Nazis Caught By RAF Ruse

Bombers Head For Berlin, Turn And Batter Leipzig

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Dec. 4.—A massive fleet of RAF heavy bombers flew within a few miles of bomb-shattered Berlin early today in a colossal bluff that left Nazi fighters over the capital while the bombers turned sharply for a devastating 1,500-ton bomb attack on Leipzig, catching the Reich's third industrial city flat-footed.

The big Lancasters and Halifaxes made straight for Berlin, battling German fighters almost all the way in, the air ministry said.

Then, when literally within sight of the capital, only Mosquito bombers went in to hit selected targets while the heavy force veered away to blast Leipzig 100 miles southwest and leave the center of that city in a flaming mass of ruins.

Defenders Turn To Capital

At the Berlin turning point, the air ministry said, most of the Nazi fighters seemed to lose the main force of bombers, and hastened to defend the capital.

Awakened by sirens just before 4 a. m., Leipzig had to defend its sprawling railway yards and diversified industries mainly with searchlights and anti-aircraft guns.

A small number of defending fighters turned up at Leipzig before the downpour of high explosives and incendiaries ended, but by the time full squadrons arrived, the RAF bombers were headed for home.

The highly-successful feint cost the RAF 23 planes — compared with 41 lost Thursday night when Berlin was hit with more than 1,500 tons of bombs — and gave Reichs Marshall Hermann Goering's tired air force another problem to try to solve.

May Be Out Again

A Nazi radio blackout this evening indicated that the RAF's heavy-weights might be out for a third successive night.

The round-the-clock hammering of Nazi objectives continued by daylight Saturday, with Allied planes knocking down 14 German aircraft, including 11 Nazi Dornier 217 bombers. The bombers were bagged by two squadrons of RAF Typhoons racing over Holland, while other Typhoons hit enemy airfields in Belgium.

American fighter-bombers—disclosed by the U. S. Eighth Air force to be fast P47 Thunderbolts equipped with special bomb racks—hit the airfield at Gilze Ryjen, Holland. Escorting Thunderbolts downed three Nazi fighters.

All the Thunderbolts returned, and British losses were one Mosquito plane lost on offensive patrol.

Chest Campaign Nearing Climax

Wednesday Drive Aimed At Public

Preparations are virtually complete for the start Wednesday of the general solicitations drive which will bring the Lubbock county War Chest campaign to a close, according to announcement Saturday by Jack M. Randal, city chairman.

The start will be made from a general rally in Hilton hotel at which coffee will be served Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock, Randal said. Principal speaker will be Chaplain R. T. Miller of Lubbock Army Air field.

The rally, Randal added, will serve a double purpose. It will be the kickoff for the general solicitations campaign. It also will be the occasion for the first reports from the campaign divisions which, in some instances, have been at work two weeks or longer.

Progress Is "Satisfactory"

Walter S. Posey, the county chairman, said no definite reports as to the progress of the campaign have yet been made. He added, however, that scattering reports indicate the drive toward the $65,293 quota assigned the county is progressing satisfactorily. He has been advised of a number of large business establishments which have exceeded their quotas and in which the employes have given 100 per cent, he said.

The general solicitations division, of which C. H. Hamilton is the "colonel," has a personnel of 125, including "majors," "captains," and "lieutenants." The division's quota is $12,645, the largest of any unit in the drive, which they will seek from the employes of approximately 3,000 business establishments in the city.

Quotas Listed

The other divisions in the campaign organization, the chairman and the quota for each follow:

Central units division — industrial "A" group, Ben Cole, $6,052; industrial "B," W. C. Wood, $2,089; finance, Roy Riddel, $1,656.50; public service, C. I. Wall, $4,973; wholesale, D. N. Leaverton, $3,071; retail "A," J. D. Hassell, jr., $6,513; retail "B," W. C. O'Mara, $3,147; real estate and development, Chas. H. Read, $2,029; transportation, W. G. Alderson, $5,307.

Professional division, Durwood H. Bradley, chairman — medical doctors, Dr. A. T. Stewart, $1,507; attorneys, Robert H. Bean, $1,001.50; dentists, Dr. G. C. Turner, $539; clergymen, Rev. H. G. Gantz, $213.

Public employes division, Earl Collins, chairman—city, Arch L. King, $1,000; estate, S. C. McCarty, $150; federal, Amos Howard, $1,050; schools, Flyod Honey and J. H. Millikin, $1,450; Lubbock Army Air field, Maj. Byron Goulding and Capt. W. A. Murphy, $1,500; South Plains Army Air field, Lt. M. A. Mayer, $1,500.

Rural division, Glen Hess, chairman, $4,190.

Several Killed In Barracks Explosion

BERN, Switzerland, Dec. 4. (AP)—Three terrific explosions early yesterday shattered a barracks at Grenoble, France, in which several hundred German troops were quartered, killing 12 and injuring 50, a dispatch from Grenoble to the Tribune de Geneve reported today.

The blasts also flattened a number of nearby buildings and scattered debris over several hundred yards, the dispatch said. Some 30 French civilians were injured. Last month a similar explosion destroyed a Nazi munitions depot in Grenoble, killing several German soldiers, and in the resulting confusion German troops fired into crowds, killing more than 35 persons.

Throneberry To Fight Extradition

WACO, Dec. 4. (AP) — "I'll lie down and die before I'll go back to Colorado," O. B. Thorneberry, Texas desperado, said today after Assistant U. S. Attorney Gilbert Sharp announced the criminal will be released to Colorado for prosecution on a murder charge.

U. S. Commissioner Woodie Zachry set bond of $25,000 on a charge that Thorneberry was a fugitive from justice.

Announcing that he would fight extradition on the complaint which names him and his brother, Randel, for the murder of a sheepherder at Hayden, Colo., Thorneberry said the murder charge was unjustified and that feeling was so high in Colorado he couldn't get a fair trial.

Confesses Robbery

He admitted he and his brother, Randell, still at large, robbed the sheephearder of $65 and tied his hands and feet, but contended he didn't see how the victim strangled to death.

The charge should be manslaughter or second degree murder, he stated.

Thorneberry, formerly of Cleburne, Tex., was captured last night near West, Tex., by Sheriff Homer Casey of McLennan county after Deputy Sheriff Martin Owens injured the fugitive slightly in the right wrist with a pistol

Goodfellows Ask Your Aid

Lubbock Goodfellows are ready to go again.

But they need your help once more in their effort to make certain that no child 14 years of age or younger living within the Lubbock city limits will be forgotten by Santa Claus on Christmas day.

First, they want the names of every child who may be forgotten unless remembered by the Goodfellows. If you know of any such children, please make use of the coupon which appears on page 10 of today's Avalanche-Journal.

Second, the Goodfellows need $1,500 to get the job done. The names of the contributors will be published from day to day in The Morning Avalanche and The Evening Journal.

The expectation is that the number of children to be remembered this Christmas will be smaller than last year, when they numbered nearly 4,000. But the cost of everything is up, as everyone knows from experience. Consequently, it will cost a little more for each child on the list.

The money will be used to provide for each child a package containing, among other things, a new toy or toys selected especially for the boy or girl receiving it, as well as candy, fruits and nuts. Everything has been bought, but remains to be paid for.

There will be no distinctions between children because of race or religious sect. All will be treated exactly alike.

A little further along, help will be needed in preparing the packages. Volunteers will be called for at that time. On Christmas day, more volunteers will be needed to distribute the packages to the children.

This is the ninth Christmas that the Goodfellows have been on the job in Lubbock. During that time, they have played Santa Claus to around 30,000 boys and girls. Not

Ration Lifts On Citrus Juices

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. (AP) — Elimination today of canned citrus fruit juices from the rationed item list follows closely announcement by the War Food administration that 2,400,000 cases of government-owned canned grapefruit juice would be released in the next few weeks for civilian consumption.

From the 1942-43 pack, it was bought in a 7,600,000-case order placed by the Army for all government uses.

By permitting grocers to offer juice point-free to American housewives, the WFA hopes to speed up consumption of the huge stores on hand so as to make room for the new grapefruit and orange harvest now under way in the four principal citrus-producing states, Florida, Texas, Ariona and California.

Don McMillen, head of the citrus unit of the WFA's fruit and vegetable section, said that the canned grapefruit already is moving back into civilian channels. The citrus industry exclusively since early in November has been given the opportunity to buy all it wants of the 2,400,000 cases. Beginning this week, unless plans are changed, the remainder of the stock left will be for sale at established ceiling prices to any other individuals or concerns seeking to buy it.

CITRUS FRUIT MARMALADES NOW RATION FREE ALSO

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 4. (AP) — Citrus marmalades, made entirely of citrus fruits (principally ornages and lemons), may be bought ration point free, the district OPA office said today.

Marmalades made of citrus and non-citrus fruits in combination are rationed at the same point value as marmalades made wholly of non-citrus fruits, currently at six points per pound, the announcement said.

Ranger Captain Purvis And Son Join Hunt Murder Probe

CAPT. H. B. PURVIS of Houston, head of Company A of the Texas Rangers, officially entered the Hunt murder investigation Saturday, it was announced from the office of Capt. Maney Gault of the Lubbock Ranger district. The action was on instructions by Governor Coke Stevenson and the Texas department of public safety, headed by Geo. W. Cottingham, of Houston.

Capt. Purvis, one of the oldest Rangers in the service, arrived in Lubbock Saturday to confer with Capt. Gault and other officers.

With Capt. Purvis was his son, Ranger L. H. Purvis of the Kerrville district, who several years was an investigator for the Humble Oil and Refining company in the Beaumont district and has been in the Ranger service for the past three years.

Capt. Gault openly was pleased at the prospects of "getting such well-qualified help—especially so when I'm frank to say this has been, and still is, one of the most difficult investigations we've ever faced in West Texas."

Dr. and Mrs. Roy E. Hunt were found slain and bound in their bed Oct. 26 in the master bedroom of their Littlefield residence. The murders, termed at the time "the most refined cruelty ever practiced out this way," orphaned the Hunts' two daughters, 5 and 2.

Soviet Drive Nears German Escape Exit

Town Eight Miles From Zhlobin Captured And New Gains Pounded Out In Ukraine

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sunday, Dec. 5.—Russian forces swept to within eight miles of Zhlobin, big trunk railway crossing, in their pursuit of the Germans retreating from Gomel Saturday, and in the Ukraine pounded out new gains in a drive to link the important Kremenchug and Cherkasy Bridgeheads, Moscow announced today.

Several hundred thousand Germans, who have now fallen back 40 miles in 10 days since Gomel was captured, were streaming through the bottleneck town of Zhlobin as the Russians battered into the railway station of Khalch, said the Moscow midnight communique. This town is eight miles from Zhlobin on the rail line from Gomel, and its fall marked a four-mile frontal advance on the Junction from Soltanovka, taken Friday.

Counter Blows Fail

German rearguards tried to make a stand at the approaches and launched several counterattacks, but Soviet infantry, supported by massed artillery splintered the German defense and broke through into the station. After a fierce battle the Germans were routed, leaving great quantities of booty behind.

The forces of Gen. Markian M. Popov, fighting northwest of Propoisk, were thrusting a spearhead to the Dnieper south of Mogilev. Eleven towns and hamlets were wrested from the Germans.

The Moscow communique remained silent on still a third drive farther north which the Germans said had been going four days toward Orsha. Berlin radio said the Russian penetration had been sealed off and the intensity of the attack weakened.

Fighting Is Bitter

But the muddy slush of the south saw ever more bitter fighting as the Russians beat back German counterattacks against their Cherkasy bridgehead while a new drive from Kremenchug strained northward with reinforcements.

The Russians announced little progress in the Kremenchug area with the exception of several unspecified German fortified areas subdued a necessary preliminary to any important advance.

Moscow reports said that west and northwest of Kremenchug the Red Army had achieved a large breakthrough and was pouring tanks and troops through soggy snow while forward troops pounded retreating Nazis.

Japs Strengthen Island Defenses

U. S. Bombers Lash New Britain Bases

(By The Associated Press)

Apparently expecting new Allied attacks at the eastern and western extremities of the Pacific war theater, the Japanese increased their aerial patrols over the mid-Pacific Marshall islands today and rushed defenses on the island of Sumatra in the Dutch East Indies, gateway to Singapore.

On the ground Japanese armies continued to retreat before Australian columns on New Guinea, potential invasion base for either the Philippines or New Britain, and were locked in battle in China's central rice bowl.

Inactive In South

The Nipponese airforce appeared to be largely inactive in the southern Pacific theater, at least temporarily, after losing 3,000 planes in five months—more than eight planes for each Allied aircraft officially listed as destroyed.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Sunday communique mentioned only one instance of an encounter with Japanese planes over a widespread arc. In that case, Thunderbolts shot down four out of 24 enemy fighters over Wewak, New Guinea, without loss to themselves.

The communique's list of aerial actions featured a destructive 179-ton bombardment of Cape Gloucester in the western New Britain island sector which now is in danger of Allied invasion from nearby New Guinea.

Only Seven For Week

The four planes downed at Wewak made a total of only seven listed as destroyed in a week. Normally the number would run around 100.

The imperial command may have sent in no aerial reinforcements because of the disproportionate losses, or may have kept them in reserve to meet potential new Allied offensives elsewhere.

American transport planes and fighters have been operating for days on regular schedules from Beitio airfield, Capt. Erl B. Gould of Pittsburgh, Pa., commander of the island, told his men "we must rush ahead to the limit of our endurance."

Watch Invasion Signs

Liberators scouting the Marshalls for a possible counter-invasion by the Japanese noted increased aerial defenses but came out on top in every reported aerial

Persian Parley Details Held Up

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP)—Under a counter-fire of German propaganda, President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin tonight withheld official word on the outcome of their momentous Persian conference to hasten Germany's defeat and shrivel her military might for the future safety of Europe.

Presumably, the official statement of their accomplishments was being delayed while Roosevelt and Churchill travelled home from Teheran, capital of Iran, where the Moscow radio announced officially the conference had been held.

Report By Reuters

A Reuters report from Istanbul said "it is believed that the Teheran conference lasted four days, ending Thursday."

Sunday newspapers in London reported Satlin had returned to Moscow.

Typical of exultant headlines was the Pictorial's "It's All Fixed," over a story predicting that the agreements, when disclosed, would reveal unanimity on plans for death blows.

The German radio declared that

Some Nazi Troops Are Driven Insane

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Dec., 4—Smashing forward behind an air and artillery bombardment so titanic that some German troops were driven insane, Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American and British Fifth Army has broken into the heart of the enemy's winter line to a depth of two miles and is driving toward Rome "according to plan," the Allies announced today.

The thunderous bombardment which laid down a curtain of fire in front of Clark's charging troops was described as one of the greatest in the history of warfare—perhaps even greater than that which broke the German line at El Alamein in Egypt, because it was concentrated on a smaller area.

Bitter Fighting

Extremely bitter fighting continued today as the Fifth Army smashed into the maze of fortifications on and around 2,800-foot Monte Camino, four miles southwest of Mignano. The assault, aimed in the direction of the vital highway center of Cassino, already had driven the Nazis from the important Camino and Maggiore heights west of Mignano.

The British Eighth Army, knifing ahead on the Adriatic flank, reached the outskirts of San Vito, 16 miles below the port of Pescara, and in fierce fighting captured the important highway and railway center and market town of Lanciano, situated on a 900-foot ridge where the Nazis resisted bitterly.

General Montgomery's troops also captured the town of Treglio, three miles south of San Vito and four miles inland, and successfully beat off a Nazi counterattack there. The most impressive Eighth Army gain came 12 miles inland, where the British stabbed forward six miles to seize Orsogna, nine miles northwest of the Sangro river.

The thrust through Orsogna drove a deep wedge into secondary defenses the Nazis had established on the Eighth Army front and severed road and rail lines without which the enemy could not hope to make another stand anywhere near the Sangro.

Front line reports disclosed that even the arrival of reinforcements had not enabled the Germans to retrieve the great piles of guns, ammunition and other equipment they abandoned on the battlefields in the Fossacesia area in their first disorganized flight.

Munitions Pour From Factories

NEWYORK, Dec. 4 (AP)—Munitions now are pouring from American factories at six and one-half times the pre-Pearl Harbor rate, the National Association of Manufacturers said today.

"In the two years since Pearl Harbor, American industry has performed a herculean task of producing the myriad weapons, vehicles and instruments required for an expanding global conflict," the NAM said in a survey of production prepared for its annual convention next week.

Aircraft Goal Reached

Aircraft—an annual rate of 100,000 planes reached in October, with a probable total for the year of 85,000 against 49,000 in 1942, an even more impressive climb when the increased percentage of heavy bombers is considered. The report said the United States is building more airplanes than all other nations together.

Merchant ships — this year's total 19,000,000 deadweight tons or five times 1939's aggregate.

Naval construction—an increase of 1,200 per cent in two years to more than 26,000 vessels in mid-year and a goal ahead of 41,179 by mid-1944.

Gunshot Wound Fatal To Sooner Fugitive

DALLAS, Dec. 4 (AP) — Ray Sellers, 28, fugitive from the Oklahoma penitentiary, died today in a Dallas hospital of a gunshot wound without having named his assailant.

Sellers had been indicted yesterday by a Tarrant county grand jury at Fort Worth in connection with a $17,000 robbery in Fort Worth last October.

The general office of the Renfro drug store chain was held up Oct. 8 by two gunmen who netted $259 in cash and more than $16,000 in narcotics and other loot.

The 13 persons who witnessed the holdup identified a picture of Sellers as one of the gunmen and two of them yesterday came to the hospital here where Sellers was a patient and identified him.

Hospital attendants said Sellers was unconscious a number of hours before his death.

Tax Declaration Is Due December 15

Are you straight with Uncle Sam on your income taxes for this year?

A great many people are not and must file tax declarations or amended declarations Dec. 15. "Better be sure about yourself," warned L. B. Barkley, chief of the Lubbock division office of internal revenue.

Here is the situation:

The current tax payment act of 1943, approved June 9, 1943, made no change in the tax rates imposed by the revenue act of 1942, but changed the manner of reporting and paying such taxes. Certain classes of taxpayers were required to file with their respective collectors of internal revenue a statement reporting what they estimated their 1943 income tax would be. The forms were called "Declarations of Estimated Income and Victory Tax by Individuals for Calendar Year 1943." Many thousands of such forms were filed during the filing period ended September 15, by persons due to file at that time.

Three Principal Groups

Another requirement is that certain other classes of taxpayers shall file the "declaration" forms on or before December 15, 1943. Are you among those now required to file such "declarations"? Generally, there are three principal groups of individuals coming under the December 15 filing requirement.

The first are those who filed declarations in September but underestimated their tax by more than 20 per cent and who should, therefore, file an "amended" declaration now. Some of those who filed in September may now believe they overestimated their 1943 tax and these may file an amended declaration. If this is true in your case, be sure to attach to your "amended" declaration the bill you receive from the collector shortly after December 1st. "Amended" declarations are filed on the same form as original declarations, and should be clearly marked by writing the word "amended" in a prominent place on the declaration. A penalty is imposed by law on those persons who filed in September but underestimated their tax by more than 20 per cent, unless they file an "amended" declaration correcting such underestimation by December 15.

Estimated Income Too Low

The second group due to file a "declaration" form by December 15, consists of those persons, farmers and non-farmers, who did not file in September because their 1943 income as estimated at that time was not sufficient to require such filing, but who now come within either of the following classes:

1. Those persons who expect to receive for the calendar year 1943 more than $100 gross income from a source outside of wages subject to withholding if they also expect sufficient gross income to require filing an income tax return ($500 for a single person, $1,200 for a married couple, or $624 for an individual married person).

2. Those persons who expect to receive for the calendar year 1943 wages subject to withholding totaling more than $2,700 if single or $3,500 if married (married couples must file declarations if such wages of husband and wife together exceed $3,500.)

Study Requirements Carefully

3. In addition the declaration is required of any person who was required to file an income tax return for 1942 and who expects his wages subject to withholding in 1943 to be less than similar wages in 1942.

These requirements should be studied carefully, in order that you may not fail to file a declaration on or before December 15 if you are classified under any of the groups described.

The last group, and perhaps the most important or largest, at this time, is comprised of farmers, stockmen and ranchers who have sufficient income to require their filing income tax declarations. Farmers, stockmen and ranchers reporting income on a calendar year basis were not required to file declarations in September regardless of their income, because the nature of the source of their income did not enable them to make a fair estimate of their tax at that time. Because of the uncertainty of farm income, the law also extends to farmers, stockmen and ranchers more latitude than to other classes of taxpayers in estimating correctly their income. In other words, no penalty for substantial underestimation will attach to a farmer's tax if he has estimated it within 33 1-3 of its true total. A farmer, for the purpose of filing a "Declaration," is defined as a person who derives at least 80 per cent of his income from farming, stock or ranching operations. The landlord farmer who rents his farm land on a share-crop basis is considered to have income from farming operations; but if he leases his properties on a stated money rental basis, his income is not considered as being from farm operations and he would be grouped with those persons required to file declarations September 15.

Not Completely Covered

In general, it may be stated that the December 15, 1943 filing is in reality a follow-up of the September 15 filing—both of them being steps toward the ideal of pay-as-you-go tax collection. Many taxpayers are not covered in the withholding provisions of the law or are not completely covered, since the withholding system keeps the average taxpayer paid up only to the extent of an approximate minimum tax. For these reasons, the September 15 and December 15 filings were devised. The form actually used for filing, the Form 1040-ES, "declaration," is very simple. Forms 1040-ES, declarations, and copies of internal revenue at the main office in Dallas, or at any of the 16 field offices located in principal North Texas cities.

Many farmers already have the forms which were sent them in August. These forms are still good and may be used. Any farmer needing more forms, however, will be supplied promptly upon request to the collectors. In order that these declarations may be properly prepared and your tax closely or exactly estimated, work sheets have been provided on which you may compute your tax as on a regular income tax return. One work sheet is a simplified form which may be used by persons whose incomes are under $10,000. The other, or alternative, work sheet is a longer form and may be used by persons desiring to make a more exact estimate of their tax liabilities. The Alternative work sheet must be used by those whose incomes are more than $10,000 for the calendar year 1943.

Information Needed

In seeking assistance of deputy collectors of internal revenue, you should have the following information:

1. Copy of 1942 income tax return.
2. Cancelled checks or other evidence of income tax paid on March 15 and June 15, 1943.
3. Definite Estimates of net income (gross income less allowable deductions) from all sources during the calendar year 1943.
4. If you were employed for wages or salaries at any time during 1943, you should have available the amount of Victory tax withheld by your employer between January 1 and June 30, 1943 and withholding tax withheld by your employer after July 1, 1943.

It is emphasized that any payment remaining due on your September declaration or as shown on your December 15 declaration either amended or original should be paid on or before December 15 to avoid penalties for failure to pay the amount estimated to be due. Don't run the risk of severe penalties by overlooking this matter.

If you are in doubt as to whether you are required to file a declaration or amended declaration, you had better check up with your nearest deputy collector or tax counselor immediately.

Barkley said he and his deputy collectors had completed their South Plains itinerary with the exception of visits to Plainview Monday and Tuesday.

