VOL. VI, NO. 53. WICHITA FALLS, TEXAS, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1924. FIVE CENTS EVERYWHERE.

OKLAHOMA GUARDS TEXAS LINE

Young America In Mass Formation Charges T-O Gates

T-O Fair in Third Annual Opening Attracts Larger Opening Day Crowd Than It Did on Same Day In 1923.

Business, social, educational and domestic life moved to common ground yesterday.

Wichita Falls, northwest Texas, southern Oklahoma and points elsewhere dropped lesser things and turned out for the all important function of the day—official opening of the Texas-Oklahoma fair.

Thoroughly ballyhood, with exhibits the best obtainable, amusement numbers galore, all the trimmings ever found at any fair and a lot found nowhere else before, the fair came up thoroughly to advance expectations, and Wichita Falls responded as the fair had expected it would.

Attendance Not Given.

Officials of the fair association refused last night to make even an estimate on the number of persons who thronged the grounds from 8 o'clock in the morning until nearly midnight. The thousands of tickets distributed to school children, it was explained, could not be counted for several days and for this reason even approximate figures were not available.

No one interested, however, denied that the opening day jam was larger than that of the same day last year. Newspaper men on the ground, guessing offhand, placed the number somewhere between 25,000 and 30,000, with the latter figure probably the nearer correct.

Certain it was that every street car—and there were many of them arriving during the day and night—disgorged capacity loads. No accurate count of automobiles in and around the grounds was available either, but these took up 90 per cent of the available parking space.

Steady Stream of People.

The crowd stayed once it was there. A good sized throng was on hand when the gates were first thrown open at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and from then until the noon hour a steady stream of humanity flowed in through the various entry ways.

After that, double streams flowed in.

Dismissal of public schools at 11:30 turned loose a veritable avalanche of youngsters eager to take advantage of the fair's hospitality. They swarmed out in every conceivable kind of conveyance, romped along the midway, rode the merry-go-round, patted the cows, grunted back at the pigs, asked questions, showed some of their own work in the school exhibits, chortled in delight at the shiny autos fed corn to the chickens, asked more questions, bought pop corn and ice cream, played with the dogs, collected souvenirs, ran their elders ragged—and asked more questions. They sat in the grandstand, listened to the band, watched the auto races, squealed at the acrobats, laughed at the clowns, got disgusted with the dust, got stomach aches and sore feet, got lost, go found again, refused to go home, asked some more questions, and were finally carried off the fields, tired, worn out, well nigh exhausted, but happy.

Folks Came Too.

But the kids were not alone.

The rest of the family was there too, and the adults had as much fun in their own way as did the younger ones in their charge. Wichita Falls, of course, was out en masse. They wanted to see what the fair was like. Electra, Burkburnett, Iowa Park and towns in other counties were represented too. It was estimated that a thousand or more out of town visitors were present the first day.

Mid-afternoon saw the grounds well filled, the supper hour saw the crowd thinning, and 7 o'clock saw it descend again like a cloud. The evening entertainment probably brought out the biggest jam of the day, although many of the children present in the earlier hours were not present then.

As for what the crowd saw, detailed descriptions are impossible. Everything was in its place and there was a place for everything, but the assembled whole was simply too big. Suffice to say that the exhibits are beyond doubt the most diversifeid ever shown at a fair here. And they are of a uniformly high quality. Many new and novel features have been added to the exhibition booths and in most cases the manner of displaying has been improved over the two previous years.

Midway Is Crowded.

It was an impartial aggregation that took in the sights. Every building entertained to full quota. The midway was crowded, the grandstand was filled, the side shows did a land office business and the refreshment stands sold a'plenty. Somebody was in every corner, but it was an orderly group at all times—and officers reported no difficulty in handling the situation.

Incidentally, a thoroughly efficient staff of workmen was on hand to care for everything and the fair association is to be commended for the manner in which it has planned for all exigencies.

Hundreds attended the dance which capped last night's performance and left only when an "all out" order brought a dousing of lights and closing of buildings. Fair heads watched them go with tired grins and turned to the task of cleaning up and making ready for even a bigger day with the next day's sun.

Jobe Dies Result Of Wound From Constable's Gun

H. D. Jobe, Central station fireman, died at the general hospital at 9:30 last night from the effects of a gunshot wound sustained last Friday night in an altercation with L. C. Salisbury, Clay county farmer. Jobe has been hovering between life and death since an operation Saturday noon was resorted to as the only possible means of saving his life. For the past two days, however, his strength had gradually been ebbing and it was seen that death was only a matter of time.

Salisbury Is Held.

Salisbury, who has been at liberty on bond of $1,000, was arrested late last night at his home by State Ranger Aldrich and Officers Minnick and Griffin of the city force. He is now in the county jail here, awaiting the filing of formal charges. The district attorney's office announced several days ago that in the event of Jobe's death, a murder charge would be lodged against Salisbury.

Jobe was shot when Salisbury, who claimed at the time that he was an officer and was patroling country roads, sought to arrest him with a woman companion at a point some seven miles southeast of Wichita Falls. Jobe and the girl remonstrated and, according to their statements, Salisbury struck them with his revolver. His gun was accidentally discharged when he hit jobe and the shot grazed the man's forehead.

Brain Injured

Oddly enough, the lead itself did not produce death. It left only what appeared to be a flesh wound on the forehead but medical examination revealed that the impact had pressed a piece of bone inside the skull and that this had been driven back into the brain. It w..s this that caused death.

Remains to Davis Springs.

The remains will be sent this afternoon to Davis Springs, Kaufman county, the old home of the boy, for burial. The body is now at the Hines funeral parlors where friends may view it today.

Surviving relatives include the parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Jobe of Davis Springs, three brothers, Truman and Robert L. Jobe of Wichita Falls and Caraloe Jobe of Davis Springs, and and one sister, Marie Jobe, also of Davis Springs.

Jobe had been in Wichita Falls since late in 1919, working fr a time for the local traction company and then going to the fire department where he had since been employed.

SAVES BABY FROM RATTLER

Childress Index Editor's Quick Action Probably Saved Child's Life

How quick action on the part of a father when he saw a huge black diamond rattler coiled 18 inches away and ready to strike his baby saved the life of the child by a moment was told last night by Fred L. Haskett, Childress Index editor, who passed through Wichita Falls en route home after an extended automobile trip in Oklahoma.

Sunday was spent in the federal game reserve of the Wichita mountains by Haskett, his wife, baby and friends. Haskett, missing his child from where it was playing a moment before, saw the baby picking up pecans under a tree nearby. To his dismay he saw the snake coiled and ready to strike. A quick dive toward the youngster by Haskett beat the reptile's strike, and his baby out of danger, he followed the snake and killed it with a rock. It had nine rattles and a button.

READY FOR "SHENANDOAH."

"Port" Has Been Prepared For Dirigible at Camp Lewis.

By The Associated Press.

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 29.—The Pacific Northwest "port" for the Shenandoah, and any other heavier-than-air craft the navy or army may send to this section, is ready on the Camp Lewis military reservation, about 10 miles south of this city.

The port consists of a mooring mast 180 feet high, together with the necessary machinery to handle a dirigible and to supply it with helium gas and fuel. It is expected that the Shenandoah will be on Puget Sound in October.

SOUTH VERNON POOL WILL GET PIPELINE NOW

Waggoner Refining Co. Closes Deal With Producers for 4-inch Line.

WILL COST $100,000

Reckoned as Most Important Event Since Archer Discovery.

The Waggoner Refining company at Electra yesterday closed a deal with oil producers in the South Vernon field, Wilbarger county, whereby that company will start immediately on the laying of a pipeline to that field to take care of production there. The line will be about 24 miles long, with cost of the project estimated at at least $100,000. Ten miles of six inch line already laid as a water line from Beaver creek in south Wilbarger county will be used as part of the carrier, the remainder to be laid from the Beaver creek water station to the field with four-inch pipe.

Pipe Order Placed.

Order for the pipe has been placed and it is expected that actual laying will start within ten to fifteen days, and the first oil run by the twentieth of next month.

By the terms of the deal which was closed separately with the lease owners of the producing area the first 200,000 barrels of oil produced in the district served by the carrier is to be delivered through the line at posted crude prices with a fifteen-cent tariff as carrier charge, and in case of another carrier entrant into the field this oil may be delivered half to the second party and half to Waggoner if so desired.

Closed Yesterday Morning.

The contract for the line was closed early yesterday morning after the conduct of the Wells-Guiberson well and its showing for at least a thousand-barrel well made the need of the line especially acute.

The assurance of this line and the completion of the Wells-Guiberson producer in the thousand-barrel class will rank with the discovery of oil in Burkburnett and the northwest field and initial completion for a producer in Archer county as the most important events that have occurred in the development of the Wichita Falls district's oil resources. It definitely established another Texas county in the producing class, and makes possible and probable the initiation of an intensive drilling campaign and boom in the Vernon direction.

Several Sign.

Producers of the field who signed the contracts with the Waggoner Refining company yesterday include L. C. Herdrick and J. S. Bridwell, Clois Green, South Vernon Oil company, with Miss Thelma Wells to sign for herself and for Al Guiberson this morning, and others, these actually owning production with the exception of Clois Green, who is rapidly nearing the sand. Robert Moore and Charles Kolp of the Waggoner estate and Waggoner Refining company of Electra signer for Waggoner.

HOW GERMANY WANTS IN France Given Memorandum On Admittance to World League.

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—Leopold von Hoesch, German ambassador to France, today called upon Premier Herriot and handed to him a memorandum setting forth the conditions under which Germany will make application for membership in the league of nations.

The text of the memorandum will not be made public, but it is understood the Germans lay down no condition for membership, but make it clear that the reich will expect to have a permanent seat on the council of the league.

The memorandum also points out that in view of the limitations on the size and strength of the German army provided for in the treaty the reich can not undertake to participate in the application of sanctions under a guarantee pact such as the one now under discussion at Geneva, although Germany offers no objections to the general principles of such an arrangement.

KEEPS WEDDED TO THE DEAD

Mrs. Dorothy Benjamin Caruso Ingram (above), Captain Ernest Ingram (left) and John McCormack.

Captain Ernest Ingram doesn't know when he will get to see his first born, who is the child of the former Dorothy Benjamin of New York, whose first husband was the late Enrico Caruso, world famous tenor.

The Ingrams are estranged. His bosom friend, John McCormack, famed Irish tenor, who has no pretentions to Mayfair habits and manners, is the innocent cause of the trouble, Ingram explains.

"I went with him to unfashionable Irish restaurants—but not a bit more declasse than Italian or French ones, if you know what I mean. To tell you the truth, John McCormack and his simple, sincere friends appealed to me far more than the stilted snobocrats of society who surrounded my wife."

"The real, underlying cause of our matrimonial clash is very simple. I am an Englishman. Englishmen are accustomed to living with wives proud to bear the relation of wifehood.

"But Dorothy remained wedded to Enrico Caruso—even in her deeds and acts. After we arrived in New York she insisted on signing her check Dorothy Caruso. She generally clung to that name in hotels and elsewhere.

"But no power in the world can cause her to change my girl's name to Caruso.

"She's not Italian—she's English, the daughter of an Englishman—Ingram!"

$150,000 Sewage Plant Necessity Citizens Are Told

Wichita Falls is faced with the necessity of building a sewage disposal plant, soon if not at once.

The convicition of this fact has been growing on Mayor Collier and others concerned with city sanitation for some time, but it has been brought home forcibly by the visit of State Sanitary Engineer Ehlers and his assistant, Mr. Wedby, who were in town Saturday and Sunday. Conditions exist, it has been found, which are creating a decidely unsavory situation between here and Red river and the only remedy, it seems, is a sewage plant which at the least will cost $150,000.

This means a bond issue, on which a vote will eventually be taken.

Wichita Falls is now the only city in Texas with a population of more than 20,000 which empties raw sewage directly into a stream.

BLOND BILLY IS DAWES SHADOW IN CAMPAIGN

Wheeler Told Something Recently on "Hell and Maria."

SHADES OF LORIMER

How the Capital and Surplus Was Shown at Defunct Bank.

HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD.
Record News Staff.

General Charles Gates Dawes is on the rack. Senator Burton K. Wheeler placed him on the rack. Away back in 1910 after Blond Billy Lorimer of Illinois, a distinguished republican had been expelled from the senate, he opened a national bank in the city of Chicago. Other banks in the clearing house association forced the Lorimer bank out of business. Their agents said it was unsound.

Blond Billy reorganized under the laws of Illinois as a state bank. Before Blond Billy could open the doors of the new bank, according to the state law, he had to show the entire capital and surplus in cash to the auditor of the state of Illinois. Blond Billy advertised that the capital and surplus of his new bank was $1,250,000. He didn't have the cash. Chicago banks or capitalists refused to loan him the cash. New York bankers turned him down.

Headed Trust Company.

General Charles Gates Dawes was the president of the Central Trust company today. Blond Billy and General Dawes were friends. One day the Central Trust company sent a messenger with $1,250,000 to Blond Billy's bank and the cash was exhibited to the state auditor as belonging to the Lorimer bank and then Blond Billy opened for business.

It was just twenty months later that the Blond Billy bank failed. Four thousand wage workers or people of small means lost a total of more than two million dollars or about $500 per capita. A judge named a receiver and the receiver being a wise man as well as an honest man, detected the bogus transaction of the $1,250,000.

He sued the Dawes bank. He recovered judgment for the $1,250,000. And the judge and the jury awarded the receiver $237,000 interest as well as the principal. For ten years the lawyers highly paid and brilliant, of the Central Trust company, fought the case in the courts. A friendly judge on the bench, one Jesse Holden, whittled the verdict of almost on million, five hundred thousand dollars against "Hell and Maria" and his associates down to a little more than a hundred thousand dollars.

General Dawes organized twenty companies of minute men of the constitution who were to rally at his call for law enforcement and the principles of constitutional government. Judge Jesse Holden became a candidate for re-election. These wage workers who had been robbed of their savings and wage workers who sympathized with them declared that Holden was unfit and called upon the people to defeat him. General Dawes ordered out his 20 companies of minute men and the impeccable Jesse was re-elected.

Everybody Fooled.

Now comes John Barton Payne, a distinguished democrat who was one of the lawyers for the Central Trust company and General Dawes with this defense of the transaction. He said hat the banks and bankers of Illinois had been doing just what the Central Trust company did for years and that the Central Trust company and General Dawes were innocent of intentional wrong doing, but the point is that the state auditor of Illinois was fooled, the public was fooled, the depositors were robbed of their money and the friendly judge saved a million, five hundred thousand dollars, more or less, for the Central Trust company and the great champion of the constitution and constitutional government.

