Record 1931 Wheat Crop Is Predicted For Texas

Production Estimate About 46,175,000 Bushels

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, June 11. — A record wheat crop for Texas was predicted today in the report of Carl H. Robinson, senior agricultural statistician for Texas, who estimated the Texas production at 46,175,000 bushels. Last year production totaled 28,270,000 bushels and the five year average production was listed at 23,454,000.

The condition of Texas wheat on June 1 was estimated at 77 per cent of normal compared with 55 last year and the ten year average of 67. Yields in the northwestern area will average 15 bushels per acre and nearly 18 bushels in the central areas.

Crop Over Average

Total wheat production in the United States was estimated at 849,115,000 bushels compared with 604,337,000 bushels last year. The general condition of wheat in the United States was estimated at 84.3 per cent of normal. The ten year average is 75.7 per cent.

Condition of Texas oats was given at 86 per cent normal as compared with 65 last year and a ten year average of 69. The yield per acre will be only slightly below the record yields of 42 and 42.6 bushels in 1919 and 1926 respectively. The black lands of North Central and Central Texas were estimated at 92 per cent of normal with prospects of an exceptionally large yield.

Barley Is Good

The barley crop condition was rated at 81 per cent of normal, ten points more than the ten year average. Rye also showed considerable improvement, being 81 per cent of normal as compared to 58 last year and a ten year average of 71. The ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio, June 11. —Two thousand men and women stormed the Belmont county jail here tonight in an effort to force the release of 11 striking coal miners arrested during disorders at the new Lafferty mine of the M. A. Hanna Coal company.

Sheriff Howard Duff, forty sheriff's deputies and a group of American Legion members, armed with tear gas bombs and machine guns, broke up the crowd and arrested the leader, Leo Thompson, of Pittsburgh, reputed communist and leader of the National Miners' union.

Sheriff Is Struck

Thompson's arrest followed a melee during which Duff was struck by several of the demonstrators. To rescue the sheriff, a deputy fired a gas bomb which resulted in seven women and five men being overcome.

Although repulsed, the demonstrators continued to mill about the jail and an additional crowd of approximately 4,000 was attracted to the scene. Fearing another outbreak, Duff sent to Bellaire for reinforcements and a larger supply of tear gas bombs.

Hope For Rescue Of Entombed Sub Crew Wanes Fast As All Efforts To Raise Ill-Fated Craft Are Pushed

WEIHAIWEI, China, June 11.—The American salvage ship Pigeon tonight was rushing to join British and Japanese vessels trying to raise the British submarine Poseidon in the Yellow Sea, but hope had been virtually abandoned that any of the 18 men trapped in the boat were alive.

The American vessel, carrying compressed air apparatus from Tientsin, was expected shortly at the point where the Poseidon plunged to the bottom under 20 feet of water Tuesday after being rammed by the Chinese steamer Yuta.

Although greatly handicapped by bad weather the British and Japanese boats are working steadily in an effort to salvage the submarine, but those in charge of the work believe it cannot be pulled to the surface for another week.

Meanwhile, all efforts of deep-sea divers to communicate with the entombed men, eight of whom are believed to have been in the aft compartment, have been unsuccessful. Frequent taps with a hammer on the outside of the foundered craft have brought no reply from within.

Appendicitis At 81 Said Unusual

J. H. Jenkins, 81, of 720 Avenue L, was in a serious condition at the West Texas hospital last night suffering from a ruptured appendix and general peritonitis.

An operation was performed upon Mr. Jenkins at the hospital yesterday, but attending physicians held little hope for his recovery.

Physicians at the hospital said Mr. Jenkins was the oldest person they had ever heard of who suffered ruptured appendix. The ailment is seldom suffered by persons over 50 years of age, they said.

Testimony Of Yates Argued Before Court

Statement Tells Of Being Forcibly Held By Posse Of Men Until After Slaying Of Two Spikes Brothers

BY J. SAM LEWIS
Avalanche Staff Writer

The men who lived in the Mesa Redonda community, territory of New Mexico in 1901 and 1902 and who knew the Spikes brothers, one man who had known the boys in Crosby county, Texas, before they went to New Mexico and a man who had bought cattle of John Spikes, were the witnesses in the libel suit of Fred Spikes being heard in 99th district court, at Thursday afternoon's session. Mr. Spikes is asking $200,000 damages of J. Evetts Haley, et al for publication of Mr. Haley's book "The XIT Ranch in Texas" which purports to tell about the shooting of Fred Spikes and the killing of his brothers John and Dick.

One of the men, Amos Yates, now of Tucumcari, was on the stand at the close of the afternoon. Just before closing counsel argued over admission of his statement purporting to tell of being forcibly held by a posse of men until after the Spikes brothers were killed. Objections of defense counsel to the testimony was overruled by Judge Clark Mullican, presiding, who held it could be admitted. Reading of the cross-examination of Mrs. W. C. Hunter, by deposition, was completed shortly after the afternoon session began.

N. E. Hord, Amarillo, for nearly 20 years a cattle buyer in Deaf Smith county, was the first witness. He was followed by John Dillard, tax collector of Crosby county and by Jim Griggs, of Tucumcari, who lived in the Mesa Redonda com-

Local Man Held For Grand Jury

P. E. Morgan, operator of a lunch stand at 1710 Broadway, yesterday was bound over to the county grand jury under $500 bond on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated, following an examining trial conducted before Justice of the Peace W. S. Clark.

Morgan was arrested Wednesday night by a motorcycle policeman upon the complaint of Emery Selman who said that an automobile driven by Morgan struck his automobile while it was parked in the 1600 block on Thirteenth street.

Although admitting he paid a $25 fine in police court yesterday on a drunkenness charge, Morgan denied that he had been drinking or had collided with Selman's machine.

"I paid off because I knew there was no use of fighting the case in police court," Morgan said. "I had just returned from a fishing trip when the officer arrested me. I did not take a drink all day."

Flowers Placed On Caskets At Each Stop In Texas By Many Citizens And Officials Of Two Countries

(By The Associated Press)

LAREDO, June 11. — Expressions of continued friendship for Americans were left behind him by Salvador Cores Rubio, cousin of President Pascual Ortiz Rubio of Mexico, as he entered his homeland late today on a train bearing the bodies of two fellow students, one of them another cousin of President Ortiz Rubio, who were slain by a peace officer at Ardmore, Oklahoma.

To American officials who greeted him at the train here, he was quoted as saying, "I am glad to see you but I am sorry it is under such circumstances. I am still the friend of Americans."

The young Mexican student, returning home for the summer from attending a college in Kansas, was with Emilio Cortes Rubio and Manuel Garcia Gomez, son of a socially prominent Mexican merchant, when they were shot to death early Monday in Ardmore.

Arriving here at 2 p. m. today, the train bearing the bodies was met by a small group of citizens and officials, including Alejandro Martinez, Mexican consul in Laredo, Romeyn Wormuth, American consul in Nuevo Laredo, and A. Mrs. Ola Redman Is Formally Charged With Murder After Slaying Of Fred Chase On Last Monday

TAHOKA, June 11. — Mrs. Ola Redman, 33, admitted slayer of Fred Chase, 33, farmer of the Gordon community, was formally charged with murder in a complaint filed in justice of the peace court today.

Mrs Redman signed a confession late Wednesday afternoon admitting shooting Chase, whose body was found Tuesday afternoon in an automobile a mile from his father's home, according to County Attorney G. H. Nelson.

Shot In Self Defense

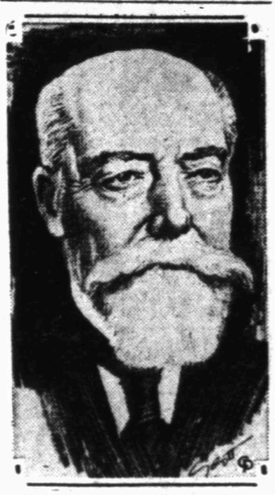

The woman said she shot Chase in self-defense Monday night after a quarrel lasting several hours. The man threatened her life if she went back to her husband, Glen Redman, a Pampa painting contractor, from whom she had been separated for about two years, Mrs. Redman said in her confession.

She and Chase had been going together for more than three years, although neither were divorced, the woman said.

Alger Hero Will Become French Chief Executive

PAUL DOUMER

Paul Doumer Takes High Office On Saturday

(By Associated Press)

PARIS, June 11.—A Horatio Alger hero becomes president of France on Saturday.

M. Paul Doumer, who triumphed over the world famous Aristide Briand in the election a month ago for the most elevated post in French politics, is the son of a railway section boss.

His mother was widowed when he was a boy, and at the age of 14 he left school to add his bit to the family income.

Remains Single Man

He worked unremittingly, and he lived according to the stern precepts of the peasantry from which he came. There was no time for fol-de-rols, and today, loaded with honors at the age of 74, he remains the simple man of the people, abstemious in his private life, aloof from the frivolities of Paris, an early riser and a hard worker. He is a thrifty Frenchman of middle class.

In his long service to the state, Doumer has had training somewhat similar to that of the late President Taft of the United States. Each had long experience as a colonial governor, Doumer in Indo-China, Taft in the Philippines. Each was a lawyer, although Doumer practiced infrequently.

One Big Difference

But between the American and the Frenchman there is one great difference. Taft's sense of humor is the theme of countless stories. There is no such string of pleasantries about Doumer.

The man who will be the thirteenth president of the third French republic earned his first francs as an engraver's apprentice. He won a degree of bachelor of science at night school and settled down as a teacher in a country high school. He married early and had eight children.

From pedagogics he went to

Traffic Laws In City Will Be Unchanged

City Commission Rescinds Its Former Action And Two-Hour Parking Will Remain As Law In Business Area

The two-hour parking limit is to remain in force on streets in the business district east of Texas avenue, the city commission decided yesterday afternoon.

Rescinding its action of two weeks ago ordering the city attorney to draw up a new parking ordinance, the commission adopted a resolution declaring its opposition to the removal of two-hour parking in the affected district.

Action Follows Canvas

Action was taken on the matter by the city officials following a review of a canvass made by a representative of the commission to determine if the busineses establishments on the streets involved wanted the restrictions removed.

The report showed that a majority of the firms were opposed to a change in the ordinance, a city official said.

Petition Presented

A petition was presented to the commission several weeks ago asking that the two-hour parking law

UNLESS the next legislature, which convenes in January, 1933, makes appropriations for the operation of summer sessions of state schools, Texas Technological college will be unable to hold its summer school two years hence Dean J. M. Gordon of the local college, said last night in commenting on the action of Gov. R. S. Sterling in vetoing parts of the educational appropriations bill.

