lewis, PTA city council president, led the meeting. She pointed out that there are 34 active members in the council, 2,367 persons enrolled in PTA units in Pampa.

The devotional, "The Family That Prays Together Stays Together," was presented by Mrs. Myles Morgan. Mrs. E. E. Shelhamer introduced Mrs. Jim Webb, who directed the ninth garde chorus in four selections. The chorus was accompanied by Gayle Howard and Linda Skewes.

Lamar School, with Aaron Meek as principal won the attendance award.

During the social period, refreshments were served, with Mrs. Bob Andis, hospitality chairman in charge. The serving table was centered with a miniature snowman, encircled by tiny flags representing each school's color.

More than 350 persons attended the meeting.

Corn Bread And Wild Rice Stuff Rock Cornish Hens

By GAYNOR MADDOX,
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Mrs. Claude H. Alfen, wife of a Minnesota state representatives in St. Paul, suggests Rock Cornish Hens for a special treat. "These birds have a delicate flavor more pronounced than chicken, yet not quite so strong as game. Serve with a corn bread and wild rice dressing that will make these plump tender birds, just a bit plumper, a bit juicier and even more delicious," she advises.

"Remember in stuffing, not to pack too tightly. All stuffing swells in the baking and in order for it to remain moist and fluffy, it must be put in with a light touch."

"Make the corn bread for the dressing a day in advance. Serve it for lunch the day before, but leave enough for the next day's dinner.

Stuffed Cornish Hens (For 8 Cornish hens and a 1-quart casserole)

STUFFING: Four cups corn bread, crumbled, 1 cup butter or margarine, melted, 1 cup chopped onion, 2 cups chopped celery, 4 cups cooked wild rice, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 8 Rock Cornish hens.

Mix together all ingredients for stuffing. Stuff lightly into neck region and body cavity of Cornish hens, using about ½ cup stuffing for each hen. Bake remaining stuffing in a casserole. Brush stuffed hens with melted butter in which is sprinkled a bit of paprika. Roast in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 1½ hours, basting once or twice with melted butter. Bake casserole of stuffing in oven during last 30 minutes.

Ironing a mattress pad destroys the air spaces that make the stuffing puffy and absorbent. Beating lightly with a yardstick and shaking vigorously will fluff the cotton batting.

Variety Meats Are Rated As Delicacies

Variety meats, including liver, kidney, heart, tongue, and sweetbreads, provide nutrients in extraordinary amounts, according to home economist Reba Staggs.

Hearty, substantial meals containing these variety meats can be planned with little effort to produce varied menus for the family.

Sweetbreads have long been regarded as a party fare. They are often creamed with veal or chicken but are equally good when served alone.

Swetbreads Supreme are highly prized by the epicure and home makers can profit by his example and use them more frequently in their menus.

Now that fresh pork prices are tumbling, this old-time southern recipe for fresh pork is a good Sunday meat course. The recipe comes from Marion W. Flexner's "Cocktail-Supper Cookbook." Mrs. Flexner lives in Louisville, Kentucky and is a genius with recipes that make people happier.

OLD-TIME SOUTHERN Barbecued Pork — (15 servings)

Ten to 12-pound shoulder or leg of fresh pork, 2 cloves garlic, minced, 1 teaspoon seasoning salt, ¼ teaspoon chili powder, ¼ teaspoon monosodium glutamate, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon garlic salt or powder, 2 teaspoons salt or more, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, ¼ teaspoon black pepper, 2 tablespoons water, 1 onion.

Wipe pork. Put all remaining ingredients except water and onions in a bowl and ponl until blended. Mix to paste with water and spread over meat. (This can be done the day before cooking.) Place pork, fat side up, in uncovered pan in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Roast 2 to 3 hours until both sides brown; turn every hour. Put unpeeled onion in a separate pan and bake until dark brown and soft. Pour off excess grease. Mash charred onion into juices in roaster.

BARBECUE SAUCE

Two teaspoons salt, 1-4 cup cider vinegar, 1 cup tomato puree or sauce, ¼ teaspoon allspice, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 cup gingerale or beer, ¾ cup chili sauce, ½ teaspoon cloves, ¼ teaspoon mace, 2 teaspoons Tabasco or 1 teaspoon red pepper (optional), 2 tablespoons dark brown sugar.

Combine all ingredients except brown sugar. PJour over pork and return roast to oven. Cover and cook until tender, turning roast on bottom side for an hour or so, then on fat side again. Two more hours should cook a shoulder — a leg will take longer. Add more water if sauce cooks low. I often pour it into another pan when it thickens, add water to the roast, and continue the cooking. When meat is done, mix this liquid with Barbecue Sauce. Serve sauce as is or strain. Thicken with flour-and-water paste if too thin. Just before serving sprinkle pork with brown sugar; glaze under broiler.

You may some day choose your frock to match the road over which you'll be traveling. An Italian association of asphalt processors is experimenting with colored asphalt obtained as a byproduct of aluminum extraction from bauxite. Colored roads could lead to specific destinations, and to a new fashion trend.

RUTH MILLETT

A friend recently lent me a little volume bound in red leather, faded now to a soft old rose, with the dignified title: "Instructions for the Education of a Daughter."

The surprising thing about the little book "Done into English and revised by Dr. George Hicks", in the year 1750 is that so much of the advice, though quaintly worded, is as good for young ladies of 1956 as for young ladies of 1750.

Take his word of advice, for instance: "That which remains next, is to teach young Ladies to beware of the Reputation of being "witty." (The capitals and the italics are the author's.)

That is still pretty good advice. The girl who gets laughs usually doesn't get the man.

For men still distrust a witty woman. Oh, a sense of humor in a woman is a fine thing. She needs enough to make her able to appreciate a man's wit, to permit her to see the funny side of life's minor mishaps, to be able to disperse storm clouds with a lighthearted bit of nonsense.

But having a sense of humor doesn't give a woman a reputation for being witty.

The think that gives a woman a reputation for being witty is cutting a person down to size by a comment as sharp as it is funny, seeing through others' little pretensions and making a joke of them, always getting the last and biggest laugh, turning someone else's blunder into a screamingly funny story.

So "Beware of the Reputation of being witty" is as good advise to a girl today as it was back in the days when girls were referred to as young Ladies — with a capital "L."

If a boy has invited you to several dances and your club is giving one, it is just good manners to ask him to be your date.

Overlooking him to invite a boy who has never asked you for a date is neither kind nor polite.

