Impeachment Move Killed...

Vance Rebukes Young For Prisoner Remark

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)-Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance said today he has chastised U.N. ambassador Andrew Young for his statement that there are "hundreds, perhaps thousands" of U.S. political prisoners, a remark that has touched off a storm of criticism in Washington.

In Washington today, by 293-82, the House killed a resolution proposed by Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., calling for the impeachment of Young.

Vance, in Geneva for arms talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, met with Young Wednesday night and had lunch with him today.

Before the lunch, Vance was asked by a reporter whether he had expressed his displeasure to Young Wednesday night about the remarks. The secretary of state answered, "Yes."

In a British broadcast interview from Geneva, Switzerland, Young also said it was "ridiculous" to focus on his political prisoner remark in the context of a lengthy interview he gave to the Paris Socialist newspaper Le Matin.

In Wednesday's installment, Young compared dissidents on trial in the Soviet Union with U.S. civil rights campaigners and alleged there were "political prisoners" in both countries.

"There are hundreds, perhaps thousands of political prisoners in the United States," he said. He added that there were "likely to be tens of thousands" of political prisoners in the Soviet Union, and also said there was a difference in defining the term "political prisoners."

The remark touched off a storm of criticism in the United States. Young was rebuked by presidential press secretary Jody Powell, who said the ambassador's statement does not reflect U.S. policy. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance reportedly was furious, and the State Department's press spokesman said the department did not agree with Young's statement.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., demanded on the Senate floor that Carter fire Young. Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., moved late Wednesday to debate an impeachment motion in the House but was rebuffed by a vote of 122-51.

Carter To Summit

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Carter headed for West Germany and a seven-nation economic summit today, trying to deflect foreign complaints about U.S. oil imports by pointing to the healthy trade surpluses of other nations.

"We don't expect to solve all the problems of the world, but we expect to leave the summit with renewed commitment...to having a better future for our people," Carter said at a ceremony on the White House south lawn before boarding his helicopter for Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland.

"This is a sober time. It's one of reassessment, not one of discouragement," the president said.

Perjury Suspected

WASHINGTON (AP)-The House ethics committee announced today it has reason to believe four congressmen committed ethics violations in the Korean affair and that two former congressmen "committed perjury."

The committee did not name the two former congressmen but reliable sources said they are former Reps. Nick Galifianakis, D-N.C., and John R. Rarick, D-La.

The committee said those are the only present and former congressmen who warrant further proceedings for taking money from South Korean businessman Tongsun Park, who has been accused of trying to buy influence with U.S. congressmen.

Vance Makes Protest

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)-President Carter sent new criticism of the Soviet dissident trials to President Leonid I. Brezhnev, but Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance gave the protest message to Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in private in an effort to keep the controversy from affecting their nuclear arms negotiations.

Guerrillas OK Plan

UNITED NATIONS (AP)-The black guerrillas fighting in South-West Africa have accepted the Western independence plan for the territory, clearing a major obstacle to the birth of the new nation of Namibia by the end of this year.

South Africa accepted the plan seven weeks ago, and it now goes to the U.N. Security Council.

Prolonged spells of hot weather are blamed for various reactions among human beings, and we figure that starting rumors is one of them. It seems that folks are just naturally more likely to jump at conclusions, especially unpleasant conclusions, when they are uncomfortable already and the blazing sun continues to bear down outside.

Perhaps this was the root of an inquiry we had this week when someone reported that Walls Industries had shut down its sewing plant here.

A phone call quickly put it in the unfounded rumor class. Not only is Walls still operating full blast, but they are still trying to hire people.

"We might hire nearly anybody who walks through the door," said Wanda Wall.

As burglars pick the locks they will lock the unlocked ones as they unlock the locked ones. Clever, huh?

STELLA WHITE
...Green Thumb's oldest

Award Presented By 'Green Thumb'

Texas Green Thumb, an organization for older workers in rural communities, has recognized Stella White as the oldest Green Thumb worker in Scurry County.

Mrs. White serves as clerical help for Vivian Dyer, director of Snyder Day Care Center.

Presenting the award to Mrs. White was Nita Rodriquez, district of Green Thumb.

Mrs. White returned to her native state of Texas in 1977 after living in Colorado. She is the mother of one daughter and says she feels honored to have been one of the first enrolled in the program.

Mrs. Rodriquez said that Texas Green Thumb is sponsored by the Texas Farmers Union and provides part-time work opportunity for older Texans including modification of county and city buildings, public park improvement, home care aides and nutrition aides in meals programs.

Suspects Sought In C-City Slaying

COLORADO CITY—Suspects are being sought in the beating and stabbing death of a 31 year old Colorado City woman, according to Mike Stutts, chief deputy. Arrest warrants were expected to be issued today or tomorrow.

The body of Gurley Ann Williams was found on the site of the Buford Gin north of the city at 11:30 a.m. yesterday. Today Mitchell County sheriff, Bill McGuire, is in Dallas where an autopsy is being performed.

McGuire said that Mrs. Williams' car had been found on State Highway 208 Tuesday afternoon and was towed into town. He said Mrs. Williams had called her oldest daughter who was babysitting at a neighbor's house at 1:30 a.m. Tuesday and told her she was going out. She was not seen nor heard from again, said McGuire.

A gin employee, Henry Castillo, found the body partially hidden in some weeds while he was looking for gin parts. Justice of the peace Mary Lee Moore ruled, "death from stab wounds from persons unknown," and ordered the autopsy.

Mrs. Williams resided on Delaney Drive. She was divorced and the mother of four daughters, Tammy, Angie, Cheryl and Misty, all of the home. She is also survived by her mother, Ada Henderson, and two sisters, Mrs. Janie Pheuffer and Mrs. Rhonda Golden all of Colorado City. A brother preceded her in death earlier this year.

Funeral services are pending at Kiker-Seale Funeral Home.

Polio Is Reported In Mexico

SAN BENITO (AP)-U.S. tourists planning to cross the Rio Grande should be sure their polio immunization is still effective, a county health official here warns.

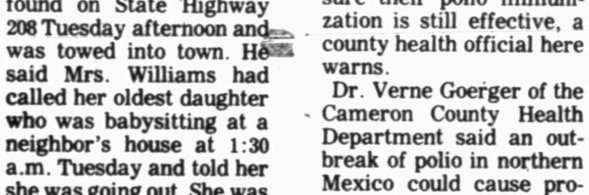

Dr. Verne Goerger of the Cameron County Health Department said an outbreak of polio in northern Mexico could cause problems for tourists.

He said reports from Mexico indicate a "considerable amount" of polio has been reported in that nation's northern sector, and has caused several deaths.

The reports show the outbreak is centered in Tampico, about 250 miles south of Brownsville, Texas.

Goerger said there have been no cases of polio reported in the Rio Grande Valley.

Polio immunization is available from private physicians and public health officials, he said.

Dissidents Sentenced

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet court today slapped a 15-year term of prison and exile on a Lithuanaian dissident as the trials of activists Alexander Ginzgurg and Anatoly Shcharansky drew toward a close.

Ginzburg was sentenced to eight years at hard labor for "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda," a judge announced.

In the Lithuanian capital of Vilnius, the four-day trial Viktoras Pyatkus ended with his conviction on anti-Soviet activity charges. He was sentenced to 10 years in prison and labor camp and five years of Siberian exile, friends of the defendant reported.

The 49-year-old Pyatkus, like Shcharansky and Ginzburg, was a member of the now-decimated "Helsinki' human rights group formed in May 1976 to report alleged Soviet violations of the human rights provisions of the 35-nation Helsinki accords.

All three trials began Monday.

PLANS READIED—Making final arrangements for the 43rd annual Scurry County Rodeo is Bill Zimmerman, president of the rodeo association. This year's rodeo will be held from July 19 to July 22 at the Scurry County Coliseum. Performances begin at 8 o'clock nightly. (SDN Staff Photo)

Ticket Sales Launched For 43rd Scurry Rodeo

Billed as the fastest rodeo in the west, the Scurry County Rodeo begins its 43rd annual run here next Wednesday.

Performances begin Wednesday, July 19, and run through Saturday, July 22, at the Scurry County Coliseum. Showtime is 8 o'clock each evening.

Ticket sales began this afternoon at the coliseum. Tickets will also be sold at the door during the performances, rodeo officials said. Tickets are priced at $3 and $4.

Launching this year's rodeo will be a parade held about 5 p.m. Floats and other parade entries will assemble on Ave. Z south of 26th St., said Dorothy Taylor, parade chairman.

Horse units, she said, will assemble on West 30th St., The top four parade entries will be awarded prizes by the Scurry County Rodeo Association, she added.

Bill Zimmerman, president of the association, called the Scurry County Rodeo one of the largest amateur rodeos in the country.

"This year," he said, "there will be nearly $28,000 total prize money."

The competition, he added, will feature calf roping, bull riding, bareback riding, open saddle riding, barrel racing, and team roping.