The governor vetoed all summer school appropriations for the second year of the biennium, which will affect the sessions of 1933, including an item of $32,500 for the Technological college.

Hope For Relief

"It is hoped that the next legislature will find some means of providing funds for the summer school of that year," Dean Gordon said. "However, if it does not, a summer session will not be possible."

Although he had not been informed of the exact nature of the trimming of the appropriations bill, Dean Gordon said he did not believe that Texas Technological college's teaching staff would be otherwise affected. Several assistants professorships and instructors were eliminated from the appropriations for each of the higher institutions of learning by the governor's veto. These eliminations probably in-

Flying Colonel Is Planning Routes

Lindy Announces He Might Fly Over One Of Three Oceans On Visit To Orient—The Atlantic, Pacific Or Arctic

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 11. — Charles A. Lindbergh disclosed today he might fly over one of three oceans—the Atlantic, the Pacific or the Arctic—in his aerial journey to the Orient.

After a day of conference here with officials of several nations, the flying colonel said he and Mrs. Lindbergh now were considering four routes for the fourthcoming trip — with the final decision to rest upon the practicability of establishing fuel bases.

One would lie to the east, in part over the Atlantic to Greenland then far north to Spitsbergen, and across barren Siberian lands to Japan.

Another would carry the celebrated couple north to the Hudson Bay, westward across sparsely inhabited Canadian territory to the northern coast of Alaska and then over part of

Tradition Of Sportsmanship Upheld By Ruth Nichols

Unwritten Honor Code Established Five Years Ago By Rear Admiral Richard Byrd When Lindbergh Took To Air On Ocean Hop Is Recalled With Offer Of Woman Flier

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 11 — The tradition of sportsmanship between trans-Atlantic fliers founded in 1926 by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd has been upheld by a woman.

In the summer of 1926, Col. Lindbergh, Clarence D. Chamberlin, and the members of the Byrd expedition were pushing preparations in a race to be first into the air. Lindbergh won but Byrd was ready a few hours later.

"Will you start after him right away?" Byrd was asked while Lindbergh was still somewhere over the Atlantic.

"No," Byrd replied. "Slim got away first and until he lands in France the sky is his and we will make no attempt to share the honor that is his due."

Today Ruth Nichols, who is to attempt the first solo flight across the ocean by a woman and who seems likely to be first in the air of all this year's aspirants for Atlantic air honors, has made as gallant a gesture of sportsmanship as did Byrd five years ago.

She has offered to share the weather data gathered at her expense and by her organization with Laura Ingalls, who is preparing in California for a trans-Atlantic flight. The offer has been accepted by Miss Ingalls' representatives, who, however, insisted that the expense be shared as well as the information.

Eight Attend First Session

Boy Scout Leadership Training Course Opens At Texas Tech Wednesday; Ellsworth And Jennings Heads

Eight students attended the first session of a summer course in Boy Scout leadership training which was conducted at Texas Technological college Wednesday night.

Dr. J. O. Ellsworth, of the college faculty, and D. T. Jennings, scout executive, are instructors. Two hours of college credit will be given in the course, as a result of a recent decision by authorities of the state school.

Meets Tuesday and Friday

The scout leadership training class will meet at 7:30 p .m. Tuesday and Friday of each week in the college agriculture building.

A Lamesa scout training class which met Monday night, was scheduled to have an outdoor meeting this afternoon. The Lamesa group will meet both Monday and Wednesday of next week also, Executive Jennings said, to finish the course before southern district scouts leave for camp June 22.

The southern district, of which Lamesa is a part, will hold its annual encampment in the Sacramento mountains about ten miles from Cloudcroft, N. M. The site is that of the eastern New Mexico scout council. The camp will last ten days.

Lubbock scouts are scheduled to attend a camp there from July 5 to 15.

Forty-Eight Are Charged In Court

JOPLIN, Mo., June 11. (AP)—Forty eight persons, described by government agents as members of an alleged wholesale liquor ring formed by Al Capone with headquarters at Kansas City, were under indictment here today on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibitory liquor law.

W. L. Vandeventer, United States district attorney said last night he had received information many of those indicted were planning to plead guilty.

Last Wish Is Not Fulfilled

Dave Goodwin On Way To "Death Row" Without Seeing Wife, Children Or Mother, This Being Last Wish

TEXARKANA, June 11. (AP) — Dave Goodwin, 43, Bowie county farmer condemned to die for the slaying of Loyd Elliott, 23, hog rancher, was on the way to "death row" in the state penitentiary at Huntsville today without having his last chief desire fulfilled.

When returned to Bowie county from Dallas Tuesday, to hear his execution date set, Goodwin asked that he be kept in jail at Boston, Bowie county, long enough for his mother his wife and three children to visit him.

Informed today that Goodwin's mother was attending a sick daughter in Cass county and that his wife thought it better not to see him, Sheriff Henry Brooks started at noon with the condemned man for Huntsville.

Goodwin paced his cell all day yesterday, peering through the bars at the sound of every approaching footstep, hoping it would be his wife or his aged mother. When they failed to appear, he seemed downcast.

Before he left his cell today, Goodwin was assured by J. A. R. Moseley, jr., one of his attorneys, that everything possible would be done to save him from execution on August 10, the date set by District Judge George Johnson.

The pardon board now is considering his case and defense attorneys plan to appeal to Governor Sterling to commute the sentence to life imprisonment, contending that Goodwin failed to receive a fair trial because a mob gathered outside the courthouse during the trial was intimidating to the jury.

O. V. Adams Talks Before Kiwanians

O. V. Adams associate professor of civil engineering at the Texas Technological college discussed highway and street accidents in a talk yesterday before the Kiwanis club.

Adams quoted statistics showing that if 1931 accidents are no more than last year the entire population of Lubbock, Plainview, Slaton and Clovis could be wiped out and that would not be quite as many deaths as will take place in the state of Texas this year.

He advocated the passage of a drivers license law that will help require drivers to pass a rigid test before being permitted to drive a motor vehicle over the streets and highways of Texas, pointing to lower percentage of accidents in states that have these laws.

H.D. Woods vice president of the club presided in the absence of Dr. J. M. Lewis, president.

Professor Of Nebraska University Takes Up Task Of Making Psychology A Prohibition Weapon

WASHINGTON, June 11. (AP) — A self-styled "unsophisticated, undiluted professor from the Bible belt" has undertaken the task of making psychology a prohibition enforcement weapon

Fred N. Gregg, professor of psychology and education at Nebraska Wesleyan university, is holding classes at the prohibition bureau daily for 24 picked men from the 12 prohibition districts. In two weeks they are expected by him to return to their headquarters well versed in the mental gymnastics of the human race. Ideas acquired here are to be passed along by them to the more than 2,000 agents who will compose the federal enforcement division beginning July 1.

A class room atmosphere prevades the hall in which the professor presides. Charts relating to the science of teaching and to the relationship of instincts, emotion and intelligence hang upon the walls. Along with these, Professor Gregg brought specially prepared diagrams depicting the effects of alcohol upon the human brain.

Although not actually teaching prohibition to the agents, the professor came from the west with an assertion that the people on the eastern Allegeheny slope think inhabitants of other sections "naive." He said he also believed easterners do not sense the dry sentiment of the rest of the country.

Yates Testimony

munity in 1900,1901 and 1902 and who knew the boys.

Hord said he made frequent trips into the Mesa Redonda community to buy cattle and there met the Spikes brothers, raiher John, on two or three occasions. He twice bought cattle of him, in the spring of 1900 and of 1901. On each occasion he bought cattle, yearlings and two year olds, about 100 to 150 of each, he stated on cross examination. These animals were branded the "Long S" as he called the John Spikes brand. There were no burned brands, Mr. Hord stated. After testifying on direct examination the boys had a good reputation, Mr. Hord stated on cross-examination he could not tell the names of persons who had discussed the reputation of the Spikes brothers.

EXPLANATION

In reporting testimony of Dick Cousineau in Thursday's Journal concerning his knowledge of "Potter" being the man who shot a boy during the holdup of the Fort Sumner postoffice, the article said Cousineau said he did know it. Mr. Cousineau's tone was low and the reporter understood him as making the statement, although he said he did not know of the robbery until later. Mr. Cousineau's testimony was, however, that he did not know that Potter was the man as he knew nothing of the robbery until later. He only met Potter once, he stated.

Tells Of Ranches

John Dillard, a resident of Crosby county for 40 years, detailed his personal acquaintance with the boys, he having met John and Jeff, the oldest, first. Dillard told of the ranches he worked on and of where the boys worked, naming the early day ranches. John once had the mail contract between Emma and Dickens, with himself as partner, Dillard said. This was about 1893. He recalled the death of the boys and said that in May or June 1902 he and his wife went to New Mexico to look at the cattle. He was planning to buy them, he stated, but did not do so because he could not take them out and there was not enough water to keep them there.

Dick Cousineau was helping at the ranch where Mrs. Spikes, her three children and her father were. He looked over the cattle but saw no evidence of burned brands, etc. While there he was pointed out the place where the killing took place and where the cave was.

Secures More Details

E. L. Klett cross-examined the witness and secured more details of the activities of John Spikes' life in Crosby county. The family cattle were divided among the boys in about 1893-4. "John traded right smart," and he thought he bought and sold cattle, witness said in answer as to what John Spikes did in Crosby county. Dillard said he did not know of the activities of the boys in New Mexico. While at the Spikes ranch with his wife, "Ernest came one night and left the next," witness stated.

Last summer he and Fred Spikes went over to Mesa Redonda, after the suit was filed witness recalled. Mr. Spikes had asked him if he recalled the occasion of his first visit; he and the party enjoyed going over the Mesa and visiting the cave, Mr. Dillard said. At first he was unable to state if Mr. Spikes had gone up to the cave or not, but later said he "guessed he did." At length Mr. Dillard described the cave and the mountain as he recalled it, tracing it first on a huge map which the defendants have in the court room; later tracing it for location of the Spikes home on a smaller map.

Recalls Indictment

On redirect questioning Mr. Dillard recalled one of the indictments of John Spikes in Crosby county, concerning his interference with cattle owned by C. Cousineau. This occurred at a roundup in the fall of 1892 and resulted in an indictment by the grand jury in 1893. The petit jury found him guilty and fined him, the cowboys including Dillard paying the fine, he said. Cousineau, who was not a cattleman, had attempted to tell Dillard, the new wagon boss how to run the roundup, he stated. The wagon boss, as a joke, pretended to appoint Cousineau as boss and when he ordered John to do certain things, the latter refused. John then borrowed a pistol, removed the cylinder and pulled it on the "boss," he testified.

