Who Made the Rays?
Religious Civil War.
One Billion, the Unit.
No Chirotonsors, Please.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
Copyright, 1927, By Star Company.

"Important information is shed on the mystery of life by the Millikan rays." Those mysterious rays that permeate all the universe, have terrific power that can penetrate six feet of lead. Professor Pupin believes the energy of all cells containing life comes from those rays.

* * *

Science is our hope. But as knowledge increases the horizon of the unknown moves farther back. Tests may show that Millikan rays account for the energy of living cells. But who will account for the Millikan rays? What is back of them?

Fifty-two more priests, arrested in Mexico, and the Excelsior of Mexico City describes a reign of terror and wholesale executions, including the killing of five youths under 20 years of age.

Excelsior says that one boy, calling upon his maker in his extremity, had his tongue cut out by the police. Religious war, worst of all civil wars, seems to be starting there.

* * *

In the senate yesterday, Mr. Heflin, from Alabama, openly injected the religious issue into the United States-Mexican situation by accusing the Knights of Columbus and the Catholic church of stimulating and financing Mexican rebellion.

Mr. Heflin said:

"I am opposed to any church seeking to plunge this country into war." And he adds, "A chain of Catholic papers have been tipped off to go after Heflin." Newspaper men generally are not aware that any "chain of Catholic newspapers" exists."

The next high finance step in the railroad world will unite the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern railways, taking in probably the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy and Colorado and Southern railroads. That big combination will amount to nearly two billion dollars, a sum that would have frightened the dear public in the old days. But the unit of finance is now a billion instead of a million, things having moved up 1000 per cent.

* * *

If the railroads controlling prosperity and farmers form one great combination, it ought to be like the postoffice, a government institution.

But we accept the theory that our public officials are neither honest nor efficient enough to manage railroads and such things. Therefore, the bigger the combination the better. Combinations mean savings in overhead, and, when the profits become big enough, the railroads, for their own safety, may give the public some share in the economies.

* * *

Barbers are told, wickedly, that it would "add tone to their profession" if they would call themselves "Chirotonsors" and give up the vulgar "barber." "Chirotonsor," barbers are told, comes from a fine Greek word, "Cheir," meaning "hand."

Barber comes from a good word, Barbe, meaning "beard." It is horrible enough to have undertakers called "Morticians," real estate men "Realtors," and newspaper men "Journalists." Barbers should remain barbers.

* * *

Foreigners in China have erected barricades to protect them against Chinese mobs. The best protection would be a ticket home. Barricading the floods of Chinese population is like barricading the ocean waves. If foreigners, that undertake to control China, could retire for awhile, the Chinese might discover that foreign commerce and leadership cannot comfortably be thrown out. And foreigners might learn to be more tactful.

* * *

It was necessary to put up the price of speculation money in Wall street yesterday to hold rising prices, and make everything go along smoothly, that lambs might not become too much excited.

Pennsylvania crude oil was put up 25c a barrel. Lehigh Valley railroad stock hopped from 107.50 to 118.50 a share in five short hours. Is the "boom" over? Not if you bought the right goods.

Whoever attacks Russia, or is attacked by her, will have hard work. Russian women are prolific, young Russians are powerful and fight splendidly if they have enthusiastic leaders. Because of war talk in Russia, all able bodied men are now called to register for possible military service. Russia has a big Red army already, and in a short time could mobilize millions of additional men.

Also and more important, Russia has devoted money and intelligence to her fighting air fleet. This country will do that some day, too late, probably.

ACCIDENT FATAL

Two Die As Section of Smokestack Collapses

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 14. (AP)—Two persons were killed, two are missing and 10 were seriously injured here today when a 40-foot section of a 12-foot steel smokestack at the Birmingham Electric company crashed through the roof of the building.

Two men, who were working on the stack, have not been found and are believed to be buried in the debris.

WICHITA AND HENRIETTA TO FETE NEW ROAD

Completion of Clay Road Paving Will Be Celebrated

JAN. 27 DATE OF FETE

Road Ready For Traffic Between Cities On That Date

Plans are under way whereby Wichita Falls will join with Henrietta on Thursday, Jan. 27, in celebration of completion of the new Clay county paved highway. Announcement was made Friday morning in Henrietta that the road between that city and Wichita Falls would be ready for traffic on the 27th. Practically all the concrete is now down but it can not be opened until a two week seasoning period has elapsed.

With the exception of the last six miles before reaching Bellevue, the Colorado-to-Gulf highway is now completely paved across Clay county; or rather, it will be when the little strip between Wichita Falls and Henrietta is opened.

The Henrietta chamber of commerce and the citizenship of Clay county at large are making elaborate plans for a demonstration to celebrate the finishing of the concrete ribbon. Wichita Falls and other nearby points have been invited to assist in this and it is likely this city will contribute much to the festivities.

MORO LEADER HEADS REVOLT

Datu Tahil, Just Pardoned, Fosters Rebellion

MANILA, Jan. 14.(AP)—Constabulary headquarters here were informed from Zamboanga, Mindinao province, that 200 armed Moros headed by Datu Tahil, son-in-law of the sultan of Sulu and high Moro dignitary, were entrenched at Barrio, on the Island of Sulu.

Gen. C. E. Nathorst, acting chief of the constabulary, ordered Colonel Stevens of the Sulu district to take whatever measures he deemed necessary to surround the outlaws who are said to have a grievance against a high American official there.

The Moros also were said to resent the attempt to collect land taxes.

Datu Tahil once was pardoned after having been convicted of participation in an uprising in 1913. He was released on his promise to abide by the laws. He recently took Princess Tarhata Kiram, daughter of the sultan of Sulu and graduate of the University of Illinois, as his fourth wife.

Capital Fears Crisis With Mexico As Violation of U. S. Pact Is Charged

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—President Coolidge today swept aside pressure to change his policy in Nicaragua and turned his whole attention to an expected crisis in Mexico. Charles Beecher Warren, former ambassador to Mexico and negotiator of the existing treaties, was called into conference to supplement the cabled advice of Ambassador Sheffield from Mexico City.

The former ambassador is understood now to view the situation there with grave concern. He told President Coolidge that Mexico has apparently violated the terms upon which the United States extended recognition.

He is understood to have advised patience, however, and avoidance of a diplomatic break if there is any possible chance of reaching an adjustment of differences over the alien land and petroleum laws through diplomatic channels.

In the meantime high officials of the state department declared that Secretary of State Kellogg had been misunderstood in his "red scare," charging Russian communism as inciting the trouble in Nicaragua and Mexico.

It was explained that Secretary Kellogg merely intended this to be incidental, or supplemental, of oth-

DEFENSE SEES BIG GAINS IN FORD TAX SUIT

Millions Involved in Big Government Claim On Stock Sale

DAVIS HEADS STAFF

Former Demo Presidential Hope Big Figure In Trial

By Universal Service.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 14.—Declaring that under the government theory of valuing Ford Motor stock the shares of any concern which steadily lost money would be worth just as much as that of a company that was making profits in a steadily increasing stream, John W. Davis, chief counsel of the defense in the $34,000,000 tax battle against Senator James Couzens and others expressed complete satisfaction tonight when adjournment was taken until Monday at 10 a. m.

Mr. Davis said he based his feeling on confidence that the defense has thus far bested the government forces under 27-year-old Alex W. Gregg on the remarks that Judge J. J. Marquette, of Washington one of the three members of the federal tax appeals board sitting here, made to P. S. Talbert of Washington, former deputy revenue commissioner and star defense witness, just before he left the stand.

Witness Grilled.

Talbert had been grilled all day by Gregg about his methods in valuing the Ford stock at $9489 as of 1923, so that the minority holders might know before they sold to the Fords what amount of taxable gain would be. The government asserts the proper figure is $3400 which would greatly increase their taxes, and is the reason for the present suit.

Both Judge Marquette and Judge J. M. Sternhagen, Chicago, presiding indicated in their remarks on the record as Talbert was finishing his testimony, that they felt his valuation had been arrived at on the only possible lines consistent with sound logic and good sense.

Henry Ford's letter of resignation as president of the Ford Motor company, December 31, 1918, went into the records near the end of the day while minutes of Ford director's meetings between 1913 and 1918 were being read.

The letter stated he was resigned "to give attention to other work less thoroughly organized than this and it is my desire to give more time to building up other organization with which I am connected."

Edsel Succeeds.

Edsel Ford at once succeeded his father. The Dodge dividend suit at that time had the Ford company in a disturbed condition. Two months later it was decided for the Dodges. Ford was ready, the defense charges to get out and let the old company shift for itself. But he decided on buying out the minority holders instead.

After reading of the minutes, a 1000 page stipulation bearing on the famous Selden patent suit decided for Ford in 1911, after eight years' litigation, was introduced. This is to show, says the defense, that the Ford mass production methods could never have been achieved, if Ford had lost. The rest of the industry would have bound him hand and foot with production limitations, it is said.

Some general idea of the magnitude of this case simply from the standpoint of what it is costing to run it for the government alone is that the photostatic copies of documents in the Selden stipulation cost $1800.

MRS. FERGUSON CALLS HALT ON PARDON RUSH

No More Clemencies Will Be Issued, Announces Secretary

MANY GIVEN FRIDAY

More Than 50 Clemency Acts Not Yet Made Public By Ma

AUSTIN, Jan. 14.(AP)—Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson Friday announced the granting of 43 full pardons, one parole, one furlough, two remissions of fines and jail sentences, and commutation of a 25-year murder sentence to three years, boosting her clemency acts to 3289.

R. E. Franklow, the governor's assistant secretary, said he was authorized to announce no more pardons would be granted after Friday. At least 50 additional pardons were issued Friday by the chief executive, but not announced, because pardon clerks in the secretary of state's office, have not had time to draw the proclamations for Mrs. Ferguson's signature.

Office Swamped

Even though no more pardons should be granted after Friday, it would be Monday or Tuesday before all granted could be announced.

Before Franklow issued the statement no more pardons would be granted after Friday, Governor Ferguson told The Associated Press she had been "under a fearful strain," during the past fortnight because of the pleas of hundreds of pardon seekers.

At the time she spoke with The Associated Press correspondent, there were by actual count 57 clemency petitioners in her suite of offices, while a group of petitioners waited outside each of the two locked entrances.

Governor Ferguson, afflicted for the past several weeks with a heavy cold, appeared weary though she was in excellent spirits and vastly amused by the offer of District Attorney C. M. Chambers of Bexar county, to deposit $100 in the bank to the credit of her 7-year-old grandson, George Nalle, if she could show he had petitioned for the pardon of Joe Casanova.

"Mr. Chambers can just send the $100 to my little grandson," she said, as she pointed out the signature, "C. M. Chambers," on the Casanova petition.

"Pa" Helps Out

The governor concluded the interview to go into her private office to hear with her husband, James E. Ferguson, former governor, the application of a man convicted of murder. In the group of petitioners was a woman with a six-months' old baby in her arms—the wife and child of the applicant.

Young women in rich fur coats, old women, wrapped in faded shawls, stylishly groomed city lawyers, plainsmen in khaki shirts and high boots from West Texas—these and many other types looked yearningly at the door leading to the governor's private office.

One woman said she had waited two days, but she was happy at the prospects of soon being given the opportunity to appear before the governor and her husband.

Secretary Franlow and two women secretaries plainly showed the strain of handling the crowds that have flocked to the governor's office as the day—January 15—for the governor's retirement in favor of Dan Moody approached.

Governor Orders Full Pardon For Man Sent To Pen by Frank Norfleet

AUSTIN, Jan. 14. (AP)—A full pardon proclamation has been ordered drawn by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson for W. R. Spencer, sentenced to eight years from Tarrant county, in connection with the victimizing of J. Frank Norfleet of Hale Center by a ring of confidence men.

Norfleet, "buncoed" out of many thousands of dollars, began a relentless chase that carried him over the country, and eventually brought him vengeance over every man who had a part in swindling him. Norfleet's tireless pursuit and his adventures attracted much attention.

Miss Ruth Norfleet, daughter of the West Texan, who is a freshman in Texas university here, expressed chagrin that Spencer was to be pardoned.

Spencer was convicted in March, 1924.

Governor Ferguson probably will sign the proclamation Saturday.

STATE CLOSES SUDDENLY IN NORRIS TRIAL

Surprise Witness Testifies Chipps Shot As He Left Study

DEFENSE GETS JOLT

Norris Counsel Fails To Shake Evidence of Star Witness

COURT ROOM, AUSTIN, Jan. 14. (AP)—A little widow in black, past middle life, here today in district court painted a vivid picture of how she suddenly walked into a tragedy in Dr. J. Frank Norris' office in Fort Worth last July.

Mrs. Roxie Parker, widow of the late Judge W. R. Parker of Tarrant county, Texas, who resides on a farm 22 miles from Fort Worth, was the surprise witness of the prosecution and furnished the chief sensation of the case.

Turn to pages 4 and 5 for full details of session in the Norris trial.

The prosecution rested at 4:05 p. m., promptly upon the conclusion of Mrs. Parker's testimony after they had offered only six witnesses.

Mrs. Parker, a little white-faced woman, in gold-rimmed spectacles, a small lace collar, gray gloves and with a soft voice, told how she had visited Dr. Norris' office on the afternoon of last July 17, and had accidentally entered just as D. E. Chipps was shot.

Witness to Tragedy

For one brief instant the tragedy flashed across her startled vision and then she fled in terror. The sight of a man being shot down, as he stood with one hand on a door knob, and the other in the air, was so burned into her mind that in a tense crowded court room she related it twice today without changing a single detail, even under merciless questioning by defense attorneys.

The little mother's testimony was a sudden and dramatic climax to the swiftly moving case of the prosecution.

Mrs. Parker had called at Dr. Norris' office several weeks before the tragedy to interest him in the purchase of her farm home for a Sunday school camp. She wanted to dispose of the property, she said, after she lost her son last fall. Dr. Norris had promised to call and see the place, but when he did not come for several weeks later she decided to visit him again on the same business. It happened that the day and the hour she selected for the visit was that fatal day and hour when Chipps lost his life while on a mission of protest in behalf of his friend, Mayor H. C. Meacham of Fort Worth.

Brought by Daughter

She mounted the stairway to the second floor of the Norris office building adjoining the First Baptist church in Fort Worth, her daughter had driven her there in an automobile.

As she stepped to the door of the ante-room leading to Norris' private office, a man came out of the inner door. She stood at the threshold of the room and it proved to be at the threshold of a tragic adventure.

An unseen hand suddenly flung open the door of Norris' inner room and a man appeared. He was Chipps.

"The man had one hand on the door knob," said the little figure in the rail enclosed witness stand, as she observed jury and court room quietly through her glasses.

"He stepped through the inner door just as I arrived at the outer door.

"I stopped at the threshold. I heard the man say: 'I'll come back!'"

Points to Model

Mrs. Parker now was standing in front of the jury, pointing with a long stick at a wooden model of the second floor of Norris' office building. The model had been introduced by the prosecution to give the jury a graphic view of the situation. It rested on one edge, partly tilted up so the jury could look down into it as though peering from an adjoining room.

She indicated where she and the men stood by using the pointer.

"Through the open door I saw Dr. Norris in his office and another man," she continued. "This picture flashed across my mind for just the fraction of an instant.

"As the man said 'I'll come back,' he turned slightly as though to carry his words into effect. His hand was raised in the air. Just then there was the flash of a gun. Shots were fired in rapid succession.

"The man staggered, that is all I know, I fled down the stairway."

Tells Her Daughter

Mrs. Parker said that as she rushed toward her waiting automobile a passing automobile almost struck her. The first person she told about the shooting was her

KEMP SPEAKS AT MEETING

Willys - Whippet Employes Hear Leaders

Policies to be effective in dealing with the public and in operation of the plant were discussed Friday night at an organization meeting of employes of the Willys-Whippet company, local agents of the Willys-Knight and Overland automobiles. The meeting was held in the sales rooms of the company's new quarters at Ninth and Travis in the old Lloyd Weaver building.

J. A. Kemp, vice president of the company, made a short address stressing the need of co-operation and expressing confidence in the future. Some of the more detailed policies of the concern were explained by C. T. Boone, manager of the company, while the principal address was given by J. P. Gaugh, manager of the Willys Texas branch at Dallas.

Mr. Gaugh went into detail on the more important functions of the various departments—retail sales, used car sales, service, parts and office. He gave some valuable suggestions as to the conduct of these and closed with a plea for unified and well directed co-operation.

The meetings will be held each month.

Anderson Kemp, president of the company; J. Will Gray, secretary-treasurer, and P. M. Bacchus, assistant manager, were also present at the session.

CHURCH AN ASSET

Sales Art Not Used In Religion, Pastor Declares

"Salesmanship is a great art; a common expression today is 'I am sold.' We have schools where the psychology of salesmanship is taught. Your chamber of commerce spent $80,000 last year selling Wichita Falls. But this city has an asset bigger than banks, irrigation and factories, and that is the church of Jesus Christ, and we seldom hear of an organized plan to sell it," so said Rev. S. A. Barnes pastor of Floral Heights Methodist church, in an address to the men of the city at Highland Heights Christian church Friday night, in a meeting sponsored by the Baldridge Men's Bible class of the church.

In addition to Rev. Barnes' address, a musical program with special vocal numbers given by L. F. Aldrich was enjoyed. Piano accompaniment was played by J. S. Pitman. P. B. Curd, president of the class, presided at the banquet, and impromptu talks were made by a number of the men, including Williams Baldridge, teacher of the class, and the pastor, Dr. Paul Henry Packard.

Invitations were sent to 280 men, a great number of whom responded. The dinner was served by Mrs. John Glaab's division of the Woman's council.

M'FALL SERVICES

Last Rites to Be Held at Weatherford For Ranger Man

Funeral services for L. C. McFall, prominent Ranger man and brother of J. A., H. H. and J. M. McFall of Wichita Falls, will be held at 3:30 o'clock at Weatherford, according to word received here Friday. L. C. McFall was killed when his automobile turned over near Mason Thursday afternoon. J. A. McFall and H. H. McFall left immediately for Ranger after receiving news of the accident. J. M. McFall, who was at Mayo brothers sanitarium in Rochester, Minn., at the time of the accident, is now en route to Texas, and will attend the services at Weatherford.

H. H. McFall is a Wichita Falls insurance man, while J. A. and J. M. McFall are members of McFall brothers, auto dealers. The auto company announces today that it will close at noon because of the death.

MRS. J. C. CRANE DIES

Services At Bowie Sunday For Former Wichita Woman

Word was received in Wichita Falls Friday of the death of Mrs. J. C. Crane of Colorado Springs, Colo., formerly a resident of Wichita Falls. The body will be forwarded to Bowie for burial there and will pass through Wichita Falls on the Fort Worth and Denver at 11:50 o'clock Saturday. Funeral services will be held Sunday and burial will be in the Elmwood cemetery at Bowie, according to information reaching here.

Mr. and Mrs. Crane were former residents of Wichita Falls and resided on Ninth street, and recently went to Colorado for her health. Mr. Crane was in the real estate business and was connected with Willis and Crane, real estate firm, while here.