For children, Zimmerman said, there will be a junior goat sacking contest. For general entertainment there will also be a wild cow milking contest.

"The wild cow milking will be held on a first come, first served basis," he noted. "What they'll do is turn several cows out in the arena and that many cowboys."

Rodeo announcer will be Jim Miller, now of Rapid City, S.D., but formerly of the Scurry and Borden County area. Stock producer will be Smokey Davis of Houston.

Entertainment will be provided by Hoyle Nix and his band. Dances will be held each night following the rodeo performances.

Contestants have until 5 p.m. July 18 to pay their entry fees, Zimmerman said.

More information about the rodeo may be obtained by calling the rodeo office at the coliseum at 573-8952.

Water Consumption Zooms To Record

The prolonged spell of hot, dry weather has resulted in records for the City of Snyder's water department.

The water treatment plant hit an all-time record in production on July 8 when 6,094,000 gallons went through the plant. This high mark was in the midst of a series of days when the plant's previous record was exceeded.

The all-time flow rate for the city water system also has been set this month. This occurred on July 6 and July 7 when the flow rate reached 7,600,000 gallons per day.

City Engineer Jim Dower said that the greatest volume of water treated in a single day prior to this year was 4,610,000 gallons on June 1, 1976. The previous high peak flow rate was 6,400,000 gallons per day on July 19, 1977.

The volume of water treated in the plant exceeded the five-million-gallon mark on June 25 when the total reached 5,214,000 gallons. It was above five million gallons again on July 6, July 7 and July 9, as well as the July 8 when the all-time record was set.

The peak flow rate has consistently exceeded six million gallons this month and three times has gone over the seven million gallon mark.

line must be drawn

No consideration in the dispute between Attorney General Griffin Bell and a New York Federal Judge over the confidentiality of Department of Justice files is quite so apparent as urgency of the need for putting an end to the open season on investigative officials and agencies of the Federal Government.

In this instance the Attorney General has been cited for contempt for refusing to disclose to attorneys for the Socialist Workers Party information gathered by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The action is a suit for damages which has only incidental relation to the original inquiry.

Bell refused to comply with the order, claiming that to do so would be in violation of pledges made in order to obtain information essential to investigation in national security cases.

For the time being possibility that a member of the President's Cabinet might go to jail has been averted. A Federal Court of Appeals suspended the order until it can review proceedings that led to the contempt citation. Considered likely is an agreement satisfactory to contending parties that will rule out the possibility of constitutional crisis.

Plain for any observer to see is that somewhere a line must be drawn that will avoid repetition of incidents of this nature. Evidence thus far made public amply justifies the position taken by Attorney General Bell. If FBI and CIA files must be opened to attorneys seeking evidence that might be of value in court action totally unrelated to the national interest, we would do well to take the Federal Government out of the business of gathering information.

At some point a limit must be placed on opening files of such agencies as the FBI and CIA to inspection of any person asserting an interest in their contents.

If it becomes necessary, in order to establish this principle, Attorney General Bell would be rendering a significant public service by going to jail. Sensible limitations must be placed on the availability of certain types of information a government must have in order to fulfill its function of defending the people against national enemies.

The present might be a good time to test the question.

"I've found a way to survive — she loves government regulations, and goat milk is good for the ulcers they give me."

dose of own medicine

In the wake of a recent Supreme Court decision requiring the Occupational Safety and Health Administration to obtain court orders for private plant inspections, OSHA has decided belatedly to investigate its sister agencies of the federal government.

OSHA wants presidential authority to inspect conditions at government work places—authority that would not require a search warrant.

OSHA says government agencies are among the worst violators of health and safety standards, with losses due to work-related sickness and injuries totaling about $5 billion a year.

Under present regulations, each agency is supposed to conduct its own job safety program. Obviously, much is left to be desired. As OSHA noted in a recent report to Congress, a majority of the agencies "showed a pattern of unresponsiveness."

While we often have been dismayed by OSHA's guidelines and practices, we believe it is on to something big in going after negligent federal work practices.

Why should government agencies escape the sometimes overzealous scrutiny directed heretofore only at private interests. Don't civil servants also require protection from unsafe and unhealthy conditions?

A dose of the government's own medicine might help cure some serious occupational maladies and give certain bureaucrats a taste of life as it is on the outside.

There is one drawback. Once again the taxpayers will foot all bills ... for inspection, haranguing and compliance.

energy dangers

Which of all the alternative energy sources now under consideration would you guess is the least dangerous?

Which poses the least hazard to your safety and your health: wind energy, the tides, geothermal steam, nuclear energy, solar energy?

This will surprise you: More people are likely to be hurt or killed by solar energy than by nuclear energy.

Shortsighted protesters have been picketing nuclear power projects, assuming these to constitute the greatest danger. Wait'll they hear from Dr. Herbert Inhaber, scientific adviser to the Atomic Energy Control Board of Canada.

In the generation of electricity by atomic energy--and 10-11 percent of all our nation's electricity is now generated that way--nobody has been killed.

However, the hazard from a solar panel perched on your roof for the purpose of collecting sunlight is considerable.

I have always thought it unfortunate that the atomic age began with an exploding bomb.

I dare say that if we had first been introduced to electricity by an electric chair, we'd be scared to plug anything into that wall socket.

Dr. Inhaber says, "We must not judge the relative risk of an energy system merely by its size of fearsome appearance. What we must focus on is the 'relative risk per unit of energy produced."

In the 1976 Annual Review of Energy, authors Comar and Sagan reported that when they had added up the risk factors and the energy output of each technology, nuclear power has a substantially lower risk factor than either coal or oil.

And other studies before and since confirm this.

Now about the so-called "soft technologies"--solar, wind, ocean thermal, methanol, geothermal and the others--how do they compare? You'll be surprised.

When you take the total of man-days lost to workers due to deaths, injuries or disease related to their jobs, the safest is electricity made from natural gas. The next safest is nuclear energy.

The most hazardous are coal and oil, 400 times more dangerous than gas!

And hear this--because of the comparatively immense amount and complexity of materials and labor required to produce the same quantity of energy, the most hazardous of energy occupations include solar and wind.

Not from a flying windmill blade or from falling off the roof but because each of these involves mining of raw materials and fabricating them.

To trust our intuition in evaluating potential hazards could cause us to back away from systems which appear frightening--into systems which really are.

by john long

The Department of Transportation says increasing number of Americans are ignoring the 55 mile-an-hour speed limit and are dying as a result of it.

The Department said that 45,523 people were killed in traffic accidents in 1976, and that 47,671 were killed in 1977.

Although I have not worked any lately, I have been at the scenes of several traffic accidents in which fatalities were involved. What always upset me was the absolute waste of human potential.

I can accept the death of an elderly person. It is the needless death of a young person that I find so distressing.

All the wrecks I ever attended could have been avoided if a little more care had been exercised. Most of the wrecks, I think, was caused by excessive speed. A few were caused by too much alcohol.

When I was younger I took no special interest in wrecks or their causes. It is only after I personally covered a few roadside disasters that I began to take notice.

When one sees the consequences of the mistakes commited by others, I believe he tries to avoid similar mistakes.

I for example, never drive while intoxicated. I used to sometimes when I was younger, but I was never caught. Even though I still drink, I don't drink and drive.

Then, too, when I leave the city limits, I almost always wear my seat belt.

The little advantages posed by taking even simple precautions can add up in the long run.

One thing that raises my ire is the mass production of defective cars.

The various auto makers have had to recall millions of cars to correct defects that should have never been permitted in the first place.

To mass produce a product that has not been thoroughly tested should be a crime.

Congress Urged To Set Example

WASHINGTON (AP)- House cuts could keep this year's federal spending $1.9 billion under congressional estimates, but only if guidelines for pending money legislation are not exceeded.

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said Tuesday it is up to Congress to set an anti-inflationary example. Congress originally estimated spending for the financial year at $496.9 billion.

Public television, for most of its quarter century of existence, has not been a big winner with the public.

Viewers overwhelmingly have preferred tuning in on the commercial stations, to whose common denominator of mediocrity public TV has sought to make of itself a quality alternative.

In working toward that goal, it has had to work around a number of serious handicaps.

Its stations, about a third the number of the commercial outlets, are concentrated in the ultra high frequency range and thus less accessible to the mass viewing audience. It is a loosely organized chain of largely weak links, a few well-equipped metropolitan units but many more smaller stations operating often at a bare-subsistence level. Its financial resources have been limited and uncertain.

Much of this is true of public television today. But so is something else: In the past several years, it has made rapid strides in attracting attention and a public.

As noted by the newly installed chairman of the Public Broadcasting Service, Newton N. Minow, public television has never been more visible and expectations of it have never been higher.

Newton, it may be recalled, shook up the industry back in the early Sixties when, as chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, he surveyed commercial programming and declared it a "vast wasteland."

Nothing much has happened in the years since to challenge that evaluation. but a great public deal has been happening in public TV.