Proposal For Similar Foreign Policies Hit

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP) — Alf M. Landon today derided informal proposals that both major parties adopt similar foreign policy planks in their 1944 platforms, declaring that "Candidate Roosevelt doesn't stand still long enough" for the Democratic policy to be defined.

The 1936 Republican presidential nominee, speaking to the party's "freshmen" members of the U. S. Senate, called for:

1. A vigorous expression of Republican aims for the post-war world to combat what he called "the danger of a drift towards one party in our country."

2. Constant prodding by the G.O.P. members of Congress into the administration's conduct of government affairs—congressional "checking up" of all legislation and bureaus operating under it to "protect the rights of the people."

The average annual salary of school teachers during the years of World War I was $655.

IN MARINE "BOOT TRAINING"—Saleta Rayburn of Lubbock, a distant relative of Speaker of the House, Sam Rayburn, is now undergoing Marine Corps "boot training" at Camp Lejeune, N. C. She had a personal reason for joining the Marines. Her brother, Eldridge Rayburn, is a prisoner of the Japanese. "I feel now that I am actually helping to free my brother," says Private Saleta. The daughter of J. D. Rayburn, who is connected with the light plant at Lubbock, she was a telephone operator before she enlisted in the Marines. She is shown in the picture above with Doris Mullins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Mullins of Lubbock, who is learning to be a woman Marine at Camp Lejeune. Doris, who was connected with the U. S. Censorship Bureau, attended Texas Technological college and the University of Missouri. She worked as a reporter in the towns of Matador and Spur.

Three Persons Killed When Train Hits Car

MASSILLON, O., Dec. 4 (AP)—A crowded Pennsylvania passenger train, speeding from Chicago to Pittsburgh, smashed an automobile at a grade crossing near here last night killing three persons, and then was rammed in the rear by another passenger train in a wreck which injured 25 persons and derailed two coaches.

Path For Shining New World Rocky

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

If there's anyone so cynical as to lack faith that in happier days to come we shall have a shining new world, based on the brotherhood of man, then I think he should be marooned on a desert isle for his pessimism.

And if there's anyone so naive as to believe that this millenium is going to arrive with the end of the present war ,or that it will be reached except through trials and tears, he should be forced to join the cynic.

The way things look now, when we've smashed Germany and dismembered the Japanese empire, we shall just have started to climb the heights. We shall have knocked out military aggression (at least temporarily), but we shall have released violent political passions both in Europe and the Orient. That isn't a happy forecast, but we shouldn't refuse to examine possibilities.

Civil Wars Foreseen

It will be more than passing strange if Europe and Asia don't suffer an epidemic of civil wars. Indeed ,these bitterest of all human conflicts already are under way.

Take the case of Yugoslavia, the most fiery of the Balkans. There the forces of General Drug Tito, a Yugoslav Communist leader, and the army under General Draja Mihailovitch, war minister in young King Peter's cabinet, have been at bloody logger-heads. Without much doubt this argument will be carried to a finish as soon as the Germans have been thrown out of Yugoslavia.

In neighboring Greece there's a similar situation. There we have strife between the politico-military organization known as Elas, which is said to oppose the return of King George to the throne, and the Edes, a military outfit supporting the king.

The neighboring states of Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary all are seething politically. In each case the status of the throne is one of the issues. German repression is the only thing keeping the lid on.

Down in Syria, little Lebanon has declared its independence from France, and unless the French recognize this fully there will be more trouble.

Italy Political Volcano

Italy is a political volcano, with the throne rocking dangerously.

Almost anything can happen in France as soon as the Germans are knocked out.

The great political enigma of Europe is Germany. There is a Communist party of unknown strength at work in the reich, and one would expect the German Communists to make an effort to establish a Soviet the moment the Hitlerites surrender — maybe before that. When I was in Germany at the time of Munich, while Hitler was riding high and mighty, the gestapo boasted that it had exterminated the Communists, who were the fuehrer's pet hate. But every morning communistic literature made its mysterious appearance in the mail boxes of business offices throughout Berlin, and I dare say elsewhere. The Communists merely had been driven underground.

Many problems will arise in the Orient when Japan has been dismembered and there is a completely new Asiatic set-up. One of the greatest of these is the issue between the Chinese Communists and the government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek. Right now powerful Red armies are in the field alongside those of the generalissimo, fighting the common Japanese enemy under a political truce. There we have one of the world's most dangerosu situations.

Oldest Fort Group In European Area Goes On 200th Mission

ALLIED ,HEADQUARTERS ALGIERS, Dec. 4. (AP)—The Flying Fortress group which carried out the first all-American raid of the war in Europe on Aug. 17, 1942, completed its 200th mission last Wednesday, it was announced today.

To mark the occasion, the 200th raid—an attack on the ball-bearing factory at Turin—was led personally by Brig. Gen. J. H. Atkinson of Dalhart, Tex., who formerly commanded the group and now commands a bomber wing.

The group, the 97th, on its first raid flew from England to bomb railroad yards at Rouen, France, and since then was attacked objectives in Tunisia, Italy, Greece, Austria, Sicily, Pantelleria and Libya.

The group, the 97th, on its first raid flew from England to bomb railroad yards at Rouen, France, and since then has attacked objectives in Tunisia, Italy, Greece, Austria, Sicily, Pantelleria and Libya

In its operations the oldest fortress group in European warfare has dropped more than 9,000 tons of bombs and shot down 290 enemy fighters.

Lt. Col Frank Allen, Chicago, the present group commander, flew a plane in Wednesday's raid with Atkinson as his co-pilot. When he returned he was greeted by Lt. Col Leroy A. Rainey, San Antonio, Tex., who had commended the 97th until recently.

The 200th mission for the group also was the 50th for seven of its members, who thus completed their tour of duty. They included Lt. John W. Turner, Pickton, Tex., a pilot.

NAZIS UNDER SPELL

Calvert is a brother of Mrs. Thomas D. Simpson, 1310 Thirty-second street, and formerly was a farmer in Lubbock county before entering service two years ago. He has been in foreign service with the Army about six months. Sgt. Calvert is a graduate of Ralls High school.

Social Security Cards Should Not Be Taken For Identification

Bankers and business men who normally cash checks for people should not accept social security account number cards as means of identification, according to Erton F. Tate, manager of the Lubbock Social Security board office. The practice is not only dangerous but the social security cards were not intended to be used for such purposes.

"Several individuals have recently applied for account numbers," Tate stated, "who admitted they had no jobs and only wanted the account card in order that they might cash checks at stores without having to go to the bank."

It was explained that the holiday season usually brings forth many fraudulent checks in cities, especially in Army camp centers. Individuals should not accept social security account cards for identification in paying out money on checks, drafts, money orders, etc.

A social security account card is to be used only for the purpose of identifying the wage earner's old-age and survivors insurance account which is maintained by the Social Security board.

The cooperation of all business men is urged by the Social Security board, Tate said.

BOND ADVERSITING URGED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. (AP) — Small town publishers hammered away today against a Treasury department contention that authorization of a $30,000,000 government war bond advertising program would amount to subsidization of the rural press and would thrust insurmountable obstacles in the path of future bond sales.

Compulsory Savings, Spending Tax Urged

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. (AP)—An anti-inflation program calling for greater taxation of spending, less taxation of savings, and compulsory savings through the purchase of war bonds was submitted to the Senate finance committee today by Irving Fisher, professor emeritus of economics at Yale university.

"If we do not check spending and step checking saving, we cannot escape drastic inflation," he told the committee, which is considering the new $2,140,000,000 tax bill.

If necessary, he said, he favored putting all private savings into war bonds and all corporate savings either into such bonds or into government-approved war industry.

Russell Smith, national farmers union representative struck at a provision in the bill, already passed by the House, requiring labor unions, farm cooperatives and similar non-profit groups to file informational financial reports to the Treasury. Smith said the clause "strikes at the heart of cooperatives" and apparently was intended to gain information as the basis for future taxation.

INCREASE RECOMMENDED IN DEFICIENCY ALLOTMENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. (AP)—The sharp axe which the House wielded on the $214,252,000 deficiency appropriation bill a month ago was blunted in spots today by a Senate subcommittee report recommending that the fund be increased by about $140,000,000. The House had slashed the bill almost a billion dollars below budget bureau requests for various war-related purposes.

Stalin's Rugged Background Sharp Contrast With Those Of Roosevelt And Churchill

BY JAMES D. WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Stalin, Churchill and Roosevelt met over a pipe, a stogie, and a long cigaret holder.

Together they represent nearly half the human race.

Each has come a long way.

"FDR" and "Winnie," as their people know them, have similar backgrounds of affluence and family. Far different is the history of Stalin, the worker's son, the revolutionary and frequent inmate of czarist political prisons.

The men are as different as their smoking habits

Joseph Stalin's bulldog pipe, for instance, might symbolize the compact will of himself and his nation to withstand the most violent assault ever launched.

Son Of A Cobbler

STALIN

He was in 15 different czarist jails before the Red revolution, after which he gained a reputation as a military commander and a political figure close to Lenin.

As head of the Communist party's secretariat general he rose to be the supreme ruler of the Soviet Union.

Stalin, a widower; lives simply and works long hours.

He speaks in the plain language of the people, directly, without frills.

Called Greatest Realist

Sir Stafford Cripps calls him "the greatest realist ever born."

Winston Churchill also was toughened in the leadership of a nation at bay. His famous phrase in 1940, "I have nothing to offer you but blood, sweat, toil and tears," is as much a part of his personality as the long cigar his pudgy hand holds like a stick of peppermint candy.

CHURCHILL

Probably no man living equals his inspired command of spoken English, his growling rhetoric and scalding wit.

It was Churchill who described Adolf Hitler as a "bloody gutter-snipe" and froze Mussolini forever into a jest as the "jackal" yapping at Hitler's heels.

Born to position, "Winnie" got through Sandhurst military school but went off to the Boer war as a press correspondent He was captured and escaped.

His long political career has been marked by stormy disputes over individual issues, yet he is a conservative. At the same time he personifies to the world the stubborn fighting qualities of his people and their faith in empire—Mr. England himself.

He paints occasionally. He eats anything, and dearly loves a well-turned phrase.

He was 69 on November 30.

Originated "Fireside Chat"

Franklin D. Roosevelt's ivory cigaret holder, long and tilted high, somehow typifies his joy of living.

ROOSEVELT

He gave birth to the "fireside chat" and never missed an opportunity to carry his ideas to the people by radio. Americans know his voice, a Harvard accent.

Some of his bitterest critics on domestic policies agree with his ideas on America's role in the world. As the nation's first third term president and most widely travelled, he has seen much of the world at first hand.

Churchill met Stalin once before and Roosevelt, expressing the hope to do the same, said recently:

"It's always good to meet the other fellow."

Telephone Service In Turkey "Interrupted"

(By The Associated Press)

The Berlin radio said today that telephone service between Turkey and the outside world, as well as between principal Turkish cities, had been "interrupted" because of the Turkish government's desire to control "rumors arising in connection with a meeting betwen President Inonu of Turkey, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill."

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, did not say where the meeting between the two United Nations leaders and Turkey's president was supposed to have taken place.

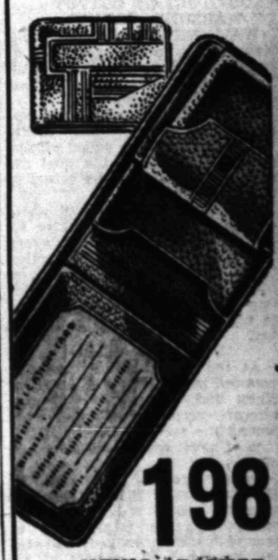

As an alternative, Berlin said the telephone service might have been interrupted by a minor earthquake and heavy gales reported from the Anatolia region in Turkey.

"Impossible" Goal On Ships Topped

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—America's "impossible" shipbuilding goal of 24,000,000 deadweight tons for 1942-43 is already over the top by a comfortable margin with a month to go to set new records.

Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery, vice-chairman of the U. S. Maritime commission, said ships aggregating 25,284,387 deadweight tons had already been delivered to service, with close to 2,000,000 more tons due for delivery in December if the production rate of November (1,692,700) is maintained.

"Helen of Troy has long been known as the girl with the face that launched a thousand ships," Admiral Vickery said in a speech before the university club. "Now anyone would think that the faces of Hitler and Tojo would be only good for stopping clocks, but they make Helen look like a piker."

Giant Strides Reviewed

Reviewing the giant strides made in the two-year program, the admiral pointed out that in all of 1941, 103 ships aggregating 1,100,000 deadweight tons were launched, less than a month's production at the current rate.

Vickery said the "score" for November was 164 ships, including 16 high speed freighters, 19 high speed tankers, 23 ships for military and special use, 89 liberty ships and 17 tankers adapted from liberty design.

RECORD SET ON OUTPUT OF WARSHIPS, PLANES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. (AP)—New records in the production of warships and planes were set in November and the rate of output is increasing in tempo.

By the end of this month approximately 85,800 1943 model warplanes will have rolled off the assembly lines and the goal for next year likely will be raised to about 115,000.

The accelerating pace of plane production reached a total of 8,789 for November, or one every five minutes, the War Production board announced yesterday, and plane builders need only to maintain their present rate of increase to top the 9,000 mark in December.

Dozen New Carriers

At the same time it was announced by Secretary of the Navy Knox that "about a dozen" new aircraft carriers of all types were among the record quarter million tons of naval craft turned out last month.

By this weekend, Knox said, the 1943 program of 260 new destroyer-escort vessels will be completed, bringing the total built to around 300. He previously had said the Navy has 40 carriers of all types, but whether these included the dozen completed in November was not made clear.

Minor Appointed To Liquor Control Board

AUSTIN, Dec. 4 (U.P.) — Gov. Coke R. Stevenson today announced appointment of Fred Minor of Denton to be member of the Texas Liquor Control board. Minor will succeed E. W. Crouch of McGregor, one of the original board members who said he did not wish to serve longer.

Minor, a former legislator, was speaker of the House of the 42nd legislature.

Governor Stevenson announced also the appointment of John Thomas Rather of Houston to be member of the state board of architectural examiners, to succeed Herbert Voelcker of Wichita Falls.

WARRANT CALL ISSUED

AUSTIN, Dec. 4. (U.P.) — State Treasurer Jesse James today issued a call for presentation of $2,516,538 in general revenue warrants that have been unpayable earlier because of the $20,000,000 deficit in the state general revenue fund. Th payment will care for warrants issued prior to March 29, James said.

Yanks Use Ingenuity In Jap Prison Camps

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. (AP) — Yankee enterprise has created in the Japanese internment camp at Baguio, Philippine islands, a complete civil government and enough useful industry to keep the camp's 500 inhabitants busy.

"The prisoners now have their own court of justice," says William M. Portrude of Tacoma, Wash., a Far East General Electric representative who returned aboard the S. S. Gripsholm, the first internee to arrive from the Baguio camp. "They also have their own small prison — a prison within a prison — and they run a grammar school and high school.

"They operate a small community store and are allowed to purchase their own food supplies. Their hospital, though makeshift, is able to take care of cases as serious as brain operations.

"They have set up various workshops. When our supplies of Philippine cigarets was cut off, we bought raw tobacco and learned how to cure it. We set up our own forge and made our own charcoal to run it. The camp dentist made two sets of aluminum teeth out of scrap, and two individual teeth out of pork bones."

Western Trust May Be Avoided

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. (U.P.) — The Army and Navy Register said today that "near future events may avoid the necessity of invasion" of western Europe.

The unofficial service publication made this unelaborated statement in an editorial saying that Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. chief of staff, may go directly to London from the Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin conference.

Marshall long has been reported the United Nation's choice of a commander to lead any cross-channel invasion of western Europe. The register said that in any event Marshall probably would not return here with the presidential party.

Depends On Conference

"Necessity for invasion depends upon decisions reached in Iran and the results thereof in the next few weeks or months," the Register said.

"Near future events may avoid the necessity of invasion, and that is a consummation devoutly wished for.

"In the event an assault invasion, as distinguished from mere military occupation, becomes unnecessary, there would seem to be no reason to transfer Gen. Marshall from his present place as chief of staff of the United States Army to a high command in the European theater, unless his administrative genius is needed for the meeting of the tremendous problems that will confront the occupation commander."

HIGHWAY NEAR COMPLETION

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 4 (AP)—The Pan-American highway has been graveled or paved nearly all the way from the Honduras to the Costa Rican frontier, Undersecretary of Public Works Juan Ignacio Gonzalez said yesterday. Macadamizing of the only remaining dirt stretch, 30 miles between Condega and the northern border, is underway.

LAAF Class To Get Wings Today

Silver wings will be presented to the final class of cadets and aviation students for 1943 at Lubbock Army Air field this morning, with Col. Ralph E. Holmes, commanding officer, scheduled to deliver an address prepared by Maj. Gen. Gerald C. Brandt, commanding the huge Central Flying Training command. All but six of Class 43-K will receive commissions as second lieutenants in the Army Air forces. Six will be designated flight officers.

There was a possibility that Col. Holmes, who was 'weathered in' at San Antonio Saturday, might not arrive today in time for the graduation ceremonies and in case he doesn't Major Walter E. Clark will substitute for him in reading Gen. Brant's message to the graduates.

Eugene A. Rothi will also be recognized as honor cadet, earning this distinction because of his high academic grades. His average academic grade for all subjects was 97.72.

Ten per cent of the graduating class come from Illinois, with Texas a close second, and Kansas not far behind in total numbers. Michigan, with 14 native sons is in fourth place on the class roster.

Graduation exercises will be held in the Post Theater at 10 o'clock this morning. The invocation will be given by Lt. Randall T. Miller, post chaplain, and the oath of office will be administered to the new officers by Maj. Russell DeW. Shively, secretary Following the delivery of General Brant's message the long awaited silver wings will be presented by Capt. Walter A. Gremban, commanding the 4th provisional training squadron, and Lt. Marshall B. Shantz, operations officer of the 2nd provisional training squadron.

Admission will be by invitation only, due to the limited seating capacity and the size of the graduation class.

OFFICE BUILDING BURNS

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 4. (AP) — The one-story office building of the Brown Oil company, two trucks and 20,000 gallons of oil were destroyed here early today when fire, believed to have started from a nearby truck, spread to two 15-foot storage tanks. Damage was estimated at $20,000.

SOLDIER PLEADS INNOCENT

WALTHAM, Mass., Dec. 4 (AP)—Private Francis Victor Joseph Gricus, 28, of the Army Air corps, today pleaded innocent to a charge of murder in the slaying of Mrs. Lillian Parent, 37, mother of three young children, and was held without bail for a further hearing Dec. 17.

...You may not be able to replace them!

Your gas appliances are precious to you.

Most of us will have to wait until after Victory for the new gas appliances that we want. So it's wise to do everything possible to make your present appliances last. It's patriotic too, because it is more important for our fighting men to have guns and bullets than for us to have new appliances.

A well-cared-for gas appliance will give you better service longer. Here are some suggestions that will help you make 'em last:

GAS RANGE: Clean broiler and oven after using. Wash porcelain enamel only when cool. Wash and remove grease and solids from burners. Do not use oven for heating kitchen. Adjust burners so flame is blue (not yellow).

GAS REFRIGERATOR: Defrost frequently. Keep interior clean by washing with solution of lukewarm water and baking soda. Scald ice cube trays. Do not crowd foods in refrigerator.

GAS WATER HEATER: Increase efficiency and avoid tank liming by setting thermostat at less than 140 degrees. Provide free air for combustion. Check flue for condition and proper draft.

GAS FLOOR FURNACE: Periodically as needed, lift grill, clean heating surfaces with brush, remove dust and dirt with vacuum cleaner extension. Check flue for condition and proper draft.

OTHER GAS HEATING EQUIPMENT: Keep burners clean and in proper adjustment.

Additional School Bus Arranged For

After months of effort and of waiting, a new school bus larger than any now in service for Lubbock Independent school district is promised for delivery within the next few days.

The application for permission to buy the bus has been pending in the controlling war agencies for months, according to school officials who reported that the authorization has been given at last.

The delivery is to be made at the factory in Indianapolis to Ray Farmer, general manager of Lubbock Bus company, which operates the school buses under contract with the board of trustees of the school district. Farmer will drive the bus back to Lubbock.

Trustees also announced that an application to buy still another bus probably will be filed at once. They have no idea when action may be taken upon it.

Improved Situation Seen

However, they and other officials in the school system, are of the belief that the one new bus will relieve some of the worst features of transportation problems with which they must contend under war restrictions. They do not pretend that it will solve the problem. They do not expect that a satisfactory "solution" will be possible until after victory—possibly not until some time after victory. But the new bus will help a good deal.

At the present time, according to the report of A. C. Jackson, schools business manager, seven buses serve the school district. Some of them are badly worn and, normally, would have been replaced long ago. They have been continued in operation because replacements have been impossible to secure.

The seven buses, his report continued, travel an average total of slightly more than 350 miles per day in delivering approximately 700 students to and from schools. One bus makes only one "pickup" and one return trip per day traveling 27 1-2 miles per trip. Another five make two such trips per day each. They pick up only those children living three or more miles from Senior High school.

Emergency Bus Added

While awaiting delivery of the new bus, a small vehicle will be put inuto operation during the coming week and will relieve some of the congestion on buses serving the areas west of Arnett-Benson addition and south of Thirty-fourth street, Jackson said. This bus will be retired from service when the new one arrives.

The arrival of the new bus also will make possible some revisions in bus routes and schedules, he added. They will be announced at that time. Until then, he continued, schedules and routes will continue as in the past.

Officials admit that the school bus transportation system is not all that they and patrons would like. But it is a case of doing the best they can with what they can get. This is a fact, school officials added, of which nearly all patrons are fully aware. Other whole, officials said, the spirit of the patrons has been "splendid."

Indicative of the manpower problem with which the school system must contend, officials reported, is the fact that the employment of a number of women drivers for the buses has been necessary. They emphasized, however, that women must pass the same tests as men before they are considered for employment as drivers. Experience with them thus far was termed "highly satisfactory."

Proposal To Prohibit Radio Sales Attacked

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. (AP)—A Senate proposal to prohibit the sale by radio stations of time for the discussion of contriversial issues was attacked today by a member of the Federal Communications commission who asserted freedom of speech would "take a beating."

Commissioner Ray C. Wakefield continued testimony before a Senate interstate commerce subcommittee in opposition to a bill sponsored by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) to establish statutory regulation of broadcasting and redefine the FCC's powers.

Mules Go Hungry
Feed Is Made Into Pancakes

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Dec. 4. (AP) — The boys agreed they had never tasted such delicious pancakes.

And since the cook was in good humor and there was plenty of pancake flour he let them come back for seconds, and thirds, and even fourths.

"They are damned good pancakes," said Maj. Sam Malso of Alexandria, La. "In fact I went back for a second helping myself—but at the time I didn't know the mules would have to go hungry."

And the boys from company X were not feeling so good about that memorable breakfast, either, when they found out they had been eating mule feed cooked up in the form of pancakes.

It happened this way. The company had a mule pack train for hauling supplies in to the mountains to the frontline troops. When the mule feed was sent up, it was put in the same truck with the regular rations and dumped into the kitchen tent after dark.