MRS. SALLY E. SMITH

Funeral services for Mrs. Sally E. Smith, 65, who died Thursday evening were held Friday afternoon from the chapel of Hines Mortuary with Rev. S. A. Barnes, pastor of Floral Heights Methodist church, in charge. Burial was in Rosemont.

HOLLINGSWORTH SERVICES

Funeral services for A. C. Hollingsworth, 55, were held from the Merkle chapel Friday afternoon with burial following in Rosemont. The body arrived here from Borger yesterday morning. He was a former resident of this city.

CHURCH PROGRAM

More Than 100 Attend Program and Banquet.

Dr. Nat F. Grafton, pastor of the First Christian church, was the principal speaker at the prayer service and weekly church night meeting Friday evening. A lively sing song was led by Alva Willgus as the hundred guests sat around the tables, and following the supper, the group divided into sections for departmental meetings.

The Bible class was taught by Mrs. Alva Willgus. Mrs. Curtis Atkinson conducted a story hour for the children, and the Sunday school council met with the superintendent, Julian Montgomery.

Special music of the evening included a solo by Rev. Dan E. Grieder, assistant pastor; bagpipe music by Frank Humphrey, and selections by the Sunday school orchestra.

Weak eyes of children are strengthened by Dickey's Old Reliable Eye Water. All druggists 25c.—Adv.

Yale Avenue Church Closes Successful Year at Conference

One of the most successful years in the history of the Yale Avenue Evangelical church has just closed, and the prospect for 1927 is unusually bright, according to reports given Friday night at the church in the second quarterly conference conducted by Rev. L. Newman of Houston, presiding elder of the Texas conference of the Evangelical church.

A greater interest has been shown in the work the last year than in the four years previous, and a steady growth in each department was revealed in the reports given by the following officers in the various departments:

Board of stewards, report given by Mrs. L. H. Gilbreath, budget treasurer; Sunday school report, W. A. Lynn, superintendent; Epworth League, Mrs. Edna Null, president; lay leader's report, F. M. King; Woman's Missionary Society, Mrs. H. Dewar; Ladies' Aid, Mrs. R. L. Mansell.

The pastor, Rev. W. D. Cook, introduced Rev. Newman, and made a brief report of the general work and commented on the outlook for the new year.

Cleaners and Dyers Fete Merchants In First of Co-operative Meetings

A meeting with the purpose of getting a closer co-operation between cleaners and dyers of the city and the merchants was held at the Kemp hotel Friday night when merchants were guests of the Cleaners and Dyers association with Lee Smith, president, presiding.

"We are meeting here with the idea of having more co-operation and stop 'passing the buck'," he explained in opening the discussions.

Frank Cripliver of the City Laundry and City Cleaning and Dye works was the first speaker and he showed briefly the place the industry has. In Texas last year $4,000,000 was spent for cleaning and pressing. Between 250 and 300 men and women are engaged in this work in Wichita Falls and an annual payroll of $200,000, conservatively estimated, goes to them.

Tells of Problems

Speaking of the troubles that confront the cleaners, he mentioned the black stitching in buckram linings of collars. When that collar is cleaned, perhaps the black thread fades and leaves the color of the stitching on the material. Wash suits that shrink when cleaned, celluloid buttons that drop off when they are exposed to the heat in the alreators.

These things which make the work of cleaners and dyers difficult could be overcome in a measure by the merchants who could use their influence on the manufacturers of the garments and get them to co-operate also.

Materials used in clothing and not pre-shrunk before the garment is made, necessarily cause shrinkage in cleaning and merchants could go another step in helping the cleaners by not buying the garments marked "to be dry cleaned only."

Henry R. Stout of the DeLuxe cleaners spoke on fabrics, dry cleaning and solvents used. A dry cleaning fluid is used to cleanse the garments, leaving the lustre, shape and brightness, but if garments are too soiled, they will require washing, and the dangers in wetting some materials in water were discussed. As for silks, a metal substance is used to give silk weight, and after exposure to light the metal salts become harmful and cause silks to split. The friction needed to cleanse the silk may also cause it to break.

Discuss Silks

Turner J. Lindsey, dyer of the Wichita Cleaning and Dye works, made a brief talk on the research laboratory now being arranged in Washington, D. C., where troubles in cleaning and dyeing may be analyzed.

J. C. Hanks of the Wichita Cleaning and Dye works spoke also on weighted silks, curtain materials and other fabrics that present problems to the cleaners.

Other speakers of the evening included D. Vainrib of the Hub; A. R. Watland of the J. C. Penney company, who said the merchants could influence the manufacturers by standing together and demanding the materials and garments mentioned by the speakers; D. M. Bernard of The Record News; Smith of the Ludlam company; O. I. Luellen of the Oriental Dry Cleaning company; John Barnard of the P. B. M. company; H. D. Jones of the Liberty cleaners. A round table discussion closed the evening's program.

This meeting is one of the first in which cleaners, dyers and merchants expect to work together, and is a part of a national movement.

RED CROSS MEETING.

Routine matters of the Red Cross were discussed in the regular board meeting held at headquarters in the basement of the courthouse Friday evening. Reports were given by the nurses, Miss Rosa Lee Harkins, Miss Fredericka Beal, and Miss Mary Sutherland.

W. O. Beeman, chairman of the board, presided at the meeting.

Geo. H. Williams, general agent for the Southland Life Insurance company has just returned from Dallas where he was the guest of the company at the annual round-up Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week. He reports that he was royally entertained.

Ira L. Cain, local business man, was called Friday morning to San Angelo by the death of his mother, Mrs. W. W. Cain.

NEGRO BEATEN BY WHITE MAN

Victims Head and Body Gashed in Fight

City police Friday night were investigating an affray in the 1900 block on Tenth street in which Henderson Woods, a negro, was beaten. A search was being made for a white man alleged to have administered the whipping. At a late hour no arrests had been made.

Woods was found by a squad of city detectives as he was racing down an alley between Ninth and Tenth and near Holliday street. Blood was spurting from gashes about the head and body and he was rapidly weakening.

To officers who halted him and took him to the General hospital, the negro said he did not know the name of his assailant and had no idea as to why he was attacked. Police, however, believed the victime could tell something if he chose, but his condition was such on reaching the hospital he was not pressed for more information. He will be questioned further when he improves.

Residents in the neighborhood where the fight started could throw no light on the circumstances. They were attracted by cries from an alleyway, they said, and then Woods dashed away.

The negro said his assailant was a large man, well dressed and wearing a light hat.

Alleged Red Activities In New York To Be Probed.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14. (AP)—Grand jury investigation of charges that a group of communists closely allied with the Russian soviet government used $51,166 to bribe police and the district attorney's office to obtain a friendly official attitude toward striking fur workers was promised by District Attorney Banton today.

NO COMMISSION

Texas Road Bureau Has No Directors.

AUSTIN, Jan. 14. (AP)—Although the attorney general's department ruled Friday Texas had no highway commissioners, Eugene T. Smith, whose confirmation as highway commission chairman was rejected Thursday, said, "I'm going to stick around until somebody comes over here to whom we can turn over the department."

POLICE NAB FIRST STILL

Negro and Wife Battle, Cops Discover Liquor

Capture of the first still in 1927 by the police department was made last night by Officers C. T. Wheat and G. T. Kelly. The officers were called to quell a disturbance in a servant house. The still and about a half gallon of whiskey were found.

When the officers arrived a negro man and his wife were staging a "knock out" battle and had partially dismantled the crude still in the course of the fight. The whiskey making apparatus consisted of two five-gallon oil cans, a 20-gallon keg and a few tin pipes.

The negroes are being held in the city jail and will be transferred to the county authorities today.

FARMERS SOLD ON TERRACING

Haskell County Men Report Increased Yields

Special to The Record News.

HASKELL, Jan. 14.—A new day has dawned in Haskell county, not only from the standpoint of diversification and a knowledge of how to successfully combat most of the pests, such as worms, grasshoppers etc., but the practice of terracing the farm land has been sold to the farmers throughout Haskell county. This is almost solely due to the efficiency and efforts of County Agent W. P. Trice who has been untiring in his efforts since coming to Haskell some three years ago. Increased yields have resulted in all instances where the terraces have been properly constructed and the rows run parallel with both terraces. In many instances farmers have resorted to merely contouring their rows and have found this to be a great help in conserving the moisture on the hillsides. And these same farmers have exploded an old theory, for they have proved that crops will grow as well when the row is running in any direction, and not just "east and west" as was commonly thought to be the only proper direction.

ALTUS SOCIETY

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., Jan. 14.—Announcement has been received in Altus of the marriage of Miss Rachael Stroud, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Stroud of 321 East Commerce street, and Walter House of Shawnee, Monday, January 3, at 8 o'clock in Tecumseh. They were accompanied by the bride's sister, Miss Martha Sternett.

Mr. and Mrs. House will make their home in Shawnee where Mr. House is engaged in oil business. Miss Stroud has lived in Altus eight or nine years and has many friends who wish them happiness.

Men and boy members of the First Baptist church will attend a banquet and meeting at the church basement Friday evening, when the meeting will be the annual get-together meeting of the church.

Mrs. Jess Cumbee of 421 West Elm street, entertained with a surprise party, Wednesday evening in honor of the birthday of her husband. Cut flowers were used to decorate the table where covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. George Burket, Mrs. C. E. Barker, of Fort Stockton, Texas; Miss Maud Wimberly and Mr. and Mrs. Cumbee.

Complimentary to her husband, Dr. L. R. McConnell, and a number of his doctor friends, Mrs. McConnell entertained with a lovely four course dinner, Thursday evening at their home, 413 North Main street. The rooms were decorated with blooming pot plants and a pink and white color note was carried through all appointments of the dinner. A low crystal bowl of sweet peas formed an attractive centerpiece for the table which was lighted by six pink candles in crystal holders. Those who enjoyed this delightful occasion with Dr. and Mrs. McConnell were Dr. Raymond H. Fox, Dr. J. B. Hix, Dr. E. A. Abernathy and Dr. C. G. Spears.

Mrs. W. B. Forrester was hostess to the Laugh-a-Lot Bridge club Thursday afternoon when a group of additional guests included Mrs. Elizabeth Kimbell, Mrs. Eldridge Ingram, Mrs. Earl Belt, Mrs. Hark Heath, Mrs. Findley Raines and Mrs. C. T. Kirkpatrick. High score for guests was made by Mrs. Heath while Mrs. A. I. Eppler won club honors.

Dainty Colonial ladies appeared on the tallys and score cards. At the close of the games the hostess served a tempting salad course. In a short business meeting Mrs. Will S. Carter was elected vice-president of the club. Members present were Mrs. R. B. Hoover, Mrs. A. I. Eppler, Mrs. Ray Jones, Mrs. Roy Williams, Mrs. Will S. Carter, Mrs. Fred McCurley and Mrs. Charles Summerall.

The lunchroom project which is being sponsored by the Parent-Teacher association for the special benefit of the under-nourished or under-weight children, is gradually proving an asset to the Washington school.

The Erolethian club met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jess Cumbee, 421 West Elm street, when "Alaska" was the subject of the lesson. Topics were given by Mrs. Cumbee, Mrs. Gibbons, Mrs. Harris, Mrs Ross Rutherford and Mrs. Higginbotham.

Members present: Mrs. W. W. Lloyd, Mrs. John Reid, Mrs. W. M. Harris, Mrs. L. E. Widlake, Mrs. Grady Russell, Mrs. J. S. Smith, Mrs. Ross Rutherford, Mrs. Sam A. Henry and Mrs. T. L. Higginbotham. Mrs. C. E. Barker of Fort Stockton, Texas, house guest of Mrs. Cumbee, was an appreciated visitor.

The East Side Circle of the Christian Ladies' Aid society met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. C. McKee 512 East Live Oak street. Mrs. A. C. Fagin led the devotional, after which the organization of the circle was completed. By-laws were read and approved, and the following officers elected: Chairman, Mrs. H. C. McKee; vice-chairman, Mrs. W. A. Baucum; treasurer, Mrs. B. W. McMahan; secretary, Mrs. J. W. Humphreys. A general discussion of plans for the circle work followed the business and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed. The hostess served a delicious refreshment course to the 11 ladies present.

The West Side Circle of the Christian Ladies' Aid society met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dan Caves, 403 North Hudson street, when plans were discussed for the work of the circle, and the completion of the organization made. Mrs. Slaton was elected chairman; Mrs. Tidball, vice-chairman; Mrs. Caves, treasurer; and Mrs. C. B. Samuels, secretary. Mrs. Claude Elsea led the devotional Monday and a pleasant social hour spent when the hostess served lovely refreshments. Nine ladies were present.

Circle one of the Presbyterian Womens' auxiliary met Monday afternoon in Bible study at the home of Mrs. W. H. Neville, 421 East Broadway. Mrs. C. G. Spears conducted the devotional and led a very interesting lesson from the Book of Job.

Circle Two of the Presbyterian Women's auxiliary met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Murray, 607 East Live Oak street, when the devotional and Bible study lesson was led by Mrs. R. G. Newsome. Eight ladies were present and an interesting and instructive meeting reported.

The Methodist Women's Missionary society met Monday afternoon at the church in business session. Mrs. L. H. McConnell, president, was in charge of the meeting, and plans were made for the district Missionary meeting which will convene in Altus Monday. Representatives from the auxiliaries of the Lawton district will be present at the meeting which will continue throughout the day.

HOG INDUSTRY GETS IMPETUS

Haskell Farmers Diversify In Pigs and Poultry

Special to The Record News.

HASKELL, Jan. 14.—County Agent W. P. Trice has the following to say in regard to the cotton situation and the effect it has had on Haskell county farmers:

"The brood sow and hog, the egg and hen are rapidly coming into their own in Haskell county. Farms that were depleted of swine of any kind a few months ago are now being stocked with pigs and brood sows raised in this section of the state. Many farms throughout Haskell county now have from three to 30 pigs where there were none to be found four months ago. Those who have been fortunate enough to have from one to five or more brood sows, have found a ready market for all pigs produced as soon as they could be weaned, and most of the pig crop was sold several weeks before the pigs arrived on the scene.

"The present outlook for the pig and hog situation throughout Haskell county is encouraging, with possibly some hogs to be shipped from the county this fall.

"The hen and her eggs took an upward turn toward a better organized system of marketing with the gathering together in Stamford the past week, representatives from six towns in this vicinity.

"The Haskell-Jones county poultry association was organized with the intent and purpose of selling a high quality product through an organized association, thereby being able to demand a much better price than has been formerly received by the poultry fanciers throughout this section.

"Bankers, business men, farmers and poultry men alike are interested in the newly formed organization and pledged their support and co-operation to successful operation of same."

AUSTIN, Jan. 14.—A mild-mannered little woman of 70 years this afternoon rocked the defense of the Rev. J. Frank Norris to its heels. Mrs. Roxie E. Parker, widow of Judge W. R. Parker, testified that she saw the Fort Worth pastor shoot down Dexter E. Chipps in the Norris study door on July 17, 1926.

Mrs. Parker's testimony seemed to have caught the defense flat-footed. With dramatic suddenness, Special Prosecutor W. B. McLean announced:

"The state rests."

Only six witnesses had been heard. The prosecution had taken up only five hours. That prosecution got off to a stumbling start, it seemed to this correspondent.

At 2 o'clock, only an hour before the state rested, an impression prevailed that the prosecution was going to limp into port with a leaky hull, broken propeller shafts, and a heavy list to port.

The Rev. Norris, charged with murder, was glowing with approbation as H. H. Rains, witness for the state, appeared to flounder woefully under the cross examination of Defense Attorney Marvin Simpson. Mrs. Norris, too, a wholesome looking woman of middle age, seemed pleased.

Bombshell Bursts

All this was before, not after, this memorable 2 o'clock.

When Mrs. Parker, a slender, trim woman of genteel bearing and motherly face, took the stand, there was little stir of expectation among the spectators. Surely, this small woman in black gown, with dainty collar of white lace and small, aristocratic hands, encased in gray kid gloves, was merely a kindly old lady. What, indeed, could this soft-spoken woman, a grandmother, have to do with murder. Then, the bomb shell hurled by aged, delicate hands.

Mrs. Parker told how she had visited Rev. Norris' study for the purpose of selling her 80 acres to his First Baptist church, as a Sunday school picnic ground.

Q.—"Did you visit his offices on the day Mr. Chipps was shot?"

A.—"Yes."

Q.—"Tell what you did."

A.—"As I came into the anteroom, I saw a man coming through this door."

Indicates Position

(Here the witness indicated on a model of the pastor's suite, a door representing the one that opens into his study from the anteroom.)

The witness continued:

"I saw this man as the door opened, and saw the man turn and face the open door. He raised his right and like this (holding her hand to the level of her chin) and I heard the man say: 'I'll be back.'

"Then, I saw Dr. Norris. He had a gun. There was a shot. The man staggered and I turned and went back down stairs."

She heard other shots as she hurried away, the witness added. She was excited so much, that she nearly was run down by an automobile as she moved across a street to the south of the church. There her daughter had parked their sedan.

Question by McLean: "Who did that shooting?"

A.—"Dr. Norris."

Witness Steadfast

All the power and skill of Marvin Simpson, who was flushed with his early success of the day, failed to shake the testimony of the little old lady with the light brown hair, that even 70 years haven't turned gray. She is handsome now. She was as beautiful as Dresden china in her twenties, say old-time beaux of the south. She met defense thrusts, which now had been turned swiftly and dramatically into an attack to save the Rev. Norris from the "chair" or prison, with unfaltering works and steady brown eyes. Those eyes are far from dim, although they look through tortoise shell rims.

Jurors, who had leaned back as though unimpressed by the early prosecution testimony, now leaned forward as if keenly appreciative of Mrs. Parker's words.

The Rev. Norris had begun the day with a solemn, gray pallor on his strong face. Up until 2 o'clock he had retained his usual dignified, confident presence. As he and his wife left court, however, he again seemed to be harboring a struggle within his heart.

Simpson Fails

Again and again did Simpson try to catch Mrs. Parker on facts. He seemed to fail—indeed certain of his questions seemed made to order for the benefit of the prosecution—for example:

Q.—"Did you see a pistol in Dr. Norris' hand?"

A.—"Yes."

Q.—"What color was it?"

A.—"I don't know. I have a gun myself, yet I don't know the color of it."

Q.—"Did the first bullet hit the man you say you saw?"

A.—"I don't know. He staggered when the gun was fired. Whether he staggered from the bullet or not, I can't say."

One Defense Witness

Only one witness, John E. Human, was heard for the defense. He was a former member of the Rev. Norris' church, and said he had sold Mrs. Parker an automobile on time payments.

Special prosecutor McLean, when asked why he rested so soon, said: "We had an unimpeachable witness in that old lady. She told enough, and to call any more would be just bl-a-a-a-h."

And Mr. McLean, nicknamed "Wild Bill" roared loudly. It is forecast, however, that the state intends an elaborate rebuttal.

For most of the morning, the Rev. Norris had sat rigidly in his chair, surrounded by his counsellors, the rugged, persistent, sandy-complexioned Marvin Simpson; the dignified Judge Ike White, who is said to resemble the late W. J. Bryan; the chubby Dayton Moses, and several others.