It has gotten its organizational and financial acts together, in the PBS itself and the federally authorized Corporation for Public Broadcasting, set up in 1967. Government funds now account for 28 percent of financing. Private contributions are also up - sevenfold over 1970. Some two million individuals and families currently are contributing some $50 million annually.

And it has been making available to the TV public programming that is both quality and popular. British imports have contributed heavily to this development, but increasingly ambitious efforts are also coming from public television's own studios. Its successes have begun to influence commercial programming, at least in standards of quality, to no small degree.

Minow sees problems in this newfound strength, particularly in dependence on government funds as a potential threat to public television's independence. To be certain that the "delicate, always fragile barrier" separating assistance from control is maintained, public television must remain ultrasensitive to the slightest hint of interference in programming.

But he sees strength in the absence of dependence on mass audiences, paradoxically at the very time a large audience is developing. Because public TV is free from the "ratings chases," he believes, it has the freedom and time to sit back and think and to carry a worthwhile project through to completion.

Public television is still no threat to the networks for domination of viewers' screens. Its budget, while vastly improved over just a few years back, is still only seven percent of commercial television expenditures. But there is no questioning its definite and growing influence on the entire industry.

And it is interesting and very possibly will be of significance that at this very time its direction is being assumed by an individual whose judgement of the programming performance of that industry remains definitive.

As Minow sees the public role in television today:

"The only product we have to push is quality."

questions posed

NEW YORK (AP)—Will the great American buy-on-credit boom continue, and what will a continued boom mean for the economy.

Those are questions economists at Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. are posing as consumer installment credit keeps on surging.

According to the Federal Reserve, consumer debt - loans for cars, appliances and other items, and charges on credit-card accounts - rose to $227.6 billion in May. That's 18 percent ahead of last year's level and a whopping 2,745 percent above the total consumer credit outstanding at the end of 1948.

Why the increase? According to George Cruikshank, an economist at the New York bank, Americans after World War II "plunged into debt to satisfy pent-up demands for consumer goods." By the 1950s, buying leveled off, but "the first half of the 1960s saw a renewed upswing in installment debt, spurred by increasing acceptance of the use of credit for a variety of purposes."

Cruikshank, in a new report attributes the credit boom to a change in attitudes "as the older generation, sorely tested by the Great Depression and somewhat cautious about debt, gave way to a generation more disposed to its use."

Much of the debt increase has come through new-car loans. Automakers are reporting robust sales this summer, and many of the cars are bought on credit. While a two-year car loan was the norm 25 years ago, auto loans now last for up to four years. This means consumers can spread out purchases of increasingly expensive cars over longer periods, but it also means increased loan costs.

Quite a few economists - including the pollsters at the University of Michigan's Survey Research Center - believe the current retail sales growth is being fueled in part by consumers buying now to beat the almost inevitable price increases later.

This means added debts, and Cruikshank notes "a nagging question is being heard."

The Morgan Guaranty economist says, "over the years American consumers have demonstrated a remarkable ability to control their appetite for on-the-cuff purchases. When families have found their paychecks pinched by payments for past purchases they have eased up on acquiring added installment debt burdens."

Cruikshank believes we may have reached that point. Traditional measures of installment debt indicate "unless things fly in the face of everything consumers have done in the past, the time is approaching . . . when consumers will moderate spending and debt additions."

Based on past indicators, the downturn should be moderate rather than severe, Cruikshank says. One possible reason for this is the historical relationship of consumers' liquid assets - cash and bank accounts - to total liabilities, which has changed little since 1961 despite numerous economic ups and downs. This indicates that savings and debts have increased television's own studios. Its successes have begun to influence commercial programming, at least in facts on profits

WASHINGTON, D.C.--Corporations are people. They are formed by groups or individuals to do business through a Board of Directors, accountable to stockholders. There are many different kinds of corporate organizations. Basically, they issue stock to acquire capital for plants, machinery or other equipment used in the production of goods or services. Capital used to build facilities comes from the sale of stocks or bonds and the dividends paid to stock owners come from profits.

Probably the question of corporate profits is generally more misunderstood than most issues in the American economy.

Opinion surveys indicate that most Americans think the rate of business profit is outrageously high. A sampling by the Gallup Poll a few years ago among high school students showed that they thought profits to 30 percent of each sales dollar. The same survey among college students thought the figure was 45 percent. In the general public, the average guessed was a more modest 28 percent, while stockholders put the margin at 23 percent.

In the last several years, there has arisen an apparent distrust of corporation interests because of what has been considered "obscene profits", a term used by business attackers. This concept has been used and successfully exploited by opponents of the profit system, which is to say free enterprise.

In a recently published study by the education and research institute, it says in its forward, "Public perception of corporate profits have become less and less accurate over the years. The estimate of profits in 1970 was 7 times the actual figure." The closest guess was in 1945 when profits were estimated at 3½ times the real level. The recent study completed in 1975 turned up an average opinion that profits amounted to 34 cents on each sales dollar. Economic analysts find this to be about 7½ times the actual figure.

The wide-spread belief that corporation profits are exorbitant spawns resentment towards the business community, leading many to accept legislative proposals to impose more controls. The polls indicate that almost one-third of our population believe that Government should step in to control profit margins. In questions to high school students, 53 percent are reported to say that Government ownership of business would be advisable.

An effort has been undertaken by the law and economics center at the University of Miami to more accurately define and identify corporate operations. It has produced what it calls a "Corporate Issues Source Book" contributed to by more than thirty law and economic authorities. This book refutes a host of misconceptions about the corporation and our business system with emphasis on the question of profits. The conclusion is that by every known index, profits have been going down in recent years. It finds that, as a percentage of receipts, profits for manufacturing corporations for the past ten years or so have hovered at about 4 to 5 percent--not 45 or 30 percent. This is down from a rate of 7.1 percent in 1950, the peak of profits following the post World War II boom.

After paying taxes, the earnings of most corporations are split roughly half and half between dividends and re-investments. Corporations pay taxes--provide jobs--the holders of which pay taxes and this is, essentially, our business system.

Just Peachy Summer Desserts

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Make the most of fresh fruits as they come into season in your area.

If you go to a pick-your-own farm, take only the amount you will consume while the fruit is of good quality.

Remember that fruit is highly perishable. Keep ripe fruit from rotting by refrigerating it in the vegetable compartment of your refrigerator at temperatures between 32 and 45 degrees. Do not wash fruit until you are ready to eat it out-of-hand or add it to a favorite recipe.

Nothing perks up summer appetites more than homemade ice cream and shortcake. As peaches come into season, select the ripest ones for a fresh peach ice cream or fresh peach shortcake. Forget your diet!

FRESH PEACH ICE CREAM

- 2½ cups (2 lbs.) mashed peeled fresh peaches
- 1½ cups sugar, divided
- 1½ tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 teaspoon almond extract
- 2½ tablespoons flour
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 3 eggs, slightly beaten
- 2½ cups milk
- 2 cups heavy cream
- Crushed ice
- Rock salt

In large bowl, mix mashed peaches with ½ cup sugar, lemon juice, vanilla and almond extract. Set aside.

In large saucepan, mix together flour, remaining 1 cup sugar and salt. Stir in eggs. Scald milk and gradually stir into egg mixture. Place over low heat and stir constantly until mixture thickens enough to coat a spoon. Remove from heat and cool.

Stir in heavy cream and prepared peach mixture. Pour into can of electric ice cream freezer. Insert dasher. Place can in freezer container. Layer crushed ice and rock salt in freezer around container according to directions for freezer. Follow manufacturer's directions for freezing ice cream.

To ripen ice cream, turn into plastic containers or bowls. Cover and freeze 2 hours. Serve with sliced peaches. Makes 2 quarts.

FRESH PEACH SHORTCAKE

- 3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 3½ teaspoons baking powder
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup shortening
- 1 egg, well beaten
- ½ cup milk
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted

Sift together flour, baking powder, sugar and salt. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add egg and milk. Mix with a fork to form a soft dough.

On a floured board, knead dough 20 times. Divide in half. Pat one half into a greased 8-inch round layer cake pan. Spread with melted butter. Pat remaining dough over top.

Bake in 450-degree oven for 30 minutes, until golden brown. While biscuit is baking, prepare peaches for filling. Cool biscuit 5-to-10 minutes and separate biscuit layers with a fork.

Filling

- 4 cups sliced fresh peaches
- ½ cup sugar, divided
- 2 cups heavy cream
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

The Professor started his play just the way anyone else would. He took dummy's ace of hearts, led the 10 of spades and paused to think before going further. He had started with four apparent losers and now the bad trump break had increased the number to five.

Then the Professor remarked, "Maybe this cloud has a silver lining." He played his spade ace.

He cashed his king of trumps and ace of clubs. Then he led a club to dummy's king, cashed dummy's ace of diamonds and threw West in with the jack of hearts.

West took his high trump and was left with nothing but hearts. He had to lead one. South could get a ruff and a discard but that wasn't enough. Instead South discarded the last club from dummy and a diamond from his own hand. West had to lead another heart. This time the Professor ruffed in dummy while discarding his last diamond.