There appears to be Catchems and Skinums every where under the flag.

Youth Is Served Once More When Solons Win Flag

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Washington today clinched the first pennant it has had since breaking into big league baseball, exactly forty years ago, and, as the flag bearer of the American league, will fight it out with the New York Giants, four time National league champions, in the world's series starting next Saturday, at the Capital city.

Miller Huggins, of the New York Yankees must step off the American league throne after a three year reign in favor of Stanley Harris, pilot of the Senators and the youngest manager who ever led a major league club to victory.

Washington's rise this year under the aggressive leadership of the 28 year old Harris, a major leaguer only five years and experiencing his first managerial test, is one of the most dramatic achievements in baseball annals. This fighting youngster will meet one of the greatest strategists of the game when he takes the field against John McGraw, gray haired "master mind" of the Giants.

Sharing the glory of Washington's triumph with Harris are Walter Johnson, one of the greatest pitchers of all time, and Clark Griffith, now president and former manager of the club.

But Like Mark Twain Said It Was Greatly Exaggerated.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept 29.—When Milton Jacobs, a boile maker of New Orleans, read a newspaper dispatch today from Houston, Texas, that he had been murdered, he was puzzled.

Texas advices last night stated a man's body found on Goose creek near Houston had been identified by a fellow-worker as Jacobs. The identification was believed to have been partly c[onfirme]d when [repo]rters inquired at an address where Jacobs had formerly resided here and were told that he had gone to Baytown, Texas, a small town near Houst[on], four months ago.

Jacobs, when [loc]ated today, said he had been employed in Baytown a month and since had been in New Orleans.

He was accompanied by veterinary experts of the packing houses and stock yards, who have been investigating the outbreak.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 29.—A quarantine against Texas live stock ordered Saturday by John A. Whitehurst, president of the Oklahoma state board of agriculture, following the outbreak of the foot and mouth disease near Houston today, was extended to include all parts of Texas. The original quarantine did not cover a portion of the state near the Oklahoma line.

Whitehurst, who is in Fort Worth, telegraphed instructions to his office here. He ordered state live stock inspectors sent to Fort Worth, Wichita Falls and Amarillo, where they are to demand copies of all bills of lading on northbound cattle shipments.

He also asked an opinion from the attorney generals department as to whether the state's cotton inspection force can be sent to the border to assist inforce the live stock embargo. Whitehurst telegraphed that no shipments of hides, furs or other animal products were to be allowed to cross the state line into Oklahoma.

Art Influence in Wichita Schools Demonstrated by This Boy Sculptor

The first illustration of the actual influence of the work of the Junior College Art committee who have so successfully given art a place in the public school system of Wichita Falls has materialized in the form of an extraordinary display in the Art building at the fair.

"A little fellow in one of the city ward schools went with his daddy to teachers' institute the week it was held here," said Mrs. W. W. Silk, chairman of the Junior College Art committee, "and seemed quite interested, in fact, enthusiastic over the beautiful pieces of art work he found in the Junior college halls. While his father was busy, the lad wandered about looking at the statutes in particular, and when his father came for him, the boy showed him the wonderful things he had found, chattering about them all the way home.

"At his next opportunity, the boy visited the Junior college again, then in the glow of a new resolve, he procured a piece of sandstone, a small hammer and some crude tools and with nothing but a boy's ingenuity and a new found creative desire, he chiseled a bas-relief of the head of Abraham Lincoln."

Lemuel Parks, schoolboy and sculptor walked into the Art building, sombrero on the back of his head, necktie awry his togs dusty and disheveled from an exciting afternoon among the attractions of opening day at the fair and found that his "Lincoln" had won second place among all amateur sculptor entries.

By The Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 29.—Two members of the Japanese delegation declared to press representatives today that if Japan did not obtain satisfaction of her demand for an amendment to the proposed protocol of arbitration and security, she probably, much to their regret, would be obliged to vote against the protocol when it was submitted to the assembly of the league of nations.

If this happens, the protocol initiated by Foreign Minister Benes of Czecho-Slovakia and elaborated by the disarmament commission and its subcommittee will fail of adoption and consequently the international disarmament conference provided for in the protocol and planned for next summer will not be held.

GENEVA, Sept. 29.—A grave crisis prevails in the peace discussions through Japan's insistence upon an amendment to the proposed protocol of arbitration and security.

So critical was the situation judged to be last night that France suggested that the Japanese amendment, which concerns the interpretation of state right as elated to abitation and which everybody understands as referring to the immigration problem should be considered calmly and by a subcommittee. A motion by the French to this end was accepted by the arbitration commission.

Japan offered her amendment after a day of fruitless private conferences.

Many of the delegates are of the opinion that the whole question of racial equality has been thrown definitely before the world by the Japanese amendment which touches upon a state's sovereign rights and that Japan will continue to insist through the league of nations for revision of international law so that matters now deemed to belong exclusively to the internal jurisdiction of a state may be the subject of world wide concern demanding treatment on the broad basis of equity.

The delegates from the British dominions especially Australia and New Zealand, are showing anxiety over the outcome of the Japanese amendment because they fear that the immigration problem may be forced before the council of the league.

The palace of the league of nations was the scene of dramatic incidents today as the wearied delegates reassembled in an attempt to discover a solution of the difficulty created by Japan's demand for the amendment.

The subcommittee to which the matter had been entrusted held a brief meeting, but adjourned until this afternoon before taking up that Japanese problem because the leaders decided it would be more practical and less dangerous to find a satisfactory formula in private conversations.

Therefore Viscount Ishi held a meeting with Aristide Briand and Louis Loucheur of the French delegation, Paul Hymans of Belgium and other members of the council.

MOTHER KILLED CHILDREN.

Mangum Family, Except Husband, Goes at Suicide's Hand

By The Associated Press.

MANGUM, Okla., Sept. 29.—After an informal investigation into the deaths of five members of the family of J. A. Melton, farmer living five miles southeast of here, county authorities today placed responsibility for the killings upon Mrs. Melton, one of the dead, and declared a coroner's inquest unnecessary.

Melton, returning late Saturday night from Mangum, where he said he had taken a shotgun for safe keeping, made the gruesome discovery of the bodies of his four children, ranging in age from 11 years to 18 months, and that of his wife, lying in a neat row in one room, their throats all slashed with a razor.

The razor was clasped in Mrs. Melton's hand, officials said. A finger print expert called from the state reformatory at Granite stated that prints on the razor and furniture in the room were those of Mrs. Melton's hands.

Melton said his wife for some time had been suffering from a hallucination that a star was the light of a night flying airplane hovering over the farm home, with the occupant awaiting an opportunity to decimate the family. A quintiple funeral for the victims was to be held at Maud, Okla., today.

Defense of Shanghai Takes On Semblance of Bloody Warfare.

By The Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 29.—Hundreds of Chinese soldiers were killed and many others wounded this morning on a six-mile front from Nanssing to Malu when armies of rival military governors fighting for possession of Shanghai continued hostilities with impetuous inten ity.

According to a witness who returned this afternoon after traversing the sector from Nansing to Malu, west of Shanghai, both sides were drenching the lines with shrapnel.

Numerous relief stations behind the six-mile Nansing front were filled with wounded today while scores of others were expiring on stretchers.

The dead have been left where they fell, according to the witness, and this practice has resulted in a carrion-odor extending over the whole battle area.

The offensive, which has resulted in continuous firing since it opened on Sunday morning, has enabled the Chekiang forces to drive the Kiangsu troops back six miles, according to General Hsia Chao-Lin, commander of the Chekiang forces in the center of activity.

LOOK FOR A CONSPIRATOR.

Williamson Authorities Are Not Satisfied in Double Killing.

By The Associated Press.

MARION, Ills., Sept. 29.—Authorities of Williamson county today were searching for a man thought to have purchased the poison which caused the death of Joseph L. Herrington, a coal miner, in a poison plot in which Robert Tate and Herrington's former wife, Ruby Herrington Tate, have confessed their part, that they might marry.

In a confession late yesterday in the county jail here in the presence of Sheriff George Galligan and other prosecuting officials Robert Tate, with his bride of seven days seated by his side, made full confession that he gave his wife's former husband the first dose of poison. His confession came only after a long grilling during which his wife, who had previously confessed, and implicated Tate, pleaded with him to tell the story.

The poison, he said, was stolen from a drug store in Johnston City, from which city he took it to the mine in which he and Herrington were working. At the mine he said he mixed it with the food in Herrington's dinner pail. After the day's work he said he met Mrs. Herrington and gave her the rest of the poison to give Herrington. They met nearly every evening and each time he inquired about the effect of the poisoning. Herrington died on September 5, and the funeral ceremonies took place Sunday, September 7, after which he and Mrs. Herrington went to look for a home in West Frankfort, to which city they moved a few days later and were married.

QUENTIN ROOSEVELT'S FACE.

Statue Is Unveiled Where Once Stood the Navarin Farm House.

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—"My countrymen will be deeply touched that one of the soldiers crowning this monument is an American and that the sculptor chose as his model a man who bore a most honored name—Quentin Roosevelt," said Sheldon Whitehouse, charge d'affaires of the United States embassy, at the unveiling Sunday of a monument on the spot where once stood the famous Navarin farm house.

"There could be no better proof for posterity of the strength of Franco-American friendship," Mr. Whitehouse added, "than the inscription of this monument regarding the American divisions which fought with their French comrades in arms under command of that gallant soldier, General Gouraud, for it shows our willingness to die for the same ideals."

The monument consists of the figures of three poilus 15 feet high, one a scout, one a grenade thrower and the other a machine gun man, the last having the features of Quentin Roosevelt. Each man is depicted in action.

The monument is a 60-foot pedestal of rose granite, visible for many miles, the war devastation having left not one tree to shut off the view.

TELLS OF SOCIALISTS

Party Has Not Succeeded Because Conditions Not Right, Claim

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Why Victor Berger, after opposing Robert M. LaFollette for 25 years is now supporting the independent candidate was explained last night in an address by the socialist congressman from Milwaukee, Wis.

"We started a socialist paper to fight LaFollette," he said. "I have fought him for 25 years and now I have come here to ask you to vote for him.

"The socialist party did not grow as it should. That was the fault of conditions.

"It is because we have very few American workers who are compelle to stay workers all their lives. There is always a chance for them to get ahead on the shoulders of the immigrant, the newcomer.

"There are many different nationalities here and national hatreds and national jealousies exist. We have that white hope that some day we, too, may have money.

"LaFollette is no hero; he is a shrewd politician. He has a better record than any other politician.

"LaFollette made many mistakes, but he now is for public ownership of public utilities. He is willing to learn even at the age of 70. He fought corruption more than anyone at Washington."

CAUTIOUS IN CAMPAIGNING.

Coolidge Has Busy Week Ahead But Plans No Journeys.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—President Coolidge faced a rather crowded calendar for the week when he went to his desk today.

On Saturday he will deliver an address dedicating the monument for the first division of American troops, A. E. F., in which he is expected to discuss the foreign relations policy of the administration as well as outline his views on military and naval affairs.

There are no indications that the president is considering any change in his present program for participation in the campaign. This has consisted so far of conferences with various party leaders who have called on him and in deliverance of occasional speeches. In none of these, it is pointed out, has the president mentioned directly the campaign, election or candidates, the subject matter or occasion having as a rule developed his views on national affairs.

During the latter part of the week Chairman Butler of the republican national committee, is expected to confer here with Mr. Coolidge on campaign matters.

Thelma Has Done Well in Social Way Since 1923

In One Short Year She Masters Duties of a New Life.

SERVES HER CAKE

Kids at Fair Grounds Help Little Elephant Enjoy Birthday.

Dressed in a charming party frock of leather harness resplendent with brightly polished metal studs, little Thelma, the baby elephant, promenaded graciously around the concrete plaza at the fair grounds Monday afternoon and entertained the hundreds of Wichita Falls boys and girls who were invited to her birthday party.

Lifting her trunk to her eager guests, she ate all the peanuts they would feed her and accepted their caresses and complements in quite a lady like manner.

All The Kids See Her.

Because the crowds were so great and the little elephant not much over four feet high, it was almost impossible to get even a glimpse of her, but the keepers managed to break the pushing throngs of people and keep Thelma on the move most of the time so that children who wished to pet and feed her did not have to be turned away disappointed.

Little Thelma, despite the fact that a year ago she was playing with her little brother in a dense jungle of India, seems to have taken to civilization rapidly and disposed of her social duties in a charming manner. After she had greeted all her little guests, and allowed them to listen to several selections from Taylor's band, she instructed R. E. Shepherd to bring on the birthday cake, a huge confection four feet wide, six feet long and four feet thick.

It Was Some Cake.

The cake, which was elaborately ornamented with fancy icing was a work of culinary skill. The decorations centered around four groups of candles which prettily illuminated the cake and stood for the four birthdays little Thelma has elaborately completed. Home Bakery built the immense dainty especially for the birthday party. The cake was cut by Mr. Shepherd and served to the guests. Little Thelma then excused herself, explaining that she must hurry and dress for the big fireworks act that evening in which she takes a principal role. Thanking them for the peanuts they brought her, and the part they played in making her first birthday in captivity such a tremendous success, she raised her little trunk for "good-bye", and trundled happily away with her keepers.

A Treat for the Kids.

The party was an original experience for most of the youngsters who had never seen an elephant smaller than the huge monsters of the circus ring, much less pat the top of one's head or play with it's ears and trunk.

Judging by the delight of the great throngs of children who visited little Thelma, listened to the music and ate a slice of the birthday cake, the feature made children's day by far the most successful in the history of the Texas-Oklahoma fair so far.

Decision For Ma Clears Way For Coming Election

Common Law Points On Women Holding Office Are Swept Aside.

WOMEN UNINTERESTED

Only a Few in Courtroom When Judge Renders Opinion.

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Sept. 29—Brushing aside all the old common law barriers against the right of women to hold office, Judge George C. Calhoun in the Thirty-third district court here today ruled that Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson is legally qualified to be governor of Texas.

In an opinion, which Mrs. Ferguson's lawyers said was a thorough exposition of the law and a complete vindication of the position of the first woman nominee for governor, Judge Calhoun declared that neither the constitution of the state nor the statutes of the legislature bar women from office. He refused to grant a temporary injunction to restrain election officials from placing her name on the ballot, which was requested by the plaintiff, Charles M. Dickson of San Antonio.

Goes to Supreme Court

The trial court's decision clears the way to bring the case up for final adjudication by the supreme court. The plaintiff's attorney, Judge I. W. Stephens of Fort Worth, gave notice of immediate appeal to the court of civil appeals. In order to get the matter before the supreme court without arguments in the court of civil appeals, it will be necessary for the latter tribunal to certify the questions to the supreme court. The parties have practically agreed that this procedure will be followed. The supreme court meets next Monday for the term and it is expected this case will come before it during the coming week.