Cold, Gray Statue

He seemed a cold, gray statue with a well-tailored blue suit over granite flesh, and his arms were folded across his chest.

But when the young, voluble and animated Mr. Rains quoted him as having said: "I've killed me a man," the Rev. Norris seemed to come to sudden life. Only the eyes, rather calculating, analyzing eyes that belie any sign of emotionalism, remained cold, deep, chill. Down came the folded arms. The Rev. Norris began to confer energetically with his counsel. He leaned forward, fixing the witness with that gaze of blue steel lustre so characteristic of the Fort Worth crusader.

Young Mr. Rains, fifth witness for the state, and who is athletic and of the big league ball player type in his jaunty walk and cast of figure, certainly started something when he said:

"I heard him say: 'I've killed me a man.'"

Under the guidance of W. B. (Wild Bill) McLean, leader of the prosecution's storm troops, Rains glided along with his story like the russet stream of the Colorado river that flows by this attractive city of Austin. But when Simpson, beginning slowly but relentlessly got hold of Rains, the young man entered the rapids. Later, he was in the Grand Canon with massive, rocky walls from which seemed to glare stonily many faces of rugged Mr. Simpson. And each rough-hewn face seemed to be asking a hundred different questions at once.

Mystery Injected.

Mr. Rains had injected a "mystery man" and a certain negro, unknown by name to him, in the case. The "mystery man" was presumed to have witnessed the scene just preceding the Rev. Norris' reported announcement: "I've killed me a man."

The clothing, the hat, the complexion, the stature, almost the everything of that "mystery man" was observed and testified to in court by Mr. Rains. Deftly did Simpson, in building his Grand Canon wall of stony faces, lead Rains into these minute descriptions. It was uncanny how Rains "fell for this" as the boys say in sporting circles when a fighter is feinted and is drawn into a position to be punched groggy. Then did the irony of Mr. Simpson's method come popping to the surface like a diver who gets too much air in his suit.

The witness who had seen the "mystery man" so clearly and who had heard so plainly that sentence: "I've killed me a man," now was unable to describe definitely how the Rev. Norris was dressed and a lot of other things about the pastor who is on trial for his life.

Here the fireworks began to sputter. Mr. Rains had lighted the fuse. His credibility was attacked. He got hot-headed, again like the big league ball player who doesn't like a decision by Umpire Billy Evans. And from Simpson, the builder of Grand Canon walls, he got the same sort of treatment that Billy Evans gives recalcitrant players. Rains had told McLean that his tire works shop was the ground floor, beneath the study of the Rev. Norris. The state's object, presumably, was to indicate that if the pastor's life had been in danger, he could have shouted and that those shouts would have been heard by Rains and his crew of negro workers and that help would have been forthcoming. He added:

He Heard Shooting

"I was directing my darkies and heard the shooting. About three minutes later, I went up the stairway and saw Mr. Norris."

Later, he said it was two minutes. He added while walking over to the model of the study suite that is presented by the prosecution:

"Dr. Norris came out saying: 'I've killed me a man.' A negro was there. So was some other man. A Mr. Rogers and I had gone up stairs. We went back to my office door. I told him a man had been killed in Dr. Norris' study."

Q.—"Did you see another man there?"

A.—"Yes. There was another fellow there and I'd know him if I'd see him."

Simpson Angry

Simpson, cross examining, seemed to be holding a check on his own temper. He made the witness go again to the model. He then led him into a maze of questions, particularly the garb of the "mystery man."

Simpson's words began to grow satirically sympathetic. The Rev. Norris was gaining color by the moment and sent piercing looks at young Mr. Rains, who swayed from one foot to another in front of the model. Before Simpson had finished with him, he looked as though his feet belonged to some one else. They looked sort of detached, as it were. One was led to feel sorry for the lad, for some of the questions were such as might mix up a lot of persons. It was a lambasting. Mr. Simpson simply is the most inquisitive man in Travis county, say his acquaintances.

Heard Four Shots

Rains said he had heard four shots and maybe five. He was given a long pointer by Simpson and asked to rap on the floor with it to indicate the rapidity of the gunfire. He knocked three times in quick succession, then paused and then rapped once again.

Witness Incensed

Q.—Did you tell Mr. Moore that night that Dr. Norris said: "I've killed me a man?"

A.—"Yes. What do you want?"

Simpson—"I'm getting to that."

Witness (heatedly)—"Well, let's have it."

Simpson (significantly and gesturing)—"You are going to have it!"

The court sounded the gavel sharply. From then on cross-examiner and witness clashed.

Q.—"Isn't it true you weren't in that building at all and that you didn't see any of these things you have testified to?"

A.—"I certainly was there."

Q.—"Have you not said here in reply to the same question that you told Rogers 'there's a man killed in that room:' 'There's a man shot in that room:' 'There's a man dead in that room?' now just what did you say?"

A.—"Well, I told him there was a man laying on the floor."

Simpson—"Oh!"

50 Witnesses Present

The case today began when Special Prosecutor McLean asked that all witnesses be brought in. Dayton Moses asked that their names be read. There were more than 50 witnesses. The court room was filled, and an afternoon throng stormed the doors of the old courthouse.

Attorneys and reporters used a window in back of the judge's bench instead of the door when they wanted in or out in the afternoon session.

Two witnesses, regarded as vitally important, were reported in town. One of them, L. H. Nutt, was in court at the opening. He is said to have been sitting in the study when bullets began to fly. The other, Miss Jane Hartwell, Norris' secretary, was not at court in the morning. She is convalescing from a nervous breakdown.

The first witness was Joseph P. Langston, contractor and maker of the box model of the Rev. Norris' church annex. Mrs. Norris, wife of the defendant, was absent from the morning session. This afternoon she appeared in court and sat beside her husband. She is a woman of about 42 years. She wore a maroon-colored small hat with a silver thread design. She had a black coat with beaver collar.

O. W. Phillips, Fort Worth undertaker, who prepared the body of Chipps for burial, said he had probed for the bullets. One of them entered the heart, he said. F. W. Spreen, another undertaker, said he had called in an ambulance for the body.

C. D. Bush, Fort Worth city detectives, was the fourth witness. Five officers, including the chief, went to the scene of the shooting, he testified. He said Nutt was there.

Q.—"What were Norris and Nutt doing then?"

A.—"They were standing there in the ante-room."

Q.—"What did you find?"

A.—"I found Mr. Chipps' body in the northeast corner of the study."

Q.—"When you got in there what was the condition of the body?"

A.—"It was lying on the right side and the blood was oozing from the mouth."

(Objection. Overruled).

McLean—"Go ahead now and give a description."

Found No Arms

Witness—"There was a chair close by his shoulder. I didn't think he was quite dead. Mr. Hinkle, a fellow officer, called an ambulance, came back and searched the body."

Q.—"Tell the jurors if there were any arms in the effects—what did you find?"

The witness described a pocketbook, a cigarette holder, about four inches long and a tin of tobacco.

Q.—"Did you see his pockets carefully searched?"

A.—"Yes."

Q.—"Any knives, pistols or knuckles?"

A.—"I saw none. I made it a purposeful plan to look for arms. I went all through his pockets and felt all around. I found no kind of weapon. Searched him thoroughly."

Q.—"Could you tell if he was breathing when you got in?"

A.—"I thought he was. I couldn't exactly tell. But I thought he was."

"Q.—"Did you notice yourself any other blood than that which you have described?"

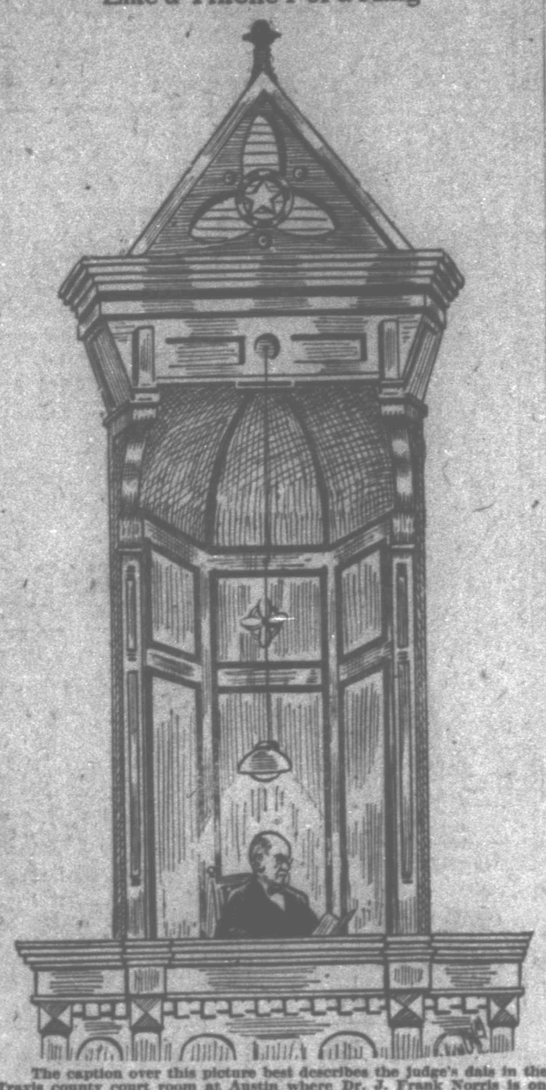

Saw Blood Clot

A.—"Yes. After I went into the little ante-room, I saw a clot of blood about the size of a dollar."

The prosecution presumably was trying to prove that Chipps was shot while standing in the ante-room and not lunging toward Norris; that he staggered into the study and died there; also that there was plenty of room between Chipps and Norris.

Simpson, cross-examining, tried to show that Officer Bush did not see the blood clot until after the body was removed by ambulance men. He testified he had remained constantly with Chipps' body until it was taken away. The defense endeavored to confirm its theory that the blood was dropped while Chipps was being carried through the ante-room on a stretcher. That it was not blood at all, but tobacco, was suggested by Simpson to the witness.

DOLL'S HOUSE MUTE WITNESS

Replica of Norris Church Before Jury

BY BESS CARROLL.
(By Universal Service Staff.)
(Copyright, 1927.)

AUSTIN, Jan. 14.—As bare limbs of naked trees stretch, like lean hands held out in prayer, the windows that give a criminal court an ironical glimpse of heaven, a fiery dominie who turned the tide of Broadway once to church—the Rev. J. Frank Norris, fundamentalist "shooting parson"—must sit in silence as the conflict of the decade goes on about him; the law of the land pawing over his life.

There have been battles to the death of every sort in Texas, an empire born of savage tribe and fathered by the rattlesnake.

Back to Wall.

Even now, as J. Frank Norris, charged with murder, fights with his back against the wall to save his life, other battles are being waged—bouts between money and men, the fight of the slums for bread, the primitive contest of wolf and wild cat, deep in the chaparral yet, this is by far the most spectacular battle Texas has ever known.

So unusual—so weird it is, that precedent has been broken and the trial judge, most judicial of men, descends often from his majestic dais—a chair that easily might have been the egoistic throne of some vainglorious king—to watch phantom smoke-rings blow about the rooms of a doll's house, built to represent the scene of the crime.

This miniature house, product of weeks' of painstaking work, would delight the heart of any little girl. Yet, it may decide the fate of J. Frank Norris, charged with killing a man in the dim quiet, reverie of a soft-toned church study, last July. For on the floor of this tiny model, a dead man walks again, as witness after witness brings back the ghost of D. E. Chipps—prominent clumbaan, who was slain before a picture of William J. Bryan, on a velvet taupe-colored rug in the Sunday school building of a million dollar church.

A Doll's House.

It is a strange battle-ground, for Texas—this doll's house.

Blood stains its floor again, as that lurid scene is brought back from its grave through the medium of memory.

The jury stands up to stare into the gaping doors of this little house, where pencil marks represent two men—one dead, the other holding a smoking gun. There comes a weird sound above the monotone of voices—the quick pounding of a broomhandle on the floor, to imitate those pistol shots that took a man's soul out on their smoke.

From the witness stand, a familiar expression comes, like Rip Van Winkle from his nap—"The shooting"—a bloody old Texas term.

As one witness described this, perhaps the most famous "shooting," of the southwest now, Frank Norris yawned.

But, as the muscles of his square jaws contract like steel things, and his blue-gray eyes flash momentarily like the flare of a soul-seeking gun, it is evident that J. Frank Norris is out in the midst of this strange, particular fight. Never before in his national career has he left a challenge unanswered, than once, because he fears no man. Now, he must "hold his peace," while accusations are flung at him. Words, falling like Shots have whizzed past him more pebbles from the witness stand, sink into the deep pool of thought widening out into circles that are lost in the steel-blue gray of his enigmatic eyes.

Norris Storm Center.

Yet, as Texas pauses on its way across the poles, to watch its biggest melee, Frank Norris remains the storm-center of a scarred southwest. This conflict refereed by the law, is his.

And, while this battle of battles is waged, a juror pleads for a pair of socks. Blood dries and pistol shots are spent, as soon— but the commonplaces of life must go on.

Several months ago I was in a northern city in which "Stella Dallas" was showing. I had read the book and felt that I had to see the picture, regardless of the football game and fraternity tea dance which everyone, including myself, was going to that afternoon. Well, I saw it and it was worth half a dozen games and dances. And now it is at the Majestic and I fully intend to see it the second time.

"Stella Dallas" is considered the most remarkable characterization ever produced in the silent drama and Belle Bennett in the title role of the picture plays the part of a flighty, frivolous young bride, a fickle wife and passionately devoted mother. Conscious that she is a disgrace and drawback to her daughter, she makes the heartbreaking sacrifice of disappearing from her life so that the daughter may have every advantage of the social life that is offered her, and to which Stella Dallas has earnestly forced her way.

It is appealing, human and very real. You will like it.

The company of all-American singers are under the personal direction of Miss May Valentine, the only woman in all America who seems able to successfully produce light opera. Year after year has found this young woman advancing step by step until today she is recognized and admired by thousands, including many of the great artists of the day.

In tuxedo Miss Valentine wields the baton and makes a unique figure as the conductor of the group of successful American soloists. The public and press throughout America are unanimous in their praise of this talented young woman, and it is her desire to visit Wichita Falls each year with one of the many notable operas which she has included in her repertoire and to give to America opera in English by our own boys and girls trained right here in our own conservatories.

BUSINESS COUNCIL

Rayzor Puts Time Limit On Speeches to Business Men

Speakers at the chamber of commerce business council luncheons hereafter must keep a weather eye on their watches or be prepared for official information that their time has expired.

Arthur C. Rayzor, new chairman of the council, made it plain at Friday noon's luncheon that he wanted to open and close the weekly sessions on time. He accordingly promoted a motion that the chair be authorized to interrupt any speaker who broke over the prescribed limits.

Judge A. H. Carrigan offered such a motion and threw in for good measure a facetious clause that "the speakers be called down before their time is up if their talks are not interesting." All meetings are scheduled to begin promptly at 12:10 and close exactly one hour later.

In a brief preliminary address to the meeting, the first over which he has presided, Chairman Rayzor outlined some of the policies which he proposes to carry through in the next 12 months.

The principal talk of the day was given by H. W. Stanley, salesmanship and economic expert now in the city conducting a salesmen's institute.

VALUE OF TEXAS LIGNITE

TEXAS has enormous deposits of lignite and the bureau of mines of the federal department of commerce discusses the possibilities of utilizing the deposits of the United States for fuel purposes. According to the bulletin, prospects are promising for the development of the lignite fuel industry.

Possibility of making a high grade fuel from the enormous deposits of the country, comprising nearly one-third of the total solid fuel resources of the nation is demonstrated by the bureau using a cheap process for carbonizing the raw lignite and subsequently briquetting the resulting char.

Extensive lignite fields lie in states west of the Mississippi, notably in North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and Texas. Smaller areas occur in several other states.

The total area of the deposits and the total amount of lignite in the various districts are so enormous that the potential economic value of the deposits is seldom recognized, according to the summary of research made by the agents of the bureau of mines.

It is said the section of the country which contains almost one-third of the nation's entire coal resources still import coal. Many of the deposits are in regions that are not thickly settled or well supplied with manufacturing industry.

Lignites, reads the bulletin, from their peculiar physical and chemical characteristics are low grade fuels and almost every locality can get high grade coal from a distance. These lignites are imperfectly developed coals.

Texas is said to be one of the great lignite states of the union. Enormous deposits have been found in many places and now that the bureau of mines has utilized a cheap process for carbonizing the raw lignite and subsequently briquetting the resultant char, development of the Texas lignite mines may follow.

There is vast wealth under the surface of Texas. More than 200,000,000 barrels of crude petroleum were spouted from wells in Texas in 1926 and the day may come when the lignite mines of Texas will form a most important industry.

Fuel is in demand. Population is increasing rapidly. Timber is disappearing. Cord wood brings a fancy price. Necessity is said to be the mother of invention and the day may come when the demand for fuel, cheap fuel, will bring about as great a development of lignite as it has of the black gold which is taken from the golden sands under the surface of the earth in Texas.

TEXAS IS MOVING ALONG

DIRECTOR STUART of the federal census bureau appeared before the house committee considering congressional reapportionment. There is a demand, of course, for congressional reapportionment. It is a constitutional demand and it is a demand that has been ignored by the administration and the leaders of the republican party for years and years.

Now they are tinkering with it again. They do not care for a reapportionment. There are vast cities and towns in America, there is a tremendous urban population and a just apportionment would give the cities and towns larger representation and reduce the representation of the rural district.

Director Stuart said that Texas in 1920 will have a population of 5,662,000 as compared with the 4,603,000 it had in 1920. He said if the membership of the house of representatives is left at 435 as present Texas in 1930 will have 20 congressmen instead of 18 as at present.

He estimated the population of the nation would be at 123,288,000. If this were true, he said 12 states would gain 24 congressmen who would be lost by 16 other states, and in the 16 other states, the politicians are doing all in their power to block congresional reapportionment.

There are western states which would be large gainers. New York and Pennsylvania would gain. Massachusetts would gain, Illinois would make gains. Many critical persons are forever harping on those who are said to ignore the constitution and who are said to be seeking to set it aside. Well, it all depends on whose ox is gored.

HILLES AS A PROPHET

CHARLES D. DILLES of New York is a republican member of the national committee and an important member of the state committee of his party. He predicts a republican sweep in New York and in the nation in the 1928 elections. He predicted the defeat of Al Smith in 1922 by an overwhelming majority. He predicted Al Smith's burial in 1924. He predicted a total eclipse of Al Smith in 1926.

All his prophecies were false. Al Smith won all three contests and the last by a majority of a quarter of a million. Now what has happened in New York since the November election to make Hilles so boastful?

A practical politician always runs true to form. Lick him two years and he comes back two years later "with an overwhelming victory in sight."

President Coolidge isn't making any boastful prophecies. He never talks through his hat. He feeds senators and representatives every morning at the White House and permits the news wires to do the rest.

There are so many gabby politicians in America that the people have grown very fond of Cautious Cal. He is so different.

UNCLE SAM TAKES A HAND

FEDERAL aid will not be granted in the future to Texas road projects until the finances of the state highway department are improved. This is the dictum of the federal engineer of the department of the bureau of roads.