Klett asked Dillard if he told the story on the witness stand at John Spikes trial just as he had done here. "I did," witness said. The attorney then asked if the jury considered it a joke if they found John guilty and the witness explained he thought they had to return the verdict they did, because a pistol had been pulled on a man, even if in fun.

Built Dugout

Jim Griggs of Tucumcari, who lived in Floyd county from 1891 to 1895 and from 1897 to 1899 and then went back to winter in Floyd county, returning in 1900, about June. A year later he moved to Puerto canyon and worked for I. N. Dilon for a year and a half. Griggs met Dick Spikes with Lee Gohlson and Jim O'Brien at a roundup in the fall of 1899; he met John and Ernest in the spring of 1901; did not meet Sam as he recalled and was never acquainted with Fred and Jeff there he stated. At the time of the killing Jim said he lived about 13 miles from John Spikes' house and the morning following it he had Amos Yates and Jim Errol at breakfast at his house and they went to the Spikes home, he testified.

"I got there about 10 or 11 o'clock, he said in answer to a question. On the way, he explained, he met party including Sam Gohlson, Vin Cissell, Louis Nance, John White, a man named Jenkins and Bud Lee. At the house he said he helped dress the bodies of the dead, when he arrived only Mrs. Spikes, the children and Henry Carter were there, witness said. Witness said he never saw any burned hides or heads or any evidence of stolen cattle. He knew the good reputation of the Spikes boys, Griggs stated.

Bodies Were Dressed

On cross examination by George Dupree, Griggs said he never knew the boys in Crosby county while he lived in Floyd. He detailed meetings with John at roundups and with others. Asked to name those who said the brothers had good reputations, he mentioned the Hunter brothers, Jack Boccaro and Frank Bond. Witness said he did not recall meeting Dick Cousineau before the shooting. Mr. Griggs insisted that the bodies of the two men were fully dressed when he arrived at the house. He recalled helping wash the bodies the second day after the killing and when Mr. Dupree asked him if he did not know that Cousineau and Bond had washed them before, exclaimed, "Well, if they did, we did it again."

A week before the shooting, at his home, Griggs stated he was told of a shooting escapade in which the Gholsons and the others had participated. "You heard it was John and Dick Spikes in that didn't you?" queried Dupree. "No, I heard it was the Hawkins gang," replied Griggs. He testified he never visited the "cave" until 1924-25

Tells Of Meeting

Griggs told of meeting Henry Hawkins in the summer of 1901 and said he did not know of his being in Arizona that summer: he did not know "Potter" or Cook, but knew Massagee. "I did not know enough about Hawkins to know him, witness stated, adding, "I never heard his reputation questioned until after the Fort Sumner robbery."

On redirect questioning Griggs stated he was asked by Vin Cissel and John White to join a posse to take the Spikes boys. This was about a week before the shooting.

Amos Yates, Tucumcari, went from Old Emma where he lived with his sister and her husband, a Mr. Simpson, to a pasture on Red Lake, south of where Montoya, N. M. now is, west of Mesa Redonda, in 1891. He told of his working on the Bell ranch, doing three contract jobs; then of his building a dugout and in the spring of 1900 going to work for a man named W. W. Humble. He was made "outside man" and his duties were detailed by Yates.

Met At Dance

Yates said he met John and Dick Spikes at a dance in the winter of 1899 and met Jeff in the summer and fall of 1901. He never met Fred, he said. He began to meet John and Dick at roundups in 1900. Sheriff Romero had given him a commission, he said. He knew Sam Gohlson in 1899 and met Bud Lee in Crosby county, he testified; never met Cissell and Nance until 1901, he said. Lee and Gohlson told him the Spikes boys were rustling, witness said. As a deputy he inspected the Spikes herd and found no such evidence, he said.

Witness said he visited at John Spikes home "very little" he knew Henry Hawkins slightly, did not know George Cook but knew George Massagee; did not know Witt Neel or Potter. He spent the night of January 19 at the home of John Spikes and left in the morning going west. While at the home Yates testified that "John told me he heard of warrants; that John asked the deputy to get the papers and serve them, and that he said that "if the men he heard had the warrants had them, he did not want to surrender because he was afraid they would kill him." John Spikes was further quoted as saying that if Yates had them "he would go anywhere."

Yates then said he left the house and rode west, stopping several miles away at the new home of a man to get a drink of water. He was unable to give the name of the man. It was there the witness related that J. H. Nix and some others came up and that eight men threw down Winchesters on him. Lockhart and Brown argued for admission of the next testimony and Crenshaw and Klett against it. The defense motion was overruled.

Witnesses at the morning session besides Cousineau included: Rev. C. F. Carmack, brother of Condy Carmack and four character witnesses, C. T. Roy, former Crosby sheriff; A. A. Bratcher and W. C. Bryant, Lubbock and J. H. Pettit, Hockley county. Deposition of Mrs. W. C. Hunter was read.

Miss Johnie Bess Richards Is Honored At Thursday Party

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

NOW THAT I'm back from a hurried trip out of town and find everyone sweltering around in the first heat of summer, I might as well admit that "cool Colorado" was not so cool. To be exact, we couldn't tell any particular difference in the temperature at Denver and Lubbock. It was cool of evenings there and warm in the daytime.

As this wasn't a pleasure trip, we did little sight-seeing and did not go far into the mountains, however, a short trip out of Colorado Springs when we started home did bring a unique experience. We followed the old Cripple Creek railroad line, which is now known as the Corley Mountain drive, out from Colorado Springs to Canyon City and away out on a lonely hillside paused to watch the famous cog railroad train creep up the snow-clad crest of Pikes Peak. That was the first time I had been around on the back side of the peak and we were so near it looked as if we could walk over there into the snow in a few hours.

The distances are deceiving, to be sure, but that spot in the Cripple Creek region is much nearer to the famous mountain than Manitou — or so it looked to us.

Following that old deserted rail line brought us a peculiar thrill. There are few tourists out yet and our drive was made without meeting other people. We passed through sites of towns that flourished a few decades ago during the rush of gold miners to the Rockies and felt that we could almost see the ghosts of those men lingering about the decaying buildings.

Many bridges of that old line have long since washed away except for a few timbers and the auto road has been rebuilt to follow the side of the canyon. But the beams that remain, the blackened rocks over tunnel entrances, and occasional signs that stood along the tracks are there as reminders of the life of the road.

While in the vicinity, we went over to the Royal Gorge to see the world's highest bridge, which has been constructed recently, and it occurred to us as a strange thing that this bridge is so near the plain and that it can be seen across the rolling hills west of Canyon City and does not look high at all from there.

In reality, the bridge looks low against the background of snow covered peaks which rise back of it. It spans a rock-walled chasm 1053 feet deep, however, and is suspended above a narrow gorge through which the dirty Arkansas river rushes out of the mountains.

Accustomed to the prairies, the mountains held their usual appeal for us during the last few days and it was with interest that we watched the clouds envelop a peak all one afternoon and saw it emerge white-topped the next morning.

Although it is much higher than this section, gardens were further advanced in Canon City and that region than they are here. That is a truck gardening section and some of the produce was already being shipped.

ACHIEVING IMMORTALITY

THE TIME is ripe for America to produce another really great writer, according to H. L. Mencken, who has a number of reasons for believing that this literary prodigy may make his appearance almost any day now. One of his principal reasons is that progress in letters, like any other kind of evolution, tends to go in waves.

Although it often seems that half the world is trying to write and that almost anything can find acceptance for publication, there is in the literary field, as in any other, the goal of perfection at which we may aim. Few people will be considered great in any line, but there is always greatness to have as an ideal and from some place the prodigy will appear.

It is such as that that keeps the world moving along. Most of us will lead a mediocre sort of life but there is always the chance that we may achieve immortality through the thing that we produce. And here is a thought on immortality: You may be instrumental in helping someone else to have immortality and thereby share in it also. And genius is not the only one who may have this glory.

World Attention Is Focused On Washington As Europeans Fight With Economic Forces

On Surface Europe Alone Involved In Problem, But A Sign Of Aid Is Looked For From United States

BY KIRKE SIMPSON

WASHINGTON, June 11. (AP)—Economic forces born of the World War, but swollen to gigantic proportions by the general depression of today, face the statesmen of the world.

On the surface, Europe alone is involved in the new uprising of the war reparations problem. The known developments have centered in Germany and England with heads of those governments in intimate conference and France a vitally interested onlooker.

Yet it is on Washington and the Hoover administration that world attention is focused, looking for a sign that America again is ready to lend aid to a new attempt to iron out the tangle of reparations, interallied debts, disarmament, tariffs, budgetary deficits and all other elements involved in an international economic crisis in 1931.

Out of the Anglo-German conference at Chequers, official residence of Prime Minister MacDonald, European observers drew the impression that a new move had been set afoot looking to "international collaboration" to meet the situation.

That phrase was construed as meaning American collaboration in conference where Germany's World War reparation liabilities to the former World War Allies could be reviewed simultaneously with the situation as to the war debts owed by those Allies to their former war associate, the United States.

America exacted no reparations payments from Germany. Under four presidents, Wilson, Harding, Coolidge and Hoover, she has declined to consider the question of allied reparations from Germany and allied war debts to her as interlocking.

The conclusion drawn by European observers of the Anglo-German conferences in early June was that Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtis of Germany, had been informed that three could be no scaling down of reparations unless there also was reduction or abatement in war debt payment schedules for the former allies.

Presumably it was left to German initiative to find a way to induce Washington to consider some action of that kind.

Out of Washington happenings, vague as they may be in throwing light on administration purposes, not only foreign but usually well informed Washington observers have gleaned possible significance. President Hoover's insistence on further arms limitation, so quickly disclosed in his initiation of the London naval parley move and emphasized in his recent speech, lends color to the idea he is prepared to go far to attain that end.

It remains to be seen whether the new phase of the reparations tangle, crystalizing in the German government's struggle with increased taxation in the face of rumbles of political revolt under any added burden, officers Washington an opportunity to trade some form of war-debt revision for an international pact, backed by the Kellogg-Briand universal treaty against war as an agency of national policy, actually cutting down the armies and military taxes of the world. There have been no intimations from official sources to that effect in Washington.