Neither Mrs. Ferguson nor her husband, James E. Ferguson, were in court to hear the judge's opinion, though Mrs. Ferguson sat through the three and a half days of argument last week. Her attorneys said the opinion was all that they could have hoped for.

Holds Jurisdiction

The court held first that he had jurisdiction to hear the case and that Mr. Dickson had the right as a private citizen to start the proceedings. Having cleared away these technical obstacles, Judge Calhoun went immediately to the heart of the question as to whether women have the right to hold office under present laws.

Going back in the common law in England on the principles of which the plaintiff had grounded his suit, the court explained that women were not allowed to hold office under the old common law, principally because a custom to that effect had grown up. It was based on the assumption that women were too delicate for the arduous duties attendant upon official duties and were not educated to the point where they could fill executive positions as well as men. He showed, however, that these conceptions of women's position had gradually changed as women became more educated and general enlightenment spread until the old ideas had given way to the modern conception that women are in all things the equals of men.

Common Law Obsolete

He came then to the conclusion that the common law principle barring women from office is obsolete and of no present effect.

He next attacked the contention that the state constitution had barred women from holding the office of governor because it used the words "he" and "his," these pronouns indicating, according to the plaintiff, that the framers of the document meant only a man should be governor. The court, however, held that the constitution in other places barred women by specific provision and that if it had been the intention of the framers to prevent women from becoming governor, they would have specifically excluded her from this office also.

Judge Calhoun pointed out that woman suffrage had been agitated for 20 years prior to 1876, when the constitution was written, and that the authors of the document were aware of this and wrote the constitution with the knowledge that some day women would insist on the vote.

Women Control Salary

The court ruled that former Governor Ferguson's impeachment could not be visited on the wife and that this contention could have no legal weight. On the question of Mr. Ferguson's sharing in the wife's salary as governor, he held that under the present laws women control their own separate property, so Mrs. Ferguson's husband would have no right at law to participate in her salary.

Throughout the hearing and the rendition of the judge's opinion, there was a marked absence of interest by women in the first case in which the right of a woman to be governor of a state of the union was questioned. Not more than a half dozen women were present in the court room today.

Yeats said at the county jail here, that he married the Oklahoma girl, whom he judged to be about 17 years old, in Missouri two weeks ago. He said that "the only charges they can have against me is that I swore to a lie when I told that Miss Georgia Fields, whom I married, was of age."

BIBLE THOUGHT AND PRAYER

USE HEAVENLY BANKS—Lay not up for yourself treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: But lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: For where your treasure is there will your heart be also.—Matthew 6:19-21.

PRAYER—

"Thou, O Christ, are all I want,
More than all in Thee I find."

TWO PARTIES OR ONE?

During the recent convention in New York a candidate for the nomination was asked whether he would visit Texas during the fall.

"If I am not nominated I think I will be down this fall," said the candidate frankly, "but if I am nominated, I cannot waste my time coming to Texas, because that is sure democratic anyhow."

Anyone attending a national convention, whether democratic or republican, has the sense of being distinctly out of the running as far as residence in the state of Texas is concerned. Everybody talks about the chances in New Jersey, Ohio, New York, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland and California.

No one talks about either Pennsylvania or Texas—two of the five largest states in population. The reason is that both Pennsylvania, a republican stronghold, and Texas, a democratic stronghold, are already disposed of in everybody's mind. Both states are merely part of the luggage of their respective parties. Even whenever there is any strengthening of the party, largely it is done by fixing up the political fence in the doubtful states. The only exception in forty years has been under President Wilson's regime, and that of course, was due to the fact that Wilson was a statesman first and a politician second.

Texas would loom far larger in national politics at least if there were two parties in Texas instead of the one at present.

It is probably also true there would be a greater efficiency in state government, both in Pennsylvania and Texas, if there were competition of a two-party nature. Pennsylvania's state government has been notoriously dominated by the republican graft ring with headquarters at Philadelphia. The same thing would be true in New York with Tammany, if it were not that Tammany was opposed by a very strongly organized republican majority in up-state New York, which generally balances the Tammary majorities in New York City.

There are signs that Texas has suffered in its state government at different times during the last twenty years, because of the fact that one party is so dominant.

The Record News is a democratic newspaper, and believes that the democratic party in this nation has consistently advocated human rights as apposed to the republican party which has too consistently been over tender toward property rights. But, the Record News believes that the democratic party in Texas and the other democratic influences in national affairs would show improvements if there were a really competitive party

THIS IS WOMAN'S AGE.

Mrs. Frank Tinney, wife of the famous comedian, has sued her husband for a divorce and asks for $750 weekly alimony and counsel fees of $5,000. According to the attorney for her husband her demands are ridiculous for the reason that she has the deed to Foxhurst, the $100,000 Tinney home on Long Island, she has possession of his savings of over $100,000 which he accumulated during the past fifteen years while he has his wardrobe and that is all.

Yes, this is woman's age and she is getting all that is coming to her. Husband Tinney thinks that she is getting more than is coming to her. Incidentally, the house of Winthrop of New England has endured a great shock. Papa Winthrop is a millionaire banker and the head of an ancient lineage. His two lovely daughters eloped last week, one taking the family chauffeur to be her husband and soul mate and the other the electrician on the family estate.

This double barrelled society event created a greater commotion than the election of a United States senator in Massachusetts and the "classes" and the "masses" are wondering if the country is hell-bent when two Winthrops take unto themselves as husbands two unknowns without the pale of Back Bay and Berkshire society. Isn't it hades!

UNCOMMON SENSE

By JOHN BLAKE.

The Trial Trip.

As soon as a steamship is launched the engines installed and the crew put aboard, she is sent on a trial trip.

She is given a hard test.

If she comes through all right she is ready for her regular job.

If she fails in any particular, back to the yard or shop she goes.

Sometimes three or four trial trips are required to determine whether such a vessel is fit for the duty for which she was designed and built.

If she fails continually, she is either broken up for the material in her, or put to some far less important work than was expected of her when she came off the ways.

The young man out of college gets the same kind of trial trip in the first ten years of his business life.

Usually he will find that he has started out, lacking some important equipment that he should have had.

College faculties cannot foresee what a boy may attempt to do. Few of them give themselves much concern about him, trying only to afford him an opportunity to learn what they have to teach.

For five or at most ten years, he is on his trial trip. After that he must begin to sail his course.

Unless on this trial trip he gets thoroughly tuned up, makes up all the deficiencies with which he may have been launched, and fits himself to the conditions of the longer voyage, he will never be a dependable craft.

He cannot, it is true, go back to the college for the repairs he needs. But he can get the lacking equipment somewhere and he can make up for any faults of construction by self-repairs made during the test years.

The years after college or after are really a post-graduate course.

Few men are really ready for the hard work of life under thirty. Still fewer are at their best under forty.

But after that, all the worst faults should be got rid of, all the machinery made to work smoothly, and the complicated systems of nerves made to co-ordinate.

As the man emerges from his first ten years of business life, so will he go on to the end. He may gather speed and momentum and make new and noteworthy voyages. But it will be the work-outs on the trial trip that will put him in condition for the long, hard runs.

HOW IT STARTED

YANKEE DOODLE

In Albany, New York, there is a historic house, known in colonial times, as Fort Crailo, which has recently been presented by its owner to New York state, to be used for a museum. Among the traditions of Fort Crailo is that it was the birthplace of our well known "Yankee Doodle."

It was just before the British attack on Fort "Ti." Still in existence overlooking Lake Champlain, this was then in the hands of the French who greatly valued it as a line of defense at what was then the Canadian border. There was a call among the British for volunteers. The colonists came riding into town dressed in their best here and there one with a feather in his cap to indicate his cock-sureness of the success of the expedition.

A British army surgeon sitting in a window of Fort Crailo was so amused at these passers-by that to an old English tune he composed these now familiar words:

"Yankee Doodle's came to town
Riding on a pony;
Has stuck a feather in his cap,
Calls it 'macaroni'!"

It must be explained that "macaroni" was the slang word of the period for the "last thing" in style!

Tomorrow: "Jeehol."

More Truth Than Poetry

PREPARATION

We teach a boy to write and read and cipher—in a fashion, and for his wails of "What's the need?" we have but scant compassion. We tell him, with a lordly air he must be stored with knowledge in order that he may prepare for college.

In college he is made to toil o'er tomes of endless pages in which he finds embalmed the spoil and wisdom of the ages. And he is told he must beware of youth's light-headed dizziness, in order that he may prepare for business.

In business he must fight his way against all competition so that he may achieve some day the thing he calls ambition, and frequently he must take care his efforts to redouble, in order that he may prepare for trouble.

A deal of work, a little play, his turn at joy and sorrow; he travels briskly from today until he meets tomorrow. Then autumn's beauty in the air, the loaf of age to leaven, and lo! he finds he must prepare for heaven!

PERHAPS

Mr. Dempsey refuses to consult fortune tellers, probably because he doesn't want to be warned against a dark mat.

Dr. Frank Crane's Daily Editorial

A Shifting Instrument.

The intellect, for all that may be said of it, is a frail reed to lean upon.

It is a question of whether it is governed more by traditions, customs, instincts and passions than by reason. Certain it is that unless there be some check upon the reason it is liable to lead us into all kinds of difficulty.

This was brought out by one of the experts in the Leopold and Loeb trial.

"The idea," he said, "for these master criminals was to do a good job. It was to be thoroughly and completely planned. There was to be no clue. An intellectual feat was to be accomplished."

In fact the whole Leopold-Loeb case shows what the unaided intellect, solely depended upon, will lead us to. Unless there are sound instincts underlying natural repulsions and attractions, that hold us to the mass of humanity and to decent conduct, the intelligence is liable to lead us astray.

People of very rudimentary intellect, grossly uneducated people, may at the same time, be law-abiding and good neighbors. While the most dangerous rascal unhung is likely to be gifted with extraordinary powers.

The intellect is the cutting edge of a man. But, if the desires be wrong in the first place, the more intelligence he has the more capable he is of doing harm.

It is just like sharpening an axe. The training of the intellect is putting a good edge upon a piece of steel, but if the steel itself is rotten, it makes no difference how well it is sharpened.

Whether the plea of mental deficiency or moral deficiency, is a good one on the part of young Leopold and Loeb we do not presume to say, but we do dare to assert that a man is safest in sticking to the great moralities which he has inherited from the race. He is safer, far, in so doing than in blazing a new way for himself. He who is guided by the moralities is governed by laws that have slowly been developed by the evolution of mankind. He who is governed by his intelligence alone is under the charge of a faulty master.

This is not a plea for ignorance, nor any devil's argument in favor of the abandonment of reason. It is indeed a plea for a deeper education, the education of the morals more than of the brain.

GLEANINGS FROM THE BOOK OF LIFE

BY CLARK KINNAIRD

TAKING A HINT FROM POTATO HILL

Ed Howe of Potato Hill, America's philosopher, complains because Friedreich Neitzsche and Arthur Schopenhauer, called by him two of the scrumptiest thinkers, and smartest men, that ever lived, are seldom referred to in the run-off of the day's literature.

"These two men were not only tremendously intelligent, but about the best writers of which we have record. Both managed to sting the sentimentalists so hard that a good deal of them answered, and thus Neitzsche and Schopenhauer became known, but there is still a conspiracy in editorial offices not to mention them.

"With supreme words, they move you as Fritz Kreisler does with violin and bow.

"They were master writers, as Rubens was a master painter.

"The writing of Neitzsche and Schopenhauer is more valuable than the painting of Rubens.

"The writing of Schopenhauer and Neitzsche is like a master chemist digging into the heart of things; like vivisection to demonstrate a fact;

"Both men were frequently mean, but never silly, and they were never bad writers.

"Neitzsche, who has been described as a Greek born two thousand years too late, wrote:

"What is good?—Whatever augments the feeling of power, the will to power, power itself, in man.

"What is evil?—Whatever springs from weakness.

"What is happiness?—The feeling that power increases—that resistance is overcome.

"What is more harmful than any vice?—Practical sympathy for the botched and the weak."

Neitzsche held the mankind does not represent an evolution toward a better or stronger or higher level, as progress is now understood.

"This 'progress,'" he wrote, "is merely a modern idea, which is to say, a false idea. The European of today, in his essential worth, falls far below the European of the renaissance; the process of evolution does not necessarily mean elevation, enhancement and strengthening."

It is true, he conceded, it succeeds in isolated and individual cases in various parts of the earth, and under widely different cultures, and in these cases a higher type certainly manifests itself; something, which, compared to mankind in the mass, appears to him as a sort of superman.

Such happy strokes as history have always been possible, and will remain possible, perhaps, for all time to come, he observed. "Even whole races, tribes and nations may occasionally represent such lucky accidents."

SUB ROSA

Ideals

Six lovely girls were gathered around a tea table chattering like magpies. The subject of the conversation was "Who is your ideal woman, and who would you rather be like?"

Most of the girls had stage favorites, and one after the other named some stage star that they would care to resemble.

Ethel Barrymore and Jane Cowl were quite in the lead, when one of the girls spoke up and said, "But what about character? All of you are speaking of beauty, which is important of course, but I have an ideal that I got out of the pages of history, and I hold it in my mind, as faithfully as some men try to follow Abraham Lincoln's footsteps.

"The person I am trying to pattern my character after is Octavia, wife to Anthony. She was accustomed to control her feelings and sacrifice her inclinations to others. Her deportment, her unaffected and simple manners, the beauty of her person, her virtues and fine qualities made her the boast and ornament of the court."

"I'll follow her example," the pretty girl continued, "and some day I will become a great social favorite."

"I sort of carry a historical ideal too," a little brown sparrow type of girl spoke up, "Elizabeth, Queen of England has been my model for a long time. Although she never married, her sterling qualities are well worth imitating. She was a woman of ideal, uncommon strength and discernment. Brilliant in her studies. Of her reign it is said it was the most beautiful in history. She was a woman who forgives every wrong and made peace with her enemies."

"You have a lot to live up to," the other girls exclaimed, "but it does sound interesting, let us all select someone who is quite wonderful, and try to be like her."

This is a good plan, I think, and an easy way to improve one's manners and character. There is a book called "Famous Women of History," that can be had at almost any library, and wonderful models found therein.

STATE FAIR TO BE HELD.

It Has Not Been Called Off Because of Hoof-Mouth Disease.

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 29.—The Texas state fair at Dallas has not been called off and there is no reason why the fair should not be as big as ever, Chairman J. E. Boog-Scott of the state live stock sanitary commission declared today in quieting rumors that the foot and mouth disease here might affect the fair.