Before dawn the next morning cookie saw the sacks and the contents felt to him like coarse flour—like the captured German flour which had made such good pancakes back in Tunisia. So he whipped up a big batch of pancakes as a surprise for the boys.

They were surprised when the mule skinners came down to get the mule feed.

Government To Pay Freight Differences

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. (AP) — The government agreed today to reimburse oil refineries for the difference between railroad freight and pipeline traffis on West Texas crude oil moved by tank car to refineries in 15 states, mostly in the middlewest.

Tank car shipments are more expensive than those by pipeline and today's action means the government will foot the difference in order to utilize available refinery facilities in the area to produce the maximum amount of petroleum products.

Commerce Secretary Jesse Jones announced the decision. He said the reimbursement had been asked by Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes, in his capacity as petroleum administrator for war, and approved by James F. Byrnes, director of war mobizilation.

FDR May Act In Liquor Shortage

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (U.P.)—Indicated disagreement between government agencies over the whisky shortage problem may force President Roosevelt to act in the tight alcohol situation, it developed today.

The whisky shortage stems from a War Production board order which converted the distilled spirits industry to the sole production of industrial alcohol for war purposes. No beverage alcohol has been made since Oct. 8, 1942.

WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson said in a statement read before the regional conference on liquor control problems in New York yesterday that WPB is aware of the danger of black market and bootleg operations. He said WPB is "studying the possibility of finding a solution to the problem."

To Consult Jones, Byrnes

It was understood that Nelson probably will take no action however about relaxing the WPB order without consulting War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes and War Food Administrator Marvin Jones. In case of a disagreement, it was pointed out that the decision ultimately might go to the President.

Last fall when bootlegging, hijacking and black markets began developing due to the shortage, Nelson learned it was understood toward a proposal that 10 per cent of the industry's monthly production be diverted temporarily to distillation of whiskey. The War Foods administration, reportedly turned down the plan because in part of the shortage of grain for feeding purposes.

Laraine Day Defends Criticism Of Officers

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 4 (U.P.) — Film Actress Laraine Day's complaint that her recent morale tour of Army camps was monopolized by officers still stands, she said today, despite a statement from Col. James B. Carroll, commanding officer of MacDill Field, Ala., that he thought it was her own fault.

"I should not be forced to defend myself," Miss Day said, "but Washington advised me to cut out my visit to MacDill field because I was not well. However, since I was in Florida, I told them I wanted to make the appearance.

"I did not make the tour as an entertainer; my role was to visit with the soldiers, though I also agreed to appear on the soldiers' program.

"During the program I was seated with the officers and their wives. I wasn't even allowed to sit with the enlisted men before appearing on the stage.

"Then I was informed that I was to have dinner with 500 junior officers and I blew up. Briefly, I said no. But they said the officers were going overseas shortly, and I finally agreed.

"Came dinner, and I found myself in a glass cage with 12 colonels and three generals, while the junior officers dined outside."

MORE CHILDREN'S HOSIERY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. (AP)—To boost production of hosiery for infants and children, the War Production board today ordered manuacturers to bring their production up to its normal volume in relation to other types of hosiery produced by them.

South Plains Soldier, Member Of "Broom Battery", Writes Of Battle For Sicily

Frank Sneed is a computer of a broom battery, if you like.

When the Doughboys find the going up front too rough Sneed's battery of field artillery sweeps the terrain ahead of them of Jerries and gun emplacements and trucks and pack mules and the like.

Sneed has written relatives of this section a sketchy account of what the battle was like in Sicily, in a letter dated Aug. 21. The censor must have been under fire himself that day: He didn't bother to cut anything.

Crossing Was Choppy

The crossing, presumably from North Africa, was choppy. At 10 o'clock (night) the battery, lying under blankets in their boats to protect bodies from the chill breeze and hide the glow of cigarets from prowling airmen, listened to the heavy opening of a naval barrage begin the "pre-H-hour" softening up of the beach. Some began manning machineguns for anti-aircraft protection.

Sneed knew when they went over the side there would be no sleep for many — that there might be permanent sleep for others — so he decided to catch a few winks. He did, but soon sleep was impossible. "Too much lead flying, and a few hostile planes began buzzing around as we got in closer to the beach. It was too dark for them to spot targets though. Then it began to get light and we could see an occasional plane. That was when all hell broke loose.

Impressive Fireworks

"Maybe you have seen fireworks before, but you haven't seen anything till you watch about 200 .50 caliber machineguns and the 20 and 40 AAs firing a criss-cross of tracers with a Jerry plane right where they cross. Most of the Jerries decided it was too hot for them, but a few were more faithful to their cause and tried dive-bombing us.

"They never came out of their dives — unless they can fly under water . . ."

Then the real business. A Ranger battalion went over the side, and infantry swarmed ashore on the beaches. The Navy raised its barrage and let it creep ahead of the advancing men.

Licata fell that day, and the march to Palermo commenced immediately. In Palermo there was a three-day rest. The general said go to Messina — and get there in 14 days. It took 16, with the field artillery and the airplanes having to blast a virtual path all the way.

Adolph lost lots of equipment —and he isn't having to pay lots of soldiers who used to answer when their names were called.

In all the ruckus, young Sneed didn't get a scratch. He did, however, get some powder burns.

He has a brother, Fletcher, somewhere in Italy, and a brother, Junior, in training in Richmond, Ky. His home was near Idalou, where he completed high school and lived seven years. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Sneed of Petersburg.

Fire Losses Here Mounting Sharply

Insured fire losses in Lubbock, already heightened by a rash of 484 emergency alarms answered by the fire department this year—as compared with the earlier all-time record of 362 in 1942—mounted a possible $30,000 to $40,000 Friday night when interior and stock of Household Supply company's building at Thirteenth street and Avenue Q burned, part of its roof was destroyed and two of its brick walls weakened.

Varying losses, much lighter, also were reported by seven other businesses housed in six nearby stores and shops joined only by firewalls. Damage to those places, in the main, was confined to smoke, occasional breakage of plate glass display windows, and to ceilings that dropped under weight of water.

No Official Estimates

No official estimates of damage could be obtained, pending investigation by fire insurance adjusters, but it generally was said that insured losses "scarcely could be less than $15,000 and might run twice that or more."

W. Guy Casey, fire marshal, said there was a possibility the loss might run $30,000 to $40,000.

Casey rather grimly foresaw possibility that recent fires, six of which have been reported in November, might push the insured fire loss of 1943 to date to "as to much or slightly more than $100,000."

Insured losses in 1942 totaled approximately $120,000, and resulted in lowering by 5 per cent of the good fire record credit to 20 per cent.

"There is an imminent possibility of our losing another 5 per cent credit as result of our 1943 insured losses," Casey said, adding that "it all must depend on what the final check shows"

All Equipment Used

Firemen at Central station received the first alarm at 10:02 o'clock, and it wasn't long before every available piece of equipment from that and the Nineteenth street station was combatting flame or directing precautionary streams of water on other buildings of the "G. P. Kuykendall block" of business houses built in 1939.

Most damage to nearby businesses was to Chism's bakery, at 1216 Avenue Q; Baldwin's Flower shop, at 1214 Avenue Q. Plate glass windows were broken in both places, and whole sections of heavy insulation in the ceiling dropped. Both places are north of the supply company.

One door to the westward, in Ladyfair Beauty service, at 1710 Thirteenth street, there was much smoke damage, a slight water damage, a yard-wide hole a man almost could step through without bending, damage to two small tables and to one electric dryer. Lawrence Electric company, at 1712 Thirteenth street, had smoke smudges on walls and furnishings.

Other Shops Damaged

At 1212 Avenue Q, where the New Wrinkle shoppe and Vernon Harris Knit shop are located, all furnishings, stock and wrapped gifts were hurried into the street and into Cloverlake Dairy store, at 1210 Avenue Q. Both those places were invaded by dense clouds of smoke.

Kuykendall said he felt "confident" his property was covered by insurance, and it was learned late Saturday that contents on all the other buildings except for the flower and the beauty shops were insured. Neither of those places, however, suffered apparent heavy loss.

Business continued uninterruptedly at the flower and electric shops; the bakery requested permission of the city health department to give large quantities of cakes and buns and various other bakery products so well wrapped that they were not touched by smoke or water, to the Salvation Army and to Lubbock Milam's home. J. W. Chism said his bakery would continue its wholesale business, baking at the Holsum bakery plant at 1502 Avenue Q, but that his retail store would be closed "probably a day or two." He said his damage, "probably covered by insurance, was to large stocks of flour and shortening and the like, and to some of our equipment, which must be cleaned up and much of it painted." New Wrinkle shoppe and the knit shop asked that, since all packages would have to be inspected to determine whether there had been breakage or other damage, the public not call for Christmas or other other gift packages before Tuesday. Cloverlake store announced it had reopened Saturday night. The beauty shop personnel was working on floors and walls, and Mrs. C W. McFarland, manager, said, "we will be open Monday, as usual."

Air Tank Explodes

Firemen said a large air tank in the rear of the supply company store exploded just about the time they arrived and blew glass through doors and windows and burst a section of the wall forming the east boundary of the beauty shop.

"If our boys had been there three minutes earlier somebody might have been killed," one fireman suggested. "We'd have been right in the doorways with our hose."

Other witnesses explained that a terrific blast, "as though by an accumulation of gas, went off to start the fire."

That caused some investigators to wonder if gas from a leaking line might have accumulated in the ceiling of the store. A sheet of flame, witnesses said, spread over the supply company immediately after the first blast.

Drawing Puts Writer On Ill-Fated Bomber

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 4.—A small slip of paper drawn from an Army cap months ago for an unknown assignment put an American war correspondent into an ill-fated Lancaster bomber which failed to return from last night's giant attack on Berlin.

The correspondent, 24-year-old Lowell Bennett of International News Service, was one of three reporters missing on the raid, raising to 115 the total casualties suffered by British-American war correspondents in this war.

The others missing today were Norman Stockton of the Sydney (Australia) Sun and a London correspondent whose name was withheld pending notification of his family.

The last two went on personal applications as individual correspondents. Bennett represented the big three American news services, the Associated Press, United Press and Ins.

An American Army officer acting as neutral referee drew from a hat a slip marked "Ins" to decide which of the three services would send a man in the one place allotted for an unexplained mission. The winner was to write a combined press account for the three services.

Bennett tossed a coin with a fellow Ins staff man, William Wade, for the assignment and Bennett won the toss.

There was no indication whether he was killed, but it was considered he had at least a 50-50 chance of reaching the ground unharmed.

Bennett has a wife, Elizabeth—an expectant mother — and a young son, Alan, in South Orange, N. J.

During the war 27 American and British correspondents have been killed, 10 reported missing, 33 wounded and 45 made prisoners of war or interned.

Uniform Rates Asked On Rail Shipments

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. (U.P.) — Uniform freight rates on all classified types of rail shipments in the United States were recommended today by two Interstate Commerce Commission examiners who backed complaints of southern states that the present rate structure is discriminatory.

The report, an outgrowth from the commission's class rate investigation begun in 1939, held that continued assignment of non-uniform ratings "would cause undue and unreasonable preference and advantage."

W. P. Bartel, secretary of the ICC, said that disagreements to the report, proposed by Examiners Paul O. Carter and William J. Koebel, were to be filed by Jan. 15, 1944.

ICC's investigations were begun in response to long standing complaints that classifications of rates on freight particularly in the southern and southwestern sections of the country were unfair, retarding industrial growth.

The two, Mr. and Mrs. John Virgil Zenz of Bountiful, Utah, were convicted of taking a 15-year old girl to Las Vegas, Nev., for immoral purposes. The girl testified she accompanied them as Zenz' bigamous wife.

Bulgarians Reported In Serious Revolt

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP)—A break in morale and revolt among some of Germany's Bulgarian mercenaries helping Hitler's battle in Yugoslavia was reported today by the Yugoslav Partisans as they fought on against Nazi legions being constantly reinforced for a showdown along the eastern Adriatic.

A broadcast communique from General Josip Broz (Tito) declared that on the Serbian-Bosnian frontier, Bulgarian soldiers had refused orders of their German commanders to fight, and that the Nazis had disarmed an entire battalion of Bulgarians in one instance.

London — although considering the possibility of exaggeration—received the news with interest, for it could reresent a crack in the dam Hitler has built to keep the Allied flood out of the Balkans.

Crisis Drawing Near In Europe

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

The third war year dawns for the United States this week bright with promise that the crisis in Europe is drawing close amid ill omens for Japan as well as for Germany.

On the second anniversary of Pearl Harbor, the tide of defeat is running heavily against the treacherous Japanese foe in the Pacific. Events unfolding in New Guinea, the Solomons and the Gilberts lend terrible force to the Anglo-American-Chinese death decree pronounced at Cairo even though they are but curtain raisers for events to come.

SIMPSON

Since erection of the hit-Hitler-first keystone of Allied global strategy, it has proved itself to the point here neither Chinese nor Australian spokesmen still challenge its wisdom. And at Teheran, Iran, the capstone of the European victory arch has been prepared in Russian-Allied high councils as surely as the foundations are being set in the Pacific, in Burma, India and China, for Allied operations on a scale that will in due course destroy Japan as a world power.

There is every indication that the new Allied Pacific strategy, just ratified by the Churchill-Roosevelt-Chiang Kai-Shek meeting at Cairo calls for bold action. There has been repeated official assertion that something faster paced than an Island-hopping advance in the Pacific is being fashioned in the Solomons, Gilberts and on New Guinea, although no intimation is given as to what form or direction it will take over first essential island objectives are secured.

Embargo On Shipment Of Hogs May Be Asked

CHICAGO, Dec. 4 (AP)—An embargo on the shipment of hogs to the Chicago union stockyards may be required if supplies are not cleared over the weekend, livestock observers said today.

While fresh receipts of hogs this week have not been excessive, the number of hogs bought at outside markets and shipped here direct to packers has been large enough to meet slaughter house requirements.

These "direct" shipments, plus the arrival of salable head, have created the worst jam in the history of meat processing plants here. Packers have been unable to slaughter all offerings, and as a result, many hogs are being held over each day in the yards.

The government is reported to have a plan already set up on an embargo to go into effect unless the situation becomes less serious within the next few days.

There were 3,455 West Point men serving in World War I.

Rangoon Rambler, Crew Return From Burma-India Theater

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (U.P.) — The B-24 Liberator bomber, Rangoon Rambler, has rambled back to the United States with its crew of 10—the first bomber crew to return from the India-Burma theater.

Crew members have plenty of hair-raising tales to tell of action over the Japanese-filled jungles where everything from monsoons to Japanese Zeros spell death to American airmen.

Their most exciting raid, they said, was the low level bombing of a strategic bridge deep in enemy territory. The Rangoon Rambler swept up the river so low it was below the edges of the bank, straffing Japanese on docks, boats and shore and then skip-bombing the bridge and leap-frogging over it.

In Action 15 Months

All in all, plane and crew were in action for 15 months during which they sank four enemy ships and shot down six Zeros. They are credited with 400 combat hours and 56 missions.

With them when they returned was Eric Sevareid, CBS news commentator.

The crew, all decorated with one medal or another, some with several, include S-Sgt. Edward M. Salley, of Houston, and 1st Lt. Robert F. Currie, Big Spring, Tex.

Sweden Asked To Leave Nazis Alone

(By The Associated Press)

Sweden's protest against the Nazi order to deport 1,200 Norwegian students and professors brought a curt request today from Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop that Sweden refrain "from further interference in German-Norwegian affairs," the Berlin radio said.

The broadcast added that von Ribbentrop had expressed to the Swedish charge d'affaires in Berlin his astonishment at the protest.

The Swedish government Wednesday night handed the German minister in Stockholm a "most urgent request" that Berlin cancel its order arresting and deporting the students charged with "illegal activity against Germany."

A statement from the minister of foreign affairs accompanying the request said it was made "in the interest of future Swedish-German relations."

U. S. Said Facing Crisis On Fuel

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. (AP)—Interior Secretary Ickes has told Congress that the country faces a fuel crisis unparalleled in its history as a result of the loss of 40,000,000 tons of coal production through miners' strikes.

He made this statement, it was learned today, in asking for a $3,550,000 special supplemental appropriation to carry out a plan of allocating available coal supplies this winter. The Senate subcommittee on deficiency appropriations approved the amount.

District Offices Planned

District allocation offices would be set up in 65 cities under Ickes' plan.

In a letter to the subcommittee Ickes' office said the latest series of strikes, in late October and early November, cut coal production 10,000,000 tons on top of a production loss of 30,000,000 tons during earlier work stoppages growing out of the contract dispute between John L. Lewis' United Mine workers and operators.

"This presents a fuel crisis unparalleled in the history of the country," the letter said.

TEXANS NEED NOT WORRY ABOUT FUEL SHOTAGE

DALLAS, Dec. 4 (U.P) — Since Texas predominantly uses natural gas, most government and coal and oil officials were agreed today that Texans need not worry about a fuel shortage this winter.

With the largest reserve of natural gas in the world plus usually mild winters, most Texans probably will bask in warmth this winter and give only a passing thought to their shivering cousins in the North and East.

However, the few users of coal may not get as much as they have been used to, at least for another month or so. J. E. Dickinson, president of the Dickinson fuel company, which serves Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas, said the coal shortage is particularly acute in this section. He predicted that civilian coal users in these three states will have to get by on 30 per cent less coal. Principal cause of the shortage here, he said, was the influx of new wartime users, chiefly military, whose demands were being met first.

Mule Deer "Tenpoint" Goes Too Far; His Free Days Numbered

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 4 (U.P) "Tenpoint's" days of freedom to roam Jackson county rural areas definitely are numbered, Zoo Director William T. A. Cully promised today as he organized his men in a hunt for the mule deer.

Tenpoint has been regarded with affection by a considerable part of Kansas City's citizenry for several years. But yesterday he went too far.

He wandered into the farm yard of W. J. Sanders and left the family's Holstein-Jersey cow, Queeny, dying of wounds from his antlers. Mrs. Sanders rushed to the cow's defense, too late to save her, but in time to take two shots at Tenpoint as he leaped a fence and scampered off through a wood. She missed.

Residents At Odds

Joining the Sanders in demands that the animal be shot were most of the farmers of the area. Kansascitians cited the game laws and threatened to take steps if Tenpoint was killed. Cully, who never has seen the deer, was summoned to mediate.

He reported Tenpoint dines more or less regularly with cattle belonging to Charles A. Jackson. If the deer comes to dinner there today he will find Cully waiting, lariat in hand.

The zoo director has no explanation for Tenpoint's presence in the area just outside metropolitan Kansas City. He is not a zoo-escapee, since Cully's establishment never owned a member of that particular species.

Tenpoint first appeared several years ago. Recently motorists have seen his antlers in roadside brush with increasing frequency, and he has been an occasional visitor at many forms. Cully will exhibit him at the zoo, he said, if and when he catches him.

A Bit Of Home To Be Provided For Montana Soldier At Abilene

BOZEMAN, Mont., Dec. 4 (AP)—Sometimes, when a fellow's away, he longs for little things, like the sound of the creaky back gate at home. Or maybe it's the earthy smell of a freshly-turned furrow. Usually he just keeps on wishing.

It'll be different for Montana soldiers stationed at Abilene, Texas.

A few of them got to talking about home, and how they'd like to touch Montana soil again.

So they talked with a USO director, and said they'd be glad to pay for a box of Montana earth. The director wrote Gov. Sam C. Ford, who arranged with Acting President R. R. Renne of Montana State college, to fill the request as a Yuletide gift.

And Christmas night a group of Montana boys in Texas will be "home for just a little.

Argentina Has Record Bread Cereal Crop

CHICAGO, Dec. 4 (AP) — While the United States is worrying about the production of sufficient wheat to meet the extraordinarily heavy demands for the staff of life, Argentina is in the process of turning out a near record bread cereal crop, the Department of Agriculture reported today.

The South American country is glutted with wheat, with the government considering the construction of underground storage space to handle the supply. An acute storage situation is complicated by a critical shortage of bags in which to place the grain.

Rathbone Passes Bobcats To 26-7 Win Over Ysleta

EL PASO, Tex., Dec. 4. (AP)—Milton Rathbone's passing and Milford Taft's running swept San Angelo to a 26-7 victory over Ysleta today in a Texas schoolboy football bi-district game.

Undefeated, untied San Angelo now meets Vernon in the quarter-finals.

Taft scored one San Angelo touchdown on a running play and Rathbone passed for the other three with Carley counting twice and Horner once.

The Bobcats did all their scoring in the first three periods with Ysleta's touchdown coming in the closing minutes when Bob Cahzs caught a pass from Charles Harris.

San Angelo outrushed Ysleta 244 yards to 42 and made 177 on passes against 77. Rathbone completed nine of eleven passes.

Delegations from San Angelo and Vernon will meet in Abilene at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon to set the time and place for the Vernon-San Angelo quarter-final game, it was announced from San Angelo last night.

Vernon reached the quarter final round Friday afternoon with a victory over the Pampa Harvesters, conquerers of the mighty Amarillo Golden Sandies.

The SPORTS EYE

By Mack Turner

FIVE Wins, one tie and two losses isn't such a bad average for picking the Texas schoolboy races. Of course, the tie goes in the lost column, but that still isn't bad picking.

Now that the smoke of the first battle has cleared away, it is with deep interest that we look ahead. It is still tougher to pick them farther down the line, for the going gets rougher all the way.

We hate to see the Breckenridge Buckaroos go out of the race like they did. Those penetration and first down wins always leaves a rather bitter taste in the mouth, but there has to be some way of breaking the ties and that is about the fairest method.

THE quarter final rounds this week offer three tough games to pick. They can go either way, as we see them, and there is but little on which to base a selection.

It is our personal opinion that San Angelo Bobcats will have but little trouble in beating the Vernon Lions. We picked Pampa to do it last week, and maybe Vernon will fool us again, but we doubt it.

The other game in the north half offers a very hard afternoon for two very fine football teams. The Highland Park Scotties and Sunset Bisons are two great football teams.

Again we still stay with the team that came through for us in the first week, and pick Highland Park to down the Bisons. But as in the Vernon case, maybe the Bisons will fool us again. Sunset has been a consistent winner in recent years, and have played prominent parts in state playoffs for a long time.

IN THE third game on schedule, we will keep following the same rule as before, and pick the club that delivered last week against the club we picked to lose last week. That means — Lufkin over Waco.

But any team that can even tie Breckenridge is a ball club that won't be a pushover for any team. Waco is a fast improving club, just reaching a peak, and that often means a lot in the state playoffs.

In the fourth game of the week, we are faced with the task of picking from two good teams that delivered for us last week. Goose Creek delivered over Jeff Davis and Thomas Jefferson came through against unbeaten McAllen. By a flip of a coin, we are picking Thomas Jefferson over Goose Creek.

The state champion? We can only revise our statement of last week by saying that since there will be no Lufkin-Breckenridge game, the finals will be between the winner of the Lufkin-Waco game and Highland Park. We reserve selection of that winner until the Sunday before they play.

WE SAID last week that there could hardly be an upset staged in the bi-district games They were that evenly matched to our way of thinking. But we wonder if we were not fooled.