To reheat bread or rolls, place in a paper bag, sprinkle bag with water and heat in a 400-degree oven for 10 minutes or in at bun warmer on top of the range.

When making bread or rolls, rinse bowl in hot water before mixing dough to prevent cooling yeast mixture.

Sandwiches packaged in foil or plastic sandwich bags will stay fresh and tasty about three weeks, stored in the freezer.

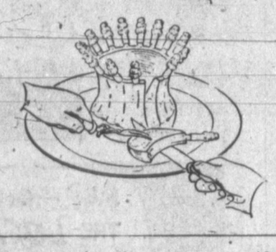
A lamb crown roast is made from the rack, or rib section, of the lamb. A pork crown is made from the rib sections of two or more loins of pork. Either cut is carved in a similar method to that of the pork loin roast.

Slice between the ribs—use a standard carving set. Move to the side of the platter any garnish in the center which might interfere with the carving. Steady the roast by placing the fork firmly between the ribs.



Cut down between the ribs, allowing one rib to each slice.

'Virginia Plan' Gains

We have always been opposed to the theory that "the end justifies the means" and on that basis can take no particular joy in the voting in Virginia designed to circumvent the Supreme Court ruling on segregation in the public schools.

However, the balloting in Virginia does serve to point up the presentation that has been made here many times — that government schools are government schools and no amount of nonsense will change that. And by the nature of it, when government takes over a segment of our lives and operates that through the use of the tax pistol and the force of the police authority, it is a form of statism, whether it be called Socialism, Communism, Fabianism or some other ism.

There is, however, in the Virginia ballot the possibility that the state ultimately will achieve the kind of schools that will be best for everyone For the "Virginia Plan" for providing state money to run "private" schools by giving grants to pupils whose parents do not want to send them to integrated schools, may set in motion a state-wide revulsion against the whole government school idea.

As more and more "private" schools are established, there is a greater chance for competition among those schools even though they live on state handouts and the possibility that schools will seek to attract pupils on a basis other than segregation alone certainly exists. If the schools do start making such attempts it will mean the setting up of at least a mild form of competition that will help to establish the point that private enterprise and a free economy will always do a better and more economical and efficient job of any task than will a governmental agency.

In much the same manner the situation in Texas could result in a loosening of the stranglehold that the state now has on education if parents were given an opportunity to determine whether they wanted to spend their school money on a private or government school. If parents were permitted to deduct their payments for private schools from the amount that they would have paid in government schools, more and more parents would welcome the opportunity as it was determined that private schools were in a position to give the kind of schools the parents wanted. It is exactly the fear of such a condition that prompted all of the laws and rules and regulations connected with the attendance of a student in the government schools. If one person, like Mrs. Mary Turner, is permitted to educate her own children in her own way, others would do the same. When free enterprise system was producing results that cannot be obtained in government schools, more and more people would turn their backs on socialism in education and towards the traditional American system.

The effects of the "Virginia Plan" are, if completed, far-reaching, indeed. If the states in the South see that they are able to get around the Supreme Court ruling through such a plan it appears almost a certainty that other states in the South will follow the example of Virginia. With a solid segment of the nation operating in the atmosphere of private enterprise schools, the deficiencies of the government school are going to be more and more glaring and more and more people in other states, where segregation is not an issue, will turn to a similar system because it will be doing a better job of educating the youth of the nation and do it more economically and efficiently.

That there will be a lot of legal difficulties with the "Virginia Plan" is to be expected. The forces of statism will undoubtedly rise to the attack and challenge any payment of state funds for private use, whether it be for schooling or any other purpose. Basically, the position of Virginians seeking to defeat the anti-segregation ruling is unsound and is likely to run into all sorts of difficulties — difficulties that would be solved overnight if the people of Virginia and their elected officials were to abandon the socialistic government schools entirely and take the proper position that it is the individual responsibility of the parents to provide for the education of their children in just the same manner as it is their responsibility to provide housing, clothing and religious or moral education.

Because the Virginia position is basically unsound, and because there is such antipathy against integrated schools, it may dawn on these people that there is a sound, proper moral and American approach to their problem — that approach being the taking of education out of the hands of politicians and returning it to the people to whom it rightfully belongs, the parents.

As we have said in numerous other discussions here, we shall be watching the Virginia experiment with more than passing interest for it serves well our viewpoint that the dead hand of government is just as deadly in the field of education and ideas as it is elsewhere — medicine, religion, press, industry, agriculture — no matter where you turn. And if we are able to shake off the shackles of government in the field of education, we can hope that the rising generation will not be brainwashed into accepting some form of socialism or communism in other fields. And the more we can rid ourselves of government, the greater will be the prosperity and happiness of everyone, not only this nation but throughout the world.

Religion In America

A friend of mine mailed me typed quotes from a book printed 10 years ago, "Religion In America," by Willard L. Sperry, Dean of the Harvard Divinity School. He wrote me a letter accompanying the quotes, saying that "some of our friends seem to be turning the struggle for freedom into a religious war. For that purpose they often misrepresent the religious beliefs and attitudes of the Founding Fathers, stating or implying that these men founded the Constitution on 'Christian' principles.

"In this connection," he writes, "you may be interested in the enclosed passage taken from RELIGION IN AMERICA, by W. L. Sperry." Then he notes that he has marked on the margin things that might be of special interest to me.

I want to pass on to the readers what he has emphasized in Sperry's Book, "Religion In America."

Sperry wrote, "They (The Founding Fathers) were separatists by a conviction which had been matured out of bitter experience in the Old World." He continues:

"The Baptists were undoubtedly the most aggressive and also the most effective single religious body in the colonies, so fas as the demand for religious liberty was concerned."* * * "The right of magistrates is natural, human, civil, not religious. The officer of the state gains nothing and loses nothing by being a Christian, or by not being. Likewise, the Christian merchant, physician, lawyer, pilot, father, master are not better equipped for fulfilling their social function than are the members of any other religion. There can be no such thing as a Christian business, or a Christian profession of law or medicine. These vocations stand in their own right. No state may claim superiority over any other state by virtue of being, or professing to be, Christian. The state is not irreligious; it is simply non-religious. As for the church, Roger Williams said it was like a college of physicians, a company of East India merchants, or any other society in London, which may convene themselves and dissolve themselves at pleasure. . ."

* * * *

"The men who framed the Constitution were all laymen; no priest, clergyman, minister, or rabbi had any part in it. James Madison voiced what must have been the common sense opinion of the meeting when he said, 'In a free government the security for religious rights consists in a multiplicity of sects.' . . .