Chaplin Laughs At His Own Antics

Charlie Is Known As Real Artist In Hollywood; When He Is Ready To Work, He Works—But He Also Plays Around

BY LEONARD S. KIMBALL
(Copyright, 1931, The Associated Press).

HOLLLYWOOD, June 11. — Charlie Chaplin goes to his own shows, laughs at them or frowns and speaks of himself as "he."

If he doesn't like a part in his picture, he will remark: "I don't think he is so funny there. He'll have to change that."

The probability is that idea of how he does want Charlie Chaplin to act in that part will come to him a moment later. It may be midnight but that makes no difference. The whole company is roused out of bed, called to the studio and work begun.

Chaplain works with them until he is satisfied or exhausted. It may be six hours or it may be twelve. The part finished, he goes home and sleeps until his energy is restored. But before he leaves the company is told to be ready for work at "ten o'clock tomorrow morning."

When the company arrived there would be no Chaplin. Telephone calls from the studio wouldn't get him out of bed and about two or three o'clock in the afternoon, he might walk in, or it might be a day later or a week.

After he arrived, there might be no work, as frequently occurred in his latest picture. He came on the set one day and found two boxers sparring about the ring. Settling himself in an easy chair, he watched them.

They wrestled, boxed and did antics throughout the afternoon with the company and Chaplin looking on in great amusement. Night came, Chaplin glanced at his watch and found he was late for an engagement. Everybody was sent home without having done a stroke of work.

That is why Charlie Chaplin is known as the screen's real artist in Hollywood. When he works, he works with tremendous energy but no one can ever tell whether he is going to work or play.

He is the only actor in Hollywood who owns his studio. It enables him to do as he pleases. There are no rules, regulations, high powered officials or efficiency experts in it. One man is his business manager, general manager, personal secretary—in fact, nearly his whole staff. They have known each other since they were boys.

He likes to travel, but if he goes alone there is certain to be a frantic wire within a day or so asking for clothes. He probably walked out of the hotel and forgot them. He can't get dressed for any event by himself, unless it is tennis. A sweat shirt and white flannels are his favorite attire.

Three Men Jailed As Suspects Here

Hacksaw blades and a spoon, beaten and cut into a saw-toothed weapon, recently were found in city jail, it was revealed today. Two hacksaw blades were found in the jail after an attempted break was frustrated early May 17.

Both county and city prisoners are in the jail at City hall, as the county jail was razed to make way for a new building which is under construction.

Upsets Feature As Dark Horses Win At River Crest

Gibson Payne Finds Way To Quarterfinal

Rose Of Lamesa Beats Dennis Lavender But Later Loses; Merriman Remains In Play With Lubbock Ace

(By Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, June 11.—Upsets were the order of the day Thursday as eight players representing six cities fought their way into the quarter finals of the annual River Crest Invitation tournament. Favorites dropped and left during the first two rounds and the dark horses had a field day.

Tomorrow morning, Gus Moreland, Dallas, meets Walter Wilcox; Mansel Merriman, Amarillo, plays M. Norton, Wichita Falls, L. G. McCray, Denton, meets Jack Jackson, Dallas and Gibson Payne, Lubbock, plays Spec Goldman, Dallas, for the right to go into the semi-finals Friday afternoon.

Moreland, the only established favorite to survive the first two rounds, went into the quarter finals by defeating W. C. Stripling, jr., Fort Worth, in the second round, 7-6, after beating L. T. Burns, Wichita Falls 4-3, in the morning rounds.

Lamesan Beats Lavender

Wilcox, who is proving the real dark horse of the tournament, put out Bert Rose, Lamesa, one up, 19 holes, in a torrid afternoon round. During the morning he had defeated Dennis Lavender, Dallas, one of the favorites in one of the biggest upsets of the day. The score was one up.

Merriman, former tri-state champion and veteran of many tournaments, had to call out all the tricks in his bag during the afternoon to defeat O'Hara Watts, Dallas, the Southwest Conference champion, one up.

In the morning round, Merriman handed B. P. Bondurant, Dallas, a 4-2 lacing while Watts was putting out Johnny Avon of Dallas.

Jack Jackson saved the dopesters some prestige when he defeated S. J. Barnett, Eastland on the nineteenth Barnett had defeated Ed Stewart, Fort Worth, 2-1, in the morning round while Jackson put out A. J. Lee Fort Worth.

Payne Wins Twice

Gibson Payne, the dark Lubbock star, handed the smashed dope receptacle a further slamming when he put Reynolds Smith, one of the finalists in the state tournament a smashing 5-4 beating. Payne put out Hughes King Fort Worth, 4-3, in the first round, while Smith, beat Trav Daniel, Fort Worth, 2 up, after a hard fight.

The close matches were not confined to the first flight. In the second Gene Bedford, Lubbock, had to go to the last hole before he could gain a decision over Herman Gartner of Fort Worth. C. R. Pope, Abilene, had a tough time with J. H. Clarke, also of Abilene, before he won, 2-1. Dick Gregg, Austin, was carried to the nineteenth hole by C. M. Harris of Fort Worth, before he could advance. Many other close matches were played.

In the fourth flight Bill Yeager of Abilene, one of the favorites to cop the title, was unable to play because of a broken finger sustained in an accident Wednesday night.

Charlie Quails Post, the West Texas champion, and Jo Dick Slaughter, Lubbock, two of the other favorites, were defaulted when they failed to arrive in time for their matches.

Ninth Frame Rally Wins For Beaum'nt

BEAUMONT, June 11 (AP)—With a fine rally in the ninth climaxed by Easterling's homer with the bases full, the Exporters took the series from Shreveport here today 5-4. With the Exporters trailing, 4-3, "Pound 'Em" crashed one over the fence.

Wise scored from third and Taylor from second but White, who had been on first, crossed second and started for the outfield to pick up his glove. When Easterling trotting around the bags, passed second White was called back into line but fell in behind the home run hitter thus giving Easterling credit for only a two base hit officially.

Local Golfers In Tournament

Annual "Neck And Gizzard" Tourney Scheduled Sunday At Lubbock Country Club; City Champ On Wednesday

Lubbock Country Club's annual "neck and gizzard" golf tournament will be held Sunday over the club's golf course. All Lubbock golfers are invited to participate, regardless of club membership.

The players will be divided into two groups composing teams which shall battle each other for the honors and for a special chicken dinner to be provided by the losing team.

Jo Dick Slaughter, chairman of the Lubbock Country club tournament committee, has turned the matters of handling the "neck and gizzard" affair over to Ross McWhorter, member of the committee, Slaughter playing with other Lubbock golfers in the Rivercrest Invitation tournament this week at Fort Worth.

Open Begins Wednesday

The tournament of Sunday is a prelude to the annual city championship tournament which is to open at the Meadowbrook Golf course on Wednesday of next week. All local golfers will be invited to take part in the city joust and compete for the title left vacant by Clinton Bussey, winner last year who has recently moved to San Antonio.

Qualifying rounds will continue through Thursday at the Meadowbrook with first, second and third flight players beginning match play at the Country club course on Friday. The fourth flighters will remain for all of the city championship matches on the Meadowbrook course. Finals, consisting of 36-hole matches, will be played on Sunday at both courses.

California fisheries, valued at $10,000,000, rank second among those of the United States.

"Balloon Ball" Under Inspection

Policy Of "Watchful Waiting" Adopted By U.S.G.A. But New Ball Will Remain Official Pill Through 1931

NEW YORK, June 11. (AP)—The United States Golf association has adopted a policy of "watchful waiting," insofar as the criticism of the new and so-called "balloon ball" is concerned. The new ball will remain official, at least for 1931.

The association has received a wide variety of conflicting reports on the ball from many parts of the country. Informal tests have been held, comparing the old ball with the new, but they have been too inconclusive to form the basis for any official judgment.

Criticism as well as approval of the new ball has come from such widely separated sources that definite conclusions have been made impossible. It is regarded as significant that in a number of instances, early critics changed their attitude to one of approval.

A number of professionals in the metropolitan district have reported that members' scores, with the new ball, have generally showed a lower average than in 1930, under favorable conditions.

Advertisers Beat Wholesalers, 4-3

In a contest mingled with frequent squabbling over decisions, the Advertisers defeated the Wholesalers, 4 to 3 in a regular scheduled City League game yesterday. The Texas Utilities outfit added another victory by beating the Legion-Lions, 8 to 6.

The Advertisers were off to a 2-run lead in the first inning and added two more in the second. Howell, hurling for the losers, allowed only five hits but three Wholesalers errors did him no good. Bryant and Clements for the Advertisers were touched for two hits each and their mates fumbled three times. The Wholesalers attempted a rally in the fourth after running one across in the second but were cut short with two runs.

Howell struck out seven batsmen in the five innings. Five were fanned by Bryant and three by Clements the latter working two innings.

This afternoon at 6 o'clock the Rainbows and Avalanche-Journal team will meet at the Rainbow's park at Texas Avenue and 23rd Street. Merrill Park the usual playing park for the Avalanche-Journal team, is under repair and may not be used for the game.

Senator Shortstop May Be Out Several Days; Rookie Southpaw Defeats World Champions In First Attempt

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 11. — The Senators gained in the pennant race today by defeating Cleveland, 12-5, while Philadelphia was losing to St. Louis, but may have paid for it by an injury to their star shortstop, Joe Cronin.

A fast ball, pitched by Harder of Cleveland, struck Cronin in the shoulder and forced his retirement in the third inning. His shoulder was badly bruised and an x-ray was being made tonight to determine whether the bone was chipped.

Cronin's removal broke up a consecutive hitting streak he had run to 18 games. He walked on his first trip to the plate.

Dennis "Rip" Vinzant of Lamesa, for four years a star athlete at Texas Tech, yesterday signed a contract with the Greenville High school board calling for his services as assistant football coach and basketball and track coach at that institution. Vinzant, who received his bachelor of arts degree at Texas Tech Monday, will serve under Henry E. Frnka, former head coach at Lubbock High who was this summer elected head coach at Greenville and recently moved there.

A regular end on the Matador grid team for the past few years and a star basketball and track man, Vinzant is one of the few three-letter men of Tech. He won a $250 scholarship in 1929 as being the best all-around athlete at the institution.