The state live stock boards of Oklahoma and Louisiana in conference this morning with Chairman Boog-Scott indicated there would be no interference with the transporting of the race horses to Dallas from other states. Whatever action might be taken with reference to cattle will be determined, they said, by future developments with reference to the foot and mouth disease in this county.

W. H. Stratton, secretary of the state fair, who was at the conference pointed out that the cattle department was only one of 22 departments at the fair.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE

LIBRA

Today's planetary aspects are adverse and counsel attention by only to usual work of a routine nature. If you have developed some new plan, calling for a radical change in your methods, do not put it into execution today, but defer it for some more propitious opportunity. In your private life, the sign indicates a predisposition to quarrel, argue and to make "mountains out of molehills." Put the brakes on, and keep them on, and do not forget to use the emergency brake, if the occasion should arise, as it probably will.

A child born today will pass safely through the vicissitudes of infancy, provided it be carefully nurtured and its environment be wholesome. A rather serious illness threatens it during the time of adolescence. Its character will be complex; its disposition variable; its mentality keen.

This child promises to be anxious at all times to do what is right, but though its intentions may be good, its execution will often be faulty. Strong disciplinary measures must be used to destroy the "Hyde and Jekyllism" of this child's character; if this be done, its disposition will become of even, and not variable. While without any affection for depths of knowledge, it will have a superficial learning which will earn for it a reputation for brilliancy.

If today is your birthday, you have remarkable traits, which if developed naturally, would bring you both happiness and success; you however, obscure your virtues by bluff, if you are a man, and by gush, if you are a woman.

Both bluff and gush are evidences of superficiality and insincerity. A man can sometimes get away, and very often does, with pretense and sham, and secures temporary results which he attributes to his shrewdness; the results, however, are never lasting. A woman frequently inspires affection by "gushing," but it is always of an ephemeral character and neither durable nor enduring.

Sincerity is the twin of truth, and the greatest successes are those achieved by the exercise of those two virtues, by not pretending to be what you are not, and by not simulating sentiments that you do not feel.

A triumph gained by bluff is not self-satisfying nor secure, whereas one obtained by merit is; an association made, as a result of "gush," is bound, in the long run, to fail, as insincerity soon reveals itself, whereas sincerity begets sincerity.

Successful people born on this date are:

Jacob Estey, organ manufacturer.

Matthews S. Quay, senator.

Dorothy Dix

The Man Whose Wife Is Nothing But a Great Expense to Him—Should She Call Her Fiance or Wait in for Him?—The Intellectual Appeal.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Where is the equity in a marriage relationship where the husband hauls the freight, and the wife sits in the pillows? I refer specifically to the husband making over $3000 yearly. To put it another way: What is there in marriage for a man making over $3000 yearly? The present-day woman considers there is no "double standard"—does as she pleases—wants it all—and gives nothing but expense. You have many times written about the poor subordinate, and who he should not marry without being able to afford the luxury. Why should the man more advanced assume the load?

UNABLE TO UNDERSTAND.

Answer:

I have advised the very poor man not to marry until he could afford the luxury of wife and children, just as much for his own sake as for the woman's, because I believe that no man is more miserable than he who sees those he loves suffering for the things he cannot give them, and who is hounded at every step of the way by the bill collector.

As for the wife who sits in the pillows while her husband "pulls the freight," who takes all and gives nothing but expense, she is so small in number as to be almost negligible. I know thousands of women in all parts of the country, and in my vast acquaintance there are only one or two women like that.

The great majority of wives are industrious and thrifty, and anxious to help their husbands get on in the world. They work as hard, keeping house and taking care of their children, as their husbands do. If this were not true, there would not be happy and prosperous homes everywhere; there would not be clean, well-dressed children going promptly to school of a morning; and death rate among children would not steadily go down, for houses are not kept by magic; children are not washed and dressed automatically. It takes work, and plenty of it, to keep a household a going concern.

As to what the man gets out of marriage, whose wife does not have to cook for him with her own hands and make his shirts and give him the personal service that poorer women have to give their husbands, that depends pretty much on the man and what he demands of a wife. There is love, for instance, the faithful love of a wife that follows a man through good and ill fortune, and that makes of her arms a refuge to which he can flee when all the world turns against him; the love that cherishes him in sickness, and goes with him down into the valley of death. There is companionship that makes her the one pal of whom he never tires.

Most well-to-do men in America get their social position and friends out of marriage because it is women who run and rule society. Many men get an invaluable press agent in their wives; many other men find wise counselors in their wives, and many, many men make of their wives the shop windows in which they display the visible tokens of their success to the world.

Furthermore, this is to be said—a man picks out his wife himself, and if he does not get what he wants, it is his own error of judgment.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a girl eighteen years old, and am engaged to a man two years older than myself. I am very much in love with him, but sometimes I wonder if he really cares for me. When he calls on me he does not make a date to come again, but I never go out anywhere for fear he will come and I might be gone.

Should I stay at home evenings and look for him, or should he tell me when to expect him. Is it my place to call him up on the telephone to find out when he is coming when he doesn't make a date

AN ANXIOUS LOVER.

Answer:

I think that the young man does not love you, that he is tired of the engagement and is trying to force you to break it. Certainly a man is a poor and indifferent lover who is so casual about coming to see the girl to whom he is engaged.

At any rate he is too sure of you. He knows that you will be sitting like Patience on a monument, waiting for him to come back to you whenever he happens to feel like doing so, and that is why he does not think that it is necessary to treat you with any consideration or respect.

So brace up, and have a little pride and self-respect. Don't ask him when he is coming, and when he does come, let him find you gone. And, for heaven's sake, let the telephone wire rust out with age before you call him up over it.

What this young man needs is a good snubbing. Don't be afraid of administering it. If he cares for you at all, you will make him realize it by letting him see that he is not necessary to your happiness and that you can get on perfectly well without him. If he is tired of you, let him go. Better a thousand times to lose him now than after you are married.

A woman who sits and waits alone at home for any man to come back to her is enough to make the angels weep. She is such a spectacle of folly.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a woman past thirty in love with a married man who is not yet twenty-five. We first met on the intellectual plane, where I could help him with his studies, while his wife was busy cooking beefsteak. We are disconsolate, for it is the first love of my life. His wife does not know, and how are we to tell her?

JULIA.

Answer:

Why tell her at all, Julia, for your love episode will be a brief one? You are past thirty and he is not twenty-five. Some pretty young girl will soon meet him on the youth plane, and then it will be good-night for you. Do not despise the wife who broils beefsteaks. Personally, I have more faith in appealing to a man's stomach than his intellectuality as a permanent lure. But what a pity these many-sided men can't live in a harem.

"Ready, girls?"

The orchestra at the Bel-Air, the great winter resort hotel at San Ilisario, California, had already squawked and wailed through two numbers when Mrs. Baldwin Brown entered the room which her daughters occupied.

In accordance with the Bel-Air custom they dined in sports clothes, then hurried upstairs to change to elaborate evening wear for the dance in the Pekingese ball room. Even Baldwin Brown, steel magnate of Ellensville, Illinois, ceased to balk at a custom which required him to doff his conservative business suit between six and seven for knickered tweeds, and to switch from tweeds to dinner-clothes between eight and nine—after dinner.

As she asked the question Mrs. Brown wondered again resignedly how she came to be burdened with two daughters so unattractive. She had had beaux in plenty in her own younger days, for she had been pretty and charming. But her offsprings were ugly ducklings who could never turn into swans, she knew. Maude, the elder, was too tall. She was colorless, commonplace and indolent.

Berenice, the younger, was a sober trial to her mother. She had possibilities which rendered her unattractiveness the more marked. She had a good figure but a muddy complexion. Her eyes were dark blue, large and expressive. And she had brains. Her face, however, was hopelessly spoiled by two features, her nose and her teeth. Berenice's nose was of the sort which the principal clown in the circus adorns himself in order to rouse derisive laughter even before he begins to cut capers. And as if nature had not been sufficiently unkind, she had equipped the girl with two projecting upper front teeth.

"Ready?" repeated Mrs. Brown, smothering a sigh. Maude, listless in an unbecoming and dowdy lice-blue satin, turned from the long window. Berenice was at the dressing table, discontentedly applying a powder-puff. Her old-rose chiffon showed taste and originality. Her pale-brown hair was well arranged. But her skin was dull under the powder.

As she rose from the low chair she lifted a book from the table. "Ready, mother," she replied. Maude, hesitant, turned from the window and, with a sidewise glance at her mother, picked up a magazine from her bed.

Mrs. Brown looked from one to the other and her gaze included significantly the reading-matter. "We're going to the ballroom," she said, sweetly, though there was intangible reproof in her manner.

"I know we're going to the ballroom," replied Berenice, calmly, though a little red appeared in her cheeks.

"But, my dear child," remonstrated Mrs. Brown, the sweetness becoming slightly acid, "one doesn't read in a ballroom; one doesn't go to a ballroom to read. You're there to dance."

"We will not dance twice the whole evening," returned Berenice, still quietly, but with an undercurrent of bitterness. "With something to read we have an alibi."

Mrs. Brown stood hesitant. The resort hotels are filled, each winter, with pathetic pilgrims. Mothers, back east, discover that the home-town boys are somehow passing their daughters by for other girls more frivolous, more flirtatious, and more frilly. This, despite the fact that the parents of the unattractive girls have in many cases amassed a solid competence or a downright fortune. When the discovery is made, the mother prepares for the great gamble.

If she can persuade her husband to leave his business it is westward, ho! for the whole family. If she cannot, the mother engineers the invasion of the west unaided. But when California is reached the competition is found to be more keen than it is at home. Each hotel is an eddy that attracts anxious parents and homely daughters. After a time they escape from California to another eddy which has the advantage of being larger, or smaller, as the case may be. And thus it goes—Monterey, Del Monte, Santa Barbara, San Ilisario, Los Angeles, Pasadena, Riverside, Coronado, until all the eddies have been exhausted, spring has come—and the daughters are still unmarried.

The daughters themselves are divided into two classes:

The girls of the first class throw themselves into various gayeties, doing the correct thing at the correct time, tennis, golf, bathing, riding, motoring. Thus they hope to make, and sometimes succeed in making, acquaintances which lighten the tedium of the quest. They enter the hotel ballroom chatting animatedly and smiling brightly. Chatter and smiles persist throughout the evening, though dances are few. But they keep up the fiction that they are having a wonderful time.

The girls of the second class start as do those of the first. But lack of encouragement or lack of pluck silences the chatter and dims the smile. The ballroom becomes a place of trial, an inquisition-chamber which they loathe and dread but which they cannot escape.

To salve their pride and save their faces, those watchers at the feast who seldom if ever partake must have occupation and excuse for their presence. So there has grown up the custom among the hopelessly plain of faking books and magazines to the ballroom.

The literary refuge, while it is a confession of defeat is also a balm. It is a sign of little expectation. And those who do not expect much cannot be greatly disappointed.

That is, it is a balm to some natures. But it was not to Mrs. Brown. She was a fighter who believed in facing the enemy and striking back. The submissiveness of her daughters to the inevitable was humiliating to her.

"Nonsense, Berenice! Don't be silly. Of course you will dance, if you give people a chance to ask you. But if you're buried in a book—"

"They have had chances before and they haven't asked me," replied Berenice, with terrifying candor, though her blue eyes were clouded with the pain which the confession cost her. "Why sit there looking as though you expect someone to ask you, when really you don't?"

Mrs. Brown shook her marcelled head. "My dear child, we don't know people here yet. The hostess will introduce young men. That's one of her duties."

"Oh, the hostess," said Berenice, with faint contempt, and stopped.

They had been in four resorts, and to mind the of each sprang a composite but clear-cut picture of the western resort-hotel hostess. The picture was of a fading woman of a certain age, harassed under her professional aren't-we-having-a-good-time air. They had watched her maneuver in the ballroom. Over and over again, with a certain morbid interest, they had noticed her as she approached the sleek-haired young dancing-men with the smiling request that they dance with certain lack-lustre girls who lined the walls.

They had learned to identify the next phase, when the young man who had been buttonholed demanded particulars, when he insisted on seeing the girl whose boredom he was presumably to relieve. The third phase was his covert stare. And often it was followed by a negative shake of the head. Then, hiding her disappointment under a casual manner if this were the outcome, the hostess would take up the search for another young man with shining hair.

With that picture in her mind, Berenice clung to her book determinedly and took a few steps toward the door.

"Now, Berenice," said the mother, answering the girl's tone, rather than her words, "you know very well that the hostess can introduce you. Please leave the book." She did not think to include the yawning Maude in the request; whatever Berenice did, Maude would do without argument.

Berenice tapped the thick and luxurious rug, woven in cunning imitation of tapestry, meditatively for a moment. Then her resolution hardened.

"Thanks, mother," she returned, coldly, "but I don't care to dance with the boys she has to drag up to dance with us."

Though Mrs. Brown fingered her pearls and frowned, she acquiesced without further argument. She liked her own way. Yet there were times when having it cost too much. This was one such time. Besides, it would be just as well. The situation could be turned to advantage.

Vide Variety Of Exhibits Shown By Texas Women

No Phase Slighted in This Department at 1924 Exposition

THOUSANDS ATTEND

"To Make the Best Better" Is Lakedale's Exhibit Slogan

No phase of woman's work has been slighted in the women's exhibit at the Texas-Oklahoma fair which opened yesterday morning. Judges were finding their work difficult for the exhibits were in such close competition. Exquisite needlework, plain and fancy sewing, embroideries, crochetings, tattings, in fact everything in the needlework world is to be found in the woman's building which was visited by thousands during the opening day.

Sewing, Canning Shown.

In the girl's department, an excellent exhibit of sewing and canning was shown, the work having been done by the girls of Clay, Wichita counties of Texas and Tillman county, Oklahoma. One hundred and twenty jars of canned foods were shown, and record and history books done by the girls.

Community exhibits of canned fruits, vegetables, lard, cured hams, cold and cooked soap, all done by the women of the nearby counties of Texas and Oklahoma came in for their share of the interest in the woman's building.

Other booths which attracted much attention included; the Camp Fire exhibits; the Harding demonstration club; the Texas Children's Home and Aid society which has a number of interesting posters.

Culinary Attracts.

The culinary department with its breads, candies, cakes and pies was especially attractive. Judging was begun Monday. The woman's exchange with garments, scarfs, and other useful articles done by hand, briefly, did a good day's work for the first day, according to the chairman. In the exchange, pieces are sold by the exchange for a ten per cent commission.