Attorney General Dan Moody journeyed all the way to Washington to look after cases in the supreme court of the United States. He did not do any sight-seeing while there. He gave all his time to official and semi-official business.

There will be a new administration in Texas after January 18 and then the finances of the state highway department will be improved in short order. This is the way it is written in the big book.

READ THIS FIRST:

BOBBIE RANSOM, a pretty little school teacher, is anything but the flip sort of girl whom you'd expect to be "movie struck." But she is. For years she has been dreaming of going to Hollywood to break into pictures.

Neither her father, a widower, nor AUNT GERTRUTE, nor ANDY JERROLD, who wants her to marry him, will lend her the money to go on "such a wild goose chase." And because she's extravagant and spends everything she makes, she has no money of her own.

Finally she borrows $500 from the well-to-do WIDOW PARKINS who is going to be her father's second wife; and goes to Hollywood with a high heart and a full purse.

At the boarding house of the eccentric MRS. MANGAN she meets STELLA DELROY, who's an extra girl in the movies. Through Stella she gets two days' work at the Magnifica Studios in a picture directed by famous ROY SCHULTZ. The assistant director, GUS MACCLOUD, a handsome bachelor, takes great interest in her, and another extra girl, MONICA MONT, advises her to play up to him. Monica is a gold digger and Bobbie is dreadfully upset when Monica decids to come to live at Mrs. Mangan's, for she never pays for anything that she can get for nothing. Not only that, but she finally comes into Bobbie's room to live, so that she won't have to pay so much board, and Bobbie is driven to distraction by her sloppiness.

One night Bobbie starts out for an actors' benefit ball with MacCloud, and they wind up the evening at his house, where he makes love to her but doesn't ask her to marry him. Next day Monica tells her not to flatter herself that she's the only girl who's been on a midnight visit to MacCloud's house. A week later Bobbie comes home late one afternoon to find a note from Monica telling her to come up to MacCloud's house, where a party is in progress. MacCloud comes to the house just as a wire comes telling Bobbie to come home because of her aunt's illness. MacCloud is sulky because she goes at once without waiting for a few hours until his party is over. She calls him a spoiled child, and he drives away without bidding her goodbye.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XX.

It was Andy Jerrold who met Bobbie at the station.

She had a glimpse of him from the window of the car as her train pulled in. Andy, all alone on the platform, looking so sober that she never guessed how his heart had begun to pound at the sight of her.

She came straight into his arms and kissed him about the way she would have kissed an older brother if she's had one. Calmly, and without warmth.

She had been thinking of Gus MacCloud most of the way home, and suddenly she thought of him again as she kissed Andy Jerrold. She thought of the way Gus had kissed her that night in his white hillside house. Those kisses had meant something. They had left her thrilled and breathless—and even now she caught her breath a little at the memory of them.

"Good old Andy," she said, looking up at the man beside her. She hadn't realized that Andy was so good-looking. That clear, smooth brown skin, with a little scar near the mouth. And his eyes so keen and clear—Andy would make an awfully satisfactory husband for some nice girl, some time.

"Where are your bags?" he asked and she waved her hands helplessly. She hadn't noticed where the porter had put them when he lifted them from the train.

"A red cap must have taken them," she answered vaguely, looking around her at the hurrying people.

"Wait here for me," Andy said, and dashed away. In a couple of minutes he was back.

"It's all right. I found them and put them into my car. Come along." He led the way to where his car was parked outside of the station. Andy never had a car for a very long time—only until he could sell it. This one was dark blue with shining windows and gray velvet seats.

They got in and he tucked a rug around her knees. She leaned heavily against him as they started off through the cool fresh air. Somehow even there in the heart of the city it smelled of autumn—of burning leaves and rain-soaked earth.

"How's Aunt Gertrude?" Bobbie asked. "Better, I hope."

Andy did not say anything in answer for a minute, and she turned to look sharply at him. His face had become even more solemn than before, and the corners of his mouth were shadowed with fin-drawn lines.

He cleared his throat and said. "Well, you see—"

Then he stopped and waited for another half minute or so before he finally answered her.

"Well, you see it was this way, Bobs," he began again. He put his arm around her, drawing her close to him. "Your father and I didn't want to shock you, but your aunt—"

Then he stopped again. It seemed impossible for him to go on for a minute or two.

"At the time we sent the telegram she was dead," he got it out at last. "There was no use in telling you until you got here. Darling, don't cry. Don't cry."

He turned the car in toward the side of the street and stopped it, while Bobbie clung to his coat sleeve, sobbing into the rough cloth that smelled of pipe smoke.

Aunt Gertrude dead. It didn't seem as if it could be true. Why, she was dead while Bobbie was getting dressed to go to Gus MacCloud's party. It seemed impossible!

"And think if I had gone! How dreadful I'd feel now!" Bobbie told herself, clinging to Andy Jerrold's rough coat sleeve.

She's wanted to go, too! Even after she had told Gus MacCloud that she couldn't go, she'd still wanted to—because he wanted her to! She'd wanted to please him, even though she was angry with him for acting like a small spoiled child!

The difference in the two men struck her, all at once. Andy on the one hand, trying to shield her from the shock and hurt. On the other hand, Gus MacCloud urging her to forget her aunt's sickness and come along to his party with him.

"He's a selfish beast," thought Bobbie, through all her grief and sorrow. "He doesn't care about anything but himself and his own good time—his own pleasure."

Then the mood would lift like cloudy weather, and she would go about her work again singing at the top of her lovely voice—swinging the dustcloth like a banner of freedom, polishing the furniture, rinsing out the tea towels and hanging them out in the cold crisp sunny air to dry.

"Dad," she said, looking up at him, "I want to go back to Hollywood. But I hate the thought of leaving you. How would it be if I stayed at home another month while I broke some good woman in here as housekeeper? She could make you just as comfortable as Aunt Gertrude"—her voice broke and then went on—"as Aunt Gertrude did. Or almost as comfortable. I'd stay here forever with you, if it meant just giving up school teaching. But giving up my chance to make good in pictures is another thing. I've a wonderful start—"

Her voice trailed off. She knew her father hated the thought of her living in Hollywood, and she didn't want to talk about it too much or too often.

But his face did not grow stern at the sound of the word this time. Instead it cleared suddenly.

He gave a little dry laugh. "Well," it so happened that I was going to talk to you about that very thing this morning," he said. "And I didn't know how to do it. I couldn't see how we'd settle everything. But your wanting to go back to Hollywood straightens it all out. Mrs. Parkins and I—Mrs. Parkins and I thought that since you'd left home and your aunt had passed on—"

He groped for words. "I—we—I think we may as well get married. She and I," he finished at last. "There's no use in my living alone here when she has a comfortable home where we could live together."

Bobbie looked at him. "When do you expect to be married?" she asked.

"Week or two," he answered shortly.

Of course, that was the natural thing for her father to do. To marry the buxom, comfortable, well-to-do widow. He had been a widower for more than 20 years—and that was no way for a man to live.

And yet when he was gone, Bobbie went upstairs and stood looking at the picture of her mother with heavy wondering eyes.

It hung over the bed in her room, and it showed her when she was a young thing, not much older than Bobbie was now.

There were wide flat honey-colored braids of hair pinned around her head like a crown, and beneath it her big eyes looked out eagerly, the way Bobbie's eyes looked out upon the world today. She had given up her career, given up her starry ambition to be a concert singer to become the wife and mother and what had it availed her?

"She might be alive today—alive and famous—if she's not married Dad and had me," thought Bobbie soberly. "If she'd gone on with the career she wanted."

In that moment she felt very close to the girl-mother who had died—closer than ever she had felt to anyone in all of her rather lonely life.

"She'd have known just how I feel about going back to Hollywood," she said to herself, and a moment later she was wondering if she'd give up her career if she loved a man and he wanted to marry her—If Gus MacCloud wanted to marry her ever—

The ringing of the front doorbell of the house broke shrilly upon her day dream.

"Probably another peddler, or a man selling needles," said Bobbie with a sigh as she started down the stairs. She had been experiencing that greatest of all household pests—the early morning peddler—since she had been trying to keep house.

There was a scowl on her lovely face as she swung open the front door to—Andy Jerrold.

"It's only me," he said ungrammatically. "I thought you might have some coffee left over from breakfast to give a poor blind man with both legs shot off—" He limped into the house, looking so comical and woe-begone that she burst out laughing.

"Do you really want some coffee?" she asked him, and started down the hall to the dining room, where the pot still stood on the table.

He nodded. "Sure. And I came to see you make it for me," he told her. "I get an awful kick out of seeing you doing housework. It makes me look forward to the happy days ahead of us."

But he was the last person she thought about that night as she lay in her own white bed in the Locust street house that was so quiet—so hushed with the mysterious rustling whispering silence that Death brings into a house.

* * *

It was two weeks later.

Bobbie and Mr. Ransom were sitting at breakfast in the sunny dining room of the house on Locust street.

It was an ordinary breakfast, in a way. Toast with butter on it, sliced oranges, boiled eggs and coffee with thick cream in it.

The unusual thing about it was that Bobbie had cooked it—a thing that she had sworn never to do. A thing that she had always detested—the idea of cooking, and every other branch of housework.

"The queer thing is that I like it," she was thinking now, as she looked at the clean table, the shining silver and china, the spotless rug, the ferns that she had just watered before they sat down to eat.

"If I weren't going back to Hollywood it wouldn't be half bad to stay here and keep house for Dad," she went on thinking, as she broke off a bit of hot buttered toast and popped it into her mouth. "I might make a good housekeeper if I didn't want to be a screen actress so much."

She had not been at all unhappy during the last two weeks. Much as she missed Aunt Gertrude, in a way she had not minded being alone in the clean, orderly house.

It had been fun to make beds, scour the bath-tub and the nickel faucets, telephone for the groceries, wash vegetables and put them on to boil, broil steaks and set tables.

That is, it would have been fun if it hadn't been for Bobbie's homesick longing for Hollywood. She didn't know which she missed the most—Hollywood and the excitement, or Gus MacCloud.

But there were moments when it seemed to her that she couldn't stay in the Locust street house another minute, but rush off to make the next train for Hollywood—and MacCloud.

Bobbie wheeled on him, coffee pot in her hand.

"Now, don't you start getting soft and sentimental or I'll throw you out on your head," she said briskly. "I've heard about all the marriages I care to hear about this morning. Dad's going to get married to the widow woman."

Andy grinned. "That just about throws you into my arms," he said with a gesture worthy of a movie actor. "That leaves you all alone in the world, with no one to look after you but me—"

He was starting toward her, ready with more nonesense, when she surprised him by bursting into tears. She caught him by the lapels of his coat, and sobbed into the place where his shirt-pocket covered his heart.

"Oh, everything's changed, and gone to the dickens, somehow," she cried wildly. "Everything but you, Andy. You're always the same. Promise me you'll always be the same, no matter what happens. Promise me—"

Andy stared up at the ceiling where the sun threw queer lights and shadows.

"Sure. I'll never change," he said bitterly. "That's the trouble. That's the kind of fool I am, Bobbie—the kind that never changes. Not about you, anyway. I wish I could."

Andy tells Bobbie to take him or leave him in the next chapter of "The Hollywood Girl."

"I think we may as well get married," her father said.

BO BROADWAY ..... By Joseph Van Raalte

NEW YORK, Jan. 14. (EFS)—In New York these days when you catch a headline glimpse of a prominent man's name you have to turn back to find out whether he's dead, gone to jail, founded a home or is being sued for alimony.

* * *

If they keep on using up prohibition "enforcement" directors in Manhattan at the present rate, Wayne B. Wheeler will have to dip into the next generation in quest for candidates.

There have been nine of them since 1920. Charles R. O'Conner wielded the blotter from 1920 to 1921. He said: "Liquor is going."

Harold L. Hart succeeded Charlie in 1921. Quoth Harold: "Bootleggers are fleeing."

Then came E. C. Yellowley that same year. "We are gettin' them," he cried.

John F. Kramer was the next to drop into the swivel chair with a sigh of deep content. "The end is in sight," chirped John, which went both ways 'cause Brother Haynes—Roy A. Haynes—came next. "It is only the work of a few months," Roy assured newspaper men. The Worthy Brother kept a strangle hold on the job till 1925, when Ralph Day presented his credentials and lowered his form into the place that Roy had been warming so assiduously for him.

Nobody knows what happened to Ralph. "Bootleggers are gone," he assured New Yorkers one morning, and the following day HE was gone.

Then Palmer Canfield breezed along with the assurance that "the tide has turned."

Sure enough it had, and in turning, carried Palmer so far out that John A. Foster had to be called in to pinch hit.

"I am not prophesying," cuckooed Jawn.

He didn't have to prophesy. The bunch did it for him, which was just as well.

And now we have Brother Mills, who has cheered up the whole town by solemnly declaring that the Eighteenth amendment will never amount to "a hill of beans until love of the constitution in the average man's heart becomes greater than his thirst."

New York will hate to see Mr. Mills go. He's so darn interestin'.

A New York newspaper man mailed out a $25 money order to a creditor at Christmas time and got the envelope back the day after New Year's. The creditor had moved from his old abode without notifying the post office of his change of address.

The newspaper man thinks that perhaps his luck is changing.

Since Eighth avenue has been torn up by subway contractors, the thoroughfare has taken on the wild, weird look of a chorus girl just before she puts the make-up on.

Even the trolley cars that operate through the line of trenches have lost their old-time gloss and finish. They have taken on a dirty, dusty appearance that has communicated itself to the brain workers in the uniform who adorn the front and rear piazzas.

Observing that their motorman and conductors were beginning to wilt, and fearing the worst, the company, seeking to rehabilitate their morale, have posted signs on the car windows that read as follows:

"Not every man in New York can be a street car conductor or a motorman."

They go on from there to explain that only mental giants—men of super-intelligence are selected by the company for such work.

The signs are strangely silent, not to say peculiarly reticent about the question of—shall I say money?

But after all, why shatter an ideal by dragging in any such material consideration as filthy lucre?

Hang the expense! Bring on another herring!

ONE-MINUTE PULPIT

Rest in the Lord and wait patiently for him; fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his way, because of the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass.

Cease from anger, and forsake wrath: fret not thyself in anywise to do evil.

For evil doers shall be cut off; but those that wait upon the Lord they shall inherit the earth—Psalm 37:7-9.

LOCKNEY GETS BIG OIL MILL

$450,000 Cotton Oil Plant To Be Erected

Special to The Record News.

LOCKNEY, Jan. 14.—With the coming of Lockney's new $450,000 cotton oil mill, a new cotton compress and a modern $75,000 hotel, it appears that this city has come into its own and will take its place among other cities of the great southwest. The location of the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains railway lines in this city has had considerable to do with the recent new additions. It has not been officially announced, though in all probability the Denver shops will be located in or near this city.

The new oil mill is to be one of the largest in the state, and the compress will be of sufficient size to care for all the cotton in a number of South Plains counties. The company has purchased two building sites in the city and has an option on a third, and it is thought that if the site is purchased and very likely it will be, that it will be used for storage and that Lockney will be a concentration point for cotton and cotton products on the South Plains.

QUICK BAKING HOUSEHOLD AID

Tea Biscuits and Cookies Take Little Time

By MARION JANE PARKER.
Home Expert, The Calumet Company.

Company often drops in unexpectedly and though their stay be a short one it is nice to be able to serve dainty home-made cookies, cake or something else that can be prepared in just a few minutes.

"Ten minutes to bake and ten minutes to make," is the slogan of the woman who makes the best tea biscuits. The same quick-action bakings may be served in several varieties of cake and other delicious baked goods.

The prudent housewife knows that the results of her baking efforts are never lost on an unappreciative family. Everybody enjoys them and especially the youngsters.

The food value of cake is high. A slice of cake contains more nutriment than a sandwich—and how the children love it!

The use of a double acting baking powder, one that releases part of its gas in the mix and the balance in the oven, practically insures successful bakings to even the most inexperienced in the art of baking. It's so easy to bake, "Ten minutes to make and ten minutes to bake," takes all the aspect of work away, and leaves a chance for everyone in the family to enjoy appetizing bakings that contain a wealth of nutrition and wholesome food values.

Try these quick-bread recipes. Whether for company, the regular meals or to store away in the bread box for the children's lunches and snacks, they will all fit the requirements, perfectly.

Small Biscuits.

4 cups flour, 4 level tablespoons butter or lard, 4 level teaspoons baking powder, 1 1-2 cups milk, 1 level teaspoon salt.

Sift flour once, then measure, add salt and baking powder and sift three times, rub shortening in with fork or spoon, add milk, mix lightly, turn out on a well floured board and roll or pat one inch thick, cut and bake in quick oven (450 degrees F) ten minutes.

Sugar Cookies.

2 cups sugar, 2 level teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup shortening, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 2 eggs, 1-2 teaspoon cloves, 2 tablespoons water or milk, 3 cups flour.

Cream fat and sugar, beat in whipped eggs, add sifted baking powder with 1 cup flour, then water and spices; add remaining flour gradually, working in more flour until dough is stiff enough to roll. Sprinkle flour over pastry board. Make a ball of dough, and lay it on the board. Rub rolling pin with flour and roll out dough into a sheet 1-4-inch thick. Cut in round cakes, sift granulated sugar over each, and bake quickly at 400 degrees to 450 degrees F.

Doughnuts.

4 cups flour, 1 cup sugar, 4 level teaspoons baking powder, 2 eggs, beaten together, 1-2 level teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 cup milk.

Sift flour, then measure, add baking powder, nutmeg and salt and sift three times, put sugar and butter together, add well beaten eggs, then sift ingredients and milk alternately. Turn out on a well floured board and roll out 1-2-inch thick. Cut with doughnut cutter and fry in a kettle of hot fat.

Tarts.

3 cups flour, 1 level teaspoon salt, 1-3 level teaspoon baking powder, 1-4 cup lard, cold water.

Sift together dry ingredients thoroughly. Work in lard with knife or rounding edge of a tablespoon or spatula. Moisten to a dough with cold water. Put lightly on floured board and roll thin. Cut in small rounds using cookie or biscuit cutter. When cold serve with 1 tablespoon jelly or marmalade. These are nice for afternoon tea.

Date Muffins.

1-3 cup butter, 2 cups flour, 1-4 cup sugar, 1-4 level teaspoon salt, 2 level teaspoons baking powder, 1 egg, 3-4 cup milk, 1-4 pound dates.

Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually and the dates chopped fine. Mix well together, then add the beaten egg. Sift the flour, salt and baking powder together twice and add to first mixture alternately with the milk. Bake in small greased muffin pans ten minutes in hot oven (450 degrees F.)

The Cook Book

Welsh Rarebit

2 cups (1 1-2 pound) strong cheese (American)

Melt in a double boiler and add 1-2 cup cream, in which are dissolved 2 tablespoons cornstarch. When this mixture begins to thicken add 1 cup milk, in which are dissolved 1 teaspoon mustard, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon onion salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 3 drops tabasco sauce. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick and pour over six or eight slices of toasted white or rye bread. Serve hot.

This rarebit cannot become stringy, is digestible and any unused portion makes a tasty sandwich filling.