"Meanwhile it is difficult not to read out of the records of the time the layman's familiar impatience with theological controversy, and his readiness to invoke a plague on all their houses. For these laymen who cut the tangled knot were the rather emancipated, if not sophisticated, type of person who was much to the front, the world over, in the latter half of the eighteenth century. For the want of any more accurate term it is the custom of our historians to describe them as 'Deists.' The term presupposes belief in a divine creator to whom reverence is due, but disallows many, if not most, of the orthodox beliefs of the Christian Church. In particular the God of the Deists was, so far as the course of man's affairs was concerned, a non-interventionist. He left his servants largely to their own devices. They were upright, conscientious, moral men. There was among them no cult of atheism or connivance in lowered moral standards. They built no altars to the goddess of reason in their capitols, but they were not theological zealots, since the virtue of tolerance which they praised and practiced forbade excesses of religious zeal. Washington was a formally devout Episcopalian, but it is said that there is no record of his ever having taken the Sacrament. Thomas Jefferson belonged to no Christian body, though he attended church regularly and thought highly of the ethical teachings of Jesus. Benjamin Franklin said that religion is a private affair which right-thinking men do not care much to discuss. John Adams of Massachusetts belonged to the liberal wing of New England Congregationalism, and had parted company with his Calvinist forbears.

"The absence in their documents of any references to the Bible is most marked. The name of God does not appear in the Constitution. More than one pious group has attempted over subsequent years to get the name written into the text, but to no effect. It may well be an overstatement to say, as one writer says, that 'the new republic was born in as secular a spirit as the later French republic,' but there is a measure of truth in the words. A more guarded statement is, perhaps, nearer the fact:

"'At no period of our history, probably, were organized religion and social idealism so divided as at the time of the formation of the Federal Government.'* * *

"The republic's ablest group of statesmen, in defending the proposed constitution in appeals to the widest public, and using skilfully every argument that would make the new document palatable to the greatest number of people, saw fit to ignore the whole subject of religion. It is not that it is attacked, or made little of, but the fact that it is entirely ignored, that marks the disappearance of the Puritan theocratic idea. . . .The purely negative character of this attitude appears on the face of the instrument."* * * *

"It is impossible, however, to resist the conclusion that in its date the framing of the Constitution of the United States coincided with the late eighteenth - century cult of rationalism, and that the prevalence of enlightened deistic ideas among educated classes was in part responsible for the studied ingness to commit itself, even in silences of the document as to the existence of God, and its unwill- the most general terms, to any Christian ideas. . . ."

Ike, Eden May Work Out Answer To Red Approach

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON.—America's major allies are not entirely satisfied with the Eisenhower Administration's determination to rely on military strength to win the cold war and prevent the spread of communism throughout the Far East, the Middle East, Asia and North Africa. And their distrust is not inspired by the Dulles "brink of war" interview alone. They had notified Washington of their concern long before that unfortunate episode.

Ideas cannot be contained or imprisoned by weapons of the conventional or atomic kind, according to this theory. And they note that it is in the field of ideas rather than in actual warfare that Moscow now challenges the West. With its offer of economic aid to China, India, Africa and South America, the Kremlin seeds to demonstrate that the Soviet system promises more material advancement and human happiness than the democratic way of life.

It is, of course, a fallacy to suggest that the Russians are competing against us with ideas or ideals. They are, in reality, exporting materialism. But to the 2.5 billion of downtrodden and poverty-stricken in the backward countries they now proselyte, there are no concepts of true freedom, civil rights or political equality.

Those ideas, which mean so much to the West, are meaningless to them as of the moment. They first crave (ideas may follow later) what Russia seems to offer—more food, educational opportunities, beter homes, manufactured goods, lower prices, a fairer distribution of everything.

Besides appealing to the peoples themselves, these promises are enticing to such rulers as Nehru of India, Nasser of Egypt, Mao Tse-tung of China and the native potentates of Africa, where the Communist threat has become more menacing than London, Paris or The Hague care to admit. It is partially responsible for Queen Elizabeth's forthcoming visit to Nigeria.

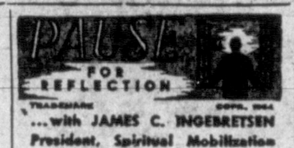
This problem will be raised by Sir Anthony Eden in his conferences with President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles. The British statesman had been notified by leading members of his Afro-Asian diplomatic force, which assembled in London just before his voyage, that he and Ike must work out a new approach and answer to Russian substitution of the carrot for the club. Eden agreed to comply, despite last July's failures at Geneva.

Moreover, Eden's viewpoint is that of most Allied statesmen. Lester B. Pearson, Canada's pro-American Secretary for External Affairs, after a visit to Russia, questioned the efficacy of our policy of "deterrenee" and "containment." With Eden, he believes that the United States should recognize Red China, lift the embargo on many materials to Communist countries, and, in short, abandon our overly hostile attitude. He thinks it worth a try.

A similar sentiment exists in Germany, where the question of reunification sharpens the problem of getting along with Russia. The Communist and Poujadist gains in the French Parliament reveal a growing dislike of what Paris regards as this country's provocative attitude toward the Reds.

These proposals, which may result in suggestions that the U. S. frame and finance a Marshall Plan for neutral and uncommitted countries, comes at an especially inopportune moment of Eisenhower. Both Democrats and many Republicans oppose the White House program of long-erm foreign aid even to our Allies, although wiling to vote money for military strengthening of the anti-Russian Alliance. Foreign and domestic views clash violently on this issue.

Ike and Dulles may counter with a grandiose scheme of their own. Even if not successful, it would still the clamor for a shift in Russian policy that might be unpopular in a re-leiction year. Their retort may be that Britain and France and several other prosperous NATO nations join with us in financing an economic counter-offensive against the Kremlin in the undeveloped sections of the world.



We have seen how the words "liberal" and "democratic" have been debased by the Socialists and Communists, respectively.

The word "anti-labor" is just as thoroughly misused by the unionists.

Here, for instance, is the reported statement of a high CIO official on the occasion of his recent visit to Los Angeles:

"There are more anti-labor professional firms — law firms and management firms — in Southern California than anywhere else in the country."

Of course, what this CIO official was complaining about is that it is easier in Southern California than elsewhere for a person to get a job without being forced to join a monopoly union. And that is a high compliment to Southern California — as well as to the thousands of workmen who constantly flock there.

