City To Consider Beautification Aim

By TEX DEWEESE
City beautification and how to get property owners to "shape up" battered trash cans consumed most of the discussion time at today's meeting of the Pampa City Commission.

Thelma Bray, president of the Pampa Environmental Beautification Foundation, and Kirk Duncan, a director of the organization, appeared at today's session.

Mrs. Bray explained the functions of the EBF. She thanked the city for its cooperation and expressed a hope that, working together, her group and the city would make Pampa still more beautiful for the nation's Bicentennial Year in 1976.

Duncan proposed a plan for elimination of litter in city streets. He said it might be well to go back to the old-fashioned push-broom street cleaners.

Duncan said he was in favor of getting federal aid, if it is available, to help pay for projects designed to improve the city's image and clean up places that need to be cleaned up.

He commended the city for its work on removal of abandoned buildings. On that subject, commissioners today ordered removal of abandoned buildings at 526 Perry, 315 N. Davis, 546 Elm, 415 and 528 Oklahoma, 421 and 408 Harlem.

A public hearing was continued on proposed removal of structures at 623 N. Cuyler, 317 Perry, 324 N. Davis, 313 W. Tuke and 526 Elm.

The Fire Prevention and Safety Committee of the Chamber of Commerce submitted recommendations to the commissioners urging action in enforcing a city ordinance in connection with the condition of many trash containers throughout the city.

Many of them are battered, the racks are broken and trash spills into the alleys because of their dilapidated condition, it was stated.

Commissioners discussed the matter and indicated the possibility of an inspection and refusal to pick up garbage and trash on properties where containers do not comply with city ordinances.

City officials are urging property owners to cooperate and put trash cans in condition and to make replacements of racks and containers where needed.

City trash collections have been temporarily thrown off schedule because of a breakdown in one of the two packer rigs.

Trash collections have been reduced to one a week while repairs are being made.

In other business today the commission:

Approved payment of $75,026 to G.W. James Material Co. for seal coating city streets and $3,751 to Merriman & Barber for engineering services connected with the seal-coating program.

Approved a resolution requesting a water line easement from the Santa Fe Railroad under a railroad spur in the Hobart Park area.

Denton's motion prevailed 91-65 and Daniel recessed the convention.

The resolution must be approved by 121 delegates in order for the constitution to be sent on to the voters for ratification or rejection in November. If it fails on the first ballot, the Submission and Transition Committee will revise it until it gets a two-third majority.

City, County Get Revenue Sharing Checks

Gray County and the City of Pampa today received fourth quarter revenue sharing checks in the amount of $50,823 and $59,177 respectively.

The checks represent the last quarter of the fourth entitlement period which ended June 30 this year.

Today's federal windfall brings the county's total revenue sharing funds received to date to $482,005 and the city's total to $477,743.

City Manager Mack Wofford said the city has spent approximately $242,000 of its total and has a balance on hand today of $235,000.

Both city and county have been receiving the federal revenue sharing money since December of 1972.

Checks received by both governmental units today were in the same amounts as those received in the previous quarter.

Pioneer Ends Free Services To Customers

Numerous free services provided to customers by Pioneer Natural Gas Co. for many years will no longer be free.

Mayors and city officials in all cities on the utility company's West Texas system, including Pampa, have been put on notice that rising costs of doing business has made it necessary to install a modest service charge, according to M.B. Edquist, senior vice president of Pioneer in Amarillo.

Edquist informed local officials there will be a service charge of $3.50, effective immediately, for lighting and adjustment of range, space heater, wall heater, water heater, floor furnace, refrigerator, gas grill, appliance adjustment and gas light service.

A $5 charge will be made for oven calibration. Reconnection after gas has been shut off for non-payment of bill will be $4.

Edquist pointed out that Pioneer has occupied a unique position among utility companies by providing these free services which have been paid for by the customer, when provided by other companies.

The service charges were instituted in Pampa effective July 1.

IN CONSPIRACY TRIAL

Defense To Call Kissinger As Witness For Ehrlichman

MADRID (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today in London he would fly back to Washington and appear as a defense witness Wednesday on behalf of John D. Ehrlichman in the Ellsberg break-in conspiracy trial.

He then flew to Spain on the last stage of his six-nation European tour.

Kissinger, who returns home tonight, flew in from London for a six-hour visit, only to learn that Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Spain's 81-year-old chief of state, had been hospitalized with pleuritis—the illness President Nixon was suffering during his recent visit to the Middle East and Western Europe.

Kissinger had left Nixon after the Moscow summit conference and briefed Western leaders in Brussels, Paris, Rome, Bonn and London before flying here for talks with Premier Carlos Arias Navarro and Spanish Foreign Minister Pedro Cortina.

Kissinger was directed Monday to appear as a defense witness Wednesday before the Ellsberg break-in conspiracy trial on behalf of Ehrlichman, Nixon's former No. 2 aide.

Kissinger was ordered to testify about whether he or Nixon were at the top of a chain of command that Ehrlichman says led to his authorizing a "covert operation" against Daniel Ellsberg, the man who leaked the Pentagon Papers.

Kissinger was expected to deny testimony that he, along with Ehrlichman, gave the orders for a psychological profile of Ellsberg, David R. Young Jr., a codirector of the White House "plumbers" unit, concerning a project seeking a psychiatric profile of Ellsberg that might explain his release of the secret Pentagon Papers.

Ehrlichman repeatedly denied having any recollection of making a telephone call on July 7, 1971, asking CIA deputy director Robert E. Cushman Jr. to provide help for White House plumber E. Howard Hunt Jr., who later got a wig, camera, false identification and voice changer from the CIA.

When Cushman

House "plumbers" unit tracing national security leaks, had testified the two were responsible for the Ellsberg action.

Kissinger said in London before leaving for Madrid: "I will appear."

Kissinger expressed his regrets that he would not be able to meet Franco, but said his visit would proceed on schedule. He was to take off for Washington at 6 p.m. (noon EDT) and arrive there at 8:30 p.m. EDT.

A senior official traveling aboard Kissinger's airplane said that Kissinger talks in London on the energy crisis were centered on three subjects:

—The pressure of world wide demand on energy supplies and prices.

—Possible agreements on emergency arrangements to handle future shortages induced by new boycotts or other unforeseen events, and.

—How to arrange the recycling of the billions of dollars that have simultaneously drained out of Europe to pay for Arab oil and returned to Europe in the form of investment capital.

IN ELLSBERG CASE

Ehrlichman Denies Any Illegal Activity

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman today said an array of government evidence about memos, meetings and telephone calls in no way conflicts with his denial of having prior knowledge of the Ellsberg break-in.

During intensive cross-examination that included verbal bouts with U.S. Attorney William H. Merrill, Ehrlichman insisted he thought a planned "covert" investigation of Daniel Ellsberg did not involve any illegal activity.

Merrill reviewed a stack of memos about Ehrlichman's contacts with David R. Young and Egil Krogh, co-directors of the White House "plumbers" unit, concerning a project seeking a psychiatric profile of Ellsberg that might explain his release of the secret Pentagon Papers.

Ehrlichman repeatedly denied having any recollection of making a telephone call on July 7, 1971, asking CIA deputy director Robert E. Cushman Jr. to provide help for White House plumber E. Howard Hunt Jr., who later got a wig, camera, false identification and voice changer from the CIA.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski believes America's constitutional government is seriously jeopardized by President Nixon's refusal to obey court orders that he yield his Watergate tapes and conversations.

But Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer, James D. St. Clair, argues that the President is immune from criminal proceedings in the courts because the Constitution provides an impeachment process to handle such contingencies.

The Supreme Court today was deliberating which of those sharply divergent views will prevail. There was no indication when its decision might come.

The two lawyers argued for three hours Monday in an extraordinary session of the Supreme Court. In its high-ceilinged marble and mahogany chamber, packed with spectators who wanted a taste of history, eight justices listened, and questioned carefully the lawyers propounding those disparate philosophies about the power of the American presidency.

According to Jaworski: "This nation's constitutional form of government is in serious jeopardy if the President, any President, is to say that the Constitution means what he says it does, and there is no one, not even the Supreme Court, to tell him otherwise."

Retorted St. Clair: "Even if criminal, he is immune from the criminal process. The process (in the case of a president) is impeachment."

In the chamber, St. Clair refused to be pinned down on whether Nixon would obey a Supreme Court decision. One mile away, White House spokesmen declined to say what the President would do should the Court rule against him.

But in the Capitol, across the street from the Supreme Court building, two Republicans on the House Judiciary Committee which is studying Nixon's impeachment warned that should the President refuse to obey, the consequences for his presidency might be disastrous.

"I don't think that would be healthy for the President," said Rep. Trent Lott of Mississippi, one of Nixon's strongest supporters on the committee.

And Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois said defiance would be "nothing short of disastrous."

Last August, in a different tapes case, Nixon said he would abide by a "definitive" Supreme Court decision, but did not define "definitive."

St. Clair told reporters today upon arriving for the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment hearings that "virtually all" the 64 taped conversations which are subject of the Supreme Court arguments exist and are in Nixon's possession.

But St. Clair quoted Jaworski as estimating that it would take two months to survey the tapes to take out only those conversations which pertained to his investigation. St. Clair said the original 23 transcripts given Jaworski required 24 hours work each day for one month.

St. Clair, who spoke with Nixon Monday after the Supreme Court arguments, refused once again to say whether the President intended to comply with an order to produce the tapes if the Supreme Court decides he must.

Jaworski contended Nixon must relinquish records and tapes of 64 White House conversations which the prosecutor has subpoenaed for use in the September trial of former Nixon aides accused of covering up Watergate. One of those aides, former White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman, sat in the audience as the justices heard the case.

St. Clair contended the President, not the prosecutors and not the courts, had the right to decide what evidence is to be presented.

"The special prosecutor was not delegated the right to tell the President what of his conversations are going to be made available as evidence," St. Clair said.

TO AVOID ATTACK

Lebanese Ships Sunk By Israel

United Press International
The Israeli national radio said today Israeli naval raiders attacked Lebanese shipping in three Mediterranean ports because the government had received information that Palestinian guerrillas planned to attack Israel by sea.

Israeli military sources estimated about 30 vessels were sunk by Israeli gunboats and frogmen in the late Monday attack. A Lebanese Defense Ministry communique said 21 boats were lost while Arab newsmen reported at least 33 were sunk.

Palestinian guerrillas vowed to launch a new round of raids in retaliation for the Israeli naval strikes.