He had lost just three tricks and had no losers left since he could trump his one remaining club with dummy's last trump.

Over-The-Counter Drugs Affect Nutrition

By Gaynor Maddox

Recent surveys indicate that taking many prescription and over-the-counter drugs can affect our absorption of nutrients from food. On the other side of the coin, the effectiveness of drugs can be altered by the foods we eat.

"Certain drugs can reduce food intake because they cause a loss of appetite, have a sedative effect or cause nausea after food is eaten," reports Daphne A. Roe, professor of nutrition at Cornell University, in a recent issue of "Contemporary Nutrition."

Roe cites amphetamines, sometimes prescribed for treatment or control of obesity, as one such appetite-reducing drug. She fears amphetamines and other drugs may harm patients already eating only marginally nutritious diets.

"For example," she notes, "I found vitamin deficiency diseases in elderly nursing home patients who were taking several different drugs."

Some drugs — including certain prescription medicines, antacids, mineral oils and other laxatives — interfere with the body's ability to absorb nutrients, she says.

"Some persons who frequently take antacids develop vitamin D deficiency," says Roe. When the problem occurs, they are simply advised to increase their intake of the vitamin.

Multiple nutrient deficiencies as well as loss of potassium from the body can result from excessive use of laxatives containing phenolphthalein, Roe continues.

And users of oral contraceptives, she adds, may have increased needs for several nutrients, including folic acid, riboflavin, vitamin B-6 and vitamin C.

"However," says Roe, "no nutritional deficiencies have been reported due to the use of oral contraceptives alone." In fact, some users of birth control pills actually show an increase in the amounts of certain nutrients, including vitamin A, in their blood.

Who runs the greatest risk of drug-related nutrition problems? According to Roe, the most frequent victims are "long-term drug users who are already at a nutritional risk because of a defective diet, chronic disease, alcohol abuse or physiological stress."

Just as drugs can affect food absorption, drug absorption can be affected by certain foods, food components or eating patterns.

"When drugs, such as aspirin and some sulfa drugs, are taken at the same time as food, their effect is delayed," says Roe. And such drugs as penicillin and tetracycline may lose some effectiveness if taken at mealtime because they may not be totally absorbed in to the system.

Roe claims we have been slow to recognize the relationship between drugs and diet. "Nutrient requirements of persons receiving certain drugs over long periods of time are different from those of people not on these drugs," she concludes, "but unfortunately this fact is not yet generally appreciated."

Roe advises consulting one's physician about possible interactions between food and any prescribed or over-the-counter drug before the risk of nutritional deficiency can occur.

Bennett, Papp To Try Again

NEW YORK (AP)-The unconventional proved so successful the last time, that Michael Bennett and Joseph Papp will try it again.

Their last collaboration generated the musical, "A Chorus Line." Papp - Broadway's busiest producer - announced Wednesday that choreographer Bennett's untitled new project goes into workshop preparation July 24, at Papp's Public Theater.

"That environment," Bennett said, "is the most conducive to creative work that I have encountered in my career." In contrast to the usual way of putting a production together, "A Chorus Line" evolved after almost a year of collaboration and testing by actors, dancers, singers, producer and director.

Bennett's new idea derives from "Queen of the Stardust Ballroom."

Ma Bell Seeks Delay On Rate Hike Decision

AUSTIN (AP)-Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., which has been waiting since March for a decision on its $214.3 million rate hike request, now wants to delay a decision even longer.

The phone company said it wanted the extra time to make sure some of the expenses filed to justify the proposed rate hike are valid.

Southwestern Bell said the questionable expenses were brought to light by information from the U.S. Attorney's Office in Dallas, but the company did not elaborate.

"If facts show that any expenses claimed in our rate case were inappropriate, we will go before the commission and urge that they be disallowed," said Bell attorney Jon Dee Lawrence.

"The sole purpose of this requested delay is to give us time to determine the relevant facts," said Lawrence. He said Bell needed several days.

In Dallas, Assistant U.S. Attorney James Rolfe said, "Southwestern Bell was a victim in a matter we're looking at. It involves their expenses. There was a discrepency in their application for rates they found out was the result of something that had been perpetrated against them without their knowledge." He declined to elaborate.

The Texas Public Utility Commission received Bell's rate hike request March 9, and was facing a Friday deadline to release a ruling.

Then, in a surprise move, Bell took the pressure off the three-member commission and asked state officials for a further postponement "to protect the public."

Lawrence said the expenses in question "appear to be minor...but we feel it would be inappropriate for the commission to issue the final order until we can assure ourselves and the commission that all expenses we claimed are completely valid."

In Austin, PUC Commissioner Alan Erwin said he would want to know exactly what the questionable expenses were, but he said in the meantime it meant the commission can relax on rate question.

"I'm more than happy to delay an increase," Erwin said. "What we want, at least what I want, is a thorough explanation of what expenses are involved. And it looks like that kind of information should have to come from the U.S. attorney."

The $214.3 million rate hike request is the second Bell has submitted since the PUC took over statewide regulatory control of the phone company's rates two years ago.

In its first dealing with Bell, the PUC trimmed Bell's requested $230.8 million hike to $57.8 million in a December 1976 ruling. The phone company has appealed that ruling, and the appeal is now being considered by the Texas Supreme Court.

Rate Hike Suspended

AUSTIN (AP)-A rate hike proposed by High Plains Natural Gas Co. in eight Panhandle communities was suspended Monday by the Texas Railroad Commission.

The 120-day suspension was ordered until a hearing is conducted to determine if the rates are fair. A hearing date was not set, but gas utilities director Joseph J. Piotrowski Jr. said it would probably be in late August.

Approximately 2,350 residential and commercial customers would be affected in the towns of Spearman, Perryton, Booker, Canadian, Higgins, Mobeetie, Lipscomb and Wheeler.

New rates for a gas bill of 10 mcf thousand cubic feet of gas would increase from $13.85 to $16.82.

Ira Grad Gets $6,000 Award

SAN ANTONIO--Frederick Wayne Kesner, an outstanding Ira FFA member, today received a four-year, $6,000 college scholarship from the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo.

FRED KESNER

Fred, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald L. Kesner, is a recent honor graduate of Ira High School. A member of FFA for four years, he holds the Chapter Farmer Degree. He has served his chapter as reporter and vice president and has been a delegate to the state convention. He has participated on the chapter conducting and dairy cattle judging teams.

While in high school, he was an outstanding athlete and was elected as captain of the football and basketball teams. The highest ranking boy in his graduating class, he was selected for inclusion in Who's Who Among American High School Students. He frequently entered in persuasive speaking contests, winning third place in state wide competition. He has also successfully competed in University Interscholastic League contests in acting, slide rule and number sense. He has been named as a member of the All Star Cast, in district one-act play competition. A past president of the student body in high school, he was awarded the Kiwanis Club Outstanding Youth Award.

Kesner who plans to major in animal science preparatory to a career as a veterinarian, was one of 50 recipients of Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo scholarships presented at the state FFA convention.

The show, which also presented 50 four-year, $6,000 scholarships to 4-H Club members during the State 4-H Roundup in June, this year became the largest donor of agricultural scholarships in the United States. During the coming school year, the show will have 245 students, representing a commitment of $1.24 million, on scholarships in Texas colleges and universities.

The winners, carefully selected from hundreds of applicants, are the best in the state from the standpoints of academics and leadership. The only requirements made of the students are that they major in some form of agriculture at a college or university within the confines of the state.

While the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo makes available the funds for the scholarships, it does not select the winners. The evaluation of applicants and final selection of the FFA winners is carried out by the appropriate personnel of the Texas Education Agency.

AL West Race Still Far From Settled At Season Mid-Point

Boston's Sox Sitting Pretty

By DICK BRAUDE
AP Sports Writer

The Boston Red Sox are sitting pretty in the American League East. But out West, the pennant contenders can't seem to sit up without falling down.

The All-Star Game is now part of baseball lore and AL begins the 1978 season's second half with two big questions:

Can anyone stop the Red Sox. And can any AL team west of the Mississippi start?

The AL East was supposed to be the usual dog fight between heavy hitting Boston and the pitching-rich New York Yankees.

Bolstered by additions to the pitching corps, including ex-Yankees free agent Mike Torrez and Dennis Eckersley, the Red Sox have won 57 games, tops in the major leagues. And the .283 team batting average, 101 home runs and 420 RBI are best in the AL.

The Yankees have fallen 11½ games behind with an injury riddled mound corps and mediocre hitting.

In fact, the defending World Series champions aren't even in second place. That spot currently belongs to the upstart Milwaukee Brewers who have surprised even their rookie manager, George Bamberger, with 48-35 record, nine games behind Boston.

The usually tenacious Baltimore Orioles climbed from the depths in June, then dropped right back - 13 games behind - after being thrashed by Boston and the basement-bound Toronto Blue Jays.