Favorites Win Way Into Texas Net Semi-Finals

Hess And Quick Are Favored To Meet In Finals

BY BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

MEADOWMERE COUNTRY CLUB, FORT WORTH, June 11. (AP)—Rain stopped matches in the Texas District Lawn Tennis association state championship here late this afternoon but not before Jake Hess of Fort Worth, Earl Taylor of Austin and Jimmy Quick of Dallas, had played their way into the semi-finals of men's singles.

Wilmer Allison, third ranking player in the United States, was leading, 2-0, in his quarter final match against Charles Sloan of Houston when rain halted play. Allison and Sloan will finish their match tomorrow providing weather allows. If Allison wins and goes into the semi-finals, he will play Earl Taylor while Jake Hess and Jimmy Quick will compete in the semi-finals of the lower bracket.

Barr Is Eliminated

Earl Taylor gave the tournament a mild upset today when he eliminated John Barr, Dallas lawn tennis club, 6-4, 6-2. Barr was effective at the net, but most of the time he elected to stay in the back court and play a driving game.

Jake Hess, Fort Worth's diminutive star, defeated Louis Thalheimer, 6-4, 6-0. Hess offered no special game, but turned in a consistent game that saw him cover his court with forehand and backhand shots that Thalheimer could not handle with effect.

Jimmy Quick, who is from the Dallas lawn tennis club and ranked second in this tournament, played a beautiful chop game to beat John McDiarmid of Fort Worth in straight sets, 6-1, 7-5.

In the girl's singles today, Miss May Courvorst of Wichita, Kas., a ranking star of the middlewest, made her tournament bow with a 6-3, 6-0 victory over La Verne stages of Fort Worth.

MARLIN, June 11. (AP)—The marriage of Herman Clark, former star football quarterback at Texas Christian university, to Miss Odessa Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Johnson of Marlin, was announced in a message received today from Fort Worth by relatives here. The marriage took place yesterday. The couple will reside in Fort Worth until August, when they will leave for Kentucky, where Clark will resume his duties as a member of the coaching staff of Centre College.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

©1931 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

Is your child unpopular in the neighborhood? But that is an idle question, because you would not know if he were.

Just look around a bit and use your eyes and ears without prejudice. I say all this because of a case I observed one time that convinced me that in this one family at least the mother was absolutely unaware of what was going on. Her neighbors were criticising her, not for being blind, but for deliberate indifference to her child's behavior, or any effort to inquire into it.

The little girl was six. She had been a popular baby in her toddling days and was the neighborhood pet. Everybody loved her, fussed over her, carried her home and kept her as long as her mother would permit.

But Children Change

Of course the good lady got the forever, not realizing that her little darling was getting older and getting her experience outlets away from home. And experience outlets are even more uncomfortable for neighbors than they are for mothers.

Came Anthea's third birthday, then her fourth, and establishing her personality in the big wide world became a serious business. Her will was developing—that is one of the psychological processes of the mind, testing its own strength. Her curiosity was insatiable, and nothing was sacred against her small investigations. She was secretive, too, because that is another stage of this developing business.

And she was untruthful, because at an age when fact and fancy know no dead-line, it is common for a child to fib. In Anthea's case, it was very, very strong, this tendency to twist in the telling; and stories carried from house to house were not always straight.

When the neighbors tried to make her mind, she was ready with an answer which already her young mind had discovered to work magic. "I won't! You're not my mother. I don't have to mind anybody but my mother."

So Anthea tracked up dirt on scrubbed porches, dug up seeds in gardens, opened the doors of birdcages, and helped herself to jelly. She was everywhere. And she wouldn't stay at home because she had a much less hampered life elsewhere.

At home she was good, because her impulses and urges needed no more outlet. She was satisfied and tired when meal, bed and bath times came around.

I think we all need to look about and learn just how our children stand in the good graces of the neighborhood.

The SUNDAY DINNER

By Oscar of the Waldorf

Celery stuffed with Roquefort Cheese
Cream of fresh Asparagus
Breast of Veal, Poulette
New Beets, buttered
Fresh String Beans
Grapefruit Salad, French dressing
Pineapple Cream
Coffee

Breast of Veal, Poulette

Cut a breast of veal into small equal-sized pieces, blanch, put them in a saucepan with a small quantity of the water in which they were parboiled, and warm them over the fire. Sift in a small quantity of flour, stir it until smooth, then put in a lump of butter, some mushrooms, carrots, bay leaves, a bunch of sweet herbs and salt and pepper to taste. Cover the saucepan and cook the contents gradually until nearly done, then put in some young white onions and finish cooking.

When done, place the veal on a hot dish and keep it near the fire while the sauce is being prepared. Strain the cooking liquor through a fine sieve into another saucepan, squeeze in a small quantity of lemon juice and then pour in the beaten yolks of four eggs; stir it over the fire until thick, not allowing it to boil. Pour it over the veal, and serve.

Pineapple Cream

Place in a stewpan with a small quantity of water one ounce of gelatine, and put over the fire until it is quite dissolved. Rub through a fine sieve half a teacupful of pineapple jam and stir it in with the gelatine adding four heaped teaspoonsful of caster sugar; stir over the fire with a wooden spoon until boiling, and then skim it well and turn it into a basin.

A pint of thick cream now should be whisked to stiff snow, and when the pineapple mixture has become nearly cold stir the two together, beating them well. Rinse out a mould with cold water, and pour the mixture into it, setting it on the ice. When cold and firm, remove from the mould, place on a glass dish, and serve.

This Curious World

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

All through the summer months, while the days are longer, many home-makers are confronted with the problem of keeping meals hot and palatable for the members of the family who like to play golf after business hours. There are often other occasions when the hours of daylight are spent out-of-doors and the dinner hour is rather indefinite, making it necessary to choose foods which need not be served immediately after cooking.

SISTER MARY

When meals must wait, you will find that casserole-cooked foods and molded dishes are especially adaptable. Hot soups also can be kept in good condition in the double boiler, while the cold jellied ones, desserts, can be kept perfectly and without inconvenience in the ice-box until the tardy one arrives.

Certain vegetables can be baked and cooked in various ways without danger of losing their flavor on long standing. Scalloped Irish potatoes, sugared or twice baked sweet potatoes, baked spinach, buttered beets and carrots delicious are some vegetable dishes that are not made unappetizing if kept hot. Delicately flavored vegetables such as asparagus and green peas lose their flavor and tenderness if kept hot or reheated.

Casserole combinations should be baked in a slow oven and kept hot in a pan of hot water. This preserves all the moisture and heat without over-cooking and drying. Part of the dish may be served whenever wanted and the remainder returned to the hot water bath without harm.

All sorts of good baked dishes can be made from canned sea foods while salt codfish and smoked salmon and halibut lend themselves admirably to casserole cookery.

Beef, veal, pork and lamb are always good cooked en casserole and can be combined with vegetables to make a one-piece dish.

Casserole of ham with potatoes and onions takes care of both vegetabes and meat. With a moded salad and fresh fruit for dessert, a well-balanced meal is provided.

Broiled meats can be used for occasions when some time must elapse after the arrival of the belated diners until they are ready for their meal. But chops and individual portions must be used as soon as cooked, for they are ruined by standing.

The reheating of foods ordinarily means an extra amount of work and extra dishes to wash but foods cooked en casserole require only to be kept hot in the casserole and can be served straight from the casserole without extra dishes.

Casserole of fresh salmon and potatoes makes a seasonable two-in-one main dish.

Casserole of Salmon

Two pounds fresh salmon, 1 lemon, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 2 cups diced celery, 3 cups potato marbles, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 cup boiling water.

Choose a middle cut of salmon and remove skin. Squeese juice from lemon and sprinkle over fish. Season with salt and pepper and place in a buttered casserole. Surround with celery and potatoes. Dot vegetables with bits of butter and sprinkle potatoes with parsley. Add water and cover casserole. Bake for one hour in a moderate oven or until potatoes are tender and the fish leaves the bone. Set casserole in pan of hot water over a low fire until wanted to serve.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Oranges, cereal, cream, toasted tomato and bacon sandwiches, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Ham and egg timbales with creamed peas and browned carrots, strawberry salad, rye bread, milk, tea.

DINNER: Casserole of salmon and potatoes, beet greens, celery and apple salad, sugared cherries, milk, coffee.

Too Bad Like Does Not Beget Like, Virginia Lee Declares

BY VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have a very old problem. I like a certain boy and he doesn't appear to like me. We both attend high school and are both 16.

"What can I do to make him like me. I am nice looking, have nice clothes and come of a good family, so it can't be that, and he has the same qualifications.

"MARY."

Virginia Lee

Yes, yours is an old problem, Mary, as old as the world. And it's one of those things that you can't do much about. It is too bad that like doesn't always beget like, isn't it, but so it is. And sometimes the harder one person likes another the more indifference she encounters.

In your case it may not be so bad, for you are young and you probably will change in a short time and wonder what you ever saw in G. And then maybe, so queer are people, he'll like you.

And that may be your cue. No matter what it costs you, treat him with supreme indifference. Don't let even your best girl friend know that you like him. It works sometimes.

MRS. M. B.: This column is not a matrimonial agency. Mrs. B., and cannot help you find a husband. Sorry I can't be more helpful.

HEART-BROKEN KID. Your letter was entirely too long to print, as you asked. I think the wisest thing for you to do is to go out with young people your own age, and, if possible, forget this married man.

Of course it may all be true that his wife doesn't love him and wants to get rid of him and the children, as she says. But it doesn't sound natural.

The thing for them to do is to separate if they feel as they say they do, and then he will be free to court you. As long as he and his wife live together your reputation will suffer if you are seen with him.

If his wife mistreats the children it is a further reason for him to leave her and marry a woman who would be good to them. But, for your part, be very, very sure that you love him as a wife should, and that you can be a good mother to the children. If they are badly off now with their own mother, they would be worse off with a stepmother who did not love them, poor little things!

AN UNDECIDED WIFE: Don't you suppose one reason that your husband is irritable is that he is not working? It is very hard on an amiable man to be out of work, and it is quite apt to make even that type unreasonable. So it would have a worse effect on a cross one who takes to drink to drown his feelings.

It is a shame that he treats you so, as you are doing a fine thing working outside your home to help out. Try to be patient with him until he gets work, and then if he doesn't reform and treat you kindly, you should take steps to make him behave. There is no excuse for a man slapping his wife, and if he doesn't stop it of his own accord, the law must make him.

MARY ANN: If you were unjust to the boy friend and said things you shouldn't, the only thing to do is to apologize. And the only way to learn to control that unruly little tongue, my dear, is to learn to think before you speak, which is much, much more difficult than it sounds. And "if at first you don't succeed, try, try, try again." As to his not taking you to shows, it may be that he hasn't the money, and it may be that he isn't interested in shows.