It was no upset in the fact that Sunset beat North Side of Fort Worth. But it has all the earmarks of an upset that a good team like North Side could be kicked around by such a score as Sunset plastered on the Fort Worth boys.

But those Bisons have never been outstanding teams, but have always managed to wiggle into the front when the chips were down. They have always seemed to put forth that certain something that has made them one of the most successful football teams in the state for the past three or four years.

Waco was kicked around early in the season, then started clicking. They have battled through into the quarter finals and look to have a great ball club. They have that certain something that almost every champion in the recent years have had.

Austin was kicked around last year, and hit a late peak to march to a schoolboy crown almost unchallenged. The year before the Wichita Falls Coyotes were kicked around by everything that came along in the early season, but when the pitching arm of Gene Hill got limbered up, it was too bad then.

The year before that, the Amarillo Sandies were pretty well favored all the way, and delivered in fine style to beat Temple in the finals and carry on the tradition of favorite to the very end.

But the year before that it was the "Cinderella Kids" from Lubbock. If you will remember, they were picked to lose week after week, but just refused to believe what the critics said about them.

So just because there is no fanfare about a few of the teams, it is no cinch to pick the winners in this Texas schoolboy football, and feel like you have a sure thing. But I'll still stick to my picks.

I'll be seeing you.

Southwest May Expand Spring Sport Setups

DALLAS ,Dec. 4. (AP) — Expansion of the spring sports program is seen as a strong possibility by Dr. J. C. Dolley, president of the Southwest Conference which holds its annual meeting here next week-end.

Dr. Dolley said in Austin today that the outlook for the spring sports program would be the principal item of business to be considered by the conference faculty committee.

He saw the possibility of other schools participating in baseball this spring in addition to Texas, Rice and Texts A. and M. He said if any of the three dropped out and no more were added, it would mean the virtual end to baseball competition for the duration.

While the question of continuing football next year will be discussed, indications are that there will be no change in the set-up and that the six schools tha had teams in the field this season will do the same in 1944. One source said a survey had shown all the schools in favor of going ahead.

The faculty committee will meet Friday night and Saturday morning with the coaches and athletic directors holding their session Saturday. Principal business for the latter meeting is arranging the basketball schedule in which there will be full participation since Baylor has decided to make the race again although having dropped football and other sports.

Dr. Dolley said he believed the last meeting ironed out all questions regarding wartime eligibility and he did not anticipate further revisions along that line.

Landis Refuses New Appeal By Phil Prexy

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. (AP) — For six and a half hours today, William D. Cox, recently resigned president of the Philadelphia Phillies, pleaded with Commissoner Kenesaw M. Landis to take back the decision barring him from baseball for life for betting on ball games. Then the commissioner spoke for half an hour—and said "No."

In an open hearing in a jammed hotel meeting room, Cox tried to prove through his own testimony and that of a series of witnesses that when he admitted to Landis that he had made 15 or 20 bets of from $25 to $100 each on the Phils, it was all part of a plan to "smoke out" some one in the Phillies' organization of whose loyalty he was suspicious.

Then Landis summoned Nathan Alexander, an office employe of the Phils, and Bucky Harris, who was fired by Cox last July as manager of the club. Both gave testimony purporting to show the 34-year-old lumber company executive did do some betting. And finally, the white-haired high commissioner pointed to Cox's November 23 radio broadcast statement that he had made some "small sentimental bets."

"The Judge" then turned down Cox's plea for return to eligibility in baseball.

Coaches White, Price Starts Cagers Monday

Coaches Dixie White and Howard Price issued the first call for Lubbock Westerner basketball stars to report right after school Monday afternoon at the high school gymnasium.

Coach White said Saturday night that he was looking forward to a big season with the cagers, and that with the expected return of several lettermen, the prospects for the year were very bright.

Coach White also said that he wanted all boys interested in trying out for the team to turn out Monday, for the battle for places on the squad would be a wide open battle.

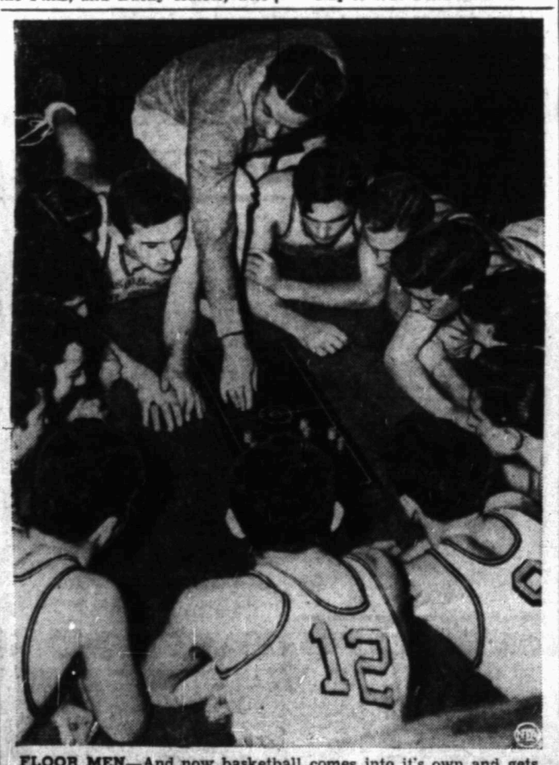

Nothing has been worked out in the way of a schedule for the team, but games will be matched as soon as the team has started workouts, and "sort of got the feel of the ball," White explained.

Texas Lands Four Men On All-Southwest 1943 Team

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Editor

DALLAS, Dec. 4 (AP)—All-State in high school one year, All Conference in college the next. That's the way Goble Bryant played football.

And that's just one of the unusual features of the All-Southwest Conference team selected by the Associated Press with the assistance of coaches, scouts and officials.

For the first time in many seasons every school is represented; for the first time in history two freshmen are on it. The first-year men both are from Texas A. and M.—Bryant, a line star, and Jim Hallmark, ace passer and runner.

Another selection—Ralph Ellsworth of Texas—might be considered in the same category in that he did not play freshman football but as a sophomore was a star of the team.

The University of Texas, which won the championship and allowed only 20 points in conference play, dominates the selection with four men—three of them backs. Joe Parker, who played six games before being sent to another school where there was no football, landed at an end position. J. R. Calahan, Texas' great all-around star; Joe Magliolo, veteran blocker, and Ellsworth were the Longhorns getting backfield spots.

Pairing with Parker was Abe Croft, the highly consistent Southern Methodist wingman. Tackles went to Clyde Flowers of Texas Christian, the mighty linebacker, and Charles Malmberg, who didn't get to finish the season at Rice but left the memory of a great job while in the Owl line.

Bryant and Leon Pense, the Arkansas handyman, were the guards. Bryant played tackle but was shifted to a spot beside center because he deserved to be on the team somewhere. Pense not only played center, guard and tackle but did most of the Arkansas passing.

At center was a young fellow who didn't get to stay around for the finish—Billy Hale, the ex-Texas Tech star who did a grand job for Texas Christian before departing in the Navy program.

The second team is very strong—in fact several members of it came within a hairs-breadth of landing on the first selection. It was hard to leave off such fellows as Marion Settegast, Aggie Wingman; Herb Turley, A. and M. guard; Ed Cloud, Southern Methodist center; Ralph Park, Texas back; Franklin Butler, Texas guard, and Marion Flanagan and Stan Turner, Aggie backs. Then, there were Alton Baldwin and Jim Young, Arkansas line stars; Marcel Gres, big Texas tackle, and Jim Lucas, the Pecos Peach at Texas Christian, not to mention fellows like Clyde Harville, brilliant Texas end, and Claud Hill, Southern Methodist, and Damon Tassos, Texas A. and M., two fine guards.

Calahan, Hale Named On All-Southwestern

Texas Tech football fans can well be proud of the two Red Raiders who represented the school in the Southwest Conference this year.

J. R. Calahan, star back with the Texas University Longhorns, and Billy Hale, Texas Christian University center, were both named today on the All-Southwest Conference team.

Both of them would have been playing for Texas Tech this season under normal conditions. Both were transferred from Texas Tech through Navy training units and landed at their adopted schools this year where they carried on the tradition of Techland.

Both men will have another year of eligibility left with the Red Raiders, and Tech fans are hoping to see them back here after the war is over.

Calahan came to Texas Tech from Wink high school and Hale was a former Amarillo Golden Sandie.

Techmen Look Good In Cage Drill With Army

Coach Polk Robison seemed well pleased with the showing of his "tall timber" basketball team at Texas Tech after an hour scrimmage with the Army Engineers at the field gym.

The scrimmage was held pretty well under regular game conditions and gave Robison a good idea of what his team would have for this year. The Engineers were made up of a number of former well known college stars from many parts of the country, but are not eligible for play with Tech.

The Red Raiders held their own until late in the battle when the Engineers began to pull out into the front to pile up a comfortable lead.

Hubert Bechtol and Carl Hudson sparked the Red Raiders in the workout, and it was after they had been taken from the floor that the soldiers piled up the lead.

Noland Weeks and Don Grove were also showing up well for the Raiders, each hitting their share of the goals in the closing minutes of the scrimmage.

Texas Tennis Star In Florida Meet Finals

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 4 (AP)—Sgt. Reuben Riskind of the Third Air Force, former University of Texas tennis star from Eagle Pass, Texas, who holds the Tampa City amateur championship, and young Lyman Chanault, city junior champion, will clash tomorrow in the finals of the Davis Island Open Tennis Tournament.

Riskind was forced to three hrd sets tody in beating Coast Guardsman Fred Andrews, former St. Petersburg and Birmingham, Ala., pro to join the Plant high school player in the title round. The scores were 6-3, 6-8, 6-3.

Zeb Eaton To Be Back With Detroit Tigers

DETROIT, Dec. 4. (AP) — The Detroit Tigers announced today that pitcher Zeb Eaton, a farmhand who last played with Beaumont of the Texas League, had received a medical discharge from the Army and would seek a mound job next spring.

In the Army he played with the Camp Wolters, Tex., nine.

LAAF Expects Strong Basketball Club As Workouts Started

Lubbock Army Air field will put some good hardwood men on the court when it opens the basketball season.

Although several practice sessions have been held in scrimmage form with other teams on the post, the team has not yet officially opened the 1944 campaign. Nor can it be said just how extensive the schedule will be.

Limitations placed on travel are the chief reason for indefinite plans for the team, Lt. Anthony Ferri, team coach, said Saturday. There are, however, tentative games on the card, enough to make the season interesting for the team and for fans, he added.

Familiar to Lubbock fans will be Norman Volz, whose fine work at Texas Tech won him wide acclaim. Roger Smith, also a former Red Raider, but more familiar to football fans, also is making a bid for the team.

Lt. James E. Paul, formerly of Texas College of Mines at El Paso, and Lt. James L. McDonald, who formerly attended Massachusetts State college, are the team's only officers and both have looked good in practice sessions.

From an Abilene Christian college team of recent years comes Bruce Pryor. Buster Dixon, whose specialty is football, like Smith, Volz and Arnold Teusink, is doubling in basketball. He also is from ACC.

Don Newell, formerly of Kansas Wesleyan university, is another promising prospect, as is Teusink, a Michigan boy, and Keith Peterson, a South Dakotan. Robert Brewer, from Tennessee; James B. Sellers, a Georgian, and Glen Grieser, from Nebraska, likewise are making themselves known.

Something more definite in the way of a schedule is expected soon, Lt. Ferri said.

The seven-team Enlisted Men's league at Lubbock Army Air field opens competition for the post championship Monday night in the huge new post gymnasium.

Lt. Anthony Ferri, physical training director and organizer of theloop, said well balanced competition was expected through some two months of play. Numerous former college players are listed on member clubs.

Games will be played each Monday and Thursday night throughout the schedule. One team will draw a bye each night.

Monday night's card follows:

495th TEFT squadron vs. 355th Aviation squadron, 7 p. m.; 84th Headquarters squadron vs. Finance detachment, 8 p. m., and Medical detachment vs. 498th TEFT squadron, 9 a. m. 1017th Guard squadron will be idle.

Tulsa Club Balanced Better Than In 1942

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 4. (U.P) — A better-balanced team than represented Tulsa last year in the Sugar Bowl football game at New Orleans will leave here Christmas to meet Georgia Tech, New Year's day.

Tulsa last Jan. 1 had one of the passingest clubs in America, but Tennessee's defense along with its own potent offense tamed the Golden Hurricane.

This year Tulsa Coach Henry Frnka has a fairly good ground attack. He has won six games, tied one and lost none, without too much emphasis on passing. However, Tulsa has a season average of better than 140 yards per game on passes alone.

The key man in Tulsa's passing attack is Clyde Leforce, a Bristow, Okla., product, who also kicks and passes with skill. In 1942, Leforce understudied Tulsa's All-America back, Glenn Dobbs.

Frnka has a large squad, and the boys are big and rough. He's managed to keep his players in good condition throughout the season by frequent substitutions. Consequently Tulsa enters the Sugar Bowl game in good physical condition and with no ineligibilities.

Frnka saw Georgia Tech crush Georgia, Nov. 27. He has the highest respect for the Southerners. "Georgia Tech has a hard-hitting club with power to spare," said Frnka.

The Tulsans begin workouts here within the next few days, then leave about Christmas Day for New Orleans.

Region Two Title Game To Be At Seminole On Friday

SEMINOLE, Dec. 4. (Special)—The Seminole Indians and the Wink Wildcats will tangle here Friday afternoon at 2:30 for the championship of Region 2, Class A, it was announced here tonight by Coach M. R. "Shorty" Hayburst.

The site of the game was decided by the flip of a coin following the Saturday afternoon victory by Wink over the Merkel club in the bi-district game at Wink. Hayburst scouted the game, and attended the meeting while in Wink.

A big cash offer from Wink was turned down in order to bring the game to Seminole where the home fans, who have supported the Indians all season, could see the final battle of the season.

Seminole started slow this season, but have gained speed with each game and Friday stormed into the regional finals with a thumping 28 to 0 victory over the powerful Levelland Lobos.

Coach Hayhurst said Saturday night that the team escaped injury in the Levelland game, and would resume workouts for the highly rated Wink Wildcats Monday afternoon.

Wink Wildcats Ease By Merkel Club, 12-7

WINK, Dec. 4.(AP)—Charles Dennis and J. L. Dodd paired to rack up a couple of touchdowns and give the Wink Wildcats a 12 to 7 victory over Merkel in a bi-district championship game here this afternoon.

The game was played in the rain, but this failed to halt the powerful machine of the Wink Wildcats from crushing into another regional final battle with the Seminole Indians.

Wink took the lead in the opening period with Dennis crossing the goal line for the score.

A touchdown by Denison and Smith's extra point kick gave Merkel a half time lead of 7-6, but Dodd put the game back in Wink's hands with his third quarter score.

Meeting Planned Soon For Athletic Leaders

School athletic leaders will meet sometime in the near future for the purpose of launching the movement planned last week, and approved by the school board, for the enlargement of the athletic program in Lubbock schools.

The greatest handicap to the opening of the program is the obtaining of coaches for the various athletic ventures. This shortage of manpower is certain to curtail the plans somewhat for awhile, but the work will be started as fast as it is possible.

At the meeting it will be discussed just what phases of the master plan can be started first, and which will have to wait for later dates.

Under the unsettled conditions of the present time, the obtaining of the proper leaders for such a large scale move is the greatest problem. It is a great problem for high schools alone, and some parts of the plan will have to wait until the close of the war.

Every effort is being carried out for filling the posts as fast as proper men can be found, and every part of the plan will be started at the earliest possible date, committee members assure.

The program is being designed to include the girls of Lubbock schools as well as the boys and is a city-wide venture.

Gladewater Ruled Out Of League Cage Play

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 4. (U.P) — Gladewater high school has been disqualified to receive any Interscholastic League basketball honors during the 1944 season, the Texas Interscholastic Leaguer, organization publication, announced today.

The disqualification was for using two players in inter-school games who were found ineligible by the state executive committee, the Leaguer said. The penalty does not prohibit Gladewater from playing games.

Minnesotan Gets Big Response To Offers

ATLANTA, Dec. 4 (AP)—Whatever became of that Minnesotan who offered to swap half his pile of shotgun shells for some quail hunting in Georgia?

Well, says the Georgia Game and Fish Commission, the ink scarcely was dry on newspapers which carried the story when a deluge of offers began. Some Georgians offered free rooms and board, along with use of dogs and saddle horses. Others offered "the limit" every day.

Discrepancy In War Reports Explained

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—Inquiries concerning several instances in which relatives were notified recently that men had been killed in action, then told that they were not dead, but wounded, resulted today in this explanation at the War department:

In connection with the transmission and receipt of one list from Italy involving one type of casualty, an error was made. All next of kin who were misinformed have been appraised of the facts along with the profound regrets of the War department; this is the first error of this kind to come to the attention of the department.

Amarillo Army Man Pays Tribute To Pony Star Killed In Battle

By DON WHITEHEAD
Associated Press Writer

With the Fifth Army Near Mignano, Italy, (AP)—Rain beat gently on the tent and the rolling thunder of artillery was like a heavy surf pounding on a beach. A young captain stared at a citation for valor and let a cigar go dead in his fingers.

"Remember Johnny Sprague of Southern Methodist University?" he said. "Johnny was a great blocking back. And Johnny was a great guy, I know. He was my best friend."

Capt. Vincent M. Lockhart, (3603 Tyler St.), Amarillo, Tex., slowly folded the citation posthumously awarding Johnny Sprague of Dallas a medal for valor.

"Johnny was a real man," he mused. "He was about six feet three and weighed around two-ten. He was a blocking back on one of SMU's great teams, the year they played Stanford in the Rose Bowl. Remember that was the year the Rose Bowl was billed as a duel between Bobby Wilson and Bobby Grayson.

"Well, Johnny was Bobby's blocking back. He was the boy who cleared the way for Bobby. Stanford beat SMU that year. Johnny always said it was because the team went to the coast too early and everybody wanted to entertain them and when time for the game came the team was not in the condition it should have been.

"When Johnny tried to get in the Army the first time he was turned down. He got a back injury in football and two vertebrae fused together. But he persisted and finally was told he could get a commission in the National Guard if he would do a series of ten lessons before a deadline. So Johnny did in ten days what should have taken him 30 days. And he got a commission as a shavetail.

"He came in with a physical waiver because of the back injury. But I remember one day at Benning (Fort Benning, Ga.), Johnny spent the day doing a lot of lifting and doing one hell of a job. When he came in that night he said, 'I know I'm all right now. If my back was going to break down it would have broken today.'

"Johnny was a captain and number three of his battalion when the division landed on the beach at Salerno. He had a world of drive and he was a good leader. I guess his football experience helped him handle men. They thought a lot of Johnny.

"The day after the landing the battalion staff was up with the leading company when they were pinned down by German machine-gun fire. They couldn't tell where the fire was coming from. Johnny got his machineguns set up and told the boys he would walk into the open and draw fire and then they could locate the machinegun positions.

"He walked right out into the open and of course the Germans began shooting at him. That gave away their positions and our guns knocked 'em out.

"Johnny was not touched that time, but as the battalion neared Altavilla he was hit. We didn't know at first whether he was killed or captured. But then somebody brought in his wallet and a burial squad remembered picking up a big guy on the battlefield. We finally identified the body.

"Then I found a soldier who had seen Johnny when he was hit by a machinegun bullet. He said he was lying on the ground shooting at an enemy machinegun nest when Johnny dived in front of him as though to protect him from the bullets."

The captain flicked the dead ashes from his cigar and said softly, "Johnny was a great blocking back."

Tarawa Bitterest Battle On Record

EDITOR'S NOTE: This graphic eye-witness account of the bloody conquest of Tarawa was written by Master Tech. Sgt. Jim G. Lucas, Tulsa, the first Marine Corps combat correspondent to land on that little Gilbert island.

TARAWA, Nov. 23. (Delayed) (AP)—Five minutes ago we wrested this strategic Gilbert island outpost and its all-important air strip from the Japanese who seized it from a few missionaries and natives weeks after they had attacked Pearl Harbor.

It has been the bitterest, costliest, most sustained fighting on any front. It has cost us the lives of hundreds of United States Marines. (Official reports listed 1,026 Americans killed.) But we have wiped out a force of 4,000 Imperial Japanese Marines—we expected to find only 2,000—mostly dead.

Instructions Recalled

Before we started it was great fun. We grinned and chortled. We said, "there won't be a Jap alive when we get ashore."

That was the plan. Naval and air bombardment was to all but destroy the island. The few living Japs were to be so shell shocked there would be no opposition. I recalled Major Mills' instructions:

"We don't intend to neutralize the island. We don't intend to destroy it. We will annihilate it."

As dawn broke, Tarawa was completely enveloped in smoke and flame. Japanese gun emplacements—eight inchers—continued to reply. Our battleships looked like sullen, defiant bulldogs as they ignored them and continued to pound the shore.

Something Went Wrong

At dawn, our planes came in. We could see them disappear into the smoke and flame. We could hear the sputter of their machine guns. We could see the debris raised by their bombs. It was wonderful.

But something suddenly appeared to have gone wrong. We learned H hour had been delayed 31, then 45 minutes. The pounding continued. There was little doubt there were still living—and fighting Japs on the island.

Our assault waves were in the water, ready to hit the beach. We were in the second wave, due to hit after the first men reached shore. Without warning, an eight-inch shell hit and exploded 10 yards off our side. We dived behind a hatch, laughing at each other as we came out. A second shell hit five yards off, killing a sailor and spraying our deck with shrapnel and salt water. We upped anchor and steamed out of range.

"Casualties Severe"

Fifteen minutes later, we climbed into our tank lighter, sharing it with many other Marines, a truck and a trailer.

"We have landed against heavy opposition," came the first word from shore. "Casualties severe."

It came over our radio as we moved in. We looked grimly at each other.

As we pulled toward the beach, we were met with enemy shell fire. A boat on our starboard side received a direct hit. Five men were killed. We pulled alongside and dragged in the survivors. There was no chance to salvage their equipment. Swiftly we moved out of range.

Photographer Is Killed

A control boat roared by, a Naval officer screaming at us to "stay back" until we received word it was safe to go in. That was 10:30 a. m.

At 1 p. m. we started in again, moving toward the pier which appeared undamaged. We were stopped by machine gun fire. Cpl. Raymond Matjasic, 23, of Cleveland, one of our combat photographers, who had been seated in the cab of the truck, fell to the floor. The truck's windshield was knocked out.

At 3 p. m. we tried again. Shells tore the water on all sides. Two more boats went down, and more Marines died. We backed out again, unable to pick up the survivors. Many of them swam to us, and were later moved back to their transports. Many of the wounded drowned.

Sun Was Punishing

The sun was punishing. There was no shade. We broke out our rations and nibbled at them. At 5 p. m. the control boat pulled up.

"Do any of you have ammunition," the Naval officer yelled through his megaphone. "We've got to get it ashore at all costs."

"We have a truck," we answered.

"To hell with that," he said and roared away.

At dusk our battleships and cruisers opened up a terrific anti-aircraft barrage. There was only one answer—Japanese planes.