The Israeli raid also was believed to be in retaliation for a June 24 attack in which three Palestinian guerrillas landed in a rubber raft near the Israeli resort of Nahariya and killed four Israelis, including a mother and her two children. The guerrillas also were killed.

The Israeli national radio said only that the government decided to launch the raids because of information it had that the guerrillas planned to attack Israel again by sea.

It said the government "decided to take a certain political risk" in permitting the sea raids.

Political sources in Jerusalem said the government's explanation of the raid was given by Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in a background briefing to Israeli correspondents to which foreign newsmen were not invited.

Beirut press commentators said the Israeli raids were designed to create friction between local civilians and Palestinian refugees.

"The attack was aimed against Lebanese fishermen," a commentator for the Arab World daily press summary said. "It was a civilian target and the attack was meant to cause economic harm to the Lebanese... The Israelis apparently are hoping the fishermen would demand action by the government against the Palestinians."

Officials in Beirut and Tel Aviv issued conflicting reports on Monday night's raids, which broke a three-week lull in the escalating war of strikes and counter-strikes along the uneasy Israeli-Lebanese front.

Israeli military sources said naval commandos sank an estimated 30 vessels at the ports of Tyre, Sidon and Ras-e-Sheik in southern Lebanon to forestall future guerrilla attacks from the sea.

"It was more of a warning than anything because we saw that preparations were underway for an assault," the Tel Aviv sources said.

Cheating Plagues Naval Academy

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — The U.S. Naval Academy today expelled seven midshipmen and placed an additional 13 on honor probation in connection with the institution's worst cheating scandal that required the entire 900 member sophomore class to retake a navigation exam.

Vice Admiral William P. Mack, academy superintendent, said the Midshipman Honor Committee investigated a total of 61 middies and exonerated 41.

The honor committee said that the 41 used "poor judgment rather than cheating."

In a statement released by academy officials today, the institution said 20 midshipmen were found to have been involved in the cheating and of them, seven were "separated" and 13 were placed on honor probation.

It was the largest number of midshipmen ever expelled at one time for cheating.

In addition, Mack said 29 navigation instructors were questioned and "the investigation concluded that only one instructor was responsible for the compromise and that no other personnel in the navigation department were involved."

"The instructor allowed several midshipmen to examine a copy of the test at a review session prior to the examination," Mack said.

The instructor was given a "non-judicial punishment"—a letter of admonition—and reassigned to non-teaching duties.

Mack also said that "it has been determined that the examination was compromised without any malicious intent or desire for personal gain by the instructor."

The Naval Academy cheating scandal is one of several at service academies during the past 23 years.

In 1951 more than 90 cadets were dismissed from West Point for violating the honor code, including most of the football team and quarterback Robert Blaik, son of then coach Earl Blaik.

Last year 21 Army cadets were either dismissed or allowed to resign for violations involving a physics exam.

In 1965, 109 members of the Air Force Academy were dismissed for cheating, again including many football players. Two years later 60 more cadets resigned when students who had already taken some exams disclosed the questions to classmates.

And in 1972 another 39 Air Force cadets were allowed to resign after violating the honor code.

Until this year, there had been no major scandal in the 128-year history of the Naval Academy. In the past five years only a handful of midshipmen have been dismissed for cheating, and they were all individual cases. Seven middies were dismissed following the 1972 Army-Navy football game for smoking marijuana.

Henley Confession Introduced In Court

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Accused mass murderer Elmer Henley signed a confession in which he admitted killing several young boys and in which he said he hoped a friend would eventually kill him to clear his conscience.

The text of Henley's confession, except that portion where he displayed some compassion for his victims, was introduced Monday as evidence in Henley's trial.

Henley, 18, who along with David Owen Brooks, 19, is involved in the torture slayings of 27 teen-aged boys, is on trial for six of the murders. The parents of one of the victims came to the courtroom because "We want to know the exact truth" about what happened to their son, David Hilligist.

Henley's confession did not mention Hilligist by name, but he did remember the names of some of his other victims.

"The ones that I can remember by name are Charles Cobble, who I killed and who was buried in the boat stall," Henley said in his confession that was read aloud in Monday's opening day of testimony by Harris County District Attorney Carol Vance.

"I shot Charles in the head with Dean's pistol... Then we buried him in the boat stall. Then Marty Jones, me and Dean choked him, and buried him in the boat stall."

The Dean Henley referred to in the statement was Dean Allen Corl, 33, the alleged mastermind of the three-year murder spree. Henley killed Corl on Aug. 8, 1973, and then told police about the other killings.

Henley said in the confession that Corl offered him $200 for each boy he procured. He said he lured the first boy to Corl's home and found out "a day or so later" that Corl had killed him.

"Since then I have helped Dean get other boys. I don't remember how many. Dean would (sexually assault) them, then he would kill them. I killed several of them myself with Dean's gun and helped him choke some others, then we would take them and bury them different places."

GETS MAJORITY

Trudeau Gains Election Victory

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's handling of inflation, the issue that topped his Liberal government two months ago, won him a surprising and solid victory early today in Canada's general election.

The Liberals won at least 140 seats in the House of Commons, seven more than they needed to capture control of Parliament for the next four years.

The latest results gave the Conservatives 95 seats, and the Quebec-based Social Credit movement 12. The New Democratic Party had 16, and the anti-French mayor of Moncton, N.B., got elected as an independent despite disavowal by the Conservative party.

It was a victory that surprised pollsters, who had predicted that neither Trudeau nor opposition Conservative leader Robert L. Stanfield would gain an absolute majority.

Until his government was toppled May 8 on the inflation issue, Trudeau had ruled for 18 months with a minority government kept in office with support of the socialist New Democratic Party. It was the defection of the New Democrats that toppled Trudeau.

Ironically, New Democrat leader David Lewis was beaten in Toronto. His party's parliamentary representation almost was halved from 31 seats won in 1972.

The Trudeau comeback, basically a smashing Liberal triumph in the key province of Ontario, gave Canada a clear-cut majority government for only the third time since 1962.

"Canada has come out of this election strong, confident of its future," said Trudeau, who first became prime minister in 1968 when his swinging bachelor image propelled the Liberals to their greatest victory in 15 years. "I just want to say I want to get on with the job."

He won by convincing Canadians that a freeze on wages and prices — the major pledge by Stanfield — would not work. Trudeau said "inflation was a global problem that controls will not solve."

Trudeau, 54, easily won a personal victory in his own constituency in Montreal, which assured his return to Parliament as national leader of the winning party.

Stanfield, 60, making his third unsuccessful attempt to become prime minister, personally was reelected in Halifax but would not comment on whether he would continue as Progressive Conservative leader.

It was the fourth election in a decade but only the third during summer months this century. The turnout was fewer than 9 million of the 13.5 million eligible voters and officials blamed it on the vacation timing.

Among the winners was the last Conservative prime minister, John Diefenbaker, a member of Parliament since 1940. At least eight women won, the greatest number in any election.

The Rev. Andrew Hogan won in Nova Scotia and became the first Roman Catholic priest to enter Parliament. A 20-year-old Liberal won in Quebec and became the youngest person to enter Parliament.

Only one cabinet member, Environment Minister Jack Davis, was defeated.

Price Tells Of Economic Difficulties In Agriculture

A MARILLO — Congressman Bob Price, addressing the Western Division annual membership meeting and banquet of Associated Milk Producers at the Villa Inn Convention Center here last night, stressed the good job the agriculture sector is doing in the face of economic difficulties.

With U.S. and world population growing rapidly, Price told the producers they play a major role in answering the question of how well shall the people be fed, and that this important role for agriculture will help producers deal with economic difficulties.

"The economic fact of life is that you will be encouraged to achieve production goals only if you can expect a reasonable profit from your efforts," the senior House Agriculture Committee member said.

In the long run, the Congressmen contended that increased farm production "will not only help us to meet our own population demands, but also those of the world."

Price said, "Higher production will help to fight inflation."

"Farm people have been leading the way in the inflation fight, and the country owes them a debt of gratitude and understanding. The farmer, the cattleman, the dairyman — we are all in the front line of the fight against inflation and we are taking some hard blows now."

"But the agriculture sector is going all out to produce more and we are doing it even though machinery is hard to get, even though fertilizer, fuel and other costs are higher; and I think by and large, producers are doing a terrific job." Price concluded.

Center To Get New Facilities

The Community Day Care Center will be meeting after receiving the use of the old Catholic School building, which has been undergoing remodeling in preparation for use.

Donated labor and materials have resulted in a new roof, chain link fence and painting of walls and ceiling.

A story published in the July 4 issue of The News indicated the remodeling was yet to occur and that the building, not the use of the structure, had been donated to the Center.

The Center, organized to provide working mothers with a place to leave their children while they work, is sponsored by the Bell Telephone Pioneers, with Mrs. Mary Summers as president.

The next meeting for the Center board will be July 29.

AT WILLIE NELSON FESTIVAL

Just Victims Of Too Much Hype

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Marsha Ball would like to see a special T-shirt designed for those who spent all three days under the hot summer sun. The shirt would say "Survivor of the 2nd Annual Willie Nelson Fourth of July Picnic."

Marsha Ball is the lead singer of Freda & the Firedogs, which along with the Ewing Street Times and Alvin Crow & the Neon Angels, comprise the most popular of Austin's "house bands," the bands that play the progressive country music that "someone recently dubbed 'Redneck Rock.'"

It was this type of music that was supposed to be prominent at Willie Nelson's festival, but what actually came off is something different again.

The crowds were below expectations and the problems exceeded anticipations.

"If it was as bad for the people who paid to see it as it was for the performers, well I just feel so bad for all of them," Marsha said the day after she returned from the music festival. "They were just victims of too much hype."

All the acts the promoters of the festival promised would perform didn't for one reason or another. The list of performers on all the posters were those who were invited to sing, not necessarily those who signed to appear.

Kristofferson and his wife, Rita Coolidge, were invited to perform, but they never made it.

David Allen Coe, who was on Willie's death row just a couple of years ago, was invited and appeared, but never got to perform.

"As it was they had too many bands that had to play in too short a time," Marsha said. "As a result, a lot of them didn't get on. David Allen Coe was one of them. I remember seeing him Saturday night (the last night of the festival) stalking around in back of the stage and he wasn't too happy about the whole situation."

One performer who wasn't on any of the programs, but did get to perform, was David Carradine, the star of "Kung Fu."

"These people paid as much as $30 to come and hear their kind of music and look what they got — David Carradine," Marsha said. "He didn't belong at this thing. He was terrible. He made up his music as he went along and it sounded like some Far Eastern thing or something. But it wasn't the country music these people paid their money to hear."