A READER OF THE COLUMN: Why don't you walk out on the husband and son if they are so mean to you? Maybe that would show them how much you do for them and how necessary you are to their lives.

Are you very sure you are always agreeable to them? It's easy to be cross and nagging, and hardly realize it and think that the other members of the family are the ones at fault. And then it's a good idea to check up on oneself and see if one is to blame, even a teeny weenie little bit.

HOLLYWOOD—Since John Barrymore's contract has not been renewed by Warner's, it is rumored that he and his wife, Dolores Costello, may appear in a stage play. John did a remarkable piece of characterization in "Sevengali," but the picture probably won't be a big money maker.

Faith And Hard Work

THE Panhandle Bankers association, in a recent meeting in Amarillo, expressed the belief that "Faith and Hard Work Are the Greatest Needs of the Nation." There is no denying the truth of the statement but as The Morning Avalanche sees it, those two talents have always been our greatest needs—and always will be.

Faith is the foundation of business and professional life. Hard work is the support of the foundation. As a team the two talents are responsible for the world's keeping its economic equilibrium—for its pushing ahead to the benefit of humanity.

Of course we need hard work and faith. Probably we need it in larger doses today than in normal times.

But there's nothing original about the statement which was issued from the ranks of the bankers. We've been needing both for countless generations.

"ONE-EYED" MOTOR VEHICLES

The Morning Avalanche would like to call attention of local highway law enforcement officers to the large number of automobiles and trucks which are traversing Lubbock's streets and highways with only one headlight piercing the night's gloom. We would suggest that some pressure be brought to bear to eliminate more of these threats against life and limb—believing such action is more important than worrying so much about whether a truck is carrying a pound or two more than the law allows.

We have never noted any deaths or injuries charged against a truck merely because it happened to be over-loaded. On the other hand, the records are full of accidents arising from "one-eyed" cars and trucks, or those with no lights at all.

We do not allege that a tenth of the cars and trucks operated at night are "one-eyed". Doubtless a total of one in 25 or 50 would come closer. But a night's drive will convince the observer that it is not unusual to meet such handicapped machines—and if there's one to each hundred on the road that's just one too many.

A FEDERAL AUTO TAX

Hints continue to come from Washington that congress is to be asked to put some sort of tax on automobiles and their use, or both. The latest suggestion is that a federal tax on gasoline would be very productive, easily collected, and spread over many millions of contributors.

The argument is the same one that Secretary Mellon gave in favor of retaining the sales tax on automobiles—that the railroads pay each year to the building of state roads, although trucks and buses use these roads in competition with the railroads.

The motor car already pays higher—far higher—taxes than any other property. All we can say is that if the federal government persists in adding an automobile tax of its own it will find out, at the very next election, who hit Billy Smith.

Almost any man can be popular by keeping his opinions to himself.

Practical Health Problems

By Dr. Morris Fishbein Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Everyone realizes the attractiveness of a human being who stands well, sits well, and who has in general good posture.

It must be borne in mind that the human being developed from some species that walked on all four and that the attempt to walk and stand on two feet puts strain and stress on parts of the body that formerly had not had them. Hence, we see today innumerable round-shoulders, stoop-shouldered people with sunken chests, twisted backs, prominent abdomens and lame hips.

The position adopted when sleeping is one of complete relaxation of muscles and ligaments so that the spine is curved. A certain amount of relaxation is desirable, but when walking enough stress must be placed on the muscles and ligaments to insure proper support and physical development. Hence, teachers now try to get children to stand tall, to stretch out, to hold the chest forward, and the shoulders back.

As emphasized by Thurman B. Rice in his recent consideration of this subject in Hygeia, the upright man, the straightforward person can usually be trusted, while the slinking, the cringing, and slouching arouse suspicion. The careless, lounging man who shuffles his feet and sneaks around in a hang-dog manner is a whipped man. It must not be thought, however, that the bad posture is the cause of his inefficiency or the result of it. The two go together with a mutual interchange of forces.

Sometimes, indeed not infrequently, bad posture is the result of bad diet or disease. Just exactly as good advice and exercise cannot compensate for the need of eyeglasses in a child whose eyes are not built right, so also cannot advice and exercise compensate wholly for defective bones, muscles, joints and ligaments.

A competent physician who studies such cases can provide supports or braces that act as a crutch to the weakened tissues in the same way the eyeglasses compensate for anatomical changes in the eye.

Sometimes the feeding of more calcium and phosphorous and the use of viosterol and sunlight will aid development of weakened tissues. Associates with this proper exercise and practice will induce a suitable posture and an improved appearance.

The weakened tissues of children should not be compelled to carry heavy weights for long periods of time, as is the case when a rather weak child attempts to carry eight or 10 books home from school day after day. Physiologists talk about the condition under the term "body-tone." The average man thinks of tone with the words "vim, vigor and vitality." The person who has in him drive, impetus, or good, reflects this in his posture, in the way he walks, and indeed in his whole attitude toward life.

Taxation As Issue

By CHARLES P. STEWART
(Central Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Taxation will be the big legislative issue in congress next winter. Presidential politics will be the really essential issue, but it will not exactly be legislative, although it certainly will effect legislation.

CHAS. P. STEWART

Taxation will predominate legislatively because there will have to be more of it, and the question will arise very urgently:

Upon whom shall all or most of the additional burden fall?

Interests will clash in the answering of this query. Philosophies of government will clash also, likewise, will economic theories.

Business may improve between now and Dec. 7, when the nation's lawmakers are due to assemble for their next session. Administration spokesmen say it already is improving more than merely seasonally; they think the worst of the depression is over.

Uncle Sam's treasury is in the red more than billion dollars now. A year hence, according to not especially pessimistic calculations, it will be in the red twice as much more, or a three-billion-dollar total. This deficit will require taking care of, no matter how much better business may be.

Hence there will be no dodging heavier taxation.

It is true that the increase will not absolutely have to be made next winter. It can be staved off considerably longer than that, by letting the national debt pile up.

That is one of the things the row will be about.

The party in power never likes to boost taxes, because it very naturally fears it will be blamed by the voters, to the prejudice of its chances of victory at the ensuing election.

At first thought it may seem as if this is just what would suit the out-of-power party—which would not be altogether a wrong conclusion. Nevertheless, the "outs" cannot clamor too loudly for an increase, scheming thus to embarrass the "ins." If they do, there is the risk that the voters will hold them responsible rather than the "ins," and their policy's recoil will be worse than the blast from its muzzle.

However, the arguments for a taxation advance at the next session of congress will be extremely cogent.

It will not be easy to defend a program deliberately contemplating government expenditures enormously in excess of the expected national income, and few persons are unsophisticated enough to believe that Uncle Sam's expenses can be pruned appreciably. Indeed, all that anyone hopes from economy conferences is that increases will be retarded somewhat; not that actual reductions will be effected.

Assuming it is agreed that fresh sources of revenue must be found, there are two widely differing schools of thought concerning the proper quarter in which to look for them.

The small group of the country's very rich folk is the source upon which one of these two schools of thought holds that the government should draw almost exclusively.

The other school favors a much more thorough development of the source available among the masses of the people.

Of the former doctrine Senator James Couzens of Michigan is the most militant exponent. Practically without exception the so-called progressives of both major parties, in the senate and house of representatives alike, are included, as also are many near-progressives. Altogether it is a pretty formidable line-up—perhaps, but not certainly, a majority of the membership of the seventy-second congress, though not of the last one.

Conservatives, without much regard to party, are of the opposite philosophy, of which Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon unquestionably is the foremost interpreter.

Secretary Mellon's theory, compactly put, is this: Lay the weight of taxation unduly upon the rich and they will stop trying to make more money. As a result, business will languish. Tax them less heavily and they will exert themselves, whereupon the country will prosper. It is a fact, however, that Uncle Sam needs additional revenue. The only folk to furnish it are the masses.

Senator Couzens' version is:

Wealth already is so concentrated in a few hands that America's population generally has lost most of its purchasing power. Industry is flat because the masses lack the cash to buy its products. Manifestly a bad matter will be made worse if their taxes are increased. But the rich can stand it. Moreover, they ought to be taxed more heavily, to put part of their hoards back into circulation.

A RAY OF SUNSHINE

The United States, in the opinion of those who may be considered best able to interpret financial statistics, stands as a nation awaiting some accredited signal to make a great industrial and commercial advance. The uncertainty and restraint of the so-called depression have had the salutary effect of affording time for debt-paying, while the hesitancy to make investments or to enter upon business enterprises, has resulted in a tremendous increase in the volume of savings.

"So far this year," says Hugh Bancroft, New York financial writer, "we haven't been buying very much, but we have been getting out of debt very fast. From Oct. 1, 1929, to April 1, 1931, 18 months of depression, we have been absorbing $550,000,000 net of new securities each month, and have been paying off loans on securities at the rate of $400,000,000 a month. It seems clear that we are individually saving and getting out of debt at a remarkable rate."

The same phenomenon is commented upon elsewhere by Howard Biddulph, newly elected president of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks. "When we consider," said he, "that about 13,000,000 people have almost $10,000,000 of deposits in mutual savings banks, with a further sum of $18,000,000,000 of savings in commercial savings banks, it is plain that the American people have in their savings alone a great reservoir of liquid capital. I believe this frame of mind will provide the basis to begin anew. We should look to the soundness of recovery rather than speed."

Those who fail to look before they leap land in disgust.

Others' opportunities always seem to be better than yours.

A boy of 14 may legally marry in England, but American girls seldom catch one that young.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BERYL BORDEN, secretly in love with TOMMY WILSON, discovers that he is planning to elope with her half-sister, IRENE EVERETT, and kidnaps him with the assistance of her "gang." She urges him to stay in college and not break the heart of the aunt who is financing him. Failing to convince him, Beryl lets Tommy return to Irene who, enraged at the delay, refuses to listen and postpones the elopement.

Later Tommy goes fishing and finds Beryl and her gang at the beach. One of the boys is carried out by the tide and Tommy helps Beryl rescue him. She finds it hard to bear the reproaches of his mother and the sneers of her jealous sister.

Irene again refuses Tommy after receiving an offer for an audition over radio. She condescends to let Beryl accompany her to the studio. While waiting in an anteroom, Beryl sits down at the piano and dreamily croons melodies to the father who died so long ago. Accidentally hearing her, one of the directors is charmed with the quality of voice and gives her a private test.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XI

What Mr. Barnhoff had to say to Beryl turned her world up side down in the space of a few seconds.