"Prepare to go over the side," a lieutenant said quietly. "They'd strafe us if they get through."

They Never Got Through

We inflated our lifebelts and waited. They never got through. We were glad. We'd seen two sharks just before dusk.

At midnight, the control boat appeared out of the darkness. We were to try again.

We inched toward the dock, partially wrecked by our own shelling. The hulk of a Japanese merchantman loomed to the right. Two direct hits from our destroyers had put it out of action. On the lookout for snipers, we covered it with our machine guns.

When we reached the dock snipers in the wrecked ship opened up, but they were firing over our our heads. We climbed on the dock and more snipers fired. We hit the deck. We moved down the docks 10 feet. Japs on the beach began throwing mortars our way. We hit the deck again.

Minutes later, a second mortar hit directly beneath us. I felt the blast and was sprayed with salt water.

Someone yelled:

"Get to the other side! The next one will be right on!"

We were uncertain where to go. The Japs lines were only 50 yards past the end of the pier, and there was no command post. Matjasic and I discarded our typewriter, our packs and our field glasses and started to the shore.

The last 75 yards of the pier was white coral grit. There was a brilliant moon—at home I would have called it beautiful. We swore at it viciously. We were perfect targets.

More Marines Fall

Crouched, we sprinted down the pier, silhouetted against the coral. Snipers opened up, and six men fell, screaming in agony. We lay like logs.

"We can't stay here," someone said up the line, "they'll shell hell out of us and we'll all be gone."

"Advance slowly. Five feet between each man. They won't get us all that way."

We started. Three more Marines fell, and we hit the ground. Inch by inch we moved up. Each 10 yards cost us the lives of more Marines. Each time I expected to get mine. Finally we were within 15 yards of the beach. Ahead were shadows.

Take Your Rifle

"Throw away everything, including your camera," I told Matjasic. "We'll come back and get it if we can. We're making a run for it."

A sergeant beside me cracked:

"Take your rifle. You'll probably never get to use it, but you might."

I grinned. Ray and I ran for the shadows. It was an anti-climax. Not a shot was fired at us.

On the beach, the fire was still hot. We ducked behind the wreckage of a Japanese steam roller, which appeared to be between us and the enemy. I found a shovel and began frantically to dig. Within five minutes, we had our first foxhole on Tarawa. It turned out to be the safest spot on the island.

Positions Found Precarious

There we spent the night. It was 4 a. m. when we got to lie down.

At dawn, we found our position precarious. Our own men were on the left of us, the Japs not more than 50 yards on the right. We were in no-man's land.

At 6 a. m. a fight began over our foxhole. Scores of bullets nicked off the big steam roller, while we burrowed deeper.

Shortly before noon, the Japs were driven back, and we came out of hiding.

Our cruisers and destroyers resumed their shelling of the Jap half of the island knocking out the last remaining big guns. The concussion was terrific, for the shells were landing not more than 100 yards away. Our planes came over strafing. At least 150 planes made at least 75 sorties over the area during the day.

I waded and swam through a small bay to reach the opposite shore, but was unable to find anyone, virtually everyone I knew was reported dead or missing.

Fifty Yards In 2 Hours

Far down the beach, (not more than 50 yards but it took me two hours to cover it), I saw a Marine with a camera. Painfully I crawled to him, for my body was one mass of bruises.

He was a stranger.

"Where'd you get it?" I asked.

"From Lucas," he replied.

"Where is Lucas?" I asked.

"Over there," he replied. "Dead."

"I'm Lucas," I told him.

From his description, "I decided he meant Sgt. Ernest J. Diet, 36, Hammond, La. Later, I found a body I thought was that of our sergeant-photographer. I was almost hysterical when Diet showed up 24 hours later. He learned finally that it was someone else's camera, and that he had found some of my papers. But, meanwhile, he had officially reported me killed in action.

Night Was Hellish

I left my foxhole at noon, went 10 yards, and returned at 6 p. m. It was that tough.

The night was hellish. More men came in, and more were killed on the pier. I slept until 1 a. m. We had had enough experience with the enemy's infiltration tactics. We had orders to shoot any man who came toward us. During the night we learned that guards on the pier killed a Jap who had sneaked in with a drum of gasoline, intending to set the pier afire. It would have been the end of us, for the pier was loaded with high explosives.

At dawn, the enemy sent in his first bombers. There were only two of them, and five men were killed.

We awoke to one of the strangest sights in history. Men were being ed replacements. Men were being landed 50 yards from shore in the surf at low tide and were wading in past enemy machine gun emplacements. Many men fell before they reached shore. In the afternoon Marines were still staggering ashore, carrying the limp form of buddies between them.

Sniper Fire Heavy

The heaviest fire came from a Jap snipers nest in the beached enemy merchant ship.

Shortly before noon, the Japs opened up on us with mortars. One landed near enough to tear the top off our steam roller, and to deafen me for two days. A Marine who occupied the foxhole next to ours was killed by shrapnel. We dug deeper.

By now, however, the Japs were being forced steadily back. We were able to move about. Snipers continued, but we ignored them. One was killed in a coconut tree 50 feet away.

Still, our naval and air poundings continued. On the third day, the heaviest fighting took part in a cleared space around the air strip. One of our tanks lumbered into the clearing. A Jap broke from the bush and tried to throw a grenade in its tracks. He was shot down.

Seven Japs Wiped Out

Suddenly there was firing at our rear. Seven Japs had been found in the ruins of a dugout less than 10 feet from the command post from which our officers were directing the operations. They were wiped out.

I returned to the beach to find snipers again sweeping the pier where ammunition was being unloaded. They fired from the wreckage of one of our boats 50 yards away. I ducked into the water on the opposite side, and found five husky military policemen herding a convoy of Japanese prisoners toward the beach in water up to their waists and up to the Japs' shoulders. Three dead marines were in the water. The MP's herded the Japs out to a waiting landing barge. As the frightened prisoners climbed aboard, they were subjected to murderous fire from their own snipers. Three were killed.

Japs Holed Up

I got back in time to be in on the battle that broke Japanese resistance on Tarawa. Several hundred Japs were holed up for two days in a bomb proof shelter at the end of the airstrip, holding up our advance.

Pfc. Robert Harper, 22, Houston, Texas, and Sgt. John Rybin, 25, Laurel, Mont., dashed forward with their flame throwers while automatic riflemen covered them. Rt the entrance of the bomb shelter, Harper threw his flame on a Jap machine gun nest, charring three enemy Marines beyond recognition. He poured on more fire. There were screams inside the shelter and the Marines rushed forward to capture their objective.

Harper returned to our post.

Japs Commit Hari-Kari

"They were all huddled in there scared to death," he said. "I turned on the heat and that was all."

From this point on our advance was rapid. Following our advancing troops, I came upon one position we had held less than five minutes and counted 27 Japanese who had committed hari-kari by strapping their feet to the triggers of their rifles, placing the muzzle in their chests and pulling the trigger with a kick.

During the night, the Japs made a final desperate bayonet charge. They killed two of our flame throwers but were repulsed.

And this morning, the island was secured. For the first time we were able to sit up without ducking. There were a few desultory sniper shots, but no one noticed them.

Staff Sgt. George Stutsman, Natchez, Mississippi, brings us two cartons of cigarettes and a carton of matches. We get a five gallon keg of water—a real luxury. It rains briefly, and we stand in the open, soap and shower ourselves off.

This is civilization.

Warning Issued On Late Mailing

Persons who delay mailing or shipping of Christmas packages until after Dec. 10, will risk a probability that their gifts won't be delivered until after Christmas, it was warned Saturday by Postmaster Amos Howard and Tom R. Gleen, Railway Express agent.

Howard and Glenn called attention to indications that the nation's transportation facilities, limited by wartime conditions, will be taxed to the utmost this Yuletide.

Expects Great Rush

Howard said he expected the greatest mailing rush he has seen since becoming postmaster. He reported a large volume of packages mailed last week. Many persons, he said, took cognizance of early-mailing requests by postal authorities and Office of Defense Transportation officials and mailed gifts in November.

Christmas cards should be mailed by Dec. 15, Howard advised. He asked that care be taken in preparing packages, urging use of heavy paper and strong twine and plainly-written addresses.

Glenn Joins Appeal

Glenn likewise called for getting gifts on their way by Dec. 10. "We had a busy day Friday and again today," he said last night. He said his office had added extra helpers and would add more Monday.

Pick-up and delivery service, begun last Sunday, will be continued today and through the Christmas season, including Christmas day, Glenn stated. He said considerable Christmas packages had been delivered here in the past 10 days.

Two Thousand Yanks Get Taste Of Italian Culture And Approve; Neapolitan Grand Opera Season Opens In Strange Setting

By KENNETH L. DIXON
Associated Press Staff Writer

NAPLES, Nov. 26. (Delayed)—Mario Pasquariello stepped into the pit and raised his baton. Behind him the stage glowed like a rainbow in the night. In front of him sat the strangest audience of his career.

Applause and whistles greeted his appearance. Then Mario brought down the baton. The noise ceased, and the orchestra swung into the opening strains.

Thus the Neapolitan Grand Opera season was officially opened last night, 50 miles behind the muddy, frozen front, and two thousand war-weary Yanks who packed the colorful "Theater of the Palms" rapped their steel helmets in somewhat surprised approval and said they loved it.

A Strange Sight

It was a strange sight. The only "Diamond Horsehose" was strictly brass—the section of seats devoted to officers. The smartest clothes of the season were the battle jackets and muddy leggings of doughboys who had just dropped in from the front.

Soldiers who came to yawn stayed to call the singers back for curtain call after curtain call.

The delighted artists from the San Carlo Opera company of Naples and La Scala of Milan caught the spirit of the soldiers and sang their hearts out.

Words All Italian

The words were all Italian, but the music, the colorful cavortings of the singers and their gestures, were universal, and the lilting lyrics brought even the bored military policemen, who served as doormen, inside to watch and listen.

The war-scattered members of the two famous opera companies were brought together under the direction of Lt. John Eddy of Oklahoma City, a former member of the Hollywood and Pasadena playhouses, and his Army Air command special service outfit agreed to back a series of operas for the armed forces. The artists, who had thought there would be no opera in Naples this winter, jumped at the chance. But their fingers were crossed about the reception they'd get from the doughboys, even after they learned that the soldiers themselves had chosen La Boheme.

Yanks Well Pleased

But there is no doubt in the singers' minds today. The soldiers read the synopsis on the program—the story of a flower girl who falls in love with a penniless writer and finally dies—but they needed no education in good music. After the show opened there was no more whistling, but many times the Yanks applause rippled spontaneously through the theater.

"And it was always at the right time," exulted Director Eugenio Torre.

And when the last curtain call was over they filed out of the "Theatre of the Palms" to the jeeps and command cars and weapons carriers which jammed the streets outside, and rode or walked back through the blacked out streets of bombshattered Naples—back to sleeping bags or muddy tents or perhaps warm billets in town, if they were lucky.

The Neapolitan Grand Opera's first night was over.

Booth Tarkington Has Solution On Hitler

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 4 (AP) — Booth Tarkington, famed Indiana author, presented his own answer today to the question of what to do with Hitler after the war—he proposed the Nazi leader and his henchmen be locked in psychiatric hospitals.

Death to the Nazi leaders, Tarkington said, would simply boost them into "Siegriedian marytrdom" and in prison "they would still be martyrs and every German heart would burn."

Declaring that Hitler and his aides obviously are mad, Tarkington asserted they should be treated just as any other criminally insane.

Makes Fortune In Pen

Uncle Sam Wants Share

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 4 (AP)—Claude Newton, who turned his spare time as an inmate of the Oklahome penitentiary into a $25,000 fortune, had business with the income tax man today that delayed his departure for Arizona to open a handcraft shop.

Newton, 39, was granted a probationary one-year leave of absence from a life term for murder and headed for Phoenix to invest the money he made dealing in novelties turned out by prisoners during their time off from prison duties.

But apparently he had forgotten Uncle Sam. Perry Rathburn, deputy collector of internal revenue for Oklahoma, said his story and hastened to get in touch with him.

'I didn't know I was supposed to pay Federal or state income tax," Newton declared. "No one told me about it. I wasn't trying to avoid anything."

Rathburn instructed him to make income tax reports for 1940, 1941, 1942 and 1943, the years in which Newton said he accumulated the $25,000.

Californian Held On Forgery Charge In 'Face Saving' Plan

A 33-year-old Californian's plan for "saving face" went awry when he was picked up by Plainview police for routine investigation.

The man, Frank Williams, jr., of Sacramento, was charged in federal court late Friday with having in his possession a forged and altered U. S. Marine corps discharge paper.

Williams, Plainview officials said, had erased the name of the rightful possessor of the paper and typed in his own. He told them he had found the paper in an Amarillo rooming place.

"It was embarrassing to have to tell people that the reason I wasn't in uniform was because I had a prison record," Williams was quoted as telling Mrs. Olive Fluke, U. S. commissioner.

"If they'll take me now, I'll be more than willing to go," he reportedly stated.

Investigators said Williams had been paroled from a California prison.

The Californian allegedly had "bragged" at a Plainview dance of adventures he said he had experienced while serving in the Marine corps. He had been working at Plainview for about a week.

Williams pleaded guilty to the charge upon arraignment and was being held here Saturday in lieu of $1,000 bail.

Open House Set For USO Centers Here

Plans for an all-day open house and a night dedication program for the remodeled and newly furnished Lubbock USO centers for white and negro soldiers next Friday were announced late yesterday by members of the City Recreation council.

The white center is at 1211 Thirteenth street and the negro center at 2101 East Avenue C. Observances are scheduled at both.

Among those who have accepted invitations to be here for the occasion are Dr. W W Jackson of San Antonio, regional director of USO; James W Bradner of Fort Worth, regional director of the Federal Works agency; and Harry J. Emigh of San Antonio, regional recreational representative of the Federal Security agency.

"Everyone" Invited

The $39,000 which has paid for the complete remodeling of the two centers and the furnishings which have been placed in them were obtained through the agencies to be represented by Bradner and Emigh.

According to the plans announced by Chas. Whitacre, vice chairman of the recreation council and chairman of the program committee, the invitation to inspect the open house between 10 a. m. anod 6 p. m. Friday includes "everyone in Lubbock"

Admission to the program of dedication, which will begin at 7:30 o'clock, will be by card only. Cards will be issued to members of local service luncheon clubs and their wives because of the leading parts these organizations have played in obtaining the centers. Attendance on this occasion is limited by the size of the building, it was explained.

Program Temporarily Arranged

While the program for that occasion still is subject to revision, Whitacre said, it will include music by an orchestra; songs by a WAC quartet; introduction of guests; a greeting by Mayor Carl E. Slaton; official presentation of the keys to the center by Bradner; presentation of certifications of recognition for the centers by Dr. Jackson to Knox T. Thomas, chairman of the recreation council; a talk by Emigh on recreation; and presentation of the keys by Marlin R. Smith, jr, city manager, to representatives of the enlisted personnel of Lubbock military installations. Chas. A. Guy will be master of ceremonies.

Appropriate observances also are planned for the negro center, but the plans were incomplete Saturday. A committee of negro citizens, however, is arranging for an open house during the day and a suitable program, probably including a dinner, during the evening.

Buildings Remodeled Completely

After having been operated with make-shift facilities for several months, Lubbock now has service centers to compare favorably with those to be found anywhere.

Both buildings have been remodeled completely. The building for the negro center has been extended 30 feet to a total length of 100 feet. Hardwood floors have been laid in both and each has been equipped with new furnishings for lounging, writing, reading, music and the like.

The installations in the white center include a stage, snack bar, dressing room, shower baths, toilet facilities, ladies' powder room, a large fireplace, crafts room, office and checkroom, abundant storage and closet space, 36 lounge chairs, 15 divans, pianos, combination radio-phonograph, card tables, pingpong tables and many other items.

Equipment in the negro center is identical but smaller in quantity due to the smaller number of negroes stationed here.

Breedlove Selected On Air Group Board

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 4 (AP)—Immediate creation in the President's cabinet of a secretary of air commerce, operating under clearly defined statutory provisions for "federal control of the navigable air," was advocated today by Frank A. Tichenor, chairman of the aeronautical advisory committee to the department of commerce.

Tichenor addressed the National Aviation Training association convention.

Roscoe Turner of Indianapolis, famous speed flier, was advanced into the presidency of NATA from first vice president.

Other officers elected include: Leslie H. Bowman, Fort Worth, chairman of the board of governors; Clint Breedlove, Lubbock, Tex., member of the board.

Fleet Expansion Bill Reported To House

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. (AP) — A formal report by the House Naval committee on a new $5,000,000,000 fleet expansion bill underscored today the Navy's preparations for intensified amphibious warfare and invasions during and beyond 1944.

The huge authorization expenditure will call for acquisition of 2,500,000 tons of auxiliary vessels —attack transports, escort aircraft carriers, attack cargo vessels, communications ships and tenders —plus 1,000,000 tons of landing craft.

"It will be noted," said the committee, "that the majority of the auxiliary vessels and landing craft to be obtained through the enactment of this bill are for use in amphibious warfare."

The new measure would bring the total of authorized construction of auxiliary vessels and landing craft since May, 1941, to more than 7,000,000 tons. This is in addition to millions of tons built into fighting ships.

Throneberry Case

shot. FBI agents were in on the capture.

A complaint charging Jack Israel of Hillsboro, with harboring Throneberry was filed today by R. C. Suran, special agent in charge of the San Antonio Federal Bureau of investigation office. Isreal, a used car dealer, was arrested last night at a West night club. Israel's bond was set at $2,500.

Suran said Israel was accused of trading Throneberry a tire for a stolen .38-caliber pistol.

Last Aug. 8, a sheephearder was found dead in his wagon near Hayden, Colo., and feeling ran high because of the cruel ingenuity apparently employed in bringing about the man's death. The victim was bound with rope in such a way that his bonds gradually strangled him.

Rob Sheriff Of Car

Two days later the Throneberry brothers, armed with rifles, shotguns and pistols, were arrested. At Steamboat Springs, Colo., they overpowered the sheriff, robbed him of gasoline ration stamps and his car, and escaped.

Describing the flight in the sheriff's car, Throneberry said he and his brother got to Tennessee where they pretended to be state police. Using the car's siren, they stopped speeders and others, confiscated gasoline ration coupons and took money in lieu of fines.

He said Randel probably still is driving around somewhere in the sheriff's car.

Entered Navy In 1942

He was associated with a local insurance agency prior to going into the Navy early in 1942 as an ensign. He was secretary of the Lubbock Junior Chamber of Commerce and active in affairs of the Tech Alumni association.

He was first stationed at the Navy's preflight school at the University of Georgia, Athens, as a physical director and had been transferred to aviation training about three months ago. He visited his parents and relatives and friends here in mid-November his transfer to the Dallas field for basic flight training.

Hunt Murder Case

Thomas, a convict with a long record, is held in Lubbock county jail in connection with the case. No charge growing out of the murders has been filed, "since investigation, you might say, has just scratched the surface," but Thomas is under five-year sentence and there is no necessity to charge him to insure his being detained."

"There is no new development that can be announced," officers answered when asked routine questions late Saturday by newsmen.

In China the Japanese claimed to have captured Changteh, key to Changsha, capital of Hunan province. But the Chinese said Changteh's defenders had made a junction with other Chinese units and had begun enveloping the attackers.

Eight Airmen Killed As Fortresses Collide

EL PASO, Dec. 4. (AP) — Eight Army airmen were killed and two others were known to have parachuted safely after two Flying Fortresses from Pyote, Tex., collided over the mountains north of here, Biggs field officials reported today.

After the collision, late yesterday, one of the planes crashed south of Carlsbad, N. B., but the crew of the second ship landed its plane at Carlsbad Army Air base despite its damaged condition.

The official report said three crew members parachuted from the two planes. Two of these were found and are under treatment at the Biggs field hospital.

Names of the casualties were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

WASP One Of Three Air Crash Victims

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., Dec. 4 (AP) — Three pilots, including a WASP, were killed late yesterday in a collision of a training plane and a pursuit ship near Palm Springs Army Air field, Lt. Col. Richard A. Morgan, commanding officer of the 21st Ferrying group, disclosed.

Killed in the training plane were Dorothy F. Scott, 23, a WASP on temporary duty from Love Field, Dallas, and 2nd Lt. Robert M. Snyder, 23, flight instructor with the ferrying group.

The dead pursuit pilot is 1st Lt. Wilson A. Young, 25, who was here on temporary duty from Gore Field, Great Falls, Mont.

Snyder was formerly an instructor for aviation enterprises at Sweetwater, Tex.

Nine-Cent Corn Price Hike Is Authorized

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. (AP)—The government tonight authorized a nine-cent boost in the ceiling price of corn, from a prevailing level of $1.07 a bushel to $1.16, Chicago basis, and simultaneously froze the price of oats, barley and sorghum grains preparatory to issuance of a permanent regulation within sixty days.

The new corn price is effective Monday. Oats and barley are frozen at the highest prices of the five-day period from November 29 to December 3, inclusive.

The temporary sorghum grain ceilings are established at prices approximately parity at these basic points:

At Kansas City, $2.38 a hundred weight; at Texas common plants, $2.42; at Los Angeles and San Francisco, $2.76.

Both actions were announced by the Office of Price administration, acting under a directive from Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson and with concurrence of the War Food administration.

The new corn ceilings, are not a flat increase throughout the country, OPA said, adding that adjustments are being made to correct inequities in the previous regulation.

Iran Conference

President Ismet Inonu of Turkey had left to meet Roosevelt and Churchill, perhaps at Cairo.

Fears Effects Lost

Axis and neutral reports indicated Stalin had approved plans for a great invasion of Europe to shorten the war against Germany, and to press the assault on Japan planned a few days earlier with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek in North Africa.

Some of those who beam Allied propaganda from London to Europe feared that the impact of the communique when it is announced would be weakened since the Germans already had a propaganda counter-offensive well under way in anticipation of an Allied psychological offensive.

Master Plan Approved

While this formal announcement still was awaited, speculation was rife on what the decisions might be. These guesses covered the probability that the big three had agreed upon a master plan for a great invasion of Europe and an Allied military leader to command it, a concerted program in the Balkans, and such political problems as measures to deprive Germany of the power of aggression after the war ends.

The Stockholm newspaper Tidningen printed a dispatch from its Budapest correspondent saying the Turkish government had ordered all Turkish students to leave Germany immediately.

Recently there have been indications that Turkey might be planning to enter the war on the side of the Allies and in any case she would be concerned in whatever plans the big three may have made for the Balkans.

Shock Fatal To Negro Victim Of Hotel Fire

Ozzy Bornds, about 26, who suffered third degree burns in a fire Friday morning in the Merriwether hotel in the Flats, died of shock Saturday at 5:30 a. m. in Lubbock General hospital.

The body is at South Plains Colored Funeral home awaiting word from relatives. Funeral directors reported late Saturday night that they had sent two telegrams to the mother, Emma Bornds of Ferris, but had not received a reply.

Advances In Italy

oners were taken as General Clark's headquarters reported that the onslaught in the central sector was "proceeding according to plan."