The young Detroit Tigers started fast, then dipped back to .500 and are keeping company with the Cleveland Indians in the lower reaches while awaiting pitcher Mark Fidrych's comeback.

But in the AL West, defending champion Kansas City has found itself hog tied by a batch of teams that can't worm more than a handful of games above .500.

The California Angels, laden with free agents, are on top with a 46-40 mark. But they're only one game ahead of the Royals, 2½ in front of the Texas Rangers and 3½ ahead of Charlie Finley's latest collection of unknowns who wear Oakland A's uniforms.

In fact, with Rod Carew and Mike Cubbage first and third in the batting race, the Minnesota Twins have used solid hitting to stay only 4½ games behind despite being three games below .500.

Even the Chicago White Sox rate an outside chance with a 38-46 mark. New Manager Larry Doby's club is in sixth place, a mere seven games back.

The only safe bet out west is that the Seattle Mariners will not make up 17 games and win the division.

A riskier wager: The Red Sox will not fold in the East.

Phils, Dodgers Looking Good

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

Half of the 1978 major league baseball season is gone and if you believe in quality, balance and depth as the ingredients of a winner, the Los Angeles Dodgers will open the National playoffs in October against the Philadelphia Phillies in Philadelphia.

The Phillies are 4½ games in front of the Chicago Cubs in the NL East as the second half of the season starts today, and Manager Danny Ozark's team really hasn't played that well. But they figure to turn it on in these final 2½ months and win the East for the third consecutive year.

Los Angeles trails the surprising San Francisco Giants by two games and holds just a one-game advantage over the tough third-place Cincinnati Reds. But the Dodgers, like the Phillies, are just starting to come on. The Giants show signs of slipping, and the Reds are still fraught with pitching problems.

The East could be a romp for the Phillies. The Dodgers figure in a down-to-wire race with the Giants and Reds - maybe just the Reds if San Francisco discovers that over a 162-game schedule it takes more than just superior pitching to get the job done.

In the East, while the Cubs are second, Manager Herman Franks' club appears to lack the starting pitching and hitting to really challenge Philadelphia. If the Phillies are to be caught, it probably will be Pittsburgh and Montreal who will make the chase. The New York Mets and St. Louis Cardinals appear nothing more than potential spoilers if things get rough at the top in September.

And after the Giants, Dodgers and Reds, San Diego, Atlanta and Houston also have the look of also-rans and not bona fide contenders. The Padres are improved but seem to lack the consistent attack and the solid pitching it takes to be a champion. Atlanta and Houston still are building.

Ironically, the Phillies have the same record now as they did at the halfway mark last year but haven't played nearly as well. Who would have predicted that with 81 games gone, Mike Schmidt would be hitting .247, Greg Luzinski .243 and Steve Carlton 9-8 and Larry Christneson 6-8 would have lost more collectively than they have won. Rich Hebner also has been no ball of fire at the plate.

"If someone had told me in spring training that we would be in first place hitting the way we have, I'd have thought he was crazy," Ozark admitted.

The Phils team batting average is down 12 points from mid-season last year, home runs down 18 percent, runs down 52 after 81 games in 1977. If the Phils had played to their potential the East race would now be over.

But the Phillies have the quality and, perhaps more important, the depth to run away from the field in the last 81 contests.

The Philadelphia bullpen has been little short of sensational, winning 14, losing 4, saving 17.

ADVANCE TO SEMIFINALS--Several youngsters on the West Texas PGA Junior Golf Tour advanced to the semifinals in a round played Wednesday at Western Texas College. PGA Juniors Play At WTC

Mike White of Brownwood shot a 77 to pace the 16-18 year old age group in the West Texas PGA Junior Tour stop Wednesday on the Western Texas College golf course.

Kyle Chandler of Odessa and Robert Upham of Midland tied for second with 78, with Chandler winning in a playoff.

There also was a playoff for top honors in the 14-15 age group, with Roy Dunn of Odessa winning over Lewis Wilks of Sweetwater after both had shot a 78. Gary High of Sweetwater was third with 81.

Cole Thompson of Abilene had a 77 to take first in the 12-13 age group. Kyle Coody, also of Abilene and son of the well-known touring pro, Charles Coody, was second with an 81, and Bob Estes of Abilene was third with an 83.

The Junior PGA tour moves to the Snyder Country Club for another stop here today.

Lopez Hoping To Begin New Streak

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP)- Nancy Lopez has reconquered her nerves and concentration.

That has to spell bad news for her 92 professional rivals and five amateurs in the $85,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament starting here Friday.

The last time the 21-year-old whiz took a week off, she won her first major title, the LPGA Championship in June.

She makes no predictions she will launch another record five-victory streak, but warned: "I came to win - even if it is a warmup for the U.S. Open."

Skeptics question her strategy of playing in this regular tour stop with women's golf's most prestigious championship only a week away at the Country Club of Indianapolis.

But Lopez has her reasons for playing in the 54-hole event at Riviera Country Club.

"I could have taken this week off," said the former Tulsa University collegiate star, who skipped the Wheeling, W.Va., tournament last week, "but I wanted to warm up for the Open. I'd love to get another streak going. It takes a lot,"

Still, it's a rested, smiling Lopez again that is playing the tour, a marked changed from the edgy superstar that charged into the golf record book.

Once Lopez seized that fifth straight triumph and golf's all-time rookie money winning record at Rochester three weeks ago, the pressure was unbearable.

"Those last two weeks Rochester, N.Y. and Hershey, Pa. were the longest two I have spent on tour. I was exhausted. I was concentrating so hard I had been getting headaches. Little things were bothering me, too," she said.

Mike Renfro Singled Out For Praise

SAN ANGELO (AP)- Houston Oiler Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips singled out wide receiver Mike Renfro of Fort Worth for his good work during the first week of workouts on the Angelo State campus.

Phillips said Wednesday he was pleased with the progress of the rookie from Texas Christian University.

He also said Willie Phea of Brownwood, Texas, although going through practice as a wide receiver, might reconvert to a running back. Phea was a running back at Howard Payne University.

The two-day practices will continue for another three weeks with veterans scheduled to arrive July 21 to begin preparations for the preseason opener Aug. 5 in the Astrodome against Denver.

An Oiler spokesman said the approximately 56 players participating in contact drills and the coaching staff were bearing up well under the 100-plus degree temperatures because the humidity was quite low.

Two minor injuries were reported Wednesday. Running back Reggie Rogers pulled a leg muscle, and draft choice J.C. Wilson hurt his foot slightly.

The Chicago Bears selected defensive end Mekeli Leremia of Brigham Young in the 1978 draft. Leremia, a native of Samoa, is now an elder in the Mormon Church.

Old Course Taking Toll

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)-After 400 years, golfers don't find the old course at St. Andrews any easier.

The bumps and the bunkers made monkeys out of some of the world's top professional stars when the British Open championship started Wednesday. And they gave Isao Aoki of Japan, the first-round leader, a headache.

Two players out of three on the long first day went over par at the notorious 17th, called the "Road Hole." Almost half the field failed to score regulation figures at Nos. 2 and 13, the holes with the most difficult bunkers.

"I really do have a headache," Aoki said, putting a hand to his forehead after posting a 4-under-par 68 in the early, windless part of the day.

"You have to use your brain a lot, thinking it all out and deciding how to avoid those bunkers."

At the fiendish 17th, many players sent their second shots through the green and down the slope on to the road, where traffic had been shut down for the occasion.

Gary Player made the no-blast attempt to recoup. From a patch of dirt on the edge of the road, he rolled a putt up the hill and came to within two inches of holing it.

Others, like Tom Weiskopf and Jack Nicklaus, came to grief at the 17th by approaching it too cautiously and trying to avoid overruning the green. Weiskopf's second shot landed in knee-deep rough, and Nicklaus 3-putted from 35 feet.

The road hold used to be a par-5, but for the current champions, officials made it a par-4.

"You play it for 4½ if you have any sense," said Nicklaus, who won the second of his two British Open titles at St. Andrews in 1970.

Fiance's Reticence Makes Her Wonder

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old woman keeping company with a 32-year-old man whom I've known for almost a year. (I'll call him Roland.) We are planning to marry as soon as he locates in a nearby city. (He's a professional person with a promising career.)

I have never been promiscuous, but I did succumb at age 16, and fortunately escaped becoming pregnant.

I became engaged at 20 and had a brief sexual relationship, but we broke up when I discovered that my fiance was a compulsive gambler.

My problem: Roland has never indicated by word or action that he would like to sleep with me. I would willingly agree, but I can't bring myself to lead the way. I am really concerned over his lack of interest in sex.

I'm no sex maniac, but I think a compatible sex relationship is essential to a good marriage.

What should I do?

CONCERNED IN COLUMBUS

DEAR CONCERNED: Have a frank talk with Roland. Ask him if he's indifferent about sex in general, or just with you. Also find out if he has refrained from mentioning the subject because he's saving himself until after the wedding—or if, perchance, there's another reason.