Caramel Custard

Four cups scalded milk, 1 cup sugar, 5 eggs, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Melt sugar to a light brown. Add milk and cook until free from lumps. Add slightly beaten eggs, salt and flavoring. Strain into a buttered mold and set in pan of water to bake. Bake in moderate oven until firm.

Vermicelli and Milk Soup

Three cups milk and one cup water, salt to taste. Add a tablespoon of butter—when boiling, add about half a cup of vermicelli; cook until tender, or rather soft, nice macaroni or spaghetti; add pepper, if desired.

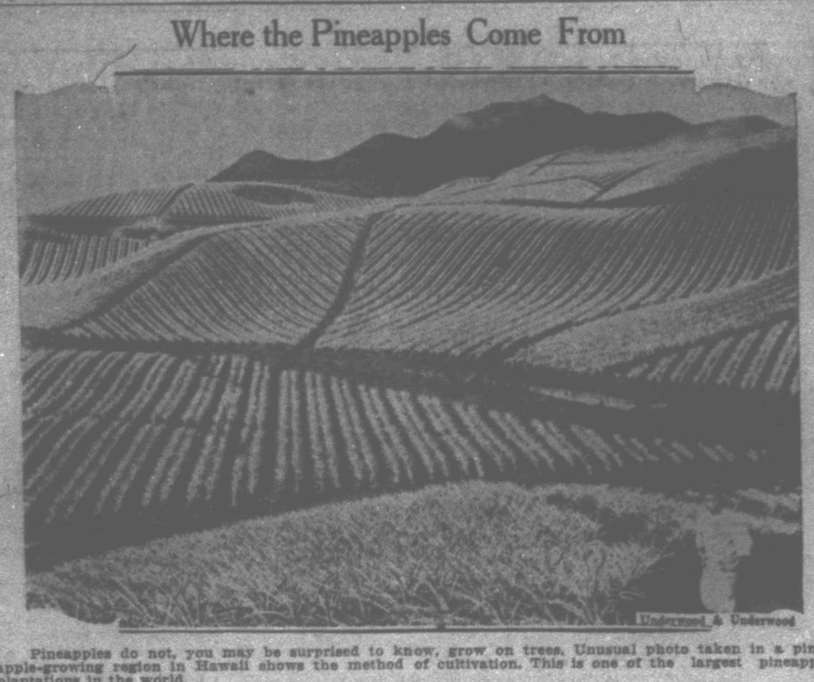

Fried cheese sandwiches and watercress served with vermicelli soup make a good meatless lunch. Make small sandwiches with thin slices of bread and your favorite cheese—American cream or Swiss cheese. Toast on an iron griddle in plenty of butter.

Tuna Newburg

One tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 1-4 cups thin cream, 1 1-2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 2 cups tuna fish, 1 egg, 1 1-2 tablespoons chopped pimento.

Melt butter, add flour and the cream gradually. Bring to boiling point. Add peppers, pimento, onion and tuna. Add egg slightly beaten and cook three minutes. Serve in timbale cases, patty cases, or on toast. Time in combining 20 minutes. Time in cooking 10 minutes. Serve six.

American Negroes Better Cooks Than French Chefs, Says 'Queen of Kitchen'

By MARY BLADE

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—The "queen of cooks" and the cook of queens has spoken:

"The American negro is a much better cook than the finest of French chefs."

"The negro has contributed something original and new to the art of cooking. The fried chicken, beaten biscuits, rice and other dishes of the American negro are, in my opinion, just about the best food in the world."

However, Mrs. Rosa Lewis, who has toted the sobriquet of "queen of cooks" for years, believes the English are the best cooks, or rather know good cooking as no other nation knows it.

Mrs. Lewis, now in New York, rose from scullery maid to owner of the Cavendish hotel in London and the possessor of a million dollars and a million friends.

It was as a cook in the homes of members of the English aristocracy that Mrs. Lewis won attention. Before she was out of her teens her cooking became so famous that she was in demand whenever there was a special occasion on foot in the homes of the wealthy and titled. King Edward was particularly fond of her cooking and whenever the king was entertained, Rosa Lewis was sent for.

Finally she entered the catering business, arranging only very special parties for the aristocracy. Then, 34 years ago, she bought the famous Cavendish house, which she has managed since, a rendezvous of wealth and genius from all over the world.

She still runs the kitchen. "I'm there at 7 in the morning. I still take a hand with the cooking, particularly if there's somebody very important in the house, and I have only women cooks. I don't care what they tell us, women are the best cooks in the world. And Americans, contrary to what usually is said, are the foremost connoisseurs of good cooking.

"I don't care for French cooking and I don't think the French are good cooks. They spend hours at it, but when they have finished they have a lot of wonderful effects and have disguised and spoiled a lot of food. They use their spicy sauces to cover up the faults of poor food, and if the food is good to begin with they spoil its real flavor.

"A little real butter, a fowl's own fat—those are the best flavorings."

Mrs. Lewis is of the opinion that no meal should require more than half an hour for cooking; that the many course dinner is un-English and unsatisfying, and that meat should never be cooked any other way than by roasting or grilling, unless it's a hen exceedingly old.

When Mrs. Lewis goes on a trip she makes it a point to taste as many varieties of dishes as possible. Frequently she orders all the interesting things on the menu only to taste them and have them removed.

"What I'd like to eat right now," said Mrs. Lewis in answer to a question, "would be double lamb cutlets cooked in butter or a half chicken, nice and fresh, or maybe some quail pudding.

"As for myself, I don't think much about what I eat; I'm easy to please."

Mrs. Lewis was made a widow early in life and never remarried, although she has had many opportunities to do so. "I've been too busy," she explains.

In spite of her 61 years Mrs. Lewis looks young, spirited, and, in a way, dashing. Her complexion is the typical English pink and white, her eyes very wide and blue and her hair curly and silvery.

She came to the United States to dispose of rare tapestries, the celebrated seven tapestries depicting the life of Constantine the Great, from the designs by Rubens. "I got them on a bill," she said. "I have all sorts of odd and rare things—gifts, you know, among them a donkey who drinks champagne."

ANCHOR FOOD CHOPPER

The modern porcelain-top kitchen table has one disadvantage, the food chopper cannot be fastened to it, and in many kitchens there is no other place of convenient height where it may be placed. I overcome this difficulty by folding a magazine over the edge of the table, and over that placing a sheet of sandpaper. The latter keeps the chopper from slipping, while the thick pad of paper removes all strain and prevents possible injury to the smooth white table top.

A KITCHEN SPACE-SAVER

Often a small kitchen would be much more convenient if a drop-shelf were built to take the place of a work-table. In the large kitchen a drop-shelf built near the sink or stove may save many steps. When the cooking and dish-washing are finished, the shelf may be lowered to give additional space.

Birthday Gifts For Aunt Sophia

By JAY V. JAY

Aunt Sophia is the only one who refuses to notice her birthdays. Aunt Sophia's Christmas presents are still new and shiny and numerous. What to give her is somewhat of a question. Mitzi, the Resourceful, tells Polly that she has found a stenciled kid muff-bag. It has an envelop flap.

"Yes, Dad, I knew you would want something for Aunt Sophia's birthday," said Mitzi, "so I bought this brand new little pigskin bag for you to give her." Dad is relieved. "Are you sure she hasn't one like it?" asks Dad. "Sure," replies Mitzi, "absolutely sure because it is just out."

"I thought you might like to give these to Aunt Sophia, Adelaide," suggests Mitzi. "The lipstick has a little mirror in one end so that you can get your lips on straight. The wristbag is of lame and ostrich. It's to keep a powder puff in, you see." Adelaide is very glad to follow Mitzi's suggestions.

Mitzi is wondering just what she will give Aunt Sophia herself. She really bought the belt and the bracelet of metal with cabochon stones for Aunt Sophia only she has to admit that they look well on her. But if she keeps them what will she give Aunt Sophia? Well, she'll go shopping again.

NEW RECIPES FOR HOSTESS

Sarah Splint Gives Hints On Novel Refreshments

"A general complaint of women over the country is that they must always serve the same refreshments when entertaining," says Sarah Field Splint, Director, McCall's Laboratory-Kitchen, who tells in the February issue of that magazine of many new kinds of refreshments and how to make them.

Says Miss Splint:

"We are putting sandwiches first because they are usually served at any and every kind of party. We would advise you to experiment a little on the rolled ones before the day of your party, so your can make them perfectly and not be disappointed with the results.

Rolled Sandwiches.

"Remove crusts from loaf of bread. Slice thin with sharp knife. Spread each slice with softened butter or well-seasoned cheese creamed to smooth paste. Roll each slice of bread and fasten with toothpicks. Cover with damp cloth and keep in cool place until ready to serve. Remove toothpicks before serving and tie rolls with narrow ribbons, if desired.

Mosaic Sandwiches.

"Remove crusts from one loaf white and one loaf graham or other dark bread. Cut an equal number of 1-2-inch thick slices from each loaf. Make two butter sandwiches of 3 layers each, using a slice of dark bread between two slices of white. Make another butter sandwich using a slice of white bread between two slices of dark. Cut each of the three sandwiches in slices 1-2-inch thick. Then butter one slice from each sandwich and put the three slices together so that a strip of dark bread is opposite a strip of white. Wrap in a damp cloth and place under a flat weight in a cool place until firm. When ready to serve, cut in 1-3-inch slices, beginning from end.

Bridge Party Sandwiches.

"Remove crusts from white bread and slice about 1-4-inch thick. Cut in oblongs like playing-cards. From half the slices cut out small hearts or diamonds with fancy vegetable cutters, to represent ace, two, three or four of each suit. Cut as many similar pieces from canned pimento. Put a plain and a fancy slice of bread together with well-seasoned cream cheese and insert pieces of pimento in holes in top of sandwich. Cover sandwiches with damp cloth and set in cool place until ready to serve. To make similar sandwiches for other parties, use different cut-outs. Holes can be left open to show filling, if preferred, or green pepper can be used instead of pimento.

"Remove crusts from white bread slice about 1-4-inch thick and cut into fancy shapes with cookie cutters. Spread each piece with softened butter. Put jelly or jam in center and make around it a fancy border of softened cream cheese put through pastry tube or bag. Other delicious spreads for open sandwiches are deviled ham with a border of chopped olives, anchovy paste garnished with chopped hard-cooked egg and caviar garnished with finely chopped pickled onions. Or spread with cream, snappy or pimento cheese and decorate with strips of fancy cut-outs of pimento or slices of slices of stuffed olives."

FROSTING FOR CAKES

Most people like their cakes frosted and chocolate continues to hold first place as the favorite icing. When making fudge frosting add 1-2 teaspoon baking powder to a mixture of 2 cups sugar, 3-4 cup milk and 2 squares of bitter chocolate.

To Remove Burnt Places on Aluminum Kettles.

Burnt places on aluminum kettles can be removed by covering with a handful of salt and enough water to dissolve it. Leave for a day or two and rub off with some dry salt and ashes.

Housewives Can Get Additional Food News From Ads In Today's Record News

BY THE RECORD NEWS SHOPPER

What woman doesn't like shopping—especially when the prices are right and the merchandise seasonable and of good quality?

Yet, while on my tour Friday afternoon for The Record News, a young friend of mine, who has recently moved here said:

"My dear, I just dread buying for my Sunday dinner here. They tell me Wichita Falls prices are the highest in the state—and we have just dreadfully expensive tastes in my household."

It was the first time I had felt that I have a real mission to perform for Wichita Falls housewives—so I stopped right there and gave the young lady a lesson on shopping.

"Buy your Sunday and your week's supplies on Saturday," I said.

"Saturday prices are aways best—then, too, buying by the week, especially on staples is more economical. Follow the newspaper advertisements. Advertised goods are Always the best because the merchant can't afford, even if he wished to do so, to announce inferior merchandise."

Then I asked my young friend a few questions—

"What place in Texas can you buy good butter for 48 cents a pound? Or No. 2 tomatoes at 7 cents each? Or 10 pounds of sugar for 69 cents? Or potatoes at three cents?

"These prices, and many more are offered in Wichita Falls, and all you have to do to find them is to use your eyes."

The commodities mentioned above are just a few of those offered to Wichita Falls housewives today. Others can be found in the advertisements, and here are a few "specials" of my own and where to get them:

Daily Contact Rubs Gilt Off Love That's Strained Loss of Romance

Dear Miss Dix—I am 18 years old and have been married three years and have one child. I am tired and sick of matrimony, and am thinking of going away with a young man who says he loves me and will take care of me.

Answer:

If you are disillusioned with matrimony, you are taking a strange cure for your trouble by running off with another man. What advantages do you think a common-law wife has over a legal wife? What charm will there be in an illicit relationship that a respectable relationship lacked?

The thing that rubs the gilt off the gingerbread of matrimony is the daily companionship of a man and a woman. Romance can't survive a woman's seeing a man with a two day's stubble of beard on his face and a soiled collar and in his stocking feet. Illusion perishes when she finds out that he has funny, fussy ways and that he swears a blue streak when his collar button rolls under the chiffonier, and is irritable when dinner is three minutes late, and that he is unreasonable about bills and hard to get along with, and thinks he is about to die every time he has a headache, and in general, is just plain, ordinary, faulty human being instead of a being demigod, as she supposed he was.

But, believe me, my poor, foolish child, you will find just exactly the same things to contend with in a lover if you had to live with him every day as you find in a husband.

Only more so, because in addition you'll always be afraid your lover was about to leave you, and he would visit upon you all the irritations that would arise out of a situation that is not countenanced by decent society. Every time people looked askance at him and snubbed him you would have to pay.

And what about your child? Are you going to abandon it? Do you think you will find much happiness when you lie awake at night wondering if your baby is crying for its mother? And do you think you have any right to bring up a child in the atmosphere in which you are proposing to live? Do you think any child would respect a mother living the kind of life you are thinking of living?

Answer these questions honestly to yourself and you will stick to your job. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Why don't modern girls wish to keep steady company with boys? L. E. S.

Answer:

Because they are learning to have a little sense. In "keeping company" the boy gets everything, the girl nothing. A boy can monopolize a girl's time through the best years of her girlhood. He can keep every other man away from her and prevent her from making a good marriage and then ride off and leave her lamenting.

He doesn't commit himself to anything. He doesn't have to file any declaration of his intentions with his attentions. He may never have the slightest idea of ever marrying the girl, but he has ruined her chances just the same.

I think that any girl who gives up all other men for one man until after she is definitely engaged and the wedding day set is such an imbecile that she should not be allowed out without a keeper. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a man 55 years old and am in love with a sweet widow of 31. She has one child, but I dislike to marry a woman with a child. What shall I do about it? She refuses to kiss me. Don't you think that if she loved me she would kiss me? I have never asked her to marry me, but she says she loves me. I fear she is a flirt. Do you think a man of my age had bettur stay single? EDWARD.

Answer—I think the widow is a sensible woman who sees that you are a selfish man who is thinking of his own good instead of hers.

No man is really in love with a woman who is as prudent as you are, and I think that with your temperament you will be very wise to stay single. Marriage is for those who can love without counting the cost, who can put the happiness of their beloved one above their own, and evidently you don't belong in that class

Certainly you have no right to marry a widow with a child and resent the child. You couldn't expect a mother to be willing to part with her child. That would be asking too much, and it is something that no woman with a heart in her breast would do.

And if you have never asked your widow to marry you, what right have you to expect her to kiss you? She is a wise woman not to do it. DOROTHY DIX.

You will be delighted with its superior strength and flavor.

SONGS of a HOUSEWIFE

Cris by Marjorie K. Rawlings

THE MEASURING SPOON

I have a battered tablespoon,
Without a handle, top or edge.
It lies, a neighborhood disgrace,
Upon my kitchen window-ledge.

But it has sorcery in its bowl
It makes my biscuits puffed and light,
And cakes made by its measurements
Are positive to turn out right!

I've tried new, shiny tablespoons—
They do not have the magic touch.
I spoil my cakes, for I allow
Too little "over," or too much.

I keep on promising my friends
To use a new one very soon.
But death alone shall part me from
My worn old stubby measuring spoon!

WOMAN URGES MENU STUDY

Woman's Emancipation In Scientific Cookery

BY MRS. IDA CHITWOOD.

Scientific cookery has brought emancipation to the American woman. The achievements of this science are so many and so wonderful that we constantly become more and more absorbed in the subject. We realize that the results, for the average woman who studies the art, are without limit.

How few of us stop to realize the value in our food, and how we should work to make it palatable, valuable and more worthwhile by the use of scientific methods in preparation?

Dignifies Work.

The research work done for the women who cook or who supervise cooking has been very extensive and has covered a period of years. The preserving of the good points that have been handed down and the discarding of the bad points has brought us healthy and happier families.

Success in cooking gives the home-maker that subtle something we call satisfaction and it dignifies her work. The business of supplying food to the family is one of the house wife's most important obligations. Napoleon said, "An army travels in its stomach." He was right, a man is, and can be no stronger than his digestion.

Pride and pleasure go with scientific cooking. We need to eat and live in a harmonious atmosphere, as so many of the events of our lives center about food.

Salads Deserve Study.

Salads are such an acceptable part of our menus that they are one of the most important subjects of any woman's study. Salads are so crisp and cold and delicious that many people who never ate them before are now becoming very fond of them.

The joy of coffee begins before breakfast—begins when the first fragrant breath from the percolator or coffee pot and arouses many sleepy brains to anticipation.

Yet delicious coffee not only depends upon good coffee, which of course, we consider of first magnitude, but also upon the percolator and the knowledge on the part of the one who makes the coffee.

Avoid the Odor From Onion, or Fish.

Often the container in which strongly flavored food has been cooked has the odor of the food after the dish is washed. This may be removed by heating a small quantity of vinegar in the covered kettle, letting the vinegar boil for a few minutes. All traces of fish or onion flavor will be removed very quickly.

SAVE ON CLEANING

Instead of scraping the wax from brass or silver candlesticks, plunge the metal part in hot water and thus melt the wax. Candlesticks are often scratched when the wax is scraped off. By melting off the wax much time is saved and you will not run the risk of marring the candlesticks.

To Make a Candle Stand Straight.

If a candle is too small for its holder and refused to stand up straight in it, pour a little melted paraffin in. While the paraffin is still warm stick in the candle and hold it in place until the wax has hardened sufficiently to support it.

State Closes Norris Case

daughter who was waiting for her in the automobile.

Attorney William McLean, who questioned witnesses for the prosecution, let Mrs. Parker tell her story in her own way, and when she had finished, suddenly shot out this question:

"Who fired those shots?"

"Dr. Norris," quietly answered the witness.

Dr. Norris was about five feet from Chipps when he fired, Mrs. Parker said. Asked to denote by rapping on the floor how rapidly the shots were fired, she said she was so excited at the moment of the killing that she could not remember.

She Is Quizzed

The little calm woman who had stepped so providentially into the tragedy was then taken in hand by Attorney Marvin Simpson of the defense. He led her through a maze of questions and had her repeat the story of the killing as she saw it, but was unable to shake her testimony. She smiled sweetly on her persistent questioner, answered softly, and called him "judge," but never deviated from the main story.

Abruptly at the end of her testimony, McLean in a stentorian voice said: "state rests."