"We're looking for a woman's voice for Gaylord, the soap man," he said when Mr. Leonard had conducted her back to his office. "I'd like him to hear yours."

Beryl stared at him not knowing what to say. As she said later she wasn't sure that she wasn't dreaming.

"Perhaps you do not know it," Barnhoff went on, "but some of the best voices are not good on the air. They lack evenness of tone and must either be stepped up or cut by our monitor men. Your voice is peculiarly suited to broadcasting."

He paused to smile at the amazement on her face. "We shall not attempt to make a great singer of you," he explained, "but you should have at least a few weeks of study before we put you on our program. We are looking for a voice with personality, feeling. Yours has it. I personally think you would be ideal for Mr. Gaylord's advertising campaign."

He turned to Leonard, his eyes alight with the enthusiasm of discovery and invention. "The girl with the velvet voice!" he exclaimed. "How is that? Gaylord calls his new soap Velvetan. It contains an oil, he claims, that aids the skin to tan evenly and painlessly. . . . Miss Borden," he wheeled back to Beryl and carried on excitedly, "that is just what your voice is—even and soft as velvet. And I'm sure the radio audience will find it painless."

His enthusiasm was infectious. Beryl was beginning to know how it felt to have a promising future in view. But she was not altogether swept off her feet.

"Mr. Gaylord hasn't heard it yet," she reminded her discoverer. "He might not like it."

"I've never made a mistake about a voice," Barnhoff boasted. "Will you sing for Mr. Gaylord?" He did not wait for an answer, but rang at once for his secretary and asked her to take Beryl's address and telephone number.

"We'll let you know the date as soon as we've arranged it with Mr. Gaylord," he told Beryl. "Then, of course, you will make your contract with him. By the way, have you a voice teacher?"

"No", Beryl answered.

"I know just the one to give you what you need," Barnhoff assured her. Then he offered a roundabout apology for taking so much for granted. "I'd be sorry to hear you say you can't understand this," he admitted, "but I suppose I should ask you about it. I'm afraid I've been a bit impulsive. However, I feel that I'm justified," he added, in compliment.

Beryl hesitated. A contract! A voice teacher! Good Lord, she had no money for voice lessons.

"Can't I let you know later?" she asked reluctantly. It seemed like shaking her head in the face of a smiling fate, of being too stupid to appreciate good fortune, an imbecile thing to do—but voice lessons!

Oh, it must be managed somehow! She'd sing for Mr. Gaylord and then. . .

Barnhoff interrupted her incomplete thought. He seemed, uncannily, to have read her mind or perhaps his keen eye had noticed the inexpensiveness of her costume.

At any rate he said in a kindly, casual way: "Naturally, if Mr. Gaylord is pleased with your voice and decided to offer you a contract he will be willing to advance the cost of necessary preparation."

For an instant Beryl was tempted to bluff. Then: "Thank you," she said simply. I was considering the question of financing the venture."

They smiled together and Beryl had a friend for life. And now that the darkest cloud had been swept away from her sun-filled sky she was seized with a desire to tell her good news to some one—any one. She thought of Irene.

"My sister!" she exclaimed.

"She is waiting for you in the Florentine room," Barnhoff told her. "But—er—perhaps if you could manage to look a little less radiant . . . . I'm afraid she is slightly disappointed with the outcome of her test."

It was just what Beryl had expected, but now that it had happened she was sorry for Irene, especially as she contrasted her own good fortune with her sister's hard luck.

She said goodby hurriedly to the

Storm Clouds Fast Looming

Chancellor Bruening Has Something To Think About With Communist Violence Being Spread In Germany

BERLIN, June 11. (AP)—Communist violence against the new emergency taxation decree in four widely separated cities gave Chancellor Heinrich Bruening food for thought today.

The most serious disturbance occurred in Mannheim last night when radicals resented authorities' efforts to break up their mass meeting. Throwing up a barricade in the streets, they fired on police and firemen and stood them off until the arrival of reenforcements.

Pavements were torn up, street lights were smashed and thoroughfares were darkened before the battle was over. Traffic was disrupted and merchants closed their shops. Many arrests were made but no one was known to have been injured.

A policeman was killed at Kassel by shots fired from the dark as authorities were attempting to break up a communist demonstration. The officers also were bombarded with beer mugs, flower pots and stones from nearby houses.

In Frankfort-on-Main and Gelsenkirchen, police were occupied all evening in dispersing red groups which marched through the streets shouting "down with Bruening." Arrests were made in both cities.

Chancellor Bruening and his foreign minister, Dr. Julius Curtius, arrived home from their conference with British statesmen in London to find the storm clouds gathering in opposition to their latest measure to place the Reich on a firm financial foundation.

They discovered that not a single political party, not even their own, had approved the tax decrees and that the press was almost unanimous in clamoring for a reduction in reparation payments to lighten Germany's load. The life of the government was said to depend on the refusal of the social Democrats to join in the demand of other parties for the convocation of the Reichstag.

The chancellor was understood to have been advised by American Ambassador Frederick M. Sackett on the journey here that the American people are strongly averse to an international conference to revise the Young plan.

vo men, after thanking them with genuineness of gratitude which ley found refreshing, and hastened way to Irene.

When she was gone Leonard rinned at Barnhoff. "Well, Barny, ld man, think of you turning soft t your time of life," he remarked.

"What do you mean?" Barnhoff sked stiffly.

"You get me. Since when has Baylord been advancing anything o anybody?"

Barnhoff brushed the levity aside. "That girl has a rare quality of voice," he answered warmly. "I don't know what she'd be if given a chance, but she's just what Gaylord wants and I think I can make him see he'd be a fool to lose her."

"But if he balks?"

"If he does, why then, damn it all, I'll find a patron for her and put her into the Met!"

"Then you weren't thinking of financing her yourself?"

"Get out, you bum," Barnhoff grinned.

Leonard heaved a huge sigh of mock relief. "I thought you might be running a fever," he said in pretended anxiety. "Think of you paying for singing lessons!"

"Yeah, thing of it. But seriously Hal, I think Miss Borden is a real find. The luck's as much ours as hers."

That statement would have surprised Beryl, who was trying to tell Irene of her good fortune with out seeming to flaunt it. The minute she had seen Irene she had known her sister would be in a congratulatory mood.

"Is this the Florentine room?" she asked, pushing the door open wider and poking her head inside.

"You ought to know," Irene snapped. "You're supposed to be a decorator."

"Yes, but I specialize in Early American."

"No wonder," Irene retorted "All you need is a feather to be an Indian. But I'd like to know what you mean by keeping me waiting here! I suppose you've been butting in where you've no business to be."

Beryl looked away from her sister's angry countenance. "I've been making a test," she answered quietly.

"What!" Irene shrieked, then she laughed. "What for—brains?"

"I don't suppose anyone will believe it," Beryl said apologetically —because she felt somehow guilty of a part in her sister's ill fortune. She had come here with Irene by force, you might say, with Irene's ability to command a test as her passport and she had walked off with something that Irene would think belonged to her. She felt desperately sorry for Irene.

"No, it's almost too much to believe. It's silly, really, when you come to think of it."

"Well, think of what? Will you please talk sense?"

"Why," Beryl smiled placatingly, "I was sitting here—right here at this piano, just sort of singing to myself, and a man heard me. . . ."

"I dare say," Irene interjected sneeringly.

"And do you know," Beryl went on with awe in her voice now, "I think he must be someone terribly important for he took me to his office and then, can you imagine it, he said he was looking for someone with a funny voice like mine and—"

"Beryl Borden! Do you dare to stand there and tell me that you had the nerve to pose as a singer here—here!—where I brought you? Oh, no wonder they said I would not do!" she wailed despairingly. "They thought it was a trick!"

Beryl lost a little of her pity. "They didn't think anything of the kind," she declared with some asperity. "They didn't even call me a singer themselves. As a matter of fact Mr. Barnhoff said I wasn't a singer—they don't want a singer —they want someone to . . . to . . ."

"Well, what? But you needn't tell me — I can guess. Someone's been making a fool of you and you had it coming to you for clowning around this place. Just you wait till Mother hears of this!"

Beryl looked at her sister for a few seconds in silence, and slowly a shadow spread over her face. "Yes," she said dully, "I suppose Mother will think as you do."

"Why shouldn't she?" Irene challenged. "And so will everyone else!" Then she laughed tauntingly. "Making a test—making a monkey of yourself! I'll bet they were all laughing at you—probably there wasn't a microphone within a mile of you!"

Beryl turned wearily away from her—her desire to shout her good news drowned in her sister's anger.

"And futhermore," Irene went on, following her out of the room, "what do you think Tommy will say about it?"

Rebuttal For Line Started

Santa Fe Offers Testimony In Hearing At San Angelo Being Conducted Before Davis For Railway Extension

SAN ANGELO, June 11. (AP)—The Santa Fe began its rebuttal to testimony presented by the Abilene and Southern in its plea for extension of its line from Ballinger to San Angelo this morning, claiming that the actual and prospective tonnage of the area east of here would be so divided as to make another railroad unprofitable.

The hearing, being conducted before H. C. Davis of the interstate commerce commission, is expected to be concluded tomorrow.

H. E. Beard, assistant engineer, sought to refute the data presented previously by O. L. Sims of Paint Rock relative to ranch tonnage. He said freight in the area would be divided with the Gulf and West Texas, which has a permit to build, and that another line would make it unprofitable for any of the roads. He declared no new road was required to bring in materials for road building in Crockett, Pecos and Reagan counties which have voted bonds for great paving projects.

W. R Lence, vice president and general manager of the Abilene and Southern, was the last witness this morning for the Texas Pacific. He estimated there would be 3,953 cars of grain hauled out of the counties of Hardeman, Foard, Knox, Haskell, Jones, Fisher and Nolan, served by his line.

The figures were gathered from county agents and were submitted as indication of the development that could come into new territory through which the proposed extension would run

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 11. (AP) — Although cotton developed no great activity here today, prices were steady and closed 17-19 points net up.

Prices closed steady at the top.

Liverpool cable came in 2 penny points worse than due and private cables stated that there was continental liquidation but some trade selling. Manchester cabled that the home cloth trade was rather better.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 11. (AP)—Cotton was generally higher today the final tone firm at net advances of 20-23 points.