"Of course, he wasn't too happy to begin with. The police busted him for something before he even got to perform." (A check with the College Station police confirmed Carradine was stopped for a speeding violation on Texas Avenue in College Station. A police spokesman said the actor posted bond.)

"And they treated the performers badly, too. For instance, on Saturday we're playing for Doug Sahm and they (the organizers of the festival) decided our time was up. So what did they do? They turned off all the electricity feeding out from the stage. No one could hear what we were doing. But they didn't turn off our monitors so we were getting feedback and for all we knew our music was going out. So we kept playing and Doug kept singing and jumping around the stage like he does and they (the audience) must have thought we were crazy."

Marsha said the festival just got out of hand.

"When all is said and done, the one festival that will be remembered as being 'The Festival' in Texas will be the Piney Woods Festival they had earlier this year in Nacogdoches. No advance hype. No super bands. Just the Texas bands that the people in Texas want to see play."

The Willie Nelson festival was just a victim of too much hype. It sounded good when it started. But then they started promoting it too much and trying to get too many big names.

"You know the only bands that got the crowds to their feet were the Austin bands. Greasy Wheels started the show off Friday at noon and that was the day it was really hot and everyone was dying. And within five minutes they had the whole crowd singing and clapping."

And Alvin Crow & The Neon Angels did the same thing Saturday at noon.

"At one point Thursday night, Leon Russell, Waylon Jennings, B. W. Stevenson and Willie Nelson were all on stage playing something at the same time. You couldn't tell who was doing what."

During Freda & The Firedogs' set Friday, two parachutists descended on the speedway where the festival was held.

IN SONORA DESERT

Mexican Peasant Finds Kidnaped Consul's Body

HERMOSILLO, Mexico (UPI) — A broken skull, some bones, dental records and a wedding ring were presented to authorities today as the last remains of 31-year-old American diplomat John Patterson, who was kidnaped March 22.

The remains were found in the Sonora desert by a peasant looking for cactus fruits. A shallow grave had been washed away by heavy rains.

The discovery was virtually the first clue in the case since Patterson disappeared March 22 from the U.S. consulate here.

A ransom note was found in the consulate two hours later.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Mexico City withheld comment until U.S. authorities study the remains. But state police chief Francisco Arellano and Attorney General Miguel Angel Cortes said that the remains were those of Patterson.

The U.S. Embassy said Patterson's wife Anne, who was staying in Mexico City, probably would not fly here to identify the remains as planned earlier.

The remains were found in a remote desert region approximately 35 miles north of Hermosillo, a northern Mexican state capital, by a peasant looking for a desert fruit called pitaya.

The peasant, identified as Reyes Carbajal, said the body was buried partially and almost totally reduced to bones. Authorities added that the skull was broken by apparent death blows in the face and the back of the head.

A ring found on the body bore the initials of Patterson and his wife, and the date of their marriage, Feb. 2, 1973.

Two Attempted Break-Ins Noted

Two attempted break-ins of business places were investigated early this morning. Police said entry probably had not been gained at either place.

The first was discovered by a patrolman shortly before 4 a.m. at Sissy's Lounge, 748 W. Browning, where a hammer apparently had been used to break a door.

At the Tee Room Lounge, 543 W. Brown, a front door was broken out.

Still another attempted break-in was reported to have occurred sometime either July 7 or 8. A storm door at a residence at 1401 E. Francis had been removed, but nothing was reported missing from the house.

The Top O' Texas used car lot at 508 E. Atchison was darkened hours July 7-8. A car reportedly had been jacked up and four whitewall tires and mag wheels were stolen.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Enid can zoom her influence on Congress 10,000-fold by using the newspaper tear sheet method below. For "Men wearing rapiers are afraid of goose quills," said Shakespeare. One newspaper page beats a bushel of postcards or personal letters!

CASE A-680: Enid G., aged 28, runs a small flower shop.

"Dr. Crane," she confessed, "I never went to college so I have always had somewhat of an inferiority complex."

"But I have made a fair success of the floral business."

"However, I get irate at many of the nuisance taxes and other stumbling blocks that Congress places on us small employers."

"For example, 3 of my friends who operated retail businesses, have finally sold out."

"They now have taken salaried jobs with big factories, saying it is much easier and more profitable to put in an easy 40 hours on a big corporation's payroll, than to face the headaches of running their own business and then being forced to fill out government forms and collect the taxes from their employees."

"Dr. Crane, I often would like to tell our state legislators as well as Congress how I feel."

"But I am a poor writer."

"Yet I occasionally read newspaper editorials and columns which voice my ideas perfectly."

"How can I help get more of their sound business judgment into our legislatures?"

STOP SOCIALISM

Enid minimizes her own intelligence, as well as her skill in presenting ideas.

For you will note that her comments to me are very well expressed.

Remember, you don't need to be a political scientist nor a nationally known writer, to wield tremendous "print pressure" on Congress.

So follow these practical ideas to add weight to your views:

(1) Send a brief (150-word) letter to your local newspaper editor, making terse, specific statements about your views.

Use the booklet below to "package" your ideas in a striking, attention-attracting format.

For "eye-appeal" is worth half the battle nowadays regarding printed matter.

(2) If your editor then prints your letter, as he likely will, tear out the entire page (not just your clipped letter).

Mark your letter in red or green pencil.

Then enclose that full page in an envelope, addressed to your U.S. Senators and Representative.

Add "Senate Office Building" or "House Office Building" at Washington, D.C. 20515.

Remember, your letter will gain far more weight if you leave it on the full newspaper page!

For it then partakes of the greater prestige of the daily newspaper!

For it thus means 10,000 or 1,000,000 voters back home have seen it!

And politicians are moved by newspaper tear sheets far more than by personal letters!

The latter often come in by the bushel so the Congressman usually never sees them, for his office girls scan them.

But his assistants don't fail to lay a newspaper page before him!

"Men wearing rapiers," said Shakespeare, "are afraid of goose quills."

Which means that the pen (typewriter or linotype) is mightier than the sword.

The President, Governors and Legislators snap into action when newspaper publicity involves them.

And a newspaper averages over 3 readers per issue, so a local paper of but 10,000 circulation has about 35,000 readers!

Send for my booklet "How to Write Salable Copy (& Letters)," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Melrose, Indiana 47624. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Buyer's Billboard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is pondering a question that is somewhat similar to a problem it confronted 10 years ago when poverty was the "hot" national issue.

The question in 1964 was: Do the poor need a special government agency to look after their interests? Congress answered by creating the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO).

The question now is whether consumers need their own federal agency. The House already has passed legislation that would set up a Consumer Protection Agency and the Senate is expected to debate the issue, with a differing bill, sometime in July.

Because the proposed Consumer Protection Agency would, in effect, be a watchdog over other federal bureaucracies and intervene when it believed the interests of consumers were being jeopardized, it may not be easy to see the parallel with the OEO, which in its prime operated $1 billion worth of education, manpower, health and other social programs.

Activists Take Over But those who followed the discussion of the Economic Opportunity Act 10 years ago recall that OEO was supposed to have been more than a big federal operating agency. It also was supposed to be an "Advocate for the Poor" within the federal establishment — prodding other agencies to remember the hitherto "invisible poor" when they planned and ran social programs.

It didn't turn out that way, partly because the original OEO was staffed with activists who wanted to do the job themselves and partly because bureaucracy resists all outside kibitzing, even from other government agencies. In short, the people who started OEO believed it would be easier for them to win the War on Poverty alone than try to get the rest of the government to help.

Which poses the similarity with the proposed Consumer Protection Agency. Its job — even with the power to demand records of other agencies to go to court to oppose their decisions — will be very difficult.

The fact that creation of the agency is strongly favored by Virginia Knauer, the President's consumer adviser, and opposed by Director Roy Ash of the Office of Management and Budget gives some idea of what lies ahead. Mrs. Knauer is well aware of what frustrations there are in store for anyone who goes into government with the mission of reforming the institution, and Ash probably can vividly imagine the meddler that will flow from the establishment of an agency that has nothing to do but poke into others' business.

Question Arises Aside from the obvious irony of having to create a consumer protection agency to ride herd on other agencies which are supposed to be protecting consumers in the first place, the question Congress must answer is whether it will do any good.

The Senate Government Operations' subcommittee majority which sent the bill to the floor says it will, arguing that an independent watchdog is needed because "no single federal agency can be expected to act adequately, as both a decision maker and as a critic of its own decisions."

The minority, led by Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., argues that the cure for overbearing government is not more government, decrying "a paranoid fear of businessmen and farmers, a patronizing attitude toward consumers and a paradoxical view of the role of government — if officials in existing agencies can be malleable, so can officials of the new (agency)."

A thought for the day: German poet Friedrich Wilhelm Nietzsche said, "Disturb all those in whom the impulse to punish is powerful."

In 1970, Maj. Gen. George Casey and six others were killed in a helicopter crash in Vietnam, the seventh American general killed in that war.

Movers Should Keep Records

NEW YORK (UPI) — You may buy a house planning "never to move again" but you should keep records as if you might move tomorrow.

Actually, the average homeowner in the United States keeps a house for only 12 years before selling it and moving on, so, in a lifetime, might own several houses.

When you do sell, whatever the reason, a new job, the need or the desire for a bigger, or smaller, or just a different house, unless you know how to keep taxes on your "profit" at a minimum, you could lose a lot of the investment you thought was a hedge against inflation, Citibank warns.

"From the day you buy a house, keeping records for its eventual sale will guarantee you a fair sale price and a fair tax break," Citibank says.

If, for example, you bought a house for $18,000 and 10 years later sell it for $27,000, you have made a profit of $9,000. This "profit" actually can be reduced substantially, even eliminated — if you have the records to prove certain expenditures.

Keep a File You can, of course, subtract your closing costs of 10 years ago; for title search and insurance, lawyers' fees, bank appraisal, mortgage and deed recording and other expenses of purchasing the house. Also deductible are costs of selling such as broker's fee, legal fees, advertising, costs of painting and fixing up for the purpose of selling (done within 90 days before house is actually sold and paid within 30 days after.)

But you also can subtract for all the improvements made over the 10 years. It is here that proof is most important and most difficult to establish if records have not been kept.

If you are buying a house, set up a simple book in which housing expenses are listed by date, purpose, supplier and cost, and keep a file of supporting bills, checks, etc.

If you already own a house, set up a current system and work back through check stubs, receipted bills, etc. to reconstruct expenses for any years you have missed. The longer you wait, the tougher the job and the more likelihood you will miss important deductions.