DEAR ABBY: My husband had an affair with a young woman at work, but it's supposed to be over now. I forgave him because I love him very much and we have children who need a father.

During the affair, his girlfriend gave him an I.D. bracelet and a cigarette lighter. He still wears the bracelet and carries the lighter even though I've asked him to give them back to her. He says he's keeping them because he likes them—not because she gave them to him.

Am I being foolish for insisting that he give these things back to her? Every time I see the gifts she gave him, I feel uneasy.

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You have a right to insist that he either return the gifts or put them away where you won't have to look at them. And since he claims it's the jewelry he likes, and not "her," suggest that he replace those articles himself. Or you could offer to replace them.

DEAR ABBY: I am 12 years old, and my scout troop recently made a visit to a nursing home to cheer up the old folks there. We made some colorful paper flowers beforehand, and we sang some songs to entertain the old people.

Abby, you wouldn't believe how hungry those old folks were for company. The first lady I handed a flower to, gave it back to me, saying she didn't have any money to buy it. Then I told her it was free, and her face lit up and she took such a long time trying to decide which color to take. I got the feeling that she was trying to detain me just to have somebody to talk to for a while longer.

I can't tell you how much our visit was appreciated. When we drove off, we could see the folks looking through the windows and holding on to their paper flowers.

Please put something in your column to get people to visit their local nursing homes, whether they have somebody there or not. They are all somebody's grandmothers and grandfathers and they are human, too.

GIRL SCOUT

DEAR SCOUT: Bless you for writing. And those of you out there who are interested in visiting nursing homes to cheer up the residents should telephone first and make arrangements with the staff.

Regulations Too Costly...

TESCO Postponing Two Lignite Plants

Texas Electric Service Co. is postponing construction of two planned lignite coal-fired generating units for two years each, the company announced today.

Inflation and massive over-regulation by the federal bureaucracy have increased the estimated construction costs for the two units substantially, TESCO President W.G. Marquardt said, and rate increases the company has been granted haven't been adequate to meet these rising costs.

The lignite units being delayed are the fourth unit at the Martin Lake plant near Henderson and the single-unit Forest Grove plant near Athens.

The two 750,000-kilowatt plants will be built jointly by Texas Electric and its sister companies in the Texas Utilities system, Dallas Power & Light and Texas Power & Light. TESCO will own 45 percent of the Martin Lake unit and 60 percent of Forest Grove.

The Martin Lake unit now is scheduled to go into operation in 1985 instead of 1983. Service date for the Forest Grove unit has been moved from 1982 to 1984.

Texas Electric began building plants that use lignite coal in the late 1960s. Purpose of the construction program is to provide adequate service and hold customers' bills as low as possible by reducing the company's reliance on increasingly expensive natural gas and oil.

"We know that gas and oil will continue to be considerably more expensive than lignite," Marquardt said.

"However, we are faced with growing regulatory and inflationary costs on one hand and inadequate rates on the other. Under these conditions, we simply can't afford to build these plants right not at terms that would be in the best interests of our customers."

The company's first two lignite units, which went into service in 1971-72, cost $130 per kilowatt. The newest unit, which will begin operation this summer, will have been built at a cost of about $322 per kilowatt. And the estimated cost of the deferred Forest Grove unit will be more than $500 per kilowatt, Marquardt said.

At the Martin Lake plant, he pointed out, the company will have to spend $57 per kilowatt -- or a total of $172 million --just for the equipment required by federal air quality regulations, many of which are unnecessary.

"For that $172 million, we could have built more than three of our largest gas-fueled generating units a few years ago."

Delaying the two units means the company will have to finance less construction at one time. "Our revenues will be better able to support the full construction program if it's spread out over a longer period of time," Marquardt said.

Because of the delay in these two units, Texas Electric's construction costs will be reduced by about $70 million over the next five years.

Marquardt said the postponement will have no effect on the company's current request for a $110 million rate increase. No financing cost for construction of the two units are included in the rate request except for preliminary site work that already has been completed.

Postponement of the two units should not affect the company's service reliability, Marquardt said, if adequate supplies of natural gas and oil are available through the mid 1980s.

CBS Retains Top Rating

NEW YORK (AP)-CBS claimed the most-watched program for the fourth time in five weeks and held onto first place in the network's battle for the prime time TV audience.

"Alice" was the No. 1 show for the week ending July 9, A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings showed, followed by another CBS comedy, "One Day at a Time."

CBS was first the week before and second to ABC in the ratings the three previous weeks, even though "One Day at a Time" was rated No. 1 twice in that period.

Ten of the first 11 shows in the ratings were reruns. NBC's "Switch," No. 5 for the week, was the exception.

NBC's top show was a repeat of "Colombo," No. 3, and ABC's best was a rerun of "Starsky and Hutch," seventh in the ratings.

The strong showing at the top helped CBS to a rating for the week of 14, compared with 13.3 for NBC and 13.1 for ABC. The networks say the rating means in an average prime time minute, 14 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to CBS.

The rating for "Alice" was 21.1. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 21.1 percent saw at least part of the program.

Four of the six programs at the bottom of the ratings were on ABC: "Fat Movie," a Friday movie, tied with NBC's "Chico and the Man" and "CBS Reports" for No. 60; followed by "Hardy Boys Nancy Drew Mystery" and "Free Country." "Man from Atlantis" on NBC was last.

Here are the week's Top 10 shows:

"Alice," with a 21.1 rating representing 15.4 million homes, and "One Day at a Time," 20.4 or 14.9 million, both CBS; Big Event-"Colombo," 20.2 or 14.7 million, NBC; "M-A-S-H," 20 or 14.6 million, CBS; "Switch," 19.4 or 14.1 million; "All in the Family," 18.9 or 13.8 million; "Starsky and Hutch," 18.6 or 13.8 million, and "Fantasy Island," 18.5 or 13.5 million, both ABC; "Quincy," 18.4 or 13.4 million, and "Charlie's Angels," ABC; and "Barnaby Jones," CBS, both 18.2 or 13.3 million.

Here are the next 10 shows:

"Love Boat," ABC; "Lou Grant," CBS; "Barney Miller," ABC; "Hawaii Five-O," CBS; "Three's Company," ABC; "60 Minutes," CBS, and ABC Thursday Movie-"Ash Wednesday," tie; "Rockford Files," NBC; and "Carter Country," ABC.

Rio de Janeiro had a population of 3.5 million in 1960 and is expected to grow to 19.4 million by the year 2000.

Cuts Stroke, Death Rate In Men...

Humble Aspirin Has New Life-Saving Use

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP)—The humble aspirin, America's favorite medicine, has an important new life-saving use. Doctors have discovered that taking four a day cuts the expected rate of stroke and death by 48 percent in men who have warning symptoms of the disease.

Canadian researchers, however, say that for reasons they cannot explain, aspirin does not protect women from this major killer and crippler.

The finding published today added to a growing list of known beneficial uses of the drug. Last fall, doctors determined that aspirin prevents blood clots in people who undergo hip operations. More recently, the National Heart and Lung Institute has been conducting a study to find out whether aspirin will prevent heart attacks, as suggested by preliminary reports.

According to the Food and Drug Administration, more aspirin is consumed in the United States than any other drug. The acidic white powder is contained in 50,000 over-the counter medicines.

Doctors long have known that acetylsalicylic acid, popularly known as aspirin will soothe minor pain like headache and toothache, reduce fever and lessen inflammation of joints. Why it provides such relief is still a mystery.

Doctors also have found that aspirin is an anti-coagulant in that it hinders the clotting of blood at an open wound. Sometimes blood clots while moving through veins, and that is the root of a variety of diseases, including strokes.

A stroke occurs when a blood clot blocks an artery that feeds the brain. Stroke, which takes the life of one of every five people in the United States, is the nation's third leading cause of death, after heart disease and cancer.

Half of all stroke victims are killed by the attacks. Many of those who survive are hampered by paralysis, slurred speech or other losses of brain function.

The research into aspirin's effectiveness in preventing strokes was conducted by the Canadian Cooperative Study Group. A report on its finding was published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Director of the Study, Dr. Henry J. M. Barnett of the University of Western Ontario, said a dosage smaller than four tablets a day would probably prove to be effective.

Doctors studied 585 men and women who had had "ischemic" attacks - minor blood clots that either block a small artery or dissolve.

The aspirin treatment worked best for men who had no previous history of heart attack. When they took aspirin, the incidence of stroke or death fell 62 percent from the usual level.

The researchers compared the effect of aspirin with another drug called sulfinpyrazone, which is used to treat gout.