But what this union official said is that many Southern California firms are 'anti-labor." The facts, of course, are the other way around. To provide employment without forcing employees to knuckle under to goon squads in order to obtain or retain their jobs is pro-labor, not anti-labor. And I think we should insist on this proper use of terms. For the deliberate and habitual wrong use of language is as immoral as any other kind of dishonesty.

Both Major Parties Are For Principle Of Welfare State

By Thurman Sensing

There should no longer be any doubt in the mind of anyone who keeps up with the news that both major political parties are now committed to the principle of the welfare state. In other words, they both believe, regardless of any protestations to the contrary, that the federal government should do for the people all those things we were traditionally taught to believe should be done by the individual citizens themselves or at least by the local governments.

While there is no difference between the two parties in principle any more, there is still one important difference in method. Whereas the Democratic party, under the New and Fair Deals, saw no harm in borrowing money and increasing the national debt in order to carry out these welfare projects, the present leadership of the Republican party believes that the people should pay for them in taxes as they go along.

So if we are to choose the lesser of the two evils — which is never a very satisfying choice — we would undoubtedly choose the pay-as-you-go plan. In that way we would at least not be passing on to our children the cost of the benefits we are enjoying.

Let's look at the welfare program now presented by the present administration — new kinds of farm aid on a bigger scale, expansion of school-lunch programs, disability insurance for older people, increased federal housing, extension of social security, public health proposals, federal aid for schools, an increased highway program, federal aid to hospitals, and other schemes that are supposed to appeal to the masses of the voting public. And it is not confined to the domestic scene — a practically permanent program of foreign aid!

So long as the people of this country realize what they are doing, so long as the majority of them vote for the selfare state — or refrain from voting against it— there is not much the individual can do except continue to voice his protest so long as freedom of speech and freedom of the press are not taken away from him. This the patriotic citizen, who believes in the principles which made this nation great and who believes that it can only remain great by maintaining these principles, will continue to do.

It is rather strange how we continue to hang on to the basic policy that we can buy friends with money. Especially, since it cannot be shown that this policy has worked in a single instance. Those nations who are our friends now— if we really have any — would still be our friends if we had not given them one cent of aid.

Some of the nations we have helped most are continually drawing farther away. Take the case of France.

Since the end of the Second World War we have given France about $5 billion in economic aid and about $5 billion in military aid. France has been the nation we have helped most second to Great Britain. But the French people, with an average of $1 billion a year in help from American taxpayers since the end of World War II, continue in large numbers to favor the Communists.

During the recent French national elections, 5,460,000 people voted communist. This was 26 per cent of the total vote cast, and it resulted in the election of 150 Communists to seats in the French Assembly.

What kind of ally is this to depend upon with a half million American boys in Europe facing the Soviets to the east? France was a better friend and a better ally before we started pouring out all this aid. You cannot buy friends with dollars.

Before The Dishes Are Done

By BETTY KNOWLES HUNT

STRANGE ENIGMA!

As the Eisenhower Administration grows older in office, some pro-Eisenhower Editors have been assuming a split personality, the two halves of which are almost impossible to reconcile. On the one hand, they continue to praise the President, almost without reservation, as a great a wise leader both at home and abroad. On the other hand, they grow more critical of his Administration programs and policies, both domestic and foreign!

In other words, these Editors manage somehow to separate President Eisenhower from his Administration, in a manner which they never employed during the Roosevelt and Truman reigns.

For example, John S. Knight, Editor of The Chicago Daily News, was always an outspoken critic of "welfare—state socialism" when we started down this road under Roosevelt and Truman. He held these two Presidents directly responsible for it, and highly praised those Republican "Statesmen" who staunchly fought it. Now, however, he adopts a much more gentle and even contradictory attitude. For instance, in reviewing the President's State of the Union speech, he writes: "The principles stated in the message could be adopted by either party. Only the extremists of the right or the left will find much to criticize in public." Then, in the next breath, he adds: "Having said this much, may I suggest that the message raises some fundamental questions which are not adequately answered in the Presdient's moderate and measured phrases?" He then asks: "How far must federal responsibility be applied to the extension of pensions, hospitalization, aid to education, and othe forays into the field of human needs. Are there dangers, unmentioned in the President's message, which are invited as we move steadily toward a form of European socialism?"

If we put these various comments of Mr. Knight's together, we find this strange enigma: 1—Mr. Knight concedes that the President's programs are moving "steadily toward a form of European socialism." 2—Now, however, he does not vigorously denounce this road, as he did when Roosevelt and Truman were leading us down it, but humbly asks permission to inquire whether perhaps President Eisenhower has forgotten to consider its "dangers." 3—Despite its "dangers," however, he has already made the flat statement that "only extremists" will find much to criticize!

The enigma deepens when one is aware that Mr. Knight's newspaper itself has been rather severely "criticizing" several specific Administration proposals and policies. Thus, the Daily News favored the Bricker Amendment, (blaming the President's 'advisers' for poor advice) and opposed Federal Aid to Education, Federal Aid to Hospitalization, the highway proposal, subsidies to farmers, etc. Since Mr. Knight does not regard himself as an "extremist," it seems strange that this paper has found so much to criticize.

Even stranger, however, is Mr. Knight's tendency to berate "conservative" Republicans who publicly oppose the very programs and policies which Mr. Knight's paper opposes. For example, Editor Knight has criticized: the United Nations, the recent 'tricky U.N. package deal,' U.S. support for British and French colonialism, monetary aid to such "neutrals" as India, our financial support for socialist economies abroad, the increased foreign-aid proposal, and our "secret connivance in the plot to admit Red China to the U.N. after the fall election," etc. Despite all these criticisms, Mr. Knight's approval of President Eisenhower's leadership is undiminished, and those Republican Senators, like Knowland, who most closely echo Mr. Knight's specific criticisms, of Administration policy, find themselves roundly condemned for "not supporting the President"! Indeed, Mr. Knight has often asked the editorial question: "When will these stupied Republicans wake up to the fact that Eisenhower is their greatest political asset?"

This reader finds it almost impossible to reconcile all these editorial contradictions. Recently, for example, The Chicago Daily News has editorially urged Congress to go after the Administration's new foreign-aid bill "with a meat axe." The Republican Senators who most certainly will do just this, such as Knowland and Bridges, will probably then be subsequently denounced by Mr. Knight for "opposing the President!"

It begins to look as if they can't win any applause—no matter what they do!