The prosecution considered Mrs. Parker's testimony of paramount importance as bearing on the self-defense plea. They are attempting to prove that Chipps was not the aggressor, but was shot while in retreat. Dr. Norris has said repeatedly that no one saw the shooting except himself and L. H. Nutt, a member of his board.

Attack Testimony

The defense at once began an attempt to impeach Mrs. Parker's testimony. John E. Holman, automobile dealer of Fort Worth, whom Mrs. Parker had testified she consulted about selling her property to Norris was the first defense witness. Mrs. Parker said she called on Holman a short time before the Chipps killing and that she had told him to see Norris about selling the place to him. His testimony contradicted to some extent the exact time at which Mrs. Parker called at his office.

"You are a member of Norris' church?" asked McLean.

"No," Homan repied.

"Were you ever a member?"

"Yes, 15 years ago."

"Stand aside," shouted McLean.

Six Witnesses Used

The prosecution used six witnesses. W. O. Phillips, Fort Worth embalmer, and Fred Spreen, undertaker, described the location of the bullets which killed Chipps and the position of the body when found. C. D. Bush, Fort Worth detective, who arrived at Norris' study a short time after Chipps was shot, told of seeing a spot of blood "about the size of a half dollar," on the floor of the anteroom. Joe B. Langston, who made the wooden model of the Norris office, described the model for the jury.

The witness who occupied most of the time was H. H. Rains, who worked in a tire shop below Norris' office last July. He told of hearing the shots and rushing up to Norris' office where he said he saw Norris, a Mr. Rogers, a negro, and an unidentified white man. He testified he saw Norris come from his office and say:

"I've killed me a man."

The defense had a long tussle with him, Attorney Simpson and the witness showing considerable heat.

CITY APPEALS ZONING CASE

Oil Company Wins Right To Build Station

The City of Wichita Falls and property owners at the corner of Brook and Eleventh streets lost their fight Friday to bar the Continental Oil company of Texas from erecting a filling station at the intersection. Incidentally, in dissolving a temporary injunction granted against the company Judges W. W. Cook, P. A. Martin and E. G. Thornton held that the zoning ordinance of the city is invalid.

An appeal from the decision of the court here will be taken at once, it was announced by attorneys for the city, but in the meantime construction will proceed on the station.

The decision of the three judges was evidently based on recent findings of the appelate courts in a number of cases sent up from Dallas. In these, refusal of the city to grant permits for business buildings in certain areas defined as restricted by the zoning ordinance, were contested. The appeals courts invariably held that the city had no power to deny the right of one property owner to conduct a business in a lawful manner, even if surrounding property owners protested.

The Wichita Falls ordinance, it is said, is practically identical with that of Dallas and hnce it was argued that the higher courts would probably consider the local appeal in the same manner as those from Dallas.

ALLRED WINS BALLOT SUIT

Former Demo Chairman To Appeal $75 Decision

Judgment for $75, plus interest at 6 per cent since July 1, was entered Friday afternoon in the justice court of O. L. Gibbe following a hearing in a suit filed by Ben F. Allred, district attorney, against H. J. Bruce, former Wichita county democratic chairman. The sum allowed was the full amount prayed for.

Notice of appeal to the county court at law was given by the defendant.

The suit grew out of a claim by Allred that he was erroneously charged $75 as a ballot feet to get his name on the democratic ballot last year when he ran successfully for a second term. Allred testified in the hearing that he paid the $75 assessment by Bruce, but did so under protest on grounds that he should only pay $1 in each fo the three counties which comprise the 30th judicial district.

Allred was represented by his brother, Ray Allred, and Bruce was represented by Luther Hoffman.

Knowledge Without Faith Imperfect, Says Rabbi Phillips In Sermon

"I have more understanding than all my teachers! for Thy testimonies are my meditation." This quotation from the 119 Psalm furnished the basis for a sermon, "The Educational Value of Religion," for Rabbi Samuel Phillips who lectured on that topic Friday night at the synagogue.

"None can deny that the world has traveled far on the road of enlightenment, but in several matters of supreme import we need religion still," he declared. "Then it is a question of interpreting this life of ours, and the sense and purpose of it, nothing is so needful as religion. Let us use it, then, and we, too, might be able to say like the Psalmist of yore, 'I am wiser than all my teachers, for Thy testimonies are my meditation'," he said.

"In all ages, the most educated men have been devotees of religion. The great poets, artists, philosophers of all times have been men of religious faith. We of today may find fault with their education or with their religion, but according to their lights, the intellectural giants of the past, as a rule, were men of religion," the rabbi pointed out.

"Among liberal faiths, education and religion were encouraged to go hand in hand. Religion has maintained this, that without religion, education is incomplete; without fath, knowledge, be it ever so extensive and variegated, is imperfect."

DRIVE YOUR OWN CAR

"How Do We Go From Here."

Four wheel brakes have put a stop to a lot of things, but they've been a great help in quick "pick-ups!"

The girl who used to say "thanks for the buggy ride," now pays the taxi fare.

We have come a long way from the back-door auto to the family entrance variety that let's 'em all out at once.

From the looks of the roads the world is not only going some place—it's on its way. Progress is a great thing, but a lot of traffic cops don't seem to think so!

People have got past the stage where all they ask of a car was that it "get them there." It has to be "there" to begin with! It's not so much the auto as it is the trimmings, not counting the extra one furnished by the salesman.

The large number of women drivers make the accessories the thing. Why should they care how the car runs, when yellow paint makes it win in a walk?

The auto show is just a lot of women showing the men what they could. A limousine romance dies in the open air!

Anyone knows that a woman picks out a house by the closet space and a car by the upholstery. The 1927 models will certainly work the bright scenery. What would be better than making the landscape look sick and the cop look twice!

A clock on the dashboard and a spotlight used to be the last word, now they're not even an echo. Nobody watches the speedometer any more unless they want to get pinched. The dashboard is covered with everything from golf laze to confusion. The cigaret lighter came in and the cigaret could go out.

There really should be different cars for different generations and purposes, and in that way father could know that daughter wouldn't take his car out for a perfectly ripping time—ripping off two fenders and a bumper! A rheumatism model would be nice, with an inflated cushion on the back instead of a spare tire. An office model which would appeal to wives might be single-seated so that no stenographer could be taken home!

Some of the rumble seats which are used by the younger generation might be equipped with safety straps. The matron's car might have chin straps so that she could re-model as she goes.

Wonder if they'll have a new necking model at the auto shows, with davenport seats and special dimmers on the lights? If father offers to buy you one—well, don't bite the hand that's speeding you! The open cars have nearly disappeared, and so have the boys who drive them!

We suggest the "camping" model for relatives so that they can camp some place else!

DUNDEE WHIPS EDDIE ROBERTS

Joe Gets Revenge After Recent Defeat

NEW YORK, Jan. 14. (AP)—Joe Dundee, Baltimore welterweight, gained the decision over Eddie Roberts of Tacoma, Wash., tonight in a 10-round match at Madison Square Garden after being himself close to a knockout in the fourth round. A capacity crowd of more than 18,000 saw Dundee gain revenge for his one-round knockout at the hands of Roberts a few weeks ago.

Nick Testo, Troy welterweight, scored a technical knockout over Jack Fleming of Scotland, in the third round of a 10-round match preliminary. Testo weighed 150; Fleming 150 1-2.

Pete August, Bridgeport, Conn., welterweight, registered a technical knockout over Frank Gargano, New York, in the third round of a four-round match. August weighed 144 1-2; Gargano 150 1-2.

Willie Harmon, New York welterweight, scored the third straight knockout of the card when he was declared the victor over Meyer Cohn of Holyoak, Mass., in the seventh round of the 10-round semi-final contest. Cohen was on his feet but taking a good beating, bleeding about the nose and mouth when referee Lou Magnolia stopped the bout. Harmon weighed 145; Cohen 147.

In the opening four-rounder, Jimmy Moore of California, 155, gained a decision over Charley Picker, New York, 153.

The fight by rounds follows:

ROUND ONE—Roberts, wore flaming red tights and was given a great ovation. The coast boxer landed the first blow, a left to the neck, but both started off cautiously. Dundee struck a long left to the jaw, but was backed to the ropes as Roberts let loose with both fists. Dundee worked a left jab to the nose and Roberts countered to the body. Dundee shot a left to the stomach and took the aggressive in a lively exchange. They broke from a clinch at the bell.

ROUND TWO—Dundee landed a sharp left to the jaw and pummelled Roberts in a corner. The crowd yelled as both mixed at a fast clip. Roberts, slim by comparison with his stocky opponent, was fighting coolly. They were in frequent clinches. Dundee slipped Roberts' jaw with a smashing left and hammered Eddie along the ropes. Two smashing rights shook Roberts. The coast boxer was backing off at the gong.

ROUND THREE—Dundee leaped to the attack and backed Roberts to the ropes. Dundee worked both fists to the body and stung Roberts with a right chop to the head. Roberts landed a long left to the jaw and they came together in a fast mixup. Dundee was forcing the fighting and drew blood from Eddie's nose with a long left. They were locked in a clinch when the round ended.

ROUND FOUR—Roberts missed a right hook to the head as he rushed from his corner. Dundee shifted and dodged while shooting his left to the head. Roberts floored Dundee with a left to the jaw for a count of seven. Dundee backed off as Roberts rained blows about the head. Roberts hammered Dundee all around the ring with a two-fisted attack without drawing a return blow. The coast boxer tired in his efforts to score a knockout and Dundee hung on desperately. Roberts piled both hands to the head, but his blows had lost their sting. The round ended with the men in a clinch and Dundee appearing even fresher than his opponent.

ROUND SIX—Roberts spun Dundee around with a right hook to the jaw but the latter kept his feet. Dundee missed a choppy right to the jaw at close range, but took a snappy left hook in return. Dundee opened a cut under Roberts' right eye and started blood flowing from Eddie's nose. They mixed at a fast pace and traded fast lefts to the head. Dundee was mixing more willingly. Dundee backed Roberts off with a left jab at the bell.

ROUND SEVEN—Roberts swung his left sharply to Dundee's head. They sparred and danced for an opening. Roberts sent in a left to the jaw. Dundee leaped in to land a pair of lefts to the head. He jarred Roberts with a left jab to the nose. Eddie was bleeding profusely. Dundee's left worried Roberts and he crossed with a right that stung Roberts. Roberts absorbed two smashing lefts just before the bell.

ROUND EIGHT—Roberts landed both hands to the head at long range, but took two hard lefts to the jaw. They smashed away with both fists in a furious exchange. Roberts rocked Dundee with a hard right, but was forced back by a stiff counter wallop. Dundee shot a left hook to the jaw and blood spurted from Eddie's mouth. Dundee hammered Roberts about the head with both fists and Eddie was groggy. The bell sounded as the coast boxer staggered back to his corner.

ROUND NINE—Dundee rushed in, but Roberts clinched. They sparred, both looking for an opening. Dundee backed Roberts to the ropes and flailed away with both hands. Dundee sent Eddie's head back with a left uppercut. Roberts was short with his left and took a pounding about the body along the ropes. Blood flowed freely from Roberts' nose. He missed a left hook by a foot just before the bell.

ROUND TEN—Coming out for the final round, both started in at a fast clip. Dundee shifted and feinted while Roberts boxed carefully. Both swung lefts to the head and Roberts used his long left to stand off his opponent. Dundee crashed over a right to the head and grazed Eddie's jaw with a left. Roberts hung on grimly in the clinches. Roberts swung his right to the head but it lacked steam. He took a smashing right from Dundee and backed into a corner as the bell rang.

Ban Wants to Know Who Scalped World Series Tickets.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14. (AP)—A new scandal in baseball seeped to the surface tonight. There was no "sloughing" or under grandstand whisperings but Ban Johnson, president of the American League wants to know how certain tickets for the 1925 world's series fell into the hands of scalpers.

The American League executive revealed that government agents had made demands on him for an accounting of tickets to the championship games between the Yankees and the Cardinals.

President Johnson had 800 tickets at his disposal to club owners and friends. The government learned that 24 of them were sold by scalpers.

Now, Johnson has started a batch of letters to those he gave the tickets to, asking their disposition of them.

Cream Of Country's Distance Swimmers Enter America's Channel Race

LEO PURCELL

BAIRD HICKS

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 14. Responding to the lure of fame and fortune, many of the continent's most famous long distance swimmers and scores of lesser lights in the aquatic realm are flocking to Los Angeles to battle for the $40,000 prize money in the Catalina channel ocean marathon, the greatest ocean swim on record, to be held Saturday.

Many noted swimmers have been training at the various beaches near Los Angeles and at Catalina Island for many weeks, becoming accustomed to the cold channel currents and the tidal movements. These two factors, more than any others, are calculated to prove the Waterloo of the less hardy of the marathon swimmers.

Entries recorded indicate that a record number of aquatic stars who are internationally famous for records already established will be among the starters.

The start will be made on the afternoon of January 15 from the Isthmus at the northwestern end of Catalina Island. The contestants may finish anywhere on the Pacific coast of the United States, no restricted finishing area being provided.

The starters will be divided into four squads, allocated to as many marked sections on the beach at Catalina Island. On the first signal fired by Cady the swimmers will take to the water to begin the long grind to the mainland. On a second signal the accompanying boats will be shoved off to follow the contestants. In this way confusion that might result by starting swimmers and boats together will be avoided.

Each swimmer will be accompanied by a rowboat carrying the swimmers' handler and an official observer. On the bow of the boat will be the swimmer's number, illuminated throughout the night. Four tugboats, acting as "mother ships," will follow the swimmers to carry relief observers, pick up any contestants who give up the task, and meet any emergencies that might develop.

Will Actually Swim 30 Miles

The shortest distance from Catalina Island to the mainland is 22 miles, according to a recent survey. In order to reach the mainland, however, the entrants are expected to cover a distance of at least 30 miles in their battle with the tides.

Two prizes have been put up for the record ocean swim by William Wrigley Jr. The first prize, winner take all, is $25,000. In the event a man wins the gruelling contest the first woman to finish will receive $15,000. If a woman wins the marathon the $15,000 prize will be withdrawn.

Prominent among the women who will compete in the event are Mrs. Millie Gade Corson, recent conqueror of the English channel; Clarabell Barrett, who established an endurance record in attempting to swim the channel, being forced to give up when she became lost in a dense fog, and Mrs. Lottie Schoemell of New York. Miss Barrett is figured by the dopesters as having the best chance to win in the women's division.

Among the contestants who have been training for many weeks in Pacific waters are Henry L. Sullivan of Boston, first American to swim the English channel, whose time from Dover to Calais, August 5 and 6, 1923, was 25 hours, 50 minutes; Charles Toth, also of Boston, who swam the English channel from France to England on Sept. 8 and 9, 1923, in 16 hours, 56 minutes; Leo Purcell of the San Francisco Olympic club, winner of the Golden Gate swim; Baird Hicks of Fostoria, Ohio; Mrs. Myrtle Huddlestone of Mattoon, Ill.; Carl F. Ruoff of St. Joseph, Mo.; Mrs. Lee Fourier of Santa Barbara, Calif.; Hartley Caldwell and Charles Rose of Long Beach, Calif.

Other entrants include T. W. "Old Bill" Burgess, second man to swim the English channel; Norman Ross, former Olympic champion; Mrs. Della Sullivan of Holyoke, Mass.; Mrs. Anna E. Van Skike, 66-year-old endurance champion of the Santa Monica bay district, near Los Angeles, and George Creegan of Patterson, N. J.

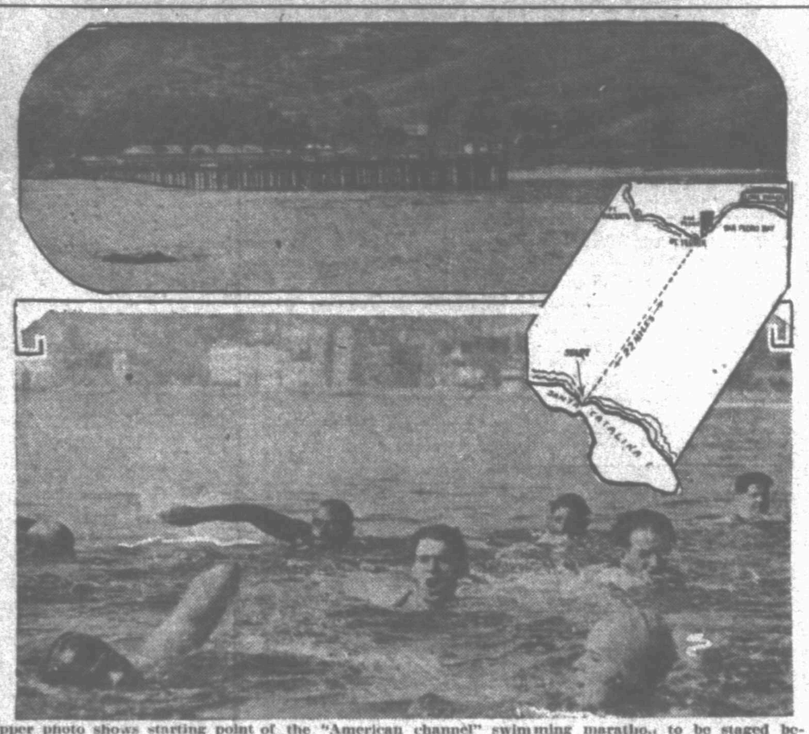

Still others who have signified their intention of competing for the biggest prize ever offered swimmers are Mrs. Lottie H. Schoemell of New York; Joe Sawyer of Enterprise, Ala.; Howard D. Chaffee of Ventura, Calif.; Charles Zimm, legless swimmer of Oakland, Calif., and numerous other distance performers.

Purcell Speedy Aspirant

Aquatic authorities who have been watching the training activities favor Leo Purcell of the San Francisco Olympic club, to win the event if he can kpep warm in negotiating the difficult course. Purcell's greatest handicap is his lack of fat, an abundance of which makes some of the other swimmers almost impervious to cold. Purcell is a fast swimmer and has previously covered long distances in competition in Pacific coast waters. Men like Charles Toth and Henry F. Sullivan, it is believed, will have no difficulty in completing the swim. They are slower swimmers, but both are heavyweights and far better able to swim for a long period in water of low temperature than swimmers of lighter physique.

HAWKS BREAK EVEN IN DUET

Hub Clothiers Romp Away With 32-18 Win

BY BLONDY CROSS

Iowa Park's basketteers triumphed over Megargel Friday night in a snappy melee on the Hawk court, 27-20, but were turned back in the second game of a double bill by the husky Hub Clothiers, 32 to 18.

Brewster's Parkers displayed a wealth of speed, fast team play and a wonderfully functioning five-man defense against Megargel, but slipped up in the nightcap before onslaught of the Wichita Falls club, were unable to cover Janeway, fallen on a number of crip shots at the basket and were victims of many free throws, 12 of which were sunk by the Hubbers. General play of Don Penn, Wigley, who roved the floor and waged a bang-up game, and Enloe, who waged a scrappy defense, featured Iowa Park play in both contests.

H. Cheves, at guard, led the Hawks at scoring in the opener, accounting for 10 points. C. Cross, Megargel center, tabulated nine.