"We were quite amazed when the results came out in favor of aspirin and not in favor of sulfinpyrazone," said Barnett. "The majority of the people who took part in the study felt that it would be the other way around."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Pay special attention to details today. You're apt to be in one of your absentminded moods and do something forgetful — like locking your keys in the car.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be prepared for the unexpected in commercial dealings today, especially if friends are involved, or a misunderstanding might result.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Using pressure tactics to get another to comply with your wishes won't work out at all. At the first opportunity, he or she will leave you high and dry.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You could behave like a jumping jack today in making decisions. Unless you settle down, you'll lose sight of your original objective.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If your projects are not well-thought-out, you could cause confusion for yourself and all your coworkers as well.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't get yourself involved in another's complicated affairs. Think twice before making loans, borrowing or advising.

Postal Strike Worries Firms

By WILLIAM GLASGALL
AP Business Writer

The possibility that Postal Service workers will strike when their contract runs out a week from today has caused concern for companies that rely on the mails to reach the public.

At a few corporations, elaborate contingency plans have been drawn up. But many others apparently plan to sit back and hope that any labor stoppage will not last too long.

There "isn't. . .a lot you can do about it," said William End, vice president of marketing at L. L. Bean, a sporting good and clothing mail-order house in Freeport, Maine.

"If they go on strike, we and a lot of other companies that use the mail are going to be in big trouble," he said.

An extended postal strike also would keep companies from mailing bills out and would allow customers to delay paying their debts. This would artificially inflate personal bank balances but would mean businesses might have to step up their borrowing to compensate for the delayed payments.

Consumers also could be hurt if a strike delayed receipt of Social Security and other government checks. A Treasury spokesman said, however, that a contingency plan had been drawn up to get the checks through during a strike, but he would give no details.

The Wall Street Journal, which sends out many of its nearly 1.5 million copies a day by mail from printing plants scattered across the country, has sent subscribers letters explaining they will be able to pick up their papers at designated newsstands, special delivery centers and other retail outlets if there is a strike.

At magazine publisher Time Inc., a spokesman said more than 6 million copies of Time and Sports Illustrated normally are mailed to subscribers each week. "We believe the government has a responsibility for delivery of mail, and we expect them to do so," he said.

Agency Cuts Its Budget $150,000

WASHINGTON (AP)-A saving of $150,000 a year is not much by federal standards but a small agency has devised a way of cutting its public relations budget from about $744,000 to less than $600,000.

Chairman Joseph D. Duffey said the National Endowment for the Humanities saved the money by buying cheaper desks and typewriters and eliminating walls in a new office area.

In aid of vitamin sales?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I wish you'd set me straight on vitamins. All the health books I have read state that most people need all the vitamin supplements from A to Z at some time and some of them all the time even though they are in good health. Could such articles in health magazines be merely to promote the sale of these vitamins for the companies who advertise in the magazines?

I don't drink, smoke or dissipate in any way and follow a daily exercise program. I take vitamins A, B, C, D, E, nucleic acid, zinc, dried yeast and pollen tablets.

The thing that bothers me is that I don't feel any different when taking these vitamins than I do when I don't take them. I feel so good all the time I don't know how I could possibly feel any better. But if there is something I should be doing or not doing to obtain the maximum superb health I would like to know what it is. I'd appreciate your comments on this subject.

DEAR READER — My comment is to relax. I'm afraid you hit the nail on the head about advertising.

In fact, one well-known company that was selling vitamins and also publishing a nutritional magazine once approached me with the idea of writing their magazine for them. The stipulation was that I couldn't write anything or have an article written for the magazine that in any way was detrimental to the sale of vitamins and minerals that were advertised in the magazine.

Many of these magazines make most of their income by selling advertising space. That is one of the reasons why you have to look with a high degree of suspicion upon articles appearing in many health magazines that carry advertising material.

I wish I could tell you something different but that's the way things are. This is in contradistinction to true scientific journals which have editorial boards of reputable scientists who have no relationship to advertising and control the type of advertising that is permitted. But these scientific medical journals are not available to the public; they are found in medical libraries or are available to physicians and those involved in health care.

Most people who eat a good well-balanced diet and have no basic illness that would require an increased amount of vitamins do very well without taking any vitamin supplements. Those who for any reason aren't getting an adequate diet do equally well with a single uncomplicated cheap daily all purpose vitamin pill with iron. Once you've taken one of those there isn't much else you can hope to achieve.

Count your blessings that you feel so good all the time and your good sense to be able to tell that you feel just as well without being hooked by some of the health frauds that are commonplace.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 4-6, Balanced Diet, Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances (RDA). It tells you what you should get from your diet. The recommendations are from the National Academy of Sciences, not a phony health magazine. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Explosion Toll May Top 300

TARRAGONA, Spain (AP)—The death toll from the explosion of a truckload of industrial gas at a Mediterranean campsite may exceed 300, officials said today.

The latest official count was 131, but the unofficial toll was more than 170 and doctors were reporting more deaths hourly at the numerous hospitals from Barcelona to Valencia in which 250 to 275 of the campers were hospitalized with burns.

Medieal sources said at least half the injured were in grave condition.

"Most of them have been practically dead since they were admitted here Tuesday," a doctor at a Valencia hospital said.

Fourteen persons died Wednesday. Some officials said only about 10 percent of the injured were expected to live.

The disaster occurred Tuesday when a truck loaded with 1,518 cubic feet of propylene gas went out of control on a curve, crashed through the concrete wall around a seaside park for holidayers in campers and trailers, and exploded, turning the area into an inferno.

In the aftermath of the tragedy, the governors of Tarragona and Barcelona provinces, where the Costa Brava is dotted with dozens of campsites, ordered tank trucks carrying dangerous cargo to travel only on the expressways back from the coast.

Identification of the dead and some of the injured has been impossible because of the severity of burns and because most of the camp's records were lost in the fire. Officials said many victims would be buried without identification.

There was still no indication of what made the truck go out of control. The police were studying the charred wreckage of the vehicle, and the body of the driver was found Wednesday.

Most of the 500-600 campers were having lunch in their tents or trailers when the truck exploded.

Firemen Called

A grass fire was extinguished last night in the 2300 block of Ave. Z, firefighters said.

The fire was reported at 8:23 p.m.

LegislatureOKs Two Tax Bills

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP)-Both houses of the Legislature have voted unanimously to cut taxes on Texans' gas and electric bills and the money they inherit from relatives.

The House and Senate adjourned until Monday after approving the first tax relief bills of the three-day-old special session on Wednesday.

Final action on the measures might be weeks away. Each house's bill now goes to the other chamber, and there must be agreement on common language before a measure is finally passed.

Senators rapidly passed, 29-0, separate bills repealing the 4 percent state sales tax on household gas and electric bills and upping the tax-exempt portion of inheritances from $25,000 per heir to $200,000 per estate.

But the House took 6½ hours to pass, 136-0, a single bill granting some $50 million more in tax relief than the Senate's.

It applies in inheritance tax break to estates of persons who died after Dec. 1, 1977. The Senate inheritance tax bill applies to estates of those dying on or after Sept. 1, 1978.

The House also voted to add an inflation clause to the tax-exempt part of estates, increasing the $200,000 by 10 percent every two years through 1989.

Commercial establishments operated as proprietorships, partnerships or "family corporations" no more than 10 stockholders would get the utility tax break along with residences under the House bill.

Seeks Buyer...

Uncle Sam Red-Faced Over Topless Bar

WASHINGTON (AP)—If you have some ready cash and an interest in running a topless go-go bar practically in the shadow of the FBI building, Uncle Sam wants you.

The government is a reluctant partner in the venture - the Lone Star Beef House - and is having difficulty finding a buyer. In fact, the Justice Department lawyers who help manage the restaurant say they've just about given up on selling the place.

The Lone Star is saddled with back taxes. But the real problem is a clause in the building's lease that says with little notice a demolition crew could move in to clear the way for a parking lot.

The government would like to sell out, partly because it's a bit red-faced about its involvment with an establishment that, after all, is not too different from those some lawmen used to shut down regularly.

If the FBI ever decides to raid the place, it won't have far to go. The Lone Star is about a block from FBI headquarters and the Justice Department.

The bar and grill attracts an almost exclusively male lunchtime crowd drawn by attractive young dancers performing in nothing more than G-strings and garters to hold gratuities from admiring customers.

On a typical afternoon recently, two young women danced across the table tops while a third performed acrobatics atop a waist-high stage in the center of the room. Their efforts were applauded enthusiastically.

The Justice Department became a proprietor of the Long Star when its former owner, William Sibert, was caught embezzling more than $856,000 while working at the Department of Transportation.

Sibert went on a wild spending spree. One indulgence was to buy the Lone Star for $80,000.

The government has sold off most of Sibert's possessions, netting more than $500,000. But the Lone Star presents special problems.

The property on which the restaurant stands is owned by a liquor store which has a parking lot across the street. But that lot may be converted by the District of Columbia for a new development project.

Consequently, the liquor store has a clause in its lease with the Lone Star that permits it to evict tenants with only six months notice if it needs the property for new parking space.

The government's hopes of selling the Lone Star are further complicated because it has a private partner, H. Eugene Young, a former automobile salesman who Sibert brought into the busines as a full partner.