There may have been a little selling on the relatively easy showing of Liverpool and a favorable view of the weather news, but the offerings were light and readily absorbed. July sold at 8.30 and Dec. at 8.21. The close was within a point or two of the best on most positions.

Trade buying was reported more in evidence than for some time past and to be coming from both domestic and foreign sources. Liverpool and the continent were among the buyers here, and according to private cable advices the trade was also a buyer in the Liverpool market before the local opening.

Financial Markets Quiet But Late Rally In Rails Enlivens Sessions

BY JOHN L. COOLEY

NEW YORK, June 11. (AP)—The financial markets were quiet today. Stocks frittered away most of the session without reaching much of a decision, but a late rally in the rails enlivened proceedings and gave a strong tone to the close. The chief event in bonds was a sharp break in the Germans. Domestic rail liens found a generally improved market. Wheat was affected by weather news, but losses were small.

Shares moved up along a wide front at the opening, but with the exception of the carrier issues which were stimulated by the executives' meeting, those prices were for the most part the day's highest. The volume was small only 1,700,000 shares changing hands.

France Takes Honor, Cash In Mastbaum Cup Matches; Kirkwood Tied For Fourth

DEAUVILLE, France, June 11.—With professionals from two countries competing, France today walked off with the major honor and most of the cash prizes in a 36-hole international golf tournament for the Mastbaum cup, established in memory of John Nickson, of Philadelphia, and $2,000 in cash prizes.

Andre Boyer, Nice professional, won the tournament with a two round total of 140 composed of a 73 and 67, the latter score tying for the third time in two days the course record set by Thomas Genta, of the Argentine, in the French open.

Percy Allis, English born Berlin professional, was second at 141, with Pierre Hirigoyen, of France third at 143. Two more French professionals, Marcel Dallemagne, of St. Germain, and Pierre Alaguren, of Nivelle, tied for fourth with Joe Kirkwood, only representative of the United States, and Marco Churio, of Argentina.

Bruce Barnes Enters Last Rounds In Tri-State Meet

CINCINNATI, June 11. (AP)—Bruce Barnes, Austin, Texas, today eliminated Byron Huffman, Fort Mitchell, Ky., Buckeye athlete conference tennis champion, and became the first player to reach the semi-finals in the tri-state tennis tournament. The scores were 6-1, 6-4.

J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., advanced to the semi-finals in a spectacular match with Karl Kamrath, Austin, with scores of 8-6, 6-3.

Clifford Sutter, New Orleans, seeded No. 1, gained the semi-finals by defeating his University of Tulane doubles partner, Maurice Bayon, New Orleans, 6-0, 6-4.

San Benito Makes It Two Straight Over McAllen

SAN BENITO, June 11. (AP)—The Saints made it two straight over the McAllen Palms today as they fought an uphill battle to overcome a five run lead, and behind the airtight relief pitching of Montalvo won a 10-7 victory. Jordan and Campbell hit safely three times.

George Blackerby Goes To White Sox From Oakland

OAKLAND, Cal., June 11. (AP) — Victor Devincenzi, vice president of the Oakland Baseball club today announced the acquisition of Outfielder George Blackerby from the Chicago White Sox.

Blackerby was with Little Rock and Birmingham of the Southern League last season and hit .349. In 1929, as a member of the Waco club in the Texas League, he hit .365 and hammered out 33 home runs.

A third possibility, Lindbergh said, would be along the far-flung chain of the Aleutian Islands stretching across the north Pacific—then over Siberia to Japan.

The final possibility in which he was interested, he added, lay across part of Alaska and over the comparatively narrow Bering Strait to Siberia.

Mine Mob

mine was broken up by Duff and his deputies who stood at the entrance ready to use their guns and gas bombs. The strikers retreated after spending an hour trying to enter the mine, employing 350 men.

Tonight's disorders followed a day that saw a dynamiting and an attack upon working miners in Jefferson and Belmont counties. Acting to meet the emergency, county commissioners appropriated $30,000 to be used by Duff in employing deputies to maintain order during the strike which involves 1,000 miners in two counties.

Duff said he was determined to prevent violence and was recruiting all available officers tonight.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 11. (AP)—Sudden reactions from a late rally in grain prices today followed disclosure that buying on the bulge had proved unexpectedly thin. The rally accompanied reports that rain relief in Canadian drouth territory was disappointing, and that only two points had received more than half an inch. There was enough rain apparently, however, to allay anxiety of speculators, and most traders appeared willing to believe that bullish crop news had been discounted for the mpment at least.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1-4 to 7-8 cents lower, corn unchanged to 3-8 down, oats 1-4 to 3-8 off, and provisions at 15 to 30 cents advance.

Livestock

MIDDLEWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, June 11. (AP) — Livestock trade around the eleven market circuit was featured by an active demand for hogs with prices advancing anywhere from 15-40.

All weights of hogs sold within a relatively narrow price range, light and medium weights, however, still commanding a premium over heavy butchers. Total offerings were around 36,000 a decrease of 11,000 from a week ago.

Trade on sheep was marked by a two way market on fat lambs with the good to choice offerings steady to 25 higher and the less desirable grades weak to unevenly lower. The supply approximated 43,000 as compared with 63,000 last Thursday.

sons placed wreaths upon the two caskets. It was due to leave Nuevo Laredo at 3 p. m., arriving in Monterrey at 8 p. m. and reaching Mexico City at about 2 a. m., Saturday.

Young Murray Present

Col. Charles E. Clowe, representing Governor William H. Murray of Oklahoma, and Messina Murray, son of the governor, crossed into Nuevo Laredo with the party but expected to return to the United States late today.

As the train had passed through Texas, crowds of sorrowing Mexican nationals gathered at railway stations in Fort Worth and San Antonio to pay tribute to the two students.

A floral wreath, an offering from 200 Mexicans gathered at the station in Fort Worth, was placed beside the two silver caskets by M. C. Gonzales, San Antonio, attorney, representing the Mexican consul general, who was in the party accompanying the bodies.

When the train reached San Antonio, a crowd of more than 4,000 persons mostly Mexicans, stood with bowed heads in respectful silence while Mexican women decked the two caskets with flowers. In this group were Luis Lupian, Mexican consul general; Luis Peres-Abreu, San Antonio consul, and San Antonio Chamber of Commerce officials.

The two deputy sheriffs at Ardmore, Okla., W. E. Guess and Cecil Crosby, charged with murder for the shooting of the two students, were at liberty today under $35,000 bond each, awaiting decision of District Judge Walton, who was to set the date for their trial. Indications were the trial would be set for late this month or early in July.

country journalism, and from journalism to politics. Elected to parliament, he displayed too much strength to please his party superiors, and he was offered the post in Indo-China that he might be safely buried and forgotten.

He took the job—but not the oblivion. On his return to France he towered more than ever.

By 1906 he was president of the chamber of deputies and of sufficient stature to match himself against Armand Fallieres for the presidency of the nation.

Failing of election, he dropped out of the public eye for years. In 1921 he started his come-back by taking the post of minister of finance in a Briand cabinet. He also had a portfolio in the Briand ministry four years later.

Doumer was elected president of France from the senate, where he was the presiding officer. Although the post is not on a par with the premiership so far as political power is concerned, its incumbent takes precedence at all ceremonial functions. It is looked upon as the crowning honor of the nation's political life.

In addition to his own record, Doumer had two claims to the presidency. It was according to a fairly well established precedent that the senate's president succeed to the post. And there were his four sons, killed in the war.

Aristide Briand Opposes Any International Conference Designed To Revise German War Payments

PARIS, June 11. (AP) — Foreign Minister Aristide Briand is opposed to an international conference to revise Germany's war reparation payments.

He told the chamber of deputies yesterday that the nation need not be alarmed over the Anglo-German conference last week-end, for he would be on his guard against any attempt to reopen the subject.

"The Young plan has been recently applied," he said. "There can be no question of revising it since it has a definite character. It contains within itself definite possibilities for Germany. She will use them, perhaps—it is to her interest to do so.

"But from that — to proceed to talk of a new international conference on the debt question is a long transition. Be sure that France's foreign minister will not let himself be pulled into anything".

On the other hand, he said, the future welfare of France and Germany will best be served by a policy of cooperation.

The foreign minister conceded that such demonstrations as that of the steel helmet organization at Breslau recently were a hindrance to peaceful relations between the two countries.

He reminded his hearers, however, that "a Bruening government is preferable to a Hitler government, which might one day come into power."

"France can envisage all the events in Germany with a calm and serene eye," he said. "It is sufficient to look at France's position on the map of Europe and the friendships within which she is surrounded. She can remain cool even when faced with unpleasant events."

Texas Making Progress And Developments

Despite General Economic Depression Lone Star State Is Said To Have Increase In Its Business

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, June 11.—Texas is continuing to make industrial progress despite the general economic depression, according to R. B. Gragg, state labor commissioner, who issued a bulletin recently in which he stated new enterprises were being established and older plants improved to care for expanding business.

Gragg listed the Hamilton Dam on the Colorado river near Burnet and the proposed establishment of a plant at Corpus Christi by the Southern Alkali Corporation as two of the major projects being undertaken.

Require 2 Years

The Hamilton Dam will require two years for construction, utilizing the labor of 500 men to start, with employment expected to reach 800 in the later stages of development. The total cost of the dam was estimated at between $3,000,000 and $5,000,000.

The alkali corporation purchased a 350-acre plant site and was reported to have embarked on a program that would entail the expenditure of $10,000,000. The plant construction will give several months employment to building workers and permanent employment to hundreds of others when the plant is placed in operation.

Gragg said he believed steps would be taken in the near future to develop the asbestos deposits found recently by geologists in the vicinity of Kerrville. Several leases have been consummated, with the Gulf and West railroad prepared to include this territory in its route if paying quantities are found.

22 New Industries Begin

Reports from Fort Worth showed 22 new industries had located in that city since the first of the year.

A report has been received from Houston indicating the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. will spend $32,000,000 improving its system.

A new packing plant has been proposed for San Juan to cost $70,000. The Southwest Dairy Products Company will open a new plant at Huntsville soon. A wholesale cannery will be established at Grand Prairie.

Gragg reported new refineries were springing up in the new oil fields, but, while this was encouraging in an industrial way, it was regretable that the exploitation of this great resource went on at such a rapid pace while great supplies of other natural resources lacked promotion capital for development.

All real benefits of course, but the chief fact that is causing this great nation-wide swing to Camels is the protection which this air-sealed wrapping gives to the choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos of which Camel cigarettes are blended.