Janeway topped the Hubbers with 10 points. Brashear accounted for seven and Thurman five. Skeen's work at guard spelled disaster for ambitious Iowa Park scorers.

A squad of Hub rooters led by Sam Schlenberg, vice-president of the Schlenberg-Quicksilver company which operates the Hub, turned out for the games.

Greyhounds Nose Landon-Hill Quint

Speedy Neck-and-Neck Tilt Goes to Clara, 16-15

By NORMAN D'OLIVE

Landon-Hill basketeers dropped a fast and hard-fought game to the Clara Greyhounds' last night at the Clara high school court, by a score of 16-15. Coach Belcher's Hounds are probably the fastest quintet Chubby Neal's boys have gone against this season. McKenzie and Clary split honors for high point men on the Landon-Hill aggregation, carrying four points each. Walkup, fast stepping Greyhound forward, took eight points for the Pack's high score man.

The game opened up with a fast and breathtaking floor running, Allen sinking a field goal for a lead point. Schroder followed up with a basket, placing a tie of 2-2 as the first quarter ended.

Van Horn led out the second quarter with a field goal, then both quickened up their action to end the half 9-4 in favor of Chubby Neal's gang.

Field goals completed during the third period were hard to sink as both outfits seemed to have each other covered. Each bunch displayed uncanny skill at breaking up short passes which prevailed during the first half. The third quarter showed 14 points for Landen-Hill and 10 for the Greyhounds.

The last period of the game reached a high speed and goal shooting declined as the boys set out for a fast running fight which threatened to tie the score for an extra five minutes, but the last quarter closed, placing the final points, Landon-hill 16, Greyhounds 16.

Porkers Put It On Frog Outfit, 26-16

FORT WORTH, Jan. 14.(AP)—Coach Frank Schmidt's Arkansas Razorbacks took the first of a two-game series from the Texas Christian university Horned Frogs Friday night in the T. C. U. gym, 26 to 16. The game was fast and hotly contested throughout, but the Porkers led by a slight margin all the way.

Late in the second half the Frogs rallied and came within two points of catching the Arkansas boys only to have Burke, Porker guard, get "hot" and ring two long field goals.

Captains of the opposing teams tied for scoring honors, with eight points each. Captain Steele, Arkansas forward, rung four field goals, for his total while Captain Frank Centelmi, Frog forward, hit three field goals and two free throws for his contribution.

DAN BAKER WINS

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 14. (AP)—The Daniel Baker Hill Billies of Brownwood defeated the St. Mary college Rattlers, 40 to 21 in a basketball game here Friday afternoon.

UNION VALLEY DEFEATS PACK

Francis Scintillates in Hard 34 to 25 Loss

WALTERS, Okla., Jan. 14.—The speedy Union Valley basketball team trimmed the Wichita Falls Coyotes here tonight in a classic cage scrap, 34 to 25.

Ley, Union Valley left forward, and Parroch, center, ran wild, scoring between them sufficient points to turn back the sturdy Wichita Falls five. Ley came through with seven field goals and two free throws for a total of 16 points. Parroch sank five ringers from the court.

Captain Francis of Wichita Falls was the invading quint's leading point getter, looping five field goals for ten tallies.

Valley guards checked the Wichita Falls forwards at almost every angle but Horton managed to slip in a trio from the floor. The Wichita Falls teams appeared a bit off color at the hoop, probably due to the strangeness of the court to them.

Capital Fears Mexican Crisis

er evidence or conclusions submitted.

The secretary, it was stated, has ordered publication of his entire testimony before the senate foreign relations committee, in an effort to show that the bolshevik "scare" was not the main reason for the administration's policy.

In it he will give the specific instances in which it is alleged that Mexico fomented the revolution in Nicaragua. He will cite the names of ships bearing arms from Mexico to Nicaragua and reveal other support furnished the revolutionists there, it was stated.

The administration today had definitely embarked upon its campaign of pacification in Nicaragua. The naval forces there under the direction of Admiral Julian L. Latimer were said to be ample to take care of that situation and to prevent serious outbreaks.

Marine Outposts.

Marine outposts were being extended fro mthe coast far into the interior.

The administration was frankly alarmed by the reports of anti-American demonstrations in Mexico.

It was admitted that enemies of President Calles would probably be found to be engineering any anti - American demonstrations which have developed with an idea of forcing intervention by the United States.

The element of danger to President Calles' administration presented an unique problem. Under the policy of this administration, the United States would be bound to render material assistance to President Calles, recognized by this country, as the constitutionally elected and friendly president of Mexico. It did the same thing for President Obregon and is now doing the same thing for President Diaz in Nicaragua.

Calles Unfriendly.

The administration is gravely considering whether to render such assistance, should a revolt occur, in the face of the charge that Calles committed an unfriendly act in Nicaragua and in enacting the anti-allen land and petroleum laws.

There is also a grave question of whether recognition of the Calles government should be withdrawn as a result of the alleged violation of the conditions upon which Mexico was recognized.

Such withdrawal on the part of the United States, in the opinion of many of the president's advisers, would be tantamount to inviting a revolution in Mexico.

Possible consequences of a break in diplomatic relations is understood to be a compelling factor in the decision at the White House to mark time until there is some overt act, or actual menace to American life and property in Mexico.

In Nicaragua today the only incident of importance was the seizure by liberals of a hospital ship with wounded Diaz soldiers aboard. This occurred on the Escondido river, declared a neutral zone by Admiral Latimer.

Whether Admiral Latimer would declare this a violation of neutrality and take active measures against the rebels is entirely in his hands.

This is the first time since Admiral Latimer took over the patrol of the east coast that there has been an untoward incident, it was stated.

In both the senate and the house bitter attack against the administration policy was renewed. The religious issue was raised by Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, who charged that the Knights of Columbus were trying to force the nation into a war with Mexico.

GRIP TACKLES CARLIN AGAIN

Bill Londos Takes Gorman In Finish Match

Charley Grip returns Wednesday with Johnny Carlin in the feature match of next week's wrestling card at the Palace, it was announced Friday. The men are to go two falls to a finish, New York commission rules.

Grip, after being pushed to the limit in match here the other night, squeezed out on Carlin for a one-fall victory in an hour and three minutes of terrific milling. He won via the body slam route. The match was such a sensational affair that cash customers urged the grapplers be re-matched with an efficient referee on deck instead of Lee Meyers, the Houston middleweight matman, who officiated. Meyers let Grip get away with some dirty stuff, which, many aver, alone proved Carlin's downfall. Carlin gave Charley the stiffest fight he's had in Wichita Falls.

Jackie Gorman, one of Wichita Falls' favorities, has asked for a match with Yaqui Joe, Police Gazette rules. Matchmaker Ross, admittedly a close friend of the Indian, turned thumbs down on the proposition, and scheduled Billy Londons, the Greek welter, with Gorman in a finish match preliminary to the Grip-Carlin squabble.

Tramel Sloughs Cowboy Dillon

LAREDO, Jan. 14. (AP)—Cowboy Jack Dillon of San Antonio lost by a technical knockout in the fourth round of his fight here last night with Duke Tramel of Wichita Falls. He was outclassed from the start, being knocked down six times in the fourth round when the referee stopped the bout. The men are welterweights.

Farmers Ease Out On Institute, 29-28

HOUSTON, Jan. 14. (AP)—One of the most stirring basketball games ever played in Houston was witnessed by a tumultuous crowd at the city auditorium Friday night when the Texas Aggies defeated the Rice Owls, 29 to 28.

Starting with a rush the revamped Owls gained a 12 to 2 lead before the Farmers unleashed their flashing attack. This Aggie offensive carried the invaders to a two-point lead with five minutes to go in the final period, when Bob Morris, Rice captain, sent his team to the front with two fine field goals.

A free throw which found the target and another field goal by the towering Clark gave the Aggies the battle just before the final pistol shot.

THE STATE OF TEXAS
To the Sheriff or any Constable of Wichita County: Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon Mrs. Mattie L. Morgan by making publication of this citation once each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the 78th District Court of Wichita County, to be holden at the Court House thereof in Wichita Falls, on the first Monday in March A. D., 1927, the same being the 7th day of March, A. D., 1927, then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 7th day of January, A. D., 1927 in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court No. 19239 wherein Mrs. Nelson M. Williams joined pro forma by her husband, Marion Williams, and J. R. Morgan Jr., Billy Morgan, Mildred Morgan and Hazel Morgan, all minors, by their next friend, E. F. Morgan, are plaintiffs and Mrs. Mattie L. Morgan and the Security National Bank of Wichita Falls, Texas, are defendants, said petition alleging that defendant, Mattie L. Morgan is the surviving wife of J. R. Morgan Sr., deceased, and that plaintiffs are the surviving children of the said J. R. Morgan Sr., and the said Mrs. Mattie L. Morgan, defendant; that at the death of the said J. R. Morgan Sr., plaintiffs became entitled to an undivided one-half interest in the community property of said J. R. Morgan Sr., deceased, and Mrs. Mattie L. Morgan, which community property was of a value of more than $7000.00 after defendant had paid all debts owing by said community estate; that after the death of J. R. Morgan Sr., defendant Mattie L. Morgan, purchased lot No. 12 in block No. 19 of the I. Jalonick Addition to the City of Wichita Falls in Wichita County, Texas, the purchase price thereof being paid out of the community funds derived from the sale of the community property of herself and her deceased husband; that on or about January 15th, 1925, defendant, Mattie L. Morgan, sold and conveyed said lot to J. G. Louden, and as part of the consideration therefor the said J. G. Louden executed his promissory note, dated January 15th, 1925, in the sum of $2223.91, payable to Mattie L. Morgan, or order, due on or before six years after its date, with interest from its date until maturity at the rate of eight per cent. per annum, payable in monthly installments of $40.00 each, such payments including the monthly interest as it accrues, and payment thereof being secured by a vendor's lien upon said lot in the I. Jalonick Addition retained in the conveyance to the said J. G. Louden: That said note was placed by defendant, Mattie L. Morgan, in the hands of defendant the Security National Bank of Wichita Falls, Texas, for the purpose of collection; that all of the consideration for the sale of said lot has been paid, except $1529.56, which sum is still unpaid on the principal and interest of said note; that defendant, Mattie L. Morgan, has converted to her own use, without regard to the rights of plaintiffs, all of the community property, and revenues derived therefrom, of the estate of herself and her deceased husband, to a sum amounting to more than $2500.00; that the amount still owing on said note, to-wit, $1529.56, is all that remains of the community property of defendant, Mattie L. Morgan, and her deceased husband, which has not been already appropriated and dissipated by said defendant, and that said sum is less than one-half of the value of the community estate of defendant, Mattie L. Morgan and her deceased husband.

Plaintiffs allege that defendant, Mattie L. Morgan, has abandoned the four first named plaintiffs, and has refused to provide for their care, education and maintenance; that if defendant Mattie L. Morgan obtains possession of said note from defendant bank she will remove same from the jurisdiction of this court. Plaintiffs allege, that premises considered, they are the legal and equitable owners of said note and entitled to possession of the same; that the said Mattie L. Morgan is insolvent and ought to be enjoined from claiming said note or any interest therein.

Plaintiffs pray that they have judgment against the defendants herein for title and possession of said note, together with all rights and liens evidenced thereby; that defendant the Security National Bank of Wichita Falls, Texas, be enjoined from delivering to defendant, Mattie L. Morgan said note, or any payment or partial payment which may hereafter be made on same; that defendant, Mattie L. Morgan, be enjoined from transferring said note, or in any way attempting to collect the same, or any part thereof, or from claiming any interest therein; for the issuance of said injunctions; for title and possession of said note, together with all rights and liens evidenced thereby; for costs, damages and general relief.

Herein fail not, but have before said Court at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the Seal of said Court at office in Wichita Falls, Texas, this the 14th day of January, A. D., 1927.
(Seal) EUNICE JACKSON,
Clerk, District Court, Wichita County, Texas.

NOTICE OF SHERIFF'S SALE

State of Texas, County of Wichita.

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of a certain Order of Sale issued out of the Honorable 78th District Court of Wichita County, Texas, on the 7th day of January, 1927, by Eunice Jackson, Clerk of said Court, first for the sum of Fifty-Nine Hundred Ninety-Three and 23-100 ($5993.23) Dollars, and second for the sum of $478.79 and costs of suit under a certain judgment in favor of J. T. Harrell in said sum of $5993.23 and L. E. Whitham and R. M. Whitham in said sum of $478.79 in a certain cause in said court No. 18709-B and styled J. T. Harrell vs. W. B. McGregor, Alice E. McGregor, L. E. Whitham and R. M. Whitham, and placed in my hands for service, I, W. G. Bralley, Sheriff of Wichita County, Texas, did on the 7th day of January, 1927, levy on certain real estate situated in Wichita County, Texas, and described as Lot Six (6) in Block Forty-six (46) of the Southland Addition to the City of Wichita Falls, Texas, as shown by the recorded plat thereof, and levied upon as the property of W. B. McGregor and wife, Alice E. McGregor, and that on the 1st Tuesday in February, 1927, the same being the first day of said month, at the Court House door of said County in the City of Wichita Falls, Texas, between the hours of 10 A. M. and 4 P. M., by virtue of said levy and said Order of Sale, I will sell said above described real estate at public vendue for cash to the highest bidder as the property of W. B. McGregor and Alice E. McGregor, and in compliance with law I give this notice in the English language once a week for three consecutive weeks immediately preceding the date of sale in the Wichita Falls Record News, a newspaper published in Wichita County, Texas.

Witness my hand this 7th day of January, A. D., 1927.

HIKE ON PENN CRUDE GIVES HOPE OF EARLY ADVANCE LOCALLY

PENN MARKET IS BAROMETER

Expected Price Increase Here May Come Earlier

BY TOM TRULY.
Oil Editor, The Record News.

An early restoration of the October price levels for Mid-Continent crude oil is seen by local operators with the advance posted Friday by eastern concerns on Pennsylvania crude. The advance amounted to 25 to 30 cents per barrel and brings the Pennsylvania prices approximately up to those which prevailed on November 18, when crude prices were reduced throughout the Mid-Continent and eastern territories.

Pennsylvania crude is usually considered a barometer for the other grades, it was pointed out by local oil men. The cut which was instituted in North Texas last November was preceded by several months in the Pennsylvania market.

While it has been generally believed that Mid-Continent prices would remain at the present levels at least until late in April or May, the Pennsylvania crude hike moves the expected advance in this territory lup at least six weeks.

The restoration of the October price schedule would naturally result in a greatly enlivened production activity and prominent oil men here predict that this activity will come before the first day of April.

Refinery Heads of Mid-Continent To Gather Here Monday and Tuesday

More than 100 refinery superintendents from Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas are expected to be in Wichita Falls Monday and Tuesday for a superintendents' technical meeting of the Western Petroleum Refiners association, it was announced by W. S. Sims, superintendent of the Panhandle Refining company plant here, who is chairman of the local arrangements committee.

The sessions are to be held in the ballroom of the Kemp hotel. The visitors will be the guests of the local superintendents association in a banquet at the hotel Monday evening, following a tour of inspection of local refineries Monday afternoon.

The technical meetings of the association are held quarterly now and this is the first to be held under the new plan.

The business sessions will be featured by talks delivered by recognized leaders in the refining industry of the Mid-Continent and deal with technical problems of the refiner.

The schedule of lectures follows: Monday, "Recovery Systems for Evaporation Losses," by Bert Frechot, Shaffer Oil and Refining company, Cushing, Okla.

"Fuel Economies of Furnaces," by B. P. Lientz, Kansas City, Mo.

"Fuel Economies at Refineries," by John Thoen, Marland Oil and Refining company, Ponca City, Okla.

Tuesday, "Revivification of Fullers Earth," by H. W. Camp, Empire Refineries, Tulsa, Okla.

"Construction and Operation of Bubble Cap Towers," by Fred Koch, Winkler and Koch, Wichita, Kan.

"Burning of Heavy Residual Fuels at Refineries," by W. E. Perdew, Derby Oil company, Wichita, Kan.

News of The Fields

WAGGONER REF. WAGGONER

The Waggoner Refining company has completed its No. A-5 Waggoner in section 47, block 4, H. & T. C. survey, Wilbarger county, and the well is making 175 barrels daily from the pay at 2372-78 feet.

Cotton--Latest Market Quotations--Cattle

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.(AP)—Reports of improving trade and steady southern spot markets seemed the dominating factors in the cotton market again today. An opening advance was followed by reactions under southern selling and realizing, but prices firmed up again in late trading on renewed covering. After selling off from 13.29 to 13.15, March rallied to 13.31 and closed at 13.30. The general market closed firm, at net advances of nine to 14 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of three to eight points, active months showing net gains of eight to 10 points after the call in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables increased spot sales in the Liverpool market, trade buying and covering. This bulge ran into a little more realizing and perhaps some local selling for a week-end reaction following recent sharp advances.

After the initial demand had been supplied, these offerings were sufficient to ease the market and prices worked off to 13.08 for January and 13.38 for May during mid-afternoon, or about five to seven points net lower. A bearish view of the week-end figures which showed an increase of 35,793 bales in the world's visible supply of American cotton for the week against a decrease of 5850 bales the previous week, probably contributed to the decline. Except for realizing there was very little selling during the afternoon, however, and the market made new high prices for the day in late trading on a renewal of covering promoted by reports of continued steadiness in the southern spot situation. January sold up to 13.18 and May to 13.52, at the close was within a point or two of the top. The increase in the world's visible supply figures, doubtless disappointed some recent buyers, but it was pointed out that it resulted from a freer movement of cotton into sight and that spinners' takings for the week were well maintained.

Spot sales in the Liverpool market as officially reported today were 14,000 bales and an early decline there was followed by rallies on trade calling and the increased spot demand.

Exports today 32,726, making 16,015,-825 so far this season. Port receipts 39,412; U. S. ports stocks 2,948,961 bales.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 14.(AP)—The cotton market was moderately active today but prices were two sided. Liverpool being much better than due and the sales of spot here reaching 14,000 bales, prices here opened eight to 16 points up. These opening transactions carried prices to the highs of the day as the market soon turned reactionary and kept on the down grade all through the session finally showing losses from the highs of 15 to 18 points and losses compared with the previous close of three to four points.

Weekly statistics were about as expected and did not influence the market although mill takings were probably slightly larger than looked for. After making new lows in the late afternoon 19 to 20 points under the highs, the market rallied sharply on covering in the final trading, recovering all the loss and closing at net gains of eight to 12 points.

In response to the strength of Liverpool, March opened 19 points up but as New York did not respond fully to cables later months showed gains of only eight to 11 points. The opening high points were 13.23 for March, 13.47 for May and 13.66 for July.

The subsequent reaction which kept up at intervals during the session finally carried March down to 13.15, May to 13.32 and July to 13.48. After wearing off further to 13.13 for March and 13.28 for May the market recovered all the loss in the final trading and closed at or near the highs.

Exports for the day totalled 27,678 bales and for the week 216,861 bales.

TEXAS CASH GRAIN.