Time to Sell Citibank advises while you can't deduct for normal maintenance, keep those records, too. "Sometimes, what seems to be maintenance can be credited as an improvement; your lawyer or accountant will sort this out."

For example, house painting is maintenance. Suppose, however, the house had seven coats of exterior paint, all chipping away in spots. If you installed new siding, or removed all seven old coats and applied two fresh ones, it might be a deductible improvement. To replace a window because a frame has rotted is maintenance. But to substitute storm windows is an improvement. A new kitchen stove is maintenance; a sizeable kitchen overhaul an improvement.

When the time comes to sell, Citibank explains:

"Suppose you have a net profit — total profit less deductions for costs of buying and selling and capital improvements — of $5,000. You pay a capital gains tax on this — at half your regular tax rate, up to 25 per cent. For any amount of gain over $50,000, the rate could go up to 35 per cent. If you owned the house less than six months, any gain would be taxes as ordinary income."

"If you buy another house, co-op or condominium within one year before or after the sale, the tax on all or part of your gain is postponed. You have 18 months if your new home is being built for you, but it must be started within the year. "You may buy and sell as many times as you like during your lifetime and keep defer tax on your profits. And since the first $60,000 of an inheritance is not taxable, they might not owe any federal tax if your taxable estate is under that amount."

"If you are going to sell your home at retirement, try to wait until you are over 65," Citibank advises. "Then you can choose, once in your lifetime, not to be taxed at all on the profit, if the 'adjusted' selling price is $20,000 or less. If more, you are forgiven part of the gain. You must have lived in the house five years over an eight-year period."

The longer you have a house, especially in these days when inflation boosts housing values dramatically each year, the bigger your so-called profit and the more important record of your deductible costs.

Start keeping records now.

Perils Of Plea Bargaining

Plea bargaining is a means of settling criminal prosecutions without a trial. The most favorable description of it goes something like this: A man is arrested and charged with crime. He knows that he did something wrong. The district attorney brings the charge. There is a reasonable difference of opinion as to whether the attached penalty is not too severe under the circumstances. So the defense attorney discusses the matter with the prosecutor. The latter agrees to reduce the charge provided the defendant pleads guilty, saving court time and expenses.

However, a less favorable depiction is this: The defendant is able to hire an aggressive, hard-working and talented attorney. Knowing he will have a tough fight, the prosecutor throws the book at the defendant, filing multiple charges for the same overt acts, hoping jurors will suppose the defendant guilty because he has been accused so many times.

A third possibility is this: The prosecutor and the defendant have a personality conflict. The prosecutor files a shotgun of charges. Knowing the expense of fighting so many accusations, the defendant pleads guilty to a lesser count.

A fourth potential comes when the prosecutor happens to be friendly with the defendant's attorney. The defendant pleads guilty to a light charge or gets off. The prosecutor has less work to do, and the defense attorney gets a bigger reputation as a person who can work deals with the prosecutor's office. That's good for business.

A fifth situation might come up in which the defendant is a prominent acquaintance of the prosecutor. He takes a light sentence. The court record isn't very informative or part of the file is missing, so the story does not make the papers where as that of a less prominent individual would.

Plea bargaining has the sanction of the U.S. Supreme Court, and for good reason. The trial courts never would be able to handle the load if every prosecution had to go the full route. There has to be some way of disposing of some of the cases. And in fact, many times you can come closer to actual justice by having a serious talk with the prosecutor than through the formalities of a courtroom. Although prosecutors like to be able to show a good record on convictions, we have seldom seen any who get a particular delight in sending a person to jail — barring a personal pique.

Nevertheless, in spite of a seeming requirement for some method for settling criminal cases before trial, Attorney General William Saxbe hit the correct theme, we think, when he took a skeptical view of plea bargaining as conducted today. "It is hardly reassuring," he said, "when one man goes to prison for years for theft while another man involved in a conspiracy to steal our freedoms is in and out of jail in the wink of an eye."

We don't know of any system that provides perfect justice. The chances are we will never see the day that one person will not draw down heavier punishment while others get by easier. But judges have all the power they need to curtail the more extreme examples. They know when the cover-up is on. They can recognize a slap on the wrist, on the one hand, or the shotgunning of charges, on the other hand. They are in the best position to curtail excesses. If gross injustices appear, the responsibility lies at their feet. For the public, judicious skepticism of the system is the only real safeguard against abuse of it.

ALL THAT GLITTERS

Generation Of Scoundrels

By VIC GOLD

Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel — Samuel Johnson

By the light of 18th-century coffeehouse erudition, I guess my mother was a scoundrel.

This July Fourth would have been her 78th birthday. Except, not really. She was born, you see, as the youngest daughter in one of those outsized Old Country broods for whom family birthdates were more often than not muddled.

So it was that when the Newmarks arrived at Ellis, back at the turn of the century when that island swarmed with the tired and wretched of many Old Countries, it fell to one of my uncles to recall the exact date of her joining the family. He ventured that it was a mid-summer holiday. Which, as such events were duly recorded, was translated to mean American Independence Day.

And that was the way our family always celebrated it. Not until a few years before her death, when called on to produce a birth certificate for a government agency, did she learn otherwise. We wrote to London, where she had been born — Doctor Johnson's city was then a halfway point for Central European emigrants on their journey to the States — and received an answer a few weeks later.

It didn't please Mother at all. According to official records, she hadn't been born on July 4 but on August 16. That's what the records said. But Mother just wouldn't buy it.

She had always taken special pride in the coincidence of having been born on the national holiday of her adopted country, and had no intention of changing her birthday at that point in life. The official register in England had to be wrong. Mother insisted. They never got things right in those days anyhow. My uncle was no fool — her birthday was July Fourth. And that was that.

My father had something of the same problem. He had been born October 29, 1886, or November 29, 1888? None of his ten brothers or sisters was around to say. Nor his mother or father. He had made it to America alone and on his own, at the age of fourteen. I once asked him why he didn't just write to the town where he had been born to settle the question of when to celebrate his birthday. He just smiled and went back to reading the paper.

Only in later years did I come to understand that the official records of the Old Country he had left behind — well, they were less tidy about such matters there than in London. It was sufficient for certain folk only that the army and the tax collector came by to make levies. And from time to time there were others who came, for less benevolent reasons.

Now the grandchildren of such first-generation Americans, blessed by the courage and sacrifice of their forebears, grow up in an age when patriotism — at least, the symbols traditionally associated with that word — is out of fashion. To men and women born into societies where individual freedom, human dignity and opportunity were the prerogatives of the few, the love of this country is an emotion keenly felt.

Scoundrels all. But to such a generation, "last refuge" has a special meaning on the American Independence Day — one that Doctor Johnson, for all his 18th-century coffeehouse erudition, might have found difficult to understand.

INSIDE LABOR

Terrorists Under Umbrella

By VICTOR RIESEL

WASHINGTON — A special scientifically trained network of counter-terrorist operatives has been strung around the U.S. This is the explosive season. A long fuse reaching from Buenos Aires to the U.S. has been lit by the Peronist-political dramas there. For on the terrorist front, as the Argentine goes, so does the U.S., according to the specialists.

Thus, experts in a score of American agencies — some seemingly remote from the "liberation" front — are on the alert. The counter-terror operation, carefully keeping banks, big industrial plants, power stations, ports, courts, oil company offices and nuclear power plants under surveillance, is an intricate hush — hush network reaching from the White House to the FBI, CIA and even to the National Bureau of Standards and the Post Office.

They watch for saboteurs. They trail the ad hoc "revolutionary" and "liberation" organizations. Oddly, the federal security chiefs can't see the Symbionese Liberation Army as typical of the others, which are far more sophisticated, dedicated and given to far less national melodramatics.

There are at least 21 terrorist groups now being probed by the FBI alone. They have a membership of some 15,000, according to Assistant FBI Director W. Raymond Wannall, in charge of the Bureau's Intelligence Division. That's a lot of people — power. And it takes a large number of agents to probe the revolutionaries carefully these days — for any misstep would be flashed across the media as an invasion of left-wing rights and privacy.

Not far behind the Bureau is the U.S. Postal Service. At least 10 low-emission X-ray machines have been strategically placed by the Service across the U.S. Postal inspectors — a very tough low-profile band of men — have 150 hand-held metal detectors at key postal sites. And 44 inspectors have received intense training in all forms of bomb investigation.

There is a virtually unknown Postal Service Security Force of some 2,644 uniformed personnel providing protective services at 73 major postal facilities and 48 full and part-time federal court locations across the nation — including the Supreme Court which recently received so-called "gas postcards."

There's a James Bond type counter-terror operation run by the National Bureau of Standards. It's quietly developing performance standards for security devices against theft by the underworld or the underground of fissionable material from nuclear reactors. These new devices are aimed at the equipment the terrorists would have to use to protect themselves

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Move To Disqualify Impeachment Forces?

By ROBERTS ALLEN

WASHINGTON, July 4 — The House Judiciary Committee's dissection and lead — wracked impeachment brouhaha may be blasted wide open by a spectacular bombshell.

Under backstage consideration is a move to disqualify a group of leftist Democratic committeemen on the ground of manifest bias, prejudice and personal and political animus toward President Nixon.

Admittedly, such a challenge would be unprecedented. Major legal and procedural problems would have to be overcome. That's fully understood.

But while the considerable parliamentary difficulties and complexities are not minimized, it is strongly held that one immensely valuable advantage would automatically be scored.

Taking the issue of eligibility directly to the floor of the full House and thus forcing it to be formally debated would dramatically and strikingly focus nationwide attention on the radical Democratic Committeemen and the detailed record of their pronounced anti-Nixon animus and impeachment agitation.

Whether such a dynamite-loaded confrontation can be brought about by a special resolution is conjectural. That is under study.

Under another stratagem being considered, a number of House members would obtain "special orders" for floor speeches to castigate the openly biased committeemen and demand their disqualification.

In one significant instance, that has already been done by Rep. Earl Landgrebe, R-Ind.

He waded into Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., following a blistering public attack on the President in which Conyers declared he was convinced the President is guilty of at least five impeachable offenses. Also that Conyers views his role on the Judiciary Committee as "making sure (Chairman) Rodino doesn't get too damned fair."

Conyers's statement so violated standards of justice and fairness, Landgrebe bluntly told the House, "that he must immediately remove himself from further participation in the inquiry of the Judiciary Committee. Conyers has not proceeded with care, nor decency, nor fairness, nor thoroughness, nor honor. By his divisive rhetoric he has earned an immediate exit from a task whose solemnity he has clearly rejected."