BLACK INK BUDGET—For the first time since 1951, the U.S. budget is out of the red. Chart shows the long trail from years of deficit financing to fiscal 1957's 400-million-dollar surplus. In addition to a surplus for 1957, President Eisenhower expressed confidence that the budget for fiscal 1956, which ends June 30 would also have a surplus of some 200 million dollars.

Supreme Court To Announce Soon On FPC Controls

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—UP—The Supreme Court will announce soon whether the Federal Power Commission must exercise price controls over natural gas rates under contract for industrial use.

The decision may come Monday.

The complex but important case goes back to June 24, 1953, when United Gas Pipeline Co., Houston, raised gas rates to the Mobile Gas Service Corp., Mobile, which, in turn, resold gas for industrial use to the Ideal Cement Co.

One of United's rate revisions raised from 10.7 cents to 14.5 cents per 1,000 cubic feet the rate on the gas Mobile resold to Ideal. At the time a contract between United and Mobile had been in existence since 1946.

Gas Act Forbids FPC Action

Ordinarily the FPC stays rate increases until their reasonableness has been determined. But in this case the 1938 Natural Gas act apparently forbids stays on gas destined for industrial resale although hearings may be held later.

Mobile argued that, because United's rates were governed by contract, the rate increase could not become effective without FPC approval. It asked the commission to order United to refund any difference between the 14.5 cent rate and the rate eventually fixed by the commission as reasonable.

The commission replied that its refund authority extended to suspendable rates only and that United had acted within the law.

Court Overrules Commission

On Mobile's petition, the Third U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals overruled the commission and ordered a refund. The court reasoned that since the commission could not block the increase in industrial rates, the law, as construed by the commission, bound Mobile to sell at the old rate to Ideal while paying the new rate to United.

The court majority said the question at issue was whether a natural gas company can wipe out a filed rate contract merely by filing an increased rate schedule. This is the question the Supreme Court will settle. Both the commission and United appealed to the high tribunal.

'Virginia Plan' Gains

We have always been opposed to the theory that "the end justifies the means" and on that basis can take no particular joy in the voting in Virginia designed to circumvent the Supreme Court ruling on segregation in the public schools.

However, the balloting in Virginia does serve to point up the presentation that has been made here many times — that government schools are government schools and no amount of nonsense will change that. And by the nature of it, when government takes over a segment of our lives and operates that through the use of the tax pistol and the force of the police authority, it is a form of statism, whether it be called Socialism, Communism, Fabianism or some other ism.

There is, however, in the Virginia ballot the possibility that the state ultimately will achieve the kind of schools that will be best for everyone For the "Virginia Plan" for providing state money to run "private" schools by giving grants to pupils whose parents do not want to send them to integrated schools, may set in motion a state-wide revulsion against the whole government school idea.

As more and more "private" schools are established, there is a greater chance for competition among those schools even though they live on state handouts and the possibility that schools will seek to attract pupils on a basis other than segregation alone certainly exists. If the schools do start making such attempts it will mean the setting up of at least a mild form of competition that will help to establish the point that private enterprise and a free economy will always do a better and more economical and efficient job of any task than will a governmental agency.

In much the same manner the situation in Texas could result in a loosening of the stranglehold that the state now has on education if parents were given an opportunity to determine whether they wanted to spend their school money on a private or government school. If parents were permitted to deduct their payments for private schools from the amount that they would have paid in government schools, more and more parents would welcome the opportunity as it was determined that private schools were in a position to give the kind of schools the parents wanted. It is exactly the fear of such a condition that prompted all of the laws and rules and regulations connected with the attendance of a student in the government schools. If one person, like Mrs. Mary Turner, is permitted to educate her own children in her own way, others would do the same. When free enterprise system was producing results that cannot be obtained in government schools, more and more people would turn their backs on socialism in education and towards the traditional American system.

The effects of the "Virginia Plan" are, if completed, far-reaching, indeed. If the states in the South see that they are able to get around the Supreme Court ruling through such a plan it appears almost a certainty that other states in the South will follow the example of Virginia. With a solid segment of the nation operating in the atmosphere of private enterprise schools, the deficiencies of the government school are going to be more and more glaring and more and more people in other states, where segregation is not an issue, will turn to a similar system because it will be doing a better job of educating the youth of the nation and do it more economically and efficiently.

That there will be a lot of legal difficulties with the "Virginia Plan" is to be expected. The forces of statism will undoubtedly rise to the attack and challenge any payment of state funds for private use, whether it be for schooling or any other purpose. Basically, the position of Virginians seeking to defeat the anti-segregation ruling is unsound and is likely to run into all sorts of difficulties — difficulties that would be solved overnight if the people of Virginia and their elected officials were to abandon the socialistic government schools entirely and take the proper position that it is the individual responsibility of the parents to provide for the education of their children in just the same manner as it is their responsibility to provide housing, clothing and religious or moral education.

Because the Virginia position is basically unsound, and because there is such antipathy against integrated schools, it may dawn on these people that there is a sound, proper moral and American approach to their problem — that approach being the taking of education out of the hands of politicians and returning it to the people to whom it rightfully belongs, the parents.

As we have said in numerous other discussions here, we shall be watching the Virginia experiment with more than passing interest for it serves well our viewpoint that the dead hand of government is just as deadly in the field of education and ideas as it is elsewhere — medicine, religion, press, industry, agriculture — no matter where you turn. And if we are able to shake off the shackles of government in the field of education, we can hope that the rising generation will not be brainwashed into accepting some form of socialism or communism in other fields. And the more we can rid ourselves of government, the greater will be the prosperity and happiness of everyone, not only this nation but throughout the world.

Religion In America

A friend of mine mailed me typed quotes from a book printed 10 years ago, "Religion In America," by Willard L. Sperry, Dean of the Harvard Divinity School. He wrote me a letter accompanying the quotes, saying that "some of our friends seem to be turning the struggle for freedom into a religious war. For that purpose they often misrepresent the religious beliefs and attitudes of the Founding Fathers, stating or implying that these men founded the Constitution on 'Christian' principles.

"In this connection," he writes, "you may be interested in the enclosed passage taken from RELIGION IN AMERICA, by W. L. Sperry." Then he notes that he has marked on the margin things that might be of special interest to me.

I want to pass on to the readers what he has emphasized in Sperry's Book, "Religion In America."