FORT WORTH, Jan. 14.(AP)—Cash wheat prices on the Fort Worth market Friday showed little change from Thursday although export demand was reported improved. Mills are buying just enough to supply immediate needs. Receipts were slightly lower Thursday but wheat supplies are ample and evidence that large amounts are still available in West Texas and the Panhandle. Exporters bids on No. 1 hard wheat, delivered to Gulf ports were around $1.48.

Wheat: No. 1 dark hard, milling $1.43 @1.50; No. 1 ordinary hard, milling $1.43½@1.49½; No. 1 red, milling $1.5o@1.52; No. 1, 75 per cent red, milling $1.48@1.48.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Jan. 14.(AP)—Big shipments from below the equator had a bearish effect on wheat today and so likewise did ample snow covering for the domestic winter crop. Wheat closed unsettled ¾ to ⅞c net lower, corn at ⅝c decline to ⅛c advance, oats ¼ to ⅛c off, and provisions showing a rise of 5@7 to 55c.

Although corn and oats displayed early firmness, profit taking sales on the part of holders of corn led later to reaction.

Provisions were responsive to an upturn in hog values.

Livestock

TEXAS LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, Jan. 14.(AP)—Cattle at Fort Worth Friday developed some strength in beef steers, steadiness in beef and butcher cows, weakness in canners and cutters and calves made some recovery from the slump on Thursday.

The small run of beef steers, one car, was supplemented by the equal of three cars of short fed steers from a close-in fed lot. She stock showed good quality but much sorting had to be done on the 31 cars of mixed stuff.

She stock furnished beef cows up to $6.00 and many drafts were sent over within the range of $5.00@5.75.

Beef steers, the drive in kind, were early sellers taking $6.85 on weight of 950 pounds.

Heifers and yearlings were here only in the low selling kind selling at a spread of $6.25@7.75. One late draft at $8.50.

The calf trade was active on some advance over the slump registered on Thursday. Heavies made $7.75 and lighter weights took $8.50.

Hogs came chiefly from Texas, nine cars to five from Oklahoma. A packer received one car direct. A slow market developed after an advance of 10 to 15c, top medium weights taking $12.10. Bulk $11.90 to $12.06. Sows steady at $10.50 to $11.00; pigs unchanged mostly at $11.00.

Sheep consisted of three decks of contract shorn lambs from Valley Mills, delivered at $10.00 and a deck of fat ewes direct to a packer. No market sheep available.

Cattle. Receipts 1900 cattle including 300 calves; market steady; beeves $5.50@7.50; stockers $5.00@7.00; fat cows $4.25@6.75; cutters $3.50@4.00; canners $2.25@3.65; heifers and yearlings $5.50@10.00; bulls $3.50@7.75; calves $5.00@9.00.

Hogs: Receipts 1600; market steady; medium $11.80@11.90; heavy $11.90@12.10; mixed $11.25@11.55; common $10.25@12.25; sows $10.50; pigs $10.50@11.00.

Sheep: Receipts 650; market steady, genuine lambs $10.00@12.00; shorn feeder lambs and yearlings $9.90@10.00; shorn feeder lambs and yearlings $10.00@11.00; shorn wethers $7.00@8.00; shorn ewes $6.00@6.50; culls $1.00@2.00; stockers $1.00@6.00; goats $1.75@5.00.

KANSAS LIVESTOCK.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 14.—Cattle: Receipts 800; steady; fed steers $7.50@8.50; butcher cows $5.00@6.25; top veals $12.00.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.(AP)—Spectacular bidding for the common stock of the Lehigh Valley railroad which soared 13¾ points to a new record high at 121 and then eased to 118½ on what was described in brokerage circles as open market buying for control, featured today's erratic stock market. Rails pointed upward, but industrials disclosed considerable irregularity, with net declines exceeding net gains in that group.

Marking up of the call money rate from 4½ per cent, incidental to the calling of about $15,000,000 in loans, was believed to be the main reason for the liquidation of the industrials, despite the fact that the higher rate was generally regarded as temporary. The day's business news was largely bullish in character, the chief developments including the announcement of plans for the gigantic Northwestern railroad merger, higher Pennsylvania crude oil prices, an increase in copper wire, and the prompt over subscription of the $27,000,000 Argentine government bond offering.

Weekly mercantile reviews reported no significant changes in the business situation. Bank clearings for the second week in January fell below those of the previous week and the corresponding week a year ago.

Revival of activity and strength in the Wheeling and Lake Erie issues, the preferred jumping four points to 84¾, the highest price on record also was accompanied by merger rumors with the Pittsburgh and West Virginia mentioned as a possible purchaser. Wabash common, Reading, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Chicago and Northwestern, Colorado and Southern second preferred, Delaware and Hudson, New York Central and Texas and Pacific all sold a point or two higher while Colorado and Southern common jumped over seven points to 92¾. Rock Island and Great Northern preferred reached new high ground.

Fractional recessions were recorded by such recent favorites as U. S. Steel common, Baldwin Locomotive, General Motors, Barnsdall "A" Phillips Petroleum and Union Pacific.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were firm. Demand sterling sold above $4.85 and French francs approached closer to the 4 cent level. Spanish pesetas jumped 10 points to around 16.06 cents, the highest price in over six months.

TEXAS WOOL HIGH.

BOSTON, Jan. 14.(AP)—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say:

The wool market has been more active this week and prices are very firm. There have been some sizeable sales of territory wool at fully firm prices.

Foreign markets are buoyant and have shown a rising tendency.

The manufacturing situation appears very sound and demand is

CHAPLIN WILL REPLY TO LITA

He May Make Charges, Too, Friends Declare

By Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14.—Serious counter charges, including an allegation that forces are at work to compel him to make a big money settlement on his wife, may be made by Charlie Chaplin in answer to his wife's divorce suit, it was asserted here today by several of the film comedian's most intimate friends.

These friends, whose names are withheld because they may be called as witnesses in the case, declared that Chaplin confided to them before his departure for New York, that "in case of trouble, he would battle to the end for his children."

Their assertions were borne out by Chaplin's own statement today in Chicago just before he left for New York, where he is to appear in his $500,000 libel suit against the Pictorial Review.

To Fight For Babes

If necessary to obtain the custody of his two baby sons, Charles Spencer Chaplin Jr., aged 20 months, and Sydney Earle, 10 months, the famous screen star will fight Mrs. Lita Grey Chaplin's accusations in detail and point by point, his confidantes said. He may even make some grave charges in rebuttal, they declared.

Between the time of the separation on November 20 and the filing of the suit, these intimates said, negotiations were attempted for a settlement out of court. The chief obstacle, they said, was the fact that Chaplin refused to continue the parley after he had learned the conditions offered by his wife's legal advisers. When this attempt at a quiet disposal of the affair failed, the filing of the divorce suit followed almost immediately.

Denies Big Fortune

Persons familiar with Chaplin's business affairs said today that the $16,000,000 estimate made by Mrs. Chaplin's attorneys as the approximate value of the comedian's assets was greatly exaggerated. They declared that it was doubtful if his entire fortune would exceed $4,000,000.

Applications were made today to the court by the wife's counsel for 21 certified copies of the receivership order. These will be given to private detectives who are seeking bank deposits and other assets which have not already been taken over by the receivers, W. I. Gilbert and Herman Spitzell.

Stop Pay Checks

Mrs. Chaplin's lawyers intimated today that they would immediately take steps to stop the pay checks of Edna Purviance, formerly Chaplin's leading lady, now in Paris; Merna Kennedy, star of Chaplin's latest picture, "The Circus," and Henry Crocker, of San Francisco, who is also employed on this picture.

Lawyers for Mrs. Chaplin declared today that Edna Purviance has been drawing a salary of $350 a week regularly, though she has not worked at the Chaplin studio for several years.

The receivers today today served a court order on the United Artists corporation stopping the payment of any more money to Chaplin. Chaplin makes his pictures for and they are released through this organization.

Banks Searched

A thorough search of the large downtown banks has thus far failed to disclose any safety deposit boxes in Chaplin's name, according to Lyndol Young, of Mrs. Chaplin's legal staff.

Whether Will Hays, dictator of the films, who is due here Saturday, will confer with Chaplin before or after the suit is tried was still an unanswered question today. Several high executives of Hollywood studios expressed the opinion that Hays would not discuss the case with either principal until after the suit is ended.

As process servers directed by the receivers went through Hollywood today placing a final lock on all the comedian's property they could find, Attorney Loyd Wright, representing Chaplin, again said that he had no statement to make at this time.

Formal notices asking Chaplin to appear within 30 days were inserted in the newspapers today by Mrs. Chaplin's attorneys. This is a legal step which gives the plaintiff the right to go ahead with the divorce trial within 30 days if the defendant fails to appear.

The Thursday Luncheon club gave a banquet at the Tonkawa coffee shop last Tuesday evening and had as honor guests their husbands. Place cards bore the following names:

Mr. and Mrs. Hardy Grissom, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Couch, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Connor, Mrs. Marshall Pierson, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Sam A. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Daugherty, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Couch, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Pierson, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Lebo, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Wilson, and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Irwin. The party repaired to the home of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Couch after the banquest and played "84" until a late hour.

P. T. A. Has Regular Meeting

The South Ward P. T. A. met in regular meeting last Friday afternoon for the first time since the holidays with the president, Mrs. W. J. Crowford, in charge. Miss Mabel Taylor resigned as secretary and Miss Edith Jones was elected in her place. A program committee was appointed. Chairman, Miss Berenice Mask; Mrs. T. M. Poteet and Mrs. Joe Maples. Eight dollars and 40 cents was reported as the result of the sandwich sale of last Saturday. A local nurseryman was present by appointment and the organization ordering 12 eight-foot trees to be planted on the school ground. There were 15 present.

Executive Board Meeting

The T. E. L. class of the First Baptist church Sunday school of Haskell met last Saturday afternoon with the president of the class, Mrs. R. J. Reynolds, in her home. Mrs. B. M. Whiteker is the teacher of this class.

Other officers are: First vice-president, Mrs. John A. Couch; assistant first vice-president, Mrs. Alfred Pierson; second vice-president, Mrs. Sam Roberts; third vice-president, Mrs. Mary Clough; secretary, Mrs. D. K. Simmons; treasurer, Mrs. Jim Gilstrap; reporter, Mrs. Marshall Pierson; associate member councellor, Mrs. Charles M. Connor. Twenty-five teachers in the Sunday school are associate members. There are 50 active members. A few Sundays ago there was a 100 per cent membership present. On the above occasion plans for the new year were discussed. Mrs. Reynolds served a luncheon.

Women's Missionary Society

A splendid meeting of the Methodist Missionary Women's society was had last Monday at the church. Mrs. Andrew Shriver directed a missionary voice program. Mrs. J. M. Goss gave the devotional, "The God of Social Justice," and read the Book of Amos. Mrs. F. T. Sanders discussed "The Good Will Stores." Mrs. Myrtle Crow, "Methodism in Mexico:" Mrs. Wallace Cox, "Africa. Its Religions and Languages;" Mrs. Gilly Mulkey, "Unchartered District." The president, Mrs. S. R. Rike, took charge then and the new business comprised the selection of the Bible and mission study course for the year. Mrs. R. C. Montgomery is the director and it was decided to study "The New Testament" and "The Moslem Women."

Board of Stewards Meet

In regular Friday night meeting the board of stewards of the Methodist church met last Friday night with one of the members, Leo Southern, in his home. There were 15 present. The president of the board, F. G. Alexander has occupied that office for many years. The pastor, Rev. W. B. Vaughn, was also present. An interesting business meeting was had and a number of the members made talks on the vital needs of the church. Mrs. Southern served refreshments.

Rabbi Samuel Phillips leaves Saturday afternoon for Muskogee, Okla., where he will speak to the Jewish community Sunday evening. He will return early next week.

O. B. Cecil is in Houston where he will remain for several days, called by the serious illness of a friend.

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stops the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the truble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.—Adv.

Special to The Record News.

BOMARTON, Jan. 14.—Mrs. S. A. Russell and son, John Wayne and Mrs. R. W. Mitty and daughter, Bettie Jo, were shopping in Seymour Friday afternoon.

A message from Miss Ruby Burks, music teacher, states that her father died Thursday evening about 10 o'clock.

Mrs. J. W Cartwright Jr., has been on the sick list this week, but is able to be up at present.

Mrs. Mononah Roach was called to her home at German, Texas Saturday on account of the sickness of her nephew.

The home demonstration club met with Mrs. J. W. Cartwright Jan. 6, 1927. They had a very interesting meeting. Mrs. Julia E. Keely, the home demonstration agent was present and she made some very interesting talks on, "Making our home towns and schools sanitary." She also made a discussion on "The round table" and "why we should raise pure bred poultry.' Those present at the club were: Mrs. Julia E. Keely, home demonstration agent, Mrs. W. A. McKinzie, vice-president, Mrs. J. W. Cartwright, secretary, Mrs. J. C. Wright reporter, Mrs. G. W. Pyechord, Mrs. J. Jr. Mullins, Mrs. S. A. Russell, Mrs. W. O. Barton, Mrs. R. W. Witty and Mrs. E. L. Witty. Mrs. A. H. Golden, the president, was absent on account of sickness in her home.

Mrs. Julia E. Keely of Seymour spent the night with Wenonah Roach Wednesday night.

Nella Roach and Drue Mars of German, returned to Bomarton Sunday afternoon to take up their school work again.

Miss Hallie Lindsey is unable to be in Bomarton schools, on account of sickness.

Mrs. Fay Chandler Brown is filling the postion of Miss Hallie Lindsey as the sixth and seventh grade teacher this week, while Miss Lindsey is ill.

Rev. Copeland, Baptist minister, filled his regular appointment Sunday and Sunday evening at the Baptist church.

Mr. Price is able to be moved to Bomarton to his daughter, Mrs. A. H. Golden. Mr. Price had a very serious case of the flu. He is better at present.

Mrs. A. S. Browner is visiting her son, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Browner and son, Brooks at San Antonio this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Snyder and family spent Saturday in Seymour visiting their daughter, Mrs. L. V. Dodd.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Witty and daughter, Bettie Jo, and Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Snyder and two sons were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin McClure of Knox City Sunday.

R. L. Witty and daughter, Mrs. J. N. Cartwright, Mrs. S. A. Russell and Mrs. J. O. Mullins were shopping in Seymour Monday afternoon.

Mrs. D. A. Bowels and daughter, Alva were visiting in Goree last Wednesday afternoon.

Washington furnishes any one who asks with various government publications such as cook books, health books, books on building, etc.

A newly married couple had acquired a generous supply of them.

One evening the bride asked her husband to hand her the "Baking Book." She was contemplating another venture at biscuits.

Absent-mindedly he complied and continued his reading to glance up later and find his young wife in tears.

He had his first lesson in domestic diplomacy when he saw the title of the book he had given her—"Concrete and How to Mix It."

DO WOMEN SUFFER MORE THAN MEN?

Physicians tell us that the nervous system of woman is more highly organized, more delicately poised, and, therefore more sensitive to disturbances than that of man. It may be added that her nerves are more susceptible to the influences that produce "nerve tension" (strain) which is only another name for "pain."

Women especially appreciate and profit by the use of Capudine, a pleasant tasting, quick acting liquid compound which relieves high nervous tension and pain by soothing instead of deadening the nerves. For nervous headache, lagrippe, neuralgia, rheumatic and periodical pains, attended by nerve strain, nothing is so quickly effective and satisfactory as Capudine. If a thorough course of Capudine does not give you permanent freedom from headaches, you may be sure that they are caused by some organic condition which should receive the attention of your oculist, dentist or family physician.

Physicians and druggists recommend Capudine as the safe, quick and dependable agent for relieving nervous pains and high nerve tension. Every home should be supplied with Capudine. Get a bottle today at your druggist's and if you do not like it far better than anything you have ever tried, the manufacturers will cheerfully refund the price upon request. Family size, 60 cents; individual, 30 cents, at all drug stores.—Adv.

THROW OFF THAT COLD BY TAKING KLOK-LAX

Don't go around choked up with a cold this winter!

Take Klok-Lax at the first sign of distress and you will throw it off.

Stop using sickening drugs that get your stomach all out of fix. You have got to clean out the clogged wastes in your intestines and start a free bowel movement before you can get rid of a cold.

Klok-Lax is the new, improved way to treat a cold. It thoroughly cleans out your entire 28-foot intestinal canal. Then, the most miserable cold will disappear.

Better still, keep your bowels cleaned out all the time—keep your system purified by taking Klok-Lax regularly — and the chances are you will never take a cold.

Everybody is using Klok-Lax now! It's the thorough, effective way to keep from having constipation. That's why it is the best treatment for colds.

Get Klok-Lax at any good druggists.—Adv.

AFTER THE "FLU" IS OVER —YOU NEED A TONIC

Help is Needed to Restore Your Wasted Strength and Energy

"Flu" leaves the body weakened and rundown. In such cases, a tonic is clearly indicated. Restore the appetite and rid yourself of that let-down feeling.

"Flu" is a very enervating disease. It leaves its victim so weak and debilitated that there is as much danger from the after-effects as from the disease itself. In other words, after an attack of the "flu," you need a selective tonic to rebuild the system so that you may have your old-time strength and energy restored.

S. S. S. is unequalled for restoring strength and vitality.

You owe it to yourself and family to give S. S. S. a trial. It helps Nature build up red blood corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the body is nourished. It is time-tried and reliable. S. S. S. is made from the roots of fresh herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.—Adv.

PALO DURO DAM 1100 FEET LONG

Reservoir to Supply Water For Amarillo

Special to The Record News.

CANYON, Jan. 14.—Unusually favorable weather has made it possible for work to go forward very rapidly on Amarillo's new water plant which is to cost $2,000,000. This plant, which is located 12 miles from Canyon and 18 miles from Amarillo, will be the largest in the Panhandle area. It will be composed of five wells and a great dam which will back the water four and one-half miles up the Palo Duro creek. There will also be a storage tank of 500,000 gallons capacity.

The dam, which is built entirely across a shallow canyon of the Palo Duro, will be 1100 feet wide, 442 feet through at the base, and 42 feet high. It is estimated that there would still be a sufficient supply of water for Amarillo's 50,000 people should it not rain for two and one-half years.

During the summer of 1926 Amarillo consumed one and a half million gallons each day and the consumption will be greatly increased in 1927. Under pressure, the two-foot mains from the new plant will carry 10,000,000 gallons of water each day.

Thousands of trees growing along the creek banks have to be removed; these are taken up carefully and given to anyone who wishes to transplant them.

Hundreds of visitors are finding the operations of the well drilling a most interesting sight and those in charge encourage the coming of visitors.

BLAST VICTIMS

Two Injured In Vernon Accident Brought to Hospital Here.

E. W. Reed and Troy Alford who were orbought to the Clinic-Hospital Friday for treatment of injuries received in an explosion in the Vernon oil fields Tuesday were reported resting well last night. Theirs were said to be "minor injuries," by hospital attendants Friday evening. They were not considered in a serious condition. Both men suffered steam burns on the face, arms, hands and legs, and Reed's face was cut when he was hurled 100 feet by the explosion.

The boiler exploded on the Prairie Oil and Gas Company lease 18 miles southeast of Vernon, and Joe McClendon of Harrold was killed.