It is noteworthy that Conyers has said nothing in reply.

The Hatchetmen

In addition to Conyers, militant activist leader of the congressional Black Caucus, other Democratic committeemen under fire are:

Robert Drinan, Mass., radical Jesuit, vociferous dove and amnesty advocate who boasts of introducing the first legislation to impeach the President. Last week, Drinan, considered one of the most persistent leakers one of the committee, publicly defended that practice, saying there is "nothing immoral or illegal" about it. In the cloakrooms, a report is being circulated quoting him as saying, "As far as I'm concerned, there is no need to hear witnesses or anything else. I'm ready to impeach Nixon right now."

Jerome Waldie, Calif., who recently waged a dismally unsuccessful campaign for governor by clamoring for the President's ouster. In one piece of electioneering literature, Waldie thanked constituents "for supporting my efforts to impeach the President." In another statement he declared, "The President must be impeached if we are to uphold the principle that ours is a government of laws, not men." Waldie is also given to free-handed leaking.

Jack Brooks, Tex., third ranking committeeman who secretly aspires to become chairman — hopefully in the next Congress. In that ambition, Brooks goes out of his way to win the favor of the leftists, who he deems will likely dominate the next House. Illustrative of his highly partisan statements are the following: "The President should resign for the good of the country." "I get letters saying I'm too critical of the President, but how can you be unfair to a — like that?"

Charles Rangel, N.Y., who hopes to wangle a federal judgeship in a Democratic administration. Meanwhile, the ambitious Harlem politico is graphically demonstrating his sense of propriety and objectivity by such statements as: "There is no doubt in my mind that the President is a criminal." "As a lawyer and former prosecutor, I believe we have enough for a criminal indictment (of the President)."

Also Reps. Robert Kastenmeier, Wis., John Seiberling, Ohio, George Danielson, Calif., Elizabeth Holtzman, N.Y., all of whom have repeatedly denounced the President and called for his expulsion.

Exclusion of this group would completely change the Judiciary Committee line-up on impeachment.

Their disqualification would insure a conclusive victory for the President.

But the chances of eliminating them are highly doubtful.

On The Spot

House Armed Services Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., is in an unhappy bind — on recomputing the pay of military retirees.

Adamantly opposed to that on the ground the Hartke amendment is "not germane," he is confronted with the thorny dilemma of deciding what to do about a number of other Senate-approved amendments that are in the same category.

If Hebert agrees to any of them, in the secret conferences with Senate Armed Services committee men, recomputation advocates are ready and waiting to challenge him.

They are prepared to do that in the House Rules Committee, which Hebert will have to ask for a special rule to place before the full House the non-germane Senate amendments he is willing to go along with.

In other words, recomputation leaders will invoke on the powerful Louisiana legislator the principle, "What's good for the goose is good for the gander."

They will argue before the Rules Committee that if Hebert considers some of the other Senate amendments germane, then there is no reason why the Hartke recomputation amendment isn't. Particularly they will stress that this provision has been overwhelmingly approved by the Senate in three successive years — in 1972, by 82 to 4; 1973, 71 to 14; last month, 47 to 20.

Hebert is clearly in a tough spot in the closed-door conference deliberations to iron out the $20 billion — plus military procurement authorization legislation.

Tactically, he can't stubbornly hold out against all of the Senate's dozen or so non-germane amendments. On the other hand, if he agrees to some of them and has to go to the Rules Committee for authority to submit them to the full House, he lays himself wide open to demands for similar consideration by recomputation partisans.

They're "loaded for bear" for such a showdown — which could open the long-blocked door for a direct House vote on recomputation. If that can be brought about, this years-sought goal is in the bag.

A 52 per cent majority believe Ford is qualified to become president. Now we can recall the '72 model.

A majority of GOP senators don't want Nixon to campaign for them. They want to collect votes, not unemployment insurance.

Nancy Kissinger is glad the Mideast peace has been completed. She was getting worried about Henry Kissinger all those officials — and liking it.

Thieu complained about cuts in funds for military aid. Some of his troops now expect full pay without any kickbacks.

Nixon visited five Mideast nations in seven days. It was a package deal, including breakfast and sightseeing.

Dear Abby

Stay out of the tender trap

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-H. V. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps mine is a unique problem, yet I think not. My wife complains constantly that I never do anything around the house. She says: "The people next door work together, painting, gardening, etc. and their place looks great. You never do a thing around here, and our place looks like a dump. All you want to do is play golf, or bring home extra work from the office." And she is right.

The reason I never do anything around the house is this: I once brought some paint home to paint a room, and she criticized the color. I started to work in the yard and she said: "Quit that—you are making a mess!" Frankly, no matter what I do, she finds fault with it. The golf course is pleasant and quiet. And when I'm doing work I bring home from the office, at least she doesn't yell at me.

I have complimented her on her cooking, the way she looks, her housekeeping, and everything I can think of, but she never even says: "Thanks."

I doubt if this could be of any help to me if it were printed. However, there must be other readers who could improve their family relations immensely by just learning to express a little warm, sincere appreciation. Thanks.

A GOLF WIDOW'S GOLFER

DEAR GOLFER: I score your advice a birdie after a good recovery from a common marital trap!

DEAR ABBY: Am I being unreasonable? My husband's part collie dog is 19 years old. He is deaf, and nearly blind, can hardly use his back legs, and has lost control of his bowels. I have to clean up after him all the time. He whines, cries and barks during the night and I have to get up and let him out.

My husband is a sound sleeper and nothing disturbs him. I have begged him to take this dog to the vet to be put to sleep, but he says: "No! I suppose when I get sick you will want to put ME to sleep, too."

Abby, this is my second marriage and I want it to last, but I have had it with this dog of his.

I know if the dog could talk, he would beg to be put out of his misery. Please advise me.

DOG TIED

DEAR TIED: I'm with you. It's cruel to let the animal suffer. If your husband insists that you are wrong, get the vet's opinion. I'll bet he votes with us.

DEAR ABBY: I was recently married. My husband and I invited 200 people to our wedding reception; 140 said they were coming, so we put all the money we had into this wedding reception. Only 55 showed up. After the reception, my husband and I went to a local bar for a drink. About 30 of the people who accepted but didn't show up were at that bar. They gave us some money (with no cards) as a "wedding gift." We took it because we were so broke.

I think we should write thank-you notes to the people who handed us money, go to the bar, and hand them the thank-you notes just like they handed us the money. My husband thinks if we do this, we will be as ignorant as they are. I think we are being nicer to them than they deserve by thanking them at all.

What do you think?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Since you weren't sufficiently "hurt" to refuse their gifts, you should acknowledge them properly—in writing, and through the mail.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "M" WHO WORKS IN AN OFFICE WITH PAT: I think that whatever an adult does in his own home is his own business.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclosed stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Nuptial vows were exchanged Friday, June 8 at 8 p.m. in the Hi-Land Christian Church by Linda Starbuck and Jamie Lane.

Parents of the bride are Rev. and Mrs. Harold Starbuck of Pampa. The bridegroom's parents are Judge and Mrs. James Lane of Beaver, Okla.

THE CEREMONY
Judge James F. Lane, father of the bridegroom, and Rev. Harold Starbuck, father of the bride, officiated for the double-ring ceremony.

Mrs. E. Dean Barr played pre-nuptial music. Mrs. Donna Barby sang, "God Bless This Marriage" and "The Two Shall Be As One."

An archway with daisies and white chrysanthemums entwined with greenery decorated the church. Two, seven-branched candelabra holding white tapers entwined with greenery completed the altar setting.

THE BRIDE

Given in marriage by her father with the "her mother and I avowal," the bride wore a formal gown of silk organza over bridal peau de soie designed with a high-rise waistline, stand-up neckline and long sleeves with wide fitted cuffs. Her cathedral length veil, fashioned with illusion, was trimmed with lace. She carried a bouquet of yellow carnations and daisies complemented with ribbons of satin and lace streamers.

MRS. JAMIE LANE
nee Miss Linda Starbuck

ATTENDANTS

Billie Cochran of Beaver, Okla. served as maid of honor and Debra Morgan of Amarillo as bridesmaid. They wore floor length gowns of white eyelet embroidery. Yellow, for the maid of honor, and green for the bridesmaid.

Best man was Larry Starbuck, brother of the bride, and Bill Stewart of Pampa served as groomsmen. They wore black tuxedos and yellow shirts. Ushers were Lonnie Starbuck, brother of the bride, and Kirk Roberts of Pampa.

4-Hers To Study 'Careers' At State Congress

DALLAS — When some 500 4-H members converge on Dallas July 23 for the opening of the Texas 4-H Congress, they'll have a serious purpose in mind — looking for a careers.

Theme of the four-day conference, which will be at the Baker Hotel, will be "Careers in the World of Work."

Congress delegates will be 15 to 19 years of age and will represent all areas of Texas. According to Miss Yvonne Garcia, 4-H and youth specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the objectives of the Congress are for the youth to recognize the need to plan for selecting a career and to use a rational process in planning for their choice of a career.

Featured speakers include Dr. Herman L. Glaess of Concordia Teachers College, Seward, Nebraska, and John D. "Jack" Jackson, ground school instructor for American Airlines, Inc.

Flight Academy, Fort Worth. These speakers will reflect on their personal career experiences as well as give their perspectives on selecting and planning for careers.

"A highlight of the conference will be the division of Congress participants into mini-groups to participate in discussions and tours of various businesses and services in the Dallas-Fort Worth areas," points out Miss Garcia.

Tour groups will be related to manufacturing and processing, banking and finances, public service, recreation and leisure, merchandising and sales, and transportation.

The delegation will attend

Ringbearer was Kevin Jacoby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Jacoby, of Pampa and flower girl was Mary Cross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Cross of Pampa. Candle lighters were Jerry and Joey Lane, brothers of the bridegroom, of Beaver.

RECEPTION
After the ceremony a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The serving table was covered with white satin and lace cloth. It held two white candelabra trimmed with yellow and green net and satin ribbons. The white four — tiered cake was decorated with miniature attendants and yellow roses, topped with the traditional bride and bridegroom.

Members of the house party were Tonya Roberts, Hilarie Stewart, Tina Pitmon, Pauline Herber, Dolores and Barbara Cross, Willa Dean and Cathy Jacoby and Melvinia Tucker.

The cake and reception were prepared by Violet Starbuck, grandmother of the bride.

The bride traveled in a green double knit pantsuit.