Sperry wrote, "They (The Founding Fathers) were separatists by a conviction which had been matured out of bitter experience in the Old World." He continues:

"The Baptists were undoubtedly the most aggressive and also the most effective single religious body in the colonies, so fas as the demand for religious liberty was concerned."* * * "The right of magistrates is natural, human, civil, not religious. The officer of the state gains nothing and loses nothing by being a Christian, or by not being. Likewise, the Christian merchant, physician, lawyer, pilot, father, master are not better equipped for fulfilling their social function than are the members of any other religion. There can be no such thing as a Christian business, or a Christian profession of law or medicine. These vocations stand in their own right. No state may claim superiority over any other state by virtue of being, or professing to be, Christian. The state is not irreligious; it is simply non-religious. As for the church, Roger Williams said it was like a college of physicians, a company of East India merchants, or any other society in London, which may convene themselves and dissolve themselves at pleasure. . ."

* * * *

"The men who framed the Constitution were all laymen; no priest, clergyman, minister, or rabbi had any part in it. James Madison voiced what must have been the common sense opinion of the meeting when he said, 'In a free government the security for religious rights consists in a multiplicity of sects.' . . .

"Meanwhile it is difficult not to read out of the records of the time the layman's familiar impatience with theological controversy, and his readiness to invoke a plague on all their houses. For these laymen who cut the tangled knot were the rather emancipated, if not sophisticated, type of person who was much to the front, the world over, in the latter half of the eighteenth century. For the want of any more accurate term it is the custom of our historians to describe them as 'Deists.' The term presupposes belief in a divine creator to whom reverence is due, but disallows many, if not most, of the orthodox beliefs of the Christian Church. In particular the God of the Deists was, so far as the course of man's affairs was concerned, a non-interventionist. He left his servants largely to their own devices. They were upright, conscientious, moral men. There was among them no cult of atheism or connivance in lowered moral standards. They built no altars to the goddess of reason in their capitols, but they were not theological zealots, since the virtue of tolerance which they praised and practiced forbade excesses of religious zeal. Washington was a formally devout Episcopalian, but it is said that there is no record of his ever having taken the Sacrament. Thomas Jefferson belonged to no Christian body, though he attended church regularly and thought highly of the ethical teachings of Jesus. Benjamin Franklin said that religion is a private affair which right-thinking men do not care much to discuss. John Adams of Massachusetts belonged to the liberal wing of New England Congregationalism, and had parted company with his Calvinist forbears.

"The absence in their documents of any references to the Bible is most marked. The name of God does not appear in the Constitution. More than one pious group has attempted over subsequent years to get the name written into the text, but to no effect. It may well be an overstatement to say, as one writer says, that 'the new republic was born in as secular a spirit as the later French republic,' but there is a measure of truth in the words. A more guarded statement is, perhaps, nearer the fact:

"At no period of our history, probably, were organized religion and social idealism so divided as at the time of the formation of the Federal Government."* * *

"The republic's ablest group of statesmen, in defending the proposed constitution in appeals to the widest public, and using skilfully every argument that would make the new document palatable to the greatest number of people, saw fit to ignore the whole subject of religion. It is not that it is attacked, or made little of, but the fact that it is entirely ignored, that marks the disappearance of the Puritan theocratic idea. . . .The purely negative character of this attitude appears on the face of the instrument."* * * *

"It is impossible, however, to resist the conclusion that in its date the framing of the Constitution of the United States coincided with the late eighteenth - century cult of rationalism, and that the prevalence of enlightened deistic ideas among educated classes was in part responsible for the studied ingness to commit itself, even in silences of the document as to the existence of God, and its unwillthe most general terms, to any Christian ideas. . . ."

Ike, Eden May Work Out Answer To Red Approach

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON.—America's major allies are not entirely satisfied with the Eisenhower Administration's determination to rely on military strength to win the cold war and prevent the spread of communism throughout the Far East, the Middle East, Asia and North Africa. And their distrust is not inspired by the Dulles "brink of war" interview alone. They had notified Washington of their concern long before that unfortunate episode.

Ideas cannot be contained or imprisoned by weapons of the conventional or atomic kind, according to this theory. And they note that it is in the field of ideas rather than in actual warfare that Moscow now challenges the West. With its offer of economic aid to China, India, Africa and South America, the Kremlin seeds to demonstrate that the Soviet system promises more material advancement and human happiness than the democratic way of life.

It is, of course, a fallacy to suggest that the Russians are competing against us with ideas or ideals. They are, in reality, exporting materialism. But to the 2.5 billion of downtrodden and poverty-stricken in the backward countries they now proselyte, there are no concepts of true freedom, civil rights or political equality.

Those ideas, which mean so much to the West, are meaningless to them as of the moment. They first crave (ideas may follow later) what Russia seems to offer more food, educational opportunities, beter homes, manufactured goods, lower prices, a fairer distribution of everything.

Besides appealing to the peoples themselves, these promises are enticing to such rulers as Nehru of India, Nasser of Egypt, Mao Tsetung of China and the native potentates of Africa, where the Communist threat has become more menacing than London, Paris or The Hague care to admit. It is partially responsible for Queen Elizabeth's forthcoming visit to Nigeria.

This problem will be raised by Sir Anthony Eden in his conferences with President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles. The British statesman had been notified by leading members of his Afro-Asian diplomatic force, which assembled in London just before his voyage, that he and Ike must work out a new approach and answer to Russian substitution of the carrot for the club. Eden agreed to comply, despite last July's failures at Geneva.

Moreover, Eden's viewpoint is that of most Allied statesmen. Lester B. Pearson, Canada's pro-American Secretary for External Affairs, after a visit to Russia, questioned the efficacy of our policy of "deterrenee" and "containment." With Eden, he believes that the United States should recognize Red China, lift the embargo on many materials to Communist countries, and, in short, abandon our overly hostile attitude. He thinks it worth a try.

A similar sentiment exists in Germany, where the question of reunification sharpens the problem of getting along with Russia. The Communist and Poujadist gains in the French Parliament reveal a growing dislike of what Paris regards as this country's provocative attitude toward the Reds.

These proposals, which may result in suggestions that the U. S. frame and finance a Marshall Plan for neutral and uncommitted countries, comes at an especially inopportune moment of Eisenhower. Both Democrats and many Republicans oppose the White House program of long-term foreign aid even to our Allies, although wiling to vote money for military strengthening of the anti-Russian Alliance. Foreign and domestic views clash violently on this issue.