Individual exhibits were attractive. Ewa Augur of Tillman county, Oklahoma, had a community exhibit in which various kinds of needle work and canning was shown.

In the department of children's work, many exhibits were placed. The work in this department was done by boys and girls under 15 years of age. One of the attractive things, was the doll's bedroom set done by a 14-year-old boy. A dressed French baby doll, the kind that is carried in the arms, was one of the features.

Fancy Sewing Shown.

Knitting, tatting, crocheting, darning plain and fancy sewing, button holes, basket work, were among the exhibits in the woman's building.

"To make the best better" was the motto of the Lakedale community exhibit. Needlework, plain and fancy sewing, and canning were the features of the booth.

Home demonstration clubs and booths from Bowie, Petrolia, Iowa Park, Electra were also in the woman's building.

Antiques from different localities found their places in the booth of antiques, a newly added department of the Texas-Oklahoma fair.

Mrs. Hart Galloway of Henrietta had an attractive individual booth in which she displayed many kinds of fine needlework. Among the pieces exhibited were those done in Italian cutwork, Kensington work, embroidered net, eylet embroidery, darned crash, darned net, repress, Battenburg and crochet lace. Mrs. Galloway had a number of pieces exhibited for which no prizes were offered for the kind of work.

Quilting On Display.

Quilts of various patterns ranging from yarn quilts done in woolen thread to children's quilts done in pink and white, blue and white and other colors, while variety was added with a number of autopragh or friendship quilts.

The tea room in the woman's building was patronized largely by the women visitors to the fair. It is located in the same building with the exhibits.

A piano was placed in the building and those who cared to play and "make themselves at home" were at liberty to do so. Several women delighted the crowds with pleasing piano solos.

"I'VE LOST MY MAMA"

If You Miss Him at Fair Go To Secretary's Office.

"I've lost my mama," were cries not infrequently heard Monday at the fair ground. While the mothers were busily looking over the exhibits which interested them, several little tots and girls strayed away.

"I can't find my mama," sobbed a little curly headed girl, as she wandered toward the midway. "We were in the dog show and now I can't find her."

The tearful little child was taken to the fair office to be kept until the mother could find her. In a few minutes a weeping little boy was brought in, and he, too, found a place on the fair secretary's desk. He ceased his sobs when he saw the little lost girl did not cry.

It was not long before the mother of the little girl came in, and at sight of her, the curly headed child broke in great sobs of relief. Then the boy's mother came, but he smiled, he was so happy to see her he forgot to cry.

CHILDREN WITHOUT HOMES.

Interesting Exhibit of Orphanage Work Is Seen at Fair.

Posters explaining something of the Texas Children's Home and Aid society are to be found in the booth of that society at the woman's building of the Texas-Oklahoma fair. Miss Katherine Henricle, agent of the society, asks that the fathers and mothers with whom she has placed children and who are visiting at the fair grounds stop to see the exhibit.

Miss Henricle has found homes for many childless families and has found fathers and mothers for many children whose parents have died or otherwise left them. She has a number of children at the present time who are without homes.

FROM FIVE TO EIGHT OCTAVES

Organ Brought to Wichita Falls From Dallas in 1880 Shown.

Gone are the days when the parlor organ holds away but the first organ in Wichita Falls is being shown in the woman's building at the Texas-Oklahoma fair. The organ is low, not more than four and one-half feet high, of beautiful dark oak finish, and has a keyboard of five octaves. It is a Mason and Hamlin organ brought to this city from Dallas county in 1880. In place of being sent here by express, it was sent brough in a covered wagon, making the trip from Dallas in 12 days.

It was the gift to Mrs. A. H. Carrigan by her father, Judge J. H. Barwise, Sr., on her sixth birthday.

In contrast to the organ is a new upright piano, in mahogany finish. Its keyboard is eight octaves.

ENGAGED, WED, SEPARATED.

Mrs. Catherine McPhail Jenkins Bonsal.

BALTIMORE, Md.—Mrs. Catherine McPhail Jenkins Bonsal doesn't read romance; she lives it.

Engaged at 10 a. m., married at 6 p. m., separated shortly after midnight with the prospect of an annulment—that is the story of her latest high-speed romance, in which Leigh Bonsal, Jr., son of a wealthy Baltimore family, is the other principal.

But this is only a part of the story of the wedding, for, the bride says, young Bonsal was attacked by his brother, H. Pleasants Bonsal, when he returned to his home, and the attack, she further avers, is what caused the separation, for Bonsal was injured so severely he was confined to his home. The attack is denied, however.

Catherine, who was Miss McPhail, was only recently divorced from James Carroll Jenkins, scion of another wealthy Maryland house.

Camp Fire Girls Exhibit Beckons You to the Wilds

Summer Camp in Mountains Is Cleverly Depicted At Fair.

MAIDENS IN MIDDIES

Activities of 300 School Girls of Wichita Falls Are Demonstrated.

Summer camp in the mountains is cleverly depicted by a huge sand table in the booth of the Camp Fire Girls under the direction of Miss Glenore Fisk, executive, in the women's building at the fair, which is attracting large crowds of spectators.

Tiny dolls, dressed by the girls of the various Camp Fire groups of the city in the regulation Camp Fire uniforms and bathing suits are carrying out all the activities of camp life.

Dolls in black bathing suits embroidered with Camp Fire emblem are emerging from the miniature tents of the trim little campsite and making their way down to the swimming pool where their pals are swimming diving and playing on the sand beach.

Maidens in middies and bloomers are rolling bed rolls in the approved style for a jaunt through the hills, while others prepare supper over an open fire, and still others seek a hidden treasure by means of thrilling notes found along the blazed trail which tell where the buried treasure lies.

A group in dress uniform are standing before the flag pole at attention while two of their party raise the colors to the breeze. Another group of maidens in the long brown ceremonial gowns, beaded and embroidered are seated around a council fire going through the Camp Fire ritual and conferring Camp Fire degrees on three of their members.

The display, besides being a remarkable exhibition of the hand craft of the Camp Fire Girls who made it, is of informative value to the crowds who view it, for it portrays accurately and entertainingly the work and ideals of the Camp Fire organization which claims 300 members among the school girls of Wichita Falls.

SCHOOL EXHIBITS INTEREST.

Prizes In This Department at Fair To Be Given Friday.

The educational building of the Texa-Oklahoma fair was a scene of interest to the school children of the various schools in Texas and Oklahoma who visited the fair grounds Monday. They had occasion to see there the handiwork of the other schools in competition for prizes.

Note books in history and English, works of the home economics and manual training classes, the hand work of the beginners, the work of school children that is visible to the eye.

That school children of today have advantages in an educational way over those of a generation ago is shown by the exhibits of the pupils. Drawing, penmanship, posters, printing, sewing, manual training and other subjects now taught in the graded schools are exhibited in the Texas-Oklahoma fair in the educational building. Although the schools have been opened only a month, the work exhibited by the pupils who have worked only that short time is commendable.

The prizes among the school exhibits will be awarded by Friday.

FLYING CIRCUS THRILLS.

Daredevil Aid Show An Attraction At the T-O Exposition.

Death dives, free cloud circuits and daredevil stunts pleased the spectators at the Texas-Oklahoma fair Monday when Eddie Brooks, Ivan R. Gates and Diavalo of the Gates Flying Circus did stunt flying for the visitors.

Hanging to a rope in mid air, standing on top of the plane and doing his "daily dozen" the performer had the crowd waiting below speechless, marveling at his bravery.

The airplanes will fly each afternoon of the fair, beginning at 3 o'clock.

140 BABIES REGISTERED.

Free Examination Spaces Are Filled Three Days Ahead.

One hundred and forty babies were registered at 1 o'clock Monday, the first day of the fair. Thirty children were turned away after that time, but the spaces for the free examinations were filled for the next three days, according to the nurses in charge.

Much interest has been shown by the mothers and fathers in the free baby clinic, and the clinic was one of the many places of interest at the fair.

1,120 CHICKENS ON HAND.

Almost Every Known Variety and Breed at the T-O Fair.

Chickens of nearly every breed, variety and specie, numbering 1,120 at 5 o'clock Monday, were in the cages at the poultry exhibit at the Texas-Oklahoma fair. Poultry fanciers from Texas and Oklahoma were looking them over and exchanging conversation over the relative merits of the various brands.

The judging will be done today. B. A. Reeves of Fort Worth, well known Texas Wyandotte breeder, is at the fair with his cages of chickens. Walter Burton of Arlington, the judge, was at the exhibit yesterday to begin work Tuesday.

U. S. HAS EXHIBIT HERE.

"Protect State From Predatory Animals" Is Its Slogan.

The United States department of agriculture has a display at the Texas-Oklahoma fair to carry out the agricultural program of the western states.

"Protect your livestock from predatory animals" is the placard that greets every eye. A stuffed wolf shown in its natural habitat in a cleverly arranged background representing a mountainside.

At another scene is shown a wolf and her brood of five pups at the spot where they have killed a hog. The exhibit attracted the attention of many fair visitors and the children noted it with interest, asking many questions concerning it.

How strange it will seem, "Hell, the senate is now adjourned."

A hike by any other name would be just as tiresome as a walk.

Panthers Massacre Chickasaws for Third Straight

'Atzmen Wallop Memphis Hurlers For 14 to 8 Victory

Calvo, Bischoff and Sears Pole Homers—Ziggy Hits Two.

SPITTER PAUL AGAIN

Chicks Rally In Late Innings But Comeback Is Squelched.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 29.—For the third successive day, the rejuvinated Fort Worth Panthers jumped upon the offerings of the Memphis Chickasaw pitchers and by means of many home runs and even more doubles and singles. won their straight third game of the series 14 to 8.

The game today gives the Panthers the lead in the series with three games won, to two lost, after the southerners had taken a two-game lead in the games played on their own grounds. The Cats need but one game more to clinch the series.

Once again the staccato crack of bat against ball causing home runs and other bingles turned an ordinarily good game into a batting melee with just one question to be solved: "How many runs will the Cats make before the game is over?"

Chicks Easy.

The Texas representatives scored in six of the eight innings that they were at bat and by the end of the fourth inning they had accumulated such a commanding lead that Paul Wachtel. the spitball flinger of the Cats, was permitted to ease up a bit.

Wachtel was started today after a one-day rest, having won the first Panther victory on Saturday. He had been barred from using the freak delivery on Southern league territory and as the Cats move to Memphis tomorrow for the seventh game of the series this was his last chance to pitch.

His teammates, seeming to recognize the fact that he would likely not be at his best, immediately set out to put the game on ice. Rogers, the Memphis pitcher. making his second appearance in the series, also elected to use the spitter.

Cats Total 12 Homers.

Sears duplicated his feat of Saturday by making two home runs during the game, the first in the first inning and the second in the fourth inning both times with the bases empty. Calvo also hit his homer in the fourth scoring Bichoff and Wachtel ahead of him, and Bischoff hit for the circuit in the second, scoring Palmer and Eddington in front of him. During the three games here six Fort Worth players have driven out twelve home runs. Sears four, Kraft three, Calvo two, and Edington, Palmer and Bischoff one each. Not a homer has been made by a Memphis player.

Wachtel allowed but two hits in the first five innings of the game, but weakened a bit on the sixth when the Chicks bunched a double by Barber. an out by Prothro and a scratch hit by Carlyle for one run. This was followed by a single by Yaryan, and an error by Phelan on Smith's grounder which filled the bases, but Gleason ended the rally when he forced Yaryan at third and Phelan threw to Kraft completing a double play.

The Chicks made two runs in the seventh and eighth innings, and started such an attack in the ninth that departing fans were made to hesitate. Three runs were scored on four hits and an error by Tavener, but Barber pinch hitter for Rogers ended the game with an out. Palmer to Kraft.

Brown Suggests Test Opponents For Challenger

Wills Should Scrap Tate, Godfrey, Renault and Gibbons.

THEN FIGHT DEMPSEY

If Negro Good Enough To Meet Jack He Needn't Fear These.

By NORMAN BROWN.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 29. — We would like very much to hear that Harry Wills had signed to meet one of four men. They are:

Bill Tate.
George Godfrey.
Jack Renault.
Tommy Gibbons.

He can take them in the order named. That really doesn't matter. What is important is that Wills should convince the general public shortly that he is now sure of himself and really feels that he can give Jack Dempsey a run for his money.

If Wills' victory over Luis Firpo was achieved through Harry's ability as a boxer, his cunning as a ring general and his courage, Bill Tate, former sparring partner for Dempsey should be pie for him.

George Godfrey, another exstable mate of the champion and a tougher bird, should also prove comparatively easy for the colored aspirant.

Renault Not Easy.

Decisive victories over these two men would convince the public that the average heavy is no match for Wills.

Then should come the Renault bout. Renault combines a fair amount of boxing skill with what Dempsey also packs as his chief stock in trade—the wallop.

In meeting the Canadian policeman Wills would be tackling a combination of boxer-slugger who approaches Dempsey in general style.

Such a battle would not only give, the public a better line on Wills' chances against the clever Dempsey, but would give Harry some idea of what type of battle he would have to wage against the champion.

Then Gibbons.

A victory over Renault would give Wills the right to demand big money for a match with Gibbons—the man who is credited at least with staying 15 rounds with Dempsey.

If Wills feels now that he is Dempsey's match he should have nothing to fear in meeting any one of the four men named. A series of battles suggested would not only prove to the public that he is the man to meet Dempsey, but would be the best preparation possible for such a meeting.

If Wills goes into seclusion for six or nine months while waiting for offers for a battle with Dempsey, the publis will logically decide that his victory over Firpo was due more to Firpo's lack of condition and the laxity of the referee than to Harry's own ring ability.

Horse Races At Fair to Begin This Afternoon

The quarantine placed on horses, established here late last week because of the outbreak of the hoof and mouth disease in Harris county, was lifted late Monday afternoon and the horse races previously scheduled will be held as usual.

This announcement was made by L. J. McClure, who stated at the time that one of the best racing cards provided in the state would be run off today. It was refeared for a time that the horse racing would be eliminated entirely by the disease quarantine but this has now been obviated.

A shipment of 28 horses arrived last night from Omaha, Neb. and will be ready to face the barrier this afternoon. Others which were to have come from various points outside the state and then cancelled because of the quarantine, will be brought here according to the original schedule.

The official program for today is as follows:

First race 2:30 p. m. Six furlongs: Judson Wise 117, Mary Mallon 117, Miss Leighton 115, Oklahoma Kid 117, Our Leader 117, St. Jude 117.

Second race 3 p. m. One mile for Judge Moore purse: Nohow 114, Whippet 119, Firo 115, Gipsey Joe 119, Full O'Fun 119.