AFFILIATIONS

The bride is a 1973 graduate of Pampa High School and is a sophomore student at Midwest Christian College, in Oklahoma City, majoring in music.

The bridegroom is a 1973 graduate of Beaver High School. He is a sophomore student at Midwest Christian College majoring in ministries.

PRE-NUPITAL EVENTS
The bride was honored by a miscellaneous shower held at the First Christian Church in Beaver.

Another miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. C.L. Roberts. It was hosted by Marion Roberts, Tonya Roberts, Hilarie Stewart and Debra Morgan.

According to the International Labor Organization, 180 million more jobs must be found in Asia by 1980 to avoid even worse unemployment and poverty than now exists.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

One of the lures which is most difficult for the inexperienced player to overcome is the instinctive urge to win a trick whenever the opportunity presents itself. This applies not only to the novice declarer, but equally to the novice defender. The latter situation is the theme of today's deal.

North-South vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:
South 10 West 10 North 10 East 10
3 NT Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

As the cards were divided, four hearts was superior to three notrump. But I have grave doubts as to whether even our best players would have arrived at the four-heart contract.

West's jack of clubs opening lead was captured by South's queen, after which the deuce of hearts was led, with dummy's jack being inserted. East promptly won this trick with his queen. He then returned his remaining club, which South took with his ace. It was now a routine matter for South to lead his remaining heart, and drive out East's ace, thus establishing three heart tricks — with, of course, the club king serving as entry for the cashing of the hearts.

When South made his initial heart lead (at trick two), an experienced East defender would have allowed dummy's jack to have won the trick. It would have been obvious to East that declarer was going to develop the heart suit; and that East would always make two heart tricks with his queen and ace.

Admittedly, it was difficult for our inexperienced East defender to have realized that the non-taking of the first heart lead would break the North-South communication in hearts, and would prevent the establishment and cashing of dummy's hearts. But such would have been the case if East had declined to capture the first heart lead.

With North's jack winning, South would have returned to his hand via a diamond, to lead his remaining heart, putting in dummy's ten (with the hope that West was the possessor of the heart queen). East would take this second heart lead with his queen — and declarer would now be a doomed man. While he could get to dummy via the club king to establish the heart suit, he could never return there to cash it.

Boaters Have Rules Of Road

By ALICE M. ALLEN

Boaters have rules of the road just like cars do. And like rules of the road on land, the water rules of the road determine who has the right of way. They also help prevent confusion and collisions on the water.

Some of the water rules parallel land rules. Vessels approaching each other should keep the other vessel to port. In other words, pass on the right.

In a crossing situation, the vessel to the right or starboard has the right of way. In a narrow channel, vessels should keep to the right of the middle of the channel, whenever safe and practical.

Additional rules of the road pertain to boating and water situations. For example, any vessel under sail or propelled by oars or paddles has right of way over motor vessels.

Vessels should proceed cautiously in the vicinity of a red and white diver marker or persons in the water. Boat operators are responsible for the wake caused by their vessel.

Navigation aids are placed in the water for the safety of all boaters. Reef markers are white with no lettering on them although some are marked with a red diamond above waterline.

Harbor markers indicate areas where vessels must not cause a wake. Harbor markers often have the "M" or "No Wake" on them. Near the engineering structures at Sanford Dam are buoys designed to keep boats a safe distance from the intake structures. These are white with a crossed diamond symbol on them.

Safety and courtesy prevent accidents on water as well as on the road. Watching out for other boats will help make your boating more pleasant.

Economists Course Set

AMARILLO—The Economist Views Society and Its Problems will be a special topics course offered at West Texas State University the second semester.

"A large part of what happens in our economy is what people think is going to happen in the future," says Economics Department Head Dr. Barry Duman, the course instructor.

"We hope by educating the population," Duman noted, "through isolating some of the causes of the present economic crises, we will be able to come up with some solutions."

Duman cites the goal of the course is to provide the citizens of the panhandle with economic insight in to various social, political and economic issues that they may be forced to deal with in their roles as businessmen, workers, public servants, voters and consumers.

The course will include topics such as the economics of discrimination, problems of pollution and ecological imbalance, inflation, economics of health and medical care and global economics.

"The need for this course is most apparent," Duman says, "when one considers the many economic and economic-related problems currently confronting the American citizen and more specifically, the citizen of the Golden Spread region."

"The acute local nature of these problems becomes apparent when one notes that we have recently emerged from a period of agricultural recession in the face of high prices," Duman observes.

"Occurrences such as these have had dislocating effects on the producing and consuming publics and, coupled with the general confusion surrounding the wage-price controls. Have forced our citizens to become more aware and involved in economic decisions and policies."

Registration for the course, which will be held from 9:10-10:40 a.m. on the WT campus, is July 15. For more information, contact the Dean of Admissions and Registrar, WTSU.

Tourists Fail To Make Summit

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — The view from atop 14,110-foot Pikes Peak is spectacular, but the flatland tourist accustomed to the straight and narrow road sometimes bails out before he ever gets to the summit.

Motorists who want to reach the top have to travel a winding, gravel road called the Pikes Peak Highway, a stretch of road which starts at an elevation of 7,391 feet in Cascade. Sometimes a squeamish motorist will look over the side and decide he wishes he were elsewhere.

Dewitt (Deke) Miller, supervisor of public works for Colorado Springs, which operates the road, says a special highway police force is on hand for those people who have troubles.

"Really, the road is quite good and most people make it to the top and back without difficulty," Miller said, "but some motorists from the level country start looking at the steep dropoffs and then do get a little afraid. They have to be assured there is no problem."

Miller said patrolmen who keep an eye on the road usually have an easy time spotting the driver who is having problems.

"They (drivers) usually just pick out a good spot and pull over to the side until the patrolman comes by," Miller said.

"In some cases, we drive them down just to relieve their minds. And sometimes we've even driven them clear to the top and back down again."

Miller said normally a motorist who worries about the road just turns around before he gets too far and heads back to flatter country.

"But that's a very small percentage actually," he said. "Usually after our officers talk to them a few minutes, everything is all right."

Miller said there have been few accidents on the road, which is described as one of the most expensive 20 miles of highway in the world. To pay for the costs, the city charges $2 for each adult who travels to the top and 50 cents for each child.

Why should our son have a newspaper route?

The living is good. Plenty of money, nice home, nice furnishings, another salary raise in sight; we've never had it so good. Why should our son manage a newspaper route?

Most any educator or businessman will tell you why in three simple words: it builds character.

Oftentimes the youngster who grows up in comfortable circumstances and who gets his weekly "handout" from dad never realizes the value of money or the efforts required to make it and manage it, until he's on his own. By then attitudes and habits are difficult to reverse.

But the newspaperboy quickly learns valuable lessons that stick. While making money on a newspaper route is important, the experience of getting-the-job-done-no-matter-what is more important. When through route management, responsibility and self-confidence are acquired at this early age, a newspaperboy has an advantage over other youngsters that no amount of money can buy.

If you're still wondering whether your son would benefit from newspaper route management, ask a community businessman or civic leader, or better still, phone our Circulation Department.

It Sims To Me...

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

Sheri Haynes, McLean's all-state basketball standout and a regional qualifier last year in Class A track, is running two miles along Highway 273 every day besides doing several 440's at the high school track in preparation for the West Texas AAU Junior Olympics Regional Track Meet July 20 at Borger's Bulldog Stadium.

Miss Haynes, a senior at McLean, placed second in the mile run in the West Texas AAU Junior Olympics Championships Saturday at Borger, earning her the right to advance to the regional affair, which will involve athletes from Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

Her mile time of 7:05.0 placed second behind Diane Cummings of Abilene who also turned in a 7:05 but won by a fraction. It was the first time Miss Haynes had ever run the mile competitively.

"Sheri's running two miles a day in the hills on the highway out by her house. And I'm working on her speed by letting her run quarters at the track every day," said McLean High School girls' track coach Joel Nelson.

"Sheri and the Abilene girl were even going into the last lap, but she (Miss Cummings) broke and Sheri didn't realize what happened," added Nelson.

Miss Haynes also ran in the 100, an event she won in district with an 11.1. At the Borger meet, her 11.3 time was good enough for fourth. However, only the winner in both the Senior and Intermediate divisions' events and the next two best finishers in either of the divisions' events (combined) qualified for the Region IX meet.

A Pampa Region IX qualifier is Barry Lemons, who placed second in the Senior division 440 with 53.9, one-tenth of a second behind Sammy Sims of Lubbock.

Phil George of Pampa cleared 6-0 in the high jump in the Intermediate division and grabbed second place, but whether or not he qualified for regional is still a question. His 6-0 was the same height second and third places in the Senior division attained, which means five people (the winners and next two best performances in the two divisions combined) are eligible for qualifying.

"They told us they would let us know," said Callens George, Phil's father. "It is a good possibility; he had no misses through six feet."

John Reger of Spearman cleared 6-2 to win the Intermediate high jump.

Clinton Henry of Pampa placed third in the Intermediate mile with a 5:17.9 showing, a second behind Richard Postma of Amarillo and two seconds behind the winner Joe Garcia of Lubbock. Henry did not qualify for the July 20th meet.

Other qualifiers included Rose Dwyer, Melinda Hunt, Kathy Raines and Cindy Sherrod of McLean, who are all members of the same Intermediate sprint-relay team. They won the event in 55.8 seconds, but were not as impressive as they were in the spring when they ran a 51.0.

Ted Brown, Pampa's 15-year-old swimming sensation, competed in the Wichita (Kan.) Air Capital Swim Meet Saturday and set a new pool record in the 1500-meter freestyle race by going the distance in 17:45.8, eclipsing the old mark of 17:50.8.

Brown, who lives in Amarillo during the summer so he can swim and practice with the Amarillo Aquatic Club, beat the three-year standing record, which was set by Tom Kempf, who now swims competitively at the University of Kansas. Kempf was 19 when he set the meet freestyle mark.

J.G. "Buck" Mundy of San Benito (Tex.) will be among players in the Tri-State Seniors Golf Tournament July 22-26 at Pampa Country Club. He let his desire to play be known in a letter to J.R. Brown of Amarillo, Tri-State Senior Golf Association secretary.

"Dear Mr. Brown, I received the enclosed invitation from Mr. McMahon to play in your tournament. I have heard so much about your tournament from people who play in it. Life Begins at Forty here in Harlingen."

"I was raised in Pampa and have not been back for over 30 years. I am looking forward to seeing some of my old friends."

For Mundy, it's going to be sort of a reunion. There's more in the letter but nothing pertinent.