Ike and Dulles may counter with a grandiose scheme of their own. Even if not successful, it would still the clamor for a shift in Russian policy that might be unpopular in a re-leiction year. Their retort may be that Britain and France and several other prosperous NATO nations join with us in financing an economic counteroffensive against the Kremlin in the undeveloped sections of the world.

...with JAMES C. INGEBRETSEN
President, Spiritual Mobilization

We have seen how the words "liberal" and "democratic" have been debased by the Socialists and Communists, respectively.

The word "anti-labor" is just as thoroughly misused by the unionists.

Here, for instance, is the reported statement of a high CIO official on the occasion of his recent visit to Los Angeles:

"There are more anti-labor professional firms — law firms and management firms — in Southern California than anywhere else in the country."

Of course, what this CIO official was complaining about is that it is easier in Southern California than elsewhere for a person to get a job without being forced to join a monopoly union. And that is a high compliment to Southern California — as well as to the thousands of workmen who constantly flock there.

But what this union official said is that many Southern California firms are 'anti-labor." The facts, of course, are the other way around. To provide employment without forcing employees to knuckle under to goon squads in order to obtain or retain their jobs is pro-labor, not anti-labor. And I think we should insist on this proper use of terms. For the deliberate and habitual wrong use of language is as immoral as any other kind of dishonesty.

Both Major Parties Are For Principle Of Welfare State

By Thurman Sensing

There should no longer be any doubt in the mind of anyone who keeps up with the news that both major political parties are now committed to the principle of the welfare state. In other words, they both believe, regardless of any protestations to the contrary, that the federal government should do for the people all those things we were traditionally taught to believe should be done by the individual citizens themselves or at least by the local governments.

While there is no difference between the two parties in principle any more, there is still one important difference in method. Whereas the Democratic party, under the New and Fair Deals, saw no harm in borrowing money and increasing the national debt in order to carry out these welfare projects, the present leadership of the Republican party believes that the people should pay for them in taxes as they go along.

So if we are to choose the lesser of the two evils — which is never a very satisfying choice — we would undoubtedly choose the pay-as-you-go plan. In that way we would at least not be passing on to our children the cost of the benefits we are enjoying.

Let's look at the welfare program now presented by the present administration — new kinds of farm aid on a bigger scale, expansion of school-lunch programs, disability insurance for older people, increased federal housing, extension of social security, public health proposals, federal aid for schools, an increased highway program, federal aid to hospitals, and other schemes that are supposed to appeal to the masses of the voting public. And it is not confined to the domestic scene — a practically permanent program of foreign aid!

So long as the people of this country realize what they are doing, so long as the majority of them vote for the selfare state — or refrain from voting against it — there is not much the individual can do except continue to voice his protest so long as freedom of speech and freedom of the press are not taken away from him. This the patriotic citizen, who believes in the principles which made this nation great and who believes that it can only remain great by maintaining these principles, will continue to do.

It is rather strange how we continue to hang on to the basic policy that we can buy friends with money. Especially, since it cannot be shown that this policy has worked in a single instance. Those nations who are our friends now — if we really have any — would still be our friends if we had not given them one cent of aid.

Some of the nations we have helped most are continually drawing farther away. Take the case of France.

Since the end of the Second World War we have given France about $5 billion in economic aid and about $5 billion in military aid. France has been the nation we have helped most second to Great Britain. But the French people, with an average of $1 billion a year in help from American taxpayers since the end of World War II, continue in large numbers to favor the Communists.

During the recent French national elections, 5,460,000 people voted communist. This was 26 per cent of the total vote cast, and it resulted in the election of 150 Communists to seats in the French Assembly.

What kind of ally is this to depend upon with a half million American boys in Europe facing the Soviets to the east? France was a better friend and a better ally before we started pouring out all this aid. You cannot buy friends with dollars.

Before The Dishes Are Done

By BETTY KNOWLES HUNT

STRANGE ENIGMA!

As the Eisenhower Administration grows older in office, some pro-Eisenhower Editors have been assuming a split personality, the two halves of which are almost impossible to reconcile. On the one hand, they continue to praise the President, almost without reservation, as a great a wise leader both at home and abroad. On the other hand, they grow more critical of his Administration programs and policies, both domestic and foreign!

In other words, these Editors manage somehow to separate President Eisenhower from his Administration, in a manner which they never employed during the Roosevelt and Truman reigns.

For example, John S. Knight, Editor of The Chicago Daily News, was always an outspoken critic of "welfare—state socialism" when we started down this road under Roosevelt and Truman. He held these two Presidents directly responsible for it, and highly praised those Republican "Statesmen" who staunchly fought it. Now, however, he adopts a much more gentle and even contradictory attitude. For instance, in reviewing the President's State of the Union speech, he writes: "The principles stated in the message could be adopted by either party. Only the extremists of the right or the left will find much to criticize in public." Then, in the next breath, he adds: "Having said this much, may I suggest that the message raises some fundamental questions which are not adequately answered in the Presdient's moderate and measured phrases?" He then asks: "How far must federal responsibility be applied to the extension of pensions, hospitalization, aid to education, and othe forays into the field of human needs. Are there dangers, unmentioned in the President's message, which are invited as we move steadily toward a form of European socialism?"

If we put these various comments of Mr. Knight's together, we find this strange enigma: 1—Mr. Knight concedes that the President's programs are moving "steadily toward a form of European socialism." 2—Now, however, he does not vigorously denounce this road, as he did when Roosevelt and Truman were leading us down it, but humbly asks permission to inquire whether perhaps President Eisenhower has forgotten to consider its "dangers." 3—Despite its "dangers," however, he has already made the flat statement that "only extremists" will find much to criticize!

The enigma deepens when one is aware that Mr. Knight's newspaper itself has been rather severely "criticizing" several specific Administration proposals and policies. Thus, the Daily News favored the Bricker Amendment, (blaming the President's 'advisers' for poor advice) and opposed Federal Aid to Education, Federal Aid to Hospitalization, the highway proposal, subsidies to farmers, etc. Since Mr. Knight does not regard himself as an "extremist," it seems strange that this paper has found so much to criticize.

Even stranger, however, is Mr. Knight's tendency to berate "conservative" Republicans who publicly oppose the very programs and policies which Mr. Knight's paper opposes. For example, Editor Knight has criticized: the United Nations, the recent 'tricky U.N. package deal,' U.S. support for British and French colonialism, monetary aid to such "neutrals" as India, our financial support for socialist economies abroad, the increased foreign-aid proposal, and our "secret connivance in the plot to admit Red China to the U.N. after the fall election," etc. Despite all these criticisms, Mr. Knight's approval of President Eisenhower's leadership is undiminished, and those Republican Senators, like Knowland, who most closely echo Mr. Knight's specific criticisms, of Administration policy, find themselves roundly condemned for "not supporting the President"! Indeed, Mr. Knight has often asked the editorial question: "When will these stupied Republicans wake up to the fact that Eisenhower is their greatest political asset?"