ALL GAMES IN MEMPHIS.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 29.—All of the remining games in the Dixie series between Memphis and Fort Worth will be played in Memphis, it was decided today when Memphis won the toss of a coin.

The two teams will leave Fort Worth tomorrow afternoon for Memphis to play the seventh game of the series in Memphis on Wednesday. Zimmerman Pulls World's Series' Greatest Boner Heinie Chases Collins Over Plate For Sox Marker.

RUTH GOAT IN 1921

Fandom Holds Sack in 1919 Famous Scandal Series.

Weather conditions always play a big part in the playing and attendance ends of a world's series. And speaking of weather. that odd day in 1922 is recalled—the day when the sun was so bright that Umpire Hildebrand mistook its glow for an Arctic night and called the game on account of darkness.

And right away quick other boners of the fall classics are recalled.

One bone leads to another, as the instructor in the anatomy class pointed out.

For many years Snodgrass' famous $30,000 muff that cost the Giants the series of 1912 was the masterpiece in "bone" history. Heinie Zimmerman's famous run has held the title since it was staged in the series of 1917.

Snodgrass' error was a physical one. Heinie's was a mental one although his feet should have known better. Any pair of well behaved baseball feet would have tripped over each other rather than carry their owner to such ridicule.

Enter the Headline Act.

Heinie's great act was staged in the fourth inning of the sixth game. It enabled Chicago to score the first of three runs that were enough to win the game.

Heinie got away bad in that inning. Eddie Collins, the first man up. bounced one to Zimerman and the third baseman heaved wild, Collins reaching second.

Joe Jackson raised a fly to Robertson, who dropped it. Collins moved to third.

McGraw motioned his infield in as Felsh went to bat. He grounded to Benton and the latter essayed to tag Collins off third. Collins retreated toward third and Benton tossed the ball to Zimmerman.

They're off!

Zimmerman is bent on touching Eddie out. The honor is to be his alone.

What a Race.

Collins leads at the quarter!

Three Chicago players, gathered around home plate, plead for the ball.

"'Tis mine till death do us part." yells Henie, and keeps on.

Half way home—and Collins holds his lead. Heinie is figuratively whipping his feet to get more speed out of them.

"Use your head!" some one yells to Heinie. He ponders but a moment on the remark. "I never ran on my head yet," he mutters and still depends upon his "dogs."

They near the plate. Collins leads by a length—of a bat. He flashes over the rubber a winner.

Two more runs rolled in in the proper manner after that before the Sox retired.

Ruth a "Goat."

Babe Ruth way well be called the goat of the 1921 world's series. Babe hit .313 in the series, but McGraw held him helpless in the pinches, just as he did the next year.

The fan was the goat in the decomposed series of 1919 between the Cinci Reds and White Sox. That baseball lived after the "selling out" by the "Black Sox" members of the Chicago team is due solely to the kindheartedness of the fans. The players who played true to their trust never will draw their proper share of glory for their part in that series because all records hinged upon games which were not on the level as far as some participants were concerned.

Fred Merkle made a mistake when he failed to save his "boner" for a world's series. Fred failed to touch second one day when victory meant the pennant for the Giants. That eliminated all chance of boners in the fall classic as far as Fred and his teammates were concerned.

HIS CONDITION CRITICAL

Physicians Express Concern Over Illness of Wyoming Governor

By The Associated Press.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Sept. 29. — The condition of Governor W. B. Ross of Wyoming, "is very, very grave" it was announced this afternoon following a consultation of his Cheyenne physicians and Dr. Leonard Freeman, specialist, who was summoned from Denver, Colo.

The objection to a diamond in the rough is the fact that he talks that way when his golf ball is in the rough.

NOT ALL WORLD'S SERIES TALES "HERO" ONES

Giant Fans Still Discuss "Biggest Series Inning"

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Giant fans are still talking about the "biggest inning in a world's series" that the McGrawmen staged while trouncing the New York Yankees in 1921—the first time the two clubs met.

In the third game that year the Giants went out for blood. When the seventh inning began they did, too. Before the third Giant was retired eight runs had been scored off a trio of pitchers, Jack Quinn, Warren Collins and Rogers.

That eight-run rally stands by itself in world's series history. The Athletics held the record up to that time with a seven-run rally against the Giants in 1911, so McGraw's men were really wiping out an old disgrace as well as setting a new record with their spurt three years ago.

The Athletics' victims were Hook Wiltse and Rube Marquard.

The next year, 1912, the Giants came within a run of equalling that seven-run rally scored against them. Facing Smoky Joe Wood, the New Yorkers shoved six runs across the plate in one frame.

Only three other teams have shown that strong in a pinch. The Cubs socked Wild Bill Donovan for six runs in one of the 1908 series games between Chicago and Detroit. The Athletics nicked Mordecai Brown of the Cubs for half a dozen tallies in the same round in 1910, and last year the Yankees slapped Jack Scott, Rosy Ryan and Hugh McQuillan for six runs.

Three Automobile Races Run; Rest Set For Sunday

Time trials and three events of the opening program, Texas-Oklahoma fair automobile races, were run off Monday on the fair-park half-mile track. The remainder of events were postponed until next Sunday afternoon because of the dusty track.

There was little exciting about yesterday's competition due to the slow track and the clouds of dust thrown up by the roaring cars which hindered both drivers and spectators. Announcement was made that effort would be taken to do away with this condition as much as possible for the Sunday card.

All three events were over a five-mile distance. The first race, class D., $150 cash for the victor, $80 for second, $30 for third, and $20 for fourth was won by Johnny Lee of Houston who drove J. A. Mais' Dodge special in the time of 5:10. G. A. Cresswell of Winters crossed the line second in his Criswell special with the time of 5:17. H. L. Bogus of Tulsa drove a Ford special in for third place in 5:17-3-4 barely shaded by Cresswell. C. C. White of Emporia, Kan., took fourth place with a Ford special in 5:20.

Results of second race, class E five miles:

First, Ford special, W. Tennill owner Taylor, Tennill driver, time 6:00¾. Second, Essex special, Hudson-Essex of Burkburnett owners, Driver Ward, time 6:05. Third, Kenner special, driven and owned by C. C. Kenner of Abilene, time 6:21 1-5. Fourth Marmon special, driven and owned by J. A. Mendenhall of Wichita Falls, time 6:31.

Results of third race, class D five miles:

First, Hudson special, driven and owned by Johnny Mais of Salina, Kan., time 5:42. Second, Cresswell special, G. A. Cresswell of Winters owner, Dick Calhoun driver, time 5:44 3-5. Third, Chrysler special Chrysler Motor Corp., owners, Jimmy Reeder driver, time 5:54 3-5. Fourth, Ford special, owned and driven by C. C. White of Emporia, Kan., time 6:08.

D. H. Jeffries, official representative of the American Automobile association contest board, acted in capacity of starter.

How should the grip of the putter differ, if any, from the grip used on the driver?

Answered by

BILL STRACHAN

Wichita Falls Golf Club Professional.

The grip on the putter is exactly opposite to the grip for other shots, in order to keep the face of the putter right. In gripping the putter the left wrist turns out on the back stroke contrary to air shots. A player is often a good putter who is not good at other shots at all. This is because he grips the club wrong for air shots and is really putting all around the course.

Chickasaw Athlete Receives Axe For Battle With Umps.

FT. WORTH, Texas, Sept. 29.—A fine of $50 was assessed today against Turner Barber, centerfielder of the Memphis Chickasaws of the Southern association for his part in an altercation with Umpire Johnson of the Southern associaton immediately following the close of the Sunday game.

LAVAN TO DOCTOR BLUES

Erstwhile Dentist and Shortstop Has Sick Kansas City Team on Hands

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 29. — "Dr. Johnny Lavan," dentist and erstwhile shortstop, will devote the coming winter and spring to one patient—the Kansas City team in the American association.

Dr. Lavan was called into consultation by club officials several weeks ago when the teeth of the Kansas City players got sore from snapping at the heels of all the other clubs in the league.

Good, who became manager of the club in mid-season, 1922, had done good work with it last year, winning the A. A. championship and then defeating the Baltimore Orioles, International flag winners, in the "little world's series" that followed.

His efforts in 1924 proved unavailing, however, and he was released. Lavan had been signed a short time previously to play short. He was a free agent at the time, having been declared such after 10 years of service in the big show with the Cardinals, Browns, Athletics and Washington.

Wisconsin Cuts Ekersall From List of Officials

An echo of the 1923 football season is heard in the action of the Wisconsin officials in dropping Walter Eckersall, famous old player, coach, official and writer from its list of officials for grid games this year.

The move recalls the Wisconsin-Michigan game last fall. Michigan won the game 6 to 3, the spectacular touchdown of Tod Rockwell turning defeat into victory for the Wolverines.

The play under dispute occurred in the second quarter. Wisconsin had scored a field goal in the preceding period. Rockwell was in the game as a substitute for Uteritz, star quarter. Wisconsin punted. Rockwell fumbled and then recovered the ball 65 yards from his own goal. He began a run down the field, slipped, fell, recovered himself. slipped and fell again and then plunged on.

Wisconsin players, believing first that he had been "down" and then that he finally ran out of bounds, did not try to halt him. Eckersall allowed the touchdown. He pointed out that as his whistle had not been blown he had given no indication that play was ended. Col. Munna, West Point, field judge at the game, said that Rockwell had not gone out of bounds.

Col. Summa's name also is missing from the list of 1924 officials.

When the game ended Eckersall was escorted off the field by athletic officials and police to prevent possible injury to him by peeved students.

The action of the Wisconsin officials indicates that they still feel themselves the victims of the decision but it cannot cast any reflections upon the capabilities of Eckersall or Munna as officials. The game was a hard fought one and meant much to both teams. It was a hard one to lose. Probably the ill feeling against Eckersall still lurks around the Wisconsin campus to such an extent that officials deemed it wise not to open an old sore by having Eckersall officiate this season.

ROWSON HAS NO CINCH.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., Sept. 29.—A. F. Rowson, backfield, Dallas, Texas, is not going to have a walk-away to make the football squad at the Kirksville Osteopathic college, if present dope is reliable. Despite the fact the squad has been cut from 60 to 31 men, the man from the Lone Star state is only slightly nearer his goal than when the first call was issued three weeks ago.

DAZZY ON PAR WITH OTHER GREAT PITCHERS

"Dazzy" Vance has many years ahead of him before he can equal in point of service the records of Christy Mathewson, Walter Johnson and other veterans of the mound. But his work the past two seasons—and especially this — places him on a par with "Big Six," "King Walt," Ed Walsh, Cy Young, Grover Alexander, and other greats in the matter of natural skill. And Vance is young yet.

Senators Beat Boston Sox To Cinch Gonfalon

Relief Hurler Marberry Chunks Six Scoreless Innings.

NATS' FIRST PENNANT

Boston Fans Cheer Griffith, Johnson, Harris and Team.

BOSTON, Sept. 29.—Washington won its first American league pennant by defeating the Red Sox here today, 4 to 2, and earned the right to meet the New York Giants in the world's series which is to open in Washington on Saturday. When the last Boston player was out in the ninth inning and the victory of the Senators was assured, a crowd of 15,000 Boston fans cheered the visiting team as it came from the field. Clark Griffith, the veteran owner, Stanley Harris, the boy manager and Walter Johnson, famous pitching ace who will take part in his first world's series after 18 years in the league were applauded in turn.

Fred Marberry, relief ptcher of the Senators, who held Boston scoreless for the last six innings today, will be named the hero of this deciding game. He has acted as relief pitcher in all three games played here in this series and has worked in 50 games for Washington this season. Left hander John Zachary was none too effective in the first three innings, but Marberry stopped the Red Sox. Score:

Emil Yde star left hander of the Pirates registered his sixteenth victory for the season, although he did not go the full route. The visitors won the game by hitting opportunely behind errors of the substitute team which Manager Killifer sent against the regulars.

YOU KNOW ME AL — The Adventures of Jack Keefe —By Ring Lardner

Billy Whiskers

By FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY.

You remember that in yesterday's story the president of the motion picture company had just driven into the yard where Billy and Toodles were.

As he stepped out of his car he said to Snub and Nick:

"Boys, what do you think of the new members of our performing animal troupe? We have one goat already, but he is too meek. What we want is a goat that will butt. Call the director, animator and the rest of the men and we will put him through some paces and see what he is made of. And if he doesn't butt naturally, we will put pepper on his nose and then if he doesn't butt, out he goes!"

"Do you hear that, Nick?" said Snub. "If he don't butt, they will put pepper on his nose. Ha, ha!" and both fellows rolled over on the grass in their amusement.

"What are you two laughing at?" asked the president.

"Nothing at all, sir!" answered Snub. "Only some of Nick's queer darky talk."

"Well, stop your foolishness and go tell the others to come out here."

"By the old Harry, Nick, I would not miss what is going to happen within the next half hour for a million dollars! And I haven't a million cents to my name. Sprinkle pepper on his nose, will he, to make him butt?" giggled Snub.

"I guess I better fetch along a clip basket to pick up the pieces of the fellow that tries that on that billy-goat," replied Nick, as he walked to the door of one of the studios where the manager, director, animator, electrician, camera man and numerous helpers were, and called out:

"Gentlemen, you sure am wanted by the president out in the yard. He done want to see if any of youse can make his new billy-goat butt. For if you can't be say be am not gwan to keep him. So bring along a pinch of cayenne peppah for to make him kare he too tame to butt without it."

"I'll eat my dinner wrong side to, beginning with ice cream and ending with soup, if that goat doesn't butt naturally," said the director, "and that, too, at the fall of a hat."

"He looks to me as if he would rather butt than eat, and I bet you he won't stand any foolishness either," said the animator.

"Let's go take a look at this wonderful goat everyone is talking about," suggested the manager, and all of them dropped whatever they were doing and went out into the yard.

This is what they saw when they reached the door and looked across the yard:

(We will have to wait until the next story to find out what the men saw.)

Mothers

Improvised Cups

One Mother Says:

Several times it has happened that my children have become thirsty when there was water to be had, but it would have been necessary to use a public drinking cup, or there was no sort of cup at all. A number of envelopes are, therefore, always carried in the flap of my purse to get around this difficulty, as they may be opened out into quite serviceable cups.

MRS. LA FOLLETTE SPEAKING.

She Has Joined Forces With Husband in Presidential Campaign.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29—Mapping out of the route and speaking points for the intensive campaign tour that will carry him to the Pacific coast continued today to occupy Senator Robert M. LaFollette and his political advisers. Indications are that the independent presidential candidate will leave Washington before the end of the week and definite announcement of the route he will follow in his campaigning is expected soon.