Young said he tentatively offered the government $50,000 for its share of the partnership. But two Justice Department lawyers handling the case, James J. Brown and C. William Lengacher, say they turned him down because of questions about the proposed payment terms.

"We've reached a stalemate," Lengacher said.

Adding to the government's problem is the Internal Revenue Service's claim for thousands of dollars in back taxes. The IRS could get a court order to confiscate the Lone Star and shut it down if it doesn't raise the moenty.

In Elevator Operators Movement...

Federal Agencies Are Placed 'Under The Gun'

WASHINGTON (AP)-A "grass roots" movement among grain elevator operators will place federal agencies "under the gun," claims the chairman of the International Symposium on Grain Elevator Explosions.

The majority of the criticism leveled by educators and insurance, labor and industry officials during the two days of talks concluded on Wednesday was aimed at the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) and the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

"An awful lot of information will be guided to OSHA, EPA and the USDA as a result of the symposium...they've really been placed under the gun," said Dr. Homer Carhart, the symposium chairman and head of the National Research Council's Committee on Industrial Hazards. "I forsee a grass roots movement as these elevator owners and operators travel back home and begin talking to their employees about safety controls."

The symposium was called to examine the century-old problem of grain dust explosions in elevators that was dramatically brought to the public's attention last December when four explosions rocked elevators in Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Illinois within a six-day period killing 59 and injuring 55.

Since 1976, 85 persons have been killed and 1979 injured in 43 grain elevator explosions in this country.

Each of the three governmental agencies is responsible for monitoring grain dust. OSHA oversees employee safety inside the elevators where high concentrations of the dust can violently explode when triggered by sparks. EPA prohibits discharge of the grain dust into the atmosphere and the dust is re-introduced into the grain under the auspices of the USDA to insure constant weight.

One state official - Louisiana Agriculture Commissioner Gil Dozier - said Wednesday that if "another rash of explosions occur and federal officials don't step in and do something, then we will. I'll shut 'em down," he added referring to his state's grain elevators.

Dozier added that volatile grain dust concentrations can become so great inside elevators that both workers and federal inspectors "are as nervous as a cat in a room full of rockin' chairs."

Robert V. Avant Jr. of the Texas Department of Agriculture said an emergency task force is being formed to study the problem in his state. "One of the things we will be looking into is the possible need of legislation aimed at encouraging the industry to buy more safety equipment," said Avant. "What we don't need is a prolifigation of state or federal regulations...we don't need to think that way in terms of solving the problem."

Art, Drama Classes For Youth Planned

Summer youth classes offering instruction in art and drama are planned at the Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College from July 24-Aug. 3.

Ted Bigham, Snyder High School instructor, will teach the art classes for students in grades 2-6. Students in grades 2-4 will meet from 8:30-10:30 a.m., while those in grades 4-6 will meet from 10:30-12 noon. They will receive instruction in two-dimensional art and pottery making. Fees will be $15 per person, which includes the cost of most art supplies.

Marca Parham, a 1978 Snyder High School graduate, will teach the children's theatre classes. Miss Parham was named Best Actress in state level one-act play competition this spring and was winner of the Samuel French Award the previous year. Jerry Worsham, Snyder High School drama director, will prepare the curriculum for the classes, and students from SHS will assist Miss Parham.

Fees for the drama course will be $10 per person. Classes will meet from 1:30-3:30 p.m. Further information about the course may be obtained by calling the museum office at 573-6107 or 573-8511, extension 210.

Crystal City Applies For Grant To Drill Wildcat

CRYSTAL CITY-The impoverished residents of this gasless Southwest Texas town are hoping the solution to their natural gas crisis is right under their noses - about 3,000 feet down to be exact.

Crystal City, which had its gas supply cut off nine months ago by Lo-Vaca Gathering Co. for refusing to pay an $800,000 debt, has applied for a 650,000 federal grant to drill wildcat gas wells in surrounding - Zavala County, already dotted with producing wells.

"Crystal City and the surrounding area are ideal for drilling," according to geologists. City Manager Raul Flores said Wednesday in Uvalde after the Middle Rio Grande Development Council unanimously approved the grant application.

"The engineers are sure that if we punch six holes, we'll get at least two live wells. We are guaranteed that by the engineers," said Zavala County Judge and Raza Unida Party leader Jose Angel Gutierrez.

"The gas wells will be drilled. There's no question about it. It's just a question of the source of funds," added Gutierrez.

Lo-Vaca cut off the gas to Crystal City's municipal-owned utility company last Sept. 23. The city's 8,100 residents, mostly poor Mexican-American migrant workers, have since been forced to use butane, propane or wood-burning stoves for heating and cooking. Most couldn't afford butane or electric heaters and relied on stoves fueled by gnarled mesquite wood.

The $650,000 Department of Housing and Urban Development grant would be used to acquire gas leases outside the city and to finance the drilling. Flores said none of the initial drilling sites is expected to be inside the city.

Crystal City would add $318,000 of its own money after making a gas strike to pay for a pipeline. That money would be raised through a bond issue backed by the city's newly producing gas wells.

Even if the city's wildcatting adventure is successful, it would still be late 1979 before any gas is available, Flores said. That's why residents are stacking cords of wood, considering solar power water heaters, insulating their homes and overhauling their wood stoves this summer in preparation for a second chilling, gasless winter.

Geologists estimate that a successful well would produce up to 15 million cubic feet of gas per month for 22-55 years. And while Crystal City is seeking that type of relief, city and county authorities are also striving for energy self-sufficiency which this Raza Unida-controlled county considers vital.

"The natural gas will be an important long range source, but we're not totally relying on it," said Gutierrez. "We plan to make some use of solar energy through another grant we have gotten. We are saying we need to control the source of energy."

Loren's Visit Goes Smoother

ROME (AP)-- Now, a visit to Rome by actress Sophia Loren makes headlines.

It never was that way--until 16 months ago when, on her last trip here, she was detained at Leonardo Da Vinci Airport for nine hours as police interrogated her on a currency export matter. She and her husband, Carlo Ponti, have since been charged with illegally transferring $12 million in Italian lire out of the country. Trial is scheduled for October.

Her visit Monday went a lot smoother, the Italian new agency reported. Now a French citizen, Miss Loren, 43, arrived by train from Paris, visited a film studio to try on costumes for her upcoming Lina Wertmuller film and then quickly returned to the French capital.

Majority Break Speed Limit

WASHINGTON (AP)- More than half of America's drivers break the national 55 mile per hour speed limit and this is a major reason that the death toll on U.S. highways rose for a second straight year, the government says.

The Transportation Department reported Tuesday that 47,671 traffic deaths in 1977 is an increase of 4.7 percent over the 45,523 who died in 1976. While more cars, more miles driven and more smaller vehicles also are factors, officials say the main reason is the speed limit violations.

Hired Farm Force Holds

WASHINGTON (AP)- Following a downward trend for more than a decade, the number of hired farm workers in the United States has stabilized in recent years, according to a new analysis by the Agriculture Department.

The analysis, issued Wednesday, was based on Bureau of Census figures for 1976. Up-dated annually by the department's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service, the report said that the 1976 hired work force was about 2.8 million persons.

"The number of hired farm-workers has not changed significantly since 1971, when the hired farm working force numbered over 2.6 million persons," it said. "Since that time, annual employment appears to have stabilized after the long-term downward trend of the previous years."

Although there were years of slight increases and decreases, the farm labor force generally declined after 1958, when it totaled about 4.2 million workers. This coincided with increased mechanization in some sectors of agriculture, a continued migration of rural people to cities and the trend to larger and few farmers on which to work.

"As in previous years, hired farm workers were predominately young, white and male," the report said of the 1976 statistics. "The majority lived off the farm and more resided in the south than in any other region of the United States."

The report said also that:
- 60 percent of the hired workers were less than 25 years old and that half of those were 14 to 17 years of age.
-The median age of all workers was 23 years, meaning that half were older and half were younger.
-74 percent of all farm workers were white.
-74 percent of all farm workers were male.
81 percent of all workers did not live on farms at the time of the survey in 1976.
The report said that only 12 percent of all hired help worked on farms yearround, meaning 250 days or more. Another 10 percent worked on farms 150 to 249 days a year.
Averaged together, the 1976 hired labor force earned $1,652 per worker, an average of $19.25 a day for 86 days of farm employment, the report said.
Those who worked on the farm yearround earned $6,392 in 1976 for an average of 305 days of employment or $20.95 a day, the survey found.
Looking at migrant farm workers, the report said that in 1976 there were 213,000 - about 8 percent of the total work force - who traveled across county lines from their usual place of residence to stay overnight and do farm work, a definition used by the statisticians.
The study of migrants found that:
-Nearly 60 percent of them were less than 25 years old.
-Almost one-third were students who were out of the work force most of the year.
-72 percent were males.
-They averaged 82 days of farm work and earned $1,807 a year.
White accounted for 57 percent of migrant workers; Hispanics, 36 percent; and blacks and "others", 7 percent.