This reader finds it almost impossible to reconcile all these editorial contradictions. Recently, for example, The Chicago Daily News has editorially urged Congress to go after the Administration's new foreign-aid bill "with a meat axe." The Republican Senators who most certainly will do just this, such as Knowland and Bridges, will probably then be subsequently denounced by Mr. Knight for "opposing the President!"

It begins to look as if they can't win any applause—no matter what they do!

Supreme Court To Announce Soon On FPC Controls

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—UP—The Supreme Court will announce soon whether the Federal Power Commission must exercise price controls over natural gas resold under contract for industrial use.

The decision may come Monday.

The complex but important case goes back to June 24, 1953, when United Gas Pipeline Co., Houston, raised gas rates to the Mobile Gas Service Corp., Mobile, which, in turn, resold gas for industrial use to the Ideal Cement Co.

One of United's rate revisions raised from 10.7 cents to 14.5 cents per 1,000 cubic feet the rate on the gas Mobile resold to Ideal. At the time a contract between United and Mobile had been in existence since 1946.

Gas Act Forbids FPC Action

Ordinarily the FPC stays rate increases until their reasonableness has been determined. But in this case the 1938 Natural Gas act apparently forbids stays on gas destined for industrial resale although hearings may be held later.

Mobile argued that, because United's rates were governed by contract, the rate increase could not become effective without FPC approval. It asked the commission to order United to refund any difference between the 14.5 cent rate and the rate eventually fixed by the commission as reasonable.

The commission replied that its refund authority extended to suspendable rates only and that United had acted within the law.

Court Overrules Commission

On Mobile's petition, the Third U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals overruled the commission and ordered a refund. The court reasoned that since the commission could not block the increase in industrial rates, the law, as construed by the commission, bound Mobile to sell at the old rate to Ideal while paying the new rate to United.

The court majority said the question at issue was whether a natural gas company can wipe out a filed rate contract merely by filing an increased rate schedule. This is the question the Supreme Court will settle. Both the commission and United appealed to the high tribunal.

RUSSIA'S FUTURE ATOMIC PLANE?—This is what Soviet Russia's atomic aircraft of the future may look like, according to this sketch appearing in the Soviet technical press and reprinted in American Aviation Magazine. The sketch originally accompanied an article by a Professor G. I. Pokrovski. The sketch is revealed amid warnings by a committee of civil defense experts that the U.S. could be attacked by Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles in six to 10 years. The warning was coupled with the prediction that both the U.S. and Russia will have H-bombs equal to 50 million tons of TNT.

The Aiming Stake

By SGT. WAYNE ANDERSON

Last Sunday was a real busy day for National Guardsmen of the 474th Field Artillery Battalion. Here in Pampa, members of Headquarters Battery, Service Battery and the Medical Detachment all attended drill at the Armory. These men were joined by members of Battery "B" of Dalhart and Battery "C" of Shamrock, who brought in some of their vehicles for a maintenance check. Due to the inclement weather, most of the work had to be done inside, and you would have thought you'd walked into a beehive had you visited the Armory.

Aside from the vehicle maintenance, various sections held classes all day long while the mess sections of both the Pampa units prepared a delicious lunch. The radio personnel of Headquarters Battery continued working on the installation of equipment for the Radio Network to be used in the Battalion, while the wire sections worked on maintenance of telephones and field equipment. Other men worked on the cleaning and repair of small arms all day.

Supply and personnel men were busy all day, setting up a new record system. Members of this section spent the day checking old records and set up the new so that it can go into immediate effect.

There was a special attraction at the church services held Sunday afternoon by Chaplain Richard W. Crews. Chaplain Crews brought along a quartet called the "Uncalled Four," which sang a series of numbers for the Guardsmen attending the services. The quartet included Max Presnell, A. W. Skewes, B. R. Shultz and J. D. Webb. The Guardsmen enjoyed it very much.

Sunday's drill session saw a lot of unfamiliar faces among the men at the Armory...we had about ten visitors from other National Guard units around this area... some of them former members of Headquarters Battery. During the week, Pfc. Robert Waddell visited the Armory. Waddell is a member of Headquarters Battery who is attending the University of St. Louis.

Some of the members of the unit are going to further their education...there have been two requests for "20" series extension courses and four requests for "10" series extension courses. Extension courses are one way to earn retirement points and also to gain promotion in a National Guard Unit.

By the way, new might be a good time to remind everyone to pay their Poll Tax. For most it's a dollar seventy five, but to Guardsmen who are eligible to vote, the Poll Tax is just one dollar. The person who does not vote loses his right to a voice in government. Just another way to help Keep Your Guard UP!

Perryton Plans Test Water Wells

PERRYTON — (Special) —The city has contracted with H. H. Heiskell of Pampa to drill two test holes for proposed city water wells at the county fairgrounds, according to city manager J. B. Whigham.

The city secured water rights for three wells at the fairgrounds last year.

Whigham said that the present supply of city water was adequate but that the test wells are to be drilled in preparation for aditional wells when needed.

At the present time, the city has a pumping capacity of 2,250 gallons per minute and ground storage of 925,000 gallons. The city went through the summer of 1955 with adequate water, but the weather was milder than in previous years.

The total consumption of water was greater in 1955 than in previous years, but the peak loads did not occur so often.

Her Talking May Never Stop Now

STOWMARKET, England —UP — A 9-year-old school girl was a heroine Thursday because she talked too much. By speaking out of turn Kathryne Flett saved her 38 school mates from possible death or injury Wednesday.

Kathryne has been scolded time and again by her parents for tlking too much and the teachers have disciplined her often for chattering when she should have been listening or studying.

During the arithmetic lesson Wednesday, Kathryne leaned over and again by her parents for talkmate. Schoolmaster Philip Fisher caught her and as punishment kept the entire class inside when it came time for recess.

Three minutes after the recess bell rang, fragments of a jet airplane crashed into the school yard where the class would have been playing if Kathryne didn't like to talk.

One out of every four radios in the United States is an automobile radio.

1 Card of Thanks 1

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for Thou are with me; Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: Thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

—23rd Psalm.