The major question as yet undecided is whether the Wisconsin senator will make a swing through the eastern states and New England before starting the western tour or reserve that for the later stages of the campaign.

Mrs. LaFollette, who joined the campaign forces of her husband in delivering an address at a political rally at Mountain Lake Park, Md. last night, has under consideration one or two invitations to speak.

Color Cut-Out

"What are you doing in father's tool chest?" called Freddy's mother.

"I'm getting a hatchet. I want it to go with my Robinson Crusoe outfit," answered Freddy, who was all wrapped up in the old horsehair robe his mother had given him from the attic.

"Don't lose it, Robinson," laughed his mother as she saw him.

"I won't. Now I'm going out to look for my man Friday. I think I'll know just where to find him, too." He strutted out of the house and through the back gate into the little alley that ran back of Billy Cut-out's house.

Color Freddy's Robinson Crusoe suit light brown and make his shoes to match. The hatchet should be colored a very light gray to make it look like steel.

Correct this sentence: "They are very loving in public," said he, "but they never quarrel in private."

Tract Includes One Producing Well and one Drilling, Due on Sand.

Shaw and Rathke have closed a deal with Jeffers and Newby whereby the producing and drilling well of that combination on the E. A Hausler land, abstract 167, west extension to the Knight-Hines-Ragle pool, is acquired by them together with the forty acres on which the producer is located.

This deal was closed yesterday afternoon; consideration was not made known. The Jeffers-Newby well has been making about twelve barrels a day on the pump but it is believed production can be materially increased by drilling deeper into the sand.

The No. 2, E. A. Hausler, is drilling and was due on the sand yesterday.

Vinton Perin Surrenders For Killing His Mother-in-Law.

By The Associated Press.

CINCINNATI. Sept. 29.—Rain soaked and disheveled with his clothes bearing the marks of 60 hours out of doors, Vinton Perin, 50, surrendered himself today to answer for the slaying of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Francis D. Rawson, 77, and for the shooting of his sister-in-law, Miss Nina Rawson.

Perin told a story of 20 years of alleged persecution by his mother-in-law, in extenuation of his killing her at the Rawson house last Friday night. She opposed his marriage to her daughter, Deborah, he said, and since the wedding did everything she could to eliminate him.

Perin readily admitted the shooting, but showed an aversion to talk of the actual killing itself, confining his first explanations to what led up to the shooting and what came after it.

Market Letters

R. E. FLOWERREE AND CO.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 29.—Cotton opened 40 points down on failure of early reports of the map to show frost in the northwest but rallied 100 points later and held most of it.

There was evidence at the start that sentiment had shifted to the selling side, but reports of a tropical disturbance in the east gulf, heavy rains in the eastern belt, prediction of more rain in that section, and of frost in the northwest checked the selling and stimulated public buying. There was a good deal of selling on the bulges but the public bought freely on the dips, and the market was pretty well sustained. Some of the selling was based on the theory that the market is entitled to a good sized reaction as so extended an advance. Some was also based on the belief that the northwest is likely to get any frost of consequence overnight.

Buying was stimulated by private wires of light frost in exposed place in the northwest Monday, reports of heavy deterioration in the eastern belt and two private estimates, both under 12,000,000.

The public strongly bullish and blindly accepting reaction as furnishing good opportunities for buying. Sellers are, however becoming more aggressive and are selling on the bulges. A more two sided market may therefore soon be witnessed.

FENNER AND BEANE (By Shannon)

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The reactionary feeling coming from the thoughts of professionals that the advance has been too rapid was again in evidence today but the weather in the Atlantic states proved too much for local selling as serious complaints from reliable people.

A great portion of whom have heretofore been believers in a big market, came into the market all day, showing they are at last revising their ideas of the crop. The weather that has obtained will in all probability give us a bullish crop indication as well as ginning figures. Believing this to be a bull market, think purchases on breaks will prove profitable.

FENNER AND BEANE (by Julian)

Spot News.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Trade advices from Manchester are good. New Bedford reports brick inquiry for spots but buyers and sellers can't get together except on small lots. Southwestern spot people were heavy sellers of October delivery Saturday, which led to more talk of cotton coming here for tender.

HOUSTON, Sept. 29.—Cotton seed $32; 8¼ cents; meal $42; hull $8; inters 4¾.

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 29.—Cotton seed $34; oil 8¼ cents; meal $39; huls $8; linters 4cents@6 cents.

Selling Movement

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Stock prices turned reactionary in today's market after an early period of firmness which was featured by the active buying of several railroad shares. Except for the marking up of the call money rate from 2 to 3 per cent, which was generally believed to be temporary and due to the usual shifting of funds at the end of the month, there was nothing in the day's news to account for the selling movement. While trading was somewhat restricted by the absence of many traders over the Jewish holiday, total sales ran well above 800,000 shares.

Standard industrials were sluggish throughout most of the session. United States Steel common opened ⅜ lower at 108⅛, advanced to a new high on the movement at 109⅛, slipped back to 107⅝ and closed at 107⅝, off 1⅜. Losses of a point of more also were recorded by American Can, Anaconda, Baldwin, Du Pont, Kennecott Copper, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and dozens of other issues.

Oil shares continued to reflect the depressing influence of other crude oil price cuts. Cosden was hammered down nearly a point to a new low for the year at 21 while net losses of a point or more were recorded by Atlantic Refining, the Barnsdall issues, Houston, Mexican Seaboard and Producers and Refiners. Standard Oil of New Jersey, Superior and Shell Union were the only issues in that group to close above Saturday's final quotations, the net gain being fractional in each case.

Atchison was in good demand in the early trading touching 109, the highest price since 1916, on rumors of special dividend developments, but it eased later to 107⅝. Chicago and Alton, Chicago and Great Western and Peoria and Eastern were active and firm on merger reports.

Atlantic Coast Line was heavy, dropping nearly three points to 134. Frisco preferred touched a new high at 30⅝ but forfeited part of its gain in the late trading. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore continued its sensational climb, touching another new high at 149 and then slipping back to 148, up 2½ on the day. Public Service of New Jersey also touched a new top at 63 but most of the other public utilities lost ground on profittaking.

A firmer tone prevailed in the money market with some 90 days funds being quoted at ¼ higher at 3 per cent. The commercial paper market continued quiet with no change in rates.

Foreign exchange rates were reactionary, presumably in reflection of the unfavorable political developments at Geneva. Demand sterling droped nearly 1½ cents to below 4.45 and French francs were again quoted below 5¼ cents.

Cattle Active

FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 29.—The cattle market was fairly active today but prices were lower, the average drop being around 15 to 25 cents. Receipts included about 5,000 head of cattle and 3,000 calves. Calf prices suffered a loss of 25 cents. Good grass steers cleared at 500 to 550. Useful calves sold around 600 to 650.

Hogs sold at such unevenly higher prices that the market was hard to follow. Values looked 35 to 50 cents higher. One sale was made at 1020 and the bulk cleared at 950@1000. Receipts amounted to 1,200 head.

The pig values gaining around 25 cents larger pigs sold at 875@890.

Receipts of sheep were too small to make a market quotable. The count called for 700 of heads, mostly coming direct.

Cosden Buys Kansas City Oil Company

Taxman Refining Company Purchased by Cosden Company Yesterday.

IMPORTANT DEAL

Sale Price Understood to Be "More Than a Million Dollars."

By The Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 29.—Sale of the Taxman Refining company of Kansas City, said to be the largest wholesale distributor of gasoline in the United States, to the Cosden company has been announced here. M. Taxman, president of the company, said today the deal was for "more than one million dollars."

The Taxman company has acted as distributor of the Cosden products for several years. For the last three years, it is said, its sales have averaged $22,000,000 annually.

According to the announcement, the Cosden company will maintain an office here, but probably subsidiary to the Chicago office.

The Cosden company of which J. S. Cosden, New York is president, has most of its production in the midcontinent field, and its refining plant in Tulsa, Oklahoma, is said to be one of the largest in America.

Wheat Advances

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Greatly enlarged foreign demand for breadstuffs resulted today in an all around advance of wheat and rye to the topmost prices yet this season. Corn values underwent a setback despite frost. The wheat market closed firm 2¼ to 3 cents net higher, December 140⅛ to 141 and May 146⅛ to 146⅝ with ⅝@¼ cent off and provisions unchanged corn ⅜ to 1⅜ cents down, oats ¼ to ⅜ to 10 cents higher.

Widespread frost and predictions of more tonight served to bring out such a volume of profittaking sales that the corn market underwent a sudden break of three cents, and failed to recover in full. Increased offering of old corn was part responsible for the unexpected weakness of the market.

Oats were easier owing to sympathy with corn and as a result of 9,808,000 bushels enlargements of the oats visible supply total.

Higher quotations on hogs upheld the provision market.

MONEY AT WORK

Brief but important lessons in finance, markets, stocks, bonds and investments.

How much longer are you going to work.

A man owes it to himself to build an estate which will take care of him in comfort after his productive days are over. It should be an estate which will allow him to have some kind of a home.

There are many rather simple and easy plans whereby an estate can be built up to take care of expenses in later life. If you will got to any good bank there will be a man there who will be glad to show you how to start building for your future income.

The plans which these bankers will outline will entail some savings and work on your part—the plans are not intended to be "get rich quick" schemes. They are efficient, however in assuring you financial independence.

Consult your banker today on how you can assure yourself a steady income in the future. It makes no difference whether you are making $1-000 per year or $50,000—there are plans for both types and all the salaries in between.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 29.—The cotton market today after opening lower, rallied sharply, active near months advancing about 100 pounds from the low and despite a moderate recession in the late trading showed net gains for the day of 38 to 42 points. It was almost entirely a weather market and although there was vigorous selling on the bulges both to realize profits and on the theory that a reaction was past due, all offerings were readily absorbed by a good trade demand as well as by aggressive buying by large speculative and general public.

As Liverpool was lower than due, October started 41 points down and December 29 lower, the easier feeling being helped by the absence of the predicted frost in the west. The early trades proved to be the ows of the day with October at 2400 December at 2410 and January at 2422. The market soon rallied on the map showing heavy rains in the eastern belt and on the official forecast for more rains in that section and colder and possibly frost in the west. The upturn was later accelerated by a storm warning for a disturbance in the east gulf likely to bring further heavy rains or the eastern belt. Big New York operators buying on small estimates also helped the upturn which finally carried October to 2499, December to 2510 and January 2510 or 80 to 100 points up from the opening lows

The market reacted 30 to 60 points on realizing on final trading. The fear of damaging effects by the tropical storm now in the gulf was the main stimulating influence.

The Following Taken From

THE TEXACO STAR

Published by The Texas Company, Port Arthur, "illustrating real conservation, we send a photograph showing the type of steel gunbarrel tank in use on some of our leases in the North Texas Division.

"The tank is so constructed that from one inch to three inches vacuum is maintained. Vacuum regulator is also shown. We have seven of these tanks in operation, from which we conserve 200,000 cubic feet of gas daily, not conserved previously, which is taken to our Electra gasoline plant.

"This tank and others of like constructon pay us good dividends. On the present price of gasoline and residue gas sales, we figure that each three or four months these tanks have earned their investment. Also, they greatly reduce fire hazard on our producing properties."

The above tanks are manufactured by the Panhandle Refining Company's Boiler Shop department. For particulars call the following numbers: Day Phone 7125. Night, 2850 or 2225.

Auto Exhibit At Fair Shows All Latest Models

70 Different Machines On Floor in Biggest Display Here Yet.

19 DEALERS INVOLVED

Wichita Falls Automotive Association in Charge Of Exhibitions.

Motor cars galore, all the newest and latest models that the manufacturing world can offer, form one of the most interesting exhibits at the Texas-Oklahoma fair. What is probably the largest building on the grounds has been turned over to the Wichita Falls Automotive Dealers' association, and it has been filled to capacity with machines.

70 Cars.

A total of 70 individual cars, including open and closed models, trucks and accessories, line each side of the big room with easy chairs, tables and other comfort devices strung down the center. Attendants were on hand at all displays to offer explanations.

A mass of bunting and flags draped from the sidewalls and ceiling make a colorful canopy under which the rows of gleaming machines were shown to excellent advantage.

The following dealers, with the cars they are exhibiting, are in the building:

Those Showing.

Dixon Motor company, Buick; Victory Motor company, Rickenbacker; J. E. Shipley Automobile company, Paige, Peerless and Jewett; Parmenter Motor company, Durant, Star and Flint; Motor Sales company, Hupmobile; Lloyd Wagner Automobile company, Packard, Chrysler, Maxwell; Pool-Stogner Chevrolet company, Chevrolet; Fritz Motor company, Marmon, Reo, Rollin; Langford Motor company, Ford, Lincoln; McFall Brothers, Dodge; Keim Motor company, Studebaker; Nash-King Auto company, Nash; Wichita Hudson and Essex company, Hudson, Essex; Wichita Oakland company, Oakland; Munger Automobile company, Cadillac; Birch and Gates Motor company, Oldsmobile; Bradley Duke Motor company, Pierce Arrow; Overland Motors company, Overland, Willys Knight.

SCHOOL EXHIBITS DIFFERENT

Results of Work Now Found In Texas Shown At Fair

Education of the sort not found in books is evidently being supplied in the schools of northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma. Or rather, it is being supplied along with the text book kind.

This is the impression conveyed, at least, by the educational division which has one of the largest and most pretentious exhibits at the Texas-Oklahoma fair.

Big Building Filled.

Jammed to every corner, the big educational building offers a bewildering array of maps, pictures, needle and handiwork. All the funny and artistic little doodads that go to fill out the more arbitrary text book curriculum of the school today have been brought in and arranged systematically.

Schools all over this territory have taken an active interest in the fair this year and practically every one has furnished something. The Wichita Falls school exhibits, grouped at one point in the building, are of course the largest. Work done by pupils from the high school on down through the primary grades has been brought in. Pieces of furniture and gowns that would do credit to any store—the work of the domestic art and manual training department of the high schools, are found at one end, while at the other extreme are the little cut-out figures, paper dolls and similar trinkets on which the first graders get their first slant at education.

Many Exhibitors.

Schools having exhibits are the following: Burkburnett public schools, Electra public schools, Iowa Park public schools, Wichita Falls public schools, Barwise, Valley View, Allendale, County Line, Prairie Cottage, Howard, Cashion, Lakeview, Clara, Windthorst, Friberg and Fairview.

EXPERT JUDGES HERE.