Eye Witness Version

Don Whitehead, Assocfated Press correspondent who witnessed the start of the big offensive near Mignano, said:

"Never had American troops gone into an attack behind such an artillery barrage. The ground trembled and a storm of demoniac sound filled the valleys and poured over the mountains.

"The heavens were lighted with gun flashes and a newspaper could easily have been read in the light. The artillery of one group alone hurled 4,000,000 pounds of explosives and steel into the narrow sector which had given the Germans observation of Allied movements in the valleys below. German prisoners trapped in their foxholes by the steady pounding were dazed by the concussion of exploding shells.

"As a result, American troops advancing up the Maggiore mountain sides found little resistance from those Germans who remained alive."

Some Driven Insane

An RAF statement said that some Nazi prisoners were insane from the effects of the ceaseless air and artillery bombardment and that "terrific demoralization" had been caused among enemy troops.

Allied medium and light bombers and fighter-bombers gave a continuous pounding to German positions in and near the battle-front, while big American Liberators attacked Casale airdrome near Rome and American Mitchells and Warhawks bombed the ports of Sibenik and Split in Yugoslavia.

Five formations of German planes were intercepted over the Eighth Army front and Allied fighters shot down six planes and damaged two others. A total of 11 German planes were destroyed during the day for the loss of a single Allied craft.

Hongkong Raided By Allied War Planes

CHUNGKING, Dec. 4. (AP) — Hong Kong was raided again Wednesday by Chinese-American planes which sank a 4,000 ton freighter, badly damaged two others in drydock, and destroyed railway equipment and buildings, Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

In addition three large fires were started at Kowloon on the Chinese mainland opposite Hongkong.

Christmas Fund Aid Received From Africa

Influence of a donation from H. E. Singley, jr., who is fighting overseas as a sergeant of a photo reconnaisance squadron in North Africa, has helped boost Christmas contributions of Knights of Pythias lodge here to the Pythian home at Weatherford to almost $500.

Sgt. Singley, whose father lives at 1611 Avenue O, sent a money order for $5, dated Oct. 23, and explained he wanted to join the lodge in "helping make Christmas merrier for those orphan kids."

Other contributions, no others from overseas, continued to arrive by mail, and the Saturday total was $480.

Hugo Horstmann, superintendent of the home, and Mrs. Horstmann, both graduates in 1929 from Texas Technological college, were here last week at a roll call observation of the lodge, and first donations were subscribed that night.

The lodge, it also was announced, did not neglect its war bond buying in 1943, it and its auxiliary now holding $1,400 in bonds. Substantially more money will be invested in bonds soon after Jan. 1.

Sixty-six million bushels of rice were produced in Louisiana Texas, Arkansas and California in 1942.

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

WOMEN were made before mirrors and have been before them ever since. (But have you noticed that men usually glance at their reflections in sidewalk mirrors?)

Automobile drivers are warned in this way in a certain garage:

"Don't smoke on these premises. If your life isn't worth anything, gas is."

* * *

MUSEUM EXHIBIT—On exhibit in the West Texas museum is a scrapbook that belonged to the late Miss Delia Wilkinson, which she kept when she was a very young girl. The book contains clippings, favors and souvenirs of the "Gay Nineties." Included among the items is a pressed yellow canary skin, probably a family pet which died.

In the same case with this scrap book are two photograph albums, one of scenic places on the way to St. Louis and later at the World's fair in 1904. The other is made up of pictures of groups of friends visiting at a ranch near Lubbock.

SCATTERINGS

ALL of these heated protests from newsmen concerning the Reuters, Lisbon dispatch that broke the story of the Churchill-Roosevelt-Chiang conference before it was released officially bring memories of a "scoop" of the signing of the Armistice in 1918 and of a service that was in such a hurry to report the outcome of the Hauptmann trial it reported a wrong verdict and had to make a retraction . . . But does it matter today that the reporters tried so hard to scoop each other? . . . Somehow it irks us that wives of certain American Army generals are writing articles for confession and weekly magazines, cashing in on their husbands' letters and home life . . . John Clark of El Paso, representative for a tobacco firm who includes Lubbock in his itinerary, was at the University of North Carolina with Kay Kyser whom he describes as a guy who could never sit still longer than one minute at a time. He was yell leader at Chapel Hill and formed his first orchestra from musical university classmates.

* * *

Wonder why so many gals who smoke always seem to be out of matches? . . . Sgt. Katie McCready, Dallas woman Marine who spent part of last week in Lubbock, said the Marines are encouraged to wear a clear, turkey red nail polish and clear red lipstick to match the cords on their hats and their scarfs. Shades of the Plainsman! . . . There are hundreds of families in New Mexico hoping that the Gripsholm, Swedish passenger vessel that docked in New York with Americans and Canadians returning from Japan, brought additional word from their sons who were taken prisoners during the fall of the Philippines . . . With packages being mailed so early and consequently arriving earlier than usual, some Lubbock people are celebrating Christmas almost every day. Are you of the school that thinks one should wait until Christmas to open packages?

* * *

TALK-A-LIKES in natural Southern voices: Mrs. L. A. Kerr and Mrs. Morley Jennings. . . . We have been asked to hand a printed posey to blonde Mrs. J. D. Strickland and blonde Mrs. W. A. King and brunette Miss Willaphene Privitt who wrap Christmas packages at Hanna-Pope and company and manage at the same time to be quite cheerful . . . "It's our wedding anniversary and we've been married for eleven years," a Lubbock woman remarked brightly to her husband at the breakfast table. "Is that so?" he rejoined. "What am I going to get for living with you that long?" . . . We suppose from now on every time General Patton's name is mentioned the slapping incident will be recalled, just as in the "yoo hoo" case of General Ben Lear . . . You don't need to be in too great hurry to stock up on ration free canned grapefruit juice. About 2,500,000 cases are being released for civilian consumption.

* * *

The black market could not exist without the gray market defined as a transaction in which the housewife thoughtlessly (not deliberately) evades or disregards OPA regulations . . . Vivacious Mrs. Bob Gee and five-months-old son, Bob, jr., are visiting Lubbock relatives. They are Ballinger residents while Bob, sr., teaches flying. Mrs. Gee said Bob spent thirty dollars in telephone calls to Louisiana, Texas and New Mexico relatavies telling them of young Bob's arrival . . . Mr. and Mrs. King Sides of El Paso are parents of a daughter born Thanksgiving day. She was named Jane Ann for her grandmother, Mrs. C. A. Bickley of Lubbock and her mother, the former Annie Fern Bickley . . . Cpl. and Mrs. Harvey Hays, jr., (she was Ruth Hunt before her marriage Friday afternoon) wanting to ask one of her three brothers to serve as best man in their wedding did not know how to settle the matter until they thought of drawing straws. Dr. Ewell L. Hunt drew the longest straw.

BILL Wilson, former Amarillo Globe reporter and writer of an amusement column, "Goin' Places," was on a recent national radio program "Soldiers of the Press." A United Press correspondent assigned to the Southwest Pacific, Wilson went on a bomber raid that provided excitement in the nature of enemy bullets cutting a pattern around him in the plane . . . . "You'll like her," a Lubbock lieutenant wrote his mother of the girl he planned to marry," she knows how to cook red beans and corn bread."

Girl Scouts Are To Visit Post WAC

AN open house to show the girls in uniform how the women in uniform are living and working to help win the war will be conducted Tuesday night at South Plains Army Air field with the Women's Army corps playing hostess for an evening which will include everything from standing formal retreat to eating a GI supper in the WAC mess hall.

Approximately 200 Girl Scouts of Lubbock are expected to take advantage of the opportunity to see how their "big sisters" are holding down vital jobs in the Army Air Forces Training Command at SPAAF, how they live, work, eat, drill and play.

The group will arrive at the big glider pilot training center north of the city about 4:45 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and will be escorted by jeeps to the WAC barracks.

To Stand Formal Retreat

Lt. Eleanor Kemble of Pelham, N. Y., commanding officer of the WAC detachment at SPAAF, will welcome the group which will be in charge of Miss Rosemary Head, executive secretary of the Girl Scouts. The Girls Scouts then will accompany the WACs to stand formal retreat, returning to the WAC area for a drill session, in which the visiting young women may participate if they wish.

Following the drill session, the group will be served supper in the WAC mess hall, then accompany the women soldiers to their barracks to stand a formal inspection with them, Each WAC will "adopt" two or three of the Girls Scouts and will act as "big sister" for the evening, explaining the setup at the field and the Girl Scouts in turn will follow in the footsteps of their hostesses.

The night's activities will be over about 7:30 o'clock at which time the visitors will return to the city, Lt. Kemble said.

To Go In Cars

Mrs. C. I. Wall, publicity chairman for the Girl Scouts organization, announced that each Girl Scout troop leader would be responsible for arranging transportation for members of her troop. All cars for the trip will meet at Junior High school at 4 o'clock, starting the journey shortly afterwards. The cars will return to the school after the visit.

WACs at the Lubbock Recruiting station are sponsoring a poster contest among Lubbock Girl Scouts and winners will be announced in January. Winning posters will be displayed in a downtown store window.

The girls are asked to look for ideas during their visit to the air field. The theme will be on the association of WACs and Girl Scouts, the importance of the Women's Army corps in the war effort or the recruiting angle of the WAC.

Miss Mary Frances Bronson, daughter of Mrs. Lavenia E. Bronson of Pasadena, Calif., and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Wilson of Wichita Falls, became the bride of Sgt. Billy Joe Welch of South Plains Army Air field Saturday at a ceremony read at 8 o'clock in the evening at the home of the bridegroom's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Scoggin, 2207 Sixteenth street. Sgt. Welch is the son of Mrs. A. J. Welch of Floydada.

Rev. Walter P. Jennings read the service as the couple stood before an arrangement of white Chrysanthemums and fern lighted by tall tapers in candelabra.

The bride was given in marriage by her grandfather, H. E. Wilson. She wore a bridal gown of embroidered marquisette de soie fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and full skirt sweeping into a train. The long sleeves tapered to pointed cuffs and her finger-tip veil of bridal illusion was held in place by white flowers. She carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid from which fell streamers of bouvardia on satin ribbons.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held and a three-tiered wedding cake topped with silver bells was served. Assisting in the dining room were Mesdames J. H. Scoggin, A. P. Horn and J. Ray Dickey.

For traveling the bride wore a green wool dress with matching hat and pinned a corsage of white orchids to her beaver trimmed coat. She is a graduate of Pasadena High school and a former student at the University of California at Berkeley where she was a member of Delta Gamma national sorority.

Hyah Peoples:

Just two Saturdays to finish your Christmas shopping and pick up your packages at the Decorators Studio. The girls would appreciate you calling for your packages at your earliest convenience. They suggest that you call before coming by to make certain that your packages are ready. The girls were busy Saturday and didn't seem to mind too much that they had to work.

Any of you who are interested in old silver tea spoons might hurry around to see some that the Studio received last week.

Did you see the Soft Drink Colt in the Lubbock National Building display window? For those of you who go a little stronger than Coca Colas the Studio suggests The Whiskey and Soda Colt or the Hors D'Oeuvre Colt. These are really double ugly but positively cute and would make just the right gift for the man with a batchelor apartment or for the couple with a game room. For the man who likes his three-two you should see the amber beer mugs made from the bottoms of wine bottles. The clever idea that someone had was to use the top of these same bottles to make glasses to be used on the colts. You'll have to see in order to appreciate. Large amber jugs have been made into hurricanes or loving cups.

The silver services are going and if you want one for Christmas, you had better get it in high. Silver pieces are not too plentiful but the Studio is well supplied at the present time. You will find several sets of pearl-handled fruit knives and forks to use with your sterling that is perhaps no longer available.

Yours,
Grandpa Nosey.

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 4 (AP)—Germany's newest weapon against a seaborne invasion of the continent is a "bumble-bee gun, the Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported today.

PLAN YOUR POSTWAR CAREER NOW
The Girl Who Doesn't Expect To Continue Working

In my present position as president of The Holmes School of Shorthand, I interview many service wives and fiances. A lump comes into my throat when I see how confidently these girls expect to retire from office work after their husbands come home.

When Helen Smith told me recently that she was only working for the duration and that although she knew her shorthand was not up to par she thought it would see her through, I spoke up.

"How do you know, Helen, in what condition your husband will come home. He may be taken prisoner, or wounded, in which case you would have two persons to support. Or he might not be able to get a job at once. My advice is that while you are receiving an allotment you return to business school for as long as it is necessary to become a really GOOD STENOGRAPHER AND TYPIST. Then you will be ready for whatever happens."

REMEMBER A GOOD STENOGRAPHER CAN ALWAYS GET A POSITION, and teaching shorthand is my business. I specialize in it. You are given the most searching analysis of your work. You are shown the best methods of writing, and you are trained so thoroughly that no one can accuse you of haphazard training. In taking your training at this school, you will know that you are following the right course all the way through and not trusting to chance. In other words, it will not be a case of the BLIND leading the BLIND. I have earned my reputation as a shorthand writer and instructor through hard work, and from my vast experience I can give you the shortest cuts to shorthand speed, which you could not possibly obtain in any other way except through long years of experience. I know the expedients of fast, accurate shorthand writing only as a Shorthand Reporter can know them. I have been a Shorthand Reporter on the Plains of Texas and in the Panhandle of Texas for eleven years. I have written Gregg Shorthand for a quarter of a century, and I have learned a great many pitfalls about which the young stenographer knows nothing. I gladly pass this knowledge on to all students as fast as they can assimilate it.

I INVITE ANYONE INTERESTED IN STENOGRAPHY TO TELEPHONE OR WRITE ME FOR FURTHER INFORMATION.

Game Night Proves Popular Time For USO Gatherers

Service men visiting the comfortable and newly re-opened USO on Thursday evenings play a variety of games. After five attempts on the parts of hostesses to award a long distance telephone call to the winner in a certain game of chance, Pfc. Ardus Ward finally won the prize and called his Idaho home. The first four games played were won by a Lubbock boy, a boy from Oklahoma City and a girl, all ruled ineligible.

Miss Leona Gelin, supervisor of the recreation center, tells the story of two typical army wives, Mrs. R. G. Borchert from Pennsylvania and Mrs. J. E. Clower, of North Carolina, wives of preflight students. In order to be near their husbands the two very attractive and well educated young women came to Lubbock and tried to find jobs.

* * *

Since they were to be here only a short time, no firm would employ them but the two finally secured jobs as waitresses. When their husbands were transferred the two girls liked Lubbock so well that they remained at their jobs here. But pleas from husbands and relatives to stop working persuaded them to join their husbands in Santa Ana, Calif. There the two again secured jobs and Miss Gelin explains this as typical of the spirit of wives of service men.

From Lou To Louella

DEAR LOUELLA: With the approach of the holidays and scarcity of decorations, Tech dormitory girls are adding colorful touches to windows with sketches of Christmas figures and snow scenes made with temperapaints. . . . Title of "Personality of the Week" goes to Senior Tech student Ann Seguila, whose parents came to the U. S. from Czechoslovakia. Ann speaks three languages fluently, English, Spanish and Czech.

Army engineers are still awaiting developments arising from their recent nomination of two candidates for Hodge Podge queen, Engineers Gene "Greasy" Bistline and Harry "Bunny" Runyon.

DFD Pledges Ruth Yows and Bernice Nicks were starred in a clever skit, "While Walking Through the Park One Day," presented by their club at the SPAAF hospital Thursday night. . . . Slightly inebriated chums Thursday night were bidding farewell to ex-prexy, Dean Marshall.

From the Army to the Coast Guard in one week's time was the jump made by Sarah Eiland, friendly Tech senior from Lamesa. . . . Maj. and Mrs. Frank E. Hangs were welcome guests at the recent dormitory dance open to engineers and pre-flights. Major Hangs is commanding officer of the Tech ASTU. . . . A popular victim of girls' tag at the dance was Al "Robspierre" Pierce, engineer.

Ex-Techans Honored

Techsans decorated for bravery in the three theaters of war recently are Lt. Charles Sugirtt, recent winner of the Distinguished Flying Cross; Capt. Frank J. "Spot" Collins, P-40 Warhawk fighter pilot also won DFC; and Capt. Claude S. Harris, DFC for "extraordinary achievement as a ferry pilot in the India-China theater." . . . Remember ex-Aggie Charles Russell Cook? If not consult the Nov. 29 issue of a popular magazine for his pitcure made with a group of officers serving in the Eighth Bomber command.

Back on the home front, an ex-Techsan climbing the ladder is Ava Smith, '43 graduate, who is playing the role of "Curio" in the play "Twelfth Night," being staged at University of Iowa. The play is under the direction of famous B. Iden Payne, former director of Shakespeare Memorial theater at Stratford-on-Avon in England.

SOCIIS BILL LONG, pledge, and Clyde Williams, member, of Roaring Springs, have enlisted in the Marines and will be called to active duty soon. . . . On this day of graduation" is the song being chanted by last year senior ROTC students, Norman Igo, George Acton, Bowen Dulaney, Thurman Pinkerton and others after being commissioned at Fort Belvoir, Va., this week.

Commissioned last week were Ensigns John Keffer, Billy Boston, Brad Gilbert, (ex-cheer leader); Bob Deats, Max Rampy, Leonard Jansen, Jack Green and Bob Keasler; all Tech exes. . . . The sudden change in the life of Bob McEachern from popular band leader to public enemy can be explained by his present duty as bugler of his group stationed in the Mediterranean theater.

Wedding and Christmas bells will ring at the same time this year for Neysa Sun and "Biff" Compton, (if Army regulations do not interfere) . . Jean Clapp and a lieutenant boy friend from Childress Army Air field are to be married in January. . . . Myrnavae Barkley went to Waco this week end to pin gold bars and wings on Haynes Baumgardner, an ex-Techsan who is completing his advanced flight training.

Caught On The Fly

Still engaged, although not formally, are Dorothy Nell Swanson and Roy Williams. She recently sent his ring back, but this gesture does not mean a rift in the romance. . . . Engineers in Barracks 3 who were once enrolled in Tech have set up a powerful radio set that receives even the strongest propaganda broadcast from Tokyo. . . . a far cry from portables in Doak hall that get only KFYO.

AT the recent induction dance for cadets, Iva Lee McKay met Aviation Cadet Stewart Penn of Detroit. Result—dates; a rare outgrowth of an induction dance. . . . Coming through with flying colors at the same dance was Jane Thompson who, wth her partner, won a jitterbug contest and was awarded a bottle of cologne and a miniature cadet cap.

A most attentive date is Howard Guss, civilian instructor at Breedlove Air field, who sends candy to Marjorie Street. . . . Ensign Edwin Ford, who is to leave for Norfolk, Va., soon, is visiting his parents and girl friend, Sue Morton.

Congratulations go this week to Mr. and Mrs. David D. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Payne and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Van Meter who are celebrating wedding anniversaries.

Love,
Lou.

Churches Are To Aid Chest Drive

Portions of the services in most of the churches of the city will be set aside today for an active support of the Lubbock county drive in behalf of the National War Chest, according to reports to Jack M. Randal, city drive chairman.

This cooperation has been requested and the response from among the pastors has been virtually unanimous.

To Stress Announcements

No attempt has been made by the campaign organization, it was explained, to dictate when or how the cooperation shall be given in the various services during the day.

The pastors have been asked particularly, however, to stress the announcement during all their services, including Sunday schools, that the general solicitations in the campaign are to be started next Wednesday morning after a kick-off breakfast in Hilton hotel. The county's quota is $65,293 in the $125,000,000 national campaign.

To Be Included In Sermons

In a good many instances, according to reports reaching the campaign organization, ministers will devote some or all of their sermons to the chest campaign and its purposes.

The chairman announced that attempt has been made to reach all the local ministers with personal letters requesting their cooperation. If any has failed to receive such a letter, it has been due to oversight and Chairman Randal gave assurance that all assistance in announcing and explaining the campaign will be appreciated.

Dalmatia has been variously under the power of Greeks, Romans, Goths, Hungarians, Turks, Venetians, Austrians and French.

25,000 Army Officers To Become Civilians

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP) — An estimated 25,000 officers whose services the Army no longer needs soon will be returned to civilian life, it was learned today, while another 25,000 will be shifted from administrative positions to operations jobs.

The figures came out of a meeting held this week behind the closed doors of the House military committee with Brig. Gen. Miller G. White, assistant chief of staff in charge of personnel. The reduction in officer strength from approximately 650,000 to 625,000 was made possible, committee sources said, by a cutback in the planned enlisted strength of the Army from 8,200,000 men to 7,600,000 by the end of 1943 and a shifting of emphasis from training to operational activities.

Papers Make Fun Of Goebbels' Threats

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP)—London newspapers greeted derisively today German assertions that Britain is panic-stricken as a result of Nazi threats to unleash a terrible secret weapon in reprisal for RAF raids on Berlin.

"Now, now, you must be calm," admonished a mocking headline in the Daily Herald, which followed up this morning with:

"Hey, you, stop it!
"You're dithering,
"You're nervous,
"You're panicky.
"Who says so? Goebbels, of course."

SPAAF Bond Sales Over $1,000 A Day

Soldiers and civilians at South Plains Army Air field backed the men on the fighting front with more than $1,000 worth of War Bonds a day during the past month, figures released Saturday revealed.

Increases in the number of persons participating in the pay allotment plan were noted in the announcement which shows 99.04 per cent of the civilian workers at the field investing at least 12.45 per cent of their pay checks in bonds.

An increase in the number of military personnel taking bonds through the pay allotment plan helped boost the total.

A total of $33,721.25 was invested by both civilians and men in service during the month.

HOW TO CURE THAT STICKY IRON

Don't "cuss" at a sticky sole plate on your electric iron. Here's an easy cure. Heat the iron, then rub the iron over a piece of paper sprinkled with salt. This removes starch or other substances. Then wax the sole plate by rubbing paraffin or beeswax over it. Finally remove the excess wax by running the iron over a clean piece of paper. Burnt starch may be removed with fine steel wool when iron is cool.

1 Never iron over buttons, snaps, zippers or hooks and eyes. Such objects score the sole plate of the iron.
2 Use extreme care to avoid dropping your iron. You may break some vital part that is impossible to replace.
3 Be sure iron is cool before putting it away. And don't wrap cord around the hot iron.
4 Take good care of your iron cord. Don't let it kink. Pull out plug by grasping plug, not the cord.

SOME OTHER HINTS ON IRON CARE

Roll your own. Lighting benefits can be noticeably increased by relining existing dark-on-the-inside shades with good white paper. Roll the lamp shade on white paper, and pencil mark to cut. Fit this lining inside the shade and fasten seam with Scotch tape.

OTHER WAYS TO CONSERVE LIGHT

2 Use shades with white linings that reflect light instead of absorbing it.
3 Keep all lights properly shaded to avoid glare.
4 Arrange furniture so one lamp serves two or more people.
5 Always turn off lights in unoccupied rooms.
6 Have eyes examined regularly by a competent eye specialist.

New Wildcats In Lamb And Lynn Counties Highlight Week's Oil Developments In Area

SOUTHWEST Lamb county and and northwest Lynn county were given new wildcat oil developments and northwest Gaines county had location announced for another 8,000-foot exploration, one and one-half miles from the nearest production from a producing zone in that horizon.