Weekend tennis play: Pampa's Joe Davis and Jim Hughes participated in the Panhandle Closed in Amarillo and "Pampa put it to 'em," according to Davis, who captured the Men's 45 Singles title.

Hughes won the Men's 35 Singles championship, and then teamed with Davis and the two walked away with the Men's 45 Doubles crown.

In Lakeview (Tex.), Pampa winners were Don Hughes in High School Boys' Singles, Eugene Laycock and Jerry Allen in High School Boys' Doubles, John Michie in Men's Singles, Michie and Jack Scott in Men's Doubles and Michie and Stacy Douglass in Mixed Doubles.

In grade school doubles at Lakeview, Steve Kotara and Dickie Hughes of Pampa lost to Gregg Clark of Lakeview and John Holland of Estelline in the finals, 6-1, 6-1.

Messersmith Baffles Phils

United Press International
Andy Messersmith can claim the most specialized role of all in this era of baseball specialization: pitcher in charge of giving Mike Marshall an occasional day off.

Marshall, who had relieved in 17 of the Los Angeles Dodgers' previous 20 games, including a record 13 in a row, dozed in the bullpen Monday night while Messersmith pitched a three-hitter to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies, 4-0, in a nationally televised game. The win made Messersmith's record 9-2.

"You can't allow yourself to rely on a guy like Marshall," said Messersmith, who has pitched the only two complete games by a Dodger pitcher since June 4. "You've got to try and go all the way—you can't turn it off after the sixth or seventh."

Messersmith, who struck out nine and walked four in pitching his third shutout and lowering his earned run average to 2.01, had a no-hitter until Dave Cash singled with one out in the sixth.

Catcher Steve Yeager hit a two-run homer off Ron Schuler in the fourth inning and the Dodgers scored their other runs in the sixth on an infield single by Dave Lopes and a ground ball by Bill Buckner after filling the bases on a hit batsman, a walk and a fielder's choice on which everyone was safe.

The victory was the Dodgers' fourth in their last five games and increased their first-place lead in the National League West to 10½ games.

Perry Fails In Bid For 16th Win Despite 6-Hits, 13-Strikeout Effort

United Press International
Gaylord Perry is the unhappiest 35-2 pitcher in the world today, and it's a pretty good bet you never heard of the guy who caused that condition.

Claudell Washington, with only a weekend in the major leagues behind him, singled home the winning run in the 10th inning Monday night to give the Oakland A's a 4-3 victory over Perry and the Cleveland Indians and end Perry's winning streak at 15 games.

His streak ended one victory shy of tying the league's all-time record of 16 and was the longest in the American League in a single season for 40 years.

But Perry wasn't in a mood to accept any "nice try" condolences for coming close.

After all, it would have been one thing for Perry, who has only a 2-9 record against Oakland in his three AL seasons, to get beaten by Reggie Jackson or Gene Tenace. It's quite another to get beaten by Claudell Washington, and the bitterness and frustration of the 35-year-old right-hander were obvious.

"I just stood there and watched that ball go through the infield and I told myself, there's no use staying out there," Perry said.

The Indians were within two outs of victory in the bottom of the ninth when Joe Rudi tripled off the rightfield fence and Tenace followed with a sacrifice fly to tie the game, 3-3.

In the 10th, Pat Bourque walked and his pinch-runner, John Odom, was sacrificed to second before Washington's winning two-out hit.

Perry gave up only six hits and struck out 13 and took a 3-2 lead into the bottom of the ninth on the strength of batterymate Dave Duncan's two-run homer in the seventh.

Elsewhere in the AL, Kansas City blanked Boston, 5-0; Minnesota topped Detroit, 6-2; New York routed Texas, 12-5; Milwaukee edged Chicago, 6-3, in 12 innings, and Baltimore edged California, 6-5.

National League scores

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI)—Four rookies have left the Dallas Cowboys training camp, with two claiming to have departed in sympathy with the veteran players' strike against the National Football League.

Free-agent kicker Dirk Krijt of Michigan State and defensive back Mike Holt, an eighth-round draft choice from Michigan State, said they left because of the strike. Free-agent receiver Damon Mays, also of Michigan State, and 11th-round draft choice wide receiver Harvey McGee of Southern Mississippi also left camp.

"The attrition is about normal," Landry said. "When you get into two-a-days, you find out quickly just how badly you want to play football."

Only two veterans—running back Calvin Hill, who has signed with the World Football League for next year, and tight end Jean Fugett—picked Monday for two hours, the Cowboys said. Dallas held its first contact drill in three days of training, including their first passing drill.

Las Vegas oddsmaker Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder has called it minor league football and has declined to declare the likely winners of WFL games.

He does, however, have an opinion on the WFL's survival potential. He makes it only even money.

So it will be that during the first year of WFL existence, and for a few more years after that if there are any, the new league will not be discussed in terms of who is winning or losing but how many people there are in the sands and how much red ink is being kept in the supply closets.

And it must be bothersome to most football players to have their efforts relegated to something of secondary importance.

Which brings us back to Staubach and competition.

Staubach could have been a likely target for the WFL. Others suggested to him that he at least talk to the WFL people, but Staubach never did.

A few months ago Staubach, who at 32 has played only five years of pro ball because of his naval commitment, began negotiations with Cowboy management. A week or so ago it was announced that terms had been reached and a contract signed.

The Cowboys usually do not announce the signing of veteran players, but in this case they gleefully did so. What with some vets going to the WFL and the others on strike, the club needed some happy news to spread around.

Staubach has nothing whatsoever against the WFL.

"It allows more people to play professional football for one thing," said Staubach. "It is great for the young players."

"And you certainly can't criticize any player for going to the WFL. You have to look at each player as an individual case. But I didn't think it was the thing for me."

"Even if the WFL does become established," he said, "it will take it a while to do so. And in that interim period, if I was in the league, it would take away my competitive spirit at best."

"That was one of the things I thought about. I just wouldn't want to give up the idea of being competitive."

Yanks Rout Texas

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI)—The New York Yankees put in their final appearance of 1974 at Arlington Stadium Monday night.

And they must be sorry to leave the place.

Over the past four evenings, the Yankees, who came to town with an anemic .246 team batting average, produced 37 runs on 59 hits. They came up with their two most productive nights of the season—20 hits last Friday and 19 hits Monday night in producing a 12-5 victory over Texas.

Not All Vets Among Strikers

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI)—Larry Eaglin, a second-year defensive back, supports his wife and himself by playing professional football for the Houston Oilers.

To hold onto that job, Eaglin must compete against others who want it. For that reason, he crossed the National Football League Players Association picket line Monday, manned by his friends, and joined rookies opening the Oilers' first full week of training camp.

"A man has to do what he thinks is right in certain situations. This is one of those situations," said Eaglin, a graduate of Stephen F. Austin College.

"It was one of the hardest decisions I've ever had to make. But I made it and I came. I hope those fellows on the picket line understand."

The Hill, on the campus of Sam Houston State University which is the Oilers new training site, is where veterans Elvin Bethea, Ken Houston and Bill Curry set up picket lines.

In crossing the picket line, Eaglin was joined by another NFLPA member, linebacker Ted Washington.

"They're my friends, and I believe in what they stand for," Eaglin said of the picketing veterans. "But those people only have to walk on the field and into their jobs. They don't have to worry about their bankrolls."

"I've heard and read a lot about who will suffer most from the strike—players or owners. I'll tell you who suffers. It's the guy like myself who's been in the league two or three years and hasn't established himself."

"Nobody would raise an eyebrow about me. But I have a wife to support and football is how I have to do it," he said. "If I hadn't come to camp, I'd been in that limbo situation of knowing some rookie was up here trying to take my job."

However, one rookie quarterback Vidal Carlin, expressed sympathy with the striking veterans and said he may boycott the exhibition season if the strike isn't settled.

"I think the Players Association is right in what it's doing—standing up for its rights and for the rights of the rookies," Carlin said.

negotiations, then we go back to practice."

A spokesman for the NFL Management Council said the owners have agreed to resume negotiations with the players.

The World Football League, which begins its first season Wednesday night, should gain from the NFL's loss. If the NFL training camps remain closed and the All-Star game is canceled, the WFL may be playing without competition throughout the summer.

The new 12-team league has five games scheduled Wednesday night and the first nationally telecast night game is Thursday night.

Several NFL stars have jumped to the new league, but most of them don't make the move before 1975, and in some cases, 1976.

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI)—The New York Yankees put in their final appearance of 1974 at Arlington Stadium Monday night.

And they must be sorry to leave the place.

Over the past four evenings, the Yankees, who came to town with an anemic .246 team batting average, produced 37 runs on 59 hits. They came up with their two most productive nights of the season—20 hits last Friday and 19 hits Monday night in producing a 12-5 victory over Texas.

Not All Vets Among Strikers

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI)—Larry Eaglin, a second-year defensive back, supports his wife and himself by playing professional football for the Houston Oilers.

To hold onto that job, Eaglin must compete against others who want it. For that reason, he crossed the National Football League Players Association picket line Monday, manned by his friends, and joined rookies opening the Oilers' first full week of training camp.

"A man has to do what he thinks is right in certain situations. This is one of those situations," said Eaglin, a graduate of Stephen F. Austin College.

"It was one of the hardest decisions I've ever had to make. But I made it and I came. I hope those fellows on the picket line understand."

The Hill, on the campus of Sam Houston State University which is the Oilers new training site, is where veterans Elvin Bethea, Ken Houston and Bill Curry set up picket lines.

In crossing the picket line, Eaglin was joined by another NFLPA member, linebacker Ted Washington.

"They're my friends, and I believe in what they stand for," Eaglin said of the picketing veterans. "But those people only have to walk on the field and into their jobs. They don't have to worry about their bankrolls."

"I've heard and read a lot about who will suffer most from the strike—players or owners. I'll tell you who suffers. It's the guy like myself who's been in the league two or three years and hasn't established himself."

"Nobody would raise an eyebrow about me. But I have a wife to support and football is how I have to do it," he said. "If I hadn't come to camp, I'd been in that limbo situation of knowing some rookie was up here trying to take my job."

However, one rookie quarterback Vidal Carlin, expressed sympathy with the striking veterans and said he may boycott the exhibition season if the strike isn't settled.

"I think the Players Association is right in what it's doing—standing up for its rights and for the rights of the rookies," Carlin said.

negotiations, then we go back to practice."

A spokesman for the NFL Management Council said the owners have agreed to resume negotiations with the players.