C. I. A. Teacher and County Agents Help in Women's Department.

Judging by experts acknowledged to be among the best in the state was provided Monday at the women's building of the Texas-Oklahoma fair when the many exhibits there were inspected and prizes awarded. At the instigation of officials of the department, Miss Mamie Lee Oliver, of the domestic economics department of C. I. A. at Denton came to the city especially to act as judge. With her in the work were Miss Norfleet Grifaire, home demonstration agent of Matador county, Miss Kathlyn Parker, home demonstration agent of Tarrant county and Mrs. Roy J. Danish of this city. The ladies worked throughout the entire day going over the exhibitions in the buildings and making their decisions.

The work was not completed yesterday and will be resumed again this morning.

Miss Oliver, now at C. I. A., was one of the first home demonstration agents established in Wichita county. She was here for some time just prior to the boom.

C-C DIRECTORS TODAY

Important Matters Up For Consideration At Today's Meeting

The board of directors of the chamber of commerce will meet this morning at 10 o'clock with several important matters to come up for consideration it is announced by A. H. Britain, president of the board.

Report and recommendation of the committee which has been working on the Fred Weeks park proposition will be heard and acted upon and some urged plans in connection with bringing certain new industries to Wichita Falls will be discussed.

Judge Britain urges that all members of the board make a special effort to be present for the consideration of this and other matters.

The chamber of commerce offices will be closed Tuesday afternoon for Wichita Falls day at the Texas-Oklahoma fair.

The final count usually indicates that people who enjoy stove vote haven't time for the voting kind.

The Old Home Town

The fourth quarterly conference of the Grace Methodist church will be held Wednesday evening at the church, with dinner served to the assembly of members and friends at 5:30 o'clock. Reports will be given for the year's work in the different departments, Dr. Howard Thomison, district superintendent of the Fort Worth district, will conduct the conference.

Leander McBirney, cashier of the National Bank of Commerce of Tulsa, Okla., who has been the guest of Rev. and Mrs. Leslie Miller for the past week, returned home Monday.

An increase of 100 was made in the membership of the Floral Heights Methodist church during the 6 Methodist Sunday school, Dr. S. A. Barnes, pastor, stated Monday. Six new members were taken into the church. He reported the largest congregation that he had had for six months.

C. E. McCutcheon and family departed the past week-end for two weeks' visit in Chicago and New York.

C. T. Doone arrived in Wichita Falls Monday night to assist the Overland Motors company in display at the fair.

Judge R. O. Kenley left today for a visit and business trip to Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Parkins of Buckburnett were the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mayfield, Jr., on Thirteenth street.

Half the Fun of Life Is What You Eat; So Concessionists Are Wise

Half of the spirit of carnival time lies in the joy of eating something out of the ordinary, something that looks good, tastes good, and is fun to eat.

Ice cream sandwiches are the new eat thing produced by the ever watchful concessionists at the fair who cater to the whims and fancies of the gay throngs that course back and forth along the brilliantly lighted midway. A square of nabisco-like cake, larger than a cracker holds a neat square slab of brick ice cream, and another wafer on top completes the sandwich.

Comes the "Fruit Snow"

Paper cones of "fruit snow," an aristocratic name for a heap of shaved ice over which brilliantly colored fruit sirup is poured, are one of the delights of the fair among the children.

Frozen suckers, another ice cream innovation, are cylinders of fruit sherbet frozen around convenient sticks and are eaten like the old fashioned all day suckers made of candy.

Candied apples are a delight to the eye but are a problem to eat. The fruit, mounted on a stick is then dipped in red candy and allowed to harden. Glistening and red it is altogether tempting and tastes quite as good as it looks, if the aggressor but has the facial capacity to take the first bite which breaks the candy crust.

Floss Candy Specialty

Floss candy, or cotton candy is an ever popular stand-by and is consumed in quantities by the kiddies as are the long list of temptingly colored and flavored iced drinks which are enjoyed many times during a hot dusty afternoon.

The famous "hot dawgs" and hamburgers vie with each other at the various concessions and the keen rivalry assures food of the finest with all the trimmings. Beside the many "quick lunch" stands there are also places where one may procure a splendid dinner if time and inclination permit.

Concessions improve yearly as the fair grows, both in number, and in the quality of their wares, if the business of the opening day is a fair indication.

WILDCAT VS. AGUINALDO

By The Associated Press.

WACO, Texas, Sept. 29.—Wildcat Monte, 124 pounds, and Aguinaldo Kid, 115 pounds, fought 12 rounds to a draw here tonight, and Jimmy Carroll of Fort Worth knocked out Clarence Carpenter, of China Springs in the fourth round of a scheduled eight round match.

FAMOUS WRITER DEAD.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 29—Jules Mendel Price, famous war correspondent, artist and writer, died today.

CO. EXHIBITS AMONG BEST.

Outlying Points Send in Farm Produce for the Fair.

Agricultural exhibits of a kind that only the Texas-Oklahoma fair can bring are on display in the county farm exhibition room at the T-O fair.

Attracted by the prizes offered and by the reputation of the fair itself, displays have come in from 11 different counties or communities in northwest Texas, southern Oklahoma and eastern New Mexico. Two counties, Roosevelt and Curry, from the latter state have provided excellent exhibits of farm products.

Quantity and Quality.

Produce calculated to bring gasps of astonishment from even the most hardened son of the soil have been arranged attractively. The individual products offered run the whole gamut of farm, field and ranch, and not only in evident quality but in unending quantity are they objects to command admiration.

It is self evident that the judging, scheduled for today, will be no easy matter.

Most From Texas.

Texas, of course, has the largest number of entries, but those from the two other states compare favorably with the best the Lone Star state has to offer. Counties included in the Texas exhibitions are Childress, Dallam, Hale, Floyd, Montague, Throckmorton, Lynn and the Electra county farm. From Oklahoma, Tillman and Jackson counties are on hand, and from New Mexico, Roosevelt and Curry. The latter two exhibits are displayed jointly and are probably the largest in the building.

County Farm Agent Guy R. Jones, in charge of the department, stated that this year's exhibits were easily the largest and best ever brought to Wichita Falls.

GOOD CAR SERVICE

Traction Company Has Plenty of Room to Fair

The Wichita Falls Traction company arose to the occasion and gave street car service that brought kicks from none of those who used that means of travel to the fair grounds.

Fast schedules were maintained between the city and the grounds and large cars with trailers attached provided at least enough room for those who rode. Certainly they were crowded, but no one seemed to mind this.

Traction company officials stated last night that the service would be continued for the balance of the week.

King Urges City To Honor South With Monuments

Tell Kiwanians that the South of Other Days Deserves It

SAYS WE FORGET

Achievements of Wichita Falls Should Also Be Fittingly Shown

Wichita Falls should make some move in the direction of placing monuments in the city commemorating the south of other days, its heroes, achievements and the achievements of Wichita Falls itself. This was the message brought to the Kiwanis club by Bert King, local barrister, Monday following the weekly club luncheon. King explained that Wichita Falls has no monuments, in fact nothing in the way of commemorative art whatsoever. He declared Wichitans have been too busy building the city, making money, and living to give thought to such matters.

Bill Young sang two pleasing solos accompanied on the piano by Mrs. T. B. Collard. Young and King comprised the program.

Those present were J. W. Akin, Rev. Milo Atkinson, J. O. Bobo, J. M. Bonner, D. M. Bernard, W. H. Caldwell, M. G. Catter, Dr. F. R. Collard, W. R. Couch, J. C. Crane, H. O. Cravens, Rev. F. T. AUSTINIAN SURPRISES N. Y.

Gotham Bankers do not Understand Arlitt's Mexican Bond Offer

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Bankers were surprised tonight by an announcement made through an advertising agency that J. L. Arlitt, an investment dealer of Austin, Texas, and New York, was offering for public purchase a new issue of $5,000,000 6 percent Mexican bonds secured by a pledge of oil taxes.

NEED CARD FOR ADMITTANCE

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 29.—J. L. Arlitt's suite of offices is the only one in Austin requiring a card for admittance. Arlitt, well known throughout Texas because of his large purchases of municipal and county bonds during the past 14 years, is known to have business connections in Mexican centers through his former operations on the Texas-Mexican border.

Arlitt left here several days ago for New York without announcing the purpose of his trip. He formerly resided in Laredo, and is reported to have made several trips into the Mexican interior recently.

NO LACK OF BANDS

Three on Fair Grounds to Give Entertainment Monday

No lack of bands was found yesterday at the Texas-Oklahoma fair. Three were scattered over the grounds, not counting those of the carnival, and it was a rare moment during the day that all were silent together.

The Chicago Cadet band, brought here straight from the windy city, unloosed music that started toes to stepping when it made its first appearance on the plaza. Garbed in snappy uniforms, it speedily brought the crowds—and then held them.

Leon Taylor's own Wichita Falls band, a popular favorite here always, was also on hand to help along. It's concerts left nothing to be desired.

The third aggregation was the Walters, Okla., boy's band which came in to do its bit in the entertainment. It, also, was received with well merited enthusiasm.

Correct this sentence: "Well I cow." said Dawes.

NAPIER QUITS THE BENCH

Guy Rogers Expected to be Appointed by Neff Immediately

Judge Ed Napier, presiding over the bench of the 78th district court for the past four years, forwarded his resignation yesterday to Governor Neff with a request that it be accepted at once. Judge Napier has announced that he will open a law office in the city immediately.

Judge Napier's resignation probably means that Judge Guy Rogers, nominated for the post in the July primary, will take office sooner than he had expected. His appointment by Governor Neff is expected to follow as a matter of course.

Judge C. M. McFarland, it is believed, will then take the bench of the county court at law, relieving Judge Rogers who now holds it. Mr. McFarland was also nominated in the July primaries.

Robert Abnott Is Bike Champ Over 50 Other Starters

Robert Abnott won the Texas-Oklahoma fair bicycle championship Monday when he out-rode a field of 50 starters in the two-mile race. Oliver Austin rode on even terms with the victor until Abnott spurted ahead on the home stretch. The winner will receive a medal declaring his accomplishment and $15 cash. Austin gets a $10 pair of tires, given by Grover Bullington company, for second place. Earnest Neal finished third, and will be awarded a $4 bicycle tire by Grover Bullington company.

Jack Amman won the feature race of the afternoon, the mile event, and will be given a $55 racing bicycle by Grover Bullington. No other prizes were put up in this race.

Oliver Austin took first in the half mile free-for-all, and is to be awarded $3 by the fair association. Robert Abnott was second, and will receive $2. Maynard Carver took third and $1 prize.

C. D. Shamburger won the kid free-for-all youngsters less than 11 years old. The fair association will award him $2.50. Eldon Williams came second and will receive $1.50, given by the fair association. Carl Norwood won third and $1.

CALLS IT KU KLUX KLAN PLOT

Jim Ferguson Expresses Himself on Outcome of the Injunction

By The Associated Press.

TEMPLE, Texas, Sept. 29.—Former Governor James E. Ferguson, husband of Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, democratic candidate for governor, in commenting tonight on the court ruling at Austin which denied an injunction seeking to keep Mrs. Ferguson's name off the ballot, declared.

"It is a clear enunciation of the law and could not have been decided otherwise without doing violence to the plain letter of the law. The suit was not founded on any sincerity, but was a wicked attempt by the people who were moved more by hatred and malice than by patriotism to make the courts a party of another ku klux plot."

Corregio Canvas At Fair Held At $50,000 By Owner

Considered Most Valuable Painting in the Fine Arts Building.

INSURANCE $10,000

"Abraham and the Angels In Divine Audience" Is Subject

The most valuable painting in the Fine Arts building is beautifully displayed in an appropriate setting, a specially arranged niche between two tall candlesticks, which is valued at $50,000 by it's owner is a wonderful canvas of the Corregio school of Italy and is over 400 years old.

With lovely colors, unfaded by time, this painting of "Abraham and the Angels in Divine Audience" is an example of the marvelous skill of the old masters who knew wonderful secrets of blending colors so that they would remain forever as vivid and fresh as though they had been recently finished. These secrets, according to Mrs. H. B. Van Emden who lectures on the painting in the Art building, were guarded under lock and key from even the greatest pupil of the masters.

The painting, which is now privately owned hung formerly in the archducal palace at Vienna and is the rarest and most costly work in the fair collection this year.

Mrs. W. P. Killingsworth, chairman of the Art committee for the fair, was assisted Monday by Mesdames W. W. Silk, Bennie Hyatt Donald and J. T. Montgomery, hostesses, with C. C. Jones Jr., in charge of the Junior college voting booth.

Mesdames Harry Robertson, I. S. Walker, and L. I. Lucey will assist her as hostesses this afternoon and Mrs. H. B. Van Emden will lecture to visiting crowds during the afternoon.

NEW WAY FOR BARBECUE

One Stand at T-O Fair Does Rushing Business Throughout Day.

"Serve me a slice from the knuckle sire, and odor from the split turning by the glowing coals gives zest to my nostrils."

No, you're not in merrie England by a sixteenth century fireplace, the scene happens to be laid at a stand at the Texas-Oklahoma fair which is doing a rousing business because of the genuine method employed in barbecuing the tempting joints of meat which are offered for sale.

The meat is mounted on a steel rod which is placed before a vertical grid filled with glowing coals held in place by a huge brick fire box. An electric motor, properly geared keeps the steel rod revolving slowly and evenly before the fire while an attendant times the roasts to a turn, operates the bellows under the glowing bed and keeps the fire replenished.

Seeing the operation performed so neatly convinces many a man that he is hungry, whether he had thought of it before or not, and many who have thought of a roast only in a baking pan are interested to see the genuine process "as is."

CARNIVAL A GOOD ONE

Con T. Kennedy Shows Prove Best Attractions Along the Midway

An exceptionally high class carnival attraction, one offering entertainment not usually found in shows of its kind opened up for the edification of Texas Oklahoma fair crowds yesterday.

The Con T. Kennedy shows, one of the premier attractions of its kind, has settled itself for a solid week. With all the latest riding devices, the usual line of side shows, freaks, animals and bands have been scattered over the grounds and Monday they proved a never ending source of entertainment.

T-O Fair Has In India a Dazzling Symphony of Fire

Thunderous detonations that reverberated ominously through the stands; sharp staccato crackling that made the ear drums ring; whizzing, whining screams that started with a rush and trailed off into black space; brilliant bursts of color that shot out with startling suddenness against an inky sky; blinding sheets of flames that dazzled the eyes; intricate patterns of fire that blazed forth from unexpected corners—all this was "India."

The Texas-Oklahoma fair chose wisely when it booked "A Night in the Orient" as the climax of its programs for the week. It did, at least, if last night's pyrotechnic display was a sample of what will come every night, and 'tis said that it was.

For an hour, with one intermission, a packed grandstand shivered and thrilled as the Thearle-Duffield company's huge exhibition spread noisy beauty over the grounds.

At any rate the Russians taught the world that it isn't always progress just because it's new.