E. Constantin, jr., Dallas and Kilgore independent operator has started drilling on No. 1 Effie Ray, 440 feet out of the southeast corner of labor 8, league 680, State Capitol lands survey in southwest Lamb county. The test will drill to at least 5,000 feet and maybe deeper.

Acreage Secured In Trade

Acreage on which the prospector is being drilled was secured in a trade with Seaboard Oil company of Delaware, which concern has considerable protection in the vicinity. At last report the No. 1 Effie Ray was drilling below 1,800 feet in redrock.

Sohio Producing company, an Ohio development corporation has erected derrick and is about ready to spud No. 1 Alsup, a 6,000-foot exploration to be 1,980 feet from the north and west lines of section 113, block 12, EL&RR survey in northwest Lynn county.

Honolulu Retains Spread

Honolulu Oil corporation, which has owned mineral rights on an extensive block in that area for several years turned the deal to Sohio for the well. Honolulu retained a large spread around the new venture.

The operation is about two miles south of the Lubbock county line and approximately 10 miles east of the Terry county line.

Shell Oil company, Inc., No. 1 Dr. E. H. Jones is the new 8,000-foot development in northwest Gaines county and will be 660 feet from the north and east lines of section 490, block G, CDSD&RGNG survey.

Production Is Extended

Proposed to drill to the Clear Fork lower Permian section to explore for production, the new effort will be one and one-half miles west of the recently completed Magnolia Petroleum company and Atlantic Refining company No. 1-459 Havemyer & Jenny, in the northwest quarter of section 459, which made an initial production of 146 barrels per day flowing through a one-fourth inch choke from pay section bottomed at 7,780 feet.

The No. 1-459 "H&J" extended production one-half mile south from the discovery for Clear Fork lime pay in the northwest Gaines district. The first producer was Shell No. 1 D. N. Leaverton, completed in February to open the pool with a potential production of approximatly 200 barrels daily.

Warehouse Test Abandoned

Stanolind Oil & Gas company No. 15 American Warehouse company, section 5, block H, D&W survey, in the Cedar Lake sector of northeast Gaines has been abandoned and is to be plugged at a total depth of 11,954 feet in lime and chert.

This project is the deepest test so far drilled in the South Plains division of the Permian basin. At its completion it had drilled 846 feet further into the earth than Amon Carter No. 4-D Wasson in section 50, block AX, psl survey in the northwest part of the county and in the south side of the Wasson field.

The Carter test went to a total depth of 11,108 feet after finding top of the Ellenburger at 10,545 feet. That formation was not productive and the test was plugged back to around 7,200 feet and completed as an oil well from the lower Permian section.

Ellenburger Not Found

Stanolind No. 15 "Warehouse" did not find the Ellenburger. It drilled a formation of lime and chert from 11,479 feet to the bottom. The San Andres lime was from 4,615-4,715 feet, according to the log filed with plugging record on the test. That formation did not carry oil of commercial quantity.

Brown & Wheeler No. 1 French, labor 22, league 74, Haskell county school land, nine miles northwest of Levelland in northwest Hockley county has been abandoned as dry at a total depth of 6,500 feet in lime.

Slight shows of oil in tight lime were encountered between 4,655 feet and 4,746 feet and salt water was encountered between 4,742-82 feet. No other shows were reported.

Harless Plugged Back

Woodley Petroleum company No. 1 Harless, section 21, block A, R. M. Thompson survey, new discovery for lower Permian production in east Hockley county has plugged back from a total depth drilled of 6,000 feet to a new bottom at 5,980 feet with lead wool and is preparing to install a pump to put the well on production.

The section from 5,955-80 feet is extremely soft dolomite and the operator has decided not to treat it with acid but produce it and the upper pays which were scattered in streaks from 5,860 feet down to the bottom.

Estimates based on swabbing and the amount of saturation and porosity checked in the lower zone are that the new well will pump at least 150 barrels of oil daily. Very little gas has been shown.

Five Locations Staked

Globe Oil & Refining company No. 1 V. J. Williams, labor 8, league 735, Abner Taylor grant, State Capitol land survey in northeast Hockley has made hole under 4,010 feet in lime.

T. F. Morrow, Dallas, has staked locations for five outside developments on the northeast side of production in the Slaughter field in west central Hockley county.

The tests will be Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 Ethel Wilson Sanford, and will be 440 feet out of the southwest, southeast, northeast and northwest corners of labor 18, league 42, Kaufman county school land survey, and at the center of the labor.

Seaboard Oil company of Delaware and Texas Pacific Coal & Oil company No. 1 Lloyd Evans, section 15, block Y, psl survey, 5,500-foot wildcat four miles southwest of Bledsoe in west Cochran county is making hole below 4,500 feet in anhydrite and lime.

Plug Drilled Out

E. Constantin, jr., No. 1 G. W. Moore, in labor 9, league 64, Midland county school land survey, wildcat two and one-half miles northeast of production in east Cochran county has drilled out plug on 5½-inch casing set in cement at 4,920 feet and is preparing to treat the section around 4,928 feet where the test is expected to "pay off" with commercial production.

Cherry & Kidd No. 1 Wright, outpost to the northwest extension of the Slaughter in Cochran county and in labor 8, league 59, Martin county school land survey has pipe set on bottom at 4,962 feet and has perforated with 84 shots from 4,946-62 feet and will test.

Prepare To Make Test

Cherry & Kidd No. 2 Wright, one location west of the No. 1 Wright, and also in labor 8, league 59, Martin county school land survey has spudded and set 10¾-inch surface pipe at 253 feet with 225 sacks of cement on a bottom of 270 feet.

Sunray Oil company No. 1 Wright-Gauvey, another northwest outpost has reached a total depth of 4,945 feet and is preparing to make a test.

J. R. Sharp No. 1 Brown, section 113, block C, B&SF survey, in northeast Lubbock county wildcat is making hole past 4,074 feet in lime.

Hale Test Still Drilling

The Pure Oil company No. 1 Bernard Martin, section 7, block T, B&SF survey, prospector in Central Floyd county is drilling ahead below 3,030 feet in anhydrite and lime.

Amerada Petroleum corporation No. 1 W. W. Kurfee, section 6, block N, H&OB survey, 10,000-foot exploration in south Hale county has progressed below 9,812 feet in lime and continues to drill.

Rodgers Bros. No. 1 Belding, section 4, block 1, WTRR survey, and a proposed 4,000-foot test has moved off drilling rig with the hole at 2,877 feet with a fish in the hole which has been worked after for over a month. The operation is waiting for further orders. No abandonment notice for it has been released.

Dawson Test Has Shows

Seaboard Oil company of Delaware No. 1 Spraberry, section 38, block 34, TPRR survey, southeast Dawson county exploration is digging below 7,398 feet in lime. The test has found some shows of oil around 6,900 feet, but is to continue drilling until the contract depth of 7,500 feet is reached.

Gulf Oil corporation No. 1 Dean, section 30, block 1 Poitevent survey, T-6-N, northeast Dawson county is still at 10,293 feet fishing for lost tools.

Globe Oil & Refining company No. 1 Clayton & Johnson, wildcat test to 4,600 feet in southwest Borden county and in the northwest quarter of section 41, block 39, TPRR survey, T-4-N, is drilling water well and getting ready to rig up rotary drilling equipment.

Carter No. 5-C Wasson, section 49, block AX, psl survey is at 2,135 feet and is waiting for further activity.

Yoakum Project Testing

Shell Oil company No. 2 Hamner, in the northwest quarter of section 490, block D, John H. Gibson survey, and an outpost to the Ownby field in east Yoakum county is testing after treating with 1,000 gallons of acid above the total depth of 5,394 feet.

Mrs. Harding To Be Knife And Fork Club Speaker On Thursday

Members of the Lubbock Knife and Fork club are looking forward to Thursday night when Mrs. Bertita Harding, noted author, will be their guest speaker. The dinner meeting will be at Lubbock hotel and will start promptly at 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Harding, author of "Amazon Throne," the story of the Braganzas of Brazil; "Phantom Crown," the biography of Maximilian and Carlota in Mexico, later made into the movie "Juarez" and other romantic novels of Latin-America, is said to be a vividly charming, delightful and clever feminine speaker, one of the few on the circuit of the Associated Clubs with which the local group is affiliated.

Her lectures form a discussion of the romance and color and the intrigue and adventure of Uncle Sam's Latin-American neighbors. In these addresses, Mrs. Harding brings to bear her inherited background of ancient European court tradition, her childhood impressions of feudal Mexico and up-to-the-minute acquaintances with leading figures in present day Latin-American. She was born Countess Karolyi (Bertita Carla Camille Leonarz) in Europe, of Hungarian ancestry and spent her early childhood in the shadow of Chapultepec castle in Mexico where her parents were sent on diplomatic mission. She attended school in a French convent, a Philadelphia boarding school and two European universities.

She married Jack Harding, an American advertising man, an officer in World war II and divides her time between New York and Hollywood, spending one month a year in Mexico City where her father, Don Emilio Leonarz heads the largest steel mills in Latin-America.

Besides the two books mentioned above she is also author of "Hungarian Rhapsody," "Imperial Twilight," "Farewell Tonette," "The Golden Fleece" and "Royal Purple."

The DFC citation read as follows: "For heroism in flight and exception and outstanding accomplishment in the face of great danger above and beyond the line of duty over (censored) on (censored) 1943. This crew was flying a (censored) type aircraft which was part of a formation of (censored) airplanes engaged in a daylight strike against the enemy airdrome at (censored) As the bombardier approached the target very intense and accurate anti-aircraft fire was encountered The formation commenced a bombing run and was immediately intercepted by at least 30 enemy fighters Despite this opposition all bombs were dropped on the target, destroying numerous enemy aircraft and starting several oil fires At the completion of the bombing run, the lead bomber left the formation to give protective fire power to two badly damaged bombers The pilot of the aircraft took over and soon effected a close formation although the bombers—and—turrets were out and the left waist gun was improperly functioning Three (3) enemy fighters were probably destroyed by this bomber and thirteen (13) were destroyed by the formation and seven (7) more were probably destroyed. This aircraft led the formation away from the target under constant attack by enemy Zeros and returned safely to the home base." Lt. CASE HISTORY No. 1642. Boy, age 5 who had never talked. His parents had tried remedies with no results. Upon examining him I found that he had severe nerve pressure at the base of the brain. He began a series of adjustments and is now saying a few words. He is still under observation. If the pressure is kept off of the nerves long enough for them to rebuild he will, in time, talk more and more.

COSE HISTORY No. 1648. Man, age 33 who had severe hurting in his legs and back. He had had this trouble for seven years, and had tried almost everything, with no results. He began a series of adjustments and all symptoms are completely gone.

CASE HISTORY No. 1612. Man, age 41, who had backache, was constipated, had hurting in arms and elbows, and was nervous. He had been sick for five years and had been forced to quit work. He came to me as a last resort. After I had examined him and located the cause of his trouble he began taking adjustments and is now able to work again and says he never felt better in his life.

Within your body the nervous system is the medium through which functions and activity take place. The thoughts you think are executed through the direction of the nervous system. The functions of organs and glands respond to impulses of energy that come from the brain. To the degree that these nerves are free to carry messages to and from the brain will you be healthy and strong. Chiropractors say that the spine is the key to the nervous system because all nerve trunks reach outward from the spinal cord through grooves between the vertebrae. Should accidents or falls wrench the spine in any way and thus subluxate, that is slightly displace, a vertebra, it will pinch nerves, block the passage of energy, lower resistance and result in dis-ease of some nature. Chiropractors are skilled in locating and adjusting this cause of dis-ease. They open the channels that put you in tune with the source of supply. As your vision is clarified, and as your glands respond to the force within, you begin to get well.

Bloody Lessons Of Tarawa Explained

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The bloody lessons of warfare that the Americans and Japanese traded at Tarawa brought these reactions today from the head of the Navy and a Marine who was there:

1. Secretary Knox, taking note of "criticism", concerning the grievous loss of American life in capturing the Pacific atoll, asserted the well-prepared Japanese withstood a pre-invasion pounding "like nothing before in the history of warfare."

2. A Marine corps combat correspondent, who took part in the operations, said "something appeared to have gone wrong"—that the Marines had expected to find the Japanese practically wiped out by air and naval bombardment, but actually encountered a ferocious defense.

1,026 Americans Killed

The Japanese, who killed 1,026 Americans and wounded 2,557 more before they were annihilated in three days of fighting, were able to inflict such a toll, Knox told a press conference, for three main reasons:

1. They had shelters and gun emplacements so heavily built and so deeply dug at the main position at Betio that they could withstand a "great number of hits."

2. Trees and camouflage make it impossible always to get the information needed from aerial photography in planning an attack. In this connection, Knox said there had been "criticism by arm chair strategists" that we had insufficient information concerning defenses.

Assault Boats Tied Up

3. A change of wind hung up some American assault boats on a reef where the men were easy targets for the Japanese.

Knox said that 2,200 tons of shells of all sizes, 700 tons of bombs and millions of rounds of machinegun bullets were poured into the enemy prior to the land assaults. Most of the Tarawa target was within an area of about a square mile.

A graphic eyewitness story, arriving belatedly today from Tarawa, gave an idea of what it meant to the attacking Marines personally when all this shattering attack failed to put the defending Japanese out of business.

"Before we started it was great fun," wrote Marine corps combat correspondent Jim Lucas. "We said, 'there won't be a Jap alive when we get ashore'."

Heavy Bombardment Planned

"That was the plan. Naval and air bombardment was to all but destroy the island. The few living Japs were to be so shell shocked there would be no opposition.

"At dawn our planes came in. We could see them disappear into the smoke and the flame. We could hear the sputter of their machine guns. We could see the debris raised by their bombs."

"But," Lucas' story continued, "suddenly something appeared to have gone wrong." He went on from there to tell of the ferocious defense by Japanese manning everything from eight-inch guns to sniper's rifles, and how the Marines were mowed down in windrows.

Size Of Force Questioned

Knox was asked about the size of the American naval force that stood off Tarawa and bombarded it to what Sergeant Lucas and his fellows thought was sure destruction.

Was it greater than the Japanuese force at the battle of Midway island in 1942

"I can't say," Knox replied. "But if the Japs had brought the whole fleet from Truk out there we would have been delighted to have them come."

Major General Holland McTiere Smith, commander of the assault troops, recently told interviewers at Honolulu that those Marines who made the beach in the early attacks lost heavily. "I counted 105 dead Marines in a space of less than 20 yards," he said.

Must Be Longer Bombing

General Smith drew this main moral: There must be longer concentrated preliminary bombing in any such future invasions, that some of the blockhouses on Tarawa were of concrete five feet thick, covered with railroad ties and 10 or 12 feet of sand and hard coral.

Unofficial suggestions have been advanced that the Navy will have to develop more facilities for arching fire to assure quick conquest of atolls with minimum loss of life. The big guns of warships, it is held, are unsuited to wrecking strong defenses installations on such flat terrain because of their limited trajectory.

On the other hand guns of the Howitzer type can lob heavy shells capable of penetrating strong defenses and exploding inside. These, it is argued, might prove more effective than shells fired on a flat trajectory or bombs dropped from the airplanes. On land, mortar fire has been one of the best weapons in the Pacific because it drops explosives from almost a perpendicular trajectory.

The lessons of Tarawa may lead to greater use of amphibious craft of semi-tank type in the offensive spearheads in view of the fact that landing craft filled with Marines may stick on coral reefs and prove easy targets for the defenders.

Nutmegs grow inside a peach-like fruit which is never picked, but splits open, allowing the nutmegs to fall to the ground.

Hollywood On The Loose...

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 4.—Mexican film fans like blond leading ladies—especially the hot-cha type—so Betty Hutton will star in a Mexican film next summer opposite Arturo de Cordova, the Central American Clark Gable. The pair have been signed by Cine-Mexico films for a romantic fare. Ought to be good, too, inasmuch as there's no Hays office south of the border. Hutton and de Cordova are working together at the moment in "Incendiary Blonde."

Miss Hutton

• • •

Jennifer Jones and Robert Walker, whose separation surprised Hollywood, have reached a settlement whereby no divorce suit will be filed until at least next spring. She makes her film debut soon in the star role of "The Song of Bernadette."

• • •

Darryl Zanuck's "Wilson" has gone into production at 20th Century-Fox. It's the most ambitious film in Zanuck's career with a shoot-shooting schedule of eight months and 149 speaking roles.

• • •

Akim Tamiroff has no more eyebrows than a Mexican hairless dog. They were plucked down to the last hair for his role of Wu Lein, the Chinese traitor, in M-G-M's "Dragon Seed."

• • •

RKO is planning a re-make of "Cimarron" with Ruth Warrick in the Irene Dunne role.

• • •

Sure-fire laugh in Schlesinger's Merrie Melodie cartoon—"Russian Rhapsody." A quick shot of Hitler ranting to his cohorts behind a swastika-decorated sign reading, "The New ODOR" . . . Promised and hoped for: Marjorie Weaver's return to the screen in "You Can't Ration Love." We've missed her. . . . Jack Haley says he's completed the show business cycle. Started out in vaudeville 20 years ago in a comedy horse act. In his new film, "Take It Big," he's a vaudeville star in a comedy horse act!

• • •

Vera Zorina wears so much costume jewelry for her role in "Three Cheers for the Boys," Director Eddie Sutherland refers to her as "crystal packin' mama."

• • •

DOUBLE DUTY

ANNE GWYNNE has been selected as the pin-up girl in the current issue of "Yank" for the second time. Get a load of the art on Anne and you'll understand why . . . Donald O'Connor says he and Gwen Carter won't marry until the Axis throws in the sponge—she's wearing a beautiful diamond.

• • •

With all its top romantic stars in the service Hollywood had to find a great lover—and it will be none other than Charley McCarthy. He'll have five girl friends in "Song of the Open Road"

• • •

Laraine Day replaces Joan Bennett in "Up In Mabel's Room." Joan didn't like the part.

• • •

Shirley Temple has a new nickname on the "Since You Went Away" set. Everyone calls her "Butch." . . . A monument will be erected in London for Leslie Howard with the inscription, "Gentle Cynic." . . . Judy Garland is a frequent visitor to the "Outward Bound" set on the Warner lot. Dialog Director Freddie De Cordova is the reason.

• • •

STAND-IN SHORTAGE

HOLLYWOOD is facing a stand-in shortage, too. For two days last week a six-foot magazine cover girl was paid an extra check to stand in for Sonny Tufts on the "I Love a Soldier" set.

• • •

News item: "Negro Comedian Stephin Fetchit says he owes three million dollars." How he did it would make a swell movie.

• • •

Asked if he would ever retire from the screen, Bob Hope cracked that his agent was already getting him set for Charles Coburn roles 15 years from now.

• • •

And it's Alan Reed's story about a producer after the preview of a film everyone liked who said, "We've got to make some retakes"

"Yes," said the author, "if we don't do something quick, we're liable to have a hit on our hands."

• • •

A producer was trying to persuade Charles Arnt to accept a role in a new film. "You've got to do it," the producer pleaded. "It's for you. It's the biggest part you ever had. There's guns, horses, fights. It's dramatic. It's for you. It's so big I can only see Gary Cooper in the part."

VERA VERA FETCHING—Vera Zorina, shapely Broadway ballerina, wears this feathered costume in a new picture, "Three Cheers for the Boys," in which she does a swing ballet with George Raft.

"Winged Victory" Is Great Entertainment And Example Of Great Hart Showmanship

BY JACK GAVER
United Press Drama Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Just to get things in the right perspective before the superlatives start to overwhelm us, it should be pointed out quite calmly that Moss Hart's "Winged Victory," a government-sponsored saga of the U. S. Air Forces, is not the great American drama, no everlasting beacon in the realm of dramatic literature. I think that statement is necessary because you're going to hear from all sides so much about how marvelous it is that the unwary soon would be convinced that Shakespeare was a prelim boy and O'Neill a lackey of the pulps.

"Winged Victory" is a great entertainment, an example of great showmanship and quite the best thing Hart has ever done in a 12-year career that includes some fairly high spots. It is a simple tale told in terms of extravaganza, a combination that succeeds about as often as a miser parts with a dollar. For this success I give more credit to Hart the director than to Hart the writer. It is a staging job from way back and around the corner.

Facts Simply Presented

In the 17 scenes of the two-act production Hart tells the story of the men who make up the Air Forces in the terms of six youths from various parts of the country and various walks of life from the time they anxiously await word from the War department to report for training, through the days of training drudgery, to the tempering fire of battle. It doesn't preach patriotism; the facts simply are presented in dramatic form and that is quite enough.

By now, of course, everyone knows now Hart was commissioned to write the play by Gen. Henry H. Arnold, Air Forces command; how he was flown in an Army bomber many thousands of miles around the country to all types of air training camps, where he mingled incognito with the cadets and got their personal reactions to their experiences; how auditions of hundreds of Air Forces men were held and about 300 of them selected for the production.

Cast Is Excellent

And that cast is something to write pages about. In the six male leads only one is a really well-known actor, Pvt. Edmond O'Brien, who has the role of a Brooklyn lad and is quite the standout of the proceedings. The others are Cpl. Mark Daniels, who might be called the hero of the play, and a good one he is; Pvt. Don Taylor, who does a beautiful job as a youngster with his heart set on being a pilot, but who washes out and winds up as a gunner; Pvt. Dick Hogan, Pvt. Barry Nelson and Sgt. Rune Hultman. There are several prominent Broadway and Hollywood actors playing bit parts, among them being Lee Cobb, Phillip Bourneuf, Damian O'Flynn, Allan Baxter, Zeke Manners and Ray Middleton.

The women in the cast include a few well-known actresses—Phyllis Avery, Elisabeth Frazer and Olive Deering—but most of the distaff roles are walkons and many of these are played by wives of the soldier members of the troupe.

Lighting Is Outstanding

Aside from the direction of Hart the outstanding thing for me was the lighting, done by that old professional hand, Sgt. A. H. Feder, who creates more of a furore in his field as a soldier than he ever did as a civilian, which is quite a feat. The lighting, may I repeat, is out of this world. The settings, and exactly right they are, too, are by another top professional, Sgt. Harry Horner. The huge pit orchestra, all Air Forces men, of course, is directed by Sgt. David Rose, who also composed original music and did the arrangements. Incidentally, this isn't a musical show; the band simply provides mood music and accompaniment for some of the song snatches heard now and then.

The entire proceeds from this play will go to the Army Emergency Relief Fund, as did those of last year's all-soldier reveue, "This Is the Army."

There are approximately 100 army and navy airports in the United States.

BANDANNA GIRL — Jean Strasser makes far more attractive use of a pair of bandannas than did the cowboys of the old west. Hollywood, where else?

Canada has a Churchill river. It flows into Hudson Bay at Fort Churchill.

FDR's Latest Veto Commended; U. S. Naval Experts Optimistic Over Jap War

No Celebration Called For

Pearl Harbor A Harsh Lesson

IT IS difficult to see how there could be any widespread disagreement with the reasons advanced by the President the other day for his veto of the congressional measure proposcing to designate Dec. 7 as "Honor Day" for the Armed services.