The World Football League, which begins its first season Wednesday night, should gain from the NFL's loss. If the NFL training camps remain closed and the All-Star game is canceled, the WFL may be playing without competition throughout the summer.

The new 12-team league has five games scheduled Wednesday night and the first nationally telecast night game is Thursday night.

Several NFL stars have jumped to the new league, but most of them don't make the move before 1975, and in some cases, 1976.

Confusion And Drinking Water

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been told that drinking large quantities of water helps keep older people from becoming confused. Is there any truth to this? — Mrs. M.B.

Only a limited amount of truth, involving particular cases. But as a general rule — no.

In certain medical conditions, it is necessary to consume large quantities of fluid in order to maintain proper action of the kidneys — enough fluid to let them filter out and then excrete waste materials in the urine.

Some of the more frequent conditions of this sort are increased perspiration (frequent night sweats, etc.), diarrhea which involves excessive loss of fluids via the bowel, diabetes, and kidney diseases.

In such cases, unless fluid intake is increased to meet the needs, a general dehydration or depletion of body fluids occurs.

This can result in a variety of problems — including mental confusion. So in that sense, increased fluid intake can combat such confusion.

Older persons also sometimes neglect suitable fluid intake along with other dietary oversights.

However in an otherwise healthy person, drinking excessive amounts of fluid is of no benefit.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a fungus infection on my large toenail on one foot. Please tell me how to treat this without going through surgery. — R.M.

Once a fungus has invaded a nail, it is highly doubtful that any self-treatment is going to succeed. You may, however, avoid surgery in some cases, assuming that the fungus is one that can be combatted with griseofulvin, an anti-fungus drug taken orally.

It has to be prescribed by your doctor and requires some time to do its work, so you may prefer to have the nail removed surgically, after all, in the interest of speed. Better talk to your doctor (or to a podiatrist or a dermatologist) to decide the best course of action.

You may want to read the newest of my booklets, "Solving Your Nail Problems," which goes into such matters as fungus, brittle or weak nails, and a variety of other conditions involving nails of the fingers and toes. If you'd like a copy, send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 75 years old, in perfect health, very seldom even have headaches. At my last physical checkup my blood pressure was 130-62.

Yesterday when I got out of bed I could not keep my balance for a minute or two as if I were dead drunk. It happened once or twice before but only briefly. What causes this and what should I do? — A.P.

Your blood pressure is down in a nice safe range for a man your age. And since your doctor can't find anything wrong with you, I'd have to suspect that your loss of balance when you get up is a matter of what we call "postural low blood pressure."

In other words, when you stand up, it takes a brief time for blood to be restored to the brain at normal pressure.

It happens to quite a few people from time to time and does no harm unless you fall down and hurt yourself.

What to do about it? Just remember that it can occur, so when you get up (from bed or sometimes even from sitting) be careful.

From bed, put your feet over the side of the bed, sit up, tense your arm and leg muscles, give yourself a few seconds to adjust, and that's all you need to do for postural low pressure.

"Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Dizzy Spells," discusses loss of balance, vertigo and nausea, Meniere's disease and labyrinthitis. For a copy write to him in care of him Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Oh, Those Boys Will Be Girls!

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — So I have seen the world's series, the world's champions, of female impersonators shows, and I think I dozed off.

It was the "Manhattan Follies" at the Plaza Persian Room, and it's a part of the new trend I've been warning you about. Men dressed up like women. Now let me ask you, man to — uh — man, if Barbara Walters dressed up like Muhammad Ali, would that be funny? But somehow if Muhammad Ali dressed up like Barbara Walters, that's hilarious. Now you tell me why?

The Robert Stigwood organization with all that wealth and success put on this great politely correct show starring Carol Channing (portrayed by the clever Craig Russell) and Judy Garland (emulated by Caleb Stonn) — and it was all beautiful and smart and chic — but in the back was Lorna Luft, Judy's daughter, and she heard the recordings of her mother's songs, and she backed away a little.

Yes, she loved Caleb Stonn — who played Judy so well — and I'd like to see her — him — sometime, when he doesn't have her makeup on. Lorna said. Staying well in the back.

To us there is nobody quite so great as Craig Russell doing Carol Channing as we have to remember that Craig Russell did the voice of Carol Channing which even Carol Channing has trouble doing.

Great as the boys are dressed up in bras and pantyhose, I still would like to see Lucille Ball playing Jack Dempsey. It would be a bust, right, even with Jane Russell doing it?

This is the new dramatic art we have to see on Broadway. It was well done and expressively costumed and a tastefully choreographed. And it was so genuine and convincing that one of the producers changed from trousers into a dress for the big party in the Plaza grand ballroom.

Connie Stevens, arriving here for her opening at Nantuet with Marty Allen, said in a low whisper that she's just heard that her controversial film, "The Sex Symbol," in which she plays a Marilyn Monroe type involved with a Kennedy, is to be played this summer at the Berlin Film Festival and others — and that she'll attend.

"I also hear it'll be shown in this country in the fall," Connie added. "Who is it that you play?" I asked her, never having seen the film. "I don't know who they were thinking about but I was thinking about Marilyn Monroe," said Connie. She says the last 11 minutes of the film show her dying the death of Marilyn Monroe and she doesn't believe anybody will object.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL...

Eloise McElhone died — she was a pillar of "Leave it to the Girls" on TV back in the late 40s. Deliowner Hy Resnick, always so good to Fight for Sight, also passed away — and Candy Jones Nebel is mourning her mother, Jessica Wilcox, who died in Wilkes-Barre.

Rodney Dangerfield closed his cafe for a month, explaining he was very tired — so on his first night off he worked, gratis, at The Improvisation... Tom Jones got a comparatively conservative crowd at Westbury Music Fair — they tossed only two bras and a few keys onstage — but delivered 32 birthday cakes to him backstage. (Someone sighed, "We're up to our ears in cakes!")... Van Johnson will host a TV series of "MGM film showings."

Show Biz Quiz: Olivia deHavilland played one of the Bronte sisters in the film "Devotion," who played the other two? Ans. to yesterday's: Craig Stevens played Peter Gunn, John Vivyan was Mr. Lucky.

Carroll O'Connor, appearing with Ethel Merman at the Shady Grove Music Fair near Washington, said he'd be leaving after this date to start taping "All in the Family"... Ex-Dead End Kid Gabe Dell will be in the film "Framed" playing a gangster, "sort of a grown-up Dead End Kid"... Comic Corbett Monica's wife Helen will visit women's clubs, talking about a diet book.

The Mets' Rusty Staub, an avid amateur chef, toured The Lair's kitchen; chef Bob Krieger told the $100Gs — a year — outfielder, "Remember, cooks don't get paid like ballplayers!"

I'D RATHER BE LIGHT

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Victor Borge went to a midtown film theater and was shocked by the sex: "But pretty soon the lights went down and the movie started."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Some kids are like ketchup bottles. You have to slap their bottoms a few times to get them moving.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "An optimist believes this is the best of all possible worlds. A pessimist believes the optimist is right." — Bobby Vinton.

EARL'S PEARLS: John Bruno described a boring woman: "She talks to her plants — and they turn away."

Bob Orben hasn't decided on a vacation spot yet: "Last year we went to London and saw the Changing of the Guard. This year we may just go to the supermarket and watch the Changing of the Prices."

That's earl, brother.

Walking along the street opposite the townhouse of Mary Travers (of Peter, Paul and the Doves), one can look up most nights and see the light bouncing off a row of gold records hung high on a wall.

That, of course, is what the Top Ten can mean to anyone you see appearing here from week to week. Then, besides the gold, there's the money...

TOP TENS SINGLES

TOP FIVE ALBUMS

1. "Sundown" — Gordon Lightfoot
 2. "Band On The Run" — Paul McCartney
 3. "The Sting" — Movie Soundtrack
 4. "Bachman-Turner Overdrive II" — Bachman-Turner Overdrive
 5. "Shinin' On" — Grand Funk
- Cymande, a group from the Caribbean islands via England, has a fine new album in "Promised Heights." Their rare combination of island-Afro rhythms underlying jazz-rock makes them both unique and highly listenable.
- It's a long way from Peter, Paul and Mary, but Mary Travers retains her magic as she goes on alone. Her album, "Circles," shows off her style and clarity in a spinnable longplay. Also worth the spinning is The O'Jays with their "Live In London," done in their soulful fashion. (Distributed by Columbia Features, Inc.)

FISHERMAN'S LURE
SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California issued 2.19 million fishing licenses during 1973 to lead all states in the country. The total also accounted for nearly 10 percent of all fishermen nationally. In second place was Texas with about 1.5 million.

Public Notices

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
Sealed proposals addressed to the Mayor and Town Council of the Town of Shelbyville, Texas, will be received at the Town Hall until 5:00 p.m. on July 11, 1974, for furnishing all necessary materials, machinery, equipment, and labor for the construction of a sewerage treatment plant.

Bidders shall submit their bids on the form attached to the Specifications and must submit a check or cash for the amount of $100.00 as a bid bond. The bond shall be payable to the Town of Shelbyville, Texas, in the event the bidder fails to execute a contract and execute bonds in the form provided within the time specified in the Specifications. The bond shall be returned to the bidder if the bidder is successful in awarding the contract.

The successful bidder must furnish performance and payment bonds on the form attached to the Specifications in the amount of 100 percent of the total contract price from a Surety Company approved by the Town of Shelbyville, Texas, or from the State of Texas to act as Surety or other person acceptable to the Town.

All lump sum and unit prices must be stated in both script and figures. The Town reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to waive formalities. In case of ambiguity or lack of clarity in stating the prices in the bids, the Town reserves the right to consider the most advantageous construction thereof, or to reject the bid. The contract will be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder.

Bidders are expected to inspect the site of the work and to inform themselves regarding all local conditions under which the work is to be done. The Contractor shall comply with all State and Federal regulations regarding the conditions of employment, including but not limited to those rules and regulations set forth in the Specifications. A scale of prevailing minimum rates of wages is set forth in the Specifications.

Information for bidders, proposal forms, specifications and plans are on file with the Town Secretary of Shelbyville, Texas, and may be obtained at the office of the Consulting Engineers, Merriman and Barber, 117 N. Front Street, Pampa, Texas.

WHAT GOOD IS ABILITY WITHOUT OPPORTUNITY?
If you meet our exacting qualifications, we offer modern and complete training for a permanent, dignified sales position where ability is recognized and promotions made accordingly. Excellent immediate income. You must have the qualifications: ability to stand a rigid character investigation and, above all, a desire to work towards a successful career.