Mr. Roosevelt referred to the proposal as "premature" and "singularly inappropriate." The truth of the characterizations is so obvious that it is somewhat puzzling that Congress should have passed the measure.

Probably no one can say, as yet, what day or days in this war will be made the occasion for celebration in the years to come. However, the logical supposition is that it will be the day, or days, of victory. Certainly it will not be that "day of infamy" when, through our own stupidity and negligence, we left ourselves wide open to the sneak attack which came so close to being fatal.

None of this suggests that the American people ever should allow Dec. 7, 1941, to be forgotten. It is more important, perhaps, that they keep that day in memory than any other day in this war or in all past history. The lessons taught on that day must never be forgotten.

But the anniversary will not be one for celebration. It will not be an "honor day." It will be one to contemplate with nothing less than shame, sorrow and apology.

It will be an occasion to demand an annual re-dedication to the determination that never again will the defenses and the alertness of the United States be allowed to sink to such a state that the national security can be imperiled within the twinkling of an eye by the acts of a treacherous and unprincipled enemy.

Only by the continuing proof that the lessons of Pearl Harbor have been well learned can there be salvage from the tragedy of that day.

A Better Deal For The Kids

TRUSTEES of Lubbock independent school district doubtless established last Nov. 30 as a highly important "milestone date" in the evolution of our city schools when they approved plans for a system-wide athletic program.

Many people who read the announcement almost certainly thought first in terms of football—specifically, the long gridiron rivalry between Lubbock and Amarillo High schools. We are sure the trustees share with them the pleasurable thoughts of Lubbock teams capable of reducing Amarillo's roaring Golden Sandstorm to a gentle zephyr with monotonous regularity.

But it should be remembered that the trustees had something far more important than football in mind when they took this well-considered step. As we understand it, they visualize a program embracing athletics of all kinds in which every boy and girl of every age will have opportunity to take part under skilled supervision. If this should improve the quality of football teams, it will be the result, not the cause, of the program.

Football undoubtedly will have its important place in the picture. It should have for its value to school spirit, if for no other reason. But we venture the prediction that football will occupy a place under the program which will be relatively less important than it holds now. More boys probably will be playing better football for a longer period of school years than under the present system. But it is to be expected that the thousands of other boys and girls in the schools will be participating in athletic activities other than football from which they will derive benefit and pleasure. Those who must remain on the sidelines in football actually will take part in some competitive activity better suited to their physiques and preferences.

This program recognizes that, as a general proposition, good minds and good bodies go together. It recognizes that it is a proper responsibility for any school system to try to train the body as well as the mind of the child.

The logical expectation is, that as result of this program, the students who emerge as the finished products of the Lubbock school system will be better equipped physically and mentally to face the problems of maturity with which they must cope.

OUR PLEDGE

WE pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States, and to the Republic for which it stands: One Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all.

Class in Economics Will Now Come to Order

Now We Have A Government "By, Of And For Pressure Groups!"

Today's World .... By S. Burton Heath

IT is a strange and disturbing concession—or is it an assertion?—that Chairman William H. Davis of the War Labor board makes. This great agency, which has pretty much superseded normal peacetime labor controls, is utterly powerless to assist anybody who, by his own choice or through necessity, does not belong to a labor union.

HEATH

There are, we are told, and can readily believe, 15,000,000 clerical, white collar, unorganized employes in the United States. There are 12,000,000 union members.

Government officials say that, while the "Little Steel formula" can be applied to aid union workers, nothing can be done for the much greater army of the unorganized, except what employers care to do voluntarily.

• • •

ON the basis of actions, which speak louder than words, we can go further than Mr. Davis went. We can say that not only does the government decline to help non-union workers, but it actually hampers them. It forbids pay increases which employers are ready and anxious to make.

Thus the government's inadequacy, so far as the 15,000,000 who are not beneficiaries of the Little Steel formula is concerned, is not merely one of passive impotence; it is one of active obstructionism.

The obstructionism is not universal, but selective. It is not confined to the War Labor board; it is probably worse with the Treasury. There, in some jurisdictions at least, it is frankly ideological.

• • •

CONSIDER, for example, the administrator who, passing upon the case of a white collar worker whose income had been cut in half, expressed forthrightly his reason for forbidding a raise:

"No man who earns as much as $5000 can be considered a victim of discrimination or maladjustment."

Yet for union members wage scales yielding as high as $7200 for a concrete mixer have been approved, according to Senator Harry F. Byrd.

• • •

DUTCH SPIRITS

THE burning hatred of the Dutch toward their German masters can be judged in part from an article written for the October Schweizer Spiegel (Swiss Mirror) by a Swiss recently returned from Holland to his homeland.

"I talked with many victims of Allied bombing but not one of them spoke against Britain and all seemed convinced of the necessity of the bombing. I witnessed Netherlands crowds cheering vociferously as they accompanied captured British airmen being marched to the railroad station. When German office buildings were destroyed by bombing, thousands of persons collected to gaze on the sight with enraptured faces."

• • •

OR TEA, EVEN

ERNIE PYLE, recently "on furlough" from war reporting, feels that scarcities on the home front don't seem important after what he has seen on the battle fronts. He couldn't buy a satisfactory tea strainer, but he asks: "Did you ever hear of anybody dying for lack of a tea strainer?"

The answer is no. We never even heard of anybody dying for lack of tea. In fact, up to now we have never heard of anybody suffering more than petty inconveniences for lack of anything that has become unavailable in this country.

There are going to be more shortages, and they will be annoying. But suffering? Nobody on the home front knows what suffering means, except those whose loved ones will never come back from the battle fronts.

• • •

INSPIRED TRIBUTE

A MIAMI dry cleaner has announced that "Miami children are swell." The tribute was occasioned, it appears, by the children's response to the cleaner's plea that they refrain from soaping and greasing plate glass windows, to save soap and greases.

Lubbock children are swell, too. Our cleaners love them, particularly in peace time, when their activities form a valuable backlog for the business of dry cleaners. No town that has many children ever will have completely impoverished dry cleaners.

• • •

OUR FIRST DUTY

THERE can be little disagreement with this portion of R. J. Thomas' recent address to a rally of his United Automobile Workers in Detroit:

"I would rather die of starvation than have a brother killed by a Nazi bullet. The most important thing for a union to do now is to end the war as quickly as possible, and the only means of realizing this goal is to abide by our no-strike pledge."

• • •

SHAKEUP

JAPAN has a new production boss, Ginjiro Fujiwara, whose first public act was to promise that he will bring Nipponese airplane production up to exceed American output.

We venture to predict that little more will be heard from Mr. Fujiwara until a two-line item announces some day that he has been the unfortunate victim of a sad accident, resulting from falling upon the pointed end of a sword, occasioned by realization that he has failed his emperor.

"A person shouldn't eat when he is miserable," advises a physician. But, doc, what about our case? Being hungry makes us miserable.

• • •

We need young men in charge of military affairs—men who aren't conservative enough to know a thing can't be done and so go right ahead and do it.

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

A POLISH refugee student was asked what she liked particularly about America.

"It's the little things that make up Freedom," she replied.

"What do you mean by that?" inquired the questioner.

"Oh, that's hard for me to explain," she said. "I don't speak English so well.

"But in Europe there are so many things you mustn't do. They are not important things. But they make you realize all the time that you live under authority.

"Here in America you can do almost anything just as long as you don't interfere with the lives of others.

"In Europe we don't dare to speak out what we think about our President or our officials or our police. That means jail.

"Here you can say anything you please and nobody pays any attention.

• • •

"And then I like the freedom between boys and girls. Your parents don't watch every minute you are with a boy. You can go out with them and have fun, without people talking about you.

"Here in America you trust each other. I think it is because you are really good at heart.

"Americans are so friendly. When you say something they believe you and don't always wonder what you mean.

"I like your cops, as you call them. In Europe people are afraid of the police. They think of jail and arrest when a policeman comes around. Here you go to him for help and protection. He's just a citizen in uniform.

"I like the way you people kick about everything. I think kicking is healthy. In the old country we have stopped kicking many years ago. We know kicking is no use, we can't get what we kick about, so we just resigned ourselves to our fate."

• • •

SHE said much more, but you get the general idea. Little things, yet they mean so much in life.

Kicking, I think, is one of our most prominent and healthiest characteristics.

Kicking is the seed of prosperity. It is the beginning of action.

The first thing a new-born baby does is to kick its legs and let out a lusty yell.

But don't let us just kick without doing something about it.

Let's kick about everything that's evil—but let's kick it in the pants!

See 'Turning Point' Reached

(The National Whirligig)

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

WHEN normally pessimistic naval experts describe the seizure of Gilbert Islands as "the turning point in our Pacific war," they do not refer to our success in making physical landings on a few remote atolls. They are thinking of the defects which the operation revealed in the enemy's fighting machine—shortage of sky, sea and industrial power.

In the past, Tojo has met our Southwestern Pacific offensive: with strong opposition on the water and in the air. Even after MacArthur's pilots had shot down hundreds of planes, new armadas swept in from Rabaul, Truk or carriers, while heavily laden transports escorted by cruisers and destroyers tried to reinforce beseiged outposts.

In the Tarawa area, however, there was no attempt to bolster the garrisons or interfere with the covering naval and aerial units. Washington concludes that the foe's fleet and squadrons have been so decimated that its leaders do not dare risk a major engagement. They have been forced to take to the defensive. Their caution also suggests that Tokyo cannot produce sufficient replacements to compensate for past and current losses.

It is this weakness, according to our strategists, and not the fact that the Gilberts are merely negligible coral formations that led Nippon's high command to decide against a do-or-die stand. Our latest advance marks a new threat to Japan's vital inner ring of defenses — such powerful bases as Nauru to the north, Truk to the west, even the Philippines.

Similar gains in those regions will interpose a barrier between the Japanese mainland and the stolen Anglo-Dutch empire which keep Hirohito supplied with the sinews of war. In that event, the United Nations will clamp a blockade on the Orientals similar to that inflicted on their Axis partner in Europe.

PROBLEM: Fevered drems of New Deal economists of a long period of postwar prosperity have been shattered by a friendly and sympathetic expert. In recent testimony before congressional committees, Charles E. Wilson, president of General Motors, painted dubious prospects. Many other hardheaded manufacturers share his viewpoint, although they pray that they will prove to be false prophets.

The automobile maker sharpened his argument with a few simple statistics which ostrichlike optimists tend to forget or casually brush aside. His firm, he explained, has 83,000 men in the armed forces who have been promised preferential treatment on their return. This debt is not the only consideration — these former employes happen to be skilled mechanics.

Meanwhile, the personnel of his plant has increased from approximately 300,000 in 1941 to 460,000, of which around 110,000 are women who never worked before.

Even if every feminine substitute quits—and many will want to continue — it will not solve the elementary problem of how to employ the discharged veterans. The corporation will still have a labor surplus of almost 50,000 above the pre-Pearl Harbor total.

• • •

OFFENDER: Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone's persistent attempts to keep the Supreme court on a Constitutional beam have failed again. But the stubborn New Yorker will continue his efforts to prevent his associates from assuming new duties at presidential request.

Like his predecessor, Charles Evans Hughes, Mr. Stone believes that his jurists should eschew other official and semi-political activities. His branch of the government, he feels, should be kept separate and inviolate in conformity with the intent of the founding fathers' provisions.

Although too tactful, and possibly too good-natured, to protest publicly, he has been disturbed by FDR's frequent use of members of the bench for nonjuridical purposes. Owen J. Roberts was drafted for the Pearl Harbor inquiry. Frank Murphy was permitted to exchange his robe for a uniform. William O. Douglas's services are often sought on economic problems. Felix Frankfurter, perhaps the worst offender, sits in at many White House powwows or transmits advice through the numerous young men he has infiltrated into regular and emergency agencies.

• • •

WARNING: The Chief Justice thought he saw a chance to scotch the use of his tribunal as an administration farm when Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg asked his opinion of a plan whereby he would choose a circuit judge as referee for the Soldiers' Vote commission.

In disapproving the seemingly innocuous suggestion, Justice Stone wrote, "It might have political implications and consequences which should be wholly disassociated from the duties of the judicial office." That was a plain enough hint from the head of one arm of the government to another.

Now it develops that three circuit court judges are acting as an "advisory panel" in one of the most torrid disputes between industry and Washington. Judges Learned Hand of New York, John J. Parker of North Carolina and Joseph C. Hutcheson of Texas will decide what is "just compensation" when vessels are taken over by the War Shipping administration.

They were given this lay assignment in an executive order dated October 15. It was issued before the CJ's polite warning was published, but his attitude has been known in the capital for more than a year.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

NOW that the Pripet marshes are frozen, you may expect to read of Soviet hammer blows upon the Nazi line in the central and northern Russian theater. Heavy munitions there are no longer stuck in the mud as in Italy.

Chief credit goes to the artillery for all the important victories of the Red Army. Veterans of the Argonne, who remember the miles of shell-hole desolation around Verdun, can well appreciate the might of Marshal Stalin's force for, in several recent battles, the fire power was 10 times greater than the concentration of cannon at the famous French citadel.

The Wehrmachrt, which began the conflict with an abundance of mechanized equipment, has forsaken its supermodern program — either by design or through necessity. Fewer German tanks and planes are being used in Russia than in the early days of the invasion. Hitler depends more and more on foot soldiers to fight it out with their foes.

Soviet tacticians balance their various arms more skillfully. They use tanks in the flat steppes, Cossack cavalry in forests and swamps and high-caliber guns to batter "hedgehog" strongpoints and massive fortifications.

But the staggering strokes which have devastated the German front are delivered by all manner of instruments. Light fieldpieces and heavy howitzers — all have their own swift maneuverability.

• • •

SHRAPNEL: With due respect to the Russians, authorities in United States Army Ordnance think that our line of artillery pieces is the most complete and superior to any other in the world, although all are not yet in combat.

They range from small 37-mms., which propel a three-pound projectile 1,500 yards, to giants mounted on railroad trains that hurl a ton of metal 27 miles.

The use of shrapnel of World I renown, which contained a bursting charge filled with balls and set off by a time fuse, has been discontinued. Injuries mistakenly called "shrapnel wounds" are actually inflicted by fragments of high explosive shells.

Often we see or hear the expression, "past experience." To us "past" seems superfulous.

Tech Professor Adds To Texas History Lore

Dr. Ernest Wallace Writes Biography Of Charles DeMorse

"CHARLES DeMORSE: Pioneer Editor and Statesman;" by Dr. Ernest Wallace; (Texas Tech Press, $3).

LOVERS of Texas history have a new volume to add to their collections with the publication of "Charles DeMorse: Pioneer Editor and Statesman" by Dr. Ernest Wallace, associate professor of history at Texas Technological college. The biography is the first important venture into publishing by the Texas Tech Press and is an impressive, plainy bound book printed in clear, legible 12-point type with illustrations, index and substantiated references.

The book is one that is certain to be placed in every Texas school library and should be a valuable one in that of every lawyer, journalist and lover of Texas lore.

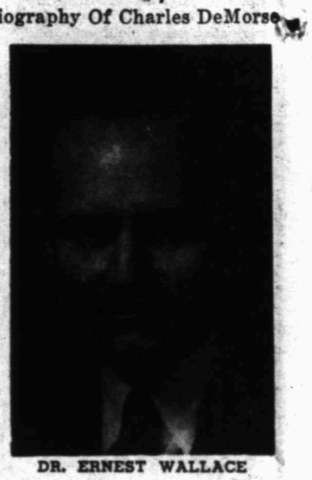

Packed With Interest

Dr. Wallace has written a biography of the "Father of Texas Journalism" which is packed with action and interest of a popular historical novel. His book is more than just a biography; it is with certain limits the history of Texas for the half century following San Jacinto—the story of annexation, the Mexican war, early statehood, the Civil war, Reconstruction, the formation of new constitutions and the mad scramble for land during the '80's.

Although relatively unknown except to Texas history experts and possibly a few newspapermen familiar with the journalistc history of the state, DeMors played an important role in the early days of the Lone Star state. He belonged to a small and distinguished band of statesmen and patriots.

Born In New England

Born in Massachusetts and reared to manhood in New York City, DeMorse joined a volunteer expedition to Texas in 1835. Before he was 26 years of age DeMorse had served as an officer in both the Texas army and navy, as a member of President Lamar's official family, and had associated with Austin, Houston, Rusk, Lamar, Burnett, and a host of other great Texans. He founded in 1842 at Clarksville, Texas, "The Northern Standard" which was the first newspaper to appear in Northeast Texas. DeMorse and his newspaper became one and inseparable in the minds of Texans. Both became a part of Texas, and Texas is what she is today in part because of them. Theirs was a great period in the history of Texas—Texas in the making—; and DeMorse and "The Standard" were builders.

DR. ERNEST WALLACE

Commanded Texas Cavalry

But DeMorse was more than just newspaper man. He was publisher, editor, lawyer, soldier in two wars, public official, statesman, merchant, student, and farmer. During the Civil war he was commander of the Twenty-ninth Texas Cavalry which was stationed in Indian Territory and Arkansas, and afterwards was one of the most influential leaders in the establishment of constitutional government in Texas. Although not ambitious for public office, he was twice put forward as a candidate for governor of the state he loved so well and in whose interest he zealously labored.

All of this Dr. Wallace has written interestingly and scholarly. He treats his subject with academic restraint but unconsciously has fallen under the spell of the rugged old Spartan. Wallace is not to be blamed for that, however, for often, great men with dynamic personalities so effect their biographers.

Few men have been permitted to live longer, or participate in more historical movements than DeMorse. Dr. Wallace has used him as the pattern around which

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Do you know what General Arnold said?

The other day, Gen. Arnold lifted us right out of our seats cheering.

He said: "One day last month over 1600 planes were in the air going from the United States overseas to some war theater."

Of course, that was just one particular day, and a big one. But even so, that's good. In fact, that's swell!

Then Gen. Arnold went on:

He told how the Army Air Force and the RAF saved our men at Salerno. And how, in doing it, we had to scrape the bottom of the barrel. How we had to use every plane in North Africa—how we had to gather planes from every training center, depot and modification center to do the trick.

He said the Italian invasion "would have been easier with more planes—and could not have been done with less."

He talked about the American raids on Germany. On one, 24 big Fortresses didn't come home. On another, 35. On another, 27. On another, 21. And since he talked, 60 bombers—and their gallant crews—went down in a single raid. No one can attempt to evaluate their loss in dollars or the loss to the enemy in destruction of war materials needed by him to carry on the war. But planes cost dollars to produce—millions of dollars.

Then he pointed again to the obvious fact that the Italian fight "is a small engagement compared to the gigantic expedition which one day, and we hope not too many months hence, will be set against continental Europe."

In short, if a fact was ever made crystal-clear, Gen. Arnold made this one: What we're doing now is good—BUT STILL NOT NEARLY ENOUGH!

And that goes for our building, for our fighting—and for the War Bond buying that makes the building and fighting possible.

Coming soon is a day when, with one mighty effort, we're going to smash into Hitler's Europe and bury Germany under an overwhelming mass of men, equipment—and all the materials that money can buy.

And to do it we've got to boost our War Bond buying. We've got to buy more Bonds and more Bonds and more Bonds right up to the final minute when the Nazi and Jap flags go down into the dust—for good!

Artillery School Pays Tribute To Patroness Of 1,600 Years Ago

FORT SILL, Okla., Dec. 4 (AP)—The United States field artillery school today observed an anniversary dating 1,600 years—the day of artillery's patroness, Santa Barbara, a Christian martyr.

Because she possessed great beauty, the story goes, Santa Barbara's jealous father locked her in a lonely tower There she accepted the Christian faith, and upon learning this the father denounced her publicly and condemned her to torture.

Unable to shake her faith, he took her to a mountainside and beheaded her with his sword. As he descended the mountain, "there came a most fearful tempest, with thunder and lightning, and fire fell upon this cruel father and consumed him utterly."

Occurred In Fourth Century

These events occurred, the legend says, on a Dec. 4 in the fourth century, near Nicodemia, ancient city in Bithynia in northwest Asia Minor.

The manner of her death, coupled with the attendant destruction of her father, led early artillerymen to choose her as their protectress from similar violence, it is believed.

Most of the ancient statues of Santa Barbara have a tower in the background—now compared to the modern artillery observation post—and always there are cannon at her feet From the crimson mantle which adorned her shoulders the field artillery long ago took its official color.

A recent survey shows that 8,000,000 lunch boxes are packed daily throughout the country for war workers.

Death Claims Founder Of Goodnight Ranch

HOUSTON, Dec. 4 (AP)—Final rites were planned today for David Ray McCormick, one of Texas' pioneer cattlemen.

McCormick, 88, died last night at the home of a daughter, Mrs. R. H. Fonville.

He was a native of Maine and came to Texas in 1872. McCormick established the first units of the Goodnight ranch in Palo Duro canyon, now a state park, and in later years held extensive cattle interests in Mexico. He was an original member of the old Trail Drivers' association, and was active for many years in the Texas Cattlemen's association.

The body was sent to San Antonio for burial.

Strange Events Free Confessed Slayer

CHICAGO, Dec. 4 (AP) — Paul Harrison, who was sent to the Illinois Security hospital at Menard in 1932 after he allegedly confessed four hammer slayings, was free today because of a set of strange legal circumstances.

Harrison, who was adjudged insane at the time of the slayings and who therefore could not be placed on trial on murder charges, was released yesterday when Prosecutor Gordon Nash moved to strike murder charges with leave to reinstate them if new evidence is found.

This action followed a recent finding by a jury in Judge Rudolph H. Desort's court that Harrison is now sane, and thus entitled to freedom from a mental hospital or to a hearing on the murder charges. Since he was adjudged insane at the time of the slayings, his alleged confession then could not now be used as evidence.

Nash said the alleged confession was the only evidence available now. Hence he moved to strike the charges. During his recent sanity hearing Harrison denied the killings.

Harrison, now 38, was alleged to have confessed in 1932 hammering to death Dr. James Shaffer, a dentist; Earl Davis, a watchman; Charles Pagel, and Miss Norma Newby.

Harrison plans to go to Burlington, N. C., to reside with his mother, Grace.

Ceiling Price Seen As Rice Problem Solution

BEAUMONT, Dec. 4 (AP) — A ceiling price on rough rice is seen as the solution to a problem which two Beaumont rice millers say threatens the southern rice milling industry with an immediate shutdown.

"Today we find the ridiculous situation of a rough rice market 75 cents to $1 higher than the milled rice ceilings," E. Harvey Steinhagen, vice-president and general manager of the Comet Rice mills, said in a written statement.

J. E. Broussard, president of the Beaumont Rice mills, in an interview, said "some mills already have closed. Others will follow including our mill in Beaumont. How could anyone continue operating at a loss?"

They said lifting the ceiling on milled rice would do little good as the price of rough rice would continue to skyrocket.

Non-Military Building Takes Lead In Texas

AUSTIN, Dec. 4 (U.P.) — Non-military work now is exceeding war plant construction in Texas, the Texas Contractor, trade publication, announced today in its December issue.

November's total non-military construction was put at $11,121,801 compared with $7,341,200 in war contracts. Building construction fell to $3,250,248 with residential projects making up all but $412,978 of the total. End of war-housing projects was given as a cause of the decline in building contracts.
